Sinclair Freed On Teapot Dome Conspiracy Charge

Jury Accepts Tale Told by Everhart On Liberty Bonds

Oil Magnate Still Faces Total of Nine Months In Jail Sentences for Alleged Contempt.

REACTION IS FELT QUICKLY IN SENATE

"Impossible to Convict A Million Dollars" Avers Chairman Nye — Trial Was Swiftly Made.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, April 21.—Harry F. Sinclair stood free today of charges that he conspired to defraud the government in the Teapot Dome oil lease. A jury in the District of Columbia supreme court acquitted him, requiring only three ballots to reach its decision.

One of the jurors, who withheld his name, later said not a single vote for conviction was cast by any of the jurymen in the one hour and fifty nine minutes they considered the case. On the first ballot he said eight were for acquittal and four undecided, and on the second, ten for acquittal and two undecided.

In declaring Sinclair not guilty of conspiring with Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, to defraud the government in the rich oil lease the jury accepted the story told by a government witness, M. T. Everhart, son-in-law of Fall, of

Dale, Freed, Asks Return of Money

Representative Is Cleared By Jury On Charge Of Taking Bribe—Files Suit For $1000.

(By Associated Press)

AUSTIN, April 21—The somewhat complicated problem of who gets the $1,000 was raised Saturday, close on the heels of a jury verdict acquitting former State Representative F. A. Dale if charges of taking the money as a bribe to get a tax bill killed in the 40th legislature.

Almost before the courthouse was emptied of the jurors, Dale filed a suit against Ranger Captain Frank Hamer for the money, or an equivalent amount. The ranger has had charge of the money since he took it from Dale's left trousers pocket on a February night in 1927 at the entrance of a local hotel alley. The $1,000 belonged to the Texas Optometry association.

Denying that he accepted the crisp packet of bills as a bribe, or intended bribe from W. W. Chamberlin, optometry association lobbyist, Dale claimed in his trial that he considered the money as a retainer fee. The roll, he said, was "pressed" on him by Chamberlin for his services as attorney in possible house contempt proceedings against Chamberlin as a lobbyist.

Claim to Be Urged

This claim will be urged in his civil suit in view of the jury finding that Dale was not guilty of taking a bribe. Chamberlin had testified that the money was offered Dale so the legislator could be ap-

75 WOMEN JAILED FOLLOWING PARADE

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, Ohio, April 21. (AP)—Further demonstrations by striking coal miners and their sympathizers were feared here tonight as a result of the arrest today of nearly 75 women. The arrest of the women ended a "march of protest" on the Belmont county jail by almost 300 men and women today. The protest was staged because of the arrest of five persons earlier in the day in connection with the "marches" during the week on the Mutton Hollow mine of the Shadyside Coal company.

Sheriff C. C. Hardesty anticipated that when the striking miners learned that the women, most of them miners' wives, had been jailed, they would again march on the jail in an effort to obtain the women's freedom.

To Study Cities

Lubbock Officials Plan Two Trips

Planning to learn by experiences of others and to use the advice of experts, wherever possible in their work here, officials of the City of Lubbock will make two short trips, Mayor Harley D. Woods said yesterday.

City Manager Gus W. McCleary, City Secretary W. H. Rodgers and R. A. Holland, municipal tax collector, will leave this afternoon for Amarillo, where they will confer with city officials there on various systems of management. The three expect to return Monday night, Manager McCleary said.

Early in May Mayor Woods, Mr. McCleary and possibly one or two other officials of the city, will go to Dallas where they will attend a conference of the American City Planners association. According to the mayor the Lubbock men expect to gain much valuable information especially regarding city zoning, which is one of the problems which is facing Lubbock now.

The mayor reported harmony in all branches of the municipal government and said that he is especially well pleased with the work of the newly appointed park board, which is already planning the policies which will be put into effect in the parks here in the future. Members of the board are Mrs. C. F. Stubbs, K. N. Clapp and J. B. Maxey.

No Means of Identification For Youth With Mexican Crushed By a Train Near Pampa.

PAMPA, April 21.—An unidentified white youth and a Mexican were killed here today when a Santa Fe passenger train struck a trailer at a corner. The victims were walking alongside the trailer and were struck by flying pieces of the vehicle.

The white boy, about 23, was wearing a Texas Technological college belt buckle but no means of identification were found in his clothing. He is said to have come from Amarillo Friday.

The man driving the truck pulling the trailer succeeded in getting his truck across the track, but not in time to clear the trailer.

A tract ten miles square was covered by the drive, which was broken at noon by a barbecue, served by the ladies of the community. Clauene is located ten miles south of Levelland.

LAKE STE. AGNES, Quebec, April 21. (AP)—Departure of the transatlantic monoplane Bremen from ice bound Greenly Island was still further delayed when illness of Floyd Bennett prevented continuation today of New York's official relief expedition.

TEXARKANA, April 21.—Twenty one persons injured, seven seriously and damage to houses, livestock and trees estimated at $125,000 was the toll of a tornado that swept Bowie and Miller counties between 2 and 3 a. m. today.

Property damage is expected to increase with reports from communities that were without telephone service. Thirteen of the injured are negroes. The number of residences demolished was placed at about 150.

The storm originated apparently in the vicinity of Linden and Atlantz, 30 miles southwest of here. In several cases houses were unroofed above sleeping families, while the wind sent their beds floating into fields. A downpour or rain added to their discomfort.

SEVEN BURN TO DEATH

Robbery and Murder Held Motives

EL DORADO, Kans., April 21 (AP)—The possibility that robbery resulted in the murder and subsequent burning of seven members of a family in their Kansas farm home 2220 miles northwest of here, last night, tonight held the attention of Butler county officers.

No definite indication of foul play had been brought to light how ever, other than knowledge of the fact that William Ohrst, whose body, with those of his wife and five of their six children were found amid charred ruins, recently had in his possession considerable sums of money, received from grain sales.

California, Ohio And Indiana Hold Stage In Politics

Conflicting Claims Made by Presidential Backers; Smith Has 301 Pledged And Hoover 233.

WASHINGTON, April 21 — With conflicting claims of the strength they will be able to show at the national conventions in June, the various presidential candidates and their managers, both Republican and Democratic, are pressing their campaigns for delegates with eyes turned to three important state primaries just ahead—in Ohio, Indiana and California.

While admittedly none of the three will prove a conclusive test, the vote-getting ability of Herbert Hoover will be shown in Ohio Tuesday and in Indiana two weeks later. Sandwiched in between, on May 1, the Democratic primaries in California will give a line on the strength of Governor Smith, who is in a three-cornered contest there with Senators Reed and Walsh.

JUDGE'S TRIAL SET

Madisonville Jurist Is Indicted for Murder

HUNTSVILLE, April 21. (AP)—District Judge Carl T. Harper of Madisonville, who was indicted here today on a charge of murder, following the shooting of Lee Houston, after an automobile accident, will be tried in Brenham, May 8 or 9. J. B. Fliers Spent Days On Icy Island After Crossing Pole

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, April 21.—Another conquest of the North Polar regions was recorded today when Capt. George H. Wilkins announced to the Copenhagen Politiken the safe arrival at Spitzbergen of himself and Carl B. Eielson. They flew over the roof of the world from Point Barrow, Alaska.

Only two brief wireless messages came through but they revealed that Wilkins, like Koehl and Fitzmaurice in the Bremen, had a narrow escape from disaster at the very end of their adventure. For some reason, as yet unexplained, Wilkins was obliged to make a landing on an uninhabited islet only 25 miles from his goal. The fliers were detained there for five days by bad weather.

The islet, on the north side of Isfjord, bears the forbidding name of Deodmansoeira (Dead Man's Island.) It is a mere speck in the Arctic waste. There was shelter for Koehl, Fitzmaurice and Von Huenefeld on Greenly Island, but there is no lighthouse on Doedmansoeira.

The Wilkins announcements were all the briefer because the regular radio operator of the small station in the Svalbard Archipelago was killed a few days ago in an accident. Some one of the Spitzbergen colony knew enough about wireless transmission to get out word of that accident and to call for a relief operator.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, April 21 (AP)—Audie Ellard, a marine private from Ladonia, Texas, was slightly wounded by buckshot Thursday evening when rebels fired on a marine patrol near El Sauce. Rotarians Hold Meeting Amid Gleam Of Stalactites Deep In Carlsbad Cave

Spirit of Rotary Carried Far Underground As Delegation From Lubbock Convention Inspect Wonders of World-Famous Cave; 150 Make Trip On Special

BY C. W. RATLIFF
Avalanche-Journal Staff

CARLSBAD, New Mexico, April 21—One hundred and fifty Rotarians of the 41st district of Rotary International came out of the famed Carlsbad cavern this afternoon holding a closer reverence for their Creator after having spent six hours wandering through the magnificent wonders of the cavern as guests of Jim White, explorer, and native Texas cowboy, and the Carlsbad Rotary club.

Arriving at Carlsbad early Saturday morning the Texans were greeted by C. F. Montgomery, past president of the Carlsbad club and president of the Carlsbad Chamber of Commerce, and Victor L. Minter, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, who escorted them to a delicious breakfast after which they were loaded into Carlsbad cars and driven to the cavern, 30 miles away.

Escorted down the 750 feet of the wonders by Jim White himself, the explorer of the cave, the guests ate lunch after which an enthusiastic Rotary meeting was held in the big room.

Vic Minter spoke a few words of welcome to the visitors which were seconded by Charlie Montgomery who introduced modest Jim White, District Governor Ellis Boyd then made a short address, followed by short talks from Frank Taylor, president of the Fort Worth club, Dr. Dallas Southard, president of the Stamford club, Bill Rue, president of the Gainesville club, Bill Slay of Fort Worth and others.

As the guests made their departure from the cavern a purse was

Lubbock Federal Court Drive Will Be Given Impetus

"City Just Begun Fight" Declare Members of the Committee Who Investigated Project.

Declaring that "Lubbock has only started its fight for a federal court" John L. Vaughan, C. E. Maedgen, and J. E. Vickers, members of the federal building committee of the Board of City Development, conferred yesterday afternoon with A. B. Davis, manager of the B. C. D. on future campaign plans.

Now that Lubbock is certain of a $160,000 postoffice, with $50,000 of that total available after July 1 when the new fiscal year opens, the committeemen pointed out that there is no use being satisfied with the possibility of gaining the court still hanging fire.

Headed by Chairman C. E. Maedgen the committee spent nearly three weeks in Washington, conferring with Senator Earle B. Mayfield, Congressman Marvin Jones, and other Texans on their campaign and working to bring the prize to Lubbock. They left Lubbock on March 29 and returned here Friday.

FIGHT REMOVAL

Boycott Suggested by Waco Merchants On Dallas

WACO, April 21 (AP)—Enlivened by suggestion that a trade boycott practiced against Dallas because of removal agitation which, if culminating, would take Baylor University to that city, all-day sessions planning Waco's fight and protest against removal occupied the Waco chamber of commerce today.

Tonight Waco Baylor alumni and ex-students at their annual banquet heard an address by H. S. Garrett of Fort Worth, president of the Baylor University alumni association, in which he strongly opposed removal of the school to Dallas. The Waco alumni also passed similar resolutions.

Boll Worm Relief Bill Meets Favor

Would Have Passed Senate Saturday Save For Sudden Recess — Provides Fund of $5,000,000.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, April 21—The Ransdell resolution to provide $5,000,000 for a pink boll worm eradication campaign in western Texas almost passed the senate today in the midst of the Nicaraguan debate. It was held up only by an objection from the senator from Utah, but King had virtually decided to withdraw his objection and permit the resolution to go through when a recess was taken by the senate unexpectedly.

Senator Ransdell, author of the resolution saw an opportunity to hustle the project through while the Nicaraguan debate was going full blast. He told the senate the need was urgent in Texas and called attention to press reports that the pest from Mexico had invaded nine counties in western Texas, two additional counties having been added to the list in the last week.

The application is designed to pay for the establishment of non-cotton zones and also losses for this year by farmers whose cotton crops would be destroyed.

Slaton Wins District Track Meet; Four Records Broken

Hooks and Slides

Nice reading matter can be fashioned out of the unknown substitute who goes in and delivers for the big star in the great emergency. And even if he doesn't deliver in victorious style he makes a good story.

Leonard Grant, a young football player from New York University, who is six feet two and weighs 215 pounds, delivered as a substitute hero in the intercollegiate boxing championships.

"TNT" Lassman, 1927 intercollegiate heavyweight champion, captain of the N. Y. U. eleven and an All-America star, broke his leg last fall and couldn't go out for boxing. Grant, who plays next to his captain on the line, answered the call for help and with very little coaching went into the championship tournament and won the title.

Claude Grigsby, captain of the Georgetown football team, heard the same distress call from the boxing coach and answered it. He got a fine beating but proved himself a great sportsman.

Georgetown's star, heavyweight was injured shortly before the championship tournament, and as colleges always want an entry in the heavyweight class, the coach called for volunteers. Grigsby never had the gloves on before but he answered the call and went into the tournament. He took a fine beating, but he wasn't knocked out, and the fair name of Georgetown was represented.

Example of Sportsmanship

It was the same Grigsby who twice distinguished himself for sportsmanship on the football field last fall.

In the Lafayette game one of the star Lafayette backs was knocked out and time was called. When time was up the player hadn't come to sufficiently and they were about to lead him from the field when Grigsby came to the rescue and called itme out for Georgetown so the player would have another two minutes.

Later in another game, in a serious situation, the opposing team called time out and was told that it would cost a penalty as the team had exceeded the allowance of the rules. A penalty would have ruined the chance to score, but Grigsby again came to the rescue.

"Georgetown now taking time out," he said to the referee and thereby gave the other fellows their chance for a conference and a breathing spell.

Fast Competition In Tennis Matches

Gilfred Scott of Lubbock Wins Boys' Singles And Westerner Team Places First In Doubles.

The annual South Plains Interscholastic league tennis tournament this year was marked by very interesting matches both in the singles and doubles for both girls and boys.

Gilfred Scott, Lubbock high school entry, won the boys singles by defeating M. Boney, Plainview high school contestant, in three well played matches. The score of the bout was 10-3, 7-5, and 6-3.

Rhenn Richery, of Dickens high school, defeated the Levelland contestant in the finals of girls tennis, with scores of 6-1, 6-1, and 6-0.

The most interesting match of the annual tennis match was in the boys doubles, which was won by the Westerner team, Ed. Blackwell and Jim Whitesides against the Tahoka net men, J. Robinson and E. S. Evans. The score of this match was 4-6, 6-0, 6-1, 3-6 and 6-4.

Glenna Collins and Elsie Merriweather, Floydada double team in the girls division, lost to Joyce Price and Jewel Johnson in a three set decision by a score of 3-6, 6-3, and 6-1.

Medals were a warded to the winners of the singles and a handsome silver vase was presented to the winners of the doubles.

LAWRENCE, Kans., April 21—In new record time, San Angelo, (Texas) high school won the high school medley relay at the Kansas relays today. The time was 3:42:1. A 400, two 220's and an 880 were won.

Main Avenue High, of San Antonio, Texas, won the high school mile relay in 3:29.9, a new record. San Angelo, Texas, was second.

Main Avenue High school, of San Antonio, won second in the half mile high school relay at the Kansas relays here today. Central High of Kansas City, won first in 1:32, a new meet record.

LAWRENCE, Kans., April 21 (AP)—The handicap of wintry weather, combined with a raw wind that swept memorial stadium bested the efforts today of a record breaking entry of college and university track stars to crack the meet records at the sixth annual Kansas relays. It was the official inaugural of the outdoor track season in the middlewest and crack athletes of three conferences, the Big Ten, Missouri Valley and Southwestern were thrown into the lists, but without avail.

The only record to go was in the discus throw, in which Howell, Oklahoma university set a new record of 141 feet 9 inches, downing the favorite Baldwin of Texas, whose heave of 141 feet 7 inches also was better than the old record of 141 feet 4 3-4 inches.

Northwestern dominated the relays, collecting nine points by winning a first and trying for another.

Illinois totaled eight points in the relays, while the Texas Aggies and Kansas got seve neach.

Feature of the relays was the downfall of many crack relay teams, that had ben chosen as favorites.

BEAUMONT, April 21 — Oscar Tuero continued his customary effectiveness against the Exporters this afternoon and Waco evened the short series 5 to 2. Clarence Williams's wildness, coupled by extra base knocks, gave the Cubs a well-played game. Brown's triple with two on base turned the tide.

Cowboys and Tech Meet Monday For Laurels In Track

Matador Coach Says Squad From Abilene Will Make Locals Hustle To Merge Victors In Meet.

Leslie (Fats) Cranfield and sixteen of his Cowhands from Simmons University will be here Monday afternoon for a dual track meet with Victor Payne's Matadors at the Texas Technological College athletic field starting promptly at 2 o'clock with the high hurdles scheduled for the first event.

Coach Payne is of the opinion that the Cowboys will be the strongest team the Matadors will have to contend with during this year's work and anticipates this encounter as the banner track and field performance of the season.

Cowboys Are Fast

The Simmons club is particularly strong in the dash events with T. McCollum, Owens, and Brashars, entered in the 100, 220, and 440 yard dashes. The Cowhands, too, have strong entries listed in the field events.

Practically the same Matador contestants are listed in the Simmons meet as were entered in the dual clash with the West Texas State Teachers College on April 14.

Both the Matadors and Cowboys will enter in the annual Great Plains Meet, which is to be conducted under the direction of the West Texas State Teachers College, at Canyon Friday and Saturday, April 27 and 28.

Tennis Events Will Accompany Track Meet

In connection with the dual meet between the Texas Technological College Matadors and the Simmons University Cowboys in the track and field competition to be held here Monday afternoon. The netmen of both institutions will also meet in a dual meet on the Tech courts at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon.

Wilson Kirahan will be in No. 1 match, McDonald in No. 2; John Dye, in No. 3; and W. D. Henson, in No. 4, of the Matadors against the Cowboy net workers.

McKirahan and McDonald will be the ranking pair in the doubles against the ranking double team of Simmons University! Nunnellee and Laham constitute the second double team for the Matadors.

What is anticipated to be the feature match of the dual tennis meet will be the play of McKirahan of Tech versus Dunbarry, of Simmons. Last year Dubarry defeated McKirahan in a dual meet and the Matador net star is anxious to make further contentions for victory over the Simmons flash.

P.-T. A. GROUP ACTIVE

Foster Organization For Better Lighting

The P.-T. A. organization at Foster may not be the largest in Lubbock county from a membership standpoint, but it may safely be said that it is one of the livest, most progressive and active. There are less than 20 members, but during the past year this small body has raised sufficient money to erect a stage in the school auditorium, supply lights, and a large curtain.

At a meeting Friday night, the last meeting for the year, it was found that there was considerable money on hand, so it was voted to spend it for more and better lights.

Through efforts of the body and kindness of Prof. Ray McDearman a branch of the county library will be maintained throughout the summer.

Several visitors, including Frank McClendon, D. F. Eaton, Miss Louise Baird and Ray B. McCorkle, all of Lubbock, were present and addressed the meeting. Mr. Eaton outlined the short course program to be held in the county next week, while the others spoke in interest of the Poultry association.

Cecil Austin of Slaton Is Individual Star of Meet; Floydada Scores Second And Olton Fourth.

Odus Mitchell's Slaton high school Tiger entries in the fourteenth annual South Plains Interscholastic league track and field meet accumulated a total of 39 points here yesterday afternoon to cop the district laurels by a wide margin.

It was the first meet since organization of the league that was not won by the Lubbock high school Westerners. For thirteen years the local school having won the district title. Floydada scored second in the cope with 23 points, the Westerners counted 18 for third place, Olton, making 15 points for fourth.

Cecil (Ikey) Austin, fleet entry of the Slaton high school, alone scored enough points to rank third in the meet had he been the only entry registered from the Tiger's lair, for he took three first places in the 100 yard dash, 220 yard low hurdles, 220 yard dash, and came in for two second places in the broad jump and javelin throw, scoring a total of 21 points to be awarded the 14 karat gold medal for high point man in the meet. In the 220 low hurdles the Tiger flash snapped the tape at 26.5 seconds to lower the district record formerly held by Oscar Stone, another Slatonite.

Four Records Lowered

Four district records were shattered here yesterday. Harkey, Dickens entry in the pole vault, cleared the bar at 11 feet 6 inches to beat the record formerly held by Bowen Lubbock, Nalley, Dickens, and Crump of Ralls, who were all tied at 11 feet. U. S. Marshal, Whirlwind contestant of Floydada high school, hurled the discus 116 inches to shatter "Rosy" Edmonds mark of 115 feet 6 inches. Curb, Idalou Wildcat entry of the javelin throw, lowered Edmonds district record of 158 feet 6 inches. The fourth record to be lowered was by Austin in the 220 low hurdles.

Relay Race Spectacular

The most spectacular event of the day's performance was the one mile relay race, which was warmly contested by the Lubbock, Floydada, Ralls, Post and Olton teams. Hopper, fleet dash man, took the pole in the relay and brought the baton to Howard, Westerner second man, about two yards behind. Hooper, Olton entry, and after making the first curve Howard passed the second Olton dashman and came in some ten yards ahead of the field to hand the baton to Ben Lawrence who stretched the lead over John Edwards. Floydada pacer who had passed other contenders in the field Cap Parkinson, anchor man of the relay race for the Westerners, had a good lead over Moore, Whirlwind dasher, but the Floydada pacer regained the lead and before Parkinson had reached the first straightaway Moore passed him and it appeared to be a good setup for the Whirlwinders but on the last curve Parkinson displayed a grim determination and strong endurance by taking the lead to win the race for the local school. A heavy wind kept the pacers of the relay from making any where near the same time set by the 1927 Lubbock team, when they set a new district record of 3 minutes 34.9 seconds.

Gold plated medals were awarded to the winners of first place in all events and silver-plated ones were given second place winners.

The district champions of basketball, Lubbock high school, were awarded a silver basketball; and the runnerups, Ralls, received a silver center piece for their work in the district conference meet last February.

Lubbock high school was awarded a silver pitcher for winning the one mile relay.

The Slaton high school team won a silver pitcher for scoring highest points in the meet.

The district meet was under the direction of Ewing Y. Freeland, Texas Tech athletic director, and was run off on schedule time without the slightest interruption.

Kirkwood To Give Exhibition Here

King of Trick Shot Golfers Will Make Demonstration At Country Club Next Sunday.

Golf fans of Lubbock and the South Plains will have an unusual opportunity to witness a exhibition of golf played by Joe Kirkwood, who is purported to be the world's greatest trick shot and one of the most outstanding professional players in America. Kirkwood is appearing under the auspices of the Lubbock Country club, Sunday, April 29 on the club's course.

Kirkwood is a sensational player and possesses many trick shots, which gives the gallery plenty of thrills and leaves them standing in wonderment.

Ross A. McWhorter, chairman of the golf committee of the County club, has placed tickets for the exhibition on sale at the Hotel Drug Bowen's Drug Store, and McWhorter-Roberds.

Billy Evans Reminiscences Again

He Remembers The Methods Instituted By Tim Hurst To Speed Up Baseball Games

resident Barnard of the Ameri- League has pledged himself to speeding up of the ball games the junior organization.

or several years the American ue has suffered in comparison the National in this feature y, due to the fact that any er of tedious delays have been ed to creep into the playing of game.

hen the American League made ght against the National for nition, snappy-played games inated the circuit and no one helped more to make the nal finally sue for peace.

n Johnson, former head of the rican League, until late years tantly stressed the value of ac- . In this connection I always all a story that had Tim Hurst its central figure.

ome years ago, due to the fact t a great many pitchers were g the spitball delivery and the faking it in order to get the chological advantage, American ue kames dragged. President nson's pride was hurt. He te his umpires for suggestions as how the games could be shortd as to playing time. All the pires responded with logical arnents, such as the abolition of spitball and the like. Tim rst, the court jester of the staff, ted the matter humorously. His y read something like this:

f you are really in earnest ut shortening the games, Ban, y not try seven innings?"

merican League umpires aldy have been notified to elim- e all avenues of delay. Connt stepping out of the batter's on the slightest pretext will be po. No longer will the entire eld be allowed to gather around pitcher in a huddle. Outfielder who insist on coming into the e to argue a ruling, are sure get into trouble.

fter all, there is nothing quite irritating to the average fan as have the game delayed while an fielder leaves his position and comes perhaps 100 yards to argue a play and after it is over usually takes plenty of time before he resumes his position.

This is a rather embarrassing situation for an umpire when the manager happens to be an outfielder. Major league clubs pay big sums to playing managers, who aside from performing in the field must also direct the play of the team. Desirous of being fair with the club and manager, the umpire often finds the manager taking undue liberties with his leniency, that tend to make a farce of the game because of the constant delays.

At one time the American League had a number of managers in the outfield, the most recent being those two outstanding stars, Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker. No doubt many of the fans will recall how the outfield managers used to have a path worn from their position to the plate. Which recalls another story, having Tim Hurst again as its author.

There never was a manager who did more marathons from the outfield to the plate than Fielder Jones as manager of the Chicago White Sox. One day after he had made several round trips at the expense of Tim Hurst, the umpire went out to meet him as he started for the plate a third time.

Jones, realizing trouble was brewing and that Hurst would probably put hi mout of the game at the slightest pretext, veered off in the direction of the shortstop engaged that player in conversation and then started to retrace his steps to center field. Hurst standing in the center of the diamond, yelled:

"You're going the wrong way, keep on to the club house."

"You haven't put me out of the game?" asked Jones.

"Sure enough," replied Hurst.

"Why, I haven't said a word, nor done a thing to get put out of the game," remonstrated Jones.

"It's not for anything you said but for what you are thinking about me," responded Hurst and the decision stood.

Business Men Of Town Give Pledge To Support Team

Club, Now In Lubbock, To Report Back to Original Home — Teams Prepare For Opening of League.

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

SWEETWATER, April 21.—The Hamlin franchise of the West Texas baseball league will remain at Hamlin instead of being transferred to Sweetwater it was dcided here today in a special called session of the circuit officials. The season for the league starts Wednesday.

Some twenty business men of Hamlin were present at the meeting and pledged the league body their support of the ball club.

The league placed the franchise back in Hamlin with the assurance from the Hamlin representatives that a stipulated amount would be paid each month to the league for the maintenance of the club and with the option of purchasing the franchise outright any time they see fit.

With Cecil Coombs and Army Magness, two managerial applications on hand, it is likely that one or the other will be named as the Hamlin manager immediately.

The Hamlin club is in Lubbock at present and according to J. L. Winters, business manager, they will report to Hamlin within the next day or so.

No change will be made in the loop schedule by virtue of the fact that Hamlin was in the adopted schedule.

Hubbers Meet Midland Colts in Opening Game

Wednesday, April 25, is the day the West Texas league curtain raises.

Bennie Brownlow's Hubbers will meet with the Midland Colts in the opening fracas at Midland. Les Tullos' Aces, of Abilene, take on Hamlin Ranchmen at Hamlin; and the San Angelo Snappers open with Bob Couchman's crew in Coleman.

For three weeks the pilots of the six clubs have been brushing their recruits through daily workouts and are practically ready for the beacon of the words "play ball!"

The Hubbers split a twin card with the Hamlin club last week in the first intra-league exhibition.

The Aces won from the Abilene All-Stars in yesterday's game by a score of 13 to 11, when Ed Kallina, initial hassocker of the Aces, cracked out a homer in the ninth with one on base, to win the game. Today the Aces will envade the Concho Park at Abilene against Red Snapp's seasoned combination.

Campaigns are being carried out in the six towns for the banner attendance for opening day. Lubbock is striving for 2500 and this week a canvass of the town will be conducted for the sale of opening day tickets.

The Hubbers will open at home with the Midland Colts on Friday, April 27.

A Good Time Was Had By All

This Is How Dr. P. W. Horn Thinks Rotary Meeting Would Be In The Mercury

During the latter part of April there was a choice assortment of boobs, blurbs, and Babbitts of the Rotary club held at Lubbock, Texas. It appears upon investigation that Lubbock is one of the tank towns in the great open spaces of West Texas where men are men and women are governors. In order to impart an air of respectability to the aggregation, several clergymen and a bishop were inveigled into being present. In a somewhat futile effort to impart a degree of culture to the cowboys and other denizens of the Llanos Estacados, one of the speakers secured was the President of a college which had been established a few months before in one of the moderate sized cow pastures of the vicinity. The Rotarians and their wives did their dead level best to look intelligent and to have the appearance of having some conception as to what it was all about. Main Street and the Babbitts and the Elmer Gantreys as they are represented on the wind swept prairies were there in full force. A good time was had by all.

THOSE HUSKIES

"Got to have a set of those huskies." We often hear such a remark—and from men whose experience has taught them that Dayton Red Stripes are tough customers—standing up under terrific road punishment and sustained high speeds—as no other tires will. There are many reasons why. Dayton "REDS" are heavier—have stouter cords, laid closer together—have more gum rubber between plies—have extra plies—have stronger beads—and NO Reclaimed Rubber in them whatsoever. Take our advice. Next time you buy tires—let them be Daytons.

Sinclair Trial

the Liberty Bond deal which the government charged was bribery.

Upheld Everhart's Story

The jury upheld Everhart's story that Sinclair gave Fall $233,000 in Liberty Bonds for one third share in the Tres Ritos Cattle and Land company, the Fall ranch in New Mexico, Everhart, had testified that he hadr eceivedh fiDt etaoinnnn he had received the bonds from the oil operator and had given them to Fall but insisted they had no connection with the oil lease.

It was a tense moment when word came that the jury was ready to report. Mrs. Sinclair, who for six years has stood beside her husband as he fought various charges growing out of the oil lease, broke under the strain and began to sob. Sinclair took his place at the counsel table and arose as the jury filed into the court and stood beside the jury box. The calm faces of the jurymen gave not the slightest indication of their verdict. The court asked if they had reached a verdict and upon an affirmative answer, the clerk asked:

"What is your verdict, Mr. Foreman?"

"Not guilty," he replied.

Mrs. Sinclair Weeps

An audible sigh from somewhere followed, and then congratulations were heaped upon Sinclair by his friends and counsel who crowded around him. Mrs. Sinclair cried openly as the strain of six years were lifted by the jury's two words. She was surrounded in the court corridor by friends and as soon as Sinclair could push through the crowd he went to her side to lead her from the court to their apartment in the Carlton hotel. The oil man stopped long enough to say.

"I have felt from the inception of these charges that I would be acquitted of every suspicion of intention to defraud the government if the charges were ever passed upon by a jury. I am happy at the outcome of course, but it is only what I have expected because I knew that I had not acted corruptly or unethically in negotiating the lease."

Sinclair and his family departed soon afterward to spend two weeks at his Rancocas farm in New Jersey.

The speed with which the jury reached its verdict emphasized the expedition which has marked the entire trial.

Although this case is out of the way, Sinclair remains under a six months jail sentence for contempt of court because he had the Fall-Sinclair jury shadowed by Burns detectives. He is also under a three months jail sentence and $200 fine for refusing to answer questions before the senate investigation committee.

made up and presented to Jim White, also one to the head guide who aided in conducting the party through te passageways.

Ernest Justin, of Fort Worth, announced that he is to present Jim with a special pair of Justin boots as a souvenir of the occasion.

Echoing words of "My Country 'Tis of Thee", "The Eyes of Texas" (by request of Jim), "The End of a Rotary Day", "God Be With Us Till We Meet Again" and other Rotary songs resounded from the crevices, domes and beauty spots of God's handiwork in the Big Room.

Following this a big flare lighted up the room which revealed in undescribable colors, the beauty of the underground fairyland.

A tired, but happy group welcomed the blue haze of the cave's opening and sunlight two hours later.

A reception was planned at Roswell for the group on the return trip by members of the Roswell Rotary club and the New Mexico Military Institute band.

A jovial and merry-making delegation of Texas Rotarians made their way homeward last night, bidding closer their freindship by numerous little games and contests on the Carlsbad special. Featuring the return trip to Lubbock was the initiation into the "Order of the Barnyard", every member of the party being ushered into the organization which was created among the Fort Worth delegation.

The Fort Worth delegation continued their way home last night, bidding farewell to the Lubbock group here at 12:30.

Ellis Boyd, district governor and Mrs. Boyd, Frank Taylor, president of the Fort Worth club, and Mrs. Taylor stayed in Lubbock last night and are driving through to Fort Worth today.

pile additional facts and figures, they said. The committee will recommend to directors of the Board of City Development Tuesday that plans be pushed to secure the passage of the court bill during the present term of Congress. The bill calling for the establishing of the court, has already been reported in both the House and the Senate.

The trio was loud in its praises of the help given the campaign by Texans in Congress and all three men particularly commendatory in speaking of the assistance rendered by Congressman Jones, who represents this district, and of Senator Mayfield.

Vaughan See Coolidge

Mr Vaughan, local postmaster the only republican on the committee, pulled one on his fellow workers when he gained an interview with President Coolidge. Mr Vaughan, who talked with the president for about 10 minutes, reports that Mr. Coolidge is an affable man, smokes a stogie and is not at all the ultra-reserved, icy-cold, individual he is credited with being.

"The President," Mr. Vaughan, said "Told me that he hoped we were successful in our mission to Washington."

Al Smith is by far the strongest democratic candidate in the east and north, members of the committee reported yesterday, but the prevailing opinion in that section is that Herbert Hoover will defeat the New York Governor providing they are named by their respective parties as presidential nominees. Nomination of Governor Smith, however, is conceded by democrats and republicans alike in the north and east.

Messrs. Vickers and Maedgen went to New York for three days after the work in Washington was completed they said, leaving Mr. Vaughan to keep an eye on the situation while they looked over the big city. They saw a major league baseball game in addition to other sights, they said and Mr. Vaughan admitted that he was in the stands when the Washington Senators and the Boston Red Sox, in the American league, pried the to poff the 1928 season in the capital city.

Politics

under way at Kansas City seven weeks from Tuesday. Two weeks later—on June 26—the Democrats assemble at Houston. To date 583 Republican delegates have been selected, 38 more than the majority of 545 needed for a nomination. Democratic delegates chosen thus far total 442 with nearly 300 more than that number necessary for a two thirds nominating majority.

On the face of delegates actually designated, Hoover holds a lead among the Republican aspirants, with 233 instructed for him or generally conceded to him. Lowden, the runner-up, has 175 on the same basis. Managers for each are claiming more than these totals from among the 112 delegates whose preference has not been publicly disclosed.

Smith Has 301 Pledged

As for Smith, he is far in the lead among the Democrats with 301 or 60 more than he polled on the first ballot at Madison Square Garden in 1924. Three opponents—Reed, George and Hitchcock—have 80 sure votes among them, with the destination of 61 delegates a matter of argument.

Although Smith faces the necessity of acquiring more than 700 votes at Houston, his friends claim he is in the more advantageous position because there appears to be less concerted opposition on the part of rival candidates to his selection. Reed of Missouri, however, has passed the word that he is in the fight to stay, and various Democrats—among them Heflin of Alabama and Simmons of North Carolina in the senate—have taken occasion to defy Smith anew.

As for Hoover, the candidates in the field against him are putting up a fight that is growing in instances they have effected combinations to head him off in his quest for delegates.

In the background and less active are Curtis of Kansas, who is being talked up by his friends as an ideal compromise candidate to turn to in the convention deadlock they predict will develop; Vice President Dawes, the close friend of Lowden who insists he is not a candidate himself, President Coolidge, whose name again is being mentioned with frequency, and a number of others in the class of "dark horses."

The Republican situation in Ohio was upset by the death a month ago of Senator Willis, who was making a "favorite son" fight for delegates against Hoover, and conditions there have been so unsettled that few are predicting the outcome of Tuesday's primary. The stake is 51 delegates, with agreement general that the delegation will be split, but in what proportion a matter of debate.

Million Loss In Memphis.

The wind, which meteorologist F. W. Brist estimated reached a velocity of 70 miles an hour, destroyed or badly damaged more than 100 horses in south and east Memphis, skipping several blocks between the two sections, and then swept northward to strike Atoka, Tenn. Damage in Memphis was estimated at more than $1,000,000 by the Evening Appeal, and Atoka bankers said the loss there would approximate $100,000.

The business section of Atoka, which has a population of between 300 and 400, was wiped out, virtually every residence wrecked or badly damaged and 25 persons injured, one fatally. Paul Forber, 13, was killed when his home collapsed.

"Hambone" Killed.

Warden Seal of Batesville, Miss., was injured and a negro known as "Hambone" crushed to death near Sardis, Miss., when a tree uprooted by the wind fell across their truck.

Robert H. Smith, 13, negro, was drowned at Memphis when he fell into a Bayou that had been swollen by the rains. At Lula, Miss., the grand stand and manual training building of a consolidated school were damaged and W. E. Whitey injured when his home was demolished.

Several hundred derricks in the South Arkansas and North Louisiana oil fields were reported leveled by the wind, and many houses were unroofed or damaged.

Wind and rain caused thousands of dollars damage to roads and bridges in West Kentucky in the vicinity of Paducah.

Hundreds of Houses Crushed Near Texarkana

TEXARKANA, April 21. (AP) — Many persons were injured, some seriously, hundreds of small houses were wrecked and several towns were isolated with all wires in the path of a tornado that swept across Northeast Texas and Southwest Arkansas early today.

Towns known definitely to have been hit by the storm are New Boston, Leary, Hooks, Nash and Terrell, Texas, and Ogden, Index, Homer and Fulton, Ark.

New Boston, 22 miles west of Texarkana, was struck about 2:30 a. m. by the storm which came from the southwest. Several houses were unroofed as was the New Boston National bank building.

Sweeping toward the east into Hooks, the gale demolished several houses and small buildings.

We think there are a lot of these Lubbock husbands that could help their wife about the house a great deal, even if they will not do anything more than get out of the way when the wife wants to do the housecleaning.

PUNISH "BOLTERS"

D. A. R. Retaliates At The Insurgent Group

WASHINGTON, April 21 (AP)—The 37th Continental Congress of the Daughters of the American Revolution meted out swift punishment today to one of the insurgents who met defeat at yesterday's session, and then adjourned.

By a unanimous vote, the congress passed a resolution submitted by its insignia committee, cancelling the contract for members' pins that has been held for several years by Mrs. Ellinore Dutcher Key of Maryland.

It is reported that Crosbyton is showing a very remarkable growth this year. Its building permits are

JACKSBORO TORNADO

Six Injured When Storm Demolishes House

WICHITA FALLS, April 21. (AP)—Dispatches received here late tonight from Jacksboro, about 50 miles southeast of here, stated that six persons sustained injuries when a wind storm of tornado proportions demolished the home of Will Martin, farmer of the Rockland Chapel community.

Mr. Martin's father sustained a broken leg, and Martin, his wife, and three children were severely injured, according to reports. A fourth child was uninjured.

OPPOSE OIL CURB

Kansas and Oklahoma Operators Protest

TULSA, Okla., April 21 (AP)—Opposition to continued restrictions of oil activities in Kansas and Oklahoma prevailed today at a mass meeting of operators here and a "gentlemen's agreement" against unnecessary drilling was adopted in preference to the restrictive plan formulated April 11 by an advisory committee of the Mid-Continent Oil and Gas association.

Ray M. Collins, who as umpire for the greater Seminole area, has actively directed restrictive measures in that field, was named to act in the same capacity in the Kansas and Oklahoma fields.

prehended. He charged Dale with offering to get an unfavorable house committee report on a bill to tax stationery optometrists $50 a year, for $1,000 and told of marking the money and tipping officers in advance.

Ranger Captain Hamer said Saturday that he would be entirely willing to give up the money to "whoever the court tell me to give it to."

The verdict of acquital came in early Saturday morning. Only one ballot was taken, members of the jury said. Dale shook hands with each one of them and issued a statement later declaring that he had been the victim of an "ungodly frame-up". He referred to the fact that several of the same house members whom Chamberlin told his story before passing the $1,000 were on the investigating committee which recommended expulsion of Dale and H. H. Moore from the legislature.

LAMESA, April 21 (Special)—R. Johnston, charged with possession and transportation of liquor in violation of the prohibition laws, was found guilty by a jury in 106th District court late Friday.

His punishment was fixed at two years in the state penitentiary.

ooperative Marketing Is Topic Most Stressed At Meeting of Farm Bureau Conducted at Littlefield Saturday alue of Associations As Protection to Farmer Is Emphasized by Speakers At Session.

LITTLEFIELD, April 21.—More an 300 Farm Bureau members, ether with quite a few visitors, re present at a bureau meeting e today, and interest in co-op- tive marketing was very pro- nced.

W. Hammock, field director, ed the meeting for the purpose electing new officers and direc- and selecting a regular date monthly meeting. J. T. Elms, ve vice-president of a local bank large land owner in this county re-elected president. Six direc- four men and two women, were ted, and an additional two wom- will be chosen at a future date. he meeting was called to order Mr. Hammock, but was immed- y turned over to the president welcomed the out-of-county tors, outlined the purpose of the ting, and thanked the members good attendance.

Association in Good Shape

S. Hudson of Plainview, direc- for the district, was called upon a few words concerning the ciation's present outlook. He ted that just at this time pros- ts are very bright. The associa- n is in good shape financially d has been able to sell a large ount of cotton at exceptionally od prices. The membership is wing, he said, and the class of mbership is improving all the e.

Mr. Hudson stated that the as- iation is assuming large proper- s, and as a result considerable asurable propaganda is being cir- ated against it. Especially is this with reference to bureau gins. predicts that in another five rs the association will be much nger than it is today.

Ray McCorkle Talks

B. McCorkle, editor of the Plains Farmer, Lubbock, dis- d the value of co-operative eting on the South Plains. He that the movement is gain- favor and that it has proven sful in most places it has tried. He urged cotton farmers to join hands in the bureau move- ment as a means of protecting themselves against the cotton gambler. Mr. McCorkle also urged poultry growers on the South Plains to line up with the marketing associations.

Mrs. M. S. Hudson of Plainview, discussed co-operative marketing for the standpoint of a poultry grower, and urged the people of Littlefield and Lamb county to join the associ- ation. The program in her county, Hale, has been put over and it will be only a short time until poultry and poultry products will be mov- ing from the Plainview station.

R. E. Overstreet, director for the 18th district discussed the bureau's ginning program. He stated that in the future the association would own all gins, but that members in every section of the state would be benefitted.

Mr. Overstreet "poured it on" the cotton gambler and others who are guilty of working against the inter- ests of farmers in the South.

Several short talks followed, af- ter which the body went into the election of officers. The next meet- ing will be held May 5th, at which time delegates to the district meet- ing will be elected.

UNION MEETS HERE

Rally Follows Picnic When League Meets

Methodist Epworth Leagues of Lubbock county, which have recently organized into a union with Clar- ence Whitesides, of this city, as president, met here yesterday after- noon. Following a picnic supper, there was a rally at the First Meth- odist church with discussion of a district meeting during the com- ing week-end in Post. Slaton, Ab- ernathy, Monroe and the Methodist churches of this city were represent- ed at the meeting.

SLIGHT MAIL "RUSH"

A slight "rush" was occasioned at the postoffice this week due to the large inumber of visitors here for the Rotary convention and Inter- schclastic League meet, demonstra- ting another way in which conven- tions affect towns, according to John L. Vaughan the postmaster.

IN NEW YORK SEE-SAWING and BROADWAY

NEW YORK, April 21.—The far- famed "gay white way" no longer is a mere dizzy glare of bright lights. It is one of New York's most profitable industries. The battle for space upon which to hang the burn- ing bulbs goes merrily on from month to month. Roof space is at a premium and old buildings which once faced destruction at the hands of the wrecking crew, rent their ex- teriors for fabulous amounts while allowing the interiors to remain rot- ting shells. Landlords have become quite willing sacrifice rentals in order to sell parking space for elec- tric signs. Choice corners and lo- cations bring huge figures.

With the cost of upkeep thus mounting, the same study is given to the bright light signs as marks the beginning of a big advertising campaign. Expert designers now plan the glistening displays and the effects are studied with the same care that a movie director takes in staging his crucial scenes.

One of the best instances of this on Broadway today is the Madison Square Garden sign. Since the key purpose of this huge display is to point out to the visitors and the transient stroller the exact location of the new garden, four huge glit- tering arrows flash off and on so that none can mistake the direc- tion.

CARD OF THANKS

Through the Avalanche I wish to express my gratitude and appreciation of the tireless and unspeakable kindness of the people of Lubbock during the illness of my dear husband and in this my great sorrow. May the blessings of Him whose mission on earth was to do good rest on each individual.

Mrs. J. B. Mobley.

CARD OF THANKS

CORNELIUS BOREN ATWOOD

Cornelius Boren Atwood was born at Belton, Texas, May 12th, 1910, and died at Tulsa, Oklahoma, April 3, 1928, being 17 years, 10 months and 21 days old at the time of his death. He was shipped to Lubbock, Texas from Tulsa, Oklahoma and funeral services were conducted at the Cumberland Presbyterian church by his pastor, O. N. Baucom and assisted by Rev. Todd of the 19th Street Baptist church. Boren confessed faith in Christ the second Sunday in June 1923 and united with the Belton Presbyterian church the third Sunday in June, 1923. His parents moved to Lubbock, Texas, 1924 and united with the Cumberland Presbyterian church. Boren, uniting with the church with them and remained a faithful member until death. Boren was an active Boy Scout and was leader of his patrol when leaving Lubbock eight months ago. Boren was an affectionate and obedient son and made friends wherever he lived or worked. At the time of his death he was engaged in the bakery business at Tulsa, Oklahoma, at which place he had recently been promoted. A large crowd attended his funeral and the many nice flowers expressed the love and esteem of kinsfolk, church and friends.

In full and glad surrender,
I give myself to Thee,
Thine utterly and only,
And ever more to be.
O Son of God, who lovest me,
I will be Thine alone,
And all I have and all I am
Shall henceforth be Thine own.

Up In Air Over New Styles

The world's aerial fashion show was held the other day when a group of Los Angeles women witnessed a fashion review aboard an airplane in the clouds, with Peggy Hamilton the director. The show lasted nearly an hour, while the Maddux air liner, bearing spectators and models, dashed around in the general direction of the planets. To the left Miss Hamilton is shown entering the plane. The spectators are looking over an evening gown in the picture to the right. They've been up in the air over fashions before, but not like this.

Civil Warfare Is Added to Famine Horrors In China

Much Resentment Felt To Intervention From Japanese Troops With Affairs In Shantung.

(By Associated Press)

SHANGHAI, China, April 21—To the horrors of famine in the once smiling province of Shantung, has now been added the scourge of bitter warfare between nationalist and northern armies with its center steadily advancing on Esinan, populous capital of the province.

Although authoritative reports concerning the progress of the nationalist drive toward Peking are lacking, numerous dispatches from both Chinese and foreign sources in Shantung indicate that the nationalists are continuing their advance along the Tientsin-Pukow railway.

The nationalists assert that their forces have surrounded and isolated Taianfu, 35 miles south of Tsinan and the fall of the city appears imminent, the northerners withdrawing toward Tsinan.

Resent Japanese Troops

The dispatch of Japanese troops to Shantung is greeted with the bitterest resentment by Chinese here, the Chinese declaring that Japan is infringing on Chinese sovereignty. Protest meetings have been held in Hankow, Shanghai and other southern cities while the Hankow native press is advocating a boycott of Japanese goods.

Old Time Runaway

Much Excitement Caused By Dash

No little excitement was occasioned, and considerable discomfiture among housewives caused, in the west end of the city Saturday, when suddenly, as though catapulted from a large weapon of war, a team of mules rushed madly through the street drawing behind them a partly filled ice wagon that was leaving its trail.

It all came about, the driver later explained, when one of the mules was made the target for an air rifle squadron of boys down the street, and instead of "facing the music," took to his heels. Fortunately, no one was injured. The offending youths, so far as could be learned have not been apprehended.

Howard County To Feel Oil Ruling

Will Be Next District To Receive Curb of State Railroad Commission, Say Members.

(By Associated Press)

FT. WORTH, April 21.—Howard county, with deep lime producers of large calibre already outlining another west Texas overproduction area, will be the next to receive attention of the Texas railroad commission in the exercise of its oil conservation powers.

This was indciated at the meeting in Fort Worth today at which operators and members of the railroad commission organized the machinery for dealing with the Winkler over production.

Railroad Commissioner C. V. Terrell, who presided at the meeting here, announced that a meeting of Howard county producers with the railroad commission would be held in Fort Worth April 28 for the purpose of considering prorating regulations for Howard county.

Winkler producers today designated a general advisory committee to cooperate with the railroad commission in Winkler prorating. From this general committee, which includes one representative of each operating company an executive committee of seven was selected.

This committee has been empowered to employ an umpire and such other assistance as it sees fit. The umpire will be named a deputy supervisor by the railroad commission and will be the commission's representative in enforcing the prorating regulations which the commission is expected to promulgate late Monday.

CONFESSION FALSE

Prisoner Says He Lied About Hall-Mills Case

EL RENO, Okla., April 21 (AP)—Elwin P. Allen, prisoner in the county jail here, admitted today that a "confession" which he made recently to the slaying of Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall and Mrs. Eneador Mills, in New Jersey, was untrue, and that he had made the statement in an effort to escape serving a sentence in the Oklahoma state penitentiary.

"I would rather stand trial for the Hall-Mills murder than go back to the penitentiary at McAlester," he said.

Fight Squirrels

Depredations Must Be Curbed

If the depredations of ground squirrels continue, an organized drive against them may be necessary to rid farmers of them, County Agent D. F. Eaton said yesterday.

Ground squirrels are the chief marauders of the pestilential rodents, the county agent said. Evidences of another invasion of wharf rats have been reported also, but these come and go periodically, and are not indigenous to any territory particularly.

Prairie dogs do considerable damage annually in the southwest and western portions of the county, and of late there has been a series of individual efforts to rid the county of this pest by poison, mixed with feed and placed near the prairie dogs' holes.

Jackrabbits and the common variety of "cotton tail" rabbit have been thinned out considerably, but are yet many in number, and do considerable damage. Highway traffic has thinned out the "cotton tails" though not to a major degree.

Uninstructed Delegation Seems Certain For Texas

Love's Constitutionalists, Beaten Before Fight With Moody Forces Is Really Begun, May Compromise

86 Delegates From County Of Dallas May Be Barred At Beaumont; Governor Holding Whip Hand

BY C. D. WAIDE
Special Correspondent

AUSTIN, April 21—It now looks as if Texas will send an uninstructed delegation to the Houston convention. Three weeks ago the Love elecrter, the Constitutionals, were rampant and freely boasting that they would control the Beaumont convention. But the past two weeks have seen a remarkable turnover in sentiment over the state. Very little is heard now of bolting, or of refusing to take the pledge.

With Love offering to accept Governor Moody as chairman of the Texas delegation and with him advising his followers to subscaribe to the support pledge, "and be guided thereafter by your consciences," it would seem that the governor's party has won a victory almost before the fight started.

Love Dodging Steam-Roller

It is a safe prediction that within the next week or two leaders of the Love element will approach Moody and his party in an effort to effect a compromise. Realizing they are whipped, they will try to salvage as much prestige, power and influence as possible, for they don't want to feel the steam roller at Beaumont. A bajority of them participated in applying it to Pat Neff and the anti-Klan element at Waco four years ago and they know how humiliating it is at a state convention to be on the outside while the insiders are locked up in committee rooms and hotel rooms making up slates.

The late and lamented Harper Kirby, whose sincerity for the cause of prohibition won for him the respect of friend and foe alike, had just been consulting with the governor on the question of a compromise between the two elements, from which consultation he hurried to his home and sudden death. The Constitutionals claim there is too slight a difference between the two to Beaumont. A majority of them par-

Loyalty Is Issue, Says Moody

However, the Moody element contends that the difference between them is not on Smith or prohibition, but on loyalty to the party, and they regard this as a very big difference, and one on which there can be no compromise.

The Love element is becoming frankly alarmed at the growing Smith strength over the country as a whole and over the possibility of the Texas vote going to him. That is the principal reason they are willing to merge with the Moody elements for them to remain apart, the balance of power. He knows that he can block instructions for Smith by merely voting with the extradrys, and at the same time he has to concede them nothing. Therefore he is not worried about the possibility of the Texas votes going to Smith.

But party loyalty, Smith and prohibition are not the only issues in this campaign. For several years, and especially since the Waco convention the younger Democrats have been smarting under the domination of the party by Tom Love and his crowd. Now that the fight has been launched it is probable that there will be no compromise until Love is completely unhorsed. Several spokesmen for the younger Democrats have openly admitted that their crowd is after Love.

Made Trade With Klan

Four years ago Love and his party made a trade with the klan, according to common gossip, whereby the klan would support the Love party at the Waco convention and help them send a delegation to New York instructed to vote first, last and all the time for McAdoo, and in return the Love party promised to help the klan put over Felix Robertson for governor. Both sides carried out their parts of the agreement.

At the convention Pat Neff was rejected as a delegate because he would not agree to the McAdoo program. Harper Kirby and Mrs. Claude de Van Watts, two of the leading prohibitionists of Texas, were denied seats in the state delegation for the same reason. These actions have stuck in the craws of the younger element among the prohibitionists since that time.

Want Complete Change

Now that the fight has been pitched there is determination on the part of the Harmony Democrats to rid the party leadership not only of all taint of the klan, but of those who would enter into alliances with that body.

There seems a possibility now that the regular 86 delegates from Dallas county to the Beaumont convention—the delegation to be picked by Love, may not be seated. Bexar county, with the second biggest delegation, and probably Harris county, with the third, will send delegations who have taken the pledge as probably will a big majority of the other counties. There is certain to be a delegation from Dallas county bearing credentials from a convention which has been pledged, and it is possible that this pledged delegation will be seated. The Dallas county executive committee has voted not to offer the pledge in the county precincts.

Many Cattle Are Being Moved Into Kansas, Oklahoma

Flint Hills Is Mecca After Winter Passes With Cows Being Fattened For Block In Packing Houses

(By Associated Press)

TOPEKA, Kas., April 21—Thousands of cattle have started moving into the Flint hills of Southeast Kansas and the neighboring Osage district of Oklahoma, where they will be grass fattened for the block.

Each year sees this migration of cattle from the ranges of the southwest. The cattle are shipped from Texas, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Colorado and southwestern Kansas. Their owners rent the blue stem pasture lands of the Flint hills, said by cattlemen to be one of the finest grass-finishing areas in the country, for the season. Prices this year are generally quoted at about 10 a head for the season, about 20 cents a head higher than last year. Condition of pastures was placed at 92 per cent in a recent report by the state board of agriculture, compared to 96 1-2 per cent a year ago.

Full Court Test In Railroad Row With Union Seen

Wilful Violation By S. P. Heads, Of Injunction In Houston Case Is Ruled By Court In Hearing

(By Associated Press)

HOUSTON, April 21.—The road was clear today for a test in higher federal courts of the mediation provisions of the railroad labor act of 1926.

A decision of Federal Judge J. S. Hutcheson, jr., upholding the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks in its controversy with the Southern Pacific railway over organization of a company union is to be the vehicle for the test.

Rule Held Violated

Judge Hutcheson ruled yesterday after a series of hearings that the company had wilfully violated both the statute and a temporary injunction ordering the railroad to cease interference with the union recognized by the brotherhood.

He made the injunction permanent and refused to dissolve contempt proceedings brought last February against H. M. Lull, executive vice-president of the T. and N. C., a subsidiary of the Southern Pacific, and two other high officials of the railroad.

Attorneys for the railroad announced they would appeal to the circuit court of appeals at New Orleans, and, if necessary, to the supreme court, and representatives of the association of executives of railroad unions said they were ready to dispute the issue.

Hinged on Use of Union

The controversy hinged on the use by railroad executives of a company union in the adjustment of a wage dispute rather than the union affiliated with the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks. The latter claimed it had been chosen in a secret vote by the clerks to represent them.

Judge Hutcheson first issued an injunction restraining Mr. Lull and associates from interfering with the recognized labor organization in its relations with employes, and later adjudged them in contempt of court and in danger of jail sentences when the alleged interference was not discontinued.

"WE GIVE GOLD BOND STAMPS"

The Avalanche-Journal's Women's Section Edited By Blanche E. Bean Phones 13 and 14

Mrs. W. R. Potter, President Of Texas Federated Clubs, Will Speak Here Saturday

Lubbock Women To Meeting Of District Clubs

Dr. Paul W. Horn Speaker At Meeting of District Clubs In Dalhart This Week.

Three Lubbock women are expecting to leave the first of the week to attend annual sessions of the seventh district of the Texas Federation of Women's clubs in Dalhart, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. They are Mrs. J. E. Griggs, Mrs. W. H. Meador, and Mrs. J. C. Granbery.

Although no copies of the program have been sent to Lubbock, Dr. Paul W. Horn, president of the Technological college, is to be a speaker at the convention, having been asked to talk on "The Scientific Turn of Mind" at the Wednesday afternoon session. Mrs. Horn expects to accompany her husband to Dalhart.

Is District Secretary

Mrs. Griggs is secretary of the seventh district and was prominently connected with club activities in Amarillo before moving to Lubbock. She has been ill for several days but expects to leave for Dalhart if she is able to attend the sessions.

As district chairman of thrift and a member of the Twentieth Century club, Mrs. Meador is going and Mrs. Granbery is to represent the Athenaeum club.

All sessions of the convention are to be in the Dalhart First Baptist church with Mrs. F. T. Collins, of Amarillo, seventh district president, in charge.

Among the social events that are scheduled for the visitors will be an entertainment on Wednesday afternoon given by the Dalhart Women's Literary club and a tea at the high school on Thursday afternoon, given by the P.-T. A.

Presidents' Dine

A rainbow dinner is to be served on Tuesday evening at 6 o'clock at the Baptist church, courtesy of the chamber of commerce, complimentary to club presidents of the seventh district and presided over by Mrs. I. D. Cole, of Amarillo. This will be followed by the presidents' evening program.

Mrs. T. V. Reeves, of Canyon, assisted by the applied education department, is to preside over Wednesday's luncheon and Thursday's luncheon will be under the direction of Mrs. Carl McAdams, of Lockney and the county federation members. Mrs. R. A. Baldwin, of Slaton, Lubbock's County Federation president, is on this program.

The fine arts program will be on Wednesday evening at the Baptist church under the direction of Mrs. J. H. Jernigan, of Childress, chairman of this division.

The Morning Avalanche Menu for the Day

BREAKFAST — Orange juice, cereal, cream, fresh beef on toast, extra toast, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON — Cheese fondue, stewed canned tomatoes, rye bread, scalloped apples, milk, tea.

DINNER — Stewed chicken with gravy, mashed potatoes, baking powder biscuits, fresh asparagus in butter, stuffed celery, radishes, carrot straws, maple parfait, crisp cookies, milk, coffee.

Fresh Beef on Toast

One pound round steak ground, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 small onion, 1 tablespoon minced parsley, 1 cup milk, 1 tablespoon flour, 1-2 teaspoon minced parsley, 1 cup milk, 1 tablespoon flour, 1-2 teaspoon flour, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon pepper, trimmings of toast.

Melt butter and add onion finely minced. Stir and cook over a low fire for five minutes. Add chopped meat and stir well. Increase the heat and cook 10 minutes, stirring frequently. Add milk, salt, pepper and parsley. Stir flour to a smooth paste with a little cold milk. Bring meat to the boiling point and stir in flour. Cook until thickened and smooth, stirring constantly. Serve on hot toast arranged on a hot platter.

"Miss Eighteen" Chooses Simplicity In Cut And Material

Nonchalantly simple—a blue and white checkered taffeta frock with batiste vestee, by Jean Patou.

By JEAN PATOU
For NEA Service

PARIS, April 21.—There is no one who chooses a dress more deliberately than the girl of 18. She is very hard to please but when she does see something she likes I feel amply rewarded for the time and energy I may have spent with her by her evident pleasure.

Every creator has experienced that difficulty of expressing a simplicity which does not assume a ready-made appearance and is at the same time becoming. Moreover, only a young girl can accentuate or render ridicule to a garment which is unbecoming to her. I mean by that that the slightest exaggeration in her dress is as apparent as her exaggerated enthusiasms.

Attractive Contrast

On the other hand, no more charming interpreter of the mode and its whims can be found than the girl between 18 and 20, when she is on the brink of womanhood and has lost her boyish appearance. She is distinctly feminine and no more attractive contrast can be found than a frock made of some old fashioned material like taffetas or moire worn by a debutante.

Simplicity is an essential quality for the "jeune fille." The sports frocks of the moment are well suited to her, as far as her requirements for the early part of the day are concerned. Her afternoon frocks also should be extremely simple both in cut and material and always should include some sort of lingerie trimming.

The Eton type of collar with a bow tie or the round collar and deep cuffs to match, although rather boyish of aspect, are made feminine by the materials used and are synonymous with youth. This type of accessory, needless to say, would be "deplace" on a young matron.

For Summer Wear

The most charming young girls' dresses always are those made of plain material, or else with a design at the same time naif and carefully studied.

Ten years ago I was a great partisan of organdie for summer wear at country or seaside resorts. They undoubtedly looked most effective when worn by a young girl. Modern conditions, however, are such that an organdie dress seems quite out of place and incompatible with the vigorous sort of life which she leads nowadays.

For an evening dress I think nothing is more becoming to a girl in her teens than a dress of the "period" style in tulle. There are several in my present collection and my preference goes to either a plain color or a graded effect.

Simplicity in Hats

There is another point, the choice of a hat. Here again the utmost simplicity must be the first quality of any hat, for any occasion. A too-dressy or too-sophisticated hat is enough to spoil the most simple ensemble. This applies to all accessories which are called upon to complete the modern girl's wardrobe, and as regards jewelry in particular.

Generally speaking, I do not like to see a girl wearing jewels of any sort, because when she does they are generally too showy, too obvious. The most charming and well dressed girls I know wear no jewels at all, or so few that I never have been conscious of them.

Smartly "under 20" is the Eton collar and cuff idea worked out in lace and organdie on a black flat crepe frock.

District WMU To Meet In Lubbock

Returned Missionary From Japan Probably Will Be Speaker; Mrs. Williamson To Preside.

Associational Woman's Missionary societies in the Baptist Plainview District W. M. U. are meeting in annual session Thursday and Friday at the Lubbock First Baptist church with the local society women entertaining.

Mrs. L. W. Williamson, Plainview, district president, is to preside at the sessions and it is probable that an address by a returned missionary from Japan, a Miss Baker, will be a feature of the meeting, according to announcements made yesterday. Dr. W. R. White, new pastor of the local church, is to make an address on Friday morning.

This meeting is to open at 8 o'clock Thursday evening with an address by Mrs. Ross A. Smith, of Lamesa, as the feature of the program. A pageant, "Christ in America," is to be presented by the local Y. W. A. at this service.

To Serve Lunch

Friday's session will open at 9:30 o'clock in the morning to continue through the day. Lunch will be served at noon by the local W. M. S. to visitors in the church basement. Associations represented in the district are the Plainview, Lubbock, Floydada, Dickens and Brownfield, each of these including a number of societies.

Sessions of the conference will be devoted largely to reports and talks on missionary society work.

After Mrs. M. C. Bishop, of Post, has led the opening devotional at Friday's session there is to be a welcome address by Mrs. T. W. Sawyer, of this city, to which Mrs. May, of Brownfield, will respond. Reports begin at 10:15 o'clock and have been scheduled as follows:

Historian, Mrs. R. F. Ivey; corresponding secretary and treasurer, Mrs. R. W. Heim; young people's leader, Mrs. Cap Ellison; personal service, Mrs. W. M. Lawrence; publicity, Mrs. I. S. Dosk; benevolence, Mrs. Lon Lumsden; ruby anniversary, Mrs. B. G. Holloway, of Slaton.

Dr. White Speaker

Preceding Dr. White's address at 11:30 o'clock, there is to be a short service in which visitors will be recognized, associational presidents will report and committees will be appointed.

Beginning at 2 o'clock, the afternoon session devotional will be led by Mrs. B. N. Sheppard, after which reports will be made as follows: Missions, Mrs. J. A. Dunn; stewardship, Mrs. Lon V. Smith; education, Mrs. B. M. Sims; mission study, Mrs. D. J. Wilhelm. With reports from committees the session will close.

CHURCH RECEPTION

To Welcome Dr. and Mrs. White Tuesday

Welcoming Dr. and Mrs. W. R. White, members of the First Baptist church will be hosts at a reception from 8 until 10 o'clock Tuesday evening at the church. Pastors of Lubbock churches and their wives and Baptist ministers living in towns near Lubbock, are to be guests along with all members of the local First Baptist church.

Dr. White has arrived in Lubbock from Greenville and is pastor of the First Baptist church. He and his family are at home at 1911 Broadway.

Life's Niceties

HINTS ON ETIQUET

1. Is it good taste to discuss things of a personal nature when there is a possibility of being overheard?
2. Should one ever gossip about other guests when attending a party?
3. How does the voice, laughter and general demeanor stamp a woman as cultured or vulgar?

The Answers.

1. Certainly not.
2. Never.
3. A low, well modulated voice, quiet demeanor and soft laughter are part and parcel of the lady. A high-pitched voice, boisterous laughter and loud talk reveal the vulgar person.

NO UNDUE TROUBLE

Visitors Generally Obeyed Traffic Rules

Despite the unusual number of visitors here last week due to the Rotary convention and the interscholastic meet there was no undue amount of infactions on the traffic regulations of the city, according to Police Chief John Lemond.

And, better evidence, was secured from the city court. The amount of collections was not above the normal for a week.

BEAUTIFY GROUNDS

Patrons of Dupre School Meet Tuesday

Patrons of the Dupre ward school are to meet at 1 o'clock Tuesday afternoon at the school in a grounds beautification campaign. Trees, shrubs, flowers and grass are to be planted and a civic program is to be rendered by pupils in the school after dismissal at 3:30 o'clock. The parent teacher association is fostering this movement.

Those in the chorus and pageant are to be in costume. Chorus members are to carry lighted candles, and will be in a loft above the actors. Representatives of nations are to carry flags and wear costumes of their countries.

—THE— WOMAN'S DAY By Allene Sumner

Two sisters, girls of 22 and 18, drowned themselves in a mill sluice the other day. Both girls were engaged to be married to two brothers. They died on the very day the older one was to be married. The younger girl was to be a mother, and the father of the child was not her fiance. The grief-stricken parents explain the double suicide as the insistence of the older girl, who had always mothered the younger, to share her tragedy with her.

SISTERLY LOVE

It is only a few days ago that two sisters, old women, committed suicide in a common grief over the death of their mother. The very rarity of such sisterly unity makes us conscious of the rapid diminishing of afection in this relationship. Sister and sister or brother and brother harmony is rather rare in this day of individualism. Such stories make one refer the change to that of a day when one sister always dressed like another, refused to marry if her sister's love affair went wrong, or, as in these cases, entered complete despair together.

RAZZBERRIES

The famous D. A. R. blacklist strikes me as one of the silliest, if not the silliest, of all things ever done by organized women. It simply amounts to a listing of the names of everyone who does not think exactly as do the D. A. R.'s. The very presence of such names as President Mary Woolley of Mt. Holyoke College, Clarence Darrow, William Allen White and others, is guarantee in itself of the silliness of the charges. Carrie Chapman Catt will have to dust 'em off again. She did a dandy job once before with her hair brush and knee.

LADY FLIERS

Even though the sea has swallowed up Mildred Doran, Frances Grayson, Lady Elsie Mackay and the Princess Wertheim, any number of women are begging for the chance to go as passengers across the Atlantic this summer. So low a price do they put upon their lives that they don't seem to give a hang who their pilot is nor how trustworthy the plane.

An English aviator recently advertised for a man and woman passenger on his contemplated transoceanic flight. He merely gave a box number and nearly 300 women answered, begging for the first chance as passenger. Most of the writers were actresses or signers. One discounts the sincerity of their bids on the grounds of publicity. But how about the rest of the women? Does it mean that our quest of thrills makes us take even danger and scoff at death?

PARTY IN SLATON

Compliments Young People Of Lubbock

Complimentary to Misses Florence Lawson, Ernestine Kendrick and Evelyn Clark, Technological college students, Mr. and Mrs. J. Leonard Hord of Slaton, entertained Friday evening at their home.

Guests included Misses Johnnie Bess Richards, Katherine Holstead and Kathleen Stewart, Messrs. Ameral Payne, Tommie Lyle, R. Bryan and Clarence Cobb of Lubbock, and Walter Hord, Luke Shelby and Gerald Woolder of Slaton.

County Federated Clubs In Meeting Here to Hear Eminent Speakers And Club Women; Mrs. Collins to Be Here

Home Demonstration Clubs Are Entertaining Group; Semi-Annual Meeting At Baptist Church.

Probably the largest gathering of distinguished speakers and club women that has appeared before a session of the Lubbock County Federation of Women's clubs will be in attendance next Saturday when the organization has a semi-annual meeting at the First Baptist church.

Mrs. W. R. Potter, of Bowie, president of the Texas Federation of Women's clubs, is to make her first visit here since she was elected to the executive office. Mrs. F. T. Collins, Amarillo, president of the seventh district of the state federation, is to make her initial visit since she went into ofice last fall.

Dr. Stout Speaker

Dr. H. E. Stout, president of Texas Woman's College, Fort Worth, is to make the principal address of the day on "The Woman Citizen" and Fred W. Westcourt, director of rural arts at the College of Industrial Arts, Denton, is to talk on "Club Markets and Their Benefits", his address to be followed by an open discussion on the subject.

Mrs. W. P. Averitt, of Lamesa, district chairman of citizenship and first vice-president in the seventh district, will attend and will talk on "Citizenship" at the lunch hour; Mrs. Lee Green, Slaton, county chairman of citizenship and legislation, is to make a report on what Lubbock County Federation has done along this line during the year.

Mrs. Meade F. Griffin of Plainview, editor of the Texas Federation News, is also to make a talk concerning that publication.

Clubs Entertaining

Home Demonstration clubs of the county will be hostesses at this meeting and are planning to entertain a large number. There are 22 clubs in the federation with a representative membership of more than 530, Mrs. R. A. Baldwin, of Slaton, the president, said yesterday in telling of plans for the meeting.

Delegates to the meeting are to register at 9:45 o'clock at the church 1417 Main street, and the conference will open at 10 o'clock with Dr. W. R. White, First Baptist pastor, offering the invocation. With a morning session devoted partially to reports from officers and clubs, Mr. Westcourt is to talk at 11 o'clock after which Mrs. J. L. Coleman, Woodrow, will lead a discussion until the group adjourns for lunch.

During the noon hour there is to be a program of short talks, musical numbers and readings, the afternoon session opening at 1:30 o'clock with the club collect in unison.

Mrs. Collins will bring a message from the district. Dr. Stout will make his address, Mrs. Potter and Mrs. Griffin will speak, along with other numbers.

From Dalhart Meet

Several speakers for Saturday are coming here from the seventh district annual meeting in Dalhart, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. Mrs. Potter is to stop here enroute to Beeville where she will attend a convention of the fifth district. Saturday morning she is to speak at a gathering of the Hale County Federation in Plainview and will be accompanied on to Lubbock by Mrs. Griffin.

Mrs. Potter will bring greetings from the State Federation and will speak on the biennial meeting in San Antonio May 28 to June 7. Mrs. Collins will talk on "Molding the Destiny of the County."

Citizenship will be stressed at the meeting, Mrs. Baldwin said, with the talks by Mrs. Green and Mrs. Averitt.

"We feel fortunate in having Dr. Stout for he is a most entertaining speaker, probably the most interesting that has ever appeared on the federation program", Mrs. Baldwin said.

County President Here

This program has been arranged by Mrs. Baldwin and Mrs. R. T. Campbell, of Lubbock, chairman of the program committee. Mrs. Baldwin was here yesterday conferring with Mrs. Campbell about final program arrangements, preparatory to leaving tomorrow for Dalhart where she is to attend session of the state federation meeting. Mrs. Baldwin is to make a report on the Lubbock County Federation work and is to give the district chairman's report on "American Home". PTA Candidate Is Mrs. Marrs, Texas

State to Send 55 Women to National Meeting In Ohio The Last of April; Large Membership Shown.

AUSTIN, April 21—The Texas Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teachers associations with 55 831 members in good and regular standing, is rejoicing in the fact that the 55 delegates the above membership entitles the state organization to send to the thirty-second annual convention of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers at Cleveland, Ohio, April 28-May 5, will have the opportunity and privilege of voting for a Texas woman, for president of this great national organization. Mrs. S. M. N. Marrs, national vice president, and past president of the state organization, is the official nominee for president. The prominence of Mrs. Marrs in educational affairs, her long and efficient service in parent-teacher circles, the well merited esteem and popularity she enjoys in her native state and in the nation at large, attest her real worth and fitness for the place as does te long list of accomplishments that can be placed to the credit of the Texas Congress under Mrs. Marrs' leadership of the organization, which, in the popular vernacular, "got into its stride" during her administration.

Texas rejoices in the membership of 55, 831 men and women banded together for the welfare of the children in this great state. This number is an increase of 5,830 over the number of 50,000 reported last April to the national. In the ten years since 1918, the membership has grown from 4,199 to the present number, an increase of over 50,000. The largest increase for any one year was that of 1921 with 17,128 members over that of 1920 with 7,343 members, actual increase being 9,785.

Among the 55 delegates that Texas is entitled to and who will be leaving this week and next, are the three Texas members of the national board of managers, Mrs. S. M. N. Marrs, national vice-president; Mrs. Noyes Darling Smith, state president; and Mrs. Ella Caruthers Porter, Dallas, national chairman of thrift; Mrs. W. W. Wilkerson, Mrs. W. K. Rose, Mrs. H. B. Grace, Mrs. Chalmers Hutchison, Mrs. C. E. Birdsong, Fort Worth; Mrs. W. C. Emerson, Dallas; Mrs. J. M. Woodson, Temple; and Mrs. Robert E. Morse, jr., who heads a delegation of ten or more from Houston.

Introducing The Average Woman

By NEA Service

Mrs. Jacob Abel, Jr.

CINCINNATI, April 21. — What does the average woman think about current problems of the day?

Well, for one thing, she's considerably better informed about them than the average man. She has her own ideas, and she doesn't say "I don't know" to any of your questions.

Mrs. Jacob Abel is Cincinnati's "average woman," awarded that distinction by a school mothers' club that surveyed the city pretty widely. She is middle-aged, the wife of a bookkeeper, mother of two children. The clubwomen who selected her felt that she typified the average woman—in Cincinnati and elsewhere.

She reads the newspapers and magazines, and thinks about what she reads. Some time ago an "average man," selected in Iowa, betrayed ignorance of such an important affair as the Locarno treaty, but not Mrs. Abel. She knows about things.

Here are a few of this average woman's views on current issues:

Nicaragua: "Well, it does seem bad to have to send our marines down there. But I have always thought we should trust our government to do what is right. Perhaps we will find a way out of this Nicaraguan trouble sooner than we think."

Companionate marriage: "I have just been reading Judge Lindsey's book about it, and I am afraid I do not agree with it, although I think he is right to waken parents. They must learn that the world has moved since their day."

Prohibition: "Well, that's a hard one. But one thing I do know. Not drinking is much better, much safer, than drinking. What makes people want to drink? Just because they are told not to? Are they all children? Well, I think of my own children when I say I would like to get rid of drinking. They haven't gone with the crowd so far. But maybe I'd better touch wood."

Religion: "Yes, I believe in religion. I belong to the Methodist Episcopal church and the Order of the Eastern Star. I guess a good many people have gotten away from religion, but it's the one thing really to depend on. They will all come back to that some day."

The home of this average woman is clean, neat and comfortable. She was making a dress for her daughter, who is in high school, when the interviewer called. She smiled and protested slightly when told the club had named her the city's average woman.

"I'm afraid I'm not modern enough," she said.

Schools Are Busy Getting Teachers

Many Applications Given Boards of Rural Schools; Several Places Needing Principals.

Lubbock county schools are busily engaged in selecting teachers, principals and superintendants for next year. The office of County Superintendent Pevehouse was besieged by applicants, from a wide radious, all day yesterday.

The McClung schol board was in session here yesterday hearing a number of applicants for teaching places. Selections will be made at a later date.

Tuesday night at Canyon, the school board will consider applications for the place of principal of the school.

"We want a young man and three young women teachers" stated Superintendent A. C. Johnson of the Estacado schools yesterday, declaring that applications might be made at any time.

Applications to fill the offices of superintendent, and for the two grade teaching posts vacant are being received at the Woodrow school, south of town. The superintendent of this school, H. E. Griffith, has resigned to become superintendent at the Joe Stokes school in Lynn county.

Tulsa Boasts Girl Plumber

EVELYN MIDDLETON

TULSA, Okla., April 21.—Feminism has chalked up another victory in Tulsa. A 17-year-old girl has invaded a 100 per cent masculine line of work. Evelyn Middleton has become a plumber—or "plumbess."

She has given scarcely a thought to the distinction which is hers by right of exclusiveness. For, according to all available records, she will be the only woman plumber in the United States. The Census Bureau lists women in the occupations of bricklayer, steeplejack, sailer, iron-puddler, farmer, stone mason and many another strenuous job. But not a single lady plumber is shown on its records.

"There is nothing odd about my liking to fix a leaky water pipe or connect up gas stoves," Evelyn says. "I played with pieces of pipe and joints instead of dolls when I was a kid. I may even have cut my eye teeth on a stillson wrench, for all I know, for my father has always been in the plumbing business."

She'll Run Shop

Evelyn graduates from high school next month. Her father has such confidence in her ability to run his plumbing business and sell jobs that he expects to go West for the summer and leave his entire business in her capable hands.

Evelyn wields her tools with the confidence of one who not only knows her plumbing but enjoys it.

"Father thought I should do something more ladylike," she smiles as she tells her story. "So I tried a commercial course and learned bookkeeping and stenography. But the thought of staying cooped up all day was too much for me. I have worked on the staff of the Tulsa School Life, but reporting seems to have less bite in it than getting down to brass pipes.

Likes Manual Toil

"There is so much gusto in a trade like plumbing. One is in and out so much life stays interesting. And there's such real joy in working with one's hands. I think too many women miss the vim that comes from doing manual things."

During her last two years in school Evelyn has driven a truck carrying supplies to men on the jobs, has often stepped in and helped complete a job in order to get it ready on contract time, and in addition has attended to the collections of her father's business.

No Less Feminine

But there's nothing masculine about this vivacious girl. Clothes, social life and other things feminine are of utmost interest to her. When she dons her overalls, she sees no reason why she should lay aside her compact. Her bobbed hair is kept as neatly curled when laying a water system to a new house as when attending a dance.

"Folks are so funny," Evelyn says. "They are always asking me if I expect to marry—just as if a girl couldn't be perfectly natural and still lay pipes. Of course I do.

"But I'd never fall in love with a man who didn't understand why I like my trade. I think all girls should have something interesting to do in life besides just getting married. And I expect I'll find a man someday who agrees with me."

LEAGUE ELECTS

H. Y. Price New President Of Methodist Society

H. Y. Price has been elected president of the First Methodist Epworth League to succeed Ned Camp and will be installed with other officers on the first Sunday evening in May in a service conducted by Rev. E. E. White, pastor of the First Methodist church.

Vice president, Miss Eva May; secretary, Miss Bonnie Weatherby; treasurer, Culver Hill; "Era" agent, Miss Lizzie Bell Clements; corresponding secretary, Miss Ola May.

PLAN RECEPTION

Federation May Honor Mrs. W. R. Potter

There is to be a called meeting of the city Federation at 5 o'clock Monday afternoon for the purpose of planning an informal reception for Mrs. W. R. Potter, president of the Texas Federation of Women's clubs, next Saturday afternoon. This announcement was made yesterday afternoon by Mrs. J. F. Hankins, president of the City Federation.

Unique Plan For Gas Association Meeting Planned

Houses Without Cellars And Various Texas Revelations To Be Shown Easterners In Dallas Session

(By Associated Press)

DALLAS, April 21.—Houses without cellars, without brick foundations, plaster, or furnaces, and white buildings that stay white will serve as architectural revelations for visitors to the convention of the American Natural Gas association meeting here May 7 to 10.

A Dallas architect, George L. Dahl, who has planned some of the white buildings of Dallas, believes the delegates from the sooty cities of the North and East will be struck by the building methods in this state and by the general cleanliness of the cities.

The natural gas men, according to Henry C. Morris, vice-president and general manager of the Dallas Gas Company, claim some credit for the cleanliness of the atmosphere and the lack of coal soot on the buildings.

Mr. Dahl believes that the fine new buildings of Texas cities are a permanent monument to both the architects of the state and its clean, clear air.

"Being an architect in Texas is pleasant and it is good business," he said. "The buildings are lifetime monuments to the architects. They do not get dingy and so they always look well and they do not have to be scrubbed with acids and therefore they resist wear and tear better than buildings in the coal belt region."

The Northern and Eastern visitors will find few residences in Texas with cellars because few people have furnaces. Two Dallas buildings illustrate the effect of clear atmosphere. An addition recently was built on a large Dallas department store. The entire building is of white terra cotta, but the addition cannot be distinguished from the old. The same is true of an addition now under construction at the Medical Arts building.

Their Letters

BY RUTH DEWEY GROVES

Dearest Marye:

I can see that you are dissatisfied with Alan's promise of a car for Florence. My dear, you should know you can't shut out a man's family—not if he is a worthwhile man. I don't suppose you would want to do that entirely but, like most wives, you seem to resent the fact that his life is not free of you.

Perhaps that would be an ideal state—for a selfish person. But one who is not selfish is certain to miss not a little pleasure from marriage. I've heard girls say they'd like to marry a man without a relative in the world.

What a lot they would miss. Some of it not agreeable, to be sure. But a man's life is enriched by family connections. If he has grown up with an babyhood loving his mother and sisters his heart hasn't had a chance to freeze, and far from having less affection to bestow upon a wife, he has more. Even loving is a bit of a habit, I guess.

There are, of course, those men whose love for their mothers is an obsession—one of the things Frank's crowd talks about—but the average man who loves his mother as she deserves is capable of loving a wife more than the man whose whole existence with love is limited to his wife. He will not see in her the image of his mother and his love must be lacking in the element of reverence.

You have a good mother-in-law, Marye dear, and you have much to thank her for than probably you ever realize. And if Alan would be willing to give up his future in the city to come home and be near after her you may be sure he would make an equal sacrifice for you if it were necessary.

If it means more to you to live here than here you should be only too glad that Alan can make it possible. And surely it is far easier for you to agree to his spending the money to do it than for his mother to leave her home to live with Betty. For Clyde will not give up his home. Mother Meredith is to come there but he believes that a man should provide his own roof and I think he is right.

Alan's sacrifice of a little money to spare these others a greater sacrifice should make you happy, Marye. Because, you know, there is not anything finer he could do with money.

Lovingly,
MOM.

Good Progress Is Made On Minstrel For Legion Here

Nightly Rehearsals Will Be Held All Week, Knox Says, In Preparation For Rendition April 30

Plans for the American Legion minstrel show that is to be given here April 30 and May 1 at the high school auditorium are progressing nicely, with nightly rehearsals to be held from now until rendition time, W. P. Knox, general chairman and director of the performance said Saturday.

A full rehearsal was held Friday night, with the chorus being specifically drilled, and similar practice sessions will be held each night next week.

Uproarous Program

The minstrel is to be home talent throughout, and is designed for uproarous laughter from beginning to end. The cast includes 38 men, including several artists of this city who are not connected with the Legion organization, but who, in the words of Mr. Knox "are making a sacrifice to help the program along."

The show, according to Mr. Knox, though strictly amateur, so far as acting is concerned, will not have the aspect of amateurishness. It is designed to cover about an hour and a half or two hours, and will offer plenty of local color throughout, in the frivolities.

Members of the cast are urged by Mr. Knox to be in attendance at every session of rehearsals the coming week, so that cues and the general layout of the performance can be finally arranged. Rehearsals will all be held in the Legion hall in the Temple Ellis building.

Ticket Sales Campaign

Various individuals and committees in charge of the different phases of the program and preliminary details are actively engaged, and the ticket sales campaign that will precede the rendition, will be launched at the meeting of the Post Monday night at 7:30, following the regular evening rehearsal. This will be in charge of H. D. Woods.

In the program proper W. P. Knox will be in general charge, with assistants as follows: Harry Blocker in charge of the chorus, which is reported to be making excellent progress; Harry Meyers, stage manager; Bob Stevenson, director of music and pianist; F. Better Teamwork Is Central Topic Of U. S. C. C. Meet

All Phases Of Business To Be Discussed; Delegates From Here Probably Will Attend Sessions

Better team work among among all classes of business as the most efective means of maintaining local and national prosperity will be the central theme of the sixteenth annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States to be held in Washington May 7 to 11 according to the program received here.

Lubbock will be represented at the meeting by two delegates from the Board of City Development. Last year G. P. Kuykendall, J. B. Maxey and F. A. Norman attended the meeting as representatives of the Board of City Development.

All Phases of Business

All phases of business co-operation—by individuals, corporations, chambers of commerce and trade associations—will be discussed under the general heading, "Team Work for Prosperity," group buying and selling, the new competition with whole industries struggling for new markets and many kindred subjects will be presented by business executives who have distinguished themselves in their particular lines. Lewis E. Pierson, president of the national chamber and chairman of the board, American Exchange-Irving Trust company, New York, and Judge Edwin B. Parker, chairman of the board of directors of the national chamber, will be among the speakers.

More than 1,500 business organization, representing all lines of industryfi finance and commerce as well as every section of the country have been invited to send delegates. In addition, invitations have been sent to several hundred of the country's outstanding business leaders.

Constructive Program

In announcing the preliminary program the national chamber says that "never before was an annual meeting theme more expressive of the aims and objects and methods of an organization than that selected for the coming meeting. Team work as represented by group effort and solidarity of interest on matters that are timely, national and general in their application to business and industry are the guiding principles of the national chamber."

The statement goes on to point out that team work can be promoted most effectively in the local community through chambers while in particular lines of commerce and industry it can be achieved through trade associations. "By working together locally and within industries and nationally through the national chamber," the statement adds, "American business men are helping the country achieve and to maintain prosperity."

Prosperity is Organic

"American prosperity," it is pointed out, "is organic. Do injury to one section of the country or one branch of economic endeavor and it is felt through the organism. Let one great section of the country or one great branch of enterprise receive a helpful stimulus, and it is felt throughout the organism.

"For example, the adverse effects of the Mississippi flood ramified out through the country. Other lines of business were sensitive to the earlier troubles and the more recent improvement in agriculture.

"The various opportunities for team work for prosperity, nationally, locally, and the various factors affecting such team work, with indication of successful methods that have been pursued, will be passed in review at the forthcoming meeting of American business men."

Over The Coffee Cups

Small Items Of Real Interest

Yesterday, San Jacinto Day, the anniversary of an event as vital to Texans as July Fourth to the United States, went almost unnoticed in Lubbock. We daresay that had it not been for the placards posted on bank doors, and stating that "San Jacinto" day was the reason for their being closed, there are many who would not even have remembered the holiday. There was no official observance in the city—at least none that was reported to the newspapers. Such is the fate of history.

J. H. House of Arlington, principal of the Euless school there, came all the way to Lubbock to place his application for a teaching post in this county. He had been attracted here, he said, by reports of the county's progressiveness, brought back by an Arlington man who recently visited here.

Three speeders paid off at the rate of $5 apiece in city court yesterday. Other offenders let minor contributions of $1 flow into the city treasury, as penalty for traffic violations of a less costly nature.

A regular meeting of the city commission is to be held Thursday of this week, with routine business being scheduled for consideration.

The plan for consolidating school districts in Lubbock county so as to have a high school in every district is at present "marking time" according to Superintendent W. M. Pevehouse. The plan is now being considered by the various trustee boards of the county.

Big Gain Shown In Membership Of Methodist Church

Large Improvement Plan Is Reported Frim District In Conference At O'Donnell Thursday And Friday

The Lubbock district of the Methodist church has made a net gain in membership during the present conference year to date of approximately 500, and is launching out in ever increasing scope for additional buildings and equipment, Rev. D. B. Doak, presiding elder of the district announced here Saturday following his return from O'Donnell, where he was in charge of the district conference Thursday and Friday.

Many churches throughout the district are either just completing new buildings or planning early beginning of construction work, Rev Doak said, including a $35,000 structure at Post that has just been completed and paid for under leadership of Rev. T. J. Ray, pastor, and the proposed $75,000 educational annex for the congregation of the First church in Lubbock, on which work is to start immediately.

Other building improvements, recently completed or proposed were announced as follows:

Slaton, recently dedicated a new building erected at a cost of about $80,000. M. S. Leveridge, pastor.

Draw, Lynn county community, just completed parsonage at cost of about $2,000. Hamilton Wright, pastor.

Canyon, Lubbock county community, just completed new church at cost of about $4,500, to be dedicated today by Rev. Doak. G. R. Fort, pastor.

Shallowater, erecting new church at cost of about $3,000. DeWitt Van Pelt, pastor.

Anton, just completed new church at cost of about $1,500.

Becton, just completed new parsonage at cost of $1,500 or $2,000. W. B. Walden, pastor.

Levelland, has launched campaign for new church under leadership of C. B. Pirtle, pastor. Good progress is reported.

Littlefield, considerable money raised for new church under leadership of G. E. Turentine, pastor.

Patricia, Dawson county community, well along in campaign for new $2,000 church. W. M. Whatley, pastor.

Amherst, planning immediate addition to basement now in use at cost of about $10,000. C. H. Ledger, pastor.

In addition to these improvements many individual units of the conference have paid church debts, and the district has contributed between $2,000 and $2,500 for support of the Methodist orphanage at Waco. The conference also authorized district trustees to remodel and improve the district parsonage here, or sell the structure and build another.

Seven undergraduate ministers are now in the conference, and before being admitted to full fellowship, must complete work this summer in school. The conference raised $300 to aid these men.

Two men, Beacher Bennett and Marshall Rue, both of Lubbock, were granted license to preach.

Eleven delegates from the district to the annual Northwest Texas conference, which is to be held in this city in November were named as follows:

Dr. P. W. Horn and Jas. A. Hughes, Lubbock; W. D. Wheeler, Becton; A. G. Barkosky, Sparenburg; Mrs. Nina Elrod, Muleshoe; Judge J. M. Mabe, Crosbyton; H. Sterling, Baileyboro; B. M. Haynes, O'Donnell; Judge Cain, Tahoka; W. R. Graeber, Post; and C. N. Shelton, Lamesa.

Hughes Is Lay Leader

Jas. A. Hughes, of Lubbock, was re-elected district lay leader, with B. M. Haynes of O'Donnell and Mrs. Nina Elrod of Muleshoe, being elected as associate district lay leaders.

The conference was one of the best attended sessions ever held in the district, according to Rev. Doak, there being about 500 present. The noon and evening meals were served daily during the two-day session by ladies of the O'Donnell church. Hamilton Wright was secretary of the conference.

Millions Are Being Spent To Attract Auto Tourists To Old Spanish Trails

Long, smooth bridges like this one in Jefferson county, Texas, are replacing the ferries that have retarded progress along the way.

(By NEA Service)

SAN ANTONIO, April 21. — Expenditure of $60,000,000 is expected to make the Old Spanish Trail from St. Augustine to San Diego one of the most inviting highways in the United States.

The Old Spanish settlements all along the way, the historic missions, the grandeur of low and high country and the variety of scenery between gulf and desert have alone brought thousands of tourists to this 2759-mile stretch across the southern part of the country.

Improvements intended to make 95 per cent of the route comfortable driving under the worst conditions, are expected to attract even greater throngs to this trail.

One of the worst faults along this route was the long series of ferries, costly obstacles, that crossed the many streams flowing into the Gulf of Mexico. The present bridge program on the highway does away with all but four of these ferries, and those remaining will have continuous and all-night service.

Bridges Replace Ferries.

Most of the $60,000,000 being spent for this route goes into the construction of bridges that take the place of ferries. These range in length from half a mile to 10 1-2 miles, the longest highway bridge in America, just completed over Mobile bay.

Although the Old Spanish Trail, especially along the Gulf of Mexico, may be termed a bridge-building project for the present, many millions are being spent in the modernization of the route and in the enhancement of its attractions.

For instance, a long stretch of concrete road and sea wall near Biloxi, Miss., makes this a tantalizing driveway for motorists and affords a dreamy run along the great southern expanse of water.

Natural Beauty Enhanced.

Along the entire route, unsightly signs are being taken down, trees are being planted and other attractions added for the pleasure of the visitor.

Even outside of these, the trail reveals the beauties and masterpieces of nature that met the eys of the Spanish and French pioneers more than two centuries ago. This revelation starts from the historic city of St. Augustine, the first to be founded on the American continent, follows the trail of the early Spanish explorers to the Mississippi, meets the French post in New Orleans and goes on past Spanish missions and Indian pueblos to the great sunny and palm lined road across Southern California.

Low along the Gulf Coast and the Rio Grande, continuing over long stretches of dry, hot, desert, the trail winds easily upward until at Bisbee, Ariz., it reaches its peak height of 6030 feet above sea level.

Over Bays and Bayous.

Across Florida, Alabama and Mississippi, the road rolls gracefully along inviting bays and shores of the gul. Louisiana, and the great Mississippi river basin opens up its storied bayous, waterways and sugar plantations and leads on to the large rice growing areas in the western part of the state.

Oil and cotton fields are passed as the motorists crosses Texas and begins to wind upward over the hill country. New Mexico and the ancient Spanish settlements and Indian reservations are brought to view.

The country begins to vary from desert to mountain, into Arizona and across modern irrigation projects, until Southern California is reached.

San Diego, at the western end, is the paradise of travelers.

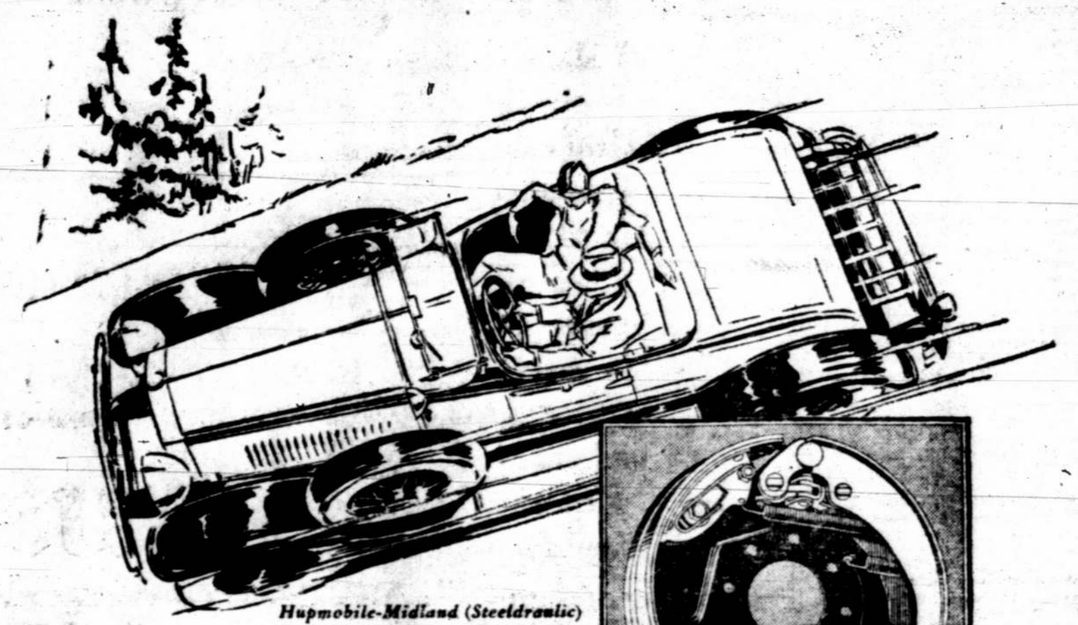

Silk is considered unclean by the Mohammedans because it is the product of a worm.

Motor Camping Is More Attractive As Summer Nears

Coming Season To Be Last Of Unsanitary And Unsightly Stopping Places, Marmon Co. Head Says

Motor camping will be made unusually attractive this year to the 40,000,000 tourists who within the next few weeks will hear the red gods call and will set out for the national parks and other spots of scenic and historical interest.

"Investing, as they do, some five billion dollars in scenery, fresh air and recreation, they are entitled, according to G. M. Williams, president of the Marmon Motor Car company, to greater conveniences than hitherto have ben offered by the various communities in free camp sites.

"The coming vacation season," said Mr. Williams, "will doubtless see the last of insanitary and inefficiently-maintained stopping places. The American gypsy awheel is democratic enough, and likes to swap experiences with other motorists from Maine, Kansas or Texas, but he is demanding more privacy and more luxury than the old-fashioned and primitive free camp affords.

"In answer to his demand for greater comfort there has sprung up the "bungalette" or cottage camp, which originated, I believe, in Florida and which has been extended rapidly throughout the south and southwest as well as in other sections of the country.

"Instead of finding soggy tents, swampy grounds and common wash basins and cook stoves, the 1928 motorist, if he selects his route carefully, will be able to make week-end or overnight stops at these well-mannaged cottage camps,' occupy a stuccoed bungalette with a screened-in sleeping porch, comfortable spring cots and all the conveniences of the private home or the hotel.

"If there is any laundering to be done, his wife will find electric washing machines and electric irons. Hot and cold running water and tiled shower baths are among the features of the modern tourists' camp, and some of th emore pretentious of these camps boast even community playgrounds, recreation houses, post office, barber shop, information bureau and souvenir shop.

"Bed line and blankets are available at a nominal cost, thus eliminating the necessity of carrying excess baggage, and the ever-present filling station, even in the most sparsely populated sections of the country, solves the gasoline problem."

Ranch Roundup Has Big Interest

2,000 Expected To Gather In Sonora August 14-15 In Midst Of Sheep And Goat Country Jubilee

(By Associated Press.)

SONORA, April 21.—The fourth annual ranchman's round-up at the ranch experiment station near here is expected to attract more than 2,000 ranchmen and others interested in livestock and experimental work August 14 and 15.

The gathering affords an opportunity to keep in touch with experiment station progress and observe results at first hand.

The ranch is located in the heart of the sheep and goat raising region of the southwest. Its importance may be guaged by the production in Texas of 80 per cent of the mohair crop in the United States and the production of more wool than is produced by any other state in the union. Both industries have reached a high state of development. The study of range problems carried on by the experiment station, which is a part of the Texas agricultural experiment station work of A. and M. college, is regarded of particular value.

New Veterinarian

Meanwhile the station is to have a new veterinarian in the person of Dr. E. A. Tunnicliffe, formerly of the University of Illinois. He will devote his time specifically to the most important sheep and goat disease problems and will supplement it with observation of particular animal diseases on ranches and ranges. Both Dr. Tunnicliffe and W. H. Dameron, superintendent of the ranch experiment station, believe an aggressive and systematic study will point the way to the exact nature and causes of some of the diseases and suggest at least partial relief from range losses.

How's She Hittin'? Interesting Car Care

By ISRAEL KLEIN,
Science Editor, NEA Service.

Perhaps the most important and least noticed instrument on the dash board is the ammeter. The dial might shift from charge to discharge, might vary in its recording day and night, and yet remain the mystery it seems to be with the most of us.

The reason is that, of all parts of the automobile, the ignition system seems to be the least understood. The ammeter records only a small part of that system and even this part is sorely neglected.

Yet a few homely tips about the ammeter and what it controls would save the driver the cost of his headlighting and other lights on the car, the generator and the battery—important instruments if the automobile is to run properly.

For instance, a driver who knows his ammeter needn't get out of his seat to see if his stop light is working, or if there's enough water in the battery, or if his battery is being overcharged. The ammeter will tell.

Take the matter of the stop light. With all other lights out, the act of depressing the brake pedal which should light the stop signal causes the needle of the ammeter to jump slightly to the discharge side if that signal is working.

So then, if the needle doesn't make this jump at depression of the brake pedal, it's a certain sign that the stop signal is out.

During winter, the generator usually is adjusted to charge the battery at a higher rate than during sumer in order to make up for extra use of the headlights. But the generator shouldn't overcharge.

The point at which the generator charging rate may be determined as correct is easily determined. With the headlights and tail light on and the automobile going along at 25 miles an haur, the needle of the ammeter should be pointing at the zero mark on the dial.

If the needle, under this condition, is pointing toward the charge side, the generator is overcharging the battery. If it points toward the discharge side the generator isn't charging enough and the lighting system is draining the battery.

Pointing of the needle at zero, with lights working and car going at 25 miles an hour, shows that the generator is supplying just enough energy to light th elights while the battery is resting. The energy the generator supplies during the day goes into the battery to keep it prepared for the job of starting the car.

If the generator has been adjusted to this point properly and the needle begins to move over toward the discharge rate despite this adjustment—be assured your battery is drained dry. Another sign of this state of the battery is dimming of the headlights.

Then, all that's needed is to refill the battery and go on.

The ammeter also will tell when the battery terminals are corroded. The needle will shift over to the discharge side. Cleaning of the corroded terminals will bring the needle back to the zero mark.

The charging rate of the generator needn't be any higher than about 10 amperes, at 25 miles an hour, except when the automobile is being used more often at night than by day, or there is much starting and stopping.

If the generator keeps charging at a higher rate, there is the liability of burning out the head lamps or tail light.

This, in fact, is one of the causes to look for when the head lamp burns out too often. The generator charging rate need only be reduced slightly to correct this fault.

That should best be done by a service station ignition man.

The Limit.

A tourist passing through a country village found that his watch had stopped. Seeing a litte boy standing outside the village shop, he went up to him and said: "Can you tell me the time, sonny?"

"Just 12 o'clock," was the reply.

"Only 12," said the tourist. "I thought it was more than that."

"It's never more in these parts, sir," answered the boy. "It goes up to 12 o'clock and then commences again at 1."

Japanese Seek To Protect Property

Land Marines In China for Purpose of Preventing Harm to Citizens From Internal Strife.

(By Associated Press.)

PEKING, April 21.—A force of 550 Japanese marines have been landed at Tsingtao as part of the Japanese movement to protect Japanese lives and property in the province of Shantung where fighting has been going on between the nationalist and Northern armies.

Martial law has been proclaimed at Tsingtao and ships have been forbidden to enter or leave the port at night.

The American destroyers Hurlbert, Noa, Sicard, Pruitt and Preble are now in Tsingtao, but there are no British warships there.

Peking is reported calm and official circles say there is no evidence of disturbance.

As sooh as word of the arrival of Japanese troops at Tsingtao had been received, Lo Wen-Kan, foreign minister for the Northern government, protested to the Japanese legation against the sending of the troops to Shantung.

JONES BILL TANGLE

Prospects of Peace With President Dim

WASHINGTON, April 21 (AP).—The prospect of smoothing over differences between President Coolidge and house supporters of the senate Jones flood control bill remained problematical tonight after a White House conference attended by the house republican leaders.

Representative Tilson of Conn., the house majority leader, and Chairman Madden of the appropriations committee, admitted that the tentative agreement reached with proponents of the senate bill had failed to satisfy the objections of the chief executive. Madden, however, expressed hope that counter proposals outlined by Mr. Coolidge ultimately would prove the basis for an agreement.

CHEVROLET

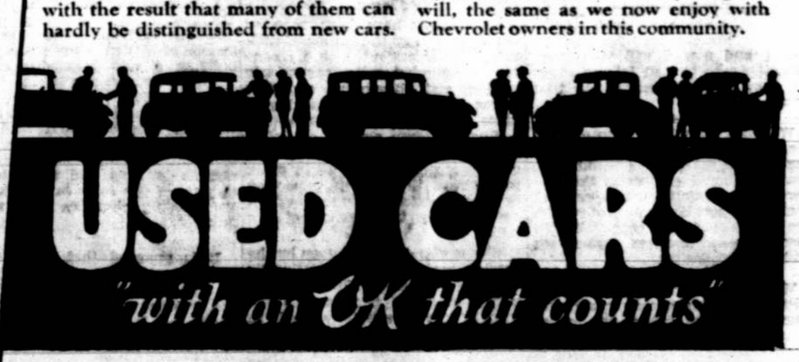

Dependability, Satisfaction and Honest Value!

Never before in our history have we delivered as many new Chevrolets as during the first three months of this year. Naturally a large part of this increased business required the trade-in of the new Chevrolet owner's previous car. These cars have been reconditioned with the result that many of them can hardly be distinguished from new cars.

Furthermore, these cars carry the official red tag "with an OK that counts" which shows the true condition under which the car is offered for sale.

Come in and inspect these used cars, and when you buy from us you may do so, confident that we want your goodwill, the same as we now enjoy with Chevrolet owners in this community.

The buying public seems to appreciate being able to buy a Used Car with an "O. K." that counts, as our stock of Used Cars has been sold within the past few weeks, with the exception of three or four medium priced cars, which are worth the money asked for them.

Our new cars are moving and we will have good Used Cars within the next few days, and will be able to show you good Used Cars with an "O. K." that counts.

There are Three Parties to Every Telephone Call

The party calling and the party called must do their part as well as the Telephone Company if good telephone service is to be had.

We are constantly striving to live up to our responsibility in rendering you the best service possible. We believe that telephone patrons are willing to do what they can to "give themselves better service." Therefore the few suggestions below are passed on to you in the interest of better telephone service.

The Party Calling

The person calling has the responsibility of using the correct telephone number. Obtaining the correct number from the telephone directory will help materially in getting the call started correctly. Then---give the party you are calling ample time to answer after you first hear the bell ringing at the other end of the line. A half minute is not long to wait, but in that time the bell has rung five times, however, a full minute would result in more answered calls.

The Company

Your Telephone Company realizes that service of the best order is based on the reliability, accuracy and promptness of that service. Constant attention to every phase of telephone activity is necessary to maintain the high standard of service we have set for ourselves.

Science enters into the selection of materials, skill into the building and placement of telephone mechanism and a great deal of money is spent annually in the training and development of efficient personnel. We endeavor to discharge these duties fully.

The Party Called

The party called has the responsibility of answering the telephone promptly. Prompt answering not only conserves the time of the calling party, but frees both telephones more quickly that they may be available for other calls. One of the necessary aids to prompt answering is extension telephones, located conveniently so that a telephone is quickly accessible. Prompt answering is an important requisite of good telephone service.

The fulfillment of their obligations by all parties is necessary to assure good telephone service

JESSE HOLMAN JONES

NO man in Texas has been the recipient of more sincere compliments in recent weeks than has Jesse Holman Jones of Houston, the man who secured for his home city and for Texas the convention of the national Democratic party. Already widely known as a business man and political leader, Mr. Jones has been thrust into the limelight in a manner that has been of interest to all Texas, although probably embarrassing to him. While active in public liffe for a number of years, he has never sought the kind of publicity that has been accorded him since the national Democratic Executice Committee choose Houston as a convention city. He was the honor guest the other day at a great celebration held in Dallas, when he became the visible representative of two other distinguished sons of old Tennessee, Sam Houston and David Crockett, a banquet being given by leading business men and politicians of North Texas.

Some interesting details about Mr. Jones' life and work are given in the Dallas News, and they are passed along for the information of our readers:

Born in Robertson county, Tennessee, on April 5, 1874, Mr. Jones is the son of William Hasque and Ann (Holman) Jones. He was educated in the public schools of his native county, later coming to Texas, where he began his business career in Dallas in 1894. In June, 1925 the Southwestern University of Georgetown conferred the degree of doctor of laws upon Mr. Jones and Southern Methodist University in 1927 did him the same honor.

After one year's connection with the M. T. Jones Lumber Company, Mr. Jones was made manager in January, 1895, before he was 21 years of age. Three years later he was promoted to be general manager and took up his residence in Houston.

Mr. Jones became president of the Southern Loan and Investment Company in 1905, which he had organized, and which afterward has been known as the Jesse H. Jones & Co. in 1909 he organized and headed the Texas Trust Co., which was consolidated two years later with the Bankers' Trust Company. As chairman of the board he directed the destinies of that company until 1920, when it was succeeded by then Bankers' Mortgage Company, of which he is chairman and president.

In 1912 Mr. Jones organized the Houston Hotel Association, Inc., as principal owner and president, shortly afterward erecting the Rice Hotel in Houston. In 1925 the corporate name was changed to the Houston Properties Corporation.

Mr. Jones' varied and important business activities since 1898 have included banking and building and lumber, having been instrumental in the creation of a number of office and bank buildings, business blocks, hotels, apartments and theatres in Dallas, Houston, Fort Worth and New York. As a banker he served as vice president of the Union National Bank of Houston from 1910 to 1918 and was vice president of the Lumberman's National Bank from 1907 to 1915. Since 1922 he has been president of the National Bank of Commerce in Houston. In 1923 he organized and became president of the Jesse H. Jones Co., Houston, and the Houston Properties Corporation, New York.

In 1926 Mr. Jones became owner and publisher of the Houston Chronicle. His other civic activities have included the chairmanship of the Houston harbor board between 1913 and 1917, formative years in the creation of Houston's magnificent inland waterway connection with the Gulf of Mexico.

Texas at large called upon him in 1926 to become director general of the Texas Centennial Celebration which in 1936 will observe the hundred years of Independence of Texas.

In 1917 Mr. Jones was made director general of military relief in the American Red Cross and was a member of the Red Cross Council by appointment of President Woodrow Wilson. He was a delegate along with Henry P. Davidson in 1919 to the Red Cross meetings held in Paris, Cannen and Geneva assisting in organizing the League of Red Cross Societies of the World.

As director of finance for the Democratic national party, Mr. Jones has had one of the most responsible positions in the Nation's politics. He has long been recognized as a disinterested, genuine and forceful worker for the success of American government under our party form.

And after all of this has been said about Mr. Jones, we believe that he might after all, be the best timber the Democrats have for the Presidential nomination. Mr. Jones, we are sure would be able to make as good fight for the presidency as any Democrat that has been mentioned up to now, and much better than some of them, and we would like to see Texas have a man in the race.

HIGHLY IMPORTANT EDUCATIONAL SERVICE FOR THE STATE

No more state teachers collees will be established for the present, and none will be abandoned. The Board of Regents so decided at a special meeting in Austin, at which biennial budgets for the eight institutions were approved tentatively.

This action evidently disposes, for the time being, of proposals that like new schools be opened at Meridan and Edinburg, and that the Sul Ross State Teachers college at Alpine be abandoned or removed. The status quo of these institutions will be maintained, but it is hoped the State Board of Control and the Legislature will accord them more generous financing.

In announcing this policy the Regents explain that movements for new schools never have originated with the Board, but are initiated by communities which want them and carry their cause to the Legislature. Such colleges are situated at Huntsville, Denton, San Marcos, Commerce, Canyon, Nacogdoches, Alpine and Kingsville—about as fair an original geographical distribution as could be devised.

Convenience to the public that is served is desirable, of course; but the decentralization process can be overdone. It is wasteful if it result in overlapping facilities and duplicated effort. The Texas Educational Survey report emphasized this point.

More classrooms, additional library space and other improvements are needed at several of the colleges; and so far as practicable the Legislature should provide them. No higher educational service which the state maintains is more important than this. Instruction imparted in the normal schools, of course, is doubly useful, as it is passed on to pupils in the grades.

It is noteworthy that nearly nine-tenths of the students in such colleges teach in rural schools. They carry to remote country districts enthusiasm, new ideas, broader vision, loftier ideals. Lawmakers who professedly desire to do more for the farm children should keep these facts in mind.

Retention of Sul Ross college at Alpine is a matter of particular congratulation. That institution performs a service to the state far out of proportion to even the attendance. It is well situated in the midst of a region destined to grow rapidly in population and wealth—among the Texas Highlands, at a city which is a playground and a beauty spot. The country round about is rich in material for the study of geology and other natural sciences, and the nearby mountains offer an excellent site for an astronomical observatory.

The Regents wisely have recommended full appropriations for this college. Before many years it also will have to be enlarged.

AS OTHERS SEE US

Americans are certainly very humble-minded folk. They put up with more humbug and patronizing from visiting foreigners than would any other people on earth. Indeed, they seem to like it, to be fond of being told how ignorant they are about their own system of caste, how much more they resemble the Chinese than they do Europeans. Such at least appears to be the assumptions of some of our European instructors, here for a short time. The condescension they show us is ineffable. They patiently point out our errors. From their superior heights of intelligence they explain our past and predict our future. And they expect us to lap all this up with eager credulity, and with a heightened appreciation of the kindness of those who stoop to enlighten our darkened minds. One thing, however, Americans do know. They know the difference between a guest and a money-grubber. They understand the distinction between a modest investigator and a bumptious ladler-out of preconceptions. While these foreign visitors of the offensive kind are telling us that we ought to see ourselves as others see us, they themselves should not go away without being informed that we are at least clear-eyed enough to perceive the truth about them and to put them in their proper place.

The time is coming in this country when the president will be elected as all other officials are elected—by direct vote of the people and that is what should come about. Because the popular choice for president can easily be defeated by our present methods.

Printers make mistakes sometimes. If they didn't they would not be in the printing business.

What's the difference about tax reduction anyway? All the reduction contemplated or planned will only effect the very rich and the poor can still beg.

Congress has just a little over a month to wrestle with the big questions, and then the members have a season of politics ahead—it's going to be a warm campaign.

Alas! The New Scarecrow Doesn't Seem To Be Very Effective

SO THINK WE

We think that Lubbock has been about the busiest place in West Texas the past two weeks. We have had with us the P. T. A. bringing many visitors to the city, and then the Rotary convention, which brought its hundreds of delegates, and the Interscholastic League meet which brought as many or more than twice the number of the other two events, and the town has been thoroughly alive with young life.

—o—

We think a great many of the politicians are saying a great many things that they will have to take back a little later on in the campaign. We have noticed that this is usually the case. They get by with a great many of their statements at first, but as the campaign grows there comes a time when they are called upon to prove many of the things they have said, and there is nothing to do but acknowledge they were simply mistaken.

—o—

We think that most people who think that business men are a dumb bunch, should try getting in competition with them awhile, and they will find that they are a pretty keen bunch after all.

—o—

We think that Lubbock has plenty of battleaxers and plenty of curbstone politicians. What we need is more civic pride, and more work in the yards, fewer golf players and more honest to goodness workmen.

—o—

We think it a rather strange thing that two philosophers understand the others.

—o—

We think that in New York the impossible can happen, and it very often does.

—o—

We think that Lubbock will be in the minds of the Rotarians of every club in the Forty First District for the next few weeks at least. It has been a great publicity stunt for this city. We have been talked about in anticipation for several weeks, and now it will take them several weeks to quit talking about the way Lubbock entertained that bunch.

—o—

We think there have been entirely too many explosions in Texas during the present year. It would seem that we should emphasize the importance of safety first more, and that will possibly help to reduce the number of accidents. People become very careless sometimes with high explosives.

—o—

We think that German-Irish fliers had a very narrow escape but since they came out of the trans-Atlantic trip possibly it will be the more exciting when they print the story of their trip in detail. It will also be the cause of several others losing their lives in an attempt to try to beat their record.

OPINIONS

KEYNOTER FESS

The selection of Senator Fess to deliver the keynote speech at Kansas City may encourage the draft-Coolidge faction of the party, whose tireless spokesman the Ohioan has been. Few believe that the President would accept another nomination, even if the convention turned to him as a last hope for harmony. Whatever spark of life is left in the Coolidge movement will be assured a vigorous fanning when the orator from Yellow Springs takes the platform. No one could better wave the ensign of Republicanism; no Democrat will have a leg to stand on by the time he reaches the peroration. Were Mr. Coolidge to become a candidate, even at this late date, Ohio Republicans would be for him. Hughes would get a very large vote here. Lowden has some support, and perhaps Curtis. Vice President Dawes is a son, though hardly a favorite son, of Ohio. In definiteness of purpose the Hoover supporters now have an advantage in this State. No one questions how a Hoover delegate will vote.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

OLD TRICK IN POLITICS

Promotion of a sinister purpose under the cloak of a noble patriotic motive is an old trick in politics. While many Americans sincerely believe that armament is an evil in itself, some others seek to weaken the defenses of the United States in order that attack from within or without may have the better chance of success. Those others profess hatred of war when in fact they look forward to war in which the United States shall be defeated in consequence of the weakness of its defense. Part of these hope for victory by a foreign nation in war on this country, or that through military weakness this nation may be compelled to submit to the demands of some other country. Others look forward to a revolution in which the forces defending the Constitution shall have been so reduced through the influence of their spurious devotion to pacifism that those forces may easily be overpowered. These are not figments of the imagination, for the kind of propaganda in question was practiced before the world war, and is still practiced.—Portland Oregonian.

YOUR HEALTH

MILK LOSES ALUABLE SALTS WHEN BOILED

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor Journal of the American Medican Medical Association and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

From time to time experiments have been made in the feeding of milk, changing the form or the preparation and studying the effects on children fed with this most complete of human foods.

Experiments have been reported which show that the boiling of milk interferes somewhat with its content of mineral salts, particularly calcium and phosphorus, and that young animals fed on heated milk alone are likely to develop rickets.

When children are fed on boiled milk they must be given increasing quantities of cod liver oil in order to improve the growth promoting properties, which are to some extent destroyed by the heating of the milk.

Milk is also depended upon by the child in many places for getting its supply of iodine. Although the supply of iodine necessary to the human body is relatively small in amount, it must be kept up to a definite level or the child will develop symptoms related to the thyroid gland.

Investigators in a medical research institute in Aberdeen have now carried out a series of experiments to find out what happens to the iodine in milk when the food is boiled before serving.

It was found that heat would cause 20 per cent or more of all the iodine in milk to pass into the air by volatilization. This, of course, represents a fairly serious loss to the child that takes the milk.

While these considerations are of great importance so far as they relate to the feeding of the infant, they are not, of course, fundamental in relationship to the taking of milk by adults.

The grown up person does not depend on any single food substance in his diet. He is likely to supplement milk or any other food that he may take by a wider variety of meats, cereals and vegetables.

Although milk is the most perfect of foods, it is not absolutely prefect, since it lacks greatly some of the mineral salts necessady to life and is not even complete in its content of vitamins.

More and more it is becoming to be realized that teh only safety in diet is a well balanced diet with some of all of the important food substances.

IT IS REPORTED

It is reported that a Texas farmer recently went rabbit hunting and brought home a seven foot female lion. Good night, what a mistake.

—o—

It is reported that both the city council and the Board of City Development and the county commissioners and the Santa Fe railroad are ready for the contract to be let for the underpasses on Broadway and Ave. H, but each seems to be wanting the other fellow to take the initiative, and hence the delay.

—o—

It is reported that Lamesa, Tahoka and O'Donnell are going to get the cross road from Roswell to Snyder. Ed Kennedy has overlooked Wilson and two or three other places along the line, that should have the road. We are confident that if these towns will call the attention of Mr. Kennedy to this oversight he will be glad to have the newspapers correct the oversight. He did in the matter of Lamesa and we are sure he will show no favoritism.

—o—

It is reported that a newspaper reporter figured out that when he wrote a big account of a wedding that the girls father has a bigger account at the dry goods store, and possibly every store in town. The bigger the write up the bigger the bill, so the reporter figures, mounting to considerable figures.

—o—

It is reported that some of the honest Republican politicians are actually afraid to own any liberty bonds, for fear of being scandalized.

—o—

It is reported that the Democrats are seeking a dry platform. If they will build it out in this section of the state we do not thing they will have any difficulty in getting one over.

—o—

It is reported that at the District Conference the presiding officer made the statement that the good people of Anton were figuring on building a new Methodist church there whereupon one of the brethern from that wide-awake little village informed him that the building was completed and ready for next Sunday's worship. The elder had just been up there last week and no building had been started, so you see the folks in this section are building churches in a week's time.

—o—

It is reported that there are a great many spring poems being held up these days to find out just what the weather man is going to do about it. It is not usually the weather man that keeps the poems out, but the editor.

It is reported that some of the congressmen have admitted that even the boll weevil has more sense than all of the congressmen put together. There are some members of Congress however, that we are confident will not agree with this statement.

Our Sunday Morning Sermon

By REV. R. F. DUNN

THE MESSAGE OF THE SPIRIT TO THE CHURCHES

"He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches," Rev. 2:7. This is a seven fold admonition of the Holy Spirit to the seven churches. In proconsular Asia, it is interesting to see how the book of Revelation is divided into three distinct parts, and this threefold division is a key to the interpretation of the book.

John is commanded to write "the things which he had seen, and the things which are and the things which shall be hereafter." (After these things). Looking closely we find the first division in the first chapter. The second division is in the second chapter, and the third chapter also.

The third division begins with the fourth chapter, and extends to the end of the book. To ignore this divine order is to land in confusion in trying to expound or interpret the divine measure of the prophesies of Revelation.

If we note carefully we shall find that the church, as such, never appears in the remaining 19 chapters, except in connection with this statement: "I, Jesus, have sent mine angel to testify unto you these things in the churches," and this is to certify the authorship of the book, when written (22:16) and in chronological order belongs to the first part of the , but is appended here in connection with an urgent invitation of the spirit and the bride to "come and take of the water of life freely."

With the beginning of the third division of the book of Revelation, the prophetic scene is shifted from earth to heaven, and the prophet is transported in spirit to view the throne of God, and Him that sat upon it. What he was to see and to hear from this time on, belong to the things that should be after the first and second division of "the prophecy of this book." Rev. 4:1 a 22:7.

This third division of the book i cludes a series of events that t long to "the day of the Lord," wh He shall come to execute judgme upon the ungodly, and to "put do all rule and all authority and po er" and to "reign" until He hath p all enemies under His feet."

It is the things "which are" th we are to consider in this sermo and these things are found in t second and third chapters of t bcok. Here the admonition "Hear what the Spirit saith u the churches" is found seven tim and its importance is beyond qu tion. In this division of the bo we have the valuation that Chr fixes upon each of these church and the good and the evil that w in each of them. Here is a perf diagnosis of the condition of th churches as the "great Physicia gace it, and it enables us to see spiritual condition of our o church, and He sees it.

There is much variation amc people in estimating the value religious progress in the church of today.

These symptoms n be seen in the lodges and sec orders that exist in our day. Chu pride and sectarian zeal may p

The American Party As An Organ Of Government

Many people know what George Washington, first president of the United States, warned his countrymen against foreign entangling alliences, but few of them know that he also warned them against political parties. This warning is not surprising, in the light of knowledge and experience with political parties up to that time. Parties were regarded as groups of people organized for the purpose of overthrowing the government. It is not surprising then that the framers of the United States Constitution made no provision for political parties.

The Constitutional Fathers provided for the selection of presidential electors in a manner to be determined by the states. These electors would then vote for a president and vice president. Perhaps they thought nominations were unnecessary but the development of the political party with its nominating methods was inevitable. If we now have government by the people it is through the political party. It is the party that now nominates candidates for the presidency and vice presidency; it is the party that selects electors; it is the party that selects candidates for all elective state and local offices; and it is the party that controls these officers after they get into office. If the people run the party and the party runs the government, then we have popular government through political parties. If the people are ignorant, lazy or indifferent, then bosses or machines get control of the parties, and therefore run the government.

There are five fundamental branches of any so-called popular government. The most fundamental of these is the electorate which, as we have seen, functions through political organizations. The legislative and executive branches are also political, while the administrative and judicial branches may or may not be political. As a rule the judiciary is, and ought to be, the most free from party control. With the passing of classified civil service acts, administration has in part been removed from party control. Political organizations do not play such an important part in state and local governments unless there is a fair division of party strength. Such a division has always existed with the national government.

It is sometimes said that a President represents all of the people of the United States. In one respect he does, but first of all he feel responsibility to that organi group of people who nominated elected him. In appointing his c inet and other executive offic and in the appointment of adm istrative officers that are subject presidential appointment, pa harmony is uppermost in the m of the president. Outside of own cabinet and the members the diplomatic service, his p members of the Senate determi majority of the appointments. his party is not represented fro given state, in the Senate, he t relies upon a member of the L er House or the National Comm teeman of that state.

Every member of Congr whether a Senator or a Represen tive, is nominated and elected a party. His actions also, are largely determined and contro by a political party. When a running for Congress stands up tells the "folks" that he is not ing to be dominated by p "bosses," and that he is going do this, that and the other reg less of what others may do, h either ignorant or is trying to upon the ignorance of the pe If elected, that man will be in ed to attend a party caucus be he has ever been seated in Cong If he attends, he is bound by actions of the caucus ever ther ter. If he does not attend, looses all chances of influencing own party, and, standing sin handed and alone, he can acc plish nothing. No important lic measure, over which there divided public opinion, is ever acted without first passing ca consideration. No measure ea enacted without having been reported by a committee and caucus controls committee ports.

All of this amounts to not more nor less than saying that the Republican Party that is ning the government of the U States today. Of course, the D ocrats help, when it is not p dicial to Republican interests, the Democrats hinder when can do so without it being p dicial to their own interests. this constant challenging and ing attention to weaknesses keeps the party in power on its and makes for good governmen Political parties are the powerful organs of governmen the United States today. If ple would run their governm they must run their parties.

TEXAS

In Texas fileds bluebonnets grow.
The babbling brook to the Gulf doth flow,
Where the fragrant oleanders grow,
And the waters lave and breezes blow,
And the birds sing in the tree-tops tall,
And the wild coyotes of the desert call;
The lone wolf howls on the crags so dread,
Rousing the grazing flocks with fear.
The cattle rove o'er the prairies wide,
Among or near them the cowboys ride,
In golden fields that wave and blow
Along the coast line to mountain's snow,
There's welcome free, and joys inate,
And more of love and less of hate.
There's paradise within the gate,
Of my beloved Lone Star State.

"Winfield Bybee, you are a fool," s. Bybee gasped, breathless from ming. "Let the poor boy get breath first. Here, put your about him and let him lean you, Sally, you run back to the n and get help. This boy's all e up and he's going to have that ulder dressed before he's pes- ed to death with questions."

"I can walk," David panted, his ath whistling across his ashen "I don't want Sally out of sight. I—would—give Up— Nothing much—the matter a—bullet—in my shoulder. Be ight—in a—day or two."

Sally begged, rubbing her softly against his right hand wetting it with her tears. lean on me and take it easy." Bybee urged, his voice husky unashamed emotion. "And talk any more till we get you a berth. God! But I'm glad you, Dave boy! I'd made up mind I'd never trust another as if you'd thrown me down. But didn't doubt you a minute me from telling the police you'd been with the show and disappeared with the crooks."

Thanks," David gasped, lean- heavily on the showman. "I scared sick—the police—had nd Sally. Knew there was— und to be—an awful row."

He fainted then, his splendid ing body crumpling suddenly to e cinders of the railroad track mehow the three of them man- ed to get him to the show train d into the Bybees' stateroom. ere Gus, the barker, who had aduated from medical school be- re the germ of wanderlust had fected him, dressed the wounded oulder.

"The bullet went clear through e fleshy part of the arm at the ulder," Gus told them, as he shed his hands in the state- n's basin. "No bones touched all. Just a flesh wound. Of se he's lost a lot of blood and be pretty shaky for a few s, but no real harm done. You turn off the faucet, Sally. Save tears for a big tragedy—like ound glass in your cold cream, or mething like that. Want a real ctor to give that shoulder the ce-over, Pop?" he asked turning Bybee, who had not left David's e.

It was David, opening his eyes edly just then, who answered: other doctor, please. I'm a itive from justice, remember. I could have some coffee now I nk I could tell you what hap- ned, Mr. Bybee."

A dozen eager voices outside the teroom door offered to get the coffee from the privilege car, and within a few minutes Sally was kneeling before David holding a cup of steaming black coffee to his lips.

As many of the carnival family as could crowd into the small space of the car aisle pressed against the open door of the stateroom to hear his story. Jan, the Holland giant, who was too tall to stand upright in the car, was invited into the stateroom, where he sat between Pop Bybee and Mrs. Bybee, "Pitty Sing", in the crock of one of his arms, Noko, the Hawaiian midget, in the other. Sally still knelt beside David, holding his right hand tightly in both of hers and laying her lips upon it when his story moved her unbearably.

"I suppose Mrs. Bybee has told you that I was leaving the show train to go to the carnival grounds to see if anything had happened to Sally. I'd have gone sooner, but the storm was so violent that I knew I'd not have a chance to get there. Mrs. Bybee said she was going to the lot and would look after Sally for me, but she wanted me to stay on the train, or near it, to patrol it. She didn't tell me there was a lot of money in her stateroom, or I'd have stationed myself in there."

"You see," Sally interrupted eager- "I told you I hadn't said a word to him about the safe."

"Safe?" David glanced down at her, puzzled. "So this Steve crook cracked a safe to get the money, did he? I didn't know—didn't have time to find out."

"And I told you it was a man named Steve!" Sally reminded them joyously, raising David's cold hand to her lips. "They thought I was making it all up, Dave, but they believed me after a while."

I suppose Sally has told you that we saw Nita and some man walking in the moonlight that last night we were in Stanton," David addressed Pop Bybee. "We heard her call him Steve, and say something about what she'd do to him if he double-crossed her. I should have told you then, Mr. Bybee, but I didn't have an idea Nita was planning to fob the outfit and anyway—" he blushed, his eyes twinkling fondly at Sally—"by morning I'd forgotten all about it. I couldn't think of anything but—but Sally. You see, we'd just told each other that night that—that —well, sir, that we loved each other and—

"Anybody else in the whole outfit could have told you that," Bybee chuckled. "It's all right, Dave. Carnival folks usually mind their own business and spend damn little time toting tales."

"I'm glad you're not blaming me," David said gratefully. "Well sir, I was walking up and down the tracks, just wild to get away and see if anything had hapened to Sally, when suddenly I heard a soft thud, like somebody jumping to the ground on the other side of the train. I crossed over as quick as I could, but by that time they were running down the side of the train pretty far ahead of me. It was Nita and a man. They must have been hidden on the train, waiting their chance, when the storm broke—were there when Mrs. Bybee left.

"I suppose they hadn't counted on any such luck, had probably intended to overpower her before you got back, sir, and the storm saved them the trouble."

"I'd have give them a run for the money," Mrs. Bybee retorted grimly, her skinny old hand knotting into a menacing fist.

"That's just what I did," David grinned rather whitely at her. "I yelled at them to stop, because I had an idea they'd been up to something, since they'd jumped off this car and I knew Nita had no business on the train, since all you people were sleeping on the lot.

"They were carrying a couple of suitcases that looked suspiciously heavy to me. It flashed over me that Mrs. Bybee, being treasurer of the outfit, must have left a lot of money in her stateroom, and that Nita and this Steve chap had been planning to rob her when Sally and I heard them talking the other night. I started after them, still yelling for them to stop, and Steve turned and fired at me. He missed me, luckly for me, and I kept right on.

"About a hundred yards beyond he end of the train they climbed into a car that was parked on the road that runs alongside the tracks and after telling me goodby with another bullet that missed me, too, Steve had the car started. I was about to give up and start toward Capital City to notify the police when I noticed there was a handcar on the tracks, just where this spur joins the main line.

"I threw the switch and in a minute I had the handcar on the main line and was pumping along after them. The state road parallels the railroad track for five or six miles you know, and I could make nearly as good time in my handcar as they could in their flivver, for it's a down grade nearly all the way." He paused his eyes closing wearily as if every muscle in his body ached with the memory of that terrible ride in the dead of night.

"Better rest awhile, Dave," Pop Bybee suggested gently, bending over the boy to wipe the cold drops of sweat from his forehead.

"No, I'll get it over with," David protested weakly. "There's not much more to tell. They couldn't see me—had no idea I was trailing them in the handcar. But I could keep them in sight because of their headlights. I guess they'd have got away, though, if a frieght train hadn't come along just then and blocked the road. They were just reaching the grade crossing where the state road cuts the railroad tracks when this freight came charging down on us—"

"But you, David," Sally shuddered, bowing her head on his hand, the fingers of which curled upward weakly to cup her face. "You were on the track. Did the train hit you? Oh!"

"Of course not!" David grinned at her. "I'm here and I wouldn't have been if the engine had hit the handcar when I was on it. But I'm afraid the railroad company is minus one handcar this morning. The cow catcher of the freight engine scooped it up and tossed it aside as if it had been a baby's go-cart, but I'd already jumped and was tumbling down the bank into a nice bed of wild flowers.

"Pretty wet after the storm, so I didn't go to sleep. I'd jumped to the other side of the tracks and was hidden from Steve's car while the freight train rolled on. They didn't stop to hold a post mortem over the handcar. Probably figured a tramp had been bumming a free ride on it and had got his, and good enough for him.

"When the train had passed I was waiting by the road for Steve's car. I guess he was pretty badly surprised when I hopped upon the running board and grabbed the steering wheel and swerved the car into a ditch, nearly turning it over. I don't remember much of what happened then, what with Nita screeching and Steve swearing and popping his gun at me. But somehow I managed to get his revolver —didn't know I'd been shot at first —and dragged him out of the car.

"It must have been a pretty good fight, for Nita decided to beat it before it was finished. She started off with one of the suitcases but it was too heavy and she dropped it in the road and lit out. If Nita could dance as well as she can run," David interrupted himself to grin at Bybee, "she'd be a real loss to the outfit."

"Well, Dave, even if Steve did get away with the money, my hat's off to you, boy," and he reached for the hand which Sally was still cuddling jealously.

"Who's telling this?" David demanded, with just a touch of boyish bravado, which made Sally love him better than ever. "He didn't get away. I'm afraid he won't be good for much for a long time. Nita should have stayed to look after him."

"The money, Dave!" Mrs. Bybee screamed. "You didn't save the money, did you, Dave? Where are you, Winfield Bybee? I'm giving you fair warning! If he saved that money, I'm going to faint dead away!"

Common Interests Face Meeting Of Two Associations

Clean Cities Hold Interest Of Gas Ass'n And Session To Be Held At Same Time By City Planners

(By Associated Press)

HOUSTON, April 21 — A similiarity of interests will confront the National Gas Department of the American Gas association and the National conference on lyti Ca-nP National conference on City Planning when the two meet in Dallas May 7-10, although they are separate and distinct organizations.

Have Common Interest

The common interest of the two organizations is in clean cities. The gas men claim that the cleanest cities in the country because very little coal is burned in this state.

This cleanliness is reflected in the bright buildings and the general appearance of sprightliness which the cities show under the brilliant Texas sun.

O. H. Koch, vice-chairman of the Dallas City Plan Commission, stated that the subject of the city planning is of special interest to gas companies since one of the biggest problems of the gas companies is to lay out distributions system.

"This work," he said, "Must be planned years ahead of the actual growth of the city. Of course this means that the gas companies must be able to predict the nature and type of expansion which will probably take place, a thing particularly difficult for anyone who has not given the subject expert study."

Development In Texas

The natural gas development of Texas in the last year will be discussed. More than 200 towns in Texas have been connected to the web of mains covering the state, and small towns which a few months ago were toting wood for their fires are now enjoying a modern utility.

The conference on city planning will be attended by a large number of city plan engineers, city officials, officers of chambers of commerce and persons interested in municipal development. They are expected from all part of the country.

Aviation Booming Throughout South

Dependable Private Planes Relacing War Time 'Junk' U. S. Inspector Says After Visit Over Section

(By Associated Press)

SAN ANTONIO, April 20.—Commercial aviation is booming all over the southwest and up-to-date dependable private planes are replacing the war time junk which once cluttered up flying fields according to Parker D. Cramer, Inspector for the Department of Commerce for Texas, New Mexico and Oklahoma.

Cramer says that airfields all over the southwest have developed as has Winburn field here.

"When I made my first trip to San Antonio less than a year ago I licensed two "Jennies" and one new production job. There were a dozen old planes and a few shacks on the field. Now the old planes and the shacks are gone, having been replaced by new planes and steel hangars. Approximately fifty San Antonio pilots are applicants for licenses and 15 new planes have been licensed recently, with more coming in as fast as the factories can produce them. Between 100 and 150 planes have been licensed in the state.

Mr. Cramer's work has become so heavy that the department has appointed E. W. Day to assist him in this district.

Sunday Sermon

voke people to liberality and devotion to their church organization as the lodge spirit prompts people to zeal and devotion to the lodge organization.

Some church members are more devoted and loyal to their lodge than to their church, both in attendance upon its meetings and meeting financial obligations. This very highly are abominable in the sight of God. Luke 16:15.

This was actually the case with one of the seven churches. Rev 3:14-18.

For this reason we should seriously study these seven messages to the churches.

It is highly probable that these particular churches are selected because in them are found such characteristics as represent every phase of church condition, from that time to the end of the age, or dispensation of the Spirit, during which Christ is walking "in the midst of seven golden candle sticks," which are seven churches of Asia. (Chap. 1:20).

We now turn to examine each of these churches in the order in which they are named. But we must not lose sight of the admonition, "He that hath an ear let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches."

There is implied in this admonition the fact that some have ears, but will not hear. This fact is too well known to need further proof or argument to establish it: and it ought to move us to watch ourselves lest we despise the Word of God and stop our ears that we hear not the voice of the Holy Spirit.

Here is the message to the church at Ephesus: "I know thy works, and thy labor, and thy patience, and how thou canst not bear things which are evil; and hast tried them which say they are Apostles, and are not, and hast found them liars; and hast borne and hast had patience, and for name's sake hast labored, and hast not fainted." This is a splendid record, and more than may be said of many of our modern churches. "God does not forget your work and labor of love," and this should be an encouragement to every Christian in the face of temptations and trials. Others may forget; but He does not forget your patience and fidelity. But there was this charge against this church: they had "left their first love" and must repent and do the first works: or else I will come unto thee quickly, and will remove thy candle stick out of his place, except thou repent." The church was the "candlestick" (1:20) and if it does not shine it is of no value in the kingdom of God. This is what did happen, in course of time. If they ever repented, we do not know. This had been a great church; but churches, like individuals, cannot live on their past record. Ephesus had fallen; and must repent, or the church must be removed, was the verdict of her Lord.

The message to Smyrna: "I know thy works, and tribulations, and poverty. . . . and I know the blasphemy of them which say they are Jews and are not; but are the synagogue of Satan. Fear none of these things which shall suffer: behold the devil shall cast some of you into prison . . . be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life. No complaint is made against this church. She was poor and exposed to the blasphemy of false Jews, and right by the synagogues awaiting them. It is easy to see that every one who was not a true disciple would get away from such trials and sufferings.

There was nothing in that church that would induce the hypocrite or worldly minded to join, or remain with them. They were commended and encouraged. There is thine compensation in persecution for Christ's sake.

It eliminates the unworthy and makes the church a charmed blessing, because the Lord is with them who suffer for his sake.

And to the angel of the church in Pergamost write . . . "I know they works, and where thou dwellest, even where Satan's seat is; and thou holdest fast my name and has not denied my faith, even in those days wherein Antipas was my faithful martyr, who has slain among you where Satan dwelleth." This was a great record of fidelity under circumstances of great trial; but there were a few things against this church. Two dangerous doctrines taught by some of them, the doctrine of the Balaamites and o Nickolatitanes. Of the latter, Jesus said, "which thing I hate." For this they must repent, or else the Lord will fight against them with the sword of "my mouth."

It seems a small thing with some that false doctrine is taught in some churches and in some church schools. With our Lord and Savior, it is a serious matter.

If we have ears to hear, let us "hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches."

"And unto the angel of the church in Thyatira write: . . . I know thy works, and charity, and service and faith, and thy patience and thy works; and the last to be more than the first." This is the greatest record of all the seven, in the number of good things that this church had done, and the fact that "the last to be more than the first" was a splendid record for any church.

But there comes a serious charge against this church, because they suffered a woman named Jezebel to teach and seduce the servants of Christ. She called herself a prophetess.

The church permitted her to teach and seduce the servants of Christ, and the church is responsible to Him for failure to expel her and restrain her from this damaging doctrine and influence upon the church. Whether this was her literal name or a name given her because she had the characteristics of the Jezebel of Elijah's day, I do not know, nor does it matter just here; it was the doctrine she taught and the influence she wielded that was bringing such terrible results to that church.

We are facing conditions in the United States of America that are alarming, to say nothing of the world at large. Recently there have been reports current of prominent female colleges in Ameria, whose text books and faculty are demanding investigation because of what is being taught the student body, and the effect of this teaching on the young women of these schools.

Smith college at Northampton, Mass., has been in the limelight recently, because of some things that are happening there.

Two young ladies mysteriously disappeared from this school and were never heard from again. One disappeared Nov. 23 13, 1925, the other Jan. 13, 1928. What were the young ladies of this school taught, touching sex relations?

Here is a questionnaire, issued a couple of years ago, and submitted to a class of girls in Smith college, and since have been given much publicity.

"Would you, under favarcble circumstances, indulge in the extra-marital sex relations after marriage?"

"Would you approve of the same for your husband?"

"Do you think it an advantage or disadvantage for a woman to have sex experience before marriage?"

"Should girls have more freedom to seek sex experience before marriage than is now generally approved?"

"(A) Would you use this experience under favorable circumstances? (B) Have you had such experience? Once? Occasionally? Frequently?"

Fathers and mothers, who love your pure daughters; could you consent to their being exposed to such a teacher as would submit such questions to a class of young women under his tuition? God forbid!

With such text books and reference books as Bertand Russel's works "What I Believe," defending sex perversion, and other equally dangerous books, teaching things that destroy the faith of our children in God and the Bible, and encouraging improper relations for the rising generation, we have essentially the same dangerous teaching in some schools that exist in Pirgamos and Thatira with the Balaamites and the Jezebels, destroying faith in God by idolatrous teachings: The doctrines leading to the "companionate marriage" and sex perversion to which reference has already been made, is productive of the same results as the teaching of the Balaamites and Jezebel, namely fornication and idolatry, which, if they become general, would destroy the foundations of our civilization and the church of our Lord Jesus Christ.

With text books, teaching for "science" the bald assumptions and unproven theories of men, which we explain as the logical result

EDITOR'S NOTE: This, the seventh in a series of Presidential campaign Portraits written for the Journal and NEA Service by Robert Talley, is the last of four articles on Gov. Al Smith of New York. Tomorrow begins a series on Vice President Charles G. Dawes.

By ROBERT TALLEY
NEA Service Writer

ALBANY, N. Y., Apr. 21. — When Al Smith answers those who have attacked his eligibility for the presidency on the ground that he is a Catholic, the nation can expect one of the greatest speeches in the long career of this man who has won fame as a powerful orator.

Smith is a devout member of the church, as were his parents, and he has no apologies to make for his religion. He holds that one's matter of worshipping God is a personal matter, entirely disassociated from government. He has also attended church regularly.

"I have never known any conflict between my official duties and my religious belief," Gov. Smith has said. "I recognize no power in my church to interfere with the operations of the constitution of the United States or the enforcement of the law of the land."

The religion burns deeply within the heart of New York's governor, once an altar boy at St. James', near his home on the East Side. In his youth the church nurtured him, giving him the only schooling he ever received. It started him on his career as a public speaker with the dramatic theatericals given in the church basement. It buried his father and his mother, who died when in the consolation of their faith and it has comforted him in the hours of his own dark hours.

"If there were a conflict between my loyalty to the Catholic church and patriotic loyalty to the United States," Gov. Smith once said, "the loyalty of all men, could not have existed because I have not been a Catholic man, but a battler for social and political reform. These things would in their very nature reconcile the conflict, if any."

When Gov. Smith makes reply to his attacks, the public may hear from many of the innumerable letters from friends of religious tolerance—Protestants, Jews and Catholics—that have flooded into his office here ever since the issue was raised. That day he will speak with deep feeling and emotion, born of something that is closest within his heart.

He may read the letter received from a Gold Star mother, urging him to fight to the last ditch as a matter of sacred duty to the nation to prevent America from becoming the prey of bigots who would raise a warning sign that no Catholic mother giving birth to a son could expect him to share the common opportunity to aspire to the nation's highest honor."

One thing is certain, say those who know Gov. Smith best—he will never retreat under this attack nor surrender because of assaults made on his religion.

"I believe," Smith has said, "in the common brotherhood of man under the common Fatherhood of God. . . . I believe in the worship of God according to the faith and practice of the Roman Catholic church."

Though his name was mentioned at San Francisco in 1920 and roundly cheered, Gov. Smith first became prominent as a presidential possibility at Madison Square Garden in 1924.

The memory of that bitter and tumultuous session is too clear to need much description here. It ran through four weeks, through 103 ballots as forces under the leadership of McAdoo and Smith grappled in a historic deadlock which was finally broken by the nomination of John W. Davis. One of the bitterest political fights in history was staged over the effort to have the party platform condemn the Ku Klux Klan by name, which failed.

The northern wing of the Democratic party, strongly pro-Catholic, and the pro-klan southern Democrats locked in a struggle that brought political disaster at the polls in November.

Gov. Smith has never denied that in the old days in New York's East Side he enjoyed perching his foot on a brass rail and blowing the foam off a cold glass, but has not advertised this fact since prohibition became a national issue.

The Anti-Saloon league labels him as a "wet," but another description might be that he is "an advocate of state's rights." He does not advocate repeal of the eighteenth amendment, but he does favor modification of the Volsted act to allow states to fix their own alcoholic limits. He says he does not favor the return of the old fashioned saloon, but he believes it would be easier to enforce prohibition against hard liquors if beer were allowed—in which Gen. Lincoln C. Andrews, former government prohibition czar, has concurred.

But as long as the law remains, Gov. Smith says, it is "a sacred duty" to enforce it.

On national and international issues—farm relief, foreign relations, etc.—Gov. Smith is silent and, according to some of those who claim to know best, apparently a little lazy. He has declared that he never tried to be elected governor on some political issue that did not affect the state directly, and asserted that he was devoting his whole attention to state affairs.

"As a state," Gov. Smith once said, jokingly, "we haven't any foreign relations—except those who come to visit us."

But times change. Recently, it is rumored, Gov. Smith has had experts compiling data and information for him on a number of national and international subjects. After he has studied, sifted and analyzed these he may announce his views on a number of matters.

Such is the latest chapter in the making of the new Al Smith," the former East Side newsboy, fish market clerk, ward boss and Tammany politician who has lifted himself by his own boot straps to a position where he is now a formidable candidate for the presidency.

Opportunity has been kind to Al Smith throughout life, but the secret of his success is that his ability has kept pace with his opportunities.

I asked Gov. Smith if he thought an ambitious boy of today has as much chance to rise to fame by his own efforts as the boy of his day.

"Not an equal chance to succeed in life, but a very much better chance," Gov. Smith said. "The boy of today has far more advantages than the boy of 50 years ago. He sees men flying in the air, he enjoys the advantages of the radio and his opportunities for education are immeasurably greater."

And there seemed to be something really wistful in the tone in which he uttered that word "education."

TOMORROW: Vice President Dawes.

Major Hoople Discusses The Rights Of Man, Religion And Co-Operation In Farming With Potency And Gusto

Philosopher Says We Fool Ourselves By Not Getting What We Want Because We Doubt We Want It

BY MAJOR HOOPLE McCORKLE
Avalanche-Journal Philosopher

Every since Jehovah delivered the Children of Israel out of bondage and gave them a country of their own people have been looking for something for nothing. Most of the time they never realize their dreams, but that doesn't keep them from wanting.

The trouble is this: Most anything that comes easy leaves us in the same manner, whereas if we work and labor for something it is so valuable to us we protect and save it. Gifts that cost nothing more than an occasional "thank you" are seldom appreciated as they should be. The Children of Israel didn't appreciate the promised land as they should ha e else they would have kept God's commandments, stayed on the job and improved their lands.

Just the Same Now

We have the same trouble today. We are looking for a gift, and if we are lucky enough to get it we are generally successful in "poofing it off."

Probably the greatest gift to mankind was that given by Christ—he gave salvation—it is free to us, though He bought it for us with His blood on Calvary. Seems as though we would accept such a gift, but many do not, and half of those who have accepted it think less of it than they do a card game or a "short of corn." Salvation is something we want about the time we are called upon to cross the icy waters of death, but as long as we are "hitting on six", having a good time and enjoying the frivolties of life, salvation is a matter of secondary importance.

But we are not here to preach—merely to write a few lines on free gifts.

Co-operation Is Urged

Farmers are suffering simply because they are not willing to accept the free gift of "co-operation". They figure it is too good to be true, but they are wrong. One man may sell a cow for ten dollars—that is all the buyer offers. But if every man who produces cows will join hands and ask $60 they will get it, and it is a poor nut who thinks they won't.

Lubbock county farmers have an opportunity to join a poultry marketing association, and you would think they would be running over themselves and knocking down their neighbor trying to get on the dotted line, but they are not. In fact they shun it with as much precision as a burned child shuns the fire. They are as "skeered" of a contract or marketing agreement as the devil is holy water, and if you show them a contract and pencil they take St. Vitus' dance in both hands and throw a conniption fit that is violent enough to shake boulders from the Rocky Mountains. They tell you they want a good price for their products and when you tell them such may be had they "calculate as how you are lying."

Oratory will not move them. Love is "smitten" in the face, and the gift—a gift that means financial independence to many is turned aside, rejected, damned and doomed, and all because people do not want gifts—they just think they do.

They Are Adamant

During the past week it has been our pleasure to take part in a number of "pep meetings" and an effort has been made to perfect an organization similar to the one mentioned above. It is as free as water, but if you think Lubbock county farmers are getting on the dotted line you have another think coming. They admit that it is good. They say they believe in it. They tell you that they are not breaking even on their poultry products and feel sure that co-operation will help. Yet, when it comes to arming themselves with this guarantee they refuse. We know why, but we are not going to tell you here. If you want to know ask us when we are out in a pasture where there is plenty of room to make a successful getaway.

Most people have a desire to own a farm, but they want to buy it. If they are lucky enough to fall heir to one the chances are they will lose it before snow flies again. Uncle Sam offered a lot of soldier boys some land, but the boys didn't think much of it. It came too easy. Some of the land, we admit, was rather bum, and Uncle Sam should be ashamed of himself for even trying to give it away, especially to his fighters, but lots of it is good and the boys let it go by default simply because they thought more of bright lights than they did bounteous crops. But that's their business. If a fellow would rather grub stumps than to preside over a banking institution—let him grub, for after all it is just a matter of taste, and as long as he had "grubs on the brain" he couldn't succeed as a banker.

Hard to Quit Growling

The trouble with most of us is this: We just think we want something for nothing. We do not. In fact we are not very particular about getting our rights. If we did we wouldn't have anything to fuss about and a good argument is more to be chosen than a full stomach. We can sell eggs for 9 cents a dozen or we can sell them for 30 cents, but if we get the latter price we must of necessity quit growling, and that is hard to do. So the chances are we will take the 9 cents and make up the deficit in grunts, groans and growls, while unscrupulous buyers will grow wealthy while handling our product.

We sometimes think old Diaz was right—he took a club and made the boys fall in line, but in America we give every man a club and allow him to do his darndest. As a rule he sputters about for a while, wields his club a few times and then settles down to one long drawn out argument. He isn't satisfied with what he has, but wouldn't be satisfied if he owned the world.

Across The Atlantic In Nine Hops

Climaxing years of experiment, E. R. Armstrong (a bove), consulting engineer for the du Pont company, has announced that construction of the first of a string of eight floating airdromes across the Atlantic will begin soon. He says the plan would offer 36-hour service to Europe. Spaced 400 miles apart, the airdromes would have a landing surface of 300 by 1,200 feet, hotels, supply houses and radio station. To dodge the waves, they would tower 100 feet above the surface on skeleton steel framework. They would be supported by bouyant tanks placed at a sufficient depth to insure still water. Above is the Langley, the first airdrome planned, and (inset) the type of its foundation.
