Inflation hits annual rate of 7.2 per cent

WASHINGTON (AP) — The largest increase in food costs in 10 months helped push consumer prices up six-tenths of a per cent during May, the biggest monthly jump since last November, the government said today.

The Labor Department said the May figures mean that inflation now is running at an annual rate of 7.2 per cent. The May performance compared with a consumer price increase of four-tenths of a per cent in April.

The 7.2 per cent inflation rate is higher than the 6 per cent rate which administration economists consider to be the underlying inflation rate in the economy. But the effect was to compensate for lower-than normal increases in earlier months.

Despite the faster pace of inflation, however, workers managed to improve the amount of their disposal incomes. The Labor Department said real spendable earnings climbed by 1.2 per cent in May after decreasing for two consecutive months.

Spendable earnings for May stood seven-tenths of a per cent ahead of a year ago.

Consumer prices in May were 6.2 per cent more than a year ago.

Over-all food prices were up one per cent in May, the sharpest advance since the 1.8 per cent increase last July. Food price declines in the first three months of this year had been responsible for holding over-all consumer prices below an annual increase of three per cent.

For the month, the consumer price index stood at 169.2. That means that a sampling of goods which cost $100 in 1967 cost $169.20 last month.

Beef prices, which had declined for four consecutive months, shot up 5.2 per cent in May. Prices of pork and poultry nearly tripled the rate of their April increases.

Cereal and bakery prices rose seven-tenths of a per cent, the first increase in four months.

Coffee prices moved up 4.8 per cent to 35 per cent above where they were a year ago.

The increases overcame declines in prices for both fresh and processed fruits and vegetables.

But food wasn't the only area where inflation picked up.

While the cost of services increased by the same four-tenths of a per cent logged in April, commodities other than food went up six-tenths of a per cent in May compared to threetenths of 1 per cent in April.

The average price of a gallon of gasoline moved up a penny nationally, to 58 cents for leaded regular gasoline. That compared to 55 cents a gallon a year ago.

Clothing prices, which had been rising about two-tenths of a per cent a month, jumped five-tenths of a per cent in May. Prices of fuel oil, houses, and new cars also went up faster.

Gas and electricity rates rose by 1.1 per cent in May after a two-tenths of a per cent increase in April.

Lebanese civil war rages on

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Libyan and Syrian peacekeeping troops brought hostilities between Syrian forces and Palestinian guerrillas to a standstill today, but Lebanon's Moslem-Christian civil war raged on.

Spokesmen for the warring Moslem and Christian Lebanese forces reported artillery duels and machine-gun clashes in Beirut and on other fronts. Security officials said 47 persons were killed and 78 were wounded during the night.

However, spokesmen for the Palestinian guerrillas and for the Syrian forces who invaded Lebanon on June 1 said their battlefronts had calmed down since the arrival Monday of the 1,000-man vanguard of the pan-Arab peacekeeping force the Arab League is raising.

Taking advantage of this calm along the route to Syria, the British Embassy sent an evacuation convoy of 33 cars and six buses to Damascus. Guarded by troops of Yasir Arafat's Palestine Liberation Army and then by Syrian forces, it carried about 150 foreigners from 28 nations, including half a dozen Americans.

About 500 of the peacekeeping troops took up positions at Beirut's international airport, where the Syrians and Arafat's guerrillas fought some of their heaviest battles. Syrian army units controlling the airport were scheduled to pull out within 12 hours, and the airport was to be reopened for the landing of 5,000 peace troops from Saudi Arabia, Sudan, Libya, Algeria and Syria. The Palestine Liberation Army will also contribute a contingent.

The airport will be reopened to civilian traffic after the troop lift is over and Egyptian Gen. Mohammed Hassan Ghoneim arrives to take command of the peace force, officials reported. Ghoneim is the head of the Arab League's permanent military committee.

Syria has announced it will pull its estimated 12,500 troops and 450 tanks back to eastern and northern Lebanon when the Arab force is assembled in Lebanon. Leftist and guerrilla sources said the process is expected to take a week.

Lebanese Christian sources said Syrian President Hafez Assad had assured Lebanon's Christian President Suleiman Franjieh and President-elect Elias Sarkis that the Arab peace force would evict the Palestinian guerrillas and their leftist Lebanese Moslem allies from a string of mountain villages overlooking the Christian enclave north of Beirut.

The sources said Assad also

Ford names temporary new envoy

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — President Ford announced here today that Deputy Assistant Secretary of State Talcott Seelye will temporarily take charge of the U.S. Embassy in Lebanon following the murder of Ambassador Francis E. Meloy.

Ford designated Seelye as his special representative and said the former ambassador to Tunisia would take charge of the embassy in Beirut on a temporary basis.

The White House press office issued a statement that said:

"In view of the present situation in Lebanon, the President and Secretary (of State Henry A. Kissinger) consider it essential to have as their representative a senior man with long experience."

Haldeman told Nixon not to destroy tapes

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The deadly weapon that finally destroyed President Nixon and his men was the taping system that he himself had ordered installed in the White House.

H. R. Haldeman, Nixon's Chief of Staff for over four years, was the only senior staff member who knew that the system existed and in this third part of his exclusive five-part series, he takes us inside the entire tape issue.)

By H. R. HALDEMAN
as told to Joseph Scott
Copyright, 1976, by the Author

"Don't destroy those tapes," I said during a lengthy telephone conversation with Richard Nixon on Sept. 11, 1974, during a period when the former President was recuperating from a phlebitic left leg at Sunnylands, the lush desert estate of then Ambassador Walter Annenberg just south of Palm Springs, Calif.

It was the first time I had spoken with the former President since his resignation and return to La Casa Pacifica at San Clemente the previous month. Despite the pain in his leg, and his disappointment at not being able to play golf, Nixon's spirit, under the circumstances, seemed fairly good.

Our conversation occurred after his pardon by President Ford but before their agreement regarding the Presidential tapes and materials was overridden by Congress. That understanding, in operation at the time we talked, provided that Nixon had the right to destroy the tapes after five years had passed.

At one point early in April of 1973, the President said to me, "Maybe we should destroy all the tapes, excluding only those covering national security matters."

I argued against it on the basis that the tapes would give the President accurate knowledge of what was actually said. And, thus, absolute assurance of no wrong-doing, and a stronger basis to combat wild accusations.

Nixon's concern was based on a realization (which I did not have) of the distorted impression that would arise from certain tapes, especially when isolated from the overall collection, if they should ever become public.

The President did not instruct me to destroy any tapes, or to remove the taping system. And I did not do so.

When the existence of the tapes became public knowledge after I had left the White House, the question again arose in the Oval Office as to the advisability of destroying them. The general thesis was that the disclosure was bound to embarrass many public people, in this country and abroad, who had been secretly recorded.

I did not share this destruction viewpoint, although I recognized and respected Nixon's arguments for confidentiality of presidential conversations.

I strongly urged Nixon during this telephone call not to destroy the tapes. Most of the worst of them had already been made public. The remainder—about 99 per cent—which were still not public would, overall, prove highly beneficial. Naturally, there would be many more expletives, and some embarrassing talk. But the world, I told Nixon that day, had already heard Nixon at his worst.

There was at least fifty times as much tape in those White House files which showed the good Nixon—strong, decisive, considerate, compassionate. The world, I felt, should hear that part, too. He seemed interested in this viewpoint—but gave no indication as to his own thinking on it.

The whole tapes subject, of course, has become a central point of focus for analysts of the Nixon presidential era. As his White House Chief of Staff for over four years, I was the only senior staff member who even knew

Democrat chiefs okay House cleaning

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic leaders today approved regular public accounting of the duties of every employe of the House of Representatives following allegations that the former Administration Committee chairman kept a woman on its payroll for sex.

The Democratic Steering and Policy Committee, made up of the House party leadership, also nominated a new chairman for the panel and approved stripping it of much of its independence, including its power over congressional staff and travel allowances.

The leadership nominated Rep. Frank Thompson of New Jersey, the Administration Committee's second-ranking Democrat, to replace Rep. Wayne Hays, D-Ohio, as its chairman. Hays was accused of putting a woman on the committee payroll to be his mistress.

Thompson, speaking to reporters about the actions approved by the steering committee, gave no sign of opposing them.

The actions were proposed by a task force of three Democrats headed by Rep. David Obey, D-Wis. The moves will be considered by all House Democrats at a caucus Wednesday and some are expected to be put before the full House for approval next week.

"They will help protect the public from misuse of government funds and individual members of Congress from unjust innuendo," said Obey, chairman of the task force created by Speaker Carl Albert after the Hays scandal broke.

The Steering and Policy Committee also approved a recommendation from the task force requiring the speaker to appoint all Democratic members of the Administration Committee. The purpose would be to make the speaker responsible for their conduct.

A direct line of responsibility to the speaker would remove much of the panel's independence.

Sources said Chairman Phillip Burton of the Democratic Caucus opposed such a move. The California congressman contended it would make the speaker a "czar" over House allowances, the sources said. But they said the proposal was approved 14 to 7.

The other recommendations, including a proposal to create a special commission to study all House funds and accounting and recommend further changes, were understood to have been approved by voice vote.

Hays formally resigned as chairman of the Administration Committee on Monday. He is on his Ohio farm recovering from an overdose of sleeping pills. The congressman has not said whether the overdose was accidental or a suicide attempt.

Speaker Carl Albert appointed the Obey task force to devise ways of improving House payroll and accounting practices after allegations by Elizabeth Ray that Hays put her on his committee payroll at $14,000 a year to furnish him with sex.

Hays, 65, concedes having had a "personal relationship" with Miss Ray, 33, but he insists she did committee work for her salary.

Albert said he created the task force because of the allegation against Hays and because of allegations of other House funding abuses, including misuse of travel money by some congressmen.

Public barred from zoning talks

By DEBBIE PIERCE

The Midland Planning and Zoning Commission Monday went into executive session to discuss litigation, but wound up meeting with a Midland oil operator on the proposed purchase of a Midland club.

Commissioner Gordon Marcum II suggested the closed session, and the group met with Stan Beard. Beard had requested the meeting to determine the commission's feeling on whether a zone change would be necessary if he bought the Elks Lodge at Cuthbert and A streets to convert it into a private health club.

City Attorney Joe Nuessle had said the area would need a zone change, but Beard claimed the health club would be a private establishment like the lodge and should not need the change. No action was taken on the issue.

Nuessle said today the commission needs briefing as to the requirements of the open meetings law. He said he did not know if Monday's executive session was illegal or not, but noted that an executive session, by law, must be included on an agenda, and the main items which can be discussed involve personnel, land acquisition, pending litigation or security.

In supplementary business, Mrs. Van Howbert was elected permanent chairman of the commission, and Marcum was named vice-chairman.

Commissioners then agreed to recommend to the city council a request by Midland Savings and Loan Association for a zone change from single-family residential district to planned district in an area bounded by Midkiff Road, Whitney Drive, Haynes Drive and Clarence Avenue.

Jerry Cox, representing Midland Savings, told the commission the planned district would be in three of the existence of the controversial project.

Haldeman claims he strongly urged Nixon to keep tapes

From the start of the Nixon taping project I fully believed, without a trace of doubt, as did the President, that the existence of the taping system would never be revealed, and that only Nixon, and perhaps one or two key staff people, would ever use the tapes—and then only for reference.

I felt that this was the way it should be. The morality of the tapes was totally destroyed if the tapes— or even the fact of their existence—became known. The only moral justification for the system was based on the President's sole personal use and reference.

Instead, I was in favor of full release of the requested tapes, in the belief that they would absolve me of any wrongdoing. Even though there were some potentially damaging interpretations that could be made of some tapes I felt that, taken as a whole, they would clear me, and Richard Nixon, because the tapes couldn't lie.

In retrospect I know I was wrong. Little did I realize how the tapes really could lie by creating a presumption of infallibility as to their being the ultimate source of truth.

The initial and most damaging thing the taped excerpts of Watergate conversations did was to leave an indelible, grotesque, and false impression on millions of Americans about Richard Nixon and his presidency. (By definition and court order, the Watergate tapes that have been made public only cover conversations dealing with Watergate criminal activity as requested by the special prosecutor—a total of perhaps 60 hours of conversation— out of a total of well over 6,000 hours that the White House system recorded during its existence.)

Another way in which the Watergate tapes were damaging was that they frequently created an impression in the public's mind of what a speaker was actually thinking, which, in point of fact, was the opposite from the truth. Thus, a conversation exploring theories and dealing in speculation is made to seem like a sinister planning session. This view was amplified by pre-conceived theories on the part of both prosecutors and some media commentators.

There are a number of other aspects of the whole taping issue which call for personal comment and clarification.

Some of the points made in a deposition by Nixon last fall are at total variance with my own recollections on the tape installation issue. I do not remember, for example, any conversation with Don Kendall, as the deposition states, in which Nixon's close personal friend is said to have communicated, through me, an urgent recommendation from former President Lyndon Johnson that Nixon install a taping system to assist in writing his memoirs.

I'm not surprised that Johnson would make such a suggestion, being aware of the extensive White House taping capability that existed during his administration (and which, ironically, Nixon ordered removed as soon as he took office). Johnson had a virtual fetish about saving things, telling Nixon that he ought to preserve every scrap of paper for his own Presidential library some day. "Save even your old shoes and neckties," Johnson told Nixon once within my hearing. "They're worth money."

But, I believe the installation of Nixon's own taping system was motivated by reasons other than urgings by Johnson, or any consideration President Nixon might have had in writing his memoirs. Nixon's concerns were more in the area of maintaining an accurate historical record—especially in areas of national security and foreign policy. He wanted to have an irrefutable reference point in case of any future misunderstanding as to what was said by him or others—foreign leaders, outside visitors or members of his own staff.

Nixon's deposition last fall also said that the former President had always intended to make the tapes available to scholars through a Presidential library. It was my clear understanding, however, that the tapes were to be used solely for Nixon's personal reference, or to be used at his direction and in his behalf. But never to be available to "outsiders."

Thus, despite my closeness to the entire tapes subject from the beginnning, I apparently was not fully aware of what their purpose and ultimate disposition was to be in the final years.

Speculation that the former President wanted only important conversations recorded is 100 per cent wrong. There is absoletely no question in my mind, regardless of whispers to the contrary, that Nixon knew clearly and fully that all conversations were recorded in those areas covered by the system.

Nixon specifically rejected the possibility of a so-called "discriminate system" which would have permitted and required him or someone else to select only certain meetings for recording. Since the thought of the tapes coming into anyone else's hands, or being made public, did not even arise as a remote posaibility, it was felt that it would be better to err in the direction of recording too much instead of too little.

There is one episode which illustrates vividly the anguish that was beginning to well up among close Nixon confidants as the tapes controversy burned out of control in the political arena.

During the summer of 1973, after I had resigned from the White House staff and returned to Los Angeles, former Treasury Secretary John Connally telephoned me from Texas to discuss his solution to the problem.

Connally, who by then knew of my close involvement with the tape system from its start, strongly urged me, should the opportunity arise, to convey his recommendation to the President on the subject.

"There is only one course for the President to take. He's got to destroy the tapes," said Connally in his firm, decisive way. "What he should do is take all those tapes and have them piled in the center of the lawn in the Rose Garden, carefully guarded, of course. Then the President should soak them with gasoline, call the Press Corps out and throw a match to the pile, while explaining the validity of his act."

As it happened, I didn't have any communication with the President during this time so I didn't pass the recommendation along to him. I don't know whether Connally conveyed the idea to Nixon directly himself. All I know is that people ask me all the time why the tapes weren't burned in the first place.

It's a haunting question.

Temperature hits 100; summer's here for sure

Summer came in like a red-hot firecracker Monday, with the high reaching 100 degrees for the first time this year

Andrews, Lamesa, Big Lake and Odessa reported light showers Monday, but Crane, Rankin and Stanton reported no rain at all. Parts of Midland received a heavy rain, just after midnight, following a lightning display in the northern skies.

Partly cloudy skies and warm weather with slight breezes were reported this morning by all area towns, except for cool weath er in Big Lake.

Cloudy to skies partly cloudy skies with a 30 per cent chance of precipitation tonight and a 20 per cent chance Wednesday are predicted by the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Air Terminal.

Winds from the south and southeast at 15 to 25 miles per hour also are expected.

The low for tonight is expected to be in the low 70s and the high today and Wednesday near 100 degrees.

Monday's high was 100 degrees and Tuesday's low was 73 degrees.

Often heavy thunderstorms broke out in far West Texas and surged eastward over a broad stretch of the state today.

While the turbulence was violent enough to prompt severe storm warnings in some localities, there was no report of injuries or serious damage.

Showers and thunderstorms broke out around Ozona and Eden in the west and spread eastward past Abilene and Lubbock. There also were occasional showers in the Panhandle between Canadian and Canyon.

Glasscock sheriff testifies

SAN ANGELO — A seven-woman, five-man jury heard four hours of testimony Monday from a twice-convicted felon and the sheriff of Glasscock County in the second murder trail of Witmer Jean Ballard.

Ballard is charged with murder in connectin with the 1970 shotgun slaying of Garden City rancher Steve Currie. Ballard was found guilty of murder in 1972 and sentenced to life in prison by a jury in Alpine. The conviction was reversed by the Court of Criminal Appeals and moved here on a change of venue.

The first witness of the seven sworn in by the prosecution was Harold Wilson, now of Hobbs, N.M. Wilson testified to playing a role in planning the robbery attempt which resulted in Currie's death.

Glasscock County Sheriff Royce Pruitt, the first person called to the Currie ranch after the alleged murder, detailed the appearance of the victim and outlined his extensive search of the house and surrounding area.

Pruitt said he found a .12 gauge pump shotgun, sawed off at both ends, in a pickup owned by Currie which was parked outside the house.

Over the next several months, he found other pieces of evidence.

repeated that his army will remain in northern and eastern Lebanon until the Lebanese end their civil war at a roundtable peace conference.

Meanwhile, the U.S. Navy landing ship Spiegel Grove arrived in Greece this morning with the 110 Americans and 157 other foreigners it evacuated from Beirut Sunday. A crowd of friends, relatives and consular officials greeted them at Piraeus, the port of Athens.

In Washington, the State Department said a second evacuation may be undertaken if the situation warrants. More than 1,300 other Americans, most of them dual citizens of Lebanon and the United States or persons married to Lebanese, refused to leave last weekend despite the murder of U.S. Ambassador Frances E. Meloy Jr. and an American member of his staff.

Vandals destroy school equipment

Vandals destroyed $560 worth of irrigation equipment at the football field of Edison Freshman High School, 100 E. Gist St., sometime Sunday night or early Monday morning.

R. L. Williams, principal of the school, told police 18 sections of 30-foot irrigation pipe valued at $540, a 20-foot joint of two inch pipe valued at $20, and grass on the football field with an undetermined value were destroyed when a vehicle drove over them.

One of the school's employes, James Walker of 1521 S. Weatherford St., told police he saw a white car driving on the grass.

Police do not have a suspect.

CREDIT CARDS TAKEN

Burglars broke into the reisdence of Wesly Perry Jr., 810 W. Storey St., Wednesday and took a calculator valued at $600, a wrist watch valued at $250 and several credit cards.

Perry told police he lives in a pool house at the rear of his parents' residence and his parents were out of town.

The family housekeeper had allowed two teen-agers, who said they were relatives, to swim in the pool, Perry said.

When Perry came home from work about 6:30 p.m., he said he discovered the items missing.

TELEVISION, BEER TAKEN

A television set valued at $169 and an undetermined amount of beer was reported missing from Mario's Spanish Inn, 3411 Thomason Drive, about 10 p.m. Monday night.

S. G. Carrascoo, manager of the restaurant, told police he went to the restaurant about 1 p.m. Sunday to check electrical motors and nothing was missing.

However, when he returned on Monday morning, he noticed the air-conditioner on the north side of the building had been moved to allow entry and the television and beer had been taken, police said.

TWO TIRES, TOOLS MISSING.

R. D. Hawkins of 4611 Wilshire St. told police two tires valued at $125 and assorted tools and a toolbox valued at $500 were taken from his pickup sometime Sunday night or Monday morning.

Hawkins told police the vehicle was parked on the street and the items were stored in the back, which had a camper shell.

There was no sign of forced entry, but the pickup was smeared with fingernail polish and lipstick, according to police reports.

phases, one of which would be single-family houses of 2,000 minimum square feet. Also included in the planned district would be 19 townhouse units and 16 patio homes, Cox said.

Commissioners also approved and will recommend to the city council:

— A preliminary plat of the Emerson Heights Subdivision;

— A request to abandon one block of Cessna Drive to replace it with a 20 foot paved alley;

— A request by Paul Hyde for a zone change from single-family residence to duplexes in the 4400 block of Thomason Drive.

AT WIT'S END

Passenger too persistent

By ERMA BOMBECK

I have a child who should be listed in the yellow pages under "auto parts." The motor in my car never turns over but that he is belted into the front seat with a smile on his face saying, "Where are we going?"

The truth is, he doesn't even care. He'll go to a drive-in library, a nightdepository slot at the bank, a tire center, an air hose at the gas station or a self-service Then I started the motor, shoved it into first and as the ice machine.

The other afternoon, I coasted the car quietly down the driveway until I thought I was out of hearing distance. Then I started the motor, shoved it into first and as the kids say, "laid a patch." Out of the back seat came a voice, "Hey, Mom, where are we going?"

"How did you know I was going anywhere?"

"I saw you in the garage looking for your car keys," he said. "Where are we going?"

"We are going to follow a garbage truck from Ohio to Tampa. You want out?"

"No. How come you're so sore? Is it because when I'm in the car you can't sing duets on the radio with Glen Campbell?"

"No."

"Is it because I forgot my shoes again?"

"No. Frankly, I am worried about your spending so much time in a car. You're getting a station wagon pallor. Not to mention the fact that you never get any exercise. You ride in the car to school and back, to ball practice, to the grocery, to the dentist, to church, to the movies, to the barber shop, to your friends' houses to play. It's about time you started using your feet."

WOMEN'S NEWS

"My what?"

"Your feet. They're what you'd have shoes on if you didn't blast out of the house in such a hurry to get into the car."

"I know what feet are," he said. "It's just they don't seem as much fun as riding in a car. Besides, if they're such a big deal how come Dad drives the car to his golf cart? And sits down to cut the grass? And . . ."

"Stop criticizing your father and hop out and get the mail out of the box."

He opened his mouth to say something, but looked at me and changed his mind. It's a long walk back up the driveway.

Voting beats silent protest

By JANET LOWE
Copley News Service

My friend Beverly was expressing her disgust with politics, and especially the trauma-upon-trauma episodes of the last few years.

"In protest, I'm not going to vote," she insisted.

Eleanor Roosevelt would have shuddered at that thought. She often expressed dismay that women hadn't taken the voting process seriously, even after a long and difficult battle to win suffrage. "Women have used this suffrage, as far as I can tell, approximately as much as men have," she said.

Neither have used it well.

In the United States, only 61 per cent of the voters turned out in the presidential election of 1968; in the "off year" national elections of 1970, the turnout was only 45 per cent. By comparison, 92 per cent of the voters in Italy visit the polls; over 80 per cent of those eligible to vote in Sweden, Denmark, West Germany and Norway did so. These countries have been threatened by tyranny more recently than we have, and perhaps they value their freedom more.

After I talked more with Beverly, it became apparent that she hesitated to vote for several other reasons. First of all, she wasn't sure that her vote would make much difference, either way. But she is wrong about that.

This year, more than ever, women have the opportunity to influence this nation.

Over 70 million American women are of voting age — that's nearly seven million more than the number of men of voting age. Women make up 53 per cent of the nation's registered voters. That percentage would increase if more women registered. Though it's too late to sign up for the primaries, it isn't too late for the November general election.

Not only does my friend's vote count as a woman, it also counts as an individual. In 1884, James G. Blaine lost to Grover Cleveland, but less than one additional vote per precinct in one state would have put Blaine's name in history books. If he had carried New York, he would have won the election.

The Bureau of National Affairs in Washington, D.C., tells us that in 1948, President Truman won Ohio by 7,107 votes and California by 17,865.

Q. What flower is used in the treatment of heart disease?

A. Foxglove is the name for a group of plants belonging to the figwort family. The foxglove gets its name from its flowers, that are shaped somewhat like fingers. The drug called "digitalis" is made from the dried leaves of the common foxglove, and physicians often use the drug in treating heart dusease.;

DEAR ABBY

Mother advises truth best policy regarding child's real parents

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I just read the letter from the mother who didn't think her 6-year-old son was old enough to be told about his real father. Well, please tell her not to wait until her son is 18 and laying flat on his back in a hospital. That's what happend to my Eddy.

When he was an infant, his father ran off and left us. Two years later I married a wonderful man who adopted Eddy, and I changed his name to ours.

All this time I never heard from my first husband. Well, when Eddy was 18 he had a car accident and was confined to the hospital with back and head injuries. Out of the blue, his real father came to the hospital one night, claiming to be a minister and told him that he was his real father. It almost put the kid in shock.

I ended up telling him the truth, but it was one of the hardest things I ever had to do. Incidentally, his real father came to the hospital to see him again. But Eddy said, "Where were you when my mother and I needed you? I have a wonderful father now, and I don't need YOU, so please leave."

Abby, please tell parents not to hold back the truth, as I did. It would have been better had I told my son when he was a small boy and let him grow up with the idea.—ALSO A MOTHER

Communists record strong Italian gains

ROME (AP) — The Communists made strong gains in the Italian parliamentary elections but failed to overtake the Christian Democrats, who again missed a majority in the Chamber of Deputies by a sizable margin.

This set the stage today for renewed political uncertainty and another long crisis over the formation of a new Christian Democratic government. It also meant that action to ease Italy's grave economic crisis is a long way off.

Despite the prospect of continuing political and economic instability, the stock market and the lira rallied because of the Communists' failure to displace the Christian Democrats as the country's largest party.

Gains in early trading on the Milan stock exchange averaged 2.5 per cent while the lira rose from 854 to the dollar to 844-848. Then speculators took their gains, realization of the uncertain future overcame the initial enthusiasm, most blue chips closed below their Monday level, and the lira inched down to 848-850.

More than one out of three voters cast a Communist ballot in the elections Sunday and Monday for the new Chamber of Deputies, boosting the party from 27.2 per cent of the vote in 1972 to 34.4 per cent. The Vatican-backed Christian Democrats got 38.7 per cent, the same showing they made four years ago.

This gave the Christian Democrats the chance to form their 35th government since World War II. But to get the parliamentary majority necessary for effective government, they needed to rebuild their center-left coalition with the Socialists, Social Democrats and Republicans which collapsed in January. And the Socialists said during the election campaign that the coalition was a dead issue.

Communist party secretary Enrico Berlinguer, surveying a sea of clenched fists and red flags below the balcony of his Rome headquarters, said the election result was "a great leap forward."

"We will have to deal with the Christian Democrats, and they will finally realize that they have to deal with us," he declared.

However, the Christian Democrats campaigned on a pledge to keep the Communists out of the government. And Berlinguer ruled out "a head-on clash," saying: "The Communist party is not in a hurry to go into the government. It was not before. It is not now, even if it has obtained a big result."

There was no immediate comment on the election outcome from the U.S. government, which repeatedly warned that admission of the Communists to the government would endanger relations between the Italian and American governments and Italy's role in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. But the failure of the Communists to lead the voting undoubtedly was a relief for President Ford and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

Final returns from the voting for the Chamber of Deputies gave the Christian Democrats 14.2 million votes, the Communists 12.6 million, the Socialists 3.5 million, the neo-Fascist Italian Social Movement (MSI) 2.2 million, the Democratic Socialists 1.2 million and the Republicans 1.1 million. Smaller parties and joint tickets divided the rest.

The Christian Democrats won 263 seats in the 630-seat chamber, a loss of three, and were 53 short of a majority. The Communists increased their standing from 179 seats to 227.

In the races for the Senate, the Christian Democrats got 12.2 million votes (38.9 per cent) and held on to the 135 seats they had. The Communists rolled up 10.6 million votes (33.8 per cent) and boosted their representation from 91 seats to 116. In 1972 the percentages were Christian Democrats 38.1 and Communists 27.6.

Roloff's freedom petition denied

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Evangelist Lester Roloff apparently will spend the last week of his 61st year in a Corpus Christi jail because "he agreed himself" into that situation.

The Texas Supreme Court rejected a plea by two of Roloff's lawyers Monday to free Roloff from jail on the first day of a five-day sentence for contempt of court.

Asst. Atty. Gen. Lynn Taylor told the justices in an informal session in their private conference room that Roloff belonged in jail because he had violated a 1973 court order.

Taylor said Roloff had agreed to the order, which authorized state welfare workers to inspect three child-care homes Roloff operates in south Texas.

On entering jail, Roloff told several hundred followers, including many youths from the homes, "If I never come out of this jail, you are worth it."

Roloff recently was held in contempt and ordered to pay a $1,750 fine because of his refusal to let the welfare workers visit his homes.

Houston lawyer Charles Lowry said Roloff had stipulated that he had refused seven times in 1974-75 to permit welfare workers to inspect his homes in Corpus Christi, Zapata and Port Isabel.

Lowry said the 1973 order was void, however, because it should not apply to persons connected with religious institutions, such as Roloff Evanglistic Enterprises.

In addition, Lowry said, the children and their parents were excluded from the 1973 court hearing even though they were "indispensable parties."

Also, Lowry argued, the welfare department had no authority to promulgate child-care rules, as only the legislature can do that. The department, he said, had violated the U.S. Constitution's prohibition against unreasonable search and seizure.

Even if the 1973 order was constitutional, Lowry said, Roloff should be exempt because the Christianity he teaches at the homes is a "way of life." Of 1,500 girls who have gone through the Rebekah Home in Corpus, 1,000 have "accepted Christ, and it has changed their lives."

Another Roloff lawyer, Hellmut Erwing, said the 1973 judgment could not order Roloff to admit welfare workers into his homes, because the state's petition had not asked for such authority.

Justice Jack Pope said, "It seems to me that Roloff is in the plight he's in because he agreed himself into a situation."

Sixth grain expert enters guilty plea

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — A sixth Baton Rouge port grain inspector has pleaded guilty to federal misdemeanor charges in what has become a multimillion-dollar grain export scandal.

Truman May of Port Allen, a retired inspector, entered a guilty plea in federal district court Monday to a charge of conspiracy to violate the grain standards act.

Judge E. Gordon West ordered a pre-sentence investigation for May.

Club ends playday contests

The West Texas Appaloosa Horse Club hosted its final playday of the Big Three Sunday, with a total of 777 entries.

Sportsmanship trophy winners were Teresa Glover, Tina Chapman, Larry Whisnant, Ronny Whisnant and Robert Williams.

Participants who won high point honors for all three playdays won saddle pads. They are Alice Hall, Nancy Hall, Mary Cloyd, Julia Eckerty, Susan Beman, Jerry Aly, Teresa Wood, Cindy Huff, Trina Brookshire, Karen Aly, Kim Moritz, Ronny Whisnant, Johnnie Moritz, Dawna Parrott, Lezlye Sherman and Teresa Glover.

Leadline contestants who entered all three playdays received saddle blankets. Winners were Campbell Williams, Shelly Bennington, Michael Eckerty and Cory Stratton.

Results of Sunday's playday are as follows:

LEADLINE CLASS

6 and under — Cory Stratton, Bobby Massingill, Shelly Bennington.

SHOWMANSHIP

9 and under — Alice Hall, Teresa Wood, Ben Winford.

10-13 — Joe Tom Greer, Nancy Hall, Whitney Winford.

Medical costs blamed

AUSTIN (AP) — Much of the blame for increasing Texas auto insurance rates can be placed on high hospital and doctor bills, Jerry Johns, president of Southwestern Insurance Information Service, says.

"In April the consumer price index reported the overall price of medical services increased at an annual rate of 14 per cent, led by physicians' fees up 14.2 per cent and hospital charges up 20.1 per cent," Johns said in a statement.

"The Texas insurance industry cannot continue to pay for skyrocketing medical costs without some form of rate increase to compensate," he said.

"The only hope is that those in the business of providing health care will exercise restraint in establishing the costs for their products and services," Johns said.

Couple feted at celebration

PLANO — Mr. and Mrs. L. L. (Lert) Stringer of this city and formerly of Midland, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary recently.

The couple's five children, seven of their grandchildren and 10 great-grandchildren attended, as well as Mrs. Stringer's brother and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. J. Lundie of Midland. Another brother and several other relatives were present.

They ask too much

The gap between the industrialized countries and the less developed world is said by the experts to be more than an economic one.

It was obvious at the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development at Nairobi that they also are far apart on ideas for reforming their trade and investment relations.

If the failures of the UNCTAD conference can be put in a nutshell, it is that the poorer countries are looking for simple solutions to problems made complex by the fact they deal with diverse nations and a variety of commodities.

Thus the Third World delegates proposed an ambitious stockpiling and price-indexing scheme to stabalize the market for the 10 major commodities they export, while the United States, Japan and Western Europe insist in a case by case approach, with sound argument that it is now working for three commodities — coffee, cocoa and tin.

The developing countries also want a broad commitment to cancel or defer debts which inflation and high energy prices are making it impossible for them to pay. Again, the response from the other side is to treat such problems on a country-by-country basis.

Even the advanced nations — the Europeans in particular — had trouble agreeing among themselves on a common approach to the economic problems of their less developed trading partners.

UNCTAD seemed to show that while it is convenient for the sake of rhetoric to divide the world into blocks of "rich" and "poor" nations, it is not so easy to lump them into such categories for trade relations between individual nations in a competitive marketplace.

'Name withheld'

The Reporter-Telegram received two excellent "Letters to the Editor" last week, but they were unsigned and therefore could not be published.

One of the letters was from a 15-year old youth who will be a sophomore at Lee High School the next school year. He or she asked some good questions which could and should be answered, but "Name Withheld" was the way the letter was signed.

The Reporter-Telegram on occasion uses "Name withheld upon request," but only if the letter bears a name and address and if the writer, when contacted, cites an acceptable reason for such request.

The other letter, signed "Irate Tax Payer," took the city government to task on two or three counts, which undoubtedly would have attracted loud "Amens" from a number of readers.

The Reporter-Telegram has been well pleased with the response of Midland and area residents to the "Letters to the Editor" column since it was launched as a regular Sunday feature. Readership also has been encouraging.

The editor is glad to have your letters, but, for obvious reasons, certain rules must be followed in accepting the letters for publication. All letters accepted must bear the name and address of the author.

So, please keep 'em coming!

Coffee clutch!

Alexander Pope believed that coffee "makes the politician wise."

In his book, Richelieu, G.P.R. James took things a step further by declaring that "the government of a nation is often decided over a cup of coffee ..."

Whether or not that is the case, millions of Americans can agree with Henry Herbert Knibbs that "after the coffee, things ain't so bad."

But things might be if the cost of the so-called brown elixir keeps on going up, as some predict it will.

A writer for Copley Newspapers says that the psychological impact could be so great that James could be proven right.

ART BUCHWALD

He never met Liz Ray and it disturbs him

Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON — I know it's hard to believe, but I met a high government official the other day who never met Elizabeth Ray. The reason it's hard is that according to Miss Ray's book, "The Washington Fringe Benefit," she met every person of importance within a 50-mile radius of the nation's capital. In fairness to Miss Ray she didn't claim she slept with everyone she met (though the Guinness Book of Records has suddenly shown a great interest in her), but she does insist she knew everyone from Eugene McCarthy to Henry Kissinger.

The high government official, who asked that his name not be mentioned because he had never met Miss Ray, didn't seem to have any logical reason to explain why their paths had never crossed.

"I'm not much of a party man," he said, "so maybe that's the reason she left me out of her book."

"But surely, sir," I said, "you could have been in a restaurant where she was dining. She said she met a lot of important people in restaurants."

"I've wracked my brain," he replied, "but I don't think I ever ran into her in a restaurant. If I had she surely would have remembered it."

"What about at the Washington Redskin games? In her book she claims she met almost everyone of importance at the Redskin games."

"I must admit that puzzled me because that would have been a place we could have met. I guess it was just chance that we didn't. My seats are behind the goal posts at the west end of the field and I understand she sat in a box on the five-yard line on the east end of the field. It's possible we could have waved to each other when the Redskins scored a touchdown. But if we did, I guess she forgot it."

"What about up on Capitol Hill in one of the orgy rooms she wrote about?"

"I never did hear about those rooms until Miss Ray started talking about them in the newspapers. I believe they were on the House side of the Capitol and I spent most of my time on the Senate side. I wish I had known about it in those days. It certainly would have been a nice place to wait while I was waiting to testify in front of a dull Senate committee."

"But didn't a congressman offer to introduce you to Miss Ray and recommend her as a dinner date?"

He said, biting his lip, "It's hard for you to believe this, but the answer is no. I don't understand why. I have a lot of power, I'm not bad looking and I like to have a good time as much as the next person. But neither Mr. Hays nor anyone else on the Hill had the courtesy to say to me, 'I'd like you to meet my secretary. She can type four words a minute."

"Sire, do you think the fact you weren't mentioned in Miss Ray's book could hurt your career?"

"Well, let's say it can't help it. That book is a 'Who's Who of Washington.' You're not anybody if Miss Ray didn't meet you. This town pays attention to things like that. I haven't had one call from a newspaperman or woman since my name was left out. I don't mind telling you it hurts."

"Perrrrhaps she disguised your name because you were one of the people in the book she had an affair with," I said, trying to cheer him up.

He shook his head sadly. "No, I read about every person she gave a phony name to, and none of them fitted me. I might as well learn to live with it. I never met Miss Ray and she never met me. I think the public will have to accept the fact and decide for themselves if they still want me to serve the people."

There were tears in his eyes.

"Everyone makes mistakes, sir," I said gently. "It's a rotten deal that you never met Miss Ray, but in a few months people will forget it."

"What a fool I was," he sobbed. "If I had known she was going to tell all, I could have had my Redskin seats changed to her end of the football field."

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

A real clean sweep in ethics

By JACK ANDERSON with LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON—The House Ethics Committee, which came equipped from the beginning with handy rugs suitable for sweeping scandals under, is searching frantically for larger rugs.

As an act of public penitence, the committee was formed eight years ago ostensibly to keep congressional corruption down to tolerable levels. But there was a general exchange of sly winks, as the word was passed that the committee would not depart too far from the hoary tradition of covering up major embarrassments.

Now Reps. Wayne Hays, D.-Ohio, and John Young, D.-Tex., whose sex exploits are under investigation, have huddled privately with committee members. The two embattled congressmen have indicated that they expect the committee to do its duty by them and to whitewash the charge.

Sources close to the investigation have told us that the committee is concentrating, indeed, on evidence that would tend to exonerate the accused congressmen. But the accumulation is such that the committee is in need of more accommodating rugs.

The official upholders of ethics have shown more enthusiasm, meanwhile, for hounding newscaster Daniel Schorr for pirating out to the public a classified report on intelligence fiascos.

A tean of 12 crack former FBI agents were hired to track down Schorr's source, a $150,000 effort that has kept the sleuths going around and around, coming out nowhere. They have conducted more than 125 intensive interviews, with negligible results.

They have produced reams of reports, which Chairman John Flynt, D.-Ga., bravely insists contain "some good information." But when we pinned him down, he admitted that the trail is "cold."

One of the congressmen who had possession of the controversial intelligence report, James Johnson, R.-Colo., told our associate Bob Owens that the investigators had interviewed him twice. The second time, they asked to look at his personal copy of the report.

Johnson gladly produced his black volumes and asked how the investigation was proceeding. The two investigators shrugged. He asked whether they had found Schorr's source. They laughed.

In desperation, the committee has now shifted its attention to other reporters who also had access to copies of the document. Apparently, the committee hopes this might lead to Schorr's elusive source.

ALBERT CONFIDENTIAL: Speaker Carl Albert's recent trip to the oil sheikhdom of Kuwait was planned down to the last detail, including what he should say to his host and when he could drink "a quick cup of tea."

The details were spelled out in an elaborate cable from the U.S. embassy in Kuwait to the U.S. embassy in Saudi Arabia, where the Speaker visited first. His host, the cable informed Albert, would be his Kuwaiti counterpart, Speaker Ghoneim — pronounced "Goo-Name," the cable added helpfully.

"He is a relaxed and friendly man who enjoys a good joke," advised the cable. "You can speak to him in the same way you would to an American. A good opening gambit might be to congratulate him on Kuwait's opening victory over archrival Iraq in the Gulf soccer championship."

The cable cautioned gravely that Albert should refer to "the Gulf" rather than the "Persian Gulf" — "a sensitive local issue," explained the cable.

"On arrival," continued the cable, "you will be escorted into the VIP lounge for a quick cup of tea. TV and press will be in attendance" — "unavoidable," added the cable distastefully.

It then proceeded to instruct the Speaker what to tell the press. "You will be asked to comment on who you are visiting (in) Kuwait. I would tell them frankly the purpose of your trip ... It probably would also be best to avoid direct reference to Iraq as a potential Kuwaiti adversary, although mention of the above soccer victory would be both appropriate and welcomed."

On the Democratic side, the only betting is over who will be Jimmy Carter's running mate. Jimmy the Greek gives Sen. Walter Mondale, D.-Minn., the best odds, with Sen. Frank Church, D.-Idaho, a close second. Here are the odds:

Mondale, 3-1; Church, 4-1; Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D.-Ill., 6-1; Sen. Edmund Muskie, D.-Me., 6-1; Sen. John Glenn, D.-Ohio, 8-1; Rep. Peter Rodino, D.-N.J., 10-1; Sen. Birch Bayh, D.-Ind., 10-1; Sen. Henry Jackson, D.-Wash., 10-1; Gov. Wendell Anderson, Minn., 15-1; Gov. Hugh Carey, N.Y., 15-1; Gov. Michael Dukakis, Mass., 25-1; Gov. Jerry Brown, Calif., 50-1; Rep. Mo Udall, D.-Ariz., 50-1; Leonard Woodcock, auto workers president, 50-1; John Gilligan, former Ohio governor, 100-1; Sen. Alan Cranston, D.-Calif., 100-1; Mayor Tom Bradley, Los Angeles, 100-1; Rep. Paul Sarbanes, D.-Md., 100-1; Mayor Pete Flaherty, Pittsburgh, 100-1; Rep. Barbara Jordan, D.-Tex., 100-1, and Sarge Shriver, 100-1.

NICK THIMMESCH

The fraud of congressional immunity goes on and on

WASHINGTON — Suddenly Congress is discovered to be populated with lawmakers who stoutly maintain the principle of fair play, but screw the opposition so bad that a Spanish Inquisitor would wince; cry against the business crowd's excesses, but graft as much federal money as they can for themselves, and denounce privilege while richly indulging in it.

Oh, Adam and Eve did not meet at the Watergate. Sin is long with us, and Congress now has a modest Watergate all its own. Last week, we are reminded that the constitutional privilege of congresional immunity is not only abused, but makes congressman and cop alike think that a federal lawmaker can't be put in the slammer in Washington.

The latest incident concerns Rep. Joe D. Waggoner Jr. (D-La.), who was arrested last winter on a charge of soliciting a prostitute. The Washington Star reports that Waggoner was cruising a neighborhood here where whores are plentiful and tried to make a deal with one of the saleswomen. It turned out she was a hot-looking policewoman, so Waggoner was taken to the station.

But the congressman was soon released because police figured he was covered by congressional immunity. This is an old story in Washington. "There have been hundreds of senators and congressmen let go, after being taken in on offenses that any other person would be locked up for," a veteran police reporter told me. "Hell, in this town a congressman can drive his car down the sidewalk, and the cops will only take him home."

Indeed, I remember how several seasons back Rep. Charles Chamberlain (R-Mich.) disobeyed a turn-signal, resisted the officer who stopped him and later claimed he didn't know that, after he drove off, the cop had been dragged to the street, an unfortunate happening requiring hospitalization for the officer.

Chamberlain was given a private hearing, with no press or public allowed, and afterwards a deputy police chief announced that "the government feels it is not in the best interest to bring any charges against Mr. Chamberlain."

The cops here will tell you that some lawmakers get into trouble time after time, just as some citizens back home are always getting messed up.

There was a California congressman who couldn't stay away from prostitutes, even after the night he got mugged with one in an alley. An Iowa congressman, reported drunk and sleeping in his car, didn't like the way he was roused, and flattened the cop with a series of punches which Muhammad Ali would respect. And other gentlemen of The Hill perform drunken driving which would put other plain citizens in jail.

The lawmakers aren't arrested or prosecuted because of Article I, Section 6 of the Constitution, which reads, in part, that senators and congressmen "shall in all cases, except treason, felony and breach of the peace, be privileged from arrest during their attendance at the sessions of their respective houses and in going to and returning from same."

Back in 1789, when that was written, the idea was never to let an executive, such as the hated King of England, be in position, through the constabulary, to persecute his legislative opposition. There is some merit to the notion, but it has been broadened to allow lawmakers in Washington to get away with about everything but murder here.

Washington Police Chief Maurice J. Cullinane knows that congressional immunity, as it is practiced, is unfair, but he can't say much against it. Congress pays him and his men and is presently considering a request for an extra $1 million for special Bicentennial police overtime costs.

So Cullinane says congressional immunity "served us well for over 100 years," though adding that its inconsistencies should be reconciled.

Meanwhile, some of the holy young men of Congress (those elected in 1974 when all a candidate needed was a halo and the Democratic nomination to get elected) are crying for reform. These freshmen are sending their cries, in written form, to whom? Why to Speaker Carl Albert, a man who has labored long for the republic.

It is doubtful, though, that Albert or any other powerful member of Congress will ever ask that congressional immunity be changed. After all, Albert himself was involved in a bizarre driving episode a few seasons back. A car was bashed, there was breath sniffed and assistance provided. No arrest or charges filed, naturally.

Now congressmen don't usually commit treason, and which cop is willing to file charges of felony or "breach of peace." So the practice will continue. The cops are subservient to the lawmakers who authorize their paychecks.

Congressmen know this, and some flaunt it. As a matter of fact, when Rep. William Alexander of Arkansas, arrested for "bumping" a policeman at National Airport with his station wagon and then scuffling with him, got off clean, good old Rep. Wayne Hays made it even better for the lawmaker. He not only bullied Alexnader Butterfield, administrator of the Federal Aviation Administration, (the cop's boss), he used government funds to pay Rep. Alexander's legal bill which came to $2,500.

Four Oklahoma prison escapees remain at large

EUFAULA, Okla. (AP) — A search for at least one of four Oklahoma Penitentiary inmates who remained at large today centered on a wooded area south of this McIntosh County community.

Authorities captured two of the seven escaped convicts late Monday after a spree in which they commandeered a boat, shot at a young couple and kidnaped two telephone company workers, the Oklahoma Highway Patrol reported.

The first of the seven inmates who escaped Saturday night was captured on a McAlester street Sunday night.

Still at large were three convicted slayers, including bomb killer Rex Brinlee Jr.

Also at large were cousins William Franklin and Edwin Jones, who were serving life terms for killing a highway patrol trooper and a state park superintendent in 1971.

The highway patrol issued a bulletin early this morning, urging all law enforcement personnel in eastern Oklahoma and western Arkansas to be on the lookout for the three convicted slayers.

The three had been the object of a region-wide search.

A patrol spokesman said the three were believed to be headed for an unknown destination in Arkansas in a stolen 1971 white over green pickup truck.

The vehicle had turned up missing from a McAlester residence between 5 p.m. Saturday and 8 a.m. Sunday, but the patrol spokesman said the OHP was not notified of its theft until 11 p.m. Sunday.

Patrol officials reportedly turned up information leading to the bulletin in the questioning of the captured inmates. The trio, believed traveling together, was also believed to be armed with knives and possibly firearms, the spokesman said.

The inmates, all part of a work team headed by Brinlee, escaped through a utility tunnel where they had been working.

Blood hounds and peace officers searched near Eufaula Monday night for an inmate believed to be a companion of the two who were captured Monday evening.

One of the two inmates was wounded before he was captured by patrolmen.

The captured inmates were identified as Leonard Boyles, 31, and William Morris, 39. Boyles was reported wounded near the left knee by a trooper when he refused to halt. He was treated at a McAlester hospital.

The inmate who was still the object of an intense manhunt was believed to be Robert Nelson, 40.

Nelson, of Hudson, Wis., and Morris, of Minneapolis, Minn. were serving 150 years each for an Oklahoma County armed robbery. Boyles, of Chickasha, Okla., was serving 17 years for car theft from Oklahoma County.

The highway patrol said first word that the three inmates were in the area came Monday about 4:30 p.m. when Melinda Pierce and a companion, Terry Riddle, returned to a Lake Eufaula cabin owned by Sam Pierce. They noticed a torn screen and a strange boat tied at the boat dock, the patrol said.

Patrol officials said the inmates, in civilian clothes, came out of the cabin and attempted to stop the pickup truck occupied by the pair. The truck was struck by three rifle bullets, the patrol said, but no one was injured and the couple contacted authorities.

A short time later, the patrol said, the inmates left the boat near Arrowhead State Lodge on Lake Eufaula and took a vehicle from two Canadian Valley Telephone Co. workers.

The workers, Charles F. Barchenger, 29, and Norman L. Drewyour, 68, had been working at a housing development near the state lodge.

Barchenger said the inmates came toward them with a gun drawn, saying, "You're under arrest. Lay down on your bellies." Barchenger said he thought the trio was joking, but one added, "Lay down, or we'll shoot you right here."

Drewyour was left near the community of Canadian with his hands and legs tied with his own shoelaces and telephone cord. He later freed himself with a hunting knife and joined in the search for the third escapee.

Meanwhile, the convicts detached a trailer from the company truck and, with Barchenger as hostage, began driving on U.S. 69 toward Eufaula with one of the inmates in the back.

A patrol plane spotted the stolen vehicle, the patrol said, which turned onto a private road, crashed through a fence and went up a steep hill before stalling.

Barchenger was left behind as the inmates fled. Authorities initially handcuffed Barchenger before identifying him as a hostage and pursuing the inmates.

Patrol Trooper Bill Robins first spotted Boyles running through the wooded area after a resident had reported sighting the three inmates about 5 p.m.

Robins reportedly ordered Boyles to stop, then opened fire when he failed to do so, officials at the scene said.

Morris was spotted immediately following Boyles' capture and was reportedly gang-tackled by law enforcement officials who converged on him, authorities said.

Delbert Harmon "Mad Dog" Garmon was captured without resistance at midnight Sunday by McAlester Police Officer Keith Coffee.

The inmate, who earned the nickname "Mad Dog" when he kidnaped 20 persons and eluded Oklahoma and Texas police for 18 days in 1965, was handed over to prison authorities here early Monday.

The three other inmates remained the object of a regional search Monday night.

Brinlee, 43, is free for a second time and authorities believe he will be the most difficult to capture because of his proven ability to elude a manhunt.

He was serving a life term for killing a kindergarten teacher with a bomb when he fled the prison during the 1973 riot and stayed free for six weeks.

He was convicted of escape after being captured in Mississippi and was sent back to prison to serve both sentences.

The escape occurred sometime between 8:30 p.m. and 9 p.m., Saturday, but the first alert wasn't sounded to area law enforcement agencies until 12:05 a.m. Sunday.

Brinlee had made a number of death threats during his last escape, including a threat against his wife, who has filed a divorce suit.

Gov. David Boren ordered crime bureau agents to guard Mrs. Brinlee and at least one of her two grown children. She lives at Chelsea in the northeast part of the state.

Senate ratifies Spanish bases treaty

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate hopes its ratification of a military bases treaty with Spain will spur the creation of democratic institutions in the Mediterranean monarchy.

A year-to-year funding clause in the treaty will allow Congress to monitor Spain's progress.

The Senate voted 84 to 11 Monday to ratify the five-year treaty which gives the new regime a $1.2-billion package of loans and grants.

An accompanying resolution urged the new government of King Juan Carlos to move Spain away from the Fascist dictatorship it has known for more than three decades under the late Generalissimo Francisco Franco.

"Franco's demise has opened real possibilites for progressive change," Sen. Richard Clark, D-Iowa, said Monday. He noted that some in the Senate fought early ratification of the treaty pending evidence that a rebirth of democratic institutions had been achieved in Spain.

The U.S. decision to maintain bases in Spain while the Franco dictatorship was still strong "has for years been a source of dismay to Americans concerned to see that the United States does not align itself with tyrants in the name of defending freedom," Clark said.

"If it is true that we erred in the past by concerning ourselves too little with the suppressing of Spanish freedom, it is equally true that we cannot compensate now in a single stroke by demanding democratic revolution in Spain overnight.

"If by approving this agreement we choose to continue as Spain's tentative but cooperative partner, I believe the United States will have the opportunity to serve as an energetic and enthusiastic advocate of Spanish democracy."

Carrillo wins one in court

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (AP) — U.S. Dist. Court Judge Owen Cox denied Monday a government motion to revoke Duval County Commissioner Ramiro Carrillo's $10,000 appeal bond.

Cox set a hearing for July 26 on another motion to revoke Carrillo's probation on an income tax fraud conviction.

Carrillo and his brother, O.P. Carrillo, an impeached state district judge, were convicted in a jury trial in federal court here last October of conspiring to file false income tax returns. Ramiro Carrillo was sentenced to five years probation in addition to four years in prison.

At Monday's hearing, no testimony was heard. Asst. U.S. Atty. Robert Berg was prepared to call witnesses but said the testimony would essentially duplicate allegations contained in the affidavit previously made available to Cox.

The affidavit alleges that Carrillo had recently used Duval County equipment illegally.

Cox ruled that even if the allegations were true they would not make Carrillo a "danger to the community" and hence unfit for bond.

Cox said before Carrillo's four year prison sentence begins, he will study cases on the probation revocation matter.

Viking finds abundance of water vapor on Mars

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Evidence of low-lying water vapor on Mars in greater abundance than expected has encouraged scientists to look for life as the Viking 1 spacecraft begins a 10-day study of the planet.

In low areas of Mars it appears that water in the form of frost becomes water vapor during the warmest part of the day and freezes again at night, Dr. C. Barney Farmer said Monday.

This information gathered by the Viking in recent days fits a new theory that the water might temporarily exist as a liquid during the transition from frost to vapor. It had generally been thought that water did not exist as a liquid on Mars.

Scientists on the Viking team that will search for Martian life by means of an automated Viking lander were intrigued by Farmer's report.

If his theory is true, said one scientist, low-lying Chrsye, the planned landing site, "could be one of the wettest places around." And the wetter the area, the greater the chance that some kind of life could exist there.

But by earth standards, it would scarely be wet at all.

Farmer said the water vapor mapping instrument aboard Viking has found some low areas in the planet's northern hemisphere where the abundance of water vapor was "many times" the average for the hemisphere's 10 to 12 precipitable microns.

The term refers to the amount of water that could be squeezed out of a given abundance of water vapor. In the above example, the water vapor present could be condensed into a layer around the entire planet only 10 to 12 microns thick. A micron is a tiny unit — one millionth of a meter — invisible to the naked eye.

Beginning today, Viking's water vapor mapper, heat detector and powerful television cameras were to be trained on the area where the lander is to touch down July 4.

GOP may follow Democrats

WASHINGTON (AP) — Like the Democrats, the Republican party may draft a platform for the 1976 campaign that walks softly on the big issues.

With both President Ford and Ronald Reagan agreeing on most issues, one party official said that if there are any significant disputes, they likely would arise in the foreign policy area.

But a key objective in platform committee debates probably will be to avoid controversy in an effort to unite the Grand Old Party going into the fall presidential campaign.

The Democrats drafted a unity platform last week, and Gov. Robert Ray of Iowa, chairman of the temporary Republican platform committee, told reporters Monday that unity may be a good goal for the Republicans, too.

"We will start from the premise that the platform should be short, concise, but with enough detail to have meaning," he said.

Ray said both Ford and Reagan have said they will cooperate in drafting a platform to "avoid floor fights."

He said he thinks both men agree on most of the issues that the platform will address and that the "few items of disagreement," if any, would be in the area of international affairs.

Ray said potentially divisive issues such as abortion, busing and amnesty also will be considered by the platform committee.

Opening lead — ♣ Q

Declarer took the ace of clubs, drew three rounds of trumps and led the jack of diamonds. When West played low, declarer put up dummy's ace. East dropped the king and shrank back.

"One peek is worth two finesses," he growled.

Actually, South hadn't peeked. He had simply made the right play.

If South finesses and loses to the king, back comes a heart. South loses his heart play, whatever it may be, and West gets out with a low diamond. Sooner or later declarer must try another heart play, and thus loses three hearts and a diamond. In short, finessing may cost South the contract.

MUST MAKE GAME

But suppose declarer puts up the ace of diamonds, catching only low diamonds. He gives up a heart. The opponents can take two heart tricks, but then must either set up a heart trick for South or give him a ruff-discard by returning a club. South must make his game.

South may go down if he tries the diamond finesse but not if he refuses the finesse. There's no sense in taking a risk when you can't gain but may lose by it.

No clear winner in GOP fight

By TERRY RYAN
Associated Press Writer

President Ford and Ronald Reagan will both fall short of the delegates needed for the Republican nomination when the last delegates are chosen in seven states, party leaders and campaign officials in those states say.

The nomination would then hinge on 159 uncommitted delegates now being courted and cajoled by both camps.

According to an Associated Press count, Ford held a 72- delegate lead today with 1,006 to Reagan's 934. It will take 1,130 delegates to capture the nomination. There are 157 delegates still to be chosen at Republican conventions and caucuses in Connecticut, Minnesota, Montana, New Mexico, North Dakota, Colorado and Utah.

By the estimate of his own campaigners in those states, Ford will pick up 90 of the remaining delegates and Reagan 67. That would leave the tally at 1,096 for Ford and 1,001 for Reagan.

The Reagan camp has a different view of the remaining states, seeing the former California governor winning 101 delegates to 56 for Ford. That count would leave the totals at 1,062 for Ford and 1,035 for Reagan.

The Reagan tally would put the President only 27 delegates ahead after the last delegates are chosen July 16 in Connecticut and Utah. The Ford count would put the President ahead by 95 delegates, but still 34 votes short of the nomination.

Associated Press reporters on Monday surveyed state GOP officials and leaders of both the Ford and Reagan campaigns in the states still to choose delegates. Their reports indicated bitter political infighting in some states, especially in Minnesota, Montana and New Mexico where 59 delegates will be chosen this weekend.

According to his supporters in those states, Reagan will pick up 47 of those delegates to 12 for Ford. Ford's supporters see it going 32 for Reagan and 27 for Ford, still a net loss for the President.

A state-by-state breakdown indicates where the remaining delegates are and how supporters of both candidates see them going:

MINNESOTA — Eighteen delegates to be chosen Friday night at a GOP state convention. Ford forces looking to sweep all 18; Reagan backers hoping for six delegates.

MONTANA — Twenty delegates to be selected Saturday at the Republican state convention. A bitter battle shaping up with Reagan supporters seeking all 20 delegates and Ford's backers holding out for a 13-7 split.

NEW MEXICO — Twenty-one delegates to be selected Saturday at the state convention. Reagan forces will have about 60 per cent of the state convention delegates and will be looking to push through a full slate of 20 national delegates committed to Reagan.

NORTH DAKOTA — Eighteen delegates to be selected at a state convention in Fargo July 8 to July 10. Ford's state campaign director, former state Sen. C. Warner Litten, called it 12 to 6 for the President. Reagan's state manager, Dave Robinson, predicted nine for Ford and nine for Reagan.

COLORADO — Twenty-five delegates still to be selected, nine at three congressional district caucuses July 9 and the final 16 at the state convention July 10.

Reagan swept the six delegates elected in two district caucuses held so far. Reagan's Colorado chairman, Mike South, predicted Reagan would go on the sweep the nine district delegates and the 16 to be selected at the state convention.

But Ford's man in the state, Bill Graham, said the President would take six delegates in two district caucuses and said he was "not writing off" the other district caucus.

CONNECTICUT — Thirty-five delegates to be chosen July 17 at the state party convention. Reagan has no organization in the state and Ford backers are looking for a sizable portion of the delegates.

UTAH — Twenty delegates to be chosen at state convention July 16-17.

All the delegates attending the state convention will be officially uncommitted. But Ford's Utah ,chairman, state Sen. Warren E. Pugh, said a telephone survey of the delegates showed an even split and predicted the national convention delegation would split 10-10.

Sporadic violence erupts in South Africa

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Police reported most black areas of South Africa calm today but said there were outbreaks of arson in the large Mamelodi township outside Pretoria. Sporadic gunfire was heard at Mamelodi and nearby Atteridgeville.

Police reported that a medical clinic and a shop were set afire by thugs. Police vehicles were seen entering and leaving the two black townships, but there was no explanation for the gunfire.

"The situation is fairly quiet," Police Minister James Kruger told Parliament today. "I would like to express the hope that no further disturbances will occur in the country."

Kruger said Monday night that the official death toll in the black uprising was 140 dead and 1,128 injured. Government and news reports indicated all but two of the dead and 10 of the injured were black.

"We cannot tolerate any extension of the unrest," Kruger said. "The police will have to act very firmly."

The racial upheaval that began last Wednesday around Johannesburg spread northeast Monday to black ghettos around Pretoria, the capital 30 miles away, and there was more violence in the Johannesburg area. But the government said heavily armed white and black police, aided by helicopters dropping tear gas, brought the rioters under control.

Nine persons were killed and five injured near Pretoria Monday and one person was killed and five injured near Johannesburg, Kruger said.

He denied that all of the casualties were the result of police action but gave no information on the total number hit by police bullets. On Sunday, the government said that up to that time at least 41 had been killed by the police.

Government officials claim that many of the blacks were victims of other blacks on a rampage of violence, arson and looting.

Kruger reported two attacks on white civilians Monday. Rioters from Mabopane, near Pretoria, burned a white farmer's home, injured him and killed some of his cattle. In central Johannesburg, an axe wielding black yelling "Freedom for Africa" wounded three whites before a traffic policeman shot him.

Finley readies for court suit

OAKLAND (AP) — Charles O. Finley says a multimillion dollar suit challenging baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn's authority to block the sale of three of Finley's Oakland A's players will be filed Wednesday "at the latest."

From Chicago Finley explained the suit was not ready for filing Monday because "there are so many worthy items to include in it."

Finley's attorney, Neil Papiano of Los Angeles, was trying to decide during the weekend whether to file the action in Alameda County Superior Court in Oakland, home of the A's, or in U.S. District Court in San Francisco.

FINLEY WOULD like to get a quick ruling granting a temporary restrainer on Kuhn's order of last Friday nullifying the deals. Kuhn held that the sale of three A's players for $3.5 million cash one week ago today was not in the best interest of baseball.

The three stars the commissioner ordered returned to Oakland — pitchers Vida Blue and Rollie Fingers and outfielder Joe Rudi — have been working out with the A's, but have been barred by Finley from playing in any games.

"They won't play for the time being, and that is all I can say right now," Finley said.

But their return by Kuhn to the A's roster required the team to cancel the callup of two minor leaguers and left Manager Chuck Tanner with only 22 men instead of the normal complement of 25.

IF FINLEY prevails in the courts, the sale of Rudi and Fingers for $1 million each to the Boston Red Sox and Blue for a reported $1.5 to the New York Yankees presumably would stand. Upholding of Kuhn would likely be followed by a whole new set of guidelines for major league player transactions.

Rudi and Fingers were unsigned by Finley and playing out their options when they were sold. Blue's status was unclear as there was disagreement on a report he had signed an A's contact just prior to the sale.

Waiting for Finley's suit to be filed, before deciding on entering legal action on their own against Kuhn are the Yankees and the Major League Players Association. Red Sox executives have said they have no plans to go to court to uphold their purchase of Rudi and Fingers.

Tom Okker, seeded ninth, makes forehand return in Monday match against Sandy Mayer in first round action at Wimbledon, England.

Wimbledon off to fast start

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — For two weeks, during the Wimbledon tournament, the British try and forget about their nation's decline and the sagging pound sterling, and concentrate on the constancy and delight of watching tennis played on the most hallowed green grass in the world by the game's best players.

The 24,500 fans who swarmed into the All-England Club, a few miles southwest of central London for opening day Monday, saw no big upsets. Defending champion and No. 1 seed Arthur Ashe and all the seeded men's singles players who got on court came away victorious.

ASHE, WHOSE emotional victory over Jimmy Connors in the 1975 final is still discussed here, had a good workout against Ferdi Taygan of Framingham, Mass., a UCLA student making his Wimbledon debut. Despite 10 doublefaults and a couple of set points saved, Ashe emerged a 7-5, 6-4, 7-5 winner.

Connors also showed why he is the No. 2 seed and the bookmakers' favorite to regain the title he won in 1974, easily beating Antonio Zugarelli of Italy 6-2, 6-3, 6-2.

The other seeds who made it to the second round were Ilie Nastase of Romania, Bjorn Borg of Sweden, Adriano Panatta of Italy, Argentina's Guillermo Vilas, broscoe Tanner of Lookout Mountain, Tenn., Mexico's Raul Ramirez, Tom Okker of The Netherlands, John Newcombe and Tony Roche of Australia, Jaime Fillol of Chile and Brian Gottfried of Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

THE ONLY seed not to play Monday was Stan Smith of Sea Pines, S.C., whose match against Patricio Cornejo of Chile was scheduled today.

Ashe said his objective simply was to make it into Wimbledon's second week before worrying about facing the top players. He named his most feared rivals as Tanner, Nastase and Connors, but said there were many other tough, unheralded players in the field.

One of those could be Ashe's next opponent, Allan Stone of Australia. Stone beat Ashe last year only one day after the 32- year-old Miami, Fla., star had won the World Championship of Tennis final.

Meanwhile, Ashe said that women's tennis is somehwat different.

"After Evonne (Goolagong of Australia) and Chrissie Evert, it just drops off like a cliff. No one else is in their class," he said.

Chris Evert and Evonne Goolagong, top seeds in the women's singles, each won their opening matches in less than an hour today as the second day of the Wimbledon tennis championship began in hot sunshine.

Miss Evert, the 1974 champion from Fort Lauderdale, Fla., had an easy 6-1, 6-1 victory over Linda Rupert Thomas of Orlando, Fla.

Miss Goolagong, winner of the title in 1971, had a little more difficulty beating Elly Vessies-Appel of the Netherlands 6-2, 7-5.

From 1-2 in the first set, Miss Goolagong won seven games in a row to win the first set and lead 2-0 in the second. Then the Dutch player began passing her at the net and came back from 0-2 to 5-3. but Miss Goolagong tightened up her game and got on top again.

Virginia Wade of Britain, the No. 3 seed, defeated 17-year-old Michele Tyler of England, 6-3, 6-4.

Don Alfano sinks Cubs with double

AMARILLO—Pinch hitter Don Alfano produced a two run double in the ninth inning to lead the Amarillo Gold Sox to a 2-1 victory over the Midland Cubs here Monday night in a Texas League game.

Midland scored a lone run in the second inning, but managed to hold the lead until the fatal ninth when the Cubs could not get anyone out before two runs crossed the plate.

Lin Hamilton started the demise in the ninth when he reached safely on an error by Scott Thompson at first. Jim Wilhelm then tossed his bat at a pitch from Jay Tenple for a bloop double, and Rocky Craig was intentionally walked to set the scene for Alfano with the bases loaded.

MIDLAND SCORED in the second inning after two men were out. Ed Putman and Earl Chew walked and Bob Hrapmann had an infield single to load the bases. Steve Verban then dropped a bunt single down the third base line to plate Putman with what looked for a long while like the winning run

Roger Coe went the distance for the Gold Sox while limiting the Cubs to seven hits in his second victory without a defeat.

Wayne Doland, Midland's starting hurler, pitched shutout ball for seven innings before tiring in the eighth. He gave up a leadoff walk in the eighth and Temple came on to absorb the loss.

The series continues tonight and will run through Friday when the Cubs then pack up for El Paso and a five-game stand.

Upstarts yield track fireworks

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — A pair of upstarts produced fireworks, some old veterans performed as expected and for the first time in three days of the U.S. Olympic Track and Field Trials the winners, not the losers, drew attention.

Edwin Moses, a 20-year-old junior at Morehouse College in Atlanta, shattered the American record in the 400-meter intermediate hurdles and Brenda Morehead rocketed to a near record in the 100 Monday.

And veteran Rick Wohlhuter gained another Olympic trip with an expected 800 victory.

Moses' time of 48.30 bettered the American mark of 48.51 set by Ralph Mann when he ran second in the 1972 Games to John Akii-Bua's 47.82 world mark.

MANN, 27, and Jim Bolding, 26, two of the favorites, fell behind and failed to make the team as darkhorse Quentin Wheeler and Mike Shine qualified instead.

Monday produced none of the big surprises or controversy which marked the first two days of this eight-day competition, when such stars as sprinter Steve Williams, pole vaulter Dan Ripley and shot putter Terry Albritton failed to make the team.

"I was aware (Mann) was there, but I didn't let it bother me," said Moses, an "A" student in engineering and physics. "I always run the last 100 strong. On the seventh hurdle I saw them fade."

MISS MOREHEAD, 19, a freshman at Tennessee State, burst from the starting block and sped to the finish line in 11.08, a shade off the world record of 11.04 set three weeks ago by West Germany's Ingrid Helten.

"I felt good," she said. "I didn't think it (her time) would be that good." It was the second fastest clocking ever by an American, just off the 11.07 U.S. mark set in 1968 by Wyomia Tyus.

"I wasn't worried about winning as long as I made the team," she said. "I knew I needed to get out quick."

Second was Chandra Cheeseborough, another newcomer and, at 17, the youngest U.S. Olympic team member so far. The high school junior from Jacksonville, Fla., clocked 11.13 and was followed by Evelyn Ashford of UCLA in 11.22.

WHEELER, of San Diego State, the NCAA hurdles champ, said, "It was a very rough race. I dreamed about this and I can't believe it."

Shine, of Penn State, said, "When Bolding went by me I thought it's now or never; I gotta do it or die, so I just poured out my guts."

Wohluter unleashed his famous kick in the stretch and earned his second trip to the Olympics with a time of 1:44.78.

James Robinson, 21, who won the AAU title a week ago, slipped on the second turn and dropped back to last place midway through the race. But he moved outside and exploded nearing the tape, finishing second in 1:45.86.

Mark Enyeart of the Utah State Track Club struggled pst Villanova's Mark Belger in the last 10 meters to run 1:46.28 and round out the U.S. team in the two-lap race.

Earlier in the day, the favored trio of Mac Wilkins, John Powell and Jay Silvester all marched into the Olympics.

East, North Central, Central post LL wins

Eastern, North Central and Central posted victories Monday in the opening round of the City A Little League Baseball Tournament at Garrett Brown Park.

Eastern's First Savings and Loan Cubs took a narrow 7-6 win over Tower League's W.D. Noel outfit while North Central's Foy Boyd Astros downed Northern's Texas Electric, 7-4.

Central's Pionner Natural Gas Sox looked impressive in taking an 11-6 triumph over Midland National Bank of the Western League.

Mims and Stephens of the Southern League, drew a first round bye and faces Pionner Natural Gas of the Central League in one of three games to be played today.

Chris Parker and Ricky Gavin had a double and home run in a losing cause for the Tower League entry with Chad Elliott the losing pitcher.

David Stillwell struck out six and scattered seven hits in pitching the Astros to their victory over TESCO.

Mark Williams had a pair of doubles for TESCO while Randy Pepper had a two-bagger for the winners. The Astros played well on defense, turning two snappy double plays to halt rallies by TESCO.

Don Sharnowski went all the way on the mound for Pionner Natural Gas, fanning nine Midland National Bank batters.

Nathan Foreman was the losing pitcher and had a double for the losers. Curt Holcomb, Dale Merrifield, Rick Merritt and Sharnowski all collected doubles for the winners, but the big blow was a grand-slam homer off the bat of Wayne Sims for the losers. Sims had a big day at the plate, going three-for-four.

First Savings and Loan takes on the Foy Boyd Astros in the 6 p.m. game today on the A Field while in other games, the Pionner Natural Gas Sox face Mims and Stephens on the B Field.

In a loser's bracket game, W.D. Noels of the Tower League battles TESCO of the Northern League with the loser being eliminated from the tourney which runs through June 28.

Garrett Brown Park is located at Holly and Delano Streets.

Hammon leads Mets to win

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Randy Hammon pitched an impressive two-hit victory Monday night as the Jackson Mets beat the Arkansas Travelers 4-0.

Lee Mazzilli, Jackson's centerfielder, had the hot bat for the Mets Monday, pounding out a first-inning home run and two more doubles. The home run was the sixth of the year for the centerfielder.

Hammon handcuffed the Travelers for two hits, one in the first inning and the second coming in the last inning.

LA Rams make offer for Buffalo's Simpson

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Owner Carroll Rosenbloom of the Los Angeles Rams says he has made an offer for pro football's ace running back O.J. Simpson and should have an answer from the Buffalo Bills within 10 days.

Rosenbloom didn't disclose his offer and admitted the Bills' owner Ralph Wilson wanted a "great package" for the former All American and Heisman Trophy winner from Southern California.

"O.J. says he wants to play one more year and in California," Rosenbloom told a group of sports writers and sportscasters. "It's tough to make a trade based on one year. However, the Rams feel an obligation to go after any great football player who can help our team. In a week or 10 days either O. J. will be with us or not."

Coach Chuck Knox of the Rams termed Simpson "a super player and a super person. Any coach would welcome an O.J. Simpson. He can make a great coach out of a lot of people."

Knox added that the National Football Conference Western Division will be the strongest since he took over four years ago.

Steve Rosenbloom, assistant to the president of the club, said that General Manager Don Klosterman remains in a Buffalo hospital undergoing observation after he complained of chest pains while on an airplane flight.

Rosenbloom said all tests indicate Klosterman is in good condition and he is expected to be released from the hospital shortly.

Torres wins six races

AUSTIN—Isabel Torres, representing the City of Midland Swim Team, set two records and won six events here this weekend in the Texas Open Swimming Championships.

Miss Torres set a new state record in the 200-meter freestyle with a time of two minutes, 18.13 seconds. She also set a new West Texas standard in the 400-meter freestyle with a time 4:48.18.

Miss Torres also won the 100 freestyle, 1:04.63; 100 backstroke, 1:14.51; 100 butterfly, 1:13.8 and the 200 individual medley, 2:39.85.

All of the times were personal bests for Miss Torres except the 100 butterfly. She was swimming in the 11-12 age group competition. Miss Torres was the only COM swimmer entered in the competition. Swim-A-Day Club of Austin won the meet.

Babashoff destined for gold

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — California's Shirley Babashoff could well become the star of the 1976 Olympic Games at Montreal in leading the U.S. women swimmers, but the men of Uncle Sam should do better over-all.

Coach Jim Councilman, the veteran from Indiana, believes his men could win one-half of the medals at the Olympics in Montreal.

COACH JACK Nelson of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., who heads the girls' team, says this is the strongest squad of female swimmers the nation has ever assembled but readily admits the East Germans have better times.

The 19-year-old Miss Babashoff shattered the world record in the 800-meter freestyle with a time of 8:39.63 for her fifth victory at the trials and in three of the other races she set American records.

"I think," she said, "that we have the strongest women's team ever for the United States."

And she was a member of the squad and a relay gold medal winner in 1972 at Munich. This time, at Montreal, she could compete in seven events—the 100, 200, 400 and 800 freestyles and the 400 individual medley having placed first in the trials for each plus the 400 freestyle relay and the medley relay.

"I wasn't tired," she declared. "I swam the 800 just like we had planned."

Immediately after Shirley had swum, 17-year-old Brian Goodell of Mission Viejo, bettered the world record for the men's 1,500-meter freestyle in 15:06.66.

MISS BABASHOFF, of Mission Viejo, Calif., had officially taken the record from Jennifer Turrall of Australia, in 8:43.88, but better than that had swum faster than East Germany's Petra Thurmer, who did 8:40.68 in the Communist nation's trials.

Nicole Kramer, 14, also of Mission Viejo, finished second to become the youngest on the U.S. squad.

Actually, Miss Kramer had led during stages of the race and probably was responsible for Miss Babashoff's record.

"I knew it would take a world record to win," declared Goodell, who already had become the fastest in the world in the 400 freestyle.

In the other two finals on closing night of the six-day trials, Camile Wright of Louisville won the women's 100-meter butterfly in 1:01.84 for the 13th American record in Olympic events and former record holder Wendy Boglioli of Ocean Township, N.J., finished second in 1:02.07, and Joe Bottom of Santa Clara captured the men's 100 butterfly in 54.97 with Gary Hall of Cincinnati taking second in 55.05.

AL pitchers saw heavy timber

By The Associated Press

A no-hitter was the furthest thing from Wayne Garland's mind. He was just hoping for a complete game.

Well, he got what he wanted—and almost got what he didn't expect.

Garland, a long-forgotten man on the Baltimore staff, was recently moved into the starting rotation—and repaid the Orioles with a splendid pitching performance Monday night.

THE CHUNKY right-hander pitched a no-hitter before losing it with two out in the eighth inning and finished with a 2-0, two-hit triumph over the Boston Red Sox.

"Anytime you lose a no-hitter late in the game, you're disappointed," said Garland. "But after I lost that, I wanted a complete game more than anything else. I never had one before and I didn't want to lose my cool."

Garland has flirted with nohit fame before, but surprisingly, did not complete that start. It was against the Oakland A's two years ago and Garland lost it in the ninth before getting hit hard and driven to the showers.

"This is what I've been shooting for all my life," Garland said of his role as a starting pitcher.

GARLAND, a 1969 draft choice of the Orioles, had a 7-11 lifetime record before this season. But so far in 1976, he has won seven games without a loss. He got his chance to move into the Orioles' starting rotation only because of the recent 10-player trade that sent left-hander Ken Holtzman, among others, to the New York Yankees.

Two other American League pitchers also had good nights. Bert Blyleven fired a one-hitter to lead the Texas Rangers to a 1-0, 10-inning victory over the Oakland A's, and Ed Figueroa pitched a three-hitter to pace the New York Yankees to a 6-0 decision over the Cleveland Indians.

The burly Garland had the Red Sox mesmerized until Rico Petrocelli punched a weak ground single on a 2-0 count through the right side of the infield in the eighth.

THEN IN the ninth, Rick Miller reached base on an infield single for the Red Sox, but Garland struck out the next batter, his 10th of the game, and the Orioles pulled off a double play to finish off Boston.

Catcher Dave Duncan said that Garland had "exceptional stuff and exceptional control...I was thinking about a no-hitter from the third inning on."

Garland wouldn't take the pitch back that Petrocelli hit for a spoiling single.

"I couldn't ask for a better pitch," said Garland. "He just happened to go for the ball and stick his bat out there."

Rangers 1, A's 0

Bert Blyleven earned his 100th major league victory with a splendid one-hit performance and Tom Grieve blasted a leadoff homer in the 10th inning to give Texas its victory over Oakland.

The only hit off the Ranger right-hander was a fifth-inning single by Ken McMullen. Blyleven, 5-8, struck out eight batters and walked four. It was his first victory since coming to the Rangers from the Minnesota Twins earlier this month.

Grieve's homer, his ninth of the season, came off losing pitcher Paul Mitchell, 3-4, who gave up six hits.

Yankees 6, Indians 0

Ed Figueroa's three-hit pitching combined with the hitting and fielding of third baseman Craig Nettles sparked New York over Cleveland. The triumph by the Yankees over their nearest rivals in the American League East increased New York's division lead to eight games. The victory was the seventh straight for the streaking Yankees.

Figueroa, 8-4, struck out seven and walked two. Cleveland starter Dennis Eckersley, 3-6, was the loser. Nettles collected three hits in the game, driving in two runs and scoring two more. He also produced fielding gems in the first two innings on balls hit by Rick Manning and Frank Duffy.

Angels 2, Twins 1

Pinch-hitter Bill Melton's 10th-inning single drove home the winning run, lifting California over Minnesota. Melton's hit was the third in a row off loser Dave Goltz, who had allowed only five hits over the first nine innings.

Bob Jones launched the rally with a one-out single to right and moved to second on Dave Chalk's hit before Melton batted for Andy Etchebarren and linedhis game-winner to left field.

White Sox 2, Royals 1

Jim Spencer singled home Chicago's tying run in the ninth inning and the winning run in the 11th as the White Sox nipped Kansas City and snapped a 10-game losing streak for the Royals.

In the ninth, Ralph Garr and Buddy Bradford singled and, with two away, Spencer singled for the tying run. In the 11th, Jorge Orta led off with a single and was safe when reliever Tom Hall, 1-1, fielded Bradford's bunt and threw late to second trying for a forceout. One out later, Spencer singled for the go-ahead run.

Tigers 3, Brewers 2

Ben Oglivie's one-out homer in the 11th inning lifted Detroit over Milwaukee. Oglivie's homer, his sixth of the season and third against the Brewers this year, saddled Jim Slaton, 8-5, with his fourth defeat in his last five decisions.

Office night is success

By The Associated Press

In Cincinnati, it was Souvenir Night. And in Atlanta, it was just another night at the Office.

Cincinnati's fans—two of them, anyway—went home with home run balls Monday night, compliments of Ken Griffey and George Foster, who unloaded their blasts on Doug Rau's first two pitches in the sixth inning.

The result was a 3-1 victory over Los Angeles that boosted the Reds' National League West lead to 4½ games over the Dodgers.

Atlanta's fans—all of them— got another taste of what they've gotten used to lately, namely Rowland Office's streaking.

No, not that kind. The kind with a bat. He's gotten at least one hit in his last 26 games, the longest in the league this year. He got four of them Monday night and, after the last, he trotted home on Jimmy Wynn's tie-breaking homer in the seventh inning that propelled the Braves past Houston 11-9.

As Foster stepped to the plate in Cincinnati in the bottom of the sixth, the fans' cheers were only beginning to die down following Griffey's fourth home run, a mammoth blast to right field. He brought them up again with his 13th homer, a shot deep into the left field stands.

Braves 11, Astros 9

Rowland Office seems to have something on the National League's pitching corps. But he also has something on his mind.

"You can't help worrying about it a little ...I can't help thinking about the streak all the time," he said after busting up the Astros' pitchers for his four hits that raised his onetime dismal .193 batting average to a potent .308. "Everybody keeps asking me about the streak, and they keep flashing it on the scoreboards."

Office had a run-scoring double in the third inning, another one in a five-run fourth, a run-scoring single in the fifth and a single prior to Wynn's decisive homer in the seventh.

"It's sort of a pain at times, everybody asking me about it," he said of his run at the NL hitstreak record of 37 games, set in 1945 by the Boston Braves' Tommy Holmes. "But deep down, I really like it. In fact, I'm enjoying every single minute of it."

And what is causing this remarkable hit string? "They're just falling in," he shrugged. "This can't go on forever. All I can do is just swing the bat ..."

Phils 8, Expos 3

Philadelphia's Tom Underwood was belted all over the joint in the early innings, but held on just long enough to pick up a victory, thanks to Garry Maddox' two-run double and Bob Boone's two-run single in the fourth inning that wiped out Montreal's lead.

Greg Luzinski clouted his ninth homer of the season and the 100th of his big-league career one inning later.

Padres 6, Giants 3

Johnny Grubb and Willie Davis homered to carry the Padres past San Francisco. Grubb's, off John Montefusco, was a leadoff shot in the first inning. Davis' was a two-run job in the fifth that put San Diego ahead 5-0.

Dave Friesleben went the route, stopping the Giants on eight hits, including a two-run homer by pinch-hitter Garry Thomason in the seventh inning.

Cards 7, Mets 2

Lynn McGlothen turned in six innings of six-hit pitching and turned his bat to good use to lead the Cards over New York.

His single started a three-run second inning against Jerry Koosman and, in the fifth, he dumped a suicide squeeze to knock in another run.

Harris duo wins title

Bill and Freda Harris defeated Lloyd and Jean Henderson, 6-3, 6-2, Sunday to win the Midland Country Club's Mixed Doubles tennis tournament.

Daniel Gifford and Suzy Gifford teamed to win the "B" Championship with a hard fought, 6-2, 5-7, 6-3, victory over Frank Qualia and Dana Davis in the finals.

Lloyd and Pat Innerarity won the "A" consolation prize while Brad Bennett and Jill Poage took the "B" consolation trophy.

Foursome wins RHCC tourney

Boots Johnston, Don Haden, Al Manulik and Sam Bateman combined for a two-day score of 123 to win the Ranchland Hill Country Club's Four-Man Scramble golf tournament Sunday.

First day leaders R. M. Traylor, Gene Howard, Cherokee Sloan and Tom Bius fell to second with a 124 while third place went to the team of Mike Mullins, Cack Roller, Ray Jenkins and Marvin Mermis with a 125.

Coaches All-America game gets tombstone

LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP) — The board of directors of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce voted unanimously Monday to withdraw chamber sponsorship of the Coaches All-America football game, which has been played in this West Texas city the past seven years.

The chamber was a co-sponsor of the game along with the American Football Ccoaches Association and the local Lions Club. A spokesman for the Lions Club told chamber officials the Lions will also withdraw as sponsors.

"The game has been a success in Lubbock the past seven years," said Marion Key, president of the Lubbock chamber. "But the time has come for us to step aside on a successful note."

Key cited cost, lack of name players and heavy insurance costs for the players as factors that prompted the chamber's decision.

Mobil Oil accused of violating White Rhodesia trade sanctions

By GRAYSON MITCHELL
The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — The Mobil Oil Corp. has for a decade violated trade sanctions against the white minority of Rhodesia by secretly supplying large amounts of fuel oil to the African nation, according to documents made public Monday by the Peoples Bicentennial Commission.

Commission officials released a series of purported secret documents that implicated several top Mobil Oil executives in an elaborate scheme to circumvent the U.S. embargo prohibiting all trade with Rhodesia.

Commission officials claimed the information showed that Mobil, through its South Africa and rhodesia subsidiaries, conspired with the Rhodesian government to provide the preponderant portion of all gasoline, diesel fuel and aviation turbine fuel going to Rhodesia over the past 10 years.

In a statement from Mobil's New York headquarters, company officials denied the charges, saying trade sanctions had been "scrupulously observed."

The Mobil statement alsonoted that a Senate judiciary subcommitte report of May 6, branded the peoples Bicentennial commission as a "far-left organization whose true views are closer to those of Castro (Cuban Premier Fidel Castro) and Mao (Chinese Party Leader Mao Tse-tung) than they are to our founding fathers."

The series of memoranda and personal correspondence between Mobil executives at subsidiaries in South Africa and Rhodesia was given to the Peoples Bicentennial commission by the Center for Social Action of the United Church of Christ.

The Rev. Larold A. Schulz, director of the church agency, said he obtained the documents from anonymous sources claiming to be members of an underground group of white South Africans called OKHRLA. Rev. Schulz said arrival of the documents in the mail followed a transatlantic telephone call from an unidentified person who claimed to have such information in his possession.

For giving the documents to the Peoples Bicentennial Commission, Rev. Schulz's Center for Social Action was declared by the commission to be the first winner of its "Patriot's award" for "evidence leading to the arrest, prosecution, conviction and imprisonment of a chief executive officer of a Fortune 500 company for illegal activity relating to corporate operations."

The award was accompanied with a $25,000 prize. A $10,000 check from the People Bicentennial Commission to Rev. Schulz's Center for Social Action was presented to the clergyman at a Washington News conference.

ENERGY
OIL & GAS

John E. Kilkenny

Midlander on program

AUSTIN — Ted B. Lacaff Jr., a Midland oil operator, will speak at the International Oil Scouts 53rd Annual Meeting July 8 at Austin.

His topic will be "Effectes of National Policy on Energy.

John E. Kilkenny, geological coordinator of the Geothermal Division of the Union Oil Co. of California at Los Angeles, will be one of the meeting's featured speaker.

He will talk on the "Role of Geothermal in the Future Energy Picture." Kilkenny also is vice president of Phillipine Geothermal, Inc.

Kilkenny was a Distinguished Lecturer for the American Association of Petroleum Geologists in 1973.

Another important talk will be by J. A. Savage, exploration manager for Atlantic Richfield Co. He will speak on "A Look at Increased Exploration."

Drillstem test shows

A Devonian drillstest recovered 800 feet of oil and gas-cut drilling mud at Gulf Oil Corp. No. 1-RC State, 13,500-foot project 19 miles northeast of Andrews in Andrews County.

Operator tested the section from 12,551 to 12,706 feet 1¼ hours.

Drilling continued below 12,742 feet in lime and dolomite.

Five-eights mile southeast of the Lacaff (Dean) field, the project is 660 feet from north and west lines of section 32, block 7, University Lands survey.

DRY HOLES

COKE — Tri-Star Petroleum Corp. No. 1 K.P. Daulong, wildcat, 467 feet from northwest and 3,890 feet from northeast lines of P. J. Moore survey 327, one mile southeast of Bronte, td 4,575 feet.

IRION — Kerr-McGee Corp. No. 1 A.A. Sugg, wildcat, 500 feet from south and west lines of section 3074, block 28, H&TC, 11 miles northwest of Mertzon, td 8,211 feet.

LYNN — Coquina Oil Corp. No. 1 Lehman, wildcat, 660 feet from south and 1,980 feet from east lines of section 39, block H, EL&RR, five miles northwest of O'Donnell, td 8,096 feet.

McCULLOCH — Kiowa Mineral Co. No. 1 B. G. Stanton, wildcat, 2,155 feet from north and 330 feet from east lines of section 140, ETRR, one mile northeast of Lohn, td 1,100 feet.

NOLAN — Suburban Propane Gas Corp. No. 1 F. A. Pierce, wildcat, 1,980 feet from south and 660 feet from west lines of section 38, block X, T&P, nine miles south of Sweetwater, td 6,970 feet.

RUNNELS — Frizzell Exploration Co. No. 1-A Ronnie Poehls, wildcat, 660 feet from north and 1,700 feet from east lines of C. D. Skidmore survey 13, three miles southeast of Wingate, td, 4,568 feet.

Reeves, Glasscock get oil operations

Reeves County drew site for a wildcat, and Glasscock and Howard field extensions are planned.

Pennzoil Co., operating from Midland, filed application to drill No. 1 Petrey as a 19,100-foot wildcat in Reeves County, nine miles northwest of Pecos.

It is 1,320 feet from northeast and northwest lines of section 7, block 4, H&GN survey, 1¼ mile west of dual Fusselman and Ellenburger production in the Mi Vida gas field.

GLASSCOCK TEST

I. W. Lovelady, Midland, will drill No. 1 Cooper, an 8,400-foot test, as a ⅜-mile northwest stepout to production in the Blalock Lake (Wolfcamp) field of Glasscock.

Drillsite is 660 feet from north and east lines of section 34, block 35, T-2-S, T&P survey 14 miles northwest of Garden City.

add one, Reeves, Glasscock

HOWARD PROJECT

Dyco Petroleum Corp., Tulsa, Okla., has filed amended application for its No. 1 Clara Adams, previously slated 9,200-foot venture in Northeast Howard County.

Operator plans to test in the Cisco zone, for completion attempt as a ⅝-mile west and slightly south extension and third well for that pay in the Brooking, Northeast field, and also in an unidentified wildcat zone.

Location also has been amended to 790 feet from north and 200 feet from west lines of section 42, block 33, T-3-N, T&P survey, three miles southwest of Vealmoor. It originally was staked 990 feet from north line of the section.

Pecos well potentials

Phillips Petroleum Co. has completed its No. 1-A Coates as an Ellenburger gas strike 18 miles southeast of Bakersfield in Pecos County.

The new well gauged a calculated, absolute open flow potential of 10 million cubic feet of gas per day, with gas-liquid ratio measuring 32,500-1.

Completion was effected through perforations at 12,951-13,499 feet, after treating the pay zone with 9,000 gallons of acid and fracturing with 40,000 gallons and flushing with 10,000 gallons.

It was drilled to 14,103 feet, and has 5½-inch pipe set at 13,566 feet.

Wellsite is 1,200 feet from south and 760 feet from west lines of section 57, block 2, CCSD&RGNG survey.

Wildcat projects set in West Texas areas

Exploration activity has been scheduled for Edwards, Runnels, Stonewall, Schleicher and Tom Green counties.

Amoco Production Co. intends to drill No. 1 Ruth S. Franks, a 10,100-foot venture in Edwards, 11 miles south of Rocksprings.

Location is 1,924 feet from north and 1,833 feet from west lines of section 12, block 17, GC&SF survey, about 15 miles south of the Campanero (Canyon) gas field.

RUNNELS TRY

The Runnels test, a 4,000-foot project, is James K. Anderson, Dallas, No. 1 Cora Byers.

The prospector spots 3,446 feet from north and 6,973 feet from east lines of Austin & Williams survey 262, four miles north of Benoit. It also is one mile south of the recent Dog Bend oil reopener in the Ashton field.

STONEWALL EXPLORER

Sojourner Drilling Corp. of Abilene has scheduled No. 1 M. L. Jones, a 5,900-foot try in Stonewall, seven miles southwest of Aspermont.

It is 1,980 feet from south and 2,104 feet from east lines of section 184, block 1, H&TC survey, 1⅛ mile northeast of the depleted Strawn opener in the Frankirk, Northwest field.

SCHLEICHER WORKOVER

R. F. Thomas of Paris has announced intention to clean out to wildcat depth of 4,500 feet at No. 1 L. W. Steen, a Schleicher County, 6,940-foot failure, 14 miles southwest of Christoval.

It originally was drilled by Seneca Oil Co. and Tucker Drilling Co., Inc. and abandoned in 1959.

Location is 660 feet from north and west lines of section 1205, TCRR survey, 1⅝ mile southeast of the Ju-Jan-Jac field in Tom Green.

TOM GREEN REENTRY

R. F. Thomas also plans to clean out to 5,672 feet and make tests in the Canyon "A" through perforations at 5,660-5,672 feet, at No. 2 Alice Duff Heirs, a Tom Green failure.

G. W. Strake, et al, drilled the project in 1957 as No. 1 Alice Henderson, and abandoned it at a total depth of 6,986 feet.

Location is 660 feet from south and west lines of section 1187, GC&SF survey, ⅞ mile southwest of 4,550-foot production in the Ju-Jan-Jac field. It also is 65 feet west of the same operator's No. 1 Margaret Hallman, an active wildcat and 14 miles southwest of Christoval.

Wolfcamp test flows

Cities Service Oil Co. No. 3-AB Government, one mile northwest of Wolfcamp production in the Russell field of Eddy County, N. M., flowed condensate and gas on production tests in the Wolfcamp.

Operator perforated casing from 9,096 to 9,144 feet and acidized with 6,000 gallons.

On a 16-hour test, the outpost flowed 90 barrels of condensate, 90 barrels of load water and gas at the rate of 2.8 million cubic feet per day. The flow was on a 20/64-inch choke.

Then, on a 6½-hour test through a 20/64-inch choke, No. 3-AB Government flowed 62 barrels of 42.4-gravity condensate, 4 barrels of load water and gas at the rate of 2.8 million cubic feet per day.

Operator went in hole with a bottomhole pressure bomb and the project now is shut in.

Location is 1,980 feet from south and west lines of section 10-20s-28e, nine miles northeast of Carlsbad.

Iran plans to invest in Occidental stock

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Iran plans to invest $125 million in Occidental Petroleum Corp. stock in a deal providing for the U.S. firm's participation in development of Caspian Sea oil and in the processing and marketing of other Iranian oil, the government announced today.

The deal also includes Occidental's participation in cattle breeding in Iran and Iranian participation in the company's real estate operations and refineries.

In addition, Iran was given an option to buy $125 million worth of Occidental common stock.

The Iranian minister of economic affairs and finance, Hushang Ansari, and Occidental's chairman and chief executive officer, Dr. Armand Hammer, signed a letter of intent for the agreement Sunday. It requires approval by the Occidental board and the Iranian and U.S. governments.

Iranian officials said the transaction was as significant as Iran's purchase of a 25 per cent interest in the steel division of the West German Krupp industrial empire.

Under terms of the agreement, oil-exporting Iran will buy 6.25 million shares of Occidental's cumulative voting preferred stock for $125 million, entitling it to one seat on the Occidental board of directors, and will also get warrants for the same amount of common stock.

The warrants will be valid for 10 years and can be exercised after five years at $20 a share.

Joint exploration and development of Caspian Sea oil deposits will be the first involvement of a foreign company in oil operations in the huge inland sea between Iran and the Soviet Union. The Soviet government has been trying for many years to get Iran to join it in oil exploration in the Caspian, where Iranian-Soviet cooperation currently is limited to the caviar and fishing industries.

Hammer has been a pioneer in Soviet-American trade and has negotiated several large deals with the Russians.

Discovery potentials

Mesa Fetroleum Co., Midland, No. 4 Nash Unit, Eddy County, N.M., Cherry Canyon discovery, has been completed for a 24-hour pumping potential of 58 barrels of oil, with gas-oil ratio measuring 776-1.

The completion was through perforations at 4,785-4,788 feet, amount of treatment not reported.

It was drilled to 5,100 feet, where 5½-inch casing is seated, and then plugged back to 4,873 feet.

Wellsite is 990 feet from north and 230 feet from east lines of section 13-23s-29e, 10 miles northeast of Loving.

Tertiary injection program approved

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — An application by Amoco Production Co. to conduct a pilot tertiary program on its unit in the Slaughter Field in Hockley County was approved Monday by The Railroad Commission of Texas.

The application will involve the injection of 2.7 million cubic feet per day of waste gas obtained from the Slaughter gasoline plant.

Comissioners Jim C. Langdon amd Mack Wallace signed the order after an almost hour-long conference with assistant field operations director James E. Smith, examiner at the Nov. 13, 1975 hearing on the application, and Authur H. Barbeck, oil and gas division chief engineer.

The purpose of the program is to determine if carbon dioxide is a valuable tertiary injection fluid for the resrvoir rock found in the Slaughter field and other similar San Andres reservoirs in the West Texas area.

LThe injection gas to be used in the pilot program is approximately 71 per cent dioxide and 29 per cent hydrogen sulphide, Smith told the commissioners.

The order in the Oil and Gas Division proceeding included a time limit of two years, requires that injection pressure be limited to 1,800 pounds and mandates submission to the commission of months progress and safety monitoring reports.

The injection gas will be carried to the six injection wells via a seven-mile-long high pressure pipline buried six feet in the area.

Langdon noted that the program, if successful, puts the state at the threshold of a real breakthrough towards additional recovery of oil in West Texa.

DRILLING REPORT

ANDREWS — Gulf No. 1-RC State; drilling 12,742 feet in lime, dolomite. A 1¼-hour drillstem test in the Devonian from 12,551-12,706 feet, using a ¾-inch choke, recovered 800 feet of oil- and gas-cut drilling mud, plus 2,200 cubic centimeters of oil- and gas-cut drilling mud from the sample chamber.

X-ray falsification charged in pipeline work

By RICHARD L. LYONS
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — —In their rush to complete the 800-mile Alaska oil-pipeline, workmen failed to inspect, or let pass, at least 3955 faulty welds that now must be rechecked at considerable cost and possible loss of time.

Delayed for years by litigation and slowness of Congress to give legislative approval, work on the pipeline began early last year and is expected to be put in operation by the middle of 1977. It will then pump about two million barrels of oil a day — slightly more than 10 per cent of the nation's needs — from the north down to Valdez where it will be loaded on tankers and shipped to the West Coast.

Construction involved welding together 80-foot long lengths of 48-inch pipe and then burying them under permafrost and streams or elevating them above ground.

Peter L. Kelley, former employe of a company whose job was to check the adequacy of each weld by an X-ray process, told a House Energy Subcommittee Monday, that he was ordered by superiors to falsify X-rays in a rush to keep pace with the welders.

Kelley said there was trouble with the x-ray equipment last summer and the inspection teams fell miles behind the welders. He said he was ordered to falsify X-rays — and did falsify about 30 — in order to catch up. Kelley said he knew of other workers falsifying x-rays of welds over a 70-mile segment of the pipeline.

Kelley testified under oath that he kept a record of falsified X-rays which he was going to turn over to inspectors "until it was clear to me they were in on the deal." He said he no longer has the records.

Kelley was fired last September from his job with Ketchbaw Industries. He believes it was because he was keeping a record of false X-rays. Kelley then sued his former employer and this first publicized the irregularities.

The danger is that a faulty weld would cause a leak in the pipeline and spill oil across Alaska.

Kelley testified that he never saw a federal inspector while working on the pipeline for about three months. Undersecretary of Transportation John W. Barnum, whose department includes the office of pipeline safety, testified that his department had no fulltime personnel in Alaska.

DOT first learned of the problem welds when Kelley filed his law suit. The department made no inspection of its own, but relied on Alyeska, the company building the pipeline, to make its own audit and report that there were 3,955 questionable welds — either inadequate or falsely X-rayed and of unknown quality.

Subcommittee Chairman John D. Dingell, D-Mich., said it appeared to him that DOT had been "tranquilly sleeping" when it should have been making an independent check.

About 2,200 of the questionable welds have not been checked or corrected. Nearly 1,000 of them buried under 12 feet of permafrost or under rivers.

Under traditional methods of testing, the questionable sections of welded pipe would have to be dug up out of the ground for inspection. Interior officials said Monday this would be damaging to the eivnornment as well as costly and time consuming.

Alyeska wants to use what it calls an equivalent method such as ultrasonic testing or acoustical imaging inspection which would not require the pipe to be dug up.

Undersecretary of Interior D. Kent Frizzell, whose department's main concern is protection of the environment, said Alyeska has "reaffirmed its determination to complete the pipeline on schedule."

Even a six to eight-month delay in completion of the pipeline, apparently would not cause any delay in the first delivery of oil. The mid-1977, pipeline is scheduled for completion in November, but the coastal terminal at Valdez is not scheduled for completion until

Cotton

NEW YORK (AP) — Cotton futures No. 2 were higher in midday dealings today.

Prices fell back after early gains. Initial strength was influenced by higher grain and soybean markets, brokers said.

Traders evened up positions prior to first notice day Thursday for the July 1976 contract.

The average price for strict low middling 11-16-inch spot cotton advanced 183 points to 73.30 cents a pound Monday for the 10 leading markets, according to the New York Cotton Exchange.

Late afternoon prices were 50 cents to $3.65 a bale higher than the previous close. Jul 77.10, Oct. 77.80 and Dec. 75.50.

Dow drops back near 1,000 level

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market pulled back today, once again running into rough going above the 1,000 level in the Dow Jones industrial average.

The closely followed average of 30 blue chips was down 5.16 at 1,002.29 at noontime, and losers held a slight lead over gainers in the over-all tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said traders who had watched the Dow bog down repeatedly at just above the 1,000 mark this year were selling on the assumption that the pattern would be repeated this time.

NCR was the most active NYSE issue, off ⅛ at 32⅜. A 175,000-share block traded at 32¼.

The Big Board's composite index of all its listed common stocks slipped .14 to 55.39. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .02 at 105.07.

Volume increased slightly on the NYSE, with 9.13 million shares changing hands in the first two hours against 7.18 million in the comparable period Monday.

In the day's economic news, the government reported that its consumer price index rose at a 7.2 per cent annual rate in May, for its sharpest rise in six months.

But brokers said the figure was about what most of the financial community had been expected.

Corley fights for seat at convention

By ED TODD

R. L. "Bob" Corley, who claims he was possibly denied a delegate's spot to the Democratic National Convention, says he will file suit against someone in order to get seated.

Corley, a Gov. George Wallace delegate-candidate in the May 1 presidential preference primary, came in fourth in that race and hence lost out in his bid for one of three delegates from the 25th State Senatorial District.

The three "winners" from the 35-county district were bound to cast their votes in behalf of Jimmy Carter, the Democratic party's apparent nominee for the presidency.

However, one of the three, Carmen Guiterrez of Del Rio, turned out to be an alien — a Mexican citizen — and therefore ineligible to be a delegate or to vote in any U.S. election.

She, one of 98 elected delegates, was unseated Saturday at the party's state convention in Houston.

And Corley maintained that he was the logical and legal successor to Mrs. Guiterrez.

Corley, a Midland independent oil operator, was at the state convention as a county delegate.

"If she's ineligible (to be a presidential delegate), which she was," Corley said Monday, "then the candidate that receives the next most number of votes gets the office. That's me."

However, the Houston convention chose not to go that route and instead named an alternate — Delia Gonsalez — to succeed Mrs. Guiterrez.

Corley, who protested his not being automatically elevated to national-delegate status, contends the Houston delegation cannot legally do what they did.

"When a delegate resigns," he told The Reporter-Telegram, ". . . then the (state) delegation itself can pick the replacement from the alternate delegates. But I'm saying she (Mrs. Guiterrez) was never elected because she was ineligible. I'm saying that I was elected.

". . . The candidate that receives the next most number of votes gets the office."

Corley, apparently bent on being a delegate to Democratic party's July 12-15 convention in New York City, said he will fight in or out of court to get that delegate's seat that he claims is rightfully his.

The Houston convention actly wrongfully and hastily in naming an alternate to replace the ousted Mrs. Guiterrez, wife of a Del Rio elementary school principal, A. E. Guiterrez, Corley said.

"All I want is for them to go by the law and to do what is right," Corley said.

Word was passed around the state convention Friday night that Mrs. Guiterrez was an alien and was soon to be unseated. (Her brother-in-law, Dr. Alfredo Guiterrez, is mayor of Del Rio.)

However, even before the May 1 presidential primary, Tom Henderson, who had selected Mrs. Guiterrez as a Carter delegate-candidate, knew of her alien status. But it was too late to change the ballots.

Henderson, of Ingram, is a Carter delegate and currently is serving on the staff of State Comptroller Bob Bullock.

At the time Mrs. Guiterrez was placed on the ballot, Henderson was on the campaign staff of U.S. Rep. Bob Krueger of Kerrville. Mrs. Guiterrez and her husband, reportedly, worked for the party at the grassroots level. (The third delegate from the senatorial district is Linda Shoemaker, a San Angelo school teacher.)

The woman, Mrs. Gonsalez, who "beat" Corley out of the delegate's seat, is politically controversial in Del Rio and Val Verde County.

She had supported the minority Raza Unida party but lost out in her bid for political offices. Under the Democratic party's banner she recently ran for justice of the peace and lost. Earlier, she was defeated in her race for district clerk.

Henderson claims he was unaware of Mrs. Guiterrez' alien status at the time she was named to go on the ballot as Carter delegate-candidate.

Corley said Midland lawyer Trey Lohmann will be handling any legal action he might take in his cause.

Corley said he is not out to hurt anyone's campaign or to cause a split in the Democratic party.

"I'm just out to follow the law and get a clarification for future elections," Corley said this morning.

Council alters funding request

The Midland City Council realigned its allotment of 1976 Community Development funds in an effort to comply with recommendations from the Department of Housing and Urban Development in a special session Monday.

Included in the new application to HUD will be $160,000 for rehabilitation of owner-occupied homes to result in the city's obtaining a grant from HUD. The city's previous application had set aside $43,000 for housing rehabilitation.

Mike Butler, Community Development coordinator for the city, said no other city in Texas has really tried this method of using Community Development funds. The council opted for this plan noting it could not agree with the HUD proposals of either section 8 or a combination of sections 23 and 235.

Section 8 involves existing housing and new construction, while the combination of sections 23 and 235 involves some rental and some owner-occupied homes.

Allotments reset by the group to allow $160,000 to be used for the housing rehabilitation program include $20,000 for code enforcement, down from the previous $25,000; $21,000 for clearing and demolition, down from $28,000; $135,000 for paving and drainage, down from $205,000; and $65,000 for park rehabilitation, down from $100,000.

The allotments remaining the same were $142,000 for inner-city area rehabilitation; $23,000 for planning and program management, and $10,000 for contingencies.

The total of the available funds is $576,000.

Brewery strikers continue talks

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Striking brewery workers and Pearl Brewing Co. officials scheduled another round of contract talks today as Pearl cranked up its operations without union workers.

Pearl reopened its canning, shipping and packaging production lines Monday and planned to begin brewing beer today.

Lee Birdsong, president, said the company would draw on 170 salaried and supervisory personnel to run the plant, which had been closed by a strike since June 12.

Birdsong estimated it would take at least 10 days to get production up to 50 per cent. He said continued production was necessary to protect Pearl's competitive position in the market.

Gray high tide at Valverde ford

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Texas author William E. Syers has written a new book, "The Devil Gun," which is being published by G. P. Putnams Sons, Inc.

Syers excerpted a portion of the book which deals with the Conferate invasion of the West. The third of six installments appears below.)

By WILLIAM EDWARD SYERS

By the end of February 1862, America realizes that her less-than-year-old Civil War promises no quick end, but a fearfully drawn-out struggle.

In fearful fighting, Richmond has refused to fall. At Fort Donelson on the Tennessee, some new Union General named Grant has exacted unconditional surrender. Fighting has spread to Missouri and Arkansas. Rumors surface about iron ships that float — a confederate Merrimac, a Union Monitor. A long, grim war.

Yet almost unknown to the country — telegraphy scarcely reaches beyond the Mississippi — its new West appears very nearly in the hands of the Confederacy.

On Feb. 21, 100 miles south of Albuquerque, General Henry H. Sibley'e Army of New Mexico - principally Texas cavalry — has won a signal victory at a rocky Rio Grande ford named Valverde. Tiny Albuquerque is about to burn and Santa Fe, to fall. Within a week, Arizona Rangers will hoist the Stars and Bars over Tucson and post scouts near Fort Yuma on the California line.

High tide, Confederacy west.

There is no way to know that in victory, Sibley has planted the seeds of ultimate failure, and in the capture of a crack Union artillery battery, hia ragged troopers have taken to themselves what will prove their only western trophy, yet even in defeat, a symbol prim heroism seldom matched in our military annals.

But that is getting ahead of things.

With some 3,800 men in central New Mexico - less than half of them regulars - Col. Edward R. S. Canby had chosen the battleground. Near Socorro on the mountaingirt Rio Grande, he felt that the walls of Fort Craig provided his West's best stronghold.

Most of Canby's troops were hurriedly-enlisted New Mexico militia, and even one of their commanders, the indomitable scout, Kit Carson, doubled his men's zeal for battle. Against Indians, yes; they had held this country for more than two centuries But these men had little interest in the cause of either North or South.

Still, Canby reasoned that they were as tested as the rawhide troopers nearing collision with them. He has a sprinkling of other westerners, principally Colorado mountain men; he occupied the strengthened redoubts at Fort Craig with excellent artillery and the best small arms in the army.

He had faced his problems — high command disinterest in the West, too few men, lack of money. His troops had not been paid for almost a year; how now to hold the militia? He had to check two near mass desertions and finally, he had borrowed on U.S. credit in his own name. He had rebuilt his strategic supply depot into a defensible Fort Union and had enormously strengthened Craig.

Time, terrain and weather, he knew on his side. His spies reported that Sibley's army was freezing and had scarcely two weeks' rations remaining. And that army had toiled north, 200 miles from El Paso into the teeth of mountain winter.

Now, if he could repel attack on this fort...

Sibley's Brigade does not attack. From desert rock and fort walls for a week, almost seven thousand men stare at each other, while sand and snowstorm besets them all.

Then the Confederates — a column of 3,000 men with their long, creaking supply train — take a strange gamble. Short of the fort, they leave the meagre riverbank road and across foureen miles of volcanic rock and scrubby sand hummocks, hack their own new trail. They will bypass Craig and regain the Rio Grande's water to the north.

For almoat three thirst-tortured days, they toil their desert circle, wagons breaking down, teams stampeding for drink. Just beyond artillery range, Crang's defenders watch, feint occasional attack, raid the strung-out lines at light.

Then under the stern half-cone of a mountain called Black Mesa, the guard and landmark of Valverde ford even today, Canby's men come out to hold the crossing.

Like almost all other battles, Valverde is an unrelenting if confused struggle by each adversary to turn his enemy's flank. All day, February 21, it fills the narrowly-confined, bosque-laced approaches with charge and counter attack. A Federal assault is thrown back; Confederate lancers are decimated in canister, then a battalion in head-on charge. But that charge proves a feint.

The main attack sweeps a quarter mile to the river where six guns had been crossed, takes those guns at shotgun point, pins Canby's troops against Black Mesa and the river itself. Cold twilight sees very nearly a rout.

Then Sibley's strange decision. Instead of assaulting the fort with its own guns, he grants an astonishing two-days' truce. After that it is too late; the Confederate Army of New Mexico will eat and rest and sleep warm another night.

Not all of them will sleep warm; that was the other pyrrhic factor in the victory. The night raids against Sibley's exposed, desert-circling column had burned most of the First Regiment's wagona and had stampeded its teams. The battle has cost their horses. wagons and had stampeded its teams. The battle had cost their horses. They were now afoot, without tents and blankets.

And it had begun to snow harder.

Siege is unthinkable. Then leave Fort Craig "corked in its bottle," Sibley exhorts. Supply dumps lie ahead, at Albuquerque Santa Fe and — prize of them all — at lightly-held Fort Union, only 300 more moles northward. Sibley's men, suffering and furious, take up the line of march. No choice but north; the other way, starvation waits.

Ahead of them now retreat grim smoke signals — at Albuquerque, some of the big ranches. At Santa Fe, even the flagpole has been sawed down. But now, Fort Union is less than 90 miles distant and on the map, the West is Confederate, from Colorado's golden mountains to California's blockade-proof ports.

What matter if a new Federal force marches south, the tough mountain men of Colorado's First Volunteers? What matter if fourteen hundred Californians are on the road east from Fort Yuma: What matter near starvation, illness and exposure? Take Fort Union, and Sibley's men have supplies enough to survive to spring thaw. Then the promised volunteers will arise out here. And by then, surely the Confederacy will reinforce. Haven't couriers hammered east all the way to Virginia, if necessary?

They have indeed. They will return with Jeff Davis' personal congratulations and the assurance of help. That word will arrive even as Sibley's tattered remnants reach Texas in retreat.

Retreat is not far ahead. Before that comes a battle won and strategy lost in a narrow-walled canyon debacle called Glorieta Pass by the Gray. The Blue will know it as Apache Canyon and Pigeon's Ranch, high in the mountains east of Santa Fe.

By whatever name, it will prove to be the first Gettysbury the one in the west.

Next: Gettysburg at Glorieta.

New ideas may hike lamb use

WASHINGTON (AP) — New methods of processing lamb for the consumer market are showing some promise for reversing the long-time decline in lamb consumption, according to the Agriculture Department.

The new methods use lamb meat such as briskets, neck meat and trimmings to fabricate "steaks" and other products. The methods have been developed by both government and private companies, a report by the department's Agricultural Research Service said.

The meat comes from "nonprimal" cuts of lamb which in the past have not been in much demand. Consumers prefer prime cuts such as legs, chops and roasts which have put those in generally short supply.

According to the agency, fabricated lamb steaks from the other cuts have been accepted for future purchasing by the U.S. armed forces and are being gradually made available at civilian retail stores in some areas of the country.

NOTICE

The Board of Trustees of the Greenwood Independent School District on June 8, 1976, passed an ordinance relating to the fixing and establishing of certain Authorized Collection Expenses in connection with delinquent property taxes owed to the School District, providing for repeal and severability clauses and further providing that the Ordinance would be effective on the last day of publication of this notice, June 24, 1976. The Ordinance includes provisions for recovery of receipt and evidence charges and legal expenses, this last items being set at fifteen percent (15%) of the delinquent taxes and interest and/or penalty owed, with a minimum of $1.50.

THE STATE OF TEXAS
COUNTY OF MIDLAND

WHEREAS, on the 20th day of August, 1975, in Cause No. T-1343, in the District Court of Midland County, Texas, wherein Midland Independent School District, City of Midland, Texas, the State of Texas, and the County of Midland, Texas were Plaintiffs, Impleaded Party Defendants, and Intervenors, and recovered judgment against O. B. Jones, et ux, Defendant, for taxes, penalty, interest, and cost against the hereinafter described property;

WHEREAS, on the 15th day of June, 1976, by virtue of said judgment and the mandates thereof the Clerk of the above mentioned District Court of said county did cause to be issued an Order of Sale commanding me as Sheriff of said county to seize, levy upon, and sell in the manner and form as required by law, the hereinafter described property;

WHEREAS, by virtue of said judgment and said Order of Sale and the mandates thereof, I did on the 15th day of June 1976, seize and levy upon as the property of the above defendant the following discribed property, situated in Midland County, Texas, to-wit: Lot 6, N 10' of 7 thru 12, S 40' of 50' of 7 & 12, Block 120, Southern Addition, an addition to the City of Midland, Midland County, Texas as shown by deed from H. O. Cain et ux by QCD from Carl Pate et al in recorded in Vol. 416, Page 462 of the Deed Records of Midland County, Texas as dated: 11—63.

And I will, on the first Tuesday in the month of July, 1976, the same being the 6th day of said month, proceed to sell all the right, title, and interest of the defendant in and to said property at the Court House door of said county in the city or town of Midland, at 2:00 P.M., to the highest bidder for cash; provided, however, that none of said property shall be sold to the owner of said property directly or indirectly or to anyone having an interest therein or to any party other than a taxing unit which is a party to this suit for less than the amount of the adjudged value of said property or the aggregate amount of judgments against said property in said suit, whichever is lower, subject also to the right of the Defendant to redeem same in the time and manner provided by law and subject also to the right of the defendant to have said property divided and sold in less divisions than the whole.

Said sale is to be made by me to satisfy the judgment rendered in the above styled and numbered cause, together with interest, penalties, and cost of suit; and the proceeds of said sale are to be applied to the satisfaction thereof, and the remainder, if any, to be applied as the law directs.

DATED at Midland, Texas, this the 15th day of June, 1976.

Ed Darnell
Sheriff, Midland County, Texas
W. T. Mitchell

Archbishop bars minister from priestly duties

By DONALD P. BAKER
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The Rev. Guido John Carcich, who built the massive investment portfolio for the Pallottine Fathers religious charity with the small contributions intended to support missionary activity, has been indefinitely barred from all priestly duties in the Baltimore Catholic Archdiocese by Archbishop William D. Borders.

Borders' action was taken shortly after news stories began to reveal that the Baltimore-based religious order was diverting money to, among other things, loans for politically connected individuals, including Maryland Gov. Marvin Mandel.

Borders announced his action following the release last week of an audit showing that only 2.5 cents of every dollar contributed had found its way to the missions and that Carcich had received business interests and money from people doing business with the Pallottines.

"I took some positive action immediately on that," Border said.

A spokesman for the Archbishop said Borders had requested that Carcich's superior, the Rev. Fr. Domenick T. Graziadio, the Pallottines' provincial, order Carcich to "leave this diocese, and Father Graziadio did as I requested."

Carcich now is serving as an assistant parish priest in New Jersey.

Although Carcich was removed from Baltimore late last year, The Pallottines made no announcement until April, when the small Catholic order's lawyer, Joseph M. More of Philadelphia, said that Carcich had been transferred.

According to the Rev. Fr. John Geaney, the Archbishop's spokesman, the procedure "in extraordinary cases, where scandal might be involved," would include notification of the bishop of the receiving diocese of the circumstances under which the transfer was made. Father Graziadio could not be reached Monday to be asked if the Bishop of Newark knew about Carcich's banishment from Baltimore.

The Archbishop made it clear that while Carcich "did not have a vow of poverty, and was not obligated to return the money he made," that his action was not proper. Border said while "it is not my role to comment on legal liabilities, it is my duty to make a religious judgment." He described the Pallottines practices as "immoral."

Borders had not been aware of the extent of the Pallottines' massive direct-mail operation (in which they spent about $10 million a year to mail nearly 100 million fund-raising appeals), but he had criticized their primary fund-raising scheme, an annual Sweepstakes.

Borders and his predecessor, Lawrence Cardinal Shehan, both had told the Pallottines of their opposition to the Sweepstakes, which awarded automobiles, stereos and pool tables to pre-selected winners. The giveaway, patterned after promotions by Readers Digest and other profit-making firms, ended last December, because of adverse media publicity.

Borders said copies of the Pallottines audit are being sent to Jean Cardinal Villot, the Vatican secretary of state, and Eduardo Cardinal Pezonio, who is in charge of the powerful Vatican office that oversees religious orders, the Congregation for Religious and Secular Institutions.

Until he saw the results of the audit, which showed that the Pallottines distributed only $516,437 to missions out of $20,431,344 contributed in an 18-month period through last Dec. 31, Borders said he relied on statements by Carich that the Pallottines were reforming their operations.

The Archbishop described Carcich as a "workaholic." He said that while Carcich personally made money from shares he was given in various projects, apparently for steering Pallottine money into the projects, that "his lifestyle was very simple."

But Borders also said Carcich was "a very secretive individual."

As an example, the Archbishop said that when the controversy first broke, "I talked to him and I was very, very forceful. I told him very plainly that he was in a very precarious situation, and that it was essential that he reveal to me all the activities of the Pallottines if they were going to present this to the public adequately and if I was going to offer support.

"He obviously did not reveal these operations to me," Borders said.

DEATHS

Newspaperman dies in Houston

HOUSTON — Funeral services for Silas B. Ragsdale, longtime Texas newspaperman and magazine editor, will be at 1 p.m. Wednesday at First Presbyterian Church here, with burial at Galveston Memorial Park at Hitchcock. He died Monday afternoon at St. Luke's Hospital in Houston.

Ragsdale was the father of Mrs. Pat M. Baskin of Midland.

He was born Sept. 15, 1896, in Brownwood. He was graduated from The University of Texas (Austin) in 1918. From 1920 to 1945 he was associated with the Galveston News and Tribune, most of that time as managing editor.

He joined Gulf Publishing Co. in Houston in 1945 as editor of the Petroleum Refiner, now named Hydrocarbon Processing.

He was an elder of the First Presbyterian Church of Houston, a past president of the Downtown Rotary Club of Houston and was listed in Who's Who in America.

Other survivors include his widow, Sadie, and a son, Silas B. Ragsdale Jr. of Hunt.

The family suggests that memorials be directed to the Silas B. Ragsdale Student Loan Fund at the journalism school of either The University of Texas at Austion or Texas A&M University. Both loan funds were established by Texas journalists in 1958.

Campbell rites today

Services for Thomas B. Campbell were today at the First Christian Church with Dr. Ray Bristol, director of the Pastoral Counseling Center, officiating, assisted by the Rev. Steve Edwards, pastor of First Christian Church.

Burial was at Resthaven Memorial Park directed by Ellis Funeral Home.

Campbell died Saturday in the cardiac unit of a Midland hospital.

Pallbearers for Campbell were Pat O'Bryan, Dr. J. W. Donaldson, Dr. James Mailey, Walter Crockett, Richard Peters and Gene McDaniel.

Honorary pallbearers were Alex Clarke, Roy Minear, Earl Chapman, Dr. John R. Mast, Wayne Moore, Allen K. Trobaugh, W. S. Dill and R. A. "Bob" Estes.

The family requests that memorials be directed to the cardiac unit at Midland Memorial Hospital.

Rites pending for Chapman

SAN ANTONIO — Victor Audley Chapman, 70, brother of Mrs. Nell Uhrig of Midland, died Tuesday in a San Antonio hospital.

Services for Chapman are pending in San Antonio.

Other survivors include his widow, two sisters, a son and a grandson.

The family requests memorials be sent to Highland Park Lutheran Church in San Antonio or to a favorite charity.

Howard Coyle dies in Nevada

ARLINGTON — Howard Ray Coyle, 26, of Austin and a former Midland resident died Sunday in Las Vegas, Nev.

Services will be 4 p.m. Tuesday at Arlington with burial at San Benito, Calif.

Survivors include his parents, a paternal grandmother, a maternal grandmother, and a sister.

The family requested memorials be sent to the Ladies Auxiliary of the Midland Memorial Hospital, The Elks' crippled children's hospital or to a favorite charity.

H. G. Lee dies in hospital

LUBBOCK — Howard G. Lee, 61, brother of Mrs. J. W. Thorne of Midland, died Monday in a Lubbock hospital.

Services will be at 2:30 p.m. Wednesday in Western Hills Baptist Church, with burial at Resthaven Memorial Park in Lubbock directed by Sanders Funeral Home.

Lee was born in Bonham and had been a Lubbock resident 40 years. He owned and operated Alco Storm Door Co. He was a member of Western Hills Baptist Church.

Other survivors include the widow, a daughter, two brothers and three grandsons.

Rites pending for Mrs. Smith

Mrs. Joe W. Smith, 40, died Monday evening at her home, 2803 Moss St.

Services are pending at the Rose Hill Cemetery in Oklahoma City, Okla. Local arrangements were made by Ellis Funeral Home.

Mrs. Smith was born June 2, 1936 in Oklahoma City, Okla. She moved to Midland from Houston two and one-half years ago. She was a member of the Portland Avenue Baptist Church at Oklahoma City.

Survivors include her husband, Joe W. Smith; two daughters, Laurie Smith and Lisa Smith of Midland, and a brother, Clarence Gadd of Oklahoma City.

Trustees ask for assurance

The executive director of the Permian Basin Community Centers for Mental Health and Mental Retardation was asked Monday to reassure the board that all expense account expenditures are documented.

Dave Shannon, trustee, asked executive director Bob Dickson at the group's regular meeting to be prepared to give the reassurance at the next month's meeting.

Shannon said he wanted to see all expenses documented and checked annually so that staff members would not have to go back to their files and find receipts for old expenditures.

Youngsters win honors

Several Midlanders won honors at the Midland County 4-H Club playday Saturday.
