County school board adopts plan

Elementary school zones turned back to 1966

By PAT BLAIR
Staff Writer

In one of its shortest meetings on record, the county school board of trustees voted to adopt an elementary school attendance zone plan that will return attendance lines essentially to those established in 1966 and place first through fifth grade classes on all elementary campuses.

The plan was adopted on a motion by School Trustee Horace Naquin — seconded by Annabelle Henry — in a special meeting of the Aransas County Independent School District board at 7 p.m. Tuesday, July 5, in the school administration building. The meeting lasted approximately three minutes.

Some 25-30 interested persons attended the meeting but no comments were made either by the audience or by school board members, two of whom — William Buckley and Margaret Dick — voted against the plan.

Under Plan 3, one of four plans being considered by the school board in an effort to rezone the elementary schools to relieve classroom crowding, all three elementary schools, Rockport, Fulton and Live Oak, will have classes for youngsters in grades one through five. Live Oak does not presently have fifth grade classes. Rockport Elementary will additionally have four kindergarten classes.

Under this plan, Rockport Elementary will have eight first grade classes, four second grade classes and three each of third through fifth grade classes. No vacant rooms will exist at Rockport Elementary when this plan is implemented.

Fulton Elementary will have two classes each of first through fifth grade students. The plan will result in one vacant classroom at Fulton.

Boundary lines for Fulton will be the south boundary of Little Bay Shores to Hwy. 35, across to the intersection of Hwy. 2165 and 1781 and parallel the Live Oak line to Salt Lake. The Salt Lake area will remain in the Fulton district.

Live Oak Elementary under this plan will have three classes each of students in grades one through five and three classrooms will be vacant. The Live Oak district will be bounded on the south by 16th Street to Hwy. 35, then north to Market Street, north on Kossuth to Hwy. 2165, north to the intersection of 1781 and northwest to the Salt Lake.

Those speaking in favor of Plan 3 at the school board's June 27 public hearing on all four proposed plans cited the advantages of a

No solution found in harbor wiring

By TED NORMAN
Managing Editor

The Aransas County Navigation District commissioners met in their regular monthly meeting Tuesday, July 5, and like so many other times before were, after a long heated argument, unable to resolve the problems of the rewiring project for the Rockport Harbor.

Mike McCleskey from Goldston Engineering Company of Corpus Christi appeared before the commissioners prepared to answer questions about the work that Goldston would be doing if the commissioners approved the $3,700 for the work.

Asked if he would use the documents that the district paid Rockport electrician Gary Deason $2,500 to prepare, McCleskey said he would look at the Deason documents and that he wasn't counting on altering them. "I'm giving you all new contracts and documents," said McCleskey, a professional engineer for Goldston.

Commissioner Dave Maguglin, obviously against paying the $3,700 for yet another report on the electrical job, told McCleskey that the district had just recently completed an electrical wiring job on 32 new boat docks built in Rockport Harbor that met the city code and were approved by the city electrical inspector. "This is what we want the rest to look like. Is anything wrong with it?" asked Maguglin.

"Not that I could see in the quick time I had to look at it," replied McCleskey.

"You're going to draw up some plans for 3,700 bucks and then you're going to come out and inspect it, right?" asked Commissioner Hal McKnight of the engineer.

"No sir," responded McCleskey as he explained he would only be drawing up the plans and specifications but not doing inspection work on the project.

Maguglin began a long argument with the engineer and some of the other commissioners when he asked McCleskey if he had a license with the City of Rockport. "I have a license with the state," responded McCleskey.

"I'm talking about Rockport, that's where we are. Would you be willing to take the test?" asked Maguglin as the argument between he and McCleskey heated up.

"I'm not proposing to do the work," answered the engineer.

Turning his attention to the other commissioners Maguglin said, "I want to do it (the rewiring project) with someone who is licensed to work in Rockport."

Lloyd Umfleet, a licensed electrical engineer and member of the audience, said that the City of Rockport doesn't license engineers.

Rockport City Manager Herman Johnson, also in the audience and on the agenda for another matter, spoke up saying, "An electrical engineer is licensed by the state. They do the specs and then a licensed electrician does the work."

Maguglin, still insisting on doing it his way said, "I want to see him (McCleskey) pass the test so we can know he knows what he is doing."

As the arguing seemed to be getting out of hand, Commissioner Kirk Holman made a motion to approve the expenditure and hire the Goldston engineer. The motion died for lack of a second.

McKnight said he thought the district needed a better set of specifications for the electrical job. Then directing his attention to McCleskey he asked, "And that's what you're going to do and it will meet the code of Rockport?"

"Yes sir," replied McCleskey.

"Did the plan we already have meet the code?" asked Maguglin.

"I couldn't tell you," replied McCleskey.

Bait stand unbid second time

By LESLIE ABRAMS
Staff writer

FULTON — The town council received no bids from a concessionaire to lease the bait/concession stand at L.E. Casterline fishing pier for the second time after advertisements for bids were placed in regional newspapers. Council members delayed any action on the matter pending feedback from several persons who expressed interest in leasing the stand but failed to bid.

The stand was first let for bids March 8 and was advertised only in the local news media. When no bids were received, the council voted to make improvements in the stand, adding restrooms, sinks, floor, cabinets and several other items to make the stand more appealing to potential concessionaires. Bids were let a second time, advertised in several regional newspapers, but only four persons expressed an interest in leasing the stand, none of whom put in a bid.

Several council members also suggested leasing a concession stand without bait since there are several bait stands near the pier.

The special meeting was then closed so the workshop meeting could begin at 7 p.m. Alderman Elgin Dietz returned to his seat after a lengthy absence due to illness.

Annexation was first on the list of items discussed during the workshop meeting. The council received a request from Gary LaBerge, the new owner of Woody Acres Trailer Park, to be annexed into the Town of Fulton. Since the resident of the property between Woody Acres and the town limits has also requested annexation and the county has granted Fulton an easement along Railroad Avenue, attorney Gene Garcia said he sees no problem with LaBerge's request unless his property is within the extraterritorial jurisdiction of Rockport.

Fulton is also pushing for annexation requests from residents between the town limits on Broadway south to Henderson or possibly Traylor Avenue. Fifty-one percent of the residents of an area to be taken in must request annexation in order for the town to do so. The 51 percent majority does not have to be on a block-by-block basis.

The council also discussed enforcement of the proposed building permit ordinance. Application for the position of building inspector was received by the council from one person. Another alternative discussed was the possibility of entering into a contract with the City of Rockport to have their building inspector provide service to the Town of Fulton.

The question was raised as to whether or not a contract of this type would create problems since Rockport's building inspector is Mike Henry, son-in-law of Fulton Mayor L.E. Casterline. However, Garcia said that he did not think this would be a problem since any contract would be made with the City of Rockport, which would be providing the inspector. Garcia will draft a contract for the next meeting when the ordinance will be read for the third and final time.

The council will also hire someone to do the yard work at the town hall on a regular basis.

A letter from the Texas Highway Department to Fulton states that Fulton cannot assume responsibility for a roadside park adjacent to the T.R. Wendell property

Art association ordinance is up for first reading

First reading of an ordinance that will allow the Rockport Art Association to locate the O'Connor House on Rockport Beach for use as an art center is scheduled in Tuesday night's, July 12, meeting of the Rockport city council.

The meeting, set to begin at 7:30 p.m. at City Hall, will also see final reading of an ordinance that would, if approved, annex the 6.327-acre Unit 2 of Morrison Development Corp.'s proposed Easy Acres Subdivision.

Coming before the council for first reading approval is an ordinance granting a special use permit to the Rockport Art Association allowing location of the O'Connor House on a tract the association has leased from the Aransas County Navigation District on Rockport Beach.

The council gave preliminary approval to the request at its June 28 meeting, attended by a number of art association members including Association President Cam Leonard. At that meeting, during a joint public hearing of the city council and city planning and zoning commission, Leonard showed a proposed site plan for the art center and told the council the art association plans to request the closing of an adjoining street to provide for more "green space" around the building.

If the council approves the ordinance on first reading Tuesday, it will come before the council on a second reading for final approval.

Also coming up for first reading Tuesday night will be an ordinance annexing the 15.131-acre Unit 1A of Rockport Country Club Estates.

Another ordinance up for first reading would grant a special use permit to William G. (Bill) Walston and James L. Anderson Jr. to allow placement of a double-wide mobile home on a lot at Market and Ann for use as a residence.

Status report due on water plant repairs

LAMAR — What directors hope will be the final report on status of repairs of the Aransas County Municipal Utility District's water plant is due at a meeting of the district at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday, July 12.

The report will be from Bud Marsh of Membrane Systems Inc. of Corpus Christi whose company received the contract last fall for repair of the plant. In a status report on the work made last month, Marsh said the plant was to be run under monitoring by the end of June and should be ready to turn over to the district by July 15.

MSI was the only bidder on the plant repair project last September. The company agreed that for $68,000, it would reconstruct the reverse osmosis water treatment system so that it would deliver 125,000 gallons of water per day with a total dissolved solid content of 200 parts per million (below the minimum set by the state).

In other action, the utility district directors will consider an addendum to the district's contract with Lamar Water Supply Corp. (LWS).

The contract, under which the utility district will sell water to LWS for resell to Lamar customers, was approved early last month but the district subsequently voted to clarify three points of the agreement.

Included in the addendum to the contract is a proposal that LWS be responsible for maintaining any part of its system not being used by the utility district and a requirement that LWS be responsible for upgrading the size of any water lines that must be increased as a result of current or future development in the LWS service area.

Central America

Amid warnings by Special Ambassador Richard Stone that four U.S.-backed Central American countries are threatened by a "foreign axis" made up of the Soviet Union and Cuba, the White House released reconnaissance photographs officials said show Soviet ships unloading military and other cargo at the Nicaraguan port of Corinto.

President Reagan expressed grave concern about what he described as "Soviet expansionism, particularly when it comes into the Western Hemisphere."

He revealed there have been several Soviet vessels unloading weapons in Nicaragua for use in the effort to overthrow the "legally constituted" government of El Salvador.

It has been suggested President Reagan is taking a harder anti-Soviet line than other U.S. allies. In light of stepped-up Communist activity in the Western Hemisphere, is it any wonder the president follows a hard line in dealing with the Kremlin?

Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger, commenting on the growing Communist threat in Central America, appeared to rule out use of U.S. combat forces, but did indicate limitation on technical advisors in countries supported by the U.S. is too stringent.

If the U.S. follows its long-standing philosphy of trying to stop the spread of Communism before it reaches our shores, it may become necessary to consider sending troops to Central American countries. It may not be a question of whether we like it or not, but one of ultimate survival for the nation.

There is no question at this juncture that Cuba, 90 miles off our shores, is a vital staging area for exporting Communism to Central America. Although it did not seem so at the time, the U.S. may have made a grave error when it did not drive Communist forces from Cuba and restore control of the government to the people during the 1962 missile crisis.

Such a move may eventually have to be made. If so, it will be much more difficult to dislodge a foreign enemy than it would have been 20-plus years ago when Soviet leader Nikita Khrushchev gambled he could maintain and supply a missile base in Cuba with the capability of destroying U.S. cities.

Americans were so relieved when Khrushchev agreed to remove the nuclear missiles, they probably would not have stood for follow-up U.S. military action in Cuba.

Ambassador Stone delivered his "foreign axis" warning in Guatemala City before visiting countries involved in the Central American conflict, including Costa Rica, El Salvador, Honduras, Guatemala and Nicaragua. The four countries supported by the U.S. are Costa Rica, Honduras, El Salvador and Guatemala.

Although he did not name the foreign influence, his remarks referred to Soviet and Cuban actions in the region through leftist-ruled Nicaragua. He said the threatened nations "must defend themselves diplomatically together."

It is hoped Secretary Weinberger was not speaking after the fact when he said the U.S. has an interest in making sure Central America does not become "a nest of Communist or Marxist-led organizations that make defense of the continental U.S. more difficult."

Although he declined to elaborate, Weinberger told newsmen questioning him about Ambassador Stone's remarks the Soviet Union had sent combat aircraft to Cuba that can carry nuclear weapons. He also said he did not know whether a new increase in Soviet troop strength in Cuba was temporary or permanent.

The U.S. has repeatedly charged Nicaragua with arming and assisting rebels in El Salvador. Nicaragua has denied the charges, accusing the U.S. of supporting rebels trying to overthrow its leftist Sandinista regime.

The dispute was further complicated by expulsion of three U.S. diplomats by Nicaragua and subsequent U.S. action ordering 21 Nicaraguan consular officials to leave. There were reports the U.S. might sever diplomatic relations with Nicaragua, but this was denied by State Department officials.

It will be interesting to see how this political-military struggle between the world's two superpowers comes out in volatile Central American countries.

Must pay as we go

Happily, Texas is not among states facing the probability of deficit spending because of declining revenue that has sent budget balances plunging to all-time lows.

Texas' Constitution prohibits deficit spending. If the state comptroller cannot certify that funds are or will be available, legislators cannot authorize appropriations to pay for state programs.

However, Texas does have a different kind of deficit. Officials are predicting a $397 million shortfall in fiscal 1984, a decline of more than $1 billion from the state's 1982 ending balance.

A National Governors Association survey has confirmed what state officials and many citizens already know: No state is immune to the economic recession. Energy-producing states, in fact, are showing sharply declining revenues.

Even oil-rich states, which in past years have registered largest surpluses, are depleting these balances as their revenues fall with lower oil prices.

Alaska's balance, the survey predicts, is expected to go from $600 million in fiscal 1982 to an expected $300 million deficit in fiscal 1984. Similar results were cited in Wyoming, Oklahoma and Louisiana.

Many economists, including Reagan administration officials, are pointing to unmistakable signs that the nation's economic recovery is under way, but this will not prevent state budget balances from dropping to their lowest totals at the end of fiscal 1983, the survey points out.

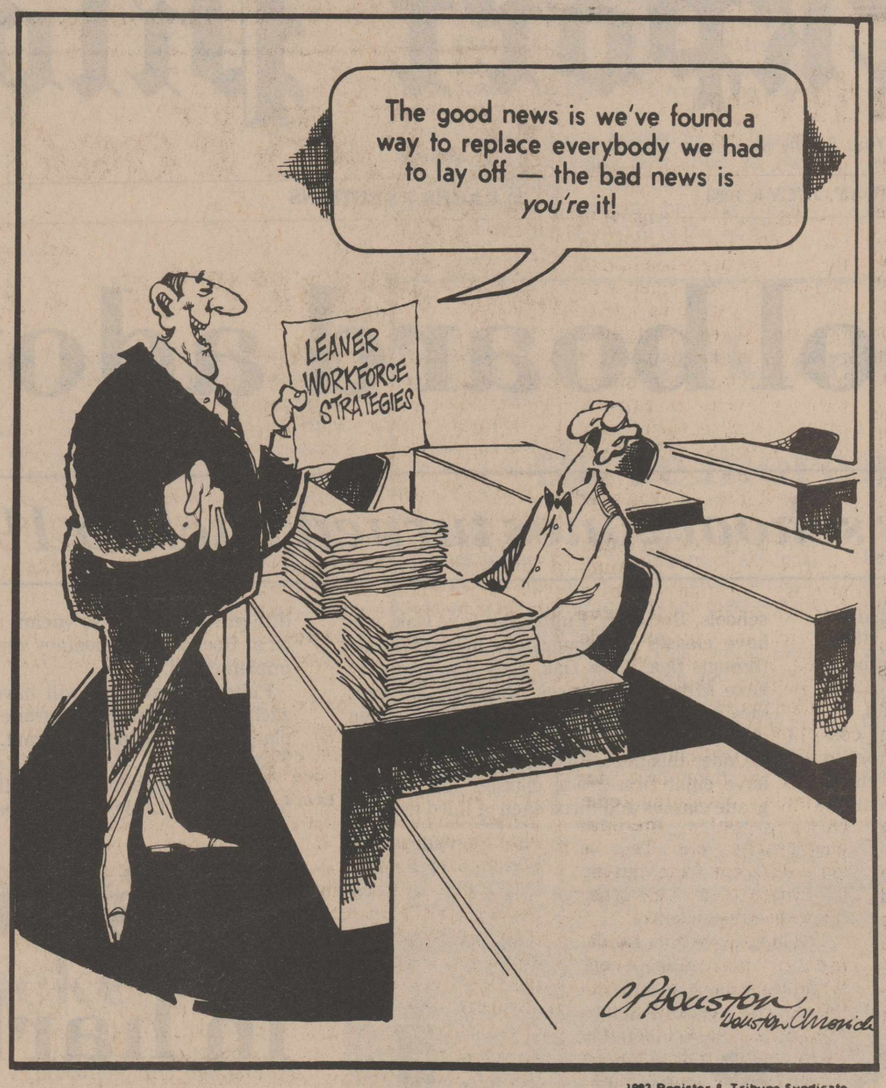

State budget balances in fiscal 1983 are expected to total $345 million, a sizable drop from the $5 billion to $11 billion balances reported in the 1970s. Because of the recession, state spending has been sharply curtailed, and few states predict large revenue gains for 1984.

I deplore the subject

Believe me, I deplore the subject, any discussion of communism, especially when it is anti-communist, and for a very simple reason: I am reminded of those terrible days of the Joe McCarthy witch hunts, in the 1950's when many nominally sane and intelligent citizens were sometimes coerced into seeing a commie behind every bush. For all of this no one can think about circumstances in Central America without thinking at the same time of communism. Perhaps I shall feel better if I turn to using Marxist and Marxism. Here, maybe I feet better already.

Now I have of late read quite a number of articles deploring the actions of the present administration, especially in El Salvador and Nicaragua. All make varying degrees of good sense until they dismiss the Marxist threat, and threat I maintain it to be since a basic concept of the philosophy is to spread communism, Marxism throughout the world, spread it until the planet is totally subject to the concept.

Presently, as I see it, our government is conducting itself in Latin America much as it did in Vietnam, piddling, acting with half serious intent, getting nowhere and all the while confusing the American public. Accordingly I shall advance my own opinion of how this nation should react to the situation. First off let the world know that we mean to carry out the declarations of the Monroe Doctrine. Perhaps it might be well here to refresh some memories as to contents of the 1823 doctrine and the reasons it came to pass. Briefly, President James Monroe in his annual message to Congress on December 2, 1823 made a statement of policy which has come to be known as the Monroe Doctrine. Its major assertion was that the United States would consider as dangerous to its peace and safety any attempt of European powers to extend their political system to any portion of the western hemisphere. Balancing the statement he declared that it would be the policy of the United States "not to interfere in the internal concerns of any European powers."

The doctrine grew from two complications: Russia decreed reservation exclusively for Russian subjects the whole of the northwest coast of North America for commerce, from the Bering Straits to 51 degrees N. Lat. The other part referred to the threat of foreign encroachment on Latin American countries whose independence had been recognized by the United States.

Well, the United States has pretty well lived by the doctrine, except from being admittedly welcomed by Cuba and the Russians in recent years, and now support for dissidents by Russia and Cuba in Nicaragua and El Salvador just for starters.

Here then a formula for Latin America. We should reassert and reaffirm the doctrine to the world. Next declare that the United States will not permit the transport of arms or any war materials to any Latin American countries, meaning almost certainly blockades in the Caribbean and portions of the Pacific Ocean. Next advise all countries that if they wish to conduct revolutions within their own borders that the United States will not interfere until such time as they attempt to expand activities beyond their own borders. In that case the U.S. would use whatever force necessary to support the invaded country, no matter its approval or disapproval of conditions within the invaded country. This country should make it clear that it has no intention to interfere with the retention of formation of whatever kind of government any Latin American country may elect to adopt, for so long as it is not Marxist (read Russia-Cuba), inspired and supported.

We should recognize that democracy as we presume to understand it, is not a way of life acceptable nor comprehensible to many other people in this world, perhaps particularly to Latin America. However, we should be willing to offer aid to any country south of our borders in the form of industrial and agricultural assistance, for as long as the powers in the government demonstrate integrity and stability.

On the much-harped-upon subject of human rights, the United States should understand that it is itself no paragon of virtue, and that mores and concepts on that score are often different in other countries, perhaps particularly in Latin America. All of the above represent positive stances, without room for shilly-shallyng.

No, I don't hold with the LULAC resolution condemning President Reagan for his support of the El Salvador government. But I would say this. If those people want to fight amongst themselves, let them do it with their own bullets, not weapons from Cuba and Russia or the United States. If they choose to settle down we will help them without giving them anything and everthing they want. In that regard we'd see things run about on the same basis as say a United States citizen and his banker. The banker loans the money but has certain rights and controls over the way the money is spent and invested, a protective arrangement for both parties.

Let us be generous in all things, but at the same time firm and resolute.

National effort to cut deficits needed

If current federal income tax collections are an indication, President Reagan's hope that recovery from the recession would generate a hefty increase in revenue, and help him cut the deficit, may not materialize.

April income tax collections failed to provide even a temporary surplus as the federal deficit climbed to $132.5 billion with five months to go in fiscal 1983.

As he contemplates seeking re-election and hopes for better times, the president is gambling that the business recovery will influence Congress, money markets and voters to stop fretting about federal budgets that could exceed $200 billion for several consecutive years.

If Reagan's prediction comes true, business recovery will result in revenue increases that will put him in position to get public support in resisting Democrat tax hike programs and improve his chances of re-election if he decides to run for a second term in 1984.

If his predictions are wrong, rapidly increasing federal deficits, already at an unmanageable level, can be expected to retard recovery. This could again put the private credit sector of the economy in competition with federal borrowing, which would inevitably drive up interest rates. It could also set the stage for a Democratic sweep in 1984 elections.

For April alone the government recorded a $3.3 billion deficit. Last year, April tax collections helped provide a $9.7 billion single-month surplus.

The latest month's deficit was the first April deficiency posted in 19 years, or since the $1.4 billion deficit in April 1964.

Total deficit for the first seven months of this fiscal year exceeds the record for a full year, $110.7 billion set in 1982. The latest White House deficit forecast for the current fiscal year ending Sept. 30 is $210.2 billion.

Discussion at the Williamsburg economic summit conference concerned rising deficits in the world's seven largest industrialized nations, especially in the U.S. Leaders expressed deep concern the pace of current deficit spending would likely curtail full benefits of the economic recovery and possibly shorten its duration.

President Reagan agreed to continue working to hold down U.S. deficits while banking on the recovery surge to make them less important, or at least of less concern, in the overall economic picture.

The staggering U.S. national debt resulting from years of spending above the government's income totals $1.289 trillion. More bad news: Government borrowing is expected to exhaust the congressionally imposed debt limit of $1.290 trillion by the end of June.

Congress is expected to approve raising the debt ceiling to $1.389 trillion in the next few days. Lawmakers have no choice. If they don't approve, government will cease to function.

Everyone in government, with the help of the people, should get to work on cutting national deficits. It's not only President Reagan's responsibility. It's yours too.

As clean as a sailboard

This letter is in response to a letter to the Editor Saturday, July 2. Mr. M.H. Major wrote that he thought sailboards were damaging the shoal water vegetation. I believe a sailboard is one of the purest forms of fun today and if one thinks that a board with a sail for power hurts the environment, he should take a closer look at all the motorized boats in and around the Connie Hagar Wildlife Refuge, and should think of what oil, gas, fumes and turning props do to the same environment before complaining about something as clean and pure as a sailboard. Also if one would take the time to walk the shoreline along Fulton Beach Road, one would find the cleanest place on the shoreline is where the sailboard lessons are given. I know because it is myself and my partner who hauled off two truckloads of trash from the spot. We try our hardest to keep it clean.

Take a close look, open your mind and use your better senses.

Justice, whose justice?

It has been estimated that the United States has a $40 billion crime bill that is growing year afrer year.

When people spend a lifetime working to make an honest living they should be able to save enough to retire in dignity with their own earnings. Many are deprived of this satisfaction when others have access to their purse strings.

It is only common sense to love and respect our neighbors who provide all of the goods and services that we as individuals cannot provide for ourselves.

Low income families contribute just as much charity to unfortunate neighbors as anyone else.

Today there are a great number of people who rush to extend charity and protection to poor and needy child abusers, drug pushers and murderers. Have you ever wondered why?

To deal honorably with destroyers is not a departure from justice when they are provided with the opportunity to inflict pain and suffering again and again.

What is justice? When a crime is committed it cannot be undone.

Whose justice was served at Pearl Harbor? At Hiroshima and Nagasaki? In Nazi prison camps? In London, Vietnam and Lebonon?

A criminal system of laws could concern itself with fact finding and penalties but should never be dignified by the use of the word "Justice."

Whose justice is served when oratory determines the outcome of a case? When penalties cannot wipe the smirk from a career criminal's face?

Whose justice is served when thousands die of starvation daily while uncharitable people are maintained in air conditioned buildings while their neighbors are required to furnish them a comfortable place to stay?

Justice, whose justice?

I look forward to the day one person gets 41 million duns

Editor's note: The Live Oak Philosopher on his grassburr farm seems baffled about the computer age.

Dear Editor:

According to some scientists, we have entered the computer age and the nation that builds the biggest and fastest computer will come out on top. They never say on top of what.

There are a handful of computers now that can perform several hundred million operations per second, but scientists say that's not fast enough. "We have problems that would take 500 to 1,000 hours to solve even on those fast computers," they said.

I have no idea how a person can have a problem that enormous, and if I had one I'd keep it to myself. There'd certainly be no point in taking it before Congress. Might be a matter for the Red Cross.

Nonetheless, U.S. scientists are hard at work trying to build a computer that'll work 1,000 times faster than the best ones already on hand

At the same time, Japan, Russia and a few other countries are doing the same thing. Scientists say whoever gets there first wins and the rest will be at the winner's mercy.

I have a notion that regardless of how big and fast a computer is built, it still won't be able to solve the Mid-East problem or give a clear picture of what's happening in El Salvador or lower the deficit.

The trouble with a computer is that people begin relying on it, turn all their information over to it, and then it blows a gasket. Recently the Stockholm stock exchange was thrown into turmoil when its computer broke down and nobody could buy or sell any stock. Anybody who had stock to sell had to use a classified ad.

But my favorite computer story happened when a company in California sent out 12,000 letters to its customers. The computer got confused while addressing the letters and sent all 12,000 to the same person.

I look forward to the day when one person gets 41 million duns from the IRS and the rest of us get off tax-free.

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

Polaroid: an instant high flyer

By SCOTT BURNS

Sheldon Buckler, clearly pleased, leaned toward his audience.

"It's not very often," he said, "that you get a second chance."

Buckler, executive vice president for technical and industrial photography at Polaroid, was talking about the reincarnation of Polavision in a new instant 35mm slide film called "Autoprocess." The company that invented instant photography has taken the technology from the dismal failure of Polavision instant movies and created a whole new film technology for the rapidly expanding slide photography market. Introduced on the East coast in late April, the film is now available on the West coast and will have international distribution early next year.

Here's how it works:

You put a roll of Polaroid 35mm film in any 35mm camera and take pictures. You remove the film and put it into a (literally) little black box, attach the film leader to a roller, turn a lever, turn a crank, wait 30 seconds, turn the crank again and your film is developed.

That's it. Done.

From there you put the film cartridge in another little machine and fill plastic holders with finished slides.

The whole business is simple, quick and slightly addictive. Even a left-handed klutz like Scott Burns can turn a roll of 36 exposures into slides, ready for viewing, in about four minutes — less time than it takes to drop film off for processing! Priced at $14.95 (before retail discounting) for 36 color slides, Autoprocess is priced competively with the completed cost of conventional slides.

Ironically, Polaroid's presentation was very low-key — "Not a champagne and ice sculpture sort of event," as Buckler put it. Rather than marketing toward the "point and shoot" crowd (of which I am a card-carrying member), Polaroid has focused on the heavy use of slides in business presentations and the surging graphics market.

In fact, while the Wall Street Journal followed Polaroid's presentation with a downbeat article on loss of creative zip at Polaroid, Autoprocess may well be the first step in putting new life into the fallen wonderstock. From its market peak of $149.50 a share (and over 100 times earnings!) in 1972, Polaroid now sells at less than $30 a share and hasn't sold over $33.50 since 1979.

This is about the book value of the company, although it carries substantial plant and equipment, not to mention process technology and patents, on books at zip.

Here's the case for a growth turnaround:

— 35mm is a major growth market. Polaroid officials say (and analysts agree) that the worldwide market is some five billion color slides a year. At 30 cents a slide, this means each 1 percent of the market Polaroid wins will add about 1 percent to total company sales. The company will grow as it penetrates the market, and then grow with the continued growth of 35mm film. (One reason Kodak shares have disappointed investors in the past year is that the new disc film process was launched into a marketplace that is increasingly dominated by higher-quality, but simple, 35mm cameras.)

— Polaroid won't have to sell cameras to sell film. In the past, Polaroid has had to develop its own cameras to be used with its films. While this has added substantial revenues for the company, it has also made for sharp earnings cycles as camera programs have been introduced, matured and phased out. Now the company can market film to an expanded customer base.

This is a fundamental, positive change. Put Autoprocess together with a microcomputer and you've got instant business slide shows. While it has been little noticed, Polaroid has devoted the past few years to creating products to feed into markets that are growing rapidly on their own, for example, computer-generated graphics, medical photography, etc. This is very different from having to create new consumer markets independently.

— Autoprocess fills fundamental consumer need. While Polaroid is promoting the film for professional use, Autoprocess also has the single quality that is behind the success of every major consumer product from cars to washing machines to microcomputers — it adds independence and personal control.

Permits total $200,000

Values of construction started in Rockport last month were down from totals earlier this year, but the city's building valuations still topped $5 million for the first half of 1983.

New residences started in June totalled $172,641 in value, approximately $18,000 more than residential values in May. Largest single residential amount was for a five-room residence in Harbor Oaks Unit 2. Construction value of the structure, for which a permit was issued in late June, is $114,641.

Two other residences started in Rockport during the month accounted for the remainder of the new residence total.

Remodeling and additions to existing residences and businesses in Rockport added another $56,150 to the June building totals. This figure includes an estimated $45,000 to add a den and swimming pool to an existing residence in Harbor Oaks.

One permit was issued during the month for the rebuilding of a pier in Little Bay, at an estimated cost of $1,000, and permits were issued for construction of three fences for a total of $2,250.

Two signs added another $3,100 to the total.

Attorney General

AUSTIN — Advertisements for "Government Surplus Sales" may sound appealing but usually offer information you can obtain from the government free of charge.

A typical offer may sound like this: "Surplus desks, typewriters, jeeps, boats and cars. Under $50. Call this number for information."

These advertisements may appear in printed publications, such as newspapers or periodicals, or on TV or radio. Upon calling the listed number, you are requested to send a sum of money, usually about $20, for a buying guide. This buying guide or booklet simply tells you how to contact government agencies that might be offering surplus items for sale.

Of course, you can obtain information about the availability of surplus equipment free of charge from various government agencies. Usually the purchasing or general services department of local, state or federal agencies can provide you with listings of surplus equipment and the procedures for purchasing this equipment.

It may be more difficult, however, to easily obtain the true bargains that the ads imply since other government agencies are often given the first opportunity to buy. Bargains are available, if you can devote the time necessary to locate them.

Phone solicitations are also used to sell surplus items. Some dealers not connected with the government may use the term "government surplus" in their spiel to grab your attention and make the offer sound too good to pass up. Keep in mind, however that the government does not make special phone solicitations to prospective buyers.

It is also possible that the caller is trying to get rid of stolen government or private property as quickly as possible.

The best way to handle phone solicitations of this nature is to tell the caller you need time to think it over or talk with your "boss." Try to obtain a phone number or the caller's name and address to verify legitimacy. Chances are that you will not be given this information.

Complaints about "bargain government surplus" offers, as well as any other consumer complaints, may be directed to the Consumer Protection Division of the Attorney General's Office. The State Attorney General maintains offices in Austin, Dallas, El Paso, Houston, Lubbock, McAllen and San Antonio.

H-E-B Food Company to celebrate 78th birthday

In 1905, Florence Butt hung an "Open for Business" sign on the door of a one-room grocery store on the ground floor of the Kerrville building she rented for $9.

Currently celebrating its 78th anniversary, H.E.B. Food Stores, the company that had its quiet beginning in that tiny Kerrville storefront, is one of the largest retail grocery operations in central and south Texas. It provides over 16,000 jobs for Texans from Waco to the Valley and Bay City to Del Rio. At the same time, H.E.B. remains a family-owned company and follows a path of quiet philanthropy strongly rooted in tradition.

To trace the company's development is to draw a parallel to Texas' own emergence from a frontier state bound by Hollywood stereotypes to a strong economic and political frontrunner.

In 1905, Theodore Roosevelt occupied the White House, while America braced itself for the tide of immigrants pouring in from Europe, over 1,000,000 strong. In Texas, Kerrville took on a strong identity from the many Germans settling in the area. In those days, trains were the modern way to travel and the new San Antonio Pass Railroad brought tourists to the hill country to enjoy the dry climate and the cool beauty of the Guadalupe.

The influx of permanent settlers, as well as transients, made Kerrville an attractive location for Florence Butt's fledgling grocery store. Shelves were stocked with dry goods and housewares. Barrels lined up on the wooden floor held crackers, pickles, kraut, syrup and vinegar. Shoppers went elsewhere for their dairy products, baked goods, hardware and meats. Mrs. Butt sold $50 worth of groceries her first month in business and her son, Howard, delivered them to customers in a hand-pulled red wagon.

As the shock of World War I began to fade and America's military discharged thousands of troops, Howard returned from the Navy to take over the reins of the family business. Under Howard's direction, careful experimentation and innovation became the company's watchwords for the 1920s.

To keep up with the times, the company instituted cash-and-carry shopping. A second store was opened in Junction and Howard Butt expanded the Kerrville store, adding a meat market and delicatessen. By 1928, Butt Grocery Company was headquartered in Harlingen and had stores throughout the Valley.

The aftershocks of the Wall Street market crash in 1929 echoed across the country, making their mark on Texas, but leaving Butt Grocery relatively unscathed. The company expanded to Laredo and McAllen in 1929 and by 1931, boasted a total of 23 stores. In the shadow of the Depression, the expansion continued to Corpus Christi, Brownsville, Uvalde and southwest to Kenedy, Victoria, Alice and Kingsville. The company had a total of 28 stores by 1935 and was renamed H.E. Butt Grocery Company.

Later in the decade, Howard Butt added two company bakeries and the Harlingen Canning Company to service the rest of the company. In 1940, H.E. Butt Grocery Company relocated in Corpus Christi and opened a new warehouse and bakery that would eventually play a vital part in H.E.B.'s service to the armed forces during World War II. At the same time, the Harlingen Canning Company was packing "Texas-grown" pinto beans, saurkraut, tomatoes and grapefruit to ship to soldiers overseas.

Recognized by the War Food Administration for wartime food processing services, H.E. Butt Company continued its steady growth. At the close of the war, there were 50 stores in all.

Paralleling Texas' burgeoning growth over the last 40 years, H.E.B. tripled in size. Today, the company services 71 south and central Texas cities with 152 stores, two bakeries, a milk plant, a meat plant and an ice cream and frozen food plant. The company also boasts one of the most advanced computer distribution systems in the retail grocery industry.

In addition to its ability to successfully compete with the national grocery chains that have filtered into the area, H.E.B. remains a Texas company in outlook and service orientation. Management teams are most often selected from the communities where their stores are located and they are encouraged to be a part of civic and local activities.

Seventy-eight years of growing with Texas, guided by Texans, has infused H.E.B. with a local identity other interstate grocery chains have been unable to match. Thus, H.E.B. maintains a unique position in the retail grocery market — a position based on an understanding of its customers and their needs that comes only through the sharing of a rich mutual history.

R.A.A., Cove Harbor discussed at meeting

The Rockport Art Association was granted permission to tie into the Aransas County Navigation District existing sewer system when Cam Leonard, president of the group appeared before the commissioners with his request at the June 5 meeting.

After Leonard made his request to the commissioners, Dave Maguglin made a motion that the request be granted. Kirk Holman made a second to the motion and it carried unanimously.

The commissioners also voted to clarify a lease to the Town of Fulton for the land being leased from the ACND and added the term 29 years to the lease.

Commissioner Hal B. McKnight told the other members of the board that the Texas Parks & Wildlife Department had returned the lease to the district and asked that the term, 29 years, be inserted. A McKnight motion to insert the added line to the lease was passed by the board.

The lease between the ACND and the Town of Fulton is for the bicycle, walking and jogging trail that Fulton, the County and ACND are attempting to build with a TP&W grant.

The commissioners also voted to grant a lease to Donnie Nesloney on Lots 121 and 122 at Cove Harbor for $2,500 per year.

There was also a discussion on deepening Lydia Ann Channel from marker 49 to marker 85 and marker 60 to the Intracoastal Waterway. The commissioners set up a workshop meeting Friday, July 8, at 1104 Concho Street where they were to meet with U.S. Congressman Bill Patman to discuss acting as sponsors under Section 107 of the 1960 Rivers and Harbors Act in an effort to get the reportedly $2 million dredge work done.

Man charged with indecency with a child sentenced

The Rockport-Fulton Junior High School custodian charged with indecency with a child stemming from a March 10 incident has pled guilty and was sentenced July 5 in the district court of visiting judge E.W. Patteson.

Edward Arroyos was sentenced to two years with the Texas Department of Corrections, probated, and fined $500 in connection with the incident, which involved a 12-year-old female student.

Arroyos was suspended with pay by the Aransas County Independent School District immediately following the incident. ACISD Superintendent E.J. Randow said Wednesday that Arroyos would not be reinstated.

Loren P. Kager was sentenced to 10 years with the TDC, probated, and given a $500 fine in each of two cases. Kager was charged with unlawful delivery of marijuana.

Michael O. Pennington sentenced to seven years with the TDC, probated, and fined $1,000 after pleading guilty to charges of indecency with a child.

Don Edward Berry was sentenced to three years with the TDC after he was convicted of subsequent offense DWI.

Treasurer seeks safe deposit box owners

The Texas State Treasury is taking steps to return to Texas and the rightful owners several hundred safe deposit boxes lost during the Great Depression.

The boxes were in banks that failed during the Depression and as a result are now in the hands of the federal government, according to Texas State Treasurer Ann Richards.

Richards has released a list of 767 names in 17 Texas communities of owners of boxes that were lost. "Our claim (on the boxes) is on its way to Washington," she said, adding it is not yet known when the contents of the boxes will actually be returned to Texas.

She said a law passed by Congress last October — the Garn-St. Germain Act — authorizes the U. S. Comptroller of the Currency to return the contents of the 50-year-old safe deposit boxes to the rightful owners or to the state where the bank was located, if that state has an unclaimed property program.

Texas was the first state to inquire about the abandoned boxes last April, Richards added.

"When we first contacted the federal government about this, they hadn't even written the procedures for handling claims," she said.

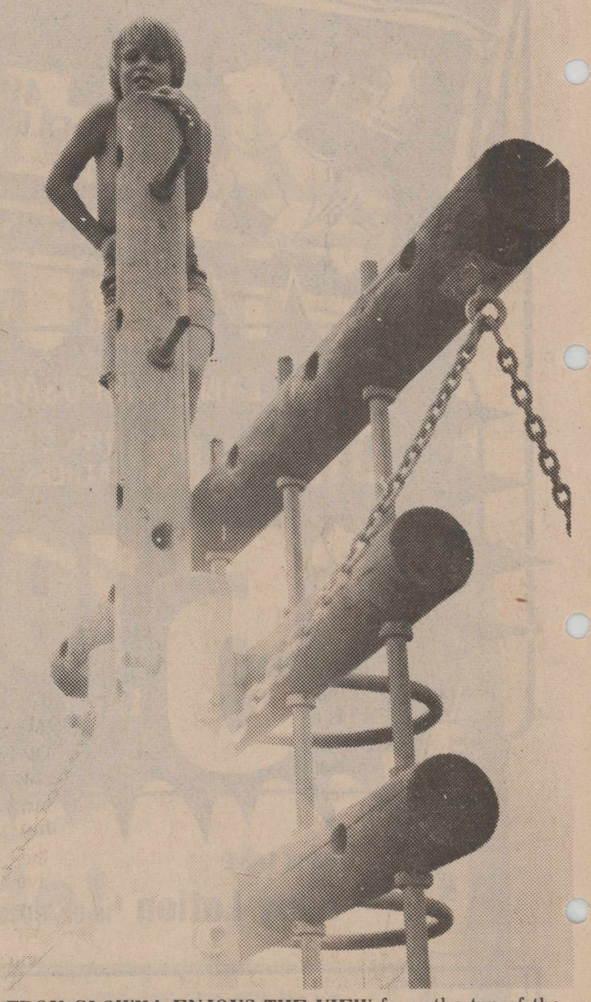

The names of owners nationwide — from 627 banks across the country that failed before World War II — were published last week in the "Federal Register."

Said Richards, "I don't know too many people who read the 'Federal Register.' The Texas Treasury is much better equipped to find the rightful owners of this property in Texas, and that's one reason why we're trying to bring it back to this state as soon as possible."

Richards said she has established a locator unit in the Treasury's Unclaimed Property Division. A staff member there has already found about 20 owners of abandoned safe deposit boxes which have been turned over to the Treasury during the past 20 years. Currently, there are 174 safe deposit boxes in the state's vault.

Under Texas law, property such as bank accounts, security deposits, insurance benefits and safe deposit boxes that is unclaimed for seven years may be turned over to the State Treasurer. The Treasurer will return the funds to the rightful owner when a valid claim is filed.

Texas residents who believe they may be entitled to the Depression-era safe deposit boxes held by the federal government may write to State Treasurer Ann Richards, Unclaimed Property Division, P. O. Box 12608, Capitol Station, Austin, Texas 78711.

Rockport Lionesses donate to children's camp

In their regular meeting at Live Oak Center Tuesday night, July 5, members of Rockport's newly-organized Lionesses Club presented a check for $250 to Bill Ball, new director of the Lions Club's Camp in Kerrville.

Ball was guest speaker at the Lionesses meeting, showing a film on the camp which actually consists of three camps: the Crippled Children's Camp, Diabetic Camp and a Blind Camp for those age 55 and over.

The Lionesses, a new organization for area women age 18 and older, held their first fund-raising project at the Lions Club July 4 Barbecue in Rockport when a painting by Betty Walters and a Jack Cowan print were given away in a drawing. Winner of the Walters painting was Jad Smith of Fulton. Evva Reddick of Houston won the print.

The Lionesses are now seeking someone to sponsor to one or more of the Lions' camps in Kerrville. The Crippled Children's Camp is for youngsters age 7 through 16 years and each year meets the needs of 240 youngsters from throughout Texas in each of its four sessions.

The Diabetic Camp, for youngsters age 6 through 16 years, holds two sessions each year.

The next meeting of the Lionesses is set for 7 p.m. Aug. 8 at the Live Oak Center. The organization will discuss projects for the coming year at that session.

JAD SMITH OF FULTON displays the painting he won in a drawing sponsored by the Rockport Lionesses. The drawing was the Lionesses' first fund-raising activity as an organization. The drawing was held during the Rockport Lions Club annual barbecue July 4. Proceeds were donated to the Lions Club camp in Kerrville.

Texas A&M report

Traffic is heavy on beach road

A report from the Texas A&M Research Project read at the Tuesday evening meeting of the Aransas County Navigation District reveals some interesting information about the traffic flow on Rockport Beach over the July 4 weekend.

The research group, headed by Dr. Joanne Westphal, did a traffic flow study on Seabreeze Road using visual observations and time-lapse photography and made the preliminary information available to the ACND.

The researchers recorded 2,713 cars moving onto the beach road between 10:45 a.m. and 5 p.m. on July 4. They also reported that 25 percent of the vehicles had only one person in them and 25 percent were occupied by families.

The Texas A&M team says that their research efforts show that cabana utilization is a problem, one person will occupy a cabana all day.

They also reported there was very little use of the newly erected playground equipment saying it was too dangerous for children and their families to cross the street from the beach side to use the equipment.

A survey done by the group shows that a large percentage of male drivers wouldn't object to a charge to use the beach while most females interviewed said they would object.

The research team also said their findings show that more cabanas are needed.

Track team gains three more sponsors

Three more sponsors have added their names to the list of supporters of six local athletes competing in the Amateur Athletic Union Tri-State Summer Track meet in New Orleans this weekend.

Making contributions this week were Monroe's Carpet, Containers and Contents and Roaten's Drug. Their donations put the fund drive over the top of the goal of $150 per athlete. These merchants join a group of 18 other businesses and individuals donating to the drive.

The athletes, Darren Gurley, Demetrius Lewis, Kay Karstedt, LaDonna Finnels, Bridgett Brundrett and Holly Logan left Rockport early Thursdy morning, traveling to the meet by bus with tracksters from Corpus Christi. They were accompanied by coaches Tim Tate, Brad Jett and Jan Chesbro. Competing Friday and Saturday, the group will arrive back in Rockport early Sunday morning. For more details, see The Pilot Sports page today.

Help needed to save endangered chicken

Private landowners along the Texas Gulf Coast must help if the endangered Attwater Prairie Chicken is to be saved from extinction, says a Texas A&M University wildlife specialist.

"The chickens were once found in Louisiana but are now only in Texas and, without man's help, they won't survive," said Dr. Nova J. Silvy of Texas A&M's Department of Wildlife and Fisheries Sciences.

"The population has decreased from 8,700 in 1937 to less than 2,000 today," he added, "primarily because they've lost much of their habitat to the state's growing human population and rapid development."

Silvy's research focuses on land management practices that might be used to increase the number of these chickens on private ranches and farms, as well as on the two national refuges for the birds in Austin and Colorado, and Aransas counties.

"To better manage the species it's necessary to have a thorough understanding of its ecology, population changes and habitat," he said.

The chickens are distinguished by spring mating rituals performed by cocks with orange air sacs on their necks. The air sacs inflate and make a booming sound, such as the sound made by blowing across the open neck of a bottle, which lets females know when males are in the vicinity and may also be used to intimidate other males.

Earlier this year Silvy trapped some of the 150 birds found at the Attwater Prairie Chicken National Wildlife Refuge near Eagle Lake and equipped them with solar-power radio transmitters. The radio-tagged birds are being monitored, he said, so the Texas A&M wildlife researchers involved in the project can determine their movements, mortality and habitat selection.

"We will determine how the birds utilize native vegetation," he said. "Hatching success also will be determined, as will the effects of predators."

Silvy pointed out the birds live an average two and a half years and only about one third of the newborn live to be adults — the rest are lost to snakes, opossums, raccoons, coyotes and other predators, and many of the young birds often drown during hurricane season.

He said Attwater Prairie Chicken populations probably will die out first in Brazoria, Harris and Galveston counties because of urbanization and expansion and could disappear in other regions such as Fort Bend County where prairie grasslands are being converted into cropland. The greatest percentage of the birds in the state are found in Austin, Colorado, Galveston and Refugio counties, he said.

"If the chicken is to survive, large blocks of native prarie must be preserved," he said, "which means that increasing the population without acquiring additional public land would have to come through management on private lands."

Victoria and Goliad counties offer the greatest opportunity for increasing Attwater's through such management, he said, adding that controlling running live oak and mesquite would open large tracts of prairie for the birds and food plots might be established to compensate for reduced productin during dry years.

Silvy's work is supported by the U.S. Fisheries and Wildlife Service's Endangered Species Fund.

neighborhood school and the emotional security it provides for children.

Plan 4 was similar to Plan 3 except it would have placed kindergarten classes on all campuses. Plan 1 was similar to the present zoning plan but called for moving of students to balance all sections by grade level on each campus. Plan 2 would have regrouped students and placed all of one grade level at one site. For example, all kindergarden through second grade classes could have been placed at Rockport Elementary, grades three and four at Live Oak and grade five at Fulton.

The disadvantages of Plan 3 include the difficulty in balancing classes, the additional cost of materials, supplies and equipment due to campus duplication and a more complex problem in the supervision of curriculum.

All school board members were present at Tuesday's special meeting. In addition to Naquin and Henry, those voting for the plan were Board Chairman Polly Bracht, Ottie Mundine and Jerry Brundrett. Buckley and Dick gave no reasons for voting against the plan.

Wiring

"How could you do the job when you don't know the code?" asked Maguglin. "Why can't we advertise for bids with what we've got, then have an engineer come in and inspect it?"

"You have to have an engineer prepare the plans," responded ACND attorney Reese Rozzell.

"I wonder where the engineer was when this (the 32 new docks in Rockport Harbor) was done," said Maguglin. "The 32 new slips that were just wired, there was no engineer there. Does that mean we have to tear that out and redo it?" asked Maguglin.

"If that was done illegally we better do something about it now. I've just been threatened with the law and I want to know what to do," said Maguglin.

"You've been threatened by the law before and that never bothered you," responded Holman.

Maguglin said the project is at a standstill and Commissioner Hillis Dominguez asked ACND Chairman Bobby Landrum if the matter of the Rockport electrical project could be tabled.

Almost yelling, Maguglin said, "Let's find out about those 32 slips."

Landrum turned to Maguglin and said, "Leave them alone."

Maguglin asked what the purpose of the law was and Commissioner Holman responded saying, "The purpose of the law is to protect the people from third rate politicians like you and I."

Dominguez got back into the argument by telling the other commissioners, "We've spent $2,500 and now we need to spend $3,700 and we haven't got anything yet."

Dominguez made a motion to table the matter for a workshop meeting, Maguglin made a second to the motion and it carried 3-1 with Holman voting against it.

Rockport shrimper J.C. Harlan, speaking from the audience, told the commissioners that he is disturbed that the ACND spent $2,500 on the documents that Deason gave the and he asked, "What were they for?"

Holman said, "It was my thought that he was going to tell us what we needed."

"If you paid Gary (Deason) $2,500, he should have stipulated what you needed," answered Harlan. "Why did we pay $2,500 to Gary?"

"No justification," replied Holman.

Don't toss grass clippings — make compost

Instead of throwing away grass clippings when you mow your lawn, put them to use in a compost pile, suggests a landscape horticulturist.

Dr. William C. Welch, who is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System, says compost is a good source of organic matter for gardens and flower beds. Furthermore, composting is an excellent way to dispose of garden debris, leaves and similar plant material.

Make the compost pile 4 to 6 feet wide and any length, depending on material and space available.

The simplest composting method is to alternate 4- to 6-inch layers of plant matter, such as leaves or grass, with 2 to 4 inches of good garden soil, says Welch. Add manure to the soil layer if it's available, and sprinkle commercial fertilizer on each layer of plant matter to hasten decomposition. Use a cupful of fertilizer with a 1-1-1 ratio per 10 square feet.

The top layer of the compost pile should be soil and the surface should form a basin to hold water. Water each layer of organic matter before adding the soil layer, advises the horticulturist.

Water the pile thoroughly when completed. Add water as needed to keep the material moist but not soggy. Leaves decompose slowly if too dry, Welch points out.

Turn the compost every three to four months to aerate the material and speed decomposition. Within six months to a year, your compost will be ready to use, says Welch, and you'll be glad you saved those grass clippings.

Whiskey, gin taken

Two quarts of whiskey and a quart of gin were reported taken in the burglary of a recreational vehicle in an area RV park sometime between June 25 and last Friday, July 1.

Also taken were a pair of binoculars and a knife. Total estimated value of the missing items was $73.50. The burglarized trailer belongs to John Gore.

Winning in Odem, they would advance to games in Harlingen. The Senior League girls are a district level team, coached by Jim Lewellen of Aransas Pass.

Big League boys' All-Stars have not yet been announced, since games remain in the regular schedule — the Big League Rockport Royals play a double-header against Portland at 4 p.m. in Rockport this Sunday, July 10 for first place in the division. Big League All-Star play is on July 22 and 23 in Victoria.

First to welcome newcomers

Chamber's Carolyn Behee has all the answers...

By PAT BLAIR
Staff Writer

Carolyn Behee is frequently the first person newcomers or visitors to Aransas County see when they arrive.

She's the "answer lady" — expected to know which motels in the area have vacancies, where's the best place to eat, what are the attractions of the area besides fishing . . .

It's all in a day's work for Carolyn who's been with the Rockport Area Chamber of Commerce almost four years, first as secretary then, as of March 1, 1981, as manager.

"I just started hanging out in here," Carolyn says when asked how she became a Chamber employee. I stopped in to see Loyce (Landrum, then Chamber manager) and Kitty (Cleaveland, who was secretary at the time). When Kitty resigned, Loyce asked me if I wanted to work.

"I hadn't worked in 18 years, but I said, 'Sure' . . ." Then, two years ago, Loyce resigned as manager and Carolyn stepped into her shoes . . .

A native of Tulsa, Okla., Carolyn grew up in Wichita, Kans. "I lived there longer than anywhere else," she says — 18 years. She graduated from Wichita High School East, started to the University of Wichita (now Wichita State University), "but I just went there one year," she added. Instead of going through the university, she took a job with the Wichita Water Co.

The company was not only her employer for 11 years, she said — it was where she met her husband, John, who was working there. That was in 1946, but it was not until 1953 that they married.

In the meantime, Carolyn had become involved with the PBX Club of Wichita, an involvement that continued after her marriage. She served as secretary and vice president "and I was up for president when Johnny was transferred."

John, an employee then of the American Waterworks Co., was sent to North Little Rock, Ark., in 1957 — and Carolyn became involved with the PBX club there, serving as treasurer. They spent two and a half years in North Little Rock, Carolyn recalls, "then we went to Peoria for the first time," and she went to work for what was then the Pabst Brewing Co.

In 1961, she continued, John was transferred to Richmond, Ind. There, Carolyn said, she started to bowl and play golf.

She also became an avid race car fan.

"One weekend," she recalled, "I went to nine consecutive auto races. It was my birthday and Johnny said, 'What do you want for your birthday?' and I said, 'I want to go to this race and this race and this race . . .' So we went."

During their years in Richmond, Carolyn served as president one year of the Newcomers Club, was a member of the Psi Iota Psi, a social and philanthropic sorority, and served as a Red Cross Gray Lady at Reid Memorial Hospital.

But more memorable for her during those years were the bowling trophies she won and the Golf Digest Award she took in 1962 as the "Most Improved Female Golfer."

And most memorable of all was the ribbon-cutting in August 1963 that opened the Middle Fork Water Reservoir. Among those on hand were then-Governor Matthew Welsh and Richmond Mayor Roland Cutter — and, "right in the middle of it," Carolyn doing the actual honors with the scissors. She still has a piece of the ribbon from the occasion, signed by some of the dignitaries who were present.

After Richmond, the Behees were transferred back to Peoria where "I bowled an awful lot," Carolyn recalls. "I used to bowl three leagues a week at least, sometimes four or five. And I golfed."

She did other things too, serving as treasurer of the Entre Nous Club, serving on the Peoria Newcomers Club, doing volunteer work in a nursing home. In 1971, John was transferred to Pittsburgh ("actually," Carolyn said, "we lived in St. Peter's Township") and Carolyn "bowled and played golf there too." She was a member of the Newcomers Club there too, as well as the meals on wheels program.

The Behees had discovered Rockport in 1964, when they came to Texas to attend a Southwest Waterworks meeting in Corpus Christi. "Johnny said, 'I sure do like Rockport'," Carolyn recalled, "and in 1968, my parents moved down here."

In 1970, she and John bought a lot in Harbor Oaks "about five days before Celia," but by 1975 when John retired from his company, the Behees had decided on a condominium in Key Allegro.

"What it was," Carolyn confided, "is that Johnny didn't want to cut the grass."

Since coming to Rockport, Carolyn has continued to be active in social and civic organizations: she belongs to the Allegro Women's Club and was its president for 1978-79; is a member of the Women's Committee of the Aransas County Medical Services Inc., a member of the Rockport Business & Professional Women.

She is a 32-year member, she adds, of the North Star Chapter No. 483, Order of the Eastern Star of Wichita, Kans.

The one thing she and John don't do a lot of these days, she said, is travel. "We traveled all over while John was working," she says. In one year, 1964, they went to Mexico then Canada soon after. In 1973, they attended a managers' meeting in San Diego, Calif., then a national convention in Florida. John's work took them to St. Thomas in the Virgin Islands, Washington D. C., Atlantic City . . .

That, she says, is one reason they don't travel much these days. But there is another reason:

"We're living in Rockport. "Why go anyplace else?"

Some shopping is difficult

Consumers don't always feel like they can shop around for the "best buy," especially when it comes to an operation or financing a new car.

"Consumers simply find it more difficult to shop for some products and services than others," says Nancy Granovsky, a home economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

In a Lewis Harris poll of attitudes toward the consumer movement conducted recently for the Atlantic-Richfield Company, consumers rated the food and gasoline markets at the top of the list for ease in shopping around, she reports.

It's easier to shop for good buys in food and gasoline because product information is easily available, there are many vendors, and prices are well-posted and advertised.

These markets are also more competitive, and the ones consumers use most frequently, notes Granovsky.

It's just the opposite when it comes to shopping for credit and medical services, which is why they were rated most difficult by consumers in the Harris Poll, explains the home economist.

According to Granovsky, who specializes in family resource management, credit and medical services are also viewed as more technical and complicated and may be characterized by long-standing relationships with a banker or physician.

Pet talks

Visiting the vet

By Dr. Hap Lutz
Rockport Veterinarian

Here are a few basic tips to make sure you and your pet get the most out of a visit with your veterinarian.

Write down a detailed history of your pet's illness and any questions you may want to ask. The more information you can provide, the more accurate your veterinarian can diagnose the problem and begin proper treatment.

It's also a good idea to write down the veterinarian's instructions for home care. If you don't think your schedule or situation will permit you to follow the instructions, let the doctor know. Another plan can usually be arranged. Ask questions if you don't understand. Professional advice is worthless if you do not understand it.

If the animal tends to be a biter, snapper or scratcher, warn the doctor before he finds out the hard way. With a little preparation and a commonsense attitude during the visit, you and your veterinarian can work together to keep your pet healthy.

From your pet's best friend, the one with a warm heart for cold noses.

Three prayers

May the wisdom of God instruct me, the eye of God watch over me, the ear of God hear me, the word of God give me sweet talk, the hand of God defend me, the way of God guide me.
Christ be with me.
Christ before me.
Christ in me.
Christ under me.
Christ over me.
Christ on my right hand.
Christ on my left hand.
Christ on this side.
Christ on that side.
Christ in the head of everyone to whom I speak.
Christ in the mouth of every person who speaks to me.
Christ in the eye of every person who looks upon me.
Christ in the ear of everyone who hears me today. Amen.
— St. Patrick

Father in Heaven, when the thought of thee wakes in our hearts, let it not awaken like a frightened bird that flies about in dismay, but like a child waking from its sleep with a heavenly smile.
— Soren Kierkegaard

O Lord, thou knowest how busy I must be this day. If I forget thee, do not thou forget me.
— Lord Ashley before the Battle of Edge Hill

Rejoice not against me,
O mine enemy:
when I fall, I shall arise;
when I sit in darkness, the Lord shall be a light unto me.
—Micah 7:8

Last will and testament

I, Charles Lounsbury, being of sound mind and disposing memory, do hereby make and publish this, my last will and testament, in order, as justly as I may, to distribute my interests in the world among succeeding men.

That part of my interests which is known in the law and recognized in the sheep-bound volumes as my property, being inconsiderable and of no account, I make no disposal of in my will.

My right to live, being but a life estate, is not at my disposal, but, these excepted, all else in the world I now proceed to devise and bequeath.

Item: I give to good fathers and mothers, but in trust for their children all and every, the flowers of the fields and the blossoms of the woods, with the right to play among them freely, according to the custom of children, warning them at the same time against the thistles. And I devise to children the banks of the brooks, and the golden sands beneath the waters thereof, and the odors of the willows that dip therein, and the white clouds that float high over the giant trees. And I leave the children the long, long days to be merry in, in a thousand ways, and the night, and the moon, and the train of the Milky Way to wonder at, but subject, nevertheless, to the rights hereinafter given to lovers.

Item: I devise to boys jointly all the useful idle fields and commons where ball may be played; all pleasant waters where one may swim; all snow-clad hills where one may coast; and all streams and ponds where one may fish, or where, when grim winter comes, one may skate; to have and to hold the same for the period of their boyhood. And all meadows with the clover blossoms and butterflies thereof, the woods and their appurtenances, the squirrels, and birds, and echoes, and strange noises, and all distant places which may be visited, together with the adventures there found. And I give to said boys each his own place at the fireside at night, with all pictures that may be seen in the burning wood, to enjoy without let or hindrance, and without incumbrance or cares.

Item: To lovers I devise their imaginary world, with whatever they may need — the stars of the sky, the red roses by the wall, the bloom of the hawthorn, the sweet strains of music, and aught else by which they may desire to figure to each other the lastingness and beauty of their love.

Item: To young men jointly, I devise and bequeath all boisterous, inspiring sports of rivalry, and I give to them the disdain of weakness and undaunted confidence in their own strengh. I give them the power to make lasting friendships, and of possessing companions, and to them exclusively I give all merry songs and brave choruses to sing with lusty voices.

Item: And to those who are no longer children or youths or lovers, I leave memory, and I bequeath to them the volumes of the poems of Burns and Shakespeare and of other poets, if there be others, to the end that they may live the old days again, freely and fully, without tithe or diminution. To our loved ones with snowy crowns I bequeath the happiness of old age, and the love and gratitude of their children.

Bill Kirmse

A complete boat store

Sailing Unlimited is Rockport's complete yachting center. Run by Bill Kirmse, Sailing Unlimited sells every kind of boat from dinghys to ocean-going vessels. Kirmse specializes mainly in sailboats, but dabbles a bit in power boats.

The shop started as a hobby, Kirmse says, since there is no store in the area which can provide sailors with the necessary materials and equipment for cruising. Sailing Unlimited not only carries boats, but a supply of sails and hardware. In addition, furniture and nautical gifts are also featured in the shop.

Kirmse usually buys his vessels on the east coast and brings them back to Rockport. Along with the boat brokerage, he sells all kinds of yachting supplies and hardware -- including used equipment. Sailing Unlimited also carries a supply of Windsurfers®.

A member of the Rockport Sailing Club for five years, Kirmse gave the club its first class boat, a 14-foot Lido daysailer.

Sailing Unlimited also features nautical furniture: bookshelves made of shrimp boat doors, hatch cover tables and bars, and such nautical gifts as heavy brass items and lanterns.

"We virtually could get anything a boater would need in the line of equipment and we have the knowledge to send him around the world.

Sailing Unlimited is located at 704 S. Church St. in Rockport. Store hours are 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday. The phone number is 729-3486.

QUOTE FOR THE WEEK!

"Horse sense is what a horse has that keeps him from betting on people."

Author unknown

Private landowners

Private landowners along the Texas Gulf Coast must help if the endangered Attwater Prairie Chicken is to be saved from extinction, says a Texas A&M University wildlife specialist.

"The chickens were once found in Louisiana but are now only in Texas and, without man's help, they won't survive," said Dr. Nova J. Silvy of Texas A&M's Department of Wildlife and Fisheries Sciences.

"The population has decreased from 8,700 in 1937 to less than 2,000 today," he added, "primarily because they've lost much of their habitat to the state's growing human population and rapid development."

Silvy's research focuses on land management practices that might be used to increase the number of these chickens on private ranches and farms, as well as on the two national refuges for the birds in Austin, Colorado and Aransas Counties.

"To better manage the species it's necessary to have a thorough understanding of its ecology, population changes and habitat," he said.

The chickens are distinguished by spring mating rituals performed by cocks with orange air sacs on their necks. The air sacs inflate and make a booming sound, such as the sound made by blowing across the open neck of a bottle, which lets females know when males are in the vicinity and may also be used to intimidate other males.

Earlier this year Silvy trapped some of the 150 birds found at the Attwater Prairie Chicken National Wildlife Refuge near Eagle Lake and equipped them with solar-power radio transmitters. The radio-tagged birds are being monitored, he said, so the Texas A&M wildlife researchers involved in the project can determine their movements, mortality and habitat selection.

"We will determine how the birds utilize native vegetation," he said. "Hatching success also will be determined, as will the effects of predators."

Silvy pointed out the birds live an average two and a half years and only about one third of the newborn live to be adults — the rest are lost to snakes, opossums, raccoons, coyotes and other predators, and many of the young birds often drown during hurricane season.

He said Attwater Prairie Chicken populations probably will die out first in Brazoria, Harris and Galveston Counties because of urbanization and expansion and could disappear in other regions such as Fort Bend County where prairie grasslands are being converted into cropland. The greatest percentage of the birds in the state are found in Austin, Colorado, Galveston and Refugio Counties, he said.

"If the chicken is to survive, large blocks of native prarie must be preserved," he said, "which means that increasing the population without acquiring additional public land would have to come through management on private lands."

Victoria and Goliad Counties offer the greatest opportunity for increasing Attwater's through such management, he said, adding that controlling running live oak and mesquite would open large tracts of prairie for the birds and food plots might be established to compensate for reduced production during dry years.

Silvy's work is supported by the U.S. Fisheries and Wildlife Service's Endangered Species Fund.

More and more young people are losing their hearing nowadays and it's all due to their frequent exposure to loud sounds: listening to loud music, working with noisy machinery, military drills, etc.

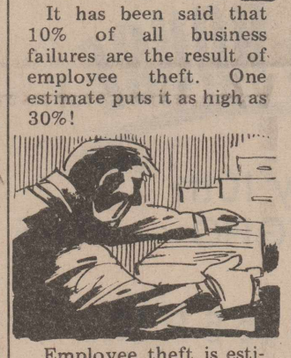

IT'S A CRIME

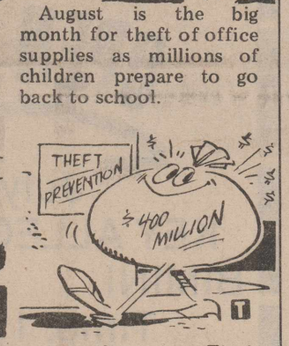

It has been said that 10% of all business failures are the result of employee theft. One estimate puts it as high as 30%!

August is the big month for theft of office supplies as millions of children prepare to go back to school.

Employee theft is estimated at $40 billion per year and climbing, approximately 1% of this nation's Gross National Product.

According to Figgie International's Advance Security division, retailers spend more than $400 million per year on theft-prevention.

WINNERS & LOSERS

Parson Jones

Some people with a truly winning attitude in our society are the Salvationists. They believe that the only hope of saving the world from disaster is the individual acceptance of Jesus Christ. It is this philosophy which separates the group these people belong to, The Salvation Army, from other well-known charities. It's a philosophy that's brought hope, comfort, and a chance for a better life to thousands of people throughout the years.

The Salvation Army aids those whom many would consider the losers in our society—homeless people, unmarried mothers, drug and alcohol addicts, children from broken homes, elderly people who are lonely or who have financial problems. The Army is helping them feel more like winners by bringing them food, clothing, shelter and, perhaps most importantly, the teachings of the Bible.

You, too, can be a winner, by helping the Salvation Army do its good works. Visit a Corps Community Center or write for free leaflets to: The Salvation Army National Headquarters, 799 Bloomfield Avenue, Verona, NJ 07044.

What America needs is a new national holiday — "Chicken Day." And so, being of sound mind and of legal age, I hereby declare August 13 as "Chicken Day." No animal deserves this high honor more than the noble chicken. After all, it is one of the few animals that can be eaten before it's born and after it's dead.

On this day there will be chicken parades in every village and hamlet, every town and city. Taking a cue from the Rose Bowl Parade, each float will be covered with chicken feathers. Little wind-up chickens can be sold by vendors along the parade route.

No holiday would be complete without greeting cards. I am presently designing a Chicken Card that may be sent to friends and loved ones on this occasion. I'm sure there will be other economic advantages from this new holiday. The food markets can offer specials on chickens, thus making "Chicken Day" truly chicken day. Eggs would be included in these special holiday bargains, because scientists have not yet decided which came first — the chicken or the egg.

The unemployed could find jobs helping to turn out chicken shirts, chicken jeans, chicken toothpaste and a host of other chicken items. New singing groups will be coming forth, such as The Rolling Eggs, The Feathered Four and so on. And, of course, there will be a new dance — the Chicken Scratch.

Now, all of this may sound a little strange, but it's positive and exciting. No longer will we refer to cowards as "Chicken." Man with all his knowledge may go to the moon and make computers, but he can't make a chicken.

I enjoyed writing this! Actually, Christians can have lots of fun! Remember August 13.

Shocking new evidence only months before the 20th anniversary of John Kennedy's death, indicates that he was killed by the Mafia because he reneged on a debt his family owed the Mob.

Underworld Godfather Joseph (Joe Bananas) Bonanno has revealed that the late Joseph Kennedy, the president's father, was linked with top Mob figures as long ago as prohibition. "Frank Costello always maintained, and I have no reason to doubt it, that during prohibition he and Joe Kennedy were partners in the liquor business," Bonanno writes in his newly-published autobiography, "A Man of Honor (Simon and Schuster).

Bonanno's startling revelations are the newest links in the growing chain of evidence that Lee Harvey Oswald and Jack Ruby were both hired to "hit" Kennedy. A former special prosecutor for the Justice Department told me he's absolutely convinced that's what happened in Dallas on Nov. 22, 1963. "The Mob had the motive — revenge for what they felt was betrayal — and they had the opportunity," declares Robert Blakey, now a professor of law at prestigious Notre Dame University in South Bend, Ind.

Blakey, a chief counsel to the House Select Committee on Assassinations for two years, had access to thousands of pages of testimony inplicating Mob figures in JFK's murder. Some examples: Santos Trafficante, a Mafia gambling czar, told an FBI informant five months before the assassination that "Kennedy is going to be hit."

Angelo Bruno, a Philadelphia Mafia boss, openly argued in Mob meetings for JFK's assassination. "Jack Ruby worked for the Mob," says Blakey. "There's evidence that he once sprung Trafficante from a Cuban jail. Ruby killed Lee Harvey Oswald to silence him."

Ticket sales for the fourth annual Merrill Lynch Golf Digest Commemorative Pro-Am, set for July 15-17 at the Newport Country Club, will benefit three New England based charities — the Meeting Street School of Rhode Island, the Seaport '76 Foundation of Newport, R.I. and the Joslin Diabetes Center of Boston. Total prize money for this 54-hole tournament is $150,000, with $25,000 going to the winner.

The field will feature 36 of the leading senior touring pros, including defending champion Billy Casper and 1981 winner Sam Snead.

Founded in 1946 as the state's first outpatient center for children with cerebral palsy, the Meeting Street School Easter Seal Society of Crippled Children and Adults of Rhode Island today is primarily an educational institution. The school is staffed by teachers, speech therapists, psychologists, physical and occupational therapists, social workers, neurologists and other specialists serving more than 400 children and their parents each year.

It was Rhode Island's first agency to treat children with multiple handicaps, first to create a program for handicapped infants, first to develop a program for children with learning disabilities and first to offer comprehensive parents' programs.

- Bob Tullius and Bill Adam are making tracks these days on the ISMA Camel GT circuit, as their Jaguar XJR-5 12-cylinder prototype racing car eats up the competition. Recent wins on the circuit include Road Atlanta and Lime Rock, Conn. This is Jaguar's first foray into racing in the U.S. in several years.

A silent, deadly menace haunts the lives of two of the world's most celebrated women, Joan Kennedy and Liz Taylor. The ugly threat of booze and alcoholism has had a jarring impact on both their lives — Joan with her personal, agonizing battle with the bottle, and Liz with her two turbulent marriages to admitted alcoholic Richard Burton.

And the sinister horror still hovers over their lives like a dark cloud. Valiant Joan is still on the wagon, but admits she's "working on my recovery a day at a time. I'm sober today, and that's all that matters."

Joan faces great added stress in the days ahead. Her divorce from Ted becomes final in December.

Reclusive Yoko Ono is so terrorized by fiendish hate mail and death threats that she now leaves her fortress home only when flanked by a squad of armed bodyguards.

John Lennon's widow had been a popular New York City street character long after the superstar's murder, always accessible to fans on her walks through the fashionable upper West Side into Central Park. But vicious accusations from a demented Lennon freak — charging Yoko with "killing dear John" and vowing "savage retribution" — have made her a helpless prisoner of hate.

The scrawled, unsigned letters were first dismissed as idle crank mail. But when they became ugly death threats, Yoko turned one of her apartments in New York's famed Dakota building into a security command post with guards on 24-hour rotation duty. Now Yoko's walks are rare and up to eight members of her estimated 20-man security force surround her tiny figure and scan bushes, rooftops and parked cars for potential assassins.

"The hate mail whacko even tried to undermine her confidence in the security squad," a friend bitterly told me.

A million-dollar hunt is on for the secret reel-to-reel tape on which Elvis Presley and the Beatles recorded a medley of their own smash hits — in one of the greatest jam sessions of all time. In fact, we have learned that record companies eager to cash in on the priceless tape have gone so far as to hire top private investigators to boost their chances of victory in what's suddenly emerged as a worldwide race to come up with it first. And it's easy to see why.

Insiders say the tape contains an incredible collection of high-spirited tunes made in August 1965, when the King and the "Fab Four" met for the first and only time.

"It's impossible to put a price on this tape," says a London-based rock writer and expert on Presley and the Beatles. "Even if they got stoned and sang Jingle Bells we're still talking about millions in guaranteed sales from collectors alone. But the fact is, they didn't. They spent a day in Presley's private studio in Los Angeles belting out a medley of their own hits. Elvis and John Lennon even ad-libbed a raunchy version of Hound Dog that would have stunned the world back then."

The historic meeting took place at the height of Beatlemania, when the group's manager, Brian Epstein convinced Colonel Tom Parker, who managed Elvis, that it would help the King's then-waning image to meet the newcomers face to face.

Three residents are injured

Three Rockport residents were taken to Coastal Bend Hospital in Aransas Pass Thursday morning after suffering injuries in a two-car collision on Broadway at the Fulton Beach Road.

Injured were Ronald Jay Roe, 20, driver of one of the cars involved, Amber Sue Thomas, 16, a passenger in Roe's vehicle, and Margie Rodgers, 61, driver of the second car.

Police said Rodgers was northbound on Broadway and Roe was southbound when Roe's car went over the centerline of the roadway into the path of Rodgers' vehicle. Roe was ticketed for driving on the wrong side, not passing, following the accident.

In an earlier accident, Sara Marie Rodriguez of Aransas Pass reportedly received minor iniuries when her parked car was struck by another vehicle on Navigation Circle Tuesday, July 5.

Police said Rodriguez was parked on the north side of Navigation Circle facing the wrong way when she opened the passenger door into the path of a car being driven by Gloria Cortinas Rodriguez of Rockport. The impact of the collision slammed the door against the Aransas Pass woman.

1 in 10 children risk abuse

The growing and learning years of a child, which should be filled with simple joys and pleasures, is all too often shattered by the horror of sexual child abuse.

According to a study by the Criminal Justice Center, Sam Houston State University, approximately one out of 10 children in Texas are at risk of being sexually abused.

Because of the physical and mental harm inflicted on a child who is sexually abused, and the potential of the child to carry the marks of sexual abuse into and throughout adulthood, the Governor's Crime Stoppers Advisory Council is focusing its efforts for the month of August on the apprehension of sexual child abusers in Texas.

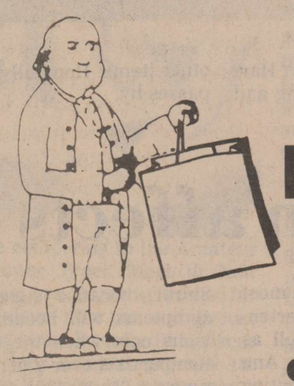

Child abusers are seldom strangers. They are generally well-known to the child, often a member of the family or close family friend. A child molester will use a variety of threats and excuses to coerce their victims into silence, and the child often feels he should not tell on someone who he has been taught to trust.

There are often members of the family or friends that have knowledge about the sexual abuse of a child but are afraid to come forward for fear of being hurt or placing a friend or a loved one in jail.

If citizens have information on the sexual abuse of a child, they may call their local Crime Stoppers program or Texas Crime Stoppers at 1-800-252-TIPS without having to give their name. All calls are strictly confidential.

Texas Crime Stoppers is offering cash rewards for information leading to the arrest and felony indictment of sexual child abusers.

Patman calls for equitable rates

By Congressman Bill Patman

You've heard the expression, "Don't call me; I'll call you." With the kinds of rate increase that telephone companies say they need, we may have to revise that old expression.

It might be something like this: "Don't call me; I don't have a telephone any more.",

We have all been reading and hearing about the giant rate increase that Southwestern Bell Telephone Company has requested in Texas. The company wants a $1.7 billion increase to come from charges for local phone service — the largst rate hike requested in U.S. history.

The thing that disturbs me very much is that whatever the amount of any increases, they are likely to hit folks in rural areas like our 14th Congressional District the very hardest.

It has been national policy for 49 years to try to keep rural rates down, equitable to those paid in the cities. Three organizations are working hard in Washington to persuade Congress and President Reagan that fairness in phone rates should continue.

Those organizations, whose goal I share, are the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association, the National Telephone Cooperative Association and the National REA Telephone Association.

This threat of much higher rates has come up basically because of two factors — actions by the Federal Communications Commission to deregulate the telecommunications industry and the breakup of AT&T as the result of a long, drawn out court battle in an antitrust suit.

It is ironic that both deregulation and the breakup of AT&T were pushed on the basis that they would encourage competition and benefit consumers.

I am co-sponsoring a bill known as the Rural Electrification and Telephone Revolving Fund Self-Sufficiency Act of 1983. It would provide funds for the electric co-ops to construct distribution facilities without having to battle so hard for funds from the U.S. Treasury.

I'm also co-sponsoring a resolution urging the FCC to investigate the effect on telephone rates and servie of the FCC's deregulation decisions and the breakup of AT&T. I also support a bill to overturn the FCC's access charge decision. The bill also would restructure the phone rate system in a more equitable fashion.

The FCC has said everyone must start paying a new fee called an "access charge" Jan. 1. It means we would have to pay at least $2 a month for residential phones to hook into the nationwide long-distance network. Businesses would have to pay at least $4 a month for that access charge.

Adding insult to injury, the court order in the AT&T case says the states also must have an access fee for in-state long-distance.

If these charges prevail, customers of the Guadalupe Valley Telephone cooperative would see their monthly basic charge jump from $8.79 to $26.70! That would be an increse of $17.91 per month.

The Texas State-Wide Telephone Cooperative is protesting these charges before the Texas Public Utility Commission. The National Association of Regulatory Utility Commissioners is appealing the FCC access charge decision to the U.S. Court of Appeals.

I support all these actions. We must not allow rates to go so high that people have to give up their phones.

Hypertension affects children

Hypertension, or high blood pressure, has long been recogized as a serious health threat to adults, but only recently has its occurance in children been noted.

For years hypertension was thought to occur in children only as the secondary result of other diseases, such as heart disorders.

However, recent research reported by the Texas Department of Health stresses that primary hypertension, or high blood pressure with no obvious cause, is probably the most common type of hypertension in children as well as adults, says Dr. Mary Ann Shirer, a health education specialist with the Texas Agriculture Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

In the United States, 2.4 percent of children ages 3-15, 7.5 percent of adolescents ages 14-18 and 10-15 percent of adults are estimated to have high blood pressure.

Hypertension is called a "silent disease," says Shirer, because signs and symptoms will become obvious only when the condition persists over a period of time.

The symptoms of hypertension in older children and adolescents usually include frequent headaches, dizziness and visual changes. Infants or young children may not even be recognized as having symptoms until complications such as unexplained seizures result.

The National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute now recommends that children three years of age and older should have their blood pressure measured annually, Shirer reports.

Children diagnosed as a risk for developing hypertension, those on the borderline and those actually hypertensive should be placed in a prevention program and monitored regularly by their physicians.

Long-term prevention and control programs include weight control, reduction of salt intake, regular exercise and elimination of smoking, adds the specialist.

"The important thing about routine blood pressure measurement in children," says Shirer, "is that it presents an opportunity to help change behavior and promote healthy lifestyles early in life that can help prevent problems in adulthood."

CRIME STOPPERS

Felony fugitives cost Texans millions of dollars each year and untold amounts of sorrow.

A fugitive is an individual who has an outstanding Felony Warrant for his arrest. Felonies can include such violent crimes as murder, rape, armed robbery and aggravted assault, along with other crimes such as burglary, auto theft and the selling of illegal narcotics.

These fugitives may still be hiding in the same area where the crime was committed or may have fled to another city in Texas. Wherever they are hiding, fugitives are in constant fear of being arrested and often commit more crimes to support themselves.

Because of the potential danger to citizens, the Governor's Crime Stoppers Advisory Council is focusing its efforts for the month of July on felony fugitives.

Any citizen with information concerning the whereabouts of a felony fugitive is asked to call their local Crime Stoppers program or Texas Crime Stoppers at 1-800-252-TIPS. Cash rewards are available for information leading to the apprehension of felony fugitives. Citizens do not have to give their names, and all calls are kept strictly confidential.

Local Crime Stoppers programs and Texas Crime Stoppers also offer rewards for the arrest and felony indictment of individuals involved in other criminal activity.

Bono's Astro-Vue

© By Lillian Bono

Week of July 10-16

ARIES

(March 21-April 20) Don't gloat if you hear about someone's misfortune, try to help and you will be rewarded manyfold in the future.

TAURUS

(April 21-May 21) Keep records in order and pay important bills on time. Mix-ups are possible and some correspondence could get lost in the mail. Avoid those who gossip.

GEMINI

(May 22-June 21) A matter of importance regarding your business future will be brought up at an unexpected time.

CANCER

(June 22-July 23) A long distance trip may cause trouble at home. Long absences will not make anyone's heart grow fonder. Think before you take off for "greener" valleys.

LEO

(July 24-Aug. 23) A new project could keep you going for long hours on end. You could get bogged down with more to do than you can comfortably handle. Share some risks with another.

VIRGO

(Aug. 24-Sept. 23) Catch up on neglected reading matter. You need to be in tune with the times and television won't give the sort of information necessary to maintain your status quo.

LIBRA

(Sept. 24-Oct. 23) You will want to make major purchases, perhaps even relocate to a new residence. The lift you get from the change of pace will improve your situation.

SCORPIO

(Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Those envious of your financial success could interfere with your present standard of achievement. Do your best to encourage comments from colleagues who share a present project.

SAGITTARIUS

(Nov. 23-Dec. 21) A long forgotten dream could be revived in your favor. Keep it alive by fanning the flames of glory and rely on past judgment in order to maintain a sane equilibrium in the meanwhile.

CAPRICORN

(Dec. 22-Jan. 20) Love comes to you via one who is new to your environment. You will be amazed by this individual's knowledge about you in an intimate sense, which could upset the domestic scene.

AQUARIUS

(Jan. 21-Feb. 19) Problems at home could affect your work and cause some headaches where none should exist. Try to separate the two for total peace of mind.

PISCES

(Feb. 20-March 20) A matter of conscience could cause you to travel for the purpose of closing a "deal" that has been left open for a long while. Don't be misled by someone's offhanded attitude.

The Wine Rack

By BIANCA St. JOHN

NEWS BRIEFS

* A light red wine from France with the elegance and sophistication characteristic of French wines at the economical price of about $5 sounds too good to be true. But, Marquisat Beaujolais-Village 1981, imported by the Buckingham Corporation, is exactly the wine described above, definitely recommended. For a great complement to food, serve it cool with seafood suppers.

* The award-winning Napa Valley winery, Sterling Vineyards, has just released two excellent estate bottled vintage wines: their 1981 Chardonnay and 1980 Merlot. The Chardonnay's balance of varietal flavor, oak, alcohol, and acid demonstrates Sterling's commitment to produce elegant wines especially well suited as accompaniments to food. The Merlot is a fruity, claret-styled wine, very drinkable now and with tannin promising a long life in the bottle.

* For a very different summer drink that's got an interesting history, try the wine cocktail designated to toast the festivities of the Britain Salutes New York Festival. Called the Guinness Velvet, it's a mixture of equal parts Guinness Stout and Great Western Brut Champagne. Originally called the Black Velvet, the drink was created by a steward at the exclusive Brook's Club in London in 1861 at the time of the death of Queen Victoria's consort, Prince Albert. Though champagne was being drunk, the dark Guinness Stout darkened the sparkling wine to make it suitable for this time of mourning.

BEFORE & AFTER

IN THE SOAPS .....by SELI GROVES

All My Children: Lars and Cliff teamed up to "get" Palmer. Lars was motivated by his feelings for Daisy and Cliff had his own long list of anti-Palmer peeves. Erica threw Mark's musical friend out of her apartment after she made a shocking discovery. Benny's stepdaughter, Dotty, admired Jesse's singing. Coming: Benny learns that "fatherhood" isn't as uncomplicated as he hoped it would be.

Another Life: Charles was upset when he heard Miriam had taken Erick and moved in with Ione. Gene promised Carla he'd check on Monk's late nights. Nancy asked Terry for a job at the hospital Coming: Gil gets more than he expected after a chat with Stacey. Amber gets more than she bargained for after trying to cause another rift between her mother and Dave.

Another World: Larry was unhappy to learn that his mother, Jeanne, was ill. Leo told Henrietta he was opening a nightclub. A double wedding for Mac and Rachel — Sandy and Blaine, was planned. Cass had an alibi for the day Alma was murdered. Coming: Cecile's arrest leads to more "mysteries" coming out of her "witnesses."

As The World Turns: Ariel started a new plan that would take up where Burke left off. Frannie changed her story again. Betsy tried to ignore Craig's sarcasm. Coming: Kim asks John for a favor; he's tempted to return it with some very long strings attached.

Capitol: Trey continued to live his social life as he chose while Maggie continued to fuss over his attitude toward her and Myrna. Clarissa felt as if she'd been deliberately led on by Mark. Coming: Wally's health problems take another dangerous turn.

Days Of Our Lives: Eugene's "Fourth of July" party met with hilarious results. Liz and Neil gave in to their mutual attraction. Marie was shocked when Liz was arrested for attempted murder. Coming: Marie's knowledge of Liz and Neil's "meetings" at the hotel tempts her to make a potentially damning statement.

Edge Of Night: Without telling Geraldine, Peter shocked everyone by breaking the news about Sky and Raven's financial decline during a broadcast. Geraldine admitted she hired the deceased Ganz to track down Nicole's murderer, then hired Raven and Sky to resume the investigation. Coming: Derek and Chris find more in common. Preacher's "nights" are questioned.

General Hospital: Grant snuck away from Celia to meet Natalie and Greg to plan a way to get the disc out. At the opening of "Luke's Place," Luke and Holly played dice and found the old feelings were still there. Grant nearly killed Celia when she found the disc and then later arranged to put the disc in with a pile of chips. Coming: Luke puzzles over Grant's actions. Connie calls on Luke for help.

Guiding Light: Kelly continued to fight for his patient's rights. Lillian insisted on keeping her private life a secret. Warren made a phone call that soon set some of his long-delayed plans into motion. Coming: Lillian resists blaring out the truth while Lesley Ann again fights her old doubts.

Loving: Merrill quickly covered up when Doug seemed to sense more than she wanted him to. Mike indicated a less-than-happy attitude which made Doug feel uneasy. Coming: Garth and Roger play games of "one-upsmanship" with each other.

One Life To Live: Delila was trapped in her own web of lies. Dan learned about the cheating going on at Brad's hotel and paid the price. Carla had an uneasy reunion with her former husband, Ed. Coming: Asa refuses to be discouraged from his plans to keep Becky's unborn baby a Buchanan in everything, including its name.

Ryan's Hope: Leigh and Jack reconciled, making Leigh determined to give him the TV job he rejected. Wes resisted Leigh's attempts to get rid of him. Frank told Jillian he learned that Neil McSweeney had once loved Maeve Colleary who later married Johnny Ryan. Coming: Neil McSweeney's campaign to hurt Maeve by hurting her children continues with Charlotte becoming angrier each day. Pat has a horrible premonition.

Search For Tomorrow: Joanne learned that Suzi's trust fund was now worth one million dollars and cautioned her not to tell Warren. Stephanie told Ruby she learned Ruby was destitute. Warren and Ringo set up a "protection" racket to shake down local merchants. Coming: Brian inadvertently tips off Suzy to what he's doing. Lloyd picks up a newspaper and gets a surprise.

Young & The Restless: Cindy worried about Tony's next act. Traci worried over the way her father would take her news about Danny. Gina worried over the way Danny would react. Coming: Jack changes his mind and once more confuses Patty.

Who has toughest role? Kathleen Cullen's the one

By Connie Passalacqua

Of Amanda Wexler Middleton MacFadden Spaulding, the character she plays on "Guiding Light," actress Kathleen Cullen says: "I don't think there is another role on daytime that has gone through as many metamorphoses as Amanda."

And how!

Amanda first came to Springfield as a wallflower who spent endless hours practicing classical piano. Her cold, neurotic mother, who hated men, had a great deal to do with the break-up of her first marriage. Amanda was frigid.

Her next husband fled from her neurotic possessiveness. She learned the identity of her "real" parents during the murder trial of her own mother, and shortly thereafter, had a miscarriage.

Then she fell in love with her new mother's husband and watched him being pushed off a cliff to his death. Now, she's a successful tycoon who is taking care of her mother's abandoned child, whose father is her dead lover.

"It's been a wonderful opportunity to play her," says Miss Cullen.

Some actresses would have broken under the stress of playing the ultimate soap opera sufferer for four years. It's a true tribute to both Miss Cullen's stamina and acting talent that she still makes Amanda a believable character.

Miss Cullen has always been steadfast with her own ambitions. Born in Oak Park, Ill., she grew up as the only girl in a family of seven.

"I was a princess and I love it," she laughs.

She attended college in Chicago where she studied communicative disorders. But she loved theater and decided to take a chance and go in that difficult direction with her career.

Kathleen Cullen, with her daughter, Alexis

After a few years of struggling in New York, she landed the role of Amanda. Of her struggling years she says: "I felt there was nothing I couldn't do."

This is much her philosophy in playing her soap role, which is usually awash with tears. But Miss Cullen has a happy family life to go home to every night — her husband, attorney Tim Baker, and their 2-year-old daughter, Alexis Julia.

Ask Kate

Scheming Duff

By Kate Woods

Howard Duff

Who played Titus on "Flamingo Road"? — P.G.

Howard Duff was the schemer in the white suit.

BET ON LEE — Is Michelle Lee of "Knots Landing" married? If so, to whom? I have $10 on this. — D.G.

Miss Lee is divorced from actor James Farentino, with whom she has a teenage son.

KERR'S LEADING MAN — Please help me remember the name of a film about Australian sheepherders. I think Deborah Kerr starred in it, but I can't remember her leading man. — A.W.

The 1960 movie was Fred Zinneman's "The Sundowners" and the leading man was Robert Mitchum. He teamed with Miss Kerr three years earlier in John Huston's "Heaven Knows, Mr. Alison."

TOOTSIE DON'T CRY — It seems every time I view a movie on TV that I especially like I find it was directed by Sidney Pollack. I was disappointed that he didn't win an Academy Award for his superb direction of "Tootsie." Where may I write him to complement him on his fine work? — P.R.

Pollack, who like many of today's best directors started out in live TV, can be reached through Creative Artists Agency, 1888 Century Park E., Suite 1400, Los Angeles, CA 90067.

PRE-STAR TREK — No one I know remembers a series William Shatner did just before "Star Trek." He played a lawyer and I think Jessica Walter was his wife. Do you have any details? — Ron Shatner played a New York assistant D.A. in "For the People," which was an unsuccessful mid-season entry on CBS in 1965. You're right, Miss Walter played his wife.

WHAT'S DEAN UP TO? — I know Dean Martin has had some recent problems, but does it mean he's not going to work any more? Also, is he 70 yet? — Mrs. J.C.

Dino is 67 and back at work. He recently did some concerts in London and begins filming on "Cannonball Run II" this summer.

SUPERMAN III, from Warner Bros. Directed by Richard Lester, screenplay by David and Leslie Newman. Starring Christopher Reeve, Richard Pryor, Annette O'Toole. Rated 'PG.' ★ ★

By J.T. YURKO

Putting comedian Richard Pryor in a "Superman" movie seemed like it would be a great idea. As the arch-villain Lex Luthor in the previous "Superman" movies, Gene Hackman played his role with a tongue-in-cheek attitude that ranged from high camp to outright comedy. With Pryor's talents and the usual array of special effects, "Superman III" had the powers to be far beyond that of a normal summer movie.

But it was not to be. This Man of Steel movie is little more than a lightweight contender against other summer blockbusters such as "Return of the Jedi" and "WarGames." The script is weak, the effects are tame and Pryor's ample talents are largely untapped.

"Superman" is a comic book adventure, but the first two movies carefully sidestepped being childish in their approaches. Not so in this film, as even the pre-credit sequence demonstrates. It's pure slapstick, simple-minded mayhem that actually ends with a pie in the face.

David and Leslie Newman return as screenwriters in this episode, but missing from the writing credits is Mario Puzo. Perhaps the heavy hand of the man who wrote "The Godfather" is needed. The story never seems to get off the ground.

As in "WarGames," computers are this movie's villain. But the script calls for Pryor to be a computer genius who matches wits with the Man of Steel. Pryor is too lovable to be a villain, and Robert Vaughn and Annie Ross are too campy to be a threat to anyone over the age of 7.

Together they do manage to build a master mega-computer, and thus give some work to the special effects people, but it comes too late in the film to pose a genuine threat to a happy ending.

Along the way, Superman (as Clark Kent) goes back to his home town of Smallville and gets smitten by the former high-school prom queen, Lana Lang (Annette O'Toole). Has Clark forsaken Lois Lane in favor of Lana? Only an inevitable "Superman IV" will tell.

Dear Debbie

DEAR DEBBIE:

I am a 54-year-old man who recently remarried a woman with three children. Frankly, they're driving me crazy. The two boys, aged 24 and 22, expect their mother to be a maid to them. If they walk in at 9 p.m. and have missed dinner, they expect my wife to drop everything to cook something for them. To top it all off, they're fussy, won't eat leftovers, etc. The younger son doesn't even have a job. The girl, aged 21, is a lazy lout. Her idea of fun is loading up on potato chips in front of the television. She must weigh about 200 pounds and is steadily gaining.

I just can't sit by idly, day by day, watching these three kids. It has been all I can do not to say anything. The few times I've mentioned it to my wife, it's caused a battle. I feel she is being used and want to wake her up to it. How should I put it to her without causing a fight?

AT MY WIT'S END

DEAR WIT'S:

Obviously, your wife has been treating these kids like that for years. It is useless to expect that either she or they will change at this point. The best thing to do is to accept the way they work out their relationship as gracefully as possible.

For your own sake, I think you should know that children from former marriages are the cause of most break-ups in second marriages. If you value your marriage, you will say nothing to either the kids or your wife. Most likely, like any mother lioness, she will take the side of the kids and you will feel short-changed. If you feel you absolutely have to let off some steam, leave the room when your wife starts cooking at odd hours and go read a book or watch TV. If the sight of your stepdaughter annoys you, buy her a TV for her room. She'll probably love it.

DEAR DEBBIE:

My husband has been out of work for quite some time now and I am finding it quite difficult to make ends meet on my secretary's salary. I realize times are hard for everyone and unemployment is high, but I honestly feel he is not serious about looking for work. Last night, in desperation, I asked him why he just doesn't drive a cab or be a waiter — anything to generate some income and take the bulk of the burden off me. He refuses and claims it's beneath him. I find that I'm getting more and more resentful of him and I fear it will hurt our marriage, which up until now, has been a pretty good one. What do you suggest?

BREAKING POINT

DEAR BREAKING:

I gather from the way you said "in desperation" you exchanged some angry words. That's understandable considering the strain you're under. However, it's not going to help. I suggest you sit down with your husband, over an after-dinner cup of coffee or whatever, when you are both relaxed, and calmly explain your feelings to him. Tell him you are really struggling to handle the burden, but feel you need more support from him and you don't seem to be getting it. Tell him point blank your finances are in a bad way and he has to do something to contribute to your income. If you do all this in a reasonable, rational way, I'm sure he will understand and come through for you.

TV Nostalgia

By Marie Iandiorio

Pop singer Tom Jones, he of the booming baritone, raw energy, tight slacks, and sex appeal, starred in his own musical variety series on ABC from 1959 to 1971. Jones is a Welshman, and at his insistence, the first few telecasts originated from London and featured many English stars.

The series's origination alternated between London and Hollywood, giving many top American musical performers the opportunity to sing with Tom. The show had a very contemporary quality to it, especially during the second season when the Ace Trucking Company, an improvisational comedy troupe, joined as regulars.

After the final brassy musical number, a sweaty Tom Jones would bid his viewers goodnight in traditional Welsh, saying "Gwyn eich byd a dymunaf i chwi lawenydd bob amser." Although there was much speculation about what he was really saying, it meant simply "May you always be well and be happy."

Question: Can you name Tom Jones' theme song?

Answer: "It's Not Unusual."

Eileen Davidson is 'spicy nice'

By Joan Crosby

Eileen Davidson

Eileen Davidson describes Ashley, her character on "The Young and the Restless," as "spicy nice."

"She's not sissy nice. Ashley spies around a lot and knows everything that's going on. I'm a bit of a smart-aleck."

It's just a year since Miss Davidson joined the show. She recalls that she was the last actress interviewed on the day before the show's producers were going to test actresses for Ashley.

"I heard they had been looking for her for a long time," says Miss Davidson. "I was the last one to be interviewed and the last one to test. Four days later they called and said I had the job."

Miss Davidson is a California native, born in Newport Beach.

"I started modeling there and I decided to try Los Angeles. I had been there for a month and a half and my roommate suggested I should study acting. I stumbled into the Staircase Theater. The teachers at the studio were so good — they taught that we had to be ready when the opportunity came."

She was more than ready.

Prior to "The Young and the Restless," she did a low-budget movie "Goin' All the Way," then got the lead in "The House on Sorority Row," a horror film.

"It was my second film and I was terrified because I had such a big part and all the other actresses were from New York and... well, I was singled out in the reviews and that was great."

Miss Davidson, the youngest of seven children, is grateful that she grew up in a big family.

"I had a chance to learn by the mistakes my brothers and sisters made. I reaped the benefits of being the youngest. And if I did do anything, I did it very secretly and got in no trouble."

Like Ashley, Miss Davidson is spicy nice.
