Growth impact study eyed for county

A meeting to try to determine if Aransas County residents and public officials want a growth impact study for the county — and the goals of such a study — has been set for 10 a.m. Friday, Nov. 4, in the council chamber of Rockport's City Hall.

City officials from both Rockport and Fulton, representatives of the Aransas County Navigation District, Aransas County and the Aransas County Independent School District are expected to attend the meeting which is open to the public.

Meeting to determine what officials, residents want

The meeting will be conducted by Dr. Michael Patrick, economist with the Texas A&M Extension System, and is a follow-up to an informal meeting held Oct. 14 at the county navigation district office during which the possibility of a growth impact study for Aransas County was first presented.

Among goals for the Nov. 4 meeting are to obtain some ideas of how the increasing population of Aransas County will affect the area. Among concerns expressed at the Oct. 14 meeting were how recent, rapid growth in the county will affect the school district, city and county law enforcement agencies and fire prevention.

Dr. Patrick told those at the Oct. 14 meeting he had no answers at that time — "I don't know what's going to happen as a result of this growth." He said finding the answers would be the purpose of a growth impact study if one is done for this area.

"The way this study will evolve if we do it," Dr. Patrick told those at the meeting, "is, we'll have a lot of conversations like this. Whether you realize it or not, you will all have to be very, very involved in this."

Among possible areas of study mentioned at the Oct. 14 meeting were the impact of recent condominium and shopping center developments on this area, recreational needs, the demands that will be placed on the school system, the impact of growth on the area's tourist industry and on water and sanitary sewer facilities.

Contract awarded for repairs to gym

By LESLIE ABRAMS
Staff writer

The Aransas County Independent School District board of education declared the Rockport-Fulton High School gym floor an emergency situation Monday evening, Oct. 31, and decided to go ahead and award a contract to replace the floor, waiving the normal bid process.

A contract in the amount of $53,750 was awarded to Victoria Floor Servicing Company to install and finish a brand new gym floor. The only cost to the school district will possibly be a $1,000 deductible for insurance.

A resoldered coupling joint in a hot water pipe which ran under the gym floor came loose several weeks ago, causing hot water to pour out underneath the floor, buckling it. The hot water pipes under the floor had been worked on recently under the direction of Powermaster of Texas, a San Antonio firm which the school district hired to perform energy management work.

The result of negotiation between the school district, Powermaster and the district's insurance company has resulted in insurance paying for $18,256 and Powermaster assuming $34,494 of the $53,750 cost of the floor, leaving the district with a $1,000 deductible.

Both the motion to declare the situation an emergency and the motion to award the contract to Victoria Floor Servicing Co. were approved by the board 5-0. Board member Annabelle Henry was not present at Monday night's meeting.

ACISD Superintendent E.J. Randow said Monday night that if the materials are delivered, climatized, laid down and refinished on schedule, the floor should be ready for play

United Fund campaign reported halfway to goal

Aransas County's 1983 United Fund reached the halfway point in its campaign this week with collection of $15,000 in donations and pledges — 50 percent of the 1983 goal.

The figure was announced by Rex Turner, drive chairman, and Joel Zapata, 1983 UF president, Monday. The two men expressed hope that the $30,000 goal will be reached in the near future.

The 1983 campaign was kicked off Sept. 19 in a meeting at Live Oak Center during which Turner observed that, "in a city the size of Rockport, $30,000 is not a lot of money."

Bob Ledbetter is assistant drive chairman and Jim Blankenship is publicity chairman. Other officers and directors of this year's organization include Paul Brown, business drive chairman, assisted by Mollie Freeborn; Louise Wilken in charge of special gifts; Bill Janacek, budget chairman; and directors Jim Cox, June Keese, Tim Gilles, Jeanie Rutledge, Curtis Kovacs, Mike Johnson, Bob Bernardy, Eloise Boling, Linda Rodgers, Richard McMakin, Norvell Jackson, Tom Zuniga, Gordon Boling and Bill Mayhoad.

The 1983 United Fund through its campaign is supporting the following organizations: Aransas County Council on Aging, Aransas County Emergency Medical Service (am-balance), Aransas County Youth Council, Aransas County Emergency Corps (the five volunteer fire departments), American Red Cross, ABC Learning Center, Boy Scouts of America-Gulf Coast Council, Family Counseling Service, the local and Paisano Council of Girl Scouts, AIM Home Health Agency and the USO.

Mayor proclaims November 'Chemical People Month'

Rockport Mayor Burt Mills has declared November "Chemical People Month" in Rockport in observance of a nationwide drug and alcohol abuse program being conducted through public television this month.

Mills issued the proclamation Friday, Oct. 28, in response to a letter from Texas Governor Mark White asking support of Texas' War on Drugs program which is working with the PBS stations, community groups and various agencies to make "Chemical People" a success in Texas.

"The Chemical people," according to White, is "a landmark series" of two one-hour nationwide PBS telecasts "designed to rally officials, community groups and concerned citizen volunteers in a battle against drug and alcohol abuse by youth in their own communities."

The two-part national television broadcast will be aired locally Wednesday, Nov. 2, and Wednesday, Nov. 9, on KEDT-TV Channel 16 in Corpus Christi. Wednesday's telecast, "The Chemical Society," which identifies the drug problem, will be shown at 7 p.m.

Channel 16 will follow at 8 p.m. with a local documentary featuring officials from Coastal Bend agencies and organizations focusing on the Coastal Bend drug problem and some organizations that can help.

"The Chemical Society" and local documentary will be rebroadcast at 10 and 11 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 6, and on Wednesday, Nov. 9, the second program, "Community Answers," will be aired at 7 p.m.

The Rockport Elementary PTA has issued a plea for all Aransas County residents — particularly parents — to watch the two-part presentation.

The project is being coordinated locally by the Coastal Bend Families in Action Inc. which is planning an information booth at Sunrise Mall from 10 a.m. until 9 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 5, to provide additional information and special programs on the drug problem. In addition to informational pamphlets, the display will include a video close-up look at marijuana, a puppet show by Mental Health/Mental Retardation, a slide show identifying various drugs, a rebroadcast of "The Chemical Society" and a demonstration of drug-sniffing dogs.

The proclamation issued by Mayor Mills Friday reads as follows:

WHEREAS, the average age for the first use of the illegal drug, marijuana, by our youth is now only 12 years of age; and

WHEREAS, two out of three American youth experiment with illicit drugs before graduation from high school; and

WHEREAS, drug and alcohol abuse have become a way of life for, affected the futures of and directly caused the untimely deaths of many young Texans; and

WHEREAS, strong State laws and dedicated efforts by Federal, State and local law enforcement officers can only scratch the surface of a well-organized drug network; and

WHEREAS, only through awareness and education of citizens of all ages will we be able to effectively battle the chemical epidemic; and

WHEREAS, a unique and powerful two-part drug and alcohol abuse program called "The Chemical People" will be televised throughout Texas and the nation over all public broadcast stations at 7 p.m. on Nov. 2 and 9.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, C. H. Mills Jr., Mayor of the City of Rockport, do hereby designate the month of November 1983 as in Rockport, Texas, and urge all citizens to view this timely and most important public service program and to participate in community meetings and panel discussions designed to develop local plans of action to turn the tide against illicit drug and alcohol abuse by the young people of this city.

CHEMICAL PEOPLE MONTH

Application made for new bank

Application has been announced for a charter for a new national bank for Rockport — the first new national bank charter for the city, if granted, in more than 90 years.

Proposed name of the new bank is Rockport Bank, National Association, and the organizers are Scott Felton, Delmar Hillier, Don Douglass, Don Kuykendall and Wayne Swift.

Proposed location is at the entrance to the Rockport Country Club at the intersection of Hwy. 35 North and Traylor Street. Anticipated opening date is to be within one year from the granting of approval for the facility from the Comptroller of Currency.

Hillier is a longtime Rockport resident and three-time prior mayor of the city. Douglass is a Rockport resident and active in civic affairs here.

PRAYER DAY OBSERVANCE. A speaker from the Corpus Christi Naval Air Station was among those participating in Sunday's "prayer-in" at the Paws & Taws Building. Organized by members of the Center of Positive Thought and coordinated by the Aransas County

Ministers Association, the event brought some 200 area residents to the Paws & Taws Building for an afternoon of short speeches, songs and prayers. Each of 12 ministers from local churches addressed the audience for three minutes and led prayers for the dead in Lebanon and Grenada, for American and world leaders and enemies of the United States. Color guards from the Rockport VFW Chapter and the Corpus Christi Naval Air Station participated in the ceremony.

$25.74 EACH MINUTE!

That's the average rate that Allied Live Oak Bank has been loaning money directly into the economy of Aransas County for the first three quarters of this year.

It comes out to something over $10,130,000 for the first nine months of 1983, and brings the total amount of Allied Live

Allied Live Oak Bank deposits, December 31, 1979 - September 30, 1983

Oak Bank loans to businesses and individuals in Aransas County to over $24,000,000!

From December 31, 1979 through September 30, 1983, deposits at Allied Live Oak Bank increased 215%. During that same time, the bank's loans into this community increased 244%.

Allied Live Oak Bank local loans, December 31, 1979 - September 30, 1983

Now, these are a lot of numbers to be throwing around, but what they all mean is really quite simple. You can see it just by looking around. New businesses, new homes, increasing property values, more jobs, and all the other good things that are a part of the excitement of a solid economy on the grow.

You see, at Allied Live Oak Bank, we know that it's money that fuels a healthy economy, and we think it's part of a bank's responsibility to supply a lot of that fuel. That's why we have more money loaned to the people in Aransas

County than any other local bank. And it's why we're ready—right now—to loan even more.

Obviously, a bank can't loan money if it doesn't have any, so the credit really goes to our depositors. They're the ones who see that by putting their money in Allied Live Oak Bank, they not only get all the immediate benefits we offer, they also get the long-range benefits of an improved economy in their community.

For that, we thank them, and you should too.

Handweavers sponsor workshop

VICTORIA — Handweavers and other fiber artists will have a special opportunity to learn more about their craft Thursday, Nov. 3, when the Handweavers Guild of the Victoria Regional Museum Association presents a workshop on Handspinning in the O'Connor Gallery of McNamara House.

Fay Drozd, a spinner and weaver from Corpus Christi, will demonstrate the equipment and techniques used to take various fibers from raw fiber to a finished thread or yarn suitable for weaving or knitting.

The workshop is intended to meet the needs of beginning and experienced spinners. Anyone interested in knowing more about handspinning is invited to attend the workshop which will begin at 9:30 a.m. A registration fee of $10 will be charged.

Drozd has been weaving for 10 years. A biomedical engineering technician with a specialty in pediatric cardiology, she has always been interested in needlework. As her interest in weaving grew, she became so enthusiastic about spinning that she raises her own sheep, both white and natural colored, as a source of wool.

She has worked with many noted weaving instructors and has taught spinning and weaving at Padre Island Weavers, the John E. Conner Museum, Utopian Community Center and the Hill Country Arts Foundation.

Among the places where she has exhibited and demonstrated her work are the Texas Arts and Crafts Foundation in Kerrville, the Chi Omega Kaleidoscope in Houston and the University of Texas Winedale Historical Center at Round Top.

Advance registration is advised. To obtain more information about the workshop or to register, contact Sharon Stubblefield at 575-1049 or 572-4425. For directions to McNamara House, a history museum operated by the Victoria Regional Museum Association, call the Association of office at 575-8227.

Coast Guard offers safe boating tip

Here's a safe boating tip from Corpus Christi Flotilla 71 of the United States Coast Guard Auxiliary. If you survive the first minute of an automobile accident, most of your worries are over. But, when you find yourself in the water after a boating accident, your troubles have just begun. Use good common sense while boating. Stay with your boat — shore may be farther than it looks.

Public Notice

Southwestern Bell, in accordance with rules and orders of the Public Utility Commission of Texas, hereby gives notice of its intent to re-file evidence and appropriate tariff(s) in support of a request to establish rates for the use of certain complex inside telephone wiring in the amount of $54.5 million annually. This request was previously a part of the considerations in Docket 5141 and now has been re-docketed as Docket 5420.

Customers who do not own the Complex Inside Wire associated with their Customer Premises Systems (such as PBX and Key Systems), and who utilize Southwestern Bell's wiring after January 1, 1984, could be affected by this request. On January 1, 1984, all of the Customer Premises Systems presently provided by Southwestern Bell Telephone Company will be transferred to a subsidiary of AT&T and that subsidiary of AT&T will be almost exclusively responsible for the charges pursuant to the proposed tariff on January 1, 1984. After January 1, 1984, customers who purchase their Complex Customer Premises Equipment and do not purchase, but continue to use, Southwestern Bell Telephone Company's inside wire will be subject to the charges proposed in the tariff.

The proposed effective date for these new rates is January 1, 1984.

Persons interested in intervening in this matter should file a written motion expeditiously with the Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Austin, Texas 78757, as the Hearing on the Merits in Docket 5420 is set for November 21, 1983.

10-3 defeat by Beeville

R-F Pirates lose Homecoming

A 10-3 Homecoming disappointment at the hands of Beeville was the Pirates' fate Friday night despite strong performances from both the offense and defense.

"They played their hearts out," states Head Coach Aubrey Schulz. "It's frustrating. I feel for them—even though they're winners, the scoreboard doesn't indicate it."

The Pirates led the contest 3-0 through the first half, thanks to a 22-yard field goal kicked by David Cochran late in the first quarter. However, Beeville scored on a five-yard run through the Pirate defense shortly before the third quarter ended and again midway through the fourth to cement their win.

Leading Beeville in total yardage, the Pirate offense was spearheaded by Dwayne Walls. Walls gained 112 yards on the Pirates' 183. With 52 yards on 11 carries was Scott Russ.

Quarterback Rudy Soliz attempted seven passes, completing four and losing one to an Beeville interception. Walls connected with three of Soliz' bullets but lost eight yards. Gaining 24 yards and receiving the other of Soliz' successful four was Cochran.

Leading the Pirate defense were Tom Weaver, Russ, Kevin Billeiter, Bill Mott, Chris Hill and Doyle Parr. "It's like the old saying goes," sums up Schulz. "You're never beaten, the time just runs out."

"They've never lost their confidence all year," boasts the coach. "Their example will carry on through the entire program."

"You are winning as long as you play with all you have."

Bucs, Mustangs tie — Raiders win

Four weeks into season, RFSA Juniors going strong

Week four of the Junior division soccer season saw the Bucs and the Mustangs play to a hard-fought 1-1 tie in Saturday's opener.

The Mustangs scored first when Robert Schoen boomed a kick from about 20 yards out that went into the net just out of reach of goal keeper Troy Brown. Leading 1-0, the Mustangs had lots of shots at the Buc net but Brown was there when he had to be and he and his teammates turned the Mustangs away. Outstanding ball control by John Valdez and Eric Flores gave the Mustangs many opportunities but the team couldn't cash in.

Late in the half the Bucs knotted the score when Chris Smartt gave Robert Robertson a perfect pass and

Robertson did the rest as he slipped it past the Mustangs' goalie.

The second half was a defensive struggle with both teams playing well. The Bucs' Misty Randall and Brown continued to shut off the Mustangs' charge. Mustang goalkeeper Alan Kohl was outstanding at the net for the Mustangs.

In the late game, the Bucs had to face the front-running Raiders. Just moments into the contest, the Raiders got the first break of the game when Charlie Lozano kicked the ball toward the goal and teammate Russell Crawford took the shot and lifted the ball into the goal off of a Buc defender. The Raiders continued to lead an assault on the Buc goal with lots of pressure on goalie Brown. Lozano fired a hard shot about midway through the period that deflected into the goal to give the Raiders a 2-0 lead.

The Bucs had only a few offensive chances in the first half, and their best attempt came when Roland Rios took the ball in on the left side and fired a shot toward the Raider goal. Goalie Nathan Arispe managed to get a hand on the ball and sent it harmlessly rolling past the goal. At the other end of the field Brown fielded a dozen or more shots and kept the game close with the aid of good defensive efforts by John Sanchez and Randall.

With time running down in the first half, an indirect kick by Lozano was tipped into the net by Crawford on the back side, putting the Raiders up 3-0.

In the second half, the Bucs stormed back, and this time Brown was put into the Bucs' forward line to give the team some offensive punch. The strategy worked as Brown sent a lofty shot toward the Raider goal and the ball hit far into the net for the first Buc score.

The Bucs continued to put lots of pressure on Raider goalie Ricky Romero but Romero made many big plays turning away the Bucs. The Raiders' picked up a fourth score when Paul Wilson successfully hit a penalty shot. Throughout the game, Rosendo Ricarte of the Raiders did an outstanding job of moving the ball to the Raider shooters.

The Bucs came back when Robertson popped a shot into the corner of the Raider net, cutting the score to 4-2. Lozano ended the scoring with a breakaway shot, giving the Raiders a 5-2 victory.

In other Rockport-Fulton Soccer Association action Saturday, the Intermediate division Tornados defeated the Hurricanes 4-0, with Tracy Youngblood scoring two goals and Jerry Schibi and Billy Barker scoring one each. Chuckie Nixon and Joel Ferguson provided strong defense for the Tornados but the Hurricanes had a super second half, highlighted by the sturdy performances of Russell Green and R.M. Brand. As of Saturday, the Hurricanes are trailing 0-4 in the season standings and the Tornados are 3-0-1.

In the Intermediate Strikers-Cosmos contest, the two teams fought neck and neck to a 3-3 tie. This was the second time the two teams have tied each other, though the Cosmos are ahead in the win-loss standings for the season, 1-0-3. The Strikers are 1-1-2. Scoring for the Cosmos Saturday were Jeremy Mills, turning in two big goals; and Elias Anderson with one.

In the Pee Wee division, the undefeated Barracudas finally dropped one, losing to the Kicks, who were also undefeated coming into the contest. Jay Pearson scored the single Kicks goal, 4-0 for the season, the Kicks lead the Pee Wee field, while the 3-1 Barracudas are in second place.

A 0-0 tie was the final result in the Rowdies-Sting battle. The rapidly improving Stings played their best game of the season, with outstanding defense provided by Jimmy Hearn, Jerry Schnexnider, Jamie Wood and goalkeeper Nazario Benavidez, Jr. Leading the Sting offensive attack were Shane Stephenson, Victor Flores and Bryan Harden, matched every step of the way by strong Rowdie offense from Chad Lilly, E.J. Minns and Aaron Vossler.

Marguerite Oswald collection to be exhibited

Lee Harvey Oswald's mother devoted the last 17 years of her life to trying to prove the existence of a conspiracy against her son.

The books, newspapers and magazines collected by Marguerite Oswald on the Kennedy assassination give mute testimony to her efforts. They repose now in Texas Christian University's Mary Couts Burnett Library in Fort Worth, which will be displaying selected parts of the collection in conjunction with the 20th anniversary of the assassination.

Hallmark of the collection, which filled 30 boxes at the time of Mrs. Oswald's death in 1980, is the full Warren Commission report, its volumes still holding her book-marks and many of its margins filled with her handwritten notes.

The book-marks range from a hand-crocheted one to an empty envelope that bears the return address of the U.S. State Department. Some are cents-off coupons for bacon and cornbread mix.

The margin notes are those of a mother who would clutch at any straw to try to prove her son was only an innocent pawn.

There is a lengthy FBI report on Oswald's arrest in New Orleans early in August of 1963 on a charge of disturbing the peace while he distributed handbills and placards for the Fair Play for Cuba committee. The report relates that Oswald and three others were arrested by three New Orleans policemen. Mrs. Oswald's comment was, "Look how many policemen were involved."

Alongside a report that a relative of Oswald came to the New Orleans police station to ask the charge against him but was reluctant to become involved in his release, she writes, "Not true according to my nieces' testimony."

Again and again the Fort Worth woman penned remarks about Ruth Paine, with whom her daughter-in-law Marina was living in Irving at the time of the assassination. Beneath Mrs. Paine's own testimony Mrs. Oswald wrote, "You are involved and lying."

Most vehement of Mrs. Oswald's comments was reserved for a Washington Star reporter's testimony that he was told Jack Ruby, slayer of Oswald, had been to the Western Union Office office earlier on Nov. 24 to wire $25 to a girl in Fort Worth.

Mrs. Oswald declared, "Always Fort Worth. Remember that. From the very first before I knew any of this testimony I have known the plan started here in Fort Worth to frame my son."

Rostropovich to give cello recital Nov. 13

SAN ANTONIO — The San Antonio Performing Arts Association will present the world-famous cellist Mstislav Rostropovich, in a rare recital appearance at Trinity University's Laurie Auditorium at 8 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 13.

Rostropovich, heralded by the New York Post as "The world's greatest cellist and possibly the greatest who ever lived," began composing and playing the piano at four. He studied cello and composition under Shostakovich at Moscow's famous

Children's Music School and performed his first concert at age 13.

He first concertized outside the Soviet Union in 1947 and made his United States debut on April 4, 1956, at New York City's Carnegie Hall. Currently, Rostropovich serves as music director and conductor for the National Symphony in Washington, D.C.

In tribute to Rostropovich's great genius, such famous composers as Prokofiev, Shostakovich, Bernstein, Khachaturian and Britten have dedicated cello works to him.

Other awards include Honorary memberships in the Academy of St. Cecilia in Rome and the Royal Academy in England; gold medals from the Royal Philharmonic Society in Great Britain and from various cities in France, Greece, Japan, Israel and Spain; and a special invitation from President and Mrs. Carter to play at the White House in 1978.

Rostropovich's Nov. 13 concert is his only scheduled

Texas recital. Featured on the program will be Beethoven's Sonata in A major, Opus 69, Schumann's Adagio and Allegro in A-flat major, Plus 70 and Benjamin Britten's Sonata in C major, Opus 65. Additional works by Beethoven and Benedetto Marcello will also be performed.

Tickets for the performance are $7 to $35 and are available at all Ticketron outlets: Dillard's, Majestic and Laurie Auditorium. For more information, call (512) 224-2939.

Bird course offered by Texas A&I

KINGSVILLE — Area bird lovers will soon have an opportunity to study the behavior and habitat of South

Texas birds in a course offered by the Welder Wildlife Foundation and Texas A&I University.

The course, "Bird and Plant Communities of Texas," includes 12 class meetings and five major field trips designed for those who have completed beginning bird identification training.

Classes will be conducted by Gene Blacklock, coordinator of environmental education for the Welder Wildlife Foundation, at the refuge near Sinton from Jan. 17 to May 14.

Blacklock is curator of the refuge museum and has written two books about the birds of Texas, focusing on the ones found along the coastal zones.

Visits to coastal marine communities, the Aransas National Wildlife Refuge and a boat trip to see the whooping cranes, Tamaulipan communities of the Rio Grande Valley with stops at the Santa Ana National Wildlife Refuge and Falcon Dam, Jones State Forest, Anahuac National Wildlife Refuge, High Island and Pecos Canyon, Lost Maples State Park and Edwards Plateau are included.

Last day to register is Jan. 10. For details contact the Texas A&I Center for Continuing Education at 595-2861.

Man ticketed for no liability insurance

Richard S. Dominguez of Rockport was ticketed for no proof of liability insurance following a collision with a vehicle driven by Christopher Williams of Rockport Wednesday, Oct. 26. No injuries were reported and both drivers gave conflicting reports of what happened.

William Shannon of Fulton was ticketed for failure to yield right-of-way after a vehicle he was driving was in collision with a vehicle driven by Tong Ven Nguyen of Rockport Saturday afternoon, Oct. 29, on Fulton Beach Road.

Nguyen was northbound on Fulton Beach Road near the intersection of Bayshore Drive when Shannon apparently made a left turn onto Bayshore, according to the report filed by Rockport police. Nguyen was ticketed for no operator's license in possession. No injuries were reported.

No tickets were issued in an accident Saturday afternoon, Oct. 22, near the intersection of Liberty and Live Oak Streets. A vehicle driven by Carolyn Appel of Rockport apparently suffered a seizure while driving, causing her vehicle to run into the parking lot of a nearby business and striking a parked vehicle. She was not injured in the accident.

Patman:

Abandonment of rural bus routes a hardship

Congressman Bill Patman, D-Texas, has testified that the Bus Regulatory Reform Act (BRRA) of 1982 is threatening people in rural areas with major hardships because of increasing applications for abandonment of bus routes or reduction of service.

Patman, who voted against the BRRA, told the House Subcommittee on Surface Transportation the requested discontinuance of service along the San Antonio-to-Houston route would hurt the elderly and poor who have to rely on the bus, would damage shippers and receivers of cargoes of such things as auto parts and whole blood transfusions and would endanger kidney and cancer patients who need bus service to get to dialysis and treatment centers in San Antonio and Houston.

He noted some 175 of his constituents testified on the vital importance of the bus service in their communities at hearings held by the Texas Railroad Commission in Eagle Lake, Gonzales, Weimar and Flatonia.

"The bus is a major mode of transportation for vaccines, specimens, X-rays and other vital medical material that must be delivered overnight," Patman told the oversight committee, which is studying revision of the 1982 act to discourage the rapid increase in discontinuance applications.

He noted that cities such as Gonzales depend on bus delivery for emergency repair parts for city-maintained equipment.

"Representatives of chambers of commerce and of ministerial alliances in the area testified (at the railroad commission hearings) on behalf of the elderly, the poor and other groups who would suffer if service were cut off," Patman testified.

He asked the subcommittee to give careful consideration to a number of recommendations by the Texas Railroad Commission to tighten the law and to prevent arbitrary Interstate Commerce Commission decisions which "discriminate against rural, agrarian and ranching regions and states such as Texas."

Patman's testimony supported the written testimony of the three-member Texas Railroad Commission, chaired by Mack Wallace, who has been in close touch with Patman on the effort to preserve strong bus service.

Media has the ability to affect history

The press has the ability to either hold together the nation during trying times or destroy it, contends a professor of history at Texas Christian University in Fort Worth.

As an example, "In the 1930s, the media held the country together. The depression was not a product of the media, but the media impacted upon the depression in a favorable way," said Dr. John Bohon.

"If the movies and the radio had not been around, we would have had a revolution in the 1930s. America today might have been a very different place," he said to a group of TCU Honor students during a recent weekend retreat.

The message given by the Frank Capra movies, Roosevelt's fireside chats, Jack Armstrong and Little Orphan Annie was that the American system might be having rough times, but it works. "I used to run home at night and turn on Jack Armstrong, the All-American boy; then I'd listen to Don Winslow, the Lone Ranger and Tom Mix. They all had one message, and that was that crime doesn't pay."

Bohon said one of the reasons for this favorable image in the media was that the heads of the big movie studios and the media, such as Sam Goldwyn and the Warner Brothers, were American immigrants who loved America.

But the American public saw the opposite side of the coin during the 1960s and the Vietnam War, said the TCU professor. "While the media didn't start the Vietnamese War or the Civil Rights Movement, it was a catalyst that almost tore this country apart."

One of the major reasons President Johnson would not send more troops to Vietnam after the TET offensive was because of one photograph which was shown on American television, he said.

"It was a picture of a North Vietnamese being shot in the head, and you have no idea what this did to the American people," he told the college students.

Another of the most tragic sights recorded in American history by television was that of President Johnson being held prisoner in the Oval Office, said Bohon. "He could not leave the Oval Office because two blocks away building were burning, led by arsonists and looters in the wake of the Martin Luther King assassination. And this was the president under whom more civil rights legislation was passed than any other President in the history of the United States," the history professor pointed out.

Copano Ridge man hurt in explosion

A Copano Ridge man sustained second degree burns over 40 percent of his body after his boat exploded near Keller's Marina in Copano Ridge Sunday afternoon, Oct. 30.

Ralph Pyle was reported in stable condition Monday afternoon in the burn center at Memorial Medical Center in Corpus Christi by Aransas County Emergency Medical Services Paramedic Director Bill Aston. Pyle reportedly sustained first, second and third degree burns over the face, head, arms, upper chest and feet. Aston said that the majority of the burns appeared to be second degree burns.

Pyle had apparently just completed fueling his boat at the marina and was backing the vessel away from the dock when the explosion occurred, causing the boat to burst into flames. The cause of the explosion has not yet been determined.

Beware of acorn poisoning in cattle

By MIKE ROTHROCK
County Extension Agent-AG
San Patricio-Aransas Counties

Cattlemen should be alert to prevent acorn poisoning in their animals.

Acorn poisoning generally occurs when acorns fall prematurely while they are still green. In past years, numerous cases of cattle poisoned from eating excessive quantities of acorns have been reported by Texas Veterinary Medical Diagnostic Laboratories.

Most cattle like acorns and tend to seek them out. Eating excessive quantities can cause death. The quantity tolerated by an animal is influenced by the protein content of its diet, with higher protein permitting the consumption of more acorns without poisoning symptoms.

Animals affected by acorn poisoning have a lack of appetite, appear full, become constipated and suffer weight loss. They also pass blood in the feces and may bleed from the nostrils. Profuse diarrhea may follow constipation. Affected animals drink large amounts of water and urinate excessive amounts of clear urine.

Many animals go down after three to seven days of symptoms. If animals do not die, they will require two to three weeks of recovery. Ranchers suspecting a problem or noting symptoms should contact a veterinarian as early as possible.

Treatment is of little value in severely affected animals. However, giving calcium hydroxide and increasing the protein content of the diet may help. Protein, usually in the form of cottonseed meal, combines with toxic elements in acorns making less of the toxic principle available to animals.

A feed containing 54 percent cottonseed meal, 30 percent dehydrated alfalfa meal, 6 percent vegetable oil and 10 percent calcium hydroxide (hydrated lime) has prevented oak poisoning when fed daily to cattle. This supplement can be fed in loose form in troughs at the rate of about 4 pounds per head per day for adult cattle.

Where possible, remove cattle from access to acorns. Of course, acorn poisoning can be prevented by removing cattle from areas with oaks and acorns during the time they have recently fallen. Try to reserve these pastures for late fall or winter grazing. If any animals are suspected of poisoning, remove other animals until a diagnosis can be made.

Flu and cold season here

A person inhales about 500 cubic feet of air daily, equivalent to a large walk-in closet. In that air are a variety of disease-causing creatures, including viruses.

The respiratory tract — consisting of the nose, throat, windpipe, bronchial tubes and lungs — has defenses against viruses and other invaders like mites, bacteria, dust and pollen. But they sometimes take hold anyhow.

This is particularly true in the winter, the main season for influenza and colds. Both are caused by viruses. Any of 200 viruses can produce a cold and numerous others can cause the flu, says the Texas Medical Association.

Although the two illnesses can have similar symptoms, experiments with volunteers have provided these general differences:

— Fever: Colds rarely include fever, except in children. Flu usually begins with fever.

— How they hit: Flu is swift and severe. Colds tend to build more slowly.

— Location: Colds show localized symptoms such as sneezing and a runny nose. Flu has general symptoms such as weakness, muscular pain, chills and headache.

— Other symptoms: Ninety percent of flu victims have a dry, hacking cough; 60 percent have sore eyes; 50 percent have a flushed face and hot, moist skin. These symptoms appear less often in cold sufferers.

Although neither has a cure, some drugs are being studied for the flu. (The flu vaccine is effective in preventing the illness unless the particular flu virus circulating shifts into a form new to the body's defenses, which it often does.)

Because penicillin and other antibiotics are ineffective against viruses, don't expect your doctor to give you a "shot."

With either a cold or the flu, it's best to stay home, drink plenty of water and fruit juices, and get rest. Aspirin helps the headache and muscle pains and an aspirin substitute may be taken by children with the flu. Over-the-counter cold tablets, cough syrups and nasal sprays may give temporary relief for a cold.

If a cold has not cleared up within 10 days and the flu within a couple of weeks, seek medical attention.

Large scale application of fire ant pesticide initiated in Winnie

WINNIE — Large-scale application of an environmentally safe, non-toxic compound for the control of the red imported fire ant will begin in Winnie this week, according to Stauffer Chemical Company, the product's manufacturer.

Pro-Drone*, one of a new generation of pest control products, acts like the ant's natural juvenile hormone and suppresses the development of worker ants. Without workers, the fire ant nest dies.

Proven effective in smaller-scale testing in other Sunbelt states, Pro-Drone will be aerially applied by Stauffer contractors to nearly 100,000 acres of pasture land to demonstrate the performance of the product in large, heavily infested areas as well as the effectiveness of fall application and spring follow-up treatment.

Pro-Drone, which is not a poison like conventional insecticides, has been formulated as a bait of corn grit and soybean oil which is very appealing to foraging ants.

The small amount of compound which is not gathered by the ants is quickly and easily broken down by sunlight and degrades very rapidly in water. While non-persistent in the environment, Pro-Drone remains in the stomachs of the ants and continues to work over a period of months.

Ant Colonies Starve

A fire ant colony contains a variety of ant castes, or classes, each performing a specific task in support of the colony. The queen lays the eggs, worker ants collect food and the sexual ants mature to mate and continue the species.

Mimicking the action of natural juvenile hormones, Pro-Drone effects a shift in caste development by causing fire ant larvae which would normally hatch into workers to develop into non-worker ants which cannot successfully mate.

With this decrease in the number of workers, food gathering, brood tending and colony maintenance will decline, leading to the eventual death of the colony.

The red imported fire ant infests approximately 230 million acres in nine southern states, including Texas and Puerto Rico, causing not only damage to crops and machinery but injury—and sometimes death—to livestock, small game and humans.

In numerous cases rock-hard fire ant mounds have rendered farm acreage and urban land essentially unusable. Many experts fear further spread of the pest into the fertile Rio Grande Valley of South Texas and the Imperial and San Joaquin Valleys of California.

Accidentally introduced into the United States from Brazil in 1940, the fire ant has no known natural predators in this country. Many previous products have proven to be either ineffective or environmentally unsafe and have failed to retain approval by the federal Environmental Protection Agency (EPA).

Pro-Drone, with its non-toxic mode of action, low application rate, non-persistence and ability to break down in the soil, offers a safe, effective alternative to such products.

Environmental Considerations

Pro-Drone has received EPA approval for use on lawns, turf, pastures, range grass and other non-agricultural lands. As such, it is appropriate for state agencies, ranchers and farmers requiring fire ant control over large tracts of land. Registration for use on crops is anticipated.

The active ingredient in Pro-Drone has a half-life of 30 hours on the soil surface and will not contaminate subsurface waters.

Pro-Drone has been formulated to be particularly attractive to the fire ant. Tests on non-target organisms—including aquatic organisms, birds, mammals, humans and beneficial insects—with the active ingredient in Pro-Drone indicate it is essentially non-toxic to these organisms.

The Pro-Drone bait formulation, containing only 1.2 percent of active ingredient, was developed specifically to attract fire ants, which are fierce competitors for food. (Less than one pound of the bait material is needed per acre, containing less than a fifth of an ounce of active ingredient.)

Tests on this type of bait have shown that 95 percent of the bait is picked up by the fire ants within an hour of application in heavily infested areas. Its oily nature, particle size distribution and very low application rate further minimize the risk of uptake by non-target organisms.

More information on Pro-Drone may be obtained from the Stauffer Chemical Company, Agricultural Chemical Division, Westport, Conn. 06881-0850.

Terrorism is way of life in El Salvador

In the first six months of 1983, an average of 637 civilians died each month at the hands of security forces in El Salvador, said a political science professor at Texas Christian University.

"If you put that proportionally to the population of the U.S., it would be the same as 32,000 deaths a month occurring in the U.S., carried out by the army, police and the FBI," said Dr. Mike Dodson, who recently returned from a six-month trip to Central America and Mexico.

Terrorism is a word that is equated with guerilla, he said. "The administration and the U.S. media have succeeded in defining the terrorists as those people who are the guerillas in Central America. But a guerilla army is by definition outnumbered and outarmed, so that the only way it can function is with the support of the people."

But Dodson contends that it is not the guerilla forces which are the terrorists in El Salvador, but the U.S.-supported regime. Most of the government's military actions are never reported in our press and this is a real obstacle to the American understanding of our involvement in Central America.

"There is independent documentary evidence that the army in El Salvador is using phosphorus bombs. When they fly over guerilla territory, they just throw them out the window. It's U.S. stuff and it violates the Geneva Convention," Dodson said. "That's terrorism, but it is terrorism that is being perpetrated by the government and not by the guerillas."

"The U.S. administration has used the domino theory to explain that if a country like El Salvador falls, now that a country like Nicaragua has already fallen, it is just a matter of time until Guatemala and Honduras go too. Next comes Mexico and the spreading communist tide will be on the shores of the Rio Grande," he said.

The press has propagated the view that the U.S. is supporting a democratic government in El Salvador on the basis of the election in March 1982. Although it was reported that 80 percent of the people turned out to vote, this does not prove popular support because voting is compulsory in El Salvador, explained Dr. Dodson.

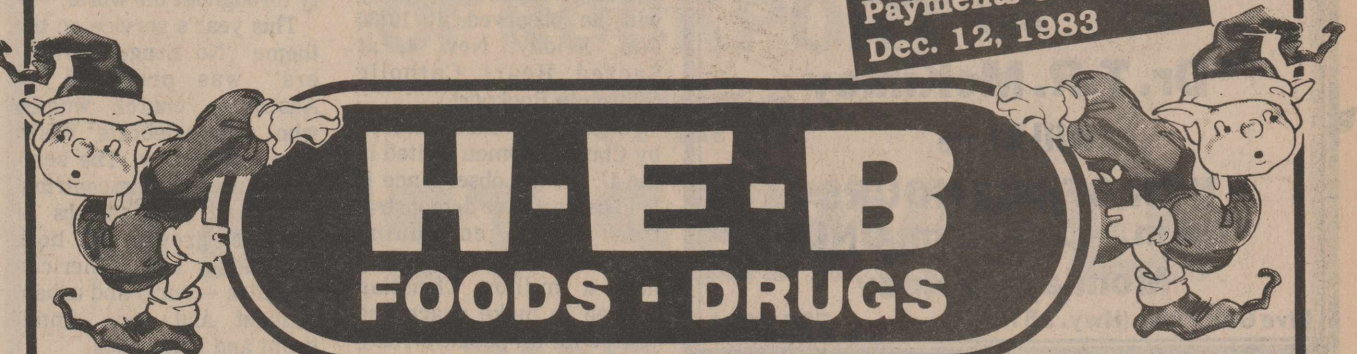

"Every citizen in El Salvador carries a voter registration certificate. If you vote, it is stamped," he said. "In El Salvador today there is a state of war, and security forces stop people routinely and ask them for their documents. Not having that voter registration card with a stamp on it could be a death sentence."

Aphids are prolific

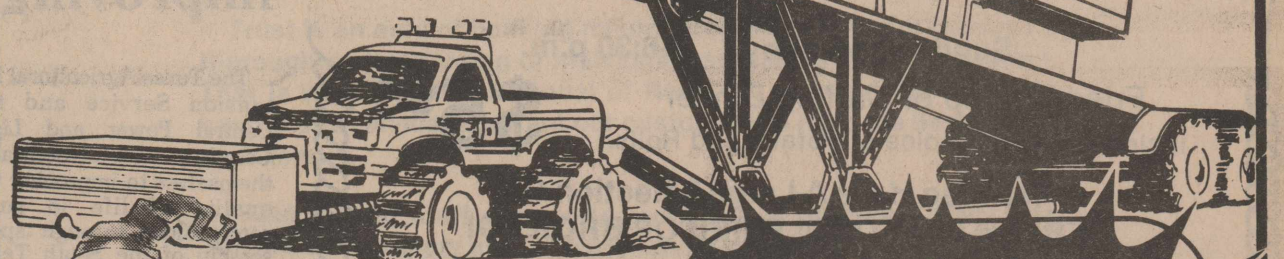

Among the most prolific creatures on Earth is the aphid — an insect responsible for a third of all viral disease transmitted to plants, says "National Wildlife" magazine. A French biologist once calculated that if all the young survived, the number of descendants resulting from a single aphid over the course of one summer would total nearly six billion. Fortunately, millions of aphids are eaten by predators before they ever hatch.

Joggers' 6.2-mile race scheduled for Nov. 19

VICTORIA — First Victoria National Bank in cooperation with the Victoria Joggers Association and the Victoria Parks and Recreation Department announces the First Victoria 10,000.

Rain or shine, the First Victoria 10,000 is scheduled to start promptly at 10 a.m., Saturday, Nov. 19.

This 10 kilometer (6.2 miles) race which has been sanctioned by the South Texas TAC/USA, will feature Olympic-class athletes and total prize money of $4,700 to be awarded in Masters and Open Divisions.

First, second and third place finishers in all 12 age/sex groups will receive specially-designed awards created by Victoria artists.

The first 50 finishers of each sex will receive medals and all entrants will receive a First Victoria 10,000 T-shirt and race certificate.

The course begins at the race pavilion by the zoo and winds along a fast track of paved roads through Victoria's scenic Riverside Park. The course will run along the Guadalupe River, by the golf course, past the duck pond, around the playground, past the fountain and beside the baseball field.

Live music, free drinks, fresh fruits and prize drawings will follow the awards party after the race.

Race applications may be obtained by calling, toll-free, 1-800-242-3120.

WASHINGTON — U.S. Rep. Kent Hance, D-Texas, has called on President Reagan to immediately order a stop to all purchases from the government of Iran.

"It is obvious from the evidence we have collected," Hance said, "that terrorists loyal to the Ayatollah Khomeini's government are behind the massacre of American troops in Lebanon."

"Khomeini-supported terrorists took over the U.S. Embassy in Tehran in 1979 and held more than 50 Americans hostage for 15 months; they bombed the U.S. Embassy in Beirut this year and killed 63 people, including 17 Americans; and terrorists attacked the U.S. Marine headquarters in Beirut, leaving more than 200 Americans dead."

"In addition to a very small portion of our oil needs, the U.S. buys millions of dollars worth of other products from the Ayatollah. I believe Americans would be willing to do without the yarns, hides, carpets, artwork and fish they buy from Iran if they knew that this money supports terrorists intent on killing Americans."

"In August," Hance pointed out, "almost 300 million American dollars went to Iran in exchange for these products."

"How long is the Reagan Administration going to continue financing Khomeini's goons?" the Lubbock Democrat asked.

"It is not in the American tradition to do business with our enemies and Khomeini is definitely an enemy. I know Americans would support the president if he ordered all imports from Iran stopped," Hance said.

Eleven tour operators to arrive in Corpus Christi

CORPUS CHRISTI — Eleven tour operators from across the United States will be in South Texas Nov. 2-6 for a pre-conference familiarization trip prior to the National Tour Association convention in Houston.

The group will arrive at Corpus Christi International Airport at midday Wednesday, Nov. 2, to visit this region's attractions. The following day they will tour the King Ranch, have a barbecue lunch there and then go to Harlingen, South Padre Island, McAllen and Laredo.

Included in the group will be representatives of McIntosh Travel in Charleston, S.C.; Miami Valley Automobile Club in Dayton, Ohio; All State Tours in Brooklyn, N.Y.; Good Will Tours in Erie, Kan.; Frontier Tours in Carson City, Nev.; and ATI Tours in Chicago.

The Convention and Tourism Bureau's Director of Public Relations, Ede Day, will accompany the group while they are in the area and then go on to Houston with them on Nov. 6 for the convention.

She will operate the Corpus Christi booth at the NT convention, furnishing information to all tour operators interested in booking tours to the area. She will man another Corpus Christi booth at the American Bus Association convention in New Orleans on Dec. 6-10.

World Community Day set Nov. 4 at Sacred Heart

World Community Day will be observed at 10:30 a.m. Friday, Nov. 4, at Sacred Heart Catholic Church in Rockport.

An annual event sponsored by Church Women United in the U.S., the observance is held as an active demonstration of the continuing commitment of more than half a million Christian women to make peace and justice for all people a reality throughout the world.

This year's service on the theme "No Longer Strangers" was prepared by Australian church women who also celebrate World Community Day. The service focuses on the contributions and relationships of diverse groups in both Australian and American societies — rural and urban, affluent and poor, immigrant and indigenous.

Church Women United is a national ecumenical movement whose goal is to bring together Protestant, Roman Catholic, Orthodox and other Christian women in one "community of caring." The organization sponsors three ecumenical celebrations annually: World Community Day, World Day of Prayer (the first Friday in March) and May Fellowship Day (the first Friday in May).

Offerings from these celebrations make possible the mission of Church Women United International Grants that fund projects both in the U.S. and abroad to support the empowerment of women, human rights, justice and peace.

Program dedicated to improving quality of life

The Texas Agricultural Extension Service and the Central Power and Light Company have re-dedicated themselves to improving the quality of life in rural communities through sponsorship of the South Texas Community Improvement Program (STCIP), according to Richard E. Tillman, Aransas and San Patricio County Extension Agent (Marine).

Since the mid-1950s the Extension Service and the investor-owned utility companies have sponsored a state-wide community improvement program. The program was discontinued in 1980 when several of the utilities withdrew their support for budgetary reasons. The Extension Service and CP&L have decided to maintain their commitment to community improvement in South Texas, Tillman said.

Communities enrolled in STCIP receive assistance in identifying and carrying out improvement projects. The program is competitive with certificates, plaques and cash awards given to communities based upon their improvement accomplishments.

Communities, incorporated or unincorporated, with populations of 1,000 or less and which are located in the 44-county CP&L service area are eligible to participate in the South Texas Community Program. Communities receiving awards during the 1982-83 contest year included Fashing-Petty-Coy City, Rossville and Verdi in Atascosa County; Shattell in Frio County; Abram-Perezville - Chihuahua in Hidalgo County; Austwell in Refugio County; and Harwood and Gonzales in Gonzales County.

Improvements accomplished in these communities included community clean-ups and paint-ups, community buildings restored, water systems installed, health fairs conducted, programs for youth and the elderly established and numerous fund-raising activities carried out.

Nineteen communities are now enrolled in the 1983-84 STCIP year. Judging tours will take place in April and early May.

Communities interested in enrolling in the South Texas Community Improvement Program can do so by contacting their county extension agent at Texas A&M University, P.O. Box 158, Port Aransas, Texas 78373, or their CP&L representative.

Critter delights preschoolers

A humorous storybook character is provoking delighted reactions in youngsters and evoking laughs from their parents as well.

The Little Critter, created by Mercer Mayer, author/illustrator of over 70 children's books, is an endearing character currently starring in six new Golden Books.

As usual Mercer Mayer's Little Critter Books are right on target. Perfect in size and subject for preschoolers, these small hardcover books explore the range of emotions a child experiences when growing up.

"The New Baby" in Little Critter's house, for example, is fussy and messy and won't pay attention to him even when he makes his funniest face. So, what can you do with a new baby? All new brothers and sisters are likely to relate to Little Critter's answer.

"When I Get Bigger" is a story about Little Critter's ambitions for his life as a 6-year-old. He'll be able to go to the store and spend his allowance on anything he wants, stay up and see the end of the TV movie and own a pair of super-pro roller skates.

"I Was So Mad" explores all the frustrations involved in being continually told "No, you can't!" "All By Myself" shows how proud Little Critter is of being able to get dressed and do other important things by himself. "Just Go To Bed" and "Me Too!" are also charming stories about typical early childhood experiences.

Six small new books that are popular with preschoolers and their parents.

Chapter I

parents meet

The first parents' meeting of the 1983-84 Chapter I Reading Improvement Program of the Aransas County Independent School District was held Thursday, Oct. 27, at Rockport Elementary School.

William J. Ratliff, director of elementary education for the district, welcomed the group of 26 parents and explained the purposes of the program. Sara Miller, director of the Chapter I Reading Improvement Program, introduced the program staff.

Miller explained the need for Parent Advisory Councils and parents from each elementary school held elections to form their own PAC.

Several parents were chosen to serve on a District Parent Advisory Council. Those who will serve on the District PAC during the 1983-84 school year include Debbie Dill, president; Patricia Garza, vice president; Phyllis Ridgeway, secretary; Manuel Rocha, parliamentarian; Carol Buckley, historian; Josephine Ward, Maria Soliz and Jean Hargrove.

Career schools aid transitions

Changing careers has become almost commonplace in American society. However, in order for these career transitions to be successful, many people have to learn new skills — and many are turning to America's trade and technical schools to learn them.

Specialized trade and technical schools appeal to people seeking a career change because the training is job-oriented and intensive. In addition, trade and technical schools emphasize "hands-on" training using the same equipment that is used on the job.

"Thousands of people each year use our schools as springboards to new careers," says Mike Freedland, president of the National Association of Trade and Technical Schools (NATTS), an educational association representing over 600 private career schools across the country. "They realize that by learning a skill the odds of successfully changing careers improve dramatically."

Until recently, most Americans were content with one career. Today, however, with rapid advances in technology changing many jobs, it's not too unusual to meet many people who have changed careers.

"We're seeing it all," says Freedland. "The home-maker who wants to become a travel agent, the social worker who wants to be a dental assistant and the math teacher who wants to become a computer service technician are typical of the kinds of career transitions we help people achieve each year."

Although it's difficult to define what constitutes a career change, most authorities agree it's really the individual's perception that counts. If he or she perceives a job change to be a significant departure, it should be considered a career change.

While the specific justifications people give for changing careers vary tremendously, labor experts contend that there are generally three basic reasons why most individuals seek a new career — changes in one's family situation, job changes — plant shutdowns or the introduction of new equipment or simply internal pressures caused by one's preoccupation with career and life satisfaction.

"Most people who desire career changes have a strong sense of commitment," Freedland says. "They know what they want and they know we can help them without taking three or four years in the process."

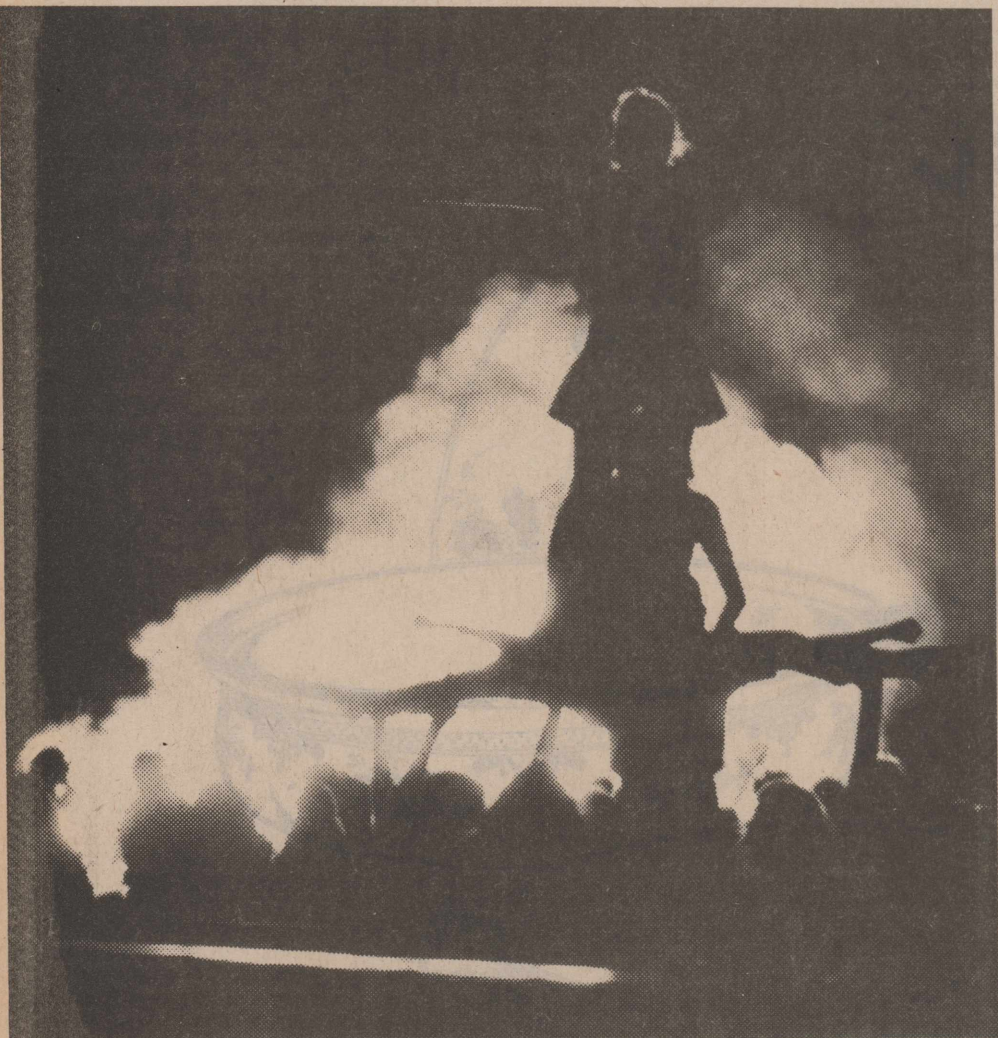

According to Freedland, there are 98 new career changers to consider and most programs enable students to complete their training in two years or less. These schools emphasize specialized training with less training unrelated to the occupational goal, plus a chance to finish quicker. Classes are usually small and start frequently throughout the year.

"Access and time are vital," says Freedland. "A lot of people are facing serious employment and career difficulties in this country and can't wait for the training to begin. They need to start training today for tomorrow's careers."

For many Americans, the ever-changing job market will mean new jobs, new careers and new opportunities. In the years ahead more people will experience different jobs and different careers. To keep workers in touch with new developments and rapid advances in technology, equally rapid training will be crucial.

For a free copy of the 1983-84 "Handbook of Trade and Technical Careers and Training," write to NATTS, 2021 K Street, N.W., Washington, DC 20006-1077. The handbook lists over 600 accredited trade and technical schools nationwide. It also provides information on choosing a career and a career school.

Continued use of antibiotics can impair immune development

A growing array of antibiotics has been used for more than three decades to treat and sometimes prevent disease in animals and humans. But in recent years there has been increasing recognition that continued use of these potent drugs can create problems, according to Dr. Syed A. Naqi, microbiologist at Texas A&M University.

"Antibiotics have been shown to affect various immune functions in animals and humans," Naqi says, "but widespread therapeutic use is made of antibiotics in food-animal production, particularly commercial poultry.

"Also, humans having chronic bacterial and fungal infections and those receiving immuno-suppressive regimens also receive antibiotics for prolonged periods.

"While the beneficial effects of antibiotics under such situations have been widely acclaimed in the past, their effects on the immune system were largely ignored."

Therefore, scientists with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, in the department of veterinary microbiology and parasitology, College of Veterinary Medicine, Texas A&M University, made a study of the effect of antibiotics on the development of the immune system in chickens and turkeys.

"The objective of the first study," Naqi says, "was to define the effects of a specific antibiotic regimen on the development of the immune system in chickens. This antibiotic regimen included preincubation dipping of fertile eggs in gentamicin solution (500 parts per million), injection of chicks with the same antibiotic (0.2 mg/chick, subcutaneously) and inclusion of chlortetracycline in the diet (200 ppm)."

Antibiotic-treated chickens generally carried lower densities of immunoglobulin (Ig) bearing cells, than the respective controls, Naqi says.

However, statistically significant differences were apparent only with respect to Ig cell populations in the cecal tonsils and the large intestine. The treated chickens also had significantly lower serum IgM levels at 28 days of age.

How antibiotics effected suppression of the Ig bearing cells in the tissues and the Ig levels in the serum is unknown. A plausible mechanism is through suppression of the intestinal microflora by the antibiotics and resulting lack of stimulation of the gut associated lymphoid (immune) tissues.

Another question that logically arises is whether or not the immunodeficiency seen in the antibiotic-treated birds is likely to compromise their ability to counter infectious diseases.

Although these studies did not involve evaluation of immune competence of the treated birds, previous studies have shown antibiotic treatment to result in lower antibody production to various antigens and compromise in phagocytosis (engulfment and destruction of foreign substances) and chemotaxis (migration of injury-repairing cells).

Additional studies with turkey poulters essentially confirmed the findings made with chickens, Naqi says.

"In food animals, antibiotics are used to reduce risk of infection and improve growth rate. If antibiotics are reducing infection risk on one hand and compromising host defenses on the other, the risk versus benefit situation should be carefully evaluated. This study is a step towards bringing about this awareness," Naqi concluded.

Federal deficits hurting U.S. producers

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Senator Lloyd Bentsen has announced that large federal deficits are helping place U.S. auto and steel producers at a 20-30 percent competitive disadvantage against Japanese producers.

Bentsen commented on the problem while presiding over hearings by the Joint Economic Subcommittee on Economic Goals into voluntary limits on Japanese auto exports. In 1981 the Japanese agreed to impose the limits for three years. A decision must be made in coming months on whether the agreement will be extended. "The limits were imposed to vent U.S. pressure for permanent trade controls. They had the effect of off-setting the substantial price advantage which Japanese firms enjoy for several reasons over U.S. producers," Bentsen said.

"Perhaps the foremost cause of the Japanese-American price differential is the relative strength of the dollar vis-a-vis the yen — a reflection of our sky-high interest rates and the dollar's role as a key international currency.

"An important component of that situation, a component that has received far too little attention, is the impact of this country's large federal deficits on the dollar," the Senator said.

"Last week's report by the U.S.-Japan Advisory Commission noted that the undervalued yen give Japanese firms a price advantage of anywhere from 20 to 30 percent against U.S. producers. Much of that difference, and the resulting substantial disadvantage facing U.S. auto, steel and other industries in U.S. and world markets, can be laid at the doorstep of the U.S. government.

"The voluntary limits imposed by Japan have had the effect of buying time to reduce the deficits," Bentsen said.

"That time, I am sad to say, has not been used wisely. Action must be taken, and soon, to avoid the prospect of $200 billion deficits for years to come," Senator Bentsen said.

New tax law affects insurance

COLLEGE STATION — Changes in the tax law affecting the amount of uninsured personal casualty or theft losses that can be claimed as deductions have important implications for family finances.

Under the old rule, you could deduct all but the first $100 of uninsured losses, explains Nancy Granovsky, a family resource management specialist.

But beginning with the 1983 tax year, you will only be able to claim total losses in excess of 10 percent of your adjusted gross income, says Granovsky, a home economist with the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service.

Under the new rules, only the most catastrophic unreimbursed losses would probably be deductible for an average-income family, although any loss could cause a financial hardship, says the specialist.

"People who haven't experienced a fire, theft or other loss this tax year may be unaware of how this rule change could affect them," Granovsky says.

It would have the greatest impact on those consumers who raised their insurance deductibles over the past several years, thinking they could write off any uninsured losses of their income taxes, she adds.

Some of these consumers may wish to decrease their deductibles again as a shield against losses that would not be offset by a tax deduction.

Families will need to choose between increasing insurance — and premiums — to compensate for the loss of tax advantages or risking a greater casualty or theft loss with a high deductible, says the home economist.

In making this decision, consumers should remember that the purpose of insurance is to cover those risks and hazards that we would not be able to cover ourselves, says Granovsky.

Amendments to Social Security Act will affect most people

By ERIC R. KINGSON
(Seventh of 14 parts)
The recent amendments to the Social Security Act affect almost all Americans. Any sacrifice that they entail has been spread fairly evenly. And too, the changes will ensure the financial stability of the retirement, survivors' and disability programs.

Here are some of the major changes that affect you and your family.

One change affects the cost-of-living adjustment. Since 1975, there has been an automatic cost-of-living adjustment in July, essentially whenever the yearly increase in inflation has been 3 percent or more. This automatic COLA simply maintains the purchasing power of benefits.

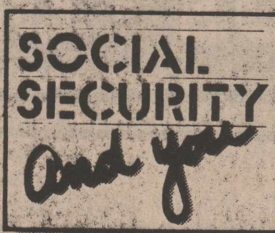

The most important news about the COLA is good. It's been kept, basically unchanged. However, the bad news is that in 1983 the COLA is being delayed six months from July 1983 to January 1984. In the future, the cost-of-living adjustments will be made every January instead of the previous July.

The six-month delay in the COLA amounts to a loss in 1983 of a bit less than $150 for the typical retired couple and about $84 for the single, retired worker.

One can also consider the change as a six-month delay (from July to January) in the COLA for as long as the program continues. This represents roughly a 2 percent reduction in benefits.

In general, the COLA will continue to be based on price changes. But beginning in January 1985, if the amount of money in the combined OASDI (Old Age and Survivors', Disability Insurance) trust funds is extremely low, the cost-of-living adjustment will be based on the lesser of the change in prices or wages, until the trust funds return to an acceptable level. Catch-up increases will be made when there is sufficient money in the trust funds.

Beginning in 1984, the new law also makes up to one-half of Social Security benefits subject to income taxes for beneficiaries whose yearly incomes exceed certain base amounts — $25,000 for single taxpayers and $32,000 for married taxpayers filing jointly. The base amounts include your adjusted gross income plus certain non-taxable interest income and one-half of Social Security benefits. The proceeds from this tax will be credited to the OASDI trust funds.

In 1984 only, a tax credit will entirely offset the additional payroll tax contribution, which results from a 0.3 percent increase in the payroll tax.

Beginning in 1984, self-employed workers will basically be treated like other workers: their contributions to the OASDI Social Security trust funds will equal the combined employer-employee rate (14 percent in 1984).

The new law also provides tax credits (2.7 percent in 1984, 2.3 percent in 1985, 2.0 percent in 1986-88) against the self-employment payroll tax prior to 1990 and an income tax deduction comparable to one-half of the self-employed payroll tax beginning in 1990. With these changes self-employed people will be treated in roughly the same manner as businesses, which are allowed to deduct, as business expenses, the payroll tax contributions they make for their employees.

Beginning in 1984, new employees of the federal government will make payroll tax contributions and earn the right to protection under the Social Security cash program. The president, members of Congress and some other high level federal employees will also be covered.

Mandatory coverage beginning in 1989 is also extended to essentially all present and future employees of non-profit organizations. The 1983 amendments prohibit state and local governments from terminating coverage of state and local government employees and allow previously withdrawn state and local groups to be covered.

Under the new law, the normal retirement age will be increased by two months a year for six years beginning in 2000. The new retirement age will be 66 for workers born in 1943 through 1954. Then, beginning in the year 2017, the normal retirement age will again be raised so it will be 67 for workers born in 1960 or later. The age at which widows, widowers and spouses can receive full benefits will also increase.

While maintaining age 62 as the earliest possible retirement age under Social Security, the benefit reduction for early retirement will be increased from 60 percent to 75 percent for retirement age 62 by 2005, and to 70 percent by 2022.

Texas A&I University schedules Parents' Day for November 12

KINGSVILLE — Texas A&I University students will welcome their mothers, fathers and guests to Parents' Day 1983 here Nov. 12.

The daylong program begins with registration from 10 a.m. to noon in the Student Union Building. Parents may pick up tickets for the buffet luncheon, rodeo, barbecue dinner and the football game scheduled later in the day.

In the morning, parents may test their marksmanship skills on the University's indoor smallbore range at the ROTC open house from 10 a.m. to noon; visit the John E. Conner Museum and learn about his history of South Texas and expansion plans for the Caesar Kleberg Hall of Natural History between 10 a.m. and 1 p.m.; stop by the College of Agriculture from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. for the annual Parent's Day horticultural display and plant sale; or browse through the University bookstore for souvenirs between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m.

From 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., President and Mrs. Billy J. Franklin will host a reception in the Student Union. Pianist Kirby Wayne Park of Alice will provide entertainment. A sophomore, he is the accompanist for the Texas A&I Singers.

A buffet luncheon will be gin at noon, also in the Student Union Building. Texas A&I students may use their meal cards and must be accompanied by their parents. Tickets are $4 for adults and $2 for children under 12.

University cheerleaders and the Texas A&I Marching Band kick off the afternoon's events with a performance in the Student Union mall from 1:30-2:15 p.m.

William Oliver Swafford, known to music lovers as "Oliver," will perform in Jones Auditorium from 2:30-4:30 p.m. Advance adult tickets are $3, $3.30 at the door. Children's tickets are $1 for ages 6-12, under six admitted free.

Mesquite Grove will be the site of the Aggie Club's Texas Style Barbecue dinner. Advance adult tickets are $3.50, $4 at the gate, children under 12, $3 each. The barbecue will be from 4:30-6 p.m.

Closing out the day, the Javelinas will host Howard Payne College at 7 p.m. in Javelina Stadium. Pre-game festivities are planned for 6:45 p.m.

Tickets are $6 for reserved sections B and E; $4 for reserved sections A and F; general admission for adults, $4; high school students and younger, $3 each.

For registration details and tickets, contact the Student Activities Office at 595-2760.

Two plant species have been successfully propagated in test tube experiment

KINGSVILLE — A researcher at Texas A&I University has successfully propagated two plant species in test tubes during tissue culture experiments at the Caesar Kleberg Wildlife Research Institute.

Leucaena leucocephala, known as lead tree, is native to northern Mexico and south Texas, and Prosopis tamarugo, which is similar to common mesquite, is native to the dry desert regions of northern Chile. Both species were cultured by Dr. Yashpal Goyal, a post-doctoral fellow at the institute.

Goyal says, "These plants have been cultured in test tubes for the first time in tissue culture science, according to existing scientific literature."

Leucaena has been cultured to produce four shoots for each vegetative bud and tamarugo buds can produce two shoots using our plant tissue culture techniques.

In his experiments vegetative buds from each parent plant were cultured on a synthetic nutrient medium comprised of organic and inorganic matter, vitamins, amino acids and growth hormones. The buds and the medium were placed in test tubes under sterile conditions. After a 30-45 day incubation period multiple shoots developed from each bud species.

In the case of leucaena, the same bud produced two or three more shoots after transferring the bud to a new culture medium.

The new shoots of both plant buds were cut off and transferred to root-forming medium. In this environment they developed tap roots within 15 days.

Goyal is conducting research on developing techniques to transplant the rooted shoots from the test tubes into a soil mixture and, ultimately, into a field environment.

According to the scientists, if one plant bud can be established successfully in a sterile culture, as is practically possible, then the same bud can yield approximately 10 true-to-type plants after several medium transfers over three to four months.

"Subsequently 40-50 plants per year can be obtained from one bud, which is not possible by conventional methods of propagation and sexual cycle. Tissue culture is justified not only in the multiplication of the plant but also in providing disease free plants and maintaining genetic traits," says the researcher.

Goyal believes that tissue culture, cell culture and protoplast fusion — known as genetic engineering — offer exciting possibilities for augmenting current tree improvement programs.

"One of the main limitations of tree breeding is the relatively slow life cycle of trees and the minimum of 15-20 years between generations. Recent steps in tissue culture will undoubtedly increase the production of wood for timber and pulp," states Goyal.

Leguminous trees like tamarugo and leucaena hold tremendous promise for helping solve the critical shortages of wood fuel, fodder and forage, Goyal says.

He notes that the increasing desertification of arid and semi-arid regions are particularly dependent on propagation development. Prosopis tamarugo, for example, is grown in the Atacama Salt Desert in Chile where the average annual rainfall is less than one millimeter over 30 a year average and the soil is crusted with salt.

"The research of tissue culture propagation in regard to desert trees, especially legumes, is very much in its infancy," says Goyal.

The exploitation of a plant's genetic resources is not new to Goyal who was the first in his field to culture Indian mesquite and Jujube. That research was undertaken at the University of Jodhpur in his native India.

Goyal's current projects are part of a larger research effort in the uses of mesquite and other tree legumes directed by Dr. Peter Felker, associate research scientist at the institute.

Will and estate planning seminar is set for Dec. 5

KINGSVILLE — Wills and estate planning will be explained in a special seminar co-sponsored by the Kingsville Chamber of Commerce and Texas A&I University's Center for Continuing Education.

The session will be held on Dec. 5 from 1-5 p.m. in the Chamber board room at 635 E. King Street.

Speakers will include Kingsville attorney Nelson

Sharpe of Glusing, Sharpe, Villarreal and Williams; attorney Martin C. Davis with Gary, Thomasson, Hall and Marks of Corpus Christi; and Gene Koch Jr., senior vice president and trust officer for Corpus Christi's Parkdale Bank.

There is a $10 registration fee for the seminar. For details contact the Texas A&I Center for Continuing Education at 595-2861.

Eye Openers

By Dr. J. Martin Shaw

Born That Way

In healthy eyes, the basic ability to see clearly is affected by the length of the eyeball and the curve of the cornea (the outermost layer of the eye that covers the iris).

If the eyeball is too long from front to back, you may be myopic (nearsighted) and distant objects will appear unclear. If the eyeball is too short, you will probably be hyperopic (farsighted) and close objects or letters may appear blurry. When the cornea is incorrectly curved, astigmatism (the blurring of images at various distances) generally occurs.

The tendency to have crossed-eyes (strabismus) may be present at birth. This is a visual condition where the two eyes do not work together as a team; the brain generally suppresses the vision in the weaker eye. The eye then tends to wander off in a random fashion, giving the impression of crossed eyes.

As we grow, we encounter increasingly demanding visual tasks. If the eyes have structural abnormalities, the strain of seeing will nurture innate tendencies to be myopic, hyperopic and astigmatic. These visual abnormalities can be corrected with eyeglasses, contact lenses and, at times, vision training.

Deer hunting prospects in Texas mixed this season

Wildlife officials of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department said deer hunting prospects for the upcoming season vary widely because of differences in rainfall across the state.

Big Game Program Director Charles Winkler said habitat conditions for white-tailed deer are as good as last year or better in the eastern part of the state but generally poorer in the west.

Deer season opens Nov. 12 in most counties.

Differences in habitat conditions vary dramatically, even within ecological areas. "The Edwards Plateau is a good example, with the eastern counties having good range conditions including a good acorn crop. The western side of the Plateau, however, is extremely dry and deer populations are down more than 50 percent in Sutton, Schleicher and Crockett counties," Winkler said.

Conditions for deer worsen as you travel west into the drought-stricken Permian Basin country. Winkler said Tom Green, Irion and Sterling counties were some of the hardest hit by drought.

Winkler noted that while dry weather is generally bad for deer, it helps hunting success because of more deer movement to find food.

The following is a wrapup of hunting prospects in each of the state's ecological regions:

Edwards Plateau

Range conditions are good in the heart of the Hill Country deer hunting region. In counties such as Llano, Kerr, Kendall, Gillespie and Blanco, forage is fairly abundant in the form of acorns and persimmons. Range conditions also are good in the "escarpment" counties such as Comal and Hays. Deer numbers are about the same as last year, but fawn crops are down somewhat. Deer condition and antler development are good in this portion of the Plateau but hunting may be tough because of the ready availability of forage. In the western Edwards Plateau, deer counts showed declines which probably occurred last winter. Edwards County was down 33 percent, while Sutton, Schleicher and Crockett county deer counts were 54 percent below last year. Range conditions remain poor and antler development is expected to be average or below. If the range remains dry, deer body condition is expected to decline but hunting success may increase because of deer movement.

South Texas

The South Texas brush country, like the Edwards Plateau, is dry on the western side and not quite so dry in the east. Overall body condition of deer is good, but declining in the western counties. Range conditions are fair to good in eastern counties and in Brooks, Kennedy and Kleberg counties but poor in the traditional big buck counties of Dimmit, LaSalle, Webb and Zapata. Antler development and general hunting prospects both are rated as only average this year in South Texas.

Oak Prairie

This region of rolling prairies dotted with hardwood tracts is a popular deer hunting area and hunting pressure is normally fairly heavy. Biologist Bob Carroll of La Grange said deer populations have remained fairly constant during the past two to three years. Carroll said weather conditions were good for growing healthy deer during the summer and body and antler conditions both are average to better than average in most parts of the region. Carroll believes the presence of thick vegetation may serve to reduce hunter success somewhat this fall but an acorn crop which he calls only "fair" may force some deer movement for forage.

Panhandle

Deer habitat in this region is limited mainly to the Canadian River bottoms and the caprock country below the Llano Estacado. Biologist David Dvorak of Canyon said white-tailed deer populations and body condition both appear good in areas where the habitat supports deer. He said the area normally does not contribute a large portion of the statewide harvest, but the deer are larger average size than most other regions. Dvorak noted that mule deer, which occupy an even more restricted habitat area in the Panhandle, may be on a slight population upswing after a good fawn crop in 1983. They also are expected to be in good body condition this year, he said.

East Texas Pineywoods

This region is continuing its upward trend in deer populations, with average or above average fawn production this year. Deer are in good condition in most areas and antler development also is good. Some dry range conditions exist in the northern reaches of the Pineywoods but this should be a plus for hunting. Generally lush vegetative growth in the southern portions may inhibit deer movement and make hunting more difficult until after the first frost.

Trinity-Brazos

This region in the east-central portion of the state has seen a slight increase in deer populations, although fawn production during the past spring was only average. Deer are in good condition and antler growth is good. Acorn production appears favorable, especially in the bottomland habitat.

Possum Kingdom

This is another ecological region which has been dry on the western side and wetter to the east during 1983. In the region surrounding Possum Kingdom Reservoir in Palo Pinto County, hunting should be comparable to last year, although deer numbers may be down slightly after an average fawn crop. Antlerless deer hunting permit issuance rates will be slightly higher in some counties. However, counties farther south and west have experienced drought conditions and a resulting drop in deer populations roughly west of a line from San Angelo, Robert Lee and Colorado City. Biologists estimate deer numbers have fallen an average of 42 percent in Glasscock, Sterling, Howard and Mitchell counties and the western portions of Coke and Tom Green counties.

Trans-Pecos

Deer numbers are down virtually throughout this region of far West Texas, but not alarmingly so, according to biologist Tim Bone of Alpine. He said a dry summer reduced the fawn crop for both white-tailed and mule deer, but recent rains have helped the mature deer gain some weight. "I think hunters will be pleased with the deer they get this year, in terms of body condition and antler development," Bone said. "It's just that they might not see as many deer as in past seasons." Bone noted that the gradual decline in mule deer populations in the Trans-Pecos appears to be continuing and similar declines have been documented in other western states. However, he said observations during aerial surveys convinced him the muleys are in good shape with better than average antler development in some areas.

UH-V Microcomputer Fair set for Nov. 12

VICTORIA — Three speakers and a panel of microcomputer users in Victoria will highlight the second annual University of Houston-Victoria Microcomputer Fair on Nov. 12 at the Victoria Community Center Annex.

Scheduled speakers for the Saturday event include Julius Cano, assistant director of Administrative Services, Region III Education Service Center; Janey Lack, member of Victoria City Council; and Jim Polley, CPA with Harrison, Waldrop and Uherek. All are from Victoria.

The speakers are scheduled as follows: Cano, "Educational Use of the Micro for Home and Office," 10:30 a.m.; Lack, "Home and Personal Use of the Microcomputer," 11:30 a.m.; and Polley, "Applications of the Micro for the Small Business," 1:30 p.m.

At 2:30 p.m., five local business and professional people will discuss "Steps in Computer Selection and Usage of the Microcomputer in Your Business."

The panelists include the moderator, Wayne Davis, supervisor of Secondary Mathematics, VISD; Dr. Nevin Anderson; Carol Conkey of Domino's Pizza Inc.;

Butch Pollard of Union Carbid; and Ron Rode of Inter-First Bank.

Throughout the fair, which runs from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., microcomputer vendors from Victoria and the surrounding area will display and demonstrate a variety of microcomputer hardware and software. There will be machines and programs of interest to people in professions and small businesses, and to students and home computer users.

Exhibitors will each offer door prizes for which the drawings will be conducted at 4 p.m. A snack bar will be available most of the day.

Co-sponsoring the fair with the UH-V Division of Continuing Education are the Small Business Administration and the Victoria Chamber of Commerce.

Edna ISD learns to cut utility costs

EDNA — Spirited community cooperation is paying off in Edna Independent School District's utility conservation program.

Faculty and students teamed together to reduce utility usage after the installation of 300 tons of air conditioning and energy conservation measures on the five campuses of the Edna Independent School District. Good management practices were supported including closing doors, turning off unnecessary lights and adhering to restrictive energy conservation schedules programmed into the E.M.S. micro processors on each campus.

Since almost everybody took part in the program, happy results were reflected. During the first month of school (September is the most demanding month on air conditioning) the electric usage fell from 135,490 KWH in 1982 to 122,417 KWH in 1983.

High praise to the faculty and students is inevitable from the taxpayers of the district. According to Stanley Campbell, president of TLC/Powermaster of Texas, his firm is happy to have installed the air conditioning and conservation measures and proud to join in the commendation to faculty and students.

Among the energy conservation measures installed by Powermaster of Texas were heat exchangers providing free hot water from the air conditioners, solar film providing insulation to windows, accurate thermostat controls, heat reflective paint on metal panels, electrostatic water treatment to inhibit scale, flex strips in walk-in cooler/freezers, lighting conversions and Texas Instrument (TCE) controlled micro processors.

During the past three years more than 200 campuses in Texas and Oklahoma have enlisted the assistance of TLC Powermaster in energy studies or in energy conservation, including the Aransas County Independent School District.

Medical care problem in rural areas

By MARK WHITE

Governor

AUSTIN — Texas urban medical facilities are pacesetters for the nation but, for many rural Texans and the poor in small towns or big cities, modern medicine and more efficient health care have never arrived.

Twelve Texas counties do not have a physician and 36 counties have no hospital. Forty-nine counties in Texas have a physician-to-population ratio of one to 3,500 or more.

Nowhere is the problem more acute than in South Texas, where poverty and rural distances combine to put adequate medical care beyond the reach of thousands of Texas citizens. Most shocking are statistics that document the unmet medical needs of low-income minority mothers and infants.

Both infant and maternal mortality in Cameron County rank third highest in the nation. Among farmworkers in the Rio Grande Valley, infant mortality is 125 percent higher than the national average.

High unemployment in South Texas has forced greater numbers to seek subsidized health care. The number of patients served by indigent health clinics throughout the Valley increased 38 percent last year. The Brownsville Community Health Clinic, the last resort for treatment of chronic health problems for many people, was forced to turn away patients this month for the first time in its history.

To address health care problems in Texas, I recently joined other state leaders in announcing the creation of a 75-member Task Force on Indigent Health Care. The Task Force will collect information about the needs and problems in delivering health care to indigents and recommend solutions for consideration by the Texas Legislature in 1985.

The Task Force has been asked to determine who should be eligible for indigent health care and the scope of services that should be provided. It will draw up a proposal for a health delivery system and recommend the best method of financing.

Any comprehensive health care program for indigents should be tested in a pilot project to determine its effectiveness before a future Legislature can judge whether to implement such a program statewide.

By the year 2000, Texas is expected to have a population of 28 million. The number of elderly citizens, who normally require more medical attention, will double. Already, the birth rate in Texas has grown faster than the national average for more than a decade.

These numbers mean that, in the years ahead, we must plan for the growing demand for health care services in Texas. By creating the Texas Diabetics Council in spring 1983, the 68th Legislature recognized the need to improve services to a large segment of our population needing diabetes testing and treatment.

Basic human health is the foundation of a productive, humane society. By creating the Task Force on Indigent Health Care, I am hopeful our state can better plan for health care needs and bring medical care within reach of all Texans.

Dairy Queen sponsors Friday night TV series

This fall, the Texas Dairy Queen Operators' Council kicked off its first season as the primary sponsor of "Friday Night Heroes," a 16-week series of one-hour programs that highlight Texas high school football. The series, which began Sept. 4, is airing statewide over more than 164 cable stations.

"Friday Night Heroes" features the top-ranked 1-A through 5-A schools from each region of the state, with narration by KEGL-FM disc jockey Jim White and commentary by Ray Gaskin. Scores from all high school games around the state are posted throughout the program, along with week-by-week standings and a run-down of traditional rivalries.

"Bullett" Manale, president of the Texas Dairy Queen Operators' Council, said, "Though Dairy Queen has never advertised on cable television before, the 'Friday Night Heroes' series exemplifies Dairy Queen's support of high school athletics. In Texas, high school football is more than just a game, it brings together entire communities and Dairy Queen wants to be a part of that."

In addition to its sponsorship via commercial time purchased for the series, Dairy Queen has established a sweepstakes to benefit some lucky high schools throughout the state. Every week, the names of the winning high schools are entered into a drawing for a $1,000 donation to the school's athletic fund. The chosen school is presented a check for $1,000 by the local Dairy Queen operator and Eddy Clinton, president of Heroes Development Corp., at its next rally.

Woman loses $1,900

A Rockport woman lost $1,900 during Friday evening's Rockport-Fulton High School football game against Beeville here.

Nora Soliz of Rockport told the Aransas County Sheriff's Department that she was carrying the money in a bank envelope in her purse and does not know where in the stadium she lost it.

A Rockport woman reported to sheriff's deputies that a person or persons had stuck a sharp object into one of the tires of her car as it was parked in the auditorium lot near Rockport-Fulton High School Friday evening, Oct. 28. The case is under investigation. Taylor Rental Center reported the theft of a 15-foot boat with motor and trailer valued at $3,500. According to the report filed with the sheriff's department, the boat was rented on Oct. 6 with a promise to return it on Oct. 7. As of Oct. 18, the suspect had still not returned the boat. Aransas County sheriff's deputies are investigating the incident.

A county liquor store reported damage to a window and door caused by accident when a vehicle rolled over the sidewalk and into the building.

Aransas County law enforcement officials are trying to locate a missing 16-year-old boy who was last seen in McPherson, Kan.

Mark A. Davis, born July 12, 1967, is 5 feet, 7 inches, 150 pounds with dark brown hair and eyes. He needs heart medication immediately. Persons with information should contact the Aransas County Sheriff's Department.

IDEAS TO HELP YOU MANAGE MONEY

No protests are voiced at city annexation hearings

No protests were voiced Monday night during the Rockport city council's hearing — the first of two — on its proposal to annex approximately 300 acres of land into the city.

And only one question — on zoning — was raised during a separate first hearing on Rockport Country Club Inc.'s request for annexation of Rockport Country Club Estates Unit 2.

Second hearings on both proposals will come before the council again on Nov. 8.

The question on RCC's zoning came up over the developers' proposed designation of a B-2 business zone on one tract in Unit 2. In a discussion of this earlier, the city planning and zoning commission had declared themselves against B-2 zoning, which has no parking or setback requirements.

During the discussion of this matter during Monday's hearings, Delmar Hiller, manager of RCC Estates, said he made a mistake on the zoning request and had confused B-1 business with B-2. Hiller said B-1 was what RCC intended to request.

Planning & zoning board Chairman Jack Guillett told Hiller, "We (the P&Z board) would consider a B-1 request but we see no need for any type of B-2 except in downtown Rockport."

Board member Edwina Stranahan, however, who is also a property owner in RCC Unit 2, said, "I will continue to protest any business zoning request (in the development) because it is not needed." Naming off the nearby stores and shopping centers — including Wal-Mart, Live Oak Plaza and the proposed new Harbor Oaks Shopping Village — Stranahan asked, "How much more shopping will these people (RCC residents) need?"

On the hearing on the remaining proposed annexations, City Manager Herman Johnson said the city's main goal is to square off city limits. Two of the annexations however, are of State Tracts 149 and 150 in Aransas Bay. Johnson said annexation of these tracts will bring the city tax revenues from two producing wells with current values of around $7 million.

"This means the city next year can pick up valuation of around $3.5 million," Johnson said. He added annexation of these tracts will also give the city more control over the nearby bay areas.

Johnson emphasized that the areas being considered for annexation include only those areas to which the city can reasonably expect to provide all city services within the next two years. And he pointed out to owners of those properties, "It's not going to cost you as much as you think by coming into the city."

Although owners of annexed areas will pay city taxes, the city manager pointed out any city utility costs they presently pay will come down since city utility users pay more for service if they live outside city limits.

As of Monday night, Johnson told the council, the city had notified by registered mail all owners of property being considered for annexation and "as of now we haven't heard from anyone actually against it (the annexation)."

Council

Mayor Burt Mills and three council members were present Monday; absent was Alderman Murray McMillan who recently underwent surgery to remove a blood clot.

Following a joint public hearing with the planning and zoning commission at 7 p.m., the council approved the P&Z's recommendation that zoning requested by Thomas F. Zuniga be granted. The council also agreed with the zoning board that a building presently located on the lot "has got to go."

Zuniga was asking a change from R-5 second multi-family zoning to R-7 residential and office zoning for property in the 500 block of South Pearl to allow him to operate a swimming pool business.

P&Z Chairman Jack Guillett said there was no reason to deny the zoning but that the building does not conform to requirements of the R-7 zoning.

With Alderman Richard Beck abstaining on the basis of personal involvement, the council cast the city's 319 votes for Lenora Beck and Tom Rogers to serve on the board of directors of the Aransas County Tax Appraisal District for 1984-85.

The deciding votes on the matter will be cast by the Aransas County Independent School District and Aransas County, both of whom have more votes than the city, officials said.

A request by the Rockport-Fulton Soccer Association for permission to locate a portable concession stand during the soccer season in Memorial Park was approved. The request had received a favorable recommendation from the city's board of parks and recreation.

In the meantime, he said, the varsity basketball teams will reverse sites playing their home games away during the first part of the season while the floor is worked on. The corresponding ball games will be played at home after the first of the year, Randow said. The underclass and junior high teams will not have their game schedules affected, he added.

The present floor should be removed by Thursday of this week, he continued. Damage, if any, to the gym scoreboard — the cable for which was under the gym floor — has not yet been determined.

Twelve trees taken in theft

Twelve unplanted trees were reported taken from a lot in the 600 block of Broadway Street between 9 p.m. Friday, Oct. 21, and 11 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 23. Ted Greenfield, who reported the incident to Rockport police, advised that three plastic pots were also missing. The case is under investigation.

Aenin Anderson of Fulton reported that three persons applied white shoe polish to the trunk of her car as it was parked on Rockport Beach during the Rockport-Fulton High School bonfire Thursday evening, Oct. 27.

Peter Ehrlich of Rockport told police that a 15 hp outboard motor was taken from a boat parked at his residence sometime between Sunday, Oct. 23 and 26. A padlock securing the motor had apparently been cut with bolt cutters. The incident is under investigation.

A red and white cooler was reportedly taken from the back of a pickup truck belonging to James D. Kopenhagen of Rockport between 10:30 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 27, and 2 a.m. Friday, Oct. 28. The vehicle was parked in front of his residence at the time of the theft.

Charles J. Humbert of Rockport was arrested and charged with theft under $20 after he was observed taking a package of cigarettes from a city grocery store without paying for them on Friday, Oct. 28. On the same afternoon at the same store, Parker Cunningham of

Police report

Aransas County was arrested and charged with misdemeanor theft after he was observed taking a can of tobacco without paying for it.

Forrest Charles Hawke of

Rockport was arrested on warrant for misdemeanor theft on Saturday, Oct. 29, at a city grocery store. Hawke was released after posting an $80 bond.

Rockport police arrested two men on charges of public intoxication last week. Two persons were arrested for public intoxication and disorderly conduct during the same time period.

Agricultural energy future looking good

COLLEGE STATION — At a time when even the slightest hint of good news for agriculture has a major impact, farmers should be pleased with the energy outlook for the year ahead.

If projections hold true, farmers should face steady energy supplies at lower costs in 1984. And this in itself should brighten agricultural prospects for next year, says an economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

Dr. Forrest Stegelin sees gasoline prices drifting as much as 4 percent below the 1983 average and diesel fuel dipping as much as 6 percent under this year's average. LP gas, meanwhile, is not expected to decline but should increase no more than 5 percent.

The economist expects electricity prices to remain steady for the most part, with a possible decrease of about 2 percent.

Any price increases that might occur for gasoline, diesel, LP gas or electricity will be less than the 1984 rate of inflation, which is projected at 4.4 percent, notes Stegelin.

However, natural gas prices will likely increase between 6 and 9 percent in 1984. This is due to the on-going partial control of wellhead natural gas prices mandated by the Natural Gas Policy Act of 1978.

Stegelin points out that these energy projections are based on overall improvement in the U.S. economy through the rest of 1983 and into 1984.

New artificial sweetener enters market

Artificial sweeteners have had a somewhat checkered past in terms of safety because of their association with cancer, says the Texas Medical Association.

First, cyclamates were banned in 1970. Recently products containing saccharin were required to carry a warning that the artificial sweetener "may be hazardous to your health" and has caused cancer in laboratory animals.

Hoping to avoid this cloud is the newest non-sugar sweetener, aspartame, which the U.S. Food and Drug Administration approved this summer. Extensive initial testing indicates no connection with cancer.

Manufactured by G.D. Searle & Co. of Skokie, Ill., aspartame is being sold under the name Equal for table use and as NutraSweet in manufactured products such as soft drinks.

Discovered by accident in 1965 by a Searle chemist, aspartame consists of two amino acids, the essential components of protein. Like saccharin, aspartame can be used by diabetics.

But persons with the rare metabolic disorder called phenylketonuria, or PKU, should avoid aspartame. Those who have PKU should avoid aspartame. Those who have PKU cannot metabolize aspartame, and consuming it can lead to brain damage and mental retardation.

Some researchers have raised additional questions about aspartame, although these concerns have not been proven through testing. One is a possible link with brain damage or brain tumors.

Another concern is that aspartame may affect behavior by changing chemical levels in the brain. Most susceptible could be people with underlying brain disorders such as insomnia and Parkinson's disease.

Although aspartame has the same number of calories per gram as sugar has, the artificial sweetener is 180 times sweeter. For this reason, much less is needed to sweeten, and the calories become negligible.

Aspartame's main shortcoming could be its cost — about three times that of saccharin.

A Portuguese man-of-war may measure 200 feet long from the tip of its "bell" or "umbrella" down to the ends of its tentacles, reports "International Wildlife" magazine. That's even longer than the blue whale

Drug therapy offers hope for victims of bone cancer

HOUSTON — At age 13, Randy Warden is filled with energy, tapping his feet, squirming in his chair and stretching his arms as he talks. The wiry 77-pound native of Santa Fe, N.M., loves swimming, skateboarding, snow skiing and jumping his bike on dirt tracks.

Randy hasn't had much of a chance to enjoy these sports lately, though. For a year and a half, he's had osteosarcoma, a type of bone cancer, in his left leg.

Just a decade ago, that diagnosis would have meant almost certain amputation of the diseased limb. But Randy, who is a patient at the University of Texas M.D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute, is fortunate to be among the first group of osteosarcoma patients to avoid amputation. He looks forward to fully participating in his favorite sports again one day.

"Until recently, amputation was considered a necessary treatment for osteosarcoma because lesser surgery usually resulted in the return of the cancer to its original site. But now some patients like Randy are being treated successfully with chemotherapy (anti-cancer drugs) alone or with limb-sparing surgery," Dr. Norman Jaffe, a professor of pediatrics at UT M.D. Anderson Hospital, says.

This method of treatment has proven effective for 50 percent of the osteosarcoma patients, he says.

The remaining 50 percent still require amputation due to the size or location of their tumors, involvement with major blood vessels or nerves, the presence of infection or other factors.

A cancer which strikes mainly teenagers, osteosarcoma appears to be related in some way to the growth spurt at the time of puberty. It tends to arise in bones that grow very rapidly, usually in a leg or arm, and if unchecked, to metastasize (spread) to the lungs where it can be rapidly fatal.

"Ten years ago, despite amputation, osteosarcoma was killing 80 percent of its victims due to metastasis to the lungs; today, instead of 80 percent dying, 60 to 70 percent are surviving," Dr. Jaffe points out.

Much of the credit for improved survival rates is due to the late Dr. Wataru W. Sutow of UT M.D. Anderson Hospital. Sutow challenged the traditional line of thought in the 1960s that osteosarcoma was resistant to treatment with drugs.

Through a number of scientific investigations spanning the 1960s and 1970s, he provided new therapeutic approaches to the disease.

Treatment with high-dosage drugs like cisplatin, methotrexate and Adriamycin is now allowing more osteosarcoma patients to live longer and be cured.

"The drugs in some cases are effective alone, and in other cases are effective in combination with limb-sparing surgery. By shrinking the size of the tumor, the drugs allow a surgeon to remove it safely. If necessary, the surgeon may replace diseased bone with a metal prosthesis," Jaffe says.

In Randy's case, limb-sparing surgery has not been performed. Chemotherapy alone has been used with exciting preliminary results. However, Jaffe cautions that a longer period of observation is required to determine if the results will be permanently desirable.

The most common of the bone cancers, osteosarcoma is often misdiagnosed as "growing pains" at its onset. "It felt like a headache in my leg that got worse and worse until finally I was waking up at night crying because it hurt so much," Randy recalls.

An X-ray convinced an orthopedic surgeon to refer Randy to UT M.D. Anderson Hospital, where in April 1982, his disease was confirmed. In the one month since the pains had begun, a lump the size of a lemon had grown below the knee on his left leg. The lump was caused by swelling from the expanding tumor.

After seven rounds of cisplatin treatments, where a line was inserted into Randy's artery to drip the drug cis-platinum directly on his tumor, the tumor shrank dramatically.

There were setbacks along the way — like coming down with a throat infection after the first day of seventh grade. The infection put Randy in isolation in his local hospital for three days and sent him back to home-bound teachers.

But there were also high points — like being allowed to go snow skiing and experiencing a few moments of ecstasy before a broken leg ended the fun.

Randy has gone through the ups and downs of his disease by focusing on the end of his treatments. And his next biopsy will determine exactly when that will be. In the meantime, he's back in school and making a list of activities he'll soon enjoy.

Looking back, he says, "I knew the cancer would make me sick. But I never thought I'd be coming to Houston for treatment for a year and a half. I've got a lot to catch up on."

"If the chemotherapy continues to be effective, he'll have two legs to help him," his father, Greg Warden, adds.

You can depend on Live Oak Tire Center to come to the rescue

If you've ever had the experience of having your car break down or get a flat tire in a less than convenient place, Live Oak Tire Center has come to your rescue. Live Oak Tire Center offers road service to those who can't quite coast into the nearest service station.

Live Oak Tire Center, a Goodyear dealership, has been open in Rockport for approximately six months. In addition to the sale of Goodyear tires, the firm offers all mechanical services on both foreign and domestic vehicles including alignments, brake work, wheel balancing, tuneups and a variety of other services.

Owner Helen Hawkins has three employees, all of whom specialize in different areas. Lee Kilsby is the resident tire specialist; David Cain specializes in tires and wheel alignment; and Mike Lalonde is the domestic and foreign car mechanic.

The firm has highly specialized equipment to help make the work easier. The alignment machine does both front and back wheels at the same time. Owner Hawkins says there are only two others in Corpus Christi like it. In addition, the tire center has a computerized wheel balancing machine and facilities to service 18-wheelers and other trucks. Free estimates are available.

Live Oak Tire Center is located at 1400 Bronte Street (Hwy. 35). Business hours are from 7:30 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 7:30 a.m. until 12 p.m. Saturday. The phone number is 729-0559.

Introducing our Latest

WHY NOT MAKE AN OFFER?

This large 2 bedroom, 2 bath home on a nice cul-de-sac overlooks 2 channels. Roomy living area & spacious cabinet-lined kitchen for your comfort. Owner says must sell this month. Call today!

WHY TARRY?

Sit on your own 168' pier, fish & watch the sunset. Comfortable 3 bedroom, 2 bath house neat as a pin. Storm shutters and much, much more. Call for your appointment. Value PLUS at $108,000

WHY WAIT?

When you could have a 3 bedroom, 1½ bath home for $24,900 and add your personal touch to complete interior.

WHY BUILD?

This exceptional 2 story waterfront in Key Allegro has been beautifully remodeled thru-out. Top quality cabinetry, new carpet, ceiling fans & intercom in all the rooms, 3 large bedrooms, 3 baths, spacious terraced patio overlooking canal & boat dock; paved boat storage & even has a child's play fort. Owner anxious to sell, reduced price to $269,900

WHY IT'S A NO! NO!

No painting, no cleaning, no remodeling. Everything is tip-top in this classy 4 bedroom, 3 bath mobile home. Formal living, sunken den, step-up kitchen, built-in bookcases. Carport has workshop & office. On lovely landscaped corner lot, fully fenced.

WHY RENT?

When for only $54,500 you can own this almost new, less than 1 year old, 2 bedroom home. Nicely decorated, Cent. H/A, mini blinds, bay window, ceiling fans, w/w carpet. Lovely large oak trees for shade.

WHY WORRY?

About the gas inflation when you can live, work & play all in one spot. A very nice 3 bedroom, 2 bath modular w/format living & family room. A large metal building, slab floor, metal framing & 3 double overhead doors, & for play is an above-ground pool. All in good location on 200' x 125' lot.

WHY NOT!

If you're looking for a good investment, check this one out. It's a business zoned antique house remodeled w/new electric & plumbing. 2 apartments w/ a 3rd unit unfinished upstairs that would be an ideal shop, office or studio. High ceilings, lots of room & all apartment furnishings included. $42,000

WHY LIVE IN TOWN?

If you want to be in a country setting, on 2.75 acres, very private and a good floor plan. 4 large bedrooms, 2½ baths, formal dining, living & den, cozy fireplace, beamed cathedral ceiling, workshop & storage shed.

WHY TIME IS OF THE ESSENCE.

A very nice large 2 story waterfront home for $75,000 with owner financing is why time is of the essence. Central H/A, w/w carpet, all modern kitchen appliances including trash compactor, both floors have kitchen connections and also an outside elevator.

WHY WASTE TIME?

Looking for a gorgeous 7 acres to own? Beautiful serene setting w/huge old oaks & wildlife. $28,000

WHY DREAM?

When you could fulfill your dream of living on the water. 2 large waterfront lots in restricted subdivision. $19,500

WHY WISH FOR MORE ROOM?

Here you could have 6.70 acres + a large 3 bedroom, 2 bath, 24' x 54' with add-on, + an older home being restored to rent + a mobile pad. Ideal income producer w/lots of potential.

UNIT IV - Canal lot - Corner with 120' of bulkhead. $105,000
UNIT V - Two adjoining lots overlooking the ski basin. $250,000

BAYFRONT HOMES**

EXCELLENT VIEW - Large 4 bedroom home. Very nice master suite with its own sitting area and fireplace. Sun room, spacious deck. Very good condition. $315,000

NEW CAPE COD LOOKS PRETTY AS A PICTURE - This brand new two bedroom, one bath cottage sports ceiling fans, excellent appliances, eggshell panelling and cut sundeck. Includes covered carport and storage; off-water lot, close to the marina and pool. $72,800

CANAL HOMES**

BEAUTIFUL PLANKED AND BEAMED CEILING - Is raised over large den and dining areas, as well as the kitchen, of this canal-side home. In different directions off the central living area are two bedrooms and two baths, front and back partially covered decks running the length of the house, and an enclosed stairway leading to another bedroom and bath downstairs. Also included are the boat dock and fish-cleaning table, a washed-concrete patio, storage/work room, two-car carport, and an established yard. $159,500

PRIVATE BOAT DOCK AND RAMP ON THE CANAL - And in your own back yard, too, overlooked by a covered deck, and framed by beautiful pink blooming oleanders. Three bedrooms and three baths give you plenty of room inside with a large kitchen and dining area looking out over the water; also, a comfortable den and enclosed entry. Downstairs, a large utility room, one-car enclosed garage and covered patio. $162,500

CAPTAIN'S QUARTERS - Fan-shaped house fits lovely curving lot with 125 feet of canal frontage. Master bedroom with glassed-in sitting room overlooks canal. Total of 4 bedrooms, 3 baths, den, kitchen, reception room with wet bar and refrigerator, and large second floor utility room finish out this house. Covered deck, fish-cleaning table, enclosed garage. Furnished. $245,000

THE MIRRORED PLANT ALCOVE accents the contemporary look of the upper living-dining room of the gorgeous home on Luau Lane. During recent remodelling, everything was done over: carpets, walls, interior and exterior design - all adding to the basic 4 bedroom, 3 bath structure. The master suite sports a mirrored Jacuzzi; a separate room for exercise has a mirrored ballet bar; an enclosed spiral staircase connects an upper level living room to a ground floor sun room; a wet bar downstairs also has full cooking facilities and looks out over the canal. Of course, there's a boat dock and fish-cleaning table, washed-concrete patio, and added storage space. $249,500

WHITE SHUTTERS TRIM NEAT AZURE BOAT HOUSE. Brightly decorated interior, too, with second floor den, kitchen, 2 bedroom and 2 baths; ground floor second bedroom and bath, plus complete apartment: bedroom, bath, kitchen and den. Lots of extras, including dock, fishing lights, tiled breezeway and enclosed entry. $295,000

ENJOY BOATING IN ARANSAS BAY: This fine home offers an excellent view to Little Bay. Like-new condition. Main floor with three bedrooms, two baths, family room, dining area, kitchen and a large covered deck. Ground floor with entry hall, den, bedroom, bath, utility and two-car garage. $325,000

FISH LITERALLY SWARM TO THIS ISLAND POINT RETREAT - Imagine the catches you'll make with this fully equipped fishing center located on the channel tip of Key Allegro. Beautiful house, too, with 3 bedrooms, 2 baths upstairs; a kitchen with more storage space than you could fill, and Jenn-Air grill; plus a den and sprawling deck overlooking the ski basin. Downstairs, the guest bedroom and bath; roomy den with wet bar; and office space with built-in deck and shelves - accentuated by track lights. Additional features include an intercom system, an outside bar, 2-car enclosed garage, and dock. $450,000

The world's longest heat

peratures topping 100°F.—
was recorded at Marble Bar, West Australia, during 1923-

People enjoying meals at fast food restaurants across the country are reporting a new phenomenon. Their cold drinks are staying colder... longer. The reason, according to the Society of the Plastics Industry, is the foam cup. Because it insufrom melting sooner, too.

Time of year to plant spring bulbs is here

By TED BRICE

"The Garden Editor"

It's the time of the year to plan and purchase your bulbs for spring bloom. I will cover three of the most popular spring bulbs here, the tulip, the hyacinth and the daffodil or the narcissus.

The narcissi can be grown in almost any type of soil, but they need fertilizing after they bloom and also in the fall. Use ½ pound of bone meal or blood meal and superphosphate to every 10 square feet of plant clusters.
This mixture should be worked in lightly and then watered in. Remember that all bulbs need good drainage.

Narcissi are good for borders and naturalizing.
They may remain in the ground from one season to another. However, every fourth year they should be lifted and divided to insure bloom. There are many good varieties for Texas — to name a few: yellows, King Alfred, unsurpassable, aere-lite and alaskan; white, Mount Hood.

Hyacinths, both the Dutch and the Roman varieties in delightful shades, are most attractive in groups. They should be stored in the refrigerator (not frozen) until the weather cools.

The hyacinth will grow 8 to 12 inches tall with 6- to 10-inch pom-pom-like clusters of singles or double flowers. In planting your hyacinths, space them 4 to 6 inches apart in a sunny location. Cover the bulb with 4 to 5 inches of soil.

The hyacinths make an excellent border for walks and beds as well as being excellent naturalized. Left undisturbed, they will produce flowers for years.

Hyacinths have a sweet, haunting fragrance that is associated with spring.
Some of the more noted
varieties are Amsterdam
(salmon pink), Bismark
(pale blue), city of Harlem (primrose yellow), l'innocence (pure white), king of blues (rich indigo blue)
and pink pearl (deep pink).

Tulips are composed of many species and varieties.
Tulips are a mainstay of spring gardens everywhere and can provide an abundance of flowers in a wide spectrum of colors from March through May.

Dwarf tulips are excellent in rock gardens and the taller ones are excellent in borders and naturalizing.

Most tulips make excellent cut flowers. There are over 4,000 named varieties of tulips which are grouped into 15 classes.

It is necessary to refrigerate tulips five to six weeks (not freeze) here in Texas before planting. After the completion of this refrigeration period the tulips should be planted immediately.

An application of 5 to 6 pounds of bone or blood meal per 100 square feet should be worked into the soil at the time of planting. Then when the first shoots appear in the spring work in a light application of 5-10-5 fertilizer.

The bulbs should be planted 2 to 3 inches apart since they will not repeat next year. They should be planted 5 to 6 inches deep to protect them from our heat in the late fall and early winter.

You can plant annuals above the tulips. The tulips will push up and then the annual will hide the maturing tulip foliage and faded flowers. All tulips do best in full sun but will bloom if they receive at least six hours of light per day.

One of the more notable classes and varieties is the Darwin tulips, which is a midseason variety and grown 22 to 30 inches tall.
The Darwin tulip is a large cup flower. Some other varieties are apeldoran
(orange-red), gudoknick
(creamy peach), aristocrat
(violet rose), la tulipe noire (blackish purple) and zuaneburg (white).

Cottage tulips grow 16 inches to 3 feet tall with egg-shaped flowers. Some of the more popular cottage tulips are Georgette, a clear yellow with red edges, and Mrs.
John T. Scheepers, soft yellow with rosy wings and pink or white shading at the base.

Parrot tulips are late flowering, 20 to 28 inches tall and produce blooms with twisted petals. The edges are cut into feather-like segments.
Some of the more popular varieties are Allard Pierson (blood red with a blue base), blue parrot (lavender blue), fantasy, (green markings on a red pink background).

Remember to refrigerate your bulbs in the crisper for six to eight weeks before planting them in order to insure a good bloom next spring.

BUILDING CODES FOR MOBILE HOMES

Nineteen seventy-six was an important year for manufactured housing because it marked the beginning of a new era in manufacturing and inspection standards nationwide.

Effective June 15, 1976, all manufactured homes were required by federal law to be constructed to stringent standards set by the U.S.
Department of Housing and Urban Development. These standards are stated in the National Mobile Home Construction and Safety Standards Act of 1974.

Before a manufactured home can be sold, its manufacturer must obtain approval of its plans, engineering specifications and plant quality control programs. During construction, each mobile home must be inspected at least once to assure compliance with the code.

Finally, the manufacturer must attach a label to each transportable section stating the unit complies with the HUD code as of the date of manufacture.

LOCATION OF GARAGE DESERVES ATTENTION

If you buy an existing house, you will not have any say about the location of the garage. However, if you are planning to build a home, here are some things to consider about the garage.

If possible, locate the garage on the side of the house most exposed to winter wind or summer heat.
Avoid blocking prevailing breezes.

A two-car garage should have a 16-foot-wide door as a minimum; 18 feet is preferable. The garage floor should slope one to two inches toward the door so water will not stand.

If the laundry area is in the garage, it should be elevated for proper drainage. If you do not need a garage for storage, you may wish to consider a carport instead. In moderate climates, a carport provides adequate shelter for the car.

Slope the driveway toward the street a minimum of one-eighth inch per foot of paving. Remember, the design of your garage can complement the design of your house.

SMALL HOMES GAINING POPULARITY

Rising costs, combined with today's trend toward smaller households spell smaller homes in the decades to come.

The median size of homes built in 1980 was 1,595 square feet, down 50 feet from the typical home built the year before. The trend should continue, and builders are experimenting with ways to make small homes seem roomier.

Great rooms are replacing the living room, dining room and family room. Sunspaces and skylights are opening up the home to the outside.
Rooms are being laid out on diagonals to give the eye
some longer lines to follow.
Smaller homes do have some advantages; they cost less to maintain and operate than larger homes. Owners of small homes can save substantially on fuel costs.

Additionally, smaller homes are normally situated on smaller lots, thus these owners can spend less time and money working on their lawns.

WATCH CONFORMITY WHEN REMODELING

Are you considering remodeling your home?
If investment aspects of home ownership are important to you, then physical conformity is the best remodeling rule to follow. If the house conforms to the physical standards of other houses in the immediate neighborhood, generally the owner can recover the remodeling investment at resale time.

Adding a room, upgrading window treatments and

floors, and landscaping generally will add more to the value of the house than the project costs.

Reasons for remodeling and the extent of the improvement should be considered very carefully. A swimming pool, for example, may be a good investment, if your neighborhood is already dotted with pools.

However, improvements that do not conform to your neighborhood may only serve to satisfy your own taste.
Remember, the full cost of extravagant remodeling jobs and overimprovements are seldom recovered.

HOMEBUYING RULES

Many American families dream of owning their own home. It's a tradition passed down for generations. Some are finding it more difficult to fulfill their dreams and others are finding it impossible to buy a house.

According to Jim Christian, chief economist for the U.S. Savings and Loan League, the general rules that used to apply to home buying are changing.

With the present economic conditions, the new rules will allow more families to qualify for home loans. Lending institutions used to accept 25 percent of the husband's income toward mortgage interest and principal. Now the salaries of both spouses will be considered by institutions.

Lenders will consider as much as one-third of the couple's combined income and some will allow a couple to allocate to house payments as much as 40 percent of their combined monthly income.

Tests offer encouragement in search for AIDS cure

Laboratory tests indicate that a naturally occurring substance produced by healthy people's white blood cells may help victims of acquired immune deficiency syndrome (AIDS), says the Texas Medical Association.

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration and the National Institutes of Health are testing interleukin-2. This substance is produced by normal lymphocytes (white blood cells) to combat viral infections or other foreign substances.

Test-tube results have been encouraging. The scientists found that interlukin-2 increases the infection-fighting ability of weakened lymphocytes from AIDS patients.

Although interleukin-2 is available only in small amounts, the initial results clear the way for trials on patients themselves.

As of early October, the Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta had recorded 2,416 AIDS cases and 981

deaths nationwide. The Texas Department of Health had recorded 71 cases and 35 deaths in Texas.

AIDS is a serious condition characterized by a weakening in the body's natural immunity against disease. People with AIDS become susceptible to a variety of rare illnesses. The two most common are a form of pneumonia caused by a parasite and Kaposi's sarcoma, a rare cancer that attacks walls of blood vessels.

Early symptoms of AIDS are similar to those of other diseases, such as a cold or the flu. The signs include fever, night sweats, unexplained weight loss, yeast infections, shortness of breath, diarrhea, persistent coughs, fatigue, appetite loss and swollen glands in the neck, armpits or groin.
Symptoms that persist should receive medical attention.

been found, scientists suspect a virus, possibly one present in the blood or in body fluids such as semen.

AIDS appears to be transmitted primarily through sexual contact.

The U.S. Public Health Service says nearly 95 percent of AIDS cases have occurred in one of four groups: homosexual and bisexual men with multiple sex partners, Haitian immigrants, intravenous drug abusers and hemophiliacs.

No cases have turned up among friends, relatives and co-workers of AIDS patients.
This strongly suggests that routine contact may offer no risk, according to the Public Health Service whose toll-free AIDS hotline is 800-342-AIDS.

The Texas Medical Association recently adopted a policy stating that "AIDS patients should receive no less care than any other patients requiring medical help. Physicians are morally

Bring your family to the Circus early in the morning and you will all witness a rare event for your community — the construction of the World's Largest Big Top Circus City! As the trucks are directed, one by one, into their proper places on the lot and the men, machines and animals are put into action, you will be amazed by the spontaneous transformation of vacant lot into the Crown Jewel of the Circus World.

It's a special attraction to which everyone is invited without charge. Come as our guests! Bring your camera and take advantage of the colorful settings, spectacular situations and thrilling action. Parents and grandparents — you can relive the memories of your childhood with your children and grandchildren. This is not a recreation of a traditional circus — it IS the last of the big old-time Circuses. Come watch us — we are bigger & better than ever!

All morning long the trucks, tractor-trailers, motor homes and custom vehicles will continue arriving — over 90 units in all. The world's largest circus tent — acres of waterproof and fireproof man-made material — covering more area than a football field — will be spread; stakes driven and a crew of men and trained animals will push, pull and hoist the massive structure

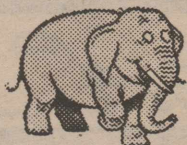

1. The Motor Vehicles Are Positioned

2. The Massive Tent Poles Are Put Into Place

3. The Football Field Sized Tent Is Spread And Stakes Are Driven

high into the air. Over 400 wood and steel stakes will be driven. More than one hundred sidepoles, quarterpoles, and massive centerpoles will be set. Miles of rope, cables and lacelines will be tied, clipped and tightened.

Simultaneously, you can watch as the specially engineered menagerie trailers are positioned and the grazing animals led out into the grassy pens, fed and watered. The hippo tank will be filled with fresh water, the reinforced rhinoceros cage will be opened with elephant power, and the big cats cleaned, fed and watered. This is the only Circus Zoo or Menagerie of any size in North America, and it is open for free until noon every day. Anyone with a Circus Ticket is also admitted to the Menagerie free of charge both prior to and following each performance.

In the front of the showgrounds the sideshow tents and equipment will be assembled, the pony and elephant rides set up, and the offices and concessions readied for your convenience. To one side of the area, the mechanical shop, welding shop, and cookhouse and dining tents will be put into operation to service the fleet and various crews. In the backlot the performers and support personnel will be busy, in preparation for today's spectacular presentation!

All of the circus morning activity is a show in itself. Bring your family out to witness this seldom seen spectacle and enjoy yourselves! (And remember, it's free!)

4. Side Poles Are Set At End, And Elephants Are Used To Push, Pull Tent Into Air; Relive Thrills With Your Children!

Here is what they say about Carson & Barnes:

1982 newspaper quotes:
Little Falls, MN Daily Transcript;
Friday, July 2
After weeks of pre-circus publicity, the Carson & Barnes Big Top came to the Little Falls industrial park. Hundreds were lined up at the gate a good hour before the afternoon performance was scheduled to begin. Clowns, gag stunts and the stars of the show, the elephants, lived up to their billing, making Carson & Barnes one of the greatest shows on earth.

Parsons, KS News;
Thursday, May 27

"A traveling company of performers and animals, etc.?" Ah,
Mr. Webster, a circus is more, much more. Just ask all those wide-eyed kids with mouths agape.
Ask their enthralled parents. A circus is a magic moment when everything is beautiful and anything is possible. A circus is a world of wonder, here one day, then gone as though it had never existed. A circus is joy, and happiness. A circus is wonderful.
Ask me, I know, I was there.

Here's what they say about Carson & Barnes:

The Algona Upper Des Moines:
Algona, IA; Thursday, June 24
Not all the fun was under the big top when the circus came to town last week. There were sideshows featuring freaks like Volcano Man, the Electric Lady, the Sword Swallower and Rubber Woman. There were giant Russian rats and king cobra snakes. In addition, circus-goers could ride ponies and elephants, pet giraffes and zebras and view a giant hippotamus and rhinoceros.

Newton, IA Daily News; Friday, July 16
The (Carson & Barnes) circus featured wild animals, clowns, trapeze artists and sideshow attractions to the delight of the many children and adults who watched under one of the few remaining circus tents in the world.

Elephants! Elephants! Elephants!

See World's Largest Captive Herd Of Indian And African Elephants ... Coming Soon!

P. T. Barnum once said an elephant is one of the pegs on which a circus hangs its existence. That is literally true, for elephants "spell" circus to the American public in big letters.

You just don't find more elephants anywhere than on the gigantic Carson & Barnes Five-Ring Wild Animal Circus. Some 25 of the ponderous beasts are carried by the world's largest tented show.

Included in the five performing herds of elephants with Carson & Barnes Circus are the two most famous pachyderms in the world, Isla and Lilly, who ran away from Hugo, Okla., winterquarters three years ago and eluded hundreds of elephant hunters for more than two weeks. The chase, by horseback, airplane, helicopters, motor bikes, boats, and on foot was widely-covered by the nation's news media and by many foreign newspapers as well.

While Hugo was in cowboy country, no one volunteered to rope the 1,500-pound elephants, so when the two playful youngsters finally were located, a tranquilizer gun was used to immobilize them.

Isla and Lilly have grown considerably now. They are nine-year-olds and they join Traci in one of Carson & Barnes five rings at each performance of the big show.

To quote D. R. Miller, owner of Carson & Barnes Circus, himself a former elephant trainer — "Elephants are the biggest, the kindest, the most understanding, and the smartest animals that live on this earth." He might add, one of the most unusual.

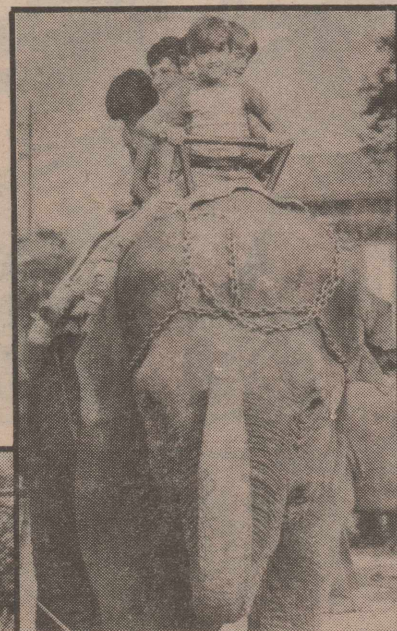

Take the elephant's trunk, for instance. It is said that there are 40,000 separate muscles in an elephant's trunk and on the end of that trunk are fingers almost as dexterous as those on the human hand. Visitors to the Carson & Barnes menagerie, offered without additional charge to all patrons attending the big show, may watch those busy fingers, grope about the ground for a misplaced peanut, find it, daintily pick it up and place it in the elephant's mouth. The trunk also is sort of a fork and spoon. With it the elephant carries food and water to its mouth. Nature placed a valve about half way up the trunk, so when the elephant sucks up water it will not choke to death.

Elephant eyes are very small and sight is not too good. Hearing is extremely keen and, with all that nose, the sense of smell is highly developed.

Carson & Barnes elephants are mostly Indian, although the show carries a few Africans. Lifespan of an elephant is about the same as a human being.

Not only does Carson & Barnes Circus have the largest group of elephants in the U.S. and the only wild animal menagerie, it has a star-spangled five-ring performance which features top circus talent from Europe, Asia, South and Central America and, of course, the United States. It's a great show, one every member of the family should see.
