MAINLY ABOUT PEOPLE

By H. N. F.

"Wichita Falls is a good town, a city with a future," said H. H. Halleck, a well known oil operator to H. N. F. Mr. Halleck, who has returned from a survey of the Mexia field, was the center of a coterie, including J. L. McMahon and others, in the lobby of the Hotel Kemp. When discoveries were made in the Burkburnett field and later in the Ranger and Breckenridge fields, Mr. Halleck came to Texas from Tulsa, where he had been in the oil game for several years. He made headquarters at Mineral Wells for a time until he picked Dallas as his home and he looks upon Dallas as "the Chicago of the South." He isn't wild over the Mexia field; he is of the opinion that publicity agents have overrated its importance and it would not surprise him if hot water destroyed its usefulness or productive capacity in less time than six months. He is enthusiastic over prospects for advancing prices of Texas oil and a remarkable revival along developing and productive lines. Wichita Falls looks good to him. He was here when the froth was on the surface and the gay ones were blowing bubbles. He does not look for the return of the froth or the bubble blowers but he does look for new fields, new production and a general activity which will usher in an era of prosperity that will be prosperity of the real variety.

A well known oil operator, a gentleman high in the petroleum world of Texas remarked to H. N. F.: "Pennsylvania has gone to $4. This is significant. Petroleum in this field is of the same high grade as Pennsylvania oil. There should be an advance of at least fifty cents per barrel here in the near future. There is a substantial reason why it should come. There is an ever increasing demand on the part of foreign buyers and exports are growing heavier all the time. There was no foreign demand to speak of last spring or during the early summer months. It is different now. Six months ago there were hundreds of tankers, idle tankers, tied to the docks in American and foreign ports. Now they are placing tankers in commission. There is a growing demand for the refined products in the United States, a very heavy demand. This is certain to increase in volume. It is a splendid sign, a sign indicative of approaching normalcy and the revival of business in all of the industries. Moreover, it is true that production of the wells in Mexico is decreasing at a rapid as well as an alarming rate. Many of the so-called wonderful gushers are on the decline and salt water threatens to make useless and worthless other wells which have had a large producing capacity. This is not idle talk. There is going to be a vastly increased production in this field. New fields will be discovered and brought in. This is the logic of the situation. European nations are coming back. They are coming out of the wreck of war. Over there the demand for the refined products is going to be something staggering in the years to come while here it is certain to increase to five or ten times its volume of today when a real wave of prosperity hits this country. All this is admitted by the wisest men who are connected with the pertoleum industry and it is certain to come to pass."

Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, speaking through Mrs. Maude Wood Park, national president of the women voters league, said "she realized that when the women got the right to vote they would need an organization to provide the training necessary for an intelligent use of the ballot." Mrs. Maude Park is telling this to the women of Texas and advances the plea or excuse that the league is non-partisan. This is very kind of Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt and Mrs. Maude Wood Park, but there are thousands of women away down here in Texas who do not need an organization to provide the training necessary for an intelligent use of the ballot. They are free born; they are educated; they known and they appreciate the fundamentals; they are familiar with the great principles which underlie democratic form of government. When the nineteenth amendment to the organic law of the republic became effective or operative sex was abolished at the ballot box. There are great political parties; there are minor political parties and on the paramount issues of the day women will divide as the men divide. There will be Democratic women voters; Republican women voters; Socialist women voters; National Prohibition women voters and they will affiliate with the political organization which declares for the policies of government nearest to their hearts. This is as it should be.

Jack Sankey, formerly of Fort Worth and president of the Sankey Oil company, has returned to that city to make it his home. Mr. and Mrs. Sankey have been residing in Southern California until recently but decided to return to Texas where the former president of the Skelley Oil company as well as of the Sankey Oil company will resume his activities. Oil operators in the city of Fort Worth look for an advance for fifty cents a barrel in Mid-Continent crude in the next few days and they say a twenty-five cents advance is a certainity within the next forty-eight hours. Colonel A. E. Humphreys and associates in the Mexia oil field with officers of the Pure Oil company which recently bought a $7,000,000 interest in the Humphreys holdings, were wined and dined in the city of Fort Worth Thursday by citizens of Fort Worth. They were motored around the Meandering Lake Road and given a barbecue luncheon at the country home of Thomas B. Ellison.

Equal Trade Rights In China, Primary Arms Meet Problem

Situation That Urged Great Britain and Germany to War in 1914 Must Be Averted —Hughes Trying to Prevent Conference Being Made a Lawyers' Wrangle.

By HERBERT COREY.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—It looks as though the husk were being stripped off this arms parley ear of corn. The husk is reduction of armament, Japan's surplus population, the California question, the Anglo-Jap treaty, the League of Nations, Europe's debt to us, and so on and so on.

The earn of corn is the American demand for equal trade opportunities for all nations in the Far East.

That is the one thing that the United States is asking. This may be unpleasant news to those who have looked upon the arms parley as an altruistic and benevolent effort to bring peace to the world, and more especially to lighten the tax burden upon all nations. But a moment's consideration will show that these other things depend upon the principal problem.

Same Problem as in 1914.

Given fair play and equal trade chances in China, and a reduction in armament should follow. So long as these things are denied to the western nations, just so long will there be a sore spot in the East, which will ultimately result in a war. There is little blinking this fact in Washington circles. Its present day conditions are to be continued, then America and Japan are being urged toward a war just as surely as Great Britain and Germany were being urged to a war in 1914.

It is believed by those who have been watching the progress of affairs in Washington that Mr. Hughes's eye is sot in this direction. There has been a notable effort by the spokesmen of other nations to turn the coming conference into a lawyers' parley. All sorts of questions have been offered for possible discusssion at the conference. Through it all Mr. Hughes seems to have remained steadfast in his determination not unduly to broaden the scope of the conference:

"Fair play in the East," seems to be his motto. "An agreement which shall be based on justice to all."

What Japan "Wants" and "Needs."

Japan has emphasized her need of territory meet the needs of her rapidly growing population. There seems now to be a possibility that this will not be seriously urged at the conference. As a matter of fact there are readily available statistics to prove that Japan does not need land. She has enough land under her undisputed jurisdiction today. What she does want—a distinction is made between "want" and "need"—is control of Chinese trade first, and political domination second.

The indications are that the American attention will be centered on the proposition that the eastern trade neither Japan nor any other nation shall be permitted to secure an undue control of it, either through political or military domination, the control of railroads or banks, or any other than the methods used in straight-out business competition. Americans have been edged out of Chinese trade because of bank pressure, the failure of Japanese-controlled railroads to deliver their goods and other similar methods.

Advantages of the Japanese.

"It is the conviction of many experts on the East that Japan can always have the better part of the Chinese trade because of propinquity and similiarity of language," said one man. "Furthermore, the Japanese salesman can underlive and out-work our salesmen in the East. The advantage thus gained can only be overcome by extraordinary effort on the part of any western competitor."

It is believed here that the Japanese delegates realize that the conference will deal principally with trade questions and that they are pessimistic as to the outcome. It is becoming apparent that, whatever they may yield in the matter of political occupation, they will vigorously oppose any effort looking toward a lessening of their trade control. That a proposition looking forward an international control of China will be offered is considered certain. That this will be vigorously resisted by the American delegates—and that under no conditions will they agree to it—is prophesied with conviction.

It is held in high circles here that a mistake may have been made in originally dubbing the forthcoming parley one for 'the reduction and limitation of armaments." The argument is that the reduction and limitation of armaments will grow naturally and logically out of an agreement for trade in the East which shall be open to all on the same terms.

It is feared that undue pressure may be attempted upon the American delegates by those who see the limitation of arms as the prime object of the conference. It is, perhaps, the prime object, but it can not be reached until an agreement as to trade rights is attained which shall be satisfactory to all.

BRIDWELL AND HEYDRICK GOES OVER DERRICK

New 1600-Foot Producer Throws Oil Over Crown Block on Several Occasions Thursday.

Shooting oil high over the crown blocks on several occasions, the Bridwell and Heydrick No. 2 Waggoner, South Electra shallow field provided some excitement for visitors to the field Thursday, when it was brought in, in the 1600 foot sand. Practically all of the wells in the South Electra field, particularly in the deeper sands flow by heads, when first drilled in, but such a performance as this latest completion staged Thursday is something out of the ordinary.

The owners place a very conservative estimate on the production, saying it would be as good as the recent completion in the 1800 foot sand, which is still making 150 barrels daily. Others who were in the field, however, were more generous in their valuation of the new well.

This is the first 1600 foot well in the west side of the pool, and is several locations to the southwest from the Planet wells.

Operations in the Electra field promise to pick up considerably next week, the Texas Company finishing its water line the middle of the week. Several leases reported connections with the water line made on Thursday, and making preparations to resume operations immediately.

In the South Burkburnett-Texhoma field the J. T. Staley et al No. 3 Beach is reported a 250 barrel well, from the 1200 foot sand. Several other tests in this field are due for completion in the next few days with ordinary success, according to reports from the field.

The Weather

West Texas: Friday, Saturday and Sunday, fair, moderate temperature.

East Texas: Friday, fair, somewhat warmer in interior; Saturday and Sunday fair.

Oklahoma: Friday, Saturday and Sunday, fair, slowly rising temperature Friday and Saturday.

NO VERDICT IN HAMILTON CASE AFTER 8 HOURS

Death Penalty Not Demanded by Attorneys for State in Arguments Made Before Jury.

Special to the Record News.

HENRIETTA, Nov. 4.—At 1 o'clock Friday morning, with no report having yet come from the jury in the case of Dick Hamilton of Wichita Falls, charged with murder, it was reported that the jurymen had retired for the night and will resume their deliberations later this morning.

HENRIETTA, Nov. 3.—At 9:30 o'clock Thursday night no report had been received from the jury, in whose hands rests the fate of Dick Hamilton, Wichita Falls youth, charged by a chain of circumstantial evidence offered by the state with having fired the shot which killed B. F. Allison last winter as he left his store and postoffice at Charlie.

The arguments in the case were ended at 12:30 o'clock today and after having had lunch the jury retired, beginning their deliberations about 1:30 o'clock. At 9:30 o'clock tonight no report had been received from the jury room and Judge H. F. Weldon and District Attorney Bert Wilson had declared their intention of waiting until midnight in the hope of hearing the verdict tonight.

The charge of the court was read to the jury Thursday morning at 8 o'clock by Judge H. F. Weldon. The arguments were opened by County Attorney Dickey of Henrietta, who was followed by Attorney Broadfoot of Henrietta for the defense, each speaking about 45 minutes. District Attorney Bert Wilson then spoke about an hour for the prosecution and was followed by Muse and Taylor, who consumed the remainder of their allotted two hours. C. C. McDonald of the prosecution closed the argument.

Contrary to the expectations of many the state did not ask the death penalty, but asked that the jury return a "verdict of guilty and assess a penalty that would be a lesson."

The defense, insisting that the evidence offered by the prosecution was purely circumstantial insisted that the defendant was not guilty and asked that he be given his freedom.

MINE UNIONS TO TAKE CASE BEFORE COURT

Suspension of Injunction Prohibiting "Check-Off" of Union Dues by Operators Will Be Asked.

Practically Every Mine in Indiana Fields Idle as Result of Protest Against Injunction.

By Associated Press.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 3.—Suspension of Federal Judge Anderson's temporary injunction prohibiting the "check-off" of union dues by operators and directing a cessation of union efforts to organize West Virginia coal fields will be asked tomorrow of the circuit court of appeals at Chicago by counsel for the United Mine Workers of America, it was learned here tonight.

Counsel for the Indiana operators who also opposed the injunction suit before Judge Anderson will not join in the appeal because of the walkouts of 25,000 miners having forced a shutdown of practically all Indiana mines and the attitude of operators was to let the union fight out the case.

Formal application for the granting of an appeal also will be made at Chicago by the union, but this was said by counsel to be a perfunctory proceeding that might either be brought before Judge Anderson or any judge of the circuit court. The unions legal fight is in the charge of W. A. Glasgow of Philadelphia and Henry Warrum, local counsel for the union.

Failing to get a complete suspension of the injunction, the union's counsel was said to be prepared to press for a ruling that only Indiana operators be affected by the order. Such a view has been taken by union officials, but, it was contrary to Judge Anderson's opinion declaring all operators observing the "check-off" were bound by the injunction.

Aside from favorable court action, union officials regarded further strike developments as hinging on the action of operators in disconfirming the "checkoff." President John L. Lewis was advised late today that the executive board of the Pittsburgh district would meet tomorrow to act on District President Robert R. Gibbons decision to call a strike next Monday. Approximately 40,000 miners would be affected, officials here said. Elsewhere in the big coal producing states the miners were said to be awaiting decision of operators whether to stop the "check-off."

MINING IS PRACTICALLY SUSPENDED IN INDIANA

By Associated Press.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 3.—Practically every mine in the Indiana coal field was idle today as the result of a strike of union miners in protest against the injunction issued here Monday by Federal Judge A. B. Anderson prohibiting use of the "check-off" system of collecting union dues and assessments. Only a few small shafts were reported in operation and union employes of these are expected to walk out as soon as the "check-off" is discontinued by the operators.

A meeting of the Indiana Bituminous Coal Operators association will be held at Terre Haute tonight at which members have announced the course of action to be taken by operators as a result of the injunction would be obeyed and notices of discontinuance of the "check-off" system have already been prepared for posting at the mines.

Miners from only a few locals of other coal mining districts of the country were reported as having followed the example of the Indiana miners in striking, but officials at headquarters of the union here expect that the walkout will become general as soon as the order discontinuing the "check-off" system is put into effect. This may not occur for several days in some of the districts, it was pointed out, as there is expected to be some delay before the provisions of the injunction are put into actual operation.

Counsel for both union and the operators were busy today in the preparation of their appeal of the injunction to the circuit court of appeals at Chicago and are expected to make formal application for the appeal before Judge Anderson either today or tomorrow. Counsel said the application was only a perfunctory proceeding.

FOCH HONORED BY RESIDENTS OF ST. LOUIS

By Associated Press.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 3.—Foch, marshal of France, today received the hearty greeting of St. Louis. Accompanied by General Pershing, the commander-in-chief of the allied forces, was literally taken into the arms of the citizens of the city founded by one of his fellow countrymen and extended a greeting described as one of the greatest in the city's history.

After breakfasting at the St. Louis club, where the city's official welcome was extended by Mayor Kiel, Marshal Foch was driven to St. Louis university, where the degree of Doctor of Laws was conferred on him—and where from the hands of Archbishop John J. Glennon, he was presented with a jeweled medallion, a gift of the Knights of Columbus.

Abilene K. K. K. Gives $100 to Salvation Army

By Associated Press.

ABILENE, Texas, Nov. 3.—The first intimation of a Ku Klux Klan organization in Abilene came this morning when R. W. Haynie, chairman of the local Salvation Army campaign, found a letter signed by Abilene Ku Klux Klan No. 139, enclosing a one hundred dollar bill, for the Salvation Army. The letter said the klan desired to match the recent $100 gift contributed by an "unknown soldier." The gift was accepted "in the spirit in which it was sent."

NAVIES LIKELY FIRST SUBJECT AT ARMS MEET

American Proposal for Naval Reduction is Expected on First Day of Washington Conference.

Officials Reiterate Negotiations Will be Kept From Realm of Underground Diplomacy.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3—The policies and program of the American delegation to the armament conference are beginning to assume definite outline and if expectations of official Washington are realized, the opening day of the conference will see a sequence of developments something like this:

Presentation, at the outset, of a concrete American plan for far reaching reduction and naval arament.

Consideration, along with this plan, of such troublesome problems of the Far East as may naturally project themselves into the picture.

Meantime, an effort is being made by the United States to keep the negotiations in the open so that public opinion may exert its pressure toward practical accomplishment.

Salient features of the American naval armaments proposal already have been established and although details remain to be fixed, there is reason to believe the reductions suggested will be sweeping enough to convince the world that the United States meant business when it called the powers into conference.

It would cause no surprise if the leading naval powers found it necessary to submit the plans of this government to long and careful study before they determine on their course of action. Should the reductions proposed prove unacceptable, it is believed likely that the American delegates, having once taken the initiative, would invite the other powers to present in their turn some concrete counter proposal.

All evidences surrounding the conference of the American big four with their naval advisers have pointed to inclusion of a set of maximum reduction figures in the plan to be laid on the table by this government. No official has been willing to reveal any detail of these figures but there has been apparent a desire to lay bare at the very outset of the negotiations, the full extent to which the United States would be willing to go in scaling down the world's naval armament.

Course Opposed

The impression that such a method may not lead to an immediate agreement has been given color by the apparent intention of some of the other powers to pursue a directly opposite course and enter the conference setting a high figure as the measure of naval armament they consider requisite to their national safety. Japan already has indicated that she would suggest the necessity of maintaining a navy equal to any which might enter her sphere in the Far East, a proportion which naval experts say is well in excess of her present power.

The naval armament question is considered certain to be he first to occupy the active attention of the conference, but it os is not the expectation of officials here that five problems of Far Eastern diplomacy will remain long in the ackground. As the conference is viewed in prospect, it is believed here that the diplomatic and armament angles of the situation may develop simultaneously, so that instead of having a fixed program of consecutive subjects, the delegates will fall into the practice of considering this or that problem as occasion may bring it to the front.

Plan Full Publicity.

The determination of the American government that these exchanges shall be kept as far as possible from the realm of underground diplomacy was reiterated today in highest ad-

UNCLE SAM WON'T PAY WAR BRIDES' STEAMSHIP FARES

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—Soldiers who paid for the transportation of European brides to this country must stand the expense themselves, according to a ruling by Comptroller General McCarti. The government be held, will not reimburse soldiers for such outlay.

SALES TAX IS DEFEATED BY SENATE VOTE

One Per Cent Producers and Manufacturers Levy, With Exemptions, Provided in Defeated Bill.

Democratic Senators Vote Solidly Against Proposal and Are Joined by Seventeen Republicans.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—The sales tax was rejected tonight by the senate.

The democrats voted solidly against the sales tax, and were joined by 17 republicans.

The vote, forty-three against, to twenty-five for, was on a proposal by Senator Smoot, republican, Utah, for a one per cent levy with exemptions provided in the case of sales by farmers of their products of their farms at sales by public utilities and those by the United States to any foreign or any state or territory, the army and navy and hospitals.

The roll call showed:

For the amendment, 25.

Republicans: Bursum, Cameron, Edge, Ernst, Fernald, France, Frelinghuysen, Gooding, Jones (Washington,) Keyes, McKinley, Moses, New, Newberry, Nicholson, Oddie, Phipps Poindexter Shortridge, Smoot, Spencer, Wadsworth, Warren, Watson (Indiana) and Weller, 25.

Against the amendment, 43.

Republicans: Borah, Capper, Curtis, Kenyon, LaFollette, Lenroot, McCormick, McCumber, McNary, Nelson, Norbeck, Penrose, Stanfield, Sterling, Sutherland, Townsend and Willis, 17.

Democrats: Ashurst, Broussard, Carraway, Fletcher, Gerry, Glass, Harris, Heflin, Jones (New Mexico,) Hendrick, King, McKellar, Myers, Overman, Pittman Pomerene, Reed, Sheppard, Simmons, Stanley, Swanson, Trammell, Walsh (Massachusetts,) Walsh, (Montana,) Watson, (Georgia,) and Williams, 26.

This vote was regarded generally as decisive of the whole question of a sales tax at this time, but immediately after it had been announced, Senator Smoot offered another amendment embodying a business sales tax of one-half of one percent on gross sales in excess of $6,000. This went over until tomorrow.

ULTIMATUM IS ISSUED TO N. Y. MILK INDUSTRY

Department of Health to Take Over Business if Partial Service is Not Restored by Saturday.

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—Unless New York's milk distribution is restored to 50 per cent normal by Saturday, the entire industry will be taken over by the department of health. The warning was given by Health Commissioner Copeland today after he had failed again to induce the heads of a score of milk distributing companies to arbitrate differences involved in the milk drivers' strike, which for the last three days has brought inconvenience to the metropolitan population.

Continuance of present conditions, under which less than one third of the normal supply was reaching the consumer would constitute a public menace, the commissioner declared. The city normally consumes 2,000,000 quarts of milk daily, he said, while only 400,000 quarts were received this morning.

The distributors, Dr. Copeland said, are obdurate in the refusal to submit their employes' grievances to arbitration, and had expressed determination to insist on open shop conditions.

Various women's organizations took steps today to organize a truck driving corps should the crisis become acute.

The police reported several minor disorders during the day, all of which were quilled quickly. Four men charged with having attacked the driver of a milk wagon were sentenced to twenty days' imprisonment each. The magistrate warned that striker sympathizers who resorted to violence would be sternly dealt with.

PIPELINE RUNS IN DISTRICT VARY LESS THAN 200 BARRELS FOR WEEK

Pipeline runs in the North and Central Texas fields varied less than 200 barrels a day from the totals for last week, the daily production remaining in excess of 145,000 barrels.

Completions in the Curry pool, South Stephens, to offset the natural decline, kept this part of the district to within 100 barrels of last week's daily average, and the remainder of the drop was ditributed between Eastland and Wichita county.

The production by pools, based on pipeline estimates, follows:

Burkburnett 43,600; Electra 11,200; Kemp Munger Allen and Iowa Park shallow, 3,100; Archer county, 2,100; Petrolia, 250; Stephens, 35,500; Young county, 7,600; Ranger, 14,600; Comanche, 6,050; Strawn, 725; Morsn, 150; Brown, 300; Coleman, 125.

BELIEVE IRRIGATION NEARER REALIZATION THAN EVER BEFORE

With word that the New York legal firm who were making examination for bond houses had definitely and finally approved the legal end of the project, and with a representative of the Morgan Engineering firm due within the next few days to make a final check on engineering details together with scheduled conferences with representatives of several bond houses the last of this week and the first of next, it is believed here that actual beginning of the project is now nearer than it has ever been before.

Bond buyers have been in conference with directors of the irrigation project this week, and another conference is to be held Saturday. Nothing has been made public in connection with these conferences but it is thought that definite action may be a matter of the next few days, some of the same bond men having expressed themselves on a former visit as confident that they would get together with the board members as soon as conditions were suitable for the handling of the issue.

Improving conditions in the bond market since that time gave rise to a belief here that definite disposal of the bonds is a matter of only a few days.

The major engineering details of the project were approved some time since by Arthur E. Morgan of the Mosgan Engineering firm, and the coming conference with another representative of the firm is in the nature of a final check on engineering details.

ATTENDANCE AT LOCAL SCHOOLS BREAKS RECORD

Continues to Show Increase in Numbers; Exceeds Enrollment for Same Month 1920 by 616.

School attendance in Wichita Falls continues to break all previous records for the same months of past years, it was declared Thursday by Superintendent Lee Clark in announcing the report of the second scholastic month, which showed a total enrollment of 5,231 in the city schools. The enrollment at the end of the second month of school last year was 4,615, a report, 616 less than that of this year. The record of last year was declared to have broken all previous records.

The attendance at Senior High school during the month just ended averaged 97.96 per cent, according to the announcement, and the attendance in all schools showed an average of approximately 95 per cent.

The average attendance in schools, which is considered normal by school authorities, is announced to be about 93 per cent. This leaves the general attendance in Wichita Falls nearly 3 per cent above what is considered a good average and the Senior High school students scoring a mark some 5 per cent above normal.

The record attendance set by the students of the Senior High school is taken by teachers to show a more than common interest in school work on the part of students, one in which the students should take pride and one which they hope to better before the year has ended. The enrollment last year near the end of the school year reached a figure slightly larger than that of this year, but teachers declare it their belief that the increasing enrollments will continue throughout the year, making it possible to end the year with the largest enrollment in the history of the city.

MacNiders Home Town Planning His Reception

MASON CITY, Iowa, Nov. 3.—A committee of the American Legion post here met this afternoon to draw up plans for a big reception to Hanford "Jack" MacNider, newly elected legion commander, when he returns home early next week. He was the first commander of the post here.

"I only hope my boy can live up to the responsibility of his new office," said Mrs. MacNider. "And, of course, I think he can."

C. H. MacNider, father of the new commander, is probably as happy today as he was on any of the nine occasions when his son was cited for gallantry in action. "The boy told me the last thing before he left that he wouldn't let himself become a candidate," he said, "now see what he's gone and done it."

Acceptance of the commandership of the national legion means the withdrawal for one year of MacNider's service from a boarding house of which he is head.

U. S. TO FORM NO ALLIANCES SAYS HARVEY

American Ambassador Tells British U. S. Foreign Policy Makes Alliance an Impossibility.

By Associated Press.

LIVERPOOL, Nov. 3.—George Harvey, the United States ambassador to Great Britain, told an audience at the Liverpool chamber of commerce tonight that it was futile to hope that America, as Lord Darby recently had been suggesting, may some day be merged in a definite alliance with Great Britain and France.

This statement was made as a digression from an address on economics and the international industrial situation, in which the American ambassador attacked communism and socialism and defended the principle of individualism. In his digression, Ambassador Harvey recalled Lord Derby's statement in a recent address in Birmingham, in which the latter voiced the conviction that the success of the Washington limitation of armaments conference would mean peace and that its failure would mean war in the immediate future. The speaker also recalled Lord Derby's suggestion to former President Poincare of France at a dinner last Tuesday evening that an Anglo-French alliance would be desirable in the interest of peace, intimating the "strong hopes" that America eventually might join the combination.

"Now it seems to have fallen to my unhappy lot since I have been in England," continued Ambassador Harvey "to dispel illusions respecting the attitude of the United States. I can conceive of no more effective service on the part of an envoy, desirous as I am of eliminating all causes for misapprehension, than to set forth frankly any certainty which may bear on the immediate future, however disappointing it may be to his hearers. In pursuance of this policy, rightful or wrongful as it may be, I feel impelled to say frankly that the hope voiced by Lord Derby must be regarded as futile.

"Our first president fixed the foreign policy of the United States clearly and unequivocally when he adjured his countrymen never to enter a permanent alliance with any other power. This policy has been reaffirmed by practically all his successors. It was reiterated with great positiveness in our latest national campaign by our present president, and was confirmed by a majority of the people so great as to be beyond the pale of comparison.

"In view of these circumstances, am I doing more than stating the wholly obvious and inescapable fact when I pronounce the entrance of the United States into any permanent alliance, however, desireable that action may seem to be, an utter impossibility? May it not be then the part of wisdom to avoid discussion or even suggestion of a proposal which, however praiseworthy it may be, could hardly serve any purpose other than to feed enemies and distress friends of both Great Britain and France who live in America.

Who's Holding Out Marks on German Gov't?

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—Somebody in Germany is holding out between 500,000,000 and 700,000,000 marks on the government, according to recent reports on the German financial conditions, received here in official circles.

There have been, according to some estimates, as many as 60,000,000,000 marks bought and sold speculatively, it was explained, but when the German government went looking for funds with which to make its reparations payments between 600,000,000 and 800,000,000 marks of this amount could not be accounted for.

Search for the missing marks, it was said, brought to light only about 100,000,000 so the search is being continued.

WILL MOVE TO DROP WATSON'S A. E. F. CHARGES

Resolution Discharging Investigating Body to be Presented in Senate, Is Announced.

Watson Proposed to Proceed With Evidence Supporting His Charges on Floor of Senate.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—A motion is to be made in the senate tomorrow, democratic senators announced tonight, to drop the investigation by the special senate committee into charges of Senator Watson, democrat, Georgia, that American soldiers were hanged in France without trial.

Whether a partisan issue would develop was uncertain tonight, but several republicans declared they were ready to resist the democratic motion which Senator Simmons, North Carolina, said he planned to offer. He is to move discharge or dissolution of the special investigating committee, headed by Senator Brandegee, republican, Connecticut, which was appointed last Tuesday under the senate's orders.

The Simmons motion was agreed upon after conferences between republican and democratic leaders and Senator Watson and after presentation by Mr. Watson of letters, telegrams and newspaper clippings as substantiating his charges. Democratic senators claimed they had assurances from some republican leaders that they would not object to dissolution of the Brandegee committee, but other republicans declared they would oppose the Simmons motion.

Senator Watson said he continued to object to presenting the case before any committee and that he proposed to proceed with his evidence in the open senate.

The affair is scheduled to be brought up immediately when the senate reconvenes tomorrow, adjournment tonight for this reason being taken until 10 o'clock, an hour earlier than usual.

WATSON'S EVIDENCE IS PRESENTED IN SENATE

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—Letters and telegrams from persons offering to submit proof of charges that American soldiers overseas were hanged without trial, were presented in the senate today by Senator Watson, democrat, Georgia, whose presentation of the original charges in the senate several days ago resulted in appointment of a special committee of investigation.

One of the telegrams, Senator Watson said, was from a former major in the army and said he could "assist in substantiating the charges." Another, from a resident of Philadelphia, offered to give two photographs similar to that presented recently by Senator Watson as showing a gallows.

The Philadelphian whose name was not made public by the Georgia senator, said he saw a hanging on the House of a negro in uniform, and could supply "positive proof" of the hanging. The correspondent did not say whether the hanging was after a courtmartial or not.

In presenting his documents, Senator Watson with much show of feeling clashed with several senators and was reminded by Vice-President Coolidge that he should "proceed in order and observe senate rules. The vice-president intervened when Senator Watson referred to Senator Moses, republican, New Hampshire, directly without use of the usual term "the senator from New Hampshire."

Senator Watson asked for insertion in the Congressional Record of photographs of alleged hangings in the American expeditionary forces, published in a New Jersey newspaper, and Senator Moses, chairman of the printing committee, started to say that printing rules did not permit publication of photographs when he was cut off by Mr. Watson, who declared the objection was "cowardly."

The Georgia senator again attacked Senator Wadsworth, republican, New York, who first called to senate's attention to Senator Watson's charges.

"It is only a few hours," said Mr. Watson, "since I was put on the rack in a most brutal, supercilious manner by the ex-associate of William Barnes, a crook."

Senator Wadsworth did not reply.

Mr. Watson said that a former soldier was en route here to furnish proof of the hanging charges and that he might appoint his as his secretary so that he might stand by the senator's side in the chamber to aid in proof.

No Candidates Speech Making Or Nothin' Else

By Associated Press.

TAYLORVILLE, Ill., Nov. 3.—Without candidates there can be no election, the village trustees of Palmer decided today. That little town of 450 inhabitants will forego all election joys November 8 because none of them are anxious for offices, although their mayor, the city clerk and one of the trustees, have moved out of Palmer.

When the three officials deserted Palmer some time ago, Bernie Behman, trustee, became acting city clerk, and another trustee became acting mayor. The acting city clerk issued a call for a special election to fill vacancies, and announced that all candidates should file notice with him in fifteen days before the election, November 8.

That date has passed and as the law provides that incumbent officials shall hold office until their successors are qualified, the acting officials will continue to act indefinitely.

ministration quarters. Officials say their plans for giving publicity to proceedings of the conference are so complete as to assure the press the fullest information consistent with public policy and give public opinion ample opportunity to play an intelligent part in shaping the decision of the delegates.

Secretary Hughes, chairman and spokesman of the American delegation is expected to hold daily conferences with newspaper correspondents and, in addition, it is possible that frequent statements may be issued telling the story of the developments in such of the session as are not open to the press and public. The impression was given today however, that a larger part of the real business of the conference than generally had been expected would be transacted without open doors.

The American delegation held no meeting today, but Secretary Hughes and other high officials spent much of the day receiving official calls from the foreign delegates who are on the ground early to get acquainted. Four of the delegations, the Japanese, Chinese, Italian and Belgian were formally received by President Harding and most of those who have arrived completed the round of customary official visitors by paying their respects to Secretaries Weeks and Denby after leaving the White House and state department. In each case the meetings were of a ceremonial character and issues of the coming conference were not discussed.

which is one of the show places of Tarrant County, Colonel Humphreys must be a gay deludeer. Less than three weeks ago the Colonel and his associates were wined and dined in the city of Dallas by citizens of Dallas. It was a notable event. In the shadows of the Magnolia building, the tallest and the most ornate structure to be found outside of New York or Chicago, Colonel Humphreys promised to make Dallas the Pittsburgh of the South and put the Standard Oil Company out of business. Now envious men do say the Pure Oil Company is a Standard Oil subsidary and that the warrior Colonel is a slaughtered lamb in the capacious maws of the Standard lion. Of course, H. N. F. is not responsible for this gossip. It may be a foul calumny but all reading and thinking men agree that when the warrior Colonel of Mexia promised to put the Standard Oil Company out of business he carved out for himself a man's job.

George M. Thurmond of Delrio, Texas, is secretary of the Sheep and Wool Growers Association of Texas. George is a lawyer and a former judge as well as a grower of wool and mohair. He has gone to Washington to appear before the senate committee on finance in advocacy of a high tariff on wool and mohair, whilst Edward Berkley Sniller of Fort Worth will appear before the committee in advocacy of higher tariffs on meat and hides. This reminds H. N. F. that Colonel James H. Allison and Major Leonard Whittington of the Fort Worth Record recently launched a campaign in that city for the protection and preservation of the livestock industry of the southwest and ran afoul of the local Grocers and Butchers Association. There appears to have been some dispute over an alleged yawing chasm which separated or rather divided wholesalers prices and retail prices. They are silent now. Old David Crockett had a slogan, "Be sure you are right and then go ahead." David lived a long time ago. If he were alive today he would revise his slogan to read as follows: "Be sure you are safe and then go ahead." It would be a difference with a distinction.

DOC STORK MADE NEW TEXAS RECORD DURING OCTOBER

By Associated Press.

AUSTIN, Nov. 3.—There were 6,000 births in Texas during October, which is the record for a single month's crop, according to figures given out by Dr. Manton M. Carrick, state health officer, today, of this number, there were 3,095 white boys and 2,940 white girls, 302 negro boys and 275 negro girls, the report shows. There were 72 pairs of twins and no triplets. It is estimated that only about twenty per cent of the negro births were reported.

OFFICER'S SON NOW CHARGED WITH MURDER

Death Former Burkburnett Officers Makes Change in Charge; May Ask Prisoner Be Remanded.

Lonnie Griffin, son of City Marshal Griffin of Burkburnett, will face a preliminary hearing in Justice of the Peace Gwinn's hearing this afternoon at 2 o'clock charged with having murdered R. H. Taylor, former policeman at Burkburnett.

Taylor died at the Martin hospital of Burkburnett at 3 a. m., Thursday after a three day fight to recover from a bullet wound in the abdomen which Griffin is alleged to have fired when the two men met on the streets of Burkburnett Monday night at 9 o'clock.

Little hope was entertained for Taylor's recovery from the time he was taken to the hospital a few minutes after the tragedy took place.

As soon as the news of Taylor's death reached here Thursday morning the charge against Griffin was changed from assault to murder to murder. Griffin was lodged in the county jail Wednesday morning having been rearrested at the instigation of Sheriff Fred Smith after he had been released by Burkburnett officials on a $2,500 bond.

It is understood that state attorneys will ask that Griffin be remanded to the county jail without bond to await the action of the grand jury at the preliminary hearing.

Special to the Record News

BURKBURNETT, Nov. 3.—Robert Hugh Taylor, who is alleged to have been shot by Lonnie Griffin, Monday died at the Martin hospital here this morning at 4:30 o'clock as a result of a bullet wound.

The body, accompanied by his brother, J. A. Taylor, of this city, will be shipped Friday to Tuscumbia, Alabama, for burial. The deceased was formerly a resident of Tuscumbia, his mother, Mrs. J. J. Taylor, and one sister living in that city at present time.

Mr. Taylor was 38 years old at the time of his death. He was a member of the Woodmen of the World and Carpenters Union of this city, where he had resided for some time. A mother, six brothers and a sister survive.

Street Cars to Use New Line by First December

Street cars will be in operation over the new Ninth street short line by December 1, according to information from the office of the Traction company Thursday.

Laying of the rails and repaving had been completed below Scott Avenue, and the work will be finished to Indiana by the end of the week. As soon as the work is finished to Indiana, the Scott street crossing will be bridged over—after the concrete has set for ten days. Lamar will not be bridged over until the full time for the setting of the concrete has elapsed.

This part of the line is so much older than that at Scott that the full time will have nearly expired by the time that Scott street is bridged. As soon as the work is finished to Indiana the sides of the streets will be opened to traffic, but the cross streets will not be opened until the 28 days have gone by. On the upper end of the line this time has nearly expired already.

EVIDENCE DAMAGING TO "BIG TIM" MURPHY IN CHICAGO TRIAL

CHICAGO, Nov. 3.—Efforts of the defense to shake the testimony of the government's star witnesses in the trial of "Big Tim" Murphy and several others in connection with the $395,000 Dearborn station mail robbery here last April failed today. Repeated questioning did not alter their stories or their identification of Murphy. Vincenzo Cosmano, Edward Gerrue and Paul Volanti as the men who planned and executed the robbery.

Ralph Teter, former mail clerk, who confessed he was to save received $16,000 from Murphy for pointing out the truck containing the registered mail pouches, told of conferences which he claimed were held in Murphy's office, headquarters of the South Secretary union.

George W. Hecker, alias George W. Bradford, who is also under indictment, but not on trial at this time, testified he met Murphy and Teter in a store in Indianapolis, Ind., on March 20 and that Murphy there offered them $10,000 to help with the robbery.

CHALLENGES CHARGE GENDARMES KILLED OR ABUSED HAITIANS

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—Charges that Haitian natives were killed or inhumanely treated by gendarmes acting on orders of American marine officers, were challenged today before the special senate investigating committee by Lieutenant Colonel Alexander S. Williams, who acted as assistant commander and later as commander of the gendarmes between August 1916, and July, 1919.

"From my knowledge of the personnel of the American officers in the gendarme forces, I would state they were inspired by a very high sense of duty, anxious to do everything possible to advance the interests of the Haitians and reflect credit on the marine corps," Colonel Williams asserted.

"They all showed the greatest friendship and sympathy for the natives. It is difficult for me to believe that any gendarme officer would deliberately cause to be killed a native under his control as a prisoner.

"I have no doubt, however, that many natives were killed by the native personnel of the gendarmes. I had occasion to try a number of them on such charges and turn some over for trial by the civil courts."

Harding Expects Reduction of Approximately Half Billion in 1922 Government Expenditures

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—The administration expects to effect an aggregate reduction in government expenditures for the fiscal year of 1922 of $439,000,000 instead of its previously estimated reduction of $350,000,000, President Harding informed congress through a letter to Speaker Gillett made public today.

On the basis of latest estimates received from various departments and establishments, the president said, the total of expenditures for the next fiscal year now stands at $3,300,000,000 a reduction of $94,000,000 from the estimate of $4,034,000,000 submitted to congress August 10. The president's estimates were submitted in connection with the transmission of supplemental and deficiency estimates of aproriations amounting to nearly $188,000,000 which he said were taken into consideration in arriving at the expenditures total for next year.

HIGHER COURT HOLDS ZONING LAW INVALID

The zoning ordinance of Wichita Falls, which prohibits the erection of business houses in what is termed the residential districts, except with the permission of three-fourths of the property owners of that district, and the approval of the building inspector, is declared by City Attorney E. M. Mann to be automatically invalided by a ruling Wednesday of the supreme court reversing the decisions of the district court at Dallas and of the court of civil appeals.

The case in which the reversal was handed down was styled John H. Spann vs. the city of Dallas et al, in which Spann sought to force the city of Dallas to issue him a building permit and to restrain the city from interferring with the construction of buildings and conducting business on his lots in the residence section.

The zoning law of Wichita Falls is similar to that of Dallas, the ruling of the supreme court will make the local ordinance void.

The opinion of the supreme court was drafted by Chief Justice Nelson Phillips and covers seven typewritten pages.

The Dallas ordinance described a residence section to consist of any part of the city in which there are more dwellings than business houses within a radius of 300 feet from the location where it is intended to erect any business house for the purpose of bartering and selling goods.

"The ordinance takes no heed of the character of business to be conducted in the storehouse which it condemns," Chief Justice Phillips wrote. "It disregards utterly the fact that the business may be legitimate, although lawful, in no way harmful and even serve the convenience of the neighborhood. It is prohibition absolute. Even if the necessary consent of the property owners is obtained and though the building is to be one safe and substantial, yet, according to the ordinance, if its architectural design does not accord with the taste of the Building Inspector, its construction is no less positively interdicted. No rule, no standard, no regulation of any kind is given whereby the applicant may know to what particular design of building he must conform. If the design, whatever its merits, does not suit the inspector, it is within his uncontrolled power to prohibit the building."

Justification for this far-reaching municipal law, as urged on behalf of the city, is that "it is but a rightful exercise of its police power, as conferred by a general charter provision granting it the authority to protect by ordinance 'health, life and property, abate nuisance, preserve and enforce 'the good government, order and security' of the city and to 'protect the lives, health and property' of its inhabitants'."

Rotarians Hear Of Preacher's Life Thursday

The trials and tribulations, as well as the joys which fall to the lot of the minister, together with a long list of attainments which have to be his if he is to attain success, were related to the Rotary club at their Thursday luncheon by Rev. Nat F. Grafton, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, in the current number in the series of vocational talks which have featured the past few weeks' meetings.

While speaking at times in a serious vein, the speaker devoted a considerable portion of his time to relating the humorous incidents which are a part of the life of every preacher.

He started off with a reference to the information furnished by the encyclopedia with reference to the callings of the speakers who had preceded him in the series, and calling attention to the fact that standard encyclopedias were rather "short" on information regarding preachers. The modern preacher, he told his hearers, must spend the largest amount of time in preparation for his work, and expect the least financial recompense of any of the popularly termed "learned professions." He must in these times be an organizer, a financier, a student, a leader, a "ladies man" and a "man's man," must be a good mixer, must be equally able to walk on the sunny side of life as on the shadowy side with equanimity of spirit, and must expect that his chief recompense be in the realization of worth while work accomplished.

He related that the average pay of preachers in the United States, and the average pay of railroad section hands was the same—700 per year. Of the numerous humorus incidents he related of his career, his hearers chose as the gem the incident of the meddlesome sister who warned his bride-to-be against marrying a preacher.

"Preachers never have anything but books and babies," she told them.

"So far we have accumulated a fair amount of books," he remarked amid the howls of the audience.

Members of the Gene Lewis-Olga Worth company were guests of the club. Following their introduction, Gene Lewis feelingly recited George Colina's verses telling how "Life's a Funny Proposition After All."

Ivan Murchison sang "Little Crumbs of Happiness" to the delight of the members.

A veritable ovation was accorded Harry Bray, one of the most active of the members, on the occasion of his first meeting after a serious illness.

Mr. Bray thanked the members of the club as a whole, as well as certain individual Rotarians for attentions during his sickness, and declared that such attentions hastened recovery.

W. B. Hamilton and J. M. Isbell were greeted as new members at the luncheon.

County Gets Neat Sum for Highway Aid

The 5offers of the county were replenished Wednesday by checks which totaled $16,875, the sum representing state and federal aid in the construction of county roads. The check for the aid was received by Tom McHam, county treasure and is part of the total state and federal aid which the county will receive in the construction of the concrete road from this city to the Wilbarger county line through Iowa Park and Electra.

The county has expected money from the state and federal state aid funds for several weeks. According to officials there is at the present time approximately $110,000 due the county for aid on roads already completed. Payments on estimates have been slow in arriving there being $10,000 still due on the lake road completed last winter.

Relation to Cop Offense Itself, Told

Patrolman Tom Shook has a queer sense of humor and a werse idea of the proper manner in which to receive a relative, according to the belief of Lee Bowman of Bluegrove, who arrived here Thursday for a fortnight's visit with Shook.

According to Shook, Bowman, who is his brother-in-law, was married Wednesday at Bridgetown and arrived here Thursday.

Hiding behind a door, Shook pointed out his incoming kinsman to Patrolman Miller, who promptly in his most professional manner proceeded to unceremoniously arrest Bowman and pilot him away from his bride of 24 hours. Without opportunity for explanation and permitted to ask no questions he was equally as unceremoniously hustled into jail. On the way, however, he told officers he was related to Tom Shook of this city. This was immediately declared by Miller to make matters worse and the jailing process went merrily on.

After a few minutes he was released.

Motor Supply Co. Employes Study Auto Mechanics

With a class of 29 enrolled on the first night, the free course in automobile mechanics, for employes of the Motor Supply company opened Thursday night at the company's office. This course, which is under the direction of Claud Red, shop foreman, who took the full high school course of the extension department of the A. & M. College of Texas, will continue Monday and Thursday nights for a period of nine weeks.

During the course, to which all employes of the Motor Supply company are invited, all of the many sides of modern automobile engineering will be taken up, beginning with the more elementary details and progressing to the advanced problems, which stamp the mechanic above the average.

CRAIG AGREES TO JOIN IRISH NEGOTIATIONS

By Associated Press.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—Sir James Craig, the Ulster premier, has accepted the government's invitation despatched yesterday, to come to London and consult it as to Ulster's attitude toward the proposals regarding the Ulster boundary and other questions involved in the Irish settlement.

Sir James, it is stated, is coming to London to discuss specific plans submitted to the government by the sinn fein of such a character that the government thinks them feasible if Ulster agrees to them. These plans do not, however, embody any agreement definitely reached between the government and the sinn fein.

The Ulster premier has said throughout that he would not intervene until such an agreement was reached, but has now consented to discuss the provisional proposals.

Reports that the government had decided to ask, or had already asked, Ulster to agree to a plebiscite in the counties of Tyrone and Fermanagh, were current here this morning in connection with the conference between the British government and representatives of the Dail Eireann looking to a settlement of the Irish controversy. The two counties, in which there is said to be a strong sentiment in favor of southern Ireland, would, according to reports, be asked to signify their adhesion to Ulster or the sinn fein.

The government was declared to have been careful to make clear that the request did not come from Prime Minister Lloyd George alone or from the conferees discussing the Irish situation, but from the whole British cabinet.

ROME RESIDENTS SET NEW PISTOL PRACTICE RECORD

By Associated Press.

ROME, Nov. 3.—Count Pietro Rusconi and Lieutenant Attonelli, both of this city, recently engaged in a duel that is believed to have set the record for small gun practice. They faced each other on the field of honor and began hostilities which continued until they had exchanged seventy-eight rounds, neither one having suffered serious damage. At last their seconds and the surgeons in attendance interfered and stopped the fusillades.

The two men before retiring declared themselves reconciled.

DOCK STRIKE CALLED OFF IN NEW ORLEANS

By Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 3.—The longshoremen's strike here was called off today and dock workers belonging to both the white and negro union will return to work tomorrow.

This announcement was made by Commissioner T. V. O'Connor of the shipping board following a conference.

GALVESTON, Texas, Nov. 3.—Although local longshoremen have accepted the proposed terms of 85 cents an hour with $1 overtime, they will not return to work until the wage controversy between the screwmen and stevedores is fully settled. This was announced today following a meeting of the various locals.

The screwmen still are negotiating and have asked for another conference with the stevedores tomorrow.

Referring to the scale accepted by members of the international longshoremen's association, John Dorman, president of local 310 said that it had been forced on the men and was accepted "only because the shipping board holds the whip hand."

SAUL'S STORE IS MECCA FOR THOUSANDS

Size of Crowd Visiting New Department Store Makes It Necessary to Receive Guests in Groups.

Lebenson Gratified at Attitude of People; No Sales Permitted and Souvenirs Given All.

Saul Lebenson's formal opening Thursday was a success in every way it could be taken, crowds estimated at 10,000 children in the afternoon from 4 to 5:30 o'clock and something like 10,000 men and women at night from 7 to 10 o'clock passing through the large new store and receiving souvenirs. Mr. Lebenson, himself, was on hand all of the time perspiring and hoarse from talking and directing the crowds, but happy in the thought that the opening was marked by such evidence of public approval.

So large did the crowds grow at the night opening that it was necessary to admit the visitors in sections, let them look over the store, receive the flowers, clothes brushes, cigars, lucky penny pieces, and other favors, then move on so a like number could take their places. In the afternoon the school children were given kites and toys of various kinds, school tablets and pencils. The supply was large enough that every child that came was given some kind of a present.

Long before the doors opened in the evening the streets and sidewalks up and down Seventh and Indiana were crowded and jammed so that it was necessary for traffic officers to handle the crowd. When the doors were opened the crush was so great that before they could be closed again the place was jammed to its limit. Mr. Lebenson responded to the urgent calls of his friends and made a short address appropriate to the occasion.

An orchestra furnished music throughout the evening and an interesting feature not on the published program was the artistic dancing of Miss Helen Sylvia Lebenson, four-year-old daughter of the proprietor and host.

The formal opening officially puts Saul's store among the large mercantile establishments of this city.

Many personal congratulations which Mr. Lebenson received at the opening, he declared to a Record News representative who pushed his way in with the crowd, more than rewarded him for his years of hard work building up his trade and the confidence of the people.

While there were no sales made at either the afternoon or the evening opening, many men and women, the fair sex especially, could not resist the temptation to slow the procession up a little by looking over the bright, fresh goods which were displayed on every shelf. Courteous salespeople were on hand to answer any questions and give any needed advice to the visitors.

Saul's rest room was liberally patronized at the evening opening, especially by mothers with small children. The practical value of this metropolitan feature of the store was demonstrated more than once.

"I am delighted with the attitude of the people here tonight," Mr. Lebenson said. "The people who pass through have a look about them that they are not coming to my opening just out of curiosity, but because they are my friends and want to let me know that they are glad to join with me in opening such a nice place."

CHARACTER BUILDING IS CLUB THEME

Character building was the theme about which all numbers on the program of the Speakers' club for Thursday afternoon were prepared.

The program was opened with a general discussion of the value of high school friendships, their weight in shaping the characters and destinies of the students and their general value in after life. The discussion was led by Miss Alma Lee Joiner.

A debate on the subject "Resolved That Stealing Is a Greater Evil Than Lying" was held between Misses Hazel Noe and Leone Bryant, with the judges awarding a decision in the favor of Miss Bryant, who debated the negative side of the question.

A surprise contest in giving names of automobiles was staged between Miss Martha Maud Apple and Gorman Kenley on one side and Misses Stella Winters and Mildred Meeee on the other, with honors going to the latter team.

A topic on the relation between father and son, taken from a well known magazine, was read by Miss Katherine Hopper following which Floyd Harrison was called on for an extemporaneous speech on the best trait of character a man can have. Honesty, in speech, action and thought was declared by Harrison to be in his opinion the best trait that man can possess.

"Father and Son" was announced as the theme of the program at the next regular meeting and each member was instructed to urge the attendance of his own father.

At a short business session Miss Juanita Kinsey, teacher of public speaking and sponsor for the club, was authorized to challenge any high school in the state for debate.

Merchant—Look here, that safe you sold me last month you said was a burglar-proof safe, and I found it cracked this morning and rifled of its contents.

Agent—Well, isn't that proof that you've had a burglar?

"Yes, but not as busy as it keeps me trying not to get into debt."—Boston Transcript.

Calomel Good But Treacherous

Next Dose May Salivate, Shock Liver of Attack Your Bones.

You know what calomel is. It's mercury; quicksilver. Calomel is dangerous. It crashes into sour bile like dynamite, cramping and sickening you. Calomel attacks the bones and should never be put into your system.

If you feel bilious, headachy, constipated and all knocked out, just go to your druggist and get a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone for a few cents which is a harmless vegetable substitute for dangerous calomel. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better and quicker than nasty calomel and without making you sick, you just go back and get your money.

Don't take calomel! It makes you sick the next day; it loses you a day's work. Dodson's Liver Tone straightens you right up and you feel great. No salts necessary. Give it to the children because it is perfectly harmless and can not salivate.

IT WAS EVER THUS.

Judge Sam H. Cowan and Berkley Spiller of Fort Worth are in Washington to appear before the senate committee on finance in support of a tariff on hides and an increase in rates on livestock and livestock products over rates named in the Fordney tariff bill. Hon. Sam Houston Cowan should find it easy to win the support of the republican members of the committee on finance. He galloped away from the democratic reservation last year because he had "no time" for the Woodrow Wilson policies; now he has less time for the Harding policies. "Politics make strange bed fellows."

TELL IT TO ATTICUS.

Wichita Falls holds the speed record for romance. A couple met at an afternoon movie and were married within an hour after leaving the show. Editor Fitzgerald of the Record News should explain what is responsible for the unusual prank of Cupid.—McKinney Courier Gazette. Why not pass it on to Dr. Atticus Webb? He is forever explaining the mysterious pranks of John Barleycorn and yet John was decently or indecently entombed months and months ago. A man who is able to solve the secrets of the grave should be able to explain the pranks of Dan Cupid who is ever footloose and fearless and free. To the task, Brother Atticus. Please contribute to the gaiety of men and nations.

Dallas and Fort Worth are said to be rivals. Building permits are very interesting. Dallas issued the third week in October permits representing a value of $254,000 and for the fourth and last week permits representing a value of $235,630. These are the Fort Worth figures: Third week, $86,222; fourth week, $90,140. Houston played second to Dallas. Third week, $143,445 fourth week, $104,475. San Antonio ran third in building permits for the period designated.

President Harding has created four American ambassadors. They are: Elhiu Root, Henry Cobar Lodge, Oscar W. Underwood and Charles Evans Hughes. These four ambassadors in the Arms Conference will outrank ambassadors credited to foreign capitals. And thus it is that ambassadors are made. There appears to be something in a name.

Wilbarger county farmers are planning a boll-weevil campaign. Wilbarger is a noted producer of cotton with a crop of more than 10,000 bales for the year 1921. Old King Cotton melted the frozen assets in the Vernon banks this year.

WHAT LIVESTOCK MEN KNOW

State banks may help make livestock loans according to a ruling by Commissioner of Insurance and Banking Edward Hall. That is, they may act as intermediates between borrowers and the war finance corporation in subscriptions to stock in the agricultural livestock finance corporation of Fort Worth. Under this ruling, state banks may grant borrowers credit, the loans to be passed on to the war finance corporation without the banks endorsing the notes or assuming any obligation. Of course livestock men who need financial assistance are willing, but they are hoping just the same that decisive action will be taken without delay. They know that it has been a talking-fest ever since last spring, when the Hon. W. P. G. Harding hit the high spots in Texas.

Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi is responsible for the following: "This is no time for the Democratic party to divide." Senator Pat has his hat on straight. Recruiting and not division is the order of the day. Warren G. Harding had a plurality of six million. Another wallop of like nature and the official recorders would count the Democratic vote as "scattering" and not among the "also rans." Regardless of this it did not happen in Texas.

In order to assist the millions of wage workers and wealth producers in factory and mine and on the farm, the republicans of the senate agreed to the repeal of the 10 per cent tax on all articles made of furs. This will help some. Jones, in the winter time, while feeding the stock and doing the chores, dearly loves to wrap himself in an overcoat of sable. This shows that Jones has friends in the senate.

Republican congressional leaders have decided to push the Dyer anti-lynching bill. This is a republican administration. They won control of the country by an immense majority. Millions of democrats and independents assisted the regular republicans in the election that won control. Let them put over their program. Their's is the responsibility.

A prominent citizen of Texas, an acquaintance of Congressman Thomas Lynn Blanton, recently paid him this tribute: "He has a belly full of guts and a thimble full of brains." This is not couched in the polished language of the fathers, there may be no excuse for its publication, but it covers lots of ground.

A nation-wide strike of coal miners is threatened and all of it on account of an injunction issued by Federal Judge A. B. Anderson of Indiana. Winter is here and there is gas to burn. Why worry?

There is a demand on the part of eminent statesmen for the building up of industrial morale in this country. There should be a demand on the part of many employers for the building up of industrial efficiency, something that is sadly lacking.

SAMMY JAY DROPS A HINT

Whatever faults Chatterer the Red Squirrel may have, and they are many, laziness is not one of them. No, siree, there is no laziness about Chatterer. When he has work to do he does it, and he keeps at it until it is finished. Every morning he got up with the sun and raced along the old stone-wall and the rail fences down to Farmer Brown's cornfield, where he first ate his breakfast and then worked to fill the hollow rail of the fence which he had made into a storehouse. It is hard work, because he had to do a great deal of hunting for the corn, and it was exciting work, because he had to keep his eyes and ears open every minute to keep from furnishing a dinner for some one else.

Redtail the Hawk, who had not yet gone south, discovered him one morning, and Chatterer had dodged behind a fencepost just in time. After that Redtail was on hand every morning watching from the top of a tree for Chatterer to grow careless and get too far from shelter. Then one morning Reddy Fox surprised him at the edge of a heap of cornstalks. Chatterer had just time to wriggle his way to the middle of the heap. Reddy had seen him and he could smell him. Very softly Reddy tiptoed around the pile of cornstalks to see if Chatterer had come out on the other side. Then he came back to where Chatterer had gone in, and excitedly began to dig, making the dry stalks fly right and left. He made so much noise that Chatterer felt sure that he wouldn't hear him move, and he didn't. By the time Reddy had worked his way to the middle of the pile, Chatterer was safe in his storehouse in the hollow rail. He had slipped from under the cornstalks and run across to another pile, worked his way through this and so reached the fence.

After that Reddy Fox came every morning hoping to surprise Chatterer. But Chatterer felt quite equal to fooling Reddy and Redtail. Of course they interfered with his work, and were very bothersome, but he wasn't afraid of them. The one thing he did fear was that Shadow the Weasel would hear where he was. That thought bothered him a great deal. One morning Sammy Jay just happened along. He saw Reddy Fox creeping up behind some bushes on the edge of the cornfield, and at once Sammy began to scream as he always does when he thinks he can spoil Reddy's hunting. Reddy looked up at him and showed all his long teeth but Sammy only grinned and screamed louder. Then Reddy walked away with a great deal of dignity, for he knew that it wasn't of the least use to try to hunt while Sammy Jay was about. When he had disappeared in the Green Forest Sammy returned to the cornfield, and there he found Chatterer hard at work.

"I'm much obliged Sammy, for driving that nuisance away; he bothers me a great deal, and I've got to do a lot of work yet to fill the storehouse before it is too late," said Chatterer as he hurried to the hollow rail with his mouth full of corn.

"Have you moved down here?" demanded Sammy Jay. "I thought you were living up in the Old Orchard."

"I am. At least my house is up there, but there is no food there, and so I have made a storehouse down here and am trying to get it full of corn before snow comes," replied Chatterer.

"It will be a long way to come for your food every day," said Sammy.

"I know it," replied Chatterer, "but I guess I'm lucky to have any food to come for."

"Poor!" said Sammy. "I wouldn't work as you do. I'd use my wits a little. If corn is what you want to eat why don't you go up to Farmer Brown's? It's nearer to the Old Orchard than this, and the corn is all stored ready for you to help yourself. I get all I want there."

NEXT STORY! CHATTERER SCREWS UP HIS COURAGE.

Watching the Parade

By JOHN PILGRIM

I'm a firm believer in the efficacy of prayer. I've seen it proven. Only I don't believe that prayer straight amounts to very much. You need to mix something with your prayer if you expect an answer. And if you don't believe it listen to the story of Albert Action and his little wife.

She's one of the finest little women in worl'," Albert has said to me many a time. "Loves me—gosh how she loves me. Less have anurr drink."

Albert is a good kid, too. Only he drinks too much, too often. When he does he forgets to come home for two or three days at a time. Little Bess Acton used to agonize over him. She comes of a good church-going stock, does Bess, and she believed in praying for what she wants. Her mother comes of an equally good church-going stock and likewise believes in prayer. But she is what one might call an efficiency engineer in her Christianity.

"Prayer can move mountains," she told Bess, "but prayer alone very seldom does."

I don't know exactly what happened. But last night I met Albert standing on the corner. He was rocking a little—just a little—and he had evidently been violating the Volstead law. But he was on his way home.

"I've got a little Mick," said Albert genially. "She isn't much more'n about so high, but gee how she can hit!"

So Albert wouldn't go and break the law any more, whereas there was a time when his only reason for going home was that he was being tossed out of all other places. The boys say Bess looks happier nowadays. She doesn't wear that depressed and patient air she used to. She's seen with Albert oftener, too, and he seems to like it. He's proud of his "little Mick."

Prayer is a fine thing and so is faith and so is charity. But each one of the three is better off mixed liberally with good works.

Cancer Cures

By H. ADDINGTON BRUCE

Author of "The Riddle of Personality," "Self-Development," Etc.

(Copyright, 1921, by The Associated Newspapers.)

All advertised cancer "cures," the officials of the United States Public Health Service give warning, are "swindles." They may not be intentionally such. But their effect is to deplete the financial resources of unhappy victims of cancer without giving them anything like value for money received.

Still worse, far worse, the effort to obtain a cure by some advertised medicinal treatment means a postponing recourse to the one hope of cure—surgical intervention or, in the case of certain cancers, treatment by competent practioners with radium or the X-rays. And such postponing is too often equivalent to the self-imposing of a sentence of death.

To emphasize the worthlessness of the many alleged "cures" now on the market comes the announcement, little more than a month ago, of a reward of $100,000 for the discovery of an effective medicinal remedy for cancer. This is offered by a research society that has established a laboratory for the sole purpose of investigating and developing methods by which cancer may be eventually eradicated.

Be not deceived.

If your doctor has told you that he fears you are suffering from a cancerous growth, do not waste time and money on some widely advertised remedy. Let your doctor be your guide as to the course you should take.

And if he informs you that in his opinion the only one who can help you is a good surgeon, do not let a dread of surgery cause you to hold indefinitely back with the vague promise that you will "think it over."

There are cancers which give people uncommonly little time to "think it over." The delay of a month—perhaps less than a month—may mean the difference between life and death.

And when you decide, as you promptly should, to trust yourself to surgeon, radium expert, or X-ray practitioner as your doctor thinks best, face bravely and confidently the ordeal through which you will have to go.

Fear and distrust will not help you one whit. They will work against you, because of their enfeebling effect on your whole organism. Whereas, faith that health will be restored to you may itself be a decisive factor in your regaining health.

Faith is dynamic. It energizes. It revivifies. Without it the greatest medical skill may avail you little. With it, however desperate your case, the healing art may add another to its long list of triumphs.

The Once Over

By H. I. PHILLIPS

THIS WAY TO THE BEER WARD!
The patient lifted up his head;
Quoth he, "Life's outlook is richer;
Away with pills, and in their stead
Prescribe for me a gation pitcher."

What ever folks may say of the secretary of the treasury, Mr. Mellon, he is no water Mellon.

A little genuine beer (say a couple of gallons or so) may do a man a lot of good, he admits; likewise wine, and under his official seal an order has gone out allowing the distribution of the same.

Once more the smell of hops hangs heavy over the neighborhood of the old brewery, the groaning of the beer-truck wheels may be heard in the yard, and the red-cheeked, jovial brewery hands may be seen piling cases of the real stuff aboard the wagons as they wish all customers "a long illness and a merry one."

At last the authorities have realized that the "No Beer, No Work," slogan of some years back was no joke. There has been even less work than beer the past few months.

Of course, a lot of beer has been working, but that, as Rupert Kipling would say, is another story.

Those wishing real beer, without delay will do well to develop drinking-sickness immediately. Lines will form in front of doctors' offices and stretch back six blocks in each direction. Patients may approach four abreast until further notice.

Feigenspan, Doelger, Ehret, Ringler, and Rupert will endow a number of free beer-beds in the near future.

Prospectus.

A liminted number of cots will be placed in breweries in the cases of patients who can furnish proof they are that sick.

Private wards will be obtainable in the larger beer mills for patients who can afford it.

Patients are hereby notified that under the new ruling the breweries may turn out beer in bottles only. It may be emptied into pitchers, kegs, and pails, however, upon arrival in the sickrooms.

Drinking out of pails will be discouraged, however, as destructive to the morale of spectators.

Bungstarters will be kept in the possession of the nurses and internes. Any patient found trying to force open a keg will be put on a milk diet.

A doctor may issue beer prescriptions in accordance with a patient's malt liquor needs.

O doctor, dear doctor be lib'ral, I pray!
May your heart be the boss of your deeds.
When you fill my prescription be careful to say
There's no end to my Malt Liquor Needs.

HOME NURSING and HEALTH HINTS

By M. JESSIE LEITCH

FILLING A HOT-WATER BOTTLE

When Madge Story's father came home from the bank and went to bed ill, asking for a hot-water bottle and a drink of hot lemonade, Madge, who was sixteen, stayed a little when her father said, "Do you know how to fill a hot-water bottle, my dear?"

Her mother was out and Madge, bent upon taking her place, experienced a sense of positive outrage at the thought of being questioned about filling a hot-water bottle.

"Of course I know how. I'll get it in a jiffy."

She had paused in the bathroom to get the hot-water bottle, and, turning on the hot-water tap, she fumbled with the cork of the hot-water bottle.

Father Refuses to Use Bag.

She felt the water that was running into the sink. It seemed hot to her fingers, so she speedily filled the rubber bottle very full and wrestled once more with the cork, which screwed in rather stiffly.

The bottle did feel very heavy, and to Madge's soft fingers it seemed quite warm.

But when she approached her father's bed with it he groaned and said, "Is that the best you can do?" And scorned it utterly.

Poor Madge was still standing forlornly in the middle of the floor with the despised and rejected bottle in her hand when her mother came in softly.

Takes in Situation at Glance.

She took in the situation at a glance, and even as she bent anxiously over her sick husband, said:

"Run down to the kitchen, dear, and put some water on the gas stove to heat. I'll come right down."

And a few minutes later, while she squeezed lemons and strained the juice into a tall cup, and measured sugar, scantily, Mrs. Story explained about hot-water bottles to the young daughter, who had never needed to know about them before.

"You must never fill a hot-water bottle to its full capacity," she explained. "If the bottle is to be placed in a bed to warm it, you may fill the bottle three-quarters full, but when it is to apply to one's body to relieve pain it should not be more than a quarter full. This makes it light and soothing. When a hot-water bottle is too full it is too heavy for comfort.

How to Fill Hot-Water Bottle.

"A hot-water bottle should be put away with the cork in it. Therefore, to fill it, remove the cork and roll the bag from the bottom upward to expel the air, so the hot water will not be forced over your hand while you are filling it. Pour hot water into a pitcher and then into the bottle. Never fill a hot bottle from the spout of a kettle, as the steam causes it to bubble and you may scald your hand.

"The temperature of the water should be about 180 degrees Fahrenheit. Squeeze the bottle with one hand to expel the air and screw in the stopper, holding the bottle upsidedown to be sure it does not leak.

"Always wrap a hot bottle in a soft towel or a piece of flannel. Flannel bags should be made to cover each hot-water bottle, for the rubber must never be allowed to come in contact with the patient's skin. It burns the patient very quickly, and a person in great pain may not notice the burning sensation until the damage is done."

And Madge, listening attentively, confessed that there was much she had not known about filling hot-water bottles.

World Union of Intellectuals

By DR. FRANK CRANE

(Copyright, 1921, by Frank Crane.)

Perhaps the idea of World Union may be better advanced by the intellectual than by any other class.

The idea is in the air. It is the most significant and hopeful idea of this era.

But so far it has been advanced only by two groups; the politicians and the revolutionists.

Neither of these groups is equipped to carry the idea to success.

The politicians are too much shot through with selfishness and with the fear of losing their jobs.

The revolutionists mix the wholesome motive of internationalism with too much of the septic dirt of envy and fanaticism.

There is another class which is better equiped than either of these to carry this idea to triumph. It is the Intellectuals.

By Intellectuals we mean those people who are occupied in callings whose brain work is used; all those whose labor is principally thought and not physical exertion.

Such classes are peculiarly fitted to be the champions of new ideas in a way that can bring them to pass without extravagance or destruction.

Among these are university men, both professors and students. No class of people are better qualified to see the natural predominance of humanity over nationalism.

Other classes are the writers, the preachers, the scientists, and the artists.

Some effort should be made to get these classes together around this great idea. For these men are the natural leaders of the world in the realm of thought.

Their organization for the promotion of wholesome internationalism should be open to any one who acknowledges the supremacy of thought over blind action, of righteousness over expediency, of the welfare of the whole human race over the welfare of some exclusive and privileged nation.

They should organize a league to promote world unity, and thus prepare a deep foundation in the minds of men upon which any political league will have to rest.

They should avoid politics and the pitfalls of personal ambition. They should be willing to sacrifice and give their efforts for the sake of the great idea.

This idea of an intellectual league has already been proposed in some circles. The "Quatrieme Republique" says in referring to it: "Such an organization is not only possible but highly desirable. It should be one of the tasks of the League of Nations, which itself was born of the intellectual work of those who stood for an ideal.

"It cannot be understood that the League of Nations would interest itself in the bettering of the exchange of material things without also being interested in accelerating the exchange of ideas between the nations. But it is a matter which is delicate and which requires prudence and tact."

So great an enterprise as the unification of the world should not be left to the hands of politicians, who are almost uniformly second-rate men, nor in the hands of those fanatical dreamers with whom internationalism is little better than a hatred of their own nation.

It is the intellectuals alone who are qualified to see the idea in a wholesome way and to deal with it with clean hands.

OLD FLAMES

Copyright, 1921, by W. Werner

Myrtle Bly was planting arum-lily bulbs that sunny October morning when Cora Hotchkiss came into the yard. Excitement flaunted in the feather on Cora's smart hat, wiggled in the fringe of her skirt, snapped in her big black eyes. At 48 she was a handsome woman, and Myrtle, looking up from where she knelt, said so. "I declare, Cote, the older you get the better looking you are!" she exclaimed.

Mrs. Hotchkiss—she had been a widow long enough to do without the slightest semblance of a weed—laughed. "That doesn't speak very well for my youth, or else it bids me look a long way forward. Do you expect me to live to be a hundred? Get up, Myrt, out of the dirt this instant. I've something to tell you."

Myrtle arose. She was a merry old maid of 47, with blond hair that was only pleasantly gray and a figure that had all the rotundity of a Dutch cheese. In her way she wass even handsomer than her friend. "Let's sit down on the bench," she invited. "Now what's your news?"

"Take a good long breath first, for I'm going to take your breath away. Gus Cody is in town!"

"No! You don't say so!" Myrtle stared at Cora.

"He's visiting at the Redfields. You know, Helen Redfield is his cousin. That's ancient history. I've seen him. In fact, I met him on my way here. He asked after you."

Myrtle laughed. "What does he look like?" she asked curiously.

"Like a very dignified and reverend gentleman. But you will see for yourself. I've invited him to my house for dinner tonight, and you must come, too."

Myrtle was silent at first; then she reached forth, pulled a rose from a bush and gave it to Cora. The little interlude covered her embarrassment. "I'll come of course," she replied. "But won't it seem queer for us three to be together again?"

"Well—" Cora sighed—"he may have forgotten—if one ever does forget such things—how you and I used to fight over him. We got quite tragic. I always thought that was why he went away. He was always so timid. I suppose we did cut up awful, but, honest, Myrt, I was dead in love with him."

"So was I, Myrtle confessed. "That wasn't why I didn't marry somebody else, though. By the time I'd got over that affair Uncle Tom died and left me all that money. After that freedom seemed pretty sweet. I just couldn't bear to tie myself down. But I must say, Cote, that you were an amazingly successful married woman and as a widow you can't be surpassed."

"Flatterer!" Cora arose. "Well, fix up your prettiest and come to dinner tonight and we'll see what the Rev. Doctor Cady thinks of us, Myrt, one thing more. Doesn't it seem queer that after the open feud of our girlhood days because of that man we should have become such warm friends, such amicable companions? I can't imagine our having a word now, can you?"

"Time has seasoned us," Myrtle said. "Don't you want a bunch of verbenas for your table?"

"No, I'm going to use melpomene lilies and maidenhair ferns. They are more showy. Oh, I'm going to make a great spread for the Reverend Doctor, and don't you forget it!" She turned away with a laugh.

Myrtle watched her friend's tall, graceful figure as it moved down the street. Her eyes were full of speculation. When Cora had disappeared from view, she returned to her bulb planting. "I wonder if Gus could persuade Cora to marry him now," she thought. "She'd have to go out west to live and we'd be separated forever. Doesn't seem as if she would have him when she's refused Judge Arnold twice to my knowledge, but you can never tell. Maybe,"—her pink cheeks dimpled—"I myself shall feel a revival of that ancient sentiment. You never can tell either."

At 4 o'clock Myrtle went to her room to arm herself for the fray. She put her light hair into kid curlers and lay down for a nap. She slept profoundly and arose refreshed. A bath stimulated her still further. While she was doing her hair she pondered the question of dress. There were at least three gowns hanging in her closet that were becoming enough for even so important an occasion. At least she rejected the taupe one. Cora might possibly wear taupe. Then she weeded out the gray georgette; it was too repressed. This left the black spangled net for her to put on, and when she was dressed she felt that she had chosen wisely.

"I hope he'll perceive the difference in my clothes," she thought. "I used to wear gingham on Sunday and was glad to have it, but that was before I even dreamed of inheriting Uncle Tom's money. And Cote wasn't any better off. Can't any one tell me she doesn't enjoy Peter Hotchkiss' money. I know she does."

As a last touch Myrtle flung her velvet cape over her shoulders, for the evening was cool. She found the handsome Hotchkiss house alive with lights. Cora's incomparable maid let her in and Cora herself, wearing the taupe dress, leaned over the balustrade of the carved and gleaming staircase.

"Come on up, Myrt!" Cora cried. "I'm not quite ready to come down."

Cora was before her cheval glass giving a last caress to her face. "I'm glad you wore the black one," she said, as Myrtle's reflection appeared beside her own in the mirror. "It brings out your hair so. There! I guess I'll do."

"Sh-sh" Myrtle lifted a finger. Through the open window came a sound from the street below. It was years since Myrtle had heard that nervous throat-clearing "a-hem, a-hem," but she recognized it instantly. "That's Gus," she whispered.

Cora had heard it, too. She flew toward the glistening stairs and went down with the assurance of perfect practice. Myrtle followed close behind, with less daring and far less facility of footing. When she slipped she gave a cry, let go the railing and clutched Cora. Cora's slender height toppled under the unexpected burden, and when Myrtle went down Cora went with her. They struck the bottom step in a tangle. As Myrtle, conscious, not so much of hurt as of dismay, tried to rise, Cora attempted not only to haul herself up but to aid her friend. They struggled thus ineffectually with faces full of concern.

Myrtle faced the unobscured glass in the massive hall door. She saw there an astonished, pale, horrified face which, even under the stress of present emotion, did not lose its clerical dignity of expression. The reverend doctor had put forth his hand to ring the bell, but he stayed it when he saw what was going on within. When the two women were finally righted he was gone.

Cora ran to the door, Myrtle after her. Together they peered out. A tall, thin shape was hurrying down the street toward the Redfields.

"He's run away!" gasped Cora.

"He must have thought we were fighting over him, just as we used to!" panted Myrtle.

They closed the door and stood leaning against it, staring at each other until laughter brought relief. Tears mingled with the laughter. They were both close to hysterics. They were interrupted by the maid, who came to say that Mrs. Redfield had telephoned a message. "The dear doctor was sorry to disappoint, but an unexpected attack of vertigo prevented him from keeping his engagement."

"Vertigo!" exclaimed Myrtle.

"He must 'know that we both saw him at the door," said Cora.

The two friends sank upon a sofa.

"Well," Cora said at length, "he's lost a good dinner. I happen to know that Helen Redfield isn't much of a cook and my Olga is. Roast duck and fairy bananet pudding! I dare say we shall be able to enjoy it without him."

"Perhaps," Myrtle said slowly, "we may enjoy it all the better. Wouldn't it have been awful, Cote, if by his coming he should have got us into a rumpus again?"

Cora gave Myrtle a long look before she understood. "Wouldn't it?" she murmured.

Rippling Rhymes

By WALT MASON

THE WARNING.

The road turned sharply to the right, and, as my flivver rolled my startled eyes beheld a sight that made my blood run cold. A brand new sign, with message drear, I there perused, aghast: "Beware! A man was killed just here, because he drove too fast." I had been ripping off the miles at quite a reckless pace; my flivver scorched, in many styles, as though 'twere in a race. But I was startled by that rede, that message stark and dour, and so I then reduced my speed to fourteen miles an hour. And if it so affected me, I wager that it jars a hundred others when they see that warning from their cars. You say it would be wise, indeed, to place such monuments wherever mania for speed has killed poor dippy gents. "Slow down," we'd read, upon our way. "Three perished where you ride;" "Take care!" another sign would say "twas here two speeders died." And thus you'd keep our thoughts intent on doom and biers and shrouds, and spread a wholesome sentiment among the whizzing crowds. But soon the signs would overlap, and what would then befall? You can't expect the speeding chap to pause to read them all. If warnings would abolish speed, one warning should suffice; we shudder as the first we read, the second cuts no ice.—Copyright by George Matthew Adams.

DOGHILL PARAGRAFS

By GEORGE BINGHAM.

Poke Eazley mysteriously dropped from sight for over an hour this morning and grave fears were entertained for him around the stove at the store until Poke's wife was observed patching a pair of pants.

An unsuccessful attempt was made to assassinate one of our fellow-townsmen, while he was in the act of entering a smoke-house on Musket Ridge shortly after midnight Friday morning.

SOCIETY

MRS. CULLUM GIVES PRETTY THETA PARTY

A delightful informal affair of the week, was the Kappa Alpha Theta party given by Mrs. Landon H. Cullum, complimentary to her house guest and fraternity sisters of Austin, Miss Mary Watson, Miss Henrietta Lightfoot, house guest of Mrs. Leslie Stringer, and Miss Margaret Montgomery, guest of Misses Jewell and Josephine Cummings.

The house was attractively decorated in flowers and motifs suggestive of Hallowe'en, and following a dainty buffet supper, the evening was pleasantly spent at bridge.

The guests included: Misses Mary Watson, Henrietta Lightfoot, Margaret Montgomery, Genevieve Goff, Louise Montgomery, Mrs. Leslie Stinger and Messrs. Lamar and Ernest Fain, Bill Robertson, Charlie Nolen, George Gutzman and Frank Cullum.

MUSICIAN'S CLUB PLANS TEA FOR ORGANIST

Plans for a tea to be given at the Wichita Club honoring Clarence Eddy, dean of pipe organists of America, who will appear at the Baptist church in concert Thursday night, were discussed at the business meeting of the Musician's club Thursday afternoon.

The club also voted to join the Chamber of Commerce and the American Legion in assisting with any musical celebration for Armistice day that they might plan.

Other business completed was the election of Miss Florence Sammons for corresponding secretary to take the place of Miss Virginia Parks, who resigned on account of leaving the city.

The musical program for the afternoon which was under the direction of Mrs. F. C. Barron, was on the three German song writers, Schubert, Schumann and Franz.

Mrs. Barron gave an instructive talk on the subject, and parts of songs by each of the composers were given as illustrations.

Mrs. John W. King sang, "To Be Sung on the Water," by Schubert; Mrs. Barron sang, "On Me Turn Thy Sparkling Luster," by Franz; Mrs. A. M. Lewis sang, "Fantasie Stucki" by Schumann, and the chorus, "Springtime" by Mendelssohn was led by Mr. Elliott.

The Siege of Jerusalem—(Krumpeln.)

Fashions for Americans

Quills and Curled Tips, Artificial Fruit and Flowers All Used for Decorations.

Hair ornamentation appears to be strongly approved this season, and all sorts of interesting, dainty, and at the same time inexensive little bandeaux are shown, in addition to the array of goregous combs that help to carry out the Spanish note in dress so evident in many lines of outer apparel.

The sketch offers three hair ornament suggestions, each simple and easy to make at home. The upper sketch shows a bandeau formed of quills such are ordinarily used as hat trimming. They must be pliable enough to bend without breaking. They may be fastened to a band of ribbon and tied about the head or on an elastic or ribbon-covered wire. The centre illustration shows a ribbon decorated with little clusters of grapes. Either artificial fruits or flowers may be used for this purpose of course, and the color chosen to suit the individual. The lower bandeau is a simple velvet ribbon band caught at either side, or at one side, according to preference, with a little curled ostrich tip.

Dress accessories have never been more important than they are this season, with clothes comparatively simple in line and so much emphasis laid on black. Many interesting bits of costume jewelry are offered, including a range of quartz lavalieres, girdles, etc., and the lavalliers, cordeliers, and neck chains of one sort and another seem to have displaced bar pins and brooches for the present at least.

In the line-up of accessories, guimpes, and vestees cannot be overlooked among the very smart vestees recently seen, rather tailored waistcoat affairs made of brocade, embroidered silk or black and white striped velvet for wear with tailored suits are worth mentioning.

Early Risers

"Early to bed and early to rise' is a good old motto."

"It is that," agreed Mr. Chiggins. "Unless you get down town before 7 o'clock in the morning you're not likely to find any place to park your car."—Washington Star.

One of the "finds" made in Thebes, in Egypt, by the expendition of the Metropolitan Museum, was a body which had been buried with, apparently, all the household linen. There were about forty beautiful linen sheets, says M. Walter Hauser, one of the members of the expendition, very big and all fringed. The linen had turned to a lovely shade of golden brown and was in perfect condition. Some of the sheets showed signs of having been carefully mended.

THIN, FADED HAIR NEEDS "DANDERINE" TO THICKEN IT

35 cents buys a bottle of "Danderine." Within ten minutes after the first application you can not find a single trace of dandruff or falling hair. Danderine is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them, helping your hair to grow long, thick and luxuriant.

Girls! Girls! Don't let your hair stay lifeless, colorless, thin, scraggy. A single application of delightful Danderine will double the beauty and radiance of your hair and make it look twice as abundant.

BAYLOR PLANS VERSATILE ATTACK AGAINST FARMERS

WACO, Texas, Nov. 3.—When Bridges sends his Bear eleven against the Texas A. & M. Farmers Saturday he will know for a truth that they are equipped with the stuff to win if they have the ability to put it over. The Bruins will not lack for plays and formations calculated to keep the Farmers guessing at all times. Some of Bridges' formations are so planned as to offer almost any style of attack. These have been planned to meet the individual playing style of the stellar Bradshaw, the light and fleet-footed Craven, and the hard-hitting, line-plunging Tanner.

Line Coach Crow has also whipped his wing men into more polished players and the Bears will no doubt resort to the aerial style game. It is doubtful if there is a team in the conference more expert in the use of the forward pass than the Bruins. True, their receiving end, the ends, have been poor at snatching passes in previous games; but the backfield men, and now the ends, are grabbing all passes. Bridges' system of covering passes removes the danger always prevalent in the use of the forward pass. Not a team in the conference, nor even the Boston eleven, has been able to gain against the Bears by the use of the forward pass.

Bible's style of play this year would encourage the Bears to use the passing game. The fact that the Farmer coach will have to interchange his backfield frequently will give the Bears added opportunity for using the pass. When Bible sends in his punters, removing Wier or Pinson or Sanders, the Bruins should be able to use the pass effectively against the new men sent in.

The Baylor coach will no doubt try the Farmer's line. Et Tanner, Baylor has one of the best line plungers in the state. If the line play of the Bears is up to what the coaches are expecting of their men the Farmers will experience difficulty in holding the line assaults of Tanner, Strickland and Pittman. The Bear line play has improved 50 per cent over the style of game played against Rice and Austin College. Line Coach Crow has his men charging hard. They will not be caught unawares by the fast plays of the Farmers. In previous games this year the Farmers have used a fast lineup after which the ball was snapped without signals, the play getting into the enemy's territory before the opposing line had time to charge. The Bears are on the alert in their line play. There will always be a real charge when the opposing eleven sends its assault against the Bears' first line defense.

On offense the Bruins have learned the art of carrying their men out of the play. The line play of Kirk at center and of Weathers and Anderson at guards has been all that the coaches could wish for. Blailock and Williamson in the tackle positions have also been taking their men out of the play. The ends have been given special drilling on the A. & M. style of play and should show improvement in the game Saturday. Bridges and Crow are not losing any sleep over the weaknesses of their line.

In the backfield Baylor will for the first time this year present her full strength. Bradshaw, Tanner, Strickland, Pittman, Root, Craven, Sims, Provine, Wilson and Eldridge are all in fighting shape. Craven and Pittman have recovered from their injuries and will be used against the Farmers, thus giving Bridges a wealth of backs to send against the Farmer line.

SPEED OF PETER MANNING FROM FAMOUS SIRE

By Associated Press.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Nov. 3.—When Peter Manning and Arion Guy established new world speed records during the fall trotting season held here recently thousands of spectators took the performances as a matter of course while breeding specialists and close followers of the sport went home to scan pedigrees and statistics to discover if possible, the origin of the unusual speed displayed by the two animals.

A study of pedigrees made by Prof. W. S. Anderson, an authority on horse breeding and a member of the animal husbandry department of the Kentucky College of Agriculture, shows that the two animals derived their ability for speed from Axworthy, a sire who was not exceptionally fast himself but one who is noted for the speed of his get and that of his sons. He has a record of 2:15 1-2.

Studies made by Prof. Anderson show that Peter Manning who set new world's record for the mile by reducing the time from 1:58 to 1:57 3-4 could not have obtained his speed from his mother, Clendora G., 3, who had a track record of 2:25 3-4 nor from her sire Emmet Gratton, who had a record of 2:28.

"On the other hand one would not pick the sire of Peter Manning Axoff, who has a record of 2:14 1-4 for a mile, to produce the greatest speed of any sire of breed but it must be conceded that the champion's speed came to him from his sire since he could not have obtained it from his dam," Prof. Anderson said.

The dam of Axoff is Dolly Worthy who was sired by Axworthy. This makes the new world's champion a great-grandson of Axworthy.

Previous to the crowning of the world's champion, Arion Guy, another descendant of Axworthy, became the first four-year-old stallion to go a mile in two minutes or better by setting a record of 1:59 1-2 for the distance. Arion Guy was sired by Guy Axworthy who was also the sire of the world's champion stallion, Lee Axworthy, who went a mile in 1:58 1-4.

Peter Manning obtained three of the requisites of speed in a great horse from several different sources, further studies made by Prof. Anderson show. These requirements are speed or the ability to go very fast; toughness and endurance, or the ability to carry speed for a mile and to repeat; and intelligence, or the ability and willingness to be trained and raced. No one family of trotting horses has all these requisities, according to Prof. Anderson.

In spite of the fact that he was not a fast horse, Axworthy, who contributed extreme speed to the makeup of Peter Manning, is noted for the speed of his own get as well as that of his sons as shown by the records established by some of these animals, Prof. Anderson said. Lee Axworthy, world's champion stallion, was sired by Guy Axworthy, a son of Axworthy, while General Watts, another son of Axworthy, is founding a family of consistent trotting horses, according to Prof. Anderson. Dillion Axworthy, another son, is at present the sire of the most sensational lot of young trotters ever produced by any trotting sire, Prof. Anderson said.

"It is safe to say that the greatest contribution which any sire has ever made to a breed is Peter the Great's gift of toughness to his descendants," Prof. Anderson said. "He also has passed on extreme speed but its value perhaps as his contribution of endurance. Peter Manning got this toughness or endurance through his sire Axoff in a superlative degree. Last year he was a consistent trotter and established the world's record for three heats in 2:02, 2:02 3-4 and 2:02 1-2. He also holds the world's record for four-year-old geldings with a mark of 2:02 1-2.

"Peter Mannings in figure could have come to him through more than one line of bl[ood]. This is an important fe[ature] which sometimes is overlooked by people who view a trotting race.

JUDGE LANDIS HAS EAGLE EYE ON JOE GEDEON

CHICAGO, Nov. 3.—Judge Kenesaw M. Landis, commissioner of baseball tonight wired William McCarthy, president of the Pacific coast league, advising him not to permit players of his league to participate in any games in which Joe Gedeon, former infielder of the St. Louis Americans was in the line-up.

LANDIS HOLDS SERIES COIN OF THREE YANKS

CHICAGO, Nov. 3.—Babe Ruth's share of the world series receipts, together with the shares of Bob Meusel and William Piercy, who accompanied Ruth on the barnstorming jaunt, though warned they were violating baseball rules, remains unpaid, it was learned today.

Distribution of the players' share of the series purse is directed by the commissioner, Judge K. M. Landis. When Judge Landis learned of Ruth's exhibition tour, in defiance of orders, it is said he sent word to the owners of the Yankee team of his intention to hold up the offenders' shares and this report, it is said, might have caused Ruth to abandon his tour.

Ruth, Meusel and Piercy each have a claim for $3,263.26. Twenty-five members of the Yanke team come in for full shares and all have been paid with the exception of these three men.

Judge Landis' delay in making a decision in the Ruth case may be due to the fact that he holds this weapon over the players' heads, it has been stated. Those inclined to speculate declared that the judge figures it a good plan to let the players think over the offense until they realize their mistake. They declare he will either punish them by withholding their pay or he will come forth with a statement denouncing the rule involved and give the men their money, together with a speech on respecting the rules of organized baseball.

WEEKLY SHOOT OF GUN CLUB AT 3 O'CLOCK THIS P. M.

The regular weekly shoot of the Wichita Falls Gun club will be held at 3:00 o'clock this afternoon at the club's traps northeast of the ball park. As this is the last shoot before the big feature event on Armistice Day it is expected that a big gathering of club members will be on deck for final practice.

The committee has not announced as yet the program for the Armistice Day shoot, but a number of novel features are being arranged and prizes are being obtained for the winners of the various events.

NOTRE DAME GOES EAST TO BATTLE ARMY ELEVEN

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Nov. 3.—Coach Knute Rockne and 32 members of the Notre Dame football team will leave here today for West Point for the contest with the army Saturday. The squad will be put through a workout Friday.

SYRACUSE, VICTIM OF OVER-CONFIDENCE, HOPES TO BEAT COLGATE, ANCIENT RIVAL

Two stars of the Syracuse eleven, Captain Gulick, right tackle, ready for action, and (inset) Willard Anderson, right halfback.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Nov. 3.—Syracuse university's eleven is looking ahead to November 12, when the Syracuse outfit tackles its ancient and arch enemy, Colgate, in the annual gridiron game in the Archbold stadium here. No matter what the records of the two teams are, when the orange and maroon clash in their yearly struggle it is always a battle worth going miles to see and ranks with the Illinois-Ohio State, Harvard-Yale, Yale-Princeton, Army-Navy, Cornell-Penn, Pittsburgh-Washington and Jefferson contests.

That overconfidence had as much to do with the only defeat handed to the Syracuse eleven this year as much as anything else is certain.

After beating Brown 28 to 0, Coach Meehan's players felt certain that they could lick the whole world. Then they invaded Pennsylvania and groped their way around the Smoky City until they found Forbes Field and then had one of the worst days that a Syracuse team ever had, Pittsburgh winning 35 to 0.

But that game has been forgotten and now the slogan is "Beat Colgate" in the annual conflict and a victory in that game will make the year a success as far as Syracuse is concerned.

Coach Meehan started the season with but four veterans from the 1920 team on the field. These men were Captain Gulick, right tackle; "Tommy" Thompson, left guard; Bill Kellogg, fullback and Willard Anderson, right halfback. All the others were on the freshman team last year or were substitutes during the 1920 season.

The trio who have played consistent football all fall have been Frank Culver, the 162-pound center who has held his own with all opponents except Herb Stein of Pittsburg, who is a real All-American center and Captain Gulick and Anderson. Gulick is a tower of strength both on the offense and defense because being a whale of a kicker of goals from placements. Anderson is one of the best line plungers of the experience gained this year under his belt he should be deserving of mention when it comes to naming All-American selections.

In "Chick" Meehan Syracuse has the youngest coach of any of the big colleges of the country. He is now only twenty-seven years old, and it is his second year as head mentor.

While in Syracuse University Meehan was a star quarterback and also played second base on the baseball nine.

WISDOM and WORSE

By C. F. C.

Fred Mitchell says he will not take his Boston Braves to Galveston next spring to train, stating that an excess of moisture is one of the reasons responsible for a change of camp. An "excess of moisture" has crippled the pennant chances of many a ball club, I've heard. They do say it had something to do with the failure of the Pittsburgh Pirates to hold their leadership last season.

However, the Galveston Sand Crabs will train in Galveston as usual, regardless of the excess moisture.

The North Side high school eleven of Fort Worth and the Electra high school huskies have ceased their squabbling, it seems, and have definitely agreed to settle the district championship here in Wichita Falls tomorrow. The local Rotarians got 'em together and guaranteed the expenses of the two elevens. Now, it's up to local fans to turn out generously and incidentally do a little royal rooting for Coach Edens' Electra machine; we might as well have a championship in Wichita County, eh, wot?

Christy Matthewson received a check for $30,000, proceeds from the testimonial game played in New York last September, and Big Six now writes to his New York friends that the gift has given him "new fighting powers." I should think it would. If anyone gave me $30,000, I'd be a fighter from Fightville, r'arin' to get Jack Dempsey, Benny Leonard, Johnny Bluff, Mike O'Dowd and Tom Gibbons in the same ring at the same time.

While Matty was receiving $30,000, Babe Ruth was failing to receive his share of the gate receipts of the world series. Judge Landis is holding up Babe's share pending action on Ruth's violation of the rule against barnstorming. If Judge Landis slices an extremely generous section from $3,263 due Ruth, you can wager that the Bambino in the future will have a high regard for the rules of organized baseball. There are two things a ball player loves with all his heart and body and soul—his batting average and his bank account.

The story stating that Strangler Lewis and Joe Polk will meet on the mat in Gotham adds that under the rules of the state athletic commission all punishing holds such as the headlock, etc., will be barred. In other words, I take it, spectators may enjoy the unique, rare and unusual experience of seeing two wrestlers wrestle.

Sporting writers in various and sundry cities are asking earnestly whether Ty Cobb deliberately stayed out of the line-up in the last American leage game of the season in order that Harry Heilman, then leading the Georgia Peach by one lone point, might win the American league batting championship. If Cobb did, he's never going to admit it, so why ask the ball question to which there'll never be an answer? How old is Ann, anyway?

If you really like questions that have no answers, however, take a shot at this interrogative triple play: Where was Rube Marshall born, in what year was he born and on what day was he born? You can't answer it, can you? Neither can I. That's just another of Wiley (Rube) Marshall's eccentricities, the absolute refusal to donate that information to a frenzied world.

When Rube first joined the Spudders a local newspaper scribe interviewed him, and among other questions asked:

"Do you throw and bat right-handed?"

The Rube mused a minute thoughtfully, shifted his quid, and drawled:

"Wa-all, I throw right-handed, but I don't bat!"

That Rube was indeed a prophet was proven many months later when the official batting averages for the 1921 season were released, showing Pitcher Marshall had soaked the old apple for the terrific average of .118!

MISS MIERS SAYS SHE'LL MARRY "BO"

NEW ALBANY, Ind., Nov. 3.—Miss Marie Miers arrived here today from Fort Worth, Texas, and after meeting "Bo" McMillin, famous football player of Centre College, Danville, Ky., boarded another train with him for Danville. Miss Miers said that she was engaged to be married to McMillin but asserted the marriage would not occur before next January.

She denied reports from Fort Worth that she and McMillin would be married immediately, adding that her reason for coming to Danville was to witness McMillin in action in the remaining football games of this season, his last with Centre College.

CHECK FOR $30,000 ADDS TO MATTY'S "FIGHTING POWERS"

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—Christy Matthewson, who several days ago received a $30,000 check, proceeds of the "Matty Testimonial" baseball game at the Polo Grounds September 30, declared in a letter to New York friends today that the gift had given him new fighting powers. The former pitching star has been fighting tuberculosis at Saranac Lake.

"Whenever little 'glooms' try to pay me a visit," wrote Matty, "I can chase them away by thinking of my good and true friends. I am goinz to fight harder than ever to get well."

ELECTRA HIGH AND FT. WORTH HERE SATURDAY

Electra high school's powerful football eleven, the only team this season that has been able to defeat the red and black gridiron battlers of the local high school, will be seen in action again tomorrow at Athletic park—but the struggle this time will be between Electra and the North Side high school eleven of Fort Worth for the district football championship.

Through the efforts of the Wichita Falls Rotary club these two scrappy elevens have been persuaded to come to this city as a neutral ground on which to settle the championship. The Rotary club has guaranteed all expenses of the teams, and if the gate receipts are large enough to leave a surplus this surplus will be given to the Boy Scouts' organization of Wichita Falls.

The action of the Rotary club was in keeping with its policy of interesting itself in boys' work and boys' play. The club cannot benefit financially in any way, and in fact could lose money by underwriting the expenses of the two teams. Members of the club feel, however, that interest in football here is sufficient to bring forth a good-sized crowd to see the two fastest high school elevens of this section in action. Many fans will turn out to root and roar for Coach Edens' Electra machine in the hope that the Electra boys will bring the championship to Wichita county.

Tickets to the game will be sold all over the city by Boy Scouts. The local baseball association has given permission to run the field of play through the center of the baseball diamond, which will bring the players directly in front of the grandstand, and should provide plenty of thrills for the spectators.

AGGIE-BAYLOR GRID LEADERS RARIN' TO GO

WACO, Nov. 3.—When Captain "Cop" Weathers of the Baylor Bears and Captain "Heinie" Wier of the A. & M. Farmers lead their teams upon the Cotton Palace gridiron Saturday, two teams of nearly equal ability and of the same determination to win will line up for one of the hardest football battles of the year. The captains of the opposing elevens are veteran football players. Weathers has probably had more playing experience than Wier, but the Aggie captain has been coached under one system for a number of years and should play a veteran style of game.

Wier is a backfield man, playing a halfback position. Weathers is one of the most dependable guards in the conference. Wiers' strong points are his speed and side-stepping ability. Following his interference as long as possible he can make for the open field, depending upon his speed and uncanny side-step to carry him down the field. However, Wier lacks actual playing experience. He does not punt nor is he used for passing the ball. This fact necessitates his renewal from the game at times when a punter has to be sent in. Weathers, on the contrary, being a lineman plays throughout the game. In addition to playing a strong line game, the Baylor captain kicks all goals after touchdowns and is often called back to do the place kicking. He has also been Bridgee's most dependable man for carrying out trick and fake plays. Weathers uses his 220 pounds of wieght to advantage on both offense and defense. He is fast for his weight; charges in the line and carries his man out on all plays. Both men have proven dependable leaders. The Bears have all the faith in the world in Weathers while the Farmers have followed Wier's leadership with true team spirit.

BOOKS AND BABIES

BY "NICK" CARTER

The Rev. Nat Grafton, referring to a remark that "preachers never have anything but books and babies," told Rotarians yesterday that "thus far we have accumulated quite a few books."

I am no preacher, wherefore it's a natural thing
That babies should not figure, but, gadzooks!
I am the simplest target in the world
For he who makes his living peddling books.

Shakespeare? Why, yes, of course he's on my shelves,
I really couldn't work without my "Shake;"
Nor would I quite contented be without "Tom Jones,"
Old Fielding's story of a fascinating rake.

Plato and Socrates, Marcus Aurelius, too, are there,
Speaking their ancient wisdom in a kingly style;
Thackeray holds his place near "Martin Chuzzlewit,"
While Kant and Hegel argue with Carlyle.

And when I'm in a melancholy mood and feeling glum,
I turn to old John Bunyan's masterpiece,
And, reading how the Pilgrim, Christian, staggered on,
I gain a tiny measure of religious peace.

Mine ancient Chinese friend. Confucious, is not bad,
Although he has a style that's rather hard at times;
While my poor tongue just ties itself in knots
When I attempt to read old Bobby Burns' Scotch rhymes.

"The Wealth of Nations," writ by Adam Smith,
Has always been, in truth, a little deep for me;
I really bought the book because the agent tossed
The works of Edgar Allen Poe in free!

I love the "Memoirs of the Courts of France,"
The Duc de Simon paints Parisian pictures well,
While I've been fascinated all my giddy life
By Dante's sketches of the depths of Hell.

Books are my babies, they are all the babes I have;
I'm honest when I say I love my books a lot;
But, Oh, I'd spill my shelves and give them all away
To own one little living, smiling, gurgling tot.

BERT ACOSTA WINS PULITZER AERO TROPHY

OMAHA, Neb., Nov. 3.—Bert Acosta of New York was unofficially conceded to be the winner of the annual Pulitzer trophy speed race for heavier than air craft today when H. E. Hartney of New York was forced to land late this afternoon, while attempting to beat Acosta's time.

Officials with telescopes on the Omaha field saw Hartney come down at a point believed to be about ten miles from Loveland, Iowa, one of the turning points of the race course, and doctors were despatched immediately to render aid in the event he was injured in a bad landing.

Later it was learned that Hartney was injured in landing, although his injuries were not serious. He will be taken to an Omaha hospital.

Hartney was the only entrant who had not started at 3:55 p. m., and he was given twenty minutes by the judges to hop off. At that hour, Acosta had the best time, officially announced as 52 minutes and 9.2 seconds for the course of approximately 150 miles. All other participants except Hartney had completed the race.

OMAHA, Neb., Nov. 3.—Harry Elbe, employed by a Chicago parachute company was drowned in the Missouri river late today when he landed in the stream after making a parachute jump of 1,000 feet during the international aero congress being held here.

OMAHA, Neb., Nov. 3.—Formation of a national organization to secure legislation to aid aviation in the United States is the objects of a national air congress called for today at the instance of members of the Aero club of Omaha.

Must Vote on Hospital Bonds Again in Spring

Although a final ruling has not as yet been received from the attorney general's department at Austin, it is now practically certain that the three proposed branch hospitals at Burkburnett, Electra and Iowa Park cannot be established until a bond issue is again voted for that purpose, according to E. L. Fulton, county attorney.

Several weeks ago assistants in the attorney general's department held that the $100,000 voted in July for the construction of the branch hospitals was not valid due to the fact that a $75,000 issue had been voted by the county for the erection of a hospital in this city only a few months previous, the law requiring a minimum of a year before another bond issue could be voted. Attorney General Cureton was away from the Austin office at that time and it was thought possible that the ruling might be approved by him when he returned.

No different ruling has been received however, although Mr. Cureton returned to his office several weeks ago and it is now believed that he approved the original ruling of his assistants.

It is probable that a petition will be circulated in the spring after the required one year period has expired calling for another bond issue to provide for the branch hospitals.

"SICK-A-BED" WINS LARGE AUDIENCES' UNSTINTED PRAISE

"Sick-A-Bed", the current offering of the Gene Lewis-Olga Worth company at the Wichita Theater gets more popular each night. The theater was well filled again last night and every one praises the company for their excellent work in this play. While the play is entirely different from their first offering, it is one that pleases every one. "Sick-A-Bed" will continue for the balance of the week with a special children's matinee tomorrow. If you fail to see this play you will miss one of the biggest laughs of the season.

Starting Monday, for the third week, Mr. Lewis has secured the Cohan and Harris smashing success from the George M. Cohan theater, "The Acquittal." This play was without a doubt the biggest dramatic hit New York had in many a season, for one solid year. "The Acquittal" thrilled Broadway. The production next week has been built from photographs of the original New York showing so you will have a chance to see the play just the same as when produced on Broadway.

The members of the company will also have a better chance to display their ability then in any play yet presented, especially Miss Olga Worth. She also has a chance to wear some very handsome gowns. There is little doubt but that "The Acquittal" will be the dramatic success of the entire season and we advise you to secure your seats early.

Detective Is Hunting for Dog's Owner

City Detective Jack Miller is hunting for the owner of a friendly dog of nondescript appearance and a Ford automobile with a delivery body.

The dog was found with the automobile, which Jerome Hoepfner rescued from a sand bed near his home, 2 1-2 miles south of the end of the Lake street car line and is declared never happy unless riding in the automobile in which he was found.

The automobile, in question, was deserted late Monday night by an unidentified autoist, who knocked at the door of Mr. Hoepfner's home and told him he could have the car, if he won it pull it out of the sand, in which it was stuck. Officers expressed a fear that it may no have been the owner, who left it there. It was said to have borne a register number, indicating it was the property of F. G. Dennis of Burkburnett. Other marks however were reported to have indicated that this may not have been the case.

Another rumor was that the car belonged to a man living near Vernon. It bears numbers as follows: Engine No. 3,552,019; license No. 457,588; and a 1920 seal, No. 391,775. It had no 1921 seal, was without a top and had a tool box on the right running board.

Police ask that any one, knowing who is the rightful owner of the car, call telephone number 5050.

REALTY AND INSURANCE FIRMS MERGE

Announcement of the organization of the firm of Curlee, Johnson & Crane formed through the consolidation of the firms of Curlee and Johnson and Crane, Ward & Morse two of the largest and most widely known real estate and insurance organizations in the city was made Wednesday from both offices. The consolidation which also involves a purchase of certain interests in one of the firms takes effect immediately, according to the announcement.

The new firm will do a general insurance and real estate business as has been done in the past by the separate firms. The consolidation gives the city one of the largest firms of its kind in this section of the state.

W. S. Curlee, B. F. Johnson and J. C. Crane the three members of the firm are widely known business men of the city and are prominently connected with civic matters Mr. Curlee being a member of the city council and Mr. Johnson the state representative from this district. Mr. Crane has been engaged in insurance business here since 1919.

For the present the firm will maintain its present offices in expectation of consolidating in larger quarters at a later date.

Smith Treats Fish to 1500 Gallons "Corn"

Fearing that an effort would be made to tap the city sewer system should the announcement be made before, Sheriff Smith did not announce until Thursday morning that over 150 gallons of corn whisky and choctaw beer was poured into the sewer lines late Wednesday afternoon.

It was expected that by Thursday morning the confiscated "hooch" would have reached the river where the large area would make it impossible to harm anyone but the fish.

The hooch that was destroyed has been collected by the sheriff's office and the ranger force during the last few months.

New Orleans has won a real estate agent. Mrs. Eugene Ansley, who recently negotiated a sale of property involving 40,000.

Some Chest-Nuts

Mr. and Mrs. Brown could not get a house.

"Well," said Mrs. Brown (she was always the one who decided), "we'll have to live in an apartment."

The next day they struck luck. A furnished house was offered them, as the owner was called away to another part of the country on business. They had practically signed an agreement for twelve months, when by a slip of the tongue their children were mentioned.

"Children!" snapped the landlord. "Nothing doing!"

And he brutally pushed Mr. and Mrs. Brown out of the house.

The next day they had a similar piece of luck. Another house had its owner deserting it for twelve months and they were offered it for that period.

"Any children?" asked the landlord.

"N-no!" faltered the Browns.

And the landlord walked away, apparently satisfied. But he was back the next day when the Browns officially "moved in," accompanied by a little old man with long gray hair and beard, and a little old woman with gray hair, bonnet and shawl.

Satisfied that there were no children the landlord withdrew.

Inside the house it was only the work of a minute for Mrs. Brown to remove the gray wigs, bonnet, shawl, etc., from little Willie and Alice Brown.

The old lady was timidly inspecting the stock of spectacles.

"How much are these?" she asked, selecting a pair.

"A dollar and a half, madam."

"And how much without the case?"

"Well, the case makes little difference. Suppose we say $1.45."

"What! Is the case only worth 5 cents?"

"Yes, madam," firmly.

Well, I'm very glad to hear it; it's the case I want."

And placing a nickle on the counter the dear old lady took up the case and walked timidly into the street, while the optician gasped for breath.

The Chinaman could speak but little English and the Englishman could speak no Chinese, nevertheless, the dinner went off agreeably.

There was one dish that pleased the Englishman. It was a rich stew of onions, pork, mushrooms, and a dark, tender, well-flavored meat that tasted like duck.

The Englishman ate heartily of this stew. Then he closed his eyes, lifted his hands, and shook his head with an air of ecstasy.

After this compliment to the dish, he said interrogatively: "Quack, quack?"

"No, no," said the Chinaman. "Bow-wow."

In a neighborhood where "war gardens" were very popular there are still many of them, because they still have the families many dollars. Harry, who was eight years old, was hard at work hoeing the young onions when the woman next door asked: "Harry, is your mother home?" Harry stopped, and, leaning on the hoe, replied: Mrs. S., you don't think I would be working like this if my mother wasn't home?"

"Here, boy" said a wealthy motorist, "I want some gasoline, and please get a move on! You will never get anywhere in the world unless you have push. Push is essential. When I was young I pushed, and that was what got me where I am."

"Well, mister," said the boy, "I reckon you'll have to push again, 'cause we ain't got a drop of gasoline in the place."

CHICAGO, Nov. 3.—Butter unchanged. Eggs unchanged, receipts 3,429 cases.

Poultry alive higher; fowls 14@24c, springs 22c, turkeys 30c, roosters 15c.

SUGAR

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—The raw market was quiet and unchanged at 4.06 to 4.11 for centrifugal. There were no sales reported.

Raw sugar futures market steadier and closing prices were one to three points net higher. The advance was due to scattered covering and trade buying with offerings light. December sold at 2.43; March 2.29; May 2.37; July 2.45.

There were no changes in refined sugar with fine granulated listed 5.20 to 5.30. The demand continues of fair proportions for prompt shipment, which refiners are still unable to handle although the situation is improving on account of the more liberal arrivals.

There were no transactions in refined futures and closing prices were unchanged to 5 points net lower. December closed at 5.40; March 5.30 and May 5.30.

COFFEE.

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—Recent sharp advances were followed by reactions in coffee futures toda, as a result of realizing. The opening was seven to fourteen points lower and more active positions sold 17 to 31 points below last night's closing during the mid-morning. December eased off from 8.60 to 8.40 and part of the selling of that position seemed to come from recent prominent buyers. Easier ruling of the near month promoted realizing in later deliveries and March sold off to 8.12 but there was a renewed demand for December around the 8 1-2 cent level and a good part of the losses were recovered in later trading. The close was two to fourteen points net lower. Sales were estimated at about 50,000 bags. December 8.65; January 8.50; March 8.30; May 8.25; July 8.28; September 8.25.

Spot coffee was reported in fair demand at 8 3-4 for Rio 7's and 11 3-4 to 12 1-2 for Santos 4's.

Before the war very little industrial alcohol was used in this country. Production on a large scale was begun to supply the needs of munition makers, and now the annual production of denatured alcohol exceeds 90,000,000 gallons.

Stocks

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—Comprehensive and substantial advances of prices on the stock exchange were today influenced solely by the lower re-discounts announced by nine of the twelve federal reserve banks and concurred in by the bank of England.

Financial interests generally regarded this as striking evidence that deflation at home and abroad had made further marked progress.

The five per cent opening quotation for call loans was soon cut to 4 1-2 per cent. Later, however, on an insistent demand for funds, the rate rose to 5 1-2 per cent, that figure holding at the close.

Bonds made a better showing relatively than stocks, most of the several liberty series recording highest prices of the year with victory 3 3-4 per cent notes which rose to par on extensive accumulation.

Apart from new low records for Germans marks at .045 cent, foreign exchange strengthened after early irregularity. Trading in bills was limited however, largely to brand French remittances.

The speedy sale of the new Chilean $10,360,000 loan offered further proof of sound investment conditions. Various railway and industrial bonds strengthened on the action of the federal reserve board and internationals were better. Total sales, par value, $17,275,000.

Grain

CHICAGO, Nov. 3.—For the first time since 1915 the wheat market today dropped to below $1 a bushel, all grain, with the sole exception of May corn declined to the lowest level yet this season, following wheat for which there appeared to be no adequate support. Wheat closed heavy, 2 3-4 to 3 1-4 net lower with December at 99 to 99 1-4 and May 1.04 to 1.04 1-8. Corn lost 1@1 1-8 to 1 7-8 and oats 1-2@5-8 to 3-4. In provisions the outcome varied from 21-2 dow nto a like advance.

Word that a large quantity of wheat was practically unsaleable at Galveston and other ports took the edge off the demand here for wheat, and accentuated general belief that foreign demand had come to a standstill. The day's trading, considered as a whole, was not large, but selling on the part of houses with eastern affiliations and by the northwest was persistent. Final dealings were at the bottom level of the session.

Announcement that the war finance corporation had worked out a plan to warehouse the present surplus of corn failed to check the weakness of corn and oats. December corn in particular was under heavy selling pressure.

Smallness of stocks on hand helped to steady provisions.

KANSAS CITY CASH GRAIN

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 3.—Cash wheat No. 2 hard $1.06@1.04; No. 2 red $1.07@1.09.

Corn No. 2 white 37½c; No. 2 yellow 41@41½c.

Oats, unchanged.

DRY GOODS

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—Cotton goods were quiet today and generally steod on print cloths and fine convertibles. Sheetings were easy, yarns quiet and barely steady. Raw silk was lower locally and higher in Yokohama. Knit goods sold steadily especially in hoisery lines. Jobbers reported fair house trade.

Those convicted of profiteering in foods and necessities in Budapest, Hungary, are sentenced to be flogged in public.

Cotton

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—The cotton market was irregular and unsettled again today. It showed considerable steadiness during early trading but finally weakened with January contracts selling off from 18.64 to 18.27 and closing there. The general market closed barely steady at a net decline of 10 to 23 points.

The opening was steady at a decline of 7 points to an advance of 6 points with active positions selling about 12 to 18 points net higher right after the call. Reduction in the rediscount rates of eight federal reserve banks was regarded a very encouraging feature and there was some buying on the steadier ruling of Liverpool which private cables attributed partly to the reduction in the Bank of England rate.

The advance met scattered southern selling however and the market soon turned easier. There was another bulge on covering early in the afternoon, accompanied by reports of a better spot demand in the southwest but the undertone showed no improvement and prices weakened again in the last half hour increased hedge selling with a renewal of local pressure. December sold off from 18.75 to 18.40 and March from 18.55 to 18.20, closing at about lowest of the day.

The easier ruling of European exchanges, weakness in the grain market and reported suspension of two or more small country banks in grain or cotton sections were considered partly responsible for the unsettled average of sentiment and doubtless tended to check demand. The re-appearance of dollar wheat in the Chicago market attracted considerable comment and a question was raised by some traders as to whether cotton could be maintained above the 18 cent level with grain selling at today's prices.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

By Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 3—A nervous and undecided market prevailed in cotton today with numerous and quick fluctuations which seemed to be mainly the reflection of uncertainty over what to expect in connection with the fourth ginning report of the season due next Wednesday. The rumor that a private bureau was out with a report showing 6,300,000 bales ginned to the first of November, was construed both bearishly and bullishly, some traders claiming that it proved conclusively that the government was too low in its crop estimate of 6,637,000 bales while others considered that it was something to buy on in view of many reports from interior that picking and ginning were finished and gins closed for the season. The day finally wound up with prices 7 to 24 points under the close of yesterday, December closing at 17.89 cents a pund.

Overnight selling order caused a drop of 5 to 11 points during the first call, but lowering of bank rates both in this country and in England, made such a strong favorable impression that buying of good character took possession of the market and carried it up for net gains which gradually were widened 13 to 17 points, December rising to 18.25.

Around mid-season offering commenced to increase and coal ... e news seemed to be the deciding factor from then on, causing a gradual sag until toward the close prices were 19 to 27 points down net.

LIVERPOOL SPOT COTTON

LIVERPOOL, Nov. 3.—Cotton spot moderate request; prices steady. Good middling 13.17; fully middling 12.77; middling 12.37; low middling 11.07; good ordinary 9.37; ordinary 8.62. Sales 7,000 bales, including 4,300 American.

COTTONSEED OIL

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—Selling by refiners and scattered liquidation on the pronounced weakness in grains, coupled with easier crude and curtailed purchasing power, generally caused a further recession in cottonseed oil. Closing bids five to ten points net lower. Sales 17,000 barrels. Prime crude 700 sales; prime summer yellow spot 8.25@8.75; December 8.53; March 8.90, and May 9.09, all bid.

Livestock

FORT WORTH, Nov. 3.—Buyers were apparently in need of nothing today. At all trading centers the market was reported in a bad rut and conditions here are sympathetic. Receipts amounted to around 2,500 head of cattle and 3,000 calves, and the entire supply had to be peddled on a weak basis. Calves again ruled lower.

Quality of hogs on offer was not as good as the best cars here Wednesday, only 500 head arriving. The market was notably unchanged. One car sold at $7.65 and less than car lots brought $7.70. Bulk sales ranged from $7.50 to $7.65. Pig prices were steady, most of the run going at $7.75.

No trading developed in the sheep house, nothing being available. Quotations:

Cattle—Beeves $4.00@6.00; stockers $3.00@4.50; cows $2.25@4.00; canners $1.50@2.25; heifers $3.00@5.75; yearlings $3.50@6.25; bulls $1.50@2.75; calves $2.00@6.75.

Hogs—Light, $7.60@7.70; medium $7.50@7.60; mixed $7.00@7.50; common $6.00@7.75.

Sheep—Lambs $7.00@7.75; yearlings $5.00@5.50; wethers $4.50@4.75; ewes $3.25@3.75; culls $1.00@2.00; goats $1.00@2.00; stocker sheep $2.50@3.50; stocker lambs $4.00@$6.00.

KANSAS CITY LIVESTOCK

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 3.—Cattle 3,300; beef steers, stockers and feeders slow; steady with yesterday's low time; top steers $8.50; other sales $5.00@7.70; medium stockers $5.00@5.25; cows $4.65@5.00; heifers $5.50@6.50; best vealers $10.00; bulk canners $2.50@2.75; cutters $3.00@3.50.

Hogs 4,500; steady to 10c lower, closed strong; packer top $7.50; bulk of sales $6.50@7.45; bulk sows $6.25; pigs steady.

Sheep 3,500; lambs steady to weak. Western $8.75; natives $8.50; sheep weak to 25c lower; light ewes $4.25; fat lots $3.75@4.00.

All sales, if any, will be made for cash; all bids received subject to rejection, and any sale will be made subject to approval of the above named court.
M. E. STEVENS, Receiver.

Citation By Publication.
THE STATE OF TEXAS

To the Sheriff or any Constable of Wichita County, Greeting:

YOU ARE HEREBY COMMANDED to summon G. Watson Smith by making publication of this citation once each week for four successive weeks previous to the return day hereof, in some newspaper published in your county, to appear at the next regular term of the 30th District Court of Wichita County, to be holden at the Court House thereof in Wichita Falls, on the Third Monday in December, A. D. 1921, the same being the 19th day ofa December, A. D. 1921, then and there to answer a petition filed in the 30th District Court on the 20th day of August, and transferred to the 30th Dirtict Court on October 15th, 1921, in a suit numbered on the docket of said Court No. 11425-A, wherein Highland Irrigation & Land Company is Plaintiff and G. Watson Smith is Defendant and said petition alleging:

This is a suit for the title and possession of the following described property, situated in Wichita County, Texas, to-wit: Lots Nos. Ten (10) and Eleven (11) in block No. Fifty-three (53) "A" of the Highland Addition to the City of Wichita Falls, Texas.

Plaintiff alleging that on or about the 2nd day of June, 1921, it was lawfully seized and possessed of the above described property and on said date said defendant, G. Watson Smith unlawfully entered upon said premises and ejected Plaintiff therefrom and now unlawfully holds the possession of said property, to Plaintiff's damage in the sume of Three Thousand ($3,000.00) Dollars.

That the reasonable, annual, rental value of said premises is Five Hundred ($500.00) Dollars.

Wherefore, Plaintiff prays for judgment for the title and possession of said property, for writ of restitution, for its damages and its rent and for all costs of suit.

Herein Fail Not, but have before said Court, at its aforesaid next regular term, this writ with your return thereon showing how you have executed the same.

GIVEN UNDER MY HAND and the Seal of said Court, at office in Wichita Falls, Texas, this the 17th day of October, A. D. 1921.

A. F. KERR,
Clerk District Court, Wichita County, Tex.
(Seal.)

HEARING ON APPEAL BY TOUSSAINT DELAYED

The appeal hearing in the Henry J. Toussaint murder case which was to have been argued before the Court of Criminal Appeals Wednesday, has been postponed one week according to information from local attorneys.

Attorneys for Toussaint were unable to go to Austin Wednesday and it was for that reason the hearing was postponed.

FRED KEYS TAKEN TO PENITENTIARY

Fred Keys, convicted of theft two weeks ago in the 8th District court, and who was sentenced to two years in the state penitentiary, left Thursday morning for the state institution accompanied by Bud Russell, penitentiary agent.

Keys was convicted of the theft of automobile tires from an automobile belonging to C. F. Carter.

CORRECTION

The Record News is asked to correct an error that appeared in the court records of Thursday's issue. The suit of the First National Bank filed in the 30th District court against C. P. Morgan et al was for "trespass to try title" and not "debt" as published.

The filing was carried in the Thursday issue of the Record News as it was docketed at the office of the district clerk.

PARENTS ARE CO-OPERATING WITH TEACHERS

In an effort to curb tendencies of some students to lag in their work notices were mailed Thursday from teachers at Junior High school to parents of those who had made scholarship marks below the standards required for promotion.

Teachers declared parents responding to the call with a promptness that insures rapid elimination of failures from the reports of Junior High.

MARSHAL FOCH TO PLACE WREATH ON TOMB OF R. E. LEE

LEXINGTON, Ky., Nov. 3.—Foch today accepted an invitation to visit Lexington and lay a wreath on the tomb of Robert E. Lee. Presentation to the marshal of the degree of doctor of laws, conferred on him by Washington and Lee University, will take place at the same time, it was announced. The date of the visit has not been fixed.

SURVEY BEGUN OF AMERICA'S COAL SUPPLY

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—A survey of stocks of coal on hand throughout the country has been begun here by the commerce department, Secretary Hoover announced today. Similar surveys, he said, would be made every sixty days, as it was believed in view of the approaching bi-annual discussion of wages by miners and operators, it was "vital" that the country should know the amount of coal it had above ground. It was hoped, he added, to complete the first survey and publish a preliminary report within thirty days.

The survey, Mr. Hoover continued, "was being conducted by means of questionnaires sent to many consumers of bituminous coal inquiring as to their stocks on November 1.

"Soft coal production up to October 1," he said, "was 110,000,000 tons behind last year, and from 75,000,000 to 90,000,000 tons below normal. The decrease is in part to be expected because of a decline in consumption and in exports, and does not necessarily mean that consumers are unwisely burning up their reserves are below the safety lines, the best way to settle the point, the government thinks, is to take account of stocks and lay all facts before the public."

CITY COUNCIL ORDERS PAVING ON INDIANA

The city council at special session Thursday afternoon ordered the paving of 200 feet on the east side of Indiana, between Fourth and Fifth streets, following a conference with Mack Thomas, property owner.

The work will go ahead under the state paving law, the council voted Mr. Thomas having failed to sign the paving petition and having refused to agree to pay his share of the cost of the intersections.

Mr. Thomas, at the called meeting, made a proposition to the council that would pay for the 200 feet by 11 feet of paving and let the city pay for the interesections.

Councilman Curlee and others declared that to agree to this proposition would be showing special favor to the owner of the property under discussion and would be an unfair and a dangerous precedent.

Other business disposed of consisted of authorizing Dr. J. F. Reed, park commissioner, to purchase a tree wagon for use in the city park and playground department.

Dr. J. F. Reed presided in the absence of Mayor Cline. The following were present: Commissioners Curlee, Shepherd, Fitts and Reed, City Attorney Mann, City Clerk George Thornburn, and Mr. Thomas.

LARGE NUMBER EXPECTED IN TRADE CLASSES

Large classes are expected to be enrolled in the free vocational training classes being instituted here under the supervision of Charles Martin of Texas Agricultural and Mechanical college, following the meeting of the first class, held Wednesday night at the Senior High school building. About 20 machinists, carpenters and automobile mechanics attended the initial meeting.

Mr. Martin anounced that in all probability classes in mathematics and physics will be started in conjunction with the classes in practical training in the different trades. This is explained as necessary in assisting men train themselves for mastering their craft, especially those who wish to become experts or possibly contractors.

The majority of the men attending the Wednesday night classes were declared experienced in their crafts, but lacking training in some of the fundamentals. The instruction will be given by experienced men.

New County Agent Here Saturday

G. R. Jones recently employed as county agent through action of the county commissioner's court will be introduced to local business men Saturday noon at the luncheon of members of the Business Council to which all members of the Chamber of Commerce are also invited.

Mr. Jones has been county agent of Wilbarger county and was employed by the commissioner's court and the Chamber of Commerce organizations of the county primarily on the results that he be obtained in the neighboring county. His work in this county will be largely in connection with the irrigation project which is expected to be under construction the first of he coming year.

Interest in the two-minute speech contest also a feature of the Saturday luncheon is increasing, according to Hubert Harrison, vice president and general manager of the Chamber of Commerce.

The P. B. M. Company and Perkins-Timberlake Company are offering prize for the best two minute effort, the subject matter to be confined to a discussion of how the Chamber of Commerce can best perform its function of promoting the interests of Wichita Falls.

Members of the Chamber of Commerce who intend to attend the luncheon are requested to make reservations at the office today or early Saturday morning.

Late Society

MISS ROSE RIESENBERG HONORED WITH SHOWER.

Complimenting Miss Rose Riesenberg whose marriage to Maurice Letterman of Oklahoma City is announced to take place soon, Mrs. A. Marks, of 2907 Tenth street, entertained at her home Thursday afternoon with a handkerchief shower.

The house was attractively decorated for the occasion with cut flowers and the high score favor, a dainty door stop was won by Mrs. Joe Emold. Mrs. Joe L. Art won the consolation prize, a pretty dresser vanity, and Mrs. Harry Ginsberg of Oklahoma City was remembered with a corsage boquet. The honoree was presented with a rose colored brocaded handkerchief box.

At the culmination of the games, in a fictitious letter cleverely worded, the hostess made the presentation of the gifts.

A salad course was served late in the afternoon to Misses Rose Riesenberg, Elsie Cohen, and Mesdames A. B. Wolfson, Joe Emold, Phil Kleinman, L. Cohen, Jake Cohen, J. L. Art, I. A. Fine, Herman Goldstein, Leo Markowitz, A. Zundelowitz, Ben Kaufman, Harry Katz, Dave Paul, Charles Greenberg, Harry Ginsberg of Oklahoma City, Alvin Horwitz, Saul Lebenson and Sam Swatt.

MRS. WILSON HOSTESS TO HOMECRAFT CLUB

Three tables were arranged for "42" at the regular meeting of the Homecraft club held at the home of Mrs. W. P. Wilson Thursday afternoon.

The home was beautifully decorated with roses, tube roses and greenery for the affair, and the games furnished diversion throughout the afternoon.

Mrs. T. Kelley won the high score favor, a dainty box of stationery and Mrs. F. T. Brelsford the consolation, a kewpie.

At a late hour, a two-course luncheon consisting of chicken salad, olives, wafers, Bavarian cream and angel food cake was served to Mesdames F. T. Brelsford, Frank G. Lewis, T. Kelley, G. T. Drinkard, J. L. Fox, A. W. West, Fred Goss, members and P. J. Sines, C. H. Featherstone, J. C. Walker and O. E. Wilson, guests.
