Aid Rushed To 2000 Homeless In Oklahoma Storm District

NEIGHBORS IN STRICKEN AREA PROVIDE HELP

Altus Citizens and Legion Men Engaged In Giving Succor

TWO TOWNS RAZED

Death Toll Remains Four At Check Over All Of Territory

By HUTTON BELLAH
United Press Correspondent

ALTUS, Okla., June 17. (UP)—With approximately two thousand persons temporarily homeless, four known dead, a score seriously injured, and two towns flattened by a tornado, this section of southwestern Oklahoma tonight succored stricken communities.

Led by Altus citizens, American Legion men and neighbors, a corps of volunteers extended a helping hand to Blair and Headrick, nearby towns, and their rural environs swept by a terrific wind Saturday evening.

Army Tents Used

Two hundred army tents from Fort Sill, east of the wasted area, were being shipped in to provide for the most needy of 800 to 1000 families turned from wrecked or damaged homes.

Few buildings were left standing in the vicinity of Blair and Headrick, towns of 500 and 300 persons, respectively, and many farm homes in the 30-mile storm path had been reduced to broken timbers.

Workers, marshalled by James Walker, prominent Altus merchant, expressed the belief the section would be able to administer its own voluntary relief.

The dead are:

Mrs. George Waters, Elmer Castles, Hugh Smith, 9, all of Blair, and an unidentified negro of Headrick.

Twenty-one persons were seriously injured, most of them in Blair and vicinity and five in a bridge construction camp, five miles east of here on the north fork of the Red river.

Injured List

Those reported seriously injured were:

Oran Cates, L. C. Mahanna, R. Vogle, T. C. Cann, all of Headrick; Mr. and Mrs. Abousleese and one child, Emmett Milburn, E. V. Smith, Buryl Coston, Lonnie Lathan, Ernest Boyd, The Rev. J. H. Brock, T. F. Castles, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Roland, all of Blair.

W. F. Baker of Altus, injured when caught in the storm after seeking shelter in the Otter Creek Baptist church, wrecked by the wind.

Mrs. S. A. Wheeler, Mrs. Ruby McDonald and two children, and Foster Wheller, all of the north fork Red river construction camp.

Towns in Ruins

Viewed today, the swath of the storm found Blair and Headrick in splintered ruins, their citizenry dazed by calamity which fell upon them at the evening dinner hour Saturday, plunging this whole section into a night of confusion and fear of havoc.

When dawn came and volunteers had surveyed the twister's track, they checked a miraculously small human toll but a huge loss of property.

In its wake were wrecked homes and farms, their tenants huddled in cellars, or temporary shelters, hundreds of livestock turned loose in frightened flight and ruined crops.

Property damage may exceed $1,000,000.

Taking Blair, Altus and Headrick as the three corners of a right-angled triangle—blair to the north of Altus and Headrick to the east—the path of the tremendous wind can be traced along the longest side or hypotenuse. The big blow marked out a cone-shaped track.

MERCURY HITS 1928 RECORD

Wichitans Swelter In Hottest Weather

Sunday was the hottest day of the year in Wichita Falls, the thermometer hitting 106 degrees, just one degree lower than the hottest day of 1927, May 27.

Following the period of low atmosphere Saturday afternoon, the barometer dropped to 77 in the early hours of the morning Sunday. However, as the sun rose, the thermometer rose, and in mid-afternoon it reached 106. At 5 o'clock it had dropped back to 103.

The barometer, which had been low and indicative of storm late Saturday afternoon, dropped down to 28.62 again at 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon. However, the sky in Wichita Falls was clear Sunday afternoon.

After several weeks of comparatively low temperatures, Wichitans sweltered in the heat Sunday. The unusual humidity of the air, caused by frequent and heavy rains in June, also added to the discomfort caused by the high temperature.

1000 HOMELESS IN MISSOURI

Kansas Tornado Exacts Property Loss

KENNETT, Mo., June 17. (AP)—More than 1000 families were homeless and 100,000 acres of farm land was under water here as the result of the second high break in the St. Francis river levee, three and one-half miles north of Brown's ferry early today.

The new crevasse, which came following the third crest of the St. Francis river was 275 feet wide from the outset, and an effort to halt the eight foot wall of water, which surged through the break, was futile.

The break came about 15 miles north of the major crevasse yesterday and allowed the flood waters to spread over an entirely different area.

With the wheat fields almost ready for the harvest and the corn from six inches to a foot high, it was estimated that the crop damage coupled with the loss of homes amount to from a million and a half to two million dollars.

SALINA, Kansas, June 17. (AP)—Houses and other farm buildings were demolished and much additional damage resulted from a tornado which swept this region last night. No loss of life had been reported late today. In all localities where the wind hit hardest, the storm indications were visible early enough in advance to allow families to obtain shelter. This fact was believed to have averted loss of life.

The weather disturbance here was believed to be a part of the storm that hit at Blair, Okla., yesterday, taking a known toll of seven lives and injuring more than a score of persons.

NEWPORT, Ark., June 17. (AP)—Unless rains last night cause an unexpected rise of White river, all levees now holding in this county are believed safe, workmen reported today. The river was falling but water still was running through the Stevens levee break.

Wichita Falls Host to Nobleman As Syrian Sheik Visits Friends Here

Sheik Ammen Hamada Bey Gives Views on America; "Syria Loves U. S.," He Declares

Wichita Falls is hobnobbing with royalty.

Sunday morning Sheik Ammen Hamada Bey arrived in the city for a visit with friends, especially the family of S. S. Kouri, oil man, who lives at 1302 Giddings street. Mr. Kouri came to America 32 years ago from Mount Lebanon, Syria, over which the sheik rules.

One of the 18 rulers in his own country, which is now under French mandate as the result of deliberations of the league of nations, the sheik is visiting in the major states of the United States.

Carrying the title of sheik and bey, he is a quite and unassuming man who on the street might be taken for a conservative among conservatives of powerful American business men.

Admires Wilson

He doesn't especially care for New York, but he likes Paris, he said. He thinks Woodrow Wilson and his famous 14 points among the greatest things the world has ever known. He likes what he has seen of Texas, and he is going to see the Houston convention if he can possibly do so for he wants to observe as much as possible the American methods of government, he told a Record News reporter.

There's an old song about the Sheik of Araby that this sheik brings to mind. Sheik Ammen Hamada Bey has only one wife.

The sheik also smokes American cigarettes of English ancestry. His cigarette holder was multi colored and a foot long. His dress was a rich and conservative gray such as might come from the best Fifth avenue tailors.

A direct descendent of the king of Tanoukh, who ruled 1200 years before Mohammed, the sheik has a family tree that makes the American blue bloods seem like pikers. Yet with all this, the sheik fits in American life as though born to it.

Diplomacy Graduate

He spoke of the idea of majority rule in political conventions and in America.

"It has been that way since the

RESCUE SHIPS RUSH QUEST

Report of Rescue of Nobile's Men Proves False

By SALVATORE APONTE
Special Correspondent
Aboard the Citta De Milano

KING'S BAY, June 17. (US)—Both the Hobby and the Braganza have reached Cape North on their way to meet the party of General Nobile's crew who are trudging back over the ice towards civilization from their icy landing place when the Italia was wrecked. The Braganza has even rounded the dreaded cape and is laboriously breaking its way through the ice under the able guidance of old Captain Swendsen, well known polar navigator.

The Hobby has remained a little behind in a position where there is still some clear water for the Norweigian seaplanes of Capt. Riser Larsen and Lieut. Lutsow Holm to ascend and descend.

Unfortunately the weather around Cape North is still foggy, contrasting to the lovely weather at King's Bay. The fogs are preventing the aviators from starting their flights of exploration to locate General Nobile and drop supplies to his camp.

REPORT RESCUE PROVED UNTRUE

ROME, June 17. (US)—Reports that three members of the crew of the dirigible Italia were rescued by a searching party from the icebreaker Hobby have proved untrue, according to an announcement today by Naval Undersecretary Sirano. The unconfirmed report was circulated last Friday by a news agency.

BOSTON GIRL AND PALS ON DARING FLIGHT

Plane Friendship Takes Off On Fifth Trial At Start

WEATHER IS CLEAR

Mabel Boll Interprets Skies Otherwise And Waits

LONDON, June 17. (US)—Upon receipt of messages tonight indicating that the monoplane Friendship was making a speed of 110 miles an hour on its journey across the Atlantic, Captain Railey, the flight representative here said tonight that he expected the plane would sight the Irish coast by 6 o'clock Monday morning.

ST. Johns, N. F., June 17. (UP) Fame, fortune and a winsome American girl, Miss Amelia Earhart of Boston, were far out over the Atlantic tonight in the cockpit of the fokker monoplane Friendship, bound for England or oblivion.

The great adventure in which Miss Earhart is staking her life, which so far has held hard work and unprofitable excitement, began for the trio in the Friendship at 9:51 eastern standard time when the big plane rose loggily into the air on its fifth attempt to leave the waters of Trepassey bay.

The veteran Wilmer Stultz was at the controls, with Lou Gordon of Texas at the key of the small radio set.

None too expertly, three hours and 40 minutes after the start, came a message picked up by the radio corporation of America ashore and forwarded to those who had seen the monoplane fade into the eastern horizon.

"Clear weather and going okay," it speeled out.

Sixty-eight miles from here, at Harbor Grace, Miss Mabel Boll, another American girl, who had planned to be the first woman to fly across the Atlantic, was held by what she interpreted as unfavorable weather reports.

Miss Earhart declined to disclose whether the flight would be made via the Azores or direct to the British Isles.

Gives Message

Before her departure, she handed the United Press correspondent the following signed message:

"Saluting Old Glory and thanking our friends for their many expressions of interest, good luck and encouragement, we bid au revoir, not farewell, to the dear old U. S. A., within a few minutes of the time the Friendship vaults into the Newfoundland air on our eastward flight over the Atlantic.

"Our confidence in the successful termination of our venture is unshaken."

Miss Earhart had appeared eager to go aboard the Friendship.

"We have a dandy breeze in back of us and we're going today in spite of everything," she said.

A strong west wind was blowing and the weather was clear.

Stults Concerned

Stults was very agitated and showed signs of grave concern. He declined to speak to newspapermen. Gordon was equally reticent.

The plane carries a light radio apparatus and the call letters are WOXWM. Stults said they would send frequent bulletins reporting the progress.

Two minutes before the Friendship lifted into the air and disappeared beyond the horizon it rose a few feet from the water and then crashed back, but lunged forward under the power of its hugs motors, racing with throttle wide open.

After the airplane gained the air, it flew a few miles seaward, then turned and circled back toward port. Spectators believed it had been decided to abandon the adventure, but the Friendship turned her nose to the east again and soon was lost to sight.

SOUTHAMPTON IS DESTINATION

LONDON, June 17. (US) — The Fokker monoplane Friendship is bound for Southampton, England, via Valencia, Ireland. This announcement was made here tonight by Captain Railey, the flight representative.

The Friendship will head for Valencia, on the south coast of Ireland, but if its fuel is not exhausted it will continue on to the English coast, Captain Railey said.

Arrangements have been made here to keep in touch with the Friendship when it nears the Irish coast, and if there is danger that its limited fuel supply will not bring it to Valencia, a seaplane will be sent out to meet it and trans-ship fuel.

California Chief High in Praising G. O. P. Choice

SACRAMENTO, Calif., June 15. (US)—"To say that any man as able and farseeing as Herbert Hoover is unsympathetic to the needs of agriculture is to say an untruth."

That assertion came from Governor C. C. Young, commenting today on the nomination of California's Republican choice for the presidency.

"The country succeeds as agriculture succeeds, and any statement questioning Hoover's attitude toward the farmer is sheer propaganda," declared Governor Young. "The people as a whole have confidence in Hoover, and I have noted that the Hoover vote in many rural communities has been even stronger than in the cities."

Selection of the secretary of commerce on the first ballot at Kansas City was characterized by the governor as "evincing a popular enthusiasm for Mr. Hoover as a man of ability and capacity for the presidency."

"As a Californian," said Governor Young, "I am very proud of our delegation, which evidently gained the good will and confidence of every one at Kansas City. I believe that the overwhelming Hoover sentiment at the convention was brought about by practically the same influence which sent such a tremendously large number to the polls here in California to vote for an unopposed Hoover delegation."

STORM LEAVES 2000 STRANDED

Altus Helps Care for Homeless Families

along that line, one to six miles wide and about 30 miles long.

Spreads to Headrick

From flattened Blair, northwest of which it first struck, the storm's path spread from a mile's width through rural sections to Headrick, about 15 miles southeast.

It then swept eastward across the north fork of the Red river where it took out eight spans of a 15-span bridge, injuring the members of the construction camp. It spent itself south and east of Snyder, which escaped its brunt, and left a course six miles wide at the lower end.

Today residents turned to rehabilitating the area and housing of neighbors. Farmers sought out wandering livestock and prepared to rebuild their homesteads.

In Blair and Headrick, temporary structures were being erected, structures were being erected streets cleared and preparations made for a return to municipal prosperity.

RAILROAD LINES BADLY DAMAGED

Special to the Record News

ALTUS, Okla., June 17. Altus and the surrounding district Monday face the problem of caring for 2,000 homeless, treating the injured and burying those who were killed in the devastating tornado which practically swept Blair off of the map and which cleared from a large portion of Jackson county.

Thirty-five poles were blown away along the Katy lines between Altus and Mangum, and that was all the damage along that line by the storm.

New Bridge Wrecked

The Orient and Frisco lines were reported to have suffered heavily. The Frisco bridge on the North Fork of Red river at Lawton was snapped by the storm at the same time eight of the 23 spans of the new concrete bridge over the highway nearby were destroyed. The highway bridge is in course of construction. The Frisco station at Headrick was wiped away, and the Orient station at Blair was wrecked. Much other damage was reported where the twister hit these lines.

L. C. Hanna, the postmaster at Headrick, is suffering from a broken arm as the result of a tree, to which he was holding, being torn from his grasp by the twister. The man was hurled to the ground, where he found there was no wind current. Despite his injuries, he crawled on his hands and knees to the storm cellar at his own home, two blocks away. From this cellar he watched trees, houses and all manner of things sailing overhead through the air.

Baker Near Death

He had just left the post office which is in the Masonic building. After the storm there wasn't any building there.

W. F. Baker, of Altus, salesman for Delco light and Frigid air, was returning from Snyder where he had made an installation. As he neared the Otter Creek school house, he decided to seek shelter and went into the building. A minute later the building was destroyed and he suffered concussion of the brain which may prove fatal.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Capps and their six children were in their farmhouse three miles east of Blair when the storm hit them. They were blown out of their building and their clothing blown off, but they suffered only minor cuts and bruises. The house was found in small pieces, some as far as three miles away, and no piece as large as a door left together.

Tom Vaughn found his silos had been blown two miles away when he started to look for them Sunday. He and his wife were in their house two miles east of Blair when the storm hit. They fell out of the house while it was in the air, and the house was then set down in a new location a few hundred feet away.

Hits Blair First

The storm first hit four miles west of Blair and continued in a straight line through Blair and east for four miles; then it turned southeast for two miles, south three miles, west one mile, southeast to Headrick, and then due east for about 16 miles where it spent its force. It was from 1½ to 5 miles wide.

The northeast portion of Blair was revealed Sunday as not damaged. This was a residence district. People in that part of town, some of whom had lived there 31 years, said they never before had seen a cyclone or tornado which came and left without a roar.

"Silent Tornado"

The usual overhead booming and roaring noises of tornadoes were missing, they said. One man said he thought it was just a severe sandstorm. He did not realize what was happening 100 yards away until the wind abated and the sand cleared out of the air so that he could see the ruins of the city.

L. C. Cann of Blair is in an Altus hospital suffering from a broken back. He had taken refuge in a house when the wind drove a 2 by 4 board through the side of the house, breaking his back. He was reported killed in earlier reports and also as having suffered slight injuries. His recovery is doubtful.

Sheriff J. L. English has been active in protecting the property exposed by the storm, as every business house in Blair was damaged, making guarding necessary.

RURAL PUPILS GET DIPLOMAS

148 Eighth Graders Get Certificates

Special to The Record News.

FREDERICK, Okla., June 17.—Nearly half of the 148 young people who finished the prescribed eight-year course in the various rural schools of the county braved the muddy roads to be present at the graduation exercises which were held at the city auditorium beginning shortly after 8 p. m. Friday. The salutatorian, Miss Kathleen Crawford, from district No. 227, in the extreme part of the county, and the valedictorian, Miss Kathryn Hale, from consolidated district No. 1, in the northwest part of the county, traveled many miles to get here.

The program was carried through exactly as announced, beginning with a stanza of "America," followed by the invocation by Rev. H. A. Hefner of consolidated district No. 11, some 12 miles southeast of Frederick.

George Murel Willson, about 10, rendered a piano solo and then was piano accompanist to Herbert Shelton Jr., who gave an excellent violin solo. Murel is a son of Mr. and Mrs. M. R. Willson from northeast of here, while Herbert is the oldest son of County Superintendent and Mrs. E. H. Shelton.

The principal address was delivered by Rev. James M. Blakey, pastor of the First Christian church. His commencement addresses have proven so popular that he has officiated in this manner in at least half a dozen programs this spring.

A novel method was adopted by Shelton in distributing the diplomas. These had been arranged alphatbetically according to school districts and an entire district was called to the stage at one time. While Shelton called the names, his assistant, Miss Louise Griffin, handed out the diplomas. In this way the audience had an opportunity to viewing the graduating classes from the various schools as a whole and the diplomas were disposed of in a short time.

The Frederick Press gold medal award to the student with the highest grade was given Miss Kathryn Hale, who has attained a percentage of 92 2-11 on her year's work. It was given by the donor, R. H. Wessel, who proposes to make this an annual event. Miss Hale's teacher, Mrs. Rebecca Nippert, was present, and said her pupils next year will make an effort to win this honor. Last term was her first at that school and one of her students was salutatorian at the county graduation exercises.

Miss Kathleen Crawford of Rich Valley, salutatorian, had an average grade of 91 10-11 per cent for the year. Out of the highest ranking students of the 148 with an average over 90 per cent, six of them were members of Mrs. Nippert's room. Following is the list of the other eight highest ranking, with their grades and districts: Miss Florence Stone, 91 9-11, Con. No. 1; William Hudspeth, 90 10-11, Con. No. 1; Jewell Neal, 90 7-11, Rich Valley; Vivian Payne, 90 5-11, Otter Creek; Arland Fyie, 90 5-11, Pleasant Valley; Orvol Kelly, 90 3-11, Pleasant Valley; James Rigg, 90 2-11, Con. No. 1; Opal Ruffner, 90 2-11, Con. No. 1; Leon Coats, 90 2-11, Con. No. 1.

Wall Street Looks for Tightest Race for President Since 1916

By BROADAN WALL,
Universal Service Financial Expert

NEW YORK, June 17.—Money, and politics to a lesser extent, remain the dominant stock market influence. Money eased and the market benefitted toward the close of last week but the effect was lessened by nervousness aroused by political developments. As the week closed the street looked for the closest presidential race since 1916. Merchants and manufacturers during the period of such a contest usually adopt a more conservative policy and their reduced purchases are felt throughout all industry.

At the present time the money club is being used to bring the stock market back in line with business so that there is worry that the corrective period may be extended by the discounting of some slow down in business by reason of political developments. There was considerable short selling as the week closed and the resulting technical strength is likely to influence momentary advance early this week, especially if money remains easier as expected.

Thereafter the money influence will grow more powerful as the mid-month checks go through the banks and preparations are made for July 1 interest and dividends.

Buy Standard Stocks

"Buy standard stocks," all brokers advise on reactions now and the "public" wonders what to do with the "pool pets" they hold at top prices.

If correction of the stock market proceeds as it has started there will be no further advance in the rediscunt rate in belief of most bankers. Should a wild bullish orgy break out again a 5 per cent rate would be inaugurated, it is thought, but such action would be taken only if absolutely necessary.

The reserve banks are in a position to sell more government securities if necessary to further apply the money curb, but from all indications even that action will not be necessary.

Normal seasonal developments in the money market will be sufficient to maintain a tight condition for the next three weeks and in that period, according to the idea existing in banking circles, stock market correction will have been effected and desired reduction in brokers' loans brought about.

To those who think a reaction of a week or so is sufficient brokers point out that 1088 stocks cannot be liquidated all at once.

Offset Tightness

Purchase of government securities by the reserve banks was accepted by some folks as indication that the board was satisfied with the present loan picture. Such belief is without foundation, however, as the reserve banks always take steps to offset seasonal tightness of money at this time. Had it not been for the bad crack in the stock market early last week such steps probably would not have been taken but so long as the bullish hysteria had been curbed the reserve officials evidently thought they were warranted in letting up on the money reins somewhat. Their action in so doing was ultimately bullish as it convinced business men and investors that business fundamentals were promising and that the only disturbing factor—a topheavy stock market was being corrected.

Bargain hunters have not appeared and will not until the market enjoys an extended period of that quiet stability that marks real accumulation after a bad break.

CHURCH STRIFE IN ENGLAND

Bishops Ired at Prayer Book Rejection

LONDON, June 17. (UP)—The likelihood of the bishops defying the house of commons, which for the second time has rejected the revised edition of the book of common prayer, and inviting the convocations beginning July 11 to subscribe to the new book despite the commons' vote was being discussed here tonight.

This, it was believed, might lead the commons to demand the book be disestablished.

Commons Ignored

There undoubtedly is a strong faction determined to ignore the commons and obtain full synodical authority for the book, which then would be a blow to the church and binding on the consciences of members but with no possibility of appeal to the state to enforce observance.

The conservative Daily Telegraph declared rejection "was a serious blow to the prestige of the church assembly" and the Times added that the "responsibility of the bishops is very grave." The Morning Post believes if the measure had carried "it would have meant strife and schism." The Daily News believes the vote means "probably the beginning of a period of anarchy if not civil war in the church."

Should the bishops decide to ignore the commons the latter would take such a flouting of its authority as an affront which could not be passed over and the whole question of disestablishment of the Church of England would become a vital political issue.

In this connection it is understood several bishops are willing to run the risk of disestablishment. They believe the state could not afford to sever connection with the church and that the state would be unwilling to bear the burden of the upkeep of 12,600 derelict churches and cathedrals costing more than 1,000,000 pounds ($5,000,000) annually, and that even if the church were disestablished it could, by curtailment of social services, derive sufficient means to meet urgent expenses.

The archbishops of Cantebury and York have appealed for patience and abstention from angry words; but feeling is very high and in some cases most bitter. Not for many years has the commons been the scene of such emotion as was experienced after the book was rejected.

In such an atmosphere further compromise appears almost impossible, but it is understood the home secretary, Sir William Joynson-Hicks, intends to proceed with a plan already announced to offer a book to the bishops containing only the noncontroversial portions of the rejected book which, if accepted by the bishops, would pass the house of commons in the autumn session, as agreed.

Resignation Rumored

What success Joynson-Hicks may have cannot be predicted but in the present mood of the bishops he is likely to have little if any.

Meanwhile reports are current that the archbishop of Canterbury will resign. The strain of the last six months has been very severe on him and Thursday night's decision by the commons left him brokenhearted. He sat with his head burled in his hands, realizing that the vote meant an indication of the eclipse of his whole career.

HOOVER ENIGMA FOR BUSINESS

Republican Favors Change In Anti-Trust Law

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER
Universal Service

NEW YORK, June 17.—What would the election of Herbert Hoover to the presidency mean to American business and finance?

The question is raised because of the widespread notion before the nomination that Wall Street was cool to the candidacy of the secretary of commerce.

If elected, Mr. Hoover will be the first representative of the profession of "engineers to enter the White House. He would also be the first modern type of business executive to be chosen for this high office.

Mostly Lawyers

An occupational analysis of the 29 men who have filled the role of chief executive of the United States shows that the country has drawn most heavily on the legal profession. Twenty of the president—John Adams, Thomas Jefferson, James Madison, James Monroe, John Quincy Adams, Andrew Jackson, Martin Van Buren, John Tyler, James Knox Polk, Millard Follmore, Franklin Pierce, James Buchanan, Abraham Lincoln, Rutherford Birchard Hayes, James Abram Garfield, Grover Cleveland, Benjamin Harrison, William McKinley, William Howard Taft, and Calvin Coolrowidge—were lawyers, and two—Woodrow Wilson, who was primarily an educator and Chester Alan Arthur, who was a school teacher, were also admitted to the bar. Three—William Henry Harrison, Zachary Taylor, and Ulysses Simpson Grant—were soldiers. Two—Woodrow Wilson and Chester A. Arthur were instructors. One—George Washington—was a plantation owner and surveyor. One—Andrew Johnson—was a tailor—a species of small business man. One—Warren G. Harding—was a newspaper man. If Alfred E. Smith should be elected, he would be classified chiefly as a politician and office holder, and for this category there would be a precedent in Theodore Roosevelt.

Efficiency Personified

Herbert Hoover, apart from political considerations, is symbolic of the newer spirit of American development. He represents the age of mass production and distribution and of the application of science to industry. He is business efficiency personified.

Business took kindly to former President Harding and to President Coolidge very largely because both favored a minimum of interference with the freedom of business men on the part of government.

Hoover, however, represents a new viewpoint. In place of the negative attitude of the last eight years, he would substitute a positive programme of stimulating business.

Thoughtful business executives believe that, if elected, Hoover might work out a new formula for anti trust legislation, more in accordance with the new character of business than the Sherman anti trust law of 1890 and the Clayton act of 1914. The newer trend of business thought is that competition can be overdone, and may result in wastefulness. The new trend is to condemn unthinking anarchy in business, and to laud the spirit of cooperation. Under the surface there is a growing demand for a radical revision of the anti trust laws.

Anti-Trust Changes

Mr. Hoover has not yet definitely committed himself on this matter, but by inference it may be assumed that he would be in sympathy with a modernization of the anti trust laws. As secretary of commerce, he has induced the attorney general to clarify the legitimate fields for operations of trade associations, and has definitely indicated his belief that such bodies, whose legal status had previously been in some doubt, could be made to serve useful purposes.

Referring to trade associations, Mr. Hoover once said: "I believe that we are, almost unnoticed, in the midst of a great transformation in the whole super-organization of our economic life. We are passing from a period of extremely individualistic action into a period of associational activities which shall result in common service to the particular industry and to the country as a whole."

Panic Marks Quake Series

MEXICO CITY, June 17. (AP)—All of Central South Mexico, from the Gulf of Mexico to the Gulf of Tehuantepec, was shaken by a series of earthquakes which lasted all of Saturday night. The shocks continued today in the state of Oaxaca.

No definite reports of loss of life had been received late today but despatches from Oaxaca said it was feared that several victims had been buried in the ruins of their homes there.

Property damage was widespread but was relatively unimportant except in Oaxaca City. That section was just beginning to recover from a visitation of about two months ago and now must do its work over again as well as reconstruct much freshly damaged property.

In Mexico City, Puebla, Vera Cruz and other town there was general panic. People rushed from their homes into the streets and plazas, folling upon their knees in prayer. In many places they have fled to the country, camping in the open and refusing to reenter their houses.

Three Ordinances Scheduled For Consideration of Council Tonight

Consideration of the repeal of the paving ordinance for a part of Kings highway, is scheduled to come up at the Monday night meet of the city council.

This matter was presented to the council several weeks ago by Mayor J. W. Akin and immediately drew fire from the paving contractor whose attorney, Milburn E. Nutt, declared the proposition entirely out of the hands of the council and in the hands of the courts. Mr. Nutt has declared that any action of the council at this time in setting aside the ordinance would not be legal in view of court rulings.

Throwing open to the public inspection at all times the dates and bookings for the auditorium is the goal of a new ordinance which will be presented for first reading by Thelbert Martin, city attorney, at the request of the council. The ordinance also provides for a deposit of 50 per cent of the rental cost of the auditorium on all dates for which reservations have been made.

The itinerant merchants' bonding and taxing ordinance will come up for third and final reading. This ordinance would force holders of "rummage sales", "fire sales" and the like who come to the city with a stock of goods, rent a store room and put on a special "sale" to make a heavy bond and also to pay a tax of $25 a day. It's object is to protect the public from cheap and worthless merchandise which offers the buyer no recourse of any kind after the seller is gone.

Pickpockets Make Haul Of $200 in Stanton Homes

STANTON, June 17.—Nine homes in Stanton were burglarized last night for $200 in pocket change and jewelry.

Pocket change was taken from the pants of sleeping men in every home entered by the burglars and three valuable watches were taken from two homes in the town. No clues have been encountered as to the identity of the burglars except that the thieves were not amateurs as evidenced by the fact that money was taken from pants pockets under the heads of sleeping men.

ROADS WIN IN COTTON FIGHT

Lower Rates to Offset Trucking Prices

Special to The Record News

AUSTIN, June 17.—Railroad operating into Corpus Christi have apparently won their fight for lower rates on cotton so that they may compete with trucking companies, now hauling cotton into Corpus Christi for shipment by water. The railroad commission late Friday completed its hearing of the case, and will hand down a decision shortly.

The application to lower rates was joined in by the Southern Pacific, the Missouri Pacific and the Texas and Mexico railways. Four trucking companies protested the rail rate reduction.

If the railroads do succeed in their fight, then the rate on cotton moving into Corpus Christi from a 100-mile radius, will be reduced from 30 to 70 per cent, as existing truck rates are about that much lower than the present rail rates.

F. R. Dalzell, traffic manager of the Houston Cotton exchange, was one of the witnesses at the hearing, and he pointed out that these lowered rates gave Corpus Christi a distinct advantage over Houston, at points about equidistant from the two ports.

This advantage was heightened, he said, by the railroads agreeing to continue all concentration privileges under the new and lower rates. The roads have asked permission to discontinue these privileges but agreed later to withdraw the request.

A. L. Reed, of the Texas-Oklahoma Compress and Warehouse association, and San Antonio Chamber of Commerce, and C. W. Gibson, representing the truck concerns, also spoke at the hearing.

CASH ROLLS IN FROM EUROPE

Uncle Sam's Debtors Remit $90,000,000

WASHINGTON, June 17. (AP)—Payments totaling $90,757,665.01 were received today by the treasury from 13 foreign countries towards settlement of their war indebtedness to the United States.

Great Britain made the largest payment of the $67,200,000 in the form of treasury notes purchased on the American market.

France paid in cash $11,250,000 on the principal of its war debt, while the Italian payment of $5,000,000 was its third annual installment on its debt principal due from that country.

Payments from other countries were: Belgium, $3,575,000 as interest and installment on principal; Czechoslovakia, $1,500,000; Esthonia, $100,000; Finland, $131,460; Hungary, $29,133.01; Latvia, $40,000; Lithuania, $82,072; Poland, $1,250,000; Rumania, $400,000, and Jugoslavia, $200,000.

All except the Belgian and British payments were paid in cash and treasury notes received from these two countries have been cancelled and retired.

Demos to Meet At Sam Houston Hall

HOUSTON, June 17. (INS)—The Democracy of the nation will gather here in Sam Houston hall. The name of the new structure that will house the Democratic convention was changed to Sam Houston hall at the suggestion of Clem Shaver, chairman of the Democratic national committee.

A few minutes ride from the convention is the battleground of San Jacinto where Houston won the battle that established Texas' independence. Houston was a close friend of Andrew Jackson, patron saint of the Democratic party.

"Visitors to Houston who have been expecting to see a temporary building thrown up to house the convention will be surprised to see such a beautiful structure as the convention hall," Mr. Shaver said. "And it would be only fitting that the city should give the hall a name which will do it proper honor. I thought of Sam Houston, for he was the man who fought the battle of San Jacinto and won Texas independence," Shaver stated.

Dr. Trotzky Vows He'll Come Back And Show Texas He's 'Real Man'

Special to The Record News

AUSTIN, June 17.—"When I get through with my time, I am coming back to the state of Texas and prove to the people that I am every bit a man. I hope it will not be very long."

Thus spoke Dr. Nicholas Romano Trotzky, alias Dr. Bob Anthony, after he had been sentenced to one year and one day in the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth by Federal Judge Duval West, on a charge of violating the national motor vehicle act.

Dr. Trotzky who has traveled in 10 different countries and 24 states in this country, declared that Texas people have more courtesy and hospitality than any other people with whom he has had contact.

"I wish to thank the people for everything they have done for me while I have been confined in the Travis county jail for the past four months. I also wish to thank Judge Duval West for relieving me of seven years of misery," said Dr. Trotzky.

The seven years of misery referred to by Trotzky has to do with his story of dodging Bolshevik agents after he rescued Olga, daughter of Czar Nicholas from a firing squad.

Dr. Romano Trotzky, self claimed relative of Nicholas Trotzky and savior of the Russian princess, lived in Wichita Falls several months just previous to the events which led to the filing of the charges against him.

Home Brew Sales Keep Wolf Away

Woman Tells Sheriff of Hard Times

"I'll sell more beer before I'll go to the Salvation Army for help," a Wichita Falls woman told Sheriff W. G. Bralley Saturday night after her husband had been arrested and taken to the county jail to await filing of federal charges for manufacture and sale of intoxicating beverages.

The woman told Sheriff Bralley that she and her husband were making and selling beer because he could not find work. There are a number of children in the home, Mr. Bralley said.

Six other persons were arrested and 300 bottles of beer were seized and 50 gallons of mash emptied by members of the sheriff's department in a series of raids Saturday night. Charges will be filed in federal court against five of the seven, Mr. Bralley said.

The raid on one of the homes was made after four girls and a boy arrested for drunkenness Friday night, had told Sheriff Bralley that they bought beer at a certain place and made affidavit that they purchased the beer from a woman there.

More than one "doubting Thomas" was present, who asked him to prove it. And he did with an hour to spare.

Harmon County To Have Oil Test

HOLLIS, Okla., June 17.—An oil test for Harmon county is practically assured, E. L. Gardner, real estate man of Hollis, and one of the promoters of the well, said.

The only thing that is holding back the test at the present time is the fact that two or three land owners in the proposed block in the Number Seven community, where the test is planned, have refused so far to sign. Most of these are non-residents, however, Mr. Gardner said.

Young Wichita Falls

Jack Burkett should be a much envied young man—he has a set of parents that are so young that he is often mistaken for a younger brother of the two. Strangers are in the habit of mistaking Daddy for a youngster and calling him "sonny" or some other rather inappropriate term for a fellow with a family.

Jack Edward makes his home at Kemp Kort, and is quite a favorite in that neighborhood. Due to his astounding popularity, the boy doesn't remember ever seeing a stranger.

Whether Jack will grow up to be a dashing dark man with handsome flashing brown eyes or whether he will be a blond, has not yet been decided upon. It looks like an even break between blue and brown, and the young man hasn't expressed a preference. Mother and Daddy say they will keep him no matter what he turns out to be.

He is the 2-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Burkett, and was judged a 100 per cent perfect baby at the T-O fair last fall.

A CHICAGO judge throws a new bomb into the midst of an otherwise quiet crowd. He says that only women can possess "it" and that in the state of Illinois no woman can be sued for alienation of affections because "it" is a gift of the gods and no woman can be blamed for being born with it. Now if the judge could just give us a faint idea as to what constitutes "it"—a definition that could be put down in black and white in law books, we might have something to work on. But with every woman except those born with an inferiority complex, believing that she has a super-abundance of it, I don't know where the courts are going to start.

Women have always boasted of a monopoly on certain characteristics such as intuition and perversity, f'instance, and now they annex another—"it." That these traits are somewhat indefinite as to meaning, doesn't bother them much. Maybe that's the reason they don't renege when they are accused of having it.

Oh, well, this discussion isn't leading us any place, with nobody savient enough to tell us where vanity stops and "it" starts, how are we going to tell when alienation of affection has been practiced?

ANOTHER man is sorry that he has made a million dollars. He is Anatol Josepho, Siberian inventor who is responsible for the photomaton—the quarter-in-the-slot picture machine. And at only 33, after having been handed a check for $1,000,000 for his invention, he suddenly decided that money doesn't bring happiness, that he wears only one suit of clothes at a time and that he lives in only one room at a time, and so forth. Besides, formerly he had no difficulty in warding off the people who are eager to share in his good luck.

The philosophy of the German friend of Edmund Vance Cooke, American poet who spoke at the Woman's Forum last winter, that "people are ever dissatisfied, that we always want to exchange what we do not have for that which we will wish we did not possess," is widespread, but alas, seldom learned until the worries of too much money is upon them.

ONLY a few lines left to say that it is about time for bathing suits. If you haven't brought yours, it will soon be time to get it. Sales on bathing suits will soon be the last word, and then even this column will be fully arrayed to meet the already too apparent summer months.

CHIC CHERIE — LATEST FASHIONS

Cherie is taking Dina to the one and only place in Paris where one buys trousseau underwear—it's a special shopping trip for which Cherie is wearing a mauve flat crepe dress trimmed with bands of the satin side and a ballibunti hat with a curl of feathers on one cheek. Dina's frock is a printed navy crepe with an odd new jabot.

Dina's hat is cisele felt with the brim turned flat back on her crown—and Dina hasn't a word to say. She did suggest to Cherie that she hadn't intended to be married just yet, but as Cherie answered, there's just this one chance to buy trousseau underwear and if that means she must rush her wedding, well, she must! These are the garments:

The dance set is silk voile and Alencon lace. The nightgown held by the efficient saleswoman is silk crepe trimmed with hand-done drawn work and embroidery. The one under her arm matches the dance set. In the background are two combinations, the one to the left of dark ecru lace and satin, the other of dark ecru lace and ecru net.

After all, Dina needn't have worried. "My dear," Cherie is saying "trousseau or not, I must have this negligee myself." Dina hastens to tell her that this cape negligee of georgette and lace is only slightly less becoming than the pajama suit of fuschia and corn flower blue georgette. She'll sell Cherie the whole trousseau yet—give her time!

Change of Conversation at Right Time Is Art Wives Should Learn

"If you'll learn to change the conversation at the right time," confesses adored wife and mother, "you'll sidestep family rows, prevent nagging, keep your husband happy and become popular."

A woman who is adored by her family, beloved by her friends and much sought after in society says that the secret of popularity is knowing when to change the subject.

"People are interested when you tell them a thing for the first time," she says. "They will listen patiently while you tell it the second time, but when you tell it the third or fourth or four hundredth time it gets on their nerves.

"That's what the bore is. A repeater. Some one who can't change the subject: some one who has one particular line of discourse that he hands you every time you meet him. I know plenty of people who haven't changed the subject of their conversation in twenty years.

"I know that when I sit next to Mr. A at dinner that I am going to have to listen to the story of his life, and how he started out as a poor little boy selling newspapers, and how he pinched and saved until he got enough money to start a fruit stall, and how now he owns a chain of groceries. When I meet Mrs. B I sigh, and resign myself to listening to all the gory details of her two minor and three major operations, and what the doctor said and the nurse said, and how they never expected her to live through it. When I see Mrs. C, I resign myself to hearing how perfectly marvelous her children are, and how many millionaires her daughter has refused to marry, and what a genius her son is, and what cute things her baby says. And so on, and so on.

"Now these people are not all dull or stupid, but they are tiresome because they have just one topic of conversation. We all dread them and flee from them when we see them coming, but we would welcome them and enjoy them if only they changed the subject occasionally.

"And what's nagging, which breaks up more homes than all the vamps and booze in the universe, except the inability to change the subject? Harping on the same old string! Kerplunk! Kerplunk! Kerplunk until we feel we must scream if we hear it one more time! Pressing on a sore place until fortitude gives way and we howl with anguish.

"We can stand being told to do a thing, or told of a fault, or reminded of a mistake once, and profit by the reproof, but when we are ceaselessly badgered about doing a thing, and have our shortcomings forever thrown in our teeth, it rouses every particle of combativeness in our natures and makes us determined to do our own way or die.

"You remember that one of the choicest tortures of the Inquisition was letting a drop of water fall continuously on the poor victim's head until it drove him mad. I often think that we mothers are the lineal descendants of those tortures in the way we rain down advice and admonition on our unfortunate children.

"It is 'do this!' 'Don't do that!' about the same things over and over every day. 'Don't eat so fast!' 'Don't gulp your coffee!' 'Did you brush your teeth?' 'Wipe your feet!' 'Watch out for automobiles!' 'Don't stay long!' repeated ad lib. No wonder the children flee from the sound of mother's voice and get away from home as soon as they can.

"Of course, you have to direct children and correct their faults, but I make it a rule, when I have once told them a thing, to change the subject. And I find that it has a hundred times the effect that dwelling interminably on the same theme had. They will listen to me once, but they shut the ears of their souls when I keep on reiterating it.

"As a panacea that can be guaranteed always to work for preventing family squabbles and promoting peace and harmony in the home, nothing equals changing the subject. Naturally no man and woman think just alike, or have the same tastes and desires, and every husband and wife are bound to discuss many things that they see from different angles, and about which they have opposite opinions.

"My husband and I used to have plenty of grand old fights that would leave us battered and blue, and hurt with each other for days at a time, but not now since I have learned how to change the subject. Whenever we start to discuss a subject and I find that I am getting a little hot under the collar, I drop it and began to talk about the weather, or what Mussolini is going to do next, or whether the Jones across street can really afford a new automobile.

"Likewise, when I perceive that my husband is getting a little fervid and impassioned in his attitude toward a subject, I break in on the discussion with some perfectly irrelevant question that changes the conversation and makes him forget that he held unalterable views on the topic.

"So the storm passes by. The little conversational rod I put up attracts the lightning down harmlessly into the ground and the explosion is avoided, and when we take up the question again we are both calm and reasonable and settle the disputed problem amicably in a half a minute.

"Furthermore, the real secret of how to manage a husband consists in knowing when to change the subject, for if you are adroit enough in switching the talk, you can keep Friend Husband from committing himself to a position to which he feels that his dignity compels him to stick.

"It hurts a man's vanity to have to back down, and so when I see that my husband is about to present an ultimatum to the family about short hair, or the length of skirts, or how often the boys can use the car, or how late the girls can stay out, I forestall him by leaping nimbly from conversational peak to conversational peak, and that leaves the question open, and him free to alter his mind and save his face.

"And, of course, the ability to change the conversation is the open sesame to popularity in general society. It will take you farther than beauty or wit or brains, because it saves you from ever being tedious and tiresome, and makes you an individual of infinite variety—and so always interesting.

Mrs. John F. Teddlie, Jr., was selected some two weeks ago to represent Olney at the Fort Worth meeting. The pageant Monday evening will be one of the most colorful affairs ever witnessed. The sponsors of all west Texas towns represented will be presented that evening at the T. C. U. stadium. The name of the town represented will be flashed in the sky with letters of fire as each sponsor is presented.

BREVITY SOUL OF FASHION

Short Hair and Shirts To Rule in Fall

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN
Universal Service Cable

PARIS, June 17.—Fashion forecasts made by leading Parisian dressmakers, modistes and barbers at the Gala "the" night of Paris, maintain the dominion of short hair and short skirts. Brevity will continue to be the soul of fashion for next fall and winter.

Before a glittering assemblage of 1,000 chosen guests the most popular Parisian actresses posed as mannequins for the temperamental couturiers of Rue de la Paix and the deft fingers of the leading French hairdressers.

Elaborate Affair

Five Maharajahs, including the husband of the former American girl, Nancy Miller, were amongst the brilliant throng of prominent diners from whom seven of the most famous chefs of France prepared a wonderful meal. After a dinner of 14 courses the thousand invited guests saw the brilliant French barbers perform their sartorial stunts on the lovely heads of such stars as Mistinguette and Cecile Sorel.

The shingle and bob are slowly evolving into Grecian things of beauty. One beautiful actress had her blonde hair completely in whorls, making her head resemble a Greek statue. Another wore a classic part in the middle with the hair sleekly brushed back but whorled into tiny ringlets at the ends.

The hair dressing ideal of the smart woman of next season will be to have a sculptured head with sharp classic outlines modified occasionally to express the individuality of the wearer.

With short skirts, however, there is a noticeable tendency to return to the formal use of very long sleeves for afternoon wear. This note is already indicated in frocks from Lucien Lelong this season, where the long slim silhouette is emphasized by the use of unusually long sleeves.

Capelets, which are worn with considerable success for evening wear this season, will be developed in crepe de chine and voile presented with saucy little capes adding a touch of fantasy to the usual conventional lines of day clothes.

Advance Hats

The waistline will be slightly higher. Square and irregular decolletes will still be worn and evening gowns will continue to be lavishly cut in the back.

Several advance model hats are also shown in all the popular materials of felt, cellophane, straw and feathers. The tendency is to get away from the toque and cloche models to slightly different conceptions, is responsible for the broader brims and lower crowns. The irregular sweeping borders, prolonged in long pointed sides, are reminiscent of the medieval student's cap.

FRANK LOWDEN

Former Gov. Frank O. Lowden of Illinois as a man of his word. In the pre-convention days of the campaign for the nomination he declared with great positiveness that he did not want the Republican nomination unless the platform declared for the legislation the farmers of the country demanded. When the platform battle was over, Lowden was as good as his word. He sent this message to the convention and withdrew his name.

"I have stated publicly that I did not want the nomination unless the Republican party was prepared to meet fully and fairly the agricultural problem. I have waited upon no particular remedy, but I have stated at all times if there was a better method than the so-called equalization fee, I would gladly accept it. I have urged however, that it is the duty of the Republican party to find some way to rescue agriculture from the ruins that threaten it. THIS IN MY JUDGMENT, THE CONVENTION BY ITS PLATFORM JUST ADOPTED HAS FAILED TO DO. I THEREFORE AUTHORIZE THE WITHDRAWAL OF MY NAME BEFORE THE CONVENTION."

ON PROHIBITION

Since 1920 the Republicans have controlled the federal government. Their presidents and advisers have named all the heads of the prohibition enforcement department and the thousands of the rank and file agents of the department. The congress has voted millions annually for the maintenance of these departments and for law enforcement cost. This is the pro plank of the Kansas City platform? "The people through the method provided have written the 18th amendment into the constitution. The republican party pledges itself and its nominees to the observance and vigorous enforcement of this provision of the constitution." Is this the announcement of a new departure or an acknowledgement of public service illy performed in the past?

His Guitar

The old west, the old days,
The soft wind singing where
The sandy hills stretch mile on mile.
And old Bill Trent was there.

The soft night, the moonlight,
The light of twinkling star,
And old Bill Trent just sitting there
A-strumming his guitar.
His speech with men was sinful talk,
And known both near and far;
But pretty, soft, and golden words,
He sang to his guitar.

The soft star, the soft moon,
The mellow beams of light,
And tender notes of Bill's guitar
Went floating through the night.
The hand that picked at that guitar
Was soft and tender then,
And still that same old horny hand
Had killed so many men!

At last he got the hang-man's noose
For robbing Deadwood Bar.
The night before he swung he sang
Soft words to his guitar.
—John Self Elliott.

One-Minute Sermon

O Lord, open thou my lips; and my mouth shall shew forth thy praise.

For thou desirest not sacrifice; else would I give it: thou delightest not in burnt offering.

The sacrifices of God are a broken spirit: a broken and a contrite heart, O God, thou wilt not despise.—Psalm li, 15-17.

We Must Keep Moving

FAME is a fleeting thing, especially when gained in the realm of aviation. Only Lindbergh seems able to make his shine as brightly as ever.

The other morning we saw a little, one-paragraph item buried on an inside page of a newspaper, telling how three fliers were preparing to return to Europe. The three were named Von Huenefeld, Koehl and Fitzmaurice. On the same day we read that Clarence Chamberlin had had to cancel a lecture engagement in an Ohio city because the management had been unable to sell the tickets.

All of these men have enjoyed front-page prominence. Quickly they have slid back into comparative neglect. A flier these days must keep moving if he would maintain his fame undimmed.

The Old Order Changeth

THE American democracy right now is not endangered nearly so much by blind materialism as it is by misguided idealism, says Dr. Arthur T. Hadley, president emeritus of Yale, in an article in the current Yale Review.

Dr. Hadley goes on to explain:

"Any period of rapid intellectual development is attended with a certain amount of social disorganization. New ideas which it has inspired and new methods of life which it makes possible, conflict with the traditions of an early age. Social order does not quite keep pace with scientific progress. The effect of the new thought is a good deal like that of new wine in old bottles. It always means unrest; sometimes means disaster.

"The unexplained progress of the physical sciences in recent years bids fair to have somewhat the same kind of effect on the world of today that the study of Greek philosophy had on the world of Athens, or the revival of learning upon medieval Europe. The new light is making it hard for men to govern their conduct by old lights. Traditions which once proved adequate for the protection of society are now losing their power."

There is a surface placidity to our life today; but inwardly there is a world of unrest. Members of the older generation feel that society is being torn loose from its moorings and slipping toward rudderless disaster. The new generation, in turn, feels that its growth is fettered by outworn creeds and maxims. You cannot read a magazine without encountering some despairing cry of pessimism.

In all of this confusion, the one man who is unworried is the materialist. He knows precisely where he is going and what he is doing. While the rest of us look in vain for a light he plods along, flooding the country with autos, radios, chain stores, giant power plants, airplanes and so on. Without realizing it, or caring greatly, he is remaking our civilization. We cannot stop what he is doing, we can only try to understand it and figure out how to get this new order to yield the largest returns in happiness and spiritual well-being.

There is where the danger of misguided idealism lies. If we try to fit this new order to the ideas and ideals that served us half a century ago we shall make a fine hash of things. We must study it carefully and prayerfully, so that we can adjust ourselves as well as possible. It is no use regretting the change; we cannot hold it back. We are confronted by a great fact.

The Blue Book of Southern Progress

THE SOUTH has gone a mighty distance from the day when Henry W. Grady pictured the funeral of a southerner who was buried in coffin, shroud, shirt, shoes and all manufactured in distant northern states. We are reminded of this great transition by the Blue Book of Southern Progress for 1928, published by the Manufacturers Record of Baltimore and sent the Record-News with the compliments of the Texas Electric Service company.

The Blue Book places before us the mighty panorama of southern progress. It is all given in fact and figures which must encourage and inspire all leaders in this mighty movement.

The Blue Book gives an impressive comparison of the present wealth and productive power of the South with that of the United States as a whole in 1900 showing that in many lines the South alone now almost equals and in some cases exceeds that of the whole country 28 years ago. Here are a few items quoted from the Blue Book:

"In 1927 the wealth of the South was approximately $80,000,000,000, or within $8,000,000,000 of the total wealth of the United States in 1900.

"In 1925, the latest census figure available, the manufactured products of the South amounted to $10,872,000,000, while in 1900 the manufactured products of the United States totaled $11,406,000,000, or less than 10 per cent larger than that of the South in 1925.

"The total value of cotton manufactured in the United States in 1900 was $339,000,000. In 1925 the South manufactured cotton goods to the extent of $938,000,000.

"With a furniture manufacturing output of $142,861,000 the South is ahead by over $10,000,000 of the manufactured furniture of the United States in 1900.

"The mineral output of the South, in 1926, was $2,016,205,000, or $28,961,000 more than the total mineral output of the United States in 1910 and nearly double the country's production of 26 years ago.

"The coal production of the South last year was 273,297,000 tons, as compared with 269,000,000 tons for the United States in 1900, while the production of petroleum in the South in 1927 was 566,084,000 barrels, or nearly three times the total petroleum output of the United States in 1910. The South is now producing 63 per cent of the country's output and 40 per cent of the world's production.

"The value of farm products in the South last year was $5,672,000,000, as compared with $4,777,000,000 for the United States in 1900.

"The value of exports through Southern ports last year was $194,000,000 more than the total from the entire country in 1900.

"The total bank resources of the South last year were $10,124,000,000, compared with $10,785,000,000 in 1910 for the entire country; while individual bank deposits in 1927 in the South were $7,329,867,000, as compared with $7,268,900,000 in the United States in 1900.

"Within the last few years the development of highway building has become one of the outstanding features of the business of the entire country. The part which the South is playing in this great economic movement is indicated by the expenditure in 1927 on highways of $800,899,000 by the South as compared with a total of $240,000,000 for the United States in 1914.

"Perhaps no more striking illustration could be given of the advance o fthe South than the fact that last year the South spent on public schools $426,200,000, as compared with $214,964,000 for the United States in 1900. Or, in other words, the South spent in 1927 nearly double the entire amount spent in 1900 on public education, although the population of the United States in 1900 was almost double that of the South of today.

"During the fiscal year of 1927 the South paid into the internal revenue department of the federal government $468,257,000, an increase of $51,900,000 over the preceding year, while for the rest of the country during this period the amount of taxes paid to the federal government was $22,200,000 less than for the preceding year.

"Hydro-electric developments in the South are requiring the expenditure of hundreds of millions of dollars, and for the last two years nearly one-half of the total increase in water power development in the United States was in the South.

"The South now has 6,091,834 automobiles, about as many as the United States had in 1918, and its motor vehicle registration about equals that of all the world outside of the United States.

"During 1927 Southern construction contracts, more than one-half being for building projects, amounted to about $1,000,000,000, while public improvements to keep step with rapidly growing communities necessitated the issuing during the year of $482,164,000 of bonds. These figures cover the totals as published in the Construction News columns of the Manufacturers Record and its Daily Bulletin."

The list goes on to include many other lines of activity and resources. All of it is given in many tables and articles with many illustrations in the Blue Book which will be found invaluable for reference.

When to Be Nonchalant

The Day Book of a New Yorker

By CLARK KINNAIRD.

NEW YORK, June 18.—Zealous efforts of Earl Carroll to wipe out memories of his recent stay in Atlanta prison with a musical revue exceeding in gorgeousness anything ever done on Broadway, has sent the beauty market shooting up and started a war among producers. Carroll has been raiding other shows for pulchritude, winning girls with record salary offerings.

Despite exaggerated reports to the contrary, Flo Ziegfeld has been paying his prize beauties $65 a week, with most of the girls getting less. Other producers have lower salary scales. Carroll is offering from $125 to $200 a week for the best lookers, among them Gladys Glad, Katheryn Burke and Dolores Grant. These are "show girls" as distinguished from chorus girls. They need not have singing or dancing talent; all they have to do is look pretty.

The "champagne bath" man intends to charge $11 nightly for first floor seats. No Broadway revue has ever obtained so much, except for openings.

Beauties of the class mentioned above sometimes earn more outside of a show than they do in—as long as they are in it. Being a member of the chorus of a famous hit gives them added value as models for artists, advertising illustrations, etc., and as after-show performers in night clubs. They also are much sought as mannequins for style shows and as movie extras. Girls who draw $500 a week dividends from beauty are not exceptional.

Despite the demand for statuesque beauties, Broadway is thronged with jobless chorines. Girls from road shows. Girls from burlesque. Girls from movie revues. Girls from shows that aren't so particular about face and figure. Conditions always are made worse at this season of the year by the influx of newcomers; every college and every town contributes its quota. The attractiveness of Hollywood has not made Broadway any less a magnet.

The seasoned campaigners among the girls form groups to live cooperatively during the lean period. Some depend on remittances from homes they don't want to go to. Many impose on landladies who are used to being paid only in winter. Some get vacation jobs in stores, or go to resorts as waitresses or hostesses. When autumn suggests itself, all flock back to what is to them the only street in the world, frequently quitting good jobs to gamble for poorer ones. Show business never releases its hold upon the affections of those it captures.

I am pleased to report that the demand for college boy jazz players has fallen off. Café and restaurant men and resort operators, noting a return to favor of slower music and sweeter pieces, are reducing their orchestras and changing programs to conform to the new trend. Radio is making it unnecessary for many smaller places to have musicians.

There is, however, a larger call for college boys who quality as bridge experts. Resort employment agencies report a demand for boys who can instruct guests in the game or act as partners for lone wives.

Helpful Abraham

Ikey had just purchased a brand new second-hand car which was supposed to be very fast. So Ikey, with his little boy Abraham, went out to the big highway to try out the new purchase.

"Abraham," said Ikey, "I'm going to see how fast this boat'll go; you keep a lookout in back, and if you see a man on a motorcycle with a blue suit on and a silver badge, you let me know."

So Ikey stepped on the gas and Abraham turned around. Ikey kept going faster and faster finally, as the speedeop pulled up alongside, Abraham pops up:

"Poops, the man who you iss waiting for iss here."

JIM TULLY'S RECONCILIATE

Literary Trio Brings Pair Together Again

HOLLYWOOD, June 17. (US)—Jim Tully and his wife are together again.

A distinguished trio—Judge Ben B. Lindsey, Rupert Hughes and H. L. Mencken—is credited with the reconciliation.

Enemies caused by his writings on motion-picture subjects are blamed by Tully for the brief estrangement.

"In the past three years I have written many interviews with motion picture people," said Tully, former hobo and prizefighter, now author and playwright. "I have stood along in saying what I thought, even to the extent that I did not think there was a genius in the town. This has horrified many people who were swollen with the importance of their little ephemeral day.

Receives Threats

"Threatening letters have come to me. Many vicious attacks have been made upon me. But I did not think that I might possibly be attacked through my home.

"Then, mysterious telephone messages came. Ladies with musical voices wanted to meet me.

"My married life has been extraordinarily happy. My home is my citadel.

"Several weeks ago I realized that my wife's attitude towards me had changed.

"They got me in my most vulnerable spot—my home. My wife's mind was poisoned against me. She left the house Monday morning. Instead of her returning home that evening, I was served with divorce papers at the dinner hour.

Friends to His Aid

"Immediately my friends tried to communicate with my wife. They found that she had been taken to a sanitarium suffering from a nervous breakdown.

"A reconciliation has been effected. Now she is home with me."

Friends of Tully, had bestirred themselves when they heard of the separation.

"Since you are in jail, love your jailer," read a telegram, sent to Tully by Mencken, well known both as a writer and a bachelor.

"You are the one fish that has come to me that has developed beyond the sardine stage," wrote Rupert Hughes, the arthor.

"Companionate separate" is only for those who cannot make a go of marriage," said Judge Lindsey.

Today Mrs. Tully said:

"The day I separated from Jim was the saddest day of my life.

"This is the happiest."

30 Reported Killed In Moscow Rioting

LONDON, June 17. (AP)—A dispatch to the Daily Mail from Warsaw quotes Moscow messages as saying 18 workmen and 12 members of the secret political police were killed and 87 workmen and 40 police severely injured in a riot Thursday which resulted from attempts by the police to disperse a demonstration of unemployed.

There has been no confirmation of this report.

The Long and Lonesome Ride

By GEORGE ADE

One pleasant morning the President of the Society for Promoting the Illicit Importation of Scotch Merchandise awoke after a balloon voyage which began six feet below sea level in a private rathskeller and finished 2000 feet above the previous altitude record.

When he came to he discovered that the pillow had climbed over on top of him and was trying to work the half-Nelson, while a large pile-driver was beating a rhythmical tattoo on the tender bean.

He had a temperature of 102 and his ears were hanging down. Also, during the period of coma some one had extracted the eyes and substituted two hot door-knobs.

After he had decanted a miniature Niagara on to the smoking coppers and removed his collar, he felt his way over to the window and denounced in unmeasured terms an English sparrow that had perched on the sill, merely to annoy him.

In a little while he remembered that he was a resident of the planet known as earth. Soon after that his name came back to him and then he recalled his boyhood and the fact that when he passed the paronage the Presbyterian minister parsonage the Presbyterian minister would ask him to pick some of the lilacs and snowballs and take them down home to his sister Alice.

From that point he groped through his life history up to the twilight on which the regulars had arranged a send-off for old Buck, who was pulling out for Seattle.

In order that Buck should remember them as true friends, they had covertly planned to get him saturated to the eye-balls and then slip him on to his new home, spread out in stateroom B, with long-stemmed roses laid across the remains. This form of homicidal gayety is perpetrated under the name of American hospitality.

Our hero remembered the polite get-away on the low speed with everybody respectable, after which the fountains started to gush and kind friends began to come up out of the ground bearing fairy gifts of a liquid variety. Somewhat later in the evening he found himself balanced on one toe on a swiftly-moving cloud, announcing to the stars of night that he was a true sport.

In other words, he realized, as he sat humped over in the Morris chair, holding on to the head, lest it should fall off and roll across the floor, that he had been snooted for fair, plastered, ossified, benzoated, piped, pickled, spifflicated, corned, raddled, obfuscated, soused and ory-eyed.

Six hours before, he had stood on a table and declared for the brotherhood of man, and now he craved but one companion and that was old Colonel R. E. Morse.

Standing over in the sunlight by the window, where he could see the innocent shop-girls going blithely to their $9 a week, he lifted the trembling right mitt clear above his head and then and there declared himself to be on the cart until the great celestial bodies should skid in their orbits and the globe itself dissolve into vapor.

Just as he pronounced the words, "Never A-gen," he felt a great flood of worthy resolutions arising in his new moral nature. He would buy a Winchester automatic and devote the remainder of his wasted life to shooting up those who had some put away. And when he died, the whole estate would go to the anti-Saloon league.

Just after he had double-strapped himself to the wagon and started up Seltzer avenue, he realized that an immediate hooker would be worth $15,000 to him, but he took on about two gallons of water and stood firm.

That afternoon the survivors of the midnight massacre got together at a club to compare hangovers and find out what had happened after the earthquake.

Our hero appeared just as one of the Hip brothers was getting ready to throw a life line. He was greeted with a ribald shout and told to come running and save himself.

The moment had arrived for him to be a man. He drew himself together and made the announcement.

For a moment they were stunned by the impact and then every son of Peoria leaned back and let out a yowl. To think that a real up-to-date fellow would pull any of that old stuff! A puny mortal trying to get a toe-hold on the demon!

They told him to forget it and quit his spoofing and remove his overshoes and ease a couple of gills into his reservoir and try to be a human being, however painful the effort.

He came back with a few gems from the family medicine book about the effect of the accursed stuff on various organs. He did not propose to feed himself anything that would cut the varnish off of woodwork. The hard stuff has passed out of his life.

The cackles died away and were succeeded by looks of blank dismay. They saw that one whom they had long regarded as a reliable bench-working union lush had turned in his card and deliberately made himself an outcast.

They saw him order Vichy and go to it as if it were a beverage, and then they tore up his credentials and burned his photograph and told him to go out to a 3-days cure and take a hypodermic of hot mush.

He sat back and pulled the grim smile which Savafarola wore when they piled the faggots around him. He was a martyr and proud of his job. By the same token there is no brand of rectitude that grades so pure and spotless as that exhibited by the disinfected dove who has not touched a drop for nearly 24 hours.

They saw him go home with a magazine under his arm, and then they sat around until all hours, lapping it up and progging his finish. They said he never would last a week, and when he fell it would be some splash.

They began to issue daily bulletins and watched the case with much anxiety because they really liked the old scout in spite of his eccentricities. When they learned, at the end of a week, that he had played buttermilk to a standstill all up and down the quick lunch circuit and was at his desk every morning with his face clean and a flower in his coat, they called a meeting of the vigilantes and decided that the joke had been carried far enough.

In the meantime, our hero had learned two new kinds of solitaire and began to call around for a dish of tea with some distant female relative who had long supposed him dead. Along about the cocktail hour he would find himself sitting first in one chair and then in another, but he cashed big every morning when he awoke and found that Henry Ratzenjammer was not sitting on the foot-board making faces at him.

Only, sometimes he would stop on a corner and look all about him and up at the buildings and wonder if the town had always been as quiet as at present.

After he had struck for a fortnight, the desperate envoys from the Indian camp went after him for keeps. They held it in front of him and splashed it on his clothes and begged him to step aboard with them and go right up to the roof garden.

Probably if they had let him alone he would have come sneaking back into the reservation to watch the red shirtiigigs and pick a few of those night-blooming Martinis, but when they tried to stampede him, the old New England stock asserted itself, so he substituted rivets for straps.

He is now the honored associate of those who play cribbage in their own homes and eat apples before turning in. But if you want to get a line on his real character, just ask the still wet brothers. They will tell you that he wasn't there with the strength of character, so he simply sank out of sight.

Moral: The way of the ex-transgressor is hard.

G.O.P. Conclave Proves Convention City Can't be Dry, Says Stewart

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Staff Writer for Central Press and The Record News

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 17.—Doc Doran, the prohibition boss-in-chief, swore to high heaven the latter part of May that he'd dry up Kansas City and Houston in convention time so that a scorpion would die of thirst, and I thought it really might be done.

I never have seen any place dried up yet, but it did seem as if even our inadequate force of prohibition enforcement officials concentrated on two rather small spots, one after the other, might turn the trick locally and temporarily.

I will state that if Kansas City proves anything, it can't be done. I wait now to see how it works in Houston. If Houston yields the same result that I've seen here, I shall be discouraged.

My experience is not theoretical or anything like that. What I mean is that Kansas City, during the Republican convention, has been wetter than New York. The drinks were forced on you, that's what. I've no fault to find. I merely record it as a fact.

Prayer Beats Him

How a political party with any sense of humor can open a national convention with prayer beats me.

To have a chaplain pray for the country when congress convenes isn't so illogical. Lord knows, the country needs praying for at such times. But to have a bishop get up at a convention and ask Divine guidance in the choice of a candidate, not knowing but that the Almighty's selection may be overruled at the polls—well, gosh!

They have in Kansas City a tower erected in memory of the nation's dead, and from the top of it arises an eternal flame, quite a large flame, a flame that would do credit to a blast furnace. And it's an impressive sight, I'm here to remark, seen glimmering luridly after dark.

The only thing that detracts from the grandeur of the scene is the knowledge, after you've been awed by it a few evenings in succession, that they shut it off at a certain hour every night. It's eternal, otherwise.

What I was about to say was that the same evening it became evident Secretary Hoover seemed a certainty for the nomination. Kansas City turned off its light. It may not have been much earlier than usual, but they turned it off.

Nomination Unpopular

Herbert's nomination certainly was not popular in the town where it took place.

Perhaps that's natural. Kansas City's nominee is Jim Reed.

Jim will have a special train to Houston. Me and my pal, Bill Davy, may travel on it. "To be sure," said John Johnson, the news editor of the Journal Post, offering to fix it up, "you'll doubtless have to pay your fares, but you'll have the fun of riding with Jim Reed."

Democratic Atmosphere

My advice to travelers is not to take the same train as Bill Borah. Bill Davy and I arrived in Kansas City on the train with him, and it was a mistake. (Bill's of Central Press.)

The senator assembles an audience in the dining car, and that's the last chance the other passengers have of getting anything to eat.

Several other senators also were on the train, but their pulling power was weaker, though they mostly had a stronger pull when they got here, the so-called strong statesman with the public being usually a weak sister on a convention floor.

The atmosphere, in short, is Democratic in Kansas City, but it doesn't follow that it won't be Republican in Texas. The fact is the atmosphere is changing all around.

Buenos Aires-Berlin Conversation Held

BUENOS AIRES, June 17. (UP)—A sustained conversation by radio telephone between Buenos Aires and Berlin was held this afternoon with completely satisfactory results, the voices being heard as clearly as if the speakers were in adjoining rooms.

L. B. Haas, United Press manager in Buenos Aires, and Frederick Kuh, manager for the United Press in Berlin, carried on a prolonged conversation and a representative of the newspaper La Razon greeted Kuh on behalf of the director of his paper.

The demonstration was prepared by the Trans-Radio International.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 17. (UP) Creation of a $12,000,000 fund to assure payment of all life insurance claims of members of the Brotherhood of Firemen and Enginemen when they reach the age of 70 was approved at the organization's convention here.

The beneficiary reserve fund which will be for the special and explicit purpose of paying claims when members reach old age will be set aside at once and it is believed the interest of the amount will pay the policies.

Hoover's Nomination Emphasizes Reed

ST. LOUIS, June 17. (AP)—Senator Harry B. Hawes of Missouri, who arrived today from Washington, declared the nomination of Herbert Hoover, "emphasized reasons why Democrats should select as their candidate Senator James A. Reed."

"There is opportunity for a real issue," he said, "a bureaucrat of 20 years British training versus a great Jacksonian Democrat whose entire public service has been devoted to America."

Favorite Jokes of Famous People

As Told by Them to
FRANK ERNEST NICHOLSON

MAYOR JIMMY WALKER

Presenting dapper Jimmy Walker, the mayor of New York City, who, as a traveling mayor, is rivaled only by Will Rogers.

Of course, it's the berries to be the mayor of the largest city in the United States, but, after all, New York, especially since prohibition, is pretty much of a "hic" town.

One thing can be said for New York—it's a town where your little worries are the other fellow's troubles—if they involve him.

Of late Jimmy has been the central figure against the fight to raise the subway fare in New York from five to seven cents. The public is howling about poor service. The strap-hangers' complaint seems to be one of long standing.

If Jimmy doesn't succeed in keeping the fare at a nickel there'll be more walkers than riders in New York City.

Jimmy Walker is also famous for his spontaneous wit. One of the best of his right-off-the-handles was flung at a blowout he attended as an innocent bystander instead of in his usual role as master of ceremonies.

But Jimmy couldn't escape before he was called upon to say a few words, so, mounting a platform the mayor began: "Ladies and gentlemen, as Marc Anthony said when he lifted the flap of Cleopatra's tent, 'I did not come here to talk—'"

"It seems to me that the funniest incident I recall," Hizzoner told me, "occurred at the time the Alaskan reindeer herders brought reindeer meat to New York for Christmas dinners. The main event of their show was the Alaskan sleigh dogs they brought with them. I had been asked to pose with the dogs for a newspaper picture, so I donned a fuzzy fur coat which I had just acquired and walked out onto the steps of the city hall.

"Immediately the largest of the dogs dashed up to me and enjoyed a few smells of my shaggy fur coat, barked joyfully and began lunging about me in wild abandon. Now," the mayor finished, "the point is: Which did the dog recognize as his brother—the coat or me?"

HEALTH and DIET ADVICE

By DR. FRANK McCOY
Author of "The Fast Way to Health"

Questions in regard to health and diet will be answered by Mr. McCoy who can be addressed in care of this paper.

Advice to Correspondents

During the many years that I have been writing for publication, it has always been my object to make my newspaper service as valuable as possible to by readers, and I am always willing to answer questions by mail, so that I may give information in the individual cases that are troubling my readers. As a result, my correspondence reaches an average of 20,000 to 30,000 letters each month. You can see that the letters written to me should be as short as possible in fairness to one another.

Today I received three letters which required about 40 minutes each for reading, and these letters could probably have been condensed into four or five lines, which would have saved my time materially.

Those of you who correspond with me may wonder how I can answer so many thousands of letters. The simple fact is that I have systematized the work so that no time is lost. I have a staff of several licensed doctors, five secretaries, together with stenographers, mail clerks and file clerks employed constantly under my personal supervision. All of these people have been especially trained for their work.

Because the different problems that confront most health seekers require much more information than can be given in a short letter, I have prepared thousands of special articles upon subjects relating to the cause and cure of different diseases, so when you write to me, in addition to my necessarily short reply, I enclose thousands of words of advice on the subject upon which you are vitally interested. These special articles have been written in advance so that you may receive an answer to your letter in a very few days. You can help me a great deal and also yourself and the cause of health education in which I am interested, if you will make your letters short and to the point, trying to keep them to one or two hundred words.

My greatest problem is that many of the correspondents insist upon asking me to diagnose their disorders, which of course can not be done by correspondence. This work is in the field of your family physician. If you have been properly diagnosed, and know the name of the disorder from which you are suffering, I am always willing to send you my opinion about the method of treatment that I believe would be best, but I will not criticise the opinions of other doctors nor attack any method of treatment which I am not advocating. I am too busy giving you useful advice to use space in this column or in my correspondence for criticism of other methods.

On some days the mails to my office are very crowded and letters must necessarily await their turn, so that it may take a little longer for you to receive your reply than I would like. It is not necessary for you to send two or three letters to follow the first if you do not receive an answer as soon as you expect. I can not answer every letter in this column, and if you desire a reply you must send your name and a large stamped envelope with your return address.

I am attempting to give practical information in a simple manner so that it will be understood by any one, and I am happy in the knowledge that these messages are read daily by several million people on the North American continent. My newspaper service has grown rapidly within the last few years, and I believe that today it is the largest of its kind in the world. This column is written with the one object in view of giving people a better understanding of how to preserve their health and to have health more abundantly.

Questions and Answers

Question—Mary W. writes: "I have black lines running before my eyes, especially upon going out into the light. It is making me very nervous, since there is no let-up to them. Would an average of three cups of coffee a day cause this?"

Answer—The black lines are probably caused by some form of liver trouble which of course might be made worse by drinking so much coffee. Have a good diagnosis made by a physician and also by an optometrist. When you are sure of the cause of your trouble, the cure lies in simply removing that cause, whatever it may be.

Question—Mrs. O. H. G. asks: "Why do I have such a time trying to make raspberry jelly jell, when I have no trouble with apples or quinces?"

Answer—Your trouble comes from the fact that raspberries contain practically no pectin, which is necessary before cooked fruits will thicken or jellify. There is a generous supply of this substance in such fruits as apples, quinces, currants, gooseberries and guavas, hence their jellifying qualities.

Question—Miss W. C. writes: "I wonder if you would give in your health column your opinion of cigaret smoking."

Answer—Moderate cigaret smoking is not necessarily harmful, provided you do not inhale the smoke. It is not now believed that nicotine is taken into the system through smoking, but is burned and destroyed by the fire. However, if you inhale any tarry-like substance it is deposited in the lungs, and this is decidedly harmful.

Highways in Young County Rain Damaged

OLNEY, Texas, June 17.—The dump or grade on the new highway has been considerably damaged by the recent heavy rains, and in one of two places between here and Orth it has been washed out for some two or three hundred feet. In a few days this will be repaired and will again be open to traffic.

Dry creek, just south of town, near the Clark ranch, was reported higher than it has been for years, and it ran over the highway fill at this point for more than a hundred yards. Salt creek was also on a rampage, and the highway was under water at that crossing.

SPUDS WHALE STEERS IN DOUBLE HEADER TO TAKE 4 IN ROW

CHAMPS MACE 31 BASE HITS

Bat Hard in Both Games; Cobb Hurls Effectively

By LARRY DAILEY
Record News Sports Editor

Our Spudders are on a rampage. Any doubt that the champions will finish fighting one-two-three in the first half and that they will be foremost flag contenders the second half was removed yesterday when they took a double-header from the Dallas Steers out at the orchard. The scores were 14 to 7 and 9 to 1 and it was four straight wins over the Steers. The victories yesterday also made it eight triumphs in the last nine games.

The Spudders now are only one game behind the Fort Worth Cats, who lost a double header to Shreveport yesterday. We are trailing the leading Buffs nine games, too great a handicap this half, probably. But "wait 'till the second half," is the cry of the Spudders and fans here, and that optimism is justified in the play of the champions, who have won seven straight, in addition to the last eight out of nine.

The Spudders pounded Bob Geary and Tiny Owens for 19 hits in the first game. Eldred, Jenkins and Lapan clouted home runs. Brick's drive coming in the fifth with two comrades on the base lines. Jenkins then followed Eldred with another circuit smash and Lapan hit his home run in the next inning with one runner on.

All Spudders Hit

Every Spudder had at least one hit and Lapan was the leader with four. Eldred maced three safeties. Benton, Turgeon, Swenson and Stanton each clouted twice.

Joe Kiefer started on the hill for the Spudders but was relieved in the sixth by Tom Estill, after yielding six runs and 11 hits. Running around the base paths in the preceding inning in the boiling sun wasn't any too good for Joe and when the Steers started a bombardment in the sixth he made way for the spitballer. Tom held the hostiles to only one hit the rest of the route.

Rosenthal led the Steer attack with three hits, one a double.

Herbert Cobb silenced the bats of the Ellisonmen in the nightcap. Only four blows were made off the delivery of the Tar Heel, a home run by Hack Miller, the strong man, scoring their only tally.

Stanton Gets Three Doubles

The Spudders shelled Petit for 12 blows, one of which was a circuit smash by Turgeon with one aboard. George Stanton crashed three doubles, driving home three runners and scoring twice himself. Joe Cobb had two hits in as many time up and Lamb and Jenkins each whaled a brace of blows.

Stanton's "three for three" in the second game made him five hits out of eight times up for the two games. Jenkins had three in seven, Lamb three in nine, Benton three in eight and Turgeon three in nine. Eldred's hitting in the opener gave him three in eight.

Rosenthal set the stick pace for the enemy with five blows in eight times at bat, including a double and a triple.

Steers Score First

The Steers scored a tally in the first inning of the opening game. O'Brien singled but was forced by Mann. Singles by Rosenthal and Ellison scored Mann.

Dallas added two in the third. Mann and Rosenthal hit safely to center and advanced on Ellison's sacrifice. They both scored on Miller's single to center.

The Spudders counted four in the third. Singles by Lapan and Benton and Mann's error on Turgeon's grounder to his left, filled the bases. Lamb singled to left, scoring Lapan and Benton. Eldred's drive to center scored Turgeon and sent Lamb to third and Lyman scored on Jenkins' life to Rosenthal.

Rosenthal walked, went to second while Swenson was tossing out Ellison and tallied on Miller's single to left to tie the count in the fifth. But the Spudders came back with six in their half of the same round.

Spuds Score Six

Benton was safe on Morse's error. Turgeon singled. Lamb forced Benton at third. Eldred hit a home run over the left field wall, scoring Turgeon and Lamb ahead of him. Jenkins whacked over the left-center barrier for a home run. Swenson singled. Owen went to the hill and Stanton singled. Lapan hit to right, Swenson scoring and Stanton going to third. Kiefer dropped a safe hit into right, scoring Stanton.

The Steers made their last bid in the sixth with three tallies. Morse singled but was forced by Seimer. Owen popped to Turgeon. O'Brien, Mann and Rosenthal doubled, Seimer, O'Brien and Rosenthal scoring. Estill relieved Kiefer and Ellison skied to Turgeon to end the Steers' threat.

Williams' men counted their last four in the sixth. Eldred singled but was forced by Jenkins. Swenson walked. Stanton singled, Jenkins scoring. Lapan hit over the left field fence for a home run, Stanton trotting home ahead of Pete.

All Spudders in Second

It was all the Spudders and Herb Cobb's own game in the second affair. After Hack Miller clouted his home run over the left field wall in the second inning the champions counted a quartet of tallies in their half.

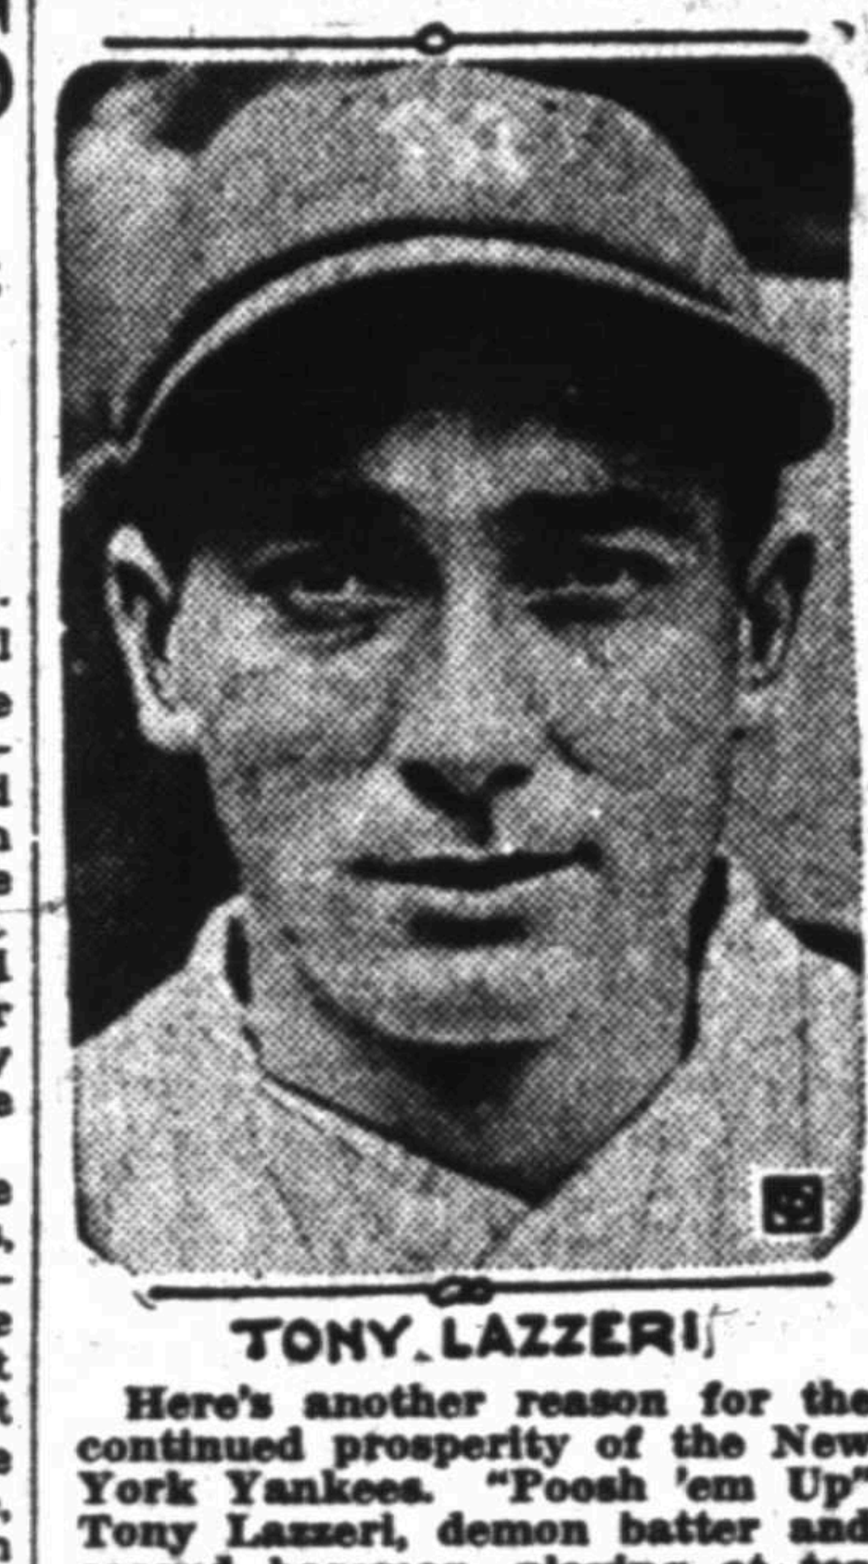

Singles by Jenkins and Swenson were followed by Stanton's first double to score his comrades. Cobb's single to left tallied Stanton, Joe going to third when the ball rolled past Rosenthal. Benton singled to center, scoring Joe.

The Spudders scored five in the sixth. Jenkins singled and was sacrificed to second by Swenson. Stanton's third two-base smash scored Tom. Joe Cobb doubled to left, Stanton scoring. Joe scampered to third on Herb's lift to O'Brien. O'Brien dropped Benton's long fly, Joe scoring. Turgeon hit over the left-center wall, tallying Benton ahead of him.

NEW YORK, June 17. Notes of the Game

The final game of the Spudder-Steer series, scheduled here today has been transferred to Dalls to permit the clubs to make train connections tonight to start their swings around the southern half of the league.

The champions will not be home until July 5, when the second half of the schedule will be under way.

Start of the first game yesterday scheduled for 2:30 o'clock, was delayed several minutes by slowness of the umpires in showing up.

Billy Mullen, Steer third baseman who recently joined that club threw his "trick" knee out of place while rounding second base in the first game and was carried off the field. Fortunately, the Steers have an excellent third baseman in Joe Tate available.

Herb Cobb pitched out of a hole in the fourth inning when with runners on second and third he fanned the hard-hitting Hack Miller and caused Tate and Morse to ground out to Turgeon.

Wally Swenson's peppery chatter and fielding are great assets in the defensive play of the Spudders.

In addition to hitting hard, Stanton played a corking game yesterday. He started a fast double play in the nightcap.

Convention Visitors To See Real Ranches

HOUSTON, Texas, June 17.—There aren't as many large ranches in Texas as one would believe after reading of the "good old days," but there are still some extensive holdings near Houston, visitors at Democratic convention time the latter part of this month will learn. On some of these lands roam Brahmas, sacred cattle of India. On one ranch is a full-blooded herd, the only kind of its type in the south, particularly adaptable to the Texas coast country as they are immune to the destructive cattle tick.

TEN-MILE ROOF

HOUSTON, Texas, June 17.—Roofing squares totaling 1475, in 32-inch rolls, placed atop the coliseum built for the Democratic national convention which will be opened here June 26, would cover 10½ miles if laid end to end.

Ritt's Ritticisms

By BILL RITT

The National league has discovered that both kinds of Reds are tough boys to monkey with—Communist and Cincinnati.

The Cincy Reds are bad-mannered fellows. They don't seem to care that they are supposed to be a second division club.

The Cubs have the team spirit, the Giants the reputation and the Dodgers the philosophy—but the Reds are on top.

Once the Reds get hold of first place they are as hard to dislodge as a hungry neighbor at supper time.

The Reds heretofore have been about as successful as an Alabama Republican. They won one pennant in 60 years.

Many years ago the Reds won 87 games in a row. What's funny about this is that none of the games were with the Phillies.

There is one thing the Reds may be overlooking as they dash eagerly for a pennant. If they win they'll have to meet the Yankees.

Boxing Fails to Draw Patronage Against Other Big Attractions

Experience of Kansas City Promoter Convention Week Only Repetition of Previous Financial Flops

By DAMON RUNYON
(Copyright, 1928, By Universal Service, Inc.)

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 17.—Some Kansas City boxing promoters committed one of those errors that seem inevitable to the dear old manly art wherever a glove is swung. The experience or other promoters doesn't mean a thing, aparently.

The terror was in scheduling a boxing show for a night last week when the Republican national convention is afoot. The show was supposed to have been held Tuesday night, but the weather was threatening, and the advance sale was only about 35 simoleons, so the matter was put over to the following night.

Then the attendance was just fair and it wasn't a bad card, at that. The promoters simply picked the worst time they possibly could. It has been demonstrated over and over again that boxing is no good when a political convention, or a big event of any kind is on in a town.

Tommy Loughran, the light heavyweight champion of the world, and Joe Sekyra, played to a crowd that was a loser for the promoter in Louisville the night before the Derby. George Tex Rickard tried a show in New York when the Democratic convention was in session there four years ago and it was only so-so, financially.

You see, when the boys are attending a political convention they want to stand around and talk politics in the evening, rather than see a boxing bout and when they are on hoss racing bent they want to talk hoss racing, not the manly art.

Boxing Benefits Them All

On the other hand a great boxing show, such as one of Mr. George Tex Rickard's world's heavyweight championship affairs, has a different reaction entirely.

The clients who assemble a few days in advance from all quarters of the land, eagerly patronize the race tracks, ball yards, the theaters, and other amusements, still find time to stand around to punch the bag about the business in hand.

But you can't mix boxing with politics and make the money with boxing. The Kansas City promoters have found that out. They haven't been drawing any too well around here even when there were no delegates in town.

I ran into Tommy Dixon last night. He was a well known boxer out of Kansas City a few years ago. Now he is a chubby little man who is connected with the baths in the Kansas City Athletic club. Dixon was a real good boy in his day.

He is looking after Tiny Roebuck, the Indian heavyweight, who was formerly a football player at Haskell. Roebuck is a huge fellow and a fair sort of prospect, though he was recently belted out by Otto Von Porat, the Norweigian, in Chicago.

Roebuck seems to be something of an athletic club protege—the Paul Berlenbach of Kansas City in his club following. The New York Athletic club used to follow Berlenbach to a man in the days when he was first starting out under old Dan Hickey. Then the athletic club boxing instructor.

Babe Hunt Looks Good

There is a heavyweight down at Ponca City, Okla., named Babe Hunt, who is said to look very good. Roebuck is boxing him in the near future.

Tommy Dixon was giving Babe Hunt quite a boost to me. He says Babe is only about 19, and should be sent into the Ozarks for a year to rest up thoroughly, as he is commencing to burn out a bit. That nearly always happens to those big fellows who start boxing so young.

Tommy says Hunt is well over six feet, and weighs upwards of 190. He says he is dead game, and can punch hard. "He's got a little round pad, and a mean look," said Tommy. That's the kind of heavyweight to have. One that at least looks mean.

There is another heavyweight around Kansas City—Walter Rich. He broke a wrist about six months ago and hasn't been boxing since. They tell me he is something on the order of old Jess Willard, the Pottawatomie pounder, in physique, but faster. The Kansas City fanciers are convinced that Walker is dead game, which is half of it.

Down at Dodge City, in Kansas, is Augus Snyder, a Canuck heavyweight, who has succeeded Roy Hootburger as the pugilistic pride of those parts. Angus is managed by Harold Ripple, who had Roy Hoot and who sold Roy Hoot to patriotic citizens of Dodge City for $20,000. Then Roy Hoot commenced getting knocked out with astonishing regularity, though up to that time he had scored about 27 knockouts himself out of 29 battles. Or something like that.

Judge Landis Is Here

Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, the snow-peaked old warrior of baseball, has been in Kansas City the past few days, peering at the national convention. The judge did not seem intensely interested as he finally lured Mr. Arthur Bugs Baer, the humorist, out to a golf course, and gave him a brutal beating. I mean at golf.

The judge admits to 62 and may be holding out a few years, at that. He is as spry as a bantam rooster and is a golf nut in the first degree. He says everything is so peaceful in baseball that a man can finally hear himself think.

That demon athlete of the navy, Hon. Curtis D. Wilbur, is also among those present. It may be recalled that Mr. Wilbur, now the secretary of the navy, is the subject of a panel that has permanent place at Annapolis because he established a kick record years ago.

At last accounts, Secretary Wilbur was conducting himself very peaceably and leaving the kicking, hitch and otherwise, to the embattled farmers.

VANCE FANS 15, NEARS RECORD

Dazzy Blanks Cubs With Three Hits, 4 to 0

BROOKLYN, N. Y., June 17. (AP)—Dazzy Vance rose to spectacular heights here today when he struck out 15 Chicago batsmen while pitching a three-hit shutout victory. The Robins bunched their hits off Root to win 4 to 0.

Twice in the game, in the second and third innings and again in the sixth and seventh, Vance fanned five hitters in a row. Every regular in the Chicago batting order except Stephenson whiffed at least once. Beck fanned three times; English, Wilson, Cuyler, Grimm and Root twice each, while McMillan and Hartnett were victimized only once.

Fifteen strike-outs in nine innings approaches the modern national league record of 16 set by Nap Rucker 20 years ago. Twice in 1924, Van struck out 15 Chicago men in nine innings. Score:

BOTANY CONSOLIDATED MILLS, INC.

Five-Year Record

The Botany Consolidated Mills, Inc., are controlled by the Continental Textile company, Ltd. The company was formed in 1924 as a merger of the Garfield Worsted Mills and the Botany Worsted Mills of Passaic, N. J.

The plants form a complete unit for the manufacture of dress goods, cloakings and worsted yarns. The normal capacity is about 125,000 pounds of yarn and 325,000 yards of fabric yearly. An interest is held in two very large German textile groups and the Continental Textile company, Ltd., owns 250,000 common shares of the Botany company.

Profits have been variable. In 1927 there was a net loss of $839,220. This compared with a net loss of $4,485,457 in 1926. In 1925 a profit of $398,000 was made. Conditions improved strikingly in 1927 since a moderate operating income was shown as compared with a tremendous operating loss in 1926. Interest and miscellaneous reductions wiped out the profits in 1927.

Funded debt totals $9,456,000. Capital stock outstanding includes $5,000,000 in class A shares of $50 par value, and $480,129 shares of no par common. Class A stock has preference as to assets and cumulative dividends at the rate of $4 a year and participates with the common in any further dividends until it shall have received an aggregate of $7 a share in any year. It has no voting power except when dividends are in default for two years.

Dividends were paid on the class A up to May 15, 1926. None has been reported since. On February 15, 1928, the accumulated dividends amounted to $7 a share.

As of January 1, 1928, current assets totaled $17,890,983; current liabilities were $7,730,334 and net working capital $10,160,649.

LAMESA CROPS PROMISE MUCH

Fields Replanted After Hail And Rain

Special to the Record News

LAMESA, June 17.—Fine weather conditions continued in this section and crop conditions are very satisfactory. In parts of the county hail and heavy rains have caused farmers to plant over cotton and feed, but it is estimated that only about one-third of the county is touched. Farmers, wherever touched by hail or heavy rains hastened to replant and most all have finished, thereby getting ahead of last year's record on planting. Counting the excellent season now in the county it is predicted that all young cotton and feed will come up at once and start growing at just the rate needed. The replanting in the county will give the farmers at least three chances for different ages in cotton.

Most farmers of the county have their lands clean and well worked at this time. The popular blading of lands have been hurried after each rain and now there are few weeds to bother and the lands are in the best growing condition. The early cotton is now putting on its three and four leaves, while the later cotton is beginning ot put on the cotton leaves, it is reported.

Other crops are also being planted here as corn, maize, kaffir, broom corn and sunflowers. Although the acreage of feed has been cut substantially in the county, owing to crop growing conditions, it is now estimated that a bumper crop will be realized and one equal to last year, this fall. Business conditions in Lamesa and over the county are good.

Texas State House To Be Repainted

Special to The Record News

AUSTIN, Texas, June 17.—All outside doors and windows of the state house are to receive two coats of paint, it was decided by the state board of control and the work is to be done by C. R. Clark, state painter and a corps of assistants. The board called for bids to do the work but they were all rejected as being too high so the board decided the work should be done by the state.

It is expected the work will be completed within 30 days and the cost is estimated at $1500. Clark was authorized to employ as many painters as are needed for the successful completion of the job. Painters will be required to sign a waiver relieving the state from any liability during the progress of the work. It is expected the work will be started on Monday.

SAFETY FIRST RECORD

HOUSTON, Texas, June 17.—"Safety first" campaigners are pointing to Houston now that a construction record has been set in building the Democratic national convention coliseum. Seeking to have a suitable meeting place ready for the convention June 26, contractors builded the coliseum in 64 working days—without an accident to workmen.

TEXAS JUNIOR GOLF JULY 11

Boys Under 19 Eligible For Play at Houston

HOUSTON, Texas, June 11. (AP)—The Texas junior golf tournament to be held here July 11 to 14, inclusive, for boys of 19 and under, will be played on one of the most difficult courses in the state—the River Oaks Country club course.

Bobby Jones, nationally known amateur golfer, who played the River Oaks route, classed the thickly trapped course as one of the most difficult he had seen.

Club Pro Holds Record

The record on the 6371-yard course is 66, set by Jack Burke, club professional. Par is five strokes above that, and although the course is slightly shorter than the average it is considered more difficult because of the heavily trapped greens and fairways.

Among the outstanding contenders for the junior championship this year will be Reuben Albaugh of San Antonio, Jimmy Morgan of San Antonio and Dick Gregg of Houston. Albaugh is considered one of the coming amateurs in the state. Morgan, with a 78, tied for low score honors in the tournament over the Willow Springs course at San Antonio last year. Dick Gregg of Houston was runner-up in last year's tournament. Hush Carpenter of Dallas, winner in 1927, will not be eligible for competition this year as he has become a professional.

Finals July 14

Qualifying rounds will be played on July 11, the contenders then being segregated into two flights. Eliminations will be played July 12 and 13, with the finals on July 14.

As awards, loving cups will be given to the winners of the first and second flights and to the runner-up in the first flight.

A medal also will be awarded for low score.

Entries will be open until completion of the qualifying rounds, and should be made to Felix McKnight of San Antonio, president of the Texas Junior Golf association, or Dick Gregg of Houston, vice president.

Demos Smile At Nomination

AUSTIN, Texas, June 17.—Belief the Democratic party will carry several "doubtful" states which went republican the last two presidential election years, was expressed here, following the Hoover-Curtis nominations of the Republicans.

Texas Democrats believe Al Smith, as the expected nominee of their party, will carry New York and several New England states, including Massachusetts. They believe he will carry Pennsylvania and New Jersey, and a fringe of states between the "Solid South" and the Republican strongholds farther north.

Drive on Mid-West.

They believe, too, according to comment, the "sop" of the Republican selection of Curtis will not be sufficient to offset the pointed rebuff to the farm Republicans of the mid-West, and that the Democrats, with a strong farm-relief plank in their platform, will make extensive inroads into now-Republican farm states of the West.

Some were optomistic enough to predict the Democrats would regain California, which they pointed out gave Woodrow Wilson a majority in 1916 for his second term.

They felt ever though a New Yorker should lead the Democratic ticket, the party will have more to promise the farmers of the West than the Republicans have held out to them.

Wet Plank to Help

The Texas Democrats also insist that while the Republican dry plank was exceedingly mild, the expected race of Smith on an admittedly wet ticket will gather votes in doubtful states, though it may weaken the party's solidarity in Southern states whose majority support is assured. Texans do not see any serious split in the Democratic ranks over the indicated prospect that Smith will permit no dry plank whatever in the Democratic platform.

Altogether, the general sentiment here appeared to be as Senator Eugene Miller of Weatherford summed it up: "The Republicans did all they could at Kansas City to improve the Democratic prospects of victory in November."

"All Kiwanis" Night To Be Celebrated

The convention program at Seattle will be broadcast over radio station KFOA.

Two Bible Classes At First Methodist Church

Two classes, one on "Teachings of Jesus," and the other on "Missionary Messages in the Bible," will open at the First Methodist church Monday and will last two weeks. Mrs. E. L. Gerhardt will have charge of the missionary class which will meet at 7 o'clock in the evening on Monday, Wednesday and Friday.

E. F. Bohmfalk will direct the teachings class which will meet at 9:30 o'clock in the morning on the same days. These courses are a part of the educational program of the church.

Girl Musical Comedy Star Fatally Injured as Actors' Car Crashes

Accidents Claim Imposing List of Lives Including Former N. H. Senator and Six Young People

CHICAGO, June 17. (AP)—Miss Rosalie Claire, 23, one of the principals in "Sunny Days," a musical comedy playing here, died in a hospital here today following an automobile accident. Four other persons, actors and actresses, of the same company, were injured when their automobile crashed into a lamp post, while turning a corner.

William Tasek, 23, is suffering from a skull fracture which physicians said may prove fatal. Miss Audrey Maple, 23, and Bert Carnegie, 35, were badly bruised, but left the hospital after their injuries were dressed.

A negro driver and owner of the wrecked car suffered a broken jaw.

COUPLE BURNED IN PLANE CRASH

NASHUA, N. H., June 17. (AP)—Marcel Theriault, of Nashua, former state senator and Miss Katherine Thomas, 22, of Nashua, were burned to death when an airplane in which they were passengers caught fire and crashed to the ground today. George Lennox of Wichita, Kan., the pilot, was badly burned and is in a critical condition in the Nasua hospital.

FIVE YOUTHS DIE IN TROLLEY COLLISION

JAMESTOWN, N. Y., June 17. (AP) Five persons, three young men from Erie, Pa., and two young women of this city were instantly killed here early today when their automobile collided head-on with a trolley car.

The dead:

Ralph T. Baptist, 27, steel worker, driver of the car; Gertrude M. R. Johnson, 23; Ella Benson, 25, cook at the Y. W. C. A. hospital; J. C. Lewis, 22; Albert Byrnes, 22, machine operator.

The trolley car, was being taken to a nearby car house and according to witnesses, was traveling about five miles an hour. The automobile, which was said to be traveling at a high rate of speed, was driven across a viaduct in the opposite direction from that in which the trolley car was going.

The five bodies were hurled high into the air and the automobile, a light coupe, with a rumble seat, was demolished.

Third Candidate Enters Race For Legislature as Ballot Is Closed

Iowa Park Editor to Lead Constitutionals and Judge Scurry Harmonys in Battle for Party Control

Three men will be in the race for state representative from the 111th district, place 1, despite the withdrawal two days ago of the name of Roy J. Daniel, incumbent, it was learned Sunday.

The application as candidate for representative of Dr. Joseph Graves will go on the official Democratic primary ballot, following its receipt by E. C.DeMontel, county Democratic chairman, Saturday night. It is believed that a number of additional applications for places on the ballot for various positions will be received by Mr. DeMontel.

In addition to Dr. Graves, R. J. Long and F. G. Swanson previously had announced for the office of representative, district 111, place 1.

Fight for County Control

Prospects for a fight over control of the county executive committee between the constitutionalists and those opposing the "hog tieing" of delegates to conventions loomed late Saturday following receipt of a complete slate of the harmony group candidates for precinct chairmen. The constitutional leaders turned in 11 names for precincts within Wichita Falls and a candidate for precinct chairman late Saturday afternoon.

B. D. Sartin, leader of the ultra-dry wing on the party here, said that it was probably that out of town precincts also would be in the fight after the county chairman opens his mail Monday morning. Mr. Sartin said he was not sure that our town constitutionals had applied for precinct chairmanship, however.

It would seem, from the complete slate submitted by the harmony faction that the uninstructed partisans in Wichita county have again stolen a march on the constitutionals.

C. C. Hudson of Iowa Park headed the constitutional slate as a candidate for chairmanship of the executive committee. Edgar Scurry of Wichita Falls is advanced by the harmony group to oppose the Iowa Park editor.

Meeting Today

The names of 65 county offices, in addition to applicants for precinct chairmanships, will be certified or refused a place on the county ballot at a meeting of the county executive committee Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Other additions to the list already made public which are received Monday and postmarked prior to midnight Saturday also will be acted upon by the committee.

Cars will leave the chamber of commerce building at 7 o'clock, and will be decorated with Wichita Falls pennants and banners. Judge A. H. Britain is chairman of the delegation.

Valley Trains North Stopped

Service is temporarily suspended on the north branch of the Wichita Valley railway due to the danger of the bridge over the Red river, six miles north of Byers, going out.

Due to the high water, fear has been entertained that the bridge might go out at any time, and a force of men is reported at work on it.

At the Wichita Valley offices it was said the bridge probably will be in shape by Monday night so that service could be resumed. This trouble is all caused by recent rains and resulting high water, and has no relation to the tnado which hit a short distance north Saturday.

Famed Violinist Faces Sure Death

NEW YORK, June 17. (US)—Eugene Ysaye is dying.

The world famous violinist is suffering from diabetes and phlebitis at his home in Brussels, it was learned today at the home of his father-in-law, Dr. Herman Dincin, of Brooklyn.

Mme. Ysaye, now 28, married the distinguished virtuoso following a period of special violin training under his direction while the Belgian master was conducting the Cincinnati symphony. She toured Europe in concert, and was acclaimed one of the greatest women players of all time.

The marriage with Miss Dincin was characterized not as a combination of "youth and age" but of "perfect master and perfect pupil."

Syrian Sheik Visitor Here

world started, and will always be, the rule of the majority or of the fittest," he said.

He is a graduate of the school of European diplomacy in Paris, and has studied there under ministers and ambassadors who head the faculty. He lived in Paris for five years and likes it.

"We Syrians love America and the American people for the things for which they stand," he said. "They have stood for the weak and the oppressed peoples and have helped us. We, of the east, have a tender feeling for America.

"Especially is this true of Woodrow Wilson, one of the greatest men the world has ever known. His idea that the weak and oppressed should be given the protection and chance to govern themselves has caused us to have a feeling for him and America that never can be changed. As Syrians, we look up to him and honor his name and his efforts for the people of the far east.

U. S. Is Remembered

"My people are the loyal and abiding friends of the United States for its humanitarian efforts on Syria. Those Syrians who live here have a love for America that is not surpassed by any native Americans, and they and the people of Syria will co-operate with America in case of any difference with otehr nations."

The sheik told of a recent meeting with Horace Dodge, former president of the Dodge Brothers Motor company who sponsored and directed the destinies of the American university of Beirut. In it he paid high compliment to the Syrian culture as being superior to the European and equal to the best in the United States.

Traveling with the sheik is M. Zedan of Salt Lake City. While in Wichita Falls they are Mr. Kouri's guests. A. S. Kouri of Sulphur, Okla., is also a house guest of Mr. Kouri.

Sheik Ammen Hamada Bey plans to spend several months in the United States after leaving Wichita Falls.

Briscoe Joins Erie Club

Special to The Record News.

HOLLIS, Okla., June 17.—Albert (Hap) Briscoe, who, with Wilcey Moore, compose Hollis' gift to baseball, has signed with the Erie, Pa., team, and reported for practice last Friday, according to a letter received by his sister, Miss Pansey Briscoe.

Briscoe, who was director of athletics at Capitol Hill (Oklahoma City) high school during the past year, was signed with Syracuse to report in March, but was unable to leave his school duties at that time, and the contract was forfeited.

"Hap" is regularly a shortstop, but is a handy man in baseball on all occasions. He pitched for the University of Oklahoma team during the three years of his Missouri Valley eligibility. He also made three letters each in basketball and football while in the university.

Briscoe is a graduate of the Hollis high school and was an outstanding high school athlete. He served as athletic coach in Hollis high in 1922. In 1923 he went back to O. U. where he received his degree.

He has played baseball the past few summers with Ballinger, Lubbock, Waco and Dallas, Texas, and for a while with Cleveland. It was while playing with Waco last year that he was sold to Cleveland.

Policeman Held In Boy's Death

LAS VEGAS, Nev., June 17. (US) Sheridan Bradshaw, 5, died here today as the result of a bullet wound in his head, inflicted by Henry Diedrich, special patrolman.

Diedrich is being held in the county jail after admitting he fired the fatal shot.

The tragedy is the outgrowth of a chase by Police C. W. Bradshaw, father of the boy, who was suspected of illegally transporting liquor. Officers declared they attempted to head off Bradshaw's automobile by shooting at the tires. One of the bullets pierced the boy's head.

The mother of the slain lad declared the occupants of their car believed they were being pursued by a drunken driver and speeded up to avoid being crowded off the narrow roadway.

Deficiency May Be Asked For Pasteur Institute

AUSTIN, Texas, June 17.—The state board of control opened and held in abeyance all bids offered for the construction of a combination Pasteur institute and state laboratory. The lowest of the bids was $20,602, exclusive of contract for wiring, heating and plumbing.

The legislature made an appropriation of $25,000 for the building, which included wiring, heating and plumbing, so it was found by the board that the appropriation would be insufficient. The board will either ask for a revision of the bids or else ask the governor to allow a deficiency. The building proposed will be two stories and basement and is to be erected on a plot of ground owned by the state, situated on East Fifth street.

Another "Lizzie" Added To Municipal Zoo

Another "Lizzie" has been presented to the Lions club municipal zoo in Scotland park, according to announcements made Sunday by C. C. Bunnenburg, superintendent of parks.

"Lizzie" is an old fashioned Ford car, Mr. Bunnenberg explained. "Lizzie" is the zoo nickname for a Havolina hog, he explained. There is already one of these animals in the zoo, and the second was welcomed, he said. Both are females.

Dr. Graham Inspects Zoo at Kansas City

Dr. R. H. Graham, founder of the Lions club municipal zoo in Scotland park, has gone to Kansas City to inspect a number of zoo animals that are being offered for sale there. His trip is not a purchasing trip as he is simply getting a line on animals offered. Several elephants, Bengal tigers, and laughing hyenas are said to be available in the Missouri town.

Today At the Theaters

MAJESTIC: Billy Dove in "The Yellow Lilly." Fables. Topics. Paramount news.

STRAND: (Vitaphone pictures): Dolores Costello and Conrad Nagle in "Tenderloin." Johnny Marvin and company in instrumental and vocal music. Anna Case and company in "La Fiesta." Also Pathe news.

OLYMPIC: Tom Tyler in "When the Law Rides." Century comedy. Fox news.

GARDEN: "Riders in the Dark." Comedy.

GEM: "The Apache Raider." Comedy.

"The greatest entertainment of the year" is the way the present program at the Strand is being described by the thousands who have enjoyed it. With the single exception of the Pathe newsreel it is all vitaphone.

Herbert Hoover stopped the show, if a movie show can be stopped, at the Strand Sunday night when he was pictured by the Pathe news. Soon after there were some good old political arguments going on in the house. It probably will be Al's turn next.

Anna Case, who is beautiful in direct contrast to many operatic stars, is the center of attraction in a Strand short feature of "La Fiesta." The Metropolitan grand opera chorus is seen and heard in support, and "The Casinos," Spanish dancers, add color to the feature. Those who love the classics will find pleasure here. Those who don't like the classics won't be bothered as "La Fiesta" is lively and has dancing and good music with it.

"Tenderloin," the Strand feature picture, is a big argument starter. Many folks wanted to know just where the bank teller appeared from right near the end of the picture. No one could tell. Action was coming so fast that everyone seemed to overlook that one point. Another point of discussion was the complex character of the girl who was portrayed by Dolores Costello.

Miss Costello, by the way, is a big part of the Strand show. She is good to look at, and she gives a big surprise to those who have always thought the movie queens were beautiful but dumb. She's beautiful, alright, but, brother, she is far from dumb. When it comes to dramatic acting and to speaking her lines she is as good as the best dramatic leading women. Conrad Nagle is also good, but he has a part which is not so perfect or so sympathetic as it might be. His work is excellent, though.

Here is something to look forward to—Lon Chaney in "Laugh, Clown, Laugh," at the Majestic starting Sunday.

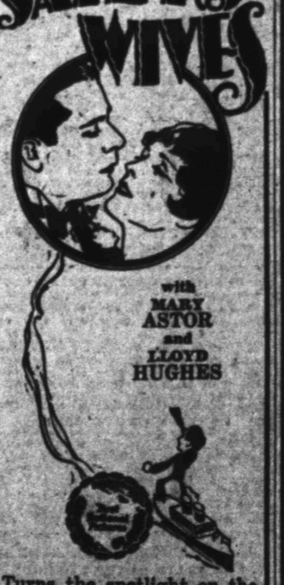

Billie Dove is starred in "The Yellow Lilly" at the Majestic. It is a First National picture and Clive Brook is seen in the principal male role. The magnificence of a famous Hungarian court provides a matchless background for one of the strangest romances ever presented on the screen.

Syd Chaplin is something else to anticipate. He is to be here in another Warner brothers vitaphone feature at the end of the run of "Tenderloin." His picture is called "The Fortune Hunter," and it tells the tale of a go-getter who gives up gold for a girl.

There are lots of things new coming. Outstanding among them is Zane Grey's "The Vanishing Pioneer." It is a Paramount film, and again brings Jack Holt into the Paramount fold in a Zane Grey picture. This has been a brilliant combination in the past and should be even greater as "The Vanishing Pioneer" serves as a great reunion of successful forces.

"In a Monastary Cellar," and Burr McIntosh in a playlet of his own, are announced as two vitaphone short features to be on the program at the Strand next week with Syd Chaplin's new comic.

FREE BRIDGE TO OPEN SOON

10,000 Using Causeway Each Month

Ten thousand people a month now use the Burkburnett free bridge which is worth $500,000 a year to Wichita Falls alone, according to estimates made by M. A. Bundy, county commissioner.

The bridge, which has been out of commission, except at north approach, will be in commission by the end of this week if the hopes and expectations of those working on it are fulfilled. Some have said the bridge might possibly be in service Wednesday or Thursday.

For the past few days it has been open at nights and at such times as the laborers were not at work.

Tourists in unending streams will use the bridge, Mr. Bundy said. It also has been a strong factor in a more solid unbuilding of Burkburnett.

The fall of the year generally sees a heavier traffic than the other seasons, Mr. Bundy declared.

Use of the bridge is expected to increase as soon as paving is provided to serve it on the Oklahoma side, Mr. Bundy declared.

The value of the bridge was emphasized in many ways by the washout.

People would not make the long trip around to reach Wichita Falls and trade fell off. Tourists were angered at the idea of having to pay money for the privilege of driving over a bridge necessary to travel along a public highway and refused to enter Oklahoma over toll bridges. Oklahoma milk routes of the Kraft Cheese factory in Wichita Falls were discontinued as it was found, at the end of two days detouring to other bridges, that the milk was soured before it reached the factory.

Then, the approach again was in passable shape and the bridge was reopened at night time only with the result, that a flow of business was noted at once. Traffic moved in both directions.

Blaze On Avenue S Causes $450 Loss

Damage estimated at $4500 was caused by a fire which razed the home of Joe Davis, 3114 Avenue S, about 4 o'clock Sunday morning. Origin of the fire was not determined. The house is owned by Mr. Davis.

A second run made by the fire department Sunday night was at Avenue M and Taylor street, where an automobile was aflame. No damage was reported.

In a fire Saturday night a negro woman was burned severely when a lamp exploded at her residence, 506 brick street. The house was damaged to the extent of $1000 before the fire was extinguished.

Airport Head Leaves Hospital After Illness

C. W. Cahoon, Jr., president of the Wichita Falls municipal airport, is out of the hospital and probably will be back at work Monday, he said Sunday. Mr. Cahoon has been seriously ill for several weeks, and has been recuperating from an attack of appendicitis and an operation at the Wichita Falls clinic hospital. His condition is much improved.
