New Deal Cracks Down On Wall Street

New Tax Formula In Firm Outline

Both Large And Small Firms To Be Aided

Plan Tentatively Agreed On To Abandon Profits Levy; Wage-Hour Drive Renewed

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—A new tax formula, designed to help both big and little business, took firm outline today in response to loud congressional clamor.

While the house saw a renewed drive for enactment of wage and hour legislation and the senate began debate on the crop control bill, the house subcommittee on taxation reached its most important decision of the session to date.

Would Abandon Profits Tax

Tentatively, it agreed upon a plan that would all but abandon the much-denounced tax on the profits which a corporation retains to put back into its business or to provide a "depression cushion."

The formula would apply, instead, a normal income tax rate of 12 1-2 to 14 per cent on corporations with net income of less than $25,000. Larger corporations would pay 16 to 20 per cent, in proportion to the extent to which it disburses its profits as dividends.

Supplemental Levy Condemned

At present, there is a normal income tax rate ranging from 11 to 15 per cent. But it is supplemented by a levy of 7 to 27 per cent on earnings withheld from stockholders. The latter feature has been widely condemned as an important factor in the current business recession.

Chairman Vinson (D-Ky.) of the subcommittee said the revision would prove "particularly helpful to the hardship cases"—corporations needing money for the purpose of debt payment, plant expansion, to repair capital structure and the like. The change, he added, would result in no loss of revenue for the treasury.

Wrestle With Wage-Hour Bill

Administration leaders were wrestling with another pressing problem, how to get the wages and hours bill out of the rules committee, where there is a majority against it, and on to the floor for action there.

They tried arguing with the recalcitrants of the committee, but that failed. Finally, Representative Rayburn, the majority leader, decided "the only other way" was a drive for signatures upon a petition to force the bill out.

Followed by Representative Boland (D-Pa.), the Democratic whip, he signed the already pending petition in full view of the house as soon as it met. He appealed to his party colleagues to follow his example. A dozen or so did, leaving

Garner To Make Grass Grow On Bald Spots

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23. (AP) — The Washington Evening Star said today President Roosevelt has assigned to Vice President Garner the job of making grass grow under the shade trees on the White House lawn.

The bald spots have withstood various lawn seed.

However, the newspaper said, Garner came along and assured Mr. Roosevelt he could make grass grow where it never had before, explaining he had experimented for years on his own lawn at Uvalde, Tex.

Mr. Roosevelt listened, then gave the job so quickly that Garner was at a loss for words, the paper said, but nevertheless sent home for some of the "magic seed."

Rain Dims Ex-Convict's Trail In Hunt For Officer's Slayer

HENDERSON, Nov. 23. (AP)—Rain in the Sabine river bottoms tonight had obliterated the trail of a negro ex-convict, sought by a posse of 150 persons in connection with the fatal shooting today of Constable Elbert Grigsby, 25, of Tatum.

Officers of Rusk, Panola, and Gregg counties led the posse, aided by bloodhounds.

Sheriff W. L. McMurray of Rusk county said the slayer was Angus Williams, out on parole from a 99-year sentence for wife slaying given in Fort Worth in 1923, and had been sought by Grigsby for questioning in connection with a recent burglary in Panola county.

Blackboard, Five Pounds Of Chalk, Book Of Logarithms And Calendar Farm Needs

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—Representative Kleberg (D-Texas) suggested today that it may be necessary for the government to buy every farmer a blackboard, five pounds of chalk, a book of logarithms and a calendar to figure out the senate farm bill.

If the senate approves complicated provisions for marketing quotas and compulsion, Kleberg said he also would propose:

"That any farmer who has co-operated in a farm program for five years (without being arrested or having committed murder) and any county committeeman who has served 30 days on the committee shall be eligible to a federal degree entitling him to teach, in any school in the country, higher mathematics, especially differential calculus."

Story Of Frustrated Love Revealed By New Mexico Man Confessing Slaying

(By The Associated Press)

SOCORRO, N. M., Nov. 23. — A rambling tale of frustrated love for a 19-year-old housemaid was told today by W. B. Cassidy, 43-year-old Socorro business man and father of five, as he was held on a first degree murder charge for the fatal shooting and mutilation of raven-haired Rose Garcia, whose body was found in a shallow sand grave early today.

MAKES SUICIDE ATTEMPT

LOS LUNAS, N. M., Nov. 23. (AP)—Assistant District Attorney Phil Sedillo reported tonight W. B. Cassidy attempted to hang himself in a jail cell where he is held on charges of first degree murder for the fatal shooting and mutilation of ravenhaired Rose Garcia.

Fellow prisoners gave the alarm, Sedillo reported, and Cassidy, 43-year-old business man and father of five, was cut down, but remained unconscious for several minutes.

Turned over to authorities late Sunday by a physician after pleading for "something to end it all," Cassidy broke under 24 hours grilling and directed sheriffs' deputies to the crude grave where the girl was buried along the Rio Salado, 17 miles north of here.

Confession Reported Signed

"I was crazy about her—we were crazy about each other," he sobbed to Sheriff Frank Knoblock, after signing a full purported confession to the slaying.

As a grim crowd of ranchers and residents of this one-time frontier cow town congregated in front of the old courthouse, Cassidy was spirited to the neighboring county seat of Los Lunas where he waived preliminary hearing and entered a plea of innocent.

Officers Take No Chances

Taking no chances on "cow town law," peace officers ordered their prisoner taken to the state penitentiary for safe keeping.

The girl's body, with a bullet through the breast and horribly mutilated, was exhumed about 1 a. m. under the light of blazing bonfires and the glare of automobile headlights. State Police Sergeant Joe T. Roach said a penknife had been used to slash the girl's body.

Japs Take Over Customs Units In Shanghai

(By The Associated Press)

SHANGHAI, Nov. 23.—Control of Shanghai's customs passed into Japanese hands today by an arrangement with Sir Frederick Maze, British inspector general of Chinese customs.

Sid Frederick appointed Yochisuke Akatani administrative commissioner of customs for Shanghai, China's wealthiest port, and Kenchi Kato revenue accountant for the Shanghai area.

MEXICO MAKES MOVE

BRUSSELS, Nov. 23. (AP) — Mexico sought tonight to carry the Chinese-Japanese conflict back to the League of Nations as the Brussels parley on the undeclared war drew toward a close.

Primo Villa Michel, Mexican delegate, disclosed he had warned the conferees in a secret session yesterday that failure to enforce respect for treaties menaces the existence of weaker nations.

League of Nations powers, Villa Michel declared, were "duty bound" to appeal to the league assembly to search at once for ways to defend weaker nations and to safeguard collective security.

The appointment, it was believed, were made to prevent Shanghai customs administration from becoming an international issue.

(Japan has demanded control of all government functions in Shanghai, including customs. Chinese revenues have been pledged to foreign governments to guarantee government loans made abroad.)

United States Ambassador Nelson T. Johnson and most of his staff sailed from Nanking aboard the gunboat Luzon, following the central government into interior.

To Go To Hankow

Johnson planned to establish a temporary office at Hankow, about 1,000 miles west of Nanking.

German, British, French, Russian, Italian, Belgian and Mexican diplomats also started for Hankow from Nanking toward which a Japanese army was driving from Shanghai, envoys of Switzerland and the Netherlands left for Shanghai.

Thirty-four Americans were left at Nanking among a total of 62 foreigners.

Continued heavy rains on the front south from Kiangyin, on the Yangtze river, mired the mobile Japanese forces. Airplanes were needed to deliver food and other supplies to the troops.

Vessels Steam Out To Answer SOS Call Of British Freighter

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Nov. 23. (AP)—Two vessels steamed tonight toward the British freighter Nollington Court, which flashed a distress call after striking a submerged object in Machori, passage, Turks island, The Bahamas.

Coast guard divisional headquarters ordered the cutter Mojave, patroling at sea, to aid the vessel. Another English ship, the Chagres, reported she would arrive alongside the Nollington Court tomorrow.

The Mackay radio station at Jupiter, Fla., reported intercepting a message that the distressed craft had nine feet of water in her forward hold, but was in no grave danger.

Negro Minister Plans To Take Over Late Friend's Interests

HOUSTON, Nov. 23 (AP)—The Rev. Robert Lee Grundy, 86-year-old negro, applied for a marriage license.

"What's the idea of getting married at this age?" the clerk asked.

"I'm taking over the pastorate of my late friend, Rev. William Gillian, and I'm taking it over lock, stock and barrel," he said.

The clerk issued a license to the Rev. Grundy and Ella Gillian, 70, widow of the late pastor.

Senate Decides To Make Haste Slowly On Bill

Senator McNary Charges New Control Plan Would Double Cost Of Present Program

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—The senate decided to make haste slowly on the new farm control bill today after hearing Senator McNary (R-Ore) declare it might cost the treasury a billion dollars a year.

This would mean the proposal to control surpluses by an ever-normal granary, subsidies and other devices would cost twice as much as the present system of paying farmers for "soil conservation."

MOORE DENOUNCES BILL

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23. (AP)—Ralph W. Moore of Granger, Tex., master of the Texas State Grange, denounced the senate farm bill today as "destructive to the South."

"It will cost us our foreign trade, as it restricts our cotton production."

"It will reduce our income by half and will not permit a diversified program on the farm."

He said he believed it impossible to administer the bill.

Subjected To Questioning

Senators subjected the bill to critical questioning from the moment Chairman Smith (D-SC), outlining its provisions, frankly conceded he did not know whether they would produce the results President Roosevelt had in mind when he called the special session.

Snator Borah (R-Idaho) expressed the hope "this measure will not be rushed to conclusion until we have an opportunity to read both the bill and the report."

Food Costs Would Rise

His statement followed repeated demands for information on the scope of the program and the chances of its increasing cost to the consumer. Senator Copeland

Fascist Plot In France Aborted

(By The Associated Press)

PARIS, Nov. 23.—A Fascist plot to overthrow the republican government and restore a king to the ancient throne of France was uncovered, the government announced tonight, in an inquiry into an armed revolutionary body.

Minister of Interior Marx Dormoy in a statement assured the nation plans for the coup d'etat had been nipped in the bud.

Raids extending from the German frontier through the capital to southern regions near insurgent-held Spain continued, however, indicating that the people's front government was still on the hunt for leaders of the conspiracy.

Papers found in the office of Eduard Delonde, prominent engineering consultant, finally broke the case after raids disclosed arms caches and underground fortifications, officials said.

The papers revealed plans for an

Fifteen thousand teachers are expected for the three-day meeting. Pre-convention discussion indicated an absence of controversial issues brought forward in sessions of previous years. Sectional matters will occupy the time of the delegates during most of the convention.

Gomer Smith Is Ahead In Race For Congress

(By The Associated Press)

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 23.—Gomer Smith, 45-year-old Oklahoma City attorney and former national vice-president of the Townsend pension organization, won the Democratic nomination for the fifth district congressman tonight on the basis of unofficial returns from a special primary election.

Unofficial figures from 358 of the 438 precincts in the district gave Smith 9,143 votes, with 6,687 going to state Senator Homer Paul of Pauls Valley, his nearest competitor in a field of fourteen.

The Republican nomination was won by Harlan Deupree, former municipal counselor of Oklahoma City, who outdistanced four opponents with ease. He received 1484 votes in 384 precincts.

Another special election December 10 will name the successor to the late R. P. Hill, who died here last month of a heart ailment.

Widow For Down List

Mrs. Lora Hill, widow of the late congressman, ran far down among the field, while only a scattering of votes went to Will Rogers, Oklahoma City draftsman who is no relation to the late humorist or to Oklahoma's congressman-at-large.

Smith never has been elected to public office, although he has entered various campaigns in the past nine years.

This was his second attempt for a seat in congress.

He bounced back in the 1932 Democratic primary for United States senator to gain a place in the runoff with Senator Elmer Thomas, who won.

HILLSBORO, Nov. 23. (AP)—R. W. Calvert, speaker of the house of representatives, formally announced his candidacy for attorney general here tonight at a banquet tendered by a group of Hillsboro friends.

Announcement Is Thunderbolt To Streeters

Open Rupture Marked; Court Test May Be Result From Heightened Regulation

(By The Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—The statement of William O. Douglas, chairman of the security and exchange commission, that the New York Stock Exchange must reorganize in the public interest or face wide regulation by the Commission came like a thunderbolt to Wall Street tonight.

It marked open rupture after about two years of apparently friendly relations between the exchange and the commission. It heralded, Wall Street men said, a possible departure from the exchange's efforts to go along with the commission on its "reform" ideas.

Gay Declines Comment

Brokers were stunned. Charles R. Gay, coming out of a long conference with the exchange governing committee, declined to comment. A member of the board of governors was likewise silent.

Other Wall Streeters, including members of stock exchange firms, were dumfounded at what they felt to be an open declaration of war between the commission and the exchange.

In some circles it was suggested heightened regulation might bring a court test.

Caused By Recent Debate

While no one would talk for the record, it was plain most felt bitter over implications of the chairman's statement. For some time, the well-informed said, there had been signs of a growing breach between the exchange and S.E.C. It had been caused by the behind-th-scenes debate over fixing responsibility for the stock market collapse which started in mid-August and saw a sharp tumble of prices in mid-October.

The breach started, brokers said, following issuance of the annual report of Gay, exchange president. In it he said there was excessive government regulation which threatened to impair market liquidity.

Acclaim Is Given To Bentonelli

Joseph Bentonelli, whose tenor voice of lyric beauty and rich warmth has won him a place in the top ranks of the Metropolitan Opera House and Chicago Civic Opera company in America and the plaudits of brilliant audiences in Europe, returned Tuesday night to the Southwestern area that claims him as a native son and received the most enthusiastic approval ever afforded an American artist who has been presented in Lubbock.

The house, which included South Plains Civic Music Association members and a number of Panhandle residents, was with him unanimously, clamoring for him to sing encores, which he did, and even applauding with such enthusiasm he emerged from the wings and bowed.

As a New York critic described Bentonelli, he has a "glorious voice which he uses to perfection" and his French, and German and Italian are excellent.

Tuesday's audience seemed deeply moved by his sincerity and emotion.

After the first two numbers, "Some Rival Has Stolen My True Love Away" (Broadwood) and "To Althea" (Hatton), Mr. Bentonelli

Ma's Pies To Still Be Hot On Arrival

NEW YORK, Nov. 23. (AP)—John Weston set out today to see what a fellow could do when he wanted a piece of his Ma's pumpkin pie, and wanted it hot.

The trouble was the Ma was 1200 miles away, and Thanksgiving day was Thursday.

John called the express company, he called the airlines. And he wrote a letter home.

As a result his Ma will get out of bed at 5 a. m. tomorrow in the old homestead in Monticello, Minn.

By 7 o'clock three pies will be cooked and Gran'pap's outmoded soapstone footwarmer will be toasting on top of the stove.

Ma will just have time to put little, flat chemical heaters under each pie tin before a neighbor's car pulls up to drive the pies 40 miles to the Minneapolis airport. John wanted the pumpkin hot, so the footwarmer will go along to keep the pie tins warm.

It will be 8:45 a. m., if all goes well, when the pumpkins pies take off. At 4:45 p. m. they are due in New York.

Texas' Cost Of Government, Revenues Up

(By The Associated Press)

AUSTIN, Nov. 23—Both the cost of governing Texas and revenue to meet it increased during the past year, a report by Comptroller George H. Sheppard showed today.

The total cost for the fiscal year ending Aug. 31, 1937, was $144,770,274, an increase of $19,076,282 over that in the previous 12 months.

Income Increases

Income totalled $154,120,031, an increase of $23,027,796 for the comparable period.

In other words, considering all funds, the cost of government was nearly $8,000,000 less than the revenue to meet the bill.

The state also handled certain other funds for non-governmental purposes, collecting, for example, $13,724,565 for unemployment compensation remittances to the federal government, to make the grand total in receipts $192,078,728 and in expenditures $186,386,244.

Gasoline Tax Best Source

The best source of income was the gasoline tax, which yielded $40,551,796, compared with $36,242,685 in the previous year.

The bulk of expenditures was overwhelmingly for highway construction, education and old age and Confederate veteran pensions. Of each dollar expended 81 cents went for these purposes, or .3675 for highways, .3096 for education and .1417 for pensions.

Highways Get $53,194,207

A total of $53,194,207 was spent on highways, a decrease of $512,460 from the previous year; $44,804,271 on education, an increase of $1,533,220, and on pensions, $20,519,716, an increase of $17,670,545.

R. S. Calvert, statistician of the comptroller's department, pointed out that, considered as a whole, there was no "red" on the state's books for income had exceeded outgo.

The much talked about "deficit" is in the general fund. This the treasurer recently reported at approximately $17,000,000.

Leche Issues Call For Laborers To Harvest Sugar Cane Crop

BATON ROUGE, La., Nov. 23. (AP)—Governor Richard W. Leche today issued a call for 5,000 additional laborers to harvest the big Louisiana sugar cane crop before the stand is damaged by the current freeze.

The governor held a conference with sugar planters at the executive mansion and issued a proclamation asking employers of labor to release as much man power as possible to aid in "a grave emergency" which he said "threatens the Louisiana sugar cane crop due to the unseasonable and prolonged cold spell."

This year's crop was estimated in value at $10,000,000 and the planters told the governor that sixty per cent of the crop was caught by the week-end freeze of record proportions for Louisiana.

Littlefield Woman Is Ninth To Die From Dread Food Poisoning

TUCUMCARI, N. M., Nov. 23. (AP)—A hitherto unsuspected participant in a fatal funeral luncheon a week ago, became today the ninth victim of dread botulism-food poisoning which killed eight persons here last week.

The ninth to succumb was Mrs. Siberio Gomez of Littlefield, Tex., who was among the estimated 30 persons who partook of spoiled home-canned food last Monday.

Stock Exchange Is Ordered To Reorganize

Ultimatum Served By Securities Commission Or Regulation Is To Be More Drastic

"Adequate safeguards" must be thrown about this and other ex-

FISH CHARGES ROOSEVELT

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23. (AP)—Representative Fish (R-NY) asserted today President Roosevelt was responsible for the loss of $30,000,000,000 in security values on the stock exchange in the last two months.

In a speech in the house Fish also said the president was guilty of destroying business confidence and causing business fear and uncertainty.

Representative Sabath (D-Ill.), dean of the house, challenged Fish.

"I deny that this as a Roosevelt depression," Sabath shouted. "This is a Wall Street conspiracy."

changes, either by the marts themselves or the Securities commission, said William O. Douglas, chairman of the commission.

Recriminations Are Recalled

The surprise move recalled that Wall Streeters and New Dealers have been hurling recriminations, blaming each other in part for the present business recession. Some administration advisers have accused Wall Street of "leaning on its shovel," while their critics have blamed restrictions imposed by the government.

The Douglas announcement capped a series of rapid-fire developments, all bearing on the business situation:

Progress Is Reported

1. President Roosevelt conferred with President Wendell L. Willkie of Commonwealth and Southern corporation, and reported progress toward an understanding which, if reached, might end the feud between private power and government, and embark the companies on a vast construction program. Mr. Roosevelt announced that Willkie personally sided with the president in the latter's contention that utility rates should be based on common law (prudent investment) theories of valuation, rather than reproduction or original cost.

2. Mr. Roosevelt announced that to encourage home-building he favored permitting the Federal Housing administration to insure mortgages up to 90 per cent of the value of homes, instead of 80 per cent as at present.

Decide To Wipe Out Tax

3. A House committee decided tentatively to wipe out all but a trace of the undistributed profits tax, target of business criticism. Sixty-two house Republicans unanimously demanded outright repeal of the levy.

Douglas, in announcing his ultimatum to the exchanges, said he would prefer to have the exchanges

Break In Cold Snap Is Expected Today

Apparently winter's first real cold snap was broken with a day of sunshine Tuesday and a maximum temperature of more than 50 degrees.

Further moderation was seen in the official Associated Press forecast of: "Fair, warmer today; Thursday partly cloudy" for West Texas. Rising temperatures were forecast for the entire state.

The main line station's midnight reading was 33 degrees, a notch above freezing, and had dropped only five degrees in the last five hours. The maximum of 52 was recorded at three, four, and five o'clock, officials of the station said.

In the mild southerly wind which prevailed, weather observers predicted that the mercury would lack several degrees falling to usual lows of last week. Reading at the Lubbock Municipal airport at 12:30 o'clock this morning was 31 degrees.

'We-Who-Are-About-To-Die' Salute To Be Given By Gobblers Throughout Day

By R. C. HANKINS
Avalanche Staff Writer

THE gobblers got their heads together Tuesday and philosophically decided today would be "hell on turks in grease."

"We might as well gobble 'em awake, those farmers," was the attitude of one resigned bird "—they'll gobble us Thursday!"

A pronounced element of courtesy was evident. "Women first from pen to block" was the unequivocal credo.

"The first forty kicks are the hardest," came from an old tom who had seen an uncle and a brother-in-law in a macabre scene last year in the shadow of the headsman's ax.

The spreading tail of a strutting younger gobbler evoked a muttered pride-before-a-fall reference from a bedraggled grandma whose shopworn appearance possibly could dictate a last-minute redemption.

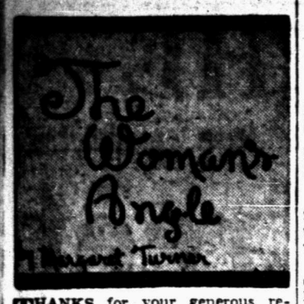

"Judas!" gobbled one of those in the outer ring about the round-table when the farmer brought grain for "the last supper."

A "we-who-are-about-to-die" salute, a chorus that arose to a dissonant crescendo, and lapsed—and it was roosting time, for the last time.

For the morrow would be Thanksgiving eve and the next day—

Well, after a brisk flurry, swooping steel and an even briefer flurry, time wouldn't matter.

STUDENTS' NEWSPAPER

THE Hunt Children's Avalanche was brought to our desk Tuesday afternoon by two charming little girls. No wonder they're proud of the publication. It is a neatly mimeographed eight-page sheet replete with clever cartoons and stories. There are letters to the editor and letters from Indian pupils in New Mexico.

Under the caption: "Let Us Be Thankful" Virginia Younger, editor, has written, in part: "A long time ago the Pilgrims had the first Thanksgiving Day. They had it because they wanted to thank God for keeping them well and for giving them plenty of food. We still have Thanksgiving every year because we are thankful for health, plenty of food and all the other good things we have."

IS MUSIC UNIVERSAL?

THE next time we hear someone remark that music speaks a universal language we are going to question him. Joseph Bentonelli mentioned the fallacy of that statement Tuesday during an interesting half hour soon after he arrived from Norman, Okla., where he had been at the bedside of his father, who already the victim of a stroke of paralysis is dangerously ill with pneumonia.

"Clothes are becoming universal," he said. "Your dress is no different to many you would see on the streets of Paris; my suit," indicating his well-tailored clothes, "is typical of the business man's clothes almost anywhere. But music—ah that's not thought of in America as on the continent.

"We of the Southwest boast of our wide open spaces; we are proud of our large wheat crops, our huge cotton crops, our vast prairies but when it comes to our appreciation of music, that's something else. Why, perhaps the outstanding number on an evening concert will be a song with so much volume," indicating a circle with his thumb and index finger on his right hand. "Yet in Europe volume is praised. The one who can make the most noise is considered the greatest."

This makes a thick batter. Spread in shallow pan. Take 1 tablespoon butter, 1 tablespoon flour, 1-2 teaspoon cinnamon and 3 tablespoons sugar. Mix and spread over batter with a fork. Sprinkle with 1-2 cup nut meats. Cook in an oven set at 425 degrees Farhenheit, for 15 or 20 minutes.

THE FIRST MOVIES

TEXAS Technological Art Institute members are beginning an interesting short survey of the motion picture film in America tonight at 7:30 o'clock in the engineering auditorium. The first program shows the development of the narrative and members will see early day films of such creations as "The Execution of Mary Queen of Scots"; "Wash Day Troubles," which is self explanatory; "A Trip to the Moon"; "The Great Train Robbery"; "Faust," and "Queen Elizabeth."

"A Trip to the Moon" was made when most films were only three minutes long. Sarah Bernhardt and Lou Tellegen are in the cast of Queen Elizabeth but it's The Great Train Robbery we are looking forward to seeing. It runs the gamut of early emotions with a cast of a conscientious railway agent, bandits, a fireman and a daughter with her father's dinner-pail. Don't you catch the plot? And before it rushes to its climax there'll be a scene in a barroom, a chase through the western hills and finally the realization that crime doesn't pay.

Couple Is Married At Local Church

A double ring ceremony uniting in marriage Miss Irma Marie Macha, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Victor H. Macha of Wilson, and William Leonard Bednarz, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Bednarz of Slaton, was performed at 8 o'clock Tuesday morning at St. Elizabeth's Catholic church by the Rev. Gabriel Diamante.

Gold, white and red chrysanthemums and white roses and fern decorated the church.

In Wedding Party

The wedding party included the maid of honor, Miss Lebuscha Macha, sister of the bride; two bridesmaids, Miss Mildred Macha, another sister of the bride, and Miss Evelyn Bednarz, the bridegroom's sister, and two groomsmen, Walter Bednarz, brother of the bridegroom, and Edmund Macha, the bride's cousin.

The traditional wedding marches were played.

Miss Lebuscha Macha, who led the bride and her attendants down the center aisle of the church, wore a long, close fitting, rust moire taffeta gown with wide skirt, a rust velvet hat, with veil, and corresponding accessories. She carried white chrysanthemums.

The bridesmaids wore similar dresses of light zinnia rust moire, with veiled velvet hats of the same color. They also carried white chrysanthemums.

The bride entered the church with her father who gave her in marriage. She was met at the altar by the bridegroom and the two groomsmen who had entered from the vestry. She wore a long, white satin princess gown, trimmed with white and gold lace, with long train and a long, full veil suspended from a pearl crown. Her bouquet was of large white chrysanthemums with white satin streamers.

One hundred 50 guests witnessed the ceremony. Immediately afterward, the bridal party and 60 relatives and friends went to the Macha home for breakfast.

The couple left later in the morning on a wedding trip to Schulenburg and other South Texas cities. After about two weeks, they will be at home in Slaton where Mr. Bednarz has farming interests.

Mrs. Bednarz is a graduate of Tahoka High school and a former student of Texas Technological college. Her family and the Bednarz family are well-known citizens of the Slaton - Wilson - Tahoka area where they have lived many years.

It's a thrilling change from the lowland coffees used in ordinary brands! Because Folger's is mountain-grown!

Altitude makes THE big difference in coffees, experts say! Folger's is grown on tiny mountain-top plantations in Central America—where coffee flourishes in an amazingly fertile volcanic soil, tropic rains, bright sunshine and clean, crisp mountain air! It acquires a royal, rich flavor and tang that makes lowland coffees taste thin and flat by comparison!

QUALITY ALWAYS PAYS. Folger's mountain-grown flavor is so much richer, you use ¼ less coffee. Instead of using 4 spoons to make 4 cups—use only 3 spoons of Folger's. And you'll get better coffee, plus your saving. Order Folger's—save ¼ on coffee, yourself! And enjoy the finest coffee nature knows how to grow.

GUESTS ALWAYS COMPLIMENT THIS DIFFERENT COFFEE—housewives tell us. Its crisp, wine-y fragrance and delicious flavor is so different from ordinary lowland coffees, they never fail to compliment you on Folger's.

Wallace Advocates Restoration Of Processing Taxes In Talk At Wichita, Kas.

'Middle-Course' Plan Offered

(By The Associated Press)

WICHITA, Kas., Nov. 23.—Secretary Wallace came to the heart of the wheat country today to advocate restoration of the once invalidated processing taxes to finance the administration's farm program.

In a six-point "middle-course" wheat program he urged a processing tax as a key to stabilizing the crop's price and supply. He also advised use of processing taxes for the payment of cotton benefits.

Brings Round Of Applause

Warning that such a program could not be enacted "without a fight," the secretary brought a round of applause from 3,500 farmers and agriculture leaders of seven states when he declared:

"In the long run, public opinion will prevail and it will support good laws, not half-baked measures written with one eye on the processors and the other eye on what the courts did before they saw the light."

Introduced By Huxman

The secretary was introduced by Gov. Walter A. Huxman of Kansas. Farmers and official representatives from New Mexico, Oklahoma, Colorado, Nebraska, Missouri and Texas attended.

Following his address, Wallace, George Farrell, western division AAA administrator, and Dean Harry Umberger of the Kansas State College extension service, conferred with state and district farm leaders on agricultural problems.

Wallace said a year ago "consumers were paying farmers $1.06 for each bushel of wheat that was milled. Today the farm price of wheat averages about 80 cents.

"If a processing tax of say 20 cents a bushel were added, the combined cost of wheat and tax would be $1 a bushel—or six cents less than the farm price a year ago."

Opposition Is Warned

He warned of opposition to the processing tax and said already the milling industry, through the Millers National federation of Chicago, is organizing to block reinstatement of the levy.

"It is high time for the processors to join together with the farmers and the consumers in fighting for stability," he said "instead of following the short-sighted policy of fighting against the best interests of all three groups."

The secretary called his wheat and cotton program "middle-course," because, he said, they fell between two schools of thought—one laying emphasis on price regardless of how small production would have to become to get that price; the other, which would encourage unlimited production through an export bounty or through unconditional payments to producers.

The first, he said, meant extreme nationalism and could be brought about only through drastic marketing quotas applied year by year; the second would mean dumping with an increase in world trade barriers against the United States.

His "middle course" program:

"First, planning for that share in the world wheat market which will bring wheat farmers their maximum prosperity.

"Second, the setting of acreage goals in line with needs of the soil and of the market here and abroad.

Would Reserve Supplies

"Third, protection against drouth through an ever normal granary, with reserve supplies of wheat stored on the farm or in elevators.

"Fourth, crop insurance.

"Fifth, retirement of submarginal land.

"Sixth, price adjustment payments, to be financed from tariff-equalizing taxes."

Acreage goals, he said, could be carried out "through the present soil conservation act but additional legislation is needed to make them fully effective."

Creation of an ever normal granary was proposed by the farm chief "for at least the hard wheats."

Storing of surpluses during bumper years for use in periods of scarcity, Wallace asserted, would be possible through crop insurance.

Retirement of submarginal land, "especially in the great plains area," is included in the wheat program, he said, to enable "lands that nature intended never to be plowed to be taken out of wheat and returned to grass."

A committee was named to recommend dealings for designating goals for land restoration, and for compliance. It recommended, Farrell said, that the designations be made in early spring, and that the compliance deadline be set by state committees after conferring with their county committees.

Mmbers included J. H. Watson, Newcastle, Tex.; L. R. Connor, Perryton, Tex.; J. H. Edwards, Clovis, N. M.

Group insurance in the United States last year estimated to total $1,303,000,000.

November's total was boosted to $82,483.60 and the year's to $1,494,377.60, according to figures released late Tuesday. Largest of the permits was to J. B. Bennett to construct a one-story frame residence at 1613 Twenty-third street, $1,500. Other permits were to: H. B. Adams, owner, and Lydick Roofing company, contractor, to reroof residence at 1311 Ninth street, $147.60; and D. L. Anderson, owner, and Louis Gosdin, contractor, to construct a one-story boxed servants house at 1314 Thirty-second street, $378.

Masters degrees will be conferred upon two candidates in a ceremony by the Masonic lodge at 7 o'clock Friday night, according to announcement Tuesday by Guy Casey, worshipful master. All master Masons are invited to attend. Supper will be served after the ceremonies.

Cooper 'Feast' Is Held Tuesday

Cooper High school held its second annual barbecue at noon Tuesday in an effort to raise money for the school's athletic fund. Approximately 1,000 plates were distributed according to D. M. Hays, superintendent.

Following the noon barbecue, Cooper High school's grid team engaged the Lubbock Cowhands, to whom they dropped the tilt 13-0. Lubbock scored in both the first and second periods.

Entertainment Offered

Entertainment at the barbecue and foodball game was furnished by the Cooper High school chorus and the "Rhythm Captains" of radio station KFYO.

Some 30 students of agriculture from Lubbock and neighboring schools attended a farm products judging contest held Tuesday morning preceding the barbecue. Winners in each of the eight divisions will be awarded all-expense trips to the Carlsbad caverns. B. E. Needles, Lubbock, will sponsor the trips.

General Winners Listed

General winners in the contests were Roy Gilmore, New Deal, first with 470 points; Troy Gilmore, New Deal, second with 455 points; Charles Akens, Lubbock, third with 425 points; Billy Casey Frenship, fourth with 410 points; and Boo Warden, Lubbock, fifth, with 395 points.

Dairy product samples were furnished by the dairy manufacturing department, Texas Technological college.

Bids for construction of an $82,000 school building at Cooper will be opened next month, said Joseph R. Griggs, county superintendent. The building likely will be finished during the spring semester and will be ready at the opening of the 1938-39 schol term.

Westerners End Home Practice For Season; Creighton Team Arrives Tonight

Lubbock High In Good Shape For Amarillo Game

The 1937 football season ended at the Lubbock High gridiron yesterday, and ringing in the ears of 26 hale and hearty young athletes as they scampered off the home sod for the final time were the same words of wisdom that Coach Weldon Chapman uttered the very first day of practice last fall: "Good blocking and good tackling make a good football team."

At about 8:40 o'clock this morning, if the northbound Santa Fe is on time, the 26 Westerners will start out on the "last mile" of the season.

Players, coaches, students, fans and other Westerner well-wishers are hoping, with quivvering hearts, that it won't be the "last mile" as Ride The Special Early Tomorrow!

Surest, safest and possibly the quickest way of getting to and from Amarillo tomorrow for the Westerner-Sandie game, school officials and railroad men say, is to ride the special train which leaves the local Santa Fe station at 8:20 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The train reaches Amarillo about 11. There'll be a parade uptown, and after lunch courtesy cars will be provided for passengers to the football field. After the game, Lubbock fans will board the train at Butler Field, coming direct from there to Lubbock and reaching home in time for "that Thanksgiving dinner." The round trip fair is $1.85.

Tickets to the game are still available here, and fans who go from here are advised to get tickets, at the Hub Clothiers and the high school, before they leave. Better tickets are available here than at Amarillo.

applied to the execution chamber, but against these hopes is the battery of cold "dope," facts and figures, indicating nothing but "dead end" for the struggling Westerners when they oppose Amarillo's mighty Sandies tomorrow at Butler Field.

A Seemingly Hopeless Quest

For many years the Westerners have gone north with hope in their hearts, ambition coursing through their veins, and more brawn than they've got now covering their bones—always to the same thing, the bitter dose of defeat. So to outsiders, and to Amarilloans, victory by the Sandies over the Westerners at Butler Field has become a conceded circumstance.

Today the Westerners, through for the season at home, go to Amarillo again on a seemingly hopeless quest. The same fire of ambition, maybe hotter than ever, burns in every Westerner breast.

The scene is changed in this respect: The pressure is off. Heretofore, the Westerners have more frequently than not faced Amarillo with the District 1 title, as well as a cherished victory over the Sandies, at stake.

This time no championship is at stake. The Westerners have nothing to gain, nothing to lose so far as the title is concerned. They can therefore concentrate all their attention and forces to beating Amarillo, because the season would be a grand success, title or not, if the Lubbocks could beat the Amarillos.

Fans Hope For Best

Nerves are less taut, imaginations less strained, illusions less prevalent as the Westerners head for Amarillo this time. They do not have to worry about a "let down" or the necessity of snapping back into a winning attitude; Pampa and Borger took care of that, as well as the fact that the Westerners don't have to worry about who they'll meet after playing Amarillo.

All they have to do is beat Amarillo.

And there are some among the Westerners and among Westerner supporters who wouldn't be at all supprised if tradition were shattered, bubbles broken and the whole schoolboy football world stunned, by a Lubbock victory tomorrow. There are many more who would be greatly surprised.

The Westerners have courage, fighting hearts and desire. They lack manpower, experience and the benefits of whole-hearted support by a township that Amarillo enjoys. Long on spirit and enthusiasm and the benefits of fine coaching, the Westerners are short on weight, numbers and natural ability.

But the folks who see Lubbock and Amarillo teams play tomorrow will no doubt see an interesting game.

Railbirds Are Impressed

"If we lose," Coach Chapman said in a parting word to his boys yesterday before they ran to the clubhouse for the last time, "let it be said that we didn't lose because we didn't carry out our blocking and tackling assignments right. Let them say that we didn't give up without showing we can block and tackle. If we win, let 'em say that we won because we were the best blockers and tacklers. I don't care what else you do, as long as you smash 'em hard, drive, drive and drive some more, with all your heart in blocking and tackling."

Railbirds who watched the Westerners "sign off" at their home field yesterday were favorably impressed with the fine attitude. The boys were not "choked up" or nervous. They ran through their practice with loose muscles and free-swinging arms and legs. There was nothing cocky about their attitude, but there was no pronounced fear of the immediate future.

Visitors were pleased, too, with the showing of little Coulson Paxton, sparkplug of the backfield who has been out since the Borger game with a broken arm, and who will be in the starting lineup against Amarillo. This is contrary to expectations, but Paxton's desire to get well and his fighting heart, his ambition to play in the Amarillo game, probably had more to do with the quick healing of his arm than medical treatment. He was out there yesterday, in the last workout, carrying the ball, blocking and tackling.

Westerner rooters are hopeful that big Jack Ware, who, after a year of non-representative service, becomes eligible for his first, last and only official game as a high school player. The big boy, weighing over 200 pounds, made his first public appearance in the Clovis game, in which Texas rules did not apply to the letter, and looked good indeed. He is, ostensibly, a lineman, but in Chapman's tricky offense he may be seen doing backfield blocking and a bit of leather toting.

Otherwise, the Westerner team, now in better condition and a better team than it has been all season, will lineup with Ernest Winter and Henry Ford at ends, Babe Ritchie and Herb Leaverton at tackles, Lloyd Sanders at guard opposite Ware and L. D. Venable at center, with Harold Parson, Walter Webster and Wayne Johnston playing in the backfield with Paxton.

Wolfe And Moran Clash In 'Natural' Tonight

Burly Jay Center

KELLY

Known to his teammates as "Tony", Omer Kelly is the regular Creighton university center. Scaling 190 pounds, he is fast, rugged, spirited, and a demon both on offense and defense.

TONIGHT'S LINEUP

Curtain Raiser—Tetsura Higami, Tokio, vs. Cyclone Mackey, Clovis. One fall or 20 minutes.

Semi-windup—Otto Ludwig, Hamburg, Germany, vs. Ace Freeman, New York. One fall or 30 minutes.

Main event—Frank Wolfe, Johannesburg, South Africa, vs. Sailor Moran, Bald Knob, Arkansas. Two out of three falls, or 2-hour time limit.

Place and time—The Auditorium, 8 o'clock.

It's a cosmopolitan crowd Promoter Sled Allen has working on his wrestling card tonight, and one that should bring out the local and sectional grappling crowd.

Another "natural" is booked for the main event as Sailor Moran, who fixed up Bold Buck Lipscomb last week, takes on Frank Wolfe, the crafty old wrestler-fighter from Africa.

Frank Knows How

Moran is not due to have such easy sailing tonight. He will find a worthy opponent in Wolfe, who has held his own in nearly every situation that has arisen since his start here. He can wrestle when the opposition wants to wrestle, or he can put on the pressure and fight like a maniac when the occasion demands.

Brother Wolfe is expected to just about handle Moran tonight, unless the veteran fails to find a defense against Moran's deadly heart punches. Lipscomb tried to stand off Moran's pet hold with similar treatment, but discovered quite quickly he was not the man. It should be one of the best scraps in weeks at the Auditorium tonight.

Otto Ludwig, who has failed to set any ringposts afire with his haphazard wrestling here, probably will "catch it" tonight when Ace Freeman, one of the cleverest of the younger set, gets wound up. Freeman probably will outsmart the big German, but if he doesn't it's due to be a battle—German vs. Jew.

Once upon a time not so long ago the fans were advised of the coming of Tetsura Higami, who is well known to wrestling customers over the country. But Higami, one of the Japanese artists, failed to show up. He is billed again tonight, and maybe he'll be here. His scheduled opponent, Cyclone Mackey, has been known to miss appointments, but has been filling all dates, and quite aptly so, recently.

Higami, who will demonstrate the Japanese style of grappling with "shirts" before he leaves the region—if he ever gets here—may have too much power and steam for Mackey, although he won't have any more speed and bitterness. It looks like a well-balanced card, with a snatch of variety, lots of speed and no little villainy.

Leaders Face Hard Tilts In District 5 On Turkey Day

Leaders in District 5, Class B, get hard tests in final games of the 1937 schedule Thanksgiving Day, meeting teams that are tied for the second rung.

At Levelland, the Lobos will be primed to determine strength of the big red Brownfield eleven, tied with Lamesa for leadership. A good passing attack has favored Levelland all season and should it start clicking Thursday, Coach Johnny Bost's hands may be pressed to win. The Cubs have improved down the stretch.

Lamesa has the added disadvantage of playing on foreign soil against the Wildcats at Littlefield. Defending champions of the circuit, the Cats faltered after getting off to a good start. The Tornadoes have won all their games but last week forfeited one played with Tahoka Nov. 5, when a player was found ineligible.

Nothing more than consolation is attached to the Tahoka-Crosbyton conflict at Crosbyton. Both teams are well down in the standings, but they may turn out a good scrap before the afternoon ends.

Country Club Women Convene At Hotel At Noon; To Play Golf If Weather Permits

Weather permitting, women golfers of Lubbock Country club will play golf today, in regular bi-monthly observance of Ladies Day.

But if the thermometer drops, or if conditions in general are not conducive to golf, the ladies will convene anyway—at Hotel Lubbock, 11:30 o'clock this morning, for luncheon. Mrs. C. L. Dean is to serve as hostess at the luncheon also at the links if golf is played.

The golfing part of the program is to start in the afternoon, it was announced.

Officials are hopeful of a large turnout for the luncheon if not for golf.

Pitt Remains On Top In Ranking Of Grid Teams

By BILL BONI
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—Whether they go back to the Rose bowl, the Pittsburgh Panthers are likely to wind up as 1937 national champions in the Associated Press ranking poll.

They are likely to do so, that is, provided they dispose of Duke, their final opponent, at Durham, N. C., Saturday. For Pittsburgh today ranks at the top again in the weekly ratings made by sports experts all over the country.

Thirty-seven of the 48 ballots named Pitt as No. 1 team. Another split top ranking between the Panthers and Fordham, the team that held Pitt to a scoreless tie.

Irish Displace Yale

California's unbeaten and Rose Bowl-bound Bears continued in second place, receiving ten first-place votes. Yale was displaced by Notre Dame in the first ten, while Minnesota, Dartmouth and Villanova moved up.

The tabulation of points in the sixth weekly poll, on a 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 basis:

FIRST TEN	POINTS
1. Pittsburgh (37 first, 1 tie for first)	468 1-2
2. California (10 firsts)	425
3. Fordham (one tie for first)	335 1-2
4. Alabama	320
5. Minnesota	202
6. Dartmouth	186
7. Villanova	141
8. Santa Clara	126
9. Notre Dame	101
10. Louisiana State	100

Second ten: 11, Nebraska, 70; 12, Vanderbilt, 27; 13, University of Washington, 20; 14, Yale and Texas Christian tied, 16 each; 16, Colorado university, 14; 17, Holy Cross, 12; 18, Duke and North Carolina tied, 11 each; 20, Tulsa, 8.

Others Games Scheduled

Also ran: Ohio State, Harvard and Baylor, 7 each; Stanford and Rice, 3 each; Auburn, 2; Detroit, 1.

Only California, Minnesota and Dartmouth, of the first ten, have completed their schedules.

For this week's games, the rankings indicate Pittsburgh has a pronounced edge over Duke which, oddly, is tied for 18th with its conqueror, North Carolina. Alabama is the favorite over Vanderbilt, though the Commodores jumped six notches to 12th place, and the following additional choice: Fordham over unranked New York university, Villanova over Loyola of Los Angeles, Santa Clara over Gonzaga, and Louisiana State over Tulane.

West Coaches Selected For Annual East-West Contest

CORVALLIS, Ore., Nov. 23 (AP)—Orin "Babe" Hollingbery, Washington State, L. M. "Biff" Jones, Nebraska, and Percy Locey, director of athletics at Oregon State, will coach the Western squad for the All-star East-West Shrine game to be played at San Francisco January 1, Locey, chairman of the Western committee, announced today.

Dana X. Bible, coach and athletic director at University of Texas, will continue as a member of the Western committee and will make recommendations from the Southwest conference. He was co-coach for several seasons.

NIMRODS THINNING 'EM OUT

AUSTIN, Nov. 23. (AP)—With the deer and turkey seasons one week old today, Will J. Tucker, secretary of the Texas Game commission, estimated 6,000 bucks and 5,000 gobblers had been slain.

Interscholastic League District Champs To Be Crowned After Thanksgiving Day

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF
Associated Press Sports Writer

DALLAS, Nov. 23.—The hurly-burley Rio Grande Valley district decides its champion Wednesday night to open the final drive for places in the Texas Interscholastic league football play-off.

San Benito, winner of the upper bracket, and Mission, top club of the lower division, clash at Harlingen to determine the opponent of the District 15 titlist in the first round.

Eleven other district champions are expected to be known by Thursday night and the remaining winner will be certified Saturday when the District 14 executive committee meets to decide if Beaumont or Port Arthur is to be the representative.

Port Arthur, which finished the district drive without defeat, took its case to court on whether it should be permitted use of twelfth graders. A civil appeals court ruled the district court at Beaumont had jurisdiction to hear the plea. The district committee is expected to meet, however, before a hearing in court can be held.

Sandies Have Clinched Tie

Woodrow Wilson of Dallas has already won the District 8 crown, Lufkin the District 10 title and Conroe the District 13 flag. Other districts have deciding games Thanksgiving Day. Amarillo needs a victory over Lubbock to win the District 1 title, Vernon can take the District 2 crown by beating Electra, Abilene needs only to tie San Angelo to take the Oil Belt flag, Sherman can tie Gainesville and win in District 5, Highland Park (Dallas) can do the same with Greenville in District 6, North Side faces a similar set-up in a game with Paschal in the Fort Worth district, Longview needs only a tie with Gladewater to win the District 9 crown, and Jefferson (San Antonio) can tie Brackenridge (San Antonio) and still win the flag in District 12.

Undefeated teams clash for the championships of District 4 and 15 with Austin (El Paso) battling El Paso High in the former and Corpus Christi meeting Robstown in the latter.

Temple Faces Hard Test

Temple, undefeated for the season, faces Waco at Temple in the pay-off game of District 11. Temple could gain a tie for the title even though losing to Waco.

Only three of the state's undefeated, untied teams were considered in danger of having their records marred in this week's games. Austin faced a tough club indeed in El Paso High, which has been tied but not beaten. Temple looked for trouble from Waco and Corpus Christi may find the going rough with Robstown. Abilene, Longview, Lufkin and Conroe felt safe. Lufkin plays Athens and Conroe has no game.

Finish Eligibility Thursday

ED SMITH

MAURICE CHERNOSKY

Three more of Texas Tech's stalwarts who don the Scarlet and Black for their last home game against Creighton Thursday. Above, Ed Smith of Del Rio divides time with Babe Curfman as first string quarterback for the Raiders this year. An accurate passer, Smith won his second letter last year. Above, right, Maurice Chernosky, a first string halfback reserve last year, has been kept on the sidelines all season with a leg injury. "Chernos" got his high school training at Tyler, and now lives at Ennis. Right, Pete Owens from Littlefield is one of the outstanding 1937 Raiders. Teamed with Line Captain Lou Jones, he is a great offensive and defensive lineman. He lettered as a sophomore and again last year as a junior.

PETE OWENS

Spur Needs Victory Thursday To Gain Tie In District 4

With a tie for District 4B hanging in the balance, Spur must beat an obstinate Floydada High school aggregation that could easily spoil the Bulldogs' chances on Spur's field Thanksgiving Day.

The home team, beaten early in the season by Matador, is likely to get a severe test. The Whirlwinds, defeated only by Flomot, could toss the title to the Herd by downing the Bulldogs.

Quitaque, six times defeated in conference competition, figures to extend the Longhorns little in their game on Panther turf. Spur plastered Flomot for its only setback.

Matador, playing on their home field, could draw Paducah into a deadlock with the Bull Fighters for sixth spot with a victory over the Dragons. The Matadors have lost four contests since defeating Spur, and have failed to record another victory. Paducah has two titular triumphs.

Silverton journeys to Turkey to complete Thursday's card in the district. A Turkey win would throw Silverton, Lockney, Estelline, and the Turks into a fourway tie.

Cowhands Plaster 13 To 0 Defeat On Cooper High

Two blocked punts yesterday afternoon gave the Lubbock Cowhands a 13 to 0 victory over Fred Rich's Cooper High school crew on the Cooper grid.

In the first quarter Coach Walker Nichols' boys backed the homelings to their goalline, and James Merriman, a Cowhand tackle, crashed through to block the Cooper punt. He covered it over the goal for the first score. Mid way of the second quarter the Cowhands drove 90 yards to the Cooper 4, but reserves failed to go over.

Captain Billie Phillips, stellar Cowhand wingman, got in front of another kick in the third period, and End Billie Trice scooped the ball up and ran for the score.

Bids For Work On No. 33 Are Opened In Austin Tuesday

Bids for asphalt surfacing and caliche basing of approximately 17.2 miles of state highway 33 from Friona, Parmer county, northeast into Castro county were opened at the state highway department at Austin Tuesday, according to information received by Lubbock district offices.

Of the improvement, 14.8 miles are in Parmer county and 2.04 miles in Castro. Grading, drainage and bridge work on the project was completed last summer.

National Park Service Is To Abandon Big Bend CCC Camp

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23. (AP)—Representative R. E. Thompson of El Paso said today the National Park service would abandon its Civilian Conservation camp in the Big Bend Chisos mountains at the end of the year.

He said he had been promised, however, that after Texas acquired the land which is to comprise the proposed Big Bend National park and turned it over to the service, three or four new camps would be established in the area.

Jays Have Strong, Colorful Club; Victims Of Tough Luck

Texas Tech's regulars who played most of the game against Centenary Saturday were given another day of rest yesterday while reserves went through a scrimmage session in preparation for the Creighton university Bluejays Thursday afternoon.

Coach Pete Cawthon gave 13 men who worked most of the Gent contest two days to recuperate from bruises and soreness. Only Frank Guzick, rip-roaring junior center, is likely to be left on the sidelines Thursday. Others have been taking walking exercises, but have not engaged in regular workouts.

This afternoon will provide only drill for these players, and today's practice session will be light.

Face Colorful Team

The Red Raiders are not taking the invaders lightly. Coach Cawthon, who has personally scouted the team, says it is the most colorful eleven to visit this section this year. Not only are they colorful but possess a world of power. The mentor likens them to Duquesne in size and style of attack.

Sixteen lettermen compose nucleus of the team. There are spur winners at every position except quarterback, where graduation took all three pilots from last year.

Coach Marchmont (Marchie) Swartz has brought the Jays over a tough schedule with 2 wins and 6 defeats. They managed to push over a touchdown Sunday against Detroit university in sustaining a 48 to 7 licking. The Titans handed the Raiders a humiliating 34-0 defeat early in the season.

The invaders defeated St. Benedict's college and Grinnell by identical counts, 6 to 0. In other games which they have lost, before Sunday's Detroit encounter, they were defeated by from 1 to 19 points in games which easily could have ended in their favor. Against Xavier university, Kansas State, and St. Louis university, Creighton had a distinct advantage in statistics. They outplayed their opponents, piling up more yardage and first downs, but were unable to make enough points.

Twice during the season poor passes from center have resulted in safeties for Creighton foes and quick touchdowns have followed the 2 points.

Bill "Zipper" Ziesel, 165-pound junior triple-threater, is spearhead of the Bluejay offensive. With him are Quarterback Cantman, Johnny Piet at the other halfback post, and John Leahy at fullback, to round out the backfield. The quartet has weight, speed and ability.

Lettermen Form Line

Captain Fritz Reif, a 5 foot 7 inch, 165 pound guard, is the forward wall stalwart, with lettermen rounding out his line helpers. Ends Fred Borak and Stanley Bromnicki, both 200-pound letter winners are good pass receivers and outstanding defensive wingmen. Frank Jones and Sylvester Lulinski, both over the two century weight mark, hold down tackle positions capably. Hefty Omer Kelly is first-string pivot man, and Dick Vana pairs with Reif at guard.

The Bluejays pull into town tonight on their way from Omaha, Nebraska. They will stop over at Amarillo for a workout this afternoon.

Tickets for the game are on sale at the Hilton hotel box office. Choice seats in section A and B on the west side and the corresponding sections on the east side are now available. At present demand, however, less select seats will be taken soon.

ASK LINE ABANDONMENT

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23. (AP)—The Acme Tap Railroad company and the Fort Worth and Denver City railway company asked the Interstate Commerce commission today for permission to abandon a mile and a half track from Acme to Agatite, Hardeman county, Texas.

The application said the only traffic on this line had been from a plaster mill now abandoned.

Administration's Reciprocal Trade Program Said Responsible For Trade Gains

Sixteen Pacts Are In Force

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—State department officials cited figures today designed to show that the reciprocal trade program was responsible for a substantial part of the increases in this country's foreign commerce in 1936 and 1937.

Receiprocal agreements, exchanging mutual tariff benefits, are in effect with 16 nations. Similar pacts are being negotiated with five others, including Great Britain—America's largest market.

A commerce department analysis disclosed that trade with 14 of the reciprocal agreement countries rose from $1,615,968,000 in 1935 to $1,909,456,000 in 1936, or 18.2 per cent. Trade with all other countries increased from $2,714,391,000 to $2,963,260,000, or 9.2 per cent.

For the first nine months of this year, trade with the 14 reciprocal agreement countries rose 35.2 per cent from $1,364,249,000 in the comparable 1936 period to $1,844,006,000, while with non-agreement countries it increased 38.5 per cent from $2,138,954,000 to $2,962,730,000.

"While it is not possible to separate completely the factors contributing toward this increase," a state department official said, "there is no question that a portion of it may be attributed to the trade agreements program."

Service Scheduled At 11 O'Clock Today By Christian Scientists

"Thanksgiving" is subject of a lesson-sermon to be read in the Christian Science church, 1411 Fourteenth street, at 11 o'clock Thursday morning.

The golden text is: "The Lord is my strength and my shield; my heart trusted in Him, and I am helped: therefore my heart greatly rejoiceth; and with my song will I praise Him. (Psalms 28:7).

The lesson-sermon includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook: "God is not moved by the breath of praise to do more than He has already done, nor can the infinite do less than bestow all good, since He is unchanging wisdom and love . . . . Love is impartial and universal in its adaptation and bestowals. It is the open front which cries, "Ho, every one that thirsteth, come ye to the waters."

Tech's New Library Which Is Under Construction

No, the chemistry building at Texas Technological college hasn't done an about-face. The structure pictured above is the library as it is to appear when completed. The building will be almost identical with the chemistry building in outward appearance. The cloisters will face south instead of north, and the tower will be on the opposite side, however. Foundations of the structure now are being laid and the building is to be completed by late next summer. Construction was made possible by a $275,000 allocation by the Texas legislature. The building will be located directly north of and in line with the chemistry building.

Ralls Man Informs County Clerks Of Son's Intentions

A Ralls resident is afraid his son is "fixing to marry ON instead of OFF" and is taking precautions to prevent such a calamity in the family.

He has sent printed letters to county clerks in Texas and the eastern New Mexico asking that they refuse to issue the license when the son applies for it.

The letter in part: "He is not of age but has conceived the idea of getting married. I very seriously object to his taking this step at this time because he is totally without income of any kind and wholly unable to support a wife."

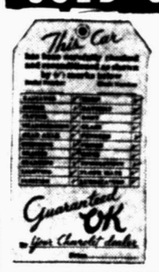

The letter, a copy of which was received in the office of Ed D. Allen, Lubbock county clerk, gave the names of the boy and the girl whom he expected to marry.

NINE ARE HELD SUSPECTS IN YACHT MURDER MYSTERY

British Financier Vanishes at Sea After Boarding Rival's Ship

MURDER, stalking the cabins of a mystery yacht, bound for the Bahamas on a mystery cruise, presents Florida police with their strangest case.

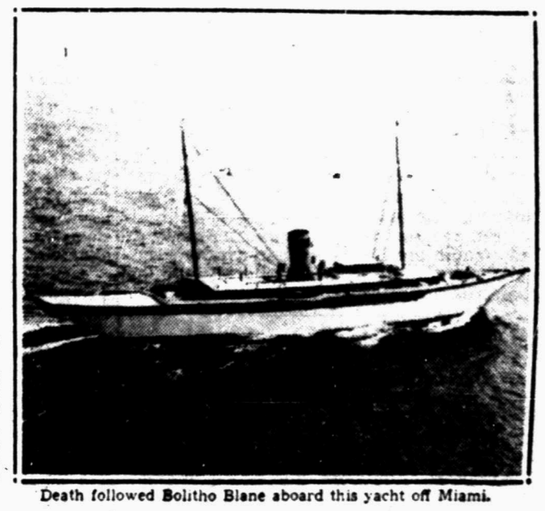

Two hours after Bolitho Blane, British financier and world soap king, boarded the palatial yacht of his principal competitor, Carlton Rocksavage, he vanished from his cabin. The window of his drawing room cabin was wide open and it appeared as if Blane had thrown himself overboard.

On Blane's table lay a note addressed to his secretary, Nicholas Stodart. It indicated suicide in face of approaching bankruptcy. A stock market memorandum detailing closing prices for that day showed Argus Suds, Blane's company stock, at new lows.

Aboard the yacht and detained by Miami police in addition to Rocksavage, are his daughter, Ferri, socialite and press personality; Lady Welter, British publisher and youth reform leader; her socialite daughter and husband, Pamela and Reginald Jocelyn; Count Posodini; the Bishop of Bude and Inosuke Hayashi, Japanese agent.

Stodart, in an initial statement, indicated the case to be a clear suicide, pointing out that Blane faced a crash of his companies and eventual surrender to Rocksavage of his mastery in the world soap trade.

Police were inclined to this theory until examination of Blane's suite showed two strange parallel marks across the carpet, running to the porthole. At the same time police found a discolored patch on the rug and a smear of blood on the curtain.

Death followed Bolitho Blane aboard this yacht off Miami.

A Break In The War Clouds

IT TOOK grizzled, old Nathan Bedford Forrest—God rest his ashes!—to sum up the essence of the science of military strategy in one ungrammatical line: "Git thar fust with the most men!"

Acting on his own maxim, the genius of the slashing, courageous Confederate cavalry was a terror to "damyankee" generals throughout the bitter war between the states. And ever since then military men have agreed that his terse slogan is all of the law and most of the prophets, as far as the art of making war is concerned.

It is interesting, therefore, to see that the United States army in this enlightened age is spending a good deal of money to make sure that in any future war it will be able to do what General Forrest advised.

A FEW days ago the army's new "streamlined" infantry division completed some important test maneuvers right here in Texas. This division is a far cry from the cumbersome, foot-slogging divisions of World war days. It has some 13,000 men against the World war strength of 22,000. Instead of the World war's complement of 6,700 horses and mules, it has something more than 1,500 automobiles.

To see what it could do, this motorized division, located between Houston and San Antonio, pretended that an invading army was established 300 miles away, near Mineral Wells. The division hopped in its trucks, got to the scene of the "war" in one day, spent the next day in out-maneuvering and defeating its unmotorized opponent, and got back to its base on the third day—having completed a stunt utterly beyond the possibilities for any pre-gasoline age army.

You may be sure that this demonstration will be prayerfully studied by army authorities, both here and abroad. It is a broad hint that the old attributes of fluidity and quick movement may be restored to armies—things which were conspicuous by their absence in the World war.

AND this has a meaning for civilians as well as for soldiers. For there is a chance that motorized armies will make future wars a little less frightful and destructive, simply by making them shorter and using fewer men to fight them.

The World war was colossally and unbelievably destructive of life and treasure largely because armies moved at a snail's pace. No general could hope to "git thar fust with the most men" because it took a week to put his army in motion, and because numbers of both sides were almost unlimited.

Armies that depend on quick movement and mechanized hitting power rather than on slow-moving numbers should change that sort of thing. The war of attrition is the most costly and terrible of all wars, as we all have tragic reason to know. If military science is at last finding a way to restore the lost art of strategy, the dreadful record of the World war may never be repeated.

A Pre-View On Thanksgiving

JUDGING from reports of turkey dealers and the purveyors of groceries, plain and staple, there will be a greater-than-ever percentage of groaning tables on the South Plains tomorrow.

While it is true many of us will eat more than is best for us, it is good news, we think, that the territory, by and large, this year has the money to provide all that's needed—and then some—for the annual Thanksgiving feast.

There may be some hungry stomachs, and that is to be regretted even though there is nothing that can be done on any year to wipe out all possibility of want.

But the fact that the great majority of our people are in better-than-average economic condition is something else to be thankful for.

The One-Minute Sermon

Gather yourselves together, yea, gather together, O nations not desired:

Before the decree bring forth, before the day pass as the chaff, before the fierce anger of the Lord come upon you, before the day of the Lord's anger come upon you.

Seek ye the Lord, all ye meek of the earth, which have wrought his judgment: seek righteousness, seek meekness: it may be ye shall be hid in the day of the Lord's anger.—Zephaniah, 11, 1 through 3.

Yesterday: Jill invites Alan to her party. He forgives, agrees to come. And Jill is the happiest girl in the world.

CHAPTER XV

Outside the city was changing. A soft and smothering blanket of snow was overlaying familiar scenes with white.

Shining motors met the challenge of the snow with superb mechanical indifference. Moving one by one—an endless procession of them—to the storm entrance.

Just inside the great doors waited liveried servants with silver trays. Cards were an unnecessary formality in most cases as trained eyes swept the entering elite. Familiar faces to socially conscious butlers.

In the drawing room which flanked the ballroom Jill was receiving with William Whitman, standing by her father and mother.

Barry, who had been drinking, Jill saw, came close to her. "You'll stand all of 'em on their ears. It's what you want, gorgeous gal, isn't it?"

"Please don't be silly, Barry," Jill said. She saw his face redden angrily as he turned away.

And now here was Milo, cold and angry looking, also, his eyes lighting up suddenly as he saw his flowers on Jill's left shoulder.

"I'm sorry I wore them," Jill thought. "It's just like Milo to think it means something."

"What dances are you saving me?" Milo asked, a strange new intensity in his manner. An almost demanding way.

"The third and fifth, to begin with," Jill answered sweetly. Nothing could ruffle her now.

The first with Bill. The second with that new Englishman, Victor Ainsley, who was leaving the party early, and wanted to meet her, according to Elise. The third with Milo, and the fourth—the fourth! By that time, Alan would have arrived.

It was while she was dancing with the Englishman that something happened that gave Jill a queer feeling of apprehension.

Perkins was entering the ballroom, trying to look as though he were not doing something that was distinctly irregular. He was making his way to her father. Jill, dancing nearer to the group where her father was standing, saw him look up blankly as Perkins spoke. Then she was positive of it, her father's face looked white and startled. He turned and walked from the room.

Who had summoned him? What could it mean? Jill heard her partner's voice through her troubled abstraction.

"I'd much rather talk than dance," he said. "Could we?"

Jill led the way to a secluded place. A small enclosed sunroom that led into the first room of her father's double study.

"This is jolly," Victor Ainsley was saying. "May I smoke? Thanks?"

He lit a cigaret and watched the curling smoke. "I'm afraid the technique of the dance was not stressed enough in my education," he said. "I much prefer this to a crowded floor." He liked the informality though of even the most formal parties in America. English people weren't able to break away from their natural reserve. Even when they played it was a sort of polite playing, lacking the gay casualness of the American parties.

"There are a great many English people in town," Jill said. "I wish you weren't leaving early. I'm expecting an English friend, soon. Alan Jeffry. You probably wouldn't know him, though."

"Alan Jeffry! But of course I do. Grand chap, who uprooted himself and went wandering."

"You know him?" Jill's tone was incredulous.

"We were at Eton together as small chaps. Alan was the star of the school. Headmaster's favorite and all that, which didn't interfere with his popularity with the students.

Later he was a great oarsman. An all-round athlete really. Yet he never seemed to put his heart into sports. On a day a big game was coming off, you might find him off painting a picture."

Jill scarcely breathed. "Then?" her eager voice prompted.

"Alan went the educational way. I had to drop out. Family fortunes, you know. He studied. He must have been accumulating a vast amount of knowledge, besides indulging himself in the study of art."

"Oh tell me about—that," Jill urged.

She could feel his questioning eyes.

"The Jeffrys all go in for politics," he answered. "Parliament is a tradition. Lord Jeffry—"

"Lord—" broke in Jill faintly.

"Yes. Didn't you know? He has always been a staunch conservative. But he is growing old, and he wanted the mantle to fall upon Alan. It must have been a great blow to the old man when Alan would have none of politics. They quarreled. I believe he told Alan that if he could prove he could support himself with his painting as an English gentleman should be supported, he could follow his bent. Otherwise, he must return to the fold and follow his father."

"Oh," exclaimed Jill. "Did he agree?"

"Yes. He's a family loving chap at heart. Loved the old home, an ancestral place called 'Templeogue,' which in the Gaelic means 'dear abiding place'."

He paused. "Am I boring you?"

"No! Please go on."

"There's not much more to tell. The Jeffrys have lived in their home with their fine old crested silver and beautiful banquet service, and the hospitable motto 'The ornaments of a home are the friends who have visited it.' Generations of Jeffrys. It would take a terrific urge, you see, to start one of the family on a different trend. Alan evidently reverted back to some artist ancestor."

Jill sat with a lump in her throat, her eyes misted over with tears. How many humiliations must have come to Alan in the course of his testing period. One of them—the hardest to bear—her own careless plan to pave his rocky way with gold.

"Thank you for telling me the story," she said in a low tone.

"I'm sorry I can't wait to meet him," Ainsley said. "He is one of the finest chaps I know. But I'm taking a train out tonight, on my way south to visit friends. Hello—" he was glancing at his watch, "I'm running late. I must look up your mother and father and thank them for a delightful evening."

"Don't stop for that," Jill said. "You might miss your train. I'll tell them for you."

After he had gone, Jill crossed to a window and stood staring out. She felt faint and confused. Lord Jeffry! Alan was of the English nobility. Some day he would be an English lord. They would live in that splendid old home and carry on its fine traditions.

She turned from the window. This must be Milo's dance. How angry he would be having to search for her. Her gaze focused suddenly on a dim ray of light coming from under the door that opened into one of her father's two study rooms.

Suddenly Jill remembered Perkins. Her father's white face. He must be in the larger study, with the door open. That explained the dim light under the door.

Something had happened to worry him. On an impulse Jill crossed to the door, opening it quietly. Then she stepped inside and closed it behind her.

Her father sat at a table. His face was evidently toward some visitor. Jill caught her breath. She had never seen her father with an expression like that on his face.

It was haggard, fearfully lined, gray with some inner anguish.

She could not see his visitor. But suddenly a voice she recognized grated harshly in the silence.

"You fail to understand that a man might get tired of carrying a heavy load like this, and getting not enough out of it to pay for such a risk."

"But, Montanne, you've never lost a dollar through me. You never will." The agonized note in her father's voice tore at Jill's heart.

She felt suffocated. Terrible enlightenment had come. Mr. Montanne, with the fury of a parent who had seen his son cast aside, had decided to come to the party after all, and bring the gay house down in crashing desolation.

It was all clear now. There had been something of it in Milo's eyes. The whiphand look. Evidently, he had expected when their fortune was swept away that she would come crawling. But she wouldn't. She despised him. She despised his father. All of their kind.

Oh, what a despicable revenge.

She knew so little about business. But she knew that her father had counted upon the friendship and financial support of this man to carry the company through disturbed conditions. She guessed that what she was seeing was what her

The News Behind The News

WASHINGTON
By Ray Tucker

THE new version of Senator Joseph O'Mahoney's cross-country dash to offer an embarrassing welcome to President Roosevelt on the latter's western trip makes it appear as a Paul Revere ride rather than a coat tail act. It looked first as if the Wyoming man were currying favor with the party leader he defied in the court fight.

When the Senator left Washington for home on a leisurely automobile tour, the President had apparently cancelled his sally to the coast. Every cabinet member except Messrs. Farley and Ickes had argued against it. But when Mr. O'Mahoney reached Chicago, he discovered that F. D. R. had changed his mind, and would deliver his first speech at Cheyenne. There were also reports that he would inaugurate his "purge" of anti-courters there.

Mr. O'Mahoney immediately packed his duds and broke several records in rushing to Cheyenne, despite the lack of a presidential invitation. The Senator determined that if the President were going to attack him, he would have to look the victim in the eye while doing it. "Joe" meant to take it standing up and staring back at his challenger.

RIDER: People who boarded the presidential special at Cheyenne had a peek at a speech that was never delivered. Casting aside his prepared manuscript, Mr. Roosevelt spoke extemporaneously to an audience that cheered the presence of Senator O'Mahoney on the platform.

Why Mr. Roosevelt didn't deliver his original address, which was supposed to include a denunciation of the Wyoming Senator, isn't known, but it can be surmised. Fifty miles out from Cheyenne he read in a newspaper hustled aboard the train that state Democrats would honor O'Mahoney at a rousing dinner for his court battle. In the presence of thousands Mrs. Roosevelt and the Senator exchanged friendly greetings, and the latter had to introduce his unknown colleague—Senator Schwartz—to F. D. R. Mr. O'Mahoney himself couldn't have written a finer scenario on his own behalf.

The consequences of the Roosevelt-O'Mahoney stares have escaped most people. Having failed to "purge" the Wyoming Senator, Mr. Roosevelt dared not seek reprisal against Messrs. Wheeler, Burke, etc. He failed to revive his court plan as the West's rousing reception banished some bitterness from his mind. Subsequent troubles—the Black furor, Japan's outbreak, the business recession—have kept him too occupied to renew his vendetta against the judges and the Senators. That's why his colleagues are calling him "Paul Revere O'Mahoney."

SENSATIONAL: Senator Burton K. Wheeler faces the most momentous decision which any United States Senator has had to make in many years. As chairman of the committee investigating railroad financing he must decide whether he will sponsor an inquiry into the operations of insurance companies.

With deliberate lack of ballyhoo Investigator Max Lowenthal has laid the groundwork for such an investigation while examining insurance officials who also serve as trustees of bankrupt lines. The Brandeis protege believes he has proved that insurance monopolistic operations in this field impose heavy burden on the roads, the shipping and traveling public, the minority holders of securities. Therefore he insists that the committee has authority to broaden its inquiry into the insurance field or to ask the Senate for extension of its authority.

Acting Chairman Truman doesn't want to assume responsibility for such a move, though he has permitted Mr. Lowenthal to ask searching questions. The White House attitude toward the proposal has never been expressed privately or publicly. If the Montana Senator gives the go signal, and the Senate supports him, it will be the first federal investigation of its kind—and perhaps the most sensational of all.

DILEMMA: Congressional G.O.P.-ers would control of party machinery from Hoover and Landon factions at Cleveland, but they haven't touched a finger to the rusty levers yet. They can't agree on how to turn the wheels, if any.

Senate Leader McNary favors hands-off altogether. The scheme of letting Democrats plague their own President operated so smoothly in the Supreme court battle that he sees no reason for changing it. The bitterness still raging across the aisle is the slickest kind of grease for the Republican machine, in his opinion. Since few G.O.P. Senators face the voters next year, they can afford to lay low for a while.

House members must run in 1938, however. They figure they must talk up and act up to remind their constits that they're still alive and kicking. In the back of their heads they suspect that "Charley Mac" privately favors F.D.R.'s farm-and-power program. The Snell-Martin crowd in the House, thinking in terms of taxes and tariffs and industrial difficulties, prefer the more aggressive Vandenberg to McNary, but can't afford to say so publicly. It would be heresy to speak slightly of the sacred seniority system.

NEW YORK
By James McMullin

BOTH wings of organized labor are having dues troubles in a big way—especially the CIO.

New members enrolled during the intensive unionizing drive last winter and spring never did take ther financial obligations to their unons very seriously. If it wasn't convenient to pay dues, they just didn't bother. They got away with it because the unions couldn't afford to weaken themselves by expelling the defaulters. There were too many of them.

This problem has been greatly aggravated by the fresh wave of unemployment resulting from the business recession. Jobless and part-time workers either can't pay dues or refuse to pay them on the basis that they are getting no value for their money. Shrinking exchequers are setting many unions back on their heels. There is reason to suspect that in some case—particularly in the steel industry—employers "planned it that way."

TIME: Informed New Yorkers aren't kidding themselves about the prospects for speedy tax revision. Despite strong Congressional sentiment for amending the undistributed profits levy, there is little chance that the details can be worked out in time to permit decisive action during the special session.

The White House can be expected to encourage slow motion treatment. If the present tax remains in effect until the end of the year, many corporations will declare dividends next month which might not do so if the law were amended to reduce the penalties for adding to reserves. Those dividend dollars should perk up spending quite a bit, thus helping to combat the recession. Naturally, Mr. Roosevelt would be in favor of that.

It is dawning on business leaders that it will be some months at least before any steps the government may take to aid business can begin to show results.

HOUSES: Real estate sharps regard administration plans to stimulate housing with mixed emotions. They agree that the effect on industry should be beneficial, but they also point out that a real housing boom would come close to destroying the secondary market for existing dwellings.

Owners of houses built in the last big construction wave from 1927 to '29 would be out of luck. These houses are already obsolescent, due to striking improvements in electrification, heating, etc., since then. However, there is still some demand for them from people whose increased earnings in the past few years are putting them in a position to buy homes for the first time. There are comparatively few new dwellings available now.

No one would want 10-year old houses if there were plenty of throughly modern new ones available on terms much easier to finance. The woes of the possessors of obsolete properties will be strictly their own. The government can hardly be expected to take time out to weep for their losses when restoration of the recovery trend is at stake.

Letters To The Editor

Your Voice Is As Loud As Our Own

EXPLAINS ERROR

Editor, The Avalanche. A counter charge was made against Brownfield High school last Saturday that we had played an ineligible man in a game with the Cowhands some three weeks ago, Nov. 4. The authority was cited as the Lubbock Avalanche and Journal of Nov. 5. The man that was cited as playing was one Ware. I do not even remember the incident. If this does appear in print, however, it must evidently be an error on the part of the reporter. I did not report the game and I do not know who did. I do know that we did not play any one by the name of Ware. We played one by the name of Fore. It is possible that the names could have been mixed. We do not even have a man in school by the name of Ware, nor do I even know any one by that name.

In this connection I wish to state that our men are eligible and we have not played any ineligible men in any kind of game during this year. Our files are open for inspection.

Very truly yours,
M. L. H. Baze,
Brownfield.

Haynes and Strange firm of Lubbock is architect. W. B. Copeland is president of the school board.

The Story Of Jill

father had meant when he had said one: "Our company is like the Rock of Gibraltar. Oh, I guess it could be smashed. But I don't think it ever will be."

"I never dreamed that you would fail me," her father was saying now, heavily. "You know what it means. That the others will follow. They've always followed you, Montanne. And the moral effect will be as bad as the financial loss. It will bring every creditor we have howling at the door. All because, for some reason I can't understand, you are refusing the matter of a comparatively small company loan. It wouldn't have been needed, if that strike we had hadn't been so prolonged."

"It would have been a risk," Montanne was answering. "And sometimes a risk seems not worth taking. A $2,000,000 loan isn't just pocket change, you know."

He was being deliberately ugly, Jill knew.

She moved a little, to see her father's face closer. There was nothing but despair there. He had always been so good and noble. He'd been like the Rock of Gibraltar, himself. But the rock had been struck some devastating blow, and was going down.

And then Jill knew what she must do. She reached back to the door. Opened it, closed it loudly.

"Who is there?" came her father's voice.

Jill, a gay mask on her face, desolation in her heart, walked quickly into the study.

"Dad! Mr. Montanne! To think of finding you two here together. I was looking for you, dad, to tell you first. But it's wonderful to find Milo's father here too. Both of you can congratulate me. Milo and I are going to be married."

FARZAN'S QUEST. No. 117 By Edgar Rice Burroughs

The sobbing Annette had bowed to a seemingly inevitable fate, but the courageous Jane was fired with determination to resist. "We must try to escape," she said. "There is no guard at the entrance. We can get to the roof. After that, we shall see just—"

"S-sh!" cautioned Annette, for now footsteps sounded plainly on the roof, then the opening was darkened by the form of a man. "Come up," he commanded, "both of you!" Jane sighed. "Our poor little plan! But we shall try again, if we have a chance."

"It will do no good," Annette prophesied gloomily. "I have the terrible feeling that we will die—both of us—tonight perhaps." Jane was already ascending the ladder, and each step strenghtened her resolve not to give up without a struggle.

As they emerged onto the roof Jane recognized the warrior as the one who had captured her. "What now, Ogdh?" she asked. "Are you going to set us free?" "Be still," growled the Kavuru. "You go now into the presence of Kavandavanda. He has sent for you!"

FAVORITES HOLD GAINS

NEW YORK, Nov. 23. (AP)—Selected stocks ended on a rallying note in today's market with favorites holding gains to 3 or more points.

Steels, motors and specialties led the relatively quiet concluding push.

While actively dealt in stocks were well in front at the finish, there still was a wide assortment of losers.

The Associated Press average of 60 issues emerged with a net advance of .5 of a point at 42.6 against a decline Monday of 2.2 points. Transfers totalled 1,640,960 shares compared with 1,517,390 the day before.

Bright spots on the business horizon were scarce and brokers attributed the better performance of the list principally to speculative buying for a quick turn on expectation of at least a temporary recovery.

Turkey Dealers Have Good Idea But Added Attractions Ruin It

LONGVIEW, Nov. 23. (AP)—It was a good idea, but the added attractions ruined it.

Turkey dealers here decided to stimulate business by loosing 30 live gobblers from atop a building, with those lucky enough to catch them becoming their new owners.

The fowls were released, all right, but an unruly crowd broke windows, stripped the birds of feathers and drumsticks and started arguments.

Three men were arrested for features not on the program.

NEW ORLEANS REPORT

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 23. (AP) — Cotton prices advanced in late trading today in response to a rally in stocks and bullish Washington reports. The market closed steady at net advances of 4 to 9 points.

One advice from the capital said a house committee had decided on a penalty of two cents a pound on cotton raised in excess of set acreage.

The other report said the house tax sub-committee had agreed on a substantial rduction in the undistributed profits tax.

Both these wires brought out increased buying by the trade as well as covering by shorts.

All active positions closed above the 8-cent market with Dec. at 8.01, Jan. at 8.02, Marcr at 8.05, May at 8.09, July at 8.10, Oct. 8.14@8.15 and Dec. (new) at 8.18-bid.

NEW YORK REPORT

NEW YORK, Nov. 23. (AP)—Cotton rallied moderately today on near-month covering while offerings continued light. March advanced from 7.82@7.94 and closed at the high with final prices 5 to 10 points net higher.

The market opened 3 to 5 points lower but there was enough trade price fixing and foreign buying to check the decline and some local buying developed. Southern offerings were comparatively light as quiet conditions continued in the spot markets.

The bulk of the trading represented belated evening-up in December and exchanging to later deliveries prior to first notice day tomorrow. The near month held relatively steady as price fixing absorbed a somewhat lighter volume of liquidation.

AVERAGE PRICE

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 23. (AP)—The average price of middling cotton at ten southern spot markets today was 7.90 cents a pound, average for the past thirty market days was 7.96 cents a pound.

CHICAGO REPORT

CHICAGO, Nov. 23. (AP)—In a stop-loss selling stampede, Chicago wheat prices tumbled headlong 3⅜ cents a bushel today, and afterward recovered less than half the fall.

Nervousness resulting from general financial unsettlement and from persistent dearth of any big export buying on North American wheat formed the outstanding market feature.

Observers said the Chicago wheat market was honeycombed with stop-loss orders on the part of holders unable or unwilling to put further collateral required as protection for brokers, and that automatic execution of these orders was a consequence.

At the close, Chicago wheat futures were 1⅜ to 2¼ cents under yesterday's finish, Dec. 89⅞@90, May 89⅜@89⅝, July 84⅛@84¼; corn unchanged to ⅜ lower, Dec. 54⅛@54¼, May 56⅞@57; oats ⅛ to ½ off, rye 2½ to 2¾ down, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 7 cents.

sang, as an encore, the favorite old-English "Drink To Me Only With Thine Eyes." This was followed with a group of German selections, "Du bist die Ruh" (Schubert), "Die Mainacht" (Brahms) and "Standchen" and "Freundliche" (Strauss). After the aria "Come un bel di mi maggio" (Giordano) the young tenor returned to sing the number with which he made his debut at the Chicago opera house, "The Stars Are Brightly Shining" from Puccini's La Tosca. He responded to a tumultous applause with his debut at the Metropolitan Opera House, "The Dream" from Massenet's Manon.

Accompanist Displays Technique

Merl Freeland, accompanist, played Prelude in G sharp minor (Rachmaninoff) and Octave Intermezzo, replying to prolonged applause with Guion's "Turkey in the Straw" and a modern composition, "Inspiration." He displayed a dashing technique.

Mr. Bentonelli returned after intermission to sing two French selections, "Comu la samaritana" (Camajani) and "Les Anes du Caire" (Nerini), the latter which he introduced in this country. "Snow Toward Evening" (Warren), still in manuscript, and "Love Is" (Spencer) were others in that group. For encores the artist sang a selection from Romberg's "May-Time" and a humorous piece, "Seven Old Women Sit For Tea."

The last group, all modern, consisted of two songs by Richard Hageman, "Christmas Eve" and "The Donkey," "The Ape and the Lady" (Cevee) and "Sea Moods" (Tyson). Encores were "Love Was a Little Thing," "I Heard the Call of the Road" and "When I've Sung My Songs."

Preceding the concert, Dr. Jack M. Lewis, vice-president of the association expressed appreciation for the services rendered by the retiring president, the Rev. W. R. Vivrett, and Mrs. Vivrett who are leaving Lubbock in December. He presented them with memberships for the three years they expect to spend in graduate study in the East. After the concert the couple was honored with an informal reception held on the stage. The audience was invited to call to greet a line made up of the Vivretts, Mr. Bentonelli, Mr. Freeland, Dr. and Mrs. Jack M. Lewis.

The musicians are returning to Norman, Okla., today to spend Thanksgiving with their parents and later will leave for a concert appearance in Buffalo, N. Y.—F. M. T.

Federal Deficit Over Estimate

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—Figures on the red side of the government's ledger for this fiscal year were bigger last week-end than President Roosevelt's deficit estimate for the entire twelve months.

The treasury's daily statement for Nov. 20, issued today, showed a net deficit for the 1938 fiscal period of $700,945,979, with more than seven months to go. The president predicted the excess of spending over income would be $695,245,000 for the year.

The treasury, however, has three large tax collection dates ahead and hopes these collections will keep the deficit at a figure no larger than at present. The dates are December 15, and March 15, and June 15, when income tax installments are due.

Exchange Is Told To Reorganize

reform themselves to prevent artificial fluctuations but indicated they were not ready to assume the responsibility and that more extensive commission regulations may result.

Result Of Negotiations

The demand for reorganization resulted from failure of secret negotiations between certain New York Stock Exchange members and the S. E. C. The commission rejected as inadequate the exchange's proposals, for improved administration of the "big board."

Douglas specified that an acceptable plan would have to include:

1. Strict punishment of members guilty of "unethical or illegal" activities.

2. Transfer of exchange management from committees of members to paid and impartial experts.

Would Reduce Members

3. Reduction in the number of exchange members.

4. Regulations to give full or "adequate" market effect to the transactions of small investors in odd lots, or less than 100-share, trading.

5. Restrictions on floor trading of members and specialists.

The stock exchange movement for improvements in administration is reported to have been led by Paul H. Shields, member of Shields and company, who conferred recently with Douglas and President Roosevelt.

Although Douglas mentioned recent activities on the exchanges, commission official asserted the reorganization idea was not linked to the slump in security prices.

Quarantine Zone Being Guarded

Seeking to prevent a predatory incursion of the pink bollworm into West Texas "free territory," department of agriculture experts and various county authorities have thrown a network of patrols about the 16-county Panhandle district quarantine zone.

Signs of the dread enemy of cotton growers have been found in Gaines, Dawson and Martin counties where gin trash reveals that the pink worms again are attempting an invasion of West Texas' high altitudes.

Patrols Established

Patrols have been established on all roads to the south and east of the Panhandle quarantine district. Officials promise vigorous prosecution for those attempting to haul seed from the quarantined zone, unless the seeds have first been taken to designated mills and passed on by government inspectors.

The difficulty especially has been found along the southern line of Lynn county, where cotton grown in the southern part of Lynn and the northwestern part of Borden counties is taken to O'Donnell gins. O'Donnell is "on the line" practically, Lynn county being in free, Dawson in quarantine territory.

Warning To Haulers

Haulers must have tight bodies on their trucks and must guard against spilling seed otherwise by having tarpaulin-covered beds.

Complaints have been made of seed being hauled from quarantine areas to Abilene and to Sweetwater, among other places. The Nolan county attorney was to have conferred at Austin Monday afternoon with members of the commissioner of agriculture's office, seeking means to lessen the bollworm menace to free territory.

A Big Spring party of ginners and prominent farmers and business men went to the Big Bend section recently and found that government tales about the bollworm were anything but bugaboo yarns. A quart fruit jar exhibited in the office of H. B. Prickett, of the Lubbock office of the department of agriculture, shows bolls and bollworms in various stages of development. Entomologists report increased infestation around Balmorhea and Pecos, and see the possibility, unless there is general precaution, of the stealthy widening to most of the western part of Texas of the dread worm. Failure of the United States and Mexico to agree on eradication cooperation has prevented stamping out of the pest along the border, and it is believed the only solution will be found in preventing spread.

Brought Under Control

Areas in New Mexico and Arizona, Ennis, Texas, Georgia and in the San Antonio territory have been brought under control.

It has been proved, however, that check methods have their limitation since the moths can be carried hundreds of miles by wind.

In the Big Bend, cotton that looked like it would make a bale to the acre, bolls were cut open and found alive with worms ranging from a third- to a half-inch long. These worms cut the lint, stain it, bore into seed and eat out the kernel. The cotton, as a result, if marketable at all is worth little and much of it can command a price no greater than four cents. Seed, too, finds unfavorable prices.

Little is known of the moth responsible for pink bollworms, since it is rare to see them in the daytime. They do most of their traveling by night. It has been learned, however, that each moth deposits from 50 to 250 eggs in sutures of bolls and on a cotton stalk and that they seem to be attracted to no other plant or shrub.

Prickett pointed out that cotton growers in this "free" area should render every measure of cooperation to check the spread, and that infested areas should do likewise.

OIL CARS DERAILED

New Farm Program

(D-NY) said it seemed "inevitable" consumers would have to pay more for essential foods.

Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich) touched off the cost question when he pointed out a provision for appropriation of "such sums as are necessary," adding he did not believe any senator could vote "intelligently" on such vague legislation.

Smith said the committee had used the language "because we didn't know and you don't know" how much the program would cost.

Connally Makes Charge

Senator Connally (D-Tex) branded Vandenberg's question a "purely political" move.

Smith, pleading haste was responsible for the patchwork condition of the bill, said he thought it unwise when the congress pledged itself last summer to rush a farm bill through the next session and asserted he still believed it unwise.

Permanent legislation, he said, should be a well-thought-out program to give farmers a "reasonable profit on what they contribute to the welfare of the American people."

Two Texas Farm Leaders Confer With Wm. Green

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23. (AP) — Two Texas farm leaders discussed today with William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, general labor conditions in the south.

State Commissioner of Agriculture J. E. McDonald, and Ralph W. Moore, master of the state Grange, told Green compulsory cotton control as provided in the new state farm bill would seriously affect domestic commerce as well as foreign market, and would force thousands of idle farm hands into cities seeking employment at low wages.

Moore said Green appeared interested in their explanation of the domestic allotment plan, but refused to offer any comment other than that he believed the farmer should receive a parity price for his crops.

Slaton Child, Hit By Car And Killed, Is Buried At Slaton

SLATON, Nov. 23. (Special)—Funeral services for William Dargan, 10, were conducted here Monday afternoon and burial was in a cemetery here.

The child was killed instantly about noon Sunday when he was struck by an automobile 15 miles south of Ralls when he and two companions were walking along the highway from Ralls to Post.

Investigating officers said the youth apparently walked in front of a light coupe which was being driven toward Post by Clarence Wallace of Crosbyton.

The accident was investigated today by members of the Texas Highway patrol.

Fire Losses Are At New Record

Lubbock's 1929 all-time high for the number of fire alarms turned in during any 12-month period has been shattered with blazes to spare the first ten months 23 days of 1937. Since January 1, this year, the fire department here has answered 214 calls, 19 more than for the entire year of 1929.

Two Tuesday morning blazes, a car at 1622 Broadway at 9:35 o'clock, and a bale of cotton in a freight car near the Santa Fe freight depot at 1:40 o'clock, brought to 28 the number of alarms this month, second heaviest in the history of the fire department. The 23 days of the current month have been surpassed in number of calls only by January of this year, according to W. E. Twitty, fire chief, and Cecil Casey, fire marshal.

Tuesday's cotton fire was extinguished in the car in which it had been shipped from Idalou.

The 1929 fire loss was $34,898.48, settled loss for this year approximately $112,000, Casey's records revealed.

"With careful observance of precautions, Lubbock may be able to keep down its fire loss the remainder of the year," said Casey, "and thus retain the 20 per cent credit for a good fire record. The credit is based on a five-year period, each year seeing the sixth year back of us dropped. This next year we will be able to get rid of approximately $62,000 in losses, and that should help us retain our 20 per cent credit."

Frustrated Love Tale

Cassidy's confession as stating he shot the girl when she took Cassidy's pistol, pointed it at her breast as they sat in an automobile, and begged him to shoot.

He meant to kill himself, the man's confession added, but he lost his "nerve" and didn't remember anything further until he found himself driving home with the body of the girl in the back of the car.

"The sheriff and the state policemen," he said in a jail cell interview, "told me I cut her up, but I don't remember anything about that."

Sheriff Knoblock said the girl went to Albuquerque last week, and Cassidy, frantic she would leave him, followed her there Sunday. He argued her into returning with him, and the shooting occurred as they talked in the car on a side road near Isleta Indian pueblo, about 12 miles south of Albuquerque.

Among the girl's posessions were found passionate love letters signed "Webby," one of which said: ". . . Only God can separate us, and I have a hunch he will soon take us both together."

GMC Show Is Well Attended

An attendance of 4,166 at the General Motors Parade of Progress Tuesday boosted total attendance since the opening Saturday night to nearly 18,000, according to officials of the show.

Last night's performances and exhibits closed the session here and preparations to move Friday were begun after completion of exhibits.

To Remain On Campus

The equipment, however, will remain on the lot at Texas Technological college until Friday morning when the group will leave for Abilene for a three-day showing there. From there the show will go to Wichita Falls.

The officers and members of the operating crew will attend a Thanksgiving dinner tonight at the Lubbock hotel, and many of them will attend the Texas Tech-Creighton football game here Thursday afternoon.

"The reception here was splendid and the attendance was greater than we had expected with the weather conditions that prevailed," said J. M. Jerpe, director of the parade.

"Interest was high and the hospitality was greater than we have found in most other places. It was a pleasure to show here and we appreciate the cooperation of the civic and business organizations and other agencies and individuals with whom we worked.

"Lubbock is one of the most progressive and cordial cities we have visited."

the document about 50 signers short of the needed 218.

Rep. Ditter (R-Pa.), who had declared yesterday Rayburn had been to the White House to get orders, sarcastically consoled the Texan for "being led as a lamb to the slaughter." By signing the petition, Ditter said, Rayburn had "turned his back on the South," where there is much opposition to the wage-hour bill.

Rayburn replied he did not need any Republican sympathy. He cited his belief wage and hour regulation would help a great agricultural district like his own by giving purchasing power to city folk who buy farm products.

The senate left off filibustering to begin debate on the crop control bill. Chairman Smith (D-SC) of the agriculture committee explained the measure, conceding it had been rapidly and loosely thrown together, and that he did not know how much it would cost.

Minority Leader McNary (R-Ore.) forced a reading of the 97 page bill by the senate clerk, which occupied most of the day.

W. H. Walton Funeral Conducted Tuesday At Goldthwaite

Funeral services for W. H. Walton, 53, of 1915 Twenty-third street were conducted at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the Methodist church in Goldthwaite. The body was sent to Goldthwaite from the Sanders Funeral home.

Walton, who was owner of Walton's store, died in a hospital here at 8:05 o'clock Monday night. He had been suffering with uremia and a heart attack proved fatal. He had been ill about three weeks.

Known Over Central Texas

Walton, after the death of his parents when he was a small child was reared by his grandfather, Major W. M. "Bucky" Walton, former attorney-general of Texas. Walton left Austin at the age of 20 and began ranching at Goldthwaite. He was well-known throughout Central and West Texas.

He was married to Annie Little of Goldthwaite in 1906. Three children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Walton. A son, Will B. Walton, is dead. Two sons, Newton and George, both of Lubbock, survive as does his wife.

He moved to Lubbock to enter business in 1933 after having been in mercantile business at Goldthwaite and Lometa and in the automobile business at Lampasas.

Other than his wife and two sons, he is survived by a sister, Mrs. B. A. Cordell of San Antonio.

Minnesota Solon Proposes To Remove Tax From Cosmetics

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23. (AP)—Maybe congress will do something for the weaker sex.

At least Representative Harold Knutson, St. Cloud, Minn., is going to try by proposing abolition of the excise tax on cosmetics. It might clip a few cents off the retail price, he said.

Similar bills have been killed.

Equitable Plan For Area Seen

Optimism that new farm legislation will take cognizance of rapid agricultural development on the South Plains in the allotment of benefits was expressed Tuesday by members of a committee just returned from Washington, D. C., where they made personal appeals to influential members of congress.

Those in the group were Robert H. Bean of Lubbock, representing Lubbock County Irrigation association; J. L. Suits, publisher of the Lockney Beacon, representing Floyd County association; and A. B. Tarwater, state representative from Hale county, who was in the national capital on a dual mission as a committeeman of the Texas legislature and representative of the Floyd County association.

Mahon Gives Aid

With the constant and active assistance of Congressman George H. Mahon of Colorado City, Bean reported, members of the committee conferred personally with Senators Morris Sheppard and Tom Connally of Texas; Rep. Marvin Jones of Amarillo, chairman of the house agriculture committee; I. W. Duggan, manager of the southern division of the AAA; and with several members of the agriculture committees of both the house and senate.

Brief statements of the positions of associations in the South Plains region were transmitted to all those committeemen. Counties in which associations have been organized were listed as being Swisher, Briscoe, Floyd, Hale, Bailey, Hockley, Lamb, Crosby and Lynn.

Members of the committee contended, they reported, that farm legislation of the past has distributed benefits on a "historical" basis, which has taken cognizance of production in past years. The plan, they contended further, discriminates against such regions as the South Plains where much new land has been put under cultivation and where irrigation development is continuing at a rapid rate.

Hockley Judge Wins Ring At Amarillo

Alvin Ray Allison of Levelland, Hockley county judge, was awarded the popularity ring at the annual fall ceremonial held at Khiva temple, Amarillo, Monday night, according to members of the Lubbock delegation who returned aboard their special train early Tuesday.

The ring is awarded by popular vote at each ceremonial to one of the class initiated on the occasion. Allison was victor in a field of four.

Approximately half of the total attendance at the ceremonial was aboard the Lubbock special, which included delegations from Plainview, Levelland, Lockney, Littlefield and several other South Plains towns. Twenty-two novices were initiated.

Motion Of Continuance Filed In Case; Another Is Passed

A motion of continuance was filed with Judge Daniel A. Blair of 72nd district court Tuesday in the partnership and accounting action of W. L. Christopher against V. V. Clark and it was granted.

The case was set specifically for the second week of the February term of that court. The case of Mrs. C. C. Linder against Texas Benevolent association suit on policy, was passed by agreement.

A case which originally had been set for the week of Nov. 29 has been reset by agreement for Friday before Judge Blair.

The case H. L. Cain and others against R. W. Alewine and others, is trespass to try title.

First And Second Graders In Four Lubbock Schools Taught Importance Of Balanced Diet Through Feeding Of White Rats

First and second grade children in four Lubbock schools are carrying out an experiment in nutrition in the proper "laboratory way" with white rats.

The youngsters talk glibly of "controls, grams, vitamins, and calories" as they chart graphs of weight increases and losses.

Duets Are Compared

The experiment, simply, is a comparison of the growth and habits of rats fed a properly balanced diet with those fed a diet containing coffeee, tea, and candy. Under the direction of Miss Jonnie McCrery, head of the department of foods and nutrition at Texas Technological college, and the cooperation of Dr. Agnes True, supervisor of curriculum in the Lubbock schools, two graduate students in nutrition, Mrs. Ruth Carter Wilson and Mrs. Flora Lena Lovelace, are working out the problem in Sanders, George M. Hunt, Dupre, and K. Carter schools.

Work with the rats was begun in connection with a "pet unit" taught in the schools. Children were introduced to the rats, and were allowed to name them, and they have such names as Pop-Eye and Sweet Pea at K. Carter school, to Longtail and Snowball at Sanders. Other names are Mickey, Squeeky, Mitsie and Trixie. The children have developed a real attachment for their pets.

Taught Lessons In Diet

Then began lessons in diet. In each room there are two rats. One is fed a diet containing plenty of fruit, vegetables, and milk. The other rat is fed what the children considered a good diet — one with plenty of candy, soda water, some tea and coffee and other items.

Charts and graphs were made for the Mickeys and Longtails, and they are weighed once each week. Gains are marked on the graph with gold stars and losses with black ones. The improperly fed rats have lost weight steadily, and those properly fed have gained. Not only in weight is there a noticeable difference. The hair on one is sleek and shines, while on the other it is poor in texture. In disposition the two are different. One is contented; the other is nervous and irritable.

Remain Same Weight

In any experiment there are always "controls." In this case it is two rats of the same age and weight as the others when the experiment was begun. They are kept at the college and are fed "laboratory food" or properly powdered and mixed food containing all necessary elements of the proper diet. The rats in the school fed milk, carrots, fruit and other foods remains almost the same in weight as the controls.

Children are now planning the diet of the properly fed rats, and are feeling sorry for the poor rat who must remain on his diet of candy and other "goodies." And this is what they all are looking forward to—when the experiment is completed they will be allowed to "feed up" the scrawny rats until they become normal. They are looking forward to the time when they may bring apples and carrots to school to them.

As a result of the experiment, of the eight children in one room at George M. Hunt who drank coffee only two drink it now. Other rooms report similar improvement in the diet of pupils.

War Veteran, Shawnee's Human Alarm Clock, May Soon Learn What Causes Head To Tick

SHAWNEE, Okla., Nov. 23. (AP)—Chales Hester, Shawnee's human alarm clock, may soon learn what has caused the audible ticking in his head for the past 19 years.

Mrs. Jewell Adams, Red Cross executive, who arranged a broadcast over a radio station here Nov. 4 during which the strange ticking in Hester's head was amplified, said the Veterans bureau had arranged for Hester to enter the Hines hospital at Chicago for diagnosis.

When Father Says, "We've got to cut expenses still More"

Noted authorities say, "The less the money available for food, the greater the need for Milk." It is the best kind of growth insurance and in the long run is a good investment because it makes the other foods do their part. The Bureau of Home Economics says that "From one-third to one-half of all the money available for food, should go for Milk."
