NUN BLAMED FOR OBREGON'S DEATH

Thousands Of Albany Visitors Await Smith's Notification

CAPITAL CITY OF NEW YORK 'ALL EXCITED'

Democratic Nominee Will Hear Surprising News Late Today

SMITH TESTS RADIO

Governor Well Covered By Photographers At Capitol

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 21. (UP)—A man who trudged up the steep hill of this city 25 years ago as a freshman assemblyman in the New York legislature, who remained to become governor of the state four times, is to be notified Wednesday evening that he is the choice of the Democratic party for president of the United States.

And so Albany, who can remember him "way back when," has dressed herself in carnival attire and there is an atmosphere about the city very much like a county fair. New York's capital city is going to make it a gala occasion when Gov. Alfred E. Smith—known here as "Al Smith," is officially notified of his nomination.

Al Tries 'Mikes'

The visiting thousands milled about the gaily decked streets tonight, wandered over the capitol grounds to inspect the grandstand from which Smith will make his acceptance speech.

Some of the tourists and townspeople got an advance taste of the party Wednesday night when the governor appeared on the stand today to try out the broadcasting arrangements, which were found satisfactory, and to be ordered about by photographers.

Laughing and mopping his brow, Smith called to the photographers as they ordered gesture after gesture to give his appearance a realistic touch.

Round of Golf

"I won't need any golf today for exercise," he said.

But he did play golf, leaving immediately after his radio test for the home of Norman H. Davis, at Stockbridge, Mass., about 40 miles away, and returning after his game to the executive mansion to visit incoming party leaders and discuss the campaign with them.

Official Program

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 21. (AP)—Official program for Governor Smith's notification ceremony Wednesday follows:

6 p. m. (Eastern daylight time) band concert and singing by Smith glee club of Newark, N. J.

7 p. m. Buglers sound "assembly" and "flourishes".

When the governor and his party appear at the top of the grand staircase, the band will play "Hail to the Chief". As the governor walks down the steps, the band will play "The Sidewalks of New York". When he reaches the speaker's stand, two bands will play "The Star Spangled Banner."

After the governor and his party are seated, John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic committee, will call the assembly to order.

Invocation will be by Canon John N. Roney of All Saints Protestant Episcopal Cathedral of Albany.

Mayor John Boyd Thacher of Albany then will deliver the address of welcome.

Senator Key Pittman of Nevada next will deliver the notification speech.

Governor Smith then will make his acceptance speech.

The benediction will be by the Right Rev. Joseph A. Delaney of the Cathedral of the Immaculate Conception, Albany.

A band concert will follow.

Physicians Despair Of Crash Victims' Lives

DALLAS, Texas, Aug. 21. (AP)—Physicians today practically had despaired of the lives of Sterling Pugh, 17, and Paul Shepard, 18, Dallas youths who were injured in an automobile accident here Saturday night. Both boys had been unconscious more than 60 hours.

Hambone's Meditations

That's Different

The principle of this bare-legged fad is all right, but the principals involved—ah, there's the difference. Los Angeles stenographers who went nude-limbed to their offices caused quite a storm of controversy. But nobody paid any attention when Miss Elizabeth Downes, above, popular New York society girl, went thus unattired to the Rumson, N. J., Horse Show.

STAB VICTIM IS RECOVERING

Assault to Murder Charge Filed Here

Special to The Record News

ELECTRA, Texas, Aug. 21.—Cecil Rhinehart, 21, was declared to be on the road to recovery from knife wounds received in an altercation with another Electra man last Thursday night, at an Electra hospital Tuesday.

Mr. Rhinehart, treated at the hospital following the affray last Thursday, was allowed to go home, but was returned to the hospital by relatives Tuesday, "in order," they said, "to keep him from moving around too much."

Charges of assault with intent to murder were filed against the man's assailant, not yet under arrest, before O. L. Gibbs, justice of the peace, Tuesday morning.

Physicians at the hospital reported Tuesday that Mr. Rhinehart's condition was not likely to prove serious unless unexpected complications develop.

It had been reported earlier Tuesday that Mr. Rhinehart had suffered a relapse which sent him to the hospital and had sent a brother to Wichita Falls to file the complaint. Relatives, however, denied that the man's condition was serious.

Denton Hit-and-Run Road Victim Dies

DENTON, Texas, Aug. 21. (AP)—Henry Bobbitt, 19, son of T. O. Bobbitt, district game warden, died this afternoon in a Denton hospital. He was believed to have been victim of a "hit-and-run" driver. With a fractured skull, Bobbitt was found lying on a highway near here.

FOUR NATIONS JOIN SEARCH FOR HASSELL

SOS Call Late Sunday Is Basis for Efforts At Rescue

ETHER IS CLEARED

Aviator's Radio Given Every Chance to Send News

NAIN, Labrador, Aug. 21. (AP)—(By Radio to The Associated Press)—A heavy rain and falling barometer here tonight indicated bad weather for those searching for Pilot Bert Hassell and Radio Operator Parker Cramer, of the monoplane Greater Rockford.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21. (UP)—Acting upon the slender hope aroused by an SOS call signed by the letter "R" Sunday night, four governments are assisting in the search for the missing plane Greater Rockford with Bert Hassell and Parker Cramer aboard.

The search has extended over most of the north Atlantic with assistance coming from agencies of the United States, Canada, Denmark and Newfoundland.

Meager Hope Held

Only meager hope is held out. The coast guard cutter Marion now on the search in the Davis straits between Labrador and Greenland, the vicinity from which the last word of the Greenland bound plane was heard, reports a plane could not remain up long in the stormy weather in that region. The chief hope was that the plane might have been driven inland and landed in some remote spot.

The Federal Radio commission ordered the ether cleared and all short wave operations which might interfere with the reception of a message from the lost fliers were suspended.

Responding to the request of the United States, the Danish government now is considering how best to organize searching activities on Greenland. It was pointed out that a coastline search would be comparatively easy but it would be difficult to send Eskimos inland.

F. L. Hill, an amateur radio operator at Stamford, Conn., picked up an SOS call signed by the letter "R" about 10:30 p. m. Sunday night. The information was given the coast guard which immediately relayed it to the cutter Marion.

Canada Active

A message to the state department from the American charge at Ottawa, Canada, reported the department of marine and fisheries of the Canadian government had instructed all vessels in the vicinity of Belle Isle to keep a sharp lookout for the plane.

The Federal Radio commission seeking to give Hassell and Cramer every chance to be heard should they still be alive and sending out radio signals, asked the American Telephone and Telegraph company to suspend until further notice its transoceanic telephone station at Ocean Township, N. J.

The General Electric company was likewise asked to suspend its station at Oakland, Calif.

The navy directed all of its operators afloat and shore not to send within 10 per cent of the wave band on either side of the Greater Rockford's allocation.

Hoover Unfolds Farm Relief Plan In Home Town Talk

Republican Candidate Would Call Conference of Agricultural Chiefs and Develop Waterways

WEST BRANCH, Iowa, Aug. 21. (UP)—Speaking in a tent to the farmers and villagers of his corn belt birthplace, Herbert Hoover announced tonight he would call a conference of agricultural leaders to assist in drafting legislation to carry out his farm relief program if he is elected president.

Outstanding farmers such as Frank O. Lowden of Illinois, defeated candidate for the Republican nomination, will be invited to join the conference, Hoover said in his prepared speech delivered here in surroundings shadowy with reminiscences of the old swimming hole, the Quaker meeting house now a moving picture theater and the time when he marched in the torch light parade at Garfield's election.

Skips Tariff Item

Breaking the restraint of his acceptance speech, the nominee frankly talked to his townfolk about his program for modernizing American waterways to provide cheap transportation and for establishing a federal farm board to develop an efficient marketing system. He did not mention the third point in his plan, tariff revision to give the farmer equality with business.

But for the first time in his campaign, the nominee took a slap at the equalization fee system embodied in the McNary-Haugen bill. He express gratification that changes in the fundamental structure of this government were not necessary to give ample relief and he pointed out his plan did not "intend to put the government into business nor to subsidize prices of farm products and pay the losses thereon either by the federal treasury or by tax or fee on the farmer."

Waterways Project

Analyzing his proposal to develop the Mississippi valley waterways system and promote an eastern outlet from the Great Lakes to the Atlantic, Hoover estimated the entire project could be concluded in four years, exactly the duration of a White House term. If the St. Lawrence project must be abandoned because of international objections, alternative routes must be considered, he said.

"The necessarily large advance in railway rates from the war militate against the economic setting of this while interior section," he said, "this together with the completion of the Panama canal and the fact that ocean rates have increased but little since before the war, further disturbs the whole economic relationship of the mid-west.

"It is as if a row of toll gates had been placed around this whole section of the country."

Arguing that the farmer pays the freight on his products, Hoover added:

"We cannot return to pre-war rates without ruin to railways,

NIGHT HAWK

Cleburne Boy Walks 20 Miles From Home In Sleep

CLEBURNE, Aug. 21 (AP)—Morris Hopkins, 17, of this city has set what is thought to be a marathon sleep-walking record.

Hopkins arose in his sleep, donned a pair of unionalls, and wandered beyond Glen Rose, 20 miles distant, before awakening and finding his way back home.

Parents of the youth found his clothes in his room and organized a county-wide search for him. The unionalls had not been missed.

WHITE AGAIN SLAPS SMITH

Kansas Editor Renews Charges in Paris

PARIS, Aug. 21. (UP)—William Allen White, Kansas editor, vacationing in Europe, renewed his attack on Gov. Alfred E. Smith in a statement issued here today charging the Democratic presidential nominee with "trying to make up in emotions what his case lacks in logic."

White, who denounced Governor Smith's legislative record before sailing from New York, said his charges against Smith were not intended to reflect on the governor's character or personal integrity.

Difference in Viewpoint

"I specifically declared that in printing Governor Smith's record I was not raising a question of moral turpitude but showing the deep difference in viewpoint of Tammany hall, which Smith supports, and the American people," White said today.

Gov. Smith, in a long and detailed statement issued Monday, replied separately to each charge made by White and announced that, as far as he was concerned, the matter was closed.

The Kansan had assailed Governor Smith's record in the state legislature. He said the nominee had voted favorably for vice, gambling and saloon interests.

Governor Smith's reply took up each instance cited by White and pointed out how his vote had been influenced by conditions at the time. He said White had not examined the records enough to understand the full meaning of his votes and charged the Republican national committee with fostering the attack.

White again called attention to Governor Smith's votes in connection with gambling and prostitution, concluding with the observation that no matter how Smith may bemoan "the sad case of his public legislative record, it will face him again in this campaign."

"His friends say his platform is his public record," he concluded. "Therefore, it certainly is a major issue in this campaign."

Minnesota Recuperates After Tornado's Wrath

ST. PAUL, Minn., Aug. 21. (AP)—Austin and two southern Minnesota counties tonight made plans to bury their dead, minister to injured and homeless and repair damage wrought by two tornadoes that hit along a short distance late Monday and then converged to continue devastation.

Six persons lost their lives at Austin in this storm, more than 50 were injured and property damage estimated at $1,000,000 was done. Three additional deaths were reported from Iowa, near Rockwell City, apparently from a separate storm, making a total of nine.

BOND DENIED DUCKETT AFTER VENUE CHANGE

Accused Remanded to Jail After Repeating Plea Of Innocence

BAYLOR CO. TRIAL

Alleged Dundee Slayer To Face Seymour Court In January

ARCHER CITY, Aug. 21.—Arraigned on a charge of murder before Judge E. G. Thornton of 30th district court here Tuesday morning, George Duckett entered a plea of not guilty and was remanded to jail without bond.

The arraignment followed a change of venue in the trial of Duckett for murder growing out of the fatal shooting of Charles McDaniel, Dundee cattleman, last July 14. Mr. McDaniel was shot while repelling the attempt of a lone bandit to rob the First State bank of Dundee. The case was ordered transferred to Baylor county.

Change is Granted

Immediately upon opening of the trial, Monday, attorneys for Duckett asked that they be granted a change of venue, claiming that an impartial trial could not be had in Archer county.

The entire day Monday was absorbed in a presentation of testimony of persons summoned for jury service, in which the defense attempted to show that most of the men had previously formed opinions as to the case.

The change of venue was ordered by Judge Thornton after Ben F. Allred, district attorney, H. R. Wilson, special prosecutor, and attorneys for the defense had held a brief conference in an anteroom and had agreed upon the change.

Court In January

"In view of the fact that all members of the special venire have been questioned and that all except two or three have said they have formed opinions, I feel like it would be useless to attempt to force the issue to trial," Mr. Allred told Judge Thornton.

"We have agreed with the defense as to the county in which we would like that the case be tried," he continued, "and we recommend that the court send the case to the district court of Baylor county for trial at the next term of court."

The next term of district court in Seymour, Baylor county, where the case was transferred, is in January.

Student Jailed After Crash to Get Pardon

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 21. (UP) Vance Lowery of Nowata will be given a full and complete pardon, Governor Johnston announced today.

Lowery, University of Oklahoma student, was convicted of manslaughter in the death of the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Chadwell, killed in an automobile accident on the Oklahoma City-Norman highway.

The jury fined Lowery $750. Lowery was unable to pay and went to jail.

Steamer Limps Into Port After Cyclone

BALBOA, C. Z., Aug. 21. (INS)—Badly damaged by a cyclone off the coast of lower California on August 9, the steamer William A. MacKenney was in port today for repairs before continuing her voyage from Los Angeles to Boston. Fourteen members of the crew of the steamer were swept overboard during the cyclone. Capt. J. F. Rose of the MacKenney said that it was the worst storm he had experienced during 30 years at sea.

Delay in Collection Of Auto Tax Requested

DALLAS, Aug. 21. (AP)—Jack Keller of Dallas, legislative candidate, today mailed a request to the tax collectors in 252 counties of Texas that they not demand prompt payment of automobile registration fees at the present rate.

Keller plans to offer a bill before the 41st legislature providing a drastic reduction in the present automobile tax and making the reduction apply to 1929 registrations.

ASKS COOLIDGE TO SPEAK UP

New York Club Raids Called Politics

NEW YORK, Aug. 21. (UP)—The federal government's liquor clean-up in New York and the resulting grand jury investigation was forced into a political arena today when Rep. Loring M. Black, Brooklyn Democrat, called upon President Coolidge to explain why outside dry agents were sent into New York on the night of Governor Smith's nomination at Houston.

Black charged the extravagant methods used by agents in gathering evidence was "proof enough" of a political gesture.

He demanded the resignation of Maurice Campbell, prohibition administrator for this district.

"I think there is an old law which forbids government officials from mingling in political activities," Black said. "Action should be taken against those responsible."

The investigation continued today but in marked contrast to the system inaugurated by officials and suddenly halted Monday by United States District Attorney Charles Tuttle. The one hundred odd society and sports leaders who had been summoned before the grand jury were not requested to testify. Instead, they were given an opportunity to talk to Tuttle in private—and they told or kept silent, as they pleased.

About a dozen were examined informally today.

Whiting Takes Hoover's Place in Cabinet

SUPERIOR, Wis., Aug. 21. (AP)—With a brief message of appreciation for his services as secretary of commerce and with "best wishes" for him in the "broader" field to which he has been called, President Coolidge accepted today the resignation of Secretary Hoover from the cabinet.

William F. Whiting, Holyoke, Mass., will head the commerce department, the president announced.

WOMAN CALLED PLOT LEADER BY POLICE

Officials Issue Lengthy Statement On Result Of Inquiry

OTHERS ARE NAMED

Many Attempts Made On Lives of Calles And Obregon

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 21. (UP)—The nun, Maria de la Concepcion, held with a number of other suspects in connection with the assassination of President-elect Alvaro Obregon, was the leader of plots to kill both Obregon and President Calles many months before the actual crime, according to a police statement issued tonight.

The arrests of seven women and five men alleged to have been associated in plotting the assassinations, revealed the existence of a group which, besides seeking the death of political leaders, was responsible for placing bombs in both the chamber of deputies and Obregon headquarters, police charged.

Long Investigations

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 21. (UE)—In a long statment issued this noon by Gen. Antonio Rios Zertuche, now inspector general of the police in the federal district, the results are disclosed of the investigations made by his office into the murder of President-elect General Alvaro Obregon.

The report involves 12 new names which are announced and states that many others are being sought on charges of being implicated in the conspiracy for the murder of the president-elect. The report states that the homes of the two nuns, Sister Concepcion and Sister Josefina Acevedo, first in Chopo street and then in Zaragoza street was where the conspirators met to plot against the lives of both General Obregon and President Calles. Many of the plans which were made were discarded.

Poison Was Planned

At one of the early meetings attended by leaders in the group, it was decided to kill both Obregon and Calles by poison. On April 14, Manuel Trejo and three others went to Celaya where the spring festival was being held, to put the plan into effect. They were followed the same afternoon by Maria Elena Mazano, an employe of a perfumery shop, and good looking. She was to dance with the president and General Obregon and during the dance was to scratch them with a lancet which carried a deadly poison provided by the Mother Superior Conception.

In case the two victims escaped the dancer's poison plan, they were to be killed with shots from the revolvers of Trejo and his companions. Failure to evolve a plan of escape caused the plan to be abandoned.

Plans Miscarry

That night it was decided to dynamite the bridge over which the cars of Calles and Obregon would pass the next day on the way to the capital. Plans to provide the explosive miscarried and the plotters returned to Mexico City.

The inspector's statement indicates that Toral, the final assassin, was but the tool of the conspirators. The statement says that all the conspirators were native Mexicans and young persons. The statement says that all the 12 named will be handed over to the civil authorities and that the investigations will be continued until every person involved is apprehended and brought to justice.

Philadelphian And Publisher are Cited

NEW YORK, Aug. 21. (UP)—The New York World said tonight that Joseph E. Widener of Philadelphia, his, and Ralph H. Booth, middle western newspaper publisher, were included in a number of persons cited by customs officials for alleged failure to declare goods brought into the United States from Europe.

Widener recently paid fines, duties, and penalties totaling $2,147.50 for failure to declare a man's watch appraised at $1,073.75, the story said.

Booth paid a visit to the customs house today for failure to declare jewels estimated as worth $9000.

Political Realities Follow Hoover And Mar Visit to Boyhood Home

WEST BRANCH, Iowa, Aug. 21. (UP)—Wandering through the reminiscences of his childhood, Herbert Hoover came face to face with the farm problem in its own home.

With wheat prices sliding on the Chicago exchange, with upwards of 15,000 farmers gathering here for his agricultural relief speech, with corn growers fearing their market will follow the wheat toboggahine and with the Republican farm leaders like Brookhart and Dickinson of Iowa exhorting the local assemblazes in old-fashioned political revivals, the Republican presidential nominee found little time to inspect the ol' swimming hole or other familiar sites of his birthplace.

A hasty breakfast in the house where he was born, a brief visit to the hillside cemetery where his father and mother are buried, a few moments with his second and third cousins hereabouts, and a trip to the farm where he was "taken in" when his parents died before he was 10 years old—these were the only stolen milestones of his sentimental journey.

Patrolman, Terribly Shocked, Keeps Gold Diver On Modesty's Side

NEW YORK, Aug. 21. (US)—There may be gold in them thar mountings, but there's none in the lower lake in Central park.

If there is, nobody's going to disrobe to dive after it. Not if Patrolman Boyle Steffers and Sergeant and Matthews have anything to say about it!

Today while the sunlight dappled the waters of the lower lake, chasing the fleecy shadows of the moving clouds and all that sort of thing, Mike Georgi, 40, stood on the brink of the lake and took off his coat. Then he took off his vest. Then he took off his shirt. Then he took off his shoes. There was some evidence that he intended to go right ahead with this sort of thing, which shocked the tender sensibilities of Patrolman Boyle.

"Here, here, here! You positively must not do that sort of thing! My badge and buttons. Where do you think you are?"

"I'm going to dive after the gold in there!"

Georgi is now under observation at Bellevue.

ALLREDS TALK ON 'COMBINE'

Brothers Say 'Whispering Campaign' Made

BURKBURNETT, Aug. 21.—Renewing his challenge to W.W. Cook, his opponent for the Democratic nomination as judge of the 78th district court, here tonight, Ben P. Allred, district attorney, declared that "People have been hearing a whispering campaign about an 'Allred combination.'" Mr. Allred previously had challenged Judge Cook to meet him in joint debate in the campaign for election.

Following the district attorney's address, his brother, James V. Allred, told Burkburnett citizens of pardons Roy J. Daniel, son-in-law to Judge Cook is said to have secured while serving as a representative from Wichita county.

The speaking was attended by about 300 persons. It was held in front of the Corner Drug store. James V. Allred announced that he would be a candidate for attorney general in 1930.

"Whispering Campaign"

"I had intended to stay out of active participation in this campaign," Mr. Allred said, "and I regret that certain lawyers at Wichita Falls, including the son-in-law of the present judge of the 78th district court, have carried on a whispering campaign to the effect that Ben Allred ought not to be elected judge because I am practicing lawyer there.

"I am here to defend myself against any such insinuations, which they dare not make to my face. I feel that what is sauce for the goose ought also to be sauce for the gander; and I want the people of this county to know that while it is true that I am Ben Allred's brother, it is equally true that Judge Cook's son-in-law is a lawyer in Wichita Falls and has practiced law in Judge Cook's court.

"Certainly, if any presumption of undue influence is to be indulged against me, with the record that I have for public service, the same presumption ought to be indulged against Roy Daniel, with the pardon record and other records which he has written over his own signature."

Speaks Here Tonight

The candidate for district judge will speak at Bellevue park, Wichita Falls Wednesday night at 8 o'clock, he announced. He will be introduced by Judge Harvey Harris, who will preside at the meeting.

"I want every one to come out tonight and hear the facts about this 'combination' discussed openly," Mr. Allred said, "and I am going to give the people the truth about the 'Cook-Daniel' combination."

James Allred also will speak at Bellevue park. Other candidates seeking the Democratic nomination next Saturday also will be offered an opportunity to present their candidacy, the candidate for district judge said.

Butler Undecided On How He Will Vote

NEW YORK, Aug. 21. (UP)—Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, whose letter to the New York Times attacked Herbert Hoover's stand on the prohibition question and on peace proposals, has reiterated that his criticisms were made as a Republican and that he did not know how he would vote in November.

"When I see what Governor Smith's proposed treatment of the prohibition question is, it will be time enough for me to consider discussing it," Butler said.

DALLAS BUS LINE OPPOSED

Carpenter Urges Denial Of Wichita Route

AUSTIN, Texas, Aug. 21. (AP)—Delegated by the Dallas county commissioners court, Lewis T. Carpenter here today urged denial of a Wichita Falls to Dallas motor bus route permit which proposes a transfer en route at Rhome.

An application is pending for a permit on the route, with transfers to be made at the latter point.

The matter will be considered at a hearing Sept. 10.

Carpenter said Dallas people are insisting on a through route to Wichita Falls, if any.

Two Women Injured In Houston Shooting

HOUSTON, Texas, Aug. 21. (AP)—Mrs. Fred J. Pheifer was shot in the left side, and Mrs. Drayton Hooper was powder burned in a shooting at a cafe here today.

A husband of one of the women came to the restaurant and became abusive over an insurance matter, Mrs. Pheifer told officers. The two women went into a back room and the man demanded that they open the door, she said.

Several shots then were fired through the door, one of them striking Mrs. Pheifer in the side, the woman said. She told officers she fired at the man and was sure one bullet struck him in the back.

Noted Sports Authority Claimed by Death

NATICK, Mass., Aug. 21. (US)—His love for athletic contests, which in life enabled him to attain international recognition as a sports authority, led indirectly to the death of William "Pooch" Donovan, some of his friends believe.

Cautioned by physicians to avoid excitement attending athletic competition, Donovan was lured to the Olympic games at Amsterdam by his insatiable keenness for sports, and there he was stricken with heart disease which resulted in death at his boyhood home early today.

ROADS SEEK RATE CHANGES

Breakfast Delicacies Figure In Hearing

AUSTIN, Aug. 21. (AP)—Outstanding ingredients at the breakfast table—sugar and coffee—had a brief, harmonious inning today in the state railroad commission's hearing on application of Texas railroads to revise intrastate freight rates to conform to recently adopted southwest interstate mileage scales.

Representatives of sugar and coffee shipping interests took the witness stand before the 100 rate experts and supported, with certain reservations the railroads' application.

E. D. Rhodes, representing the Texas sugar refinery of Texas City, said the sugar shippers have agreed with the railroads to adopt the new rate with a provision for 60,000 minimum car loads instead of the present pounds. H. G. Thompson of the Imperial Sugar company, Sugar Land, concurred in this. Certain South Texas special sugar rates are to remain in effect.

New Coffee Rates

The Cheek-Neal Coffee company of Houston offered in a statement to accept new rates for coffee, taking an increased charge on coffee shipments, but preserving right to apply for a rate modification if that becomes necessary to compete with green coffee.

The commission took under advisement for decision Thursday a motion by F. A. Leffingwell, secretary treasurer of the Texas Industrial Traffic league, to dismiss that part of the railroads' application which would make present rules and regulations non-applicable in connection with the new rates and to change rates applicable on untreated or excepted commodities.

Long Debate

This question was the occasion for a long debate today.

If the occasion grants the motion, the railroads' application would be dismissed as to metal furniture, mattresses, cottonseed, earthen ware, fertilizers, grain and grain products, hides, insectides, scrap iron and junk, livestock, rough and clean rice, stock and poultry foods, sulphur, cotton picking bags, bank deposit slips, peanuts, caustic soda and other items of equally varied nature.

District Court Begins Session in Vernon

Special to The Record News.

VERNON, Texas, Aug. 21.—The August term of the 46th district court in Vernon was formally opened Monday morning, and a grand jury was empaneled. Only minor matters as to be considered by the court this week while the grand jury is making its investigations, and only non-jury cases will be heard.

Hoover Unfolds Farm Aid Plans

therefore I have long asserted that the only real hope of reducing charges upon bulk goods was through the modernization of our great interior waterways.

Explains Plan

"By modernization I mean increasing depths to a point where we can handle 5,000 or 10,000 tons in a line of barges pulled by a tug. This administration has authorized the systematic undertaking of this modernization. We already have experience with results, for with only the main river from St. Louis to New Orleans working properly, the rates for transportation of bulk agricultural products through that section is near pre-war railway rates."

The plan will not work disaster to the railroads because their normal expansion will more than take care of their loss in revenue from this 12,000 miles of river transportation, through 20 mid-west states, Hoover contended. His plan for encouraging the development of efficient cooperative marketing, he outlined as follows:

"A federal farm board is to be set up with the necessary powers and resources to assist the industry to meet not alone the varied problems of today but those which may arise in the future. My fundamental concept of agriculture is one controlled by its own members, organized to fight its own economic battles and to determine its own destinies.

Marketing Organizations

"Nor do I speak of organization in the narrow sense of traditional farm cooperation and pools but in the much wider sense of a sound marketing organization.

"We propose with governmental assistance and in initial advance of capital to enable the agricultural industry to reach a stature of modern business operations by which the farmer will attain his importance and maintain his individuality."

The nominee closed his speech as he had started it with a human and idealistic touch. At the outset he remarked the presence in the the audience of Mrs. Curran, his school teacher. He talked about the swimming hole down in the creek with its mudbank slide. He pondered how Aunt Hannah, who once said in meeting that the House of God would be turned into an abomination, would regard the fact that the meeting house had been turned into a movie theater.

He recollected that before he was "high enough to carry a torch he had marched in the torch-light procession celebrating the election of President Garfield.

"At that time," he said, "there were only two Democrats in town."

In closing he pledged himself to the idealistic improvement of the American home.

Dalhart Man Dies Following Heart Attack

Special to The Record News.

DALHART, Texas, Aug. 21.—Funeral services are to be held in Amarillo Thursday for Ed Kirk, pioneer Panhandle citizen, who died suddenly Monday afternoon in a drug store at Stinnett, 60 miles from here. Death was attributed to heart failure. He is survived by his widow, a son, and three daughters, all of whom live here.

Lindbergh National Park

GARDEN CITY, N. Y., Aug. 21. (AP)—The spot at Roosevelt field whence "we" hopped for Paris is to be a national park. A syndicate headed by John D. Rockefeller Jr., has acquired 10 acres from Paul J. Lannin at less than cost for Lindbergh commemorative park.

'WHY CHANGE' IS G. O. P. SLOGAN

Work Coins Phrase On Return From Trip

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21. (UP)—"Why change?" Is the slogan Republican National Chairman Work offered to the voters upon returning from a trans-continential trip today.

"The people are enjoying more leisure and higher wages and the result is more prosperity and contentment than at any previous time in the history of the country," Work said. "The question uppermost in the minds of the people seems to be "why change and disrupt the orderly progress of government which would involve slowing down business?"

Work also indicated the Republicans have decided the East is the big battle ground.

"I believe every state west of the Mississippi will record electoral votes for Hoover and Curtis," he said. "Ohio and Indiana are safe for the Republicans beyond argument. I have never conceded the loss of a single Atlantic coast state. It is probably the opposition will make its strongest fight for these states, which will compel us to meet them with the strongest forces possible, and this we will do.

"There is no apparent background in this country at this time which would invite a change in administrative policies or in party control. Loss of employment, drought or financial depression during an administration have in times past been sufficient to wreck it.

"None of those conditions exist now."

Work said he received many reports of Democrats organizing to support Hoover and Curtis, with much activity in southern states.

OKLA. RECOUNT TO BE DENIED

Paper Announces Decision Before Hearing

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 21. (UP) Request for a recount in the primary race of Chief Fred P. Branson of the Oklahoma supreme court will be denied Wednesday following a hearing, the Oklahoma News said it had learned today.

Chief Justice Branson won the Democratic nomination to succeed himself by a 500-vote lead over W. H. Brown, Muskogee, but Brown asks a recount, claiming alleged errors in Creek county precincts would give him the primary race.

The attorney general has drawn up an order for a recount and hearing on the order before the state election board was set for Wednesday.

The News stated that the chief justice conferred today with Mrs. O. O. Hammonds, confidential secretary to Governor Henry S. Johnston, after checking Brown's petition.

The News also said the Vernon-Riddle state senatorial contest in Okmulgee-Wagoner county districts would meet with denial of a recount Wednesday. Riddle defeated Vernon by seven votes. Riddle is from Okmulgee, home of Mrs. Hammonds.

BILIOUS HEADACHE, SLUGGISH FEELING

Constipation Suffering Relieved by the Help of Black-Draught in a Family Where Three Generations Take It.

PULASKI, Tenn.—"We first found out about Black-Draught over 20 years ago, and have been using it in our family ever since," says Mrs. Taylor C. Click, of 610 Childers street, this city.

"I take Black-Draught for constipation and bilious headache. Whenever I get to feeling dull and sluggish, I take a few doses of Black-Draught, and I immediately feel better.

"I used to have spells of indigestion, and gas would form after eating. This made me very uncomfortable. I read about how Black-Draught had helped others, and I thought it would be a good medicine to try. I got my first box of it over 20 years ago, and we have rarely been without it in our home since then.

"I make a tea out of it and give the children for constipation. I give it also to my grandchildren.

"I like a vegetable medicine, and prefer Black-Draught to any I have ever used."

Thousands of others would not want to be without Black-Draught, since they have learned how valuable its use is, in cases of indigestion, constipation and ills due to those common troubles. Easily obtainable from neighborhood druggists, in 25c packages.

Absentee Voting Comes To Close Today; 115 Votes Cast

With only a day to go, 115 absentee votes had been cast with Miss Elisabeth Hall, county clerk, Tuesday afternoon. In addition to these, about one-half of the 80 mail ballots sent out by airmail last week have been returned. About 30 persons voted in Miss Hall's office Tuesday. Wednesday is the final day for voting.

Cocktail Addicts Take Coffee to 'Sober Up'

NEW YORK, Aug. 21. (UP)—Profit is to be made in this town by sobering up persons who object to going home under the burden of too many cocktails.

Alice Foote MacDougal, who has coffee shops scattered through New York, is an ardent opponent of prohibition, but she unwittingly makes it possible for flappers to drink, and sober up before they go home.

It's her coffee that does it.

"Perhaps prohibition is a success," Mrs. McDougal said, "but it is hard to believe it is, when women come drunk into my coffee shops to steady up on tea and strong coffee before they go home."

Other restaurant owners agreed with Mrs. McDougal.

It is not unusual for them to take as many as six cups in a row.

"The coffee jag offsets the effects of the liquor and they depart with steadier steps."

Oklahoman's French Wife Seeks Divorce

TULSA, Okla., Aug. 21. (UP)—Alleging he persuaded her to come to America by saying he was a wealthy man and charging cruelty, Mrs. Suzanne Lefko, French wife of Louis Lefko, manager of the Tulsa Business bureau, sued him today for divorce. She asks $10,000 separate maintenance.

The couple met in World war days and again during the recent Paris legion convention. Lefko denied all charges, saying his wife's limited knowledge of English caused the misinterpretation.

Three Boys Injured In Crash in Serious Shape

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 21.(UP)—Three boys in the automobile accident near Harrah Sunday night in which one young woman was killed were reported to be in critical conditions at a hospital here today.

The three are Leo Kuchita, 17, Andrew Sinner, 19, and Paul Kuback, 19. Miss Wena Bransky, 16, was reported improved.

Funeral services for Miss Frances Drew, 16, Harrah, who was killed in the crash, will be tomorrow from the Roman Catholic church at Harrah.

Quality Is Factor In Export Selling

With an increase in education on the part of export buyers of motor trucks in the past few years the matter of selling on foreign markets has undergone a distinct change, John C. McDonald, general sales manager for the Wichita Falls Motor company, told members of the Ad club at a luncheon at the Kemp hotel Tuesday noon.

"The time when a product not good enough for home use could be pushed off on the export trade has passed," Mr. McDonald said. "Competition on the foreign markets has become as keen as in national selling.

"The modern trend in export selling is marked," he continued. "There was a time not many years ago when your selling point on motor trucks was that they would run. Today things are different."

Mr. McDonald also explained the different work in which the Wichita truck is used and told of the foreign countries in which the truck is sold.

The $250,000 city bond issue to be voted on August 28 was explained by P. B. Roberts, who urged the club members to support the measure.

Reports of Deaths in Haiti Storm Confirmed

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti, Aug. 21. (UP)—Confirmation reached here today of previous reports that 200 persons were killed in the disastrous hurricane which struck southern Haiti the 10th and 11th.

The naval tug Woodcock arrived here today from the stricken area. Members of the crew stated that more than 1,800 persons were injured by the storm, while 10,000 are homeless.

Search for Smuggled Diamonds Yields Booze

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21. (UP)—The search of hip pockets of persons leaving the French liner in New York on Friday, which resulted in several arrests and confiscation of flasks, was conducted to prevent diamond smuggling, Assistant Secretary of Treasury Lowman said today. Liquor confiscations were only incidental, he explained.

This Is Day of Flamboyant Sunflower Rather Than Violet

How to Insure a Daughter's Popularity—The Wife Who Resents Being Left Alone While Her Husband Goes Fishing—Can a Widowed Mother Be Popular With Men?

Dear Dorothy Dix—How can a girl be popular and yet not cheap? This is the greatest question that a young girl meets now.
—A MOTHER.

Answer—This is the cheap girl's day and I doubt if the girl of finer clay can be a "wow," to use the slang of the day. The taste of the corner cowboys and the drugstore sheiks and the cake-eaters generally seems to run to the flamboyant sunflower rather than to the shrinking violet. It is the girls who let every Tom, Dick and Harry kiss them, and who pet and snuggle and neck, who drink and smoke and go on wold parties, who have dates to burn, while the modest, ladylike girls are left at home alone with their parents.

This is a fact and there is no use in blinking it. Unless a girl will make herself cheap she is not in much demand, but fortunately not all men want common goods. There is always a certain number with discrimination enough to appreciate fine quality, and so while the nice girl may have fewer beaux than the free-and-easy girl, they will be more worth while.

The first asset of popularity to such a girl is to have a mother who is willing to help her game. You are evidently that sort of a mother, for which your daughter should thank Heaven. For a mother can attract young men to a home or drive them away.

So, if you want your daughter to be popular, make the young men who come to the house welcome. Make it a pleasant place where there is always gayety and something good to eat. Make them feel at home and encourage crowds, for boys are like sheep. They follow the leader and where one goes the rest trail after.

Make friends of the boys, but don't cramp their style by always hanging around and trying to entertain them. Boys don't come to see a girl's mother, and older people bore them stiff. Hang around within calling distance, but not in earshot. No young people like to think that there is an eavesdropper around.

Help your daughter to be as good-looking as possible. If nature turned out a peach, well and good. It saves you trouble. But if she is only moderately good-looking, buy her all the pretty clothes that you can afford. Fluffy ruffles are nine-tenths of a woman's good looks, any way, and no boy can ever distinguish between the general effect produced by pink chiffon and drooping hat and honest-to-goodness pulchritude.

See to it that your daughter carries a good line of attractions. Have her taught all sorts of accomplishments. Have her taught how to swim, how to play tennis and golf until she plays well enough to be sought after as a partner. See that she learns to play a good game of bridge, and, above all, that she knows how to dance. To be popular a girl must be able to do all the things that the gang does. Otherwise, she is left out. And there is no danger of any girl being a wallflower who is the best dancer in the room.

And tell your daughter that because she is prudent that is no reason for her to be a prunes-and-prisms pride. She need not yell for the police because a boy tries to kiss her, or call out "Unhand me, sir," if one shows a disposition to put his arm around her. She can laugh it off, and make a joke out of it without being melodramatic, and the very boys who would take familiarities with her if they could will respect her for knowing how to take care of herself and living up to her ideals.

And when it once gets noised about that she is a good sport, that she is friendly and pleasant and agreeable, but not a cheap little kisser and petter, she will find that there are plenty of boys who will seek her society.—DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—I have a heavy heart because my husband has no thought for anything else but fishing. We have one little child whom we idolize, and if it were not for her, I would leave my husband to fish for the balance of his life and go my own way. All I hear every meal is reels, flyrods, plugs and bait. I can't go with him since I have a baby, so why should I be a fisherman's widow? I despise cards, and he asks every one who comes to the house to play cards when he wants to entertain them. I don't approve of bringing up my child in an atmosphere of cards.

I believe in a 50-50 marriage and would ask your advice about this matter. What would you do, leave him or love him? It is hard to do either.—MYRTLE MARIE.

Answer—I should love him, Myrtle Marie, and that shouldn't be difficult, because fishermen are nearly always of an amiable, placid, easy-going, philosophical temperament. So, if I were you, I should just cut bait and stick on with a husband who had no worse fault than being a disciple of Izaak Walton.

He might love to drink, you know, instead of loving to fish. He might be chasing after petticoats instead of the illusive trout. He might be handing out a line to a pretty flapper instead of dangling one from a pole in the water. He might be cursing and swearing and fault-finding around home instead of discoursing about fishing tackle. Believe me, a man can do many more aggravating things than go a-fishing, and as long as that is his only vice, you should put up with it patiently and without nagging him about it.

Besides, what would you do if you took your baby and left your fisherman? How would you improve your condition? You would be an all-time widow then instead of a part-time one. Where would you live? Who would support you? You couldn't expect your husband to go on doing so after you had quit cold on your job and you were no longer performing your duties as a wife.

Perhaps you worked and supported yourself before you were married and you think you could go back to your old job. Believe me, my child, you would find working and taking care of a baby a very difficult proposition from earning pin money as a girl. You would find it much more difficult to get a job now, and your hand would have lost its cunning and you couldn't compete with the little girls who have come up since you were married, and who are on to all the latest wrinkles in office work.

You say you believe in a 50-50 marriage. Remember that goes 50-50 for you, as well as for your husband. That means that he has just as much right to go fishing as you have to do whatever you want to do. As it is, you are not giving him a fair deal because you want to keep him at home all the time. So talk it over and see if he won't cut out half the fishing, if you cut out your objections.

As for talking about bringing up your child in an atmosphere of cards, because he plays an occasional game at home—that is nonsense and you know it. Don't be one of the self-righteous who think that everything they don't like to do themselves is wrong.
—DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Dorothy Dix—How do you get the men to notice you when you are a widow with several children? I am considered very good-looking and have nice children, but no man has ever asked me for a date. I am lonesome and would love to have company and go to places. What's the trouble?—MRS. S.

Answer—The children. I am afraid you will have to satisfy yourself with your children's love and company and find your diversion in going about with them, because men fight shy of widows with a house full of youngsters.

Children may be a great personal blessing to a widow, but they are a fatal handicap matrimonially speaking. The prospect of being a stepfather is not alluring to the average man. Besides, it is all most men can do to support a wife and their own offspring, so they balk at marrying a woman with a ready-made family.—DOROTHY DIX.

Ramblin'
with
Marie Theresa

"LOVE in Four Dimensions" reads the title of a sermon delivered recently during a revival in the city. That fails to register as a title for a sermon. It sounds more like the scare titles used for some of our movies.

Time was when you could tell the title of a sermon from those used for newspaper articles; when you could gauge the approximate age of a man and only a little less accurately the age of a given member of the feminine denomination, but not today. There was a time, too, when you could tell by clothes worn on the street, the time of the year.

But returning to that sermon title—if anybody reads this, parson, it will probably bring 'em out to hear the sermon unless they decide to see a movie instead.

TEXAS women are taking kindly to the hoseless fashion, state papers say, and each week sees more women leaving off the rather expensive accessory in favor of greater freedom and more modernity.

But in Wichita Falls the men must be a little backward, for didn't I see a man walk into at least a half a dozen pedestrians just yesterday as he followed two girls, dressed alike to acertain if they had on flesh tinted hose, or were walking au naturelle?

This corner hasn't taken any stand on the question, but I do wish the ladies with sunburned skin would powder their knees.

USING as barometer the number of murders and misdemeanors still making the front pages of our newspapers, the weather hasn't changed a great deal. Summer is still with us.

◆ ◆ ◆

THE sad days are just about here—for the next five weeks or so, women just won't be able to agree on the appropriate type of clothes to wear on the streets. There will be no argument as to the amount, fortunately.

◆ ◆ ◆

I SPOTTED six women yesterday within a rambling period of only about five minutes, dressed in some of the new fall models. They looked hot and uncomfortable, but I suppose happy. There were others, dressed in the filmiest of summer dresses who wondered if they were not making a terrible mistake by appearing out in such attire this late in the season. And things will grow worse as time goes on till the cool breezes put women at their ease.

BREAKING OUT OF RED PIMPLES

On Face. Itched and Burned Badly. Healed by Cuticura.

"The trouble began with a breaking out of pimples on my face. They were hard and red but not very large. They itched and burned so badly that I had to scratch them. I could hardly shave because they used to hurt, burn and bleed. I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and in a couple of weeks the pimples began to disappear, and at the end of a month I was healed." (Signed) Conrad Collins, Joppa, Tenn.

Keep your skin clear by using Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Talcum for daily toilet purposes. Touch pimples and itching, if any, with Cuticura Ointment, bathe with Cuticura Soap and hot water. Cuticura Talcum is fragrant and refreshing, an ideal toilet powder.

Soap 25c. Ointment 25 and 50c. Talcum 25c. Sold everywhere. Cuticura Soap is the best for shaving. Cuticura Shaving Stick 25c.

CHIC CHERIE — Latest Fashions

This is an incredible state of affairs! Cherie came hurriedly back from the country to go to a tea and the poor girl finds herself acutely uncomfortable and conscious of her clothes. You might not see why. You might think that her hat of natural erin trimmed in mauve would bear comparison with any hat here present. You'd be wrong. All these other females have had a chance to buy new fall hats and Cherie is distressed to observe that these new hats all droop on one side and her hat droops—alas—on both! A fine business for a girl who's supposed to know something about styles. Right next to her is a beret of blue velvet pressed into a crinkled pattern and folding down over one ear.

The next hat has a very long side brim that also functions in back—it's grey felt and black plush. The next hat has such smooth lines that it looks as though it had been modeled in clay instead of hatter's plush—that hat goes way down on one side, too. At the right of the tea party there's a little stitched velvet hat—and that one has feathers lopping on one side. A social error that looks very bad for Cherie. But something that can be helped—as you see in the sketch to the right where Cherie is prinking in a one-sided hat of striped soleil (called escargot—snail) which she is about to choose in preference to the lop-sided one of stitched velvet faced with taffeta.

Movie of 'Uncle Tom's Cabin' Altered After Dallas Vets Make Protest

DALLAS, Aug. 21. (AP)—The moving picture version of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" will be shown here Aug. 25 as scheduled, but the producers may not recognize it.

Simon Legree, mustached villain of the novel will become a "Yankee" in the Dallas version.

Not only will the North be made responsible for the villain who whips poor old Uncle Tom, but some of the "cruelty" footage will be eliminated and a prologue added explaining that such occurrences were not the usual thing in the South of pre-war days.

Agreement to alterations on the film were reached after a protesting delegation from the United Sons and Daughters of the Confederacy had witnessed two private showings here today.

Another change to be made will be the substitution of the term "war between the states," for "civil war."

Members of the protesting committee were jubilant at the changes wrought.

"Now the picture will show the northern troops coming to the rescue of slaves suffering under northern cruelty," explained a member.

Mrs. Fine Honor Guest At Birthday Party

Mrs. J. H. Fine was complimented at a party Monday evening at her home, 1702 Victory avenue, when Miss Bonita Fine was hostess in observance of the birthday anniversary of her mother.

Waco Girl Becomes Bride of Wichita Falls Man Sunday

Of interest to persons in Wichita Falls is the announcement of the wedding of Miss Ruth Marie Shook of Waco to Allen Thurman Rowan of this city, which took place Sunday morning at the home of Mrs. Robert Hatten, 1900 Washington avenue. Dr. L. L. Evans performed the ceremony before an altar of palms, smilax and gladioli lighted with sunglow candles and tall tapers.

The bride wore a lovely dress of black crepe Elizabeth with beige and rhinestone trimming. She wore accessories to match and carried a bride's bouquet of roses and lilies-of-the-valley.

Mrs. John Jeffus of Wichita Falls was the matron of honor, who was becomingly attired in a blue georgette model and black hat. Little Frances Louise Sligh of Waco was flower girl. Mrs. Clyde Reeves sang the pre-nuptial songs, accompanied by Mrs. Theodore Ray on the violin.

Mr. and Mrs. Rowan will be at home in the La Feria apartments here, following a wedding trip spent in parts of New Mexico. The bridegroom is employed in the First National bank here.

"I am so happy that the last pimple is gone—"

WITHOUT this handicap, there returns the very natural confidence, joy and cherished pride of possessing a clear skin.

Men and women both justly covet admiration, and you can expect such satisfaction only if you are happy in a clear, unblemished skin.

The sure way to reach this state is through the blood.

Red blood cells are Nature's elements for building and sustaining the body.

Without plenty of rich, red blood, there can be no strong, sturdy, powerful men, or beautiful, healthy women.

You know a clear skin comes from within. Correct the cause—through the blood—and pimples, boils, eczema and that sallow complexion will disappear.

Thousands have regained their strength and charm by taking a few bottles of S.S.S.—Nature's own tonic for restoring the appetite—building strength—and clearing the body of so-called skin troubles.

All drug stores sell S.S.S. in two sizes. Get the larger size. It is more economical.

WOMEN WOULD GO WITH BYRD

Trip Over Ship Gives Them Big Thrill

NEW YORK, Aug. 21. (US)—Adventure is a siren that supposedly lures men and frightens women. Yet women send appealing letters to Commander Richard Byrd to be allowed to join his womanless expedition that sets out next Saturday for a two-year trip to the South Pole. And they snap eagerly at the privilege of looking over his ship City of New York.

Once the odor of packed herring is lost on pier 1, Hoboken, where the reconditioned antarctic vessel is tied up, an enticing smell comes from the ship itself. It is a smell pungent with old timber, fresh paint, new rope, fish, salt water, rust, canvas and men.

Story Book Ship

It is like a story book ship, or a picture ship such as hangs above many a domestic buffet, rigged with white sails on a blue sea. It has been a whaler since 1876 under the name of the Samson. It's crew is a husky, masculine crew. The fifty men who will sail away with Commander Byrd are men of strength and daring. Women like that sort of thing and they find a fascination in the man-made ship for men whom it will shelter for two whole years.

Women visitors click high heels down trick ladders of the City of New York with pathetic awkwardly. But no ballroom cavalier could conduct them more gallantly or patiently than, say, Captain Melville, or Lieutenant Mulroy, or the veteran ship-rigger, Jacobsen.

There are feminine exclamations at this and marvels at that. And how can these long fellows sleep every night for two years in those hard coffin-like bunks? Ah, if you knew, lady, the men who'd give their right eye to do it!

Byrd's Room Nifty

Commander Byrd's quarters, just completed on the maindeck, are what might be called nifty, however. A single bed with good spiral springs, a neat chest of drawers, table for typewriter, and the cutest tile bath with shower. Over the table is a framed picture of Floyd Bennett, who would have been along had not death intervened.

There are also electric lights, electric refrigeration, steam heat, a radio room, a plant for distilling drinking water from sea water, a white-lined dining room and a kitchen that would delight the soul of a Holland housewife.

Demented Son Held in Captivity By Aged Mother, Officers Reveal

FAIRPLAY, Colo., Aug. 21. (INS)—Mrs. Anna Meeler, 60, and her son, Harry, 48, were awaiting insanity hearings here today after officers found the man chained to the floor of the Meeler home.

According to Sheriff Fred L. Richard, the man had been held a prisoner by his mother for 11 years, or since he was released from the Colorado insane asylum. He was without clothes and his body was covered with a growth of hair. His mind was a blank.

It is believed by officers that Mrs. Meeler gave the best care she knew how to the man, which was practically no care at all. He slept on the floor in filth and ate what little food was given him.

Doctors declared that he was in good physical condition in spite of the chains that bound him to the floor and allowed him a radius of only four feet in which to move.

The Meelers have lived here many years. It is thought the son was born here.

Indians Instructed To Feed Children Milk

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21. (UP)—Milk-fed Indian children is the latest aim of the Indian office, interior department. JUDGE TO WAGE FIGHT ON WRIT

Seeks Right to Adjudicate Stephenson Petition

LAPORTE, Ind., Aug. 21. (INS)—Judge John C. Richter of the Laporte circuit court this afternoon indicated he would wage a vigorous legal fight to prevent the Indiana supreme court from denying him authority to adjudicate the habeas corpus petition of D. C. Stephenson, imprisoned former grand dragon of the Indiana Ku Klux Klan.

Chief Justice David A. Myers has issued a temporary writ enjoining Judge Richter from enforcing a habeas corpus writ granted Stephenson yesterday.

Judge Richter this afternoon announced the appointment of two prominent northern Indiana jurists to represent him at the hearing before the Indiana supreme court on September 4, when the court will decide whether or not Justice Myers' writ of prohibition will be made permanent. The two attorneys appointed by Judge Richter were Ralph Smith, widely known Laporte barrister, and Len Orr of South Bend, a former judge of the St. Joseph circuit court.

"This court is now litigant in the Stephenson case," Judge Richter remarked.

Postal Advertisement Serves To Unite Family After Eight Years

HOUSTON, Aug. 21. (AP)—Rural Ricketts of Cambridge, Mass., lost from his family in Texas for eight years and believed to be dead, has been located as a result of the filing of condemnation proceedings by the Houston school board against property owned by the Ricketts estate and the placing of an advertisement with United States postal authorities by Mrs. Thelma Hodges of Dallas, a sister.

A postal clerk at Cambridge, who knew Rural Ricketts, saw the postal advertisement and notified him. The lost brother has been reunited with his family at Houston and settlement of property interests made. Letters sent by the Ricketts family to Rural Ricketts and letters by the latter to members of his family had been returned repeatedly, due to changes in residence by all parties concerned.

Singers to Hold Meet at Cashion

Special to The Record News.

BURKBURNETT, Texas, Aug. 21.—The district singing convention met last Sunday in the Cooper church, with Lee Copeland, president of that organization, presiding. Opening prayer was led by J. D. Robbins. Chorus leaders included J. B. Scarbrough and M. J. Magness of Wichita Falls; C. J. Aulick and E. N. Kimbrough from Buffalo Springs; A. L. Reid of Cashion; F. L. Collum from Charlie; Lee Copeland and J. S. Gore of Burkburnett; H. H. Russell, J. D. Robbins, Miss Edith Robbins, and J. D. Cooper of the Cooper community and Miss Mary Sue Hansard from Thornberry.

Pianist Mrs. Johnie Meyers was ably assisted by Miss Mary Huffines of Wichita Falls; Miss Lorena Johnson from Buffalo Springs; Mrs. S. L. Hansard and Miss Mildred Hansard of Thornberry.

Specials on the program consisted of a quartet by Lee Copeland, Mrs. N. G. Goodlett, E. N. Kimbrough and M. J. Magness; duets by C. J. Aulick and Miss Velma Aulick; quartets by Lee Copeland, Mrs. Edith Goodlett, J. S. Gore and M. J. Magness; also an old time quartet by J. D. Cooper, S. L. Copeland, J. S. Gore and J. B. Scarbrough, using the sol, la, fa, or sacred harp style of music so well known to our grandparents, which showed the younger people that some great improvements have been made, in music, during the past half century.

The Cashion delegates secured the next district singing convention, which will be held in their large auditorium, beginning at 2 o'clock, Sept. 16. Mr. Copeland also announced that Wichita county singing convention would meet in all day session at Midway, east of Electra, on Sept. 7-9.

Closing chorus was led by Lee Copeland and benediction pronounced by Rev. Gus Mathews.

Spur Trade Territory Prepares for Fair

Special to The Record News.

SPUR, Texas, Aug. 21.—Much work is being done in Spur trade territory making ready for the Northwest Texas fair to be held in Spur Sept. 27, 28, 29.

The several committees are working to make this the biggest event of its nature that has been held in Spur for years.

The crop conditions are favorable for the most complete farm exhibit that has ever been shown, and the livestock are in first class condition.

Besides the agriculture and livestock exhibits several educational demonstrations will be given.

Government Official Studies Spur Terracing

Special to The Record News.

SPUR, Texas, Aug. 21.—Mr. E. F. Chilcott from the U. S. dry land field station, Woodward, Okla., is in Spur studying the terracing project which is being conducted at experiment station No. 7. The fact that experiment station No. 7 is attracting so much attention relative to the terracing work being done, is because there is not another station in the United States fitted to conduct such a moisture conservation experiment as is carried on here.

A man shall be as an hiding place from the wind, and a covert from the tempest; as rivers of water in a dry place, as the shadow of a great rock in a weary land. Isaiah xxxii:2.

A noble man with the gift of utterance, one who is true to the soul of things and in inspired accord with it, and armed with its holy sympathies, and filled with its resistless persuasions, can put himself into the mind of a thousand.—Phillips Brooks.

The Day Book of a New Yorker

By GRANT DIXON

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—The dramatic world is looking with interest and trepidation at the experiments in the reproduction of voice along with moving pictures. This idea is rapidly being perfected and synchronized and there is little doubt but that it will be commercially exploited in the movie game in the near future. The new movies with spoken parts are already being called "talkies."

The perfection of the talkies will revolutionize both the movie game and the legitimate drama. Up to this time the voice of a movie star has been of no importance whatever. But now the Hollywood kings and queens are cultivating their voices, knowing that a good voice will be a big asset to the coming star. Many of them are taking parts in order to acquire the technique for spoken parts.

Actors and actresses of the legitimate stage also are watching this new development with interest. There have been many conjectures as to how it will affect their field. The plays that make a hit on Broadway in the future will probably be done in the "talkie" form and sent out through the country. People in the small towns and villages will have a chance to see and hear productions like "The Trial of Mary Dugan," and "Strange Interlude."

The first experiment in "talkies" was Tenderloin, produced at the Warner Bros. theater in New York. On the first night there were many famous actors and actresses, dramatic critics and authors present in the audience, curious to see how the thing would go. It went well enough, until the hotel bedroom scene which was played up big in the film. The scene was the heroine's bedroom in the hotel. Actors, the heroine and the villain. The villain approaches the helpless girl with evil triumph in his eyes. Through the theater came the hissing words: "Give me the $10,000 or—" Then on the screen the heroine recoils in terror, and her trembling voice utters these words. "Ah, no, not that, not that." At this point there was a long wild howl of mirth from the audience and for several minutes the Warner Brothers' theater was filled with pandemonium. Reading titles is a far different matter from hearing the spoke ndialogue, and it was learned right there that the scenario writers of the future will have to develop the art of writing dialogue, if the talkies are to carry the big thrill.

Of late there has been considerable talk about companionate marriage. Judge Ben Lindsey announces from countless movie screens that he thinks it is the only solution to our social problems. And eventually, after enough novels are written about it, somebody will probably try it.

Which reminds me of the story that is told of George Bernard Shaw. Shaw at the peak of his bizzare fame is said to have roused the admiration of a very famous and beautiful European woman. She was known for the unconventionality of her views. The thought came to her that the combination of her qualities and Shaw's would produce a wonderful specimen of humanity, a superman. And in the interest of humanity and eugenics she decided to benefit the world with such a perfect human being. She wrote to Shaw suggesting the idea. "Just think," she said, "what a wonderful child it would be with my beauty and your brains."

George Bernard Shaw in answer to this startling offer, said, according to the story, "Ah, yes, Madame, but the child might have my looks and your brains."

Ignorance Abroad

YOU may not have realized it, what with the presidential campaign and all, but the great American male is really desperately unhappy.

An Englishwoman, writing in a London paper and quoted in a recent Literary Digest, sets forth that the American man, in fact, is even "fighting for his life." His wife, she admits, has a pretty good time; but American men lag far behind their women. Hear what she says:

"He (the American man) lives in a world separate from theirs. All the excitement and romance of life for him is concentrated in his office. He goes home in the evening, exhausted, to find his wife, fresh as a daisy, starting out for the night. If she insists on his going with her, and she does insist, he can only do so after a couple of cocktails, or three or four. So that what he sees of the world of women he sees in a daze of weariness and alcohol.

"The tragedy of such American men is that they are never allowed to go to bed. They are the slaves of wives who are utterly bored with their company yet will not dispense with it."

This great weariness of American men at evening undoubtedly explains why the largest American cities, where there are the most business men and where the pace is the most furious, offer the most numerous and varied forms of diversion in the evening. The tired business man, it is well known, is a great patron of the theater; and he seldom is dragged there by his wife, any more than he is dragged to his golf club by her, or to the conventions which he loves so dearly.

As a matter of fact, the only significant thing about the article quoted above is the revelation which it provides about the average English view of us. We are often told that America is self-centered and ignorant of the ways of other people; yet no intelligent American ever was quite as misinformed about the English as this lady-writer is misinformed about the Americans. She paints a very pathetic picture, but no American would ever recognize it. It simply is not true.

Think over the people you know. Are the men tired out every evening? Are the women always "fresh as a daisy" after spending a day caring for a house and three or four children? Are husbands and wives mutually bored to the point of extinction?

Of course not. Like some other foreign commentators on American life, this lady just doesn't know what she's talking about. That great Anglo-American understanding we're all looking for so earnestly will never come until some of England's publicists take the trouble to find out what we're really like.

The Lucky Southern Route

THE southern air route across the Atlantic seems to be luckier than the northern.

Plane after plane has tried the northern route, only to disappear forever. The months have brought no trace of Nungesser and Coli, or of the aviators who followed them. Undoubtedly all were forced down on the water; and when they came down there was no steamship at hand to pick them up.

But now consider the southern route.

De Pinedo came down and was rescued. George Haldeman and Ruth Elder came down right beside a steamer. Courtney was picked up soon after he hit the water. The two Polish flyers have now added their names to the list by a similar bit of good fortune.

There must be something lucky about that southern route.

"Dementia Americana"

THERE are, in this great land, various ways of attaining fame, or a kind of fame; but few men ever left a fame gained in a stranger manner than did Delphin M. Delmas, San Francisco lawyer who died the other day.

Rack your brain for a minute, unless you happen to belong to the younger generation, and you'll recall the name. Sure—he was the lawyer who defended Harry Thaw when Thaw was tried for the murder of Stanford White. It was he who invented the phrase "Dementia Americana" for Thaw's mental condition.

That, when you stop to think of it, is a peculiar sort of fame; the fame that comes to a man who defended America's most notorious murderer and found a new way to cheat the electric chair.

STABILIZING COTTON EXPENSIVE

The problem of stabilizing the cotton market is going to cost money, and the executive committee of the South-Wide Cotton council has embarked on a campaign to raise $750,000. This money will be spent in the 11 principal cotton growing states of the South to stabilize the market and insure producers a fair return on their investment. This end will be accomplished by cooperative marketing, supervision of acreage and providing financial aid to assist in the task of coordinating all branches of the cotton industry.

The South-Wide council is the body which was formed last February at the Jackson, Miss., meeting of prominent business men and farmers from all section of the South. It is a tribute to the ability of these men that they recognize the extent of the problem, and are willing to undertake the task of raising three-quarters of a million dollars to further the work. While this sum is large, it is worth while to remember that if the work of the council results in adding only $1 to the average price per bale of cotton, the South will be richer by some $15,000,000.

WISDOM IN CONTINUOUS PAVEMENT

Lawton's city officials have shown wisdom in deciding to pave Second street, forming an unbroken link of paving through the city, with the completion of the concrete slab on highway No. 29.

No city is censored more for any one thing than its lack of foresight in leaving a few blocks unpaved between the main section of the city and the hard-surfaced roads, which reach its boundaries.

There are eight miles of fine paving south of Chickasha and yet it ends at the city limits leaving motorists to traverse several blocks of the roughest road in the state before they get on city pavements and those few blocks have created more ill will among visitors to Chickasha than the chamber of commerce can correct in a year.

Lawton's Second street paving will enable visitors to drive right into the heart of the city without slowing up for bumps and holes which are found at the approaches of too many Oklahoma municipalities.

TOONERVILLE FOLKS — Fontaine Fox

The FORBIDDEN DOOR — by Herman Landon

Ernest Mallingham was alone in the library filled with strange curios gathered from many lands by the great scientist, Winthrop Gaston Martenet, erratic and tireless explorer into the mysteries of life, who had now been dead seven years.

Ernest was waiting for a woman and because these queer surroundings got on his nerves he was waiting impatiently. Julia was late again. Julia was the young widow of old Martenet's son, Maxwell, a man twice her age. Maxwell had disappeared four years after his father's death and because he had been more or less a nobody it was taken for granted he was dead. But Ernest Mallingham was suspicious and when the young widow appears he accuses her of keeping a secret from him and the rest of the world. Breaking down, she promises to tell him all. Hannan Martenet, son of Maxwell Martenet, lately arriving in New York from the tropics, finds he is being trailed by a young woman. He visits the family lawyer, who gives him a letter from his grandfather which he is to read and then destroy. The letter warns Hannan not to open "the iron door until the clock has stopped" and ends with a drawing of a man his grandfather calls dangerous. As Hannan finishes reading there is a knock and the original of the drawing stands before him. Peters, the stranger, gives Hannan a letter from his father. Just as Peters leaves Hannan notices it is dated two years after the supposed death. He runs after Peters.

The House on Bank Street

"Bank Street," said the sign on the corner. It was not a particularly inviting block, thought Hannan. It was dreary, dirty, shabby and poorly illuminated, and the house near the middle, with a delicatessen shop on one side and a laundry on the other, looked as dismal and unattractive as all the rest. There was a sharp discrepancy between such a house and Horace Peters' elegant evening garments. The latter did not seem to belong to the former. Yet it was to this very house his pursuit of the extraordinary Mr. Peters had led him.

Barely a minute ago he had seen Mr. Peters descend from his taxi, and he had caught a final glimpse of the flying coat-tails just before the door closed. Now Hannan stood there a little bewildered and undecided, wondering just why he had decided to follow Mr. Peters surreptitiously rather than accost him openly while the little man waited for his taxi outside the Illington. He had decided quickly and part on impulse, and it was hard to trace such a decision back to its source. In any event, what was done was done, and it now behooved him to determine his next step.

His mind was soon made up, and again his decision was largely a matter of impulse. He sauntered closer and looked up at the house. Perhaps it was not so strange, after all, that the elegant Mr. Peters should belong there. It was one of the oldest parts of New York, he recalled, and rich and poor alike dwelt in this district. What puzzled him was that there was no sign of life about the house. Perhaps Mr. Peters was in one of the rooms in the rear.

With a nonchalant air he walked up the steps and looked for the bell. The familiar white disc was not in evidence, but he noticed instead that the door stood open a tiny crack.

"Careless," Hannan mused, "or else——"

He did not complete the thought, but walked in and drew the door to behind him. It would be interesting, he thought, to obtain a glimpse of Mr. Peters in repose, to get some sort of sidelight on the man when he thought himself unobserved. It would be interesting—and illuminating as well.

He came forward softly. The house might have been unoccupied, it was so still. It was dark everywhere. He picked his way past a stairway post and down a hall. He brought up against a door. After a brief wait he turned the knob gently. Inch by inch he pushed the door open. Step by step he came forward. Presently he slackened his pace, then stopped altogether. It was his nostrils, rather than his eyes or his ears, that conveyed a warning. It was still everywhere, but a faint odor of cigarette smoke hung in the air.

And then, suddenly, a little click sprang out of the stillness. A light flashed up—not a very bright light, but the abruptness of it dazzled Hannan for a moment.

"Oh, you, Hannan."

The voice was Mr. Peters'. It was edged with a faint note of surprise, or so Hannan thought. He was seated at a reading table, with his feet resting on a chair, a cigarette hanging limply from his lips. He had removed his coat and was exposing what seemed an inordinately large shirt front for such a little man.

"Sit down," he added, but his voice was not very friendly. It was still marked with the chill that had characterized it at the Illington.

Hannan sat down. He felt sheepish and a little guilty. Mr. Peters had caught him in a manner at once startling and dramatic.

"You needn't tell me why you came here or how you got in," said the little man. "Explanations are always awkward. At any rate," with a faint, amused grin, "I generally find them so."

"The door was open," said Hannan.

"Really? Well, perhaps so. I've noticed the lock is a bit troublesome. I must be more careful. One of these nights somebody may walk in on me who is not quite so harmless as you." A slight sneer accentuated the word "harmless."

"Were you expecting somebody?"

"My dear young man, do I look as if I were expecting somebody? If I were, do you suppose I would be sitting here in the dark?"

"That would depend on what sort of person you were expecting."

"Not bad, Hannan." He gave the younger man an admiring glance. "Not bad."

A little silence fell, and then Hannan plunged into the subject uppermost in his thoughts.

"Mr. Peters, when did my father hand you the letter you gave me?"

"Why, let me see, it must have been about a week before his death."

"You mean before his disappearance?"

Mr. Peters shrugged. "Well, it's the same thing."

Hannan leaned forward and gazed into the curiously mismated features as if trying to read the thoughts hidden behind them.

"Mr. Peters, did you notice the date of the letter?"

"The date? What does the date matter?"

"Did you notice it?"

"No, I don't believe I did."

Hannan fell silent. He wondered whether Mr. Peters would have delivered up the letter to him if he had noticed the date. Then, watching alertly the face across the table, he said:

"The letter was dated October 1, 1923."

With a loud thump Mr. Peters' feet fell from the chair on which they had rested. For a moment he averted his face as if to hide his emotions from the younger man. His fingers writhed a little; his jaw quavered queerly.

"Well, what of it?"

Peters was quite himself again. With a disparaging gesture he brought his hand down on the table, with fingers spread out. The finely manicured nails, polished to just the right degree of gloss, gleamed a faint pink in the light of the electric lamp.

"Don't you see? If my father died your years ago, he could not have written this letter two years ago."

"Obviously not." Mr. Peters looked a little bored. Once more he elevated his feet to the chair. His immaculate shirt front crackled as he leaned back comfortably. "That brings us face to face with two alternatives. Either your father did not write the letter, in which case it may be presumed to be a forgery, or else he did not die four years ago. Which do you prefer?"

Hannan reflected. In the lamplight his face was very serious, also a little pale. His usually mild eyes were full of hard glints and dark suspicions. He recalled the simple and humdrum contents of the letter. The first alternative crumbled. There was no reason, as far as he could see, why any one should forge a letter of that kind.

"I believe my father wrote the letter," he said steadily.

"Then," said Mr. Peters, turning his eyes languidly to the ceiling, "we are forced to accept the second alternative—that your father was still alive two years ago."

Hannan rose, walked around the table, placed his hand on the arm of Mr. Peters' chair, and leaned over. There was a touch of flint in his voice as he spoke.

"Tell me—is he alive now?"

Mr. Peters shrugged. A disdainful sniff emanated from his huge lump of a nose. His eyes, a little reddish around the irises, but otherwise of an undeterminate color, were still fixed on the ceiling.

"I don't want to talk about that," he said irritably. "I always shun the subject of death. I am a coward when it comes to that. I could never stand the sight of a dead body. Even a dead animal gives me the shivers. I don't like to travel in the open country because I would be sure to see a cemetery somewhere. There would be high walls around all cemeteries if I had my way. Undertakers would be forced to remove their signs and put heavy curtains in their windows. The only thing in life that I am afraid of is—death. Why do you bring up disagreeable subjects, Hannan?"

He smiled faintly, but his irritable tone was edged with a note of dread. Hannan felt he had spoken out of a heart haunted by a single morbid fear. He felt, too, that Mr. Peters could answer his question if he chose to do so, and his determination to make him speak grew stronger. A dim vision of his father rose before his eyes—a wistful, solitary figure, often misunderstood, a man whom even a mysterious disappearance had failed to elevate beyond the realm of the humdrum and commonplace.

He shook Mr. Peters' shoulder. "Answer me!"

Reluctantly the little man removed hisd feet from the chair and sat up straight. "What was it you wanted me to tell you?"

"I want to know if my father is alive now."

Mr. Peters' flabby mouth tightened a little. He toyed with a paper cutter. His eyes roamed the room, dim and shadowy except within the radius of the hooded lamp. The blare of a motor horn came from the outside, and then all was silence again—a tense, heavy silence that seemed appropriate to solemn revelation

"Does it really matter?" asked Mr. Peters.

"Very much."

The little man reached out his white hand and toyed with Hannan's button. His long lips dangled open in a smile that had no glow to it.

"Would you like to go to your father, Hannan?"

"Eh?" It was as if an electric jolt had been hurled into Hannan's body. "You mean—"

"Would you like to go to him?"

Hannan stood as if frozen into immobility. Mr. Peters' tone was soft, silken, like the sound of a snake rubbing itself against a greasy surface, but he did not notice it. It was the words that filled him with a sense of weird and overwhelming excitement.

"Then is he here—in this house?"

"Let go my arm," said Mr. Peters, wincing. "Would you like to go to him? But, of course, you would. Very well. You shall."

His white, smooth hand moved. Somewhere in the house a seal sounded. It awakened a tremor in Hannan's dazed mind, but still he did not move. There was a dismal, awesome sorcery in the situation that overwhelmed his senses. Go to his father? Then it was true! His father was alive. But what was this?

Mr. Peters was talking—talking in a low tone and in a foreign tongue. At first he appeared to be talking to himself.

Then, gradually, Hannan became aware that another person had entered the room and was now standing at his back. The other person must have entered very silently, for he had heard nothing. He did not turn to look at the newcomer. Mr. Peters' words, uttered in that sibilant foreign tongue, exercised a curious magnetism on his senses. They formed pictures in his mind—green isles in sun-caressed seas, gleaming brown bodies, groves of fronded palms, a vista of thatched roofs, skies of the most exquisite azure—

The picture faded away. It was blotted out by his sudden realization that he understood every word the little man was saying. The import of the speech seemed to leap upon him like a living, ravenous thing. He jumped, dodged, but fingers that possessed the strength of a gorilla closed around his throat. The room grew black. There was a choking, maddening torture in his lungs. Now he was being lifted, carried away—

The room was still again. Mr. Peters had not left his place at the table. Now, alone once more, he cocked his head as if trying to catch remote sounds. For a time he sat thus, with a faraway look on his oddly assorted features.

He looked at his watch. Half an hour had passed. He stirred himself from a sort of brooding stupor.

"It must be over by now," he muttered. Though he was talking to himself, his voice had a queerly penetrating quality. "Lucky thing I've got Papu to attend to those little matters for me. Could never do it myself. Moral coward—that's it. But Papu—Intelligent fellow for a Malay. Does everything he is told, and does it right." He shivered a little. "Well, it's done. As the great Horace might have remarked."

The door opened. A huge man with a brutish face entered, spoke a few words in his native tongue, placed a few articles on the table in front of Mr. Peters, and withdrew.

Mr. Peters lighted a cigaret and gazed at the articles Papu had placed on the table—a gold watch, a knife, shirt studs, collar buttons, cuff links, a few silver coins.

"Papu forgets nothing," he murmured. "Hannan is gone—every trace of him destroyed. Great things, those acids. But they are powerless to destroy metals. Those things might have told a tale. They must be buried out of sight, and that will be the last of Hannan Martenet."

He scooped the articles into an envelope. Then he opened a drawer, poured a drink from a bottle and quaffed it down. A sense of well-being seemed to sweep over him. His thought appeared to dip into more pleasant channels. His eyes roved over the room, pausing for an instant in the rear. It was shadowy back there, for the light from the electric lamp did not reach very far. Yet Peters noticed a significant bulge in the curtains that hung over the doorway.

The faintest of smiles tugged at his lips and wrinkled the bulbous, ruddy nose.

"The clock—" he chuckled. "The iron door—" he chuckled once more.

NOT A SCRAPPER

But Tom Mix Objects To Bad Lingo Near The Ladies

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Aug. 21. (UP)—Tom Mix isn't a "scrapping man," but he doesn't like to hear "bunk house language" when ladies are present, he said today in pleading not guilty to two charges of assault.

Mix said Will Morrissey, musical comedy actor, struck him during a party early Sunday morning and he merely defended himself. One of her husband's own wild swings knocked Midgie Miller, Morrissey's wife, to the ground and resulted in her black eye, Mix said.

Judge George Bullock set trial on the two charges for September 1.

New Wichita Oil Co. Given State Charter

The Litch-A-Voo Oil and Gas company, with a capital stock of $10,000 is the latest addition to Wichita Falls oil circles, it was learned here Monday. The new concern was incorporated in Austin Monday, with Walter Nelson Jr., A. C. Hill and Orville Bullington shown as incorporators.

The new company, which will deal in royalties, has not yet completed its organization, according to the incorporators.

K. of C. to Take No Part In Presidential Race

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Aug. 21. (UP)—The Knights of Columbus will take no part in the forthcoming presidential campaign, according to a statement by Supreme Knight Martin H. Carmody on the eve of the order's 46th annual national convention here.

Carmody said the order's constitution prohibits political activities, as applicable to the organization as a whole.

Wink Pool Tables Banned By Injunction

AUSTIN, Texas, Aug. 21. (AP)—Injunctions forbidding operation of pool tables in the Wink Amusement club, the Oil Men's club and Petroleum club at Wink, West Texas oil town, were granted to state today District Judge J. R. Hamilton's court.

German Women Tennis Players in Dispute

BERLIN, Aug. 21. (AP)—Because the mother of Cecile Aussem, champion woman tennis player of Germany, insisted Frau Von Reznicek twice defeated her daughter by using hypnotism, the latter boxed Frau Aussem's ears.

Frau Aussem has entered suit for alleged "insulting assault" and Frau Von Reznicek has started a counter suit for alleged "defamation of character."

Japs Deny Charges Of Inciting Rebellion

TOKIO, Aug. 21. (UP)—The government today denied soviet charges that Japan was responsible for the Barga rebellion after that state had refused to join Mongolia. It is officially reported that the rebellion has been suppressed and 2,000 Fengtien troops are now en route to the Hulumpuir district to deal with bandits there.

Tax On Long Tresses

PEKING, Aug. 21. (AP)—The municipal bureau of public safety has decreed Peking women under 30 years of age must bob their hair or pay a "degeneracy tax." The order becomes effective Sept. 1. It is meant to discourage the old Manchu style of hair dressing.

Fierro On His Way

HAVANA, Aug. 21. (AP)—Major Robert Fierro, Mexican aviator, who made a good will flight from Mexico City to Havana, today started on a tour of Central America en route to his home station. He took off for Guatemala City, Guatemala, at 8:41 a. m.

HERB MAY GO EAST TO SPEAK

Candidate May Seek Votes In Smith's State

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21. (INS)—Herbert Hoover will abandon the front porch for the train platform and carry the Republican presidential campaign directly to voters in the East if he responds to appeals which are pouring into Republican national headquarters, it was learned today.

With the strategy of the eastern campaign still in the making, belief was expressed in Republican circles that the Republican nominee will invade not only New England but will make a special appeal to the voters in New York state, the home of his opponent.

The generally expressed belief of politicians that Hoover would add no votes by essaying the unfamiliar role of a stump speaker has been somewhat altered by confidential reports of his performances in the West. These reports declare that Hoover is falling easily into the ways of a campaigner and that a carefully planned trip would yield good results.

Reluctance Wanes

The original reluctance of political leaders to advocate a Hoover stump campaign in the East was said to be due in part to fear of heckling on the prohibition issue. Now that Hoover has entered into the campaign with a declaration that "we shall use words to convey our meaning, not to hide it," many of them feel that he is bound to wage a vigorous fight.

Among the most recent visitors to headquarters, who is said to have urged the personal appearance of Hoover in eastern states, is Hamilton Kean, Republican senatorial candidate in New Jersey. He predicted a Republican victory, although warning the headquarters staff that a stiff battle lies ahead.

The statement of Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, condemning Hoover's prohibition stand, was received silently by most organization leaders here but they could not clothe their disappointment over the defection. In the absence of Hoover and National Chairman Work, no responsible leader was willing to enter into a debate with Butler.

Issues Defined

The whole eastern fight, it was made plain, will be made on the basis that the tariff and Republican capacity for government are the major issues of the campaign.

The eastern campaign will be officially opened by Senator Charles Curtis vice presidential nominee, at Rocky Point, R. I., on Thursday and will be continued by his tour. With the return to the city tonight of national Chairman Work plans will be set in motion for other phases of the eastern campaign. All must await the approval of Hoover, who is scheduled to return to Washington the latter part of the week and personally decide all major questions of policy.

As a counter-stroke to Gov. Al Smith's announced intention of advocating a reorganization of government bureaus, Republican headquarters today laid emphasis on Hoover's activities in this direction.

Not only has he reorganized the department of commerce but he has consistently urged a general overhauling of government bureaus, it was declared. His advocacy of such reorganization, in a speech before the chamber of commerce here on May 21, 1925, was cited.

On another occasion, it was pointed out, he advocated reorganization by saying: "I have found that the brown bears are under the jurisdiction of the secretary of agriculture, the grizzly bears are under the care of the secretary of the interior and the polar bears are under my protection as secretary of commerce."

In reorganizing the commerce department, Hoover obtained the transfer to it of the patent office and bureau of mines.

OBJECTIVE

When I'm lonesome and blue and my spirits are low,
And I have no one to cheer me, and no place to go,
I have often just sat in my chair by the hearth,
Trying someway to figure my place on this earth.

Then a friend pays a call, and his lot, too, is sad;
Though he speaks not I know that his fortune is bad,
And I long to find out of the cross that he bears;
And I hope I'll be able to lessen his cares.

Then he leaves, and I turn to my chair by the hearth,
And my thoughts turn to my object or earth;
Well I see that I'm an integral part of the plan,
For we all were intended to be friend of man.

—John Self Elliott.

THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE (379) Our Presidents

The administration of Thomas Jefferson, Virginia planter, was an eventful one for the United States. Napoleon, needing money for his wars, sold for $15,000,000 the vast Louisiana territory, between the Mississippi and the Rockies. Out of this huge purchase was to grow the states of Montana, the Dakotas, Minnesota, Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska, Colorado, Louisiana, Arkansas, Wyoming, Missouri and Oklahoma.

Pirates of Algiers and Tripoli, who preyed upon our vessels, were subdued by our warships led by John Paul Jones.

England and France, at war, blockaded one another's ports. The English began to search our ships and take off men for the British service.

During Jefferson's administration Aaron Burr, former vice president, conceived the plan to set up a monarchy in the west, or in Mexico, but the plan failed and Burr was thrown into common jail in Richmond to be tried for treason. Burr was acquitted, however.

NEW HOME FOR U. S. AIR CORPS

Government Accepts Field Near San Antonio

SAN ANTONIO, Aug. 21 (AP)—With the acceptance Tuesday of the site purchased and donated by the city of San Antonio to the government as the new home of the air corps training center, plans for the construction of an ideal training plant to meet the needs of the army for many years to come were brought close to realization.

The land selected for the new flying field is located 15 miles east of San Antonio and consists of a plot of approximately 2,400 acres. It was selected by Brig. Gen. Frank P. Lahm, assistant chief of the air corps in command of the training center, after a careful inspection of numerous proposed sites and has been praised by Maj. Gen. James E. Fechet, chief of the air corps, as an ideal location for the army's flying school.

The new field, when completed, will be the home of training activities now carried on at Brooks field and Kelly field at San Antonio, and March field, California, and will release these fields for other activities or for what other disposal the secretary of war may direct. Congress already has passed legislation providing for the sale of Brooks field and Kelly field if the secretary of war decides they are no longer needed by the army after the new field is completed.

FAVORITE JOKES OF FAMOUS FOLK

As Told by Them to FRANK E. NICHOLSON

By JACK HOLT

Jack Holt, the movie star, was a civil engineer, a prospector for copper in Alaska, and a vaudevillian before Jack got a Holt in pictures.

"I like the story," Jack told me, "about the Irishman who was taking his first flight in an airplane.

"The plane took off from the field, then circled over New York City. The pilot then allowed the plane to rise until they were some 3000 feet above the metropolis, then went into a nose dive.

"Down they dashed until the plane was almost upon a roof, then the pilot righted it, barely missing a flagpole.

"'Ha, ha, ha,' ha-ha-haed the pilot, shouting to the Irishman, '50 per cent of the people down there thought we were falling.'

"'Begorra,' replied the Irishman, '50 per cent of the people up here thought so, too.'"

HEALTH and DIET ADVICE

By DR. FRANK McCOY

Author of "The Fast Way to Health"

Questions in regard to health and diet will be answered by Mr. McCoy who can be addressed in care of this paper.

Boosting for Health

The patient who adheres strictly to his doctor's directions usually regains his health quickly. Even though most patients do adhere to their doctor's instructions, it is a noticeable fact that some of them get well more quickly than others. These patients who become well so quickly are enthusiastic, and continue to increase in health and happiness. Every once in a while they bring in a new patient to the doctor who treated them.

This booster type of patient responds more quickly than the average sick person because he not only practices dieting, but he talks about health and getting better. By teaching good habits of living to his friends, he has fixed these in his own mind so that they become a part of him. You can see the point. This veritable teaching of others helps to establish a regular healthful regime deeply rooted in the subconscious memory. The patient may feel justly proud of these accomplishments. By explaining these things to his friends, he has become more and more interested in the necessity of the right food and exercise, and through careful investigation has become more fully and intelligently conscious of the advantages which come from living a healthful life.

It has been truthfully said that one only begins to learn a thing thoroughly when he attempts to teach it to others. If you are desirous of being still more benefited from the advice contained in this column, you must not only follow the advice literally by practicing the proven good rules which I give you, but you should do your best to help others by bringing these facts to their attention.

We get from this world just about as much as we are willing to give, and it is a good policy to point out the right path to others. If you were in the dark yourself, you would appreciate a guiding hand.

There is a very close connection between spoken words and memory. Did you ever wonder why you cannot remember events of your childhood that occurred before two or three years of age? The reason is because at that early age you could not talk about what you were doing, and, therefore, your memory of events was not as thoroughly impressed upon your mind as later when you learned to do things and talk about them at the same time. As you grow older, your memory mind becomes stronger because those things that are spoken about are visualized and remembered.

The one who is sick will only make himself worse if he repeats over and over again the stories of his illness and pain, for disease is fostered by those who develop habits of complaining about their troubles. How much better to develop the health habit of talking about wholesome ideas of diet, fresh air and exercise, and in this way build them into the subconsciousness so that they will become a living part of your personality.

Questions and Answers

Question—Mrs. H. K. writes: "I am troubled with a peeling of the skin on my face, particularly on my nose and on my chin. Could it be that the face powder and cream I use do not agree with it, or is it a condition to be treated internally instead of externally?"

Answer: Most skin troubles should be treated internally through dieting and not externally by the application of remedies. I will be glad to send you an article on this subject if you will send a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope the next time you write.

Question—J. L. D. asks: "What is 'pumpernickel' bread?"

Answer: Pumpernickel is the black bread of the German and Russian peasant, being made of the coarse, unbolted rye flour. The genuine pumpernickel is imported into this country sliced in cans, but, personally I do not know of a baker in the United States who makes this bread of the straight rye flour that is, without the addition of wheat flour. The real article is an excellent starch food.

Question—M. O. R. writes: "I am a regular reader of your articles and also have your book, 'The Fast Way to Health,' so wish your advice. Six years ago I had my upper teeth removed on account of abscesses, and am still unable to wear a plate because of mucus collecting between it and the roof of my mouth, although I have had several made by the best dentists. Do you think I will ever be able to wear a plate?"

Answer: I have had many patients who complained of the same thing, and I always advised them to go to one good dentist after another until they find one who is able to properly fit them with false teeth. The fitting of the plates is not only a science, but an art, and even those dentists with the best reputations often fail to fit false teeth properly. Don't give up, but try again.

PRATT'S DOUBLE IN NINTH WINS AND REDUCES SPUDDERS' LEAD

TUERO SHADES COBB, 4 TO 3

Fitzgerald and Lamb Clout Homers With None On

WACO, Texas, Aug. 21.—The Spudders left Waco tonight, not to return any more this season. And they don't care. Indeed, they're glad of it. For the Cubs exercised their usual jinx over the Wichita Falls club today by taking the final contest of the series and breaking even in the four games.

By losing while Houston was winning the Spudders lost a full game of their lead over the Buffs, with whom they open a two-day stand Wednesday. The Spudders now hold an advantage of five and a half games.

The defeat of the Spudders was accomplished today in the ninth inning, and old Papa Del Pratt himself was the villain of the opus. With two out, Johnson and Brown both singled, and Pratt doubled, scoring both runners and giving Waco victory, 4 to 3.

Pitching honors in the matter of base hits were even, with Cobb and Tuero each hurling seven-hit ball. Lamb and Fitzgerald smacked home runs. Fitz and Stanton banged two hits apiece, as did Brown and Windle of the Cubs.

Hurling Honors Even

The Spudders scored in the first inning. Benton and Turgeon strolled. Fitzgerald forced Benton on an attempted sacrifice. Lamb forced Fitzgerald. Turgeon reaching third. Jenkins singled to center, scoring Turgeon.

Galloway's men counted again in the fourth, when Lamb lifted his home run over the left field wall.

Cubs Score in Fifth

Waco scored in the fifth. Brown doubled to left and held second as Pratt grounded to Benton. Brown went to third on a wild pitch and scored while Stanton retired Battle, unassisted.

The Cubs tied it in the seventh. Price walked. Johnson hit to Cobb and was safe when Cobb threw wild to second. Price continuing to third. Brown's lift to Fitzgerald scored Price.

Fitzgerald's homer in the eighth put the Spudders back in the lead—until that dratted ninth.

8 GRID GAMES FOR FREDERICK

Coach Solomon Will Meet His Candidates Today

Special to The Record News

FREDERICK, Aug. 21.—Coach Edward Solomon of Kingfisher conferred recently with Captain Dent Smith of the Frederick Bearcats and a few of the men who expect to come out for football. He said he would meet with the athletes at 7:30 a. m. Wednesday at the high school building when he will announce the practice schedule.

Solomon said he would probably arrange for a practice game before the first regular contest September 28, when the Altus Bulldogs, conference contenders, will be here. The remainder of the schedule:

- *October 5, Erick, there.
- *October 12, Hollis, here.
- *October 19, Cordell, there.
- *October 26, Carnegie, here.
- November 9, Lawton, here.
- November 17, Vernon, there.
- November 29, Thanksgiving, Grandfield, there.

*Indicates conference contest.

Among those who are expected to try for berths on the Bearcat team: Dent Smith, Bill Flood, Hubert Williams, Olen Williams, Ray Batker, O. L. Phipps, "Flat" Pritchard, Walter Emmick, Troy Smith and Bill Cassidy, who played in one or more games last season.

New men who are expected out include Stanford Clark, Robert Peter, Junior Neeley, O. D. Wilkes Jr. and Bill Peacock.

BUFFS SCORE 4 IN 4TH TO WIN

Peel's Triple Helps Beat Steers by 4 to 3

HOUSTON, Texas, Aug. 21. (AP)—Homer Peel Tuesday soaked a baseball on the nose the way he used to sock 'em, and the Houston Buffs whipped the Dallas Steers, 4 to 3.

Peel's triple scored two men to feature Houston's four run rally in the fourth.

The Steers accumulated 11 safeties, while the locals were getting six, but Whitworth put on the brakes in the pinches. With two men on base in the ninth, he fanned Healey for the third time. Score:

ROOKIE TAMES BEARS

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Aug. 21. (AP)—Noel Haynes, a young southpaw from the Fort Smith Western association team, had the San Antonio Bears looking like a class B organization before his mystifying slants Tuesday afternoon when the Fort Worth Panthers won the final game of the series, 9 to 2. Although he filled the bases twice, once on walks with none down, he retired the Bears in each instance without a run. The score:

Abilene Takes Opener in Ninth

ABILENE, Texas, Aug. 21. (AP)—Abilene unexpectedly jumped into the lead for West Texas baseball honors today when San Angelo defense broke down in the ninth round of a tense contest to give the Aces the opener by a score of 7 to 6.

Superior slugging by the Abilene batsmen was overcome by the more timely Snapper blows through the first eight frames, and the visitors led down to the last half of the ninth, 6 to 5.

Sullivan led off for Abilene in the ninth with a single, and Garcia walked Bean. Orr attempted a sacrifice, but forced Sullivan at third. Storti hit a double play ball at Comeaux but the mite keystoner fumbled it and the bags were full. Best cracked another for the runner at the plate. Catcher Mike Wiley droped the ball, the score was tied, and then was untied for the benefit of Abilene partisans by Wright's slap into left. Score:

Jack Holland Waits 3 Years For Hurler

DES MOINES, Iowa, Aug. 21. (UP)—Jack Holland, owner of Oklahoma City Indians of the Western league, still waited today for Fay Thomas, a pitcher he purchased in 1925, and whom he has never seen.

After he was sold from the Mississippi Valley club to Oklahoma City, Thomas dropped out of sight. He appeared again two years later with the New York Giants.

Holland wasn't perturbed, however. He's waited three years to see Thomas and this morning said he expected he would be in later in the day. He believed he and Thomas would come to terms and that the pitcher could resume his place in organized baseball.

Wichita State Nine Defeats Security

Guy Taylor's Wichita State bank baseball team outslugged the Security National bank team Tuesday afternoon and carried off the long end of an 18 to 13 score. Taylor, Hunter and Kinkead all uncorked the Ruthian wallops to feature the hitting for the day.

John Mathis and Johnny "Poses" Reed led the hitting for the losers. Mathis collected a brace of singles while Reed walloped a pair of three baggers. Taylor, Kimbrock, Kay, Hewell and Lacy each hit a pair for the winners.

The league leading City National bank and the runnerup, First National bank, will meet this afternoon on the Jalonic street diamond in a game that may decide the Bank league championship. At the present time the City National is leading by one game. Score:

WICHITA FALLS PREP GRID SQUAD STARTS TRAINING MONDAY

COYOTES DRILL IN OKLAHOMA

McCallum and Black Lead Two-Week Camp

By GORDON FULCHER

Thirty Wichita Falls high school football players will leave Monday for a 14-day training camp at Crateriville, Okla., according to Captain Harvey Black, who talked to Coach Bud McCallum Tuesday afternoon over long distance telephone from Austin.

Coach McCallum has been attending Texas university this summer and will return to Wichita Falls Sunday afternoon.

The players who are to make the trip will be chosen by Captain Black and Coach McCallum from the number of men who were out last spring for training.

Prospects Bright

With a large number of promising youngsters back from last year's team and a wealth of new material the Coyote squad this year should be one of the best ever turned out by the school.

McCallum's backfield this year will be built around Captain Black and Kenneth Mills. Upon the captain and quarterback fall the responsibility of doing the heavy punting and passing to replace the long and accurate heaves of Maurice Allred and the mighty kicks from Duncan Perkins' toe.

Black is also an excellent ball carrier as well as a star on the defense. Mills who was rated the best fullback in the district last season will be back for his last year in the Coyote uniform. His hard-line plunges last year gained more yardage for the Pack than any other man on the squad.

Other Lettermen

Dick Hambrick and Pete Powell, also lettermen of last year, will complete their last season for the Coyotes.

Thomes Beaty, Howard Scott, Edd and Jud Bell, and Martin Hodgkiss are among the letter linemen, who will be back this year.

Chick Holden, Jack Carstarven, Jack West, and Estell Sharp, loom as "finds" from the spring training lists. They will fill gaps caused by failures and graduations last spring, while from a score of hard working youngsters hustling for a position on Bud's squad the remainder of a formidable 1928 Coyote eleven will no doubt be built.

DAILY DOPE

By LARRY DAILEY

THIS COLYUM is occupied today by Mr. Kern Tips, who sports edits for the Houston Chronicle. In his colyum, Sport Lines, Mr. Tips recently wrote at length of the Buffs and Spudders and other things of great interest to devotees of the irrational pastime here. Mr. Tips is highly enthusiastic over the Buffaloes. And very, very loyal. Now loyalty to your ball club is a great thing. But not so good when it permits one to be blind to facts.

♦ ♦ ♦

Finstance, Friend Kern, admits in one paragraph that the Buffs need new blood; in fact, that changes are imperative. Then he says in a later paragraph that the Buffs can beat any club in the Texas league seven days a week. What do you make of that, Watson? But to appreciate the words of infinite wisdom in Tip's colyum one must read it—read it and weep—or laugh. Mr. Tip now broadcasting:

♦ ♦ ♦

PHILOSOPHICALLY, Manager Frank Snyder takes the recent series of reverses to the Houston ball club. Complications. Snyder blames it upon complications. Meaning, no doubt, a general let down in every department of the ball club.

♦ ♦ ♦

THE PITCHERS have been in a pitching slump, the hitters in a hitting slump and the fielders in a fielding slump. The Buffs do not even resemble the club that was burning up the league a scant three weeks ago.

♦ ♦ ♦

Wichita Falls has a veteran ball club, whose chief grace is a consistent hitting lineup and an infield of smooth fielders. Aside from the young Buck Stanton, the Spudder infield is a crafty, wise crew, that atones for any lapses on the far righthand corner of the infield. The Spudders have been playing great ball, but Houston was playing just as good a game until it began to crack.

♦ ♦ ♦

SNYDER has it doped out this way. If Houston can pick up four games between now and the invasion of Wichita Falls, Frank believes that the Buffs will be able to knock the Dixie champs over two in a row. That would put the Buffs right on the heels of Jim Galloway's clubs. And that would just about take the wind out of Wichita's sails.

♦ ♦ ♦

Houston's problem is to acquire some new blood. Before the Buffs slip beyond recall, the holes should be plugged up. At least, this effort could be made. It would be better than standing by while the sails flapped idly, not driving the Buff craft forward. It would be futile to look to the Cards now, for St. Louis has its hands full.

♦ ♦ ♦

The Buffs could have gotten Joe Pate before he slipped out of the Texas league into the American association. Would Pate have helped Houston? Maybe not; maybe so. It would have been a worthwhile effort to have tried him. He could have been acquired cheaply on option.

♦ ♦ ♦

It is highly improbable that anybody on the Houston club will be taken by the Cardinals. Houston has troubles of its own, and aside from Red Worthington, it is doubtful that anyone on the team would be of a great deal of help.

♦ ♦ ♦

Houston has the stuff to stage a brilliant about face and slap the league cock-eyed and win the second half with a sensational windup. Don't tell me it can't be done. Excessive optimism is a silly thing, of course, but only a few observant fans appreciate the caliber of the ball players that comprise the Houston club. There isn't a team in the Texas league that the Buffs cannot beat seven days a week if they are so minded. It is for some one or something to put them in this mind.

Texas and Southern Methodists Loom as Conference Grid Leaders

Aggies Also to Be Formidable; Princeton, Dartmouth, Notre Dame, Illinois Among Nation's Best

By GEORGE KIRKSEY
United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Aug. 21, (UP)—Princeton and Dartmouth in the East, Illinois and Wisconsin in the Big Ten, Nebraska and Missouri in the Big Six, Vanderbilt and Georgia in the South, Texas and Southern Methodist in the Southwest, Stanford and Southern California in the far West, Denver and Colorado Aggies in the Rocky Mountain region, and Notre Dame from the country at large apparently represent the nation's leading football teams by sections for the approaching season.

Although these teams are outstanding because of abundance of experienced material, they by no means dominate their sections and any or all of them may be beaten one or more times.

Of the 14, Princeton apparently has the best chance of going through the season undefeated, principally because of a carefully arranged schedule. The Tigers play Vermont, Virginia, Lehigh, Cornell, Ohio State, Washington and Lee, Yale and Navy in that order. Navy, with all but three of last year's regulars, which came near beating the Army, has the best chance of stopping the Tigers. Princeton was unbeaten last year until the final game of the season when Yale snatched victory from the Tigers in the last few minutes of play, 14 to 6.

Many Star Tiger Backs

Bill Roper has an oversupply of capable backs, including the great Ed Wittmer, Mike Miles, Jack Norman, Bill Scarlett and Phil Strubing. Miles is one of the best defensive backs in the country and Wittmer has no superior at getting that last yard through the line. Scarlett is a sensational passer and broken field runner. Princeton lacked a sweep runner last year, and Scarlett is likely to remedy that weakness this season.

The Princeton line will be built around Captain Chuck Howe, who was one of the best centers in the East last season. Whyte and Barfield who made the varsity as sophomores last year, should give Princeton two of the best tackles on any team. Stinson and Lawler are two veteran ends. Lawler is a star at wrecking interference.

Dartmouth, with its attack built around the dazzling Al Marstens, should go far this season, but prospects for the big green are not as bright as at Princeton because of the uncertainty of the Dartmouth line. If the husky freshmen round out the forward wall, Dartmouth may never be toppled.

The team to beat in the Big Ten this season is Wisconsin. With 17 letter men back, Coach Glenn Thistlethwaite, who raised Northwestern out of the ruck, is on a fair way to bringing Wisconsin back to the fame it knew under John Richards.

Badgers Formidable

Wisconsin lost to Michigan, Minnesota, Iowa and Chicago last year, but Thistlethwaite laid a solid foundation for his system in his first year. The Wisconsin freshmen team was one of the best in the Big Ten, and will contribute a number of star backs and ends to the varsity this season.

Illinois, 1927 Big Ten champion, and Iowa are two of the other promising teams in the Big Ten. Bob Zuppke will have 15 letter men from last year's starless team back, and this year's crop of sophomores promises to produce several regulars. Iowa had a bad season in 1927, but prospects are good this year with 17 veterans returning.

Michigan promises to be the dark horse of the Big Ten, particularly if Fielding H. Yost returns to the helm of the Wolverine squad. With 20 men over six feet tall and 11 weighing over 200 pounds, Michigan will have one of the most powerful squads in the Big Ten.

Missouri and Nebraska appear the most formidable teams in the Big Six, the new conference formed by seceders from the Missouri Valley. Other members are Oklahoma, Iowa State (Ames), Kansas and Kansas Aggies.

Georgia, which beat Yale last year and lost only to Georgia Tech, is expected to turn out another great eleven this season. Harry Mehre, former Notre Dame center, replaces George Woodruff as coach of the Bulldogs this season. Nash and Shiver, Georgia's two great ends, are gone, but Shiver, who will coach the Georgia ends, is expected to find another capable pair from the big squad. Georgia's backfield of Johnson, Hooks, Dudley and McCrary is one of the best quartets in the country.

Texas Has 14 Veterans

Texas, with 14 letter men back, and the Texas Aggies, 1927 Southwestern conference champions, are expected to have strong teams.

On the Pacific coast, Stanford looms as the outstanding team. Pop Warner rates the 1928 Stanford squad as the greatest in his 33 years of coaching. Stanford has scheduled six conference games and will meet Army at New York Dec. 1 in perhaps the biggest intersectional game of the season.

Notre Dame has lost heavily of last year's regulars, but Knute Rockne's annual fall trick is to pull three great teams out of his sleeve or some place else. Johnny Niemec is expected to replace Christy Flanagan. Jack Elder, a track star, may develop into a star back.

Notre Dame and the Army have the two strongest schedules. Notre Dame plays Carnegie Tech, Georgia Tech, Minnesota, Southern California, Army, Navy and Penn State. The Army plays Southern Methodist, Harvard, Yale, Carleton, Nebraska and Stanford.

Young Western Girls Furnish Thrilling Match

By GEORGE KIRKSEY
United Press Staff Correspondent

FOREST HILLS, L. I., Aug. 21, (UP)—Helen Wills, supreme and confident, led the California advance in the second round of the 42nd annual women's championship tennis tournament here today.

With only occasionally brilliant stroking necessary to keep a wide margin of victory, Miss Wills disposed of the veteran Mrs. J. Saunders Taylor of New York in exactly 23 minutes.

But it remained for a tousled haired, barelegged Pacific coast girl to bring into the tournament the thrill of nerves grown tense, the suspense of duelling which turned on a hair's margin.

Marjorie Gladman and Edith Cross, Pacific coast champion, turned out the most interesting contest of an otherwise ordinary day. Miss Cross, the older and steadier of the two western girls, played consistently and efficiently to win, carrying the second set 12-10 after an easy victory in the opener.

It was a well-deserved victory but the glory of the match reflected brilliantly on the 18-year-old Palo Alto girl who couldn't quite summon the final effort to swing the fight her way. Her slight, wiry figure moving in rapid leaps and bounds across the back court, her thin, high pitched voice sounding in gasps or little cries of congratulation as her opponent scores, won the fancy of the crowd.

PENNANT FUND POT AT $3000

Goal of $7500 May Be Attained by Aug. 30

Folks who whoop 'er up when Tut Jenkins gets a home run or when Pete Turgeon makes a brilliant play, but who don't have quiet as much kale loose with which to express their appreciation of the miracle play of the Spudders, are now being given the opportunity to toss their $5 or $10 into the pot.

The pot now has passed $3000, and every effort is being made to put it over the top, to make it reach $7500 before the Spuds come home August 30.

The pennant fund is being raised to reward the team for winning the league title. To win this title, they must finish this half on top of the heap, and then finish ahead of Houston in the playoff series.

Those who wish may fill out the coupon which is printed along with the news story and send their contributions to the chamber of commerce, to Horrace Robbins or any member of the committee, to The Record News or The Times or to W. E. Huff, treasurer, at 711 Scott avenue.

PENNANT FUND

Attached please find $..... to be applied to the Spudder pennant fund, if the Spudders win the Texas league championship. Otherwise, the above amount is to be returned to:

Parelli Beaten By Kala Pasha

Joe Parelli, Chicago Italian wrestler, lost for the first time in several weeks in the local arena before Kala Pasha, the Terrible Turk from Abilene, Tuesday in the main event of Promoter Alec B. Ross' weekly wrestling-boxing card at Athletic park.

The match was fast and furious, going the full three falls under New York commission rules.

Parelli's comic antics, at which the Turk merely laughed, and a good amount of rough-and-tough mixing by both wrestlers kept the spectators in an uproar throughout the contest.

Pasha scored the first fall in 16 minutes with a body slam.

Parelli won the second with a reverse flying headlock after roughing his opponent severely for several minutes before putting him on the mat.

Pasha won the decisive fall in four minutes with a merry-go-round much to the protest of Parelli at Referee Jack O'Brien's decision.

Country Boy Owens opened a fast and furious attack against Howard Jernigan of Electra, scoring a knockout in the third round of a scheduled six-round boxing bout.

Johnny Owens pommeled Lefty Hemmi severely in a four-round go, leading the fight all the way and drawing blood from Hemmi's mouth and nose from the opening round.

Bud Scott won a four-round decision over Little Boy Blue in a four-round paperweight go.

8 British Walker Cup Golfers in U. S. Meet

NEW YORK, Aug. 20. (UP)—Eight members of the British Walker cup team will participate in the national amateur championships at Brae Burn, beginning Sept. 10, H. H. Ramsey, chairman of the United States Golf association, announced today.

The British entrants are Major C. O. Heslet, Ronald H. Hardman, Dr. William Tweddell, T. P. Perkins, W. L. Hope, John Beck, E. F. Storey and T. A. Torrance.

Gene Radios McCormack He'll Arrive Thursday

DUBLIN, Aug. 21. (UP)—Gene Tunney, retired champion of the heavyweights, now aboard the S. S. Mauretania, today radioed John McCormack, noted Irish tenor, that he would arrive in Dublin Thursday. He expressed a desire for a quiet unostentatious entrance.

"I regard my visit in the nature of a pilgrimage to a sacred shrine," he said.

Despite the retired champion's wishes, arrangements have been made here for a big reception.

BASIC FACTS for the BUYER of a NEW AUTOMOBILE

1 Your present car has only one fundamental basis of value; i.e., what the dealer who accepts it in trade can get for it in the used car market.

2 Your present car has seemingly different values because competitive dealers are bidding to sell you a new car.

3 The largest allowance offered is not necessarily the best deal for you. Sometimes it is; sometimes it is not.

4 An excessive allowance may mean that you are paying an excessive price for the new car in comparison with its real value.

5 First judge the merits of the new car in comparison with its price, including all delivery and finance charges. Then weigh any difference in allowance offered on your present car. Remember that you are making a purchase, not a sale.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Aug. 21. (AP)—The strong position of the near months and reports of increasing boll weevil damage were reflected by sharp advances from an early decline in the New York cotton market today. December contracts sold up from 18.40 to 19.01 or 46 points higher but met considerable realizing at this figure and reacted partially, closing at 18.74. The general market closed steady at net advances of 17 to 26 points.

The opening was steady at declines of 8 to 17 points with active months soon showing net losses of 14 to 19 points under selling inspired by relatively easy cables and talk of improved weather conditions through the South. October declined to 18.48 and January to 18.38 under these initial offerings, but the selling was soon absorbed by trade buying and covering. The latter became more active as prices worked upward, and the demand broadened somewhat during the early afternoon when more numerous reports of boll weevil infestation or damage were reaching the trade.

Offerings were comparatively light after the early selling had run its course, and the market worked up to 19.15 for October, or 52 points net higher, while later deliveries showed net advances of 37 to 47 points with March selling at 18.97. Part of the demand on this upturn was attributed to re-buying by recent sellers who were supposed to have been influenced by the unfavorable crop accounts and the demand was supposed to be coming from western and Wall street as well as from local operators and the trade.

The advance, however, attracted considerable realizing, and the market eased off during the last half hour, when there may also have been some selling here for southern account. Closing quotations showed reactions of about 25 to 27 points from the best. The reports of increasing boll weevil infestation were received from various sections of the south including South Carolina, Alabama, Georgia, Mississippi and Texas, and for a time during the early afternoon seemed to be making a considerable impression on sentiment.

The buying of October was supposed to include some transferring of hedges to later deliveries, owing to the small stock of cotton here available for delivery. Exports today 5,878, making 180,238 so far this season. Port receipts 10,806. U. S. port stocks 447,698.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 21. (AP)—Unfavorable weevil reports from various sections of the belt promoted rather heavy buying in the cotton market today and prices at the top showed gains of approximately $3 a bale from the opening lows. Considerable profit taking developed on the advance but was absorbed on moderate setbacks. A flurry of selling in the final trading, however, carried December contracts down from 18.59 to 18.38, the delivery closing at the latter figure, net 30 points higher.

The general market closed steady at net gains of 24 to 31 points.

The market opened easy in sympathy with relatively lower Liverpool cables. Prices soon rallied on covering by shorts probably induced by unfavorable crop news. When the demand was supplied prices eased off 13 to 17 points but rather bullish weevil reports received from Mississippi, Georgia, South Carolina brought on a renewal of trade buying and covering which carried active positions to new high levels for the day. October recovered to 18.55 and December 18.59, or 59 to 62 points above the day's lowest and 51 to 53 points above the previous close.

October closed at 18.33 and December 18.38, 24 to 31 points net higher.

Montgomery-Ward Advances 8 Points to Reach to High Mark

By BROADAN WALL
Universal Service Financial Expert

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—Montgomery Ward was skyrocketed over 8 points and other selected stocks were pushed higher against shorts in the face of 7½ per cent call money today.

The banks called in $30,000,000 more loans but it made no difference to the fearless bull leaders of the moment who went right ahead on the theory they were starting a new bull market. While Montgomery Ward and American International scored the best gains it was the consistent strength of Steel on big turnover that did most to arouse the speculative community to bullishness and get a following to the pool operations. General Motors bears were made to suffer also but the other automobile stocks failed to follow its advance. While news on the rails was more inspiring than that concerning industrials, both rails and oils held comparatively quiet although there was quiet absorption of the better grade stocks in the former group.

Montgomery Ward High

The run-in of shorts in Montgomery Ward came as exclusively forecast in this column. Now that the stock is in new high ground above 200 there will be increasing talk of a splitup of the shares. Probably enough influence will be brought to bear to cause such action in the comparatively near future. Montgomery Ward was selling more than 125 points below its present price when its favorable outlook and the good character of buying was first told of here less than nine months ago. Those who bought at that time have tremendous profits and at the same time they do not like the money situation. Their opinion as to the long pull prospects of Montgomery Ward with steadily increasing income from its growing chain of stores remains unchanged but as to how much the immediate future has been discounted in the stock market is a different matter.

Schulte Is Favorite

Schulte was another group favorite to enjoy activity with reports in flotation concerning the monthly increase in earnings enjoyed since the first of the year. American Radiator jumped close to 3 points as stock dividend declaration is likely to be made next month. Johns Manville climbed higher also, as it was learned that acquisition of control of American Encaustic is planned. The group in Armour renewed operations in the general enthusiasm with word from Chicago indicating that August results will prove even better than the improved showing of previous months. Loft added a point to its gain coincident with announcement that new interests would go on the board at the next meeting.

MIDWESTERN REVIEW

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 21. (AP)—(U. S. D. A.)—Fed steers and yearlings ruled fairly active, fat lambs covered additional declines of around 25 cents, mature classes were relatively scarce at steady to weak prices. Choice native lambs scored $14.40 at Chicago for the day's top and best westerns stopped at $14.25. Total receipts were around 58,750 against 62,732 last Tuesday and 67,976 a year ago.

A fairly active trade featured the hog market and prices were steady to 15 cents higher than Monday's level. Shippers were liberal buyers of the light and medium weight offerings, selected lots reached $12.70 at both Chicago and St. Louis for the days' top. Offerings at the 11 markets totaled 66,200 against 66,359 a week ago and 77,177 a year ago.

Fed steers and yearlings ruled rather uneven. Better grades suitable for shipping were fully steady with some strength displayed at Chicago and Omaha while other grass fed offerings were unevenly weak to a quarter lower. Choice 1,084 pounds scored $17 at Chicago and 998 pound mixed yearlings at $16.50 made a new top for the year at Kansas City for their class. Straight grassers sold from $9.35-$12.00; veal prices were firm, stockers and feeders cleared at generally steady levels with $11-13.50 taking the bulk of the better grades.

Total arrivals around the circuit were 42,700, a decrease of 3,000 from last Tuesday, and 8,000 less than the same day a year ago.

CHICAGO, Aug. 21. (AP)—Hogs—Receipts 17,000; steady; top $12.70; butchers $11.60@12.40; packing sows $10.60@11.60; pigs $10.50@12.00.

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW

CHICAGO, Aug. 21. (US)—An early rally in wheat today due to reports of frost in Canada fizzled out before the close of the session when it was learned that the crop incurred no damage. Prices declined faster than they had bulged and the market closed 1⅛c lower.

Corn finished ⅝c to 2⅛c down, scattered selling weakening all the futures despite an early upturn in the September. Oats closed ¼c to ⅜c lower and rye was ¼c higher to 1⅝c lower.

All of the principal world wheat markets displayed a nervous tone. The trend of prices in Liverpool and Winnipeg was much the same as in the local market, with action based on the same factor. Liverpool closed ¼c lower and Winnipeg ⅝c to 1c off.

The demand for cash wheat was fairly active, with a better milling inquiry noticeable. The bases was unchanged to 1c lower and prices were ½c lower to ½c higher.

Short covering in September corn was still on in the early trade and the price of that future was fractionally higher. Later it declined sharply under scattered selling pressure. Favorable weather conditions over the belt brought wight to bear on the deferred deliveries and they ruled weak and lower.

Trade in corn was of smaller proportions today. As in wheat, there is a decidedly nervous tone to the market and the trade appears content to assume a trading position. Any bullish advices dealing with cash grain are, of course, quickly reflected in the September, but sharp upturns in this future are more or less short lived as the excellent crop conditions drag on the deferred deliveries.

There was a moderate demand for cash corn, with most of the inquiry coming from the feeding interests. The basis was unchanged and prices were steady to 1c down. Local shipping sales aggregated 46,000 bushels and a total of 5,000 bushels was sold to go to store.

NEW CARRIER 36 MILES LONG

Transportation Unit to Tap New Field

The Sinclair Pipeline company has secured right of way and made tentative plans to construct a new pipeline at an early date into the southeast Wilbarger field.

The new line when finished will consist of approximately 36 miles in length, and will traverse from the Sinclair main line at Burkburnett in a southwesterly direction with its terminal and gathering lines in the Greybeck pool in Wilbarger county. The pipe to be used in the construction of the line will be of six inch with smaller sizes in the laterals.

The completion of the Sinclair pipeline will make a total of four carriers in the county, the others being the Texas Pipeline, Humble Pipeline and Waggoner Refining line. At present the Sinclair company has a line in the south Vernon pool which may later be connected with the new project. The addition to this line will be a factor in relieving the present congested condition in the county brought about by the enormous daily production on the Waggoner pasture which is mounting daily, and will give some relief to the overtaxed condition of the other pipelines.

Crude Production Up 55,300 Barrels

NEW YORK, Aug. 21. (AP)—Daily average gross crude oil production in United States increased 55,300 barrels for the week ended August 18, totaling 2,444,500 barrels, says the weekly summary of the American Petroleum institute. Daily average production east of California was 1,809,100 barrels, an increase of 56,600 barrels.

Missouri Town Agog After Oil Discovery

ROCKPORT, Mo., Aug. 21. (UP) With the finding of oil bearing sand on the William Bischof farm, residents of Rockport today were engulfed in a wave of excitement.

It was the first well in this section and the oil fever was rapidly taking hold of farmers and townspeople alike.

Oil sand was reached at a depth of 1460 feet and it gave indications of doing 10 barrels a day. The well will be shot later this week.

The Missouri Independent Oil and Gas company controls the property on which the well is located.

Uncertainty of Title Causes Oil Land Suit

DENVER, Colo., Aug. 21. (UP)—Doubt of title to 3300 acres of valuable oil land in Moffatt county, Colo., is the basis for a suit filed in district court here by the Iles Investment company of Tulsa, Okla., and the Yaarg Producing and Refining corporation, Denver.

Title to the property became in doubt when drilling rights and purchase of the land became involved.

MARKET REVIEW

R. O. Harvey & Co., rooms 630-34 Harvey-Snider building, received the following Tuesday on cotton, grain and stocks from their New York and Chicago connections:

Cotton

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—The strength of October has unsettled near shorts, which is causing active covering and some further buying for both trade and speculative accounts. Bearish sentiment is less confident than for some time past and while the market's trend depends largely on weather conditions until the extent of deterioration is known, the market is not likely to decline materially and we believe would advance rapidly on any further advance damage reports.

Stocks

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—Money renewed at 7 per cent and then the banks withdrew about $15,000,000, which apparently absorbed surplus offerings and a 7½ per cent rate resulted. The market completely ignored stiff money and on an increased turnover the leading industrials, rails and public utilities gained further ground. One of the most stimulating market factors was the buying which came into the seasoned rails like Atchison, Baltimore & Ohio and New York Central. Bullish interests argued that this development meant the confirmation of the advance in the industrials and contended as a result that the general upward trend had not been completed and that the bull movement was still with us in all its vigor. Several new highs were registered in the industrial section. It did appear in the last hour as if the fast pace of the market was attracting some profit taking.

Grain

CHICAGO, Aug. 21.—Wheat market was unsettled and while fractionally lower early, there was a marked letup in hedging pressure and later short covering and commission house buying brought about an upturn of around 1½ from the inside figures of the day with offerings light on the way up. Selling against offers checked the bulge and a good reaction from the top followed. Strength in Winnipeg, which averaged higher on short covering and buying by exporters had some effect here. A little frost was reported at several points in Canada, but there were no claims of damage as harvesting is under way and the forecast was for warmer weather. Export demand was fair with sales of 400 to 500 bushels in all positions.

September corn showed a rather heavy undertone and while fractionally higher early, declined over 3 cents from the early top, when scattered selling appeared, which found support less aggressive than of late. New crop months were easier with December off around one cent from yesterday's finish and sold within about one cent of the lowest figure of the season as the result of further rains over the belt. Buying against bids checked the break. Forecast was for generally fair weather, with cooler tonight and somewhat warmer in the west on Wednesday. Cash basis in the sample market was slightly firmer.

Nearby deliveries of oats sold at new lows on the crop, due to scattered hedging pressure and liquidation.

Rye was influenced largely by the action of wheat. A little export business was put through at the seaboard.

New Records of Production And Manufacture Shown in Oil Report

Bureau of Mines Statistics Reveal Supply Gains More Than Use; Wildcatting in Slump

Startling revelations are contained in the final figures pertaining to the petroleum industry as compiled by the bureau of mines, department of commerce, for 1927 and just received in Wichita Falls.

This set of statistics, probably the most comprehensive obtainable, goes into detailed analysis of activity of every phase of the producing and refining departments of the business, and although not obtainable until late in 1928, contains "news" regarding the national oil situation even at this time.

Among other things, the report sets out that the total production in the last year was 901,129,000 barrels, a new record; that supply of all oils increased 14 per cent while demand was increasing only 4.1 per cent; that refineries set a new record in their output of oil and that production of natural gasoline in 1927 increased nearly 20 per cent.

The most spectacular pool of the year is the Yates field in Pecos and Crockett counties, Texas, the report sets out and continues:

"The production of crude petroleum (oil brought to the surface) in the United States during 1927 amounted to 901,129,000 barrels, by far a new record. Of this total, 897,343,000 barrels represents oil transported from producing properties, 2,154,000 barrels represents oil used as fuel on the leases on which produced, and 1,632,000 barrels represents the net gain in producers' stocks (stocks at wells) during the year. The 1927 total represents an increase over the production in 1926 of 130,255,000 barrels, or 17 per cent. Of the total production 788,794,000 barrels, or 88 per cent was classed as light oil. This indicates an increase over 1926 in the proportion of light oil, which resulted mainly from the heavy output of high gravity oil at Seminole as contrasted with a continued decline at Smackover, a heavy oil field, and to the shutting-in of many wells in the heavy oil fields of California.

Seminole's Record

"The domestic petroleum situation in 1927 was characterized chiefly by the record output of crude petroleum which resulted mainly from the exceptional productivity of the now well-known Seminole district. This area produced approximately 136,000,000 barrels of crude petroleum in 1927 as compared with 11,000,000 barrels in 1926, which unusual increase completely overshadowed the declines in output of the older fields of the state, so that the production of Oklahoma increased nearly 100,000,000 barrels over 1926. This increase was sufficient to raise that state to the position of the leading producing state for the first time since 1922. California, despite increased output, dropped from first to second place. Production in Texas was more than 50,000,000 barrels greater than in 1926 and the state not only easily retained third place but at the close of the year threatened to pass both California and Oklahoma. Output in both Arkansas and Kansas fell off in 1927 but the decrease of the latter was much less, which enabled it to displace the former in fourth place.

"The leading field from the standpoint of production and general interest was the Seminole district of Oklahoma, upon which most of the responsibility for the demoralized crude market of 1927 is placed. The area of next greatest importance was West Texas, in which Crane, Upton, Pecos and Winkler are the most important producing counties. The most spectacular pool from the standpoint of large initial production at shallow depths was the Yates pool in Pecos and Crockett counties, although, due to restrictive agreements, the output of this field was kept at a relatively low level.

"The record-breaking output of crude petroleum depressed prices which, in turn, helped to reduce development work and wildcatting to a low level. The number of completions fell off materially in 1927 as compared with 1926 and fewer new fields were discovered than for several years.

Stocks of Crude

"The situation as regards crude stocks east of California underwent a complete change in 1927 as compared with 1926. During the latter year stocks of crude were materially reduced but, once the development at Seminole was well under way in the early part of 1927, stocks rapidly increased. The increase in total crude stocks east of California was slightly over 75,000,000 barrels, the major portion of which was in tank-farm stocks in the Mid-Continent field. In California the situation as to crude stocks constituted one of the bright spots of the year. Stocks of light or refinable crude in that state dropped off over 10,000,000 barrels, or more than 33 1-3 per cent. Stocks of heavy crude and fuel oil in California increased over 5,000,000 barrels, a figure which would have been considerably higher except for the cooperation shown by the large companies in shutting in some of their heavy oil wells.

"Imports of crude petroleum registered a slight decline from 1926, with the decrease in imports of Mexican oil being nearly compensated by increased receipts of oil from Venezuela and Colombia. Exports of crude petroleum in 1927 showed no material change over the previous year. With an abundance of crude petroleum available in the Mid-Continent and in Venezuela, the demand for California crude by the eastern refineries was reduced, with the result that domestic shipments of crude eastward through the Panama canal again showed a decrease.

24,143 Wells Competed

"A total of 24,143 well were completed in 1927 as compared with 29,319 in 1926. Of the 1927 completions 14,442, or 60 per cent, were finished as oil wells, 2,491 or 10 per cent, were gas wells and 7,210 or 30 per cent, were dry holes. On Dec. 31 there were 323,300 producing wells in the United States, a gain or 4,700 over the preceding year. Since, as noted above, 14,442 oil wells were completed in 1927, there must have been, roughly, 10,000 wells abandoned during the year. The exceptionally high figure resulted chiefly from the depression of crude prices which made it impossible to operate many of the small wells at a profit.

"The extreme decline in prices also had a material effect on total value at wells for, in spite of the fact that the total quantity produced in 1927 was 17 per cent higher than in 1926, the total value was 19 per cent lower. The total value in 1927 was $1,172,830,000, an average of $1.30 per barrel. This represents a decline in the average value of $0.58, or 31 per cent, from 1926.

The only state to show an increase in the average value per barrel in 1927 was Montana, where the average rose from $1.32 in 1926 to $1.40 in 1927. Singularly enough, Montana was the only state in 1926 that showed a decrease in average value from 1925, the contrast of which was due to the abrupt production decline at Kevin-Sunburst, the principal oil field of the state.

Supply and Demand

"The total new supply of all oils, domestic production plus imports, amounted to 1,014,084,000 barrels, as compared with 886,611,000 barrels in 1926, an increase of 14 per cent. On the other hand, total demand and domestic demand were only 4.1 and 3.6 per cent higher, respectively. The daily average domestic demand for all oils was 2,213,000 barrels, or 369,000 barrels below the daily average domestic production of crude petroleum, natural gasoline, and benzoil. The overabundance of oil in 1927 is further illustrated by an analysis of total stocks of all oils, which shows an increase of 65,453,000 barrels in 1927 as compared with a decrease of 24,764,000 barrels in 1926. Stocks of refined oils, particularly gasoline, were drawn on in 1927 but this was completely nullified by the increase in crude stocks of approximately 70,000,000 barrels. The grand total stocks of all oils on Dec. 31, 1927, amounted to 586,589,000 barrels which, based on the daily average total demand of 1927, represents 226 days' supply.

Refined Products

"Another material increase in annual throughput at refineries in the United States was recorded in 1927, when a total of 828,835,000 barrels of crude petroleum was run to stills. Of this amount 778,729,000 barrels was domestic crude petroleum and 50,106,000 barrels was foreign crude petroleum, representing increases of 8 and 11 per cent, respectively, over the 1926 totals. Runs to stills showed a more or less steady increase throughout the year, regardless of season, and were highest in November, when the daily average throughput of domestic and foreign crude petroleum was 2,383,000 barrels. Of the eight major refining districts of the country only two, Louisiana-Arkansas and Rocky Mountain, showed decreased runs to stills in 1927 as compared with 1926.

"The production of motor fuel in the United States in 1927 amounted to 14,030,058,000 gallons, or 334,049,000 barrels. Of this amount 824,000 barrels represents natural gasoline sold direct to jobbers, and 2,562,000 barrels represents benzoil obtained from by-product coke and blended with motor fuel. Deducting these items, which amount to slightly over 1 per cent of the total, leaves 330,435,000 barrels of 'gasoline' as manufactured at refineries. The percentage yield of gasoline from crude run to stills continued to rise and for 1927 amounted to 39.9 per cent as compared with 38.5 per cent in 1926. This increase was undoubtedly due, in the main, to a fairly widespread use of high-grade Seminole crude which more than compensated for a decline in the percentage of gasoline recovered by cracking. Texas was the leading gasoline producing district, with an output of 71,276,000 barrels, or 22 per cent of the total, followed by California with a production of 60,115,000 barrels, or 18 per cent of the total. Gasoline production was at its peak in November, when the daily average was 954,900 barrels.

Gasoline Use Better

"The upward trend of gasoline consumption was continued in 1927, when the daily average indicated domestic demand amounted to 816,000 barrels. This compares with a daily average of 717,000 barrels in 1926, or an increase of 14 per cent. As might be expected, July and August were the peak months for gasoline consumption, which during those months ran considerably in excess of production.

"The record of gasoline stocks in 1927 supplied one of the most interesting phases of the industry. Total stocks on hand during the first six months of the year were considerably in excess of those for the same months of 1926 but in general, the reverse was true for the last half of the year. Stocks on hand at the end of 1927 amounted to 32,338,000 barrels as compared with 39,023,000 barrels for the year previous. The statistical strength of gasoline in 1927 from the standpoint of stocks is perhaps best illustrated by an analysis of days' supply. Record consumption, combined with curtailed cracking, resulted in a reduction of days' supply from the high point of 67 for Jan. 31, 1927, to 28, for Sept. 30, 1927. The latter was the lowest point since October, 1921.

"Of the total gasoline output in 1927, 197,047,000 barrels, or 59.6 per cent was produced by straight-run methods, 101,226,000 barrels, or 30.7 per cent, by cracking, and 32,162,000 barrels, or 9.7 per cent, resulted from the use of natural gasoline. Compared with 1926, this indicates a decrease in the percentage obtained from cracking and an increase in each of the other methods. Although many cracking plants were idle during part of 1927, this method of manufacturing gasoline became more firmly entrenched as evidenced by the great number of new installations made.

"A further decline in the percentage yield of kerosene was recorded in 1927, when the total production was equivalent to only 6.8 per cent of the crude run to stills as against 7.9 per cent in 1926. The total output in 1927 was 56,113,000 barrels as compared with 61,768,000 barrels in 1926, a decrease of 9 per cent. The total indicated domestic demand for kerosene in 1927 amounted to 37,491,000 barrels, a slight drop from the previous year. As might be expected, the leading months for kerosene consumption were January and December. In common with gasoline, kerosene stocks were reduced materially during the year, declining from 8,575,000 barrels on hand, Dec. 31, 1926, to 7,715,000 barrels at the end of 1927.

Other Products

"The recovery of gas oil and fuel oil, the most important commodity, or class of commodities, from point of volume, was 47.4 per cent of the total crude runs as compared with 46.9 per cent in 1926. This was the first year since 1924 that the percentage recovery of gas oil and fuel oil showed an increase, which undoubtedly resulted from the slowing down in cracking activity.

"The trend in the statistics of lubricants was reversed in 1927, when this product, like kerosene, suffered losses in both output and indicated domestic demand. The percentage yield fell from 4.1 per cent for 1926 to a new low of 3.8 per cent in 1927.

"The total output of wax dropped off from the record figure of 1926 to slightly below the production of 1925.

"The production and consumption of both coke and asphalt in 1927 showed a substantial increase over 1926.

"According to monthly reports, the production of natural gasoline in 1927 amounted to 1,623,600,000 gallons, an increase over 1926 of nearly 20 per cent. The final figure, obtained by a complete annual canvass of all plants, will doubtless approximate 1,640,000,000 gallons. Oklahoma, Texas and California all registered large increases in output over 1926, but production in the eastern states fell off slightly. The use of natural gasoline by refiners for blending purposes showed a material increase, the low price which prevailed being particularly alluring, but stocks showed a considerable gain in rising from 19,100,000 gallons the first of the year to 30,800,000 gallons on December 31, 1927. Blending at the plants showed a moderate gain over 1926, but this phase of the industry remained relatively unimportant compared with the use of natural gasoline by refiners.

FAIN-M'GAHA-X LEASE

Fain-McGaha No. X-1 W. T. Waggoner, located in S. P. R. R. survey, No. 1, block 4, Wilbarger county, cored into a sand showing some oil at 1924-29 feet but will drill ahead to the original contract depth.

BRIDWELL-HEYDRICK-BURNETT

Bridwell and Heydrick are moving in to put down a wildcat test in the center of the northwest quarter of section 3, H. T. B. R. R. survey, abstract 132, Burnett land, east of the Gulf Production company's Melton lease in southwest Wichita county. The test is contracted for a 2500-foot hole.

CARSON COUNTY GASSER

The Empire Gas and Fuel company has completed its No. 1 E. W. Sheridan well in section 243, block B-2, H. & G. N. survey, Carson county, making 25,000,000 feet of gas from the gas sand at 2590-2832 feet.

RIO BRAVO DRYO

John O'Neil has abandoned his No. 29 try on his Rio Bravo lease in section 31, block 5, H. & T. C. R. R. survey, south Electra pool, as a dry hole at a total depth of 1540 feet. A small show of oil was tested in a sand at 1540-42 feet.

DOWN IN OLD GERALDINE

Johnson and Frazer placed their No. B-9 L. F. Wilson in Geraldine townsite in Archer county on the pump and is producing 125 barrels from the sand at 1560-68 feet.

NORTHEAST YOUNG

J. W. Ginsberg No. 1 J. L. Bratcher, located in section 1991, T. E. L. survey, north Young county, is a dry hole at a total depth of 610 feet, having missed the usual 550 foot pay.

PRAIRIE—YOUNG COUNTY

Picking up the sand at 977 feet and drilling to 996 feet, the Prairie Oil and Gas company No. 1 R. Campbell in section 1370, north Young county, is producing at the rate of 30 barrels per day.

MISSED PAY FORMATION

Willis and Gatewood No. 1, R. R. Gray, located in section 625, T. E. L. survey, northeast Young county, was completed as a dry hole at a depth of 750 feet.

STUMP AND OTHERS

Stump and associates have spudded in and down 150 feet on their No. 1 Lochridge test located 5353 feet north and 150 feet east of the southwest corner of Louise Netherly survey, in the field southwest of Iowa Park. The well is to be a 1875 foot test.

Probe of Gasoline Hike Is Planned

Special to The Record News

AUSTIN, Aug. 21.—Plans of conducting the state-wide investigation into the recent advance in the price of gasoline in Texas are not being disclosed by the attorney general's department. It is known however, that R. V. Nichols, chief law enforcement officer of the department, has gone to Kingsville to check up on the inheritance tax due the state by the King estate, and while in that section he plans to proceed to Corpus Christi, where he will investigate the gasoline situation.

First Assistant Attorney General Galloway Calhoun, who has been assigned by Atty. Gen. Claude Pollard to make the investigation, has been unable to leave Austin for the present because of the absence from the city of Pollard. Calhoun stated, however, that on the return of Pollard, he plans to go to Houston and other points in the state to take depositions from oil companies and filling stations.

SMITH SPIKES DRIVE RUMORS

Candidate Not to Begin Campaign in Oregon

ALBANY, Aug. 21. (AP)—Governor Smith today spiked reports that he planned to make about 20 set speeches during his campaign for the presidency and that he intended to launch his drive sometime in September with a trip across the continent for an initial address in Oregon.

"I don't know a thing about it," he told newspapermen at his daily conference just before leaving his office at the capitol to test out the radio on the east steps where he will deliver his acceptance speech tomorrow evening.

Asked if he had observed any reaction to his reply to William Allen White's attack against his record as an assemblyman, the governor said:

"None, except what came in this morning, and I haven't seen them yet."

He said he thought his answer "would close up the whole matter."

Shortly afterward the governor gave the radio a trial, and called for his automobile to take him across the border into Massachusetts where he planned some golf at Stockbridge with Norman H. Davis, under secretary of state and assistant secretary of the treasury in the Wilson cabinet.

Vernon Board Seeks Higher School Levy

Special to The Record News

VERNON, Texas, Aug. 21.—The Vernon board of education in session Monday unanimously voted to formally request the city commission to increase the school tax levy 25 cents on the $100 valuation. This will make the school levy total $1, the new limit set in the charter amendments approved at the special election last week.

Burglar's Victim Dies

TEXARKANA, Texas, Aug. 21 (INS)—Harry R. Kent, 50, who was struck down by a blow on the head early Monday morning by a burglar whom he interrupted while looting the Helms grocery store here, died today of his injuries without regaining consciousness. Three negro men and a negro woman are being detained as suspects in the case.

RADIO PLANT MOST MODERN

Local Station Step Ahead In Equipment

Quality and power will rule the establishment and operation of Wichita Falls' new 1000 watt, $100,000 radio station KGKO which is soon to open atop the Perkins-Snider building, it was learned Tuesday from J. W. Gilliam, business manager.

No station in the entire southwest will have as modern equipment as this station will have, for there have been many new patents and principles discovered and put into practice in radio since the opening of many of Texas' other stations. The equipment is now being assembled in Dallas, Mr. Gilliam said.

Beams are Bolted

Great, iron "I" beams, heavy enough to hold a half dozen automobiles, have been bolted and reinforced on the roof in the new radio generator and operator's room to hold the ton or so of generators which will provide the power.

Other work, which the public will probably never see, is being done to make the station basically good.

The studios and broadcasting rooms on the sixth floor of the Perkins-Snider building are rapidly nearing completion. They are being fitted in the most modern and approved style, double insulated with a new type insulation, and protected in every way from the entrance of sound to the broadcasting chamber.

A double plate glass window with a six-inch space between the glasses, is being installed clear across the partition between the artists' broadcasting room and the spectators' room. This is a further precaution to avoid the entrance of foreign sounds during the broadcasting.

A new departure, now adopted by several of the largest stations in New York and Chicago, in the way of a solo chamber for the announcer, semi-divided from the broadcasting chamber, is also being arranged.

Art Henson, supervising radio engineer of station WFAA of Dallas, is in charge of the station's construction and has planned the plant along the lines approved by the most modern science and operation.

New Type Tubes

Equipment more modern, costly and efficient than that of many of the present day stations is being assembled for the National Life Insurance company station, as KGKO will be known. This is demonstrated in the great power tubes which will be used. They are of a type now being placed in several of the world's biggest stations, and which have been developed in recent months.

Mr. Henson, in speaking of the station here and its equipment, said the other day that it is one of the finest in the entire southwest.

The power, while of 1000 watt capacity, will be limited to 500 watts in all broadcasting, Mr. Gilliam said. While there are stations broadcasting on a heavier power than 500 watts, this power is well above the average power of radio stations in the United States and Canada today, he said.

Council Meets Today On Coming Election

The Monday night meeting of the city council, which was adjourned to reopen at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning to complete unfinished business, will meet in the council chambers, it was announced Tuesday. At this session it is planned to take action along the lines suggested Saturday by a group of citizens who met in the auditorium to make clearer the coming bond election.

HUNTER MAKES BOND

Paul Hunter made a $500 bond granted him in a hearing before J. A. Lantz, United States commissioner, on charges of possession and transportation of whisky on August 19.

Complaint against Hunter was filed by F. E. Summers, city officer, and S. O. Hamm, state highway officer.

MARRS ANSWERS NICHOLSON

In reply to Judge Nicholson's statement in Tuesday's papers, will say that I too expect to support the nominees of my party—the Democratic party—from constable to president, just as he is doing, and just as I told him I would do before the first primary. Yet, somebody has spread the "rumor" as he calls it, all over the county that I would not support the Democratic ticket.

I have been a life-long Democrat, and the only time in my life when I failed to support every nominee of the Democratic ticket from constable to president, was four years ago when I had to choose between Jim and Ma Ferguson on the one side and my life long friend and teacher, Geo. C. Butte on the other. There being no party issue involved, and desiring to honor my friend, I voted for Butte, and he carried Wichita county. In all other respects, I voted the straight Democratic ticket clear through to the Hon. John W. Davis for president.

I find that for one reason or another, many good Democrats have at some time in life scratched one or more names on the ticket, and some have even left the party entirely for a time. "Let him who is without sin cast the first stone." Only today some former Jack county friends of Judge Nicholson have told me that the judge was for some time a staunch "Populist" in Jack county, and fought the Democratic party during its darkest days, and was one or more times elected County Judge of Jack county on the "Populist" ticket. However, I am glad that he has since repented and come back into the Democratic fold. He has served one term as a Democrat and says he is proud of it.

But the real issues in this race for county judge are the taxing system and efficiency in office. In the first primary I fought for lower taxes and economical administration of county affairs, and I received a lead over Judge Nicholson of 1345, lacking only 290 of a majority over both of my opponents. Give me another such vote of confidence next Saturday and I will be your next County Judge.

Respectfully,
JOHN P. MARRS

Sooner Oil Men Talk Proration

State's Production May Be Held to 700,000 Bbls.

TULSA, Okla., Aug. 21. (AP)—Oklahoma oil fields would be restricted to 700,000 barrels a day, under a state-wide restriction program similar to the Winkler-Pecos potential proration plan now in effect in Texas, by a policy that Seminole field operators disqussed here today.

Operators decided to ask the state corporation commission to adopt the plan.

The only exception to the state-wide restriction program affecting all wells making over 100 barrels a day was made in the Little River area, now controlled by an order limiting its production to 125,000 barrels a day from Sept. 10 to Nov. 1.

The St. Louis pool in Pottawatomie county and the deep Roxana pool of Logan county would be affected.

Under the proposed plan, the wells would be allowed to flow wide open one day each month and the potential production for the following month so determined.

Of the 65 Seminole operators, only 20 were present and 11 voted for the plan. Seven registered as not voting and two voted "no."

Thomas B. Slick, independent operator, and the Sands Petroleum company opposed the plan.

Fairtrace Approves Petrolia's Water Plans

Petrolia's general plan for its new water system and the contract with Fountain and Nelson of Fort Worth to install it were checked over Tuesday night by George D. Fairtrace, city manager of Wichita Falls, and approved in a spirit of friendly cooperation with the neighboring city.

Mr. Fairtrace's inspection of the contract was requested by Mayor W. O. Beal of Petrolia, owing to Mr. Fairtrace's experience as an engineer.

After studying the contract, Mr. Fairtrace said the plan for the system was one which should reduce the Petrolia fire key rate to about 25 or 30 cents.

The bonds for the new system have already been voted in the sum of $33,000. The plant will serve 150 homes and will have a pumping capacity of 70 gallons a minute. It includes an elevated tank 100 feet in the air with a capacity of 60,000 gallons.

Mayor Asked to Name Princess for Graham Fair

Mayor J. W. Akin was asked by the directors of the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce Tuesday noon to name a Wichita Falls princess to the pageant of the Graham city fair September 19.

The directors also voted to hold a civic celebration here September 27 in honor of the 46th birthday of the city. Reports on traffic and industrial matters were made at the meeting by J. W. Chatham, traffic and industrial commissioner, and Hubert Harrison, manager, was requested to assist the South Plains area in road development.

ROGERS TO AID FRED STONE

Humorist to Take Role Of Injured Actor

NEW YORK, Aug. 21. (UP)—Will Rogers, cowboy humorist, will do a good turn for his friend Fred Stone by stepping into the latter's stage role until Stone recovers from his recent airplane crash, it was reported here tonight.

Rogers, who is said to have cancelled a movie contract to aid Stone, will appear in the new comedy scheduled to open about Oct. 1.

According to reports, the humorist offered to do anything possible to help Stone and recently sent a telegram to the injured musical comedy star offering to "go into the show with Dorothy (Stone's daughter) and plug along until you are able to rejoin."

"Dorothy can keep telling me how you play the part," Rogers explained.

"I don't want any billing and Dorothy, of course, would be the star. Anything you say goes with me."

Rogers is expected here Sept. 10.

TULSA-WICHITA AIRLINE URGED

Government Inspector To Recommend Extension

A recommendation will be made by R. B. Quick, Tulsa, Okla., government aircraft inspector of the department of commerce, to Paul R. Braniff, operator of several airplanes out of Tulsa, to consider the possibility of eventually extending his lines here.

This announcement was made Tuesday night by Mr. Quick at the Kemp hotel, when he declared that the new municipal airport is a big asset to the city, and that it will pay for itself in business returns and in other ways in a year.

"Every city that expects to maintain its place among cities must connect with other cities by air in order to stay in business. The department of commerce is anxious that Wichita Falls, with the excellent airfield already established, understand the brilliant possibilities the air holds for the development of the city and also understand that the department is willing and ready to assist in any way possible," Mr. Quick said.

IF I WERE MAYOR AKIN . . .

I'd set aside next Friday for a half holiday, that all the people of Wichita Falls might take advantage of the opportunity to see "The Lights of New York" at the Strand Theater.

People are entitled to an opportunity to see this picture, because it has the distinction of being the first movie in which all the characters speak their parts. And the first ALL TALKING PICTURE is certainly an event in the realm of screen entertainment, an event of the sort that you and your children will take pride in telling your grandchildren you participated in.

"The Lights of New York" and an all talking film is an epoch in screen history. That the citizens of Wichita Falls might have the distinction of sharing in this modern miracle, would be my reason for proclaiming a half holiday if I were Mayor Akin.

THAT'S WHAT I'D DO IF I WERE MAYOR AKIN . . .

Crain Puts Pool Hall Question Up to Voters

Pool halls are operating in violation of law in every town in the county. The present county attorney is in sympathy with them and has refused to make any effort to close them. I made this statement at Iowa Park Aug. 11, and Mr. Somerville's reply was that I made no effort to close them when I was assistant district attorney. It has been three and a half years since I resigned as assistant district attorney and at that time there was not a pool hall in Wichita county. They have all opened within the last two years, and Mr. Somerville knew this at the time that he made that statement.

A few months ago after the county attorney had refused to take complaints against the pool hall operators, a grand jury indicted them. As soon as they were indicted they immediately came in and pleaded guilty and the county attorney recommended a minimum fine and allowed them to continue to operate, when under the law he could have closed every one of them by injunction in less than a week, but, in spite of the fact that they all pleaded guilty and admitted that they were violating the law, the county attorney announced through the press that he doubted if they were violating the law, and that he was going to Austin to ask the advice of the attorney general. He did go to Austin and returned and remained as silent as a tomb.

The trouble was that the county attorney had acted as attorney for some of the pool halls and assisted in securing their charter, which was the subterfuge under which they operated. He represented a bunch of negroes who organized a "club" and under the guise of running the club are now operating a pool hall on Park street.

Wednesday, Aug. 8, I made a speech at Bellevue park in which I charged that pool halls were being allowed to operate in violation of the law, and stated that if elected I would close them. The next morning Mr. J. J. Blackstone, fire chief of Burkburnett, came to see the county attorney about securing an injunction against T. A. Freeman who was about to open a pool hall within 20 feet of Mr. Blackstone's private residence. The county attorney had not had an opportunity to consult with his political advisers and told Mr. Blackstone to come back later. When Mr. Blackstone returned he prepared the petition for injunction and had Mr. Blackstone sign it. The county attorney was very careful not to sign the petition himself. He was afraid the pool halls might think he was against them. As soon as the petition was presented to the court he granted a temporary injunction and set the case for hearing for Aug. 11. The day the injunction was granted Freeman went to Mr. Blackstone and agreed to move to another part of town if he would dismiss the suit. When the case came on for hearing it was postponed on motion of the county attorney until September. The election will be over then, and if Wayne Somerville is re-elected it will be an endorsement of the pool halls and Mr. Freeman will open his place for business.

The pool hall situation is much worse in Wichita county now than it was when they could be operated legally, for at that time minors were not allowed to enter them. Now they are filled with young boys under 21 years of age. They are the hang-out places for the rough element; and every pool hall operator in the county is "electioneering" for Mr. Somerville, for they know if he is defeated they will be compelled to close.

I mention the pool hall situation particularly for it is typical of the county attorney's attitude toward the enforcement of all criminal laws. Only 60 convictions in contested cases in three years and four months. But what can you expect of a county attorney who swears that he is a citizen and resident of Sulphur, Okla?

If I am elected county attorney I will close every pool hall in the county in less than 30 days, or resign and give the office back to the people.
