George. All cotton on the George place was hailed out and the wheat damage was unknown.

South of Hart, Cleve McLain received five inches of rain, lot of hail about pea size to large marble size. It damaged the wheat, but to what extent, it will not show until after. There is no cotton left, and McLain said he thought the feed and corn might make it.

North of the town, Wade Mills received no hail and only about 1.3 inches of rainfall.

Total official rainfall for the area according to the government rain gauge for the past five months is 3.73, according to Aubrey Myers.
