GOP In Rules Quabble

The SDN Column

Some recent visitors to the Western Texas College campus thought vandals had been at work, but those places where strips of stucco have been chipped off buildings are merely awaiting planned repairs.

Stucco exterior walls nearly always are highly susceptible to cracking and some of the more pronounced fissures at WTC are getting attention this spring as contractors near completion of their work on the campus.

The WTC plant usually draws favorable comment from visitors and it has caught the eyes of state politicians who have been frequent visitors there during the primary campaigns. Apparently it made quite an impression on Frances (Sissy) Farenthold, who was on the campus a few days ago. Some people at Big Spring, where she visited after touring WTC, said Mrs. Farenthold told them it was a mistake to build such a nice college plant in a little place like Snyder. She said the money should have been spent in a larger town.

Our reply to this is that the larger towns have their colleges, and those who have junior colleges in part cular built them in the manner that the local peopl> wanted them. In other words, they had their chances.

The candidates are entering that nerve-racking last week of campaigning before the primary elections. Both parties will have primaries in Scurry County, although the Republicans are not fielding a slate of local candidates.

Scurry County, of course, is generally considered Democratic Party territory, along with most of the remainder of Texas. But even the Democrats like to see the Republicans active. Everybody with serious political interest knows that it is important that the country maintain at least two strong political parties.

You hear a lot of talk about the Republican Party's problems as a result of the Watergate capers and other woes. Some of the more pessimistic observers go so far as to say they fear the Republican Party is doomed to oblivion. We don't buy that. In our lifetime we have heard both parties consigned to the scrap heap, but they always bounced back. When Franklin D. Roosevelt defeated Herbert Hoover in 1932 as the direct result of the great depression, there were those who said the Republican Party was finished. In 1936, the year of the Alf Landon debacle, they were certain that their worst fears had been confirmed, and when Roosevelt won a fourth term, others were ready to give up. But the GOP was back in the saddle in 1952.

When Lyndon B. Johnson crushed Barry Goldwater in 1964, there were those who said the Republicans were dead this time for sure. Then, in 1972, when Richard Nixon won a record victory over George McGovern, there were many who were ready to write the Democrats' obituary. So far, in the state elections that have been held, it appears that the Democrats are dominating the political scene again and the unusual fears for the survival of the Republican Party have been voiced.

But the faithful in both parties are like the most rabid of sports fans. No matter how dark the outlook may be, they are willing to "wait till next year."

We Democrats like a good scrap at the polls, even if it is among ourselves, and we know the Republicans do, also.—WACIL McNAIR.

Today In History

Today is Sunday, April 28, the 118th day of 1974. There are 247 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

In 1945, Italian dictator Benito Mussolini and his mistress were captured and executed near Lake Como as they tried to escape from Italy to Switzerland.

On this date:

In 1220, work was begun on Salisbury Cathedral in England.

In 1781, the fifth American president, James Monroe, was born in Westmoreland County, Virginia.

In 1788, Maryland entered the Union as the seventh state.

In 1789, the mutinous crew of the British ship Bounty, set Captain William Bligh and 18 sailors adrift in a launch in the South Pacific.

In 1965, American Marines were ordered to land in the Dominican Republic during a revolution.

Ten years ago: Protestant, Roman Catholic and Jewish religious leaders gathered in Washington and demanded that Congress pass a broad civil rights bill.

One year ago: There was a cheating scandal at the U.S. military academy at West Point as 15 cadets were found guilty of violating the school's honor code.

Texas Voters To Elect First 4-Year Officials

By GARTH JONES
Associated Press Writer

Texas voters take a new step in state government next Saturday when they select party candidates for top state officials who will serve four-year instead of two-year terms.

Voters in the Democratic and Republican primaries also will give their opinions again on the old controversial issue of horse race betting. The result will be an influential, but not binding, recommendation to the 1975 Legislature.

The Texas Election Bureau estimates a turnout smaller than the 2.3 million who voted in the 1972 Democratic and Republican primaries.

There have been widespread reports of voter apathy, plus reduced campaign activity because of the gasoline shortage and a shrinkage of contributions.

After the polls close at 7 p.m. Saturday there will be party precinct conventions, which may provide the most activity on election day. The precinct delegates elected Saturday will furnish the grass roots power for the Sept. 17 Deomcratic and Republican state conventions which in turn will set up party machinery for the 1976 presidential election year.

The Raza Unida Party, which drew 214,118 votes for governor in 1972, also will hold a primary election Saturday but there are no intraparty contests among its candidates.

The American Party, which supports Alabama Gov. George Wallace, and the Texas Socialist Workers Party will be holding "precinct conventions," for the primary purpose of starting petitions to gather the necessary 34,000 signatures necessary to get their candidates on the Nov. 5 General Election ballot.

As usual, the Democratic governor's race headlines primary activities, although even that race has a low profile this year. Gov. Dolph Briscoe, 51, finishing out his first two-year term, is generally favored to defeat Mrs. Frances Farenthold, 47, of Houston as he did in their 1972 party runoff.

Briscoe a South Texas rancher and banker, has run a businesslike race, stressing his past record of no new taxes and promising more of the same for the future. Mrs. Farenthold, former state representative and a nationally known speaker for Democratic liberals and women's organizations, called Briscoe a "caretaker" governor and complained that campaign donors were hard to come by.

Little has been heard from the other two Democratic candidates for governor, Steve Alexander of Waco and Bill Posey of Houston.

The Republican gubernatorial race lost much of its expected action with the withdrawal of state Sen. Henry Grover of Houston, who ran Briscoe a hot race in the 1972 general election. Former Lubbock mayor Jim Granberry, 41, a dentist, is favored over Fort Worth attorney Odell McBrayer, 43.

There are four other Democratic contests for statewide office.

Former secretary of state Bob Bullock of Austin, and Hugh Edburg of Austin, former chief clerk for the state comptroller, are seeking the post to be vacated by Comptroller Robert S. Calvert, 81, who is retiring after 30 years in office.

Agriculture Commissioner John C. White, in office 24 years, is seeking another term over Democrat Herbert Schroeder, Columbus.

Mack Wallace, former Briscoe aide whom the governor appointed to the Railroad Commission, is seeking a full term, opposed by C.A. Kelly of San Antonio.

Treasurer Jesse James, 68, who has had the office 32 years, is opposed by Donald B. Yarbrough, 32, Houston attorney who is no kin to a former Houston politician with a similar name.

The Republicans have a contested race for the lieutenant governor's nomination with Gaylord Marshall of Dallas, opposing Troy Skates of Leander.

Republican Joe P. Cain of Houston is opposing Dale W. Steffes of Houston, for the nomination to the unexpired Railroad Commission term

Texas Precinct Meets Saturday

By RAYMOND HOLBROOK
Associated Press Writer

Texas Democrats meet in their precinct conventions Saturday to voice party harmony and unity while jockeying for position and delegates to the county conventions.

The lack of a presidential and a U.S. Senate race this year has toned down some of the political fanfare that usually accompanies the grassroots precinct conventions. But there still will be the continuing struggle for control of the state party machinery for both the "mini" national convention in December and for the 1976 presidential election year.

Three factions will be vying in the Saturday Democratic precinct conventions—the conservatives supporting Gov. Dolph Briscoe, the liberals and the backers of Alabama Gov. George Wallace for the 1976 presidential nomination.

State Democratic Chairman Calvin Guest has issued the usual plea for harmony and unity and State Agriculture Commissioner John White, who heads the state party's "affirmative action" committee, says the new rules will assure representation to minority factions.

The rules say that if a faction constitutes 20 per cent of those attending the precinct convention, then the faction is entitled to representation at the county convention.

But battle-scarred veterans of precinct conventions know that parliamentary manuevering and a chairman with a strong gavel arm can be far more influential than the rules book.

Both the liberals and the Wallace supporters have voiced concern that the Briscoe supporters have already laid the groundwork to control many of Saturday's precinct conventions. They are especially concerned about the well financed Governor's Convention Committee headed by Gordon R. Wynne Jr. of Wills Point. The committee has no official connection with the state organization but was formed to assure a large turnout of Briscoe supporters at the precinct conventions.

Domination of the Saturday conventions by Briscoe supporters will please the governor who wants no repetition of 1972 when he had the task of trying to placate three almost equally divided Democratic factions at the state and national conventions.

Texas Republicans also be holding precinct conventions Saturday but they are expected to be low key affairs.

Most GOP leaders want to avoid any commitments to possible 1976 presidential hopefuls. And any Republican resolutions that are approved Saturday are expected to be carefully worded to skirt references to Watergate or other problems of the present administration and to stress traditional party principles and the importance of the "old college try" in this year's Texas elections.

Many May Shun Nixon

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
AP Political Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A veteran Republican official warned the party's reform committee today against tampering with the delegate selection procedures used in 1972.

"You can't improve on the system we have of selecting our delegates," said Philip Guarino, director of the Republican National Committee's senior citizens division and a long-time party activist in Washington.

"Can you have a better success than '72?" Guarino asked. "Why should we change?"

"He speaks truth," declared Mississippi GOP Chairman Clark E. Reed, a member of the subcommittee studying the delegate selection question.

Because Republican convention rules are adopted four years ahead and the only 1972 mandate was to urge—without requiring —efforts for equal representation of men and women, most of the reform effort is aimed at the post-1976 period.

In all likelihood, the GOP will retain for 1976 its traditional delegate selection procedures under which primaries, conventions and state parties choose delegates without any restrictions to assure all groups and viewpoints are represented.

However, another subcommittee considering vice presidential selection procedures heard several proposals that could be implemented at the next GOP convention.

Rep. Marvin L. Esch, R-Mich., urged that presidential candidates list up to six potential running mates before the convention, to permit time for advance debate and scrutiny.

Once nominated, the presidential candidates could either recommend a running mate or leave the choice entirely open to the convention.

Rep. William L. Armstrong, R-Colo., and Rosemary Ginn, Missouri national committeewoman, urged that the vice presidential selection be made before the presidential choice in hopes of upgrading the second spot on the ticket.

Dean Burch, former party chairman and now a special counselor to the President, told the Republican National Committee Friday that the convictions of the people, the principles of the party and the programs and policies of the administration are indistinguishable.

"I'm not going to play chicken-and-egg—they're simply indistinguishable," Burch said. "By the same token, I submit to you that Richard Nixon is our President and the leader of our party, and that these two roles are indistinguishable: Our hopes and our goals and our fortunes are one.

"His record of accomplishment is our record, and it is a record solidly based in Republican principle," Burch said. "The President's record is a platform for Republican candidates to grab hold of and to run on."

The lines fell flat on a silent audience.

Later, a comittee member who asked not to be named said that once the primaries are over, "you're going to see Republicans running against the President."

"No, there wasn't any enthusiasm for it," Ohio GOP chairman Kent McGough said of Burch's speech, adding Ohio Republicans "are going to run on state issues."

"This is not a presidential year as far as we're concerned in Indiana," committeeman L. Keith Bulen said. "We're not going to invite the President, the vice president, the Cabinet or Hollywood stars. We're going to run on the basis of the issues and against the record of the incumbent."

BILLY JOHN VOSS

BILL CLAYTON

Voss, Clayton Win In Runoffs

Billy John Voss and Bill Clayton were elected to three-year terms on the board of trustees of the Snyder Independent School District in a runoff election Saturday.

The complete, unofficial returns, gave Voss 429 votes and Dalton Walton 188 votes in the race for Place 3 on the school board, and Clayton 384 votes and Ted Hanson 225 votes for Place 5 on the board.

Only 557 voters went to the polls in the runoff election Saturday. Sixty absentee ballots ran the total to 617, compared to a total of 1,250 who voted in the April 6 election.

Voss and Walton had advanced to the runoff for Place 3 from a field of four candidates, while Clayton and Hanson went to the runoff for Place 5 from a field of five candidates.

Dan Cotton and William J. Schiebel are retiring from the board, with neither seeking re-election this year. In the April 6 election, Incumbent Bill Eiland was re-elected in a one man race.

Kissinger Off Again

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger heads into a new round of nuclear weapons and Middle East negotiations promising he will be guided by America's self-interest—and not the impeachment problems of President Nixon.

At the same time, he has acknowledged that if the President's authority is undercut at home "over a period of time it is bound to affect the conduct or the ability to conduct foreign policy."

Kissinger leaves Sunday morning for Geneva and conferences with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko designed to narrow differences between the two powers to the point where the United States can make a new proposal for a treaty further limiting offensive nuclear weapons.

Kissinger's first proposal was turned down last month in the Kremlin.

Beit Won't Pay Ransom On Art

By VINCENT MAHON

BLESSINGTON, Ireland (AP) — Sir Alfred Beit said today the $20.4 million in paintings stolen from his home were protected only by an an alarm system, but that many were insured and he would not meet any ransom demand.

A gang of armed raiders believed to belong to the Irish Republican Army burst into his country home Friday night and stole 19 paintings in what apparently was the biggest robbery in history.

James White, director of Dublin's National Gallery, where the masterpieces often were exhibited, gave the value of the paintings.

Beit told newsmen that security amounted to an alarm bell system surrounding the paintings. The bell rang in the local police station, which was closed at the time of the raid.

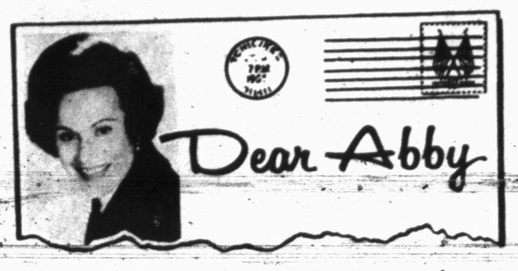

When newsmen suggested the security was inadeqaute, Beit replied: "We are not in London. We live in a remote part of the country with a small village and a small police station."

He added that "a large number of the pictures are insured for certain sums. I am not prepared to say for security reasons which ones are insured."

Beit, whose family made millions in diamonds and gold in South Africa, gave this account of the raid:

"I was seated with my wife in the library at 9:10 p.m playing gramphone records when three men led by a woman and brandishing revolvers burst in. One man stayed outside. They ordered us to get down on the floor. 'Get down, get down' one of them shouted and when I looked up I got a knock with the butt of a pistol on the back of the head."

The girl leading the raid had used the French word "voiture" for car. One of the raiders spoke with a northern Irish accent. The gang forced the butler's son to show them where the paintings were.

How to explain why religion isn't free

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: As a newly ordained minister I frequently find myself in the uncomfortable position of having to explain why the church is always asking for money.

One of my parishioners told me that some years back you had a letter in your column which posed that very question, and your answer was the best.

Can you please try to locate that letter, and print it again? Gratefully, A PREACHER

DEAR PREACHER: I've found it. And here it is:

"DEAR ABBY: We are not overly religious people, but we do like to go to church once in a while. It seems to me that every time we turn around in church, we are getting hit for money. I thought religion was free. I realize that churches have to have some money but I think it is getting to be a racket. Just what do churches do with all their money? CURIOUS

DEAR CURIOUS: Even priests, ministers, and rabbis must eat. And since they work full time at their tasks, the churches must support them. Staff, professional choir members, and musicians also must be paid. Buildings must be maintained, heated, lighted and beautified. [And, of course, first they must be built!] Custodial staff must eat and feed their families. Most churches engage in philanthropic work [aid to needy, missions, and education]; hence, they have their financial obligations. Even orchids, contrary to folklore, do not live on air. Churches can't live on air, either. Religion, like water, may be free, but when they pipe it to you, you've got to help pay for the piping. And the piper!"

DEAR ABBY: Before a trip last year I bought my husband a bikini swim suit. He wore it to the beach and you should have seen the heads turn. He has a great physique and looked gorgeous.

My problem is, he won't wear it again. He says men shouldn't wear anything so revealing in public. When I remind him that he wore it on our vacation and attracted a lot of attention, he says: "They were laughing at me. That's why I'm not wearing it again."

Abby, we've finally liberated women so they can wear next-to-nothing and get away with it. Why not men?

Maybe if you gave your approval he'd wear that sexy-looking bikini again. BETTY

DEAR BETTY: Get off his gorgeous back. Women who reveal too much lose much of their appeal. And that goes double for men.

DEAR ABBY: My grandson, a high school senior, and I have been going round and round on this one:

I sent his sister, a college student, a birthday card by mail. He said he intended to give her her card when we met to take her out to dinner on her day.

My opinion was that he was skirting the outer edges of propriety in handing his sister a birthday card. He said it didn't make any difference and suggested I write to Dear Abby for her opinion. GRAMP

DEAR GRAMP: I'm with your grandson. It doesn't matter if a congratulatory message is delivered by mail, the king's messenger or in person. It's being remembered that counts.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L. A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Halliburton Logs Million Safe Miles

Employes of the Snyder camp of Halliburton Service, world-wide oil field services organization, have kept up a tradition of safety they began 21 years ago.

The employes and their wives were honored at a dinner in the Snyder Country Club Friday night for completing a million accident-free miles in company vehicles. The millionth safe mile was chalked up March 15. Halliburton men here had not had an accident in a company vehicle since last April.

Ken Manes of Dallas, manager of the operating division that includes the Snyder district, presented the Million Mile Club trophy to Lester Christian, Snyder district superintendent.

Also on hand for the award dinner were J.A. (Spike) Dunlop, assistant division manager from Dallas, and Roland W. Gay, manager of safety from Halliburton Services' home offices in Duncan, Okla.

Halliburton's Million Mile Club was established back in 1953 when the Snyder camp reported it had covered a million miles doing its oil field service chores without an accident. The first million accident-free miles were completed on Nov. 1, 1953. Since that time, Snyder has won four other Million Mile Club trophies. The one awarded here Friday night was No. 6.

Military Junta Frees Prisoners

By FENTON WHEELER
Associated Press Writer

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — Portugal's new military government began emptying jails of political prisoners Saturday.

The junta announced that 43 prisoners were freed from Piniche Military Prison and 79 others were released at Caixas Fortress in the outskirts of Lisbon.

More than 30 political police at the directorate general of security surrendered to the military in groups of two or three. About 200 to 400 police were believed to be hiding at the directorate general.

Army and navy troops outside the building ordered the police against the walls for searches, and instructed some of them to drop their pants.

Three of the police were beaten by a crowd outside the Caixas Fortress on Friday and troops at the spot fired in the air to hold back the crowd.

Informed sources said Gen. Antonio de Spinola and his six-man junta ordered a search for more than 20 officials of the old regime.

At noon Saturday scores of demonstrations in support of the junta took place in Lisbon and other Portuguese cities.

Spinola dissolved Friday the directorate general of security, a traditional political power center. The directorate was the only branch of the old regime that had refused to surrender.

All airports in the country remained closed to commercial flying for the third consecutive

Keeping Our Schools And Community Strong Through Keeping This Office Open
Subject To Action Of Democratic Primary

The Ira School Board was contacted at a recent meeting and they expressed their desire that the office of County School Superintendent be retained and not be abolished. Contrary to recent statements, this office has performed a needed service to the rural schools and could be of far greater service in the future if the person elected so desired. It is for this reason that Mr. Myron Crawford is being endorsed and supported for this office.

MODEL B1510

This concrete block house has a unique floor plan which sets it apart from more conventional designs and makes it especially attractive to those who want their home to reflect their own individuality. Its exterior too shows an attractive departure from traditional concepts in home design.

See how the approach to the main entrance leads delightfully between landscaped planting areas and how the central entry itself is far more than just a utilitarian, traffic channeling necessity. Sliding glass doors to the wonderful central courtyard type patio, give the entry a dramatic touch and allow tremendous scope in decorating it.

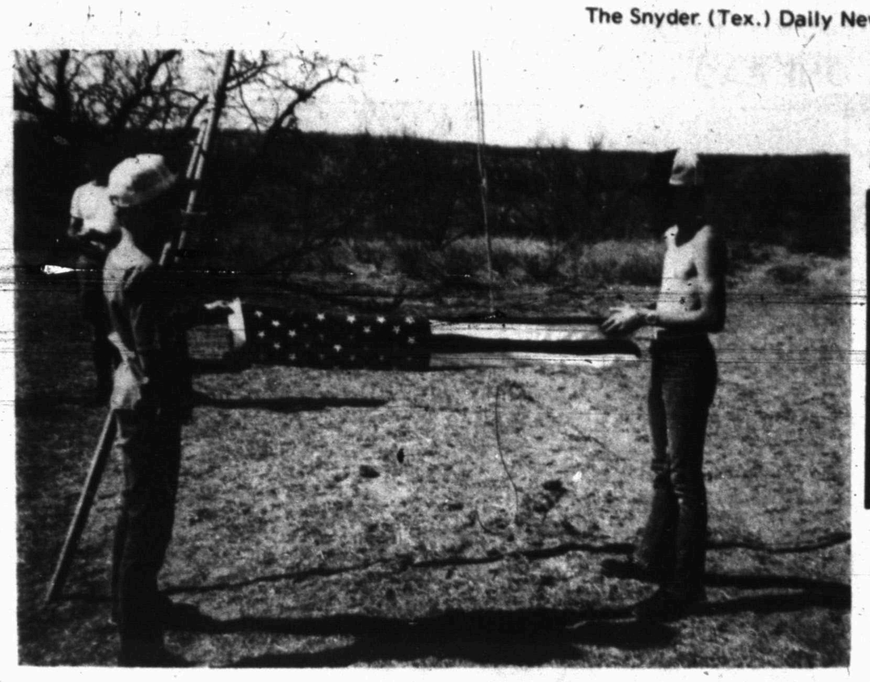

To the right at the front of the wing is a large kitchen with almost four full walls of cabinets, counters and appliances. Note too its adjacent utility room and laundry and the family room across a dining counter. Sliding doors give this room a pleasant view of the front walks and stylized gardens.

In the rear of th e wing the large separate living room enjoys an equally attractive view of the patio, through another set of sliding doors, and across the patio, in the other wing of the house, the master bedroom enjoys similar outdoor living and viewing benefits.

This room has the additional attraction of a huge dressing room and closet and, naturally its own private bath. The front bedroom is also good sized and is beside the main bath.

Note how the double carport is backed by two huge outside storage rooms. Note too how the position of the patio makes it a focal point of living pleasure, designed to serve almost every area of the entire house with equal ease.

For good living both outside and in, this design uses a highly individual approach and combines practicality with imaginative planning in a most satisfactory and successful manner.

PRACTICE FOR COMPETITION—Dennis Gary and Walt Williams of Boy Scout Troop 27 in Snyder practice for competition in the Spring Camporee set for May 3-4. Scouts Planning For 'Camporee'

Boy Scout Troops of the Snyder, Colorado City and Fluvanna area will be participating in the Lone Buffalo District Camporee during the weekend of May 3-5. The camporee will take place at the Ollie Richardson Ranch at Dunn. A camporee is camping fun for the boys and is intertroop and patrol competition. The events for the 1974 camporee will begin Friday night and end Saturday afternoon.

The 10 events at the camporee this year include a campfire skit on Friday night, a compass course, knot tying and usage, obstacle course, piggy-back race, plant and animal identification, fire building, flag presentation, first aid, and campsite inspection of troops on Saturday.

Each patrol will participate and be judged on achievements in the various events. The patrols will be awarded points depending on the amount of knowledge, originality, accuracy, coordination, and quickness they have in the various events. The patrol which wins overall receives the Presidential Award; patrols which place next win First Award; patrols which place under first award win Second Award; patrols which do not place in one of the categories are awarded the Participating Award. Each Boy Scout is presented with a camporee patch which should be worn on the right shirt pocket.

Special Reserves Created To Lower Oil Profits

By Stephen H. Miller
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Before the oil industry began announcing its first-quarter profits, there were widespread predictions the figures would be embarrassingly high.

As the oil giants' figures began rolling out this past week, they were indeed high. They may also have been embarrassing, if only because of the political target they presented.

Exxon Corp., the world's biggest oil company, said its profits were up 39 per cent over 1973's first quarter at $708 million.

Exxon said the figure would have been higher if it hadn't created a special reserve to protect against possible future tax bills. It wouldn't actually say how big the reserve actually was, but some estimates put it at about $400 million.

Texaco, the second biggest oil company, said its profits were up 123 per cent at $589.4 million — after creation of a $143 million reserve against possible higher crude oil prices.

Gulf said its profits were up 76 per cent over 1973, Standard of California 91 per cent and Shell 52 per cent.

Before midweek, the House Commerce Committee had approved a proposal to roll back the price of 80 per cent of domestically produced crude oil and impose stiffer price regulations on imported oil.

The measure was proposed by Rep. Bob Eckhart, a Texas Democrat who said he was partly inspired by the first-quarter profit figures.

Some oil men contended the gains reflected comparisons with 1973 figures that were lower than they should have been.

Experts inside and outside the oil industry noted the figures reflected not only actual profits on sales but the simple fact that oil in company inventories is worth more now than it was a year ago.

A barrel of oil which might have cost $3.40 in March 1973 cost more than $6 this past March. Accounting methods used by the oil companies translate this higher value into profit.

Chairman H.J. Haynes of Standard of California said his company would have shown virtually no gains over 1973 without such inventory profits.

Before oil prices began climbing, the industry had argued that higher profits were needed to provide a proper reward for the risks and expense of new exploration and development.

John C. Sawhill, the nation's new federal energy chief-designate, called the figures "very large" and said his office would be looking closely to see if the higher profits were indeed leading to higher investments.

More Stations Out Of Fuel

HOUSTON (AP) — The Texas Division of the American Automobile Association says the percentage of service stations out of fuel this week was just slightly higher than the previous week.

The association said Friday that its statewise survey showed 9 per cent of Texas stations were out of gasoline compared to 6 per cent last week.

It said 22 per cent of the state's stations will be open for business this Sunday while 33 per cent of them are selling a self-prescribed daily quota of fuel, then shutting down for the day.

Houston, which has been the hardest hit for months, had only 8 per cent of its stations out of fuel, but 81 per cent of them were selling on a daily quota basis.

The Texas Hill Country had the biggest problem with 20 per cent of the stations there out of fuel, the AAA said.

State fuel prices have risen, the AAA said, with regular brand selling for an average of 49.3 cents a gallon and premium 53 cents.

Sgt. Rasco In USAFE Unit

ATHENS, GREECE—Seargeant William L. Rasco, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lester V. Rasco of Snyder, is a member of U.S. Air Forces in Europe's (USAFE) top airlift support unit for 1973.

Sergeant Rasco is a supply specialist at Athenai Airport, Greece, with the 7206th Air Base Group which received USAFE's Commander-In-Chief Award for outstanding mission accomplishment.

The group's personnel were cited for their support of the command's centralized courier program, special missions in Greece and Turkey and meeting vital supply and postal requirements.

Sergeant Rasco is a 1972 graduate of Snyder High School. His wife, Alicia, is the daughter of Lee Cunningham, Rt. 1, Mountain Park, Okla.

In Dire Need

NEW YORK (AP) — Critical lack of space and funds are the main problems for New York's psychiatric hospitals, according to Dr. Henry I. Schneer, president of the New York State Hospitals Medical Alumni Assn. and associate professor of psychiatry at Downstate Medical Center (State University of New York) in Brooklyn.

"Patients who need long-term care are currently transferred to state hospitals. But these hospitals are releasing patients after very short stays in an attempt to reduce their census and focus on outpatient treatment. Back at home, the patient finds the same circumstances and problems that originally precipitated his hospitalization. When his disturbance again becomes severe, he is returned to the municipal hospital. He is treated and discharged, or transferred to a state hospital — and again released after a short time, only to be rehospitalized at a later date as he continues through this revolving-door system."

A POSITIVE NOTE ON THE SCURRY COUNTY SCHOOL SUPERINTENDENT.

You are hearing much about the office of county school superintendent. We would like to ask why those not directly related to it are seeking to eliminate it. We rural people know that the loss of the office will weaken and be the first step in the loss of our rural schools. Our rural churches, businesses, and all community life will soon follow. Some who advocate abolishment have openly stated their desire to see the schools of Ira, Hermleigh, and Fluvanna close their doors and come to town. Is this really the aim, not just the closing of the County Office itself? We differ with their opinion. We believe rural people should have the right to make their own decisions and determine their own destiny. Rural people are not second class citizens. We live in rural America because we like it, not because we can't do differently. About thirty percent of Scurry Co. is made up of rural people.
The federal and state governments are at this time trying to get people to move back to the rural areas. I feel as many people do that it would be foolish to do any thing to weaken the rural life in our own county of Scurry. We have a rich heritage let us do all in our power to keep it that way.
We are not asking for any less for any one else, but we ask you who are friends of rural America to see our needs and help us to preserve them, by keeping this office open. If there are any questions on the desire of the rural schools to want to keep this office call these men. They will tell you their feelings on the office and after all it is these men who use the services of the office. They are the Supt. of the rural schools.
If elected to the office I will serve the office and the schools serviced by it in a manner to fill the needs of the schools, by asking what their needs are and fill that need. We have some of the best schools in the nation let us continue to be satisfied with no less for the schools in Scurry County.

Pipeline Promises A Bonanza For Alaskans

EDITOR'S NOTE — What hath Congress wrought? The Alaskan pipeline, freed from its legal snarls by federal action, is moving again. Pipe won't be laid until next year. A permanent road comes first. But the long-awaited nearly $4 billion pipeline, authorized by Congress last November, is finally to be built through spectacular Alaska, a land that may never be the same.

By JOHN BARBOUR
AP Newsfeatures Writer

And the bridge.

But it also brings some 20 hours of daylight. Men can work a double shift and shed their parkas and thermal underwear.

Daylight and cold. The thaw and the delicate tundra. Those are crucial elements to the long-delayed Alaskan pipeline, a 789-mile plumber's delight, oilman's frustration, ecologist's despair, that will wind through landscape as desolate and spectacular as the moon and almost as remote.

Completed, it will unleash the black gold of the frozen north to oil-hungry America. And even now, just a line on a map, it promises bonanza for 325,000 nearly-forgotten Alaskans whose plaintive state flower is the forget-me-not.

Pipeline men figure it a nominally difficult task — but to the layman's eye it seems to rival the pyramids and dwarf the Aswan dam. The pipe is four feet in diameter and will reach from the oil fields of Prudhoe Bay on the Arctic Ocean to Valdez (pronounced Val-does), an ice-free harbor on Prince William Sound, a gateway to west coast ports in "the lower 48."

In between, the route spans the bitter ice-bound plains from Prudhoe southward, climbing through the craggy 8,000-foot ramparts of the Brooks Range, snaking through a 4,800-foot pass over the continental divide, south still across the Arctic Circle, over moose tracks and caribou trails between mountains ladled with melting marshmallow snow, down to the frozen Yukon River where men have forced the waters to create a bridge of ice. From thence still south past Fairbanks, a tiny town, an Alaskan metropolis, born in a gold rush, braced for an oil rush, over miles of tundra to Isabel Pass, 3,500 feet high through the Alaska Range, into the Chugach Mountains, down, down, down through the granite splendor of Keystone Canyon to Valdez, population 1,200 before it all began, 3,000 plus before it ends.

When the pipe opens in 1977, it will take 11 million barrels of oil to fill it before one drop comes out the southern end. At peak, it will deliver two million barrels of crude a day, enough to fill a daily fleet of 60,000 tanker trucks, or a train more than 11,400 tank cars long.

Frank A. Therrell, an oil company engineer who has been on the pipeline since it was deemed feasible in 1968, explains its uniqueness:

"What strikes me is the remoteness. It's like going back to the very early days of pipelining when they needed large crews, almost like marshalling a small army. You had your tent camps and your cooks and your mules. We have equipment now, but we still have to contend with the remoteness.

"There's no town on that pipeline where — if you were to move in with a thousand men — you could find beds for them. So you have to go in and essentially build new little cities for them."

And that's what they've done up and down the pipeline route. The camps, ghost towns for more than three years, now freed from legal snarls, are bustling again.

Flying into Prudhoe in winter, and even early Spring, the eye is devastated by the bleak, endless, snowy plain. The airplane radio blurts out the weather report: clear, temperature 32 degrees below, combining with a 14-knot breeze to yield a wind-chill factor of 64 degrees below zero, a mild day for Prudhoe Bay.

Prudhoe covers a relatively small area, barely 200 square miles. Below are 10 billion barrels of oil and 26 trillion cubic feet of natural gas. There is the promise of even more.

To the west, occupying almost all of northwestern Alaska, is the Naval Petroleum Reserve No. 4, set aside by President Harding. It has been only tentatively explored for oil.

To the south, even now, oil companies are sinking new exploratory wells almost within sight of the pipeline route.

At Prudhoe, even in April, the wind bites hard, and few men work outside. The oil field is divided between two competitive operating companies, British Petroleum and Atlantic Richfield, each with its own buildings, its own security.

The companies pay high wages and treat their men well to make life bearable in this isolated world. Meals are lavish. Two snack bars operate constantly in the ARCO building where lounges are furnished in heavy black easy chairs and sofas, and warm, rich woodwork softens the communal interior and the bleak out-of doors. Bedrooms are cozy and comfortable. Office wings are spacious, efficient. There is a dispensary, a movie theater with films every night, a table tennis room, a pool room, a library with such varied fare as the Oil and Gas Journal and the Reader's Digest, "Dr. Zhivago" and "The Autobiography of William Allen White."

BP is hiring some female clerks, but at ARCO the rule is — as it is for the pipeline camps down the trail — no women, booze or guns.

The some 65 wells already drilled are capped and the only oil taken from the field is used to refine 1,200 barrels of heating oil a day to provide power and heat to run what is essentially a small city.

Home Heating From Manure Is Man's Goal

NORTH BRANFORD, Conn. (AP) — Home heating from a manure pile is the ultimate goal of a simple tank converter fashioned by Alton Eliason and Joseph Pelliccio.

Two home-fuel tanks connected by pipes already are producing enough methane gas to heat Eliason's greenhouse, they say.

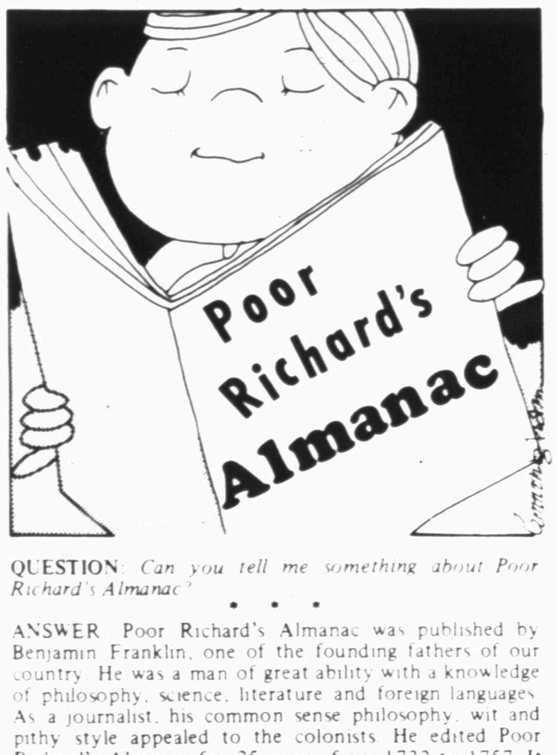

When the converter is fully operational it will use manure from Eliason's chickens plus dead leaves and plants from the greenhouse to produce gas.

"The residue is even richer than when it went in and will make excellent fertilizer for the greenhouse," Eliason said.

With success and a sufficient supply of chicken manure the two hope to create a larger converter and switch the oil-heating system of Eliason's home to methane gas next winter.

"The beauty of the thing is its cost," Eliason said. The existing converter would cost between $200 and $300 to build, he said, and the gas-making ingredients cost little, if anything.

Junior Editors' Quiz on ALMANACS

QUESTION: Can you tell me something about Poor Richard's Almanac?

• • •

ANSWER: Poor Richard's Almanac was published by Benjamin Franklin, one of the founding fathers of our country. He was a man of great ability with a knowledge of philosophy, science, literature and foreign languages. As a journalist, his common sense philosophy, wit and pithy style appealed to the colonists. He edited Poor Richard's Almanac for 25 years, from 1732 to 1757. It contained the usual information found in an almanac, but was replete with wise sayings concerning honesty, thrift, prudence, industry and patriotism. Reading material was scarce in the colonies, and Poor Richard's Almanac joined the Bible on the table in the average colonial home. About 10,000 copies were sold yearly and many people were influenced by the wisdom and high ideals incorporated in it. Many of the proverbs are popular today. Quotations such as "a penny saved is a penny earned", "God helps those who help themselves" and many others are frequently used today.

Firms Profiting On Arab Oil

By STAN BENJAMIN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Oil companies are making a profit of $3.73 per barrel on some Arab oil that costs 10 cents to produce, says new energy chief John C. Sawhill.

As U.S. oil companies continued to report huge first-quarter profit increases, Sawhill told newsmen Friday that a large portion came from producing foreign oil — including oil the Arabs withheld from the United States during their embargo.

Company profits on some Saudi Arabian oil soared in one year from 79 cents to $3.73 per barrel, Sawhill said.

Although government price controls supposedly limit petroleum price increases to those justified by increased costs, there appears to be no legal barrier to these increased profits.

The increase, if allowed to flow through unchecked into the U.S. market, could cost American consumers some $2.7 billion a year.

Sawhill said there was "no economic justification" for the huge profit jump on so-called "equity oil," which amounts to 14 per cent of the total oil used in the United States.

But he said it may be justified if the profits are reinvested to increase domestic oil production.

Meanwhile, the government reported a trade deficit in March for the first time in nine months and blamed the development on the spiraling cost of foreign oil.

Reports of huge oil company profits continued Friday. Mobil Oil Co., the nation's third largest oil company, said its first-quarter profits were 7 per cent less than the previous quarter but 66 per cent more than the same period last year.

This result was in line with an industry pattern of sharply higher oil profits for the majors this quarter. They have been up as much as 123 per cent, reported by Texaco Oil Co. earlier this week.

In addition, the country's five largest oil companies trimmed millions of dollars from their first-quarter profit figures by setting up contingency funds for possible retroactive crude oil prices or tax increases.

The companies — Exxon, Texaco, Mobil, Gulf and Standard of California — say the money is placed in the contingency funds to cover potential retroactive increases in costs for the quarter.

Inflation, Slump In Car Sales Cut GM Profits

By OWEN ULLMANN
Associated Press Writer

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors blames inflation and a slump in car sales in the wake of the energy crisis for the automaker's worst first-quarter earnings performance since before the Korean Conflict.

The worldwide auto giant said Friday its January-March profits totaled $120 million, an 85 per cent drop from the same period in 1973.

Plagued by a sales slump since December, GM reported revenues were down 27 per cent to $6.94 billion.

Sales at GM, which is dependent on large car lines, were off 46 per cent while U.S. auto sales averaged a 27 per cent decline during the period.

But the company's top two executives forecast the firm would make a substantial comeback in the not-to-distant future.

"As the economy strengthens in the months ahead and consumer confidence returns so will car buyers," said Chairman Richard C. Gerstenberg and President Edward N. Cole. "Welcome strengthening of the market came too late to improve first quarter results."

GM's quarterly earnings represented the second consecutive drop from year-earlier levels, coming after the firm posted record sales and profits for the first nine months of 1973.

GM's latest earnings compare to $817 million, or $2.84 a share, in the first quarter of 1973. During last year's final quarter, GM reported a 22 per cent decline in profits.

The automaker's 1973 profits of $2.4 billion were the second largest of any U.S. corporation, trailing only Exxon Corp.

Gerstenberg and Cole attributed the severe earnings decline to "unremitting increases in costs" and a sharp slump in large car sales.

"... the cost of material, services and labor climbed to historically high levels, and there is every indication that these costs will continue to escalate in the months ahead," they said.

Costs were reduced through production cutbacks and layoffs of thousands of employes. However, they said "costs could not be reduced or eliminated as rapidly as volume fell."

So far GM has escaped a labor problem that is plaguing Ford: Refusal of overtime by workers under a newly won option on voluntary overtime negotiated last year by the United Auto Workers Union.

The action has cost Ford millions of dollars in potential sales as a result of weekend halts in production. Ford officials say the firm has lost the production of 9,000 vehicles since the pact took effect Feb. 3 and an estimated $4 million in overtime has gone begging.

GM officials, and those at Chrysler, say they haven't been affected because of different production schedules.

Fabric Stores Are Growing

Career Corner

by Joyce Lain Kennedy

Dear Joyce: My husband and I would like information on beginning a fabric store of our own. We would appreciate any advice you could give us and any sources to which you could refer us for information. -- S.M., Somerville, Tenn.

According to figures gathered by the Bank of America's Small Business Reporter, about one-fourth of all women's clothing is made in the home – and nearly half of America's women sew, knit, crochet, needlepoint, embroider or quilt. Sales of sewing and needlecraft goods are climbing – more than $3 billion in 1973, up from $1.4 billion in 1965. By 1977, home sewers are expected to spend nearly $5 billion. The business profile you want can be obtained for $1 from the Small Business Reporter, Dept. 3120, Box 37000, San Francisco, Calif. 94137. It's brand new, so all the data's current.

* * *

Dear Joyce: We thought you might be able to help us find some information on the installation of an automatic car wash as well as the coin-operated "do it yourself" car wash. -- B.L.P., San Bernardino, Calif.

"Starting and Managing a Carwash" is 45 cents and available from the Superintendent of Documents, Washington, D.C. 20402. It's published by the Small Business Administration.

Dear Joyce: Will you please tell me where I can get information on getting into the collection agency business on my own? -- A.P., Bentleyville, Pa.

Write to Joe Galdiano, director of education and public relations, American Collectors Association, 4040 W. 70th St., Minneapolis, Minn. 55435. A majority of states now require that debt collectors be licensed, so check into this aspect.

Dear Joyce: Where can I locate wholesale suppliers for the crafts I am making and selling. I'm just piddling around now but I'd like to expand. -- C.W., Santa Rosa, Calif.

If you can't find local wholesale sources, try the trade publication: "Crafts, Model and Hobby Industry," 229 W. 28th St., New York, N.Y. 10001. An annual directory comes out this time each year, included with subscription, that lists manufacturers and wholesalers.

READER SERVICE: For a single copy of SBA's new "Business Plan for Small Manufacturers," send 20 cents in stamps and a gummed return mailing label with your request to Joyce Lain Kennedy at this newspaper. This 24-page overview shows prospective owner-managers how to draw a plan for a small manufacturing firm. It's also helpful for present manufacturers who aren't doing as well as they should.

Mayor Pledges Zebra Manhunt

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Mayor Joseph Alioto, saying the city's streets "must be made safe from these mad murderers," has pledged to keep the Zebra manhunt going despite an adverse court ruling.

"It must be made plain that this is no signal for any letup in the intensive manhunt in progress," Alioto said Friday night. "Twelve murders and six armed assaults require no less than this."

Police say one or more assailants are responsible for the seemingly unprovoked attacks on whites in the city's streets.

On Thursday, U.S. District Judge Alfonso Zirpoli ordered police to abandon the blanket stop-and-search of blacks who fit the general description of one suspected assailant.

Since the program began April 17, more than 600 black men had been detained by officers using a composite drawing based on the description given by two victims.

Zirpoli said the dragnet was unconstitutional and violated the civil rights of blacks. He said police may interrogate only persons suspected of an actual crime.

On Friday, City Atty. Thomas O'Connor filed notice of appeal of the Zirpoli ruling.

Police issued a new set of search guidelines before the ruling, but Zirpoli said that while the wholesale stop-and-search campaign had ended "the danger" of its being repeated has not necessarily been removed.

The judge said an injunction was necessary "in the interests of public tranquility."

A number of demonstrations and protests by blacks followed announcement of the stop-and-search campaign. Suits were filed to halt it by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and the American Civil Liberties Union.

After the decision, Police Chief Donald Scott said the department has "implemented new tactics which involve additional personnel" in the Zebra manhunt. He refused to give details.

A sampling of reaction to the court order indicated most officers accepted the ruling.

Xenia Playing Game Of What Might Have Been

EDITOR'S NOTE — The tornadoes that hit 11 states in the South and Midwest on April 3 killed 300 persons and destroyed millions of dollars in property. Ohio and Kentucky were two of the hardest hit. In the aftermath, there's a struggle for money to rebuild, conflicts over federal aid and delayed emotional reactions to the frightening twisters. There's optimism, too.

By KEN DAVIS
Associated Press Writer

XENIA, Ohio (AP) — The game of what-might-have-been.

All Xenia plays that fantasy about the tornado that sliced through this southwestern Ohio town on April 3, killing 32 persons and causing hundreds of millions of dollars worth of in property damage.

"If my daughter hadn't been under house arrest, if they hadn't called off baseball practice for my son, if there hadn't been Daylight Savings Time," said the Rev. Raymond Pope of the Faith Community Methodist Church.

"Everyone is talking about if."

The Rev. Mr. Pope felt the same compulsion to explore what might have been. "If it hadn't been for Daylight Savings Time," he said in a voice husky from the dust churned up by the whirlwind, "the children would have been in school. It would have been a terrible, terrible tragedy."

Xenia's schools are out at 3:30 p.m. EDT. The tornado struck at 4:40 p.m. EDT. School kids would have been in school buildings or on the streets an hour earlier.

Brandenburg, Ky., counted 31 dead from its April 3 twister, which destroyed 150 homes and buildings in the village of 1,650 persons.

Xenia and Brandenburg were the hardest hit by the dozens of tornadoes that struck in Ohio and Kentucky on April 3. They also hit in nine other states, and in all more than 300 persons died.

Xenia's twister converted the city's senior high school, a block-square complex, unto a pile of rubbish with only fragments of walls and some beams standing. In school hours, 1,455 teen-agers study there.

The storm severely damaged, almost destroyed, the city's two junior high schools — Central and Warner, enrollments 791 and 1,295. It destroyed two elementary schools — McKinley, enrollment 326, and Simon Kenton, enrollment 861 — and heavily damaged Arrowwood Elementary, enrollment 392.

"What happened was terrible, of course," said the Rev. Mr. Pope, "but if the kids had been in school ..." His voice trailed off.

The game of what-might-have-been.

"It's a game adults play to relieve their frustrations, perhaps to ease guilt feelings because they survived," said Dr. Esther Dammaster, a psychologist with a guidance center set up in the First United Presbyterian Church.

"There's no evidence of any mass trauma," she said. "A lot of people think there's going to be an emotional backlash, that people always break up after a disaster. It isn't so. Surviving a crisis can be a growth experience."

Still, a minister told the story of a woman undergoing extreme emotional stress in Greene Memorial Hospital. She withstood the tornado well but tripped later on debris and broke her wrist.

The mishap seemed to break her control, her minister said.

"The kids have ways of relieving their frustrations and fears," said Dr. Dammaster. "You know what's the latest game kids are playnng in Xenia? Tornado or Whirlwind."

"They're practicing. Every time they practice tornado, the less fearful are their memories." Dr. Dammaster chuckled. "The parents are horrified, but it's good for them."

There is no official list of the kids who now wet their beds, who wake up crying, some a bit hysterical because of a tornado warning. Easter Sunday, 12 days after the April 3 tornado.

"My daughter cried and cried when it rained the other day, just a thunderstorm," said Rich Heiland, whose home was leveled in the hard-hit Arrowhead subdivision.

"Finally I just sat her on my knee and I told her, 'Look, honey, it's going to rain a lot in your life, and if you cry every time it rains you're going to have a mighty unhappy life.'" He smiled rather ruefully. "At least, she stopped crying."

Dr. Dammaster said, "Adults don't have this outlet. So they talk about it. By talking about it they relieve themselves."

Some people whose homes were destroyed don't want to see them. In many cases, friends were doing the cleanup work.

Irene Medley, who runs an insurance agency in Brandenburg, reflected this widespread feeling. She lives now with her son and his wife in a house on the other side of town. She hasn't been back to visit her old neighborhood.

"I just don't want to see it," she said.

She has sold her lot and doesn't plan to rebuild. "I think a lot of people like me are going to rent and not try to build back," she said. Mrs. Medley was talking about people 55 and older.

The fear of mass emotional problems persists in Xenia. In the Rev. Mr. Pope's church, upwards of a hundred persons attended a mental health training conference, preparing for the worst.

Outwardly, the city bustles about trying to pick up the pieces. The task is enormous. The Army Corps of Engineers estimates 800,000 cubic yards of debris lie on the city — 160,000 big truckloads.

"We estimate it will take 60 working days just to haul away the rubbish," said a Corps spokesman.

Half of Xenia's urban area suffered damage. Inspectors have looked at 3,368 buildings. They condemned 1,244, listed 511 others with major damage and 1,194 with minor damage.

"Things have slowed down," said City Manager Robert Stewart with a harried look. "The Corps of Engineers is on our back to give the signal to haul out the wreckage. The Corps will only be here 90 days and after that the home and building owners would have to do their own hauling.

"With a lot of the places, we can't locate the owners and others are hassling with the insurance companies, who claim some buildings can be repaired."

Stewart has his own problem. What can be done for Xenia's future?

"Look, I've already told the feds that we need $40 million to $50 million for public buildings and renewal," he said. "You know urban renewal normally takes five, six years just to tear down the buildings. We did it in two minutes.

"The President was here, you know, and he asked us what we wanted, and we told him. Monday." Stewart shrugged. "The President has been here and half of Congress has been here and everyone says they want to help us.

"But, there'll be other disasters and other problems, and as time goes on the will to help Xenia may weaken. We've got a chance to make a new and better city, if we can get the help."

Federal emergency assistance for Xenia could go as high as $80 million, including $33 million to rebuild schools. The federal aid is coordinated by the Federal Disaster Assistance Administration from field headquarters at Wright Patterson Air Force Base in nearby Fairborn.

"If Stewart is talking about urban renewal, that's a whole new ball game," said an FDAA spokesman. "That takes time."

Two weeks after the tornado, a spokesman at a federal Housing and Urban Development Center said temporary housing had been leased in Xenia for 325 tornado victims. There had been 1,600 applications. The federal budget for temporary housing in Xenia is $11 million.

WAYNANN MONRONEY

Miss Monroney To Be Presented In Recital

Miss Waynann Monroney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Monroney, 3614 Ave. B, will be presented in senior piano recital Sunday afternoon at 2:30 p.m. at the Martha Ann Woman's Club.

Miss Monroney, one of the top ten in her class all three years of high school, began her study of piano at the age of six with her present teacher, Mrs. Virgil Mott. She has participated in University Interscholastic League competition since 1969, receiving Division I rating all but one year. She has also taken part in National Guild of Piano Teachers auditions since elementary school, receiving Superior rating each year. For the past three years she has auditioned for the American Association of Piano Teachers and each year received the Top Talent Award.

Waynann has been a member of and principal accompanist for the Travis Junior High choirs, the Snyder High choirs, and the Swingers. Presently she plays for the Snyder Nursing Home Sunday School and is accompanist for the First Baptist Church Youth Choir.

The public is invited.

Time was when the homemaker was advised not to freeze cheese, but now she can freeze it under the following circumstances: if the cheese is kept in its original wrapper or if it is double-wrapped tightly in freezer wrap. When thawing, let the cheese defrost, slowly, in its wrappings in the refrigerator.

Consider A Turkey Roast

COLLEGE STATION—With picnic season in full-swing, consider an easy turkey roast for the next outing.

"Since a two-pound frozen roast cooks in just two hours, it can be prepared early the morning of the picnic—or the day before," Mrs. Gwendolyne Clyatt, consumer marketing information specialist, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System, pointed out.

It's ideal for sandwiches—especially since there's no need to prepare a whole bird first.

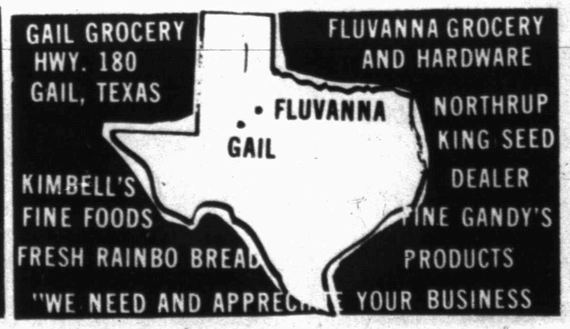

Other advantages include ease in slicing, no waste (it's boneless), and flavor appeal.

"For extra flavor, blend a little rubbed sage into softened butter. Spread butter on bread and add turkey slices."

Add sparkle to a lazy morning's breakfast with orange butter spread for your toast. Cream ¼ cup (½ stick) butter with 1 cup confectioners' sugar and 1 tablespoon each of grated orange rind and orange juice. This will cover eight slices of toast.

Snyderite's Recital Set Monday Night

Mrs. Barbara Carter Perkins, senior from Snyder, will be presented in a piano recital at 8 p.m. Monday, April 29, in Caldwell Recital Hall at Hardin-Simmons University.

Mrs. Perkins is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Carter of Snyder. She is from the studio of Thurman Morrison, professor in piano and music history and head of the Department of Music History and Literature at H-SU. She is a member of Sigma Alpha Iota, women's music fraternity.

The recital is presented in partial fulfillment of the bachelor of music degree with a double major in music education and applied music.

Mrs. Perkins will be assisted by June McFee, post graduate student from Petitcodiac, New Brunswick, Canada, as vocalist and by Yin Yuk Tong, senior from Hong Kong, on the piano.

Mrs. Perkins' selections for the recital include "Sonata in G Major" by Domenico Scarlatti, "Sonata in C Minor" by Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart, "Six Variations on an Original Theme, Opus 34" by Ludwig Van Beethoven, "Eulogy for Dag Hammarskjold" one of Mrs. Perkins' own compositions, "Piano Variations" by Aaron Copland, and "Intermezzo in B Minor, Opus 119, No. 1" and "Rhapsody in E-flat Major, Opus 119, No. 4" by Johannes Brahms.

MRS. RUBEN D. CAMPOS

Miss McCants Says Vows With Mr. Campos

Deborah Ann McCants became the bride of Ruben Dario Campos at 8 p.m. on April 27 in the First Presbyterian Church in Irving. Dr. Thomas Currie of Dallas officiated at the ceremony.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Erskine Walter McCants Jr. of Awali, Bahrain, Arabian Gulf. The groom's parents are Mr. annd Mrs. George C. Campos of Harlingen.

The altar was surrounded by an inverted heart of three tiers of candles. On each side of the altar was a basket of white spring flowers and baskets of greenery and white satin bows. The pews were marked with white satin bows and small nosegays of white spring flowers.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of candlelight satin with a cathedral train. The front panel was appliqued with medallions of pearl embroidered lace. The yoke and sleeves of the dress were of silk illusion and the sleeves were embroidered with lace medallions also. The collar was of re-embroidered and pearled lace and the yoke of the dress was outlined in pearls. Her veil fell full length of the train and was of silk illusion. It fell in three tiers from a lace and pearl embroidered cap. Her bouquet was made up of spring flowers and illusion, white roses, and white satin streamers. She carried a lace handkerchief borrowed from her sister and she wore a lucky six-pence in her shoe.

Maid of honor was Diana Jeanne McCants, S.M.U. student in Dallas, sister of the bride. Trydell Singer of Houston and roommate of the bride at college, served as bridesmaid. They wore aqua crystalline dresses. The necklines were outlined with a wide ruffle and the sleeves were puffed. They wore hats of horsehair braid and white gloves and carried nosegays of white daisies and yellow daisies and white ribbons.

The groom's brother, Lt. Roel Campos, of Seattle, Wash. was best man. Bruce Russo of Dallas was groomsman. Ushers were C.L. Chambers of Irving, A.B. Swank of Dallas, cousin of the bride; and Robert Campos of Harlingen, brother of the groom.

Mr. Greg Atkins of Dallas, sang "The Lord's Prayer" and the "Wedding Song," accompanied at the organ by Mr. W. Wells.

The reception was held in the home of Mr. and Mrs. C.L. Chambers in Irving. The bride's table was laid with a white cutwork linen cloth and centered with a tiered wedding cake decorated with fresh flowers. On either side of the cake were arrangements of spring flowers in white, yellows and aqua shades. The groom's table was decorated with a candle and fresh flowers and a silver coffee service and chocolate cake. The guests registered at a table decorated with spring flowers and candles. Rice bags were passed to the guests by Miss Swank and were tied with aqua ribbons and sprigs of spring flowers. Mr. Greg Atkins sang and played the organ on the terrace.

The houseparty included Margaret Swank, Sally Swank, Mrs. Jim Raikes, cousins of the bride and Romelia Campos of Austin, sister of the groom.

The couple will make their home at 2702 Lucas St. until midsummer when they will move to New York City where the groom will attend the Law School of Columbia University.

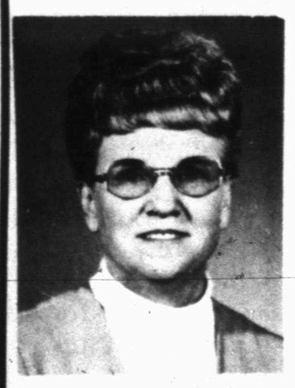

The bride is a graduate of Snyder High School and the University of Texas at Austin.

The groom graduated from Harlingen High School and the University of Texas at Austin.

JUSTICE OF THE PEACE
PRECINCT I
SCURRY COUNTY
FOR FAIR, COURTEOUS AND EFFICIENT SERVICE

The Justice of the Peace Court is a very important office. It's service is not just-though this is included-collecting fines. People are having more to do with the Justice of Peace Court because of the traffic laws. This is causing an enormous amount of service in the Court.

The Justice of the Peace should know something about the laws. It is not against the law for a non-lawyer to know some law. The way to know some law is to buy a $1.50 paperback "legal handbook" of law at some drug store and study it. How would one know the law had been violated if one did not know the specific law? No one is to substitute one's opinions or views for the specific language of the law in the statutes. Therefore, if I did not know the specific law I would ask those officials that are elected for this very purpose. If elected to this office, I will work with all the Elected Officials in the County, without losing any authority of the Justice Office.

The Justice of the Peace is authorized to try and adjudge all manner of debts and other matters involving controveries not to exceed $200.00. This is called the "Small Claims Court". This Court involves rent and rent houses all over the precinct. This is called "forceable detainer". Also, the issuance of warrants and citations that are served through other offices, such as the Sheriff and Constable, originate from this office.

The Justice of the Peace is authorized, and it is his duty, to hold an inquest when a person dies a natural or unnatural death unattended by a physician or without the presence of a sufficient number of witnesses. The Justice Office is to make and keep a permanent record of these inquests and deposit one with the District Clerk.

The Court sets most bail bonds for felony cases which is to hold one until one's case is presented to a grand jury. This also involves working with the District Court Officials without losing any of the Justice Court authority.

The Justice of the Peace is possessed with the authority to perform marriages. I think this is a very important service of this office to the people of Snyder and Scurry County.

Last but not least, there is the "right of the accused". In Civil Suits, there almost always are two sides in the cause and each side has an equal right in court. The Law says the side that has the "preponderance of evidence" is judged in their favor.

In Criminal Procedure, the accused has rights. One is "not guilty until proven so". One is "only accused". One has a right to confront the one who accused. One has the right to know what the charge is. One does not have to give evidence against one's self. One has a right to be heard by self or counsel or both. One has a right to have witnesses. One has a right in a li courts to have a trail by jury. In most of the cases, one has a right to a reasonable bail.

I have stated that the office is an important one. I think the one that is elected to this office should be mentally and physically qualified.

A little personal history: I have lived in Scurry County all my life. This is not a reflection on new-comers; because I hope people, business and new-what-have-you keep coming, and new babies keep being born in Scurry County. I attended High School in Snyder and I have had 2 years of college and one year in the Seminary at Fort Worth, Texas. My wife attended and all four of our children finished high school in Snyder. I have served people in every part of the county.

I would like to have the Justice of the Peace job. If elected to the office, I will act in each service of the office with courtesy and fairness in regard to each cause that comes before the Court.

It is almost impossible not to overlook someone in a campaign. Therefore, I wish you would accept this article as a personal appeal to you that read it, for your vote in May 4th election.

Thank you very much,
Cone J. Merritt

WEDDING PLANNED—Mr. and Mrs. Bill Hayes of Pecos, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Debra Kincheloe, to Randy Davis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Z.W. Davis of Snyder. The wedding is planned for June 7 at East Side Church of Christ in Snyder.

Antique Fads Are Confusing

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

There are fads in antiques now which is confusing, but the interest of young couples in anything hand made by earlier Americans is one of the most rewarding aspects of her long career with the Irvington House Thrift Shop, says lovely Robin Cushing. The New York shop is considered one of the most successful of its type.

Interviewed at the annual Madison Square Garden Antique Show, where the shop has maintained a booth manned by Mrs. Cushing since the show's inception 18 years ago, Mrs. Cushing called attention to a whirligig that one after another young person fondled.

"They are so anxious to have something old-American, preferably hand made — pine or another good piece with good lines. They want to know about pressed glass and how it can be used with the furniture they have. They seem to appreciate articles made by people with a point of view..."

In 24 years the Park Avenue socialite volunteer has helped parlay furnishings and other donations made to the 40-year-old shop from a net of $12,000 to a "net any retail business would envy." Funds are used to maintain its center for children with rheumatic fever, "one of the most important institutions of its type in the world," she insists.

"As for fads, tastes are changing so rapidly since people became antiques conscious a few years ago, that even the immediate past is important. It is frightening that our whole pace is so accelerated that things in use for only 15 years may be in demand."

Last year 1,920 pocketbooks with marquisette or enameled frames were in great demand — this year "you can't give them away." And Spanish shawls were bringing $100 "until Adolfo began making them." But things of intrinsic value are still in demand, she says.

In her early years "donations were tremendous." Her first sale — two beat-up, 18th-century chairs — brought $750, they were so rare.

"We would get many diamond necklaces and we had so many antique Oriental rugs we didn't really know what to do with them — some beauties were sold for $200. And there were the collections of wonderful silver — one set of 24 place settings of Georgian rattail silver was complete to marrow picks..." she recalled.

There are not so many paintings — Utrillos, Soyers — the kind that were donated years ago. People no longer have the excess profits to require tax deductions, she remarked.

It is one reason the shop continues to get choice pieces — they are able to merchandise them well to provide the highest tax figures and are "always able to verify established values." Based on original price condition, present value and prestige exposure, their own lawyers helped establish certain standards for antiques with the Internal Revenue Bureau. This arrangement was precipitated by one assessment of $3,000 for an Irish rent table (one with drawers in its legs). It was questioned and then upheld after a study by the tax bureau.

Many of their very good things are auctioned at Sotheby Parke Bernet. And they take a variety of items to the Madison Square show each year "because it is a good source of customers and donations."

In fact, she works so hard at solicitation, she says her husband, gynecologist Dr. Robert Cushing, has said he doesn't know why people invite her to dinner parties — she uses them as a springboard for donations.

"If a charity had foresight and space to put things away for 10 years, they could realize much more," she insists. "Recently I got $600 for a satsumi vase that had been stuck away in someone's closet. Even little cloisonne pieces have become valuable. They are of a kind I gave away in India and China for game prizes when I was there with the Red Cross during the war. I had some pieces made into lamps, but I wish I had more."

A lifelong volunteer worker — she began as a nurses' aid when she was at Barnard College in New York — she is proudest of having raised "two divine children" during that period. In addition to searching out the donations and running the thrift shop, she runs her husband's office. And soon she may even help her son run for senator from their district, she added.

Quick Bread

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Although we've baked dozens of loaves of banana quick bread in our test kitchen, we never thought of adding peanut butter to the batter until a friend who lives in the Canal Zone and a reader from Jackson, Miss., sent us their recipes for such a bread. Then we came upon the combination in "Cook-in — A Beginner's Guide to the Fun of Cooking" by Kathleen Dunning Fisher (David White). On testing all three recipes our tasters agreed that Kathleen's was by far the best because it made the tenderest and most delicate loaf. Here is our adaptation of her nutritious bread.

BANANA BREAD

2 cups unsifted flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup butter or margarine
1 cup sugar
2 large eggs
2 to 3 ripe bananas
½ cup crunchy peanut butter

Grease a 9 by 5 by 3 inch loaf pan. Thoroughly stir together the flour, baking powder, baking soda and salt. Cream butter and sugar. Beat eggs until thickened and lemon color; add to butter-sugar mixture and blend. With a fork, finely mash enough banana to make 1 cup; add peanut butter and blend. Into butter-sugar-egg mixture stir the flour mixture, in about 4 additions, alternately with banana mixture until just smooth each time. Turn into prepared pan. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in center comes out clean — 50 to 70 minutes. Let stand on a wire rack for 10 minutes; loosen edges and turn out on rack; turn right side up. Cool completely. Bread slices well fresh from the oven or cold.

NEW FACES—Snyder Day Camp this year will have some new faces. Scouts from Fluvanna will join the Snyder girls in Towle Park during the week of June 10-14. Thanks to the effort of three interested young women from Fluvanna, a girl scout program has begun in Fluvanna. All girls between the first and twelfth grades are asked to contact these women. Pictured, are, left to right, seated, La Rue Summers, Dolores Merritt and Millie Davis. Standing is Lou Voss, service unit chairman.

ENGAGED—Mr. and Mrs. Richard W. Frick of Houston announce the engagement and approaching marriage of his daughter, Linda Kay, to Bruce William Kenner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ford Kenner, 3017 Thirty-eighth Street, Snyder. The wedding is scheduled for June 8 at Bellaire Methodist Church in Houston at 2 p.m.

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Tito Capobianco, opera producer and director, has been named artistic director elect of the San Diego Opera, effective this season. He will become artistic director upon Walter Herbert's retirement after the 1976-77 season.

Capobianco has conceived and directed many new productions for Beverly Sills at the New York City Opera, including "Julius Caesar," "Tales of Hoffmann," "Maria Stuarda" and "Roberto Devereux." He recently created a new "Norma" production for Joan Sutherland at the San Francisco Opera. He did "Mefistofele" last September with Norman Treigle in the title role in San Diego.

Capobianco resides with his wife and their two children in the Canary Islands and will move to San Diego in 1976.

Marine Corps Now 'Builds' Women

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Two Women Marines took their places recently in a previously all-male bastion, the West Coast Recruit Depot's NCO School.

As a consequence, the Marine Corps may have to change the recruiting slogan it has used for years: "The Marine Corps Builds Men." The Corps has turned its attention to developing leadership skills in Women Marine noncommissioned officers (NCOs).

Training women is not new to the Marines but like other military services over the years a "separate but equal" attitude has developed about women's training.

Caught in the rip-tide effect of Women's Lib, the Corps is revising its attitude about women's training.

The NCO school, proving ground for noncommissioned officers, stresses training in such varied military subjects as leadership, techniques of military instruction, tactics, mapping, first aid and physical training.

The first two women NCOs to go through the school, Sgt. Barbara Metoyer and Cpl. Karla Reese, found that pioneering in the 20th century is as challenging as it ever was. Undaunted by minor adversities, they marched through the course, much to the surprise of some of their classmates.

"Tactics was murder," says Sgt. Metoyer, echoed by Cpl. Reese. "I couldn't even read a street map."

She is proud of being able to take a field radio apart, put it back together and use it, but "I'm not for Women's Lib," she said.

Sgt. Metoyer, 29, got her first glimpse of Marine life at Quantico, Va., where she was born into a military family. Cpl. Reese, 19, is from San Diego, the daughter of a Marine and a former Woman Marine.

An education counselor at Depot Education-Transition, Sgt. Metoyer has been in the Corps for three years and recently reenlisted for six more.

Cpl. Reese, an administration clerk, has spent nearly two years in the Marine Corps.

Both are quick to say they've been treated like people.

A speech class in which students are required to talk for 15 minutes on a given subject helped "bring us out of that shell," says Sgt. Metoyer. She says working with 28 male students was no problem.

The women were not permitted to participate in field maneuvers but were not chagrined.

Enjoy A Trip To Old England

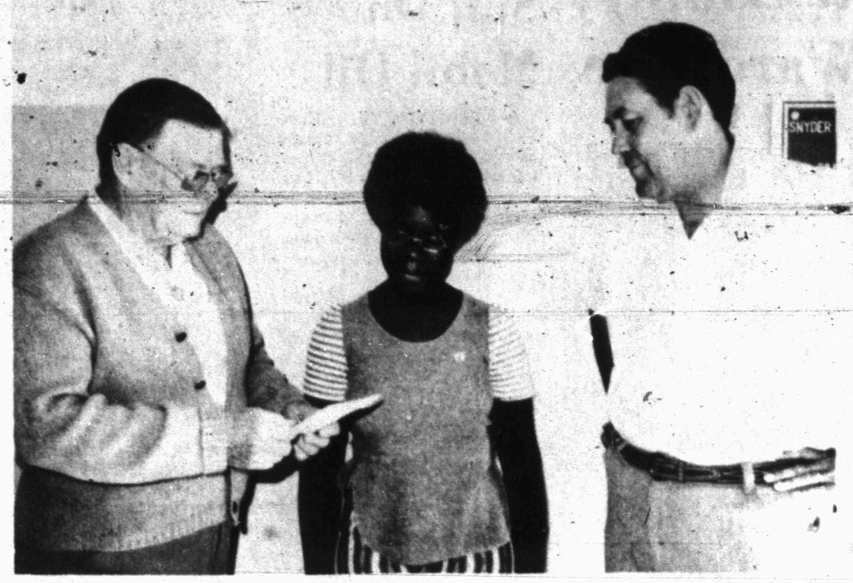

THE SOUND OF COAGHES. By Leon Garfield. Viking. 256 Pages. $5.95.

"Once upon a winter's night when the wind blew...and a fishy piece of moon scuttled among the clouds, a coach came thundering down the long hill..." is how this wonderfully entertaining novel begins and immediately catches up the reader in a rousing, old-fashioned adventure story that never slackens as the tale rolls to its end.

All of the passengers on the coach are men except for one, a young woman who is ignored by all when the coach makes a rest stop at the Red Lion in Dorking but quickly forces herself upon their attention shortly after when she gives birth to a child and then dies. Not knowing who the dead woman was, the child is adopted by the coachman, Chichester, and his wife — who rides shotgun on the coach, "The Flying Cradle" — and the orphan proceeds to grow up in 18th-century England riding in a special seat on the coach manned by his foster parents.

Since this is a picaresque novel full of those wonderful coincidences that abounded in the literature from which it derives — books such as Henry Fielding's "Tom Jones" — it is inevitable that as the orphan boy Sam grows he will stumble into numerous adventures. He does and they are fascinating. It also is inevitable that when he reaches a certain age he will set out to discover who his mother was and to search for his father. And, sure enough, with coincidence after coincidence piling one on the other he eventually does.

Stagflation Is Hitting Wallets

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Stagflation is not a disease or a new sex movie, it's what's happening to your pocketbook, an economist says.

Dr. Edwin Caldwell of the Connecticut Bank & Trust Co. says Connecticut is suffering from a "stagflation" economy. He says that occurs when major business indicators stop growing, indicating stagnation, and each dollar buys fewer goods and services, indicating inflation.

MRS. WAYNE BETHEL

Graduate Recital To Be Presented

Mrs. Wayne Bethel will be presented in a graduate piano recital Sunday afternoon, April 28 in the Western Texas College Fine Arts Theatre at 3:30 p.m. This recital is in partial fulfillment for a Master of Music Degree in Applied Music.

Mrs. Bethel will play the Beethoven Sonata, No. 109, Ravel's Sonatine, four Chopin Etudes and Aaron Copland's Passacaglia.

For the past seventeen years Mrs. Bethel has taught music in Snyder, two of those years in the Snyder Public School system. Upon graduation from Baylor University she came to Snyder to teach music under Robert Clintoh, music supervisor for the Snyder schools. While at Baylor Mrs. Bethel, nee Lynn Reedy, was guest soloist with the Baylor Symphony Orchestra her senior year. An active member of the National Guild of Piano Teachers, she also has judged Guild Auditions in Texas, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Louisana and entered her pupils in Guild when they used to travel to Abilene before establishing a local audition center. For many years, she served as District Jr. Counselor for Texas Federated music Clubs.

For the last three years Mrs. Bethel has been working on her degree at Hardin-Simmons University under the guidance of Mr. Thurmond Morrison, professor of piano and music history. She was a graduate assistant in the piano department.

Mrs. Bethel is married to Wayne Bethel and has two children Charles and Laurie, ages 13 and 14.

Everyone is invited to the recital.

Before moving to a new location, have draperies, rugs and slipcovers cleaned. Also get furniture re-upholstered—if needed—and do a general overhaul of belongings, suggests Patricia A. Bradshaw, housing and home furnishings specialist, Texas Agricultural Extension Serive, The Texas A&M University System.

WHAT IS THE RELATIONSHIP OF THE COUNTY SCHOOL SUPERINTENDENT AND COMMON AND/OR INDEPENDENT SCHOOL DISTRICTS?

Please consider this and forthcoming information in determining for whom you shall vote on election day. If elected, I will take the necessary legal steps at the earliest possible date, to abolish the office of Scurry County school superintendent and to transfer all funds, records, and remaining responsibilities to the proper designated offices.

A common school district is under the immediate control and management of a board of trustees who are under the general supervision of the county governing school board.

The public schools of a independent school district are under the control and management of a local board of trustees. However, a school district with less than 150 scholastics, in order to be governed by laws which apply to independent school districts, must annually file with the Texas Education Agency and the county clerk minutes of local board action requesting such.

There is not a common school district in Scurry County. The two schools having less than 150 scholastics have filed regular annual requests to be governed by laws of independent school districts.

The basic responsibility (by law) of the county school superintendent, as will be given in forthcoming information, is to advise, approve, coordinate, and supervise the operation of common school districts.

Independent school districts do by the designation as "independent," indicate a desire to be allowed to operate their schools by a local board. They select a competent professional school superinetendent to administer board policy within the guidelines for local policies, and state and federal laws.

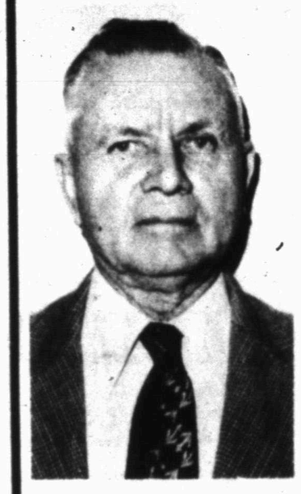

The responsibility for many services that have in past times been provided by the county superintendent has mostly been reassigned to regional service centers or returned to the independent districts. The service centers have complete staffs of professional personnel available to aid in providing services as desired by local school districts. Cooperative services desired by two or more districts may be organized through the service center and may involve schools in one or more counties, thus giving greater flexibility and more opportunities of cooperation in providing for special service programs.

In future articles, I will list the requirements of the county superintendent by state law and list information concerning the cost for operation of this office and how it effects each school district in the county.

Miss Ford Country Unveils Wardrobe

DALLAS—Miss Ford Country, Sandy Lankford, unveiled her new Ford fashion wardrobe for Spring this week at Dallas' Fairmont Hotel. Alan Nelson of Corinth Street, a division of Nardis of Dallas, a respected name in national fashion circles, designed the outfits.

Sandy, a blonde beauty who travels the Lone Star State representing Ford dealers at rodeos, civic events and personal appearances, has a mix and match wardrobe that combines jackets, shirts, pants and vests in her official wardrobe.

Stressing fabric selection in his creation of the four looks of Miss Ford Country, Nelson announces the first appearance of the new fabric polyester "matte jersey" in Miss Ford Country's After Six Elite Cocktail Dress and her Thunderbird Evening Dress.

Miss Ford Country's Official '74 outfit includes a white seersucker blouse with buckeneer sleeves. The fabric is dacron polyester.

The blouse is combined with a vest and jean pants, both in a basket weave 100 per cent polyester. A shirt jacket completes the outfit.

Miss Ford Country's Pant Outfit for speaking engagements is a 100 per cent woven polyester fabric combining a straight leg pant with a single breasted, belted jacket. A short sleeve shirt jacket and long sleeve vest of identical fabric combine for a quick-changing suit.

The blue-green and white checked blouse designed in both long and sleeveless versions adds the desired color and alive feeling to interchangeable outfits.

Miss Ford Country will be seen in her new wardrobe at personal appearances on behalf of Ford dealers throughout the state of Texas.

SANDY LANKFORD

Hunt Files Suit On Mobil Oil

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP) — Dallas oil man Nelson Bunker Hunt filed one of the largest lawsuits ever in the United States Friday, as he asked for nearly $13 billion in damages from Mobil Oil Corp. because of breach of contract and anti-trust violations.

The suit said Hunt's oil holdings in Libya were nationalized last year because Mobil and other oil companies refused to live up to a 1971 contract. The suit names 12 other oil firms as co-conspirators.

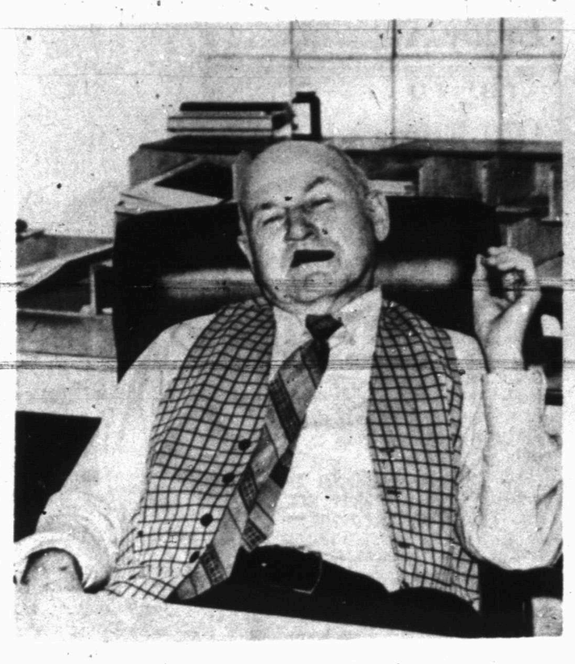

The action was filed in U.S. Circuit Court for the Eastern District of Virginia by Atty. Philip J. Hirschkop of Alexandria. The suit asks for $12.6 billion in treble damages and $318 million in punitive damages.

Hunt, who had $165 billion in oil holdings in Libya, made an agreement in 1971 with Mobil and the 12 other oil corporations that they would "unite and stand together with the Libyan government and in their reactions to programs introduced by the government," according to the suit.

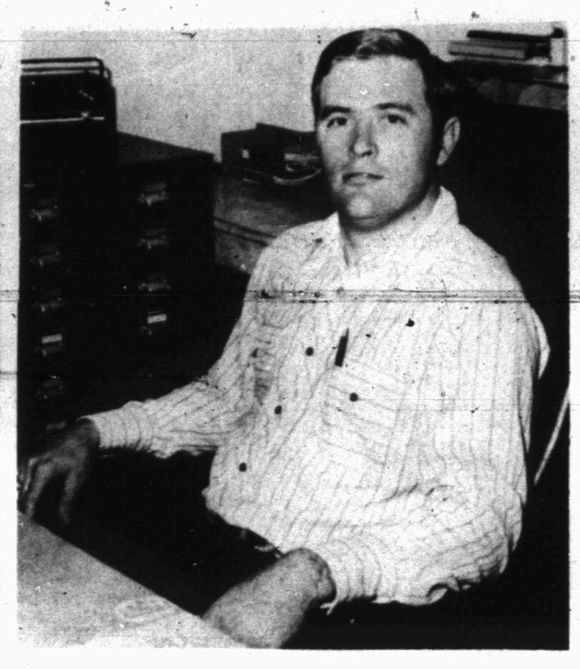

The agreement stipulated that, if the Libyan government cut back the crude oil production of one party, the other signers of the agreement would make up his shortfall.

The suit also claimed that Mobil "has monopolized and has combined and conspired with others to monopolize the importation and sale of Persion Gulf oil."

The suit named 12 other oil companies as co-conspirators: Texaco Inc.; Standard Oil of California; Shell Petroleum Ltd. and Shell Petroleum Maatschappij; Gulf Oil Corp.; Occidental Petroleum; Continental Oil Corp.; Amerada Hess Corp.; Marathon Oil Co.; Atlantic Richfield; W.R. Grace Co.; Murphy Oil Corp.; and Gelsenberg, A. G., a German oil corporation.

R.B. BAKER

EDDIE MITCHELL

SPCA Office Manager At C-City Is Retiring

R.B. Baker will retire April 30 as manager of the Colorado City field office for Sweetwater Production Credit Association. A position he has held since 1945. He was honored by PCA at a dinner Friday night in Sweetwater. His retirement will become effective shortly after he turns 70, the mandatory retirement age.

Baker will be succeeded by Eddie Mitchell as manager of the Colorado City office. Sweetwater PCA serves six counties, Mitchell, Nolan, Borden, Fisher, Scurry and Dawson.

Baker was born in Van Zandt County. His parents moved to Colorado City when he was a month old. He graduated from Colorado High School and then went to business school in Kansas City, M., where he met his wife, Margaret Wittman. They were married September 16, 1931.

Baker worked for National Steel & Supply Co., in Kansas City before he returned to Colorado City in 1931. He was engaged in farming until 1942, when he became manager of Seiff's Gin. In 1945 he became manager of the local PCA office, succeeding J. W. Watson. The peak loan volume at that time was $190,000 and has reached 2¾ million during the 29 years he has been manager.

PCA is completely owned by the stockholders and makes loans to farmers and ranchers for any of their needs. It was organized in 1933 for a safe and dependable source of credit. Baker says he has enjoyed the years he has worked for them.

F.C. Shillingburg, president of Sweetwater PCA, says, "Baker has done a wonderful job, He's well liked and respected by everyone concerned. He has contributed greatly through the association to the economy of the area he serves.

"A whole lot of good things would be said about R.B.," says Raymond Watlington, Mitchell County farmer and a PCA stockholder. "He's the best man I've seen in the profession he's in. Baker is well respected all over the county for the job he's done and we hate to see him go."

Mitchell and his wife, Cresta, moved to Colorado City in December, 1972 and now live at 956 Marshall. They have an 8 month old son, Brian Paul.

Mitchell was born in Sweetwater and grew up around the Trent community. He is a graduate of Texas Tech University with a degree in Agricultural Economics. Prior to joining PCA in Colorado City, he was with the USDA-SRS in Austin for about 2½ years.

The new PCA office manager grew up on a farm in the Trent area and while attending high school was active in the Future Farmers of America. He was president of the local chapter, was on several judging teams, showed livestock at many stock shows around Texas, and holds the Lone Star Farmer Degree.

The Bakers will continue to reside in Colorado City after his retirement. He has worked with many organizations in Colorado City and continues in several offices. He is a charter board member of the Colorado City Housing Authority, formed in 1961, and still serves on that board. He is secretary-treasurer of Northside Church of Christ; an active member of the Kiwanis Club and former president of that organization; he served on the board of the Colorado City Chamber of Commerce from 1957-1959; he served on the city council of Colorado City from August 1952 until April 1959, serving as mayor from 1953 until 1955; he has been active in fund raising activities for the Industrial Team, Boy Scouts and has worked to help many organizations including 4-H Clubs and FFA chapters.

Clash In 47th Day

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Syrian and Israeli forces clashed for the 47th consecutive day on Mt. Hermon and the Golan Heights below, the Syrian command reported today.

Syrian tanks, missile batteries and artillery shelled Israeli positions all along the 40-mile front, Damascus radio said.

In an interview with the Beirut magazine Al Diyar, Syrian Foreign Minister Abdel Halim Khaddam said fighting would continue in spite of the presence of U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger in the Middle East next week.

"Kissinger's presence or absence has no connection with the Golan fighting," Khaddam said. "The visits regardless of their nature will not ease the intensity of the fighting."

Kissinger will travel to Tel Aviv and Damascus to discuss disengagement of forces on the Golan Heights.

In Cairo, a political commentator charged the Soviet Union, Iraq and Libya with taking "hostile political attitudes towards Egypt." Ihsan Abdel Kouddous wrote in Akhbar el Yom that the "Soviet Union wants to retain us as a sphere of influence and talk on our behalf, keeping the United States as the representative of Israel."

Texas Traffic Deaths Down

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Traffic accidents have killed 725 persons in Texas this year, a 24 per cent decline from the comparable period of 1973.

The Department of Public Safety said fatal accidents this year total 635, a 20 per cent decrease.

DPS officials attribute the drops to the 55 miles per hour speed limit, compared with 70 m.p.h. last year, and reduced automobile driving because of the fuel shortage.

GRAIN MARKET NEWS TELEPHONE SERVICE

You producers will not have to wonder what the price of grain is when you get ready to sell if you take advantage of the new market news service now available.

Daily grain price information is available for the cost of a long distance telephone call. The service will be directed towards the four major grain producing areas of Texas-the High Plains, Rolling Plains, Central Texas and South Texas.

Information on the 3 minute recording will contain a brief summary of the market for that day-including prices being paid to the farmer, elevator selling prices, and futures market prices. Also, additional items of interest such as crop production reports and world agricultural situation are included as reports are received.

These numbers are as follows: Amarillo-(806) 352-7411, Lubbock (806) 763-3285, Vernon-(817) 552-7541. You should jot these numbers down on your calendar or some place you will have readily available.

This service is being provided by the Texas Dept. of Agriculture.

SCREWWORM THREAT

This has already been mentioned, but I think we should be reminded again, especially since we sent a sample of worms to be identified this work.

It appears there may be a big buildup of worms this spring due to the mild winter we have had.

Livestock owners should double their efforts to locate, treat and prevent outbreaks. Producers are urged to inspect animals frequently, treat all wounds, and collect and submit samples of any worms to the Mission Laboratory for identification.

Mailing cartons and vials are available in my office if you need any.

PECAN SPRAYING

Several pecan growers have called the office in reference to spraying pecan trees.

It is too early yet to spray for the casebearer. This spraying will probably be due about the third or fourth week in May. Weather and other factors will determine when the casebearer moth hatches and becomes active. Keep check on this column and other news releases in the paper for proper timing and insecticide recommendations.

An application of zinc sulfate when pecan leaves are approximately one-third grown will give added growth to the pecan tree as well as prevent rosette. Rosette is a nutritional disease of pecan and is characterized by short, stubby growth of limbs.

Many producers, however, combine this application of zinc with the casebearer spray and make one application.

Now is a good time to bud or graft pecans. Usually in this area April 20-May 20 is the better time for budding and grafting or when the bark will slip easily.

Leaflets and fact sheets on budding and grafting are available at the County Extension Office for you.

Remains Of 8 POWs Identified

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lt. Col. Edwin L. Atterberry, husband of Thaylia Atterberry of Austin, Tex., was among the eight U.S. Air Force officers listed by the Pentagon Friday as having died in captivity in North Vietnam.

The remains of 23 U.S. war prisoners were returned by the North Vietnamese last month when experts began examining them to make positive identification.

The Pentagon said a total of 15 of the 23 of the returned POW remains, including the eight listed Friday, have been identified by the experts and officially listed as killed in action.

The other seven officers listed Friday were:

Lt. Col William C. Diehl Jr., whose three children live in Norman, Okla.

Col. Ward K. Dodge, whose widow Mary lives in Colorado Springs, Colo.

Col. Gene T. Pemberton, Cameron, Mo.

Col. Benjamin B. Newsom, whose widow Edith is from Madison, Va.

Capt. Lance P. Sijan, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester Sijan live in Milwaukee, Wis.

Col. Norman Schmidt, whose widow Marie is from Apple Valley, Calif.

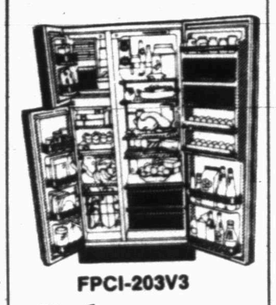

Lt. Col. Ronald E. Storz, whose widow Sandra lives in Portsmouth, N.H.

Guests Drink

SOUTHAMPTON, Bermuda (AP) — When the Southampton Princess Hotel observed its first anniversary of operation recently, a check of the year's records produced some interesting statistics.

It wasn't surprising to learn that the Bermuda resort's 33,000 guests consumed 250,000 meals, including 12 tons of rib of beef, but their thirst was something else. During the same period, the guests quaffed 20,000 bottles of wine.

Tigers Sweep

HEREFORD—The Snyder High School varsity Tigers thumped the Hereford Whitefaces twice, 15-2 and 19-8, in a doubleheader here Friday. The victories boost the Tiger season record to 19-11 and make them 4-2 in second half district play. Hereford is 1-5 in second half action.

Doak Witherspoon fired a brilliant two hitter for the Tigers in the opener. He got plenty of support from his teammates, who shelled two different pitchers for 13 hits. Robert Braziel and Witherspoon each collected three safeties. One of Doak's hits was a double. Randy Gressett hit a triple and a single, Sid Perry collected two singles, Ralph Lewis tripled, and Robert Alderete singled. V. T. Roberson doubled.

Snyder scored two runs in the 1st, one in the 3rd, six in the 4th and six in the 5th in the first game. Hereford got single tallies in the 1st and 3rd frames.

Gary Greenlee, Robert Braziel and Doak Witherspoon combined forces on the mound for the Tigers in the second game. Although they gave up 13 hits and eight runs, their teammates gave them more than enough support to overcome Hereford's offensive fireworks. Snyder tallied 19 runs off 20 hits. Snyder scored once in the 1st, twice in the 3rd, six times in the 5th, seven times in the 6th and three times in the 7th. Hereford scored once in the 1st, three times in the 3rd and four times in the 5th.

Randy Gressett, Ralph Lewis and Robert Braziel each slammed four hits for the Tigers in the second game. One of Gressett's hits was a triple, and one of Lewis' hits was a double. Sid Perry also doubled. Robert Alderete, V. T. Roberson and Barry Blalock each stroked two singles. Danny Brumley also singled.

CELEBRITIES ON THE COUCH

By Dick Maurice

Anybody who has ever seen Peter Lupus in his role of Willie Armitage in the adventure series, "Mission Impossible", will not be very surprised to learn that he is a weight lifter and body-building enthusiast. This handsome TV star and Playgirl's April centerfold is the former "Mr. Indianapolis". Born there, Peter left Butler U. to study acting at Jordan College of Radio, Television, and Drama. He appeared in a number of musicals and later on "The Red Skelton Hour" and "The Mike Douglas Show." You don't get those bulging muscles and physique by sitting around! He's one actor who's constantly on the go working his way to the top.

MAURICE: How did it all come about-the health foods, the body building and getting in shape?

LUPUS: It all started for me in the eighth grade when my physical education teacher told me that I would never have a great build but that I was going to be tall and could have good posture. I remember I use to stand up straight against the wall for an hour a day to improve my posture. I started taking home special diet charts so that my mother could help build me up. Eventually it worked so well that I had to skip a grade just to get a bigger desk.

MAURICE: After graduating from Butler University you decided to embark on an acting career. Was it easy for you?

LUPUS: I was lucky. In 1963, I made "Muscle Beach Party", after which I was signed to make movies in Italy. They changed my name to Rock Stevens and over the next few years I made a number of films and thinking back over it, I'm lucky to be alive.

MAURICE: After the films in Europe, what came next-"Mission Impossible" series?

LUPUS: Yes. The part I played was the most difficult to cast. They has interviewed 80 or 90 fellows but were unable to find the combination of both physical and acting talents. The minute I walked in the door, they smiled and I knew I had the part. I loved all 7 years of the series. I worked with some great professionals all of whom took time out to help me.

MAURICE: How many vitamins do you take a day?

LUPUS: In order for me to keep in shape along with the exercise and my diet I take 150 vitamins and food supplement pills a day. It costs me about $50 a week.

MAURICE: With that many vitamins when you travel you must have to take with you a suitcase full of them.

LUPUS: Yes as a matter of fact something very funny happened to me once with my suitcase full of pills. I was once stopped at a foreign border by custom officials and when they opened my bag they thought they had captured the biggest dope smuggler of all time. But the funny thing is, I don't even drink or smoke.

MAURICE: Do you have a philosophy on life?

LUPUS: Yes, just recently in the last few years I have begun to realize how important it is to relax and take time out to enjoy the people around you and living every day to its fullest.

MAURICE: When you hear the word happiness, what flashes into your mind?

LUPUS: I'll be honest with you-my wife and my little boy flash immediately into my mind.

MAURICE: How do you feel about the women's liberation movement?

LUPUS: I honestly don't know what some of them want. I can remember when I was dating the gals were always liberated. I gave them freedom to do anything they wanted with me. So there was never any problem. Kidding aside, if a woman does a man's job she should be paid equal pay. I hope I will never see the day when women will become so liberated that they will not want me to open a door for them or extend some other courtesy that I enjoy doing.

MAURICE: What were some of the odd jobs that you held before the big break came?

LUPUS: I've done a number of things. I've been a butcher, I was a car salesman for a while and I always tried to give them a square deal. When I first came to Hollywood I managed a health club and as I said before, if I were to ever get out of show business I would probably return to the health spa business.

MAURICE: What causes a six foot four giant like yourself to be weak in the knees?

LUPUS: Well I think it is the basic human desire to be liked and to be loved. I sometimes feel the insecurity people won't like me and I want them to be a friend and to accept and to like me..

MAURICE: What habit can't you break?

LUPUS: Yes one habit that I'd like to break is the tendency I have to stay up late at night. I should really try to force myself to go to bed earlier but basically I'm a night person and my job is a day job, and there always seems to be this conflict.

MAURICE: You've been married 13 years. Is there a recipe for a successful marriage?

LUPUS: As you know, in show business it's very difficult to maintain both a career and a happy home life. I'm very fortunate. Sharon is very much a home body and has no desire for a career. She's an excellent mother and a marvelous wife who understands me completely.

MAURICE: What do you think about the sexual freedom that's shown on the screen, stage and magazines today?

LUPUS: Well I'll tell you. As long as it's advertised on the outside what you're going to see on the inside I think it's fine. The people that want to see that should be allowed to.

MAURICE: What advise would you give to a bridegroom on his wedding night?

LUPUS: Take a lot of vitamin E and get a little exercise in for about a month before.

Fiance Appeals

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Steven Weed has urged the Symbionese Liberation Army to free newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst and not throw away $4 million set aside for her safe release.

Weed said Friday night he was working on a plan involving the money, which has been put in escrow by the Hearst Corp. The firm offered $4 million if Miss Hearst was safely released to her parents by May 3.

"One of the things I have been doing in the last eight days is to try to get together a specific proposal for this $4 million, to throw this thing out and just let everyone understand what the SLA is throwing away in return for Patty," he said in an interview with KGO-TV.

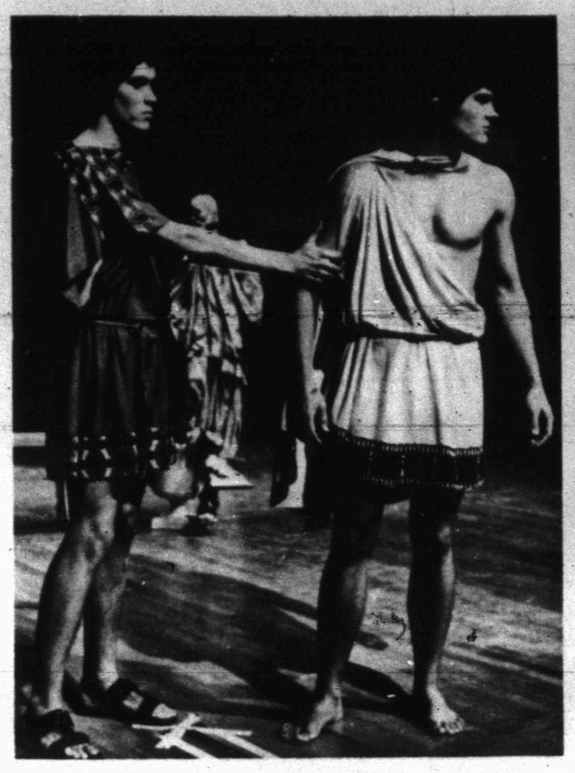

Weed was engaged to Miss Hearst when she was dragged from a Berkeley apartment they shared on Feb. 4. The SLA, a terrorist group, claimed responsibility for abducting her.

In a tape released Wednesday, Miss Hearst called Weed her "ex-fiance" and said he was a "clown" and a "sexist pig."

Weed gave no details of his proposal, except to say it would not be like the $2 million food giveaway launched earlier in response to SLA demands.

"You can do a lot of things with $4 million; you can win a lot of friends," he said. "Somehow, the SLA doesn't seem to care about it. They seem to be trying to push it under the rug and everybody seems to be letting them do it."

If the daughter of San Francisco Examiner Editor and President Randolph A. Hearst has not been released, the $4 million reverts to the Hearst Corp.

LEANDER'S FRIEND—Greg Kane, in the role of Naukleros and best friend to Leander, implores him not to get involved with the beautiful Hero, because she is a priestess and may not share in human love. This scene of conflict is from Snyder High Drama Department's production of "Hero and Leander," to be presented on the SHS stage Tuesday evening at 8 p.m.

HERO SEEKS HAPPINESS—Amber Walker, in the role of Hero, implores the gods to grant her a happy day as she makes preparations for becoming a preistess of the temple of Sestos. Miss Walker was chosen as Best Actress in the recent 4AAAA One-Act-Play Contest in Lubbock.

IANTHE APPROACHES—Roxanna Huddleston, playing the role of Ianthe, handmaiden to Hero, approaches one of the gods in this scene from "Hero and Leander," SHS one-act-play for 1974. Miss Huddleston was chosen for all-star cast honors at the recent one-act play contest in Lubbock.

Public Performance Of One-Act Play Is Slated

The Drama Department of Snyder High School will present it's 1974 one-act-play in a public performance Tuesday night at 8 o'clock in the Snyder High School Auditorium.

Included in the cast will be a number of veteran actors and actresses, many of whom will be making their final appearance on the SHS Stage. Lead roles will be played by Amber Walker, Roxanna Huddleston, Patrick Martin and Felton Stephens. Miss Walker and Miss Huddleston are seniors. Other Seniors in the cast include: Paula Parks, Emmalie Sleeper and Greg Patterson. Junior members of the group include Angie Amato and Chuck Stephens. The one sophomore cast member is Greg Kane. Technical crew includes: Keith Carmichael, lighting; Juneanne Brock, curtains; Steve Wilson, sound; and G.G. Miller, director's assistant.

The play is "Hero And Leander," by Franz Grillparzer. The setting is a temple in ancient Greece. The costumes are authentic in design and were created by the Drama Department after much research. In a critique at the District Drama contert held recently in Lubbock, the judge, Dr. Raymond Carver of San Angelo State University, was highly complimentary of the beauty and authenticity of the costuming.

The story is a kind of Greek version of Romeo and Juliet. It's characters have a good bit of contemporary appeal and are more in keeping with today than many might realize from a play set in ancient Greece. It is a love story which ends tragically due to the old problem "lack of communication."

Dr. Carver, in commenting on the play at its contest production remarked over and over about the highly competent speech of the young actors, the movement and choreography, and the high quality of the performance.

The play has been presented to the Cosmorama Study club earlier and the performance on Tuesday evening will be the final performance of the play in Snyder.

Tickets will be on sale at the door and will be $1 for all seats.

Fire Comes To Firemen

SEYMOUR, Ind. (AP) — Firemen were relaxing one Sunday morning recently when a fire rolled up to the back door.

Trainmen on an Amtrak train on the Penn Central tracks found a small fire in the kitchen car. So, they rolled on into Seymour and stopped the train at the rear of the headquarters fire station.

HEALTH TIP from DEAN

Before you leave on your camping or vacation trip, it is wise to have a medical checkup to be sure you are in a fit condition, or to know your limitations. It is better than having to approach a strange doctor away from home. If you are on medication, be sure to take an ample supply to last the trip—prescriptions are difficult to fill away from home. Have a first-aid kit and a first-aid book along in case emergency treatment becomes necessary.

SWORDS into PLOWSHARES

We all believe in 'something' so strongly that it governs our entire life. Verbally or physically, we resist all who oppose us.

But angry words and flying fists never really converted anyone . . . guns can't either. Fighting does not change people very much. Only love can do that.

Isaiah said beat our swords into plowshares and our weapons of war into tools of peace. Let us not confuse or complicate the issue by debating wars.

Nothing could be more vain than trying to stop such monumental clashes. Instead, we should concentrate more on our personal fights and frustrations. For if we, as individuals, can put down our weapons and make peace with our adversaries, then maybe nations will eventually do likewise. After all, nations are made up of individuals like you and me. Why not let real peace begin with us by beating our swords into plowshares and our pruning hooks into impliments for peace?
