LAMESA MAN IS VICTIM OF ASSAULT HERE

OFFICERS FIND HIM WANDERING ABOUT STREETS

STORY OF ATTACK MADE ON HIM RECOUNTED FROM JAIL CELL

Bleeding profusely, unconscious of his surroundings, and greatly in need of medical and surgical aid, J. W. Teal, resident of Lamesa, was picked up near the corner of Broadway and Avenue H at 3 o'clock Sunday morning by a member of the Lubbock police department after he had been found by a Lubbock citizen who notified the officer. He is still in the city jail and officers are trying to link up his story so that those guilty of what he says was an attack on him may be apprehended.

Says Nothing to Hide

Teal has nothing to hide, he said, and when he was interviewed in his cell by a Journal reporter this morning he stated that "he didn't know what it is all about." His story follows:

"I came to Lubbock, from Lamesa, late Friday afternoon. I went to a small hotel and spent the night. I tried to get in connection with my son in Borger, but was unable to do so. Saturday I tried again to reach him by telephone, but was unsuccessful again.

"Late Saturday afternoon I began drinking, and after I took the first

Santa Claus Will Be In Lubbock On Tomorrow Evening

Santa Claus will be here tomorrow night. From way up north, where he stays most of the year, Old Saint Nick, himself, has radio-ed the Avalanche-Journal that he will be on hand Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock, to greet the children of Lubbock and to take them on a tour over the retail district of the city where he will show them the toys and other articles which he has labored all year to make for the Christmas season.

Mayor Pink L. Parrish has proclaimed a gala event and all of the children of the city, with their parents, are expected to be at the Avalanche-Journal office to greet Santa. Practically all of the stores will be open until 9 o'clock and there will be a big welcome. Mayor Parrish will introduce Santa to the children to take the evening off right.

Whether he will make the trip by reindeer team or in an airplane, Santa did not say in his message, but he'll be here when the lid goes off on the greatest Yuletide season in the history of the South Plains.

Two Cars Collide Sunday Afternoon

A Ford speedster stripped down, driven by Sylvan Lester, 1921 Texas avenue and a Chevrolet coupe, said to be driven by a boy about fifteen years of age, collided Sunday afternoon at the intersection of avenue M and 7th street. The license plate shows the Chevrolet coupe to have been registered in Lamb county. The Ford speedster was badly damaged. The Chevrolet was very little damaged. None of the occupants were injured.

Gin At Crosbyton Damaged By Fire

(Special to The Journal)

CROSBYTON, Nov. 29.—Fire of undetermined origin almost completely destroyed the cotton house adjoining the West Texas Gin here Sunday afternoon, and for a time threatened to spread to the gin building proper but was halted by quick work of the fire department. Several bins of seed cotton went up in the flames.

H. E. Gathings, manager of the gin property said today that the loss is partially covered by insurance, but pending a more complete check-up, no estimate of the damage was made. A high wind fanned the flames, and it was with considerable effort that the blaze was confined to the seed house.

Petty Thievery Is Still Rampant Here

Several thefts have been reported to local officers by Lubbock citizens, having taken place the past few days. J. W. Davis reports the loss of an axe, grubbing hoe, gasoline and some other articles, from his home, 1922 Avenue P. E. F. Shepherd, 2311 Thirteenth street, reports the loss of a motor meter and meter light from from his car Sunday night between the hours of 7:30 and 8:30, while the car was standing in front of the First Christian church at Sixteenth street and Avenue J. Local officers are making investigations, and will probably make a round up within the next few days.

CROWELL.—W. W. Webb, 55, found dead on his farm near here. Head partially blown off. Shot gun with empty shell and forked stick near body.

CRAZED FATHER SAID CAUSE OF FAMILY'S DEATH

SIX BARELY ESCAPE IN FIRES AT DALLAS AND FORT WORTH

(By the Associated Press)

MARLOW, Okla., Nov. 29.—An entire family of five was killed at a farm five miles north of here early yesterday and their bodies cremated in a fire that destroyed their home. The coroner said evidence showed that J. E. Seymour, head of the family, committed the deed.

Seymour was to have been taken to Oklahoma City yesterday for an examination to determine whether he was sane. He was alleged to have been informed of the impending examination.

Funeral services for the family were to be held today, with the bodies of the victims contained in one casket.

The victims were: J. E. Seymour, 43, farmer; his wife, Cora, 37; Garden, 13; Kendall 11; and Melvin, 8 months.

Four Are Rescued

FORT WORTH, Texas, Nov. 29. (AP)—Firemen with a 30 foot ladder, early today rescued four men from the second story of a frame rooming house ablaze here.

One of the men was hanging from a window when the ladder was swung into place. Two other men trapped on the second floor when the stairway was swathed in flames, had leaped to safety before the firemen arrived.

Two Saved in Dallas

DALLAS, Texas, Nov. 29. (AP)—Saved from death by a man who caught her as she leaped from a burning building, Miss Dorothy Jones, 22, experienced but one of a number of thrilling escapes in a hotel fire here Monday.

Miss Belle Reeves, operator of the hotel, produced one of the other thrills. She swung from a window sill, screaming for help, while firemen threw water on her to drive back flames enveloping her. She held on, alternately attacked by flames and cold water, until the firemen got a ladder hoister to rescue her.

Purse Found Intact

Miss Reeves received another thrill when her purse, containing $100, was found unharmed in her room, after the fire had been extinguished.

Larry Knight, city policeman received a fractured wrist as his motorcycle skidded on the way to the fire.

The damage was estimated at $40,000. The hotel building was a Dallas landmark. The two women were the only occupants of the second floor.

The fire had gained such headway when they were awakened and their only escape was through a window.

Three Members Of Family Electrocuted

LAREDO, Texas, Nov. 29. (AP)—Attempts to rescue their father, who was writhing at the end of a live wire, carrying a high voltage of electricity, is given as the cause of the deaths Sunday evening of Martin Reuthinger and his sister Margaret. The father, George Reuthinger, was attempting to cut down a tree in the yard of his home when he came into contact with the live wire which killed all three members of the family.

Responsibility for the live wire being in the tree has not been fixed. A coroner's inquiry is to be held today. Funeral services will be held Tuesday.

CLEBURNE.—Bodies of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Race, Fort Worth, found in wrecked automobile near here. Their only son, unhurt was playing around wreckage. Car apparently missed a bridge and plunged over 20 foot embankment.

LAREDO.—George Reuthinger, 57, his son Martin, 28, and daughter Margaret, 12, accidentally electrocuted. Martin severed an electric wire while cutting down a tree. He grabbed the wire. Father and sister attempted to rescue him and all three died.

AGRARIANS SEEK TO SEIZE RANCH FROM AMERICAN

ONE 3,500 ACRE TRACT AT MATAMOROS NOW IN CHARGE OF TROOPS

(By the Associated Press)

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 29.—President Wilson not only expressed a desire to come to Mexico to establish Mexican socialism constitutionally, Excoislor declares today, but he can be considered the real author of article 27 of the Mexican constitution, against which the American state department has made representations.

These declarations are made in an editorial replying to Washington dispatches saying that the state department records contained no statement by Mr. Wilson that he wished to see a socialist republic in Mexico.

Tells of Articles

On May 24, 1914, Excoislor says, the Saturday Evening Post printed an interview with Mr. Wilson in which he made several statements regarding Mexico, and which was used by Carlos Pereyra in his book: "Wilson's Crime." Quoting Pereyra's translation, the paper says Mr. Wilson declared: "Mexico's fight had been a fight for land; consequently we are going to settle the agrarian question, following by example the steps of new Zealand." The paper asserts that in new Zealand laws regarding land ownership are connected with socialistic formula, limiting not only the amount of land an individual can own, but also the time of ownership through a renewable lease. This it holds, established the trust of its statement that Mr. Wilson favored a socialistic republic in Mexico.

Said Author of Article 27

"More over," it adds, "Wilson implied the wish to come to Mexico to constitutionally establish Mexican socialism. That is to say, Wilson declared himself the real author of article 27, against which the Coolidge administration is making representations."

There was no indication, however, of socialistic ideals in Mr. Wilson's dealings with the Mexican situation, concludes the paper, and "this duplicity, falsehood hypocrisy is what irritates the Mexican."

Charges Are Denied

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29. (AP)—Few persons remain in Washington who were in the confidence of the late President Wilson during his long negotiations over the Mexican tangle. Moreover, Mr. Wilson conducted most of his proceedings personally and with out consulting subordinates. But among those who were in position to know what was going on, there is none who believes the former president ever considered going to Mexico to establish socialism constitutionally or that he was the real author of the much-discussed article 27 of the Mexican constitution as stated editorially by Excoislor.

Mr. Wilson had a deep-seated conviction that land troubles were at the root of all Mexican troubles, and the dead presidents friends point out that it does not follow that he favored a socialistic government if he was thinking of the New Zealand laws for Mexico.

UTILITY HEADS TO SESSION HERE

Approximately 40 members of the West Texas branch of the Southwestern Public Service association will gather here Wednesday in an all-day conference. Hubert L. Allen, manager of the Texas Utilities company's holdings in this section, stated today. Convention headquarters will be at Hotel Lubbock.

Harold E. Burton, R. J. Irvine, and E. N. Willis, all of Dallas and widely known among public service men, will be included on the program while J. R. Kelso, head of the Texas Utilities company, and several other executives of that concern, will also be on hand. Homer D. Wade, manager of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, will be called upon for a talk sometime during the day.

The convention will include public service operators and executives from all West Texas, the territory including all cities west of Abilene to El Paso, north of Abilene to the Oklahoma line and west to the New Mexico border.

ANSWER FIRE CALL

The fire department answered a call to 2611 Twenty-first street at 3 o'clock this afternoon, only to find upon arrival that a small prairie fire had been extinguished. No damage was done.

POWER OF THE WRITTEN WORD TOO OFTEN IS ABUSED

"She has finished the letters with characters venomously and hatefully curved," begins a poem by John Crowe Ransom. Mr. Ransom writes of a woman, who, driven to despair by her lover's conduct, puts what she thinks of him in a letter and sends it off by messenger. Instantly she is sorry. But the mischief is done, the letter gone beyond recall and her life ruined. Letter-writing is a mean sort of revenge. It has its match only in the one-way telephone trade that smashes up the receiver at the end and waits for no answer. The letter may not be a revenge—it may merely put facts radically on the righteous wrath of the composer, but even so it will, in all probability, behave as most unhappily and trouble to the author than to the recipient.

The difference between the spoken word and the written word is the difference between a stenciled line traced on wood and the same line scored in by heat to make a pattern. What one writes stamps itself indelibly, not only upon the mind of the reader, but upon the mind of the writer as well. It is the principle of the written recitation in school—to establish facts radically on the brain. The written word is a live tangible thing—a creation to be despised, treasured, flaunted, or bartered. It has had influence for good as an influence for bad. We should hesitate to produce a devilish painting or a war-statement—why give way to an impulse that gives just as material form to an ugly thought? Few people have written unkind letters that they were not sorry for emotional strain is relieved. It passes that as the way with letters. The almost instantly as soon as penned from the nerves of the aggrieved writer through the point of the pen to the paper. One is less bitter when the words are down. An old gentleman once said, "I have learned to let social letters that I write, lie overnight. Half of them go into the waste basket in the morning. We might try that."

AFRICA'S CHEAPEST

Paying coal bills in Africa is easier than in this country, for it has the cheapest coal in the world, and the seasons for stoking furnaces are much shorter. Accessibility of the mines and the large number of native workers make the cost of mining small and the popularity of the inexpensive fuel has grown until production is now three times that of 25 years ago.

College Notes

(By The Associated Press) NORMAN, Okla., Nov. 29.—Plans for the erection of a $100,000 home for the Beta Theta Pi fraternity on the University of Oklahoma campus are being worked out by the alumni of the organization. Construction of the building will begin sometime next spring, according to Ray Dawson, Oklahoma City, president of the alumni association.

McPHERSON, Kans.—Rites of American pioneer life of 140 years ago have just been added to the museum of McPherson College here. They were presented by J. D. Stock of Blue Springs, Neb. Included in the collection of documents and "survivors" drawings was a deed to 195 acres of farm land in Northumberland county, Pennsylvania, under the date of July 2, 1786, at the time George Washington was president. The deed was written on heavy parchment and states that four shillings, less than a dollar, was paid for the land.

HAYS, Kan.—Seven Kansas colleges have signed their desire to form a state organization of glee clubs for the purpose of staging a state contest.

J. Alfred Osnad, professor of voice at Hays State Teachers College, sponsor of the movement, believes all of the colleges will enter the organization. The following schools have agreed to support the plan: Emporia State Teachers College; College of Emporia, Bethel College, Sterling—College, Southwestern College, Ottawa University, and Hays State Teachers College.

EDMOND, Ok.—Students of the Industrial Arts department of Central State Teachers College here are to erect a new shop building. The plans were drawn by students in the department and they will do all the work involved in the construction of the building, which will be of hollow tile, faced with brick. The students expect to complete the building in about four months.

TUTTI FRUTI RUNS TWO MEN "NUTS"

Tutti frutti? Wow! Is it something to eat, something to wear or something to drink? Some admit it is salad; others insist it is punch, but the variety tackled by Chief May and the Journal cub reporter was either a drink, sniff or dip. It makes you "nutty" and people who watch you are likely to insist that you are drunk.

At 11:30 o'clock a call was phoned in to the police station that two drunks, two wagons and one team were on Avenue Q acting in a very queer manner. Chief May answered the call and it took him just five minutes to locate the cause for the disturbance. The men were gloriously happy, and both of them frankly admitted they were not drunks—had not been drinking and were just "good boys" going home. They didn't smell like sober men, however, and about the time they saw jail bars staring them in the face one of the men admitted they had consumed a couple of bottles of tutti frutti. He didn't say whether they drank it, snuffed it or rubbed it on; but they were feeling like two drum majors at a king's coronation.

To please the youngsters!

It's the Cut of the Coat That Counts

BY HENRI BENDEL

For NEA Service

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—No item of a woman's wardrobe approximates in importance her fur coat. Once a symbol of wealth and luxury, today it is a necessity.

Where once only a favored few could be oblivious to winter winds, wrapped in their fur coats, now comparatively few women feel they can be without them.

But the really lovely fur coat is never ordinary. Nowhere is quality more apparent or inferior quality and bad workmanship so noticeable. Gone are the days when a fur coat was worn for years without an alteration. In this swift moving generation lines change with every season. The year they are definitely slim. Folds have been shaved and trimmed until they are soft as fabrics.

This undyed ermine is trimmed with a contrasting fur to lighten its beauty.

This ermine model has been dyed a light gray and is interesting in its novelty.

It's Cut That Counts I consider the cut of a fur coat infinitely more important than the fur that is that a well-cut, slender looking coat in an inexpensive fur will be infinitely more effective than rare and consequently costly pelts made into a garment which has been cut with no feeling for line. Beautiful effects this year are gained by dyeing. Take, for instance, the ermine model illustrated. The virgin white of the fur has been dyed a light gray, soft and dove-like, which because of its novelty is much more interesting than the original white.

Other fashion points of this wrap are the deep cuffs and the wide collar which frames the face so beautifully and closes in a deep V-line. Undyed ermine this season is often trimmed with a contrasting fur to lighten its purity, as in the evening wrap with the sable collar and stole. This has a deep V in the back and is cut to give the close narrow line so desirable this season. For the opera, theater and for all evening affairs, this type of fur wrap is exceedingly desirable.

Collars Change Most

Another model which may be worn by day and also for evening is the model of broadtail with the collar and stole of sable. For real elegance, there is no more appropriate choice of furs. The effect here is heightened by the Russian sable toque worn by the model.

These three models feature the flaring, standing collar that is known as the Vionnet collar because it has been introduced and exploited by that famous designer.

The most startling changes in fur coats this year have been made in the collars. They are more a logical part of the wrap and less an obvious addition than ever before. They have lost all suggestion of bulk and weight, no matter how voluminous they may be.

For real elegance, none surpasses this coat of broadtail with sable stole and collar.

Many Teams Lay Claim To Championship Honors At Close Of Record-Shattering Football Season Of Thrills And Spills

(By the Associated Press) The climax of a record-shattering football season of thrills and spills has left a legacy of greater dispute over mythical national championship honors than any campaign in years. Where Notre Dame's "four horsemen" roamed victoriously far and wide in 1924 and Dartmouth's famous aerial artists decorated the heights without much controversy in 1925, the close of the regular 1926 season finds at least four outstanding eleven in the title debate. Rebuttals from two or three others further complicate the situation.

Offensive Is Sustained No team any where put in as brilliant a series of battles as these hard fighting Saladors, who also covered themselves with glory in their closing fray. No such sustained offensive power as that exhibited by both the Army or Navy, but particularly of the Middle West, has been witnessed in any other single game this fall. Brown, too, enters some claim for recognition in spite of having its winning streak checked by a final tie with Colgate. Notre Dame after eight straight victories over rugged foes and a defensive record of yielding only one touchdown had its case already argued until Carnegie swooped over the private Hoosiers in an astonishing 29 to 0 upsurge.

Paul Berlenbach Contributes New One To Fight Game's Assortment of Alibis

By NEA Service LOS ANGELES, Nov. 29.—The defeat of Jack Dempsey by Gene Tunney was the biggest pugilistic upset of the year. A close second was the decision Johnny Risko received over Paul Berlenbach, who was then light heavyweight champion of the world. Had Risko been nursed along after that fight he would now be a logical opponent for Tunney. The victory over Berlenbach and the fact he gave Tunney one of his hardest fights would have made him a "natural."

Paul Berlenbach offers the most unusual alibi in the history of the ring. Listen to him tell it: "My modesty beat me in the Risko bout. He floored me in the first round and it took me four sessions to recover. I then proceeded to give him a pasting for the next four rounds. "Coming out for the ninth, the string held up my trunk broke. Instead of letting them fall to the floor, I put both hands on my hips to keep them up. "As I did so, he changed me on the chin and again, I hit the floor. The first and ninth round knockdowns won the decision for Risko. "It taught me a lesson—to think more of my chin and less of the audience."

MARIE DUE AT PARIS TUESDAY ON TRIP HOME

SETTLEMENT OF TROUBLE OVER GOVERNMENT IS BELIEVED LIKELY (By the Associated Press) PARIS, Nov. 29.—Queen Marie's arrival is regarded as offering the possibility that trouble over the Roumanian dynasty's getting out of the serious illness of King Ferdinand will be composed in the French capital.

High Court Rejects Inquiry Petition WASHINGTON, Nov. 29 (AP)—A federal government petition which would have involved a sweeping inquiry into the legality of all the oil leases granted under President Harding's celebrated executive order was rejected today by the supreme court. The court refused to review the Belridge oil company case, in which the crucial issue was whether the president had authority to transfer the naval oil reserves from the custody of the navy department to that of the interior department.

Princeton's break with Harvard will be generally applauded by the sport world. Even Harvard alumni and undergraduates seem to approve Princeton's stand. For five years Harvard has been threatening to erase Princeton from its football schedule. Princeton tired of these threats, no doubt, beat Harvard to it. "Since the resumption of athletics between the two teams at the close of the World War, Harvard has been very unsuccessful in its clashes with Princeton.

Harvard's Threat

The ill-feeling between the two institutions dates back to 1921, but in reality, didn't break out until the following season. Princeton beat Harvard 10-2 in 1921 and certain allegations were made relative to the rough play of Princeton in winning.

Westerners At Home Make Plans For Cage Season

Lubbock high school's fighting Westerners, winners of the Panhandle grid title, returned yesterday from Wichita Falls a defeated but not beaten eleven. Today the aggregation which has given Lubbock more favorable high school football publicity than any other of recent years, is hanging up its meekskins for another winter, vowing the district crown for the 1927 season.

Daddy's Song Stolen But He Stole It, Too

NEW YORK, Nov. 29 (AP)—When Patricia Conroy, five years old, heard on a phonograph the song "If I Had a Girl Like You," she clapped her hands and ran to her mother crying "that's daddy's song." So her daddy, Martin Conroy, a song writer, now wants $200,000 from the music publishers on the grounds of plagiarizing a song he published in 1921, entitled "I Wonder What Makes You Love Me?"

Plan Frustrated

Princeton didn't relish the speech of the former Crimson star. A lot of Harvard men didn't approve of it. I discussed the situation with one of the Princeton coaches the evening before the game. He remarked to me: "Harvard may sever athletic relations with us after the game, but Princeton will win it."

Massachusetts Now Talked By Probers

BOSTON, Nov. 29 (AP)—Expenditures of the Republican state committee of Massachusetts during the last campaign in which Senator William M. Butler was defeated by David I. Walsh, will come under scrutiny of the United States senate investigating committee. Assurance of this has been received from Chairman James A. Reed by Conrad W. Crooker, general counsel for the liberal league, who telegraphed the senator regarding Republican expenditures, which he described as "staggering."

DAILY MARKET

Cotton Markets

NEW ORLEANS TRADING
NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 29 (AP)—Cotton opened easy with Liverpool cables lower than due and weather reported fairly favorable over the belt. First trades showed losses of 2 to 5 points and although prices rallied a few points after the start, they soon eased off again. December traded down to 12.43, January to 12.43 and March to 12.54, or 4 to 6 points down from Saturday's close. Trading became quiet after the first half, with prices near the lows.

Stocks And Money

WALL STREET TRADING

NEW YORK, Nov. 29 (AP)—Price movements at the opening of today's stock market lacked uniformity but the main trend appeared to be upward. Phillips Petroleum advanced to a new high level for the year and initial gains of a point or so were recorded by Bethlehem Steel, International Harvester and Pullman. Coca Cola opened a point lower.

Negro Preacher Is Victim Of Robbers

Maybe all preachers are not as poor as the proverbial Job's turkey, for hi-jackers in Lubbock proved Sunday night that they thought at least one preacher had cash on his person. The preacher in question is pastor of one of the negro churches in the flat. He, in company with a visiting preacher, was enroute home from the church last night when they were ordered to halt and stick up their hands. The hi-jackers then took their pockets and other articles of value. No arrests have been made, though officers say the work was done by young white men.

DOHENY STORY BEFORE BOARD TAKEN IN CASE

(By the Associated Press) WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—Edward L. Doheny's own story of his $100,000 transaction with Albert B. Fall, as told before the senate oil committee was admitted in evidence today in the Doheny-Fall oil conspiracy trial. Justice Hoehling's decision placing the senate committee record before the prosecution, but is expected to become the basis of an appeal by the defense in case the former cabinet official and the oil man are convicted.

A SWEEPING VICTORY BY PROSECUTION CLAIMED THROUGH DECISION

(By the Associated Press) WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—Edward L. Doheny's own story of his $100,000 transaction with Albert B. Fall, as told before the senate oil committee was admitted in evidence today in the Doheny-Fall oil conspiracy trial. Justice Hoehling's decision placing the senate committee record before the prosecution, but is expected to become the basis of an appeal by the defense in case the former cabinet official and the oil man are convicted.

Follows Long Argument

The justice acted after long argument by attorneys, who presented their contentions while the jury was excluded from the court room. The decision opened the way for the prosecution to continue its presentation of evidence on which it hopes to prove that the $100,000 was part of a conspiracy which resulted in award of the Elk Hills oil lease to Doheny while Fall was secretary of the interior.

Says Would Conceal Deal

Prosecution attorneys indicated in their opening statement that they regarded it as important to their case to show that the former interior secretary sought to conceal the source of the money. The Doheny testimony was given before the committee on January 1, 1924, when the oil magnate appeared a second time at his own request and said that to aid Fall, an old time friend, he had advanced the then cabinet member $100,000 as a private loan. The cash was sent to Washington in custody of Edward L. Doheny, Jr., and Fall gave in return a note which was produced before the committee with the signature torn off.

Neither Held As Evidence

Justice Hoehling held that neither the Doheny testimony nor the statement of Fall constituted evidence within the meaning of section 859 of the revised statutes, which prohibits the use of congressional testimony in subsequent criminal trials involving the person testifying. The court noted that the oil man had appeared before the committee voluntarily after he had previously testified in response to a formal summons and that the Fall statement was submitted on Fall's own initiative. The lawyers' arguments on the point concluded Friday, and Justice Hoehling's decision was read from the bench as soon as court met this morning. The jury, excluded from the court room during the argument, then was recalled, and government counsel resumed their case with the reading of Fall's committee statement.

One Man Held In Constable's Death

CANTON, Texas, Nov. 29 (AP)—A complaint charging murder was filed here Monday against Bob Taylor in connection with the shooting yesterday of Constable William Tipps, 53. Tipps was shot at Taylor's home, a mile and a half west of Ben Wheeler near here. He died in a Dallas hospital last night. The complaint, filed by the district attorney, charges that Taylor was resisting arrest. Officers state that Tipps was attempting to serve a warrant on Taylor charging him with burglary. Taylor is held in jail.

FLOOD CONTROL PACT IS ASKED

COMMISSIONERS TO MEET TODAY IN AMARILLO FOR FINAL ACTION

(By the Associated Press) AMARILLO, Nov. 29.—A tentative pact on irrigation and flood control proposals for New Mexico, Oklahoma and North Texas, accepted at a meeting of irrigation commissioners here early this month, probably will be approved when commissioners of four states—Texas, Oklahoma, New Mexico and Arkansas—meet here late today to draw up their proposal, to submit to the legislatures of the first three named states and to congress.

The project involves the building of a series of dams in New Mexico and the Panhandle, impounding waters for irrigation purposes and at the same time alleviating flood damage in Oklahoma, estimated at more than $1,000,000 annually.

A. S. Stinnett, commissioner and P. W. Weeks, will represent Texas; E. E. Blake of Oklahoma City, chairman of the tri-state irrigation committee, will preside. A. M. Debbas, flood control commissioner of Arkansas, also will be on hand. The Canadian river, along which the dams will be built, is a tributary of the Arkansas river.

CAMPUS REBELS

BY VIRGINIA SWAIN COPYRIGHT 1926 NEA

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE
JUDITH MARTIN, instructor in Pendleton University, is caught in the feud between the student radicals led by her admirer, ERIC WATERS, and the conservatives, led by DEAN TIMOTHY BROWN and DR. PETER DORN, astronomy professor.

Married women! gasped Judith. "He didn't mean— Eric nodded. "Yes he did. The dean's wife. Judith sat perfectly motionless for a full minute, her hand clutching the door of the car.

Eric spoke slowly. "Well, it is. But it had one compassion—it got me out of that runcy-tobacco-garlic jail." Judith was not listening. "Eric," she said, "Mrs. Brown did that out of gratitude. She's a woman of frantic loyalties. And she felt that you saved her from Shea before.

Eric took his pipe out of his mouth and reached with one hand for his tobacco pouch. "Hold the wheel a minute, Jude, while I fill this chimney." Judith gave him another puzzled glance, as he calmly poured the tobacco into the bowl of the pipe and drew the string of the pouch tight again.

"All I can say," he mused comfortably, "is that she had an exaggerated sense of gratitude, but it's very fortunate for me." "Eric," Judith answered, "do you suppose she thought you DID kill Shea?" She looked at him fearfully.

"Then he read it through to the end, laid it down and looked at me. 'Seems I've talked out of my turn. But if you know what's good for you, young fellow, you'll keep this under your hat.'"

"If you ever let this conversation out, to our best friend, there are other charges we can push. The prosecutor hasn't told me the lady didn't want you to know. Damn the woman, I should say. Didn't want you to feel under obligations to her. Now you can clear out."

Eric shot a quick glance at Judith. "Now don't get any silly nonsense in your head, Jude. Of course, the sacrifice is only temporary. Of course, I shall wait till the murder is cleared up—help clear it up myself, perhaps—and then I'll go down and tell the chief and the prosecutor that they're damn fools to have believed the story in the first place. That'll square the dean's wife. Sent her a dozen American beauties this afternoon, too."

Look here, old kid. You wouldn't really have had me play Don Quixote, and stay in that jail, would you, when, once released, I could clear the matter up?" "I don't know," said Judith. "I'm just trying to think. I'm trying to think how Mrs. Brown felt while she was telling that story to the prosecutor, and how she'll feel every time she sees him from now on."

"That's so," said Eric. "I hadn't thought so much about that. You see men don't take those things so seriously as women. Probably the prosecutor knows dozens of women in his own crowd who really do entertain nocturnal visitors and still don't suffer any socially."

Eric reached over and patted her arm very gently. "But my never regret, it old dear." They turned toward home. Eric still puffing calmly at the pipe, and Judith watching the fields and hills fly by.

"What's your theory of Shea's death?" Judith asked after a while. "I'm not sure it was murder," said Eric. "It would have been quite easy to skid off the road over that bank. Stranger motor accidents happen every day. That's one reason why I think it's all just a low conspiracy against me. The dean was out to get me by hook or crook, and Shea's death offered a chance. But just wait. I'll get it."

Eric smiled. "Do you know," she said slowly, as they were nearing home, "that bruise on your head didn't look like one received by running into a door, Eric. Are you sure you aren't in a fight?" "I don't fight with my fists, old dear. I don't have to," answered loftily.

The river under the strathmore bridge gleamed dully when Judith stopped to look at it that afternoon. There was a thin film of ice near the bare brown banks. She turned away from it with a little shudder and went on, past the prim rows of professorial houses, until she came to Avon place.

On the walk before Dean Brown's English cottage, Judith paused, looking curiously at the house front. Every shade was down and the door mat was placed primly against the wall.

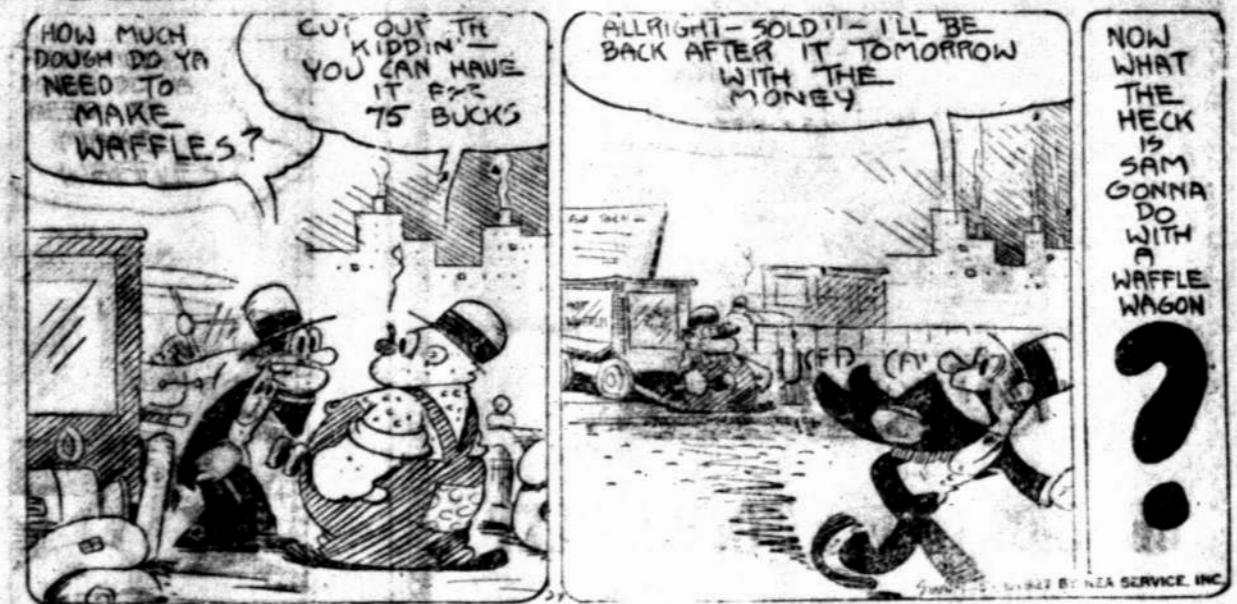

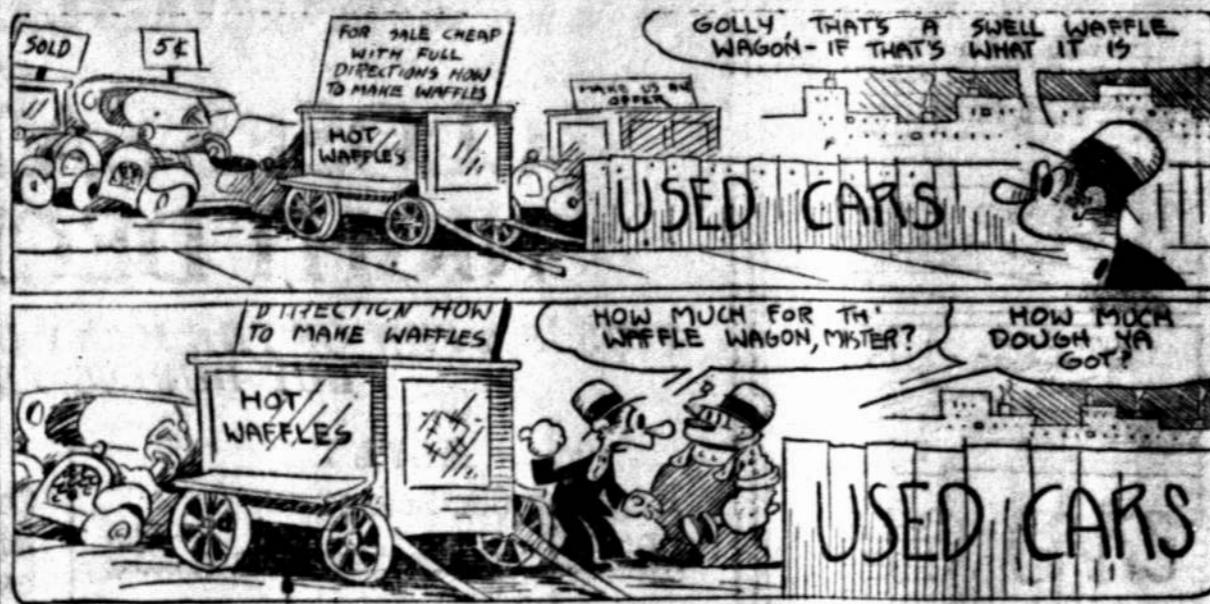

With a curious glance at the windows, Judith turned away. A little boy trundling a wooden wagon on the driveway next door called out to her, "There ain't nobody at home." Judith went down the steps toward him.

drink I would not go to the telephone office any more but tried to use a pay station booth I knew my falling when drunk and as I had considerable money (about $75) on my person I decided that it was not safe for me to carry the money around. I took it to a drug store where I traded asked the man to keep it for me and give me a receipt. This he did and I returned to the hotel. I continued to drink and was pretty drunk but knew everything that was happening.

Don't Know Attackers The story told to the reporter by Teal was also told to officers two or three times yesterday and today. He insists that he is not positive who attacked him, but has a pretty good idea and officers are making an effort to run this down.

He claims that the $75 he left at the drug store was not returned to him though the clerk he gave it to declares it was. However, the clerk called at the station later and offered to pay again rather than have any trouble.

Teal recognized one or two persons those he had seen in Berger, Burt, county and city officers are working on the case.

COTTON REPORT MADE BY BOARD

Panicky Conditions Abated As Largest Crop In History Is Moved

(By Associated Press) NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 29.—After a season during which the south successfully marketed the greatest cotton crop ever grown, an even greater crop is moving out rapidly with "the panicky conditions which prevailed at the outset" abated, the annual report of the board of directors of the New Orleans cotton exchange said here.

Contract Volume Shrinks While the volume of transactions in contract deliveries has not been as large, with more abundant crops in the tributary sections, the business in spots has increased accordingly. With a record crop, the greatest ever grown, exceeding slightly the bumper growth of 1914-15, we have handled more cotton in our presses and warehouses embracing a greater percentage of the crop than at any time during the past twenty years.

Press handlings the report said were slightly in excess of 400,000 bales. During the past season, they were almost 1,500,000.

Futures Business The report attributed the shrinkage in the future business to "causes which have affected our market to perhaps a lesser extent than the other great markets."

Alexander's Ragtime Band Gets In Trouble NEW YORK, Nov. 29. (AP)—The old popular song "Alexander's Ragtime Band" has gone cinema and thereby lands a lawsuit. A movie concern puts the "band" on the screen with notes that became animated "performing various stunts" that induced the audience to sing the words. And now a music publishing company has brought suit for damages and an injunction alleging infringement of copyright.

IS COW OR MOTORCYCLE GUILTY?

Is a motorcyclist or a cow at fault when the two meet, is a question before the magistrate of TeAroha, N. Z. Robert Troughton, a farmer, sued William Jackson for $500 damages alleged to have been caused when he collided with Jackson's cow. Jackson counter claimed $250 for his pedigreed heifer killed by the motorcycle. Troughton says Jackson is guilty of negligence in allowing the cow to roam the road, while Jackson claims that Troughton drove the machine carelessly and if he had kept a proper lookout he would have seen the cow. So the magistrate is scratching his head in perplexity.

When Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Ringley of Chicago appeared in court making charges of cruelty against each other, the judge sent them both home.

Fur Coat Makings Lead to War

Two casualties of machine gun war between rival trappers on Delacroix Island, La., near New Orleans, are pictured here. They are Deputy Sheriff Charles Kerr (left), wounded in the side and scalp, and Edward Molbrough, engineer of a boat which, loaded with guards, attacked the trappers. One man was killed and ten wounded in the battle. Muskrat skins which go to make milady's winter coat were the cause of it all.

MANY TEXANS TO ATTEND LEGION MEET IN PARIS

OCEAN LINER CHICAGO IS ASSIGNED FOR TRIP FOR DELEGATION

(Special to the Journal)

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 29.—Assignment of the ocean liner Chicago by the French line to transport the American Legion delegates from Texas to France and return for the ninth annual convention of the Legion to be held in September of 1927 was announced today by Bowman Elder, National Chairman of the France Convention committee. The Texas Legionnaires, Paris bound, will embark at Galveston, September 1 and land at Havre.

Allen C. Ater, Santa Fe bridge, Dallas, Texas, will represent the France convention committee of the Legion in Texas. The France convention committee has prepared a two-color steamship folder giving full description of the trip and telling how to make a reservation. The folders may be had upon request from the France convention officer or by writing direct to the France convention committee, National Headquarters, The American Legion, Indianapolis.

1,000 Essays Submitted Announcement was made today that slightly more than 1,000 essays in the national contest on "Why I want to go to France" with The American Legion in 1927, were submitted before the contest closed at midnight Nov. 15. The contest is conducted by the French line, whose luxurious transatlantic steamers will carry the Legionnaires to France. The judges of the contest are William Allen White, author, Richard Henry Little, cartoonist, and Frederick Palmer, war correspondent. Prizes that will be awarded are first $150, second $100, and third $50.

Among the first reservations received at National Headquarters of the Legion for the Paris journey were those of Gen. John J. Pershing, war-time commander of the A. E. F., and Howard B. Sayers, National Commander of the Legion. John J. Wickler, Jr., National Travel Director, has warned Legionnaires to get their reservations in early if they wish to secure a place with their state delegations.

Rates Are Low. The France convention journey will offer the chance of a lifetime for many Legionnaires to go abroad. Movement of such a large body of men have made possible extremely low travel rates. Round trip steamship fares range from $145.80 to $270 on most ships. Railroads in the United States and Europe have granted substantial reductions. About one million dollars will be saved by the use of special American Legion identification certificates in lieu of passports. Housing in Paris, including bed for seven nights and tips and taxes range from $10 to $45 depending upon the grade selected. Battlefield and cemetery trips range from $5 to $16.50. By accepting the plan of accommodations throughout, the steamship fare, railroad fare from foreign port to Paris and back, lodging for seven nights in Paris, without an allowance for meals in France will aggregate $175. The cost increases for more pretentious accommodations until a bed and luxurious suite on the Leviathan can be had for as high as $1,000. The average trip will cost about $200.

Affairs In China Take Serious Turn LONDON, Nov. 29. (AP)—Serious developments of the situation in China have occurred at Hankow where grave anti-foreign agitation is in progress. German Secretary Sir Ansten Chamberlain today told the house of commerce.

The British government, including the admiralty, is considering the entire situation and a further announcement is expected on Wednesday.

Five Drunks And One Speeder Fined Here

Five drunks and one speeder have paid fines in city court today as the result of too much Sunday celebration. The drunks were fined $15 each, while the speeder, a high school student, was let off with a $12 fine.

'Human Eel' Issues Defi To Carpenters

Having proven to the satisfaction of the general public and members of the city and county police forces that he really is "the man the police cannot hold," Jacques Moreau the "Human Eel," who is showing at the Lyric theatre this week, today issued a challenge to the carpenters of Lubbock to build a box from which he cannot escape. Moreau's challenge provides that the carpenters bring their lumber to the theatre's stage, and there, before the audience, construct the box and nail him up in it. After he escapes the box will be placed upon exhibition in the Lyric lobby, Moreau states. He has already escaped from various handcuffs owned by members of the city and county police forces.

Supreme Court Says Volstead Act Liquor Restrictions Must Hold Sway

(By the Associated Press) WASHINGTON, Nov. 29. (AP)—Volstead act restrictions upon the quantity of whiskey physicians may prescribe to patients each ten days were upheld today by the supreme court. The decision was by a sharply divided court, four members, Justices Sutherland, McReynolds, Stone and Butler dissenting. The dissenting opinion was that the state had exclusive jurisdiction to regulate the use of intoxicating liquor for other than beverage purposes and that congress had not prohibited the use of liquor for medicinal purposes and that it did not have authority to do so.

PLANS FOR MEMBERSHIP CAMPAIGN OUTLINED AT LUNCHEON

Homer D. Wade of Stamford, manager of the West Texas chamber of commerce, and three of his assistants are in Lubbock today in behalf of their annual membership campaign. In the past a salaried representative has been looking after membership fees, but at this time a new plan has been arranged. Local business men will be asked to help sign the necessary quota of members and all fees collected will be retained for organization work.

Some 15 Lubbock business men met the committee at the chamber of commerce rooms this morning, at which time Mr. Wade outlined his program.

At this time Lubbock has about 200 members though it is hoped that the number may be swelled to 250 for the coming year. Mr. Wade expressed a hope that the necessary quota would be subscribed today and tomorrow, and local citizens say there is no doubt but that it will be.

The West Texas chamber is the largest commercial organization in the world, and has been responsible in many ways for the South Plains' rapid growth and development. Lubbock has been paying $2,000 annually as membership fees, but ten times that amount has been saved in freight charges, alone, as a result of the organization's work.

Fees Paid For Service Mr. Wade pointed out that the membership fees are not to be considered as a gift or donation, but as a payment for service.

A luncheon, attended by the officials of the West Texas chamber of commerce and a number of Lubbock business men, was held at Hotel Lubbock, with Wallace W. Rix in charge. Mr. Rix, Senator W. H. Bledsoe and Dr. Paul W. Horn, president of Texas Tech, made short talks commending the work of the organization and its value to Lubbock and the entire territory.

$1,200,000 FIRE TAUNTON, Mass., Nov. 29. (AP)—Fire wiped out the Park theater and the H. O. Rogers Silver company factory here today, causing loss estimated at a million and a quarter dollars.

Cast Of "Clarence" Buckles Down To Hard Work As Little Theatre's First 1927 Production Is Nearing

With the opening play of the 1927 Little Theatre season but four days distant the cast of "Clarence", Booth Tarkington's side-splitting four act comedy, is putting the finishing touches on its preparation and night-by-night practice sessions, under Director Ruth Pirtle are the order of each evening. Ten people are included in the cast.

Dr. George G. Ingham, in the title role, is taking hold of his difficult part in a very satisfactory manner, Miss Pirtle, dramatic director of Texas Tech, reports. While Doctor Ingham is making his initial bow across the footlights in Lubbock he is a veteran of amateur theatricals. He is a graduate of Baylor university.

"Violet Pinney", probably the leading feminine role, is portrayed by Miss Mable Jane Witt, formerly of Waco, an instructor of dramatics here. Intensive study of dramatics in three different schools has given Miss Witt her experience, which, added to her native talent, makes her work stand out exceptionally, the director states.

New "Find" Is Probable Clarence Rollo, Tech Junior and the son of Dr. and Mrs. J. W. Rollo, another newcomer to local Little Theatre work, plays the part of "Bobby Wheeler" while Miss Thelma Wiles also a college Junior, portrays the feminine side of "flaming youth" as "Cora Wheeler". Miss Wiles' work thus far, bolstered by her previous work in Galloway college, Searcy, Arkansas, and in the dramatics department of Texas Tech, marks her as a probable "find" in theatrical circles here. Native ability, an acknowledged interest in the work, plus a natural stage presence should, in "Clarence", give Miss Wiles an opportunity to play her way into the hearts of her audience.

Gus Ford, history professor at the Tech, plays the part of "Mr. Wheeler" and with experience in the dramatics department of Southern Methodist university, where he was a leader, he is a bulwark of the cast. Mr. Ford directed one of the one-act plays given by the Lubbock Little Theatre last year.

Other Characters Good Mrs. Oma E. Sears, in the part of "Mrs. Wheeler", is also doing her first theatrical work in Lubbock although her talents in expression have been recognized here for several years. Mrs. Sears is admirably cast, Miss Pirtle states, and is expected to be a favorite with her audience Thursday night. Dr. Sam Dunn, graduate of Texas university, is playing the part of "Hubert Stem" and is rapidly rounding into form. Marguerite Bennett, assistant business manager of Texas Tech, is cast as "Mrs. Martin" and Miss Bertha Eubanks, director of home economics at the Senior high school, takes the part of "Della". John Burroughs, sophomore of the Tech, plays the part of "Dinwiddie". All three of these characters are doing well in their minor parts, Miss Pirtle reports.

"Clarence" will be presented at the Palace theatre on Thursday night, December 2. Practices are being held at the Tech but for one or two nights prior to the production practice will be held at the theatre.

Standard Oil Bond Issue Oversubscribed

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—Over subscription of the $120,000,000 issue of Standard Oil company of New Jersey five percent debentures was announced early today by J. P. Morgan and company. The books for the form of offerings were opened at 10 o'clock and immediately closed.

Preferred stock holders who received preferential subscription rights, absorbed virtually the entire issue.

HONGKONG HAS HOUSECLEANING

Dwellings of the Chinese in Hongkong are undergoing one of the periodical housecleanings carried on by the sanitary department of the colonial government. Floors of the 19,270 buildings, most of which are of the tenement type, are being scrubbed and caustic soda or kerosene emulsion is applied liberally. At times disinfectants are necessary. Nearly 40,000 floors were washed in the last year.

Mrs. Sophie Kirk and Mrs. Ann Griffith of Loughborough, Eng., celebrated their 103d birthday together.

Out of Tunnel Into Matrimony

An intended journey from New York to the "great open spaces," ended in matrimony in New Jersey for Mary Kelly, 16, and James Berbrick, 23, of Long Island, because they set out through the four mile Pennsylvania railroad tunnel under the Hudson river. Tired and dirty, they were found by a patrolman upon their emergence on the Jersey side and taken to the North Bergen police station, where this picture was made and a hasty decision to wed was reached. Mary was still in her male attire when a justice of the peace tied the knot.

TO STOP DOORSTEP TIPSTERS

House-to-house bookmakers who solicit bets on horse racing from housewives are the object of a campaign of extinction in England. Their method is to call at each house once a week and offer tips and odds that are too inviting to the women who know nothing about the track. Those conducting the campaign against them say the tipsters, in spite of repeated failures of their tips, are making profits averaging $100 a week.

INDIA USES OLD NEWSPAPERS

There is a big market throughout India for old newspapers as they constitute the standard wrapping paper in that country. The market is at present supplied mainly from England and Norway, but with a little more care in grading and shipping, the American papers would find a ready sale. These old papers bring $2 to $2 1/2 a ton, stores as well as street hawkers use them for wrapping almost exclusively.

see, as he pulled the little cart on up the drive.

When Judith had last seen the house, curls of Christmas smoke were hanging about its chimneys and every window welcomed the traveler with a wreath. Standing now, still and deserted, with every blind drawn, it seemed as hopeless and sodden as a human being struck down by insupportable grief.

With a little shiver, Judith walked slowly down the path to the street. Under the elms that lined the sidewalk, she turned about for one last look. She stood quite still, clasping her hands, her eyes glued to an upper window.

For a second, just as she turned, the white face of the dean's wife had appeared there.

URGES SPORTS FOR CHINA

That the Chinese are not taking sufficient interest in sports, is the charge made by Dr. P. K. C. Tsai, former Chinese minister to Cuba, and once tennis champion of north China, who has been taking part in court contests in Peking pending another official appointment. "Sport among the Chinese is developing, but considering the opportunities the present day youth has, it is not progressing as satisfactorily as it should," he said in urging more contests among Peking, Tientsin and other interport cities.

SAINT AND SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

COPYRIGHT 1928 NEA

The next day Bob Hathaway met Faith by appointment in a little tea shop. Over the sandwiches and tea Bob finished his account of the adventures of the day before, or rather the finale which Cherry and Faith had not been allowed to witness.

"Of course I rushed out to that West Tenth street address, and found that Lola Gonzalez had skipped. We expected that you know. But I found she had called for a Western Union messenger, and surmised that she had sent Alexander Cluny the carbons of the letters with which she had seduced poor Cherry. So back to his office I hid myself and found my suspicions correct. He made no difficulty about turning over to me every scrap of paper connected with the whole nasty business—Pete's reports, which Lola had typed out most beautifully, detailing every move that Cherry had made for me—ever since she announced her engagement to Uncle Ralph, in fact—and the carbons of Lola's letters to Cherry. Here's the lot." He passed a thick manilla envelope across the painted little table to Faith, who took it gingerly, as if it were unclear.

"What shall I do with it?" Faith asked him. "Give it to Cherry, and tell her to burn it. It may make her feel better to look it over and find out just how lucky she is that it hasn't done any more harm than it has already. But if it were I, I should burn it without reading it. I looked the stuff over and I believe it's all there, unless Alexander has copies locked away in his safe, to use as a club somehow in the future. Of course I had to take his word for it that he was turning it all over to me. Now—let's order everything else on the menu and see if we can collect enough for a square meal. I'd like to see you take hold of this place for just a week, darling. I believe you're the best cook in the world."

"You're prejudiced," Faith laughed. "I'm not an artistic cook at all; cooking for a family of six doesn't make for artistry, you know, especially when there's no money for trimmings. Madame Denise wants me to become her assistant and later her partner as a modiste and you want me to run a tea shop, but I have other plans." She laughed softly, with a note of pure happiness which made him reach impulsively for her hands. "I don't want you to run a tea shop, except for two, and there'll be a cook to help you. Oh, Faith, I don't see how we're going to manage if we have to meet like this! I've got to hold you in my arms at least once a day!"

Those last words of his were still ringing in her heart when she let herself into the living room of the little Myrtle street house. "Oh, I'm sorry! I didn't know you had a caller, Cherry." Faith tried to cross the living room as hastily and unobtrusively as possible, but her fleeting glance at the newly decorated old wicker chair had registered a portrait of a tall and stately woman of middle age successfully held at bay by a woman richly dressed, but strangely ill at ease.

"Just a minute, darling!" Cherry's most honeyed voice stopped her sister at the dining room door. "I'm so glad you came home in time to meet Mrs. Albright. This is my dear sister, Mrs. Albright. Faith, this is Mr.

Cluny's daughter, Mrs. Albright." "I'm very glad to know you, Mrs. Albright," Faith said composedly, her voice betraying no hint of the agitation which fluttered in her heart. "I have been explaining to her—Miss Lane," Mrs. Albright's cold, grey eyes and the cold, mechanical even voice matched her cold, pale smile upon her chaste, rouged thin lips. "That I should have called much sooner, to—er welcome her into the family, but I have been so extremely busy preparing to go abroad. Mr. Albright and I are taking my daughter, Muriel, to Switzerland to play her in school. I am so sorry we shall not be here for the—er wedding." Any reference to the forthcoming marriage puckered her lips as if they were tasting the acid of an unripe persimmon. "Isn't it a shame, Faith?" Cherry demanded, with polite regret, as she tweaked rather self-consciously at the hem of her short skirt which did not cover her knees. "I was just telling Mrs. Albright that I had hoped Muriel could be one of my bridesmaids. Oh, you're not leaving so soon, Mrs. Albright? I know Mother will be very much disappointed at not meeting you. Thanks so much for calling. I shall be so glad when Muriel finishes school. I know we will have a lot in common."

When the imposing Mrs. Albright had taken her departure, solicitously sped on her way by the impudently gay and cordial Cherry, Faith waited in the living room for the flood of Cherry's confidence and exultations. But it was a blazing eyed Cherry who returned to face her. "The old cat!" she cried. "I'd like to scrunch her! Whisking Muriel away so Ralph can't make her be my bridesmaid, and so they can get out of coming to the wedding! I'll make 'em all eat dirt yet!"

Oil Field Worker Dies After Explosion

BORGER, Texas, Nov. 29. (AP)—Oren Carroll, victim of a dynamite explosion here, Friday, in which two other workmen were seriously burned, died at a local hospital four hours after the ambulance made a record run from the oil field.

His arms and a part of his body had been blown away by the terrific blast. Ferguson and Hedgcock, working with him, suffered the loss of eyesight and received arm fractures. They will recover. Carroll's body will be taken to his home, Cove, Arkansas.

SAYS EARTH LIKE GOLF BALL

That the earth is built on the principle of the old-fashioned metal cored golf ball is the contention of Dr. E. D. Williamson, the scientist who has just concluded a series of investigations into the subject. The metal core of the earth, he says, is pure iron or an alloy of iron and nickel, having a thickness of not less than 4,200 miles. Outside of this is a layer of iron and rock on top of which is a strata of rock which in turn is covered by the earth's surface consisting almost entirely of granite.

MAINE POLL HOLDS SENATE CONTROL

PORTLAND, Maine, Nov. 29. (AP)—Control of the senate in the new congress was at stake today in Maine's special election to determine a successor to Senator Bert M. Fernald, who died in office.

A sensational campaign involving charges of excessive expenditures and the Ku Klux Klan has had possibilities of an aftermath in an inquiry by a senatorial committee.

Arthur R. Gould, Republican nominee, who has been subject of charges within as well as without his party, and who was repudiated by Governor Ralph O. Brewster, Republican, but supported by Senator Hale and the party machine, was opposed at the polls today by Fulton J. Redman, Democrat.

Gould was cleared at a public hearing before Secretary of State Ball of charges of having exceeded the $1,500 expense limitation imposed by state law on primary campaigns.

VIENNA MUFFLES MUSICIANS

Music all right in its place, but that place is behind closed windows, declares the Friends of Music, a musical organization of Vienna. Nearly everyone in Vienna performs on a musical instrument and during warm weather the din of aspiring stars makes the place terrible for those who work or need peace and quiet, the Friends of Music told the police department in persuading the custodians of the law to make an order compelling people to close windows while playing or be subjected to payment of a fine.

TO IMPROVE CHURCH MUSIC

A movement has been started to raise the standard of music in the Church of England to a higher degree of purity and simplicity. Speaking on the subject recently, Bishop West-Watson said: "Some of our hymns are weak and enervating, and Jesus, Lover of My Soul, which was popular with the English troops, could be taken as an example. It was found that the theme was almost too personal to be sung about in public." The Bishop added that the hymn sung to another tune had a different force and meaning, and that some other hymns had weak words and worthy tunes.

CHINA'S CONTRIBUTIONS PAY

China has given much to civilization, including the wooden plow and silk culture as far back as 2800 B. C., a calendar in 2300 B. C., the earliest bronzes and forms of writings in 1300 B. C., lyric poetry in 1200 B. C., and a definite philosophy from Lao-tse, Confucius, Meti and Mencius from 100 to 200 B. C. Tea paper, block printing, movable type, the compass and paper mache followed.

QUANAH SEEKS TO AID FARMER

Plea To Raise More Chickens Hogs And Dairy Products Urged By C. Of C.

(Special to the Journal)
QUANAH, Nov. 29.—The Quanah chamber of commerce is taking definite steps to put into practice the West Texas chamber of commerce doctrine of diversification by visiting rural communities and urging farmers to raise more chickens, more hogs, and to increase their dairying products. Results have been more than 50 per cent in dairying as cream sales have leaped to that percentage.

Three hundred and fifty more hogs have been introduced into the county through distribution of a carload of gilts among Hardeman county farmers by the chamber of commerce who took notes in payment.

Poultry Ass'n Formed
In the field of poultry, a county association has been formed with membership increased from a handful to more than 100. The County Poultry Show is to be held December 21, 22, and 23 with loving cup awards for Hardeman county exhibitors, and cash premiums for all prize winning exhibits. Through efforts of the chamber of commerce, Hardeman county is a member of the recently organized Green Belt District Poultry Association. The association is composed of poultry organizations of Childress, Wilbarger, Foard, Hardeman, and Cottle counties, who united at Quanah November 3, and agreed to hold shows under the A. P. A. rules, each show to have different judges, and entry fee and premiums to be alike at each show.

One slogan adopted by the chamber of commerce in sponsoring the Hardeman county poultry show is, "Let us show the world we are not slaves to King Cotton." As a part of their diversification program for the year, the Quanah chamber is also trying to bring into the county 100 graded Jersey cows and several registered bulls to improve the present dairy stock.

Much Coal Mined In Texas In 1925

AUSTIN, Nov. 29.—According to statistics obtained by the Bureau of Economic Geology of the University of Texas in cooperation with the United States Bureau of Mines, the total production of coal in Texas during 1925 was 1,008,375 tons, valued at the mines at $1,566,006. The total number of men employed in coal mining in Texas during 1925 was 2,108.

The wife of Thomas Agnew of Chicago was granted a divorce after he painted her nose red because she scolded him for drinking.
