1,202 absentee votes

BIG SPRING — Voters continue to turn out in force to cast absentee ballots in the mayoral recall election.

Assistant City Secretary Lana East said about 240 people voted on Thursday, bringing the four-day absentee total to 1,202. By 9:30 a.m. Friday, 30 more people had cast ballots, she said, to decide whether Mayor Max Green will be recalled from office.

According to county officials, 11,843 persons in the city were registered to vote in the March primaries, so 10 percent of city voters already have cast ballots in the recall election.

The recall election is set for Saturday, March 24, but absentee voting will continue on weekdays through Tuesday. Ballots can be cast at the Central Fire Station next to city hall between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m.

The recall election will be conducted at six polling places in the city between 7 a.m. and 7 p.m.

ABILENE — Stanton High School freshman Brandon McAnally, who is hospitalized here for an accidental gunshot wound, may be brought out of a medically-induced coma sometime next week, said his father, Billy McAnally.

Brandon, 15, has been in the critical care unit at Hendricks Memorial Hospital since Feb. 25 as the result of a gunshot wound he received to the back of his head and shoulder in an early morning hunting accident near his grandparents' house in Stonewall County.

"I talked to the neurosurgeon this morning," Mr. McAnally said Thursday. "He said, 'Brandon is doing O.K. I see no problems.'"

Mr. McAnally said doctors are slowly cutting back on sedation and bringing Brandon off of a ventilator and that he could be talking by next week.

"With no complications, I think they'll be trying that next week," he said. "One of the nurses the other day called him the 'Miracle Boy.'"

Though Brandon has not regained full consciousness yet, he will follow people with his eyes, turn his head and move his arms and legs, including the right side, which doctors feared early on may be paralyzed, Mr. McAnally said.

"At times when he's not medicated, he's tracking real well," he said. "You can talk to him and he will look at you. He can turn his head back and forth from one side to the other at times."

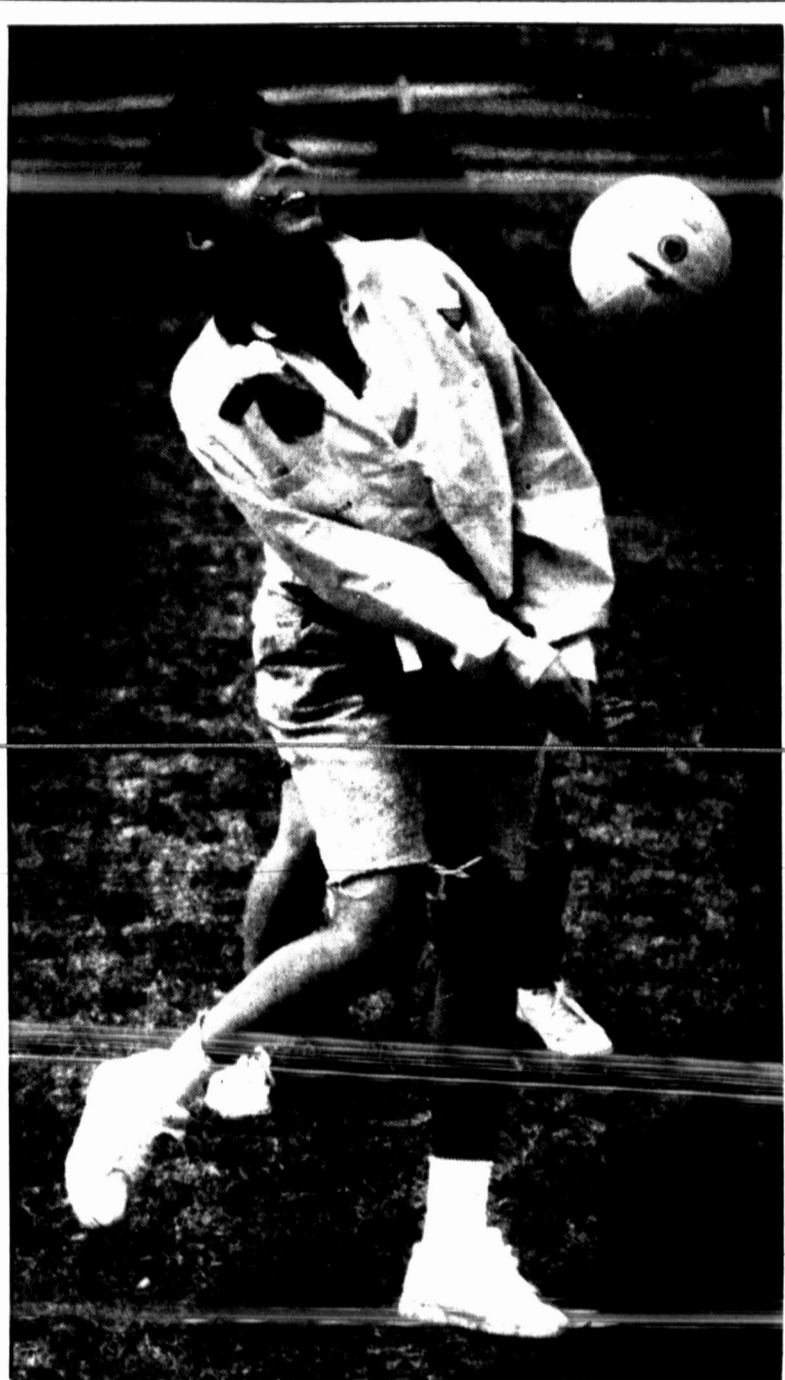

He is also moving his arms a lot more, Mr. McAnally said. "He has moved his right leg at times."

He said Brandon is sedated three or four times a day.

ASUNCION, Paraguay — Vice President Dan Quayle and his wife Marilyn play with a set of jaguar cubs at the U.S. ambassador's house Tuesday in Asuncion. The cubs, members of an endangered species, were to be a gift from Paraguayan President Andres Rodriguez, but Quayle has declined the gift, which was condemned by an environmental group and the National Zoo in Washington because of the cats' endangered status.

Volleyball in the park

BIG SPRING — After a day of high winds and cool weather, Thursday afternoon turned out to be a perfect day for volleyball in the park. Six people used their spring break to participate in the impromptu game. Above Lisa Martinez moves away from the ball leaving Rosa Martinez with the task of hitting it over the net. At right, Doug Bryan finds the lowered net to his advantage as he spikes the ball towards the opposition.

GRADY — Dawn Woodward made a pretty corpse the other day: eyes wide open and not a drop of blood. She was strangled, you see, after being kidnapped and beaten in Rosenberg, outside of Houston.

Her mom doesn't seem too concerned about her fate. "She chose this career a long time ago and I'm just helping her out like any parent would," Joy Woodward said.

Dawn is a model and an actress who is also a 15-year-old at Grady High School. She recently finished her first movie, "Murder Wishes," in which she dies a graphic death as a victimized, sweet young thing.

"It's not as bad as you would think," Joy Woodward said. "There's a message to the movie and it's quite religious."

"Murder Wishes" will be rated PG-13 when it appears on cinema screens here in the summer.

Kidnappers threaten to kill U.S. hostages

By FAROUK NASSAR
Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Pro-Iranian kidnappers say they will kill three American hostages in Lebanon unless the United States meets their demands. It also attacked the Soviet Union and threatened flights carrying Soviet Jews to Israel.

The threats from Islamic Jihad for the Liberation of Palestine came in a Thursday, on the eve of the fifth anniversary of captivity for another U.S. hostage, Terry Anderson.

A State Department official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, denounced the call as a "cynical manipulation" of the hostage relatives timed to coincide with ceremonies marking Anderson's time in captivity.

A message and statement, each with a picture of one of the hostages, said the fanatical Moslem group is "holding agents and spies against our people and they will be executed if the American administration fails to meet our demands."

The group did not specify its demands. It previously offered to trade professors Robert Polhill, 55, of New York City; Alann Steen, 50, of Boston; and Jesse Turner, 42, of Boise, Idaho, for 400 Arab inmates of Israeli jails. Israel said no, and the Reagan administration refused to pressure Israel.

The three American educators were kidnapped at gunpoint on Jan. 24, 1987, from the campus of the U.S.-affiliated Beirut University College.

Steen's picture showed him from the hips up, looking into the camera with a faint smile. He wore a white T-shirt and had a graying, bushy beard.

Polhill, balding and wearing glasses, also appeared from the hips up, wearing a gray T-shirt and looking into the camera.

Steen and Polhill are among 18 Westerners, including eight Americans, held hostage in Lebanon. The longest held is Anderson, 42, chief Middle East correspondent for The Associated Press, who was abducted March 16, 1985.

Commemorative ceremonies were planned today in Washington, in Brussels and in Tokyo, where Anderson worked from 1977 to 1981.

New child-care bill would give parents more control

SPECIAL TO THE HERALD

WASHINGTON — Texas Rep. Charles W. Stenholm introduced child-care legislation Thursday designed to be more acceptable to the Bush Administration than competing bills in the House and an approved plan in the Senate.

The proposal STENHOLM presented by Stenholm, D-Stamford, would cost $19.55 billion over five years and would offer parents earning the minimum wage an annual $2,300 tax deduc-tion for child-care expenses. It would also grant additional federal funds to education programs, including Head Start.

"I do not believe the federal government is the authority on child care," said Stenholm. "Parents know what is best for their children and who is best to care for them."

Child-care legislation in the House has been delayed for the last six months because the House Ways and Means Committee and the House Education and Labor Committee have been unable to resolve a disagreement about the means for providing federal aid. Both proposals, however, call for federal regulation of the child care industry and the Bush administration has threatened to veto those bills.

Stenholm is trying to rally conservative Democrats and Republicans behind his alternative plan, which essentially leaves regulation up to the states. That issue is particularly important to church related child-care centers which are opposing federal oversight.

Another contentious issue is whether aid should be given in the form of block grants to the states or directly to child-care providers through federal vouchers.

Stenholm opposes both those proposals and his bill would essentially give parents earning the minimum wage a tax deduction to

Consulate handles inmate complaints

By BRADLEY WORRELL
Staff Writer

BIG SPRING — When an inmate at the Big Spring Correctional Facility has a gripe, a complaint directed to upper management may go through diplomatic channels as well.

The Mexican government established a consulate in Midland in July, and one of its functions is to allow Mexican dignitaries easier access to Mexican nationals in prisons and detention facilities in a 40-county Southwest Texas area, said Jorge Navarro, chancellor for the Mexican embassy in Midland.

"We have a function — we have a treaty with the United States" that allows embassy personnel to visit Mexican nationals, said Navarro, who as a chancellor serves directly under the consulate for the Mexican embassy.

The treaty is similar to those the United States has with other countries, which allows U.S. diplomats to visit U.S. citizens in another country's prisons, he said.

About 75 percent of the prisoners at the Immigration and Naturalization Service detention facility are Mexican nationals, Navarro estimated. He said the number appears to be growing. There are also Mexican nationals imprisoned in the Big Spring Federal Prison Camp that are part of Midland con-sulate's duties.

The largest concentrations of Mexican inmates in the area is a holding facility in Pecos, which houses about 400 Mexican nationals, he said.

Chuck Haugh, a consultant with Midtex Detentions, the parent company of the local INS detention facility, said he believes the consulate is largely favorable of the Big Spring detention center.

"The only adverse thing he talks about is the water," Haugh said of Navarro.

Asked if he had any problems with Navarro's visits, of which the detention facility usually receives a one-day advance notice, Haugh replied, "Not at all, in fact we encourage it. We support what he does and welcome him every time he comes out."

Navarro, who has been visiting the local detention center for about six months, said his main purpose is to determine the inmates' living conditions, make sure they are being treated fairly and to provide any assistance possible.

"According to treaty, we talk to them, interview them, inform them of their rights, tell them why they are there, why they have to proceed according to procedure," he said.

Stormie coming home

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Stormie Jones' mother said the world's first recipient of a combined heart-liver transplant was doing fine on the eve of her leaving the city where she received both her donor livers.

The 12-year-old girl from the Fort Worth suburb of White Settlement is scheduled to go home tonight after nearly a month of hospital care, her mother, Susie Purcell, said today.

"She had her last checkup today," Mrs. Purcell said Thursday from a Ronald McDonald House near Children's Hospital, where 12-year-old Stormie was operated on twice in two days.

Ten hours of surgery were needed Feb. 20 to replace Stormie's first donor liver, which was damaged by hepatitis caused by an unknown virus.

The organ, which in 1984 came from a 4-year-old New York girl who had died in a car accident, no longer functioned normally, doctors said.

Children's Hospital did not identify the donor of Stormie's second transplanted liver.

Doctors operated for nine hours Feb. 21 to stop internal bleeding. They reconstructed the new liver's hepatic artery, one of the organ's main arteries. Part of the artery had given way.

Senate panel considers school-finance bill

AUSTIN (AP) — A school-finance bill approved by a Senate education subcommittee was called a "giant step forward in equalization" among rich and poor school districts, but key lawmakers and Gov. Bill Clements say its $1.2 billion price tag may keep it from being adopted by the state.

The cost of the legislation was estimated Thursday from $817 million for the 1990-91 school year to an amendment requiring the state to give extra funding to school districts for students who need special education, including bilingual, vocational and remedial programs.

Without the amendment, the bill would have considered only the basic allotment given to school districts based on the size of their populations of students with special needs. As amended, the bill also would consider the guaranteed yield, or "second tier," funds allotted to school districts by the state based on the rate of their property tax.

The full Senate will vote Monday on the bill.

The amendment, which was sponsored by Sen. Carlos Truan, D-Christi, was approved by the subcommittee 7-1. Truan says the measure is necessary because poor districts often have more students with special needs.

"As a result of the passage of this amendment, we are seriously considering equalizing education in the state of Texas," said Truan. "If we want to have a school system that meets the constitutional test, we must talk about dollars."

The chair of the subcommittee, Sen. Carl Parker, said he is not hopeful about the chances the more expensive bill will have when the Senate begins negotiations with the House, which is considering a $450 million measure.

"I'm still somewhat pessimistic that the House will jump up and do this much for us," said Parker, D-Port Arthur.

The House would allow lawmakers "to do right by Texas and lower property taxes. But he said if it is not fully funded, it could lessen the amount of money the state guarantees to each school district."

"My greatest fear and concern about this bill is that if the House fails to fund it at the $1.2 billion or thereabouts, then what we will end up with is having to reduce the basic allotment... which delivers more money to fewer districts," he said.

Sen. Kent Caperton, a sponsor of the Senate bill and chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, agreed with Parker.

"The cost — We just don't have it," said Caperton, D-Bryan, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee. "You know, $1.2 billion

The Legislature is meeting in a special session to address a Texas Supreme Court ruling that the school finance system is unconstitutional because it allows disparities between property-rich and poor school districts.

State's financial problems will affect poor

AUSTIN (AP) — Lawmakers meeting in a special legislative session on judicial and education reform now have another problem — a projected $1 billion shortfall in funds for programs that serve poor people and chronically ill children.

"In the absence of additional appropriations... the alternative will be to take steps to reduce services," said Jim Oliver, director of the Legislative Budget Board, said Thursday in a briefing to the House.

House Speaker Gib Lewis said agency chiefs are trying to make budget adjustments in response to the shortfall and that legislative leaders will consider their efforts at the next Legislative Budget Board meeting, which has not been scheduled.

Oliver said the projected shortfall for the budget period is the result of increased demand for services and increased funding requirements set by the federal government in order to receive matching funds.

The $1 billion shortfall includes $482 million in state funds and $517 million that would be lost in federal matching funds. The shortfall is in the human services, education, health and mental health and mental retardation agencies.

Caseload in the Aid to Families with Disabled Children program is running 6.2 percent higher than originally expected and that increase now is projected to increase 12.9 percent next year, Oliver said.

The total Department of Human Services shortfall is $852 million, including $334.6 million in state funds.

growth in public school enrollment, the education agency faces a $64.6 million deficit. Meanwhile, a health department program for chronically ill children will have a $40.7 million deficit.

The Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation has requested $42.1 million more to comply with court-ordered improvements.

"With a figure of this magnitude," Oliver said "it would be unduly optimistic to think that you could avoid a reduction of services."

Drug spending

AUSTIN (AP) — Nearly $500 million will be spent in 1990-91 by Texas state agencies on anti-drug measures — including incarceration of drug offenders, the state comptroller reports.

But excluding prison costs, nearly three-fourths of that spending will be funded through federal grants, according to a published report. In the publication Fiscal Notes, the comptroller says less than $100 will be used during the current budget period for drug treatment and education.

"That's a tiny fraction — about two-tenths of 1 percent of Texas' $47 billion two-year budget," according to the comptroller.

Montford bill

AUSTIN (AP) — A state senator has introduced a "limited voting" bill for election of judges.

Under the plan being offered by Sen. John Montford, D-Lubbock, voters would have only a limited number of votes to fill judicial vacancies.

For example, if a county had five judgeships open, a voter could pick only three candidates from a single list. The five candidates receiving the most votes would be elected judges.

The idea behind limited voting is to give judicial candidates backed by minority groups a fighting chance to win election, Montford said.

Lawmakers are looking at the way judges are elected in the wake of a federal judge's ruling that at-large elections of state district judges in nine urban counties illegally dilute the strength of minority voters.

First black named to court bench

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Bill Clement today named a black district judge, Louis Sturns, to the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals, the state's highest criminal court bench.

Clements appointed Sturns, of Tarrant County, to fill the unexpired term of LOUIS E. STURNS Judge M.P. "Rusty" Duncan, who was killed in a traffic accident Feb. 28, said Rossanna Salazar, the governor's press secretary.

Sturns, 40, becomes the second member of a minority group to hold a statewide office. One Hispanic, Texas Supreme Court Justice Raul Gonzalez, has twice won that post after initially being appointed by former Gov. Mark White.

Sturns practiced law for 10 years before Clements appointed him to the district court bench in Tarrant County during the governor's first term.

Unintrusive drug testing

Across the nation, employers are wrestling with the problem of how to keep drug-using workers out of safety-related jobs without infringing on the privacy and dignity of the majority of law-abiding employees. Technology, so often the enemy of privacy, may this time provide the way out of their dilemma.

An Emeryville, Calif., firm has begun marketing a computer-based technique for testing whether workers are suffering impaired reactions and coordination from drugs, alcohol or other causes. The technique, called a critical tracking test, requires the worker to move a dial to keep an electronic pointer from straying from the middle of a computer screen. The computer program causes the pointer to stray and measures the worker's ability to respond to deviations against the worker's own past performance on the test.

The technique, originally developed for training pilots and now being used by three California companies to test drivers and ship operators, offers numerous advantages over collecting urine for drug tests. It is cheaper, quicker and less intrusive than urinalysis. It directly measures the ability to perform a job, not what a worker does in off hours. It also offers greater protection for public safety. The results of a drug test don't come for days; the tracking test can be administered every day before a crane operator climbs into the cab or the bus driver sits behind the wheel, telling an employer on the spot whether a worker is impaired.

Establishing the long-term reliability and usefulness of this technique, and other performance-based screening for drug or alcohol impairment, will require extensive field testing. Because there are reasons other than drug use for impairment — illness, lack of sleep, stress — firms using this kind of test will have to work out policies to determine how to handle the results and perform additional screening on workers who fail it. But in a society that values both privacy and safety, the prospect of a system that allows firms to screen safety-related workers for drug impairment without the indignity of a search should be welcome news all around.

Controversy always stimulates sales

By LEWIS GRIZZARD

A man who said he had two teenaged daughters wrote and asked if I would comment on, as he put it, "The filth they're selling as music these days."

So happy to oblige, and I must agree with the man that the filth they are selling as music these days isn't really music, just a guy with a deep voice saying a lot of dirty words while somebody beats on a barrel with a 2-iron and somebody else kills a cat in the background.

Music music at least should have a tune so you can hum it while you kill a cat.

Also, the man who wrote isn't the only person who is concerned about the filth they are selling as music these days.

The governor of Florida is concerned, for instance. He wants the state's prosecutor to find a way to keep a recording by something called 2 Live Crew away from minors.

I saw a photograph of 2 Live Crew in the paper. They were four young men who looked more like somebody's starting backfield than a recording group, but what do I know?

Bette Midler looks more like a linebacker than a singer, but she did a pretty good job on "Wind Beneath My Wings."

2 Live Crew has a blockbuster hit out titled, "Me So Horny." I have never heard the recording, but the Washington Post called it, "A misogynist's catalog of aggressive sexual acts, delivered in lewd and lurid detail."

Translated, that means the lyrics are so filthy you would be appalled if you heard them, thus making your teenaged daughters drool for the first opportunity to get their hot little ears on them, too.

Lewis Grizzard

What I think is people like the governor of Florida and the man who wrote me are wasting their time.

That's because there is an ageless equation that goes, "Nothing sells like controversy."

There's this guy in New York named Bernie, see. He works for a record label. He wears a toupee and a jewelry store around his neck.

When 2 Live Crew first brought their recording to him, it was titled, "The Wind in Your Hair."

But Bernie's smart. He said to 2 Live Crew, "That won't sell eight copies. Call it 'Me So Horny' and make it filthy and get back to me in 30 minutes."

So, 2 Live Crew puts out a misogynist's catalog of aggressive sexual acts, delivered in lewd and lurid detail, parents get upset, the governor of Florida gets upset, and kids flock to record stores to buy it, and Bernie gets rich and the recording group gets rich.

Legislation won't stop the aforementioned equation from working. All that will stop it is to ignore 2 Live Crew and "Me So Horny," thus taking away the thrill your kids get when they listen to such.

That way, your children will go back to dyeing their hair orange, or whatever else they can think of to drive you crazy, and 2 Live Crew will sign with Clemons and Bernie will have to find a real job. Like being a pimp.

Baseball lockout only serves to fuel fans' fury

By GEORGE F. WILL

WASHINGTON—When baseball's current debacle began, the moral high ground (never higher than a pitcher's mound—10 inches) belonged to the players. But they, who as entertainers should know when an act has gone stale, have, by putting and over-reaching, reduced themselves to the owners' level.

The owners spent the 1980s proving themselves dishonest and dim-witted (in thinking they could get away with the dishonesty). They conspired to stop abruptly all bidding on free agents. They reaped what they sowed — financial penalties and the players' animosity. Then, shattered attendance records and having struck a gusher of cash from a billion-dollar television contract that begins this year, the owners planned a lockout as part of an aggressive attack on the players' rights: mobility, bargaining power.

The owners justified this by pointing to a crisis that is (trust us, they said) just over the horizon. And they spent the months before the lockout spending like fury, awarding many $3 million contracts, and $21.7 million in signing bonuses.

Furthermore, they spent the 15 years prior to 1990 predicting that players' free agency would destroy competitive balance because rich teams in large markets would monopolize talent. Those 15 years have seen better competitive balance than ever before.

Even if the owners are correct about the coming crisis, they are wrong about the way the world works. People do not cope with crises until crises confront them. America fundamentally altered the role of the federal government only under the duress of the Depression; Britain brought Churchill to power only after Hitler reached the English Channel. Baseball will not radically revise itself until the hypothetical crisis becomes actual.

Nevertheless, the owners submitted a cockamamie proposal, the ramifications of which they could not explain. They quickly beat a retreat, and immediately the players' side began behaving badly.

On that side are 650 men, most of them young, all of them intensely competitive, none of them schooled by life in political skills. A test of political maturity is knowing when not to press an advantage. The players, and their union leader Don Fehr, flunked that test.

Fehr, 41, and his fire-breathing associates use stridency to substitute for plausibility when claiming that large issues of equity are at stake in the scramble for the last marginal advantage for players averaging $557,000 a year. Fehr's passion for distributive justice deserves a larger cause or a smaller spotlight. He evinces slight affection for, or understanding of, baseball, which he seems to regard as an industry like any other, which it is not.

"I don't think," says Fehr, "American culture would collapse if baseball collapsed." That flippancy is trivially true and utterly foolish. Symphony orchestras, steel mills — American culture could survive without lots of things. But baseball, unlike, say, the textile industry, depends for its health on a perishable hold on the public's imagination. Fehr does not understand the industry that provides his constituents their enviable livelihoods.

Players cannot be faulted for making, or their union faulted for helping them make, millions from an industry with three commas in its gross. But by now, both owners and players are myopic, battling about minute monetary differences and "philosophic" differences that prove there are few philosophers in baseball.

The owners are afraid to begin the season without an agreement because the players could strike in August when the players have made most of their money and the owners have not. However, the owners should start the season, stipulating that everything agreed to so far (and it is a lot) will be implemented retroactively in a final agreement. Then let's see if the players will wreck the remainder of the season over the unsettled issue (how to make some second-year players eligible for salary arbitration). Will they inflict that cost on baseball, not least on the perhaps 200 players who in August will have reasonable hopes of getting into lucrative post-season play?

Today, with grim appropriateness, the national pastime replicates the pathology of the nation's governance. It has sunk into a shortsighted, elbow-throwing jumble of egos and avarice, an unseemly clamor about rights, with responsibility toward institutional health given short shrift.

Players are privileged to be temporary participants in a great cultural institution; the owners are privileged to have temporary custody of that institution. (Even for established players — at least two years service — the average career lasts only about 10 years. Twenty-one of today's 26 owners arrived on the scene after 1970, 14 in the 1980s; the average tenure is just 13 years.) Every day now, the institution that has been a boon to both parties is being diminished by both, because what makes the game special is being dissipated.

Its specialness derives from the fact that from late winter to late autumn it is always there, on the field and in the air. Baseball does not just produce, in a sense it is the geology of records, the statistical sediment of its everydayness, that stuff of conversation and comparison that mounts up season by season.

The strike-shortened 1981 season was a shambles. Any truncated season is a farce, a ridiculously elongated exhibition schedule. If, for the second time in ten years, there is no real season, there will be cold, unforgiving fury among those fans who matter most: the ones who understand the heartbeat of the institution that is being cheapened by those who have been enriched by it.

Participants enjoy women's night out festivities

The women of Christian Temple Church had a fun and "puzzling" time at their last women's night out held March 5 at the home of Dana Moody. Each woman was asked to bring a food dish with an odd name to sample, and a riddle to reveal secret sisters. Let me just say move over Betty Crocker and Elizabeth Barrett Browning!

shortening in large skillet until tender but not brown, and beef, brown lightly. Add remaining ingredients except chips and cheese. Simmer uncovered 1 hour stirring occasionally. Line dish with chips and cover with sauce and top with cheese.

Gotta have faith

The Faith Class of First Baptist Church has started a women's night out that will be held the first Monday of every month. For their first meeting held March 5, the women enjoyed a relaxing night away from the kids and house

One of the recipes for the dishes that the women brought is presented below.

WYOMING STRAW HAT

- 2 1/2 cup chopped celery
- 2 1/2 cup chopped ground pepper
- 3 tablespoons shortening
- 2 lbs. ground beef

Holy bowlers

Others at Christian Temple also got in on a good time as eight couples traveled to Big Spring Saturday. Everyone enjoyed a delicious Mexican supper at Alberto's, before exercising it all off while bowling. A challenge was made as everyone divided into two teams — the losing team will sing a special at church the next day. The losers kept their word as they sang "What A Day That Will Be".

STEPHANIE MATLOCK

High school basketball has come to an end and once again with that the athletes anxiously wait to see who will be named to the All-District teams. In Westbrook two young women were chosen for 1A All-District team, first string. They are Stephanie Matlock and Sherry Putman. Bubba Botts was also chosen from Westbrook for the first string boys team. Being named MVP was an honor for Scooter Hines, he too is from Westbrook.

Colorado City athletes were left out as several were named All District in 6-3A.

Brittany Bridgford made First Team All District in basketball. Bridgett Bridgford, Cami Redwine, Amy Chitsey and Brittany Bridgford were named to the Honorable Mention Team. All academic honors were also released and Brittany Bridgford, Kendra Ritchey, Amy Chitsey, and Tracy Hoover made the team.

For the Colorado City Wolves Boys Team Dane Hoover and Marcus Monroe made the First Team All District Honor Roll. Dane Hoover was named the Co-Most Monroe received the Sophomore of the Year Award. Making the Second Team All District were Wendell Iglehart, Robert Lewis, and Tracy Ausbie.

Who is that masked man? Is it Zorro? The Lone Ranger? No it's Blaine Lemons, Texas Tech's newest masked rider. Blaine is the son of Bobby and Jan Lemons of Colorado City. When it comes to horses, Blaine is no stranger. Working on the family farm when he was young and being involved in the 4-H Horse Club in high school helped lay the way for bigger things to come. After graduating from Colorado High School, Blaine made Lubbock his new home while attending Texas Tech. In Lubbock he worked for the Jack Afill Horse Auctions. Last year Blaine was also a part of the Texas Tech Horse Judging Team. Plans to try out last year for Raider Mascot were put on hold due to a bicycle accident that resulted in a knee injury. Children in restaurants cause sour looks, stomachs

DEAR ABBY: So "Indigestion in Anaheim" has had it with all those "cute" little toddlers in restaurants whose yelling and screaming make it impossible for other diners to carry on a conversation? Well, I have a message for her: Parents of toddlers like to eat out occasionally, too. It's nice when you can take the family out to eat and have someone else clean up the mess (and toddlers do make a mess).

Don't criticize toddlers for whining and crying — that's what children that age do. You were no different when you were a toddler. (Ask your mother.) Adults can be loud and irritating, too, so please don't pick on toddlers. — OFFENDED IN PHILLY

DEAR ABBY: I agree with "Indigestion in Anaheim." I, too, am tired of going to restaurants and having my evening ruined by families with small children. Here are some tips for parents:

- (1) The party at the next table

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: This is for "Indigestion in Anaheim": People like you give me indigestion. We have three children under 5 years old, and we take them out to eat once a week. They are not always angels, but whose kids are? We are tired of the long sighs and dirty looks we get from other diners if one of our kids acts up.

We purposely avoid the "family" restaurants because they're full of kids, and it just doesn't work out.

Where we come from, sitters charge by the child, which is too expensive. So when you see families with small children eating out, give us a break and don't treat us like we have some kind of contagious disease. — PARENTS WITH CHILDREN

Convicted sex offender appeals Big Spring case

By BRADLEY WORRELL
Staff Writer

A man sentenced to 18 years in prison by a Howard County jury for sexual assault has asked for a review of his case from the Court of Appeals in Eastland, charging he did not receive a fair first trial.

Willie Dearing, whose age and address were never determined, was convicted of the Jan. 5, 1989, sexual assault of a local 94-year-old woman. Dearing's attorney could not be contacted for comment on the exact reason for the appeal, but at the end of the trial Dearing, who is black, had claimed he was the victim of discrimination.

The prosecution maintained during the case that Dearing forced himself on the woman and physically abused her when she attempted to resist him. The defense noted that the two had been seen together earlier in the day and cited the testimony of two witnesses who said the two appeared friendly.

They found Dearing guilty after spending 22 minutes in deliberations and spent another 40 minutes before handing down the 18-year prison sentence.

Dearing was originally charged with the more serious offense of agwitnesses testified that when the woman was taken to the hospital after the assault in her home she had been "beaten to a pulp."

Grand jury

A Howard County Grand Jury returned 36 indictments Wednesday including three charges against a Midland man in connection with the March 7 abduction of his wife from church service.

Henry James Lister, 33, was charged with aggravated kidnapping, burglary of a habitation and tampering with a witness in the handgun abduction of his wife from a Sunday evening church service.

Lister is being held in county jail without bail.

The 33 indictments returned by the grand jury in other cases range from theft by appropriation to aggravated robbery and indecency with a child.

County court

Howard County Commissioners on Monday gave authorization for the juvenile probation department to apply for a criminal justice agreement with other grants should help defer costs associated with the transport of juveniles from Howard County to a youth detention facility in Fort Stockton, County Judge John Coffee said.

The cost of transferring juveniles to the detention facility is cheaper than the alternative of housing them at a juvenile probation holding area in the courthouse annex for a cost of $160 a day, he said.

Budget watch

With most of its revenues for the upcoming fiscal year collected now, the county budget ended the month of January with $2.7 million in its five major funds — down from the $3.4 million left in the five funds last year, County Auditor Jackie Olson said recently.

"The expenditures continue but the revenue kind of drops off," she said of the current budget.

The county has about $1.6 million in its five funds that carried it over from last year, and that figure is also down from the previous year, Olson said.

The commissioners' court is aware of the shrinking county funds and will continue to monitor

Difficult people seminar

Having difficulties dealing with a nag or other difficult sort of person?

Maybe the answer can be found in a "Dealing With Difficult People" seminar sponsored by the Extension Home Economics Committee, Howard College Vocational Education Department and the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

The first part of the seminar, from 9:30 a.m. until 11:45 a.m., concerns dealing with difficult people. County Extension Agent program from 1:15 p.m. until 3:15 p.m. deals with working with difficult people as it relates to families.

The afternoon seminar will focus on step-parenting, ages and stages, coping skills and communicating with children, Hunt said. There is no cost for the seminar but the extension office asks that those interested in attending preregister so the extension office can prepare enough materials in advance, she said.

pay for child care services. Last year, the Senate passed a $23 billion package that includes both vouchers and federal regulation. The two House committees have disagreed over the details of the Senate plan and have been trying to work out a compromise agreement this week.

Stenholm, who is the leader of the conservative Democrats in the House, said the Bush administration will veto any legislation that includes the direct voucher system or federal oversight.

He argues that federal oversight will only create a new bureaucracy and interfere with private and church-related child care centers.

"The question is who is better able to make child-care decisions, parents or the federal government?" I say that parents are," Stenholm told reporters recently.

During a press conference at the Capitol, Stenholm told reporters there were five principles that needed to be the foundation of any child care approach.

He said parents, localities and states are better decision-makers than the federal government as to how their children should be cared for, child care legislation should not be biased for or against stay-at-home parents or the type of provider which parents choose for their children.

Stenholm said he also believes the federal government should not establish complicated new bureaucracies for administering child care funds but instead should build on proven programs and the families with the greatest financial needs must be given priority.

"I believe that while the economy may have changed and family work patterns may have changed, fundamental family values are timeless," said Stenholm.

The bill will serve as the basis for a substitute amendment to the existing bills being sponsored by the Education and Labor Committee and the Ways and Means Committee. The House of Representatives is expected to vote on the child care issue by the end of the first week of April.

promotional ad in Houston. Pasterini-Peterson Agency, which represents her, had posted the auditions and she decided to try out, even though it was for the part of a 17 year old and her agent didn't like the idea of her portraying someone older than herself.

She took acting lessons last summer with Marietta Marrick, who coached Patrick Swayze, so she knew what to expect of auditions.

"After I did the reading I felt really good about it," she said. "The director said he picked me because I looked innocent, which is funny because everyone tells me I look seductive," Dawn said.

Hairdressers tamed her normally blonde hair to a not-quite mousy brown for the role of Angela, a nice girl whose family prays in closets.

"I was a 17 year old with a horrible life because my parents fought. I was heading off to college in two separate cars, my mom was driving one and I was in the other and we went to get gas. And I was kidnapped by such a gorgeous guy. I think the actor's name is Lewis Guzman, and he kills me," Dawn said in summary of the movie's plot.

She said the three weeks of filming were emotionally and physically rigorous.

"They take me out into the country and start beating me up and even though there was a stunt coordinator I still had bruises all over the place," Dawn said. "I had to cry through the whole movie and after 14 hours of crying some days I'd get so sad.

making the inmates understand why they have been incarcerated, he said.

"They don't know U.S. law and why they are there, if it's for felonies or misdemeanors. It's very difficult for them to understand," the Mexican chancellor said.

Navarro said the length of time they will be detained varies depending on the charges, but is usually between 60 days and nine months.

"There're no real criminals there, no serious offenders," he said. Many of them are there for violation of immigration law, Navarro said.

"They're simple people, not really dangerous," he added.

"They've been deprived of their freedom. Every one of them is thinking of the day they can be free again."

"We try to help them as much as possible," he said. "We can tell them what happened to belongings they may have had, what happened to minors they may have been after being arrested on a charge of possession of marijuana under two ounces.

The Howard County Sheriff's Office reported the following incidents:

Mitchell Wayne Scott, 25, Lamesa, was released on $1,000 bond after being arrested on a charge of driving while intoxicated.

Jesus Lopez, 34, Sweetwater, was released on $250 bond after being arrested on a charge of theft over $20/under $200.

"One day we were filming a scene where I was in the closet praying and I was supposed to be crying so I put myself in her place and her life was so sad that I cried too hard and they couldn't hear my lines."

Joy Woodward said Dawn wouldn't let her watch her daughter's scenes because she distracted the girl.

"She told me she was trying to think of the actress playing her mom in the movie as her mother," Joy Woodward said. "(Dawn) said, 'When you're there, you're my mom.'"

Watching the other actors and sneaking peeks at Dawn was a lot of fun, Joy Woodward said, but she missed the rest of the family: her husband John and son John II, who is also interested in modeling for advertisements.

"I'm not going anywhere near the front of a camera," Joy Woodward said, despite its attraction for her kids. "I'll just watch."

Dawn has been modeling since she was 5 and plans to make it her profession. She's going to New York this summer to work for Seventeen magazine and hopes she'll be a success so she can stay there.

"I've always wanted to live in the city," Dawn said. "My mom's the opposite. She's from the Houston area and she wants to get away from people."

Dawn likes the other models she meets on shoots. "When you look at them, you think they're probably phony, but we relate really well because we have the same professional goals."

She's also planning trips to Los Angeles and Las Vegas to make contact with modeling agencies there that might represent her. The more agencies you sign with, the more job opportunities you have as a model, she said.

If she had a choice, Dawn would most likely pick Los Angeles as her home. She said she likes living here well enough but West Texas doesn't offer many opportunities to people like her. She's done some local fashion shows and modeling and she's involved in a one-act play at the high school based on "Where the Lillies Bloom."

She'd choose Los Angeles because she loves the beach. "But you don't always get what you want. There's a lot of hard work and stress in modeling and acting," Dawn said.

In case you can't wait for "Murder Wishes" to appear at a theater near you, Dawn said the movie has a happy ending, of sorts.

The other guy who helps the gorgeous guy kidnap her gets out of prison after they're both arrested and goes to work for her movie mom. The gorgeous guy, who's the bad guy, escapes from prison to murder her mom since she's the only one who can identify him in the trial for her daughter's murder. The good guy defends her mother and ends up dying at the hands of the gorgeous bad guy, who goes to prison for ever. Or something like that.

adding, "I'm very happy with both of these prisons."

The prisons have very well-organized programs for the inmates, including English and music programs, he said, and Navarro was largely complimentary of the two facilities.

"Both jails, the Big Spring jail (corrections facility) and federal prison are run very well by the directors. We're very happy to see that they are professionals."

Local prison officials are also complimentary of the work Navarro does for the Mexican consulate.

"It's a very positive thing. We have some very good comments from the Mexican consulate as far as the cleanliness of the INS facility," said Johnny Rutherford, business manager for the detention center.

"I don't know the nature of their conversations (with prisoners)," Rutherford said. "Consulate officials come primarily out of interest for Mexican citizens, to try to assist them any way."

Convict faces parole hearing

By BRADLEY WORRELL
Staff Writer

BIG SPRING — A man charged with aggravated sexual assault and parole violation may have his parole revoked after the State Board of Pardons and Paroles makes a determination about his guilt or innocence.

Randy Ray Young, 27, Brownfield, who was on probation for sexual assault before he was convicted and sent to prison for burglary, is more recently charged with a Jan. 26 aggravated sexual assault and parole violation. He maintained his innocence of the recent charges Wednesday in a probable cause hearing held with parole officer David Harmon and Midland hearing officer Eddy Martinez.

"I can prove in court, if that's what it takes, that I didn't do it," a dour-faced Young told Martinez. Young, in handcuffs and wearing white prison garb with sandles, said witnesses could testify that he was at work the Friday afternoon the victim was sexually assaulted and cut with a knife in a residence on Lorilla Street.

Young, who appeared at the hearing with his wife, father and sister-in-law, said he is married, has two children and was attempting to lead a productive life after his parole from prison on the burglary conviction.

"I did my best to make my payments, do what I was supposed to do," Young said between drags on a cigarette.

The victim of the assault did not testify Thursday, but Big Spring Police Detective Michael Stahl, who interviewed the woman, said she identified Young from pictures and from a live line up. An earlier sexual assault victim who lived on Main Street also identified Young from a pictures as her attacker, he said.

Stahl said the women had "no hesitation when they picked him out of the line up."

Thursday's hearing was part of a two step process to determine if Young will be released back on parole or returned to the Texas Department of Criminal Justice, Harmon said later. Because Young chose not to waive a parole hearing, he will have a chance to answer charges again after the board makes their decision in about 30 days.

Buzzer-beater basketball turned two games and nearly knocked off a No. 1 seed in the opening round of the NCAA tournament on Thursday, while Princeton again just missed. Princeton, which lost to Georgetown 50-49 in the first round last year, almost got its upset this time. The patient Tigers led No. 7 Arkansas by a point with 6:19 left, but lost 68-64 in the Midwest Regional. "I remember talking to John (Georgetown coach Thompson) last year and he told me, 'You don't want to play Princeton,'" Richardson said. "He was right."

NCAA

Michigan State, top-seeded in the Southeast, was forced into overtime by a desperation 3-pointer at the buzzer and needed a reverse layup by Kirk Manns with 43 seconds left in the extra session to defeat Murray State 75-71.

Oregon State, seeded No. 6 in the West, was less fortunate against No. 12 Ball State as Paris McCurdy converted a three-point play with no time left for a 54-53 victory.

Oklahoma, top-seeded in the Midwest, took a tentative first step, holding off stubborn Towson State for a 77-68 victory that left coach Billy Tubbs confused over the rankings of the teams involved.

In other games, La Salle defeated Southern Mississippi 79-63, Connecticut beat Boston University 76-52 and California downed Indiana 65-63 in the East at Hartford, UC Santa Barbara beat Houston 70-66, LSU stopped Villanova 70-63 and Georgia Tech downed East Tennessee State 99-83 in the Southeast at Knoxville.

In the Midwest at Austin, North Carolina downed Southwest Missouri State 83-70 and Dayton defeated Illinois 88-86 and in the West, Louisville handled Idaho 78-59, UNLV routed Arkansas-Little Rock 102-72 and Ohio State beat Providence 84-83 in overtime. The first round continues Friday with 16 more games. The second round begins on Saturday.

Southeast

UC Santa Barbara 70, Houston 66, Eric McArthur overcame foul trouble to score 20 points, three in the final 59 seconds, as the Gauchos advanced to a second round meeting with Michigan State.

McArthur, who also had 11 rebounds despite playing with four fouls down the stretch, put Santa Barbara ahead 66-65 with a follow shot, then added a free throw with 28 seconds left for a two-point lead. After McArthur stole a pass, Paul Johnson's two free throws with two seconds remaining provided the final points. Michigan State 75, Murray State 71.

Manns finished with 21 points, the last two on a drive from the left side, ducking between two defenders for the scoop shot that got the Spartans (27-6) past Murray State. Steve Smith scored six of his team-high 22 points in the extra period and Dwayne Stephens sealed the victory with a breakaway layup with 13 seconds left.

Murray State forced the overtime when Greg Coble hit a 3-pointer at the buzzer, tying the score at 65-65. Popeye Jones of the Racers (21-9) led all scorers with 37 points.

LSU 70, Villanova 63

LSU, led by Maurice Williamson, took a big lead and never trailed in beating cold-shooting Villanova.

The 19th-ranked Tigers (23-8) handed Villanova coach Rollie Massimino his first loss in 10 opening-round games in the NCAA tournament.

LSU led 25-8 with seven minutes left in the first half as Williamson made four 3-pointers. He and Jackson each finished with 16 points.

Villanova (18-15) made just one of its first nine shots and finished at just 30 percent from the field. Chris Walker scored 20 for the Wildcats.

Georgia Tech 99, East Tennessee State 83

Dennis Scott scored 36 points and No. 9 Georgia Tech hit 16 of its first 19 shots in breezing past East Tennessee State.

The Yellow Jackets (26-6) led 39-17 just 11:33 into the game and cruised into Saturday's second round against LSU.

Scott made 14 of 22 shots and Kenny Anderson added 21 points and 10 assists East Tennessee State (27-7) had all five starters back from last year's team that lost to Oklahoma 72-71 in the first round of the NCAAs.

Ball State 54, Oregon State 53

McCurdy's three-point play gave the Cardinals the day's biggest upset after the Beavers appeared headed for the second round.

Oregon State, playing without All-American guard Gary Payton, who scored just 11 points before fouling out, took a 53-51 lead when Teo Alibegovic nailed a turnaround jumper with three seconds left.

But a floor-length pass glanced off an Oregon State player and out of bounds, allowing Ball State to travel from one end of the court to the other with just one second ticking off the clock. After a timeout, McCurdy took the inbound pass at the baseline, hit a short jumper at the buzzer while being fouled by Karl Anderson and dropped in the free throw for the win.

UNLV 102, Arkansas-Little Rock 72

Stacey Augmon had 16 points and six teammates also scored in double figures as No. 2 UNLV won easily.

UNLV (30-5), the top seed in the West, broke the game open with a 15-0 run late in the first half to open a 22-point lead against.

Little Rock, eliminated in the first round of the NCAA tournament for the second straight year, ended the season 20-10.

Louisville 78, Idaho 59

Jerome Harmon scored eight points and Felton Spencer added seven to spark a 26-2 run late in the first half that buried Idaho and set up an all-Cardinals second-round meeting with Ball State.

Louisville, seeded fourth in the West, got a pair of fast-break baskets in a 12-0 run that turned a 17-10 deficit into a 22-17 lead.

Sammie Freeman's basket cut Louisville's lead to three, but the Cardinals scored the last 14 points of the half, including a three-point play by Smith, for a 36-19 lead. The Vandals got no closer than 11 points in the second half.

Ohio State 84, Providence 83

Ohio State rallied from a 12-point deficit in the last six minutes of regulation, and freshman Jim Jackson scored six points in overtime as the Buckeyes outlasted Providence 84-83.

The Buckeyes (17-12) advanced to Saturday's second round to meet UNLV. Providence finished at 17-12.

New face upsets Salukis

By The Associated Press

Southern Illinois, which thought it deserved a shot in the NCAA tournament, was knocked out in the first round of the National Invitation Tournament on Thursday night by Wisconsin-Green Bay.

Tony Bennett scored 26 points in leading Wisconsin-Green Bay to the 73-60 upset of the Salukis.

Green Bay, an Association of Mid-Century Universities member making its first postseason appearance as an NCAA Division I school, improved its record to 24-7.

The Salukis, the regular-season champions of the Missouri Valley Conference, ended the season at 26-8.

The Salukis were ahead 36-30 at the half, but they shot just 25 percent in the second half and finished the game making only 17 of 53 field goal attempts.

Ben Johnson added 14 for Wisconsin-Green Bay and Larry Hill had 12 points and 10 rebounds. Southern Illinois was topped by Freddie McSwain's 15 points and Jerry Jones' 11.

Maryland 91, Massachusetts 81

At College Park, Maryland got eight points from Jerrod Mustaf in a 10-0 run late in the second half to beat Massachusetts. With 6:56 remaining Maryland scored on six straight possessions, stretching its lead from 66-65 to 82-71 at the 3:15 mark.

Mustaf led Maryland with 23 points, including 18 in the second half. McCoy had 19, while senior Tony Massenburg had 17 points and 10 rebounds.

Fordham 106, Southern U. 80

Damon Lopez had 24 points, 19 rebounds and 9 blocked shots as Fordham trounced visiting Southern University.

Andre McClendon added 23 points for the Rams, 20-12, while Fred Herzog had a career-high 21 and Dan O'Sullivan completed the double-figure scorers with 11.

Fordham, making its 15th NIT appearance, won for only the third time against 13 losses in the postseason tournament.

Joe Faulkner had a game-high 27 points and 12 rebounds for the Jaguars, 25-6, who entered the game as the nation's third leading scoring team with a 99.1 average.

Mississippi St. 84, Baylor 75

At Starkville, Cameron Burns scored 28 points inside and Tony Watts added 23 from long range to carry Mississippi State past Baylor.

Making its first postseason appearance in 11 seasons, Mississippi State (16-13) advanced to the second round to be played next Monday or Tuesday. Baylor of the Southwest Conference finished 16-14.

A 10-3 State run in the final three minutes of the first half boosted the Bulldogs to a 39-30 lead and Baylor could rally to no closer than two points in the second half.

Oklahoma St. 83, Tulsa 74

At Stillwater, Royce Jeffries scored 26 points as Oklahoma State defeated Tulsa.

Oklahoma State (17-13) was able to get the ball inside to Jeffries, and when Tulsa made a second-half run, the Cowboys went outside to Mattias Sahlstrom.

Tulsa (17-13) went on a 12-4 run to cut the lead to 55-53 midway through the second half. Sahlstrom hit a 3-pointer. Then, after Byron Houston hit a short jumper, Sahlstrom struck again from beyond the 3-point line and was fouled after the shot. He hit one of two free-throws to give Oklahoma State a nine-point lead.

Vanderbilt 98, Louisiana Tech 90, OT

At Nashville, Scott Draud hit nine of his 22 points in overtime to lead Vanderbilt over Louisiana Tech.

The Commodores (17-14) rallied from a 17-point deficit in the second half, and a 12-foot jumper by Draud tied the game at 80-80 with 11 seconds left in regulation.

Eric Reid and Derrick Wilcox scored 17 points each for Vanderbilt, Morgan Wheat added 11 and Todd Milholland finished with 10.

Gibbs finished with 31 for the Bulldogs. Roosevelt Powell added 17 points.

Hawaii 69, Stanford 57

Chris Gaines scored 21 of his 24 points in the second half for Hawaii against Stanford at Honolulu.

Gaines scored seven points during a decisive 11-2 run over a span of 4:06 that gave the Rainbows (24-9) a 65-53 lead with 4:33 to play.

Linksters battle high winds in Tucson Open

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Marta Figueras-Dotti smiled knowingly when she thought of the golfers who would be facing a course she had just played.

LPGA

"The wind was perfect this morning," said Figueras-Dotti, who shot a 5-under-par 67 Thursday morning. "It picked up on us on the 12th hole. It's really blowing out there now."

Wind gusting to 25 mph took a bite out of most scores Thursday afternoon, and Figueras-Dotti's early round stood up for a share of first-round lead in the LPGA Tucson Open. The 32-year-old from Spain, winless in seven seasons as a pro, withstood the rising wind late in her round, getting four birdies over the last six holes on the 6,243-yard North course at Randolph Park to catch Nancy Rubin at 67.

The wind actually helped Rubin avoid disaster on No. 8, when the wind carried her tee shot on the par-3 hole into the bleachers. The ball bounded into a clearing, allowing Rubin to chipped within 10 feet and sink a par-saving putt.

Only nine players from the afternoon group managed to break par, with Kate Rogerson's 69 the best of the session. The other eight were all at 71.

Tammie Green was among the players from the afternoon group who had bids for the lead spoiled by the wind.

Green got it to 4-under but, with the wind gusting, she bogeyed Nos. 5, 8 and 9. On the par-4 9th, her 8-iron approach got a wind-aided boost into a water hazard. She said the breeze made a difference of two or three clubs for the shots she had Tuesday in winning the tournament's Shootout segment.

Figueras-Dotti had little trouble getting her approach close to the pin. Six of her birdie putts were of 10 feet or less.

"My putting stroke was really good," she said. "I almost made every putt."

"I had some problems with my putting last year. But I'm putting better now. I was confident today. I'm not 100 percent yet. I'm just getting it back."

Rubin was 16th at Tucson in 1988, but failed to qualify for the tournament last spring.

"I was upset not making it last year," Rubin said. "I've always liked playing here. I like the course. The greens are straightforward. Every year, it seems the course is getting better and better."

In addition to the wind, the start of Thursday's round was delayed 30 minutes because of frost on the greens, the result of overnight temperatures in the 30s.

Arkansas 68, Princeton 64
 Princeton frustrated the Razorbacks all night, but Arkansas' speed and talent finally prevailed.
 The Tigers (20-7) took a 20-9 lead and, after Arkansas went ahead with a 20-1 run midway through the game, regained the lead at 56-55 with 6:19 to play.
 After Arkansas (27-4) rallied for a 64-62 edge, Lenzie Howell got an offensive rebound on a missed free throw and made two foul shots with 47 seconds left. Arlyn Bowers added two foul shots with 13 seconds remaining.
 Oklahoma 77, Towson State 68
 For the second straight year, the top-seeded Sooners got a scare in the first round, and Tubbs was less than thrilled with his team.
 "They outthrust us, outfought us and we were fortunate to hang on," he said after the Tigers from the East Coast Conference cut a 12-point halftime deficit to four before losing. Last year, Oklahoma had to make up a 17-point deficit to beat lightly-regarded East Tennessee State in the first round.
 "Late in the game," Tubbs said,

HOUSTON (AP) — Heisman Trophy winner Andre Ware will pass up his senior year and declare himself available for the NFL draft, the University of Houston quarterback said today.
 "This is by far the most difficult decision I have had to make in all my years. I have cherished my three years here," Ware said he would not discuss the information he used to make his decision but he felt he had made the right move.
 "I made the decision and I'll go with it 100 percent," he said. "It's not a bad decision either way. It was never my goal to be the No. 1 pick or go real high. The goal is to play pro football."

 NCAA tournament game since the introduction of the 45 second clock in 1986.
 Howling provided six of the nine points with a pair of 3-pointers, his only baskets of the game.
 After Howling's second basket, BYU had two chances, but Haws missed the alley-oop attempt and then, after Ricky Jones missed the second of two foul shots with five seconds left, Schreiner missed a long, desperation shot.
 La Salle 79, S. Mississippi 63
 Lionel Simmons carried La Salle to its 22nd straight victory with 32 points and 16 rebounds as the Explorers won a first round NCAA game for the first time in their last eight tries.
 Simmons, the third leading scorer in major college history, took charge in La Salle's decisive second-half run, as the Explorers (30-1) ruined the first NCAA appearance by the Golden Eagles (20-12). Southern Mississippi could not get untracked from the outside, hitting only 9 of 35 shots from 3-point range.
 It was La Salle's first win in a first-round game since 1955, when the Explorers reached the finals as defending champions.
 Connecticut 76, Boston U. 52
 Nadav Henefeld and Chris Smith led a 21-1 second-half surge as No. 3 Connecticut ran by Boston University 76-52 at the Hartford Civic Center.
 It was the fifth consecutive victory for Connecticut (29-5). The Huskies, whose campus is in Storrs, are 8-1 this season at Hartford. They were allowed to play there in the tournament because fewer than half their home games were on that court.
 Boston University (18-12), the East's 16th seed, had won its three previous games, all at the Hartford Civic Center in the North Atlantic Conference tournament.
 California 65, Indiana 63
 Keith Smith broke a tie with two free throws with three seconds to play as California beat Indiana.
 California (22-9), which was making its first NCAA appearance since 1960, will play Connecticut on Saturday. The Bears are seeded ninth.
 Indiana (18-11), the East's eighth seed, got 20 points from Eric Anderson. The Hoosiers were making their fifth straight NCAA

Born-again Christian Ex-convict 'saved by the blood of Jesus'

By JOHN McMILLAN
Staff Writer

BIG SPRING — When the Rev. Don Dennis says he's a born-again Christian, his evidence of rebirth couldn't be more dramatic.

Only a few decades ago, Dennis was a habitual criminal with a life sentence in prison. Today, 10 years after being freed from prison, he's a Southern Baptist minister who hopes to change people's lives through Christianity.

"You can become a new person through Christ," Dennis said Thursday. "You can have a change of heart, and a change of life, through Jesus Christ."

Dennis, 55, who spent 16 years in prison for crimes such as robbery and forgery, will be a guest preacher Sunday at two Big Spring churches. Dennis will preach at the 11 a.m. worship service of the East Fourth Baptist Church, 401 East Fourth St., and at the 6 p.m. worship service of the Midway Baptist Church, Highway I-20 East.

Dennis is currently a consultant for the Baptist General Convention of Texas, and pastor of the Shawnee Baptist Church in Ennis. He also supervises the offering of spiritual programs for inmates at the state's prisons, including the Federal Prison Camp in Big Spring.

At the heart of Dennis's program for aiding people is MasterLife, a 26-week course on how to become a disciple of Christ, he said. Dennis, who did not create the program, noted that it is available for anyone. About 140,000 Americans have taken it, he said, and "I would recommend it (MasterLife) for any person who was searching for a closer walk with Jesus."

About 340 prison inmates in Texas have taken the MasterLife program under Dennis's supervision, he said. For teachers, Dennis said he generally relies on MasterLife graduates who live near the prisons.

Asked whether the MasterLife program has kept convicts from returning to prison, Dennis acknowledged that he has no information to demonstrate a lower recidivism rate among MasterLife graduates. But "in my heart," he said, "I know it's true" that the program helps keep people out of prison.

Students spend spring break renovating church

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — While other students party and swim along Coastal Bend beaches, some students on their spring breaks are spending their time renovating a church.

Shunning the sun and surf along Padre Island and other resort areas during the week-long college break, 62 young men and women instead opted to work with a local church community.

"This is a lot more fun — I get a lot more out of this," 21-year-old Chris Michael, a law enforcement major from Southern Illinois University in Carbondale, Ill., said. "At least here, when I spend my money, I'm helping to build a church."

"It's nice to be working with other young people like this and not

The Rev. Don Dennis, an ex-convict who now preaches the word of God, will preach tonight and Sunday in Big Spring.

To assist MasterLife graduates in the Dallas area, a coalition of inner city pastors is offering support services for them, he said.

Dennis said the MasterLife program is needed because prisons neglect the spiritual side of rehabilitation.

"I pray someday that the prison system and the people of the United States would realize that without a change of heart, all the money that we're spending on the prisons will be to no avail," Dennis said.

Though he was baptized as a Baptist during his Washington state childhood, Dennis said, he did not fully commit himself to Christianity until he went through a MasterLife course in 1981. The next year, he began a prison ministry in association with the Northside Baptist Church of Arlington. Dennis said he became ordained in 1985 as a Baptist minister of the Lamar Baptist Church.

The roots of the religious commitment began in prison. He was rebaptized in 1979 in the Walla Walla State Prison chapel in Washington state, and released from the prison in February 1980.

Dennis had been serving time on a life sentence for his fourth felony conviction in 1977. But a public defender appealed his life sentence, and he was released on a legal technicality, he said. Dennis said he had twice been sentenced on felony charges without an attorney present in the courtroom.

Dennis said he still feels shame when he talks about his criminal record. "There's a feeling of remorse, and I'm sorry for my past," he said. "But I do feel forgiven."

Dennis said "God's grace" makes that forgiveness possible. He quotes from Acts 13:38 in the Bible: "Therefore my brothers, I want you to know that through Jesus, the forgiveness of sins is proclaimed to you." He also cites Ephesians 17: "In hand, we have redemption through his blood for the forgiveness of sins in accordance with the richness of God's grace."

Although some Christians accept Dennis, he said, others will not forgive him for his criminal record. Such people "see me only as I was in the past — a prisoner or ex-prisoner," Dennis said.

The Christians who can't forgive him emphasize the Ten Commandments, "and don't really believe in grace," he said.

Dennis's response to such people: "Jesus says all of us are sinners. We all fall short of being perfect."

Jesus does not distinguish between types of sin, Dennis said, noting that "sin is sin." Murdering a person is no different in the eyes of God from stealing from someone's home, Dennis said.

Dennis said he was drawn into a life of crime as a rebellion when his parents divorced. Dennis was living in Washington at the time. "I guess I was hurt and resentful about that divorce," he said, noting that he felt close to both his parents.

"I hate to use that as an excuse," Dennis said. "I'm just saying that's where it (the impulse toward crime) originated — the rebellious nature."

Michael said the program benefited his prayer life. "I felt I hadn't devoted enough of my life to the Lord," he said of his reasons for joining the program. "I decided to spend some of my time doing some good."

The students have also had recreational outlets, including evening entertainment and a shopping trip to Nuevo Laredo scheduled for midweek. A church will host a Texas-style barbecue for the students on Friday, their last day before returning home.

Previous spring break trips for Loriann Stanislawski, a community health education major at Southern Illinois University, have included scuba diving in Florida.

DETROIT — The Rev. Thomas J. McNoy wept when he saw what vandals did to his church. Broken stained glass lay in puddled foam that had been sprayed about the sanctuary from a fire extinguisher. Banners were torn from their posts, liturgical vestments splashed with wine and tossed in an alley.

That desecration in September and other troubles threatened the life of Our Lady of Rosary Church in downtown Detroit. But while many inner-city, Roman Catholic parishes here and elsewhere have closed, the century-old Rosary is making it.

The battering from vandals occurred only three weeks before the church marked its 100th anniversary and while its continued existence was considered uncertain by the Detroit archdiocese.

Rosary was among 24 inner-city churches whose futures were labeled questionable in the second stage of the largest Catholic church retrenchment in U.S. history. Thirty other parishes had been closed earlier during phase one in early 1989.

Similar difficulties strained other urban parishes. Chicago's big debt-burdened archdiocese said in January that 30 financially strapped parishes with declining congregations and at least six schools would be closed.

Rosary already was struggling with other hardships: the loss of an organist who moved away, the pastor's failing health. McNoy, 60, had recently lost his second leg to amputation because of poor circulation.

But when the verdict came in February on the archdiocese's phase two, only five more parishes were closed, bringing the total in Detroit to 35 in a year. Cardinal Edmund Szoka said Rosary would stay open.

Parishoners gather for Mass at Our Lady of the Rosary Roman Catholic Church in Detroit, a week after it was announced the Rosary would stay open.

'What kind of love has the Father given us?'

By SAMUEL PICAZO
Special to the Herald
"Behold what manner of love the Father hath bestowed upon us that we should be called the children of God." I John 3:1.

Pastor's corner

As we continue our spiritual journey to Jerusalem and Calvary during this season of Lent, may we accept the invitation from John the Apostle to desire to see what manner of love or what kind of love the Father has given us.

It seems that John is deeply impressed with the fact that God loves us. He stands awed at the great love God pours out on us.

John has been called the Apostle of love. Time and again in his gospel and in his epistles he often refers to love. What kind of love is he referring to? Is it the love that we often find in our courting songs? Is it the love of parents for their children or of the children towards their parents? The Greeks of old recognized three kinds of love; Eros, Filio, and Agape. Eros referred to physical or sensual love, filio referred to brotherly or friend love, Agape referred to divine love or love that expects nothing in return, is freely given.

The love that John is talking about here is the love that gives us an identity. We are now the children of God. The Apostle Paul would say we are of the household of God. What a great privilege is ours, but what a great responsibility is also ours.

many implication. If we are God's children we must daily strive to be like our father. God is love, we must be loving and kind. God is just we must strive for justice. God is truthful we must be honest and fair one to another.

Being children of God we become heirs of eternal life through Christ Jesus His son. "For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten son that whosoever believeth in him should not perish but have everlasting life." (John 3:16).

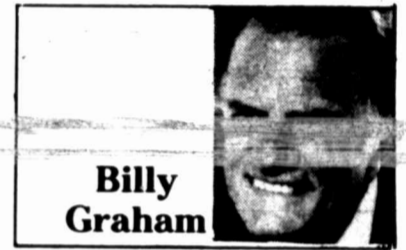

What John is also saying in this passage, if we read on, is that being called children of God is only the beginning of what is in store for us. When he appears we will be like him for we shall see him as he is. This blessed hope in his return keeps us clean in our hearts.

The love of God gives us a living hope and an identity as children of God.

The Rev. Samuel Picazo is pastor of Northside United Methodist Church.

'God is the source of peace'

By BILLY GRAHAM
DEAR DR. GRAHAM: What do you think about some of the meditation techniques I have heard about like repeating over and over a word or meaningless phrase until your mind is emptied of useless thoughts and anxiety? Do these have any value, do you think? — L.M.

Billy Graham

DEAR L.M.: I have no doubt that these techniques sometimes give an illusion of well-being to some people. But there are several concerns I have about them.

First, if your mind is emptied of all thought, then you are in danger of it being filled again by things that are not right or helpful. (Some have even warned against the danger of evil influences when a person allows his or her mind to be in this kind of state). Second, these techniques do not really help us confront and deal with the source of our anxiety, or overcome whatever problems we are actually facing. They only postpone the real problems, and that may make them more complicated.

But my real concern is that such techniques can keep us from turning our minds to the only real source of peace and security. What is that source? It is God himself, who created us and knows all about us. In other words, instead of meditating on nothing, we should focus our hearts and minds on God and his love for us. Instead of emptying our minds, we should fill them with God's word.

Make Christ the focus of your life. You need his forgiveness, and you need the hope and security he alone can give to us.

Names in the news

NEW YORK (AP) — Actress Valerie Bertinelli says she is struggling to save her nine-year marriage to rock star Eddie Van Halen while he works to overcome alcoholism.

"He doesn't abuse me; he hurts himself," Bertinelli, 30, is quoted as saying in April's Redbook magazine. "He's got a problem I'm not happy with, but I bring stability to his life."

"And besides, I love him. It's my weakness. Some people are addicted to food. I'm addicted to my husband," she said.

"I can't say that we're really great friends — we don't have a helluva lot in common — but we'll BERTINELLI always been connected like brother and sister. That helps when the romance comes and goes."

Van Halen, 33, checked into a drug and alcohol treatment program in Burbank, Calif., on Jan. 1. Bertinelli says she gets support from the families of other substance abusers at Al-Anon meetings.

"I'm proud of him. I'll support him in every way I can," she said. "I feel more sorry for Ed than I do for myself."

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — James A. Michener, whose panoramic novels reflect a lifetime of globetrotting, is thinking of settling down each winter in Florida, his editor says.

The 83-year-old author has no plans for another epic that would require years of geographical research, so he's hunting for a winter retirement home, coordinating editor James Kings said Monday.

Jeanne Dixon's Horoscope

SATURDAY, MARCH 17, 1990

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: actors Kurt Russell and Rob Lowe; golfer Bobby Jones, ballet star Rudolph Nureyev.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Get the complete picture before making up your mind. Cutting corners is unthinkable. Invest in yourself and your ideas. Creating a masterpiece will bring lasting fame and fortune.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): The patterns you set now will help you achieve important goals later on. Keep any diet or exercise resolutions. A tailored look impresses conservative clients. Comparison shopping pays off handsomely.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Buy items for your home that reflect your personality. Those looking for antiques could find something special. Be good to yourself if you feel your energy flagging. Spend the evening at home.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Be modest when others praise you this weekend. A letter-perfect performance wins you widespread admiration. You enjoy giving more than receiving. Be fair to family and friends.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Set a share of your funds aside to buy household items. A cross-country trip could mean valuable new contacts. Ask a loved one's help with a home repair problem. Attend more social events.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Open your eyes and you will see solid proof of a child's love. A sure-footed friend makes walking or hiking safer. There is plenty of truth to what your mate has to say.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Sparkle at a social event and you could get some new business on Monday! It is especially important to meet deadlines and keep appointments now. Put reminders where you will see them.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Lighten up! A sense of humor puts things into proper perspective. Rely on your own efforts at work. Use your brain, not your brawn, to vanquish an opponent. A clever strategy works wonders.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): It will be easy to put your finger on what is wrong if you check things out personally. Your finances improve when you listen to an adviser. Be discreet about your social life.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Make certain your name is synonymous with "excellence," and sales will really take off. Those in the arts benefit from a new government policy. Technological changes allow you to earn more money.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Do not decline a social invitation because you feel your clothes are not right. Your personality is much more important than your outfit. Be more patient with people who lack your foresight.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Offer your wholehearted support to a grieving friend. Loved one's financial well-being may depend on your money management skills. An updated wardrobe boosts your confidence.

Honestly, Abe?

BLOOMINGTON, Ill. (AP) — A program to raise youngsters' interest in history by querying Abraham Lincoln prompted one to ask, "What was it like being on a penny?"

Officials for the letter-writing program enlisted Jeannine Perez, a teacher at the Illinois State University child-care center, to play Lincoln's ghostwriter and answer the queries from students in kindergarten through second grade.

Ms. Perez had little trouble addressing some of the more popular questions, such as "How does it feel to live in a log house?"

But when one youngster asked, "Did you have electricity, or radios, or Nintendo or computers?" Ms. Perez' Lincoln had to ask them questions about Nintendo and computers.

Another youngster asked Lincoln, "Were you friends with Martin Luther King Jr.?"

Ms. Perez' Lincoln replied, "I didn't ever meet Martin Luther King, but I would imagine that we would have a lot to talk about."

A first-grader asked, "Were you afraid when you started first grade?"

Ms. Perez told the student about Lincoln's school, which had schoolmasters who snapped a switch if the students misbehaved.

Ms. Perez said she would not classify herself as a Lincoln scholar but as a person interested in history. After consulting several Lincoln books, she has yet to complete all her responses.

The program was sponsored by the McLean County Historical Society.

B-a-a-ad payment

HELENA, Mont. (AP) — Everybody's heard of the country doctor being paid with chickens, but how about the lawyer who's paid with goat meat?

While many attorneys are wary of accepting merchandise for their services, some say they sometimes find themselves stuck between accepting items other than cash — or getting nothing at all.

Helena attorney Nick Jacques said he has received a few haircuts, and once "a guy gave me some goat meat."

While hesitant to try the meat, Jacques said it turned out to be a tasty payment once barbecued on his grill.

Lawyer Mark Staples said, "I was paid with a motorcycle for a divorce I handled and rode it around for nearly six months before I realized you needed a special permit. Now, it sits in a storage area."

And attorney Mayo Ashley said he has accepted paintings, wall hangings and books, among other items.

"One person offered me a car to take his criminal case," said Ashley, who declined. "But I've gotten several golf balls and golf clubs."

"You can always turn away a person who doesn't have money, but I guess I'm too soft-hearted," Ashley said.

'Miracle Boy' improving, father says

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

ABILENE — Stanton High School freshman Brandon McAnally, 15, who is hospitalized here for an accidental gunshot wound, may be brought out of a medically induced coma sometime next week, said his father, Billy McAnally.

Brandon has been in the critical care unit at Hendricks Memorial Hospital since Feb. 25 as the result of a gunshot wound he received to the back of his head and shoulder in an early morning hunting accident near his grandparents' house in Stonewall County.

MCANALLY

"I talked to the neurosurgeon this morning," Billy said Thursday. "He said, 'Brandon is doing OK. I see no problems.'"

"At times when he's not medicated, he's tracking real well. You can talk to him and he will look at you. He can turn his head back and forth from one side to the other at times. . . . He has moved his right leg at times." — Billy McAnally, father of gunshot victim Brandon McAnally.

Billy said doctors are slowly cutting back on sedation and bringing Brandon off of a ventilator and that he could be talking by next week.

"With no complications, I think they'll be trying that next week," he said. "One of the nurses the other day called him the 'Miracle Boy."

Though Brandon has not regained full consciousness yet, he will follow people with his eyes, turn his head and move his arms and legs, including the right side, which doctors feared early on may be paralyzed, Billy said.

"At times when he's not medicated, he's tracking real well," he said. "You can talk to him and he will look at you. He can turn his head back and forth from one side to the other at times."

He is also moving his arms a lot more, Billy said. "He has moved his right leg at times."

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Pro-Iranian kidnappers say they will kill three American hostages in Lebanon unless the United States meets their demands. It also attacked the Soviet Union and threatened flights carrying Soviet Jews to Israel.

The threats from Islamic Jihad for the Liberation of Palestine came in a Thursday, on the eve of the fifth anniversary of captivity for another U.S. hostage, Terry Anderson.

A State Department official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, denounced the call as a "cynical manipulation" of the hostage relatives timed to coincide with ceremonies marking Anderson's time in captivity.

A message and statement, each with a picture of one of the hostages, said the fanatical Moslem group is "holding agents and spies against our people and they will be executed if the American administration fails to meet our demands."

The group did not specify its demands. It previously offered to trade professors Robert Polhill, 55, of New York City; Alann Steen, 50, of Boston; and Jesse Turner, 42, of Boise, Idaho, for 400 Arab inmates of Israeli jails. Israel said no, and the Reagan administration refused to pressure Israel.

The three American educators were kidnapped at gunpoint on Jan. 24, 1987, from the campus of the U.S.-affiliated Beirut University College.

Steen's picture showed him from the hips up, looking into the camera with a faint smile. He wore

Grady girl makes debut in murder movie

By ERIN BLAIR
Staff Writer

LENORAH — Dawn Woodward made a pretty corpse the other day: eyes wide open and not a drop of blood. She was strangled, you see, after being kidnapped and beaten in Rosenberg, outside of Houston.

Her mom doesn't seem too concerned about her fate. "She chose this career a long time ago and I'm just helping her out like any parent would," Joy Woodward said.

Dawn is a model and an actress who is also a 15-year-old at Grady High School. She recently finished her first movie, "Murder Wishes," in which she dies a graphic death as a victimized, sweet young girl.

"It's not as bad as you would think," Joy Woodward said. "There's a message to the movie and it's quite religious."

"Murder Wishes" will be rated PG-13 when it appears on cinema screens here in the summer.

Dawn heard about auditions for the movie when she was doing a promotional ad in Houston. Pasterni-Peterson Agency, which represents her, had posted the auditions and she decided to try out, even though it was for the part of a 17-year-old and her agent didn't like the idea of her portraying someone older than herself.

She took acting lessons last summer with Marietta Marrick, who coached Patrick Swayze, so she knew what to expect of auditions.

"After I did the reading I felt really good about it," she said. "The director said he picked me because I looked innocent, which is funny because everyone tells me I look seductive," Dawn said.

Hairdressers tamed her normally blonde hair to a not-quite mousy brown for the role of Angela, a nice girl whose family prays in closets.

"I was a 17-year-old with a horrible life because my parents fought. I was heading off to college in two separate cars, my mom was driving one and I was in the other and we went to get gas. And I was kidnapped by such a gorgeous guy. I think the actor's name is Lewis Guzman, and he kills me," Dawn said in summary of the movie's plot.

She said the three weeks of filming were emotionally and physically rigorous.

"They take me out into the country and start beating me up and even though there was a stunt coordinator I still had bruises all over the place," Dawn said. "I had to cry through the whole movie and after 14 hours of crying some days I'd get so sad."

"One day we were filming a scene where I was in the closet praying and I was supposed to be crying so I put myself in her place and her life was so sad that I cried too hard and they couldn't hear my lines."

Joy Woodward said Dawn wouldn't let her watch her

"I'm not going anywhere near the front of a camera," Joy Woodward said, despite its attraction for her kids. "I'll just watch."

Dawn has been modeling since she was 5 and plans to make it her profession. She's going to New York this summer to work for Seventeen magazine and hopes she'll be a success so she can stay there.

"I've always wanted to live in the city," Dawn said. "My mom's the opposite. She's from the Houston area and she wants to get away from people."

Dawn likes the other models she meets on shoots. "When you look at them, you think they're probably phony, but we relate really well because we have the same professional goals."

She's also planning trips to Los Angeles and Las Vegas to make contact with modeling agencies there that might represent her. The more agencies you sign with, the more job opportunities you have as a model, she said.

If she had a choice, Dawn would most likely pick Los Angeles as her home. She said she likes living here well enough but West Texas doesn't offer many opportunities to people like her. She's done some local fashion shows and modeling and she's involved in a one-act play at the high school based on "Where the Lillies Bloom."

She'd choose Los Angeles because she loves the beach. "But you don't always get what you want. There's a lot of hard work and stress in modeling and acting," Dawn said.

In case you can't wait for "Murder Wishes" to appear at a theater near you, Dawn said the movie has a happy ending, of sorts.

The other guy who helps the gorgeous girl kidnap her gets out of prison after they're both arrested and goes to work for her movie mom. The gorgeous guy, who's the bad guy, escapes from prison to murder her mom since she's the only one who can identify him in the trial for her daughter's murder. The good guy defends her mother and ends up dying at the hands of the gorgeous bad guy, who goes to prison forever.

Or something like that.

St. Patrick buried near here — maybe

DOWNPATRICK, Northern Ireland (AP) — A rude slab of granite inscribed with a Celtic cross and the name "Patric" proclaims the grave of Ireland's patron saint.

The stone, rough and broken, was found in Ireland itself, but the marker was placed outside the Anglican cathedral around 1900.

"I don't feel people should be let down by that," said Brian Turner, curator of the Down County Museum nearby. "You need a focus of attention."

"It is quite likely that the man who was St. Patrick is buried somewhere around here."

St. Patrick's Day will be celebrated Saturday.

Canon Brian Mayne, a prebendary of the Cathedral of the Holy and Undivided Trinity, said he was "99.9 percent certain" Patrick was buried somewhere on the hilltop, which attracted 20,000 visitors last year.

Turner called it "95 percent likely that he is buried in Down, or in Saul," two miles away. He is assured by a tradition that can be traced to the 7th century, although even that remote date is two centuries after Patrick's death.

The hills around Downpatrick are dotted with sites related to Patrick in very iffy ways. Legend says Patrick landed at Saul, and 432 came to be the accepted date.

Another legend claims he received last rites from St. Tassach, who is associated with a ruined church at Raholp, near Saul.

A few miles south, at Struell Wells, more ruins mark the pools where Patrick is supposed to have immersed himself all night, singing psalms.

Patrick stories are found all over Ireland. The Roman Catholic and Anglican primates have their seats in Armagh because, it is said, Patrick chose the place.

Thousands of pilgrims fast and pray in the summer on a little island in Lough Derg, County Donegal, where, as the story goes, Patrick wrestled with demons. Many more climb Croagh Patrick in western Ireland, retracing a saintly journey.

Based on Patrick's own writings, not one place in Ireland can definitely be associated with him. All he says about himself is that he was born in Britain, was taken captive in Ireland, escaped and later returned as a missionary.

Patrick probably lived in the 5th century. The traditional dates are 432 for the beginning of his mission and 461 for his death.

The first lives of Patrick were written in the 7th century and collected in 807 in the Book of Ar-magh, now a treasure of Trinity College, Dublin.

The Book of Armagh says Patrick's grave was chosen by two oxen that were allowed to wander where they would, pulling a cart bearing the body.

The good story, and so is one Turner found, which was written down in the 19th century.

Sometime in the 1700s, it seems, a barber played a prank on the cathedral's sexton by leaving him half-shaved. The humorless sexton vowed that the barber never would rest in his family gravesite.

The sexton had an old cross erected over the barber's family plot, then spread the word that it marked the grave of St. Patrick.

Pilgrims came flocking and further burials were impossible.

"You know, the Irish always have to make a good story better," said Canon Joseph Maguire at the Roman Catholic cathedral.

stand. Lonna Cleaenger, a missionary to West Germany was the speaker. She discussed what it was like before and after the fall of the Berlin Wall. She said ministers are being invited to make talks about the Bible in the schools.

Her work is to get the Bibles published in the different languages. She told of attending a Book Fair in Russia, in which they gave away 10,000 New Testaments and how people stood in line for hours to receive their copy. At the same time Mrs. O'Hara was there with a book, but practically no one seemed interested in her books.

Those receiving a book were most appreciative. After some seventy years of Atheism they were hungry for the Gospel.

He said Brandon is sedated three to four times a day. "They're letting him come out till he gets real agitated or restless and then they'll give him another shot. Usually he'll sleep two-three hours," he said.

The most recent CAT scan, which was taken last week, showed that there is still some swelling to the brain, he said. Another CAT scan will probably be taken Monday.

As long as there is no infection or hemorrhaging of the brain, the 22-caliber bullet which is lodged in his head will not be removed by doctors, Billy said.

After Brandon is removed from medication and the ventilator, Billy said he hopes they can take him to Lubbock Methodist Hospital for rehabilitation.

Meanwhile, a trust fund set up in Stanton to pay treatment costs has grown to $4,365 as of Thursday.

a white T-shirt and had a graying, bushy beard.

Polhill, balding and wearing glasses, also appeared from the hips up, wearing a gray T-shirt and looking into the camera.

Steen and Polhill are among 18 Westerners, including eight Americans, held hostage in Lebanon. The longest held is Anderson, 42, chief Middle East correspondent for The Associated Press, who was abducted March 16, 1985.

Commemorative ceremonies were planned today in Washington, in Brussels and in Tokyo, where Anderson worked from 1977 to 1981.

After threatening to kill its three hostages, the Islamic Jihad group accused the United States of responsibility for the emigration of Soviet Jews to Israel "after pressure on the Soviets who succumbed and collaborated in this big conspiracy."

The statement warned, "Our people shall not stand handcuffed in front of this conspiracy. We shall not at all suffice ourselves by watching but shall begin taking the adequate measures to prevent the arrival of the Soviets."

"All airports facilitating the transport as well as airlines, their jetliners and offices, will be direct targets for us. This is a warning and a threat."

The Kremlin has lifted restrictions on Jewish emigration and hundreds of thousands of Soviet Jews now are expected in Israel, creating a huge stir in the Arab world.

The Arabs fear the Soviet Jews will settle in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip, where Palestinians hope to create a homeland.

The letter from the hostage-taking group, which is believed comprised of Shiite Moslem zealots loyal to Iran, said individuals and organizations that recently said the hostages should be freed on humanitarian grounds should stay out of the matter.

The statement said the group "denounces media reports about humanitarian moves to free the hostages and close this case."

The Tehran Times newspaper in Iran, which has close ties to Iranian President Hashemi Rafsanjani, said in recent editorials that the hostages should be freed on Islamic, humanitarian grounds. Rafsanjani said he believed the issue was moving toward a solution.

Sheik Mohammad Hussein Fadlallah, spiritual guide of Lebanon's Hezbollah, or Party of God, said in a sermon last month that a humanitarian means of freeing the hostages must be found.

Hezbollah is believed to be the Shiite umbrella organization for the extremist groups holding the foreign hostages.
