Candidate For Lieut. Governor In Wichita Praise

Among the interesting remarks regarding Wichita Falls heard in the lobby of the Kemp yesterday was a statement by W. G. Edwards, Rotary delegate from Denton, editor of the Denton Record Chronicle and candidate for lieutenant governor of Texas, subject to the democratic primaries in July.

"One might almost call Wichita Falls the queen city of northwest Texas," he said. "Oil, good farms, good streets, a well developed city, and the most hospitable people in the state of Texas are only a few of its assets. The combination I have mentioned its sufficient for me. I think that I shall always remember this visit to Wichita Falls as one of the greatest occasions of my career."

ROTARY SOIREE DRAWS CROWDS

Plenty of Fun For All At Junior College Thursday

Music, jubilant spirits, good fellowship, gay colors and bright decorations were in evidence at the soiree given in honor of visiting Rotarians and their wives at the Wichita Falls Junior college Thursday night when more than 1,500 persons thronged the new building. A sumptuous banquet was served in the magnificent gymnasium rooms of the college where paper caps with streamers of serpentine formed a sea of color under the brilliant lights. Favors of engraved menus and noisemakers were at each place, and "all went merry as a marriage bell."

Splendid music from the Wichita Falls band and the Southern Trumpeters mingled with the squawk and jangle of the noise makers and the banter of Rotarians and Rotary-Anns during the dinner hour. The providential blessing was said by Dr. Nat F. Grafton.

Following the serving of the banquet, the guests were entertained in the auditorium by musical numbers from some of the finest musicians in the city.

Following the banquet, the guests were entertained in the auditorium of the college which was opened for the first time since completion. Flags of the United States with the wheel of Rotary formed the central figure of the auditorium decorations. Two oil portraits that have brought admiration from critics were at either side of the great stage that of "George Washington, the Mason," on the left, and the one of "Woodrow Wilson" on the right.

Walter D. Cline, president of the Wichita Falls Rotary club acted as toastmaster of the occasion, presenting to the audience the octette of Wichita Falls artists composed of Mrs. Wayne J. Holmes and Miss Inah Pearl Curry, sopranos; Mrs. Luella B. Thompson and Mrs. Naomi H. Shaw, contraltos; Rev. Leslie Miller and R. E. Shepherd, tenors; and W. E. Young and R. D. Ford, bassos, with J. S. Pitman at the pano. "One Morn if I Remember Well" from Rigoletto was the first number. It was received with such enthusiasm that the singers returned to sing "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot" "Steal Away to Jesus," and by request, the "Sextette from Lucia," was sung by Mrs. Thompson, Mrs. Holmes, and Messrs. Ford, Shepherd Young and Miller.

1 DEAD; 10 HURT IN MINERS WAR

Fight Because of Wage Row Precipitates Fatalities

By The Associated Press.

Company officials disclosed today that recently workers were fired upon as they approached the mines, but added no one was hurt. The company is operating on an "open shop" basis, using the 1917 union wage scale.

CALL WEEKS BEFORE PROBERS

Will Appear Today In Daugherty Hearing Probe

By The Associated Press.

WAHINGTON, April 3.—The senate Daugherty committee turned its inquiry today upon the war department, and concluded a three-hour session by summoning Secretary Weeks to appear before it tomorrow with specified documents relating to departmental handling of war fraud cases.

The committee had listened before its summons was issued to the story of Thomas F. Lane, a legal adviser to the army air service, who said he had been ordered a day or two ago "to stay away from the committee" and then had been dismissed from the service.

Lane said also that papers bearing upon his inquiry into war contracts, which he regarded as his own, were seized by Captain W. F. Volandt, assistant chief of the army air service, who issued the "stay away" order. Captain Volandt, who was at once summoned before the committee, in the course of sharp interrogation by Senator Wheeler, democrat, Montana, the committee prosecutor, and other members, said he regarded Lane's papers as part of the official departmental files. He had turned them over to Secretary Weeks, he said, and the latter had sought an opinion as to their status from the judge advocate general.

LAND FRAUD CHARGES COME

Hearing Continues With Creager Telegram Read

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—Charges were hurled today in the senate committee investigating alleged land frauds in the Lower Rio Grande Valley of Texas that "influence" was used by R. B. Creager, republican national committeeman from Texas, to halt trials of land companies in which he was interested.

Senator Heflin, democrat, Alabama, committee prosecutor, made the charges after the reading into the record of a letter from Mr. Creager to Attorney General Daugherty, dated November 14, 1921, in which the former asked that action against the companies be delayed pending a second investigation by the postoffice department.

There was also read into the record today a report on the first investigation made by Postal Inspector J. M. Donaldson, at Kansas City, Mo., dated May 14, 1921, in which he asserted the "land companies" had "intimated that the postoffice inspector could get nowhere with the investigation as R. B. Creager would be appointed minister to Mexico and that the influence would outweigh any facts produced."

ANNUAL MEETING TO ADJOURN AT 4 P. M. FRIDAY

Will Pick District Governor For 1925 This Afternoon

MORE ADDRESSES

Special Trains to Take Visitors Away During the Evening

Another strenuous round on entertainment to which was added the pressure of serious business sessions made a busy day Thursday for 13th district Rotarians in the city for their ninth annual convention. The first business meetings of the conference were held yesterday and everything put in readiness for the closing sessions Friday.

The convention which opened Wednesday, comes to its official close at 4 o'clock this afternoon; special trains bearing the thousand and more delegates will leave immediately afterward and it is expected that by Saturday morning only a scattered few of the visitors who have made Wichita Falls their home for the past three days will remain.

Plenty of Pep

Primed by the festivities of the opening evening, the Rotary crowds plunged with enthusiasm into the business of the day Thursday. Convention sessions at the Palace theatre drew capacity throngs; scheduled addresses and music were presented with clock-like precision; Rotary fellowship, exhuberant and clamorous but utterly sincere, pervaded the meeting throughout and programs that plainly left their impressions were conceded to have been given when the day's work was done. Delegates and visit-

Need Men, Not Money, Is Jones' Rotary Theme

"Rotarians, we don't need your money for Boy Scouting in Texas, we need you—you men, for leaders of boys, as scoutmasters," said Frank Jones, of Houston, regional chairman of the Boy Scouts of America, who spoke on the welfare of Texas boys at the afternoon session of the conference Thursday.

Mr. Jones spoke of the $10,000 which had been given by Rotary in Texas to the Boy Scout movement of the state for the furthering of the work in the farm regions and the rural communities and called it splendid work.

He mentioned that through the efforts and interest along financial lines of Rotarians, that scouting had doubled in Texas during the past year.

Speaking of his work in Houston, Mr. Jones told of the boy's survey that had been taken in the city and of the material it furnished for boys workers in showing how many boys of scouting age were not in any organized program. He urged a similar survey for other cities in the district.

In a forceful climax, the speaker made a plea for boy leadership among Rotarians, stressing the great field for boys work in Texas, and picturing the profit and pleasure a man gained from acting as scoutmaster over a group of boys, or being a pal to his sons.

Lutcher Stark in a short but stirring talk, seconded Mr. Jones' plea for boy leadership.

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—Taxes on Mah Jongg and radio sets were voted into the revenue tonight by the senate finance committee which at the same time approved the reduction in automobile taxes and repeal of the candy tax voted by the house.

The gift tax and increase in the estate tax rates voted by the house, however, were knocked out of the bill. The present estate rates were restored and provision was made in the brackets to which they would apply so that the revenue increase of $12,000,000 which would have resulted from the house increase would be effected.

Wilson Oil Land Case Ruling By Atwell Is Favorable To Owners

The validity of a sale made 42 years ago by the commissioners court of Madison county, Texas, and which involved 4,428 acres of Archer county land was upheld Thursday night by Federal Judge William H. Atwell in a ruling against the pleadings of Madison county officials that the transaction was invalid. The case, which has been pending in federal court for some time, is styled Madison county vs. L. F. Wilson and E. J. Netherton, present owners of the land which has become of immense value by reason of oil production.

The tract includes the Peterson oil field of Archer county and other valuable acreage.

Evidence in the case shows that in 1882 a large tract of Archer county land known as the Madison county school lands was sold by the commissioners' court of Madison county to John H Stone. Later the land in question was disposed of to Mr. Wilson and Mr. Netherton.

Suit has now been filed by Madison county to recover title to the land, it being contended that the original sale to Stone, made by the commissioners' court, was not made in the time prescribed by law. It was held that the court had advertised for bids on the land, these to be opened on a certain date, but that an attractive offer was made and accepted prior to the day specified.

HERON'S POEM ON TEXAS IS HIT THURSDAY

Chicago Poet Speaks On Need of Service For Others

"I am glad to be back in Texas, so glad, in fact, that I have made four trips back and I like it so well that I am going to live in Texas, said Jamie Heron Thursday in an inspiring address which he delivered to the assembly of Rotarians at the Palace Theater Thursday morning. "I have received more inspiration in Texas than in any other state. From Texas I received the inspiration to write this poem on "Texas," winning much applause.

"Texas"

O, I want to live in Texas
Where men live by the plan,
It matters not your breeding
So long as youre a man.
A man among your neighbors
Without a creed or caste;
There in the rough together
Build friendships that will last;
They care not what you are in Texas.
If you are on the square;
Texas, Mighty Texas!
The land beyond compare.

O, I want to live in Texas,
The land of sweet romance,
Where the cowboy, still a feature,
Rides his paint-horse to the dance;
Where the girls are fairer, sweeter,
And have no silly pride,
But laugh at old tradition
Mount their ponies now astride;
They live and love in Texas
In a way that it is meant;
Texas, Mighty Texas!
Sweet land of sentiment.

O, I want to live in Texas
Where the soil produces more
Where the Cotton grows abundant
And the Corn is to the fore;
Where the Orange, and Grapefruit,
And Vegetables are
More succulent and luscious,
And sweeter, yes, by far;
The soil and climate blend in Texas
Assuring perfect health;
Texas, Mighty Texas!
The land of greater wealth.

O, I want to live in Texas
And sniff the balmy air,
To wallow in the sunshine,
To work, and do my share;
To grow up in an Empire where
The bigness of the whole
Is an everlasting challenge
To a man who has a soul;
To let Old Texas make me
And mould a man of worth;
Texas, Mighty Texas!
The best land on the earth.

—Jamie Heron.

"It is the spirit of Rotary at work within me that makes me want to live in Texas, and you are putting it at work to a great degree.

"Texas is attracting much attention throughout the United States. The best people of this country are coming to Texas to the best soil in the world. So mighty is Texas that the resources have only been scratched. I love sell the possibilities in a bigger way to the rest of the country.

"Every product of Texas, the grapefruit, the orange and other fruits take its message of the Lone Star state in the most unusual way to the world and seems to invite the people to come to live in this grand country. The Rio Grande Valley is God's garden—the land of the magic has been found—in Texas.

"Texas is working in the spirit of Rotary and you are selling Texas in a big way. The spirit of Rotary cannot exist in man alone, and you are meeting others, going after the spirit of Rotary. Rotarians live by the Golden Rule if they are a cog in the wheel of the great organization and working in the spirit of Rotary.

"Rotary is a code of life for each community where Rotary exists. For us to exemplify to others in the community is to see us prospering in this service to our fellow man."

Mr. Heron stated that Rotary could not be explained in any set speech, but he resited the following poem which carried out the idea he wished to convey concerning the spirit of Rotary.

"Otherism"

It matters not where I may go
To grammar school or college;
It matters not how much I know,
If I but use that knowledge
For others.

It matters not what I may do
In business or profession;
I only know I must be true
To make a true impression
On others.

It matters not what I may think
At work, at play, or rest;
It matters not, if I but sink
All selfish thoughts and think the best
Of others.

It matters not what men may say;
It matters not what men may give;
'Tis my resolve that, day by day,
I'll do my best to give and live
For others.

"The Spirit of Rotary" was the subject of a playlet written by Mr. Heron, which he gave at the meeting. It was well received by the audience and was warmly praised for the ideas it set forth concerning the great international organization.

Burkburnett Is Capable Host To Rotarians

A varied program in which music predominated was given Thursday noon by the Burkburnett Rotary club for the benefit of visiting delegates at the Rotary convention here. The meeting was held in the basement of the First Baptist church.

Some heated rivalry between Galveston and Houston delegates provided plenty of fun, while music that called for insistent encores was given by a sextette of Burkburnett girls, Lucile Woodward, Senter Ford, Gretchen Burgess, Margaret Reed, Lottie Pettit and Hazel Goodlet. F. M. Shepherd of Burkburnett rendered a number of vocal numbers, after which Jamie Heron of Chicago entertained the crowd with a number of humorous after dinner stories, poems and readings.

Crain Called Home, Unable To Deliver Rotary Address

Illness of Wife Prevents Victoria Man From Giving Talk of "Boys Work."

An address by Frank Crain of Victoria, scheduled to have been given at the Rotary convention Thursday afternoon under the heading of Boys' Work was dispensed with when an urgent message was received by Mr. Crain calling him because of the illness of his wife. His address was expected to be one of the features of the convention.

Because of the widespread interest in th subject and because the convention delegates expressed keen regret at the misfortune which prevented Mr. Crain's dilvering his address, the Record News is printing in full the text prepared by Mr. Crain. It is as follows:

The subject is so broad, complex and far reaching, and the occasion is such, that any attempt at a general discussion would, in my opinion, be inappropriate. In addition, while Governor Lester has in no sense limited me in the manner in which I should discuss the subject assigned me, nevertheless he did intimate that he would welcome the treatment of it in a concrete manner, accompanied by any practical suggestions which I might feel able to make.

I have therefore decided to limit what I have to say to just two specific problems of child life, and tell how in my opinion Rotary can aid in their solution.

One of these is the importance of the child becoming properly equipped and educated in the duties of citizenship before called upon to perform them.

The other, the importance of his acquiring the habit of reading good literature to the exclusion of the vile trash called literature which with little difficulty now reaches him.

Speaking on the question of citizenship first. If you and I look back on our early school days, we will be in agreement that insofar as any instructions in the practical workings of the duties of citizenship are concerned, as compared to what was later expected of us, we did not get exactly a fair deal. We learned the blue back speller from "cover to cover" and on Friday afternoon we did our best in the weekly spelling match. We were all told that some day when we reached the mature age of 21 years, laden down with the great learning and experience which that advanced age brings, that we could, and would be expected to vote; that we would be expected to serve on the jury, and that some of us might even become president of the United States. But how few of us were instructed as to the grave responsibility involved in the privilege of voting, and how important it was for us to vote the result of a decision made after intelligent and careful and honest consideration of the issues involved in the election; and how important it was that our vote should be honest in our own eyes. How few, if any of us, in our school days, had any practical instruction in jury service and its importance to our national life; and just how important the proper performance of the duty of jury service is in the scheme of our government, municipal, state and national.

And while the child of today has a great advantage in these regards over you and me, not yet in my opinion at least in many localities does the instruction which he receives in these and other phases of citizenship measure up to the proper and needed requirements.

To make myself plain: I believe that our boys and girls should be so educated as that each one of them shall feel himself a guardian of the constitution of the United States and responsible for its preservation; that each one of them shall feel that he is a part of this government and that it is his duty to guard and uphold it, and to inspire in him a love and veneration for it. It is my idea that our boys and girls should not look upon the law in the light of a thing to be obeyed in order to avoid punishment, but that they should be taught that the law was a thing to be respected and to be followed and obeyed as a matter of course, because it was the law and designed to promote justice and insure liberty and public tranquility, and that it was his duty to preach respect for the law, not from fear of it, but from love of it. And in this connection, I want to mention a condition which has developed in grown ups which can but have its effect upon the child, and that is their attitude toward laws not approved by them. We all know that there are many righ thinking men who regard many laws as obnoxious. They doubtless are correct in many instances. But many of these same men have also conceived the idea that the right way to contend with bad laws, or laws by them considered bad, is to break them rather than to vote against their adoption, or in favor of their repeal. The truth is, too many men and too many women have voted on impulse. Too many of them have not qualified themselves to intelligently consider the effects of the laws they voted for. Too many of them are not acquainted with the fundamental principles of our government. Too many have never read the Bill of Rights. Too many hear the Declaration of Independence only when they catch snatches of it at the outer edge of a Fourth of July crowd when his community is patriotic enough to celebrate that great anniversary. With a generally educated right thinking citizenship, improper or unjust laws if enacted, would not long remain on the statute book, and the chance of them getting thereon originally would be greatly lessened. We have a way here in America of getting up some issue and wearing ourselves out on one side or the other of it in a controversy from a partisan standpoint, whereas if the mass of our voters were qualified by education and temperament to judicially consider political questions and in determining them be guided by the public welfare alone, we would have fewer obnoxious and silly conceived laws. "Too many laws" is the common cry; and it comes from the so-called business man so many of whom are content to remain in their counting room, rail at the politician, the courts and the government, leaving the moulding of public opinion and the exercise of governmental functions at their original source, to the man less qualified than he is. Often the man who is the quickest to criticise the verdict of a jury is the one who is the most adept in avoiding jury service, both for himself and his employees, the man who so seldom goes to the court house that he needs a guide in his own home town to find the jury box. I am not talking about the man in the overalls. My present quarrel is with the man who wears the white collar and who sits behind the roll top desk and plate glass window, who ought to lead, but who practically entirely shirks and does not even follow.

BOY SCOUT WORK.

How can Rotary through its boy work activities aid in eradicating these evils? How can Rotary aid in making our boys and girls better qualified as citizens? My answer to these questions is going to be a brief account of an effort along these lines made by the Victoria club. But before doing so, I wish in advance to absolutely acquit myself of any intention of exploiting my own club. My sole purpose is to present what I conceive to be a concrete boy work program. By relating one already tried with success I can prove as practical what otherwise might be regarded as theory. We have in Victoria six schools for white children, including the high school, grade schools and two church schools. Some several years ago our club membership was divided into six committees, one committee being assigned to each school and charged with the responsibility of all Rotary activities insofar as that school was concerned. Shortly thereafter, or to be accurate, at the opening of the school year preceding the present one, through the instrumentality of these school committees, there was started in each school a series of exercises on the duties of citizenship. The programs varied naturally, dependent on the age of the children; but the basis of each, ordinarily at least, was a brief talk on some phase of citizenship by some man or woman of our community who commanded the respect of the children. These addresses during the first year were weekly, and in length from 15 to 20 minutes, with an occasional lengthier one. A central committee selected the subjects, and the speakers appropriate to the particular subject, so that there would be no overlapping and that each subject would be handled by one well qualified to do so. The school committee or some of them attend these weekly addresses, and see to getting the speaker there. It has not been an attempt to make the children learned constitutional scholars, but only to have the duty of citizenship told to them by a fellow townsman for whom they have respect. The presentation of the subject has been upon a high plane. While the children have been told, as they should be, that while it was their duty to vote, pay their taxes, serve the jury, etc., that the mere performance of hese duties did not alone qualify them as citizens. That they must vote honestly, that they must qualify themselves to vote intelligently and honestly by a study of their government and its principles, and the place of the citizen in it has been impressed on them. The same thing has been told to them with reference to jury service. They have also been told that while a man ought to pay his debts, yet that because he did do so, did not make him a good citizen, if his conduct in other regards did not measure up to the requirements of citizenship. In short they were urged to qualify themselves by study so as to determine their duty in all the social relations of life and to perform that duty honestly and intelligently.

To illustrate the breadth of the field and the practicability and variety of the subjects: The talks included such as the following:

"Clean Sportsmanship Essential to Perfect Citizenship," "High Ideals and Honesty in Business Absolutely Essential to Citizenship," "The Traffic Law, the Reason for it and the Duty of the Citizen to Obey and Enforce It," "The Reason for Sanitary Laws and the Importance of Not Only Enforcing them as to Our Neighbors but Our Duty also to Obey Same," "Why I Believe in the United States," "Importance of Education to the Citizen," "The Duty of Voting and Why and How It Should be Exercised." Numbers of talks were on the constitution, its origin and various phases. The county judge explained the county government and the importance of the citizen and voter being informed with reference thereto. During the weeks in which Washington's birthday, Texas Independence Day, San Jacinto and other high days of the year occurred, we had addresses appropriate to those occasions. We took advantage of the situation to have health talks by the local physicians and dentists, and all along the lines that the proper care of the health, etc., was really the duty of a good citizen. And we had just before the close of the school year a talk on the subject of "Back to School" as a predicate to the back to school campaign which usually came later during vacation. We did not, of course, confine, nor attempt to confine, the speakers to those who were Rotarians. We drafted the Rotarians of course; but we went to the whole town, we sought the aid of our best citizens, we asked the cooperation of other organizations; and received it from such organizations as the Victoria Conopus club, the American Legion and others. For instance, last year the Bronte Literary club, the oldest women's club in the state, furnished a speaker for each school on Texas Independence Day. This year on Flag Day the American Legion furnished the speakers and the flags and with each speaker was a delegation of Legionnaires in uniform. Last year a total of 45 speakers, all local home people, addressed our schools, many of these speakers visiting every one of the six schools.

The reaction was observable at once. The teachers, the parents, and most important the children, were enthusiastic in approval. The weekly visits at once became events. No men nor women ever had more enthusiastic nor more genuinely appreciative audiences or receptions. The principals of the schools addressed the club and were one in approval. Representative mothers from the Parent Teacher organizations came and what they said were really words of gratitude. We soon realized that we had the ear of the school children of our town; and that each week Rotary went into every home in our town and in the dress of the principles of the Golden Rule. The fathers and mothers, and correctly so, thought of the Rotarians as men voluntarily teaching their boys and girls that they must learn to be good citizens. Thus we had not only the ear of the children but also of their parents, and as a result their active support. In our school district there are around 1,500 white children. We came in direct contact with this many children each week, children of our own town, a broad field, and excellent point of contact.

Also the work was systematic and sustained, and in this it had advantages over many forms of boy work. Play grounds, picnics, excursions, occasional visits to the schools, Xmas trees, and things of that character are quite admirable and useful, but they in a sense are isolated and it frequently keeps a club's ingenuity working to keep up its boy work, when there is no general fixed plan. The student loan funds do not reach the children of the age I speak. The children we reached were from seven to 18 years of age, and there are more than a million between those ages in Texas. Many of these never reach the high school. Many who reach it never finish it. Last year more than 12,000 white children were graduated from the high schools of Texas. It may seem a far cry to expect to eradicate civic evils by starting with the children. On the other hand education is certainly our main hope in these regards, and 12,000 and more children instructed in the duties of citizenship and imbued with its importance turned loose each year would constitute a leaven which would soon make itself felt.

OTHER THINGS.

Another thing that these weekly visits did was to create more interest in the school generally. More adults visited the schools and more knew more about these schools than ever before.

And now a word as to my second problem.

There are many ways, but none more certain to blacken the heart and the soul of your child, than to give him a dirty book.

There is no more certain way to serve him than to place a good one in his hand.

The reasons are obvious to men of your experience, or should be.

There are many children who have scarcely any books, and who also lack practically all opportunity of obtaining any.

The grave handicap that these children labor under is also obvious.

The problem here involved was also considered by the Victoria club rather as a part of its general citizenship campaign, than as an independent undertaking.

The result was a plan worked out to establish small traveling libraries for our rural schools.

The purpose of this plan was to place a given number of books in different schools under an arrangement for an exchange from time to time.

This is the second year of its operation.

We have seven of these libraries in as many schools.

Last year there were only three.

Next year it is hoped to double the present number.

The seven libraries are numbered consecutively from one to seven and each consists of 25 books.

A careful duplicate list of the books in each is kept, one being left with the library at the school, and the other retained by the Rotary committee in charge.

Each book bears the number of the library it belongs to and is itself numbered.

The manner of the exchange is for each of the libraries on the same day to be carried forward from the school at which it has been to another school on a given route, arranged for convenience in this regard, a library being kept in reserve to leave at the first school. These transfers are made by Rotary committees and are made the occasion for addresses on citizenship and programs by the children and the committee on similar and kindred subjects.

Our hope had been that each of the present seven libraries would during the present school year visit each of the seven schools in question and which are in the same section of the county, you might say contiguous to one another, and which we constituted into a circuit; but these expectations have been shattered owing to weather conditions and other unforeseen obstacles and this part of the plan has failed this year in part.

It is planned next year to select seven other schools, making another circuit out of them and place the present seven libraries in it, and supply seven other libraries to take their place in the present circuit.

If successful, there will be two circuits of seven schools each, with libraries rotating in each, and the endeavor is going to be to add a circuit each year until the whole county is organized. This, of course, may not be accomplished, but it is the ultimate result of the completed plan.

Governor Lester's first question, when told of this scheme, was to learn what kind of books we had and how we got them.

I imagine that probably the same question is running in your minds.

The books are practically all used books and the club members got them from their homes and those of their friends.

The books range from Henty to Kipling, include Roosevelt, Dickens, Cooper, John Estin Cooke, Sir Walter Scott, and Mother Goose was not omitted.

In short, the boys picked just such books as they would be willing for their own children to read, and the result was a well selected lot of interesting literature.

An effort was made to select each library so as to contain about the same number of each type of the books available, so many juvenile and so many of each other class.

Thus the books were provided without the expenditure of money by either the club or the members individually. The only expense was a little gasoline used in the distribution.

RURAL SCHOOLS.

The rural schools were selected as the field for this work, because:

1—The town children had other available supplies.

2—The club had already donated a Rotary child's shelf to a public library in town.

3—Because the rural children were inadequately supplied, and their remoteness from town made it most difficult to get the needed help from that source.

The third was really the vital and influencing reason.

I don't know whether any of you, or just how many of you, have informed yourselves as to the conditions of some of our rural sections and homes in regard to books.

If you lack information on this point, let me persuade you on your return home to arrange for a survey, say of the rural schools of your own county.

I venture you will find food for thought and a call for action.

If you find them well supplied with books, you can count them fortunate. If you do not, you have found a great field and an equally great opportunity for service.

The plan as you doubtless have observed in a measure is in an experimental stage. We began quite late last year, and this year as I have mentioned, there was much to contend with.

It has gone far enough however, to know that it is a great success.

The books have been eagerly read and we have the assurances of the teachers that the books have been of much help in the regular class work and of great benefit and pleasure to the children and also in some instances to their parents.

I cannot think of a more useful nor more pleasurable days' work than to introduce Robin Hood, The Deerslayer, Robinson Crusoe, Sir William Wallace, Sir Nigel Loring, and the many other heroes of our boyhood days to young Americans who have never met them.

I cannot comprehend a more useful act than to place good clean literature in the way of children who are without it.

You need have no fear but that the bad will reach them. You have but to examine the book stands and you will find them cluttered up with books and magazines reeking with vulgarity and indecent impure sex stories. The evil doers are ever vigilant.

If you don't believe me, take the time to make an examination;

Read the Whiz Bang, The Hot Stuff, the Breezy Stories, True Confessions, etc., look at the illustrations, take a squint at the cover picture. You will find little difficulty in locating them.

We may not be able to keep the child away from the bad, but we can supply him at least to a considerable degree, with the good literature.

We may divert him from the bad; we may persuade him from it.

If he reads the good he will not read the bad.

There is another phase of the matter, namely, that if the opportunity of our rural population for a more varied reading was broadened, we would soon begin to see libraries of respectable proportions in the farm house.

The result would be a generally better read, and better informed, rural population, and what is of equal, if not of greater importance, happier and more contented households.

I am one of those who believe that there is no reason why the boy on the farm, and who remains there as a farmer, a cattle raiser, or in other similar capacity in his mature years, should not have the same character of education as the professional man is presumed to have.

Education and intelligence go hand in hand with honesty, love of family and of country in making the good citizen.

The more one has of all, the better man and the better citizen he is.

Why then should there be any geographical limitations on any of them. Why should not the opportunities of all be equal.

My plea is in the main for the boy and girl of the small town, for the boy and girl on the farm and in the rural districts; but is not limited to them.

My suggestions are more appropriate to Class D clubs, but with modifications here and there can be made to fit the larger clubs.

Let me hope that they appeal to you.

I certainly do.

We have a fellowship in Rotary. Why not extend it to little children.

They are the salt of the earth, and the more they abound in freckles, stumped toes and snaggled teeth, the saltier they are.

What happier thought as the sunset days approach than the recollection of a kindness or a helpful act to some boy or girl.

It has been said that Rotary was not organized to promote boy's work.

True indeed, but the Rotarian who furthers it is the better Rotarian for it.

Boys work is the natural result of Rotary.

Without it Rotary would be barren indeed.

"Suffer little children to come unto me," is a corolary of the admonition to do unto others as we would have them do unto us.

A believer in the latter sentiment must practice the former.

Rotary has been variously described as a social movement, as a way of life, an attitude of mind, a posture of the soul.

It would be a strange social movement, a peculiar posture of the soul, that ignored or treated as secondary the moral and spiritual welfare of the little child.

We read much of business methods, of Rotary's duty towards the relation of employer and employee.

Important aspects of Rotary I concede, but neither so much so as a little child's soul.

And the place to begin their solution is in childhood's day.

Turn the boy and girl from school with proper ideas of their duty in life, and you have a business man who will have but one yard stick, but one pair of scales, a yard of 36 inches, a pound of 16 ounces; an employee who will render faithful and loyal service; an employer fair and honest toward his employees.

My plea is for the spiritual, it spells for character, for law, for country, for home.

It reaches the girl as well as the boy, which is right.

However, I feel that the boy is more in need of our help than the girl.

The reason is obvious. The girl is ordinarily not subject to the troubles that beset the footsteps of the boy.

The man is better qualified by experience, knowledge and temperament to aid the boy.

We are passing through a crisis in the affairs of our country.

But when were we not.

The world's history is a success of crises.

We will weather the present as we have the past.

I can "view with alarm" in the words of the political platforms.

But I have an abiding faith and belief that so long as God reigns the government at Washington will continue to live.

We may have our ups and downs, but our government is founded on justice and liberty and it will continue to live as the hope of the world.

Could Texas Rotary do a greater work than to help train citizens to preserve that government, to uphold its traditions and its institutions?

My final appeal is for the love which we bear to our boys and girls.

After all is said and done, what other emotion is more controlling?

What influence more worthy?

Who seeks Heaven alone to save his soul

May keep the road but will not reach the goal
While he who walks in love may wander far
Yet God will bring him where the blessed are.

HOT FIGHT FOR GOVERNOR SEEN

Bralley and Rogers To Contest for Leader Of District

At midnight last night there was little indication that opinion among the delegates was allying itself with either Harry Rogers of San Antonio of F. M. Bralley of Denton in their race for the governorship of the 13th District, Rotary International. Delegates from many places refused absolutely to commit themselves, notable among these being the Dallas representatives who would say nothing at all about how their seven votes were to be cast. Other delegates reported that they had been instructed to vote for one of the two candidates, instructed votes for Rogers about balancing those for Bralley, with perhaps a slight tendency in the direction of the San Antonio man.

There is every indication that south Texas delegates will go for Rogers, with Bralley equally strong in the northern part of the state. Many east Texas Rotarians are reported to be for Rogers, a Longview delegate last night making the statement that fourteen votes from Beaumont, Marshall, Jefferson, Pittsburg, and Longview would go his way. Tyler delegates declared themselves to be for Rogers, Amarillo seeming to favor Bralley. Stamford delegates, two in number have bee instructed to vote for Rogers, and there is every likelihood that Houstons six votes will be cast likewise.

Three votes from Paris will probably be cast for Bralley, while Waco's five will in all likelihood be divided, two of the delegates said to favor Bralley and three as yet undecided. Fort Worth delegates are keeping quiet as to their intentions. With Dallas they stand in a way to be a deciding factor in the election. The Dallas crowd meets at nine this morning to determine the direction of their influence.

With such a situation the prospects for a hotly contested election for district governor today are especially bright. Should the contest turn out to be a sectional fight as there is every indication that it will do, either may win, there being no means of determining just where the line between the two factions is to be drawn. Both men are able, exceedingly well thought of, and have the reputation of living up to the ideals of Rotary.

The election will not be won by either candidate until the last vote is cast, if indications ring true, a pronounced drift toward either of the candidates not being noticeable following the soiree last night.

ELECTRA 'TRIES' 'MISS ROTARIAN'

Clever Play Given As An Entertainment For Rotary Visitors

The idea that co-operation between the various civic luncheon clubs of a community would work for the betterment of all concerned was cleverly carried out Thursday noon in an operetta given by the district convention here. Humor was a keynote throughout, but the idea was put across forcibly and in the guise of a valuable moral lesson.

A cast of Electra men and women, included in which were Mrs. Chamber of Commerce, Miss Ima Kiwanian, Miss I. B. A. Lion, Miss Rotarian and others, staged a miniature court scene with Miss Rotarian on trial on charges of having usurped all the civic improvement prerogatives of the other damsels. She was eventually found guilty but before sentence was passed Mrs. Chamber of Commerce, who also posed as the mother of the three girls, plead with the court for leniency and pointed out how unity and cooperation would work for the good of the community.

The cast of characters was as follows: Judge, Bill Slayton; state's attorney, H. C. Norsworthy; defense attorney, Hugh D. Miller; clerk, Homer Grizzle; bailiff, Conrad Engleking; Mrs. Chamber of Commerce, Mrs. E. C. Barron; Miss Ima Kiwanian, Katherine Barr; Miss I. B. A. Lion, Babe Helen Jennings; Miss Rotarian, Leatrice Wofford; orchestra, Mrs. W. L. Underwood.

Edd Barr served as toastmaster of the occasion and nearly started a riot early in the meeting by announcing that an overcoat with a bottle of liquid that wasn't water had been found in the hall. He asked that the owner go claim it—and the dining room was nearly deserted in a two minutes flat.

Rotarian Loew Blows in From Brownsville Way

One of the late arrivals to attend the Thirteenth District Rotary conference is Harry K. Loew, who arrived Thursday afternoon from Brownsville, Texas, the farthest point south on the mainland of the United States. "I spent 25 hours on the train in actual running time," Mr. Loew said, "but it is worth all that to be able to be in Wichita Falls."

"This is a remarkable little city," he declared, "and I have enjoyed seeing it. It is the only town in the northwest that I have visited and is the only oil town I have ever seen."

In speaking of the conference, Mr. Loew stated that the programs were well arranged, and that he was enjoying the programs, regretting only that he had missed a part of them.

The Brownsville club has 35 members, and Mrs. Loew, one of the directors, is the only representative here from that city.

15 ROTARIANS HERE FROM WACO

"We brought 15 Rotarians from Waco and we feel it has been a very inspiring conference and that Wichita Falls has gone out of the way to entertain the convention and that it has been handled very efficiently and with as little friction as anyone could hope for," T. Barry Brazelton, president of the Rotary club said Thursday afternoon, after having spent the day in the convention, the Waco delegation arriving early Thursday morning.

"A conference as large in number of delegates as the Rotary conference of the Thirteenth District taxes the ingenuity and patience of any community, and Waco congratulates Wichita Falls on its success in coping with this problem.

"After hearing the wonderful talks during the day, I believe all the delegates from Waco will return to their home club with a new insight into Rotary and that our club will more nearly approach the Rotary ideal af-

Rigging Up

By SUMMERS

Greene and Flowers Brothers open a new district in Archer county and fee owners for several miles around the test can now demand more money for their leases.

Storage is being erected at the well to take care of production. The Texhoma Oil and Refining Company will probably run its proposed pipe line through the new area.

Cranfill Brothers test on the Mills land in the T. E. and L. company survey, Baylor county, is reported as having 1,000 feet of fluid standing in the hole. Operators visiting the test were of the opinion the test, when completed, would be equal to that of the Greene and Flowers well.

The Knight and Hines test two miles southwest of the Greene and Flowers test is reported nearing the sand depth and much attention is centered on the wildcat.

A report from Archer City last night stated that more than a dozen locations had been made in the vicinity of the Greene and Flowers discovery well, the Texas company erecting three derricks.

The new strike is a factor in development of territory south of the Little Wichita river. Many new tests are expected to start soon in the area between the Swastika and Greene Flowers district.

Special to The Record News.

CORSICANA, April 3.—No. 3 Wollens test, on the Mills-Bennett 15-acre triangular tract is in with an initial flow of 8,000 barrels of oil a day. The sand had been drilled into and the swab rigged up, but with the first two runs of the swab the oil blew in with a terrific gas pressure. The production is being run by the Texas Pipeline company. The new well is just to the north of the No. 1, which was completed some two weeks ago. Its successful completion calls for a number of additional new tests to be drilled along the east side of the railway track and to the west of the railroad.

Bralley Meets Many Old Friends At Convention

"By the way, did you ever know Miss Bessie Whitfield?" was the remark addressed this morning by a pleasant faced Rotarian whose hat bore the lettering "J-a-c-k-s-o-n-v-i-l-l-e" to a heavy-set man in brown whose keen eyes were constantly searching the Kemp Hotel lobby.

"Know her! Why I should say I do," returned the larger man, his serious face lighting up into a smile. "We were in school work in Austin sixteen years ago."

"Well," was the answer from the first, "I happen to be her husband," and he pointed to his coat lapel badge which bore the name of O. D. Jones.

Dr. F. M. Bralley, the man in brown, has met dozens of former acquaintances as well as friends, he says, during his brief stay in Wichita Falls as a member of the Denton Rotary delegation. As president of the College of Industrial Arts he is constantly renewing old associations as he travels over the state.

Many friends, chatting over former days in the Kemp lobby, recalled the beginning of Dr. Bralley's career when he taught in a tiny, one-room school house in Fannin county, where he eventually became county superintendent, and later state superintendent of public instruction.

As one of the five charter members of the Denton Rotary club, he is taking an active part in the Wichita Falls convention, where he is being sponsored as a candidate for district governor. Regents of the College of Industrial Arts recently granted Dr. Bralley sufficient leave of absence to attend to his duties should he be elected head of the thirteenth district Plans for financing his tours, in the event of his election, were also perfected.

WAITERS PREFER 10 PER CENT TIP

By The Associated Press.

GENEVA.—Hotel and cafe guests will continue to pay 10, 15 or 20 per cent service charge on their bills, if the International Union of Waiters has its way.

The union is decidedly opposed to returning to the old system of a small salary paid by the owner of the restaurant and voluntary tips on the part of the guests, as its members say they do far better under the percentage system.

McCorkle Pipe Line Terminals At Aransas Pass

Special to The Record News.

SAN ANTONIO, April 3.—S. R. McCorkle has purchased two tracts of land at Aransas Pass for terminals for the McCorkle pipeline that will be laid from Oklahoma to Aransas Pass, according to reports from Aransas Pass. One tract of 2,000 acres is at Harbor City, five miles south of Aransas Pass, and the other tract of 3,500 acres is two miles west of Aransas Pass, and was secured from the McCampbell estate, and is between the Ingleside railroad station on the San Antonio & Aransas Pass and the Jefferson Davis highway.

It is announced that the land will be used for storage tanks and refinery site and other equipment for the terminal for the pipeline. The pipeline it is claimed will run west of the Llano uplift and will pass through the new oil field being opened up in Reagan and Crockett counties.

"The Marriage Circle" Pleases.

"If all motion pictures were as good as "The Marriage Circle," I'd go to the movies every day of my life."

That was the enthusiastic remark overheard in the lobby of the Mission theatre yesterday after the showing of this Ernst Lubitsch production, a picture that contains such a galaxy of brilliant players as Marie Provost, Monte Blue, Florence Vidor, Adolphe Menjou, Harry Myers and Creighton Hale.

You will wait a long time before you see a better picture than "The Marriage Circle." It is at once sophisticated and simple, humorous and serious, with its story of a discontented rich wife who begins to make things hum when she takes a fancy to the husband of her old girlhood chum. It doesn't matter one whit to Minzi that the husband is very much in love with his own wife; no! she's too much of a woman to see the logic of that, and she begins to turn things topsy turvy domestically.

The acting of the whole group is beyond praise. One learns what acting is after beholding this wonderful film fiction. Marie Provost as the little gadabout coquette of a wife had advanced in impersonation, and is worlds removed from the Marie of the past. And Monte Blue, as Dr. Franz Braun, who tries—and succeeds so dismally—to extricate himself from the cunning plot of the imperturable charmer, lifts acting to new heights. There's no use talking about the acting of the others—you will be able to make your own enthusiastic comments and the picture is so genuine a triumph that we know you'll attend.

It's a Warner Brothers' classic of the screen. In it Lubitsch has thrown all the atmosphere and charm and beauty for which he is noted in the realm of the cinema.

After seeing the William de Mille production of "Icebound" at the Olympic theatre yesterday, we'll take back all the mean things said about screen adaptations of popular stage plays.

Clara Beranger has turned out an exceptionally smooth running continuity, and under the master direction of de Mille, "Icebound" comes to us one of the most humanly appealing and entertaining romantic dramas of this or any season.

"Icebound," which was awarded the Pulitzer prize for the best American drama during the season 1923, is a story of New England. Lois Wilson and Richard Dix are featured. Dix has the role of Ben Jordan who, while drinking with some neighbor's boys in their barn, sets fire to the place and runs away to escape arrest, returning the night his old mother dies.

Mrs. Jordan leaves the entire family fortune to Jane Crosby (Lois Wilson), her ward. Jane offers to put up the money to keep Ben out of jail if he will settle down and work out the farm for her. He does this, and the two gradually fall in love until Ben's flapper cousin (Vera Reynolds) almosts spoils things by stealing a pretty new dress Jane has made to please Ben. Ben falls for the girl's vampings just as Jane comes in. Why say more? You'll like "Icebound"; everyone does.

If they awarded a Pulitzer prize for the best American screen drama, this would be our choice.

It's a Paramount.

Besides Miss Reynolds, those who appear in support of the principal players are Helen Dubois, Edna May Oliver, who has the same role she did in the stage production; Mary Foy, little Joseph Depew, Ethel Wales, Alice Chapin, John Daly Murphy and Frank Shannon.

How Should an Actor Live?

"Damned if he does, and damned if he doesn't."

That's the life of an actor, says Conrad Nagel, Goldwin featured player, who recently played the leading role opposite Aileen Pringle in "Three Weeks."

"How is an actor to live, so that he will stay out of jail and the headlines, and at the same time get picture parts? Conrad asks.

"I have acquired a reputation as a quiet, married man, of sober ways and a saving disposition," Nagel says. "I am happily married. I don't drink or smoke. I am buying a ranch. I go to church.

"Now—when the Goldwyn company picked me to play 'Paul' in Elinor Glyn's 'Three Weeks,' a part of Hollywood threw up its hands in horror, and said: 'What—Conrad Nagel playing 'Paul!' The idea, in many circles, was ridiculous. That I should be playing the role of a great lover was absurd."

Nagel is not of the opinion that notoriety and success on the screen go together.

"I have no desire to break into the newspaper headlines," Nagel says. "But I can understand why my keeping out of them rules me out of certain kinds of parts.

"Lew Cody plays villains—he isn't one. I've never seen Lew poison a baby or attack a heroine.

"Chaplin doesn't wear funny shoes and run from policemen off the screen.

"Ernest Torrence didn't stop shaving, and begin chewing tobacco just because he had to do it in 'The Covered Wagon.'

"Why can't I step out of character also, when the day's work is done?

"I actually believe there would be less criticism on my being chosen for certain types of parts if I had been divorced three times, married in Tia Juana and mentioned in several of Los Angeles' more spectacular shootings."

THE ROTARY CONVENTION.

Today is the last day of the Rotary conference.

Judging from the expression of individuals who attended from Texas points, it was an enjoyable affair. But no one enjoyed it more than Wichita Falls and its host—the local Rotary Club.

Rotary stands for the improvement of business; for co-operation and fellowship among men, and there is much good which comes out of these yearly gatherings of Rotarians.

So it is with regret that Wichita Falls will bid her guests goodby at the close of today, but she will do so with a warm hand-clasp and a standing invitation for Texas Rotarians to visit this city collectively or individually, whenever they see fit.

FORD AS A COAL OPERATOR.

Henry Ford has purchased 3700 acres of land in Pennsylvania and West Virginia and the price will reach ten million dollars cash down. It is said the coal mined from these lands is without peer for fuel or steaming purposes and Ford needed the lands to provide fuel for his glass and subsidiaries in the Pittsburg district.

Henry's name appeared on the democratic ballot in South Dakota but his friends got nowhere in the fight for delegates. The rank and file who were for Ford before he joined the republicans, had no use for him after he landed in the Coolidge bandwagon. This gave the delegates from South Dakota to McAdoo without opposition.

As a money-maker Henry is the wonder of the world; as a politician he is the punkest of all leaders who have attempted to play the game. Regardless of this he knows what he wants and how to get it. He is getting it at the rate of two hundred and fifty million dollars a year.

COTTON IN SOUTH AFRICA.

Cotton production in South Africa has been increasing steadily since 1918. In 1923 the crop amounted to 2,400,000 pounds of lint. This is about 4,800 bales of 500 pounds each compared with 1,096,182 pounds for the previous crop year. It is estimated that the area under cotton cultivation in South Africa at present is approximately 20,000 acres. Practically all the cotton is exported.

Cotton experts are to be sent to Zululand to open a quarter of a million acres of good cotton soil in that country. British cotton men say that in South Africa there are four million acres of virgin land suitable for the production of high class cotton.

John Bull is growing nervous. He demands cheap cotton. He can't get it in America.

McGRAY ON TRIAL.

Governor Warren T. McCray of Indiana has been sent to trial on charges of larceny and embezzlement of $155,000 of state board of agriculture funds. With his back to the wall he has refused to resign.

If a jury returns a verdict of guilty then what will happen to McCray? His political enemies, including many republican leaders, have been after his scalp for a long time. Now they say they are going to get it.

Jack Walton had five indictments returned against him for embezzlement of funds. These indictments were dismissed the other day and Jack goes free. He lost his political scalp and his reputation but his enemies could not send him to the penitentiary.

Now was he guilty as charged by indictment or was it a frame-up?

WILSON A MODERNIST.

Woodrow Wilson was a religious man, a stalwart Presbyterian but he was not a fundamentalist. Professor W. C. Curtis of the Missouri university has made public a letter of the date of August 29, 1922, which discloses the views of the dead statesman. These are his words:

"May it not suffice for me to say in reply to your letter of August 25, that of course like every other man of intelligence and education, I do believe in organic evolution. It surprises me that at this date such question should be raised."

Professor Curtis of the Missouri university should send a copy of the Wilson letter to Professor William Jennings Bryan of the college of the Everglades, Florida, U. S. A.

"Oh, look here—" began Harry.

The girl turned to her hostess. "What's the program Mrs. Winkles?" she asked.

Her eyes were very large and curiously blue. Under that hair the contrast was striking. Dick waited anxiously for Mrs. Winkles to address her by name.

CHAPTER V.

But Winkle's mother disappointed him by not using the girl's name as she answered:

"The program for tonight is no dinner."

One of the youths called Fatty gave a cry of pain. "What? Hi! Chuck me another of those cakes at once."

Midge Winkles's sister spoke dreamily. "When a camel lacks food—"

"I shall have a bump if I don't get any dinner," proclaimed Fatty.

"Don't be alarmed," said Mrs. Winkles. "I won't starve you, although you'd look nicer if I did. I suggest that we have a moonlight picnic on the rocks and go for a drive afterward. What do you say."

Midge said: "Oh, corking!" The rest cheered.

Doris leaped to her feet. "When do we start?"

"Well, it's nearly 6:30 now," said Mrs. Winkles. "The food will be in the boats at 8 o'clock and we'll row round into the cove. Dick, you haven't seen your room yet."

"I'll pilot him, mother," Winkles said.

"Look here, Dick," said Midge, "buck up and change. We want to hear you play that banjo of yours."

The girl with the copper hair turned to him quickly. "Oh, no!" she said. "Keep it for tonight. It'll be simply smashing on the water!"

Dick met her eyes and nodded. Then he turned to the other. "Sorry, Midge," he said. "You'll have to wait."

The bungalow inside looked as unreal as the party who sat outside. The bedrooms were built round three sides of a square and arranged alphabetically, little carved wood letters being inlaid in the centre panel of each door.

"Dick, old chap, you're in H," said Winkles. "Here."

Dick found himself in a large, airy bedroom.

"Ripping!" he said. "Winkles, what's the name of the girl who asked me not to play the jo until tonight?"

"Oh—her!" said Winkles all interest at an end. "That's Audrey, one of mother's pals. Hardly know her at all."

"Audrey?" Dick said to himself. "Audrey—what a corking name! And what hands! By jove!"

A curious feeling came over him that he had seen her before. She stirred something at the back of his memory and he stood quite still in an effort to concentrate upon where and when he had met her.

"Winkles! Wink-les!"

The yell came from the veranda, a feminine yell.

Winkles went out on the balcony and leaned over. "Well," he said, "and what of it?"

Mary turned her head up. "Must you muck about up there all day? We're going in for a final swim. Coming?"

Then Midge's piping voice joined in. "And bring that Dick person. Don't hide him away like that. He looks nice."

Dick found his bathing costume and dashed into it. "Come on, Winkles," he said. "Get a move on!"

He was fiercely impatient to see whether Audrey was going to bathe, too.

So the two tumbled down the stairs four at a time, leaped over the ten things and raced after the others into the sea.

Dick gave a great shout. Audrey was there.

With one hand on the button of the electric light Dick felt with the other under his pillow and pulled out his watch. Five minutes to 2!

He yawned cavernously and flicked off the light. The bedclothes had been turned down in readiness. He put a knee up and was about to hop in when he suddenly stopped, remained very still for a breath and then got off the bed and tiptoed across to the window.

There had been no sound not the faintest movement, but he was absolutely certain that Audrey was out there. He didn't know how he knew; but he knew. It was just the feeling of her presence which had come over him suddenly, as if, at that very second, she had stepped out upon the balcony.

Very cautiously he put his head out.

She was there, leaning on the rail in a pale blue kimono with flowers in it, her autumn colored hair in two thick plaits.

Dick withdrew swiftly and slipped into one of those very thin, oriental looking silk dressing gowns which fold up into a waistcoat pocket.

Then he returned to the window and made a faint noise with the blindcord.

Audrey looked around. "Helio, Dick!" she said. "I didn't know you lived in the next pigeonhole to mine. Come out and look at the moonlight."

Dick leaned on the rail beside her, but the effect of the moon on the restless sea was not nearly so attractive as the shimmer it gave to her hair, or the soft shadow where it touched her chin and throat.

CHAPTER VI.

Turnbull.

If altitude and strong air count for anything in the life of a sick man, Whiteleaf ought to have been working miracles on Turnbull.

It worked miracles on the locals. They were a strong, healthy lot, numbering among them several cronies well into the nineties, who, although toothless and croaky of voice, still stumped about and drew old-age pensions and sat outside the Red Lion with their mugs of beer as happy as sandboys.

But for all their physique they were not greater optimists than Turnbull. For one who stood on the brink of eternity he made the most use of his time. He was in tune with nature. Every chord she struck found an echo in him.

With flowers he was a wizard. Give him an inch of chalky soil and a couple of seeds and he would grow you anything from prize roses downward.

Every morning he was up when the sun crept from its rosy bed and tinted all the world with warmth. The old farm horses trotted up whinnying when they heard the gate click under his hand; and the dogs barked and rattled their chains, impatient to join him. He looked out upon the wet leaves and the grass, tipped, blade by blade with a gleaming pearl, and went about his work with a deep breath that was a congratulatory prayer.

A sunny dawn was God's masterpiece!

There was, however, one thing without which the day was incomplete, without which the stars twinkled less merrily. That was a glimpse of Joyce.

He asked no more than a sight of her in the distance to hear her voice on the links, to see her rush down the hill on a bicycle, the wind whistling through her hair. Just a glimpse was all he asked.

To get a smile or a wave of the hand—and the birds sang more joyously, the earth was more springy under his feet.

But a whole week went by after Dick went, and his listening ear and watchful eyes remained uncomforted. Where was she? What was she doing down there. Why didn't she come up?

From his tent he could see the warm, red roof of the vicarage. In the mornings as he rose he looked down the hill to the place where she was sleeping.

At night there appeared a tiny light in one of the windows. His eyes fastened upon it. He told himself that it was saying good night to him for her, and when it went out and all was dark he put out his lamp and waited more patiently for the kindly hand of sleep.

He decided that he would go down and see what she was doing. The vicarage had never opened its doors to him, and he felt that some excuse was necessary.

What excuse had he—that he could tell her? For some time he could find none. Then he laughed and went out upon the empty links and ferreted for hours in the hedges and the long grass with a stick.

Golf balls were tangible excuses! And, better than ever, he found Dick's as well as hers.

So down he went one afternoon by the field path, and as the red roof came nearer he experienced shyness in all its agonies. He told himself that he was an ass, a fool. They would laugh at him and his precious golf-balls. For many minutes he fought with himself outside the battered-looking gate.

Then recklessly he pushed it open and went in with a beating heart. What a clod he was! Why hadn't he thought to put on a coat? Supposing there were callers? He would look like a tramp and she would be uncomfortable.

The path brought him out upon the ragged lawn and there was the explanation of all things.

There was Joyce sitting at a small table under the big walnut tree her head bent over a typewriter, her fingers dodging among the keys.

Turnbull stood and watched her, unseen. He had not seen her for so long that he just drank in the sight of her thirstily until she realized, with some curious telepathic instinct, that she was not alone. She looked up suddenly and surprise and welcome flashed into her eyes as she caught sight of him.

"Hello!" she said. "What are you doing there—trespassing?"

Turnbull strolled over with a magnificently casual air. "Am I a beastly interruption?"

So Goes It

Mr. E. L. Doheny is writing the story of his life for newspapers. He'll be going into the movies next.

We suppose he will include in that autobiography the story of the fall of Mr. Fall—Mr. Bacon Fall who got the bacon.

Life is just one shave after another.

The most confusing thing about all the various investigations which are being conducted in Washington, from the viewpoint of the layman, is who is he to believe. With everybody calling everybody else a liar, it is rather difficult to choose.

It has at least demonstrated one very convincing fact; That when the average man gets a chance to get a little free publicity under such strained circumstances, he often says a lot of things he does not believe himself.

They're going to keep on using this word "liar" until it won't mean anything.

There are a lot of different ways of getting into the limelight by the publicity route. All of them are not profitable. Jack Henderson, vaudevillian, chose the method of refusing a bequest of $250,000 left him by an aged woman for friendship's sake. If it had been us we would have taken the money and let the other fellow have the publicity.

We take the view that it is a crime to refuse money when so much good can be accomplished with it.

Ther is such a thing as too much publicity.

WHAT TODAY MEANS TO YOU

AIRES.

The combined influence of the planetary aspects is very good for all general business affairs and literary matters. A good day to sell things and make collections.

A child born today will develop very artistic tastes, and as a natural result, will be very temperamental.

If today is your birthday, your character is variable, and subject to sudden changes. If a man, you can be very entertaining and pleasing, but, without any apparent cause, are liable to become morose and silent. If a woman, you possess lots of charm and vivacity, but, seemingly without any justification, "crawl into your own shell," and become absolutely indifferent to those around you. This attitude does not appeal to those with whom you are brought into itimate contact, as they "never know how to take you." As a result, you are never treated with that absolute confidence, and lack of reserve, which signalizes close and unrestrained friendship.

You are not animated by mean thoughts or unkind motives: too much introspection is the trouble. You look too much on the serious side of life, and thereby miss a lot of innocent fun and amusement. You are not sympathetic in your attitude although keenly sensitive to misfortune of others.

You do not care much for outdoor sports and activities: your tastes rather incline to the srtistic, and you probably would succeed as a writer or a painter. "Art is the expression of an impression," and in these pursuits, you are able to express your moods without offending friends' susceptibilities.

In your "affaires do coeur" you are not very happy, as you misunderstand just as much as you imagine you are misunderstood.

Morbid thoughts must be avoided, if happiness is your goal; emotional feelings of an unwholesome nature never secure either contentment or peace.

Although the matrons and the maids
One meets with everywhere,
Are sporting new Parisian shades,
For street and evening wear,
Young Mrs. Robin, just in town,
Is flitting to and fro,
Apparelled in the same old gown
She wore a year ago.

The winter months, Miss Bluebird spent
Upon a southern isle,
Where everybody is intent
On keeping up with style.
But now, when with returning spring
She joined her family here,
She isn't wearing anything
She didn't wear last year.

And there is Mrs. Tanager,
Who toured the winter through,
We certainly expected her
To show us something new.
We thought we'd see some novel note,
In her outdoor array,
But still she wears the scarlet coat,
In which she went away

These ladies visit foreign climes,
They journeyed here and there,
And yet they're way behind the times,
In everything they wear.
But still they fluff their feathers out,
And through the trees they dart,
And seem to think they're just about
The smartest of the smart!

Do It Best

By DR. FRANK CRANE

The way to make the most money and achieve the greatest success in what you are doing is very simple.

It is to do it better than anyone else can do it.

A recent treatise on how to choose and repare for one's life work says that there are tens of thousands of men writing business letters in the United States every day. Some of them get three or four cents a letter, others may average as high as fifteen or twenty cents but there is a man in New York who gets as much as five hundred dollars for one letter.

The answer is easy.

He writes a better letter than anybody else.

There are thousands of machinists who can do pretty well in polishing metal surfaces; but there is one man who can smooth the faces of two steel cubes so perfectly that when they are placed together, absolutely dry, they will stick. Theoretically, if the surfaces were absolutely smooth, they would, when placed together, become one bar of steel. The ordinary machinist who does tolerably well gets from two-fifty and ten dollars a day. This man who can do it best sells his little pieces of steel for more than six hundred dollars a set.

There are millions of gardeners who grow potatoes and get some money out of them. But Eugene Grubb applied himself to the business until he can raise a crop of a thousand bushels of good potatoes from one acre of ground.

If all you want to do is to do as well as the average man you will be doomed to mediocrity as long as you live.

Whatever you do, try to do it better than anybody else can do it, and nothing can prevent you from coming to the top.

SOILS AND SOIL PHYSICS

The Effect of the Wind on Soil Ventilation

Have you ever noticed how a tree acts in the wind? It sways backwards and forwards constantly, depending upon the intensity of the wind at any particular time. If the wind were of the same strength at all times, the tree would not sway but would remain bent in the direction the wind was blowing.

Perhaps you have noticed also how in a heavy wind storm a house will tremble and shake at intervals. In both cases it is evident that the wind varies in strength, or in other words, it blows in "gusts."

A wind will pick up objects from the surface of the ground and lift them high in the air. Evidently it has a lifting effect.

It is due to the fact that the wind varies in density and also has a lifting effect that it is such a valuable force in the ventilation of the soil.

When the wind is blowing there is a very considerable variation in the air pressure. As the pressure varies upon the surface of the ground air is forced in or out of the soil as the pressure is increased or diminished.

Tests have been made on shallow wells in porous soils to find out whether the force of the wind would effect the level of the water. Fluctuations of a foot or more have been noted. In fact, where the soil was very porous it was shown that a strong wind would cause what almost amounted to wave action in the soil waters.

If the winds will cause a fluctuation of the water level in a wel, it must be obvious that it is powerful enough to cause a considerable movement of the air in all but the densest soil.

TIMELY REVIEWS ON WORLD TOPICS

"WAR NOT YET PAID FOR," SAYS MORGAN FIRM OFFICIAL.

"It will not do to jump to the conclusion that the war has been paid for and that the problem of war finance is at an end. On the contrary, the remaining public debt of $21,500,000,000 is a matter of major importance." So says R. C. Leffingwell, member of J. P. Morgan & Co., discussing present financial conditions.

"Its treatment will have the most profound effect upon the welfare of our countrymen," declared the banker recently. "Of this entire debt more than $8,600,000,000 or 40 per cent, will mature within the next four years, or thereabouts. Upwards of $3,000,000,000 of the debt so maturing consists of the bonds of the third Liberty loan, which are not subject to call for redemption before maturity, and are selling in the market at such prices as make extensive purchases of them by the treasury for retirement before maturity improbable, if not impossible.

"Of the remainder of the short dated debt upwards of $4,000,000,000 consists of treasury notes, the last of which now outstanding matures on Dec. 15, 1927, and $900,000,000 consists of treasury certificates.

"It derogates nothing from the skill with which the treasury operations have been conducted since the Victory loan was floated to call attention to the fact that on the whole they have before the character of operations in debt reduction. The actual amount of debt reduction effected is approximately equal to the entire amount of the Victory loan, the last of the Liberty loans.

"It does not take much imagination, therefore, to understand that if the government's policy were materially altered, whether by undertaking new expenditures for whatever purpose, however beneficient, or by reducing revenues, to such an extent as to require the issue of United States government bonds, notes or certificates to an amount exceeding the amount of those maturing, the treasury would encounter very different conditions, and would be obliged to enter into competition with the bond market for investment capital.

"The net effect of the treasury's operations since Armistice day has been to release investment capital, both because of the important reduction in the gross debt, and also because of the policy persistently and wisely pursued of adhering almost exclusively to short maturities for meeting its current requirements. The capital fund thus released by the treasury of the United States has unhappily in large measure been lapped up for public or semi-public purposes by the borrowings of states and municipalities, subsidized and stimulated by the constitutional exemption from taxation.

"Nevertheless, the treasury has conferred a priceless benefit upon the American people by pursuing the wise policy of debt reduction and relieving the business man and the farmer, the merchant and the industrialist in meeting their own requirements for financing, from the competition of the treasury."

"The Mollusc" To Be Seen Here 3 Days

A thoroughly artistic performance of a charming play will be presented to the patrons of theatrical art at the Little Theatre of Wichita Falls in the Hotel William and Mary from April 23 to April 26.

Matinees Wednesday and Saturday at 3 o'clock, evenings at 8:30.

The play is called "The Mollusc," by Hubert Humphrey Davies, the ensemble of direction, stage decoration and art lighting by Peter Ames Vincent, regisseur.

The play itself, the acting and the setting combine, to make this production the highest development reached thus far by the Little Theatre in this city.

The play is concerned with the insidious state called "Molluscry," a fashionable form of the well known tired feeling. "Mrs. Baxter," which is being beautifully played in rehearsal by Miss Margaret Blackburn, is the one affected. The condition is discovered and diagnosed by her brother, Tom Kemp," attorney portrayed by Mr. Paul Barnett. Mrs. Baxter rules her household as only a woman can, and will. Mr. Roy Dee, as "Mr. Baxter," is kept well subdued in the background through the dominance of "Mrs. Baxter" until the end of the play where he stands out triumphant. Mr. Roy Dee is playing this difficult role and in the end presents "Mr. Baxter" as having cured his wife, "Dulcy," and well cured, at that.

Mrs. Porter Oakes plays the role of "Miss Roberts," the children's governess, with much charm and wistful appeal.

The term, "Mollusc," is coined for the lethargic lady of the Baxter household by her more active brother fresh from the mining camps of California and Colarado. His desire again to rouse her interest in her home life and surroundings—springing at first from his own natural buoyancy—soon turns to desperate effort by the discovery of what seems to be an alarming situation developing in the household as a result of her passivity. Throughout the play, there is also woven a retty romance. The manner of this production—the acting and the setting will provide material for enjoyment for those students of the theatre art interested in a production of the stage which has been developed as a unit of beauty. It is an intimate play in intimate surroundings—an art mosaic of the theatre in a proper and adequate setting—a Little Theatre home—every detail under the direction of Peter Ames Vincent, regisseur.

COLOR CUT-OUT.

How to Make a Window Box.

"Red and pink crepe paper to make tulips!" exclaimed Freda, walking arm-in-arm with Betty to the Cut-outs' library where the flower-making had been going on. "At the greenhouse we sell window boxes of tulips and since they are in the shape of shoe boxes, I don't see why we couldn't make one of paper!"

Everybody agreed it was a fine idea. Betty got a shoe box and covered it with green crepe paper and a rep paper ribbon while Freda made the tulips and leaves.

The strip of paper that makes each tulip should be six and a half inches long and three inches deep. Fold it in five sections and cut so that the edges cling together as the diagram at the top shows. Twist the bottom parts with wire and cover the wire with green paper for the stem. The leaves are only strips cut with rounded edges and fluted. Leave the lid on your shoe box and stick the stems of the tulips in it. Then make the green paper covering high enough to cover up where the stems are fastened in.

CLOSE SCHOOLS FOR ORCHESTRA

Music Instructor Tells How To Enjoy Symphony Program

Wichita Falls public schools will close Tuesday at noon on April 8, the date set for the appearance of the St. Louis Symphony orchestra which will formally open the Junior college, according to an announcement by Dr. J. W. Cantwell, city superintendent of schools.

The announcement followed a conference with Mrs. John Wegg king, president of the Musician's club, which is sponsoring the concert.

In order that the school children may appreciate the orchestra to the fullest, Miss Henrietta Pyle, supervisor of music in the public schools, explains how to enjoy the matinee as follows:

So you do not enjoy the orchestra? Well, neither would I enjoy a Chinese opera for long—because I would not know what it was all about. But you will be quite enthusiastic about the orchestra after taking a little peep into the inside. It is truly wonderful

Do you know, the orchestra is very much like an opera, each instrument being a singer? And you do enjoy an opera don't you, for there you have the members of the cast, who tell a story, and who get the big chorus to help at times to make the argument more strong. Well, each instrument in the orchestra has its "bit" to do, and with some that "bit" is a great deal—just like the opera. Sometimes a few are necessary to be on the stage and sometimes it takes all the choruses and everybody. Some are so important that the composer really puts them into the cast, because they alone have so much to tell, bearing upon the story. And these cast members have different characters or dispositions like people. You can't imagine an opera director giving a huge giant of a woman with a gorgeous contralto voice a cute kittenish part, can you? No, indeed. Well so it is with each instrument—it fills the place best suited for it by its own nature.

It is too pretty for anything to hear them all get started telling the same little story (tune) each in his own way of telling it. Take the double bassoon, for instance—the deepest toned instrument of the orchestra. In his dignified way, with sonorous tones like a judge, he makes his statement, and then each member of the cast takes his turn at it, telling it in his own way. The clarinet like a real entertaining woman, has to make a more elaborate and fascinating story out of hers, but if you are a real good detective (listener) you can recognize the original story.

Then some of them do get so mournful and weepy! There is the oboe—get him up on a hill and his excitement is intense, his voice grating on you, but presently his natural tendencies return and he'll make you cry before leaving the stage. Immediately he may be scolded and "blessed-out" by the trombone—but if the trombone isn't careful, he might talk too fast and long and become ludicrous. He is not related to the bassoon and oboe—but I'll tell you about that later. If you feel like a fairy, watch for the flute—it can certainly "trip the light fantastic" and take you along too. It is the coloratura soprano of the wood-wind group. Then the viola—used as the alto or tenor of the string group—is good at making you dreadfully homesick. Really she may be sad because her little sister, the violin, is always the prima donna of the orchestra. Some instruments—the cast—seem to start an idea then others repeat it with a little elaboration. Some make a simple entrance like maids and butlers. The street gamins outside begin to create a terrible disturbance, which everybody terrifically joins, especially the kettle drums and horns until you think bedlam has broken loose—when suddenly "crash!" the cymbals put an end to it all, then peace reigns supreme and everybody tells everybody else how they love them.

Seriously the modern orchestra—only about one hundred years old, the most recently developed branch of music—is the greatest musical achievement. While it is built upon laws of harmony, the composer dares not destroy the exquisite native qualities of each instrument, to adhere to the letter of the law.

The grouping of instruments is interesting, since each has a complete choir effect in its own family. These families are the String, Wind (wood-wind and brass) and Percussion.

The string group has two divisions according the ways of producing tones. The harp and piano are plucked, though some group the piano as a percussion instrument. The division played by use of bows range from highest to lowest as follows: Violin (soprano of group), viola (alto or tenor), cello (tenor or baritone) and double-bass (contrabass).

The wood-wind group has the flute (coloratura soprano), piccolo (octave higher than the flute), oboe (double-reed and lyric soprano), English horn (double-reed and alto), clarinet (single-reed, sometimes a bass clarinet with bell of metal turned up like a pipe), bassoon (bass) and sometimes contra-bassoon, an octave lower than the bassoon.

The brass group has the trumpet (soprano-cornet very popular with small orchestra, since it is easier played than trumpet), French horn (alto), trombone and tuba (bass).

The percussion group include the kettle-drums or tympani, side drum or snare drum, tamborine, castanets, cymbals, triangle, gongs, xylophone, chimes, bells, etc.

The seating plans of all big orchestras are primarily the same, varying in small particulars. In the large orchestras always to the left of the stage you will see the first violins in front.

To the right—on the director's right—in front, are the second violins. Back of the first violins are the cellos, possibly a few directly in front of the director, and back of the second violins are the violos.

The wood-wind group generally takes the center of the stage directly in front of the director. The flutes and piccolos on the front row, behind which are the clarinets and oboes and behind them are the bassoons and contrabassoons.

Some place the string basses the rear left and the horn basses to the rear center, with the brass group behind the violas to the rear right. Others place the brass group to the rear in center. However, you will notice that in all, the family groups are kept together to produce certain effects desired.

The coming of the St. Louis Symphony orchestra to Wichita Falls is the highest musical opportunity we have ever had. It may be your only chance in the life of your child to get to hear the greatest musical achievement—a symphony orchestra, so make every effort to give him this adjunct necessary to every person's cultural education.

Home-Wrecking Is Always An Inside Job | Dorothy Dix | Lays Blame For Stolen Affections on Lack of Effort

All Imitations Are Poor Stuff, and When Women Begin to Copy Men They Foolishly Throw Away Their Greatest Charm—Femininity—and Get Nothing in Return.

Observe the front elevation of a modern girl's head. It is sweetly and femininely permanently waved and curled. Look at the back of the same head and see it cropped as closely as little brother's. So that, coming, the owner of the head appears to be a girl and, going, you mistake her for a boy.

Now, if, as the old music hall song used to say, every little movement has a meaning all its own, then this latest feminine haircut is of deep psychological significance and indicates that women are determined to circumvent nature, and if they can't be men to try to look like men.

Nor does this mania for trying to make imitation men of themselves stop with her hair, which once was woman's glory and is now on exhibition of her greatest freakishness. All the women's wear shops feature boyish form clothes. And though every mother's daughter looks like a figure of fun in trousers, neither prayers nor tears nor a sense of humor keeps her from putting on breeches whenever she has the faintest excuse for donning them.

Now, far be it from me to blame women for envying men. Certainly theirs is the preferred lot in life. This is a man's world, and the fullness thereof is his. His is the strength, the freedom, the perquisites of life.

Just to be born a woman is a misfortune, but it is the part of wisdom to accept a situation and make the best of it, instead of pretending that it is something else. If cutting their hair off and putting on pants would turn women into men I should not blame the entire sex for beating it to the barber and the tailor, and good luck to them in their new estate.

But it doesn't. Maudie clipped like a poodle is still Maudie, Grandmother knickerbockered is still grandma, and they have thrown away the one and only consolation they got for their womanhood—which was their femininity.

Maudie in her filmy chiffons and her lovely clinging crepes was a thing of beauty that delighted the eye. In her dirty khaki pants she is a scrubby-looking little hoodlum who is an outrage on good taste. Grandma in her satin and lace was a figure of dignity, but with her fat form overflowing her knickerbockers she is a monstrosity. Skirts, like the mantle of charity, hide a multitude of sins, and the women who discard them are either abnormally vain or utter fools.

Women make a great mistake when they try to look as much as possible like men. They make an even greater mistake when they try to follow purely masculine occupations instead of sticking to the trades that belong to their own sex and for which they have an inherited natural aptitude.

The wonder of the lady longshoreman and the lady steeplejack is, as Dr. Johnson said, the wonder of the dancing dog—not that she does it so well, but that she does it at all.

Whenever you find a woman who has made a real success in business or the professions she has done so along feminine lines. The women who have piled up fortunes have been mostly milliners and dressmakers, and hotel keepers, and those who have run beauty parlors, and schools, and private hospitals, and who have done womanly things for which the world was willing to pay.

This is equally true of professional women. Women have succeeded best when they capitalized their sex. There has never been a really great woman character that wasn't a manikin. No actress ever achieved fame impersonating a man character. It is by "Camille" and "La Tosca" that Sarah Bernhardt will be remembered, not her "Hamlet" and "L'Aiglon."

Even the best quality that women bring to the financial world is the feminine one. It is the inherited housekeeping instinct which enables a woman to carry a thousand details in her head and remember where everything is, so that she can put her hand on it in the dark, that makes the invaluable office woman.

Certainly, the women who have had their own way to make in the world have found that their best weapons were womanliness, gentleness, tactfulness, sweetness. The loud and aggressive be-trousered women who stand upon their rights get nowhere. Men fight back at them as they would at another man. It is the quiet, well dressed, refined women who look like ladies and act like ladies to whom men extend a helping hand.

Admittedly, the chief end of woman is matrimony, and here again the eternal feminine wins out, for the more womanly a woman is the more she appeals to men. It is not possible to imagine a man popping the question to a girl in pants. He had just as soon think of leading a Boy Scout to the altar.

Inasmuch as all imitations are poor stuff and little to be desired, the present mania for copycatting men is inexplicable. They throw away all of their charms and get nothing in return. Even the poorest lout of a boy cuts a better figure than the most elaborately gotten-up she man, and any be-sissy can do things that the lady Samson cannot do.

All of which brings us to the conclusion that God doubtless knew what He was about when He made two sexes and that if He had wanted women to be exactly like men He would have created them that way. Certainly, they cant do it for themselves, and they throw away their best card when they throw their femininity into the discard.

THE PRAYER PERFECT.

Dear Lord! kind Lord!
Gracious Lord! I pray
Thou wilt look on all I love
Tenderly today.
Weed their hearts of weariness;
Scatter every care
Down a wake of angel wings,
Winnowing the air.

Bring unto the sorrowing
All release from pain;
Let the lips of laughter
Overflow again;
And with all the needy,
O, divide, I pray,
This vast treasure of content
That is mine today.

New Hats Hint of Easter's Approach

Winsome creations, both dress and tailored hats, bring new and more radiant glories to the pageantry of Spring's styles.

White hats, rather large, with just the merest touches of jade or yellow, some bound in Georgette braid, are among the most April-like of the tailored hats. More elaborate, are a few creations to which gilt kid embroidery, gives a brilliant and sumptuous note. Gilded bands lend richness to other models, setting off the airy-fairy appearance of the lace creations. Hats of timbeau, with velvet ribbon, are certainly worthy of your inspection, among the tailored creations, and the sport braid hats, with trimmings of embroidered georgette, are every bit as pretty as that description hints.

Among the dress hats, there is beguiling variety. Combinations of society silk and leghorn, of maline and leghorn of georgette crepe and leghorn, of milan and lace with velvet ribbon, of milan and burnt goose, or hair braid and profuse flowers—these give an inkling of the appeal that the dress hats offer. Large black lace hats with braid, black maline hats with tailored looking flowers, leghorn picture hats cleverly touched with piping—these are others that tell something of the variety at least. A rich and beautiful assemblage is ready for your try-on.

Ninth Inning Rally Wins for Spudders, 5-4

JUMP ON MUSCLES ALLAN FOR FOUR HITS IN LAST; WRIGHT EFFECTIVE AND STARTS RALLY

The last game of the broken Wichita Falls-Oklahoma City series here ended Thursday afternoon in the last of the ninth, bases loaded and none out. Tanner's Spudders had won their first of the three, off Pitcher Roy Allan, 5 to 4, with room to spare on a last inning rally.

Allan Blows Up

Pitcher Howard had again proved effective against the Spudders and for seven innings held them to five scattered hits and two runs. "Muscles" Allan, relieving Howard in the eighth opening, allowed a run, Wright held the Indians runless and scoreless in the ninth, and came to bat first, one tally behind, the last go-round. The pitcher doubled briskly to right center, and scored on Coombs' double to right. Dorman, trying for a sacrifice, walked. Weiss got a base-hit, filling the bases. Fitzgerald then registered the second base-hit, scoring the winnig run and filling the bases. It was two runs, four hits, no outs.

Wright Effective

Lefty Wright pitched winning baseball for Wichita Falls. The comic southpaw was nicked for only two blows the last four inuings, and not a runner crossed the plate before him. Howard, also, was right, holding the Spudders within easy control at all times except the first inning. In the opening frame, a walk, an error and a hit brought two runs to Wichita, their only markers against Howard.

Clarence Hoots pitched a good game, but was too easy with the Indian tribe. Luderus' men garnered off the right-hander three runs and seven hits the first five innings. Hoots held them runless and hitless in the third and fourth.

Rally Off Fast

Pitcher Allan was jumped on with all the weight of the Spudder murderer's row. The slim boy held them to a run, with no hits, in the eighth, but had not the stuff to keep the vengeful Tannermen off longer. The rally started with the first pitched ball, and from then on all was over. Weiss, Fitzgerald, Michaels, Coombs and Wright handled the big mauls for the Spudders. The first three grabbed two hits, each, while the last two named started the ninth inning holocaust with doubles in succession. Tate, Spencer, Fitzpatrick, and Allen were left out of the hit column for the Indians, all the vest getting from one to two safe swats. Brown and McNally got two hits each, while Haas slapped out the longest of the day, a three-bagger.

Erring fielders were not lacking in the order. The seven miscues chalked up for the entire field meant something in the scoring. Bad judgment, the error of the fan's card, was also in evidence.

Although the sound thwacking was free enough, it was nothing to compart to the free slugging bee of Wednesday. The irritable wind of that day made batters swing hard and balls fly long and high.

The pitchers' battle between Howard and Hoots went very muchly in favor of the former. Howard was holding them in his hand, until the change all the way through gave Wichita the edge. Allan had nothing at all, yesterday

Little Lessons In Big Sports

If a man who had never played golf at all should ask you how to go about learning the game, what would you tell him?

Answered by

BOB CRUICKSHANK

Runner up in National Open championship, 1923, and the man who, in 1921, defeated Hutchison, Sarazen and Barnes in an invitation tournament at St. Joseph, Mo. Runner up in Pittsburgh tournament for professional golfers, 1922, being defeated only by Sarazen.

I would suggest that he first of all learn or read the rules of the game, get familiar with the clubs, and then begin taking lessons. After he had learned what the various clubs in his bag were for, his first lesson would begin.

If I were to teach him I would start him on the putting green. There he would learn what "touch" in golf means and at the same time the value of body control. Afterwards, I would instruct him in the various shots up to the green and finally the tee shots where a fuller swing is required.

REAL SILK SCARCE IN GERMANY AGAIN

BERLIN. — Women shoppers say real silk has become very scarce in Germany, chiefly because of import restrictions. As a consequence there has developed such an enormous demand for artificial silk that wholesalers assert they have orders on hand from the German trade alone which will take the manufacturers four months to fill.

Today's Iron

By T. T. HUNT.

It was done at last.

When the home boys can win, anytime, against anybody, then is the day of rejoicing. Especially if the cards have been going against us.

Yesterday's Spudder victory added balm to the unpromising order of things.

The Chicago boys are scheduled to meet the Amarillo Sandstorm this afternoon. As for the Golden Sandstorm, the Coyotes did not beat them, at least, in the first trial.

Freddie Dorman was the rage on third base yesterday. Skipper Tanner watched the young man with an appraising eye. Barring one bad decision, the shortstop handled the hot corner flawlessly. At the bat, he also turned in a very nice day. More consideration for Dorman.

"Muscles" Allen, as he is playfully called by his Indian teammates, had just about the easiest form in the box yesterday that might be imagined. When the lengthy moundsman uncorked one, he uncurled all the way to home plate. His base running was a feature. Also, his pitching.

Lefty Wright is a ball player. He pitches and he hits. The way he leaned on the veteran Allan's delivery yesterday in the ninth, was astounding. No more talk of a pinch hitter when lefty is doing the throwing.

Cecil Coombs was also in there producing. It got to be a habit for Cecil to walk, Dorman to sacrifice, and Weiss or Fitzgerald to score one. They all came in for the gravy in the ninth.

This Duke Trammel is a future champion, said a ringside individual just after Duke had put Sparks off to sleep last night at the Leon program. Trammel's blowsR were so fast it was difficult to follow them. The result was quick and decisive.

And Sparks was "Iron Jaw." This probably saved him from a broken head.

Sports of 1924

Thirty-six years ago today in the town of Hubbard, Texas, there arrived a husky baby whose parents christened him Tristram. The last half of this boy's life has been spent as a professional ball player, during which time he has distinguished himself in numerous ways. Yep, it was Tris Speaker.

Tris has other lines of endeavor besides pursuing fame and sheckels in baseball. Nearly every winter he pursues big game with a high powered rifle in Wyoming or some other wild spot, or else goes on a fishing trip in Canada. The champion pinch-hitter of 1922 has shot numerous deer, moose, and BPOE, and captured many an elusive fish from the depths of the H2O.

Being from Texas, Spenker also enjoys horseback riding and has taken part in rodeos. He and another agile gent once ran down a calf, roped and tied him in 24 seconds. Tris is also an amateur photographer: the picture he wants to take most is a snapshot of the 1924 American league pennant flying over the Cleveland Indians' ball park.

WINNER CARPENTIER-TUNNEY BOUT SLATED TO MEET GIBBONS

NEW YORK, April 3.—The claims of rival promoters for the services of Georges Carpentier who plans a comeback campaign in the United States this summer, virtually were settled today when an agreement was reached to have the winner of the proposed match between the Frenchman and Gene Tunney, American light heavyweight champion, meet Tom Gibbons, St. Paul light heavyweight.

This agreement which is expected to be closed definitely tomorrow, was reached at a conference between Billy Gibson, manager of Tunney, who holds Carpentier's contract to a bout in New York or New Jersey in June, and Floyd Fitzsimmons, Benton Harbor, Mich., promoter, who sought to match Carpentier and Gibbons on July 4 at Detroit, Chicago, or Michigan City, Indiana.

GIBBONS KAYOES JACK M'FARLAND IN SECOND

NASHVILLE, Tenn., April 3.—Tommy Gibbons, St. Paul challenger of Jack Dempsey, knocked out Jack McFarland of Detroit, in the second round of a scheduled 8-round bout here tonight.

Trammel Stops Ada Boy In First

Duke Trammel sprung his best and most sudden surprise last night. It took the Fort Worth mauler 20 seconds to put away Claude "Iron-Jaw" Sparks of Ada, Oklahoma. Three rights flush on the jaw, Trammel's special, dropped the so-called "tough guy" into long and sweet dreams. The bout was last on the Legion double-final card, scheduled to go ten rounds.

Another bubble was burst when Sparks crumpled and slid to the floor not half a minute after the opening gong. The Oklahoma boy laid not a glove on Trammel. It was the old, old story. Taking all his confidence in hand, Trammel did his stuff in best form. They circled twice, sparring at long distance. Suddenly the Panther City mauler shot over a whipping right, which clipped the challenger on the jaw and dropped him into the ropes. The Ada boy rose and returned. Then the well known Trammel right again shot into play, connecting square on the button. Sparks dropped straight down to the canvass, where he took five. As his man regained his feet, Trammel rushed out of the corner, delivering the fatal right once more to the jaw. Sparks was half turned away, and Trammel's fist hooked into a circle around the head to connect. At the crack of the cannon-ball hit, the Ada battler dropped away, limp, straight on his face. It was some time before he was revived after being carried to his corner.

Sparks' First.

It was Sparks' first appearance here. His fighting has been confined to Oklahoma chiefly. In bringing him here, American Legion promoters thought at last a man was secured who might go the limit with Trammel. Sparks is a well set-up man, young, but showing signs of many hard fights. He was probably tough, but not a cast-iron boy. It is altogether probable he never saw Trammel's lightning rights. Trammel's weight was announced at 148, Sparks' at 140.

Carroll Comes Back.

Jimmie Carroll of Fort Worth made good his ambition and came back last night when he beat Fighting Simmons of Henrietta in the first ten-round bout. Carroll lead all the way, and took seven out of the ten rounds. In Simmons he found a fighter who could take almost the same punishment as himself, for he dealt him many hard blows. Carroll was in best of condition, while Simmons seemed slow. Simmons was given a decision over Carroll at a previous meeting here. Their weights were called at 150.

Herman Wins.

Smiling Joe Herman resumed his winning when he outfought Virgil "Cyclone" Oden in the six-round opener. Herman laid gloves on Oden almost at will, the Wichita Falls boy taking a bad beating. Oden seemed unwilling to mix after Herman's rushing attack on the first round, but took his punishment gamely. They weighed 110.

Nolen Beats Shaw.

Homer Nolen of Iowa Park won the decision over Carl Shaw of Fort Worth, in a four-round preliminary In one round, the second, did the larger Shaw count, when he got in some good blows. Shaw showed lack of technique, and was beaten to a standstill by Nolen. He hung on gamely, though winded. Nolen weighed 168, Shaw 190.

Battling Nelson put over the other k-o of the night, when he laid away the Frisco Kid in the third of a scheduled four-round preliminary. A right to the jaw dropped the Kid like a shot. They weighed 144.

Jack Not Present.

Tabby Levine was forced to idleness when Silent Jack, his man in a six-round semi-final match, failed to appear. It was announced Jack had injured an arm and was physically unable to fight.

Finals in Forensic Contests Will Be Held Here Tonight

The finals in the Wichita Falls public schools declamatory contests will be held tonight at 7:45 at the First Christian church, it was announced last night. Much interest has been shown in the outcome of these contests during the past week, now that the district meet is imminent and a large crowd is expected to be on hand to hear the contest.

These will be in four divisions, junior boys, junior girls, senior boys and senior girls. The junior divisions contain contestants under fourteen years of age and will include representatives from the Alamo, Austin, Barwise, Fannin, Sam Houston, San Jacinto, Travis and Carrigan schools, while the senior division will include the representatives of the junior and senior high school.

The contests will be in charge of H. A. Glunn, principal of the junior high school and supervisor of interscholastic activities in Wichita Falls.

ANNUAL MEETING

ors showed that the same energy which characterized their frolics was available for more serious things, and the result was a day of real, constructive accomplishment.

From the time the convention was first called to order at 9.30 and welcomed by Walter Cline, president of the Wichita Falls Rotary club, until adjournment was taken at 5 o'clock in the afternoon, the day was replete with events calculated to be of inspiration and help to Rotarians. The address of District Governor Dawley, those of James Heron, Tom Brooks and other speakers, even the music preached Rotary, defended Rotary and urged a more universal adherance to the principles of Rotary.

Business matters attended to during the day, exclusive of the announcements and communications, were featured by the convention committee appointments and the filling of Galveston's invitation for the 1925 conference. Although formal appointment of the convention point will not be made until next September when the presidents and secretaries council meets, the gulf coast city is practically assured of being selected. All committee appointments will be found elsewhere in this edition.

A driving rain at noon threatened for a time to cause considerable inconvenience but with the breaking away of the clouds even the negligible alarm felt because of atmospheric conditions disappeared. Outside decorations came through the storm considerably the worse for wear, but not so the visitors themselves who merely kept under cover and made the best of the situation. Automobiles were again in great demand throughout the day and not a few impromptu sightseeing tours about the city and on into the country were arranged.

One Rotarian from south Texas was heard to remark that while the convention, of course, was the main factor in his trip to Wichita Falls, a desire to actually see Wichita county's far famed highway system provided a great incentive for his journey northward.

Noon Day Lunches

Among the most enjoyable features of the day were the luncheons given at noon by the Wichita Falls, Burkburnett and Electra Rotary clubs for the benefit of the visitors. Each registered Rotarian was assigned to one of the three meetings where, in company with others, he was royally feted and dined. The main dining room of the Kemp was utilized by the Electra club in entertaining several hundred guests. The Burkburnett club held forth as hosts in the basement of the First Baptist church, while the Wichita Falls crowd cared for the gastronomic and other needs of their guests in the basement of the First Christian church.

A dansant at the Wichita Falls Golf and Country club late in the afternoon and a Rotary soiree at the Junior College in the evening stood out as the principal social features The usual round of private dinners, parties and entertainments were also provided in the homes of local Rotarians.

Friday promises to be as busy, if not more so, than was yesterday. With a number of important addresses to be heard and a district governor for the coming year to be selected, the day's schedule must be pushed through on the minute if adjournment is to come promptly at 4 o'clock.

Reports of the registration, resolution and other committees, addresses by Charles Gable, Ernest Thompson and Frank Kell and nominations for district governor are to be heard in the morning. Mr. Gable, a San Antonio Rotarian is to speak on "The Ins and Outs of Rotary," Mr. Thompson of Amarillo will talk on "Rotary Education," and Mr. Kell's remarks will deal with railroad problems of the country.

Balloting on the district governor's race will occupy the time between noon and 2 o'clock when the convention meets for its final session. H. J. Lutcher Stark of Orange, and Marvin Evans of Fort Worth, the former speaking on "The International Convention" and the latter on "Summing Up the Conference" are the only two speakers of the afternoon. General discussions, music, the report of the election committee and an introduction of the district governor nominee who will be eleted at the International convention will conclude the final minutes previous to adjournment.

of Houston proved very popular with the audience, singing "Thanks Be to God," in a rich tenor voice, and was called back twice by the assembly favoring them with "In the County of Down," and "Boy of Mine."

Ivan Murchison, who has proved himself popular with the home people of Wichita Falls delighted the Rotarians by singing two numbers, "Farewell to the King's Highway," and "Gypsy Life."

That Wichita Falls has something new in medical science was shown by Dr. Q. B. Lee when he demonstrated a color reaction on several visiting Rotarians which revealed amusing evidence that they had had something to do concerning the Volstead act.

The Shrine quartette, the Maskat Shrine Chanters, composed of R. Vaughn Ray, Ivan Murchison, Paul Von Allman and Grover Bullington, in their usual good form were delightful entertainers as shown by the manner with which their singing was received by the audience. Following their first number, "Sweet Roses of Morn," they returned at the applause of the Rotarians to sing "I've Got Shoes," and a delightful parody on "Rigoletto." A sing-song was led by Gabe Gazell of Bryan, when "Ham and Eggs" was a favorite. R. E. Shepherd led a second sing-song, featuring the "Old Gray Mare."

Announcement was made by Mr. Cline that the registration committee of the Rotary conference would meet at headquarters at 8 o'clock Friday morning.

The evening closed with a ball at the Kemp, music by the Southern Trumpeters.

Mothers AND THEIR CHILDREN

One Mother Says:

As I am without a servant, I often save myself steps, like many other mothers, by serving the children's meals in the kitchen, but I am never too tired or busy to serve them nicely. The table has always a cloth or doilies on it and flowers or a green plant in the center. If I do not put the vegetables, meat, etc., in serving dishes, I serve the plates at the stove, instead of bringing the cooking utensil to the table. Keeping up my own standards, I am better able to keep up the children's standards of behavior.

Don't Judge Pictures By The Frames Around Them

Most people are so heartless and possess so little of the quality of human kindness that all they see in anyone is what is on the outside. Naturally those who are handicapped in presenting a pleasing appearance by pimples, blotches, breaking out," eczema, etc., on their skin are not going to get any attention. That is the reasons you find such folks so backward and shirking from the "cold shoulder" they have come to expect.

You can "make the frame as lovely as the picture really is" by simply getting rid of those skin disfigurers, if you will just use the wonderful Black and White Ointment. Then your good nature and sweet ways will stand out without any drawback, and folks will want to be around you. It is economically priced, in liberal packages. The 50c size contains three times as much as the 25c size. All dealers have it.—Adv.

Frank H. Lamb Makes Year's Rotary Report

Frank H. Lamb
HOQUIAM, WASHINGTON

Frank H. Lamb, third vice president of Rotary International, addressed the district conference Thursday afternoon on "Rotary's Organization and Activities," giving a splendid report on the workings of the international organization in a concise and entertaining manner, which sent many Rotarians away from the afternoon session with a clear idea of the great machine that operates International Rotary, and a wholesome respect for the smoothly running and powerful organization in which he was a small but important factor.

Rotary International is the central legislative, administrative and educational organization of the sixteen hundred Rotary clubs throughout the world," stated Mr. Lamb. "My object today is to give you as briefly and concisely as possible just such a report of its activities and affairs as you would expect from the management of a business in which you were a stockholder or owner.

Some of the facts presented may appear dry and uninteresting but the great need in Rotary today is a better understanding of the form of government, the finances, activities, aims and purposes of International and its board of directors.

Form of Government.

The constitution says that Rotary International as an organization shall "encourage, promote, extend, supervise, coordinate and generally direct the activities of Rotary."

There are, therefore, four distinct functions: Legislation, administration, education and extension.

Starting with the individual members grouped into clubs, each club is represented by delegates in the sole legislative body—the International Convention.

The basis of representation is one delegate for each fifty or fraction thereof of the club membership. Clubs failing to be represented at two successive conventions automatically forfeit their membership in Rotary International.

The international board, its appointees and employees are the administrative officers of Rotary International. Their duties are to see that the constitution and by-laws are observed by the clubs and to carry into effect these measures and the resolutions of the conventions.

The board through its employes conducts the business of the organization and for that purpose maintains in the United States at Chicago, the general headquarters in direct charge of the international secretary.

The president and international board is charged with "fostering and encouraging" the application of Rotary. To effect this purpose the education and business methods committees are provided in the by-laws and the boys' work committee by convention resolution. These committees report to the board and in the past two years have been delegated to carry into effect certain portions of their program as adopted by the board.

Like every organization of the sort, Rotary has been anxious to extend as fast as practical throughout the world. This work is carried on by the secretary's office, working under the direction of the board which in turn is advised by a standing committee on extension.

This committee has devoted its entire effort to extension in countries outside of the United States, Canada and Newfoundland.

Other constitutional agencies for the promotion of fellowship and for educational and inspirational purposes are the district conference made up of the delegates and members of clubs within certain areas designated by the board or a "district," and the international council which is made up of the board of directors, the standing committees and the governors and meets as soon as possible following the convention.

From the above brief outline the simplicity and directness of Rotary's organization should be evident. Between the member clubs and the international convention there is no intermediary body. The convention is the expression of every club that is represented and which participates.

Any proposal to increase the machinery of Rotary should be guarded against. The history of older organizations indicate that the tendency is towards a multiplication of governing and administrative bodies until the efforts of the organization is finally absorbed in simply running the machinery. The aim and purpose of Rotary is the application of its ideals to the life of every Rotarian. The simpler the method of accomplishing this, the more surely will we come nearer to accomplishing our objects.

The International Board.

The board is made up of nine members, the president, three vice-presidents and four directors, five of the members from the United States, one from Canada one from England and this year, one from New Zealand.

These men come together, some direct from the clubs, others after a year's service as governor, and no one of the present board with any recent previous experience in board affairs. They naturally have much the same ideas and viewpoints as you would have. They are naturally thinking men else they would hardly have been elected. To say that such a board is the "lengthened shadow" of some previous board or is under the dictation of someone is a poor commentary on the convention's selection and so far from the facts as to be ridiculous to one who knows the board.

Legislative Questions.

In legislative matters the board has no other object than enforcing and interpreting powers. No matter how carefully a by-law or resolution may be drawn, varying conditions call for many opinions as to application. Beyond this your board has endeavored never to go.

Scope and Activities of Standing Committees.

The attention of the board has been directed to the fact that there is a conflict between the scope of the education and business methods committees and further that there is no international direction of the Rotarian in civic service—his duty to nation, city and state and further that no attempt outside of the limited field of boys work is made to emphasize the obligation of the Rotarian in a universal social service. It is possible that your board may propose an amendment to effect a more harmonious and comprehensive arrangement of committees so that the third object, "the application of service to the personal, business and community life," of the Rotarian may be fully provided for.

Convention Financing.

The St. Louis convention adopted the per capita plan for financing the international conventions. The past two conventions have been conducted at a considerable loss to Rotary International and at a heavy expense to the host club. It is the intent of the present board to keep the administrative costs, that is everything outside of the expenses necessary for the personal comfort and entertainment of those present, which will be paid by the registration fees, within the 50c per capita tax voted at St. Louis. This will give us $4,026.55 and $4,189.56 less than was expended at St. Louis and Los Angeles respectively for administrative purposes.

Classification.

The classification committee of last year prepared the standard "outline" of which nearly 1,200 copies have been purchased by the clubs up to this time. The work of the committee this year has consisted in (a) promoting the purchase and use of the outline by the clubs; (b) additions and corrections to the outline as presented; (c) interpretation and application of the outline to actual club conditions.

We believe there is a better understanding of the real meaning and value of classification in club building than ever before.

The Rotarian.

"The Rotarian" is the official magazine of Rotary and is edited, printed and distributed through the secretary's office. There is much difference of opinion as to its makeup. One group would have it simply an official bulletin devoted entirely to Rotary news and propaganda, another group would make it a general interest magazine and subordinate Rotary. The editorial policy of the past has been to give as much Rotary news and other material as possible while at the same time use sufficient "reader interest" material to secure and hold the attention of the members.

From comments of members and from advertisers it appears that the magazine is constantly improving in interest and appearance. Its value, however, depends on the use made of it and I, therefore, urge every Rotarian to read it regularly. You will be amply repaid. If it does not suit you, make your wishes known. It is your magazine.

Much of the labors of the board is in connection with the extension of Rotary. This will be treated in full under "Extension World Wide."

Finances.

If I don't do anything else I want you to know where your money comes from and to whom and for what it goes. I am presenting this information in the form of a chart or graph. Study it carefully and if there are any points you do not understand ask me.

A committee of four members of the board is assigned to study the budget presented by the secretary's office and to report on financial matters generally.

The detailed figures presented will show that by far the larger part of our expenses go for the maintenance of the secretary's or headquarters office. The board has no hesitancy in stating that the work of this office is being carried on in an efficient manner. There might properly be some question as to whether too little or too much work is being done.

The question having arisen allow me to state that the salary paid your secretary is $12,000 per annum and there are no further commissions or perquisites.

The Business Program.

Resolution No. 1 adopted at St. Louis instructed the board to plan its year's program so that the business methods program including the adoption of ethical codes of practices in business and the betterment of relations between employer and employee should be made the basic element. The resolution further directed that the education committee should plan its program so as to enlist the interest of Rotarians in all phases of the business program and that the boys' work committee should outline a program that would emphasize the development of the boys into representative Rotary-principled citizens.

The policy of your board in educational matters has been—

(a) The creation of a comprehensive, logical business program stressing the opportunities, duties and obligations of the individual Rotarian.

(b) The continuation of the work of previous years in furthering the adoption of standards of correct practice or codes by associations of particular businesses.

(c) Emphasis on the possibilities of the business program and abundant material for its preparation rather than detailed programs which might be put on by the clubs in a parrotlike fashion.

(d) Definite statement that all program material was offered solely as suggestions rather than as a "prescribed" work.

Elements of a Complete Educational Campaign.

The educational program in support of any philosophy affecting the lives of people must follow through four successive steps:

(1) The statement of the general principle—This Rotary has in its objects and its basal principle—the Golden Rule.

(2) The translation of the general principle in terms of the current thought and understanding of the day. For this Rotary has its code of ethics applicable to all businesses and is continuously promoting the adoption of special vocational and business codes for all classifications.

(3) Awakening a desire in the member to practice in his business and community life the general principle as amplified by the codes and rules of practice. In this work lies the great opportunity of the international committees. The work begun, planned and carried on by them must be taken up by the club executives and committee to bear fruition.

(4) Demonstrations of the possibility and advantages of living according to the principle and the codes. This is the laboratory end of the program and is, in many ways, the most effective way of securing results. International committees, through The Rotarian and by other means, can assist some, but most of this work must be done in the clubs.

The Code Campaign.

The campaign for the adoption of codes by business organizations has steadily progressed.

During the year 1922-3 seventeen associations were recorded as adopting such codes or standards of practice. In the current year to date we have advices of adoption by twenty-one organizations, most of which fully carry out Rotary's aims and purposes in such rules of action.

In this work many Rotarians feel that there is little room for individual action. As a matter of fact the entire program is almost entirely one that the individual member must carry through.

About a year ago I made a careful survey of every member of my own club with reference to his participation in two branches of activity, first in the business organizations of his craft and, second, in all lines of community endeavor outside of elective office. My conclusion was that in the past four years at least 75 per cent of all the above two activities in the city had been carried on by members of the club, a body of men numbering only one out of about three hundred of the population. I commend such a survey to every club—it accomplishes two purposes. First, it shows what Rotarians are doing and, second, the filling out of the questionaire upon which the survey is based is a gentle reminder of the fellow that is not doing his share of such work.

Extension World Wide.

When Rotary was first started the infant organization was possessed by the same evangelizing proselyting fervor that is common to every great movement based on some great ideal.

Following Christ's crucifixion the apostles were anxious to carry the new religion to the uttermost ends of the world so the Rotary of 1923 and on was seeking to extend Rotary to the other nations. Rotary was only five years old when it crossed the line into Canada. In seven years it had gone to the British Isles and in eleven years it entered Cuba. Today the pioneer clubs in these countries have spread over the nations, 67 in Canada 159 in Great Britain and Ireland and 11 in Cuba. Owing to similarity in language and customs and in the case of Cuba to business and political reasons the extension of Rotary to these countries was natural and comparatively easy.

From 1918 to 1921 Rotary was extended to 11 nations, principally through the formation of single clubs in each country composed in part of Americans or Englishmen engaged in business in those countries.

In 1921 through the efforts of Ralston and Davidson, Rotary was started in Australia and New Zealand under somewhat different conditions. It was the aim of this extension to make Rotary a part of the national life of the country and to make sufficient initial extension so that these clubs could carry on the work and make that nation self-extending.

Extension Policy of the Board.

Your board has been guided by four general principles in its extension policy for the year.

1—Extension in countries in which Rotary is not now represented shall be, through clubs, made up of a preponderance of the nationals of that country.

A Rotary club made up of Americans or Britishers in one of the great cities of China is no more extension in China, nor can affect the national life of China any more than could a club of Chinese in San Francisco's Chinatown, be held as extension in America.

2—Extension work in new countries shall be conducted only by trained and accredited commissioners thoroughly versed in Rotary and fully capable of securing the affiliation of the best men of that country.

3—Extension shall only be carried on in those countries which in the opinion of the board are best able to understand and appreciate Rotary and only after approval of such country for extension by the board.

4—The extension work in any one country shall be consistently and continuously carried on under the above principles until that nation has sufficient clubs so as to be a self-extending unit in Rotary.

Special Commission for Extension 1923-24.

The 1922-23 board of directors entered into a contract October 16, 1922, with Fred Warren Teele, formerly active in the commercial and Rotary life of Mexico, at a salary of $500 per month and traveling expenses for himself and Mrs. Teele, who acts as his assistant, to make extension, first in Mexico, then after February, 1923, on the continent of Europe.

A somewhat similar arrangement involving only actual expenses has also been made with Chas. W. Smith of Birmingham, England, a vice president of R I B I for extension work in the Union of South Africa. Commissions involving only incidental expenses have been issued to Sir Henry W. Bradden for New South Wales and to Prof. W. A. Osborne for other parts of Australia, to George Fowlds for New Zealand and to the original South American Rotary Herbert P. Contes for South America.

Cost of Extension Work.

The total cost of our extension work is $53,456.71 for this year, of which $13,080.00 is for U S C & N F, and $20,376.71 for nations outside of U S C & N F. This total cost is approximately $0.23 per capita on each Rotarian or is about the expected profit from the publication of the Rotarian.

Results.

It is expected that by the time of the convention the countries of France, Holland, Denmark and Belgium will each have from four to six clubs or will have reached a point where future extension can be left to the clubs of those countries.

In addition to work in the above countries active extension is going on in Norway, Spain, Italy and Switzerland. It is our belief that in another 12 months the major possibilities in the Rotary material among the nations of Europe can be covered in accordance with the principles of extension as adopted by the present board and we would urge a continuance of this program.

Extension Guarantees Permanency of Rotary.

In its final analysis the permanency of Rotary is guaranteed by our extension to other nations. We can easily visualize a movement of a temporal nature which might appealingly enlist the men of one nation or of nations with similar institutions and customs, but when Rotary can stand the test of world wide adoption, when it can be accepted by 25 nations, by business men from Christiania to Christchurch, from Prince Rupert to Johannsburg, when it can appeal to the imagination of the Anglo-Saxon and the Latin, the Occidental and the Oriental, we need never fear that it is a mere ephemeral movement, that its principles are founded on sand or its subjects the winds of fancy.

This, Rotarians, is my accounting of our stewardship. "Our Stewardship" because the opinion of the board is necessarily a compromise or composite one, yet it is pleasant to record that during the year there has only been two or three divided votes and these on relatively minor matters.

Appreciation.

For the results accomplished, whatever they may be, the board and Rotary at large is under lasting obligation to many. The splendid district governors, the standing committees, the club executives and committees, the secretary and his faithful assistants have made up the year's record.

"Rotary is not the International organization, neither is it the member clubs. It is you! and you!! and you!!! The future of Rotary is in the hands of its members. International boards and club executives can only direct the stream into the main channels. The current will be fast or slow, deep or shallow, placid or fitful, just as we live and practice our philosophy."

("The Future of Rotary.")

NEW UPTURNS CORN PRICES

Wheat Market Is Also Sympathetic With Results

By The Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 3.—New upturns in the price of corn, together with active buying here resulted today from persistent dearth of receipts, but slowness of shipping demand east served to temper the enthusiasm of holders. Corn closed unsettled, ¼c to ⅝c net higher, May 78⅛c, with wheat easy, a shade to ⅝c down, May 1.02⅛ to 1.02¼ and July 1.03⅝, oats varying from ¼ to ⅝ cents decline to ⅛ to ¾ cent advance, and provisions at 2 cents off to 7@10 cents gain.

Selling of wheat against purchases of corn was a good deal responsible for the comparative weakness of the wheat market. The fact, however, that mills were buying more wheat here than for some time past helped to sustain values and even to bring about an advance at times.

Outs were eased a trifle by reports that Illinois seeding would become general if weather continued good a few days.

Little desire to sell provisions was apparent, despite ower quotations on hogs.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

By The Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, April 3.—Cotton developed a strong bullish tone today and the trend was upward during the greater part of the session with active trading. The opening trades, showing gains of 17 to 22 points over the previous close, proved the low points of the day with May at 29.20, July at 27.94 and October at 24.00. Prices rose rapidly during the morning and just before noon May traded as high as 29.94, or 94 points above the previous close. July rose to 28.63, or 86 points net higher, and October reached 24.47 or 64 points up. Prices eased off considerably during the afternoon but rallied again and the close showed net gains for the day of 57 to 62 points on old crop months, and 27 to 42 points on new crop positions.

The market started off with Liverpool very much better than due. There was also reports of a strong local spot market, it being rumored that middling was selling here at 30 cents. Although there were efforts made by shorts to bring about a reaction during the afternoon and prices eased off about 30 points or more, they repeatedly encountered too much buying power and prices again rallied moderately in the late trading so that the close showed a net gain of something over three dollars and a half a bale on the May position. The undertone at the close was bullish.

HOUSE REPORT IS RESPONSIBLE

Southern Pacific Individual Feature Of Trades

Market Features

Total stock sales 864,500 shares.
20 industrials averaged 94.01; net loss .21.
High, 1924, 100.24; low 93.08.
20 railroads averaged 85.72, net gain .81.
High 1924, 85.90; low 82.74.

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Apr. 3.—Strength and activity of the railroad shares particularly those of the larges western systems, was the outstanding development in today's irregular market. The advance in the industrials, which started three days ago, was halted around noon when selling broke out in General Electric and some of the standard shares in that group.

Buying of the rails was influenced by two important considerations—the unusually good February earnings statements, and the statement by Interstate Commerce Commissioner Esch before the house rail committee that the proposed plan for a revision of rates might prove disastrous to business and that in his opinion rates should not be altered to meet price fluctuations.

Southern Pacific was the individual feature, being pushed up 4 1-4 points to 93 1-4 on total transactions of more than 75 shares.

Diversion of speculative interest in to the railroad group encouraged profit-taking in a number of industrials. General Electric dropped more than five points from its opening price to 217 and then rallied to 219 1-2. United States Steel moved within a range of one point, closed 3-8 lower at 99 1-8. A sudden burst of buying in Studebaker just before the close sent that stock up more than one point to 95. Baldwin closed a point lower at 117 1-4 and American Can was off 3-4 at 105 1-4.

Call money opened at 4 1-4 per cent and then dropped to four. Business in the time money market was of a restricted nature with a few short term loans reported at 4 1-4 per cent but with 4 1-2 the ruling rate for loans up to 90 days and the longer maturities commanding 4 3-4.

Foreign exchange developed a reactionary trend on heavy profit taking in the French and Belgian currencies. Demand sterling was slightly lower at 3.4.80, while the French francs ruled around 5 3-4 cents. Selling of the French francs may have been influenced by an increase of 300,000,000 francs in the French government's borrowings at the Bank of France.

Thieves Get Clothes In Night Haul

Thieves who entered a residence at 1005 Bluff street some time Wednesday night made an effective sweep of the wardrobe of Leland D. Price and W. F. Boling, both of whom were asleep in a bedroom of the place. Clothing, jewelry and cash to the value of $282 was missing after the burglars left.

The victims reported to the police Thursday morning that shirts, a new suit of clothes, two watches and a suit case, among other things, had been taken.

Officers were unable to find any clue as to the identity of the thieves.

VALLEY SEEKS TO BAR PAVING

Railroad Files Petition Asking for Injunction On Scott Street

A petition seeking to enjoin the city of Wichita Falls from its contemplated action in paving Scott avenue near Fifteenth street was filed Thursday in the 78th district court by the Wichita Valley railway company. Allegations that the paving proposed by the city would not enhance the value of railway property and that the paving assessment of $5,015.16 levied against the property was unlawful were made in the petition.

The pleadings went into some length concerning the laws governing paving assessments and sought to show that the city was in error in making its assessments. The complete route of the improvement to be made was also attacked.

Considerable difficulty has been experienced in getting the paving ordinance through the city council. The railroad company opposed the project from the first and was joined in its fight by a few property owners to be affected in that territory. It was the belief of the council, however, that sufficient demand had been made to warrant the installation of the paving.

FORT WORTH CATTLE.

By The Associated Press.

FORT WORTH, Texas, April 3.—Salesmen recovered for shippers today some of the decline that the cattle market had recorded during the week through Wdnesday's close. Grass steers were generally 15 cents higher for the day, and at least 25 cents better than on Monday. Fat cows gained 10 to 15 cents. Heifers, yearlings and bulls remained steady, and on calves there was no quotable change. Receipts were estimated at 2,200 head of cattle and 300 calves.

Some southern steers sold at 9.15 and the yearling top was 9.25.

The hog market averaged about steady. Packers again paid 7.00 for car lots and most of the run went at a spread of 7.35 to 7.50. Receipts were close to 1,000 head.

Pigs were active and steady, the top being 6.00 with bulk sales around 5.50 to 5.75.

Feeder lambs made up the bulk of the receipts in the sheep division. The trade was generally steady on all kinds. Receipts were limited to 1,200 head.

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 3.—Strength on the near month situation featured the cotton market again today. May contracts sold up to 29.88 on continued covering, making an advance of 90 points from yesterday's closing quotation and a recovery of 434 points from the low level of last week. The advance was then checked by realizing which caused reaction in the late trading, but the market closed steady at 29.55 for May with the general list showing net gains of 20 to 60 points.

The opening was firm at an advance of 20 to 26 points in response to higher Liverpool cables, reports of increasing activity in the British goods trade and bullish overnight spot advices from the south. There was selling of new crop months on the favorable showing of the early weather map, but the strength of the old crop positions led to buying of both October and December, and the general market showed net advances of 28 to 90 points during the early afternoon. Demand then tapered off and closing prices were about 25 to 30 points off from the best. It was reported that additional sales of 5,000 bales had been made for shipment out of the local stock.

Exports today were 2,878, making 4,710,869 so far this season. Port receipts 4,743. United States port stocks 595,466.

Investigation Failed.

From the Washington Star.

Jud Tunkins says as far as he is concerned the investigation is a failure, not having once mentioned the party that sold him the bogus oil stocks.

You are hereby commanded to summon H. J. Bryant by making publication of this citation once each week for four successive weeks previous to the return day hereof, in some newspaper published in your county, to appear at the next regular term of the 89th district court of Wichita county, to be holden at the Court House thereof in Wichita Falls, on the first Monday in April, A. D., 1924, the same being the 7th day of April, A. D., 1924. Then and there to answer a petition filed in said court on the 13th day of March, A. D., 1924, in a suit, numbered on the docket of said court No. 15472C wherein, Alice Bryant is plaintiff and H. J. Bryant is defendant, said petition alleging, as follows:

First: Plaintiff and defendant were lawfully married on the 1st day of June, 1921, and lived together until about the 1st day of July, 1921, when plaintiff separated from defendant, and has not since said time lived with defendant as his wife. That plaintiff was the owner of a little property and the defendant married her expecting plaintiff to support him and that the defendant refused and would not contribute a cent toward the support of plaintiff and plaintiff separated from him on the day and date above set forth.

A NEW DISCOVERY
Overcomes the biggest difficulties in chick raising.
The medical profession prescribe cod liver oil to cure and prevent rickets which in chicks is leg weakness. The poultry husbandry departments of some of the agricultural colleges including Wisconsin and Illinois have demonstrated that the use of cod liver oil is a preventative of leg weakness in chicks. By including it in Ful-O-Pep Chick Starter by a process which keeps the feed sweet, dry and granular we are placing a complete feed at the service of every poultryman. Leg weakness which so frequently causes disaster to early hatched chicks is practically eliminated where Ful-O-Pep Chick Strater is fed and the birds are properly housed and cared for. Ful-O-Pep Chick Starter solves the greatest problem which the poultryman has. It will grow his chicks more rapidly, with greater safety and economy, bringing out the best that is in them.
