Q—What is the breakdown on the local sales tax of 8¼ percent?

A—The state receives 6¼, the county ½ and the city 1¾ for a total of 8¼. The ¾ of the city's 1¾ is designated for economic development and part of the ½-cent tax approved by city residents last January. The other ¼-cent of the ½ approved in January goes into effect Oct. 1, when taxes will be 8¼ percent. At that time, the state will receive 6¼, the county ½ and the city 1½.

Murder trial begins Monday

Jury selection begins Monday morning in 132nd District Court in the capital murder trial of 32-year-old Christopher Maurice Thompson, charged in the New Year's Day beating death of Arnulfo Ronnie Hernandez.

One hundred people have been called as potential jurors. Jury selection was originally scheduled for Aug. 17, but was postponed for two weeks.

Thompson is accused of participating in the Jan. 1, 1991 assault and robbery of Hernandez, who died the following day in Saint Mary of the Plains Hospital in Lubbock.

Hernandez was found lying near the intersection of 35th Street and Avenue J at 10:04 p.m. on New Year's Day. He was taken to Cogdell Memorial Hospital by Snyder EMS and later transported to Lubbock.

Also charged in the case were 33-year-old Melvin Riggins and 33-year-old Bruce Wayne Nelson.

Riggins was found guilty of aggravated assault in July of 1991 and sentenced to life in prison. Nelson pled guilty on June 19 while a jury was being seated in his case. He was sentenced to one life term for aggravated robbery and a second life term in the beating and robbery of Paul Garcia, which also occurred Jan. 1, 1991.

District Judge Gene Dulaney will preside. Prosecuting the case will be District Attorney Ernie Armstrong. Thompson will be represented by local attorney Mike Brown.

For Henderson...

Bail reduction request denied

A motion to reduce bond for capital murder suspect Nina Jonell Henderson was denied in a 132nd District Court hearing Friday.

Her bond will remain at $50,000.

Henderson, 29, and 44-year-old Arthur Lee Harding are suspects in the November 1991 murder of former Fast Oil Change owner Paul Milford. The Snyder businessman was reported missing on Nov. 4, 1991. His billfold was discovered in Abilene on Nov. 11 and his 1982 GMC Suburban was found abandoned in a parking lot there three days later.

On March 29, his body was discovered in a cistern near Fluvanna. An autopsy revealed he had been shot twice in the chest with a small-caliber firearm.

Henderson and Harding, who was an employee of Milford's, left Snyder on Nov. 4 and had been sought by police until their apprehension in Louisiana on July 15.

Bond was set at $100,000 for each pending indictment by a county grand jury. They were indicted Aug. 3 and bond set at $50,000 for Henderson and $150,000 for Harding.

Friday, attorney Jim Bob Darnell of Lubbock requested that Henderson's bond be reduced to $10,000 because she has family in Snyder. That request was denied by District Judge Gene Dulaney.

No trial date has been set for either of the suspects.

Local attorney Mike Brown has been appointed to represent Harding.

Cookoff, singer to highlight combined Buffalo Days, fair

A concert by country singer Dan Seals, a chili cookoff and the annual domino tournament will highlight Scurry County's first annual combined Fair and White Buffalo Days celebration.

The event, to be held at Scurry County Coliseum, is scheduled to begin at noon on Thursday, Sept. 17 and wrap up on Saturday with the concert beginning at 8 p.m.

Entries for this year's chili cookoff, which will be judged during Saturday's events at 2 p.m., will be accepted until 10 a.m. the day of the contest.

An entry fee of $15 will be charged for the cookoff, which will feature awards for showmanship and white buffalo trophies for award winners.

The cookoff will be held in accordance with official Chili Appreciation Society, International (CASI) rules.

A chili auction will be held at 4:30 p.m., with proceeds going to benefit the American Cancer Society.

The annual domino tournament will begin at 6 p.m. Thursday in room A of the coliseum, with the finals slated for Saturday at 9 a.m.

Booth construction for exhibits begins at 8 a.m. Tuesday, Sept. 15. Entries for art exhibits ranging from painting to photography will be accepted from 2 p.m. until 7 p.m. Divisions for this year's art show are pre-school to 6 years old, grades 1 to 3, grades 4 to 6, junior high, high school, amateur adult and professional adult. Doors will close at 8 p.m. on Tuesday.

Preparations for the opening of the fair will continue Wednesday as commercial exhibit construction begins at 8 a.m. in the coliseum. Entries for textiles, handicrafts, agricultural products, educational and community exhibits and canned goods, as well as open beef, dairy and sheep show entries will be accepted from 1 p.m. until 8 p.m.

Entries for container grown plants will be accepted from 1 p.m. until 6 p.m., with construction to continue until the doors close at 10 p.m.

Prior to the celebration's official opening at noon Thursday, entries will be accepted for agriculture, educational and community exhibits and the flower and livestock shows beginning at 8 a.m.

Judging of entries will be held from 9 a.m. until noon, when the doors open to the public.

Thursday afternoon's activities will include the opening of the flower show at 3:30 p.m. Entries for the Jr. livestock show will be accepted beginning at 2 p.m.

Thursday evening will feature a variety of activities including a boot scramble at 5 p.m., karate demonstration and stickhorse rodeo, both beginning at 6 p.m., fly or fry contest at 7:30 p.m., and entertain-

County museum plans Family Night Monday

Scurry County Museum is hosting a Family Night to encourage families to see the Chinese children's paintings being exhibited.

Family Night will be held from 6:30 until 8:30 p.m. Monday. Refreshments of tea and Chinese cookies will be served.

Included in the exhibit are 36 artworks done by children age 3 to 13 in the Chinese People's Republic. Poster paints, crayons, markers and woodcuts are featured. They illustrate many aspects of Chinese culture such as festivals, fairy tales, animals and customs.

Also included are three kites made of silk and balsa wood. The most dramatic is a 30-foot long dragon-headed centipede. It folds down like an accordian and is no bigger than a toaster when ready for shipping.

The exhibit was put together by the Consulate-General of the People's Republic of China in Houston and the Museum of East Texas in Lufkin.

Information accompanying the exhibit points out that the Chinese government has a large program to develop the arts, as well as academics. Children who show special interest or a flair in art, dance, music and other areas and given free specialized instruction after school. Children chose for the programs go to special interest

No negligence found by jury

After two hours of deliberation Friday afternoon, a 132nd district court jury found in favor of the Watchtower Bible and Tract Society of New York in an injury case which took a full week to hear.

According to District Judge Gene Dulaney, no negligence was found on the part of either party in the case, in which the plaintiff, Leonard Grady Storie, was injured while working on the Jehova's Witnesses Kingdom Hall on North College Avenue.

Storie, an air conditioning contractor, fell through the ceiling while helping build an addition onto the building. He sustained a broken heel and back injuries in the fall.

Even though school is underway, Labor Day is one final chance for a mini-vacation. If you go to a certain resort in Vermont — you can't take the kids, only your best friend.

Actually, the resort has gone to the dogs. For $600 a week (dog food extra), you and your hound can enjoy the amenities of Camp Gone to the Dogs, located in Putney, Vt.

There's plenty to do — tail wagging, popcorn eating, bathing suit contests, swimming lessons and classes on tracking scents. Social hounds are invited to a costume party and to a square dance.

Opened since 1990, Camp Gone to the Dogs has been an economic success. It is run by a licensed psychologist and pet-groomer who was motivated to start the camp after having a hard time finding a place to accept both her and her dogs.

You and your dog can enjoy the spa and have one of the telepathists pick up the thoughts of man's best friend. Ads placed in pet magazines attract about 100 people and their pets for a one-week camp, and campers are attended to by a staff of 20.

Dogs aren't locked in a cage at night, but rather are allowed to share the twin bed with their master — just like home.

It's not all fun and games, however. All campers are up by 5:30 and outside by 7 a.m. for a fast-paced day of everything from jogging to obedience instruction.

Campers are expected to be on their best behavior — no barking after lights out, no chasing cats, and no scratching in public.

Dallas policeman suspended in beating

DALLAS (AP) — The police chief has ordered a five-day suspension for an officer accused of beating a man who asked for a ride.

A police department investigation found that Senior Cpl. Alexander Csaszar used unwarranted force. He was accused of beating and shouting racial epithets at Damian Okonkwo last month.

Police Chief Bill Rathburn, saying there was no evidence to support Okonkwo's allegation that he was beaten or kicked, suspended Csaszar without pay.

But Dallas County Commissioner John Wiley Price, who had requested a Justice Department investigation of the police department last month in the wake of Okonkwo's claims, was not satisfied.

"That dog won't hunt," Price said Friday. "You're always skeptical of the system, and I basically have a pessimistic view of the system, but you always hope that you're wrong.

"I'm a little upset that they continue to act as though we're in the Twilight Zone," he said.

Okonkwo said he had approached the officer in a parking lot last month after his ice cream truck broke down.

The chief said Csaszar was suspended for going "beyond what was necessary" when he used a so-called control hold to move Okonkwo.

Identified by authorities as a "mandibular angle hold," it involves a fist being pressed against a person's neck and jaw.

"The officer acknowledged that he attempted to use that," said Rathburn. "I think it was inappropriate for him to use that hold. I sustained, I think, the only thing I could sustain."

An internal investigation into whether Czaszar used the racial slur reached no conclusion.

A hearing for Czaszar on a criminal charge is pending.

The July 2 complaint and a misdemeanor assault charge against Csaszar angered minority leaders in Dallas, who said the officer should face a felony criminal charge.

Rathburn said Friday that he cannot allow himself to be swayed by others' expectations.

"Some people, I'm sure, expected something else out of this," he said. "Some people probably wanted me to fire him. I'm not going to be pushed into doing something that I think is wrong."

Okonkwo, who says he had walked to the store to call a cab, saw two officers pull into the convenience store parking lot on Dallas' west side and asked for a ride at 2:45 a.m.

The officers were in uniform but were off duty and in a private car. Okonkwo claims Csaszar grabbed him by the neck and threw him to the ground, then pushed him behind the store where he beat and kicked him.

Csaszar and his partner, Randy Turner, have not spoken publicly about the incident. Turner, who has been placed on desk duty, faces no charges, and an internal affairs investigation into his conduct continues, officials said.

GED/ESL classes begin Tuesday at local college

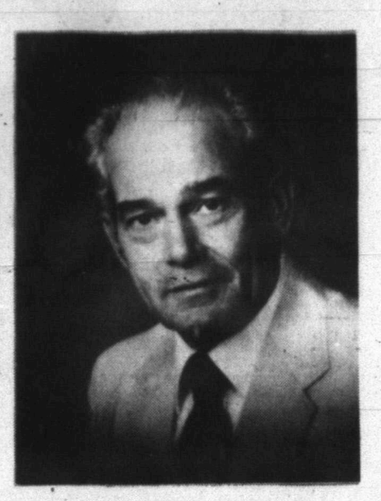

Western Texas College will again be making GED (General Education Development) and ESL (English as Second Language) classes available beginning Tuesday, Sept. 1, under the direction of Geraldine Parker.

GED day classes are scheduled to run Monday through Friday from 8:15 a.m.-12:15 p.m. and Tuesday afternoon from 1-4 p.m. Evening classes for both GED and ESL are scheduled Tuesdays and Thursdays from 6-9 p.m.

Registration for GED and ESL is Tuesday at either 8:15 a.m. for day classes or 6 p.m. for evening classes.

All instruction is individualized and students progress at their own pace. Over the past two years, 119 individuals have received GED certificates.

There is no cost for either the GED or ESL class and further information can be obtained by calling the college at 573-8511, ext. 322 or 390 or by contacting Mrs. Parker at 573-0223.

GLENN W. HARPER

Harper plans to retire from Texaco

Glenn W. Harper, who has completed 26 years of service with Texaco, Inc., has elected to take early retirement from Texaco's Midland Producing Division at Snyder, effective Sept. 1.

Harper is a native of Oklahoma City, Okla. and attended O'Donnel-Texas High School. He joined Texaco at Snyder in 1966 as a roustabout at the Fuller Gas Plant.

Subsequently, he has served as operator and head operator at the plant.

In addition, he has served on many occasions in the capacity of foreman (relief) at the Fuller Plant in the Snyder area. He became head roustabout in 1970.

Mr. and Mrs. Harper will continue to reside in Snyder upon retirement. They have two daughters and one son: Mrs. Jan Rushing of Dennison; Mrs. Cynthia Marrs of Midland; and. Michael Harper of Houston.

Book signing set for Kirkpatrick

Zoe Merriman Kirkpatrick will be autographing copies of her new book, "Wildflowers of the Western Plains, in the Scurry County Museum on Sept. 13.

A reception honoring the author is planned from 1-4 p.m. on that afternoon and the public is invited to attend.

Mrs. Kirkpatrick, who lives with her husband, Jack, on the Kirkpatrick Ranch south of Post, has been studying and photographing western wildflowers for more than 25 years. Her public slide shows have increased people's awareness of the beauty and fragility of the western plains and generated many requests for a field guide to these flowers. She presented a slide show at the Western Texas College Wildflower Day program in 1987.

For more information, call 573-6107. "Wildflowers of the Western Plains" is available in the museum gift shop.

Hotter 'N' Hell event begins

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) — Wichita Falls comes alive Saturday as host of the 11th annual Hotter'N Hell Hundred bicycle ride.

What began with only 1,100 cyclists in 1982 has mushroomed in one of the top recreational cycling events of the year. This weekend, more than 11,000 cyclists will call Wichita Falls home. Some 10,489 are pre-registered for the ride Saturday, and another 400 will compete for racing honors along the same route.

On Sunday, another 400 cyclists have preregistered for the criterium races, a United States Cycling Federation-sanctioned event. A new event this year is the in-line skating race on Sunday.

But Hotter'N Hell, now a Texas summertime ritual, barely even got rolling more than 11 years ago when civic leaders tried to come up with an event to celebrate the town's centennial in 1982.

A Bright Spot in our hometown...

Hugh "Brud" Boren Jr.

Hugh "Brud" Boren Jr. is known as "Mr. History" in Snyder and Scurry County. Boren, a native of Snyder and now 81 years of age, not only has lived the many local changes, he's been responsible for much of it.

Born May 7, 1911 on 30th St. He attended Snyder schools - including West Ward, and the old Central school before it burned in the 1920s.

After the new school was built, Boren played football, tennis, baseball, track and other sports for SHS. He was captain and quarterback of the Tigers' football team, and president of his 1928 graduating class. After graduation, he attended Texas Christian University and the University of New Mexico.

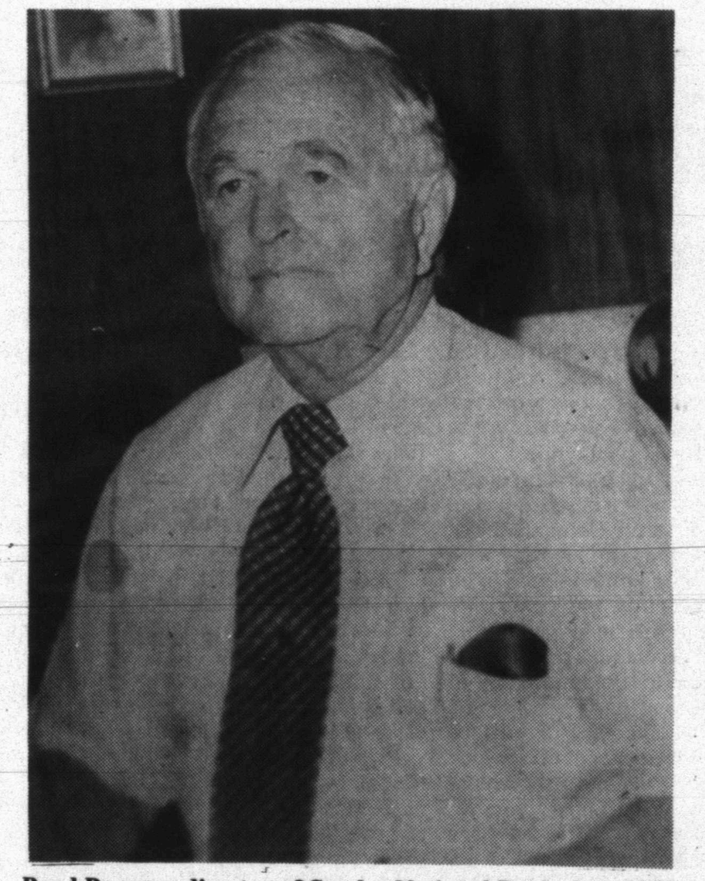

Having finished school during the Depression, Boren found employment difficult. He agreed to a job in his father's insurance agency, then Boren and Grayham Agency. He worked for free, except for meals, for six months and then was given a raise to $20 per month.

He later was offered a job at Snyder National Bank, making $60 per month. These two jobs would follow him for many years as he later became a partner in the Hugh Boren and Son Agency. In 1951, he was named a director of Snyder National Bank and is the bank's oldest director in length of service.

Brud served in the U.S. Air Force during World War II, earning the rank of captain. Over the years, Boren has been a community workhorse, and his efforts with the Scurry County Historical Commission are well-known. He served as president of the local historical society and as a director of the Texas Historical Foundation. He helped publish a history of Scurry County, "From Buffalo...To Oil."

In addition to his 41 years of service as a bank director, he served as president of Snyder Country Club when the new clubhouse was built. He has been a member of the Snyder Lions Club for almost 50 years and is a past-president.

He is an active member of the First Christian Church and has served as chairman of the church's board of elders.

Brud Boren, a director of Snyder National Bank since 1951, is September's recipient of the community service award. Snyder National Bank honors a citizen each month for their contribution to making Snyder and Scurry County a better place to live. We're proud to salute one of our own — Brud Boren.

Reservist to face court martial on charges of sexual assault

FORT BLISS, Texas (AP) — An Army sergeant could face up to 40 years in prison if a court-martial panel determines he sexually assaulted a woman in his unit during the Gulf War.

Army officials on Friday said Sgt. 1st Class David J. Martinez of Albuquerque will face the highest form of court-martial on six charges.

Martinez, in his early 40s, was formally charged with four counts of making false officials statements, one count of forcible sodomy and one count of indecent assault, Fort Bliss spokesman Tony Cucinello said.

Martinez will face a general court-martial on a date yet to be set. The charges carry up to 40 years imprisonment.

Reserve Spec. Jacqueline Ortiz of Sapello, N.M., accused Martinez of sexually assaulting her Jan. 19, 1991, while the two were stationed with Delta Company of the 52nd Engineering Battalion in Saudi Arabia. She said he summoned her to his tent and forced her to perform oral sex.

Martinez has denied the charges. He says a statement he signed admitting to the sexual assault was coerced.

Cucinello could not say whether Martinez's statement would become part of the court-martial proceeding.

Martinez's attorney, Richard Utman, on Friday declined to comment on the case.

"I've promised the Army to abide by their regulations, even though I'm not in the Army, to not comment on any particulars of the case," Utman said.

However, he did say Martinez's spirits were high because he has a great deal of support from his family and friends.

"He's doing well, from all measures that I can see. He is very happy doing his job in the Army. He isn't just hanging out there waiting to be court-martialed," Utman said.

He said Martinez's co-workers have treated him professionally.

"There hasn't been any backfighting or shunning of him. He's a contributing member of the Army," he said.

Ms. Ortiz said she was unable to discuss the case and referred questions to her attorney.

"We are looking for a very, very quick trial — a trial very soon," said Henry Mark Holzer, Ms. Ortiz's attorney and a Brooklyn Law School professor. "We do not want this delayed. It's dragged on so long. She was assaulted Jan. 19, 1991, and we're going on two years and she's had to live with this nightmare. She's thrown up every morning since Jan. 19, 1991. The enamel's worn off her teeth because of the vomiting."

Ms. Ortiz, 28, was among a group of women who testified this summer before a U.S. Senate panel about alleged sexual attacks. Ms. Ortiz said in the hearing that she immediately reported the attack but officers ignored her complaint.

Ms. Ortiz also has said the Veterans Administration was unresponsive. She remains in the reserves but is seeking a medical discharge, her attorney said.

The Army initially concluded the sexual acts were consentual and reprimanded both soldiers. But it reopened the case earlier this year at the urging of Rep. Bill Richardson, D-N.M.

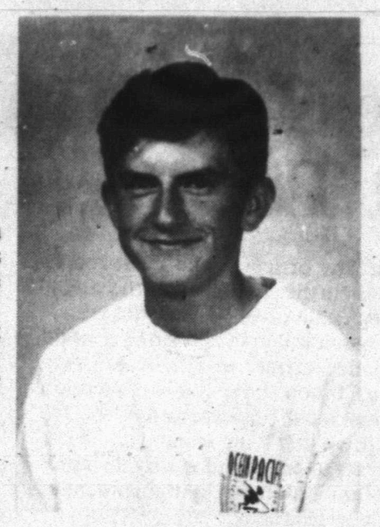

Martinez should be arraigned within 30 days. He will not be incarcerated or forced to post bail while awaiting the court-martial.

Martinez's case will be heard by a six-person panel of his peers at Fort Bliss, Cucinello said.

Besides imprisonment, Martinez faces forfeiture of pay and allowances, a reduction in rank and a dishonorable discharge if convicted.

Martinez was charged by the Army July 2 and has been on active duty at Fort Bliss since July 13. A formal hearing took place Aug. 18 at Fort Bliss.

Fort Bliss, on the New Mexico state line just north of El Paso, has jurisdiction over the case because it is the closest Army post to the accused and the alleged victim.

JASON M. KELTON

Kelton completes military camp

HARLINGEN — Jason M. Kelton has recently completed a four-week summer camp, heavily structured around military history, leadership development and patriotism, at Marine Artillery Academy.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Shane Kelton of May, former Snyder residents.

While attending the camp, he participated in a variety of activities including marksmanship, swimming, boxing, soccer and physical fitness training. The camp is supervised by retired Marine Corps drill instructors and senior ranking cadets, who attend MMA during the academic school year.

MMA is a private, military college preparatory boarding school for young men in grades 8-12, plus post graduate work. The academy, located in the Rio Grande Valley, is the only school in the world which offers military leadership training based on the proven traditions and customs of the U.S. Marine Corps. It is dedicated to the mission of producing self-disciplined scholars who are mentally alert, physically fit and responsible citizens.

Physician's license temporarily suspended

DALLAS (AP) — A Terrell physician's license on Friday was temporarily suspended after some of his patients contended they were sexually abused.

The Texas Board of Medical Examiners' executive committee voted to take the action in Austin against Dr. Morton Arthur Miron, according to Dallas television station KDFW.

The station reported earlier this month that nine of Miron's patients accused him of sexual abuse.

Miron did not immediately return a telephone call from The Associated Press Friday night.

During the hearing, the medical board's attorney presented information from seven more patients who said they were willing to testify against him.

Board members also viewed a videotape taken by one of Miron's patients. The physician and his attorney also watched the tape.

"It does not take a great deal of insight to view the tape and find there is something seriously wrong," said Tim Weitz, the board's attorney.

Miron told the board he was only treating the unidentified patient for a medication mismatch.

"His complaints by the nurse and by the patient to me warranted a very thorough physical for which I could not find any complaint of a physical nature, except for a little dehydration," he said.

The unidentified adult male patient had returned to Miron's office with a concealed camera provided by KDFW-TV to document possible abuse.

The man said he had gone to the office to straighten out confusion over medication for treating a shoulder injury. During the examination, the tape showed the doctor, with his face close to the man's genital area, pulling down the patient's pants.

Later, the patient said that he had been sexually abused by the doctor.

Local Lions honor 'Brud' Boren, Jr.

The honors include a plaque commemorating 55 years of service to the local club and Scurry County; a plaque thanking Boren for his support of the Texas Lions Crippled Children's camp; and a bronze plaque honoring Boren as "Lion of the Year."

"Brud Boren is all you could ask for in a civic club member," Stan Paregien, club president, said. "He not only attended every meeting he could, he pitched in on every project and encouraged others to do the same. He's also been our songleader for quite some time, and we're eager to get him back into the saddle again. We're thrilled to be able to honor this man who has made so many positive contributions to our club and to making Scurry County a great place to live."

Illegal dump sites plague Abilene officials

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — Abilene's environmental control officer is down in the dumps.

Tom Neatherlin says he has found 34 illegal dump sites across the city, and there is little he can do correct the problem.

Despite the fact that Chapter 19 of Abilene's City Code declares dumping punishable with fines up to $2,000, Neatherlin says he can't enforce the code because the city has adopted a "low-key plan of action."

"No vacant lot is safe in this town," Neatherlin said. "People just decide they want to get rid of something and they literally ditch it."

Abilene City Manager Jim Blagg says he has preferred to "work with folks" to solve the problem, rather than reprimand them.

Blagg is concerned many of the landowners are victims of other peoples' trashing. The fact that owners may be held accountable for messes made by others isn't fair, he said.

"We obviously want to work with folks, but we will enforce the regulations," Blagg said.

To The People Of Scurry And Borden Counties

My opponent has based his campaign on his statement that if I am re-elected as your district judge, I will have to retire before my full four year term is completed.

The following are the true facts about this year's district judge election:

1. Article V, Section 7a of the Texas Constitution requires the State to reapportion trial court judicial districts for the first time in 1993. The State Legislature is re-districting all judicial districts in the state.

2. Because of this re-districting, present plans are for all district judges in the state to run again in 1994.

3. For the above reason, whomever is elected judge of the 132nd District Court in 1992 will serve for two years only. A new election will be held in 1994. The Governor will not appoint a judge. He will be elected by the people.

I quote directly from the latest Report of the House Judicial Affairs Committee (August 3), p. 38:

"All current judicial districts should be abolished as of Dec. 31, 1994, provided that a judicial reapportionment plan has been adopted prior to that date". The legislature must adopt a plan in 1993 since it is a constitutional requirement.

4. The State Legislature will change many, if not all, judicial districts. Present plans will eliminate the 132nd Judicial District composed of Scurry and Borden Counties and will put Scurry County in the same district with Nolan, Fisher and Coke Counties. It will put Borden County in the same district with Howard and Mitchell Counties.

The people of Scurry and Borden Counties can be justly proud of my record as their district judge. Please give me the opportunity to serve you for the remainder of time the 132nd Judicial District, as it is now formed, will exist.

Democratic nominees finish bus tour throughout Texas

TYLER, Texas (AP) — The Clinton-Gore bus tour started amid mariachi music with an appeal to South Texas Hispanics and ended in East Texas with a plea for racial unity.

And in towns between San Antonio and Tyler, the Democratic nominees also urged voters to accept their proposals on the economy, education and health care reform and tried to convince audiences that the Democrats are more in tune with Texas than President Bush.

"'I don't have a hotel room in Houston, but I believe that I'm a lot more like most Texans than my opponent is,'' was Clinton's familiar refrain along the two-day route.

The trip was designed to shore up Democratic support in Central and East Texas, a battleground in the presidential race. The tour ended Friday night with a rally before about 2,500 people in Tyler, a conservative city known to vote for both Democrats and Republicans.

Clinton-Gore campaign officials had said Tyler could indicate how the election would turn in Texas in November. Some people in the crowd said they had voted Republican in the past but planned to support Clinton this year. Others stood with arms folded and without emotion, clearly there to weigh what the candidates had to say.

In a departure from his usual campaign speech, Clinton reminded the crowd of the words of Martin Luther King Jr. in his famous ''I Have a Dream'' speech on the anniversary of the address.

''I turned on my television 29 years ago today and a man named Martin Luther King was standing in front of Abraham Lincoln's statue in Washington ... and he said, 'My fellow Americans, in spite of the difficulty and the frustration of the moment I still have a dream,' '' Clinton said to loud applause.

Clinton's words hushed most in the audience in this town of about 80,000 that recently has simmered in racial strife.

Black leaders and others in Tyler have voiced anger after several deaths of blacks at the hands of law officers. The most recent case in the spotlight was the shooting death of an 84-year-old grandmother killed in her bed by a white police officer in nearby Kilgore.

Clinton, who did not mention the local cases, reminded the crowd that King wanted his children ''to be judged not by the color of their skin but by the content of their character.''

''I say to you tonight it isn't Tyler or Arkansas, it's America that we have to reach out to one another because we don't have a person to waste,'' Clinton said.

As they and their wives traveled the bus route through New Braunfels, San Marcos, Austin, Waco, Corsicana and Athens, Clinton and Gore touted their economic program, including more taxes on the wealthy and a tax cut for the middle class.

Gore often told audiences about a man standing along a road holding a sign that said, ''Middle Class.''

Floridians' criticism 'understandable'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush says criticism of his administration's response to Hurricane Andrew is understandable given the strain felt by Florida relief officials, but he won't take part in a ''blame game.''

''I can understand tempers flaring, but I don't want to contribute to that,'' Bush said Friday.

''There is no point getting into blame and this who-shot-John thing that I know everybody's fascinated with,'' he said. ''I'm not going to participate in the blame game.''

An estimated 63,000 homes in Florida were destroyed Monday, leaving perhaps 180,000 people without shelter. At least 31 people died in the storm or its aftermath. By Friday, telephone service was still scarce in some areas; 750,000 people had no power; and hundreds lined up for food, drinkable water and federal disaster loan applications.

As criticism of the federal government's role mounted Thursday evening, Bush canceled plans to spend the weekend at his Maine vacation home. He also called off a Western campaign trip next week.

Bush spent Friday night at the Camp David, Md., presidential retreat. He planned to return to the White House Saturday afternoon for a briefing by aides on progress in getting emergency relief to hurricane victims in Florida and Louisiana.

The president said Friday that 7,000 federal troops were in Florida or on the way with tents, food, water, electric generators and other supplies. He said an additional 1,000 Marines were ready to back them up.

Yet the administration was hit with complaints that it had moved sluggishly and ineptly after Andrew left 250,000 people homeless in south Florida and caused billions of dollars in damage early Monday.

The White House said Bush could not send in troops until they were requested by Florida Gov. Lawton Chiles. The request was received at 1:45 p.m. EDT Thursday, the White House said; Chiles' office confirmed the timing. Bush announced within four hours he was ordering the military into action.

''When we were asked to move, we moved these massive numbers of forces,'' he said.

Much of the criticism is being aimed at the Federal Emergency Management Agency, which is responsible for coordinating Washington's response to domestic disasters.

FEMA officials say they are unfairly being asked to respond faster than humanly possible. The agency also is coping with Los Angeles' recovery from last spring's riots, and an attempt in Congress to trim its appropriation from Bush's requested $1 billion to $796.5 million.

''I wish we could have done it in 24 hours, for the people out there,'' FEMA spokesman Grant Peterson told CNN on Friday. ''But in a catastrophic event, 24 hours is not reasonable to expect to have all the resources of the federal government landing in the middle of a disaster.''

The criticism could not have come at a worse time for Bush, trailing in the polls 67 days before Election Day. With 25 electoral votes, Florida is traditionally a Republican state in presidential votes and a must-win state for Bush.

Vidkun Quisling was sentenced to death in Norway in 1945 for having collaborated with the Nazis during World War II.

Financial Focus

Most individuals covered by a qualified retirement plan have the option of accepting a lump-sum distribution of the entire balance of their retirement account when they retire. If you select this option, you then have the option of paying the lump-sum distribution tax or rolling the distribution into an IRA. Beginning Jan. 1, 1993, however, the IRA rollover option will be replaced with the choice to automatically transfer funds to an IRA without first taking receipt of them. For those individuals who choose not to transfer, there will be a new 20 percent withholding tax on lump-sum distributions paid directly to the individual after Jan. 1, 1993. So which choice is best?

Each situation is different and should be discussed with a qualified tax professional. However, unless you plan to make significant and immediate withdrawals from the retirement plan, an IRA rollover (or transfer after Jan. 1, 1993) is generally the best choice because the funds are not taxed at the time of transfer and continue to compound tax deferred.

Some guidelines for helping you decide which option to select include:

1. projections for future income needs;
2. estimated life expectancy;
3. beneficiary and minimum withdrawal options; and
4. anticipated future federal tax rates.

These considerations hinge on how long the money is expected to remain under the IRA shelter and what you speculate future taxes will claim as it is withdrawn.

For example, suppose you decide to accept your $100,000 lump-sum retirement distribution. Should you elect the tax-favored lump-sum averaging tax or the tax-sheltered rollover option? Assuming the funds earn 9 percent before taxes, the approximate break-even period would be 10 years. If you plan to have your retirement money working in the IRA without significant withdrawals for longer than that, then the benefits of tax deferral in an IRA outweigh the initial lower tax rates of the averaging method. If your lump-sum distribution is $400,000, the approximate break-even period would be four years. As a general rule, the larger your distribution, the more significant the benefit of tax deferral under an IRA rollover.

The other factor is time. A retiree who is not forced to withdraw large sums for current living expenses and who can stretch distributions over a long period may also benefit from the IRA shelter.

IRA rollovers can offer significant advantages over paying a lump-sum distribution tax. These advantages increase when ordinary income taxes are lower, distributions are larger and when the money can remain sheltered for longer periods without large distributions.

NOTICE OF COMPARABLE TAX RATES AND REVENUES

The legislature has enacted a statute on school funding to comply with a court mandate enforcing the state constitution. Under prior statutes the tax rate for last year provides $3,908 per student in state and local revenues. Under this statute that same rate now provides $4,195 per student in state and local revenues.

State law only requires a minimum tax rate of $0.9343 for County Education Districts. State law does not require a school district to adopt additional taxes. Neither does state law require a school district to adopt a tax rate that maximizes the receipt of state funds.

The board of trustees of the Snyder Consolidated Independent School District hereby gives notice that it is considering the adoption of a tax rate of $0.433 that will provide $4,251 per student in state and local revenues.

New round of name-calling, fingerpointing

TYLER, Texas (AP) — An already stormy presidential campaign is being hit with a new round of name-calling and fingerpointing over taxes and the environment.

Democrat Bill Clinton said Friday that President Bush is "just like Pinocchio" in misleading voters about Clinton's tax record. The president's campaign retorted that the Arkansas governor was the liar.

The vice presidential candidates, meantime, swapped charges on the environment, with incumbent Dan Quayle saying Democrat Al Gore's ideas are "pretty bizarre stuff."

Gore retorted that the White House was "pointing the finger of blame with one hand and passing out pink slips with the other."

The heated exchanges came as the Democrats wrapped up a two-day bus tour across Texas that finished with a rally in Tyler.

Clinton returned to Little Rock. Gore was traveling to Detroit today to speak to Michigan's state Democratic convention, and Quayle was throwing out the first ball at the Little League world series in Williamsport, Pa.

The tax accusations began after The Boston Globe on Friday quoted unidentified Bush campaign officials as saying they knew the president was inaccurately saying Clinton had raised taxes in Arkansas 128 times. One source was quoted as saying Bush would continue to make the claim anyway because "it works."

An agitated Clinton called Bush's claim "a desperate effort to cover up his own economic failures."

He stopped just short of calling the president a liar, but a statement issued by his campaign crossed that line, saying: "George Bush and the Republicans are intentionally lying to win the election."

At a rally later in Corsicana, Texas, Clinton told a cheering audience: "Old Bush looked just like Pinocchio at the Republican convention, talking about taxes, saying how much I raised taxes."

It was at the GOP convention in Houston that Bush first made the claim about Clinton's tax record.

In Washington, presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater led a White House and Bush campaign counterattack, saying of Clinton: "This fellow's regard for honesty and veracity is so low that he has no business calling anybody else a liar."

And Mary Matalin, the Bush campaign's political director, said the Democrats are "just flat lying."

A number of independent analyses, including one by The Associated Press, have found the contention of 128 tax increases exaggerated.

Lottery can't withhold taxes

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — The state Lottery Department can't withhold taxes from a $27 million Lotto jackpot won by an Australian syndicate that tried to corner a share of the prize, a federal judge ruled Friday.

U.S. District Judge Richard Williams ordered the state to pay the Melbourne-based International Lotto Fund the money it has withheld for taxes and not to withhold any more.

"The lottery will not appeal the judge's decision," said Kenneth Thorson, the department's executive director.

The syndicate won the jackpot, payable in annual installments over 20 years, on Feb. 15. The department made the first payment on Aug. 14, but deducted 30 percent for state and federal taxes.

Australian officials have said they plan to tax the prize, and syndicate lawyers argued that a treaty between Australia and the United States prohibits the taxing of the same income by both countries.

The Justice Department, arguing on behalf of the Internal Revenue Service, said the proper procedure was for the group to pay the taxes and ask for a refund. The syndicate's lawyers said that could take years.

Williams said there was nothing to prevent the IRS from auditing the syndicate's tax returns and demanding payment later.

The group of 2,500 investors attempted to corner a share of the lottery by purchasing all 7.1 million six-number combinations in the drawing.

It only had enough time to buy about 5 million tickets before the drawing, but was the sole winner anyway.

Elementary student rules for football games outlined

In an effort to insure student safety at home football games, Snyder ISD elementary principals have developed rules of conduct for elementary students.

1. Elementary students will be expected to remain seated during the football games.

2. Students sitting in the designated elementary seating area will be expected to remain in the area throughout the game. Students will be given the opportunity to purchase refreshments and use the restroom facilities during the halftime break. This will be the only time elementary students will be allowed to leave the designated seating area.

3. Students will be expected to follow the same code of student conduct at the football games as they are expected to follow at school. This code of student conduct is outlined in the Snyder Independent School District's Parent Handbook for Elementary School Children. Throwing of ice, cups, or other items will not be tolerated. Students who do not follow discipline guidelines as outlined in the Code of Student Conduct will lose the privilege of sitting in the elementary student section. Distruptive students will be sent to their parents or removed from the game if their parents are not present.

4. Students will be dismissed from the elementary student section approximately two minutes prior to half-time, and approximately two minutes prior to the end of the football game.

Senior Center activities listed

Senior citizens who play golf will have access to Snyder High School's new indoor practice area starting Monday.

The indoor practice area is located in the gymnasium adjacent to the Senior Center. Senior citizens may use the facility from 8:30-11:30 a.m. Monday through Friday. Jerry Baird, Senior Center director, will be there from 10-11 a.m. on Monday and Wednesday to explain the best use of the area.

Swimnastics for senior citizens will resume Tuesday at the Western Texas College swimming pool. Hours will be 9:15-10:45 a.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays. Because of other activities scheduled for the pool, Mike Harrison, pool director, requests that those in the swimnastics group plan to enter and leave the pool at those times.

Activities in the Senior Center this week will begin with domino games at 9:30 a.m. Monday. Each Monday is Game Day in the center and visitors are invited to arrange games of their choice or to join in the feature of the day.

Hoss Clayton and his band will be performing in the center's dining room at 11 a.m. Friday. It will be followed by the Sing Along starting at 11:30 a.m.

A series of beginning clogging lessons designed for senior citizens is to start Wednesday in the dining room. The class is to meet from 2-3 p.m. each Wednesday if there is sufficient interest. Interested persons may contact Pamela Poe for additional details.

Senior citizens interested in selling their crafts through the Senior Center booth at the Scurry County Fair and White Buffalo Days celebration Sept. 17-19 are also invited to contact Mrs. Poe for information.

The Senior Center will be closed all day on Sept. 7 in observance of Labor Day.

Snyder claims three pool-play spike wins

DENVER CITY — The Snyder Lady Tigers sliced through their pool in the opening round of play at the Denver City Volleyball Tournament Friday, posting wins over Tahoka, 15-1, 15-4; Plains, 15-2, 15-13; and Estacado, 15-2, 15-4.

The three wins placed the Snyder spikers in the championship bracket of the single elimination tournament against Sweetwater Saturday.

A win over the Lady Mustangs would have lifted SHS into the semifinals against the winner of the Andrews-Levelland quarterfinal battle.

Snyder has already faced Sweetwater this season, handing the Lady Mustangs a 15-7, 15-12 loss in the Monahans Tournament.

Sweetwater lost to Levelland, 11-15, 15-2, 15-7, and to host Denver City, 15-3, 15-5, before beating Ft. Davis, 4-15, 15-13, 16-14 to earn a quarterfinal berth.

Denver City coasted to a 3-0 pool-play start and was to face Dell City Saturday with the winner tangling with the Plains-Ruidoso, N.M. winner in other quarterfinal action.

Chicago hands 'Pokes 20-13 exhibition loss

IRVING, Texas (AP) — The Chicago Bears finally got an exhibition victory and the Dallas Cowboys lost more than a meaningless preseason game.

Chicago avoided its first winless preseason since 1978 with a 20-13 victory Friday night over the Cowboys.

The player the Cowboys lost was starting defensive tackle Tony Casillas, who suffered a knee injury and could be out for more than a month.

Chicago ran its exhibition record to 4-3 against Dallas and Bears coach Mike Ditka said it didn't matter much that the Cowboys rested many of their regulars.

"It was nice to win if you haven't won," Ditka said. "We played a very good team which didn't play all of its people. We're not kidding ourselves. They are a good football team.

"I wasn't worried about the score. I just wanted us to play with some continuity. It was an encouraging game."

Chicago, which opens the regular season against the Detroit Lions at Solider Field, finished the preseason at 1-3. The Cowboys, who open with Washington, were 2-3.

"I thought we made some improvement over what we have done the past three weeks. There were some encouraging things out there but we still have to get better. I thought all of our running backs ran the ball well" said Dallas coach Jimmy Johnson.

"I feel good about our team. I think we've come together in the last two weeks. We have some pieces of the puzzle to put together but I think we'll be fine."

Johnson said he was concerned about the right knee of Casillas, his starting defensive tackle.

"We'll keep our fingers crossed on him. We'll have it examined and see what the problem is. He might be out four weeks or so," said Johnson.

"It's a real blow to our team. It looks like a severely sprained knee. It looks 99.9 percent sure that he will be out next week. It's rough because he had a great camp and is a big part of our defense."

Casillas said, "It's not good and I could be out four weeks."

Third-string quarterback Jason Garrett got the Cowboys' only touchdown before the Texas Stadium crowd of 60,218 on a 3-yard scoring pass to fullback Tommie Agee in the fourth period.

Steve Beuerlein completed passes of 21 yards to Darryl Johnston and 20 yards to Kelvin Martin to set up Lin Elliott's 33-yard field goal for the Cowboys in the second period.

In final grid scrimmage...

Tigers outscore Ballinger, 5-3

By PHIL RIDDLE
SDN Sports Editor

Snyder head coach David Baugh saw some good things in his offense in Friday night's final preseason football scrimmage.

He saw his Tigers outscore Ballinger, 5-3, he saw his quarterbacks combine for 10-of-23 passing for 105 yards and a score, and he saw three of his running backs rush for 60 yards or better.

"I was pretty pleased with the way things went," Baugh said. "I think our quarterbacks did a real good job. What we have to do now is step up to the next level.

"We have some good athletes playing for us, and we have to have them do their jobs just a little bit better when the season starts against Sweetwater."

Tailback Randy Fisk started the scoring for the Tigers, bolting into the end zone on a 31-yard jaunt during Snyder's second offensive possession.

Fisk finished the night with 57 yards on just three carries.

The Tigers' leading rushers were backfield starters Wayland Harrison, a senior fullback, and tailback Ben Wilson.

Harrison ripped the middle of the Ballinger defense for 69 yards on nine carries while Wilson lugged the ball 10 times Friday for 68 yards.

Backup fullback Gilbert Orosco was also impressive, gaining 60 yards on eight carries, including a 16-yard blast.

The score remained 1-0 until the goal-line portion of the controlled scrimmage when the Tigers crossed the goal line three times, including an 11-yard burst by Wilson, a Matt Cave to Jason Greene TD pass from seven yards away, and a diving touchdown catch by Jason McAden of a 10-yard Jim Pat Griffin pass.

The most important score of the night was probably the Tigers' last, a 6-yard rumble by Wilson that capped a 70-yard six-play drive under simulated game conditions.

"That was the most impressive drive to me," said Baugh. "I think we were pretty sharp there.

"We were running the offense under game-type conditions, getting the play off in 25 seconds and calling penalties, and Matt did a good job getting us into the end zone."

The bulk of the yardage leading to the final score was gained by Harrison, who started the Tigers' final possession with a 27-yard run to the Ballinger 39. Wilson picked up two on the ensuing first down and Harrison got the call again, going 10 yards to the Bearcats' 27.

It was Harrison again on the next play as Cave hit the SHS fullback on a 15-yard toss that set the ball at the BHS 12.

A 6-yard scramble by wingback Michael Fields set up Wilson's TD run.

Snyder's defense was every bit as good as the offense Friday night, limiting Ballinger's 1,000 yard running back Kristen Trimbell to just 37 yards on 13 attempts. Bearcat quarterback Will Duggan, a 1,000 yard passer a year ago, threw for only six completions in 14 tries, for 68 yards and a TD.

Ballinger was able to gather just 135 yards on 56 plays, and averaged less than three yards a carry against the SHS defense.

Duggan was also burned for an interception by Harrison, playing linebacker on defense, and was sacked three times, including a diving shoestring tackle by noseguard Bradley Williams as Duggan came away from the center.

Snyder kicker J. Parker also got in some work Friday night hitting field goals of 43 and 47 yards.

The Tigers will begin the regular season Friday against longtime rival Sweetwater at Tiger Stadium.

Tickets for the matchup will go on sale at 8:30 a.m. Monday at the SISD administrative offices on 37th Street.

Rice leads 49ers to 24-17 win

by The Associated Press

The conclusion of the exhibition season was just the beginning for Jerry Rice. And maybe the end of the line for Joe Montana.

Rice, the NFL's premier receiver, caught two touchdown passes from Steve Young in San Francisco's 24-17 victory over Seattle.

Montana missed all of last season with a torn right elbow tendon. He was expected to suit up Friday night and see limited duty. But he threw only a few pregame passes on the sidelines.

"After talking with Joe and the doctors, we decided it was best to hold him out," said Niners coach George Seifert. He dodged questions about whether Montana would begin the season on injured reserve, saying, "It's hard to say. There will be a lot of discussions before then."

With contract discussions over, Rice saw his only action of the preseason and looked like he was in midseason form.

"I like to be the guy that makes things happen," said Rice, who had four receptions for 48 yards.

Young made things happen for the first time in a 5-0 preseason for San Francisco. He directed the 49ers to 24 first-half points after generating just three points in his three previous exhibitions.

"I felt good all preseason, but it was nice to get the points up on the board," said Young, who also ran for a score. Young will be San Francisco's starter in the season opener.

In other preseason closers Friday, it was Buffalo 27, Atlanta 21; Phoenix 21, Denver 17; Cleveland 24, Tampa Bay 3; Chicago 20, Dallas 13; Cincinnati 34, Detroit 17; and Indianapolis 21, Kansas City 10.

Saturday, Houston was at the Los Angeles Raiders, the New York Giants were at Pittsburgh, Minnesota visited Washington and New England played Green Bay at Milwaukee.

Bills 27, Falcons 21

Buffalo's Jim Kelly completed six of seven passes for 100 yards and two touchdowns in one quarter.

"I'm ready to push the preseason out of sight and get the real season started," Kelly said.

Kelly connected with Andre Reed on a 41-yard scoring play, Buffalo's first touchdown pass in exhibition play. Kelly later dumped a 1-yard pass to wide-open Ed Thomas.

Cardinals 21, Broncos 17

At Denver, Timm Rosenbach concluded a solid preseason with two TD passes. Ivory Lee Brown, a 245-pound fullback, turned a screen pass into a 17-yard score — he also clinched the game with a 36-yard run — and Rosenbach found Randal Hill for a 54-yard touchdown.

The loss could be costly for the Broncos. Reserve linebacker Ronnie Haliburton was taken off the field with a neck injury. All-Pro safety Steve Atwater suffered a badly sprained left ankle, making him doubtful for the regular-season opener.

Browns 24, Buccaneers 3

At Tampa, Terry Taylor twice intercepted passes by Vinny Testaverde to set up 10 first-quarter points. Randy Baldwin returned the second-half kickoff 95 yards for a touchdown and Bernie Kosar and Todd Philcox each threw a scoring pass as Cleveland rebounded from an embarassing 56-3 loss to the Minnesota Vikings.

Colts 21, Chiefs 10

At Kansas City, the Chiefs didn't play many regulars for long and the Colts used backup quarterbacks Tom Tupa and Mark Herrmann.

Stadler putts his way to World Series lead

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — The Walrus smiled, hardly an everyday occurrence on the PGA Tour.

"That was the me of old, from the early '80's," 39-year-old Craig Stadler said Friday after a regained putting touch took him to a one-stroke lead at the halfway point of the elite World Series of Golf.

Stadler one-putted half the greens on the Firestone Country Club course and chipped in from about 40 feet on another in a 5-under-par 65 that put him through 36 holes at 134, 6 under par.

"I haven't made putts like I did today in a long time," Stadler said after scattering eight birdies and three bogeys across his card.

His big move put him one in front of first-round leader Chip Beck, who could do no better than match par 70 in weather that ranged from rain to drizzle to gusty, blustery squalls.

Masters champ Fred Couples remained in touch with the lead with a 70 that left him in a tie for third with Lee Janzen at 137. Janzen shot 67 on the long, difficult course.

David Peoples and former World Series of Golf winner David Frost were next at 138. Frost closed up with a 67 and Peoples shot 70.

Andrew Magee, with a 70, and D.A. Weibring, with a 71, were the only others in the field of 45 title-winners from around the world in subpar figures. They were at 139.

U.S. Open title-holder Tom Kite had another 73 and reached the tournament halfway point at 6-over 146. Nick Price, making his first start since winning the PGA, improved to a 68 and was at 140.

Monday meeting set for QB Club

Parents of Snyder High School freshmen, JV and varsity football players are invited to an organizational meeting for the SHS Quarterback Club, a football booster club.

The meeting is slated for Monday at 7 p.m. in the Directors' Room at West Texas State Bank.

Business at the inaugural meeting includes the election of officers, decisions on fund raisers, the formation of a decorating committee and the building of a homecoming float.

Slingin' Sammy Baugh...

Hall of famer likes run-and-shoot offense

By PHIL RIDDLE
SDN Sports Editor

You'll not find former Washington Redskins quarterback and charter NFL Hall of Fame member Sammy Baugh pining away for the good old days.

No sir, the Redskins great spends his time watching and trying to comprehend the nuances of the modern passing attack and playing golf.

"I love to watch football," said the 78-year-old Baugh in a recent interview. "I watch every game I can get on TV.

"What I'd really like to know more about is the run-and-shoot. I've never sat down and talked to anybody who knows about it.

"I'd like to find out what they tell the receivers as far as what they have to read and the quarterback has to read."

Baugh, who played pro football from 1937-52, smiles talking about the new offense, made popular by the University of Houston Cougars and the Houston Oilers.

"I'd love to pass to those fast little guys," he admits. "Used to, we had to pass to our backs to get the ball to someone fast.

"The game has changed so much," Baugh said. "When I first started, the quarterback had to be five yards behind the line of scrimmage to throw and, when I was playing, he couldn't throw the ball away. That created a lot of interceptions."

Baugh said that rules to help the passing game, did not go into effect until his third professional season.

"The quarterback had no protection. After he threw the ball, all these men that were rushing, they'd never stop. All they had to stop on was the whistle.

"In other words, if you completed the pass, they could chase you 30 yards up the field and put you on the ground.

"It really looked awful," he laughed. "Here you are, 30 yards back of them dodging and wrestling them off.

"Mr. Marshall, our owner, got that rule changed.

"I remember about the third year I was up there, he called me into the office one morning and he said, 'What if we got a rule that said after the quarterback got rid of the ball, the rushers couldn't stay after him and hit him like they do'.

"I said, 'Well, your passer will last about seven or eight years longer'.

"He sat right there and called George Halas and next year the thing was in. You see, Halas had Sid Luckman and he was in favor of the rule, too."

The rules of his day make Baugh's stay in the NFL even more impressive.

"I probably wouldn't have stayed that long if we hadn't switched to the T-formation," he stated. "I had been a single-wing blocker before everybody started switching to the 'T'.

"That lengthened my playing time because I just had to play quarterback. I thought that was the easiest job I ever had. You hand it off to somebody or throw it to somebody. You didn't have to block anybody, really."

Though he feels that today's athletes are the best ever, Baugh still remembers the days when football was played on the ground.

"When I first went up there (Washington) it wasn't a passing game, at all," he said. "It was a running game and a defensive game.

"You only had 23 players on a team. You had to play defense. I don't care what else, you had to play defense."

Substitutions in the 1940's brand of football were also limited.

"They had a rule that you had to have your starting team out there for the kickoff," Baugh remembered. "Quarterback and all. If you got hurt and had to come out, you couldn't go back in until the second quarter.

"With only 23 players, there were a lot of players that stayed out there that were hurt. They kind of got over it on the field instead of coming off.

"When they went to free substitutions, that changed the game. Before that, you had to play both ways."

Slingin' Sammy knew about playing both ways.

Baugh, who led the NFL in passing six times and was named all-pro four times, led the league, not only in passing in 1944, but also in punting and interceptions.

Baugh's career 45.1 and single-season 51.8 yards per punt are among the records the former Texas Christian University Horned Frog still holds.

The Frogs' record book is still dotted with records that Baugh set while a collegian including his 18 TD passes in 1935, second all-time at TCU, and his 270 completions in his college career, fourth in Horned Frog history.

Baugh also won the 1936 Dan Rogers Trophy, an award still given to the TCU football team's most valuable player.

Sammy played for legendary coach Dutch Meyer during his college days in Ft. Worth, and he recalls one of Horned Frog fans' finest memories, a 3-2 victory over top-ranked LSU in the 1936 Sugar Bowl.

"It rained all during the game," he said. "It was the muddiest field you ever saw.

"We were fortunate to beat them," he admitted. "I really believe that if we'd played them on a dry field, they had a good enough team, they could have beaten us."

"They were a good running ball club and that mud is an equalizer."

Baugh said his rookie year in Washington, he was surprised to see a more conservative brand of football than he was used to in college.

"I thought all the pro teams were more conservative than the college teams," he said. "At least ours.

"At TCU, we would throw the ball any time, just like they do now. Any time, any place on the field.

"Dutch told me, 'It doesn't matter. If you're looking at the defense, and you see a weak spot in it, take advantage of it. Throw any time you want'.

"In the pros," he reported, "most coaches wouldn't let you throw until you got past the 20-yard line."

In spite of the numerous accolades the Hall of Famer has received, his fondest memories of the game are those of team accomplishment.

"There are a lot of games that meant more to me than other games, I guess," he said. "I guess one I really remember was in my first year up there.

"We went up to New York for the last game of the season. We had to beat New York to play against the Bears for the championship. We beat them about 45-21, or something like that, but I thought our team played, as a whole, their best game of the year. Those kinds of games you remember."

Another game he remembers occurred during Sammy Baugh Day in Washington in 1948.

"We had to play the Chicago Cardinals that day. They were the league champions and we had an average ball club. Not real good, just average, and this day, our bunch of linemen got together and said, 'Let's play a game and don't let the quarterback get knocked down'. And I'll tell you the truth, I had the best blocking that day of any day I played football. I don't ever remember getting knocked down."

Baugh also remembers some bad times. Like the time he got a concussion when Luckman's knee caught him on the side of the head.

"We were playing the Bears in the championship game one time in Chicago when Luckman hit me in the head with his knee when I was tackling him," Sam related.

"It knocked me out. I sat there on the bench until the fourth quarter before I could call any plays.

"I tried to call some at halftime," he said laughing, "but I was calling plays we had 10 years ago."

"I finally went back in and threw two touchdown passes, but it was too late. They already had us beat."

As much as Baugh admires today's bigger, stronger, faster athletes, there is one aspect that he doesn't care for — charging for sports stars' autographs.

"I don't like that," he said flatly, "I really don't. I know it's a big business, of course, but I always felt that you owed the people who came to see you play.

"Hell, I used to sit out there after a game and before I could even go into the dressing room, I'd sign autographs for an hour or more. But I'd stay out there, because I thought you owed the fans something.

"Now though, it's a different story."

Does a man of Baugh's stature in the history of sports have any advice for future stars?

"Football is mostly mental," he said. "A lot of times you think you're playing your best football and you're really hustling. But, if you play every down like it's the last play you'll ever make, you'll become a pretty good football player."

Since retiring from football, Baugh has taken up golf.

"I started playing with some of our coaches one day at Hardin-Simmons, and I swear, that bug bit me real quick," he said. "I just fell in love with the game.

"I quit playing for a few years after I leased a ranch in Fisher County, I didn't think I had time.

"I spent all my time riding and working on my roping, you know, but my knees got so bad I couldn't get on a horse, so 13 years ago, I started golfing again.

"I went over to Hamlin Country Club one day," Baugh related, "and they were the nicest bunch of people to me. I'd never met any of them, but they were just so nice that I just played with them whenever they played."

Baugh and Snyder High School golf coach Bob O'Day are frequent partners on the links. They jokingly have a standing $10 wager for a hole-in-one.

"We've played a lot the last 12 or 15 years," Sam said, "and we're always talking about getting a hole-in-one.

"So we bet each other and I lucked into one at Hamlin the other day.

"I don't think I'd pay the bet," he laughed, "unless I'd seen it."

Baugh says his latest hobby is excellent excerise for senior citizens.

"It's the best exercise in the world," he said, "especially for old people. What can old people do. Play checkers, play dominoes. Tell me something else you can do.

"You can't play tennis, there's too much running. Golf is a walking game. It's a wonderful game for old people.

"You ought to learn the game while you're young, but you won't play it as much as when you're old."

Baugh has lent his name to the Slingin' Sammy Baugh Snyder High School Golf Tournament, a four-person scramble, to be played at Western Texas College Sept. 5 to benefit the SHS golf programs.

"I've known Sam for a long time," O'Day said, "He doesn't need any printers' ink. He's just doing this strictly for the kids."

A specially-made Washington Redskins jersey bearing Baugh's retired No. 33 has also been donated by the former NFL great for auction to help the high school golf teams.

Lou Gehrig's consecutive game streak of 2,130 games began on June 1, 1925, and ended on May 2, 1939.

Astros thump Montreal, 8-1

HOUSTON (AP) — Pete Harnisch had a season-high 10 strikeouts, including five in a row in one stretch, as the Houston Astros beat Montreal 8-1 on Friday night, snapping the Expos' seven-game road winning streak.

Steve Finley had four hits and drove in three runs as Houston won for the sixth time in seven games and ended Mark Gardner's career domination of the Astros.

Harnisch (5-9) lost his shutout in the sixth inning when Marquis Grissom doubled, went to third on Moises Alou's single and scored on a groundout by Larry Walker. The right-hander allowed four hits in eight innings before Rob Murphy worked the ninth Harnisch struck out Tim Wallach to end the fourth, struck out the side in the fifth and fanned Delino DeShields to start the sixth.

Gardner (11-9) had won three straight decisions. He had a 4-0 record against Houston last season and was 5-0 against the Astros in his career. He allowed three runs in the first and left after a two-run double by Luis Gonzalez in the fourth. Finley's run-scoring single made it 6-0.

Houston got another run in the seventh on Ken Caminiti's RBI single and Finley's fourth hit, an RBI single in the eighth, completed the scoring.

Gardner hit Craig Biggio with a pitch to start the game and Finley followed with a double into the left-field corner.

Brown nabs 17th victory

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Kevin Brown held Chicago hitless through 6 2-3 innings and completed a five-hitter as the Texas Rangers defeated the White Sox 4-1 on Friday night.

Brown (17-8) retired 11 straight batters before walking Frank Thomas. He took his no-hitter into the seventh inning before Robin Ventura doubled with two outs.

Texas first baseman Rafael Palmeiro had momentarily saved the no-hit bid when he made a diving stop of a sharply hit grounder by Thomas for the first out of the seventh inning.

Brown, who ended with four strikeouts and two walks, was one out away from his third shutout of the season when Ventura singled in Thomas.

Texas got consecutive RBI singles by Monty Farriss and Palmeiro in the first inning off Greg Hibbard (9-6).

Brian Downing had a two-run single in the fourth to finish the Rangers scoring.

Tent cities going up as relief efforts continue in Florida

FLORIDA CITY, Fla. (AP) — Army troops cleared 14 acres of parkland and a section of a demolished air base, hoping to have tent cities up tonight for thousands of victims of Hurricane Andrew.

The crews were among 7,000 Army and Marine Corps troops ordered to South Florida by President Bush amid complaints that the Federal Emergency Management Agency was dragging its feet in providing relief to hurricane victims.

In Washington, Bush told a hastily arranged news conference that he understood the criticism but didn't feel such recriminations were useful.

"I'm not going to participate in the blame game," he said.

The tent cities were part of the effort to house an estimated 180,000 homeless people in South Florida, whose homes were destroyed when the hurricane flattened the south Miami suburbs on Monday before slamming into Louisiana.

A massive relief effort also was under way in Louisiana, where 137,000 homes and businesses were without electricity Friday and 1,500 people remained in 11 Red Cross shelters. After criticism Friday from Louisiana state and local officials about the federal response to the disaster, FEMA officials there vowed to step up their efforts.

In Florida, meanwhile, telephone service was still scarce in some areas Friday; 750,000 people had no power; and hundreds lined up for food, drinkable water and federal disaster loan applications.

A judge in Miami scheduled an emergency hearing this morning on a request by Dade County to postpone Tuesday's state primary for a week. County election officials have said free and fair elections can't be held amid the disaster.

"This area of Florida is going to be in recuperation for a year. They're going to have to scrape the earth and start over," said Roger Desjarlais, director of public safety in Lee County, northwest of Miami, who was directing emergency operations in Florida City.

Desjarlais said migrant workers who lost trailer homes would make up the bulk of the Florida City tent complex, designed for 2,500 people.

Another tent city for 2,500 people was being set up on Homestead Air Force Base, which was totally demolished by the hurricane.

Similar tent cities were set up late last year to house thousands of Haitian refugees at the U.S. naval base at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba.

Huge cargo planes carrying portable kitchens landed Friday at the air base and at Opa-locka Airport. The Army planes from Fort Bragg, N.C., carried food, water and 20 portable military kitchens.

OUR NEED FOR A SAVIOR

By Homer Anderson

Sin, transgression of God's will (I John 3:4), is a universal affliction. "As it is written, There is none righteous, no, not one...For all have sinned, and come short of the glory of God" (Romans 3:10, 23). In our study of the Bible, and in personal observation, we have seen the terrible consequences of sin. Murder is committed, kingdoms lost and hearts broken. Families are separated, children abandoned, businesses collapse--all because of sin.

While devastating, these events become secondary when we read "But your iniquities have made a separation between you and your God, And your sins have hidden His face from you, so that He does not hear" (Isaiah 59:2). The Bible teaches that sin has opened a gulf between us and God. The only solution is to come to God through our Savior, "In Him we have redemption through His blood, the forgiveness of our trespasses, according to the riches of His grace" (Ephesians 1:7).

You are cordially invited to Bible study and worship.

Fund set for Wells

A fund has been established to help defray medical expenses for former Snyder resident Charles Wells, now of Breckenridge.

Wells is awaiting a heart transplant, and is in need of funds — specifically $3,000 for careflight to a Dallas hospital.

Donations may be made in the name of Wells to Citizens National Bank, P.O. Box 1577, Breckenridge, 76424-1577.

Company in California issues juice recall order

CARLSBAD, Calif. (AP) — A company announced Friday that it was recalling 48,000 cans of juice distributed throughout the United States because of concerns over possible lead seepage, company officials said.

Festin Foods Corp., a Carlsbad-based distribution company, said the 12-ounce cans of "Valle Juice" and "Nectar" were imported from Mexico and packaged in cans with lead soldered seams.

A Laredo, Texas, company on Aug. 19 recalled juice imported from Mexico that was packaged in similar lead cans and was believed to be contaminated with lead.

At the time of that recall by Vilore Foods Co., the U.S. Food and Drug Administration and the Michigan Department of Agriculture said that lead solder used to seal the sides of cans was believed to cause contamination in several varieties of Jumex brand fruit nectars and juices.

That recall was issued after a child in San Diego developed lead poisoning apparently after drinking several cans of Jumex daily over an unspecified period of time.

Operation Rescue founder no stranger to jail

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Randall Terry has grown ever more bold — and more creative — in the six years since his first arrest for chaining himself to a sink at an abortion clinic.

The founder of Operation Rescue was jailed Thursday in Houston for violating a court order against protesting near abortion clinics during the Republic National Convention earlier this month.

And he faces jail in New York, where he was accused of allowing a supporter to present Bill Clinton with an aborted fetus during the Democratic convention.

"I'm as determined as ever, probably more determined," Terry said Friday in a telephone interview from Harris County Jail in Houston. "We're witnessing the collapse of Christian, Western civilization."

The militant tactics of the 33-year-old former used-car salesman have galvanized the abortion debate and landed him in jail dozens of times since his first arrest in Binghamton, N.Y., in 1986.

"I think that almost every pro-life group in the country would acknowledge that Operation Rescue has completely reinvigorated the pro-life movement," Terry said.

The judge who found Terry in contempt in Houston said he and other protesters would be jailed for up to six months for refusing to abide by the order.

However, the Texas Supreme Court on Thursday agreed to consider the constitutionality of the order. One of the five protesters jailed along with Terry was released pending the appeal. Lawyers for his anti-abortion group said they hoped to have Terry out soon, too.

Terry faces an Oct. 14 trial for the Clinton confrontation, which he's charged with helping to plan in violation of a court order. He has pleaded innocent.

An aide, Sandy Case, said Terry has been arrested at least 35 times.

Terry grew up outside Rochester, N.Y., but quit school and left home at age 17, dreaming of a career in music. He returned from a long trip to the western United States as a born-again Christian, said his aunt, Dawn Marvin.

She is an abortion rights activist who helped organize counter-demonstrations against Operation Rescue in Buffalo this spring.

Terry and his wife, Cindy, met at Bible class. They settled in the Binghamton area and began to stand in front of abortion clinics, trying to talk women out of entering.

"It was just the ever-growing sense that I had an obligation before God to do something to end the holocaust," Terry explained. "We usually say, 'Why doesn't somebody do something? Then it hit me, to quote the Rev. Jackson, I am somebody."

By 1988, he'd quit his job at a car dealership to devote all his time to Operation Rescue.

At Southern Tier Women's Services outside Binghamton, where Terry was first arrested, anti-abortion activists spread nails in the parking lot and glued the clinic's door shut four or five times, said administrator Margaret Johnston.

She said Terry has total disregard for women and acts without reason.

Terry's tactics of mass arrests and blockading clinics first received national attention at the Democratic National Convention in Atlanta in 1988.

Despite his participation in large-scale Operation Rescue sieges in Wichita last year and Buffalo, Terry no longer runs the group, Case said.

He founded the Christian Defense Coalition, an organization that serves as an electronic bulletin board for evangelical interests across the country and also is a host of a two-hour syndicated radio talk show, "Randall Terry Live!"

This summer, Terry expressed interest in running for Congress as a candidate of the Right to Life Party in upstate New York. He says he has not yet decided whether to run because he does not want to give up his radio show.

"I think he is craving a bigger arena," said Johnston, a veteran Terry watcher. "I think he has a bigger vision for major power — power in an electoral sense."

Johnston said this month it was the first time in many years that she did not get a birthday card from Terry. He annually wishes her a happy birthday, while telling her she's responsible for children who will never have one.

"Maybe it's in the mail," she said.

Ira named 'Successful School'

Representatives of Ira School attended an awards ceremony in Austin on July 18 to accept a monetary award and certificate in recognition of the school's gains in student performance in 1991-1992.

Classroom teachers Gale Northcott and Lillie Sullivan, along with Superintendent Rick Howard and Principal Jane Matlock were present at the Texas Successful Schools Award System at the University of Texas to accept the $36,712 on behalf of the the school.

Commissioner of Education Lionel Meno congratulated the schools which were recognized for gains in student performance, those which had high levels of student performance, and those which had demonstrated outstanding effort to improve student performance.

The Texas Successful Schools Award System (TSSAS) was created two years ago to provide recognition and rewards to campuses that show progress in the achievement of goals set by the state which are measured by the Academic Excellence Indicator System (AEIS).

There are two major categories of awards — high performance and gain. Nine schools received recognition for excellence in high performance. Ira School was among the 125 campuses which received cash awards for gains in student performance.

To qualify for a gain award, the school's 1991-92 performance had to exceed the identified minimum levels of performance on the AEIS for each student population group and also be in the top 10 percent of the school's demographic group on overall gain.

Schools are placed in a demographic group composed of 100 schools which are similar in percentage of economically disadvantaged, minority, limited English proficient students, districts' property wealth and student mobility.

In addition, performance on the AEIS indicators had to be at least two percent higher than the previous year's performance.

Ira School had to complete an application which provided student data for the 1991-92 school year and a narrative explanation of some of the factors which had a positive impact on student performance.

Among the factors contributing to the success of Ira School as presented in the application were:

—A small school with the teachers' understanding of and commitment to all students.

—A dedicated faculty and staff who go beyond what duty requires to help students be successful.

—Parent/community support for the students and their school.

—High expectations and standards for students and staff.

—Open communications among all parties involved in the education process.

The schools that received cash awards were directed to utilize campus committees to determine how the money is to be spent, and they were instructed to use the funds for academic purposes only.

According to Mrs. Matlock, campus committees at Ira School are elected annually, and the 1992-93 committee members have not been chosen yet. Therefore, no decisions have been made yet as to how Ira School will spend its cash award.

To celebrate the special award and the recognition the school received, Howard and school board members, Darryl Calley, Keith Clements, Kirby Sterling and Sid Wall cooked and served hamburgers for its students and staff on the first day of school, Aug. 12, following a special celebration assembly.

Iraqi media criticizes Bush; pilots report silence in skies

ABOARD THE USS INDEPENDENCE (AP) — U.S. Navy pilots patrolling the skies of southern Iraq Saturday reported Iraqi air activity north of the exclusion zone set up to protect Shiite rebels, but no encounters in the "no-fly" area.

"There is some activity on our radar," said Lt. Cmdr. Bob Playfair, 35, a fighter pilot from Chewelah, Wash., who spent six hours flying over marshes in the zone.

He added: "They could be playing. They could be training. We can't tell."

The activity was detected within 30 miles north of the no-fly zone, pilots said, and were the first reported since Operation Southern Watch began Thursday.

Allied air patrols of southern Iraq began after President Bush warned Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein to keep his warplanes and helicopter gunships north of the 32nd parallel and stop attacking Shiite Muslim areas to the south.

Government announces new cease-fire as rockets thunder

KABUL, Afghanistan (AP) — The roar of rockets thundered in the distance as the beleaguered Islamic government announced another cease-fire Saturday with hard-line fundamentalists, who have rained destruction on Kabul for nearly a month.

Fundamentalist chief Gulbuddin Hekmatyar signed the agreement a day earlier, and it took effect immediately when President Burhanuddin Rabbani signed it Saturday, said a Defense Ministry spokesman known only as Fareed.

Fareed would not comment on the distant thundering of rockets. Fighting on Friday marred what was to be a daylong truce to allow diplomats to evacuate.

Fareed said the remaining 50 Russian diplomats and their families — presumably including Ambassador Yevgeny Ostrovenko — left the besieged capital early Saturday aboard an Afghan military transport plane.

The plane headed toward the northern city of Mazar-e-Sharif. From there, a Russian transport plane was expected to ferry them home to Moscow.

Ostrovenko and the group were stranded Friday when artillery fire blamed on Hekmatyar's Hezb-e-Islami forces set their Russian plane ablaze.

Muslims try to break seige; U.N. envoy to monitor pact

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — Bosnian government forces Saturday battled to break the Serb siege in a last-ditch effort to win territory before an internationally brokered agreement to lessen hostilities goes into effect.

But a top commander with forces of the Muslim and Croat-supported government acknowledged he was facing heavy Serb resistance.

Three French soldiers, part of the 1,600-strong U.N. force in Sarajevo, were wounded by heavy mortar fire in the Dobrinja suburb near the airport. Two were treated on the scene; the third, his head bandaged and bleeding, was rushed to a field hospital.

At least 10 people were killed Friday in Serb shelling that hit heaviest in the western part of the city. The main Kosevo hospital reported treating 60 wounded in a four-hour period.

A U.N. envoy was to head for the Balkans Saturday to supervise the beginning of the peace agreement reached Thursday in London, under which heavy weapons around Sarajevo would be monitored the United Nations.

A spokesman for the U.N. Protection Force in Sarajevo said it was still not known when the agreement would come into effect.

Saturday marks six months since Muslims and Croats voted to secede from Serbian-dominated Yugoslavia, sparking a civil war that has left more than 8,000 people dead. Bosnian Serbs backed by Yugoslav weapons and troops have seized about 70 percent of Bosnia's territory.

Mustafa Hajrulah, commander of the Sarajevo garrison of the Bosnian forces, said his troops overnight attacked Serb positions in a western suburb of Sarajevo in an attempt to break the 5-month-old siege of the city.

But he said the attack had yet to cut the Serbs off from supply lines that stretch dozens of miles and end at Pale, capital of the self-proclaimed Serbian Republic of Bosnia-Herzegovina, to the east of the capital.

The fighting was centered on the suburb of Ilidza — a Serb stronghold to the west of the city that has been the focus of Bosnian attempts to break the siege.

If the Bosnians can push the Serbs out of Ilidza they will have almost unfettered control of territory stretching from Sarajevo to their northern border with Croatia. This will mean much in terms of weapons-smuggling and aid.

Meanwhile, the U.N. in Sarajevo announced that Marrack Goulding, under-secretary general for peacekeeping operations, would arrive Wednesday to supervise the monitoring of heavy weapons around the city.

Goulding was scheduled to arrive Saturday in Zagreb, capital of neighboring Croatia, another former Yugoslav republic.

Pessimism, despair and fear prevailed in Sarajevo after fierce mortar and artillery barrages Friday made a mockery of the latest international effort to mediate an end to the war.

"What agreement? Is this an agreement?" sneered bus driver Monir Dobarca as a shell kicked up plaster chips Friday in a shelter where he took cover. "Whenever the Serbs sign anything, their guns do the real talking."

This week's talks in London yielded pledges by Bosnian Serb leader Radovan Karadzic to halt sieges on four cities, place heavy weapons around those cities under U.N. control, dismantle prison camps and trade occupied land for peace.

Police make four arrests

Snyder police made four arrests Friday and early Saturday and began a burglary investigation.

All four arrests were for public intoxication. On Friday, officers arrested a 21-year-old man at 11:13 p.m. in the 4000 block of College Avenue and a 31-year-old female at 11:45 p.m. at the 250 Club. On Saturday, police arrested a 19-year-old man at 1:15 a.m. in the 2500 block of Avenue M and a 19-year-old man at 2:24 a.m. in the 900 block of 26th Street.

At 7:54 a.m. Friday, police were informed of a burglary at A-1 Air Conditioning, 712 College Avenue. Police said that employees are taking inventory to see if anything is missing. An offense report for burglary of a building has been filed.

Police were called to the Snyder High School field house area at 9:47 p.m. Friday where a fight had been reported. The participants left the scene before police arrived and no report was requested.

At 7:15 a.m. Friday, police worked a two-vehicle accident in the 100 block of Browning. Involved were a 1980 Ford pickup driven by Gilbert Orosco of 110 Browning and a 1982 Pontiac driven by Betty Wood of 104 Browning.

Officers worked a one-vehicle accident at 5:23 p.m. Friday in the 300 block of 35th Street. Involved was a 1981 Oldsmobile driven by James Fields of 2905 College, which struck a city-owned dumpster.

SO investigates theft of phone

County deputies are investigating the theft of a phone and phone booth from a local business which occurred sometime Thursday night.

Deputies received a call from the Circle-In convenience store on Lamesa Highway at 8:39 a.m. Friday morning. Employees of the store reported that a phone booth located in front of the store had been stolen.

ment on the coliseum stage at 8 p.m. Doors close at 10 p.m.

Friday's activities begin at 8 a.m. with the arrival of junior livestock. Entries will be accepted for the baked goods competition from 5 p.m. until 9 p.m.

Other events planned for Friday include a turtle race in the ag annex at 5 p.m., a mule show at 6:30 p.m. and entertainment on the coliseum stage at 8 p.m.

Doors will open at 8 a.m. Saturday for the judging of the junior lamb show, followed by the steer and heifer show at 10 a.m.

Other events scheduled for Saturday morning include a pedal tractor pull and a remote control car race, both to be held in the annex building.

Saturday afternoon activities will include a horse show at 1 p.m., a fashion show of fair entries at 2 p.m. and performances by the senior center kitchen band at 3 p.m. and the sunshine choir at 5 p.m.

Coliseum doors will close at 6:30 p.m. to prepare for Saturay night's concert, which will feature country singer Dan Seals.

Seals, who has been topping the country charts consistently since 1985, is best known for hits such as "Bop", "Love on Arrival" and his current single "Mason-Dixon Line."

The show is scheduled to begin at 8 p.m., with doors opening to the public at 7:15.

Tickets for the concert will be $6 for children 12 and under, $8 for adults and $12 for floor seating, and will go on sale this Wednesday. More information about the concert is available by calling the chamber office.

Midwives are now back in the birthplace

NEW YORK (AP) — All seven labor rooms are full at North Central Bronx Hospital, and Colette Swietnicki is keeping a scorecard.

The labor of a 14-year-old in Room 30 may have to be induced because her blood pressure is up. The woman in Room 27 shows signs of fetal distress and an IV is started.

Swietnicki waits. She pays close attention to a board scribbled with red and green marker listing her patients and their changing conditions. She paces, pops in and out of rooms.

The white-coated Swietnicki isn't a doctor. She's a midwife. And at busy North Central Bronx, she's the overseer of a roomful of women in labor.

"Doctors don't know how to keep things down to a minimum, how to lay back and leave people alone," said Swietnicki, who has worked at the hospital since 1983. "We ask, 'What's the reason for doing things? Is it really needed?'"

Swietnicki's profession is centuries old, conjuring an image of a kindly, kerchiefed "granny" summoned to a poor woman's bedside at home. The image no longer fits.

Today, most midwives are nurse-midwives like Swietnicki, registered nurses first, with advanced training in obstetrics, gynecology and newborn care, and certification from the American College of Nurse-Midwives.

They are about 4,500 strong and no longer in the shadows. Most work in hospitals. Others choose alternative training and the less "medical" atmosphere of birth centers or home births.

Certified nurse-midwifes are legally permitted to practice in all 50 states under a patchwork of state regulations that include doctor and hospital backup. They can prescribe medicines in 32 states.

Some go into private practice, providing routine gynecologic care, or they work in the practices of doctors, more of whom are moving away from obstetrics because of the high cost of malpractice insurance.

Still other midwives work with big-city public health agencies or for health maintenance organizations that consider them experts on uncomplicated births, with a good track record of heading off problems, such as low birth weight, and costly surgical procedures, such as Caesarean sections.

In 1989, nurse-midwives delivered 3.7 percent of the nation's 4 million babies, about 147,400 births, mostly in hospitals. The number of midwife-attended hospital births in the United States increased fivefold from 1975 to 1988, boosted by more middle-class women treatment from doctors they considered harsh and intrusive.

"People who are sick, that's who we're here for," said Dr. Kenneth Bell, medical director in Orange County, Calif., for the Kaiser Permanente Medical Care Program, one of the nation's largest health maintenance organizations. "Nurse-midwives are committed to the concept that labor and delivery is a nice, normal, healthy process. They help cut the cost of health care."

Before the rise of modern medicine, midwives prevailed in the birthplace. In 1910, they attended about half of all U.S. births.

Hung jury not likely in court martial

FORT BLISS, Texas (AP) — When Sgt. David Martinez of Albuquerque faces sexual assault charges in a general court martial, he will be dealing with a process slightly different from a civilian criminal trial.

Martinez, in his early 40s, has been accused of sexually assaulting a fellow reservist while the two were stationed at Saudi Arabia during the Gulf War. Army officials announced Friday he faces six charges and could receive up to 40 years in prison.

In a general court martial there is no chance for a hung jury. Military court martials find a person either guilty or innocent.

It takes two-thirds of the jury panel to convict. Any less and the person is acquitted.

Jurors will be chosen from a panel of officers and/or enlisted soldiers who already were selected to serve the military court for a specific term. In civilian cases, juries are chosen for each case.

If the accused soldier wants to be tried by a panel that includes enlisted soldiers, at least one-third of the panel must be enlisted. An accused military person must be tried by a panel of people higher in rank than the accused.

But like a civilian court, the military prosecutor and defense lawyer can remove prospective jurors. They can each strike one juror without providing any reason.

Beyond that, they can try to challenge the seating of any panelist if they can show cause why the person is unsuitable.

In a general court martial, the panel consists of at least five members from the original 10 or 12 prospective jurors. A Fort Bliss spokesman said Martinez would face a panel of six. Civilian juries commonly consist of 12 people whose verdict must be unanimous, although state laws vary.

Western Texas College will present paintings by Sum

A series of 13 painting by Western Texas College art instructor Ben C. Sum now hangs in the lobby area of the Fine Arts Theatre and the public is invited to view the works through Oct. 2.

Gallery hours for the Fine Arts Theatre are Monday-Friday 8 a.m.-5 p.m.

Sum works in a large format with most of the paintings — 12 oils and one watercolor — measuring 32 by 80 inches. Some are painted on actual wooden doors, complete with door knob effects which a critic of Sum's work commented "suggests a passage to some further space behind or beyond the painting."

Most of the works were part of his thesis for his master of fine arts degree, which he received from Texas Tech University this past May.

Two of the paintings involve self-portraits and most are of "everyday objects," he said.

Included in these are paintings of jumbled shoes, which Sum calls "family portraits without faces."

Carl Combert, who critiqued the works for Sum's thesis, commented. "The paintings are engaging, clever and fun."

Combert mentions a painting of an ordinary vacuum sweeper, noting "an orange electrical cord snakes across the lower part of the image, coming from and going to who knows where."

In all, he calls the works "paintings and drawings at once familiar and disturbing."

Sum was born in Canton, China, but has lived in the United States since 1971. He became a U.S. citizen in 1981.

Sept. 19, Dermott School...

Autograph reception set for Jane Gilmore Rushing

An autograph reception for Jane Gilmore Rushing, author of a new book, "Starting From Pyron," has been set for Saturday, Sept. 19, in the Dermott School.

Visitors will be welcomed to the Dermott School from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Mrs. Rushing, best known for her works of fiction, has paid tribute to the Pyron community where she was born in her latest non-fiction volume.

Joining her in autographing the new book at the reception will be a cousin, Billie Roche Barnard, who made many of the 81 photographs which illustrate the 150-page volume. She was also born in Pyron, located in east Scurry County.

The reception will be hosted jointly by the Scurry County Historical Commission and Historic Scurry County, Inc. In addition to the new book, they will have available for purchase a reprint of Mrs. Rushing's first novel, "Walnut Grove," first published in 1964 and recently reprinted by the Texas Tech University Press which also published "Starting From Pyron."

Man dead, woman jailed after 3-county chase

PECOS, Texas (AP) — A California man was fatally shot at a roadblock and another man injured during a 80-mile chase through three counties in a stolen car.

Patrick Alan Merrill, 30, died Thursday from gunshots fired at one of two roadblocks. The chase ended when the car he was in crashed into a sheriff's department vehicle at the second roadblock. Authorities said the car contained cocaine and heroin valued at $15,000.

Kelly Giordano, 26, the driver, was treated for minor injuries. She was jailed on multiple charges.

The chase began about 7:30 p.m. Thursday after a Department of Public Safety trooper learned the 1988 Honda with California plates had been stolen in Carlsbad, Calif. The trooper stopped the car and ordered Merrill and Ms. Giordano out.

Study finds more warheads are now stored on U.S. soil

WASHINGTON (AP) — While the end of the Cold War has reduced the number of U.S. nuclear warheads in the world, more of the weapons now are on American soil, according to private researchers.

As a result of arms treaties, weapons once stationed abroad are being returned to the United States for dismantling, storage or potential redeployment.

That has temporarily swelled the number of nuclear warheads on U.S. soil from about 14,600 in 1986 to about 16,200 last year, researchers William Arkin and Robert S. Norris said in a study being published today. The U.S. nuclear stockpile reached an all-time peak of 32,000 warheads in 1967.

South Carolina, for example, which has the most nuclear warheads of any state, has seen an increase to 2,258 warheads at the Charleston Naval Weapons Station, about 25 miles from the city, and the adjacent Atlantic Polaris Materiel Office. In 1985, warheads stored at those two sites totaled 1,962, the study said.

Likewise, New Mexico has seen its warhead total surge to 2,090 from 410 in 1985, boosting it to the No. 2 spot on the Arkin-Norris list of state totals. Kirtland Air Force Base near Albuquerque has acquired hundreds of Army tactical nuclear warheads shipped from Western Europe in recent months.

Other states now storing more nuclear weapons include Texas, where the Pantex plant near Amarillo has acquired warheads due to be dismantled. In 1992, there are an estimated 1,365 nuclear warheads in Texas, ranking fourth in the nation, compared with about 630 in 1985, then ranked sixth.

Others with more warheads are Louisiana, whose Barksdale Air Force base near Bossier City serves as one of the Air Force's three main U.S. nuclear weapons general depots; Kansas; Wyoming; Washington; North Dakota; Virginia; and Florida.

States losing nuclear warheads include California, New York, Hawaii, Arkansas, Georgia, Maine and Alaska.

In all, 25 states have nuclear weapons inside their borders, Arkin and Norris say; just two states of the 27 that had some in 1985 now have none — Arizona and New Hampshire.

The location of U.S. nuclear weapons, along with their numbers in any state or foreign country, is classified secret by the government. Arkin and Norris said they gathered their information from publicly available sources, including congressional testimony and government records.

Arkin, a former military intelligence officer, is director of military research for Greenpeace International. Norris is senior analyst at the Natural Resources Defense Council. They are among the leading non-government authorities on nuclear weapons.

Norris said few Americans are likely to realize, in the euphoria over U.S.-Russian agreements to drastically cut nuclear arsenals, that so far the deals have resulted in more nuclear weapons in their back yard.

"If people knew that nuclear weapons were being housed in their community, they might begin to question the necessity of having them at all," he said.

The two researchers also forecast that by the year 2000, when recently initialed U.S.-Russian arms treaties are fully implemented, Washington will become the state with the most nuclear warheads, up from its current rank of No. 5. Georgia will jump to the No. 2 spot from No. 20, and North Dakota will remain at No. 3.

South Carolina will drop to the ninth spot from its current No. 1 ranking because the 1,450 Poseidon warheads stored there for nuclear submarines will be retired while the vast majority of Trident I warheads will have been retired or transferred to King's Bay, Ga.

KIM MITCHELL
...visited Italy...

JOELLEN KING
...visited Austria...

MARIA RODRIGUEZ
...visited France...

Three Snyder High School students have recently returned from trips overseas arranged through Rotary International Youth Exchange. In addition, two of them brought a foreign exchange visitor who spent a few weeks in Snyder and West Texas, soaking up the hospitality which Texans are noted for.

Kim Mitchell, daughter of Janice Mitchell and a senior, visited with Paola Fumagalli in Melzo, Italy (near Milan) from June 27-July 21. Paola returned with Kim and stayed until Aug. 17.

Maria Rodriguez, daughter of Victor and Consuelo Rodriguez, lived in France with Benoit Fedricq and his family from June 5-July 10. He returned with her and visited with Carol and Drew Bullard and their children, Mark, 15, and Christina, 12, from July 10 to Aug. 13. Maria is a junior. Benoit lives in Ardennes, France, located in northeasten France near the Belgium border.

Joellen King, daughter of Courtney and Elaine King, visited Austria from June 18-Aug. 1. A senior, she participated in a different Rotary program and did not bring an Austrian visitor when she returned. Instead, she stayed with three different families.

Highlights of Kim's visit in Italy included visiting Venice, Florence, Verona and Genoa where she saw a statue of Christopher Columbus.

In Milan, she said they attended a ballet in the La Scala Theatre. Kim managed rather well because most of the people she met spoke English. Plus, she had also learned a few Italian words during her stay.

She said she loved walking along the canals of Venice at night best of all. She found the people to be very friendly and enjoyed learning more about Italian history and art.

Cultural differences she noticed centered around the young people who went out together as a group rather than as couples or individuals.

She observed a lot of people riding bikes and using the public transportation system. She said she also didn't encounter as many traffic laws as she is used to.

Kim has visited in Mexico and Guatamela, but this was her first trip to Europe. "I really liked being able to relate to another culture," she said.

During Paola's visit, Kim and her family took her to visit museums in Dallas and to a Texas Rangers game, her first baseball game.

They also took the Kennedy Tour which has had a surge in popularity since the release of recent movies and books on the assassination.

In San Antonio, they took in the sights and fun of Fiesta Texas and stopped in Fredricksburg to visit with Kim's grandmother.

Paola also attended a wedding of one of Kim's cousins.

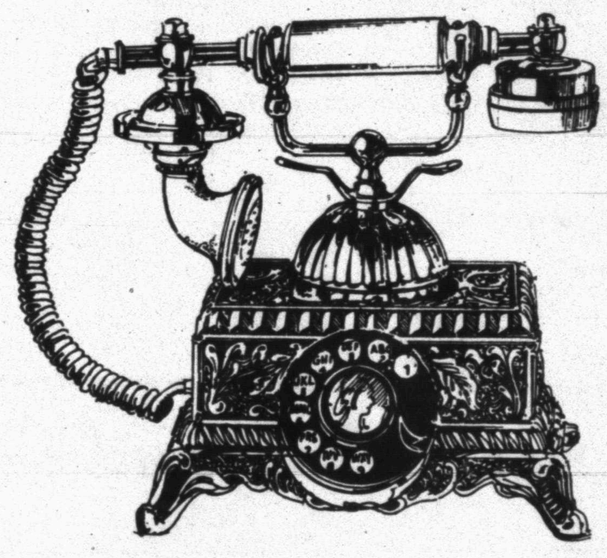

In Snyder, she spent a few days with Kim at Snyder High School before she returned to Italy where she will begin her fourth year of high school. Italy's school system has five years for high school.

Paola had visited the United States before when she accompanied her father, who owns several cinemas, to conventions. However, she had never visited Texas or small U.S. towns before this

Miss Echols, Gartman vows

ENGAGEMENT REVEALED — Pat and Dixon Phillips of Ira announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Marla Beth, to Mark Harlan Scott. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Scott of Odessa and Marlene Rogers of Austin. The couple plans a 10 a.m. wedding on Oct. 10 at Willow Park Inn. (Contributed Photo)

Rhonda Lee Echols of Waco and Steven Bradley Gartman of Hillsboro were united in marriage on July 18 at the First Baptist Church. The Rev. Ken Branam of Plymouth Park Baptist Church in Irving officiated the 6 p.m., double ring ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Tommy and Kay Echols and Dennis and Linda Gartman, all of Snyder.

The church was centered with a 15-light candelabrum holding diamond-cut votives and staged with two seven-light candelabra flanking hearts holding globe votives. All were enhanced with greenery and baby's breath.

Centered in the altar area was the unity candle assembled with flowers in wedding jewel tones and gold lame brocade ribbon. The choir and lower rails were lined with plumosa fern and baby's breath. The aisles were marked with gold lame brocade ribbon and greenery.

Sam Perry of Houston and Kristi Neill of Waco lead the worship time and congregational singing. Perry also sang "In Christ Alone." Miss Neill sang "When You Are A Soldier." "In Your Love," was sung by the groom to his bride. The song was written by Perry.

Judy Neill of Palestine, organist, played "The Bridal March."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a slipper satin, white gown heavily beaded on Schiffli lace. Her basque bodice featured a V neck and Schiffli bib with teardrop pearl dangles centering the front. Her deep V back, in matching lace, was finished with covered buttons.

Large tapered sleeves with beaded tuckings cascaded to the elbow. Her wide Schiffli cuffs accented the wedding band point. The full, bell skirt was hemmed with scalloping Schiffli lace. A large butterfly bow, with lace and pearl edgings, fell into the chapel train. Oversized Schiffli windows decorated the train.

Her filamented pearl band attached a double bridal illusion, fingertip veil and blusher.

Her gown was designed by Lile Designs and her veil was designed by T & G Bridals of New York.

The bride carried a cascading bouquet of two dozen red caramea roses, purple statice, lavender, alstroemeria lilies, and blue agapantha blossoms. It was decorated with pixie satin ribbon loops and streamers of gold braid in colors of blue, purple and hot pink.

In keeping with tradition, for something old the bride carried an antique handkerchief, given to her by an honorary family member, Anna Mae Perry; something new was her wedding attire; something borrowed was a tennis bracelet from her cousin, Kathy Cox; and something blue were her garters made by Mrs. Perry and Peggy English. She also carried a penny from the Carribean, given by the bride's future sister-in-law, Angela McLain. Her shoes were decorated by Lee Falls of Snyder.

Bridesmaids carried tear-shaped bouquets of hot pink pixie carnations, alstroemeria and roses. Matching streamers completed their bouquets.

Maid of honor was Amy Sanders of Austin. Matron of honor was Paula Boyd of Lubbock. Christy Smith of Lubbock, Kelli McMahan of Waco, Temi Jo McWilliams of Dallas and Kathy Cox of Irving, the bride's cousin, were bridesmaids.

Flower girl was Kayla Beck of Snyder.

Best men were Mike McWilliams of Dallas and Ken Gartman of San Angelo, the groom's brother. Groomsmen were Craig Watkins of Lubbock, Mitch Marcum of Houston, Van Echols of Snyder, the bride's brother; and Todd Perry of Lubbock. Ushers were Perry Echols of Snyder, brother of the bride; Chris Larsen of Gatesville; Shawn Corzine of Tyler; Stacy Kellums of Lubbock; Kyle Beck and Adam Beck, both of Snyder.

The groom was attired in a Robert Wagner Black Onyx tuxedo. He chose a white tie and white vest. The tuxedo had a formal black stripe and was complimented with a white pleated, wing collar shirt. The pleated black striped trousers matched the jacket. He wore a boutonniere adorned with a matching flower and baby's breath.

The male attendants wore Robert Wagner Black Onyx tuxedos, matching the groom's, with a black satin vest and black tie. Groomsmen, ushers and fathers of the couple wore identical tuxedos and accessories.

A reception was held in the fellowship hall following the double ring ceremony. The room was surrounded with multiple fresh flowers and potted plants.

The bride's 18-foot serpentine table was the focal point. It was draped with satin, overlayed with white wedding lace adorned with scallops of lace, accented with bows and streamers in the bride's colors.

The centerpiece, a gold candelabrum with 28 votive candles, was placed beside the bridal bouquet.

The four-tiered wedding cake was decorated with scallops of lace and pearls. Each tier was separated with lace five-inch pillars. Fresh flowers of carnations, red roses, narcissus, stephanotis and greenery separated the layers. White napkins with hearts surrounded a rose and the couple's names. The top layer displayed an arrangement of fresh flowers.

Mock champagne was served from a fountain topped with fresh flowers. Punch, mixed nuts, dried fruit mix and butter mints were served by Holly Fuller of Lubbock, Jodie Dunk of Snyder, and Rebecca Vestal of Lubbock.

The groom's table was draped with a satin floor-length cover and an overlay, scalloped to match the bride's table. Bows and streamers decorated the table set with silver and crystal appointments. A BU-shaped (Baylor University) chocolate cake was filled with German chocolate and frosted with a cream cheese frosting. Greenery surround the cake. Coffee was served from a sterling silver service and mixed nuts were held by a silver dish, both belonging to the bride's grandmother. A crystal footed bowl held trail mix. The centerpiece was a silver candelabrum holding five white tapers surrounded by the bride's throw-away bouquet and the five attendant's bouquets. Serving were Sunni Johnson of Waco and the groom's cousin, Lisa Ledbetter of Lubbock.

A gift table in the fellowship hall, draped with a white satin and lace cloth, also held rice bags. Another table of memories was covered with a white cloth and overlayed with a lavish cloth belonging to Mrs. Don Gray. Displayed were photographs of the couple and a bridal album.

The wedding reception was catered by Reta's Cake Shop and hosted by the bride's parents.

MR. AND MRS. STEVEN BRADLEY GARTMAN

A rehearsal dinner was hosted by the groom's parents the evening prior to the wedding, also catered by Reta's Cake Shop and Texas Bar-B-Q. Mike Graham organized the dinner. Tables were decorated with green cloths and yellow napkins. Baylor memorabilia, used to decorate, was loaned by Mr. and Mrs. Ace Collins of Hillsboro and the Baylor Bear Football Department.

Following the couple's honeymoon in San Antonio, they have made their home in Hillsboro where the groom is the student minister at First Baptist Church and will attend Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary.

The groom is a 1988 graduate of Snyder High School and a 1992 graduate of Baylor with a degree in sociology.

The bride is a 1989 SHS graduate and is currently attending Baylor, earning a degree in secondary education to teach biology and health.

Deadline for scholarships announced

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Nov. 1 is the deadline for applications to the International Association of Culinary Professionals' 1993-94 Culinary Scholarship Program.

Anyone "interested in pursuing culinary careers and receiving the highest quality training" may apply, according to the IACP Foundation, formerly the Cooking Advancement, Research and Education Foundation. This includes high school, college, or trade school graduates; culinary professionals; and those seeking to switch careers.

Fifty-one scholarships totaling $125,000 in student aid were awarded for the 1992-93 academic year, the IACP said. The scholarships were awarded to cooking schools in the United States and Europe.

For a 1993-94 scholarship application, send your name, address and zip code to: IACP Foundation Scholarships, 304 West Liberty St., Suite 201, Louisville, Ky 40202.

She remarked that she found "American people to be very friendly." She was connected with a group of Rotary foreign exchange students who were based in Amarillo.

Maria chose to visit France because, she said, "I had never been anywhere before and I wanted to see how other people really live."

She visited historic castles in Belgium, traveled the subways in French cities, visited the Arc de Triomphe, the Discovery Palace and took yacht trips.

"I thought the boat rides were the most fun," Maria said. "I also liked going to the top of the Eiffel Tower because I could see all of Paris from there."

Maria had taken two years of French which helped her communicate. Benoit also speaks English and she said his mother was very patient when she explained things in French.

Now that Maria has experienced another way of life, she would like to go somewhere again one day. "I was living in a box before. Now I am more aware of the world," she said.

Maria, who has four brothers and one sister, has been listed as a Top Ten freshman and sophomore. She also served as vice president of her freshman class and was active in the French Club for two years. Her father is employed by Pride Petroleum.

This was Benoit's second trip to the U.S. Two years ago he visited in Wisconsin, but this summer was his first visit to Texas.

He enjoyed visiting points in Texas and New Mexico with the Bullard family. He especially liked the museums and the architecture of Santa Fe, N.M. and visiting pueblos.

They also attended a Rangers game in Dallas, a rodeo and Six Flags. Benoit said he wasn't sure what Texans or Texas would be like because "I only had a movie version of what it would be like."

One of the things which surprised him about Texas was the distance between some of the places they visited.

Since he was curious about America and Americans, Benoit said he decided to apply to the Rotary program. He said this summer has been a good one because it has given him the opportunity to "learn more about the English language and to learn about the difference between cultures."

Traveling "also opened my eyes and helps me to make judgments about what I see," he added.

Benoit has been studying English since the age of 12. He has a sister who spent two weeks in England this summer. His father is a pharmacist and his mother is a nurse. Benoit also intends to become a pharmacist.

Joellen lived briefly with three Austrian families in Linz, Vienna and Graz. She shared her Austrian families with other U.S. students participating in the Rotary program.

She shared her first and second families in Linz and Vienna, respectively, with a girl from California. In the first family, the dad managed one of the largest industries in Vienna, a son was attending a university in Germany, a daughter had just graduated from high school and one other was still in school.

During that visit, Joellen also visited in Czechslovakia, Salzburg and attended a ball in Vienna which she "enjoyed very much."

While with the second family, Joellen visited Prague, Budapest, attended a German production of "Phantom of the Opera" and a Genesis concert.

The dad in that family was a banker. His two sons visited briefly before embarking on their own Rotary arranged exchange visits.

The third family in Graz consisted of the dad who made insulation for pipes. A daughter was already visiting in the U.S. and two others were at home during Joellen's visit.

During her stay in Austria, she enjoyed sight seeing, hiking, visiting lakes and mountains. She shared this family with a girl from Barrow, Alaska and a boy from Connecticut.

Joellen liked her Austrian stay not only because of all the sights she took in but also because she got along very well with the other exchange students.

"I liked being with other Americans. Austria is a very beautiful country. Everything was fun, but I really liked Prague," she said.

This summer was Joellen's first experience as a foreign exchange student, but previously she had traveled to Jamaica. She said she became interested in the Rotary program because she knew other students who had participated and she had known some of the exchange students who visited in Snyder.

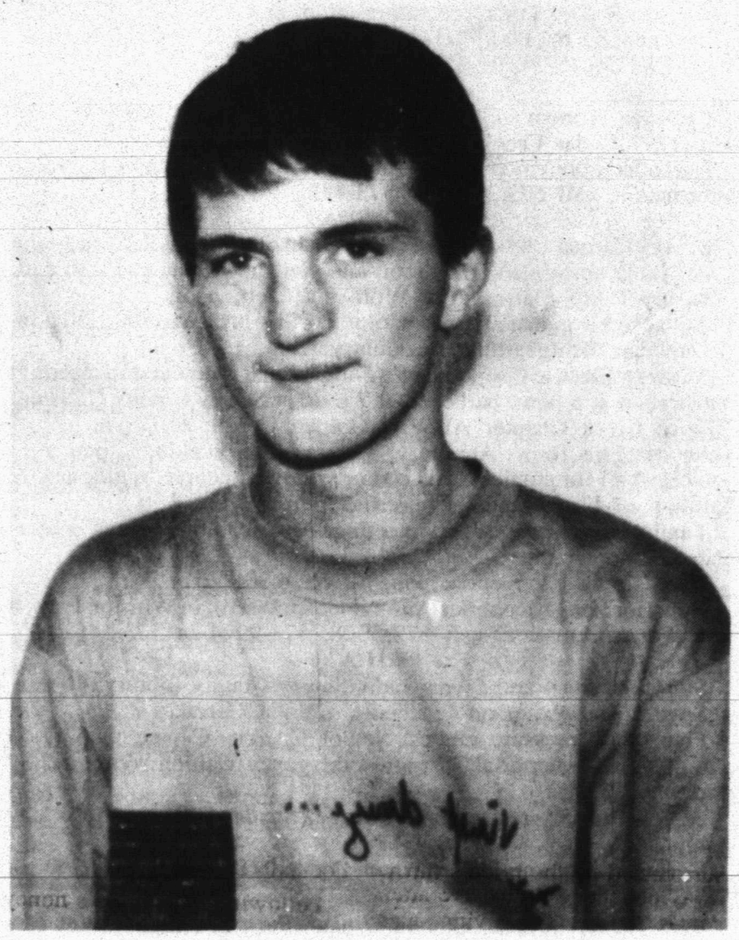

"I knew it would be a fun experience," she said. "Switzerland was my first choice, but since they do not have a strong exchange program there I picked Austria instead.

"I learned a lot about myself and the Austrian culture. I have learned how to communicate with people from other countries," Joellen said.

She said she found the Austrian people to be "very friendly." They were eager to make her happy and were proud to share their culture and history with her.

She did encounter a slight difference in routines though. Austrians eat a small breakfast, big lunch and small supper. While in Austria, she said she met a boy from California who was "amazed at how friendly the Austrians were."

At Snyder High School, Joellen is active in volleyball, track, choir and drama.

Mrs. Orms to be 100 years old

Mrs. Essie Laura Orms will be honored with several events celebrating her 100th birthday. She was born on Sept. 3, 1892, in Paris.

Faith Baptist Church will recognize Mrs. Orms during the service Sunday and cake and punch will be served after worship service, according to the pastor, Rev. Jason Rogers.

Her family plans to honor her at a reunion on Sept. 6 at the Union Community Center.

She has three sons, Lewis of Longview, Clyde of Miami, Fla., and Johnny of Snyder; two daughters, Rea Jordan of Snyder and Mary Bishop of Gonzales, La.; 26 grandchildren; 43 great-grandchildren; and 16 great-great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Orms resides in a local nursing home.

Farmer's almanac has a new friend

DUBLIN, N.H. (AP) — Ever consider cooking salmon in your bathtub, making jelly from your garden roses, or keeping flies out of your kitchen with a bouquet of basil?

Or would you like to know how to fold "fancy" napkins, cook the "perfect" egg, or brew the "perfect" coffee?

These are just a few of the hundreds of zany (and not so zany) cooking, gardening and household hints in the "1993 Hearth & Home Companion" ($2.50), from Yankee Publishing, publishers of "The Old Farmer's Almanac."

Georgia Orcutt, editor of "Hearth & Home," says the new publication is designed as a reference guide to cooking, gardening, or just doing things around the house.

Inventors Thomas Alva Edison and Alexander Graham Bell differed in their approaches in that Edison tended to identify a commercial need and look for a way to Church, candlelight rites unite Staci Dunn, Neeley

Staci Lyn Dunn of San Angelo and Brandon Scott Neeley of Snyder were united in marriage in the First Christian Church in Snyder at 7 p.m. on June 6. Bill Looney, associate minister of 37th Street Church of Christ, officiated the double ring ceremony.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Skeet Dunn of Colorado City, and parents of the groom are Jane Neeley of Snyder and the late Ed Neeley. Grandparents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Travis Mashburn of Henderson and Mrs. Christine Dunn Sheid of Big Spring. Grandmothers of the groom are Mrs. Belle Merchant of Irving and the late Mrs. Erma Cox of Snyder.

As the mothers of the bride and groom entered, "There Is Love," was sung by Barbara Heffernan of Conroe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lonnie Terry of Snyder. She was accompanied by pianist Barbara Tune of Snyder. "The Bridal March," played by Mrs. Tune, accompanied the entry of the attendants and the bride.

Ms. Heffernan and Craig Watkins of Lubbock sang "The Battle Hymn of Love" as the bride stood before the altar with her father, who gave her in marriage.

The groom, along with guitarist Craig Watkins, sang "I'll Still Be Loving You" following the marriage vows, which were written originally and pronounced by the bride and the groom. Jerry Worsham of Snyder read No. 43 from "Sonnets From the Portuguese," by Elizabeth Barrett Browning.

The bride's floor-length gown of white satin was fashioned with a portrait neckline, accented with silk illusion and appliqued with sequins, seed pearls and pearl droplets. The gown was designed with long, tapered sleeves, a low back, a princess waistline and a straight skirt, outlined in scalloped appliques. A satin bow held the detachable train accented with beaded appliques.

Her veil of silk illusion, trimmed with pearls, was attached to a headpiece of white silk flowers and strung pearls.

For something borrowed, the bride wore a pearl and diamond ring given by one of her bridesmaids, Stacie Robbins, of The Woodlands. For something old, she wore an amethyst medallion given by Dr. Albert M. Taylor which had been worn by brides in his family over generations.

She carried a bouquet of white Hawaiian lilies, trumpet lilies and gold lame ribbon, designed by Travis Flowers.

The groom was attired in a white double-breasted tuxedo jacket with a black lapel and tapered-leg black pants by Raffinati. He wore a white trumpet lily boutonniere. The groomsmen and ushers wore black double-breasted tuxedos by Raffinati.

The bridal attendants were dressed in floor-length fitted black bengaline taffeta gowns, designed by the bride and made by Dorothy Tate of Hermleigh. The straight black gowns were accented with off-the-shoulder necklines featuring white file overlay bows. Each bridesmaid carried a white candelabrum accented with white lilies and gold lame ribbon.

Ginger Gurley of Lubbock served as the maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Angela McLain of San Angelo, Stacie Robbins of The Woodlands, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C.B. Robbins, formerly of Snyder; and Deone Farmer of Waco, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Farmer of Snyder. Kali Looney of Canyon, the groom's niece, was flower girl and Dusty Dunn and Kobe Looney, nephews of the bride and groom respectively, were ringbearers.

Stephanie Warren of Lubbock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Steve Warren of Snyder, registered guests.

Scott Lanier of Lubbock, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Lanier of Snyder, was best man. The groomsmen were Eddie Neeley, brother of the groom; Chris Robbins of Lubbock, son of Mr. and Mrs. C.B. Robbins, and Craig Watkins of Lubbock. Serving as ushers were Galen Price, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Price of Snyder, and Sam Strahan of Lamesa.

The bridal aisle was decorated with bows of white satin, tulle and gold lame. The altar area was accented with tall brass stands adorned with assorted arrangements, seven-branch standing candelabras, arrangements of white lilies and a unity candle surrounded by greenery, was decorated by Travis Flowers.

Mr. and Mrs. Neeley were honored at a reception at the 37th Street Church of Christ Family Center following the ceremony. The serpentine serving table was accented by gold flatware and a coffee service furnished by Mr. and Mrs. Milton Ham. Servers for the bride's table were Tammie Wadkins of San Angelo, daughter of Jackie Wadkins of Snyder and Stephanie Warren. Servers at the groom's table were Becky Looney of Canyon, sister of the groom, and Kristen Walton of Abilene. The reception was decorated and catered by Reta Graham from Reta's Cake Shop of Snyder.

The couple was also honored with several prenuptial parties. The bride's friends and bridesmaids hosted a lingerie shower on May 16 at the home of Stacie Robbins in San Angelo. The rehearsal dinner was hosted by the mother of the groom on June 5 at the Snyder Country Club.

Sally Walton of Snyder and her daughter, Kristen, hosted a prenuptial party at their home at 9 p.m. on June 5. On the wedding day, the bride was honored with a bridal luncheon at noon at the Snyder Country Club, hosted by Bitsy Stone and Peggy Gray, both of San Angelo.

The bride is a 1988 graduate and salutatorian of Snyder High School and a 1991 summa cum laude graduate of Angelo State University. She is currently employed by San Angelo Country Club. In the fall, she will be a full-time graduate student and graduate assistant in the English Department of ASU.

The groom is a 1988 graduate of Snyder High School. He was formerly employed by Reef Chemical Company of Snyder and is currently employed by Dillard's of San Angelo.

Following their honeymoon in Ocho Rios, Jamaica, Mr. and Mrs. Neeley are at home in San Angelo.

Polly's Pointers by Polly Fisher

DEAR POLLY — To pit cherries, use a paper clip. Open the paper clip so it forms an "s" shape. Slip one curved end into the stem end of the cherry, then pull the seed out. Very easy! — CECILIA

DEAR POLLY — When making jam or jelly, use a spatula for stirring. It does a much better job than a spoon. When skimming the top, use the spatula to push the foam to the edge and a spoon to scoop it up. You won't believe how fast you'll be done. — NANCY

DEAR POLLY — A lady complained about cats in her yard, so here's what works for me. I fill a blender pitcher half full with water and add orange peels (or any citrus fruit peels). I grind this in the blender to a fine pulp until I have a soupy mixture. I then sprinkle this on the ground, in flower beds, on the doorstep or any place I want to be "cat-free." It works! — EVA

DEAR POLLY — I've found that baking fruit pies in an ovenproof, glass pie plate helps keep the bottom crust from getting soggy. I bake fruit pies at 450 degrees for 15 minutes, then turn the oven down to 350 degrees and continue baking for 35 to 40 minutes. And I never have soggy crusts. — MRS. E.J.

HIGHLIGHTING

If you want to warm and perk up your natural color, highlighting is for you. We can add rich red tones or sunny shades of blonde. Although the effect is subtle, it is permanent. A few highlights may grow out gracefully, but more extensive highlighting will need touching up. Usually every three to four months, depending on how heavily the hair is highlighted, how much contrast there is between your own color, the highlights and how fast your hair grows. In Lubbock church...

York, Amonett nuptials

Miss Catherine Sue York and Marc Gaylon Amonett were united in marriage on Saturday, July 25 in the Indiana Avenue Baptist Church in Lubbock.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Van York of Borden County. She is the granddaughter of Bud and Dollie Smith and the late Lee Francis and Johnnie York of Lubbock.

Mr. and Mrs. Gaylon Amonett of Lubbock are the parents of the groom. His grandparents are Bernice and the late Tom Walters and Jessie and the late Posey Amonett of Ralls.

Officiating the double ring ceremony was John Randall, pastor of the church.

Presented in marriage by her father, the bride wore a candlelight satin gown fashioned with a sweetheart neckline and flowing train edged with pearls and lace. The bodice was completely covered in miniature seed pearls.

Her hat which was covered with lace and pearls to match the dress, supported a chin length veil. Sheer netting from the hat draped her back and the V-neckline of the dress. A satin bow accented the back below the fitted waist.

The bride carried a cascading bouquet of stephanotis, baby's breath and English ivy.

Traditionally, for something old, the bride carried a Bible belonging to her great-great-grandfather, J.S. York; something new was her gown and hat; something borrowed was a diamond ring belonging to her late grandmother, Johnnie Sue York; something blue was a garter hand sewn by her mother.

Kris York, sister-in-law of the bride, served as matron of honor and was attired in a strapless, floral, A-line dress of green, rose and white. Bridesmaids were Kim Lee of Seagraves and June Reedy of Lubbock. Their dresses were designed to match the matron of honor's with a reversal of colors. They carried long-stemmed giant gladiolus bound with large rose bows.

Jennifer Massey, cousin of the groom, was the flower girl. She wore a long candlelight dress accented with bows around the gathered skirt and carried a lace-trimmed basket of silk petals. Ring bearer was Bobby Grey of Lubbock, cousin of the groom.

MR. AND MRS. MARC GAYLON AMONETT

The mothers of the bride and groom were ushered into the church by their sons, Van Lee York Jr. and Alex Amonett to background music "Smoke Gets In Your Eyes." They were chaperoned to the altar by their husbands to light candles placed beside the bride's and groom's unity candle.

The bride and her father entered the church to the traditional "Here Comes the Bride." They paused as the bride presented individual red roses to each mother of the couple-to-be. Background music from "The Man From Snowy River" played during the nuptial service. "Jessica's Theme" highlighted the lighting of the unity candle.

Cody Byrd of Dalhart served as best man. Groomsmen were Todd Giles and Van Lee York of Lubbock. The groom wore an ivory fulldress tuxedo and members of the wedding party wore black tuxedos with ivory shirt.

A reception was held in the fellowship hall of the church. The bride's table was adorned with a three-tier white cake with an orchid and roses cascading down the first layer. The top layer supported a Precious Moments bride and groom. Punch, pecans and almonds were served from crystal and handpainted serving trays.

The groom's table held a white cake with whipped cream icing. The beverage was served from a silver coffee service and centerpiece of stephanotis and English ivy.

The groom attended Texas Tech University and is employed by Fields and Company. The bride is a graduate of Lubbock Christian University with a degree in secondary education. She plans to teach English/Language Arts. After a brief honeymoon, the couple makes their home in Oklahoma City.

Today's deal is the first that the spectators saw in the final between the United States and Austria four years ago. In a match that featured some surprisingly poor play, this deal set the tone.

The Americans played in four spades, winning 10 tricks. The Austrians got much higher. South's three bids combined persuaded North that his partner held six spades and five clubs. Deutsch, West, thinking East must have at most one club, led the ace and another club.

Now it looked as though declarer would make his slam. When the heart break came to light, South could take a ruffing finesse against East's heart king and discard his diamond loser on dummy's established heart winner. However, declarer didn't draw any trumps. Immediately he led a heart to the ace and ruffed a low heart with the spade three. Unluckily for declarer, West overruffed with the four: one down.

Taxing the polls

NEW YORK (AP) — In the 13th century, "poll" meant the top or back of a head and came to mean the counting or entering of votes and, also, to vote at a poll or to give one's vote, according to etymologists.

"Poll tax," a tax on heads (or, in other words, people) became in this country a tax that one had to pay in some states to vote in elections.

YA'LL COME!

A Thank You!

To our friends in Snyder and the Scurry County Area:

For seventeen years you have warmly welcomed us as a part of your community. It seems that often we get busy and forget to say thanks! My staff and I are constantly impressed by the unique and wonderful people we continuely meet and grow to know as friends.

Through the past decade, we have seen hard economic times in all of West Texas. The "can do" attitude of this area always amazes us. We seldom see anything but smiles, wonderful attitudes and a positive sense of the future. We never fail to be impressed by the sense of all this when we are here in Snyder each week. The entire area "community" deserves an 'ol fashioned West Texas pat on the back. As "part timers" we can blow your horn without reservation. There is a special sense of spirit, family, and community here, regardless of circumstance. We are glad we have been a part of it and we hope to help contribute to this "special" place in the years to come.

Thank you,
Joe Forsman

Buffalo Reef

By Bill McClellan

I was in a store the other day buying something or another, when I saw a woman walk in wearing cutoff jeans and a tank top. Her hair was either uncombed or in some style unrecognizable to me. She came up to the counter, and ignoring that the cashier was counting out change, said loudly, "I'm here to see about a job interview."

Her words were slurred a little, probably because they had to force their way around the wad of gum in her mouth.

The cashier got the manager, who took one look at the woman and said, "Uh, I'm afraid we're not hiring right now."

The woman kind of snorted, then stomped out of the store.

Watching her leave, the manager mumbled to no one in particular, "Well, we're not hiring her, anyway."

I don't blame him.

It makes you wonder. Does she really want to get hired or is she obligated by someone to go apply for a job? Maybe she's living at home and her parents are getting tired of footing all the bills. Or maybe she's drawing unemployment and has to report back to the Texas Employment Commission that she's at least trying to find a job.

Or do you suppose she honestly does not realize that employers aren't likely to hire her if she comes to an interview in cutoffs and a tanktop, smacking gum?

A while back, I was reading some information compiled by the Texas Employment Commission on why job applicants are turned down.

Surprisingly, lack of an education is way back — seventh, I think — among reasons why employers turn down applicants. Lack of experience is the main reason. Second is an inability to communicate during an interview, followed by a lack of interest in the job, poor appearance, bad references and a history of job-hopping.

What employers look for most, is job-related experience. Personal qualities, such as a positive attitude and maturity, are also important.

The information also listed employers' major gripes.

Getting employees to arrive for work on time is the biggest complaint employers have about those who work for them. Thirty-two percent of employers fire employees most often for being tardy or absent. Nineteen percent say a bad attitude or a bad work ethic are prime reasons for termination and 18 percent say they most often fire employees for being dishonest or breaking company rules.

Another part of the report was directed at the role schools should, could, or do play in preparing students for jobs. Thirty-five percent of employers say that teaching writing, reading and arithmetic should be a top priority. About 30 percent believe work ethic and responsibility should be part of the curriculum. And 15 percent say communication is vital.

Employers also think public schools should teach specific trades and instill personal qualities such as honesty, empathy and optimism.

Finally, employers say the best way to find good employees is still by word of mouth. Newspaper ads are the second biggest source, followed by an applicant pool file, TEC or other employment services.

And it's okay to show up in a tank top and cutoffs, as long as you're applying for a job as a lifeguard.

Country Life

By Deanie Francis Mills

I had an interesting conversation with my mentor and friend, Dean R. Koontz, the other day. The publishing industry had been agog when he fired his agent a few weeks ago, then left his long-time publisher, Putnam/Berkley. (And my agent was agog because I had known about it before anybody in New York did. (Got to keep these people on their toes, you know.)

Dean had called to fill me in on all the juicy gossip on what took place during the ordeal, and to give me the happy news that his new agent had just made a deal for him with one of the most prestigious publishers in the business, Knopf/Random House. It was the biggest deal in the publisher's history, a three-book deal for 18 to 22 million dollars, followed by a paperback deal with Ballantine for an additional 10 million.

I asked him, "Does there ever come a time when all this becomes unreal, that the numbers are just zeros on a page?" And he laughed and said, "Not yet!"

I understood exactly what he meant.

Dean grew up in Pennsylvania, the son of a mean-spirited coal miner. One of his father's favorite forms of discipline was to throw the boy into a filthy, dark, dirt cellar under the house and leave him for hours; scenes which were played out vividly in his 1980 best seller, "Whispers." (The whispers were the sounds of all the cockroaches' wings rubbing together.)

He married his high school sweetheart, Gerda (the "g" is pronounced like a "j"), and worked his way through college, winning a short story contest for "The Atlantic Monthly" magazine when he was 21. It was a story about a boy, forced by his father to drown a litter of kittens.

When Avon, a paperback subsidiary of Putnam, offered him a thousand dollars for his first novel, he grabbed at it. For years he wrote four novels a year, under four different pseudonyms and in four different genres, for four or five thousand dollars apiece, while his wife waited tables. Sometime he had to call his publisher and beg for his latest check, so that they cold buy heating fuel. (Eventually, they moved to southern California.)

Year after year, Dean fought heroic battles with his publisher, trying to break out of the Horror, Science-Fiction mold they placed him in. He invented a technique known as "cross-genre;" mixing two or more genres together in one big, mainstream suspense tale. When he wrote "Whispers" — an experience so draining he lost 25 pounds — they wanted him to cut the book in half, and threatened not to promote it when he refused. It made him a national best seller anyway. (A later book, "Watchers," made him a star.)

For a number of years now, his books automatically make number one on the New York Times Best Seller list, the week they are published. With two full-time assistants, he works to juggle his world-wide publishing projects, movie deals, and the like.

He answers every single fan letter himself.

And he encourages new talent, bucking up the frequently flagging spirits of younger authors like myself, down here in the trenches, trying to make it. He knows exactly how it feels. He's been there. And been there. A driven personality, he still works seven days a week, fourteen hours a day, always striving to improve his craft.

From Dean I have learned the importance of believing in yourself and in your work, hanging in there for the long haul, and fighting for what you know is right. I've learned that more than simple goal-setting, it's vital to have a true vision for yourself; an inner conviction of exactly where you want to be and how you want to get there. And that it doesn't matter one whit where you came from in the first plae.

To my friend and mentor, Dean R. Koontz, I raise my glass in congratulations. It couldn't have happened to a more deserving person.

THE ADVENTURES OF MR. TUFFY

Editorial roundup

The 10 men and one woman who make up the County Education District 11 board met this past week to set the 1992-93 tax rate.

It's a thankless job, and somebody had to do it.

CED 11 is composed of 11 school districts from five counties. The districts range in enrollment from over 3,000 students to fewer than 300. Some of the counties draw wealth from large oil companies. Others rely on little more than farmland.

How does a group of 11 people hammer out an acceptable tax rate? There are inequities in tax collection from district to district and county to county, sometimes in valuations, and certainly there is loyalty to each person's own school system.

In the end, the trustees of CED 11 compromised well. They put students first — not just students of their individual districts — but students of the entire CED. And yet, they did their best to keep the rate down, and searched for any relief possible for the taxpayer.

In nearby Mitchell County, where only three districts comprise the CED, sheriff's deputies have been called in to keep order. But in CED 11, there has not been a word said in anger — in passion, perhaps, but not anger.

CED 11 board members were able to get done what had to be done — the state mandated that they do it — and they've done it with respect and the best intentions.

It wasn't something they wanted to do.

"It's obvious to everybody, except maybe the legislature, that CEDs are not going to work," said Chairman Buddy Baldridge of Jayton. "It's obvious that everybody is worse off."

It's always hard to make tough decisions when there is no workable solution. But the board members of CED 11 have done their best and they deserve to be thanked for a job well done.

The Corpus Christi Caller-Times on world hunger:

Given the tragic events in Somalia and the Sudan, where starvation is endemic, a report delivered at Brown University this month is surprising. Robert W. Kates, a geography professor who heads Brown's world hunger project, says the percentage of the world's population which is hungry is less than half that of the 1950s — dropping from 23 to 9 percent. Moreover, says Kates, outright famine has declined, thanks to the Green Revolution's success in expanding food production.

Where widespread starvation now exists, says Kates, is in those lands like Somalia and Sudan where continuous warfare has wrecked the food production and distribution systems. ...

But Kates warns there is another factor: population. ...

The United States, working through the United Nations and in concert with other developed states, has a great humanitarian opportunity, a challenge to take the place of the Cold War. It should support U.N. policies to deliver food supplies to the populations of nations involved in conflicts, as is now being done in Bosnia and Somalia. And it must participate in worldwide population control efforts — as the administration has thus far refused to do, instead undercutting such programs in deference to domestic politics. That policy must change.

Austin American-Statesman on U.S. and Haiti:

A new report by Amnesty International accuses Haiti's military of effectively recreating the brutality of the Duvalier regime and accuses the Bush administration of covering up the abuses. Whether the latter charge is valid or not, the report underscores the failure not only of the United States but also the entire hemisphere to make a real effort to bring about democratic change to the isle of misery ...

We can't just ignore the cries of anguish; we can't just turn away refugees. We can't even "just" restore democracy and expect it to take root in sterile soil. We helped create the situation. We are obliged to help make things right.

Video series on childbirth to begin here on Sept. 1

A series of videos concerning "Preparations For Childbirth" will be shown weekly at St. John's Episcopal Church, beginning Tuesday, Sept. 1, and continuing on Sept. 8, 15, and 29. No video will be shown on Sept. 22. A registered nurse will be available to answer questions during each presentation.

This series is being co-sponsored by St. John's and Grace Lutheran Church. The videos are being offered as an outreach service to the community and no admission will be charged.

Each video will be shown at the church on Tuesdays from 10 a.m. to around noon. The series was prepared by registered nurses and other professionals for use by the Good Samaritan Clinic in San Antonio.

The first video entitled, "Going to the Clinic," will include the following topics:

—Pregnant nutrition and fetal development.
—Medical exam and routine lab tests.
—Precautions of pregnancy, smoking, alcohol, drugs and environment.
—Danger signs during pregnancy.
—Breathing and relaxing for labor and delivery.

Other video in the series include:

—Sept. 8 — "Your Pregnant Body."
—Sept. 15 — "Having Your Baby."
—Sept. 29 — "After Birth."

Anyone interested in attending the first video session is asked to sign up by noon on Monday, Aug. 31, or to call 573-3444 or 573-0943 and leave a message.

Childcare will also be available at the church.

For more information, call 573-1504.

Jaycees earn top awards

Members of the Snyder Jaycees attended the Texas Jaycees Summer Board Five Outstanding Young Texans (F.O.Y.T.) Convention in Dallas on Aug. 21-23.

The local chapter was recognized as one of the top 20 ranking chapters in Parade of Chapters. A plaque was awarded. The chapter also received a certificate for Blue Chip Submission. (Blue Chip is the name given to the chapter Plan of Action for the year.)

A wine glass inscribed with the Texas Jaycees theme for the year, "The Heat Is On," was presented to the chapter for attaining President's Team status for the first quarter of this year. Makala Roberts, president, accepted the award.

Rudy Garza also received awards for being the #1 regional director in the state for the month of July and for ranking #2 in the Parade of Officers for the first quarter.

Elida Garza received a plaque for being the #1 Program Manager in the Parade of Program Managers under Individual Development for the first quarter.

Dr. Gott

by Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My brother suffered an embolus to the brain five years ago that left him partially paralyzed with some memory loss. Medical treatment, including extensive therapy, has had very little effect on his recovery. News about a doctor in Northeast China indicates that a combination of traditional Chinese medicine with acupuncture might be beneficial. The doctor introduces a needle in several points of the head to stimulate the nerves, the patient is given a bonnet to wear that has been previously treated with Chinese medicine, and this penetrates through the acupuncture points. Dr. Zhou, the inventor, affirms that 80 percent of the patients treated have been cured.

DEAR READER: Three cheers for Dr. Zhou. But don't get your hopes up.

Your brother had an embolus, a blood clot that was carried to the brain where it stuck, blocking the blood supply to part of the nervous system. When deprived of oxygen for more than about three minutes, nerve tissue dies. If this affects part of the brain (as in your brother's case), permanent damage ensues. I repeat: permanent. Nothing on God's green earth, including the Dr. Zhous of the world, can fix this.

Could acupuncture and the herb bonnet help other conditions? Possibly. If the technique has merit, it will be tried by other practitioners in China (and elsewhere). Eventually, it will be accepted or rejected based on whether it is effective or not. If Dr. Zhou, who stands to make a financial killing, is the only person achieving an 80 percent cure-rate, beware: This smells like a scam.

Also, beware of "news reports" touting new and revolutionary medical "cures" in exotic parts of the world. This type of reporting, which smacks of super-market tabloidism, is often inaccurate and anecdotal, with a primary purpose that is distinctly unhumanitarian: to sell papers or magazines.

I've said this before and I'll say it again. Effective medical/surgical treatments have gone through extensive investigation and trial. Such meticulous analyses enable scientists to determine appropriate uses for (and complications of) the treatments. The public must resist the temptation to believe questionable reports and must reject untested and unproved therapies that do little more than bring their developers unjustified fame and fortune.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Fads II — Herbs and Healing Fads." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

Bronchial asthma is a chronic, cyclic lung disease marked by spasms of the bronchial passages and increased production of pulmonary mucus, leading to shortness of breath, wheezing and coughing. Asthma-related fatalities are inexplicably on the rise; therefore, authorities are increasingly devoting their attention to factors that trigger asthma.

Conventionally, infection was believed to be the single most common event that set asthma in motion. Modern experts, however, have identified myriad substances (usually related to occupation) that can initiate an asthma attack in a susceptible individual. I have adapted the following list from Emergency Medicine, March 15, 1992.

ASTHMA DUE TO	SEEN PRIMARILY IN
animal danders	animal handlers
wool	textile workers
birds	bird fanciers, poultry workers
bee moths	fish-bait breeders
cockroaches	laboratory workers
crickets	field hands
grain mites	grain workers
grain weevils	millers
locusts	laboratory workers
maggots	anglers
moths and butterflies	entomologists
river flies	power-plant workers
screwworm flies	flight crews
silkworm larvae	sericulturists
crabs	seafood processors
fish glue	book binders, postal workers
prawns	seafood processors
sea squirts	oyster farmers
buckwheat	bakers
castor bean	oil workers
cinnamon	spice processors
coffee bean	processors
cotton, flax, hemp	textile workers
garlic dust	spice processors grain dust	grain handlers
gum acacia	printers
gum tragacanth	gum manufacturers
hops	brewery chemists
karaya gum	food processors
tamarind seeds	spice processors
tea	tea workers
tobacco leaf	processors
wheat or rye	bakers, millers
bacillus subtilis	detergent workers
bromelain	pharmaceutical workers
fungal amylase	bakers
trypsin	plastic manufacturers
diphenylmethane diisocyanate	foundry workers
hexamethylene diisocyanate	automobile spray painters
naphthalene diisocyanate	rubber workers, chemists
toluene diisocyanate	polyurethane plastics, and varnish workers
anhydrides	plastic and epoxy resin workers
fluxes	aluminum solderers, electronics workers
dyes	dyers, cosmetic workers, beauticians
pesticides	fumigators
chromium	tanners, platers, welders
tungsten carbide	metal workers
wood dust	cabinetmakers, carpenters sulfone chloramides	brewery workers
ammonium thioglycolate	beauticians
carbonless copy paper	office workers
dioazonium salt	photocopiers, dyers
ethylene diamine	photographers
formaldehyde	embalmers
freon fluorocarbons	refrigeration workers
persulfate salts	hairdressers
cobalt	metal workers
nickel	platers, welders
platinum	refiners
polyvinyl chloride
pyrolysis	meat wrappers
urea-formaldehyde resin	insulation and resin workers

As you can see, the workplace provides a surprising number of hazards for the unwary asthmatic. However, by identifying a potential cause of asthma, the patient can often avoid it or use protection against it.

Guidelines announced for meals assistance

Snyder Child Day Care Center recently announced its policy for free and reduced-price meals served under the Child and Adult Care Food Program. The following household size and income criteria will be used to determine eligibility. (See chart below.)

Family Size	Annual Household Income
2	17,002
3	21,405
4	25,808
5	30,211
6	34,614
7	39,017
8	43,420

For each additional family member add $4,403.

The information that households provide is confidential and will be used only to determine eligibility and verifying data.

In child nutrition programs administered by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, no child will be discriminated against because of race, color, sex, national origin, age, religion, political belief or disability.

State must determine if funds are spent efficiently

AUSTIN (AP) — Comptroller John Sharp says the state needs to determine how efficiently it is spending criminal justice funds.

"Clearly, the system is not working. In fact, it's on the verge of breaking down," Sharp said.

"From the largest Texas cities to the smallest rural communities, the number of crime victims is growing, and people who haven't yet been affected by crime know it's only a matter of time."

In releasing early findings Thursday from a study of criminal justice programs, Sharp said more Texans died from gunshots than from traffic accidents in 1990. Texas has the nation's 11th-highest rate of violent crime and fourth-highest for property crime.

"We have one of the world's highest rates of criminal violence, one of the world's most bewildering criminal justice systems and one of the world's highest rates of incarceration," Sharp said.

"We have a massive bureaucracy that regularly disappoints the taxpayers who must pay the bills," he said.

Although Texas is spending increasing amounts on prisons and criminal justice programs, crime continues to grow, Sharp said.

Dear Abby

© 1992 Universal Press Syndicate

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Dear Abby is on a two-week vacation. Following is a selection of some of her favorite past letters from 1972 and '73.)

DEAR ABBY: When I read the letter signed "All Torn Up" describing a husband who was Johnny-on-the-spot to do chores for the neighbors while his own remained undone, I was reminded of how my mother solved the same problem.

My father was a wonderful mechanic who worked daily at his job from 8 till 5. We lived on a small ranch, and during his "free" hours he was supposed to do all the things one must do on a ranch, such as milking, irrigation, fence-mending, barn repairs, etc.

Friends and neighbors would meet Dad at the gate as he came home with, "If you have a minute, will you please check my brakes?" (Or it was the timing or the radiator or something else.) Dad, being the bighearted man he was, never said no. His hot dinner was often eaten cold. Weekends he spent repairing a friend's car, truck or tractor while his own ranch work was left undone. Mother often made minor repairs or irrigated with the aid of a flashlight. (This ~~after she~~ had done her own work during the day.)

Finally, Mother had "notices" printed and passed them out to these unsolicited "customers." They read:

"MECHANIC ON DUTY MON. THROUGH FRI.

"6 p.m. to 8 p.m. Charge $8 per hour.

"Sat. and Sun. 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Charge $10 per hour.

"These charges are to cover the cost of the handyman I have had to hire to do my husband's ranch chores."

You have no idea how fast these freeloaders learned to do their own repairing or found another patsy.

SUNBONNET SUE

DEAR ABBY: I am a 28-year-old unmarried man. I know I sometimes make those around me uncomfortable because I am very fussy about order, perfection and cleanliness. For instance, the money in my wallet must be arranged with the larger bills on one side, progressing to the smaller ones. The suits in my closet must all be facing in the same direction, and my shoes have to line up perfectly. I will spend half an hour crawling around on my bathroom floor looking for lint and hair you would need a magnifying glass to find.

I would like to get married, but I always seem to find something wrong with the girl. Do you think perhaps the reason no girl can qualify is because deep down I am afraid a wife and family may clutter up my otherwise orderly life? It was suggested I seek professional help. What do you think?

NEAT AND ORDERLY

DEAR NEAT: If anyone asks if he should get professional help, I always vote yes. Better to seek it and not need it than to need it and not seek it.

DEAR ABY: My husband has had three serious accidents at work in the past two years. I have quit asking him to do chores around the house because he is always smashing his fingers with a hammer, cutting himself, or falling off the ladder while changing the screens or storm windows. It's a good year when he hasn't had a couple of automobile accidents.

The doctor at the plant where he works suggested that he see a psychiatrist! Why? He isn't crazy.

HIS WIFE

DEAR WIFE: People who have more than their share of "accidents" could be unconsciously punishing themselves for unresolved guilt. And they need not be "crazy" to do so. I think the plant doctor planted a very sound suggestion in your husband's mind.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Dear Abby is on a two-week vacation. Following is a selection of some of her favorite past letters from 1972 and '73.)

DEAR ABBY: I am a longtime reader of Dear Abby and am constantly amazed at the people who sign themselves, "UNLOVED, SAD, LONELY, UNWANTED, FORGOTTEN, DESPERATE," etc.

I am no "Dear Abby," but I do know that these people need to get involved with others, and oftentimes the way to solve one's own problems is to try to give a little happiness to someone else.

Some time ago, I called a nursing home and asked them to send me a list of patients who seldom, if ever, received mail, packages, cards or visitors.

When the list arrived, I was first amazed, then saddened. I expected perhaps three or four names, but their list had 21 names on it! Because the list was so long, obviously presents were out, as my means are limited, so I started sending inexpensive greeting cards to my 21.

There are many opportunities during the year to send them a bit of cheer. Birthdays, Christmas, Valentine's Day, Easter, or even just a "friendship" card.

I sign it "Your friend" to let them know that someone cares. It lifts their spirits and doesn't cost much, and it doesn't take much time.

If clubs, churches or other organizations would adopt this plan, more people could be reached. These older folks have little in their lives other than memories. They live for today, so let's put a little sunshine into their lives.

CAMILLE

DEAR CAMILLE: Thank you for a beautiful suggestion. If this idea catches on, you'll have started something that will bring inestimable happiness to thousands. Bless you.

DEAR ABBY: I am a school teacher. The other day, another teacher told me in the presence of the school nurse and some office secretaries that she had seen a woman shoplift a purse in a local store.

I asked her if she reported the incident to anyone, and she said she had not. I then told her that I thought she had an obligation to report it.

A discussion followed. One person agreed with me. Another said, "If that woman was stealing, she must have been very hard up and needed to steal, so it would have been unkind to report her."

Another said, "I'd have minded my own business because if I made such an accusation and wasn't able to prove it, I could be sued for slander."

Now I'd like your opinion, Abby.

AN EX-ANGELENO

DEAR EX: I would have reported it. "All that is necessary for evil to triumph is for good men to do nothing." (Attributed to Edmund Burke, Irish-born British statesman, orator and author.)

DEAR ABBY: The letter asking if it's against the law to bury a man with a fifth of bourbon in his casket brings to mind my German grandmother.

She was fond of playing cards and having a "schnapps" with friends, so she left money for her wake and also for brand-new playing cards, sharp pencils, small score pads and a set-up bar. We buried Grandmother with a deck of cards, pencil and pad, four glasses and a pint.

When the Day of Reckoning comes, she will be ready to start in all over again. Why not prepare for the afterlife now? It would be awful if we all had to start from scratch as the world once did.

A CARD-PLAYING, BELIEVING FAN

Astro-graphs

By Bernice Bede Osol

Your Birthday

Aug. 29, 1992

The acquisition of material things could be an extremely strong inclination for you in the year ahead. Substantial physical and mental efforts will be pointed in this direction; successful results are likely.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your chances for achieving your objectives today look good, but it might take a challenge to make you rise to the occasion. Circumstances will provide your motivation. Get a jump on life by understanding the influences governing you in the year ahead. Send for Virgo's Astro-Graph predictions today by mailing $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You'll know how to get what you want today, but more importantly, you'll be prepared to share your gains with others. No wonder you're so well-liked!

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Competitive situations aren't likely to intimidate you today; you'll feel justifiably secure with your own talents and abilities. A positive attitude is a big plus.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If a team effort is required today, you can be relied upon to make a solid contribution, whether it's in business or sports. Both are your strong suits.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) This could be a fortunate day for you where either your work or peripheral enterprises are concerned. There are indications you could gain from either one — or both.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Cupid might single you out for special attention today — if you are an unattached Aquarian. Don't hide your light under a bushel should you meet someone appealing.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You are a good opener as well as a strong closer today. If you apply yourself, there's a good chance you will do something quite profitable. Use this gift to fatten your wallet.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You have a faculty today for taking small concepts and building them into useful and grand ideas, especially if they pertain to ways you can outdistance your competition.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You could find today that, when you look out for or protect the interests of those in your charge, your actions will open up ways that produce personal benefits as well.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) An endeavor you're presently involved in that includes several other needs a boost to get going again. You're the one who is best equipped to push the pedal to the metal.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Be alert today for unique types of bargains or merchandise. You might come across something others deem to be worthless, yet it could be of great value to you.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your mental attitude and mode of operation will be substantially influenced today by those with whom you associate. Try to select enterprising types who know how to get things done.

Your Birthday

Aug. 30, 1992

In situations where you hope to reap material rewards in the year ahead, you must first lay solid foundations. If your base is strong, your prospects will be impressive.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your probabilities for personal gain are rather "iffy" today, especially if you're inclined to gamble on a long shot. Try to operate along traditional lines. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Astro-Graph Matchmaker can help you understand what to do to make the relationship work. Mail $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) It could prove to be unwise today to leave an important matter in the hands of those who are not as familiar with the situation as you are. Instead of delegating, do it yourself.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Be assertive today, but don't push so hard that you trip over your own feet. Timing and method are important, so you must be systematic.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You might find yourself in a position today where you can advance your interests at the expense of others. But protect your friends as you would yourself.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If your ego clouds your better judgment today, the probabilities of achieving your goals will be severely lessened. Try to work with others, not against them.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) In joint endeavors today, the ideas of associates could sound good on the surface but leave a lot to be desired in application. Don't let fast-talkers mesmerize you.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Financial involvements with friends could be rather tricky today, especially if you're functioning as the treasurer. It might be wise to let someone else manage the funds.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) It's very important at this time that you win and maintain the goodwill of your contemporaries. You're going to have to earn their respect, however; it won't come free of charge.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Be methodical today, or else you might be sidetracked from doing what is most urgent and important. Your sense of priorities could be a trifle distorted.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If you get involved in friendly, competitive activities today, play for the fun of it; don't put too much emphasis on winning. Your social graces may not be up to par today.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If you lack continuity of purpose today, you're not likely to finalize something you've been wanting to complete. Keep your eye on the results you desire at all times.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) To make an effective presentation today, try to keep it as simple as possible. Complex statements will confuse your listeners and quickly cause them to lose interest.

Task force health plan options for Texas

AUSTIN (AP) — A task force is considering establishment of a government-run insurance plan to expand health care coverage in Texas.

The 29-member Texas Health Policy task force is scheduled to submit its recommendations to Gov. Ann Richards and the Legislature in November.

In its preliminary report, the task force has called for a statewide health system for children and pregnant women through a central fund to be financed with federal health funds and other resources.

Those resources could be in the form of a payroll tax on employers, task force members said.

A 1 percent payroll tax would raise $1.2 billion annually and draw $2.1 billion in Medicaid funds, task force members said.

Task force member Joe Phillips of McAllen, who runs a chain of convenience stores, said he could pay payroll taxes of 3 percent and still break even under the proposed system because of reduced insurance costs.

State Sen. Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena, said such a system would lower children's health care costs by encouraging early, less expensive treatment.

The task force is concluding its recommendations after numerous statewide public hearings.

Between three million and four million Texans, including about one million children, are uninsured. More and more of the uninsured are coming from single- and two-parent families who live above the poverty level and also work, the task force report said.

U.S. decision angers Cubans

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Cuba, angry over the U.S. refusal to admit Cuban scientists to a meeting on nuclear matters, will share nuclear information "with any neighboring country" in retaliation, the Cuban news agency Prensa Latina said Friday.

Cuba has a nuclear power plant built with considerable help from the former Soviet Union.

The agency, monitored in Mexico City, quoted Cuba's official newspaper Granma as saying Cuban nuclear scientists had been invited by colleagues to a meeting to be held in the next few days in San Diego, but were not being allowed to attend.

Oil workshop set in Midland

MIDLAND — As part of President Bush's program to improve the economic health of independent producers, Department of Energy (DOE) officials will begin traveling to oil-producing states to hold a series of one-day workshops to better acquaint independent producers with the kinds of financial and technical assistance they can obtain from the government.

The first workshop will be held here on Sept. 10. The workshop entitled "Oil Technology Opportunities for the Permian Basin," will be hosted by the Permian Basin Petroleum Association and the University of Texas Permian Basin.

The Sept. 10 workshop will begin at 8 a.m. at the Center for Energy and Economic Diversification, 1400 FM 1788. It will include discussions of opportunities for technical assistance from DOE's national laboratories and from the agency's lead petroleum research center at Bartlesville, Okla. A light lunch will be provided by the PBPA and UTPB.

There will be a discussion of DOE's program to share the costs of demonstration projects in specific, high-priority reservoir categories. The next opportunity for producer participation in this program will begin in October when DOE issues a call for proposals for projects in carbonate reservoir regions in the country.

The program will also include "case studies" of independents operating in the Permian Basin who have benefited from technical assistance provided by the DOE's oil recovery programs.

The afternoon session will be devoted to a roundtable discussion on specific ways producers can obtain technical and financial assistance from the Department of Energy.

Registration is free to all producers. Those interested in attending the Midland workshop are asked to call the Permian Basin Petroleum Association at 915-684-6345 to reserve seating. Those interested in future workshops, which are still being planned, are requested to contact Tom Wesson, director of DOE's Bartlesville project office at 918-337-4401.

Presidential race may be one of the closest in decades

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 1992 presidential race is shaping up as one of the most intensely competitive contests in decades, with both Democrats and Republicans predicting close races in all regions of the country.

Rapid swings in the polls show fickle electorate nationwide. A sluggish economy continues to pummel President Bush. But Democrat Bill Clinton also carries considerable baggage into the race and is still dogged by questions concerning trust and experience.

Interviews across the country over the past week by The Associated Press with campaign insiders, party officials, pollsters and analysts reveal an unsettled political landscape — even in states once considered "safe" for one party or the other.

Clinton is the front-runner in national polls. But the period between the second political convention and Labor Day, the traditional start of the fall campaigns, is a volatile one this year.

And neither side seems ready to take anything for granted, anywhere.

"It's going to be close, so everything's going to make a difference," said Republican Illinois Gov. Jim Edgar.

Polls immediately after the Republican convention showed the race tightening to single digits, whittling away the nearly 30-point advantage Clinton had after the Democratic convention.

But later polls this week have suggested Bush's bounce from the convention was less than anticipated.

And an Associated Press poll of 1,007 people, conducted Aug. 21-25, found people in every region of the country saying that they'd be better off if Democrats rather than Republicans won the presidential election.

To win, Bush must shore up his base in the conservative Sun Belt and in the western mountain states while making overtures to the industrial states of the Midwest and Northeast.

He needs to give swing voters in those areas a reason to vote for him and try to hold the blue-collar Reagan Democrats that voted Republican in the last three presidential elections — but are having second thoughts now.

Clinton has to break the Republican lock on his own home region, solidify his lead in California, reclaim the Reagan Democrats and make sure there's a large turnout of black and other minority voters.

White Buffalo Days

Our annual historical celebration has been scheduled for September 17, 18 and 19. It will be held in conjunction with the Scurry County Fair this year. Come on out to the coliseum for a day of food, fun, and browsing through the booths. Bring the kids out for the stick horse rodeo, remote control car races, and start looking around for a speedy turtle to enter in the turtle race. If you can't find one, we will have some available for rent. Get ready for the second annual Ms. White Buffalo contest. See you there!

Scurry County Fair

Another year has passed and it's time once again for the Scurry County Fair. In addition to commercial and agricultural exhibits, livestock shows, and good things to eat, there will be a domino tournament. Some wonderful entertainment has been lined up as well. Hope to see you there!

Bulldogs try to hold on to title

By PHIL RIDDLE
SDN Sports Editor

Look out District 6, the defending champion Ira Bulldogs are back, and they're hungry for a repeat trip to the playoffs.

"I'm coming in with a whole lot more confidence this year than last year," said Ira second-year head coach Mike Cook.

"Our first workout was one of the best opening workouts I've been around," he bubbled. "They are enthusiastic, they know they're the defending district champs and they are hungry."

"It's my second year here with these kids. They know the system and I know them a little better."

The Bulldogs raced through the District 6 six-man schedule unbeaten last year, claiming the loop crown and making their second straight postseason appearance.

"Our real strengths this year will be our experience and our senior leadership," Cook stated. "Out of 22 or 23 players, we have 15 juniors and seniors. In fact, most of our starting offensive and defensive people are seniors.

Among the returnees to coach Cook's Bulldogs are senior standouts Mike Hughes, a deep back on offense and a defensive linebacker, and Bryan Luna, a back-linebacker.

Hughes won all-district and all-region honors a year ago, rushing and receiving for almost 1,600 yards, while Luna, expected to anchor the Ira defense, was tabbed third-team all-state.

Other seniors returning are running backs Toby Haynes and Tom Sanchez, center Wyatt Webster and defensive specialist Cole Sterling.

"The only weakness I can see right now," reported Cook, "is a lack of depth. We're real strong at some key positions, but, I'm a little concerned with our depth."

Cook's biggest concern is at defensive end where a pair of move-ins are expected to make an impact.

Juniors Jeff Henson, coming to the 'Dogs from Boone, Ark., and Phillip Bridge, who played last season at Forsan, are expected to get considerable playing time, especially defensively.

"Both of them come from 11-man programs," said Cook, "so six-man will be new to them. But they're looking good and I feel like they can help us. They can fill in some question spots for us."

The Bulldogs' primary offense will, once again, be the spread, a pass-oriented attack.

"That will be our biggest weapon," said Cook. "But with some of the kids we've got, and coach (Tim) Mebane coaching the line, we may move into a tight formation some of the time.

"We ran into some situations last year where we got down close and couldn't score because we weren't real strong in the tight game.

"It cost us some points," he added, "so we're going to work some on that."

Cook feels like the Bulldogs surprised some district teams with their use of a passing offense in '91.

"I feel like we came into a district that hadn't seen the spread much," he said. "We took advantage of that.

"Now, this year, they'll all have seen it, so we need to have some surprises."

Ira will stick with its traditional 2-3 defensive alignment in the upcoming season.

The six-man 2-3 consists of a pair of defensive ends responsible for pass rushing and the run, while the linebackers carry some run responsibility and cover pass receivers. The formation is backed up by a free safety.

Luna was in on a team-high 131 tackles as a junior in 1991.

Cook feels, as do most informed observers, that the District 6 crown will come down to Ira and last year's runner-up, Borden County.

"I think that's pretty accurate," Cook said. "Trent will be tougher, too, but I think people are slighting Borden County, somewhat, because of the loss of the Adcock boy."

Borden County team leader Brandon Adcock was killed in an auto crash last year just before the Coyotes took on Sands in the bi-district round of the playoffs.

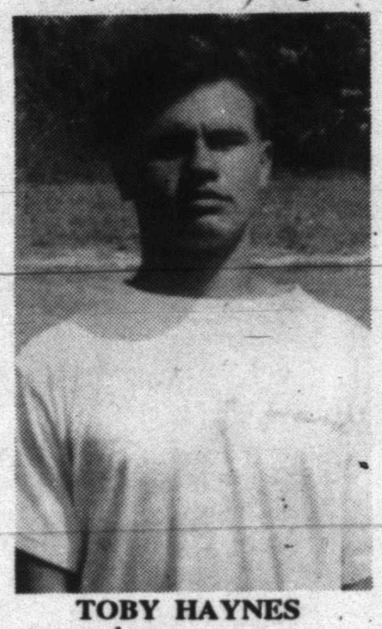

"They still have most of their starting corps back from last year," Cook said of Borden County.

"They still have (running back) John Paul Harris, they still have (center J.J.) Kincheloe.

"And", emphasized Cook, "We have to play them there and they're tough at home.

"Yeah, our main concern is with Borden County, but we're not going to overlook one single team in the district," he cautioned.

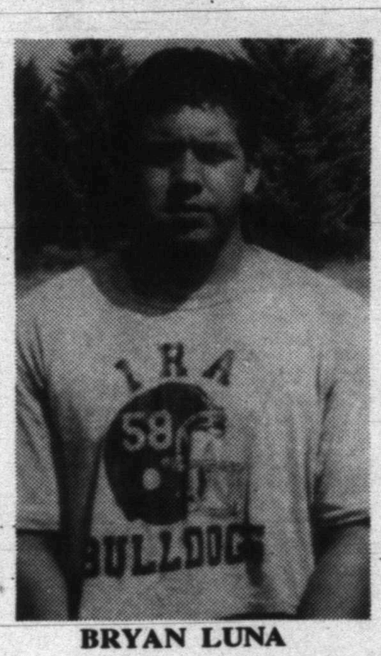

"Especially the way our schedule is set up. We play Borden County early (the second district game) and it would be easy to say, if we can get by Highland and Borden County, that we've got it wrapped up.

TOBY HAYNES

"That's when Hermleigh or Highland, who could sneak up on some people, will get you."

The district portion of the season's schedule may actually be the easy part of the year for the Bulldogs. Their non-district opponents sport a 37-17 combined record and include three playoff teams, Aspermont, Rule and Midland Christian Academy, which won the Texas Association of Private and Parochial Schools state title.

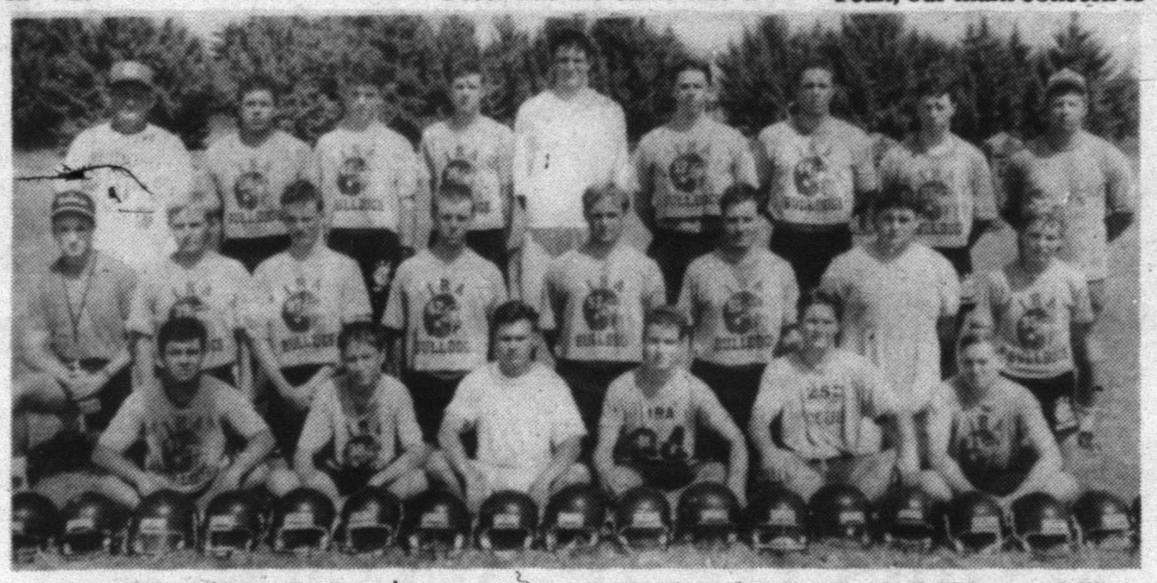

BRYAN LUNA

"We've gone 1-9 in non-district games over the last two years," the IHS coach reported. "Our goal this year was to get some game, not necessarily easy games, but some games to get us a few more wins and a little more confidence heading into district.

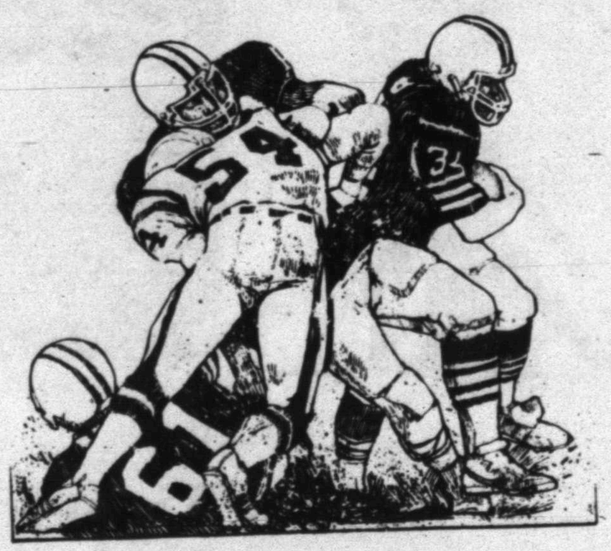

"But what it boils down to is a pretty tough schedule."

Cook is assisted by Mebane and Lynn Cauley.

Coyotes vie for District 6 crown

By PHIL RIDDLE
SDN Sports Editor

Coach Bobby Avery thinks his team will make a run at the District 6 six-man football title, but they need to avoid injuries on the way.

"We've got a pretty good team," he said of his 1992 Coyotes, "but the key to our success this year is going to be staying injury free."

Avery is returning a good team, but only 14 players. The 1991 BCHS squad finished second in the loop, losing only to eventual champ Ira.

"Our real strengths this year are our large senior class and experience coming back," reported Avery. "We have size, as well as quickness and speed.

"The only weakness I could see early was at quarterback," the coach continued, "but Cody Cox has come in an taken over for us, and after two weeks of practice , we're real good at that spot."

Cox, a junior, will take over the QB slot from senior Clint Wills, who has shifted to tailback for the Coyotes.

He looks pretty good," the coach said of Cox. "On play action, and as a lead blocker.

"We hope to mix up our offense a little," Avery said. "Clint Wills is a big threat running the football. He's also going to be feared as a passer. He'll have the run-pass option lots of the time.

"We want to open up the offense a little more."

Wills rushed for almost 500 yards and four touchdowns as Borden County's signal caller in 1991. He added 10 TD tosses and 724 yards on 31-of-53 passing.

One of the prime targets in the Coyotes passing game will be senior John Paul Harris, who is switching from offensive end to running back.

"He's a running back," said Avery, "but we'll still look for him to throw to."

Harris amassed seven scores and 440 yards receiving and five touchdowns and 436 yards rushing last season.

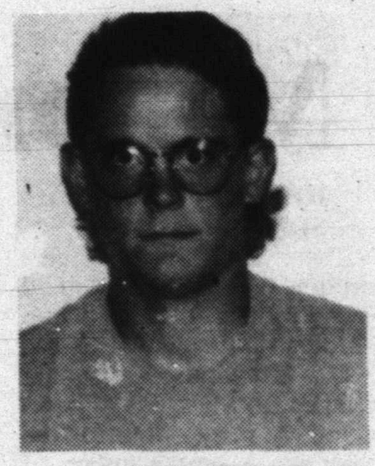

Harris was also in on 133 tackles from his linebacker spot in Avery's 2-3 defense.

Starting center for the Coyotes will be two-year all-district selection J.J. Kincheloe.

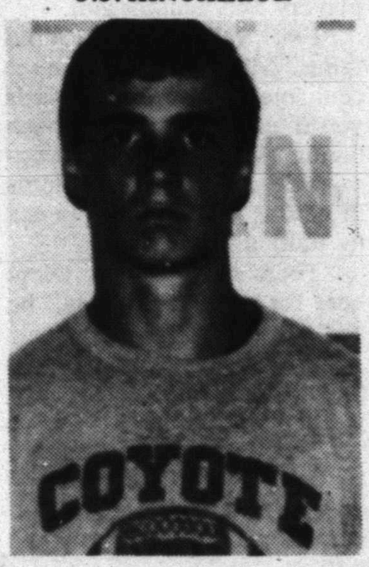

The coach plans no defensive shakeups for this year.

"Defense is like religion to me," Avery commented. "You

Road swing marks Coyotes' grid slate

The Borden County Coyotes will start their season at home, but after their Sept. 4 season opener against New Home, they'll not see the friendly confines of their home stadium in Gail until Oct. 2 when they host Klondike in their final non-district game of the season.

Coach Bobby Avery's squad will travel to Grady on Sept. 11, Wellman on Sept. 18 and Loop on Sept. 25 during their three-game road swing.

The toughest of the road games figures to be against Wellman, a playoff qualifier last year. District 5 preseason favorite Wellman posted a 7-1-2 season last year, then handed District 6 champion Ira a 53-6 loss in the bi-district round of the six-man playoffs.

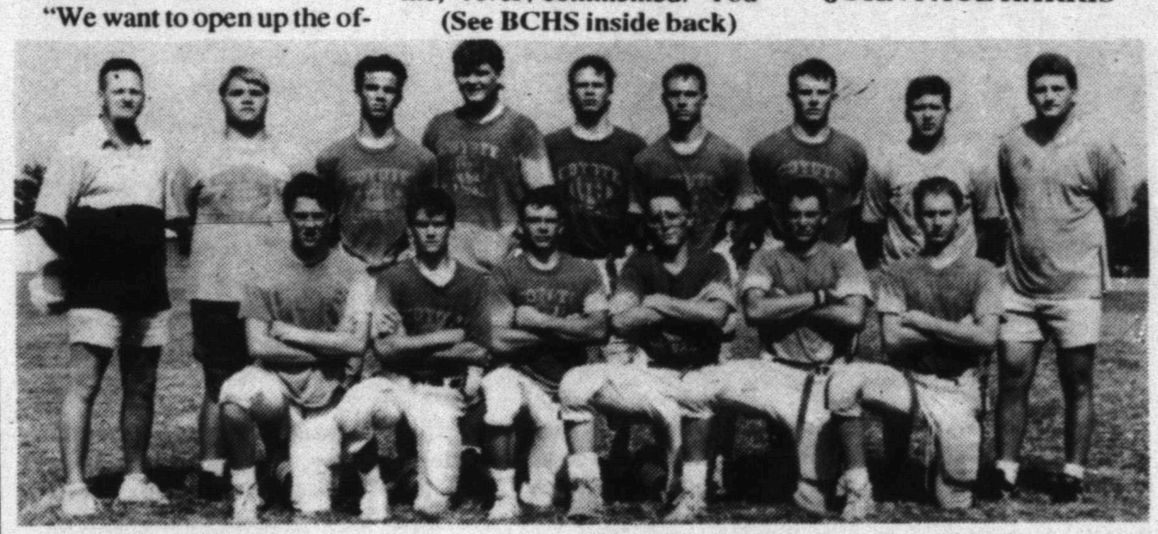

Wellman returns a total of nine lettermen from last year's team, including four offensive and three defensive starters.

The rest of the Coyotes' non-district opponents managed a 14-25 combined mark, including an 8-3 slate from New Home, the only other team on the early-season slate that had a winning year in '91.

The District 6 race begins for Borden County with an Oct. 9 visit by Hermleigh. The next week, Oct. 16, the game between the two top picks in the loop, Ira and Borden County, will take place in Gail.

The last three regular-season games of the year for the Coyotes are Oct. 23 at Trent, Oct. 30, when they host Loraine, and Nov. 6 at Highland.

All Borden County High School football games kick-off at 7:30 p.m.

Minor excited about HHS Cards

By PHIL RIDDLE
SDN Sports Editor

There are three strangers strutting around the football locker room of the Hermleigh Cardinals these days.

One is obvious — first year head coach Mark Minor, who is largely responsible for the other two — great numbers of players and enthusiasm.

"I've walked into a gold mine," Minor bubbled in a recent interview. Hardly words you'd expect from a coach taking over a last-place program with a history of problems in getting out enough players to field a team.

"There's too much talent here for us to finish last," he said.

"We've got some talented players," he reiterated, just getting warmed up. "We've got some talented younger kids, we've got some experience, we've got some good numbers and we've got some good upperclassmen.

"If you've got 20 kids in six-man football, you're going to be competitive."

Minor joins the Hermleigh coaching staff following a tenure at Goree which included a 3-7 year in 1991.

Coach MARK MINOR

He is assisted by first-year assistant coach Don Tubbs, a recent graduate of Texas Tech.

This year, thanks in large part to a successful 1991 eighth-grade class at HHS and the arrival of Minor, Hermleigh has 25 players suited out.

"Our strength will definitely be our depth," Minor said. "We have five good running backs, three good quarterbacks and four or five good linebackers.

"We have a number of players who can make an impact on this team."

Included in those impact players are returnees Freddy Martinez and Chris Roemisch and newcomer Michael Breitweiser at quarterback and running backs Chris Velasco and Joey Sanchez.

"Joey Played real well in our first scrimmage (a 4-2 win over Dawson, Aug. 20)," Minor reported. "He caught a touchdown pass and ran for a touchdown.

CHRIS ROEMISCH

"He's just a freshman, but he's has some speed and can get to the outside.

"Chris can get outside, too," Minor stated, "but, at the same time, he's hard nosed. He's not afraid to run over people either."

The Cardinals won't be lacking in size, either, with 6-3, 304-pound Lance Price, 5-9, 225-pound Eric Romero, 5-9, 211-pound Freddie Martinez and Andy Sosa, a 5-8, 232-pounder putting on the HHS red and white this fall.

"I really don't see a weakness in this team," said Minor. "We have speed and quickness and size.

LANCE PRICE

"Besides all that," the coach continued, "we're hungry. We want to win so bad."

The Cardinals will use the tight formation as their base offense.

"We'll run some out of the 'T' and the 'I' said the HHS coach. "We'll try to throw some out of both formations and do some things that, in the years past, they haven't been able to do."

Minor feels like his Cardinals will be forced into a passconcious defense.

"From what I understand," he said, "most of the teams in our district use the spread offense. So, I guess, we'll run a defense for the spread."

"We'll try to put some pressure on the quarterback, but we're also going to try to change our defenses so that different players will be guarded by different people.

"We're going to rotate some on defense so that, hopefully, we can confuse some people."

Minor is not daunted by the fact that he has been picked to finish last or next-to-last in District 6 in preseason polls.

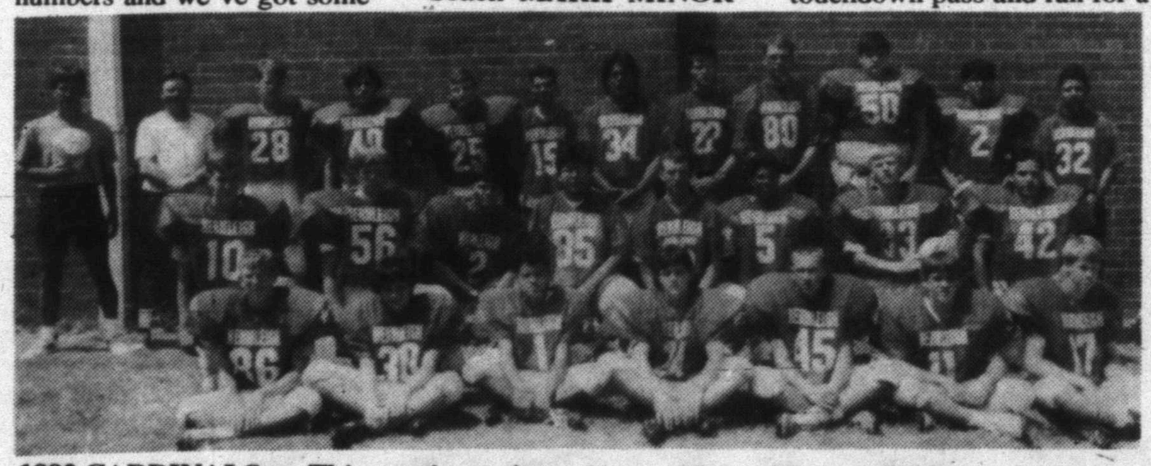

"We feel like with the talent we have this year, and with working hard, that we're going to be competitive.

"In my opinion, we're too good to be picked last in any district.

"I don't know much about this district," he admitted, "but I know there's too much talent here not to be in the thick of things."

Ira's Hughes selected all-state

Ira senior returnee Mike Hughes is listed as a second-team all-stater in Texas Football's preseason selection by six-man coaches across the state.

Hughes is a 5-8, 170-pound talent that also plays in the Bulldogs' defensive backfield.

Hughes led Ira in both rushing and passing in 1991, leading the 'Dogs to a District 6 championship and their second consecutive trip to the post-season.

The IHS upperclassman ran the ball 182 times last year for a total of 1,230 yards and 18 touchdowns. He also passed for 1,330 yards, hitting 90 of 168 attempts and finding the end zone 16 times.

That averages out to almost seven yards a carry and one TD every 10 times he lugged the ball and about eight yards an attempt passing and a TD every 10 tosses.

The first team offense of the mythical squad includes quarterback Jason Duke of state runner-up Christoval; running back Vicente Ramirez of state champion Fort Hancock; Meadow running back Cody Andrews; center Kurt Sloan of Rochester and ends Blaine Fillingim of New Home and Matt Cozeby of Lazbuddie.

Fort Hancock landed a pair of first teamers on the magazine's defense. Defensive lineman Brent Henderson, a 200-pounder, and linebacker Sergio Maldonado each represented the Mustangs.

The rest of the team features Trinidad lineman Jed Johnson; Jim Bob Bradley, a lineman from Brookesmith; Turkey Valley linebacker Bradley Price; and defensive back Leland Brockman of Lazbuddie.

Joining Hughes on the second team offense are runnig backs Christian Looney of McLean and Leuders-Avoca's Ray Gann; center Joel Pitts from Quinlan Boles Home; and ends Clay Gentry of Dell City and Darren Gass of P kholts.

Second team defenders are linemen Richard Johnson of Christoval and Zephyr's Dennis Smith; linebackers Jason Snody from Quinlan Boles Home, and Paul Gerik of Aquilla and defensive backs Anthony Jackson from Chillicothe and Rusty Nunn of Brookesmith.

Tough non-district schedule highlights 'Dogs '92 campaign

The Ira Bulldogs, bringing back one of their best crops of grid performers in recent memory, showed they weren't afraid of anyone by scheduling a tough non-district season for 1992.

Ira's '92 non-district opponents managed a combined 37-17 1991 record, including three playoff appearances and one state championship.

In addition, Ira has six games on the road this year and only four at home.

The Bulldogs open the season with Aspermont on Sept. 4. The Hornets are picked third in District 9, in spite of bringing back three offensive and four defensive starters from last year's 8-2 team.

Midland Christian, last year's Texas Association of Private and Parochial Schools six-man state champion, will host Ira Sept. 11 followed by a trip to always-tough Rule on Sept. 18.

The Bobcats went 10-2 a year ago but return just two starters making them the third pick in District 9.

Klondike hosts Ira Sept. 25, followed by a visit from the Meadow Broncos on Oct. 2 to wind up the non-district slate.

Meadow is the new home of former Sands head coach Randy Roemisch. The Broncs are picked to win the District 4 race after posting a 6-4 mark in 1991.

Ira begins the Distict 6 schedule with consecutive road games Oct. 9 and Oct. 16 to Highland and Borden County, respectively.

Hermleigh is at Ira Oct. 23 to renew the Scurry County rivalry followed by the final home game of the season Oct. 30 against Trent.

The regular season finale for the Bulldogs finds them at Loraine Nov. 6.

All Ira High School football games begin at 7:30 p.m.

Ira, Borden picked as district favorites

A pair of area six-man football teams are expected to fight for the District 6 crown in 1992.

Defending champion Ira and last season's runner-up Borden County are seen as the cream of the loop crop by Dave Campbell's Texas Football.

Ira posted a 5-6 record in coach Mike Cook's debut season in '91, including 4-1 mark in league action. The Bulldogs earned a spot in the bi-district playoff round, where they lost to Wellman, 53-6.

The 'Dogs are led by senior preseason all-state second team selection Mike Hughes.

Hughes was Ira's leading rusher and passer in 1991 and returns to guide the Bulldog offense as quarterback. He ran for over 1,200 yards and 18

Tigers face new grid challenges

By PHIL RIDDLE
SDN Sports Editor

The 1992 football season will be a pivotal one for the Snyder Tigers for a few reasons.

First of all, coach David Baugh will have to replace 15 graduated seniors, including two-way All-District 2-4A performer Hayward Clay from his playoff teams of the last two years.

Secondly Snyder will face its toughest schedule since Baugh's tenure began at SHS, five years ago, and lastly, With UIL realignment, former Class 5A power Plainview slipped into the district that has been dominated by Estacado and Snyder for the past two seasons.

The Tigers' personnel loss will be felt most in the offensive line and in overall depth, according to Baugh.

"Depth is a real glaring weakness for us," he reported. "We don't have much depth at any of our offensive backfield positions or in the offensive line."

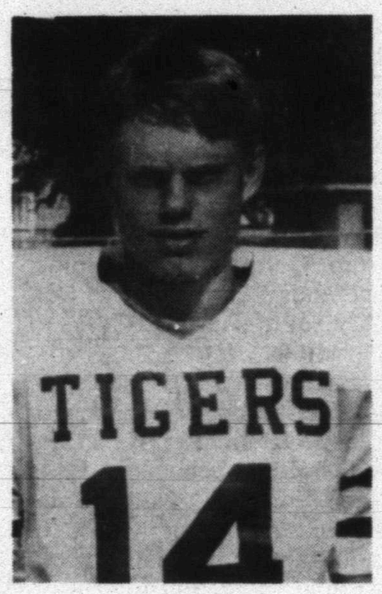

"We'll have a lot of experience in the middle of the line," assistant coach Joe Granato said. "But we'll be a little green, at least to start, on the outside."

Returning starters on the Tigers' offensive line include center Brian Lickey and guards Charlie Richardson and Brad Hart. Senior Todd Iglehart, a guard a year ago, is expected to fill a tackle slot during the upcoming campaign.

Newcomers up from the Snyder junior varsity expected to compete for a starting spot at tackle are 6-1, 210-pound Zach Finley, 5-11, 180-pound Craig Lane, and Jimmy Henry at 6-4, 170.

TODD IGLEHART

MATT CAVE

Other incoming linemen include Brian Upton, a 6-1 230-pound strong tackle prospect; 5-9, 205-pound Emiliano Chaidez, also penciled in at tackle, and backup center Jeff Armstrong (5-10, 170).

"We're counting pretty heavily on some kids that are going to be juniors," Granato said. "Zack, Craig and Jimmy will be fighting it out for quick tackle on offense.

"We're expecting Charlie and Brad and Brian Lickey to be good leaders, which they already are, for the guys coming in."

The Tigers will most likely start senior Ben Wilson at tailback in Baugh's ground-oriented offense.

Wilson, used sparingly in the Tiger offensive scheme in '91, gained 21 yards on eight carries. He will be backed up by Randy Fisk, up from last year's JV team.

BEN WILSON

"We won't have a lot of depth at tailback," Granato explained, "but Ben is real quick and with we have some experience and we have depth at fullback to maybe take some of the pressure off."

Wayland Harrison, who led the Tigers with 760 yards and seven touchdowns on the ground last year, will return at fullback.

Playing behind Harrison is senior Gilbert Orosco, another returnee from last season's Tiger squad.

Still more offensive experience will be in Snyder's backfield at the starting wingback spot where senior Mark Fields will line up.

Fields rushed 23 times a year ago for 198 yards, an 8.6 yards-per-carry average and three touchdowns. He also caught two passes from out of the backfield for 38 yards and a score.

JV'ers Tony Hernandez and John Clinkinbeard back up Fields.

While the Tigers depend largely on the success of their running game, senior split end Barretta Collins could be a game-breaker, according to Granato.

"He's got real good hands." the coach stated, "Barretta and Wayland will have to carry a lot of the offense."

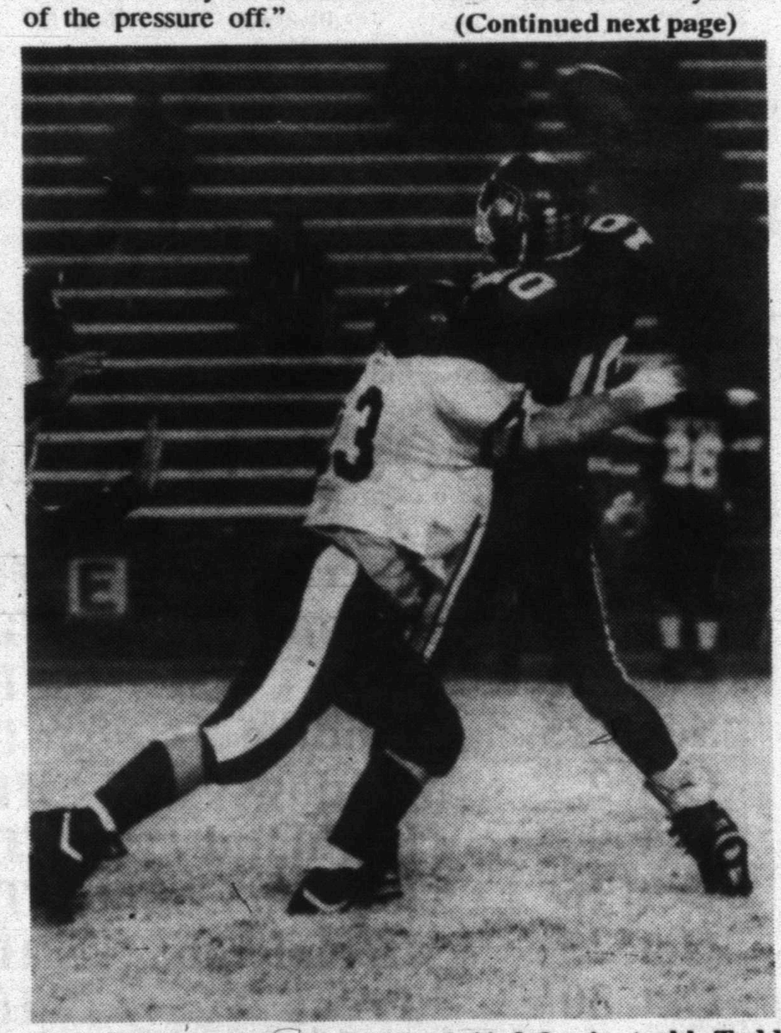

Collins is also expected to take a position in the graduation-depleted SHS defensive secndary.

Also included in Snyder's receiving corps will be returnee Jason McAden and Larry Thompson.

McAden, a part-time starter in 1991, caught five passes for 108 yards and a touchdown.

Filling the tight end spot left vacant by Clay's graduation will be senior Jason Greene, a 6-2, 185-pound returnee from the Tigers' 7-4 1991 playoff season.

"He's got some big shoes to fill," Granato reported. Greene, who was a defensive specialist at cornerback last season, will take over for the leading receiver on the team in terms of both catches (8), and yards (194).

Greene will be backed up by David Krenek, Chris Stansell and Robert McDorman.

Junior quarterback Matt Cave is expected to set up behind center for Snyder when the season kicks off, but he will be challenged for the starting job by fellow junior Jim Pat Griffin.

Cave, who took over as the Tigers' starter as a sophomore at the end of last season, completed 9 of 20 passes for 179 yards and a pair of touchdowns in limited duty.

JASON GREENE

Senior Chris Sutherland, last year's starting signal caller for most of the campaign, was expected to vie for the starting nod this year before moving to Bridgeport prior to the start of drills.

Griffin was the starting trigger man for the SHS JV in '91. "Both our quarterbacks are looking good," said Baugh. "We'll still be a run-type offense, but we have to be able to throw, or they'll get right on top of us.

"We've got to be able to maintain possession with throws on second and third down."

The front line and the linebackers in defensive coordinator Jack Dorsett's 5-2 defense will retain a familiar flavor but coach Fred Jackson's defensive secondary will be revamped.

Noseguard Brad Williams, a 5-11, 175-pound senior, will return to anchor the front five for Snyder, which will feature fellow returnees Iglehart at right tackle and Wilson at "bandit" end.

"I think noseguard will be a strength for us, as long as Bradley's healthy," said coach Baugh.

BRADLEY WILLIAMS

All-district linebacker Richardson is back for 1991, as is junior Ricky Sollis.

"Charlie Richardson and Ricky Sollis being back at linebacker makes that a strength for us," Baugh said.

The SHS defense gave up just over 140 yards a game on the ground in 1991, limiting opponents to 4 yards a rush, 13 points a game, all the while claiming 22 turnovers.

Greene will be the lone returning defensive back. He will play at the right corner, opposite Collins on the left side.

Other projected starters in the defensive backfield are Fields on the strong side and McAden at free safety

CHARLIE RICHARDSON

McAden, along with Iglehart, were listed as standouts by coach Baugh.

"Todd has been playing outstanding football," the coach related. "And McAden has done a good job in the secondary.

"We thought the secondary was going to be a problem. We're a little shy of experience and depth back there, but, so far, they've done the job."

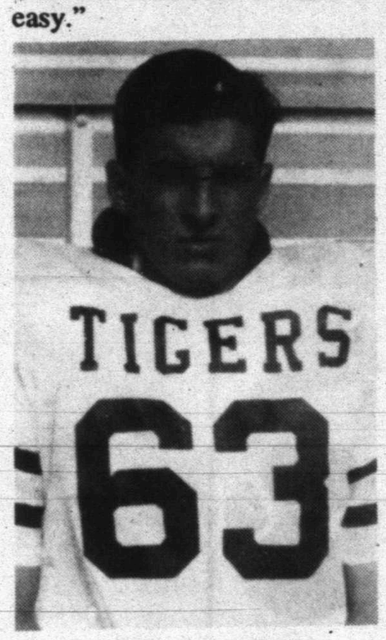

McAden accounted for three interceptions in the Tigers' annual Watermleon Bowl scrimmage with the JV in August.

The Tigers will be put in what coach Granato calls "Alka-Seltzer time" early this season thanks to their schedule which pits them against eight teams that finished 1991 over the .500 mark, three of which earned playoff berths.

Coach Baugh calls the '92 schedule simply, "a killer".

"We open at home against Sweetwater and Monahans, then we go on the road to Abilene Wylie, Big Spring and Dumas," Granato said. "Then we come back to play Estacado, go to Plainview, home for Lamesa and Levelland and to Frenship."

"Those are all good teams. There's not really a week in there we can rest or take it easy."

BRAD HART

"Sweetwater, Monahans and Big Spring are three of the top teams in that district (3-4A)," said coach Baugh. "They'll all be fighting for playoff spots with Andrews. And Dumas is coming on. They're a big team and they beat Pampa (a regional semifinalist) last year."

The addition of Plainview makes the loop a little harder to get through, the coaches agree.

"Plainview makes it a tougher district," Granato stated flatly. "A lot stronger district.

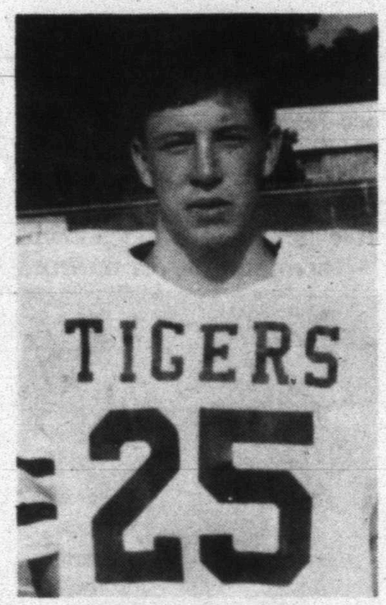

"It used to be that Estacado was the team to beat, and we felt like we were a team to contend with.

"Now you'll have Plainview in there, and Levelland is always tough and Lamesa and Frenship are getting better."

Plainview, picked second in the district in preseason polls, returns 30 lettermen from last year's team. including 10 offensive and eight defensive starters.

Estacado, tabbed No. 16 in the state and the team to beat in 2-4A, brings back 20 lettermen, featuring five starters on each side of the ball.

"Plainview, moving down from 5A and having most of their people back, will undoubtedly be strong," said Baugh. "Estacado has a lot of people back, too, though. I think those teams, plus you throw in Frenship, who might be a little stronger.

"I think we can get in there and compete for the district title," said Baugh, "if we can stay healthy."

Rivalries spice SHS football campaign

The 1992 Snyder Tigers' varsity football schedule features something old and something new as old grid rivalries are renewed and new foes come onto the District 2-4A scene.

The Tigers will open the grid campaign Sept. 4 at 8 p.m. by hosting old nemesis Sweetwater.

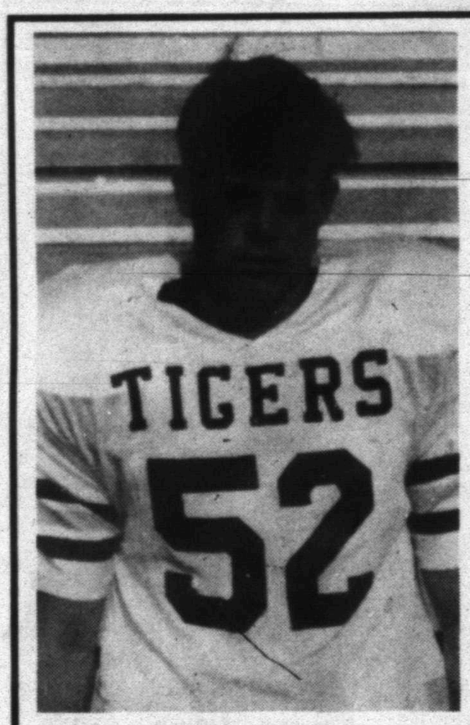

Snyder, a playoff team each of the past two seasons, has not seen the Mustangs since a post-season meeting two seasons ago that Snyder won, 17-3, in Sweetwater.

Their last regular-season meeting was in 1989 when Snyder and Sweetwater were both members of District 4-4A. The Ponies took that meeting, their 11th straight over the Tigers, 15-12, on the last play of the game.

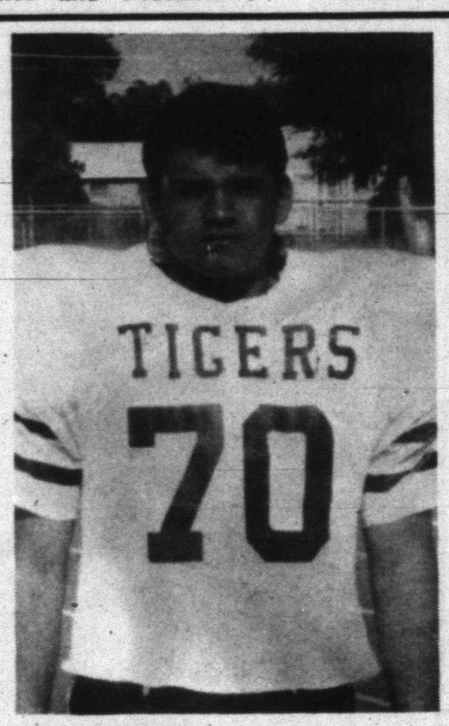

The Mustangs, one of two state-ranked teams on Snyder's schedule, are picked 20th in Texas Football's preseason poll.

Following the Sweetwater game, the Tigers host another old 4-4A foe, Monahans, before beginning a gruelling three-game road trip that features stops at Abilene Wylie on Sept. 18, Big Spring on

Mats get preseason favorite nod in 2-4A

Same song, third verse.

For the past three years, Snyder's tenure in District 2-4A, the Estacado Matadors have gone into the football season as the runaway favorite for the loop title.

This season is no different, in that regard, as the Mats are selected to defend their district crown.

Sept. 25 and Dumas on Oct. 2.

The District 2-4A race begins Oct. 9 when the Levelland Lobos, under new coach Tom Ramsey, formerly of Colorado City, visit.

Lubbock Estacado, the only team in the loop that Snyder has not swept during its two seasons in the league, blows into Tiger Stadium for an Oct. 16 battle. Snyder follows with a road trip to Plainview Oct. 23.

Plainview, in its first season in Class 4A after being a perennial 5A playoff team, is picked to finish second in the district behind No. 16 Estacado.

The final home game of the year will bring arch-rival Lamesa on Oct. 30. Snyder closes out the regular season with a visit to Frenship on Nov. 6.

All the Tigers' September games will kick-off at 8 p.m. All district games, as well as the Dumas non-district tilt, start at 7:30 p.m.

Estacado comes into the season rated No. 16 in the state by Texas Football magazine.

Coach Louis Kelley brings back 20 lettermen from last season's 10-2 squad, including five starters on offense and five on defense.

Players to watch for the Mats include quarterback Zebbie Lethridge, linebacker Tashani Bibbs and defensive back Louis Kelley.

Lethridge, a starter since his sophomore season in 1990, passed for almost 1,200 yards last season. He can also run the ball when necessary. The 6-1, 175-pound talent boasts a 4.6 time in the 40-yard dash.

Picked second, taking Snyder's preseason spot for the last two years, is newcomer Plainview.

The Bulldogs are new to Class 4A, being dropped from 5A football with last spring's biennial UIL realignment.

They are expected to be an immediate playoff contender in spite of last season's disappointing 2-7 year.

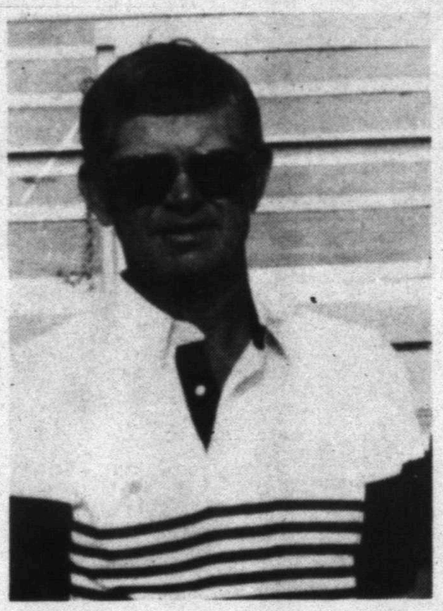

Coach Steve Parr returns a whopping 30 lettermen including running back Kevin Polk, a 5-11, 185-pound specimen with 4.6 speed and an 812-yard total in 1991, and offensive guard Stacy Ward, a 6-0, 215-pounder that was a second-team all-district pick in District 3-5A.

Sweetwater and Estacado...

Area teams earn state rankings

Area football powers Lubbock Estacado and Sweetwater, both Class 4A playoff teams last season were among the top picks in the annual preseason selections made by Texas Football magazine.

The Waco-based publication tabs last season's District 2-4A champion Estacado Matadors No. 16 in the state to start the year.

The Mats bring back 20 lettermen from last year's 10-2 area finalist team, including five starters on each side of the ball.

Sweetwater, last year's District 3-4A champ with a 12-2 overall record including a loss in the state semifinals, is picked 20th by the magazine.

The Mustangs bring back 13 lettermen including four offensive and two defensive starters from their 1991 squad.

Both squads are on the Snyder Tigers' 1992 grid schedule.

Defending Class 4A champion A&M Consolidated is given the No. 1 nod by virtue of last season's 14-2 campaign and 13 returning players.

Other top picks include Odessa Permian, defending state title-holder in Class 5A; Class 3A's Southlake Carroll; Grapeland in Class 2A; Bartlett in Class A and Six Man defending state champion Fort Hancock.

WACO, Texas (AP) — Here are Texas Football Magazine's preseason favorites in the 1992 high school football race (with returning lettermen, returning offensive and defensive starters and 1991 record in parenthesis):

third place, after an upset loop championship in 1990 and a runner-up finish last season.

The Tigers have won every district game they've played in 2-4A, except for their two meetings with Estacado.

Snyder brings back 15 lettermen from last year's 7-4 squad.

Returning all-district performer Charlie Richardson will anchor the offensive line at tackle, and leads the linebacking corps.

Other returnees of note include all-district defensive tackle Todd Iglehart, split end Jason McAden, wingback Michael Fields and fullback Waylon Harrison.

Wide receiver-cornerback Baretta Collins is the Tigers' top prospect for the upcoming season.

The last three places in the district belong to Lamesa, Levelland and Frenship, in order.

Lamesa's top player is expected to be senior running back-defensive back Tony Brown, a 6-2, 205-pound gridder with 4.6 speed. He rushed for 650 yards and six TDs last season.

Levelland will count heavily on tailback Chris Smith, who will have returning starters Jordan Campbell at tackle, and tight end Jason Edwards making holes for him.

Frenship, who made an unsuccessful run at the Class 4A playoffs two seasons ago, bring back 14 lettermen, including four starters on each side of the ball.

Free safety Michael Denson and linebacker Jamar Whitfield anchor the defense while quarterback Kendrick Hollie pulls the trigger on coach Bobby Davis' air-oriented attack.

Aggies favored to repeat in SWC

DALLAS (AP) — This was supposed to be the year the Texas Aggies were going to fold, spindle and maul their Southwest Conference opponents IF a quarterback could be found.

Since the Aggies waltzed through the league unbeaten and unthreatened last year, it would stand to reason they would be runaway threats this season. The big question mark was at quarterback.

There was a little matter of no experienced quarterbacks until U.S. Olympic baseball coach Ron Fraser gave A&M coach R.C. Slocum an early Christmas present.

Fraser cut left-handed pitcher Jeff Granger from the Olympic squad. The same Granger who had helped defeat Cuba only days earlier in an exhibition game.

Granger was stunned. Slocum was stunned.

SWC football coaches were horrified.

Granger, who was an exciting backup behind Bucky Richardson last year, then told Slocum he had changed his mind and decided to play football.

The Aggies had runners in Greg Hill and Rodney Thornton but didn't have an established passer. Enter Granger.

Enter the Aggies as prohibitive favorites to do it again:

The Freeman SWC line:

1. Texas A&M, even money. The Aggies return a speedy defense and Bob Davie, the man who knows how to coordinate them. Although Fraser is retiring as baseball coach at the University of Miami, Texas A&M fans can still probably get their thank you cards to him via the Hurricane sports information office.

2. Texas Tech, 4-to-1. The Red Raiders keep looking better every day. If Spike Dykes' up-and-coming bunch can ambush Oklahoma in their nationally televised opener at Lubbock, look out for this surprise team. Tech plays the Aggies Oct. 3 in College Station. It could be the SWC Game of the Year.

3. Texas, 7-to-1. The Longhorns will start slow under John Mackovic's offense but should finish strong as things start to click. Remember, Texas can still play tough defense under Leon Fuller and it will keep them in a lot of games.

4. Baylor 10-to-1. A miracle on the Brazos in Grant Teaff's last year. Unlikely because of the inexperience on both lines of scrimmage. However, the Bears will be playing with a lot of emotion.

5. Rice, 25-to-1. Any team with Trevor Cobb on it has a chance. If Rice plays reasonable defense, the Owls should post their first winning season since the early 1960s.

6. Houston 35-to-1. John Jenkins should get the Cougars back on track offensively. The key will be whether one of college football's worst defenses in 1991 will bounce back.

7. TCU 45-to-1. A new day is dawning at Texas Christian under Pat Sullivan, who has changed everything but the Horned Frog mascot. The Frogs will be ground down by lack of depth although a healthy Leon Clay could produce some interesting fireworks.

8. SMU 150-to-1. The Mustangs haven't won a conference game since they came back from the death penalty. Tom Rossley's crew probably won't win one this year either although he has a senior dominated team. They may be seniors but they don't run fast and aren't very big.

Granger is Slocum's top QB candidate

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Texas A&M coach R.C. Slocum has happy problems to discuss.

He's happy to talk about the growing numbers problem he has at quarterback, bolstered by the return of Jeff Granger.

There's another problem of finding enough playing time for two good running backs, Greg Hill and Rodney Thomas.

Then, there's the problem of high expectations the Aggies face, being picked to repeat their 1991 SWC championship with ease.

These are the problems that make a coach giggle.

"It's a challenge for the coaching staff to make sure we play with our feet on the ground every game," Slocum said. "There are no guarantees that we'll win a game but given my preference, I'd rather be picked.

"The good programs around the country don't sneak up on people. Miami and Notre Dame get everyone's best shot when they play. I hope we have that type of program."

It would be hard to exclude the 1992 Aggies from the elite list. Despite several notable losses, (quarterback Bucky Richardson, cornerback Kevin Smith and linebacker Quentin Coryatt) the Aggies are double-tough.

Slocum has 16 returning starters that made the Aggies favorites to repeat as SWC titlists that's underscored with the addition of Granger, who changed his mind about giving up football to concentrate on baseball.

Granger played in nine games last season. He hit 22 of 48 passes for 395 yards and five touchdowns. He was unexpectedly cut from the U.S. Olympic baseball squad and elected to rejoin the football team.

Richardson and right tackle Keith Alex are the only offensive losses, giving whoever plays quarterback the hope of strong protection. The top three receivers from last year, Tony Harrison, Brian Mitchell and Ryan Matthews, also return.

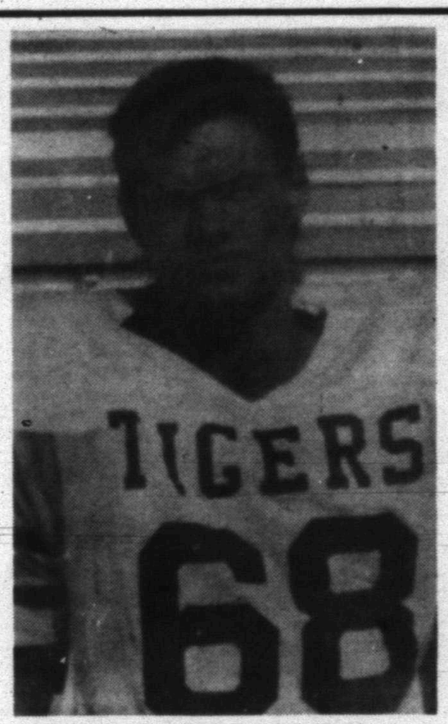

The Aggies finished last season 10-2, including a 10-2 loss to Florida State in the Mobil Cotton Bowl.

Experts like 1992 Red Raiders

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — For the past couple of years Texas Tech coach Spike Dykes has been ignoring the experts who picked his teams to finish fifth or worse in the Southwest Conference.

Now, he is toasting them.

Most of the so-called "experts" are forecasting a top three conference finish for Tech in 1992. Dykes, who normally shrugs his shoulders at any preseason hype, is enjoying the talk.

"I think it's OK," he says with a chuckle. "I don't pay much attention to where we are picked. But it's a credit to our players, and from that standpoint our players are excited."

So is Dykes.

His Red Raiders overcame a disastrous 1-4 start last year and won five of their last six games, including victories over bowl-bound Baylor and Arkansas.

Dykes has been trying to bottle the momentum for a strong start against Oklahoma Sept. 3 in the Red Raiders' home season opener.

"Certainly the positiveness has carried over," says Dykes, who is beginning his sixth year leading Tech. "You hope you can pick up where you left off last fall. If we can, great. If we can't, we got a problem."

An experienced line will cement an offense loaded with talent at the skill positions. A defense armed with speed and eight returning starters will try to hold Tech opponents below a 1991 average of 24.7 points per contest.

The kicking game and depth on both sides of the ball are grave concerns.

"We are excited about the defense," says Dykes. "We have been productive on offense for a while and a little bit disappointed in the production on defense.

"But we got better by the week last year, and I think the progress has carried over."

Tech's 3-4 alignment is anchored by All-Southwest Conference safety Tracy Saul, who is tied for the SWC record of 20 career interceptions. Saul owns the conference record for most interception return yards (383).

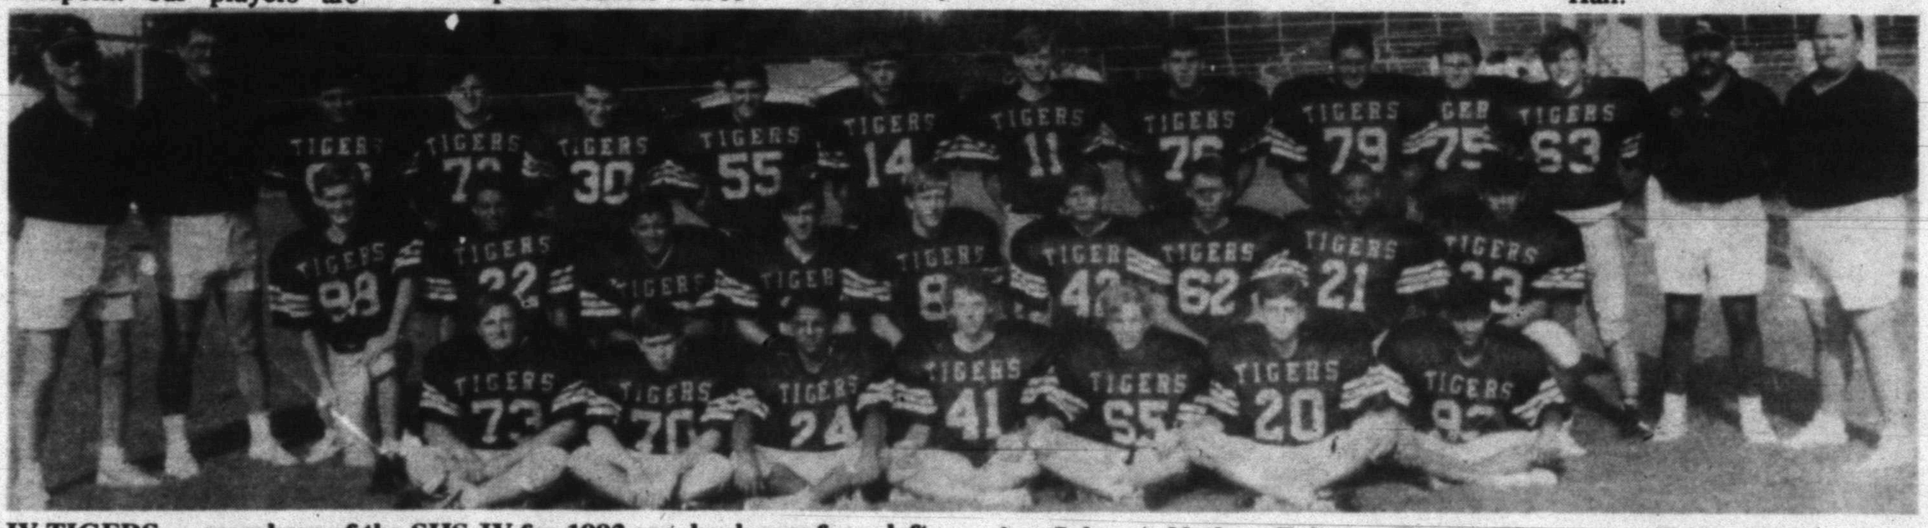

"I think Tech has a lot better players than we have had in the past," says Saul, a senior co-captain. "Everyone has a lot of confidence in the man next to him and that is going to help us out this year."

Juniors Anthony Wiley and Donny Brooks are lightning quick at the corners. Senior Steve Carr, Tech's second-leading tackler last year, will command the linebacking chores along with Mike Liscio.

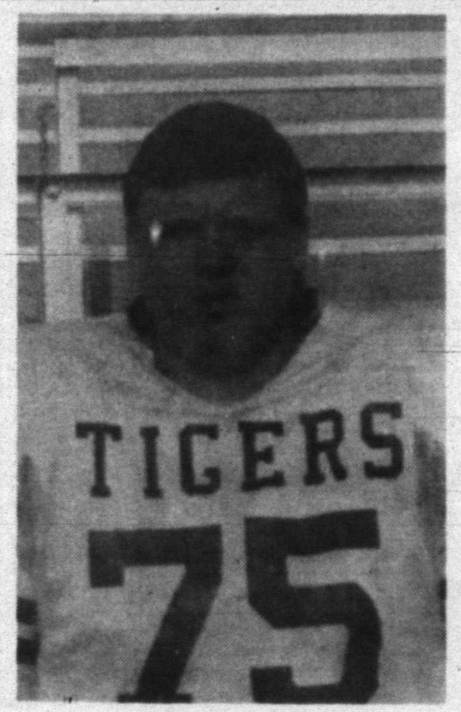

And chest-beating junior Shawn Jackson is expected to terrorize offenses from his end position.

While much of Tech's success this year will rest with the defense, all eyes will be on junior quarterback Robert Hall, whose scrambling and quick release make him a double threat to defenders.

The only question is if Hall can remain in one piece. His inclination to tuck the ball and run is as exciting to fans as it is nerve-wracking for Tech coaches, who have little or no experienced backups behind Hall.

Longhorns feature pro-style air attack

AUSTIN (AP) — With a new coach and a new offense, Texas' immediate goals are to regain its winning ways and become a factor in the Southwest Conference.

John Mackovic, who replaced David McWilliams, brings a button-down image, and a pro-style passing and rushing attack to help accomplish that task.

His past performances as head football coach at Wake Forest and Illinois, and for the NFL Kansas City Chiefs, show he has an ability to turn things around.

Since 1986 — spanning Fred Akers' last year and McWilliams' five seasons — the Longhorns have gone 36-32. Not good enough for Orangebloods.

Even the team's 1990 SWC title season ended on a sour note when Miami destroyed Texas in the Cotton Bowl, 46-3.

"I think the Texas fans expect that we are going to build a good football program, and I think we will," said Mackovic, 48. "But I don't think we should discount the fact that it is going to take some time. There's a lot of work that needs to be done."

Much of that work is being done to the offense.

Simply put, the team will pass more, Mackovic said. The running game will feature more counter plays and the running backs will receive more short passes.

The Longhorns last season ranked seventh in the SWC in total offense, eighth in passing and fifth in rushing.

Incumbent quarterback Peter Gardere, a senior, will be the starter.

Texas has an experienced group of running backs in Phil Brown, Butch Hadnot, Rodrick Walker and Adrian Walker.

The offensive line is anchored by returning starters Jeff Boyd, Alan Luther and center Turk McDonald. Jason Burleson, who has played several positions, will be at tight end.

The deep receivers, after Darrick Duke, lack senior experience, but are speedy.

Mackovic is hoping that the Longhorns' defense keeps Texas in the SWC hunt while the offense gains experience.

Last season, Texas' defense ranked third in the nation in yards allowed and eighth in points allowed. Unlike the general overhaul of the Longhorns coaching staff, the defense remains under the tutelage of coach Leon Fuller.

Most expect another great defensive team, but there are obstacles.

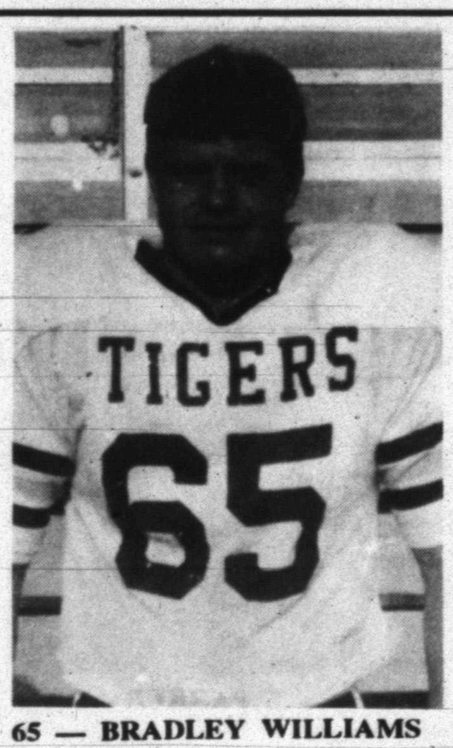

Bo Robinson is the only returning starter on the defensive line. Gone are the beefy James Patton, Tommy Jeter and Shane Dronett, all NFL picks.

They will be replaced with quicker players, among them Norman Watkins, who, as a 223-pound right end, is a flyweight among defensive linemen.

Heading the group of returnees on the defensive side of the ball are Harris and Kirk Jones at the outside linebacker slots, 6-3, 230-pound defensive end Richard Buchanan, who will also back up Kincheloe at center, and Monty Stone, a 5-9, 250-pounder, who will line up opposite Buchanan at end.

Clay Miller is also expected to get playing time at end, as is sophomore Doug Flanigan. Wills will line up at safety.

Coach Avery says they have pointed for one goal since drills started.

"From the first day of practice on, we were playing to beat Ira," he said, "because we want to win the district championship and we feel like to do that we'll have to get by Ira."

"We feel like they took the district championship away from us last year," he continued. "And we want to take it back this year.

"Ira's got a good team. They've got more out for football than we do, they've got the experience and they're the team to beat.

"I didn't fee like we should have gotten beat by them last year," Avery continued, "and it'll be even harder to beat them this year after they've won a championship. But the game this year will be at our place and we're going to be ready for them.

"I like our schedule," the coach stated. "We open up with New Home, a team that beat us by two points last year. Then we go to Wellman, and that's going to be tough.

"By the time we get into our district schedule, you can't rule anybody out.

"Hermleigh's got 23 kids out for football," he explained, "Trent has 19 and they're big. Loraine is down a bit, as far as numbers, but they're always a threat."

A tragedy from last year has dogged the Coyotes during the off-season. Sophomore standout Brandon Adcock was killed in an auto accident just before Borden County faced Sands in last season's bi-district playoff game.

Some have said that the emotion of the loss might keep Borden County out of the loop's top spot this year.

"I don't know how it can be negative," responded Avery. "We're not dwelling on it. In fact, as a team, we haven't brought it up this year. My feeling, deep down, is that everybody is dedicating last season's trophy and this season to Brandon Adcock.

"I'm sure he'll be in the hearts and minds of these kids that grew up with him.

"But, as far as preaching and hollering 'Do it for Brandon!' we're not doing that. I feel like that is using his name in vain for selfish gain."

Avery's assistant coach is Trey Richey, a 1986 gradutate of Jayton High. Richey graduated McMurry in '91 and coached at Sunray last year.

HHS opens season against Mustangs

Coach Mark Minor and the Hermleigh Cardinals will get a tough test the first rattle out of the box in 1992 when they travel to Ackerly to play the Sands Mustangs on Sept. 4.

Sands, although rebuilding after losing coach Randy Roemisch to Meadow, and returning just nine lettermen and no starters, are expected to battle for a playoff spot in District 5, after earning a six-man state semifinal berth and a 12-1 record in 1991.

Hermleigh's home opener is scheduled for Sept. 11 when the Cards host the Southland Eagles of District 4.

September 18 also finds HHS at home where they host District 5's Klondike Cougars before heading to Patton Springs for a Sept. 25 meeting.

Hermleigh's non-district schedule winds up Oct. 2 when another District 5 opponent, Grady, visits Cardinal Stadium.

The Red and White, picked to finish out of the cellar for the first time in four seasons, are tabbed to take fifth in District 6.

The Cardinals begin the district race on the road tangling with playoff contender Borden County in Gail on Oct. 9. They return home to take on Loraine, the preseason pick as this year's cellar dweller, on Oct. 16.

The Cardinals close out the regular season Nov. 6 at home against Trent.

All Hermleigh football games kick-off at 7:30 p.m.

A two-way starter, the 5-8 170-pound Hughes will also pace the defense from his spot in the secondary.

Other returnees of note include running back-linebacker Bryan Luna, who was in on 131 tackles in '91, top running back prospect Toby Haynes, center Wyatt Webster, who had over 300 receiving yards as a junior last year, split end Ronal White, and linebackers Tom Sanchez, Shannon Ballard and Cole Sterling.

In all, Cook will bring back six lettermen, including five offensive and four defensive starters from a year ago.

Borden County, which managed a 7-4 campaign in '91, returns four starters on each side of the ball, including two way starter at end John Paul Harris.

Harris accounted for 133 tackles, 440 yards and 19 TDs receiving and 436 yards and seven touchdowns rushing for the Coyotes last season.

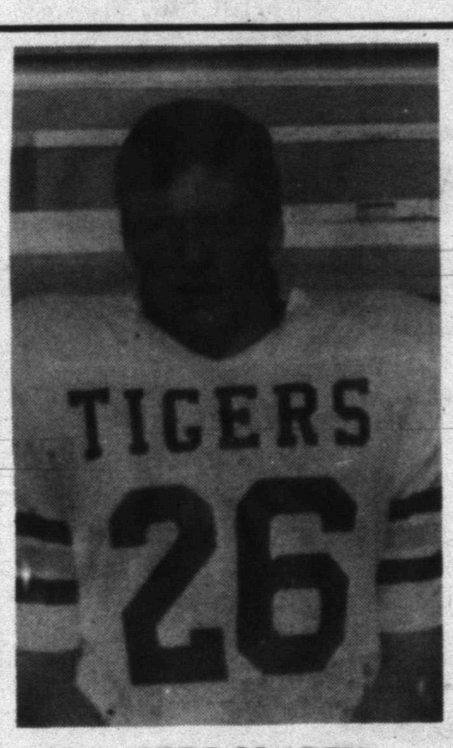

Quarterback-running back Clint Wills, who ran and threw for 14 scores and over 1,200 yards, also returns for coach Bobby Avery's squad, as does center J.J. Kincheloe, ends Monty Stone, Kirk Jones, Clay Miller and Will Zant, and quarterback Cody Cox.

The Coyotes advanced to bi-district last season, falling to eventual semifinalist Sands, 43-1.

Both Ira and Borden County have been in the playoffs two straight years.

Scurry County's other six-man team, Hermleigh, was ranked fifth by Texas Football, the first time in the last four seasons the Cards have been tabbed to finish out of the cellar.

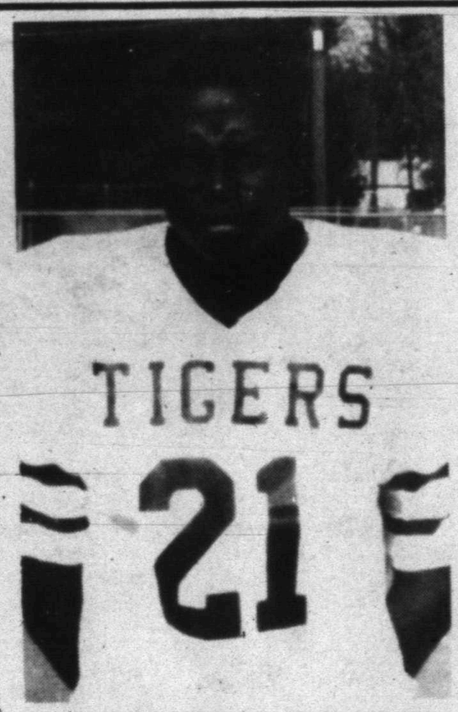

Incoming coach Mark Minor will depend on a dozen returning lettermen, including all offensive and defensive starters, from last season's 1-9 crew.
