Canadian Liberals Barely Miss Sweeping Elections

TORONTO (AP) — Lester B. Pearson's Liberals re-emerged today as Canada's leading political party, but just short of a clear majority in the House of Commons.

Prime minister John G. Diefenbaker, although in effect repudiated in Monday's election, indicated he will hold on to the top job as long as he can. It appeared however, that he must eventually turn over the prime ministry to Pearson.

With only four seats outstanding in the tabulation of results, the Liberals had 126 seats in the House of Commons, seven less than the 133 that means command over all opposition parties in Parliament.

The Conservatives had 94 seats, the Social Credit party 24 and the New Democrats 17.

Conservatives were ahead in three, the Liberals in one of the districts yet to report final results. Thus the Liberals seemed to have no chance of the 133 majority unless they could pull some magic out of overseas returns from service men which are to be announced next weekend.

By the usual procedure, the party gaining most seats names the prime minister. That would put Pearson, at 65, in line to take over the leadership he failed to win in two previous attempts, 1958 and 1962.

Diefenbaker said he will confer with his Cabinet but indicated he intends to take advantage of his right to hold on until the new Parliament lines up by parties, perhaps in six weeks.

A call for Diefenbaker's retirement as leader of the Conservative party came from Douglas Harkness, who quit as Diefenbaker's defense minister in this winter's dispute over acquisition of nuclear warheads.

Harkness, a Conservative who has won seven times in his Alberta district, said "After this election it is apparent a leadership convention will be in order."

Further opposition to Diefenbaker within the party is bound to come as a result of Monday's showing. Some party stalwarts wanted to oust him during his defense crisis which ignited Diefenbaker's defeat on a vote of confidence in the House of Commons Feb. 5. That brought on Monday's election.

Diefenbaker, who keeps his strategy close to his vest, was somewhat cryptic as he discussed election results with reporters.

Diefenbaker said the situation appeared to him to be much like that which prevailed in 1925 when the Liberal Party led by W. L. Mackenzie King made a smaller showing than the Conservatives but chose to stay in office by collaborating with other parties.

Diefenbaker, who was at home in Saskatchewan, indicated his course might be clarified when he holds a Cabinet meeting on his return to Ottawa.

"I will leave to Mr. Diefenbaker to decide what his own responsibility is I know what mine is," Pearson said.

He expressed belief that Parliament should be called quickly after the Council of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization holds a long-scheduled meeting in Ottawa May 22.

The NATO meeting will be looking for Canada's answer to the question whether it should accept nuclear warheads for Bomarc missiles based in Canada and for Canadian interceptor forces in Europe.

Diefenbaker has insisted the Bomarc are out of date, or at least serve only as decoys for possible enemy bombing. He made this an issue in the campaign in an underlying current of anti-Americanism—or pro-Canadianism, as Diefenbaker expressed it.

The United States has insisted that Canada is dragging its heels on making good certain commitments for defense, including acceptance of nuclear warheads. Diefenbaker denied this. Pearson said Canada must go ahead with its commitments and then re-examine the situation.

Last June's election gave Diefenbaker only a minority in Parliament, but he commanded the House of Commons for six months with support from two minor parties, Social Credit and the New Democrats. This government was finally defeated in February when the other parties deserted him as a backlash to the nuclear issue and a widespread feeling that Diefenbaker's government was ineffective.

Diefenbaker said he plans to confer with Real Caouette, deputy leader of the Social Credit party, supposedly with a view to getting its support again. The Caouette party itself lost seats to Liberals in Monday's election. Robert Thompson, leader of the party, declined to say whether he would agree to support a minority government again.

"We will take that decision when the time comes," Thompson said.

The Liberals gained 26 seats as compared with their standing after last June's voting. The Conservatives lost 23 seats.

Diefenbaker easily won reelection in his Saskatchewan district, but six of his Cabinet ministers were defeated.

Diefenbaker expressed special regret over the defeat of his foreign secretary, Howard Green, in a Vancouver constituency. He said Green "has done so much in so many ways in the councils of the nations."

The other Diefenbaker aides beaten were Ellen Fairclough, postmaster general and the only woman in the Cabinet; Raymond O'Hurley, defense production minister; Richard A. Bell, immigration minister; Martial Asselin, forestry minister; and Frank McGee, minister without portfolio.

Douglas Harkness, who resigned as defense minister in the dispute over nuclear warheads, was re-elected. George Hees, who also quit the Cabinet, did not run and the Liberals took his Toronto seat.

HCJC To Get $33,000 Hike In State Aid

Howard County Junior College will get a $33,000 increase in state aid, if a general appropriations bill ready for Senate floor action is approved in Austin.

Currently, HCJC is receiving $135,500 annually in state funds and the new bill proposes $168,000. Aid to junior colleges is based on estimated enrollments and is in addition to money the college receives through local taxation.

The increase is less than asked by HCJC officials in budget requests, which was $187,480 in 1964 and $203,725 in 1965. For the biennium, the bill would grant a total increase of $66,000, but $54,000 less than the amount requested.

Other state junior colleges fared about as well.

Odessa College, $311,690 in the bill, current appropriation $246,000; budget request $433,150 for 1964 and $507,250 for 1965.

Ranger Junior College, $74,625 in the bill; current appropriation $52,150; budget request $70,000 for 1964 and $78,750 for 1965.

San Angelo College, $249,030 in the bill; current appropriation $235,250; budget request $319,150 for 1964 and $350,500 for 1965. South Plains Junior College, Levelland, $165,190 in the bill; current appropriation $131,250; budget request $151,000 for 1964 and $158,125 for 1965.

Southwest Texas Junior College, Uvalde, $141,390 in the bill; $113,400 current appropriation; budget request $142,165 for 1964 and $156,450 for 1965.

Cisco Junior College, $132,000 for each of the fiscal years 1964-65. The current appropriation is $113,400. The budget request was $151,000.

Donations For Polio Vaccine Hit $14,873

Donations during the area Sabin Oral Polio drive totaled $14,873.36, according to John Currie.

Latest addition to the fund, tallied Monday evening, was $681.43 turned in from the make-up clinic. Average donation by the 3,212 persons who received vaccine at the final make-up session was 21.2 cents. Overall, the contribution was 19.7 cents per dose for the 75,278 doses distributed.

Although the final cost of the clinics have not been tabulated, Wayne Gound, who handled the pharmacy aspect of the work and acquired the vaccine, estimated the total cost of vaccine about $6,900-$7,000.

"The vaccine cost 8 2-3 cents a dose. Also, you have to figure about six per cent shrinkage through doses not used and doses which have to be thrown away because they are dropped or otherwise ruined," he said.

Any overage in receipts is slated to be given to the Howard Children's Center. This means that the Center may receive nearly $8,000.

Swedish Film Star Marries

LUGANO, Switzerland (AP) — Swedish film star Anita Ekberg was married in a civil ceremony today to American film actor Rick Van Nutter.

Asst. Mayor Edgardo Bernasconi of the Lugano suburb of Viganella performed the ceremony at the Giganello Town Hall.

Bernasconi said it was the first marriage for Austrian-born Van Nutter, 34, who gave his home town as Honolulu, and the second for Miss Ekberg, 32.

She was married to British actor Anthony Steel May 22, 1956 in Florence, Italy. They separated in January of 1959 and she obtained a divorce in May of that year in Santa Monica, Calif., on the grounds of cruelty. They had no children.

Legislator Asks Stiffer Conflict Of Interest Law 'Situations' Are Cited In Request

Made Profit

William J. Murray, a member and former chairman of the Texas Railroad Commission—the body which regulates the oil industry in Texas—look in $285,000 for an oil lease which cost $10, according to a copyrighted story by the Dallas Morning News. The story reported Murray as saying he knew of no legal barrier to his participation in the West Texas leasing transaction.

AUSTIN (AP)—The House voted 122-14 today to permit a legislator to introduce a bill stiffening Texas' conflict of interest law.

Rep. Bob Eckhardt of Houston introduced the bill. Permission must be given by the House after the first 60 days of the session. Eckhardt mentioned no one by name but said there have been "several situations" recently.

Eckhardt said his proposal would prohibit "personal investments" by state officials serving on regulatory bodies which regulate the investment.

He said it would also include members of the legislature from appearing before state boards, agencies and commissions while the legislature is in session and proposed laws affecting the commission or agency will be considered.

Railroad Commissioner W. J. Murray Jr. says he saw no conflict of interest in his buying, then selling, oil property in West Texas several years ago.

Rep. Bob Johnson of Dallas asked Eckhardt if his proposal is broad enough "to include former state officials from appearing before a board they appointed." Former Gov. Price Daniel, who appointed the present Texas Water Commission, is a lawyer before the commission on a pending application.

Rep. W. S. Healy of Paducah, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, is also a lawyer before the commission on the same application. He is opposing Daniel.

Rep. John Allen of Longview, chairman of the House State Affairs Committee, said his group probably will act Wednesday on a resolution calling for appointment of a five-man House General Investigating Committee.

Speaker Byron Tunnell said he had hoped to wait for appointment of the committee until near the end of the regular session but "recent developments" might speed up the process. Normally such a committee does most of its work between sessions. Allen said the resolution is being "broadened" to include an investigation in any area.

Murray Has No Intention Of Resigning

SAN ANTONIO (AP)—William Murray Jr. for 16 years member of the Railroad Commission, says he has no intention of resigning from the oil regulation board.

"News stories that we parlayed $10 into a big deal are utterly ridiculous," Murray said here Monday in an interview. Murray got a standing ovation when he walked into the Petroleum Club to speak to a Southwest Petroleum Institute group. He talked only of routine oil matters during the speech.

The Dallas News disclosed (In Austin, Texas Attorney General Wagoner Carr has announced an investigation of the Murray oil deal. See page 1-B for details.)

Murray's ownership of part of a lease in Throckmorton County, saying it grossed him more than $285,000 between 1958 and 1960.

"They said what I grossed but they didn't say what I netted," Murray said.

"Anybody who knows anything about oil leases or normal legal transactions knows the terminology is for blank dollars and other considerations, or simply for valuable considerations."

The considerations in this deal included a provision for Murray to assume $475,000 in oil payments, development costs and such, he said. He said he has participated in other oil and gas ventures and has not seen anything wrong in any of them.

"I have never had any interest in any lease involving Texas Railroad Commission policy, and policy or not whenever a hearing came up involving an area in which I had an interest I disqualified myself," he said.

MORE THAN $200,000 YEARLY

Legislative Panel Favors State Hospital Fund Hike

Despite severe cuts in the requested budget for the Big Spring State Hospital during the next biennium, recommendations made Monday by the Senate finance committee reflect an increase of more than $200,000 a year for each of the next two years.

The bill, which reflects a slight increase over the version approved by the House, is expected to come up for debate Wednesday.

Current budget under which the hospital is operating is $1,385,706. Recommendations of the Board for State Hospitals and special Schools were $1,756,300 for the first year beginning Sept. 1 and $1,783,300 for the second year.

The Senate committee recommended $1,593,636 for each of the two years, up $21,636 over the $1,572,000 approved by the House for the first year and up $11,636 over the $1,582,000 approved by the House for the second.

One of the largest cuts recommended was in medical treatment salaries. Local requests were $898,000 and $910,000 for the two years. The Senate version recommended $691,485 for each of the two years. The house had approved $774,390 for each year.

"I am very disappointed about this cut," Dr. Preston E. Harrison, superintendent of the hospital, said this morning. "Ward nurses and aides deserve a raise in salary. They work with the patient 24 hours of the day."

Included in raises which were approved by the committee were a raise from $14,000 to $15,500 a year plus house and utility and maid service for the superintendent, a raise from $13,500 to $15,000 for the clinical director and an increase for the business manager from $8,360 to $8,700 a year.

General physicians' salaries would be limited to $12,000 annually. Psychiatrists' salaries are not set in the present law.

Additional large cuts were in the amounts asked for renovation and building at the hospital. Both the House and Senate have recommended that $52,000 be budgeted for additions to warehouses and $20,000 for the laundry for the last year of the biennium.

The hospital had requested an additional $292,000 for renovation of two ward buildings and $60,000 for three physician residences.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., said today Navy testimony indicates that the effort to save money by designing the TFX warplane for both the Air Force and Navy may result in a "sacrifice of weaponry effectiveness."

U. S. Asks Russian Influence To Bring Halt To Laos Fighting

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States has asked the Soviet Union to use its influence with Communist North Vietnamese and Pathet Lao forces to halt the fighting against the neutralist army in Laos.

State Department officials disclosed today that Washington's serious concern has been conveyed directly to Moscow within the past few days.

Llewellyn Thompson, special advisor on Soviet affairs and former U.S. ambassador to Moscow, made known the American position in an unpublished weekend meeting with Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin.

U.S. Embassy accounts received by the State Department have reported, officials said, that the Communist-directed Pathet army has been reinforced with North Viet Nam troops in the fighting against neutralist troops on the central Plateau des Jarres.

Dispatches from Vientiane, Laos' capital, indicate the Pathet

Lao campaign against neutralist Gen. Kong Le is aimed at giving the Communists control of all northern Laos.

Whether or not that is the aim, U.S. officials said the attacks could endanger the 14-nation Geneva accord which guaranteed the neutrality of Laos after the little Southeast Asian kingdom's bitter civil war.

How effective Soviet efforts to halt the fighting may be remains to be seen. U.S. officials said there is no indication the Soviets want to break the Geneva agreement.

As far as U.S. obligations are concerned, Laos removed itself from protection of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization when its tripartite coalition of leftists, neutralists and rightists was established last July.

Nevertheless, the eight-nation SEATO powers agreed in Bangkok in 1961 that "if there continues to be an active military attempt to obtain control of Laos, members of SEATO are prepared, within the terms of the treaty, to take any action which may be appropriate in the circumstances."

What long-range decisions may be involved for the United States is not yet clear.

U.S. officials recalled that when Pathet Lao forces smashed almost to Thailand's border last year American forces were rushed to positions in Thailand. Although most of the troops were withdrawn last fall, their base installations and arms depots were left intact along the northeast Thailand border.

He will become football coach and athletic director at Port Neches, Tex., High School. Phillips, 39, said he wished to return to his home area. He is a native of Orange.

Phillips also indicated he would receive more money at Port Neches.

Phillips came here last year when only three seniors were on the football team. His quarterback was a freshman. Texas Western is an independent, belonging to no conference.

His record last year was 4 won and 5 lost.

Market Has Irregular Tone

NEW YORK (AP) — Recent leaders faltered this afternoon to give the stock market an irregular tone after four advances in a row. Trading continued heavy.

Prices dipped at the opening but many losses were trimmed during the morning. By noon there were a good number of gains and losses amounting to a point among the key issues. Some of the growth stocks were still lower by 2 or 3 points.

At noon The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was off 4 at 264.3 with industrials off 4, rails off 1 and utilities off 4. The hesitation did not appear to surprise many Wall Streeters although most consider the long-range outlook favorable. Many analysts expect lower prices because of the big rise in the last six months.

DEAR ABBY

Please Say
It Ain't So

DEAR MADEMOISELLE ABBY: I am a Frenchman visiting an American friend I met in World War II. Why do you Americans think we Frenchmen are such devils with the women? I have been married to a lovely Frenchwoman for 16 years and have never had the desire to cheat on her. I have been to parties in this country and everywhere I go women say to me, "Oh, you Frenchmen! Do you mean to say that you do not have a girl friend on the side?" Such remarks to me are not funny.

JEAN PAUL J.

DEAR J. P.: If "everywhere" you go women inquire about your infidelity, you're going to the wrong places. Many Americans are poorly informed on French culture, just as many Frenchmen believe all Americans to be materialistic, loud and showy. The trouble is, there is just enough truth on both sides to make generalizations believable — and annoying.

DEAR ABBY: My girl friend has been going out three and four nights a week and doesn't get home until sometimes four in the morning. She says she is "baby-sitting." I am beginning to wonder if maybe she isn't stepping out on me. I have my suspicions, but how can I be sure? We are supposed to be married next summer.

LEERY

DEAR LEERY: Do a little checking. If your girl friend isn't where she says she'll be, why don't YOU do a little "baby-sit" baby?

DEAR ABBY: When we go to a party most of the men sit around and refuse to dance. My husband is the life of the party because he's a wonderful dancer and he loves to dance. So all the women line up to dance with him. I rarely go to dance with my own husband. They all say, "Oh, you have him all the time!" They must think we dance together at home. The truth is, the only time we get to dance together is when we go out — and then everyone else grabs him. He feels flattered that he is so popular, but don't you think he owes me a few dances? Or should I just sit and be a good sport when I am dying to dance?

WALLFLOWER: Don't be a wallflower — be a dandy! Insist that the first dance is yours, and if you find yourself sitting alone and tapping your toes, get up and "tap" the woman who is waiting your hubby around. There's a big difference between being a good sport and a dope.

CHRIST IN PROPHECY

Around 600 years before Christ, Jeremiah said, "Behold the days come, saith the Lord, that I will raise unto David a righteous branch . . . and this is his name whereby he shall be called, THE LORD OUR RIGHTEOUS" (Jer. 23:5, 6). "For unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given, and the government shall be upon his shoulder, and his name shall be called, Wonderful, Counsellor, The Mighty God, the everlasting Father, The Prince of Peace" (Isa. 9:6, about 750 B.C.).

The place of his birth was prophesied: "But thou, Bethlehem Ephrathah, which are little to be among the thousands of Ju-

U.N. Projects
Are Criticized

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United Nations has scheduled 87 projects in 6 Communist countries in the next 2 years under its technical assistance programs, Rep. Durward Hall, R-Mo., said today.

Cost to the United Nations, he said, will be $3.1 million with American taxpayers to pay 40 per cent, or $1.2 million.

"From past experience we would have expected the United Nations to extend this aid to Cuba, Poland and Yugoslavia," he said, "but the shocking thing about these training projects is that they involve Red Albania, Red Bulgaria and the USSR itself."

Among more ambitious projects, he added, are those providing training in Albania for technical education, in Poland for general atomic development and telecommunications, and in Yugoslavia for nuclear reactor design and for industrial development.

In Cuba, he said, projects call for training for educational services, in Bulgaria for small scale industry and in Russia for such things as aerial survey and oceanography.

The programmed aid, he said, is $838,776 more than the bloc contributed to the expanded technical assistance program last year.

Hall said the United Nations has acted without asking American taxpayers and has placed Americans in the position of "paying to make communism work."

Clean Up Week Aspects
Include Fire Prevention

Fire prevention is one of the most important aspects of the Clean-up, Paint-up, Fix-up campaign started Monday in Big Spring, according to Fire Marshal A. D. Meador and Chief H. V. Crocker.

All fire hazards should be removed from homes and business buildings, the men agreed. Vacant lots should be cleaned off to prevent both fire and sanitary hazards before the lots get completely dry after the recent rains.

"We will make inspections of any premises, where the owner calls and makes the request," Meador said, "and will answer complaints about nuisances and try to get them eliminated."

Some of the things residents should check for hazardous conditions, according to the fire officials, are: furnace and heating systems; electric wiring to determine if it is sufficient to carry the loads demanded by appliances; old clothing, rags, furniture and newspapers should be moved from closets, attics, basements and garages; oily rags and paint-stained clothing should be removed or put in airtight metal containers, and oil mops should be placed where the air can circulate through them; leaves and grass cuttings should be kept away from foundations; shingles checked to see if they are dried out; cords for lamps and appliances should be checked for cracked or worn insulation.

Skeet Forsythe, street superintendent, said more attention should be paid to litter and trash thrown in the streets by pedestrians and motorists.

"It's the taxpayer's money they are spending when they throw trash outside," Forsythe said. "No citizen would knowingly throw money into the streets and highways, yet that's exactly what the litterbugs are doing."

"All this trash, tossed heedlessly, calls for more sanitation employees and more equipment to keep streets cleaned up. These employees and equipment are paid for out of the taxpayer's pocket."

"Then, if the trash gets blown around by the wind and it accumulates in certain areas, it gets into sewer lines and drains which causes flooding when it rains," the superintendent said. "It's his adds to the number of dollars in further expense to the city (taxpayer)."

Individuals of the Big Spring

Sir Winnie
To Get U.S.
Honors Tonight

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sir Winston Churchill, the magnificent Briton, becomes officially today what has been for two decades in the hearts of Americans—the first honorary citizen of the United States.

The bestowing of this honor, unique in history, requires only a touch of President Kennedy's pen on a bill enacted by Congress and a second signature on a presidential proclamation.

Wary now with the weight of 88 years, Sir Winston was unable to be present to receive a nation's accolade. Neither were Herbert Hoover, Harry S. Truman and Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, the three former presidents, able to accept Kennedy's invitation to attend.

The ceremony was carefully timed, at 3 p.m. EST, so that the British Broadcasting Corp. could bounce it off the orbiting Relay satellite and Churchill could watch it on television in his London home.

Sir Winston sent a special message of acceptance and appreciation to be read by his son, Randolph.

The setting was the Rose Garden, outside the White House where Churchill helped chart the strategy of global war and peered at the problems of an uneasy peace in the climactic years of a stirring erratic career.

It was in this house that the man Britain chose as her prime minister in the moment of her greatest peril showed up suddenly and secretly a few days after Japan smashed at Pearl Harbor and the United States went limping off to war.

Side by side in the oval presidential office, Churchill and Franklin D. Roosevelt thundered at the common enemy at a joint news conference. They assured the world that Allied might ultimately would win out over Germany first and then Japan. Spry then, Churchill climbed onto a chair, chomped a cigar, and poked his split fingers aloft in his renowned V for Victory salute.

For Congress he rolled out a display of his even more renowned oratory.

"I cannot help reflecting that if my father had been an American and my mother British, instead of the other way 'round, I might have got here on my own," he said, looking around the House chamber.

In those desperate days of World War II, Churchill was the symbol and the leader of an indomitable Britain. It didn't matter that Churchill twice had been a political turncoat and a consistent political failure. Or that he was impulsive and contradictory, and detested as well as admired in his own land.

Homage comes to Churchill today not only from the ambassadors of Britain and seven Commonwealth nations. Presidential invitations to the citizenship ceremony also brought an outpouring of acceptance from American friends and admirers of Churchill in and out of government.

Stronger News
Bill Is Urged

AUSTIN (AP)—Rep. Chet Brooks of Pasadena asked the Senate State Affairs Committee Monday to strengthen enforcement clauses of a freedom of information bill.

The bill went to a subcommittee after a short hearing.

As approved by the House, the bill would require governing bodies to open meetings to the public but provides no penalty for failure to do so. A person desiring to force open a meeting must get a court order.

"Many newspapers have editorialized that this is too weak," said Brooks, sponsor of the bill.

"I personally feel this should be strengthened in some way. By the time a person goes to his judge and gets action with a court order, the meeting would already be over."

Good Novel Is A Bad Play

NEW YORK (AP)—One of World War I's best-known novels, "The Good Soldier Schweik," is one of the season's worst plays.

It opened Monday night at the Gate Theater with Irwin "Professor" Corey of the night club circuit as the chief victim.

Robert Kalfin, listed on the program as the adapter-director, withdrew several days ago and vainly applied for an injunction to block the production. The sponsors plucked on with Richard Edelman as a substitute stager.

In the circumstances it probably was no wonder that neither Corey nor anyone else in the cast seemed to be sure what to do or how.

What they should have done was leave Czech author Jaroslav Hasek's burning satire of a dimwit soldier where it was—On the bookshelf.

FIVE PLACES AT DAYTONA...WHEN YOUR '63 FORD IS STILL GOING STRONG YEAR AFTER YEAR

Daytona's big, banked oval puts unbelievable stresses and strains on engines, steering gears and frames. The Fords that won at Daytona took all the punishment this famous track could dish out over 500 miles of grueling competition without missing a beat.

In this toughest of all stock car events, mechanical failures claimed over fifty per cent of the starting field. But of twelve Fords entered, nine went the distance. Ford took six of the first ten places.

Five-hundred-mile events like Daytona are a public demonstration of toughness, reliability and sheer engineering excellence that are part of the new generation of Fords. A test like this can't be duplicated on anybody's testing grounds—it's run right out in the open. Any car can enter. But only the car that has the best total combination of strength, balance, precision control and road-clinging suspension can win... that's what we mean by total performance.

Visit your Ford Dealer before you buy any other new car. Here's what you'll find: a new kind of total-car durability, a new kind of handling ability, a suspension that is startlingly smooth yet sticks to the road like tar. If you haven't driven one lately, you can't really know what a new Ford is like. Remember, it's built by Ford, it's built for performance... total performance!

Senate Panel Approves $3.1 Billion Spending Bill

AUSTIN (AP)—The Senate Finance Committee gave its approval late Monday to a $3.1 billion spending bill.

The measure provides for an outlay of $456 million in general revenue funds over the next two years, $66 million more than the current two-year period.

A $47 million hike for state colleges accounts for the bulk of the increased spending.

Sen. George Moffett of Chillicothe, chairman of the subcommittee which wrote the bill, said every college delegation appearing before his group rated money for instruction "their most difficult and sensitive area."

Not only are enrollments rising, he said, but colleges in other states paying more money "are stealing our professors."

About $15 million of the education increase would go to the University of Houston, which enters the state system in September. A few hours before the Senate group acted, a House committee approved a bill which would raise $32 million more revenue in the next two years.

Moffett said the Senate spending bill provides for about $17 million more than the state comptroller's last estimate of income during fiscal 1964-65.

About $3.5 million of the increase would go to raise state employees' salaries, primarily in the middle pay bracket.

A breakdown of where the money would go under the Senate bill: judiciary, $9.7 million; hospitals and special schools, $119.9 million; departments and agencies, $1.6 billion; education, $1.4 billion; and legislature, $4 million. The House tax plan proposes to collect $11.1 million more by a one-year extension of the current state franchise tax rate, $20.44 million by revising the sales tax to eliminate a $10 clothing exemption and $6.17 million by putting automobiles under the 2 per cent sales tax instead of the 1.5 per cent excise tax.

The bill calls for the tax change to take effect July 1, 1963, in order to gain an extra $3 million.

Rep. Dick Cory of Victoria said the financial status was helped by State Comptroller Robert S. Calvert raising his revenue estimate for 1964-65 by $13.1 million.

Two provisions of the tax bill would cut income. Home delivered newspapers would be exempted for a $2.7 million loss and vending machine sales of less than 25 cents would be exempted for a $2.6 million loss.

Monday the House tentatively approved bills to:

Tax gas bought in Mexico by persons who cross the border at Texas points and stay less than 24 hours. The sponsor, Rep. Ben Jarvis of Tyler, said the measure would produce $900,000 annually in new revenue. Rep. James Cotten of Weatherford opposed the measure. He said the cost of administration would be more than the tax would bring in.

Transfer regulation of boxing and wrestling from the Bureau of Labor Statistics to the Department of Public Safety.

Provide for an election on whether to put a medical examiner in Tarrant County.

Require that a person be "actively seeking work" before he is eligible for unemployment compensation.

Require a prescription for the purchase of paregoric. Rep. Don Garrison of Houston said a recent Harris County grand jury brand use of paregoric a primary source of juvenile dope addiction. Increase to 14 the age at which children can be allowed to leave school to work. The present age is 12.

Provide for establishing rehabilitation districts to teach handicapped or mentally retarded children.

Regulate automobile clubs. Rep. Paul Floyd of Houston, the sponsor, said the bill "takes these clubs out of the insurance business—it stops the swindling that has been going on for many years."

The House concurred in Senate amendments to HB230 dealing with probate courts. The Senate put a $1,000 expenditure ceiling in the bill.

The House postponed until April 16 consideration of a permanent voter registration bill, and until April 10 consideration of a bill to require teaching of "Americanism courses."

Monday night the House Elections Committee approved for floor debate a Senate bill aimed at widespread revision of election laws.

The committee approved 12 amendments to the bill, which was changed 13 times in the Senate. One major change provides that poll watchers may be from any precinct in a county. The original bill called for poll watchers to be qualified voters in the precinct where they serve.

Joe Lopez Released On Bond Monday

Joe Lopez 42, charged with murder in the death last week of Gloria Gomez, posted $15,000 bond Monday afternoon and was released from custody. Lopez had surrendered to the sheriff's office at 10 a.m. Immediately afterwards, he and his attorney, Roger Brown, went to the city police station. He remained there until mid-afternoon Monday.

On being transferred from the city to the county jail, he was taken before Walter Grice, justice of the peace, who fixed bond at $15,000. Lopez immediately posted bond and was released.

He had been sought by police since March 25. On that date, Gloria Gomez filed a complaint against him accusing him of beating her. The woman was then found dead in her bed April 3. An autopsy report indicated she died as result of blows on the head. The aggravated assault charge pending against Lopez was changed to murder with malice and the hunt for the man stepped up.

Nothing was heard of him until this morning when he appeared at the jail in company with Brown.

DAILY GUIDE — Mercury now enters Taurus. The Taureans have had to keep silent more or less lately, even though things have been more than usually difficult for them. Now they can begin to talk and write what is in their heart and mind. The Taureans often are slow to react, but when they are ready to express themselves, they do so with great conviction and spirit. In the next few weeks, they will have the combative Mars in Leo, the illusive Neptune in Scorpio and the stern taskmaster Saturn all focussed to stir them to voice their ideas and make decisions.

In dealing with each other and the general public today, be sure you have your facts straight and that you are practical and down-to-earth; otherwise you won't get your message over. Shop for essentials, good buys, and material needs. With it all don't neglect that Taurean touch of beauty, artistic interests, good food and adornment. Excellent time to buy pretty hats and accessories. Men will find women pleasant and attractive.

A very masculine day ahead, strongly aggressive with some danger of violence in the late evening.

Special 4-dr. sedan tops all Class D middle size cars with V-8 engines in Mobil Economy Run!

Here's official proof of everything you've heard about the Buick Special V-8 with Dual Path Turbine Drive. It's a terrific performer—a shameless gas miser. Facts: it's beaten every V-8, big or small, three years running. This year, by at least 2.34 mpg! And with regular gas. Of course, not everyone can get this winning gas mileage in everyday driving (Run drivers are trained experts—the engines, finely tuned). But this rough tough 2500-mile test proves how much real gas economy is built into every Special.

And the Special has lots more going for it. Like—choice of three smooth, snappy transmissions. An economical V-6, if you prefer (only Buick has it!). All thoroughly Buick. All amazingly low priced.

Pretty French Girls Villagers No More

JARNAC, France (P)—Misty-eyed Nicole Hine leaned on an ancient rock wall that separated the gardens of the 12th Century castle from the rolling vineyards stretching to the horizon.

The abandoned castle, her late grandmother's home, holds much of her past and at least one of the reveries of the young French girl's future.

"I come up here every once in a while all alone and close my eyes and picture myself being married in that old house," she sighs.

If the pretty-dark-haired, 21-year-old was not of today's generation, the verdant vineyards beyond the mossy wall could easily have been her entire life.

SINCE 1763 These have provided a good and fruitful existence for her father, Francois, and her Uncle Robert Hine. And they have been the very reason to be for all the Hines before them since 1763 when Englishman, Thomas, set up his distilleries here.

Even now most of the people in the tiny flower-burgeoning town ply the trade of his father and his father's father. If they do not cultivate grapes, they make bottles, or shape corks, or print labels, or siphon the vats of juices stored in the dank warehouses everywhere. But they live off the grape.

When Robert and Francois Hine took the reins of the distillery business, they divided a vast apartment over the factory and each family moved into half. Therefore cousin Catherine, Robert's daughter is more like a sister to Nicole.

EMPLOYED Both 21-year-old girls work now and then in their family's office, and understand and enjoy the business. This would have been an uncommon thing among French girls before the war. However, both have brothers who will someday take over the Hine family tradition.

Thus Nicole and Catherine have in various ways lifted their eyes beyond the immediate horizon.

"Catherine is such an American, she is unbearable at times," declares her nevertheless proud father, Robert. "We get into terrible arguments with her. Nothing the United States does can be wrong as far as she is concerned."

The pleasant blonde spent a year at Stanford University as an American Field Service exchange student. She was in England, too. Now she is thinking of teaching in Paris perhaps.

On the other hand, Nicole turned southward to spend a year on her own in the service of an elite fashion salon. She is proud of earning her own way. She makes her own clothes, worries about the high prices of things, discusses the Common Market and frets over whether the United States will devalue the dollar.

Although marriage is important to both, neither young French girl is in a hurry to settle down. Each says, "It is a serious matter to me, and I want to get all of the restlessness out of me first."

YOUTH REBELS Occasionally there is conflict with the older generation. Transistor radios blaring "that awful jazz music" causes father Robert Hine to order "the fool things" shut off. Nicole's mother, the daughter of a vicar, sometimes complains that her daughter enjoys far too much freedom.

CATHERINE AND NICOLE

Proud as both young ladies are of the beauty of the sleeping vineyards and dormant little towns around them, they rebel sometimes against its very peacefulness.

"It livens up again around here when all the young people come home from school," Nicole brightens as she tells about it.

About that time last year the girls scrubbed out the cobwebby halls of the turreted castle, trimmed the garden, strung up lanterns, and the hills reverberated with gay music.

The gay music was Catherine's 21st birthday, and it was symbolic.

They were enjoying the historic old place to the fullest, but they also had their eyes on a lively future in a world grown very small within the generation.

By LUCILLE PICKLE

How nice to have Academy Award picture contenders all of which were good pictures and none of them one that pertained to the life of a woman of questionable morals. I suppose "Lawrence of Arabia" deserved the best picture, but I enjoyed reading "To Kill a Mockingbird" and also viewing the motion picture more than any other work I've seen in a long time. I was placated by Gregory Peck getting the best actor award for his portrayal of Atticus Finch.

The makeup men in Hollywood do such wonderful things I wish they had done something wonderful to the dreadful hair arrangements of Bette Davis and Joan Crawford. Perhaps a wig would help.

They could take a lesson from pretty Lee Remick whose hair always looks combed and natural. Of course she is about 30 years younger and that do make a difference.

MRS. DELIA K. AGNELL is convalescing at her home after being hospitalized for three weeks.

MRS. LUCIAN JONES, who arrived in Italy just before the beginning of Holy Week, will be with members of her father's family on Easter Sunday. During her stay she plans to go to Rome where there is a possibility that she will see LEWIS PORTER, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Porter, who is stationed with the military in Greece and who had indicated she could probably be there during Mrs. Jones' visit. Mrs. Jones' son, Dennis, and Lewis were grade school, high school and college friends.

The Rev. Jim Fields has another birthday anniversary behind him, and all his children and their families gathered at his home Sunday to help him observe the occasion. Approximately 62 family members ate lunch at the Fields' home. Several brought their grills to the Fields' back yard, where they all joined in to barbecue chickens and prepare a feast worthy of the day.

At the Bykota breakfast Sunday morning we had a good visit with JOHN LOU CALLISON of Brownfield who worked here for many years in insurance offices. She still feels that Big Spring is her home town, and when she can, she likes to come down off the plains and look at our hills. She was the house guest of the HAROLD PARKS family. County Trustees Will Meet May 6

The Howard County School Board will meet May 6 for its organizational meeting, following last Saturday's election. H. H. Rutherford, elected trustee from Commissioner's Precinct 1 replacing Fred Roman, will be formally inducted as a member.

A new chairman will be elected. The chairman at present is J. D. Gilmore, who was re-elected as trustee from Commissioner's Precinct 2. The board elects its own chairman.

One vacancy still remains on the board—Paul Bishop, with one year to serve as trustee from Commissioner's Precinct 4, has resigned. The law requires the board to appoint his successor.

At a recent meeting of the board, Gilmore and Roman brought forward the name of Jack Buchanan while Chub Jones, trustee at large, and Jim Lewis, trustee from Commissioner District 3, advocated the appointment of Harvey Adams. The long session terminated in a deadlock with each nominee receiving two votes and the vacancy continues on the board.

Rutherford's election, by a write-in vote, will change the balance of the board and it is believed that a successor to Bishop will be named.

At the same meeting, the board will classify all schools in the county, a formality which must be gone through each spring at this time—and also tentatively approve the bus routes for schools for 1963-1964.

In the meantime, Rutherford and Gilmore must go to the county clerk's office sometime after the commissioners have certified the election, and qualify themselves for office.

The commissioners did not certify the vote at their meeting Monday.

SEATO Seeks To Keep War From Thailand

PARIS (AP)—Ministers of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization go behind closed doors today to study ways to prevent lightning from the war clouds in Laos from striking neighboring Thailand.

The prospect that the pro-Communist Pathet Lao would take over all of northern Laos spurred urgent consultations among the foreign ministers of the eight SEATO nations, whose alliance is aimed at keeping the Communists from taking over Southeast Asia.

U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk Monday urged all signers of the 1962 agreement neutralizing Laos to "prevent further aggravation of the situation."

The signers include the Soviet Union and Communist China.

British Foreign Secretary Lord Home told the ministerial council that his ambassador in Moscow, Sir Humphrey Trevelyan, has been in close contact with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko on the situation.

Britain and the Soviet Union are co-chairmen of the Geneva conference. They had their representatives in Laos appeal to all parties for restraint.

One side effect of the SEATO meeting was an apparent warming up on French relations with Britain and the United States.

Rusk conferred with President Charles de Gaulle in what was described as a cordial atmosphere. It was the first such high level French-American meeting since De Gaulle spurred President Kennedy's offer of Polaris missiles for French submarines as a start toward a NATO nuclear force.

Lord Home saw French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville for the first time since France blocked Britain's bid for entry into the Common Market.

The British and Americans had another difficulty. Pakistan, a SEATO member, was reported taking a stand-offish attitude at the meeting because of arms aid to India by the two powers.

Lo, The Poor Indian! But Don't Call Him A Beggar

LAKEWOOD, Calif. (AP)—Winnie Anders apparently thought she was dispensing charity in the best Biblical fashion: Casting bread upon the waters.

But the objects of her good works asked that Mrs. Anders send her donations elsewhere.

And now diplomatic relations have been broken off between Mrs. Anders and the 1,800 tribesmen of the Santo Domingo Pueblo, north of Albuquerque, N. M.

"Why, those ungrateful Indians!" snorted Mrs. Anders, chieftain of a self-appointed Lakewood women's group known as the Pueblo Indian Food Lift.

It seems the proud Santo Domingo Indians were embarrassed by shipments of food, clothing, sewing machines and rifle bullets. The women had sent them after hearing of the tribe's poverty. Mrs. Anders got the idea for shipments after meeting a Santo Domingo tribesman, who was serving with the Navy reserve in this Southern California city.

The reservist, Santiago Leo Coriz, invited Mrs. Anders and her husband George, 49, to visit his pueblo in New Mexico. They did.

When they returned, Mrs. Anders, tears in her eyes, told women friends and newsmen:

"If you could each look into the hollow eyes of these children and view their little bodies, and see the despair in the eyes of the older people, I am sure you could not turn your backs on this condition."

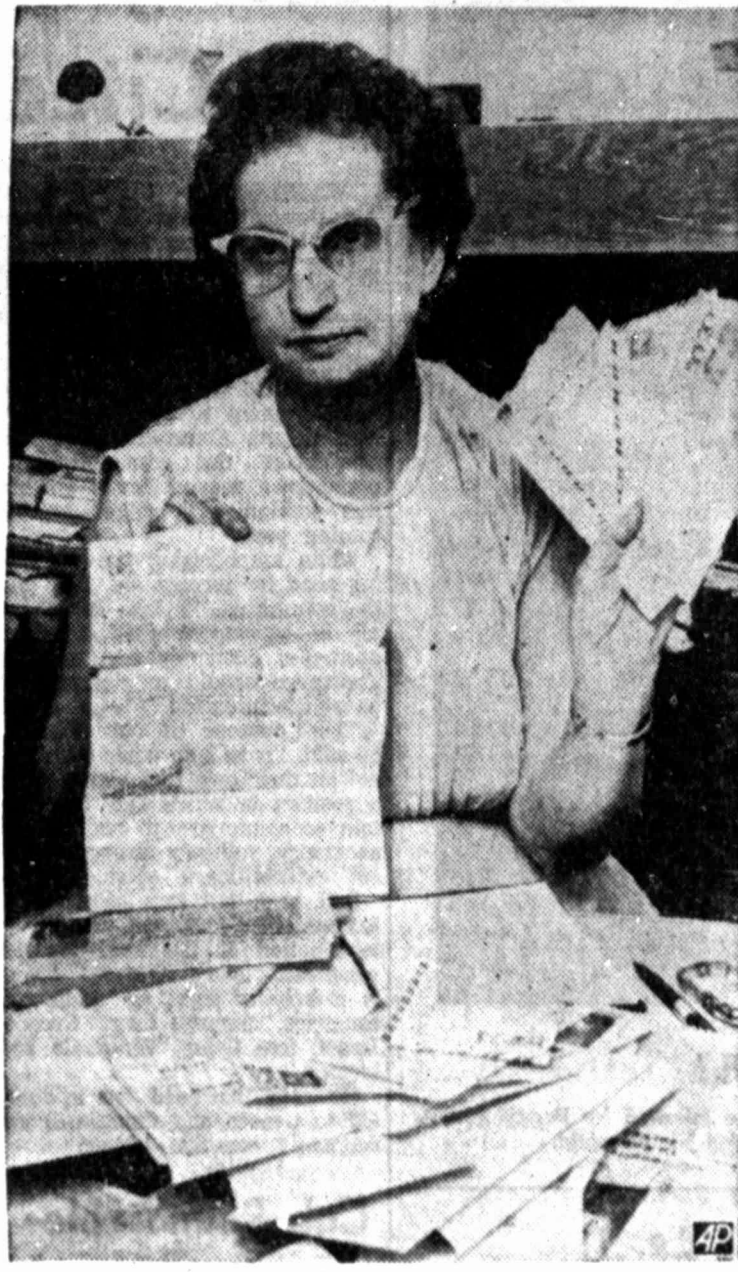

Thus stirred, Lakewood's womenfolk launched a massive mercy lift, and enlisted the Navy to fly supplies to New Mexico.

Meanwhile, newspaper stories of the Indians' plight filtered back to New Mexico, and prompted this letter from Diego Rosetta, governor of the pueblo:

"It has come as quite a shock to us to know that we are starving, have no clothing, have no land, live in an area comprising 10 square blocks."

While he appreciated their gesture, Rosetta added, he suggested they send future shipments to "California Indians who are in distress." He noted that "Indian people, as a rule, are poor people, but there is a difference between being poor and being in want and distress."

If this is so, the puzzled Mrs.

Rebuffed

Mrs. Winnie Anders of Lakewood, Calif., displays correspondence and receipts for her Indian food lift that was rejected by the tribesmen of the Santo Domingo Pueblo of New Mexico. Mrs. Anders had collected food and clothing for the "starving" Indians and shipped it to the tribe. The supplies came back with a terse note to "give it to the starving California Indians."

Anders inquired, why were Indians forced to kill rabbits with clubs? Simple, replied a pueblo spokesman, Indians consider clubs more sporting than rifles.

That ended the Santo Domingo experiment. But the women of Lakewood, still determined to dispense charity, have found another poverty-stricken group—Indians in the interior of Baja California, Mexico.

Now the rejected supplies from New Mexico will go to Old Mexico.

Cuba Frees U.S. Divers

HAVANA (AP)—James B. Donovan announced today that he has secured the freedom of nine shipwrecked skindivers held in Cuba for seven weeks and would return with them to the United States as soon as possible.

Donovan, the New York lawyer who also negotiated the freedom of the Bay of Pigs prisoners, said that Prime Minister Fidel Castro agreed to the release of the skindivers after Donovan proved them innocent of any counterrevolutionary activity.

"The government has informed me that it has determined, despite the suspicious circumstances of the case, the innocence of the expedition," Donovan said in an after midnight session with newsmen.

"The fact that they were shipwrecked seamen has been established."

The nine scuba divers arrived at Camaguey in an open boat Feb. 21 after two days at sea without food and water. They said they were bound for Puerto Rico. The Cuban government arrested them.

"I have been informed by the Cuban government and after thorough investigation of the facts and after consideration of detailed documentary evidence corroborating these facts, which I presented," Donovan said, "that the men would be freed immediately."

Donovan said they would fly to Miami, Fla., as soon as clearance for their plane could be obtained.

Minor Changes In U.S. Weather

By The Associated Press

The nation's weather pattern showed only minor changes today, with a few wet spots, cool across northern areas and fairly mild in the South.

There was considerable cloudiness throughout the country but no stormy weather was reported.

The main precipitation belts were in the northern Rockies and northern Plains with light rain and snow in higher elevations. Light rain sprinkled areas in Ohio and West Virginia and snow powdered most sections of Maine.

Ashley, Lima Granted Stay

AUSTIN (AP)—Gov. John Connally granted a stay of execution Monday for Leslie Douglas Ashley and Carolyn Lima until May 31.

This will allow time for a May 9 hearing by the U.S. 5th Circuit Court of Appeals. The condemned pair won a stay from U.S. Dist. Judge John Brown March 29 four hours before they were scheduled to die. The State Pardons Board then reset the execution for April 16. They drew the death penalty for the torch murder Feb. 6, 1961, of Fred Tones, 44. The slaying followed a sex party in the real estate man's Houston office.

Miss Lima, 20, an admitted prostitute, will be the first woman to die in the Texas electric chair if she is executed. Ashley, 24, her common law husband, is a female impersonator.

Pope Signs Peace Plea

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pope John XXIII signed a new encyclical on peace today in an unusual ceremony emphasizing the importance the pontiff attached to his pronouncement.

Titled "Pacem in Terris" or "Peace on Earth," the letter is a broad appeal for world peace. It will be made public Wednesday. It is the first papal encyclical devoted exclusively to the theme of peace.

The Pope ceremonially signed five specially printed copies of the encyclical in his private library. Four of the copies will go into the Vatican archives. The fifth will remain in the Pope's personal files.

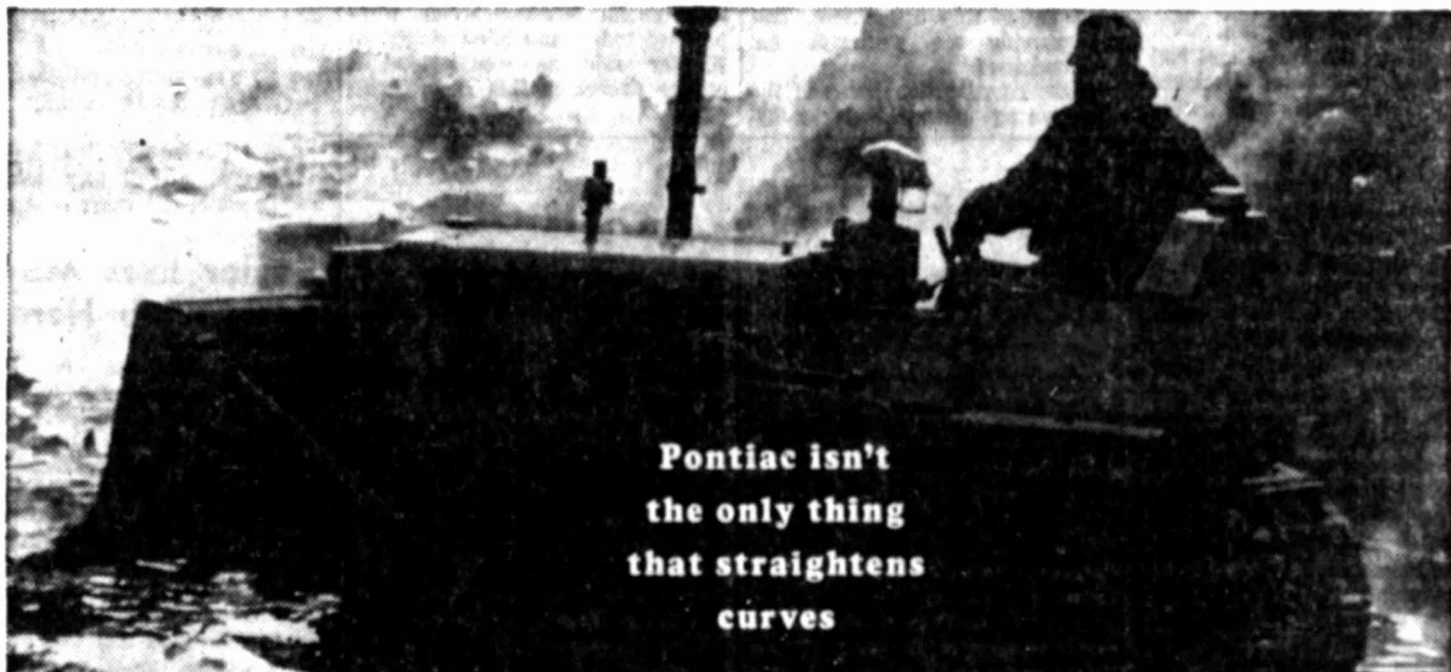

Vatican sources could not recall a similar ceremony. Usually Popes sign their encyclicals privately, without any fanfare, and the letter is publicized only after its contents are revealed.

Allies Make Public Agreement On Polaris

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States and Britain made public today an agreement under which Britain will buy U.S. Polaris missiles in such quantities as it requires to equip an undersea nuclear striking force.

The agreement was signed here Saturday by Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Ambassador Sir David Ormsby Gore. It was made public concurrently with its presentation to Parliament by the British government.

The text did not specify the number of the missiles to be sold to Britain but officials said that as far as can now be seen it will be up to 100, depending on Britain's construction program.

The fact that the agreement had been signed had been disclosed Saturday but terms were withheld at that time.

U.S. authorities have understood the British planned to build four missile-carrying subs for which they would require 16 Polaris missiles each. The size of the nuclear undersea fleet could be larger than that eventually, however, authorities said.

Britain, according to the agreement, will pay the U.S. "the normal cost of missiles and equipment based on common contract prices" plus charges for U.S. government services, plus 5 per cent of the contract price as a contribution to current research and development expenses.

The agreement is a further step in a plan developed by President Kennedy and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan in a conference at Nassau last December. Macmillan agreed to take the more advanced Polaris in place of the now discarded Skybolt bomber-launched missile. He also agreed that the submarine striking force thus created would be committed to the NATO defense system along with matching U.S. forces.

The United States agreed to provide technical information to help the British create their force. But the agreement made public today specifically "does not" authorize the sale of, or transmittal of information concerning the nuclear propulsion plants of United States submarines.

"The government of the United Kingdom," the agreement says, "will provide the submarines in which will be installed the missiles and equipment to be provided under this agreement, and will provide the warheads for these missiles."

"Close coordination between the executive agencies (U.S. Navy and British Admiralty) of contracting governments will be maintained in order to assure compatibility of equipment."

Information concerning the hull, auxiliary machinery, and equipment of United States submarines transmitted under the authority of this agreement will be such as is necessary to obtain a satisfactory interface (correct) between the equipment provided by the two governments respectively.

Industrial Development Plan Backed By Chamber

Industrial development for Big Spring received the backing of the board of directors for the Chamber of Commerce Monday at a regular meeting held at the Settles Hotel.

The board approved a proposal for organizing a committee of 100 to finance industrial activities and to provide leadership for an industrial development program. The committee of 100 will be a group of 100 or more individuals, each contributing $100, so money will be available to explore all possibilities of bringing in new industry.

At the same time, an industrial team of specialists familiar with various aspects of Big Spring will be drawn up to assist businesses wishing information about the city and to speak forcefully on reasons why Big Spring is suited to new industry.

Jack Little reported on the re-districting bill which has passed the Senate and now awaits approval by the House. Howard County is slated to remain in the 19th Congressional District and Little urged the board to inform representatives that should the bill be passed, Howard County must remain in the District.

Progress of a survey to be conducted by the wholesale distribution committee was reported by Jeff Brown. A form has been completed and the survey will be begun shortly. All information obtained will be confidential. It will be coded on IBM cards to make the statistics readily available.

Fifteen persons were present for the noon meeting.

Value Of Foreign Aid Cited

WASHINGTON (AP)—Foreign Aid Director David E. Bell said today U.S. military and economic aid to underdeveloped countries "is helping to wage the epic battle of our time, the battle between freedom and communism."

Bell, chief of the Agency for International Development, made the statement to the House Foreign Affairs Committee which is considering the administration's pared-down request for a $4.5-billion foreign aid budget in the coming year.

While emphasizing the continuing need for foreign aid, Bell told the committee, "I take it we are all in agreement that our programs of economic and military assistance should be designed to be self-terminating."

"The purpose of our efforts," he said, "is to help other countries get on their own feet and achieve a position in which they can sustain economic growth and, where necessary, military strength without extraordinary outside help."

Bell said that has happened in Europe since 1950, and "today the termination of the need for development loans on 'soft' terms is clearly in sight for additional countries, among them Greece, Israel, free China, Venezuela and Mexico."

He said the need for military aid to Greece and China will undoubtedly continue longer.

U. S., Russia Open Talks On Hot Line For Leaders

GENEVA (AP)—U.S. and Russian negotiators opened talks today on a "hot line" teletype circuit between Washington and Moscow to prevent accidental war.

U.S. Ambassador Charles C. Stelle and Soviet Ambassador Semyon K. Tsarapkin, the co-chairmen of the 17-nation disarmament conference, met at U.S. delegation headquarters.

The governments agree that the direct teletype between their capitals would provide a safeguard against an outbreak of world war by accident or miscalculation.

They also believe the circuit would make an important contribution to reducing East-West tension generally.

For the moment, the United States and the Soviet Union regard the line as strictly a two-nation affair.

American officials viewed with little enthusiasm a hint from the British government that it would like to be included in the negotiations before they reach their final stage.

CARLTON J. CHAPMAN

Chapman Is Recognized For Loan Work

The work of Carlton J. Chapman, vice president for the State National Bank, received national recognition this month in the April edition of Agricultural Banking and Finance, a banking trade publication.

Chapman heads the farm loan department for the bank. Through his efforts a useful credit file has been worked out to make banking and borrowing easier and an important part of the successful operation and management of a farm business. The credit file keeps banking personnel abreast with the current status of every farm loan made. It can be easily and quickly understood by another bank officer should Chapman not be available.

A sample of one of the forms used, along with a picture of Chapman, makes up the cover page for the publication. The article details methods which Chapman uses in extending credit, including three pictures of typical meetings of banker and farmer.

Components of the credit file include an estimated income and expense statement, a schedule of advances, chattel inspection and property appraisal form, security property accounting form, records search report and a comment sheet.

Chapman came to work for State National some three years ago. However, the need for workable forms was impressed on him during five years of work with the Farmers Home Administration prior to that. Chapman has also worked as an economist with the Soil Conservation Service.

DEFIES CONGRESSMEN

Newsman Cites Freedom Of Press, Covers Source

WASHINGTON (AP)—Columnist Jack Anderson refused today to tell a congressional committee the name of "an anonymous congressman" who gave him information for an article titled "Congressmen Who Cheat."

He invoked the First Amendment, guaranteeing freedom of speech and the press, during a brief but turbulent session of the House Administration Committee.

Accusations such as "Bluff and back" and "You're a coward" were hurled across the committee table as Chairman Omar Burleson, D-Tex., rapped the meeting to adjournment amid scattered boos from spectators.

Anderson's article was published March 4 in Parade, a weekly magazine supplement, for which Anderson is Washington correspondent. The committee decided to look further into it because, Burleson said, it made accusations of misconduct and unlawful acts on the part of members of Congress.

Anderson offered to give other information to back up his claim that there are "cheats and chisels."

The judge will name a committee composed of representatives from five major oil companies and R. P. Johnson, well drilling contractor. This panel will study means of controlling salt water pollution of fresh water supplies and will make its report July 8.

"We must find a solution immediately," said Judge Fugitt. "We can stop pollution by cooperation."

The hearing resulted from a lawsuit filed by an Odessa oilman against salt water in seeping into fresh water supplies and making them unpalatable.

Twice before proposals were received on the sale of the block of land, together with buildings and improvements, twice the department rejected them as inadequate.

Now a new bid date has been set for May 1 at 10 a.m., when the sealed proposals will be opened in the office of J. C. Roberts, Box 150, district highway engineers office in Abilene.

The property is opposite the Veterans Administration Hospital and is more explicitly described as block 15, College Heights Addition. It is 200x300 feet and has curb and gutter on three sides and paving on four sides. Also contained on or in the property are a 76x31 warehouse and office building, a 20x89.5 sheet iron building and a 38x50 sheet iron building, 1,000-gallon underground gasoline storage tank.

Proposals for the block (bid advertisements indicate that only one offer on the entire block will be considered) must be accompanied by a certified check for $4,000.

Harry Arant Dies In T&P Hospital

Body of Harry Arant, 72, who died in the Marshall T&P hospital Monday following surgery, passed through Big Spring this morning en route to El Paso, where funeral arrangements are pending.

The Arant family resided in Big Spring in the late '20s. Until his retirement two years ago, Arant was a locomotive engineer for the T&P.

He is survived by his wife, Irene, and a son, Jimmy.

Waller Eubanks, city police captain, was on the stand for more than an hour and a half as the first witness for the state in the trial Tuesday of Claude C. Aarons, charged with murder with an automobile.

Eubanks, who was one of the investigating officers of the three car collision June 11, 1961, in which a young child was killed, testified as to the scene when he reached the place, where each vehicle was standing and the various distances from points which are pertinent to the case.

A large number of photographs of the scene—on IS 20 near the 66 Truck Stop—were introduced by the state and by the defense and identified by the police officer. He was subjected to a lengthy cross examination by George Thomas, defense attorney.

A jury was seated to try Aarons late Monday afternoon. The indictment was read and the defendant entered a not guilty plea.

Court then recessed until Tuesday morning.

A delay arose Tuesday morning when a disagreement developed over details of a state prepared sketch of the locale of the fatal accident. The case did not get under way until after 10 a.m.

The jurors, 10 men and two women, are Allen Gearhart, C. W. Dickerson, James C. Morrow, Dennis Ray Dunnham, C. D. Fowler, E. P. Collier, Roland Fryar, Margaret Johnson, Mrs. E. O. Ellington, G. E. Gilliam, C. A. Rose Jr., and R. A. Meeks.

The case grew out of a crash that killed Karla Jo Hopper, 2 1/2-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Hopper. The state alleges the accident was the fault of the defendant and indicted him for murder with a motor vehicle.

It is the only criminal case on this week's docket. If it can be completed and any time remains, Judge Ralph Cato hopes to try a number of civil cases also set for disposition this week.

'New' View

The never-ending quest by Washington, D.C., news photographers for a "fresh" view of the U.S. Capitol produced this unusual picture. It was framed through the balustrade of the Nicholas Longworth House Office Building on the south side of the Capitol.

He Wears His Name With Pride

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—Eugene Connor wears his nickname "Bull" with pride. Standing on a sidewalk yelling for dogs to halt Negro demonstrations—his eyes flashing—he is one of Alabama's stormiest political figures.

He is an ardent segregationist and public safety commissioner at Birmingham, which finds itself caught up in mushrooming racial troubles.

He has vowed to fill Birmingham's jail with integrationists. Since racial demonstrations began last Wednesday, 96 Negroes have been jailed.

Connor, 42, appears to be anybody's grandfather. He becomes stern in the face of racial difficulties.

He got his nickname because of the booming voice he used in announcing baseball games for a Birmingham radio station more than 20 years ago.

A demonstration last Saturday flared into violence for about 15 seconds—the length of time it took Connor and policeman with dogs to rush into a crowd of about 200.

"If they want to go to jail, we'll put 'em there. Give 'em what they want. That's our motto."

Turning to a newsman, Connor asked, "How many did they arrest in that Albany (Georgia) trouble?"

About a thousand, he was told.

"Just a thousand?" Connor wondered. "And they had those prisoners scattered in jails all over south Georgia."

"We can handle that many and more right here. I've got jails these people haven't heard of yet."

Connor's white supremacist fervor attracted national attention in 1948 when he stalked out of the Democratic National Convention in Philadelphia, leading half the Alabama delegation after debate on a civil rights plank in the party platform.

In 1950 Connor had former Sen. Glenn Taylor of Idaho jailed for violating a segregation law in a Birmingham visit. The U.S. Supreme Court ruled in Connor's favor.

"The mystery of the whole situation is how can these simple home folks be talked into going to jail by a bunch of rabble-rousers?" he said.

"That's what they're doing—talking the people into jail. Then the leaders sit back, take it easy and plan who they're going to talk into jail next."

His police dogs have been made a part of the force.

"That's what we train those dogs for—to enforce the law."

The dogs were used Sunday in arresting 29 Negroes in a racial demonstration that touched off violence.

"As long as I am here, we will keep the peace," Connor said.

"Anybody who violates the law will wind up in the clink. We will keep the peace."

Prospectors Are Rescued

RUPERT, Idaho (AP)—Rescuers succeeded early today in bringing two part-time prospectors safely out of a 600-foot dry well near this southern Idaho community where they had been trapped since Monday.

The pair—Darrell Hamilton and Floyd Gambrell Jr., each in their late 20s—apparently were uninjured and in good spirits. Hamilton got to the surface at 2.50 a.m. and Gambrell followed an hour later.

Championship Bridge with Charles Goren is currently enjoying a fourth consecutive year of association on a nationwide TV hookup. My relationship with the sponsor has been a very happy one and has led to the development of a number of new friends, one of whom happens to be a very avid bridge player. I am referring to Denny Pease who is the Marketing Director for the company. He plays a keen game as is evidenced by his manipulation of the slam contract featured today.

Mr. Pease, seated in the South position, found that he had dealt himself a bridge player's dream—a hand containing no card of less than honor rank. He properly opened the bidding with two hearts and, when his partner responded positively by raising to three hearts, he proceeded to check for aces. North showed one ace and South bid a small slam in hearts.

West opened the ten of diamonds and, after East cashed his ace, the shift was to a low club. Declarer put up the ace of clubs on which West dropped the queen. Mr. Pease would gladly have traded one of North's spot cards in hearts for his own ten at this point, for with a normal three-two division in trumps he would be able to cash his high spade honors and then enter dummy with the third round of trumps in order to run the balance of the spades. Since the dummy had no side entry, however, it appeared that declarer would have to overtake the second spade in the hope that the suit would split evenly.

Mr. Pease observed that he had eleven top tricks, so that he was in position to run off his winners in the red suits before testing spades. There was a chance either that an opposition might err in discarding, or else find himself burdened with too much to protect in spades and clubs.

Declarer accordingly proceeded to play five rounds of trumps followed by his two high diamonds. As the last diamond was led, Mr. Pease was down to the jack, ten of clubs and the king, queen of spades, and the dummy was left with four spades. East held four spades at this point and the king of clubs, with one discard still to be made. Convinced that he must hold on to his club honor, East chose to throw a spade. Declarer cashed the spade king, overtook the queen and took the balance with the dummy's now established suit.

ALEXIS CARREL

J. B. RHINE

Researchers Seek Proof Of Afterlife

EDITOR'S NOTE—After Hamlet talked with the ghost of his father, he said to his friend, "There are more things in heaven and earth, Horatio, than are dreamt of in your philosophy." Modern scholars, too, are interested in apparitions and spirit communications, often as possible proofs that human life continues after physical death. The Rev. Dr. Thomas S. Kepller examines these psychic investigations in the second of five articles taken from his book, "The Meaning and Mystery of the Resurrection." The book is published by Association Press, copyrighted by the National Board of YMCAs.

By DR. THOMAS S. KEPLER
There are some today who find their chief proof for life after death as they delve into psychic research, backing up their arguments with the new views of science regarding the nonmaterial nature of the universe.

Frederick W. H. Myers, Sir Oliver Lodge, Alexis Carrel and J. B. Rhine are four scholars different in their approaches yet all relating their thoughts to the mental nature of the universe and the validity of extrasensory perception.

Wrote Frederick W. H. Myers: "I have assumed that man is an organism informed or possessed by a soul. This view obviously involves the hypothesis that we are living in two worlds at once, a planetary life in this material world, to which the organism is intended to react; and also a cosmic life in that spiritual or metematerial world, which is the native environment of the soul. "We gradually discovered that the accounts of apparitions at the moment of death—testifying to a supersensory communication between the dying man and the friend who sees him—led on without perceptible break to apparitions occurring after the death of the person seen, but while that death was not known to the perceiver; and thus, apparently, due, not to mere brooding memory, but to a continued action of that departed spirit."

The researches of Sir Oliver Lodge led him to see his universe in this manner:

"I have gradually come to the

The Meaning of The RESURRECTION

view that the main realities of the universe are not in matter at all, but in the ether in space. We ask: Shall we survive? Survive what—our temporary and indirect and secondary connection with matter? You see that this question of survival is what we used to call a hysteron proteron—the care before the horse. The marvel is that we are associated with matter at all.

Thus Sir Oliver Lodge views man's place in the physical world as a temporary abode, while the spiritual world is his everlasting reality.

Experience of mankind has shown that the higher conceptions of the world, which lie in the realms of the poetic, artistic and often also in the realm of the scientific, are in the area of the immaterial and the unseen, which is the world of the ideal.

When our spirits attain this ethereal region, no longer imprisoned by the realm of the senses, we shall be unshackled from our limitations of the present world. We shall then be "at home."

Dr. Alexis Carrel, a medical doctor with the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research, also saw the spiritual nature of the universe where extrasensory perception is possible.

"The beauty pursued by the mystic is still richer and more indefinable than the ideal of the artist. It requires an elevation of the mind toward a being who is the source of all things, whom the mystic calls God."

"He who wants to undertake this rough and difficult journey must renounce all the things of this world and, finally, himself. His mind escapes from space and time. He reaches the stage of unitive life. He is in God and acts with Him."

There is the existence of a psychic principle capable of evolving outside the limits of our bodies. Sometimes personality seems really to extend beyond physiological duration.

J. B. Rhine of Duke University in recent years in his experiments has reported instances in which persons "knew" about the deaths of loved ones before the news was given them in a conventional way.

Clairvoyance and precognition prove that mind can transcend both space and time, which possibly intimates immortality on the

Oil Tax Plan Draws Fire

AUSTIN (AP)—Oil industry representatives told a House committee Monday night that Texas will lose $100 million if the President's recommendations are carried out on oil tax proposals.

Rep. W. S. Davis, Midland Republican, presented a resolution to the House State Affairs Committee which would ask President Kennedy to reconsider his tax proposals.

"This is a $200 million tax burden—$100 million will come from Texas and about $50 million of this from the Permian Basin alone," the legislator said.

Davis said 47 per cent of the oil production in the United States is in Texas.

W. T. Edwards of Odessa, representing the Permian Basin Petroleum Association, said if the tax proposals are carried out "a lot of wells will have to be plugged and abandoned."

He said several companies have gone out of business in the past five years "because of low allowances and increased costs."

"The secretary of the treasury said the tax proposals are to add vigor to the economy, but it will do the opposite and hurt the economy if carried out," Edwards said.

James N. Allison Jr., representing the Midland and Odessa Chambers of Commerce, predicted the tax proposal would bring about a decrease of 11 per cent in business and employment in the state.

"The effect on the economy will be in direct opposition to what the administration proposes," Allison said.

"I feel that a resolution from the Texas House of Representatives will go a long way in maintaining the present law on oil depletion allowances."

Davis requested that action be taken by the House before April 15.

The resolution went to a subcommittee.

Atty. Gen. Probes Murray Oil Deal

AUSTIN (AP)—The role of Railroad Commissioner William J. Murphy Jr. in a West Texas oil lease deal is being investigated by Atty. Gen. Waggoner Carr.

This development followed published reports Monday that Murray and three other men engaged in a $700,000 leasing transaction in 1958-59.

"We have started an investigation to determine what the facts are," Carr said.

Meanwhile the Longview News and Journal called editorially for the legislature to undertake a comprehensive probe of the Texas oil industry, and State Rep. Dick Morgan of Dallas urged a public hearing on his bill to require public financial statements by elected officials.

One of Murray's associates in the lease deal, oilman-lawyer C. J. Brannan of Wichita Falls, asserted about the same time: "It is obvious to me at this time that the publication of these matters is designed only to injure Bill Murray and to smear the office he holds."

The Dallas News reported in a copyrighted news story that Murray received $285,000 for a one-sixth interest in the Throckmorton County lease, where the railroad commissioner and his partners drilled a number of wells after buying it for $10. The acreage is on the big Swenson Ranch southwest of Wichita Falls.

Murray said he and the other three men paid about $300,000 for the lease and spent $400,000 developing it.

"We sold for a price that was just about what it cost us to develop it," Murray told a reporter. "Actually, in the long run the only profit I got was the crude run for about 18 months. It was several thousand dollars."

"We made a nice profit because all these wells were drilled with very few dry holes."

"Murray said he saw no conflict of interest between his state office and the leasing transaction."

"The way I interpret the code of ethics," he said, "is that a law enacted in 1957, 'is that a state official in a certain agency cannot own a controlling interest in any firm that does business with that state agency of which he is an official. I never had a controlling interest in this oil lease."

Brannan, who owned one-third of the lease, issued a statement at the Wichita Falls emphasizing that Murray's share "was at all times a minority interest." Brannan said:

"Murray never had the right to control management or operation of the leases, nor did he ever attempt to exercise such a right."

"Much of the financial arrangements were handled by bank loans, and Murray signed a joint note along with all participants in the venture. Murray received no special consideration from us and shared proportionally with us in all financial liabilities."

"In turn, we in no way sought any special consideration, and the only matter which came before the (railroad) commission was an application to inject water to increase oil recovery. Murray disqualified himself and did not participate in this hearing."

"Since this lease is in the Throckmorton County Regular Field, the allowable received was the same as received by every other well in the county of the same depth; and even though water injection was initiated, no special water flood allowance has ever been requested or received."

An editorial in the Longview News and Journal said a legislative investigation was dictated by "new revelations in the continuing probe into irregularities and questionable practices in the troubled oil industry."

Rep. Morgan, Dallas Republican, called attention to his bill to require all elected state officials to file statements listing all assets, liabilities and net worth at the start and end of each term in office.

WHY AM I ALWAYS TIRED!

By HALVARD T. HANSEN, D.C.

You're as peppy as your nerves permit! If you are slowing up, you'll find that your life energy transmission lines are faulty. Instead of investigating, we generally blame constant fatigue on the weather, too many social obligations, etc. Result — we often put off a physical checkup until we hear of a friend dropping dead of a heart attack, or some other physical impairment that moves us to "wonder."

The human body has the ability to compensate for its own loss or injury — and it has its own warning signals such as headaches, fevers, skin eruptions, dizziness, changes of weight, indigestion, nausea, difficult breathing, etc. Fatigue is one of the most common symptoms of physical impairment. When the body loses its ability to adapt, alter or compensate for itself, it is sick! We find that health is usually the result of faulty body mechanics resulting from defective nerves — and usually the sick patient can't relax, can't sleep or rest because their nerve system is too heavily taxed — too burdened with spinal pressures and other interferences.

When there is an interference in this spinal nerve section of your central nervous system, almost any organ or gland will become weakened or irritated.

If your transmission lines are clear, you can be sure your health will be normal.

To be sure, you might do as this case taken from our clinic files: This woman came to the clinic complaining of headaches, extreme nervousness, pains in the sides, trouble with the arms and hands, leg cramps, nervousness and the final complaint of fatigue. She had obtained other treatment which had helped one or the other symptoms but they always returned. She was X-rayed and the cause located in the spine. The causes in her case prevented normal function of the body and so when correction had taken place she told me that she would not take a million dollars for the good that she had received. This was all new to her as she had never tried Chiropractic before and she had never realized how Chiropractic corrected the cause of physical difficulties. We saw her this spring and she is still feeling good.

Why don't you start feeling good? Hansen Chiropractic Clinic, across from Piggy Wiggly, is open until 6 each evening. Call AM 3-3324 for an appointment for an examination to determine if your spine is the cause.

A Devotional For The Day

They took Jesus, and he went out, bearing his own cross, to the place called the place of a skull, which is called in Hebrew Golgotha. (John 19:17. RSV.)

PRAYER: Give us the calm heart, our Father, to accept the dark valleys of life, that we may be worthy to know and worship Thee. In the Redeemer's name we ask. Amen.

(From The 'Upper Room')

No Easy Task

No code should be so inflexible that it cannot take into consideration deserved exceptions. The right to appeal for relief or for deviation for just cause certainly is fundamental as a matter of justice and equity.

There should be, however, more than a matter of convenience involved in requests for exceptions, whether it be to a building code or to matters of precedence and general policy.

Boards, boards of adjustment, city and county officials, have their work cut out under the best of circumstances. What seems to be a proliferation of requests, ranging from beer permits to zoning matters, heaps more work upon them.

For the most part hearing these and acting upon them in unsung work. Seeking to arrive at justice and at the same time trying to hold the line to the extent of giving policies and codes real meaning and avoid a meaningless hodge-podge is no easy task.

Full Disclosures Will Help

The issue of possible conflict of interest has been raised again through the disclosure that W. J. Murray, chairman of the Texas Railroad Commission, profited from an oil lease in which he held partial interest.

Mr. Murray readily admitted that he profited from the venture but insists that he cleared it with an attorney and satisfied himself that there was no conflict of interest before proceeding with the transaction. In addition, he says that he has disqualified himself from any considerations in cases where his own interests might have been involved.

This may well be an instance of where, as he claims, slant-hole operators are firing back at the commission chairman for the disclosures of titanic stealing of oil from under adjacent leases in East Texas.

Even so, one of the things which Mr. Murray could do to clear the air would be to make a complete disclosure of his associations in the deal, the precise means, terms and degree by which he profited.

While it may not be realistic to expect that anyone who engages in public service take the veil from private business or investments, but as a matter of self-protection as well as the public interest, a full disclosure of operations and returns seems proper. None has questioned the commissioner's integrity or personal honesty in the past, and he doubtless will be as anxious as any to be so open as to relieve any cause now

'WHAT SHOULD WE ASK FOR NEXT?'

Churchill—Man And Monument

WASHINGTON (AP)—Long after Sir Winston Churchill is gone men will struggle around his memory, like scholars around a pyramid, wondering how he was put together.

The ceremony for him today, giving him honorary American citizenship at 80, is both a tribute to a man and recognition of a monument. The man and the monument were built out of many unhappy experiences.

Language was his magic cement.

His greatest triumph perhaps was within himself. For 65 years he searched for acceptance, starting when he was a child. His father had little time for him and, apparently, small esteem. When he was 21 his father died.

Churchill regretted it for more reasons than one. Years later, looking back, he wrote that he had been eagerly awaiting the day when his father would accept him as an equal.

This quest for acceptance may explain much of his life: his brasserie, pushiness, endless airing of opinions, and his compulsion to dominate. They were tools he used to jockey the door to distinction.

They only brought him disregard until under pressure of war the door opened and he became a cherished figure of history. His father would have had to accept him then, but probably with astonishment.

This was only one side of Churchill. While he thrived on conflict, he loved life. This more than anything, made the contrast between him and Hitler look like the difference between a wolf and a shepherd.

KONRAD HEIDEN, a biographer of Hitler but not an admirer of his sensitivity, said Der Fuehrer was a "child of nature quite capable of frying a chop over a Stradivarius violin."

Edgar Black, one of Churchill's biographers, said he scared his African guides when he went wandering around the Uganda lion country with a butterfly net. He loved butterflies.

Hitler went in for magic, astrology and quack doctors. One of his physicians said he aged rapidly after the war began. By the time Hitler at 56 killed himself in a Berlin bunker in 1945 he looked senile.

Churchill, too civilized for quacks or magic, grew hearty on war and late hours, and nearing 69, wanted to take part in the Normandy invasion. Only the king stopped him. He wasn't easily deterred in any direction.

HE GOT A brain concussion at 5 when he fell off a donkey. At 18 he fell 29 feet into a ravine, ruptured a kidney, was unconscious three days and in bed three months.

He had pneumonia several times, suffered a bunch of broken bones when a taxi hit him in 1932 in New York, and had a hernia operation in 1947. A stroke hit him in 1949 and another in 1953. He broke a hip in 1962 at 88.

When he got pneumonia in 1943, one of his doctors told him pneumonia is the "old man's friend" because it "takes them off so easily." In his memoirs Churchill said "I made a suitable reply."

He didn't put it in print.

It was one of the comedies of history when Churchill, who tried to dominate all conversations, complained that Roosevelt tried to dominate.

ROOSEVELT had reservations about the ideas which bubbled out of Churchill—said "Winston had a hundred ideas a day and about four are good"—but the ideas were part of his zeal.

Jumping To Conclusions

NEW YORK (AP)—Jumping to conclusions—and how many do you agree with?

Medicine can do some people more harm than good.

At least a third of the medicine taken by people over 35 is probably unnecessary—and represents the formation of a bad habit instead of a good one.

Instead of reaching for a headache tablet, a pep pill or a tranquilizing tablet, a potion or a lotion, they could better banish fatigue and fears from their lives by walking an hour more a day and sleeping an hour more each night.

Medicine taken as a substitute for healthy common sense is nothing but a menace.

Ten active bowlers are worth more to the country—and to themselves—than 100 sedentary baseball fans.

One of the wisest prices of middle age is that you so seldom open your mail with a warm sense of expectancy. If it isn't a bill, it's somebody trying to sell you something you don't really need or want.

I always feel sorry for a teenage girl whose mother wears a pony tail so she can look young, too.

Nothing starts the week off better than to meet a polite driver on the Monday morning bus.

Ever notice how there's always a doorman around to help you out of a cab when you're in perfect health? But where do they all hide when you're on crutches?

It is a waste of sympathy to feel sorry for yourself when the sun is out. Always save your self-pity, as you do your money, for a rainy day.

Perhaps we'd be more responsible fathers if our employers graded us periodically—and we had to take our report cards home for the kids to sign.

Whenever I see a cranky man or woman I always wonder if the real cause of their bad temper may be the fact they are wearing shoes half a size too small. Much of the tension in modern life springs from failure to buy shoes that fit properly.

I feel more uplifted standing on a hill at twilight and hearing distant church bells in a valley than I do seated in a concert hall listening to the finest symphony orchestra on earth.

There are some goals in life that can never be achieved. No matter how dearly a man loves his wife he can never quite afford to rent an apartment that has all the closet space she'd like.

The biggest single illusion in modern business is that you can get rid of a problem by sending 10 carbon copies of it to others instead of solving it yourself.

Dieters, Remember Alcohol Has Calories

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M. D.

Dear Dr. Molner: A friend claims alcohol has food value, whereas I say that it has no vitamins or minerals—only calories or units of heat.

He argues that people live on alcohol for a week or more. I maintain that they do not live on alcohol but are merely fasting, that is, they could live for a week or more without food or alcohol. I have read of people who drank for a month without food, none of which is present in alcohol. But that does not mean that alcohol has no food value.

The same would be true if you ate nothing but sugar. No vitamins, no protein, no minerals. A week-long candy binge would be very harmful to the health, because alcohol, in addition to containing food value, is also a drug (a depressant), an intoxicant and destroyer of inhibitions, judgment and coordination, and, in sufficient concentration, a poison.

Sheer calories are food. Athletes at times have eaten lumps of sugar for the quick energy they give.

But we need more than calories because we need more than sheer energy. We need protein to build our tissues, minerals to keep our bones strong, vitamins and traces of minerals which are important, despite their small quantities, because they are the chemical "regulators" which keep our bodies functioning correctly.

Trying to live on alcohol alone (or sugar alone, or some other single food item) would be like trying to run a car by adding nothing but gasoline. You could do it for a time, but presently the car would begin to fall apart for lack of oil, grease, water, air in the tires, and so on.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am a girl of 12 and frequently have pains in my ankles, knees and wrist. What causes them and what can be done?—L. L.

Growing youngsters can have such pains because of too much activity and not enough rest. (They aren't "growing pains.") A possibility is arthritis—IT CAN occur at a young age. Rheumatic fever is another. I trust you'll get checked by your family physician. The first thing I listed is easily taken care of by more rest. The other two are serious and need attention without delay.

O Where Has My Little Jackrabbit Gone?

What's become of the jackrabbits?

Sunday afternoon, we drove for 50 miles along country lanes and roads where a year ago, you saw the long-eared rabbits everywhere you looked.

This time, not a single jack showed.

I NOTED along one rancher's fence a grisly collection of wolf, fox and bobcat carcasses. These are the natural enemies of the jackrabbit, and I wondered if some increase in the number of predators may have been responsible for the sudden disappearance of the rabbits.

It has been observed that areas where there is a heavy decimation of the predatory animals the secondary development is a tremendous increase, generally, in rats, rabbits and other rodents and marsupials.

JUST TWO YEARS ago, farmers were buying poison by the ton to kill the jackrabbits. Every cotton field was rimmed with little mounds of dirt topped with a dab of poisoned grain.

I remember a few years ago the town was literally overrun with mice. They were everywhere. Houses swarmed with the tiny beasts despite best efforts of homeowners to keep their premises sealed against the invaders. Stores did a big business in mousetraps. Thousands of mice were destroyed, but no appreciable dent was made in the overall population total.

THEN, THE FOLLOWING year, there were no mice to be found. What became of them?

A few weeks ago, I was reading a history of the black plague in London in the days of Charles II.

When the disease made its appearance, the doctors and governmental leaders held a big conference. Out of these talks came the conclusion that cats and dogs were probably the chief carriers of the disease. An order was issued to destroy all cats and dogs. The killers moved out into London and in a few weeks had practically destroyed every dog and cat in the city.

ACTUALLY, THE REAL source of the disease was the army of flea-infested rats which abounded in the tenements and warehouses of the town. And the best protection of the beleaguered city was the ceaseless warfare waged by the dogs and cats against rodents. Probably the lethal impact of the plague immeasurably increased by the foolish order to destroy the dogs and cats.

This has nothing to do with the disappearance of the jackrabbits. But it does seem odd to find so few of these long-eared critters about.

One can only wonder what has become of the horde we had just a year or so ago.

The Capitol Is Still Safe

The end of New York's prolonged newspaper strike means many things to many persons. But to those of us who have been subsisting mainly on The Wall Street Journal since December, the appearance of the New York dailies brings three-welcome confirmation that the nation still endures.

AS THE NEWS blackout continued week after week, panic that the nation could not long survive mounted steadily with the appearance of The Wall Street Journal every morning. Its editorial page, which should properly be bordered in black, never ceased keeping the decline and fall of the country under the present Administration.

Surely, the country could not long survive such skulduggery in every variety—and such ineptitude. Or so I was convinced. So it has been great, simply great, to learn from other newspapers that the flag still flies, spring is smiling on a land intact and that, as a nation, we are muddling through in time-honored fashion.

ANYONE WHOSE reading has been confined to the Journal cannot help but notice a curious ambivalence in its pages. Day after day, its editorial page bears down on the peril in which this nation stands under a Democratic Administration while its news pages tell of bigger and better dividends declared by the business and industrial community, swelling savings accounts, rising retail sales, steadily mounting new orders received by all manufacturers in February, leaping auto sales, and a steady rise in steel production since the first of the year.

ON THE NEWS pages continuing growth for the Bell System is reported. They also note soaring sales of chemicals that attack insects, rodents and weeds, proving that spring moves hopes eternal in the human breast. Or, at least, among gardeners. And good old Sears, Roebuck & Co. reports, via the Journal, that sales and earnings are running well ahead of the year-earlier pace.

These are only a few of the business goodies reported in the news pages of the Journal, which is surely one of the most admirably written newspapers in the nation. However, all the indications of mounting business prosperity have never fooled or confused the editors of the paper.

THEY KNOW that these indices are but deceptive gossamer and that there can be no health in the nation, in Washington or in the business community while that man is in the White House and his party in power.

So, day after day, the editorial page of the Journal reads not unlike the Perils of Pauline, with the United States cast as Pauline. Every day, for more than three months during the newspaper strike, I saw Pauline tumbled to the railroad tracks, with the Twentieth Century rushing ever nearer. At other times she was pinioned in the sawmill, with the saw buzzing closer, closer. At other moments she was about to be hurled over the precipice.

IS IT ANY WONDER that I am jubilant to read in other papers that the Capitol is safe, the nation is doing increasing business at the same old stand and the industrial community is neither in stocks nor a concentration camp?

Nor do I intend to abandon The Wall Street Journal, now that other papers are available.

It would be ungrateful not to bow to the Journal for its services during the blackout. Still and all, I am overjoyed that other papers are now on the newsstand. It is wonderful to discover that Pauline is in no more danger than usual.

Price Of Winning The Cold War

WASHINGTON — The U. S. A. never lost a fighting war, and never won a talking one. We deeply believe in our democratic way of life (so much so that we sometimes overdo it), but we've never been able to subvert an enemy nation, the way Communists do. We never inspire pro-American mob scenes or have foreigners pouring out their blood for us, as peoples do all over Asia and Latin America for the Reds.

WHY NOT? Congressman Dante Fascell, a handsome, hot-blooded Miami, is pretty heated about it. The key word of the investigation he's holding is "offensive." He wants to find out why we don't have a successfully aggressive drive in the ideological phase of world warfare. His subcommittee on International Organizations and Movements is assigned "to explore the U. S. ideological offensive," and it may take him the entire session.

IT HAS STRUCK this observer that the conservative critics of the Kennedy Administration, while useful and usually right, are too outnumbered to bring any order out of the chaos. Thus, I reported here recently that the Administration was likely to get rough on Castro only when some true blue Liberal, such as Senator Douglas of Illinois, raised a cry for action. The same reasoning seems to follow with Fascell, who is a New Frontiersman and whose investigation is not a hunt for a scapegoat or a campaign to make the Administration look terrible. It is the search for a formula.

"I DON'T THINK we've done too badly," Fascell says, in discussing the U. S. Information Agency, Radio Free Europe, the CIA, the military information services and the scores of American businesses and institutions which try to fight the non-military battle against communism. "This country is not afraid of war—we've proved that. But we have chosen to try to win in other ways. The economic way is long and costly. Meanwhile, we ought to do better than we have in psychological or ideological warfare. I want to win."

The witnesses thus far give some fairly clear reasons why we are losing. While no American leader would willingly accept the status quo in the world today, none seems able to enunciate the changes we would like to bring about in the attitudes toward America.

WE DO NOT want people to think of us as over-rich and slothful, yet neither do we want to deny that ours has been a civilization which produces abundance and luxury. We do not wish to hide the fact that we have racial dissension and that capitalism produces unemployment as well as wealth. But we do not want to flaunt these faults, either.

When we report the news through the Voice of America and other governmental media, the satisfaction of truth-telling may make us feel virtuous—as Ed Murrow testified. But whether it matches the ruthless and incessant vilification which the Communists pour upon us, and the boastful self-praise of their own institutions is something else.

ONE WITNESS, it seems to me, put a finger on the nettle which Fascell will have to grasp if his investigation is to achieve any purpose. Henry Meyers, President of the Cold War Council, a private enterprise association of communications firms, told the committee that we must rid ourselves of the "disdain of realistic propaganda warfare."

In brief, we are going to have to develop the very un-American skill of dirty tricks. It will be worth watching to see if the Fascell committee dares to make that sort of recommendation—and if the American public will accept it. We do want to win the Cold War—but at any price? That's the question.

MIAMI — A street corner newsboy had just delivered two large bundles of papers.

It was a windy afternoon and he was struggling to hold down the papers when a motorist honked and asked for a paper. The newsboy thought a moment, pulled off his shoes, put one of each bundle and ran in stocking feet to his customer.

Presidential Correspondence

WASHINGTON — When George Washington wrote a personal letter to the Sultan of Morocco thanking him for his help in suppressing piracy in the Mediterranean he could not have known that he was establishing a precedent to be followed by every successive President.

In personal correspondence with heads of government and heads of state President Kennedy seems to have outdistanced all his successors. With at least a dozen rulers the President has been carrying on a warm and often even intimate exchange of letters.

THE LETTERS— to Macmillan, Khrushchev, Nasser, Sukarno, Nehru, Ayub Khan and several of the new African heads of government—are in most instances not concerned with specific problems involving the United States. They contain, according to those who follow and expedite this correspondence, no suggestion of the "deals" which zealous critics often suspect in personal diplomacy.

Instead they range over the whole field of statecraft. Often the correspondents write in remarkably frank terms of their domestic concerns. In a recent interview President Nasser of Egypt spoke of his intimate exchange with President Kennedy which ignored the clichés of normal diplomatic exchange.

WHILE THIS correspondence will be a treasure trove for historians many years hence, it is today a carefully guarded secret. The President has convinced his pen pals that they can trust the complete privacy of these exchanges. Premier Khrushchev is said to have written with remarkable frankness and this frankness has been matched by the President in his letters.

ONE REASON the Kennedy correspondence school has grown so rapidly is the continuing procession of foreign visitors. In his last three years in the White House President Eisenhower received 38 heads of state or heads of government—in some instances they are one and the same. In his first two years in office President Kennedy had 59 government heads as official visitors. And the number scheduled for 1963 is already more than 20 with the kings of Laos and Morocco already having had the full White House treatment.

WANTING to talk frankly with a visitor about mutual problems, the President often finds himself later in a developing correspondence coming out of the discussion. This has been especially true of the African visitors. The close personal relationship he has established with many of the new African leaders, beset with all the troubles of new and precarious independence, is considered a major asset of American policy in this area.

The Presidential correspondence is carefully coordinated with the State Department. The President often consults with Secretary of State Dean Rusk about

Garden In The Ballroom

This scene was arranged for a regional meeting of "Women In Construction" in the Settles ballroom two weeks ago. A rearrangement of tables and furniture enabled the women to display models of designs for outdoors.

Modernization Program Now Complete At Settles

The 150-room Settles Hotel is now under the management of Vincent A. Aaron, who has had 20 years of experience in the hotel business. He was with the Rice Hotel in Houston eight years.

Aaron said the management would strive to keep all its facilities in condition for use at any time they are needed, and that the modernization program under way had now been completed in 45 rooms, the kitchen, and other areas.

Aaron is a native of Garland City, Ark. He became interested in the hotel business while relieving hotel men during the time he was attending Tyler Commercial College in 1939 and 1940.

He entered the Army in January, 1941 and was discharged in 1945. He went to Texarkana and began work with the Grim Hotel. In 1948 he went to the San Jacinto Hotel in Houston where he was with the president of the Houston Hotel Association. After 18 months in the office he accepted a position with the Rice Hotel in Houston.

"When the remodeling work started in the Settles about a year ago the kitchen and dining room were the first to close down for a full going over," he said. "The kitchen is now equipped with modern, stainless steel fixtures and equipment. We maintain constant sanitary and clean rooms, and equipment, at all times."

"We can serve approximately 300 people in the ballroom for special occasions," he continued. "We also have other rooms available where small and medium-sized groups may meet and be served. We do not open our main dining room on Sundays, except during conventions when we have an exceptionally large number of guests. We take care of them when they are here."

The hotel dining room is open from 6 a.m. to 8 p.m. six days a week, and the menu is inviting.

Four civic groups hold luncheon meetings in the hotel ballroom. These clubs are Rotary, Downtown Lions, Kiwanis, and the American Business Club.

A recent addition to the ballroom, making it possible to show films at the meetings, is the addition of drapes on all windows. The openings were formerly covered by venetian blinds only and light could not be excluded.

The ballroom is also available for use of large meetings during the day or evening, and for convention meetings, Aaron said.

The hotel offers suites and apartments for rent by the month. Many individuals, or couples, prefer these suites and apartments over residences, and they are convenient for those working in the downtown area.

The hotel employs 35 persons, Aaron said, and strict supervision insures inviting facilities. The biggest runs on hotel rooms are seasonal. From mid-February through May, and from the first of September through November, the Settles may expect more guests than during the remainder of the year.

Aaron said the hotel dining room could seat 85 persons comfortably for regular week-day meal service.

Haston Electric Opens New Shop

Haston Electric is the new name for the former Kitching Electric. The firm is now in a new home at 1606-B Gregg where the building is more accessible for vehicles and operation from the work shop at the rear.

Gene Haston, with 20 years' experience in the electrical business, is owner. Mrs. Haston, whom he calls "the boss," is bookkeeper for the firm which employs six men.

The new building is next door to Gamble Music Co. and two doors from Sportsman-Toyland. Haston is equipped with tools, supplies, and men, to handle electrical contracting jobs for residential or commercial buildings. He is also available for "trouble shooting" jobs where emergency work is needed or repairing is necessary.

A good stock of standard equipment and fixtures is carried in the store. If extra, or special, fixtures or supplies are needed they are as close as the catalogue and can be selected by the home owner or business man who wants to change what he has or wants to construct a new building.

Haston is ready to go into an old building and install a new wiring system to replace one which may be inadequate to handle the demands of modern electrical appliances. He reminds home owners and business building owners that electrical circuits installed several years ago were not designed to take care of the electrical loads generally found today.

New Thoroughfare Signs Going Up

Thoroughfares through the City of Big Spring have been approved by the city commission and appropriate intersection control signs are being placed this week. The commission also approved controlled intersections, some on a trial basis, on streets crossing thoroughfares.

North and South streets, approved by the commission as through streets, were:

Scurry, south from Fourth to Marcy Drive;

Lancaster, from Fourth south to Ryon street;

Douglas, south from Fourth to Dallas street;

State, south from Fourth to Eleventh Place;

Settles, south from Eleventh Place to Nineteenth, except stop at Fifteenth;

Birdwell Lane, south from Fourth to Marcy;

East and West streets, approved as through streets, were:

Sixth street from Birdwell Lane to Main street, with signal light at Johnson;

Fifteenth, from Birdwell Lane to Scurry;

Intersection control being changed, with trial period in parenthesis, include:

Main and Eighteenth, present signal light to be turned off and replaced (30 days), and Main Street traffic be stopped at Eighteenth from north and south;

Main and Sixth, present fixed time signal be turned off and replaced (30 days), and stop signs be placed on Sixth;

Scurry and Fifth, present fixed time signal be turned off and replaced (30 days), and stop signs be placed on Fifth;

Settles and Fifteenth, present four-way stop be removed, and traffic stopped on Settles, at Fifteenth;

Owens and Fifteenth, reverse stop signs and stop Owens traffic;

Lancaster and Edwards Boulevard, reverse signs and stop Edwards traffic at Lancaster;

Sixth and Circle Drive, present Yield Right of Way signs be reversed for Circle Drive traffic to yield to Sixth.

The commission provided that, where reverse signs are to be placed, the intersections are to be made four-way stops, and later converted to two-way only, after the 30-day trial.

Hospital Sets Thursday Rites

The crucifixion and death of Jesus Christ will be portrayed Thursday night in a special Maundy Thursday service at the Big Spring State Hospital. Services will begin at 8 p.m., according to Chaplain Max Maguire.

The ceremony will begin with the scene of the Last Supper, at which Christ washes the feet of his disciples. It will include the betrayal in the garden, arraignment before Caiaphas, the high priest, the trial before Pontius Pilate and the crucifixion.

Assisting with the service will be the Rev. Ernest Dimaline, pastor of the Christ United Presbyterian Church in Midland. Elders from the church will assist also. They are John Gunter, Barry Welton and E. R. Maund.

The Lord's Supper will be observed with a candlelight communion service, Rev. Maguire said. It will be conducted in the dayroom on Ward 10A.

The regular Easter service will be held Sunday at the hospital for Protestant patients. Special arrangements are being made for Roman Catholic patients to attend the Mass that day at the Sacred Heart Catholic Church.

With the service will be the Rev. Ernest Dimaline, pastor of the Christ United Presbyterian Church in Midland. Elders from the church will assist also. They are John Gunter, Barry Welton and E. R. Maund.

Academy Awards To Peck, Bancroft

By JAMES BACON
AP Movie-TV Writer

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)—Gregory Peck, a four-time loser in the Oscar finals, and Anne Bancroft, an actress Hollywood once ignored, are winners of the movies best actor and best actress awards for 1962.

"Lawrence of Arabia" was named the year's best film Monday night at the 35th annual Academy Awards ceremony, and a grandfather, Ed Begley, and a teen-ager, Patty Duke, won best supporting actor and actress honors.

Miss Duke, who played the child Helen Keller in "The Miracle Worker," is the first juvenile ever to win an Academy Award. Shirley Temple, among others, have received honorary awards in the past.

In a glamor-packed setting at Santa Monica Civic Auditorium, the taciturn Peck confessed that he came to the show "prepared to be a graceful loser."

"I'm just a little stunned about the whole thing. It really staggered me," Peck said.

Then he pulled out a gold pocket watch from his vest. "Harper Lee mailed it to me just this morning. She said it belonged to her father and he wore it for 60 years and she wanted me to wear it to the Academy Awards. She also said she dropped it in the grave when she was 6 years old. I was clutching it when my name was called."

Miss Lee is the author of the

GREGORY PECK

Pulitzer Prize-winning "To Kill a Mockingbird," based on childhood reminiscences of her father, a small-town Southern lawyer. Peck played the father in the movie.

Miss Bancroft, who portrayed Annie Sullivan, the tenacious teacher of the blind and deaf Helen Keller in "The Miracle Worker," was busy Monday night on the New York stage — where she became a star after years in B movies. Joan Crawford accepted the Oscar for her.

Early in the night, as technical awards were announced, it looked like a sweep for "Lawrence of Arabia."

It almost was. The $12-million movie of the mysterious World War I hero won seven Oscars for sound, film editing, music score, color art direction, cinematography, best director (Britisher David Lean) and best movie.

Omar Sharif had been considered by forecasters as the one school-in as best supporting actor.

The Egyptian star played the Arab chieftain of "Lawrence." Begley, the only veteran against four newcomers, took the honors.

The stage and screen actor admitted he was a grandfather "over 43." He also confessed that his agent had to talk him into playing the political boss in "Sweet Bird of Youth."

"I thought he was stupid for suggesting me, but he's such a nice guy I didn't tell him so and took the role, anyhow," said Begley.

Blonde Miss Duke, sweet 16 and a high school junior, was so stunned she could only sob. "Thank you," before the nationwide television audience.

Backstage, she said that was all she intended to say — "and I didn't think I'd get a chance to say that." She clutched her Oscar to the bosom of her green silk organza dress and said: "I will hold onto it forever."

The best song award went to "Days of Wine and Roses" from the movie of the same name. The music was written by Henry Mancini and the lyrics by Johnny Mercer.

Barry Gives Up On Draft Moves

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Barry Goldwater has let the bars down for supporters to find out what enthusiasm they can generate with a move to draft him for the 1964 Republican presidential nomination.

Goldwater's reaction to the announcement Monday of the formation of a national draft committee was a resigned shrug and the statement, "If they want to waste their time and money, that's their business."

Acknowledging that he knows most of the people involved, Goldwater disclaimed any connection with the movement started by Peter O'Donnell Jr., Texas Republican state chairman.

Goldwater said in an interview, he is "only running in Arizona" for re-election to the Senate next year. He said the presidential nomination movement "will have to get along without any help from me."

"These things are springing up all over the country," he said. "I've just given up trying to stop them."

Goldwater said he knew nothing about the financing of the O'Donnell organization except that he considered it had "a mighty good fund raiser" in its treasurer, J. William Millendorf of Greenwich, Conn., a New York stock broker and member of the Connecticut Republican Finance Committee.

Goldwater's action in permitting his followers to begin plugging at this early date for a nomination he predicts publicly he won't get contrasted sharply with steps New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller took to stamp out a similar California move in his behalf.

Rockefeller, who will bring his unannounced campaign for the nomination to Washington for a series of speeches Wednesday, forced former Gov. Goodwin J. Knight to close a Rockefeller for President headquarters in California. The New Yorker obviously was operating on the theory that it's too soon to get out in the open.

Significantly perhaps, Goldwater avoided saying at a meeting of the District of Columbia Committee Monday how he stands on the issue of running in next year's presidential primaries where Rockefeller's name may be entered.

The Arizona senator said he had not made a study of the primary situation because he wasn't a candidate for the national nomination. He said, however, he thinks a candidate's name can be entered in several such primaries without his formal consent.

This seemed to indicate that he wouldn't be averse to action to test the water in some other states so long as he could preserve the appearance that he was not telling the people of Arizona he had ambitions that extended beyond being their senator for another six-year term. The Arizona senatorial primary falls in September, after the presidential nominations will have been made.

Goldwater greeted as "a helluva question" an inquiry as to whether he would run better in the South than Rockefeller.

He answered it by saying, "Any Republican candidate who runs on a states rights ticket and not as a racist can beat President Kennedy in the South."

Show Speeds Along At A Fast Pace

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—That annual spring rite of Hollywood, the awarding of the Motion Picture Academy's statuettes, may not be television's best show of the year, but it always has a certain fascination.

There's the mounting excitement about the top awards, of course. Even more, there are the stars to see and for the ladies of the home audience, there are the stars' dresses. It's a long two hours, but still it's sort of fun. Monday night the ABC production started out rather dimly. The cameras were out of focus and the sound was fuzzy.

When they cleared up, Frank Sinatra was off to a rather out-of-focus start. As master of ceremonies, he gave a little lecture in show biz slang on making better pictures in Hollywood, using the "Mona Lisa" as an example.

At one point he referred to La Gioconda as "that chick," but the laughs never came.

But his material, too, cleared up a little as the ceremony went along.

The show sped along at a non-nonsense clip. The greatest improvement was grouping the songs rather than singing them intermi-nably through the evening.

Recommended tonight: "Garry Moore Show," CBS, 10-11 EST—Singer Vic Damone and comedian Alan King, guest-stars.

Texas Weather Like Summer

By The Associated Press
It's still spring by the calendar, but you get an entirely different idea from looking at Texas thermometers.
The mercury soared to summery levels Monday, hitting a high of 104 degrees at Laredo on the Mexican border.
McAllen simmered in 103-degree heat. Mineral Wells and Presidio both recorded 100. At least a dozen other cities had readings in the low to high 90s.
Forecasts held out hope for a little cooling in some parts of Northwest and far West Texas Tuesday night, and across Northwest Texas and the sector west of the Pecos River by Wednesday. No rain was predicted.
