Sheriff's 'Trusty' Held for Theft

COPS CAPTURE PRISONER OUT FOR THE NIGHT

Kline McKinney Faces New Charges After Short Evening Respite

IN FOR 43 DAYS

Attorney Says no Law Justifies His Being At Large

Kline McKinney, a negro "trusty" at the county jail, was back behind the bars Tuesday after a brief period of respite Monday night that ended abruptly when city police arrested him at Lake Wichita with a stolen automobile in his possession. Formal charges of theft of property over the value of $50 were filed against him Tuesday by the district attorney's office after he had made a full oral statement regarding his activities during the night.

McKinney was sentenced in the county court at law on April 15 on a "joy riding" charge and given a 20-days in jail plus costs, which ran the total to an additional 23 days. He had been arrested on March 7 on an automobile theft charge but this had been reduced to the less serious "joy riding" complaint.

Car Is Stolen.

Monday night a Hudson car belonging to C. C. Myers of the Wichita Hudson-Essex company, and reported stolen from in front of the Majestic Theatre where Myers was attending a wrestling match was found by City Detectives Robinson and Saye parked near the pavilion at Lake Wichita. The two officers had waited near the car only a few minutes when a negro entered the automobile and started to drive off. He was arrested and brought to the city hall where he was identified as Kline McKinney, negro under a county court conviction and one who to all intents and purposes should at the time have been confined in the county jail serving the 43 day sentence assessed him on April 15.

In a statement to officers following his arrest, McKinney explained the situation that pemitted him to be at large seven miles away from the jail and in possession of stolen property, with the declaration that he was a "trusty" at the jail and had only been required by the county jailers to appear there for kitchen duty in the day-time. He says he was released at eight o'clock each night to go as he might choose until 7 o'clock the next morning when he was required to report back for duty. This position as "trusty," he told officers had been accorded him on April 15, the day of his sentence.

Not a Night in Jail.

Not since that time, he stated, had he been required to spend a night in the jail. This privilege, McKinney stated was shared with another negro, under a 100-day sentence for carrying a gun, and a co-worker during the day in the kitchen.

In discussing his activities in the few hours prior to his arrest he stated that he had seen Sheriff Fred K. Smith at Lake Wichita just a few minutes before the city police took him into custody, and that he had had a short conversation with him and one of his deputies.

The position of "trusty" in the county jail, or, in fact any place of confinement maintained by the state with the exception of the penitentiary and its branches, has no qualification by law and no legal status, Assistant District Attorney Harry Bishop said Tuesday. There is no authorization by Texas law for the creating of such a status by the sheriff or any member of his department, he said, although such custom in the past has been condoned with the sheriff accepting responsibility for the prisoner while he was at liberty.

VOLSTEAD LAW TEETH NEARER IN HOUSE VOTE

Drastic Revision of Measure Is Proposed In Bill

REJECT BEER ISSUE

Four New York Solons Cast Votes Against Legislation

WASHINGTON, April 28.—(AP) By a vote of 196 to 4 the house today passed an administration bill proposing drastic revision of the dry law enforcement machinery in the treasury including the creation of a bureau of prohibition.

The measure which now goes to the senate, was approved after an amendment by Representative LaGuardia, progressive-socialist, New York, to legalize the sale of 2.5 percent ber, had been thrown out on a point of order.

The four votes against the bill were cast by Representatives Aufderheide, New Jersey, and Black, Cullen and Summers, New York, all democrats.

The proposal weathered nearly a dozen amendments and was passed as reported by the ways and means committee to which it was sent by the treasury.

It would give legal sanction to the reorganization in the prohibition unit affected last August by Secretary Mellon and besides the prohibition bureau would create a bureau of customs. The new bureau would be headed by commissioners appointed by the secretary of the treasury. Wet members of the house offered no formidable opposition, a number supporting the bill on grounds that it would make prohibition enforcement more drastic thus bringing about increased demand for modification. Representative Hill, republican, Maryland, recognized wet leader in the house voted for it.

Debate covered virtually the whole range of the controversial subject of prohibition.

2 Guinea Pigs To Die Today For Dentists

Efficiency of Products Demonstrated by Exhibitors

Two luckless guinea pigs will die the death of martyes here sometime Wednesday to show dentists at the 46th annual state dental convention the potency of a tetanus preventative marketed by a Cincinnati supply company.

Tuesday morning a pair of the tiny pigs were given one m. l. d. of tentanus toxin, a fatal portion that will bring death today. At the same time another pair of pigs was given 10 a. l. d. of the same deadly drug. By all accounts the latter pair ought to be dead now, but at the same time they were given a treatment on a tooth paste containing two per cent of sodium ricinoleate and this, it is explained, will insure their future health and happiness despite the tetanus infliction.

This demonstration is one of a large number being made here by dental supply houses who have arranged exhibits in connection with the convention. They have been set up in the First Baptist church and have been attracting considerable attention. They range

SHERIFF SHOT BY ASSISTANT

Jailer Held Following Affray Following Quarrel

COLEMAN, April 27.—(AP)—Sheriff J. A. Trammell of Coleman county was shot in the county jail this afternoon. His injuries were not regarded as serious. The shooting is understood to have occurred during a scuffle between the sheriff and Jailer T. L. Stafford, following a disagreement over waiting on district court. Neither man discussed the affair tonight.

The bullet entered the right side near the waist line and lodged in the thigh.

It was learned that District Judge J. O. Woodward, conducting court, had complained about Stafford waiting on court. Stafford is said to have been beaten up considerably and sustained a broken leg. HUMAN TOOTH IS CENTER OF MEETING HERE

State Dentist's Association Begins Annual Convention in Wichita Falls

WELCOMED BY BROWN

Ails of Molars, Their Cure And Prevention Is Studied

The intricacies and mysteries of that fearfully and wonderfully wrought ivory vital—the human tooth—were trotted out Tuesday for official and expert inspection by about 400 dentists from Texas and other states, here here for the forty-sixth annual convention of the Texas State Dental Society. The convention got under way officially Tuesday morning and will continue through Wednesday and Thursday.

Clinical discussions and highly technical addresses, utterly unintelligible to the layman, made up most of the first day's program after organization work and other details had been dispensed with in the morning. The bulk of the program for that matter will be of this technical nature—a technique that the dental expert appreciates as essential to his profession and his development of the art of keeping man's teeth and health in proper condition.

Daytime sessions of the convention were held in the First Baptist church which has been established as convention hall. The night meetings are being held in the Kemp hotel, which is convention headquarters.

Welcomed by Brown.

High spots of yesterday's opening meeting included the morning address of Dr. F. F. Brown of Wichita Falls, president of the state society; introduction of the special visitors and instructors; reports of the secretary-treasurer, J. G. Fife; clinical demonstrations and lectures by Dr. Boyd S. Gardner of Rochester, Minn., the lecture by Dr. Polk E. Akers of Chicago; that by Dr. Walter T. Newton

Addressing the 12 men in the jury box, Assistant District Attorney M. J. Speizer, asked:

"Is there any man in the box who thinks that under those circumstances a man is justified in killing a man whom he discovers in embrace with his wife? If there is I am going to ask you to be honest with the commonwealth by asking to be excused from this case."

Seven men left the box. They were replaced by others who brought in a verdict of voluntary manslaughter, which carries with it a sentence of from six to 12 years imprisonment.

LEGISLATURE EMPOWERED BY COURT FINDING

Attorney General Cites Decision of Highest Tribunal

PERFECTLY LEGAL

Aide to Moody Points Way for Settling Question

AUSTIN, April 27.—(AP)—Because the United States supreme court has held that a legislative defect may be cured after bonds have been voted and issued, Assistant Attorney General L. C. Sutton today declared the Texas legislature has the power to pass an act validating $80,000,000 worth of Texas road district bonds that would be upheld by the courts.

Mr. Sutton said some of the contributions to the discussion resulted from the holding invalid of the Archer county road district issue by the supreme court were calculated to be harmful. "No good can result from unsupported statements of lawyers and others, publicly made, that there is doubt whether the lelature can pass an effective validating act and it is doubtful whether there is any way out of the difficulty even by constitutional amendment.

Market Influenced.

"The bond market is peculiarly susceptible to influence from adverse court decisions, and derogatory statements from those whose opinion may have weight ought to be issued sparingly and above all should be based on sound reasons and authority.

"How can the legislature now pass a validating act when the supreme court of the United States in the Archer county case has held what the legislature has done is unconstitutional, it has been asked. Can the legislature enact a law and declare valid what the supreme court has declared invalid and unconstitutional?

"A simple answer to this is that the court declared the bonds invalid on account of lack of proper legislative enactment, and hence if the legislature now supplies that necessary legislative enactment the reason will no longer exist for the supreme court's holding that the bond issue was invalid.

"If it be argued that the legislative enactment should come before the bonds are voted and sold, it may be stated that supreme court of the Daily average imports of petroleum at principal ports for the week ended April 24 were 175,429 barrels, compared with 243,571 barrels for the previous week and 210,286 barrels for the four weeks ended April 24.

LEGISLATURE

United States is authority for the proposition that such an act of the legislature may come after the bond issue. In other words, that the legislative defect can be cured after the bonds are voted and issued."

Cites Supreme Court.

Sutton cites a number of rulings of the supreme court in support of his convention, among them 172 U. S. 416, in which the court sustained the validity of a validating act of congress in reference to certain bonds, and used this language: "There was nothing at that time to have prevented congress from authorizing such municipalities to issue bonds in aid of the railways and that which congress could have originally authorized it might subsequently confirm and ratify."

He next quoted from the Archer county decision of the court: "Where a local improvement territory is selected and the burden is spread by the legislature or by a municipality to which the state has granted full legislative powers over the subject, the owners of property in the district have no constitutional right to be heard on the question of benefits."

"Now is it not clear from this language that if the legislature had selected the territory nad itself spread the burden by act of the legislature that the supreme court would not have declared the act unconstittuonal?" Sutton asked.

Legislature Empowered.

"Couple this with the holding of the supreme court that acts passed subsequent to the issuance of the bonds will suffice, if the legislature had the power in the beginning to enact the necessary law, and it seems clear enough that a validating act may be passed which will be upheld by the courts."

The state constitution will not stand in the way of the validation, Sutton contends, quoting from the decision of the supreme court of Texas, 83 Texas 200; where a contract which a municipal representative has attempted to create is invalid merely for want of legislative authority to create it, it can be made valid by subsequent law."

FIND LIQUOR CACHE.

Coast Guard Cutter Unearths Whiskey in Lafitte Country.

NEW ORLEANS, April 27.—(AP) United States coast guard pickets today unearthed a cache of whiskey in the Louisiana marshes of the Barataria section where Jean Lafitte is reputed to have buried pirate treasure a century ago.

The whiskey seized by the officers represents at current bootleg prices approximately $100,000.

There were 765 cases, each containing 10 gallons. The seizure interrupted delivery probably at New Orleans.

DENTISTS SEE CLINICAL WORK

Various Speakers Give Demonstrations at Convention

Dr. Polk E. Akers of Chicago was the principal speaker at the afternoon session of the Texas State Dental Society Tuesday when he gave an instructive address on one of the latest things in dentistry, "The Castings of Partial Dentures and Removable Bridge Work in One Piece Direct to Model, Showing an Entirely New Design for Clasps."

His address was illustrated with lantern slides and exact methods of his work were shown the four hundred dentists who listened to his lecture.

He showed how bridge work in partial dentures could be handled in one piece, and emphasized cast gold partial dentures.

Following his address, he instructed a class in his clinic along similar lines.

Other Clinics Held.

Other clinics were held during the afternoon as follows: Dr. Boyd S. Gardner of Rochester, Minn., gave a review of the work of the dental section of the Mayo Brothers Clinic in Rochester, and emphasized the need of closer co-operation between the dentist and physician. He discussed "The Newer Extraction Technic; the Valve of the Post-operative Radiogramm and Laboratory Significance."

Dr. Gardner's work was given from wax models and the blackboard.

Dr. K. W. Knapp of Minneapolis, Minn., conducted a clinic on "A Practical Demonstration of Casting Technic," giving instruction in practical casting, taking each class through from cavity preparation to include actual casting.

Dr. J. M. McMinn of Dallas is conducting a clinic during the convention on the "Technic of Full Denture Construction With Special Reference to Securing Balanced Occlusion." In Tuesday afternoon's course, he gave his mipression technique on a patient and was followed by a demonstration of each succeeding step, also on patient using prepared impressions to verify retention, occlusion-contour models for establishing central occlusion, and giving the method.

Pyorrhea Discussed.

"Pyorrhea, Its Scientific Treatment" is the general subject on which Dr. S. B. Riggs of San Antonio is conducting the clinic which is divided into five sections as follows: An outline of mouth infections with discussions by class members; treatment of pyorrhea, with discussion; "Instrumentation in Pyorrhea Work," by Dr. W. P. Delafield, Dallas; "Trauma, Its Effects on Pyorrhea," Dr. W. H. Scherer, Houston; "The Co-operation of the Patient," Dr. Riggs.

The sixth clinic of the convention is being conducted by Dr. Walter T. Newton of Houston who began his work Tuesday afternoon on "Porcelain Jacket Crown Technic." The course includes lectures, lantern slides and actual demonstration of each step from preparation to finished restoration.

Dr. F. F. Brown, president, presided at the afternoon session.

Announcement was made of the surgical clinic to be held at the General Hospital at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning.

Wives of the visiting dentists are invited to meet the local women at the Kemp hotel at 12:30 o'clock Wednesday and go from there to the Wichita club for a 1 o'clock May Day luncheon, of which Mrs. W. P. Bolding is chairman.

Jury Disagrees

The jury in the case of Frank Folsom, charged with a statutory offense, reported to Judge Wilson of the thirtieth district court shortly before noon Tuesday that they were hopelessly hung, and were discharged after having deliberated since five o'clock Monday afternoon. The count, it was understood, stood ten and two in favor of conviction.

Folsom's first trial several months ago resulted in a verdict of guilty and a sentence of 25 years, appeal to higher courts obtaining a reversal of this, however.

SANDY COATING COVERS CITY

Weather Man Sends Storm In Afternoon to End Tuesday

A full-sized sand storm that whipped in from the northeast late in the afternoon gave Wichita Falls a tentative promise of more rigorous weather for Wednesday. A decided drop in temperature came on the heels of the wind and sand, while at the same time a bank of clouds hovering in the north grew thicker. There was no indication, however, that any radical climatic change was impending.

Tuesday, for the most part, was warm and balmy. A breeze of a 10-mile-per-hour average prevailed most of the day and the sky was partly overcast. A maximum terperature of 84 degrees was reached, this being three degrees below the maximum for Monday.

The sand storm lasted about 30 minutes and succeeded in thoroughly begriming everything it touched.

FORD GETS ANTIQUE.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., April 27.—(AP)—An ancient sleigh or wagon body, hung on leather straps with the seat fastened to bows of wood and hay rake more than 100 years old, have been added to the antique collection of Henry Ford at Sudbury.

They are the gifts of R. Eugene Ashley, who came across the relics of an earlier day to his home in South Middleboro.

4 Marriage Licenses.

Four marriage licenses were issued Tuesday by the county clerk's office, these going to Arminias Johnson, Oklahoma City and Annie Moreland, Rosebell, Okla.; Willie Patty, Vernon, and Ruthy Castloo, Greenville; B. Lovejoy and Anna Belle Littlejohn; A. B. Foster and Martha Nash.

"HER MAN"

--By Beatrice Burton--

Sylvia faces the darkest of all the dark moments of her life. What awaits her? The next chapter in tomorrow's Record News, reveals this.

READ THIS FIRST:

SYLVIA STARR has been engaged to RANDALL PHELPS for a year, when he asks her to free him, because he's fallen in love with her chum, FAY SHIRLEY.

Heartbroken, Sylvia gives him up, much to the satisfaction of her AUNT AGONY, the old maid who reared her. Aunt Agony predicts that Ranny is too fickle to make any woman happy, and says he's a lazy good-for nothing, besides.

Her opinion of him seems to be correct, too; for suddenly Ranny drops Fay and marries Sylvia after all! Soon after they're settled down in a tiny flat that they call "The Nest," he begins to be bored with married life, and makes no secret of the fact. He has a second flirtation with Fay, and he gambles and drinks. But when Sylvia tells him she's going to have a baby, he behaves himself for a while. And Fay promptly marries her old beau, EDDIE CARTER.

Shortly after the birth of JUNIOR, the frail baby, Ranny returns to his old habits and his old haunts. He spends so much money on himself that Sylvia has to give music lessons to keep things going. Then she writes a popular song, that makes a hit, and puts the $3,000 royalties in the bank, so pay down on a house with a yard, for the family doctor, DR. BUZZARD, says that the baby needs plenty of exercise in the fresh air, if he's going to get along.

Ranny, who has one love affair after another, is extremely jealous of anyone who notices Sylvia, especially of PETER WILK, a bachelor, who once had proposed to her. About the time the baby is a year and a half old, he is having a desperate love affair with a bachelor-girl named ELSIE LEOPOLD, who uses his office and his telephone to make arrangements for a little gift shop she is starting. Sylvia pays little attention to it. By now she realizes that Ranny's love affairs don't last long. And besides she is busy with the baby who has the "flu." Finally Dr. Buzzard calls in MISS BLODGETT, a trained nurse, and Ranny is sent to his mother's house until Junior is better. He has promised Sylvia to take a house in the country immediately, so as to get the baby out of the sooty town. One afternoon Miss Blodgett comes and tells Sylvia that the baby is much worse, and that she has sent for the doctor.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XLVI.

Miss Blodgett answered her in that crisp cheerful tone trained nurses manage to have at all times, somehow, no matter how tired and discouraged they may be.

"The doctor will be here any minute, Mrs. Phelps," she said, smoothing down her smooth white apron.

But Sylvia was quite unassured. Stricken dumb at the prospect of losing from her life that tiny bit of quivering flesh, Sylvia seized the baby, seated herself on a chair and placed the child on her lap. Perhaps she could infuse into him some of her own vitality.

A look of mild reproof came over the face of Miss Blodgett. But before the nurse could speak Sylvia had returned the child to his bed and bent over him, gazing at his face.

"Mrs. Phelps," Miss Blodgett's voice came, as if from another world. "Is there anyone you'd like me to call? Your husband?"

Sylvia turned her haggard face to her, for a moment. "Get Ranny," she answered shortly, and bent over the baby once more.

As she looked at him, some subtle change went over his face. A blue pallor seemed to come down over it like a veil, and settle in the hollows under his eyes and around the pinched little nose and mouth.

She put out her hand and touched the tiny, waxen wrist. She could just feel the wee, fluttering pulse in it. And his wrist seemed so cold, suddenly.

"Sinking spell," she heard Miss Blodgett murmur, and presently she was holding a coffee spoon of brandy and water to the baby's half-opened lips.

Sylvia knew that he was dying. She didn't have to ask Miss Blodgett her question a second time. Without anyone telling her, she knew it beyond a shadow of doubt.

She leaned close over him, not daring to touch him. But she felt that so long as she was close to him death couldn't reach down and take him away from her.

"My baby," she said, and it seemed to Miss Blodgett that, as she said it, she was defying anything to take what belonged to her away from her.

She didn't know when the doorbell rang, or when Miss Blodgett opened the door of The Nest. But suddenly Dr. Buzzard was in the hushed room and with him was another doctor—a stranger.

Only then she backed away from the crib, and slid down to the floor in the farthest corner of the room.

She Seated Herself On A Chair and Placed the Child On Her Lap

She saw the two men lean over the little bed, look at each other, and then at Miss Blodgett.

"Well, why don't you do something?" she heard herself say in a harsh voice unlike her own. "What do you stand there for? Why don't you do something"

Something in his face, as Dr. Buzzard turned toward her, told her why he didn't do anything for the baby—told her as plainly as any words could have told her. It was too late to do anything.

She met his look with eyes that had no light, no expression in them. They were like the eyes of a blind woman.

And without a sound, without a tear, she got up from her corner and went to the baby. She picked him up, blankets and all, and collapsed on the edge of his little bed, holding him pressed close to her, as if she wanted to give him some of her own warmth and life. She knew it was of no use, and yet she couldn't lay him down.

She couldn't give him up—this small thing that was her own flesh and blood and spirit—her own and Ranny's.

She was still sitting there, an hour later, when Ranny came home.

Miss Blodgett had telephoned everyone she knew and had finally found him at the Atheneum club, where he had been playing billiards with Woody King.

He stood on the threshold, looking at his wife and the little bundle that she held against her breast. He knew, of course, that something was wrong, but Miss Blodgett had not told him anything except that the baby was worse.

"How is the poor little beggar now?" he asked, coming a step or two into the room.

Then suddenly Sylvia began to cry. "We've been waiting and waiting for you!" she sobbed, shaking her head. "You're never here when we need you!"

"But, Sylvia," he protested, "I didn't know that you needed me. I thought the baby was getting along alright." He came closer, but suddenly Sylvia was on her feet.

"The baby's dead," she said harshly, and laid it in Miss Blodgett's waiting arms. She stood for a moment looking down at it, her lips working, and slow, agonized tears dropping from her eyes.

Then she turned and before Ranny could stop her, she was gone.

She snatched down her old coat from the hall tree as she went out. She didn't hear his frightened voice calling to her as she ran down the stairs and out into the gray afternoon.

He came after her and caught her by the arm, but she pushed him away as if he had been a stranger or an enemy.

She never remembered her walk through the cold, wet streets.

She never knew how many people turned and looked with puzzled eyes at her haggard face, as she went along the familiar ways to Bleak street.

She rang the bell of the tall narrow house. Rang it and rang it until she remembered that Aunt Agony had gone downtown that afternoon for some more little blankets for the baby.

He would not need them now, the tiny thing.

"My baby's gone. My little, little baby," she said aloud, as she walked slowly around to the back of the old house and sank down on the kitchen steps where no one could see her as she cried out her loneliness and her heartbreak, where no one could find her and take her back to The Nest.

She knew she was never going back to The Nest.

There was nothing to go back to—now.

The next few weeks were anything but pleasant for Ranny Phelps.

For one thing he missed his son. The baby that he had scarcely noticed except when it cried, had meant more to him than he realized until now.

For another thing, his wife, Sylvia, would not see him.

She would not see anybody, for that matter, except Aunt Agony and Dr. Buzzard.

She lay pitifully weak and silent and indifferent to everything in her old bedroom at the top of the Bleak Street house. Sometimes she broke into fits of wild and terrible weeping, and when Aunt Agony tried to comfort her, she pushed her away.

"Don't bother with me," she would sob, "you can't do me any good, anyway. No one can give me back my baby."

Dr. Buzzard shook his wise old head over her, and said that the only thing to do was to let her alone, as she asked.

Ranny called at the house every day or two, but Sylvia wouldn't see him.

"I never heard of anything so absurd," Mother Phelps remarked acidly, when she came home from her trip with Ranny's father, and heard the news. "The idea of a woman refusing to see her own husband! She must be out of her mind!"

But out of her mind or not, Sylvia had no wish to see her husband. She wanted only to be let alone—just as she and the baby had been alone, shut away in The Nest, for so many months.

"No wonder she doesn't want to see the place again," Aunt Agony sniffed at Mother Phelps one afternoon early in January, "It's been a prison for her."

They had waited a month for Sylvia to come to her senses and return to Ranny and The Nest. But they had finally made up their minds that she meant what she said, when she refused ever to set foot in it again.

So here they were, packing up the painted furniture and the old Steinway piano, and the little crib where the baby had died, and sending them away to the storage warehouse, until Sylvia should want them again.

"If she ever does," Aunt Agony added grimly. She didn't think that Sylvia would ever live with Ranny again.

"Why would she want to live with him?" she asked Mother Phelps, as they unscrewed the legs from the dining room table. "You may be his mother, but I'm going to tell you a thing or two about him, just the same!"

And tell her she did. She let her have it straight from the shoulder, too.

"He's been running around with this girl and that ever since he married Sylvia," she snapped, with a vigorous nod of her gray head. "Now, then, what do you think of that?"

"I can't believe it," Mother Phelps declared, dazed.

She really couldn't believe that Ranny would be untrue to his wife, either. He might be irresponsible and selfish and neglectful of Sylvia, but that a son of hers should be unfaithful to his wife, oh, no! It wasn't true! It couldn't be true!

Aunt Agony shrugged her thin shoulders.

"Oh, well, believe it or not, it's true, just the same," she said dryly. "You wondered why Sylvia's through with Ranny and I'm trying to tell you!"

As a matter of fact, Sylvia had never told anyone that she was through with Ranny.

What had happened was that they all took it for granted that she was through with him forever.

That is, everybody but Ranny took it for granted.

He couldn't believe that the Sylvia who worshiped him, the Sylvia who adored him in that blind way of hers—could turn against him now.

If he could only see her he knew that he could straighten out everything between them. Even when he remembered the bitterness in her voice when she spoke to him on the day of the baby's death, he knew that Sylvia still loved him. He was sure of it. Sure of it.

And he made up his mind to see her, in spite of herself, in spite of Aunt Agony who guarded the door of the Bleak Street house like some old dragon guarding a sleeping princess.

So one night, when he got up from dinner at his father's house, he went straight out to the garage, climbed into his Taube car and drove to Aunt Agony's house, determined not to come home until he had seen his wife.

How does the death of Junior affect the relationship of Sylvia and Ranny. Will it bring about a change from the old order. Read what Sylvia does in the next chapter.

A MASTER BUILDER

A MASTER builder has passed on. He was 86 when he died and he was one of the makers of the industrial civilization of Texas. Colonel Morgan Jones was born in England. He died at Abilene. He was a pioneer builder of railroads. He was a pioneer developer of western coal mines. He was a baron of the range when the cow kings ruled the west. He was a banker and a financier of national prominence. He had accumulated one of the largest fortunes under southwestern skies.

He was trained in the building of railroads in Wales. He came to America 60 years ago. He was one of the builders of the Texas and Pacific railroad. He was the builder of the Fort Worth and Denver City railroad, and this bit of constructive effort was born in his brain. He built a railroad from Abilene to Seymour and later he built the Abilene and Southern, which he owned. He was one of the lieutenants of General Granville M. Dodge, who had been a distinguished officer of the Federal army and when the civil war was over, became equally as noted as a western pioneer and builder of the railways which made it possible for the steam horse to cross the continent.

Colonel Morgan Jones constructed a thousand miles of the Texas Pacific railroad in Texas, he constructed the first street car line in Fort Worth. He developed and operated coal mines in Texas. He controlled vast ranching properties and operated them successfully while building Texas railways. And, he found time to prospect for gold and silver in Mexico and men say he was the owner of many public utilities in many southwestern cities. A busy man was Colonel Morgan Jones. Among his activities was mining and smelting in Colorado, and with associates the developing of the largest coal mining property in the centennial state.

He knew all the early pioneers of the west and the southwest engaged in constructive work. He was as well known in Wall Street and to Wall Street financiers as any westerner or southerner. He acquired vast timber lands in Louisiana, and in the red wood forest of California he operated largely and his golden returns were large. Less than a year ago he is said to have pulled off one of the largest cattle deals in the history of the southwest, and when it was thought that the Orient railroad was to suspend operations, he was appointed the receiver of what is known as the Christian Science railway, but the tremendous load of responsibilities which he carried, prevented him from accepting the trust.

He practically died in harness. He believed it to be better to wear out than to rust out. He was a wise man, he kept his own counsels, he was loyal to his friends, he never broke his word, he never made a vulgar display of wealth. Democratic simplicity governed his life. He never married and his vast fortune it is said, will be handed over to his nephews and nieces in America and Great Britain.

He should have written a history of the southwest as he had known it for sixty years, a history of the development of Colorado and other mountain states, and a fourth history of the lumber industry and its development and exploitation from the woodlands of Louisiana and Texas to the red wood groves of the golden state of California.

Dallas and Fort Worth were villages when he came to Texas. Abilene was a wild cowboy town with its saloons and dance halls and gambling houses. El Paso was the jumping off place, an outpost on the very frontier of civilization. Wichita Falls was a little spot in the red sands not many miles from the channel of the Red river. Mobeetie, now a memory, was one of the wildest cowboy resorts and branding camps known to the cattle kings and their cowboys.

"No Man's Land," now Greer county, Oklahoma, was the home of outlaws as wild as the wild beast that were found in its thickets.

Colonel Morgan Jones saw the transformation of a wilderness into a commonwealth that today is fourth in the sisterhood of states, speaking of population and wealth and all the modern accessories of a 20th century civilization. He was a builder, one of the great builders of a great century and a greater civilization.

LUTHER BURBANK PASSES ON

LUTHER BURBANK has passed on to his reward. He was the most noted horticulturist of the age. He was born on a Massachusetts farm. He was given a college education. He loved nature and always lived close to nature. He did much for humanity. He was the great plant wizard of history. He was a model citizen in every way and from every way and from every viewpoint. He was 77 when death called him. He began as a laborer on a California farm and his creations from plant life made him a benefactor whose name will live while language is spoken.

He did not believe in a life after death. He made this announcement not many weeks before death came. A storm of protest came from religious leaders when he made it. They swamped him with letters and telegrams condemning his stand and denouncing his view. This brought a nervous condition that his 77 years could not survive. He had declared that he could not believe in a life after death. And the chronicler of his passing said of his last moments "and life ebbed away and he stood at the brink, he did not falter in his convictions."

This plant wizard had always declared that his object in increasing the yield of plants, was to better the condition of his fellowmen, and he died believing "we must look for survival only in the spirit of the good we have done in passing through life. It has been a good life, it has been sufficient. There is no need for another. One here and gone, the human life has served its purpose. The universe is not big enough to contain all the human souls and the other living beings that have been here for their short span. A theory of personal resurrection or reincarnation of the individual is untenable when we but pause to consider the magnitude of the idea."

Recognition of the existence of a great universal power was admitted by the great plant wizard, but he declared he did not even begin to comprehend it. He said he was a lover of Christ as a man and his works. But nevertheless, he was an infidel as I am an infidel today.

It is said for him that he never harmed a living thing, never spoke a harsh word, never injured a fellow being, never commercialized his wonderful talents and that he died as he lived true to nature and nature's God, according to his lights.

New England gave him to mankind, and his ancestors were among the white men who invaded the wilderness wrested it from primitive Indians and wild best and builded civilization on the rock bound coast of the Atlantic where pilgrims and Puritans made history for themselves and those who came after them.

His achievements in the world of horticulture made him an international figure and won for him a high place in the hall of fame. His disbelief in a personal God expressed in the closing years of an eventful career, evoked or aroused the wrath of the orthodox and plagued the closing hours of the remarkable life of a most remarkable man.

THE TWO EXTREMES

TOURISTS have been attracted, not deterred, by the outbreak of the lava in five hissing rivers down the slopes of Mauna Loa in Hawaii. A curious feature of the spectacle was its accessibility. Thousands of motorists encircled the volcano safely in their cars. Other persons watched the overflow into the ocean from steamships, as if it were a boat race at Poughkeepsie or New London. Meanwhile, a Harvard professor, perched in an observatory on the heights, took scientific records. Between the blind superstition of those who offered pigs, herbs and liquor to the enraged goddess Pele and the active seismographs of Prof. Jaggar lies the whole range of civilized development; but science thus far is as helpless as native ignorance to stem the seething tide from a fire-mountain and convert its energy for the service of man.

A BAD START

CERTAIN Porto Rican youths, it seems, have discovered a simple way to get a free passage to the United States and an opportunity to start life in what they regard as the land of promise. If they smash a United States mailbox in the island, they fall into the net of the postal authorities. They stand a good chance of a sentence to Atlanta penitentiary. Their term once served, America, so they imagine, lies open before them with all its promise and opportunity. If these deluded youths only knew how poor a start in life is a term in the penitentiary, but they do not seem to, according to the postal authorities.

Questions From the World of Love Answered by a Noted Authority

How to Be Happy Though Married Includes Not Nagging or Tagging Your Husband, Cultivating Outside Interests and a Sense of Humor.

Here are a few tips for brides:

Don't live in your emotions. Get down to earth as a daily abiding place. You won't get so many bumps if you do.

Don't sit with your finger on your pulse, counting your heart throbs.

Don't narrow your interests down to one person, even if he is your husband, so that if he fails you your world will be left empty and desolate.

Don't think that because you would die for your husband it gives you a right to nag and deprive him of his personal liberty.

Don't tag your husband and insist on going out with him every time he leaves home. A man has just as much need of masculine society as a woman has of feminine.

Don't believe that any woman is as necessary to a man's happiness as he may be to here. Men aren't built with that kind of nature.

Don't expect your husband to keep up the high-pressure lovemaking of his courting days through forty years of dead-level matrimony.

Never worry about your husband's effections as long as he toils like a dray horse to make you comfortable. A beefsteak is just as much a token of undying devotion as a bunch of American Beauties.

Don't try to cut a man over after you marry him by your own paper pattern. His mother attended to that long before you ever saw him, and what he is, he is. You married him on that basis. Accept it with a good grace.

Don't put your reform theories to work on your husband. Try them on the Zulus or the Hottentots.

Give your husband an evening out, and no questions asked, every week. The poor, hard-worked domestic drudge deserves it.

And take one yourself. There are no two persons such dull company as those who know exactly the same things, who have the same things and haven't even a new story to tell each other.

Don't argue. Argument never yet produced any results in the family circle, except rasped tempers.

Don't burden your husband with all of your little worries. He has troubles enough of his own.

Play fair with your husband. Be as nice to his family and friends as you expect him to be to yours.

Don't tell your husband everything you think you think, for sometimes you don't think it.

Don't set up your own standard of toast and morals and expect your husband to accept them. He has just as much right to his opinion as you have to yours.

Don't be Madame Oracle. There is nothing else on earth so afflicting as to have to live with a perfect woman who knows it all.

LAME DUCKS

BY JOSEPHINE DASKAM BACON

"Why don't you go to the opera?" she asked. "You could close your eyes, whenever you liked, and the music would still be going on."

"That's a good idea," he said thoughtfully. "I'll begin as soon as I dare to. There are lots of operas I've never heard, and I'd like it."

They sat quietly for a moment, and then he burst out suddenly:

"I don't know why you should be so kind to me! I'm ashamed of myself, spouting all my affairs like this—I don't usually."

"I don't think you spouted," she answered quickly. "Certainly if you did, then I did yesterday! I was ashamed of myself, if you like, for showing no sympathy with—with anybody. That—that was why I came back," she added frankly.

"Oh, I see," he said a little doubtfully. "I see. Well, it was very kind of you, anyway—here, let me do that!"

For while he was fumbling for the sous in his little purse, she had taken out two coins and paid the fussy old woman in the black shawl who had come to collect for the park chairs.

"See here, this won't do," he added decidedly. "If you pay for my chair, I must take you to tea. Women always like tea, don't they?"

"Oh yes, I like tea well enough," she said vaguely. Her interest had flagged, it seemed, and she was back in her thoughts again.

"Now that she's made good," he thought resentfully, "and squared herself with her conscience, she's through! We'll see about that!"

"It'll do you good," he said with determined cheerfulness. "This is a hard time of day, I know. Let's go to some jolly little place, that's warm, and you can tell me about some operas!"

"Very well," she agreed listlessly, "if you really want to. It doesn't make much difference to me, Mr. Cromer, what I do. You might as well know that. But I can't promise to be agreeable, you know. I think I'm really better off alone."

"Oh, I don't know," he persisted good naturedly. "What's the difference? I am too—maybe. We're a couple of lame ducks, Miss Crewe—that's what we are! At least we can be sorry for each other."

She made a little shrugging gesture.

"Oh—sorry!" she said scornfully, but she rose and walked out of the park with him.

In a cozy little tea-room, all faded pink chintz and tiny inconvenient tables, they marveled at the family of three beside them, where the grandmother drank two bottles of beer with chocolate eclairs, the young mother ate cheese with a great cup of sweet chocolate, and the thin, big-eyed little boy drowned endless pastries with strong tea!

"Those children," she complained, "are eating all the time, and yet they're always thin."

"But look at the stuff they feed 'em," he said. "What could you expect? They're fat in Brittany, though—I was up there sketching, summer before last, and you ought to see 'em run in at noon, rubbing their tummies and howling, 'Soup, soup, grandmother—I'm hungry!'"

"Do you know a little place called Pabu?" she asked. "I was there all one summer with a piano they hauled ten miles in an oxcart."

While she talked in that odd, low voice, he drew rapidly on the tablecloth, and as she watched the quaint roofed cottages, the just-indicated church spire, the old peasant in her cot, and the fat, ecstatic youngster, pressing an empty bowl to his full stomach, she smiled irresistibly.

"That would make an awfully good poster," she said. "Couldn't you draw those—later? If you made them big enough?"

He shrugged a disdainful shoulder.

"Maybe—probably—oh, Lord, to think of it!" he groaned, and she bit her lip and spoke hastily of the opera.

"If you want to go, I could get you all the tickets you want—student rates," she added; "they're very nice about that. I went all the time, my first year here. If—if money's any object, it makes a difference."

"Oh, money's going to be an object, all right, now!" he answered ruefully. Then:

"Of course up to—up to this winter, I didn't have to worry. I've got about twelve hundred a year of my own, thank God, and from now on, that's got to do. You see, I had a three-year scholarship in California—I'm from Los Angeles—and I took a couple of prizes over here, and so things were pretty soft for me. And this infernal Swiss trip was a pretty swell affair—we lived like fighting cocks. One of my classmates invited five of us as his guests, and he never let us spend a cent—poor Jim, he was awfully broken up over me!"

A softer note came into his voice; his eyes lost their bitterness for the first time.

"I know," she answered, musing. "Sue Kittredge—she took me to St. Moritz—keeps writing me to come to Egypt with her, or anything I want to do. But I'm through with it. No more rich friends for me! They've finished me."

"Then you're not—what will you do?"

"Oh, I'm all right; it isn't that," she answered absently. "I've got just what you've got—twelve hundred. Grandmother left us each that, my sisters and me. I got a three-year scholarship too—at the Boston Conservatory. Fall River, I come from. And I took a Flagler prize, too. But that's all over now, of course, nobody can starve, over here on twelve hundred."

"No, indeed," he agreed heartily. "That's the way I feel. And you can hear all the music you want, very cheap—"

"Oh, music!" she cried, and her voice sank suddenly, and grew rich and angry.

"You couldn't teach, could you," he suggested tactfully, "—though I suppose, over here—"

"Oh, yes," she answered wearily, "I could teach. A first prize Conservatory can always coach. Especially Americans—they think we can teach them the tricks and push them along faster. Madame as much as offered me—But I turned it down. I'd rather starve!"

She flashed petulant eyes at him. For the first time her artist's temperament flared out, and he could imagine her crashing great chords across a listening audience.

"Oh, what's the use?" she said, sunk into gray ashes again. "I must go now, Mr. Cromer. Thank you for the tea."

Before he could quite realize it, they had separated, and he went back to his early bed, forgetting to dine, for he spent the last late daylight in tidying the studio, putting away his sketching-tools and plates, arranging the scattered studies carefully, and choosing out the holder, posterlike designs almost unconsciously.

"I might as well do something," he muttered. "There's no good making an utter slump!"

He hurried to the park the next day at noon, surprised at the eagerness with which he scanned the little deil, the disappointment with which he saw that there was but one woman there, a charmingly dressed French girl, playing with a little French boy. But as she tossed his ball back to him with a clumsy, left-handed throw, his heart beat quicker, for it was Janet Crewe.

As he advanced, lifting his hat, she stared for a moment at the tall stranger. The day was warm, even too warm, the skies softly overcast, and not an overcoat was to be seen in Paris. But it was not the trim gray suit of light English tweed that made him look so young, suddenly; it was his blue eyes, which she had never before seen.

"Why—why, Mr. Cromer!" she said, startled.

"Hello," he answered, with a breezy Californian cordiality. "Isn't it great?

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch

THE STUDENT WAITER

Had breakfast in a college town
This morning, with a student waiter;
I wish the years I could look down
And see that boy a little later.
Perhaps today a general
Has set a plate of toast before me,
Some great ecclesiastical
Or governor has hovered o'er me.

Perhaps the patron was the fool,
The genius brought the trays and platters,
The boy who works his way through school
Will work his way through other matters.
We value most the things we earn,
And least the things we little wanted;
The boy who has to work to learn
Will learn to work, by work undaunted.

So here's my hat off, son, to you!—
The boy who works his way through college,
For you are gaining wisdom, too,
While other boys gain only knowledge.
Success will seldom come with ease,
For work's the only way of winning;
And I don't worry over these
Who find it out at life's beginning.

What Do You Know About It?

Daily Science Six.

1. What is attar of roses?
2. From what source is musk obtained?
3. From what source is lavender obtained?
4. What are some common illsmelling flowers?
5. What are some common trees having perfume-bearing barks?
6. What are some cabinet woods having a perfume or aroma?

Answers to these questions in tomorrow's paper.

Flower Odors.

As everybody knows the odors of flowers are attractive to insects. Most insects belong in the class of day-feeders, and especially in warm sunlight the odors of flowers diffuse abroad of apparently a great distance. There are even some flowers that smell of rotting flesh and are hence attractive to carrion flies. The strangest of all flower perfumes perhaps are those that are only odorous at night; this is especially true of certain yuccas.

The reason for this would seem to be that they are hence attractive to night-flying moths which are especially adapted to fertilizing these flowers. During the day no trace of odor is to be discovered in these flowers. This has not yet been explained by science.

Now what do you know about that?

Answers to Yesterday's Questions:

1. Continents of the southern hemisphere are Australia, South America and Africa.
2. The southern hemisphere has more water than land.
3. A southern exposure is a shady, not a sunny, exposure in the southern hemisphere.
4. Armadillos and kangaroos are animals found in the southern hemisphere and not in the northern.
5. Cape Horn is the southernmost tip of South America.
6. Vasco da Gama was the first navigator certainly known to round the Cape of Good Hope. A geographical expedition sent out by one of the Egyptian Ptolemaic kings may have done so in ancient times.

WHAT TODAY MEANS TO YOU

TAURUS

Today's planetary aspects are, until the evening, excellent and any new undertaking initiated under these prevailing auspices is almost certain to succeed, especially if it be along lines of constructive effort. Mining and law appear to be most favored, but no sane enterprise can fail to benefit by the propitious conditions. Speculation and hazardous risks should be eliminated as, if indulged in, only failure will result. It is an excellent occasion for marriage and the votaries of Hymen, if they irrevocably plight their troth today, will have no cause for regret. Relaxation should be the rule in the evening, as adverse influences will predominate, and there will be missing that enthusiasm and self-confidence that characterized the early part of the day.

Children born today will, according to the signs, escape most, if not all, of the ailments of infancy. They are, however, prior liable to experience at least one serious sickness just prior to the adolescent stage, which will call for exceptional care and intelligent treatment. Temperamentally, they will be not very assertive and, as a result of weakness of character, rather disposed to "travel with the crowd," regardless of the road the crowd may have chosen. They will under an indifferent exterior, be extremely emotional and if their affections can be reached, they will be plastic and yielding. They will be endowed with a fair amount of intelligence, and learn readily and easily.

If today is your birthday, your pride is, at times, a stumbling block to success. You are very sensitive and extremely jealous of what you consider your rights. Anyone that, figuratively speaking, "steps on your toes" can count upon you as an enemy for all time. You are industrious and painstaking. When, however, your feelings are hurt, you lose interest in the task on hand, even though "plugging" at it may lead to success. In the ordinary vernacular, you are 'touchy," and this does not render you very capable of playing a prominent or profitable role in the rough and tumble of this workaday life.

Those who know you well respect your weakness and avoid all appearance of hurting your easily hurt feelings. Consequently these are able to appreciate the kindness of heart and affection that permeates your character.

Wife: Please don't beat me again! I'm so sorry!

Husband: Headache tablets, and me without cigarets! You've got to get out of the habit of indulging in such luxuries, my proud beauty! Twenty cents—two whole dimes—for your own pleasure! Just for that you won't get any supper! Now get to work on that washboard before I forget myself!

To Run Busses to Rodeo and Show

Assurance of adequate transportation to the rodeo and automobile show has been given by the Wichita Falls Traction company through special permission from the city council to operate four new busses to the fairgrounds. The busses will operate on a 15-minute schedule and will leave the depot, going up Eighth street to Brook, over Brook to Ninth, up Ninth to Grant and out Grant to the fair grounds.

This service will be maintained during the rodeo and automobile show in addition to the regular street car service and should relieve all transportation difficulties for those who prefer to ride the street cars.

Tuesday's Report Boosts Forum Drive to $18,000

Captains Report Good Progress Made First 2 Days of Soliciting

Approximately $18,000 was the total amount reported by captains of the various teams as a result of the first actual day's work done in raising funds for the proposed new Woman's club building in the campaign for $50,000 with which to construct and furnish this building. The drive was officially launched Monday, when 100 club women of Wichita Falls met at the Y. W. C. A. and outlined plans and organized workers for the undertaking.

The amount realized from the work done was announced at a meeting of the civic's department held at the Y. W. C. A. Tuesday afternoon, by the general chairman, Mrs. G. D. Anderson. The canvass will continue today and tomorrow in an effort to complete the fund by Thursday night. The city, it was reported, had been about one-half canvassed.

In some sections the women were disappointed at the amount pledged, while in other the subscriptions were in amounts which had been expected. The ladies are working in pairs under captains.

"We want the men to understand," said a prominent worker last night, "that this is not a donation. The men who assist in the building of the club home are investing in a permanent institution, one that hopes to rebound to the wood of Wichita Falls."

During the business session of the meeting held Tuesday, which is the last of the season, yearly reports were made, and a program given which included an interesting talk by H. J. Tracy on "The Panama Canal and other United States Possessions," and Current Events by Mrs. Adele Jarrell.

ASK TARIFF CUT

WASHINGTON, April 27.—(AP)—A reduction in tariff rates on spices, raw flax, hemp, burlaps, gunny cloth and other fabrics was proposed today in a bill by Representative Hull, democrat, Tennessee, who estimated it would reduce tariff revenue by 12 or 15 million dollars.

SON SEEKING 'LOST' FATHER

Hears Parent Is In San Antonio, ex-Soldier Hunts Him

SAN ANTONIO, April 27.—(AP)—Hope, springing eternal in the heart of man, has been revived in a boy who has not seen his father in nine years.

When the clarion of war sounded throughout the land in 1917, E. E. Lofton answered his country's call. Months of training on this side were followed by a journey to Europe and active service on the battle fields of France.

Behind was left a little boy, just a wee tot who had no mother to take the place of the absent father. But relatives had assured the living parent they would care for his offspring, and the child was taken into their home.

The war ended. There came a letter in 1919, saying that the father was coming home to his son.

But the parent never came.

With the dawn of each new year the boy became more doubtful that he would ever see his parent again.

And then a few days ago a report just a mere rumor—was received in the little town of Mesquite, in Dallas county, to the effect that the missing father had been seen in San Antonio.

So Mrs. O. L. Dawson, relative with whom the boy has been living, has written to Sheriff James Stevens asking him to try and find Mr. Lofton.

"If he is in San Antonio, we will find him for the sake of that boy," Sheriff Stevens declared, on receiving the letter.

U. S. DENIED MURDER CLAIM

Commission Refuses to Grant Reparations For Massacre

MEXICO CITY, April 27.—(AP)—Claims of the United States government for indemnification for the killing of 16 American mining engineers, by Villa bandits at Santa Ysabel in Jan. 1916, has been decided adversedly.

Dr. Rodrigo Octavio of Brazil, the neutral presiding judge of the Mexican-American special claims commission, and Fernando G. Ros, Mexican member of the commission, ruled yesterday that Mexico was not liable to damages. The claims, totaling $1,225,000, were regarded as a test case for loss of various American lives in Mexico.

Judge Ernest B. Perry, the United States commissioner, and Attorney H. A. Basham, adviser to the American embassy, disputed the legality of the decision and requested another hearing. Dr. Octavio set September 2 as the date for a hearing at Tampico.

Judge Perry said it was uncertain whether he would attend the meeting at Tampico as his action would depend on the attitude of the state department.

British, German and other diplomats attended yesterday's session of the commission, considering that the decision would afford a precedent possibly affecting thousands of claims from various countries against Mexico.

Pre-Arranged Decision

When the session began yesterday Judge Perry first refused to participate. Later, however, he entered into a vigorous argument with the other commissioners, charging that he had not been consulted in formulating the decision, of which he knew nothing.

He charged that the presiding commissioner's opinion had been in the hands of the Mexican delegate for some time and asked Senor Ros if it were not true. The Mexican replied that he did not know.

Dr. Octavio said that he had sent his opinion to Judge Perry, who retorted that he had never seen it. When adjournment was taken until the afternoon Judge Perry said he would not enter into any conference with the presiding commissioner unless it was made a matter of record that they had arrived at no decision and that they were ready to discuss the facts and law before coming to a conclusion.

The American commissioner, however, was present when the afternon session opened. Immediately after the members seated themselvs Dr. Octavio and Snor Ros began officially signing the decision.

The Americans massacred by the Mexican bandits were taken from a Mexican Northwestern train, robbed, stripped and killed.

Marrs Demands a Per Capita Change

AUSTIN, Texas, April 28.—Demand that if Governor Miriam A. Ferguson calls a special session of the legislature this year, that she submit for action the appropriation of $2 per capita to supplement the 1926-27 school funds was made today by S. M. U. Marrs, state superintendent of education.

He predicted the total per capita apportionment will drop from $14 this year to $12 next year, and said out of $5,000,000 in the treasury the $2,500,000 should be appropriated to the schools.

"All candidates for governor, as well as a majority of both house and senate, agree that the minimum school apportionment should be $15.

"Inasmuch as this is not a commercial subject, it seems that relief for the schools may be obtained if the subject is submitted to the legislature," Mr. Marrs said.

Mr. Marrs said that $2,500,000 less had gone from general revenue to the schools this year than last year, of which $2,000,000 was the supplemental appropriation and the vocational education item, the latter vetoed by the governor out of this year's school aid.

STAR ATHLETE HELD AS THIEF

Kansas Football Hero Is Charged With Robbery

NEW YORK, April 27—(AP)—Surrounded by a score of fraternity brothers and holding a sheaf of telegrams recording the faith in him maintained by his friends, Alexander R. Hodges, former star athlete at the University of Kansas, stood smiling in court today as the grand jury indicted him for first degree robbery.

Well dressed, with his fraternity pin prominently displayed and chatting with his friends, Hodges presented an appearance in striking contrast to the night of his arrest. Then he was frightened and nervous, giving way to tears at frequent intervals, and so desirous of hiding his identity that he threw his fraternity pin away in a prison wash room. He later retrieved it.

Hodges, who was a star football and baseball player and a middleweight boxing champion at Kansas University prior to his graduation last year, was arrested in Columbus Circle April 20th after he had been chased through the streets for three blocks and finally felled by the hurled night stick of a pursuing policeman.

He was charged with having held up a restaurant cashier and stolen $240. After his arrest that amount of money and a cigarette case shaped like a pistol was found on him. Police said he told them that he had almost no money left and that when he went into the restaurant and saw the cashieg counting bills he acted on an impulse to commit the robbery.

Among the testimonial telegrams received by Hodges were expressions of sympathy and faith from former school mates, fraternity brothers and officials of the university. They all testified to the prisoner's good character and expressed amazement at his present predicament. He will be arraigned on the indictment tomorrow.

The Toonerville Trolley Is New Majestic Feature

Although it may seem a far cry from the skipper of the Toonerville Trolley to one of the principal roles in Associated Exhibitors' melodrama of the tall timber, "Hearts and Fists," yet Dan Mason, veteran character actor and comedian, has made the leap in one fell swoop.

He will be on exhibition in the latter picture today at the Majestic theatre as the partner of an almost bankrupt lumber plant, with the fairly impossible task of putting it back on its feet again, facing him.

This same Dan Mason is the individual who made the series of Toonerville Trolley comedies which appeared not long ago, by hi samusing portrayal of the old skipper.

Mason has been in the industry since the cinema first came into being, and has created a substantial place for himself by his versatility in character acting. He has played in a wide variety of productions, from the heaviest drama and melodrama to the lightest or most farcial comedy.

In "Hearts and Fists" Mason is cast as the one faithful old worker in a lumber plant, who has been raised to the position of bookkeeper at the time of his employer's death. The business is on the point of going under when the son of the recent owner takes control. Mason offers his savings to help out, and is elevated to a partnership on the strength of his few pennies and his loyalty. The fight he and the boy put up to keep the plant on its feet and to win over its rival forms the dramatic story which hurries its way to a smashing climax.

1870 Success
Why He Succeeded
From hard work on a farm to the study of medicine in Cincinnati, where he was graduated, was the course which Dr. R. V. Pierce took.
In his younger days he practiced medicine over a large district. It was then the new oil fields near Titusville, Pa. Finally he determined to put up some of his prescriptions in ready-to-use form in order to reach a larger number of families.
He thus moved to Buffalo, N. Y., and established the World's Dispensary, where he put up Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for the blood as well as the Favorite Prescription for women, carefully preparing them from roots, barks, and herbs and placed them with druggists everywhere.
During many years Dr. Pierce's Discovery, for the blood, has been sold in larger quantities by druggists all over the United States than any other medicine. It is a tonic in its effects on the stomach and digestive apparatus; an alternative in its action on the blood, liver and skin. It increases the appetite, stimulates the digestion, enriches the blood, and makes both men and women feel as they did when they were young and care free.
Ask your nearest druggist for Doctor Pierce's Discovery, in tablet or liquid form, or send 10c for trial pkg. of tablets to Dr. Pierce's Clinic, in Buffalo, N. Y.—Adv.

Have You Any REAL ESTATE?

KEEP IT! If You Have None, GET SOME

A few years from now those who now have or could get a little money will ask themselves: "Why didn't I know enough to buy real estate?"

Of those that own real estate now, many will ask in a few years, "Why didn't I know enough to keep it?"

Men with large capital in a few years will curse themselves when they remember the price at which TODAY real estate can be bought.

Men of smaller means will recall with bitterness the fact that they might easily TODAY have bought for five hundred or a thousand dollars suburban property of which the increased value would take care of them in old age.

The REAL property of the United States is the REAL ESTATE of the United States.

You that live here, study opportunities and seize them. Don't spend your old age admiring the intelligence of the man who knew enough to seize chances right under your nose.

Study. Consult trained, keen real estate men. Use your own judgment as you get their views. And as soon as you can, be able to say to your friends:

"I OWN A PIECE OF REAL ESTATE."

More Truth Than Poetry

PUTTING THE BLAME WHERE IT BELONGS

Perhaps it's the movies that Tommy has seen
That fills his young soul with unrest,
Perhaps it's the movies that make him so keen
For a train robber's life in the West.
It may be those terrible cinema plays
That give him his hatred of school,
And cause him to yearn for the free, careless ways
Of the lads whom no sheriff can rule.
Perhaps it's the bad wicked film that inspires
His loathing to do what he's bid,
And stirs him to scoff at the laws of his sires—
And perhaps it's because he's a kid!

Perhaps it's the jazz that makes Mamie prefer
The Charleston to good solid books,
Perhaps it's the jazz that arouses in her
An earnest concern for her flocks.
It may be the saxophone's palpitant beat
Which throbs to her innermost soul—
And wakens a thrill in her slim little feet
That makes her so hard to control.
Perhaps syncopation deprives her of poise
And gives her an impudent tongue,
And leads her to think far too much about boys—
And perhaps it's because she is young!

There wasn't a film in the city of Ur
Or the country of ancient Chaldea,
Yet the lads of the time made a bit of a stir
And were somewhat unbridled and free,
The jazz, well we know, wasn't there to decoy
To a country far over the foam,
The feet of the late Mrs. Helen of Troy,
Who left morals and husband at home.
Both the jazz and the movies have lately arrived
To flash and to groan their appeals,
But youth in all ages has always contrived
Untempted, to kick up its heels!

Panthers Squeeze Under Wire Victor by Nose in Series Opener

Morgan Packs World Of Stuff but Bases on Balls Prove Sudden Downfall

What The Spudders Need Is Horseshoe Set, Four-Leaf Clover or Something To Break Bad Luck

BY BLONDY CROSS.

Brainard's merry macemen aren't so merry today. The elements and whatnot, including Ralph Head, stolid Cowtown right-hand spinner, and one Eddie Moore of the Cat outer patrol, conspired against them openly and successfully yesterday at Spudder park.

A rousing breeze that on occasion stacked up more like a young typhoon, a sand tornado sweeping down from the flat-tummied land of the Panhandle and Cowtown addiction to pedestrianism all ravelled into one untidy mess proved a package of poison to Eulas Franklin Morgan, the Wellington wonder and elongated Spudder starboarder, in his initial start on the flinging knob the current season.

Jake Atz's Panther outfit drew first blood, winning the judges' verdict in the series inaugural by a scant 5-4 margin.

Brainard's bruising bludgeoners, as per usual when on the under side of an inning-by-inning tabulation, worked themselves into a fierce frenzy, so seriously do these noble athletes take the great game of baseball, but their efforts to stem what soon began to appear the inevitable proved both frantic and futile—whatever that is. Anyhow, our proud Spudders, waging a desperate uphill battle, couldn't negotiate the hump. If there had been only one horseshoe in the bunch they may have knotted the count, at least, and carried the mill into extra sessions. That's just how close the final decision was.

Dick Right But Wrong.

Big Dick packed a world of dynamite in that sinewy whip of his, but his range was not of the best. Result: five bases on balls, one hit batsman, five runs. Yessir, if Dick had had so much as a nail out of a horse's boot, he may have come away the victor. Four of the five Cats who drew free transportation and the one hit batsman were knocked around the paths into the run column.

The big fellow gave up seven safeties in eight innings, then was pulled for a pinch walloper, the quintet of counters already in Jake's tally sack. He struck out seven and his mates behind him fielded flawlessly. Incidently, two of the safeties were infield scratches, another was a handle hit to port by Hatchett who swings from the south side of the pan and still another was a two-cushioner socked to right center by Koney, the drive falling safe when the wind swerved the ball away from Fitzgerald just as the slim outer gardner lost his stance on an inconspicuous divot rifted there, no doubt, during the morning by Alex Metzler, the club's Gene Sarazen, as he took his daily round of practice golf.

Blame it On the Breeze.

Will that suffice? Do you need any more alibis? All right, all right. The gale that was blowing in from the north blew its blewest every time one of Wichita Falls' left field home run hitters strode to the platter, cutting many mighty drives back into center field within snaring distance of Jake's outer gardners. Perhaps that isn't sufficient. Maybe you think Cat clouters were at the same disadvantage. All right, maybe they were. We'll let that one pass. Bristling breeze did rob Possum Moore of what at first looked like a certain four-bagger slammed to Metzler in the third with a couple of runners on.

Any way you look at it, the home crew couldn't produce the sock when runners were resting on the hassocks. Blame it on the wind. Cuss the dust that clogged their optics. Say anything you want to, but just recall that remark carried further up in these sad tidings, that one about Ed Moore, conniving against the boys. The rabbit Cat gardner cut down, not one, not two, not three base hits—he stole seven away from our nine. Yessir, Eddie made seven putouts, and while we're at it we might as well as not aver as how all seven should have been base blows—if the wind hadn't been there, if Eddie hadn't been so fleet of foot and fluey of mitt—or if most any other ball player had have been out there instead of Eddie. All right, if that's smearing it on two much let's say six of the drives should have been safeties, or maybe five. There was one blow, anyhow, that should have gone for two bases or so. Washburn walloped a liner to right center in the seventh and Ed made a swallow-like swoop, slung a fist in the air and shagged onto the smash for a one-handed stab that turned Royce back hitless for the day. The breaks were tough. Brainard had made first a moment before on a single past short. He set out for second on an attempted hit and run play, but Head heaved to the plate so wide that Washburn threw his bat at the ball, missing, and Moore chunked the boss out at second.

How Did They Score?

A lightning double play, Brainard to Turgeon to Wash in the first round saved Morgan from a casualty. In this stanza, the Spudders realized their only lucky break of the day. With two away Brainard was safe on boot by Palmer. He absconded with second and then third, scoring when Moore threw high to the hot corner sack.

Two walks, a hit batter, single by Possum, an infield out and single by Eddie Moore sent three Cats home in the second. Doubles by Query and Distel scored one for the domestics.

Another walk followed with singles by Palmer and Hatchett checked a Cat run in the third. Washburn walked and was forced at second by Bodie. Turgeon doubled. Then Metzler chased Ping and Pete across with a bombastic two-base shove to right center to keep apace of the Cats in the same couplet.

A walk, Koney's double and sacrifice hoist by Edington sent home Fort Worth's fifth counter in the fifth frame. The Spudders menaced in each round thereafter, but couldn't find a horseshoe. Got to get some out there today.

You Can't Do It Again, Jake!

COBB DEFEATS WHITE SOX AS SEASON OPENER

Great Ty Makes His First Appearance In Lineup

DETROIT, April 27.—(AP)—The hitting of Ty Cobb, making his first start of the season enabled Detroit to defeat Chicago, 8 to 7, today despite the ineffectiveness of both Holloway and Dauss. Cobb hit a single, a double and a triple in four times at bat, driving in four runs, and scoring two himself. Sensational fielding by O'Rourke and Cobb broke up two White Sox rallies, Cobb taking one long fly from Harris' bat one-handed while on a dead run, and O'Rourke doing the same on a blow by Falk. Indians Win

ST. LOUIS, April 27.—(AP)—The Browns rallied in the ninth today for two runs to tie the score but the Indians came back in the tenth with two more to win the game, 5 to 3. The Indians took the lead in the fourth when Summa poled a home run, scoring two ahead of him. Doubles by Jacobson and Hargrave enabled the Browns to even the count in the ninth. Benge's double together with two singles and a sacrifice constituted the Indians' winning punch. The score:

Buffs Win Again

WACO, April 27.—(AP)—Davenport was master of the situation in Katy Park today, and the Houston Buffs defeated the Waco Cubs, 11 to 0, the first shutout of the season for Pratt's crew. Crumpler, who started the game for Waco, was wild, after the first inning, walks proving his undoing. Elliott, a youngster, relieved Crumpler in the fourth and held the Buffs until the sixth, when he walked one, and Burns hit a home run. This was followed by more hits and the Buffs scored three more. The best the Cubs could do was four hits off Davenport's delivery. The score:

Wood Hurls Rice To 6-3 Victory Over Christians

HOUSTON, April 27.—(AP)—George Wood, ace of the Rice Institute pitching staff was at the height of his form against Texas Christian University here today and as a result the Frogs went down to defeat at the hands of the Owls, 6 to 3.

Wood allowed the visitors but four hits, two of which were of the scratch variety. He was seldom in danger. Rice knocked Hezzie Carson from the mound in the sixth inning by bunching four hits to score four runs. Tolle S. Dacamara and George Wood were the heavy hitters for the Owls, while J. Grant was the only Frog to collect hits off the Rice pitcher. The score:

The Water department and the Panhandle Refiners are carded this afternoon in another Twilight league contest. The Water Department team has been considered a weak club by all the fans, but Managers Martin and Douglas have been working hard to get the team ready for the bigger games.

Several additions have been made to the Water nine and it hopes to give the Panhandle Longhorns a great surprise this afternoon. It probably will be Campbell and Moore as the batteries with the Water team. McDuffy and Hicks are to work for the Panhandle.

With the addition of Nealie Moore to the club the Water outfit is expecting to give someone a race before the season is over.

Othel Hogue, former Burkburnett high school flash, is looking good in the field with the Security National bank team, according to Gabe Harris. If the little fellow can come through with his hitting he should make a real star.

Tennis Men Plan Muny Association In Near Future

Wichita Falls netsters are going to meet in the near future for purpose of organizing what probably will be termed the Municipal club tennis association, announces Preston Beck, Wichita Falls tennis delegate to the Texas amateur athletic federation who has been appointed sort of city tennis commissioner.

Players like Beck, former member of the Junior college team, Mike Ellis, E. A. Bebb, Price, Alexander, Tyson and Durnal are talking up such an organization. Wichita Falls has a host of tennis players who have not been availing themselves of the chance to use the Muny club courts. A tournament is planned for the near future, of course, after organization of the association first has been perfected.

Slim Love Grows Unsteady And Shreveport Gains Runs

DALLAS, April 27.—(AP)—Shreveport came from behind a four run lead here this afternoon to beat Dallas in the ninth inning, 6 to 5. In the eighth Slim Love grew unsteady after fanning the first two men to face him and was nicked for four tallies, which tied the count.

After Benton and Taylor had singled, Kirke lashed out a double, scoring both of the runners. Butch Hoffman then poled a homer over center field, knotting the count. Blankenship's double and Lennox' single produced the winning tally in the ninth. Miller hit two homers and Williamson one. The score:

Hull-Ewing Tiff Rained Out

Light rainfall late yesterday afternoon put skids under the American legion's weekly fight program scheduled last night at the Twelfth and Ohio open air arena. It was not decided just when the card will be held. Matchmaker Don Wofford said there is a possibility of the cauliflower gents swinging into action Thursday night, but refused to put his okay on any such announcement. It may come about the battles will not be pulled off until next Tuesday, said Wofford.

Wildcat Ewing, the Houston welter, was billed with Clyde Hull of St. Paul in a ten round main event.

Bears Finally Win

SAN ANTONIO, April 27.—(AP)—That a ball game is never over until the players are on top of the bus on their way to town was demonstrated today. The Bears batted in six runs to overcome a five-run lead in the eighth, only to lose it on an easy muff in the ninth and then win it back on a balk in their half, defeating Beaumont, 8 to 7.

It was a wild session as the result of a decision by Umpire Barr when he called Najo out at third following the latter's long drive to left in the sixth. Manager Mitze's arguments resulted in his removal from the bench and he was followed by First Baseman Golvin, who continued the dispute. Barr later called Wirts out at first after the latter had beaten the ball to the bag. The crowd rode the umpire the rest of the game. Both difficulties broke a Bear rally. The score:

TURK MATCHED WITH DUTCH IN RETURN SCRAP

One-Hour Limit Tiff to Be Prelim on Landos Card

Dutch Mantell, king of the lumberjack grapplers, and Young Mahmouth, the Turkish combination of a wrestler and prize fighter, have been re-matched for a one-fall, hour limit battle preliminary to the Londos-Velcoff affair to be staged under auspices of the Wichita Falls Wrestling association next week.

Mantell won from Mahmouth in hectic struggle at the Majestic theatre Monday night. But victory came only after the slugging Turk had scored a trio of clean knockdowns with southpaw hooks to the chin, and in general dealt the turbulent Dutchman the roughest treatment he has received since the days several years ago Dutch used to entertain himself by tackling lumberjacks, big and small, of the northwest forests.

Turk Says Accident He Lost.

Mahmouth asked for the match, declaring he was not satisfied with the windup of Monday's melee, explaining, "I can beat that guy any time. He won this match by accident.'"

The "accident" Mahmouth spoke of came after about 55 minutes of heated tussle when in going down under a headlock he cracked his dome against the floor, knocking himself dizzy. He managed to roll out of the hold only to run into a sharp right hook delivered by Mantell to almost identically the same spot on which he had stood on his head. The sock proved a finisher, for practically out on his feet, he proved a fairly easy prey for the rampant Columbus scrapper.

Mahmouth has but one eye. The other was gouged out of commission in a bout staged a year and a half ago. It was on the blind side that he bumped his noggin, and on the blind side, a more or less tender spot, Dutch landed his finishing clout. But for this unfortunate break, Mahmouth believes he would have beat Dutch. At any rate, he had all the better of the mill up to that time, dealing Mantell much real misery, blacking an eye and otherwise mussing up Dutch's comely countenance.

Prelim to Title Bout.

Mahmouth is heavier and stronger than Mantell. But the one-eye handicap, it is generally granted, more than evens matters.

Jim Londos, the famous Greek grappler, and the speedy Nick Velcoff are carded for a two-falls-to-a-finish match as the feature offering of the card.

The association plans a championship match here in May between Joe Stecher, world's heavyweight titleholder and Ad Santel, the undisputed light heavy champ. The winner of the Londos-Velcoff melee will be given a match with the winner of the title bout, declares Matchmaker Alec Ross, who says such an agreement already has been drawn up between the four big fellows.

Electrics Continue To Win in Twilight League Title Race

Texhoma Falls Before Blue's Slants By 2-1 Score in Game Halted By Sudden Rain

The Wichita Falls Electrics continued their full speed forward in the Twilight pennant drive Tuesday afternoon by taking a four-inning game from the Texhoma club, 2 to 1.

The tilt was called in the fifth inning when rain began to fall over the field.

A high wind was blowing a steady gale to the pitchers' back made hitting very difficult and very few balls went past the infield. Evertte Blue and Trout were having a great pitching battle when the rain stopped the affair.

Both pitchers had allowed but two hits and these had been well scattered out. Both pitchers were making them get the balls on the ground and the infielders were doing plenty of work.

Drives by Whatley and Gordon were the hitting features of the contest. Rabbit Gordon drove one into the wind and over the left field for three bases. Whatley did the same for two bases. Both would have been home runs if the wind had not been blowing against them.

Lights Score at Start.

The Electrics took a one run lead in the first inning and held this until the third. They shoved over the winning run in the fourth inning.

Lindley opened the game by driving a single between first and second. He went to second on a passed ball and on to third on a sacrifice bunt by Stanfield. F. Taylor struck out. Courtney walked. Courtney stole second and when the ball hit him in the back Lindsey crossed the pan with the first score. Courtney stole third but died there when Whatley rolled out, Trout to Kellogg.

Texhoma tied the count in the third after two men were out. Enloe rolled out, Blue to F. Taylor. Trout fanned. Gordon slammed one to left field for three bases. Guy Taylor fumbled Kellogg's roller to short and Gordon scored.

The Electrics came back in the next inning and shoved over the run that won the game. Courtney rolled out pitcher to first. Whatley then sent one into left field for two bases. Whatley went to third on a passed ball. Guy Taylor hit to short and Whatley beat the throw to the plate and scored. Guy Taylor was later trapped off first base. Shaw fanned for the last out.

Texhoma threatened to tie the score in the last half of the fourth, but tight playing on the part of the Electric company infield held them at bay. Courtney dropped Allen's fly ball to left center. Allen stole second. Andy Taylor hit to first base and was out, Allen taking third. Davis batted for G. Boone and attempted a squeeze play. Everette Blue meased things up when he cut Allen off at the plate with a fast bit of fielding. Davis then went out stealing.

The Electrics were three up and three down in the fifth, while Texhoma had one down when rain stopped the game.

Dempsey Figures Wills Easier Than Tunney, Says Tex

NEW YORK, April 27.—(AP)—Tex Rickard came home today with Jack Dempsey's signed contract in his pocket. The contract he explained, binds Dempsey to fight under his promotion in defense of his heavyweight title against either Harry Wills or Gene Tunney some time in September, somewhere in New York or New Jersey."

Rickard refused to stipulate just who would be Dempsey's opponent and furthermore, he said the opponent may not be announced until two months before the fight, the final date for naming the challenger under the terms of the agreement with the heavyweight champion.

"I don't know who it will be," said Rickard, "but I'll tell you right now Dempsey would rather fight Wills than Tunney. He figures the negro would be an easy opponent.

"As soon as I'm ready with an opponent I will go to the state athletic committee, lay out my plans and ask for official approval."

Scientist Learns Why Earth Wobbles

SAN FRANCISCO, April 27.—(AP)—Discovery of the cause of variation of latitude or the periodic "wobble" of the earth's axis was announced by Captain Thomas J. J. See, United States navy government astronomer at Mare Island here today.

Professor See said he had demonstrated mathematically that the phenomena of the polar motion or the shift of the earth's axis in the globe which have interested scientists for many years, are due to the times in the Pacific ocean. This discovery was the result of 40 years story of the tides, and the fnidings under his hypothesis agree exactly with astronomical observations in many countries over a period of 35 years. The discovery, Professor See says is one of the most notable triumphs in the physics of the earth and in exact astronomy in the last century.

OUST TEACHER FOR HIS IDEA

Experiments In Grain Fermentation Arouse Ire Of Directors

BENTON, Ills., April 27.—(AP)—R. H. Hannah, 27-year-old instructor in chemistry in the Sessler township high school, near here, believes a laboratory experiment in grain fermentation has educational value. The school directors think differently and have ousted him because such experiments were conducted in the school.

But "there is no unlawful motive" in the study of fermentation which produces alcohol, Hannah claimed and he has refused to resign as the board demanded. Another teacher has been employed to take his place, however.

The trouble started with the textbook in chemistry, Hannah has explained. The making of alcohol was described in the book and the class attempted th experiment. Interest was manifested by some of the boys in the class and they suggested a study of grain fermentation.

A small quantity of wheat was provided by one pupil and it was placed in jars to ferment, the instructor said. Three of the boys wanted to remain after school one evening to devote additional time to the experiment. Their request was granted and the school janitor saw what was going on and reported to the school board.

of Houston, and the report by Dr. I. L. McGlasson, fraternal delegate from the state medical association of Texas.

While the dentists themselves were busy throughout the day with their little wax models, their colored slides and their tongue-tying words of "partial dentures," "removable bridge work," "acquiring balanced occlusion in full dentures," "porcelain jacket crown technic" and similar terms, their wives were being entertained by local committees arranged for the purpose. A drive through the oil fields and the irrigated valley was made in the afternoon, while at the same time there were a number of private entertainments and social functions.

The clinical demonstration will be continued Wednesday, as will the series of technical reports and discussions. An operation at the general hospital this morning will serve as one clinical class when a hair lip and cleft palet surgical remedy will be made.

Africa Untouched N. Y. Bank Declares

NEW YORK, April 27.—(AP)—Exploitation of the almost untouched resources in the vast interior of the African continent is one of the large projects of the twentieth century, says the National Bank of Commerce in New York, and cotton is the crop through which, chiefly the attempt is being made to develop Africa's agriculture.

"Africa's contributions to the world production in the past season was over-shadowed by the big American crop, but the establishment of a great irrigation works, the successful struggle against native inertia, the development of transport facilities and the dissemination of crop education and experience are works of enduring character which may carry the germ of future growth."

SAN ANTONIO, April 27.—(AP) Gallantry has been struck a death blow, according to United States Commissioner R. L. Edwards. When husband and wife were arraigned before him today for liquor law violations, Judge Edwards allowed bonds of $500 for each.

After making bond for himself, the man said to his wife as she went to jail, "that sure is hard duck, honey."

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, April 27.—(AP)—The cotton market was only moderately active today. After a slightly irregular opening prices gradually improved owing to map indications of a possible return of rains in the west but mainly to fears that the weekly weather report due at the opening tomorrow may prove bullish as the first half of the period to be covered was characterized by very bad weather. Later in the day there was considerable talk of extensive re-planting in the central belt. At the highest of the afternoon prices showed gains of 11 to 16 points above the previous close. While the market eased off a trifle in the last hour on realizing the clas was steady, showing net gains for the day of nine to 13 points.

At the start Liverpool came in a little irregular to one penny point net higher to two down. First trades here showed a net gain on May of four points no change on October and one point down on January. The early cables at 17.79 for May 17.44 for July and 16.52 for October proved to be the lows of the day.

The market soon started to improve on fears of more rainy weather and by the end of the first half hour October traded up to 16.61 or nine points net higher. The market continued to advance during the morning and by mid-session May traded up to 17.87, July at 17.54 and October at 16.65, or eight to 13 points above the previous close.

The market continued to improve in the later trading on weather fears mainly and by the middle of the afternoon May traded as high as 17.90, July at 17.55, October at 16.65 and December at 16.69 or 11 to 17 points above the previous close. In the last hour of trading prices eased off three to five points on realizing but the close was steady.

Exports for the day totaled 17.455 bales.

NEW YORK COTTON.

NEW YORK, April 27.—(AP)—Failure of weather conditions to become generally favorable in the south, together with more encouraging reports from the British cloth markets, seemed responsible for steadiness in the cotton market today. No general aggressive buying was reported but offerings were light and prices worked up to 18.20 for July and 17.00 for December net advances of 14 to 18 points on active positions. July closed at 18.16 and December at 16.95, the general market closing steady at advances of 11 to 15 points.

The market opened steady at an advance of one to seven points in response to relatively steady Liverpool cables and an unfavorable view of the weather outlook. Circulation of May notices estimated at about 4.000 bales brought out some liquidation which was absorbed by covering or trade buying. Comparatively small offerings of later deliveries seemed to make very little impression on the market. The May premium over July narrowed to about 48 points while the notices were circulating, but later widened out to 45 to 46 points suggesting that the cotton had been taken up by the trade while buying of later months was stimulated to some extent by the weather details showing frost at many points in the eastern belt.

The presence of a low barometer over Arizona caused nervousness in connection with the forecast for colder weather with frost in some western belt sections tonight and an outlook for showers in Texas which some thought might turn into rains should the area of low pressure become stronger. May sold up to 18.65 and October to 17.24 and the market closed within three to five points of the best.

Private cables received from Liverpool this morning said there was a better business in the Lancashire cloth market and attributed the advance in cotton to trade calling.

Exports today were 18.359 bales, making 6,987,637 so far this season. Port receipts 19,869. U. S. port stocks 1,003,157.

Lubbock Secretary Accused of Fraud

LUBBOCK, April 27.—(AP)—J. R. Gormany, secretary of the city of Lubbock since August, 1919, was indicted late yesterday by the Lubbock county grand jury on a charge of embezzlement of funds. A bond of $2,000 was set and immediately arranged.

Two instances of embezzlement are alleged by the grand jury, one on February 24, 1925, of $843.20 and the other on May 18, of the same year in the sum of $1,783.38. Gormany denies guilt in both instances.

The indicted man is the third secretary of the city of Lubbock to come under suspicion, members of the city commission say.

NEW YORK, April 27.—(AP)—Further irregularity developed in today's stock market with trading showing a further shrinkage in volume. Net gains and net losses were about evenly divided at the close. Banks called about $20,000,000 in loans during the day, which kept the official call money rate firm at 5 a per cent although that rate was shaded in the "outside market".

The chief financial news development of the day was the placing of the common stock of the U. S. Steel corporation on a regular annual basis of 7 per cent through the declaration of a quarterly dividend of $1.75. A regular quarterly dividend of $1.25 and an extra of 50 cents have been paid for over two years. Total earnings of the corporation for the first quarter of 1926 were $45,061,235, compared with $47,280,465 in the preceding quarter and $39,882,092 in the corresponding period a year ago. U. S. Steel common fluctuated between 120⅝ and 122¼, closing at 121½, unchanged on the day.

Trading in the general list was largely of a professional character, with public participation still nominal. News developments continued largely favorable, with several splendid quarterly railroad reports making their appearance during the day. Missouri Pacific earned $1.07 a share on the common in the March quarter, against 33 cents in the corresponding period last year.

Motors were subjected to further pressure but the selling generally was well absorbed. Two of the most interesting automotive trade developments of the day were the earning report of the Pierce Arrow company, showing $3.15 a share earned on the preferred in the first three months as against $1.68 in the first quarter of 1925, and the announcement of price cuts by the Franklin Automobile company. Hudson was driven down to 65⅝, but rallied to 66⅝, off 1⅛ net. General Motors closed a point higher at 127⅝ after fluctuating between 125¾ and 129. Mack Trucks showed a small fractional loss of 115½ after having sold down to 114¼.

Heavy buying of Skelly Oil which touched a new high for the year at 35c was based on rumors that negotiations were under way for the merger of that company with some Standard Oil unit. Davison Chemical moved up a point on a heavy turnover with buying based on reports of steadily increasing earnings. Pool activity also was apparent in a number of other industrials and specialties with net gains of a point or two being recorded by Colorado Fuel, Famous Players, Coca Cola, Loew's and several others.

Marine preferred fell back 1½ points to 40½ on the traditional selling on the good news which followed the announcement of the proposed sale of the White Star line to Furness-Withy and company, and Morgan, Grenfell and company.

Rails held relatively firm with evidence of investment buying in some of the northwestern issues which hitherto had been neglected. Some sharp gains were recorded by ordinarily inactive issues. "Big Four" common jumped 19⅝ points to 205, and Hocking Valley soared 22 points to 164, both record highs.

Establishment of the highest price since 1923 by Japanese yen at 47 7-16 cents featured the irregular foreign exchange market. Demand sterling was slightly easier around $4.85 ⅛ and French francs sold down a few points to around 3.33 cents. Belgian francs held relatively steady just above 3.60 cents, the senate's approval of the Belgian settlement apparently having been anticipated. A slightly higher premium for the Canadian dollar was accompanied by reports of new gold shipments to Montreal.

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW.

CHICAGO, April 27.—(AP)—Likelihood of frost tonight, Kansas, Nebraska, Missouri and South Dakota did a good deal to make wheat prices average higher today. At times, too, a dry weather scare appeared to be developing. Closing prices however, on wheat were irregular, at ½c net decline to 1c advance, May (new) $1.63⅛ to $1.64 and July $1.43⅛ to $1.43½. Corn finished ⅛c off to ½c up, oats at ⅛c to ⅜c gain and provisions varying from unchanged figures to 27c decline.

Corn was bearishly effected by the fact that the stock of corn here is the largest at this time in many years.

Liquidation was on in May corn and it sold at 4⅝ cents under July the widest discount for the 1924 crop. Stop loss orders were caught on the way down. Cash interests bought May and sold July, and there was also changing over on the part of longs.

Eastern cash demand was slack. Low temperatures were commented upon as unfavorable for planting. Lateness of seeding gave some firmness to oats.

Provisions were governed by the action of hog values.

BUY GAME PRESERVE

State Commission Will Acquire 10,000 Acres for Purpose.

AUSTIN, April 27.—(AP)—Purchase of a 10,000 acre tract for propagation of wild game likely will be made soon by the state game, fish and oyster department, T. E. Hubby, commissioner said today.

The purchase fund would be paid out of the special game fund of $180,000. This fund has been increased by $50,000 since Commissioner Hubby took charge.

National Parks to Be Game Preserves In Boundary Change

WASHINGTON, April 28.—(AP) Reasons for changing the boundary lines of four great national parks in the west were explained today by Stephen T. Mather, director of the parks, to the senate public lands committee.

Four pending bills would add 317 acres to Mount Ranier park in Washington and would make the park's limits natural on three sides; would eliminate 19 square miles of privately owned property from the Rocky mountain national park; would add 380 square miles to the Grand Canyon national park and would add 528 square miles in the Teton national forest to the Yellowstone park.

Three changes had been recommended by the interior and agriculture departments, Mather said. The object was to obtain a well balanced area for the development of roads and to protect wild game.

DON'T GET THE NAME OF "SLOW PAY"

Sometimes men let small bills run on and on until it hurts their credit rating. That is mere carelessness. More often a man gets behind in his accounts because of an unavoidable purchase of many things at one time. If the amount is so big that he cannot pay all when they are due, his credit rating is hurt.

Here is the way to keep your credit rating A1:

You can borrow enough from us, up to $500, to take care of every bill on time, and then pay us back at convenient intervals.

We will be glad to explain the convenience of our loan plan if you will call on us.

Two Are Killed In Crash at Crossing

LAFAYETTE, Ind, April 27.—(AP)—Alicide Bourque, 45, of Milton and Nare Nickles, 35, of Abbeville are dead and Bartel Bourque, 16, son of Alicide Bourque, is seriously injured as a result of a railroad crossing accident today at Landry Switch, 3 miles from here when a truck equipped for camping purposes and driven by Alicide Bourque collided with the eastbound Southern Pacific.

Car Load of Beer Found In Chicago

CHICAGO, April 27.—(AP)—A carload of beer, 34,400 bottles, was guarded in the railroad yards here today. Six Chicagoans were arrested when they drove up to the car late last night in two big trucks, presumably to haul the liquor away.

The car was shipped from Canada in care of a Chicago lumber company which notified police when it was discovered that barrels of bottled ale were concealed under lumber. Officers believe that shippers had planned for the car to be unloaded without knowledge of the lumber company.

Sherman-Youmans Pay Highway Bureau

AUSTIN, April 27.—(AP)—Highway maintenance accounts for Harris and Galveston counties, which have been under fire, have been paid the Sherman Youmans Construction company of Houston, by the highway. Last week the company was paid approximately $29,000, liquidating all back accounts for maintenance. Two division engineers at Houston refused to approve the maintenance accounts. They were subsequently relieved, and one charged his removal was brought about by this refusal.

Eugene T. Smith, secretary of the highway commission explained the back maintenance accounts were paid only after the company had brought the work up to standard specifications.

TO MEET OIL MEN.
H. E. Bell, chief of the oil and gas division of the Texas railroad commission and will hold a meeting Friday with North Texas oil operators in the office of T. L. Coplin, deputy supervisor, Perkins-Snider building, for the purpose of ascertaining the sentiment of the operators toward the installation of compressed air recovery methods in oil fields. Announcement of the meeting made several days ago in Austin was confirmed in a telegram received from Judge Bell by Mr. Coplin Tuesday.

The meeting will be held Friday morning at 10 o'clock. The installation of compressed air recovery methods presents an entirely new problem for the conservationists, it is said, and a special request for producers and engineers to be present is made. Two such "machines" are being installed on leases about twelve miles southwest of Iowa Park, it is stated.

TALBOT URGES DENTAL SCHOOL

Fort Worth Man Makes Plea for Better Instruction

An enthusiastic and energetic delegation of dentists from all parts of the state assembled Monday morning at the First Baptist church convention hall for the opening session of the Texas Dental convention. It was the 46th annual meeting of the society and opened with an attendance of around 400 members.

An address by the president, Dr. F. F. Brown of Wichita Falls, its discussion and approval; the addresses of welcome on behalf of the Wichita County Dental society and the city of Wichita Falls; the secretary-treasurer's report and the conferring of the Order of Good Fellowship on Dr. Trim Houston of Corsicana formed the program the opening session.

Registration and organization of the house took place at 8 o'clock. Those applying for membership were registered, their applications considered by the board of censors and badges issued.

Welcomes Extended.

The general meeting opened at 9:30 with President Brown presiding. Dr. A. R. Prothro and Mayor Shepherd extended welcome addresses to the visitors, assuring them of the city's hospitality and efforts to make this a convention long remembered. Dr. K. W. Knapp of Minneapolis and Dr. Walter Newton of Houston were introduced among the visiting instructors.

As supplementary points to an address made by Dr. Brown, it was suggested that the teaching of mouth hygiene in the public schools be emphasized and a ten-day program be offered at the state normal schools in order that the school child may be instructed in his early years as to the proper care of his mouth.

"Uniform plans of health education in mouth hygiene will be issued in a report on May 24 to go to all dentists in the state," Dr. O. W. Talbot of Fort Worth stated in a discussion on the president's address. "It is only just that dental courses be stressed in state university as well as the law and medical courses, which are now in such evidence," he continued.

Dr. J. G. Fife reported that 915 members were now enrolled in the Texas State Dental society, one-third of which it will be necessary to suspend due to the fact that they have failed to pay dues. This will cut down the membership materially, and he urged that each member make note of the payment of his dues.

Dr. Trim Houston was honored by becoming a member of the Order of Good Fellowship, having been engaged in the dental profession 25 years. This order serves to unite brother dentists whose lives have been linked together in faithful cooperation with one profession.

Announcement of the banquet Thursday night at the Kemp hotel was made and an invitation extended to all visiting members of Lions club to the Lion luncheon meeting Wednesday noon. President Brown announced the seventh national annual convention to be held in Philadelphia August 23.

Shepherd Issues Child Health Day Proclamation for May 1

CALLS ON CITY TO OBSERVE IT

Plans Being Completed For Big Parade Here Saturday

A proclamation calling attention to and asking for the observance of May Day Child Health Day on Saturday May 1, was issued Tuesday by Mayor R. E. Shepherd. Elaborate plans for the observance of the day have been made in Wichita Falls under the direction of Miss Beatrice Hall. One of the outstanding features of the day will be the parade at 10 o'clock, when more than twenty-five decorated floats will pass in review. Judges will be selected and three prizes for those entered by the schools will be awarded. These floats are intended to convey messages relative to health matters, seeking in this way to promote better health among the children of the city.

The proclamation issued by Mayor Shepherd follows:

Whereas, Wichita Falls has ever been interested in her children, realizing that they are her greatest assets, and that the appeal of childhood is everywhere strong and universal, and,

Whereas, it is necessary to have an informed and intelligent public opinion on the topic of child Health and since May Day is associated in our minds with children and the great out of doors, and realizing that the use of games for both children and adults has a deep significance for the individual and the community through the conservation of physical, mental, and moral vitality, knowing that playing games and other forms is nature's way of developing and training power;

Now Therefore, I, R. E. Shepherd, mayor of Wichita Falls, do hereby designate Saturday, May one as May Day Child Health Day in Wichita Falls, and do call upon the people to give thought and energy to the furtherance of the health and well being of her children to the end that greater efforts may be made to safeguard the lives of our boys and girls. Further, that full support be given the public health officers and recommendations of other capable medical and sanitary advisors in matters of nutrition and housing, nursing and ventilation, clothing, recreation and other elements which make the total wellbeing of the individual.

Given under my hand and seal of Wichita Falls, this twenty-seventh day of April, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred twenty-six.

(Signed) R.E.SHEPHERD,
Mayor of Wichita Falls.

Ft. Worth Dentist Talks to Students

Dr. M. J. Bisco of Fort Worth, visitor to the Texas state dental convention, spoke to seven hundred students at Junior College Tuesday morning when his talk was on "How to Clean the Teeth." For 35 minutes he held the attention of the students in his interesting lecture.

He will speak to the students of Junior high school Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock on a similar subject, and will probably speak at other schools before returning to Fort Worth.

Dr. F. E. Thoruburgh, chairman of the entertainment committee, introduced Dr. Bisco at the college.

Carter Motion Is Denied By Judge

W. E. Carter, convicted in the 30th district court last week of robbery with firearms and under sentence of 18 years in connection with the offense, was denied a new trial by Judge H. R. Wilson Tuesday when his counsel failed to present testimony in support of allegations contained in a motion presented previously. It was the contention of the defense that lottery methods had been resorted to by the jury in the finding of their verdict and subsequent assessing of a penalty. This was denied, however, by eleven of the twelve jurors who appeared in the court room in support of their verdict.

MRS. PEARLMAN IMPRVOES

Mrs. H. H. Pearlman of Burkburnett, who was injured in an automobile accident Sunday afternoon, is improving rapidly, it was reported from the Hargrave-Walker hospital and clinic Tuesday. The accident occurred on the Burkburnett-Wichita Falls highway when the car in which she was driving with her husband overturned a short distance from the city. Mr. Pearlman is also in the hospital.

Speaker Asserts Billboards Best Mediums For Ads

A discussion that amounted very nearly to a heated debate over the use of outdoor advertising and that of newspaper space, took place at the Advertising club Tuesday noon at the Kemp hotel. M. H. Pruett, manager of the United States Advertising Corporation of Texas talked on the advantages of outdoor advertising and its co-operation with newspapers.

"This media creates a presage of the name of the store or product and gives the buyer a mental impression of 'where to buy,'" he stated. It was pointed out that if the amount of newspaper space was decreased 20 per cent and given over to outdoor advertising, that a complete outdoor campaign with additional co-operation to the advertiser would result. The painted sign holds the product before the mind to much more advantage than a newspaper ad is able to do, he declared.

The informal discussion following this address brought out the fact that a newspaper ad influenced a specific piece of merchandise and brought about the direct sale of an article. Magazines are coming more and more to the newspapers for the purpose of carrying their advertising, since it is taken to localities covered by the newspaper circulation.

G. H. Wilson, president, announced the election of new officers to be held at the meeting Tuesday and expressed his appreciation of the faithful co-operation of the club members during the past year.

GRAND JURY IS CALLED AGAIN

Inquisitorial Body to Meet Friday on Order From Wilson

An order for a reconvening of the grand jury of the thirtieth district court Friday morning at 9 o'clock was issued Tuesday by Judge H. R. Wilson upon representation of the district attorney's office that there was sufficient business pending the attention of the body to justify the call. The grand jury adjourned two weeks ago, after returning 81 indictments and, as they thought, their final report. Since that time, however, it is stated by members of the district attorney's department, a number of other matters requiring attention have appeared.

No indication as to just what this consists of was given Tuesday by the district attorney, although he stated the work would probably occupy not more than a day.

O. C. McDannald of Electra is foreman of the body.

Luncheon Delayed

The weekly luncheon of the Optimist Club will be held Thursday instead of Wednesday, the usual day, it was announced by President Solon R. Featherstone Tuesday, in order that a program broadcasted by the Houston Optimist Club may be heard. The program will start a campaign to elect A. B. Walker as president of Optimist International. Mr. Walker is now district governor of the seventeenth district, which includes Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas. The international election will be held at the convention in Lexington, Kentucky, June 16, 17, 18 and 19.

McConnell Brothers will install a radio in the main dining room of the Kemp hotel so that the members of the local club may listen in.

Denver Is Sued

Damages in the sum of $40,000 are asked of the Fort Worth and Denver railway in two suits filed in the 89th district court Tuesday, both suits growing out of a nitroglycerine blast on the railroad's right of way three miles east of Electra on February 17 in which two men were killed and a third seriously injured. A can hidden on the right of way was kicked by one of the men of a section gang walking the track, the jar thus received causing the nitro it contained to explode.

Plaintiffs in the two suits are Benita Orosca and Esperanza Orosca, wife and two-year-old daughter of Lewis Orosca, asking for $25,000 and Marie Ochoa, wife of Pablo Ochoa, asking for $15,000. Both Lewis Orosca and Pablo Ochoa were killed in the explosion.

BEAUTY HOME STILL ATTRACTS

Large Crowd Out Again Tuesday at Bullington St. Residence

A large crowd visited the model home Tuesday afternoon when the music and art chairman of the Woman's Forum, Mrs. Alva Willgus and W. P. Killingsworth, were in charge of an interesting and entertaining program. A blue and gold color scheme was carried out in the decorations of lovely flowers donated by the Wichita Floral company, and blue candles sticks and holders, a music and art program was given.

Alva Willgus gave the opening number, a vocal solo, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Willgus, and little Miss Josephine Bridwell representing the child in the home, gave two readings.

Mrs. Killingsworth gave a lecture on art, and the proper hanging of pictures, and also exhibited some unusually splendid paintings. The program was concluded with a group of songs by Mr. Willgus.

Today the model home will be opened for inspection between the hours of 2:30 to 5 o'clock. with Mesdames G. L. Shapard, S. E. Tschabold, C. S. Lorence, E. U. McArthur and Walter Buchanan, hostesses, according to an announcement made by the local "Better Homes" chairman, Mrs. R. B. Parker.

Confidence Man Finds Victim Is Not So Credulous

Attempted perpetration of a modest enough "confidence" game was foiled by city police Tuesday when a youth intended as a victim turned out to be not nearly so credulous as the artist anticipated and himself assisted in an arrest.

The "subject" chosen by the "artist" was a youth just out of Altus, Okla., sitting in the railroad station reading a magazine devoted to current events and kindred topics. A job was offered him by a stranger who purported to be the agent of a local wholesale grocer company seeking truck drivers.

"But you must put up a $10 deposit to protect us in case you do away with any of the accessories to your truck," the boy was told, and when it developed that he did not have $10 with him he was left with instructions to report later at a down town rooming house.

Instead, however, of going out to borrow $10 and secure the job the youth told his story to Chief of Police George Hodgins, and the appointment at the rooming house was filled by an officer. The man was arrested and was in the city jail last night.

It adjoins one of the best fishing areas in the lake and is only a few miles from Seymour.
