Portales Times 30 Years Ago

Wednesday's meeting of the ladies' club had New Mexico for a lesson, conducted by Mrs. Neer at the residence of Mrs. Stone.

The leading social event last week was a dance at Elida given by Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Orr. There were about 70 couples present and the dance broke up about 9 o'clock in the morning. A number came 60 miles (horse and buggy days).

The Ladies Aid Society of the Presbyterian church are arranging an entertainment "Tennison's Princess," under the direction of Miss Tyson.

There will be a business meeting of the Woman's club at the residence of Mrs. B. F. Pearman on Wednesday. Miss Carrie Thomas, secretary.

W. E. Martin, clerk of the district court of the fifth judicial district composed of the counties of Roosevelt, Socorro, Chaves, Eddy and Lincoln was in Portales this week.

Miss Green, Warren Footshee's & Company's milliner has returned from St. Louis markets, where she purchased a lot of the newest creations in hats.

There was a party at the Gem Farm, one night last week given by the Adobe Sunday school, honoring Miss Snodgrass' sixteenth birthday.

Chas. C. Hall is over here from Fort Sumner, where he and his brother have a nice saloon business.

The storm party at Stewarts was all the name implies. The young people had a good time.

Dr. S. F. Culberson left for Dallas where his lawyer, Peter Thomas expects Dr. Culberson to inherit a fortune, from some old Georgia land grants.

Ben Smith and Claud Anderson have returned from taking a business course in a Kansas college.

M. J. Faggard is reported as having bought Ben Hardin's ranch for $600.00.

Junior Hi Program Was Great Success

The Junior high program Friday night was a success from beginning to end. The first number "The Old Spinning Wheel" and "Put Another Log on the Fire," was given by a chorus of girls, with the spotlight.

Jane Mauk was good in humorous reading.

The Tumblers were perhaps the best ever given, even to the clowns. Mary Jane Taylor made a lovely Indian maiden, in song.

Maxine Rice was quite clever in a comic reading, as was Oran Drake in a negro song.

Billy Bob Case played a new musical instrument, and when a note refused to play, he ate part of it, the other part then performed perfectly.

The play, "You is Nex" was given by Oran Drake, Hascal Hollis, Dervy Hinkle, Jack Foreman, Guy Barker, Gene Wise, Rufus Creek and James Grunig was really good.

J. G. Cox and Mrs. Cox, Mr. and Mrs. Keith Payne, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Bonner, Mr. and Mrs. K. J. Brough, Miss Sybil Lyons, and Otto Kapitina, Mr. and Mrs. Newt Watson, Mr. and Mrs. Marion Stinnett, Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Hensley were among those seen at the ball game at Clovis Saturday evening.

A. B. Davis, manager of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce, presented the proposed brief and application to the board, Dean A. H. Leidigh, Prof. W. L. Stangel, and Dr. J. O. Ellsworth, all of Texas Technological College, together with Don Jones, superintendent of the state agricultural experiment station at Lubbock, were instrumental in drawing the

FARMERS CAN OBTAIN AID THROUGH ECLF

MUST SHOW COOPERATION WITH PRODUCTION CON-TROL PROGRAM

MAXIMUM $250

INTEREST RATE WILL BE PLACED AT FIVE AND ONE-
HALF PER CENT

Regulations for making emergency crop loans from the $40,000,000 fund recently made available by Congress indicate that a farmer may obtain such a loan if he cannot qualify for credit elsewhere, if he has a justified need for credit and if he is co-operating with the production control program of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, according to a statement made today by S. M. Garwood, Production Credit Commissioner of the Farm Credit Administration.

The maximum amount which will be made available to any one farmer this year is $250 and the minimum is $25, according to the regulations. The interest rate will be five and one-half per cent per annum. Provisions for taking crop loans have been worked out under Mr. Garwood's direction and detailed regulations will be placed in the hands of local emergency crop loan committees within the near future. The time and place where these committees will receive applications will be made known locally within a short time.

Before any farmer may secure a loan, however, he must first obtain a statement from the County Production Council where one exists, that he does not intend to increase his acreage or production in opposition to the Agricultural Adjustment Administration program. Where a county production council has not been set up, the applicant will have to give satisfactory evidence that he is co-operating with the production control program of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, before his application for a loan will be considered.

Applications for loans from $25 to $150 may be made directly to the emergency crop loan offices provided the applicants do not have sufficient security to obtain loans elsewhere.

A farmer applying for a loan of $150 or more must first make application for a loan to the Production Credit Association serving his county. Rejection of his application by the Production Credit Association will be considered sufficient evidence that other credit is not available and the farmer may then make application to the emergency crop loan office.

The emergency crop loans are entirely separate from, and are not to be confused with production credit association loans. The Emergency Crop Loan Fund is an emergency relief measure for

National Business and Professional Womens' Week

Next week, March 11 to 17, will be observed over the nation as Business and Professional Women's Week.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, first Lady of the land, will formally open the week on the evening of March 12. She will set in motion the various activities of the annual observance by a nation-wide broadcast, among the interesting features is the outcome of their campaign to put 10,000 of their sisters back to work.

Immediate reemployment of 10,000 white collar women has been the goal set for themselves by 1,300 clubs of the Federation. Each club has made an effort to secure a minimum of eight jobs for white collar women—one for each day of the week and two on Sunday. Through the press, magazines and the radio, business women will endeavor to show how women are participating in the business comeback of the United States; they will also urge long term planning on a sound economic basis, for their individual communities.

Two years ago the Federation began working out a ten-year plan, calling for study of economic problems, and their social implications. In line with this idea the Federation is interested in education; housing, recreation and the use of leisure; constructive economy in local government; relief and unemployment, and these subjects will be discussed by well known speakers over the radio, at different times during the week.

Proving themselves the undisputed champions of District No. 6, the Floyd High School Bronchos defeated the Portales High School Rams in the final game at the district tournament which was held at Clovis Saturday night, by a score of 33-35.

It was a hard battle. Neither team ever having enough lead to feel safe until the final whistle was sounded. The score was tied at the half, 18-18 and at the last quarter was 25-25. In the last few minutes the Bronchos' nosed out a three-point lead which they held, winning the undisputed championship of district No. 6.

Dale Widener and Pecos Finley of Floyd and Paul Neville of Portales tied for high point honors in the final game, each making 15 points.

First, second and third places were won by Roosevelt county teams. Rogers winning the consolation game from center by a score of 63 to 21. Rogers had one of the outstanding teams in the district, placing two men on the all-district team.

Floyd's march to victory started with the first game of the tournament, defeating Ranchvale by a score of 41-28. They played their second game with Rogers, defeating them 41-29 in one of the hardest fought contests of the meet. In the final game they defeated the

COUNTY HALF COVERED IN CATTLE TEST

Work of testing the cattle of Roosevelt county for tuberculosis has been in progress for about four months and at the present the county is about half covered. At present three Bureau of Animal Industry veterinarians are working in several parts of the county.

This work is being carried on in cooperation with the extension service, the latter organizing the work and preparing the schedules, and the veterinarians doing the work. It is the plan to test all dairy cattle and 10 per cent of the range cattle.

When this work is completed Roosevelt county will be declared a modified free area and cattle can move from this county to any part of the United States without any restriction as to tuberculosis tests.

Hot Beds and Cold Frames Dot Area

Valley plantmen have begun work in earnest on their cold frames and hot beds to be ready for the spring rush for plants.

There are many such beds scattered over the Valley, from which sweet potato plants, tomato plants, onions and other plants will be supplied.

Setting out of the onion fields have already begun and it is predicted that there will be a good acreage planted this season.

Mr. and Mrs. Woodrow were down from Hereford to spend the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Willis Slaten. They drove back to Hereford Monday where Mrs. Slaten is a senior in high school.

STATE IS IN PROSPECT MINING BOOM

MANY PROSPECTORS TAKING TO HILLS AS PRICE OF GOLD INCREASES

HOPES HIGH

SAMPLES OF ORE HAVE AS-
SAYED GOOD SHOWING OF OTHER METALS

With the advance in the price of gold and other metals, indication point to the fact that New Mexico will experience a mining boom within the next few months, as great as in the heyday of mining. Many are staking claims and plan to begin "digging" soon as the weather will permit.

Saturday a group of local "miners" were creating quite an exciting time. Bill Kenyon, Jule Stone and Bill Bartlett and many others were planning taking off to the hills at once.

Samples of ore have assayed a good showing of gold and other metals. Many of these prospectors will go to the White Mountains, where at one time mining was an important industry.

A few rich strikes will start a hillward rush almost equal to the Klondike days in the nineties. Gold has an allure for the average man, and while few have profited by rich strikes, many have tried their luck.

New Mexico mountains are rich in minerals, and in the old days were worked with rather crude machinery. With improved methods, abandoned dumps have returned a good profit.

Last summer, hundreds of those without jobs earned from $1.00 to $5.00 per day washing gold, and with the advance in price many more will join the throng of gold seekers this summer.

LOCAL DRUG- GIST SPEAKS TO SENIORS

Elbert Muncey, pharmacist, of the New Mexico drug store, addressed the senior class of the Portales high school on the subject of pharmacy as a profession Tuesday afternoon.

Mr. Muncey described the requirements of the leading schools of pharmacy. "The first requirement," he stated, "is that the person entering the school have a high school education or the equivalent. The next requirement is to have the necessary fund for tuition."

Mr. Muncey gave information concerning the subjects studied in the pharmaceutical school.

He then described the necessary steps to pass the state board of examination of the various states. Certificates from these boards are necessary before the candidate is permitted to work.

The class displayed much interest in Mr. Muncey's talk, and some are planning this as their vocation.

Heavy Sales of Farm Implements

Local dealers report heavy sales of farming implements and harness since the rain of last week.

Stocks of implements are about exhausted and new factory shipments are being delayed. Local stocks of harness were exhausted last Saturday and hurry up shipments were ordered.

For the last three years there has been very little sale of farming machinery, and much of the machinery in former use is now worn out. The rains has stimulated farming and every farmer is doing his best to get his land in shape for spring planting.

George Roarie of Union Valley was transacting business in Portales Tuesday. George says that they had a splendid rain in his part of the county.

CONTROL ADJUSTMENTS

Word has been received from the Agricultural Adjustment Administration that over 14,000,000 acres have been offered for reduction in $75,970 cotton adjustment contracts which have been examined up to February 21. Indication are that the total reduction in 1934 will be more than 15,000,000 acres.

This indicates that the cotton acreage program has gone over and that the objective of the government has been obtained.

Thieves Use Fire To Cover Theft of Oil Company Safe

CLOVIS, New Mexico, March 7. While police and firemen were busy answering a fire alarm which took them to the opposite side of the city last night, burglars broke into the Farmers Oil company offices and fled with a safe which they blasted open 10 miles southeast of here to obtain $200 in cash.

The burglars broke into the office and loaded the safe on some form of vehicle and carted it to a field southeast of the city where the door was blown off by an explosive.

Police believe the fire which took police and firemen to the other side of the city was incendiary, set to screen the robbery. A vacant two-room building was destroyed by the blaze.

No clues have been found so far officers said.

Kornegay Reports Many Shipments

E. M. Kornegay, cattle inspector, reports many shipments of cattle from his district in February.

These shipments consisted of 3,184 head of cattle, 74 head of horses and 672 hides.

Cattle buyers have recently been combing the country for good white faced steers and heifers, which have been bringing around 5 cents for steers and 4 cents for heifers.

Home Makers Clubs of Roosevelt County Have Arranged for Quality Cream Campaign for Year 1934

The Home Makers Clubs of Roosevelt county, in cooperation with the Extension Service, the State Dairy Commissioner and the Plains Cooperative Creamery have arranged for a quality cream campaign in the county for the year 1934.

This will be in the form of a contest by communities of the county and the following premiums will be awarded at the close of the year to the Home Makers Clubs of the communities producing the best quality cream:

First Premium $25.00
Second Premium $15.00
Third Premium $10.00

WILL RESUME OIL TESTS IN THIS AREA SOON

SCHOONMAKER INTERESTS OF
FORT WORTH WILL START
ACTIVITIES IN CURRY

Recent developments indicate that things are looking mighty favorable for early resumption of two deep tests in East Central New Mexico, and the starting of operations on a new deep test in that region.

The two old wells on which drilling is to be resumed in the early future, according to advices received from reliable and disinterested sources, are the McAdoo, located in Southeastern DeBaca county, and the Matador, located in Northwestern DeBaca county. The new wildcat which will start drilling soon is the C. H. Schoonmaker No. 1, located in Southwestern Curry county, South of Melrose.

The McAdoo, carried in the drilling report as the Landowners Oil company, No. 1 State, Section 16-18-27E, is being refinanced by interests that are fully capable of completing this well, and intend to carry it to the granite, according to latest report. The hole is bottomed at 5800 feet in the Magdalena Limes of the Pennsylvanian Age, and there is also about 1,000 feet of the Mississippian Age rocks underlying the Pennsylvanian series in that third of the Sunshine State. This well still stands a good chance of getting a sensational high gravity gusher discovery in either the Pennsylvanian or the Mississippian limes, according to high geological authority.

There is good ground for the assumption that new capital and new blood from the Pacific Coast will take over and finish the Matador test, because several parties of experienced production men and geologists and officials representing a leading independent production concern, have recently made exhaustive investigations of the vast Salado Dome, on which the Matador is located, and one party was so interested and in such a rush that the trip from the West Coast to DeBaca county was made in a company airplane. It is also known that one of the highest geological authorities on East Central New Mexico was called into consultation in regard to the Matador, and that he made a favorable report, recommending that the hole be carried to the granite from present total depth of 4062 feet. This test is located in Section 6-4N-20E.

The assumption that the Schoonmaker interests of Fort Worth, Texas, are getting ready to start drilling on their location South of Melrose, in Curry county, is based on the fact that representatives in Clovis are shopping for casing and indicated that they are "ready to go."—New Mexico Oil News.

THE RED PERIL

The greatest danger facing the United States today is the Red Peril.

Communist agitators from Soviet Russia and other foreign nations have been busy for many months scattering red propaganda and inciting the people of the nation to revolt.

The government has been too lenient with these agitators, and the seriousness of the matter has not been realized.

Here in Roosevelt county, Red representatives have attempted to incite our people to an open revolt against the government.

The time is at hand when the Federal Government will have to take action, and suppress such moves.

The government of the United States was founded on freedom to all, freedom of speech and freedom of the press, but when this freedom is abused and treason is advocated, it is time to call a halt.

President Roosevelt has embarked upon a plan beyond the conception of the masses, and without internal hindrance, will accomplish more than has even been dreamed of.

Every local citizen should back the President, regardless of political faith, that the nation may be saved for the people.

Red agitation should be discouraged wherever found. It is your duty to help keep the United States safe for Democracy.

THE SPECIAL SESSION

All indications are that Governor Hocken-hull will call a special session of the legislature the latter part of this month.

In this call should be a provision for a primary election law.

If ever a state needed a primary election law, that state is New Mexico. And this should not be confined to county and district candidates, but to every officer in the state. Candidates from the Governor's office down should be submitted to the people, and not be selected by a small convention group, over which the public in general have no control.

A primary law should provide that the nominee must receive a majority of the votes cast, and in the event that the one receiving the highest vote, does not receive a majority that the two highest should have a run-off, so that the people may select their candidate.

We are now speaking of a state primary law, which, if passed by the legislature at the special session, will put New Mexico ahead many years.

Under the present system, the primary is optional and is not regulated by law. The candidates must pay all expenses and no one can blame them for not wanting the double primary at double cost.

POLITICS ARE NOW SIMMERING

Politics in New Mexico have begun to simmer, and ere the summer comes and goes they will begin to boil.

Who will be the candidate for governor? For congress? For the United States senate? Those aspiring to every state and national office should come out in the open and give the people a chance to pass on their qualifications.

The usual procedure is to wait until four or five days before the state convention and then on the convention floor, with the waving of banners and bands playing, lead out the sacrificial offering, and a public, wild frenzy, nominates they know not who.

This is the democratic and republican procedure in state conventions, and the public have fallen for it.

It tends towards machine politics, and is a handicap to the progress of the state and nation.

A candidate that is not willing to go before the people and give the voters a chance to pass upon them in the precinct and county conventions, is unworthy of public trust.

The News is expressing its opinion now, before the fall campaign begins.

It is democratic, and its editor has a lifetime record as democrat behind it.

Let the politicians read the handwriting on the wall, and purify politics.

DID HIS OWN ADVERTISING

A story is told of a merchant who would not advertise in a newspaper. When he got in his fall stock, he advertised in a 'phone directory. When his daughter married, he sent out circular letters. When his wife entertained, he had mention made of the matter in a hotel register. When the new baby came he tacked the announcement on a telephone pole. When the old man finally died—ah! there's where the rub came. His death was duly chronicled in the local paper with no mention made of him out of the ordinary obituary announcement except to say that he was "eccentric," which was hardly necessary as every one knew that already.

KNOW THOSE YOU PATRONIZE

Fakers and the unscrupulous continue to ply their trade on the part of the unthinking public, who, it seems, have a short memory.

With the revival of better times, the stock market racketeer and the peddler has become active again. Last week officers were looking for two officials of the Marland and Company, investment brokers of El Paso, Texas. It has not been many weeks ago since this same concern was calling Pecos Valley people over the telephone, trying to high-pressure them into buying a certain issue of stock. How much stock the investing public of this section "stuffed" to this firm may never be known.

The demise of the El Paso firm might well be worth the money if it were the last episode of its kind in which local people might be caught, but human nature will never be changed without a long process of education. People seemed to have forgotten too the banks of the regional clearing house, district three carried a series of ads, offering to buy stocks and bonds for the investing public at a nominal fee, probably much less than the El Paso brokerage charged. "This service is still available to the public so far as we know, but those who have money to 'stuff' apparently have short memories. Maybe this is the reason they have lean pocketbooks as a rule.

Buying stocks and bonds, however, is just one of the hundreds of ways to get "trimmed." People still give money to strange solicitors, whom they never saw before and may never see again. The sales talk of the stranger is smooth, in fact cunningly designed to make the prospect say "yes" before giving the matter a second thought. Usually the article bought is sold at a good round price, much more than the same article would sell for locally.—Artesia, N. M., Advocate.

A CONGRESS OF LAWYERS

A study of the professions of the members of the present congress has been made by F. M. Sadd, and is now in the library of congress. The gist of it follows:

	Senate	House
Business	10	87
Law	68	256
Journalism	3	7
Editing	0	6
Medicine	0	5
Teaching	2	10
Dentistry	1	3
Farming	4	20

In addition, there were three in the senate and 25 in the house whose professions were not learned.

The explanations for the predominance of the legal profession do not need to be gone into. The young law graduate runs for office something as a matter of course, and since the making of laws is the principal business of a congress or a state legislature, these bodies tend to become filled with lawyers.

Yet there are too many of them. There needs to be a greater leaven of unlearned minds, to keep congress and the legislature a little closer to the people.—University City, Missouri, News.

If one had to name any single thing as the typical American characteristic, it would probably be just that habit of looking ahead, or forever going on with the quest. We have often been a proud and boastful people, but we have seldom been satisfied with a present yesterday, live soberly and wholesomely to moment. One era has succeeded another in leaders will grow to appreciate the world's our history, but never have the people as a whole been content to relax.

Intelligence is very much the knack of knowing where to find out what ones does not know.

DOES INSURANCE INSURE
The mooted question is when insurance insures.

The "Boss" has a wind storm policy on his residence.

Saturday's windstorm broke the rope which stretches the radio aerial.

He offered to settle if the lady carrying the insurance would climb the aerial pole and put a new rope through the pulley, even supplying the rope. She refused!

Lee Carter was called in as referee and sided with the lady.

So much for an old bachelor.

Lacy Armstrong was then called in and also sided with the lady.

The only recourse is to call in a lady referee.

Over in El Paso there is a grocery firm that advertises under the title of "Chew Grocery."

The "Boss" has been chewing groceries for more years than he cares to admit.

Wonder what he does with customers that have to "gum" it?

Customers are urged to look through the News advertising columns before making their purchases.

They may have to do considerable hunting this week to find them.

The wife's kin folks came over from Staten Friday and stayed until Sunday.

Yet, people wonder why the "boss" is losing weight.

The neighbor did not bring in any provisions during their stay.

Monday was "Mothers-in-Law" day.

Mothers-in-Law can usually take most any day.

"Moneyless" Mack was in town Monday.

Yet, "Moneyless" charges for his advertising.

The Staten nephews always claim Staten's superiority over Portales, yet they admitted that the Portales tumbler at the Junior high program Friday night were superior to Staten.

Last Friday Mrs. Mauk gave a "hea" dinner, yet Fred Luper, who had just returned from Albuquerque, was a guest. "How do you get that way, Fred?"

'We're Sunk Unless We Think'

By LEONARD A. BARRETT

A salesgirl in one of our large department stores was recently quoted as having said, "This world crisis has waked me up. I never before had thought or read about public affairs. I never even bothered about how I voted, but now I see that we are all sunk unless we all think." This economic crisis has wakened up a lot of people. It is true we are all sunk unless we think. Any number of reasons have been given for the depression. Every economist has his special idea. It is of little avail to discuss how it happened unless the suggestion carries with it the implication of a remedy. The salesgirl hit it right. "We're sunk unless we think." When work was easy to obtain and money was plentiful, we yielded our judgment to the pressure of progress and accepted without question the statement that the golden age had arrived and good times were with us forever. We did not think. We let the other fellow do the thinking for us. We are now suffering the consequences. Many persons have the idea that thinking concerns only the present. There is a prophetic element in it. The wisest men think far into the future. When we are in trouble we expect to find our way out by the same way we got into the mess. We must think our way out and not leave it to blind chance or fate.

Not only in financial but also in moral values, we are sunk unless we think. Many of the crimes would never have been committed if persons had only thought before they acted. Crimes are caused by uncontrolled emotions and evil impulses. In the heat of anger a man wrote a scathing letter. Before mailing it, he took a side through a city park. Returning to his office he threw the letter in the basket. He had taken time to think. Thoughts are the determinative factors in character. A man is what he is in the organic unity of his secret thinking. A ship in a storm is lost without a pilot. The directing energy in life is centered in our minds. "We're sunk unless we think."

SURVEY FARM HOMES NEAR COMPLETION

OBJECT OF SURVEY WAS TO DETERMINE ADEQUACY OF PRESENT HOUSING

The Farm Housing Survey, which was conducted in six counties of New Mexico, is nearing completion. The survey was a Federal Civil Works project and carried on under the Bureau of Home Economics cooperating with the Bureau of Agricultural Engineering, department of agriculture, and the State Extension service.

The object of the survey was: 1. To determine the adequacy of the present farm housing; 2. To measure the potential demand for improved farm home facilities; 3. To develop plans for installation with standard specifications adapted to needs of typical sections and to determine the estimated cost; 4. To investigate possible methods for financing farm home improvements.

The work was in charge of a state committee composed of Veda Strong, state home agent, as chairman; H. M. Milton, Jr., acting dean of engineering, vice chairman; and Miss Nina V. Whisler, state supervisor.

The counties surveyed were selected as representative areas of New Mexico. San Miguel and Mora counties as Spanish-American; Quay and Curry counties as dryland areas; and Chaves and Eddy counties as irrigated section. The set-up in each county included a woman supervisor, an architect or engineer, ten enumerators and two clerks.

Near the close of the survey, as the CWA cut the time for the enumerators in half, not as many schedules were obtained as was anticipated. The number obtained by counties was: Chaves, 770; Curry, 938; Eddy, 1015; Mora, 454; Quay 963; San Miguel, 982. All county tabulations are in and the state committee, with two clerks, is checking and making the state summaries, which will be sent to Washington.

KNOW YOUR VITAMIN "A" FOODS

A LITTLE KNOWLEDGE IS A DANGEROUS THING APPLIES TO HEALTH AND PURSE

The old adage: "A little knowledge is a dangerous thing" applies to both health and pocketbook when food fads are taken into consideration says Veda Strong, of the New Mexico State college. Just as soon as a manufacturer claims that his product contains vitamins—any of all vitamins—his sales increase accordingly. Yet, there are a great many people who do not know that each of the six known vitamins has a different function; that some foods are better sources of various vitamins than others, therefore different kinds of food must be eaten to get them all; that the mere presence of a given vitamin in a food means very little unless it is known definitely how much this food contains; and, most important of all from the standpoint of diet, an abundance of vitamins can be obtained from very common foods.

Some of the foods listed as high in the different vitamins are fruits and vegetables, especially the green and yellow kinds; tomatoes, and citrus fruits; milk and milk products; eggs; whole grains, salmon and other oily fish; and liver. Some of these foods furnish one or more vitamins and some supply others, so with a reasonable variety in the diet and plenty of sunshine, the vitamins are assured. Cod-liver and halibut-liver oils are very good sources of Vitamins A and D.

Why should anyone be willing, therefore, to pay a high price for a package of dried vegetables just because they are alleged to contain vitamins? There are at present on the market, according to the Food and Drug administration of the U. S. department of agriculture, "vegetable tablets" and a "vegetable broth." The labels on these products state frankly what vitamins they contain and what vitamins. However, there is no statement as to the amount of each vitamin in a serving or in a whole package.

Why attempt to take one's vitamins in this form at all, when eating them fresh would be easier, simpler and surer? Why do people go on paying $3.50 for a package of rather unpalatable dried vegetables when for a few cents they could get fresh ones, providing them with all of the nutrients natural to the vegetables, including several of the vitamins and minerals?

FLOYD WINS DISTRICT MEET

PLANS BEING MADE FOR TRIP TO STATE TOURNAMENT AT ALBUQUERQUE.

Winning over Ranchvale in the morning by a score of 41-26, and from Rogers in the semi-finals with a 12-point margin, Floyd went into the finals to win first place over Portales by a close score of 31-34 in the final game of the District Basketball Tournament held at Clovis, March 2-3.

With the score tied at the half and again at the end of the third quarter, the Floyd boys, displaying excellent guarding and accurate marksmanship, came from behind in the last few minutes of play to win over their opponents by three points.

Besides winning first place in the tournament, Floyd was fortunate enough to have three boys named on the all-tournament team and one honorable mention.

Plans are now being made for the trip to the State Tournament which is to be held at Albuquerque, Friday and Saturday, March 9 and 10. Those who will make the trip, include: Mr. Ray J. Lofton, coach; Dale Widener, Pecos Finley, George Widener, Ed Cooper, Alton Miller, John Morgan, Neal Widener and A. P. Lofton.

FRESHMEN TO ENTERTAIN IN ASSEMBLY ON FRIDAY

During the last period of school each Friday that time is devoted to assembly. Through this period, which begins at 2:30 P. M., the freshman class are planning a very delightful program to be given.

Parents and other members of the community are cordially invited to attend this and future programs.

FLOYD MAKING PREPARATIONS TO ENTER FORENSIC

Many of the Floyd school are now very busy in the preparation for the Roosevelt County Forensic meet which is to be held next week.

An elimination contest for the Floyd contestants will be held sometime this week and it is hoped that the people all over the community be present at both these contests to furnish support as well as to enjoy them.

CHURCH

A large attendance was at the church and Sunday school Sunday. Rev. Roper, the Methodist pastor, preached on the "fruits of our lives," a sermon which was appreciated by all those who heard it. Announcements were made concerning the conference which is to be held soon at Melrose. All who can were urged to attend. The community singing will be at Mr. E. H. Haragan's Saturday night. Everyone is invited to come! Bring some singers with you.

Mr. and Mrs. John Denton were up from Kenna Friday. They took Mr. Denton's mother to Clovis for a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Earl Denton.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross Trapp spent Sunday in Lubbock.

$50,000 BLOSSOM

Developed by Fred Howard, southern California horticulturist, the first double Transvaal daisies ever shown were given their "pre-view" at the annual Garden Club Flower show at Glendale, Calif. The stand of the new flowers from which these blossoms were cut is the only one in existence and is valued by its developer at $50,000. It will not be possible to reproduce enough of the new flowers from the parent stand for general use until 1935.

Floyd Is School of Many Trophies

Another trophy as beautiful as any of those already there, has been added to the Floyd trophy case. This trophy, given for first place in the district basketball tournament at Clovis, March 2-3, is the first trophy Floyd has won in two months and adds quite a bit to the appearance of the trophy case. The last trophy, a plaque for first place in the state stock judging contest, was added to the Floyd collection in December, 1933.

Few people realize the number of trophies Floyd has won. Trophies on display in the case include: Roosevelt County Relay, in 1928; Texico-Parwell Livestock Judging Cup; First Place County Track Meet, Class B, 1930; High Team in Dairy Judging, District Contest, 1930; 1921 State Champion Judging team; First Inter-scholastic Basketball Tournament, Clovis; State High School Livestock Judging Contest, 1927; National High School Western Stock Show Champions (Denver) 1932; New Mexico State Basketball Championships (Girls) 1928-29; First Award State Judging Contest, 1933; Winners first place basketball, 1929-30; First, district track, 1933; third, Texico-Parwell basketball tournament, 1933; second, Roosevelt county basketball tournament (girls) 1931; Eastern New Mexico Inter-scholastic girls basketball tournament, 1924; second, girls basketball, 1929-30; district basketball champions, 1934; district champions (girls) 1928; second, Class B tournament, (boys) 1932; triangle track trophy, 1933; and forensic trophy, 1932, 1933.

The triangle track trophy must be won two more times and the forensic cup once more to become the permanent property of the Floyd school.

Bronchos Enter State Basketball Tour. This Week

Floyd's champion Bronchos will enter the state tournament with high hopes of establishing, along with Portales, the supremacy of District Six, over the champions of the other districts. Floyd hopes for a draw which will place Portales in the opposite bracket thus giving both teams an opportunity to a possible meeting at the finals.

The team came out of the Clovis tournament with a few bruises and skinned knees, but are otherwise in fine shape; and their followers expect a credible showing at Albuquerque.

The trophy for first place was presented to the school Monday morning, and a report of games was made by various members of the team and faculty.

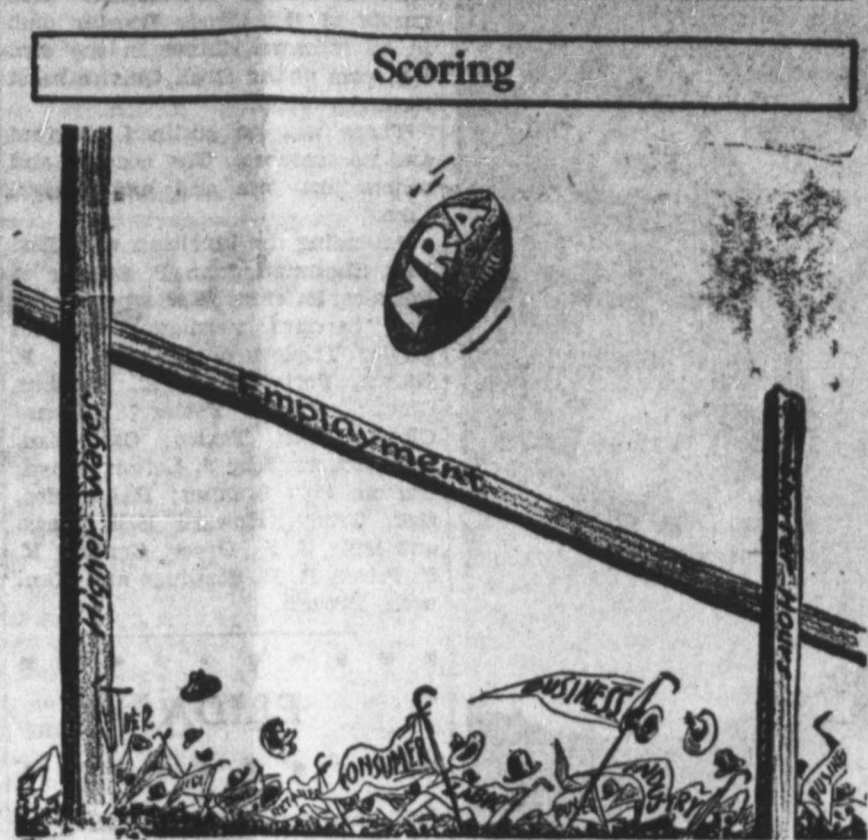

Floyd was proud of the fact that Dale Widener and Pecos Finley were placed on the all-district team as forwards and Ed Cooper at guard. George Widener was named center on the second team.

In complimenting the team for their efforts Coach Lofton called attention to the fact that Alton Miller only allowed one field goal to be made by the men he guarded

RED WINGS CAPTAIN

This is Herbie Lewis, captain of the Detroit Red Wings, who are preparing for another successful season on the ice. This hockey team will be one of the strongest in the country if its present form means anything.

Scoring

In the first three games, Alton's guarding was splendid and such a record is due to be proud of.

Floyd's record for the year thus far is nineteen victories and two defeats. The defeats are from the hands of Rogers and Elida. Their victories came from Portales, Ranchvale, Rogers, Elida, Melrose, McAllister, Quay, Farwell, Hobbs, Artesia, Hagerman, Institute, Holene, and Texico.

were accidental and not selective. This cannot be proved.

If a weaker stock is being raised then the advantages of public health are more than offsetting this result. Young people are living because we are controlling the spread of infections like tuberculosis and typhoid fever and diphtheria. And the first effect of such control is to decrease the number of invalids as well as to decrease the number of deaths.

What the ultimate result of saving all these young lives may be we cannot now tell. But we need not fear. Whatever advantage there was in nature's cruel method of the survival of the fittest can be achieved by human intelligence without the waste and cruelty. Public health and eugenic research must progress together and together they can assure a future race of men filled with a more abundant life than any the world has yet known.

Mrs. Wiley Todd of Elida came in Sunday for a few days visit with Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Shock.

Mrs. T. R. Trapp of Clovis spent Sunday in the Elbert Trapp home in Portales.

PUBLIC HEALTH

Conducted by Dr. J. R. Earp
Director, New Mexico Bureau of Public Health.

EUGENICS

The ultimate result of shielding a man from the effects of folly is to fill the world with fools," said Herbert Spencer. There have been disciples of this philosopher in recent years who have added that "the ultimate result of saving the lives of weakly infants is to fill the world with invalids."

If so there are not yet many signs of invalids. The great saving of infant life has been in the last twenty years. Therefore the invalids should be found among people aged one to twenty years. But at these ages the death rate is falling too. In the experience of a large insurance company the death rate of children one to four years old in 1933 was less than one third of the rate in 1911.

Why do not the weakly survivors die? In the first place it is not at all certain that the survivors are weakly. There are many distinguished professors who believe that the high infant death rate of twenty years ago killed off the strong just as quickly as the weak; in other words that the deaths

Floyd Takes Fastest Game of Tournament

When Floyd defeated the Portales high school team in the swift game of basketball played at Clovis at the District tournament Saturday night, it gave them also the distinction of winning the most exciting game of the entire tournament.

At the end of the first quarter the score was 9 to 8 in favor of Portales. At the end of the half the score was 13-12, and at the end of the third quarter it was still tied by a score of 23-23.

Every player on both teams was on toes every minute of the game. The guards did very little of the scoring. Had they spent very much time at the shooting range, the speedy forwards of the other team would have made it very embarrassing for them.

Paul Neville lead the scoring for Portales and Dale Widener for Floyd. However, Hatch, for Portales, and Finley, for Floyd, gave good accounts of themselves.

The line up for Portales was: Forwards, Hatch and Neville; center, Kirksey; guards, P. Briggs and B. Briggs.

The line up for Floyd was: Forwards, Widener and Finley; center, G. Widener; Guards, Miller and Cooper.

THE ARRAN ISLANDS

Arran Boys in Red Petticoats.

Prepared by National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.—W. J. Service.

WHILE many business men of America and Europe talk of ushering in a new era to end economic ills, the inhabitants of the Arrans, three small islands off Ireland's west coast, go their way, apparently untouched by the world's troubles.

Simplicity, harmony, and a feeling of remoteness are all close to the root of the charm which the Arrans have for the occasional visitor. The islands seem not of this age, for the workaday world lies beyond the horizon of time as well as of that of space.

The beauty of the setting and of the human picture are equally unconscious.

There is a unity in the theatrical panorama of sea and sky, the medieval homeliness of speech and the hearty and tool, the honest weave as well as the madder and indigo dye of textiles, the seraphic countenance of every fourth or fifth woman you meet on the undulating roads.

In the bare sanctuaries of these islands the soul of ancient Ireland now has its ephemeral resting place. Language and habilitations, customs, traditions, flesh and blood, from the days of St. Patrick and before, forced westward through Connaught during seething ages, have concentrated at the Arrans.

Although the largest island of the group is less than nine miles long, the three together have, at a guess, as much stone wall as all New England. Inishman, the middle island, boasts 2,500 miles of walls. Inishkeer is not far behind, while Inishmore may have several times as much. No figures are authentic, but if a state ordinance of 1867 were to tell you there are 10,000 miles of walls upon the three islands, you would admire his conservatism.

Huge Duns on the Hill.
Picking up blocks of limestone and disposing of them in the only way possible must always have been the chief occupation of the inhabitants. The prehistoric people indulged themselves by rearing on the hilltops massive, buttressed, Cyclopean forts, such as Dun Aengus and six others, ringed about with many concentric breastworks and chevaux-de-frise of stone.

These duns are among the most magnificent barbaric monuments that survive in Europe. Fortunately, the later Islanders were under no temptation to pull them down; rather, they were forced to emulate the example of the first builders, and to continue the unbroken masonry on a less heroic scale down the long slopes to the very crests of the benches. Only thus might they hope to uncover a crannied pasture and the patches of soil in which rye, potatoes, cabbage, and willow withes may grow.

From the ruins of the duns, as also from the sea, the Arrans present the pattern of a crazy quilt. Breast-high walls, mostly a single layer of blocks in thickness, show no standard of arrangement or direction. The thousands of irregular inclosures that come under a glance have neither gates nor stiles.

The present population of the Arrans is less than two thousand. Losses through emigration to the United States have been heavy and are still going on as fast as passage money can be sent from this side of the ocean. There are doubtless many more of the Islanders in the vicinity of Boston than remain at home.

Four Main Tribes.
While there are many familiar names among the people of the islands, the bulk of the population appears to be made up of four tribes—the Mullins, the Gills, the Fishertys, and the Connollys.

All of these names except Gills are spelled in more than one way, but are acknowledged to refer to the same stocks. Confusion that might result from the duplication of first names is commonly avoided by the addition of the father's given name. Thus Patrick Flaherty John or James Mullin William become sufficiently distinctive. These are here cited in English form, but Irish is, of course, the universal speech among the islanders, and there are many of all ages who have little or no English.

The Arran people are, on the whole, a fine looking lot, variable in stature and complexion, but showing a strongly marked Norse component.

The clothing worn by the older inhabitants of Inishmore, and by practically the entire population of the less urbane islands of Inishman and Inishkeer, is the time-honored garb of cloudy blue homespun, with ankle-length trousers for the men, and a white-sleeved coat over the blouse. A hat of heavy felt completes the native costume, but many of the younger men have taken to caps or tam-o'-shanters, as well as to the blue-jersey of the fisherman.

The women wear long, red, homespun petticoats, indigo stockings, and red or parti-colored shawls. Taste and utility are combined in the woven woolen girdles, of bright hues, bound several times around the waists of men and boys or worn as a decoration on the skirts of the women.

Except in the sophisticated parts of Inishmore, within a few miles of Killybeg, the dress of small boys includes a red petticoat in lieu of breeches. At Inishman one sees nothing else. Formerly the boys wore these until they were twenty or so, but now one sees none on youngsters of more than fifteen years.

The boys' skirt is, no doubt, a phase of the Gaelic kilt, surviving in shorter and more familiar form in the Scottish Highlands, but at the Arrans it seems to have become necessary to justify it by a spurious explanation. Probably as a result of innumerable inquiries by visitors, the following story is now passed out as a matter of course:

The fairies or the commonplace devil have the power to lure small boys out of the everyday world, but their influence over little girls is much less. Therefore the boys are rigged out like girls and the evil ones are likely to be deceived, although there is no absolute assurance of safety.

What the Houses Are Like.

The dwellings on all three Arrans are of the usual Irish peasant type, built of cemented stone, whitewashed within and without, and roofed with thatch, flagstones, or slate shingles. Nine out of ten are thatched, and in this land of ocean gusts the straw is laced down with a network of cordage, the vertical strands of which are knotted to a line of pegs under the eaves. The pegs themselves are of limestone, forming units of the wall; for wood, even in small pieces, is at a premium.

The houses may have two, three, or even more rooms. At any rate, there will be the kitchen (the living room of the family) and a bedroom opening from it.

Above half of the kitchen is the inevitable turf loft, where sufficient peat is stored so that dry fuel is always at hand. The apertures of the kitchen include a pot-oven among the fireplace gear, and an open-cupboard in which are ranged the treasured Canton plates, the trenchers, luster jugs, and other ware passed along from one generation to the next.

The cupboard, like the beds, is likely to be painted in a pattern of bright colors.

Bankers Slay Bandit and Hold His Companion

PRESIDENT AND CASHIER AT ALTO, TEXAS, SHOOT FROM BANK'S VAULT

ALTO, Texas, March 7.—An attempt to rob the Continental State bank here today failed when one of two bandits was shot and killed and another captured.

The dead man, police said, was known as "McClure." He was believed to have come here from New York. His partner was identified as Mervin French, 30, of Cherokee County, Texas.

Gus Rousaville, president of the bank, and James A. Shattuck, cashier, slipped into the vault when they saw two suspicious men step from an automobile. They armed themselves and lay in wait for the men.

When the bandits ordered two customers in the bank to raise their arms Rousaville and Shattuck opened fire with rifles.

One of the bandits was killed instantly, and the other captured when he attempted to enter his automobile.

"I don't know whether I killed that fellow or whether Shattuck did," Rousaville said. "We were ready for any bandits who might come."

"When we saw the men leave their automobile we decided they might be bandits and stepped into the vault and got our rifles. When there was no question about their intention we opened fire."

Bank Assets Show Large Gain Since Last Year's Holiday

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 6.—National bank assets reached $21,747,483,000 at the close of 1933—a new high since last March's bank holiday.

The figures were made public Sunday by J. F. T. O'Connor, comptroller of the currency, in a summary of statistics on the December 30 national bank call.

The year-end assets were held by $159 licensed national banks. They represented an increase of $648,834,989 over assets held by $657 licensed banks on October 25, and a $886,992,000 boost over assets reported by 4,902 banks last June 30.

Don't Worry; You Aren't Likely to Be Hit By Meteor

DENVER, March 6.—You may become a millionaire or live to be 100 or make a hole-in-one. But—

Your chances of being struck by a meteorite are so remote as to make all other "long shots" safe bets in comparison, says H. H. Nininger, meteorologist of the Colorado Museum of Natural History.

In his recently published book "Our Stone Pelted Planet," Nininger said that history reveals that only two persons ever have been injured by fragments falling from the skies. The mishaps both happened in India, one at Hhow and the other at Nedogolla and both the victims were men.

Mr. and Mrs. Luther Thomas, Mrs. J. H. Lee, and Mrs. Thelma Mersfelder left Wednesday morning for Fort Worth, to attend the Fat Stock Show. They will go by Lewlers, Texas, where Mrs. L. W. Thomas will join them for the trip. Mrs. Mersfelder and Mrs. Luther Thomas will also go to Dallas where they will buy goods for the Pearce Pharmacy.

Weird Sea Beast Is Washed Ashore

CHEERBOURG, Franch, March 6.—A strange, hairy sea beast with a horse's neck drew a gaping crowd of excited Norman coastal folk to the Querquerville rock near here today.

The mysterious marine animal was washed ashore there and the crowd gathered early this morning to await its identification.

The monster was identified by Professor Corbier, eminent scholar of natural history, as a rare form of Yperodon—in plain language a bottlenosed whale.

BASKETBALL TEAM OVATION

The Portales high school gave its 1934 basketball team and the coach, C. F. Brown, a royal expression of appreciation recently.

The second place district trophy which it won last week was placed on the stage, behind which the high school band gave several musical selections on the program.

Coach C. F. Brown acted as the master of ceremonies.

Pete Briggs, guard, made the first talk on the program. Briggs gave it as his opinion the team would do its best in the state tournament at Albuquerque.

Mr. Bert Rawlins, who has been with the basketball and football team on most of their trips made a talk on the sportsmanship of the team. Collins Hilliard made a short talk on the backing and support the student body has given the team.

G. W. Carr made a short talk on the confidence the people had in the locals and their efforts to win the state trophy at Albuquerque.

Warren Wright, the yell leader, led the student body in several yells.

Coach Brown expressed an appreciation for the cooperation the team had given and the support of the student body. He made no prediction about the outcome of the team in the state tournament, but expressed an opinion that the locals would give a good account of itself.

The team leaves today for Albuquerque.

ANOTHER CUT IN CIVIL WORKS

Orders were received this week to cut out another 14 per cent of the Civil Works Administration and Drought Relief workers, beginning Friday morning.

The committee worked until late Wednesday night, making this cut. All who have not been cut off the work on the Lovington highway are instructed to report at the gravel pit early Friday morning.

These workers will be divided into two shifts instead of three shifts as here before, one shift working five hours in the forenoon, 30 hours this coming work week, and the other shift five hours in the afternoon.

All that are not used at the gravel pit will have to go to Milensand with their own camp equipment, as that is where the full crew will be used in the next day or so.

The workers will work on the 30-hour shift two weeks in the month, unless otherwise ordered.

EDNA COOK MAY GO TO WARM SPRINGS, GEORGIA

Little Miss Edna May Cook may get to go to Warm Springs, Ga., Sanatorium for crippled children, because of a little friend's thoughtfulness.

Little Miss Mary Sue Colligan who is a warm friend of Edna's wrote the President a personal letter about Edna's condition, and all about the Micky Mouse Sewing club, and last week she received a letter stating that soon as arrangements could be made, Edna's case would receive due consideration.

With the increased equipment which the money from the President's Ball will provide a number of extra patients can be cared for.

Mrs. Frank Galloway was in the office Monday. Mrs. Galloway says the W. C. T. U. movement is growing all the time. The local chapter are pushing a Free Library especially for the youth. They are now in need of a room to put books. They have 75 good ones at their disposal soon as a convenient room can be found.

Bandits Kill Cop and Rob Bank

SIoux FALLS, S. D., March 7.

Six daring daylight bandits, headed by a man thought by some to be John Dillinger, held up the Security National Bank and Trust company, today wounded a patrolman, seized five girl bank employees as hostages and fled.

Armed with machine guns, the bandits, fleeing southward, drove off pursuers with a volley over the heads of the girl hostages.

SIoux FALLS, S. D., March 7.—Robbers, armed with machine guns, held up the Security National bank in the downtown district today, wounded a motorcycle policeman, and then fled southward with an undetermined amount of loot and carrying several bank employees as hostages.

Firing short bursts from their guns in the air, several of the bandits, believed to number six, stood guard outside the bank at Ninth and Main streets while others rounded up employees and customers inside the bank.

Hale Keith, motorcycle officer, was shot down as he approached the bank. He was taken to a hospital.

Several officers who drove up to the bank while the holdup was in progress were halted by bursts of machine-gun fire and disarmed.

Keith was shot down from inside the bank's offices, one of the robbers firing through the window as the officer stood on the sidewalk outside.

Pursued to a point about two miles south of the city, the bandits halted their car and forced girl employees from the bank whom they had carried away with them to stand about a shield while they drove back the three police machines with machine gun fire.

The pursuing cars, one of which contained Sheriff Melvin Sells and deputies, also were disabled by punctured tires caused by roofing nails which the robbers left strewn over the highway.

About four miles south of the city the bandits abandoned their car, held up Alfred Muech on the highway, seized his sedan, and continued their flight.

Farmers May—

this year only, to make available funds to those who cannot qualify for credit through the regular channels of a production credit association.

In announcing the regulations Mr. Garwood said he could not emphasize too strongly that the emergency crop loans are to provide a means of temporary relief for this year only, and that this year's loans probably will be the last of their kind.

Farmers who have a source of income other than farming are not eligible for emergency crop loans. The fund will be used to make loans not exceeding the cash cost of growing crops during the year 1934, for summer fallowing, and for winter wheat to be planted in 1934 and harvested in 1935. An amount from the fund, not to exceed $1,000,000, may be used to make loans to purchase feed for livestock in areas designated by the Governor of the Farm Credit Administration as drought and storm-stricken. The fund may not be used to make loans to replace workstock.

Loans from the fund may not be used for the payment of existing debts, rent, taxes or past-due accounts. The Emergency Crop Loan Fund Act is an emergency relief measure and not a refinancing measure. Loans are to be made only to farmers who need relief to help carry on the basic farming operations necessary in making a living. The money was appropriated for the specific purpose of producing, planting, fallowing and cultivating crops, and for feed for farm livestock in drought and the storm-stricken areas. The act imposes a very severe penalty for using loans from the fund for any other purpose.

Although the maximum amount of an emergency crop loan to any one farmer is $250, as authorized by the regulations, no farmer will be loaned any more than the cash cost of producing the crops. The regulations restrict the amount that may be loaned to the tenants of any one landlord in any one county to $500 and also restrict the amount that may be loaned per acre, depending on the kind of crop being grown.

All funds will be advanced to the borrower at the time the loan is made and not on a budget basis. The borrower must make the amount advanced run him through the entire season, for if the money is used up before the crop is finished, or if the money is spent for any other purpose, additional advances will not be made.

Loans may be made to a borrower before his crops are planted provided a first lien may be taken on the crops growing or to be grown as security for the loan. In some states, according to the law, a first lien may be taken on crops to be grown during the season even though the crops have not been planted. In other states this is not permitted. There it will be necessary for the borrower to agree to give a first lien on the crops to be grown.

All loans from the fund are to be secured by a first lien on all crops growing or to be planted or grown or harvested during the year 1934; in the case of summer fallowing or the production of winter wheat a farmer must give a first lien, or an agreement to give a first lien, on such crops to be harvested in 1935.

In the case of loans to renters or share-croppers, the landlord will have to waive his claim to the rent or share of the crop. The law requires this. On the other hand, all tenants or share-croppers benefitting from any loan to a landlord must waive their claims to the crops if the landlord is to receive a loan from the emergency loan fund.

The recording fee or other legal fees in connection with emergency crop loans may be paid by the Farm Credit Administration up to $1.00. The borrower must pay the throughout the year. The community standing at the top of the list at the first of the year will receive first premium; second, second premium, and third, third premium.

The Home Makers Clubs of the various communities will hold meetings during the year for the purpose of interesting the people in their respective communities in making every effort to improve the quality of the community cream. Work will be done with both producer and station operators. It is hoped that each community will take pride in its standing and will make every effort to correct improper methods which result in poor quality cream. The result of each grading will be made public by newspaper publication and otherwise.

It is believed that if Roosevelt county can produce ninety score butter, or better, that better markets can be secured for the butter which in turn will mean increased prices for the cream. One of the greatest handicaps of the Dairy Industry at the present time is the poor grade of butter that is manufactured resulting in reduced consumption and low prices. Many dairy leaders are of the opinion that the production of high quality butter will do more to solve the dairyman's problems than any other one thing that can be done.

The first meetings in connection with the program will be held throughout the county in the near future.

Texas Homestead

are to be constructed. Poultry houses, storage houses, garage, and wash room are to be on each farm to complete the building requirements.

This is an experiment in relief measures and is to provide for selected families of farm experience who are at the present time on farms and are out of employment.

Each homesteader is to buy the tracts, valued at about $2,500 complete, payable in small installments extending over 20 years. Cash income is to be derived from planting a certain amount of cotton, engaging in hog raising, dairying, or poultry raising.

The administrator of the colony is to determine the major crops to be grown, selecting those which he deems most profitable.

Additional income may be secured from such home industries as weaving, meat curing, livestock feeding, home canning, dairying, manufacturing, and poultry production.

Date for occupancy has been set for May 1, 1934.

Fred Luper says they have planted 80 acres of barley on the Jordan ranch since the rain. Also that 300 acres of wheat, which they thought was dead, looks now as if there would be from one-third to one-half a stand.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed J. Neer have both been ill with flu this week. Mr. Neer was back at the store part of the time, but Mrs. Neer is still ill.

balance, if any.

Emergency crop loans will mature when the crops are harvested and available for sale.

No loan will be made to any individual who has shown lack of good faith in repaying feed and seed loans made to him in previous years. It is evidence of failure to observe good faith if a borrower has outstanding unpaid balances for two or more years which cannot be attributed to crop failures for which the borrower could not reasonably be held responsible.

In each case the farmer is the applicant. If he is not eligible loans may not be made to his wife, unmarried children, members of his family or employees.

Politics Like Measles First A Fever, Then It Breaks Out

Politics are like the measles. First are indications of political fever, and after a short time it breaks out.

Many in Roosevelt county have had the fever and are breaking out nearly every day.

The political announcement column shows those who have passed the first stages of fever and have broken out as full fledged candidates.

So far, science has been unable to perfect a vaccine for this periodical disease, and it usually has to run its course.

After the democratic primaries, there are many who have suffered from the fever and the breaking out, and then recovery begins slowly.

State Meeting of Socialists Selects Ticket

DR. E. E. FORST, HOT SPRINGS NAMED FOR GOVERNOR; PROTEST FASCISM

Nominating their ticket for the state election next November, the eighteen delegates to the socialist party of New Mexico also approved a platform and adopted resolutions protesting the imprisonment of Mooney and Billings, the "fascism in agriculture" of Secretary Henry Wallace, and urging all army and navy appropriations be turned over for relief purposes.

State Candidates

The state candidates are: Governor—Dr. E. E. Forst, of Hot Springs, chiropractor. Lieut. Governor—G. W. Lawrence, Farmington fruit grower. Secretary of State—Melville Swayze, Farmington contractor. State Auditor—A. K. Caylor, Hobbs restaurant man. State Treasurer—N. S. Sweeney, Hot Springs merchant. Attorney General—to be picked later by the state executive committee. Superintendent of Public Instruction—Mrs. C. Frank Powell, former teacher, Clovis. Commissioner of Public Lands—Tom Goodrich, railroad, Lofan.

U. S. Senator, long term—W. C. Sharp, Clovis, grocer.

U. S. Senator, short term—T. N. Hutchinson, Hobbs, shoemaker.

Representative in Congress—Mrs. Charles R. Sigler, Albuquerque.

Selection of the attorney general and corporation commissioners was deferred for a study of qualifications.

State Committee

The new state executive committee is: Chairman, C. Frank Powell, Dr. Forst, T. N. Hutchinson, Tom Goodrich, W. C. Sharp, G. W. Lawrence, Mrs. C. R. Sigler, N. S. Sweeney; Mrs. Ann Webster, Santa Fe; Hale S. Duncan, Clovis; and a Mr. Col of Hatch.

Commencing Saturday night with the state executive committee meeting at the Combs hotel, the convention had a morning session Sunday, when Leon A. Cousens, state organizer, devoted his keynote speech to "A Militant Program for the Socialist Party."

Rap Administration

The state platform declared efforts of the present administration are "only to patch up the capitalist system." The delegates pledged to exert pressure on existing powers by educating and soliciting those suffering "under the present system" into an organization "qualified to establish and carry on the cooperative commonwealth."

The resolution against the secretary of agriculture charged the policy of the agricultural adjustment act as directed by him "shows plainly a tendency toward fascism in agriculture. The position he has taken could not have been made more daring by Hitler himself. We protest against Mr. Wallace's arbitrary policy and demand his immediate resignation."

War Resolution

The war resolution pledged the party members not to support "capitalist war" under any circumstances, because war serves to enrich the armament makers, bankers and big industrialists. Other resolutions urged study of classes for socialist recruits, and brutal injustice inflicted by California on Tom Mooney and Warren K. Billings. The case was described as "a fascist effort" to stifle struggles for better working conditions.

Mrs. T. F. Blackmore of Clovis returned to her home in Clovis Sunday after a visit with her friend, Mrs. Maude Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Turner and family have moved from Snyder, Texas, to their recently improved property in Bethel. Andrew Smith drilled a house-well for him the past week. He also expects to drill an irrigation well soon.

We surely are proud of our Floyd basketball team. They won a lovely trophy from the tournament at Clovis Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Woodburn went to Elida Saturday and spent the day with friends.

Friends of Mr. and Mrs. M. P. Dudley will be glad to know Mrs. Dudley has regained her health.

"A Home and Harvest Saved"

The following essay by a Roosevelt County boy in the "American Forest" publication won third prize in a national contest. That Edd Teston is making good is good news to the people of this county, and especially to the committee which selected him as one of the CCC workers. That Edd has a great future, there is no doubt, and his career will be watched with special interest by his many friends and The Portales Valley News.

By E. EDD TESTON
Camp F-19, Civilian Conservation Corps, Bluff, New Mexico

I'm not a writer. I wish I was. I'd like to picture to you a little "frame shanty on the claim." That's where I hail from. It is located in the extreme southern end of Roosevelt county, New Mexico—among the sandhills.

To the frequent passer-by it may look like a rustler's hide-out or a moonshiner's abode, but to me it's home. I love it.

Once we were considered well-to-do cotton farmers, on the great Plains of Western Texas. The years 1930, 1931, and 1932 came. Our fine, level, black-land farm wasn't quite paid out. Needless to say we lost it. With just enough money left to file on some government land, we came to New Mexico, erected our humble shack, and started to wrestle a living from old Mother earth. But alas! The land was new, and not being over fertile or pulverized, the succeeding crop was a failure. We were at our row's end, broke, stock poor, and not able to get back to Texas. This was one of life's darkest moments for us.

Pate had been unkind. We were ruined, starving, hopeless. It would now be impossible for us to prove up on our half-section of government land.

This was the condition my family and myself were in when the Civilian Conservation Corps was organized. I went to Portales and enlisted, agreeing to send $27.50 home monthly.

I was sent to the conditioning camp at Ft. Bliss and on to work Camp F-19 N, near Santa Fe. I worked hard. I had to, because I heard from home that Mother and little Sister had taken my place in the field, and were making Dad real hands. It gave me courage to forge ahead. I really enjoy helping others that try to help themselves. On the other hand I hated to see Mother work all day in the hot sun, for her health is very poor, and little Sister is so small.

I couldn't keep the mist out of my eyes as I read a letter from home last month saying that Mother and Sister were hoeing cotton barefooted. It seemed that all I could manage to send home went for horse, hog, and cow feed. Poor old Dad was working day and night. The work stock were so poor that they could not pull him on the plows. He had to walk from daylight until dark.

And now a word about myself. As I said before, I worked hard. My conscience would have hurt me if I hadn't. I was amply awarded. When the Act was passed that special duty men were to get a $15 raise I was one of the lucky ten to receive it. That helped a lot. I immediately started sending the raise money home, and slowly but surely I began to help my beloved family out of the rut.

Then my big chance came. I was going to get to go home! Labor Day and a few consecutive days were granted us as a vacation. I purchased a round trip ticket, by truck, for only $2.50.

You can hardly imagine how happy I really was to get to go home. I had been away only four months, but one can hardly realize how depression and hardships can strengthen family ties.

three tokens and a good cigar. He had found a job and had received his first pay check, the officer explained.

Mr. and Mrs. Rich Grissom and son, Junior, of Santa Fe spent the week end in the home of Mrs. Grissom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Robertson.

ATTENTION TOMATO GROWERS

In order that you may plan your crop, we make the following announcement:

It is our intention to buy tomatoes for 1934 in the same manner as last season, paying for them according to grade. The average price paid for all grades last season was $12.05 per ton. If prices of canned tomatoes are higher at selling time, our price for tomatoes will be advanced accordingly.

We believe we will be able to handle all the tomatoes suitable for canning, which will be offered.

While green beans will be a sideline with us, we will be in the market for a considerably portion of the surplus crop at a price that will be profitable to the grower.

We recommend Marglobe and Bonny Best Seed. We do not have seed for sale.

Depression Over, Says Cop; Folks Pay Back Loans

SEATTLE, Wash., March 4.—The depression is over, take it from Charles Hakes, veteran traffic officer at Fourth and Pike in downtown Seattle, who uses the car token in his evaluation of economic trends.

Officer Hakes has a weakness for persons who have to walk far, and keeps a pocketful of tokens to pass out to those needing street car transportation but who do not always have the fare.

Sunday a "customer" to whom he had given tokens a couple of times came along, handed Hakes

Lies—and Lies

By ALICE R. MILLER

"IT SEEMS to me, darling—" Hilda Frothingham looked with troubled, faded blue eyes at Daphne—"that if you really loved Jerry, you'd let things pass."

Daphne Porter ground out the cigarette she had just lighted. "Oh, mother, for heaven's sake don't get sentimental! I love him as much as I did when I married him. Heavens—more. But I just won't stand the way he's behaving."

"He isn't really untrue to me. But he told me he had to stay late at his office the other night, and then I saw him out at the Country club having dinner with that horrible Shirley van Zant."

"Well, Daphne, dear, who were you with?"

"Oh, what difference does that make? I went out with Bob Kelsner. He called up to see if Jerry and I'd both go. Well, Jerry wouldn't be home. Why, mother, I've known Bob ever since I was a child. We were engaged once. So I went. Everybody knows Bob and I are old friends. But that Van Zant woman! She's after everybody's man, always."

"I don't see the difference," Mrs. Frothingham's brow wrinkled in perplexity.

"Oh, sub-dub!" Daphne flung her hat on her mother's bed. "I've brought my things—and Clara's—downstairs with the baby. We're going to stay. I just came up to break the news. May I tell Maggie to put Clara and the baby in one of the guest rooms, and may I have my old room—temporarily? I want to take a nap, and then I'm going to dress and have dinner with the Lesters—I'd accepted, because Jerry was going to be in town anyway tonight. It's that annual dinner his club holds. He's going to stay the night at the Aldwin, where the dinner is."

"Of course," Mrs. Frothingham said, with sudden and unusual briskness. "I'm glad you came."

Daphne brushed her mother's cheek with a quick, unaccustomed kiss and hurried out of the room. And a moment later Hilda Frothingham was saying to Maggie, the housemaid, "Maggie, Miss Daphne and the baby have come for a little visit. Just go see that her room is in order. And put the baby and the nurse in the next room to hers—no, put them in the other guest room across the hall, and see that the room next to Miss Daphne's is made up, too. Mr. Porter may be in later."

Jerry Porter was not especially fond of his mother-in-law.

But he wasn't thinking of Hilda Frothingham at ten o'clock that night as he was trying to focus his attention on the speech one of his distinguished fraternal brothers was making. He was thinking about Daphne. Hot-headed, quick, lovely Daphne. Why wouldn't she let him explain? On the other hand, why should he have to explain? He had run out to the Country club that night to talk to Saunders, who had intended to come to the office and then had changed his mind and asked Jerry to meet him at the Country club. When Jerry got there Saunders was gone. And there was that crazy Van Zant girl—twice divorced and a fascinating beauty. Well, he'd had dinner with her—she'd waylaid him and asked him to. And then Daphne wouldn't let him explain.

He looked up toward the speaker to see one of the committee members, sitting at the speaker's table, pointing him out to a waiter. A moment later the man came quietly up to summon him to the telephone.

"Oh—Jerry!" It was his mother-in-law's drawing voice, excited and almost incoherent. "Jerry—Daphne's out for the evening—I can't get her. And little Daphne. I'm so upset."

Then there was something about croup, strangling, convulsions.

Forty minutes later Jerry dashed from a taxicab at his mother-in-law's Long Island suburban home. Maggie admitted him a moment later.

"How's—" he began, then hesitated, afraid of the fear that suddenly came over him.

"Jerry—" it was Hilda Frothingham's voice, and she led him quickly upstairs to the blue guest room.

"The baby's all right."

Then she was gone, and Daphne was in his arms. "Oh, darling," she was sobbing. "The baby's all right. But when mother telephoned—"

"She said she couldn't get you," exclaimed Jerry.

Daphne clung to him. "She told me she couldn't find you—that the baby was ill. And I rushed home. The baby's all right. She let Clara go out and I suppose the baby choked, and it frightened her. But Jerry, it's you I want. I mean—oh, Jerry, you're more to me even than the baby!"

Jerry kissed the bent, repentant head on his shoulder. "Daphne," he said, "I think perhaps Hilda Frothingham is a pretty swell girl. I think she just sent for me to bring us together."

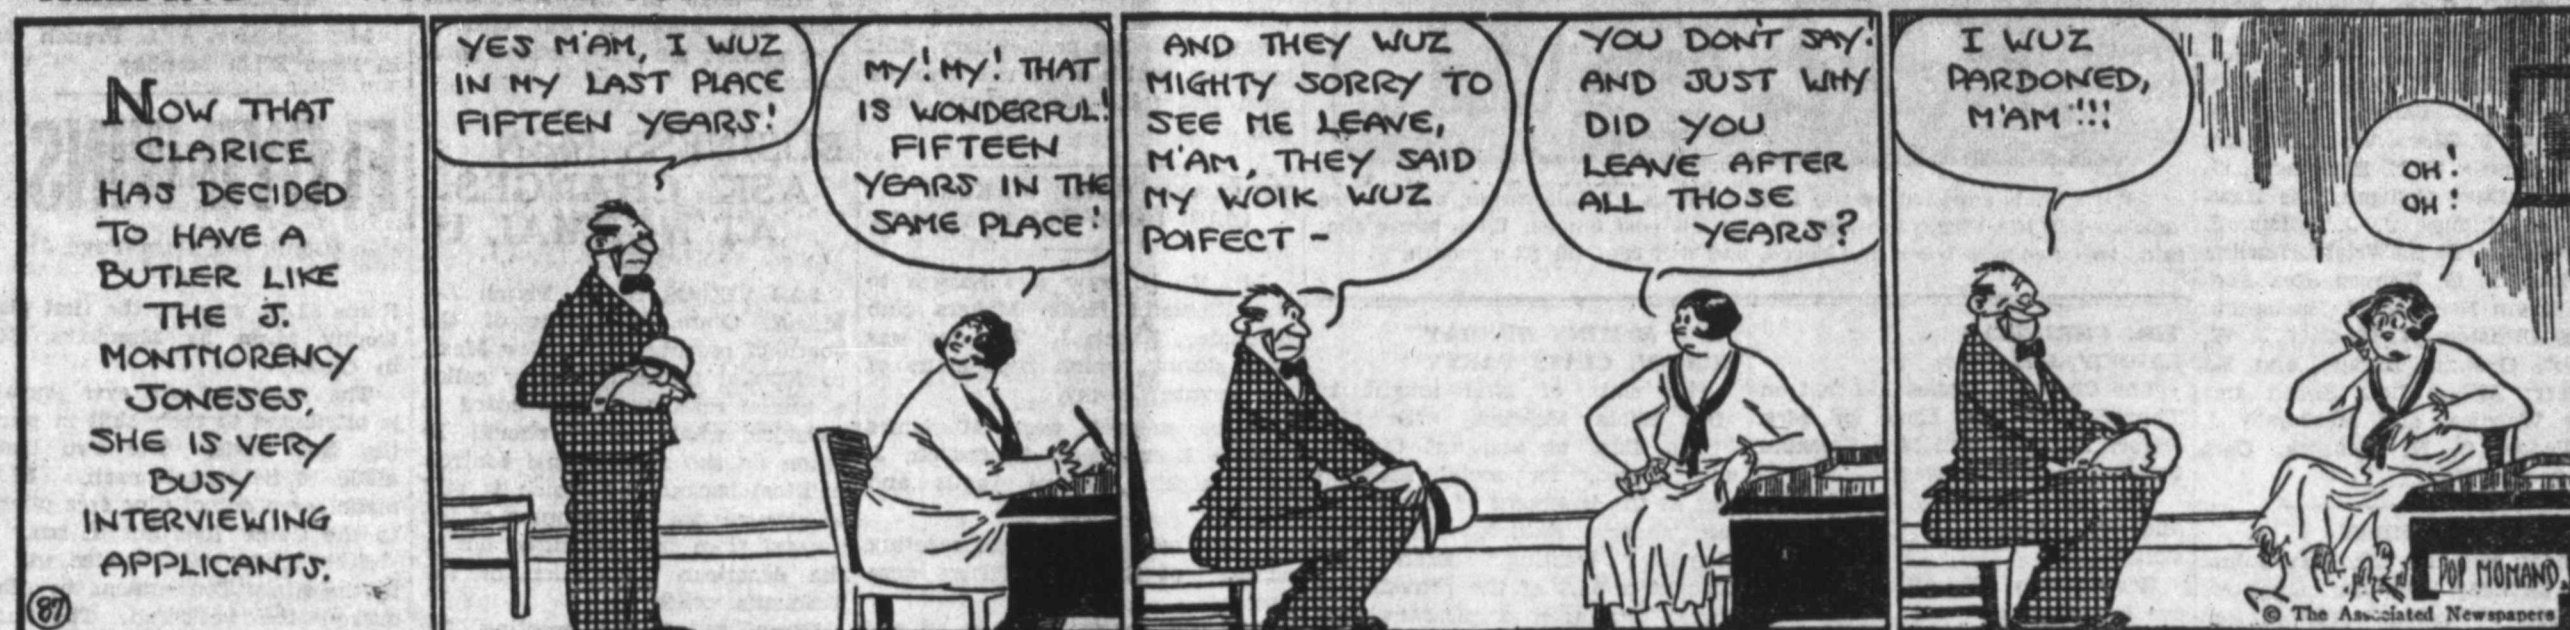

"Daphne," called a drawing, rather querulous voice from the hall, "I'm going to bed. Maggie's fixed a tray down in the living room. Good-night."

GOVERNOR TO ASK ECONOMY IN CALL FOR LEGISLATURE

Plans to Cut Travel Expenses and Call on Statehouse Employees to Furnish Clerical Help.

SANTA FE, New Mexico.—All economies possible will be requested of the legislators, who will be called into special session late this month, Gov. A. W. Hocken-hull said Thursday.

"I'm going to ask the members of the legislature," he said, "to travel by the most direct route to the statehouse and to accept reimbursement only for the money they actually spend in making the trip."

"All legislative help will be furnished from among the statehouse employees, at no additional expense, if the legislature accepts my recommendation."

Session Late This Month

The governor said the special session will be called probably for either Friday, March 23, or for the following Monday. There are many advocates of each date, he said.

The governor expects to issue the call ten days before the solons meet.

The governor said he hoped that if the legislature meets on Friday that they will complete their work by Saturday of the next week. There have been three special sessions since statehood and none of them have lasted more than 12 days. The governor, however, believes that the coming extraordinary session will be faced with more problems than any other, and may be forced to take more time.

To Have Bills Drawn

"I am going to have all bills drawn before they meet," he said. The governor was not yet ready to announce his program, stating that he was still giving it consideration. Only legislation of an emergency will be included, however, he said.

There will be two liquor bills presented to the legislature, the governor said. One of them will strengthen the Lane law, and the other will provide for state dispensaries only, putting the state directly into the liquor business.

Attorney General E. K. Neumann, member of the state liquor control board, has been drafting these measures. It will be left up to the legislature, the governor said, whether the Lane law will be amended or discarded in favor of a new law giving the state sole control of the liquor business.

Either law will provide considerably more revenue for the state than is being obtained under the present Lane law, he said.

Still Considers Tax Bills

The governor is not yet decided on which major revenue measure will have his support. It is probable that he will submit both a business tax and a gross income tax on the solons. General opinion here favors a gross income tax in preference to sales tax. While both measures will produce about the same amount of revenue, it is not believed that a gross income tax will face the opposition from the public at large that a sales tax will undergo.

These are the only two measures proposed to date which will return sufficient revenue to keep the schools, city and county governments functioning. The business tax is interpreted by many tax experts here as being in effect a sales tax.

Several of the laws passed by the last regular session of the legislature, may be amended or repealed, it was learned.

If the legislature meets on Friday, bills may be introduced on the first day and be ready for passage on Monday. The solons will have an opportunity to study them in the meantime. Most of the proposed laws will probably be distributed to the legislators in advance to the session so that they may be familiar with them when they arrive.

If the solons follow the governor's recommendation of accepting mileage allowance only for the actual travel cost, about $2,000 will be saved, he said. The legislators are allowed 10 cents per mile for travel. At this rate members from Albuquerque will receive $6.20 for their trip here whereas the bus fare is only $1.85. The governor believes this difference should revert to the state.

Expects Cooperation

"I believe," he said, "the members of the legislature will be willing to contribute this difference, although there is nothing to compel them to."

If no clerical help is hired, about $224 a day can be saved, basing this estimate on the appropriation for clerical help for the last session.

For the regular session, there was appropriated $2,197.16 mileage for members of the house and $1,186.34 for members of the senate at the rate of 10 cents per mile. Travel by bus or train is now less than 3 cents per mile. At this rate about two-thirds of the mileage costs could be saved, even after members living in remote parts of the state had received reimbursement for cost of meals.

SATURDAY BATHS AN ECHO OF YESTERDAY? NOT SO CARLSBAD

A lot of our best people still take baths on Saturday.

That's the conclusion reached by the Southwestern Public Service company, at least, which ought to know because it supplies the city's water.

February records show that during the month water consumption on Saturdays have averaged about 100,000 gallons more than that of the average week day. In fact, the city's water consumption has increased about that much over a year ago.

What day, you ask, is the average day? As near as can be determined, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. On these days the water used settles down to a steady drizzle, until Saturday night, when it takes a stock market rally.

Sunday it drops below average. Everybody, it is presumed, is clean and tries to stay that way.

Monday, surprisingly enough it is much the same story. Evidently their own laundering follow the policy of "manana," because on Tuesday the faucets go on and the meter hands go round almost as much as on Saturday.

Electrical consumption, officials say, is much less flighty, except that on Sundays the average drops and on Wednesday it rises, tending to prove the washday theory by having housewives do the ironing on Wednesdays.

Use of electricity has increased about 1,000 kilowatt hours per day over that of a year ago, it was estimated.—Current-Argus.

Ship Car Potatoes To St. Paul, Minn.

Last week the Portales Sweet Potato association shipped a car of potatoes to St. Paul, Minn., which is the first car shipped from here to northern markets.

There were of the Jersey variety and brought $1.80 per crate. H. O. Minick accompanied this shipment.

The Jersey potato has not been grown extensively here, but from experiments in this variety, the farmers are well pleased with the yields, and an increased acreage of this variety will be grown this year.

The northern market prefers the Jersey to other varieties, and it is the hope of the association, that this shipment will open a new market for the Portales potatoes.

BUSINESS MEN ASK CHANGES AT NORMAL U.

LAS VEGAS, N. M., March 7.—M. A. Otero, chairman of the board of regents of the New Mexico Normal university today called a special meeting of the board to consider what action should be taken on the alleged dual control political background which is said to have caused the dropping of the normal from the accredited list of the American Association of the Teacher's colleges.

His action followed the passing of a resolution by a group of Las Vegas business men late yesterday in which the governor was urged to have the board take steps to rectify alleged conditions or else demand the resignation of the board members should they decline to act.

DILLINGER PAL GOES ON TRIAL
LIMA, Ohio, March 7.—While John Dillinger hid from the law today, Harry Pierpont, his pal, was called to trial for murdering a sheriff in a jail delivery of Dillinger last October 12.

Pierpont, the state charges, was "trigger man" in the jail delivery in which Sheriff Jesse Sarber was killed and in which Dillinger was turned loose to continue a career of bank robbery and murder. He was captured with Dillinger and others in Arizona several weeks ago and returned here on the murder charge, while Dillinger was locked in the Crown Point, Ind., jail, facing a charge of slaying another peace officer.

The other Dillinger gangsters, Charley Makley and Russell Clark, also held in the barricaded jail in which Sarber was slain, will be tried later on the same charge.

ELMO WALL, LUBBOCK, IS A COUNTY BOOSTER

Elmo Wall a real estate man of Lubbock, Texas, was looking after his two sections west of Dora the last of last week. He says that there has been a good rain from Lubbock here. He did not think that it would be long before the farmers are at their plowing.

He did not seem discouraged about the drought that ruined his cotton crop last spring. He had millet and hyregia which matured and made a good yield.

T. C. Cauley of Shallowater, Texas, was on a deal for a farm in the Dora community this last week.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. French were in from Elida Monday.
