BILL J. HOOD
...reveals plans...

Snyder School Superintendent Bill J. Hood revealed Tuesday night he plans to retire after this school year.

Hood informed the school board of his intent at the close of Tuesday's regular March meeting. A motion to accept his resignation was then offered by trustee J.D. Hinton, who noted it was accepted "with regret."

Hart takes three states, Mondale two

By The Associated Press

Rounding the first turn in the Democratic presidential race, Gary Hart and Walter Mondale emerged neck and neck Tuesday, Hart carried Florida, Massachusetts and Rhode Island, while Mondale was the winner in Georgia and Alabama.

Hart and Mondale were neck and neck after Super Tuesday's primaries and caucuses. The Colorado senator claimed a victory over "the politics of yesterday," while the former vice president asserted he was "back in the race."

The contest looked more and more like a two-man race as Hart and Mondale headed into the industrial Midwest today where Michigan and Illinois are the next big targets.

Of the five primaries on Tuesday, Hart carried Florida, Massachusetts and Rhode Island, while Mondale was the winner in Georgia and Alabama.

Hart and Mondale were only a few votes apart in Oklahoma caucuses, while Hart jumped to a comfortable lead in Washington.

Caucus results from Hawaii had Mondale winning only 5 of 27 delegates up for grabs, with the other 22 remaining uncommitted. Hart was leading Mondale in Nevada's caucuses.

Hart looked assured of a majority of the 511 delegates chosen on the campaign's busiest day so far, but Mondale continued to hold the overall lead.

Of the delegates selected since the process began, Mondale had 285 and Hart 167. John Glenn had 33 delegates, and the Rev. Jesse Jackson 31.

George McGovern, saying he would "fully accept the verdict of my special friends, the voters of Massachusetts," was the latest casualty of the race after finishing third in the state that stood alone in his column in 1972.

"I feel younger this morning than I did in 1972 when I was defeated by former President Nixon," McGovern said on ABC's "Good Morning America."

His departure cuts the Democratic field to four. The race began with eight contenders.

Hart said he talked to McGovern today but didn't get an endorsement. He said that Vice President Mondale is in his judgment a more classic liberal."

Hart was flying to Detroit to meet with United Auto Workers officials bucking labor's united front for Mondale. Appearing on NBC's "Today" show, he predicted that Michigan "will be a very tough state for us."

But he told the "CBS Morning News" that "I think this campaign does have national strength."

Mondale, meanwhile, bypassed the network's morning news shows to sleep before heading to Illinois to address the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations.

"We're back and ready to run," his campaign manager, Robert Beckel, said on the NBC show. "Yes, I think we're out of trouble. We had a rough couple of weeks."

Hart and Mondale cheered the Super Tuesday results and predicted a long battle to settle who will emerge from the Democratic National Convention in San Francisco next July as the challenger to President Reagan.

"It's going to be a marathon all the way to California," Mondale told supporters.

"This is going to be a long, tough fight," said Hart campaign manager Oliver Henkel.

Glenn, whose third place finish in Alabama was his best primary showing of the day, nonetheless declared his campaign "is very much alive."

It also was very much in debt and a Glenn aide said a decision on the future of the Ohio senator's bid was still to be made.

Rehearing sought in gas-use appeal

A legal motion has been filed seeking a rehearing before the Texas 11th Court of Appeals in Eastland by attorneys for a Scurry County royalty owner attempting to retain the use of gas from SACROC field residual lines.

It was the latest development in the six month legal battle between royalty owners and Chevron U.S.A. as operator of the SACROC field.

Local royalty owners Lester O. Moore and Richard Lee Stoker brought suit against Chevron in October 1983 to obtain a permanant injunction stopping the company from cutting off the residual gas supplies.

County royalty owners have had use of the gas as a home fuel since the early 1950's — part of original land lease agreements between them and SACROC officials.

Moore and Stoker's legal protest was successful in 132nd District Court in Snyder last October as they gained a temporary injunction. This in effect kept the gas lines open at least until the case could be brought to a jury trial in the local court.

Chevron, however, chose to appeal the temporary injunction to the 11th Court of Appeals in Eastland and on Feb. 23 that court ruled in the company's favor, overturning the locally-issued injunction.

According to Roy L. Bell of Odessa, who is representing only Stoker in the new legal action, the motion is an attempt to get the Feburary ruling by the appeals court overturned by the Texas Supreme Court. Assisting in the action is Snyder attorney Dan Cotton.

Former co-plaintiff Moore, who had been party to the suit in the original filing, has dropped out following the February appeals court ruling.

Bell said in a telephone interview Tuesday afternoon that a refusal by the appeals court of the motion for rehearing would allow his client to file a writ of error and thus get the matter before the Texas Supreme Court.

According to Bell, a supreme court ruling overturning the Feb. 23 appeals court verdict would reinstate the temporary injunction and keep the gas on until the suit could be brought to a jury trial in 132nd District Court here.

One-act play advances

Snyder High School drama students Tuesday cleared the first hurdle in this year's attempt at a 15th trip to the State One-Act Play finals.

The SHS production of Arthur Miller's "The Crucible" was chosen to advance to district competition of the zone contest held here in Worsham Auditorium.

In addition, two SHS players were named the Best Actor and Best Actress for the competition.

Also chosen to represent the east zone at the district meet was San Angelo Lake View High School's production of "The Runner Stumbled." The district event will be in Worsham Audtorium next Tuesday.

Snyder students winning individual honors were headed by David Etheredge and Dana Parham, who were named Best Actor and Best Actress respectively.

Kelly Farquhar of Snyder was named to the Zone All-Star cast while Kathy Norris was named to the Honorable Mention All-Star cast.

Others area drama students named to Tuesday's All-Star cast were Alva Munoz and Lance Maxwell of Lake View High, James Carl and Todd Campbell of Sweetwater, Will Buss and Shannon Gassie of the Midland Lee Freshman School and Pat Vera of Lamesa.

Others picked for Honorable Mention medals were Angie Allen of Lake View along with Tommy Smith and Barry Tomlinson of Lamesa.

Track cost estimated

Estimates ranging from $150,000 to in excess of $200,000 were offered here Tuesday night for the resurfacing of the Snyder High School track.

In addition, the indication Tuesday was that a complete re-working of the track's sub-surface area may also be required. That opinion came from two representatives of track companies who have inspected the running area.

Regarding this, the board postponed any decision concerning the "type" of track until a core sampling of soil beneath the track can be taken.

The possibility of additional dirt work — to include adding caliché and the re-packing of the surface — was discussed also.

Board President G.A. Parks Jr. noted, however, "Whatever we do, we need to stress moving along," pointing to the need to have the resurfacing work completed before fall.

Funds for such a project will have to be a part of the 1984-85 school budget.

The two track surfaces discussed Tuesday were described by Athletic Director David Noble as "in the past, too expensive for most high schools." He noted that advances in technology have now brought these type tracks into an affordable range.

While both involve different processes, the basic concept involves a sprayed

Bonds to finance CRMWD projects

Initial steps toward a $7 million revenue bond issue for financing additional water reserves and enhancing quality of present supplies were taken by the Colorado River Minicipal Water District directors in a meeting Tuesday in Big Spring.

O.H. Ivie, general manager, was authorized to complete negotiations with Duval Corp. in acquiring land and ground water in Winkler County. He also was instructed to proceed with plans for the Beals Creek diversion project just east of Big Spring as a means of upgrading quality of water in Lake E.V. Spence.

McCall, Parkhurst and Horton of Dallas were employed as attorneys for the two programs, and First Southwest of Dallas was named as fiscal agent. Directors set 10 a.m. May 19 as the time for sale of the short-term revenue bonds. This figure does not

The feller on Deep Creek says, "To entertain some people completely, all you have to do is listen."

Across our desk came a news release citing Sweetwater as one of the nation's cruelest towns. We have always been suspect of that city--especially when our local athletic teams have to line up against them.

Now it's official. Folks in Sweetwater are downright mean. According to the news release, Sweetwater is in violation of "specie-ism"--defined as the exploition of one group by another regardless of morality.

We guess Snyder missed the list when our horned toad race was cancelled at a recent county fair.

Sweetwater was cited because of the Rattlesnake Roundup which was held last weekend. The release said the event attracts thousands, "in which snakes are dug up out of the burrows to be killed with clubs and hoes."

We have no way of knowing if the author, Richard Ryder, has ever come face-to-face with or tested the morality of a rattler, but odds are he'd be looking for a long-handled hoe.

Speaking of the 26th annual Rattlesnake Roundup, a Snyder resident took first place in the snake eating contest. Terry Haley, son of Tony Haley, gobbled down 11 ounces of fried rattlesnake meat in one minute.

If we had to eat rattlesnake, we'd be the one hollering foul.

Contract decisions after exec-session

Snyder school board members came out of a 20-minute closed executive session Tuesday and approved actions involving 1984-85 school year contracts for four Snyder High School staffers — including the three varsity coaches whose contracts were "tied" to former Head Coach Georgy Byerly's contract.

Regarding the coaches, the board voted to "non-renew" the contracts of the three, noting the "terms in their contracts" which link their jobs to the head coaching position.

In making the motion, the board asked that it be noted that these non-renewals in no way reflected on the "teaching ability" of the three. They include Robert Crawford, Roy Smith and Walter Hargrove.

In Brief

AT&T seeks rate case delay

AUSTIN (AP) — The state Office of Public Utility Counsel applauded AT&T Communications' decision Tuesday to delay seeking a $300 million increase in long distance phone rates.

After AT&T announced its decision, counsel Jim Boyle said the long distance company now should drop its rate hike request entirely.

"I think the responsible thing for (AT&T Communications) would be to withdraw their proposal to increase long distance telephone rates," said counsel Jim Boyle.

Boyle said AT&T, having operated independently from the old the Bell System only a short time, can base its rate requests only on "estimates, speculation and predictions in its rate applications."

Tom Jones, a vice president of AT&T Communications of the Southwest, said the delay was requested because the Public Utilities Commission next month is scheduled to determine a permanent long distance access charge.

Bylaw changes discussed

The Scurry County Industrial Foundation board discussed bylaw changes Tuesday during a regularly scheduled meeting.

These changes are expected to be considered for final adoption at a later date. Perot says changes are 'vital'

AUSTIN (AP) — Some changes being recommended for the Texas public school system are vital not only to the state's children but to its economic future, H. Ross Perot said Tuesday.

Perot, whose Select Committee on Public Education will begin drafting its final report in Dallas today, said two key changes should be made quickly.

More money needs to be spent on early childhood development and more attention should be paid to children who don't speak English as their primary language, he said.

"If we don't get this segment of our population competitive, we'll look like Detroit in 30 years," Perot said.

In Austin to address state PTA leaders, Perot declined to estimate what his committee's final proposals might cost. But he said the panel understands the need to stay within a budget.

Perot said the cost of public education in Texas has climbed from $1.75 billion to $8.3 billion in 10 years. If the current system isn't changed, that will hit $25 billion by the year 2000 and things still won't improve, he said.

"Education is like PAC-man," he said, referring to a popular video game. "It will eat up every dollar you send to Austin. Our committee will be very responsible."

But if starting from scratch, he said, "we could build a system that would put this state at the top of the charts for $8.3 billion."

The Legislature ultimately will decide whether to enact the committee's proposals. Perot said some recommendations would have to be delayed for cost reasons, but money could be squeezed from existing programs for the most-needed changes.

Perot said his committee's recommendations would range from proposals which cost nothing — such as increasing homework for students — to spending more on younger children.

"If we just started assigning more homework, you would see a dramatic improvement. We can't have a school system that is do diluted and so watered down that all you have to do is stay alive to get through it."

Perot said more attention must be paid to "the neglected and deprived (4- and 5-year-old) children in our state. Nobody hugs these children. Nobody makes them feel good about themselves."

As a result, many deprived children start school developmentally far behind children of the same age and are turned off to school from the first day. Some eventually turn to crime, he said.

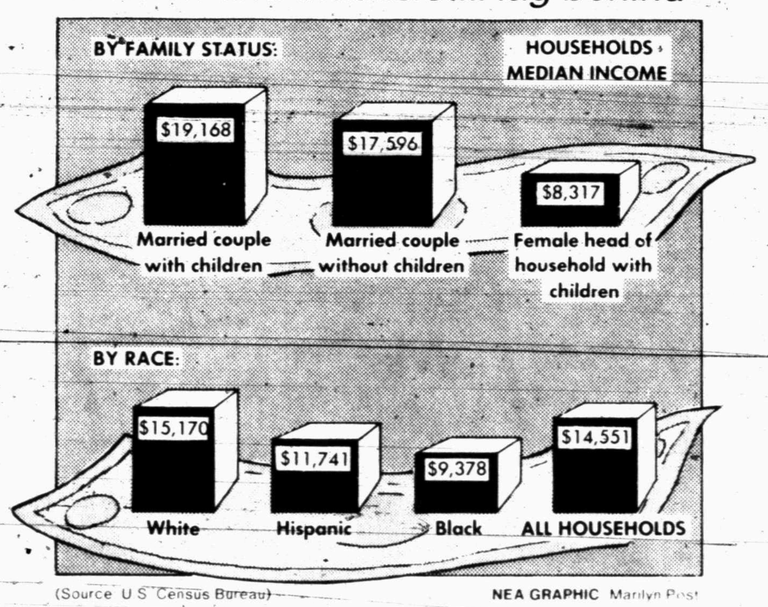
"I think you'll see more and more money put into elementary education. It is cheaper (in the long run) to send them to Harvard than to Huntsville," Perot said.

As for students who don't speak English, Perot said it is foolish to say the public school system can't accommodate them.

"Twenty percent of our school population is Hispanic. We've got to get these children into the mainstream. These children have got to get competitive. We can't have a large, unskilled workforce in Texas."

HOUSEHOLD INCOME

Women and blacks still lag behind



Women and minorities still face a wide income gap. The average income for all households is $14,551, but households headed by women average $6,234 less, while blacks and Hispanics average $5,173 and $2,810 less respectively.

Ten million Americans have diabetes.

Many can improve their condition just by losing weight.

We are learning more about the control of diabetes with diet.

But most diabetics continue to give themselves daily injections of insulin.

Do diabetics deserve better?

Are there remedies available to Europeans which are denied to Americans?

Hardly an American household escapes some experience with diabetes. It has to be agonizing for the victims to hear a sustained cacophany of claims and counter-claims and medications decreed "better," yet "unattainable."

A Harvard professor Jeffrey Flier, says insulin can be administered just as effectively with a nose spray.

Then why not?

There are four oral anti-diabetes pills currently on the market in the United States — but not one new one in the last 15 years.

Many or most doctors are as confused as you are.

Upjohn Company has given $4 million to the American Diabetes Association "to educate doctors" on diagnosis and treatment of adult diabetes, to help them understand what those "warning labels" don't mean!

Meanwhile, several second-generation diabetes drugs — "newer and better" — are in widespread use in Europe. Some of them manufactured by American companies.

Possible complications from diabetes — blindness and kidney failure — demand that medical science expedite delivery of any improved treatment.

A new device being tested on humans this month is called PIMS — Programmable Implanted Medication System. It is a computer-controlled pump implanted in the abdomen for up to 10 years. It promises to dispense insulin gradually, as does the normal pancreas.

If and when approved, the device will probably cost upwards of $10,000.

If and when approved.

The Food and Drug Administration under Reagan has doubled the approval rate of new drugs; approval time has been reduced in some instances from two years to seven months.

But American government regulators are long overdue in using the experience of other countries to short-cut our own tedious test procedures.

Youth requests seat on shuttle

PORT ARANSAS, Texas (AP) — Eleven-year-old Meredith Medley doesn't think her 90-pound body would take up much room on the space shuttle, so she's filed an "application" with the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

"Dear NASA," Meredith recently wrote, with a carbon copy to President Reagan, "Have you'll thought about taking a child on the space shuttle? Please consider me for a Columbia run."

She said she came up with the idea from Samantha Smith, the 10-year-old Manchester, Maine, youngster who wrote the late Soviet President Yuri Andropov about world peace and ended up on a free tour of Russia.

"That gave me the idea about my letter," she said.

Meredith said her parents, Paul and Sue Medley, encouraged her to write the letter and have also given her permission to fly in a shuttle.

'Sometimes parents think children are here just to make them happy. Children can do a lot of things adults can do, like going to space," Meredith said.

She said she's willing to do whatever it takes to become a child astronaut.

"I am willing to train," she said. "I am willing to go anytime they (NASA) want me. I believe I can handle it OK."

The 4-foot-5 sixth-grader says her 90-pound body wouldn't take up much room in the shuttle. She said she wanted to go into space for Texas, Port Aransas, her parents and all the children of the world.

"Port Aransas is so small that something big like this (a shuttle flight), is something that would make people look at us," she said. "I like Port Aransas for the beach and I have friends here."

IRS: filings lagging behind

AUSTIN (AP) — Internal Revenue Service officials say taxpayers in the Southwest are waiting longer to file their federal income tax returns this year, and that will mean longer waits for refunds.

"Our latest figures indicate tax returns are coming in about 20 percent more slowly than last year at this time," said Bob Branson, spokesman for the IRS regional service center in Austin.

"We really don't know why, but we're not really concerned about it. As the filing deadline of April 15 nears, we are sure that gap will be closed," Branson said.

One effect of the slower filing pace is that seasonal hiring by the IRS service center has lagged this year, he said.

Normally, the 1,800-employee service center and some 2,000 temporary employees receive the heaviest load of returns beginning in late February. This year, that peak may not come until late this month, Branson said.

He said the IRS so far has hired about 1,700 of its expected 2,000 Austin seasonal workers.

The Austin IRS center processed 24 million tax returns last year from Texas, New Mexico, Louisiana, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Kansas.

Those who wait longer to file returns will have to wait longer for refunds from the government. Those filing returns now must wait six to eight weeks, Branson said, but those who wait until the last minute will have to wait eight to 10 weeks.

About 80 percent of individuals filing returns receive refunds, he said. This year, refunds in the Austin district covering south Texas have averaged $498 each, about the same as last year, he said.

Careless mistakes by those filing returns can create a delay of a few weeks in processing a return, Branson said.

The most common errors include failing to sign the return, failure of a spouse to sign a joint return and failing to include a spouse's Social Security number.

Branson said one reason some people wait until April 15 to file their returns is that they believe there is less chance their returns will be audited.

FIX-IT-FAST

Steel-pipe cinch

If the wooden clothes rods in your closets have begun to sag, replace them with steel pipes that won't ever sag.

You will need a screw driver, pipe cut to length, paint thinner and a file.

It will take about 10 minutes.

1. Remove the clothes from the closet.
2. Look at your closet. Your clothes rod is probably supported by brackets.
3. If the brackets have both top and bottom pieces, remove the top piece from only one bracket.
4. Lift out the bent wooden clothes rod and take it to a hardware store or plumbing supply house. Ask them to cut a piece of pipe of the same dimensions.
5. When you get the pipe home, file the raw edges of the ends of the pipe to remove any burrs.
6. Now thoroughly clean the pipe with paint thinner or cleaning fluid, to remove the protective oil coating. The oil may stain your clothes.
7. Put the pipe into the brackets in the closet. Replace the bracket you removed.
8. Put the clothes back in the closet.

Hollywood star Carol Lawrence told Beauty Digest magazine "Now that I'm a redhead, I've had to change all the color tones of my makeup. I've gone from gray and black mascaras to softer tones of browns and plums. I advise any woman who is changing her hair color to splurge and have an expert help her plan her new makeup colors."

By Oswald Jacoby and James Jacoby

One of the worst mistakes in bridge is thinking that after you have passed once you can bid anything you wish. Instead, you should remember that your original pass hasn't changed one card in your hand.

Today's hand is a good example of what happens to a player who feels he has been appointed to bid on and on with a mere seven points.

North's takeout double was bad enough, but he got away with it after his partner's two-heart response. Then, when West bid two spades, North felt that his five hearts warranted competing to three of that suit.

East considered a double, but decided that his hearts were badly placed and just passed.

The three of clubs was opened. East took his ace and returned the suit. South took his king. We won't go on with the details of the play except to report that South wound up down two for minus 200 and zero match points.

That was unlucky. South really deserved to get one match point.

Attorney general says...

Evolution rule unconstitutional

AUSTIN (AP) — Attorney General Jim Mattox has declared a State Board of Education rule limiting the teaching of evolution in public schools an unconstitutional response to pressure from creationists.

Mel Gabler, who with his wife Norma, was a major force behind the adoption of the rule, accused Mattox of responding to political pressure.

Mattox issued an attorney general's opinion Tuesday that said singling out one aspect of one theory indicated a school board "concern for religious sensibility rather than a dedication to scientific truth."

Board rules require textbooks to present evolution as "only one of several explanations of the origins of humankind."

The Mattox opinion was requested 4½ months ago by state Sen. Oscar Mauzy, D-Dallas, who said a 1974 rule was a concession to the Gablers, longtime textbook critics based in Longview.

Gabler said Tuesday night that Mattox's opinion was "an unfortunate, hasty overreaction to political pressure."

"The attorney general uses the power the of the state to deny students receiving a well-rounded education," Gabler said, reading a prepared statement. "This means that the great amount of solid scientific evidence against evolution will be censored in the classroom. It means the attorney general has elevated the 'theory' of evolution to be treated as 'fact,' in spite of great gaps, flaws, inconsistencies and the fact that evolution is unprovable."

Michael Hudson, Texas coordinator for People for the American Way, a self-styled anti-censorship group, said Mattox's opinion "is a truly significant national victory for science education, religious liberty and the First Amendment."

"Texas' anti-evolution textbook rules are merely one part of the national creationist crusade to replace science with religion in science classes throughout our public schools," Hudson said. "If allowed to continue, this extremist movement could threaten the scientific literacy of our schoolchildren as we move into the era of expanding technology."

American Way contends that evolution rules have resulted in inferior science textbooks not only in Texas but throughout the nation because publishers tailor books to Texas standards to sell to the large state market.

Hudson said a coalition of scientists, educators, parents and religious leaders was prepared to sue to enforce Mattox's ruling, if necessary, "but we hope the board will repeal the rules and avoid litigation."

Gabler said the state board's rule on evolution was "as 'middle-of-the-road' as is possible to prepare."

"It is midway, between the two-model approach desired by scientific creationists, and the evolutionists who seek to exclude any theory but their own and who want it taught as fact," he said.

Historically, state agencies have abided by opinions from the attorney general as if they were law.

State Education Commissioner Raymon Bynum and board member William Kemp of Houston were asked to comment on Mattox's opinion but both said they wanted to read it first.

"This is something that you don't pop off at," said Bynum.

Mauzy, in his request for an attorney general's opinion, claimed the new rules violated the U.S. Constitution's requirement of separation of church and state.

Fingerling orders now being taken

The Upper Colorado Soil and Water Conservation district, serving Scurry and Borden counties, is currently accepting fingerling orders for pond restocking.

Good news! The district has secured lower prices for the fish than the $47.50 per hundred reported earlier. The following prices are now in effect: 4-6 inch channel catfish, $35 per 100; 6-8 inch channel catfish, $35 per 100; 1-3 inch hybrid bluegill, $40 per 100; 2-3 inch hybrid (Florida x native) bass, $60 per 100; fathead minnow, $7 per pound (approximately 250/lb).

Delivery date is March 31 from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. at the Soil Conservation Service Office at 3423 Avenue T in Snyder.

Suggested stocking rates for ponds are 100 channel catfish per surface acre. If you plan to supplementy feed the catfish or fertilize the pond than 300-500 catfish per surface acre can be stocked.

The channel catfish can be stocked alone or with the fathead minnow to serve as forage. The diet of catfish is largely made up of acquatic insect larvae, but minnows are also eaten if available. The larger 6-8 inch catfish fingerlings are recommended if large bass are present in the pond. Fingerlings of this size are generally fast enough to avoid being eaten by the bass.

In ponds greater than one surface acre, stocking 100 channel catfish, 50 bass fingerlings, 250 true bluegill and 2 pounds (500) fathead minnow provides a balanced stocking program.

The hybrid bluegill can be stocked alone or with bass and catfish. These will reproduce and are a good choice as forage for bass. They do grow larger than native bluegill and are an excellent choice for stocking very small ponds.

In stocking bass in combination with catfish or bluegill, the bass should be stocked at least one month after the other fish. This allows forage species, such as fathead minnow or the bluegill to grow, spawn and provide food for the bass.

Some bass will be available on March 31 but the main shipment will be in May.

Call Ricky Linex of the Soil Conservation Service by March 23 to be guaranteed delivery of the fish needed, although some additional fish will be bought by the supplier for sale on delivery day.

For further information call 573-0171 or come by the SCS office at 3423 Avenue T.

Fish orders will be taken through March 23 and payment should be made by March 26 to the Upper Colorado Soil and Water Conservation District.

Pondowners who have already placed their fish orders can make payment anytime until March 26.

Plastic bags will be provided to haul fish in, but everyone should bring cardboard boxes to transport the bagged fish in. One box is needed per 100 fish and a box that will hold the equivalent of 2-3 gallons of water is adequate. These fish are guaranteed.

Snyderites are to join honor society

LUBBOCK--More than 160 Texas Tech University students from the university's six colleges, law school and graduate school will be initiated into the campus chapter of Phi Kappa Phi national honor society on April 11.

Initiates for 1984 include, from Snyder, accounting senior Darrell W. Calvert, son of Mrs. Janelle Orr, and elementary education senior Glenna Dennis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry M. Davis.

Membership in Phi Kappa Phi, which recognizes outstanding scholarship in all academic discipline, is limited to juniors, seniors, law students and graduate students who rank in the top 10 percent of their class.

Blocked birth canal

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I've had three different opinions about my medical problem. I have a ball-shaped object at the opening of my vagina.

One doctor diagnosed it as the collapsed wall of my bladder. Another said the rectal wall had collapsed and would probably require surgery in three months. (It's been more than 10 months since that opinion.) The third said it was a common problem with women who've had children and that no surgery was necessary.

I'm divorced and have been celibate for three years, so I don't know if there's any problem with sex. However, I want to be prepared if I should meet someone I want to marry.

DEAR READER — All three of those medical opinions are related to the same diagnosis. Many mothers have stretched and torn muscles and ligaments around the birth canal.

As a result, the muscular wall at the front of the birth canal may separate enough to allow a portion of the bladder to rupture into the vagina. Or the same thing can happen at the back of the birth canal, allowing a portion of the rectum to rupture through the wall. Then the uterus may drop allowing the cervix to protrude. The urethra also may drop, causing urination problems.

In mild degrees these don't interfere with sexual relations, but the relaxed and stretched muscles may decrease satisfaction. This sometimes leads to marital discord.

You don't have to have any of these conditions repaired if they don't cause symptoms. But you should think of them as ruptures and if you want them corrected, it usually requires surgery.

You'll understand this common problem from the diagram and discussion in the Health Letter 14-12, Hysterectomy, Cystocele and Rectocele, which I'm sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I've read too many stories about digoxin causing death when it was given to sick children in the hospital. I take digoxin (Lanoxin) and am very concerned about it.

I'm 67 and have taken digoxin since I had a mild heart attack 10 years ago. I'm asking you because when I ask my doctor about my medications he gets upset and says to leave that to him.

DEAR READER — Doctors have different ways of dealing with their patients. Some don't like their patients to worry about their treatment because they feel it's the doctor's responsibility.

Don't worry about the news stories of the possible use of digoxin in mysterious infant deaths at hospitals. Digoxin is a powerful medicine. It's been used for years in heart patients. After all, you've been using it for more than 10 years. It's one of the digitalis preparations that provide a family of drugs that are some of the most important medicines in the treatment of heart conditions.

The amount used in adults for this can be life saving, although it must be properly regulated. Don't be surprised that a useful medicine also can be harmful. Almost everything in life that's good can also be dangerous.

Nun, lay worker to be arraigned

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — A nun and church worker are to be arraigned next week on charges of conspiracy to transport three illegal aliens.

Sister Dianne Muehlenkamp, 36, of Fort Wayne, Ind., and layworker Stacey Lynn Merkt, 29, of Colorado Springs, Colo., face a three-count indictment issued by a federal grand jury Tuesday afternoon.

The two church women, Dallas Times Herald reporter Jack Fischer, two adult Salvadorans and an infant were arrested by border patrol agents at about 5 a.m. Feb. 17. The arrests took place about 20 miles from Hebbronville on a rural country road as the group was driving to San Antonio in a car owned by the Catholic Diocese of Brownsville.

Fischer's case was not presented to the grand jury. The 30-year-old reporter, a native of Patterson, N.J., had said he was working on a story at the time of his arrest with the others.

"At the present time, the federal government has some questions about Mr. Fischer's involvement and intent," said Assistant U.S. Attorney Jack Wolfe.

Wolfe said an investigation would continue into whether Fischer was engaged in legitimate news gathering or whether he had criminal intent.

"Depending on the answer to those questions, we will decide whether to present the case to the grand jury or dismiss charges," Wolfe said.

Chip Babcock and Jay Ethington, attorneys for Fischer, met with prosecutors for about four hours Tuesday morning in an attempt to get charges against their client dropped.

Fischer said he was pleased when he found out Tuesday afternoon that his case had not been given to the panel and would be investigated further.

"The longer they look at it (the case), the less chance there is they will indict me," said Fischer.

Ms. Merkt and Sister Dianne are currently free on $10,000 personal recognizance bond each.

Wolfe predicted the trial of the two women would take place in May.

If convicted, the two each face a maximum penalty of 15 years in prison and a $14,000 fine.

Mauricio Valle and Brenda Sanchez-Galan, the Salvadorans arrested with the Americans, will be tried on charges of illegal entry March 22, according to their attorney.

The Immigration and Naturalization Service has also initiated deportation proceedings against the two, who both worked in a Lutheran-run displaced persons camp in San Salvador.

Prior to their arrests, Valle and Mrs. Sanchez-Galan had been staying Casa Oscar Romero, a halfway house for Central American refugees.

Ms. Merkt, a worker at a Colorado halfway house, The Bijou, was a visiting volunteer at the Casa Oscar Romero. Sister Dianne was in Texas on a church-sponsored educational program at the Casa Romero and had been in the Rio Grande Valley about a week prior to her arrest.

Witness tells of accidents

WASHINGTON (AP) — A 62-year-old former Alabama schoolteacher has told a federal court she does not drive her 1980 Chevrolet Citation on long trips or in heavy traffic because she fears the left rear wheel will lock when she applies the brakes, throwing the car into a spin and out of control.

Medical researchers in Calcutta, India, announced in 1978 the birth of the world's second test-tube baby.

Sunken ship...

Body count reaches 35

HOUSTON (AP) — Divers searching an American drilling ship that sank in the South China Sea have found 35 crewmen's bodies, an executive with the ship's owner said.

Two more bodies were removed from the wreck of the Glomar Java Sea Tuesday, bringing the number of recovered bodies up to 30, said Dick Vermeer, a vice president with Global Marine Inc., the Houston-based firm that owns the vessel.

Divers found four other bodies that they were unable to move from the ship, Vermeer said, and were not certain whether they would be able to retrieve another.

Vermeer said the search was expected to end Tuesday but that officials would not hear from those searching the wreck until this morning.

The ship sank during a typhoon Oct. 25 and now lies upside in 300 feet of water 200 miles east of Vietnam and 60 miles south of China's Hainan Island.

Officials still do not know if any of the ship's 81 crewmen survived.

Divers began the grisly search last Thursday and the first 12 bodies were recovered Friday, Vermeer said. Before divers found the first bodies, Global Marine officials had said the ship's last radio message indicated crewmembers were donning life jackets.

Vermeer said "some" of the 35 bodies found were wearing life jackets.

Vermeer said divers have examined at least some portions of the "four or five decks where people are quartered." But they may never reach other areas, he said.

"Eventually, the Coast Guard is going to have to make some determination about a presumption of death," Vermeer said, "whenever the facts seem to indicate that."

The bodies are being placed in bags and refrigerated, Vermeer said. They have not been identified, he said, but will be taken to Hong Kong for that procedure when the search ends.

The search ship will remain at the scene to complete a survey of the wreck in the hopes of finding additional information "as to what caused the rig to go down," Vermeer said. He said that process could take as long as a week.

Officials had theorized and family members had hoped that survivors could have floated to Vietnam, where the winds likely would have carried them.

A lack of diplomatic relations between the United States and Vietnam hampered early search efforts although the Vietnamese government subsequently said it found no debris and no survivors.

Divers investigated the outside of the wreck for three days in early November and found a large indented fracture which ran from top to bottom of the vessel's starboard side, Global officials told a Coast Guard hearing in January.

A crew list provided by the U.S. Coast Guard indicated the ship carried 37 Americans, 35 Chinese, a Canadian, a Filipino, an Australian, four Britons and two Singaporeans.

Relatives of a few of the U.S. crew members have filed multimillion dollar lawsuits against Global Marine, claiming negligence by the company.

Ruling doesn't affect school

PECOS, Texas (AP) — A ruling that textbooks need not mention evolution will not greatly affect Pecos students, the majority of whom have never discussed man's origin in their biology classes.

The State Board of Education recently ruled that textbooks don't have to include Charles Darwin or different theories of man's evolution. But most Pecos students were never exposed to these theories in the first place.

Ironically, only the Trinity Christian Academy students learn about the theory of man evolving to his present physical state.

"Creationism — God as the way man came into existence — is taught as fact," said Trinity church pastor Jim Hefner. "We mention evolution as a theory that some people use to explain it (man's being)."

But Pecos High School students do not discuss man's evolution at all. PHS biology instructor Barbara Scown said she and fellow teachers deal only with the basic Darwin theory.

She said Darwin theorized survival of the fittest and that "organisms that survive will pass their traits," Mrs. Scown said. "We only discuss his ideas on how organisms have changed over the years."

"Darwin never referred to man," Scown explained. "The idea that man came from ape — he never said anything of the kind."

Mrs. Scown said the biology textbook used at Pecos High and "90 percent of all Texas schools" does contain a chapter on man's early stages. The chapter also describes theories about how man may have come to his present state from a crude beginning.

"But we don't use it," Mrs. Skown said of that chapter. "We don't touch on how man could have possibly evolved; I believe that should be left to higher education."

Meanwhile, the State Board of Education has ruled that textbooks need not mention evolution at all. The board stated it does not prohibit publishers from referring to Darwin or evolution as long as they present it as "only one of several explanations of origins of humankind."

Reports pointed out that Texas' decision on textbooks are considered important nationwide because the state is the largest buyer of school books. Publishers in general will not produce textbooks they cannot sell in this state. State Board member Virginia Currey of Arlington said she was "appalled" that Texas school children will not be exposed to Darwin or his theories. "Do you truly think a child should graduate from Texas schools without ever having heard of Charles Darwin?" she asked the board.

Pecos High School graduates have heard only of Darwin's theory of natural selection, that organisms have changed over the years to survive.

"When we mention Darwin, students always ask, 'Isn't he the guy that said man came from monkeys?'" Mrs. Scown recalled. "And I say, 'No, he isn't.'"

Thus starts and ends class discussion or reading on the subject of man's possible origin, she said. Unless students request to read the chapter on man's early stages or other books on the subject, they receive no education about evolution or creationism.

To speak of evolution and creationism to junior high school students would be "too much material for too young a kid."

Juveniles arrested in theft incidents

Snyder police were called to investigate three misdemeanor theft reports, two of which resulted in the arrest of two juvenile suspects Tuesday.

City officers arrested two 16-year-old male suspects in the 500 Block of 28th St. at 2 a.m. Wednesday. The youths were questioned also in connection with a gas drive off from the Busy Bee Grocery and a meal ticket walk off at the Plaza Cafe Tuesday.

Both were released to the custody of a family member and the cases have been referred to county juvenile authorities.

Jack Pointeau of the Travel Lodge Motel filed the days third theft report, a theft of services charge, with city police at 11:35 a.m. Tuesday.

Reports indicate the case has been referred to county officials.

In other action, city officers jailed two subjects for public intoxication Tuesday evening.

Bonds to finance projects include required reserves, which would be neutralized through re-investment.

Ivie was empowered to begin negotiations on several matters, including land and easements for the Beals Creek project. Also approved from the Contingency and Improvement Fund was $50,000 toward preliminary expenses for the water quality work. This project involves diversion of the normal flow of Beals Creek into a side-storage reservoir, thus preventing low-quality water from reaching Lake Spence downstream.

Authority was given to Ivie to employ a biologist to make a specie study of the river and certain tributaries for a 404 (environmental) Permit for the Stacy reservoir.

Adjudication hearings on water rights on the Colorado River above Austin are scheduled to begin this week, Ivie reported. Robert H. Moore, II, legal counsel, reported to directors that the district was successful in having dissolved an injunction which would have blocked the district from plugging abandoned wells, but that this decision has been appealed.

Filing for gas-use appeal

Michael Graham of the Houston law firm of Baker and Botts, said Tuesday the next step is left up to the appeals court.

Attorneys for both sides declined to speculate how long it will take the appeals court to rule on the new motion.

The issue over the royalty owner's use of the natural gas from the field residue lines began last August when Chevron notified gas users they intended to shut off the gas flow as of Oct. 1, 1983. They said this was due to an increasing level of dangerous contaminants such as carbon dioxide and hydrogen sulfide in the gas.

Stoker and Moore contested this proposed cutoff, saying wording in the original contracts freed Chevron of liability involving dangers to the users from the gas. The contention was they should be allowed to continue using the gas at their own risk.

Judge Raleigh Brown — writing the opinion for the court of appeals — cited the "overiding public interest" related to the safety of the gas users, however.

In his opinion, amendments to the initial contracts also gave Chevron the right to terminate the service if the company felt it unsafe.

SHS track estimates given

on track consisting of a rubberized surface.

The track company spokesmen noted that such tracks have been developed in Europe and that current indications are that the tracks have a "life" in excess of 10 years before they require maintenance.

In addition, such maintenance requires only a respraying of worn areas rather than a complete resurfacing, they noted.

The track to be replaced at Tiger Stadium is a Reslight track — which used a hot-mix approach mixing asphalt and rubber.

Presentations were made Tuesday by Jack Miller of Vibraworld in Panhandle — who sells a track under the brand name Omni-track — and John Atkinson of Royal Athletics in Austin, who sells his product under the brand name Fast Track.

The Omni track uses a mixture of rubber and latex binder for its surface and the Fast Track a combination of rubber and a Polyurathane binder.

"Ballpark" figures given Tuesday include $150,000 for the Omni track and $210,000 for the Fast Track.

In another construction-related decision, the school board authorized advertising for bids to complete renovation work involving four Snyder elementaries.

E.D. Flynn, assistant superintendent for business, noted, however, that some of the work might have to be "prioritized" since budgeted funds for the work are "right at" what he expects the renovation to cost.

The work basically consists of lowering ceilings, replacing lighting fixtures and covering windows. These steps are seen as energy saving methods in addition to the cosmetic effect.

As planned, the district will complete work to 15 classrooms at Central Elementary — where an older portion of the school has already been renovated — and throughout the buildings at North, West and East Elementaries.

Flynn estimated the work will cost some $210,000 to complete — money allocated in the current school budget.

All board members attended Tuesday's meeting. In addtion to Parks, who presided, trustees present were Ray Max Grimmett, Mike Reed, J.D. Hinton, J.M. (Mule) Kaysar, Lillie Sullivan and Leslie Butler.

In other school business, the board voted to:

—Employ Leo (Buddy) Comer as a history teacher-coach at SHS.

—Accept the resignations of three district personnel to include Susan Hays, early childhood teacher at West Elementary; Steve Beck, industrial arts teacher at SHS; and David Creswell, health-P.E. teacher and coach at SHS.

—Adopt textbooks for district use during the 1984-85 school year. This adoption was based on the recommendation of the school textbook committee.

—Cast ballots for two vacancies on the board of directors for the Region 14 Education Service Center. The two candidates for the posts are James C. Rominger of Breckenridge and Dr. Herman Schaffer of Abilene.

Perot's panel drafting plans

DALLAS (AP) — H. Ross Perot brings his traveling blue-ribbon educational committee to Dallas today to draft the final blueprint for restructing Texas' public schools that will be delivered to Gov. Mark White and an expected special legislative session.

If the Texas Select Committee on Public Education approves the ideas under consideration, the public schools system will be altered with a longer school day, higher pay for teachers, optional classes for 4-year-olds and an appointed, instead of elected, State Board of Education.

The committee begins its deliberations at 9 a.m. today in a Dallas hotel ballroom.

Perot says the final plan will be submitted to White in April. The governor has said he will call a special session of the Legislature this summer to consider the package of reforms.

Perot conducted meetings in most corners of the state with educators and experts. He raised the ire of many when he blasted athletics and organized activities such as drill team and band as taking too much time and energy away from the classroom.

Improving Texas' below-average school system will require difficult changes, Perot said, and will almost certainly require some sort of increase in tax revenues.

"There is no doubt that this system will need more money to implement, but I think, this committee realizes we cannot take more than our fair share of the tax dollar in this state," the chairman of Dallas-based Electronic Data Systems said.

The bulk of recommendations from subcommittees have been developed in the past few weeks.

Among those the full committee will consider during the three-day session:

—Extending the school day to nine hours.

—Abolishing the 27-member elected State Board of Education in favor of a seven-member board appointed by the governor. The current board has been severely criticized by Perot and others for not taking firmer action to improve academic standards in Texas.

—Creation of a four-step career ladder program that would allow more competent classroom teachers to draw the same salary as administrators. In addition, all teachers would have to pass a one-time competency test to retain their jobs.

—Requiring school districts to educate all 4-year-old children whose parents want them in school. Kindergarten would become a full-day program in all school districts for children the age of 5.

—Extending the school year by 10 days to 185 days a year. The committee will also be asked to explore a year-round, 220-day calendar.

—A new law that would allow parents to educate their children at home through the 6th grade if they meet certain requirements. State law now mandates that all children attend a public or private school unless there are extenuating circumstances.

Hood says he'll retire

Hood's current school contract runs through June of 1986 and had come up for another contract extension at the December board meeting.

At that time, Hood indicated to the board that an extension would not be required. He noted, "There is sufficient time in the current contract to complete this superintendent's professional career."

The indication then, however, was that he would complete his scheduled tenure.

Hood's retirement will now become effective June 30. He will complete 17 years with the Snyder ISD.

He assumed the post of superintendent in July, 1967 following the resignation of then-Superintendent Robert Clinton.

At his retirement this June, he will leave a school district that is free of bonded indebtedness.

Meanwhile, school board members Tuesday announced plans to begin a search for Hood's replacement.

A called meeting of the board has been set for noon March 23 — a Friday — to "consider steps" required for hiring the new superintendent.

Plainview pops Snyderites, 7-2

PLAINVIEW -- Designated hitter Jeffy Vera slapped a double and two singles for three RBI to lead Plainview past Snyder High School, 7-2 in a non-district baseball game here Tuesday.

Plainview will join Snyder for the trip back as they compete in the annual Snyder Baseball Tournament, scheduled to begin Thursday at Moffett Field. Plainview, 5-2, takes on Lubbock Dunbar in the first round while Snyder, 4-3, tests Levelland.

Plainview jumped out to a 5-0 advantage and never trailed in Tuesday's game. The hosts collected nine hits and enjoyed three Tiger errors.

Snyder got on the scoreboard in the fourth inning when Tim Derryberry walked and Justin Webb singled. Plainview pitcher Mark Slack struck out John Murphy but Jimmy Cain walked and Jay Mayo added a double.

Slack also gave up leadoff hits in the fifth and sixth innings, but relied on good defense to keep the Tigers from getting another run.

Vera came up with a single in the first inning, walked in the second, got a double in the fourth and another single in the sixth to lead Plainview's batsmen. John Joe Perez and Ronnie Ortegon also rapped a double apiece.

For Snyder, Webb, Mayo and Charles Bollinger knocked a double apiece. Murphy added a single as the Tigers' only other hit of the game.

Jimmy Velasquez was tagged with the loss after two and two-thirds innings. Paul Tate pitched one and one-third and Cain took the final two innings.

NCAA roundup...

Eagles are on collision course

by The Associated Press

Morehead State is in a horse race with a couple of thoroughbreds from cross-state in Kentucky. It's not the kind of race the Eagles figure to win.

Morehead, champions of the Ohio Valley Conference, won its preliminary round game in the NCAA basketball tournament Tuesday night, edging North Carolina A&T 70-69 on Guy Minnifield's 20-foot shot with only four seconds remaining. Next up for the Eagles: Louisville. If Morehead, 24-5, manages to upset the Cardinals at Milwaukee Friday night in the Mideast Regional, the third-ranked Kentucky Wildcats could be next.

"Every time we play Louisville, it's a nightmare," said Morehead Coach Wayne Martin, whose Eagles lost 85-50 to the Cardinals earlier this season. "We race at Latonia and they're in the Kentucky Derby."

After Morehead's victory at Dayton, Ohio, Alcorn State pounded Houston Baptist 79-60. At the Palestra in Philadelphia, Northeastern downed Long Island University 90-87, Richmond belted Rider 89-65 and Princeton took San Diego 65-56.

The Morehead-NC A&T game was an historic one. The referees used a television replay with 26 seconds remaining to determine which Aggie should attempt a pair of free throws after an intentional foul was called on the Eagles' Earl Harrison. James Horace hit one of two free throws to put the Aggies ahead 69-68.

Harrison was charged with a deliberate foul after he pulled the jersey of one of the Aggies' players. But the referees couldn't determine which player was fouled. At first, Eric Boyd of A&T was sent to the line. But after watching a replay, the refs awarded Horace the free throws.

The officials, Mickey Crowley, Jim Burr and Tim Higgins, issued a joint statement after the game.

"It was a deliberate foul. The player came across and grabbed him by the shirt, making it a two-shot foul," the statement read. "We wanted to be sure we had the correct man at the line. We had a conference, were not entirely sure, so we got clarification from TV and justified our selection."

A&T Coach Don Corbett said: "They didn't know and they admitted they didn't know. I'll give them credit. They were honest about it."

Eddie Childress led the Eagles with 20 points, while Boyd had 23 for the Aggies, champions of the Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference, who finished 22-7.

Michael Phelps led a balanced Alcorn State attack with 21 points as four Braves scored in double figures. Aaron Brandon added 15 points, Eddie Archie 12 and David Claybon 10 for the Southwestern Athletic Conference champions, 22-9. Alcorn goes to Omaha, Neb., on Friday to play Kansas in a first-round Midwest regional game.

Anicet Lavodrama, an import from the Central African Republic, was high scorer for Houston Baptist with 14 points. The Huskies, champions of the Trans- America Conference, finished 24-7.

"We told our kids before the game that we didn't believe they could blow us out, but that they did believe that we could blow them out," said Braves Coach Davey Whitney.

Lamar wanting to prove point

by The Associated Press

With a 24-5 record, Lamar is the winningest basketball team in the 32-team National Invitation Tournament field - and perhaps the most irate at being passed over by the NCAA tournament committee.

Coach Pat Foster, who also is the school's athletic director, says the Cardinals may drop out of the Southland Conference because Foster believes the league doesn't carry enough clout within the NCAA.

"The problem that is evident to everyone is we have an image problem," Foster said. "I think the problem is more acute with the conference than with Lamar."

Lamar, which won the Southland Conference regular season title but was upset by Louisiana Tech in the finals of the league's postseason tournament, will play New Mexico in one of the NIT's opening-round games tonight.

In other first-round games tonight, it's Old Dominion, 20-10, at Notre Dame, 17-11; Georgia, 17-12, at Tennessee-Chattanooga, 23-6; Florida, 16-12, at South Alabama, 22-7; St. Peter's, 23-5, at Tennessee, 19-13, and Southwestern Louisiana, 20-8, at Utah State, 19-10.

On Thursday night, it's Florida State, 19-10, at North Carolina State, 19-13; Georgia Tech, 18-10, at Virginia Tech, 18-12; Wichita State, 18-11, at Michigan, 18-10; Nebraska, 17-11, at Creighton, 17-13, Ohio State, 15-13, at Xavier, Ohio, 20-9; Marquette, 16-12, at Iowa State, 16-12, and Santa Clara, 22-8, at Oregon, 16-12.

The opening round concludes Friday night with three games - Boston College, 17-11, vs. St. Joseph's, 20-8, and Pittsburgh, 16-12, vs. La Salle, 20-10, at Philadelphia, and Fordham, 19-14, at Weber State, 22-8.

The second and third rounds will also be played at regional sites. The four surviving teams will advance to New York City for the semifinals and finals to be played at Madison Square Garden on March 26 and March 28.

Tradition an added plus for WTC, says Johnson

By BILL McCLELLAN
SDN Sports Editor

You watch television or pick up a newspaper and see where Ralph Sampson has just scored 34 points, Moses Malone has grabbed 22 rebounds and Steve Young has signed a 40 million dollar football contract and you get tired of all the superstar status, the heros and the talk of big bucks. So you go out to the college in search of a normal type of guy on a normal sort of sports team.

And what do you know? You find one without even looking hard.

Well, wait a minute. It's true, the Westerners aren't exactly a normal team. They are the Region V champions. And Fred Johnson, an all-conference, all-region selection, is not what you'd call an average player. Still, it's refreshing.

"We believe we're going to go up there and kind of put Snyder and Western Texas back on the map," said the 6-7 guard-forward from Buffalo, NY, who helped lead the Westerners to a berth in this year's NJCAA National Tournament. "We hope we can accomplish some things for ourselves and the school and the people of Snyder. Our support here has been great. We couldn't have done it without the people of Snyder."

See what I mean?

One key to Western's success this season, other than its obvious talent and coaching, has been the way the team pulls together, said Johnson.

"We've got a lot of unity. We believe in each other. My first two games at the regional tournament weren't real good ones but Billy Chambers, Jeff Gibson and Big Mel (Melroy Butler) came in and played real well. Everybody does their part. The freshmen, well, you can't speak enough about them. They've been the key to our season."

It's been a season of ups and downs. After a 7-5 start, 1-3 in conference play, the Westerners began to come together. They hit another rough streak a month ago, but since then they've won seven straight games, beating the Western and Northern conference's best teams along the way.

Johnson said he didn't really think about Western Texas getting to the national tournament this year - not after a 10-21 season in 1982-83, but said the goal was always there.

"We've done everything one step at a time. Our main goal this year was to get to the regional tournament and we did that. Then we wanted to go to nationals, and we've done that. Now we're going to Kansas and do the best we can there. We know it's going to be tough. Miami Dade (WTC's first-round opponent) has been there the last three years. They've got a lot of tradition.

"But I think we've got tradition too. I think the tradition of this school will help us at nationals," said the business management major, speaking of the schools' five previous trips to the national tournament. "It kind of like an omen, you know? I mean Coach (Barry) Davis, he's been successful and Phil (assistant coach Phil Spradling) was successful here and at Tulsa and there is all this tradition."

Yep, the team takes a lot of pride into nationals, not the least of which is the pride Snyder can find in Fred Johnson.

Dear Abby

'Father-Daughter' Pair Is Case of Mistaken Identity

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1984 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I just read the letter from "Older Than I Look in Tucson" and want to add my experience.

I am a woman in my mid-30s but could easily pass for 18 or 19. My husband is 43, but looks older. We are constantly mistaken for father and daughter. At first we were embarrassed and even annoyed when strangers made this mistake, but we have learned to handle it with humor.

For example, if we are in a restaurant and the waiter turns to me and asks, "And what would your father like to drink?" I reply with a sly wink, "He's not my father—but please don't tell my husband."

And if someone asks my husband, "What will your daughter have?" he replies, "That's not my daughter, that's my son, and frankly I'm worried about him."

"Older Than I Look in Tucson" will probably have to deal with that problem the rest of her life, so I suggest she have some stock answers ready.

BEEN THERE IN MILWAUKEE

DEAR BEEN: Good advice. Humor often lubricates the sticklest of situations.

DEAR ABBY: I believe you erred in approving the use of the title "Dr." on wedding invitations. The use of such titles is appropriate only in a professional context.

Using professional titles in a social context, such as thank-you notes or in wedding invitations, implies a haughty attitude, since there is no other reason to convey information about one's education. I hope you will reconsider.

I happen to be a physician, but since this has nothing to do with my profession, I will sign myself ....

VIVIAN WHITE

DEAR VIVIAN WHITE: I agree with you. But neither Amy Vanderbilt nor Emily Post agrees with us.

DEAR ABBY: I feel compelled to comment on your reply to "Wants a Ring," whose boyfriend, a Seventh-Day Adventist, told her that because his religion forbids wearing jewelry of any kind, she shouldn't expect a wedding ring. You wisely advised her to talk to a local pastor of that church and ask for some educational material about what is expected of its members.

If she becomes a Seventh-Day Adventist and holds to the teachings of that church, she will be expected to abstain from:

1. Reading fictional material.
2. Playing cards or games that invoke rage or stimulate competition.
3. Wearing jewelry.
4. Using cosmetics.
5. Using tobacco in any form.
6. Drinking alcoholic beverages, coffee and tea.
7. Having marital relations on the Sabbath, which begins at sundown on Friday night and ends at sundown on Saturday. It is considered a sin to seek pleasure on the day set aside to worship the Lord.

NANCY B.

Coal board seeks injunction

LONDON (AP) — With 101 of Britain's 174 coal mines shut down by a strike, the National Coal Board said it would seek a court injunction today to bar pickets from stopping miners who still want to work.

Militant union leaders have vowed to spread the strike throughout the entire 183,000 workforce in the state-owned industry, and on Tuesday night hundreds of "flying pickets" from the strike-bound county of Yorkshire in northern England traveled by bus to counties where miners were still working.

The Yorkshire militants moved from mine to mine in Nottinghamshire and Derbyshire, turning back night shift workers as they were about to report for duty.

Traditional loyalties within Britain's tight-knit mining communities make miners reluctant to cross a picket line of striking colleagues. Nottinghamshire and Derbyshire miners will take their own strike votes on Thursday and Friday.

State carries out execution of Autry

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — James David Autry, smiling at a female pen-pal and saying "I love you," was executed with a lethal injection early today for killing a convenience store clerk.

It was the second time within six months that Autry lay strapped to a hospital gurney in the death chamber, intravenous needles inserted into his arms. But this time there was no stay of execution.

Autry was pronounced dead at 12:40 a.m. by prison doctor L.A. Masters.

Gov. Mark White had announced 70 minutes earlier that he would not halt the execution.

The U.S. Supreme Court had voted 7-2 earlier Tuesday to reject Autry's request for a fourth stay.

At 12:03 a.m. Autry was strapped to the gurney with white leather belts. A needle was inserted in his left arm at 12:05 and into his right arm at 12:10. At 12:15, a saline solution to carry the fatal drugs began to flow. A minute later, the witnesses were brought into the death chamber.

The flow of lethal drugs began at 12:25 a.m. Warden Jack Purley asked Autry if he had any last words, and Autry replied, "No."

Autry smiled at Shirley Tadlock, a Dallas mother of three who began corresponding with Autry last October.

"I love you," Autry said.

Mrs. Tadlock, clutching a wad of pink tissues, answered, "I love you, too."

Autry blinked several times and breathed deeply. Mrs. Tadlock cried out, "I love you, J.D."

"I love you, too," he replied.

The smile left Autry's face and he began to frown as his breathing became more labored.

"I'm being big for you, just for you, not for me," Mrs. Tadlock said. "I love you, pretty brown eyes."

Autry took several deep breaths, his feet began to wriggle, and his breathing became faster. He cried again, "I love you."

Mrs. Tadlock said, "I love you, baby. I'm sorry for what they're doing for you."

At one point during their exchange, Autry exclaimed: "Oh, it's hurting."

After the inmate was pronounced dead, Mrs. Tadlock asked permission to hug and kiss the body. The request was denied.

Autry left all his possessions to the Dallas woman, who was brought to the prison by her husband, Ray. Autry also had corresponded with the couple's three children, who had written letters to the Supreme Court to ask for mercy for Autry.

The appeal defense lawyer Stefan Presser filed with the Supreme Court on Friday contended Autry was the victim of cruel and unusual punishment because of the aborted execution.

"I just feel justice has been done," Harold Ferrell said after the execution.

Ferrell is the brother of Shirley Drouet, the convenience store clerk Autry was convicted of killing by shooting her in the forehead during a 1980 attempted robbery in Port Arthur. Ferrell spoke in a telephone interview from his home in Duncan, Okla.

About 200 spectators gathered outside the prison Tuesday night as the death hour approached. Prison officials had instituted new crowd control measures, roping off a city block and stationing guards at 10-foot intervals, to avoid the beer-drinking, shouting mobs who turned up at the execution of Charlie Brooks in 1982 and when Autry was scheduled to die in October.

Ruth Ann Bellows of Houston arrived with a group calling themselves "Parents of Murdered Children."

"It'll make me sleep tonight knowing he's dead," she said. She said the reason she came was "to see a man die who deserves to die."
