Optimism Is Guiding Light of Annual C. of C. Banquet Last Friday Evening

Optimism was the guiding light of the annual Chamber of Commerce banquet at the armory Friday evening.

The note of good cheer reached a climax when D. A. Bindeen of Stamford, manager of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, declared to more than 200 cheerful men and women that West Texas is leading the nation back toward recovery.

It was a sizable group of distinguished visitors that joined with many Scurry County men and women in a "come and fetch it" banquet, and leaned on impromptu tables as a snappy program was unfolded.

The guest list were: D. A. Bindeen of Stamford; W. R. Ely of Abilene, member and former chairman of the state highway commission; C. S. Craven, of Slaton, division superintendent of the Santa Fe Railway; D. L. Haddley and T. A. Blair of Slaton, division superintendent and engineer, respectively, of the Santa Fe; T. N. Carswell, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, Abilene; J. H. Green, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, Colorado; Rev. Cal Wright, pastor of the First Methodist Church, Colorado; John Hendryx, manager of the board of city development, Sweetwater; C. H. Chapman of Amarillo; J. O. Saunders of Lubbock.

W. R. Ely pointed out in the principal address that a new order of things has come—that even in this comparatively young country, farming is giving way to industrialism. He traced the gradual growth of early railroading days to the day of the modern highway, and declared it to be fitting that the local banquet be held on Texas Independence Day, the focal point of 98 years of Texas progress.

Open Selling of Cotton on Which Loans Obtained

Farmers are advised by the county agent that they can sell the spot cotton, upon which they placed the 15-cent-a-pound loan last fall, to any cotton buyer they care to sell to. In fact, they are urged to get competitive bids from different buyers just as they would do if they had just ginned the cotton.

It was not the intent and purpose of the government, through the Commodity Credit Corporation to centralize this cotton in any group's hands, but rather that this cotton be so handled that the farmer will receive the best possible price for it, save the loan. Without competitive bidding many times the farmer does not receive the full price.

It is suggested that farmers hold on to their cotton as long as possible, only selling it when it is necessary for them to get funds.

Initial Showing Of "Knee Action" Chevrolet Here

The new Chevrolet with "knee-action" wheels, 80-horsepower "Blue Streak" engine, streamlined body and an imposing list of improvements and refinements is on display now in Snyder at the Yoder Chevrolet Company.

In the design and development of the new models, particular attention has been given to drive, and passenger comfort and every effort has been made to eliminate the sensations of both sound and vibration that prove annoying to the motorist.

The new Chevrolet is longer—it has a 112 inch wheelbase—rounder, more powerful, smoother and more quiet than its predecessor. The engine is placed several inches farther forward in the chassis and seating has been rearranged.

The additional length is disposed so as to provide more space for the front seat occupants and considerably more room for the rear seat passengers.

In appearance, the sleekness which has characterized Chevrolet cars in the past, is further accentuated by the actual length increase plus the treatment of the car design itself.

The increased power delivered by the new "Blue Streak" engine improves the flashing performance and the many engine refinements, combined with distinct chassis improvements insure extremely fast, safe, economical and quiet operation.

Both front and rear seat passengers are insulated from road shocks by the introduction of independent front wheel suspension—known as the "knee action" wheel—combined with improved rear spring suspension and a more balanced distribution of weight.

A Finished Product?

Some of the young folks who return from college with their noses in the air remind us of the famous cartoon darkey, who declares that "education sho ruin dat young gen'tman—I can't figuh out of he finished college—er of college finished him!"

West Texas Takes the Lead.

Manager Bandeen of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce struck a high note of hope at the Friday night banquet when he stated that West Texas is leading the nation back toward recovery. He has figures to prove his point. Come to think of it,

A C. of C. Question.

Another question we want to ask about the Chamber of Commerce banquet is this: How much beef would a social-climbing woman eat if she had no witnesses? Some of them ate Friday night as if their husbands had not bought any groceries for a week.

Like Father Like Son.

Talkative Tillie has more respect for the little boy who brags openly about his physical prowess than she has for his street-leading daddy who brags about what he would do if he were in Roosevelt's shoes—and then lets his wife make the living by the sweat of her brow.

An Unsurpassed Pageant.

Says Josiah William Bailey, United States Senator from North Carolina: "It is an unsurpassed pageant, the unfolding of the trees and the landscape. There is nothing that I know of that compares with it. Each tree marks, in its own way, a stage in the coming of spring, and between April 15 and May 1 they reach a glorious climax of color and gladness."

Maybe We'll Sit Pretty.

A farm magazine cites figures to prove that if we hold down our 1934 cotton production to 10,000,000 bales, we should be "sitting pretty." Estimated consumption to August 1 would cut the carryover from 13,228,000 to 10,207,000 bales. Domestic consumption for the first five months of the season totaled 2,416,000 bales or the largest for that period since 1929-30. Cotton exports are holding in line with pre-war levels.

This Jeffersonian Democracy.

Who were the real Democrats of other days? The Times is certain that if some of today's staunch Democrats who believe in Jefferson, Jackson and Wilson as the shining examples of government by the people, would read their histories more closely, they would find some facts to make them blink. Government, of by and for the people is a beautiful phrase, but governments are just not run that way for long at a time.

Alfred Witt-McDonald.

Judging from the tone of gubernatorial prophecies, this year's race toward the capital city mansion will be lively and interesting to the sidelines. One prophet who is on the capitol doorsteps avers that Alfred will lead and Witt will probably follow. Another, who claims to be voicing the opinions of many editors, declares that Witt will probably place seventh. Most of them are agreed that Ferguson's man, McDonald, will not get in the runoff... that reminds us of some of the prophecies that preceded the Sterling-Ferguson scramble—and the Ferguson victory.

Harley Sadler Serves.

Year after year Harley Sadler and his company of entertainers have served West Texas. It is said that one can refer to such a traveling troupe as a bearer of real service to the community. Too often the chief accomplishments of here-today-and-gone-tomorrow troupes are ballyhoo and cheap showmanship. Harley and his associates are different, in a way that is pleasing to hundreds of people every season. Mr. Sadler's willingness to cooperate with county schools in their one-act play tournament this week is a potent example of what we mean when we say that Harley Sadler serves.

Sam Makes a Mistake.

Pessimism Pete has a story to tell. It seems that a Tennessee mountaineer decided to purchase a farm for $10,000. He and his wife appeared on the appointed day at the appointed place. He informed the owner that he wanted to pay cash, much to the surprise of witnesses. He carried a water bucket covered with a cupowel. When paying time came he removed the towel and displayed a bucketful of greenbacks. Counting them out one by one, he suddenly yelled, "Mirandy, we been robbed. There ain't

Better Days for the Cattlemen.

It is evident all along the range line that the cattleman is at last getting some benefit from the New Deal.

And it is not Uncle Sam alone that is coming to the rescue of this class of men that has probably been the last to feel the virus of recovery.

Nature is boding every effort to make 1934 a better year for the man who raises cattle and depends upon cattle for his livelihood. And the cattlemen themselves are cooperating in efforts that are helping all the way from Corpus Christi to the plains country.

Frank Reeves, whose Star-Telegram column is probably the most widely read daily offering for cattlemen, points out that the United States Department of Agriculture has practically wiped out the cattle tick in Texas. This state, he says, has almost twice as many cattle as any other state in the Union, and thus is one of the last areas to get rid of the fatal fever tick. Here is a highlight of progress in the cattleman's realm.

Again, the keen interest in buying and trading at this week's San Angelo show is proof that purebreds and profits are coming back into the cattleman's world. It is fitting that Winston Brothers of Scurry County took a prominent part in San Angelo sales.

Now comes the Fort Worth Fat Stock Show, which has been a cattleman's stimulus for years. We might as well prepare for one of the most optimistic gatherings of cattlemen in recent years.

One of the reasons why it has been difficult for Uncle Sam to help the cattleman as quickly as he helped other phases of American industry is because the cattleman's problems were deeper and required more time for healing. Now that a wee bit of assistance is seeping through governmental fingers, and now that nature is providing better ranges, look for a gradual improvement in this major Texas—and Scurry County—industry.

EDITORIAL OF THE WEEK

THE FIRST YEAR IN TEXAS.

The first year of the New Deal has affected conditions in Texas very materially, changed the public temper from one of doubt and almost of panic to one of hopefulness and growing confidence, and created an altogether different outlook.

A year ago cotton was selling around six cents a pound; now the price is around 12 cents. A year ago the prevailing price of petroleum was about 50 cents a barrel, and in May it went down to 25 cents a barrel; today the price is about one dollar a barrel, and the ultimate outlook is for stability, in spite of current uncertainty. These two commodities affect nearly half of our people directly and a large percentage of the rest of our people indirectly. The greater part of the improved conditions prevailing in most lines in the state may be traced directly to the changed status of these two commodities.

The CWA work during the past few months has affected the volume of retail trade to a considerable degree, but we are decidedly of the opinion that the chief influence in affecting most lines favorably has been the improvement in cotton and petroleum. Anything that may happen to these two commodities in the future, or either of them, would affect general conditions in the State to a much greater degree than anything that may happen to the CWA work. This is the real reason that improvement in Texas has been more marked than in most States, and why the influence of the CWA work is of greater importance in most other States than it is in Texas. On the other hand, this advantage could be changed to a great disadvantage in relation to other States by anything of an unfavorable character that might happen to cotton or petroleum. It is in order, therefore, to examine to what extent government measures have operated to bring about the change with respect to these two commodities and to ask in what ways such measures may affect them in the future.

In the case of cotton it may be said that the price improvement has been due to many causes, but there can be little doubt that the major part of it can be accounted for by the decline in the value of the dollar, which began with the abandonment of the gold standard in the United States in April. It is probable that 60 per cent of the increase in the price of cotton during the past year has been due to this cause. The reason for this is that cotton is more truly an export commodity, and therefore more directly affected by international exchange than any other American commodity. Anything that changes the relationship between the American dollar and the currencies of other countries, especially the British pound sterling, affects the price of cotton, either at home or abroad. The decline in the value of the dollar, therefore, has been reflected in the price of cotton more quickly than in the prices of other American commodities.

Summing up results of the first Roosevelt year, certainly it must be said that Texas has made much progress out of the pit of depression down which it was still descending a year ago. Like the rest of the country, Texas still has far to travel before it can be said to have attained complete recovery. The circumstance that it has made greater progress toward complete recovery than most of the other States is an assurance that this progress will continue.

But it has been our view all along that complete recovery would not be attained in Texas nor in the country as a whole until the economic relations of the United States to the other countries of the world should be adjusted on a basis better calculated to restore and sustain international commerce. We have viewed most of the measures adopted by the administration during the past year as emergency measures, designed to tide the country over until the fundamental processes of recovery might be set in motion. Consequently, we regard the decision of the administration to work out a new national commercial policy to be a fitting climax of the efforts of the first year. It means, we think, that the real job of achieving recovery is to be tackled in earnest. Having checked the forces of inexorable deflation and decline we are now to begin the task of reconstruction. When that task is undertaken in earnest, it will be a great day for Texas.—The Texas Weekly.

but $8,000 in this here knocket." His wife calmly replied: "No, Sam, we ain't been robbed. You just got the wrong bucket."

Comes the Second Year.

At the beginning of Roosevelt's second year as chief pilot of the presidential bark, the world expresses as many attitudes toward his work as the world has voices. Dictator... Mussolini... politician... partisan... economic meddler... social disrupter... pill doctor... savior of a nation... broad-minded... greatest president... little man's this man Roosevelt has wielded a magic wand and some degree of order and profit has come out of a poor degree of chaos and loss. As Andy would say, "dat's amppar."

Applications for Production Loans Being Received by Sweetwater Unit

Applications for production loans to farmers and stockmen in six counties are now being received by A. M. Cooper, secretary-treasurer of the Sweetwater Production Credit Association. According to Mr. Cooper all loans will be made on a business basis and according to the security furnished by the applicant.

"The loans that will be made in this county and the other five counties served by the Sweetwater association must be good loans and loans that are collectable if the association is to continue as a permanent service to farmers in this and other communities as intended," Mr. Cooper said.

"Fortunately, not all farmers in this county need credit," he continued, "but for those who do the association stands as a business organization—not as a charity institution. Loans may be obtained for periods of 3 to 12 months by any eligible deserving farmer or stockman who needs credit and has security; but if a farmer or stockman is eligible for credit it must be extended on a business basis."

Each applicant has to state in his application what property he is offering to secure the loan, Mr. Cooper said. Security for these loans will consist of first liens on crops, livestock or other personal property on which a lien or chattel mortgage may be taken to secure the loan adequately. The lien may be taken on property already in the possession of the borrower, or to be purchased with the money borrowed. It is not intended that production loans shall be secured principally by mortgages on real estate. Where this type of security is taken it will be regarded only as additional collateral.

Charges Will Be Small. Mr. Cooper said that the charges on production loans would be as low as possible in keeping with business credit. A small fee is charged to inspect the property offered as security by the applicant, but usually no charge will be made for inspection if the loan is not to be granted.

The minimum amount that can be loaned in any one eligible borrower is $50. The interest rate is three per cent above the discount rate of the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank of Houston, and charged only for the actual number of months the loan is outstanding. The present discount rate of the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank is three per cent, which would make the interest rate to the farmer-borrower six per cent per annum.

Loans may be obtained for general agricultural purposes including the cost of growing, cultivating, or marketing crops, and for the production of livestock, and dairy and poultry products.

Most of the loans will run from 3 to 12 months, and are to be due and payable at the time when the crops and livestock financed are sold. Each farmer or stockman borrowing for the first time automatically becomes a member of the association, since each is required to own voting stock in the association equal to $5 for every $100 or fraction thereof he borrows. The stock may be purchased with a part of the loan proceeds. It is the only voting stock in the association, and may be purchased only by borrowers, each having only one vote regardless of the amount borrowed. A farmer or stockman who becomes a member of the association does not have to "stand good for" the loans of the association, or the debts of other borrowers. The stock carries no double liability.

The Sweetwater Production Credit Association, which is authorized to make loans in this county, is one of 50 which have been established in this state. Most of the capital of the association is provided by the Production Credit Corporation of Houston, which is supervising the work of associations in Texas. Director of Scurry County is O. P. Thrane of Snyder, and Mrs. Maude M. Akers is application writer.
