Rep. Ezzell's Bill Is Gaining Support

By JACK KEEVER

AUSTIN (AP)-Sad stories of the abuse of helpless elderly patients in nursing homes conflicted Monday with state officials' testimony that many complaints aren't justified.

The Senate Committee on Human Resources approved a bill, 9-0 to allow the state to move quicker in shutting down homes that threaten the health of their patients.

Nursing home employes could go to prison for deliberately injuring patients. There also are civil penalties of $25 to $1,000.

The House Committee on Health and Welfare continued testimony on that chamber's version of the nursing home bill today.

Lyle Hamner of the Texas Senior Citizens Association, endorsed both the Senate measure and the companion bill by Rep. Mike Ezzell, D-Snyder.

Hamner said the quality of nurses aides, who have direct contact with patients, often was low.

In one case, he said, a man was hired as a janitor but was told after reporting for work, "We need you more as a nurses aide." Soon, he said, the ex-janitor was given keys to the drug cabinet and was administering medication.

"There will be no improvement until the legislature understands that people who do the work with patients are at the bottom of the employability ladder," said Allen Skidmore, executive director of the Texas Association of Homes for the Aging.

He said in-service training should be mandated by law.

"Education shouldn't just be how to change beds and empty bed pans, but on what is an old person and why they are here in a nursing home," Skidmore said.

Committee chairman John Wilson suggested that way to get at the problem of abuse and neglect would be to pass a law similar to the one on child abuse. It provides criminal penalties for failure to report abuse or neglect and established a central registry of abuse reports in the welfare department.

It got Brenda Hedges a lot of telephone calls. In one of our stories last week about the upcoming Scurry County Rodeo we had two numerals transposed in a phone number and people were calling Brenda about rodeo parade entries. She said she couldn't figure out what happened at first---she probably suspected that someone was trying to pull a practical joke. Finally, she learned that her phone number was listed as one to call about entering the parade. But she was nice about it. She didn't really complain, but merely asked that we re-run the number and get the numerals back in place.

Jess Everett wonders why we suddenly have an invasion of grackles here, but few crows.

The grackle, a large, black bird with a raspy voice which it seems to keep in gear constantly, has moved in. Everett said he never saw a grackle here until a couple of years ago. Now, there seem to be hundreds of them.

We saw a boat-tailed grackle recently on the Western Texas College campus and thought it was a freak incident. But we understand a number of them have congregated there.

And, apparently, as the grackles came in, the crows disappeared. A few years ago there were huge flocks of crows in this area. They were so thick in the China Grove area along the Scurry-Mitchell County line that nocturnal dynimite blasts and other stern measures were taken to reduce the crow population.

The Environmental Protection Agency just announced that the City of Houston had paid a $28,000 penalty for violating unleaded fuel regulations in the operation of police cars last March. It seems they put those small nozzles for unleaded fuel on pumps dispensing leaded gasoline.

Unleaded gasoline always appealed to us, but until recent years the lead was required to keep that irritating "ping" noise out of the engine. But the big mystery is why the unleaded gasoline costs most these days. There was a time when unleaded (it was often called "white gas" then) was the lowest priced gasoline you could buy. Now, it is mostly a penny a gallon higher than the premium ethyl, or heavily leaded type.

Begin Welcomed In Washington

By MARCUS ELIASON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)-Israeli Prime Minister Menahem Begin, arriving at the White House today for talks with President Carter, said Israel "yearns for peace, prays for peace and will do everything humanly possible...for a real peace."

But Begin signaled Israel's continuing refusal to withdraw from the occupied West Bank of the Jordan by warning that "in certain circumstances...the life of every man, woman and child" in Israel could be "directly threatened and put in jeopardy."

These are the precise words Begin uses in arguing Israel's case for keeping the West Bank under Israeli control.

Israeli sources said the prime minister brought several maps for Carter, one showing tiny Israel surrounded by the vast Arab world and another showing how Arab guns would be in firing range of Israeli cities if Arabs occupied the West Bank.

In the South Lawn welcoming ceremonies, Carter praised Begin for his "willingness to suffer for principle...his superlative personal courage in face of trial, challenge and disappointment."

Carter also commended Begin's "deep and unswerving religious commitments."

Referrring briefly to the Middle East conflict. Carter said he was "encouraged" by Begin's assurances that "all points are negotiable." The President said he hoped for success in settling the Middle East conflict this year.

Begin arrived in sweltering heat to a 19-gun salute. The one time guerrilla leader stood ramrod stiff as the U.S. and Israeli anthems were played.

Begin opened his remarks in Hebrew and reminded Carter of the World War II Nazi holocaust in which the Jews "were thrown into the abyss." Later to win statehood "in an unequal fight of the few against the many, the weak against the strong, right against might."

Begin said "peace is inseperable from national security." The News had "experience of physical annhilation and spiritual redemption" which had taught them that national security meant "the lives of every man, woman and child," he said.

Rev. Andress Optimistic

Minister Credits Lord With Speedy Recovery

By JOHN LONG

Seriously burned six weeks ago, Rev. Ken Andress credits divine intervention in speeding him along the road to recovery.

Rev. Andress, the pastor of the First Baptist Church of Snyder, was priming the carburetor of a car the afternoon of June 2 when the motor backfired and the can of gasoline he held in his right hand burst into flames.

With second and third degree burns over approximately 30 per cent of his body, Andress was taken to Parkland Hospital in Dallas. For Andress, it was the beginning of a long and painful recovery and a continuing test of his belief in the Almighty.

The burns were centered about his chest, with the severest burns on his right hand and upper right forearm. He was a patient at Parkland for two weeks and an out-patient at the hospital for another week.

"The most unique opportunity any Christain will ever have to give testimony in behalf of God's grace is when trauma and tradedy occur," the soft-spoken Andress said.

"I'm hoping that in two months I'll have control of my right arm and hand," Andress said optimistically. But full recovery is still months distant.

During the interview held in his office at the church, Andress wore an elastic body stocking called a jobst which is used to smooth out grafted skin and aid in healing. He remembers how he was told by one of his doctors in Dallas that he might have difficulty in regaining full use of his right hand, which he is told was charred in the mishap.

Sales Tax Rebate Still Gains Here

Snyder's city sales tax rebates continue to sail along well ahead of last year's figures, according to reports from the office of State Comptroller Bob Bullock.

For the period ending July 1, the comptroller reported a total rebate of $35,168 for Snyder. This compares with a total of $15,349 for the same period last year and the new figure runs to total for the year to $244,753, compared with $220,479 at the same stage last year.

Cities assessing the one per cent sales tax receive the rebate.

The July 1 rebates for other area cities in Snyder's population bracket included Levelland with $26,219; Brownfield, $22,747; Sweetwater, $20,707; Monahans, $19,932; Lamesa, $15,745; and Pecos, $10,309. All except Pecos had substantial increases over last year. Pecos had a decrease of some $3,000.

Other reports in the immediate Snyder area included Colorado City, $6,523; Roscoe, $1,206; Rotan $803; and Roby, $570.

Demand For Water Soars This Month

Barring a drastic change in the weather for the wetter, the Colorado River Municipal Water District may be heading for a record July. It's almost certain to eclipse July 1976, which showed a dip when midsummer showers dulled demand.

So far, deliveries have been maintaining the June level when the district delivered an average of 70.74 million gallons a day.

Through the first half Odessa has averaged 22.2 million gallons a day compared to 22.9 million gallons in June of this year and only 15.4 million gallons in July 1976. Big Spring has been averaging 10 million gallons a day, up slightly from the 9.67 million gallon daily average in June and 7.8 million gallons a day in July 1976. Snyder has been averaging 3.75 million gallons a day, about the same as for June but well over the 2.71 million gallons a day in July 1976. Midland has been averaging 15 million gallons a day, up slightly over 14.5 million gallons a day in June, but well over the 11.3 million gallons a day in July 1977.

Except for a few minor breaks, the system has been functioning smoothly and meeting demands in stride, said Paschall Odom, assistant general manager, who directs operations.

Drama Instructor Is Named At WTC

Jeanne Kobuszewski, theatre instructor at Glenville State College in Glenville, W. Va., for the past four years, has been named instructor in speech and drama at Western Texas College.

A graduate of Marymount College in Salina, Kan., with the bachelor of arts degree in speech and drama, Miss Kobuszewski received the master of arts in theatre from Central Michigan University in 1972. During the 1976-77 school year, she has served as a member of the State of West Virginia Accreditation Team for Higher Education in the area of Oral Communications, visiting colleges and universities which grant teaching degrees to evaluate and determine accreditation feasibility.

At Glenville State, Miss Kobuszewski has had teaching responsibilities for all theatre course offerings including the design, technical and stage direction as well as teaching some speech courses. Some major theatre productions have included "Picnic," "You Can't Take It With You," "All My Sons," "The Great Cross Country Race," and "Brecht on Brecht."

She introduced Children's Theatre when she began work at Glenville and one of the Children's Theatre productions, "The Dragon of Nitt," was televised for the educational station WSWP.

Miss Kobuszewski began work on the Ph. D. in the summer of 1974 when she went to London, England, to study under BBC actress Valerie Colgan at the University of London.

Travel is one of Miss Kobuszewski's interests, and she has visited Iceland, Germany, Scotland, Switzerland, Italy, France, Holland, Belgium, Austria and England as well as traveling in the United States.

Students interested in speech and drama scholarships for the fall at Western Texas College may contact Dr. Ben Brock until the new instructor arrives.

The younger Bush, a 31-year-old Republican, said he is counting on strong name identification but "I'm going to campaign on my own ability to win."

there is a limit

There is no guarantee that the increased trade between the United States and the Soviet Union will prevent war or eventually soften the U.S.S.R into a liberal democracy.

The two countries could exchange goods with each other for the next 100 years and still be at daggers drawn; ideologically if not militarily.

Even so, every new trade tie with the Soviets adds to a bond of mutual interest that is that much harder to break in anger.

There are two caveats to keep in mind, however.

One is that we never again let ourselves be suckered like a bunch of peasants of the communal farm, as we were in the imfamous 1972 wheat deal. (We seem to have learned that lesson.)

The other is that we permit nothing to be sold to them that would give the Soviets a military boost, or undercut an advantage we have.

The U.S. Commerce Department has upheld the second principle by denying Control Data Corp. of Minneapolis an export license to sell a sophisticated computer system to the Soviet Union.

The computer - the Cyber 76 - is designed for use in weather research. But "because it is far more powerful than any computer known to the Soviet Union, the likelihood of diversion to military or strategic uses is of serious concern," the department's export administrator decided.

Control Data is quite upset and says it may appeal. Which inevitably reminds us of the prediction attributed to Lenin that when the last capitalist is hanged, it will be with the rope he sold his executioners.

It can be argued, of course, that anything we sell the Soviets can be diverted to a military or strategic use. A pound of wheat can feed a worker to make a pound of steel to be used in a missile.

But the logical extension of that would be resolutely no trade with the Russians at all, which would be impractical, even if we didn't need their chrome and other resources.

What we don't need, however, is their chrome or rubles in exchange for technology they are years behind us in developing.

Too much American high technology has already been exported to the Soviet Union. This time somebody wisely peeked inside the package.

"I give up dear, what has Spike found buried in our back yard?"

olympics still sought

Six U.S. cities - Atlanta, Boston, Chicago, Los Angeles, New Orleans and New York - are bidding to be selected as the site of the 1984 Summer Olympics.

This is more than a little surprising, given the recent history of the games, not to mention the budgetary plight of the last named city especially.

While Montreal, which hosted the 1976 edition, was spared a repetition of the tragedy that stained the Olympics four years earlier in Munich, it did witness such shameful episodes as the expulsion of Taiwan and the walkout of 20 or more African teams protesting something or other.

That the Olympics have become as much an arena for rival ideologies as for competing athletes is bad enough.

The good citizens of Montreal are still holding the bag for $1 billion in construction debts for facilities for the 1976 games - including a terrorist-proof Olympic Village - and are paying for their city's brief moment of glory in the form of a variety of higher taxes.

Yet it would be unfortunate were the Olympics ever to be abolished, for all their abundant shortcomings as a moral substitute for war or as a paying proposition for the city that hosts them.

Since they have to be held somewhere, on balance it is pleasing that it will probably be an American city in 1984, as no foreign city is currently in the running.

But we wish the "winning" city a lot of luck.

our short memory

Every pessimist in history has been wrong.

Today always has been a better day than yesterday and tomorrow better yet.

Every pessimist in history has been buried in an unmarked grave!

In 1860 there was a fuel shortage in the United States, a shortage so acute that one Boston newspaper headlined: "The lights will go out all over the world."

The energy crisis of 1860 was a shortage of whale oil.

That is why we started punching holes in Texas. And thus it was that a problem put the spurs to us, prodded our nation to become the powerhouse of this planet.

In 1900 the director of the United States Patent Office asked the President (McKinley) to close the Patent Office because "everything that can be invented has been invented."

In 1903, respected astronomer Simon Newcomb wrote, "Aerial flight is one of the class of problems with which man will never be able to cope."

Four months later--Kitty Hawk!

In 1952 the then-prestigious Paley Committee predicted copper production by the mid-seventies would decline to 800,000 tons per year.

It is twice that!

Eight years ago man walked on the Moon and, in so doing, he got his first look at our Earth from out there.

He panicked!

Suddenly our Earth orbiting out there in all that nothing appeared so vulnerable, so fragile, so alone and defenseless.

So Earth Man flew back home as fast as he could, kissed the good Earth and began building fences around it. Preserve the water! Save the forests! Depollute the air! Conserve the minerals!Save, preserve, conserve...

Until now Earth Man is altogether as overly anxious about these crises as was that Boston newspaper about the depleted backlog of blubber.

Pooh-pooh these Pessimists.

And that goes double for those who get paid to spread dread.

Astrologer Irene Hughes of Chicago predicted an attempt on President Carter's life inauguration day.

British astrologers pointed to Uranus and Saturn and Mars in a "triple negative aspect" and predicted "doomsday"--last February twenty-fourth.

Los Angeles newspapers sent many residents inland by parroting the prediction of somebody named Henry Minturn that "a major earthquake" would "devastate Southern California December 20." It didn't.

University of Michigan economists Saul Hymans and Harold Sharpiro last November predicted sluggish economic growth. Everything is booming.

Even Alexander Solzhenitsyn for three years has been pronouncing the West "on the verge of collapse."

These fellows are relying on our poor memory.

WASHINGTON-(NEA)-House speaker Tip O'Neill may be the administration's most valuable ally on Capitol Hill, but President Carter is paying a stiff price for the speaker's help in steering his programs through Congress.

O'Neill, an old school politician who firmly believes in the spoils system, is using his leverage with Carter to influence - and sometimes dictate - key presidential appointments.

The latest coup is the speaker's reported success in forcing Carter to name an old O'Neill crony to a six-year term on the Federal Election Commission, the agency responsible for enforcing the campaign laws which congressional and presidential candidates must observe.

Although no formal announcement had been made at this writing, administration sources report Carter will appoint John McGarry, a veteran staff aide on the House Administration Committee, to the $50,000-a-year FEC post.

The decision to bow to O'Neill's wishes followed a bitter behind-the-scenes battle that had raged more than two months.

McGarry was not the White House's first choice for the sensitive FEC job. Carter's personnel advisers and political aides had strongly supported the candidacy of Susan King, 37, the top staff aide to FEC Chairman Thomas E. Harris.

King has worked at the election commission since it was created two years ago, and had previously played a key role in persuading Congress to enact the post-Watergate campaign reform law which established the FEC when she headed a public interest lobby known as the Center for Public Financing.

Women's groups, organized labor and a variety of public interest organizations vigorously urged her appointment to the FEC vacancy but O'Neill and certain other House Democratic leaders - including Majority Whip John Brademas-reportedly opposed her choice.

"They complained she is a knee-jerk reformer, which just isn't true," said one White House insider. "What was really bugging them is that she's not one of the usual boys in the pinstriped suits who can be counted on to do their bidding."

An aide to O'Neill insisted the speaker made no attempt to veto King for the FEC job, although he conceded that "our very, very strong backing" for McGarry might have been interpreted that way by the White House.

Carter aides who had pressed King's cause were bitter at the meddling from Capitol Hill. "It's a crying shame," one said, "but there's nothing we can do." The decision was reportedly made by Carter personally.

This is not the first time O'Neill has put the squeeze on Carter over a major appointment. Last winter, the speaker bullied the president into reneging on his decision to retain Republican Jack Eckerd as head of the General Services Administration with full authority to name his own deputy.

At O'Neill's insistence, Carter told Eckerd he would have to accept a deputy suggested by the House speaker if he wanted to stay as GSA chief. Eckerd, to his credit, wanted no part of such a sleazy deal and promptly quit.

It's not just the Democrats on Capitol Hill who have plunged into the appointment fray, either. GOP leaders in the House and Senate are trying to get Carter to name candidate of their choosing to a Republic vacancy on the FEC. So far, they have had notably less success than O'Neill.

The White House reportedly wants a Republican who wholeheartedly supports the campaign reform law and who will favor public financing of congressional elections as well. But Republicans of the stripe are hard to come by, and the congressional leaders want someone more attuned to the views of the bulk of the GOP.

All things considered, the tugging and hauling over the two FEC appointments cannot be said to constitute the finest hour of either Carter or the congressional leadership. Self-interest and back-scratching seem to have carried the day.

alien holdings eyed

By DON BEMAN
Associated Press Writer

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP)-Foreign interests own millions of acres of U.S. farmlands, but state and federal officials don't think Americans should be too worried.

"I don't see any danger of an invasion yet. But I think it should be monitored," says Iowa Secretary of Agriculture Robert Lounsberry.

"This is an emotional thing now because we're really not talking about a lot of land. But I can see where it might be a problem in the future," he said.

The U.S. Commerce department, under a 1974 federal law, is surveying foreign ownership and says preliminary reports show 4.9 million acres of land owned by foreigners, who hold leases on an additional 62.8 million.

The U.S. Agriculture Department disputes the figures, but admits it has none of its own.

The USDA also says the current totals are not significant but, like Lounsberry, maintains its concern "is not quantity at this time, but the possible implications for future investment policy."

The USDA also said it considers pinning down who owns the land an important task and notes that Iowa is the leader in finding out.

State documents show that $8.3 million worth of Iowa farmland is controlled by foreign interests, with West Germans holding title to $6.4 million worth.

The holdings amount to only 6,823 acres, two-hundredths of 1 per cent of Iowa's 34.2 million acres of farmland.

The alien ownership reports are required by an Iowa law passed in 1975 and were taken from documents on file in the secretary of state's office.

According to the documents, West Germans-mainly two families-hold 5,225 acres in the state. Lesser amounts of land are owned by Canadians, Guatemalans, Italians, Dutch and Swiss.

The value of the alien-controlled land was based on a survey done by Iowa State University which indicated the average value of Iowa farmland is $1,231 per acre.

Everywhere you look around Snyder, you see building underway. Surely this is a sign of a progressive town to see all this expansion and remodeling. I was taking great pride in this fact until the remodeling began in our office.

I'm sure our office will be a lot better when it's completed but it's been rather hectic trying to print a daily newspaper and carry on just like you had..a wall around you,..a ceiling above you...as the tile is being removed from under your feet. All of this wasn't as bad though as when they removed the lights and dropped a 200 watt bulb from the ceiling for us to grope around under.

Modern conveniences that we take for granted are certainly nice, we rediscovered. Things were better, though, after we located the coffee pot.

When the remodeling work first began we, the staff, set about our daily chores. We were all determined to make the best of the inconveniences...we were even able to joke about them. After several weeks, it began to get on everyone's nerves and it is no longer a joking matter.

Rep. Mike Ezzell is the contractor and just about the time he "wrecked" our office he was called back to Austin to the special session. We joined him and the school districts in hoping for short special session . But work on the project has progressed without him.

The dust from all the tearing down wasn't exactly ideal on people with sinus trouble either. And what West Texan doesn't have this problem?

There was also a distinct musty aroma. We first credited this to John's cigar, but later had to apologize to him.

The sawing noise was deafening and especially when you were trying to converse with someone on the telephone.

The customers that came in were shocked at the office scene. "What are you all doing"? was a common question.

Things are beginning to take shape now, so if you spotted an error in your paper recently , just charge it to the poor lighting.

And come to see our new office..when it's completed.

The staff will help you enjoy it.

To The Daily News:

I just thought it was time that someone took up for Snyder! Maybe it's a town you have to have been away from for a while to appreciate, but after twelve years in the big city, I wanted to remind everyone of how great it is to have Snyder for your "Home Town."

I had already grown to love shopping here with familiar merchants and no hassel writing a check, no grumpy employes and rude shoppers, and no place to ever find a parking place being a problem anymore, but after two weeks of having a business of my own here, I have come to appreciate the citizens that live here with me as well.

If ever a business opened and needed the kindness, friendliness and help from the community, mine did. My equipment was lost, my ice cream on the way and my building unfinished as July 4th approached. If you can find a city where the meat market will move its meat for a truck load of ice cream, your builders will stay up all night to put up a ceiling for you, your banker will help you move ice cream on the Fourth of July and the general public will come in, smile and even get behind the counter and help during rush times because you are short-handed, I'd like to know about it. I just felt that with everything going wrong for us, and yet everyone coming in with words of encouragement, patience, friendliness and understanding, I don't know how you could ever feel there was anywhere else in the world to live but Snyder. Thanks to everyone for all the help we've gotten and the kindness we've received these past two "trying" weeks.

"Man, it's good to be back home again!"

South's jump to three notrump is based on his 20 high-card points. Twenty plus six equals 26 and South plays North for at least six for his response.

You can count this way if you wish. The rule of the ace and king also shows that South should either go to game or force to game. He has an opening bid even after removing an ace and a king from his high cards.

North would pass if South just jumped to two notrump and he isn't too happy about being in game. Neither is South when he looks at dummy and the opening lead. Not that three notrump isn't a good contract. Give West the queen of clubs and South is almost sure of at least nine tricks.

South wins trick one with the king of hearts over East's queen and leads a club toward dummy's jack. East wins with the queen and returns a heart to West who collects three heart tricks.

Everything has gone wrong for South so far, but dame fortune smiles on him from here on. He has hung on to his remaining four clubs and when he gets in with the ace of diamonds he gets a 3-3 break in clubs and has his nine tricks.

Ask the Jacobys

A Louisiana reader wants to know if we ever open one notrump with a worthless doubleton.

We don't like to, but in common with all experts and most other players we will do so when our hand meets all other notrump requirements and we aren't happy with a suit opening.

(Do you have a question for the experts? Write "Ask the Jacobys" care of this newspaper. The Jacobys will answer individual questions if stamped, self-addressed envelopes are enclosed. The most interesting questions will be used in this column and will receive copies of JACOBY MODERN.)

Program Gives Dieters Education In Nutrition

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeaturers Writer

Understanding your own body is the secret of gaining weight, losing weight or just maintaining it. On that theory Thelma J. Wayler, a nutrition education specialist, established her successful school of weight control in Vermont. Originally a summer program, the three-year-old school has expanded recently to programs over a full year.

Learning what makes one fat, skinny or whatever also can provide college credits.

"We try to help people identify eating and activity behavioral problems to help them come up with self-modification techniques in an 'you are going to like you' approach. Overweight people really do not like themselves. They just think they do," Mrs. Wayler maintains.

An associate professor of nutrition education now on leave from Long Island University, Mrs. Wayler served a dietetic internship at the Jewish Hospital in Brooklyn.

In determining what people like to eat, the self-improvement school begins to identify the problems that must be faced.

The way people eat-for example, in front of television-can provide clues. The problem may be an habitual two-hour snacking rather than a 24-hour nibbling problem. Then, too, people eat when they are happy, sad, anxious. The whole thing must be brought to a conscious level, she explained.

"Each food tray becomes a visual aid in terms of portion sizes. We don't think about calories. A veal portion is 5 ounces, beef is 4 ounces. It is a nice plan of saturated and unsaturated foods that can become an easy pattern of eating," she said.

The Green Mountain Weight Control Community for Young Women (18 to 55) which Mrs. Wayler directs began as an eight-week experiment on the campus of Green Mountain College at Poultney, Vt, the creditgranting institution. The enrollment now may be from one to four months for the nutrition, behavior, body-awareness program, which some other colleges also will accept for college credit.

"Like many people involved in nutritional and metabolic experiments, I had a dream," she relates. "I wanted to bring together many things-nutrition, education, eating behavior modification and exercises-that would be professionally conceived and professionally implemented with specialists at the head of each area."

In addition to learning about nutrition and the foods essential to health, students hear lectures on fad diets, body composition, fat cells and other aspects of nutrition. They physiology of exercise is stressed.

"Everyone is required to take muscular and skeletal strength exercises that are compatible with her age, weight, fitness level and needs. The female body seems to limit itself as to what it can comfortably do and women should learn what their bodies can do," Mrs. Wayler says. "They can't flippantly decide to jog one day. Some people may do no more than walk. Others may do 20 pushups."

Allowance Is Learning Experience

CLEARWATER, Fla. (AP)-A properly planned allowance given to children in their formative years can help lead to financially solvent adulthood, believes the president of a national financial services organization based here.

"A child's weekly allowance can be used as an important tool in successfully shaping his adult life," says W. Scane Bowler of Pioneer Western Corp. "The entire spectrum of money management-saving, investing and budgeting-can be taught through that simple process."

Bowler offers these suggestions on allocating the allowance:

-Determine actual monetary needs. Discuss those needs with the youngsters. Make sure they fully understand why and how you have arrived at a specific sum.

-Promise this amount on a regular basis and keep that promise, or don't promise it at all.

-Be consistent. Rules need not be ironclad-but they should be firm. The child must realize that he or she has to live within the allowance.

-Don't put a dollar sign on achievement. Monetary rewards should not be associated with good behavior or good grades in school. This can lead to unnatural pressures for money-in some cases, it can even be a cause of cheating.

-Do not be overly concerned with what other parents in the neighborhood are giving their children. Do not permit allowances to "follow the Joneses."

-By all means, encourage the children to keep track of their expenditures as well as their income. This will act as a directional signal for future budgeting and savings.

-Carefully manage your own finances. Children are quick to pick up their parents' habits both good and bad.

Bank On Pitching, Six Home Runs...

All Stars Flood C-City, 12-1

HURLS ONE-HITTER--Brent Roemisch earned his eighth win of the year last night, allowing only one hit as the Snyder All-Stars defeated Colorado City in Little League play. Roemisch struck out 12. (SDN Staff Photo)

Brent Roemisch gave up one hit and the Snyder All-Stars banged 13, including a half-dozen home runs, as they ripped Colorado City here last night, 12-1.

Roemisch, something of a sensation in local Little League baseball, earned his eighth win against one loss and was working on a no-hitter until C-City catcher Tom Rees' single in the bottom of the fifth inning.

Meanwhile, Charlie Bollinger blasted two homers, one a three-run trip in the top of the fourth inning, to pace the local offense. Barry Davis collected his 15th home run of the year, and shared the spotlight with Curtis Gafford, Casey Peterson and John Overton, all of whom took a casual jaunt around the bases via the outfield fence. Peterson's blast in the third inning accounted for two Snyder runs.

Roemisch struck out 12 C-City batters and got into trouble only once - that in the fifth period when Rees slapped a single through the infield. The ball got past rightfielder Chris Hicks for Snyder's only error of the contest, and Rees traveled to second. Roemisch walked the next two up and Rees stole home a second later for Colorado City's only point in the game. Roemisch fanned the next two batters to retire the side.

Jessie Bodine was tagged with the loss. Bodine was relieved in the third inning by Robert Gomez. Bodine gave up six hits, while Gomez allowed seven.

Intermittingly scattered throughout Snyder's home run shots were a number of singles. Chris Hicks grabbed three one-baggers and David Gee got two. Hitting one single each were Roemisch and Barry Davis.

The Snyder All-Stars will paly their next opponent 7:30 Friday at Winters.

Sutton Picked For NL Starting Pitcher's Post

NEW YORK (AP) -- Don Sutton, who has dreamed of pitching in Yankee Stadium, and Jim Palmer, who has done well in the same ballpark, drew the starting assignments for tonight's 48th All-Star Game.

Sutton, the ace right-hander of the Los Angeles Dodgers, and Palmer, Baltimore's right-handed stopper, have fared well in previous All-Star appearances. Sutton, making his first start, has blanked the American League in five previous innings, while Palmer has hurled eight scoreless innings against the National League.

Palmer started in 1970 and 1972 without picking up a decision, but was a middle-inning reliever in 1971, the last time the AL beat the NL. Besides the five straight victories, the NL has won 13 of the last 14 All-Star confrontations.

"The starting assignment is a treat in one respect. Not many guys get to do this," said Palmer, whose career record is 20-11 against the Yankees. "The All-Star Games really haven't been so one-sided recently. Only the results have been."

The AL's chances would seem better if injuries had not ransacked its pitching staff. Out with assorted ailments are Mark Fidrych of Detroit, Frank Tanana of California and Vida Blue of Oakland. California's Nolan Ryan refused to play, leaving the AL with only three starting pitchers and four relievers.

"Despite all our injuries, I still think we have an outstanding squad and we're going to break that losing streak," AL President Lee MacPhail said Monday.

Chub Feeney, the NL President, smugly countered MacPhail's pep talk by saying, "We expect to do what we usually do."

Sutton relishes the opportunity to start for the NL, a dream come true for the pitcher who wanted to become a Yankee during the team's penny-pinching days.

"Only the fact that the Yankees weren't willing to pay me more than $2,000, and I would have played in Yankee Stadium before," Sutton said. "I spent all my childhood dreaming of one day pitching in Yankee Stadium.

"I grew up on a farm in Pensacola, Fla., and I occupied my days pitching mental shutouts with Mickey Mantle making the last out catching the ball near the monuments."

Sutton won't be on the mound to watch the final out, giving way to another pitcher, probably after three innings if NL Manager Sparky Anderson's game plan is not torpedoed by the AL bats.

It was somewhat of a surprise that Anderson, the Cincinnati skipper, was starting Sutton, with whom he has had a running feud, accusing the Dodger's ace of illegal pitching practices. Anderson maintains that Sutton attempts to make a round ball square. or some other shape, through some devious method.

"I knew I was a cinch to start when I got a note from Sparky last week asking me what grain of sandpaper I wanted him to order," joked Sutton.

Men's Leagues

Pool 13, American 8

Pool shot down American Mag. in play last night, 13-8. Winning pitcher Jimmy Grice and catcher Bud Pinkerton went the seven-inning distance. Losing pitcher was Sam Harris. His catcher was Jeff Cambell.

Jaycees 15, Atwood 9

Ron Kelly hurled the Jaycees to a 15-9 win over Atwood Construction yesterday in men's slowpitch softball action.

Bill Urban was the winning catcher. Jimmy Farmer is charged with the loss. Farmer's catcher was Emmitt Hataway.

Farm Workers Resume Walk

POPLARVILLE, Miss. (AP)—Members of the Texas Farm Workers Union on an 1800-mile walk to Washington are back on the road again today after 35 members were arrested Monday in the southwestern part of the state by county sheriff's deputies.

Antonio Orendain, spokesman for the union, said Pearl River County deputies stopped the group around noon eight miles southwest of here on Mississippi 11.

He said deputies charged marchers with obstructing traffic on the two-land highway and with obstructing justice. Orendain said that film was removed from his camera.

Sheriff Lawrence Holliday said he had been in Jackson during the morning and found the group at the courthouse when he returned. He said his deputies had not been made aware that the marchers were on their way through the county.

"But I knew they were coming through, so we had a short discussion about it - what was best - and they were sent on their way," he said. "Everybody left friendly and no charges were filed."

The union is walking 20 miles a day and hopes to reach Washington by Labor Day to publicize efforts to organize migrant farm workers in South Texas Members hope to ask President Carter to introduce legislation outlawing states' right-to-work laws.

Orendain said the union had sent letters out to governors of states and sheriffs of counties through which they are marching to advise them of their plans.

He said duputies had questioned marchers about their nationalities and said three children travelling with the group would be turned over to the county welfare office when the adults were jailed.

Orendain said "about three or four" of the group are Mexican citizens with legal residence in the United States and the others are U.S. citizens.

Orendain said the TFWU has nothing to do with the United Farm Workers Union organized by Cesar Chavez.

"Our goals are perhaps the same, but our orientation is different," he said.

Speedy Recovery

the Lord, whom I think has been responsible for much of my healing," Andress said.

"My local doctor said you cannot discount the work of God in your healing process," the 44-year-old Andress related.

Andress undergoes therapy at Cogdell Memorial Hospital three days a week and exercises his right arm three times a day. He returns to Dallas every two weeks for more therapy. He said he has been advised by his doctors that it will be another six months to a year before he is "back to normal" again.

Andress said he does not know how many skin grafts were taken from his legs to replace the destroyed skin tissue on his chest and arms. But on one leg, he said, is a flayed place seven and one-half inches wide by 12 inches long where healthy skin was removed. On the other leg is a flayed spot almost as large.

"All my skin grafts took the first time, which I consider to be a miracle of the Lord because it is very unusual for all the grafts to take the first time," said Andress.

Citing the scriptual reference of Job 1:10, Andress said he believes God allowed the accident to happen to teach him some still-unlearned lesson.

"Nothing can afflict the child of God until it is first filtered through the will of God and I believe that God allowed this to happen to me for a purpose," Andress philosophized.

"There are lessons I need to learn as a result of this experience. One of them, I believe, is patience," he said. "I have learned, am learning and will continue to learn patience from this experience," said Andress.

Perhaps another lesson intended for Andress is learning the danger of priming carburetors with gasoline.

During his stay at Parkland, Andress said he was told that about 30 per cent of all the hospital's burn patients were burned by priming carburetors with gasoline.

Andress was burned last month when priming a 1931 Buick. While still an antique car buff, he predicted he would be more careful in the future when priming carburetors.

Suspected Alien Held For Patrol

Stopping a car Monday night in Towle Park, city police officers arrested the driver of the vehicle on suspicion of being an illegal Mexican immigrant.

The 20-year-old man was taken in custody about 9 p.m. Monday following an alleged traffic violation. He is being held in city jail until he is picked up by officers of the U.S. Border Patrol.

The reports of three traffic accidents were also logged in police records.

The first mishap occurred at the intersection of 28th St. and Ave. Q Monday at 11 a.m.

Involved in the collision were a 1964 Rambler driven by Edward Ray Whitehead and a 1961 Ford driven by Loyd Holley. Only minor damages were reported.

Minor damages were also reported in the collision of two vehicles at the Spanish Inn Restaurant Monday at 5:09 p.m.

A 1976 Oldsmobile driven by Terry Lee was in collision with a 1976 Chevrolet pickup truck driven by Milton Burns of Abilene.

At 9:48 a.m. today, a minor mishap occurred in the 1900 block of 25th St.

Involved in the collision were a roadgrader driven by A.C. Rogers and a parked 1975 Datsun pickup truck owned by Willard Gladson. The roadgrader is owned by Grimmitt Brothers Construction Co.

CRMWD Faces Rate Hike

Directors of the Colorado River Municipal Water District like their counterparts in the cities the district serves, will be confronted at the next meeting with a request for higher power rates.

Texas Electric Service Company will present a request to the district at the July 25 board meeting in Big Spring for a boost of 28 per cent. Cities have been asked for increases approximating 24 per cent. In 1976 the district's electric energy bill amounted to $1,192,503, which was $291,585 more than for 1975.

Other items on the agenda included a report of the Long Range Planning and Development Committee, which is due to meet prior to the next session of the board, and a report from the Insurance Committee, which will meet at 9 p.m. July 26 to shape a recommendation for consideration of the board on employe hospitalization insurance.

Harvey To Officiate At Match

NEW YORK (AP)-Harvey, the ASPCA's "attack rabbit," will serve as guest umpire at a celebrity tennis match in Madison Square Garden Aug. 2.

The event will open a ASPCA fund-raising campaign that will include the sale of Harvey T-shirts and a tour by Harvey through 10 cities in mid-August, ASPCA director Duncan Wright said Monday.

Harvey will officiate the match along with New York Knickerbockers Coach Willis Reed. Billie Jean King and 1977 Wimbledon women's champion Virginia Wade will join the rest of the New York Apples in a match against the Cleveland Nets, featuring 1977 Wimbledon men's singles champion Bjorn Borg.

Harvey became famous when his owners brought him to the ASPCA May 23 after he had bitten six people. The number has since risen to 10. Harvey is currently "employed" as part-time guard and mascot for the ASPCA.

Wide-Open Production Continues

AUSTIN (AP)—The Texas Railroad Commission today routinely set the statewide oil allowable for August at 100 per cent - the sixth consecutive month of wide-open production.

The three commissioners, who normally make some comment about what they claim is a lack of a national energy policy, had nothing to say today.

As usual they restricted production in the huge East Texas Field to 86 per cent to avoid possible waste.

In announcing the allowable, chairman Mack Wallace noted that crude oil imports into the United States totaled 6,698,000 barrels a day for the four-week average of July 8, which represents 38 per cent of current U.S. demand.

Major purchasers of Texas crude oil asked for 3,917,622 barrels a day next month, an increase of 1,771 barrels daily from July.

Here are some of the major purchasers' nominations for August, in barrels per day, with any changes from July in parentheses:

Lutherans Widen Gap

By TOM DECOLA
Associated Press Writer

DALLAS (AP)—The gap between the more than 3 million members of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod and the American Lutheran Church (ALC) widened today with passage of a resolution by the Missouri group declaring a state of "fellowship in protest" with the ALC.

Delegates to the biennial convention voted down an amendment that would have softened the wording of the resolution. The amendment would have continued the fellowship between the equal-sized groups "with reservations" rather than "in protest."

One delegate compared the relationship between the groups to that of a dog with fleas, "It's time for us to stop howling and scratching and do something about it," the delegate said from the floor.

Some 1,600 church members are attending the convention that continues through Friday. The Missouri Synod's resolution specified doctrinal disagreement with the ALC in the areas of scripture interpretation, ordination of women, nature and basis of fellowship and participation in ecumenical organizations.

According to the resolution, Missouri Synod pastors will be allowed to continue working relationships with separate ALC flocks when they find that they are in doctrinal agreement.

The Missouri Synod and the ALC entered into fellowship in 1969. Since then, the ALC has approved ordination of women.

Some Missouri Synod members had called for a total split with the ALC. However, the resolution provides for continuing evaluation of the relationship.

The Missouri Synod approved resolutions Monday aimed at stemming membership losses, including specific recommendations to evangelize among Jews and cult followers.

Some delegates argued that the resolution aimed at Jewish evangelism might be offensive to Jews. One countered, however, "the greatest form of discrimination against Jews is to bypass them in evangelism."

The resolution "persuading 50 per cent of our congregations to prepare themselves for effective witness to Jewish people" was passed overwhelming by the 1,100 delegates.

The synod's board of social ministry is also directed "to include among its concerns the problems of anti-semitism."

The cult resolution pointed to their rapid growth and urged that at least 75 per cent of the synod's congregations to establish courses teaching members about cults to provide them with ammunition for evangelism among cult followers.

Also passed was a resolution endorsing general evangelism that sets a two-year goal of equalizing the number of annual membership gains and losses at 35,000.

Sneaky Thief Gets Bra Too

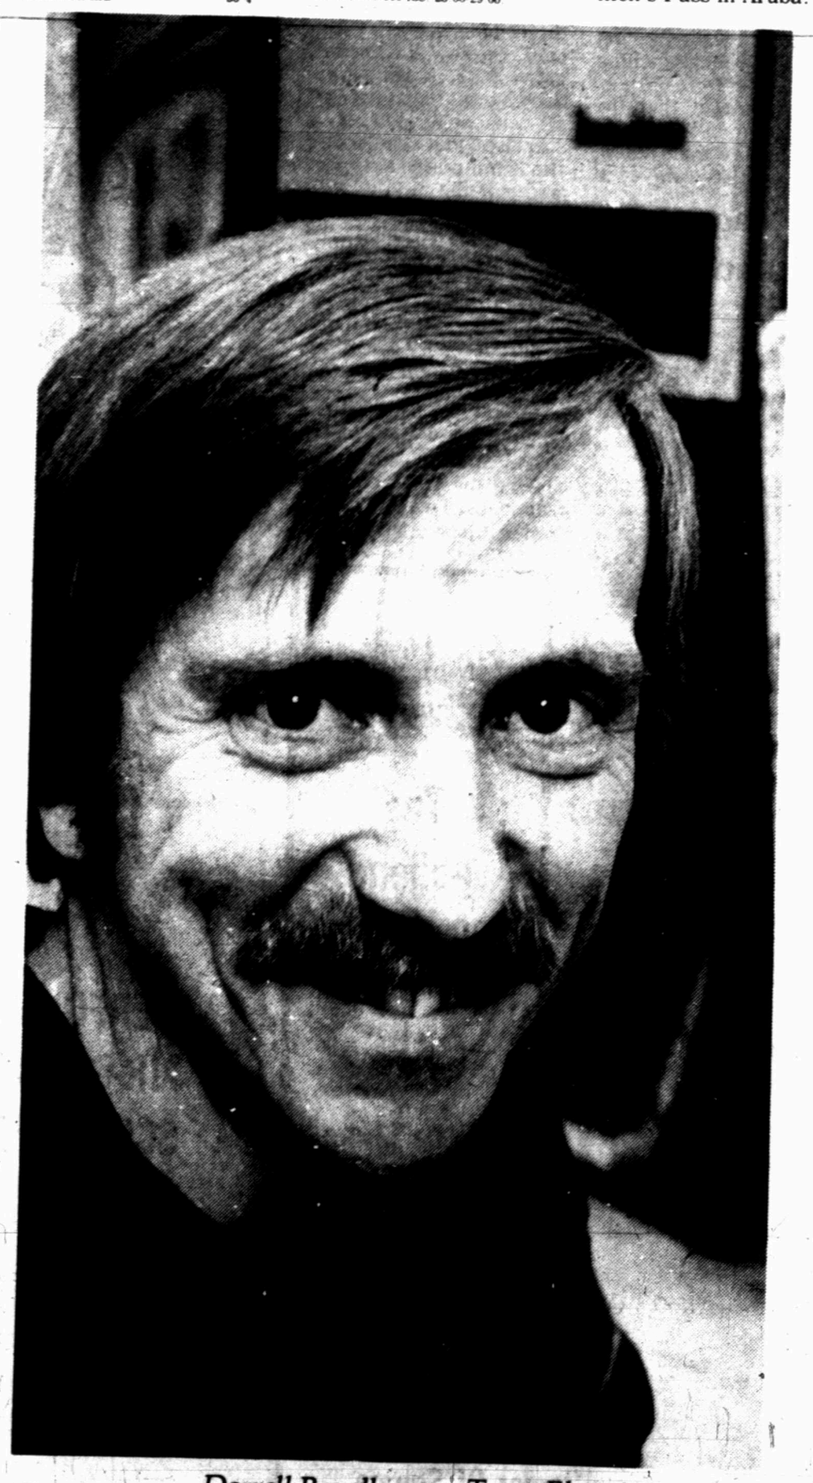

EL PASO (AP)- El Paso police are looking for an armed robber who got away today with $1,000 and the blouse and bra of a gas station attendant.

Police said the robber entered the station this morning and demanded the money. Wielding a snub-nosed revolver, the robber made her open the safe. Then, in an apparent attempt to keep the woman from running for help, he relieved her of blouse and bra.

The bandit's ploy worked. Investigators arrived at the scene to find the attendant clad in a raincoat.

"At Texas Electric, where I work, our job is to provide you with the electricity you need.

But higher construction and fuel costs are making it more expensive to do.

I can tell just by looking at my electric bill.

One thing I do at home is to keep a checklist right on my air-conditioning/heating unit. I have the months listed, and every time I clean the filter I check off that month—so I make sure I check it at least once a month. I couldn't remember it otherwise, and it's important.

A dirty filter limits the air flow through there—and that uses more electricity."

Plants and Patio

1731 SQ. FT. LIVING AREA

HOME DESIGN
By Larry Farnsworth

There is a certain air of cozy welcome apparent even before entering this big, attractive ranch style house and it may spring from just such little touches as that plant shelf on the wall below the bedroom windows.

Then again, there is undeniable living pleasure in the long, rear covered patio, fit snugly into the basic lines of the house itself. Enclosed on two sides by the house, and on a third by the garage, this highly useful outdoor living area not only increases the livability of the family room but also has a handy door to the big two car garage and the laundry facilities located there.

Now, consider that family room more closely. It is, in effect, part of a tremendous country style kitchen, for the two areas are separated only by floor to counter cabinets and a convenient dining counter. Note, too, its fireplace, actually a second opening from the chimney unit which provides a living room fireplace also. The kitchen work area covers almost all of four walls, thus giving the ultimate amount of storage and work space and there is a kitchen door to the garage, too, for extra convenience. And, do not overlook the small, but practical pantry.

At the front of the house, a semi separate entry keeps the living room totally private and channels traffic efficiently to the rear living areas or to the bedrooms at the left of the house.

There are three of these, the master bedroom being specially noteworthy with its bath, dressing room, linen closet and triple clothes closets. The other two bedrooms are also well designed in regard both to size and closet space.

A lot of imaginative designing skill has produced here a house which has both the basic and the extras needed to provide living pleasure day in and day out.

US Trying To Counter Impression Of ASEAN

By GEORGE GEDDA
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) -- The Carter administration is trying to counter a widespread impression amoung non-communist nations of Southeast Asia that it is taking them for granted while pursuing friendly relations with communist states.

Misgivings about U.S. policy have been voiced both privately and publicly by members of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) - Indonesia, the Philippines, Thailand, Malaysia and Singapore.

Their concern stems from the administration's human rights campaign, its interest in establishing normal relations with China and Vietnam and its plans to withdraw ground troops from South Korea.

The U.S. troop presence in recent years has been cut back sharply from Taiwan and nearly eliminated from Thailand and some ASEAN officials fear a continuation of such cutbacks could create a power vacuum that the Chinese or the Soviets may try to exploit.

Attempting to dispel such concerns, the State Department persuaded the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to restore $15 million in grant military aid to Indonesia and $8 million in aid to Thailand.

The funds had been eliminated by a Senate foreign assistance subcommittee concerned over the human rights issue, but were restored after what one source described as intense administration lobbying.

At the same time, the administration appears to be ignoring a congressional staff report that recommended last April that Clark Air Base in the Philippines be phased out.

U.S. emphasis on protection of human rights has been interpreted by some ASEAN nations as an administration attempt to disengage from aid commitments to the region.

While acknowleging that human rights violations are a problem in some of these countries, the Carter administration has not allowed this to affect aid relationships with them.

The Washington-based Center for International Policy, a private research group, said in a recent study that Thailand, the Philippines and Indonesia are among eight nations receiving U.S. military aid which engage in human rights abuses. But administration officials insist that the human rights situation in all three countries is improving.

Some ASEAN countries have expressed concern that establishment of a direct aid relationship between the United States and Vietnam could result in a reduction of resources available to other Southeast Asia states. But U.S. officials have passed the word that this is not a likely prospect, in part because congressional support remains strong for retaining a law that prohibits direct aid to any of the communist countries of Southeast Ais.

The United States has been carefully monitoring Vietnam's use of the billions of dollars in U.S. military equipment left behind during the Vietnam war. Officials say that so far as is known, no arms have been exported and that Hanoi has rejected several offers for the purchase of weaponry from other countries.

60-Month New Car Loan Is Coming

By The Associated Press

If you think three or three and a half years of new car payments is almost eternity, you're not going to enjoy what you are about to read.

The 60-month new car loan is coming. Yes, that's five years. Inflation has driven car prices to a point where many Texans simply can't come up with the huge monthly payments required for 36 or 42 months.

Of course, with the 60-month loan comes lower monthly payments and a higher interest bill.

At least one dealer in Texas is already offering the 60-month plan and has been for more than a decade.

One dealer, Ted Arendale Ford of Arlington, between Dallas and Fort Worth, ran a full-page newspaper ad earlier this month informing the public of its decision to offer the lengthy loans.

"We're not encouraging 60-month loans," said Arendale new car sales manager Ross Stoker. "We're just saying they're available. A lot of people don't want to get themselves tied up for that long. But a lot of people can't afford a car any other way."

The big advantage, of course, is lower payments. On 42 months, a $5,000 car costs $135.03 monthly with $1,171.26 total interest. However on the 60-month plan, the monthly payment is $103.54. But the interest is $1,712.66.

A Dallas credit agency started the trend in the Dallas-Fort Worth area, according to Stoker. "They've got it out on the West Coast and then it started here. So naturally, we have to stay competitive."

"They're doing it in the East. I think it's eventually going to come to that here," said Bob Bryan, executive director of the Consumer Credit Counseling Service in Dallas.

Tony Fabian, finance manager at Southwest Chrysler-Dodge, added, "The rate the prices of cars is going up, we'll have to go to 60 months."

It may be some time before 60-month car loans go into use outside the Dallas-Fort Worth area, according to a random sampling of dealerships.

At Houston, a spokesman for Southwest Lincoln Mercury Inc. said there was very little interest in the longer loans.

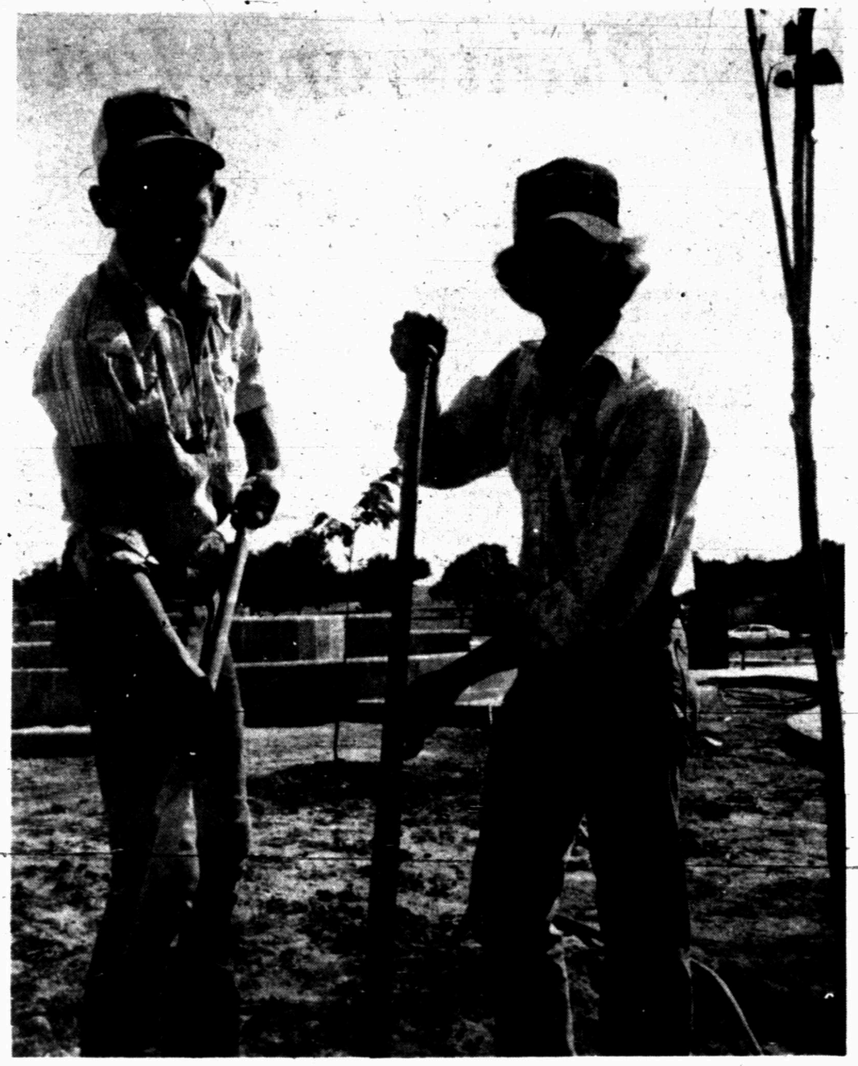

At Austin, a Capital Chevrolet salesman echoed his Houston counterpart. "It's hard enough to get 48-month loans much less 60," he said

The exception seems to be Dub Shaw Ford in Fort Worth. Jack Graves, new car sales manager, said his company has offered 60-month loans for 13 years "ever since we've been in business."

About three or four cars a month are sold on 60-month loans, Graves said. But he added, "For most people, it's just something to dream about the lower payments."

Jack Pace, new car sales manager at Jack Williams Chevrolet in Fort Worth, a Shaw competitor, seemed to express the majority feeling on 60-month car loans.

"No sir," he said. "Forty-two months is enough. They'll be trying to sell you a car that's plumb wore out."

Ballet Lessons Good for Boys

By Abigail Van Buren

1977 by The Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR READERS: A woman signed BUDDY'S MOTHER wrote to say that her 10-year-old son who had taken ice skating lessons for two years had asked to take ballet lessons.

She said that she and her husband feared that if they let him take up ballet he might turn into a homosexual.

I told her that it took a great deal of manly discipline for a boy to excel at ballet, and to go ahead and give the boy ballet lessons.

The reader feedback was interesting. Some samples:

DEAR ABBY: I'll bet BUDDY'S MOTHER lives in Dade County, Fla., where they recently voted to deny homosexuals their constitutional rights because of Anita Bryant's crusade to "Save Our Children." I'd appreciate your comments.

STRAIGHT AND CONCERNED

DEAR S. AND C.: No straight boy ever became gay because he took ballet lessons. Neither did a gay become straight because he joined the Marine Corps. No one knows what causes some people to be gay and others to be straight. But it's a fact that "our children" do not need to be "saved" from homosexuals. (More children are molested by straights than by gays.)

To use "God," "the American flag" and the emotionally charged cry to "Save Our Children" in an effort to deny employment, housing and public accommodations to a whole segment of our population because of their personal sexual preference is outrageous!

DEAR ABBY: I was shocked when I read the letter in your column from the mother who was reluctant to allow her son to take ballet lessons because it might encourage him to become a homosexual. How ignorant can some people be?

I have three sons. The two older boys excelled in football, but the younger boy favored ice skating and ballet. I made sure the two older boys did not ridicule their younger brother because of his interest in ballet.

As for ballet being for sissies, I'd like to see a sissy lift a 130-pound ballerina with one hand and hold her over his head. And all those strenuous leaps, turns and jumps take muscle control, coordination and strength the finest athlete would envy.

Ballet does more for a boy's body than football. I'd rather see my son dance than see him carried off a football field on a stretcher with a broken nose or a broken leg!

POMONA MOM

DEAR ABBY: Would you believe that before my son became a Golden Glove boxing champion he was advised to take ballet lessons to improve his footwork? He took them, too. And when he was kidded about it, he laughed harder than anybody because he knew that he was as much a man as the manliest.

CHAMP'S MOTHER

DEAR ABBY: BUDDY'S MOTHER should realize how much masculinity and discipline goes into becoming a professional ballet dancer. He must be as fit as an Olympic champion and possess the grace and rhythm of an artist. I think that any boy who is fortunate enough to show signs of talent in the dance should be encouraged in it -and not made to feel guilty or lacking in manhood.

Carter Standing Pat On Abortion Decision

By ANN BLACKMAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)- President Carter is unlikely to drop his opposition to federal funding of abortions for poor women, despite pressure from within his own administration, a top aide says.

Carter is under attack for his position from women's rights leaders, a number of congressional leaders and many of his top women advisers.

Two women's groups have expressed their disappointment at recent White House meetings, including one session attended Monday afternoon by a coalition of women's rights leaders. About 40 women who hold posts in the administration met on Friday.

But Margaret "Midge" Costanza, the presidential assistant who presided over both meetings, said at Monday's session she does not think Carter will change his mind.

In Congress, the House has voted to bar Medicaid funds for all abortions, while the Senate passed a more liberal measure that would permit abortions in a number of cases, including when a physician decides that terminating a pregnancy is medically necessary. Experts say that could encompass virtually any reason for abortion.

House and Senate conferees were expected to meet today to try to resolve their differences.

Sources said the President received no factual information from his Domestic Policy Council on the effects his abortion decision would have on American society. The sources said Carter has received such information in advance of other important decisions, including whether to proceed with production of the B1 bomber.

A group of seven congressmen and women has requested a meeting with Carter this week to express their opposition to his abortion position, said Rep. Pat Schroeder, D-Colo.

The group of administration women and the coalition of women's rights leaders, the Ad Hoc Committee on Women's Helath and Reproduction, have drawn up questions to present to Carter, including:

-Is it moral to force a 15-year-old girl on welfare to give birth and give her child up for adoption if she cannot be responsible for it?

-Does the United States, which advocates human rights and liberty abroad, deprive the weakest members in its own society of the same rights?

-What should a poor woman do if she knows in advance her baby will be deformed?

The women's rights group asked Carter to commission an impartial study of the effects of his abortion decision on society.

At a news conference last week, Carter expanded his exceptions to include cases involving incest or rape.

English explorer Henry Hudson sailed his sloop Half Moon into New York harbor in September, 1609.

Freddie's Mom Certain Death Was Accident

LOS ANGELES (AP)- Maria Pruetzel, the 56-year-old mother of the late television star Freddie Prinze, says she is certain that her son's death was an accident and not suicide.

Mrs. Pruetzel, who appeared at a news conference Monday, announced plans to write a book which "will factually set forth the true cause of Freddie's death and will also attempt to reach out to young people, like Freddie, who are presently seeking a show business career, to warn them of the pitfalls of instant fame and success."

Her attorney, Martin Friedlander, told newsmen that Mrs. Pruetzel could stand to lose all or part of Prinze's $500,000 life insurance policy if a positive finding of suicide in Prinze's death the last week of January is allowed to stand.

Prinze, 22, starred in the NBC television series, "Chico and the Man."

Renny Martin, a spokeswoman for Mrs. Pruetzel, said a release date for the book is about two years away and the mother has yet to secure a ghost writer or a publisher.

Plane Crash Miraculous

GRAND PRAIRIE (AP)- Naval Air Station officials say it was miraculous that an F8 fighter plane carrying 2,000 pounds of fuel didn't explode when it plowed into a tinder dry, occupied barracks at 200 mph.

Three men in the barracks, which houses transient enlisted men, suffered only cuts and bruises in Monday's crash.

The pilot, Lt. Erik Gregory, ejected and parachuted to safety-landing just outside the base's sick bay.

"I don't know why it didn't catch fire and crash," said Lt. Gregory, who said both of the airplane's control units malfunctioned. "It shook me up pretty badly."

The wooden barracks, built in 1941, were due to be replaced in two years, said Capt. Jim Foster, commander of the base. Officials said the plane was going about 200 mph when it hit the building.

"It's very interesting and significant that it did not catch fire," Foster said.

Officials said six men were in the portion of the barracks hit by the fighter.

Few Getting Rich In Oil Lottery

By The Associated Press

Yes folks: You too, can be an oil or gas millionaire. It can be as simple-well, almost as winning what might be the nation's least-advertised lottery.

The chances of getting rich quick are slim, but it's been done, according to insiders connected to the raffle.

Each month, the Department of Interior's Bureau of Land Management compiles a list of oil and gas leases-about 1,500 of them-on federally-owned property. The lists costs a paltry $1.50.

Anyone can select one or more leases and gamble $10 per purchase. One week after the list is posted, a drawing determines who can take possession of the lease, or leases, for $1 an acre per year for the 10-year term of the lease.

But lucky "winners" quickly learn that only about 45 of the 1,500 leases are immediately saleable to oil and gas producers.

And there's no way to tell at that stage how many dry holes there might be out of those 45.

A Bureau of Land Management spokesman in Santa Fe, N.M., said, "We don't claim that they have any potential. If we knew there was oil or gas there, we would have to sell them by competitive bidding."

Oil or gas companies are usually willing to pay for the leases in varying amounts, depending on geological surveys.

Jack Liston of the energy Research and Marketing Services Co. of San Antonio said his firm assists individuals in selecting potentially profitable leases. It will also make the rent payments if commissioned to handle resale efforts.

"I had one client to win a lease in Houston," he said. "I estimated its value at $40 an acre. When I called him to tell him that, he told me his best offer was over $60 an acre."

That particular lucky investor had won a 640-acre lease in the raffle, for which he put up $10 entry fee and $640 rent. His return netted him about $40,000, plus 5 per cent royalties on anything the buyer finds.

After the leasing system started in 1961, the leases were offered first-come, first-served. Industry insiders had the advantage.

The lottery has made the leases available to the laymen. But it has also created a new governmental headache.

Certain "filing companies" will offer their services. for a fee as a contact point for potential buyers.

Booster Rocket Test Is Success

By BOB KUESTERMAN
Associated Press Writer

BRIGHAM CITY, Utah (AP)-A booster rocket, intended to gently carry "pot-bellied scientists" into orbit aboard the space shuttle, has been testfired for the first time.

The test of the reuseable solid-fuel rocket motor appeared to be a success Monday, with nothing unexpected noted, but it will be a couple of weeks before all information is analyzed, officials said.

The 125-foot long, 12-foot diameter rocket was tested by Thiokol Corp. at its 19,000-acre Wasatch Division site in northern Utah, 10 miles from Promontory Summit where the Golden Spike was driven in 1869 to complete the nation's first transental railroad.

"In a sense we are driving another spike in a transportation system- a system that will open space to the use of man just as the railroad opened this area of the country for settlement and development," Dr. William R. Lucas, director of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration Marshall Space Flight Center in Alabama, said before the test.

Lucas termed the test "the major milestone in the country's space shuttle program - the first firing of the largest solid propellant rocket motor ever developed for flight."

The booster's one million pounds of fuel was burned in two minutes, as some observers yelled, "Hang in there, baby,"

The rocket was mounted parallel to the ground with its three million pounds of thrust stopped by a 20 million-pound concrete block anchored to bedrock at the rocket's nose.

The rocket flame, as long as two football fields, slightly blackened the concrete pad and scoured a hill behind it. Air pushed up the hill created a small, white cloud.

The rocket looked little different than before the test, not charred and its paint still bright.

About 300 dignitaries and several thousand Thiokol employes and area residents watched the test from about 1½ miles away.

The space shuttled consists of the manned reuseable orbiter, mounted on an expendible liquid-fuel tank, with two reuseable solid-fuel booster rockets on either side. It was the booster rocket which was tested Monday.

The shuttle, about the size of the DC9, will carry into orbit 65,000 pounds, including seven crewmen and passengers.

The space shuttle is intended to be gentler on its passengers than were the earlier rockets. Passenger's won't need space suits and the acceleration will be mild-three times that of gravity.

One spokesman said it would have "shirt-sleeve environment" for what NASA termed "pot-bellied scientists."

The booster rockets are to be re-used up to 20 times and the orbiter 50 times, with up to 60 flights a year. Space officials hope re-using the equipment will keep the costs down to $10,000 a pound of payload put into orbit.

LOS ANGELES (AP)-A coroner's jury has decided that the drug overdose which killed Texas oil millionairess Sandra Ilene West last March was accidental.

The nine jurors ruled that Mrs. West, 37, who was buried May 18 in her baby blue 1964 Ferrari and a silvery lace nightgown, succumbed after taking an overdose of barbiturates and codeine. Their verdict was handed to hearing officer Frederick Lacey shortly after deliberations were resumed Monday morning.

At least one juror said later that they believed negligence on the part of others had led to the death but they believed the negligence was not intentional.

Nurses and doctors who tended the oil heiress testified last Friday that Mrs. West had been denied access to drugs because she was known to have abused them. Her physician, Dr. Raymond E. Weston, described her as psychotic with a tendency toward paranoia and hallucination.

She had been subject to "highly bizarre behavior," Dr. Weston testified.

A court ruled the strange Ferrari burial request legal despite court action of relatives who sought to block it. She was buried May 18 in the crated car next to her husband's grave in San Antonio, Tex.

Her husband, Ike West Jr. of Comfort, Tex., died in 1968, leaving her a $2.85 million estate. Her doctors said her odd behavior began as a result of the shock from his death.

Witnesses testified at the hearing that Mrs. West began giving away expensive jewelry and other objects "like a child trying to gain attention by giving gifts."

Mildred Richards, a nurse, said Mrs. West gave her a platinum and diamond cross valued at $200,000 because the millionairess said it caused a rash on her neck.

She testified that Mrs. West told her, "In case anything happens, this is a part of me. Frankly, if I die, I had wanted to have it buried with me in my coffin but I had no reasons to take it with me. So you take it."

The bulk of Mrs. West's estate was left to her brother-in-law, Sol West III, 38, of Comfort.

Dr. Joan Shipley, a coroner's pathologist, testified that the heiress died of a drug overdose. This testimony left three possible verdicts for the jury: That the death was suicide, an accident or came at the hands of another other than by accident.

Sid, Imogene Back Together

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)-Television pioneers Sid Caesar and Imogene Coca will appear together for the first time in almost 20 years for a two-week run in San Francisco, the Fairmont Hotel announced today.

Marchers Protest 'Soap'

DALLAS (AP)-A small protest in front of the Dallas ABC affiliate against a proposed television series "SOAP" was used "to call attention to sex and violence on TV," says one of the organizers.

The marchers, who gathered Monday in front of WFAA-TV in protest of the proposed series, were part of a planned protest in 11 cities nationwide backed by the National Federation for Decency, a spokesman said.

"What we wanted was to call attention to sex and violence on TV using SOAP as a focus," said Mark Nelson, spokesman for "Citizens for Clean Television" who said he has never seen the pilot film for the proposed series.

"We had about 10 or 12 people there and there were others who joined us. Everybody that we talked with on the sidewalk was in agreement with our position."

Nelson said he has gathered his information about the proposed series from news accounts.

He said he is not sure what the group's next move might be but hinted further action will likely be coordinated with whatever the NFD plans.

Dave Lane, WFAA station manager, said, "Our concern is that we haven't even agreed to air the program yet. We understand there are to be at least three edits of the pilot. So, we'll wait and see what those are before we decide."

Lane said this does not necessarily mean the station will decide against running SOAP if the cuts are not made.

"We've talked to the network and they've told us some things," he said. "We understand the edits will be made."

Don't self-treat severe asthma

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR.LAMB — For about eight years I've been treated with shots for allergic rhinitis. I was doing fine as long as I took the allergy shots.

Since we have moved I have been going to a Navy hospital and the doctor claims I have asthma. He has been giving me prednisone and other medicines. As long as I am in the hospital with intravenous medicine and breathing machines I get better. Last night I was rushed to the hospital just gasping for breath. After five shots of adrenaline I was sent home. I feel jumpy but the wheezing continues. I'm really upset as I don't know what to do. Should I change doctors or try any medicine over the counter that will help this constant wheezing?

DEAR READER — Allergic rhinitis does not cause wheezing or the breathing problems you describe. You have asthma. The confusion may arise from the point that some people who are allergic have both asthma and allergic rhinitis. The three major manifestations of such allergies are allergic rhinitis, asthma and hives. Some people have one of these and some have two or even all three.

The difference is really which cells are involved in the allergic reaction. In allergic rhinitis the cells in the nasal area are interacting with the allergic substance and pour out histamine or a related chemical that causes the nasal symptoms. In asthma, the cells in the air passages are affected. In hives the cells in the skin are involved in the reaction. Desensitization shots may help in some cases in all three of these conditions.

To help you sort out your problem I am sending you two issues of The Health Letter, number 8-4 Hay Fever (Allergic Rhinitis) and 8-6 Asthma. Others who want this information can send 50 cents for each with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing to P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. As these issues explain your parents may have one of these three disorders and as a child you may inherit a different one of the three.

Treating acute asthma attacks is sometimes difficult. I would not advise a do it yourself approach in a severe case such as yours. That could be a very serious mistake. Better stick with your doctor and stay away from those over the counter, do it yourself efforts. You'll understand this better when you read the Health Letters that I am sending you.

DEAR DR. LAMB — What is the approximate limit of calories that the body can convert into fat a day?

If I burn 3000 calories per day but eat 20,000 calories a day can the entire balance of 17,000 calories be converted to fat or are some of them simply excreted without being utilized?

DEAR READER — The limit is in how much you can eat and absorb. Once the calories are absorbed from the small intestine into the blood stream they will be processed and the unused balance will be used to form fat. In your illustration, about 4.85 pounds of fat.

Of course if you developed diarrhea from overeating you would not absorb all of them and those wouldn't count. Otherwise calories do count — every last blasted one of them. So if your stomach and intestines can hold the food and digest and absorb it — you will convert the total excess to fat.

Dr. Lamb answers representative letters of general interest in his column.

ASTRO-GRAPH
Bernice Bede Osol

Your Birthday

July 20, 1977

Good things may happen to you early and often this coming year and you are certainly entitled to them. Be wise enough, however, to make the most of them.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Your word to those you love must be your bond today. If you promise something and don't deliver, your default could leave a small scar. Having trouble selecting a career? Send for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter. Mail 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify your birth sign.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) To impress others today, you could lay it on a bit too thick. Use a thinner brush and a lighter touch on the canvas.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Normally you're conservative and you don't bet on the "if come." Today you could wager on a long shot and find why it was just that.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) There's a difference in being positive and overly-optimistic. You might not be able to distinguish between the two today.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You can rely on only yourself today and can count on only your resources. Looking for an "angel" to bail you out promises only grief.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Too much faith in associates today might be misplaced. Their analyses may raise false hopes, to set you up for an awful letdown.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Normally you take your responsibilities to heart. Today, you might goof off and be taken to task for your uncharacteristic conduct.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You have innate sensitivity that equips you to deal with persons in all walks of life. This quality may desert you today and you could offend the boss.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Where discipline is required for those under your wing, you may be a shade too permissive today. Don't spare the rod and spoil the child.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your luck and good looks aren't enough to get by on today. If you want to get something done, be prepared to tough it out.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) In contracting for labor or services today, you aren't too sharp. You could choose the wrong help or pay too much — or both.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Stay as far away as possible today from risky ventures. They may look good, but they'll probably fall apart.

Fertilizer War Rages

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)-A fertilizer war rages in Portland-with the fertilizer being provided by everything from elephants to bats.

First came ZooDoo, a fertilizer sold as a fund-raising venture by the Washington Park Zoo. ZooDoo is what zookeepers shovel out of elephant cages.

Now the Oregon Museum of Science and Industry is selling OMSI-Poo.

Museum director Loren McKinley describes the product as "a selected blend of rare rodent refuse, carefully compounded by conscientious conservationists." "Rare rodent refuse" translates to droppings from the mice, rabbits and bats that the museum uses for research.

In an obvious swipe at the competition, McKinley adds OMSI-Poo "is guaranteed to keep elephants out of your shrubbery."

Texas Senators Both Vote 'No'

WASHINGTON (AP)-Both of Texas' U.S. senators voted "no" Monday when the Senate decided 59-to-36 to delete $1.4 billion in production funds for the B1 bomber.

Oil, Gas Find Said Significant

PITTSBURGH (AP)-Consolidated Natural Gas Co. says it has found a "significant" deposit of oil and natural gas in the Gulf of Mexico, about 60 miles off the coast of Louisiana.

The company said an exploratory well discovered gas and oil-bearing reservoirs from 1,900 to 9,700 feet deep in an area called Ship Shoal Block 247.

A Consolidated spokesman said it was too early to estimate the size of the reserve in terms of cubic feet.

But the company's belief that the reservoirs are significant is evidenced by the firm's decision to order an 18-slot stationary platform to set over the site in 1978, he said.

The number of slots in a platform equals the number of wells that can be drilled. Platforms commonly have only four to six slots, the spokesman said.

CNG Producing Co., a Consolidated subsidiary, is the operator on the property and holds a 25 per cent interest. Columbia Gas Development Corp. holds a 40 per cent interest, and Texas Gas Exploration Corp. holds a 35 per cent interest.

Spectre Of Separatism Is Stalking Europe

EDITOR'S NOTE—The spectre of separatism is stalking Europe, forcing leaders to think the unthinkable - a possible breakup of some of the world's oldest nation-states. This survey by an AP diplomatic correspondent tells how unhappy minorities, separatists, rebels with causes are battling, to recover the identities they lost in a century that has seen increasing concentrations of power in Europe.

By ARTHUR GAVSHON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—From Aberdeen in Scotland to the Portuguese islands on the Azores, militant minorities today are crusading for change - change ranging from statehood to more rights of self rule.

Their struggles have disturbed the sense of calm that had begun settiing over the Old World as East-West tensions were easing.

The causes they are pressing appear totally to conflict with the movement toward wider political and economic unity by the nine-nation Common Market in the West and the Warsaw-based Council for Economic Mutual Assistance in the East.

"I number kings and queens of England and Scotland and princes of Wales among my ancestors, so I can readily understand these aspirations toward separatism," Elizabeth II reflected wistfully at a ceremony launching her Silver Jubilee celebrations. "But I cannot forget that I was crowned Queen of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland."

The current talk is that the United Kingdom may split into four distinct parts before the century is ended.

Across the Channel, in mainland Europe, some situations have worsened beyond the point of mere talk.

The French, the first outsiders to feed Rene Levesque's concept of a "Free Quebec," face the anger of Corsicans wanting home-rule. And, despite the concession of language and cultural rights, they have yet to cool the fervor and periodic bombings of radicals demanding "a free Brittany, the Bretons their own masters."

The long-troubled Spanish, experimenting with democracy after 41 years of dictatorship, have three distinct breakaway movements to deal with. Basques, Catalans and Galicians, all with secret armies, right now are relatively quiet, but new explosions are always possible.

In other lands, recently, independence-seeking Azoreans battled Portuguese troops in the worst outbreak of violence in years. South Moluccans hijacked a train and seized more than 200 hostages in Holland as part of their long campaign to win back their Indonesian-run islands in the South Pacific where they dream to be independent. Two years ago they were thwarted in a plot to kidnap Queen Juliana. In Yugoslavia, 4.5 million Croats want a state of their own. Austria is worrying about its Slovenes.

In Northern Ireland, the Protestant majority and the Roman Catholic minority are fighting mercilessly on after eight years, nearly 2,000 deaths and an uncounted number of maimed.

To define the problem, the British Foreign Office in late May arranged a secret seminar at Ditchley Park near Oxford. It was attended by academics, security men and diplomats from several key Allied countries including the United States.

It has become clear that operational methods as well as motives are mixed among the widely differing rebel causes.

Separatism as a rule seems to be stronger in regions where economic development is weakest. The bonanza of North Sea oil and gas resources off the Scottish coast, for example, has fed nationalist arguments for splitting from England.

State Department diplomats keep close watch on the development of separatist movements and methods because the breakup of a nation-state could have major political effect on Washington's relations with the government concerned.

"Besides, separatism can be catching," one administration official said. "It also can provide openings for mischief-making by outsiders."

But U.S. authorities insist that they take great care never to become entangled in these situations. Last year, however, Anne Armstrong, the former U.S. ambassador to Britain, did make a point of visiting Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland to get a feel for the mood of those places.

The State Department has a special unit working with other like-minded nations to combat terrorism. Five Croatians last September, for example, hijacked a TWA airliner carrying 86 passengers from New York to Chicago. It ended in Paris. The hijackers' purpose was to publicize the Croatian cause.

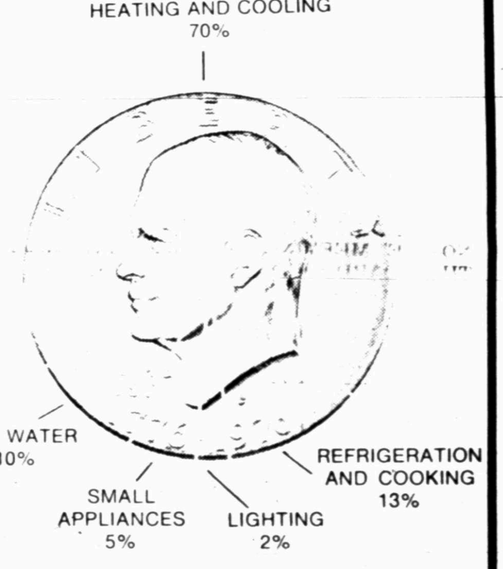

Intelligence services of several allied governments, including the U.S., have established that some separatist and terrorist groups work together, meet periodically, help each other in arms procurement, compare tactics, swap information.

The British, for instance, are aware of Irish Republican Army IRA links with the Libyans. They know, too, that there have been meetings between delegates of the Basques and the Plaid Cymru which is the Welsh National Party. Yan Goulet, a veteran Breton activist who is Secretary-General of the Committee for the Liberation of Brittany, lives in the Irish Republic. From time to time Breton activists receive arms training in secret Irish camps.

Basque leaders, according to the British, also keep in close touch with the Sinn Fein. But Basque leaders, at the time, denied official Spanish government claims that IRA explosives were used in the 1973 assassination of the Spanish prime minister, Luis Carrero Blanco.

One report reaching Washington intelligence in 1974 told of a top-secret meeting in Trieste, Italy, of the leaders of more than a dozen breakaway movements. The report claimed there was much discussion of how as a whole the groups were in control of considerable territory, yet lacked real national power.

"Your Electric Dollar"

It pays to know where your electric dollar goes. Almost three fourths of the average power bill pays for heating and cooling your home. And with the increased cost for power, insulation, weather stripping and draperies take on a new importance. Solar screens, attic ventilation, calking, and venting heat-producing appliances can pay dividends in lower electric bills. Your member-owned Electric Cooperative urges you to make energy conservation a family project. The savings affected by a serious effort can be significant.

McDonald's Stock Full Line Of Welding Equipment, Supplies

As its name implies, McDonald Welding Supply Co. has a full line of welding equipment and accompanying accessories.

Jack McDonald, manager of McDonald Welding Supply, said the store has in stock a complete line of Mine Safety Appliances (MSA) which include air masks, breathing equipment, first aid kits, and ear plugs. McDonald Welding Supply is also an authorized distributor in Snyder of MSA safety equipment.

McDonald Welding also has in stock Wilton vices and is a Snyder representative of power-pull and wench-puller accessories.

The store, McDonald said, has chain blocks with work-load capacities ranging from half-ton to 20 tons of heavy duty work. It has chain pullers ranging from three-quarter-ton work-load capacities to a five-ton capacity.

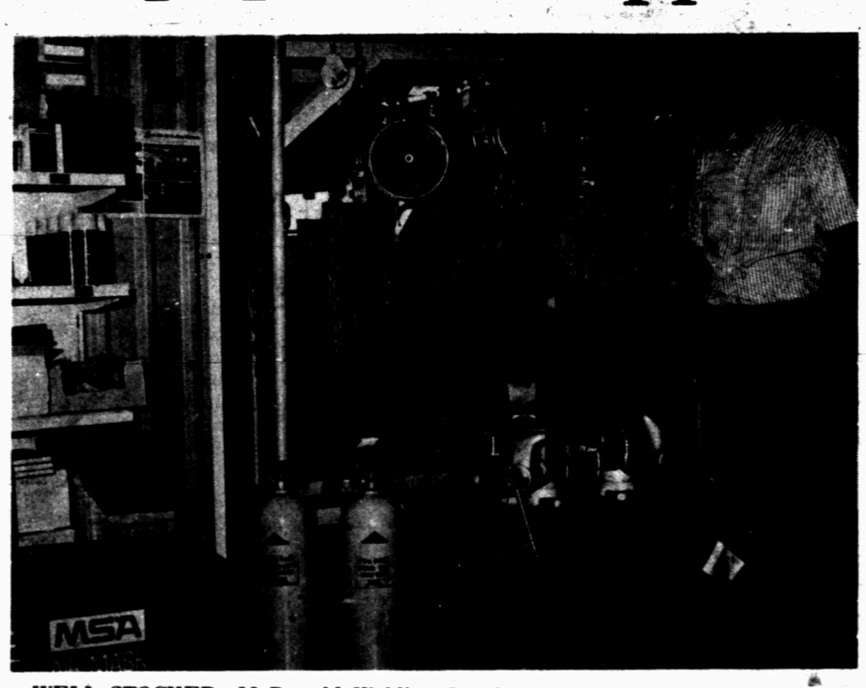

Also available are hand wenches and 12-volt power wenches with 750 to 2,000-pound work-load factors. Also in stock are trailer wenches, McDonald said.

But the main product line of McDonald Welding Supply is gas sales, said McDonald. The store specializes in oxygen and acetylene gases, but also has in stock a wide range of such other industrial gases as nitrogen, helium, and argon.

The store has a line of welding supplies by such brandname companies as Lincoln and Miller and air compressors by Champion. Heavy-duty power tools by Milwaukee are also found at McDonald Welding Supply along with possibly the best supply in Snyder of grinding disks and brushes.

Located at 1110 College Ave., McDonald Welding Supply is open from 6:45 a.m. until 5:30 p.m., Monday through Friday and From 7 a.m. until 12:30 p.m. Saturday.

New Booklet On Farm Energy

WASHINGTON (AP)-A series of new booklets on the farm use of energy is available from the Agriculture Department.

The booklet is prepared by USDA in cooperation with the federal Energy Administration. They include statistics, examples of how much fuel is used in various methods of producing the nation's crops and livestock and tips on how to use less.

Officials said Friday that free single copies of the booklets-or any one of the six titles that are available-can be obtained from the Office of Communications, Publications Division, USDA, Washington D.C., 20250.

The six booklets are guides to energy savings for: The Field Crops Producer; The Dairy Farmer; The Livestock Producer; The Vegetable Producer; The Orchard Grower; and The Poultry Producer.
