Mother Surrenders After Killing Her Two Children

SUICIDE WAS CONSIDERED, TELLS POLICE

SAN FRANCISCO, May 25.—Mrs. Bernice Sanders, 30, surrendered to police today an hour after the bodies of her two children drugged to death by chloroform were found in the rear of her small lunch room.

Beside the bodies was a note signed by Mrs. Sanders written with typewriter and pencil, saying "I hate to do this."

The young mother was found at the edge of the ocean near Golden Gate park on the verge of hysterics. She told how she had planned to jump into the water but decided "this was too easy a way out."

She was held at a district police station on a double charge of murder.

"I just couldn't let the children face the hard life I have led," Mrs. Sanders said.

Will Present Dancing Pupils

Miss Elizabeth Maxwell will present her Cisco, Eastland and Ranger pupils in dance recital at the Eastland high school auditorium Tuesday evening, May 26, at 8 o'clock.

The presentation will be divided into two programs, the first presenting the pupils in 20 numbers including solos, waltzes, Apache dances, ballets and so forth and the second a presentation entitled, "Alice in Wonderland."

A baby ballet will be one of the features of the first program.

ONE MAN IS ARRESTED IN THEFT RING

EASTLAND, May 25.—Officers effected the arrest of one man and recovered three cars, a quantity of copper wire, a saddle, gun and a number of other items that had been stolen in Eastland, Ranger, Breckenridge and Stephenville during the past few months. While they are still working on the case officers believe that one man is responsible for the theft of all the items.

The cars stolen were taken from owners in Eastland, Ranger and Stephens county. The copper wire was stolen from the Texas Electric Service company, having been cut from lines leading from the main power lines to pumping wells. The saddle was stolen from Grover Collins of near Eastland and the gun was taken from Mr. Pullman of Eastland.

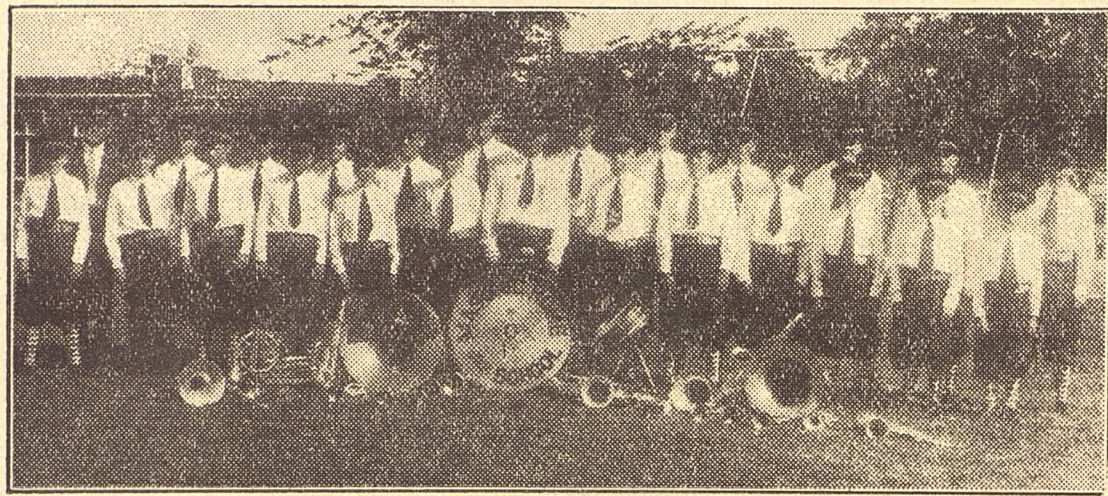

Officers Saturday were not through with their investigations in connection with the cases and said that likely a number of charges would be filed within the next few days.

Prominent Merchant Is Shot to Death

DENTON, May 25.—W. T. Bolton, 43, prominent business man here, was found dead in the office of the Pearlston-Bolton Wholesale Grocery company this morning when employees opened the office. The top of his head had been torn away by a shotgun discharge. The gun was found near by.

Police found a letter in the office which indicated Bolton had taken his life because of despondency over ill health and financial reverses. Justice of the Peace W. A. Mathis returned a verdict of suicide. Bolton was president of the grocery company. He is survived by his widow and one son. Funeral plans have not been completed.

MASONIC HOME BAND TO BE HERE JUNE 4

GOD WANTS A MAN, PREACHER TELLS CLASS

"You are turning one of the great bends in the road of destiny," Dr. John Tyndall, Jr., of Oklahoma, told the graduating class of Randolph college last night in the annual baccalaureate sermon at the First Christian church.

There is no truth that does not lead to a deeper and broader truth. Every problem and experience and relationship of life is merely an introduction to something greater farther on. Life is an eternal infinity in which the spirit of man bows with deepest reverence before the vastness, the beauty, the wonder and the glory of it all.

You have learned at life's little bench that we are living in a growing world, which, nevertheless, we are constantly outgrowing. Our childhood was held in the grip of enchantments which our manhood has left behind. Yet our enchantments were not unreal, our books were not untrue, our teachers were not unwise. They had a real place, a real purpose, and a real message. The surge, the urge of the eternal within us has pushed us far beyond the faintest object lurking in the shadow of the atom to the largest world floating in the far-flung frontier of the universe; everything, animate or inanimate, organic or inorganic was to make its own silent but potential contribution to the making of man," he said.

"God launched an endless task when he began the making of man," said the preacher. "Man is the crown and summit of all created being. He is the highest level of being that has ever reached the level of the vast domain of the universe. It is beyond the reach of the human mind to estimate the part God is playing in the making of man. Having given him a body that aches and dies, a mind and soul that soars and aspires he was placed in a world that would challenge the best that was in him."

The masterpieces of art, the classics of literature, the institutes of philosophy, the foundations of law, the great moral and spiritual and intellectual achievements of the race testify to the fact that man has traveled far in his conquest of the world. Every thing in nature speaks to him of the Divine. The furrows of the cosmos are sown with seeds of thought which science, art, and literature are just beginning to decipher. All there is in the world that urges man onward and upward in the development of his three-fold nature bears upon the image of its maker, God.

Continuing he said: The highest calling of the race is getting man ready for the intake of truth. The

The Masonic home band, of Ft. Worth, organization of orphan children in the institution, will be here Thursday, June 4, for a concert at 8:30 at the city hall, it was announced by the Cisco lodge today. The concert is free and the public is invited to attend.

These youngsters have no parents and what commendation they receive must of necessity come from the public. A large crowd at the concert will please them and inspire them in their work, members of the local lodge said.

The entertainment provided will be well worth hearing.

LIONS LADIES NIGHT PROGRAM BEING SHAPED

Preparations for the Lions Ladies night program, to be held Tuesday evening, 7 o'clock June 2, at the Country club upon invitation of members of both organizations, are going forward rapidly, according to W. J. Leach, general chairman for the occasion.

Lions ladies night is an annual affair looked forward to by members, since on this occasion wives and sweethearts of members are invited and they all make merry around the festive board.

The menu committee promises something different in the way of eats, while the program committee is arranging an unusually entertaining program. Every member in good standing is expected to be present with some lady of his choice, without further solicitation.

Program Completed for Encampment

The program committee of the Baptist Leiders camp has completed the program. It is conceded to be one of the best ever planned for this encampment. Dr. W. R. White, secretary of the Mission Board of Texas Baptists, has agreed to be the principal speaker. He is one of the best loved men in the denomination of the state, is a pulpit orator of great ability, and his presence on the program insures a large attendance.

Instead of the regular study classes, most of the work will be done along conference lines. Every department of the work, Sunday school, B. Y. P. U. and W. M. V., will be represented on the program. The dates of the encampment will be July 13 to 20. The time has been reduced to one week and every effort will be made to throw every interest into the limited time. General conditions over the country is the reason for the shortening of the encampment time.

JUDGE TO DALLAS
Judge Geo. L. Davenport of the 91st district court will go to Dallas this week where he will preside over one of the Dallas county district courts. Judge Davenport is frequently called to Dallas and Fort Worth to preside over various district courts in which the regular judge is disqualified.

DR. ROBERTS TO LEAVE TUESDAY FOR NEW POST

Dr. T. T. Roberts, who leaves the presidency of Randolph college this year after a tenure of six years, will leave Cisco tomorrow en route to Indianapolis to devote full time to his post as associated secretary of the national city church board of the Christian denomination. On the way he will make visits to a number of points in the interest of his position. His family will leave probably tomorrow, also, to make their home in Oklahoma City. Dr. Roberts will have headquarters at Indianapolis although the family residence will be at Oklahoma City.

The following expression of appreciation for courtesies shown him while in Cisco was voiced by Dr. Roberts today:

"In leaving Cisco I wish to express to the many friends my hearty appreciation for the many courtesies that have been extended me by them and the cooperation that has been given in the interest of Randolph college. It will always be a delight to me to learn of any progress Randolph college may make. I trust that a president shall be found that shall lead in a great way. There is no greater service one can render than that through a Christian college. Cisco needs the college and the church needs it. It can and should be carried on. I pray for the greatest possible cooperation for its ongoing."

"I wish to express my very grateful appreciation to the Cisco Daily News for the many kindnesses that have been shown through their columns personally through their columns and for the unstinted publicity it continually gives to Randolph college. The paper has been a great friend of this institution."

"I wish also to express publicly to the Rotary club my appreciation for the honor that it has bestowed upon me by voting me an honorary member of their group. I will wear with great delight the pin that was presented me and will display with pleasure the silver Rotary membership card across the nation as I visit various groups. I hope for the greatest success of the Cisco group and trust it will be a great factor in promoting the ideals of Rotary."

Farmers at Cross Plains Cut Grain

CROSS PLAINS, May 25.—Farmers of this section are already binding their grain, still a trifle green, in an effort to curtail the ravages of the cutworm which has become a serious menace.

If safely harvested it is predicted that one of the heaviest grain crops grown in this section in several years will be realized. Poisoning has also been resorted to an effort to stop the ravages of the worm.

Attend Daughter's Graduation Program

The Rev. and Mrs. E. L. Milley left yesterday for Enid, Oklahoma, where they will attend the graduation exercises of the senior class of Phillips university, of which their daughter, Eula, is a member.

Mr. Milley delivered the baccalaureate sermon to the senior class of the Cisco high school in union services at the high school auditorium yesterday morning at 11 o'clock.

STORY OF GAY PARTY ENTERS INTO PROBE

LOS ANGELES, May 25.—Stories of a gay party which it was said David H. Clark attended three years ago when he was a deputy district attorney, crept today into the Crawford-Spencer double saying which has threatened, among other things, to "blow the lid off racketeering."

Police said Clark, now accused of murdering Charles Crawford, powerful politician, and Herbert Spencer, magazine editor, was prosecuting Albert Marco, vice controller on charges of assault to commit murder at the time.

Clark, it was said, attended the party between two trials of Marco. It was said that during the party he was supposed to have been photographed with a girl.

Officers believed such photographs were never taken but that their supposed existence may have been used by foes of Clark during the recent primaries when he won the right to contest for a municipal judgeship in the June second election.

Seniors Prepare Real Entertainment

The citizens of Cisco will be afforded an enjoyable evening with a delightful comedy "A Peach of A Family" which will be presented by the senior class of Cisco high school at the high school auditorium, Wednesday May 27, at 8.

Steve Richmond, played by Jules Karkalis, cut off from his allowance by an indulgent uncle, played by Charles Shepherd, calls to his two friends, played by Ted Waters and Howard Esch, who suggest that he adopt responsibility in the form of a family to make him get out and earn a living. The responsibility turns out in the form of four "peaches," played by Nell Waters, Joyce Ray, Helen Crawford and Mary Jane Saddler. About this time trouble begins. "Old Man Shelby" in a car wreck. A governor, whom he is obliged to employ and who furnishes the love interests, turns out to be "Old Man" Shelby's niece. Ova Brown plays the role of the niece and Billy Murray plays the role of "Old Man" Shelby. When Steve finally lands in jail because he can not pay the damage suit, he is loyally assisted by his sentimental aunt, played by Athlene Looney, and by his "blame good little housekeeper" played by Journe Armstrong.

How this "ner-do-well" nephew of a rich uncle works his way out of jail and proves to his family, his friends and the governor that he can make make good will delight the audience through an entire evening of laughs.

BOARD WILL CHOOSE 14 NEW RANGERS

AUSTIN, May 25.—Fourteen new rangers, authorized by the Texas legislature, will be selected by a board consisting of the adjutant general and ranger captains, Adj. Gen. W. W. Sterling said today. The governor will be invited to sit with them.

"Crime waves are prevalent in northern and eastern cities whose police chiefs have to appoint friends of politicians," said Adj. Gen. Sterling. "This department will be kept entirely out of politics with appointments only on merits."

Applicants were warned against coming to Austin. The appropriation for more rangers will not effect until September 1.

ROBY, May 25.—Trail of Mayor Charlton Brown, of Mineral Wells, on a charge of liquor transportation was continued today until October 19. T. L. Hemphill, of Mineral Wells, indicted with Brown on a similar charge, also was scheduled for trial on the same day. The men were arrested following an automobile accident while en route to the West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention held at Lubbock.

High School Band Back From Tulsa; Royal Treatment Given Cisco Group

Leaving Tulsa at midnight Saturday the Cisco Lobo band arrived in Cisco yesterday, unsuccessful in their quest for national honors at the national high school band tournament but well satisfied with their trip and inspired to even greater efforts.

Standing of the band in the tournament is yet to be announced. Director G. W. Cullum said that this would be mailed to him within the next few days. Joliet, Ill., high school band of 94 pieces won first place in the class A division in which Cisco was entered. Out of a field of 16 entries in this division six were chosen to compete for first place in the finals Saturday evening when an estimated 35,000 people heard the contest in the big coliseum. These were, in addition to Joliet, Senn high school, of Chicago, 100 pieces; Harrison Tech, of Chicago, 102 pieces; Marion, Ind., 76 pieces; Aurora, Ill., 70 pieces, and Gary, Ind., 90 pieces. These bands were particularly equipped for concert music and the presentation of difficult classical numbers, cost of their instrumentation reaching into thousands of dollars. The retail price of this equipment for Senn high school was $25,000. Mr. Cullum said. Another band, he believed it was Joliet, was equipped with gold instruments exclusively.

Judges of the contest were John Philip Sousa; Carl Busch, of Chicago; Frank Goldman, of New York; Mr. Simon, of Middletown, O., director of the Armo band.

The Tulsa Tribune and Tulsa World each ran a picture of the Cisco band while other pictures of the Cisco musicians were displayed in business houses in the city.

Treatment accorded the Cisco band was royal, said Mr. Cullum. Lodging, transportation and courtesies of every character were provided free and representatives of the host city were continually at their heels to be of service, he said.

LARGE CROWD AT MEMORIAL SERVICE SUN.

A large congregation was present at the First Baptist church last evening for the Memorial service. The American Legion came in a body and sat together in the center section of the church. The music directed by W. F. Walker was appropriate and divided between patriotic and religious hymns. The message of the hour was brought by the pastor, E. S. James, on the subject of "The Vanguard and The Rearward of America Today."

In the message Mr. James brought to the attention of the audience a retrospective view of American history, setting forth the various wars in which America has participated and showing the causes of those wars the reasons why she has ever been victorious, and the prospects for world peace. Special emphasis was laid on the World War, and special tribute was paid to those soldiers both living and dead who fought the battles.

"The causes of the World War," said the pastor, "might be grouped as follows: Fear, secret diplomacy, avrice, militaristic philosophy, and misunderstanding on the part of the citizenship of some of the European countries."

In setting forth the course of the war Mr. James explained the participation of the various nations, how they came to enter the conflict, and the ultimate consummation of the war.

He set forth the cost of the war as follows: Forty-six billion dollars in money, thirteen million men, broken homes in every nation, the loss of positions by the soldier boys, and a general decline in the moral conditions of the world. He showed further immensity of the number slain by saying that if they should pass in review two by two in quick time it would require two and one-half years for them to pass.

Glancing into the future and to the prospects for world peace, the pastor anticipated that neither armament nor disarmament is the remedy for the international ills. Neither the refusal to fight nor the idea that peace will just naturally come could be expected to bring it, but there is a cure, and it will bring permanent peace. I quote you from the 35 Psalm. It reads like this: "Righteousness and Peace have kissed. They are engaged now and when they are married or when they have become one, then the nations will know war no more. It behooves, therefore, every living person to give of his best for the evangelization of the world."

Son Drowned After Father Is Injured

EL PASO, May 25.—Less than 12 hours after Dominguez Morales, 38, was critically injured by having his leg cut off by a train, his son, Salvador, 9, was drowned in the Rio Grande.

The father had not been told of the death of his son as it was feared the shock of the news would prove fatal.

Morales was injured Sunday morning when he evidently went to sleep on the railroad tracks and a train passed over his leg. The son was drowned Sunday afternoon and the grief-stricken mother found his body on a sand bar.

FISCAL AND TRUCK BILLS ARE INCLUDED

AUSTIN, May 25.—Gov. Ross Sterling will return to Austin tomorrow from a week-end on the golf coast and start a survey of the work accomplished by the state legislature. He will decide what bills he will approve and determine if a special session shall be called.

The governor has 20 days in which to veto or approve approximately 75 bills that have been left upon his desk. Among them are the appropriation bills and motor truck regulation bills. He may cut out items in the appropriation bills and approve the remaining part. Other bills must be accepted as past or be vetoed altogether.

Bills that were passed with four-fifths vote in both the house and senate bearing an emergency clause are effective upon the governor's signing them. Others take effect Saturday, August 22.

So far the governor has vetoed no bill passed by the legislature.

WILL ADVISE AGENTS CALL

AUSTIN, May 25.—Lieut. Gov. Edgar Witt today said that he will advise Gov. Ross Sterling against calling a special session of the Texas legislature this year, the Austin Statesman today printed the statement that "Gov. Sterling has announced a special session of the legislature for June 15 or June 22. Taxation and appropriations were named as its main subjects." To whom the announcement was made was not given. The governor's office reported they had no such announcement and the governor is sailing on the gulf.

STATE TROOPS STAND GUARD OVER CONVICTS

VANDALIA, Ill., May 25.—State troops stood guard today about the barbed wire boundaries of the Vandalia prison farm after a night of rioting during which five buildings were burned and several persons were injured in hand to hand fighting.

National guardsmen were rushed to the farm from Mt. Vernon by Governor Louis L. Emerson where it appeared the prison guards and more than a hundred volunteer citizen guards from Vandalia might be unable to cope with the situation.

Sedan Stolen From T. C. Williams Sunday

A Ford sedan, belonging to T. C. Williams, principal of the west ward school, was boldly stolen from before Mr. Williams' home before dark yesterday evening. Mr. Williams was at home and had the car parked at the curb.

Officials are working on definite clues.

Commencement for Randolph Tonight

Diplomas will be presented to a class of 18 graduates of the college department and four graduates of the high school department of Randolph college in commencement exercises this evening at 8 o'clock at the First Christian church.

Dr. T. T. Roberts, president of the school, will deliver the commencement address and present the diplomas as his last official act upon relinquishing his place at the head of the college.

Mexia Sup't Goes to San Antonio

SAN ANTONIO, May 25.—J. C. Cochran, superintendent of schools at Mexia and president of the Texas State Teachers association was today elected superintendent of San Antonio schools at a salary of $10,000 annually. R. L. Marquis, president of the North Texas Teachers college also was under consideration for the post.

DAILY BIBLE THOUGHT

CONSIDER OUR LIMITATIONS:—Lord, make me to know mine end, and the measure of my days what it is; that I may know how frail I am.—Psalm 39: 4.

PRaise GOD:—Sing praises to God, sing praises: sing praises unto our King, sing praises.—Psalm 47: 6.

THEY ASK FOR WINE AND BEER.

Six hundred delegates to the triennial convention of the International Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks adopted a resolution asking repeal of the 18th amendment and also supporting the action of the American Federation of Labor in its efforts to legalize light wines and beer. This will lead to more talk and human chattering is not a straggling or struggling industry.

BROOKHART DEMANDS A BILLION DOLLARS.

Senator Smith W. Brookhart of Iowa, republican and radical, urged the federal farm board to ask congress for a billion dollar revolving fund, power to impose embargoes, authority to control exchange trading and absolute control of the intermediate credit banks. Why a billion? Why not a trillion and a dictatorship?

OIL PRICES CLOSE TO BOTTOM.

Harry F. Sinclair has let it be known that oil prices are getting very close to bottom; that consumption of gasoline has increased slightly this year over 1930 "but the industry as a whole is not making any money." Over in East Texas big gushers are coming in daily and the potentialities of the East Texas field has staggered the minds of the veterans of the petroleum game. Three federal judges are to sit in Houston and hand down a decision in the proration controversy. "Wherever there is oil there is hell." E. L. Doheny said it in Mexico years ago.

PROPERTY VALUATIONS IN WILLIAMSON.

Williamson county commissioners court in special session ordered a blanket reduction of 15 per cent in property valuations as compared with 1930. Citizens Leaguers recommended that the cut should be 20 or 25 per cent. Their commissioners responded with a cut of 15 per cent. "Economy in public expenditures" is the demand of the leaguers.

PRES. PARKS' ADVICE TO LABOR.

President J. W. Parks of the state federation of labor, in annual convention in the city of El Paso, gave this advice to his fellow workers: "We must organize and allow nothing to discourage our solidarity. If we vote always with out economic welfare in mind we will have nothing to fear from big business or anyone. Seldom has organized labor been confronted with more serious conditions of unemployment. We have weathered such conditions in the past and will do so now; but we must stand together."

President Parks is an optimist. He knows that the future is bright with promise. Depressions come and go. This is a 400 billion dollar nation. It is coming out of the dumps of depression. This has been its history. It will continue to be its history. Think intelligently, work hard, face conditions as they arrive and let it go at that.

TEXAS WORKING GIRLS.

State Labor Commissioner R. B. Gragg attended the federation of labor state convention. He said a survey recently completed by his department revealed a girl with no dependents could not live decently on less than $14.72 a week, while 52 per cent of the working girls in Texas are getting less than that amount. A reminder that thousands of American families the nation over are living on less than $14.72 a week according to the statisticians of the federal government. How do they manage it?

MODERN PRODUCTS OF AMERICAN COLLEGES.

Isn't education wonderful? Dr. John C. Phillips of Harvard reports an evolutionary tendency among college men and women to grow taller, broader-shouldered, narrower-hipped and heavier. On with the run from the little red schoolhouse on the hillside to the tallest university. But how about brain expansion?

FIVE DAY WEEK FOR OKLAHOMA LABORERS.

Chairman Sam Hawks of the Oklahoma state highway commission has inaugurated the five day week for Oklahoma highway maintenance men. About 1200 workers are affected by the change and a saving of approximately $7,200 weekly will be effected. Is the new system on the way?

A NEW CO-OPERATIVE COUNCIL FOR TEXAS.

All heads or agencies of Texas co-operative associations and marketing associations will assemble next Wednesday in the city of Dallas to discuss forming a permanent council of co-operatives in the state. Representatives of the federal farm board and the American Cotton Co-operative association have been asked to attend the conference to discuss benefits which would accrue from unification of co-operative marketing in Texas. More than 40 co-operative organizations covering everything from wool to figs will be represented—according to Secretary B. C. Pittuck of the Texas Cotton Co-operative association.

John A. Simpson of Oklahoma is president of the Farmers Educational and Co-operative Union of America. He is away out on the Golden coast fringe addressing grain trade associations. He is demanding amendment of the federal marketing act and the changing of personnel and revising policies in marketing efforts. His theory is that the farmers must solve their own problems and not depend on the gov-

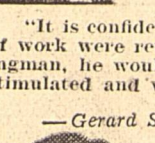

FIVE-DAY WEEK AT SAME PAY AIDS LABOR, BOOSTS BUSINESS

Manufacturer Also Improves Morale by Guaranteeing Jobs to Employees—Greater Operating Efficiency Result of Policy

"A balanced condition must be restored; and this may be done without a general reduction in wages, provided the period of readjustment is not too long drawn out and on condition also that we reduce costs by yet greater efficiency in labor, in management and in distribution."

—Andrew W. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury.

"It is confidently believed that if the fear of lack of work were removed from the mind of the workman, he would approach his work with interest stimulated and with intelligence."

—Gerard Suopé, President of General Electric.

"All regular employees were guaranteed that their positions would be maintained throughout the winter, regardless of business conditions. . . . Adoption of the five-day week reduced labor turnover and resulted in increased efficiency."

—Carleton H. Palmer, President E. R. Squibb & Sons.

Early last summer a manufacturing corporation sensed the impending crisis in unemployment and immediately cut its work-week to five days with no reduction in wages. Later in the fall, as jobs became scarcer and plants everywhere were "laying off" employees, that same corporation took still another forward step and issued a guarantee to all its workers that their positions were safe for the entire winter. Carleton H. Palmer, youthful and vigorous president of E. R. Squibb & Sons, drug manufacturers, declared it the responsibility of each industry to do its part in maintaining wage scales in order not to impair the buying power of the country, to increase leisure for its employees and at the same time to relieve labor of the devastating effects of fear of unemployment. Andrew W. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury, and Gerard Suopé, President of General Electric, in recent addresses have emphasized the theories put into practice by the Squibb company last year. According to Mr. Palmer his pol-eniment. His indictment is "that political racketeers have muscled their way into the business and absolutely upset prices and demoralized business."

President Simpson has a poisonous tongue. It drips venom. For instance he attacked government activities, "saying they had made gambling so crooked in the grain and cotton exchanges that the regular operators had to quit." John A. Simpson of Oklahoma must have a deadly grievance against the federal administration and those responsible for the federal marketing act and its policies.

OTHER OPINIONS

REAL STATESMANSHIP

Representative J. C. Duvall of 24. Worth last week prepared for introduction to the house a resolution which bears the impress of splendid statesmanship.

Recognizing the glaring inequalities of present tax levies, and desiring to bring about a more equitable attending every offered tax bill, this Fort Worth solon proposes appointment of a small committee to make a scientific study and survey of the state's revenue sources and requirements.

In order that the study shall not be made in vain, he cautiously specifies that members of this committee shall be drafted from the personnel of the present house committees on revenue and taxation. It is his suggestion that this committee work with Texas industry to produce a tax program that will escape attack from the "third house," yet provide sufficient revenue for the state's needs.

In only two particulars does Mr. Duvall err. First, he would have the governor appoint industry's representatives to this tax conference. There are numerous reasons why industry should select its own representatives. Chief among them is the fact that it would be bound morally only by commitments of its own agents. A moment's thought suggests many reasons why industrialists might object to decisions made for them by representatives picked by the governor of the state. It is no fairer for the state to pick industry's representatives to this conference, than for industry to name the state's representatives.

Mr. Duvall's second error lies in his suggestion that Chambers of Commerce be represented in the committee personnel. It is the work of this committee to negotiate a tentative agreement between the taxpayer and the taxed. Chambers of Commerce do not levy taxes, nor are they likely to be taxed. A member of the committee representing the Houston Chamber of Commerce would be predisposed to favor industries concentrated in his territory, even were the result unfair to interests peculiar to the Dallas area. A Dallas man would be subjected to similar prejudices. Let the parties directly concerned arrive at their own decisions and agreements.

Aside from these two faults—and they are easily remedied by the simple expedient of dropping them from the draft of the resolution—the Duvall resolution in all probability is the most constructive and progressive of all the revenue measures offered for consideration of the 42nd legislature. Here, at last is the sane and sensible method for escape from the multitude of tax ailments that beset us. And its father—Representative Duvall—is the Moses we've needed to lead us out of the economic wilderness. —Editorial Digest.

In the Political Arena

By HUGH NUGENT FITZGERALD

Former Gov. Oscar Branch Colquitt, member of the federal labor mediation board, is under the big dome greeting old friends and paying his respects "to the powers that be." He is holding down the best paying position of his life—a job that carries a salary of $12,000 a year and expenses. He is looking as fit as a prize fighter and Washington life appears to agree with him. His son, Rollins, accompanied him from Houston to Austin.

There are many labor conventions on in Texas and for years and years, while in state official life, Colquitt was a power with the spokesmen of organized labor. He is not at Austin on political business. As a member of the federal board he does a vast deal of traveling the country over and is in touch with labor conditions generally as he was in days of yore.

A remarkable career clusters around Colquitt. He began life a plow boy on a farm in East Texas. He became a printer and then a country editor. He was a state tax-laws. He was state tax commissioner where he followed the bent of his mind. He stepped from the office of tax commissioner to that of railroad commissioner which was only a stepping stone to the office of governor. He was elected in 1910 and retired in 1914 to make way for James E. Ferguson. He had backed Ferguson to a finish as his successor.

He became a candidate for United States senator and in the primary led the list of entrants. Samuel Falmer Brooks was one. Colquitt ran away ahead of all the list with Charles A. Culberson as the runner up. Then followed a battle royal. All the pro leaders and their followers flocked to the standard of Culberson and that distinguished statesman defeated the ambition of the former governor railroad commissioner and for years publisher of one of the best edited weekly newspapers of Texas.

State Labor Commr. R. B. Gragg, in addressing the annual convention of the Texas Allied Printing Trades Council at El Paso, made a plea for laws to protect women and girls in industry. In discussing unemployment Gragg said men and women in all industries were unable to find work and he doubted if any permanent relief would be obtained without reorganization of the entire economie structure. A committee drew up a resolution strongly opposing the establishment of a state printing plant in the penitentiary and authorizing officers of the Allied Printing Trades to fight such a measure in the courts if necessary. Gragg has been prominent in printing and labor union circles for years. He served as assistant commissioner during the administration of Dan Moody and was promoted to first place by Gov. Ross S. Sterling. On the same day, in Houston William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, declared that "American labor will stand uncompromising and immovable against all attempts to lower living standards through the imposition of reductions in wages." Speaking before the convention of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, Pres. Green said "statements he attributed to representatives of large banking interests had convinced many representatives of labor that a general reduction in wages was being sought. He described wage cuts as economic fallacies and said it had become "the solemn duty of the wage earners of the nation to resist with all the power they possess any such move."

According to government reports the army of unemployed numbers 6,000,000. Summertime is here. Wintertime is the period which carries a menace. If the army of unemployed next winter goes above a 6,000,000 mark there is going to be a lot of misery in the homes of wage workers in the industrial centers of the United States. "Jobs for the jobless" should be the slogan all around the line.

Grief Expressed in Death of Mr. Keevil

Resolutions upon the tragic death of the Rev. Joseph Keevil, president-elect of Randolph college, were passed by the board of trustees of the college at a meeting Saturday.

Mr. Keevil, returning to his home at Maria from the meeting of the board which offered him presidency of the school, received fatal injuries in an automobile accident.

The resolution passed by the board are:

We, the trustees of Randolph college, wish to express to Mrs. Joseph Keevil and family our deep sympathy and share with them to our ability their grief in the tremendous loss of the husband and father and a great and loyal friend of the church and its auxiliaries. Great depression heaves over us all in this hour of distress. Out of the cloud of sorrow comes the joy of Him who loves us all and we hear Him say anew, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant; enter thou into the joy of the Lord." It is such promises, we are sure, are your stay in this hour and we too cling to them with a ray of hope. May the hand of the Lord sustain you and yours in this very deep grief.

ARMY FLIERS LEARN TACTICS IN MANEUVERS

By JOSEPH H. BAIRD

United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON, May 23.—The army air corps is learning during these late May days, to fight on a mammoth scale without precedent in the history of American military aviation.

In the days of old, generals learned military tactics by fighting battles. Then men wrote books, showing how to outflank the enemy and spot his weak points. After that they learned from the printed page as well as on the battlefield. But there are no textbooks about aerial military operations, and that, so army officers say, is the salient reason for the great aerial maneuvers which started at Dayton this month, and which, according to program, will proceed eastward, continuing until the end of May, with problems of attack and defense over New York and other large eastern cities.

The army air corps expects to learn many lessons from the rush of 672 military planes from the middle west to the east coast and from their warlike "attacks" on Chicago, New York and Washington, Baltimore and Philadelphia.

Seek Definite Knowledge.

Brig. Gen. Benjamin D. Foulois, commander, and his staff are seeking answers to some very definite questions which would be raised if the air corps were called on to protect this country from attack. They want to know, for instance, whether present tables of organization and equipment needs are adequate. They want to know whether an air division—the largest unit of aerial strength—can be handled by the army's present staff. Other questions are:

1. How many and what spare parts must be laid down at various airdomes to insure proper maintenance of aircraft?
2. Are present methods of communication adequate and what are the most effective methods of communication?
3. Can an air division, or parts of it, be controlled by radio so that changes in operations or routes may be made after it is in the air?
4. How many airplanes can be successfully operated from one airdome? How many airdomes would be needed in time of war?
5. What length of time does it take for a large organization to take off from, or land in, an airdome? How long does it take to service a large air organization?

These—to the mind of an officer—are not theoretical questions, but concrete queries which will demand an answer in the event of war. It is when the needed facts are apparent, they will be put into military textbooks for future officers to study.

As the result of the war, war, nearly every American is familiar with at least some of the terms of infantry phraseology. But the lexicon of military aviation is new and virtually unknown outside the air corps. With this in mind, the war department has issued an abridged dictionary of these terms. A few of them are:

Standby area — An area assigned to a unit of planes for maneuvering purposes to prevent congestion while awaiting its turn to join in some scheduled operation.

Element — The lower subdivision of a formation, or a squadron formation within a group formation.

Unit — A definite tactical organization, such as a flight, squadron or group.

Formation — Two or more airplanes in coordinated flight.

Rallying point — The point at which various elements of an air command reassemble after an attack.

Rendezvous point — The point at which supporting or supported formations of two or more operating units join in the air.

Times of takeoff—The instant at which an airplane or the leading airplane of a formation begins its run on the ground preparatory to flying.

Readiness — The condition obtaining when flying personnel is at the airdome, airplanes ready to take off within one hour after orders are given.

Alert — Airplanes fully serviced and engines warm, with pilots ready to take final orders and take off in fifteen minutes.

Stations — Blocks out from under planes and pilots ready to take off on signal.

Use Many Types. Many types of airplanes — all designed for specific duties—will take part in the maneuvers. Some of them, with their outstanding characteristics, are:

Pursuit planes — Fast, easily maneuvered planes designed to shoot down and destroy enemy craft. They are each armed with two machine guns forward of the pilot, synchronized to shoot through the propeller. Their high speed is around 192 miles per hour. They have a service ceiling of 29,900 feet and can climb five miles in 20 minutes.

Observation planes — Slower, larger ships, generally two-seaters, armed with three machine guns — one forward, two aft — with cruising speeds of between 100 and 120 miles per hour. They are used as scouts.

Attack planes — Fast, heavily armed ships used to pounce down on ground forces. They carry six machine guns and 10 small fragmentation bombs. Their cruising speed is 100 miles per hour, but they can make 139.

Bombardment planes — Giant ships, carrying heavy loads of bombs to destroy ground objectives. Their speed varies from 100 to 130 miles per hour. They are usually dual-motored and carry from two to four thousand pounds of bombs. They also carry machine guns to fight off attack by swift pursuit ships.

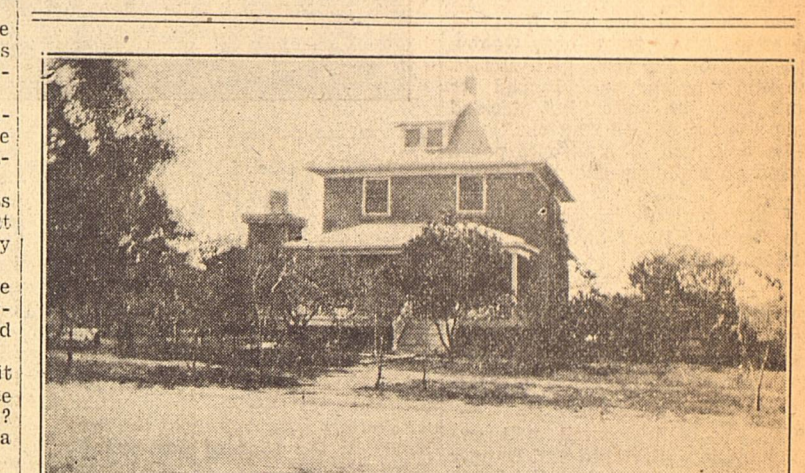

FIRE ALARM FIEND.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., May 25.—Firemen in the third precinct have sounded a death knell for a false alarm offender — If they catch him. Five times in one day, false fire alarms disturbed the firefighters, and the week previous six were rung in one day.

The MELODY GIRL

BEGIN HERE TODAY
Beryl Borden, secretly in love with Tommy Wilson, delays his elopement with her half-sister, Irene Everett, but fails to convince him that it is his duty to finish college.

Irene wants to be a radio singer. She secures an audition and takes Beryl to the studio with her. While waiting, Beryl croons melodies at a piano. A director accidentally hears and is charmed by her voice. He gives her a test and offers a contract which elates her but her joy is bitter-sweet for Irene fails and the family blame Beryl. Irene again promises to elope with Tommy but his aunt dies and the marriage is postponed.

Beryl's debut is a success. She tries to forget her hopeless love for Tommy by going to gay parties with Prentiss Gaylord, wealthy son of her employer. Irene attempts to win Prentiss from her sister.

Beryl becomes ill and the doctor warns her to stay in bed and guard her throat. Irene meanwhile avoids Tommy and tries to captivate Prentiss.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXII
Prentiss arrived with his arms full of flowers and Mrs. Everett was kept busy for the next half hour getting them into proper containers.

Beryl heard his car stop before the house but no one came to tell her he was there. The flowers were placed in the living room. No thought of taking them up to Beryl, not even Prentiss. Bringing them was only a polite gesture with him. He was thinking of Irene and when she told him that Beryl was resting in her room on the orders—oh, no, it was nothing doctor's orders—oh, no, it was nothing serious!—he apologized again for keeping her up so late the night before—and forgot about Beryl.

Prentiss had not been in love since his adolescent days, but as was not in any degree a woman hater. He had liked Beryl and had found himself wondering on a few occasions if he might not be falling in love with her. He was ready to fall in love, wanted to feel in love. The bugbear of most young men who consider love and matrimony—lack of funds—did not bother him. He had enough money to make any reasonable girl happy as far as money was concerned.

He liked and admired Beryl, had thought for a time that they might marry deeply for each other but this affection had not come. Was he going to be one of those persons who never experience it? At times he was afraid this might be true. And he believed that the greatest thing in life would be missed if one never met an overwhelming passion, never was swept off one's feet, carried away, submerged, drowned, lost in love.

He didn't want to live like a stuffed dummy. He wanted to fall head over heels in love. If the girl wouldn't have him—all right—that too would be an experience. What was life without experience? Experiences of all kinds. You might as well be dead as to live uneventfully. It was the same thing. So thought Prentiss.

When he met Irene he knew that he'd met a new experience. Up to that time he hadn't known whether it was true or not true that love sometimes came with first sight.

He was falling in love with Irene. But how could he tell her that without endangering the belief that he was fickle? Hadn't he been paying rather marked attention to her sister?

A nice girl like Irene wouldn't understand. He'd have to waste time breaking it to her gently that he hadn't been serious about Beryl. Thank the Lord he hadn't plicated matters. A girl as sweet as Irene... she'd not want him if she thought it would hurt Beryl.

Side by side they rode in the black and chromium roadster. He: "Yes, I'll have to watch my step." She: "If he would wait he so slow!" It was that delightful hour near the end of a summer day when the sun retreats before a pale moon and the long shadows fresco the earth, when there is a stillness as though all things stood at attention while the sun sends up its farewell banners of red and gold, purple and blue.

Irene and Prentiss were gliding along with their young minds seething with thoughts. They had nothing in common with the serenity of the countryside. It did not touch them. Prentiss was thrilled with his thoughts. Now he was awake! Now he was alive! Here was a girl who could prove to him that he'd been sleeping.

Habit fastened itself upon him. "Am I an egotist?" he asked himself. "What does the girl think? Does she know anything about this pounding in the brain, a certain, human being in your arms, to know through the sense of touch of ecstasy that cannot be imagined?"

He stole a glance at Irene. She was wearing the oropendy dress with the dainty ribbon bows (and she still remembered her mother's expression when she appeared in it). Her mother knew that it was the second dress she had been intended for her wedding. Irene had confided this after Mrs. Hoffman's death.

She looked like... Prentiss could not say what she looked like. Flowerlike, yes, but what did exterior mean? He could not tell.

from stolen glances at her what was in her mind. And they were driving too fast for certain scrutiny. He had in mind a certain inn to which he would take Irene to get her if she would go, and it was far out on the island.

He'd suggested the drive with some reluctance, fearing she would think it inconsiderate of Beryl. Irene had sensed his thought and got around it by saying wistfully that she didn't think she should go. Then she left him for a moment to instruct her mother to insist that she go.

They came back to him together. Mrs. Everett simpered a trifle over her part, but she succeeded in convincing Prentiss that she had persuaded Irene to go out for a while.

"She's been in all day looking after Beryl," she explained with a fond smile of approval for her daughter.

"Thank you, Mrs. Everett," Prentiss said, "but don't say for a while! I don't like to think of time when I'm enjoying myself."

"Well, not too late, please," Mrs. Everett conceded, and Prentiss felt as though she had consigned a precious treasure to his care.

He didn't care much for Mrs. Everett and he'd heard that daughters were often like their mothers. But as he waited for Irene to get her hat and wrap (the latter at his suggestion) he reminded himself that Beryl was not much like Mrs. Everett. It didn't follow that Irene had to be either even if there was a closer resemblance between them.

Environment would count. Prentiss should have realized that his ability to consider these matters at this time meant that he was not falling in love blindly.

The girl he married would not develop as the wife of a small town groceryman. And now, because he was intelligent, he should have realized that this thought was not conducive to future happiness. When he told her she might become—that he did not love her—the real Irene—that he saw in her only a reflection of his ideal and loved that reflection? Didn't he know that when one loves truly ideals are forgotten?

Perhaps a little love is sufficient to muddle a man's brain. Or it may be that a thinking man—no matter how great his capacity for emotional feeling—can never escape appraising the object of his affection. Also it might be that Prentiss was at that age where one is both young and old. Loving with the fervor and zest of youth and analyzing with the caution of age.

Whatever it was, as they raced along now over the smooth highway he was eager to reach the place where he could talk to Irene and look at her at the same time. When he told her where he wanted to take her she was thrilled but she would not agree to stay out to dinner until he had promised to telephone her mother.

She reasoned shrewdly enough that if Prentiss had admired Beryl he couldn't be interested in girls who cared nothing at all for convention, and so she was going to be quite proper with him.

She knew the inn to which he was taking her—knew that it was frequented by smart society folk—but she'd never been there. She felt very important when they were bowed through the front door by a waiter in satin livery, and conducted to a table in a semi-private room where there was a profusion of flowers and the gleam of old pewter against the patina of old pine.

Her dress, made in the new romantic style, had a charming background in this room. She was glad that she had not let her skin tan so much this year; it looked so much nicer. She put her arms out before her on the table and herself admired their soft, creamy beauty. Then she dropped them hastily to her lap. Suppose Prentiss noticed!

Beneath the tiny, flower-trimmed hat, her face was angelically innocent and Prentiss, looking at her, wondered what she would think of the things that were in his mind. How would he dare approach his love making?

Irene, glancing shyly at him from under demurely lowered eyelids, wondered about his way with girls. Was he serious or was this just a flirtation he was starting?

Well—if it were a flirtation at least she might get a good time out of it. Something better than going about with Tommy. Tommy, who had no car of his own and could borrow his uncle's only at rare intervals.

But of course, she mustn't break with Tommy definitely. She wished she had asked her mother not to tell Beryl where she had gone.

Beryl did not need to be told. When she heard Prentiss' car drive away from the house and Irene did not rush upstairs to gloat in one way or another over his visit, she knew.

Later she called to her mother, to ask her a question.

RED SOX WIN SIXTEENTH IN ROW SUNDAY

The Cisco Red Sox made it 16 wins in a row when they defeated the Dub Wooten team from Abilene 11 to 4 yesterday at Chesley park. The game was close until the sixth inning with Abilene leading most of the way. In that frame Hill opened with a double, Perry was hit, Henson followed with a fact one to second that Wright failed to handle scoring Hill. Perry stopping on second, Van Horn walked to fill the bases, Chapman walked to force in a run leaving the bases full. J. Pippin got hold of the second ball pitched and sent it over the left field fence scoring four runs. The next three went out in order. Cisco scored two more in the seventh on a double by Hill and an error by B. Pippin at first base for Abilene.

Bryan started the game for Cisco setting them down in order; in the first inning but ran into trouble in the second when H. Daniels doubled and Pippin got on when Hill dropped his grounder. The next man up walked and died on base when the next three failed to connect. Henson relieved Bryan in the third after three singles and an error had scored two runs. "Satch" set them down without any more scoring until the sixth when a double and two errors allowed one score. Hill and J. Pippin furnished the heavy artillery for Cisco, getting three hits each. All three of Hill's hits accounted for runs and Pippin scored three men ahead of him with his home-run in the sixth.

German Remedy Stops 30-Year Constipation

"For 30 years I had a bad stomach and constipation. Suffering food from stomach choked me. Since taking Adlerika I am a new woman. Constipation is thing of the past." —Alice Burns.

Most remedies reach only lower bowel. That is why you must take them often. But this simple German remedy Adlerika washes out BOTH upper and lower bowel. It brings out all gas and rids you of poison you would never believe was in your system. Even the FIRST dose will surprise you. Moore Drug Company—Adv.

TEXAS TOPICS

By RAYMOND BROOKS

Gov. Sterling has announced a special session of the legislature for June 15 or June 22.

Taxation and appropriations were named as its main subjects.

Others are known to be in the session grab bag. Here are some of them:

Oil prorations: The Howsley bill, to extend power of the railroad commission for the first time to prohibiting drilling because of lack of "reasonable current market demand" for oil, will be the basis of this legislative subject.

Judicial redistricting one of the few subjects on which Gov. Sterling asked action at the regular session. This would cut out a few courts. It would justify his expected veto of the bills creating new courts.

Congressional redistricting. Some attempt may be made to modify the present tax on property to pay local road bond issues. Whether the administration will try out some such plan as the Brooks or Stevenson bills to assume the county indebtedness for state highway work remained to be seen.

Gov. Sterling asked for enactment of a public utility regulation bill. He asked first for a new oil conservation commission, then broader powers of prorations for the present enforcement agency. He asked for judicial redistricting. He asked for a narcotic control law.

He asked the legislature to stay over and finish its regular session work, rather than kill the calendars and start anew. Of this, the legislature granted only the narcotic bill.

Yet Gov. Sterling, in his final messages, rather commended "than found fault with the legislature. He declared the lawmakers had earned the confidence of the people. He left the legislature in a distinctly better frame of mind than he would have by critical language. He saw the highway bond issue, in which he firmly believes, go down in defeat; yet offered no word of fault finding.

function of the Holy Spirit is to lead us into all truth. It helps us merge our little lives into the wisdom of the world's life, into the glory of a united humanity, into the greatness of a world fellowship. The great need of the world today is men and women of vision, sympathy and understanding, men and women with a world-consciousness, men and women who possess souls and spirits like the open sea.

Science is the key that unlocks all physical doors, all at once, and this time it seems that the right key is in every hand. The physicist, the biologist, the geologist, the astronomer and the mathematician are all entering into the cave of the unknown universe together. This is the mobilization of mind over matter, of all mind over all matter, carrying out the injunction of the Creator in the childhood of the race to go forth and subdue the planet.

Concluding, he said, "The goal of God's quest, the movement of worlds, the dawn of epochs, is to produce a man that shall wear on when sun and moon and stars are worn out. God wants us to be men! God wants to be our own wonderful man self helping him in the work of making earth and time spheres of high conduct and worthwhile achievement."

Panhandle Baseball League Opens June 10

AMARILLO, May 25. — With J. Alvin Gardner, president of the Texas league, at its head, the Panhandle Professional Baseball league will open the season June 10. Amarillo, Lubbock, Pampa and Plainview compose the league.

Amarillo will open at Pampa and Lubbock at Plainview, June 10 and 11. On June 12 and 13 the order will be reversed. Following the opening series three day stands will be played. All games will be at night.

"Honest" John McCloskey, "father" of Texas league, owns the Amarillo franchise. Henry Wanderling, former Western league franchise owner and lately of the defunct East Texas league, has bought the Lubbock club. The Plainview organization is owned by Frank Matthews and Robert Bruce. Jim Galloway, former Texas league pilot at Wichita Falls, has the Pampa franchise.

Two Safes Robbed by Professionals

KERENS, Tex., May 25. — Professional yeggs were believed responsible for the theft of a small amount of cash from two safes in the Cotton Belt depot here early today. Nightmen were used to open the safes, one of which was used by the railroad and the other by the express company.

Professor Denied U. S. Citizenship

WASHINGTON, May 25. — Professor Douglas Clyde McIntosh, Dwight professor of theology at Yale university, was held today by the supreme court to be ineligible to United States citizenship because he would swear to bear arms for the country only in what he considered a "just war."

Arguments Begun in Kirkland Trial

VALPARAISO, Ind., May 25. — Evidence in Virgil Kirkland's second trial on murder charges growing out of the liquor party death of Arlene Draves, 18, was summed up today in final arguments.

It was expected the youth's fate would be placed in the hands of the jury of rural Indiana residents tomorrow, nearly four weeks after the opening of the trial.

Love in a Stew, "Same Old Story"

EL PASO, May 25. — "Be popular with the man, take cooking." That is one of the signs displayed in the El Paso high school as students are sought for the domestic science department.

"Girls, to be popular with the men, it's the same old story of appealing to them thru their stomachs," another sign reads.

C. I. A. GRANTS M. A'S.

DENTON, May 25. — One hundred 81 seniors at C. I. A., the Texas State college for Women will receive their Bachelors degrees at the 28th annual commencement June 1. In addition to this number there will be six candidates for Master's degrees, this being the first time Master's degrees have been given by C. I. A. Dr. P. W. Horn, president of Texas Technological college, Lubbock, will deliver the commencement address Monday morning June 1.

Surgeon Slain in Pistol Duel

NEW YORK, May 25. — Dr. Joseph T. Lehigh, prominent surgeon and the father of four children, was slain in an old-fashioned pistol duel in a lonely field because he believed the man he challenged had broken up his home.

Police said today as they pressed a wide search for his alleged slayer.

NAME NEW BISHOP.

HAILFORD, Ont., May 25. — The Rt. Reverend Monsignor J. A. O'Sullivan was recently elevated to the position of Bishop of Charlottetown in St. Mary's Pro-Cathedral, where he was rector for several years.

NEW DIVORCE RECORD.

EUGENE, Ore., May 25. — A touch of Reno was displayed in Judge Skipworth's court here when a record of 18 divorces were granted in a day.

Those who wanted his weight behind their bills sometimes would have liked to see Gov. Sterling more aggressive during the regular session. He kept hands off, and avoided trying to lead or direct legislative action to an unusual degree.

But with the special session coming, he will say what subjects are to be considered.

It will be his duty to recommend the bills he wants; and it will be an occasion to tell the legislature that they are wanted and why they are wanted.

He has shown there will be no retaliatory slugging; but he can now, and probably will, tell the lawmakers just what results are expected of the next 30 days' work.

This does not mean that he arbitrarily will refuse to submit the usual run of local bills. No governor yet has been able to avoid sending up local subjects. Some have held them back until substantial action had been had on the

NEW DECLINES IN PRICES ARE REGISTERED

By R. E. EDMONDSON in The Wall Street Journal

Coming on top of sweeping deflation of the previous 20 months, additional readjustment of stock prices during the past week furthered the market's relentless quest for rock-bottom. Following a period in which railroad shares declined for eight consecutive sessions, and industrials worked lower ten business days, interrupted only by a quarter-point rally, the main body of stocks automatically rebelled against the incessant hammering of bearish professionals, and the steady stream of disheartened liquidation.

However before this welcome relief was afforded the frayed nerves of the speculative element, railroad stocks used in the Dow-Jones averages broke to the lowest levels touched since February, 1922. In dropping to 75.58 at last Monday's close, the carrier complication penetrated to territory previously considered only twice this century. Leading industrials extended their decline through Wednesday's trading, closing that day at 137.74, a new low since May, 1926.

In many respects, the downward movement in the principal stocks during the last three months has reassembled the culminating phase of the post-war deflation in May-August, 1921. On a percentage basis, however, this year's additional recessions have exceeded the further declines of a decade ago from the lows of December, 1920. Perhaps the market has been paying an extra penalty for the excessives of mid-summer, 1929.

While recent news from trade fields has been almost unvaryingly discouraging, it has presented insufficient change to justify the profound pessimism that has enveloped speculative quarters. Figures on electric output for the country as a whole afford one of the most reliable measures of the current business volume. Although the electricity statistics for the week ended May 16 show a decline of 3.3 per cent, compared with 2.4 per cent for the previous week, they actually do not establish any change in the leveling off trend which has been in evidence in recent weeks.

The latest figures compare with a week in 1930 which was only about 1/2 per cent below 1929, while the week ended May 9 compared with a 1930 week which was 2.4 per cent below the previous year. Observers who watch electric output closely for a line on business changes are looking forward with considerable interest to the figures for the next four to six weeks. Greater optimism regarding trade prospects would be justified should the 1931 line cross the 1930 total on the upside. Such an increase in kilowatt

Adequate Lighting Protects Young Eyes

SHARP and unimpaired eyesight is one of the most valuable assets young eyes can carry to further studies or into the world of affairs, for the young man or woman handicapped by poor vision rarely rises above mediocrity—even when natural talents and abilities are far above average.

Proper and adequate lighting, in this modern age of voluminous readers, is vitally important to eyesight protection and conservation. Your eyes are subjected daily to intense strains of every conceivable kind—do you have a sufficient amount of light, properly distributed and placed, to eliminate much of that strain?

A trained employee will be glad to inspect your home, rearrange your present equipment, suggest correct wattage for lighting units, or, where necessary, recommend inexpensive additional equipment. A telephone call will bring this courteous representative to your home.
