We had a swell time around our house one day last week. The Mrs. got stung over her eye by a wasp and did she have a swell time for a while.

Remember folks, that next week the Fourth Annual Loraine Dairy Show will be held. Mr. Brown, superintendent of the show, is expecting around a hundred head of stock here to compete for the prizes and to be classified by Mr. Simons.

Dairymen in this area should be glad of the opportunity afforded them of having their dairy cattle classified by such a personage in the dairy world as Mr. D. T. Simons who is representative of the American Jersey Cattle Club and also secretary of the Texas Jersey Cattle Club. When he classifies your cattle you will know just what you have. You will know whether the animal is excellent, good, or just ordinary. Such information will be invaluable to breeders of dairy stock. Bring in your stock for exhibition.

Cotton constitutes 56 per cent of the entire fiber supply of the world.

An added feature at the Dairy Show this year will be the saddle horse show. Stanton Hutchins will be superintendent of this division and he already has promise of several good saddle horses. What is more beautiful than a trim saddle horse unless it is a beautiful girl. You will enjoy this feature of the show.

It is quite a relief to go up and down the hill by the water tank since the city has had the rocks removed and the street smoothed up. Motorists are grate full.

The editor has been debating with himself for quite some time now whether to raise the price of a year's subscription to The Mitchell County News. The price of paper has gone up, the price of metal has gone up, the cost of living is up, and most everything that goes into making a newspaper has gone up. So we have no other decision to make than to raise the price of subscription to cover the cost. However, we are going to give everyone an opportunity to get their home paper at $1.00 a year. Within a short time, however, we must raise the price to $1.50. Until we announce the date for the change we will accept subscriptions, new or renewal, at $1.00. No other paper in the country is offering as much for $1.00 as The Mitchell County News.

Leaf worms are beginning to make a real pest of themselves. Poisoning is rather general over the territory though some farmers say there are very few in their cotton.

It has been quite a while since we have seen such a wonderful feed crop. Maize, cane, sudan and all feed crops are real good and many farmers are wondering just what they are going to do with all of it.

During the Dairy Show next week The Mitchell County News is sponsoring a picture of local scenes at the Lorex Theatre.

NEWS OUT EARLY FOR NEXT WEEK

The Mitchell County News will be published a day early next week in order to give the paper time to reach all subscribers before the Fourth Annual Dairy Show here on Friday. The paper will be in the mail in time to go out on the rural routes Thursday morning, so please remember to have your news and advertising copy to us earlier than usual.

LONG TIME RESIDENT BURIED HERE LAST WEEK

The passing of C. H. Thomas, who was buried here last Wednesday, leaves a vacant spot in this community that will not be filled. Mr. Thomas was a familiar and jovial figure on the streets of Loraine for many years, having lived in this neighborhood for 35 years. The entire community extends sympathy to his good wife and children.

Noted Dairyman To Classify Cattle At Dairy Show Here

Mr. D. T. Simons, field man for the American Jersey Cattle Club and secretary of the Texas Jersey Cattle Club, is to be in Loraine on August 22 for the purpose of judging and classifying dairy cattle on exhibition at the Fourth Annual Loraine Dairy Show.

Mr. Simons is among the leading dairymen of the Southwest and his appearance in Loraine gives local dairymen an opportunity to have their cattle classified by an authority on the subject.

Shade Provided For Stock

Mr. R. L. Hostes, president of the Loraine Chamber of Commerce, announced Wednesday morning that a shade would be provided under which to place the stock at the Dairy Show here next Friday. An arbor is to be built for the purpose. This will enable dairymen to bring in their stock and know they will not have to stand in the hot sun all day.

Loraine Boy Scouts have been given the concessions at the Dairy Show and will stage an all home carnival.

DEFENSE SHORT COURSES OFFERED BY U. OF T.

Austin, Texas, August 11.—Two new national defense short courses have been started by the University of Texas under the Federal Engineering Defense Training Program—one in defense housing, the other in electrical circuits and machines.

The first—a three-week course designed for architects, engineers, architectural and engineering draftsmen, realtors, and members of social agencies—opened in Houston last week, with Hugo Leipziger, University architecture and housing authority, in charge. Similar courses will be held later in the summer in Fort Worth and Dallas.

The electrical course is planned as a "refresher" course for electrical workers in the vicinity of Austin, and is being taught on the campus.

These bring to a total of 25 the number of defense short courses introduced by the University under its program to provide skilled technicians for the nation's defense activities.

All people interested in the Lone Wolf Cemetery are asked to meet there next Tuesday to work it. It needs working badly and any help will be appreciated.

BILL LONG DIED ALASKA MONDAY

Word was received in Loraine Wednesday night that Bill Long, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Long, died in Alaska Monday. Bill was a member of the air corp. No details were given concerning his death nor when the body will arrive in Loraine.

George Reddin is back on the job at Hutchins and Hall after a week or two in Big Spring.

E. E. Wade, former superintendent at the cheese factory here, has accepted a position with the newly organized cheese plant at Anson. He moved his family to Anson the first of this week.

Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Rieburg of Seagoville are visiting relatives here this week.

Shower Honors Bride Elect

A shower was given in the home of Mrs. Earl Hallmark, Wednesday afternoon honoring Miss Evelyn Land who will become the bride of Carl Stanley on August 23. Many of her close friends assisted Mrs. Hallmark with the affair.

Guests were greeted at the door by Mrs. Earl Hallmark. Their gifts were registered in a lovely brides book by Dell Johnson. They were served a delicious yellow punch by Mrs. Joe Bennett and Mrs. Otis Muns. Music was furnished by Mrs. Wrenola Martin until all guests arrived.

A reading was presented by Doris Meadows. A musical romance was given with Mrs. Shewbert in charge. Then a style show of the brides wedding apparel was given with Mrs. Wilmon Tarrt in charge.

The gifts were presented by way of a cotton bale by Miss Joyce Beatty being followed by all single girls present. After everyone had seen and admired all the lovely gifts the bride gave a speech of thanks and appreciation to all present.

Around eighty gifts were registered in the book, which was made of wood in the shape of a bale of cotton.

$500,000 U. S. CARGO AIDS MIDDLE EAST

London.—The American Red Cross Committee in Great Britain has been notified of the arrival at Cairo, Egypt, of $500,000 worth of medical supplies and blankets shipped from the United States.

Ralph Bain, American Red Cross representative at Cairo, will turn the supplies over to the British Red Cross for relief operations, the Committee said.

Included in the shipment are more than 5,000,000 surgical dressings produced by American Red Cross Chapter volunteers. Other supplies which have arrived are 90,000 blankets, hospital clothing, drugs and other hospital essentials.

Red Crescent, the Egyptian Red Cross society, is now engaged in the distribution of 30,000 sacks of flour and large quantities of other food stuffs previously shipped by the American Red Cross for the relief of civilians who have fled air raids on Alexandria.

New Building For Car-Tractor Business Here

Walker Bros., Wiley and Jack, are building two new buildings on the lots between the Loraine Farmers Gin and the Cooperative Gin Association in which to house their Case Tractor and Pontiac car business. The main building is to be 40x100 feet with a stucco front and a sheet iron top and siding, and is to be oval shape. The other building is to be 20x30 and will be used as a grease house and storage room.

HIGHER COUNTY TAX RATE SEEN IF BOND ASSUMPTION FAILS

A county tax rate boost of better than 25 cents is foreseen for Mitchell County of the state legislature is an expected special session does not pass a bond assumption act, a checkup of county financial figures this week indicated.

If the bond assumption law which failed to pass at the regular session had been passed, Mitchell county would have benefitted by nearly $19,000 this year. If no such law is passed at the expected special session the county will lose around $40,000 next year.

As a result of failure to approve the Bond Assumption law tax increases are in view as certainities in most counties unless a special Legislature session is called to provide for division of gasoline tax revenue after August 31, expiration date of the present law.

The road Bond Assumption applying to county roads now included in the state highway system, is financed from one cent of the state's four cents per gallon gasoline tax.

FIRST PARITY PAYMENTS ARE MADE

College Station, August 10.—Cotton parity applications from eight Texas counties have been certified for payment, according to B. F. Vance, state administrative officer for the AAA.

From Austin, Camp, Coke, Delta, Galveston, San Patricio, Seely and Tarrant counties, 2,047 applications have been certified for payment in the amount of $211,247.50, the AAA official said.

A total of 32 counties have submitted 5,212 cotton parity applications to the state AAA office to date. Vance estimated that 342,000 applications for $22,250,000 would be made in 1941 cotton parity payments to Texas farmers.

The rate of payment for 1941 is 1.38 cents per pound as compared with 1.55 cents per pound last year, however, the average normal yield of lint per acre for the state is 167 pounds for 1941 as compared to 161 pounds for 1940.

Cotton parity payments are made to farmers who plant with in their cotton acreage allotments as set up under the agricultural conservation program and are made in addition to regular conservation payments.

Other counties which have sent applications to the state office are Bosque, Cameron, Cherokee, El Paso, Fannin, Fisher, Franklin, Henderson, Hopkins, Jones, Lamar, Marion, Morris, Newton, Nueces, Rains, San Saba, Schleicher, Tom Green, Travis, Webb, Willacy, Williamson, and Wood.

COTTON FURNITURE EASY ON BANKROLL

Los Angeles, Calif.—Cotton has solved a big budget problem for West Coast newlows who wanted attractive home furnishings yet just didn't have the purchase price.

A large department store here with the aid of a noted interior decorator and furniture manufacturers, is now showing a complete line of upholstered furnishings for bedroom, living room and dining room.

The attractive cotton furnishings give rooms a more cheerful and liveable atmosphere and at the same time make it possible for the store to sell high style furniture at budget income prices.

Band School Announcement

Band practice in preparation for the opening of school will begin Monday, Aug. 18. All members of the Band are urged to report for rehearsals each morning from 8:30 until 9:30 beginning on that date.

All new students who are interested in getting in the band this fall are urged to see George Corse, Band Director, at the home of Mrs. Roy Baird. Arrangements should be made for an instrument, in case the student does not have one, in order that they may take advantage of the training offered before school starts.

Mr. Corse is here and is anxious to talk to new band pupils and their parents.

Lets make this year's Band the Best Yet!

METHODIST REVIVAL DRAWS LARGE CROWDS

The Methodist revival which began last Friday night will close next Sunday night. Large crowds have been attending both the morning and evening services. Rev. E. L. Yeats, pastor of the Methodist Church at Memphis, Texas, is doing the preaching. Mr. Bob Watkins of Hedley, an evangelistic singer, is leading the singing.

Mr. Yeats is bringing some fine and challenging messages at each service. There has been a gracious response at several services. People are being blessed by his messages.

Mr. Watkins has a large choir each night and is doing splendid service in leading the singing. He is also bringing messages in song in solos at the various services.

Rev. Shewbert, the Pastor, reports "We are having some splendid services both morning and night. I deeply appreciate the fine crowds that have been coming, with many visitors each night. I am glad to see so many going to the choir each night. Let us all labor together in these closing services to make them the best. Don't fail to hear Bro. Yeats in these closing messages and hear Bro. Watkins as he leads and as he sings for us. We are so glad to have our Baptist friends with us, many from other churches as well. God bless all our Christians and lets work for victory that our community may be more Christian. Every one is cordially invited to attend these final services. Don't miss them."

COTTON COVERED WALLS; THE LATEST THING FOR MODERN HOME BUILDERS

New York, N. Y.—In more than 5,000 national defense houses from New York to Oshkosh, King Cotton is entering a new phase of his triumphs in the building and construction trades. This time it's cotton on the walls, and at a cost comparable to high grade paper coverings.

The cotton wall covering, made by the world's largest manufacturer of cotton oil cloth, possesses such decided advantages over paper coverings that it is finding a ready civilian market in many of New York's leading hotels, apartment buildings and cafes. Particularly is it being specified in buildings subject to vibration by reason of proximity of heavy traffic areas.

Tested for more than six months by government laboratories in Washington, the cotton covering is being specified by the United States Housing Authority.

In addition to having a permanent and washable finish which wears far longer than the best wall papers, the cotton coverings serve a valuable structural purpose. One of its most important features is its action as a reinforcing agent, making it unnecessary to finish off plastered walls. In the case of plaster and the base coat is put on and then covered with the cotton "wall paper" without the necessity of a finishing coat of plaster. The strength of the cotton covering prevents old or new plaster cracks from showing through to the surface.

Another desirable feature of the cotton covering is that it is more resistant to moisture absorption than any other material with the exception of metal foil. It is available in both glossy and dull finishes and in a wide variety of patterns.

Sweet corn is likely to become a major commercial crop in the Lower Rio Grande Valley for early spring markets, says a Texas magazine. The Iowa hybrid, planted to some 3,000 acres has done excellently in that section.

Word has been received in Loraine that Jack Lankford, a former student in Loraine High School, underwent major surgery in Denton last week. He is reported as doing nicely.

Opening of the Loraine Public schools has been announced for Monday, September 8, by Superintendent Ed E. Williams. The decision was reached in a board meeting early this week.

All contract schools that have been transferring to Loraine will again come here this year, according to Mr. Williams. The transfer schools are Bauman, Landers, Lone Star, and North Champion.

All teachers who taught in the system last year are expected back this year except Mr. Gordon Lamb.

J. W. King Jr. was notified Tuesday by Superintendent J. D. Lauderdale that he had been elected to direct the Westbrook High School Band for the coming school term which opens Monday, September 1. He will also teach in the grammar school.

J. W. had six years band work in the Loraine High School and two long terms and a six-week summer term in Texas Tech. He plans to teach for a while before finishing his college work.

SADDLE HORSE SHOW FEATURE OF DAIRY SHOW

An added feature of the Fourth Annual Dairy Show this year will be the Saddle Horse Show, which is to be under the direction of Stanton Hutchins. Those who have saddle horses are invited to bring them in for the show, Friday, August 22.

WAREHOUSE FACILITIES BEING INVENTORIED

Austin, Texas, August 13.—Warehouse facilities in the State of Texas which are now available for national defense projects are being inventoried by the Governor's office at the request of the Office of Production Management.

The report will supplement a survey made some months ago of idle plants in the State of Texas.

Industrialization committees in 240 communities and various other agencies have been asked to assist in the compilation of this list.

FAMILY REUNION

Twelve of the sixteen children of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Rieburg met in the home of their parents on Sunday, August 10. Each brought a covered dish and a boutions lunch was spread at noon.

The children present for the occasion were Mrs. G. L. Bryant and children of Knott, Mr. and Mrs. Bud Rieburg and son Mason, Mrs. Lillie Faulkenberry and children, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Rieburg and son Gene, Mr. and Mrs. Homer Rieburg and children, Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Rieburg and daughter La Velle of Sweetwater, Mrs. James Watkins and daughters Jimmie Jean and Beverly Zane of Arizona, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Adrian and son Larry Juan, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Hern, Allen, Nola and Opie Rieburg and their parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Rieburg.

Those unable to be present were O. W. Rieburg of Seagoville, J. C. Rieburg of Dallas, Mrs. Stacy Pendergrass of Santa Monica, California, and Judge Rieburg of Hurley, New Mexico.

Others present for dinner were Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Martin, Mrs. Emma Martin Land, and Mrs. Ada Rieburg.

Afternoon callers were Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Rieburg and grandson, Mr. and Mrs. Carmel Rieburg and sons, Mr. and Mrs. William Martin, Mrs. J. E. Price, Mrs. Hoyt Britton, and Mrs. M. D. Hall.

Marvin Martin spent Sunday and Monday in Dallas visiting his daughter, Mrs. Roy N. Edgar Jr.

If the seed redbud trees are gathered and planted as soon as they have ripened, they will come up next spring and produce plants two to three feet high in one season.

Traveler Had Route Map For All Who Would to See

The man sat still as the fortune-teller read his palm.

"See that line?" asked the mystic, pointing to the fellow's palm.

"Yes, I see it," he returned.

"What does it mean?"

"It means," said the fortune-teller, gravely, "that you are going to take a trip in the very near future. To Chicago, perhaps."

Leaving the fortune-teller the man headed for the railway station.

"A ticket to Chicago, please," he said.

"Right, sir," replied the booking clerk. "Single or return?"

The fellow stuck out his palm.

"I don't know," he said. "Take a look!"

YOU BUY INOCULATION ON FAITH

Field tests have shown a big difference in the quality of inoculator brands on the market. You cannot see the legume bacteria you purchase. Immediate demonstration is impossible. What is the reputation and experience behind the inoculation you buy?

● NITRAGIN is the ORIGINAL LEGUME INOCULATOR, having served the farmers for over forty years. It won GOLD MEDAL at the World's Fair, St. Louis, 1904.

● NITRAGIN is made in the most complete and modern laboratory of its kind in the world.

● NITRAGIN is the leader in its field by a big margin. NITRAGIN demand in the South has rapidly increased year after year. During the fall of 1940 the Southern shipments of NITRAGIN were for more than 45 million pounds of VETCH and WINTER PEAS. This large demand is due to many field tests carried on year after year. We put these tests that NITRAGIN is a good product.

Send for our booklet "Plant Legumes to Prosper," showing pictures of field tests and how NITRAGIN is made. The booklet also gives you valuable information regarding the inoculation of legumes. If your dealer does not have NITRAGIN in stock, have him get it for you. insist on NITRAGIN inoculation.

Improved Uniform SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D. D., Dean of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago. (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for August 17

Lesson subjects and Scripture texts selected and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education; used by permission.

PETER ENCOURAGES SUFFERING CHRISTIANS

LESSON TEXT—I Peter 4:12-19; 5:6-11.
GOLDEN TEXT—If any man suffer as a Christian, let him not be ashamed; but let him glorify God on this behalf.—I Peter 4:16.

"Sweet are the uses of adversity"—so says the poet, and it is true that God is able to make even the sufferings of man a source of blessing and an occasion for joy, "if a man suffer as a Christian" (I Pet. 4:16). In a world where sorrow and suffering have been heaped high by man's inhumanity to man, it is indeed appropriate that we think of the encouragement which God's Word gives to those who are in distress.

There are many helpful Scripture passages on this point, those before us today being from the writings of Peter to the Jews of the dispersion. Scattered abroad and no more under the guiding and protecting hand of Paul, Luke and the others, they were undergoing severe persecution for Christ's sake. Some were apparently disturbed by their trials, and Peter tells them that persecution should bring

I. No Surprise (4:12).
We ought to expect trials in this world; yes, severe fiery trials. Such things are common to all mankind, and the Christian should not expect to escape. To them, such trials are real tests of their faith, an opportunity to show to the unbelieving world that God is able to deliver those who put their trust in Him! To be forewarned is to be forearmed. "Think it not strange concerning the fiery trial."

II. No Shame (4:13-16).
There are two senses in which the Christian is to be unashamed in the midst of suffering. In the first instance, he is not to be ashamed of the trial itself if he bears it for Christ's sake, for he is thus sharing Christ's sufferings. We cannot share in his substitutionary and sacrificial suffering on Calvary, but we can stand with Him who was indeed "a man of sorrows, and acquainted with grief" (Isa. 53:3). In the second place, he is not to do anything which would justify others in making him suffer. It is a disgrace, a shame which injures the cause of Christ, when a believer has to suffer because he has broken the law, or because he is "a busy-body" (E. V. "meddler") in other men's matters. If you pry into others' affairs, expect to have your fingers stepped on, and don't expect God to deliver you out of it or honor you in that kind of suffering.

III. No Escape (4:17-19).
If the righteous find the difficulties and temptations in their way to be like fiery trials, if those who have the blessed presence of Christ to cheer and to guide them find it difficult at times to make their way through sorrow and sadness, what will the unbeliever do? Does he think that he shall escape? Surely not—and there is yet that day ahead when the believer shall enter into eternal peace, where sorrow and suffering shall be no more. Where will the unbeliever be in that day?

IV. No Worry (5:6, 7).
"Put care into Christ's bag," said George Herbert. "Treat your cares as you treat your sins. Hand them over to Jesus one by one as they occur, commit them to Him" (F. B. Meyer). He really cares about you—believe it and act upon it. The cure for all worry is right there, but even as it is true that the meek shall "inherit the earth" (Matt. 5:5), so it is true that only the humble are ready to cast their cares on the Lord. "God resisteth the proud, but giveth grace unto the humble." Humble yourselves in the sight of the Lord, and he shall lift you up" (James 4:6, 10).

V. No Wavering (5:8-11).
"Steady, perfected and established in Christ, strengthened by His grace, sure of the eternal call, and with the eyes of faith on the glory to come, such is the man who is able and ready to successfully meet the devil when, like a roaring lion, he seeks to disturb and devour God's people."

Satan is busy in our day. Dr. Wilbur M. Smith says: "It is admitted everywhere by outstanding Christian leaders, in every sphere of life today, that there has never been a time, at least in our generation, when the temptations of Satan have been so fierce, so frequent, so constant, as just now. What Satan wants to do is to destroy the testimony of God's people, to take them out of places of power and influence for the gospel, to rob them of that joy, and victory, and power, by which, through their labors, others will be brought to confess the Lord Jesus Christ. Christian people today who are conscious of being fiercely assailed by evil ought not to be alarmed, but should realize that this experience of theirs is general, everywhere, of true believers, and that there is sufficient grace for every need in such dreadful times as these."

OUTDOOR SUPPERS

If you've a longing to do something different, an outdoor supper's the answer. Get the smell of woodsy smoke into your food, the crackle of burning embers for atmosphere, the sound of sizzling meat held over glowing flames during the supper hour and you'll experience a taste-thrill you'll long remember. Everything tastes better cooked outdoors!

Toss some cans of beans into a gay kerchief, wrap fruit, cookies, cake into waxed paper, whip up some barbecue sauce to use with the meat, and the meal is under way.

Outdoor cooking equipment may be as humble as a few large bricks, an iron grate, or an extra rack from the oven, a long handled fork for each member of the family. A light camping stove or a more elaborate grill such as a vertical or horizontal stove of sheet steel including drip and ashpans, a roasting spit, and warming shelves may also be used. Whatever you use, remember, it's the cooking outdoors which makes the meal.

"You will want meat and plenty of it for fresh air whips up the appetite. The family will come back again and again for this delicious meat with a sauce all its own:

Tomato Horseradish Mustard Marinade.
For 3 pounds of spare ribs or beef short ribs use:
2 tablespoons prepared horseradish mustard sauce
¼ cup vinegar
¼ teaspoon black pepper
1 cup tomato juice
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon sugar
2 onions, chopped fine
Combine dry and liquid materials well and beat thoroughly. Place meat in a shallow bowl or glass dish and cover with the marinade. Turn every 3 or 4 hours and marinate in refrigerator for 48 hours. Drain meat well before barbecuing and baste frequently while cooking over coals. The marinade may be thickened and served as a sauce over the meat. Your barbecuing will be more successful if you marinate the meat. It's especially good on the less expensive cuts.

If you'd like a meal-in-one with a minimum of fuss but nourishment plus, try this potato salad made with frankfurters. If you're accustomed to your old and cherished potato salad recipe, I'm still sure that you'll like this one:

Frankfurter Potato Salad. (Serves 6)
3 medium sized potatoes, cooked, diced
1 cup diced celery
2 tablespoons minced onion
2 tablespoons minced parsley
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
¼ pound frankfurters, skinned and sliced
¾ cup salad dressing
French dressing
Marinate the potatoes in the french dressing. Combine all ingredients.

LYNN SAYS:

While cooking under the sky over hot coals you'll want to remember:

Charcoal burns to fine, lasting coals and gives a nice steady fire for barbecue cookery. For best results when using either charcoal or wood should be burned until the flames disappear. Then the meat should be placed 8 to 10 inches above the coals and turned every few minutes to insure even cooking.

Hard woods like oak, hickory, madrone, manzanita and maple give a lasting glowing bed of coals. Soft pine is suitable for quick grilling like hamburger and hot dogs.

Whatever type of grill you use, pick a spot that's shady, not too far from the kitchen if you're doing it in the back yard and not too near heavy shrubbery.

Star Dust

STAGE-SCREEN-RADIO By VIRGINIA VALE (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

THE "Bahama Passage" troupe won't soon forget that picture. They journeyed to Nassau and began work in the middle of May at Salt Cay, a desolate island nearby. After that they worked on other islands, in caves and finally some of them worked under water. Edward Griffith, producer and director, hid himself to a submerged wreck and went down in a diving bell to officiate while scenes were made of Madeline Carroll and Sterling Hayden (we're assured that they didn't use doubles!) diving down 18 feet to the ocean floor.

Shooting the under-water scenes was no small task; it took more than a day to set up the heavy Technicolor camera inside the diving bell.

Fourteen-year-old Stanley Clements has already retired twice. A Major Bowes discovery, he landed an engagement with a theater manager in Chicago; homesickness ended it, and he went home to New York. A few days later he returned to Chicago—and a strep infection sent him home once more. Then he landed in the movies—in "Tall, Dark and Handsome,"

"Accent on Love" and now in Metro's "Down in San Diego." He's won his success in "toughie" roles, but he still has to fight against homesickness!

With "The Reluctant Dragon" released at last, Walt Disney has his next full-length feature production practically completed. It's "Dumbo of the Circus," and stars a baby elephant who becomes the world's greatest circus performer because he can fly. It set a record—the entire picture was wound up in a year and a half, instead of the usual two and one-half to three years devoted to previous full-length Disney pictures.

Have you been listening to Guy Lombardo's new Saturday evening program? He and his Royal Canadians have won no end of popularity contests, so probably you've had them on your list of broadcasts that you want to hear since they began this series on August 2. Guy plans to introduce at least one new number weekly which he expects to be "the hit of tomorrow."

While Paramount's testing to find the right actress for the role of "Maria" in "For Whom the Bell Tolls," Ernest Hemingway, the author, cabled from Cuba that he's found the perfect solution. She's a Russian-Spanish girl who looks exactly like the heroine.

If Raymond Massey didn't look so much like Abraham Lincoln, he wouldn't have to wear a false nose. He wears it in the new DeMille picture, "Reap the Wild Wind." He plays a deep-dyed villain, but he wears the same kind of clothes he's worn when he played Lincoln, and all of us have grown accustomed to thinking of Lincoln when we see him in clothes like that. So—he's wearing a pointed extension on his nose, to make him look properly sinister.

The announcement that Frank Capra and Robert Riskin, his writing partner, would handle the screen version of "Arsenic and Old Lace" for Warner Bros. assured the public that the picture will be a good one. The sum of $175,000 was paid for the motion picture rights to this very successful and hilarious stage success, in which Boris Karloff returned to the stage.

Remember Singin' Sam? You should, though he's one of radio's best-loved stars. He's been on the air for 14 years, and his recorded programs are heard on more stations than any other program in America. In fact, it's estimated that he has 8,000,000 a day, the year round; his "Refreshment Time" is heard over 227 stations daily.

ODDS AND ENDS—Gene Autrey's signed to appear in the autumn at the biggest rodeo in New York and in Boston... Al Pearce and his gang, who return to the air waves in October, will be starred in a feature film by Republic Studios... John Garfield violently objected to appearing in "New Orleans Blues," but made up with the studio when he was assigned to "Bridges Are Built at Night"... Richard Arlen's starring in a series of three aviation pictures for Paramount release... Maureen O'Sullivan and Johnny Westmiller are housekeeping in a tree again, for their new "Tarzan" picture.

by Fred Gipson

Circumstances are not conducive to good writing around our place this morning. In the kitchen the Duchess, my wife, is rising such a fine clatter with pots and pans that any stray thought of merit drifting my way tends to tuck its tail in terror and take cover. And in the bull pen right beside my desk sits Phillip Michael Gipson, age eight months, hammering away at a Mexican heat powder can with a spoon.

I'm man enough to take the spoon away from young Mike, but not even Uncle Sam's new armies could squelch the squall that immediately ensues.

"Dry up, you little pest!" I shout at him.

The squall lifts to a scream. The clatter of pots and pans ceases, and the Duchess comes running to protect her young.

"You've got to use more tact," she admonishes.

"Tact!" I shout. "What I need is a green club!"

DEFENSE BOND QUIZ

Q. Where should I keep my Defense Savings Bonds?

A. In a safe place, because they have value which constantly increases. If you wish, the Treasury Department or any Federal Reserve Bank will hold them in safekeeping for you without charge, giving you a receipt.

Q. Does an album filled with Stamps automatically become a Bond that will pay interest and mature in 10 years?

A. No. The completed album must be exchanged for a Bond. Regardless of the amount of money you have invested in Stamps, they will not bear interest until they are in the form of a Bond or Bonds.

Note—To buy Defense Bonds and Stamps, go to the nearest post office, bank, or savings and loan association; or write to the Treasurer of the United States, Washington, D. C., for a mail-order form.

Cotton Insects

Cotton leaf worms seem to be doing the most damage to the crops at the present time. Poisoning machines are going in every community in the county, or else have been put to use, both dusters and spray materials are being used.

Due to the scarcity of Calcium arsenate, the one used when available, various substitutes are being used. Arsenate of lead, paris green, white arsenic and some others. The different mixtures vary according to the content of the poison. Usually the seller knows the formula to use for best results in killing the worms. I have found that when white arsenic is used and the following five pounds of white arsenic mixed with one twenty-five cent box of Oxydol and five gallons water, that much difficulty in getting the arsenic to dissolve can be overcome by using ten gallons of rain water or tank water to dissolve the material in and using double the amount of the mixture to fifty gallons water.

In other words, using the five gallons mixture and one to two quarts of the mixture to fifty gallons of water, that one to two quarts of the mixture can be used safely if ten gallons of water are mixed with the arsenic and oxydol. Of course care should be used in using the arsenic mixture, that is when the machine is refilled with the water and arsenic mixture that to obtain best results the amount of the arsenic mixture should be cut down in proportion to the amount of poison left in the bin.

Testing is giving good results when applied at night when there is no wind blowing. However, good results have been obtained by using oxydol still days.

Cow Pasture:
I have noticed that those farmers who have cut a part of the rank sudan and left part of it that cows graze on the young tender sudan grass more than they do on the high sudan.

Also Mr. E. S. Kingston reports that his cows were falling off in milk production while on sudan pasture. However, when he let the cows graze the sudan at night when it is cooler the cows increased in production. Several others are trying this practice.

Locker Storage:

It seems that now is the time to put some green beans, peas, corn and fresh sliced peaches in the locker for use during the coming winter months. The fresh corn on the cob that we had for Xmas dinner last Christmas day really was good, of course the fresh shelled black-eyed peas and the roast was all right, too. A lot of people are missing out by not keeping their lockers well stocked on something besides meats.

Trench Silos:

Walter Gaylor, about three miles on the Loraine road, will be filling his trench silo on Friday, 15th. Costin Brothers will furnish the ensilage cutter for filling the silo. Every farmer should think about putting away some feed for the cows that are now putting forty cent butterfat in safe storage for this winter's feeding. As you know feed in a silo is safe from fire, rats, weevil and storms or rains. The feed will keep longer than the two years which is usually the life of feed in stacks. Other silo demonstrations will be held in the county during the summer. Don't forget to drive out to Mr. Gaylor's to see the silo being filled. Canned feed for cows is now possible as canned peas for the table.

Dormitories built for industrial defense workers at Orange, Texas, are beginning to fill, reports the housing coordinator for the Farm Security Administration.

Summer Management Of Growing Turks

College Station, August 8.—Moisture contributes largely to diseases among turkeys, especially coccidiosis, paratyphoid infection and blackhead. Sanitation, particularly dryness, says George P. McCarthy, poultry husbandman of the Texas A and M College Extension Service, is the only effective preventive.

Excessive rainfall has been hard on young turkeys and indications are that poultry losses are considerably above average. But if poulters can have dry roosting quarters and are confined to pens during rainy periods to prevent them running through the wet grass, a lot of the losses can be controlled. Some turkey producers report they are finding that sulphur has given very good control of coccidiosis.

Blackhead easily is identified in post mortem examinations by liver and the heavily congested areas in the ceca, McCarthy says. This disease is best controlled by keeping young turkeys away from ground which has been used for poultry. The cecal worms in chickens are the carriers of the blackhead organism, and it is transmitted to turkeys in this manner by running on contaminated ground.

McCarthy suggests that it is good practice to treat turkeys for intestinal parasites several times during the growing season, perhaps worming them first at about 12 weeks of age and at least twice more during the growing period. He prescribes a regular pullet size capsule or a worm powder in the mash. If any of the turkeys are ailing, under no conditions give them a worm capsule as it might kill some of the weaker ones. In such cases he recommends a flock treatment.

"Indications are that turkeys are going to be in the money this fall, so make every effort to raise all you have," McCarthy adds.

The 160 national forests include nearly one tenth of the land area of the United States.

an outstanding student in the English department. In return for teaching freshmen English classes at the college, Miss Martin will receive a full year of graduate work. She received her first degree in June, and plans to complete work for her master's next August.

Miss Martin taught several years at Buford, and prior to that at Valley View. She resigned from the Buford faculty last summer to enter NTSTC for the regular term and complete work for her degree.

TSCW Teaches Spanish in Mexico

Lessons in Spanish are removed from the classroom as these girls, students in the Texas State College for Women summer school in Saltillo, Mexico, visit the city's shopping district where few salesmen speak English. In a typical Mexican market Gerrie Yocum of Dallas, assisted by Bertie Naylor of Waco, tries on a big hat. The girls agree it's a grand way to learn conversational Spanish, and college authorities say that TSCW's experiment in education has developed unexpected proportions as an experiment in promoting Pan-American friendship.

HERE'S HOW TO EAT DURING HOT WEATHER

Red Cross Advises Simple
Meals Devoid of Rich Foods

Washington, D. C.—Simple moderate meals—devoid of rich foods—can be the solution to taking hot weather with a smile
the American Red Cross points out in a statement listing "Dietary Don'ts for Summer."

Prepared by Melva Bakkie, national nutrition consultant of the Red Cross, the statement urges housewives to plan at least one warm dish for every meal as a necessary digestive aid. Important, too, Miss Bakkie advises, are six to eight glasses of beverage daily. She warns, however, that soft drinks and other beverages—of high sugar or of alcoholic content are overheating.

To combat "over-ninety" temperatures, Miss Bakkie sets down the following rules:

1. Don't overeat—especially after an exhausting day's work or play.
2. Don't eat large portions of meat or other protein-containing foods.
3. Don't eat excessive portions of foods containing fats, such as cream sauces, fried foods, bacon, etc.

4. Don't fail to plan your diet around low heat producing foods, as fresh vegetables, fruit and milk.

5. Don't forget to use salt liberally during hot weather. It is necessary to make up for losses through perspiration.

6. Don't drink too many iced drinks. They should be taken moderately and drunk slowly to prevent chilling.

SAVE ON REFRIGERATION

College Station, August 11.—
By observing a few simple rules homemakers can economize considerably on the cost of refrigeration whether their ice boxes are cooled by electricity, ice, or gas. These tips are offered by Bernice Claytor, Extension Service specialist in home improvement:

Don't open your refrigerator any oftener or any longer than is actually necessary.

Don't put hot food or dishes into the refrigerator. Let the left-over foods and the dishes

they are in cool to room temperature before putting them in the box.

See that your refrigerator is properly placed in your kitchen.
A refrigerator should be placed for MODERN living

In the early days, medicine show quacks sold crude oil for a dollar a bottle as a cure for all human ills.

Today hundreds of essentials for modern living are made from oil. It supplies heat for the home. It provides power for the Nation's machinery and transportation. It lubricates the gears of industry. It furnishes fuel for your car. It has shortened distances to make our Nation one big community.

America is safer today because of petroleum. The oil-man's initiative and enterprise have made available to the United States the world's largest supply of petroleum.

In all this, Texas plays a leading part. Last year we supplied 36 per cent of all the Nation's oil, and now have over half of the Nation's oil reserves.

You and every American live more comfortably and safely today because of Texas petroleum.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS By Edward C. Wayne

British See Far East 'Squeeze Play' In Japan's Attitude Toward Thailand; Nazis Claim Big Victories Over Reds; Mussolini's Son Killed in Air Crash

(EDITOR'S NOTE:—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Here's a striking contrast in the modes of fighting equipment. According to the Berlin caption the picture shows a German horse-drawn artillery piece racing past a burning Soviet tank somewhere along the Russ-Nazi battle lines of the eastern front.

CONGRESS: Big Work

Three bills of huge importance were before congress, and although passage for all was predicted, the importance laid as much in what their final form would be as it did in whether or not they would become law.

These were the tax bill, the draft-extension bill, and the price-fixing bill, the latter linked inseparably with the "draft-industry" bill.

The tax bill, it was apparent, would be voted into existence minus the requirement that all married couples file joint income tax returns. Roughly, this will cut $25,000,000 off the yield of the law, which will then have a ceiling of about $3,200,000,000.

This is to be divided, roughly, into a billion for income taxes; a billion for miscellaneous and special taxes; and a billion and a third for corporation income taxes, a small balance coming from gift taxes.

The draft extension bill showed the opposition to the administration losing one battle after another, but reforming their lines with more support after each defeat.

When the administration's resolution calling for an extension of present draft terms by 18 months was brought to a vote, the senate passed the measure by a vote of 45 to 30. This meant that total term of draftees, National Guardsmen and reserve officers would all serve a total of 2½ years. The bill went from the senate to the house following the vote.

The price-fixing and draft-industry bills were chartered along a more difficult course. The latter passed the house, but immediately there started in the opposition press a battle, claiming that there was a threat to the freedom of the press and freedom of speech through radio—as these businesses, too, might be seized by the government.

As to price-fixing, Leon Henderson seemed the center of this fight, and many in congress declared they would feel more kindly toward the bill if they felt more confidence in Henderson's ability to carry it out. Indeed, the house appointed a special committee to oversee the enforcement of this legislation.

JAPAN:

Warned Again

London warned Japan that if she moved against Thailand in any way, she would find that Britain would consider such a move as a definite threat to Singapore, and would act accordingly.

This was seen as a sort of confirmation that the British are sending expeditionary forces of occupation into Siamese territory, and that any Japanese effort to cut the Burma road will bring the world war to the Far East.

The statement came from Foreign Secretary Eden, making it in the house of commons. It had been rumored that 10,000 British troops would be sent to Thailand from eastern bases, and that a considerable British fleet already was in those waters.

And it also was believed that Japan was committed to move against Thailand by its agreement with the other Axis powers. This was viewed as part of a squeeze play against India.

Eden said: "Every fresh move on the part of Japan naturally has the result of bringing China and ourselves closer and closer together."

"That friendship and that collaboration with China will continue and I pray that it will grow."

"Men and materials are pouring out to strengthen our forces in the Middle East for their next forward plunge, and these will strike their blows for the independence of the countries in the Middle East as much as for our own independence."

DEATH: To a Youth

From Rome came the report that Bruno, the second son of Benito Mussolini, had been killed in an air crash while on a plane testing flight near Pisa. He was 22 years of age and ranked as a "Captain of Aviation." He had seen action in three wars. In Ethiopia, in the Spanish war and in the present war he had engaged in what Italian sources described as "daring" and "risky" actions.

GERMANY: Makes Claims

The Germans, who had been pictured fairly hopelessly stalled on the Eastern front, with the Reds growing in strength and in some points taking the offensive, came out finally with a statement in which they made the largest claims thus far. They claimed 895,000 prisoners taken, and "many times more" in killed and wounded; the entire Russian resistance shattered; no semblance of order in the Red army; and pictured Moscow as without any clear picture at all of the situation, blindly believing its army still fighting.

When it came to giving details of places, the communique, while a lengthy one, was not very communicative.

But from it on, could picture the front through the German eyes, with Smolensk, in the center, a sort of island of doomed Russian battalions, still holding out, although surrounded.

Leningrad, on the north, was a hopeless city, menaced from the south and the north, with another small "island" of surrounded Red troops still holding out in the vicinity of Tallinn, Estonia.

Kiev, on the south, was shown in this document as partially surrounded, with two huge pincers having pierced the Stalin line north and south of the city itself, which is an integral part of that line.

The claims were contained in four special communiques from the headquarters of Adolf Hitler himself, and were broadcast throughout the German nation.

RUSSIANS: Their Version

Completely ignoring the claims of the Germans, the Reds, admitting Nazi pressure on the south, say that they are counter-attacking and were using the same tactics "which threw the Germans back in the central front."

In fact, the Russian reports confirmed the front from Smolensk to Bel-Tserkov, a distance of 350 miles, as a single unit, rather than a definite pincer movement, and said that there was mobile fighting going on all along this front.

In fact, the Reds asserted they were holding the Germans in two other sectors, that of Kholm, 180 miles south of Leningrad, and on the Estonian front—where the Germans had claimed important advances.

The Russians also reported taking many prisoners, and revealed that many of them are either 17 years old or the older type reservists, showing that the Nazis are drawing heavily on their reserves.

BRAZIL: In Azores

The United States is secretly urging that Brazil take over the Azores Islands, Portuguese possession, in the interests of Western Hemisphere defense, Berlin had charged.

Although this was promptly denied in Washington, considerable prominence was given the dispatch, in that the question of the Azores was prominent in Washington's long range plan for defense of the Western Hemisphere.

'Holding Up the Works' at Shipyards

Part of the 14,000 shipyard workers of the Federal shipbuilding plant are shown here standing idle outside the plant at Kearney, N. J., after having been called out by the C.I.O. In the meantime $373,000,000 in defense shipbuilding work came to a standstill. Two cruisers, six destroyers, three tankers and two cargo boats are on the ways at this plant.

Russian City Aflame After Bombardment

The German-caption merely calls this spectacular picture of a city in flames "the burning of Dunaburg." Dunaburg is the Russian city of Dvinsk in White Russia. It was once a great artillery center for the Russian army. "Nothing but the complete annihilation of the Soviet forces will end the Russo-German war" is the conclusion reached in military circles in Berlin.

The cargo, valued at $2,500,000, is being shipped by rail to New Jersey, where it will be stored pending the outcome of libel suits filed against NYK Lines, owners of the Tatuta.

New U. S. Fighter in Flight

Real 'Warfare of Dollars' Is On in South America

U. S. Wages Trade and Economic Battle In Effort to Oust Axis Influence From Western Hemisphere.

By BAUKHAGE
National Farm and Home Hour Commentator.

WNU Service, 1343 H Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

About a month ago I wrote that there was a rumor to the effect that the United States was in an undeclared war which had been marked "private and confidential," and that therefore nobody would talk about it. It was a war of dollars instead of bullets.

This new brand of warfare is economic and it has broken out on two new fronts with the blacklisting of the pro-Axis firms in South America, and the freezing of Japanese trade. The whole story can now be told.

Although some officials still shy at the word "warfare" when discussing these methods of attack, there are others who feel that it should have been used frankly and the methods and purpose explained long ago. They say this strategy would have been received sympathetically by the people as a preventive measure against actual warfare.

Just what is the difference between the battle of dollars and warfare of bullets? What is the purpose of each?

The word "war" goes back to the Anglo-Saxon "werre" which meant a quarrel. And in those days a quarrel meant a fight. Since quarrels no longer necessarily mean fights, some people cling to the hope that war need not always mean shooting. Senator O'Mahoney recently said in the senate that he did not think the President was leading the United States into war of the shooting variety. And the people who believe in the battle of the dollars say that this kind of a "werre" may prevent shooting.

The object of war in the military sense is the destruction of the military forces of the enemy. In these days the theory seems to be that in order to destroy the military forces it is necessary to destroy everything else.

The object of economic war is to destroy the economic forces of the enemy. Unlike military war, dollar-warfare, according to its opponents, checks the steps which lead to actual combat.

South America As Battlefield

Using South America as the battlefield, this is the way they explain their thesis:

The Germans set about to control the Latin-American trade. By making the economy of a country dependent on the wishes of Berlin, the Nazis obtain political influence just as business and other pressure groups sometimes control political power in this country. Once the Germans have control of the economic forces in a country they supplement this control with bribery and intrigue and finally attempt to put a 100 per cent pro-Axis government in power.

Nazi control of a number of key governments in South America, according to the proponents of the theory of economic warfare, will result in a menace to the safety of this nation.

The recent attempt to overthrow the government of Bolivia is an example of Nazi-Fascist methods. It was broken up with the help of United States agents who discovered documents revealing the plot and turned them over to the Bolivian government. A similar plot, you may recall, was discovered in Uruguay in the early days of the war.

What are the methods which the United States government employs to stop the German economic and political penetration and pursue its own economic warfare? Well, they are in part the methods employed in the early days when the great trusts were built up in the United States. Except that the United States government itself is a trust organized to benefit all and not to exploit any of the peoples in the Western Hemisphere.

Two Methods Of 'Trust' Operation

A trust has two principal methods of operation. One is a perfectly honest attempt to perfect the manufacture and distribution of its products or its services. The second is the use of a means, now discontinued and forbidden by law in the United States, of ruthless, cut-throat competition to drive its competitors out of business.

The latter method has been used by the Germans in South America. The United States is now applying similar tactics insofar as pro-Axis business is concerned. There is a difference, however—the United States is working with the help of the South Americans in most cases to an end which they recognize will benefit all.

As in the case of military warfare, sacrifices are necessary in economic warfare as well. American manufacturers are not allowed to trade with the Axis-controlled firms in South America which have been put on the blacklist by the President. The South Americans suffer, temporarily, too, much as a nation suffers when it is the ally of another nation fighting an enemy on its own soil.

Incidentally, it is interesting to note that the grandson of the man whose "trust" is famous in history for its ruthless methods of obtaining a monopoly, John D. Rockefeller, is now heading one of the organizations which is attempting to bring the southern and northern nations of the Western Hemisphere into one great combine to compete with the Axis "trust."

In America's economic warfare there is no "rough stuff." That is, the competitors' stores and warehouses are not burned or destroyed, nor is violence resorted to. But every possible use of the dollar, which is the most powerful economic weapon in the world today, is employed to destroy the efforts of the Axis.

Four Campaigns Are Under Way

There are four separate campaigns now being conducted against the Axis in South America by our economic general staff.

One is based on agreements to purchase, over a period of time, South American surplus products, especially war materials such as zinc, lead, tin, copper, nitrates. This not only prevents such materials from falling into Axis hands but provides a dollar exchange with which South America can buy from us things which she might otherwise buy elsewhere.

The second economic drive is to force the transfer of commercial agencies from Axis into native South American hands. Black-listing pro-Axis firms helps this. For instance, for years the dominating commission business in the city of La Paz has been handled by Germans. Suddenly, these Germans lose all American accounts, are cut off from American credits. Their business is ruined. The United States encourages a prominent Bolivian family to establish a commission business. It gets the profitable United States accounts. American personnel and other help is furnished. The Axis firm is smashed.

Another means of ousting Axis influence is to eliminate foreign control of the airlines. For this purpose, Jesse Jones, secretary of commerce, has organized an Airlines Development company, a government corporation. This company will lend money to any South American country for the development of airports; give it priority on the purchase of planes—provided that country gets rid of the German or other foreign-owned lines within its borders. This step has been taken in Bolivia which has nationalized its internal airlines and removed German pilots. This action has also removed a vital link in the German international transportation system which has served Peru, Bolivia, Brazil and Argentina.

In many of the countries the airlines are already nationalized. But in some places German pilots are still flying the planes. In Brazil, German-controlled lines exist but many concessions have been granted to the United States. In Central America the lines are all controlled by a New Zealander who started out with an old Ford plane, hauling freight.

The fourth plan of economic battle is the government loan. Loans are advanced to South American governments for the purpose of keeping the local currency stabilized. Loans are also made for internal developments, irrigation projects and port developments which it is expected will pay out over a long period of years, which will tend to increase the standard of living in the locality and thus open new markets for American goods.

BRIEFS . . . by Baukhage

Either the world will be governed by the ideology of modern democracy in which case every issue will be decided in favor of the numerically stronger races; or it will be ruled by the laws of force, when the people of brutal determination, not those that show self-restraint, will triumph. —Adolph Hitler in "Mein Kampf."

There is nothing like counting your chickens before they are hatched. Reports to the department of commerce in Washington say that the Germans suddenly held up their manufacture of tanks to turn out a lot of tractors—probably for use in the Ukraine. Government egg purchases total over a billion since March.

WORLD EVENTS

World events seem to be moving in more satisfactory fashion these days. One cannot help hoping that sometime before long we may read that people who once thought that war was the only way to bring about satisfactory solutions to world difficulties may have reached the conclusion that there are possibilities of mutual co-operation. Acceptance of the fact that we are dependent upon each other, not only as individuals but as nations, for our well-being and that the ultimate solution of world problems will require a willingness to agree to this precept, seems the first step forward toward a peaceful world.

In these closing days of the International Student Service Institute in Eastport, Maine, the question of the way to make democracy meet not only our own needs, but world needs, has been discussed by Dr. Eagleton and the students. Much interest and real thinking on the problem, I hope, will result.

I have, of course, spent a very short time with this group of young people and I have nothing whatsoever to do with the running of the institute. But one finds oneself receiving certain impressions. I have found first that after five weeks of hard work there is no real lessening of interest in the study of what democracy means and of how, as individuals, we can function to make democracy meet the needs of all the people.

FINE LEADERSHIP

Dr. Neilson has made a deep impression on all of us. Perhaps the students who have been under his direction at Smith college will understand what I mean when I say that these young men and women have sensed the benediction of his presence. It is character that really gets across to other people and there has been a recognition of the fineness and the gentleness of a human being who has lived up to his ideals and used his abilities to the utmost.

Example is far better than precept. In addition, I think Mr. Joseph Lash, who has really done the day-by-day management of detail and curriculum on which hangs much of the success of an undertaking such as this, has gained the respect and the affectionate co-operation of all the young people under his care in a way which is only possible when there is realization of a fine spirit. People grow through experiences, if they meet life honestly and courageously. This is how character is built and young people recognize this ability to grow in those with whom they come in contact.

YOUNG PEOPLE

I wonder if any of you read an article in a recent issue of the magazine, This Week, on the attitude of young people towards the difficulties of the present day? It voiced so well the feeling of many men who resent one of the questions which certain groups of young people are apt to put before their elders—namely:

"We are ready to defend democracy if we know what democracy really means to us. Our generation, to a very great extent, has grown up under dark skies with sometimes scant food, rather little schooling and no recreation. When we were supposedly ready to strike out for ourselves and look for an opportunity to work, as we had been told Americans should do, we found nothing available."

The article points out that in many ways the pioneer days were just as hard, that Henry Ford and Thomas Edison worked long hours for scant pay and, therefore, though it may be difficult, still if you have the will to succeed you will succeed.

I think there is a great deal to be said for that point of view. There are a good many young people who believe they are entitled to work at the things they wish to do, and not just at anything which comes to hand. There are other young people who, when they find themselves in an unbecoming occupation, are not able to put the best they have into that occupation or use spare time to develop, through reading or other contacts, their real interests.

Even when this has been acknowledged, one still has to face the fact that youth has been a part of the whole situation which denies people willing and able to work an opportunity to do so. There is no use discussing whether it is harder for the head of a family or an 18-year-old boy to be without a job. Both have a right to believe there is something wrong with a civilization which cannot find ways of providing work, when all around them they see the need for their skills and their professions.

MAINE'S THINKING

Maine is so remote that many of the affairs of vital interest to other people in the country may mean little here. But the Battle of the Atlantic is very close to these people. They see the ships being built. They have known men of the navy and they understand the life and the risks of the sea which are simply augmented in times of war. Airports are being built in Maine, so the people are alive to the possibilities of air attack, as those living farther away from the sea cannot possibly be.

INSTALLMENT FOURTEEN—The Story So Far

Laura Maguire, wife of happy-go-lucky Mike, editor and mayor of Covington, is mother of four children, hit by the depression:

Tom, who separates from his wife, Mary Etta, when she refuses to give up her secretary job, to join him in the smaller town after his real estate job peters out.

CHAPTER XX

Shirley took a quick step forward, then paused abruptly, her knees trembling as Jaid went on.

"I found a second-hand clothing man who relieved me of my dress suit and studs for thirty dollars. But I've nothing else to sell, Joe. And you gotta be reasonable. A hundred and fifty's all this hole is worth. There it is on the table. Take it like a good boy and call it a deal."

"No! No!" cried Joe violently. "Two hundred dollars! Not a cent less."

"But, Joe—"

"No can do."

"I'll pay you the rest so much a month."

"All cash, no credit."

"But, Joe, have a heart," Jaid's voice was hoarse. "You don't know what this means to me. There's a girl. I love her better than—she's everything to me. Everything! And I'm losing her because we can't get married. You say there's a living in this place. If a man can make good by sweating his heart out, I will. Maybe she'd laugh in my face if I asked her to move into a dump like this. But it's my only chance. For God's sake try to understand. I'm losing the girl I love and I can't do anything about it."

"Two hundred dollars," insisted Joe.

"And I thought I'd found the way out," muttered Jaid with something that was almost a sob.

"You have," whispered the girl in the doorway to the rear room.

"Shirley!" At first he could only stare. At her radiant eyes, her trembling lips.

"I sold your ring, Jaid, for a hundred and twenty-five. Here it is. Give Joe his price and tell him to clear out."

She was in his arms. They clung together. "It will be hard work and everybody will laugh at us," he whispered.

"Do you mind?"

"I don't mind anything when I have you in my arms like this."

"Neither do I," whispered Shirley.

Again his laugh rang out exultantly. He added to the pile of bills on the counter.

"Pack up your duds and beat it, Joe. This place has changed hands."

They hung out a sign, "Closed Temporarily for Repairs" and visited the dollar store. They had some working capital, that precious seventy-five dollars above the cost of the place. Shirley selected pale yellow dishes and green glasses with a cut crystal effect and glittery new pots and pans that had green handles. They bought yellow oilcloth by the yard for the table covers and window drapes. Shirley knew how to scold them with the scissors. Jaid purchased paint and hammer and nails.

They were back at ten. They hired an ancient Negro with a mottled face to cart off loads of rubbish. They scoured the floors and Jaid painted the walls an apple green while Shirley did the chairs in ivory. They tacked up the yellow oilcloth drapes and stacked the new green glasses and yellow dishes behind the counter. Jaid solved the bedroom problem by turning the hose on it and leaving the sun and air to do the rest. Late in the afternoon they moved the furniture back inside and Shirley made up the bed with crisp new sheets and a green crepe spread.

"It doesn't look half bad," said Jaid with a throb of pride in his voice. "You aren't weakening, are you, darling?"

"No! No!" exclaimed the girl in his arms.

Again they clung together. They were going to be married at last, after four years! Shirley's heart thudded deliciously against her side. Jaid's face blazed with fugitive color. They looked up the place and walked down the street. Jaid's coupe had gone the way of his dress studs. But he had a marriage license in his pocket. His hand tightened on her arm. And they laughed above the tumult in their pulses.

Of course it was nothing like their plans, that quiet ceremony in the old Methodist parsonage. There were no bridesmaids, no flower-strewn aisles, no music. It was very still in the old-fashioned parlor. But the windows were flung open to the garden. The air was soft and sweet with dusk, the old minister's voice very gentle and reverent.

"I do pronounce you man and wife."

Shirley's hand closed convulsively on Jaid's. He stooped and kissed her. The old minister's wife wiped her eyes. She wasn't always happy about the couples who came unexpectedly to be married under her roof. But this boy and girl had meant it when they swore to cherish each other always—in sickness or in health, for better or worse, till death did them part. They were wedded to each other's hearts, those Alec, who, out of a job, had been running around with a flashy divorcee and who becomes interested in Lou Knight, the town drunk's daughter. Her father died rescuing a crippled boy in a fire. He takes her to his mother's home.

Shirley, engaged to Jaid Newsum, who is also out of work and whose mother wants him to marry Connie two. It shone from her eyes.

Laura, with Lou's aid, was setting the table for dinner when Shirley and Jaid came in. Their faces were a revelation. They did not need to say anything.

"You're married! And you didn't tell me!"

For a minute Laura felt she couldn't bear it. She had tried never to fail her children. And yet Shirley, her beautiful sweet Shirley had married without a word. In someone else's house. Laura had not even been there, or Mike, it wasn't as if they would have disapproved. Laura was glad, terribly glad that Shirley was married. But it hurt that in the biggest hour of her life she had not come home to her mother and father, had not even told them.

And then with a glance at her daughter's radiant eyes, Laura swallowed her resentment.

"You see," said Shirley when they had explained about the sandwich shop, "Jaid's mother will be furious. But she can't be angry at you, Mother, because you knew nothing about it. No one is to blame but Jaid and me. And I'm afraid we don't care a lot whether she ever forgives us or not."

"You're married!"

At least, thought Laura, none of her children had ever said quite that about her. She went upstairs with Shirley to pack her overnight bag. Her other things would be sent on in her trunk the next day. Laura managed to be very gay as she helped Shirley collect her frilly little pink negligee and a demure white nightgown from her hope chest.

But Laura was not really gay. It wrenched her heart when Shirley closed the door on her girlhood forever and came down the stairs to Jaid, but Laura did not betray it. Mike was waiting with his new son-in-law and he kissed Shirley and told her she had never done a smarter day's work and warned Jaid to expect him to drop in often for a free handout and sent them off with a chuckle. Only Laura knew that Mike's lips were quivering. Only she was there when he turned to her with blurred eyes.

The moon had risen when Shirley and Jaid came back to Joe's place. It silvered the oak leaves. Jaid snapped on the lights inside. They gleamed on shining walls and new china and glittering green glass. But in the back room, the moon cast light enough.

"It isn't the way I promised," Jaid said, "but I love you, Shirley. And I'll work myself to death to make up to you for everything you ought to have and haven't."

"What haven't I?" whispered the girl. "I've the man I love. I've his name and his love and his respect. The right to make him a home and bear his children. The right to live for him and for them. What more can any woman want?"

"Darling!"

His lips found hers.

"I love you, I love you!" whispered Shirley who had been unable to say the things that mattered.

Back home Laura Maguire wiped her eyes and carefully put away the miniature of Great-grandmother Ashie.

It had served its purpose.

Alec Maguire did not come home to dinner the night Shirley married. He did not even telephone. Laura found herself wishing that her son Mays, the banker's daughter.

Kathleen, who against her will, is becoming interested in Ritchie Graham, who is also a newspaperman and aids her father in angering the banker. The latter causes the paper to lose its advertising.

Shirley pawns her ring to buy a hamburger stand. Jaid also comes to buy it.

Alec was not too old for a session with the hair brush. It seemed to Laura that on top of everything else, Lou was just too much. Of all days in the year to be saddled with the girl. And such a tongue-tied, nervous little creature. Laura had talked herself hoarse trying to relieve the child's dreadful timidity. But Lou still trembled when Laura spoke, and her eyes watched the door—for Alec.

Kathleen was dining out. She might have helped. Lou had seemed less afraid of her than of the others. She shrank every time Mike addressed her. He had even less success than Laura with the poor little thing. Tom looked tired and depressed. He scarcely spoke at all. Mike had had another run-in with Barker Mays over an editorial in the morning Clarion. Mike detailed the episode with gusto. He thought it highly entertaining. But it worried Laura. Mike laughed when he discovered that Kathleen's engagement was with Eugene Mays' son. Laura also failed to find that amusing.

Altogether dinner at the Maguire house was not a happy occasion that night. Laura was glad when they rose from the table. Mike had a Council meeting. He was gone when Laura finished in the kitchen. Tom, looking drawn and white, went up to his room and closed the door. His haggard face haunted Laura. But it had not invited confidences. He wanted to be alone. She was his mother and she ached with his pain. But she could do nothing. Another woman had his happiness in her keeping.

Laura, with Lou trailing after her like a shy dejected shadow, sat down in a big wicker chair on the veranda and leaned her head wearily back. For once Laura's natural buoyancy deserted her. She had a wild desire to indulge in a few well-salted tears, a luxury she rarely allowed herself. Shirley was married, a bride this night in a hamburger joint. The bride's mother always weeps. Laura felt in the humor to do a lot of that. Only there was Lou, huddled in the porch swing, small, dejected, pitiful. Laura felt like swearing. She couldn't let down even for a minute and be just a plain discouraged human. She knew Lou would most likely faint with fright if her hostess put on a sob act.

"It's a lovely evening, isn't it?" murmured Laura, trying for the hundredth time to thaw the iced ice between herself and her guest.

"Yes," whispered Lou.

"At least with Shirley gone I needn't inflict you with the couch," murmured Laura, thinking with a pang that Shirley would never again share Kathleen's virginal bed.

Lou's small hands clenched. "I'm going tomorrow," she said huskily.

Laura glanced at her quickly. The girl's eyes met hers. They were very unhappy and very apologetic, Lou's big blue eyes.

"Alec shouldn't have brought me here," she said. "And I shouldn't have come. I knew you'd hate having me."

Laura flushed. "I don't hate having you, Lou. It's just that I've been a little at a loss fitting you in."

"I know," Lou said. "That's why I shouldn't have come. I don't belong here. I've never had anything or been anywhere. I'm poor white trash and you—you're lovely and so kind, but I—I'll go away tomorrow."

"Where will you go, my child?" asked Laura very gently.

Lou looked away. "I don't know."

Laura reached over and laid her hand on the girl's knee but Lou shrank away.

"You'll stay here till I can work something out for you," said Laura. "I would never forgive myself if I let you go otherwise. And neither would Alec."

"He's ashamed of me," Lou burst out in a smothered voice. "He took me to the Airdrome on a bet. But he doesn't like me. He's just sorry for me and kind like you."

Laura drew a breath of relief. So there was nothing between Alec and the girl except his instinct to befriend a friendless creature. Laura remembered how all his life Alec had brought in crippled sparrows and dogs with broken legs and insisted on repairing them.

"I can't believe Alec is ashamed of you, Lou," she said. "It doesn't matter that you are poor. So are we."

"But Alec's so wonderful!" breathed the girl with a little sob. "He's just as far above me as those stars up there, and always will be."

She got blindly to her feet and slipped into the house. Laura heard her going up the stairs, heard the bedroom door close behind her, and knew Lou was crying in that mute heartbreaking way she had. Of course she was in love with Alec. Laura sighed. And he hadn't come near her all day. Laura wondered where he was. She supposed he was helping Myra Boone massacre time as usual.

DRAFT LAW BRINGS ABOUT HEALTHY ASSOCIATIONS

THERE IS A JOB the new army is doing that may not be realized by all. It is breaking down the class consciousness that was growing all too rapidly.

When the poor man's son and the rich man's son sleep under the same canvas or occupy adjoining bunks; when they wear the same kind of clothing, do the same routine jobs day after day, they find they are very much alike. They are both young men with the same aspirations, much the same likes and dislikes, both of them human.

They find the top sergeant knows no distinction between rich and poor when it comes to naming a kitchen police detail; that the rich man's son can go to the guard house for any infraction of army rules quite as quickly as the poor man's son; that in army regulations there is no rich or no poor—all are soldiers.

Out of it all will come many thousands of lasting friendships between the rich and poor. When it is over and the poor boy goes to a factory job and the rich boy to the office desk, the friendship formed in the army camp will continue and will result in a better understanding in that factory.

Service in the army is making for better American citizenship that is fully as valuable as the making of soldiers. When the emergency is over, the draft law should be continued, with the age limit reduced to 22 years, so all American boys, rich and poor, may continue to get acquainted. The nation will be stronger because of such acquaintance.

HOME TOWN PATRONAGE OR ELSE

AS A SMALL BOY, I knew the then prosperous little town of Vernon, Iowa. I knew its four general stores, well-stocked with the merchandise of that time. These stores constituted the foundation on which Vernon was built. Their existence was responsible for the comfortable homes of the town, for its two churches and for its, for that time, excellent school. The "drummers" those stores brought to the town made possible that hotel. The bank was dependent on the stores for its business. Vernon was a market place.

Then came the invasion of the mail-order catalogue, with a concerted blitzkrieg on business of the town. The sales of the merchants declined. With that decline came a reduction in the quantity and variety of merchandise offered by local merchants. In time the stores closed. With them went the bank, hotel, homes, churches and the school.

Today Vernon does not exist, even to the extent of a post office. What was once a market place, a social and cultural center, a place of comfortable homes, is now a corn field. The value of those acres and other farm acres surrounding the place that once was Vernon is not as great as it was 60 years ago.

There have been all too many Vernons throughout America—too many market places that have died because of the tendency to centralize merchandising. Whenever people of a community permit their market place to die from lack of home patronage they sacrifice their social and cultural center, their churches and schools, and turn what has been a place of homes into a field. That, continued to a logical conclusion, would make peasants of the American farmers. It would deprive them of all that makes farm life pleasant.

NO FEAR FOR U. S. IN TRADE BARRIERS

WHEN ANYONE attempts to tell you we, as a nation, must do things to protect our world markets, it is well to remember a few simple facts.

America represents just about 50 per cent of all the purchasing power of the entire world. We are as great a market place as all other nations combined.

We do, or can, produce 97 per cent of all the commodities needed to maintain the American standard of living. We could build a trade wall around the country and suffer no serious inconvenience.

Our one greatest item of export is raw cotton. We import in the form of manufactured products practically as much cotton as we export in bales.

It is other nations, not America, that would seriously suffer from any trade barriers they might attempt against us.

A BIT COMPLICATED ARE EGG PRICES, ETC.

ENGLAND ASKS that we reduce our egg consumption so we can sell more to her, "on the cuff." England does not buy eggs in Canada, where it would be a cash transaction. The price of eggs in Canada is about 10 cents a dozen less than the price to the American consumer. We pay for eggs for England and raise our own price on those we eat, but the American poultry raiser profits. It is a complicated world, a complex, bewildered world.

1942 WHEAT INSURANCE EXPLAINED

College Station, August 8.—Instead of asking for the cash equivalent, approximately 70 per cent of insured Texas wheat farmers are using their certificates of indemnity as collateral for government loans, according to P. C. Colgin, state loan supervisor of the AAA.

In taking the loan, farmers are not only receiving better prices, but by retaining possession of the wheat they will be able to take advantage of the market in case prices advance, Colgin explained.

Certificates of indemnity or the cash equivalent are paid farmers at the time the total or partial loss of the insured wheat is determined.

To date, 3,340 claims have been paid on 217,175 acres with an insured production of 1,063,947 bushels. A total of 11,040 farms and 4,943,435 bushels were insured for the 1941 crop.

All-risk insurance policies for 1942 have already been made on 1,500 wheat farms representing 1,200 operators and owners and covering production of 84,000 acres. Applications will be taken until August 30 or until the time wheat is seeded, whichever date is earlier. Hazards covered by wheat insurance include losses by hail, wind, rain, fire, insects, draught, winterkill, rust, floods, and crop failure, the AAA official said.

Provisions of the 1942 loan program specify that in order for owners and operators to insure wheat on one farm, they must insure all wheat crops in which they have an interest. Regardless of the number of farms insured, only one application is necessary.

When a grower applies for insurance this year, Colgin pointed out, he will sign a commodity note which authorizes the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation to deduct the amount of the premium from indemnities which might be paid, or from wheat loans, or AAA payments, whichever is made first. The notes, which will mature about the time indemnities are usually paid, are made in the cash equivalent of the premium.

If a producer elects to pay his note before maturity, it may be paid either in the cash equivalent of wheat based on market prices the day the premium is paid, or in bushels of wheat. If the premium is paid by the producer after maturity he will be required to pay in the cash equivalent based on the market price of wheat on the date the premium was due.

Insurance coverage may be either 50 or 75 per cent of the normal yield on the farm, but the 75 per cent coverage is proving popular with Texas wheat farmers, Colgin said.

USE COTTON STAMPS WISELY

College Station August 10.—Families of growers who will soon be receiving stamps for compliance with the supplementary cotton program can make their stamps stretch a little farther over the budget if they do some planning in advance.

The best approach is for the family to sit down together and take an inventory of the cotton goods on hand, then list needs for cotton clothing and for household cottons. Mrs. Dora R. Barnes, clothing specialist, and Mrs. Bernice L. Caylor, specialist in home improvement both of the A and M College Extension Service, say that when the inventory and the list are made the stamp allotment should then be proportioned wisely between clothing and household needs.

Whether families are buying clothes or articles for the same home, the specialists say these pointers will help spend cotton stamps wisely:

Be sure to take your list when you go shopping.

If you don't know the prices of things you need, get them. Don't hesitate to ask questions. Read carefully all the labels on the articles you buy.

Remember that good quality material generally means a saving since it lasts longer and stands hard wear better.

Don't let a "bargain" lead you into buying something you don't really need.

If you buy goods at sales be sure to check the price and quality with values offered regularly and in other store.

Economists estimate that more than two-thirds of all Texas farmers use short term credit.

Texas claims more than two thirds of the cooperative cotton gins in the country.
