Texas Threatened With Rail Tie Up

POLITICIAN IS SHOT IN HOTEL LOBBY BRAWL

Had Just Returned From Ball Game With Friend

By Associated Press.

ELDORADO SPRINGS, Mo., July 16.—Paul Huff, prominent in republican politics in southwestern Missouri and brother of Roy N. Huff, prosecuting attorney of Cedar county, was killed late today in the lobby of a local hotel. Witnesses said that E. Shmmons who was arrested and charged with murder struck Huff in the face three times with his fist. The two men attended a ball game at Stockton this afternoon, the killing taking place soon afterward when they met in the hotel.

TORNADO HITS TOWNS IN IOWA

Crops Are Damaged By Storm

By Associated Press.

DES MOINES, Iowa, July 16.—A storm of tornado proportions struck Boone and surrounding territory tonight, according to meager reports received here by the Associated Press.

It was reported that a cyclone hit the town of Ogden, 20 miles west of Boone. Telegraph and telephone wires are down in this section. Colfax was in the path of the storm, Boone's electric light plant is out of commission.

At Colfax, 20 miles east of Des Moines, a number of buildings were blown down and all windows in the business block were broken, according to reports received here.

Trees blown down by the storm are blockading the streets and roads in Colfax and vicinity. Wire communication to Ames, Ogden, Grinnell, Boone and Newtown are down and the latter town is reported to be in darkness.

Weather bureau reports indicate that the storm caused considerable damage to crops. The rain, described as the heaviest in recent years, lasted only a few minutes.

Sam Morris, age 32, of Burkburnett, was seriously injured about 11:30 last night when the car he was driving overturned into a deep ditch about four miles outside of Wichita Falls, on the Burkburnett road.

Morris was driving alone and it is believed he was blinded by the lights of an approaching car. Witnesses state the two cars suddenly swerved together as they were about to pass. The car driven by Morris overturned and he was rushed to Call Field hospital.

Immediately following the first accident, two other cars crashed at the point where the injured man was being taken into the ambulance. No one was injured in the second crash.

The identity of the other member of the first accident was not learned.

Work on Plan to Refund War Debt

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 16.—Early inauguration of negotiations with Great Britain for the funding of the five billion dollar British war debt to this country was expected tonight at the treasury.

Great Britain and France together owe more than $8,000,000,000 of the $11,000,000,000 allied debt and officials expressed the belief that arrangements for payment worked out with those two countries would worm the models for the funding scheme with the other eighteen foreign nations.

Twenty Summer Cottages Burn

The little chap was helping earn a living for the family when the accident happened

Candidates Wrangle Over Issues of past

Ousley Is Only One in Senate Race Who Has Raised Real Issue; Every Candidate Claims He Will Win—But Four of Them Must Lose

By H. N. F.

DALLAS, July 16.—"All men are liars." The Good Book says so. This will be the verdict of four defeated candidates for the senatorship after the ballots have been counted on the night of Saturday, July 22. "All men are hypocrits when it comes to politics," will be another saying of the four senatorial corpses sent to the morgue. Man, when he is a candidate, is the most hopeful animal under the big tent. He sees victory within his grasp. He knows he is to be the favored one of the gods and the people and certain to be elevated to high places. He knows he is a statesman even if he is a runt.

This is no reflection on the distinguished gentlemen who are chasing a senatorial toga and will continue to chase until the shadows fall on the night of July 21. It goes without saying that when the shadows do fall they will fall on the finish of the dullest and most uninteresting campaign in many respects that has been waged in Texas for a quarter of a century.

Ousley for Tariff

Clarence Ousley is the only man in the race here in Texas who has introduced a real issue. He is running as a protective tariff democrat and favors a tariff on all the products of the farm and the ranch as well as a tariff on the manufactured articles of commerce. This should invite a showdown. Running as a protection democrat should at least entitle Mr. Ousley to the votes of democrats who are protectionists away down here in Texas. Congressman Claude B. Hudspeth is a mild protectionist of the democratic type and he is a strenuous advocate of the renomination of Charles A. Culberson. Representative John W. Garner voted for the emergency tariff act. He is a supporter of Culberson. Representative Thomas L. Blanton is said to be a mild protectionist. He hasn't squawked as to the senatorship as he is having all he can do to hoe his own political row at home. The late Lucian W. Parrish voted for the emergency tariff act, but in his opening speech

Rangers and Suicide
A Board Without Teeth
Just Where Is Wolters?
Modern Balshazzars

CAPTAIN TOM HICKMAN and three Texas state rangers are on duty at Denison. In the long ago a distinguished senator said that the late Captain Bill McDonald of ranger fame would charge hell with a bucket of water. If so, Captain Tom Hickman should dispatch his three rangers elsewhere and if there is any hell charging to be done or hell extinguishing all he will need is a bucket of water. Hickman is the ranger captain who was stationed at Wichita Falls when former Ranger McCormick shot the liver and lights out of the celebrated Bud Ballew. Captain Hickman returned a verdict that Ballew committed suicide when he invaded the Texas side of the Red river. Bud did.

SENATOR A. B. CUMMINS of Iowa is Chairman of the senate interstate commerce committee. Senator Cummins, who is one of the co-authors of the transportation act of 1920, says that decisions of the railroad labor board are binding on both carriers and employes and not simply advisory. All men who read and think know that the 'transportation act provides no penalties. Now how will it be possible for the government to compel obedience to the rulings of the railroad labor board? Railroad managers violated a ruling when they sent their work to private repair shops. Railway employes violated another ruling when they struck against the wage award made by the board. There is no fear where there is no penalty.

FORMER GOV. WM. P. HOBBY has been heard from. In an interview given to the press of the state, the former governor says the enforcement of the open port law would solve the strike problem in Texas. Former Governor William P. Hobby isn't a candidate for United States senator. He isn't a candidate for any office. He isn't in politics. He is a private citizen. As governor, he urged the passage of the open port law. As governor he sent the soldiers to Galveston. As governor he declared martial law. Richard Mayes, past president of the Texas Bar association, in his farewell address to the lawyers of Texas, declared that the Galveston declaration of martial law was not only illegal but unjustifiable. General Jacob F. Wolters was the military commander at Galveston. He was the military commander at Mexia. He served as military commander under two governors. For the first time in a quarter of a century, General Wolters is as silent as the sphynx of Egypt. He hasn't murmured since the opening of the campaign. He lead the anti-prohibition forces for a quarter of the century. He fought the coming of prohibition. He fought the coming of equal suffrage. Many of his old lieutenants are Titans or Cyclops or Kleagles. General Wolters should make answer to the fulmination of the Hon. Richard Mayes. Was it a crime against democracy and democratic government for Former Governor Hobby to place Galveston under martial law and to send the soldiers there? It is rather late in the campaign but as the general always loved to contribute to the gaity of the people in the good old days, why should he hesitate in the shank end of the senatorial political upheavel? He hasn't made a public speech this year. He hasn't give the newspapers a single interview. Now just what has gone wrong with the general?

HON. ROBERT LEE HENRY, cross bearer extraordinary, self-confessed, and victim of the double-crossers, has hurled this defy to the Texas public: "Wherever I go I find an insidious whispered propaganda coming from the Mayfield camp that I will retire in his favor. I say now and once for all that I have never had a thought for such action and I will be in the senatorial race until every vote is in the ballot boxes and counted on July 22." Who invented the phrase "Whispering propoganda?" It is catchy and musical. In the long ago before the coming of prohibition, Sterling P. Strong wired the leaders of a dead legislature: "Block all legislation until the prohibition amendment is submitted to the people." Legislative

LAUGHS WHEN GIRL ACCUSES HER OF CRIME

Mrs. Phillips Keeps Silent About Crime

By Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, July 16.—Mrs. Clara Phillips, charged with the murder of Mrs. Alberta Meadows here last Wednesday, reached Los Angeles early this afternoon in custody of Sheriff Wm. I. Traeger. She was taken to the sheriff's office and examined by alienists to determine her mental condition. Mrs. Peggy Chaffee, eye witness to the hammer slaying, after being taken out of town secretly to meet the train, also arrived with the prisoner.

The meeting of Mrs. Phillips and her accusers aboard the train just before the train reached Los Angeles was staged carefully, but the encounter failed to ruffle the equanimity of the woman charged with what police described as the most brutal murder in the city's history.

Mrs. Caffee, whose story of the slaying of Mrs. Meadows on an unfrequented road in the northeastern section of Los Angeles resulted in Mrs. Phillips' indictment, boarded the train at a station on the outskirts of the city in company with a detective and a deputy sheriff.

Laughs at Accuser.

"Is this the woman with whom you went riding Wednesday?" Mrs. Caffee was asked as she faced the prisoner.

"Yes," she faltered.

Mrs. Phillips laughed.

"Is this the woman who killed Mrs. Meadows?"

"Yes," quavered the young woman.

Mrs. Phillips smiled, but said nothing.

A. L. Phillips, husband of the alleged slayer, who told the sheriff of her flight from the city, was not at the station to meet his wife, the authorities desiring to keep them apart until they had questioned Mrs. Phillips in greater detail.

After a half hour conference Dr. Weber did not state his opinion as to Mrs. Phillips' mental condition, but said she had not evaded conversation. He added, however, that she had declined to answer certain questions. What these were he would not say.

Hope For Terms Elsewhere As Crisis Looms in Texas

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 16.—With a strike crisis approaching in Texas following the calling of a mass meeting of the 16 rail unions from all over the state in Waco Tuesday, a veil of silence descended like a blanket over the railway strike situation in other parts of the country today. Both rail heads and strike leaders turned hopeful eyes toward the momentous developments the new week was expected to bring forth.

The bitterness which has marked the progress of the walkout at times during the past two weeks seemed to have been succeeded by a peace almost approaching an understanding. The hurling of verbal challenges, claims and counter-claims, ultimatums and defiances, apparently had ended either through exhaustion or the hope of an early agreement. Railway executives who declared their willingness last night to attend any meeting called by the United States labor board with a view to affecting a settlement "that would not nullify, but would uphold and carry out the board's decisions" spent the holiday away from their office and in deep seclusion.

MAY APPOINT MARRS JUDGE

Caldwell Unable to Take Job

John P. Marrs, well-known attorney, will probably be the next man to be appointed city judge.

It became known Sunday morning that Commissioner J. B. Fitts contemplates proposing the name of Mr. Marrs to the city council when that body convenes tonight in regular session as the successor of Judge W. B. Chauncey.

Judge Chauncey departed several weeks ago for points in California, having been advised by his physicians to carry his youthful son there where it is thought the lad will regain his health. After his departure, Judge W. H. Caldwell was designated by Commissioner Fitts as "special magistrate," and has been acting in that capacity for several days.

Judge Caldwell's sternness, and his sincere manner in conducting the court met with the favor of the police department, Commissioner Fitts eventually offering the chair to Judge Caldwell as a permanent undertaking. However, it was learned that Judge Caldwell's law business prevented him from accepting the post.

Commissioner Fitts, he let it be known Sunday, has been looking for an attorney to fill the vacancy caused by the departure of Judge Chauncey since the latter left Wichita Falls, Mr. Caldwell having filled the bench only after it had been urged upon him to do so.

Mr. Marrs said Sunday night that "if the post is offered to me, I will accept it until Judge Chauncey returns."

Marrs is a graduate of the University of Texas, and has been closely associated in a number of political ventures. Commissioner Fitts is of the opinion that Mr. Marrs will only fill the position of corporate court magistrate.

Mr. Parker said that half of the 000 way men at the Kingston shop of the West Shore went out last week and that the others together with 100 workers at the Ravena round house on the same line threaten to go out within the next 48 hours unless they get back their old wages, with the 48 hour week.

BUSINESS IS STILL GAINING

Crop Prospects Are Fairly Good

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 16.—With the country's two major labor disputes still contributing their elements of uncertainty business and financial news during the past week suggested that the trend toward improvement is interrupted. Railroad car loadings for the last week in June were slightly smaller than in the one previous, which set a new high record for the year.

The loss is accounted for by smaller coal shipments, the movement of merchandise showing a further gain. A better demand for steel products is being maintained as seen in the June 30 total of unfilled orders of the United States steel corporation.

The corporation's books shows 6,534,000 tons of unfinished business, this figure being 381,000 tons larger than on May 30 and 1,494,000 tons above that on February 28, when the low point of the recent depression was made.

New Business Gains

It is estimated that new business during June amounted to more than 1,400,000 tons, which is a volume exceeding the corporations ordinary production capacity. Steel output is experiencing a mild check on account of the railroad strike, the steel corporations rate of operations having been reduced from 77 per cent to 70 per cent. Meanwhile the trade has developed a certain amount of axiety over a possible car shortage this fall, pointing out that the increase in new business which would accompany termination of the strike would coincide with the active period of crop movement.

Coal Production Falls

Coal production for the week ending July 8 shows a marked decrease. The loss of approximately 1,500,000 tons from the low production of recent weeks served to intensify the drain on existing stocks. Quick settlement of the strike still seems unlikely. Crop prospects are practically unchanged. The department of agriculture's grain estimate as of July 1 indicates a fair yield. The winter wheat crop is placed at 569,000,000 bushels or 18,000,000 bushels below last year's crop, but the spring wheat outlook is enough better to bring the total of both crops up to 817,000,000 bushels. This total is 21,000,000 bushels more than last year's. It is smaller than four of the past eight years and larger than in the other four.

Corn Prospects Fair

A fair crop of corn is also in prospect. With prices little changed the present grain crop promises to be sufficiently good to insure the continuation of a revival in general business.

The week's developments in the money market were as expected. Following the holidays there was a shrinkage in the volume of federal reserve not currency, which along with a gain in reserve brought a recovery in the reserve ratio of the combined federal reserve system. At the same time the rate on call money in the New York stock exchange relaxed further and in touching 2 3-4 per cent reached the previous low record for the year. Rates for the various forms of money are accordingly at the low levels of the per cent cycle and the question remains as to whether or not the money market has quite touched bottom.

GUARDSMEN MOUNT GUNS ON LOCOMOTIVES

WILLIAM T. ELLIS is a famous writer on religious topics. He has made the startling discovery that Belshazzar's idea is prevalent in America today. Belshazza was a heathen and the ancient chroniclers had of him that he thought because he was a king, he could take special privilege. Writer Ellis predicts that there is a reckoning coming as individuals can not flout the laws of God and man without paying the penalty. Is William T. Ellis a copy worker of a prophet? If he is a copy maker, just let it go at that. If he is a prophet, there is a lot of watching and waiting to be done. No where on earth does the almighty dollar appear to have lost its potency. Kings grab it, misers hoard it, beggars cry for it, paupers dream of it, and all the world trips along in mad pursuit of the golden master.

SECRETARY OF STATE CHAS. EVANS HUGHES says the United States is not and will not share in the maintenance of the permanent court of international justice until some provision is made by which without membership in the league of nations the American government will be able to have an appropriate voice in the election of the judges of the international court. Is international justice impossible? Is an international court of arbitration impossible? If so, back to the sword.

HOPE FOR—

R. M. Jewell, leader of the striking shopmen, visiting his almost deserted headquarters, read the rail executives' statement with a quiet grin, but refused to make any comment. "There'll be nothing over the week end," he reiterated. Ben Hooper, chairman of the labor board, likewise had no statement to make.

Await Reinstatement

One of the factors oftenest quoted to justify hopes for an early settlement despite the failure last week of Mr. Hooper's efforts to bring the labor leaders and the executives together was the statement of R. A. Henning, general chairman of the federated shop crafts of the northwest, that only the refusal of eastern roads to agree to reinstate striking shop crafts workers with full seniority rights is preventing a settlement as far as the northwest roads are concerned.

On the other questions at issue—outside contracting for shop work, modification of certain rules and working agreements, the establishment of conciliation boards and wages, it was declared that most of the roads already had agreed to abolish outside contracting and had agreed to the early establishment of the conciliation boards under the federal transportation act. Thus but two questions, it was asserted, were now at issue, rules and wages, both of which might again be brought before the labor board for decision on the demand of the men for a rehearing.

More Trains Cancelled

Reports of the cancellation of trains because of the coal shortage or the growing lack of equipment and of strike outbreaks continued. Union leaders also predicted more accessions to their ranks tomorrow from the stationary firemen and oilers and the clerks.

At Cleveland, Ohio, the second outbreak of the strike last night resulted in the killing of a striking shop worker near the spot where the first striker was slain a week ago. Outbreaks yesterday were reported at Scranton, Pa., where two men were assaulted, troops were requested to guard railshops at Hannibal, Mo., and soldiers also were being held ready for duty at Chaffee, Mo., as the result of the announced intention to open the shops there Monday. In Chicago a score of policemen guarding railway shops and more than 50 workers were reported to have been made ill by something placed in milk they were served.

QUERIES PUT KNICKERBOCKER

What Do You Think Of Jesus?

"What do you think of Jesus?"

That was the greatest question, according to Rev. H. D. Knickerbocker, that could have been asked of all of a series of queries propounded to him during his open-air sermon Sunday night at the First Methodist church. His sermon was based on queries which were written during the services and handed to him, and upon which he based his remarks.

All classes of inquiries were submitted, most numerous of which were questions concerning the ku klux klan and which the minister answered in detail:

"Are you a member of the ku klux klan?" "why does the ku kluxer mask?" and "if the ku klux klan were in vogue when Jesus Christ comes to earth again, would he be eligible?" were some of the inquiries he answered during the sermon.

"I think the ku klux klan is one of the great coadjutors of everything I know that is good, and I challenge any man to show anything they've ever done that wasn't right," Rev. Knickerbocker asserted in speaking along this line. He evaded a direct answer of whether he is really a member of the klan, but said in re. y that "there are some questions that a man shouldn't be asked."

In speaking of why the ku klux klansmen mask, the minister remarked that "no one ever worries over the regalia and paraphernalia of the knights templar, or any other organization, and if there wasn't some ritual, or some secrecy about these orders, there wouldn't be a single member—if you don't believe me, try to organize some order, brother, and leave off the ritual and the secrets, and the regalia and the paraphernalia and see how many members you get."

During his sermon, Rev. Knickerbocker took occasion to answer a question concerning the ship subsidy bill and the soldiers' bonus, asserting that "it isn't right for you and I to have to guarantee to any bunch of ship owners a profit whether they make it or not." He expressed opposition to the soldier bonus measure, and read figures tending to show that the United States is at present spending a million dollars a day on the wounded veterans, and that to add any burden to the $23,000,000,000 debt this country owes, would be unjust to the coming generations which must pay it.

One never knews how foolish some men can act until they sudddenly break into the father class.

CANDIDATES—

in his race for the senatorship, he disavowed that he was a protectionist and emphatically declared undying opposition to republican tariff laws. He has also voted for the Esch-Cummings act, but he gave notice to his constituents that the act itself was honey combed with defects or evils and his sole purpose in voting for it was to take the railways out of governmental control. In the closing days of the campaign all the candidates are busy rebashing their opening speeches and some of them are defending their records on prohibition in the years when the democrats of Texas were divided into two hostile camps.

Dead Issues Awakened.

Thomas and Mayfield are quarreling over the dead issues of a dead past and Henry is flinging into the teeth of Thomas the methods employed in the good old days by prosecuting attorneys who collected fines once a month from professional harlots and professional gamblers and saloon keepers who violated the liquor laws. Henry drew the same gun on Governor Neff in the campaign two years ago, but when he discharged the weapon the shot must have scattered as there were no casualties. All the candidates are hammering the Esch-Cummins act and clamoring for its repeal. They say it is responsible for the high freight rates under which the people are groaning. Culberson and his friends make this retort: "Culberson voted against the Esch-Cummins act. He has advocated its repeal. He is ready to vote for its repeal." And if the congress repealed the act tomorrow those who are protesting against the ugh freight rates would be given no relief. It is the province of the interstate commerce commission to make rates. It is within the power of this commission to advance or to lower rates. A decision of the supreme court of the United States made it so and not the enactment of the Esch-Cummins act. All the rail chiefs are willing for the act to be repealed. Its repeal would repeal the railroad labor board.

All Are Confident

Mr. Mayfield continues to claim to be the high man in the race and the leaders of the ku klux klan, in this city at least, declare that he will receive the klan vote. Mr. Thomas claims to be the high man in the race and capable of defeating the runner-off against him in August. Mr. Henry says no "whispering propaganda" will eliminate him from the race and that his chances are brighter than they have ever been in a political campaign. Mr. Ferguson says he is going into the run-off and may lead in the run-off. Mr. Ousley said at Nacona that all the others are talking nonsense, that he is talking sense, that he will get three votes where Culberson gets two and he modestly admits that he is the only hope of the people of Texas, who need a real scholar and statesman to represent them in the upper house of congress.

Mr. Culberson, well like Brer Rabbit, "he say nuffin," away down here in Texas but Judge Barry Miller and those who are associated with him are claiming the earth. They say his chances appear to be five times as bright the week before primary election as they were six years ago; they say he will be in the run-off and that Mayfield will be the man he will have to send to the political cemetery in August. Miller and his lieutenants say that the fight is over and the battle has been won.

Deny Culberson is Falling.

Captain William A. Fields is one of the veterans of Hill county. He is a candidate for the legislature without opposition. He is a Culberson boomer. This is what the ancient lawmaker and editor said: "I have just returned from a trip north during which I spent a couple of days in Washington and a considerable part of the time with Senator Culberson. I was agreeably surprised to needed on earth and was willing to make the sacrifice.

Dr. Powers told of the wonderful opportunities of Christian people to go out into the world and work the work of love. He told of the hundreds of sick souls who are in the world and how the police, the Salvation Army and others who were among those classes come into contact with them all the time and he said that the love of God is reaching out for these people and that Christian people should take the message of love to them.

The minister pictured Christ leaving his heavenly Father and the hosts of angels in Heaven and coming to earth to be born in a manger, raised in poverty and suffering the evils of the world, yet living through all the trials and finally dying a death of agony, all for the love of man. He told of Christ working among all classes of people and of His love going out to heal all classes who came unto him. "If he would look on Christ and see how he conducted himself towards the world, then go out and follow his example, we could bring thousands of souls to Christ," declared the pastor.

"The call comes to us all to surrender our will to the Will of God" said Dr. Powers also ... "to live religion is a high privilege."

Dr. Powers told of the ... world and the thousands who ... help. He besought his hearers to go out into the world and help the lost. "Out there in the world there are thousands lost that need to be loved and brought to Christ" he said.

COTTON CROP OUTLOOK FINE

Conditions Indicate Record Yield

Special to the Record News.

STAMFORD, July 15.—A close check on the condition of the cotton crop in west Texas is now being made by the West Texas Chamber of Commerce with the result to date that conditions are ideal for the greatest production in the history of the section. A report on the cotton situation as discovered by numerous questionnaires to unit towns follows in part:

Panhandle-plains section: In the plains section, reports indicate that the acreage this season has been increased from 200 to 400%. Very little cotton is grown in the Panhandle section due to the lack of ginning facilities. However, in the Texico-Litchfield region cotton is proving to be the leading crop this season. The rainfall has been adequate for its growth and the staple is showing rapid progress. Light showers would be beneficial. In the northern part of the plains section, cotton is doing unusually well, but showing signs of a need of moisture in a very few isolated sections. In the southern part of the plains section weather and rainfall have been ideal and the crop has shown remarkable growth during the last ten days under the beneficial influences of unusually warm weather.

Wichita Falls-Childress section: Cotton has shown a wonderful growth in the last ten days. Some rain has fallen. Cotton is not needing rain, though heavy showers would prove beneficial at this time. In the Memphis and Childress sectors cotton is fruiting in some localities. Some extraordinary yields are expected should present ideal conditions continue a few weeks, acording to informants.

Central West Texas: Cotton has made phenomenal growth since the long rainy period. The unusually warm weather of the last ten days has promoted the growth of the plant and fruiting is already taking place. Moisture is not needed except in a very few places. Without further rains, an average crop would be produced. Light showers have fallen of this sector in the last ten days. The acreage is somewhat increased over that of last season.

Southwest Texas: Cotton is showing a splendid growth and with the exception of some sectors the presence of the bollweevil has not been reported. In the sandy belt where timber is abundant, some reports of bollweevil are recorded.

Summary: Generally the cotton crop in West Texas could hardly be improved upon at this time. In fact taking the various reports as a whole the cotton situation in west Texas is the best ever known. With light rains shortly the gathering of the crop will continue over many months.

REACH SINNERS THROUGH LOVE

Powers Makes Plea To Christians

"Thou has loved my soul from out of sin."

That was the subject on which Rev. O. L. Powers, pastor of the First Baptist church preached Sunday night one of the most powerful sermons that have been heard in Wichita Falls this summer. He took his text from Isiah 38:17.

Dr. Powers spoke of Hesikah who was told that he was to die and he prayed to God and God gave him 15 years more of life. He told of the greatness of Hesikah and of what he accomplished.

Then Dr. Powers told of the coming of Jesus who took the sting out of death. He told of Paul taking the opposite stand from Hesikah for Jesus having come and died for humanity, Paul was glad to die and go to his Master but he knew he was find him in such good condition. I was in Washington and visited him in the early part of the year 1916 and I do not exaggerate in the slightest degree when I state that he is decidedly in better physical condition today than he was in 1916, while his mind is as strong and clear as it ever was during all the time I have known him, which embraces his entire public career. He compares better today in both appearance and bearing, as well as in intellectual force, with the other great men who have represented Texas in the senate than any of his opponents would in a half century of service in that body. He was also in fine spirits over the encouraging reports received daily concerning the campaign.

Gentlemen who say that Culberson is a mental and physical cripple should interview Captain Fields. He is loaded to the muzzle for them. The reader is reminded that all the politicians are guessing and not betting. He is reminded that this is a horse race and a straight gamble. He is reminded that all the professional prophets are up in the air. He is reminded that there are many political under-currents and cross currents in this campaign to puzzle the voters and the prophets as well as the candidates and their managers. This is the situation as it appears to the writer five days prior to the final round-up at the primary ballot box of the twenty-seven varieties of democrats who are perspiring for their favorites under a July sun, away down here in Texas.

Fitts Takes Gun From Man On Platform at Union Station

The city is taking no sides whatever in the railroad strike but is going to protect the public and neither strikers or other persons who have no right to do so will be allowed to carry guns, according to a statement made Sunday night by Commissioner R. H. Fitts.

The statement was made following the disarming by Mr. Fitts of a white man at the Union station.

"I saw the man walking around with a big gun in his hip pocket," Mr. Fitts said, "and he was on public property. I did not recognize him as any of the officers so I asked him if he was an officer and hes aid he was not.

"He said he was an employe of the railroad company and when I asked him if he had anything to show that he was an employe of the railroad company he said he did not. Therefore I took his gun from him and placed him under arrest."

Mr. Fitts said he wants the public to understand that protection is going to be given the public, that the city is not taking sides in the strike situation and that to protect the public all persons not authorized to carry weapons and found with weapons on public property are going to be arrested.

FORT WORTH IS OUT OF JOINT

Politics Unsettled, Says Writer

By H. N. F.

FORT WORTH, Texas, July 16.—This is the home of Hon. Clarence Ousley. He is out on the road. He has never been a candidate for any high office. He has been a regent of the State university, a regent of the College of Industrial Arts, a regent of the A. & M. college, director of the department of extension of the A. & M. college and assistant secretary of agriculture before the coming of the republican deluge in the year 1920. Political conditions here are as thoroughly out of ojint as they are in any Texas city. This is an organized labor town.

There is no city in Texas or perhaps in the south where the wage workers are as thoroughly organized. They were for William G. McAdoo two years ago. They overwhelmed Joseph Weldon Bailey when he made his fight on Wilson. They overwhelmed Bailey when he made his fight for the governorship running against Pat Neff. A year later they overwhelmed Big Bill Davis when he sought re-election as mayor. Davis had taken the Bailey end of it and these organized workers voted him out of political commission.

There are hundreds of railway workers who are voting citizens of Fort Worth. For the most part they are home-owners and tax-payers. There is a railway strike on and all the other organizations are in deep sympathy with the workers who defied the edict of the railroad labor board and walked out. Earlier in the year, the employes of the big packing houses walked out. They said their wages were cut to the bone and they would not stand for it. This strike blew over in some mysterious way but the scars remained. On a show down at the ballot box these organized workers dominate the politics of this county. They are very mysterious this year.

They have no use for Harding nor his administration. They believe that the great captains of industry, after the election of Harding and his inauguration, held a secret conference in the city of Washington and there it was decided to give battle to organized labor all along the line and to substitute the open for the closed shop. There were railway chieftians, they say, who sat in this conference. They were big mine owners. There were representatives of the national manufacturing associations. There were cotton mill kings from New England.

There is a klan here. There is an anti-klan organization. Among the leaders of the anti-klan organization are former district judges, J. W. Swayne and Tom Simmons. They say they have the klan on the run. Of course the klan does not admit this. Ben J. Tillar, who is a very wealthy and influential lawyer and property owner and one of the executive board of the Texas Woman's college is another pillar of the anti-klan. There are two newspapers, the morning Record and the Star-Telegram, boosting the cause of Ousley. There is a third newspaper, the Daily Press, which editorially advocates the nomination of Cullen F. Thomas. This is the home of Mr. Ousley, as has been stated and he is an honored citizen, but political parties here are all shot to pieces. Labor troubles are uppermost. There are several hundred strikers here. Thomas has declared himself in sympathy with the strike and the strikers. James E. Ferguson is for the strike and the strikers and the closed shop against the open shop.

Little Stories For Bedtime

SAMMY JAY MAKES THINGS WORSE FOR BUSTER BEAR

"Thief, thief, thief! Thief, thief, thief!" Sammy Jay was screaming at the top of his lungs as he followed Buster Bear across the Old Pasture toward the Green Forest. Never had he screamed so loud and never had his voice sounded so excited. The little people of the Green Forest, the Green Meadows, and the Smiling Pool are so used to hearing Sammy cry thief that usually they think very little about it. But every blessed one who heard Sammy this morning stopped whatever he was doing and pricked up his ears to listen.

Sammy's cousin, Blacky the Crow, just happened to be flying along the edge of the Old Pasture, and the minute he heard Sammy's voice he turned and flew over to see what it was all about. Just as soon as he caught sight of Buster Bear running for the Green Forest as hard as ever he could, he understood what had excited Sammy so. He was so surprised that he almost forgot to keep his wings moving. Buster Bear had what looked to Blacky very much like a tin pail hanging from his neck. No wonder Sammy was excited. Blacky beat his wings fiercely and started after Sammy.

And so they reached the edge of the Green Forest, Buster running as hard as ever he could, Sammy flying just behind him and screaming "Thief, thief, thief!" at the top of his lungs, and behind him Blacky the Crow trying to catch up and calling as loud as he could, "Caw, caw, caw! Come on, everybody! Come on! Come on!

Poor Buster. It was bad enough to be frightened almost to death as he had been up in the Old Pasture when the pail from which he had stolen the berries picked by Farmer Brown's Boy had, caught over his head just as Farmer Brown's Boy had yelled at him. Then to have the handle of the pail slip down around his neck so that he couldn't get rid of the pail, but had to take it with him as he ran was making a bad matter worse. Now to have all his neighbors of the Green Forest see him in such a fix and make fun of him was more than he could stand.

He felt hu-mil-i-ated. That is just another way of saying shamed. Yes, sir, Buster felt that with that pail hanging around his neck he was shamed in the eyes of his neighbors and he wanted nothing so much as to get away by himself where no one could see him and there try to get rid of that dreadful pail. But Buster is so big that it is not easy for him to find a hiding place. So when he reached the Green Forest he kept right on to the deepest, darkest, most lonesome part and crept under the thickest hemlock tree he could find.

But it was of no use. The sharp eyes of Sammy Jay and Blacky the Crow saw him. They actually flew into the very tree under which he was hiding, and how they did scream! Pretty soon Ol' Mistah Buzzard came dropping down out of the blue, blue sky and took a seat on a convenient dead tree where he could see all that went on. Ol' Mistah Buzzard began to grin as soon as he saw that tin pail on Buster's neck. Then came others—Redtail the Hawk, Scrapper the Kingbird, Redwing the Blackbird, Drummer the Woodpecker, Welcome Robin, Tommy Tit the Chickadee, Jenny Wren, Redeye the Vireo, and ever so many more. They came from the Old Orchard, the Green Meadows, and even from down by the Smiling Pool, for the voices of Sammy Jay and Blacky the Crow carried far, and at the sound of them everybody hurried over, sure that something exciting was going on.

Presently Buster heard light footsteps, and peeping out he saw Billy Mink and Peter Rabbit and Jumper the Hare and Prickly Porky and Reddy Fox and Jimmy Skunk. Even timid little Whitefoot the Wood Mouse was where he could peep out and see without being seen. Of course Chatter the Red Squirrel and Happy Jack the Gray Squirrel were there. There they all sat in a great circle around him, each where he felt safe, but where he could see, and ever one of them laughing and making fun of Buster.

"Thief, thief, thief!" screamed Sammy until his throat was sore. The worst of it was Buster knew that everybody knew that it was true. That awful pail was proof of it.

"I wish I had never thought of berries," growled Buster to himself.

Snapshot taken by B. W. Anderson of two friends in Popanga, Canyon, California, which showed murdered woman's body in lower right-hand corner.

Los Angeles police are working on a murder mystery brought to their attention by a photograph taken by B. W. Anderson in Popanga Canyon. The snapshot, when developed two months after exposure, showed the outlines of a woman's form and face partially hidden by the brush. The spot where the photo was taken has since been buried by a landslide. The body was not noticed by Anderson when he took the pictures of his two friends.

OFFICIALS GOING TO VIEW IRRIGATION IN RIO GRANDE VALLEY

E. S. Heyser and R. A. Thompson expect to go to the lower Rio Grande valley sometime this week to check up on some irrigation work there. While in the valley they will make a further study of the projects there as might apply in the project of the Wichita valley.

The irrigation problems in the lower Rio Grande valley have been worked out over a period of years and the vast irrigation systems there have cost millions of dollars. Many of the plans there will apply in the Wichita valley project, it is said.

COAL MEN PLAN HARDING REPLY

Local Arbitration Is Wanted

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 16.—Bituminous coal mine operators representing associations of employers in all the principal producing districts in the United States went into a final session tonight to consider what response they should make to President Harding's offer of arbitration to settle the existing strike.

The response of the miners union, declining the offer, was made to President Harding Saturday while anthracite operators had previously announced their acceptance, leaving the bituminous group of employers the only one of the three parties whose position has not been formulated. It was considered likely in all quarters that further decisions of the government would not be made public until their answer had reached the president.

One influential group among the bituminous employers was advocating a complete acceptance of the president's proposal in advance of the formal session, arguing that this disposition of the arbitration proposal would leave the employers in good light before the country.

Contrasting with this was a position of Pittsburgh district employers who contended that acceptance of a national arbitration was impossible for them, though district arbitration would be acceptable to all employers.

The man will be turned over to federal authorities.

Famous Film Stars' Favorite Coiffures

LILA LEE.

A heavy suit of hair looks most becoming when dressed fairly close to the head, in a loose marcel wave, according to Lila Lee, Paramount picture actress. The part is in the middle which gives an even balance to the hair. The principal charm of such a coiffure is that it is very simple and lacking in extremes, which is best for young girl types.

FASHIONS

Trimmed in Smocking Is This Dotted Swiss Frock.

This frock was worn over a colored silk slip, and a sash matching the slip in color was tied about the waist.

Very dainty for a young girl is the little frock of white swiss with colored dots. The real feature of the dress is smocked yoke on both skirt and waist done with thread matching the dot in color, and a ribbon sash in the same shade girdles the waist. The dress buttons in the center back, and is one of the many shown this season distinguished by extreme simplicity. Such a frock should be entirely made by hand if it is to present its very best possible appearance, and certainly not a great deal of time or labor would be required.

Another dainty dotted swiss frock recently displayed was in a pale yellow dotted in white. The short sleeves, round neck and edge of the skirt were all finished with a very fine, narrow Val lace. The frock was as exquisitely dainty as a dress could be, and the little lace edging, set on slightly full, gave a most delightful finish.

A pale blue swiss dotted in white and also hand made, was finished at the edge of sleeves and skirt and about the neck with a narrow bias binding of white swiss.

A particularly charming all-white frock recently seen featured a skirt made of bands of three inch wide Val lace joined to bands of tucked organdy the same width, the tucks being hand run and very narrow. The waist had lace yoke and lace bands or cuffs on the short puffed sleeves.

Stick to One Breed of Hogs, Frank Reid Tells Farmers

EDITORS NOTE: This is a continuation of Mr. Reid's article of last Monday concerning the comparative merits of the various types and breeds of hogs, taken from a recent discussion of the subject by Prof. E. J. Iddings of the Idaho school of agriculture. These articles have been prepared for The Record News for the benefit of the farmers of northwest Texas, to whom the raising of hogs is an increasingly important phase of farm life.

(By FRANK REID)

There is no best breed of hogs. Each has its strong points and its weak one. Each has been developed along a certain line. If you like a certain breed, nine times out of ten that is the breed for you to raise, for you will make a better success of it than you would of one against which you were prejudiced. It is, of course, best to select one certain breed and then stick to it. The resume I am about to give concerning certain breeds is adapted from the lecture by Prof. Iddings, who is one of the foremost judges of livestock in the Pacific northwest. He is absolutely reliable, for the college judging teams which he coached captured all prizes at the various fairs throughout the northwest.

The Poland China

"The Poland China is an American breed of hog. It has been one of the great accomplishments of the American people. It is the highest development of the lard type. It is considerably shorter and lower to the ground than the other breeds. It is more compactly built. Its neck is shorter. It hasn't so much dish in the face and has a longer nose. The ear comes out about two-thirds of the way and drops over. The neck is very short. They have a greater ham than any other breed of hog. The ham is deep and very wide, looking at it from behind. The Poland China is black in color and has six white points. This breed is known as the hog of the corn belt. He takes to carbohydrate foods better than any other breed or type. There are more Poland-Chinas in the United States than any other two breeds combined. The average number of Poland China pigs per litter is seven. The Poland China is only fair in rustling qualities. The Berkshire had considerable to do with making the Poland China a smooth, stylish hog.

The Chester White is also an American breed. The Chester White is pure white, although breeders will allow blue spots. The ear is almost like a Poland China. It comes out straight from the head a bit erect. The more erect the ear the better breeders like it. So far as the make-up of the type is concerned, there is not much difference between the Poland China and the Chester White.

The Chester White is good for producing a greater number of pigs per litter than the Poland China and Berkshire, the average being more than eight pigs per litter.

This type of hog is fine in the bone, stands well up on its feet and is quite active. A black breed will stand heat better than a white.

Duroc Jerseys

The Duroc Jersey is becoming a very popular hog. His appearance is a good deal like the Poland China and Chester White. He has big hams, broad back, wide spring of rib, is thick through the shoulders, short in the neck, short in the head, heavy in the jole and red in color. His ears are expected to come out about two-thirds of the way and drop over. So far as prolificacy is concerned they are superior to any of the other breeds. An average taken shows a litter of 9.20 pigs. They are good rustlers and will feed out comparatively quick.

Another breed that has recently become known within the borders of the United States and may in time become popular, is the Mulefoot hog. They are built a good deal on the fat hog type, although they are a little bit more rangy. It is claimed they are rustlers and good breeders and free from cholera, but this latter claim does not hold good.

In crossing breeds you get two different blood lines. You can't tell just exactly what you will get. For a breeding proposition it is never right to cross. You have got to go one way or the other.

So far as the market is concerned a male that is 7-8 or 15-16 pure bred is just as valuable in topping the market as if you had a pure male."

THAT KIDNAPING CASE

DID A. BRUCE BIELASKI kidnap himself? Did Manuel Barcena kidnap himself? This is what the Mexican government wants to know. This is the charge against the former chief of the bureau of investigation of the American department of justice and the lawyer for the Tiajuana race track gamblers.

These two were given scare head plays by all American newspapers last week. They had been kidnaped by Mexican bandits. They were held for ransom. It was a crime against American life and liberty and the security of American property interests in Mexico. This is what the newspaper writers said who are unfriendly to Mexico and its president and who are opposed to the recognition of the Obregon government by the Harding administration.

Bielaski escaped from the bandits. He eluded his blood-thirsty kidnapers. He did not have to pay ransom. His feet were sore when he reached the camp of his friends. Barcena had a rough time of it, too, until he made his escape from the bandit liar and walked the burning sands until his shoes were blistered on account of his rapid get-away.

Now Bielaski and Barcena are under arrest. They are charged with having kidnaped themselves. They must come clean. They must tell why they did it or else Mexican justice may get them. Wherever there is petroleum there is hell. Bielaski is an oil man. Barcena is the attorney for the race track gamblers. Now why should Bielaski and Barcena flock together? Why should they be kidnaped together? Why should they escape the payment of ransom together?

THE FAIR AND WEST TEXAS

THE West Texas chamber of commerce is boosting and working for the Texas-Oklahoma fair. That's fine. It shows the spirit that has made West Texas famous.

The Texas-Oklahoma fair is for all West Texas and that part of Oklahoma in this territory. The West Texas chamber of commerce officials know that a fair is one of the best mediums of developing a country and that the Texas-Oklahoma fair is going to accomplish many things for this territory. So the West Texas chamber of commerce is not doing a favor to Wichita Falls alone, it is doing a favor to all that territory where counties and towns are being urged to send exhibits here.

THE PRINCE ON EARTH

IN FRONT of the City National Bank of Commerce one afternoon this week two men were standing and talking about some third man. They referred to him as Bob. In the course of the discussion one of them said: "Bob hasn't got much money now, though he has made a whole lot of it. But there is one thing about Bob, he always does what he believes to be right."

He always does what he believes to be right!

That is the greatest compliment that can be paid any living man. Anything that does not count in the eyes of the Almighty doesn't count for anything at all, and though "Bob" may be a poor man, he is a prince of the earth when it comes to those things that count. A man may have his millions, he may have every luxury the world can give and he may have the admiration of his fellow man, but it is all as nothing unless it can be said of him that he does what he believes to be right.

A man may be poor as a church mouse, he may be pitied by his fellow man and may be counted as nothing so far as this world is concerned but if he does always what he believes to be right, he is one of the greatest men who ever lived and his reward will be sure. He may never receive earthly reward but in the life to come, the only life that is real, he will be among those present with the angels.

AND DE VALERA LIVES

MICHAEL COLLINS and the Irish free state soldiers have dispersed the red radicals and restored order in their country. De Valera, who is responsible for the uprising for the overthrow of the free state government, is said to have made good his escape.

He was going to die in the last ditch fighting for Irish independence and an Irish republic. He may have been in the thickest of the fighting, but he let his misguided followers do the dying. Brave man and sane men are in the saddle now.

DR. CRANE EDITORIAL

THE PARALYSIS OF FAITH

FAITH may be either a tonic or a paralysis. The gist of faith is perhaps the conviction of success.

When a man believes in a deity, a heaven, or guardian angels, he believes that they are his deity, his heaven and his guardian angels. When he believes in hell it is always for the other fellow.

A sense of confidence that one is not going to fail is a very definite assistance to clear the brain, buck up courage, and empower the arm. Just as fear of failure loosens the sinews and dissolves the spirit.

As to faith, however, viewing it entirely from its practical side and its influence upon human conduct, it is of much more importance how one believes than what one believes.

Even faith in a rabbit's foot is cheering to the believer.

It is relatively only a small part of the world that concerns itself about the actuality of the objects of its belief. The great mass of the world is concerned mostly in faith qua faith.

You are not going to shake the average man from his belief by proving to him that the thing he believes in is not true. You will accomplish your purpose much better by showing him that his faith will not work, or that few others share it.

He probably never arrived at his conviction by a process of reasoning, and no process of reasoning is going to wrench him from it.

Faith, as a conviction of being a favorite of the gods, is probably stronger in heathendom than in Christendom. The confidence a Hottentot has in his mud idol is more adamant than the religious conviction of any college professor.

The reason of this is that the Hottentot's faith is a pleasant paralysis. The more entirely it relieves him from all thought and worry the more he clings to it.

Some years ago, when a French scientific society was investigating the hygenic conditions of Asia Minor, the Pacha of Damascus dealt as follows with the inquiries put to him:

Q. What is the death rate per thousand in Damascus?

A. It is the will of Allah that all must die. Some die old, some die young.

Q. What is the annual number of births?

A. We do not know. Allah alone can say.

At the close of the examination, which continued in this tone, the Pacha took occasion to exhort his questioners as follows:

"And now, my Lamb of the West," he said, "cease your questioning, which can do no good either to you or to anyone else. Man should not meddle with matters which concern Allah alone."

This is a good illustration of the narcotic sort of faith which keeps men children. The kind of faith that makes for progress, growth, and vigor needs constant effort and is a stimulus to struggle, and not a comfortable opiate.

SOMETHING BIG FOR WICHITA

HAROLD HANES is marking down the name of Wichita Falls as a pioneer in the history of commercial aviation.

Hanes, himself an experienced flier, already has one ship here which now is handling his commercial business and also has employed an aviator to devote all of his time to this business.

But Hanes isn't satisfied. He's going in the thing on a bigger scale. He contemplates the purchase of a couple more machines and probably will add to his fleet later on. Business men will find this new Wichita Falls institution unrivalled as a time-saver. Time is worth money. Let's send the aerial concern off with a wish of success.

KEEP THE TRADE TRIPS GOING

"IT'S a good thing—this personal element—you'll come back to us again, and when you do, you'll come back to your customers."

This is what a merchant at Bowie told the representative of the Record News on the recent trade trip.

He declared that the "personal touch" as he described it was what he termed "the thing."

This Bowie business man is right. The personal touch always wins. That's why the Wichita Falls trade trips should be continued year after year. It's one sure way to build here a more important retail center.

Rippling Rhymes

BARDS AND FARMERS

To the bard, serenely singing, I remarked, "You're oafing there, while the husbandmen are bringing corn and turnips to the fair. Oh, the farmers raise their squashes, build the barn and crib and byre, while the poet only sloshes tinborn music from his lyre. And the farmers feed the masses, and they make the world go round, but the poet, as he passes, merely deals in empty sound." Said the bard, "The busy granger, as he toils from day to day, as he fills the yawning manger with the home grown brands of hay, quotes the message of the singers, quotes the poets' cheer-up dope, thinking that the bards are dingers, giving courage, pep and hope. 'Let us then be up and doing,' quotes the farmer, as he plows; 'still achieving, still pursuing,' feeding hogs and milking cows. And the poets' words inspire him as he labors all day long, and I fear you'd only tire him if you robbed him of his song. Oh, we work in divers manners, as the bright days come and go; some are born to carry banners, some are born to shovel snow; and no man should view his neighbors with a sneering sort of mirth, saying, 'Useless are your labors—why not tumble off the earth?'"

LOOKS AS IF THE RAILROADS MUST HAVE SEEN A GREAT LIGHT OR SOMETHING—

TERRELL ATTACKS RESERVE BANK HEAD

Special to the Record News.

AUSTIN, July 15.—A demand that W. P. G. Harding, federal reserve head, be not re-appointed, was made upon President Harding by the Texas state commissioner of agriculture, George B. Terrell, in a letter to the president, charging testimony shown the board, under Governor Harding's administration, has characterized the board's action as "warfare" against legitimate creations of the states." The federal reserve board, he charged, had contracted credit to the amount of $1,400,000,000 and caused crop values to slump.

"Confidence in the board cannot now be restored," he said. "Until Governor Harding is removed and a man having deep sympathy for the agricultural and general business interests of the country is appointed to his place."

The letter to the president was addressed as an official communication "as the chosen representative of the farmers of the greatest agricultural state of the union."

TAKE STEPS TO STOP FOOD POISONING

Special to the Record News.

AUSTIN, July 16.—Food poisoning resulted from the use of canned goods in several recent instances, has resulted in the preparation by Dr. H. H. Golez, chemist in charge of the food and drug department of the state health department, of a list of instructions to dealers and consumers of canned goods. He made a request that all state and city food inspectors follow the situation closely.

Suggestions to consumers are: In buying tinned foods: Inspect every can of tinned food. Both ends of cans should be flat or curve inward. Seams should be tight and clean. Foods in glass jars, covers should be firm and free from sign of leak; contents should appear free from mold, disintegration, cloudiness and discoloration.

When cans are opened, an inward suction is highly desirable; no outrush of gas or spurt of liquid should occur; odor should be characteristic of the product; no trace of objectionable odor should be present; no disintegration, mold or abnormal appearance should be observed. Liquid enough to cover the food is desirable in most products. Inside of cans should be clean and bright, or well lacquered, not extensively blackened or markedly corroded.

"If you know it is spoiled, destroy it," Dr. Colax urges.

"If, after examining it, you can't tell, take no chances—destroy it," he advises.

Suggestions to food dealers: Inspect every container when cases are opened.

No "swell," "springer," "flipper" or "leaker" should be accepted or sold by dealer. In glass, examine cover and seam and inspect contents for signs of spoilage. Do not tolerate any spoiled product on your shelves.

If a lot shows many swells, reject the lot. Do not take responbility of sorting a bad lot of cans and selling those apparently good.

A dealer is entitled to demand a well-exhausted pack, every can showing a good vacuum, with clean and bright metal. Customers are entitled to the same protection. Even a trace of a smell should prevent the sale of a can to any consumer. No reprocessed canned goods should be tolerated.

DOGHILL PARAGRAFS

By GEORGE BINGHAM

Yam Sims says one thing he likes about frogs is that they sing just certain times of the year, instead of trying to keep it up the year round, like Miss Hostetter Hocks does.

Atlas Peck says when a man does not know exactly every time what he is going to do, what room has he got to accuse anybody else of being uncertain.

Tobe Moseley says it doesn't rain as much on the unjust as it does on the just, because the unjust usually has somebody's umbrella.

The Once Over

DUMM AND DUMMER LOOK OVER THE WORLD NEWS.

"Tell me, Dummer, do you pay much attention to world news?" asked Senator Dumm as he leaned up against a fire-hydrant and looked over a newspaper he had caught as a traveling salesman threw it out of a taxicab.

"Oh, yes indeed," replied Representative Dummer. "I pay little attention to anything else in the papers. A man has to if he wants to be well informed."

"Well, doesn't it impress you what a mess conditions are in generally? Look at the condition of Russia—it's sicker than Lenin! Look at the situation in Germany—assassinations, riots, plots and books by the ex-kaiser! Look at China, with so many sides fighting one another that they're playing doubles! Look at Mexico! Look at the United States with its strikes, coal mine murders, restaurant huckleberry pie, and similar outrages! Ain't it awful?"

"Mlle. Lenglen certainly must be a wonder," observed Dummer, scanning his own extra. "I thought last year she was a false alarm and no faster with her strokes than any average fly-swatter, but the way she trimmed Molla Mallory satisfies me she's the queen of 'em all."

"Here's Germany coming out and asking the allies for a moratorium," went on Senator Dumm. "Says she can't meet the war bills without it. Here are the Russians trying to hornswoggle the allies into kissing and making up. Here's Lloyd George saying Europe is facing bankruptcy and chaos for the lack of immediate peace and understanding. Here's America in the gravest——"

"Of course, Mrs. Mallory is off her form," remarked Dummer. "Her volleying was very poor and she seemed slow getting up to the net."

"Look at the outlook for this winter in the United States," urged Dumm. "A coal famine is almost certain. The miners haven't worked in months. The chances are they won't go back for the president, and whether they do or not there's sure to be the worst shortage of fuel the country has ever seen."

"Jock Hutchison made a score of 67 at the Skokie Country Club!" exclaimed Dummer, reading a headline. "That's three under par for the course. He's a bear on the links."

"The railroad strike isn't over by a long shot," complained Dumm. "No matter what happens the railroad workers will nurse a grouch at the reduction in wages and there'll be lots of trouble ahead. It says here that troops are out in several states anticipating violence."

"Walter Hagen is back from England with the golf championship, I see," said Dummer. "Here's a very interesting interview with him."

"Things are going from bad to worse in Ireland," said Dumm, turning over a page. "The trouble with the Irish is that they are never too proud to fight. I see there was another bloody battle in Dublin last night. The outlook there is very gloomy indeed."

"Yea, bo!" cried Dummer. "Look! The Bambino socked out another homer today. Atta boy, Babe! The Yanks will win the pennant again without doubt. You can't stop 'em."

"England is confronted with a very alarming menace in India," said Dumm. "There is sure to be further trouble there. Never has the British Empire been threatened from so many directions. Suppose the Irish and Indian disturbances should continue and both peoples should wage a relentless war against Great Britain. What would happen?"

"Leonard ought to win around the tenth round," replied Dummer.

The Mucker

By EDGAR RICE BURROUGHS

"I'm not married, Billy," she cried. "I couldn't marry Mr. Mallory. I tried to make myself believe I could; but at last I knew that I did not love him and never could, and I wouldn't marry a man I didn't love.

"I never dreamed that it was you here, Billy," she went on. "I came to ask you about Mr. Bridge. I wanted to know if he escaped, or if—if—oh, this awful country! They think no more of human life here than a butcher thinks of the life of the animal he dresses."

A sudden light illumined Billy's mind. Why had it not occurred to him before? This was Bridge's Penelope! The woman he loved was loved by his best friend. And she had sent a messenger to him, to Billy, to save her lover. She had come here to the office tonight to question a stranger—a man she thought an outlaw and a robber—because she could not rest without word from the man she loved. Billy stiffened. He was hurt to the bottom of his heart; but he did not blame Bridge—it was fate. Nor did he blame Barbara because she loved Bridge. Bridge was more her kind anyway. He was a college guy, Billy was only a mucker.

"Bridge got away all right," he said. "And say, he didn't have nothin' to do with pullin' off that safe crackin'. I done it myself. He didn't know I was in town an' I didn't know he was there. He's the squarest guy in the world, Bridge is. He followed me that night an' took a shot at me, thinkin' I was the robber all right but not knowin' I was me. He got my horse, an' when he found it was me, he made me take your pony an' make my get-away, fer he knew Villa's men would croak me sure if they caught me. You can't blame him fer that, can you? Him an' I were good pals—he couldn't do nothin' else. It was him that made me bring your pony back to you. It's in the corral now, I reckon. I was a-bringin' it back when they got me. Now you better go. This ain't no place fer you, an' I ain't had no sleep fer so long I'm most dead." His tones were cool. He appeared bored by her company though as a matter of fact his heart was breaking with love for her—love that he believed unrequited—and he yearned to tear loose his bonds and crush her in his arms.

It was Barbara's turn now to be hurt. She drew herself up.

"I am sorry that I have disturbed your rest," she said, and walked away, her head in the air; but all the way back to the ranchhouse she kept repeating over and over to herself: "Tomorrow they will shoot him! Tomorrow they will shoot him! Tomorrow they will shoot him!"

CHAPTER XIV.
'Twixt Love and Duty.

For an hour Barbara Harding paced the veranda of the ranchhouse, pride and love battling for the ascendency within her breast. She could not let him die, that she knew; but how might she save him?

The strains of music and the laughter from the bunkhouse had ceased. The ranch slept. Over the brow of the low bluff upon the opposite side of the river a little party of silent horsemen filed downward to the ford. At the bluff's foot a barbed-wire fence marked the eastern boundary of the ranch's enclosed fields. The foremost horseman dismounted and cut the strands of wire, carrying them to one side from the path of the feet of the horses which now passed through the opening he had made.

Down into the river they rode following the ford even in the darkness with an assurance which indicated long familiarity. Then through a fringe of willows out across a meadow toward the ranch building the riders made their way. The manner of their approach, their utter silence, the hour, all contributed toward the sinister.

Upon the veranda of the ranchhouse, Barbara Harding came to a sudden halt. Her entire manner indicated final decision, and determination. A moment she stood in thought and then ran quickly down the steps and in the direction of the office. Here she found Eddie dozing at his post. She did not disturb him. A glance through the window satisfied her that he was alone with the prisoner. From the office building Barbara passed on to the corral. A few horses stood within the enclosure, their heads drooping dejectedly. As she entered they raised their muzzles and sniffed suspiciously, ears a-cock, and as the girl approached closer to them they moved wearily away, snorting, and passed around her to the opposite side of the corral. As they moved by her she scrutinized them and her heart dropped, for Brazos was not among them. He must have been turned out into the pasture.

She passed over to the bars that closed the opening from the corral into the pasture and wormed her way between two of them. A hackamore with a piece of halter rope attached to it hung across the upper bar. Taking it down she moved off across the pasture in the direction the saddle horses most often took when liberated from the corral.

If they had not crossed the river she felt that she might find and catch Brazos, for lumps of sugar and bits of bread had inspired in his equine soul a wondrous attachment for his temporary mistress.

Down the beaten trail the animals had made to the river the girl hurried, her eyes penetrating the darkness ahead and to either hand for the looming bulks that would be the horses she sought, and among which she might hope to discover the gentle little Brazos.

The nearer she came to the river the lower dropped her spirits, for as yet no sign of the animals was to be seen. To have attempted to place a hackamore upon any of the wild creatures in the corral would have been the height of foolishness—only a well-sped riata in the hands of a strong man could have captured one of these.

Closer and closer to the fringe of willows along the river she came, until, at their very edge, there broke upon her already taunt nerves the hideous and uncanny scream of a wildcat. The girl stopped short in her tracks. She felt the chill of fear creep through her skin, and a twitching at the roots of her hair evidence to her the extremity of her terror. Should she turn back? The horses might be between her and the river, but judgment told her that they had crossed. Should she brave the nervous fright of a passage through that dark, forbidding labyrinth of gloom when she knew that she should not find the horses within reach beyond?

She turned to retrace her steps. She must find another way! But was there another way? And "Tomorrow they will shoot him!" She shuddered, bit her lower lip in an effort to command her courage and then, whistling, plunged into the thicket.

Again the cat screamed—close by—but the girl never hesitated in her advance, and a few moments later she broke through the willows a dozen paces from the river bank. Her eyes searched through the night; but no horses were to be seen.

The trail cut by the hoofs of many animals ran deep and straight down into the swirling water. Upon the opposite side Brazos must be feeding or resting, just beyond reach.

Barbara cupped her palms into her palms in the bitterness of her disappointment. She followed down to the very edge of the water. It was black and forbidding. Even in the daytime she would not have been confident of following the ford—by night it would be madness to attempt it.

She choked down a sob. Her shoulders drooped. Her head bent forward. She was the picture of disappointment and despair.

"What can I do?" she moaned. "Tomorrow they will shoot him!"

The thought seemed to electrify her.

"They shall not shoot him!" she cried aloud. "They shall not shoot him while I live to prevent it!"

Again her head was up and her shoulders squared. Tying the hackamore about her waist, she took a single deep breath of reassurance and stepped out into the river. For a dozen paces she found no difficulty in following the ford. It was broad and straight; but toward the center of the river, as she felt her way along a step at a time, she came to a place where directly before her the ledge upon which she crossed shelved off into deep water. She turned upward, trying to locate the direction of the new turn; but here too there was no footing. Down river she felt solid rock beneath her feet. Ah! this was the way, and boldly she stepped out, the water already above her knees. Two, three steps she took, and with each one her confidence and hope arose, and then the fourth step—and there was no footing. She felt herself lunging into the stream, and tried to draw back and regain the ledge; but the force of the current was too much for her, and, so suddenly it seemed that she had thrown herself, she was in the channel swimming for her life.

The trend of the current there was back in the direction of the bank she had but just quitted, yet so strong was her determination to succeed for Billy Byrne's sake that she turned her face toward the opposite shore and fought to reach the seemingly impossible goal which love had set for her. Again and again she was swept under by the force of the current. Again and again she rose and battled, not for her own life; but for the life of the man she once had loathed and whom she later had come to love. Inch by inch she won toward the shore of her desire, and inch by inch of her progress she felt her strength failing. Could she win? Ah! if she were but a man, and with the thought came another. Thank God that I am a woman with a woman's love which gives strength to drive me into the clutches of death for his sake!

Her heart thundered in tumultuous protest against the strain of her gasping lungs. Her limbs felt cold and numb; but she could not give up even though she was now convinced that she had thrown her life away recklessly. They would find her body, but no one would ever guess what had driven her to her death. Not even he would know that it was for his sake. And then she felt the tugging of the channel current suddenly lessen, an eddy carried her gently in shore, her feet touched the sand and gravel of the bottom.

Gasping for breath, staggering, stumbling, she reeled on a few paces and then slipped down clutching at the river's bank. Here the water was shallow, and here she lay until her strength returned. Then she urged herself up and onward, climbed to the top of the bank with success at last within reach.

To find the horses now required but a few minutes' search. They stood huddled in a black mass close to the barbedwire fence at the extremity of the pasture. As she approached them they commenced to separate slowly, edging away while they faced her in curiosity. Softly she called "Brazos! Come Brazos!" until a split of the moving mass detached itself and came toward her, nickering.

"Good Brazos!" she cooed. "That's a good pony," and walked forward to meet him.

The animal let her reach up and stroke his forehead, while he nuzzled about her for the expected tidbit. Gently she worked the hackamore over his nose and above his ears and when it was safely in place she breathed a deep sigh of relief and throwing her arms about his neck pressed her cheek to his.

"You dear old Brazos," she whispered.

The horse stood quietly while the girl wriggled herself to his back and then at a word and a touch from her heels moved off at a walk in the direction of the ford. The crossing this time was one infinite ease, for Barbara let the rope lie loose and Brazos take his own way.

Mokan Stages Strong Return and Stops Panthers Again

BECK LEADS SPUDDERS TO FRONT IN BOMBARDMENT OF ANOTHER TRIO OF HURLERS

Monster Crowd Sees Cats Go Down for Fourth Straight; Many Spectacular Plays Turned In as Both Teams Fight Hard; Hill Chases Sears in Sixth; Moore Gets Homer

By "SPIKE" COOPER

Jake Atz and the Panthers suffered further humiliation at the hands of Walter Salm's flying Spudders yesterday afternoon, when another trio of Cat gunners were hammered vociferously for an 8-5 win, the fourth straight game of the series garnered by the Spudderville charges.

And again to Steve Mokan, rookie hurler of the local corps, goes abundant credit and his second win in as many days. Although hurling half a game Saturday with the pose of a veteran, the youngster was called to the front again yesterday to take up the burden of stopping the Panthers. His call came earlier in the game than on the previous day, and his Sunday duty was over a stretch of seven full innings, during which time he allowed five base knocks, bringing his total allotment to seven for 11 2-3 rounds of Panther taming.

Fred Beck was the slugging star of the day. Unmercifully he hammered the offerings of Gus Johns and Tiny Goodbred for a perfect average. Three stinging singles and a double against the boards in deep center came from the faithful flail of the Spudder "Caruso." Beck's continued thumping was responsible for six of the Spudder runs. It seemed impossible to get him out, and he was unfailing in the pinches. Twice did he drive safely with runners on second and third, scoring four men, and he was forced across himself on two occasions.

Johns Driven Out.

Lefty Johns, now leading hurler of the visiting aggregation, was sent to the slaughter first. For three innings he held the hitters fairly well but inability to locate the central station but two runners aboard. The first inning was his undoing, when two passes, an infield hit and Beck's first clout started the Spudders off in front. Johns weakened in the fourth and retired after a shower of hits, willing his unpleasant duty to Tiny Goodbred, comedian of the Atz company.

Goodbred Little Better.

Goodbred also yielded up four runs, and allowed an even half dozen safeties in 3 2-3 innings. Tiny had one bad inning, the fifth, when four hits, a walk and a sacrifice fly by White resulted three more sets of cleat marks on the rubber which Possum Moore stood guard. Goodbred was yanked in the eighth in favor of a pinch hitter. Pate took over the job and retired the side in the eighth. It was the third time he had been sent to the middle since the Panthers came to town.

The new stand was filled to capacity, more than 4,500 fans will satisfaction being present. A delegation of supporters from the Trinity river junction pulled in during the day, hoping to turn the jinx which seemed to keep their cohorts down, but failed miserably in their purpose. It was the largest Sunday crowd of the season. Practically every seat was occupied, and only the front boxes which glared in the afternoon sun near first base, went begging.

Hill Chases Sears.

Fans got a thrill in the sixth inning when after a short argument, Hunter Hill ordered Ziggy Sears from the field. Sears continued his repartee after reaching the dug-out, and after much admonition by Jake Atz, again broke forth with a flood of speech at Hill who was behind first base. The umps promptly headed for the said Panther and only interference by players possibly averted blows. Police rushed to the field and Sears soon departed.

There was much fast play during the game, both Panthers and Spudders flashing brilliant bits of fielding. White, Tavener, Weiss, Bischoff, Summa and Tanner sharing honors.

Possum Moore became riled in the second inning when Sweeney called a couple of strikes after three balls had been passed, and when Keene came through with the next one, Possum drove it high and far over the left field fence, scoring Tavener who had reached first when he forced Ewoldt at second.

Due to the effective work of Mokan, many Panthers were left stranded aboard, 11 all told, while the Spudders hit when hits meant runs, and left only four possible markers on the paths.

Spud Outfield Looks Good

The Spudder outfielders shone forth in abundance. Spectacular catches by Bescher, Weiss and Summa helped get out of several places when hits would have been dangerous. Both Bescher and Summa retired hitters on fouls in the sixth round. Weiss and Bescher each took a pair of drives by Kraft that were well hit. The new centerfielder had a total of six killings for the day, bringing his total for the present series to 20.

Summa is throwing himself out of the Texas league. No more accurate nor effective throwing from the outfield has ever been seen in the loop. The manner in which he throws runners out at third on hit and run plays is becoming a habit with the flashing outfielder and fans are beginning to expect the play instead of marvel at it.

Tavener was everywhere and all at the same time it seemed. Four beautiful stops and throws turned runners back at first and stopped several threatening runs.

Al White brought the crowd to its feet in the fourth when Sears drove a hard grounder toward right field. By a spurt of speed, White raced far over and pulled a grand one-handed stab and threw the runner out at first.

Bischoff made a beautiful throw to second in the second round. Tavener attempted to sacrifice along from first. The ball rolled out into the diamond and Bischoff recovered in time to catch the runner.

Adams and Tanner each grabbed off seeming hits on two different occasions. Tanner's recovery of a drive by Ewoldt which Mokan had knocked down was one of the fastest plays of the day.

IOWA PARK IS WINNER OVER PETROLIA

IOWA PARK, Texas, July 16.—In a game featured by good pitching the Iowa Park nine defeated the Petrolia Lone Stars 9-1 at Iowa Park Sunday. Petrolia was forced to play the first two innings with a substitute hurler as Wilson was delayed by an accident on the road. Towles took the place and pitched good ball.

The scores tallied by the Iowa Park team were largely due to fumbles at the hands of the Lone Star sackers. The oilers broke in the seventh inning and six tallies were counted by their opponents in the last two stanzas.

In the eighth a pretty play was made by Smith, playing first for Iowa Park. In fielding a ball hit far to the right of the bag he fell but turning he threw the ball from the ground to Warren, covering the sack.

Score by innings:

GIANTS' SLUMP LOSES THEM LEAD

Cardinals Are Only Half Game Behind

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 16.—Dropping three and a half games of their lead during the past week in the west and holding the top by a half game, as a result of today's second straight defeat at the hands of St. Louis, the New York Giants now face a struggle with the Cardinals in the national league race closely matching the neck and neck battle between the St. Louis Browns and New York Yankees in the American circuit.

The Browns increased their margin to a game and a half today by blanking Washington while the White Sox took their second straight from the Yankees.

Still within striking distance of the pace setters are two other western contenders in each league, Chicago and Detroit in the American and Chicago and Cincinnati in the National. The national league race has lost its runaway aspect in the sudden drive of the Cardinals and the unexpected slump by the Giants. Except for a double setback at the hands of the Phillies, Rickey's men swept all before them with the aid of some brilliant pitching, including a two-hit game by Haines and a one-hit performance by Bill Doak.

Giants Fall in Pinches

Failure to hit in the pinches and faltering pitching proved costly to the Giants, who dropped their last four games after an auspicious start in the west.

Fortified by good pitching and hitting, Cincinnati won six out of seven games and supplanted Brooklyn in fourth place, the Dodgers continuing to meet disaster in the west with a record of nine defeats in ten games at the hands of three rivals.

The Chicago Cubs split even with the Giants after winning two from Boston, but were unable to shake the jinx Philadelphia has held over them, dropping their second straight to the Quakers today.

In the American league, none of the first division teams showed a winning percentage for the week and as a result second division clubs, notably Cleveland, tightened the race. Weak hitting and some poor fielding cost the Browns and Yankees an opportunity to make decisive gains, the New Yorkers showing to better advantage by taking two out of three from the leaders, beating Urban Shocker both times.

Fifteen Minutes of Radio a Day

By EDWARD N. DAVIS

(Formerly Technical Electrical Expert for United States Government)

Lesson No. 22

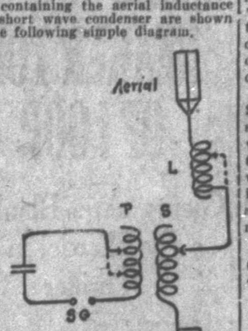

1—The aerial tuning inductance.
2—The short wave condenser.

The antenna system of the radio transmitter has a natural wave length. By means of the aerial tuning, inductance a wave may be radiated which is longer than the natural wave length. This inductance usually consists of a number of turns of bare copper tubing or flat copper strip, with an adjustable sliding contact by which a number of turns or fraction of a turn may be included in the antenna circuit to furnish the required amount of inductance.

The short wave condenser is used to reduce the radiated wave length lower than the natural wave length of the antenna circuit. Both the aerial inductance and the short wave condenser are connected in a series with the secondary of the oscillation transformer and the condenser is furnished with a short circuiting switch. The short wave condenser may consist of three or four Leyden jars or plates connected in series with a resultant capacity of 0.0005 microfarad. By this means the high voltage of the antenna circuit is divided between the plates which prevents their being ruptured.

The service regulations affixed to the "International Radio Telegraph Convention" state in part "Two wave lengths, one of 200 meters and the other of 300 meters, are authorized for general public service." Under article 3 is stated "Every station on shipboard shall be equipped in such manner as to be able to use wave lengths of 600 meters and 300 meters."

The closed circuit and the open circuit containing the aerial inductance and short wave condenser are shown in the following simple diagram.

Method of Changing Wave Length.

If radio transmitter is adjusted to radiate a 600 meter wave and it is desired to radiate a wave of 300 meters, it is necessary to reduce the inductance of the closed circuit by adjusting the contact on the primary winding (P) of the oscillation transformer as shown by dotted lines, so that less turns are included in circuit. In the event that this would reduce the number of turns to low to allow a proper transfer to energy to the secondary winding (S), the capacity of thee ondenser (C) in the closed circuit may be reduced. In the open circuit the variable contact on the aerial inductance (L) is changed so as to include less turns as shown by dotted lines and consequently lines less inductance in the open circuit. The short circuiting switch (E) is opened so as to include the short wave condenser (C-1) in series with the aerial circuit. Connecting the condenser in series reduces the total capacity of the antenna circuit and consequently reduces the wave length.

For amateur stations the United States governmental regulations specify, for transmission purposes, a wave length not to exceed 200 meters. This can usually be obtained without the aid of an aerial tuning inductance by adjusting the secondary turns of the oscillation transformer.

IS CULBERSON TO BE ELECTED?

Mark Sullivan Is For Him

Mark Sullivan, one of the most famous of Washington correspondents and a man who has as keen an eye for national and state politics probably as any man in the country, has written in the World's Work magazine for July an article on the senatorial race in Texas. The article is in reality a splendid tribute to Senator Culberson.

Mr. Sullivan writes:

"The Texas primary, on July 22, involves the renomination and reelection of a senator who, in several odd respects, has a more extraordinary record than any other man in the body. Charles A. Culberson, the senior senator from Texas, is now serving his twenty-third year, and by virtue of that length of service is one of the four veterans of the senate. (The senator who has had the longest continuous service is Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts, who on March 4th of next year, will have served thirty years. The distinction of the second longest service is shared between two men; Francis E. Warren of Wyoming and Knute Nelson of Minnesota have each been in the senate continuously since March 4th, 1905. Charles A. Culberson of Texas is the senator who stands third in the list.

Never Missed a Day.

"But it is not length of service that makes Senator Culberson and his present candidacy for re-election picturesque unique. The striking thing that can be said about Senator Culberson is that he has made fewer speeches—certainly in recent years—than any other sitting senator. With this goes the fact that Senator Culberson has probably actually sat in the senate chamber for a larger number of hours, has actually answered a larger number of roll calls, and has cast his vote one way or the other on more measures, than any other sitting senator. To verify this last assertion about Senator Culberson's actual presence in the senate chamber, and about his participation in roll calls, would involve a good deal of minute research. But in the absence of such a research I am satisfied the assertion is true. There is probably no other senator who can say, as Senator Culberson said in a recent appeal to his constituents: 'The sessions of the congress during my present term cover 1217 days and I have not missed a day.'

Silent But Active.

"The explanation lies to a large extent in the state of Senator Culberson's health. He suffers an affliction of some of the muscles, which old fashioned persons used to call palsy. It makes speech-making difficult but does not in the least interfere with the senator's daily attendance upon the sessions in the senate; in fact, this very freedom from pre-occupation with the making and delivering of set speeches adds, in the judgment of many, to Senator Culberson's usefulness. He sits in his senate seat, he hears all that is said and he votes on every roll call. Occasionally, when you feel 'fed up' with the loquacity of some others, you find yourself disposed to look on Senator Culberson as an ideal senator.

"In voting Senator Culberson is determined by the dictates and by strict adherence to the doctrines of the democratic party. During President Wilson's administration, in nearly all cases, Senator Culberson cast his vote in accordance with the president's policies.

Texas a "Big" State.

"What might otherwise be the violence of the campaign for the succession to Senator Culberson is modified by sentimental considerations based on his length of service and on his devotion to duty under his physical handicap. Texas is a large state and it does things in a large way. It is a sign of the bigness of spirit characteristic of Texas that it should give Senator Culberson's impaired health the value of an asset."

Mr. Sullivan discusses the democratic party in Texas and the bigness of Texas in detail then leads up to the ku klux klan issue in this state. He metnions a speech of Robert L. Henry in which he came out in favor of the ku klux klan and asserted that Senator Culberson said the klan must be destroyed. Afte. quoting extracts from the Henry speech Mr. Sullivan writes:

"Ex-Congressman Henry, as these extracts from his speech show, is for the klan. Senator Culberson has come out against it in a public letter which reads: 'I have no affiliation, directly or indirectly with this organization (the ku klux klan), and I am unqualifiedly opposed to its operations. If not curbed, it will usurp the functions of the senate and be destructive of government itself. It will, indeed, overthrow our Anglo-Saxon civilization in its relation to government. Steps should be taken, therefore, at once, to arrest its progress and finally destroy it.'

Other Issues Obscured.

"Of the other candidates for the Texas senatorship, one is, as Mr. Henry's speech suggests, not in favor of the ku klux klan 'unless it is reformed.' Some of the other issues involved in this Texas senatorship race would, if they were not relatively obscured by the ku klux klan situation, seem to be of more legitimate political importance. One of the candidates is running on a platform favoring local state control of intra-state railroad rates; another puts forward the economic interests of the farmers; another is putting emphasis on opposition to the federal reserve banking system, and a fourth is running largely on his record as a former state superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league.

"Texas has a system of double primaries. In the first primaries in July there will be seven candidates. Thereafter, on August 26th, there will come what is called locally the 'run-off' primary. In this second primary there will appear only the names of the two who have the highest votes in the July primary. The result of the second primary substantially determines who will be the next senator from Texas. There is, of course, in Texas, as in every other state, an election in November between the democratic and the republican candidates. But no republican candidate is likely to be made senator from Texas."

PARNELL ANNOUNCES CAMPAIGN PLATFORM

J. D. Parnell, candidate for the legislature from Wichita Falls, in a statement issued Saturday night declared "Every law should be enforced or repealed. Many of them the latter."

Mr. Parnell represented Wichita county in the thirty-sixth legislature and declares that his record is open for investigation. He declares that he succeeded in defeating bills designed to injure the oil industry, that he introduced and succeeded in having passed the bill establishing two new courts for this county, helped with other important legislation such as getting money to complete the North Texas Insane asylum and supported the bill appropriating money for the rural schools.

Mr. Parnell said he announced this time without consulting any of his friends and that no one asked him to make the race so that if elected he will go as a representative of no individual or set of individuals and will try and serve all the people as best he can.

He declared for reduction of taxes and strict economy in government expenditures, upbuilding of rural and state schools to a standard of efficiency, encouragement of irrigation and reclamation, encouragement to mineral and oil production, better protection for fire and life insurance policy-holders, rights of both labor and capital should be maintained. Mr. Parnell said that if elected he will be at the service of all the people of every class at all times.

GREEN CORN WORTH MORE

Farmer Profits by Roasting Ears

Corn yielding 55 bushels of roasting ears to the acre, and which will net the landowner around $200 per acre on his crop—that is what irrigation will do as demonstrated on the Will Jeter farm, just this side of Lake Wichita, J. A. Kemp pointed out Saturday. Mr. Jeter is the tenant on a small part of the Kemp and Kell holdings in the Lake Wichita irrigation project, the small project constructed many years ago to prove what the big project now building would do in this territory.

Mr. Jeter believes that he would have a yield of at least 75 bushels per acre if he allowed the corn to mature, he said, but he finds it more profitable to handle as roasting ears.

The value of the irrigation is shown by the fate of neighbor's corn which was not under irrigation.

The corn is not the only successful crop on the Jeter place, although conspicuous through its success as contrasted with unirrigated corn in this district. Canteloupes and other garden products were grown this year with equal success.

Missing Harness Recovered Here

Half an hour after the local police had received word that harness belonging in Henrietta had been brought to Wichit Falls, Officer Tom Shook of the plain clothes department arrested two suspects here with the stolen harness.

Sheriff G. P. Jones escorted the two men back to Henrietta Sunday morning, where they must answer charges of theft of goods val d at over $50.

Shook found the pair in the negro section of Wichita Falls south of the baseball park. They had in their possession, he said, two and a half pair of lines, three bridles and two new horse collars, all of which has been claimed by Albert Fuller of Henrietta.

VISITORS LOSE BOTH THEIR HAIR AND CAR

While two young men from Burkburnett were getting a hair-cut Saturday night, their Ford roadster was stolen from its parking place in front of the Rob Waggoner building, and has not been seen since.

The men informed the police late Saturday night that the vehicle was taken from Scott street between the hours of 8 and 9 o'clock.

BICYCLE STOLEN

Little Travis Gerder of 818 Eighth street has to walk a while now.

Thieves stole his bicycle Saturday night while he slept, and he hasn't found it yet.

Sunday, he grew anxious over not having located his "bike" so he called in detectives of the police department to help him look for it.

GIPSON GAINS SUPPORT HERE

Prominent Citizens Endorse Him

Announcing their support for E. H. Gipson, a petition bearing the names of 39 prominent Wichitans which is being heralded to all parts of Wichita county appears in other columns of the Record News today, indorsing "Gipson as the conservative candidate for state legislature, Place No. 1."

Mr. Gipson, during the past two weeks, has been leading an intensive campaign throughout Wichita county, visiting every nook and corner of the county in his interest, while his friends and supporters, who signed the petition urging him to make the race for legislature, have been quite as active as he has.

During the past week, together with other county candidates, some of which are running for state offices, Gipson has all but abandoned his activities at the city hall to take up the field of oratory, and has delivered several addresses throughout this county in the interest of his candidacy.

In speaking of his race, Judge Townsend, whose name appears on the advertisement indorsing him, declared that "Gipson's energy is entered heart and soul in this campaign; he has fostered a clean race, and is drawing to the end with a clean slate. The conservative program which he has fostered to the voters of this county has met with approval on all sides, and there is an attitude prevalent on every hand that speaks of his certain election."

The advertisement indorsing Mr. Gipson calls attention to his conservative attitude, and brands him as "a conservative candidate."

TENTH STREET ABDICATES FOR CAT

Social engagements on Tenth street in the vicinity of the 2300 block are said to have been brought to a hasty termination Friday night. Not only did guests depart but hosts alike are said to have taken flight from many homes.

The trouble was an unwelcome guest. While the guest remained in the streets his presence was known to everybody in the neighborhood and incidentally his presence was unbearable.

The unwelcome guest was a measly little skunk, or pole cat or cologne pussy, which ever it might be called. Somebody brave enough to face the music, and incidentally the attack of stink bombs, killed the innocent little creature and left its body on the street much to the chagrin—that's an awful grin—of passing automobilists and pedestrians.

How About Having It on Breaths, Judge?

Even the possession of whisky constitutes vagrancy.

That is the law in Texas, and it is being enforced in Wichita Falls to the letter, according to Judge W. H. Caldwell.

Judge Caldwell sat at his desk in the corporate court when the city officers brought in a man charged with having whisky in his possession. The defendant looked at the court and pleaded guilty. It cost him $75.

Officers told the court later that they had found a half gallon of corn whisky in the possession of the defendant, at his place of business in the 600 block on Ohio avenue.

"We had been watching the place for some time," officers said Sunday morning. "And we found whisky Sunday in the rear of his place, where he had hid it beneath some boards."

Officers Shook, Miller and Bob Smart participated in the arrest.

COTTON PRICES CLOSE WEAKER

10 Points Lower for Week

By Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, July 16.—Unfavorable foreign news caused moderate declines in the cotton market in the early part of this last week after which complaints of hot winds in portions of Texas resulted in strong recoveries and small net advances. Toward the end of the week private reports told of a considerable volume of ginning of new cotton being done in the earliest portions of Texas and the market fell off again, the close being 10 points under to 2 points over the close of the preceding week. At the highest, the list showed net gains of 15 to 38 points while at the lowest it stood at net losses of 57 to 73 points, the range of prices being 82 to 103 points. October sold off to 21.28, came back to 22.31 and closed at 21.92. In the spot department middling closed net unchanged at 22.50 cents a pound which price compared with 11.88 on the close of this week last year.

Labor conditions in this country were against prices for a while and was also the weakness in foreign exchange, but later in the week such features were balanced in the reduction of bank of England rate to 7 per cent. During the greater part of the week it was altogether a weather market and at the time when Texas was sending out complaints of hot winds trading became very heavy with shorts covering in a large way. This sort of buying helped to carry the market to its highest level. After the middle of the week temperatures were somewhat lower in the western belt and reports of much cotton being ginned attracted much attention, especially as it was claimed the ginning would increase in the near future.

AN EXPLANATION

To citizens who think for themselves:

My opponent was endorsed in Sunday papers by "Tar and Feather Party" advocate of anarchy, "Rev. H. D. Knickerbocker. I have repeatedly advocated the written law. Nuf sed.

By Frank Kell, who wants the sales tax and similar aids to further the work of County Commissioners' Court, in making debtors and consumers pay the creditors and noteholders' taxes. I am in favor of special privelege to none. Again nuf sed. Others signers (not all) are lieutenants of these captains.

I'm running subject to primary law, not nominated by any "rump convention" or secret agents of an Invisible Empire. On that basis I solicit and will appreciate your vote for REPRESENTATIVE, PLACE NO. 1.

Sincerely yours,

F. G. SWANSON.

Letters From People

BE BRIEF AND COURTEOUS

(Names of Writers Must Accompany All Letters, Although It Is Not Always Necessary That They Be Printed With Their Articles)

ON DIVINE HEALING.

Editor Record News:

As a reader of your paper, I was much interested in the communications on divine healing which appeared in your issue of July 1. One writer affirmed that the gospel, at the present time, provides no healing for the body; while the other attributed all present instances of bodily healing to satanic power.

Sin affects man's physical as well as his spiritual being; and the gospel in order to fully meet man's needs, must go as far with the work of restoring man to perfection as sin has gone in accomplishing his destruction. Accordingly, we find Christ healing the bodies as well as the souls of men. He not only preached the gospel, but went about "healing all manner of sickness and all manner of diseases" of men.

When the 12 disciples were sent out, Christ gave them "power over unclean spirits, to cast them out, and to heal all manner of sickness and all manner of disease." And the 70 likewise were told to "heal the sick" and they reported that "even the devils are subject to us through thy name." In the gospel commission, moreover, Christ instructed his disciples to "cast out devils" and "lay hands on the sick, and they shall recover." Christ not only healed the sick and cast out devils through Peter and Paul, but even raised the dead to life.

Not only is healing by faith and the laying on of hands enjoined in the gospel commission, from which every minister of the gospel derives his authority, but Christ has set "in the church, first apostles, secondarily prophets, thirdly teachers, after that miracles, then gifts of healings." 1 Cor. 12:28. These have been placed into the church by Christ, and there is no more reason to believe that miracles and healing should be eliminated from this text than there is that apostles, prophets and teachers should be. There is no record that any of these gifts were ever taken out of the church. In fact, we are told that this "all power" which Christ has promised to place at the command of his church is to remain "always, even unto the end of the world."

The gifts of the Spirit, which include the gift of healing, were placed into the church, "for the perfecting of the saints, for the work of the ministry, for the edifying of the body of Christ;" and they are to remain there "till we all come to the unity of the faith, and of the knowledge of the son of God unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fullness of Christ." Eph. 4:12-13. It must be evident to all that the church of Christ has not yet attained to this condition of perfection, and hence these gifts of the spirit have not been removed from the church.

Not every manifestation of supernatural power, however, is from God. We must try the spirits, and see whether they be of God. I John 4:1. Satan will also perform great miracles. 2 Thess. 2:8-12. And these miracles will be wrought for the purpose of counterfeiting the work of God and deceiving the people. Matt. 24:11-5; Rev. 13:13-14. These deceptions, moreover, will manifest themselves in the form of partial or apparent bodily healing and casting out of devils. But these supposed benefactors of humanity are, in reality, workers of iniquity, and will be repudiated by the Master in the last great day. Matt. 7:21-23. But the fact that these false, deceptive manifestations of supernatural power will take place, is no reason why the genuine gifts of the spirit should be denied. For these, as has been shown above, will continue until the end of time.

GEORGE W. SPIES.

An Open Letter to the Honorable Mayor and City Fathers

Esteemed Officials: By many infallible proofs it is distinctly your duty to abate any public nuisance whether of a physical or moral nature. To your everlasting credit let it be said that you are quick to detect and remove the cause of most menaces to public health and safety of life and limb.

Undue regard for certain squeamish notions and alleged current opinions may sometimes tend to make you indifferent to an otherwise manifest duty of a highly important nature. Among the outstanding apparent derelictions which may be chargeable to you is condoning rather than condemning the utter disregard for moral decency in our splendid city that faith built.

Female modesty is an eternally essential asset in mundane matters. Cast away that social life preserver and in the stress and storm of activities here below we shall perish. You "brush from the grape its soft blue, or shake from the rose its tremulous dew," and you mar forever a divinely created worth which no human gloss may restore. Our womanhood today is strangely and criminally careless about the crown jewel of her own reputation for personal purity. If stalwart and sane men shall not come to the rescue of female chastity they become basely untrue to the holiest trust committed to knights of unsullied honor.

With these introductory statements your correspondent wishes to say that the indecent exposure of the female form so flagrantly common in bathing suits is a creator of social crime so manifest that only a self-confessed addict will dare deny it. Through the eye-gate comes the most potent incentive to sexual crime. The Christ, with cincerest honesty, in his sermon on the mount (Matt. 5:28) declares: "Whosoever looketh on a woman to lust after her hath committed adultry with her already in his heart," and such are under positive condemnation, therefore, by the moral law. Beyond a doubt the wretchedly seductive bathing suit worn by women in public bathing places is "an inquity to be punished by the judge," as the Bible (Job 31:27, 28) asserts, on the score of being an accomplice in crime.

In the discharge of official duty it were dishonorable to aver that public sentiment will not sustain you. City fathers are appointed to create as well as sustain public sentiment for righteous living in their bailiwick. The common welfare demands protection against all iniquitous customs and you are authorized to enact and enforce necessary ordinances to that end.

With sincere good will, I am,

YOUR FELLOW CITIZEN.

Accuses Friend— Had Money Himself

It was just another instance where a man was positive his friend had robbed him.

A guest in the Star hotel called the police department early Sunday morning and Jack Miller answered the call. He found two young men in a room arguing over money; one was accusing the other of having stolen $30 in the night, while the two were supposedly sleeping together.

Detective Miller smiled as he thought over a similar occurrence recently in which a visitor here had been positive that he had lost $300. So the detective began his search.

He didn't only search the man accused—he searched the accuser also ,and when he had gone through everything the accuser wore, he found the bank roll in that particular person's socks.

Tears filled the eyes of the accuser as he apologized to his friend, who, acting a manly part, forgave and let the incident pass.

Purse Is Stolen At Picture Show

Two women are suspected of the theft of a purse from Mrs. W. P. Bankston Saturday night. The purse which contained $85 in currency and a $5 gold pin, was stolen from Mrs. Bankston while she sat in the Olympic theater enjoying a movie.

She is of the opinion now that it was a costly entertainment.

The women, one of whom is described as having "gawdy painted face and lips" are fully depicted in the minds of the officers who are investigating.

Charles Austin Bates Said---

"Don't get beyond the age." People generally read advertisements more than they did a few years ago. The reason is to be found in the advertisements themselves. Advertisers are more careful than they used to be. They make the advertisements more readable. Some of them even become in a way a department of the paper, and people look for them every day with as much zest and pleasure as they turn to any other feature. This is true of many department stores all over the country. In many cities there is just one man who appreciates the value of such interest.

He tells something interesting in his space every day.

The newspaper goes right into its reader's house—goes in and sits down with him. It is on the table when he eats and in his hands while he is smoking after the meal. It reaches him when he is in an approachable condition.

That's the time to tell him about your business—clearly, plainly, convincingly—as one man talks to another.
