Governor Pondering Third Choice After Bullock Rejected By Senate

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Rebuffed for the second time by a stubborn Senate, Gov. Preston Smith sifted suggestions today for his third choice as chairman of the State Insurance Board.

One name was prominent: former U.S. Sen. Ralph Yarborough.

Smith's No. 2 selection, Secretary of State Bob Bullock, failed by a single vote to win the Senate's approval Tuesday, and Bullock blamed Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes and the insurance lobby. Acting behind locked doors after voting to keep the public out, the Senate rejected Bullock, 19-11, the same margin by which Larry Teaver lost out July 7.

The vote climaxed a week of apparent excruciating pressure by Smith and Barnes in the tug-of-war over Bullock, 43, a blunt-spoken critic of Barnes.

"My defeat, coupled with the defeat of Teaver, is proof that no person can be confirmed at this time who is not closely connected with the insurance industry or so weak-willed that he wouldn't say 'mud' if he had a mouthful of it," Bullock said.

Until Barnes is "back in Brownwood," the lieutenant governor's home town, "we are not going to see much in the way of reforming the insurance industry," Bullock added.

Smith, who appointed Bullock as board chairman on the opening day of the special session, Sept. 18, said, "I am disturbed" that the Senate "will apparently not permit a person who is committed to protecting the insurance consumer to serve" on the board.

"I think the Senate acted wisely," Barnes said, "and I hope Gov. Smith will appoint a good man who will represent the consumers' views."

The Texas AFL-CIO renewed its suggestion of Yarborough, 69, who lost his Senate seat in 1970 and was beaten this year in a comeback attempt. Sen. A. R. Schwartz of Galveston said he thought "Yarborough could be confined unequivocally."

Sens. Chet Brooks of Pasadena and Charles Wilson of Lufkin, both of whom voted for Bullock, said the insurance lobby had worked against his appointment. Brooks described pressure from Barnes and the lobby as "one and the same." Barnes denied he had tried to pressure senators but broke a silence of nearly four years in speaking out publicly for the first time against an appointment by Smith.

Sen. Ronald Bridges of Corpus Christi, who voted against Bullock, said he had "never seen so much pressure exerted over a confirmation such as this." He claimed Smith called and asked him last Thursday to swap his vote for Bullock "in return for opening the call of the session for the purpose of purchasing the site and facilities for the upper-level college in Corpus Christi."

Bridges said "the governor has flat-out lied to me on several occasions, and I had no reason to believe that if I voted for Bullock's confirmation that he would keep his word and open the call."

Sen. O. H. Harris of Dallas, who also voted against Bullock, said after Teaver was rejected, Teaver threatened to "get even" and that Bullock "is from the same stripe.... He's unqualified."

The labor group and the Barnes spokesman said Schwartz abstained from voting.

The rejection of Bullock leaves vacant the unexpired term on the three-member board.

ON CAR INSURANCE

Competitive Rates Facing Opposition

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — If Texas lawmakers vote to allow competitive car insurance rates, only the best—or the luckiest—drivers will benefit, a spokesman for insurance agents says.

Testimony before a joint hearing of the House Insurance Committee and the Senate Economic Development on competitive rate bills continues today with Dr. Arthur Williams, dean of the University of Minnesota business school.

Percy Gentile of Houston, chairman of the Texas Association of Insurance Agents' Legislative committee, made the first direct attack on competitive rates at Tuesday's hearings.

He said competitive rating would reduce premiums for a "few highly selected classes" but would subject "the masses" to a rating situation "much, much worse than that which presently exists."

"In other words, the insurance industry will tell you, 'If you don't have losses, go to our office. If you do have losses, go to hell,'" Gentile said.

Gentile said one reason for opposing rate competition is that Gov. Preston Smith advocates it and called the special legislative session mainly to pass a competitive rating law.

"Let's take a look at the collar on this bill and see whose old dog this is. Well, would you believe, it's the honorable Gov. Preston Smith. That's enough in itself to bring resounding questions of motive from a statewide constituency who only recently rebelled at everything he seems to stand for," Gentile said.

Sen. Mike McKool of Dallas, Senate sponsor of Smith's legislation, bristled at Gentile's remark that competitive rating

"is brought to you by the same people who gave you price-fixing in the 1940s and cancellation and non-renewals in the 1970s."

This was an apparent reference to the insurance companies, and McKool has been a frequent and not always polite critic of the insurance industry.

"I never was for cancellation or non-renewals. What kind of logic does this make?" McKool said.

"Some agents are a little bit leery of having to get out of their seats and having to go to work. Don't you think that would have a little bit to do with your opposition?" asked McKool.

"No, sir. It (competitive rates) would put dollars in my pocket," Gentile replied.

Earlier he said competitive rates meant a "very real probability of increased rates and premiums with corresponding increases in their commissions."

Gentile praised the current Texas system under which the State Insurance Board sets rates for auto and building insurance and all companies must charge the same rates. Only Texas has such a system, and Gentile said no other state would ever adopt it because of the insurance industry's power.

Competitive rating received endorsement Tuesday from the Texas AFL-CIO's United Labor Legislative Committee, which endorsed McKool's bill, provided it is corrected to remove a clause repealing some existing law that protects consumers.

"We believe competition will provide better service and better rates," said AFL-CIO president Roy Evans. He called the present system "socialism for big business."

Indochina War Still Hot Political Issue

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sen. George McGovern has vowed to force the moral issue of war upon the American conscience, and if he wins the White House, to end "this murderous bombing" within five minutes of his inauguration.

He said he did not expect the normal campaign applause for his account of casualties and of "the most incredible and murderous bombardment in all the history of mankind."

The Democratic presidential nominee invoked the war issue from a platform President Nixon is to occupy tonight.

It was a solemn windup to a campaign Tuesday that had featured the whooping politics of Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, bidding for Democratic solidarity at the side of the man who beat him for the presidential nomination.

"I'm going to do everything within my power between now and Nov. 7 to force the American people to examine the serious moral questions that are confronting us because of this barbaric behavior that has been going on in Indochina," McGovern told about 1,000 people at a $250-a-plate fund-raising dinner Tuesday night.

In the same Century Plaza Hotel ballroom tonight, Nixon is to address a $1,000-a-ticket Republican campaign dinner.

McGovern drew applause with his pledges to end the war and gain freedom for American prisoners. But when one tentative round of applause rippled through the ballroom after he spoke of civilian casualties, McGovern said:

"I know these things are hard to clap about and I don't expect applause on descriptions of that kind."

After a 14-hour day of vote-hunting in California, the state he said is his top-priority target in the presidential campaign, McGovern spent the night flying back to Washington, ending an 11-state campaign swing.

His final speech was in stark contrast to the exuberance of his rallies with Humphrey at his side.

Humphrey told a labor rally: "What this campaign needs is a good dose of believing, of emotion, of enthusiasm, of spirit, of optimism. We're never going to win anything if we go around with a hang-dog look."

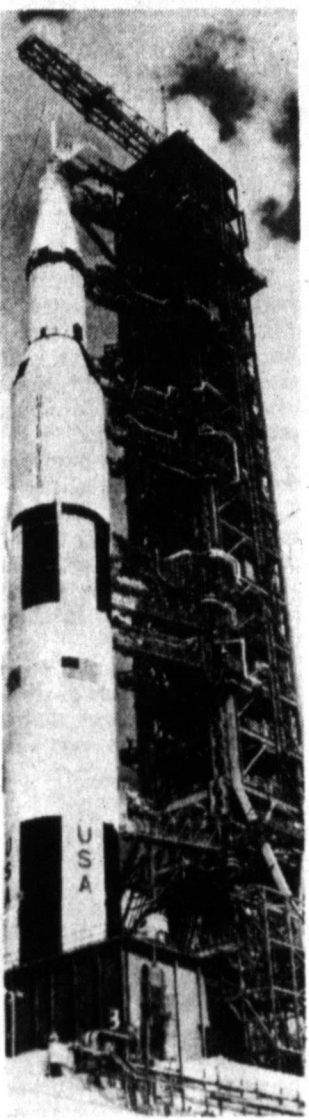

McGovern planned a break from the campaign until Saturday, except for one appearance Thursday before a group of Democratic mayors in Washington. He is due to campaign Saturday in Baltimore, Atlantic City and New York.

El Paso Man Addresses Meet Of Cancer Unit

George Lewis of El Paso, area division director, was featured speaker at the meeting this morning of the Gray County unit of the American Cancer Society. He spoke to the group on the April fund-raising campaign.

Mrs. Nina Spoonemore, campaign chairman, and John Altis, District 2 field representative, stressed the importance of the Crusade Workshop, to be held Oct. 5, in Amarillo.

Mrs. Jo Ann Linnville reported the service closet at Baker school is well-supplied with items used for use by cancer patients.

Water Board Slates Meet For Election

WHITE DEER — A called meeting of the board of directors of the Panhandle Water Conservation District Number Three has been set for 8 p.m. Thursday at the district office here.

Felix Ryals, general manager of the district, said the purpose of the meeting was to order an election to fill the vacancy created by the death of Stewart Purvines Sept. 23.

Purvines was the director from precinct one of the district. This roughly is comprised of western portion of Carson County and the eastern portion of Potter County. For those in doubt as to the precinct they are in, maps will be posted at the district office here and at the courthouses in Panhandle and Amarillo, according to Ryals.

For those districts operating on the precinct system, the law requires an election be ordered within eight days following the occurrence of a vacancy and to be conducted within 40 days after the vacancy.

U.S. House Unit Approves Bill To Compensate Grain Farmers

WASHINGTON — The House Agriculture Committee approved a bill by Rep. Graham Purcell Tuesday to compensate wheat farmers who sold their grain before prices rose sharply after news was released of the Russian wheat sale.

The bill was approved by a 23-10 vote on a nearly straight party division. Only three Republicans, including Purcell's opponent, Rep. Bob Price, joined 20 Democrats in voting for the proposal.

The measure faces an uncertain future on the House floor as Congress tries to meet the mid-October adjournment date.

A similar bill was defeated in the Senate Agriculture Committee last week, with the administration opposing it.

Purcell's bill would provide a payment to early sellers, mostly from Texas and Oklahoma where the wheat is harvested early, to equal the difference between the high July-November average wheat price and the lower price at which most farmers sold.

The Wichita Falls, Tex., congressman estimated his plan would cost about $68 million. In most cases the bill, if approved, would allow payment of at least 50 cents a bushel to the early sellers.

Price, of Pampa, Tex., had earlier spoken in opposition to the Purcell bill and had substituted his own proposal. After it was defeated by the

Trio Likely To Arrive In New York Thursday

MOSCOW (AP) — Three liberated American airmen reached Moscow on their way home today from North Vietnam and found themselves in the center of a struggle between American Embassy officials and U.S. peace advocates who escorted the pilots.

Lt. Mark Gartley and Lt. Norris Charles of the Navy and Maj. Edward Elias of the Air Force arrived on a flight from Peking.

U.S. Charge D'Affaires Adolph Dubs attempted to approach the pilots in the customs area of the airport but was stopped by the escorting delegation of antiwar activists.

The activists were attempting to get the men back to the United States before they come under U.S. military jurisdiction again.

Under military law, the men are required to present themselves to the first U.S. official they encounter.

Prof. Richard Falk, a tall, gaunt man with a beard, barred Dubs' way as he approached the men. Falk told the American diplomat that his group has promised to escort the pilots home safely, and a meeting with embassy officials was not on.

Gartley, Charles and Elias huddled in a corner behind Cora Weiss as Dubs and other embassy officials tried to approach them. There was a crunch caused by correspondents attempting to overhear the exchange.

"Stand back! Stand back," Cora Weiss shouted. "Give us some room."

Among the American officials at the airport were Brig. Gen. Samuel V. Wilson, the military attaché and Air Force Maj. Ronald Walker, the embassy doctor.

North Vietnamese officials in Moscow also went to the airport for the arrival of the pilots. Ton Quang Co, a North Vietnamese diplomat, said he was on hand "to observe."

When asked where the airmen would stay in Moscow before leaving for Copenhagen on Thursday, Co replied, "Our Soviet comrades will give them a place to stay."

They are expected in New York Thursday night.

A few moments later the pilots, their escort and the American diplomats retreated into a glassed-in office off the customs concourse to confer.

Earlier today the embassy said there would be men on hand to offer the freed prisoners "any help they might need."

Lt. Gartley told newsmen, "I am tired but in good health. We want to get to New York as soon as possible and spend a few days with our relatives."

The delegation first learned that U.S. Embassy representatives would be meeting them in Moscow when the Aeroflot flight they had joined earlier in Irkutsk made an unscheduled stopover in Novosibirsk.

An Intourist guide told Miss Weiss, who is co-chairman of the delegation accompanying the prisoners, that the Moscow office had phoned to say American officials would be meeting the plane and to advise the delegation of it.

Cora Weiss, co-chairman of the accompanying delegation of members of the U.S. Committee for Liaison with Families of Prisoners detained in Vietnam, disclosed the latest Hanoi charge. She said the delegation was told that packages sent prisoners have contained spying devices rigged into such items as cans of milk, candy bars and toothpaste tubes.

The Pentagon called the charge ridiculous. A spokesman, Maj. Gen. Daniel James, said, "I know of no such actions taking place and I think it is just another piece of the propaganda web that Hanoi is spinning to obscure the real facts concerning her intransigent position in refusing to negotiate meaningfully for our prisoners of war."

The spying device charge was first raised with the U.S. peace group on Sept. 17 by Hoang Tung, editor of the official Communist Party newspaper, Nhan Dan. He said his government was "extremely upset by electronic devices hidden in packages regularly sent prisoners."

Mrs. Weiss' group described items such as:

—A giant toothpaste tube which when squeezed was found to contain what Hanoi described as a radio receiving apparatus.

—A candy bar containing paper for writing invisible messages.

—A bar of soap with secret writing equipment inside.

—Peanut shells, condensed milk and instant coffee containers which Hanoi said contained messages.

Fire Prevention Week Plan Discussed At C-C Unit Meet

Members of the Fire Prevention Committee of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce met this morning in the Chamber office to discuss plans for the observance of Fire Prevention Week during Oct. 8-14.

Fire Chief Finace Dyer presented a report on fire prevention efforts in Pampa during the past year.

He also noted there will be a fire demonstration at 7 p.m. today on West Kentucky St. Members of the Rangers Insurance Co. from Houston will light fires and then put them out.

Operating out of the fire college at Texas A&M University, the group will also conduct class work at the Central Fire Station after the demonstration. The demonstration is being conducted without cost to the community.

Pampa has one of the lowest fire rates, a fire insurance rating, in the state, Chief Dyer reported.

Based upon personnel, water supply, fire equipment, building codes and so on, Pampa has a 15 per cent key rate, the second lowest in the state in the under 90,000 population cities.

Last year Pampa had a $17,400 insured loss, the best in many years, Dyer said.

He contributed this in part to better inspections. The fire department conducted 457 inspections during the year and had 1680 man-hours of training. After hiring new personnel, the fire department is now at the authorized level.

Committee chairmen were appointed to coordinate activities for the Fire Prevention Week and to give advance publicity to it.

Harvey Waters and Warren Fatheree will be in charge of the finance committee to provide funds for the observance.

Publicity committee chairman is Kirk Duncan, with Larry Hollis as assistant.

Henry Gruben, Harry Gordon and Delbert Wolfe will coordinate the service club announcements. J.C. Randall will coordinate the films on fire prevention for use in schools.

The fire department will distribute posters and other handout materials, conduct fire drills and other demonstrations during the week and arrange for an open house at the fire stations.

During the week, sirens will be sounded at noon to remind the public of the observance.

U.S. Envoy Escapes Attempt On His Life

PHNOM PENH (AP) — A powerful terrorist bomb set ablaze the armored limousine carrying the ranking U.S. diplomat in Cambodia to work this morning, but the envoy escaped unhurt, authorities reported.

Police at first reported two motorcycle policemen escorting the limousine and a civilian were killed in the blast and four Cambodians wounded. But U.S. Embassy sources said later only one policeman was killed and that the other was critically injured. They said doctors offered little hope of saving him.

Thomas O. Enders, 40, the U.S. charge d'affaires, emerged unscathed from the battered wreckage of the car. He was on his way to the American Embassy, where he is in charge while Ambassador Emory C. Swank is on home leave in the United States.

Swank escaped an assassination attempt Sept. 7, 1971. A riderless bicycle bearing a 13-pound plastic bomb concealed among loaves of French bread was sent careening into his limousine. The bomb failed to explode and the bicycle fell harmlessly to the street.

"We feel very deeply for the policemen," Enders said in a brief interview in his office. Otherwise totally unfruffled, the diplomat spoke as if escaping assassination attempts were part of his daily routine.

"Not a scratch," he told one caller.

Enders pointed out that it was one year and one day since the last terrorist attack against U.S. Embassy personnel in Phnom Penh. Two Americans were killed and 13 others wounded when a softball game was bombed on Sept. 26 last year.

Police sources said they believe the bomb was placed aboard a pedicab and that it was detonated by an unknown terrorist on a motorcycle. No further details were available.

These sources said no arrests had been made.

Police immediately set up roadblocks to check civilians close to the site, near the independence monument on October 9th Boulevard.

The blast was so powerful it blew out windows of neighboring houses and stripped leaves and several branches of trees bordering the boulevard.

Sen. Grover Says He Gets Indirect Help From Connally

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—State Sen. Henry Grover says former Gov. John Connally and two minor party candidates are indirectly helping him in his race as Republican nominee for governor.

"Even though Gov. Connally is conducting a campaign just to support the President for reelection, I think all of his efforts will help me tremendously," Grover said of the former treasury secretary, who needs the Democrats for Nixon organization.

He said he feels many of Connally's efforts "will splash over onto me."

Grover spoke Tuesday before the local chapter of Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalists' society. Appearing with him were two of the three other gubernatorial candidates—Ramsey Muniz of the Raza Unida Party and Debby Leonard of the Socialist Workers Party.

Asked if he felt those two candidates actually would help him in the race against Democrat Dolph Briscoe, Grover replied:

"If they take away Democratic votes, as I think they likely will, yes they'll help my campaign, no question about it."

Muniz was quick to tell the group he is in the race to get himself elected as governor—not to elect Grover or any of the other gubernatorial candidates.

"For some reason or other, everybody thinks we're going to elect somebody else," the Raza Unida candidate said. "But for the first time ever, we're going to elect ourselves."

Muniz criticized Briscoe for not attending Tuesday's session. "Where is Briscoe?" he asked. "Sometimes I think he's associated with Howard Hughes—you can't find either one of them."

Local Sigma Delta Chi spokesmen said Briscoe was invited but that his staff said he had other commitments.

Conflicting Views Reported On Louisiana Alligator Hunt

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—There are radically conflicting views on the outcome of Louisiana's first legal alligator hunt in 10 years.

State officials deem it a success. Conservationists see it as a new threat to the species. It was disaster for the 1,347 saurians whose hides are now curing in salt.

The experimental season, held over 278,168 acres of coastal swamp in the southwestern corner of Louisiana, was limited to 13 days and 64 specially licensed trappers. It ended Sept. 17.

The Louisiana Wildlife and Fisheries Commission says it is still evaluating the hunt and has not decided whether another will be held next year.

"We weren't just out to kill a bunch of alligators," said Ted Joenen, a commission research biologist.

But Don Schuler, vice president of the New Orleans Audubon Society, said the experiment had put in jeopardy the whole national policy of protecting alligators from extinction.

"The lid has been lifted on poaching just when that kind of thing was being brought under control," Schuler said.

The big problem with alligators: How do you "harvest" them without having the big reptiles hunted to near-extinction? Alligator hide makes handsome shoes, purses, belts, and thus sells for up to $11 per foot—a big temptation to the greedy.

Protected against legal trappers as an endangered species, alligators staged a comeback in the web of bays and canals in four million acres of swampland in southern Louisiana.

Even with alligator hunting illegal, poachers poled their boats into vast and unpopulated marshes to hunt gators at night.

After the legal hunt, the hides were auctioned off at $74.614, an average of $8.02 per foot, although prime hides brought more than $11 a foot.

"Our tagging system will work," Joenen said. "Poachers might take a few hides but how will they sell them? No furrier will risk his license by buying untaxed hides."

Schuler scoffed. In the first place, he said, he wouldn't trust the state agency to enforce the system.

Vandals Hit Automobile, Residence

It was "car-and-house" time for vandals during the past 24 hours in Pampa with damage scored to one of each.

Rental property on E. Foster St. had been entered and syrup poured on the kitchen floor. A mattress was found to be damaged by fire but had apparently been extinguished before it was totally consumed.

Investigating officers, noting it appeared to be the handiwork of children, surmised it might have been the work of previous tenants who had several. No children live in the immediate vicinity.

A late model car parked near the Hughes Building was damaged when, apparently, a pellet was fired through the rear window. The glass was shattered but the hole was apparent. Investigating officers could find no other evidence.

'Newsman's Newsman' Dies At 63 In Austin

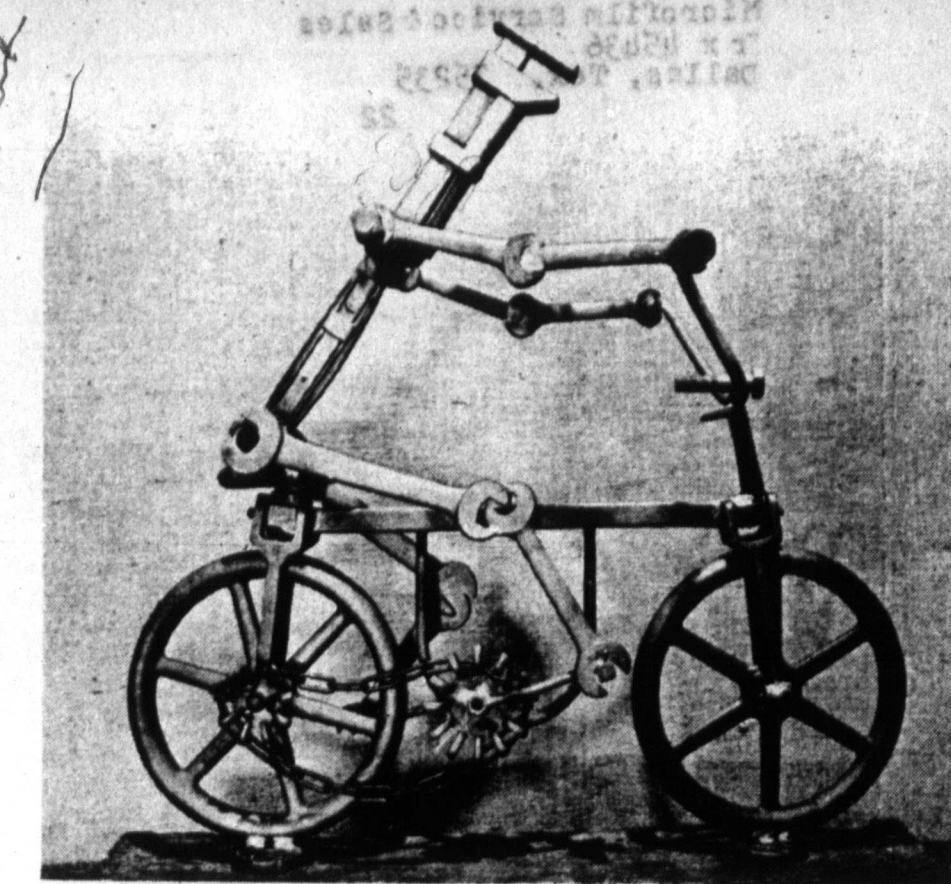

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—Wick Fowler, a big newsman's newsman with a big laugh, died today. He was 63.

One of the so-called iron men of journalism, he was stricken with amyotrophic lateral sclerosis, a lethal muscular disease which claimed the life of baseball's "Iron Man" Lou Gehrig.

His death came at 12:22 a.m. in St. David's Hospital.

As a newsman, his search for stories took him around the world. He saw Adolf Hitler take over Germany in 1933, and he returned to Europe and North Africa during World War II to follow the famed Texas 36th Division through Italy into France.

He went through the Battle of the Bulge. He almost stayed long enough in Europe for the

U.S. Senate Opens Floor Debate On Welfare Reform Legislation

WASHINGTON (AP)—Working against a deadline, the Senate opens floor debate today on the hotly disputed welfare-reform legislation, a gigantic bill sweetened with Social Security increases.

The fate of the $14.6-billion legislation is highly uncertain because prolonged debate over its controversial provisions would thwart congressmen's hopes for adjournment by Oct. 1.

But the bill also contains many Social Security and Medicare benefits which its sponsors consider highly popular in election year.

An effort will be made to rescue these benefit provisions in some fashion if the full bill cannot be passed.

The 889-page bill has been nearly two years in the making. It passed the House in June a year ago and has been stuck since that time in the Senate Finance Committee.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield has called the bill to the floor despite the lateness in the session to fulfill his pledge that President Nixon's top-priority proposals would be given consideration.

As the bill was submitted by the President and passed by the House, it contained his proposals to change the system of providing public assistance for families with dependent children.

The Senate Finance Committee, however, rejected the Nixon plan and substituted its own Welfare system which would impose much tougher work requirements on parents in the welfare families.

This dispute is expected to dominate the Senate debate.

Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., floor manager for the bill, predicted that all the provisions except those on the welfare families could pass in a few days.

The Social Security provisions in the bill would give special benefits to widows, the disabled, men, persons who work beyond 65 and other groups.

14-Year-Old Pampa Boy Hurt In Car-Pedestrian Accident

Luke Stiggins, 14, 1009 Terry Rd., was taken to Highland General Hospital for examination and treatment following a car-pedestrian accident about 9 a.m. today.

He was found to be suffering a light concussion from a blow on the back of his head as well as numerous lacerations particularly to the back of his legs.

He told the investigating officer he had been walking east on 23 St. in the grass but decided to walk in the street because of the wetness of the grass.

He apparently stepped into the path of a car driven by Mrs.

Carol Carpenter, 2118 N. Sumner, who could not see him in the rising sun.

Officials noted this was an area of extreme hazard each day because youngsters walk in the street and in no particular pattern. There is an alternate path that could be safely used except, perhaps, in the most severe weather. There is a dirt road paralleling the street that is not used for vehicular traffic.

Authorities stressed the need for parents to urge caution on their children old enough and to supervise those who might not understand the full extent of the danger.

Southern Presbyterians Hold Meeting In Austin

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—Southern Presbyterians from Arkansas, Louisiana, Oklahoma and Texas meet today to organize a new regional governing body of the Presbyterian Church, U.S.

Ministers and ruling elders from about 770 churches of the Presbyterian Church U.S., the predominantly southern branch, in the four states will vote on the reorganization proposals.

The Presbyterians also will vote on redrawing the boundaries of the 12 presbyteries, a governing body below the synod level, into 11 larger presbyteries.

The synod office said in a statement earlier that opposition to the new presbyteries is expected "from members who fear a loss of conservative voting strength in their presbytery area, which could result in a vote to form a union presbytery with the United Presbyterian Church U.S.A."

Food Store Plans Charges

Police were called to Franks Food Store, 638 S. Cuyler yesterday where a woman had been stopped as she left the store after allegedly placing three items in her purse.

The catsup, soap and hot sauce totalled less than one dollar.

An employee of the store told officers they would file charges since it was store policy to do so in every instance of theft regardless of the size of the loss.

The woman was released pending charges of the issuance of a warrant.

READY FOR SERVICE --When tire trouble hits, Don Brunson of Montgomery Ward is ready to go out to fix the situation. With the motto, "Have Truck, Will Travel," Brunson can be reached by phoning 669-7256 or 665-1663, Unit 135, for 24-hours a day. Another benefit of the tire service center at Montgomery Ward.

Montgomery Ward Provides 24-Hour Service For Tires

Tire trouble does not always happen at a convenient time. And in industry and agriculture, time can be important.

When trouble strikes, Montgomery Ward is ready to help.

Ward's offers 24-hour tire service, day or night, wet or dry weather. Whether it's a truck or a tractor, Ward's will send someone out to fix the flat tire.

For emergency service, call Don Brunson at 669-7256 or his answering service at 665-1663, Unit 135, for two-way radio communication.

Brunson has a truck and will travel anytime, anywhere to provide tire servicing.

The tire service department at Montgomery Ward carries a complete line of pickup and camper tractor and truck tires.

For a money saving deal, the man to see is Chris Walsh. He can be called at 669-7401 or 669-2966.

In addition to truck and tractor tires for the business people, Ward's also offers a complete line of passenger tires for everyone.

Whether it be the purchase of new tires or recaps or that

Foundation Setting It Straight

NEW YORK (AP) -- Noting that federal tax reform has become a leading economic issue, and that debate tends to be more emotional than rational, the Tax Foundation has set out to set the record straight.

The nonprofit institution, which claims also to be non-partisan and interested solely in the goal of more efficient and economical government, supplies consistent opinions.

The first proposition tackled is the claim that wealthy people are not paying income taxes.

Yes, the foundation states, "A small number of persons with high adjusted gross income had no net taxable income and thus owed no tax in 1970." It lists 112 individuals with incomes over $200,000 who paid no tax in 1970.

But, "The outstanding fact brought out in the tabulation... with respect to the $200,000 and over income group, is that 15,211 out of 15,323 returns in this group did pay taxes."

On the other hand, "At the other end of the income scale, nontaxability is considerably more common," the foundation reminds us. "For example, in 1970 there were some 51 million returns filed with adjusted gross income under $10,000. Of these, 15 million, or nearly 30 per cent, paid no federal income tax."

Proposition No. 2: "Some big corporations do not pay taxes and profits are high."

"Political observers have noted that almost 40 per cent of all corporations pay no federal income tax. The fact is that in a typical year almost 40 per cent of all corporations operate at a loss, with no income left to be taxed away."

As for profits: "Profits have not risen nearly so rapidly as other economic indicators in recent years."

Proposition No. 3: "Taxes are too high." The foundation agrees.

Proposition No. 4: "Federal expenditures will go up and we need more revenue, perhaps a tax increase." The foundation disagrees. It suggests that too much is being spent now.

costly "flat" that keeps equipment from being productive, Ward's is the place to shop.

In addition to the tire service, Ward's also has a complete auto service center at an economical price for the vehicle.

Services performed by the department include wheel balancing, disc and regular brake adjustment and installation, seat cover installation, wheel alignment, exhaust systems, motor tune-ups and so on.

The auto service center is also an official state inspection station, open from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

Mexico Seeks To Halt Historic Relics Loss

By VICENTE MORALES

MEXICO CITY (AP) -- Preserving the evidence of Mexico's past has become a doubly difficult task due to the frequent loss of important relics of cultures that lived here up to 22,000 years ago.

The present government recently passed a law to try to reduce these losses and ordered a substantial increase in the budget for investigation, conservation and restoration of the pre-Colombian legacy. But Mexican authorities doubt that clandestine lovers of archeology and dealers in contraband of the artifacts will abandon the gold mine of pieces buried in Mexican soil.

Officials of the Institute of Anthropology and History (INAH) say more than 11,000 archeological zones, containing ruins from the civilizations of Aztecs, Mayas and many other Indian tribes, ancestors of today's Mexicans, are registered in this country. They believe many more exist and say the vastness of the remains places Mexico fifth in archeological importance in the world.

But the wealth of past cultures has created its share of problems. Only 2600 of the zones have been studied so far and just placing a guard at each site has been a difficult task for the government.

Until 1971 the anthropology and history budget was less than $3 million but President Luis Echeverria has authorized an increase this year because 80 per cent of the budget had gone for the salaries of the 4,000 employees of the INAH, the only organization charged with preserving Mexico's past.

The lack of adequate protection at many of the archeological sites often facilitates robbery of the historic treasures.

Archeologists say the worst theft occurred during the Mexican Revolution in 1910, but add that the undercover work of private collectors and unscrupulous contraband dealers may surpass it.

Important pieces of pre-Colombian art are in museums in other countries, but INAH officials say none of them were donated by the Mexican government.

Mexican officials say they are trying to recover some of the pieces by exchanging them for other artifacts that are not fundamental to the study of Mexico's history.

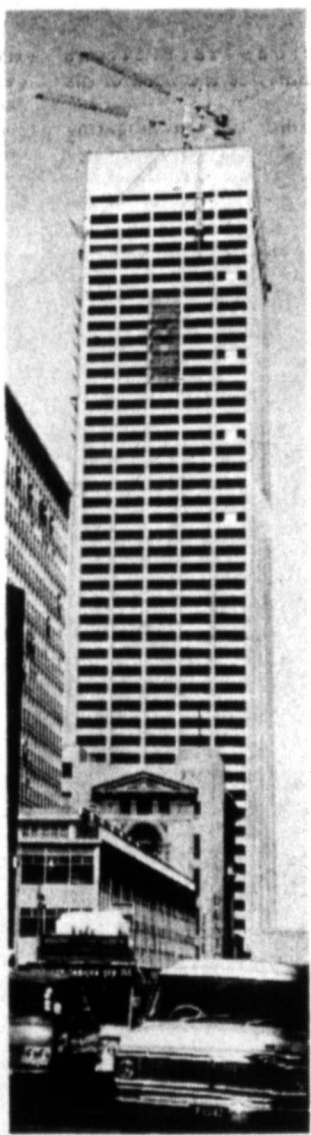

During excavations for the Mexico subway system, idols, domestic utensils and other ceramic pieces were found by the thousands. The digs even revealed complete pyramids.

Investigators say they consider each piece important even though it may be similar to others. In each one there is a message, they say. By putting the messages together, Mexico hopes to reconstruct its past to determine more precisely the road it should take for a better future.

The government now plans to take the evidence of Mexico's cultural past to its people by establishing museums in elementary and junior high schools. By taking the artifacts out of the warehouses, the INAH officials feel, they will make citizens aware of the need to preserve evidence of their past.

Pilot's Invention Lets Passengers Eavesdrop

HONOLULU (AP) -- Passengers on flights to Hawaii piloted by Capt.

BUILDING UP is the style in all large cities, whether New York or, in this case, Honolulu. New structure is the 50-story Carlton Center, highest in Africa.

Percy Cunningham get something extra in the way of entertainment.

Cunningham invented a device which enables the passengers to listen in on his conversations with control tower operators, weather stations and tracking stations.

"Anything I can tune into in the cockpit, I can give them in the cabin," he said.

Cunningham began the extra service in 1947 when he was flying a tour group to the World Series. The passengers wanted to know the baseball scores, so he taped his headset to the microphone of the plane's public address system to let his passengers listen in on the game.

Last year, Cunningham developed an electronic patching device that enables him to keep his headset on and also allows him to make volume adjustments to be sure everything is "just right for the passengers." The invention is actually an improvement on a patching device from an old DC-7.

On one flight last year, Cunningham's passengers heard firsthand accounts of the Los Angeles earthquake. On another flight, passengers listened in on the recovery efforts as one of the Apollo missions splashed down near the Pacific route taken by Cunningham's plane.

Cunningham has more than 30 years service as an airline pilot, and has been flying between Chicago and Honolulu for American Airlines the past two years.

Colonel From Pampa Assumes Double Army Hospital Duty

CHIEF OF SURGERY — Lieutenant Colonel Darryl H. Powell of Pampa, Tex., is doing double duty for the U.S. Army Hospital at Ft. Campbell, Ky.

FORT CAMPBELL, Ky. — Lieutenant Colonel Darryl H. Powell of Pampa, Tex., is doing double duty for the U.S. Army Hospital at Ft. Campbell.

Not only is he chief of the Department of Surgery, but he is also Director of Professional Services.

Col. Powell assists Col. Richard B. Austin III, hospital commander, in overseeing the moonlighting activities of all professional services at the hospital.

He helps determine and recommend equipment to be purchased, training to be given, and the staffing of the various committees that pertain to patient care.

Powell received his Bachelor of Science degree from West Texas State College in 1956 and was commissioned through the ROTC department there.

Taking a delay in active service to study for his doctorate, he attended the University of Texas Southwestern Medical School in Dallas and received his M.D. degree in 1960.

He served his medicine internship at the Veterans Administration in Dallas, where he also had four and a half years of general surgery residency.

In January, 1966, he was promoted to major and assigned to the 31st Field Hospital in Korat, Thailand as chief of surgery.

From 1967-69 Col. Powell was division surgeon with the 8th Infantry Division in Bad Kreuznach, Germany. While there he was promoted to lieutenant colonel and took jump training.

In January, 1969, he was transferred to the 2nd General Hospital in Landstuhl, Germany as general surgeon. He attended Command and General Staff College at Ft. Leavenworth, Kans., and arrived at Ft. Campbell in July, 1971.

Col. Powell and his wife, Alicia, reside in Turner Loop, Ft. Campbell.

17,000 Males Observe 'Girl Watchers Week'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — In a square crowded with beautiful women, debonair Joe Beagin, balding head of the International Society of Girl Watchers, is showing how it's done.

It's all right, he explains learnedly, to turn the head toward the receding figure of a passing woman, but it's a no-no to make a U-turn and start to follow.

To demonstrate, Beagin walks arm in arm with a model as three attractive women stroll past. The Beagin technique is to push his companion ahead of him as he steps back and turns his head to observe with slightly bulging eyes.

This gambit is intended for use by husband or boyfriend in that riskiest of all situations for a girl watcher — diverting his attention from his female companion to another attraction.

The idea is not to get caught, he advises the 17,000 members of his organization, ranging from a 13-year-old rookie to an 85-year-old seasoned vet. Annual dues are $6.

This week Beagin, who devotes full time to the organization and its pursuits, is advising the annual "Girl Watchers Week" at Century City, a skyscraper business complex in West Los Angeles containing an estimated 5,000 short-skirted secretaries.

Sensitive to charges of "male chauvinism," watcher sponsors hired Beagin and recruited a corps of local secretaries and models to establish decorum and hand out tickets to offenders.

"We abhor improper watching," insists Beagin, who has a 24-year-old son. "Being obvious and ungentlemanly about it spoils the pastime for everyone."

On the other hand, some members of the ticket corps suggest that Beagin's tongue-in-cheek techniques may be too direct.

As for women's lib, they've noticed too. Wrote President Virginia Carter of the Los Angeles chapter of the National Organization for Women:

"We protest Girl Watching Week because it invades the privacy of women who must work or shop in Century City... forcing them either to remain indoors for a week, or to submit meekly to the unwanted, leering scrutiny of girl watchers."

Pampa Girl Joins Choral Ensemble At Hardin-Simmons

A Pampa girl is a member of the Hardin-Simmons University choral ensemble, Dr. James Gram, head of the department of applied music and H-SU choral director, said.

The choral ensemble at the Abilene university has 70 students, with 46 students in the concert choir.

Cynthia Carter of Pampa is serving as one of the social chairmen. She is a sophomore.

The 116 voices of the combined choir will perform Nov. 2 at the Baptist General Convention of Texas when it meets in the Abilene Civic Center.

Rehearsals are underway for the Dec. 8 and 9 production of Handel's "Messiah."

Santa Claus, Angels To Appear On Stamps

Postmaster Carl English said today that he has been advised by the U.S. Postal Service of designs of two 1972 Christmas stamps.

Santa Claus will appear on one of the two stamps. The other stamp for holiday mail will reproduce two angels, a detail from a National Gallery of Art painting, "Mary, Queen of Heaven," done in the 15th century by an unknown artist who is identified as the Master of the St. Lucy Legend.

The stamps will be issued with ceremonies in Washington Nov. 9, with an unusually large print order of one billion each. Both stamps will be printed by gravure on the Andreotti press. They are vertical, commemorative size.

Santa Claus was designed by Stevan Dohanos and modeled by Leonard E. Buckley. The Flemish art was designed by Bradbury Thompson and modeled by Howard C. Mildner.

First Day cancellation requests should be directed to "Christmas Stamps, Postmaster, Washington, D.C. 20013," enclosing proper remittance and stipulating which stamp (or stamps) is desired, and with request postmarked no later than Nov. 9.

Alben Barkley was 71 years and 57 days old when he was inaugurated vice-president under President Harry S. Truman.

Basis for the angels stamp is a tiny detail from an 85x73-inch panel, done in the rich, Flemish tradition. Both are playing musical instruments, one a vielle, an ancestor of the violin; the other, a soprano shawm, an oboe-type instrument.

The unknown master painter is "named" for the legend of St. Lucy painting he did in 1480 in a Bruges church. The vignette of the vertical stamp is circular. Above it, in red, is "Christmas." Beneath, in black is "Master of St. Lucy Legend, National Gallery of Art, 8 cents, U.S."

The Santa Claus stamp is set in a green frame. Before him is a bag of toys and he holds a horn. At the bottom, in white, is "U.S. Postage 8 cents." Across the top, also in white, is "Twas the night before Christmas," the opening words of "A Visit from St. Nicholas," which Clement Clarke Moore wrote in 1823.

Dear Abby

Does she have a beef
—or is Hubby right?

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: For 18 years I've tried to get this point across to my husband, but he doesn't listen. He follows your advice to the letter, and if he reads this with your comments it will help our marriage.

We seldom go out socially, and when I mention a night out, he says, "Okay, Honey, let's go! You order theater tickets to whatever you want to see, and YOU make reservations for dinner wherever YOU want to eat. Press my such-a-color shirt and pick up my suit, and be sure the gas tank is filled so we won't have to stop for gas."

Abby, by the time I have done all that and have fed the kids, my evening out is no longer special. Then he gets disgusted because I'm not bubbling over with enthusiasm when we go out the door. The last six months I have told him I have changed my mind, and don't feel like going, and that makes him angry.

Please tell him to once come home and say, "I have tickets to a play on THIS or THAT night, also reservations to dine at THIS restaurant, let the kids eat peanut butter, just pretty yourself up and let's go."

Maybe then I could generate some enthusiasm. Thanks.

DULL LUSTER

DEAR DULL: Are you feeling well, dear? Maybe you need a checkup. As I see it, ordering tickets to a play of your choice, and making dinner reservations at your favorite restaurant, and pressing a shirt and picking up a suit and filling a gas tank isn't all that much work. Now, what's really bothering you?

DEAR ABBY: I have been employed for two years as a bookkeeper for a small used car establishment. I am happily married and have three children, all school age.

My problem is the sales manager where I work. He is 30 years my senior and thinks he is Casanova. At first I could handle his remarks and keep him in his place, but it's gotten to the point where he's got to kissy-face and touchy-body every time he comes into the office.

He always knows when my boss will be out, and that's when he tries this stuff. I'd die of embarrassment if anyone ever walked in and saw him being so friendly, and my nerves are shot just worrying about it.

I've tried calling him "Dad" and "Gramps" but to no avail. I love my job and will do anything short of quitting to solve my problem. BETTY THE BOOKKEEPER

DEAR BETTY: Tell Casanova that if he doesn't knock off the kissy-face and touchy-body, you will tell the boss. And if the old geezer gets out of line again—do it!

DEAR ABBY: After 25 years of marriage, my husband and I were divorced. A year later he married a younger woman. I live alone. We have two children, a daughter who was married last year, and a son who is being married soon.

I do not want to attend my son's wedding if my husband's wife is there—and that is my problem. She came to my daughter's wedding last year and ruined the whole thing for me.

I feel like telling my son that either he has me or that woman because I just can't stand to be where she is. I hate to miss my son's wedding, but there would be no point in my going with a lump in my throat and tears in my eyes. Please, Abby, tell me what to do. SAD

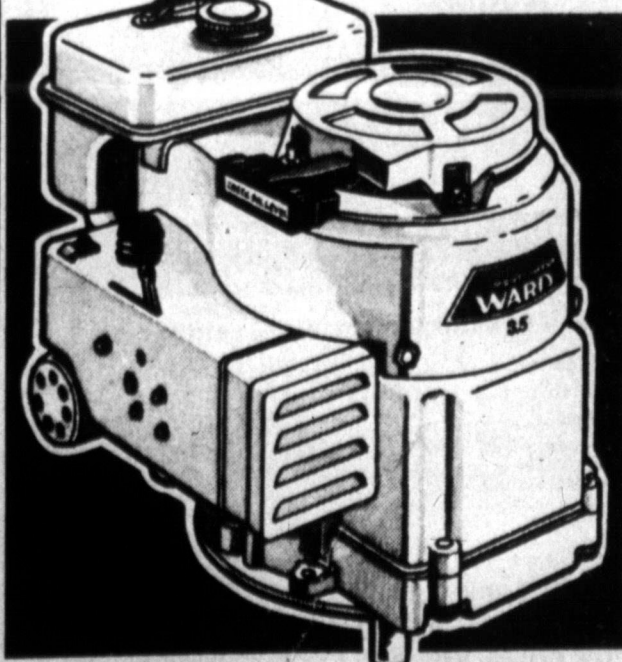

DEAR SAD: Tell your son exactly how you feel.

Price Casts Deciding Vote On Meat Inspection Program

WASHINGTON—The proxy vote by Congressman Bob Price was the deciding factor yesterday in the outcome of the 80-20 funding for meat inspection programs which was passed by the Agriculture Committee on a vote of 17-16.

"We began working to give this legislation a second chance after it was referred back to Committee and what seemed to be certain death for the bill on last Wednesday," Price said.

According to Price the bill will allow the Federal government to underwrite 80 per cent of the cost of meat inspection with the states paying 20 per cent. This had been a 50-50 program, but many states have reached the point where they're no longer able to afford this expenditure. This will offer them some financial relief, he stated, and still guarantee the quality of meat and poultry purchased by the American housewife. At the same time it will also insure that the states will retain control of these programs. Price added.

"The original bill was amended to include the requirement that states meet the same labeling, marking and packaging standards now required by the Federal government, or risk the loss of these funds. By requiring this uniformity, it is hoped that wherever the shopper makes a purchase, she can be assured that labels designating type and grade of meat will have the same meaning," the Congressman said.

"It is possible this bill will be sent to the Rules Committee and may reach the floor of the House for a vote this week," Price concluded.

WORLD OF WORK

Answers to Employment Questions by Secretary of Labor James D. Hodgson

Many Opportunities in Health Careers

D. B. of Athens, Ga., writes—I've always been interested in a career in health services but I don't want to go to medical school. What kind of opportunities are there for me?

Dear D. B.—Because there is such a shortage of professional health workers, there will be increasing opportunities for subprofessional assistants to perform many routine tasks that now consume much of the professional's time. These new positions require relatively short training periods. Some of these subprofessional occupations which will be opening are medical assistants, surgical technicians, inhalation therapists, occupational therapy assistants, optometric assistants, and physical therapy assistants.

J. R. of Brooklyn, N.Y., writes—I quit working when my first child was born and didn't go back until years later after my youngest was in the first grade. I noticed that many women in the plant where I worked did the same thing. How old are most women in the work force?

Dear J. R.—Your observation was very keen. The median age of women workers is 38 years. More than half the women that work are 18 to 24 and 35 to 54 years old.

M. G. of Taylorville, Ill., writes—I work as a clerk-typist in the library of a nearby college. I am paid $1.60 per hour which I understand is the federal minimum wage. Are colleges covered under the minimum wage law and if so will an increase in the minimum wage affect us?

Dear M. G.—The Fair Labor Standards Act applies to all activities performed in connection with the operation of institutions of higher education. The act applies to colleges because they are "enterprises that employ more than two people and handle things made in other states such as books in your library, paper products, furniture, etc. Another aspect of the act covers employees who use the mail, the telephone, or handle money because all of those are a part of interstate commerce. While it is not possible to anticipate future minimum wage legislation, in all likelihood, if the federal minimum wage goes up, it should affect your wages.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

West starts proceedings for the defense by leading the ace and king of diamonds. You ruff the second time and draw trumps with two leads.

Which hand should you win the second trump in?

It all depends on whether or not you want to take the best play for your contract. There are two important cards held by the enemy, ace of spades and king of clubs. Are they likely to be in the same hand? Not likely at all.

West has opened the bidding. He has shown up with the ace and king of diamonds. He needs one of the other cards for his opening bid. Could he have both of them?

Yes, of course, but in that case East, who has followed to two hearts, will have raised his partner without any card higher than a jack. Therefore it is almost certain that those cards are in different hands. If East holds the king of clubs you can take a club finesse and make an overtrick.

But give West that card and where does a club finesse leave you? In the soup! You lose the club finesse and later on have to lose two spade tricks.

After all this, you should see the winning play. Lead a club toward dummy. If East holds the club king, East will hold the spade ace and later on you will lose just one spade trick.

Actually, West holds the club king. He must play it or lose it. Now you are able to discard two of dummy's spades on your ace and jack of clubs and wind up with the loss of just one spade trick in spite of East holding the ace.

♠ A K 6 5 ♥ A 10 2 ♦ K 5 3 ♣ A J 6

What do you do now?

A—Bid three spades. Maybe your partner is showing slam interest. Maybe he has a poorish hand. Either way this bid can't hurt you.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Your partner continues to four spades. What do you do now?

Thursday, SEPTEMBER 28

Your birthday today: This is the time to change from one field to another if you want. For many of today's natives there will be a second post to fill. These people work hard, often have difficulty deciding which of several courses to follow.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: The idea you have may be brighter than most; be judicious in putting it into immediate use. Older people pose difficulty.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Selling off surplus possessions which have served their function, liquidation of outstanding accounts should characterize your day.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Arise early and pursue your personal welfare vigorously—the world is yours to enjoy today; do so! Calm down in later hours.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Much of your thinking is so individual that you may have difficulty conveying information, enthusiastic understanding.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Temptation is to waste time with friends. Get your work done early to free yourself to indulge romantic interests.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: What you may think is secret isn't for long. If you can get an advantage from knowing first, take it promptly and go on.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Gather all opinions, seek some common understanding on which to formulate plans. Older people can be quite discouraging.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Unsolicited help comes in odd or inconvenient form, but make full use of it. Basic conditions move toward improvement.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Social and business contacts become rather abrasive. Smooth yourself down rather than have corners knocked off for you.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: A coherent presentation of your theories and the evidence supporting it wins acceptance. Be careful with all mechanical things.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Younger people require a great deal of attention. With much to do, you take leadership without intending to.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Turn on your friendliest side for all to see. It's time for gentle relationships to grow, despite general tension. Be confident.

Retired Teachers Told Organization's History

"The retired teacher of the century - or of any other century," is how Mrs. McHenry Lane described Dr. Ethel Percy Andrus, as she reviewed the career of the founder of the National Retired Teachers Association at a meeting of the Pampa Retired Teachers Association, Monday afternoon, in the Flame Room of the Pioneer Natural Gas Company.

Taking as her motto, "To serve, not to be served," Dr. Andrus began her long career as an educator in Chicago, moving later to Los Angeles, where she became the first woman principal of a high school in California, Mrs. Lane related.

In 1947 at Berkeley, Dr. Andrus, with 125 other educators organized the National Retired Teachers Association, which has now grown to over 325,000 members. In 1958, she founded the American Association of Retired Persons, and together the membership numbers over four million, she told the group.

Based on Dr. Andrus' philosophy that "aging has a rich future and that the aging can attain goals of personal dignity and social usefulness by recognizing their own individual worth in a crusade for service," during its 25-year history, the NRTA has established a low-cost health insurance program; a low-cost pharmacy service; driver plan, 50 Plus, Auto Insurance, available in all states except Massachusetts and Texas; the NRTA Travel Service; the Institute of Lifetime Learning, in Washington, D.C.; and other special services. It has brought to attention the plight of many teachers who have retired on totally inadequate incomes; and established research centers, the most notable of which is the Ethel Percy Andrus Gerontology Center as a part of the University of Southern California. This center, completed a year ahead of time, will open in October and will offer complete facilities for the study of aging. The Pampa chapter will have a plaque in the new center in recognition of a 50 percent increase in membership.

The Pampa chapter of NRTA, organized in 1970, now has more than 80 members, meeting monthly under the present leadership of Mrs. Lula B. Owen, president; Mrs. J.B. Austin, first vice-president; Mrs. R.H. Sanford, second vice-president; Miss Pearl Spauld, secretary; Roy McMillan, treasurer; and Mrs. McHenry Lane, parliamentarian.

At Monday's meeting, the legislative chairman, McHenry Lane, reported on the present status of the retirement program in Texas; and the members voted to investigate the possibility of a defensive drivers' course to be taught here in the near future. Mrs. Owen appointed L.B. Penick to lead in this activity.

Hosting the meeting were Mr. and Mrs. J.B. White, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Meech, Mrs. Mamie Thut, Mrs. John Hessey, and Misses Edna Daughtee and Virdee Denton.

Forty-seven members and guests were present.

Schoolboy Roundup

By Associated Press
A master poker player couldn't have shuffled the deck better in Class 2A of The Associated Press schoolboy football poll.

A completely new deck had to be brought out after three of the top four teams in last week's voting bit the dust and Childress drew the ace, taking over the No. 1 spot in Class 2A from defeated Jacksboro, which slipped to fourth.

Not one team remained in the same position it held a week ago as Refugio, the pre-season favorite, moved into second place, followed by Friendwood, Jacksboro and Hondo.

San Antonio Lee continued to dominate Class 4A, as did Uvalde in Class 3A. Sonora in Class A and Celina in Class B.

Class 4A experienced almost as severe a case of upsets as Class 2A with three of the top five teams losing—No. 2 Port Neches-Groves, No. 3 Houston Westchester and No. 5 Killen.

Port Neches-Groves dropped to seventh and Westchester to ninth, while Killen disappeared in this week's listing. Odessa Permian, idle last week, took over the No. 2 position, followed by San Angelo, Abilene Cooper and Conroe.

DERAL DUNN won the eight year-old age division of the local Punt, Pass and Kick competition conducted Saturday at Harvester Field. Together with the other age group winners, Deral will go to Canyon Oct. 7 for zone competition.

Austin Reagan, which dumped Westchester last week, climbed from 10th to sixth.

There was only one loser in Class 3A. Wichita Falls Hirschi dropped from eighth to 10th after bowing to Wichita Falls, the eighth ranked Class 4A club.

Sonora claimed 16 of 17 first place votes in retaining the Class A lead. No. 2 Crowell, No. 3 Mason and No. 5 Seagraves all fell to the lower half of the top 10 after losses.

Crowell dropped to ninth. Mason to seventh and Seagraves to 10th.

Smith Leader

DALLAS (AP) — Guess who is the Southwest Conference's leading rusher and if you name Alvin Maxon, Wayne Morris, Mike Luttrell or Doug McCutchen you're close, but no cigar.

The leading rusher is George Smith, the senior at California junior college, transfer at Texas Tech.

In two games, the slippery Smith has averaged 155.5 yards per contest. He has an average of 104 yards per rush on 30 carries for 311 yards.

ONE OF THESE ATHLETES is happy, appearances to the contrary notwithstanding. It is not, however, Pittsburgh Pirate pitcher Bob Johnson, left, who has just thrown a home run ball. Nor is it golfer Deane Beamon, right, who has just missed a putt. It is, as might have been expected, Billie Jean King, center, the ultimate pro tennis player, who rarely has anything to be unhappy about on the tennis court.

Longhorns, Michigan AP Picks To Triumph

NEW YORK (AP) — Is Texas Tech for real or is this the real Texas?

The answer will come in Lubbock Saturday night when the Texas Longhorns, unimpressive in their opening game, begin their quest for a fifth consecutive Southwest Conference championship against the Red Raiders of Texas Tech, who were most impressive in whipping Utah 45-3 and New Mexico 41-16.

"We didn't play a poised, polished game," said Darrell Royal after Texas' 23-10 triumph over Miami, Fla. "I was pleased with the effort and I'm delighted with the win, but I'm really concerned about the kind of football game we have."

So is Tech's Jim Carlen.

"Texas," he said, "is a solid club in virtually every area and I think their offensive line is the strongest we've seen since we've been here. But we're a relaxed team and we're looking forward to playing Texas. We know most of their team because we tried to recruit them."

The longshot is tempting, but the Longhorns are the champs until someone proves otherwise. Texas.

Tulane at Michigan—Can Tulane do to Michigan what it did to Georgia? Green Wave turns blue. Michigan.

West Virginia at Stanford—In the immortal words of Satchel Paige, "Don't look back, someone may be gaining on you." Sometimes, it's worse to look ahead, which Stanford might be doing to next week's clash with Southern Cal. Ergo... West Virginia.

Purdue at Notre Dame—

"You can't assess a team on one game," says Northwestern's Alex Agase, a 37-0 loser to Notre Dame. "but Notre Dame is always good and it's a question if they are going to be great."

Purdue will be out for blood following last year's fourth-quarter 8-7 loss and two tough losses this season to Bowling Green and Washington. Do Boilermakers have blood? Notre Dame.

Tennessee vs. Auburn at Birmingham—Bill Battle has lost three games in two years at Tennessee, two of them to Auburn. Time for revenge. Tennessee.

Wisconsin at Louisiana State—Wisconsin has won both starts by 31-7 scores and that could be the score of this one, too... in reverse. Louisiana State.

Florida State at Kansas—Battle of the bomb between David Jaynes of Kansas and Gary Huff of... Florida State.

Michigan State at Southern California—Michigan State has as many fast backs as there are in the world," says USC's John McKay. "We'll have to play much better to prevent them from getting outside. Oh! Southern Cal."

Colorado at Oklahoma State—Buffs are thinking national championship. Colorado.

North Carolina at Ohio State—Woody Hayes says last week's layoff will put the Buckeyes at a disadvantage. "At least we didn't lose over the weekend," he said. Nor this weekend, either. Ohio State.

Iowa at Penn State—Hawkeyes are rebuilding and could surprise. Lions' defense.

A Maine flanker, on first down, is positioned six yards outside the legal clipping zone at the snap. He moves toward the sideline and blocks a New Hampshire defensive halfback below the waist in the legal clipping zone extended to the sideline. The block by the Maine flanker occurs before the legal clipping zone extended to the sidelines. The play gains 12 yards.

The official should:

1. Award Maine a first down. The block was legal even though it was below the waist.

2. Penalize Maine 15 yards from the spot of the block below the waist.

3. Penalize Maine 15 yards from the spot of the snap for an illegal block below the waist.

Answer: Number 1. Award Maine a first down. The block was legal even though it was below the waist.

Rule: (9-1-2-e) Offensive players positioned five or more yards outside the legal clipping zone or in motion toward the ball at the snap are prohibited from blocking below the waist toward the ball in the clipping zone extended to the sidelines.

Joe Namath Chosen NFL Offensive Player

NEW YORK (AP) — "With Joe we always have the threat of a sudden touchdown," said Weeb Ewbank, coach of the New York Jets.

You couldn't get much more sudden than Joe Namath's touchdowns last Sunday. The Jets' rifle-armed quarterback fired a total of six scoring strikes—including three within a 1½-minute span—and amassed 496 yards passing as New York shredded Baltimore's vaunted defense and beat the Colts 44-34.

Namath's remarkable performance—his touchdown total was one shy of the National Football League record and the most by a quarterback in a decade and his yardage was the third highest in league history—earned him selection Tuesday as the NFL's Offensive Player of the Week.

Despite his scintillating effort, Namath wasn't overly impressed with himself.

"I know it sounds dumb," said the usually outspoken signal-caller, "but I've had better days throwing the ball."

Not professionally nor during his collegiate days at Alabama.

"I don't think I've ever thrown that many in one game before. Maybe I have, but it was way back on Sixth Street in Beaver Falls," quipped Namath, who was born in Beaver Falls, Pa.

"We're definitely a different ball club with Namath available."

McAshan Tops

By Associated Press

Eddie McAshan has been hearing the boos since 1970, when, as Georgia Tech's first black athlete, he became the first black to quarterback a major college football team in the Deep South.

He heard them in the fifth game of the 1970 season when he failed to move his previously unbeaten team in a 17-6 loss to Tennessee.

He heard them last year despite a 10-0 triumph over Michigan State when he failed to complete any of his 10 passes.

New Busing Evidence

A man hears what he wants to hear and disregards the rest. This is a line in a contemporary song that has enjoyed considerable success.

Simon and Garfunkel probably were not thinking about the school busing controversy when they wrote that, but it seems to apply.

The political activists who are intent upon establishing the busing of children to achieve racial balance "hear" only that such forced intermingling will improve the lot of minority children. Those who oppose the idea "hear" only that such a program is destructive.

There is chiefly evidence in all this, plus the political demagoguery from candidates who want to adopt a "friend of the underdog" pose to lure minority votes.

Thinking folks who genuinely want to help all children better prepare themselves for adulthood might be inclined to see some merit in placing under-achievers among the more privileged children. After all, human compassion for children is a natural characteristic. What normal person wouldn't want to help?

The argument that busing doesn't help has been given little credit because the pro-busing forces quickly shout "racist" slogans and challenge the sincerity of their opponents.

So emotion has guided the progress of this experiment of political government, with the eventual outcome apparently hinging on the number of votes at stake.

Now, however, some new evidence has been offered that will shake up all the plans for both sides.

It comes in the form of a major study of school desegregation by busing in five northern cities.

The 64-page report was made by David J. Armor, associate professor of sociology at Harvard University. Armor has also conducted research for the U.S. Civil Rights Commission.

Armor concluded that achievement test scores of black students bused from their neighborhood schools to other areas have not been raised. The busing experiment also has resulted in worsening of race relations, the study says.

Truth is, says the report, that grades of black students generally fell when they were transferred to predominantly white schools because grading standards were higher.

Black students in these schools have a stronger sense of separatism than do students in predominantly black schools.

Armor's study has been heralded as a scholarly work dealing with the facts resulting from a five-year study of schools in Boston, Ann Arbor, Mich., Hartford, Conn., Riverside, Calif. and White Plains, N.Y.

Political activists, being motivated by the desire for power, may continue to protest that this is simply sophisticated ammunition for the racists, but it would seem that finally some valuable new information has been presented.

Those who sincerely wish to help minority children improve their chance in life will probably want to examine this report in detail and without preconceived opinions.

If they are convinced a program of busing is indeed harmful to the children, perhaps they will find the courage to oppose it.

Professor Armor's study results come as no surprise to those who recognize that individuals are all different, and that the most detrimental program is that which seeks to enforce conformity.

The most valuable contribution of Armor's report is that it provides evidence that can eliminate the emotionalism from the busing controversy and set people to examination of the facts.

It may be wishful thinking, but it even may lead more people to the realization that the chief evil in the forced busing program in the first place is the compulsory tax supported school system itself.

Billy Graham To Stay Out Of Politics

By PAUL HARVEY

Billy Graham's dilemma: One can't preach separation of church and state and then practice partisan politics.

Yet it's as difficult for a doctor of theology as for a doctor of medicine to remain silent when he knows what ails us and what's good for us.

Some of us, privileged to know Ruth and Billy Graham for most of our lives, have repeatedly counseled him to remain aloof from partisan politics. For the most part he has.

He felt strongly about the election of 1960 but bit his lip and kept his peace—and got blamed by many for Nixon's eyelash defeat.

In 1968 Billy let it be known in no uncertain terms that he knew, liked and favored Richard Nixon—and got blamed by many for Nixon's victory.

The Grahams have been guests in the White House during the terms of five Presidents. His counsel was sought frequently by L.B.J. The evangelist was a guest at the L.B.J. Texas ranch as recently as this summer.

Graham is politically ambidextrous though consistently philosophically conservative.

Nonetheless, his identification with President Nixon was on such a close and personal basis that when the Cambodia intrusion boomeranged on the White House, it was similarly hurtful to Billy Graham.

For weeks the mail received by his evangelistic association revealed much disillusionment, resentment, anger.

During this election year Billy Graham has proposed to stand aside.

Invited by Sargent Shriver to deliver the invocation at that convention, he declined.

Invited by the GOP to deliver the invocation at that convention, he asked to be excused.

The "low profile" is intended to disassociate his ministry from partisan politics during this sensitive time, whatever his personal feelings may be.

He did attend the Hollywood gala at the San Clemente White House in late August but even there declined any political commitment beyond joking, "I'm leaning..."

If the polls were not predicting a political landslide—if the election promised to be a hairline close again—I don't know what Billy Graham would do.

I expect that he would wrestle with his conscience, argue with Ruth and with his esteemed father-in-law, Dr. Bell—and with the rest of us who consider his ministry to be of transcendent importance—and then on election eve find some discreet way of restating his respect for President Nixon.

And in justification for his position it should be remembered that this mutual personal admiration predates this Administration by many years; indifference would be an unworthy pretense.

"Who's Responsible for the Unauthorized Bombings?"

BRUCE BISSAT

Bad Everywhere McG's 'Corner' Has Red Flasher

By BRUCE BISSAT

WASHINGTON (NEA)—Buoyed by good crowds, Sen. George McGovern on the road is cheerfully saying he's "turned the corner" in his battle for the presidency. But a check of about a third of the states produces absolutely dismal reports on his campaign.

Some Democrats who have seen a flock of private polls covering many individual states say they are devastating for McGovern—worse in some cases than the 34-point spread shown in the public Gallup and Harris polls.

An influential Republican with access to similar private GOP polls reports the same thing. The margins for President Nixon over McGovern are so crushing that party leaders find it hard to believe them.

As an example, though the McGovern forces think they have a pretty good shot at Iowa, a responsible private poll there shows Mr. Nixon leading the Democratic nominee by a margin of 56 to 22.

Nobody expects McGovern to take Oklahoma, which has been going Republican consistently in recent presidential elections. Yet a poll spread of 60 to 15 in favor of Mr. Nixon has to be put down as staggering.

When you run the U.S. map in a telephone survey as I have just done, you encounter comment just as astonishing as the poll figures.

"This state should be declared a disaster area by McGovern."

A Maryland Democrat thus describes the senator's campaign:

"It's the damndest mess I've ever seen. There are defections all over the place. McGovern's cry of 'Come home, America' isn't a theme or a slogan, it's a lament."

This from a veteran observer in Georgia:

"McGovern says Georgia is one of his battleground states in the South. If it is, he's in terrible shape. His campaign here is the worst thing I've ever run into. Georgia is at least 2 to 1 Nixon."

Texas is one of the big states the McGovern people consistently argue can be theirs. They count hopefully on a blend of support from blacks, Chicanos, urban liberals, union men spurred by vigorous labor organizations, populist-minded folk in East Texas and elsewhere.

A fresh check there, however, does not produce support for this hope. Mr. Nixon is considered to be strongly in the lead. The East Texans, who provided Gov. George Wallace with much of his third-party support in 1968, actually seem to be leaning Mr. Nixon's way. In that area, the city of Beaumont favors the President and likes Vice President Agnew even better.

Among the northern big states, only California at the moment appears to offer McGovern much promise. By poll indication and other observation, Mr. Nixon is ahead in the state today. But California is notoriously volatile. Mr. Nixon's support is thought to be especially soft, and one practiced observer said, "I can see how he could lose it."

At this writing I am still back-checking on the other big states. Nevertheless, setting aside Massachusetts as characteristically Democratic, I found Mr. Nixon leading everywhere, including the other states Humphrey won in 1968—New York, Pennsylvania, Michigan.

My survey suggests McGovern is still not well off in places where he ought to be, such as Minnesota (gaining but not yet good), Rhode Island (terrible), Hawaii (bad divisions), Wisconsin (McGovern overrated), Washington state (support weakening).

If McGovern sees something brighter than all this around that corner he says he's turned, he must have infra-red vision. I can't find it.

Your Health

By Dr. Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Is Ulcerative Colitis Curable?

Dear Dr. Lamb—The two doctors I have consulted about my condition have diagnosed it as ulcerative colitis but seem to know little about treating or curing it. Having this illness at age 47, I understand that it is a quite common disorder. What causes ulcerative colitis and can it be prevented? What treatment or medication can be prescribed for the condition? Can it be cured? Can any treatment or medication prevent colon cancer from developing in relation to this disease? Must I just sit helplessly by while the inevitable cancer starts its development?

Dear Reader—Ulcerative colitis is inflammation of the colon or part of it which results in ulcerated areas in the colon. It frequently causes persistent diarrhea and the passage of mucus and blood, resulting in severe weight loss. Individuals have severe attacks of the disorder, then sometimes they have remissions for rather long times followed by recurrences. I'm sorry to say that there are many theories about the cause of ulcerative colitis but no definite facts that apply to all cases.

It is true that the longer it lasts, the more likely a person is to develop cancer of the colon, but there are many factors that influence the likelihood of this complication. For example, individuals who have involvement only with left colon and the rectal area appear to be less likely to have cancer if they develop it at all. It is also believed that individuals who have this problem for more than 10 years are more likely to develop a cancer. Individuals who have long term remissions are less prone to develop cancer.

As in the case of other diseases, when the cause is not known it is difficult to treat. I would recommend that you stop using milk and all milk products. This seems to help people with this problem. Much of the treatment is symptomatic and has to be individualized for the patient, concerning diet and whether or not antibiotics or hormones such as cortisone or related hormones should be given. In some instances, particularly if there is persistent, massive hemorrhage, perforation or other complications, it is necessary to remove the colon surgically. Fortunately, this represents a relatively small number of individuals.

Dear Dr. Lamb—What is Biocillin and what kinds of diseases is it for? I have heard of it quite a lot and was wondering about it. The dose is three million units.

Dear Reader—Biocillin is a trade name for one brand of penicillin used in the treatment of a large number of bacterial infections. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Young Terrorists Taught, Not Born

By DON OAKLEY

The three surviving Olympic games terrorists in German police custody are aged 20, 21 and 22. As far as is known, the five dead Arabs were in the same age range.

Thus none of them was even alive at the time of the partitioning of Palestine and the creation of the state of Israel in 1948. None of them had any personal memories of the mass exodus of Palestinian Arabs into refugee camps which, a quarter of a century later, still contain upwards of a million people.

The Munich terrorists were made, not born. Carefully nursed on hatred for all of their young lives, they and their fellows in the various groups and factions making up the Palestinian guerrilla movement are the end products of 24 years of refusal by Arab governments in the Middle East to accept the reality of Israel.

There is no excuse for the existence of refugee camps after this long a time, some of which have taken on the aspects of permanent cities. The refugees, the bulk of whose support has been and continues to be paid by the United States through the agency of the United Nations, could have been resettled in the first generation, given a modicum of good will on the part of the Arab governments, chiefly Egypt, Syria, Lebanon and Jordan.

The problem need not have arisen in the first place had not these governments, for their own political purposes, encouraged the flight of the refugees and fostered the cult—the deadly myth—of revanchism.

Now, having reared a generation of terrorists who acknowledge no laws but their own, the Arabs have created a hydra-headed monster that could turn and devour them.

As one observer notes, the Palestinian radicals consider anyone who is not with them totally to be against them. Saudi Arabia's King Faisal is as much an enemy to the guerrillas as Israel's Golda Meir. King Hussein of Jordan, who drove the guerrillas out of his country, is considered a traitor.

The guerrillas, a political force who are both idolized and feared by millions of Arabs, reject out of hand any talk about peaceful solutions in the Middle East or accommodations with Israel.

Our people are determined, says one teen-ager inhabitant of a refugee camp, "to continue the armed struggle until victory."

As that struggle continues, as new guerrillas are manufactured, trained and armed, and as a strong Israel frustrates all attempts to attack it directly, the terror escalates and spreads. No nation is immune to bombings, kidnappings, hijackings and extortion attempts.

Yet even after Munich, even after the massacre of innocent travelers at the Tel Aviv airport, certain governments of the world, for their own political purposes, refuse to speak out against terrorism.

Pravda, the official Communist newspaper in Russia, abandoning common sense as well as common decency, claims that "Arab reactionaries and Israeli agents are intentionally pushing the Palestinians to extremism so that the international public will regard them as fanatic terrorists."

At the United Nations, China and the Soviet Union support an Arab move to condemn Israel for its reprisal raids against Lebanon while refusing to condemn the Munich killings.

"We have been walking a very dangerous path by our silence on terrorism," warned U.S. Ambassador George Bush as he cast the second veto by the United States in the history of the U.N. to block the resolution.

"By our silence on the disaster in Munich, we are inviting more Munichs."

But what are a few dozen or a few score lives in the great political scheme of things?

WORLD ALMANAC
FACTS

Seeing-eye dogs were first used in Germany after World War I to aid blinded veterans. The Seeing Eye founded by Dorothy Harrison Eustis in 1929, at Morristown, N.J., was the first guide dog school in the United States. The World Almanac says. Most blind persons use canes to guide themselves because only a small percentage can handle guide dogs successfully.
