BUFFS CONQUER SPUDDERS WITH LATE RALLY

TEENERS END CUB'S WINNING AS TEARS MAUL PANTHERS: SPORTS SWAMP EXPORTERS IN OPENER

(By Associated Press)
BOSTON, Aug. 2.—In a pulsating battle, the Buffs Tuesday whipped the League leading Philadelphia Spudders, 4-3, in ten of their crammed baseball games, fighting back and making most of every break, showing they are leading the loop; in the tenth inning they tied the score and in the eleventh they won by a 1-0 margin. The game was a hard fought one, the Buffs leading 3-0 in the eighth and 4-0 in the ninth. The Spudders' pitcher, Pennie, won the fourth triumph of the season.

LA VERN DILWEG AND BRIDE

They just couldn't wait—that is the reason given by Eleanor Coleman, member of the 1924 American Olympic swimming team but women's athletic editor of a Milwaukee newspaper, and La Vern Dilweg, Marquette's All-American end, as explanation of their recent nuptials. This photograph was taken when Dilweg was graduated from the Marquette law school a few weeks ago.

PLAY BEGINS IN CITY TENNIS TOURNNEY

Following the draw for pairings in both singles and doubles at noon Tuesday play got under way on several courts late Thursday, and was scheduled to start today in the city-wide tennis tournament sponsored by more enthusiastic court followers in an effort to stimulate the game here.

A total of eighteen men are entered, consisting of eight teams for doubles play, and nine for singles, and includes most of the best players in the city.

The following pairings were made for doubles play, and elimination will continue down the brackets: Hill and Stealy vs. Armstrong and Hatcher; Whiteside and McCann vs. Etter and Noll; Whiteside and Whiteside brothers, James and Clarence vs. Baughman and Blackwell; Burgess and Kelly vs. Ross and Rosenbaum brothers.

Singles pairings were made as follows: Whiteside vs. McCann; Whiteside vs. Ross; Hughes vs. Whiteside; Stealy vs. C. Whiteside; Burgess vs. Blackwell; Hill vs. Hatcher; Etter vs. Kelly; Armstrong vs. Hatcher; Noll vs. Armstrong and Ross vs. McCann.

COCHRAN QUITS PITCHING

SAN ANTONIO, Aug. 2.—After having seen service on the first line for 13 years, during which he has been with the Cincinnati Reds and Pittsburgh Pirates, Bob Cochran, who has been with the San Antonio Bears the past several years, and succeeded Homer Mitchell as manager a few days ago, announced his retirement Tuesday as a pitcher, to devote his time to the managerial end of the game in the future.

SENATORS LOSE HARD CONTEST TO TIGERS

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—Apparently annoyed by the fact that today was Walter Johnson day, commemorating the veteran hurler's twentieth anniversary as a big league pitcher, the Detroit Tigers defeated Washington today, after Johnson had pitched 5 1-2 innings as they did just 20 years ago.

The score today was 7 to 6, as against the 4 to 2 score of August 2, 1907. Johnson was charged with the defeat 20 years ago, but today the official scorer laid the defeat to Garland Braxton, relief pitcher who succeeded "Old Barney" in the ninth when the Tigers scored three runs.

Flashing some of his old time speed, followed by coming accumulated in two decades of competition, Johnson had weathered one storm in the fifth inning when Detroit fanned him for six hits and four runs, and appeared to be on the road to victory when a pinch hitting rally rescued him. While in the box Johnson held the Tigers to eight hits and had struck out six.

WHITE SOX AND ATHLETICS DIVIDE PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 2.—The White Sox and Athletics divided a doubleheader today, the Sox winning the first game 7 to 4, and the Athletics the second by 6 to 5 in 12 innings.

Bill Falk had a perfect day at bat in the opener, flinging in the opening of all the visitor's runs, and getting 4 hits in as many times up in the second game. Alex Metzler hit a homer with two out and one on in the ninth, but sent the White Sox ahead, but the Athletics tied the score on a triple by Fox and Collins' single. Mickey Cochrane broke the game up in the 12th by hitting a homer over the right field wall.

RED SOX AND BROWNS SPLIT TWO BOSTON, Aug. 2.—Boston and St. Louis broke even in a doubleheader today, both games being tied. The Browns won the opener 2 to 1, when Brown had the pitcher of MacFadden in a pitchers' battle. In the second contest pitcher Hal White, Boston southpaw, let the Browns down with two scratches, and the Red Sox were victorious, 2 to 0.

JESS HILL IS PROMOTED IN BORDER PATROL BODY

ALPINE, TEXAS, Aug. 2.—Jess Hill, for two years a member of the Border Patrol, U. S. Paul Berlenbach Through In Ring

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—The star of a once great champion, "Oom" Paul Berlenbach, has and the former king of the light heavyweight division will receive no further encouragement along the comeback trail from his veteran manager, Dan Hekey.

The grey haired mentor who landed Paul in the title sent through victory over Mike McGuire in 1925 told the New York State Athletic commission today that his permission to fight today that his opponent was "through" as a fighter.

Having filled four time up engagements he had requested before completing an old contract with Humbert J. Fugazy to meet Tommy Loughran at Ebbetts Field, Berlenbach was called before the commission today to answer the promoter's demand that he sign immediately for the fight. He agreed and declared he would approve of no more matches for "Oom" Paul.

Bankers Close Out Auto-Shavers with Count Of 4 and 3

In a game that went long into the evening at the Tech Park the Bankers won over the Auto-Barbers combination with a score of 4 to 3 after a last-inning rally by the Bankers. Up until the last inning the Shavers held the Bankers to a 2 to 0 count but with two successive walks by Stalaker and two hits that sent in four runs to win the game.

Stalaker tossed a good game for the Auto-Barbers, building the Bankers' lead for four innings. Moody Smith, who is the main pillar of Judge Bates' pitching staff, turned in another victory for the already 21 percentage column of wins. It was the fifth straight game that Smith has won. CUBS OVERCOME PHILLIES AND BOOST LEAD

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—Chicago's Cubs today increased their lead over the Pirates to a game and a half by defeating Philadelphia 6 to 2, while Boston won from Pittsburgh, 3 to 2.

Chicago's lead over the Pirates today was a double victory over the Phillies, 3 to 1 and 5 to 4. McWeeny and May both allowed only seven hits in the first five but the former was handicapped by Brooklyn's veteran League vet, Kolp's rescue with the tying run on base in the seventh of the closing struggle, which ended with the victory. Cubs' pitcher's safe hitting attack through 25 games was halted by McWeeny in the opener.

NO PEASANTRY FOR AMERICA

Whatever may be the problem of economics confronting the United States in relation to the farmer an even deeper question is at issue. The failure to maintain the individual agriculturist in a front place in the picture of American citizenship will withdraw from the country one of its most valuable contributions of strength. To be successfully solved, however, the question of this maintenance must not be made the subject of the battlefield of a shuttlecock game of partisan politics. There is always the temptation to throw serious problems affecting the welfare of the people to the law-makers, to be buffeted and blown and shifted this way and that as the strivers for political power may deem to their advantage.

No one class of people has been the victim of demagogues and false prophets as has the farmer, and yet through it all he has not ceased to be the largest contributor to the country's prosperity. The concentrated populations have massed against him and he has never failed to feed them. They have belittled his life and his effort while eating the bread of his raising. They have caricatured him with one hand while grabbing his substance with the other. Their tongues have ridiculed him even while rolling his products in their mouths, regardless of the fact that they would starve were he to stop working. They have looked upon him as a stranger instead of a comrade. There are even those who would make peasants of him and his children by denying to them the privilege enjoyed by the urban residents.

The problem of the farmer is rather more of science than of politics, and, if he shall continue in his proper place in the country it must be through the bending of all effort of all classes to the solution, and the subordinating of selfish interest of the moment to the larger benefit of the future. If there be a distress of one element of the citizenship upon which the country so largely relies, then it is as much the patriotic duty of the entire people to rally to the intelligent and permanent untangling of the knot of circumstances which he alone can not untangle as it is to swarm to the defense of one part of the country attacked by a foreign foe.

The sectional arraignment of people against each other is only matched by the challenging of one class by others. That which promotes selfish sectionalism, or selfish class distinction must at last injure the entire body, because retaliation is a part of human nature and the breach once established will widen until beyond repair except by heroic measures. There should be no class antagonism in the United States, because there is an interdependence of all on the success of each other to a degree which renders necessary the most cordial relations. Thus, if it be felt that present conditions in the agricultural citizenship will result eventually in a lowering of the place which this important activity has held, until vassalage shall be reached, the entire nation will be effected by the attitude of those who, up to the present, have been important factors in the development and stability of self-government.

There must be no peasant class of American citizens. Upon that resolution there should be no division and no debate. Individuals, by their own neglect to avail themselves of the privileges of free and equal opportunity, may lapse into the social strata of the peasant. But no great part of the toilers and producers of wealth in the United States should find themselves so invested by conditions over which they have no control that they can not hold themselves on an equality with their fellows in other fields, particularly when their contribution of product is so necessary to the welfare of all.

The intelligent, thoughtful, sometimes conservative, sincere, earnest mind of the man in direct contact with the soil must be maintained as an integral factor in shaping government and determining policies for all the people. That he may be maintained there must be sufficient return for his labor to enable him to be comfortable in his home. The most certain bulwark of the nation's future is the home owner, the man attached to the soil on which he lives. Drive the farmer into a nomadic life, or reduce his profession to mere tenantry to an overbearing and individual determination is lessened to a degree not welcomed to view.

With calm, determined, studios, earnest endeavor, with passion and prejudice swept one side to permit the clearest conception of the problem, every active mind in the country should be centered unselfishly on the solution of a problem than which there is none greater confronting the people at the present time.

THE MERIT SYSTEM

The Prohibition laws of the United States has been the target for much criticism in the past half a century, and since the Volstead act it has been the target for still more criticism, especially on the side of John Barley Corn. William C. Deming, President of the United States Civil Service Commission in disclosing the prohibition question said recently that for six years the experience of the administration of the National Prohibition Act demonstrated clearly that the best results in prohibition-enforcement could not be expected so long as appointments were made on any basis other than merit.

Scandal had become a household word. The President, the Civil Service Commission, the National Civil Service Reform League and other persons and bodies, official and unofficial, repeatedly recommended, in the interests of good government, the classification under the Civil Service Law of the entire prohibition personnel. By an act of Congress approved March 3, 1927, there was therefore created the Bureau of Prohibition of the Treasury Department, which brought all positions in that bureau under the provisions of the Civil Service Law of 1883, excepting the single position of Commissioner of Prohibition, and made twenty-five hundred offices subject to competitive examinations by the Civil Service Commission. It is safe to say that no other body of men have been subject to the temptations that have beset the prohibition-enforcement organization. The new personnel, carefully selected through the competitive-examination system will meet the same tests of character. The results as shown by the report of the head of the department in connection with prohibition administration. In direct contrast was the enforcement of the Harrison Anti-Narcotic Act, the employes of which organization had been appointed through open competitive examinations held by the United States Civil Service Commission from the beginning.

Granting a difference between attitude of the public mind toward use of and traffic in narcotics and sale of alcoholic beverages, there remained a strong argument in favor of the selection of prohibition-enforcement employes on a merit basis, in the quiet and efficient enforcement of the anti-narcotic law. The President, the National Civil Service Commission, the Reform League and other bodies, official and unofficial, repeatedly recommended, in the interests of good government, the classification under the Civil Service Law of the entire prohibition personnel. By an act of Congress approved March 3, 1927, there was therefore created the Bureau of Prohibition of the Treasury Department which brought all positions in that bureau under the provisions of the Civil Service Law of 1883, excepting the single position of Commissioner of Prohibition, and made twenty-five hundred offices subject to competitive examinations by the Civil Service Commission. It is safe to say that no other body of men have been subject to the temptations that have beset the prohibition-enforcement organization. The new personnel, carefully selected through the competitive examination system, will meet the same tests of character. The results as shown by the records a few years hence will afford a basis for an interesting study by a student in criminology. Approximately 19,000 formal applications from every part of the country and every walk in life were filed in response to the Civil Service Commission's examination announcement for recruiting the prohibition personnel. But as, due to the failure of passage of the deficiency appropriation bill by the last Congress, the Civil Service Commission was not provided with funds for this unusual examination task, it is certain that there will be delay in the completion of the rating of applicants and the certification of eligibles. The incumbents are serving under temporary appointments in accordance with the civil service rules. If they are competitors for retention, they are receiving the same tests that are applied to all other applicants; they are in open competition with all who have applied for the positions they are occupying. The temporary appointees will be permitted to retain their temporary status until the examinations for their positions are completed and eligibles are certified, unless they are removed by the department for administrative reasons. The work of the Bureau of Prohibition can, therefore, go on without interruption, notwithstanding the delay in the completion of the examinations and the certification of eligibles. The Civil Service Commission realizes its heavy obligations in the reorganization of prohibition-enforcement work, and is taking every precaution to eliminate from consideration so far as is humanly possible, those who are unworthy of appointment. It is receiving the full co-operation of the Treasury Department.

WEATHER REFORMS

One of the interesting and baffling things about the weather is its refusal to subject itself to the rules and regulations forecasters would like to lay down for it. For the three weeks preceding Tuesday the weather was so far as it concerned Kansas and Missouri had seemed determined to rush from the extreme of moisture to the extreme of drought. After the rain had insisted on performing every day it went on vacation and refused to perform at all. It began raining again, just when the rain was needed for the corn. We don't profess to be a prophet. But we have noticed that in this part of the country when an incipient drought is broken by general rains, the weather usually doesn't slump back into a protracted rainless season. Generally it keeps on acting in a reasonable way and supplies the corn with the necessary moisture. We make no predictions. But we call attention to this tendency of the weather for the encouragement of the prairie States that are nursing their corn crop through its critical period.—Kansas City Star.

OUT OUR WAY

THE TRESPASSERS.

SO THINK WE

We think that the South Plains crops are looking very favorable for a great production and should, there be a late fall the South Plains will start a great building campaign of good roads and other civic improvements.

We think that Texas Tech will greet hundreds of new students this fall for the opening of the long term.

We think that the 1927 corn crop will be rather poor. The liquid form of the crop has always been poor.

We think that the Texas Tech football schedule already presents a strong card and looks like a real conference schedule although not yet a member of a conference.

We think that the South Plains oil tests are progressing pretty rapidly and either good or bad news will be heard within a few weeks.

We think that the wonderful feat of the Lindbergh flight was that no one has claimed a foul.

We think that the Geneva conference does not even promise a half a loaf.

We think that there is one nice thing about airplane travel. The motor doesn't say any comment from the back seat.

We think that it is impossible to get an accurate invoice of the diamonds in the country by looking over the tax rolls.

We think possibly Col. Lindbergh will think he is on another non-stop flight should he fly over Texas.

We think the South Plains schools are getting better and better each year. Word is received that Anton school is given affiliation with the State education department.

We think that Lubbock will be on the minds of the tourists now. The Board of City Development will place signs every two miles out of Lubbock for fifty miles and a sign every four miles for the next fifty miles.

We think that possibly the most significant about learning to skate is the ice.

MR. HOOVER'S MESSAGE

More than ordinary interest attaches to the visit Secretary Hoover will pay President Coolidge tomorrow because he is taking to the Black Hills a detailed report on the Mississippi River flood conditions. Mr. Hoover has been the Administration's official observer in the flood area, visiting the stricken sections both during the inundation and since the water receded. He has a better understanding of conditions than any one else, perhaps a keener appreciation of what must be done to aid the hundreds of thousands of sufferers.

Certainly the President will get the facts. Mr. Hoover is particularly gifted in matters of observation, and in clarity of expression. He will give Mr. Coolidge a true picture of conditions. If he agrees with other observers, and there is reason to believe that he does, then little surprise need be expressed if the summer White House indicates shortly the policy it will pursue in extending relief, conceivably through a somewhat earlier session of the Seventieth Congress. In fact it would appear that a session beginning in October is essential if Congress is to do all the work it should do before adjournment for the national conventions and the presidential campaign to be taken next June.—Boston Transcript.

IT IS REPORTED

It is reported that if Lubbock county is to hold up her head as the Hub of the Plains, the citizenship had better get busy and offer the traveling public a god system of permanent highways.

It is reported that in spite of all this controversy about blazes and burnettes we still suspect that the old world will rock right along.

It is reported that there are very few people in Texas who really know or have much idea what the questions are that will face at the polls Monday.

It is reported that bank deposits in Plainview at the close of business June 30 totalled more by about a half million dollars than the three banks in Lubbock.

It is reported that the best way to gain real happiness is through passing on some sunshine to others. This has been demonstrated the past week in Lubbock when the change of countenance on faces of children of one ill-fated family brought real joy to more than one person.

It is reported that approximately $75,000,000 is being spent on public improvements in this city and vicinity this summer and fall, and that this is adding materially in the general prosperity.

It is reported that natural gas will be available to all towns between Lubbock and Amarillo much sooner than the more optimistic hands had hoped, and that this is putting a crimp in the chronic bowlers who have been harping on the slowness of progress on the project.

It is reported that Texas voted heavily against the proposed amendments Monday. The vote was more than three to one against all amendments.

It is reported that the scene of the Dempsey-Tammy battle will be in Chicago on September 15. Thousands of western fans will have the opportunity to witness the greatest battle for the heavyweight crown.

It is reported that fair time for the South Plains is near and many counties are planning to have bigger and better expositions.

It is reported that the cheapest and easiest thing in the world is to show your authority. You can show your authority till doomsday and make people fear it too; but you will never make them respect it.

QUESTION FOR THE SCIENTISTS

The following letter has been received by this office from a Lubbock citizen, and we pass it up and leave it to the scientists to answer, or possibly some one in Lubbock might be able to give a satisfactory answer. It is a matter of considerable interest to some folks, and we will be glad to give space to anyone who will give a good logical scientific answer to the question. Here is the question:

"They have got it so now, that when a person is talking over the phone that their picture they are talking to. Now if a girl is talking to a young man and he kisses the picture will the girl at the scene feel the impression of the kiss and hear the smack?"

Our opinion of the matter would be that the picture might be seen. The smack might be heard, but we doubt very much whether there would be that genuine enjoyment that accompanies the kiss at close range. Science may be able to give the answer, in time, but while that is being done we prefer to take our kisses other than over the telephone.

South Plains Press

HEARD MIDLAND HAD SECOND BOOMER BOOM

A writer from local oats, who has just moved to Midland from Borger, states that this city is enjoying a boom that is far greater than he expected. Up around Borger he had heard that Midland was at the peak of a boom that would compare with the recent "hey-days" of that city.

He was agreeably surprised upon coming here to find that Midland is a substantial town, with good brick buildings and fine residences, instead of the "shack town" type of "bure."—Midland Reporter.

It is hard matter to keep the records straight. False impressions and wrong reports get out, and the further they roll the bigger they get. It hurts to over estimate the size of a town. It is a great deal better to have the number of people in a city less than there really is than to have it more. Uncle Sam will come along in a few more months and he will put down in black and white just the number he finds here when the counter comes. He will visit the other towns in the United States and it will all be done in a few weeks and the same weeks all over the nation. There will be a great many towns that will fall to deliver the number report that they state at this time. Boosting the population is not good for any town. If Lubbock has twelve thousand that is what we should say she has. If she has seventeen thousand that is what we should say she has or as

BRIGHT MINDS

If you succeed in life, you must do it in spite of the efforts of others to pull you down. There is nothing in the idea that people are willing to help those who help themselves. People are willing to help a man who can't help himself, but as soon as a man is able to help himself, and does it, they are in making his life as uncomfortable as possible.—E. W. Howe.

I have told you of the man who always put on his spectacles when about to eat cherries, in order that the fruit might look larger. The man who will fall to deliver the number report that they state at this time. Boosting the population is not good for any town. If Lubbock has twelve thousand that is what we should say she has. If she has seventeen thousand that is what we should say she has or as

The society was organized in the spring of 1925 and held its first annual meeting March 5, 1927. The purpose of the society is to collect and preserve materials of historical and scientific value.

Indian Collection Rich
 The Indian collection is of unusual scientific value and the relics of Indian life found in this region are attracting the attention of anthropologists of national reputation. This collection includes arrow heads, spearheads, stone knives, pottery, beads, baskets, and a very complete set of tracing of photographs and paintings taken from some of the many Indian camping places found in the Big Bend. Some interesting relics of frontier life, such as wagons, spurs and bits, have been collected. Many documents, papers, letters, stamps, coins, and an appreciable amount of historical notes and data compose the historical section.

Mounted Birds Owned
 The biological section includes mounted birds and animals, skins of animals and reptiles, and specimens of flowers, trees, and grasses. A display of unusual interest is a collection of mounted birds, mammals, reptiles, and insects, made by the directors of research in biology, on the college campus.

There are already many minerals and fossils on display and special displays of rocks and ores from the various sections of the state are planned, together with special sections of fossils pertaining to certain formations or areas and geological maps and columns found in various points.

Files kept in the museum include folk-lore, recorded testimonies, correspondence, photographs and reference shelf for comparative study. Efforts are being made to collect from men now living the story of the West of the open range, the Mexican bandit, Indian stories of legend, weather signs, cowboy songs, Mexican ballads and folk music.

The Creed Of Living

BY CHARLES E. WHELAN

Life! What magnificent gift is this with the Almighty! Bathed in love me! Gift! Nay, more: A trust to be returned to Him with gratitude for coming generations.

Hands to be given with which to invest me. Eyes to glaze over the beautiful! But also to search for human need.

Ears attuned to catch the subtleties of music; but quick to the faintest wail of distress.

Hands to be given with which to pray and adore; but unafraid to stretch over you into the mire to aid a struggling soul.

Feet avoiding the foul paths of selfishness; yet, besting down the barriers of adversity; the members of intolerance and the walls of tyrannical power, though they bleed in the effort, that the road to happiness of those who follow may be smoother.

Minds seeking to comprehend the Infinite; surely, surely, however, in this grasp I plan for the redemption of Truth and Justice for His creatures.

Hearts throbbing in glorious ecstasy of living! But finding greatest joy in pulsating human sympathy.

If the power of hand-and-mind constitute the capital sum, what right have I to dissipate either must be true to my principal.

I find the stern-visaged God waiting the fulfillment of my stewardship, ready with cruel lash to drive me to sullen duty. No massed hands and shackled feet, dungeon deep hold punishment for my human weakness; the discharge of my agency. A hands may be clumsy and my feet may slip, but my failure of yesterday must not stay my striving today.

The dominating impulse is I thought that I am still trusted, notwithstanding my default, I am being paths for other feet. I a charting seas for other ships. For all parts of the earth all the people all races, all creeds must be brought to a common center. They must come as freemen, not bondmen. If they shall be linked with their Creator the force may be overpowering. God is Love. Therefore, Love must be the link and loving service to humanity a life, or I shall have no fruitage here.

No more is expected of me than can be brought to pass with my eyes, ears, hands, feet, mind and heart. I am measured by no standard in recompensation. My joy shall be mine if I fall not.

HEAT

Heat, scorching heat,
 Rising from the city street,
 Never mind us, who can stay
 At our ease this summer day;
 Give no thought to us, who keep
 Homes of comfortable sleep.
 Let your misery all be spent
 On the stifling tentment.

Heat, cruel heat,
 Poisoning the breeze sweet,
 Pay no heed to us who sit
 Drowsing through the forest of it,
 Drowsing we whimper, though we Sigh.

Never heed our doleful cry
 But if prayers make you relent,
 Torture not the tentment.

Heat, blistering heat,
 Some run seek a cool retreat,
 But the poor must brave the heat,
 Till the long day's work is done
 And at night, most homesick,
 Where the freshening breeze
 Torture to meet be content,
 Share the provided tentment.

Heat, stifling heat,
 Never mind the rich who
 But if favors you can show
 Let them to the tentment
 Where the freshening breeze
 Torture to meet be content,
 Give it to the tentment.

The PENNY PRINCESS

VERA CAMERON, efficient private secretary in the Peach Bloom Cosmetics Co., shares an apartment with her frivolous aunt, FLORA CARTWRIGHT.

When the promotion in the company she expects is given to ROSEMARY FITCH, Vera wonders if her aunt's chiding could find an explanation for this disappointment.

Her promotion as secretary to JERRY MACKLYN, a new advertising manager, brings this disappointment from her mind, Jerry proposes an advertising scheme to transform her into a beauty.

She is willing to be transformed, but she indignantly refuses and declines to resign but when she falls in love with a man whom she calls SCHUYLER, she reconsiders.

And tells Jerry she will undergo the experiment. Anything, she tells herself, to become beautiful.

She has overheard Schuyler talking to a girl before she leaves her apartment to take up residence with Kitty Proctor for three weeks required for the transformation, Peter DARROW, Vera's latest love, angers Vera by ignoring her and the resolves to go to her feet.

At the end of three weeks, Vera and Jerry find her and Peter there. They are dazzled with Vera's beauty and Peter is smitten.

She tells them that she is going to Minnesota in June. Jerry promises to help, but his eyes are most comber with foreboding.

W. G. ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER IX This is more than I had hoped for, Jerry Macklyn's grand plan at Vera Cameron and her aunt, Flora Cartwright, seated side by side on the living room couch.

"I've finished my job, I said I'd give you my beauty, Miss Cameron. It's the Peach Bloom cosmetics, any good, and I've done it. I don't know where you got that I could give you any beauty, but I'll give you my beauty, Jerry Macklyn."

"You forgot to say that I'd be a concealed little witch that every woman would want to murder," Vera snarled.

"You got me all wrong," Jerry protested. "I don't want you to be self-conscious and concerned in the usual meaning of those words, but I do want you to radiate beauty, to make every person you come in contact with realize your beauty because you wear it like a royal cloak. And here's one other thing for you to tell yourself—and believe with all your heart: Every person in the world can teach you something, every person has at least a modicum of interest or charm or loveliness for you, and it is up to you to discover it. When you meet a man—a woman, either, for that matter, but we happen to be talking of men—look at him with boyish expectancy, look glad to meet him."

"What I adopt this attitude toward every man I meet?" Vera dimpled, widening her green eyes at him. I should think it would cause complications, because it's dark as naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy and lustrous.

"I only want to be married once, and I want to stay married to him forever," Vera said softly.

Jerry's bright blue eyes contracted a little as if with pain, and the ruddy color in his cheeks paled noticeably. "Well, that's certainly definite enough, my dear pupil," he cried ruefully. "What sort of man is he?"

"Well," Vera flushed, "let me say he is extremely handsome, young and rich, socially prominent, of an old family," she was thinking of his name, "Schuyler."

"If he's all that," Jerry frowned, while Flora's blue eyes watched him narrowly. "He's used to having girls and women hurt themselves a little, he will take very special tactics to land a big fish like that. Your cue is to be indifferent, to concentrate on every other desirable man in the hotel, so that you can speedily show him that competition for the favor of Vera Cameron is of the keenest."

"You've got three more weeks to get ready for your campaign, haven't you? You'll need practice. Suppose you take me on as a substitute sweetheart for three weeks."

"Jerry! Don't be an idiot! Forget cried sharply, with a warning flash of blue eyes at Vera. "That's dangerous business and you know it."

"Of course I do," Jerry Macklyn admitted grimly. "Maybe, I want it to be dangerous—for Vera-Ver. At any rate, here's my proposition: If it or I say 'I'll break you around for three weeks, we'll dine together, go to theaters, dance, play golf on Saturday afternoons and Sundays. And all the time I'll coach you in the ways of a woman with a man."

"Where do I come in, Jerry Macklyn?" Flora demanded indignantly. "I suppose it was understood that I was to be a member of the faculty of the chignon school."

"Why not make it a foursome about half the time? You and young Peter, Vera-Ver and I. The kid needs example as well as direct instruction, and I know of no more competent graduate of the chignon school than Flora Cartwright!"

"Does it always have to be Peter and me, Vera-Ver and Flora give him a slow, tantalizing smile.

"Oh, we'll switch partners now and then, so Vera-Ver can practice."

"Perfect!" Jerry applauded. "You forgot to say that I'd be a concealed little witch that every woman would want to murder," Vera snarled.

"You got me all wrong," Jerry protested. "I don't want you to be self-conscious and concerned in the usual meaning of those words, but I do want you to radiate beauty, to make every person you come in contact with realize your beauty because you wear it like a royal cloak. And here's one other thing for you to tell yourself—and believe with all your heart: Every person in the world can teach you something, every person has at least a modicum of interest or charm or loveliness for you, and it is up to you to discover it. 50,000 Chicks Are Hatched At Slaton

SLATON, Aug. 2.—Conclusive evidence of the growing interest in the poultry industry is shown in a report recently announced by a local hatchery following a season of five months' operation. The hatchery's capacity at the beginning of the spring business was 15,000. Two months ago it was increased to 30,000. In the five months, more than 50,000 chicks were distributed by the hatchery, most of them going into the hands of farmers in Slaton's trade territory, according to Dr. E. Scott, one of the managers of the hatchery.

Indications are that this year's record in the poultry business here will easily double that of 1926. It is believed.

Curious Throng To City At Vesuvius

TERZIGNO, Italy, Aug. 2. (AP)—Thousands of sensation seekers, mostly foreigners, have swelled the population of this tiny town, famous for its dangerous situation at the foot of Vesuvius, in order to watch at close hand the stream of flaming lava moving down the mountain in this direction.

From the edge of the town, virtually the entire region toward the crater seemed this morning to be covered with an undulating red blanket spotted with large black patches. Most of the townsfolk, mindful of the narrow escape of their homes in 1906 and again in 1926, carried on their daily tasks with one eye fixed on the glowing lava, despite the assurances of lack of danger given by Professor Malabarba, head of the royal observatory.

Many tourists ventured into the chestnut forest which is being slowly destroyed by the advancing lava stream.

The activity of the volcano this morning seemed unchanged from that of last night.

SAGE TEA TURNS GRAY HAIR DARK

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Bring Back Color and Lustre to Hair

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by bringing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray or streaked, just an application or two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold.

Don't bother to prepare the mixture; you can get this famous old recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients at a small cost, all ready for use. It is called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural color and lustre of your hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" now because it's dark as naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy and lustrous.
