Adenauer, Bulganin Open Historic Talks

West Germany Ready For Relations With Soviet

By KENNETH BRODNEY

MOSCOW —UP— Chancellor Konrad Adenauer told Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin at the start of a historic conference Friday that West Germany was ready to establish diplomatic relations with Russia without waiting for German reunification.

The flinty old chancellor of West Germany set forth his position before Bulganin, Communist party chief Nikita Khrushchev and Foreign Minister Vyacheslav M. Molotov at opening session of the five-day Soviet-West German talks.

Adenauer said the questions of Germany reunification and the release of the several hundred thousand German prisoners still held prisoner by the Soviets were of major importance. But he said relations would not depend on them.

"You should not consider it a condition when I say: It is unthinkable to establish 'normal' relations between our nations as long as this problem (of prisoners) remains unsolved," Adenauer said. "This is no 'condition.' It is the normalization itself I am speaking of."

He said the reunification of Germany "is a duty of the Big Four powers."

"Here also I must repeat: I propose no 'conditions'."

The 79-year-old West German statesman also indicated he did not expect the current negotiations in the marble room of Spiridonovka palace in the Kremlin to produce final agreement on the establishment of diplomatic relations.

Refers to 'First Contact'

He referred to "this first contact" and later to "further contacts."

The Adenauer speech, eight pages of mimeographed text as handed out later to foreign correspondents, was in reply to an opening statement by Bulganin.

Bulganin welcomed the Germans to the conference table and called for the rapid establishment of West German and Soviet embassies in the capitals of Bonn and Moscow.

LA Heat Wave At An End

Flood Waters In South Texas Recede

By UNITED PRESS

Los Angeles' killer heat wave was apparently burning itself out Friday, but new forest fires broke out of control in California's parched brushlands.

Flood waters slowly receded in South Texas and temperatures warmed up in the nation's central and southern areas.

The record - breaking heat siege at Los Angeles appeared ended when the mercury climbed to a mere 96 Thursday and only 90 degrees was predicted Friday.

The heat wave, which sent the mercury into the 100s for eight straight days, is blamed for 100 deaths and about $25 million damage to agriculture.

Winds Shift in California

In central California, meanwhile, a sudden shift in winds sent forest fire threatening two California areas and forcing a state of emergency for a Santa Barbara region.

Near Santa Barbara, a fire went out of control on two fronts and became the worst in the history of the California coast. All available equipment was rushed to the San Marcos canyon as the flames topped a 500-foot cliff overlooking a resort community.

In the 17,000-acre Sequoia National Forest, meanwhile, a blaze which was supposed to be controlled jumped its boundaries at two points. The same fire earlier threatened to destroy the General Grant redwood grove where giant trees have stood for 5,500 years.

New Menace Arises

A new menace arose as the flames drove hundreds of rattlesnakes among the firefighters. A rush order was issued for 3,000 pocket-sized snakebite kits to be distributed among the men.

Water left by flooding tropical storms posed a health threat in South Texas.

However, flood waters were receding at Corpus Christi and the towns of Raymondville and Falfurrias, which were the latest to be hit. From 400 to 500 persons were driven from their homes in the two towns when water reached their doorsteps.

Elsewhere, temperatures went up in the Missouri Valley and Great Lakes regions, but stayed in the 40s and 50s in most of the nation's northern section.

COSTUMES TOO SKIMPY, BUT BUSINESS IS BOOMING

JUAREZ, Mex. — UP — Dancing performers in Juarez night clubs were under official orders Friday to put on some clothes and cut down on the bumps and grinds.

Mayor Pedro N. Garcia said he learned some night clubs featured nude dancers and that nearly every one in town was violating the law with skimpily clad dancers. The mayor added, though, that the clubs were drawing unusually large numbers of tourists.

Super Bombs Can't Set World On Fire

By JOSEPH L. MYLER

WASHINGTON —UP— Here's some comfort perhaps for Sir Robert Robinson and any others who share his fear that continued fiddling with souped-up super bombs may set the world on fire.

It couldn't be done. That assurance was given the United Press by an atomic authority who is thoroughly familiar with all the scientific and engingering principles which operate when a super H-bomb goes off.

All hands appear to agree that a world war with nuclear weapons could destroy man's civilization and, perhaps, man himself. That possibility seems to border sufficiency close upon probability that the world's leading diplomats have committed themselves publicly to avoidance of war.

Voices Fears in England

But what appears to worry Sir Robert, a British scientist, is whether mere experimentation with super bombs could turn the earth into an incandescent star. He voiced his fears recently at Bristol, England.

It is the fission-fusion-fission bomb that concerns Sir Robert. In that three-stage weapon, scientists say, an A-bomb reaction (fission) triggers an H-bomb (fusion) which in turn triggers more fission.

Is there danger, Sir Robert wonders, that continued development of multi-stage nuclear reactions will reach a point where they could ignite light elements of the earth, atmosphere, and oceans?

If that should happen, this planet would become for a time a live star, the tiniest among the 100 billion estimated to be wheeling through a space in the Milky Way galaxy.

Groundless Fears

Fears similar to Sir Robert's have been expressed before. They have been answered with what U.S. physicists say is incontrovertible proof that they are groundless.

The H-bomb's advent, however, revived the old fears. Dr. Hans Bethe, one of the world's foremost authorities on nuclear fusion reactions, explained why they, too, would be unable to ignite the planet.

Fusion reactions go on inside the sun and stars because such bodies are sufficiently massive and dense to hold the terrific heat required to maintain the process.

"A star weighing one-tenth as much as the sun would produce so little energy," Bethe said, "that it would not be visible, and the largest planet, Jupiter, is already so small that it could not maintain nuclear reactions at all.

"This rules out the possibility that the Earth's atmosphere, or the ocean, or the Earth's crust, could be set 'on fire' by a hydrogen superbomb and the earth thus be converted into a 'star.'"

Five Officers Sought In Plot Against Peron

BUENOS AIRES —UP— Authorities pressed a nationwide search Friday for five Argentine Army officers, including a general, accused of plotting against President Juan D. Peron.

Disclosure of the alleged conspiracy was made in a brief item published in the evening newspaper La Epoca. The charges were made by Gen. Jose Maria Sosa Molina, chief military judge.

Sought to face a courtmartial on charges of "conspiring to revolt" were Brig. Gen. Desiderio Videla Balaguer, his chief of staff, Col. Juan B. Picca, Lt. Col. Raul Fiscasso and Carlos Carabba and Maj. Jorge Fernandez.

Reports from Rio Cuarto, in western Cordoba province, where the missing officers were stationed, said they had been overheard plotting an uprising against the government.

Sosa Molina summoned the five officers to appear before a court martial of the 14th Infantry regiment at Rio Cuarto before Saturday to defend themselves or face additional charges. At the same time, authorities throughout Argentina were ordered to help track down and capture the men.

La Epoca carried the story in an inconspicuous box on Page 5 of Thursday's edition. Other evening newspapers made no mention of the purported conspiracy nor did the evening official radio newscasts.

Ship Believed Taking Arms To Far East Reds

By DONALD J. GONZALES

WASHINGTON —UP— Officials expressed hope Friday that U.S. authorities in the Far East can apprehend a mystery ship believe steaming to Communist Viet Nam and Red China with arms from Bulgaria.

The United States, at the request of Panama, has asked to search the ship when it arrives at Colombo, Ceylon, and notify the captain that Panama has cancelled the vessel's registry. The ship is the Katerina S, believed to be Greek-owned although it is flying a Panamanian flag.

There was some concern that the greeting being prepared at Ceylon might prompt the ship's master to divert it to another port for fueling.

"We hope it goes to a port where there is an American consul," one official told a reporter.

(In Colombo, port authorities expressed belief the ship may have gotten wind of the search plans and changed course to refuel at Cochin, an Indian port on the Arabian Sea. It was pointed out that the Katerina S had so far failed to give the required 24 hours notice for port facilities.

(The suspect gunrunner, identified as the former German-owned Catherina Wyard, 1,618 tons, last contacted Colombo five days ago and has not been heard from since, port officials said.)

Once the ship's registry papers are withdrawn, the Katerina S. will not be able to leave Ceylon unless the master tries "to make a run for it" illegally, officials said. The ship presumably would be held up until it gained permission to unload its cargo or return home.

A State Department spokesman said the United States had entered the case for Panama in accordance with "common international practice" and at Panama's request. Officials said they had heard the arms shipment was to be unloaded at Haiphong, Communist North Viet Nam, and at a Red China port.

If it comes from a Hardware Store, we have it Lewis Hardware.

Convicts Set Fire To Carpenter Shop

LINCOLN, Neb. —UP— Nebraska reformatory convicts set fire to the prison carpenter shop Thursday night to protest the firing of a superintendent who had urged a "get tough" policy against rioters.

About 75 of the 300 inmates rebelled only six hours after Supt. George Morris had been ousted.

Newly-appointed Supt. M. L. Wimberley, in office only a few hours, said the outbreak was put down within an hour and the fire was extinguished. There was no violence, he said.

The rebel convicts protested that the firing of Morris was a "raw deal."

They took the stand even though Morris had got himself into political hot water by urging a "get tough" policy against the rash of riots which have plagued Nebraska penal institutions.

Morris had taunted Nebraska penitentiary officials for refusing to open fire on rioters "because it might hurt somebody." His own guards, he boasted, had the "guts" to put down outbreaks without such outside aid as National Guardsmen.

Nebraska's prisons have become the most strife-torn in the nation in recent months. Thursday night's outbreak was the sixth in a year and the fourth within a month at state institutions.

Dock Strikers Defy Court, State Pleas

NEW YORK —UP— Longshoremen union leaders Friday defied court orders and the pleas of state officials and threatened to keep major East Coast ports idle until their grievances against the waterfront commission are heard.

"The union does not expect to ask the men to go back to work until the governors of New York and New Jersey agree to listen to our grievances of Capt. William V. Bradley, president of the independent International Longshoremen Association.

He indicated the union would follow that policy even if a temporary Supreme Court order outlawing the walkout is made permanent at a New York Supreme Court hearing scheduled for Friday.

Both the waterfront commission and the New York Shipping Association have filed petitions for permanent injunctions against the walkout. The case will be heard before Justice William C. Hecht Jr.

The walkout, which union leaders insisted was not a strike, has delayed or cancelled 70 ship sailings in New York alone and further tieups Friday appeared certain.

Since Wednesday, the first day of the walkout, some $60 million worth of cargo has been tied up in the port.

Search Plane Spots Debris

NAHA, Okinawa —UP— A low-flying search plane Friday spotted an empty rubber liferaft, debris and an oil slick floating on the Pacific Ocean where a missing U.S. Air Force B-29 bomber with 13 men aboard radioed its last report.

An unconfirmed report said the debris included oxygen bottles, box lunches and seven unopened seat rafts — a one-man rubber raft carried by airmen under their parachutes on overwater flights.

Planes and ships converged on the area to investigate the flotsam and to look for possible survivors.

Seek USSR's Attitude On Ike's Plan

By BRUCE W. MUNN

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. —UP— America asked Russia Friday whether its concern over a surprise attack is deep enough to get the Soviets to join in President Eisenhower's military inspection plan.

The two countries, in mutual agreement that safeguards against surprise attack are necessary, resumed debate in the five-nation UN disarmament subcommittee.

American disarmament expert Harold E. Stassen planned to question Soviet Delegate Arkady A. Sobolev in detail on the Russian attitude toward the Eisenhower plan, which was designed to give ample warning of preparations for a surprise attack.

Sobolev, in what Stassen regarded as the first important Russian disarmament statement since the Geneva summit meeting, stated the Soviet concern about the dangers of surprise attack and the need for safeguards against it.

However, Sobolev made no direct reference to the Eisenhower plan, which calls for a U.S.-Soviet exchange of military blueprints and the right of aerial and ground inspection.

Actually, Russia's expressed concern about surprise attacks was not new. Such concern was expressed in Soviet disarmament proposals of last May 10.

But U.S. experts pointed out that Sobolev's timing in bringing up the issue again after the overall Kremlin disarmament plan had been rejected by the West was significant.

There were indications that a difference of opinion was developing between the U.S. and its allies in the talks—Britain, France and Canada. But western spokesmen carefully avoided the word "split" in this connection.

AWOL For 20 Years, Man Cleared

BLUE SPRINGS, Mo. — UP — Roy Van Camp, 43-year-old railroad pipefitter who tried to reenlist in the Army from which he went AWOL 20 years ago, was officially cleared Friday by the statute of limitations.

Van Camp casually mentioned during his attempt at re-enlistment Thursday at Kansas City that he deserted 20 years ago when he was denied a request for a dependency discharge.

He applied for the discharge "because I had a wife and two babies." But, he said, military authorities turned him down, so "I just walked away." He was with an infantry unit stationed in Utah in 1935, he said.

Not even his family knew he was AWOL, Van Camp said. His oldest son, George, 24, is in the Army and a Korean veteran.

Military authorities took him to Fort Leavenworth and later released him after explaining that the statute of limitations ran out long ago on the peacetime AWOL.

Van Camp said he tried to reenlist because of his conscience and "because they need good mechanics."

'Lifer' Plays Deaf-Mute For 18 Years In Oklahoma Prison

MCALESTER, Okla. —UP— A life-term convict who ended 18 years of pretending he was a deaf mute so he could apply for a parole played his role so perfectly he "didn't turn a muscle" when a truck once blasted its horn a few feet from him, prison officials said Friday.

The convict is John A. Cane of Oklahoma City, who pleaded guilty in 1934 to murdering his wife and three children during a sudden impulse on a picnic.

Cane broke his silence three years ago in applying for a parole, which subsequently was denied. But pardon and parole board members were sworn to secrecy because Cane feared reprisal from fellow prisoners who had talked freely in front of the "deaf mute."

Interviewed by Reporter

The story came to light with publication of a story by Nolet Bulloch, a Tulsa Tribune reporter who interviewed Cane after prison officials decided Cane no longer was in danger from other prisoners.

Cane explained his masterful self-control simply:

"It's just like if one wants to quit smoking or chewing, when a man makes up his mind, he can do anything."

Warden H. C. McLeod said he hasn't talked with Cane since his story was revealed and doesn't know if the convict intends to apply soon for another parole.

McLeod said a truck once braked to a stop with a loud blast of its horn only a few feet back of Cane and "he didn't turn a muscle."

Cane himself said a fellow prisoner once threw a giant firecracker between his feet. In this case, however, Cane saw what was happening and didn't flinch.

Breaks Silence

When Cane first broke his silence in asking for a parole he was sent to Norman, Okla., for a mental examination. Doctors reported he was sane, but told him that if he didn't start talking, he would reach a stage where he eventually could not talk.

Cane said he entered prison living "in a dream world—the same kind of world I was living in" when he killed his wife, two daughters and a son.

"They were a wonderful family. I made up my mind I would never say another word," Cane explained. "I felt my life was a living hell and I swore to myself I would never open my lips again."

But Cane said he received "an awful electrical shock" one day after he began working in the prison radio shop and it was this which brought him out of his dream world.

"It was as if I had been reborn," he said.

GOP Studies Ways To Win 1956 Election

By FRANK ELEAZER

WASHINGTON —UP— Republican state chairmen, sobered by an expert's warning they can throw away the 1956 election despite the popularity of President Eisenhower, boned up Thursday on how to win.

In the second day of a four-day campaign school here, they called in one adviser after another for counsel on such techniques as precinct organization, purchase of TV and radio time, door-to-door fund raising, and how to make best use of the candidate's "advance men."

Vice President Richard M. Nixon, addressing the group at lunch, was expected to add his plea for a hard - hitting GOP campaign, starting now, more than a year before the election. Nixon also was expected to reassure the state party officials on what they most wanted to hear: That President Eisenhower — in his opinion — will run.

Without an exception the party officials seemed firmly committed already to that assumption. Only under prodding by newsmen would they even discuss other candidates. Generally they also had taken the view they would not need to worry much about getting the President re-elected.

That, warned campaign expert Murray Chotiner, is the kind of thinking that elected Democrat Harry S. Truman in 1948, when Republican Thomas E. Dewey was considered a shoo-in.

Chotiner, a Los Angeles attorney who successfully managed Nixon's campaigns for the Senate in 1950 and for vice president two years later, told the group Wednesday Mr. Eisenhower is the best qualified and most popular candidate they could pick. He said an Eisenhower ticket unquestionably will win — provided they do their part in organizing a campaign aimed at picking up every possible vote.

"The greatest danger," said Chotiner, "is that too many people will get complacent." In that event, he warned, Mr. Eisenhower could lose, although he said he did not think the peril was as great was in 1948, since the memory of Dewey's defeat is still fresh.

Jury Puzzled

BOSTON —UP— A federal judge was startled when, after four hours' deliberation, a jury asked him, "Who's the defendant?" Soon afterward Peznola was convicted.

Man Arrested In Auto Of Missing Man

ABILENE, Tex. —UP— A 33-year-old Iowan, arrested while driving the automobile of a missing Tulsan, was held here Thursday for investigation of burglary.

Detectives arrested Kenneth David Klein, Clear Lake, Iowa, here Wednesday after he tried to convert $10 in silver into paper money at a filling station.

He was driving a 1951 Buick owned by Charles L. Cemino, Tulsa vending machine collector, who has been missing since Monday. He said Cemino gave him the automobile.

Three State Search

Police at Tulsa ordered a three-state search for Cemino after Klein's arrest. Klein said the last time he saw Cemino was in Childress, Tex., where Cemino bought a 1917 Chevrolet from the Bailey Motor Co.

"The man who bought the car in Childress answered Cemino's description," Detective Lt. George Sutton of the Abilene police, said. "Furthermore, the description Klein gives of Cemino answers that we got from Tulsa police.

"It looks like Klein is telling the truth. It is one of those unbelievable things — Cemino giving Klein the car — but it looks like that's the way it was."

Met In Tulsa

According to Klein, Cemino picked him up in Tulsa Monday. Cemino had just finished collecting $70 in silver from vending machines in the Douglas aircraft plant.

"He said he couldn't understand why Cemino was so generous," Sutton said. "He said Cemino did not do much talking. He knew him only as 'Chuck.' He said Cemino told him he was going to buy another car and would give the other one to him, which he did."

Klein also said Cemino gave him $130 in silver. Klein was arrested trying to change the silver into paper money at a filling station. When he was arrested he had $40 in silver and $15 in paper money, for which he had exchanged silver at a restaurant.

US Promises Not To Dump Farm Surplus

PARIS —UP— The United States assured the world Wednesday it has no intention of dumping its agricultural surpluses on the world market.

U. S. Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson said at a press conference that all sales of American products are so devised that they can be moved into the world market without disrupting prices.

Meeting reporters at the U.S. embassy, Benson said he would make no important decisions during his present two-week tour of Western European countries.

Benson noted that American agriculture is now making the changeover from wartime to peacetime needs, and said such a change "is always painful."

On cotton, Benson said he hopes to get legislation when Congress reconvenes to relate the support program to the longer staples now in greater demand.

Of the 8 million bales of cotton now held by the government, Benson said, most is of a lower quality.

Benson said the surplus in wheat would be harder to solve than the surplus in dairy products since the trend in the American diet is away from starchy grain foods toward a higher consumption of livestock products.

Ike Appoints Two To FTC

DENVER —UP— President Eisenhower Thursday appointed former Gov. Sigurd Anderson of South Dakota to the Federal Trade Commission and promoted Commissioner John William Gwynne to be chairman of the FTC.

Gwynne, 65, was a Republican House member from Iowa from 1933 to 1949. He lives at Waterloo, Iowa, and has served on the FTC since 1953.

Anderson, 51, was South Dakota governor from 1951 to the beginning of this year, when he was succeeded by former Marine ace Joe Foss.

JACK WEBB SPEAKING:

More than a year ago we began research on a movie to be called Pete Kelly's Blues.

On July 19th the Technicolor lab delivered the final print. It was a busy thirteen months.

The movie concerns a small jazz band which plays in a Kansas City speakeasy in 1927, so we had to look into 1927. We had to document the story with the accents of the Roaring Twenties: Prohibition, the Bootleg Wars, quick money and jazz. We had to look around and find the right people to do the music. We managed to get a half dozen of the best of the side-men in jazz and last February we got lucky. Peggy Lee and Ella Fitzgerald signed on the same week.

We had two difficult parts to cast: Ivy Conrad, an over-stimulated child of the Flapper Age and Fran McCarg, a brutal symbol of a brutal period. Janet Leigh fit the bill as Ivy and Eddie O'Brien, who had just won an Academy Award, agreed to take on McCarg.

And finally, we had to photograph the movie. We had to use the CinemaScope lens in a way that would suggest the excitement, the restlessness, the supercharged gaiety of 1927.

The movie is ready to be shown.

I hope you'll see it—
I hope you'll feel that we did a few of the things we set out to do.

School Fund Over $300,000,000

AUSTIN —UP— High bids totaling $11,932,082.49 were received Tuesday by the State School Land Board in a sale of sulphur, oil and gas leases, pushing the state's permanent school fund over the $300 million mark.

Land Commissioner J. Earl Rudder, chairman of the school land board, said the sale was the first major sulphur lease sale held by the state of Texas. The sale involved 65 tracts of land totaling 39,777 acres.

Texas Gulf Sulphur Co. entered the highest bids, totaling $7,100,000 on 3,840 acres of land, averaging $1,848.96 per acre.

Rudder said the state will receive a one-sixth royalty on the oil leases and a 12.5 per cent royalty on the sulphur leases.

He pointed out that Louisiana generally received about 10 per cent royalty on sulphur leases, and the federal government recently received a 7.5 per cent royalty on a tidelands sulphur lease sale.

The best previous sale by the school land board, last May, included oil and gas leases with an average of $92.85 per acre going into the permanent school fund.

What Will Happen To Ransom Money?

By GWEN GIBSON

WASHINGTON —UP— Federal officials Friday avoided a flat answer to the question — "what happens to the recovered Greenlease ransom money?"

But a Justice Department spokesman assured the public that "anybody who legally comes into possession of some of the bills will suffer no loss."

Twenty - two bills from the unrecovered portion of the $600,000 paid out in the Grenlease kidnaping case have recently been unearthed, most of them through checks made by Federal Reserve banks. But a Quincy, Ill., housewife came upon a $20 bill from the mysterious hoard this week.

'No Comment' to Questions

The Federal Reserve, the FBI and the Justice Department were asked Friday who takes the money when it's found and two suffers the loss. The agencies answered those specific questions with a "no comment" although the Justice Department spokesman stressed that "anyone who accepts money the good faith" cannot get stuck by having it seized by the government.

The reluctance to answer more definitely apparently stems from a fear that an unworkable rule could be established and from a belief that some of the treasure is in the hands of criminals. In that event, the money would be forfeited.

Whenever the bills turn up, one spokesman pointed out, the matter of their disposition must be handled by the U.S. attorney in the area.

In all previous ransom cases which FBI and Justice Department officials could recall, the money ultimately was returned to the "rightful" owner — generally individuals, but sometimes the government.

Would Get Receipt

Probably in the Greenlease case when the government takes a ransom bill from an individual, that person will get a receipt, one official said, and the money will be returned when it's no longer needed as evidence.

The father of the kidnaped boy, it was understood, was allowed to deduct some of the ransom from his 1953 income tax.

About $300,000 of the ransom has been recovered. The remaining portion includes bills in $10 and $20 denominations from all 12 of the Federal Reserve districts. There is no particular series involved.

The FBI has distributed lists of the serial numbers to financial institutions, law enforcement agencies and many business firms throughout the country.

Gloria Swanson Reporting On Venice Film Festival

By GLORIA SWANSON
Written for United Press

VENICE —UP— Here I am at the Venice film festival as a "reporter" instead of as a "movie star."

After the San Sebastian and Venice festivals last year I swore I would never go to another. Disorganization coupled with intrigue and politics is too shattering to the nerves.

Stupidly, I brought no nerve medicine with me to Venice this time and I find that time has changed nothing. If anything, it's worse. Or maybe I'm more sensitive as a reporter.

In good old American language, a profitable little "racket" has developed. Admission to the movies and the parties following them is naturally by invitation, but for very important pictures and especially interesting parties your written invitation may not arrive.

'Intercepted and Sold'

Where is it? It has, like many others, been intercepted and is being sold for as high as 5,000 lire ($8).

At the presentation of the Lancaster - Hecht production of "The Kentuckian" I saw United Artists executives giving up their seats to accomodate Margaret Truman or Linda Christian and her constant escort Edmund Purdom. Somebody had already taken their seats.

It's possible Hedy Lamarr or Joe DiMaggio didn't come to the movie or the square dance party afterward because they hadn't received their invitations. After all, one hardly wants to sit in a hotel if you have the trouble of coming to a festival.

These festivals are not held for the pleasure of Tom, Dick or Harry's uncle and aunt who are no doubt the ones buying the invitations, but for the representatives of the film industry of more than 20 countries (the Soviet Union and her satellites recently joined the list). The representatives consist of producers, exhibitors, writers, directors and last but not least, when it comes to getting publicity for the festival throughout the world, the "stars."

It is they who have a rugged time of it, and each year the festival publicity hounds find it more difficult to entice an important star back.

A Few Crash Party

Burt Lancaster, Ben Hecht and United Artists jointly invited 450 guests to the square dance party following "The Kentuckian." About 1,500 showed up, or rather 1,000 crashed the party. That the food and refreshments held out as long as they did is a miracle for several people were seen leaving the premises carrying trays of food and bottles — their pockets were stuffed.

Fortunately there is always some good humor in any language to relieve tension. One guest started auctioning off his drinking glass, of which there was a natural scarcity.

Rossano Brazzi, male star of "Summertime," added to the amusement of his own Ialian interpretation of the square dance calls.

I must remark that the ball gowns were completely lost to view and the only ones close enough to see were Dawn Addams in gray brocade with matching mink stole, and my daughter in a white exquisitely embroidered bouffant.

DALLAS —UP— Department store sales in metropolitan areas of the 11th Federal Reserve District continue to hold a healthy margin over last year, the Federal Reserve Bank reported Friday.

Fort Worth and Houston area sales increased 3 per cent last week over the similar week last year.

The overall average increase for the week was 9 per cent.

Sales in the 11th District's metropolitan area were up an average 10 per cent from Jan. 1 to Sept. 3 compared with the same period of 1954. Dallas, El Paso and San Antonio reported 11 per cent gains for the nine-month period. Houston 8 per cent and Fort Worth 4 per cent.

Jewels Lost In Flight

DALLAS —UP— The FBI checked leads Friday in three cities across the nation after $20,000 worth of jewels disappeared while being shipped by air to New York from Dallas.

W. A. Murphy, in charge of the Dallas FBI office, said it looked as "if the jewels were stolen."

He said the FBI was checking leads in San Francisco, Dallas and New York.

The jewels were being shipped by Neiman-Marcus Co. to three customers in New York and were in four air express packages when loaded aboard an American Airlines plane in Dallas on Aug. 13. All four puckages were put into one sack by express workers, Murphy said.

The plane originated in San Francisco and stopped in Dallas before continuing on to New York.

The missing jewelry included a $11,750 diamond and platinum bracelet; two diamond and platinum rings, three loose diamonds and a crystal charm.

Letter Tells Officials Of New Beer Law

The Texas law against minors drinking alcoholic beverages was enlarge recently as House Bill No. 602 made several provisions designed to further limit consumption of alcoholic beverages by minors.

The new law was discussed in a letter from Robert O. Smith, executive director of the wholesale beer distributors in Texas, to all county judges, sheriffs, county attourneys, district attorneys and chiefs of police in the state.

The letter said, in part, "Heretofore it has been an offense subject to up to a one hundred dollar fine for a minor to purchase any alcoholic beverage.

"The new law not only retains this provision but is enlarged to include psssession or consumption of an alcoholic beverage by any minor in any public place, which means practically any place except in a private residence.

"I call your attention to the fact that any person who sells to a minor is liable for a fine of $1,000 and a year in jail. Section 26 (b) and Section 41-Article 666 V.P.C."

The letter also stated that all right-thinking persons in Texas are concerned about the waywardness of certain juveniles, and that the letter was meant to inform the above named officials of the new law. It also stated that the letter was meant to be a plea for their cooperation with the legalized beer industry in Texas in an attempt to eliminate unlawful beer drinking by juveniles.

AF Survival School Open To Press

WASHINGTON —UP— The Air Force said Friday it will open to the press on Tuesday its classes in its desert school for survival near Reno, Nev.

The Air Force strongly defended the so-called "brainwashing" school Thursday, stating that it is designed to prepare airmen for the brutal treatment of a Communist prison camp.

Col. Burton E. McKenzie, head of the school at Stead Air Force Base, said there is nothing in the course which would "degrade or break down" the students.

McKenzie and Maj. John Oliphant, director of training at the school, flew here Thursday at the Pentagon's order after the weekly magazine Newsweek described cases of students collapsing and crying under the rigorous training.

Both McKenzie and Oliphant are former prisoners of war. McKenzie, prisoner of the Germans in World War II, said he would have been much better off had he had the same training.

McKenzie told a news conference after meeting with Lt. Gen. Emmett O'Donnell Jr., Air Force personnel chief, that no changes are planned. He said O'Donnell is "completely satisfied" that "we are running a good school out there."

Flood Waters Cause Health Problem In South Texas Area

By UNITED PRESS

Flood waters drained slowly from two South Texas cities Friday, but residents of both were faced with a health problem.

Raymondville was hardest hit, where 100 square blocks were covered by muddy water ranging from a few inches to a few feet deep. The water was draining more slowly at Raymondville than at Falfurrias, where the flooding was less extensive.

The worst appeared to be over, despite a forecast of more scattered rains for South Texas Friday. Forecasters said the rains likely wouldn't be enough to cause streams in the area to rise again.

Taken Out by Trucks

An estimated 400 to 500 persons were taken from their homes at Raymondville Thursday night by National Guard trucks. Capt. Glen B. Warner of the highway patrol estimated another 75 persons left their homes without help after water entered their houses or lapped at the doorsteps.

Warner said others remained in their homes during the night, although water ran across the floors in some homes.

The State Health Department flew in 3,000 typhoid shots to Raymondville. Red Cross and other disaster workers set up shelters for evacuated families at a labor camp near Raymondville, while other families took refuge at a packing plant.

The flood waters were expected to drain from most of Falfurrias during the day, but Captain Warner said it likely would be another day before the water would recede from Raymondville.

Dry Around High School

Edinburg publisher Allan Engleman of the Daily Review flew over the flooded sections late Thursday and reported later that the only section of Raymondville that appeared to be dry was that around the high school.

By comparison, Engleman said Falfurrias "does not look in bad shape." Two creeks overflowed in Falfurrias, covering much of the eastern part of town. Engleman reported two railroad bridges were washed out on the Southern Pacific tracks about 10 miles south of Falfurrias.

Cotton bales by the hundreds were half submerged outside two compresses at Raymondville, Engleman said.

No casualties were reported in either of the two cities. The main damage from the torrential rains that sent creeks and drainage ditches out of their banks the past few days appeared to be in merchandise at flooded stores and household goods in homes in which water entered.

Considerable Road Damage

The State Highway Department also reported that "considerable damage" was done to some highways in the area.

The only measurable rainfall reported by Texas weather stations during the 24-hour period ending at 6:30 a.m. was .11 inch at Laredo and .05 at Brownsville and this fell before Thursday midnight.

The sky was generally clear over three-fourths of the state Friday and only the immediate coast was cloudy.

Light rain forecast at scattered South Texas points Friday should be confined mostly to the Corpus Christi, Brownsville and Laredo areas, the weather bureau said.

Overnight temperatures ranged from a high minimum 79 at Galveston to the low minimum of 57 at Salt Flat. Maximum readings Thursday were topped by a fairly mild 98 at Mineral Wells. The range downward was to 83 degrees at Corpus Christi.

The weather bureau said temperatures would remain about the same Friday.

Tickets will be available at Pampa Furniture Co., and will be distributed through members of the adult education classes. Individual tickets will be available at the La Nora box-office at 70-cents for adults, 25-cents for children.

The morning worship service is broadcast over radio station KPDN every Sunday morning from 10:00-11:00. Everyone is invited to listen to these radio worship services.

"Overcoming Fear" will be the sermon topic Rev. Adcock will use for the 7:30 p.m. service. The chapel and vesper choirs will sing the special music using "Day Is Dying in the West" for the evening worship service.

The First Quarterly Conference of the First Methodist Church will be held Monday, Sept. 12, at 7:30 p.m. in Fellowship Hall with Dr. J. Edmund Kirby, district superintendent, presiding.

The vital importance of understanding God as the source of all true substance will be brought out at CHRISTIAN SCIENCE services this Sunday.

Readings in the Lesson-Sermon entitled "Substance" will include the following passage from "Science and Health with Key to the Scripture" (335:12): "Spirit is the only substance, the invisible and indivisible infinite God. Things spiritual and eternal are substantial. Things material and temporal are insubstantial."

The indestructible nature of spiritual substance is also stressed in selections to be read from the Bible, including the following: "I know that, whatsoever God doeth, it shall be for ever: nothing can be put to it, nor any thing taken from it (Eccl. 3:14 to 2d:).

The Golden Text is from John (6:27): "Labour not for the meat which perisheth, but for that meat which endureth unto everlasting life, which the Son of man shall give unto you: for him hath God the Father sealed."

Dr. J. Conally Evans, pastor of the Belmont Baptist Church, Odessa, will be the speaker at the 11:00 a.m. worship service of the FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH. Dr. Evans is one of the leaders in the city wide School of Missions to be held in the Southern Baptist Churches of Pampa.

The church choir will sing as special music "Holy, Lord God".

Dr. E. Douglas Carver, pastor, will conduct the ordinance of baptism at the beginning of the evening services.

Classes for the school of missions will be held each evening at 7 and a study of the Moslem religion for the various age groups will be conducted. An inspirational period led by a missionary or a denominational leader will close the sessions each evening.

The nursery will be open for all children under four years of age. Classes will be provided for the other age children.

Lamar Church Construction Starts Oct. 1

Construction of the proposed Lamar Christian Church is slated to get underway about Oct. 1. MAKING A GO OF LIFE

By ROY L. SMITH

Read Psalm 24

Unbelief must answer questions too. Let there be no misunderstanding at this point. Good religion has no disire to shake itself free from logic and reason, nor does it ask for favors on basis of loose or careless thinking. Under no circumstances will it violate any known fact, for a faith founded on truth has no rom or contradictions. All trith is a part of the whole truth. There is no civil war between truths. Our insistence is, however, that there are real experiences that cannot be confined to any logical theory, and some of these are the most creative and thrilling with which we have to deal.

Modern seekers after God do not fail because of lack of reason or logic. Unbelief has more questions to answer than belief has. Materialism calls for more blind faith than a belief in God does. Whatever confusion may have engulfed us in our efforts to identify God has arisen from the fact that we have not understood the significance of spiritual principles, nor have we learned to evaluate spiritual facts. Our proofs do not lie in test tubes, libraries, nor laboratories, but in the experiences of individuals.

It sometimes happens that men have given up the search for God because religion, as they have known it, does not provide satisfactory answers. But unbelief offers no more help. We do not answer a question by running away from it. We do not escape dilemmas by shuting our eyes to them. We do not solve problems by saying they cannot be solved. The healthy-minded man goes on with the search, undismayed by the problems that await him.

Thou art divine and I am human. It is not surprising, then, that my small mind should not be able to measure all thy magnificence, O God. But I will go on stretching my mind with thoughts of thee, in the confidence that some day I shall know thee better and more. Amen.

Make a list of at least 10 questions which unbelief must answer if it is to be accepted by thinking men. How did this world come to be? What keeps it going? Who or what fashioned it? What about human personality? Does it help any to say: "I do not believe"?

Korean Couple To Speak At Central Baptist

Rev. and Mrs. Don Kim of Southwestern Baptist Seminary, Fort Worth, will speak at the morning and evening services at Central Baptist Church this Sunday. Rev. and Mrs. Kim are both natives of Korea.

Rev. Kim is the son of a Baptist pastor in Pusan, Korea, and is presently doing work on his doctor's degree, preparatory to returning to Korea as a missionary to his own people.

Mrs. Kim was a teacher in high school in Korea when Korea was overrun by the Japanese. Because of her refusal to deny Christianity and worship the Japanese emperor, she was imprisoned, and for some six or eight years was kept in a crowded prison under extreme torture.

Her testimony of her experiences during those days of imprisonment is a thrilling story.

Central Baptist Church, along with the other Southern Baptist churches of Pampa, will conduct a school of missions and stewardship next week. Classes in mission study for all ages will meet at 7 each night, and after a 45-minute class period, all will assemble in the church auditorium to hear a visiting missionary or speaker.

Women In The Church

Dr. Randolph C. Miller, professor of Christian Education at Yale Divinity School, New Haven, Conn., reports that parents and children in increasing numbers are worshiping together in one unified Sunday morning worship service.

This new plan has been hailed as the most successful single development in the churches' program to provide a ministry to the needs of the entire family as a unit.

Another trend fast becoming an accepted pattern in American churches is the use of teams made up of husband and wife or man and women, as teachers in Sunday school.

Nearly 100 young American church people in groups of from fifteen to twenty-five have been abroad this summer spending an average of a month in one of the twenty-seven different church-sponsored work camps, the Rev. Joseph A. Howell, secretary for the program in the United States announces.

The sponsor for the program in this country is the United Christian Youth Movement of the National Council of Churches.

Overseas the program is conducted by the Youth Department of the World Council of Churches in cooperation with the national councils of churches of the countries involved.

The United States volunteers come from twenty-five different states and represent a total of nine of the major Protestant communions. They are at work on projects ranging from the reconstruction of a war-damaged village in Greece to repairing an old people's home in France and redeveloping flooded soil for farmers in an isolated Swiss village.

In addition to those going overseas, another twenty-seven young Americans and ten students from abroad who are studying here, will stay in the United States to work in three camps in the south and west. In addition to these most church denominations have similar programs for their young people.

Essentially "the work of the camps represents a "search for a renewed faith and life in the Church," Mr. Howell says. "These young people seek a wider witness and a greater missionary effectiveness throughout the world and greater unity among divided churches and separated Christians."

MRS. SAM MAYO
... to speak to Baptists

Mrs. Mayo To Speak Here

Mrs. Sam Mayo, Southern Baptist home missionary to migrants, will be one of the several missionaries and visiting speakers appearing in Pampa's Baptist churches in their schools of missions and stewardship next week.

Approximately 2000 Southern Baptist churches in Texas are conducting these schools this fall.

These schools are featured by a 45-minute period of mission study, followed by a visiting speaker.

Mrs. Mayo, whose home is in Oglethorpe, Ga., will present the work of Southern Baptist home missions to the various churches where she will speak next week.

These churches will be Calvary Baptist, Central Baptist, First Baptist, Hobart St. Baptist and Trinity Baptist. Miss Fenderson of Minneapolis, Minn., will present the work of foreign missions and Dr. L. B. Cobb of Dallas will discuss the work of state missions.

Classes for all age groups will be conducted in each of these churches next week, Monday through Friday night.

Church Of Christ Sets Bible Movie

"Our Bible and How It came to Us," a full - length, sound movie will be shown at a young people's meeting Monday evening at 7:30 at the Mary Ellen and Harvester Church of Christ.

Special invitations have been sent to all congregations of the Church of Christ in the Panhandle area. Also an invitation has been extended to all young people of the community.

This movie was shown at the Bible Lectureship at Abilene Christian College last February and Weslie Mickey, minister of the church, was impressed by the scope of it and has reserved it for the young people of the community and area.

Art Exhibit Set Sunday

A one-man exhibition featuring paintings by Charlie Bunnell, prominant Colorado Springs artist, will open Sunday at 4 p.m. in Lovett Memorial Library auditorium.

The exhibit will open for a week with a tea planned by the executive board of the Pampa Arts and Crafts Association from 4-6 p.m. Sunday. Pampans and area residents invited to attend.

Dord Fitz is arranging the exhibit, which will be made up of 20 paintings dating back into the forties and 24 recent paintings. Fitz says that . . . "The earlier paintings are almost hypnotic in their other-worldly quality, they are similar to Blake, but cast a greater mystic spell upon the beholder."

Bunnell taught painting classes at Kansas City Art Institute for four years, and has painted and taught under U.S. Government-sponsored projects and activities from 1934 to 1941. He has had one-man shows all over the country, including: Kansas City Art Institute, Santa Fe Museum, and Carl Earnet Galleries in Dallas.

The Weekly Message Of Inspiration

REV. PAUL M. FITCH
Evangelical Methodist Church

A CHRISTIAN

To Paul of Tarsus this business of being a Christian was not for weaklings. Paul had a lot to say about soldiering, and about enduring hardness. He talked about fighting and about running races. To Paul Christianity could be compared to the Olympic games, where a man had to be a man. You couldn't just go out there where the tough fellows were contending for the prize and stumble into victory. You had to get in trim; you had to be able to "take it." Christianity, he said, was like that.

I have often wondered where we got the idea of a rosy-sweet gospel. You don't find it mentioned in the New Testament. Jesus never brought it up! He talked about cutting off feet and hands and plucking out eyes and squeezing through tight gates and plunging stubbornly down narrow roads; He said something about shouldering a cross, too, and tramping along after Him.

Listen. Christianity is a "tough" business! It is a great fight. It is a rugged game. Christ says, "take back your weaklings, world; they cannot stick with Me unless they are ready for Calvary!" The sybmbol of Christianity is a cross, not a couch!

Those three Hebrews named in the Book of Daniel will always be magnificent. It would have been a simple thing to bend to the Babylonian diety. Babylon was a big town, and the Hebrew children were captives of war. It wasn't easy to fling a challenge in Nebuchadnezzar's face after seeing his legions move at his quick command. But it was a big thing. And somehow, it turned out as we thought it should. God turned a furnace into a Frigidaire. But steady, forever, we thrill to the Hebrew's word "If we burn, even then we won't bow!" Little? Cowards No! Christianity and Christians are the biggest things that ever hit this earth.

SKIN CARE SHOULD BEGIN EARLY. Many adults bear the scars or traces of poor skin care during their youth or their teens, when skin problems generally begin. Below is an article by Dorothy Gray, a beauty specialist. Just a word of my own to teenagers: Don't wear heavy makeup. Youth has a beauty all its own which excessive makeup hides. And it is my personal opinion that use of a great deal of makeup at any age helps cause skin troubles.

GOOD LOOKS GLEAM through a clear skin.

Teen age girls and boys get so much pleasure from a good complexion and suffer so much from a bad one, that every effort should be made to get them started early on good skin care routines.

Dorothy Gray recommends two skin care routines for teen age girls: one for good skins — how to best cleanse them and keep them lovely — and one for troubled complexions. Many of their recommendations for blemished skins can well be heeded by teen age boys too.

For the teen age girl with a good skin, two treatment preparations and makeup items are suggested.

A girl should start to use cleansing cream when she begins using makeup. A good cold cream not only does the best cleansing job, but it is not drying and it helps keep the skin soft and pliant.

After the cream has been tissued off, a mild skin freshener should be used. It is applied on a piece of cotton, then wiped with long upward motions up throat and face. This will remove excess cream, leave the skin refreshed and sparkling clean. If the skin is really oily, a more astringent lotion will be beneficial.

SKIN BLEMISHES arise from excessive oilness, caused by hormone imbalance which is characteristic of teen age. Oil clogs the pores, leads to pimples and blackheads. Owners of badly blemished complexions should be marched off to a skin doctor's for specialized care.

Treatment of blemished skins must be external and internal. Externally, effective cleansing is most important.

Dorothy Gray emphasizes the importance of thorough daily cleansing, cautions against covering up an improperly cleansed and blemished complexion with makeup. This makes it worse.

Teen agers shoul dnever put soiled fingers to face. They should shampoo and brush their hair often.

INTERNAL RULES for blemished complexions: Avoid fried or spicy foods, chocolates, nuts and peanut butter. Eat lean meats, fresh fruits and vegetables, drink lots of water between meals. Get a good night's rest, take moderate exercise, correct faculty elimination.

Now is the moment, as school has just begin, to start a teen-age skin care program. It will soon be second nature, and girls and boys both will be well on the road to the joy and peace of mind of a good complexion.

GRACE FRIEND

Dear Grace Friend:

Quite often we read in your column requests for work that can be done at home, and we are sure that most of these requests are from folks who really need some means of earning part or all of their livelihood at home.

A few weeks ago we answered an ad in the Female Help Column of your paper, the same ad is currently running again and it asks for women, right now, to address post cards at home.

FULL INFORMATION

We have the full information on this ad as we received from the advertiser a letter which in every way indicated that the work would be for some local business firm that had been investigated and found good and reliable by the advertiser, so we sent the dollar requested for a book of information and instruction.

Said book is a small pamphlet we read thoroughly in five minutes. The set-up is we send them $5 for 250 post cards that they have to sell. Our name and address is printed on each card — it's double and must be folded through the middle. We address these cards by using names and addresses from the phone book and other sources they mention and mail them, 50 or more daily.

If the recipient falls for what this firm has for sale, they fill in the order half of the card and mail it. It comes to us and daily we mail the cards received to the firm in Boston, Mass. They fill the orders and collect the money for every order they collect on, and we get one dollar.

NAME PLATE

Here is what they have to sell—a plastic name plate, 4½x2 inches with ½ inch letters, for your door at $1.13 each. Now isn't that something?

They claim orders will be filled within 24 hours — how can they be, coming from Boston? They stress the point that we make one dollar free and clear on every order. How can we? We pay one dollar for the pamphlet, $5 for each box of 250 cards (no less) and then we pay another $5 for postage stamps in order to mail the cards.

And we cannot put these folded cards with two open edges in the mail without a clip to hold them shut, so we buy paper clips, also.

DOESN'T HEAR OF FIRM

Besides doing the work and taking full responsibility for what the firm prints on the card (buyer doesn't ever hear of the firm until they get the name plate and a bill for it) one makes an $11 or more investment without any assurance whatever that we even get one dime return.

So we hope you can print this letter right away before many folks lose that first dollar — we all need them and we feel ours is one dollar well spent if it helps to keep others from losing money on such a scheme.

We still have this literature if anyone cares to see it and we intend to return it and request the return of our dollar to see what happens.

Many thanks,
Mrs. P.

Dear Mrs. P.:

The paper is grateful to you for calling attention to the ad which will be cancelled at once.

BABY

If you live in an apartment or a one-floor home be sure that Baby gets some stair-climbing practice when he's ready. A couple of steps to the front door or a short flight in a store will be fun and helpful for him, though wearing for you.

No need to be so very careful when first bathing your new Baby. If he doesn't get a few splashes in his face now and then, he may grow up to be very shy of water or showers or not enjoy swimming.

When pinning the diaper on a brand-new Baby, lap the back flap over the front before pinning, rather than the reverse. This is easier to get at when Baby's on his back and also allows freer motion for his legs.

Mrs. Fay Dellis Adams Gives Program On Symphonic Orchestra To TC Club

Mrs. Fay Dellis Adams led a study of the symphonic orchestra at the recent meeting of the Treble Clef Club in the City Club Room.

Mrs. Adams told of the importance of timbre in music, defining the word as "quality of tone, the distinctive color of each instrument or human voice."

"Like the painter with his palette, the composer mixes his colors, blends them or contrasts them as he sees fit," she stated.

The orchestra has been responsible for the shifting of interest from the vocal to the instrumental branch of music, Mrs. Adams explained. In the history of the orchestra, composers thought of instruments as simply so many voices substituting for or duplicating the real thing, she pointed out. The seventeenth century saw orchestral music take on a distinct instrumental value. The past 100 years have witnessed a great growth in size of the orchestra, in the improvement of old instruments and the introduction of new, as well as artistic and technical standards of playing them, she told the group.

Mrs. Adams reviewed the composition of a modern symphonic orchestra, stating there are four instrumental families or "choirs" — the string, woodwind, brass and percussion. She described briefly the function of each "choir" and the tone quality of each, showing pictures of the instruments and playing recordings.

Mrs. Mack Hiatt, president, led the business session. New members were introduced by Mrs. John Hankins. Mrs. J. B. Morrison accepted donations for the music shelf of the library and explained how her committee would operate. Mrs. John Gill announced the October meeting will be a guest day. Members are to bring guests whose names will be presented for Membership at the November meeting.

Hostesses for the social period were Mmes. Mack Hiatt, John Gill, Melvin Stephens, Lonnie Richardson and Walter Bowen.

COOK'S NOOK

Steak Is Main Attraction For Back-Yard Barbecue

By GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Food and Markets Editor

Let's have another back-yard barbecue. Everybody likes them. We went to one outside Chicago the other day. Of course, Chicago means good steaks, so that is what we had.

Although steak will reign supreme for the outdoor barbecue, preferences for steaks vary. Some prefer individual steaks to be cooked to the favored degree of doneness.

Select 1-inch to 1½-inch thick beef tenderloin, club or the boneless loin steak, known as a strip steak.

Porterhouse or T-bone steaks cut 1½ inches thick will serve two people and, for more servings, select sirloin steaks, cut from 1-inch to 2 inches thick.

Other cuts of beef may be broiled or grilled if they are of top quality, bearing a packer's brand and are aged.

Chuck or shoulder, rib, rump and top round steak usually are best if cut ½ to ¾-inch thick and soaked ahead of time in French dressing or garlic-seasoned salad oil. Plan on ½ to 1 pound of meat per serving depending on the amount of bone. This is greater than usual, but remember those outdoor appetites.

Time for broiling steaks depends on the distance of the meat from the coals. In general, 1-inch thick steaks, medium rare, will require 20 minutes, while 2-inch beef steaks will take 40 minutes. Turn the steaks every 15 minutes and daub liberally with a barbecue sauce during the grilling period.

E-Z Barbecue Sauce (Hot)
(Yield: 1 cup)

One tablespoon chopped onion, 1 tablespoon fat, 1 clove garlic, ½ cup catsup, 2 tablespoons vinegar, ½ cup water, ¼ teaspoon chili powder, ¼ teaspoon paprika, 2 teaspoons sugar, 1 tablespoon prepared mustard, 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, ¼ teaspoon salt.

Cook onion in fat over low heat until soft but not brown. Peel garlic and add. Add remaining ingredients. Mix thoroughly. Bring to boiling point, lower heat, and simmer 10 minutes. Remove garlic. Prepare in advance and store in refrigerator.

LADY IN "DISTRESS"—Wrestler Tarzan Moreno rides the horns of a bull as he keeps the animal from goring a young Mexican girl tied to a stake in a daring performance at Reynosa. Maria Bonita narrowly escaped death when the bull made several approaches before Moreno could distract him.

DANIEL BOONE

By Russ Winterbotham and Ralph Lane

Disaster fell upon the party. First, John Finley fell ill and was left behind near Cumberland Gap, the gateway to Kentucky.

Next, Cherokee hunters surprised Dan'l Boone, his brother-in-law, John Stuart, and three helpers

Warning the whites to stay away from their hunting ground, the redskins took their horses and all but one gun.

Disregarding the Indians' warning, Dan'l followed the Cherokees. That night he reached their camp.

The Good And Bad Of Week's News

By CHARLES M. McCANN
United Press Foreign Analyst

The week's good and bad news on the international balance sheet:

GOOD NEWS

1. The general relaxation of West-East tension bore fruit when Red China and Red Russia decided to free some Americans long held captive. After five weeks of negotiation by United States and Chinese representatives in Geneva, the Chinese announced they would release 12 American civilians, including four women and two young girls. The Russians freed two American soldiers whom they had held prisoner for more than seven years. Negotiations continued in Geneva for the release of an additional 29 Americans held in China.

2. Tough old West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer flew to Moscow to discuss at Russia's invitation, the establishment of normal diplomatic, trade and cultureal relations. "My object is to serve peace, not only in Europe but in the whole world," Adenauer said on his departure. He planned to ask the Russians about the unity of Germany, and the restoration of the rich German territory east of the Oder-Neisse Riverline now held by Communist Poland. Allied governments were confident that close co-operation with the West would not be weakened.

3. The United States, in a new attempt to put disarmament negotiations on a business basis, called in the United Nations for a new study of the whole question of inspection and control of both nuclear and conventional weapons. Russia's refusal to permit real inspection of its nuclear weapons installations has long been an obstacle to agreement. There was some surprise when news came from Moscow that United States Ambassador Charlie E. Bohlen and 10 other foreign envoys had been taken on a visit to a peaceful Russian atomic installation, a power plant.

BAD NEWS

1. The demand of Greece for the strategically important Mediterranean island of Cyprus resulted in anti-Greek riots in Turkey. Martial law was declared in three Turkish cities. Greece wants the island because its people are largely Greeks. But Britain has held it since 1878 and Turkey owned it previously. Greece itself never possessed it. If Britain gives it up, Turkey wants it. In London, a British-Greek - Turkish conference on Cyprus broke up without agreement. In Paris, the North Atlantic Treaty Council, of which all three countries are members, met to consider the situation.

2. French Premier Edgar Faure sought urgently to work out an agreement for limited home rule for the North African protectorate of Morocco before Monday, the deadline he has set for himself. But he has met violent opposition in his own cabinet and his position is dangerous.

3. The explosive situation between Egypt and Israel in Palestine was taken up by the UN Security Council. Truce supervisor Maj. Gen. E. L. M. Burns of Canada proposed a demilitarized one to prevent clashes on the frontier of Israel and the Egyptian-held Gaza area. Israel reported that Jordan was concentrating armored and artillery forces on the Israel-Jordan frontier.

East Is Meeting West In Fashion, Furnishings

By ELIZABETH TOOMEY

NEW YORK —UP— A week in Manhattan:

East is meeting West these days in everything from face makeup to home furnishings.

The mandarin collar is the least of it, though in the fashion department this Oriental standby is around in new varions. But we'll by seeing more sari-type evening dresses than even a one-world promoter could have envisioned.

The Indian sari, a filmy robe embroidered in gold that drapes gracefully around the body, has been adapted for budget cocktail dresses and custom-made evening gowns.

A Substitute Appears

At the close of the custom fashion collection at Bergdorf Goodman this week, the traditional show-closing wedding dress was missing and an evening dress of filmy, pleated fabric named for Nandi, the Hindu goddess of joy, was substituted. Designer Leslie Morris had other Far Eastern dresses, including a gold-embroidered black silk jersey dress and cream-colored tunic dress worn with a gold-bordered green chiffon stole.

Home furnishings, both the fabrics and the furniture, have their new Oriental look too. One decor this week, a collection of coverings for sofas and windows inspired by Marco Polo and his adventures in the Far East. The colors are melon pink and bronzed gold and other delicate, muted shades that remind the homeowner of the sun-bleached colors of the orient.

A furniture company begins a week-long show Monday of its far eastern collection — teak wood storage chests with half-moon drawer pulls; tables inlaid with sunburst patterns and much use of cane in delicate chairs.

As for faces — we're supposed to fade from summer tans to exotic paleness, the cosmetics people say, and use silvery-toned eye shadow and upturned lines at the outer corners of the eyes to accent the oriental look.

"All line and color and no gadgets, that's what we gals like to wear," designer Bonnie Cashin said. She was commenting on her newest collection of rain coats, designed for the Harris Raincoat Co., and illustrated her point with simple-lined rain coats in unusual colors like avocado green, curry yellow, strawberry pink and champagne beige. Sleeves, often made in a casual rolled-up shirtsleeve style, revealed unexpected plaid linings in harmonizing colors.

Everything Eliminated

"Everything has been eliminated," hat designer John Frederics sighed, expressing the modern women's preference for simplicity in clothing in a different way.

"Women want small hats that are convenient for traveling and easy to get in and out of cars with," the designer said. "The day of a milliner showing off his skill with an elaborate, intricate hat has gone."

Women aren't the only ones worried about reconditioning their sunburned skins. The Gourelli groom shop here, a strictly male appearance-improving salon, is featuring facials of active ozone cream to smooth sun-flaked skins.

Cow Saves Woman From Another Cow

TEXARKANA, Tex. — UP — A mild mannered, almost cowardly one-eyed cow was a heroine around the O. W. Johns place Friday after saving the farm woman from possible death during an attack by another enraged cow.

Mrs. Johns suffered three broken ribs, numerous lacer[illegible] and bruises during the attack by another cow named Sally.

Mrs. Ernest Connella, a sister of Mrs. Johns, said the battle of the cows began this way:

Mrs. Johns, who lives on Route 2 in the New Boston community, went to the barn to get some potatoes for a meal when she was attracted by a barnyard commotion. She found Sally, a brown Jersey, chasing three-year-old Harvey Johns, her son, around the barnyard.

When Mrs. Johns tried to go to her son's rescue, the irate cow attacked her, knocking her to the ground.

"She began stomping Mrs. Johns and even fell on her once," Mrs. Connella said. Suddenly, "Old One-Eye," another brown Jersey with a single crooked horn, appeared and attacked Sally.

During the fight between the two cows, Mrs. Johns managed to crawl to safety and two of her daughters then broke up the fight between the two animals.

Mrs. Johns was released Thursday from the hospital, but her husband sold the fighting cow the day after the attack.

Vice Probe Interference Is Claimed

GALVESTON —UP— Mayor George Roy Clough said Thursday he is "investigating" Police Commissioner Walter Johnston and that Johnston is trying "desperately to stop me."

Clough charged that Johnston, his arch political foe, "has gone to the city's racketeers in an effort to raise money to finance a recall action against the mayor.

"Three of those approached," Clough said, "told me personally that they refused to join the effort. They said, too, they would not give a nickel to remove me from office but they'd pitch in $500 apiece to get Johnston out."

At Odds Over 'Program'

Clough, elected last May, has been at odds with Johnston over a program for "open but clean" vice and gambling in this resort island. Last week Clough criticized use of city police cars to deliver newspapers to Johnston and Police Chief Willie Burns.

Johnston retaliated by ordering his police to ignore orders from the mayor unless sent through regular "channels." Previously, Johnston had told police to take orders from the mayor.

Clough charged that during the time Johnston permitted him to use police places he ordered raided were "tipped off in advance."

"Johnston was informed of every step I tried to take," Clough said.

Latest Flareup

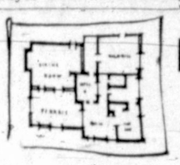

The latest flareup between Clough and Johnston came amid rumors that big-time mobsters from St. Louis or Chicago were moving in at nearby Port Bolivar in a move to "buy in" on the Maceo syndicate.

The FBI reportedly was investigating.

There have been persistent reports that big-time hoodlums were appearing in Galveston in attempts to set off a possible gang war by trying to "muscle in" on the Maceo gambling operations.

Clough has declined to confirm that any strange hoodlums have been seen in Galveston but did charge that efforts have been made to get him to okay slot machines, which he closed down when he took office.

Low-cost dieldrin seed treatment protects crops from wireworm damage

Treatment Costs Pennies Per Acre, Assures Better Stands of Grain

Newly seeded fields make good feeding grounds for true and false wireworms and other soil insects. If there is not enough moisture in the soil to permit quick sprouting, seeds are vulnerable to insect attack for several days. But the threat of wireworm damage should be recognized at all times.

A dieldrin preventive seed treatment is a sure way to protect wheat and other small grain seeds until they sprout.

Low-cost protection

It costs just pennies per acre to treat seed with dieldrin, but dollars per acre to feed the wireworms untreated seed! A dieldrin seed treatment prevents "spotty" stands . . . eliminates the expense of time and money for re-planting or sowing extra seed for the wireworms to feed on . . . assures you of a longer grazing period. And dieldrin does not harm plant development.

Compatible with fungicides

Dieldrin is compatible with fungicides . . . can be applied at the same time to save the expense and work of a double treatment. You can buy dieldrin-treated seed from your seed dealer, or treat the seed yourself. Dieldrin can be applied as a slurry, dry, or in a grain drill. A convenient method is to apply dieldrin to the seed in the grain drill as you plant. Follow directions on the label for the particular formulation you buy.

Less work at planting time

Seed can be treated now and stored until planting time. Dieldrin eliminates the rush of treating seed and planting within a few days. Dieldrin formulations are available throughout the wheat growing area. See your local supplier.

Oilers Capture Playoff Opener At Albuquerque, 11-2

Press Box Views

By BUCK FRANCIS
Pampa News Sports Editor

IT'S CERTAINLY GRATIFYING to know that a number of the Pampa Oilers plan to spend the winter in Pampa.

By these players desiring to remain in Pampa during the off season, it is more or less proof that the Top o' Texas has made an impression on these newcomers to our city.

At the latest count, nine of the current members of the Oilers want to winter in Pampa. This doesn't count the manager, Grover Seitz. Seitz, however, is more or less a native here and has been wintering here down through the years.

These players must obtain a job of some sort to be able to remain here during the off season.

All professional baseball players, especially all below the major league level, do not make enough during the season to run them through the off season.

So, these players must work during the off season.

The nine players who would like to remain here for the winter are Tom Pollet, Rach Slider, Curtis Hardaway, Red Dial, Joe Fortin, Dick Hairston, Buddy Woods, Tommy Harrison and Bobby Votaw.

Votaw, however, is currently employed here and plays only when the Oilers are at home.

If anyone would like to employ these players during the off season, please contact the Oiler business office, phone 4-8551.

FOOTBALL SEASON IN THE area gets underway with a full blast tonight.

If you fans can't wait until the Harvesters open the season next week to see some football, you won't have to go far tonight to see grid action.

Dalhart is at Lefors, Groom is at White Deer, Canadian is at Wheeler, Shamrock is at McLean and Panhandle at Perryton are headliners in the area tonight.

Kirkpatrick In Comeback Try At Texas Tech

LUBBOCK —UP— Jack Kirkpatrick is trying the comeback trail this fall, and it's a path the Texas Tech quarterback has traveled before.

When Tech opens against Texas in Austin Sept. 17, the Red Raiders, signal caller, Kirkpatric, will be trying to go full speed for the first time since Tech trounced Aurbun 35-13 in the 1954 Gator Bowl.

A broken ankle in the spring of 1954 started his troubles. A calcium formation developed and the Border Conference's most valuable player of 1953 started only one game last season. Once, when he was about ready, a heavy lineman stepped on his toe in a Friday night workout and the resulting swelling resembled a break.

Kirkpatrick first showed he could bounce back when he was a freshman in 1952.

During the 1952 season, Kirkpatrick was nearly killed when his car was demolished against a tree one night. Despite deep gashes in his shoulder, thigh and hand, and against the wishes of coach DeWitt Weaver, Kirkpatrick was soon back on the practice field, kicking placements.

Twenty two days after the accident, the heavily-taped Kirkpatrick hobbled onto the field to kick the extra points that gave Tech a 14-14 tie with Hardin-Simmons and end a six-game losing streak. Two weeks more and he was back in the lineup—on defense.

Injuries kept him from being used as quarterback but didn't prevent his leading the conference in extra point kicking.

Some may take exception to the statement that Kirkpatrick is making a comeback.

Those who saw him in the latter part of last season weaving a 49-yard touchdown run against Houston and playing all-around good football against Tulsa and Hardin-Simmons may not feel he has ever been very far away.

CO-CAPTAINS — Co-Captains for the Lefors Pirates' football game against the Dalhart Wolves at 8 o'clock tonight in Lefors, are Jerry Herring, left, and Johnny Rowe. Coach H. W. Callan has announced that his policy will be to pick different team captains for each week's conflict.

Lefors Pirates Host Dalhart Wolves Tonight

By JOEL COMBS
Pampa News Staff Writer

Lefors, Sept. 9 — The Lefors Pirates, runners-up in district 1-A last year, kick off the 1955 season against the always potent Dalhart Wolves at Shaw Park in Lefors at 8 o'clock tonight.

Coach H. W. Callan and assistant coach C. H. Keeton have been holding long, hard workouts this week in anticipation of a close game with the Wolves, tutored by Roy Carter.

The Pirates eked out a 6-0 victory over Dalhart last year enroute to a 9-1-1 season. The lone defeat in '54 came at the hands of the McLean Tigers, district champions.

Callan has 12 lettermen returning from last year's team to form the nucleus for another district challenger. Callan picks Stinnett and Memphis are the teams to beat in district 1-A this year without predicting as to how his own Pirates might come out.

As to his own chances tonight Callan says, "Dalhart has about the same team back as they had last year. It's going to be rough one, I'll tell you. They'll be hard to beat."

The Pirates rest next week, after playing the rugged Wolves, and then have nine more games without a break in sight. The Pirates meet Clarendon, at Lefors Sept. 23; McLean, there, Sept. 30; White Deer at home, Oct. 7; Shamrock, there, Oct. 14; Stinnett, there, Oct. 21; Panhandle, which will be the homecoming game, Oct. 29; Canadian, there, Nov. 4; Wellington, there, Nov. 11; and Memphis, at home, Nov. 18. Clarendon, McLean, White Deer, Stinnett, Panhandle, Canadian, Wellington, and Memphis are all conference games.

Other team members expected to see action, include: ends, Royce Gee, Howard Bradfield, Fred Kindle, Jerry Watson, and Tommy Herring; tackles, Bernard Johnson and Calvin Stracener; guards, Larry Blair and Jimmy Gotcher; center, Tex Nolan; backs Tommy Johnson, David Smith, James Warriner Billy Joe Fulton, Herschel Bogle, and Joe Fields.

A community picnic is planned to be held at the park tonight following the game. The picnic will be sponsored by the Football and Band Mother's Clubs and the school. Families are expected to bring basket lunches.

G-Sox Down Ponies Again

By UNITED PRESS

Amarillo broke two games out in front in the first round of the West Texas-New Mexico League playoffs Thursday night with a 15-8 victory and its second straight win over Plainview.

Pampa took a one game lead with an 11-2 win over Albuquerque in the opener of their series which was postponed Wednesday night.

Amarillo will be at Plainview Friday night, but Pampa remains at Albuquerque. Rudy Arias will pitch for the Gold Sox Friday night opposing Plainview's Bob Swanson while John Morrill will be on the hill for Albuquerque against Tom Pollett for Pampa.

Six homers were responsible for the Amarillo victory Thursday night. The big blows were stroked by Vic Colo, Taft Wright, Tommy and Bruce Tellinger. Andy bush was the winner although giving up 13 hits, and Willie Neal, first of four Pony tossers, was the loser.

Pampa needed only the six-hit pitching of Red Dial and Curtis Hardaway's homer, double and triple to beat the Dukes.

Dial, Hardaway Spark Oiler Win

ALBUQUERQUE, Sept. 9 — Red Dial spun a neat six-hitter and his Pampa Oiler teammates banged out 16 hits off a trio of Albuquerque Duke pitchers here Thursday night to give the Oilers an 11-2 victory in the opening of the Shaughnessy Playoff series.

Curtis Hardaway led the Oiler attack with a homer, triple and double.

The two teams will meet again here tonight and then switch back to Pampa Saturday night for game Nos. 3, 4 and 5.

John Morrill (5-2) hurls for the Dukes tonight with Tom Pollet the Oiler selection. Pollet had a 21-6 mark in the season.

Pampa jumped on 23-game winner Shandor for a pair of runs in the first and was never headed. The Oilers rocked Shandor for a trio in the second and three more in the sixth came off reliefer Bauhofer. Southpaw Ernie Bartolomei tossed shutout ball in the final three ad two-thirds.

Albuquerque's lone two runs tallied in the fifth via three blows including Manager Eddie Bockman's 22nd home run over the scoreboard.

Lead-off back-to-back singles by Rach Slider and Pete Carmona clustered with Joe Fortin's long double to center scored two in the Oiler first. Three hits plus Pedro Santiago's muff of a fly ball in center made it 5-0, Pampa, after the second.

Paul Halter's left center triple and a squeeze sacrifice added the sixth run off Shandor in the third, Pampa finally sending the pitcher to the showers with a pair in the fourth, including Hardaway's prodigious, 400-foot solo circuit.

Bauhofer met the same fate as his predecessor in the sixth when a quartet of hits produced three for an 11-2 advantage. Bartolomei finished up with a two-hitter but the damage had been done.

Albuquerque, held hitless until the fifth, finally broke through Dial when Bockman opened with his homer. Ken Menkel and Bob Flores singled and a fielder's choice then scored Menkel.

Dial spaced his six hits in perfect fashion, struck out five, walked two and was supported by brilliant fielding on the part of his mates. The redhead also contributed two hits to Pampa's attack.

Evidence that Pampa meant business at the plate is clearly borne out in the boxscore. The Oilers socked two doubles, four triples and a round-tripper for the 29-extra-base total. Hardaway and Slider paced attack with three apiece.

Dodgers Clinch Pennant; Cleveland Retains AL Lead

By UNITED PRESS

Now that they've sipped champagne, the triumphant Brooklyn Dodgers would like a taste of that long green, and it looks like they're going to get their $$$$ wish to meet either the Indians or Yankees in the World Series.

Both the Indians and Yankees are doing their darndest to accommodate the Dodgers, who were looking at world through a bright, bubbly haze Friday after breaking their own record for the earliest pennant clinching in National League history.

The Indians clung to their half game lead in the American League by beating the Orioles 5-3 in 10 innings Thursday while the second-place Yankees stayed right on the Tribe's tail by trampling the Athletics 13-0.

Dodgers outfielder Duke Snider, speaking for the rest of his teammates after Thursday's wrap - up 10-2 victory over the Braves, said, "We don't care whether it's the Yankees or the Indians, but we'd like it to be either one of 'em because they both have big parks and that means more money."

Other Contenders Lose

Maybe, in the light of talk like that, the American League's two other contenders, Chicago and Boston, will begin to feel unwanted. Anyway, both blew 4-1 leads Thursday as the White Sox bowed to Washington 5-4 and the Red Sox lost to the Tigers by the same score.

Larry Doby supplied the big blow in Cleveland's victory by blasting Ted Gray's first pitch in the 10th inning for his 26th homer of the year and third in two days. The Indians added another run in the same frame as relief pitcher Ray Narleski posted his ninth straight victory without a defeat.

Yankee right-hander Bob Turley coasted to his 15th victory as he limited Kansas City to five singles. Yogi Berra gave Turley more than enough support by driving in six runs with a pair of three-run homers.

Virgil Trucks of the White Sox had a three-run lead over the Senators until Mickey Varnon homered with one on in the sixth and Washington went on to add the deciding two runs in the seventh. The defeat dropped the White Sox 2 1-2 games off the pace.

The Red Sox fell four games back when the Tigers rallied for four runs in the ninth inning to win.

Brooks Enjoy Biggest Lead

The Dodgers routed Bob Buhl with a four-run burst in the opening frame and then added another four-run cluster in the fifth inning with the help of Jackie Robinson's two-run homer.

The Dodgers thus broke their own record for the earliest National League clinchng, havng set the previous mark when they wrapped up the 1953 flag on Sept. 12. In beating the Braves Thursday, the Brooks took a 17-game lead, the biggest margin they've enjoyed this year.

Despite two home runs by Wally Post, the Phillies topped the Redlegs 6-4 with the aid of a fine relief job by Bob Miller, who was credited with the victory. Post became the first right-handed Cincinnati bater ever to hit more than 35 homers in one season when he slammed his 36th with the bases empty in the third and his 37th with one on in the seventh.

Billy Gardner's homer off loser Harvey Haddix highlighted a five-run rally in the sixth inning that gave the Giants a 6-2 victory over the Cardinals.

The Cubs and Pirates were idle.

Texas City Goes 1-Up On Pirates

By UNITED PRESS

Texas City gained a 2-1 edge in the Big State League playoffs Thursday night while Corpus Christi beat Harlingen in the teams' first meeting for a 1-0 lead.

The Texans spotted Waco four runs in the first four inings, but rallied in the sixth and seventh for eight runs to gain a 9-5 win over the Pirates.

Jim Basso and Pop Faucett were the sparkplugs of the Texas City attack. Basso smashed two doubles and a single in four trips and scored three of the Texan runs, while Faucett connected for two singles to drive in four runs. Ed Konick got credit for the win and Waco's Don Rowe was the losing hurler.

Corpus Christi defeated Harlingen 9-7 in a free - hitting contest that had Clipper home runs by Dean Stafford, Kieth Little and Joe Christian. Doug Alford slammed out a homer for Harlingen.

Only the Texas City and Waco clubs will resume playoff activity Friday night, with the Texas Pirates playing at Texas City. Harlingen and Corpus Christi will be idle Friday night and will continue the series Saturday night at Harlingen.

Country Slaughter To Keep On Going

NEW YORK —UP— Old warhorse Enos Slaughter, who will be playing his 2,000th major league game any day now, declared Friday that he might keep on going — "three or four more years."

"Some day I'd like to manage a big league ball club," said the 39-year-old outfielder of the Kansas City Athletics. "But the way I feel right now, man, all I want to do is to play ball. I couldn't think of quitting. Why, man, I've been in 107 games this season."

Talking to the hustling Slaughter is like interviewing a mailman on his rounds because the guy never stops moving. He stalks the batting cage, waiting for his time at bat, and grumbling when he has to quit. He runs like a yeasty youngster when he shags flies in outfield practice. And he had played in 1996 games in 15 seasons through Thursday.

"Not counting a few hundred more in spring training and, oh yes don't forget old Enos got into a few World Series games along the way," he said.

"Yes, sir, I've been a big leaguer since 1938 and do you know something, the greatest thrill I ever get is when I go into a dressing room before a ball game and put on my uniform. Baseball is my life and every day just seems to mean more than the one before.

So when I finally have to quit playing ball, man, I'd sure like to try my hand as a manager. I think I have some baseball sense in my noodle.

"Where would I like to go? Man, if those Cardinals ever offered me a job as manager I'd sure take it. I have to have a soft spot in my heart for that town of St. Louis. We sure had some gas-house teams when I was arqund there."

History Repeats Itself For Bums

MILWAUKEE — UP — Brooklyn's 1955 pennant victory was one of coincidences.

The Dodgers broke their own record for early pennant victories set Sept. 12, 1953, at Milwaukee. The loser in that game, as Thursday, was Bob Buhl.

Buhl hit Roy Campanella on the wrist with a pitched ball in the 1953 penannt clincher. He did it again Thursday.

More than one-fifth of the 1,212 million bushels of wheat in storage in the United States April 1, 1955, was stored in Kansas.

Eagles Bow In Playoff Debut

By UNITED PRESS

San Antonio squared the Shaughnessy playoffs at one win apiece with Shreveport and Houston trimmed the Dallas Eagles in their opener in Texas League activity Thursday night.

The Mission blasted the Sports for 17 hits to collect a 12-6 victory in a hitting barrage that included a home run by Stan Hollmig and eight doubles. Don Ferrarese received the victory for San Antonio, although he was relieved in the ninth by Howie Fox.

hreveport got 10 of its 13 hits in the last three innings and scored four unearned runs in the eighth, adding two more runs in the ninth.

The Buffs snapped Red Murff's jinx in defeating the Eagles 5-1. Murff, who had a 4-0 record tagged for only seven hits, but Houston bunched them effectively in the first and sixth to take a 3-1 lead, which they augmented with two unearned runs in the seventh.

George Schultz, who had a 5-7 record for the season, pitched steady ball, spacing five hits. He walked one and fanned four. Houston iced the game with two runs in the sixth on Herby Adam's single, Bob Boyd's double and a pair of infield outs.

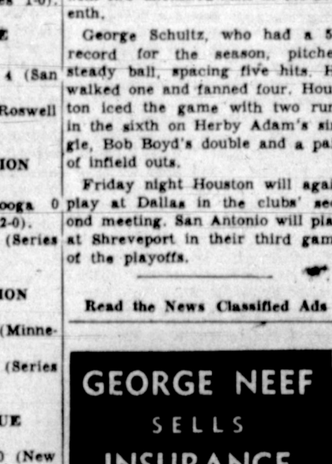

Friday night Houston will again play at Dallas in the clubs' second meeting. San Antonio will play at Shreveport in their third game of the playoffs.

Code For Men

The debate over the armed forces code for prospective prisoners of war indicates an alarming lack of understanding on the part of too many Americans as to just what the present world struggle is all about and the duty of an American citizen — be he or she soldier or civilian.

Essentially the code is nothing new. It merely states that a prisoner of war may give the enemy his name, rank, serial number and date of birth — nothing more — and puts him on notice that if he tells more, or cooperates with the enemy otherwise, he will have to defend his action before a court if and when he's liberated.

The critics of the code protest that American soldiers captured by the Reds are subjected to tortures and brainwashing techniques and therefore should not be blamed for revealing military information or for signing false "confessions."

Granted that a man in a Red POW camp is up against a very tough deal indeed, but no more brutal than some American soldiers encountered in the Indian wars or more recently, in the Philippines campaigns.

This, however, cannot be considered to have relieved him of his duty to be a man and stand firm against all pressure to make him turn traitor to his country. The man who reveals military information to the enemy in time of war is sacrificing the lives of his fellow soldiers. At the same time he is exposing his people at home to the possibility of defeat and the loss of their freedom.

Critics of the code point to the fact that some men have succumbed to the pressure of the Reds. They give this as a reason for telling our soldiers, in effect, "save yourself, never mind what happens to anyone else."

They ignore the many who have resisted all efforts to make them traitors.

They deplore the fact that the code makes clear that a liberated POW who turns yellow must defend his actions before a court when gets back home.

Anyone taking this position is playing directly into the hands of the enemy. The Communists have long been seeking to undermine us morally, and economically. They have sought to plant just the ideas which the critics of the code are now promoting — that it is useless to resist because the final triumph of Russian communism is inevitable.

If we are to tell our young men who have the misfortune to be captured that the Red pressure will be too strong for them, so they might as well go ahead and blab everything they know as soon as they fall into communist hands, without fear of punishment or even public disapproval, then the Kremlin has won a great victory and is a long way on the road toward putting all of us in slave labor camps.

It is only a matter of honesty and self-preservation that the code should be enforced impartially for military man and civilian alike.

Mac Writes Fiji Article On Hollywood's Favorite Sport

By HENRY McLEMORE

"Can you do us an article dealing with the favorite sport of the Hollywood set? Payment on acceptance in English pounds."

This was the cablegram I received from Fiji Flicker Facts, an authoritative journal devoted to the public and private lives of the men and women who populate the world of Cinemascope and Vista Vision.

I cabled a terse "You betcha boots I can." and plunged into the absorbing task.

Hollywood folk play at many games including cricket, although that pastoral sport has gone into decline since "Sir" Douglas Fairbanks and his flanels and blazer took up abode in London's West End.

Swimming is dear to the hearts of the studio set, as is to be expected with the greatest single concentration of pools in the world. I read only the other day that if all the water in Hollywood pools was combined it would form a lake whose shoreline would be only twelve feet shorter than that of Lake Superior. And that if the water that will soon fill the pools being built by stars whose options have just been renewed was added, it would surpass Lake Superior. Think of that!

Tennis has a very strong grip on the heart of Hollywood. One has only to visit the Racquet Club in Palm Springs to know that Australia is just living in a dream world if it thinks it will hold the Davis Cup for any length of time. The tennis played at Palm Springs is of a variety that not even Wimbledon or Forrest Hills can ever hope to see the likes of.

Hollywood is alive with sports fan addicts, too. As the salaries grow larger the cars grow smaller. When you see a car no higher than a midget's kneecap you can be sure the owner either gets a percentage of his pictures or has an independent producing company. Jimmy Stewart, for example, is reported to have ordered a car so small that when traffic gets unbearable he will be able to put it in his pocket and walk around the snarl or, if he is in a hurry, carry it all the way home.

But none of these is the FAVORITE sport of Hollywood. The favorite sport is one called "Going Into Seclusion." Right now, the most prominent player of this year-round game is Rita Hayworth Haymes. It's a simple game. All one has to do is pick up and leave one's spouse or spat with one's sweetheart and disappear into a hideaway known only to one's friends, one's studio and the press.

A variation of the game — a sort of doubles, so to speak — is often played by Hollywood husbands and wives. They flee to a hide-away together. Clark Gable and Kay Spreckels played this form of the sport as soon as they married and if the press hadn't printed where they were in seclusion, and photographers hadn't published pictures of them in their hideaway, no one in the world would have known their whereabouts.

The chief charm of the game for the spectators lies in the uncertainty of what star is going to take up the game next. Will it be Debbie? Will it be Kim? Or will it be Tab, Bory, Rock, or Roll?

Please understand that this is just a brief outline of the comprehensive article sent to Fiji. If you want the entire story it can be easily obtained by catching a Qantas plane to Suva and visiting the first newsstand.

Loaded Terms

Since a lot of our trouble comes from using words with many different meanings, which causes confusion, I want to reproduce from the September issue of The Freeman Magazine an editorial discussing four of these loaded-term words.

From here on The Freeman is speaking:

"Capitalistic Society. The sibilants in this combination of words give it a hissing sound that suggest something wicked. The Marxists and those who have been influenced by Marxist thought, who include all the political uplifters, have so well exploited this hiss that 'capitalistic society' has come to connote an evil way of life; it has to be done away with.

"And yet, there never was, there cannot be, a society without capital. For a society consists of men, and it is inherent in the make-up of men to exchange what they have in abundance for something they lack. The increase of satisfactions resulting from exchange induces them to invent labor-saving devices, so that they can produce more and swap more; the labor-saving devices constitute capital; they include stone axes and 'automation.'

"Capital cannot be abolished wherever men associate. It can be confiscated by the State, and they only question is, will men produce capital — which is production in excess of immediate consumption — if they cannot enjoy the fruits of their labor? That is, will there be a society of prosperous men where confiscation is the regular order?

"Only men produce capital. Only men save and trade. Other species do not have capital. And they do not form societies; they form herds, flocks and schools. 'Capitalistic society' is therefore a redundancy; there is no other kind of society.

"Collective Bargaining. This phrase has been loaded with sanctity. The tone of reverence which has been attached to it stems from the notion that collective bargaining is a means of effecting a meeting of minds among men actuated by reason and mutual respect. The fact is quite the contrary. Collective bargaining is a showdown between antagonists of unequal economic and political strength; out of it there emerges a victor and a vanquished. Some unionist wit once described collective bargaining as a way of collecting what you can and bargaining for the rest. What's holy in that?

"Furthermore, collective bargaining denies common justice to a goodly segment of the workers, the skilled ones who would be in better position if they were allowed to bargain for themselves. These workers are actually deprived of the full value of their services. The union bargainers are understandably more interested in the larger number of marginal workers, the less productive ones, and wage advances secured for them are always greater, as a percentage, than the wage advances of the skilled workers. Collective bargaining thus becomes an instrument for levelling, for putting a damper on initiative, for reducing productivity.

"Social Security. Here we have a fraudulent scheme that has been infused with high morality. Social security is an excuse for hijacking the pay envelope; it is a tax on wages, and nothing else. To cover up the confiscation, to make it more palatable to the worker, the promise is made that it will be returned (with interest) when the worker is no longer able to work. The fact is that the tax on wages is spent by the State as near after collection as possible; sometimes before. The 'benefits' paid to the oldster do not come from 'enforced savings' but from new taxes imposed on his sons and daughters. This is called 'insurance,' but if an insurance company tried it, the directors would be indicted for fraud.

"General Welfare. These two words cover with an aura of humanitarianism what can only be described correctly as political skulduggery. Legislation that is so haloed is in every case the confiscation of any man's property for the benefit of another man, with the confiscatory agency abstracting an operating 'cut.' The general public cannot possibly benefit from such subventionary legislation, for it is they who must pay the price. The ultimate result, if not the purpose, of 'general welfare' legislation is to put the beneficiaries of the subsidies (pressure groups) under obligation to the State, and thus to entrench political power."

Of all various forms of travelogs, I guess the worst is hearin' a Vice President tell about the wonderful good will tours he made — especially the ones to India and Indo-China, where the good will wound up goin' to the Commies.

Mother — Now, I wonder who it was who didn't hang up his clothes before going to sleep.

Boy — Adam (and promptly pulled the covers over his head).

Mitchell Will Deserve Credit For Labor Vote

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — A big, burly and blunt Irishman — James P. Mitchell — will be largely responsible, if President Eisenhower maintains or increases his hold on the labor vote in next year's Presidential contest.

Although the political directors and spokesmen for the unions still regard the Secretary of Labor with suspicion merely because he associates with the so-called "Eisenhower big business Administration," Mitchell has championed and won several important fights for the workers. And he has done it without forming the kind of personal and political aliances that FDR and Harry S Truman had with the labor politicians.

Indeed, in accord with Eisenhower's philosophy, he has handled workers' problems as labor matters rather than political issues. He has kept disputes over wages, pensions, hours and legislation from having to be settled at the White House level.

As a partial result, strikes and losses from work stoppages have been reduced to a new low for all except the war years, when a spirit of patriotism and White House-inspired benefits kept the factories running at full blast.

It is an amazing performance that a member of a suspect Administration — suspect, that is, to the Meanys, Reuthers and Lewis brothers — should hang up a more constructive record than such professional labor zealots as Miss Frances Perkins, Maurice Tobin, Roosevelt, Truman, and such a friend of the man in overalls as Eleanor Roosevelt.

The fact is that Mitchell is the first Secretary of Labor in his own right in more than 20 years. With the White House doors, rear or front, always open to union politicians during previous regimes, Miss Perkins was only a humanitarian figurehead and glorified social welfare worker.

In order to handle routine matters, Roosevelt and Truman drafted a Perkins underling, John R. Steelman, as labor adviser. When he could not settle controversies, they were handled by the President, and on a political rather than on an economic, bread-and-butter basis.

Mitchell has also disabused George L. Meany, AFL president, that Labor was "only a bureau of the Commerce Department," which is headed by Sinclair Weeks, multimillionaire businessman and blublood from Massachusetts. In truth, he has disabused Weeks himself of that belief.

He shocked Weeks and his conservative associates by advocating a boost in the minimum wage level to $1 an hour, and increased coverage of workers protected by Government contract terms. Mitchell won the minimum wage battle, and he hopes that Congress will eventually broaden the wage-hour statute to include millions of more workers.

Mitchell also blocked Week's effort to persuade Eisenhower to seek extension of the Antitrust Law so as to affect labor unions adversely. When Ike backed his Labor Secretary in these quarrels, Weeks finally abandoned his attempts to dictate or dominate policies affecting labor.

Mitchell's frankness and courage drew a slight rebuke from Eisenhower. When the Cabinet member voiced opposition to numerous states' right-to-work laws, which bar a closed shop, the President told a press conference that he was no "enunciating Administration policy."

Mitchell has a different idea of his function from that entertained by his Democratic predecessors. They agreed with the Gompers-Green-Meany theory that the Labor Secretary should speak and act only for organized workers at Washington, especially at the White House.

Mitchell, who was formerly labor relations director for a large New York department store, takes a broader view. He figures that he represents all the nation's 65,000,000 workers, unionized or not. Latest figures indicate that only about 18,000,000 are members of labor unions.

He may be no politician, but he may help to hold the labor vote, both the organized and unorganize for Ike and the GOP.

FOR REFLECTION
TRADEMARK COPR. 1954
...with JAMES C. INGEBRETSEN
President, Spiritual Mobilization

Not long ago, the dean of the Harvard Law School and a west coast attorney debated as to what the attitude of the American Bar Association should be toward lawyers who claim the privilege of the Fifth Amendment in Congressional investigations of Communism.

Tracy E. Griffin of Seattle, Wash., according to The New York Times, declared, "To a layman the refusal to anser a material question on the ground that it may tend to incriminate him is an admission of guilt of some crime." And he favored tossing out any Communist found in the legal profession.

Dean Erwin N. Griswold of the Harvard Law School opposed automatic disbarment of lawyers.

Without taking sides in the controversy itself, I wish to call your attention to a question asked by Dean Griswold. Said he: "What have we done if we save security and come up with a country where freedom is gone?" Well, it seems to me that, if and when we have done this, we have simply imprisoned ourselves — and handed the cell keys to the government.

But, if this route which involves Congressional investigations of Communism is indeed one of the roads by which Americans have been seeking security at the expense of freedom, it is far from being the only one or the most traveled one. The Congressional acts regimenting farmers and giving labor unions monopolistic privileges are much more heavily traveled roads — and there is no question as to the direction in which they lead. If we really prefer freedom to security, why don't we eliminate these downhill grades to the dungeon?

Ex-Red Labor Bosses Have Refused To Talk About It

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

ROME — There is hell to pay from Hamburg to the Sudan. The United States has bomber bases in Morocco which could be eliminated by local hostility in a very short time. The purpose of these bases is to threaten Soviet Russia with retaliation in kind if she ever bombs the United States. The African uprisings are consistent with Moscow's "Anti-Colonial" propaganda. Ever since the Second War we have maintained in our overseas stations thousands of wives and children of soldiers, airmen, bluejackets and civilian parasites, inviting the enemy to butcher them or take them hostages. American Generals wag their heads mysteriously and say they have a plan for their removal in case of attack. There can be and is no such plan. The fighting in French Africa has been savage and if our genial Soviet friends should provoke the fanatics to attack our bases, too, our people would go through about the same experience that the French colonists suffered recently.

Now, throughout this troubled area and in France, Germany and Italy, we continue to maintain the dangerous, meddlesome international Lovestone-Dubinsky "labor" apparatus. Some say this is a powerful political agency against Communism. I have said repeatedly that Jay Lovestone and Irving Brown, his principal agent in Europe, were fanatic, bloodthirsty Communists some years ago and that they have never given public proof that they have foresworn Communism and bloody revolution. But, in any case, these Mountebanks obviously have done no good. Strikes have curtailed production and bruised the economy in Britain and Germany. Riots and bloodshed have enlivened union outbreaks in France. There are more than three million Communists in Catholic Italy. And tribal people are shooting and hacking against "Colonialism" and the white civilization of the West practically all over Africa. These conspirators have absolutely no credentials from the American people, who know Dubinsky only as a professional left-wing unioneer and politician with a life tenure as president-dictator of a union with a treasury of $160,000,000.

Harry Truman threw in with them right after the war and President Eisenhower went out of his way to signify his indorsement of their mischief by a public acknowledgment of Irving Brown. But they don't even tell us who Jay Lovestone is or where he comes from. The same goes for Brown. He once was represented as an old star athlete of New York University but only for as long as it took me to consult the records and prove that he never even got a letter in Pinochle.

A few months ago, Michael Chinigo, the Rome correspondent of the International News, was invited to a cocktail party given by Edmond Stevens, the local correspondent of the Christian Science Monitor, which incidentally, needs watching for its politics and, indeed, is going to get an inspection by an official body of the church in Boston this fall. Some members of the Christian Science religious community are demanding a showdown as to political slant. Chinigo and Mrs. Chinigo went to the party but when Chinigo learned that the guest of honor was Irving Brown, he plainly said that this was no place for INS man. The Hearst papers had carried my expose of Lovestone, Dubinsky and Brown which had not been answered or even acknowledged. Mr. Chinigo did not want to be in a false position.

At this, Brown said oh yes, he thought he had met Pegler once, but was not sure. He insisted that if Pegler had known all the facts he would have realized that he and Lovestone really were doing a very good job. He then said it now came back to him that three or four years ago, in Paris, Pegler had written him a letter asking for an interview and that he had refused. Mr. Chinigo told him he had nothing to complain of in view of his refusal to talk.

At this point in Mr. Chinigo's narrative, I said, "Yes, and did he tell you about the time in New York when I barged into a meeting of a lot of these sedentary heroes of the barricades in Freedom House and challenged Brown to explain himself?" No, Brown had forgotten to mention that. The Chinigos then expressed the Roman equivalent of "Don't think it ain't been charming," summoned their coach-and-four and went away.

Thomas A. Lane, the so-called labor attache of our Embassy, who recently was called back to the Department of Labor, coldly refused to have anything to do with Brown. When Lovestone asked him for a "report" Lane told him to go to hell. A whole parade of union parasites keep coming to Rome to enjoy the well-known attractions, always at the expense of their faceless subjects. The net result is that Italy is worse loused up with Reds, today than any other western country.

The Central Intelligence Agency, under Allen Dulles, the brother of John Foster, has maintained a mysterious relation with this Lovestone-Dubinsky-Brown deal. It began when Bedell Smith, Ike's satellite, was head of the CIA, under Truman. The CIA itself is no bargain. On the face of obvious results, seen in all the disturbances in Europe and Africa, the CIA has done a very bad job. It is composed of futile amateurs with no qualifications and in last year Allen Dulles has been promoting cheesecake magazine publicity to disguise obvious failure.

It makes no difference in the last analysis who Lovestone and Brown really are or whether they are Reds or just Socialists. They are conspirators, both with a very bad political background which is not denied. And they have no business meddling in the internal affairs of other nations under American passports. Eisenhower ought to repudiate them and wind up the whole nasty business.

The Doctor Says

By EDGAR P. JORDAN, M. D.

An interesting letter which is perhaps typical of the problem faced by many others comes from Mrs. E. and serves to introduce the subject of high blood pressure.

She writes "recently my husband tried to give some blood to a friend who had an operation and they refused to take it because his blood pressure was 190-110. He is 34 years old and apparently in good health, otherwise.

"He had trouble getting into the Navy ten years ago, but was finally taken. Is this anything to worry about, or is it natural for him when he has had high blood pressure most of his grown-up life"?

IT WILL HAVE to be admitted that a consistent blood pressure in a man of 34 of about 190-110 is too high. However, a single recording of such a figure does not mean much; one would want to know what the blood pressure levels were over a period of time and with several measurements, in order to draw any conclusions.

Worry is of no help whatever, and might even make his blood pressure go higher. He should, however, be under the care of a doctor who can watch the blood pressure and tell him whether or not anything should be done about it.

Something like 600,000 men and women become afflicted with high blood pressure in the United States alone every year.

PRACTICALLY ALL of the different kinds of high blood pressure tend to increase in the later years of life.

It has been stated recently that every person over the age of 45 has a 50-50 chance of dying from high blood pressure, apoplexy, a heart attack, or some similar condition related to high blood pressure or arteriosclerosis.

What can be done about this situation? From early middle life onward a person should have an examination, including measurement of the blood pressure, taken at regular intervals so that the first signs of a rise in blood pressure can be recognized.

IF FOUND EARLY some patients can be cured; in others the mere fact of an early diagnosis makes it possible for the physician to give advice which slows down the development of the symptoms and complications of high blood pressure.

What is still needed to conquer high blood pressure is research. This is now going on in many places.

One line of attack is directed toward diet. The rice diet which appears to be one form of low sodium diet, has received much attention, but it is hardly the final answer.

PICTURE NEWS

AROUND THE SPORTS WORLD

MOTHERS ON SKIS — Two young mothers, Mrs. Harold Dodds, left, and Mrs. John Coll, are practicing at Memphis, Tenn., to break the women's distance record on water skis. They'll attempt the 224 miles between Memphis and Cairo, Ill. — non-stop, of course. The present distance record for women is 200 miles, set between Miami and Nassau. Mrs. Coll's husband broke the world's distance record earlier this year by skiing 314 miles.

IT'S HIS DAY OFF — Tiptree Strawberry, a well-known point-to-point race horse in Tiptree, Essex, England, refuses to move despite the urgings of this group of youngsters. The girl in the saddle, Ruth Bottgeley of Dedham, Mass., thought she was going for a ride, but the horse had other ideas. The answer was simple. The racer was on a holiday and just refused to work. The young people were spending their vacation at an agricultural camp.

IT'S EASY, WHEN YOU KNOW HOW — Showing them how it's done at the National Archery Tournament in Oxford, O., is 17-year-old Ann Marston of Wyandotte, Mich. The young lady is the national field champion in the free-style division, and certainly Ann would make a most acceptable instructor.

LOVE GAME — When actor Donald Woods lost a match to singer Brooke Robin at a tennis court in Manhattan, he planted a kiss on her cheek to show there were no feelings of resentment on his part. It's impossible to tell by Brooke's pleased expression if she's as happy about winning the match as she is about the kiss.

READY AND WAITING — Second baseman Billy Goodman of the Boston Red Sox gets under a ball popped up by Minnie Minoso of the Chicago White Sox in the first inning of a game played at Boston. Goodman took the ball for an easy out. The Boston team went on to defeat Chicago by a final score of 7-2.

FISH IN HAND — Wacky bandleader Spike Jones isn't worried about the "one that got away" in Las Vegas, where he's appearing; he's got one right here. That shapely mermaid is Ida Mercier, and Spike claims he "hooked" her in the pool of the hotel where his band is playing.

HER FIRST ATTEMPT — Mrs. Judith Rosen, of Rosedale, N. Y., is getting infant daughter Jaye Michelle into training for the 17th annual baby crawling race to be held at Palisades Park, N. J. Parents of crawling babies will be on hand at this yearly sports event in which the participants are quite a bit younger than those of most athletic contests.

LEARNING THE ROPES — The Duke of Edinburgh, left, is shown helping adjust the rigging of the Coweslip, a gift to him from the people of Cowes, England. Next to him is the flying fifteen craft's designer and builder, Uffa Fox, who's showing the Duke how to manage things in the waters off Cowes.

COUPLE OF BOXERS—Heavyweight champion of the world Rocky Marciano has a friendly session with another boxer, the pet of his training camp, at his Grossinger, N. Y., headquarters. The dog is paying close attention to what Rocky is saying as the champ trains for the defense of his title against Archie Moore on September 20.

Waitress Chared with Homicide

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. —UP— A pretty red-haired waitress and her boy friend were charged with homicide Wednesday in the death of a 78-year-old theater manager in this "playground of the world." The waitress, Mrs. Lynete Beasley, 28, told police she was friendly enough with the victim, Fred Irwin, to share a safe deposit box with him.

AN INTERESTNG AUCTION

will be held in Canadian Monday, Sept. 12th at 3:00 p.m.

In order to close an estate, I am going to sell the T. S. Jones home, located at 6th and Main, at Public Auction.

This Mansion Home is something you seldom see these days. It is solid brick, 2½ stories and a full basement. It is in excellent condition and located on a choice 100 by 140 ft. corner paved lot.

The workmanship and construction of this fine old home is a sight to behold. You couldn't buy the beautiful oak woodwork at any price today and it looks like it was just installed yesterday. 4 large cool bedrooms and a den on the second floor. Two baths, three fire-places, nicely landscaped and a home that will stand "a heap of living."

You couldn't duplicate this home today for $100,000 but you can buy next Monday for just a small fraction of reolacement. If you don't wish to pay cash, we'll take one-third down and arrange suitable terms. If you've had a hankering far a fine large home, this is your opportunity to get a real bargain.

The home will be open for inspection Sunday from 2 until 5 and for an hour before the sale. Will, of course, show it by appointment at other times. For further information, call me.

Lone Ranger Finally Unmasks After 23 Years On Radio, TV

By ALINE MOSBY

HOLLYWOOD —UP— After 23 years of "hi-yoing Silver" on radio and television and now in the movies, the Lone Ranger finally took off his mask and revealed what he's like.

This unmasking occurred at Warner Studio, and is akin in strangeness to Humphrey Bobart being photographed without his toupee or Rita Hayworth staying married.

The popular radio and television masked hero and his sidekick, Tonto, are galloping in a wide-screen movie in full-bloom color. Warner decided to film the veteran program after making movies of "Dragnet" and "Our Miss Brooks."

In the movie version the Ranger, or actor Clayton Moore, still will confront villains with a black mask covering his eyes as he does on TV. In fact, various publicists for the TV show insist he never is seen in public as the Ranger without his mask.

But on a studio visit I caught the Lone Ranger with his mask down. He loped into the commissary, maskless and in a pin-stripe suit like anybody else.

"I aways wear the mask on personal appearances because if you take away the mask, you destroy the illusion," actor Moore explained.

"I can walk anyplace in town without the mask and nobody knows who I am. At the studio they don't recognize me unless I put on my blue cowboy suit and mask."

Moore's appearance on the Warner lot was the first time the press has had a close look at the western character. He turned out to be a soft-voiced, blue-eyed man who collects antiques and who used to be a male fashion model in the wide open spaces of Chicago.

Moore, handsome in a rugged, steel-jawed way, started his show business career swinging from a trapeze in a circus at the age of 14. After years as an aerialist he worked as a photographers' model.

Next he moved to Hollywood to try acting. He won a Warner contract and did small roles. After leaving the studio, he free-lanced and worked at "manual labor" to keep eating. In 1949 oilman-producer Jack Wrather bought the TV rights to the Lone Ranger, the oldest half-hour continuous radio show in history. The actor who portrays the western hero on radio was too old for TV, so Moore was signed.

The Lone Ranger lives in suburban Tarzana with his wife, assorted dogs but no children ("the 40 million Ranger fans are my children").

"The Lone Ranger has no age. He, Tonto, Silver and Scout are ageless," intonded the Ranger in his best "hi-yo Silver" voice.

"The Lone Ranger will go on forever."

Acting Jobs Not Only Way To Make Money In Video

By WILLIAM EWALD

NEW YORK —UP— If you're an ambitious girl who harbors a yen for a TV career, you might consider the path hacked out by Ellen Violett.

Miss Violett couldn't make it as an actress. "I tried making the rounds for two years and couldn't land a single job," she says.

But come this Sunday, Miss Violett's name will appear in bold letters on your home screen — as adapter of the two hour NBC-TV spectacular, "The Skin of Our Teeth."

The 30-year-old brunette, a native of New York, is the first woman ever to be entrusted with such a meaty assignment by the network. It was her job to chop through the verbal wilderness of the Thornton Wilder play and convert it into suitable fare for living room television.

Knocked on Doors

"I used to think I might become an actress, but I was wrong," said Miss Violett. "I began knocking on the doors of producers, starting at the very top — with George Abbott. Nothing happened. And nothing happened for two years after that.

"The nearest I ever came to working was with a stock company in Green Hills, Pa. But the company folded before I could even get a chance to act."

Facing up to the fact that her career as an emoter looked pretty shaky, Miss Violett switched to writing. She worked for a time with several magazines, then met Albert McCleary who was working as the head of the drama department at Fordham University.

Adapted Short Story

When McCleary took charge of NBC's "Cameo Theatre," he called in Miss Violett. "He said they were looking for a small town story for the TV show with lots of conflict," she said. "And I immediately thought of a short story I had read called 'The Lottery.'"

"I had never seen a TV script, but I figured going to the movies was just as good," she said.

She was right. "The Lottery" was accepted and from that point, Miss Violett was responsible for a whole raft of TV scripts. She sold plays to "Jamie" and the "Suspense" show and adapted "Uncle Tom's Cabin" for "Omnibus."

"The Skin of Our Teeth" was not new to her. Probably the world's champion viewer of the play, she has seen it "about 50 times."

Government Gives OK To GAW Plans

WASHINGTON —UP— The government gave an initial okay Thursday to the so-called "guaranteed wage" plans set up in the auto and can industries this year.

Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell announced that department lawyers have ruled that the five cents an hour contributions made by the Ford Motor Co. to its unemployment compensation fund will not be counted as part of the base pay under the federal fair labor standards act.

If the ruling had gone the other way, it could have killed the Ford plan and similar plans. The Ford contract with the CIO United Auto Workers was conditional upon the department ruling that the contribution would not be counted as wages.

Mitchell said the new ruling is consistent with past rulings on comparable matters. He said Ford asked for a new statement, and other industries will get the same answer if they ask.

Mitchell told a news conference he still is studying the question of advising states to change present laws which make the lay-off pay plans illegal. Another question, relating to the taxability of the company contributions, is also still pending.

Mitchell declined an opinion as to whether the government believes guaranteed wage plans are good or bad. He said they are "strictly a bargaining matter between companies and unions in particular industries."

Holdup Man Shot To Death

NEW YORK —UP— A policeman shot a holdup man to death in a wild gun battle in the Times Square area Wednesday night, before the eyes of hundreds of theater goers and passersby.

One bystander was slightly wounded in the exchange and another bullet passed harmlessly through a girl's skirt.

The gunman, identified as Peter Hatsiz, 35, was holding two terrified women and a man as hostages in a taxicab when the fatal bullet hit him.

Cultivation and crop rotation are still basic practices in weed control.

US Trade Policy Hit

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. —UP— Trade policies of the United States were attacked Wednesday by an official of the American Cotton Manufacturers Institute.

The speaker, Robert C. Jackson, Washington, executive vice president of the institute, said the trade policies "not only are permitting but actually are encouraging vastly increased imports into this country of cotton goods made by low-wage labor in Japan."

Jackson said the policies were "nurtured and fostered by the State Department."

"Blindly following a policy that is completely unrealistic, unnecessary, and terribly unfair to the American farmer, the textile worker and the manufacturer," Jackson said, "our government today is driving the cotton manufacturer into a position where he has no alternative except to look with renewed interest at rayon and other synthetics.

"Much of his incentive to stay with cotton is being destroyed and his confidence in its future is being taxed to the limit," he added.

Jackson was one of the principal speakers at the opening of the ninth annual beltwide cotton mechanization conference.
