Season's Heaviest Snow Falls In Snyder Area

The season's heaviest snow, and the first since winter officially arrived, pelted the Snyder area Saturday afternoon and night.

Flakes falling thick and fast through most of the afternoon melted as soon as they came in contact with the ground, but the snow, sometimes mixed with sleet, began "sticking" late in the afternoon.

Streets and highways remained in good condition in this area Saturday afternoon and early Saturday night, but it was feared that colder weather during the night would cause icing.

Reports during the afternoon indicated that snow was falling throughout Scurry County and all points to the north.

Temperatures were in the high 30s here Saturday afternoon, but were expected to dip well below the freezing mark during the night.

By The Associated Press

Snow plows battled to keep highways open in the western Panhandle Saturday night as a cold front moving in from the north brought snow, sleet, rain and fog to many sections of Texas.

Snow 8 inches deep covered the area between Muleshoe and Morton along the western edge of the Panhandle near the New Mexico line. Muleshoe reported four inches on the ground Saturday night.

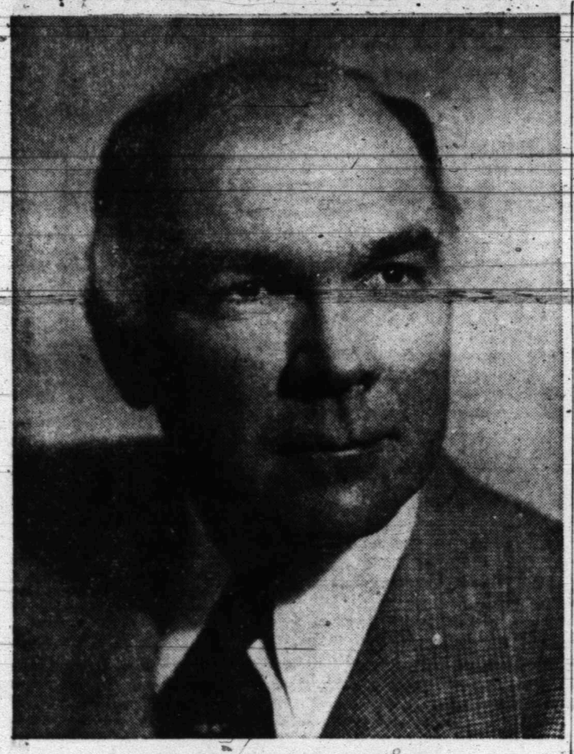

Snow plows were also pressed into service around Bovina and Friona where a heavy snow continued to fall Saturday night.

Snow, mixed with rain and sleet, fell throughout the day in most of West Texas, the South Plains and the Panhandle.

Saturday night Plainview, Muleshoe, and Lubbock were reporting heavy snowfalls while Wink, and Midland were reporting a mixture of snow, sleet and rain. Across the state line in New Mexico, Hobbs, Roswell, Clovis heavy snows.

Rain was falling at many points in west and Southwest Texas Saturday night — San Antonio, San Angelo, Corpus Christi, Beeville, Alice, Kingsville, Brownsville, Cotulla, Laredo, and Junction.

Temperatures remained near the freezing mark in the Panhandle, South Plains and in portions of West Texas.

Chamber Set For Banquet

Dr. Kenneth McFarland, who is to be main speaker at the annual Chamber of Commerce banquet Friday night, will be making his second appearance in Snyder.

McFarland, educational consultant for General Motors Corp. and the American Trucking Associations and former guest lecturer for the Readers Digest, first spoke here in 1953 at the first annual businessman-teacher banquet sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce.

The annual chamber banquet, set for 7 p.m. Friday, will be held in the high school cafeteria. Tickets, which are $2.50, are now on sale at the chamber office.

At the banquet, new officers and directors of the chamber for 1958 will be installed. The 1958 board is scheduled to meet tomorrow night and elect a new president, two vice presidents, and treasurer.

While in the past the chamber banquet has included the meal in the cafeteria and the program in the auditorium, this year's event will all be held in the cafeteria.

John Boren will be master of ceremonies for the program. The speaker will be introduced by Wayland Holt. Entertainment will be by the high school choral and instrumental music departments, headed by Bob Clinton and Melvin Montgomery.

Included in the banquet program will be presentation of awards to the outstanding businessman of 1957 and outstanding farmer of 1957.

McFarland, who received his education from State Teachers College at Pittsburg, Kan., Columbia University, and Stanford University, first became nationally known as a school executive. He served 24 years in that field.

SNYDER SPOTLIGHT

By WACIL McNAIR

Snyder has been gaining some new citizens from other areas as the New Year gets on its feet. Reports during the past few days indicate that a considerable amount of house-hunting has been going on.

And while on the subject, I might call attention to the fact that if the town gained any population during the first three days of 1958 it resulted from people moving in. The stork was tardy in getting on with his chores here this year.

There have been very few times during the past year when a 24-hour period elapsed without a single baby being born here, and I recall one day when eight new citizens arrived. As of this writing (Saturday afternoon) Snyder still was waiting for Mr. (or Miss) 1958 to make an appearance.

This is an "on" year, politically, or hadn't you heard. Early interest in local offices indicates plenty of activity here between now and the primaries. In fact, the slate of candidates is growing more rapidly, in proportion, than the poll tax list.

You have less than a month now to get your voting license.

Scurry County probably will learn within a few weeks whether its citizens will be permitted to vote on the proposal to create a county-wide junior college district. The State Board of Education will take up the matter at its meeting Monday in Austin. The local petition, along with plenty of supporting data already is in Austin for the board's consideration. The board likely will name a committee of its own to give detailed study to the proposal before reaching its final decision. That is the usual procedure, local interests have been informed.

Add state automobile inspections to the list of deadlines that will come this spring. The inspection stickers must be displayed on windshields of vehicles by April 15. It's relatively easy to get an inspection now, but as the deadline nears, waiting lists may be encountered.

Scurry County ended the old year and started the new on a happy note traffic-wise. There were no serious accidents to mar our holidays. Let's make a full year of it.

FIRST BABY OF '58 BORN HERE

Scurry County's Mr. 1958 finally made his appearance last night, thus qualifying himself and his parents for a number of gifts from Snyder merchants.

A son, weighing 7 pounds and 5 ounces was born to Mr. and Mrs. Dale S. Wisener, DeLuxe Trailer Courts, at 9:03 p.m. Saturday in the Cogdell Memorial Hospital. The youngster has been named Darwin Dale Wisener.

Although 1958 was well into the fag end of its fourth day when he arrived, young Mr. Wisener is the first child of the year to be born here.

Summit Meeting, Pact Proposed By Macmillan

LONDON, Jan. 4 (AP) — Prime Minister Macmillan proposed tonight an East-West nonaggression pact and perhaps a summit meeting later. Both have been urged repeatedly by the Soviet Union.

Macmillan declared in a nationwide broadcast that Britain is ready to negotiate either within or outside the United Nations to test the sincerity of Russia's current peace offensive.

"We could start by a solemn pact of nonaggression," the prime minister declared. "This has been done before. It would do no harm. It might do good."

He said that regardless of how the West goes about making its new approach to Russia, "the object would be to clear away the rubble of old controversies and disagreements—perhaps to get the path ready for a meeting of heads of government."

Britain always has left the door open for a summit conference if there are reasonable prospects for success. But the statement on a nonaggression pact appeared to reflect a notable shift in government policy.

British government officials generally have discounted Russian proposals in this field in the past. They have often called attention to the fact that Russia had nonaggression pacts with most of the countries it swallowed up after World War II.

Macmillan, however, held out the possibility that Russia may have undergone a genuine change of attitude in the Sputnik age, a view not shared by his U. S. ally.

"Some people may think that it is no part of Communist philosophy or Russian intentions to bring any more countries into subjection by force," he said.

"This may well be true. I do not rule it out. But can anyone be reasonably sure?"

U. S. Is Cold To Briton's Proposal

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (AP)—U.S. officials showed no enthusiasm today for a suggestion by British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan that a nonaggression pact between Russia and Western nations "might do good."

Macmillan made his statement in a TV broadcast from London. There was no official comment from the State Department.

At Gettysburg, where President Eisenhower is passing the weekend, White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said he had no comment. Asked if Eisenhower had any advance word on Macmillan's speech, Hagerty told newsmen: "I don't know."

High officials in Washington said they had no advance knowledge that Macmillan would put forward his suggestion.

Nor, they said, was there any proposal under study here to change U.S. policy in that respect.

Officials recalled that Soviet Premier Bulganin had suggested a nonaggression pact two years ago in a letter to Eisenhower. The policy laid down by Eisenhower then was that such a pact would be unnecessary since the United Nations Charter, signed by Russia and the Western nations, constituted a nonaggression pact in that it ruled out war except in self-defense.

Jaycees Plan Poll Drive

The Snyder Junior Chamber of Commerce plans an active campaign for the remainder of the month to encourage payment of poll taxes.

Every means of communication will be used to remind local citizens to qualify themselves as voters, spokesmen for the club said.

The activities will be carried out by a committee composed of Carl Barton, chairman, Art Blanchard and Ray Houpt.

Persons who are not entitled to exemptions must pay their poll taxes by Jan. 31 to qualify as voters this year.

POLL TAX SCORE

Poll taxes paid	1,112
Exemptions	489
Qualified voters	1,601

WINS RACE TO SOUTH POLE—Sir Edmund Hillary, 38-year-old New Zealander who was reported to have reached the South Pole in an overland race, looks over the Antarctic scene from the New Zealand base on Ross Island a year ago. Hillary, conqueror of Mt. Everest, led his party of three other New Zealanders over much of the 1,200-mile route of Britian's Capt. Robert Scott in his 1911-12 polar trip. The Hillary party, third explorer group to reach the polar goal by overland route in 45 years, outdistanced the British party of Dr. Vivian Fuchs which is pushing toward the pole from the opposite side of Antarctica. Hillary Rests After Hazardous Journey

U.S. SOUTH POLE STATION, Jan. 4 (AP) — Sir Edmund Hillary and four fellow New Zealanders relaxed with American friends today after a hazarous 1,200-mile trek to the South Pole.

Hillary was confident he had laid the groundwork for a companion British Commonwealth team that expects to be the first ever to march clear across Antarctica.

The other expedition, a British party led by Dr. Vivian Fuchs, was reported 200 miles from the pole yesterday and is expected to arrive by Tuesday. The Fuchs party is moving on the pole from the South American side of the Antarctica. Hillary came from the opposite direction.

Fuchs, who left from Shackleton Base, will follow a route marked by Hillary in crossing to Scott Base on the New Zealand side of the Antarctic. Hillary left supplies along the route from his well-equipped tractor convoy.

The 38-year-old New Zealand explorer, knighted for conquering Mt. Everest in 1953, camped in sight of the U.S. station last night.

McCarthy, Nixon Blamed For Lag

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (AP)—The Democratic Digest said today the 1954 "security mania" of Vice President Nixon, the late Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) and others helped to destroy the morale of the nation's scientists and retarded many scientific programs.

The Democratic National Committee's publication, in an article, "Nixon and Pals vs. the Scientists," said:

"There is little doubt that one of the reasons many of our scientific programs have been retarded is the fact that the handling of such men as Dr. Oppenheimer and Dr. Condon, and the attacks on such government research centers as Ft. Monmouth (N.J.) caused a demoralization of the scientific community which in turn had a disastrous effect on our whole scientific research and development program."

The article said Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer, who helped develop the atomic bomb, was perhaps the most publicized case in the "Republicans' war against 'security risks.'"

It added that Oppenheimer, who in 1954 was denied security clearance by the Atomic Energy Commission by a vote of 4-1 on the ground he was a security risk, was only one of many scientists who were "put in the security pillory in order to give public proof that the Republicans were not 'soft on Communists.'"

The article said Nixon in the 1954 campaign boasted of having caused the denial of security clearance to Dr. Edward Condon, former chief of the U. S. Bureau of Standards. The Digest described Condon as "the man who organized work at the bureau which, according to scientist Edward Teller, hastened the development of the H-bomb by at least a year."

The nation is paying today, the magazine continued, for the "terrifying, unreasoning, anti-intelectual climate of fear and suspicion which was created and perfected by the late Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy, refined by Richard Nixon, and expertly mass-produced by the Republican party in the years 1952-54 to gain political victories."

It said the 'new' Nixon is now criticizing his fellow citizens for complaining about the failures in the missiles program and asked:

"How much of this phony patriotism and political hypocrisy can the American people stomach?"

More Candidates Announce

Politics continued to gain momentum here as several more candidates entered county races at the end of the week.

OIL ROUNDUP

Many Oil Bills To Go To Congress

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON, Jan. 4 (AP)—Numerous oil bills will be before Congress next week.

Oil operators, will be watching legislation involving a wide variety of topics. Those on natural gas and foreign trade policies will receive the most attention.

The Harris-O'Hara Bill that would remove natural gas producers from utility type federal controls is a holdover. Backers of the compromise measure are confident the bill will receive early attention.

The Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act expires next June. The government's voluntary program for curtailment of foreign oil imports was set up under a 1955 amendment to the act. Opponents of crude oil imports consider an extension of the act essential to their fight to prevent oil imports from supplanting instead of supplementing domestic production.

Other bills involve taxes, antitrust, synthetic fuels, mergers, small business legislation, and such industry advisory groups as the national petroleum council.

The industry is prepared to present another vigorous defense of its statutory depletion tax allowance of 27½ per cent. Congressmen have indicated, however, there will be no serious effort to disturb the 31-year-old allowance in 1958. Three bills introduced last year still are pending and would reduce the percentage depletion to from 5 to 15 per cent.

1958 Drilling Starts With Bang

AUSTIN, Jan. 4 (AP)—The Railroad Commission today reported applications for drilling wells were about double the first week in 1958 over last year for a comparable period.

It said 614 applications had been filed, compared to 370 in 1957. Oil well completions also were running ahead with 199 in the first week of drilling. There were 166 for the like period last year.

There were 35 gas well completions compared to 20 in 1957. A total of 168 dry holes was reported, less than the 230 in last year's first week.

In unproved territory, seven oil and one gas wells were completed with 112 attempts reported dry. There were 139 dry holes in 1957's first week with nine oil and two gas wildcats completed.

The commission said the total average calendar day allowable showed a 11,045-barrel increase during the past seven days. The average day allowable today was 3,007,848 barrels compared to 2,996,803 barrels last Saturday.

A total 260 wells was plugged, compared to 347 for the first week last year.

Scurry Extender, Field Wells

The Tonto Canyon field of Scurry County gained a ¼-mile southwest extension with completion of Hiawatha Oil & Gas Co. No. 1 Pricie Early, seven miles southwest of Snyder.

It was finaled for a daily flowing potential of 115 barrels of 42.8 gravity oil, no water, with gas-oil ration 250-1.

Production was through a 20-64-inch choke and perforations between 6,726-812 feet in 5½-inch casing set at 6,860 feet, the total depth.

Top of pay was picked at 6,726 feet on elevation of 2,382 feet.

Pay section was washed with 500 gallons of acid and fractured with 20,000 gallons.

Tubing pressure was 100 pounds with a packer on the casing.

Location is 467 feet from the north and 765 feet from the west lines of I. A. Walker survey.

Amerada Petroleum Corp. No. 6 G. D. Boyles is a new well in the Revilo (Glorieta) Field. It is in Section 201, Block 97, H&TC Survey.

Daily potential was 177 barrels of 32.3 gravity oil and 2 per cent water, pumping from perforations at 2,452-2,508 feet. Formation was fractured.

Robert W. McKissick of Abilene finaled No. 2 Halliday Heirs as a well in the Sharon Ridge (Clear Fork) Field. It is in Section 120, Block 97, H&TC Survey.

Daily potential was 152 barrels of 29 gravity oil pumping from perforations at 3,053-3,065 feet. Pay was acidized and fractured.

Kent, Mitchell County Projects

General Crude Oil Co. of Abilene will drill No. 1-X S. M. Swenson as a 6,800-foot rotary project in the Boomerang Field six miles southwest of Girard in Kent County.

Location spots 660 feet from the north and west lines of the southeast quarter of Section 2, Block 1, H&GN Survey.

MITCHELL WILDCAT

J. C. Williamson and Lowe Drilling Co. of Midland have filed application to drill a 7,700-foot rotary wildcat in Mitchell County, 15 miles southwest of Snyder. It will be drilled as the No. 1 Dunn.

The prospector is ⅝-mile west-northwest of the depleted opener and line producer in the Dunn (Canyon) field which produced from approximately 7,550 feet.

MITCHELL OFFSET

Turner-Kogen of Big Spring has filed application to drill the No. 2 W. M. Shumacker as a location north offset to a two-mile east extension to the Iatan-East Howard field of Mitchell County, nine miles southwest of Westbrook.

Soviets Have No Comment

LONDON, Jan. 4 (AP) — Moscow radio tonight reported Prime Minister Macmillan's proposal for a nonaggression pact between the Soviet Union and the Western Powers, but added no comment.

On other parts of the speech, however, Moscow accused Macmillan of making "rude anti-Soviet attacks."

The Moscow broadcast was an English - language news report beamed to the West.

It said Macmillan "distorted the facts by alleging that the U.S.S.R. had subjugated the Baltic states and the countries of Eastern Europe, and that it was the policy of the U.S.S.R. that had caused international tension, and that the U.S.S.R. merely spoke of its desire for a relaxing of tension but did nothing in fact."

Rep. Pool Files To Oppose Alger

DALLAS, Jan. 4 (AP)—State Rep. Pool today filed as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for the congressional seat held by Rep. Bruce Alger, a Republican.

Satellite Projects May Delay Others

WASHINGTON, Jan. America's stepped-up and missile program may result in curtailment of flood control and other water resources projects, Rep. Brooks (D-La) said today.

He called on the National Rivers Congress to lead a resistance movement against any "unwarranted and unthinking cuts" in money for waterway work.

Brooks is president of the group, a non-governmental body interest in river and harbor projects. He spoke at a special meeting of its national board of directors.

Senate Probe On Missiles May Outlast Red Sputniks

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (AP) — A special Senate probe into missiles and satellites is giving signs today of outlasting the successful Soviet Sputniks.

Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex), directing the inquiry, signaled full speed ahead for next week.

He listed a score of Pentagon officials for closed-door testimony before the watchdog Defense Preparedness subcommitee, of which he is chairman.

And he told newsmen that additional witnesses, including missile manufacturers and scientists, must be called later.

Johnson, who is the Senate Democratic leader, also has put a top priority tag on defense and security matters for the new session of Congress that opens Tuesday.

He resumes the satellite-missile probe at 10 a.m. Monday with Rear Adm. Hyman G. Rickover, Navy expert on nuclear submarines, as the first witness.

As to a special report and recommendations, Johnson said these must wait until more evidence is accumulated.

"The committee is making a report every day when it presents the facts to the people," he said of the inquiry. "We are not looking for a scapegoat or for someone to blame."

Johnson reiterates that his main concern is to be certain that the United States overtakes and passes the Soviets in the race for long range missiles and eventual control of space.

Public hearings in the special Senate probe got underway in late November, and some sharply conflicting opinions have been offered before the group.

Most experts agree that the United States could have beaten the Soviets with a satellite during the International Geophysical Year if this had been planned and if available military missile systems had been used.

Most also agree that satellites and missiles will play a powerful role in future military might. But there is sharp disagreement about relative emphasis on space ships and satellites, and jet bombers.

Criticism of the rivalry among the Army, Navy and Air Force for their various missile programs has also extended to indecision by numerous government committees and Pentagon officials.

Johnson and his Senate committee lawyers have emphasized this every witness.

They have urged: More defense funds; removal of limits on overtime and spending on missiles; a permanent defense research and development staff; programs for 3 to 5 years instead of the present annual system subject to Congressional appropriations; more leeway for contractors; and a speed-up in dispersal of this country's jet bombers able to pack nuclear weapons.

The Pentagon has moved swiftly along many of these lines, and administration spokesmen told the Senate probers they acted before the inquiry began.

Secretary of Defense McElroy testified he lifted overtime and spending limits before senators protested them.

A new single agency for research and development, called the Advance Research Projects Agency, is being established in the Defense Department. The agency is expected to deal with space vehicles and similar future efforts. A manager has not yet been chosen.

The Pentagon announced contracts for a new chemical bomber designed to fly a mile a second, or 3,600 miles an hour, and as high as 100 miles.

Production was ordered on two rival intermediate range ballistic missiles, the Air Force Thor and the Army Jupiter. Both are expected to carry nuclear warheads 1,500 miles or more.

A stepup was ordered in production of the intercontinental Atlas, planned for a range of 5,000 miles, after a successful partial test firing.

Stand-In Is Given Ovation At Opera

ROME, Jan. 4 (AP) — Italian soprano Anita Cerquetti received an ovation tonight for her performance in the operatic role Maria Meneghini Callas failed to finish.

Miss Callas, blaming illness, called it quits after the first act of "Norma" at Rome's grand operatic opening Thursday night. The performance was called off and the incident set off a heated controversy in music-loving Italy.

Tonight, Miss Cerquetti took over the title role of the Druid priestess and the capacity audience broke into applause when she first appeared on the stage.

After she finished the "casta diva" aria at the end of the first act, she received an ovation some said was the biggest in the memory of local operagoers. That was the aria that drew some jeers for Miss Callas Thursday night.

Miss Cerquetti took six curtain calls at the end of the first act and eight at the end of the second.

Among those attending tonight's performance were Italian Foreign Minister Giuseppe Pella and his wife. President and Mrs. Giovanni Gronchi, members of the Thursday night audience, were not present.

Miss Cerquetti, a native of central Italy, has sung lead roles before in Rome. The wife of Italian baritone Edo Ferretti, she has sung abroad in Chicago, Spain, Mexico and France and is to sing next thursday in a lead role for the first time at Milan's La Scala, where Miss Callas is prima donna.

Meanwhile, music lovers of Milan took up the fight in defense of Miss Callas.

Johnson Reduces Criticism Of Ike

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (AP)—Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex) obviously is discouraging Democratic criticism of President Eisenhower in the congressional controversy over the missiles program.

Johnson, a practical man at all times, recognized that he can't wholly prevent his colleagues from blasting away at Eisenhower and blaming the President himself for what they contend is a lag in rocketry.

But the Democratic leader obviously is applying the soft pedal where he can, in the belief that the best politics is not to appear to be playing politics where the security of the nation may be at stake.

Not all of his party members agree, but Johnson seems to feel there is no political hay to be mowed in attacking a President whose popularity may have declined but who still retains the basic confidence of a wide segment of the voters.

Johnson gave clear indications of this attitude when he said the Senate Preparedness Subcommittee he heads is not going to challenge Eisenhower's decision not to divulge to it the Gaither Report, if Eisenhower sticks to the decision.

Significantly, he remarked: "I don't want to take the position I'm bigger than the President."

The Democratic leader said he doesn't know any way to force the President to disclose a confidential communication. He added that previous attempts by Congress in that field "wound up in nothing but some interesting headlines."

The report was prepared by a citizens committee formerly headed by H. Rowan Gaither. Just what the committee's findings were is a matter of dispute. Published reports have said the committee found this country in its gravest danger because of Russian missile and satellite advances.

White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said that, on the contrary, the report did not indicate that the United States position at this time is one of weakness.

So far as he can influence Democratic policy — and he is powerful in that field — Johnson has made it clear he wants his party to build what he calls a constructive record. His idea is to get the Democrats credit for moving missile production forward without dwelling on the mistakes that may have been made in this field in the past by the administration and previous Democratic administrations.

In line with this, Johnson is not enthusiastic about suggestions from some of his party colleagues that the Preparedness Subcommittee call former Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson as a witness.

Wilson said recently he would have liked to spend more money in the development and research field but that Eisenhower held down on the funds because he sensed economy demands in Congress.

Though Wilson said he was not criticizing Eisenhower, some Democrats thought this was a political opening to pit the former secretary against his former boss.

Johnson said Wilson might be called if the subcommittee felt he had "helpful information." But the Democratic leader polished the matter off with this observation:

"We are much more interested in what the present secretary of defense is doing than in what the former secretary of defense is saying."

Co-Op Groups Set To Open Annual Meet

HOUSTON, Jan. 4 (AP)—Representatives of about 2,750,000 farmers will be here Monday for the opening of the 29th annual meeting of the National Council of Farmer Cooperatives.

About 500 delegates from 5,000 local cooperatives will take part in the four-day convention.

The council is an organization of cooperative market and purchasing associations. At a business session Thursday the delegates will receive a resolutions committee report and determine council policy on a wide range of matters affecting agriculture.

Speakers at the opening session include Harry J. Beernink, council president from Seattle, and vice president from Washington, D. C.

The theme of the meeting will be opportunities for farmer cooperatives in a changing economy.

Brinkley said special attention will be focused on the need of agriculture for additional strength in market places. He said this applies both to the marketing of farm commodities and obtaining farm production supplies.

Emphasis will be given to ways farmers may expand markets and methods for improving procurement of essential farm supplies.

Candidates Asked To Take Stands On Church-State

By D. HAROLD OLIVER

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (AP)—A predominantly Protestant organization today called on potential Catholic candidates for President or vice president to take a definite stand for or against what it called:

1. A Catholic church "boycott" of public schools.

2. A Catholic proposal advocating public funds for sectarian schools.

3. Appointment of an American ambassador to the Vatican.

"To challenge every Catholic candidate on these issues is a wise and necessary precaution designed to protect our American traditions," said a statement by a group known as Protestants and other Americans United for Separation of Church and State (POAU).

Describing itself as nonpolitical and as having some Jewish and a few "liberal Catholic" members, and POAU deplored the formation of any Catholic or anti-Catholic political party said it opposed any "blanket boycott of the candidates of any particular denomination."

"Most citizens," it said, "are born into their religious affiliations and no one should be penalized for an accident of birth. Millions of Catholic Americans are in complete agreement of matters of church-state separation with their fellow citizens of other faiths.

"We believe, however, that the religion of a candidate for President or vice president of the U. S. should not be used as a shield to conceal his opinions on matters of church-state policy."

It said candidates of all faiths should be challenged to answer all pertinent questions involving church - state policy, but that Catholic candidates should be scrutinized with particular care. This was necessary, the statement said, because the Catholic Church has taken a definite stand against the Supreme Court's interpretation of the separation of church and state, and particularly against the denial of public money to sectarian schools." Catholic leaders, it added, also have favored naming an ambassador to the Vatican.

Officials of the National Catholic Welfare Conference were not immediately available for comment on the statement. Nor were Catholics who have been mentioned for the presidency in 1960. POAU officials, asked whom their challenge could apply to besides Sen. Kennedy (D - Mass), mentioned Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, retired, president of the American Red Cross and former Supreme Allied Commander in Europe.

Sen. Kennedy was out of the city, but friends said they doubted he would comment because he contends he is not a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination. They added Kennedy has always favored separation of church and state and advocated federal aid for school construction limited to public schools.

Gen. Gruenther, who has been mentioned among potential candidates for the Republican presidential nomination, was a guest of President Eisenhower this weekend at the Eisenhower farm near Gettysburg, Pa. In a television interview last May, Gruenther called speculation on his possible nomination "fantastic." He said he was not in the political arena.

Purge Moves Into Mao's Own Province

HONG KONG, Jan. 4 (AP)—The Chinese Communists have extended a purge of "rightists" to Mao Tze-tung's home province of Hunan in south-central China. The Red Chinese ruler may have taken personal charge of the purge.

The official New China News Agency reported today that five members of the National People's Congress in Hunan were expelled on charges of opposing communism.

They were Hunan Vice Gov. Cheng Shing-Ling; Hunan congresswoman Tan Ti-wu; congressman Tseng Chao-lun, who is vice minister of higher education; and industrialists Lei Tien - chu and Hsiang, Teh.

There was speculation in Hong Kong that Mao directed the Hunan purge personally. The 64-year old Communist boss, whose title is chairman of the country, has been away from Peiping for more than two weeks.

He was reported "somewhere in the south" and may have attended the Hunan People's Congress sessions which unanimously moved the dismissals of the Communist leaders before adjourning Dec. 29.

Five Youths Die In Head-On Crash

ATLANTA, Tex., Jan. 4 (AP)—Five youths were killed early today in a head-on crash. Three died in a burning car, another was thrown free and a fifth crushed behind a steering wheel.

The dead, all from nearby Queens City, in the car that burned were Jimmy Ray Chamblee, 24, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Chamblee; Raymond Shelby, 15, son of Mrs. Velma Shelby, and Ogle Wise, 24, son of Mrs. Olan Wise.

Airman Robert Hall, 20, was pinned in the wreckage of his auto and Airman James West, 19, was thrown clear. The two were driving back to Foster Air Force Base at Victoria, Tex., where they were stationed.

A2C Hall's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. Hall, live at Kinmundy, Ill. A2C West's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Raymond J. West of Chicago.

The cars met on U. S. 59, 2½ miles north of Atlanta, in Northeast Texas about 2:30 a.m.

Highway Patrolman Bill Dowd said investigation indicated the car in which the three were riding was traveling north on the wrong side of the highway.

It overturned in a shallow ditch and burned. Firemen from Atlanta extinguished the blaze before the charred bodies were removed.

Krush Plans Visit

CAIRO, Jan. 4 (AP)—The newspaper Akhbar El Yom said today Soviety Communist party leader Nikita Khrushchev will visit Egypt some time this year.

More than one-seventh of the Indian population in the United States lives in New Mexico. There are about 50,000 in New Mexico.

Tax Office Theft Admitted By Woman

EDINBURG, Tex., Jan. 4 (AP)—A woman who has been employed in the city tax office for five years has signed a statement concerning more than $1,000 taken from the office during the past three years, city officials said today.

City Manager Gene Gatlin and City Atty. Felix McDonald said the woman signed the statement yesterday. They said the missing money was taken from the office in small amounts.

Dist. Atty. Jim Bates received the statement from the city officials. Bates said he would take appropriate action after the city had completed its investigation.

Indonesia Claims Reprisal Threat

By JOHN T. GRIFFIN

JAKARTA, Indonesia, Jan. 4 (AP)—Foreign Minister Subandrio charged today The Netherlands and other European nations are threatening Indonesia with military and economic reprisals for its anti-dutch campaign. He warned of disastrous consequences for the West if the threats are carried out.

"We know that the Netherlands is currently campaigning for economic sanctions against Indonesia and is demanding that friendly countries reduce their aid to us," he told newsmen. "So far we have persuaded them not to."

But, he added, if economic reprisals are taken "no one can blame Indonesia if she is forced into unconventional or nontraditional trade patterns in order to survive the period of blockade."

As for military reprisals, Subandrio said the presence of Dutch warships off Singapore and North Sumatra, plus NATO discussions of the Dutch-Indonesian dispute, are considered "a direct military threat" to Indonesia.

Subandrio said there was "further foreign intervention" in Indonesian affairs but did not elaborate, except to say the government had proof that unknown foreign planes had dropped arms on the East Indonesian island of Timor, half of which is Portuguese territory.

Earlier, radio reports from the North Celebes said that area would be declared a separate province in defiance of the central government at Jakarta. The broadcasts, quoting Provisional Gov. H. D. Manoppo, said the north sector of the island will "disassociate itself completely" from the South Celebes. The Central government recognizes both areas as one province. Celebes and other outer islands broke with Jakarta last March.

Sputnik II Will Finish 887 Trips

LONDON, Jan. 4 (AP)—Moscow Radio said tonight Sputnik II will complete 887 trips round the globe by 6 a.m. tomorrow Moscow time (10 p.m. Saturday night EST).

The broadcast did not mention the first Soviet earth satellite, which is believed to have broken up in the atmosphere sometime in the last few days.

ROOT PLOWING was being completed late last week on the Bob Jordan ranch northwest of Fluvanna. Jordan root plowed and seeded grass on 720 acres.

Interest In Root Plowing Picking Up

Interest has been picking up recently in this area in root plowing, with a number of ranchers either in the process of root plowing or planning it.

One ranch owner who has just completed a big root plowing project is Bob Jordan of Sweetwater, who owns a ranch about three miles northwest of Fluvanna. The ranch is operated by his nephew, also known as Bob Jordan.

Jordan has just finished root plowing 740 acres of land, and he seeded one pound of blue panic and one pound of sorghum almum per acre as the root plowing was done on deep, fine-textured soil on which buffalo grass and tobosa were predominant.

Mesquite was heavy, with a scattering of cedar, on the land. The root plow was run 12 to 18 inches deep. One fin was used in the center of the root plow.

The root plowing was done to eradicate mesquite, disturb the soil for a seedbed for grass seeding.

Moisture conditions are good in the Upper Colorado Soil Conservation District of Scurry and Borden Counties, according to technicians of the Soil Conservation Service, and now is a good time for root plowing and seeding the heavy mesquite flats where there is much competition to grasses from mesquite and cedar.

Root plowing has been proved especially beneficial in areas where there was absence of natives grasses and heavy infestation of brush. It is practically impossible for native grass to come back in those areas unless brush is controlled by some method.

SCS men said they feel root plowing is one of the better methods of brush control because the soil is opened and pockets are formed to pool moisture, bringing about better results from grass seeding.

Jordan said he root plowed and seeded some land in Nolan County last year and got excellent results. He added that he was well pleased with grazing developed from the root plowing and seeding last year. Conditions were good following the root plowing last year, since good rains prevailed over the area.

Jordan said he is also satisfied with the benefits received in his livestock program. Root plowing makes the handling of stock much easier, he said.

Among other farmers and ranchers intending to root plow, in the same area as the Jordan place, are Pat Jones and J. E. Glover. Both plan to seed behind the root plowing.

Rio Water Users Much Better Off

By BILL GIBSON

MCALLEN, Jan. 4 (AP)—Special Water Master K. M. Smith said today Lower Rio Grande Valley water users were "just about 1,000 per cent better off than they were last year at this time."

"There's really no comparison," Smith said.

Good rains during the year put water in Falcon Reservoir but he said conservation has helped Valley irrigators save almost two-thirds of it.

At the start of cotton season preparations last year, Valley irrigators had slightly more than 80,000 acre feet of water on storage in the reservoir. This year the court-controlled water supply measure more than one million acre feet of water available for Valley irrigation.

Since a suit was filed in June 1956 the court has reserved the first 50,000 acre feet of U.S. water for domestic, municipal and livestock use. The suit was expanded Dec. 9, 1956 to cover all U.S. water in or below Falcon Reservoir but the reservation of the first 50,000 acre feet remained.

Each approved farmer has an account with the water master. Inflow from the Rio Grande is allocated each month to the water users on an acreage basis and each farmer can order the water when he wants it.

Of the 1.8 acre feet per acre allotted since Dec. 9, 1956, Smith said there was an average of 1.17 acre feet per acre still on storage and available for use. He said the long-range average use for Valley irrigation was two acre feet per acre per year.

Private lakes and reservoirs of the water districts have good storage.

The water master said all reservoirs from Harlingen to the Gulf were practically full.

"That's the first time that's happened," he said, in the three years he has been in the Valley.

Smith predicted that building three proposed channel storage dams in the bed of the Rio Grande between Falcon Dam and the Gulf would brighten the Valley water picture even more.

"In two weeks time in May and June the Valley lost 59,281 acre feet of water that the channel dams could have saved. Figuring at $20 an acre foot," he said, "That's well over a million dollars."

The water master said the $20 valuation of an acre foot of water was reasonable and was the figure used by Col. Leland Hewitt, U.S. commissirner of the Boundary Commission.

The three dams would cost seven million dollars.

MOSCOW, Jan. 4 (AP)—The Moscow News today published letters from seven Soviet citizens volunteering for flights into space.

Ages of the volunteers, including four girls, ranged from 11 to 15.

The oldest, a boy, said he had asked his mother if he could go. She said sure.

Ocean Voyage By Texans Is Delayed

PORTLAND, MAine, Jan. 4 (AP)—An ocean voyage to South America by an El Paso, Tex., writer and his family isn't expected to start until Tuesday, Richard D. Frost, Portland boat dealer, said today.

James M. McElroy, 35, was reported still testing his 25-foot outboard cabin cruiser in Lake Winnipesaukee, N.H. He had hoped to board the craft today with his wife Louise and their son James Jr., 6, and begin a 12,000-mile cruise to Peru.

Nixon Gets 'Copter Pad

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (AP)—The Defense Department said today a helicopter landing pad has been built near Vice President Nixon's home as part of "Operation Alert." This is the program for evacuating officials to emergency headquarters in the event of an enemy attack.

Although the department said the pad in northwest Washington is operational and ready for use, it has not been used.

Helicopters of the Army, Marine Corps and Air Force are used in the annual operation alert tests and are assigned, on rotating basis, to stand by for emergency use.

Air Force helicopters also are assigned for use by President Eisenhower in getting from the White House to the airport when traffic conditions otherwise would delay an automobile trip.

DALLAS, Jan. 4 (AP)—The body of a woman found floating face down in Turtle Creek yesterday was identified as Mrs. Annie Mae Miller of Dallas. Her sons Fletcher and Billy said she had been despondent.

Economist Pushes For Full Parity On Raw Materials

By OVID A. MARTIN

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (AP)—An economist in the field of raw materials sees financial disaster ahead for this country—and much of the world—in low prices of farm products, ores, petroleum and like products.

He is Carl H. Wilken, economist with the Raw Materials National Council, a private research organization. He has spent a lifetime studying the economics of raw materials.

Wilken, a native of Sioux City, Iowa, long has battled for legislation that would support prices of raw materials at full parity prices day in and day out. He argues that such prices are essential not only for the sake of producers but for the welfare of all.

The economist has filed a statement with the Joint Economic Committee of Congress urging quick action to improve raw material prices. He said this is needed to keep the present business dip from expanding into a disastrous depression.

"If we try to operate the United States with 75 per cent of parity for farm products and other raw materials, the nation will lead capitalism into an economic collapse throughout the world," his statement said.

"If this is permitted to happen, the loss of prestige suffered with the launching of the Soviet Sputnik would be multiplied many times."

By parity, in this case, is meant a standard of prices that would pu raw material producers on a par with other elements of the economy.

Wilken says all wealth is founded on raw materials, agricultural and otherwise. Most of the economy's income is derived, he says, from production, transportation, processing, merchandising and servicing of these materials. All involved in this process must be well paid, he argues, otherwise there is economic trouble.

He says his study of economic statistics shows that, year in and year out, the total national income is roughtly five times the income received from production of raw materials. Hence, if income of producers suffers, so does the total economy.

He told the congressional committee that the national income is losing 50 billion dollars a year through subparity farm prices.

"When farm prices are below parity, society is forced into a position of either accepting a loss in income or mortgaging its future income by excessive increases in total debt—public and private—against the income of the United States," his statement said.

Cotton Crop Nears 30,000-Bale Mark

Scurry County's cotton crop during the weekend edged a little closer to the 30,000-bale mark and was assured passing the mark by the time the harvest ends.

Ginning reports yesterday from the nine gins in the county, two of them estimated, showed there was about 29,300 bales already ginned in the county, and ginners estimated at least another 1,000 bales to be ginned. More than 3,000 bales were ginned during the past week.

The cotton crop has already exceeded considerably estimates made by most in the county after the winter took its toll on the late 1957 crop.

Ginning was expected to be complete in another week or two.

Ginning reports included 2,283 bales at Ira, 5,483 at the Paymaster Gin in Snyder, 1,850 at Snyder Planters, 4,324 at Snyder Cooperative, 1,893 at Fluvanna, 3,575 at Hermleigh, 4,650 at Inadale, an estimated 3,420 at China Grove, and an estimated 1,860 at Dunn.

Student Recovers From Fire Injury

AUSTIN, Jan. 4 (AP)—A University of Texas student was recovering today from near-suffocation in a fire last night in a private dormitory near the campus.

Paul Stayton of Orange Tex., was dragged unconscious from the smoke-filled room by two other students, Harold Karren and James Rogers. They gave him artificial respiration until firemen arrived with a resuscitator.

Stayton was taken to the university health center, where his condition was reported good. The fire was confined to the one room.

Polio Cases Decline —

AUSTIN, Jan. 4 (AP)—Paralytic polio in Texas dropped from 1,210 cases in 1954 to 365 in 1957, the State Department of Health reported today. Officials generally credit the Salk vaccine for the decline.

Ambulance Loses Race With Stork

BIG SPRING, Tex., Jan. 4 (AP)—The stork was speedier than an ambulance near here yesterday.

Driver Bill Gray had to halt his ambulance 5 miles west on the Andrews highway and deliver a 6-pound and 4-ounce daughter to Mrs. Ernest Coyle of Leonorah, in Martin County. Then he proceeded to the hospital, where mother and daughter were pronounced in good condition.

It was a new experience for Mrs. Coyle, but not for Gray. He's presided at three other such arrivals.

OPERA STAR COMFORTED—Maria Mengehini Callas, opera star, is comforted by party-giver Elsa Maxwell, right, in her dressing room following star's breakdown after singing the first act of Bellini's Norma, thus stopping the gala opening of the opera season in Rome, Italy. Hundreds of demonstrators gathered outside the opera house, and police were called to suppress any rioting. Miss Maxwell said the star had a bad cold, and tried to go through the performance all the same, but lost her voice at the start of the second act. Attorney General Caught In Middle Of Optometrist Rift

AUSTIN, Jan. 4 (AP)—Divided opinion among Texas optometrists has Atty. Gen. Will Wilson opposing the Texas Optometric Assn. in court while representing the Texas Board of Examiners in Optometry.

Five of the six members of the state board are members of the optometrists' association. Charles M. Babb of Austin, legal affairs counsel of the association, also is executive director of the state board.

This optometric mixup was traced today in a story by Sam Wood, capitol correspondent for Austin, Waco and Port Arthur newspapers.

"A triple - hat role played by Texas optometrists has put Atty. Gen. Will Wilson in the position of representing in court the official State Board of Examiners in Optometry, while a principal officer of the board is directing a campaign to defeat an interpretation of the law Wilson is defending," Wood said.

The story pointed out that the attorney general filed an answer yesterday to a suit brought in Bexar County by optometrists who want a declaratory judgment forcing the board to enforce a ban on advertising by opthalmic dispensers.

On Nov. 18 Wilson issued an opinion in which he held that the advertising ban, as passed by the recent 55th Legislature, was unconstitutional and void.

The Texas Optometric Assn. immediately launched a campaign among its members in an effort to get the attorney general to reconsider his opinion. The drive was directed by Babb.

"Babb is also the $5,400-per-year executive director of the six-man Texas State Board of Examiners in Optometry, which was established by law in 1921," Wood's story said.

"Babb also functions as lobbyist for the optometric association. He wrote the controversial amendment to the law regulating practice of opthalmic dispensers, prohibiting solicitation of patients or patronage, and prohibiting advertising.

"Babb's tripe-hat role is clearly demonstrated by the directory of the Bolm Building in Austin," the story said. "The Texas Optometric Assn. offices (of which he is legal counsel) is in Room 302; the office of Charles M. Babb (listed in the telephone book as attorney) is in Room 303; and offices of the Texas State Board of Examiners in Optometry (of which he is executive director) is Room 304."

The San Antoniio suit contests the attorney general's opinion and asks that the state board be instructed to enforce the amended opthalmic dispensers law as valid and constitutional.

Wilson said that in view of the suit his office would not reconsider the Nov. 18 opinion.

"When Senate Bill 104 was introduced at the 1957 regular session, representatives of daily newspapers were told that its references to advertising were limited to 'false, fraudulent or misleading' advertising, identical with regulations which the newspapers themselves have sponsored in legislation," Wood's story said.

"But the language and punctuation in the bill were so juggled as to permit the construction which the optometry board has sought to enforce, that the act prohibited bait advertising and that prices or quality of merchandise were 'bait' advertising," the story said.

The women left for Hong Kong via Tokyo on Pan American Flight 7, du in Tokyo at 3:30 p.m. Sunday, Tokyo tie.

Their sons are held on espionage charges. The Chinese Communists, in inviting the mothes to visit them, did not mention that they might free the men.

The women are Mrs. Mary V. Downey, New Britain, Conn.; Mrs. Philip Fecteau, Lynn, Mass.; and Mrs. Ruth Redmond, Yonkers, N. Y.

John Downey, 27, and Hugh Redmond, 38, were sentenced to life imprisonment, and Richard Fecteau, 30, to 20 years.

Gunman Empties Safe And Wallets

FORT WORTH, Jan. 4 (AP)—A smooth-working gunman slipped into the Motor Investment Co. this afternoon and emptied the safe and employes' wallets of an estimated $2,000.

The firm had closed at noon. At 12:30 p.m., the tall gunman knocked on a back door and forced three employes to lie on the floor while he made manager D. A. Beasley open the safe. He kicked Beasley as he worked.

Chrysler Awarded Missiles Contracts

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (AP)—The Army announced today it has awarded the Chrysler Corp. 52 million dollars worth of contracts for missiles, including 30 millions for the intermediate range Jupiter.

The announcement said the Jupiter will be produced at Chrysler's plant at Warren, Mich., where the Army Redstone missile is now manufactured.

The Army said that "all tooling is being completed for producing" the Jupiter, a 1,500-mile range missile.

The 30 million dollars, the Army said, is for "partial 1958 purchases" of the Jupiter and added:

"The contract covers long lead-time components and ground support equipment for the missile system."

Another contract of about $21,800,000 covers continuing purchases this year of the Redstone, a 200-mile range ballistic missile.

The new contract was signed in Detroit Dec. 31.

The Army said this contract with Chrysler supplements an original agreement made in June 1956 for engineering work on the Jupiter.

The Army said about 11 million dollars has been spent during the last six months, in addition to the main program, on "small contractual actions."

Jupiter missiles are produced for developmental purposes at the Army's Ballistic Missile Agency, Huntsville, Ala., using production tooling designed jointly by the missile agency and Chrysler engineers.

Chrysler has been in the Army ballistic missile development program since 1952, when it was awarded a contract on the Redstone project.

Sen. Potter (R-Mich) issued through his office here a statement saying the contract award is "expected to help Michigan's serious unemployment in the Detroit area."

Deposits Indicate Economy Of State Continues Strong

By ROBERT E. FORD
The Associated Press

Deposits in Texas banks demonstrated Saturday—as the economists have claimed all along—that the state economy is strong although the nation as a whole has shown some business weakness.

A spot check by Associated Press member newspapers, covering all areas of the state, indicated that the majority of banks had more money on deposit as the new year began than at the start of last year.

Many cities made very large gains over Oct. 11, 1957 — the last report called for by the U.S. Comptroller of the Treasury and the State Banking Commission.

A great many cities reported all-time highs in bank deposits, and several others lacked only fractions of setting records.

Some cities in areas where cotton and grain sorghums harvests are late showed declines. But this situation was expected to be corrected when all crops are in. Late rains slowed harvests.

In Dallas, purchase of government bills toward the end of the year was blamed for a decline of deposits.

Tom Kirkland, news editor of the Denton Record-Chronicle, said most bankers were "flatly amazed" at the deposit strength in Denton County in view of poor crop conditions over much of the county. Five of the seven banks showed increases. Observers said "the conservative nature" of many depositors could be credited for the gains.

H. S. Hilburn, president and publisher of the Plainview Herald, helped sum up the West Texas declines by saying:

"Delayed harvest of cotton and sorghum grain, and weather damage to late maturing cotton, as well as abnormal harvesting expense of sorghum grains due to lodging (falling) because of the adverse fall weather are factors reflected in the decline."

Among those cities or areas showing all - time record deposits were Midland, Victoria, Corpus Christi, the Waco area, Abilene, Port Arthur and Grayson County.

YOUTH CRIES OVER BODY OF DEAD BUDDY—Kenneth Daly cries over body of his buddy, William O'Neil, after latter and another youth were killed in a two-car collision in the South Ozone Park section of Queens, Long Island. Daly came by in another car just after the accident. O'Neil, 19, was thrown out of the car, while another youth, Roger Ulrich, 21, also of Queens, was pinned in the auto. Single Chief Of Staff Seen As Road To National Suicide

By EDMOND LEBRETON

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (AP) — Chairman Vinson (D-Ga) of the House Armed Services Committee said today that placing the armed services under a single chief of staff would mean "national suicide."

Vinson, who steers with an iron hand the House committee that considers military legislation, said:

"I refuse to be stampeded into precipitous and dangerous changes merely because a Soviet-built satellite is circling the earth."

He declared, moreover, that each service should be allowed to develop its own missiles independently.

Vinson's statement was a blast at the suggestions, multiplying during a Senate investigation of missile shortcomings, for tighter unification of the armed services. He was in effect serving notice that any legislation for this purpose will run into a major barrier in the House.

Vinson praised the present system, in which the commanders of the several services from a committee to set over-all policy. He set his face against any basic changes.

"The basic concept of the Joint Chiefs of Staff cannot be criticized as inferor or inadequate," he said. "We must not forget that the Joint Chiefs of Staff system won the greatest war in world history. The German government, which lost the war, was under the Supreme General Staff system."

Obviously striking back at statements that interservice rivalry enabled the U.S.S.R. to surpass the United States in the missile field, Vinson said:

"Let each of the services develop their own weapons system, in spite of the fact that by so doing they are competing with each other, ... If competition in business and industry has made America great, I see no reason to believe that coordinated competition is not just as healthy for our armed services."

He said it is only "alarmists" who say the reason the United States does not already have an Intercontinental Ballistic Missile or a satellite is that "the Army has been keeping secrets from the Navy, the Navy has refused to cooperate with the Coast Guard, the Air Force wants to swallow the Army's missile program, and the Army wants control of the whole missile system."

The committee over which Vinson presides will begin Friday a closed-door inquiry into the entire U.S. defense system. Vinson has said that it is separate from and not competitive with the missle investigation by the Senate Preparedness subcommittee, which resumes Monday.

Heavy Traffic Due At Cape Canaveral

By LEWIS GULICK

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (AP) — Space traffic out of the Cape Canaveral, Fla., Missiles Test Center may become heavy with Vanguard rockets by the end of March.

This prospect was raised in a statement today by Dr. John P. Hagen, director of the U.S. scientific satellite project Vanguard, who said the launching of a 21½-pound baby moon is still planned for March.

A spokesman at Vanguard headquarters here said about four preliminary test firings of the three-stage rocket are scheduled before the major launching in March.

Present indications are that it will be the end of the second week in January at least before Vanguard scientists try again to launch a complete test rocket carrying a 3¼-pound sphere in its nose. They have been getting ready for a second attempt since their first rocket blew up Dec. 6.

By a simple calendar count they will have to shoot rockets every couple of weeks or so to meet the March target. Afterward the Vanguard project calls for a half-dozen full-fledged satellite launchings under the International Geophysical Year program, ending next Dec. 31.

Hagen said in reply to written questions from The Associated Press that he believes the Russians, too, have probably run into difficulties in trying to get off a new Sputnik.

Sputnik I, now in its death throes if it hasn't plunged earthward already, first went into space Oct. 4. The half-ton Sputnik II was launched Nov. 3. Officials here were then expecting further Soviet launchings every month or so.

Hagen said the next test launching of a Vanguard rocket, even if successful, will not necessarily result in placing the midget ball in the rocket nose into orbit.

Stressing that in the next test as in the Dec. 6 failure the main aim is to check the rocket, he said:

"An orbiting satellite would be more in the nature of a by-product of a successful launching of a complete three-stage rocket."

Psychiatrist's Warning Fails To Save Life

NEW YORK, Jan. 4 (AP) — A psychiatrist's warning failed to save the life of Mrs. Howard Rushmore, whose prominent editor-writer husband shot her to death in a taxicab last night and then killed himself.

The psychiatrist had advised Mrs. Rushmore that, after many months of bitter quarreling, her husband had "reached the breaking point, and it was not safe to stay with him," it was disclosed today.

Several times Rushmore had threatened to kill his wife, it was reported, and two days before Christmas he chased her out of their Manhattan apartment with a shotgun. Since then they had lived apart.

Nevertheless she made a date to see him again last night—perhaps in a desperate effort to patch up their marital difficulties.

Around 7 p.m. the couple, quarreling once more, entered a taxicab near their E. 93rd St. residence. Moments later both lay dead in the back seat.

Rushmore, 45, had figured prominently in the news in recent years as a former Communist turned anti-Red fighter, and as an editor of the controversial expose magazine Confidential.

His 37-year-old attractive blonde wife was the former Frances Everitt of Greensboro, N.C., and Atlanta, Ga. They met on The New York Journal-American, where Rushmore was a staff writer and she was woman's editor.

Both had been married once previously. Mrs. Rushmore had two daughters by her former marriage and Rushmore one.

One of Mrs. Rushmore's daughters, Mrs. Jean Dobbins, 20, told today of the domestic troubles leading up to the shooting. Friends also related that Rushmore, out of a job and broke, had been despondent both over money matters and domestic troubles. He had been heard to utter vague threats of suicide.

Mrs. Dobbins said her mother and Rushmore both had taken psychiatric treatment during 18 months of bitter wrangling.

Woman Tells Of Abduction

GALVESTON, Tex., Jan. 4 (AP)—A Pasadena, Tex. housewife, Mrs. B. J. Connor, told Galveston police today that a masked gunman kidnaped her near her home yesterday afternoon and forced her to drive him 50 miles to Galveston.

Mrs. Connor told police she was driving home from a washateria in Pasadena and stopped at an intersection when the gunman hopped into the car.

She said he told her: "You are going to drive me to Galveston. Do what I say and you won't get hurt."

Mrs. Connor said she drove to Galveston and he left the car. She said he made no attempt to molest her.

Child Of 2 Months Is Burned To Death

TYLER, Tex., Jan. 4 (AP)—Larry Dean Cooper, 2 months old, burned to death about 11 a.m. today when his home was consumed.

An aunt, Nora Cooper, saved four of Larry's brothers and sisters, but was unable to reach the child. One tot ran back into the house after his rescue, and she saved him a second time.

Fire marshal Neal Harris said the fire apparently started in the Negroes' home while the children were playing with fire in a stove. The parents were away.

Claims Increasing

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4, (AP)—The Labor Department reported today claims for unemployment insurance rose to a record 550,995 in the week ending Dec. 28. It said the increase of 137,400 followed "the usual year-end pattern but was substantially larger" than in the same week of 1956.

Long-Range Outlook Bright

NEW YORK, Jan. 4 (AP)—Things look good over the long pull. But the next few months may be rough.

That's what businessmen were telling themselves this week as they turned their backs on 1957 and took the first cautious steps into a new year fraught with uncertainties and problems.

Many were in much better shape to survive the harsh business climate than they would have been a year ago. Inventories had been whittled down, overhead costs pared, expensive and unnecessary frills eliminated. After years of sitting back and taking orders, salesmen again were going out to sell. Business had shaken off the stulifying effects of its soft and easy boomtime existence. Going into 1958 the seasoned business firm was lean, hard, and alert, and stripped for action.

With the dawn of the new year the upturn businessmen had long been hoping for was still little more than a speck on the far horizon. Consensus was that it would be at least six months in coming.

This week public officials and private businessmen took steps to hasten its arrival.

The federal government chartered plans for a stepped up defense program geared to the age of space. Defense Secretary Neil McElroy said military spending for the fiscal year starting July 1 will rise to about 40 billion dollars, a gain of 1½ billions over the current rate. Most of the increase will be channeled into the missiles program.

At the same time the government let it be known that the flow of dollars into the massive federal highway program will be increased this year.

In still another pump-priming move, field offices of the Federal Housing Authority were under orders to make it easier for low-income persons to get big FHA mortgages on new homes. Under the new rules, builders also can include the cost of air conditioners and kitchen appliances in the FHA mortgage package—an innovation that may spur lagging sales of refrigerators and automatic dishwashers beside boosting sales of homes.

Businessmen, too, plotted new sales strategy, and the emphasis here was on price. Ford Motor Co.'s Mercury Lincoln Division unveiled a new economy car, the Mercury Medalist. It will cost about $100 less than the present lowest-priced Mercury model and is designed to burn less gasoline.

Shirt manufacturers snipped a dollar from the suggested retail prices of cotton-dacron shirts for men. One such shirt now sells for $6.95 instead of $7.95. Radio Corp. of America in effect reduced prices of 11 color set models by instructing its dealers to boost the trade-in allowance on black and white sets.

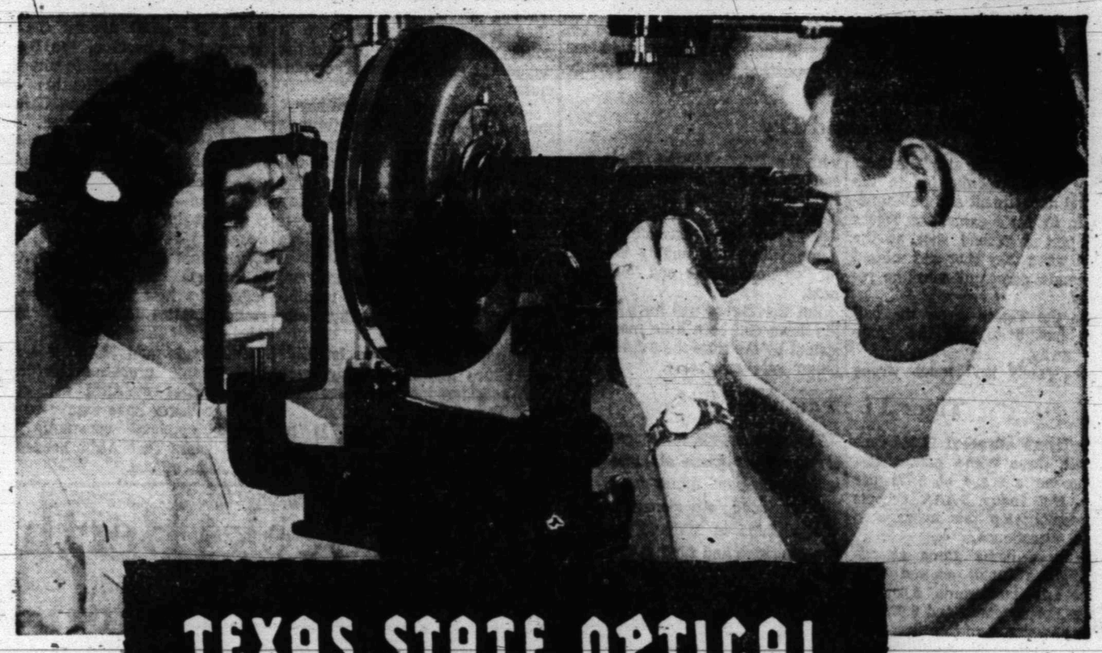

While businessmen on all fronts battled for sales, top leaders in government and industry forecast bigger markets, wider opportunities, and generally better times in the not too distant future.

Acknowledging that the oil industry faces a serious oversupply problem now, Chairman Eugene Holman of Standard Oil Co. (N.J.) said:

"We view the longer range outlook with complete confidence that we are in a growth business."

To back up that confidence, he declared Jersey Standard is laying 1½ billion dollars on the line this year for capital improvements and expansion.

Roger M. Blough, chairman of United States Steel Corp., announcing plans for a 700-million-dollar expansion program, said the current letdown in steel production is only "a breathing point in long-range increase in steel demand."

BUCKIN' THE LINE

By BUCK FRANCIS
News Sports Editor

IF THE TIGER basketeers come up with performances in their eight conference games like they have done on occasion this season, they could very well go undefeated or at least repeat as the 3-AAA champions.

But, if the Bengals play their eight conference games like they did against Temple Friday, then the Black and Golders could lose all of their conference contests.

Such inconsistency, though, may be attributed to inexperience. None of the Tiger roundballers this season saw any appreciable varsity action last year and since most of 'em played football last fall, they were behind most teams in cage-conditioning to begin with.

We still believe the Tigers will give a good account of themselves in the coming district race. But they'll have to get such games as they turned in Friday out of their system before the district race begins if they have any intentions of repeating as the 3-AAA champions.

No Second Try

Where the Tigers are "hurting" mostly at the moment is in the rebound department and ball-handling. In Friday's game, the Tigers didn't get a second shot at the basket when they shot and missed as Temple came up with the rebounds.

Then the Tigers threw the ball away enough to win the game going away.

There really isn't much wrong with the Tiger shooting. Their season percentage of 34 percent in field goal attempts is a fair percentage.

Well, we know basketball is a game where it's mighty easy to be "on" one game and "off" the next.

But the Tigers will have to buckle down and be a little more consistent by the time the 3-AAA campaign gets underway.

Tiger 11 Drew Well

The Tigers attracted 17,314 fans to their three home games last fall for an average of 5,771 per game. Not many 3-AAA schools can possibly top this average in football attendance.

The three home game attandance figures (paid) showed 4,538 for the Levelland game, 5,801 for the Big Spring game and 6,975 for the Sweetwater game.

We don't have the total figures on the road games since the Borger and Dumas reports are unavailable. The road figures we do have at hand show 15,048 for four games.

The meager 458 that turned out for the Tiger game at Lake View brought the road figure down.

Other road attendance figures showed 8,511 at Midland, 4,018 at Breckenridge and 2,063 at Colorado City.

The crowds at Borger and Dumas probably totaled 8,000 for the two games which would boost the total attendance figures for Tiger games this season to better than 40,300 or an average of 4,485 per game. This isn't bad when you consider the game at Lake View fell below the 500 mark.

Something interesting to note in the Tiger turnstile figures this past season is that the average for the non-district games almost doubled the district game average.

Of the four non-district games we have reports on, the average was 5,717. The average for the Tigers' three district games showed 3,165.

After all is said and done, the Tiger footballers had a successful season last fall, both from a financial and artistical standpoint.

Fort Worth Will Launch G-G Tourney

FORT WORTH, Jan. 4 (AP)—Fort Worth's regional tournament will serve as the kickoff meet for the 22nd annual Texas Golden Gloves program when it starts next Friday night.

It will be the first of 19 such tournaments, which will qualify boxers for the state tournament here Feb. 13, 14, 15 and 17.

The Fort Worth regional event will last six nights, with boxing scheduled Feb. 10, 11, 13, 16, 17 and 18. More than 200 amateurs are expected to enter.

Two more tournaments will start before the Fort Worth meet is finished — at Houston and Greenville. The Houston tournament is scheduled Jan. 16, 17 and 18, and the one at Greenville is set for Jan. 17, 18 and 20.

The final two weeks of January and the first few days of February will be busy ones for the amateurs as the rest of the qualifying meets are held.

Only open class boxers from the qualifying meets will advance to the state tournament, although most of the regions include one or two other classifications. Boxers 16 to 27, inclusive, are eligible.

Move Would Help Grid Recruiting

COLLEGE STATION, Tex., Jan. 4 (AP)—The Bryan Daily Eagle, in an editorial written for its Sunday edition, says:

"The crisis at Texas A&M College involves far more than the hiring of a head football coach. Behind the obvious split in policy among the board of directors lies confusion over the future of the school itself."

Bryan adjoins College Station, site of Texas A&M. The newspaper's editorial is aimed at persuading the directors to make the school co-educational.

The Eagle said it "has long believed that it was an error for the board to insist on A&M remaining an all-male school long after the age in which such a policy was advisable." It said the national trend is toward co-education.

"Action needs to be taken now," the paper said, "so that through long range planning a program of co-education can be put into full effect in the next five years. The change is overdue; further delay is dangerous."

The newspaper said the college is expected to take the lead in the teaching of agriculture and engineering, without any prohibition against teaching other subjects. Then it added:

"In 1876 (when it was founded) agriculture and engineering were both considered subjects for men only. That is not true today.

"Agricultural education is no longer for the 'family farm' but for the big, professional farming operation. It involves the lives of farm women as well. ... A&M College is handicapped in this respect by its all-male policy."

The editorial further pointed out that engineering no longer is an all-male field.

It also said that military careers are open to women, and that other land-grant colleges function well with co-eds on the campus alongside ROTC units.

"We come finally to the athletic end of the matter, where the shoe is currently pinching," the editorial said.

"How large a part was played in the muddle over a football coach by the unattractiveness of a position which sends a coach trying to recruit against the co-educational schools of the Southwest Conference, not to mention the University of Houston and such adjacent schools as Oklahoma U," the newspaper asked.

The newspaper said it admittedly is not without a selfish interest—"such a move would be good for Bryan—and certainly would be a great help to local citizens with daughters ready for college.

"But that is not the point. A&M is a state school, and must be judged by how it carries out its responsibilities to the state as a whole."

The Eagle said "it is no secret that many professors, officials and coaches at A&M and other Texas colleges have expressed off-record opinions constantly for many years that A&M needed to be co-educational."

Dallas Seeks Berth In Triple-A League

DALLAS, Jan. 4 (AP)—The franchiseless Dallas club of the Class AA Texas League made application today for membership in the Class AAA American Association but Texas League President Dick Butler said there was slim chance of getting it.

Dallas turned back its franchise Monday because it had been denied the right to advance to higher classification.

"There are only two ways that Dallas could get into another league," Butler declared. "It would have to buy back the territory here and could do that only if the Texas League directors decided to sell. Then it would have to buy territory in the American Association if that league had territory to sell.

"If the Texas League should fail to have an operator for Dallas next season it would become open territory, then it could be placed in another league."

Butler said the Dallas club had proposed a rule that would allow Texas League members to negotiate for a place in higher classification but the directors turned this down. He also stressed the point that Dallas had not made a definite offer to buy its way out of the league and that if it did so the league wouldn't have to accept it.

Butler said the Texas League owned the franchise and that the directors would be given every opportunity to place a club in Dallas. He added that he already had received two good offers and that he could begin negotiating as soon as a lease price was set on the Dallas baseball properties. Butler added that he had a promise of this price by Monday.

He said that if the price was considered unreasonable it would not have to be accepted and that those interested in operating a club here could build their own park.

Warner Lewis, general manager of the Burnett Interests, owners of the baseball park, sent a telegram to Edward S. Doherty, president of the American Assn. at Denver, saying "the withdrawal of the Dallas baseball club and its owners from the Texas League has been accepted by unanimous vote of the directors. The Burnett Interests wish to make application for membership in the American Assn. Please advise as to former procedure."

Lewis said he didn't know what could be done but that he wanted to test baseball laws as they now exist. He added that he felt the executive committee of the minor leagues could take any step that was for the good of baseball. "There is a clause in baseball law that says that," he added.

When Dallas turned its franchise back, Texas League President Dick Butler said an operator would be found and that he anticipated no trouble in obtaining one. However, if there is no operator here when the 1958 season opens it becomes open territory and could be taken into any league.

Lewis admitted that if there was an operator here for the start of the season, Dallas wouldn't have much chance of getting into the American Assn. For that matter, he said he didn't know if there was an opening in the American Assn.

But Lewis said he had had considerable support from civic leaders of Dallas in making the venture and he believed Dallas would get public support if it were in a league of higher classification. He said Dallas had had a winning ball club five of the last six years yet its attendance had coninued to drop and that the only way to stop the decline, in his opinion, would be to be in a league of higher classification.

The Dallas park has been up for lease or sale for several weeks but hasn't received a single firm offer, Lewis said.

Lewis intimated that he thought public opinion might cause Dallas to advance to higher classification because if any other operator felt he wouldn't get support he wouldn't try to operate a ball club in Dallas.

The 1958 Chicago White Sox outfield probably will comprise Al Smith in left field, Jim Landis in center and Tito Francona in right.

VERSATILE BROWN—Jimmy Brown, fullback for the Cleveland Browns and who was named the top rookie in pro football for the 1957 season, was an All-American in two sports at Syracuse—football and lacrosse. Brown also lettered two years in both basketball and track at Syracuse. (AP Photo)

ROTE TO PLAY

Hula Bowl Game On Tap Today

HONOLULU, Jan. 4 (AP) — Quarterback Tobin Rote, who directed the Detroit Lions to the NFL championship Sunday, takes the helm of the Hawaii All-Stars for tomorrow's Hula Bowl game.

Rote will be directing a veteran crew of National Football League players against a College All-Star team including six All Americas. Although the Hawaiian squad lists 12 from the NFL and 10 servicemen or independents from the island, the starting offensive lineup includes 10 pros.

The past two years the NFL has proved much too strong for the collegians. In 1956, with Y. A. Tittle of the San Francisco 49ers directing the Hawaji team; it beat the Collegians 51-20. Last year with Norm Van Brocklin of the Los Angeles Rams at quarterback the Hawaiian team won 50-21.

Rival coaches are Elroy "Crazylegs" Hirsch of the Rams for Hawaii and Buck Shaw of the Air Force Academy for the Collegians.

With sunny skies predicted, a capacity crowd of 25,000 is expected for the 7 p.m. EST kickoff.

Hirsch plans to start at one end with Kyle Rote of the New York Giants — and Tobin's cousin—at the other. Tackles are Bob St. Clair of the 49ers and Vic Jazwinski of Brown and the Marines, guards John Simerson of the Philadelphia Eagles and Herman Clark of the Chicago Bears and center Charley Ane of the Lions.

Starting backs are Rote at quarter, Frank Gifford of the Giants and R. C. Owens of the 49ers at the halves and Joe Perry of the 49ers at full.

All Americas on the collegians starting team are back John Crow of Texas A&M, end Jim Phillips of Auburn, tackles Alex Karras of Iowa and Lou Michaels of Kentucky, guard Bill Krisher of Oklahoma, and center Dan Currie of Michigan state.

College Stars Crush Tucson Eleven, 56-28

TUCSON, Ariz., Jan. 4 (AP)—The College All-Stars, scoring on their first offensive play, crushed the Tucson Cowboy professional team 56-28 today in the first Optimist Bowl football game.

Collins Hagler of Iowa, named the outstanding offensive back of the game, ran 80 yards for a touchdown in the All-Stars' first play from scrimmage.

Hagler scored again in the first period from the 7 after Notre Dame's Dick Lynch set up the touchdown with a 36-yard return of an intercepted pass.

Bob Jewett of Michigan State, named the game's outstanding offensive lineman, had a field day at end, catching 12 passes, one of them for a touchdown.

Bob Mulgado of Arizona State College at Tempe scored two touchdowns on plunges of two and one yards and Cruz Salas of Arizona State College at Flagstaff tacked on two more from two and 17 yards out.

Ken Ford of Hardin-Simmons, one of the nation's top college passers, connected with Jewett for one touchdown aerial and then hit Lynch with another from the 3.

Dave Kaiser of Michigan State kicked a 35-yard field goal for the All-Stars.

Three of Tucson's touchdowns came on passes from Hank Ford. He hit Jim Ellis from 24 yards out; then Chuck Wells grabbed another for a 48-yard pass-run score; and Embry Robinson scored on a 71-yard pass-run. Robinson also plunged over from the two.

Tommy Holmes, last-half manager of Montreal in 1957, plans to return to the scouting field for the Los Angeles Dodgers in 1958.

Oklahoma City To Be Giant Farm Club

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 4 (AP)—Carl Hubbell, farm director for the San Francisco Giants of the National League announced today the giants have signed a baseball working agreement with Oklahoma City of the Texas League.

This gives the Giants an AA connection such as they had for years with Dallas in the Texas League. Dallas has withdrawn from the circuit.

WITH THREE EACH

Eagles, Jackets Lead All-State 4A

By The Associated Press

Highland Park won the championship but Abilene and Port Arthur placed the most men on the Class AAAA Texas schoolboy football all-state team. Highland Park got two while Abilene and Port Arthur each landed three.

In addition, Port Arthur had the three players nearest to unanimous selection.

The all-state committee of the Texas sports Writers Assn. picked guard Mickey Walker, tackle John Hebert and quarterback Ronnie Stanley of Port Arthur on the first team. The first two got 65 of a possible 80 points and Stanley polled 63.

Abilene, eliminated in the semi-finals on penetrations in a 20-20 tie with Highland Park, placed end Jim Perry, guard Mike Bryant and fullback Bill Sides.

Highland Park, which beat Port Arthur 21-9 for the championship, came up with Stinson Jones at tackle and Jack Collins at halfback.

Collins, the great Scot runner who rolled up 1,473 yards and scored 22 touchdowns during the season, ranked fourth in the voting. He got 59 points.

Bobby Nunis, 195-pound Austin halfback, Bill Hardegree, Baytown center, and John Dean, Dallas Crozier Tech guard, round out the first team.

There were no repeaters. Bert Coan, Pasadena back, who made it in 1956, dropped to honorable mention this time.

Three of the first team backs gained more than 1,000 yards rushing, Sides showing 1,029 and Stanley 1,021. Nunis made 960 rushing and pass-receiving, was a great punter and was sensational on defense, intercepting 12 passes and running kicks back with the speed of the wind.

The all-senior first team:
ENDS—Jim Perry, 185, Abilene; Stinson Jones, 170, Highland Park.
Tackles—John Hebert, 183, Port Arthur; Mike Bryant, 192, Abilene.

Royal 'Senior Coach Of Year In Texas'

DALLAS, Jan. 4 (AP)—Darrell Royal, the Oklahoman who rebuilt University of Texas football fortunes to sensational proportions in one season, is the senior college coach of the year in Texas.

Taking over a Longhorn team that had won only one game in 10 and whose coach had resigned, Royal piloted Texas to second place in the Southwest Conference, victory over arch rival Texas A&M and a spot in the Sugar Bowl.

The Texas Sports Writers Assn. gave Royal 48 votes, 12 more than all his competitors combined.

Jess Neely, coach of Rice's Southwest Conference champions, was second with 20. E. O. (Doc) Hayes, Southern Methodist basketball coach who produced a nationally ranked team two seasons in a row, got 15. J. V. (Sikl) Sikes, coach of East Texas State's Tangerine Bowl champions, received one vote.

NCAA Convention Opens Tomorrow In Philadelphia

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 4 (AP) — The National Collegiate AA Executive Committee today tightened eligibility rules for two of its championship tournaments and set in motion machinery to establish a new championship—in soccer.

Opening a series of committee meetings preliminary to the start of the 52nd NCAA Convention Monday, the executive committee voted that after this season only conferences which observe the freshman rule will be eligible automatically to compete in the NCAA University Division basketball tournament and the NCAA baseball championship.

While the executive committee was reaching these decisions, college baseball coaches opened their general meeting and immediately got into a hassle over proposed restrictions governing summer competition.

The American Assn. of Baseball Coaches discussed proposals for a "on campus" summer baseball program and for rules limiting the maximum payment and the amount of competition permitted in off-campus leagues.

Immediately some members objected that any such restrictions would hamper efforts to stop the raiding of college teams by professional clubs. The proposed limits were that a college player could not earn more than $325 a month during the summer and would have to work at least 36 hours a week for that. In addition, no more than three games a week would be permitted for summer teams. The objectors said that such restrictions would play into the hands of the professionals and lead to more players signing pro contracts.

NCAA officials have indicated that some sorts of standards for summer baseball competition must be established at this meeting. They believe that summer leagues are playing college players too much. The coaches are attempting to agree on a code before the NCAA imposes one on them.

This is an outgrowth of the contract which Paul Pettit signed with a theatrical agent several years ago and, which eventually brought him a $100,000 bonus from the Pittsburgh Pirates.

At least one college is reported ready to set up such a contract system and test its legality.

The new NCAA ruling on eligibility on basketball and baseball tournaments will go into effect Sept. 1, 1958. At present the champions of 16 conferences in basketball and 12 in baseball are automatically eligible for NCAA tournaments. These include the Southern and Missouri Valley conferences, which now permit freshmen to play on varsity teams.

Under the NCAA three - year rule, freshmen aren't eligible to play in the championships and neither are seniors who comp as freshmen. The result has been that teams who won conference championships using such players often went into the national championships without their star performers.

Under the new ruling, teams from these conferences won't be eligible automatically but they can be selected as "at large" entries if they conform to the eligibility standards.

The important NCAA Television Committee also went into session today to draw up plans for next year's football TV program. It indicated, however, that no report will be made before its meeting concludes tomorrow.

Gary Vice and Israel Hinojos had 10 points each to lead the Tigers in scoring in the battle for seventh place.

In the Burges game, Dunsmore led the victors with 13 points, while Leon Reed was top scorer for the Tigers with 11 points.

The Tigers will return to action Tuesday night when they will entertain the Abilene Eagles in the Tiger gym.

Tigers Lose To Temple In Debut, 55-42

By BUCK FRANCIS
News Sports Editor

ABILENE, Jan. 4 — The Tigers ran into their "coldest" spell of the season here Friday afternoon when they bowed to the Temple Wildcats, 55-42, in the opening round of the Abilene Invitational Tournament.

The game was 11 minutes old before the Tigers recorded a field goal. Temple took advantage of the cold spell by the Tigers to build up a 21-5 lead.

Snyder outscored the Wildcats the remaining distance but the damage had been done.

After trailing by 16 points midway through the second quarter, the Tigers closed the gap to 10 points at halftime, 27-17.

Then Johnny Drake hit a fielder in the opening seconds of the third period to cut the Temple lead to eight, 27-19, and it looked as if the Tigers might be staging a rally that could overtake the Wildcats.

But another cold spell allowed Temple to pull ahead by 15 points, the Tigers going three minutes without a point while Temple bucketed seven for a 34-19 lead.

Once again the Tigers battled back by narrowing the gap to eight points, 34-26, with 3:30 minutes left in the third.

But Temple braced to pull away again, 43-28, at the third quarter mark.

The Tigers still had an outside chance of catching up when they cut the Temple lead to nine points, 45-36, with 4:45 minutes remaining.

The teams traded baskets with Israel Hinojos hitting for the Tigers to keep it at a nine-point difference, 47-38, with 4:10 left.

However, the Tigers lost their chief rebounder, Bill Phillips, with 5:25 minutes to play on fouls, and the Bengals couldn't keep pace with the Wildcats who stretched their lead in the final minutes.

Hinojos led the Tiger scoring with 12 points with Phillips close behind with 10.

Tom my rWhg Shtuth dmo eel

Southpaw Tommy Wright meshed 18 points to lead the Wildcats.

The Tigers hit 15 of 46 field goal attempts for 32.6 percent. From the free throw line, the Bengals hit 12 of 17 for 70.5 percent.

Big Three Lead TCU To Victory

FORT WORTH, Jan. 4 (AP)—Texas Christian's "big three" of Ronny Stevenson, H. E. Kirchner and Derril, Nippert dominated the boards tonight as the Frogs opened the Southwest Conference campaign with a 71-48 triumph over Texas A&M.

The Aggies fell in arrears by ten points by halftime, pulled within a bucket early in the second half then were subdued by a strong Purple surge which carried the issue beyond doubt.

The final margin was the games widest.

Hermleigh, Ira Victors In Meet

HERMLEIGH, Jan. 4 — Hermleigh and Ira took championships in the Hermleigh basketball tournament here Saturday night.

In boys competition, the Hermleigh Cardinals triumphed over the Coahoma Bulldogs, 49-32 in the finals. Ira's girls team budged Hermleigh, 26-18, to win the championship in the girls division.

In consolation finals, Ira boys trimmed Fluvanna, 32-27, while Coahoma girls won over the Fluvanna girls, 67-41.

Champion Hermleigh placed two men on the boys all-tournament team. Named to the all-star quintet were Echols of Ira, Roemish of Hermleigh, Smith of Fluvanna, Covert of Coahoma and Williams of Hermleigh.

The all-tournament girls team was composed of Patterson of Ira, Martin of Fluvanna and Nixon of Coahoma at forwards, and Turner of Ira, Rinehart of Hermleigh and Richter of Coahoma at guards.

To reach the finals, the Hermleigh and Coahoma boys each won two of three games in the "round-robin" schedule that had each team in the tournament playing the other. Fluvanna and Coahoma, the other two teams in the tournament, each posted 1-2 records in the "round robin" affair.

Hermleigh, in reaching the boys finals, defeated Coahoma, 41-36, Friday night and Ira, 49-2, Saturday morning. The Cardinals had lost their opening game of the tournament Thursday night, 26-23, to Fluvanna.

Coahoma advanced to the finals with a 43-37 win over Ira Thursday night and 39-32 over Fluvanna Saturday morning, after losing to Hermleigh Friday night.

In the Girls Divison, Hermleigh defeated Fluvanna, 32-25 and Ira, 26-22, to get to the finals. The Cardinal lasses were upset by Coahoma Friday night, 33-17.

Ira gained the girls finals by winning her first two games, defeating Coahoma, 30-26, and Fluvanna, 63-32. Ira then lost her third start, 26-22, to Hermleigh.

Other games played Friday night and Saturday morning showed Ira edging Fluvanna 28-27, and Coahoma downing Fluvanna, 39-32, in the Boys Division. In the Girls division, Coahoma drubbed Fluvanna, 60-25, Saturday morning.

Red Raiders Nudge Owls

HOUSTON, Jan. 4 (AP)—Texas Tech made its debut in the Southwest Conference a victorious one here Saturday night as Polk Robinson's basketball team edged the Rice Owls 66-63 before 3,500 at the Rice Field House.

Actually, the Red Raiders won with more ease than the score might imply, for they had a 66-57 lead with only 1:41 left. But Gerry Thomas got two free throws and a layup shot and Jay McIlvain dunked a jump shot to narrow the final margin.

Using a 2-3 zone defense to good advantage, Tech's defense held Rice pivotman Temple Tucker to eight points. Tom Robitaille led Rice with 16 points and Thomas, playing with a face guard to protect a broken jaw, followed with 15. Thomas, ordinarily one of Rice's starting guards, was a forward tonight due to the illness of Gary Griffin.

All-Star Bowling Tourney On Tap

MINNEAPOLIS, Jan. 4 (AP) — It will be bowling balls instead of cannon balls in a noisy bombardment that starts Friday at the Minnesota National Guard Armory here.

Most of the nation's blue ribbon bowlers will compete for cash prizes totaling $36,225, including a hefty $5,000 for the men's champion, in the annual All-Star Bowling Proprietors' Assn. Tournament.

Transplanted here from Chicago for the first time in its 17-year history as the first major sports event of Minnesota's Centennial year, the tournament will bring together 288 top men and women bowlers from 32 states and Hawaii.

The defending champions are Don Carter of St. Louis, only man to win the title three times, and Mrs. Marion Ladewig of Grand Rapids, Mich., who has won the women's championship six times.

Starting with a preliminary event Friday, the tournament runs through Sunday, Jan. 19, using 24 lanes instead of the 16 that have been used heretofore.

Eliminations that began last August have trimmed the men's field to 192, including Carter and 1955-56 champion Bill Lillard of Chicago, who are automatically seeded into the finals.

Among the top-rated contenders are Johnny King of Chicago, Lou Campi of Dumont, N.J., Lindy Faragalli of Paterson, N.J., Joe Wilman of Berwyn, Ill., Hank Lauman of Los Angeles, Ed Lubanski of Detroit, Tom Hennessey and Steve Nagy of St. Louis and a swarm of other ranking bowlers.

Harrison Is Leader At Los Angeles

By BOB MYERS

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 4 (AP) — Dutch Harrison marched to the front of the golfers' parade today and passed the midway mark of the $35,000 Los Angeles Open with a two-stroke lead.

The veteran from St. Louis shot a one-under par 70 to go with his first round score of 68 for 36-hole total of 138.

Harrison, 47, got his round before stiff winds set in late in the afternoon and sent scores up a stroke or two.

Starting his 27th year as a golf pro, Harrison toured the Rancho Golf Club course, with its 7,170 yards and par 36-35—71, in 36-34.

When play resumes for the third round tomorrow, Harrison will have a corporal's guard of big name-challengers close to him.

Smiley Quick, a Los Angeles veteran of 48 who led the procession yesterday with a 67, fell back to 73 today and was deadlocked in second place at 140 with four lesser lights.

They are Stan Dudas of Philadelphia, with 68-72; Charles Sifford, Philadelphia, 73-67; Gay Brewer, Jr., Cincinnati, 71-69, and Tommy Jacobs of Whittier, Calif., whose eagle three on the ninth hole put him into the running.

At 141 were such seasoned players as Bo Wininger of Odessa, Tex., a victim of the late wind, with a 72; Frank Stranahan, Toledo, 73; Bob Rosburg, San Francisco, 73; and newcomers Ken Venturi, San Francisco, 69, and Johnny Pott, 22, of Shreveport, La., a former Louisiana State University star, who shot a 67.

Harrison was not putting as brilliantly as he did yesterday—he 3-putted three greens—but he knocked in birdie shots from six to 30 feet.

Doug Ford, who won this event last year, stands with a pair of 72's at 144, along with former U. S. Open champion Julius Boros who had a 73 today.

Lloyd Mangrum, winner here four times, had 72-71—143, while Jack Burke, Jr., got into the third round with 74-73—147. Ed Furgol, still another National Open champion, had 74-74—148, and the reigning National Open king, Dick Mayer, barely got in with 74-75—149.

Oklahoma, Houston and Oregon State were the only major colleges to retain sectional titles in 1957. Oregon State tied Oregon for the Pacific Coast Conference crown.

Ponies Nip Bears

DALLAS, Jan. 4 (AP)—The Southern Methodist University Mustangs took the lead for good midway through the first half tonight and coasted to an easy 63-51 victory over the Baylor Bears in a Southwest Conference basketball opener.

Clyde King, 1957 manager of Hollywood, will pilot the Columbus, Ohio, Jets, a Pittsburg Pirate farm club in the International League in 1958.

Expansion, Franchise Shifts Loom In Major League Baseball Picture

By ED WILKS

NEW YORK, Jan. 4 (AP)—Now that major league baseball has all but officially approved a compromise plan for New York and West Coast territories, what comes next—further franchise shifts or expansion?

Commissioner Ford Frick, who drafted the territorial definition offered to the majors by a special four-man committee yesterday, has indicated he looks for expansion, perhaps to 12 teams in the National and American or to a third league. National League President Warren Giles also sees expansion as the more logical next step.

Significantly, however, Mayor Wagner's committee, set up to return the National League to New York, already is on record as being "reasonably sure it can lure an existing NL franchise here now that the big town is "open."

The mayor's committee hasn't indicated which NL club or clubs it had in mind, although the Cincinnati Redlegs and the Pittsburgh Pirates have been mentioned off and on since the Dodgers and the Giants gave up and fled to the West Coast.

Gabe Paul, general manager of the Redlegs and a member of the territorial committee, indicated the Redlegs' parking difficulties in Cincinnati would be straightened out and further threats of shifting the franchise seem unlikely. "Unless," Paul added, "they (Cincinnati officials) get Mr. Crosley (club owner Powel Crosley Jr) real mad."

There seems little opposition left to bar approval of the new territorial plan when the major leagues meet in joint session here in three weeks. Frick's vote would break a possible deadlock.

Basically, the plan provides the compromise first suggested by American Leaguer Chuck Comiskey, vice president of the Chicago White Sox. At the World Series meetings in October, Comiskey said the NL could return to New York (Brooklyn or Queens) in a swap for AL permission to enter Los Angeles.

Under present baseball rules, a league already established in a city could prevent the other league from setting up a franchise there. The AL laid claim to New York, since the New York Yankees are the only major league club left here, while the NL could hold Los Angeles closed because of the Dodgers.

Razorbacks Edge Steers

AUSTIN, Tex., Jan. 4 (AP)—Scrappy Texas, playing without three of its post men, gave Arkansas a tremendous scare tonight before dropping the Southwest Conference opener, 57-55.

Trailing 6-21 in the first half, the Longhorns came to life as reserve David Ruzzell and starter Brenton Hughes sparked a comeback that cut the smooth working Razorbacks' margin to nine points. The halftime score was 31-21.

Arkansas built its margin on sharpshooting by Grim, Larry Stollzer, and Larry Grisham while the Longhorns were hitting only two of their first 18 shots from the field.

Arkansas had scored an 83-67 victory over Texas in the conference tournament at Houston nine days ago. Missing from the Texas lineup were John Shaffer, 6-5 and Bob Hover, 6-7, with injuries and 6-5 Richard Farrell.

Tut, Vincent Into Finals

TAMPA, Fla., Jan. 4 (AP)—Bernard "Tut" Bartzen, a southpaw from Dallas, Tex., and Tony Vincent, a steady backcourt player from Miami, defeated semifinal opponents today to move into a showdown for the 31st Dixie International tennis tournament men's championship.

The top-seeded Bartzen outstroked Brazil's fourth-seeded Armando Vieira, 4-6, 6-2, 6-2, 6-0.

Vincent, fifth-seeded player, ousted seventh-ranked Johann Kupferburger, of South Africa, 7-5, 2-6, 6-3, 6-3.

Bartzen and Vincent will meet for the championship Sunday.

Laura Lou Kunnen, petite Clearwater champ and top-ranked women's player, and Maria Bueno, Brazilian teen-age star, gained the women's finals. Mrs. Kunnen trimmed Toronto's Louise Brown, 6-3, 6-1, and Miss Bueno defeated Anne Vieira, Brazil, 6-2, 6-1, in semifinal matches.

Cuban League May Produce New Stars

HAVANA, Jan. 4 (AP)—New stars may appear in the American baseball firmament in 1958 out of the "twilight zone" of the Cuban Winter Baseball League.

Nearly 30 Americans from 11 teams in the United States are giving a preview of what they can do by playing topnotch baseball with four Cuban Squads.

Their future is being determined right here in the Gran Stadium of tropical Havana.

Players who might have "slipped" in the big leagues in the past season are hard at work showing that they can do better and thus sew up their berths for 1958. Youngsters who yearn to see their names on the scoreboards in American major league stadiums are turning in some impressive performances.

Bobby Bragan, the new field manager for the Cleveland Indians, believes there could be no better "testing ground" for baseball players than the Cuban League.

"You've got to play first-calls baseball here. The Cubans won't settle for anything less. And the play here is top-notch," he said.

Bragan, who manages the Amendares club here, added:

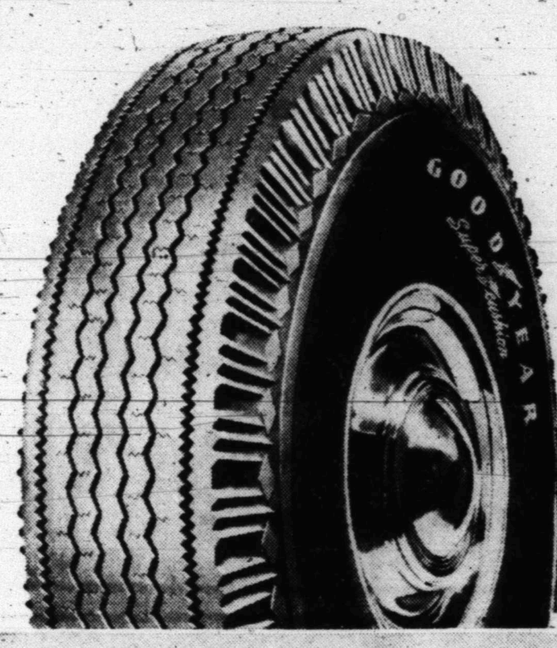

"Those who play here in Cuba are really playing in a twilight zone. Out of it will come better baseball players and probably some new stars to shine brightly in the big leagues in the United States in 1958."

Bragan said the Americans in Cuba are benefiting vastly by the "added experience and playing all winter long, instead of taking a long layoff back home and waiting for spring training.

"The spring training season," Bragan continued, "is short, and undoubtedly many times a promising player just doesn't have enough time to show what he can do before the season opens. The Americans down here in Cuba have that opportunity and they are making the most of it."

One-third of all the American players in Cuba are under Bragan's watchful eyes playing with the Almendares team he manages.

They are from the Cleveland Indians, the Baltimore Orioles, the Chicago White Sox, and the Washington Senators. Others are from the St. Louis Cardinals, the Chicago Cubs, the Pittsburgh Pirates, the Boston Red Sox, the Detroit Tigers, the Cincinnati Redlegs and the Philadelphia Phillies.

PLENTIFUL FOODS

Home economists point out that budget conscious homemakers should look for specials on the following foods at their grocers: Canned purple plums, red tart cherries, corn, peas and light meat tuna. The 1957 pack was abundant on these foods and government and industry groups are promoting them early in 1958.

WHEN TO WASH

The size of your laundry pile is the only factor you have to consider in determining when to do the family wash these days. With a home laundry of your own, bad weather has no effect on you. With a "set it and forget it" clothes dryer you can have damp-dried clothes in 15 minutes, fluffy, completely dry clothes in 30 minutes. Besides beating the weather, you save time and energy, too.

Best man was Carllee Burleson, brother of the bride.

Mrs. Donald Joe Culp, pianist, played "I Love You Truly" and the traditional wedding music.

A reception was held in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Creswell following the services. Mrs. Bert Stahl presided at the cake. Mrs. Wayne Denson ladeled punch and Miss Ethel Rose Hundsnurcher registered the guests.

The wedding cake was baked by the brides mother and decorated by Mrs. Winnie Richburg. It bore white ruffles with pink rose buds and was topped with a miniature bridal couple.

Guests attending the wedding and reception were from Snyder, Sweetwater, Pampa and San Angelo, Texas and South Dakota.

Kitchen Short-Cut

No need to heat milk for mashed potatoes if you have dry milk powder on hand. Save the hot potato water when you drain the potatoes. Shake the saucepan containing the potatoes over a flame to dry out extra moisture. Add the dry milk powder, a lump of butter or margarine and some of the hot potato water and beat until very light and fluffy. Serve in a pre-heated bowl and garnish with butter and freshly ground pepper.

Third Anniversary

This is our third birthday as a full-time printing establishment, and an opportune time for us to thank each of our customers for the privilege of serving them during the past year.

Three years ago, we opened the Feather Printing Company. Our aim was to devote all our time to the printing business rather than carry it on as a sideline to some other type business. During the past three years we have enjoyed a healthy business from firms and individuals in this area. Our printing plant has been expanded to give even better service.

Next time you need any type of printing give us a call. We will be happy to give you an estimate on any job, regardless of how large or small.

At the close of our third year we say "Thanks" to each of you for giving us the opportunity to take care of your printing requirements.

Dinner Honors C. T. McLaughlin

Friends and business associates from California to London, England, paid tribute to Snyder's C. T. McLaughlin at a surprise dinner Friday night at the Snyder Country Club.

Approximately 100 persons, half of them coming from cities throughout the Southwest, were on hand for the event, which was arranged by a Snyder group, without McLaughlin's knowledge. Dozens more from throughout the world sent contratulatory wires.

Fred Korth, executive vice president of the Continental National Bank in Fort Worth, was master of ceremonies for the informal program during which dozens of visitors and home folks lauded McLaughlin for his civic, philanthropic, business and political activities.

Highlights included the presentation of two plaques to McLaughlin and a floral tribute to Mrs. McLaughlin. Lee T. Stinson presented a plaque on behalf of Snyder citizens praising McLaughlin's civic work and interest in the community. Another plaque was presented by R. L. Tollett, president of Cosden Petroleum Corp., on behalf of citizen of Big Spring, "where Mr. McLaughlin got his start in the oil business in this section of the country."

Phil Regan, noted Irish tenor who has appeared on programs and visited here on numerous occasions, presented roses to Mrs. McLaughlin.

In accepting the plaques, McLaughlin said he was not seeking honors and did not feel that he was entitled to them, but was deeply moved by the evidence of friendship exhibited by such a large group of people.

"A man who has friends is rich, no matter what his bank balance may be," McLaughlin declared.

Among those from out of town who attended the event were McLaughlin's three daughters and their husbands, Mr. and Mrs. John DeFord of Abilene, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Knox of Houston, Dr. and Mrs. Donald I Riddle of Paris, his son and wife, Mr. and Mrs. J. Home Repair Do's And Don'ts

DO ... use the correct roller cover and the proper paint for the surface to be covered, getting the information from your dealer or from the Paint Roller-Paint Selector which many stores now carry.

DO ... be sure the surface is clean and free from oil, dust and foreign matter.

DO ... be certain that the roller is not overloaded, removing excess paint each time by rolling over the dry surface of the tray.

DO ... roll back and forth easily on the surface in all directions, letting the roller do the work and not pressing down.

STARS STARS

DON'T ... when doing walls, start rolling with a downward stroke; always roll upward with a light, even stroke on the first "pass" with the roller.

DON'T ... roll too fast, a common cause of a spraying effect.

DON'T ... spin the roller at the end of a stroke, stopping it completely before removing it from the wall.

DON'T ... resume painting in freshly-painted portion, remembering always to start on a dry portion roll into the painted area.

Clanton Family Is Together On Holiday

Mr. and Mrs. S. V. Clanton, 3011 Avenue Y, had all of their children home, along with several other relatives who had not been together for five years, during a brief period over the holidays.

The children and families include Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Broyles of Fort Worth, Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Clanton and family of Plainview, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Engle and son of Reno, Nev., Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Clanton and family of Post, Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Jean Clanton and son of Snyder and William Royce Clanton of Snyder.

Also present were a brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Corbett Clanton of Big Spring, and Bobby Anson of Reno, Nev.

Tip For Pie Bakers

Pie is America's favorite dessert. No wonder most homemakers list it as the one cooking skill they hope to achieve to perfection. One of the most important success factors for tender, flaky pastry is a hot oven. The minute your pie goes into the oven, the heat penetrates the crust to form flakes. That's why good pie recipes advise preheating the oven to 425 degrees. The flakes must bake fast, fast, fast. If they fall before baking you will have a tough, soggy crust.

Music Festival Books 'Vanesse'

SALZBURG (AP) — Next year's Salzburg Musical Festivals, slated to open July 26, will be highlighted by the first performance in Europe of Samuel Barber's contemporary opera "Vanesse" under the leadership of Dimitri Mitropoulos.

Hervert von Karajan will conduct Verdi's "Don Carlos" and Beethoven's "Fidelio," while Carl Boehm has been engaged for the two Mozart operas on porgram—"The Marriage of Figaro" and "Cosi fan Tutte."

Richard Strauss' "Arabella," another feature on the opera list, is to be conducted by Joseph Keilberth.

HAPPY CAKES

A happy cake is light, high and evenly browned on top, bottom and sides. A sad cake is heavy, humped and much too brown all over. Pans can made the difference. Shiny pans reflect the heat in your oven, allowing the cake to rise and brown evenly. Cake pans that are dark or discolored on the outside hold the heat, making the layers bake too fast and rise and brown unevenly.

Tell Me A Story, Mom

By DOROTHY V. WHIPPLE

"TELL ME A STORY," said Tricia as she hopped into bed.

"Which story tonight?" asked Mother.

"First I want 'In the olden days when you were little,' then I want a new story—two stores tonight." And Tricia lay very still, expectantly waiting.

Finally the stories were over.

"Oh Mommie, I could listen to stories forever," sighed Tricia.

Yes, children love stories, they like the kind that come out of the head, they like the kind that come out of books.

Story telling and reading aloud are becoming lost arts in our mechanical age of canned amusements — too bad when there is so much fun in sharing the joy and imagination of children.

Junior Library

If you run dry of stories to tell, freshen up your supply from some good books. An excellent book is "Favorite Stories Old And New," collected by Sidonie Gruenberg and published by Doubleday. It's a big book and will give you material for story telling for years. Children from 4 to 10 will enjoy these tales. Another story collection is "Time To Laugh," collected by Phyllis Fenner and published by Knopf. Another by the same collector is "Giants and Witches and a Dragon or Two."

Space doesn't permit the listing of many other good collections. You cannot go wrong on any of them, but if you have time, browse around a bookstore and make your own selection.

In adding a collection of stories to your home you will lead your children into that wonderful land that only book lovers know.

The little child who is told stories and read to long before he can read himself is the one who learns to love books.

Family Affair

Whenever you can, make story reading a family affair. A family that reads together shares not only the actual enjoyment of the reading, but the story characters become familiar parts of daily conversation.

Keep up the story reading even when the children are old enough to read by themselves. They may enjoy taking turns with the reading.

Patriotic Education Has Big Role In Troop Training Now

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (AP) — The Russians call it political indoctrination. We call it troop indoctrination.

However harsh it may sound, the U.S. armed services, especially the Army, feel compelled to teach Americans that in wartime their country comes before self.

Further, the services feel it is imperative to convince men that their way of life as free Americans is superior to the tyranny of communism and hence worth fighting for.

The services, in brief, no longer assume that every man comes to them a diehard patriot.

Thus we have the strange spectacle of Americans using every weapon in the arsenal of propaganda and psychological warfare — lectures, movies, posters, pamphlets, discussion groups and books — on other Americans.

This has been going on quietly for the past two years in this country and wherever American troops are stationed from Germany to Japan. The closer the troops are to the potential Communist enemy, the more intensive the education.

The Communists have been using the same techniques on their fighting men for the past 40 years. In both cases the object is to produce a reliable fighting man.

A great tradition died in these United States Aug. 17, 1955, of wounds suffered in Korea.

On that date President Eisenhower felt it necessary to tell American fighting men that henceforth they would be governed by a code of conduct which, in essence, spelled out their duties as patriots.

Never before in U.S. history have the fighting men felt the need for such a code.

From the very beginnings of this country it has been assumed that Americans knew their obligations as citizens, that when they went forth to fight they knew why.

It was assumed that Americans had been reared in the tradition of Capt. Nathan Hale, who said, "I only regret that I have but one life to lose for my country."

Indeed these assumptions generally held true through seven major wars. In this eighth, Korea, they were knocked into a cocked hat.

For the first time the United States encountered in the Chinese Communists an enemy who not only sought to convince Americans they were wrong, but who undertook actively to manipulate the minds of Americans until they were convinced they were wrong.

Why the services feel they must educate their men in the American system of government, history, ideals, traditions and citizenship is a story that begins April 20, 1953.

On that sunny but slightly hazy day the Chinese Communists and the United Nations forces began exchanging sick and wounded prisoners at Panmunjom, site of the Korean truce talks.

By the end of the day they all had been transported the 10 miles from Panmunjom to the railhead at Munsan, just inside the lines of the First Marine Division on the western front.

Even before the exchange began it had become clear that something was dreadfully amiss. Week in and week out the American forces had been monitoring pro-Communist propaganda broadcasts—made by Americans who had been captured.

Never before in history had so many captured Americans gone to the aid of the enemy.

At Munsan the services began the task of analyzing the performance of every American taken prisoner.

A few of the returned prisoners that day were interviewed by American newspaper and television reporters. It quickly became obvious that some of these men apparently had bought the Communist propaganda line.

For two years the services studied the records of the prisoners. What they found was not pretty.

A total of 7,190 Americans were captured. Of these, 6,656 were Army troops, 263 were airmen, 231 Marines, 40 Navy men. Most were captured in the early days of the fighting, before the lines became stabilized.

In every war in American history some men have managed to escape. Korea was the exception. The communists used Americans to spy on other Americans until escape plots were known to the enemy almost as soon as they were hatched.

Roughly one of every three American prisoners collaborated with the communists in some way, either as informers or as propagandists.

In the 20 prison camps 2,730 of the 7,190 Americans died, the highest mortality rate among prisoners in U.S. history. Many of them died unnecessarily. They either didn't know how to take care of themselves or they just lay down and quit. Some sick or wounded died of malnutrition, abandoned by their comrades.

Discipline among Americans was almost non-existent. It was a case of dog eat dog for food, cigarettes, blanket, clothes. Many officers and non-commissioned officers refused to accept the responsibility of leadership.

For the first time in history Americans — 21 of them— swallowed the enemy's propaganda line and declined to return to their own people.

After the war Americans back home tried to explain away all this strange behavior by calling it "brainwashing." It was associated with torture.

The hard fact is that there are few, very few, authenticated cases of physical torture. What was described as torture was in reality humiliation or stress.

In the post-Korean analysis of what happened, the services determined that the stress which led to cooperation was in reality comparable only to that which might be encountered at any time under combat conditions.

The men, so the services found, collaborated because they wanted to play it cool; that is, take what appeared to be the easy way out. They wanted to escape harassment. Ironically, the more they collaborated, the more they were harassed.

In its final report a 10-man Department of Defense Committee said:

"The committee heard evidence which revealed that many of the prisoners knew too little about the United States, its ideals and traditions . . .

"It seemed that these prisoners in question lost their battle before they entered the service. Good citizens — loyal Americans — the responsibility for their building lies with the home, the school, the church, the community. When men enter the armed forces, the military services must carry on with this development."

The ink scarcely was dry on the report before the armed services, especially the Army, set out to teach men the things they should have learned long before.

Day in and day out it is hammered home to the men:

1. You should be prepared to die for your country.

2. You should never surrender voluntarily. You should fight so long as you have the means to resist.

3. Even in prison camp you are bound by discipline. You must never rat on your buddies.

4. You should give the enemy no helpful information.

While a prisoner you are responsible for your actions.

Army Expands Missile Work

The U. S. Army is now in the process of expanding its missile program, according to Sfc. James Boone, head of the Snyder area Army recruiting office.

In connection with this, the Army has lowered its requirements for some schools for men who are high school graduates and who desire to enlist direct for guided missile school, Boone said.

In the past, a young man must have taken a course in algebra and trigonometry to qualify for a school in guided missile, but now a high school graduate enlisting for guided missiles must only have taken a course in algebra.

There are also several new schools from which prospective students may pick. The schools are located at Fort Bliss, near El Paso, for the NIKE missile.

The NIKE missile is now protecting 29 of the large cities in the U. S.

There are now seven men from Snyder in the Army who enlisted in the Guided Missile Command.

Men interested in obtaining more information on the new missile program may contact Boone at the courthouse or phone 3-9675 or 3-9674.

Baptists Set Meeting On Missions

CEDAR HILL, TEX. (Spl) — Nearly 100 Baptist missionaries and denominational workers, including Rev. P. D. Sullivan, superintendent of missions for the Snyder area, will meet here Jan. 15-17 to outline plans for starting 120 new churches and winning 85,000 converts during 1958.

The annual missions conference will be held from Wednesday afternoon through Friday noon, at the Mount Lebanon Baptist encampment grounds. Cedar Hill is about 22 miles southwest of Dallas.

Presiding at the conference will be Dr. Forrest Feezor, executive secretary for the Baptist General Convention of Texas; Dr. J. Woodrow Fuller, associate secretary; Dr. R. A. Springer, BGCT treasurer and Dr. Arthur Rutledge, stewardship and direct missions secretary.

District, association and city missions superintendents will meet in group conferences for general discussion Wednesday afternoon.

Rainfall Far Above Normal

AUSTIN, Jan. 4 (AP)—Only two Texas weather bureaus recorded less than normal rainfall in 1957.

A yearly precipitation report was released through the state Climatologist at the Austin weather station.

Heavy spring rains and steady fall precipitation brought rainfall totals to new records in many areas. Dallas had its highest total in 50 years and 25-year records were set at Austin, Fort Worth, San Antonio and Waco.

Stations reported these increases over normal: Abilene 3.46 inches, Austin 16, Dallas 20, Fort Worth 17, Houston 14, Lubbock 6, Port Arthur-Beaumont 11, San Antonio 21, Victoria 12, Waco 16 and Wichita Falls 15.

The Midland-Odessa station reported a drop of .62 inches from normal and Galveston, with 37 inches, was almost 8 inches below normal.

Laredo was the only Texas city with more precipitation than normal in December and Galveston had the largest drop, more than three inches.

Solons Set For First Session In Space Age

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (AP)—A Congress confronted with the prospect of continued high taxes, record peacetime spending and the ominous shadow of Soviet sputniks comes back to a new session Tuesday—a space age session.

One great, overriding task lies ahead:

The shoring up of the nation's defenses to meet the threat of Russian attacks through outer space.

One great, dominant issue already has emerged for the session and the congressional election in the fall:

The extent to which the Eisenhower administration has been efficient or fumbling in the handling of defense and foreign policy in a critical era in history.

President Eisenhower has pointed up the task and the issue. Eisenhower will appear before Senate and House Thursday to deliver a State of the Union message built around the theme of national security—where it stands today and what must be done to strengthen it.

The budget he will offer Jan. 13 will be balanced, the White House figures, but the highest in peacetime. Swollen with defense spending, it reportedly pushes toward 74 billion dollars for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

Most domestic programs are being shoved into the background. They will be mentioned in the budget, with price tags attached for various home front and defense items.

Perhaps never before in peace will an entire legislative program have been so tinted and molded by what has happened in another nation—Russia.

Even the administration program to aid education has been re-tailored to space age specifications. Instead of helping to finance school construction, the President now intends to submit a four-year, billion-dollar plan geared mainly to scholarships and turning out more scientists.

Other domestic operations will perhaps be trimmed to shift more money into a ballooning defense program.

Defense spending is sure to rise. It might build up enough pressure to lift the 275 billion dollar lid off the national debt in spite of White House efforts to hold it on.

With the debt and spending situation what it is, prospects of a general tax reduction are little more now than a wishful, wistful thinking. Congress may dip deeper into take home pay of many people by broadening the social security program and the taxes that finance it.

Plaguing committees which process tax, farm, labor measures will be the problem of adjusting what the nation can afford for the home front to what it must spend in the face of Russian advances in science and diplomacy.

So far members coming up for re-election, the outlook for getting through batches of pet projects is about as bleak as for a tax slash that would please constituents.

That doesn't mean there is going to be any political deuce or blackout: All 435 House seats are at stake in November, and 32 of the 96 in the Senate. Politicking is bound to surge upward to the customary peak reached every other year at national election time.

The amiability in Congress thus will give way on occasion to oratorical thundering and finger shaking to impress voters back home.

The question of what to do in case a president should be incapable of carrying on is one of the likely topics of partisan debate. The latest cue was the slight stroke Eisenhower suffered in November. He had a heart attack in September, 1955, and a major intestinal operation in June, 1956.

Democrats and Republicans probably will get in some licks on whether the country has a part time president. Chances are they will do just what they have in the past with such problems—nothing.

On civil rights legislation, nothing is likely to happen. Congress and the administration both are inclined to stand pat on the first civil rights legislation in something like 80 years, passed last year.

The administration's bid for a five-year extension of the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Law, which expires in June, faces a tough fight. The law permits this country to give tariff reductions to nations which grant them to the United States.

Some congressmen say the program is hurting domestic industry. Eisenhower may have to settle for a compromise, maybe a year extension.

Foreign aid is expected to be a target for sniping as usual, from members who want to wipe it out and those who want to curb it. Again, the President might have to take less than he wants.

In farm legislation, sentiment has been building up to do away with the acreage reserve part of the soil bank program, which pays farmers for taking land out of production of crops that are in surplus. Dairy state members are preparing an uphill battle to prevent the administration from lowering price supports for dairy products.

Eisenhower wants to boost postal rates and the House has passed a bill to do it. Hard opposition exists in the Senate.

Eisenhower killed pay raises for postal and other government employes with a pocket veto last year, partly because the postal rate increase failed to clear Congress. This time, the pay raises look fairly certain.

The Alaskan statehood bill is on the House calendar, ready for a vote. Supporters claim it has picked up strength. If it goes through, one for Hawaii is almost certain to pass.

More steam apparently is being generated, too, behind legislation to raise the national minimum wage scale and bring more workers under it.

Organized labor also is confronted by increasing pressure to establish a measure of government control over union pension, welfare and other funds as a result of abuses uncovered by the Senate subcommittee probing labor-management racketeering.

Except for the rackets inquiry, congressional investigations also seem likely to revolve around missiles, sputniks and space more than anything else.

Exams For Patrolmen Scheduled

Major Wilson E. Speir, Commander of DPS Region Four, has announced examinations for patrolmen with the Texas Department of Public Safety.

Men between the ages of 21 and 35 who are interested in joining the State Police Organization can take the tests in Region Four at Abilene on Jan. 13, in San Angelo on Jan. 14, and in Midland on Jan. 15. All exams will begin promptly at 8 a.m. Applications for these positions will close on Jan. 10 and training for those selected will begin April 1.

Major Speir pointed out that applicants must have a high school education and be in good physical condition. They must be between 68 and 76 inches in height, of good moral standards, and weight not less than two of more than three pounds per inch of height.

"Patrolmen positions with the Department offer such personal benefits as good pay with retirement benefits, annual vacations and holidays plus sick leave", Speir said. "Students are paid $300 per month while training in Austin and receive automatic pay raises upon completion."

Major Speir advised those interested to write to the Texas Department of Public Safety, Box 4087, North Austin Station, Austin.

Snowman Hunt Intensified

CALCUTTA, Jan. 4 (AP)—Texas Oilman Tom Slick, still trying to catch an "abominable snowman"—which neither he nor anyone else apparently has ever seen—will use elaborate traps and imported dogs this time.

Gerald Russell, a member of the advance party, said special wire nets, rope, traps and camouflaged tents are on the way to the expedition's base camp at Biratnagar, Nepal. He said hounds will be flow from the United States.

The party is expected to start the treak to Barun Valley by the end of the month.

Slick and his party will use the hounds at altitudes between 8,000 and 12,000 feet.

"Our task this time has assumed all the more significance now that the Russians are already in the field on the Pamir Plateau," Russel said. "It is now an international race."

Second Wife Sues Minnelli

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Movie director Vincente Minnelli, 55, divorced in 1951 by singer Judy Garland, has been sued for separate maintenance by his second wife, Georgette, 27.

The former Georgette Magnani charged mental cruelty in the suit filed yesterday. She is a sister of Christiane Martel, who as Miss France won the Miss Universe contest in 1953.

Mrs. Minnelli asked custody of the couple's daughter, Christiane Nina, 2½, substantial alimony for herself and support for the child. She said Minnelpi's M-G-M contract pays him $4,250 weekly.

The couple married Feb. 16, 1954, and separated last Oct. 13.

Why Millions Call Him "HOLY FATHER"

Catholic loyalty to the Pope is the cause of never-ending amazement to many non-Catholics.

They wonder how an exclusively spiritual leader can command the devotion of nearly four hundred millions of people. They cannot explain why this vast religious family . . . representing every race, color, language and political belief on the face of the earth . . . lives and grows through the ages, while man-made empires have their day of glory and then disappear.

What is their about this one man that causes people to speak of him in a hundred tonques as "Holy Father"?

We find the answer, of course, not necessarily in the holiness of the man himself, but in his Christ-given office. The answer is found by tracing the history of the Catholic Church . . . the history of 262 successive Popes . . . back through nearly 2,000 years to Jesus Christ Himself.

We know as a matter of historical fact that Christ did establish His Church . . . that He commissioned the Apostle Peter as its first head . . . that He sent His Apostles forth to teach men to observe all things He had commanded.

We know from the New Testament that the Church was actually organized . . . that it was governed by the Apostles under the leadership of Peter . . . that it was teaching Christ's truth far and wide, long before the last book of the New Testament was written and the books of the Bible were collected into one volume.

Christ's purpose in organizing a Church was to make certain that the good news of Redemption would be preached to all men . . . even to the end of the world. To accomplish this with fallible men, required that He establish a Church—divinely protected from error in transmitting His teaching through the centuries.

The Catholic Church traces its unbroken history back to the Apostles—back to Christ. And Catholics today call Pope Pius XII "Holy Father" because he is the lawful and historical successor to Peter, the first Pope. He is in our time . . . as Peter was in the first century . . . the Vicar of Christ on earth.

FREE—Would you like to know more about the Pope . . . why the promises made by Christ to Peter and his successors make the Pope the most important man in the world. Then write today for a pamphlet which we shall send you free and without any obligation. Ask for Pamphlet No. KC-4.

Junior Editors Quiz on WORMS

QUESTION: What are worms good for?

• • •

ANSWER: Like the boy in the picture, nearly everybody knows that worms are good as bait for fish. And the early bird that finds a worm on top of the ground thinks it's very useful indeed. But far more important than this is the job that the billions of worms living in the earth do as nature's plows. Eating their way through decaying vegetable matter in the soil, they help air to penetrate the solid earth. Also they bring to the surface each night a little of the soil that has passed through their bodies. This all makes things grow better, and farmers regard worms as friends and helpers.

• • •

FOR YOU TO DO: Color this picture to remind you of summer fun to come, and remember when you see a worm next time that the smallest of God's creatures has its place in the scheme of things.

Some Still Living On Grand Scale

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—In these days of movieland austerity, it's nice to find one famous pair who are continuing to live on a grand scale.

They are Dinah Shore and George Montgomery, who are now building a magnificent house complete with white-quartz fireplaces, waterfalls, seven bathrooms and 8,500 square feet of living space. Don't get me wrong. The Montgomerys aren't putting on the dog; they're much too down-to-earth for that. But they need a large place to house their growing family and many enterprises. Both have worked hard, Dinah on her TV grind and George making five pictures this year. So why shouldn't they enjoy the fruits of their labor?

Located in the foothills above the end of the Sunset Strip, the Montgomery manse has a breath-taking view of the Los Angeles Plain. Value of the property alone has been estimated at $100,000, and the house would cost the average builder at least $225,000.

"But it will run considerably less than that," said the wily Montgomery. "The reason is that I am my own architect, contractor and builder."

George gave me a tour of the place, which will be completed in another six weeks.

The living room is a large expanse with a wall of glass, a great white-quartz fireplace in the middle, sunken bar and plenty of wall space for the Montgomerys' collection of modern art. The space between the breakfast and dining rooms is a glass indention which gives the impression that a 60-foot avocado tree is growing right in the house.

The bedroom wing features rooms for the two children, their nurse, plus a recreation room for them. Dinah's clothes cl[illegible]ght make a living room for some folks, but it has to be immense to accommodate her TV wardrobe.

There are "his" and "hers" bathrooms, spacious affairs with much marble and slate, and the master bedroom features a chimney-less fireplace. The smoke is drawn out thro gh a lower flue.

Out of the white quartz of the bedroom fireplace will flow a waterfall which drops to a children's wading pool. This is cantilevered out and above the main, 60-foot pool into which the water again falls. All around is virtuall; a jungle of tropical plants.

CHOREOGRAPHY COMBINATION—Actr ess Jane Powell and Gower Champion represent a choreography combination as they discuss a series of four lavish dance numbers for "The Girl Most Likely," a new musical which also stars Keith Andes, Kaye Ballard, and Tommy Noonan.

Bing's New Wife Can Cook

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Yep, Bing's bride can cook too.

"At least I haven't had any complaints," said Kathy Grant, the new Mrs. Bing Crosby. "And I have had some compliments. Whether this is due to the excellence of my cooking or Bing's general amiability, I don't know."

Mrs. Crosby was relaxing in her dressing room between scenes of "Gunman's Walk," in which she stars with Van Heflin and Tab Hunter. Never one to remain idle, she was assisting a secretary who was answering mail. Kathy also clutched a chemistry book.

Chemistry?

"Yes, I'm brushing up on chemistry," she explained. "I am a fine arts major and I feel I have neglected the physical sciences. So I'm taking some high school chemistry with the studio teacher. It's very good mental discipline."

Kathy said she was always studying something with the Columbia teacher, a remarkable woman named Lillian Barkley.

I asked her about her other homework—cooking.

"I'm getting much better all the time," she said. "Like most girls today, I didn't have much time to learn at home. I did some cooking until I was 12, but after that I was away at school or busy with activities or having dates. The only cooking I did was the usual thing of making divinity or fudge for the boys. Most of the time on dates we'd go to a drive-in to eat.

"I realized this void in my education and that's why I took a home economics course at UCLA."

Does she have any specialties?

"Like any girl from Texas, I make fried chicken, of course. The only secret about fried chicken is to cook one at a time and serve it right away."

Cummings Has One Of Lasting Shows

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—There are a few fortunate TV programs which continue year after year regardless of trends and ratings. The Bob Cummings Show is one of these.

Like Ozzie and Harriet and Burns and Allen, Bob's show continues on its merry way without interruption. Next Tuesday he is laughing into his fifth year with the weekly gambol in which he plays a photographer with an eye for the glamor dolls.

There are several reasons for the show's success. Foremost is the fact that Bob is one of the top light comedians in the business. And the show is a clever combo of sex and comedy. Plus which Bob can benefit from the mistakes of his first adventure, a ridiculous caper called "My Hero."

"After that show was dropped, I was as dead as you can possibly get in show business," he recalled. "I sat in my agent's office one day and heard a top producer tell him on the phone that nobody would buy me. Being out of work, I accepted the State Department's invitation to go on a good will mission to Argentina."

While he was down there, a top-flight comedy writer, Paul Henning, came up with the idea for a new show for Bob. The idea clicked, and overnight Bob was a hot star again.

"I learned some lessons from 'My Hero,'" he said. "Although the new show was sold in August, I wouldn't go on the air until January, when we had a comfortable backlog. We had gone right on TV with 'My Hero' and were constantly on a deadline, so we had to grab at every script that came along, good or bad.

"I also resolved that we wouldn't aim at the kid audience. Sure, it's easy to develop a following that way, but kids are the most fickle audience in the world. Once they drop you, you're finished forever.

"So we aimed at the adults. But strangely enough, we started to develop a strong kid following anyway."

WINTER COTTONS

Dark cottons don't lie — they tell all. When washed with lighter clothes they become linty. Ironing them on the right side produces a shine. Margaret Spader, a home service editor suggests that dark cottons get exclusive treatment in the family laundry. When starching, for instance, always immerse the entire garment in the starch solution. Spin or wring the garments so all excess starch is removed. Miss Spader says that ironing on the wrong side prevents the shiny look. If it is necessary to touch up the right side, cover the fabric with a soft cloth and iron lightly. That's the way the professionals do it.

JUNE ALLYSON has thoroughly domesticated David Niven in his role as a screen butler in "My Man Godfrey," also starring Martha Hyer and Eva Gabor. The comedy is an up-to-date version of a 1936 hit which starred Carole Lombard and William Powell.

Monitor Surprises Earlyday Critics

By DICK SINNOTT

BOSTON, Jan. 4 (AP)—When Paul S. Deland quit his newspaper to join the newly founded Christian Science Monitor, his managing editor told him he was being silly.

"That thing," said he, "won't last six months. I'll hold your job for you."

This was half a century ago. Today Deland, who has been with "that thing" since its first issue of 1908, is the Monitor's associate editor and one of the men who make the remarkable enterprise hum.

People who predicted failure for the church-owned daily in its cradle days—and several publishers did—found their crystal ball to have been singularly opaque.

Celebrating its golden anniversary year, the flourishing Monitor reaches 120 countries with a circulation of about 180,000. And it has built this far-flung readership without local mass circulation in Boston itself—90 per cent of it being outside. In the profession, this is considered an unusual feat indeed.

Monitors are delivered by camel in African wastes, dog sleds in snowbound lands and native runners in tropic isles. In some remote localities readers pay up to $400 for airmail annual subscriptions. (The regular rate is $18.)

Throughout its career, the Monitor has resolutely eschewed sensationalism, flamboyance, and advertising from sources it declines on principle — tobacco, liquor, medicinal remedies.

Winner of 89 national and international awards and tributes extending to all phases of its operation, the Monitor is presided over by Erwin D. Canham, 57, its graying, friendly-eyed editor, who himself holds a dozen awards for contributions as a newspaperman, educator, author, lecturer, and radio and television commentator.

From the vantage point of the Monitor's milestone, Canham casts a thoughtful look at the future of the medium with which his professional life is identified.

The Monitor has long been given to such calm, persistent probing. Among its more notable news beats was the story by its U.N. staffer William Frye foreshadowing Gen. Douglas MacArthur's dismissal from command in Korea four days before the event.

And in 1942, the Monitor disclosed for the first time the full extent of U.S. shipping losses since the start of the war—losses considerably greater than the government had announced.

While the Monitor is really a national and international newspaper, it keeps an alert eye on its own bailiwick — Boston. A series on municipal affairs including an expose of assessing practices earned staffer Robert C. Bergheim a Boston Junior Chamber of Commerce award.

All of which, and more besides, points up Canham's conviction that "the day of the printed word is far from ended...swift as is the delivery of the radio bulletin, graphic as is television's eyewitness picture, the task of adding meaning and clarity remains urgent. People cannot and need not absorb meanings at the speed of light."

The Monitor was founded by Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy who—as far back as 1883—declared that a "newspaper edited and published by the Christian Scientists has become a necessity." Later she added: "Through a paper of our own we shall be able to reach many homes with healing, purifying thought."

Yet while it is one of the few daily newspapers owned by a church, its principal aim is not devotional nor church membership work. And many of its employes are non-Scientists.

Scouts Make Gain In '57

A large gain in scouts and scout units was reported at the end of 1957 by the Lone Buffalo Boy Scout District here, according to Dr. Cecil Yarbrough, district organization and extension chairman.

The district now has the largest membership in its history.

At last count on Dec. 24, the unit had 22 Cub Scout packs with 569 Cubs, 32 Boy Scout troops with 416 Boy Scouts, and four Explorer units with 127 Explorers in troops and posts.

That is a total of 58 scout units and 1,112 boys in the program.

During the year, the district had its largest percentage of boys attending camp, according to Ray Devers, camping and activities chairman.

Also, more than 50 per cent of the leaders are trained for an all-time high, according to D. V. Merritt, Jr., leadership training chairman.

It Wasn't Quite As Late As He Thought

DENVER (AP)—It's been six days since Rudolph Bucy celebrated what he thought was his 65th birthday, and retirement had been on his mind for a good many years.

Coworkers at Gates Rubber Co. gave him an electric shaver. Five bid for his machine operator's job.

Bucy even bought a house trailer to "travel around a bit."

The shocker came yesterday, when he dug out his birth certificate. It said he was born Dec. 29, 1892—not 1891 as he'd thought.

"I just don't know where I slipped up," said Bucy, shaking his head at the thought of another year's work.
