Uncle Sam writes hot checks, officials say

WASHINGTON (AP) — The tale is all too familiar: A large number of unpaid bills forces the writing of some hot checks to cover them. But in this case, it was Uncle Sam writing the rubber checks.

Officials revealed Friday that the U.S. Treasury's account at the Federal Reserve, Uncle Sam's banker, was overdrawn on Wednesday.

"Because of outlays that were unexpectedly higher relative to receipts on Wednesday, the Treasury inadvertently exhausted its deposit accounts at the Federal Reserve Banks," the Fed said in a statement.

No government checks were returned stamped "Insufficient Funds" however.

In an understanding that millions of Americans wish they had with their own banks, the Fed stepped in and covered the checks until the Treasury could replienish its account through government tax collections Thursday.

"This procedure for handling clearly inadvertent overnight overdrafts has been in place since mid-1982," the Fed said.

While officials would not say how many times the overdraft protection has been needed, it was used at least one other time — last Oct. 9. At that time, the federal government reportedly had an overdraft of $100 million that the Fed covered, a figure never confirmed by the government.

Likewise, officials would not give the figure for Wednesday's overdraft. At the close of business Tuesday, there had been $1.96 billion in the checking account.

Whatever the amount of the latest overdraft, the government was even more broke last fall because Congress was refusing to boost its borrowing authority and the Treasury had drawn down all the cash resources it had available.

On Wednesday, the overdraft in the government's checking account occurred even though the Treasury had $20 billion stashed away in savings accounts earning interest.

Treasury Department spokesman Arthur Siddon said the overdraft occurred because of a "mistake in estimating" how much money would be deposited from tax collections relative to what outlays would be on Wednesday.

"It was not a significant amount," he said. "We overestimated the amount of funds that would be coming in from income tax collections."

Balancing Uncle Sam's checking account is an enormous task since the government will make payments of approximately $1 trillion this year.

Sprayberry will be replaced on November ballot

By MARK LEWIS

Sprayberry

Charlie Sprayberry's removal from office Friday means the deposed JP's job will be put up for grabs in the November election, according to County Attorney Mark Dettman.

"It is the order of the court that the defendant, Charles Sprayberry, is removed from the office of Justice of the Peace, Midland County, Precinct 1, Place 1," read the judgment signed Friday by Judge James H. Clack.

The county commissioners must appoint a replacement, and Dettman said whomever they select must run in the next general election, even though Sprayberry's term doesn't expire until 1988.

It's too late for Sprayberry's position to be added to the ballot for the May 3 primary, but "it looks like the executive committee (of each major party) may nominate a candidate" to appear on the November ballot, Dettman said Friday.

"Or you can still get your name on the ballot as an independent," he added.

Clack sentenced Sprayberry to four years probation and $2,000 in restitution after the Midland magistrate was convicted of attempting to force his former secretary to perform oral sex on April 26, 1984.

Sprayberry, reached by telephone Friday night, refused to comment "at this time."

The 45-year-old Republican was elected JP in 1980, and was re-elected in 1984 with 94 percent of the vote after winning a three-way primary.

He took an unpaid leave of absence after being indicted in November. Judy Massingill, a Justice Court clerk, has been serving as temporary JP.

County Judge William B. Ahders said the commissioners will consider appointing a new JP at their May 12 meeting.

If the Midland County Republican Executive Committee has selected its nominee by then, the Republican majority on the Commissioners' Court could be expected to appoint that person to Sprayberry's position.

"It's too soon" to tell what the Republican Executive Committee will do about Sprayberry's position, said Midland County GOP Chairman Dean Rucker.

"I've got some homework to do," Rucker said Friday.

Janet Massey, the Midland County Democratic chairman, could not be reached for comment.

The newly appointed JP would have to stand for election in November. If elected, he or she would serve out the last two years of Sprayberry's term and then run for a full term in 1988, Dettman said.

Midland's other JP position is also on the November ballot. Democrat Robert H. Pine is running for re-election to the post he has held since 1964.

Pine and his Republican opponent, Kent Sutton, are unopposed in the primaries.

Sprayberry was convicted of attempted sexual assault April 17 by an Abilene jury after his first trial in Midland ended with a hung jury Feb. 20.

Friday morning, he accepted a prosecution offer to recommend probation if Sprayberry would withdraw a mistrial motion and waive his right to appeal.

Defense attorney John W. Smith said he didn't believe Sprayberry was guilty, but he feared Clack would sentence his client to prison if he didn't accept special prosecutor Andy Shuval's offer.

"An appeal would probably take at least 24 months," Smith said. "We decided it was better in this particular instance to take the probation."

Attempted sexual assault, a third-degree felony, carries a penalty range of two to 10 years in prison and an optional fine up to $5,000.

Sprayberry also agreed not to seek early release from probation.

In return, the prosecution agreed to exempt Sprayberry from a law which would have prevented the convicted felon from owning a rifle.

"He can still hunt," Smith said.

As part of the deal, misdemeanor charges against Sprayberry of telephone harassment and barratry, or improperly soliciting cases for a lawyer, will be dropped. Shuval also agreed not to file charges of misappropriation of funds and campaign-law violations against Sprayberry.

Although Sprayberry had apparently reneged on an earlier deal to take 10 years probation and pay a $5,000 fine if he failed a polygraph test, Shuval said he was satisfied with four years probation and $2,000 in restitution for Midland County.

"I think in the long run this will probably save the county $7,000 to $10,000 in appellate costs," he said.

Fifth-grader Justin Jones, right, injects some modern innovations into the Middle Ages' Fete du Mai celebration by snapping some photographs of classmates at Trinity School. Third graders in Cathy Erlandson's class, above, provide part of the vocal entertainment during the annual festival held Friday.

Trinity School holds 'Fete du Mai'

By RAMONA NYE
Staff Writer

The girls parade around in altered prom dresses and pastel-colored Gunne Sax dresses.

The boys' favorite costume appears to be tunics with shorts underneath.

On a balance beam, a girl hikes her dress up with one hand as she aims a pillow at an opponent on the other end. She knocks two boys off, but ends up being knocked off by a third opponent.

Pillow fighting is Trinity School's answer to jousting during their third annual "Fete du Mai" or May fest held Friday. The fest is patterned after the medieval holiday celebrating the beginning of spring.

"I think there's a little bit of Camelot in all of us, and they can really relate to this," said fifth grade teacher Pat Shaw.

Ms. Shaw along with art teacher Jack Hickman started the all-day fair three years ago to celebrate the end of a year-long study on the Middle Ages. The school's fifth grade classes focus on the history, architecture and literature of the Middle Ages.

On Friday, Trinity School students from kindergarten through eighth grade assumed roles as knights, friars and ladies-in-waiting as they indulged in medieval culture. Fifth graders assume medieval personalities during the school year in their classes and writings.

"They have adventures. Many of them have pets...pet dragons," Ms. Shaw said.

During the day-long fest, students are exposed to games played by children during the Middle Ages. Originating in England, Skittles involves students attempting to knock over nine pins with a ball tethered from a pole.

In a French game called Les Boules, teams of two students attempt to throw balls as close as they can to another ball labeled the "pig."

Stilt-walking also is attempted by students.

"One goal we had in mind is to show that they can have fun without electronics or batteries," Ms. Shaw said.

Hickman and Ms. Shaw said the simplicity of the Middle Ages attracts the youngsters. Students can relate to the characters of the era.

"All the men are heros and all the women are beautiful," Ms. Shaw said.

Hickman added, "They love it because it's so far removed from TV and modern conveniences. They are sensing now that things might have been different."

Expert: Third World debt major issue

Currency stabilization other issue facing summit, Lever says

By KINGSBURY SMITH
National Editor, The Hearst Newspapers

WASHINGTON — Two of the most critical issues facing the Economic Summit leaders in Tokyo will be the Third World debt problem and stabilization of the dollar and other major foreign currencies, according to Lord Harold Lever, one of Europe's leading monetary experts.

"No American community will be secure from the disaster which would follow any significant default on their dollar obligations by countries in Latin America, Africa and Asia," Lord Lever said.

He said the Third World debt to western and other countries, now totalling over $600 billion, needs "urgent" attention not only for the serious threat it poses in itself "but also because it epitomizes a sickness in the West."

"It is a dramatic crystallization of the failure of Western democracies during the last 20 years to adapt to a new world of economic interdependence so that now in the mid-1980s we have, as well as a crisis of debt, a dangerous volatility in our exchange rates and a growing menace to free trade," he added.

Lord Lever, who served as financial adviser to British Prime Ministers Harold Wilson and James Callaghan and as a senior member of their Labor Party cabinets, arrived in Washington a few days before the departure of President Reagan for the summit meeting of leaders of the major western nations and Japan. He met with Deputy Secretary of the Treasury Richard G. Darman, Federal Reserve Board Chairman Paul Volcker, and other administration and congressional officials.

"I came away convinced that for the first time you have got in James Baker and Mr. Darman a team that can lead intelligently on these vitally important issues," he said. He particularly praised Treasury Secretary Baker for getting an accord last September among the five leading industrialized nations to reduce the value of the U.S. dollar. Until then, the Reagan administration's policy was to let the dollar float freely on foreign exchange markets and be subject to overvalued rates influenced by speculators.

He believes further European and Japanese cooperation with the United States in stabilizing the dollar is "crucial for resolving the debt problem and for achieving greater currency stability."

"The others must help put flesh on the Baker plan," he added. "Make it effective and take their share of the cost of supporting it."

Describing the danger of Third World default as "real," Lord Lever recalled then-Secretary of the Treasury Donald Regan's warning in 1982 that if foreign debtors could not continue to make their interest payments on the now more than $150 billion they owe American banks, the latter would have to curtail drastically mortgage and other loans in cities and states around the United States.

Lord Lever believes western financial institutions must continue to loan the major deficit countries enough money to meet reduced interest payments so that they do not default, and that such loans should be guaranteed by governments. He also believes the banks will have to write off gradually as losses a large part of the bad loans. His views on what he thinks must be done to avert defaults that could trigger a financial collapse in western countries are set forth in detail in a new book, "Debt and Danger?" just published in this country.

One of sports winningest jockeys waits for stork

OPA-LOCKA, Fla. (AP) — Florida's winningest woman jockey has put her thoroughbred racing career "in the barn" for a while as she awaits a visit from the stork this summer.

"I'll be back," guarantees Mary Russ, described by experts as one of the best women riders in the country.

Tall for a jockey at 5 foot 4, she exercises diligently to keep her weight around 110 pounds. For most of her five-year professional career, she's ridden 700-800 mounts a year, mostly at South Florida's three tracks: Calder, Hialeah and Gulfstream. However, she's also left her mark at major tracks around the country, such as Aqueduct, Belmont and Saratoga.

"I have no idea how many races I've won, but I imagine it's over 500," she says matter-of-factly.

She's reticent about her achievements, but records show that last year she was the first woman ever to ride in a stakes race at Keeneland and Omaha. She won both aboard Harry N. Bill.

In 1982, with one year's experience, she won the Grade I Widener Handicap at Hialeah aboard Lord Barnley. Prior to that, she was the leading rider at Calder's Tropical meet. Russ has also been in the winner's circle for the Gulfstream Handicap.

"If she isn't already, she's pretty close to being one of the leading women jockeys in the country," said Frank Alexander, a Miami Lakes trainer.

Unlike most jockeys who begin their careers at an early age, Ms. Russ didn't get her first ride until she was 26.

"I never had a pet as a kid, not even a dog," she recalls of her childhood in Tampa. At 15, she became "horse crazy" when she took care of a girlfriend's horse and learned to ride.

At 19, she went to work for Hobeau Farm in Ocala doing stable work and "breaking babies," the term used for the initial training of a thoroughbred. After two years there, she switched to the Red Oak Farms, also in Ocala.

Admittedly, Ms. Russ gave no thought to being a jockey in those years.

"I was a chunky kid and weighed about 125," she said, "too big to be a jockey."

At 23, she went to Calder looking for work. As a free-lancer, she galloped horses and performed odd jobs around the track's "back side." A year later, she decided to be a jockey, but kept her goal a secret.

"I dieted, which wasn't easy because I also worked in a deli and I'm a good eater," she added with a smile. She also started riding bulls at Davie at night.

A broken collarbone and a collapsed lung ended her bull-riding. Medical bills left her broke, but her weight was down to 100 pounds. Frustrated, Ms. Russ prepared to leave Calder, but trainer Manny Tortora gave her a riding contract.

Her first race was in November 1980. She was up on a mare in a six-furlong dash.

"I just hung on," she said with a laugh. "I probably beat only one horse."

In March 1981, she became an apprenctice jockey — the classification comes after five wins. She was qualified as a full-fledged jockey without any weight allowance after one year.

"She's probably the No. 1 woman rider in the United States," said Tortora. "She has natural ability and works hard at it. And she'll ride anything, good or bad."

Mexico out to change its image

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexican officials have hired several top U.S. public relations firms to clear what they believe is an image of a country with roaming bandidos, drug traffickers and a smog-choked capital in shambles following a September earthquake.

"What we hope to do is get the image of Mexico, the positive image of Mexico, in all corners of Washington — at the White House, in Congress, in the media and among the intellectuals," one senior Mexican government official told the Houston Chronicle.

"Too often, the image of Mexico that is conveyed to the United States shows only one side of the apple — the side with the worm."

Mexican officials say their image troubles started with negative news reports about the kidnapping and murder of U.S. narcotics agent Enrique Camarena, last seen alive in February 1985 in the northwestern city of Guadalajara. Two American tourists also were slain and the integrity of July elections was questioned.

In the past year, government officials have publicly accused foreign journalists of being biased against Mexico.

"The number of negative stories grew in a way that woried us," said one top Mexican official with direct access to President Miguel de la Madrid. "The U.S. press is the most hostile...and when you go personally to the United States to refute these charges, they tell you that it is too late. That is why now it is important for us to be prepared."

For that preparedness, the Mexican government contracted the services of high-powered U.S. public relations and lobbying firm, Hannaford Communications International. In addition, the Tourism Ministry has retined the New York-based Hill & Knowlton and trade matters are being handled by Washington's Michael Deaver & Associates.

Although Mexicans have often been sensitive about their country's image, the government has not previously hired public relations firms because of national pride. The decision to hire three firms marks an abrupt policy change, the Dallas Times Herald reported.

"We have always thought that we wouldn't do something in another country, like the United States, that we wouldn't want the United States doing here," one source close to President Miguel de la Madrid said.

"It has been viewed almost as a kind of intervention in a foreign state. But now I think we are in modern times. Now it is important to know how important these relations are for us."

The sources, like all the other officials interviewed, asked to remain unidentified.

According to records on file with the Justice Department, Hill & Knowlton received about $1.6 million for services last year and Hannaford Communications received almost $60,000. Michael Deaver & Associates reported it would be paid $250,000.

Following the September earthquake in Mexico City, the country's tourist industry has fallen sharply.

Roberto Zapata, president of the Mexican Hotel and Motel Association, said that 90 percent of the estimated 5 million foreigners who visit Mexico each year are from the United States.

Texas provides the largest number of visitors, followed by California, New York and Chicago.

"We have always looked on Texas as the doorway to Mexico," Zapata said. "It is a very important state for us. We have a big stake in keeping Texans coming to Mexico."

School renovation moratorium altered

By STEVE LEVINE
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Compromising between state budget problems and campus building needs, higher education officials Friday stepped back from a proposed moratorium on construction and repair projects at state colleges and universities.

The Texas College and University System Coordinating Board voted to limit projects to those the schools could prove "critically and demonstrably essential" to protecting their "existing educational or research roles." The board rejected an earlier plan that would permit only those projects "clearly justified as meeting emergency needs."

Gov. Mark White said the less-stringent restrictions "will permit wise decisions to be made." The cutback takes effect immediately and will last until the Legislature has "an opportunity to address the financial conditions of the state and higher education."

Board members emphasized that they will place priority on campus repair and rehabilitation while postponing most new construction plans. Much of the money the universities had wanted to spend comes from a $100-million-a-year improvement fund that voters approved during a 1984 constitutional amendment election.

"Present austerity dictates that accountability be the byword for new construction," said board member Sam Carroll of El Campo, who emphasized that the revised plan permits some growth. "The state of Texas is not out of business and will continue to be a national leader in higher education."

Board Chairman Larry Temple of Austin said the resolution — combined with an earlier request asking the Legislature to boost faculty salaries — puts the emphasis "on brainpower rather than bricks and mortar."

Immediately after the 14-1 vote in favor of the resolution Friday, the board followed through by postponing or rejecting $76.5 million of the nearly $86 million in repair and new construction projects for which six state universities had sought approval. The board put off a $35 million new library for Southwest Texas State University and a $22.5 million science and research center for the University of Houston but approved repair projects at five schools.

The University of Texas of the Permian Basin had no proposals on this month's agenda, and President Duane Leach said he preferred the revised plan the board adopted. "I don't see it as a major threat to anybody who has a legitimate project," Leach said.

The board also tentatively approved a new rule prohibiting state colleges and universities from granting credit toward graduation for remedial courses. Last fall, the board found that 29 community colleges and six universities were granting credit for courses that taught high-school-level material.

"All we're trying to do is be sure to put substantial integrity in a baccelaureate degree," Temple said.

Leach said UTPB does not offer any remedial courses, so the change will not affect that school.

Sandinista defends anti-American stance

By JIM WARREN
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — A top Sandinista official Friday defended Nicaragua's anti-American stances and slogans, saying it is a continuation of their revolution, while a leading opposition leader called for improved U.S.-Nicaraguan relations.

Nicaraguan Supreme Court Justice Mariano Barahona, in Austin for a meeting with a legal group, said the ruling Sandinista Party has a right to be anti-American. The official party hymn repeats one line that says, "the Yankee must die" and another that says, "Americans are the enemy of all humanity."

An opposition assemblyman, Edwin Yllescas of the Democratic Conservative Party, said the Sandinistas only increase friction between the two countries by singing anti-American hymms, allowing Cuban advisers in Nicaragua and working with the Soviets.

Barohona defended Nicaraguan leader Daniel Ortega's visit to Moscow, saying it had no relation to last year's Congressional refusal to send more military aid to the contras fighting the Sandinistas. Ortega met with Soviet leaders the day after Congress denied further military support.

Barohona also accused the Reagan administration of lying last month when it claimed Nicaraguan troops entered Honduras the day after Congress again denied aid to the contras.

But Yllescas, whose Democratic Conservative Party was the second leading vote-getter last election, called the Moscow trip "clearly a mistake, an extremely clumsy and stupid mistake." However, Yllescas said his party does not support U.S. aid to the rebel contras. Instead, he said the U.S. government should help opposition parties like his to turn the leftist Sandinistas out of power.

The Sandinistas are not, Barohona said, all Marxist-Leninist, but said most of its members have a "Marxist formation." The Sandinistas, he said, support a mixed economy, democratic elections and nonalignment in world affairs.

After the Somoza dictatorship fell in 1980, the Sandinistas took control and held their first elections last year. Yllescas said, "The elections were honest but not just," citing the bias of state-controlled newspapers and superior Sandinista financing.

Yllescas outlined several constitutional changes his party wants, including a nonpartisan military and a strong separation of powers.

Barohona said he cannot "conceive of an apolitical army. It's a myth." He also noted that Nicaragua has some separation of powers and pointed to at least 30 cases in which the Supreme Court ruled against the Sandinistas.

The high-ranking Nicaraguan officials came to Austin to speak to Nation Lawyers Guild meeting on constitutional development in Third World Countries.

Plane makes emergency landing

WASHINGTON (AP) — An American Airlines Boeing 727 with 117 people aboard made an emergency landing at Dulles International Airport after a cockpit warning light indicated an engine fire, an airport spokesman said.

Flight 562, flying from Chicago, had been scheduled to land at Washington National Airport, but instead landed at Dulles at 7:05 p.m, said Hugh Gudger, Dulles operations officer. No fire was discovered.

Three people suffered minor injuries while sliding down emergency chutes and were treated at a nearby hospital, he said.

After landing, the pilot activated fire extinguishers in the engine.

Air show to feature aerobatic pilots

From Staff Reports

ODESSA — An air show featuring skydivers and aerobatic pilots will be held May 3 at Schlemeyer Air Field near Odessa, according to Bill Wicks, air show coordinator.

The show is being sponsored by Chapter 123 of the Experimental Aircraft Association (EAA).

In addition to the skydivers' leap and controlled "flight" over the field, the air show will feature aerobatic maneuvers by such pilots as Gene Beggs, Ole Olsen, Pat Day, Van White, Fred Michna and retired U.S. Air Force test pilot Robb Satterfield.

"It should be a lot of fun," said Wicks.

Beggs, who is a member of the U.S. World Aerobatic team which won the 1984 World Aerobatic Championship, flies in the "unlimited" — ultimate — category. He is on the 1986 U.S. team which will be defending its world title this summer in England.

Olsen recently won the advance category in International Aerobatic Club (IAC) competition in Arizona, and Day placed sixth in the sportsman category in that competition.

The air show begins at noon. Admission will be $2 per adult, $1 per child or $5 per carload. Proceeds will go to the Civil Air Patrol, Wicks said.

Convenience store clerk assaulted

From Staff Reports

A convenience store clerk was treated and released for cuts to the face, neck and chest late Thursday after he was assaulted about 11:50 p.m. by two persons believed to be juveniles, Midland police said.

The victim, an employee of Kent Kwik Convenience Stores Inc., 1709 Rankin Highway, told police the assault occurred when two suspects drove in to the parking lot, got out of their vehicle and proceeded to fight with the occupants of another vehicle.

The man, whose name was not released, said he tried to break up the fight when one of the suspects struck him on the side of the head with a golf club. He told police the suspects followed him into the store where they continued to strike him with the club on the face, neck and chest. The suspects could not be identified, according to the report.

In other complaints, Sheila Schoolcraft, 201 Marie Drive, reported someone broke into her residence between 8 a.m. and noon Friday and stole about $1,890 worth of property, according to Midland County Sheriff's Department reports.

Taken in the burglary were a color television set, video cassette recorder, 38-caliber revolver, 20-gauge shotgun, 30.30-caliber rifle and men's wedding ring, according to the report.

Prince convicted on drug charge

LONDON (AP) — Prince Mashour Aziz, nephew of Saudi Arabia's King Fahd, was convicted Friday of possessing cocaine with intent to supply it, but cleared of charges that he imported and supplied the drug.

He admitted possessing cocaine, but had denied the three other charges.

The prosecution contended that the prince, who lives in London's South Kensington district, was the financial backer of a ring smuggling drugs from Amsterdam to Britain.

Aziz, 32, appeared at Crown Court in the Knightsbridge section of London along with seven other people, all accused of drug offenses.

Archer calls for repeal of Windfall Profit Tax

From Staff Reports

Van Archer, Republican candidate for the 21st Congressional District, called for the immediate repeal of the Windfall Profit Tax during a talk in Midland Friday evening.

Archer, speaking at a barbecue sponsored by Mr. and Mrs. Bill Potts, explained how this tax burdens the energy industry even with the current low oil prices.

"Despite the fact that this country will depend on our domestic oil industry in the case of a national emergency for our national defense, and despite the fact that the American oil industry is in a deep depression, the federal government has not let up one bit on this industry, the most over-regulated over-taxed businesss in America.

"At its height the Windfall Profit Tax took over $1 million a day out of the 21st District. With the current low price of oil the federal government is no longer collecting any 'windfall profits,' but the bureaucracy goes on."

Archer said the people who collected the tax are still being paid at taxpayer expense.

Left with nothing to do, these people now have started trying to rigidly enforce regulations and businessmen in the oil industry are having to fill out mounds of forms for this department, according to Archer.

"This is just one example of the nonsense that has gone on because the government has become involved in the oil industry," Archer said.

Flower Walk scheduled

From Staff Reports

The Friends of the Midland Nature Center will have a Flower Walk at 1 p.m. Sunday at the Nature Trail at Hogan Park.

About 30 species of wild flowers are in bloom and about 20 species of birds may be found along the trail.

The Nature Trail is located on the first parking lot on the left past the Women's Club building and Sibley Center.

Garage sale slated

From Staff Reports

Safeway will sponsor an employee-supported garage and bake sale today from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Wadley and Garfield streets to help offset cancer medical costs for Webb Coffin and his family.

Coffin has been employed by Safeway for 35 years in retail operative services.

Correction

The Reporter-Telegram regrets the error.

Tower 'outraged, embarrassed' that Thatcher was asked to move

STATE

DALLAS (AP) — Former U.S. Sen. John Tower said Friday he is outraged and embarrassed that the son of British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher has been asked by the owners of an apartment building to leave his luxury digs.

"It's a slap in the face to a friendly government, to a very gallant lady who stuck her neck out politically to support us. I feel a great sense of outrage over this and a sense of embarrassment," he said.

Tower said he talked to the apartment managers on behalf of the prime minister's son, asking them to let Mark Thatcher stay in his luxury apartment in the exclusive Turtle Creek area near downtown.

Tower would not give the names of the people with whom he talked but said they wouldn't reconsider. Apartment management officials have refused comment on the matter.

Thatcher, 32, was asked to leave after the State Department requested the addition of closed-circuit television surveillance to the apartment's security system, Tower said.

"I think they didn't want the security people, the security cameras. I think they just felt that they didn't want to deal with whatever was attendant," he said.

"The fact is the building is safer than it ever has been or ever will be. I think it's a short-sighted judgment," he said.

The State Department asked Dallas police to provide security because of concern about reprisal threats following the U.S.-Libya clash, officials said.

Mrs. Thatcher was the only western European leader to openly support the Libyan raid.

Tower said he decided to intervene in the dispute because he was approached by other tenants in the building who disagreed with the action and thought it reflected poorly on the city.

He said he doesn't know when Thatcher must leave, but he said his departure won't be immediate. Thatcher's lease expires at the end of May. Tower said he has talked to Thatcher about the matter, but wouldn't elaborate on the discussions.

Thatcher is a former race driver who has worked in Dallas as a British motorcar representative.

The operators of the apartment, Inter-City Investments, would make no public comment. Edwin B. Jordan, company spokesman, did not return calls from the Associated Press Thursday or today.

C.J. Vannoy, manager of the apartment complex, also did not return calls from the Associated Press today.

Dallas law enforcement officials received a request for security by the State Department's Bureau of Diplomatic Security, press officer Deborah Cavin said Thursday.

"We have officers with him or very near him around the clock," police spokesman Bob Shaw said. "It's my understanding that his mother, being very prudent had, I guess, asked the state department about (protection) and of course we're doing whatever they asked us to do," he said.

State department officials decided to ask for security because of "increased levels of terrorism threats made in recent weeks against this country and the United Kingdom," Ms. Cavin said. She said security will be provided for an indefinite period of time.

Shaw said he could not comment on specific threats against Thatcher. Ms. Cavin also would not say if specific threats had been made.

Woman claims dance teacher cheated her

ODESSA (AP) — A former dance student is suing her dance instructor, claiming he cheated her of the title to her home by offering her 366 hours of dance lessons.

But the dance teacher calls the suit "ridiculous" and says the woman filed it on the advice of her psychic after holding a seance.

The suit, filed Thursday on behalf of Martha R. Street, a 38-year-old secretary, claims that dance teacher George Eck and the Fred Astaire Dance Studio accepted title to her $47,000 home in exchange for roughly $22,000 worth of dance lessons at $60 an hour.

But Eck said Ms. Street was a former student who took a variety of ballroom dance classes, and that he had offered to arrange for the sale of her home with some Lubbock buyers.

He called her allegations "ridiculous" and "far-fetched," and he claimed the woman's Lubbock psychic encouraged her to file the suit.

Hance thinks GOP can attract enough voters to unseat White

AUSTIN (AP) — Republican gubernatorial candidate Kent Hance, announcing endorsements from some longtime Texas backers of President Reagan, insisted Friday he has the best chance of attracting enough new GOP voters to unseat Gov. Mark White.

Hance predicted that substantial numbers of conservative Democrats and angry educators will take part in the Republican primary May 3 and vote for him.

"We feel like the rural vote we'll be getting will be very positive. A lot of people in education are going to be voting in the Republican primary for the first time. To them, if it's a question of Bill Clements vs. Mark White, that's no choice whatsoever," Hance said.

"Our goal of bringing in new voters — we feel like we're right on target," he said.

Hance downplayed recent opinion polls showing him and U.S. Rep. Tom Loeffler trailing Clements, the former governor.

"The only polls we've seen so far are polls that were taken three and even four weeks ago. It was simply a name identification thing," he said.

While those same polls indicate White may be in trouble, Hance said it would be a mistake for Republicans to get too confident.

"Anyone who thinks Mark White is going to be easy, they are getting themselves into a bad position. He will not be easy," Hance said.

Hance, the former Lubbock congressman who nearly captured the Democratic U.S. Senate nomination in 1984, said his campaign this year has enlisted many of his Senate campaign organizers statewide.

"The key is who who turns out their vote. We feel like we're in good shape to turn out our vote. We have the grassroots organization to turn out the vote," he said.

Among those endorsing Hance on Friday was Clymer Wright of Houston, a longtime Reagan backer and former Reagan finance chairman in Texas. He likened Hance's ability to attract disaffected Democrats to that of the president in the 1980 and 1984 elections.

"We anticipate that Kent Hance will be able to attract thousands and thousands of new voters to the primary this year, which is going to completely throw off the (opinion) polls," Wright said.

In other political news Friday:

• The president of the Mexican American Democrats of Texas, Ruben Bonilla of Corpus Christi, urged all Hispanic voters to "take time and seriously re-evaluate whether they can continue to support Oscar Mauzy."

Bonilla said a campaign newspaper published by Mauzy was "disturbing and disappointing." The tabloid newspaper included flattering articles about Mauzy and Supreme Court candidate Jay Gibson, who is running against Justice Raul Gonzalez, the high court's first Mexican-American member.

"The tabloid recently mailed to over 750,000 voters in the state pairing Oscar Mauzy with Jay Gibson not only is injurious to state Democratic Party efforts to elect the first Mexican-American to a statewide office, but is insulting to the Mexicano electorate," Bonilla said.

Mauzy, a Dallas Democrat, on Thursday apologized for the newspaper. He said it was "an insensitive decision" to "sell space in our mailer" to Gibson.

Mauzy said he did not endorse Gibson, adding that he values greatly the support of Mexican-Americans.

• District Judge Hugo Touchy, a candidate for the Texas Supreme Court, predicted he would get enough primary votes to force a runoff

"Unfortunately, there is a great deal of public apathy and a real effort by certain small groups of rich personal injury lawyers in Texas to keep the public ignorant of the significance of an untained Texas Supreme Court," Touchy charged.

• More than 60 former Supreme Court briefing attorneys endorsed the candidacy of Supreme Court Justice Robert M. Campbell, who has served on the court since 1978.

West Texas Deserves an Attorney General Who is TOUGH on Crime & TOUGH on Criminals. West Texas Needs

Ed Walsh

Ed Walsh understands West Texas values. Ed and his family have been ranching in Williamson County for 80 years. Ed and his wife, Lori, and their children, Kristopher, Jessica, and Jamie reside in Round Rock, Texas.

Ed Walsh is a prosecutor. Walsh has argued over eighty felony jury trails, putting hardened criminals in prison or on death row. He won seventy six cases, or ninety-five percent of the time.

Walsh has fought in court for the rights of victims and won. All three killers Walsh prosecuted for capital murder were sentenced to death. One of them was Henry Lee Lucas, the serial killer suspected in over 100 murders nationwide. Lucas sits on death row today because of Walsh's effective arguments againt Lucas in trial.

There are three Republican lawyers running for Attorney General. Each one of them has had prosecuting experience. But only one was recognized by the Texans War On Drugs Committee in 1983 as "Outstanding Prosecutor": Ed Walsh. And only one was a good enough prosecutor to be named "Outstanding District Attorney" by the Texas Bar in 1984: Ed Walsh. That makes Ed Walsh the most qualified Republican candidate for Attorney General.

On May 3, vote for the Republican who is tough on crime and tough on criminals. . . Ed Walsh.

VOTE IN THE REPUBLICAN PRIMARY MAY 3.

STATE IN BRIEF

More than 500 Lockheed employees will lose jobs

AUSTIN (AP) — More than 500 Lockheed employees in Austin will lose their jobs because of the Air Force's decision to postpone production on a Lockheed program.

The layoffs in the company's Austin division, totaling about 20 percent of the workforce, are scheduled for May, officials said.

Company spokesmen on Thursday announced the cutbacks, one week after the Air Force told Lockheed it will postpone for a year a decision to begin production of Lockheed's Precision Location Strike System program.

Officials said the program accounted for about $60 million in revenue for Lockheed Austin last year.

Lockheed officials said the program was delayed because of increasing pressure on the Department of Defense budget.

The Air Force decision will cut Austin division revenue $25 million to $30 million in the next year and will force the company to cut its payroll, Lockheed officials said.

They said most cuts will come from the 500 workers in the strike system program, but support workers and a few workers in other Lockheed programs also will be cut.

Inmates hospitalized

PALESTINE (AP) — Three prison inmates were hospitalized and about a dozen others suffered minor injuries during a riot that apparently was racially motivated, prison officials said Friday.

Charles Brown, Texas Department of Corrections spokesman said Friday that the disturbance began about 10 p.m. Thursday in the prison's day room. He said two cannisters of tear gas were used to stop inmates from fighting.

Brown said Daniel Morris, 25, serving a 15-year sentence for burglary out of Galveston County, suffered head injuries and was taken to Tyler Medical Center where he was listed in good condition Friday. James Lawson, 19, serving a 20-year sentence for rape out of Tarrant County, and Kenneth Lincoln, 24, serving a 30-year sentence for attempted murder out of Dallas County, suffered cuts and abrasions and both were taken to the TDC hospital in Galveston, Brown said.

About 15 other inmates suffered minor injuries, and six homemade weapons were confiscated, he said.

One guard was hit in the face with a board, Brown said. He was treated at the unit's infirmary.

The riot apparently was caused by racial problems between Hispanics and blacks, Brown said.

Baker gives lecture at UT

AUSTIN (AP) — Government needs the involvement of more business people, particularly entrepreneurs, Treasury Secretary Jim Baker told graduate business students at the University of Texas on Friday.

"You are very much a part of the American progress that will pull the whole world forward," Baker said during one of a series of distinguished speaker lectures at the graduate school.

Baker said that "time and time again, the private sector has proven it can operate better than government and a wealth of services can be better provided by state and local government than the nationl government," Baker said.

He urged students in the business school to become "directly involved in politics and government at some point in your careers."

Mondale says if evdience exists, Khadafy should be indicted

NATION

WASHINGTON (AP) — Walter F. Mondale said Friday that if the United States has evidence linking Col. Moammar Khadafy to terrorist killings of Americans it should indict the Libyan leader and post a reward for his apprehension.

The 1984 Democratic presidential nominee also said in an interview that he supported President Reagan's decision to bomb Libya.

"It bothers me deeply that a character like Khadafy, head of a government, can just go out and assault the basic underlying principles of civilized society and kill people at random, in great numbers, and there's no risk to it," said the former vice president.

"If they've got reasonable evidence that somebody like Khadafy did that (ordered terrorist acts), I think he should be indicted and post high rewards.

"When the evidence came in that the Libyan government had deliberately decided to kill Americans then we really had no choice but to respond with some kind of force, especially in light of the fact that we were unable to get European cooperation, economic sanctions or something that would have stung."

Mondale said he thought some good would come out of the raid if it would "stir the Europeans to help us."

"We must have an international cooperative effort that imposes a severe cost on these people, otherwise there is no downside or risk to is," he added.

Mondale said there already are international conventions in which nations have agreed to prosecute and extradite terrorists and that also call for termination of air service to nations that harbor them.

But such agreements, he said, are "pretty much" ignored.

While supporting the bombing raid, Mondale said the earlier confrontation between U.S. Navy ships and the Libyans in the Gulf of Sidra "looked political to me."

He said there was no question the U.S. vessels had a legal right to be in the gulf and he called Khadafy's "Line of Death" "totally at war with international law."

But he said he didn't think the confrontation "accomplished much."

NATION IN BRIEF

Waldheim: Memo based on insufficient evidence

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Justice Department memo recommending that former United Nations Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim be barred from entering the United States is based on insufficient evidence, Waldheim's son said Friday.

The document written by the chief of the Justice Department's Office of Special Investigations said Waldheim, a German Army officer in World War II, "lacks credibility with respect to his whereabouts and activities during the war."

Gerhard Waldheim said in a statement issued in Washington that Sher's recommendation was based on a 1948 U.N. War Crimes Commission report, a short for-page document which places Waldheim on its "A" list of suspected war criminals.

Austrian President Rudolf Kirchschlager did say, however, that the former U.N. secretary-general must have been aware of wartime atrocities committed against Yugoslav partisans.

"As far as I am concerned, the bottom line is very simple," said Gerhard Waldheim. "Kurt Waldheim was not a Nazi, was not a senior intelligence officer; he was a desk lieutenant after six years' service in the army, did not participate in the shameful slaughter of Jews or even partisans or civilians or anything remotely connected to war crimes."

Reagan to visit Indonesia

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan should talk about human rights violations with Indonesia's President Suharto when he visits the Southeast Asian nation next week, a group critical of Indonesian policies said Friday.

Indonesia has violated the human rights of several groups of people in the island nation, said a report by Asia Watch, a private group that monitors human rights on the Asian continent.

Reagan, who left Washington on Friday, will arrive in Bali, an island that is part of Indonesia, next Tuesday and will remain there four days until he leaves for Tokyo and the beginning of the annual summit of heads of industrialized nations.

The Asia Watch report said there are an estimated 1.5 million former political prisoners whose rights are restricted even though most of them have never been tried or convicted of any crimes.

The organization also criticized what it said were the arrest, torture and summary execution of suspected members of independence movements and the restrictions on the press.

Police hunt for gunmen

RAYMONDVILLE, Mo. (AP) — Police searched rugged, heavily wooded southern Missouri on Friday for a camouflaged gunman and his accomplices who killed a bank president's wife by shooting her a dozen times and wounded her husband and another bank official.

Troopers fanned out in a 20-mile radius of Raymondville, a town of 280 peopole about 75 miles east of Springfield.

A half-dozen roadblocks were set up and 60 officers from federal, state and local agencies investigated the shooting death of Wanda Byler after a gunman demanded a $100,000 from her husband, James, on Thursday. Byler, president of the Farmers State Bank of Texas County, and Loretta Kay Jordan, the bank's executive vice president, were shot at the Byler home after they brought only about $20,000.

The only description of the one gunman seen by the survivors is that he was 5-foot-10 and stocky, wearing camouflage clothing and with camouflage paint on his face.

Mrs. Byler, 54, was blindfolded, bound and shot 12 times with at least two different weapons: a .38-caliber gun and a .22-caliber gun. Her body was found under her bed.

Byler, 56, and Mrs. Jordan, 33, were each shot once in the head. Mrs. Jordan was in serious condition, while Byler was in fair condition.

University students arrested

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thirty-six students at Georgetown University, protesting investments in South Africa, were arrested Friday when they resisted attempts to remove a shanty they had erected on campus.

The students, ignoring warnings from the school's adminstration, erected the shanty on the grounds in front of a building they had been occupying since April 11 to dramatize the plight of South African blacks.

Justice Department asked to investigate Deaver's dealings

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's top ethics officer asked the Justice Department on Friday to investigate whether Michael K. Deaver, a former White House aide who operates a lobbying business, violated conflict-of-interest laws.

David Martin, head of the Office of Government Ethics, referred the case to the Justice Department on the same day that President Reagan said he thinks it is "ridiculous" to appoint a special prosecutor to investigate Deaver.

Martin's letter to Attorney General Edwin Meese activates the procedure for establishing a special prosecutor to look into Deaver's dealings.

The Justice Department has 90 days to conduct a preliminary inquiry into the case and decide whether to refer it to a three-judge panel. That court would make the final decision on whether to name an independent counsel.

Peter Andriole, a spokesman for the ethics office, said he could not comment on what caused the agency to request Justice Department's involvement in the case.

On Thursday, five Democratic senators wrote Meese, saying Deaver's lobbying raised enough questions to warrant a special prosecutor's attention.

"We believe that the alleged facts which have been widely written about in the news media are sufficiently specific to trigger the statute ..."calling for a special prosecutor, said a letter signed by Senate Minority Leader Robert Byrd of West Virginia, and Sens. Joseph Biden, Delaware; Paul Simon, Illinois; Howard Metzenbaum, Ohio, and Patrick Leahy of Vermont.

The letter cited concern about Deaver's activities on behalf of four clients: Canada, South Korea, Puerto Rico and Rockwell International.

Reagan was asked what he thought about appointing a special prosecutor as he stepped off Air Force One in Los Angeles.

"I think the whole thing is ridiculous," said the president, who left Washington earlier in the day on the first leg of his trip to the Tokyo economic summit.

The president also defended Deaver at an April 9 news conference at which he said he had "utmost faith" in Deaver's integrity and was distressed by criticism of his former deputy chief of staff.

Deaver, a close friend of Reagan's for many years, resigned last May 10 to establish a lobbying firm that immediately attracted big-name foreign and domestic clients.

Deaver's office released a statement saying he is "confident that a presentation of the complete set of facts will show his absolute integrity while in public service and private business."

Rather than comment on specifics, Deaver prefers "to deal with these allegations in the official investigations that are now in progress," the statement said.

Federal law makes it a crime for former top goverment officials to lobby the colleagues with whom they worked for one year after leaving office. For two years, the ex-officials are barred from lobbying on issues in which they were involved.

John Russell, a Justice Department spokesman, said lawyers in the public integrity section will probably spend about a week studying the Deaver file before any preliminary investigation is launched.

The FBI would handle such a probe, reporting its findings along with its recommendation to a three-judge panel within 90 days. The court makes the final decision on whether to name a prosecutor.

Meanwhile, White House spokesman Larry Speakes, who was traveling on Air Force One, said Reagan "doesn't have any problem" with allowing Deaver to have his daily, private schedule. "Others do," Speakes added.

Counties forecasts

Midland, Ector, Crane, Upton, Reagan, Glasscock, Andrews, Gaines, Howard, Martin, Borden and Dawson: Today, partly cloudy and continued hot. High in the lower 90s. Strong south winds 20 to 30 mph developing by midday with lake wind advisories required. Tonight, mostly cloudy with a slight chance of showers and thunderstorms. Windy in the early evening. Low in the lower 60s. Chance of rain 20 percent. Sunday, windy and cloudy, high in the upper 80s.

Cloudy skies in forecast

From Staff and Wire Reports

The weather picture for today as forecast by the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Air Terminal calls for partly cloudy skies with strong southerly winds at 20 to 30 mph and gusting by midday. The high should be in the low 90s.

Tonight's forecast, under mostly cloudy skies, will be a 20 percent chance of thunderstorms. The low will be in the low 60s. Winds will be gusting early in the evening.

Sunday calls for cloudy skies and windy conditions. A high in the upper 80s is expected.

STATE

High pressure over the Southeast continued to dominate the weather over the eastern portion of Texas Friday, bringing considerable low-level moisture from the Gulf of Mexico.

Skies were partly cloudy over most of the state. Low clouds covered much of the lower and middle Rio Grande plains, the National Weather Serivce said.

A weak trough of low pressure approached the Texas-New Mexico border Friday afternoon and there was considerable mid and upper level cloudiness over the south portion of the High Plains and most of the rolling plains.

South to southeast winds at 10 to 15 mph were common over the eastern half of the state. Southwest winds at 10 to 20 mph prevailed over most of West Texas except for the Panhandle, where there were gusts of more than 30 mph, and the Big Bend, where breezes were light and variable.

The forecast called for widely scattered showers and a few thunderstorms spreading east from West Texas on Saturday. There should be considerable cloudiness over South Texas in the morning, otherwise partly cloudy over the greater portion of the state.

NATION

Winter lingered in the Northwest on Friday, as the central Plains basked in summer-like weather.

Rain was scattered from the Texas Panhandle across western Oklahoma, through the Plains into western Minnesota, parts of Montana and Idaho, along the northern Pacific Coast, and southeast New England.

Thunderstorms with winds gusting to 43 mph and small hail hit Boise, Idaho, with three-quarter-inch hail reported near Webster, S.D.

Heavier rainfall during the six hours ending at 1 p.m. EST included nearly a half inch at Aberdeen and Pierre, S.D.

Rainshowers across eastern and northern Idaho changed to snow over western Wyoming.

Chaps challenge No. 1 McLennan

By ERIC SCHURER
Sports Writer

ODESSA—In the opening day of play at the Region V Junior College tennis tournament at Odessa College, Midland College coach Joe Williams saw something he may not have expected.

The No. 1 ranked men's team from McLennan Community College is not unbeatable.

In fact, Williams and his No. 3 ranked Chaparrals feel they have a good shot at knocking off the Highlanders from Waco for their second straight regional title.

"They're not showing much for a top-ranked team," Williams said of McLennan after MC advanced five of six men into today's finals. "They're beatable, depending on how the doubles come out. With the men, the top teams are so close, no one is breaking out from the pack."

While the men advanced five singles players to the finals and all three doubles teams into the semis, the top-ranked and heavily favored Chaparral women were breezing into today's final rounds as well.

With one exception, that is.

MC's No. 1 singles player Moniek Margaroli, ranked No. 1 in the country early this season, was ousted after a first round bye by Samantha Gough of Cooke County.

The rest of the lady Chaparrals were easy advancers in singles play and the doubles team of Lebeller-Swan won its match while the other two received byes into today's semis.

The only loser on the men's side was sophomore Emil Bijleveld at No. 3. Bijleveld was the runner-up in the national tournament at No. 5 last year but was unable to get past McLennan's Patrick Sundh on Friday.

So Williams, who was the picture of concern heading into this weekend's play, is resting a little more easily now, assured that both MC teams will make it to the National Junior College Athletic Association national tournaments.

In Friday's play, Midland and McLennan faced each other in two men's matches, with each side winning one. Sundh's win over Bijleveld

Angels skin Gators, 13-4

By BOB BRUNDAGE
Sports Writer

Their lockers sit side by side in the northeast corner of the Angels' lockeroom, identified by strips of tape: McLemore, Walker, Tovar.

It isn't their batting order, but they're the three who did heavy damage to Beaumont Friday night as the Midland Angels pounded out a 13-4 Texas League victory at Angels Stadium.

Second baseman Mark McLemore is Midland's leadoff hitter and Friday he did his job to perfection. In five trips to the plate, he came up with two hits, three walks and an RBI while scoring five runs.

He's followed in the order by center fielder Raul Tovar, who also scored one run and knocked in another while hitting 5-for-5.

Batting seventh is Walker, Friday's main power man, collecting his first two home runs of the year in a 2-for-5 performance to drive in four and score two.

In all, the occupants of the three neighboring lockers had a box score of 12-8-9-6.

"It's not the last time we'll do it either," said Walker. "And, it's not just us. Everybody on the teams is capable of doing it."

"We've got a lot of experience and a lot of talent, too," said McLemore, of the team. "With that mixture, there's not a lot we can do wrong right now."

Into the mixture, the three essentials to winning baseball can be added: Hitting, defense and pitching. Friday, the Angels collected 16 hits, committed only one error and held Beaumont to four runs for the second straight night.

"If you can keep your team ERA to around four in the park, you should win. We have a goal of scoring around five runs a game," said Angel manager Joe Maddon.

FOR WALKER, the home runs were a long time in coming.

"You start to wonder when all those games go by and you still don't have one," said Walker, who said it was his 21st or 22nd professional game with two home runs. "The first pitch was a slider and the second a fastball up and away."

Looking at Tovar, to his left, Walker added, "Raul is more of a consistent hitter. I'm more of a streak hitter. He hits the ball hard all the time. I hit it hard some of the time."

Maddon agreed with Walker's description of Tovar.

"This was justice for him," said Maddon. "He's been hitting the ball as hard as any player all year, just been right at people. Look at (Jeff) Schaffer, for example. He hit the ball hard each time tonight and came up empty."

Tovar's 5-for-5 can be written into his personal record book. "It's the first time I've had five hits in one game in pro baseball," said Tovar. "I've hit 4-for-4 but this is my first five.

"I've been working at it. The manager told me 'one day they'll start to go.' He showed me a different stance and I worked on it and he said 'you'll get real good control with the ball.'"

For Tovar, 1986 is his return to the minor leagues after a long stay in the Kansas City farm system.

"Last year I didn't play with anybody here at all," said Tovar. "I played with a team in Venezuela, winter ball and I had a good season.

Van Rensburg make All-Region

HOBBS, N.M. — McLennan Community College led the way in the second day of Region V golf play with a blistering 11-under par score on Friday to take the team championship with a 54-hole, five under par total.

McLennan was paced by medalist Chris Little who posted a seven-under 65 then won in a playoff with New Mexico Military Insitute's Derek Crawford. Both shot a 10-under 206 for the 54 hole tourney.

Midland College sophomore Leon Van Rensburg was named to the All Region team after posting a 71 Friday for a three round total of 220 to pace the Chaparrals. MC finished fifth as a team in the seven team tourney.

Midland Bulldogs reach out for District 4-5A title against Lee today

By BOB BRUNDAGE
Sports Writer

Today could be one of the biggest days in the life of Midland High baseball coach Tim Whalen. It could be the day his Bulldogs win the District 4-5A baseball title for the first time in his seven years at MHS.

Starting the season as a long shot at best for the 4-5A title, the Bulldogs have proven themselves by doing what no team has been able to do for several years: Beat Abilene Cooper at Abilene in sweeping the Cougars.

As a result, the Bulldogs and Cougars rest atop the 4-5A standings at 10-3 and today's season-ending games with cross-town rivals could decide each team's fate. Neither has it easy.

The Bulldogs face Midland Lee at 2 p.m. today at Zachery Field and Cooper takes on Abilene High at Hardin-Simmons Field at 7 p.m. Though they've clinched playoff berths, neither Midland High or Cooper are claiming the title yet. They both know Lee and Abilene High will have their says in the outcome.

THE REBELS have suffered through a long, rough 4-5A season, one most are glad is coming to an end. However, that doesn't mean they'll go down without a fight.

"It's all we've got left to play for," said Rebel Tuey Rankin. "There's not much else you can say about it. It's probably the game that will stick in our minds later on."

The Bulldogs didn't waste much time celebrating their victory over Cooper. The bus ride home was probably a mad house but Lee was already creeping into their thoughts. In fact, Ricky Castaneda was looking ahead a half-hour after the game.

"I just hope Abilene can beat them (Cooper) too and I hope we play our best against Lee."

If the game comes down to a statistical battle, Midland High has a strong edge on the mound where scheduled starter Kenny De La Garza has 1.55 ERA with a league-leading 54⅓ innings of duty.

The Bulldog right-hander trails only San Angelo's Jim Childress among pitchers with a substantial amount of time on the mound. Childress has a 1.54 ERA.

For the Rebels, only Tuey Rankin has been pitching well, 3.50, but suffers from a lack of time on the mound. 24 innings, and has a tendency to run out of gas in the late innings.

Rankin is the probable starter for Lee with Terry Baxter the leading candidate for relief duty.

As a team, the Bulldogs own the best overall ERA at 3.27 while Lee comes in a distant seventh at 6.05.

AT THE plate, the Rebels have a slight advantage with a team average of .343. However, the Bulldogs went a long way toward closing the gap with their 18-hit attack against Cooper. Midland High improved to .308.

Individually, Lee's Jason Logi is about the only 4-5A player who can stop Cooper's Chris Moore from winning the batting crown. Moore, 3-for-3 against MHS Wednesday, improved to .595 on the year while Logi is a distant second at .528 followed by San Angelo's Chris Lowry at .489.

The Rebels have several players hitting well in 4-5A play this year. Along with Logi, Raul Pena is hitting .477, Jay McCarty .441, Baxter, .405, Joe Eldridge and Chad Jordan, .324 and Danny Jordan .310.

Short takes on a long day

One thing and another while wondering how great Gretzky would be if the National Hockey League were still six teams?....

Telltale playoff match up: When Detroit Pistons cut former Midland College All-America Spud Webb without a look last summer, it was because they had Isiah Thomas. Webb made Thomas look like he as a Mafia hit victim, concrete shoes, in last weekend's TV game. And now Spud is the guy who "turns on" the Atlanta defense and has helped make the Hawks one of the NBA's more watchable teams....

If the Midland Bulldogs keep winning, there goes Tim Whelan's polo season...

Did you know qaurterbacks averaged $200,000 a year more than defensive backs last year — $369,911 to $186,808— but last year Randall Cunningham, a tall quarterback from Univerity of Nevada-Las Vegas, and defensive back Lester Lyles, safety from Virginia, were the 37th and 40th players signed in the NFL draft. Randall got a three-year contract from the Eagles worth $270,000 a year and a $100,000 bonus. Lyles, inked by the Jets, received a four-year contract at $260,000 per with a $210,000 signing bonus. Is that an indication of changing times....

When Evan "Big Cat" Williams teed off on No. 1 at Hogan Wednesday in the Junior Golf Pro-Am, he drilled his drive across the dogleg on a Bee line for the green. He should have reached it without any trouble. The ball was never found, but when a guy can hit a ball 496 yards, it was probably because it was in the rough beyond the second fairway....

Apparently the post-season bowl saturation point has been reached. Six of 18 bowls have lost their TV contracts since the last round of games. And Peter Lund of CBS declares, "Our research indicates these non-New Year's Day bowls are worth $300,000 to $400,000 in rights fees. So you figure it out."

When the $500,000 guarantee a team, up from $400,000, begins this year, look for more bowls to fold....

After being stopped in 2:29 of the first round by James "Bonecrusher" Smith, heavyweight Mike Weaver said, "Well, maybe what happened was God trying to tell me something." God?...Try Bonecrusher, Mike....

From John Thompson, Georgetown University basketball coach, on the academic state of college athletes these days, "It wasn't a coach who passed these kids from grades one through six when they weren't able to read."....

We hate to reveal this, but those pump jacks out at Hogan Park Golf course are phonies. Nary a sound. Now, for a real pump jack, you have to go to Stanton where a pump jack at the intersection of No. 1, No. 8 and No. 9 provides a real oil field atmosphere. At least you can hear it working....clunk, clunk, clunk, clunk, fisssssspew....silence....cough...backfire bang. The trick is to hit your drive or make you putt during the brief silence. Only trouble is you wait for the cough and then it's too late....

Judging by the number of ex Midland Cubs playing for and starting for other major league teams, Chicago GM Dallas Green lives by his name in regard to the National League club's farm system. "The grass is so much greener on the other side."....

Does anyone know whatever became of Doyle Nave? Or, perhaps, it might be better phrased, does anyone know who Doyle Nave is? Or, perhapser, does any one care?....

Dallas eliminates Utah, 117-113

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Brad Davis scored 15 of his 26 points in the fourth quarter and finished 8-for-8 from the field — including five three pointers — as the Dallas Mavericks eliminated the Utah Jazz from the NBA playoffs with a 117-113 victory Friday night.

Davis also became the first player to go 5-for-5 from beyond the three-point line in a playoff game. Previously, five players went 4-for-4.

Sam Perkins led all scorers with 29 points, while Mark Aguirre had 28 and Rolando Blackman 20 for the Mavericks.

NFL draft has more story lines than Dynasty soap

By DAVE GOLDBERG

NEW YORK (AP) — There are enough story lines in Tuesday's National Football League draft to fill a season of "Dynasty."

—Will Bo bypass the Bucs for baseball?

—Will Byars be bypassed because of his break?

—Will the NFL provide a home for the 57 prospective draftees who tested positive on their first pro football drug exam?

The annual round-robin session begins at 7 a.m. Tuesday at the Marriott Marquis Hotel in the heart of Times Square and will continue for 12 rounds and approximately 19 hours. The draft will be televised live by ESPN cable.

But the real action will be at 28 sites around the country that approximate battlefield command bunkers where generals (coaches and general managers) make life-or-death (career threatening) decisions based on information from intelligence staffs no less diligent than the CIA in separating fact from rumor.

THIS YEAR, the decisions may be harder to make than usual. The draft is deep in running backs and offensive linemen and relatively thin everywhere else.

"It's the kind of draft where you may have to sacrifice position for quality," says Dallas Coach Tom Landry. "If the position we want isn't there when it's our turn to pick, we'll take quality even if it's where we're well stocked."

"I'd say there are six rounds of make-it players plus about 10 more," says Dick Steinberg, director of player development for the New England Patriots. "But at some positions, you can't find much at all. We need a tight end desperately, but there's no tight end worth a first-round pick."

THERE ALSO is the question of the 57 players who tested positive for illegal substances during drug tests given after the Super Bowl by the NFL scouting combine. Most of those were for marijuana, but one player — a potential first-rounder — showed traces of cocaine in his urine.

Dan Reeves, coach of the Denver Broncos, says he won't draft any of the players on the list. But most other coaches probably will look at each case individually.

"You have to determine if there's a permanent problem," says Gene Stallings, coach of the St. Louis Cardinals. "Just because a guy made a mistake once doesn't mean he's going to do it again."

The first choice will be exercised by the Tampa Bay Bucs, who say they will take Bo Jackson, the Heisman Trophy winner from Auburn who is considered the best running back prospect since O.J. Simpson in 1969. But Jackson, like John Elway in 1983, has a hole card to use in the negotiations that already have begun — he's considered a top major-league baseball prospect.

The second choice goes to the Atlanta Falcons, who say they will take Tony Casillas, Oklahoma's can't-miss nose tackle.

THE HOUSTON Oilers draft third and for the third year in a row have the broker's position. They can trade — perhaps to one of the Los Angeles teams that covets a quarterback — or they can draft.

Taking Keith Byars is one of their options.

When he's healthy, Byars is considered in a class near Jackson among running backs. But he missed most of the 1986 season with a broken toe, then reinjured it again in the Florida Citrus Bowl. He reportedly has been certified healthy, but how healthy? Half the teams in the NFL have examned him and there's no clear prognosis.

"The team that drafts him has to be ready to let him sit out the season and hope to have him in 1987," says Bill Parcells, coach of the New York Giants, who pick 19th. "If he gets as far as us, it means he's not healthy."

After Houston comes Indianapolis, which moved up from the sixth spot to the fourth to guarantee it would get Purdue quarterback Jim Everett, who has risen above Chuck Long, Jack Trudeau and Robbie Bosco as the top quarterback available.

The Colts will be followed by St. Louis, New Orleans, Kansas City, Minnesota, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Cincinnati, Detroit, then San Diego with two straight picks — its own plus one obtained from Green Bay for the rights to cornerback Mossy Cade.

Seattle has the 15th pick followed by Buffalo; Atlanta, which got Washington's pick in a trade for running back Joe Washington; San Francisco; the Giants; Dallas; Cincinnati from Denver for linebacker Ricky Hunley; the New York Jets; Los Angles Rams; Los Angeles Raiders; Tampa Bay from Miami for linebacker Hugh Green; New England and Chicago.

There will be only 27 first-round picks. Buffalo, which would have had the first pick, forfeited it by giving Cleveland the first pick in last year's supplemental draft. The Browns used it to take quarterback Bernie Kosar. The Bills, however, have Cleveland's first pick this year as part of that deal.

As many as seven or eight of those 27 picks may be used for running backs.

In addition to Jackson and Byars, potential first-rounders include Neal Anderson and John L. Williams of Florida, Garry James of LSU, Ronnie Harmon of Iowa; Reuben Mayes of Washington State; Reggie Dupard of SMU, Darryl Clack of Arizona State and Kenneth Davis, who was dropped from TCU's team last year after admitting he had accepted illegal payments from boosters.

The offensive line group is equally deep.

Brian Jozwiak of West Virginia and Jim Dombrowski of Virginia top most lists. But Doug Williams of Texas A&M, James FitzPatrick of Southern Cal and Joe Millinchik of North Carolina State could also go in the first round along with John Rienstra of Temple and Will Wolford of Vanderbilt.

BUT OTHER positions are thin.

Kick boxer works with on footwork

By MICHAEL GUNSTANSON

IRVING (AP) — One of the more important assets the Dallas Cowboys have during their off-season program, conditioning coach Bob Ward says, is a 38-year-old former kick boxer who is trying to teach better footwork to quarterback Danny White and other members of the team.

He's Surachai Sirisute, known just as "Chai" to his friends. A native of Thailand and internationally known for his brand of martial arts, Chai has been on the cover of most of the martial arts magazines.

Cowboys

With the Cowboys, Chai tries to get players' minds off football and onto their feet.

"All their lives, they have been working on football," he said. "They don't think about what they are doing. They just go out and do it. I'm teaching them new ways to do what they have been doing."

His primary objective during the off-season has been to try to make Danny White into a more mobile quarterback.

WHITE WORKS out three times a week in a makeshift ring that the Cowboys have set up in the weight area of their training facility at Valley Ranch. Someone will push White against the ropes, and he must bounce back and find a way to escape from a would-be tackler and then throw to a target.

"He never gets any of this kind of training," Ward said. "The only time he gets this is under fire in a game situation. We want him to get used to it, so he has a plan of action once it happens."

Chai is blunt with his advice.

"You depend on the offense too much," Chai told White. "One time they aren't going to be there and you are going to go down. You need to work on this."

Last year, White said, Chai worked with players just on conditioning. "This season, he's working more on footwork. I think it is helping a lot," the Cowboys quarterback said.

Chai also is working with linemen — trying to show offensive players new ways to move their feet and create new blocking techniques and to teach defensive linemen new ways to get past the offense.

His job has been an uphill battle, he said.

"The first year, they didn't do so well. Last year, they did OK. This year, they're doing good. Last year, when they came back from vacation, they were fat. This year, they seem to be in better shape."

Chai has been working with defensive lineman Randy White for about three years and says he can see a definite improvement.

Chai will make about three week-long appearances before training camp starts.

"When camp begins, it is too late," Chai said. "We must work on the speed and quickness now."

WHEN camp starts, Chai will be a frequent visitor, as Thousand Oaks is only a short drive from his Los Angeles home.

The Cowboys are the only NFL team Chai works for, although the offers from other teams have been numerous. He has entertained offers from the Los Angeles Rams, Chicago Bears, St. Louis Cardinals, and San Francisco 49ers. However, he said, his heart is with the Cowboys.

"If you have two chickens that fight, you don't want them to fight each other," Chai said. "It's the same way ith me. I don't want to work for another football team, because I don't want to have them fighting each other."

Chai has been training in martial arts since he was 4 years old. At 12, he made his first amateur fight. At 19, he retired as Thailand's only undefeated welterweight champion.

Many of the current top martial arts experts trained under him. In addition to working with the Cowboys, he has helped train police departments, bodyguards, and members of the FBI.

"Power, quickness, stamina, acceleration and balance are all part of the martial arts," Ward said. "Can't you use all of those things on the football field? Of course, you can. Chai is just teaching us a new way of doing those things."

Ward added, "There is no place in sports for luck. We'll take it, but the main thing is to plan ahead. I've been in martial arts for about 15 years, and Chai is the best."

Dishman slam paces Owls, 6-5

HOUSTON (AP) — Paul Dishman hit a grand slam homer, and Steve Blackshear shut out Houston on one hit over the last 4 1-3 innings as the Rice Owls defeated the Houston Cougars 6-5 Friday night in a Southwest Conference game.

John Cegelski got the game-winning hit for Rice, a sixth-inning double that scored Dishman from first base.

Blackshear came on in relief for starter Ken Sorensen after the Cougars erased an early 5-0 Rice lead in the fifth.

The Owls jumped on Cougar starter Mike Walker for all of those runs in the first inning. After a bases-loaded walk forced in one run, Dishman cleared the bases with his fourth homer of the season.

Houston scratched with single runs in the second and third and tied the game with three runs off Sorensen in the fifth. Pat Hewes' double to left scored the tying run.

Against Blackshear, however, the Cougars had only two baserunners the rest of the way.

Rice, now 33-25 overall and 4-15 in the league, broke a seven-game SWC losing streak with the win. Houston's fifth straight loss dropped the Cougars to 35-21 overall and 5-11 in league play.

Mission hosts epilepsy benefit

From Staff Reports

Almost 200 West Texans took part in Friday's Fourth Annual West Texas Epilepsy Association tournament at Mission Country Club and some hot under par scores were fired.

The team of Kevin Battersby, Rick Jorgensen, DeWayne Long and Bill Baker won the four-man scramble format (no handicap) with a 17-under par 55 as more than $26,000 was raised for the West Texas Epilepsy Foundation.

Closest to the pin at hole No. 4. prize went to Jim Guthrie, Lois Guthrie, Jim McDonald, Bill Neece. At hole No. 8 it was Battersby, Jorgensen, Long and Baker. At 13 it was Jerry King, Don King, Billy Smartt and Chuck Finley. And at 17 Marc Gunderson, Matt Pye, Jimmy Curtis and Joe Jarnagan took honors.

At the tenth hole, straightest drive honors went to the Guthrie, Guthrie, McDonald, Neece team.

A Mexican cruise was awarded to Warren Lutes in a drawing.

Other scores were: 2. (won card playoff) Al Boyd, Gary Doan, Danny Doan, Johnny Doan, 57. 3. Tom Tilley, Pat Weaver, David Parker, Wayne Feller, 57.

For the Bulldogs, De La Garza moved to the lead with a .421 average followed by Anthony Deande, .419, and Jim Werner, .405.

In an earlier meeting this year, the Bulldogs posted a 12-4 victory, all the more reason for Lee wanting to get revenge.

Should the Bulldogs win, however, along with Cooper beating Abilene High, the district rules state a playoff game must be played even though Midland High owns to wins over Cooper.

If it ends in a tie, Whalen and Cooper coach Andy Malone will get together to determine site and time. If it comes down to a coin flip for place, Whalen may abdicate the thrown. Rumor has it he couldn't make the right call even if he inserted his own two-headed coin.

"I haven't gotten one right all year. The only coin flip we won the kids called," said Whalen.

ANGELS—

Preston Gomez signed me and gave me a chance to come back to the United States."

AS A leadoff hitter, McLemore has a different philosophy to hitting than the rest of his teammates. Something along the lines of "It's not how you do it but what you do.

"Just get on and score runs, by walk, hit, error, whatever it takes to get on base," said McLemore, who had already scored two runs before being credited with an official time at bat.

McLemore is the only player of the three back from the '85 Angels and his summation of the difference: "Pitching, one word.

"Look at the stats from last year. We were second in team hitting all year. We'd go out and score 10 runs and give up 15."

Not this year.

Friday, Phil Venturino improved his record to 2-1 by scattering nine hits and three runs over six innings while walking two and striking out four.

Dewayne Buice collected his third save of the year with three innings of work, one hit, one run and five strikeouts.

ANGEL NOTES — Also collecting first homers of the season Friday night were Angel Billie Merrifield and Gator Shane Mack...Tonight, the Angels and Gators play game four of their five-game stand. The Angels lead the series, which concludes Sunday, 2-1...Angels lead the TL West with an 11-7 record.

Hawks eliminate Pistons

Webb's clutch free throws beat Detroit

NBA Playoffs

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Spud Webb sank a pair of free throws with three seconds remaining in the second overtime period and Atlanta held off Detroit's last possession to beat the Pistons 114-113 Friday night, giving the Hawks a 3-1 victory in the first-round NBA playoff series.

The Hawks advanced to the Eastern Conference semifinals, where they take on the Boston Celtics, starting Sunday at Boston.

The score was tied 92-92 after four quarters and 103-103 after the first five-minute overtime.

Detroit's Isiah Thomas scored six of his 30 points in the second overtime, including an underhand flip shot in the lane that put the Pistons ahead 113-112 with 11 seconds remaining.

After an Atlanta timeout, the Hawks worked the ball to Webb, the 5-foot-7 rookie, who drove the right side of the lane and was fouled by Kelly Tripucka.

Webb's first foul shot bounced twice on the rim and dropped through to tie the score. His second shot swished cleanly, giving him nine points for the game.

Detroit hurried the ball inbounds, but Earl Cureton's desperation toss from beyond midcourt hit the backboard and bounced away from the rim. Atlanta's players fell into one another's arms with hugs of joy.

Dominique Wilkins, who was held to 21 points in Game 3 after scoring 50 in Game 2, finished with a game-high 38 points in the decisive fourth game — all but 14 after the half.

Randy Wittman scored 29 for Atlanta.

Bill Laimbeer scored 27 and Tripucka finished with 24 for Detroit.

Higuera shackles Rangers

American League

ARLINGTON (AP) — Milwaukee's Teddy Higuera shackled Texas on five hits and Paul Molitor drove in four runs with three doubles and a single Friday night, powering the Brewers to an 11-1 victory over the Rangers.

The Brewers, who had lost eight of their last 10 games, snapped a three-game losing streak as Higuera improved his record to 2-1. Higuera struck out nine and did not walk a batter.

Higuera lost his shutout bid with one out in the eighth inning on Don Slaught's fourth home run of the season.

Molitor had RBI doubles in the second, third and fifth innings, tying a team record for the most doubles in a game. He singled home another run in the sixth.

Cecil Cooper knocked in three runs with run-scoring singles in the fourth and fifth innings.

Yankees 10, Indians 3

NEW YORK — Bobby Meacham's bases-loaded single drove in the tying and go-ahead runs in the sixth inning and the New York Yankees stretched their winning streak to six games.

Meacham, who had only one RBI in the first 15 games of the season, put New York ahead 4-3 with his two-run single off Jim Kern. Meacham's single, which gave him three RBIs in the game, decided a knuckleball battle between the Yankees' Joe Niekro, 2-0, and the Indians' Tom Candiotti, 1-2, that included 19 walks, three wild pitches and four passed balls.

Blue Jays 2, Orioles 1

BALTIMORE — Jesse Barfield's pop-fly double off Baltimore second baseman Alan Wiggins' glove drove in Tony Fernandez in the 10th inning Friday night, giving the Toronto Blue Jays a victory over the Orioles.

Fernandez opened the inning with a single off reliever Don Aase, 1-2, and advanced to second on a groundout. After Willie Upshaw walked, Rich Bordi relieved Aase. George Bell struck out before Barfield blooped with his game-winning double.

Twins 7, Angels 4

MINNEAPOLIS — Roy Smalley drove in three runs with a two-run homer and a double and Bert Blyleven scattered eight hits Friday night to lead the Minnesota Twins.

California's Reggie Jackson hit a solo home run, his fifth of the season and 535th of his career, in the ninth. Jackson moved past Jimmie Foxx into sole possession of sixth place on the all-time home run list. Jackson is one short of Mickey Mantle.

White Sox 9, Tigers 7

DETROIT — Harold Baines hit his second home run of the game, a two-run shot that broke an eighth-inning tie and gave Chicago a win.

After Chicago rallied for five runs in the seventh to tie the score 7-7, Wayne Tolleson drew a one-out walk from Randy O'Neal, 0-1, in the eighth and Baines followed with a drive deep into the right-center field upper deck for his fourth homer of the season.

Royals 6, Red Sox 0

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Charlie Leibrandt tossed a five-hitter and got home-run support from George Brett and Darryl Motley, leading the Kansas City Royals.

Leibrandt, 3-0, held the Red Sox hitless until Rich Gedman's opposite-field double leading off the sixth. The 29-year-old left-hander, who employs savvy and control in place of raw power, had one strikeout and three walks as the Royals snapped a three-game losing streak.

Oilers finally figure out Flames

CALGARY, Alberta (AP) — Edmonton Coach Glen Sather says it took his Oilers three games to finally catch up with the tactics of the Calgary Flames.

They did it just in time — two games away from elimination in the quest for their third straight Stanley Cup.

The Oilers, down 2-1 in games to a team that finished 30 points behind them in the National Hockey League's regular season, evened the series Thursday night with a 7-4 win over the Flames. They did it in part by forcing Calgary outside to shoot from bad angles and by firmly planting themselves in front of the Flames' net and waiting for scoring chances.

The fifth game will be played Saturday night in Edmonton.

The favored St. Louis Blues also evened their series with the Toronto Maple Leafs at 2-2 Thursday night, by the same 7-4 score. Doug Gilmour and Rich Meagher had two goals apiece for the Blues.

Houston, Ryan silence Reds, 3-1

National League

HOUSTON (AP) — Nolan Ryan scattered five hits and Dickie Thon slammed an RBI double, leading the Houston Astros to a 3-1 victory over the Cincinnati Reds Friday night.

Houston took a 2-0 lead in the first after Bill Doran led off with a double and scored when Thon doubled down the left field line. Glenn Davis then singled in Thon.

The Reds cut the Astros' lead to 2-1 in the seventh after Buddy Bell doubled and came home on an RBI single by Eddie Milner.

In the Houston eighth, Tony Walker walked, stole second and went to third on an infield hit by Ryan. Walker then scored on Doran's bunt.

Ryan, 3-2, worked out of trouble in the second when he struck out Tom Browning, leaving the bases loaded, and again in the sixth when he stranded two Reds by striking out Dave Concepcion. He finished with seven strikeouts and walked three.

Mets 9, Cardinals 0

ST. LOUIS — Dwight Gooden fired a five-hitter and Ray Knight hit two home runs, leading the New York Mets to their seventh straight victory.

Gooden, 3-0, struck out five and walked none for his third complete game in four starts. The right-hander, while saddling St. Louis with its fifth straight loss, worked past the Cards' lone threat with the aid of a double play in the second inning.

It was Gooden's 12th career shutout and his first of 1986. For the Cards, it was their third shutout loss during their current slump.

Loser Ricky Horton, 0-2, held the Mets to three hits before Knight led off the fifth with his towering shot to left. New York got its second run in the seventh when Rafael Santana singled with one out, moved to second on Gooden's sacrifice and scored on Kevin Mitchell's double.

The Mets added five runs in the eighth, two scoring on an error, and Knight added a two-run homer in the ninth.

Jack Clark and Terry Pendleton both singled in the second, with Clark reaching third. But Gooden got Mike LaValliere to rap into a double play to end the threat.

Afterwards, the Cards managed only singles by Horton to start the third, Ozzie Smith to open the sixth and Smith in the eighth.

Phillies 6, Pirates 3

PITTSBURGH — Luis Aguayo, Milt Thompson and Mike Schmidt drove in two runs each as the Philadelphia Phillies roughed up Pittsburgh starter Rick Reuschel for five runs in the first three innings.

Kevin Gross, 0-2 with a 7.04 earned run average entering the game, scattered six hits and held the Pirates to just one run before being relieved by Steve Bedrosian in the eighth inning. Bedrosian earned his second save although he gave up two runs in the ninth.

The Pirates have now lost four consecutive games after winning five in a row.

Reuschel, who was 13-3 at Three Rivers Stadium last year during a 14-8 season, was touched for eight hits, a walk and hit a batter in 2 2-3 innings. He is 1-2 at home this season.

Johnny Ray singled in the Pirates' third to extend his National League-best hitting streak to 12 games. He has hit safely in every Pirates' game this season. In the ninth, Ray singled home two runs.

Expos 4, Cubs 2

CHICAGO — Hubie Brooks figured it was only fitting that he delivered the 11th-inning home run that gave the Montreal Expos victory.

"The game didn't have to go that long if I had done my job," Brooks said. Brooks was referring to the eighth inning when Andre Dawson tripled with one out only to have starter Dennis Eckersley strike out both Brooks and Tim Wallach to end the threat.

It was the third time Brooks had struck out and he also had made an error on a leadoff ground ball by Keith Moreland in the ninth which gave the Cubs an opportunity to win the game.

Brooks led off with his third homer and two pitches later Wallach hit his second homer. Both blows came off loser Matt Keough, 0-1, and made a winner of reliever Jeff Reardon, 2-1.

Reardon came on in the 10th inning after Bob Dernier had broken an 0-for-18 slump with a single off George Riley and Thad Bosley had walked. Reardon got Shawon Dunston to fly out and struck out pinch batter Gary Matthews and Ryne Sandberg to end the threat.

Rangers rally to beat Capitals for 3-2 edge

NHL Playoffs

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — Tomas Sandstrom scored to break a 2-2 tie at 13:49 of the second period as the New York Rangers overcame a 2-0 deficit and defeated the Washington Capitals 4-2 Friday night, taking a 3-2 lead in their NHL playoff series.

Game 6 of the Patrick Division final will be played in New York Sunday night. A seventh game, if necessary, would be back at the Capital Centre on Tuesday night.

The Capitals, who lost two overtime decisions while winning twice previously by decisive margins in the series, got power-play goals by Dave Christian and Scott Stevens within a 43-second span after two Rangers were sent to the penalty box early in the game. The first goal, at 2:51, came only 14 seconds after Washington gained a 5-3 advantage.

But, Pierre Larouche scored for the Rangers at 4:05 and a power-play goal by Wilf Paiement tied it 2-2 at 13:40.

Sandstrom put the winning goal past Pete Peeters, who was playing his 12th consecutive game dating back to the regular season, after Brian MacLellan hooked the puck away from Washington's Kevin Hatcher on the left wing boards.

The Rangers, who finished fourth in the Patrick Division and previously knocked off division champion Philadelphia, made it 4-2 at 2:12 of the third period when Don Maloney backhanded in a shot after he was left alone on left wing. Again, Hatcher was victimized.

John Vanbiesbrouck turned aside 30 shots, some on spectacular saves, in posting the victory. The Capitals pulled Peeters with 1:56 remaining, but failed to score with the extra man.

Canadiens 5, Whalers 3

MONTREAL — Guy Carbonneau scored twice and Mike Lalor got his first playoff goal as the Montreal Canadiens too a 3-2 lead in their Adams Division final.

The Canadiens can clinch the NHL playoff series with a victory in Game 6 in Hartford on Sunday.

The Whalers trailed 3-0 13 minutes into the first period, but narrowed the gap to 3-2 in middle period before Lalor scored. Taking a pass from defenseman Larry Robinson, Lalor ripped a wrist shot that Hartford goaltender Steve Weeks got a piece of before the puck dribbled out of his glove into the net with under four minutes left in the session.

Carbonneau scored Montreal's fifth goal 1:19 left in the game when he batted a rebound past Weeks, who faced 30 shots.

Claude Lemieux made it 1-0 2:05 into the contest with a power-play goal. Bob Gainey assisted on Carbonneau's shorthanded goal midway through the period and the veteran left wing, who is seldom used when the Canadiens have a man advantage, added his second assist on Mats Naslund's power-play goal to give Montreal a 3-0 lead at 12:44.

Those beautiful women just front for real love

You have to admire Lorenzo Lamas, the race driver. The things he goes through to further his career. The sacrifices he makes.

History is fecund with the stories of people who have suffered for their art – painters who starved in garrets, singers who waited on tables, musicians who played street corners, actors who parked cars.

Lorenzo Lamas is no less dedicated. Each day, he sucks it up and goes through some of the most traumatic travails it is possible to imagine, all for his art.

He has to do scenes with some of the most gorgeous women in the world. He has to be seen at some of the most glamorous restaurants. He has to wear the latest fashions and get his handsome features made up. He has to attend charity functions on the arms of some of the town's most spectacular centerfolds. He even signs himself on to sing the national anthem at sporting events, and he cuts albums.

Talk about giving your all for your career!

LAMAS ENDURES all of this just so he can get on with his real life's work – risking his life in a 200-m.p.h. race car, hanging a spinning vehicle on a wall, driving through corners on the knife edge of no control at all. The real fun of life.

No one has ever been able to figure out what makes a race driver. Usually it's a guy who has a choice of that or a career on a lube rack in Torrance or the cab of a semi toiling over the Grapevine.

Most people would consider they had it made if they got top billing on TV, had matinee-idol good looks and spent most of their time necking with some of the reigning American beauties of the day. Lorenzo Lamas considers it the same as going down into the mine every day to get enough money to run away and join the circus.

He can't explain it.

Millions of American young men might envy him. He envies A.J. Foyt. Making love on camera is hard work. "Somebody's got to do it," he sighs.

To him, screaming down a race straightaway, trying to coax one more lap out of a bald set of tires, is the real romance in life. To give you an idea where Lorenzo is coming from, before racing, he was into tournament karate. He had to give that up when a kick turned his knee cap into a hunk of bubble gum.

The producers paled to think what would have happened if the kick had been five feet higher, but his next choice of recreation was no comfort. They still lay awake nights when they think of what might happen to that profile, those green eyes and tousled brown hair if the car kicks back some afternoon.

THERE ARE probably not two more typical American art forms of the day than the soap opera and the racing automobile. Lamas is on TV in one or the other. If he's got clothes on, he's in a race car. If he hasn't, he's in "Falcon Crest."

Lorenzo Lamas is the son of the late Fernando Lamas, a gifted actor from Argentina who was a mainstay at MGM – "More Stars Than There Are in Heaven" – in the glory years of that famous film factory. Mother is Arlene Dahl, one of the most beauteous women ever to grace a Hollywood sound stage.

The apple didn't fall too far from the tree. Like son, like father.

FERNANDO Lamas, a man of rare humor, was fond of saying, "Acting is just a profession, not a way of life." An accomplished athlete himself – he was a prize fighter, horseman, swimmer and fencer – Lamas pere spoke five languages, Portuguese, Spanish, French, Italian and English. But he was able to dismiss his film career as one in which he "had a sword in one hand, a blonde in the other and a camel waiting outside."

Son Lorenzo has a Buick-Hawk GTP waiting outside, a Sports 2000 racing machine in which he will be one of 56 entrants in Sunday's race in that class at Riverside Raceway.

IT REALLY is a tender love story: Boy meets car, boy loses car, boy wins car and race. Lorenzo is not the first to fall head over heels for a faithless four-cylinder heartless wretch of a machine. For him, it happened while he was recuperating from his karate-ending injury and he was tapped to drive in a celebrity race at the Long Beach Grand Prix.

It was love at first sight. Nothing had made him feel that way before. He not only won the race, he lost his heart.

They didn't exactly march off into the sunset together, though. It wasn't long afterward that the fickle machine spun him into a wall, backward, and broke his shoulder blade and collarbone.

You would think that would have convinced him that his love was unrequited, that there was no future in their relationship. It only made Lamas love her more.

"It was a kind thing to do, it made me learn to be more professional," he says.

Kind of like Leslie Howard always apologizing for that waitress who kept throwing him out and cheating on him.

Lamas, in short, is hooked. Lots of actors take up sideline sports as publicity stunts. He sees his acting career as a kind of complicated publicity stunt for his real avocation. It costs $150,000 to outfit and mount a campaign for his racing team and Lorenzo uses his notoriety as a TV and film performer to raise the funds.

If Lance loses a girl, or even a wife, in the fictional wine country of "Falcon Crest," he knows there's plenty more where that came from. If he loses a car, or a race, that makes him feel really betrayed and he mopes around for days.

No Hit streak ends for Tufts College Pitcher

MEDFORD, Mass. (AP) — A single to right by Bates' Ron Garrison in the second inning Friday ended Tufts University pitcher Jeff Bloom's bid for a fourth consecutive no-hitter.

Bloom, who had hurled 24 1-3 innings of no-hit ball over four games for the Jumbos, lasted through the sixth inning before leaving the game, which Bates won 6-5 in 11 innings.

Bloom departed with a 5-4 lead after given up six hits, two earned runs, striking out 10 and walking two.

Bloom's record is 3-2, with each of his victories a no-hitter.

After giving up six runs and 10 hits in four innings in his first game, a 12-7 loss to Wesleyan on March 29, Bloom pitched no-hitters against MIT, Boston University and Trinity.

Steady Calvin Peete scorches Woodlands

Houston Open

THE WOODLANDS (AP) — Calvin Peete, continuing his steady play from the first round, shot a two-under-par 70 Friday to break to a two-shot lead over a trio of golfers after two rounds of the $500,000 Houston Open.

Peete fired a course record 65 on Thursday and shared the first-day lead with Australian Wayne Grady.

But Peete kept up his cool-handed swing and finished the 36 holes with a 135 total, nine under for the tournament and two strokes ahead of Grady, Nick Faldo and Tom Watson.

Peete, one of the most consistent players on the tour, started on the front nine Friday and ran in 11 straight pars before hitting back-to-back birdies on Nos. 12 and 13 to go nine under par for the tournament.

He remained there the rest of the round.

"How boring, 11 pars in a row," Peete joked. "Actually, today's round was harder than yesterday. "I consider it a challenge. I am trying to hit certain parts of the fairway. Five years ago, I was just trying to hit the fairway."

Grady shot a 72 and shared second place at 137 with Faldo, who had a 69 Watson, who had a second-round 68.

"It's scary on this course when you hit over water on six holes and the wind comes up," Watson said. "You have to make sure of the places you want to hit."

Mike Sullivan shot a 3-over-par 75 in the opening round but set a course record 63 in the second round that included a 29 on the front nine, which ties the PGA Tour low for the year.

Sullivan and Jay Haas, who fired a 70, were tied for fifth with 138s.

After a 2-under 34 on the back nine, Sullivan was still one over par for the tournament when he made the turn to the front nine, but he birdied the next four holes and finished with birdies on seven of the final nine holes.

Gallery favorite Jack Nicklaus had a rough second round but birdied the final hole with a 10-foot putt to finish with a 1-over-par 73 and a 145 total, narrowly missing the 145 cut.

Swindell fans 11 Ags as Horns tie for first

SWC Baseball

AUSTIN (AP) — All-American pitcher Greg Swindell struck out 11 Texas A&M batters — including A&M's leading hitter, Mike Scanlin, four times — as Texas beat the Aggies 3-1 in an important Southwest Conference showdown Friday night.

The victory pulled the Longhorns, 46-9, into a tie with A&M for the conference lead at 13-3. The Aggies are 36-19 overall.

Dale Barry, A&M's southpaw starter, struck out six and walked just two, but scattered 10 hits in suffering his first loss in nine starts. Swindell, who gave up only four hits, improved his record to 9-1 and increased his strikeout total to 147 in 113 innings, while dropping his earned-run average to 1.27.

Texas tied the game in the bottom of the third when Kevin Garner's triple to the left field wall knocked in Coby Kerlin. Scott Collbaugh, who went 3-for-3, gave the Longhorns the lead in the fourth when he doubled to right field and scored from third on Kerlin's sacrifice fly.

TCU 15, Texas Tech 8

TCU scored five runs in a wild first inning, and the Horned Frogs went on to pound Texas Tech.

With the victory, TCU pulled even with Tech in the SWC race with a 5-11 record. The two teams play a doubleheader on Saturday.

The game lasted 3 hours and 45 minutes. It included eight errors, four by each side; four hit batsmen; and 14 walks. Only 12 of the 23 runs were earned.

Chris Cauley, 4-2, got the victory. He allowed nine hits and walked two batters over seven innings. The loser was Johnny Vidales, 7-5, who was touched for six runs and five hits in the three innings he worked.

Vidales, Phillip Maldonado, Mark Booth and Brad Zach each had two hits for the Red Raiders.

Wilmot, Bubba Jackson and Drew Watkins had two hits apiece for TCU. Roberts added a three-run double for the Horned Frogs.

Baylor 10, Arkansas 8

WACO — Tony Huey, who had already homered, singled in the go-ahead run in the eighth inning as Baylor defeated Arkansas.

Baylor is now 35-19 and 8-8. Arkansas dropped to 34-13 and 14-5.

Arkansas rallied from an 8-3 deficit to tie the game with single runs in the sixth and eighth and three runs in the seventh.

However, Baylor put its first two runners aboard in the bottom of the eighth when Arkansas reliever Ray Harris, now 4-2, walked Todd Hawkins and Mike Malinak.

A sacrifice bunt attempt failed when Harris threw Hawkins out at third, but Huey then singled Malinak home and Steve Jarvie followed with another RBI single to give the Bears their final victory margin.

January-Littler lead

Legends

AUSTIN (AP) — Defending champions Don January and Gene Littler combined for a 9-under-par 61 on Friday and built a two-stroke lead after two rounds of the Liberty Mutual Legends of Golf.

The leaders' two-round score of 126 was two shots better than the team of Lee Elder and Chi Chi Rodriguez, who shot 63 on the par-70, 6,357-yard Onion Creek Country Club course.

At 129 were the teams of Billy Casper and Gay Brewer, Miller Barber and Bob Goalby, and Orville Moody and Bob Crampton.

Twenty-eight teams are competing for $500,000 in the best-ball event.

Littler had eight birdies to send his team into the lead.

"I had a very enjoyable day watching Gene play," January said. "I just asked if he needed a drink of water or for me to wipe his brow, whatever he needed."

Elder said he was happy with Friday's round.

"We've made two bogeys in two days and that's the deficit we're behind," he said.

Brewer had five of his team's seven birdies Friday, but he said the course played tough.

"The greens are harder to putt," he said.

"The greens are harder to play to also," Casper added.

Casper and Brewer were at four under before posting a 7-under 63 Friday.

Moody and Crampton's charge toward the top was stalled by bogeys at 12 and 13.

Garbacz fires record 64

LPGA

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Lori Garbacz equaled an S&H Classic record Friday, firing an 8-under-par 64 that enabled her to take a two-stroke lead after two rounds of the $200,000 LPGA tournament.

Garbacz, chasing her first victory in eight years on the tour, carded eight birdies to finish with a 36-hole total of 10-under-par 134 on the 6,013-yard Pasadena Yacht and Country Club course.

The performance equaled the opening-round 64 by Judy Clark Dickinson last year.

Pat Bradley, the 1986 money leader, and Allison Finney both shot 67 for 136 totals, two shots behind Garbacz. Jane Crafter and Janet Coles followed with two-day totals of 137 after rounds of 69 on Friday.

Five-time S&H winner Kathy Whitworth shot a 68 Friday to stand three strokes off the lead along with Margaret Ward and Robin Walton, who shot 68 and 70, respectively.

First-day leader Cathy Kratzert faltered late in the day on her way to a 72 and 139 total. The second-year pro was tied for the lead after 14 holes, but a double bogey sent her tumbling in the standings.

Garbacz started the day on the back nine where she birdied the 12th and 13th holes and then scrambled to save par after missing the greens on No. 15 and No. 16. A 15-foot birdie putt on No. 17 and a three-footer on the par-5, 443-yard 18th allowed her to make the turn at 4-under-par for the day.

CHAPS

was McLennan's winner, and Richard Turner, playing No. 6 singles, defeated the Highlander's Don VanRamsHorst for the Chaps' victory.

Jean Roussel, Midland's No. 1 singles player, easily advanced into today's finals by felling two opponents without losing a game. Roussel, a native of Paris, will face Gerald Kaiser of South Plains College for the No. 1 singles title today.

Kaiser survived a tense three-set match over McLennan's Piero LaGioia, the defending regional champion, in the semis.

Roussel defeated Kaiser last week in Western Junior College Athletic Conference tournament after a pair of defeats earlier in the season. But Roussel feels that if Midland is to win the tournament, Nos. 2-6 must play well.

"I hope to play well at No. 1 and I think we can win at No. 2 (Eric Lingg)," Roussel said. "But we must be strong at 4-5-6. I think we've got a good chance there. We are deeper than most teams, our one-through-four players are pretty even."

With Margaroli eliminated at No. 1, the MC women must also count on numbers 2-through-6 to come through with wins to capture their fourth consecutive Region V title.

Helene Lebeller at No. 2 struggled some on Friday due to a shoulder injury that virtually eliminated her serve and overhand volley shots. Lebeller managed to win in straight sets, 6-3, 7-6, over McLennan's Nancy Calhoun to gain entrance to today's final. Lebeller will play Jamie McCaffuy of Cooke County for the No. title.

Sarah Swan will defend her regional title at No. 3 today against Cooke's Lissa Roche. Swan drew a bye and then breezed past Teresa Kuykendall of McLennan, 6-1, 6-0.

Natasha Koprivica at No. 4, Helen Schildknecht at No. 5 and Charissa Pruim at No. 6 all advanced to today's finals without incident.

To round out the men's action, Lingg advanced past Kenny James of Grayson, No. 4 Jos Warmoes whipped OC's Gabe Urias and Herve Rousseau advanced past SPC's Richard Kirton.

Prince's meteoric rise ends in plummet

By DIVINA INFUSINO
Copely New Services

Prince

Prince is a musical genius. Even his detractors admit that.

But every hero must fall, it seems. The question is: What will it take to get Prince on his feet again? The musical ingeniousness of his "Parade" album may not be enough.

Not enough for the Minneapolis loner who defied music-business conventions and set up an outpost musical empire away from the industry centers of Los Angeles and New York.

For the black man who ventured into white rock territory, shuffling gender roles along the way, mixing musical styles and ignoring the boundaries between black-and-white social mores, sex and spiritualism, artistic risk and commercial appeal.

For the singer who reached dizzying popularity with his 1984 album and film, "Purple Rain," then froze in fright at the height, becoming paranoid and withdrawn.

For the star whose overzealous bodyguards beaned photographers on the same night that he didn't show up for the "We Are The World" recording sessions.

Never mind that Prince performed a string of unpublicized concerts for handicapped kids or donated $500,000 to an inner-city, teacher-training program in Chicago. Prince was branded as a cold-hearted, egomaniac misogynist, (despite being an artistic mentor to Sheila E.).

In 1985, he released the LP "Around The World In A Day," a sometimes self-indulgent, psychedelic pastiche tracing a loss of innocence, repentance and redemption. The clash between his arrogant image and fanciful album rubbed the public the wrong way.

Then came word about his film in France, "Under The Cherry Moon," where he fired the director and took over the production. Now the music from the film arrives on "Parade."

Beatles-esque psychedelia once again plays a part in the music here, particularly on the opening Sgt. Pepperlike montage of "Christopher Tracy's Parade" and in the Indian intonations that dot several cuts. But the album's greatest source of inspiration is jazz — from contrapunctal melody lines to contrasting instrumental textures, to interspersed jazz chord progressions.

Prince always has dabbled with jazz-related techniques in a pop context, even on his big pop hit "Little Red Corvette." But this time, perhaps due to the influence of his father, John L. Nelson, a jazz performer who collaborated with his son on parts of the album, the jazz influence is overt. Songs like "Sometimes it Snows in April" and "I Wonder U" have the loose floating melodies of jazz rather than the tight structures of his pop and funk material.

The album contains plenty of the latter, however, like the hip-swinging "Girls and Boys." It also has what might best be described as movie music like "Do U Lie," complete with French dialogue, violins and an old-fashioned, fanciful Broadway musical sound that Prince twists with odd harmonies and instrumental surprises. The album also boasts the wonderful homage to the power of musical minimalism, that catchy, compelling single "Kiss."

Except for "New Position," the lyrics have few of the sexual references that got Prince in so much trouble with the Washington, D.C.-based censors last summer (unless there's some untranslated suggestiveness in the French dialogue).

Even if "Parade" makes more sense after the film's release July 2, the album alone is unlikely to redeem him completely in the public's eyes. It lacks the mass appeal of "Purple Rain," and no doubt some of the music will fly above portions of his teen audience. Others may mistake the experimentation for artistic narcissism.

But "Parade" is one of the most intriguing albums in a long time, revealing new subtleties with every listening and still new dimensions of this pop enigma named Prince.

ENTERTAINMENT

RUMOR HAS IT THAT — The long-overdue heavy-metal benefit record, "Hear 'N' Aid," will see the light of day in May; Little Richard will sign a new recording deal with Warner Bros. Records; Willie De Ville of Mink De Ville will record his next album with Dire Straits' Mark Knopfler; Joan Baez will tour this summer with Don McLean and Livingston Taylor on the bill; the long-awaited new Peter Gabriel album "So" will be released May 9.

'Mummenshanz' mimes return to Broadway

NEW YORK (AP) — "Mummenshanz" is back and it's marvelously magical.

"Mummenschanz" is three mimes who use, in their new show which opened Thursday at the off-Broadway Joyce Theater, lots of plastic masks and bodies.

Though they often aren't in human form, one attributes human emotions to them. They become real in no time.

A big pancake, white on one side and black on the other, with legs sticking out and a human body with arms extended visible inside the flat sides, walked into the wings. A child's voice was heard, "Bye, bye."

"Mummenschanz" is as much fun for the imagination as drama on the radio. There, you heard the story and could imagine what everybody looked like. Here, there's no talking or music. You see what the creatures look like and do and make up your own story.

There's a black-leotarded figure with a small suitcase for a head. He flips up the lid and gives another black-clad figure eyes, nose, mouth, beauty marks and earrings — apparently magnets — to stick on his flat, metal mask. The decorated recipient sticks his head inside the suitcase, looking for still more, and the suitcase shuts on the head and snaps it off. The price is paid for greed and inquisitiveness.

Some skits are funny. Suitcase-head is on stage when stage lights go out. He snaps open the suitcase and takes out a flashlight to guide his way off stage. A black-clad figure comes on with a wall socket for a head. Another black-clad figure comes on with a head shaped like a plug. When they engage, lights come on. When they pull apart, lights go out again. They exit into the wings and lights flick on and off.

Two huge, air-filled silver plastic bolster pillows bop each other around. The only sound, as war apparently is being declared, is of two fat garbage bags squeaking against each other as they're carried to the dump.

Mummenschanz, which comes from German words meaning game or play and choice, is Andres Bossard, Floriana Frassetto and Bernie Schurch.

Mummenschanz tours a lot and last opened on Broadway in April 1977. They were planning to stay three weeks, but stayed for three years. This engagement is announced for five weeks.

Beverly Hills is setting for latest CBS sitcom

NEW YORK (UPI) — The bra business was going bust when Leo from New Jersey came along, picked it up for peanuts and, with a boost from singer Madonna, made a killing.

So many bras were bought that Leo could afford to take his wife Liz all the way to the land of the rich and famous — Beverly Hills, U.S.A. — where the egos and Rolls-Royces roam.

Such is the storyline of "Leo and Liz in Beverly Hills," a new situation comedy which premiered on CBS Friday.

Leo is played by Harvey Korman, a triple Emmy winner from "The Carol Burnett Show," and his lovely wife Liz is played by Valerie Perrine, who earned an Academy Award nomination for "Lenny," and co-starred in "Superman," "The Electric Horseman" and "Slaughterhouse Five."

Funny man Steve ("excuuuuse me!") Martin serves as executive producer. Also starring is Michael J. Pollard, who earned an Academy Award nomination as gangster C.W. Moss in "Bonnie and Clyde."

Sounds good, right? Well, there are no guffaws, no knee-slappers, but yes, it is good, in a gentle kind of way. Almost too gentle.

As the story opens, Leo and Liz have moved into a beautiful mansion, with a Rolls in the driveway, four wacky servants in the home and a handyman (Pollard) to screw things up.

Their daughter (Sue Ball) has married a snob, and thus knows what is proper and what is not in this haven for the rich.

In the first episode, Liz is worried sick about her first party, especially after her neighbor fills her in on Beverly Hills etiquette and explains the difference between an A-list, a B-list and a C-list of guests. It seems Liz has a mixture of all lists coming to her first party and that's a no-no in la-la land.

What she needs is a celebrity (a celebrity can make a B-list party into an automatic A-list party). Luckily, Leo has gone to the store to pick up party favors and he winds up accidentally swapping driver's licenses with Mr. Glitz himself — Liberace — he of fur-coat and ivory keys fame.

Back at the party, things are dying, so Leo tells the tale of his rise to fortune. He was just schlepping around Jersey working in garments when he was awarded the Exquisite Bra company from a bankruptcy court.

Menuhin still playing violin

LONDON (AP) — Sir Yehudi Menuhin spent his 70th birthday Tuesday doing what he has done for 63 years, playing the violin as few other people have.

He joined cellist Mstislav Rostropovich for a special birthday concert at London's Royal Festival Hall, playing Tchaikovsky's "Variations on a Rococo Theme," Brahms' double concerto and Beethoven's violin concerto.

Menuhin was born in New York to a Jewish couple who had emigrated from Russia. In his debut at age 7 he astonished an audience in San Francisco with a performance that, by all accounts, was brilliant for a violinist of any age.

He has traveled steadily since then, playing around the world to ever more acclaim, and has made his home in Britain for more than 25 years.

Queen Elizabeth II awarded him an honorary knighthood in 1965 but he did not become Sir Yehudi until 20 years later.

Steady Calvin Peete scorches Woodlands

Houston Open

THE WOODLANDS (AP) — Calvin Peete, continuing his steady play from the first round, shot a two-under-par 70 Friday to break to a two-shot lead over a trio of golfers after two rounds of the $500,000 Houston Open.

Peete fired a course record 65 on Thursday and shared the first-day lead with Australian Wayne Grady.

But Peete kept up his cool-handed swing and finished the 36 holes with a 135 total, nine under for the tournament and two strokes ahead of Grady, Nick Faldo and Tom Watson.

Peete, one of the most consistent players on the tour, started on the front nine Friday and ran in 11 straight pars before hitting back-to-back birdies on Nos. 12 and 13 to go nine under par for the tournament.

He remained there the rest of the round.

"How boring, 11 pars in a row," Peete joked. "Actually, today's round was harder than yesterday. "I consider it a challenge. I am trying to hit certain parts of the fairway. Five years ago, I was just trying to hit the fairway."

Grady shot a 72 and shared second place at 137 with Faldo, who had a 69 Watson, who had a second-round 68.

"It's scary on this course when you hit over water on six holes and the wind comes up," Watson said. "You have to make sure of the places you want to hit."

Mike Sullivan shot a 3-over-par 75 in the opening round but set a course record 63 in the second round that included a 29 on the front nine, which ties the PGA Tour low for the year.

Sullivan and Jay Haas, who fired a 70, were tied for fifth with 138s.

After a 2-under 34 on the back nine, Sullivan was still one over par for the tournament when he made the turn to the front nine, but he birdied the next four holes and finished with birdies on seven of the final nine holes.

Gallery favorite Jack Nicklaus had a rough second round but birdied the final hole with a 10-foot putt to finish with a 1-over-par 73 and a 145 total, narrowly missing the 145 cut.

Swindell fans 11 Ags as Horns tie for first

SWC Baseball

AUSTIN (AP) — All-American pitcher Greg Swindell struck out 11 Texas A&M batters — including A&M's leading hitter, Mike Scanlin, four times — as Texas beat the Aggies 3-1 in an important Southwest Conference showdown Friday night.

The victory pulled the Longhorns, 46-9, into a tie with A&M for the conference lead at 13-3. The Aggies are 36-19 overall.

Dale Barry, A&M's southpaw starter, struck out six and walked just two, but scattered 10 hits in suffering his first loss in nine starts. Swindell, who gave up only four hits, improved his record to 9-1 and increased his strikeout total to 147 in 113 innings, while dropping his earned-run average to 1.27.

Texas tied the game in the bottom of the third when Kevin Garner's triple to the left field wall knocked in Coby Kerlin. Scott Collbaugh, who went 3-for-3, gave the Longhorns the lead in the fourth when he doubled to right field and scored from third on Kerlin's sacrifice fly.

TCU 15, Texas Tech 8

TCU scored five runs in a wild first inning, and the Horned Frogs went on to pound Texas Tech.

With the victory, TCU pulled even with Tech in the SWC race with a 5-11 record. The two teams play a doubleheader on Saturday.

The game lasted 3 hours and 45 minutes. It included eight errors, four by each side; four hit batsmen; and 14 walks. Only 12 of the 23 runs were earned.

Chris Cauley, 4-2, got the victory. He allowed nine hits and walked two batters over seven innings. The loser was Johnny Vidales, 7-5, who was touched for six runs and five hits in the three innings he worked.

Vidales, Phillip Maldonado, Mark Booth and Brad Zach each had two hits for the Red Raiders.

Wilmot, Bubba Jackson and Drew Watkins had two hits apiece for TCU. Roberts added a three-run double for the Horned Frogs.

Baylor 10, Arkansas 8

WACO — Tony Huey, who had already homered, singled in the go-ahead run in the eighth inning as Baylor defeated Arkansas.

Baylor is now 35-19 and 8-8. Arkansas dropped to 34-13 and 14-5.

Arkansas rallied from an 8-3 deficit to tie the game with single runs in the sixth and eighth and three runs in the seventh.

However, Baylor put its first two runners aboard in the bottom of the eighth when Arkansas reliever Ray Harris, now 4-2, walked Todd Hawkins and Mike Malinak.

A sacrifice bunt attempt failed when Harris threw Hawkins out at third, but Huey then singled Malinak home and Steve Jarvie followed with another RBI single to give the Bears their final victory margin.

January-Littler lead

Legends

AUSTIN (AP) — Defending champions Don January and Gene Littler combined for a 9-under-par 61 on Friday and built a two-stroke lead after two rounds of the Liberty Mutual Legends of Golf.

The leaders' two-round score of 126 was two shots better than the team of Lee Elder and Chi Chi Rodriguez, who shot 63 on the par-70, 6,357-yard Onion Creek Country Club course.

At 129 were the teams of Billy Casper and Gay Brewer, Miller Barber and Bob Goalby, and Orville Moody and Bob Crampton.

Twenty-eight teams are competing for $500,000 in the best-ball event.

Littler had eight birdies to send his team into the lead.

"I had a very enjoyable day watching Gene play," January said. "I just asked if he needed a drink of water or for me to wipe his brow, whatever he needed."

Elder said he was happy with Friday's round.

"We've made two bogeys in two days and that's the deficit we're behind," he said.

Brewer had five of his team's seven birdies Friday, but he said the course played tough.

"The greens are harder to putt," he said.

"The greens are harder to play to also," Casper added.

Casper and Brewer were at four under before posting a 7-under 63 Friday.

Moody and Crampton's charge toward the top was stalled by bogeys at 12 and 13.

Garbacz fires record 64

LPGA

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Lori Garbacz equaled an S&H Classic record Friday, firing an 8-under-par 64 that enabled her to take a two-stroke lead after two rounds of the $200,000 LPGA tournament.

Garbacz, chasing her first victory in eight years on the tour, carded eight birdies to finish with a 36-hole total of 10-under-par 134 on the 6,013-yard Pasadena Yacht and Country Club course.

The performance equaled the opening-round 64 by Judy Clark Dickinson last year.

Pat Bradley, the 1986 money leader, and Allison Finney both shot 67 for 136 totals, two shots behind Garbacz. Jane Crafter and Janet Coles followed with two-day totals of 137 after rounds of 69 on Friday.

Five-time S&H winner Kathy Whitworth shot a 68 Friday to stand three strokes off the lead along with Margaret Ward and Robin Walton, who shot 68 and 70, respectively.

First-day leader Cathy Kratzert faltered late in the day on her way to a 72 and 139 total. The second-year pro was tied for the lead after 14 holes, but a double bogey sent her tumbling in the standings.

Garbacz started the day on the back nine where she birdied the 12th and 13th holes and then scrambled to save par after missing the greens on No. 15 and No. 16. A 15-foot birdie putt on No. 17 and a three-footer on the par-5, 443-yard 18th allowed her to make the turn at 4-under-par for the day.

was McLennan's winner, and Richard Turner, playing No. 6 singles, defeated the Highlander's Don VanRamsHorst for the Chaps' victory.

Jean Roussel, Midland's No. 1 singles player, easily advanced into today's finals by felling two opponents without losing a game. Roussel, a native of Paris, will face Gerald Kaiser of South Plains College for the No. 1 singles title today.

Kaiser survived a tense three-set match over McLennan's Piero LaGioia, the defending regional champion, in the semis.

Roussel defeated Kaiser last week in Western Junior College Athletic Conference tournament after a pair of defeats earlier in the season. But Roussel feels that if Midland is to win the tournament, Nos. 2-6 must play well.

"I hope to play well at No. 1 and I think we can win at No. 2 (Eric Lingg)," Roussel said. "But we must be strong at 4-5-6. I think we've got a good chance there. We are deeper than most teams, our one-through-four players are pretty even."

With Margaroli eliminated at No. 1, the MC women must also count on numbers 2-through-6 to come through with wins to capture their fourth consecutive Region V title.

Helene Lebeller at No. 2 struggled some on Friday due to a shoulder injury that virtually eliminated her serve and overhand volley shots. Lebeller managed to win in straight sets, 6-3, 7-6, over McLennan's Nancy Calhoun to gain entrance to today's final. Lebeller will play Jamie McCaffuy of Cooke County for the No. title.

Sarah Swan will defend her regional title at No. 3 today against Cooke's Lissa Roche. Swan drew a bye and then breezed past Teresa Kuykendall of McLennan, 6-1, 6-0.

Natasha Koprivica at No. 4, Helen Schildknecht at No. 5 and Charissa Pruim at No. 6 all advanced to today's finals without incident.

To round out the men's action, Lingg advanced past Kenny James of Grayson, No. 4 Jos Warmoes whipped OC's Gabe Urias and Herve Rousseau advanced past SPC's Richard Kirton.

Prince's meteoric rise ends in plummet

By DIVINA INFUSINO

Prince

Prince is a musical genius. Even his detractors admit that.

But every hero must fall, it seems. The question is: What will it take to get Prince on his feet again? The musical ingeniousness of his "Parade" album may not be enough.

Not enough for the Minneapolis loner who defied music-business conventions and set up an outpost musical empire away from the industry centers of Los Angeles and New York.

For the black man who ventured into white rock territory, shuffling gender roles along the way, mixing musical styles and ignoring the boundaries between black-and-white social mores, sex and spiritualism, artistic risk and commercial appeal.

For the singer who reached dizzying popularity with his 1984 album and film, "Purple Rain," then froze in fright at the height, becoming paranoid and withdrawn.

For the star whose overzealous bodyguards beaned photographers on the same night that he didn't show up for the "We Are The World" recording sessions.

Never mind that Prince performed a string of unpublicized concerts for handicapped kids or donated $500,000 to an inner-city, teacher-training program in Chicago. Prince was branded as a cold-hearted, egomaniac misogynist, (despite being an artistic mentor to Sheila E.).

In 1985, he released the LP "Around The World In A Day," a sometimes self-indulgent, psychedelic pastiche tracing a loss of innocence, repentance and redemption. The clash between his arrogant image and fanciful album rubbed the public the wrong way.

Then came word about his film in France, "Under The Cherry Moon," where he fired the director and took over the production. Now the music from the film arrives on "Parade."

Beatles-esque psychedelia once again plays a part in the music here, particularly on the opening Sgt. Pepperlike montage of "Christopher Tracy's Parade" and in the Indian intonations that dot several cuts. But the album's greatest source of inspiration is jazz — from contrapunctal melody lines to contrasting instrumental textures, to interspersed jazz chord progressions.

Prince always has dabbled with jazz-related techniques in a pop context, even on his big pop hit "Little Red Corvette." But this time, perhaps due to the influence of his father, John L. Nelson, a jazz performer who collaborated with his son on parts of the album, the jazz influence is overt. Songs like "Sometimes it Snows in April" and "I Wonder U" have the loose floating melodies of jazz rather than the tight structures of his pop and funk material.

The album contains plenty of the latter, however, like the hip-swinging "Girls and Boys." It also has what might best be described as movie music like "Do U Lie," complete with French dialogue, violins and an old-fashioned, fanciful Broadway musical sound that Prince twists with odd harmonies and instrumental surprises. The album also boasts the wonderful homage to the power of musical minimalism, that catchy, compelling single "Kiss."

Except for "New Position," the lyrics have few of the sexual references that got Prince in so much trouble with the Washington, D.C.-based censors last summer (unless there's some untranslated suggestiveness in the French dialogue).

Even if "Parade" makes more sense after the film's release July 2, the album alone is unlikely to redeem him completely in the public's eyes. It lacks the mass appeal of "Purple Rain," and no doubt some of the music will fly above portions of his teen audience. Others may mistake the experimentation for artistic narcissism.

But "Parade" is one of the most intriguing albums in a long time, revealing new subtleties with every listening and still new dimensions of this pop enigma named Prince.

RUMOR HAS IT THAT — The long-overdue heavy-metal benefit record, "Hear 'N' Aid," will see the light of day in May; Little Richard will sign a new recording deal with Warner Bros. Records; Willie De Ville of Mink De Ville will record his next album with Dire Straits' Mark Knopfler; Joan Baez will tour this summer with Don McLean and Livingston Taylor on the bill; the long-awaited new Peter Gabriel album "So" will be released May 9.

'Mummenshanz' mimes return to Broadway

NEW YORK (AP) — "Mummenshanz" is back and it's marvelously magical.

"Mummenschanz" is three mimes who use, in their new show which opened Thursday at the off-Broadway Joyce Theater, lots of plastic masks and bodies.

Though they often aren't in human form, one attributes human emotions to them. They become real in no time.

A big pancake, white on one side and black on the other, with legs sticking out and a human body with arms extended visible inside the flat sides, walked into the wings. A child's voice was heard, "Bye, bye."

"Mummenschanz" is as much fun for the imagination as drama on the radio. There, you heard the story and could imagine what everybody looked like. Here, there's no talking or music. You see what the creatures look like and do and make up your own story.

There's a black-leotarded figure with a small suitcase for a head. He flips up the lid and gives another black-clad figure eyes, nose, mouth, beauty marks and earrings — apparently magnets — to stick on his flat, metal mask. The decorated recipient sticks his head inside the suitcase, looking for still more, and the suitcase shuts on the head and snaps it off. The price is paid for greed and inquisitiveness.

Some skits are funny. Suitcase-head is on stage when stage lights go out. He snaps open the suitcase and takes out a flashlight to guide his way off stage. A black-clad figure comes on with a wall socket for a head. Another black-clad figure comes on with a head shaped like a plug. When they engage, lights come on. When they pull apart, lights go out again. They exit into the wings and lights flick on and off.

Two huge, air-filled silver plastic bolster pillows bop each other around. The only sound, as war apparently is being declared, is of two fat garbage bags squeaking against each other as they're carried to the dump.

Mummenschanz, which comes from German words meaning game or play and choice, is Andres Bossard, Floriana Frassetto and Bernie Schurch.

Mummenschanz tours a lot and last opened on Broadway in April 1977. They were planning to stay three weeks, but stayed for three years. This engagement is announced for five weeks.

Beverly Hills is setting for latest CBS sitcom

NEW YORK (UPI) — The bra business was going bust when Leo from New Jersey came along, picked it up for peanuts and, with a boost from singer Madonna, made a killing.

So many bras were bought that Leo could afford to take his wife Liz all the way to the land of the rich and famous — Beverly Hills, U.S.A. — where the egos and Rolls-Royces roam.

Such is the storyline of "Leo and Liz in Beverly Hills," a new situation comedy which premiered on CBS Friday.

Leo is played by Harvey Korman, a triple Emmy winner from "The Carol Burnett Show," and his lovely wife Liz is played by Valerie Perrine, who earned an Academy Award nomination for "Lenny," and co-starred in "Superman," "The Electric Horseman" and "Slaughterhouse Five."

Funny man Steve ("excuuuuse me!") Martin serves as executive producer. Also starring is Michael J. Pollard, who earned an Academy Award nomination as gangster C.W. Moss in "Bonnie and Clyde."

Sounds good, right? Well, there are no guffaws, no knee-slappers, but yes, it is good, in a gentle kind of way. Almost too gentle.

As the story opens, Leo and Liz have moved into a beautiful mansion, with a Rolls in the driveway, four wacky servants in the home and a handyman (Pollard) to screw things up.

Their daughter (Sue Ball) has married a snob, and thus knows what is proper and what is not in this haven for the rich.

In the first episode, Liz is worried sick about her first party, especially after her neighbor fills her in on Beverly Hills etiquette and explains the difference between an A-list, a B-list and a C-list of guests. It seems Liz has a mixture of all lists coming to her first party and that's a no-no in la-la land.

What she needs is a celebrity (a celebrity can make a B-list party into an automatic A-list party). Luckily, Leo has gone to the store to pick up party favors and he winds up accidentally swapping driver's licenses with Mr. Glitz himself — Liberace — he of fur-coat and ivory keys fame.

Back at the party, things are dying, so Leo tells the tale of his rise to fortune. He was just schlepping around Jersey working in garments when he was awarded the Exquisite Bra company from a bankruptcy court.

Scott Cunningham, age 6, the 1986 March of Dimes poster child, visits with country and western singer Willie Nelson Wednesday in Austin. Both were on hand for the Legends of Golf Pro-Am. A portion of the tournament's proceeds will go to the charity. Cunningham is from Mobile, Ala.

Menuhin still playing violin

LONDON (AP) — Sir Yehudi Menuhin spent his 70th birthday Tuesday doing what he has done for 63 years, playing the violin as few other people have.

He joined cellist Mstislav Rostropovich for a special birthday concert at London's Royal Festival Hall, playing Tchaikovsky's "Variations on a Rococo Theme," Brahms' double concerto and Beethoven's violin concerto.

Menuhin was born in New York to a Jewish couple who had emigrated from Russia. In his debut at age 7 he astonished an audience in San Francisco with a performance that, by all accounts, was brilliant for a violinist of any age.

He has traveled steadily since then, playing around the world to ever more acclaim, and has made his home in Britain for more than 25 years.

Queen Elizabeth II awarded him an honorary knighthood in 1965 but he did not become Sir Yehudi until 20 years later.

Protective clothing tested under water

ASTORIA, Ore. (AP) — "I'm leaking...I'm leaking," shouted Fred Libby.

The water's cold. The shouts are genuine. But they're also part of the routine when the volunteers plunge into the Columbia River water for hypothermia testing.

Libby held his left arm high to try to stop the 44-degree water from seeping into his flight suit through the tear in the shoulder. On board the 52-foot motor lifeboat Triumph, Cmdr. Alan Steinman shouted to him to put his arm back in the water or the test wouldn't work.

The petty officer second class from Station Cape Disappointment retorted with a mock protest, gritted his teeth and stuck the arm back under the surface.

The water numbs their bodies quickly when the six U.S. Coast Guardsmen first hit the water. The bravado and shouts hold for a while. But then the chattering teeth and shivering take over.

Libby drew the least effective suit to wear during the test. He also had to test it immersed in the water, rather than sitting on the mock-up of a capsized boat hull or in the one-man life raft the group is testing for the U.S. Navy. After 25 minutes in the water, he called to the Triumph to find out how fast his temperature was dropping.

That was good news — he'd be out of the water sooner.

There are eight volunteers — four from Air Station Astoria and two each from the motor lifeboat stations at Cape Disappointment and Grays Harbor — who rotate through three different rough water exposure conditions and test six kinds of protective clothing. While in the water, they are tethered to the Triumph by a safety line. The line also carries a data hookup from the sensors measuring each man's skin and body temperature to monitoring equipment.

Each man stays in the water until his body temperature drops below 95 degrees, until he asks to come out, or until Steinman, a doctor attached to the Coast Guard district headquarters in Seattle, tells him to come out. The longest that anyone stays in the water is two hours.

Steinman started setting up for the tests at Cape Disappointment in January. In all, there are 20 tests in the water. From them all, he is getting information that will help determine survival strategies for helicopter and aircraft crews and for recreational boaters.

Most of the results are still preliminary, but Steinman said the tests definitely showed that one's chances were better out of the water — on an overturned boat, in a raft, or on floating debris — than they are immersed in it. Water is a great heat conductor, while the air is an insulator, he said.

The tests also show where to make compromises between what is comfortable in normal use and necessary in an emergency. Heavy insulation helps in the water but may be hot and bulky the rest of the time. A dry suit with little insulation is more comfortable to wear normally, and it is effective in the water if intact. But, as Libby was proving with his rapidly sinking body temperature, it's not very useful when torn.

Steinman does all his testing under rough weather conditions now because trouble rarely happens under calm conditions. Bulky coveralls that give good insulation in calm seas lose some of their effectiveness in rough water because they let too much water circulate past the skin, lowering temperatures faster.

The volunteers' bravado was gone after having the 4-foot wake from a 44-foot motor lifeboat wash over them for 40 minutes to simulate rough seas. Clothed in the least protective suit, Libby started having cramps. Forty-five minutes into the test, his companions helped pull him, shivering, onto the boat.

The here and now

Nancy clasped her hand firmly in granddad's as they roamed the large forest on the back of his farm. He helped her through the underbrush, careful that no whipping limb lash her face as they fought the small trees struggling for a bigger place among the tall ones.

They came to a clearing in the dense woods and stopped. "Nancy," he said to the six-year-old "apple of his eye" as he stood gazing at the trees. "What is here now that was not here a hundred years ago?"

Nancy looked around, combing the little clearing filled with wildflowers and their backdrop of huge trees. But no answer came.

"Think, Nancy, think," he urged.

Then her eyes lit up. "Me!"

Whether that was the answer granddad had in mind, I don t know. But I do know that Nancy s answer is on target. She and all her friends are the new generation. They were not here a hundred years ago; not many of us were.

Nancy, you and the rest of us have a legacy, a heritage, and responsibility to do something good and great with all we have inherited.

We were not here a hundred years ago. But we are now!

Sesquicentennial Bible bee kickoff slated

Kids for Christ International announces the kickoff of the 1986 Texas Sesquicentennial Bible Bee, an annual, interdenominational contest of Bible skills in six categories.

Coach Tom Landry of the Dallas Cowboys heads the contest as honorary chairman. State winners in the Kids (grades 1-6) and Teen (grades 7-12) divisions will win $500 and the grand championship trophy. The state finals at the Dallas Convention Center will be televised on a Dallas station.

All Texas churches are invited to participate in the bee by enrolling through Kids for Christ International at 1212 Josey Lane, Suite 375, Carrollton, Texas 75006.

Each participating church will hold a local Texas Bible Bee contest. Qualifiers advance to area, county, and regional competitions. Fifteen regional winners in each division will compete in the state finals September 27.

Bible Bee was conceived by Dr. Jack Gray, evangelist and president of Kids For Christ International, as a means of motivating children to learn the Bible. The study book is designed to help parents begin to train their children in basic Bible facts and passages.

"We are guilty of child abuse," Gray says, "if we neglect the spiritual training of our children in the Bible. You can see a black and blue little arm. You can't see a black and blue little spirit, but it's there just the same. This kind of neglect will reap horrible repercussions in the life of the nation and in the lives of the children entrusted to our care."

The Texas Bible Bee will give focus for parents and churches to the task of biblical training for children. "Our goal is to involve at least 78,000 children in 2600 churches," said Amy Simpson, Bible Bee director. "We want to promote constructive, ecumenical interaction on behalf of children through the administration of the contests beyond the local church."

Bible Bee began in 1985 with a Dallas pilot, and plans are underway for Bible Bee USA in the near future. Any church interested in participating in the 1986 Texas Bible Bee are to contact Kids For Christ International.

Esteem Machine conducts tryout for 1986-87 troupe

The Esteem Machine, a teen theater repertory company, is conducting tryouts for the 1986-87 troupe at 1 p.m. Saturday. All tryouts will be at Memorial Christian Church, 1001 Andrews Hwy.

Teens in the Permian Basin who are currently in the 8th-11th grades (who will be 9th-12th graders in the fall) are eligible. Actors, actresses, singers, and piano and guitar players are being sought. "These teens don't need any acting experience to be selected," said Tricia Shelton, producer/director for the troupe. "What we really want are enthusiastic teens who will be committed to the project of helping others by becoming 'peer educators'."

"We have a very extensive educational program during the summer and throughout the year so the teens can become very knowledgeable about the subjects they are addressing," continued Shelton. "And we work with them on acting skills, both individually and through workshops that are being planned."

The Esteem Machine has performed for more than 2,000 teens and adults in its first year, helping open communication between parents and other adults, teens, and their peers. Skits and music on subjects of communication, chemical abuse, sexuality, suicide, and stress are developed by members of the teen theater committee and the teen actors. Teen theatre is an educational program of Planned Parenthood of the Permian Basin and is funded primarily by the Department of Human Resources. In March the Esteem Machine was presented one of five Health Promotion Awards from the Texas Department of Health.

To receive further information on the auditions, contact Tricia Shelton at 687-1016, or Karen Hildebrand, education director for PPPB at 563-2530.

RELIGION IN BRIEF

Church's revival services continue through Sunday

Greenwood Baptist Church's revival services continue today and Sunday at 7 p.m.

The Rev. James Puckett is the guest evangelist and Don Orr is directing the music.

Puckett is the pastor of First Baptist Church, McKinney. A native of Quitman, he received his education from Baylor University and Southern Baptist Seminary. Other pastorates include churches in San Antonio, Big Spring, Wortham, and Troup. Puckett currently serves as a trustee at Dallas Baptist University and has traveled in the eastern Mediterranean, South America, Spain, and Alaska.

Orr, a native of Hot Springs, Ark., has served in the music ministry for 34 years. He and his wife, Violet, just recently retired as missionaries in Cali, Columbia. Orr, who received his education at Ouichita Baptist University, Southwestern Baptist Seminary, and TCU, was one of the first teachers at the International Baptist Seminary in Columbia. When in Columbia, he also directed music for the Billy Graham Crusades in South America.

The public is invited to attend.

CWU celebrates fellowship

Church Women United will celebrate May Fellowship Day at 10:30 a.m. Friday at St. Mark's United Methodist Church, 1701 N. Main.

May Fellowship Day is an ecumenical worship event sponsored each year by CWU bringing together women from different Christian traditions to strengthen their feelings of community and enable them to address mutual concerns.

The group will meet at 10:30 a.m. Friday at St. Mark's for a program to be presented by Jack Frost, executive director of the Permian Basin Food Bank Inc. Frost is a member of Crescent Park Baptist Church in Odessa. He has been in the bakery operation for Furr's Supermarkets for a number of years and graduated from Baylor University in management and economics.

The Food Bank's goal is to help feed the needy in the Permian Basin by salvaging otherwise wasted food. The center then redistributes the food through member agencies and churches to the needy.

The program will be followed by a salad luncheon at 11:30 a.m. A nursery will be provided.

Prayer day designated

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif. — President Ronald Reagan has designated Thursday as the 1986 National Day of Prayer. An independent citizens group is urging Americans to become personally involved.

The group is especially asking Americans to "Take 5 at 12" — take at least five minutes at noon on May 1 — to offer their individual prayers of thanks and "That He may heal us where we need healing and guidance for our leaders in their decisions in these difficult time," said Mrs. Bill Bright, co-chairman of the National Day of Prayer Task Force.

Ministries represented on the National Prayer Committee and its task force include the Salvation Army, the Southern Baptist Home Mission Board, World Vision, Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship, Campus Crusade for Christ, Youth With a Mission, Evelyn Christenson Ministries, Change the World Ministries, and Support for Action.

For further information, contact National Prayer Committee, P.O. Box 6826, San Bernardino, CA 92412, or call 714-882-9932.

Church airs film series

Kelview Heights Baptist Church is presenting the film series "Building a Healthy Self-Concept." The series will be shown at 5:45 p.m. Sundays through May 25.

The series features Paul Meier and Frank Minirth of the Minirth-Meier Clinic.

"Their many books, along with their national radio and television broadcasts have made available the expertise, experience and personality that marks them," said Jerry Berry, church spokesman. "Their use of integrated biblical and psychological approach to helping people reflects their commitment to preventative counseling."

The series covers six stages of life that forms a person's self-concept. The first segment covers three basic needs of individuals, compensation for inferiority feelings and five factors found in a healthy home.

The Rev. Frank Johnson, pastor, invites the public to attend. The church is located off N. Big Spring at Scharbauer Drive. A nursery will be provided.

Homemaking meeting set

The woman's organization, Relief Society, of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints holds a monthly homemaking meeting in which women are taught personal improvement skills.

Three different classes are offered monthly. The classes have included such topics as quilting, food storage, gardening, gourmet cooking, travel tips and coordinating warderobes.

The May Homemaking Meeting will be held at 7 p.m. May 13. The theme is "Reading" and the classes include "Books for Children," "Cloth Book Covers" and "Geneology."

The summer months will include classes on canning, budgeting, ceramics, self-defense, powerpuff mechanics and time management. The public is invited to attend.

For more information call 694-7569.

Group hosts speaker

Thielke

Donald J. Thielke, a high priest in the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, will be in Midland Sunday. Thielke is the administrator of the southwest region and will speak to the Midland congregation at 11 a.m.

Thielke will join the congregation in its kickoff campaign to raise funds for its new church facility on the corner of Midland Drive and Mockingbird Lane. The congregation has recently completed the purchase of two acres at that location and soon will begin construction of a new building.

The congregation currently is meeting at the Central YMCA. The public is invited to attend the services.

The Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints has its headquarters in Independence, Mo.

Revival begins Sunday

A revival at Faith Temple Church, 1605 N. Terrell, will be held Sunday through Friday.

The revival will be conducted by evangelist Emily Bram Biddy of Marion, La. She has done extensive traveling throughout the United States.

The public is invited. Services begin at 7:30 p.m. nightly.

Rev. W.C. Kenan is the church's pastor.

New Hope hosts revival

Greater New Hope Baptist Church, 2400 New York, will host a revival Monday through Friday with Rev. S.C. Nash, recording artist, evangelist and pastor of New Hope Baptist Church in Lubbock, handling the services.

The public is invited and Rev. J.L. Williams, Jr., is the church's pastor.

Victory Night slated

Calvary Baptist Church, 1001 S. Main, will host Victory Night Sunday and Joe D. Saffle from White Oak Baptist Church in Houston will be guest speaker.

Jim Brown is pastor.

The public is invited.

Church being dedicated

The Apostolic Assembly Church of Faith in Jesus Christ, 2309 Fort Worth St., extends an invitation for the public to attend the church's dedication today. Activities include special services and lunch served at the new church.

Speakers for the 10 a.m. to noon dedication service today are the Rev. Baldemar Rodriquez, the Rev. Valentin B. Torres, pastor of the church, the Rev. Esteban Avila and the Rev. Alejandro Galarza.

Following lunch, another service will be held from 2 to 5 p.m. today. Those participating in this special service include Valentin Torres Jr., the Rev. Joe Rocha, the Rev. Juan Martinez, Galarza, the Rev. Roberto Ramirez and Rev. Torres.

Both services will be conducted in Spanish and English. In Spanish, the church is known as La Asamblea Apostolica de la Fe'en Cristo Jesus.

Episcopal diocese sidesteps policy, blocks women's ordination

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Sidestepping a decade-old policy of the Episcopal Church, its Long Island diocese for more than a year has blocked the ordination of two women recommended for the priesthood.

The case involves some curious procedure by which the matter, in effect, has been submerged in a kind of uncertain limbo.

"It's a real injustice, contrary to our Christian commitment," says the Rev. Dominick K. Ciannella, pastor of Holy Trinity Church in Hicksville, N.Y., whose vestry sponsored one of the women.

Both "are sterling women, highly qualified," he says, scoring among the upper third in examinations by the church's general board of examining chaplains. "They're not being treated fairly or justly."

The denomination authorized women's ordination in 1976, and now has about 600 women priests serving across the country. The Long Island diocese, among scattered pockets of continued resistance, has none.

Ciannella said in a telephone interview that diocesan treatment of the two Long Island women has been "capricious, a circumvention of the intent" of church canon law, "frustrating any appropriate action."

The Rev. Albert H. Palmer of Farmingdale, N.Y., president of the diocesan standing committee in which the matter has been stalled, declined to discuss it.

To settle the grievance, the diocesan convention Feb. 16 overwhelmingly called on the committee either to approve the applications or specify its reasons for not doing so without delay.

Conflict-resolution seminar slated

Danaan Perry

Danaan Parry, formerly associated with the Atomic Energy Commission, will conduct a seminar on conflict resolution at the Ranchland Hills Country Club, E. Wadley Ave., Tuesday from 7 to 10 p.m.

The seminar, entitled "Warriors of the Heart: Training in Conflict Resolution," is sponsored by the Permian Church of Religious Science. A $6 donation is requested from each adult; senior citizens' and students' donations are $5 each.

Parry, who has a degree in nuclear physics from the University of California at Berkeley, left the AEC in 1971. By 1974, he was a clinical psychologist and, in 1976, a near-death experience led him to withdraw for a year of isolation.

A meeting with Mother Teresa in Bombay, India, resulted in the creation of the Holyearth Foundation in 1980.

Through this foundation, Danaan practices conflict-resolution work around the world. His work with Moslems and Christians in Pakistan, Belfast's Irish Republican Army and the people of the Soviet Union have given him international recognition.

Religious groups oppose aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — A coalition of national religious bodies has issued a 30-second television ad opposing any U.S. funding of the Contra rebels in Nicaragua.

The ad lists 19 denominations opposing such aid, including U.S. Catholic bishops, the United Methodist church, the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), the Union of American Hebrew Congregations, the United Church of Christ and the American Baptist Churches.

Gospel singer Mother Smith just wants to 'take off'

AP Laserphoto

Willie Mae Ford Smith, center, belts out a gospel song in a scene from George T. Nierenberg's documentary film, "Say Amen, Somebody." Mother Smith, as she is known to all, is one of the stars of the film about gospel music, airing Wednesday on PBS, cable channel 13.

By ROBERT BARR

NEW YORK (AP) — To the people who sing it, gospel music is just "gospel," and that's how they regard it — straight and simple. "Down through the ages, the Gospel was good news," says a pioneer who wrote and popularized the music.

"I've been thrown out of some of the best churches," says the venerable Thomas A. Dorsey. "But I went out all alone and out through the world with it, and many, many people have been helped and saved by gospel."

Dorsey is one of the stars of "Say Amen, Somebody," a highly praised film which will be shown Wednesday, at 8 p.m. on the Public Broadcasting System, cable channel 13.

The singers captured on film radiate a conviction that they've heard good news, and none is more convincing than Willie Mae Ford Smith, a St. Louis woman who has been singing gospel for more than 60 years.

"It's a feeling within you. I feel like I could fly away," says Mother Smith, as she is known to all. "I forget I'm in the world sometimes. I just want to take off."

As an excited listener says to her in the film: "Somebody touched you one day — praise the Lord! — and you haven't been the same since."

Something has touched Willie Mae, all right. It shines in her eyes, in her smile, in her booming, blues-inflected voice. It shows in the tears her children dab from their eyes as she sings.

George T. Nierenberg's powerful film captures a fast-fading moment in American music and religion, with the people who were there at the beginning. It's a rocking hour and a half of music, and a penetrating look at the people who sing it.

Nierenberg finished the film in 1982, hardly too soon. When he had started four years earlier, he recalled, Dorsey could still bang out the blues on his piano. He couldn't by the time filming started, but his mind was still keen.

Dorsey was once known as "Georgia Tom," a blues pianist who toured the country with the singer Ma Rainey. He also composed 300 tunes, he says.

"I was doing all right for myself," he says, "but the voice of God whispered, 'You need to change'."

Dorsey combined religious fervor with blues and ragtime, to make gospel. Then he hit the road with his songs and his partner Sallie Martin, making a living by selling sheet music to the choirs that they formed.

Now 86, Dorsey lives in Chicago where he started directing choirs at the Pilgrim Baptist Church. Mother Smith, 80, still lives in St. Louis.

"The Lord gave me a charge, and that's my voice — to sing and preach, and I do both," she says.

Mother Smith's background is in the Holiness churches, where the "holy rollers" speak in tongues and sometimes suffer convulsions during their ecstatic services, where the people talk back to the preacher and dance in the aisles with the singers.

They are churches of neon signs and folding chairs, churches which sometimes stand door-to-door in ghetto storefronts.

"To go into a Holiness church when the spirit's high, and the world's impurities are cast out into the streets from whence they came, to hear the saints assenting, is to believe that music can transport one to 'higher ground'," gospel enthusiast Anthony Heilbut wrote in his book, "The Gospel Sound."

Heilbut rated Mother Smith as the greatest of the "anointed singers," those who stayed in the church to save souls instead of singing concerts and cutting records.

Even when she needed a walker to get around, Willie Mae Ford Smith threw herself into a song.

"You just move with the feeling, you sway with the feelings," she told Heilbut. "I'll sing with my hands, with my feet. When I got saved, my feet got saved too."

Scientists will study released harbor seals

WALDPORT, Ore. (AP) — Two harbor seals from the Point Defiance Zoo in Tacoma, Wash., have been released at Alsea Bay by scientists who want to know whether they can survive in the wild after 16 years in captivity.

"I give them a 95 percent chance to make it," Jim Harvey, a marine mammal specialist with Oregon State University, said Tuesday as the seals scampered into the water.

A team of voluteers from the Oregon Coast Aquarium will be observing the seals over the next two months.

"Any zoo or aquarium with a surplus of animals is not allowed to release them into the wild," Harvey said, "because there is no information about what happens to them. The purpose of this study is to see what becomes of the animals when they are released."

He said the study could lead to modification of the federal Marine Mammal Protection Act, enabling zoos and aquariums to relieve overcrowding by releasing captive seals and other marine mammals.

"We really don't know what will happen when we release them," said Robin Brown, a biologist with the Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife. "Instinctively, they shouldn't have a problem feeding."

Each seal was marked with a numbered red tag and had a small radio transmitter with an eight-inch antenna attached to its head.

Harvey said the radio signal would travel two to five miles, and that the transmitter was expected to work until at least August, when the seals molt.

He said that if the seals released this week survive and join the 5,000 harbor seals already living on the Oregon coast, others from the Tacoma zoo will be turned loose.

Cancelled European trips draw French resentment

PARIS – The decision of many thousands of Americans to cancel trips to Europe in fear of terrorist attacks has been greeted by mockery, derision and a lot of resentment here.

What one British newspaper called the "great American flight from Europe" has emerged as the latest twist in the ongoing transatlantic controversy over the U.S. air attack against Libya.

It has become the subject of bold headlines in newspapers all over the continent.

The gist of the Europeans' complaint is that the Americans branded them as cowards for failing to back the bombing of Libya, but are now prudently keeping 3,000 miles of ocean between themselves and possible terrorist reprisals.

Meanwhile, they add bitterly, they're being left to face the consequences of the American action.

A certain amount of sympathy with the Europeans' reproaches is evident among U.S. officials here.

"The best way that Americans can serve their country's interests right now," declared one U.S. diplomat in Paris, "would be to go ahead with European vacations or re-schedule them if they've been cancelled."

He continued, "No one is advocating foolhardy behavior but American citizens should show their readiness to share in the problems arising from this crisis."

The diplomat, like his colleagues and their families in other European capitals, is living in what amounts to a state of seige, a situation pre-dating the attack on Libya.

However, since the attack, security surrounding them has been intensified still further. The imposing U.S. embassy on Paris's Place de la Concorde now resembles an armed camp.

Reports that, because of the terrorist menace, several Hollywood notables had decided not to attend next month's Cannes film festival, a major event on the motion picture industry's calendar, received hoots of sarcastic laughter from the European media.

A particular target of the barbs was actor Sylvester Stallone, despite his manager's claim he had cancelled plans for Cannes as long ago as January, before the U.S. raid on Libya had heightened nervousness about terrorist acts against Americans in Europe.

Stallone's film role as the macho, avenging "Rambo" has given him special – and, at the moment, unfortunate – symbolic status in European eyes.

President Ronald Reagan, in ordering the bombing of Libya, was repeatedly referred to by European critics as supposedly seeking to live out Rambo's cinematic fantasies in the real world.

Stallone's decision to stay away was seen by the left-wing Paris paper, Le Matin, as "very ironic. ... It would be funny except for the fact that it exposes the American confusion between make-believe and reality."

That going to Cannes, a town on France's Mediterranean coast, may not be without danger was emphasized by a disclosure that the French government had ordered reinforcement of its aerial defenses, including additional anti-aircraft batteries, from the Pyrenees to the Italian frontier. This was obviously a precaution against a possible hit-and-run raid by Libyan planes.

In Britain, howls of outrage met an announcement by the U.S. corporate giant, AT&T, that it was withdrawing from a technological exposition in London next week.

Residents like to reminisce in old Brazoria drugstore

BRAZORIA, Texas (AP) — At the corner of Brooks Street and Highway 36 stands a dull, milky-white wood frame building. The wood is graying under the peeling paint.

A red and white Coca Cola sign above the darkened doorway reads Buster's Club. The windows are boarded up, but looking through the open door, a man's silhouette is outlined by a dim yellowish light.

"It's a pool hall and beer drinkin' joint now," Dick Forest says. But Forest, 79, and his wife Clyde, 75, remember when Buster's Club was Hampil's Drugstore.

Mrs. Forest moved to Brazoria with her mother and twin brother, Jack, in 1913 as the Brazos and San Bernard rivers threatened to overflow their banks. One of her earliest memories is her first day at school ... "and coming home from school to get behind the fountain and wash dishes. I was raised behind the soda fountain," she says. Her mother, Mrs. A.B. Rogers, and C.C. "Doc" Hampil, were co-owners of the store.

Mrs. Forest used to make the carbonated water to mix with syrup and ice. She served a lot of cherry and lime Cokes at a nickel apiece, but root beer was the big seller.

Ice cream floats were popular too. The ice cream, packed in tubs of salt and ice, was shipped by rail from Houston.

Back then, the drugstore was the center of Brazoria's social scene. Locals used to gather at the soda fountain for something to do on a Saturday night and wound up sharing stories of love and life over the counter.

In 1929, a young "doodlebugger" came into the store. A doodlebugger was what they called the men who came to the Brazoria area working on seismograph crews prospecting for oil. Like the rest of the folks in town, he used to go to the drugstore, and it wasn't long before he noticed the 18-year-old woman working behind the counter.

"I used to go to the drugstore to get a drink of coffee and talk to her," Forest says, his speech colored by his distinctive Louisiana accent. "After a week of asking and asking her for a date, we finally had our first date."

"He liked dancin' and I liked to swim," Mrs. Forest says of their dates.

She liked to swim in the San Bernard River. "We had quite a gang that went down there." She was a daredevil and liked to dive off bridges or from steep banks.

He liked to go dancing at the Blue Eagle Dance Hall. That was during Prohibition. "One night a guy said to me, "'Hey, you want a drink?' I said, 'Yeah!' We went out back and he had it in a hollow stump in a tree. You know that ole corn whiskey made me sick!" Forest says.

And there was another night when they danced until dawn.

In July, only months before the stock market crash marked the beginning of the Depression, they were married in League City.

From 1936 to 1945, the Forests lived in Louisiana, as Forest worked various jobs as a civil engineer. But at the end of World War II, they returned to Brazoria.

Forest worked on Highway 36 and even today, years after road crews paved the road smooth, he remembers how cumbersome travel was over the muddy, rutted roads of the county. "There wasn't a shell on that road out there when we moved here," he says, waving his hand in the air, and pointing in the direction of Highway 36.

"We were the only ones around here then except T.J. Toland, back down there and another family," he says, pointing in the general direction. "Why, this was a dirt road!"

The couple built their wood frame house along County Road 348, about a quarter of a mile from where W.W. Short Stop now stands on Highway 36 North. "I built this," Forest stops in mid-sentence and looks at Mrs. Forest, "we built this house here. It took them three months."

Wave of private boat thefts swamps law forces

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Private investigator Joe Maloney knew something was fishy when he heard a young man was trying to hawk novelist Harold Robbins' $70,000 boat in a bar in Ensenada, Mexico. He was asking only $5,000 for the 30-foot Bayliner.

Robbins was lucky. His boat, pirated from the Marina del Rey harbor in March 1984 and eventually recovered, was one of thousands of vessels of all sizes stolen every year in the United States with little hope of recovery.

They're expensive and easy to steal for profit, drug runs or just a good time. And law enforcement is just starting to develop a war plan to curb the tide of thefts out of marinas nationwide.

"It's a big problem nobody will face," said Jack Williams, a Los Angeles-based insurance adjuster who's investigated cases of stolen boats for more than 15 years.

"If I steal a car and drive it to Arizona, the feds and everyone else is after me," he said in a recent interview. "If you steal my $20,000 boat and do anything you want to it, the only guy who's going to talk you to death is an insurance investigator. Very few law enforcement officers know how to identify a stolen boat."

The FBI's National Crime Information Center in Washington D.C. keeps records on unrecovered stolen boats — some 23,000 at a given time — but there are no precise figures for annual marine thefts or recoveries.

Depending on who provides the estimate, the recovery rate ranges from 5 percent for smaller vessels to as high as 40 percent for larger boats, which are usually worked by insurance investigators.

In contrast, the recovery rate for motor vehicles stolen nationwide in 1984 was 62.9 percent, according to the FBI's Uniform Crime Report.

In Florida, the boat-theft capital of the wold, some $20 million in seagoing vessels are stolen each year, said Lt. Dave MacGillis, stolen boat coordinator of the Florida Marine Patrol.

Many larger boats used to be stolen in Florida for drug-running, but now individuals and theft rings take smaller, less-expensive boats looking for quick money. MacGillis said the shift was caused by a multi-agency task force, formed by President Reagan in 1982 and headed by Vice President George Bush, to cut off ports of entry in the Southeast to drug traders.

"It became too hot to steal a large vessel simply to run drugs in," said MacGillis, who's based in Tallahassee, Fla.

In Texas, the number of drug-related boat thefts has increased as they have dropped off in Florida.

"They're moving a lot of the narcotics out of the Florida area so we're seeing a drastic increase in drug-related boat thefts in the Houston-Galveston area," said Sgt. Gary Edwards of the Friendswood, Texas, Police Department. "The more pressure that's seen in the Florida area, the more thefts we have in our area."

Maloney, whose office is in Laguna Niguel, Calif., is one of only a handful of private eyes across the nation who specialize in stolen boats.

A former Los Angeles County sheriff's homicide investigator, Maloney's cases involve boats 28 feet or longer and worth an average of $170,000. He does most of his work for insurance companies and has traveled as far south as Colombia in search of pilfered vessels.

Car bomb kills Spanish Civil Guards

WORLD

MADRID, Spain (AP) — A car bomb believed to have been set off by Basque terrorists demolished a passing vehicle carrying nine Civil Guards in Madrid Friday, killing five guardsmen and badly injuring the other four, police said.

Two injured pedestrians were treated at a hospital and released, they said.

An angry crowd gathered at the site, shouting against the government of Socialist Prime Minister Felipe Gonzalez and calling for harsh measures against the Basque separatist organization ETA.

The bombing raised to 13 Spain's death toll this year in political terrorism.

Joaquin Leguina, president of the Madrid regional government, told Spanish television the bombing seemed to be the work of the ETA. In the Basque language, the initials stand for Basque Land and Liberty — Euzkadi Ta Askatusuna.

The blast occurred at 7:25 a.m. in pouring rain on Juan Bravo Street, close to the intersection of Principe de Vergara Street in the heart of fashionable Salamanca neighborhood.

The Madrid civil governor's office said the Land Rover had picked up some of the paramilitary Civil Guards from night guard duty at the Italian Embassy and was taking others to day duty at the Soviet Embassy and the Ministry of Public Health.

Police said the car bomb was set off by remote control and contained 44 pounds of explosives and metal.

It blasted a hole in the wall of the San Antonio de Rosario Maternity Clinic, destroying a delivery room where a baby had been born an hour earlier.

Glass from shattered windows covered a four-block area.

Witnesses said a parked red car exploded as the Land Rover drove past. They said a young man had been sitting in the car minutes earlier.

For a time, the bodies of three of the dead lay on the street, covered with blankets on which police carefully placed the guards' distinctive, three-cornered, black patent leather hats.

Nurses from the clinic and neighborhood residents placed bouquets of flowers on the pavement after the bodies were removed.

The Civil Guard patrols rural areas, serves as a national highway police, has special anti-terrorist units, and guards foreign embassies and important government buildings.

ETA calls the Civil Guard an army of occupation and demands that guardsmen be removed from the Basque country.

The blast came shortly before a scheduled meeting in San Sebastian between representatives of the Basque Nationalist Party and Herri Batasuna (People's Party), to discuss violence in the three-province northern Basque country. Herri Batasuna has close ties with ETA.

The Basque Nationalist Party holds a majority in the Basque autonomous regional parliament.

Last September, ETA "Spain Commando" guerrillas claimed responsibility for a Madrid blast which wounded 14 Civil Guards and killed an American businessman-jogger.

On Feb. 6, the commando took responsibility for killing Adm. Cristobal Colon de Carvajal, a descendent of Christopher Columbus, as he drove to work in Madrid.

Since 1968, 155 Civil Guards have died in terrorist attacks, most of them claimed by ETA.

The American School in the northwest suburb of Aravaca received a bomb threat Friday, soon after the car bombing, school secretary Ariane Doorenbos told The Associated Press.

Lawmaker fails in bid to debate nude photos

LONDON (AP) — A bid by a Labor Party member to have Parliament discuss a ban on photos of nudes in newspapers collapsed in disarray Friday, with supporters throwing protest leaflets at lawmakers in the chamber.

Speaker Bernard Weatherill refused to allot time to Claire Short of the opposition Labor Party, who wanted to attach such a ban to an anti-obscenity bill.

"It brings the House into disrepute when, despite enormous feeling outside that some change should be made in the law, it can't even be discussed," said Ms. Short.

Women in the gallery then showered lawmakers with leaflets headlined: "Page Three is Violence Against Women." Four of the women were ejected shouting "Ban Page Three."

The pictures, featuring bare breasts and provocative poses, were pioneered by publisher Rupert Murdoch's Sun newspaper. The Star later became its most daring competitor. The Mirror also runs photos of nudes but doesn't show bare breasts.

The Sun, which has vehemently denounced Ms. Short's campaign, on Friday gave its more than 4 million readers "Naughty Natalie." The Star appeared without its daily "Starbird," instead devoting the space to the death of the Duchess of Windsor, widow of King Edward VIII who abdicated in 1936 to marry her.

The Anti-Obscenity Bill, drawn up by Conservative member Winston Churchill, aims to curb television and video material and does not deal with the newspaper nudes.

His bill, too, was defeated when filibustering from opponents on both sides of the House of Commons took the debate beyond its allotted time.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Animal lover leaves her estate to zoo's primates

PAIGNTON, England (AP) — An animal lover who visited and fed monkeys at a zoo here for 20 years has left them nearly $600,000, the zoo's curator said Friday.

Marie Lefevre, a childless widow who died in July at age 84, left almost her entire estate to the upkeep and welfare of 120 primates at Paignton Zoological and Botanical Gardens in Devon, southwest England.

"She would bring them all sorts of biscuits and tidbits and exotic fruits the likes of which these monkeys had never had before," curator Colin Bath said. "All hell would break loose in the cages whenever she arrived."

Her favorites were Robert and Julie, an elderly chimpanzee couple, but all the primates, ranging in size from chimps to tiny lemurs, benefited from her affection, Bath said.

"She always regretted we didn't have an orangutan, but we didn't have the facilities to accommodate one. Now we will use her money to build a whole new complex and we hope to get an orangutan," said Bath.

Monetary laws to change

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The legislature approved a measure that would change the nation's monetary laws and permit Mexicans to open, on a limited basis, dollar accounts in banks, which have been banned since 1982.

Treasury Department spokesman Roberto Contreras said the government has not yet adopted final rules detailing who can open the accounts.

But he said they would likely be permitted in cities along the U.S.-Mexico border, tourist resorts and big-business cities, like Monterrey and Guadalajara.

Currently, the accounts are restricted to diplomats, tourist agents, exporters and importers who need dollars for business transactions.

At the height of its economic troubles in August 1982, the government froze more than $12 billion in dollar accounts in banks and changed the money into the Mexican peso. Account-holders got their money back at about 70 cents for every dollar.

Blast hits airline office

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — An explosion on Friday ripped a hole in the office door of Saudia, the state-run airline of Saudi Arabia, but there were no casualties.

Investigators later found a hand grenade in front of the state-run Kuwait Airways Corp. office on the floor beneath Saudia. Authorities said the grenade was defused.

The building, which houses offices of other airlines and the Vienna bureau of United Press International, is opposite the state opera on the Ringstrasse boulevard.

There was no immediate claim of responsibility.

Witnesses said the corridor was strewn with glass shards. Reporters were not allowed to enter the building.

The blast occurred while the Saudi interior minister, Prince Nayef Bin Adulaziz, was on an official visit in Austria.

Rebel leader deported

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP) — Nicaraguan rebel leader Adolfo Chamorro was deported to the United States on Friday after Costa Rica declared him an undesirable alien, Public Safety Minister Benjamin Piza said.

He said Chamorro, a leader of the U.S.-backed Democratic Revolutionary Alliance, or ARDE, was put on a commercial flight to Miami, where he has been living for some time.

In February 1985, Costa Rica expelled Chamorro for making what this country considered inflammatory statements against the leftist Sandinista regime in neighboring Nicaragua. He was banned from returning to Costa Rica.

Speaking to reporters, Piza denied rumors broadcast by several Costa Rican radio stations that Chamorro was arrested on drug-related or weapons smuggling charges when he tried to re-enter the country Wednesday.

Piza also denied initial reports that Chamorro arrived Wednesday on a commercial flight. He said Chamorro entered the country in a rented twin-engine plane, accompanied by two Cubans and a Costa Rican, who were also arrested.

Sunday, April 27, 1986

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Those born on this day can look forward to a happy future. You are resourceful and will find the support you need to succeed at home and in the work place. Loved ones and associates respect you and the ideals you stand for. Turn your energies and talents to attaining your career goals. Communication with those you love reaches an all-time high.

CELEBRITY BIRTHDATES: civil rights activist Coretta King, former President Ulysses S. Grant, actor Jack Klugman, Seattle Seahawks coach Chuck Knox and actress Sandy Dennis.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Buying and selling activities are favored on this special Sunday. An unusual rapport with an old friend may lead to an exciting, new romance. Take a chance; make a telephone call.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Financial affairs improve. An old grievance can be settled if you are willing. Try not to act too satisfied if you emerge the winner. Take special pride in a loved one's accomplishments.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Money matters appear to be somewhat confused. Recheck your accounts, bills and checkbook for possible errors. You may find it necessary to pursue romance more aggressively.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Out-of-town associates affect your cash flow. Make an effort to develop better communication with your parents or children. Move ahead with plans involving your personal affairs. Be more positive about yourself.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): A discussion having far-reaching effects should not be put off any longer. Parents exert a great influence on your thoughts and actions. Travel proves stimulating. Include loved ones in your evening plans.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Letters and phone calls should be a source of comfort. Avoid individuals who have a propensity for arguing. Romance is very much in your plans today. Do not neglect family or community obligations.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Differences that arise at a family social gathering should be settled at another time and place. Trust your instincts regarding this matter. Listen to what a child is saying.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Now is the time to address an opposing point of view. Complete old projects before starting anything new. Personal problems evaporate when you exercise a little common sense and apply some love.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Keep spending under control. Influences are extremely positive for solving a personal problem. A diet and exercise regime contribute to your good health. The evening will be the happiest time of the day.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Take time today to pay bills and balance checkbooks. Creative efforts continue to be a source of income for you and your associates. Turn your attention to some personal decisions.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Inside information could be a dangerous thing to have. Turn a deaf ear. Call on the expertise of family members to solve financial problems. Children come to you for guidance.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Stay at home today as traveling will be frustrating. Do not allow what others say to discourage you. Be totally open and honest; romance will take an exciting turn for the better.

Wedding guests try to skirt media

HYANNIS, Mass. (AP) — Members of the Kennedy clan and their guests skirted tourists and reporters in this Cape Cod resort Friday as last-minute preparations were made for the marriage of Maria Shriver and Arnold Schwarzenegger.

Arrangements for the Saturday wedding of the daughter of R. Sargent and Eunice Kennedy Shriver have been so hush-hush that even veteran gossip columnists and paparazzi have been stymied.

There even was some confusion caused by the arrival of two Arnold Schwarzeneggers and the difficulty of tailors to fit some of the bigger body-builders in the wedding party.

Some residents of nearby Hyannis Port, where the wedding reception will be held at the Kennedy family compound, seemed unfazed.

"It's just one of those things that you have to live with," said an elderly woman getting her mail at the tiny Hyannis Port post office.

Schwarzenegger, 38, arrived before dawn Friday from Puerto Vallarta, Mexico, where he had been working on his latest action film, "Predator." His appearance quelled talk that he had been in town for several days, confusion apparently caused by the arrival of a cousin with the same name.

Ms. Shriver, 30, flew in late Wednesday. She had told viewers of the "CBS Morning News" that she would be taking a few days off, but did not mention her wedding.

The 500 people on the guest list is among the better-kept secrets, but Kennedy family spokesman Brian Delaney did say that neither Dan Rather nor Princess Caroline of Monaco was likely to show up.

One celebrity who will attend is Ms. Shriver's aunt, Jacqueline Onassis, who was greeted by a throng of photographers when she arrived Thursday night at Barnstable Municipal Airport.

She was accompanied by her daughter, Caroline, who will be Ms. Shriver's maid of honor at St. Francis Xavier church, which the Kennedys have attended for decades.

Delaney said it was possible that Ms. Shriver's ailing 95-year-old grandmother, Rose Kennedy, would attend the ceremony. The matriarch of the Kennedy family suffered a stroke in April 1984.

Body-builder Franco Columbu is expected to be Schwarzenegger's best man in the large wedding party, which includes a dozen bridesmaids and a dozen ushers.

The couple will be married by a friend of the Shriver family, the Rev. John Riordan, pastor of St. John's Church in New York City.

A security force of local police officers paid for by the Shriver family will keep out the press and other uninvited guests, said police Lt. William Arthur said.

After the ceremony, Ms. Shriver and Schwarzenegger will greet their guests at the outdoor reception under three large, white tents at the family compound, with music by Peter Duchin and his band.

LOGAN, Utah (AP) — Former gymnastic star Cathy Rigby McCoy said that the rigors of world-class competition, fear of failure and non-stop training and dieting caused her to become anorexic and bulimic during the 1972 Olympics.

McCoy

Pressured by parents, coaches, trainers and others to keep her weight down during competition, the winner of 12 international gold medals said her weight once fell to 79 pounds and she was hospitalized twice.

"At the 1972 Olympics some other gymnasts taught me the techniques of binging and purging and I began the vicious cycles of eating up to 15,000 calories a day, but getting rid of it all by vomiting," Ms. McCoy, 32, told an audience at Utah State University on Thursday.

The road to recovery began, she said, after she divorced her husband of nine years, which she said was difficult because "I had never been assertive and I wanted people to think I had a perfect life and marriage."

Her second husband, Tom, encouraged her to seek treatment, which she did five years ago.

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Vermont Royster, former editor of The Wall Street Journal, will add a Presidential Medal of Freedom to his mantelpiece that already contains two Pulitzer poizes.

Royster, professor emeritus at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill School of Journalism, will receive the medal, the highest civilian honor given by the president, at a luncheon in the White House on May 12.

The medal is given to people who have contributed meritoriously to the national interest. Royster, 71, said Thursday he is being recognized for his service in journalism and communications.

CLEVELAND (AP) — Pop artist Claes Oldenburg has discovered that Standard Oil Co. doesn't rubber stamp its approval of a piece of art just because it was chosen by a Fine Arts Advisory Commission to go in front of its corporate headquarters.

Company Chairman Robert B. Horton said Thursday he isn't pleased with the 48-foot pink and maroon sculpture of a rubber stamp and hopes to find another location for it. "I don't want to destroy a work of art, but I don't think the symbolism is appropriate," he said.

Oldenburg, the artist who gained fame when he designed a giant baseball bat for Chicago and a giant clothespin for Philadelphia, called the decision a breach of contract, but he refused to say whether he planned to sue.

"The fact is that there is no other place to put it," he said Thursday.

AMES, Iowa (AP) — 1979 Nobel Peace laureate Norman Borlaug has donated his papers to Iowa State University.

Borlaug, 71, won the prize for developing high yielding, disease-resistant strains of wheat that have fed millions of people throughout the world. He also has trained an army of agricultural technicians who have spread the new food technology to more than 20 nations.

The papers will go to the university's Archives of American Agriculture. Borlaug, a Cresco native, is now a visiting professor at Texas A&M University.

CARBONDALE, Ill. (AP) — Would-be skippers with glue and tape at the ready are converging on Southern Illinois University for Saturday's Cardboard Boat Regatta, a tribute to soggy paper and spectacular sinkings.

"We run this kind of like the Grand Ole Opry. Whoever shows up plays," said Richard Archer, organizer of the 13th annual event.

So far there are 78 entries, Archer said Friday. "But we had 43 last year and ended up with 145 boats." The extravaganza on SIU's Campus Lake drew about 15,000 spectators a year ago.

Entrants compete in three categories: boats powered by paddles, boats powered by paddle wheels, propellers or sails; and "instant boats" made by spectators given building materials two hours before race time. All are made of corrugated paper.

The winner is the one who crosses the finish line first.

But Archer, who originated the event as a project for his design students in 1974, said there are other ways to take home a trophy.

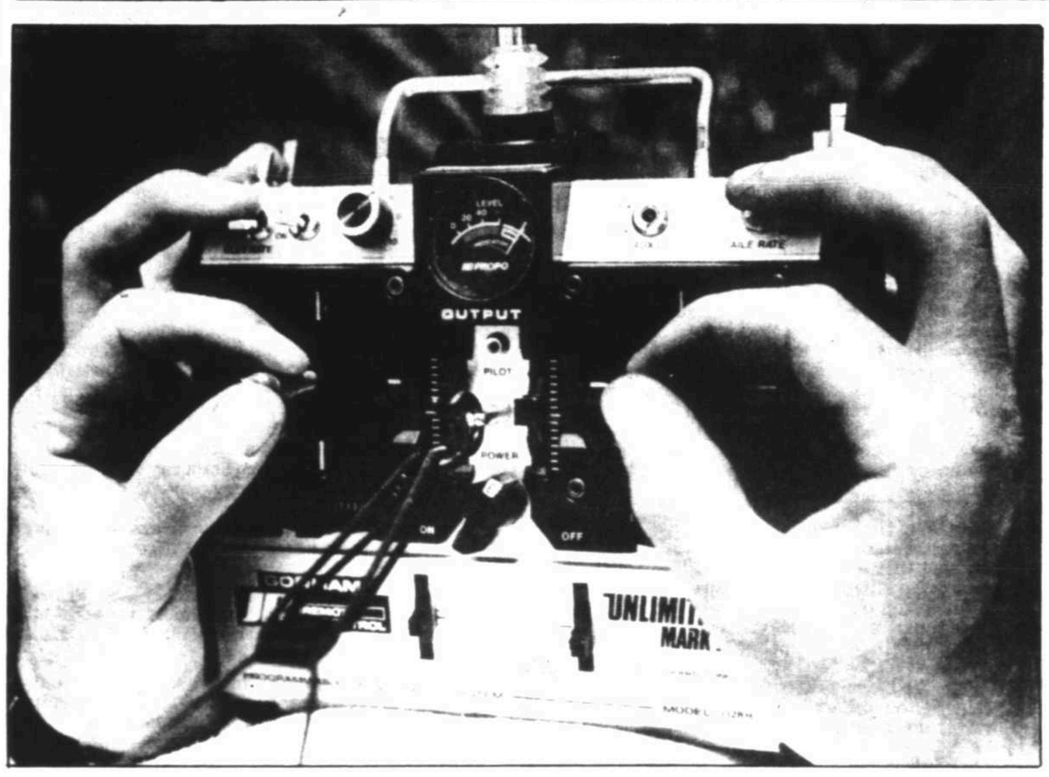
National model helicopter champion Robert Gorham, 23, hovers a model of a Cobra helicopter four inches off the ground.



A nine-function programmable radio control is used to operate remote-controlled model helicopters such as those flown by Gorham, who travels around the nation demonstrating the models built by Gorham Model Products, the company started by his parents, John and Louise Gorham.

Model helicopters

LOS ANGELES — Aviation engineer John Gorham has had a model career.

He designed the control systems that steer hundreds of civil and military aircraft now flying in Europe. He helped to concoct the lift-control and autopilot devices used in the Lockheed L-1011. He studied bad-weather flying landing requirements and airspace problems for the federal government.

But that is not the model part.

That began six years ago, when Gorham took up the hobby of building radio-controlled helicopters.

He became so enthusiastic about his models that he formed a family business, Gorham Model Products, to turn out model-helicopter kits for other hobbyists. Since then, his fledgling company has taken off more like a rocket than a helicopter.

It has turned into the country's largest maker of flying toy helicopters. And it is turning out the world's largest scale models of helicopters.

Gorham's latest model is no toy, however. It is a 16-foot-long, 150-pound radio-controlled model that has captured the fancy of the U.S. Army.

The huge model comes with a plastic covering that makes it look like a one-fifth scale version of the Soviet Union's Mi-24 HIND-D gunship.

THE REAL Soviet craft is said to be a heavily armed, exceedingly maneuverable helicopter capable of flying in zigzag patterns and sneaking up on targets. It reportedly can pop up from behind hills to spray a barrage of rocket fire.

Because radio-controlled model helicopters can be flown in the same dart-about-the-skies fashion, the Army is considering buying about 5,000 of his models, Gorham said. The fully automated drones would be used by the Army and NATO allies for target recognition and evasion training, he said.

"There's a lot more to do with this size helicopter," said Gorham, 63. "They can be made easier to fly fully automated with computers. There are a lot of non-military uses for them."

Those include turning them into remote-controlled camera platforms for police, broadcasters or real estate agents. They could also be used in industry for inspection of areas contaminated with radioactivity, Gorham said.

"You could fly it in and then blow it up instead of trying to decontaminate it," he said.

Gorham figures that his new giant-sized helicopter — which has a 10-foot main rotor and can lift 55 pounds — will sell for $15,000 to $20,000 each. In contrast, the smaller hobby helicopter kits his company produces cost between $260 and $1,500, depending on the size and exterior finish of the helicopter.

About 23,000 of the flying models have been sold since British-born Gorham and his wife, Louise, formed the company in 1979, the couple said. They grossed $100,000 the first year and logged an estimated $2.2 million in sales in 1985, Gorham said.

Formation of the company was a fluke.

"I led one of the design teams for the L-1011 and had 800 engineers working for me at Lockheed at the peak," Gorham said. "But after the 1011, I ran out of challenge. I didn't want to live out the rest of my life at Lockheed."

GORHAM LEFT Lockheed and was working as a private aeronautical consultant when he took up the model helicopter hobby. He said he started his company after encountering difficulty finding model parts.

Gorham Model Products has 22 employees, who package the helicopter kits in Calabasas, Calif., just northwest of Los Angeles. Subcontractors make the parts, except in the case of a pre-assembled model made by a Japanese company. The kits and pre-assembled models are sold through hobby shops and by mail.

A long-established German remote-control helicopter maker and two Japanese hobby companies are Gorham's main competitors.

Because of the complexity of assembling his 300-piece kits and then flying them, Gorham keeps technicians on telephone duty in Calabasas and at a Pennsylvania office to field technical quesitons from dealers and hobbyists.

He also keeps his son, Robert, on the road in a motor home demonstrating the flying models.

"I played with gliders when I was 12 or 13, but then I got interested in girls and motorcycles," said Robert Gorham, 23. "I came into the office one day a few years ago and he let me fly one of his helicopters and I fell in love with it."

Three months ago, young Gorham beat 100 other model fliers to win first place in a national remote-controlled helicopter flying contest in Springfield, Mass. He flew a 4½-foot-long scale-model Cobra Ranger helicopter.

Gorham, above, uses FM radio controls to fly a model helicopter. Gorham's father, engineer John Gorham, below, went from designing the control systems that steer hundreds of civil and military aircraft now flying in Europe, to running a successful model business. Here he poses with a one-fifth scale model of a Soviet gunship.

Soviet emigre testifies ex-FBI agent not 'traitor'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A Soviet emigre who pleaded guilty to spying with fired FBI agent Richard Miller has retracted her confession, saying she was working for the FBI and that Miller was "not a traitor," a judge at his espionage trial said Friday.

Svetlana Ogorodnikov, in a talk Thursday with U.S. District Judge David Kenyon, said the FBI knew that neither she nor Miller was guilty, but she pleaded guilty because she feared the jury wouldn't believe her because she was from the Soviet Union.

"Your honor, we are not guilty of this crime...Richard is not a traitor of his country. I am not a Russian spy. I was helping the (U.S.) government. That is true, your honor. We are not guilty of this crime," she said in the transcript of the meeting held in Kenyon's chambers Thursday. Her statement, which Kenyon released to reporters Friday, was not given to jurors.

In a related development, Kenyon said formal charges should be brought against one of Miller's lawyers, Stanley Greenberg, for attempted obstruction of justice because Greenberg tried to influence the selection of a new attorney to represent Mrs. Ogorodnikov after he heard her statement.

Mrs. Ogorodnikov returned to the witness stand Friday and, under questioning by Greenberg, portrayed Miller as a conscientious FBI agent who repeatedly pleaded with her to give him information about Soviet officials, saying she would be well paid.

"He had an emotional stress," she said. "He could not concentrate, and he said that if I could help and give him this information, that would help his career."

She said Miller confided that he had seen a psychiatrist and that "everybody in the office were laughing at him, that he has a problem because he is overweight."

Mrs. Ogorodnikov said she and Miller had sexual relations soon after they met in May 1984.

"At any time during your relationship with Mr. Miller were you in love with him?" Greenberg asked.

"I cannot say that I was in love with him, but he's a nice man," she said.

Kenyon said Mrs. Ogorodnikov's statement Thursday was made with the aid of a translator and in the presence of all the lawyers. Those who were present said she wept several times while giving her account.

Mrs. Ogorodnikov spoke of an FBI "plan from Washington" involving her but did not specify what it was. Someday, she said, the identity of the person who drafted the plan would be known.

"My hands are clean. I not take no documents," said the 35-year-old woman. "I help America, not Russia."

Miller is accused of giving Mrs. Ogorodnikov classified documents in exchange for promises of $65,000 in gold and cash. A jury deadlock in November forced his current retrial.

She said at one point she visited the Soviet Union and Soviet agents beat her because "I think they understand I was working with the FBI."

She said she was pressured into pleading guilty by her attorneys.

"When I was arrested, I couldn't understand. They (her attorneys) told me I was Russian, and they would give me the life sentence," she said. "They told me no one would believe me. They told me the judge would maybe give me 40 years...I plead guilty, and my life is finished. If I go back to Soviet Union, they will certainly kill me."

> "Your honor, we are not guilty of this crime...Richard is not a traitor of his country. I am not a Russian spy. I was helping the (U.S.) government. That is true, your honor. We are not guilty of this crime."
>
> — Svetlana Ogorodnikov

Kenyon said he wanted to appoint her a new attorney to replace Brad Brian and Greg Stone, who had asked to be relieved, and Kenyon said he intended to find Greenberg in contempt of court for trying to influence the choice of counsel.

"I feel it is such a gross violation of all ethics...that the only alternative the court would have is a jail sentence," Kenyon said.

He put the matter in abeyance and said Miller's trial would go forward.

Mrs. Ogorodnikov said the attorneys' comments convinced her that her only hope was to take an 18-year sentence and hope she would get out in 10 years.

But after she took the witness stand this week in Miller's second trial, she said her conscience troubled her, and she couldn't sleep.

"I didn't want someone who is not guilty to be in prison," she said. "That man (Miller) lie a lot about me, but it's not his fault. He is very emotional man."

She said when she pleaded guilty last June, she looked out in the audience and saw Miller's son.

"When I saw his son, his face, I thought if that be my son, could be in his place. I want to tell his son, 'Your father is not guilty.' I was scared. I am Russian. The jury would not believe me. The FBI knew what I was doing."

"The truth has to come out," she told the judge, "and the person who's not guilty cannot be charged. I ask also for my husband. They know that we're not guilty. The FBI knows, and Mr. (U.S. Attorney Robert) Bonner knows."

She said she now wants to give Miller's lawyers evidence that would help her former lover.

"He is a nice man. The judge is a nice man. We are not guilty. I don't care now. I just want to help him (Miller)," she said, adding: "I forgive the FBI."

Mrs. Ogorodnikov and husband, Nikolay, 53, pleaded guilty to espionage charges nearly a year ago and both are serving federal prison sentences.

On Wednesday and earlier Thursday, Mrs. Ogorodnikov testified about a love afair she said she had with another FBI agent, John Hunt, who she said made her pregnant, paid for an abortion, then dumped her when she proved an unsuccessful informant. She said Hunt urged her to meet Miller after Miller called her, but Hunt has denied all of this.

Two women accused of murder in friend's death plead innocent

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Two women with long criminal records who were accused of killing one of five acquaintances slain in a drunken spree pleaded innocent Friday.

Lafonda Fay Foster, 22, and Tina Hickey Powell, 27, entered innocent pleas on one count of murder in the death Wednesday of Carlos Kearns, 71.

Three victims were stabbed and run over by a car, one was run over and died in a car that was set afire, and another was shot in the back of the head, said Coroner Chester Hager.

Police believe the women robbed and killed the two women and three men after an afternoon of drinking. More murder charges are expected, but police would release no new information Friday, said Lt. John Bizzack.

The two were taken into custody early Thursday on public intoxication charges, and Fayette Chief Deputy Jailer Ray Sabbatine said jail records show that each had been arrested "well over 50 times."

The women were held on $100,000 cash bonds in Fayette County Detention Center. Judge Lewis Paisley scheduled hearings for May 1 and May 5.

In addition to Kearns, the victims were identified as his 45-year-old wife, Virginia; Trudy Harrell, 59; Theodore Sweet, 53; and Roger Keene, 47.

All seven had arrest records, authorities said.

SALES

Do you plan for the future? If you are going nowhere in your present position, or you have little control over your income, or if you have always wanted a position in sales but never had the opportunity. Why not investigate a sales position with us? Our people are sales oriented, mechanically inclined, and complete a comprehensive 12 month training program. Our company is one of the largest and most successful in our field. Our sales people average from $30,000 to $40,000 per year, through a combination of salary, commission and bonus incentive plan. Company car, expenses, complete medical coverage including dental, stock options, plus retirement programs are the fringe benefits.

Contact Chuck Anderson, Midland Hilton, Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, April 28,29, and 30, for appointment, 683-6131.

This past week, a reception hosted by the Board of Directors of Marathon for the Oil industry and other community business leaders, brought to mind again how important this ailing industry is to our own local economics. Every personal, corporate or commercial balance sheet in Midland is directly affected by the price of oil.
Todays problems don't just belong to "Big Oil" or "Independents" but to every one of us. And the problems becomes a National crisis when the concerns of national security, supply and demand, and balance of payments are considered.
What can we as individuals do to help our oil industry?
Some suggestions: 1. Become as informed as possible on the problems.
2. Speak up in the voting booth, support those candidates qualified to work on the behalf of the oil industry.
3. Contact key incumbants to enlist their assistance.
4. Join the Permian Basin Petroleum Association.
I am sure many of you have better answers than I and I hope you will share them with me.
