Widowed, Orphaned by Rockne Crash

Knute Rockne may have been a miracle man to countless thousands of football fans, but he was something even greater — a loving husband and father — to Mrs. Bonnie Rockne and the four Rockne children, shown above, now widowed and orphaned. Billy, right, and Knute, Jr., below, are already following in their dad's footsteps, as evinced by these pictures taken at the Fembroke school in Kansas City. Jack center of the lower group, is only a little more than four, but his punting style is nearly perfect. Golden-haired Mary Jeanne, left below, liked nothing better than to play the Notre Dame "Victory March" on the piano while her dad listened.

THIRD ARREST IN PATROLMAN SLAYING NEAR

OMAHA, Neb., April 8.—Arrest of the third of a trio of youths implicated in the fatal shooting of Patrolman James Sullivan during a holdup was expected today at Houston, Texas, according to Detective Chief Paul Sutton.

Two—Eddie Jedlicka, 20, and his brother, Antin, 19—were in custody here today. The former confessed, Chief Sutton said, that he fired most of the 17 shots while his brother admitted driving the car used in the robbery.

DAUGHTER, 5, SEES DALLAS HOME TRAGEDY

DALLAS, April 8.—Barbara Jean Love, 5, this morning saw her father, C. W. Love, shoot her mother, Mrs. Eva Love, through the jaw and then shoot himself in the temple. He died later. Doctors said that Mrs. Love may recover.

Barbara Jean was sick in bed and couldn't tell officers a great deal, but Billy, her 10-year-old brother, explained that her parents had been arguing for a week about a $550 bonus check which his father cashed two weeks ago. After cashing the check the father disappeared for 10 days and returned with only a bottle of liquor, the boy said.

"Mamma wanted papa to give her some of the money but he went off when he got it and didn't give her any," said Billy. "Papa came home broke and it made mamma mad and she fussed at him. This morning they were quarrelling when I left for school."

LAMB HAS SHAMROCK

Suits May Develop in Rockne Insurance

SOUTH BEND, Ind., April 9.—Knute Rockne left his entire estate to his widow and four children, Mrs. Rockne and the American Trust company, were named as joint administrators of the estate when the will was filed in probate court here yesterday.

Vitus E. Jones, attorney for the estate, characterized the estate as "very modest," outside of insurance which has been placed as between $100,000 and $125,000.

A suit may develop over some of the insurance policies with double indemnity clauses because Rockne was killed in an airplane accident.

NEW GAS WELL IS BROUGHT IN NORTH OF HERE

A new gas well was added to the gas field northwest of Cisco yesterday when the Phillips Groves No. 1 was brought in for a guaged flow of 6,764,000 cubic feet daily.

The well has been shut in.

It is located two locations north by one west of the Lone Star Groves No. 1, which last summer came in for 62,000,000 feet of gas daily as the largest gas well in the section. The wells are about two and one-half miles north by west of Lake Cisco.

Total depth of the Phillips is 3,578 feet, with the formation penetrated 14 feet.

NEW LAND IS PURCHASED FOR CEMETERY

The city commission, at a meeting at 1 o'clock this afternoon, attended by the commissioners-elect, Joe Clements and J. T. Elliott, voted to purchase from F. E. Harrell and heirs, ten acres of land adjacent to the city limits to add to the Oakwood cemetery, at a cost of $2,250.

Commi'rs Fee, Berry and Paschall voted favorably and McCrea and Burnett against.

The commission formally accepted the new pump house at Lake Cisco from the Atlas Const. Co. of Cisco.

Other routine business was attended to.

Warning Issued To Oil Buyers

EL PASO, April 9. — If you have that urge to get rich quick by buying oil stock, Ed Hodge, manager of the Business Men's Protective association, offers some standing advice as to what one should know before investing.

"The standing advice, of course, is to investigate before investing," Hodge said.

"You should know the principals of the company, their previous experience and record.

"Location of the well, geological formation, acre spacing, and drainage area also are needed things to know. The number of wells on the promoter's tract, and on surrounding acreage are indications of what is in the field.

"The estimated average of recoverable production and the effect of the proration schedule also are important items.

"The price asked for units should be compared with prices quoted in the producing area, and marketability are important, as well as whether the unit offered involves joint liability of investors."

FORGOT HIS HOTEL

WORCHESTER Mass., April 9.—James Lyons of Easthampton registered at a Worcester hotel. Then he went out. Then he forgot what hotel he was stopping at and appealed to police. They located his name on the register.

ROTARY CLUB NOMINATING NEW OFFICERS

Nomination of new officers to be elected four weeks hence was begun today at the meeting of the Cisco Rotary club. Nominations will be opened again next week, it was stated.

Miss Dorothy McDonald entertained the club with two vocal solos accompanied by Mrs. S. E. Hittson. Haywood Kinsey, a member of the Cisco high schoo. debating team which won the county interscholastic league meet and last night defeated the Haskell team at Haskell, was scheduled to have been presented in a discussion of the negative side of the question which is the subject for debate in the Interscholastic league contests this season. He asked to be permitted to postpone his address, however, due to the shortness of time remaining. Last week his colleague, Billy Murray, appeared before the club in a discussion of the affirmative side of the question which favors abolition of the jury system of trial.

O. J. Russell had charge of the program.

Phillip Pettit, chairman of the clean-up committee of the Rotary club asked instructions from the club as to how this committee should proceed with its part in the city-wide clean-up campaign. H. S. Drumwright and L. B. Campbell are on the committee with him.

After some discussion Supt. R. N. Cluck, of the public schools, offered to release 50 high school boys from certain classes to be employed under the direction of the club in cleaning up vacant lots, provided enough trucks to haul away the collected rubbish and keep the boys employed, were placed at the disposal of the committee. J. C. McAfee, George Fee and Edward Lee each agreed to donate the use of a truck. The club has been given the task of cleaning D avenue and vacant lots of accumulated rubbish.

Ranger Team Comes Here Sunday P. M.

The Ranger Lone Star baseball team, a strong independent unit, will supply the opposition for the Cisco Red Sox at Chesley diamond Sunday afternoon at 3:30. The Cisco club, playing two gmaes, has won two, and will try to keep its perfect record intact at the expense of the visitors.

"Yesterday's Cisco Daily News was of much interest to me when I noticed a picture of an old boyhood friend of mine listed in connection with the recent earthquake in Nicaragua and relief work being done by the United States forces located there," said P. P. Shepard, manager of the West Texas Utilities Co. Mr. Shepard referred to the picture of Mathew E. Hanna, United States minister to that country, who is cooperating with relief forces.

"We were boys in Ohio together and taught school in adjoining districts. Elton, as we called him, however chose a military career and went to West Point. I taught school for a number of years and then drifted into the utilities business, lost sight of Elton, but I recognized his picture yesterday despite the years that have left their mark on his face as well as on mine."

Mr. Shepard expressed a thought common to all of us when he said that he was glad to hear or read of the friends of long ago.

9-Room Residence Destroyed by Fire

A 9-room, vacant residence at 10th street and F avenue was practically destroyed by fire early this morning. The house had been vacant for some time.

Origin of the fire was not determined. The alarm was sounded at 1 a. m.

Cisco Zoo Praised by Experts Here on Visit of Inspection Yesterday

A large city would give a great sum for a site such as that of the Cisco municipal zoo, declared two leading zoological experts who were here for two or more hours yesterday inspecting the local menagerie. They were Hans Nagal, head keeper of the Houston zoological gardens and H. V. Killough, head keeper of the Fort Worth zoological gardens.

There is no limit to the possibilities they said. The visitors, who are inspecting zoos over a large area, said that the Cisco zoo has the finest layout in the country, expressing themselves very favorably of the cages constructed in the natural rock, the pens for the deer and complimented Keeper John McCluskey highly upon the condition in which the animals have been kept. The site so arranged that tiers of cages with natural dens for the animals can be constructed one above another, impressed the visitors. "Cisco has a natural site which large cities not so blessed spend millions to obtain through artifical construction," they pointed out.

The men told Dr. Charles Hale, superintendent who was host for them during the inspection, that the Cisco zoo rates high, particularly considering the size of the town.

Cisco Lad Letters at Wentworth School

LEXINGTON, Missouri, April 9.—Cadet Wesley Lee Harrell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Harrell, Cisco, Texas, received his letter as a member of the Wentworth Military Academy swimming team here this week.

Cadet Harrell's skill in the free-style dashes made him a valuable member of the Wentworth tank team during the past season, according to Capt. J. R. Foster, coach.

EAST TEXAS OIL COUNTIES WANT SOLON

AUSTIN, April 9.—Senators from east Texas oil field counties gave notice today that unless those counties are given a congressman of their own in the redistricting law to be passed at this session there will be no such law passed.

Sen. Julian Greer, of Athens, author of the senate bill giving the counties a separate district, was met with protest and demand for postponement when he called for action on the measure today.

10 CONVICTED OF VAGRANCY IN CITY COURT

"California here I come," was the burden of the defense against vagrancy charges facing ten prisoners at the dock of the city court this morning. The motley crew, the largest cash resource of any of which was approximately $6 were collected during the rounds of the city night patrol last night and early this morning.

Not all were en route to California however. One youngster, 17 years of age, claimed to have three jobs waiting him at Kilgore and another was beating his way back to Dallas. None of them could produce any evidence that employment was beckoning them a warm welcome and the corporation court ground out a 100 per cent conviction record. "Five dollars and costs" with the stipulation that those who could get sufficient money to pay their way to the alleged jobs or back to their homes would be permitted to go in peace.

All of the group were young.

One or two more favored with cash denied that they were depending upon a charitable public to provide them with necessities. One, having six dollars said that he had enough money. The mayor pointed out that he was 1,500 miles from California. "How far can you walk in a day?" The accused opined that he could do 38 miles. "Make it 40, and how long will it take you to walk to California?" Mental arithmetic produced 40 days as about the time required. "Fifteen cents a day to eat on," said the mayor. "You've got to depend on the public to support you and transport you. You'd better stayed at home among friends."

60-GAL. STILL IS CAPTURED BY OFFICERS

A 60 gallon still, in operation, and 300 gallons of mash were confiscated by Sheriff Virge Foster, Constable R. L. Wilson and Deputy Sheriff Steel Hill who descended upon a location two miles northeast of Sabanno yesterday afternoon.

Operators warned by sounds of blows upon a plow point at a farm house some distance away, made good their escape from the spot, and no arrests were made.

LETTER GIVES CLUE IN DEATH OF SHOP GIRL

SAN FRANCISCO, April 9.— The letters of a man signing himself "Le Gros Baboon" gave police their only clue today in the death of Mrs. Denise J. Allen, 30, onetime Paris mannequin and later a San Francisco shop girl.

Piecing together bits of evidence found in her room where her body was lying face down on the floor, detectives pictured her dying just as the strains of Easter sunrise services floated in at her window from Mt. Davidson last Sunday.

The "Baboon" wrote:

"Querida mia; if you have recovered from the effects of my unkindness this morning and are no longer feeling the effects so acutely I would again invite you to make the little journey."

NOTED LEADER FALLS VICTIM TO PNEUMONIA

AIKEN, S. C., April 9.—Nicholas Longworth, speaker of the house of representatives in the 69th, 70th and 71st congresses died today.

Death came within two days after Longworth's serious illness with pneumonia had become known.

The speaker, a powerful figure in the republican party and beloved by political friend and foe alike, was stricken while a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James F. Curtis at this winter resort.

Tuesday night his illness was diagnosed as pneumonia and Mrs. Longworth, "Princess Alice Roosevelt," was summoned from Washington.

For a time the doctors were hopeful but soon their bulletins became increasingly alarming.

At 10:52 a. m today Dr. Robert H. Wilds, chief of the medical staff attending Longworth, came to a window in the Curtis old colonial mansion. He raised his hand in one slow gesture to the waiting newspapermen. It was a signal to the world that the speaker of the United States house of representatives was dead.

FUNERAL TO BE HELD SATURDAY

WASHINGTON, April 9.—Funeral services for Speaker Nicholas Longworth will be held at his Cincinnati home at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon, it was announced at the speaker's office today, following a telephone call from Mrs. Longworth at Aiken.

HOOVER WILL ATTEND.

WASHINGTON, April 9.—President Hoover will attend the funeral of Speaker Nicholas Longworth at Cincinnati Saturday, it was announced at the white house today.

SISTER IS ILL.

TUNIS, Africa, April 9. — The Countess de Chambrun, sister of Nicholas Longworth was critically ill today with bronchitis. She had not been informed of her brother's fatal illness.

WIFE AT HIS BEDSIDE.

AIKEN, S. C., April 9.—Nicholas Longworth, speaker of the house, was on the brink of death today, Alice Roosevelt Longworth was at his bedside.

Dr. Robert H. Wilds, physician in charge at the James F. Curtis home where Longworth is suffering from pneumonia, told newspapers today that he felt death was only a matter of hours.

Discussing his patient after a night-long virgil in which he alternated with Dr. Thomas G. Brooks, Wilds explained he had not given up hope "because physicians never do that." But he added he could not see how Longworth could survive.

Wilds said a formal bulletin would be issued at 9 o'clock this morning but that it merely would say Longworth's condition was unchanged from the "extremely unfavorable" condition reported last night.

CISCO GOLFERS MEET MINERAL WELLS SUNDAY

The Cisco Country club golf team will be entertained by the Mineral Wells club at Mineral Wells Sunday afternoon in an official Oil Belt association match.

Twenty-seven members of the country club team have qualified, Capt. O. J. Russell said, and a large group is expected to go to Mineral Wells for the match. Play is slated to begin at 1 p. m.

Broadway Racketeer Is Charged in Slaying of Red-Haired Vivian Gordon

NEW YORK, April 9. — Harry Stein, 32, known to police as a Broadway racketeer, dope peddler and petty thief, was charged today with the murder of Vivian Gordon.

The charges were placed against him after police had thoroughly questioned him on the strange slaying of the red-haired woman who apparently made a lucrative living by preying on wealthy men at the edge of the underworld.

Stein and three other men were arrested last night and questioned all night long. Finally this morning police announced that the formal charge of murder had been placed against Stein and that the three other men were held as material witnesses.

Robbery was the motive of the slaying, police said.

Cermak Moves Into Chicago City Hall

GASOLINE KNOCKS OUT ELECTRICITY.

This is a fast moving age and a fast moving civilization. Interurbans between Fort Worth and Cleburne will be replaced by bus service if the Texas railroad commission approves an application filed by the Northern Texas Traction company. Interurban service between the two municipalities will be discontinued after April 30 because of decrease in patronage. A. F. Townsend of Fort Worth is the president of the traction company. He had made the announcement that the company has no plan for disposing of the to-be abandoned interurban tracks; that the line has been operated at a loss for several years; that in the event his people are granted permission to operate buses it will be possible to put them on before the interurbans are taken off; that the interurbans have not taken in sufficient revenue to pay the day-to-day cost of operation which includes trainmen's wages.

This is the story of the slump in revenues; in 1913 the first year of full operation interurbans on the Cleburne line carried 429,000 passengers. In 1920 at the peak of prosperity in the transportation industry it carried 819,000 passengers. In 1930 a total of only 227,000 passengers were handled on the line. Speaking of the original investment it totaled a sum greater than a million dollars. There was a time when the Dallas-Fort Worth interurban was the best paying short line in the United States. Now the interurbans and the buses divide the patronage. There are many transportation problems to be solved as well as industrial and agricultural problems in this republic.

Regardless of their vital importance to the well-being of all the people the right-wingers and the left-wingers in the two big political camps of America are doing their level best to sidetrack intensely vital issues and make prohibition paramount in the campaigning of the coming year.

"GREATEST REFINING AREA IN THE WORLD"

"Patilo Higgins, who gave the best part of his life in attempting to produce oil from Spindle Top, realized little from his efforts while others gambled and made millions," writes Col. Dabney White in his graphic story of Spindle Top and the wild craze it created in the petroleum world. Crude sold at 2 cents a barrel when the rushing tide of black gold spouted. A new Spindletop was brought in after the flush wells had exhausted their wealth. This Dabney White comment should interest those who are not aware of fast growing Gulf port cities and their industries.

"There are here still many doers and dreamers. No one can forecast what they may do tomorrow. A day dreamer, Arthur Stillwell, was inspired by a vision of a great inland port being created on the Texas seacoast near here. Port Arthur, the greatest oil refining area in the world, resulted from him dreaming dreams and seeing visions."

And now East Texas has the call.

There are new oil cities. They jump up like "Jack, the Beanstalk" on his travels. East Texas landowners who were poverty stricken not long ago are dreaming of the millions that may flow in their direction. Harry F. Sinclair pronounced the East Texas discovery potentially the greatest oil bearing section of the southwest. Dallas is putting forth gigantic efforts to be the "Oil City" of East Texas, but there are builders closer to the fields who are predicting that there will be another Tulsa when petroleum, speaking of price, comes back to its own.

MOONSHINE ON THE MISSISSIPPI

Natl. Prohibition Director Thomas A. Woodcock has announced plans for co-operation of Arkansas and Tennessee prohibition agents "to break up what he describes as large-scale moonshining operations on the Mississippi." His agents have made the alarming discovery that Texas, Arkansas and many other states below the line, including Missouri, are infested with makers of the liquid stuff that the moonshiners are said to exchange for cold cash. Much of the liquor made on the Mississippi area flows into Memphis where the distributors do business. St. Louis is another spot where the flow is very large and as for Kansas and Oklahoma Col. Woodcock said he had been enthusiastically received in those states, adding "that the people seem to like prohibition there."

It would be well for him to feel the dry pulse of Col. William H. Murray who smells whisky everywhere and has been saturated with juicy stories concerning the morality of the rising generation. As a matter of fact of record the rising generation is as well equipped with the virtuous trait [illegible] and great-grandfathers were in the "good old gone-forever days."

OTHER OPINIONS

DISAPPEARING FARMS.

Every year of normal rainfall the United States loses $200,000,000 by soil erosion, an amount almost equal to the value of fertilizers applied annually to farm soil.

Delving into this matter of soil wastage, one finds big figures. For instance, more than half a billion tons of soil are carried out into the ocean every year by the rivers of America. This is more earth by a considerable margin than was moved in digging the Panama Canal.

According to government figures, fully 10,000,000 acres of once fertile land, more than the combined areas of Maryland and Delaware, have been made barren by water running over slopes stripped of their protective vegetation.

Earth washed into the ocean, river beds and swamps is rich top soil, without which no crop can have healthy growth. Geologists estimate that nearly half of Louisiana once lay hundreds of miles up the Mississippi Valley and its tributaries as the fertile top soil of thousands of thousands of acres of good farming land.

The United States is letting its soil deteriorate through wasteful processes, and failure to protect fields from erosion is one of the most wasteful. Still rich in virgin soil, the country has not awakened to the danger threatening its arable lands.

Reforestation, flood control, regulated grazing and careful farming methods will save the soil and save the tillers of the soil much worry and money.—Paris News.

Did You Ever Stop to Think?

By EDSON R. WAITE
Shawnee, Oklahoma.

That no one would think of investing in or doing business on a large, or even moderate scale, in any section without first making a serious investigation as to the political, financial and business condition of the section interested in, and nowadays they especially look at the political situation.

More and more the politicians are trying to dictate to private business what they shall do, what they shall sell, by over taxation, by over regulation, and any means to chase capital to cover. Investors are putting their money in foreign securities instead of putting their money into industries that use local material and make payrolls so needed in every community.

Organized politicians raise cain with unorganized business.

Some of our politicians should have a change of heart. Capital comes where it is invited and stays where it is treated fairly.

No one wants to invest heavily in sections where shifting political and economic conditions are always linked up with politicians who exercise tremendous influence to put them out of business.

Without the wage earners, they would go back to the days of long ago when the people raised only enough for their own consumption and what they could trade with their neighbors. What this country needs is more pay-rolls and less politicians.

TEXAS TOPICS

By POLITICAL ANALYST

AUSTIN, April 9.—One bill offered late in the session, promised to have a bearing on the governor's race of future political campaigns.

Even though its purpose was declared to be a back-handed effort to push through emergency tax measures, the bill threatened to come into campaigns of later years, with just its bald words left then for its possible effect.

The bill is by Senator Walter C. Woodward of Coleman. It proposes, in the absence of raising new taxes to meet school needs simply to exclude 150,000 children from the free schools.

It would raise the present six-year minimum age of children in schools to seven years. It would repeal the hard-fought effort of educators to lower the age limit, as attained two years ago.

Its purpose, Senator Woodward said, was, if passed, to protect the rest of the school children against any reduction in the amount of money per scholar to be received from the state. Its more immediate effect, he made clear in a statement, was to try to force through a cigar and cigaret or other tax bill to raise $5,000,000 school revenues a year.

Senator Woodward said he did not believe it would work any hardship.

Senator Clint C. Small, in opposing the abolition of the state ad valorem tax, told the senate he thought the Woodward bill would help some to solve the tax dilemma.

Senator Small was a candidate for governor last year. Senator Woodward was recognized as a future prospective candidate for governor, either next year or as soon as Governor Ross S. Sterling, whom he helped elect, has finished his term or terms.

Future opponents, taking this bill as campaign thunder to fight Senator Woodward, would translate it into such political terms as:

"Aha, listen to this, Sen. Woodward who wants to be governor, instead of taxing these million-dollar monopolies, to provide money for the schools, offered a bill to run 150,000 children out of the schools, so there wouldn't have to be any new taxes."

And with less demagoguery, it will be seriously contended that the six-year school age was won after a long and hard fight, and that the Woodward bill, if enacted, would have been a serious backset for the cause of education.

Treatises by school people will be read to show that the modern science of education demands that the schooling start, not at seven years or at six years, but back in the cradle.

The fact that his bill specifically says [illegible] an emergency bill, and not as a policy of going back to the seven-year age limit naturally would be overlooked by those who would make political capital out of such a bill.

If Senator Woodward should not be in the governor's race himself the unique bill still could be impleaded on the affirmative issue of some candidate to repeal it.

MISS SHEARER HIGH SPOT ON FILM PROGRAM

Norma Shearer is starred in "Strangers May Kiss," which will open Sunday at the Palace theatre as her latest Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer offering.

This picture marks the return to the screen of the delightful star after an absence of more than six months. It is of unusual interest because it again has her as the heroine of a best-selling novel from the pen of Ursula Parrott, popular author, whose first book provided the story for "The Divorcee."

Won Signal Honor

This is the talkie in which Miss Shearer won the 1930 award of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences for the outstanding performance of the year.

The new role is an even more daring one than that of the previous picture and the characterization is one of glamour and smart sophistication. Miss Shearer's best forte on the talking screen.

George Fitzmaurice, master of Continental story telling, directed the picture from the adaption by John Meehan of the novel. Meehan filled a similar capacity in the production of "The Divorcee". Fitzmaurice's best-known films are "Dark Angel" and "The Devil to Pay." He is one of the most artistic directors in the industry and is credited with an unusually skillful treatment of delicate situations.

Two of the screen's most popular leading men share masculine honors in the sparkling production, Robert Montgomery and Neil Hamilton. Montgomery played with Miss Shearer in "Their Own Desire" and "The Divorcee" and recently was featured in "Inspiration" and "The Easiest Way". Hamilton is best known for his remarkable performance in "The Dawn Patrol."

An unusually imposing cast appears in supporting roles. Marjorie Rambeau, who last was seen in "Min and Bill," plays the part of Miss Shearer's confidante. Irene Rich is the trusting wife who ends her life when she discovers her husband's infidelity. Hale Hamilton is the husband in the case and Jed Prouty is Miss Rambeau's "boy friend." Conchita Montenegro, exotic Spanish dancer, plays her first English-speaking role and Albert Conti is the Spaniard who is enamored of the heroine.

Sophisticated Plot

The story concerns Lisbeth, a very modern young woman who takes romance as she finds it, attaching herself to a globe-trotting journalist without benefit of clergy. Hamilton is the roving chap and when he finds her likewise accepting favors of other men he casts her off, the double-standard not including the woman whose love he holds. Montgomery is the suave youth, always understanding and ever ready to marry Lisbeth when the tires of the other chap. In the end the true lovers get together, both having learned a bitter lesson in a bitter world.

FOR SALE
A BABY!

Think of the storm of indignation such a sign or advertisement would arouse. You probably will never see it. You do read notices daily that call attention to the sale of furniture, automobiles, real estate, etc., to satisfy a claim for non-payment of the account. These circumstances are not pleasant but they are legal. They represent the last step in a transaction in which the individual securing the merchandise and service failed to complete his or her obligation to pay for it.

There are hundreds of infants (and some young folks) in this community whose entrance fee into this world has not yet been paid for. The physicians who answer calls at all hours of the night to give devoted service in these cases make many sacrifices in both time and money. They answer the anxious call and give unspairingly of their skill, and time until the emergency has passed and a proud Dad and happy mother are joyfully telling friends of their happiness.

Then what? The physician serves until his attention is no longer required on the case but he is equally busy with others. Time passes and he does not find time to send a statement or a collector. He knows he should, but he feels that to do so would take time that is urgently needed elsewhere.

Does the father appreciate just what his friend the physician has meant to him? In a vague way, yes. But there are many who do not show even as much interest in paying for the service rendered as they do in their monthly garage bill.

Is this because the garage man can reclaim the car and offer it for sale? Perhaps not, but the fact remains that a service that helps men and women enjoy God's greatest blessing is left unpaid, for much longer periods, than any other accounts are allowed to run.

No group of men [illegible] than our physicians. When you call a regular, recognized M. D. you know you are to have the most intelligent and conscientious service nearly a score of years of experience can provide. You know you will be treated fairly and the least you can do is pay the small fee promptly.

Those who can, should pay cash and others should be fair enough to discuss conditions frankly with their physician and make some definite arrangements. To do less is to encourage a higher rate of fees and perhaps a plan which will mean more and more physicians will adopt a cash basis plan, as many other professions and institutions have done.

Precautions in the Use of Canned Goods.

o be sure that food is whole- e, inspect carefully before using. member, the person opening the can is responsible to those eating the product.

Before Opening

Tin cans: Both ends should be flat or slightly curved inward. Neither end should bulge or snap back when pressed. All seams should be tight and clean with no traces of leaks.

Glass jars: The cover, if metal should be firm and flat or curved slightly inward. There should be no signs of leakage around the rubber ring or elsewhere.

When Opened.

The contents should appear sound, normal in color, and the liquid free from unusual cloudiness. As the can is being opened notice whether there is an outrush of air or spurting of the liquid. These indicate spoilage. If the air sucks inward, this is a good sign and shows that the vacuum seal has not been broken.

Smell the contents at once. The odor should be characteristic of the product. Any "off" odor probably indicates spoilage. Be sure that the person opening canned goods is able to smell.

Look at the contents carefully to see whether they appear sound and natural in color and texture.

If the can is tin, notice the appearance of the inside. It should be fairly clean and bright, not extensively blackened or corroded.

Be absolutely sure, do not taste canned non-acid vegetables and meats before boiling.

Boil non-acid vegetables and meats ten minutes in an open vessel shortly before using even though there is no sign of spoilage.

Boiling destroys the toxin or poison produced by certain bacteria but does not destroy the bacteria. In case the liquid on the can is sufficient to cover the products, add boiling water and boil for ten minutes. Smell the hot food carefully because heating sometimes brings out odors not noticed in cold canned food.

Destroy by burning all food showing any sign of spoilage either by appearance of odor. Take no chances.

Boiling destroys toxin but does not destroy bacteria. Don't bury spoiled products even after boiling because the bacteria continues to thrive in the soil. Don't feed spoiled products to animals even after boiling because if it is not eaten immediately there is always danger that in massed food more of the toxin may be formed. Though the bacteria present may not harm the animal it would probably pollute the soil through the excretions of the animal.

If the foregoing instructions are followed, there need be no fear of botulism or other poisoning from canned foods.

HELPFUL HINTS ARE GIVEN ON FERTILIZERS

STEPHENVILLE, April 9.—In a six year program of using commercial fertilizers on the John Tarleton college farm, Neal Gearreald, director of the Tarleton school of agriculture, declared that, aside from terracing, the use of fertilizers has been the greatest factor in profitable crop production on the farm.

Professor Gearreald gives some very helpful hints on the best ways of using the different fertilizers, citing its use on the 500-acre college farm. But it should not be construed by Texas farmers that these methods are best suited for their particular soil. The type of soil and the substance it needs are controlling factors in choosing the fertilizer that will produce the best results. The fertilizer must be adapted to the soil. Any county agent or fertilizer salesman can inspect the soil and determine the proper type of fertilizer that it is best adapted to. Under no conditions should a farmer purchase and use fertilizer unless he is reasonably sure that it has the proper substance for his land. Fertilizer improperly used is a useless expense. Use it properly and profitable results will be realized in a very short time.

These two things should be remembered when using fertilizer: The kind of crop being grown and the cropping system being followed determine the fertilizer needs of crops fully as much as does the soil type. Where the soil is farmed without livestock, and no manure or other organic matter returned to the land, a complete fertilizer is more certain to bring satisfactory results than any other treatment.

The use of fertilizer on the John Tarleton College farm has been highly successful, and Professor Gearreald says that production on all farms in Texas can be increased by the proper use of fertilizer. Terraced land, land where the moisture is conserved, is much better adapted and will respond much quicker to fertilizer than will un-terraced land. The college farm is terraced and other scientific methods of farming are in use, and the use of fertilizer has proved to be valuable in all crops.

The benefits to be secured from the use of commercial fertilizer may be greatly increased by the addition of from 3 to 6 tons of barnyard manure per acre. Such organic matter increases the water holding capacity of the soil; it makes the soil warm because of the increased air holding capacity; it improves the physical condition of the soil, furnishing food for soil bacteria — thus giving an increase in the minute organisms which increase the productivity of the land.

With the fine season all over the farming belts of Texas, this is an ideal year for successful use of fertilizer, Professor Gearreald says.

FOOLED FRIENDS

FALLON, Nev., April 9. — Believed for years by old friends to have been virtually penniless, Silverino Penales, veteran Nevada prospector who died recently, was found to have left $50,000 in cash and marketable securities. The wealth was found in a safe deposit box rented by Penales in a Fallon bank.

THIS WOMAN IN 4 WEEKS LOST 17 POUNDS OF FAT

Here's a letter written October 21, 1929, by Mrs. Fred Barringer of Lewistown, Montana, that ought to be read by every overweight woman in America.

Gentlemen: I started taking Kruschen every morning as directed as I was very much overweight and wanted to reduce.

I had tried going on a diet but would get so hungry that my diet would not last long, so I decided to give "Kruschen Salts" a fair trial. The day I started to take them I weighed 256 lbs., and at present, which has been just four weeks, I weigh 239 lbs. And I must say I feel better in every way, besides looking much better.

May all large people, both men and women, who want to reduce in an easy way, give Kruschen Salts a fair trial. I am sure it will convince anyone.

A bottle of Kruschen Salts that lasts four weeks costs but 85c at any drug store in America. Take one half teaspoon in a glass of hot water before breakfast every morning. To help reduce swiftly cut out pastry and fatty meats and go light on potatoes, butter, cream and sugar.

The Kruschen way is the safe way to reduce—Try one bottle and if not joyfully satisfied — money back. For sale by Moore Drug Co., and Dean Drug Co.—Adv.

Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Feightner and children moved Wednesday from the Mid-Kansas camp to Eliasville where Mr. Feightner will continue working for the Mid-Kansas Co. The Feightners have lived here since "Boom Days" and have been very active workers in the lodges, clubs and Church of Christ and they will be greatly missed by their many friends all of whom wish for them continued success and happiness in their new home.

Mrs. Charles Richardson and Mrs. T. J. Patterson drove to Ranger Monday to visit Mrs. Cecil Hilliard who had undergone an operation at the West Texas Clinic hospital.

J. E. Hecter spent Sunday with his mother at Graham.

"Stunt Night" was the attraction at the high school Friday night when the auditorium, balcony and every available space was filled with grown folks and children interested in seeing the "Stunts" put on by the grades and classes of the school and by the Eastern Star, "21" Study club and Methodist Missionary Society. Each stunt was so good that it was difficult for the judges to award the prizes but they agreed that the sophomores deserved first prize on their "Style Show" of colored beauties. Second prize was given to the Methodist Missionary Society on their playet "A Model Missionary Society" and third place was given to the little rhythm band which had been instructed by Mrs. M. H. Carr. The P. T. A. sponsored the entertainment and the amount from ticket sale was $50.50 most of which goes to pay balance on sweaters for football players. The sweaters were given to the boys 10 days ago but some of the money for them was borrowed.

MR. BURNETT EXTENDS THANKS

I desire to thank my many supporters for their assistance during my campaign for mayor. I also appreciate the excellent work of the supervisors, Messrs. Leon Cagle and W. Rasmussen and the splendid vote which I received from the WHITE citizenship of our town who rallied in such large numbers to my support.

Very repsectfully,
J. R. BURNETT.

MAD MARRIAGE

by LAURA LOU BROOKMAN Author of "HEART HUNGRY," etc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Gypsy McBride, 19-year-old typ- in a New York office, marries Wallace, the day after she after she meets him at the me of her wealthy cousin, Anne wbridge. Gypsy has been jilted Alan Crosby, back from a year a half in Paris, and Wallace's ncee has just broken their en- ement. There is no romance in union. Wallace is a young law- . They go to his home in Forest y where his relatives snub psy.

Jim undertakes the defense of na Roberts, accused of murder- her employer, Dr. Fowler. The e is sensational with circum- ntial evidence strongly against girl and Gypsy becomes deep- interested. On impulse she goes see Mrs. Fowler, widow of the tim, and finds her hysterical er her adopted son's illness. The man admits she shot her hus- nd to save the child's life. Gypsy rsuades her to go to Jim and nfess. Later at home she waits tlessly for a telephone message m Jim.

W GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXX

"Yes, Jim, what is it?" Gypsy ed impatiently. She held the lephone receiver tightly against r ear but the voice across the e was jumbled and indistinct. What is it? I can't hear you!"

There was a pause.

"Hear me better now?" Jim ed.

"Yes."

"Mrs. Fowler's confessed."

"What?"

"I said Mrs. Fowler's confessed killed her husband. Came down e this morning and told me the le story. She says she did it to e the boy's life. The woman's complete wreck."

"But what about Nina?"

"She's acquitted. That's what I lled you about. Would it be all ht to send her out to the house? don't want the reporters to get other chance at her and if she s to that place where she med that's what will happen."

"Why, of course. Where is she ?"

"Here in my office. If you think all right I'll bring her out."

"Bring her," Gypsy said. "Lunch ll be ready when you get here." She left the telephone for a sty consultation with the cook. psy was upstairs putting out sh linen in the guest room when heard the front door open. She rried down.

Nina Roberts was sitting in the chair in the living room. Jim ned as Gypsy entered. "Well," said, grinning, "we won!"

"Oh, I'm so glad! I was so wor- d until you telephoned. Nina— 't it wonderful?"

The girl had been crying. She ched her handkerchief to her es. "It's fine of you to let me me here, Mrs. Wallace," she said. "Why, we're glad to have you. course. Would you like to go stairs now or shall we have ch first?"

"I—I think I'd like to go up- airs."

Gypsy led the way. The guest om was not large but it had ndant sunshine. The walls re green and cream colored and e taffeta drapes were apricot.

"The bath is through here." psy said, opening a door. "I pe you'll find everything to ake you comfortable. There's wder here and cold cream if you nt it. I'll leave you now if you n't mind. I'm dying to have Jim ll me everything that happened."

Nina stood in the middle of the om, looking about. She seemed wildered.

At the door Gypsy hesitated. Luncheon will be ready whenever u come down," she said. Then e went out and hurried down the airs.

Jim was not in the living room. e glanced into the library and w him standing with his back to- ard her.

"Oh, Jim," the girl began as she ent toward him. "Tell me what ppened. It must have been terri- y exciting! I want to know all out it!"

Jim swung around. "Exciting!" he exclaimed. "It was the most incredible thing I ever saw in my life! Bennet was just about to begin summing up the case. I didn't want to leave the courtroom. The message they handed me said a woman was waiting and that she had something important to tell me. I thought it was a mistake and then—well, it was the merest luck in the world that I went to see her. When I saw her face of course I knew who it was. Lord—what a morning!"

"But what did she tell you?"

"Well, for a while it didn't sound believable, but it must be true. The woman was in torment. At first she was so incoherent I couldn't make heads or tails of what she said. Kept begging me to help her and said she did it for Bobby's sake. Then she grew a little quiter and I got the story. Mrs. Fowler says she came to her husband's office shortly before six o'clock. She had the boy with her. She opened the door and went in. There was no one there except Fowler. It seems they'd been quarreling for weeks about the child. When Fowler saw the boy he was angry. He'd told her that morning she had to send Bobby away. The child wasn't adopted. They took him nearly a year ago from a home but adoption papers weren't signed. Mrs. Fowler said she came to the office to tell her husband that if Bobby went she was going too.

"I guess the whole thing happened quickly. She says she told Fowler what she was going to do. Bobby was standing beside her. Suddenly the child ran toward the window. Fowler grabbed him. Mrs. Fowler says he had threatened several times to kill the boy. She thought he meant to do it then. She knew there was a revolver in the top drawer of her husband's desk and she reached for it. The woman swears she didn't intend to shoot. She saw her husband fall and dropped the gun. Then she picked up Bobby and ran for the stairway. She must have gone down one side at the same time Brophy, the policeman, ran up the other. How she got out of the building without being seen I don't know, but she walked to where her car was parked and drove home. She says she'd just got in the house when they telephoned from the hospital. Well — that's the story. While she was telling it she mumbled a lot about Bobby being sick and going to die. The kid is sick, all right. It seems she got the idea his illness is a sort of punishment to her for letting someone else pay the penalty of her crime. The woman was half-hysterical. Kept asking if I thought I could save her and begging me to help for Bobby's sake. Certainly is crazy about that kid all right!"

"The poor woman!" Gypsy exclaimed. "Where is she?"

"She's at home. Held up long enough to make a statement before the judge and then collapsd. Doctor and nurse went with her. Of course after that the acquittal was just a matter of form."

"What do you think will happen to Mrs. Fowler?"

"Oh, you can't tell. Trial may be put off a good while. There seems to be a big public reaction in her favor. I should think she'd get a light sentence."

Gypsy sat silent. It had been the most exciting morning of her life. To find the barrier between life and death so fragile, to face such tragedy left her exhausted. She gazed at Jim with new respect.

They heard Nina's footsteps on the stairs and Gypsy went to meet her.

"Luncheon's ready," she said. "Shall we go in?"

For two days Nina Roberts was a guest in the Wallace home. Gypsy saw to it that she had plenty to keep her occupied. Reporters were constantly telephoning but aside from the typed statement Jim gave out at his office Nina was not quoted in the newspapers.

There were household tasks which the girls shared together. Nina romped with Pat. Over the telephone Gypsy made arrangements with the woman who oper-

BOBBED HAIRED WOMEN NEEDN'T HAVE GRAY HAIR

Nature Will Keep Hair Youthful Shade Free Of Gray

LIFELESS GRAY HAIR REGAINS OLD BEAUTY

Everybody knows if color glands nd hair roots are healthy and ac- ve, the hair will continue indefi- itely a rich, natural color entirely ee of gray or streaked locks.

A doctor several years ago asked mself this question If I can imulate digestion, liver, heart, c., with a tonic, why not rub a imulating tonic into the scalp at will revive those inactive lands so nature in her own natu- way will resume putting plenty pigment into the hair tha[illegible] ey will then resume its iginal beautiful shades of youth gardless of user's age or previous ondition of their hair.

Remarkable Discovery.

The doctor's search led to endless xperiments. He didn't want a dye tint, and it, of course, must be armless even if a person used it any years. Under the name, Lea's air Tonic anyone may now purhase the tonic he finally perfected. or several years hairdressers, scatred over the country have been sing it. Results are so nice and gradual men used it too. It doesn't stain the scalp, and as a test one need only apply it to some small spot a few days to watch results. Shampoo as often as desired.

Most people are first induced to try Lea's for gray hair but it primarily was intended as a tonic to put the scalp, hair roots, pigment glands and hair in a healthy, vigorous condition. Of course with a healthy scalp comes a change in appearance of hair and a restoration of the natural shade of brown, red, black, auburn, or blonde. There are some three thousand shades of color in human hair—no dye expert can paint one's hair as exquisitely as nature. Lea's merely stimulates nature to renewed activity, puts nature back on the job, you might say, and the tint she imparts to your hair, and the scalp, roots and glands become healthy is natural. What is more beautiful or becoming than nature's own choice of shade to match your eyes, complexion and beauty?

If a reader desires to try Lea's Hair Tonic on guarantee of complete satisfaction they should get a bottle at drug store or pin dollar bill to this advertisement and send to Lea's Tonic Co., Brentwood, Md., for generous size bottle, full directions.

Experts cannot detect the use of Lea's Hair Tonic.—Adv.

Nina had announced that she wished to leave Forest City.

"Where do you want to go?" Gypsy asked.

"My sister's in Chicago," Nina said. "She's married. If I could get to Chicago I could stay with her until I get a job."

So it was agreed that Nina should go to Chicago. She had a pitifully small amount of money, though Jim's charge for his legal service was the merest fraction of the usual fee. The morning of the day on which Nina was to depart Gypsy knocked at the door of the guest room.

"May I come in?" she asked when Nina appeared.

"Of course."

Nina wore the rose negligee Gypsy had loaned her. She had been making the bed.

"I've got something for you," Gypsy said, smiling. "Two things." She took the other girl's hand and placed in it a small folded object. "Now you mustn't say you can't accept it. It's something I want to do—"

The golded object was a $20 bill.

"I can't take it," Nina protected, shaking her head. "It wouldn't be right after you've done so much for me." She started to hand the bill back but Gypsy refused it.

"Listen, Nina," she said, "it's my own money—money I earned before I was married. I'd rather do this with it than anything in the world! I want you to have it. Please keep it to remember me!"

"I won't ever forget you, Mrs. Wallace. I don't need anything to remember you by."

"But I do want you to have it. Then there's something else." From the pocket of her house dress Gypsy drew forth a soiled white envelope. There was nothing written on the envelope but Nina Roberts recognized it instantly.

"It hasn't been opened," Gypsy said softly.

The other girl's eyes met hers. It was one of those moments when Nina Roberts' face was unfathomable.

"If you'll hurry and dress now," Gypsy continued cheerfully, "we'll go out and see what we can find in the garden to brighten the living room table. There we might find enough of the white lilacs left."

"You've been so good to me," Nina said impulsively. "Oh, you'll never know what these days have meant to me!"

"Then I'm glad. It's little enough after what you've had to face. Well—shall we go cut the flowers?"

The garden, bathed in warm sunlight and the fragrance of the lilacs, bore promise of what summer was to bring. Dew sparkled on the fresh grass. The iris bore their gold and purple heads proudly. A few straggling tulips—remnants of Pat's mischief—added a splash of scarlet. Above, against a turquoise sky, the clouds drifted lazily. It was a perfect May morning—a day when nature seemed to outdo herself proclaimnig the joyousness of living.

They cut flowers to fill a pottery bowl for the table in the living room and a smaller vase for the dining room. Gypsy left Nina to arrange the bouquets while she telephoned the grocer. At one o'clock they had their luncheon and an hour later Jim arrived with the car to take Nina to the train. All three of them piled into the single seat. Nina's battered suitcase was stowed away in the rear.

They reached the station just five minutes before train time. No attention was paid to the girl in the gray suit and black hat who boarded the westbound train. Gypsy waved when she saw Nina through the car wi wdnndaoETAO through the car window and the other girl returned the signal. A brakeman shouted "All aboard!" Then the locomotive snorted and the train pulled from view.

Jim turned toward Gypsy. "You were good to the kid!" she said. There was gratitude in his voice and in the way that he looked at her.

The girl smiled, "I wanted to do all I could. There wasn't much."

She felt happier at that moment than she had ever been since her marriage. It was well to make the most of it, for the emotion was short-lived.

THE FORD SPRING TRUCK CARAVAN COMING TO CISCO

Announcement is made by the Blease Motor company local Ford dealer, of the coming of the Ford Spring Truck Caravan to Cisco on Saturday April 11th., the fleet will arrive at 12:30 p. m. and remain until 2 p. m.

The caravan will consist of a large number of different body types recently added to the Ford line, ranging from the beautiful Ambulance and Funeral Service Coech to the immense 157" wheel base panel delivery body that has a loading space of eleven feet.

The progress that the Ford Motor company has made in the commercial line is impressive when it is recalled that only a short time ago the company did not build a single commercial body and painted all jobs black. Now a Ford commercial unit may be had with fifty standard Ford bodies of various dimensions and proportions and with thirty eight different colors to suit the taste of the user.

You are coridally invited to attend this large showing of modern commercial equipment.

HORN BETRAYS THIEF

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., April 9. —The musical ear of a woman, who instantly recognized the peculiar "honk-hank" of the family automobile's horn, resulted in the arrest of Arthur Reposa, 19 for car stealing. The car was taken from the home of Louis Hart, and Reposa showed the poor judgment by driving the machine nearby and honking the horn. Mrs. Hart recognized the tone and called police.

THIRD ARREST IN PATROLMAN SLAYING NEAR

OMAHA, Neb., April 8—Arrest of the third of a trio of youths implicated in the fatal shooting of Patrolman James Sullivan during a holdup was expected today at Houston, Texas, according to Detective Chief Paul Sutton.

Two—Eddie Jedlicka, 20, and his brother, Anton, 19—were in custody here today. The former confessed, Chief Sutton said, that he fired most of the 17 shots while his brother admitted driving the car used in the robbery.

DAUGHTER, 5, SEES DALLAS HOME TRAGEDY

DALLAS, April 8.—Barbara Jean Love, 5, this morning saw her father, C. W. Love, shoot her mother, Mrs. Eva Love, through the jaw and then shoot himself in the temple. He died later. Doctors said that Mrs. Love may recover.

Barbara Jean was sick in bed and couldn't tell officers a great deal, but Billy, her 10-year-old brother, explained that her parents had been arguing for a week about a $550 bonus check which his father cashed two weeks ago. After cashing the check the father disappeared for 10 days and returned with only a bottle of liquor, the boy said.

"Mamma wanted papa to give her some of the money but he went off when he got it and didn't give her any," said Billy. "Papa came home broke and it made mamma mad and she fussed at him. This morning they were quarrelling when I left for school."

LAMB HAS SHAMROCK

GRIDLEY, Cal., April 9.—Whether it was a ewe's eating of clover, or the touch of St. Patrick himself a snow-white lamb born on the Pat Nugent ranch March 17th, was found to have a perfect black shamrock mark on the back between the hips.

Knute Rockne may have been a miracle man to countless thousands of football fans, but he was something even greater — a loving husband and father — to Mrs. Bonnie Rockne and the four Rockne children, shown above, now widowed and orphaned. Billy, right, and Knute, Jr., below, are already following in their dad's footsteps, as evinced by these pictures taken at the Pembroke school in Kansas City. Jack center of the lower group, is only a little more than four, but his punting style is nearly perfect. Golden-haired Mary Jeanne, left below, liked nothing better than to play the Notre Dame "Victory March" on the piano while her dad listened.

Suits May Develop in Rockne Insurance

SOUTH BEND, Ind., April 9.—Knute Rockne left his entire estate to his widow and four children, Mrs. Rockne and the American Trust company, were named as joint administrators of the estate when the will was filed in probate court here yesterday.

Vitus E. Jones, attorney for the estate, characterized the estate as "very modest," outside of insurance which has been placed as between $100,000 and $125,000.

A suit may develop over some of the insurance policies with double indemnity clauses because Rockne was killed in an airplane accident.

NEW GAS WELL IS BROUGHT IN NORTH OF HERE

A new gas well was added to the gas field northwest of Cisco yesterday when the Phillips Groves No. 1 was brought in for a guaged flow of 6,764,000 cubic feet daily.

The well has been shut in.

It is located two locations north by one west of the Lone Star Groves No. 1, which last summer came in for 62,000,000 feet of gas daily as the largest gas well in the section. The wells are about two and one-half miles north by west of Lake Cisco.

Total depth of the Phillips is 3,578 feet, with the formation penetrated 14 feet.

NEW LAND IS PURCHASED FOR CEMETERY

The city commission, at a meeting at 1 o'clock this afternoon, attended by the commissioners-elect, Joe Clements and J. T. Elliott, voted to purchase from F. E. Harrell and heirs, ten acres of land adjacent to the city limits to add to the Oakwood cemetery, at a cost of $2,250.

Comm'rs Fee, Berry and Paschall voted favorably and McCrea and Burnett against.

The commission formally accepted the new pump house at Lake Cisco from the Atlas Const. Co. of Cisco.

Other routine business was attended to.

Warning Issued To Oil Buyers

EL PASO, April 9. — If you have that urge to get rich quick by buying oil stock, Ed Hodge, manager of the Business Men's Protective association, offers some standing advice as to what one should know before investing.

"The standing advice, of course, is to investigate before investing," Hodge said.

"You should know the principals of the company, their previous experience and record.

"Location of the well, geological formation, acre spacing, and drainage area also are needed things to know. The number of wells on the promoter's tract, and on surrounding acreage are indications of what is in the field.

"The estimated average of recoverable production and the effect of the proration schedule also are important items.

"The price asked for units should be compared with prices quoted in the producing area, and marketability are important, as well as whether the unit offered involves joint liability of investors."

FORGOT HIS HOTEL

WORCHESTER Mass., April 9.—James Lyons of Easthampton registered at a Worcester hotel. Then he went out. Then he forgot what hotel he was stopping at and appealed to police. They located his name on the register.

ROTARY CLUB NOMINATING NEW OFFICERS

Nomination of new officers to be elected four weeks hence was begun today at the meeting of the Cisco Rotary club. Nominations will be opened again next week, it was stated.

Miss Dorothy McDonald entertained the club with two vocal solos accompanied by Mrs. S. E. Hittson. Haywood Kinsey, a member of the Cisco high schoo, debating team which won the county interscholastic league meet and last night defeated the Haskell team at Haskell, was scheduled to have been presented in a discussion of the negative side of the question which is the subject for debate in the Interscholastic league contests this season. He asked to be permitted to postpone his address, however, due to the shortness of time remaining. Last week his colleague, Billy Murray, appeared before the club in a discussion of the affirmative side of the question which favors abolition of the jury system of trial.

O. J. Russell had charge of the program.

Phillip Pettit, chairman of the clean-up committee of the Rotary club asked instructions from the club as to how this committee should proceed with its part in the city-wide clean-up campaign. H. S. Drumwright and L. B. Campbell are on the committee with him.

After some discussion Supt. R. N. Cluck, of the public schools, offered to release 50 high school boys from certain classes to be employed under the direction of the club in cleaning up vacant lots, provided enough trucks to haul away the collected rubbish and keep the boys employed, were placed at the disposal of the committee. J. C. McAfee, George Fee and Edward Lee each agreed to donate the use of a truck. The club has been given the task of cleaning D avenue and vacant lots of accumulated rubbish.

Ranger Team Comes Here Sunday P. M.

The Ranger Lone Star baseball team, a strong independent unit, will supply the opposition for the Cisco Red Sox at Chesley diamond Sunday afternoon at 3:30. The Cisco club, playing two games, has won two, and will try to keep its perfect record intact at the expense of the visitors.

"Yesterday's Cisco Daily News was of much interest to me when I noticed a picture of an old boyhood friend of mine listed in connection with the recent earthquake in Nicaragua and relief work being done by the United States forces located there," said P. P. Shepard, manager of the West Texas Utilities Co. Mr. Shepard referred to the picture of Mathew E. Hanna, United States minister to that country, who is cooperating with relief forces.

"We were boys in Ohio together and taught school in adjoining districts. Elton, as we called him, however chose a military career and went to West Point. I taught school for a number of years and then drifted into the utilities business, lost sight of Elton, but I recognized his picture yesterday despite the years that have left their mark on his face as well as on mine."

Mr. Shepard expressed a thought common to all of us when he said that he was glad to hear or read [illegible] of long ago.

9-Room Residence Destroyed by Fire

A 9-room, vacant residence at 10th street and F avenue was practically destroyed by fire early this morning. The house had been vacant for some time.

Origin of the fire was not determined. The alarm was sounded at 1 a. m.

Cisco Zoo Praised by Experts Here on Visit of Inspection Yesterday

A large city would give a great sum for a site such as that of the Cisco municipal zoo, declared two leading zoological experts who were here for two or more hours yesterday inspecting the local menagerie. They were Hans Nagal, head keeper of the Houston zoological gardens and H. V. Killough, head keeper of the Fort Worth zoological gardens.

There is no limit to the possibilities they said. The visitors, who are inspecting zoos over a large area, said that the Cisco zoo has the finest layout in the country, expressing themselves very favorably of the cages constructed in the natural rock, the pens for the deer and complimented Keeper John McCluskey highly upon the condition in which the animals have been kept. The site so arranged that teirs of cages with natural dens for the animals can be constructed one above another, impressed the visitors. "Cisco has a natural site which large cities not so blessed spend millions to obtain through artifical oenstruction," they pointed out.

The men told Dr. Charles Hale, superintendent who was host for them during the inspection, that the Cisco zoo rates high, particularly considering the size of the town.

Cisco Lad Letters at Wentworth School

LEXINGTON, Missouri, April 9.—Cadet Wesley Lee Harrell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Harrell, Cisco, Texas, received his letter as a member of the Wentworth Military Academy swimming team here this week.

Cadet Harrell's skill in the free-style dashes made him a valuable member of the Wentworth tank team during the past season, according to Capt. J. R. Foster, coach.

EAST TEXAS OIL COUNTIES WANT SOLON

AUSTIN, April 9.—Senators from east Texas oil field counties gave notice today that unless those counties are given a congressman of their own in the redistricting law to be passed at this session there will be no such law passed.

Sen. Julian Greer, of Athens, author of the senate bill giving the counties a separate district, was met with protest and demand for postponement when he called for action on the measure today.

10 CONVICTED OF VAGRANCY IN CITY COURT

"California here I come," was the burden of the defense against vagrancy charges facing ten prisoners at the dock of the city court this morning. The motley crew, the largest cash resource of any of which was approximately $6 were collected during the rounds of the city night patrol last night and early this morning.

Not all were en route to California however. One youngster, 17 years of age, claimed to have three jobs waiting him at Kilgore and another was beating his way back to Dallas. None of them could produce any evidence that employment was beckoning them a warm welcome and the corporation court ground out a 100 per cent conviction record. "Five dollars and costs" with the stipulation that those who could get sufficient money to pay their way to the alleged jobs or back to their homes would be permitted to go in peace.

All of the group were young.

One or two more favored with cash denied that they were depending upon a charitable public to provide them with necessities. One, having six dollars said that he had enough money. The mayor pointed out that he was 1,500 miles from California. "How far can you walk in a day?" The accused opined that he could do 38 miles. "Make it 40, and how long will it take you to walk to California?" Mental arithmetic produced 40 days as about the time required. "Fifteen cents a day to eat on," said the mayor. "You've got to depend on the public to support you and transport you. You'd better stayed at home among friends."

60-GAL. STILL IS CAPTURED BY OFFICERS

A 60 gallon still, in operation, and 300 gallons of mash were confiscated by Sheriff Virge Foster, Constable R. L. Wilson and Deputy Sheriff Steel Hill who descended upon a location two miles northeast of Sabanno yesterday afternoon.

Operators warned by sounds of blows upon a plow point at a farm house some distance away, made good their escape from the spot, and no arrests were made.

LETTER GIVES CLUE IN DEATH OF SHOP GIRL

SAN FRANCISCO, April 9.— The letters of a man signing himself "Le Gros Baboon" gave police their only clue today in the death of Mrs. Denise J. Allen, 30, one-time Paris mannequin and later a San Francisco shop girl.

Piecing together bits of evidence found in her room where her body was lying face down on the floor, detectives pictured her dying just as the strains of Easter sunrise services floated in at her window from Mt. Davidson last Sunday.

The "Baboon" wrote:

"Querida mia; if you have recovered from the effects of my unkindness this morning and are no longer feeling the effects so acutely, I would again invite you to make the little journey."

WORLD'S SMALLEST SCHOOL

GLASGOW, April 9. — The smallest school in the world, located in the Ayrshire district and with only one pupil, has been closed for reasons of economy.

Contract for black-topping 57 miles of Carlsbad highway, from end of present paved surface east to Van Horn road, awarded Haden & Austin of Houston, on bid of $76,000.

NOTED LEADER FALLS VICTIM TO PNEUMONIA

AIKEN, S. C., April 9.—Nicholas Longworth, speaker of the house of representatives in the 69th, 70th and 71st congresses died today.

Death came within two days after Longworth's serious illness with pneumonia had become known.

The speaker, a powerful figure in the republican party and beloved by political friend and foe alike, was stricken while a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James F. Curtis at this winter resort.

Tuesday night his illness was diagnosed as pneumonia and Mrs. Longworth, "Princess Alice Roosevelt," was summoned from Washington.

For a time the doctors were hopeful but soon their bulletins became increasingly alarming.

At 10:52 a. m. today Dr. Robert H. Wilds, chief of the medical staff attending Longworth, came to a window in the Curtis old colonial mansion. He raised his hand in one slow gesture to the waiting newspapermen. It was a signal to the world that the speaker of the United States house of representatives was dead.

FUNERAL TO BE HELD SATURDAY

WASHINGTON, April 9.—Funeral services for Speaker Nicholas Longworth will be held at his Cincinnati home at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon, it was announced at the speaker's office today, following a telephone call from Mrs. Longworth at Aiken.

HOOVER WILL ATTEND.

WASHINGTON, April 9.—President Hoover will attend the funeral of Speaker Nicholas Longworth at Cincinnati Saturday, it was announced at the white house today.

SISTER IS ILL.

TUNIS, Africa, April 9. — The Countess de Chambrun, sister of Nicholas Longworth was critically ill today with bronchitis. She had not been informed of her brother's fatal illness.

WIFE AT HIS BEDSIDE.

AIKEN, S. C., April 9.—Nicholas Longworth, speaker of the house, was on the brink of death today. Alice Roosevelt Longworth was at his bedside.

Dr. Robert H. Wilds, physician in charge at the James F. Curtis home where Longworth is suffering from pneumonia, told newspapers today that he felt death was only a matter of hours.

Discussing his patient after a night-long virgil in which he alternated with Dr. Thomas G. Brooks, Wilds explained he had not given up hope "because physicians never do that." But he added he could not see how Longworth could survive.

Wilds said a formal bulletin would be issued at 9 o'clock this morning but that it merely would say Longworth's condition was unchanged from the "extremely unfavorable" condition reported last night.

The Cisco Country club golf team will be entertained by the Mineral Wells club at Mineral Wells Sunday afternoon in an official Oil Belt association match.

Twenty-seven members of the country club team have qualified, Capt. O. J. Russell said, and a large group is expected to go to Mineral Wells for the match. Play is slated to begin at 1 p. m.

Broadway Racketeer Is Charged in Slaying of Red-Haired Vivian Gordon

NEW YORK, April 9. — Harry Stein, 32, known to police as a Broadway racketeer, dope peddler and petty thief, was charged today with the murder of Vivian Gordon.

The charges were placed against him after police had thoroughly questioned him on the strangling of the red-haired woman who apparently made a lucrative living by preying on wealthy men at the edge of the underworld.

Stein and three other men were arrested last night and questioned all night long. Finally this morning police announced that the formal charge of murder had been placed against Stein and that the three other men were held as material witnesses.

Robbery was the motive of the slaying, police said.

Cermak Moves Into Chicago City Hall

CHICAGO, April 9 — The change in municipal leadership which Chicagoans decreed by a record shattering vote, came about today with amazing swiftness as Mayor-elect Anton J. Cermak moved without ceremony into the city hall where "Big Bill" Thompson previously had ruled.

GASOLINE KNOCKS OUT ELECTRICITY.

This is a fast moving age and a fast moving civilization. Interurbans between Fort Worth and Cleburne will be replaced by bus service if the Texas railroad commission approves an application filed by the Northern Texas Traction company. Interurban service between the two municipalities will be discontinued after April 30 because of decrease in patronage. A. F. Townsend of Fort Worth is the president of the traction company. He had made the announcement that the company has no plan for disposing of the to-be abandoned interurban tracks; that the line has been operated at a loss for several years; that in the event his people are granted permission to operate buses it will be possible to put them on before the interurbans are taken off; that the interurbans have not taken in sufficient revenue to pay the day-to-day cost of operation which includes trainmen's wages.

This is the story of the slump in revenues; in 1913 the first year of full operation interurbans on the Cleburne line carried 429,000 passengers. In 1920 at the peak of prosperity in the transportation industry it carried 819,000 passengers. In 1930 a total of only 227,000 passengers were handled on the line. Speaking of the original investment it totaled a sum greater than a million dollars. There was a time when the Dallas-Fort Worth interurban was the best paying short line in the United States. Now the interurbans and the buses divide the patronage. There are many transportation problems to be solved as well as industrial and agricultural problems in this republic.

Regardless of their vital importance to the well-being of all the people the right-wingers and the left-wingers in the two big political camps of America are doing their level best to sidetrack intensely vital issues and make prohibition paramount in the campaigning of the coming year.

"GREATEST REFINING AREA IN THE WORLD"

"Patilo Higgins, who gave the best part of his life in attempting to produce oil from Spindle Top, realized little from his efforts while others gambled and made millions," writes Col. Dabney White in his graphic story of Spindle Top and the wild craze it created in the petroleum world. Crude sold at 2 cents a barrel when the rushing tide of black gold spouted. A new Spindletop was brought in after the flush wells had exhausted their wealth. This Dabney White comment should interest those who are not aware of fast growing Gulf port cities and their industries.

"There are here still many doers and dreamers. No one can forecast what they may do tomorrow. A day dreamer, Arthur Stillwell, was inspired by a vision of a great inland port being created on the Texas seacoast near here. Port Arthur, the greatest oil refining area in the world, resulted from him dreaming dreams and seeing visions."

And now East Texas has the call.

There are new oil cities. They jump up like "Jack, the Beanstalk" on his travels. East Texas landowners who were poverty stricken not long ago are dreaming of the millions that may flow in their direction. Harry F. Sinclair pronounced the East Texas discovery potentially the greatest oil bearing section of the southwest. Dallas is putting forth gigantic efforts to be the "Oil City" of East Texas, but there are builders closer to the fields who are predicting that there will be another Tulsa when petroleum, speaking of price, comes back to its own.

MOONSHINE ON THE MISSISSIPPI

Natl. Prohibition Director Thomas A. Woodcock has announced plans for co-operation of Arkansas and Tennessee prohibition agents "to break up what he describes as large-scale moonshining operations on the Mississippi." His agents have made the alarming discovery that Texas, Arkansas and many other states below the line, including Missouri, are infested with makers of the liquid stuff that the moonshiners are said to exchange for cold cash. Much of the liquor made on the Mississippi area flows into Memphis where the distributors do business. St. Louis is another spot where the flow is very large and as for Kansas and Oklahoma Col. Woodcock said he had been enthusiastically received in those states, adding "that the people seem to like prohibition there."

It would be well for him to feel the dry pulse of Col. William H. Murray who smells whisky everywhere and has been saturated with juicy stories concerning the morality of the rising generation. As a matter of fact of record the rising generation is as well equipped with the virtuous trait [illegible] as their [illegible] grand-fa's ers and great-grandfathers were in the "good old gone-for-ever days."

OTHER OPINIONS

DISAPPEARING FARMS.

Every year of normal rainfall the United States loses $200,000,000 by soil erosion, an amount almost equal to the value of fertilizers applied annually to farm soil.

Delving into this matter of soil wastage, one finds big figures. For instance, more than half a billion tons of soil are carried out into the ocean every year by the rivers of America. This is more earth by a considerable margin than was moved in digging the Panama Canal.

According to government figures, fully 10,000,000 acres of once fertile land, more than the combined areas of Maryland and Delaware, have been made barren by water running over slopes stripped of their protective vegetation.

Earth washed into the ocean, river beds and swamps is rich top soil, without which no crop can have healthy growth. Geologists estimate that nearly half of Louisiana once lay hundreds of miles up the Mississippi Valley and its tributaries as the fertile top soil of thousands of thousands of acres of good farming land.

The United States is letting its soil deteriorate through wasteful processes, and failure to protect fields from erosion is one of the most wasteful. Still rich in virgin soil, the country has not awakened to the danger threatening its arable lands.

Reforestation, flood control, regulated grazing and careful farming methods will save the soil and save the tillers of the soil much worry and money.—Paris News.

Did You Ever Stop to Think?

By EDSON R. WAITE
Shawnee, Oklahoma.

That no one would think of investing in or doing business on a large, or even moderate scale, in any section without first making a serious investigation as to the political, financial and business condition of the section interested in, and nowadays they especially look at the political situation.

More and more the politicians are trying to dictate to private business what they shall do, what they shall sell, by over taxation, by over regulation, and any means to chase capital to cover. Investors are putting their money in foreign securities instead of putting their money into industries that use local material and make payrolls so needed in every community.

Organized politicians raise cain with unorganized business.

Some of our politicians should have a change of heart. Capital comes where it is invited and stays where it is treated fairly.

No one wants to invest heavily in sections where shifting political and economic conditions are always linked up with politicians who exercise tremendous influence to put them out of business.

Without the wage earners, they would go back to the days of long ago when the people raised only enough for their own consumption and what they could trade with their neighbors. What this country needs is more pay-rolls and less politicians.

TEXAS TOPICS

By POLITICAL ANALYST

AUSTIN, April 9.—One bill offered late in the session, promised to have a bearing on the governor's race of future political campaigns.

Even though its purpose was declared to be a back-handed effort to push through emergency tax measures, the bill threatened to come into campaigns of later years, with just its bald words left then for its possible effect.

The bill is by Senator Walter C. Woodward of Coleman. It proposes, in the absence of raising new taxes to meet school needs simply to exclude 150,000 children from the free schools.

It would raise the present six-year minimum age of children in schools to seven years. It would repeal the hard-fought effort of educators to lower the age limit, as attained two years ago.

Its purpose, Senator Woodward said, was, if passed, to protect the rest of the school children against any reduction in the amount of money per scholar to be received from the state. Its more immediate effect, he made clear in a statement was to try to force through a cigar and cigaret or other tax bill to raise $5,000,000 school revenues a year.

Senator Woodward said he did not believe it would work any hardship.

Senator Clint C. Small, in opposing the abolition of the state ad valorem tax, told the senate he thought the Woodward bill would help some to solve the tax dilemma.

Senator Small was a candidate for governor last year. Senator Woodward was recognized as a future prospective candidate for governor, either next year or as soon as Governor Ross S. Sterling, whom he helped elect, has finished his term or terms.

Future opponents, taking this bill as campaign thunder to fight Senator Woodward, would translate it into such political terms as:

"Aha, listen to this, Sen. Woodward who wants to be governor, instead of taxing these million-dollar monopolies, to provide money for the schools, offered a bill to run 150,000 children out of the schools, so there wouldn't have to be any new taxes."

And with less demagoguery, it will be seriously contended that the six-year school age was won after a long and hard fight, and that the Woodward bill, if enacted, would have been a serious backset for the cause of education.

Treatises by school people will be read to show that the modern science of education demands that the schooling start, not at seven years or at six years, but back in the cradle.

The fact that his bill specifically [illegible] shall be [illegible] as an emergency bill, and not as a policy of going back to the seven-year age limit naturally would be overlooked by those who would make political capital out of such a bill.

If Senator Woodward should not be in the governor's race himself, the unique bill still could be impleaded on the affirmative issue of some candidate to repeal it.

MISS SHEARER HIGH SPOT ON FILM PROGRAM

Norma Shearer is starred in "Strangers May Kiss," which will open Sunday at the Palace theatre as her latest Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer offering.

This picture marks the return to the screen of the delightful star after an absence of more than six months. It is of unusual interest because it again has her as the heroine of a best-selling novel from the pen of Ursula Parrott, popular author, whose first book provided the story for "The Divorcee."

Won Signal Honor

This is the talkie in which Miss Shearer won the 1930 award of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences for the outstanding performance of the year.

The new role is an even more daring one than that of the previous picture and the characterization is one of glamour and smart sophistication. Miss Shearer's best forte on the talking screen.

George Fitzmaurice, master of Continental story telling, directed the picture from the adaption by John Meehan of the novel. Meehan filled a similar capacity in the production of "The Divorcee". Fitzmaurice's best-known films are "Dark Angel" and "The Devil to Pay." He is one of the most artistic directors in the industry and is credited with an unusually skillful treatment of delicate situations.

Two of the screen's most popular leading men share masculine honors in the sparkling production. Robert Montgomery and Neil Hamilton. Montgomery played with Miss Shearer in "Their Own Desire" and "The Divorcee" and recently was featured in "Inspiration" and "The Easiest Way". Hamilton is best known for his remarkable performance in "The Dawn Patrol."

An unusually imposing cast appears in supporting roles. Marjorie Rambeau, who last was seen in "Min and Bill," plays the part of Miss Shearer's confidante. Irene Rich is the trusting wife who ends her life when she discovers her husband's infidelity. Hale Hamilton is the husband in the case and Jed Prouty is Miss Rambeau's "boy friend." Conchita Montenegro, exotic Spanish dancer, plays her first English-speaking role and Albert Conti is the Spaniard who is enamored of the heroine.

Sophisticated Plot

The story concerns Lisbeth, a very modern young woman who takes romance as she finds it, attaching herself to a globe-trotting journalist without benefit of clergy. Hamilton is the roving chap and when he finds her likewise accepting favors of other men he casts her off, the double-standard not including the woman whose love he holds. Montgomery is the suave youth, always understanding and ever ready to marry Lisbeth when the tires of the other chap. In the end the true lovers get together, both having learned a bitter lesson in a bitter world.

MISSOULA, Mont., April 9. — A pure white skunk is considered to be some sort of a freak by Bitter Root Valley trappers. Recently Jack Mahoney displayed a skunk's pelt which was without a trace of coloring.

DIMPLE WORTH $750

SEATTLE, April 9. — Kathleen Scpotz, 12-year-old school girl, believed her dimpled knee was [illegible] $10,000, but a superior court decided that $750 was enough [illegible] for the loss of a dimple on that of the anatomy. A dog belonging Everett E. Rockey took a bite [illegible] Miss Sepotz's knee and she sued $10,000.

FOR SALE
A BABY!

Think of the storm of indignation such a sign or advertisement would arouse. You probably will never see it. You do read notices daily that call attention to the sale of furniture, automobiles, real estate, etc., to satisfy a claim for non-payment of the account. These circumstances are not pleasant but they are legal. They represent the last step in a transaction in which the individual securing the merchandise and service failed to complete his or her obligation to pay for it.

There are hundreds of infants (and some young folks) in this community whose entrance fee into this world has not yet been paid for. The physicians who answer calls at all hours of the night to give devoted service in these cases make many sacrifices in both time and money. They answer the anxious call and give unspairingly of their skill, and time until the emergency has passed and a proud Dad and happy mother are joyfully telling friends of their happiness.

Then what? The physician serves until his attention is no longer required on the case but he is equally busy with others. Time passes and he does not find time to send a statement or a collector. He knows he should, but he feels that to do so would take time that is urgently needed elsewhere.

Does the father appreciate just what his friend the physician has meant to him? In a vague way, yes. But there are many who do not show even as much interest in paying for the service rendered as they do in their monthly garage bill.

Is this because the garage man can reclaim the car and offer it for sale? Perhaps not, but the fact remains that a service that helps men and women enjoy God's greatest blessing is left unpaid, for much longer periods, than any other accounts are allowed to run.

No group of men in the world perform a greater service to mankind than our physicians. When you call a regular, recognized M. D. you know you are to have the most intelligent and conscientious service nearly a score of years of experience can provide. You know you will be treated fairly and the least you can do is pay the small fee promptly.

Those who can, should pay cash and others should be fair enough to discuss conditions frankly with their physician and make some definite arrangements. To do less is to encourage a higher rate of fees and perhaps a plan which will mean more and more physicians will adopt a cash basis plan, as many other professions and institutions have done.

Plowing Under Rye.

Last fall a great many farmers rd patches of rye for grazing poses with the intention of wing this under in the spring as en manure. There will be a dency to use this as a grain or crop and forget the good in- tions of using it to build up the . If the soil is to be made pro- tive again it will be necessary plow under a great deal of veg- tion and it is hoped that those o planted rye will not weaken will carry out their intention plowing it under. It is a matter record that peanut yields have n built up to one hundred bush- per acre by consistently plowing der rye each spring. If this has n done in Comanche county why t we do it here.

Plant for a Stand.

Low acre yields are often due to very poor stand. Knowing that is is one of the factors that make rming unprofitable we should e steps to see that there is a od stand on every acre that is tivated. One way to get this is plant only good seed. Another to put enough seed in the ground d then thin it out to the proper and.

Fertilizing Corn Pays.

When corn is knee high it may be e dressed with Nitrate of Soda other nitrogen fertilizer applied the rate of fifty pounds per acre. is has been known to double the ld of corn. It will be just as ef- tive on grain sorghums.

Precautions in the Use of Canned Goods.

To be sure that food is whole- me, inspect carefully before using. emember, the person opening the can is responsible to those eating the product.

Before Opening

Tin cans: Both ends should be flat or slightly curved inward. Neither end should bulge or snap back when pressed. All seams should be tight and clean with no traces of leaks.

Glass jars: The cover, if metal should be firm and flat or curved slightly inward. There should be no signs of leakage around the rubber ring or elsewhere.

When Opened.

The contents should appear sound, normal in color, and the liquid free from unusual cloudiness. As the can is being opened notice whether there is an outrush of air or spurting of the liquid. These indicate spoilage. If the air sucks inward, this is a good sign and shows that the vacuum seal has not been broken.

Smell the contents at once. The odor should be characteristic of the product. Any "off" odor probably indicates spoilage. Be sure that the person opening canned goods is able to smell.

Look at the contents carefully to see whether they appear sound and natural in color and texture.

If the can is tin, notice the appearance of the inside. It should be fairly clean and bright, not extensively blackened or corroded.

Be absolutely sure, do not taste canned non-acid vegetables and meats before boiling.

Boil non-acid vegetables and meats ten minutes in an open vessel shortly before using even though there is no sign of spoilage.

Boiling destroys the toxin or poison produced by certain bacteria but does not destroy the bacteria. In case the liquid on the can is sufficient to cover the products, add boiling water and boil for ten minutes. Smell the hot food carefully because heating sometimes brings out odors not noticed in cold canned food.

Destroy by burning all food showing any sign of spoilage either by appearance of odor. Take no chances.

Boiling destroys toxin but does not destroy bacteria. Don't bury spoiled products even after boiling because the bacteria continues to thrive in the soil. Don't feed spoiled products to animals even after boiling because if it is not eaten immediately there is always danger that in massed food more of the toxin may be formed. Though the bacteria present may not harm the animal it would probably pollute the soil through the excretions of the animal.

If the foregoing instructions are followed, there need be no fear of botulism or other poisoning from canned foods.

HELPFUL HINTS ARE GIVEN ON FERTILIZERS

STEPHENVILLE, April 9.—In a six year program of using commercial fertilizers on the John Tarleton college farm, Neal Gearreald, director of the Tarleton school of agriculture, declared that, aside from terracing, the use of fertilizers has been the greatest factor in profitable crop production on the farm.

Professor Gearreald gives some very helpful hints on the best ways of using the different fertilizers, citing its use on the 500-acre college farm. But it should not be construed by Texas farmers that these methods are best suited for their particular soil. The type of soil and the substance it needs are controlling factors in choosing the fertilizer that will produce the best results. The fertilizer must be adapted to the soil. Any county agent or fertilizer salesman can inspect the soil and determine the proper type of fertilizer that it is best adapted to. Under no conditions should a farmer purchase and use fertilizer unless he is reasonably sure that it has the proper substance for his land. Fertilizer improperly used is a useless expense. Use it properly and profitable results will be realized in a very short time.

These two things should be remembered when using fertilizer: The kind of crop being grown and the cropping system being followed determine the fertilizer needs of crops fully as much as does the soil type. Where the soil is farmed without livestock, and no manure or other organic matter returned to the land, a complete fertilizer is more certain to bring satisfactory results than any other treatment.

The use of fertilizer on the John Tarleton College farm has been highly successful, and Professor Gearreald says that production on all farms in Texas can be increased by the proper use of fertilizer. Terraced land, land where the moisture is conserved, is much better adapted and will respond much quicker to fertilizer than will un-terraced land. The college farm is terraced and other scientific methods of farming are in use, and the use of fertilizer has proved to be valuable in all crops.

The benefits to be secured from the use of commercial fertilizer may be greatly increased by the addition of from 3 to 6 tons of barnyard manure per acre. Such organic matter increases the water holding capacity of the soil; it makes the soil warm because of the increased air holding capacity; it improves the physical condition of the soil, furnishing food for soil bacteria — thus giving an increase in the minute organisms which increase the productivity of the land.

With the fine season all over the farming belts of Texas, this is an ideal year for successful use of fertilizer, Professor Gearreald says.

FOOLED FRIENDS

FALLON, Nev., April 9. — Believed for years by old friends to have been virtually penniless, Silverino Penales, veteran Nevada prospector who died recently, was found to have left $50,000 in cash and marketable securities. The wealth was found in a safe deposit box rented by Penales in a Fallon bank.

THIS WOMAN IN 4 WEEKS LOST 17 POUNDS OF FAT

Here's a letter written October 21, 1929, by Mrs. Fred Barringer of Lewistown, Montana, that ought to be read by every overweight woman in America.

Gentlemen: I started taking Kruschen every morning as directed as I was very much overweight and wanted to reduce.

I had tried going on a diet but would get so hungry that my diet would not last long, so I decided to give "Kruschen Salts" a fair trial. The day I started to take them I weighed 256 lbs., and at present, which has been just four weeks, I weigh 239 lbs. And I must say I feel better in every way, besides looking much better.

May all large people, both men and women, who want to reduce in an easy way, give Kruschen Salts a fair trial. I am sure it will convince anyone.

A bottle of Kruschen Salts that lasts four weeks costs but 85c at any drug store in America. Take one half teaspoon in a glass of hot water before breakfast every morning. To help reduce swiftly cut out pastry and fatty meats and go light on potatoes, butter, cream and sugar.

The Kruschen way is the safe way to reduce—Try one bottle and if not joyfully satisfied — money back. For sale by Moore Drug Co., and Dean Drug Co.—Adv.

MAD MARRIAGE

by LAURA LOU BROOKMAN Author of "HEART HUNGRY," etc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Gypsy McBride, 19-year-old typ- in a New York office, marries Wallace, the day after she after she meets him at the e of her wealthy cousin, Anne wbridge. Gypsy has been jilted Alan Crosby, back from a year a half in Paris, and Wallace's ncee has just broken their en- ement. There is no romance in union. Wallace is a young law- They go to his home in Forest where his relatives snub psy.

Jim undertakes the defense of a Roberts, accused of murder- her employer, Dr. Fowler. The e is sensational with circum- ntial evidence strongly against girl and Gypsy becomes deep- interested. On impulse she goes see Mrs. Fowler, widow of the tim, and finds her hysterical r her adopted son's illness. The man admits she shot her hus- nd to save the child's life. Gypsy suades her to go to Jim and fess. Later at home she waits tlessly for a telephone message m Jim.

W GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXX

"Yes, Jim, what is it?" Gypsy ed impatiently. She held the phone receiver tightly against ear but the voice across the e was jumbled and indistinct. hat is it? I can't hear you!"

There was a pause.

"Hear me better now?" Jim ed.

"Yes."

"Mrs. Fowler's confessed."

"What?"

"I said Mrs. Fowler's confessed killed her husband. Came down e this morning and told me the ole story. She says she did it to e the boy's life. The woman's omplete wreck."

"But what about Nina?"

"She's acquitted. That's what I lled you about. Would it be all ht to send her out to the house? don't want the reporters to get other chance at her and if she es to that place where she med that's what will happen."

"Why, of course. Where is she w?"

"Here in my office. If you think all right I'll bring her out."

"Bring her," Gypsy said. "Lunch ll be ready when you get here." She left the telephone for a sty consultation with the cook. psy was upstairs putting out h linen in the guest room when heard the front door open. She rried down.

Nina Roberts was sitting in the chair in the living room. Jim ned as Gypsy entered. "Well," said, grinning, "we won!"

"Oh, I'm so glad! I was so wor- l until you telephoned. Nina— t it wonderful?"

The girl had been crying. She ched her handkerchief to her es. "It's fine of you to let me me here, Mrs. Wallace," she said. "Why, we're glad to have you, course. Would you like to go stairs now or shall we have ch first?"

"I—I think I'd like to go up- irs."

Gypsy led the way. The guest om was not large but it had undant sunshine. The walls re green and cream colored and e taffeta drapes were apricot.

"The bath is through here." psy said, opening a door. "I pe you'll find everything to ke you comfortable. There's wder here and cold cream if you nt it. I'll leave you now if you n't mind. I'm dying to have Jim l me everything that happened."

Nina stood in the middle of the om, looking about. She seemed wildered.

At the door Gypsy hesitated. uncheon will be ready whenever u come down," she said. Then e went out and hurried down the irs.

Jim was not in the living room. e glanced into the library and w him standing with his back to- rd her.

"Oh, Jim," the girl began as she nt toward him: "Tell me what ppened. It must have been terri- y exciting! I want to know all out it!"

Jim swung around. "Exciting!" he exclaimed. "It was the most incredible thing I ever saw in my life! Bennet was just about to begin summing up the case. I didn't want to leave the courtroom. The message they handed me said a woman was waiting and that she had something important to tell me. I thought it was a mistake and then—well, it was the merest luck in the world that I went to see her. When I saw her face of course I knew who it was. Lord—what a morning!"

"But what did she tell you?"

"Well, for a while it didn't sound believable, but it must be true. The woman was in torment. At first she was so incoherent I couldn't make heads or tails of what she said. Kept begging me to help her and said she did it for Bobby's sake. Then she grew a little quiter and I got the story. Mrs. Fowler says she came to her husband's office shortly before six o'clock. She had the boy with her. She opened the door and went in. There was no one there except Fowler. It seems they'd been quarreling for weeks about the child. When Fowler saw the boy he was angry. He'd told her that morning she had to send Bobby away. The child wasn't adopted. They took him nearly a year ago from a home but adoption papers weren't signed. Mrs. Fowler said she came to the office to tell her husband that if Bobby went she was going too.

"I guess the whole thing happened quickly. She says she told Fowler what she was going to do. Bobby was standing beside her. Suddenly the child ran toward the window. Fowler grabbed him. Mrs. Fowler says he had threatened several times to kill the boy. She thought he meant to do it then. She knew there was a revolver in the top drawer of her husband's desk and she reached for it. The woman swears she didn't intend to shoot. She saw her husband fall and dropped the gun. Then she picked up Bobby and ran for the stairway. She must have gone down one side at the same time Brophy, the policeman, ran up the other. How she got out of the building without being seen I don't know, but she walked to where her car was parked and drove home. She says she'd just got in the house when they telephoned from the hospital. Well — that's the story. While she was telling it she mumbled a lot about Bobby being sick and going to die. The kid is sick, all right. It seems she got the idea his illness is a sort of punishment to her for letting someone else pay the penalty of her crime. The woman was half-hysterical. Kept asking if I thought I could save her and begging me to help for Bobby's sake. Certainly is crazy about that kid all right!"

"The poor woman!" Gypsy exclaimed. "Where is she?"

"She's at home. Held up long enough to make a statement before the judge and then collapsd. Doctor and nurse went with her. Of course after that the acquittal was just a matter of form."

"What do you think will happen to Mrs. Fowler?"

"Oh, you can't tell. Trial may be put off a good while. There seems to be a big public reaction in her favor. I should think she'd get a light sentence."

Gypsy sat silent. It had been the most exciting morning of her life. To find the barrier between life and death so fragile, to face such tragedy left her exhausted. She gazed at Jim with new respect.

They heard Nina's footsteps on the stairs and Gypsy went to meet her.

"Luncheon's ready," she said. "Shall we go in?"

For two days Nina Roberts was a guest in the Wallace home. Gypsy saw to it that she had plenty to keep her occupied. Reporters were constantly telephoning but aside from the typed statement Jim gave out at his office Nina was not quoted in the newspapers.

There were household tasks which the girls shared together. Nina romped with Pat. Over the telephone Gypsy made arrangements with the woman who oper-

BOBBED HAIRED WOMEN NEEDN'T HAVE GRAY HAIR

ature Will Keep Hair Youthful Shade Free Of Gray

IFELESS GRAY HAIR REGAINS OLD BEAUTY

Everybody knows if color glands nd hair roots are healthy and ac- ve, the hair will continue indefiitely a rich, natural color entirely ee of gray or streaked locks.

A doctor several years ago asked mself this question If I can imulate digestion, liver, heart, c. with a tonic, why not rub a imulating tonic into the scalp, at will revive those inactive lands so nature in her own natu- l way will resume putting plenty pigment into the hair tubes — rely the hair will then resume its riginal beautiful shades of youth gardless of user's age or previous ndition of their hair.

Remarkable Discovery.

The doctor's search led to endless periments. He didn't want a dye tint, and it, of course, must be rmless even if a person used it any years. Under the name, Lea's air Tonic anyone may now purhase the tonic he finally perfected. or several years hairdressers, scatred over the country have been ing it. Results are so nice and gradual men used it too. It doesn't stain the scalp, and as a test one need only apply it to some small spot a few days to watch results. Shampoo as often as desired.

Most people are first induced to try Lea's for gray hair but it primarily was intended as a tonic to put the scalp, hair roots, pigment glands and hair in a healthy, vigorous condition. Of course with a healthy scalp comes a change in appearance of hair and a restoration of the natural shade of brown, red, black, auburn, or blonde. There are some three thousand shades of color in human hair—no dye expert can paint one's hair as exquisitely as nature. Lea's tonic awakens nature to renewed activity, puts nature back on the job, you might say, and the tint she imparts to your hair, once the scalp, roots and glands become healthy is natural. What is more beautiful or becoming than nature's own choice of shade to match your eyes, complexion and beauty?

If a reader desires to try Lea's Hair Tonic on guarantee of complete satisfaction they should get a bottle at drug store or pin dollar bill to this advertisement and send to Lea's Tonic Co., Brentwood, Md., for generous size bottle, full directions.

Experts cannot detect the use of Lea's Hair Tonic.—Adv.

ated Nina' boarding house to have the girl's clothing packed and sent out. She gave the girl plenty of wholesome food, urged her to rest.

Nina had announced that she wished to leave Forest City.

"Where do you want to go?" Gypsy asked.

"My sister's in Chicago," Nina said. "She's married. If I could get to Chicago I could stay with her until I get a job."

So it was agreed that Nina should go to Chicago. She had a pitifully small amount of money, though Jim's charge for his legal service was the merest fraction of the usual fee. The morning of the day on which Nina was to depart Gypsy knocked at the door of the guest room.

"May I come in?" she asked when Nina appeared.

"Of course."

Nina wore the rose negligee Gypsy had loaned her. She had been making the bed.

"I've got something for you," Gypsy said, smiling. "Two things," She took the other girl's hand and placed in it a small folded object. "Now you mustn't say you can't accept it. It's something I want to do—"

The golded object was a $20 bill.

"I can't take it," Nina protected, shaking her head. "It wouldn't be right after you've done so much for me." She started to hand the bill back but Gypsy refused it.

"Listen, Nina," she said, "it's my own money—money I earned before I was married. I'd rather do this with it than anything in the world! I want you to have it. Please keep it to remember me!"

"I won't ever forget you, Mrs. Wallace. I don't need anything to remember you by."

"But I do want you to have it. Then there's something else." From the pocket of her house dress Gypsy drew forth a soiled white envelope. There was nothing written on the envelope but Nina Roberts recognized it instantly.

"It hasn't been opened," Gypsy said softly.

The other girl's eyes met hers. It was one of those moments when Nina Roberts' face was unfathomable.

"If you'll hurry and dress now," Gypsy continued cheerfully, "we'll go out and see what we can find in the garden to brighten the living room table. There we might find enough of the white lilacs left."

"You've been so good to me," Nina said impulsively. "Oh, you'll never know what these days have meant to me!"

"Then I'm glad. It's little enough after what you've had to face. Well—shall we go cut the flowers?"

The garden, bathed in warm sunlight and the fragrance of the lilacs, bore promise of what summer was to bring. Dew sparkled on the fresh grass. The iris bore their gold and purple heads proudly. A few straggling tulips—remnants of Pat's mischief—added a splash of scarlet. Above, against a turquoise sky, the clouds drifted lazily. It was a perfect May morning—a day when nature seemed to outdo herself proclaimnig the joyousness of living.

They cut flowers to fill a pottery bowl for the table in the living room and a smaller vase for the dining room. Gypsy left Nina to arrange the bouquets while she telephoned the grocer. At one o'clock they had their luncheon and an hour later Jim arrived with the car to take Nina to the train. All three of them piled into the single seat. Nina's battered suitcase was stowed away in the rear.

They reached the station just five minutes before train time. No attention was paid to the girl in the gray suit and black hat who boarded the westbound train. Gypsy waved when she saw Nina through the car wi wdnndaoETAO through the car window and the other girl returned the signal. A brakeman shouted "All aboard!" Then the locomotive snorted and the train pulled from view.

Jim turned toward Gypsy. "You were good to the kid!" she said. There was gratitude in his voice and in the way that he looked at her.

The girl smiled. "I wanted to do all I could. There wasn't much."

She felt happier at that moment than she had ever been since her marriage. It was well to make the most of it, for the emotion was short-lived.

THE FORD SPRING TRUCK CARAVAN COMING TO CISCO

Anncuncement is made by the Blease Motor company local Ford dealer, of the coming of the Ford Spring Truck Caravan to Cisco on Saturday April 11th., the fleet will arrive at 12:30 p. m. and remain until 2 p. m.

The caravan will consist of a large number of different body types recently added to the Ford line, ranging from the beautiful Ambulance and Funeral Service Coach to the immense 157" wheel base panel delivery body that has a loading space of eleven feet.

The progress that the Ford Motor company has made in the commercial line is impressive when it is recalled that only a short time ago the company did not build a single commercial body and painted all jobs black. Now a Ford commercial unit may be had with fifty standard Ford bodies of various dimensions and proportions and with thirty eight different colors to suit the taste of the user.

You are cordially invited to attend this large showing of modern commercial equipment.

HORN BETRAYS THIEF

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., April 9. —The musical ear of a woman, who instantly recognized the peculiar "honk-hank" of the family automobile's horn, resulted in the arrest of Arthur Reposa, 19 for car stealing. The car was taken from the home of Louis Hart, and Reposa showed the poor judgment by driving the machine nearby and honking the horn. Mrs. Hart recognized the tone and called police.
