Weak Cold Front Hits Panhandle

By UNITED PRESS
A weak cold front in the Texas Panhandle dropped temperatures behind the front Saturday while a disturbance in the Gulf of Mexico brought rough seas warnings for the Texas coast.
Small craft from Galveston, Tex., to Apalachicola, Fla., were warned to remain in port Saturday night and Sunday. The weather bureau said a disturbance in the Gulf was 300 to 350 miles south of New Orleans at 6 p.m. Saturday moving northward at 10 to 15 miles an hour.
The weather bureau at Corpus Christi said the Gulf offshore of Texas' middle coastal area would become rough Sunday with seas running four to six feet from east to northeast. Beach roads were expected to be rough with water over them in places.
The weather bureau advised persons not to go below Padre Island Park Saturday night and said the bays would be rough Sunday with east winds 15 to 25 miles an hour.
By Saturday night a weak cold front in the Texas Panhandle extended from south of Lubbock, south of Childress, south of Hobart, Okla., and Oklahoma City. It was drifting southeastward slowly.
Temperatures behind the front averaged 10 degrees lower than temperatures ahead of the front. Saturday afternoon Dalhart had a 75 degree reading and Amarillo 78 with northeast winds 20 miles an hour.

Somoza Dies In Panama

BALEBOA, Canal Zone, Sept. 29 —(UP)— President Anastasio Somoza of Nicaragua died at a U. S. military hospital today of bullet wounds suffered at the hands of an assassin eight days ago during a political celebration in his homeland.
President Eisenhower, who had marshaled a top-flight medical team to try to save the 60-year-old Nicaraguan strongman, expressed his regret in a formal statement and paid tribute to Somoza as a steadfast friend of the United States.
Death came unexpectedly. Until Friday, Somoza has been on the recovery list at Gorgas hospital. Shortly after midnight, he began to decline. At 5:05 a. m. he succumbed while members of his family stood at his bedside. He had never been completely conscious since his surgery last Sunday. Officials said he was unable to recognize his wife or daughter.
General Fatigue
Col. Charles O. Bruce, health officer of the Canal Zone, ascribed death to general fatigue and Somoza's inability to recover from the debilitating effects of the four shots pumped into him by Rigoberto Lopez Perez, a disgruntled Nicaraguan who had proclaimed his hatred for Somoza.
The 27-year-old assassin was slain on the spot by Somoza's bodyguards.
Somoza died one day after his younger son, 24-year-old Luis, had been named acting president by the congress in Managua, capital of Nicaragua.
Luis, head of the congress, was chosen to run the country pending his father's return or until May, 1967, when Somoza's current term was to have run out.
To Bring Body Home
In a communique directed to the Nicaraguan people today, the younger Somoza announced that his father's body will be brought home to the country he had ruled since 1932 for burial with high honors.
The acting president appealed for a "high spirit of serenity and patriotism" and cooperation with "the armed forces of the nation."
Nicaraguans expressed deep gratitude to the United States for its efforts to save the life of Somoza.
The president was shot during a celebration at a worker's social hall in Leon, Sept. 21, after he had been re-nominated for president.
The United States immediately stepped in to help and flew the wounded president to Gorgas hospital in the Canal Zone. A team of specialists headed by Maj. Gen. Leonard D. Heaton, chief surgeon of Walter Reed hospital at Washington, were flown to Balboa to supervise the case. Heaton directed President Eisenhower's surgery for ileitis last June.

Suit Filed In Sept. 4 Wreck

A civil suit against the Air Speed Oil Company of Amarillo for $220,000 was filed in 31st District Court by Gene Townsend and Clarence Townsend as a result of injuries received by Clarence Townsend on Sept. 4, 1956, when an Air Speed Oil transport truck struck the rear of the car in which Townsend was riding.
The suit alleges that the driver of the truck was driving too fast for the circumstances, driving at an unlawful rate of speed, following too closely, failed to keep a proper lookout and drove a vehicle with inadequate brakes.
Townsend received injuries to his back, damaging his spinal cord and paralyzing the lower part of his body from the hips to the terminal members of his feet, according to the suit.
Five other youths were injured in the accident which occurred on Highway 70 about four miles north of Pampa near the first bridge north of town. The car in which the youths were riding was driven by Burley Prater, 934 E. Murphy, who reportedly had slowed down to allow a truck to clear the bridge when the transport truck struck the car from behind.
Jerry Culberson, 828 E. Malone, died early Saturday morning as a result of brain injuries received in the accident.
Teddy Mastin, Clay Trailer Courts, was also injured in the accident and is reported to be in fair condition. He also suffered a broken back but has been released from the hospital.
The other three youths who were in the car were not seriously injured and were released from the hospital the morning after the accident.

Pampan Dies Of Injuries

Saturday in Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo of injuries received in an automobile accident on Sept. 4, 1956, will be held at 2 p. m. Monday in the First Baptist Church. Dr. E. Douglas Carver, pastor, will officiate.
Young Culberson was born June 29, 1939, in Pampa and had attended school in Pampa throughout his school years. He was a junior in Pampa High School where he had registered only a few hours before he was injured in the wreck.
He was a member of the First Baptist Church and was a member of the Service Battery of the local National Guard unit.
Survivors include his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Culberson; two brothers, Robert Steven, his twin, and E. M. Jr.; and one sister, Lynda.
Pallbearers will be fellow members of the National Guard.
Burial will be in Memory Gardens Cemetery under the direction of Duenkel - Carmichael Funeral Home.

Fire Department Gets Two Calls

Two fire alarms were received by the local fire department since noon Friday.
The first of the alarms sounded at 11:20 p. m. Friday when a report was received by the fire department of a fire in the office building of the Pampa Used Car Lot located at 308 N. Chrysler. Firemen answering the fire call reported that the interior of the building was burned out.
The second alarm was received at 6:15 p. m. Saturday when a pot of beans caught fire at the White Apartments. The firemen reported no damage to anything other than the beans.

ident. These were Prater; Bobby Culberson, twin brother to Jerry; and Earl Brown, 828 E. Brown.
When contacted late last night Gene Townsend reported that his son, Clarence, was doing as well as could be expected but was still in critical condition.
In the suit Townsend states that he has lost the services and income of his son during his minority and believes that the loss is about $200,000. Clarence claims he has and will suffer physical and mental pain as a result of injuries received and is seeking damages in the amount of $200,000.

Segregation Case Gets New Charge

By O. B. LLOYD JR.
TYLER, Tex., Sept. 29 (UP)—The state of Texas Saturday charged the National Association for Advancement of Colored People spent $33,500 to break down segregation at the University of Texas, including $11,500 in direct salary paid a Negro applicant.

Documents concerning law student Herman Marion Sweatt, a Houston mailman, were among those introduced as Attorney General John Ben Shepperd sought a temporary injunction to prevent the NAACP from doing business in Texas.

Shepperd has already secured a restraining order from District Judge Otis T. Dunagan, who is hearing the plea for an injunction. Top NAACP attorneys, including chief counsel Thurgood Marshall of New York, are representing the Negro organization.

The Sweatt documents were among 21 introduced by the state in an effort to prove the NAACP solicited plaintiffs against segregation in Texas schools.

One memorandum, dated Aug. 8, 1956 and signed by Edwin C. Washington Jr., assistant field manager of the Dallas office, referred to "forms for solicitation of parents who wanted to become plaintiffs" and outlined how to "prepare the plaintiffs to be good plaintiffs."

The documents included a contract in which the NAACP was to pay Sweatt $3,500 a year—the same salary he got as a mailman, to continue his education. The plan also called for Sweatt to get $500 for unforeseen contingencies and expenses, plus another $500 as soon as the agreement was completed.

That brought the total for Sweatt to $11,500. But a letter signed by U. S. Simpson Tate, counsel for the Texas branch of the NAACP, indicated that an additional $22,000 was spent on legal expenses to get Sweatt enrolled.

Source not revealed
Source of the funds was not revealed. The agreement was between the Texas Conference of Branches of the NAACP. The money was referred to as "the Sweatt victory fund."

The Supreme Court ruling on the Sweatt case came June 6, 1956. He enrolled that fall in the University of Texas law school, when he was 37. But the Houston mailman didn't receive a law degree. After two years, he flunked out.

Another document introduced today included a memorandum to all branches of the NAACP in Texas. It pointed out that in a convention held in October, 1955, in Victoria, Tex., a resolution was adopted urging "forfeiture of the charter by any chapter which agreed to any form of segregation in public schools."

As outlined by the documents, the NAACP in Texas sought out suitable applicants to help break down racial barriers in schools; helped them make formal application for admission, turned the case over to the local chapter for financing if the application was refused, and offered help from NAACP attorneys.

Short But Hard-Hitting United Fund Drive Set

Plans for a short, hard-hitting United Fund campaign this year have been announced by the Pampa-Lefors United Fund group.

The organization which solicits funds to support the Red Cross, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Heart Fund, U.S.O., Milk Fund and Salvation Army, all at once instead of conducting individual fund-raising campaigns, also announced its goal for this year — $52,500.

The new goal surpasses any previous mark set by the organization since its inception here.

Clinton Evans, president, said "We are going to get our organization set up as quickly as we can. It will be our aim to contact every business and family in the Pampa-Lefors area and give them a chance to do their share in supporting the United Fund."

"When the drive actually gets under way, we intend to get it over with as soon as possible."

"We need everyone's help to insure the success of our drive this year."

This year's goal surpasses last year's by over $4,000. The new goal was brought about as a result of the increase in need for funds to operate during the next United Fund year by each of the member organizations.

Evans reported that due to the increase in a goal and to insure everyone in the Pampa-Lefors area a chance to contribute, between 450 and 500 people will work in the concentrated campaign.

A kickoff breakfast has better scheduled for 7 a. m. Tuesday, Oct. 30, after which workers will make the rounds soliciting contributions. Evans said the organization hopes to get the campaign wrapped up by Friday, Nov. 2.

A meeting of the board of directors of the organization will be held in the Pampa Chamber of Commerce conference room Tuesday at 5 p. m., at which time a campaign director will be named and plans for the drive itself will be made.

Representatives of the various member organizations met recently in the chamber conference room to make preliminary plans for the campaign. The representatives and the organizations they represent included Marion Osborne, Girl Scouts; Leora Rose, Milk Fund; Libby Shotwell, Red Cross; Don Cain, Boy Scouts; Envoy Seago, Salvation Army; Dr. H. Fabian, Gray County Heart Association.

A.P.I. Forum Members Are Named
Members of the "Sand-Frac Forum" set by the Panhandle chapter, American Petroleum Institute, have been named by Fred Nease, moderator.

The forum, the first fall meeting of the organization, will be held Tuesday at 8 p. m. in the Palm Room of City Hall.

The panel will consist of oil company supervisors and service company representatives operating in this area and will feature some well known Top O' Texans.

Oil company supervisors expected to take part in the forum include George W. Crumrine of Sinclair Oil Company; R. W. O'Neill of Phillips Petroleum Company; Max Bolick of Cities Service Oil Company; Verne Fletcher of Skelly Oil Company; M. G. Rogers of Stanolind Oil and Gas Company; John Watson of Humble Oil and Refining Company; and Wyatt Lemons of Drilling and Exploration Company.

Service company representatives expected to take part include Edward Ramzinski of Chemical Process; Marvin Klein of Halliburton; R. D. Davidson of Dowell, Inc.; Conway Craig of The Western Company; and James D. Rohde of Producers Chemicals.

Dulles made the statements in a special 1,300 word report to President Eisenhower detailing Milton Eisenhower's connection with U. S. Latin American policy.

The President told a news conference Thursday that he had requested the report. The White House made it public Saturday without comment.

"This statement is completely untrue," Dulles said. "Dr. Eisenhower has generously made himself available (for good will missions to Latin America) when requested. However, Dr. Eisenhower has never been asked to assume, nor has he assumed, any of the responsibilities customarily borne by the Department of State in the field of our inter-American relations."

Dulles said that he had requested the report. The White House made it public Saturday without comment.

Spokesman Tells Of Conference

BELGRADE—UP— Marshal Tito is conferring with Soviet officials at Yalta on the Soviet Black Sea coast in an effort to settle "differences" and "difficulties" in Soviet-Yugoslav relations, the government announced Saturday.

During a specially-called news conference, a government spokesman shed some light on the mystery of Tito's sudden flight to the Crimea with Soviet party chief Nikita Khrushchev Wednesday.

Spokesman Branko Draskovic emphasized that the differences were "normal." And he insisted that Yugoslavia intends to run its own affairs.

"Yugoslavia never yields under pressure," he said.

"There are some differences both on state and party relations and on a series of other questions. But it is quite a normal situation and it is a normal process to make efforts to solve such difficulties."

The spokesman buried a crop of rumors which sprang up in the West as a result of the urgent leaders to Russia.

There were reports that Tito had gone to help Khrushchev at a "party trial" over Khrushchev's denunciation of Stalin, and reports that there was "Stalinist unrest" in the Soviet party.

Yugoslav sources denied that U. S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles had sent Tito a note warning that future American aid would be cut off if he moved closer into the Kremlin orbit.

However, the issue of American aid was expected to be taken up at the talks in Yalta, the same spot where the Big Four met in February, 1945 to plan the post-war world.

Ike Applauds Republican 'Minute Men'

By RAYMOND LAHR
WASHINGTON, Sept. 29 (UP)— President Eisenhower Saturday applauded a "minute men" plan launched at Cheboygan, Mich., to get out the Republican vote on election day.

He said it may "set a pattern" for other communities.

His endorsement was contained in a letter to Sen. Charles E. Potter (R-Mich.), who took part in organizing a "Minute Men for Ike" drive at a Cheboygan meeting last Monday.

"Your Cheboygan meeting fits in precisely with what I had in mind last month when I told the convention at San Francisco that the Republican party is the party of the future," Mr. Eisenhower wrote.

Potter said the plan was launched by a group of Eisenhower supporters who were "convinced that the Republicans' greatest foe is complacency."

He said each "minute man" signs a pledge card to vote for Mr. Eisenhower and to enlist three others, each of whom is committed to sign up three more. The pledge cards were printed and the plan was rolling within 24 hours, he said.

This was the third successive weekend in which the President has tried to put impetus behind the GOP's get-out-the-vote campaign.

Last week he sent letters to more than 2,000 party leaders and workers exhorting them to work hard for increased voter registration. He previously had urged the people to get out and vote and give him a Republican Congress.

Korean Veep Chang Shot

SEOUL, Korea (UP)—A young Korean today shot and slightly wounded Vice President John M. Chang in a bold assassination attempt against the bitter political opponent of President Syngman Rhee.

Police rescued the would-be assassin from an enraged crowd of about 1,000 persons who fell upon him with fists and sticks after the attack. He was not identified immediately.

Chang drove to a downtown theater to attend a national meeting of his opposition Democratic Party. A single shot rang out as he stepped from his jeep. Chang clutched his hand and rushed into the theater, where some 800 party members were holding their meeting.

A crowd listening to convention speeches broadcast over loudspeakers outside the theater, pounced on the gunman and began beating him.

Police moved in quickly to rescue the would-be assassin from the probable death at the hands of the incensed crowd and hustle him off. The theater is only 150 yards from national police headquarters.

The attempted assassination followed by a day a motion pushed through the National Assembly by Rhee's Liberal Party to censure Chang for his criticisms of the president after the inauguration.

FILED FOR THE DURATION—The old hospital truism that more babies are born during stormy weather than on calm days got a big boost at the Army's Ryukyu Hospital on Okinawa during the recent Typhoon Emma. Some of the 14 new arrivals who blew in with the storm are shown in an emergency evacuation shelter, sound asleep in their desk-and-drawer beds. Cribs were brought from the hospital proper when the storm abated.

British Seek Common Stand On Suez

By K. C. THALER

LONDON, Sept. 29 (UP)—Britain completed plans Saturday night to iron out differences with Washington over Suez Canal policies before the issue goes to the United Nations Security Council next week.

Prime Minister Sir Anthony Eden's government was reported "very anxious" to clear up misunderstandings over the timing of the British-French approach to the Security Council.

Britain and France appealed to the UN body last Sunday, and Egypt followed with its own appeal Monday. The council decided to consider the Anglo-French request first, and the debate starts in New York next Friday.

As interpreted here, the United States attitude is that the Franco-British move was "precipitate." But London and Paris felt that if they had delayed, Egypt would have been able to get its appeal in first.

However, the British have felt uneasy over Secretary of State John Foster Dulles' reported misgivings about their move. Dulles is known to have wanted a delay in bringing the Suez issue before the Security Council.

During the second Suez conference here the week of Sept. 16, Dulles advocated delay until the proposed Suez Canal Users Association had been set up and was in debate of the crucial Mideastern situation out of limelight until after the American election.

Adlai Charges Administration Is Ignoring Cost Of Living

By TOM NELSON

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Sept. 29 (UP)—Adlai E. Stevenson said Saturday that the Eisenhower administration is trying to "pretend" that the cost of living problem "doesn't exist."

The Democratic presidential candidate, here for a major speech on "war and peace," hit the theme of rising prices again in a talk during a motor tour of Minneapolis and St. Paul.

He struck back at Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell, who quoted Stevenson as saying in Indianapolis Friday that "food costs have reached an all-time high."

Mitchell said that while the cost of living is two and a half percent above 1953, food costs have dropped.

Concern over Prices Stevenson said he felt "concern over rising prices" and then made his rebuttal to Mitchell.

"I notice in this morning's papers that the White House response to this issue, as to so many others, is to pretend it does not exist," he said.

"The secretary of labor, evidently speaking for the President has tried to confuse the voters by accusations of 'distortion' and 'false and irresponsible statements,'" he said.

Stevenson said that what he actually told his Indianapolis listeners was that "the cost of living has reached an all-time high."

"This statement is based on the administration's own figures," he said. "They show that the consumer price index is at an all-time high."

Forecast Higher Prices

"Moreover, most economists are now forecasting that prices will go even higher on your rent, your new cars, your television sets, refrigerators and clothing."

Stevenson said a national magazine carried an article this week saying officials wish they knew the answers to this problem.

"And so, I might add, do the American people," Stevenson said. "And I don't think they'll be satisfied with the most recent attempt by the Eisenhower administration to sweep another issue under the rug."

Stevenson flew here from Milwaukee to launch his bid for the 11 electoral votes in Minnesota, which has gone Democratic in every presidential election since 1932 except four years ago.

agents from the state attorney general's office.

One letter, dated Nov. 28, 1951, was to the Rev. M. K. Curry Jr. of Wichita Falls, and signed by Tate. It suggested a party honoring the Negro children and parents who allowed their names to be used in segregation action.

Tate proposed that money remaining in a special defense fund be used for the party, that a picture of the honorees be furnished the local newspaper, and that the picture be sent to Negro newspapers all over the United States.

Another letter, dated Aug. 8, 1956, and marked "confidential," was signed by Edwin C. Washington Jr., assistant field secretary in the Dallas office of the NAACP. It said the Dallas area had been selected as the focal point for integration suits to be filed in Texas.

Secured Plaintiffs Washington's letter referred to "forms for solicitation of parents who wanted to become plaintiffs" and mentioned that 38 plaintiffs had been secured by the NAACP, two of them without being solicited.

The letter also told the NAACP plaintiffs to be plaintiffs and recommended that at least two applicants be selected for each school under legal attack, adding that "briefing sessions with NAACP legal staffs" would be arranged.

Other documents included one from Tate to the Rev. R. H. Hines of Amarillo on how to break down racial barriers at Canyon Junior College and promising Hines that "when you reach the end of the rope," the NAACP would stand behind him, and a letter from Tate, dated Dec. 7, 1949, saying that "all branches owe obedience to the state and regional offices" of the Negro organization.

The Name, Philo Dix, Is Big News To Pampan

By FRED M. PARKER
Pampa News Staff Writer

A slight gray man came to town recently to begin a campaign that will alter the lives of Pampan for the next two months and in another way will alter Pampa permanently.

The man is Philo C. Dix of Deerfield Beach, Fla., who will head the campaign to raise funds for building a modern community owned hotel in Pampa.

Dix is associated with the Hockenbury System Inc. of Harrisburg, Penn. The firm has been secured to handle the business end of securing a hotel for Pampa that will be pointed to with pride by local citizens.

This is the 15th campaign in which Dix has been active in securing community hotels. He reported that in the other 14 campaigns the necessary money was raised and that all of the hotels are either in operation or are being constructed at this time.

This is the fifth campaign in Texas that he has been associated with. The other towns were Orange, Tyler, Nacogdoches and Edinburg.

Dix was born in Tennessee and was state secretary of the YMCA in Kentucky and Pennsylvania during most of his life. His work with the YMCA gave him a background in conducting fund raising campaigns as the YMCA work is carried on by volunteer contributions.

Upon his retirement from YMCA work he was contacted by Hockenbury, who was an old friend, and arrangements were made for him to conduct two campaigns a year for the Hockenbury System.

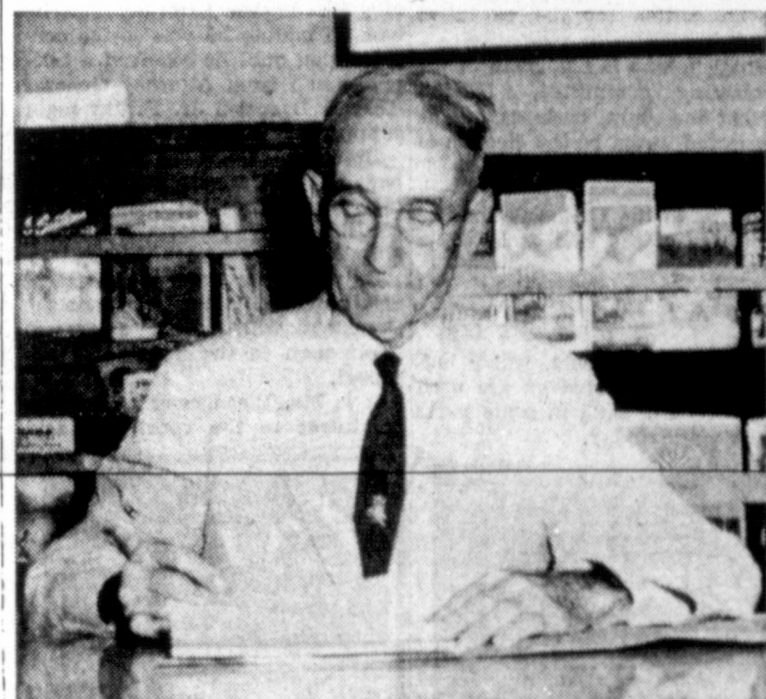

The most recent campaign was during the first part of this year in which the city of Edinburg was successful in raising over $500,000 to build a hotel in that community. Since that time Dix has been back home working in his garden and more recently he has been on a trip to the New England states.

The only funds that the group of Pampa business men who are working on securing a hotel in Pampa is expected to pay Dix and his assistant will be their expenses during the campaign.

One of the cities in which Dix has conducted a successful campaign is Parsons, Kan. Dix visited the hotel in Parsons on his way to Pampa and The PParsons Sun had the following to say about Philo C. Dix.

"San Pedro, Calif., Fargo, N.D., Nacogdoches, Tex., Orange in the same state.

"Those cities and others have come under the spell of the Dix methods of money raising since he buttoned up his coat as winter moved in on Parsons at the close of its first hotel campaign and hurried back home to his beloved Florida.

"Like Parsons, they must have experienced the same sensations. The thought of how the job to be done under the leadership of a man lacking, at first glance, the dynamic makeup and get up and go commonly associated with money raisers. Then amazement as the veteran campaigner sets up his organization, always taking care of the smallest details while injecting the needle of enthusiasm into those who will not only do the work but put their money in the line, too. And, finally, unlimited admiration for a man who not only has the techniques for a difficult job but also the know-how in applying them to reach the desired goal.

"The pattern is the same, the names and faces are different."

The For Your Information column written by Jim Davis concluded by stating: "Of two things Pampa can be certain: "Under Dix's direction, it will work hard. He is sure after many years in the business that there is no substitute for human effort in raising money. Sweat and toil, to put it another way.

"And he will get the job done before cold weather, which is assurance of a sort that the campaign won't go on endlessly. At the first sign of winter Mr. and Mrs. Dix will be heading for Deerfield Beach, which is deep in the heart of Florida and a safe distance from winter's frigid blasts. He is a man who even gets the shivers thinking about winter."

Use an empty soft-drink bottle carton as a caddy for household cleaning supplies. The compartments hold soap, detergent, scouring powder, polishes, cloths, etc. Keep it in the cleaning closet.

To wash a tile bathroom to a gleaming white, add a little ammonia to the soapuds.

Adlai Hits Ike On High Cost Of Living

By UNITED PRESS

Adlai E. Stevenson has attacked the Eisenhower administration for failing to halt the rise in the cost of living.

His running mate, Sen. Estes Kefauver, assailed Secretary of State John Foster Dulles for "inertness, fumbling and bumbling" in the Suez crisis.

Vice President Richard M. Nixon invaded Kefauver's home state of Tennessee in a direct attempt to keep the once solid South split as it was in the 1952 elections.

President Eisenhower put politics aside to look over "every sitting judge" on federal and high state benches to find a successor for retiring Supreme Court Justice Sherman Minton.

Adlai, Estes Confer

Stevenson conferred by telephone for 40 minutes late Thursday night with Kefauver. Stevenson was in St. Louis en route to Indianapolis, Kefauver was across the Mississippi river in Belleville, Ill.

The Democratic presidential nominee was reported impressed with Kefauver's report that people in southern Illinois are "indignant" over recent Republican administration scandals in State Auditor Orville E. Hodge's office. Kefauver also said he was impressed by an increase in Democratic sentiment in Indiana.

Stevenson's Indianapolis speech was expected to deal with the "record" level of living costs.

In Kansas City Thursday, Stevenson told a crowd: "They (the Republicans) told you they were going to stop inflation. You know what the facts are. The cost-of-living is higher today than it has ever been."

Nixon was greeted by a cheering crowd of several hundred, including a band, when he landed at Nashville, Tenn., Thursday night. He will speak there, this morning, at Cincinnati at noon and at Wheeling, W. Va., this evening.

Nixon predicted that Tennessee would vote again for Mr. Eisenhower this year.

Nixon's out-and-out bid for southern Democrats to bolt their party was much the same as the appeal he made to Texas Democrats at a rally earlier this week. The GOP was not as optimistic this election as last of holding such states as Texas, Tennessee and Florida but Nixon's full-fledged campaign in those areas indicated the Republicans have not given up hope.

From McCarthy To Murphy

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UP) — Charles Willard McCarthy petitioned the circuit court to change his name to Charles Patrick Murphy. He told the court he could not stand being called "wooden-head" because his name was the same as Edgar Bergen's famous dummy.

Insult Added To Injury

SHERIDAN, Wyo. (UP) — Cowboy Larry Kobold and Richard McKensie figured insult was added to injury when first their horses collided and then they suffered burns when the fire they lit to summon aid got out of control.

BONING UP ON ANCIENT HISTORY—The skeleton seen above is believed to be that of an Osage Indian of about 1,000 years ago. It was discovered by Roy Juergens, left, who looks it over with Stanton, Mo., City Marshal Lee Reid. Juergens gave the skeleton to the Indian Museum at nearby Mermec Caverns.

Good And Bad Of Week's News

By CHARLES M. McCANN
United Press Staff Correspondent

This week's good and bad news on the international balance sheet:

Suez
A disagreement on policy in the Suez Canal dispute gave further evidence this week of a potentially dangerous breach in the unity between the United States, Great Britain and France.

Britain and France jointly asked the United Nations Security Council to consider the situation caused by Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser's attempt to seize exclusive control of the canal.

Nasser countered with a complaint to the council that "some powers, particularly France and the United Kingdom," were endangering peace.

The 11-nation council, a sort of U. N. executive committee, met in New York to discuss the two communications.

Britain and France, with the support of Australia and Belgium, denounced the Egyptian complaint as slanderous and demanded that the council refuse to consider it. But the United States refused to go along.

As a result the council agreed to hear both the Anglo-French and the Egyptian cases next Thursday or Friday. The vote was 7 to 0, with Britain, France, Australia and Belgium abstaining.

While this was going on, British and French Premier Guy Mollet met in Paris to consider a joint policy in the entire Middle East—a policy of their own.

Palestine
Strong Israeli army forces invaded Arab Jordan in a night attack on border defense posts. The Israeli government said the attack was made in retaliation for a series of attacks made by Jordanians. A U. N. truce team counted the bodies of 23 Jordanian soldiers and policemen and of one 12-year old girl on the scene.

U. N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld warned that the explosive Palestine frontier situation must be brought under control "rapidly." He indicated that he might soon ask the Security Council to take action.

Huddle
Speculation over a visit by Soviet Russian Communist chief Nikita S. Khrushchev to "neutralist" President Tito of Yugoslavia was intensified when Tito flew back to Russia with Khrushchev.

Allied diplomats were mystified. They were sure that Khrushchev was trying to cook up something. They did not know what.

Pilot
Russia got some bad news when a young Polish air force pilot broke from a formation flight and raced his plane to Denmark's Bornholm Island in the Baltic. It was a new model MIG15B, with extra radar equipment. "It's really something special," a Danish air force officer said. Danish experts started taking the plane apart to send it to Copenhagen for detailed study. That means that Denmark's partners in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization are going to get some top-secret information on Russian plane development.

Huge "Medicine" Supply
KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI)—Stella B. Baker, arrested for hoarding 66 half-gallon jars of moonshine in her home, told police she thought it was "medicine" used by one of her boarders.

BONES OF DISPUTE—Huge aluminum eagle, symbol of Egypt's government, is being removed from its perch astride a main artery in Cairo. Committee which presented the Dulles Suez proposal had to pass beneath supporting arches. Speculation exists that likeness of the symbol to the Nazi eagles inspired the wrecking job.

AROUND THE WORLD

RIDING HIGH—Here's a behind-the-scenes view of what looks like a human kite. Water skier Ralph Chittenden, of New Lebanon, N. Y., appears to be taking to the air over Queechy Lake in Canada. Actually, he's dropping down after going over a ski jump.

FURTHERING RELATIONS—Anglo-Russian relations seem fine for the moment as British actress Joan Rice and Soviet athlete I. Iijin trot around the track at the Withdean Sports Arena in Brighton. Miss Rice visited the track to meet the Russian international athlete team. Members of the team were taken on sightseeing tours around the colorful resort.

HAMMING IT UP—How about carrying a 120-pound pig that's greased all over? Getting a kick out of it is an entrant at an old-fashioned greased pig contest held at a firemen's picnic at Rome, Wis. To conform to the rules, a man had to catch the porker, carry it back to the starting point and touch his squealing burden to a pole. The prize? The pig!

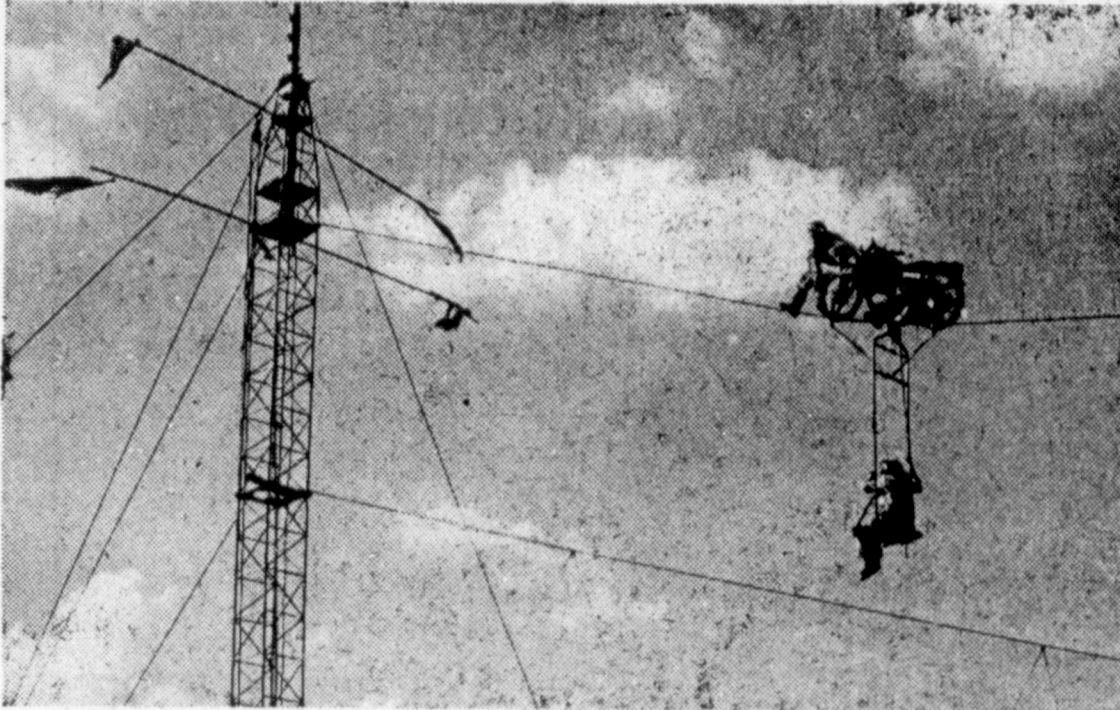

BEAUTY ON BEACH—Refreshing as the seawind, Esther Claire, Florida's former Miss Sunshine, lends one more touch of beauty to the sun-swept beach at Nassau, Bahamas. With nymphs like this frolicking on the sands, no wonder it's called Paradise Beach.

WELCOMING COMMITTEE—Dodgers' Roy Campanella, center, got greeted at home plate by some teammates after he walloped a three-run home in the fifth inning of the Brooklyn-Chicago game in Chicago. Left to right are: Gil Hodges, Sandy Amoros, Carl Furillo, and Duke Snider. The umpire is Stan Landes. Campy drove in five runs as the Dodgers won, 11-4.

THE LOW DOWN—Tillio "Mumbles" Rizzo is getting an earful in Miami as Cheta, the chimpanzee, gives a few pointers on how to play golf. Rizzo, a professional singer, may not have taken Cheta's advice, however.

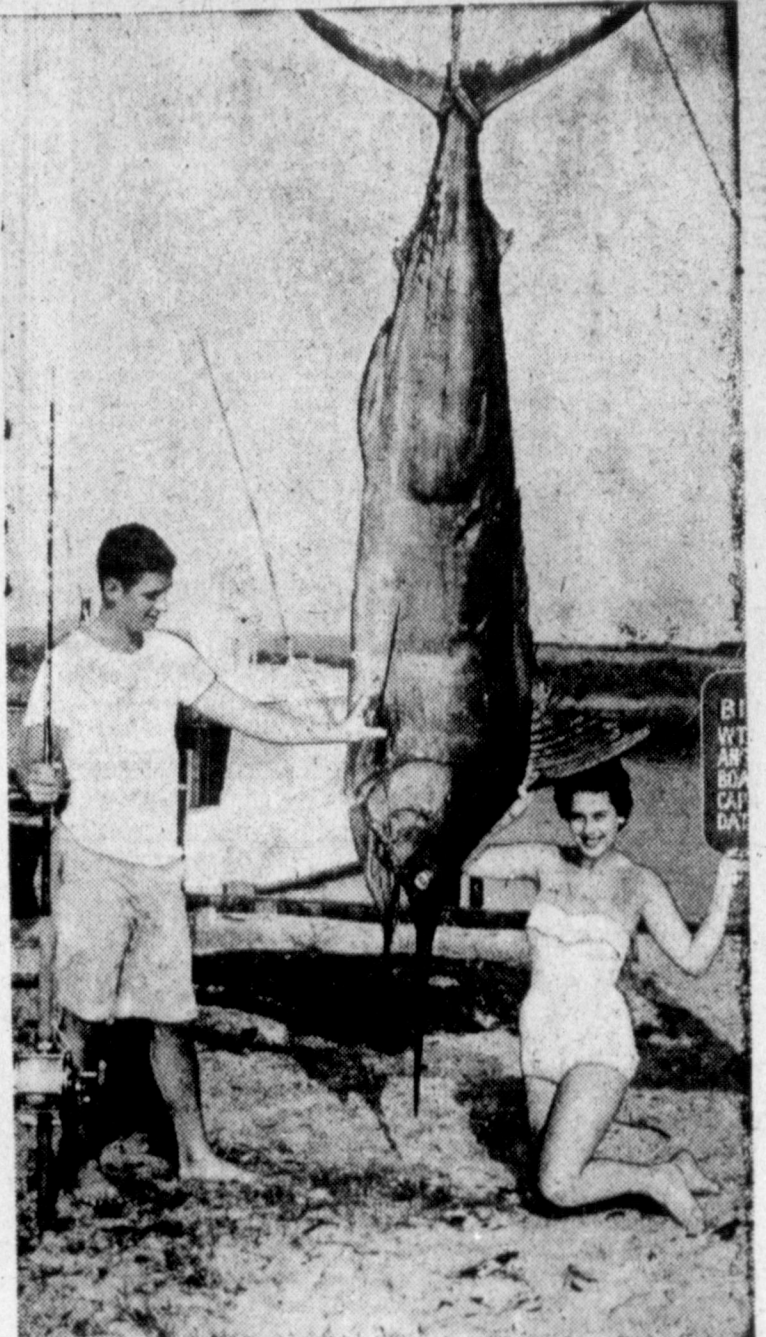

UNSCCHEDULED THRILLS—There are a few for the crowd 120 feet below when Alphonse Traber climbs from his motorcycle to make engine repair in the middle of his act with his circus at Saint Nazaire, France. Dangling below him is his partner, Sonja Traber.

TWO SCORE AND FIVE—A Yankee reception committee is on hand to welcome Mickey Mantle as the infielder made another home run in New York during the game against Kansas City. Greeters include Gil McDougald, Enos Slaughter (17) and Yogi Berra (8).

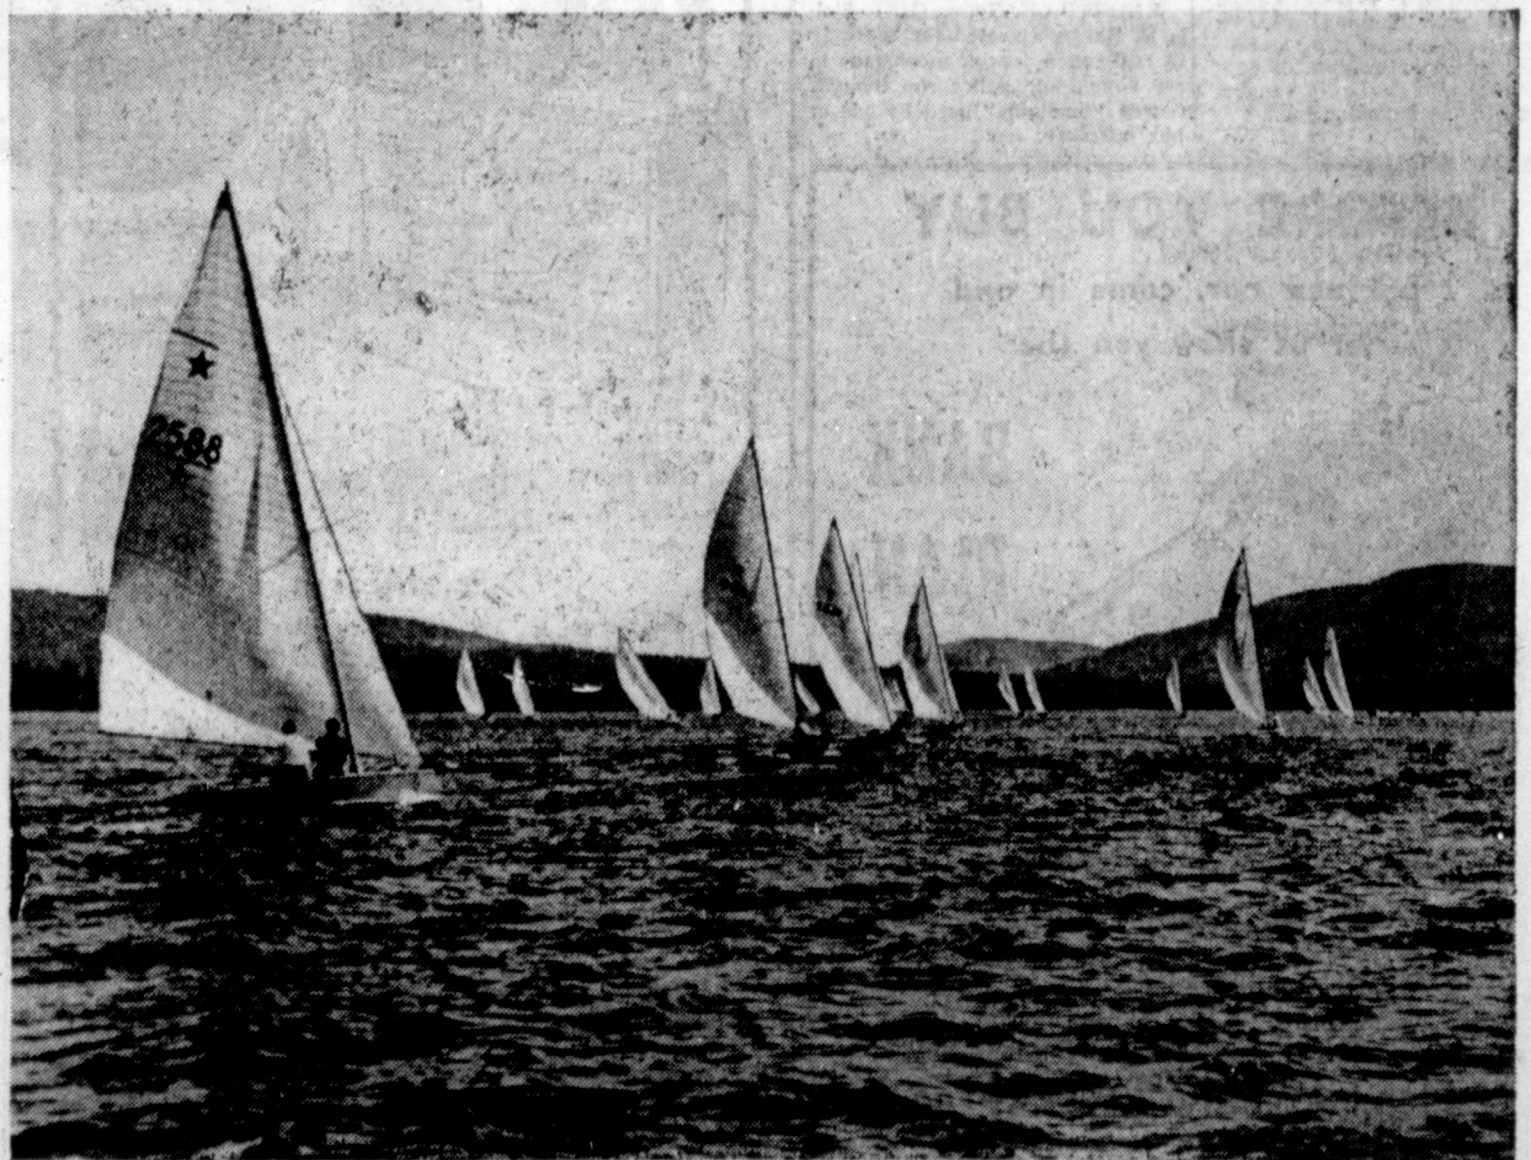

FIGURE SKATER—Virginia Iverson, 18, of London, England, tried on her skates as she arrived in New York to appear in an ice show. She'll soon open at Madison Square Garden in the "Ice Capades of 1957."

NICE CATCHING—Saunders Midyette, 16, of Jackson, N. C., and Mary Burrus, Miss Hatteras of 1956, have a lot to hang onto as they steady a 306-pound blue marlin at Hatteras, N. C. Midyette, a fullback on his high school team, hooked the big fish in the Gulf Stream off Hatteras. It took him one hour and 20 minutes to bring it to gaff.

GOING WITH THE WIND—Gracefully gliding along Lake Sunapee, N. H., during an annual sailboat race, these vessels add fresh beauty to the already splendid local scenery. That's Mount Sunapee, a famed winter sports center, in the right background. A field of 25 sailboats, each 25 feet long with a maximum sail capacity of 225 square feet, were entered.

REDS' PET JET WILL SPAN COMMUNIST WORLD — Russia's TU-104 two-engine jet airliners will soon link opposite ends of the Communist world. They're scheduled to fly passengers between Prague, Czechoslovakia, and Peiping, China, Oct. 1. Cruising at altitudes up to 35,000 feet, the ships are expected to cover the 9,000-mile distance in about 13½ hours, with stops at Moscow and the Siberian cities of Omsk and Irkutsk. Soviet sources state that present TU-104s, such as the one shown above, carry 50 passengers. A 70-passenger modification of the plane is on the drawing boards.

AERIAL TIE WILL BIND COMMUNIST WORLD — Newspaper indicates planned route for Red's twin-jet airliners when they go into Red world-spanning passenger service scheduled to begin Oct. 1. The ships, said by Soviet sources to carry 50 passengers, will cruise at altitudes up to 35,000 feet. A 70-passenger modification of the TU-104 is reported on the drawing boards. Fare for the seven-hour Moscow-Irkutsk sector of the run, already in service, is equivalent to about $270 at the official rate of exchange of four rubles for a dollar.

A New Yorker's View Of Pampa

By BOB PEREZ
Pampa News Staff Writer

Since arriving in the state of Texas for the first time to stay, five weeks ago, from the top heavy metropolis of New York, I have been asked time and again just what induced me to come all the way out here; what I think of Pampa now that I am here; and lastly do I think I'll like it here.

The answer to the first one, I feel is quite obvious; to the next two, not so obvious.

Heretofore my answer has been either in the form of an incoherent reply, or I have asked the well meaning individual concerned to "ask me next week."

However, I have been here five weeks, have breathed the same dust that plagues most of us, prior to a small drizzle, have waited half an hour for a seat in Malone's Drug Store and have been approached several times by insurance men interested in selling me a flood policy. And although I would not feel qualified to offer a concrete statement in answer to these queries, I would offer a few impressions and observations I have made in this short time.

Now on to the Grand Prix, my "tour de somethings." I feel particularly fortunate in that my job brings me around people; more so perhaps than any other form of work would. In fact my work is people. Whatever they do, say, or even (sometimes) think. For people are news.

As the late Joseph Pulitzer wisely observed: "There is no such thing as an uninteresting story. There are only reporters who do not know how to present it in an interesting manner." In this regard I would say that a deep understanding of people and human nature are about the most valuable tools a reporter or writer can have. I do not profess to have these tools, but I will say that my short tour here in Pampa has already helped somewhat in the promotion of this end.

I have met a Judge who aside from effectively performing the duties of his office is equally at home in prose, and whose many wise observations have held me at bay and caused me to mull them over in my mind many times after. I have noticed too that more people here drink cherry coke during their "coffee" breaks than any place I have ever been... they also take more "coffee" breaks than any where I have ever been.

The latter part perhaps answers the question which was foremost in my mind during my first few days here as to just why so many people seemed to actually enjoy seemingly perfunctory jobs. I have never seen in New York any office workers who were not but waiting for the first chance they could find to break away and find another job which they would eventually leave again when they had once more reached their nadir point. The reason here seems to be a much more pleasant employer-employee relationship. It seems to me that there are no bosses here, but rather persons who help us out whenever we have any question in our minds in connection with the performance of our duties. I might also inject another observation here, that there is no place I can think of where rich and poor congregate and cooperate so freely together.

I have met a graduate of the University of Notre Dame who only recently realized that he had a voice which was good enough for a church choir; a poor working of a girl, whose husband just recently purchased a plane so that they might spend an occasional week end in Dallas together. . . another office girl who does not consider March 17 as the only time to wear a green dress.

I have met a person who I am told holds the proud title of being the biggest Sheriff in the State of Texas. In fact, I guess I've come in contact with many people all of whom have helped, unknowingly to furthering the formulation of those tools I mentioned before.

However, I think I've said too many things and before I wander on to too many observations in which I would be unqualified, I'd best give myself a little chance to see and learn a little more so that in the future I'll know whereof I speak.

Oh yes, one more thing. . . the other morning for the first time since first coming here the water didn't taste different to me.

Molecular weight is the sum of the weight of the component atoms of any compound.

Birds, seals and turtles have saved the lives of many desert island castaways.

There are as many as 750,000 tiny air cells in an ordinary bottle cork.

In addition to its lightness and resilience, cork is almost impervious to gases and liquids.

Woman Says Health Knows No Barriers

MONTICELLO, Fla., Sept. 29 (UP) — A woman health officer, who was fired for having lunch with a Negro nurse, told the county commissioners Saturday that health knows no color boundaries — not even in the South.

The woman doctor was officially discharged effective Oct. 1 for breaking the segregation customs of this deep South farming section near the Georgia border.

"Lunching with darkies is not very much of a custom in the South," commission chairman Judge B. Shuman told the 32-year-old physician, the state's only woman health officer.

"We're sorry this occurred," Shuman added. "We'll never get another health officer as good as you, but with the people so strong against you, there's nothing else we can do."

He told Dr. Coggins that she had lost the respect of the public and had lost her usefulness as a health officer when she lunched with a Negro nurse in Madison, Fla., last Aug. 22.

Jefferson county was the "first of three counties employing Dr. Coggins to give her a hearing. She has been asked to appear before the commission in Taylor county Monday and in Madison county Wednesday. The three counties which pay her $675 a month, voted "unanimously" to discharge her if she refused to resign.

The commissioners asked her why she had eaten with the Negro but Dr. Coggins declined to go into detail. Earlier, she told reporters that the lunch hour was the only time she could see the Negro on business because of a busy schedule. She said she felt she had professional immunity from some of the South's social customs.

"Health knows no color boundaries, not even in the South and I do not feel I have done anything illegal," she said Saturday.

Nixon Outlines Six-Point Program For Old Folks

By WARREN DUFFEE
ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Sept. 29 (UP) — Vice President Richard M. Nixon unveiled the GOP's bid for the "old folks" vote tonight. He outlined a six-point program designed to enable "our older citizens to enjoy a full life."

The program pledged a "stable dollar" to protect retirement income; more jobs and better housing for older persons; improved health services; better coordination of programs; and increased opportunities for "senior citizens" to share in community activities.

"At the same time he denounced the expanded social security proposals of Democratic presidential nominee Adlai E. Stevenson as "pie-in-the-sky promises."

Irresponsibility Record
Nixon said that if Stevenson's social security proposals are any indication, "a Stevenson administration would set a world's record for irresponsibility."

Stevenson proposed a broad-gauge expansion of social security at Denver last week. It was designed to increase benefits to a level that would enable retired persons to approach the same standard of income they enjoyed when they were working.

Nixon had denounced the proposal several times before in his state, round-the-nation swift as the main political hot carrier for the GOP.

The vice president, still showing traces of hoarseness from his illness several days ago, chose the retirement capital of Florida's West Coast for his major social security speech.

GOP Has Done More
Nixon contended that the Eisenhower administration has done more for retired people than its Democratic predecessors. This is true, he said, because it checked the spiraling rise of inflation.

"Had you saved a dollar and put it in social security in 1942, then retired in the last Truman year of 1962, that dollar would have purchased only 50 cents worth of food and goods," Nixon said. "This was just the same as if Congress had passed a law reducing your social security payments by 50 per cent."

Nixon said that under the Eisenhower administration the number of persons receiving monthly old age security benefits has increased by 60 per cent. He did not mention the fact that some of the expanded coverage voted by Congress was not supported by the administration.

Estes Sees Swing To Demo Ticket Underway

By DAYTON MOORE
ST. CINCINNATI, Ohio, Sept. 29 (UP) — Sen. Estes Kefauver said Saturday night at the end of a 12,000 mile campaign tour that he found a swing to the Democratic presidential ticket underway across the nation.

Winding up a grueling campaign swing through 15 states by plane and auto, the Democratic vice presidential nominee said in a prepared speech here: "We're on our way to victory."

Kefauver said the Democratic presidential ticket has "a wonderful chance of taking" Washington and Oregon and a grand chance of winning... even in such staunchly Republican states as North and South Dakota.

The Midwest was "ablaze with Democratic sentiment," he said. He noted that a poll of farmers in Iowa by a farm publication put the Democratic national ticket ahead of the Republican opposition, the reverse of a pre-convention poll.

Mrs. Lela Engle, 445 Hughes Lanny Harris, Skellytown Mrs. Anna Erskine, Pampa

Mrs. Ruth Huffines, Skellytown CONGRATULATIONS
Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Cranford, 515 N. Zimmers, are parents of a girl born at 4:05 p.m. Friday, weighing 8 lbs., 2½ ozs.

To Tour Southwest

From here, Kefauver flies back to Washington for a day's rest. He will take off Monday for a week's swing through Texas, New Mexico, California, Arizona, Colorado and Oklahoma. After another day of rest he will then fly to Delaware to start another campaign tour, which probably will keep him on the road until the Nov. 6 election.

The No. 2 Democratic candidate aimed his main pitch here — as he had throughout this folksy, hand-shaking campaign swing — at the nation's Joe Smith, the "little people."

He said the mythical Joe Smith whom a delegate tried to place in nomination for vice president at the GOP convention "is the symbol of the average man" — the farmer, small businessman and wage earner.

Won't Find Comfort
"The union Joe Smith won't find any comfort from Dwight Eisenhower, or Richard Nixon, or any of the Republicans," Kefauver said.

The small business man "is being squeezed out — under the Republican big business administration of millionaires," he said. "With farm income constantly dropping lower and lower, we got from the President, speaking in Peoria, Ill., the other night merely a promise to just have patience and sooner or later, some way or another, farmers will be all right," he said.

World's Oldest Man Throws Tantrum

NEW YORK (UP)—The hot-tempered "oldest man in the world" took a look at his biggest city today. George Washington was inaugurated here in the year in which Javier Pereira is believed to have been born.
But the tiny Colombian Indian appeared to have more spiritual kinship with two other events of 1789 — there was a mutiny on the Bounty and the French stormed the Bastille.
Pereira, who is just four feet four inches tall and may be 167 years old, emerged from a hospital after eight days of medical examination Thursday and threw a press conference temper tantrum worthy of a 6-year-old. He stamped his feet as he growled his anger at the noise and flashing photographers' lights.
After he'd stormed out of the news conference and calmed down Pereira returned to describe with gestures a brand new passion—Western movies, television style.
Pereira was examined at New York Hospital - Cornell Medical Center by a team of geriatricians who found him "indeed a very old man" and a remarkably well-preserved one. The hospital said it is not possible to determine the exact age of any adult, but it said that non-medical evidence indicates "that possibly he may be more than 150 years of age."

Dog Biscuits Fall Postmen
MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UP)—The Memphis Post Office reported complete failure in a new test to ward off biting dogs by having postmen carry dog biscuits on their rounds. An unused portion of a biscuit supply was returned to Washington with a note that biting dogs snap that much harder as they leap for the canine goodies.

LOST AND FOUND—"When in trouble—SQUAWK!" Apparently that was the principle that saved this rare palomino Shetland pony colt from who knows what fate. It's shown with its owner, Robert S. Gault, of Richmond, Kan., who raises tiny Shetlands as a hobby. The pony was stolen, but abandoned next day in nearby Iowa. Gault believes the screams of the unweaned pony, uttered when it is hungry, frightened the thieves so that they were afraid to keep the animal longer.

Heard Through The Barryl

By BARRY A. LITTMANN
Pampa News Sports Editor

The form that is supposed to be in college football returned to the scene Saturday as favorites far and wide won.

The only upset of the day according to my eyes was the inability of Georgia Tech to beat SMU by a larger margin than 9-7. Golly, is SMU that good, or is it the friendly confines of the Cotton Bowl that make them so tough? I kind of think it is the latter. While the proof of the pudding won't come next week when the Mustangs journey up to Columbia, Mo. to face a rather hapless Missouri team that got its brains belted out 16-7 yesterday by Purdue, the acid test will come two weeks hence when SMU goes cross-country to play Duke University, who by the way, had no trouble in rolling over the University of Virginia 40-7.

When a ball club goes to tobacco road to play Duke or any of the Carolina schools it's usually tough sledding for the visitors. Many a team on its way to an undefeated season has been upended by one of the Carolina schools. You don't believe me? Well, look at Maryland yesterday. They were favored to run over the Wake Forest Demon Deacons, but had to play all-out football to salvage a 6-0 win. Looks as though Jim Tatum knew when to leave the state for points South.

Although that might be questioned, too. While at Maryland, at least Jumbo Jim had a fair country ball club. Yesterday, he got his heels cooled again by Bud Wilkinson and his strong Oklahoma Sooners to the tune of 36-0. That's two losses in a row for a Tatum coached team to the Sooners. Remember last year's Orange Bowl?

In other scores of the day, Texas A&M got all shaken up as LSU almost came from behind to win a tight and close ball game all the way. The score was 9-6. Actually, safeties played the winning role in two of the biggest games on the card.

Baugh's Cowboys Rope Wichita Shockers, 20-7

WICHITA, Kan., Sept. 29 (UP)—Hardin Simmons University kept its vaunted passing game under wraps most of the way but displayed a hard running attack to defeat the University of Wichita 20-7 before a 12,800 crowd Saturday night.

Sophomore fullback Pete Hart and junior halfback Charlie Masage spearheaded the Cowboys' attack with help from the slick T quarterbacking of Gene Sauer and Ken Ford.

The Sammy Baugh coached Cowboys rolled up 355 net yards rushing but picked up only 28 yards by air. Hart scored two touchdowns for Hardin Simmons on runs of two, and 15 yards.

Masage was the leading rusher of the game with 112 yards. Quarterback Jim Bourn went over from the third yard line after an 86 yard march for Wichita's only touchdown.

Hardin Simmons drove 80 yards in the second period for its first touchdown with Masage going over his left tackle for the last 33 yards. Tackle Burley Polk grabbed a Wichita fumble at the Shocker 36 yard line to set up an other Cowboy touchdown in the

Perryton Rips Clarendon

The Perryton Rangers shellacked the Clarendon Bronchos by the humiliating score of 45-7 before 2500 fans Friday night.

Dan Pearson led the scoring with three touchdowns along with Bob Beck who also had three scores. The seventh touchdown came from Dempsey Gyger.

Turning to the Mid-West for a moment or two, both Michigan teams turned in decisive victories today with Michigan rolling over UCLA, with or without its seniors we don't know, 42-13. Michigan State blasted the highly rated Stanford Indians 21-7. As a matter of fact, all the Big Ten teams had an easy time as they romped through their opponents.

In the East, the perennial top teams, Army, Navy and Pitt all won. Army opened up with their usual easy opponent, VMI the victim this year and Navy humbled William and Mary 39-14. And without the aid of George Welsh and Ronnie Beagle, too. Pitt played the upset winner over Maryland last week, the Syracuse Orange, they came from behind to win 14-7.

Getting back to the Texas area, Baylor blasted Texas Tech 27-0 and Texas U. came from behind to pull out a 7-6 win over the Tulane Green Wave. By the way, we picked that one as our upset of the week and we almost made it. It took some running, passing and guts from Walter Fenderson and his teammates to pull that ball game out of the fire. A Barryl accolade to a fighting Texas team.

And while we're on the subject of upsets, this old selector had a fair country week end for himself. All right we didn't knock 'em dead on the high school front, as a matter of fact, we laid a big egg, but college-wise, look out.

With 19 games completed out of the 20 that we selected, 18 of them are correct with TWO exact scores. If you don't believe me, look at Friday's paper and the Michigan State - Stanford, Ohio State-Nebraska games and see if our scores don't match up exactly and to the point with the scores in this morning's paper. As we write this in the office with the lights down low, we're still waiting for the Arkansas - Oklahoma A&M score to come in. If the Aggies win, we hit 19 out of 20.

Aggies Nose Out LSU, 9-6

By JOHN CORPORA
BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 29 (UP)—Halfback Bobby Conrad Esquivel and center Dee Powell blocked a punt for a safety Saturday night to give Texas A&M a 9 to 6 victory over a slow-footed Louisiana State University team before 61,000.

Conrad, an elusive 20-year-old junior from Clifton, Tex., took a pitchout from quarterback Roddy Osborne, faded to his right and hit Esquivel, also a halfback, who was alone in the end zone, to put the Aggies ahead to stay in the first period. Halfback Lloyd Taylor converted.

Powell Scores Safety
Then in the third period, LSU halfback Olin Renfro was back on his 11 to kick when Powell burst through to block the punt and the ball bounced through the end zone and out of play to give the Aggies the safety.

LSU's lone touchdown came in the fading minutes of the game on the second of its two serious drives of the night. Halfback J. W. Broadnax, a sophomore, capped an 85-yard drive when he took a pitchout from quarterback Win Turner, swept wide to his right and went 10 yards to score. Fullback Bob De Crosta failed to convert.

The Aggies, paced by Lloyd Taylor, Osborne and halfback John Crow, a Louisiana native, kept the pressure on LSU throughout the night and threatened repeatedly. In all but the lone touchdown drive, however, the Tiger line, headed by Earl Leggett, a 225-pound tackle, halted the thrusts in the shadow of the Tiger goal.

Aggie Backs Paster
The faster Aggie team frequently threw LSU's slow-footed backs for losses, or held them to short gains, while A&M's horde of speedy backs went through and around the Tiger line.

Ironically Broadnax was the leading rusher of the night, with 58 yards in 12 carries, while Taylor got 56.

A&M rushed and passed for 13 first downs to 10 for LSU. However, until the half the Tigers had managed only two to eight for the Aggies.

Midland Bulldogs Bite Harvesters

A BULLDOG ON THE LOOSE — But not for long, as Dickie Mauldin, shown above wearing number 42, comes up to make the tackle. Jim Hopkins, number 55, gets set to take a fall, while Robert Langford moves over to help out Mauldin.

Houston Raps Maroons, 18-7

HOUSTON, Tex., Sept. 29 (UP)—A "must win" Houston team, stopped cold on the ground, took to the air to beat Mississippi State 18-7 Saturday night to prove J. W. Broadnax, a sophomore, capped an 85-yard drive when he took a pitchout from quarterback Win Turner, swept wide to his right and went 10 yards to score. Fullback Bob De Crosta failed to convert.

Houston, fired up by a month-long stadium - filling campaign aimed at wrangling an invitation to join the Southwestern Conference, scored in the second, third and fourth periods, with the long arm of senior quarterback Don Flynn finding the target twice.

Baylor Bears Stomp Over Texas Tech, 27-0

By PRESTON MCGRAW

WACO, Tex., Sept. 29 (UP)—Quarterback Doyle Taylor threw two touchdown passes and supervised the scoring of a third Saturday as Baylor University beat Texas Tech, the newest member of the Southwest Conference, 27 to 0.

Fifteen thousand persons saw Baylor introduce Tech to the cut-throat competition of its new conference. Tech was voted into the Southwest Conference last spring, but Saturday's game was its first with a charter member.

Tech was plainly overmatched, and on top of that got a bad break when guard Hal Broadfoot intercepted a pass on the Baylor 40, only to fumble with it one foot from the goal, where Baylor recovered.

Taylor's scoring passes were thrown to halfback Delbert Shofner. The first Taylor-to-Shofner scoring pass went 50 yards. The second went 23. Fullback Larry Hickman ran 46 yards for another touchdown.

The other Baylor touchdown was scored from the one-yard line, but the play that took the ball to within scoring range of the goal was a 55-yard run by alternate quarterback Bobby Jones.

The touchdown that Jones set up with his 55-yard run wasn't the only one in which Taylor wasn't involved.

Baylor's first scoring drive started on a punt runback for its own 19. Two runs and a Taylor touchdown.

Score by periods:
Baylor 13 7 7 0-27

Baylor scoring: Touchdowns: Shofner, 2 (50, pass-run from Taylor) and 23, pass-run from Taylor) Hickman (46, run) Jones (1, run), Conversions: Beall 2, Helms.

Texas' payoff score came in the third period a few minutes after Taylor had one out ahead. Quarterback Joe Clements, whose passing was hampered sharply throughout the afternoon by a charging Tulane line, hit halfback Jack Hobbs in the end zone with a six-yard toss.

The lanky 20-year-old Fenderson, a junior from Houston, Tex., calmly gave Texas its victory.

The elusive halfback, however, was a one-man show. When he wasn't punting or running, he was passing. And his charging dashes around end and through the line frequently kept Tulane off balance and picked up key yardage that allowed Texas to control the ball.

In the first period, he caught a 59-yard pass from quarterback Vince Matthews that carried to the Tulane three. However, Tulane's line headed up by glibby Wilbur Troxclair and Jim Zimmerman at guard, threw the Texans back and took over four plays later on the eight.

Tulane's touchdown came on a brilliant 76-yard drive on the opening series of plays after the half with quarterback Gene Newton sparkling on the drive.

Newton hit Virgil Jester with a 17-yard pass, then went 17 yards himself to push to the Texas' one. Newton went over for the score, ...

The Pampa Harvesters took the road for their third game of the year Friday night, as they journeyed south to play the Midland Bulldogs. With nothing going right, for them, they came out on the short end of a 27-0 score.

Immediately after Mauldin's booming kick that went through the end zone, the Bulldogs bit back. With Boyce and Cooper dominating the ball, they moved upfield to 48 for a first down. Boyce moved for two more and Dehls piled him up setting the stage for the first bad break of the night. Cooper, the lefty quarterback, faded to pass and had his toss intercepted by Dale Lake on the Pampa 35. The runback to the midfield stripe went for naught as an illegal use of the hands violation left the ball in possession of the Bulldogs. ...

Before the drive could be finally stopped, Cooper hit a couple of passes and showed all that he was going to be hard to deal with the rest of the night. A fourth down screenpass from Cooper to Kinney gained a short two yards as Gene Devers shot in to break it up and Pampa took over deep in their own territory on their own 17.

The Harvesters couldn't do anything as a tight defense thrown up by the Midlanders forced them to punt after three in effectual running plays.

After a first down, the Bulldogs found things difficult and had to punt out of danger to the Pampa 15. The Harvesters tried the inside of the Bulldog forward wall and found that so tough that a fumble ensued causing Midland to recover, on the Pampa 14. Hammond set sail for Midland and found the Pampa line just as formidable as he fumbled with L. Langford recovering. Pampa again couldn't go anywhere and Mauldin kicked 39 yards to the Midland 42.

From there, Larry Cooper got serious and after handing off or pitching out to Boyce for six straight plays, he finally threw long and far into the end zone and the pass was batted away. Cooper and company were not to be denied, however, as he finally carried over from the two after letting Hedges and Boyce set things up.

Pampa suffered an injury to Jim Hopkins on the sequence of plays which incapacitated him for the remainder of the game. Midland also added the extra point to lead 7-0.

After the kickoff, Pampa could gain but a couple of yards and again, for the third time in the quarter, Mauldin punted into Midland territory.

Ground plays brought the ball upfield in a hurry with Hedges leading the assault. A long Cooper-to-Hedges pass that covered 27 yards on the field but was actually more as Cooper was chased all over the turf by half of the Pampa line, brought the ball to the one. Again Cooper sneaked over for the score. And the extra point was converted to open the gap to 14-0.

The second half continued along the same way. Pampa couldn't get started at all and Cooper kept right on running and pitching with not much in his way.

The Bulldogs opened up the score to 20-0 after intercepting a Mauldin aerial on the 32 Hedges, took it over from the three. Cooper set the marker up with a 16 out with two dashes totalling 13 yards. The conversion attempt failed.

Pampa tried desperately to get back into the ball game but couldn't. They got something going moving the ball from the 25 to the 41 on three plays. But they got stopped there as Haisel fumbled and lost the ball.

The line backs brought the ball down to the Pampa 33 where Cooper decided to get another marker in a hurry. He did too, as he threw deep to Owens who took it in stride and went into the end zone for the TD. The point was made to make it 27-0 for the Bulldogs.

The Bulldogs weren't going to quit either as they tried to roll the score up the remainder of the game. They were unable to do so however, as some fierce Harvester defense maintained them every time. The Harvester offense was held to a stand still though by an alert and strong Midland team, alert and strong Midland team.

West Texas Wins 45-0
CANYON, Tex., Sept. 29 (UP)—Although he played less than a half, fullback Charles Sanders scored four touchdowns and led West Texas State to a one-sided 45-0 victory over Sul Ross Saturday night.

The 190-pound junior scored on runs of 15, 9, 4 and 2 yards as he gained a total of 89 yards. Sanders scored all four touchdowns in the first half to give the Bulldogs a comfortable 27-0 lead at intermission.

The West Texas reserves continued the onslaught in the second half, pushing across two scores in the third quarter and another in the last period.

Other West Texas scoring was made by halfback Dale Wiley, who scored from five yards out, by Lindley Davis on a two-yard run, and by Charles Denny, on a one-yard smash with one second remaining in the game.

Irish Lose To Hollis, 27-0
The Shamrock Irish met the Hollis, Okla. Tigers in Oklahoma Friday night and came out on the short end of a 27-0 score. The Tigers salted away the game in the last quarter when they picked up three touchdowns to add to their 6-0 lead.

Before the drive could be finally stopped, Cooper hit a couple of passes and showed all that he was going to be hard to deal with the rest of the night. A fourth down screenpass from Cooper to Kinney gained a short two yards as Gene Devers shot in to break it up and Pampa took over deep in their own territory on their own 17.

The Harvesters couldn't do anything as a tight defense thrown up by the Midlanders forced them to punt after three in effectual running plays.

After a first down, the Bulldogs found things difficult and had to punt out of danger to the Pampa 15. The Harvesters tried the inside of the Bulldog forward wall and found that so tough that a fumble ensued causing Midland to recover, on the Pampa 14. Hammond set sail for Midland and found the Pampa line just as formidable as he fumbled with L. Langford recovering. Pampa again couldn't go anywhere and Mauldin kicked 39 yards to the Midland 42.

From there, Larry Cooper got serious and after handing off or pitching out to Boyce for six straight plays, he finally threw long and far into the end zone and the pass was batted away. Cooper and company were not to be denied, however, as he finally carried over from the two after letting Hedges and Boyce set things up.

Pampa suffered an injury to Jim Hopkins on the sequence of plays which incapacitated him for the remainder of the game. Midland also added the extra point to lead 7-0.

After the kickoff, Pampa could gain but a couple of yards and again, for the third time in the quarter, Mauldin punted into Midland territory.

Ground plays brought the ball upfield in a hurry with Hedges leading the assault. A long Cooper-to-Hedges pass that covered 27 yards on the field but was actually more as Cooper was chased all over the turf by half of the Pampa line, brought the ball to the one. Again Cooper sneaked over for the score. And the extra point was converted to open the gap to 14-0.

The second half continued along the same way. Pampa couldn't get started at all and Cooper kept right on running and pitching with not much in his way.

The Bulldogs opened up the score to 20-0 after intercepting a Mauldin aerial on the 32 Hedges, took it over from the three. Cooper set the marker up with a 16 out with two dashes totalling 13 yards. The conversion attempt failed.

Pampa tried desperately to get back into the ball game but couldn't. They got something going moving the ball from the 25 to the 41 on three plays. But they got stopped there as Haisel fumbled and lost the ball.

The line backs brought the ball down to the Pampa 33 where Cooper decided to get another marker in a hurry. He did too, as he threw deep to Owens who took it in stride and went into the end zone for the TD. The point was made to make it 27-0 for the Bulldogs.

The Bulldogs weren't going to quit either as they tried to roll the score up the remainder of the game. They were unable to do so however, as some fierce Harvester defense maintained them every time. The Harvester offense was held to a stand still though by an alert and strong Midland team, alert and strong Midland team.

White Deer Edges Canadian

By FRED M. PARKER
Pampa News Staff Writer
Wow! Fans who were fortunate enough to witness the football battle between the White Deer Bucks and the Canadian Wildcats in Canadian Friday night were given a full 48 minutes of action packed football as the Bucks managed to come out on the long end of a 20-14 score.

White Deer took the ball across the double line early in the first quarter to take the lead. The tally was made when Earnest Reusch connected with a pass from Don Esary. Jerry Mills carried the pigskin across for the extra point and the Bucks took a 7 to 0 lead.

The Wildcats took the kickoff but were unable to advance the ball and finally had to kick on the fourth down.

The Bucks took the ball but after several short runs Alton Hill fumbled the ball and the Wildcats' Dennis Hill came off the ball last and the Wildcats took possession.

The Wildcats could not advance the ball and finally kicked to the Bucks 48. The Bucks suffered a five yard loss but on the second play Mills broke through the Wildcats defense to gallop 57 yards for the second tally. The try for the extra point was unsuccessful and the Bucks led by 13 to 0 with less than three minutes left in the first quarter.

The Wildcats took the ball on the kickoff and after a series of plays including a 40 yard run by Kenny Abraham they managed to cross the end zone when Johnny Crist broke through from the 15. The try for the extra point was without success and the game stood at 13 for White Deer and six for Canadian as the first quarter ended.

The two teams shuffled back and forth at the never ending fast pace for the first seven minutes of the second quarter without either side managing to score. With about 4 1/2 minutes left in the first half Dennis Hill intercepted a Buck pass and eluded the Bucks for a 60 yard broken field sprint to score the Wildcats' second touchdown. Again the try for extra point was unsuccessful and the scores stood at 13 to 12.

The Bucks were crowded back into their end zone and when they tried to kick off the Wildcats were successful in batting the ball back into the end zone for a safety and the two points put them out in front by 14 to 13.

Neither team was successful in scoring again as the clock ran out the remainder of the first half.

During the third quarter the ball passed back and forth between the two teams for about ten minutes without either team being able to cross into pay dirt. With one minute and 17 seconds left in the third quarter Esary was able to connect with Reusch from the five for a touchdown. Hill was successful in running the ball over for the extra point and the Bucks took the lead by a score of 20 to 14.

During the remainder of the third quarter and all of the fourth quarter neither team was able to get within scoring distance of the double stripe. The Bucks, under the able direction of the quarterback, Esary, controlled the ball and were successful in keeping the Wildcats from scoring again.

Even though the Bucks controlled the ball and totaled up an enormous amount of yardage in the final quarter they were held by the Wildcats but the stalling tactics of Esary managed to run out the clock with the Bucks still in lead.

Miami Rips Channing

MIAMI — (Special) — The Miami Warriors rolled all over the Channing Eagles Friday afternoon by the tune of 26-6. The game was played at Channing.

Miami started out slowly, tied at the half with the Eagles, 6-6 but came back with a terrific third quarter attack to clinch the ball game. Tobey Cunningham scored for Miami in the first half and Carr went over for Channing.

Sam Harris started the scoring off in the third quarter by intercepting a pass and going all the way with it. Lewis Roger and Johnny Lopez followed suit with markers soon after. Harris and Lopez each made an extra point too.

Miami, but for a number of penalties, could have had more points. Johnny Lopez hit pay dirt in the first quarter only to have the run called back for a violation. Sam Harris also ran into the end zone twice and had both of those jaunts called back for penalties. Harris led Miami's strong rushing attack with 153 yards out the total of 269 Brown was Channing's top rusher with 85 yards.

TV Playoffs If NL Race Is Tied

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UP) — Plans to televise possible playoff games between the Milwaukee Braves and the Brooklyn Dodgers have been completed. If the two teams wind up in a tie after Sunday's final game of the National League season, they'll meet in a best-of-three playoff to be televised nationally by NBC beginning on Monday.

Lopez Quits Indians; Harris New Bosox Aide; Lary Wins 21; Reds Tie HR Record

By BILL LOFTUS
CLEVELAND, Sept. 29 (UP) — Al Lopez, tense and disappointed because his teams were too often bridesmaids to the New York Yankees, quit Saturday as manager of the Cleveland Indians.

The announcement came following a one-hour conference at Municipal Stadium between Lopez, General Manager Hank Greenberg and Nate Dolin, operations director for the team.

"I've gone through six tough seasons," said Lopez, who reportedly had been on the verge of quitting once before after the 1953 season.

"I felt a certain amount of tension and I have had the feeling that I didn't achieve the results desired."

Known for Patience

Thus, the man, who became known as the "serene sinner" because of his patience during the Indians' many trials and tribulations, stepped out of a job in which he had produced one American League pennant champion and five second-placers.

He became the second American League pilot to throw in the towel this past week. Bucky Harris resigned as manager of the Detroit Tigers Thursday.

Lopez emphasized he was not retiring from baseball. Following Sunday's season windup with the Detroit Tigers here, he will go to his Tampa, Fla., home where he will be "open to offers."

Among the major league teams known to be in the market for new managers are the Tigers and Chicago Cubs.

"Lopez' decision comes as a great disappointment to me," declared Greenberg, who added that he had no replacement immediately in mind.

Outstanding Record

"Al's record has been outstanding by any standards. Regarding his ability as a manager, I feel as I always have since bringing him here six years ago. He's one of the best."

Greenberg, who earlier had maintained he would not discuss 1957 plans with Lopez until after the 1956 season or near its close, denied that the delay in sitting down with Lopez had any effect on the manager's decision.

Lopez has been in organized ball since 1925 when he broke in with Tampa of the Florida State League. A former catcher for Brooklyn, Boston and Pittsburgh in the National League, Lopez, 48, came to the Tribe as a player in a deal with the Pirates for Gene Woodling in 1947.

CHICAGO Sept. 29 (UP) — Pinch-hitter Smoky Burgess smashed a home run that tied a major league team homer-record for Cincinnati Saturday and the Redlegs went on to beat the Chicago Cubs 9-6.

The win kept Cincinnati's flickering pennant hopes alive, pending the outcome of Saturday's Milwaukee and Brooklyn games.

The loss also tied a record for the Cubs. It was their 93rd setback of the season, matching their previous poorest season in the loss column in 1949.

The Redlegs were trailing 5-2 in the eighth when Burgess hit his home run off Cubs starter Sam Jones. When the ball went over the right field wall, 10 feet inside the foul line, it was homer 221 for the Redlegs this season. It also scored shortstop Roy McMillan who had walked.

The home run record for a single team was set in 1947 by the New York Giants, and tied Saturday.

minute see-saw battle on Mill B. twice before 42 players had taken hits to left field after two were out in the 13th.

Ted Williams got his 400th at bat but had only one single in six tries and his average dropped three points to .345, thus assuring the Yankees' Mickey Mantle of the American League batting crown. Mantle, nursing a strained groin muscle, walked in a pinch-hitting role but picked up a run batted in to bring his league-leading total to 129, three more than Detroit's Al Kaline. His average remained at .353.

Harris Helps Sox
NEW YORK (UP) — Bucky Harris, who resigned as Detroit manager last Thursday, will be named assistant to the general manager with the Boston Red Sox next week, it was learned today by United Press.

The popular 59-year old Harris will succeed Harry (Ted) McGraw to a post that calls for him to serve under Red Sox General Manager Joe Cronin.

Harris' duties with the Red Sox will be similar to those performed by McGraw, who discovered Pee Wee Reese for Boston only to see him attain stardom for Brooklyn, and was generally considered the Bosox chief scout. In Harris, the Red Sox also will have themselves a handy "insurance man" in case they decide to supplant field manager Mike Higgins some day.

Anty Wins 20th
PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 29 (UP) — Jackie Brandt's two-run homer in the first inning made Johnny Antonelli a 20-game winner Saturday night as the New York Giants defeated the Philadelphia Phillies, 2-0.

Antonelli, winning his seventh in a row and his 11th in his last 12 starts, limited the Phillies to four singles to enable the Giants to oust the Pittsburgh Pirates from sixth place. He had lost 13.

Army-bound Brandt slammed his 12th homer of the season off Harvey Haddix with two out and Don Mueller on base by virtue of a blooper single. The outburst was enough to send Haddix to his eighth defeat against 13 victories, although he pitched a five hitter and struck out seven.

Mickey Can't Miss
NEW YORK, Sept. 29 (UP) — An error by second-baseman Billy Martin enabled the Boston Red Sox to score two unearned runs in the 13th inning Saturday and post a 7-5 triumph over the New York Yankees as two major league records for players used were established.

A crowd of 15,544 saw the Yankees use 26 men for one new standard. The Red Sox employed 18 men, raising the total participating in the contest to 44, the other mark. The old one-team record was 25 set by the New York Giants earlier this season while part in a game.

"It doesn't cost anymore to feed the best than it does just average dogs." With this idea in mind Sibley Jines, Perryton, some years back, brought into the Panhandle some of the best bred dogs available in the U.S.A.

Spunkey Creek Boy, white, liver and ticked pointer whelped 1-10-35 was about the greatest producer of winning pointers in history. Mr. Jines had a daughter of this dog.

The Texas Ranger, another pointer whelped 4-2-37 was a ten time Champion. A record that has never been equaled. Mr. Jines had an old Peggy, a daughter of this winner.

Amazon's Village Girl, whelped 1-10-35, a female that will rank among the all time producers in history. Mr. Jines owns a pointer that is a double grandson of this female.

Warhooch Jake, National Champion in 1955. Mr. Jines had a litter of pups by Jake and out of a female that is a double grand-daughter of Champion The Texas Ranger. This litter was advertised in the "American Field" (the only recognized authority on bird dogs).

It was a small wonder that the letter submitted below was received from Mr. Kichinosuke Myodo, Japan after some correspondence. Mr. Sibley Jines, Perryton, Texas, U.S.A. Gentleman:

Thank you very much for your favorable letter together with the photographs. And I appreciate very much for your puppy found, and I am also satisfied with the lineage of which I am eager to get the puppies of C. H. Warhooch Jake and I noted from your letter that you have now three bitches, however, I want to have one couple of puppies of male and female, therefore, please arrange like that to have on each. In case you could not do so, I can wait until next year.

As I intend to train these pups in Japan at hunting place near my home, I need pups and do not want the trained blood. In this point please do not misunderstand.

Meanwhile, I am much obliged for your kindly sending me the pictures and lineage and now eagerly waiting for your reply, while I shall talk much of the picture now I have.

Very truly yours
Kichinosuke Myodo

No Texas Parallel
Biologists for the Game and Fish Commission recall no Texas parallel for the Oregon tragedy in which eighteen mature antelope and eighteen unborn antelope perished in a single traffic crash. The herd was struck by a car when the animals suddenly wheeled across a highspeed highway. Both the driver and the car escaped with minor damage. Texas technicians said single fatalities among wildlife are common place, but the multi-mortality phase of this state has never even approached the Oregon catastrophe.

Patience Personified
Aquatic Biologist Leo Lewis, who supervised the Game and Fish Commission's record selective kill of rough fish at Buffalo lake, said the cleanup called for maximum patience. An estimated one hundred tons of rough fish were dispatched by rotenone treatment. Hog raisers, ranchers and farmers, some of them using the residue for fertilizer, moved in quickly. "But," said Lewis, "There naturally was some slight inconvenience to the folks in the path of the winds blowing off the lake." Last reports, according to Lewis, were that it was well worth the trouble, since limit catches of crappie were caught within a very few days after the rotening process. The game fish were hungry because their favorite shad had been cleaned.

Incidentally, the quantity of rotenone used was 1800 lbs.

Skyrocket Blow Up Lefors Pirates, 37-6

By JOEL COMBS
Pampa News Managing Editor
The Lefors Pirates, after conducting themselves in upset fashion through the first quarter and a half, fell to the Wellington Skyrockets in a football game played in Lefors Friday, 37-6.

The Pirates fell to Wellington's overpowering ground and pass attack built around junior halfback Jerry Elbert, who weighs 190 pounds.

The victory for Wellington may have been a costly one, though, as Elbert was twice taken out of the game injured, the last time helped off by coaches.

In defeat, the Pirates were proud. An inexperienced crew, they fought gallantly in the early stages of the game and drew first blood when quarterback Tommy Johnson found pay dirt from two yards out in the second quarter.

Pirate end Tex Nolan dropped a pass in the end zone in an extra point try that went for naught and that was it for the Buccaneers.

Wellington scored on the first play after the ensuing kickoff when Elbert scampered 57 yards on a pitchout.

For the second Rocket TD, quarterback Pat Wilkins tossed an aerial to end Don Hood who raced 12 yards to make the score at half-time, Lefors, 6; Wellington, 12.

The Skyrockets, a class AA team, came back even stronger in the second half and scored on a pass from Elbert to left end Randal Raburn in a play that covered 59 yards. Wilkins kicked the only Rocket extra point of the night.

The fourth invader touchdown was scored when quarterback Wilkins ran 12 yards on a keeper play.

End Harris Wood scored the fifth Rocket tally on a pass from Elbert in a play that covered 20 yards.

The final Wellington score came on a pass from Wilkins to halfback Maxie Tarver, who scored from the five yard line.

Coach H. W. Callan's Pirates were led by tackle Mike Nichols, who played his regular heads up game. Other Buccaneers who deserved mention include: quarterback Johnson, fullback Howard Bradford, guard Warren Chisum, halfback Billy Fulton and end Winfred Cates.

This Friday, Lefors plays at Panhandle.

Value Of Television Dramas Increases

TV-Radio
By JACK GAVER
NEW YORK, Sept. 29 (UP)—A writer walked into Worthington Miner's office the other day with a new original hour drama for television and asked $11,000 for its one-time use on the air.

"He is a good writer and he had a good script, too," said Miner, "but I couldn't pay that sort of money. But I suspect that someone else will, someone with a bigger budget than I have."

Miner's budget, of course, is not exactly mediocre since he is the head man of the "Kaiser Aluminum" sequences on tape instead of film.

"Taped TV, which isn't far Tuesday in the NBC network at 8:30 p.m."

This is indicative of the rise in value of original dramas for TV, although it is by no means representative, being about double what a top writer for the medium gets these days as a general rule. While refusing to mention specific sums for specific properties, Miner indicated that $7,500 is a very big price for the script of an out-standing author, with $5,000 nearer the average for same; and, of course, lesser sums for scripts from lesser lights.

Miner has seen TV dramatic writing come a long way. His picture, "The Big Wave," by Pearl Buck there as near the field as the original head of the CBS "Studio One" hour. Another notable feature is eight years ago after a long and distinguished career as a director of stage plays. In the early TV days, the writer was paid little, and only in the past three years or so has the price reached any sort of a respectable level.

"However," he said, "the TV writer who turns out a script that attracts attention these days is almost certain to wind up with a sale of it to the movies or to a former movie studio in Brook- stage or both. TV has become a very respectable showcase for worthwhile dramas, and, of course, there must be a limit to what TV can pay for the one-time use of a script."

New Writers Appear

These outside financial attractions have taken away some of TV's foremost writers, for the time being at least, but Miner said that new people are coming along all the time with worth-while things for the medium.

As the executive producer of a live dramatic series, Miner said he is looking forward to the time when it will be possible to put TV sequences on tape instead of film.

"Taped TV, which isn't far away," he said, "will be a tremendous asset in the production of a live show. Various episodes that can't be done in a studio—location stuff—can be put on tape, and incorporated into a live drama much more effectively than can be done today by trying to combine filmed sections with live performances. Live TV should gain tremendously from tape."

"Brooklyn Two," the largest TV studio ever to be built from the ground up specifically for color, gets its first workout Sunday.

'Wonder Drug' Use On Farm Increases

On the Farm Front
By BERNARD BRENNER
WASHINGTON, Sept. 29 (UP)—Chances are better than 50-50 that the beef, pork or chicken you eat nowadays was raised on a diet of antibiotic "wonder drugs," the Agriculture Department reports.

A survey by the department's marketing service indicates farmers also are turning rapidly to other chemicals to make animals healthier and help them grow faster.

Synthetic female hormones now go into many factory-mixed feeds for beef cattle and poultry raisers, the department said. Antibiotics go to the farm in feeds, concentrates and mixtures for adding to drinking water.

Antibiotics Added
More than half the factory-made feeds checked in the survey contained antibiotics such as penicillin, terramycin and aureomycin. Many poultry feeds contained arsenic compounds which promote growth and seem to improve feathering.

Among other growth-promoters added to livestock feeds recently is vitamin B12, first discovered in 1948 and now appearing in about half of all factory feed bags, the department said.

Still another, used on a smaller scale, is a group of detergents similar to products housewives use to wash clothes. Department officials said detergents are used in feed because they have an "imagined" effect on germs. Detergents probably "have a limited future in competition with the superior antibiotics," officials said.

Adopt Faster
Agriculture Department livestock experts said farmers have adopted antibiotics and other feed additives much faster than they usually accept research developments.

Many of the growth-promoters which have become common in the past five years have been found practical only within the last 10 years.

The hormones, antibiotics and other growth-promoting substances are found chiefly in factory-mixed feeds because most of them must be used in very small quantities. The agriculture department said it takes good equipment to distribute the chemicals properly through feeds in compliance with food and drug administration requirements.

Other Developments
New fat measurement—Agriculture Department research workers have found a new, improved method of finding the fat content of living animals.

The new fat test can provide a basis for better selection of breeding stock and give scientists new information on changes in growing and fattening animals, scientists said. It can also give a better guide to the sales value of meat animals.

The new "sleep test," devised by department scientists Louis

Feinstein and F. J. Fulmine, relies on two sleep-producing drugs—thiopental and kemithal. Feinstein and Fulmine found that the faster the test animals, the less they slept under the influence of the drugs.

Most other known fat measurement tests cannot be used on live animals, or give varying results on different live specimens.

Spreading Alfalfa
Farmers may some day be able to plant high-producing alfalfa strains which spread, producing several new plants from each "mother" plant.

State and federal research workers in Kansas, Nebraska, Nevada, North Carolina, Pennsylvania and Utah are experimenting with a large group of spreading alfalfas, the Agriculture Department's research service says.

These so-called "Canadian" alfalfas spread by sending up new plants from their underground roots. In a test in Kansas one such plant produced 48 new plants "crowns." Another type spreads vigorously in Oregon and nearby areas but not in other regions.

Scientists said none of the presently known spreading alfalfa types are productive enough for wide commercial use. Research workers are crossing them with outstanding hay-producing alfalfas to develop practical new varieties for farmers.

Polio Shots Prove Effective

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Public Health Service said today that no child who has received three shots of Salk vaccine has come down with paralytic polio this year.

Dr. David E. Price, assistant surgeon general, also disclosed that the record among children who have received only two shots has been "awfully good," although some did get polio.

Price made the statements amid indications that 1956 will be one of the lightest polio seasons since the unusually low year of 1947.

A sharp drop in new cases last week provided strong evidence that this year's peak has been passed. So far there have been only 11,503 cases compared to 21,751 for 1955.

Farm Income Rise Predicted By Ag Boys

By BERNARD BRENNER
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP)—The Agriculture Department still expects farm income this year to top 1955 levels despite a drop in farm prices for the third straight month.

The department reported Friday that farm prices, a key political issue in this election year, dropped nearly one-half of 1 per cent in the month ended Sept. 15.

Farm prices started a steady rise in January and continued to rise through mid-June. Then they began to decline.

The Agriculture Department also reported that farm production and living costs declined one-third of 1 per cent last month. This put the farm parity index in mid-September at 82 per cent, the same as at mid-August but 2 per cent below a year ago.

The farm parity index is the legal measure of the farmers' purchasing power compared with the prices he receives. When he gets 100 per cent of parity, the farmer is said to be receiving a "fair" price.

Don Paarlberg, economic aide to Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson, said the mid-September price report does not change official department forecasts that net farm income this year will top 1955 levels.

During the first nine months of this year, prices received by farmers averaged 2 per cent below the same period of 1955. The average parity price for the first nine months of 1956 now stands at 83 per cent.

However, Department economists noted that while prices plunged sharply in the last three months of last year they are expected to hold close to current levels for the remainder of 1956.

mine to what extent the reduction was due to the widespread use of polio vaccine," Price said, "we can conclude on the basis of last year's tests that the millions of additional children who were vaccinated this year enjoyed a high degree of protection."

Any toy that can be washed with soap and water is safer for a child to play with than one that is uncleanable.

Washable silk becomes weak in water, so it should not be rubbed, twisted or wrung when wet.

Farm Page Weekly Grain

FORT WORTH (UP)—Weekly grain:

Trading was light and prices were mixed at southwest cash grain markets this week, according to the Agricultural Marketing Service in its Friday-through-Friday review.

Milo went up 4c per 100 lbs. and oats 2 1/4c a bushel. Barley gained a penny on the low end of the range and was steady on the high.

On the lower side, yellow corn slipped 4c a bu., while corn 1 to 2c and wheat a half cent a bushel. Continued drought in the milo-producing areas with resulting lower yields helped push prices higher. Milo closed Friday at $2.32 to $2.37 per 100 pounds.

Since nearly all Texas and nearly all barley and oats are now gone, prices moved forward to the Kansas City or St. Louis basis. This left No. 2 white oats at 93 1/4 to 95 3/4c a bu., and No. 2 barley at $1.40 to $1.42.

With corn declining at Chicago and Kansas City, prices declined here. At the week's close, No. 2

GRAY COUNTY Soil Conservation District News

By JACK DOUGLAS
Work Unit Conservationist

The Soil Conservation District of Gray County will hold an election for an SCD supervisor in sub-division 3 this Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at the Back School, located 10 miles north of McLean.

The election will be followed by a farm meeting during which Evelyn Mason, ASC office manager, and Ralph Thomas, county agent, will discuss the Soil Bank program. Jack Douglas of the Soil Conservation Service will discuss grasses.

Felton Webb, supervisor for sub-division 3, urged each farmer and rancher in the sub-division to attend the meeting.

To be eligible to vote, a person must own land in the sub-division. To be a supervisor, a person must live in the district, own land in the sub-division he represents and be actively engaged in farming and ranching.

Soil Conservation Districts are run by resident farmers and ranchers through their elected supervisors.

White corn was quoted at $1.74 to $1.76 a bu. and No. 2 yellow at $1.71 to $1.74.

Wheat weakened largely in sympathy with northern markets, leaving No. 1 hard wheat, ordinary protein content at $2.43 1/2 to $2.51.

All these prices are based on wholesale carlots, Texas common freight rates.

In Oklahoma, wheat was steady, ranging from $2 at Guyton and Hooker to $2.08 at Frederick. Alva, Blanton, El Reno, Enid, Kingfisher and Yukon paid $2.03 for wheat.

Milo was unchanged at $1.95 per 100 lbs. at Frederick to $2.40 at Alva. Ada and Enid paid $2.25.

THE GEOGRAPHY OF HEART DISEASE—The U.S. Public Health Service says where you live affects your chances of getting a coronary heart disease, according to a report recently published. Newsmap above, from PHS data, shows coronary heart disease death rates per 100,000 population in white males and females, based on the 1950 census. Highest death rates among males (305-394 per 100,000) were found in New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware and Maryland in the East, California and Nevada in the West. Louisiana was the sole Southern state in the 305-394 incidence group. "High count" states were pretty much the same for women, except Vermont and Illinois were added and Louisiana dropped to the 121-144-per-100,000 rate. New York had the highest rate for males, 393.8 and New Mexico the lowest, 191.1.

The New George Gobel Show Has New Gal Singer

By ALINE MOSBY
United Press Staff Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—There'll be no forehead rubbing on the George Gobel television show this season, for Gobel's new "Cinderella" singer, pretty Carol Bennett, towers five feet ten inches in heels over the pint-sized comedian.

Today Carol is rehearsing for the first Gobel show of the season—a 21-year-old college student-singer who's virtually unknown except for a local TV show in New York and a few network appearances.

But as of the Gobel show a week from tonight, she'll find herself in the spotlight as the replacement for pretty, perky Peggy King, last year's forehead rubber with George.

"I'm signed for first show and if it works out I'll be on some others," Carol said excitedly between rehearsals.

Brunette Carol appears to be more of the elegant type than Peggy King, who boasts operatic training in her native New York.

Carol Bennett is but one of the many changes on the Gobel show.

Producer-director Hal Kanter, who guided Gobel to his great television success two seasons ago, bowed out this year to be a movie maker at RKO.

Under a new production staff the "new" Gobel will sing and dance. The domestic comedy skits, with Jeff Donnell as Alice, will be used "only when the writers happen to think of a funny one," and a spokesman says. Jeff will get first call on the Alice part "and if she isn't available we'll get somebody else."

"This way the program will be more flexible," the spokesman adds.

The new singer on the show is a night student at Hunter college in New York. She started singing in cocktail lounges two years ago to pay for her voice lessons.

"My family (her father's a businessman) never took me seriously," she laughed. "I had a trip for a while. But only recently did they realize I meant it when I said I'd be a singer."

In March of 1955 she got on the Arthur Godfrey show and "Chance of a Lifetime." That brought her guest jobs on other shows and a Capitol record contract. Last spring Gobel picked her over two dozen singers—many of them stars—as the vocalist for the first show. If she clicks, she'll be

Peg O' Pampa

IT'S OFFICIAL . . . Yes, it is officially fall, although it may not feel much like it . . . but the days are getting slightly cooler . . . just comfortable, not unbearably hot . . . and the fall scenes are enticing . . . new suits . . . new hats . . . the kids running to and from school . . . the band practicing on the school grounds . . . some doing place-kicking in pantomime . . . others "stepping high" . . . all organized confusion until the whistle blows . . . instruments go into place . . . and the marches sound forth . . . at least, that's what Peg viewed this week while driving aimlessly around . . . and let's not forget the football games . . . definitely the signal for the wearing of sweaters . . . by the high school crowd . . . And the adults . . . even though Peg was sweating in a cotton blouse! . . . Our team has really been carrying forth in the traditional "Fighting Harvester" style . . . Coach Jack Lockett is to be complimented on the progress the team is making right along!

Sometimes a noble failure serves the world as faithfully as a distinguished success. (Edward Dowden)

THEY'RE STILL TALKING ABOUT IT! . . . The Twentieth Century club coffee . . . staged each year by the five Twentieth Century clubs . . . in honor of the five presidents of these clubs . . . It's always an outstanding affair . . . but this year, Peg thinks the program was about tops . . . one of the best she's heard in years! . . . the speaker, Harold Scoggins of Borger, told about the Great Pyramid of Egypt . . . giving some interesting introductory information, too . . . Did you know Cleopatra was a Greek? . . . I didn't . . . And, according to Mr. Scoggins, she was somewhat overweight! . . . to get to the lighter, but not less interesting side of the coffee . . . the scene was much enhanced by the ladies' chapeaux . . . much to the credit of our Pampa women . . . It looked like a gathering of models prior to a hat show . . . the latest styles and trends were much in evidence! . . . Black velvet seemed to be the predominant hat fabric . . . but there were no two styles the same . . . Frances Cree was her usual lovely self in a large white "frothy" hat with lots of tulle . . . Theresa McKinney was chic in a large white "shaggy" felt hat . . . Peg knows there's a name for that material, but she can never remember it! . . . Esther Culberson wore a distinctive black creation, also large, with white trim . . . Mrs. Robert Karr appeared in a striking blue-green hat with rhinestone trim . . . Blond Hilda Duncan's grey felt sailor accented with green trim set off her grey suit beautifully . . . Dorothy Neslage looked as sweet as ever in a saucy deep red creation . . . Thelma Bray was stylish in a large black hat in the latest fashion that comes down low on the brow . . . And Lorene Locke appeared in a "shaggy" pink hat, also large, which, of course, is the latest trend . . . and it sure makes you more hat-conscious than when smaller chapeaux are The Thing . . . You can't help but notice this year's hats! . . . Lois Shelhamer, Frances Millren and Mary Campbell all looked their best in latest black creations . . . And Marg Brauchle's black creation was especially becoming to her . . . Jean Duncan, living up to her "best dressed" title, was especially chic in black velvet featuring the "Edwardian" look . . . And Hazel Hahn's chapeau was a large feathered creation, in a tan or "natural" tone . . . All, in all, Peg really enjoyed it . . . although she is suffering from a slight crick in the neck from twisting and turning to see what everyone was wearing!

It is not only our errors which ruin us, but our way of conducting ourselves after committing them. (Yvette Guilbert)

PEG HAS BEEN quite the social bug lately . . . but it sure has been fun . . . like the tea last Friday at the Country Club . . . Helen Poe from Fort Worth or Dallas . . . don't remember which . . . gave such an interesting travel talk . . . with such an intriguing title "All Americans Are Rich" . . . don't we wish this were true . . . she's traveled in Europe and Africa . . . and she was really interesting . . . Margaret Steele, Connie McDaniel, Sandy Williams and Horlene Rose were the lovely hostesses . . . the whole affair was marvelous . . . it was just so cute to see the little high school girls dressed as French maids . . . with black silk skirts, white blouses and frilly little aprons . . . they served . . . and the food was scrumptious . . . little French things Peg doesn't know the names for . . . Peg just loves to go to things like that that are so relaxing and enjoyable.

Experience is victor, never the vanquished; and out of defeat comes the secret of victory. That tomorrow starts from today and is one day beyond it, robs the future with hope's rainbow hues. (Mary Baker Eddy)

SEVERAL PAMPA WOMEN are on "safari" . . . but not in the deep, dark jungles of Africa . . . they're on safari to Santa Fe and Taos . . . to visit museums, art shops, and to see if there is any advance teaching in copper and tinwork . . . They're all members of the Paint, Pot and Piddlers . . . and Peg understands they were really looking forward to the trip . . . leaving their husbands at home, of course . . . They say their husbands just aren't interested in places they want to visit and the things they want to see . . . They planned to pick up Audrey Taber in Amarillo . . . Audrey's a former member that still comes over here for meetings occasionally. Sounds like a marvelous "safari" . . . Peg will tell you more about it when they return.

Defeat isn't bitter if you don't swallow it. (Anonymous)

HERE AND THERE . . . Peg has been intrigued ever since she heard that Mayor and Mrs. Lynn Boyd attended a "Hoo Hoo" convention recently . . . in San Francisco . . . It's not really a joke . . . it was a hummerman's convention . . . can't understand where the hummerman picked up that name . . . but it must have some significance . . . Any enlightenment on the subject will be appreciated . . . Melba Lemmons was all excited last week over the visit of her parents . . . Mr. and Mrs. Max Seim of Orange Grove . . . understand they really like Pampa . . . Lulu and Ray Kuhn should be returning soon from a wonderful trip . . . They met some friends in New Orleans . . . and then they flew to Ciudad Trujillo in the Dominican Republic . . . for an eight-day vacation . . . Sounds just marvelous to me . . . how about you?

There is no failure except by ceasing to try. (Gore)

PEG THINKS it's wonderful when people reach the 50th anniversary of their married life together . . . Mrs. Louise Clarke has been working on such a celebration recently of her aunt and uncle who live in Caney, Kan. . . Mrs. Clarke planned the invitation which is one of the cutest Peg has seen . . . It has a picture of the couple's home, which was built before they married . . . they moved in the night of their wedding . . . and have never lived any other place . . . The invitation is in the form of a poem which reads:

This old house has known much laughter,
This old house has known some tears,
This old house has been our haven
For fifty five and happy years.

Mayme cleaned each room and attic,
Wesley fixed the leaky flue
For our 50th anniversary,
With our friends and kin folk too.

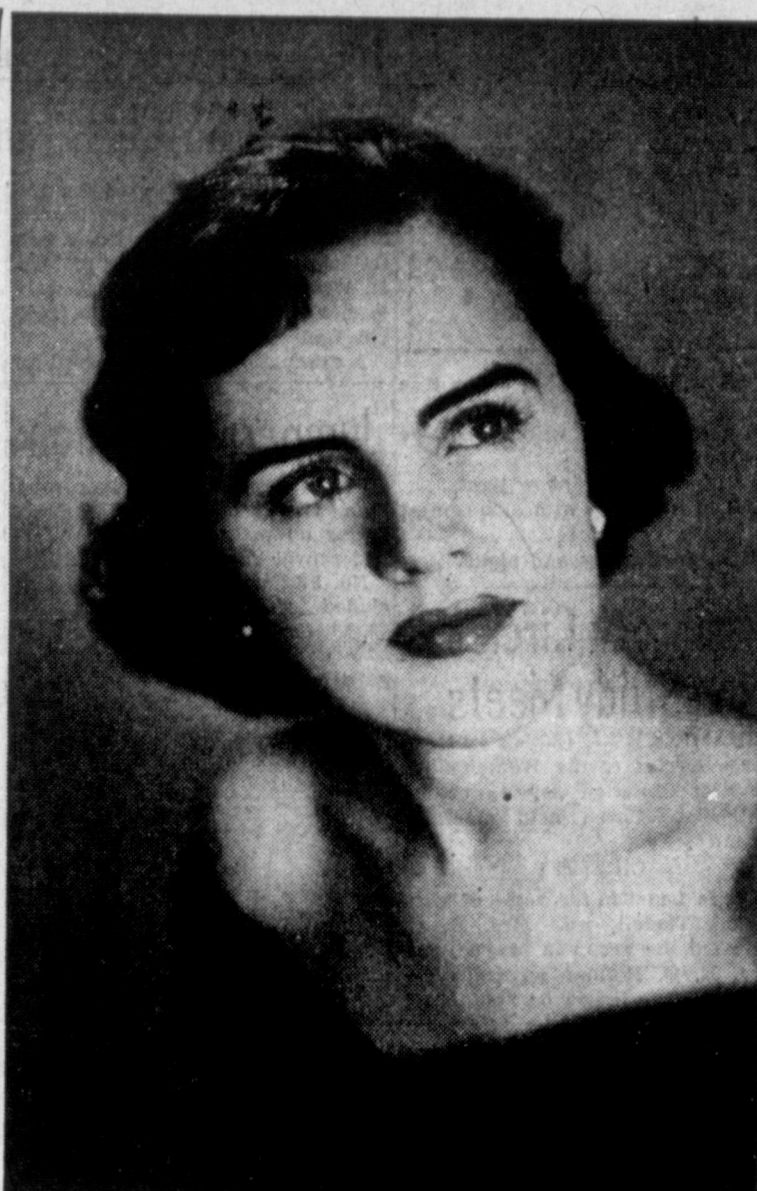

So come to the Titus celebration
On September twenty-three
Cause we got the old house ready
For our Golden Jubilee.

The Clarkes have really been busy. They attended the anniversary celebration . . . and just returned from a trip to California.

Defeat never comes to any man until he admits it. (Josephus Daniels)

WELL . . . that about wraps it up for this week . . . until next time.

The couple was married in the First Baptist Church of Tucuman, N.M., with Rev. Chester O'Brien Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Chester O'Brien Sr. of Pampa, officiating.

The bride was attired in a light-blue wool suit with winter white and black accessories. She carried a white Bible topped with a bouquet of white carnations.

The bride's mother wore a navy blue crepe dress with navy blue accessories, and the bridegroom's mother was attired in a light-blue faille dress with black accessories. Attending the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Robertson, the bride's parents, and Mrs. Cross, the bridegroom's mother.

The couple took a wedding trip to Raton, N.M., Colorado Springs and Denver, Colo. They are now residing in Pampa.

Hemline Confusion Is Continuing Thing

By GAY PAULEY
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK (UPP) — A week in Manhattan:

The hemline confusion continues in the fashion industry. Manufacturer Herbert Sondheim announced that daytime clothes in his spring collection will be one inch longer, or 14 inches from the floor, on most figures. Sondheim said he doubted that daytime skirts will creep down to ankle length, even if a couple of influential Paris designers made a splash with them in their fall shows. But his collection included three cocktail costumes nine inches from the floor. He termed them "trial balloons."

Charles Evans, the nation's largest skirt manufacturer, decreed no hemline changes. Evans, whose firm of Evan-Picone, manufactures 400,000 skirts annually, said he would ignore any drastic changes by the high-style designers.

"I just don't believe the American woman is in the mood for a change," said Evans. "Maybe in a year or 18 months, but not now."

The Duchess of Windsor arrived in New York from Europe wearing a new hair-do. Her hair was parted in the center, as usual, but there was much bulk at the sides, apparently her hair-dresser's variation of this year's bouffant look. For years, the American-born duchess has won a smooth-at-the-sides coiffure.

Vows were exchanged in a single-ring service at 2:30 p.m. Sept. 15, by Miss Carolyn Jones and Donald Jordan, both of Pampa, in the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. O. C. Williams of Clovis, N.M.

Mrs. O. C. Williams was matron of honor. She was attired in a black suit with white accessories and a corsage of white gardenias.

O. C. Williams, uncle of the bride, served as best man. Decorations for the ceremony included arrangements of garden flowers.

Mrs. Jones, mother of the bride, wore a pink silk dress with black accessories. Following the service, a family dinner was held.

MRS. WILLIAM HENRY GREENE

Ruth Millett Miss Carol Carnes And William Greene United In Marriage

The husband is 70 years old, his wife 69. When he retired several years ago because of poor health and the two moved to Florida they thought they had enough money put aside to take care of themselves for life.

With his wife doing all the housework, with the husband acting as handyman and with careful budgeting of money, they told themselves they would never have to depend on anyone for financial assistance.

But here's the fly in the ointment. Relatives on both sides of the family have borrowed money and failed to pay it back.

Relatives on both sides of the family either rite that they are coming for a two weeks' visit or come unannounced.

While they are "vacationing," their retired host and hostess are cooking, meals, washing dishes, making beds, laying in groceries. Also, they are spending more money than they can afford.

It is the husband who wrote about their problem and asked at the end of his letter, "How can we meet our problem without straining the otherwise pleasant relationship we have maintained through the years with relatives on both sides?"

Why not try frankness? Begin by writing a letter to each relative who owes you money. Explain that, since you have no income but are living on your savings, you need to have the loan repaid.

That may result in your collecting at least part of the money owed you. It should certainly keep those who have borrowed before from asking to borrow again.

Then next time you get a letter from a relative announcing the arrival of his family for a visit write back how pleased you are they are coming. But mention that you and your wife no longer have the physical strength to look after guests, much as you wish otherwise, and that you will be glad to reserve rooms for them at a court or hotel.

Your first duty is to each other. If you allow relatives to impose upon your strength and your financial security, you can hardly hope that they will come to your aid when your money and strength are gone.

The couple is at home at 412 N. Somerville, Apt. 7.

The bride was graduated from Pampa High School, and is employed in the purchasing department of the Cabot Companies office. The bridegroom, a senior in Pampa High School, is also employed by the Cabot Companies.

Guild Makes Plans For Rummage Sale

During the meeting of the Bishop Seamen Guild of St. Matthew's Episcopal Church, plans were made for its annual rummage sale, to be held Friday and Saturday, beginning at 9 a.m., at 506 S. Cuyler.

The program, based on the book, "Faith and Practice," was presented by Mrs. Al Metz.

On display was a wardrobe of new clothes made during the summer by Guild members, for Mary Lee, a Korean orphan. It was announced this project is in addition to the Guild's sponsorship and monthly support of the orphan. Plans were discussed for a proposed library, to be sponsored by the Guild.

Cook's Week

BY GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Food and Markets Editor

The great broiler-fryer chicken producing areas of Delaware, Maryland and Virginia have just held their annual Delmarva National Chicken Cooking Contest. From the prize-winning recipes we select these two for your enjoyment.

Delmarvalous Stuffed Broilers
(By Mrs. Pauline Sullivan, RFD No. 4, Milford, Del.)

Two 2½-pound broiling chickens, halved, ¼ cup heavy cream, white wine (if desired, or lemon juice), salt, pepper, ½ pound mushrooms, ¼ cup blanched almonds (grated).

Take ½ of the heavy cream and rub chickens well, including cavities; salt and pepper to taste. Put wine or lemon juice in baking dish to about ¼ depth and place chickens in dish, skin side down. Bake in oven (375 degrees F.) until tender, basting occasionally about 1¼ hours.

While chicken is baking chop mushrooms and saute lightly, add rest of cream, then grind in almonds, add salt and pepper to taste, stir gently on a low flame about 5 minutes and you have your stuffing. When chicken is done, turn oven low and spoon stuffing into chicken cavities; let set for about 20 minutes. Sprinkle with paprika before serving.

Golden Savory Chicken and Noodles (Dutch Origin)
(By Mrs. Julia M. Ling, Millsboro, Del.)

One 3-pound chicken cut up, ½ cup peanut oil, 1 cup milk, ½ cup flour, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon black pepper, 1 cup sour cream, 1 small onion, chopped fine; 1 clove garlic, crushed; 3 tablespoons lemon juice, 1 cup water, 1 chicken bouillon cube, one 4-ounce can mushrooms, ¼ teaspoon paprika. Dip chicken pieces in milk, then combine flour, salt, pepper and coat each piece well. Heat oil in

Nine Proposed Amendments Explained At League Of Women Voters' Meeting

A program on the nine proposed amendments to the Texas constitution was presented at the luncheon meeting Friday of the Pampa League of Women Voters by Mrs. Al Metz, George Hrdlicka and Henry Gruben.

Mrs. Hrdlicka read the amendments, which Mrs. Metz explained, presenting arguments in their favor. Negative arguments on each amendment were given by Mrs. Gruben.

Mrs. Jess Clay, League president, welcomed the group and explained the purpose of the League. She stated it is dedicated to the principles of self-government and is non-partisan concerning candidates and issues. She explained the program was part of the League "state level" study. It also studies issues on the local and national level.

"It is your duty as a Christian woman to be interested in your government," she told the women. She urged that the women read everything they can on candidates and issues involved in the coming election, on the local, state and national levels. She urged they study them and talk about them with friends.

"A lot of things we read and hear will be over-emphasized," she explained in talking on the national election. "Read everything you can... on both sides."

She suggested newspaper editorials and news magazines and good sources.

"Never in the history of this county have things been going so fast as during the last 15 years," she stated. "We should study the trends. Life is complicated now and we might as well get with it and learn what it is all about."

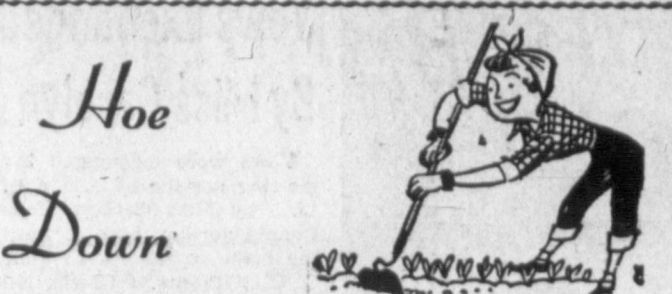

The program was followed by a discussion period.

Return chicken to pan, add onion, garlic, lemon juice, water, bouillon cube, mushrooms and liquid. Cover, simmer 20 minutes longer. Cook noodles separately 10 minutes and fold in. Just before serving, stir in sour cream and paprika. Garnish with parsley. Serve hot.

Hoe Down

By MRS. VERN SAVAGE
Pampa Garden Club

Gardening has been called the oldest of the Arts. It is an occupation for which no one is too young or too old. The pleasure of gardening grows with knowledge and manifests its charm.

A garden is like a school where we learn by doing. It has physical benefits by affording healthy outdoor exercise. In addition, it has a creative value — in education and in appreciation of beauty, color, artistic arrangement and fragrance.

Success in gardening begins with proper soil, preparation and type of soil in the garden plot, understanding of the particular problems involved and selection of plant material that thrives best in your type of soil.

Clay soil can be greatly improved by working into it leaf mold, well-rotted manure or peat moss. Sandy soil is loose in texture and can be given the same treatment as clay soil.

Many soils are strongly alkaline. However, the majority of soils are natural, and it is in them that the common flowers, fruits and vegetables thrive.

To determine your type of soil, consult your County agent. Don't try doing it yourself.

Plant foods or fertilizer are important to the growth of plants. The two major types are organic, derived from an animal or plant source or a combination of both, known as chemical elements; and inorganic, derived from chemicals and minerals in various forms and mixtures. Sometimes the inorganic type will contain both organic and inorganic elements.

A complete fertilizer will contain ample amounts of plant foods, such as nitrogen, phosphorus and potash, as well as the trace elements, such as zinc, manganese, iron, barium and magnesium.

As soon as the garden has finished its period of beauty in the fall, the soil should be thoroughly spaded to a depth of one foot. It should not be raked, but left rough so it may retain moisture and improve the texture of the soil. Remove weeds as they will rob the soil of moisture and of valuable plant foods.

Be on the lookout for damaging insects and diseases. It is much easier to prevent and control diseases and insects than to try to treat it once it has arrived. There are many good insecticides and pesticides that are available to help you in your campaign.

Enough for great and small

FOOD FOR EDITORS — At the 18th century banquet for newspaper food editors, Scotch lamb stew is served in a regal dish from Thomas J. Lipton's priceless collection of antique silver. The banquet was one of the many events given for delegates to the 14th annual Newspaper Food Editors Conference in New York.

Six-Day Diet For Editors Is Bear Meat, Baseball

The table was covered with a lace cloth over white linen, centered with a white tiered cake decorated with yellow roses and topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom.

By GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Food and Markets Editor
NEW YORK — (NEA) — What do the nation's top food editors do when they put away their recipes and come to the big town for a conference?

They eat — and how they eat. For six over-stuffed days it's a diet that runs from bear meat to an 18th century dual feast. Between meals and parties they beat an inquiring path through meetings and lectures and are entertained at everything from baseball to ballet.

That's the menu 150 of them faced at the 14th annual Newspaper Food Editors Conference in New York, sponsored by the American Association of Newspaper Representatives the week of Sept. 23, when 40 of the country's largest food suppliers and trade associations strut their stuff for the news gatherers.

The conference appetizer: Knox Gelatin's carnival at the Waldorf with real circus clowns, balloons, hot dogs, and wheels of chance on which to risk paper money supplied by the host.

The finale: A farewell tea where the foot-weary lady editors could kick off their shoes and hear Amy Vanderbilt, etiquette mentor, tell them how to act ladylike when slipping tea.

While being briefed by Al C. Fleischmann of Standard Brands on how to feed growing high school athletes, they also get baseball autographs by famous players, the setting in this case being a World Series breakfast at Toots Shors.

At the Florida Citrus Commission's suite they are told that Florida Seminole Indian women were the first to discover that orange juice is good for babies; at another breakfast, California Sunkist takes over to wash down snacks of Jones Little sausages.

They are urged by Corn Products Co., Duncan Hines and the American Institute of Baking to get from one-fourth to one-third of their daily food at breakfast, a ratio that would be tough to achieve at the conference unless the editors skipped most of the other parties.

The United Brewers Foundation drives home its message about the purifying power of the nation's 14 million hunters with lessons in wild game cookery — and a lunch-eon at the Ambassador with pheasant pate, wild duck slices and smoked bear on foliage — decked trays as a starter.

Calypto singers and flamboyant plants are flown in for the Reynolds' Metal noontime Jamaica Jamboree. At the South African Lobster Association's midday spread — rock lobster, any style — famous zoo director Marlin Perkins takes the editors on a word-and-picture safari of, naturally, South Africa.

At conferences, they see acromized chickens in a tub of water, still fresh as mountain daisies; learn a slenderizing diet from Dr. George Berryman of Abbott Laboratories; from the National Canners, how modern husbands can be good providers.

Afternoon receptions fill in time before dinner, when banquets and buffets stud the program — from baked beans to pomp and circumstance. In the austere tower of glass the United Nations dines the editors after a talk by Dr. R. A. Silow of FAO on the uses of atomic energy as related to food and nutrition. General Foods arranges this upper-case diversification.

And so to the ballet, with boxes at the Metropolitan, for the American premiere of Prokofiev's "Romeo and Juliet" by the Royal Danish Ballet. Danish Information Office hosts for Danish importers. Next, a fabulous Danish "midnight cold table" with 30 imported delicacies including Danish beer and aquavit — and Danish big-wigs.

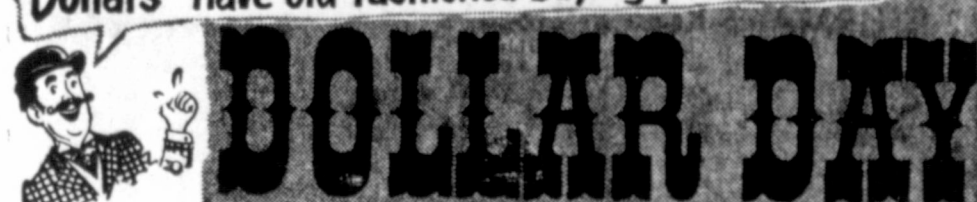

On to Queen Anne's England in the Waldorf's Ser Room; transformed into a great hall at Windsor Castle for a feast similar to one served royally at the turn of the 18th Century. Huge roasted joints and meat pies, soups and sweets carried aloft by waiters in 18th Century livery and priceless antique silver provided by Thos. J. Lipton, Inc.

Also provided: a young and dancing black-tied escort for every lady of the astronomical typewriter.

The first of the study groups of the Pampa branch of the American Association of University Women will get underway Monday, according to Mrs. N. G. Kadingo, study group chairman.

It will be the photography group which will meet at 8 p.m. in the home of Mrs. John Myers, 420 N. Wells. Class instructor will be Mrs. Bill Ledbetter.

A second study group, the bridge class, will begin its meetings at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 9, in the home of Mrs. Quentin Williams. Leader for this group will be Mrs. E. A. Heriman. Registration of $1 will be charged.

The cooking study group, to be taught by Miss Joy Parnell, will begin at 5:30 p.m. Oct. 25, in the Southwestern Public Service offices. Registration of $1 will be charged for this group also. Only equipment needed for the course will be paper and pencil.

Three others are planned for which the organization has not yet been completed. Mrs. Kadingo explained. A literature group is planned for the third Monday of each month, with Mrs. J. E. Torvie as temporary leader. If several more do not register for this group before Oct. 8, it will be cancelled.

An interior decorating group is planned for the fourth Tuesday of each month and is slated to get underway at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 23. And if enough interest is shown, an afternoon group will be held the third Thursday of each month, following an epicurean (unusual dishes) or a literature study.

The study groups are open to AAUW members or to persons not eligible to join AAUW. Anyone interested is asked to contact Mrs. Kadingo or Mrs. Walter C. Bowen, branch president, as soon as possible. All groups are open with the exception of the bridge group.

Girl Scout
Activities

The first month of resuming Scouting activities is spent mostly in organization and reorganization. Until the troops get organized and elect their reporters, it is almost impossible to compile reports of their activities. However, it won't be long before this column will appear regularly with information on troop activities.

For the first appearance of this column this year, Miss Jeneane Price has written an account of the 1956 Panhandle Senior Conference in Amarillo. Following that is a report on leaders activities in Skellytown.

Here is Miss Price's article. It all began with nosebag suppers and the initial confusion of getting cot sticks straightened out, and it wound up with a "splash" of a banquet Sunday noon.

This is what the beginning and end of the 1956 Panhandle Senior Conference, held Sept. 7, 8, and 9, was like. The time between that beginning and end comprised the annual fall meet of the Senior Girl Scouts of this area at Camp Kiwanis which is approximately seven miles outside of Amarillo.

The conference used the theme "Your Future In Girl Scouting." The keyword of the meet was "splash."

Approximately 100 Senior Scouts gathered for the first meeting of the conference Friday night to see films taken abroad and hear a talk by a Lubbock Scout, Marilyn Warren, who had spent the summer camping in Sweden.

If the girls didn't get acquainted at the welcome party that evening in the Great Hall, they made friends when they returned to their cabins that night. About eight girls, not all from the same town, were quartered to each stone cabin. There were ten cabins divided into two units, the Indian Unit and the Pioneer Unit.

The bell rang bright and early the next two mornings to wake the Scouts up to two days of hearing all about Scout archaeological trips, the National Round Up, the All-State camp, how to cope with local emergencies and disasters, and even how to prepare for a future in Scouting after graduation. The girls themselves acted as speakers and they narrated to their sister Scouts what experiences Senior Scouting has to offer. On Saturday evening the girls saw films on the Blue Cedar Encampment and the National Round Up.

Of course, not all was just listening. There was plenty of time for the girls to cavort in the swimming pool, hike, buy candy at the canteen, play charades around the campfire Saturday evening, or just lay around the cabin and "girl talk."

Rev. Burnette W. Dowler of the Amarillo First Presbyterian Church brought Sunday morning services to the Protestant Scouts, and Catholic Scouts were taken to Amarillo for early Mass. The morning was topped off with a session on "What the Promise and Laws Mean to Me" and an evaluation of the conference.

A chicken dinner with all the trimmings climaxed the meet. Afterward the girls said their good-byes until next year when, once again, the Panhandle Senior Girl Scouts will have another area get-together.

Members of the Skellytown Leaders' Club of the Girl Scouts met in the Scout House for a business meeting and work session.

Mrs. Paul Hinton, chairman, led the business meeting. Mrs. Fred Wall was appointed to purchase a new lock for the Scout house. Mmes. Garrell Huckins, Forrest Horner, Paul Hinton and Calvin Duncan formed a committee to select a troop organization chairman and a neighborhood chairman.

Following the business meeting the group cleaned the Scout house. Present were Messrs. and Mmes. J. C. Jarvis, Floyd Batson; and Mmes. Paul Hinton, Fred Wall, Richard Payne, R. E. McAllister, R. C. Heaton, Garrell Huckins, Cecil Shipley and F. C. Horner.

Perryton AAUW

The by-laws of the chapter were read and approved. Mrs. Oscar Flowers was appointed social chairman. At the close of the business meeting, Mrs. Donald Ellis conducted a short quiz on current news events.

Mrs. Doug Fiskin and Mrs. Ralph Headlee were hostesses. Attending were Mmes. Cecil Tevis, Ray Vahue, Bob Kile, Yolanda Thomas, Don Seago, Ruth Drum, Manse Wood, Oscar Flowers, Byron Tevis, Ellis Kelley, Gale Rogers, Esther Kelley, Anne Jennings, Roy Osborne, Gladys Phillips, Troy Sullivan, Norman Crum, Bob Gibson, Cloy Webb, C. GOOD SURPRISE for the family breakfast consists of this recipe for Bartlett pears poached in orange juice.

Orange Poached Pears
Zesty Breakfast Change

BY GAYNOR MADDOX

NEA Food and Markets Editor Nutritionists are worried by the poor breakfast habits particularly of so many women, high school girls and factory workers. During September, at schools, in factories, and in newspapers and magazines, these nutritional scientists are highlighting the importance of an adequate breakfast for health and stamina and weight control.

They point out that in a balanced daily diet, breakfast should supply from 1/4 to 1-3 of the day's total food. Also, that the basic cereal breakfast of fruit, cereal, bread and butter or margarine and milk will supply at low cost the regulated nutrients.

Now that fresh Bartlett pears are on the market, let's add them to our breakfast menus. Because of their levulose sugar which quickly converts to energy, they satisfy your appetite and keep up your energy. Yet they are relatively low in calories. The season for Bartletts extends well into October.

From the Pacific Northwest a friend sends us this local recipe: Orange Poached Breakfast Pears (6 servings)

Three fresh Bartlett pears, 2 medium-size oranges, 1 1/2-ounce can frozen orange juice, 2 cups water, 1 1/2 cups sugar.

Mix together frozen orange juice, water and sugar in saucepan. Place over heat and bring to a boil. Peel fresh pears, halve and core. Cut away stem and blossom ends with sharp knife. Place in syrup, cover and simmer for 15 to 20 minutes, or until pears are tender. Meanwhile, peel oranges and slice crosswise.

About five minutes before pears are done, add orange slices and finish cooking. When done, remove from heat and chill. This

Vote-Getting Ideas

EAST LANSING, Mich. (UP) — The Michigan advertising management conference has some novel ideas about getting out the vote on election day. They include: "Let's make it illegal to vote," or "everyone will want to vote," or "give merchandise trade stamps away at the polls," or "give voters a discount on federal income tax."

Shortlived Freedom

FORT WORTH (UP) — A 17-year-old youth who was released from jail Friday got too ambitious and was soon back behind bars.

John Edward Gravenmier was given a five-year probation sentence on theft charges and was released about 1:30 p.m. Friday night, a passerby saw something peculiar going on at the jail. The passerby saw a rope let down from a jail cell and someone outside tie a bundle of hacksaw blades onto it.

He notified authorities. They chased the suspect to a housing project, firing eight to 10 shots along the route. Gravenmier was cornered on a dead-end street and arrested.

The hacksaw blades never got in to the prisoners. They came loose from the rope while being pulled inside.

Muddy Feet Draw Fine

BILLINGS, Mont. (UP) — Charles M. Brooker of Wichita, Kan., was fined $10 for malicious destruction of personal property. Brooker told police he only wiped his dog's muddy feet on a motel's bath towel so the room wouldn't get dirty.

Stock Market Report For Week

By ELMER C. WALZER

United Press Financial Editor

NEW YORK (UP) — Stocks this week suffered their widest decline since May 25 on the lightest volume in three weeks.

Selling was persistent most of the time. The record of decline was the same as in the two preceding weeks except that this week's lone rally came on Wednesday instead of Friday.

The same reasons applied—Stues politics and tight money. Other factors involved included a further congestion in farm implement inventories, decline in home building and further difficulties for the textile business.

As usual the good news was ignored. It included resumption of a rise in automobile production, capacity steel operations, record high predicted for freight traffic, word the Pentagon will ask for $100 million in machine tools, several dividend increases and several stock splits.

A close Friday, the industrial average was at 475.25, off 15.08 points on the week and a new low since June 8; rails, 154.01 off 5.42 points and a new low since Jan. 23, only 0.04 from the year's low made that day; and utility 65.57, off 1.82 points and a new low since June 8.

Trading averaged 1,957,696 shares, against an average of 2,089,842 last week and 1,967,039 the week before.

All sections of the market were hit in the selling. Rails tried unsuccessfully to rise from time to time. Their subsequent drop to within a tiny fraction of their low was seen two days. It may have represented the end of the decline for the group or it may attract new sellers. Not a few analysts are predicting good markets for the carriers on the outlook for record 1956 earnings despite the steel strike which cut into revenues.

Many big stocks touched new lows on the week, including American Telephone, Du Pont, Coca Cola, American Can, Allied Chemical, Woolworth, Southern Pacific, Union Pacific, Santa Fe, Illinois Central, Texas Gulf Sulphur, Texas Company, General Tire, Goodrich, and Wrigley.

The justices this week will hold week-long conferences to determine which of the pending cases they should review. These will be announced Oct. 8.

Red Appeals Scheduled

Several Communist cases were accepted last term and are scheduled for argument during the Oct. 8 week. They include appeals by Pennsylvania Communist Steve Nelson and a group of second string Red leaders in California.

Two other appeals will test for the first time the validity of the "membership clause" in the Smith anti-Communist act — the provision which makes it a crime to be a knowing member of an organization dedicated to the violent overthrow of the government.

The appeals were filed by Junius Irving Scales, a Communist leader in the Carolinas and Tennessee, and Claude M. Lightfoot, an Illinois Communist.

The court also has agreed to decide whether the national labor relations board may refuse collective bargaining services to a union with an officer convicted of filing a false non-Communist affidavit.

Racial Cases, Too

Racial segregation disputes reaching the high court during the summer include the widely-publicized Montgomery, Ala., bus case. Others deal with segregation in Virginia's seashore state park in Princess Anne county, and public schools in Mansfield and Dallas, Tex.

Another case was appealed by a group of so-called "Turks" in Sumter County, S.C., whose children are denied admission to white elementary schools.

The biggest anti-trust suit in history was accepted for review last term and will be argued in coming weeks. The government is trying to show that the giant DuPont and General Motors corporations are illegally interlocked.

Other Possibilities

Other disputed issues which reached the court this summer: 1. The government's attempt to bring professional football within the scope of the federal anti-trust laws.

2. A new federal power commission formula which would enable natural gas pipelines to charge higher rates.

3. The right of Congressional committees to "expose" former Communists.

4. The appeal of Dr. Samuel H. Sheppard, Cleveland osteopath convicted of the bludgeon-murder of his wife, Marilyn, in 1954.

5. The fight of John Stewart Service, veteran foreign service officer fired in 1951 as a loyalty risk, for reinstatement with back pay.

High Court Faces Great Amount Of Work In New Term

By CHARLOTTE G. MOULTON

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29 (UP) — The Supreme Court convenes for the 1956-1957 term Monday faced with a record-breaking work load and the imminent departure of one of its members — Associate Justice Sherman Minton.

The court may have to carry on for sometime with an eight-man bench unless President Eisenhower fills with a prompt recess appointment the vacancy caused by Minton's retirement. The new justice, whenever appointed, must be confirmed by the Senate next year.

Minton may sit three more Mondays. He is leaving the court for good Oct. 15 because of poor health.

Mass of Cases

The justices find a mass of Communist, racial segregation, labor and tax cases awaiting them as they return after the long summer recess.

The number of cases is the largest in recent times. The regular appellate docket numbered well over 450 cases before the term even started.

Monday's session is merely a formality with admission of attorneys to the bar and presentation to the court of the new U.S. solicitor general, J. Lee Rankin.

WALKS OUT IN HUFF

LONDON (UP) — Sab rina, the bosomy blonde famed for being seen and not heard on British television, walked out of a women-of-the-year lunch Thursday because she was not asked to make a speech.

New Formula For 'Field Pricing' Gas May Come From Court

(WEEKLY OIL COLUMN)

By HARRY WILSON SHARPE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29 (UP) — The Supreme Court opens its fall term Monday, clearing the way for what may be an historic decision on a new formula for "field pricing" of natural gas.

Awaiting action is a multi-million dollar case involving "fair field price" rates allowed Panhandle Eastern Pipeline Co. by the Federal Power Commission but denied by the U.S. Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia in protest suits filed by Detroit and Wayne County.

The court is expected either to reject the case or accept it for review at its first decision day, Oct. 8. If it denies a review finding of the appeals court will stand. The latter remanded the case to the FPC for further consideration on grounds the commission's rate base formula did not conform with "accepted practices."

Cost Base Issue

At issue is whether the commission should have used a traditional "cost" base approved by the Supreme Court in 1942, a "fair field" value for gas which Panhandle itself produces, or a combination of both.

Thousands of gas producers and consumers have a financial interest in the outcome.

Panhandle serves wholesalers in a big Midwestern area, including Michigan. On Dec. 30, 1955, on the basis of the new field price formula, the FPC ordered the company to refund to its customers $36,116,055 plus 6 per cent interest annually for rate increases collected—subject to rebate—from Feb. 20, 1952, to April 30, 1954.

1952 'Test Year'

The commission on April 15, 1954, had prescribed lower rates based on what it called "test year 1952." This reduced the amount of the increase Panhandle had been collecting under suspension from $21,400,000 to $12,778,864 a year.

The commission said the new formula was necessary to encourage interstate pipelines to develop their own gas resources, making them better able to bargain for outside gas and thus bring down consumer costs.

Detroit and Wayne County sued in the appeals court, claiming the commission erred when it allowed Panhandle the field price rather than the cost method of computing the price of its own gas. They also complained that profits from the company's gasoline extraction plants should have been included in fixing the rate base. They said their gas consumers would have to pay an average of 24 cents a month more for gas if the formula stands.

Producers Part

Panhandle produces 23 per cent of the gas it sells in its own fields in Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas. It buys the rest from producers who do not operate pipelines. In its appeal last May it said the FPC formula was "another cross-roads in the evolution of rate-making theory" and urged the Supreme Court to uphold it.

The commission said tersely that "the fundamental question is whether the commission or the courts shall determine what formula shall be used."

The appeals court was equally blunt. It said the commission had not sufficiently guarded the consumer against excessive rates. It said that if the commission goes to bat on "exploration factors" for pipelines it must see to it that any rate increase involved "is no more than needed."

"If the commission," it continued, "is now to abandon the treatment historically accorded pipeline-produced gas in rate-making on grounds the public interest will be better served, it should justify it on the record."

Didn't Limit Basis

The court did not specifically limit the commission to use of a cost basis, nor did it ban the fair field price method. But it did declare that "allowances of the fair field value on Panhandle's own gas as an operating expense is not supported by evidence to be in the public interest."

It said that unless the cost method is used, at least as a point of departure, then the terms "just and reasonable" lose their meaning. "No matter what formula is used," it concluded, "the commission must never lose sight of the fact" that its primary aim is to "guard the consumer against excessive rates."

It said the commission computed Panhandle's field price for its own gas on "the weighted average arm's length price established by federally unregulated bargaining for gas in other fields. It then multiplied the volume of Panhandle's production by that of the 'field price' and included the result in Panhandle's operating expenses as the amount to be covered through rates."

At the same time, it said, the commission excluded from the rate base the cost of Panhandle properties which produce the gas; and it also excluded from recoverable operating expenses the cost of producing it.

"The commission's purpose," the court said, "was to allow Panhandle to receive for its own gas a price reflecting payments for identical gas instead of a return on its legitimate investment in properties and equipment used in producing the gas."

Now is the time to come to the aid of your home, the home you have or the home you plan to build. In this section you will find helpful hints on home building; repairing, improving — on lighting, plumbing, heating, — on furnishing, decorating. There are tips on new uses for your present rooms, on new ways to get more living out of your home. Read the stories and the advertisements in this section to help yourself to more fun living at home.

to FIX in '56

Even if your dining area is no more than a corner of the living room, the graceful feeling that French Provincial imparts is a possibility with this new collection. The small, scalloped-edge drop-leaf table, the compact grill-front server, and the storage space provided in the single buffet take care of every need, yet create an uncluttered look. (Morganton Furniture Co.)

Decorator's Touch Seen In Tables

Tables, these days, have come out of the purely utilitarian class of furniture and have become a distinctly decorative addition to a room setting. An attractive table can be the focal point of a group.

Tables can be found in all shapes and sizes. Generally, the trend seems to be toward lower cocktail tables which are an easy-to-reach height when placed in front of a sofa.

Undoubtedly a conversation piece is a lovely new banquet size cocktail table. Only 15 inches high, it has a 48-inch diameter. An attractive revolving center tray is made of copper with a hammered pewter finish and a hand chased effect around the edge. The tray can be removed for use on another table. Made of carefully selected and matched teak veneer, the Persian-influenced table has a warm waxed finish.

Another interesting trend is toward tables which hide smaller snack tables under their surfaces. A Danish grouping features a hexagonal cocktail table which mothers a brood of six triangular snack tables. Also in this Danish collection are some long, rectangular tables which have an inset of ceramic tiles placed off-center in their tops.

A new 60-inch long walnut table has been added to the popular High-Lo group. Designed for dual-purpose elegance from cocktails to supper, this table raises with finger-tip pressure to supper table height. Another touch and this double-duty table lowers to cocktail table height. One model will be in all black lacquer with Formica top surface.

In the best transitional manner, a grouping called "Ivanhoe" offers the warmth and friendliness of Italian Provincial adapted for simpler modern tastes and styled with contemporary space and use requirements in mind. Luxurious plastic tops are in a diamond-matched striped walnut pattern. The elegant inlaid motif was inspired by palace treasures of beautifully matched rare woods that are seen in old castles in Italy.

Another manufacturer offers a distinctive table nicknamed the Tulip Table because its five carved wood supporting elements recall petals as they hold up circular tops of travertine or glass. An extra-long coffee table has one straight side to follow the front line of a sofa, while the other side and the ends curve in gentle arcs. A striking design appears in an end table with a top of random-width laminated oak strips. The top is three- and one-half inches thick at the center but thins toward its perimeter to a delicate softly-rounded edge.

Leather is still very popular for table surfaces. It is now available in many shades. To add a bright sparkle of color to your room, try a table with a top of inlaid mosaic tile.

Unusual materials used in table surfaces create a dramatic atmosphere. Among those being offered are cocktail tables with tops of stainless steel and some which are made of black and white vinyl floor tile. Don't overlook the fact that many of the tables can be used as extra seating pieces by the addition of a cushion.

You will find that many of these new tables are protected by special finishes to prevent staining from cigarette burns, spills or scratches. Now you can have table beauty which really lasts.

Check Roof For Leaks

There's no sound quite so dismal as that of drops of water falling into a pan set under a hole in a leaky roof. Those leaks aren't hard to find. The dangerous leaks are those which never quite seep through the ceiling where they may be seen, but do cause wood and insulation rot, and paint flaking and peeling.

Those leaks should be ferreted out and repaired before they cause serious and expensive damage to the home. Water stains on the attic ceiling or between roofing beams are a good indication that roofing shingles aren't doing their job. Rust stains around roofing nails also indicates that water is seeping through. If, after a heavy rain, you find that between-stud insulation in the attic is damp, then there is further proof the roof leaks.

Should repairing the leaks appear too hazardous or difficult to the home handyman, call on an experienced roofing contractor to do the work. He'll save you money by protecting the investment in your home.

Drama, Luxury Apparent In 'Counterpoint'
Counterpoint, a new modern collection with built-in luxury, plays the richness of mahogany and wild-grained cherry woods in exciting color and visual contrast. This functional group consists of bedroom, dining room, upholstered and occasional pieces which look good from any angle.

An eight-inch span, or overhang, on select case pieces gives Counterpoint a low, horizontal feeling, architectural in concept.

Among 70 pieces to choose from is a lock-leaf tea cart which rolls anywhere to fill any role, from bar to barbecue. And there is a beautiful deck with tile drawers, a pull-out shelf, and built-in tambour typewriter storage basket.

All dining room case pieces have adjustable shelves. A small corner unit which is a "jumping-off place" for well arranged has a top which lifts up for easy access to storage space. Bed room pieces combine maximum storage with grace.

The enormous range of upholstered and occasional pieces is a luxury in itself. It includes sofas with or without arms, single sectional chairs that can be grouped to form a sofa, lounge chairs with built-in footrests, lounge chairs with large loose pillows, a large square ottoman, and a low, lean bench.

Fall Gardening Chores Insure Spring Beauty

The gardening you do this fall will determine what kind of a garden you'll have next spring. Just let things slide and spring beauty will be something in your neighbor's yard, not yours. A few well-chosen tasks now will bring that beauty back into your yard.

Most fall gardening amounts to transplanting, pruning, and trimming with some fertilizing and mulching. Gladioli bulbs must be dug up and stored safely away for replanting in the spring. A safe storage container for the bulbs is a galvanized steel garbage pail, equipped with a close-fitting cover. Such a pail is rodent and insect proof and rust-resistant, and its bail handle makes it easy to carry and hang out of the reach of moisture.

Pruning Important
Rose bushes and fruit trees should be pruned carefully to make next year's yield a good one. The plant food drawn up by roots will serve to enrich a small bush or tree, rather than spreading itself thin over a large plant. Border hedges should be trimmed down for the same reason. Be careful not to cut main branches or to thin the hedge excessively.

Fall also is the time for transplanting. A bush, seedling tree or even an entire flower bed should be carefully dug up and just as carefully transplanted in the fall in order that it may take full advantage of spring rains. Jerking a plant from the soil in the spring may stunt its growth or even kill it.

Mulching of less hardy plants is important in the fall. A proper mulch will hold moisture in the ground and keep plants warm during the long winter months.

Use Fertilizer
Everything is the yard and garden should be fertilized. Use fertilizers sparingly, and, if a commercial plant food is used, follow the directions on the bag. Use caution not to burn up delicate plants with too much strong fertilizer.

In addition to bulbs, large quantities of fertilizer, sand, mulch and potting soil may be kept in galvanized steel garbage cans, either standing upright or lying on their sides as bins. These containers will help keep the garden equipment storage space neat and will simplify storage of bulky materials.

The lawn should be bedded down for the winter just as carefully as delicate flowers and plants. The last few times the lawn is mowed, allow the cuttings to sift down into the grass to serve as a mulch to protect the lawn, don't rake the cuttings or catch them in a mower-attached grass bag. Many power mowers are equipped with leaf mulchers which grind up fallen leaves and sift them into the lawn.

The lawn, also, should be fertilized to give it a head start for spring. Given proper care in the fall, your yard and garden will be green and blooming early in the spring and will give your family much pleasure all year.

Flammable Liquids Should Be Stored Carefully In Home

What with power lawn mowers, outboard motors, gasoline-powered model airplanes and the do-it-yourself trend, nearly every American home has some type of flammable fuel or other fluid on hand. Unless handled properly and stored carefully, these fluids can cause disastrous explosions and fires.

Particularly with winter approaching, when these fuels and cleaning agents will not be used as frequently, care should be given to careful storage of the fluids. A can of gasoline may be left near the home heating plant when that unit is not operating. If forgotten, the gasoline could explode when it is turned on.

Gasoline, kerosene, turpentine and other flammable fluids should be safely stored in leak-proof metal containers, such as galvanized steel fuel cans, and kept away from heating pipes, furnaces or electrically operated appliances or tools. If possible, store such fluids in the garage or a tool shed, away from the house or summer cottage. A properly designed fuel can is equipped with a screw type cap and pouring spout with cap to safely confine dangerous fumes.

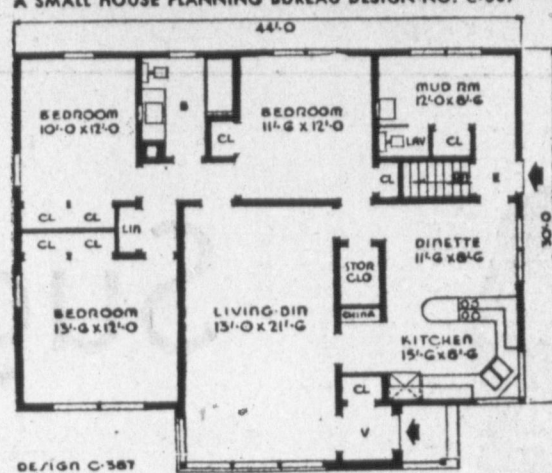

Although many persons are cautious with gasoline and kerosene, they are careless with turpentine and flammable cleaning or painting liquids. Workbenches are bad places for fires to begin, with their sawdust, wood scraps and other flammable items. Flammable liquids should be carefully sealed to prevent combustible fumes from escaping and being ignited by a lighted cigarette or electrical short circuit.

Many homemakers don't realize that they are taking their lives in their hands whenever they try to save the breadwinner money on cleaning bills by removing food and ink stains and other spots on clothing with a flammable cleaning fluid.

A SMALL HOUSE PLANNING BUREAU DESIGN NO. C-387

Design C-387. Here is a roomy plan with features that are desirable for either city or farm. The small room off the side entry has a toilet, lavatory and large closet. However, there is still room for a freezer, washer and dryer, if necessary. There are lots of closets, well distributed throughout the house: a large storage closet and others for coats and linens. The kitchen is compact and well arranged, and has a larger than usual dinette and a china cabinet.

The center bedroom could be used as a den, workshop, or even be converted into a dining room by leaving out the partition. The exterior finish combines wide siding and stone with wide eaves. Floor area is 1415 sq. ft. with a cubage of 26,838 cu. ft. including the full basement. For further information about DESIGN C-387, write the Small House Planning Bureau, St. Cloud, Minn. In Canada, the Small House Planning Bureau of Canada, St. John, New Brunswick.

Wood Furniture May Be Washed

An occasional soap and water bath will do much to improve the appearance of wooden furniture. A careful scrub-down will remove old wax and the accumulation of dirt and grime which collects despite everyday dusting and polishing.

Nearly any wooden surface may safely be washed if proper care is exercised. Flax soap or another mild soap is the best cleaner. Don't let water remain on the wood surfaces more than a minute or two and be careful not to let the water reach the glued joints of the furniture.

Two galvanized steel cleaning pails, one filled with a solution of mild soap and lukewarm water and the other with clear, lukewarm rinse water, will save steps for extra water. When rinse water is handy the soap may be rinsed off and the furniture dried before the water soaks into the wood.

Dip a soft cloth or sponge into the suds, wring it out and wash a small area of the furniture. Rinse the soap suds off with a soft cloth wrung from the clear water, and dry immediately with another cloth.

As each small section or area of the furniture is done, overlap slightly into the clean area each time so that the piece will be uniformly clean. Before applying furniture polish or wax, be sure the entire surface is thoroughly dry.

Washing furniture, when done systematically, is not particularly time-consuming. Using both hands will save time. While rinsing a section of the furniture with the right hand, dry another section with the left hand.

Brighten Fireplace With Scrub-Down

A good rainy day chore which will improve the appearance of the living room or game room is renewing the looks of the fireplace. If the brick is looking a bit seedy, try scrubbing it thoroughly with a stiff brush. Fill a galvanized steel pail with a solution of washing soda and water and apply it liberally to remove soot and grime.

Cleaning Tip

Too many housewives are one-handed when it comes to housecleaning. They use only one hand while the other is idle. Using both hands is no easy trick at first, but a little practice will make the homemaker adept at washing walls, for example, with one hand and drying with the other. When both hands share the work, cleaning chores become easier and faster to complete.

Well-Tooled Home Workshop Aids Projects

Every home needs minor repairs occasionally, but many of the repairs aren't serious enough to justify the expense of calling in a professional carpenter, plumber or electrician. If the home workshop is properly equipped, Dad can take care of most repairs with no difficulty.

Too many men try to start off their tool assortment with expensive, seldom-used power equipment. Instead, the home handyman should become familiar with the use of hand tools before buying power equipment, much as a child learns to ride a tricycle before graduating to a full-size bicycle. Power drills, rotary saws or power jacks are excellent additions to any workshop but should not be purchased until some knowledge of hand tools is gained.

Six basic tools that should be found in every home toolbox are a hammer, pliers, screwdriver, cross-cut saw, monkey wrench and a metal ruler or straight-edge. The amateur handyman will find that these will be adequate for any minor chore. However, quality tools are essential. Cheap, unsatisfactory hand tools will soon wear out or break and are never worth the cost.

As proficiency, confidence and size of project increase, the handyman can begin adding to his tool collection and even set up a workbench. Tools to be added at this point might include a bit brace or small hand drill with a set of bits, T-square, carpenter's level, jack-

Ventilate Attic To Prevent Heat And Condensation

Adequate ventilation is absolutely necessary for new or old insulated homes, according to home building experts. Cross ventilation of the attic prevents moisture condensation during the winter heating months and releases attic heat in the summer. The Federal Housing Administration recognizes the need of proper ventilation and has set up a code of requirements governing attic ventilation.

Easy-to-Make Rack For Nails, Screws

A well-organized home workshop has a place for everything and everything should be in its place. Tools and materials should be easily accessible without having to look through piles of scraps or cluttered bench drawers. Similarly, nails, wood screws and bolts should be kept handy but not where they would be in the way.

A handy storage rack for these small items is easily made using only a board, several screws and four or five glass preserve jars with screw-on covers. Simply punch holes through the metal lids of the glass jars and screw the lids to the board. The board may be hung above the workbench as a shelf or nailed to the underside of the bench.

The size of the board will depend on the number of jars to be hung from it, but it should be at least one-half inch thick and three inches wide. Use as many jars as there are varieties and sizes of nails, screws and bolts in use by the handyman.

Homes without proper ventilation of the attic to allow excessive summer heat to escape, suffer unnecessarily high temperatures in living quarters below. In winter, the house structure suffers high moisture condensation which results in wet, ineffective insulation. Damage to interior finishes and plaster is caused by such wet insulation, and condensation is one of the chief causes of exterior paint peeling, wood rot, and curled sheathing and roofing.

All spaces between roof and top floor ceiling should be provided with cross ventilation. At least half of the required ventilation should be as near the highest part of the roof as possible.

Many types of ventilators are available, and, properly used, nearly all will serve the purpose. The type of ventilator used—square, rectangular, adjustable louvered, or cupola—will depend largely on the type of architecture with which it must blend.

Carelessness Is Cause Of Falls, Burns And Other Home Accidents

That roller skate can be the death of you, particularly if it's abandoned on poorly lighted stairway. Falls are one of the leading causes which take over 29,000 lives every year. Every 18 minutes, someone dies in a home accident, according to studies made by safety officials.

Next to falls, burns are probably the second largest cause of injury and death in home. Some of these fires are caused by faulty electrical wiring, defective chimneys and heating equipment.

No furnace or heater should be turned on for the winter until it has been carefully examined by a competent serviceman. Deadly gas leaks may also be found in air ducts and chimneys.

Safe fire-tending equipment is as vital as safe heating equipment. Combustible containers, safety authorities say, should be replaced by galvanized steel ash cans or steel baskets to hold hot ashes and cinders from the furnace.

Many more fires are caused by accumulated rubbish in attics and basements. Such rubbish should be removed and burned safely outdoors, away from house and garage.

Other fires are caused by explosions which occur when leaking gas from space heaters, ranges, refrigerators and other household appliances is ignited. All appliances should be checked for leaks by a professional.

Each year, many persons are severely burned as a result of improper use of flammable cleaning fluids. When such fluids must be used, take precautions that no open flame is allowed nearby and that the fluid is stored in an airtight container, such as a galvanized steel fuel can, and kept away from heated areas.

Burns received in cooking are common injuries, with children frequently the victims. Hot pots and pans on the range should have their handles turned toward the back of the range so that children cannot reach them and dump hot food or scalding water on themselves.

Other home hazards include faulty or inadequate wiring, shabby stair rails or no hand rails at all, and loose stairway carpeting. An able electrician should be called on to repair or replace faulty wiring. Loose stairway carpeting should be tacked down firmly and scatter rugs kept away from the top or bottom of the stairways. Each stairway should have sturdy hand rails. Shabby stair hand rails should be replaced or at least braced.

Proper lighting will prevent many accidents in the home. Every area in the home should be lighted well enough that no member of the family will have difficulty seeing obstacles. All light bulbs should be in order and should be of sufficient power to give adequate light for the area they serve.

Basement and attic stairways often are littered with boxes, stacks of magazines and other rubbish. Such litter should be cleared away to prevent someone from suffering a bad fall. The old joke about stepping on a roller skate at the top of the stairway and bouncing all the way down is not funny when it happens to you or another member of the family.

Children should be instructed in the importance of storing toys out of the way. Parents should see that they are good examples.

Every home has its own danger zones for accidents. Each family should inspect its own home and remove these and other hazards to prevent costly and painful injuries and even deaths from home accidents.

Zinc Finish Stops Rust

Galvanized ware describes household and industrial articles made of durable steel coated with zinc to give them a high degree of rust resistance. In addition to its ability to withstand abuse and corrosion, galvanized ware is easily kept clean because its smooth hard surface will not absorb unpleasant odors.

Some of the ordinary household items made of galvanized steel are garbage cans, pails, sprinkling cans, baskets, rubbish burners, laundry tubs and coal hods. Many galvanized steel articles are corrugated to give them added strength without excessive weight.

Galvanized steel products are made by either of two methods. One is to dip the manufactured article into molten zinc and the other is to fabricate the article from "zinc"-coated steel. Both processes combine the durability of steel with the rust proof qualities of zinc.

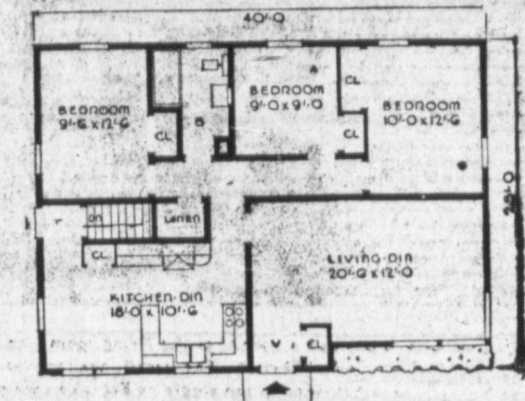

All galvanized ware is fire-proof and such items as ash cans and garbage cans have close-fitting covers to make them fly and rot-proof.

Steel Pail Makes Rugged Wastebasket

A practical and rugged wastebasket for use in the den, workshop or bathroom is a galvanized steel pail. Rust-resistant and not easily battered, the pail may be painted or decorated to match the den or bathroom decor. In case of fire, the pail may be used to carry water to fight the blaze.

Gardeners who know their onions — and the other plants in yard and garden — also know the importance of proper mulching to good gardening. For the uninitiated, a mulch is simply a material used to cover the soil and shade the surface around the plants. In summer, it helps conserve soil moisture, keeps down weeds and generally reduces work. In winter, mulch is just as important to protect plants from freezing temperatures and to equalize soil temperatures.

Several materials make good mulches. Among them are grass clippings, straw or straw manure, peat moss, ground corn cobs, sawdust and excelsior. The best materials are those which allow circulation of air through the top few inches of soil.

If grass clippings are used, permit them to dry in the sun for a day or two before applying them to the ground around plants.

Evergreen trees and shrubs sometimes provide their own natural mulch with dry needles, but young evergreens need a supplementary mulch for full protection.

Before applying a mulch to evergreens, a vegetable plot or flowers that are to be left in the ground, cultivate the soil and work a thin layer of the mulching material into the ground. Additional mulch should then be applied to a thickness appropriate to the plant.

Tuckpointing, Other Cement Repairs Easy

Injuries and property depreciation both can be caused by neglecting home cement repairs around the home. Tuckpointing and repairing broken sidewalks is common sense and a lot less work than it sounds.

Many home handymen have found that ready-mix cement, sold at most lumber yards and hardware stores, is easy to work with and can give results that will make a man proud of his endeavor. Sidewalks and patios are among the most common cement repair jobs the home workman faces, but many homes need minor tuckpointing as well.

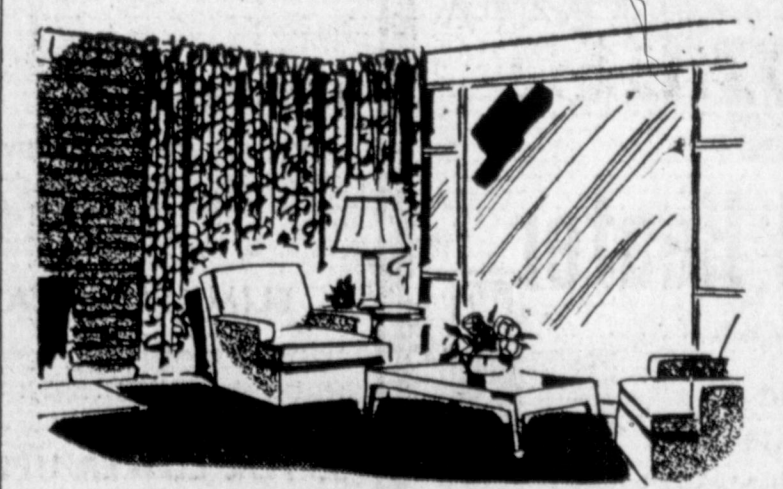

Winter ice, wind and cold weather are damaging to cementwork around the house. Be sure everything is in good order before winter sets in by making those repairs in the fall.

Proper tools are important in this kind of job. In addition to ready-mix cement, other necessary tools are a trowel, a mixing paddle, a galvanized steel pail, and a sturdy step or extension ladder. The cement is easily mixed with water in the pail and is applied right from the pail just like regular cement. Directions for proper use of the material are on the packages.

YOU and YOUR HOME by Jack Foster

APPOINTMENT WITH BEAUTY

With the increase in both size and number of windows in today's smart homes, window treatments—particularly draperies—have become one of the most important appointments in every room plan.

Window treatments today are required to do much more than glorify the window and regulate light. We use them to call attention to attractive outdoor views, to emphasize good structural arrangement, to make small, insignificant windows look large and important, and even to make our walls seem to be made entirely of windows.

If you wish to create a quiet, spacious effect, you will appoint your windows accordingly and treat your draperies as part of the background. Colors in this case should match the walls, and pattern, if used at all, would be small and unobtrusive.

When windows are to be featured as part of the foreground, brighter colors and bolder patterns are indicated. Window appointments should always be consistent with type, style and size of the room.

Note the importance given to the draperies in the large modern living-dining room sketched. By hanging draperies on the fireplace wall where no window exists, and also across an entire wall of glass, they become a foreground feature and introduce color, movement, warmth and diversity to a spacious modern room.

Garbage Cans Are Important

A healthy community is a happy one and wherever rats and flies are allowed to flourish, disease is always found to be more prevalent than in cleaner areas. One of the best ways to prevent pests from taking up residence in your neighborhood, health authorities say, is to be sure every family has enough garbage and refuse cans with close-fitting covers.

Covered galvanized steel cans, rodent and fly-proof, are a community's best insurance against the diseases carried by these pests. Flies alone carry such diseases as typhoid, dysentery and tuberculosis. Some researchers believe they carry polio as well.

In areas with only a weekly garbage collection, nearly every family needs at least two garbage cans and one steel refuse or ash can. One garbage container is nearly always inadequate, resulting in a can so tightly packed that garbage collectors must slam the can against the side of the truck to empty it.

When only one can is used, too often the lid cannot be kept snug-fitting because the garbage overflows. In summertime, particularly, this condition attracts "enemies of health and wealth," rats and flies.

In addition to the health aspects of proper garbage storage, there are the unpleasant odors to consider. Close-fitting covers on containers confine the odors, but an occasional cleaning of the cans with hot water is advisable.

Wringer Pail Eases Mopping

"A woman's work is never done" may be true, but at least much of her work has been made easier with time and labor saving devices. One of the toughest and most time-consuming chores a woman has among her myriad duties is floor-scrubbing. Barring mud or dust tracked in from the outside, most once-a-week mop-downs can be done quickly with clear water, a mop and a mop wringer pail. The galvanized steel mop wringer pail eliminates stooping and bending because the pressure of the foot on the wringer pedal wrings the water out of the mop.

Extra Comfort, Storage Space Combine With Clean, Gracious Design

Waking up in a pleasant, attractive bedroom can make facing the new day a more cheerful task. It is easy to have a good-looking bedroom these days. Whether your room is large or small, the new groupings offer you a great deal of choice in styles and pieces to fit your requirements.

Modern seems to be the leading contender for popularity in bedroom suites. It is a soft modern, however, which has borrowed ideas from traditional styling. Italian Provincial, too, is high on the list.

Making a comeback is 18th Century design. This regal style is now seen in a cleaner, purer form, with all of the fuss and feathers removed. Its dignity and solid air remain.

The trend toward letting the natural beauty of the woods show is very evident in the bedroom finishes. They enhance the loveliness of the wood grain rather than hide it. In fact, the wood grain is used to create an attractive pattern in the piece.

The use of parquet inlay points up this trend. One grouping, called "Janus," features a parquet-type inlay of walnut resembling two slender elongated pyramids placed in an hourglass position. The light and shadow caught in these pieces create a lovely effect.

You will also notice a stronger tendency on the part of designers to combine two or more woods in one piece. A large collection features the use of cherry for broad surfaces, banded by a strip of mahogany.

Another grouping is dramatically designed in walnut with contrasting stripes of maple inlay. It has a tailored feeling to it and has a definite sculptured effect. The group is notable for the lack of any hardware, except for an accent of silver trim on the base of the chest.

There are many styles of beds from which to choose. Bookcase headboards are extremely popular because of their convenience. One is even available with an electric outlet in it, making the attachment of a reading lamp a simple task.

An interesting and attractive bedroom suite is one which offers travertine marble tops on chest pieces and night stands. These are optional and the pieces may be had with mahogany tops, matching the body of the chests, if you prefer. They are also available with cane sliding panels on side of the chests. These panels may be reversed for a change of scene since they are backed with matching mahogany.

Also offered with this group is a tiny four-drawer chest which stands on top of the dresser and may be used as a jewelry case. On a dining room buffet, it can hold the family silver.

Those who like the rich, luxurious look will be happy to learn that beds with sumptuous velvet headboard will be in the stores this fall. Even the most overworked homemaker will feel like a queen when she has breakfast in such a bed!

One manufacturer is offering a bed which has its own attached night stands. The night stands extend out and are suspended from the bookcase headboard.

In many cases, drawer pulls are shaped to follow the line of the front of the piece, for harmonious balance. Drawer pulls and other ornamentation may be of matching or contrasting wood, bright brass, gleaming pewter, antiqued brass (often on Italian Provincial), anodized aluminum, and even real silver, to name only a few possibilities.

Vanities are often being offered as part of bedroom groupings. They serve double duty since they can also act as desks. Also available is a chest-on-chest, the center section of which is a full-front desk.

Chairs to match bedroom groupings are being seen. A number of these are upholstered for added comfort. They give Mom the opportunity of setting up a "privacy corner" in her bedroom where she can take time out to rest during the day.

You can make your bedroom trimly and fluffy, starkly tailored, or something in between. You have only to choose a style which fits your taste and personality.

Identify Garbage Can By Numbers

Everyone uses garbage and trash cans, and, except for a variance in size or brand, they all look pretty much alike. Because of this, garbage collectors often put the cans back in the wrong yard accidentally, and stealing a garbage can is no problem when all cans look alike. For these reasons, many householders now are painting their house numbers or names on the cans. Thefts are discouraged and garbage collectors have no difficulty determining which container belongs to which home.

Painting galvanized steel garbage cans is not difficult. If the can is new, now, rinsing the area painted with vinegar will remove to be painted with vinegar will remove the light, protective film. A can which has been outdoors for at least a few weeks will need no special treatment. Weathering will have removed the film and paint will stick to the galvanizing easily.

Some families will prefer to make a template of the name or house number in order to make the lettering or numbering neater.

A few persons, with appearance in mind, may want to paint the entire can to match the decor of the house and garage, or to coincide with the color of the fence beside which it stands.

Clean Basement Recreation Area For Winter Living

The basement is the perfect place for those informal winter parties, but no party is so informal that the guests should have to wade through piles of rubbish, boxes of worn-out toys and clothing and miscellaneous garden tools. The first requirement of a good party is an attractive location, free from clutter and debris, so before the party season sets in, make sure the basement recreation area will pass inspection.

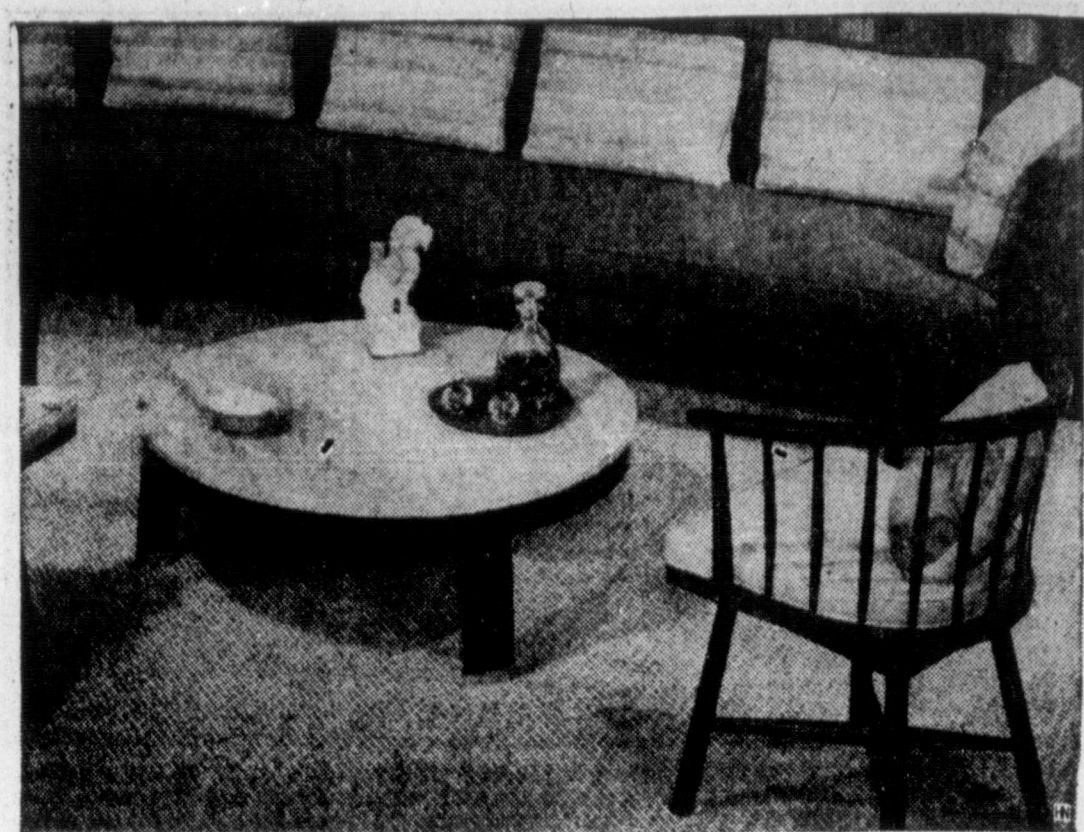

All worn-out appliances, broken-down furniture and outgrown or out-moded clothing should be given to a welfare organization for repair and re-use, or discarded. In addition to making the basement look cluttered, such "junk" is a serious fire hazard. Any items worth saving should be stored out-of-sight in a fire-safe place.

When the floors of the recreation area are cleared of useless debris, start in cleaning. If everyone in the family lends a hand, the job won't take so long, nor will it be a backbreaker for any one person.

Assemble the work crew and tools in one place. Have plenty of galvanized steel scrub pails and sturdy scrub brushes for everyone. A couple of brooms will whisk away the worst of the dirt. Then hose down the walls and floor and scrub everything. Be careful not to get water into electrical outlets, fuse boxes or switch boxes.

When everything is dry, begin setting up ping pong tables, snack bars and card tables. Even if the basement has not been converted into a lavish recreation room with paneled walls, tiled floors and elaborate decorations, it can still be the center of a lot of family fun and neighborhood parties.

The whole tweed family is available this fall in many new color combinations, designs and fibers. Besides being good-looking, tweed carpets are increasingly popular because they are just plumb practical underfoot, and stay handsome under constant use. Large Bedding Aid To Sleep

Home fashion time is a perfectly wonderful time to reexamine the family's bedding. Certainly no part of the home contributes more to our health and well-being than the all-important bedroom. There are lots of new things to see in bedroom furnishings. There are hundreds of new styles and ideas in sofa beds, studio couches, rollaway cots, bunk beds, and even chair beds.

To top all of that, stores are showing in greater quantities than ever before, the exciting new way to sleep—oversize bedding. First introduced on a large scale about a year ago, supersized bedding has gained acceptance with luxury and wonderful comfort of a big bed, he had to have it custom-made. Not so, now! Most retailers currently stock the big bedding as a matter of course. And the price is right, too.

The current crop of sleep pieces is very much worth seeing. Mattresses are shown in new sizes. Innovations can be found in almost every type of dual purpose equipment. High style touches in fabrics, arm treatments, leg details are combined with new and greater efficiency of operation.

First introduced on a large scale about a year ago, supersized bedding has gained acceptance with remarkable speed. Why not? It answers such a definite need.

It's a known fact that we move while we sleep—if we are to get the proper rest. The big size in bedding allows plenty of room for this movement.

People everywhere are coming to the conclusion that the standard 76-inch bed is just not long enough for sleeping comfort—not if you really like to stretch out and take it easy in bed. Your own height has nothing to do with it. Tall or small, you'll find that you sleep much better on supersize.

It would pay you well, in many hours of sleeping comfort, to examine some of the better bedding on display during home fashion time.

5 Soak Portable Grills, Range Parts Before Cleaning

Cooking - range parts, barbecue grills and fireplace equipment have a way of getting sooty, gummy, sticky and greasy. Cleaning these messy items, for most people, is less fun than, say, an afternoon at the ball park or a party. Although it's unlikely the job ever will be classified as "fun" it can be done a lot easier and quicker when the right technique is used.

Some people will prefer to do the job in three separate operations: first the range parts, then the fireplace equipment and finally the barbecue grill. The quickest and easiest way, however, is to combine all three jobs into one, bane all three jobs into one.

A galvanized steel pail will be adequate for cleaning the range-top burners. Fill the pail with a solution of detergent, ammonia and water and soak the greasy burners in it overnight. By morning, the solution will have taken off the bulk of the grease and soot without the need of elbow grease. A little polishing with a steel-bristled brush or steel wool will burnish the range parts like new.

If the oven interior is also to be cleaned, use a small steel laundry tub filled with the detergent and ammonia solution. The laundry tub will work equally well for the fireplace equipment and barbecue grill. If the grill is to be stored for the winter, coat it lightly with machine oil to prevent rust.

A large - size galvanized steel laundry tub will be needed if all the items are to be cleaned at once as a time saver. A slightly stronger solution of detergent and ammonia may be needed to absorb the larger quantity of grease.

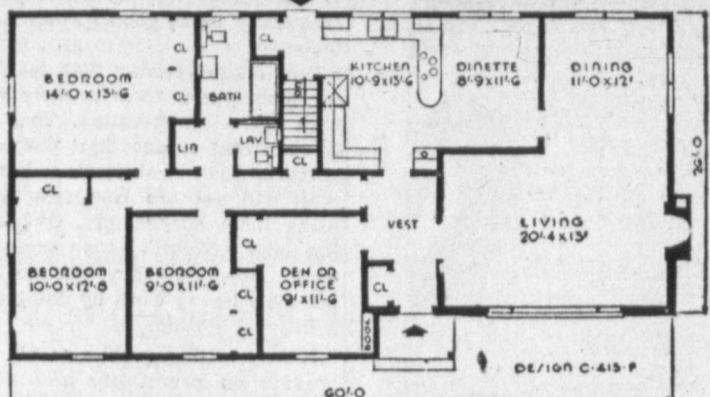

This cleaning method will improve the appearance of the range, fireplace, and barbecue grill and will make the job of cleaning them much easier.

Technique Essential In Wall Washing

Wall-washing is tough only if you go about it the wrong way. The easy method calls for assembly of all equipment in one place and proper technique. Two galvanized steel pails, one filled with soapy water, the other with rinse water, and a long-handled sponge mop are the only equipment necessary. Swab down the wall with rich suds, starting at the bottom, then rinse with clear water. The bottom-to-top method of washing prevents hard-to-remove streaks from dirty wash water.

Garden Tools Deserve Good Storage Space

A smart gardener knows his tools will last longer and give better service if they are kept clean and in good condition. Garden tools kept in good shape during the gardening season and stored properly during the winter will serve for many years.

Particularly important is winter storage. Lawn and garden tools should have their own storage space, handy to the garden, yet out of the elements. The gardener who lives for the time when he can get home from the hot, stuffy office and into the yard will want a more elaborate storage for his tools than will the man who merely mows his lawn, and does that only under pressure from his wife.

The man who has little more in the way of lawn and garden equipment than a lawn mower and possibly hedge clippers will find adequate space in the garage. Before abandoning the mower for the winter, clean it thoroughly and oil all parts. A thin film of oil over all bare metal parts will prevent corrosion. Raise the mower off the damp concrete garage floor onto a wooden apple crate or other low, wooden box. It'll help prevent moisture from causing rust. Rub linseed oil lightly onto the wooden mower handle to guard against warping and rot.

The fuel tanks of power mowers should be drained and the fuel stored safely in a tightly covered metal can, such as a galvanized steel fuel can. Coat the cutting blade lightly with machine oil.

Store Supplies In Steel Cans For Emergency

Floods, fires and other disasters often shut off food, water and light to families whose homes have been damaged or whose sources for those elements of living have been impaired or destroyed. Civil defense authorities say every home should be equipped with emergency supplies to meet these and other hazards.

Although most American homes are not in areas where hurricanes, floods, tornadoes and earthquakes are a real source of danger, everyone is subject to possible attack by enemy aircraft without warning. If emergency supplies are kept available in a "disaster kit" in every household, no one will be caught short should an emergency arise.

These supplies may be stored conveniently and safely in a covered galvanized steel ash or garbage can, and kept in a place quickly accessible. These galvanized steel cans are available in several sizes, so there is one to fit the space needs of every family. Fire, moisture and rodents cannot destroy supplies kept in these strong, durable and rust-resistant containers.

Among the items to be stored in these containers are bottled water, canned foods, flashlights and extra batteries, candles and matches, blankets and durable extra clothing for each member of the family. These are essential supplies, but other things may be added. With additional supplies, some families may need more than one container.

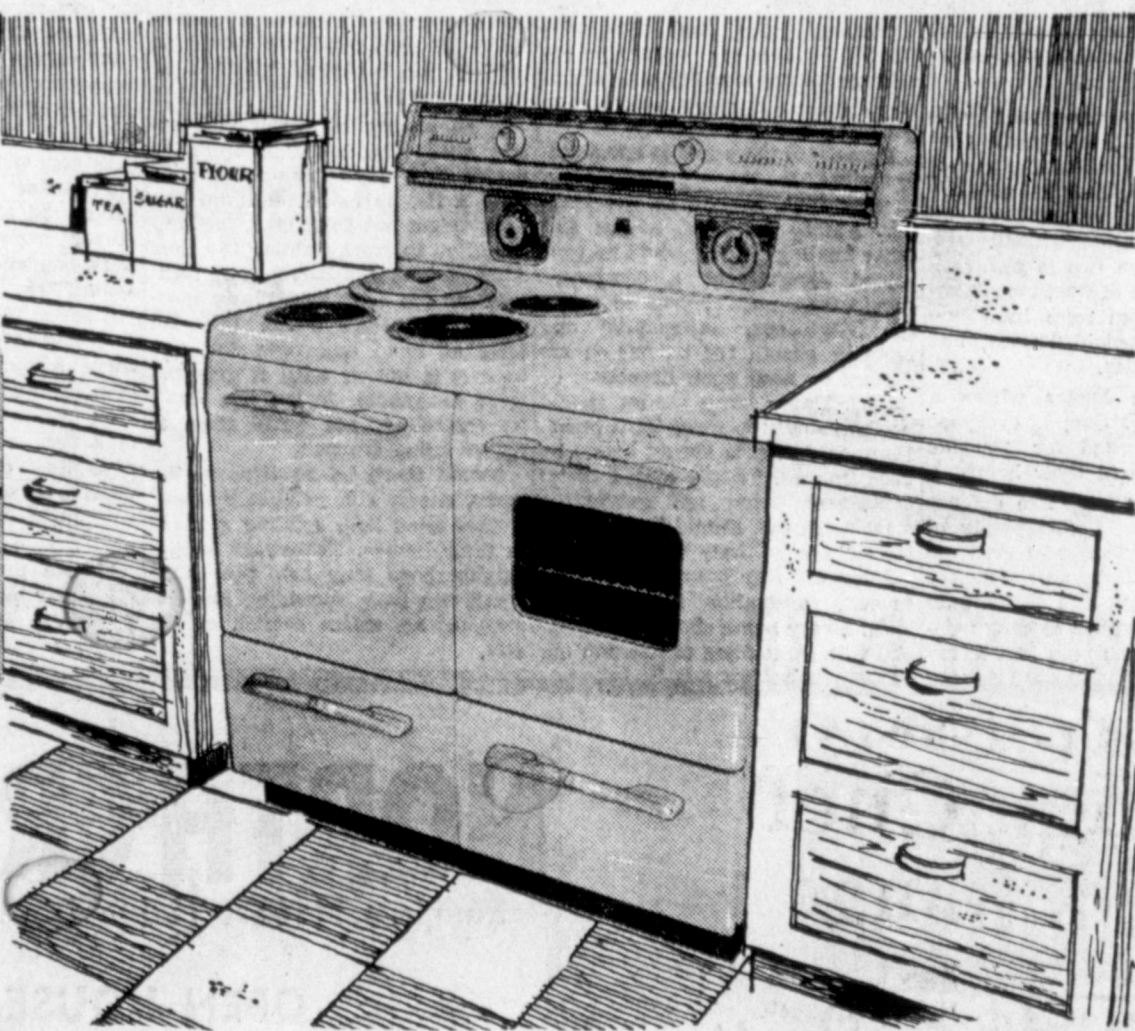

Hidden Pennies Save Time, Labor

A few pennies, not-too-well hidden around the house can help get fall housecleaning done easier and quicker. When the children are told there is "hidden treasure" to be found, those chores won't seem so distasteful to them.

Harvest Time...

Time to reap the joys of ELECTRIC COOKING!

You can live better electrically when you cook electrically.

It's the traditional time of the year to reap the joys of harvest and it's time, too, to reap the joys of electric cooking. If you're not yet one of the millions of modern women who already cook electrically, then it's time you learned how easy electric cooking is. Take cleanliness, for example. Electric cooking is clean... no messy pan bottoms to clean because nothing burns onto the tops of electric elements or the bottoms of pans. Ovens are insulated on ALL SIX SIDES and they're automatic... just set and forget... whole meals cook for you automatically. It's harvest time... time for you to reap the joys of electric cooking.

HOW DO YOU LIKE YOUR COOKING... electrically, you can have it either way, conventional, free-standing models or the delightful new custom built-ins. Your Reddy Kilowatt Dealer can help you choose.

Stop Destructive Fires

Proper Equipment May Save Your Home From Fire In War And Peace

Peacetime fires in the United States take a toll of more than 10,000 lives and a billion dollars in property damage. No one can estimate the fire cost should this country become a target for enemy air attack.

Fire departments could not handle all the fires which would result if an enemy attack were made on any American city. If a nuclear bomb should strike, fires would be started for many miles around the target area. Home or neighborhood fires would have to be fought by householders and neighborhood teams.

Quick action on the part of citizens can put out fires while they are small, provided the proper tools and knowledge are available. Knowing how to put out fires can pay dividends even without war, since destructive fire is always a menace. In time of war, that knowledge could even save individual homes, whole neighborhoods, and even entire cities.

Since no one knows where a bomb might strike, everyone should be prepared for possible peacetime fires in their homes.

The basis for good fire defense are training, tools, and plenty of practice drills. The local civil defense organization can supply training in home fire fighting to at least one member of each family, who may then pass that knowledge along to the rest of the family.

Each member of the family should be given duties to perform in case of fire, in order that all may learn to work as an efficient team. From time to time, trade jobs so that everyone may learn each of the duties.

With a little care, most accidental fires can be avoided. "A clean building seldom burns" is an axiom firemen learn early in their training.

Closets, attic and basement should be checked carefully for flammable items which can be given to welfare agencies, sold to the junkman or burned safely.

Be certain the home is adequately wired to prevent fires from short circuits caused by overloading. Faulty furnaces, stoves and other heating plants should be examined carefully by a competent serviceman and repaired or cleaned. Magazines, newspapers and clothing should not be left on radiators or near open fireplaces or stoves. Paper lamp shades should not be allowed to touch light bulbs. Flammable fluids should never be used indoors. Tightly closed metal containers, such as galvanized steel fuel cans, should be provided for storage of these fluids.

After all fire hazards are removed, assemble fire fighting tools. Every home should be equipped with some form of fire fighting apparatus.

Should a bomb blast disable water pumping facilities, a galvanized steel garbage or ash can filled with water and equipped with a close-fitting cover, could help put out a fire. Pails could be refilled from the ash can. Small fire extinguishers and steel fire pails filled from the ash can. Small fire hung on the back of closet doors or under stairways. A supply of burlap bags should be kept handy. Soaked in water, they may be used to smother small fires. A sturdy ladder in good condition should be kept in the basement where it is easily accessible.

If an enemy attack should occur, check the house carefully to see if fires have been started. If such a fire is found, call the fire department but don't wait for help to arrive to start fighting the fire. Assume that professional fire fighters are too busy with blazes elsewhere and can't come. Use the tools at hand and fight the fire until it is out or until it gets too large to handle. If the fire can't be controlled, get away from it before being trapped.

Should there be no fires in the home, check with neighbors to see if they need help fighting a blaze in their homes. Teamwork in the neighborhood may help prevent a small fire from spreading and destroying an entire section of the city.

Portable Electric Tools Fun To Use, Make Repairs Easy

Portable power tools are easy and fun to use and make welcome additions to any home workshop. However, the inexperienced handyman should choose power tools carefully, the way he would select frequently used, good quality hand tools.

One characteristic that is true for most power tools is their very high speed of operation. They rely on speed rather than power to perform their work. The handyman will get the best results by using them accordingly. Overloading such tools will cause excessive wear. However, they can do surprisingly heavy work by doing only a little at a time.

Nearly all home power tools will operate on practically any available electric current, making them useful anywhere. Although each power tool has a special application for which it was named, many of them, with suitable accessories, may be used for various workshop operations. A portable electric grinder, for example, will drill holes, sand, rout, engrave, saw and polish.

Of all the portable electric tools available, and there are literally dozens of types, the little electric grinders are the best known and perhaps the most adaptable to various uses of any power tool. Power tool manufacturers recommend the electric grinder as the first power tool for the amateur craftsman.

Other power tools which may be added to the home workshop as needed include saws, sanding drums, drills, polishing wheels and routers.

Workbench Scrap Can Cause Fires

Sawdust, wood scraps and shavings are fire hazards unless the home handyman takes care in disposing of these wastes. Spontaneous combustion is not uncommon in home workshops, but a little caution in disposal of scraps can prevent a serious fire.

An ideal container for sawdust and shavings is a galvanized steel garbage can, equipped with a close-fitting cover. Should spontaneous combustion occur in the waste materials in the can, the blaze would be confined to the interior of the can and would quickly be quenched for lack of oxygen.

A small garbage pail is adequate for a seldom-used workshop. In a larger basement workshop, a full-size fireproof garbage can may be needed. The smaller can is equipped with a wire bail on the top and the larger can has handles on the sides for easy carrying when moving them outside for collection. Both are equipped with snug-fitting covers.

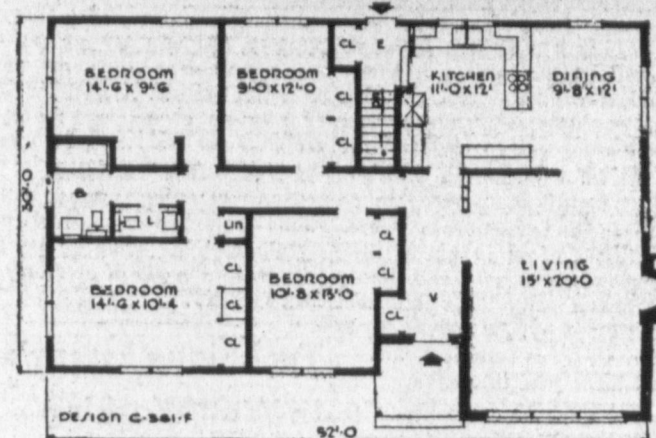

Workshop fires occasionally are caused by spontaneous combustion in oily or paint-soaked rags carelessly left lying about. Such rags also should be kept in a covered metal container, such as a galvanized steel garbage pail to prevent possible damage to the workshop and home from an accidental fire.

Cleanup time in the home workshop should come right after each chore is completed. If wood scraps, sawdust and oily or paint-soaked rags are gathered at once and put in a safe container, there is less possibility of a fire causing expensive damage to the workshop equipment or even to the home.

Bonfires Are Hazards; Use Steel Burners

With all of its many advantages, automatic heating has deprived the average home owner of a place to burn trash. This isn't a serious problem, though, for sturdy rubbish burners are available at most local hardware and houseware stores.

These rubbish burners are made of durable galvanized steel. They have perforated sides and covers which permit rubbish to burn rapidly with no danger of wind blowing flaming particles about the yard.

For this reason, fire safety officials recommend using these steel containers instead of open bonfires in disposing of leaves during the fall months. Many destruc-

Piano Bench Is Good Tea Table

An old piano bench may easily be converted into a good tea table simply by sawing off the legs to an appropriate height. Magazines, ash trays and coasters may be stored out of sight in the hinged top.

Five home fires could be averted each year, the experts point out, if home owners would avoid using open bonfires.

Another advantage of galvanized steel rubbish burners is that they can serve as trash receptacles in the back yard when they are not being used for burning rubbish. For inside storage of paper and other flammable waste, covered steel ash cans or garbage cans are preferred. When kept tightly covered, these containers keep their contents fireproof.

Natural Finishes Spur Wood Grain Interest

Beauty-conscious homemakers are showing more interest in the beauty of wood as the new in-the-furniture finishes rapidly gain acceptance. The emphasis on the natural, mottled, oil, wax, and other grain-revealing finishes in new furniture styles has resulted in the expanded use of many wood grains patterns in the search for variety and distinctive design.

As a result of this trend, the homemaker is becoming more figure-minded—wood figure, that is. And so, to keep up with furniture fashions, familiarity of grain patterns becomes highly important to shopping.

Because of mahogany's unlimited variety and combinations of grain patterns, much of it is found in bedroom and dining room furniture. Mahogany is the granddaddy for famous names of wood figures or grain patterns. Crotch, swirl, mottle, broken stripes, and fiddle-back, to name a few, were first used to describe mahogany, the wood in which the many beautiful figures first became known.

STYLE-Conscious homemakers with an eye to elegance may be aware of some, but not all, of the more beautiful, mahogany patterns. Most famous of these and perhaps the best known, is the crotch mahogany figure. Not too well known is the variety of crotch styles found within this family of lovely patterns.

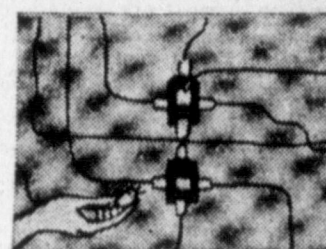

Mahogany finishes on the new fall furniture excel those concocted by Thomas Chippendale. If the famous 18th Century cabinetmaker could inspect the new offerings, he probably would be the first to admit that the new warm brown tones on mahogany are more beautiful than his deep red stains which have been erroneously tagged "traditional mahogany" finish.

Modern Setting For The Savory Arts Designers

Conjure up a kitchen and it's yours, with all the modern methods of making this most important room in the house truly personalized.

And the best and most modern, the most convenient and the most beautiful kitchens are today being constructed of the oldest material — wood.

Regimentation in the kitchen is over and stock storage cupboards need no longer stymie the housewife who longs for something that will make her own way of doing things a little easier.

With wood such as lovely west coast hemlock, the kitchen need cost no more, yet can be your own idea of a dream kitchen. The pale golden hemlock, finished natural, allows the homemaker to change her color scheme any time she wants, or decorate with any color. Streak wood cabinets cover up the utilitarian look of porcelain fixtures, and give the kitchen an elegance usually found only in the living areas of the home. You can have ovens, surface range unit, freezer, refrigerator and even dishwasher set into wood bullins.

It is doubly important to give glamour to the kitchen if it serves also as a part of the dining area, or if your home is built on the open floor plan so you can see the kitchen from other rooms of the house.

This generation of tall women looks to wood cupboards to give added working ease in her kitchen. In many cases, the 26" standard height for kitchen counter tops is much too low, but this can be remedied with cupboards built to suit your individual height. The same is true for the pettier who must have a little less than standard counter heights.

Some of the kitchen conveniences asked for by modern homemakers are such practical and efficient touches as tray drawers, flat and easy sliding where you can see all the pots and pans at once without digging through a mass of utensils.

The spice cupboard is also much easier to use, if it is built in a stair-step design, with the name of each condiment always on view. The step-up spice rack may be built and set right into one of the hanging cupboards near the range. Hard-to-utilize corner cupboards become a treasure house of storage with a lazy susan set of shelves mounted on a revolving center pole. Shelves may be constructed to revolve separately or all together.

To keep brooms, mops and dusters from flattening out and wearing more rapidly, line the walls of your broom closet with pegboard and hang up your cleaning gear on little hooks made especially to use with pegboards.

A pass cupboard between kitchen and dining area saves steps, keeps food from cooling in the trek from stove to table, and makes table clearing quick and neat. The pass-through may be concealed, when not in use, by decorative little louvered shutters, or by a sliding panel.

Rainy Day Sandbox

Here's a way to keep Junior occupied indoors on rainy days with no danger that he'll tear up the house. An indoor, portable sandbox is easily made by filling a galvanized steel laundry tub with sand and placing it on an enclosed porch, in the garage or in the basement.

A steel laundry tub provides plenty of room for Junior's lead soldier military maneuvers, castle building and tunneling. The sides of the tub are low enough that he can reach it easily, and there is no damage he can do to the sturdy tub.

Painting Preparations

Paint will stick better to any surface if it's clean. Before applying a fresh coat of paint to a window sash, outside stairs or other areas to be painted, scrape away loose or peeling old paint. Then rub the wood lightly with sandpaper to loosen and remove dead paint. Scrub the whole area with a stiff-bristled brush and thick soapuds to wash away loosened paint and grime.

Seal Window Room Cooler

Room air-conditioners are becoming very popular appliances, with more and more families taking advantage of the cool summer sleeping they offer. Although some of the models are built into the wall, most are the window-type. Because this type of room air-conditioner is not installed as a permanent fixture, users either must remove them in cold weather or suffer drafts and loss of heat around the unit in winter.

With only a couple of hours' work, a home craftsman can turn the unit into a year-around installation without the disadvantages mentioned, providing the cooler is located in a double-hung window.

The only materials necessary include putty, caulking and a piece of tempered hardboard or exterior plywood. Remove the pane of glass in the lower panel of the storm window, since the airconditioner extends out several inches. Cut the plywood or hardboard to fit the space from which the glass pane was removed. With a jig or keyhole saw, cut a hole in the center of the wood panel to fit the contour of the air-conditioner at the place where the unit would pass through the storm window.

Fit the wood panel into the storm window as you would a pane of glass and putty it into place. Mount the storm window in place, with the air-conditioner projecting through it. Fill any air spaces around the unit with caulking to prevent air from passing through. Caulking is used in this application rather than putty because it remains more flexible and will not be dislodged by vibration of the air-conditioner or temperature changes.

The wood panel may be painted to match the storm window frame or the color of the house.

A SMALL HOUSE PLANNING BUREAU DESIGN NO. M-388

Design M-388. From its exterior this does not appear to be a duplex, because of its common front vestibule; it would not be conspicuous in a residential neighborhood. Each apartment contains living room, combination kitchen-dinette, two bedrooms, bath and separate rear entry and stairs to basement. The arrangement is compact and economical to build, and should be ideal for the small family which likes the income feature of the additional apartment. Exterior lines are low, with hip roof, wide overhanging eaves; finished with wide siding. Floor area is 1550 sq. ft. and cubage is 28,675 cu. ft. End Mess When Emptying Vacuum

There's no need to make a production out of emptying the vacuum cleaner. The process of dumping the dust-filled bag into a wastebasket or onto a newspaper, then carrying the mess out of the rubbish can is time-consuming and creates more work when dust spills onto the floor.

Save time and trouble by inverting the bag over a galvanized steel garbage can and dumping the contents directly into the can. Then replace the can's cover. This way, dust is prevented from being re-spread through the house and is kept from blowing over the backyard. Replacing the cover is important to prevent a breeze from drawing the dust out of the can.

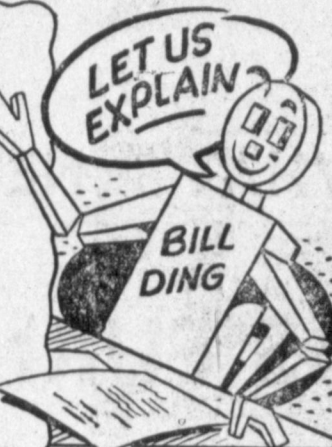

Washday Helper

Even in homes equipped with automatic laundry equipment, homemakers are finding that a set of galvanized steel laundry tubs are necessary for much of the washing process. These tubs are used for rinsing, boiling and as spare tanks to hold wash water for washing machines equipped with "suds-saving" devices. Such machines use the same soapy wash water for several loads of laundry, saving hot water and soap.

Elevate Refuse Cans

Health authorities say edible garbage should be stored in galvanized steel garbage cans equipped with close-fitting covers, placed on an elevated platform at least 18 inches off the ground.

Barbecue Grill Pointers Improve Economy, Flavor

With the swing to outdoor living, more and more people are discovering the delights of chicken, steaks, roasts, hamburgers and hot dogs prepared on a barbecue grill in the backyard. A few helpful hints on care of the grill will make the novice as good at feeding his family outdoors as the experts.

Heat is the cooking agent, not fire. Therefore, the more heat you can get out of the charcoal, the more evenly cooked and better flavored the food. Among the better portable barbecue grills available on the market, is the type with a hood to reflect heat. Build the charcoal fire back under the hood and place the food on the grill away from the coals. Put a strip of aluminum or other metal foil under the food to catch the grease drippings. These drippings, when allowed to drop into the coals, cause the fire to flare up and singe the meat. The heat, reflecting from the hood, will cook the food evenly without burning it.

Build Fire Bed
It's a good idea when building a charcoal fire in the barbecue grill, to spread a bed of cinders, crushed stone or even dirt on the fire bed before laying the charcoal. Such a bed will prevent excessive heat from eventually burning out the bottom of the grill.

After the barbecuing is finished, don't just allow the charcoal to burn itself out. Save it for use the next time by putting the fire out and storing the charcoal safely away. One of the better methods of putting the fire out is to dump the charcoal on soft earth and cover it with a layer of dirt. After the coals have cooled, rake them out of the dirt and store them in the garage in a galvanized steel coal hod.

Clean In Tub

Cleaning the grill after a barbecue is no picnic. To prevent contamination and spoiled food flavor, the grill on which the food is prepared must be cleaned after each use. This job is not as tough as it sounds, and can be easy if simple directions are followed.

Fill a galvanized steel laundry tub with a solution of detergent and ammonia in water and put the grill in to soak for several hours, or even overnight. The solution will dissolve most of the sticky grease and soot. What little is left over has loosened in the solution and may be removed with a steel-bristled brush or steel wool. The grill will be as bright and clean as new and will prevent unpleasant odors and tainted flavor from spoiling the next barbecue.

The metal hood and the outside of the fire bed may be cleaned with a cloth wrung out in the detergent-ammonia solution. If the barbecue grill is the per-

Sturdy Ladders Halt Accidents

A step-ladder or extension ladder is a very handy thing to have around any home. In addition to the convenience of a ladder at hand for minor repair jobs around the house, a ladder will help prevent accidents. A chair or stack of books used as a ladder can cause painful injuries.

Although many homes have stepladders or extension ladders of some type, not all of the ladders are as safe as they should be. Many people are killed and injured each year in falls from ladders with broken rungs, or ladders which simply collapse from the weight.

A ladder is useful only if it is usable, and a dangerous ladder is not safely usable. If your ladder is rickety or has rungs missing, replace it or at least have it firmly braced and the broken rungs replaced. Bolts and screws on the hardware of extension ladders should be checked for tightness and to make sure they are not broken. Occasionally, the wood around the bolts or screws will split from pressure, and should be replaced.

Typifying a return to 18th Century styling is this handsome bedroom grouping. Note, however, that the old trimming is gone. The design has been cleaned up so that it retains its dignity yet gives the homemaker the clean, simple lines which she likes so much. Available in old world or butternut mahogany, this group offers ample storage space in the dresser and five-drawer chest. (Kent-Coffey Mfg. Co.)
