TWO KILLED IN RYAN EXPLOSION

Second Dallas Girl Attacker Is Voted Death Penalty

LEE MERRIMAN SENT TO CHAIR FOR ASSAULT

Dallas Jury Asks Supreme Penalty for Attack On Girl, 17

THREE KIDNAPINGS

Officials Hope to Connect Duo With Murders Of Two Women

DALLAS, Jan. 23. (AP)—Lee Roy Merriman, 28, today, was sentenced to death in the electric chair for criminally assaulting a 17-year-old girl.

Merriman was the second man to be convicted and sentenced to death for assault after three girls had been kidnaped from their escorts here on the night of Dec. 9 and attacked. Bennie Aldridge, 23, draw a similar penalty last week.

Week of Crime

Merriman, whose home was in Caddo, Okla., and Aldridge were arrested after a riotous week of crime in which half a dozen persons were held up and robbed. The district attorney's office today said it had evidence which might link the two men with the slaying of Mrs. Bessie Lynch and Mrs. Cleo Lieto, whose battered bodies were found in a corn field near Dallas on Nov. 4.

When officers arrested Merriman and Aldridge as they bought gasoline preparatory to a flight to Oklahoma, Merriman was wounded in the head. Officers said he resisted arrest.

Considered Not "Bright."

Testimony in Merriman's trial was concluded last night. His plea was insanity, and relatives testified they had never considered him "bright." The jury began deliberations at 3 p. m.

Aldridge pleaded guilty, and when his attorney announced, after a death penalty had been assessed, that he would appeal, the attorney, Eddi Roark, said his life was threatened. He refused to ask for protection, and said that unless his motion for a new trial was granted he would file the appeal.

Raley Hunts $1,500,000 Worth Of Property Unrendered on '28 Rolls

Guy C. Raley, county tax collector, and his deputies have gone on a still hunt for approximately $1,500,000 of Wichita county property which Mr. Raley said is unrendered in the 1928 tax rolls.

The collector said that the office had already discovered that a number of large establishments and business firms all over the county have been left entirely from the rolls, and that the unrendered property list would involve a larger valuation last year than in any previous year.

Records of the department show that in 1925 the collector found $1,004,046 worth of unrendered property, upon which $24,924.67 was collected. In 1926, the supplemental roll, prepared by the collector, showed unrendered property valued at $1,342,188, and in 1927, unrendered property worth $424,305 was uncovered. Taxes collected from the supplemental roll in 1926 totaled $35,459.35; and for 1927 they were $17,020.19, Mr. Raley said.

The collector Wednesday asked the co-operation of the property owners in the county in meeting the situation. He asked that tax payers bring their statements to the office at the time of payment, and that property owners who have not received the statements provide the lot and block numbers of the property in order to expedite the service in the department.

The collector explained that the unrendered property, much of which has already been discovered, involves both real and personal property and that both business firms and homes have been left off the roll.

Crew of Stranded Ship Rescued By Hero of Many Atlantic Wrecks

NEW YORK, Jan. 23. (UP)—The full crew of the sea-tortured little Italian freighter Florida was taken from the sinking ship tonight and put safely aboard the S. S. America in the face of greatest danger to both rescuers and rescued.

Capt. George Fried, who has defied the storms of the North Atlantic many times, reported by radio to his company here at 10:10 p. m. that the rescue had been carried out with only one slight accident—the loss of a life boat.

The 32 men had waited for more than 36 hours aboard the wave-battered freighter before they were taken aboard the America, while a bitter cold gale which had hampered rescue ships for a night and day continued to stir the Atlantic into mighty waves.

Captain Fried's message said: "Rescued full crew of Florida, 32 men. Chief Officer Harry Manning in charge. Cold west gale. Life boat lost. Proceeding to New York. Full details later."

ACE PENDLETON SNARED WHEN RUSE SUCCEEDS

Bandit Leader Victim Of Trap Laid by Cops At Border City

DENIES ROBBERIES

'They Accuse Me of Everything,' Wails Noted Ex-Convict

EL PASO, Jan. 23. (AP)—A victim of a ruse played by two police officials, posing as prohibition agents, Asa O. (Ace) Pendleton, 31, accused leader of a notorious bank robbers' band, tonight faced the end of a long trail of alleged lawlessness.

More than 20 bank robberies and eight killings are attributed by police to "the Ace" and members of his band. Admitting his identity, but denying he had ever robbed a bank, Pendleton viewed the officers, who took him into custody under the pretense for investigation as to whether he had violated the prohibition law and operated a "bunco game."

Ace Philosophizes

"Records and finger prints will get you sooner or later," Pendleton observed in his cell.

"Listen," he continued, "I've been accused of every bank robbery in the United States since I got out of jail last October. They can't hang that Lamar, Colo., job on me because I was in jail at Okeman, Okla., when it happened. I never pulled a bank job in my life, but I've been accused of a dozen."

Hardly had Pendleton made this statement, when headquarters received a telegram saying he was wanted for murder and bank robbery at Purcell, Okla. Shortly after, came another with the same charge from Pampa, Texas.

Face Recognized

Pendleton's arrest was brought about by Chief of Police L. T. Robey and Detective Sergeant J. W. Fitzgerald, who noted his resemblance to a photograph of Pendleton sent out in a police circular from Butte, Mont., where he is wanted for a $1,500 bank robbery.

Pendleton, another man and two women were accosted by the the officers as they emerged from an alleged "speakeasy" last night. Officers searched the party for liquor and then informed the four that they would have to go to police headquarters for further investigation. The women were released, but Pendleton and the man were held.

Frank Powers, head of the identification bureau, announced finger prints of Pendleton established his identity.

Jumped His Bond

"I have never been in Montana in my life, and I know nothing about the Purcell robbery," said Pendleton, when questioned concerning the charges against him in those places.

Pendleton admitted he jumped bond at El Dorado, Ark., last week, after being released to bond on a habeas corpus proceeding.

The officers who arrested Pendleton, after searching him for liquor, advised him they also wanted to investigate a charge that he had perpetrated a bunco game. Pendleton admitted he had been outwitted, believing he would be released in a few hours.

Police said they believed Pendleton had no connection with the robbery of the First National bank of Lamar, Colo., in which four men were killed. "Whitey" Walker, arrested in Buffalo, N. Y., a few days ago as the leader of the Lamar hold-up, was alleged to be a member of Pendleton's gang. Walker is en route to Colorado for trial.

PAY THEY MUST

Michigan Solon Would Hang Those Making False Charges

LANSING, Mich., Jan. 23. (US)—Someone must pay!

Fighting against capital punishment legislation today, Senator Seymour H. Patterson introduced a bill, part of which was culled from the old Babilonian law which read:

"If a man bring an accusation against a man, but can not prove it, he, the accuser, shall be put to death."

Senator Person asked that his bill be considered a "rider" to all death penalty measures before the legislature.

JOHNSTON HAD BUILDERS' HELP

Seventh Charge Voted In Impeachment Action

OKLAHOMA CITY, Jan. 23. (AP)—Evidence purporting to show that road contractors rallied to the aid of Henry S. Johnston, suspended governor, when impeachment threatened him in 1927, was adduced today in a legislative investigation, as another article of impeachment was added to six already voted against him by the house.

Ten articles of impeachment were placed before the house by its investigating committee. Three still await approval by the house before they can be transmitted to a senate court, before which Johnston must stand trial. The charge voted today involved the alleged illegal use of the national guard in suppressing an attempted impeachment session of the legislature last winter.

Testimony that Mrs. O. O. Hammonds, the suspended executive's secretary, had sought to arrange the intoxication of a hostile house member in an attempt to obtain information from him, was another high spot of the evidence taken by house and senate committees.

Contributed $500

E. J. Franklin, Tulsa, testified before a senate committee investigating rumors that money was employed to bring an end to the attempted impeachment session of Dec., 1927, that he contributed $500 toward a fund to employ attorneys to represent Johnston in a supreme court case testing the validity of the session. He said the money had been solicited by two contractors.

KIRKLAND, Texas, Jan. 23.—Every business house in the small town of Lazare, 10 miles south of here, was burglarized last night or early this morning, according to advices here. Loss will approximate more than $500.

The postoffice in the same building was also entered, and $20 taken from the safe, the knob of which was knocked off.

About $300 in merchandise was taken from the Lazare Lumber company, and a few hunting knives, guns and a quantity of ammunition in the office was missing. The Slaton garage and several smaller places were also entered, police reported, with losses running slightly less than in the other establishments.

Entrance to all the buildings was obtained through the front doors. Cottle and Hardeman county officers, after a day's investigation, reported they had no clue to the identity of the robbers, and announced that their efforts would be continued.

BRIDGE WORK STARTS SOON

Scott Avenue Project Ready by Fall

Work on the Scott avenue bridge across Wichita river will be started late in February and will probably be completed in the early fall, according to the Luten Bridge company of Little Rock, Ark., to whom the construction contract was awarded by the county commissioners court Wednesday morning.

Cost $68,000

The bridge will cost $68,00 and will be built according to plans drawn by Daniel E. Luten of Indianapolis, one of the most distinguished bridge designers in the United States. The services of between 50 and 75 men, to be employed locally, will be required for a period of about 200 days, according to the estimates of D. H. Daughtery, secretary of the company.

The contract was awarded on one of four alternate plans offered by the company against eight other bidders and six different plans, presented to the commissioners court Monday. The plans and specifications of the Arkansas company were the first in a series of four recommendations made to the body by J. M. Isbell, county engineer.

The plans offered by the Luten company call for a 303-foot concrete structure, following the cantilever arch type. The three open arches have a span of 87, 89 and 87 feet, with a 40 foot roadway and a five foot walk on either side.

Ornamental Structure

Judge John P. Marrs, presiding at the meeting Wednesday, said afterwards that in awarding the contract the commissioners had, in his opinion, chosen at once the most ornamental and the most economical plan.

Property owners near the bridge have guaranteed $25,000 as a partial payment for the structure. The remainder of the cost will be met by the road and bridge funds of precinct one.

STEAM BOILER BLAST FATAL TO WORKMEN

Four Injured as Oil Mill Equipment Explodes Wednesday

ONE SERIOUSLY HURT

Broken Piston Rod Held As Cause of Disastrous Blast

Special to The Record News

RYAN, Okla., Jan. 23.—Two men were killed, and four were injured, one seriously, when a cylinder head blew out of a steam engine used for power in the Ryan Cotton Oil mill here about noon today.

A broken piston road was ascribed by J. M. Sawyer, manager of the mill, as the cause of the tragedy.

The dead:

C. R. Allen, about 50, and Leroy Martin, 26, employes in the lint room.

The injured: H. R. Carver, about 40; Sam C. Johnson, about 53; Ebe Harper; and a negro, Rufus Reed.

Carver is in the hospital with a fractured rib and other injuries. The rest are only slightly hurt.

Bodies Crushed

Both Allen and Martin died in a hospital here, where the wounded were rushed immediately after the blast.

Death came to the victims soon after being placed under treatment of physicians. Their bodies were said to have been crushed at the impact of parts of the cylinder, which were thrown forward with deadly force as the result of the explosion.

Pending an official investigation of the blast, it is thought that it was the result of a broken piston rod in the engine, and not of an accumulation of water in the cylinder, Mr. Sawyer said tonight. An inspector of the company will be taken to the plant today to make a thorough study of the tragedy, Mr. Sawyer said.

The victims, it was learned, met their deaths through a decision to eat their lunches in the engine room instead of in the lint rooms where they were employed. They had just entered the room and had opened their lunches, when the steel missles hurled through the air.

Slight Damage Done

Damage to the plant, with the exception of the ruined power engine, was slight, Mr. Sawyer said.

The hurtling parts of the engine struck the remaining occupants in the room, injuring H. R. Carver the most seriously. Carver, though his condition is serious, is not considered in danger, hospital officials said tonight.

The remainder of the injured received their slight burns and cuts through luck, happening not to be in the path of the larger pieces of steel. The negro, it was reported, received a slight thump on the body as he was hurriedly scampering from the room of destruction.

Relatives Sought

Martin was recently married, and is survived by his widow, who lives here. An effort is being made to locate his father, Walter Martin, whose whereabouts is unknown. Anyone having information in this regard is urged to get it communication with Mr. Sawyer, manager of the mill. The body will be held here until Friday pending the result of this search, it was said.

Allen is survived by his widow, and a son, Virgil Allen, an employe of the mill in which his father was killed. Funeral services are to be delayed until Friday awaiting the arrival here of relatives from Kansas it was announced.

JONES OUT OF COUNCIL RACE

Commissioner Praises City Manager for Work

With four men definitely in the race for three places on the city council, Oral Jones, present alderman, formally announced Wednesday night that he did not choose to run and would not.

Alderman Roy E. Carter said that he was undecided as to what course he would follow, and Alderman A. W. King was noncommittal. The terms of both of these aldermen expire in April at the same as that of Alderman Jones.

R. O. Harvey, cotton and oil man, and C. E. McCutchen, banker, both are being urged by city manager advocates to become candidates for the council.

Petitions for Roy Daniel, lawyer, and J. M. Spoonts, druggist, previously have been placed in circulation.

The election this year is for three aldermen whose terms will run for two years. The aldermen elected last year whose terms hold over are J. H. Patton and John Hunt. Mayor J. W. Akin holds over.

In announcing his retirement from public life, Alderman Jones praised the city manager and the city manager form of government.

"I think George D. Fairtrace the best city manager in the world, and I believe our city will benefit immeasurably by keeping him in office," Mr. Jones said.

"My past four years on the council have been among the most pleasant of my life and I have enjoyed greatly the friendship of all those with whom I have come in contact. I regret, on this account, to quit office."

Mr. Carter said that he had not fully decided what he would do, but that he fully endorses the city manager form of government and the present city manager. Mr. King, while noncommittal, said that he is favorable to Mr. Fairtrace as city manager.

ROAD MEN PUT UP 'PROTECTION'

Mrs. Hammonds' Plan To Get Man Drunk Told

whose names he could not remember.

Franklin admitted that among the contractors his company wrote bonds for were C. S. Beekman, Oklahoma City, and Harry Cannady, Tulsa, mentioned in previous testimony as being in a group named by Mrs. Hammonds as being instrumental in preventing Johnston's impeachment.

Passed the Buck

O. P. Slack, vice chairman of the state fish and game commission, appointee of Johnston, testified regarding Mrs. Hammonds before the house investigating committee.

He said Mrs. Hammonds had asked him to get Tom Johnson, Pushmataha county representative, drunk and obtain from him information as to the attitude of various legislators toward the administration. Slack said he informed Mrs. Hammonds that Johnston did not drink, but delegated the task to a clerk in the department, W. T. Hunt. A list was obtained by Hunt, Slack said, although he did not give liquor to the representative. The list was rejected by H. E. Sullivan, private secretary to Johnston, Slack testified.

Seventh Charge Voted

After a wordy battle, the house of representatives voted out the seventh of ten charges reported to it by its investigating committee. The article charged the governor with illegal use of the national guard in suppressing the self-convened session in 1927. A majority of house members met in a hotel in defiance of the orders of Johnston to disperse, and voted out purported charges dismissed when the senate accepted a supreme court ruling that the legislature had no right to convene itself.

The vote on the seventh charge today was 59 to 39, with seven absent. It was the smallest vote commanded by anti-administration forces on any of the articles it has passed upon. Speedier action on the remaining three charges to be considered by the house was promised today when a limit was put on debate.

"I light a Lucky and go light on the sweets

That's how I keep in good shape and always feel peppy."

Al Jolson
Al Jolson, Famous comedian and star of song.

Reach for a Lucky instead of a sweet.

Al Jolson as he appears in Warner Bros. Vitaphone success, "The Singing Fool."

Something sensible. "Better to light a Lucky whenever you crave fattening sweets." It brings to men the health and vigor that come with avoiding overweight. To women it offers a slender, fashionable figure.

20,679 physicians have stated that Lucky Strike is less irritating to the throat than other cigarettes. Very likely this is due to toasting which removes impurities. This same process, toasting, improves and develops the flavor of the world's finest tobaccos. This means that there is a flavor in Luckies which is a delightful alternative for the things that make you fat. That's why "It's Toasted" is your assurance that there's real health in Luckies—they're good for you!

Keep fit—reach for a Lucky instead of a fattening sweet. That's what many men have been doing for years. They know the evidence of prominent athletes whose favorite cigarette is Lucky Strike and who say Luckies steady their nerves and do not impair their physical condition.

A reasonable proportion of sugar in the diet is recommended, but the authorities are overwhelming that too many fattening sweets are harmful and that too many such are eaten by the American people. So, for moderation's sake we say:—

"REACH FOR A LUCKY INSTEAD OF A SWEET."

"It's toasted"

'WET' SUGGESTS MONEY USES

La Guardia Proposes Allocation of 24 Millions

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23. (UP)—A tentative split-up of $24,000,000 voted by the senate for the prohibition bureau was proposed in the house today by Representative La Guardia, Republican, New York.

La Guardia, a "wet," said his allocation would make a real test at strategic points of the bootleg industry. La Guardia said the treasury also could use the appropriation "as a preventive to the commission of crime."

La Guardia proposed spending $2,308,000 in Detroit to prevent rum running, by stationing 90 agents opposite each of the Canadian cities of Riverside, Ford City, Walkerville, Windsor, Sanwich, Ojibway, La Salle and a roving patrol of 50 men for Detroit.

This new boundary guard would be supervised by one commanding officer with nine lieutenants and furnished 20 patrol and 40 motor boats.

La Guardia said the next spot to attack was denaturing alcohol plants at a cost of $4,502,000. He proposed appointing 1,476 men to watch the 82 plants and prevent alcohol diversion, 10 accountants to inspect their transactions and six to work as supervisors.

Breweries would be his third line of attack and $5,090,000 was allocated for that. For the 275 breweries he proposed an inspection force of 1,650 men, 20 chemists and 10 accountants.

Consumers of industrial alcohol would be put under scrutiny of 4,000 federal officers, 100 accountants and 25 supervising officers at a cost of $12,500,000.

SUES FOR RING

Spurned Lover Petitions For Return of Diamond Given Girl

OKMULGEE, Okla., Jan. 23. (UP)—Homer Wilcox, an Okmulgee youth, gave Miss Louise Underwood, a salesgirl, a diamond ring to denote their engagement. Miss Underwood married another, David Montgomery, of Chicago.

Wilcox brought suit to recover his ring.

Mrs. Montgomery laughed when served with replevin papers.

Both have hired lawyers.

Salvation Army Official Buried in England

CALPTON, England, Jan. 23. (UP)—Vice President William Haines, who died suddenly during a session of the Salvation Army high council at Sunbury-on-Thames last week, was buried at an impressive ceremony here today. All members of the high council except Mrs. Bramwell Booth attended. Haines was one of the opponents of General Booth, deposed army head. He died of heart failure.

Priest and Seven Others Sentenced to Death

MOSCOW, Jan. 22. (UP)—Seven land owners and a Mohammedan priest were sentenced to death in the village of Sayat, Chardjui district, Turkestan, today for the murder of a member of the soviet election committee. The sentences were part of a vigorous soviet campaign to wipe out the opposition of kulaks (rich peasants) who, it is charged, recently have been attacking and who killed a government official.

CHICAGO CRIME RODEO GOES ON

Big Roundup and Show-up Continue

CHICAGO, Jan. 23. (UP)—The parade of the underworld's lowly and great continued through the crowded court rooms of Chicago today.

Hundreds of the 3,400 arrested in the city's greatest criminal round up, waited for trial on charges ranging from disorderly conduct to robbery, bootlegging and murder.

A majority of the prisoners were discharged; some were fined; some were held for the grand jury, and others were held for further investigation.

Regardless of the number of convictions of crimes solved by the roundup, police and prosecutors were confident the clean up had served to convince the underworld that law and order finally had gained the upper hand in this city made notorious by its gang wars and racketeer feuds.

Texas Air Fields Would Be Benefited by Bill

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23. (US)—Expenditure of $5,150,306 for construction of special and technical buildings for the army air corps was proposed in a bill Representative James, Republican, of Michigan, introduced in the house today.

Duncan field, San Antonio, Texas, is allotted $220,000 for hangars and a depot shop building, and $13,000 for an oil reclamation house.

Randolph field, Texas, is down for $490,500; distributed hangars, $22,000; field shops, $38,000, and concrete runways, $232,500.

Selfridge field, Michigan, is given $122,000 for hangars and a field shop; $60,000 for central heating plant, and $51,000 for concrete runways.

Plane Designer In Praise of Offer

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 23. (INS)—The Denver Post's $50,000 prize for a round-the-world non-stop flight probably will have a greater influence in prompting such a flight than any other single agency, Glenn H. Curtiss, pioneer airplane designer, declared here today.

"It does not seem probable, however," said Curtiss, "that such a flight will be made this year. I know of no one who is planning such an undertaking, but undoubtedly it will be done in due time.

"Such an arrangement of refuelling as was used in the record-breaking flight of the Question Mark on the Pacific coast, would seem feasible. But this would present a great difficulty in that such a plan would need extensive rehearsing, and what with foreign systems and language to be figured, it seems remote at best. The men in the Question Mark crew were skilled in formation flying. That would account in some measure for their success.

"I think the Denver Post has taken the first step toward completion of a round-the-world flight."

44 Reported Killed In Mexican Election

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 23. (UP)—The newspaper Grafico said tonight that unconfirmed advices from the state of Hidalgo estimated that as many as 44 persons had been killed and 100 injured in street fighting during the recent campaign for election of a governor. The deaths occurred during the last four weeks, the newspaper said.

Beaumont Senator Seated Immediately

AUSTIN, Jan. 23. (AP)—Senator W. R. Cousins of Beaumont, elected Monday to succeed the late Senator H. F. Triplett, will be permitted to take his seat immediately as a result of house action yesterday and senate action today. A bill to permit such a procedure was sent to Governor Moody for signing.

Senator Parr of Benavides introduced a bill which would create the Texas College or Arts and Industry at Kingsville in place of the South Texas State Teachers college.

The senate refused to accept the house's amendments to its "stock running" bill. The measure, as passed by the senate, would give Brazos, Harris and Galveston counties authority to hold elections for a vote on keeping stock from running at large. The house added nearly every county in the state.

"Actually Re-Newed by Lux"

LOUISE BROOKS, BEAUTIFUL FILM STAR,

wears this silk lounging suit, typical of pretty clothes shown in her pictures. "I learned by experience," she says,—"that only Lux keeps that new look in clothes." . . . That is why women everywhere—8 out of 10 in representative homes in cities from coast to coast, investigations show, use Lux!

And every New York Musical Show ·· Famous dressmakers ·· Buyers for great department stores also find ··

"The original loveliness of our clothes can actually be Re-Newed again and again—and they last twice as long—through the use of Lux."

EVERY WOMAN knows how hard it is to keep pretty clothes like new in spite of everyday wear. Then imagine the problem of the movies—with beautiful clothes that must look brilliantly new through the hard wear of production.

Now the studios have solved this problem—every woman's very own problem—after experiments with many different cleansing methods and many different soaps.

And they find that: "Lux actually Re-News, again and again, the original beauty of fabrics . . . And with Lux, lovely clothes—whether sturdy or sheer—last more than twice as long."

Now every great studio in Hollywood uses Lux—to double the life of fabrics! Simply follow their rule—and you, too, can keep clothes actually like new far, far longer!

"WE CAN'T AFFORD TO RISK USING ANYTHING BUT LUX," says Adrian, costume director of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. "It is a matter of dollars and cents with us! We find Lux keeps clothes like new through months of production—so they can be re-created into new costumes. Naturally, we insist on Lux."

Why does Lux keep things new so much longer? Because only the purest materials known . . . and a special costly process . . . are used in its making! Lux contains no harmful alkali—as many soaps do, whether flakes, chips or cakes—and with Lux there is no rubbing to weaken and shrink.

MUSICAL SHOWS like the gorgeous "Rosalie," starring Marilyn Miller (above), all use Lux—to double the life of stockings! They say, "We would use Lux even if it cost $1.00 a box!"

FAMOUS DRESSMAKERS of New York insist upon Lux for underthings and stockings worn by mannequins—as illustrated in the above glimpse of the salon of Frances Clyne.

VIGOROUS BODIES NEED VEGETABLES

Sugar Works Wonders in Flavoring Them

"What do these canned tomatoes need to make them taste better?" Sugar added to the tomatoes while they are being heated will work wonders in making them enjoyable. Sometimes as much sugar as two tablespoonfuls to a quart is needed.

"What's wrong with these peas? They taste flat." Add a teaspoonful of sugar to a can of peas while you are warming them and notice the difference.

"What's the matter with these carrots? They don't taste like carrots." Add a teaspoonful of sugar to the carrots while they are cooking and notice the difference.

"This corn is almost tasteless." Add a teaspoonful of sugar to a can of stewed corn when warming it and notice the improvement. Everyone improves the flavor of canned corn by adding butter, salt and pepper. Up to a teaspoonful of sugar per can will give an even greater improvement.

Add a dash of sugar to the cooking of string beans.

It isn't strange that sugar improves all these vegetables. Nature developed sweetness as the perfect flavor and the result is the proper amount of sugar changes flat, unpalatable foods into dishes that can be enjoyed.

One famous cook puts it this way: "Fine flavors revolve around sugar." A bit of sweet makes the meal complete. The Sugar Institute. —Adv.

Mrs. Vanderbilt's Strange Daughters Add New Trials

By CHOLLY KNICKERBOCKER
Universal Service Society Editor

NEW YORK, Jan. 23—It is doubtful if anyone "in the know" was surprised by the cable dispatches from Paris announcing that the picturesque Lady Paul Dukes has rejected a Parisian tribunal to listen to her tale of marital woe, object: a divorce.

For more than a year the domestic differences of Sir Paul and Lady Dukes have been known to New York society and the only surprise connected with the entire proceeding is that the former Mrs. Ogden Livingston Mills (Margaret Rutherford) deferred the filing of her suit this long.

Dowager Has Trials

Poor Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt Sr., that tall, white-haired dowager, has had more than her share of heartaches over her two daughters, Lady Du[illegible] and the equally individual Barbara Rutherford Hatch Nicholls.

I do not know of two young women born under a more auspicious social star than Margaret and Barbara. Daughters of the late Lewis Morris Rutherford they can claim cousinship with the great ones of the best colonial sets in New York, and during their younger days following the marriage of their mother to the late William K. Vanderbilt Sr., then the head of the Vanderbilt family and financial interests, they had the added advantage of the Vanderbilt dollars and prestige.

Barbara's sad story, how she married "Sid" Hatch and, after a divorce, wed a Mr. Nicholls, who was connected with some strange cult up in Nyack, N. Y., and her present distressing illness, is far too well known to need repeating here.

Margaret's story is not quite as sordid as is Barbara's. But it is a tale of equally lost opportunities.

With a decided fanfare and the wealth and fashion of New York and Newport as witnesses, Margaret Rutherford made the match of her season when she became the bride of Ogden Livingston Mills, only son of Ogden Mills and the late "Teenie" Mills. At that time Ogden's mother was hailed as the most aristocratic hostess in all New York and there were money bags and azure blood on both sides.

Great things were predicted for Ogden and Margaret, and little did society think the future would record such a colorful story for the young couple.

The least said about the divorce of the Ogden Livingston Millses, the better. Suffice, the Mills clan never looked with favor on the rather modernistic notions of Ogden's wife and they breathed a decided sigh of relief once Margaret had severed connections with the family.

Ogden now is married to the former Mrs. John Randolph Fell and is divinely happy.

Life Loses Thrill

Margaret's marriage, on Oct. 3, 1922, to Sir Paul Dukes, son of an obscure English vicar and an advocate of new thought, created no end of talk in Metropolitan swelldom.

Dukes was a musician and author and had served as chief of the British intelligence office in Russia in 1918 and 1919. He now is about 39 years old.

Coming to this country after their marriage, the Dukes settled in an apartment on Riverside drive and surrounded themselves with people far removed from the sets in which Margaret circulated when she resided at the Vanderbilt mansion, No. 660 Fifth avenue, and later when she was Mrs. Mills.

For a time Lady Dukes appeared to enjoy hobnobbing with long-haired men and bobbed-haired women, who imagined they possessed a "message." She seemed to get that well-known "kick" out of turning a wide expanse of back on the coterie that claimed her mother, Mrs. Vanderbilt, as a sovereign personage.

Those who know Margaret, however, claimed that when the novelty had worn off, she would discard Sir Paul and look about for a new interest.

If any one should take the trouble to ask me, I would say Sir Paul and his new thought ideas began to pall last year, when Margaret was on this side of the Atlantic and was ensconced out on Long Island. At that time she made something of an effort to reinstate herself socially.

Now the blow has fallen, and soon finis will be written to another chapter in the strange lives of Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt Sr.'s equally strange daughters.

Admiring or Even Endearing Talk Will Do Much to Promote Harmony

Folly of the Man Who Fears to Compliment His Wife—How Parents Lose Out With Their Children—Advice on Returning Insults.

Dear Miss Dix—I am a married man with two children. Have been married 10 years to a very good wife, who is thrifty and industrious and a fine cook, and makes me a very happy home. She is a very pretty little thing, trim and neat, but I never pay her a compliment because I am afraid if I do it will swell her head and she might get the idea of stepping out. When she asks me how she looks, I always hand her a knock and tell her that something is wrong. I know she has had the blues about this many a time, and she always looks so hurt and discouraged when I tell her that I don't like her dress, or that she is getting old, or something.

Lately, however, I have found out that she has been stepping out with a very nice-looking young man, and I have wondered if he has been telling her the things she longed to hear from me. Do all women get a wild streak after they have been married a while? Should I leave her or forgive her for the children's sake? —WORRIED HUSBAND.

Answer: You should find it easy enough to forgive her, but I don't see how you can ever forgive yourself for being such a stupid ass as to drive her into jumping the home bars in search of some food on which to feed her starving soul.

Your wife is young, pretty and attractive. She craves admiration and attention. She yearns to be flattered and jollied, and all she gets from you is criticism and fault-finding, and neglect. Other men offer her the appreciation you deny her. Can you blame her, for turning a willing ear to the soft talk that she hears abroad and that she never gets at home? As well blame a hungry cat for lapping up the saucer of cream that is handed it.

I often wonder what men think their wives are made of that they dare treat them as they do. They must believe that they have married creatures of superhuman virtue who are beyond all mortal temptations and desires, and who are content to live an austere life doing their duty for duty's sake. Else husbands would not expect their wives to be content to stay penned up in a stony and barren home corral when outside there were green fields and new pastures in which they could disport themselves.

There are plenty of men like you, Worried Husband. Men who are married to young women, and pretty women, and women who take a pride in their appearance. Women who work hard and try to please their husbands. Before marriage these women had plenty of suitors. They were accustomed to being told how beautiful and wonderful they were and to having men notice their pretty frocks and compliment them upon them. They were used to having men make love to them and probably they chose for a husband the man who had the most saccharine line of sweet talk. Naturally, they expected him to keep it up.

But to their amazement marriage changed all of that. Husband dropped lovemaking at the altar with a suddenness that jarred their back teeth loose. He exchanged the salve-spreader for the hammer, and his only comment on anything they did was to find fault with it.

There are thousands upon thousands of wives in the world whose husbands never pay them a compliment, who never say one word of love to them, who never show them any tenderness, who never give them a kiss, that isn't an insult, it is such a perfunctory kiss of duty, and who can only surmise that their husbands still have some degree of affection for them because they haven't divorced them.

No woman in the world is satisfied with that kind of husband. Every woman hungers and thirsts for tenderness and appreciation, and it is no wonder that a few women who are starved for love steal it when they cannot get it any other way. The amazing thing is that there are not more unfaithful wives than there are.

Put this in your pipe, Mr. Man, and smoke it: When a man quits making love to a young and pretty wife, some other man is apt to begin. So, if you want to keep your wife, keep yourself a lover.
—DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Dorothy Dix: Why are not parents more confidential with their children? I am a girl, and I would like to talk so many things over with my mother. I would like to discuss my beaux with her, and ask her things that life must have taught her, and that I need to know but I can't. I am afraid of her. There's a wall between us, and I can talk more freely to any stranger than I can to my own mother. As for my father, he and I are both embarrassed to death when we are left alone together. Fathers and mothers are always complaining that their children are not confidential with them, and I think the reason is that our parents try so hard to raise us right, they raise us wrong, if you get what I mean. I mean that they make us feel such awe of them we can never think of their having gone through the same experiences that we are going through. So we can't tell father and mother about it. What do you think? —DAUGHTER.

I think you are right, daughter. I think that most parents are just a big incarnate don't to their children. They begin saying "don't" to a baby, and they keep it up until it gets to be a habit, and they say it without ever really thinking whether they object to what a young person is going to do or not.

The children are quick enough to catch on to the fact that it saves friction to do a thing first, and then tell about it, so they hide what they are thinking from their parents, and talk as little as possible about their plans and associates. It is a sad fact that in the average home the parents and children never sit down and talk things out freely, man to man, and that neither children nor parents ever get each other's point of view.

Parents all yearn to pal with their children when they are grown, but they forget that you can't break down a barrier that is built of 20 years' estrangement. You have got to get on familiar terms with Mary and Johnnie in their cradles if you want to be their intimate friends and confidants when they are grown. —DOROTHY DIX.

WHITE FOWLS POPULAR

ESTELLINE, Texas, Jan. 23.—It has been observed that on nearly every farm beween Quitaque and Estelline there is a good sized flock of chickens. White Leghorns with but few exceptions.

Rich, mellow flavor . . .
many choice coffees skillfully
BLENDED

In the tropics of many lands hundreds of different kinds and grades of coffee beans are grown—as different from one another as are the people who inhabit different lands and climes.

Large smooth beans mild in flavor—scrubby little beans sharp with acid—medium-sized beans, rich and pungent—each has its special excellence, yet no one alone is quite satisfying to the cultivated palate.

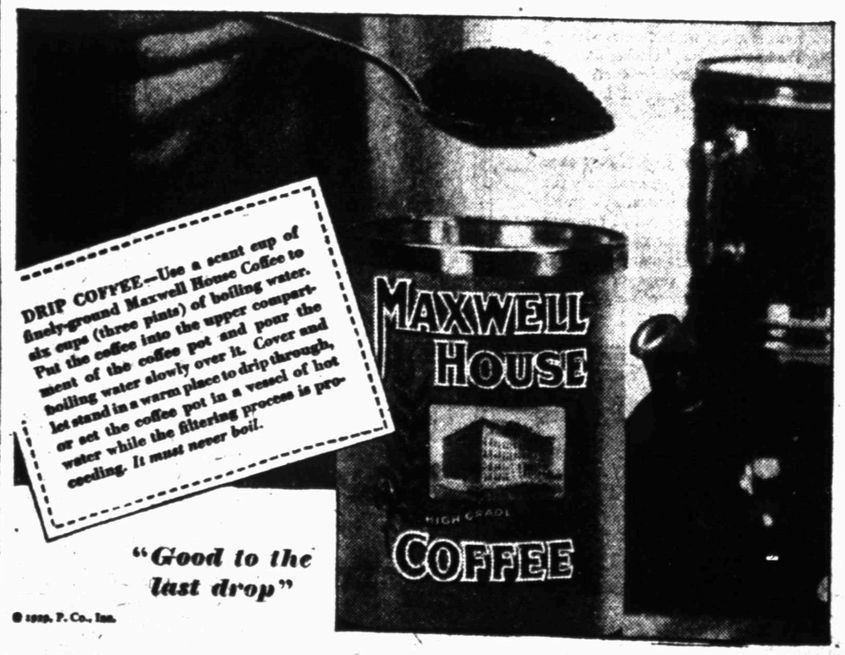

So thought a coffee expert down in Dixie years ago. Bred in the South's tradition of good living, he had a talent for flavor. He knew all the choicest kinds of coffee and they all seemed to him tantalizingly just not quite perfect.

So he had the happy inspiration to create a new coffee flavor. Months and months he worked, selecting, rejecting, combining, re-combining, the finest types of coffee, until at last he achieved a blend of such rich and subtle harmony that it delighted even his critical taste.

Distinguished guests at the celebrated old Maxwell House in Nashville, where this coffee was first introduced, pronounced it the finest they had ever tasted. "Good to the last drop," one of them called it, draining his cup with keen relish. They wanted it to serve in their own homes; they spread its fame abroad, until Maxwell House Coffee has become the best known and the most popular coffee in the whole United States.

"The Old Colonel," as he is known to his friends, has reason to be proud of the achievement of his youth. Today, from coast to coast, Maxwell House is the fine coffee preferred by America's leading hostesses, served daily in millions of America's foremost homes. It is pleasing more critical coffee drinkers than any other coffee ever offered for sale.

You will want your own family to enjoy every day this particularly rich and mellow coffee. You will want it to serve to your guests. Your grocer has Maxwell House Coffee in the blue-wrapped tin sealed to preserve all its fine fragrance and flavor.

CATLLE LOSS REFUND ASKED

Picturesque Cowboy Goes To Capital With Plea

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23. (AP)—Ray Morley, picturesque bearded and booted cattleman from Datil, N. M., is in Washington in an effort to recover $12,000,000 which he and nearly 50 other cattlemen claim they lost in dealings with the war finance corporation following the world war.

Morley said he was the only one of his group with the railroad fare to Washington.

He conferred with Senator Bratton, and Representative Morrow, Democrats, New Mexico, over the possibility of authorizing the war finance corporation to pay from its balance of about $66,000,000 the claims of New Mexican cattlemen.

Morley said when drought struck the New Mexico cattle ranges in 1922 stockmen took 200,000 head to graze in the northern ranges of Old Mexico and that in two years the number almost was doubled.

"Eugene Meyer, director of the war finance corporation," Morley said, "came down and ran American cattle owners and their cowboys off the job of guarding the cattle and hired an American foreman and a bunch of Mexican cowboys. When he brought the cattle out of Mexico, there were but about 100,000 head left.

"If he had let the Americans handle them by this time we would be out of debt and have a few cattle left instead of being flat broke."

Latest Theory of Man's Origin Not In Conflict With Darwin, Says Seer

Science League Head Fears 'Semi-Literate' Texas Solons Might Fall for This Publicity

Editor's note: This is the first of two articles from an interview with Maynard Shipley, president of the Science League of America, Inc. In this article he refers to the past and answers the latest theory of the origin of man. In the second article, to be carried Friday morning, he comments on the future of man and details of his work with the theory of evolution.

By CARLE H. BENNETT
United Press Staff Correspondent

SAUSALITO, Calif., Jan. 23.—The latest theory on the origin of man, propounded by Austin H. Clark of the Smithsonian institution, "does not deny universally accepted facts of zoology—of evolution; much less does it seek to discard the theory, or fact, of evolution as a process of nature," Maynard Shipley, noted evolutionist, said here today.

Shipley, founder and president of the Science League of America, Inc., who has spent 40 years in studying the development of life through the ages, outlined his views in an exclusive interview with the United Press.

Evolution Not Denied

"The main point in discussing Clark's magazine article and interview on the origin of man is that Clark nowhere questions the theory of evolution, as such; least of all has he said in print that man has evolved from an ape-like ancestor; and this anthropoid-like ancestor from an earlier true anthropoid, ancestral alike to the four great apes and to man," Shipley said.

"No zoologist, of course, teaches that man is a descendant of any of the apes now living; only that the four anthropoids and man had a common ancestor who lived some fifteen million years ago."

The evolutionist had read carefully Clark's article in the current number of the Quarterly Review of Biology filled with scientific terms difficult for a layman to understand, and the interview of a United Press correspondent with Clark in Washington Sunday. Clark had said in the interview that "man is an accident—a freak of nature—appearing on the earth before the dawn of history substantially as he is of the present day."

Fears Misinterpretations

Often Shipley referred to Clark's ideas as "magical" and once he used the word "hokus-pokus," but neither was intended as ridicule. Rather he seemed desirous of defending the theory from what he believes might become misinterpretations and bring trouble.

"Mr. Clark is not known to science as a geologist or as a palaeontologist; nor is he an anthropolgist or a comparative anatomist," Shipley commented. "He has a working knowledge of insects and birds, but has perhaps a higher standing as a marine biologist.

"Semi-literate" Solons

"This newspaper notoriety will be avidly seized upon the semi-literate contingent in the Texas legislature in their present attempt to pass an anti-evolution law in that great state, modeled upon the Mississippi and Arkansas laws—the Tennessee law having been found to be indiscreetly worded."

The champion of evolution said that nowhere in the magazine article, or elsewhere to his knowledge, had Clark intimated that man is not descended from an ape-like ancestor—the common stem from which were derived the higher apes and man.

Stubborn Cough Quickly Ended by Famous Recipe

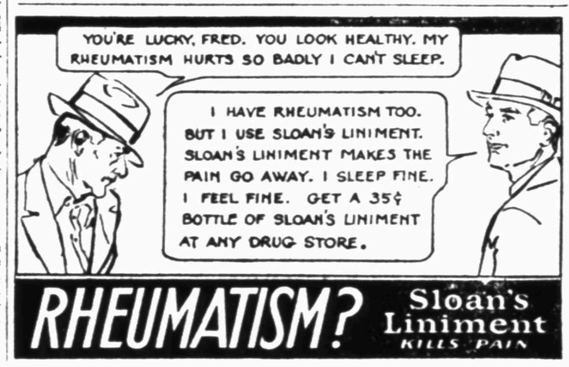

Here is the famous old recipe which millions of housewives have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up a stubborn, lingering cough. It takes but a moment to prepare and costs little, but it gives real relief even for those dreaded coughs that usually follow the "flu."

From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex, pour it into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. Thus you make a full pint of better remedy than you could buy ready-made for three times the cost. It never spoils and tastes so good that even children like it.

Not only does this simple mixture soothe and heal the inflamed throat membranes with surprising ease, but also it is absorbed into the blood, and acts directly upon the bronchial tubes, thus aiding the whole system in throwing off the cough. It loosens the germ-laden phlegm and eases chest soreness in a way that is really astonishing.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form. Nothing known in medicine is more helpful in cases of distressing coughs, chest colds, and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

Sale of Newspapers Before High Court

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23. (AP)—The supreme court was asked today to review the sale of the Kansas City Star, the Kansas City Times, and the Kansas City Weekly Star, properties of the late William Rockhill Nelson, to the Kansas City Star company in 1926.

The petition was filed by Walter S. Dickey, Kansas City publisher, who asserted that the sale would be set aside on the ground that it did not comply with the conditions imposed in the Nelson will.

He charged that the trustees in selling the properties "conspired and colluded" with the successful bidders "to the end that the latter might purchase the newspaper properties for the least possible price and upon the best possible terms for the purchasers."

I Saw It Myself

By C. W. ROGERS
Record News Staff Correspondent

WHEN departing from Childress on a recent morning this writer observed two cars of poultry on track awaiting movement to market. The proceeds from two cars of poultry is no great sum of money but the many cars shipped through the year in the aggregate is in no small measure responsible for the huge deposits in Childress banks. The fact that Childress is shipping poultry at this time of the year is mighty good evidence that farmers thereabout have discovered another source of revenue that will contribute to keep them in funds the year round. A carload of poultry today fetches more than a carload of cattle brought in some of the years back in the time when Childress county was almost exclusively a "cow country."

POPULATION of Childress county is estimated at 20,000, according to statistics at hand, but its 233,525 acres of uniformly tillable land would support a population several times greater than 20,000. Childress county farms are productive; improved farms are in demand; but the newcomer can only become established by paying a premium for improved land or by development of raw land. A want ad placed in Editor Fred Storey's Childress Index by a farmer who wished to sell a small improved farm brought a deluge of inquiries; another seeking the purchase of an improved farm brought not one reply.

RURAL school buildings seen in Childress county along the Denver line are of modern brick construction. At Carey attention was directed to a school plant that would be creditable to any metropolitan district.

ESTELLINE, border town near the Childress-Hall boundary line, is an up-and-coming town that is experiencing considerable new development due to the building of the new rail lines of the Denver from that point into the South Plains, and is known as "The Gateway to the South Plains." Down the line, extending to Sterley Junction, from Estelline are the new towns of Parnell, Tampico, Turkey, Quitaque, Johnfarris and South Plains, tributary to all of which is a wonderful farming region. Farm owners all along the line have substantial homes, with but few exceptions; around the barns and feed lots are flocks of white chickens, hogs and other live stock, all fat and frisky. Most farm homes have peach orchards, some being of considerable extent. Down around Quitaque is a country that will make a man who believes in growing big feed crops throw ihs hat on the ground an let out a yell. Between Turkey and Quitaque there is more stock feed in evidence on farms than this writer has seen this year in any section from the Louisiana line to Quitaque.

THE farmer who would buy improved land in this section will find that he is out of luck, as in Childress county. However, there is a huge body of raw land in that territory being marketed to close up an estate, at prices not far above the "ground floor" base of the period just prior to the coming of the railroad.

BUSINESS men in these new towns are enjoying prosperity beyond their expectations. Some, in a short period of time have run shoe strings into corpulent bank rolls. The prospector who neglected to crack down when opportunities were wide open for the taking, overlooked a bet that will not again occur until the building of other rail lines itno the great South Plains region.

PEACH CROP PROMISING

TUNNEL PLAN TO BE REVIVED

English Channel May Be Crossed Underneath

LONDON, Jan. 23. (US)—Backed by the British government, the abandoned scheme to build a tunnel under the English channel from England to France, is to be revived, according to an announcement made in the house of commons yesterday by Premier Baldwin, when the final session of the present parliament opened.

The session will adjourn before the general elections in June.

Premier Baldwin told the house of commons that the government believed the time is ripe for a re-examination of the plans for a channel tunnel system and suggested that all parties collaborate in discussing the scheme.

The scheme was rejected four years ago by the committee of imperial defense after having been in the public mind more or less for 25 years. Just before the world war the matter reached the stage where engineers began a survey of the French side of the projected tunnel and started structural operations.

Feeling in favor of the tunnel has grown since the war, the damages and delays due to severe channel storms offsetting the fear that the tunnel might prove a danger to both England and France in time of war. It was argued that the tunnel would facilitate the movement of troops either from the continent to England or vice versa.

Immigration Figures Deny Mexican Claims

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Jan. 23. (US)—Only Mexicans who have entered the United States illegally are being expelled to Mexico, immigration officials declared here today, when shown reports from Mexico City that "thousands and thousands of Mexicans are being herded back across the Rio Grande river."

Expulsions number only a few, according to immigration records. In the last 60 days only 267 Mexicans have been expelled and these entered the United States without complying with the health regulation or paying the head tax.

Over-the-Counter Sale Of Lumber Pictured

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 23. (AP)—Lumber stores where one may purchase materials over the counter was pictured to the Southwestern Lumbermen's association today by G. A. Lavallee, Marietta, Ohio, as the latest development in the retail lumber trade.

Considerations of convenience and artistic effects to catch the eye necessitates the downtown store, Dr. Lavallee said. The experiment has been tried in several cities with success, he said.

Motorist License Bill Voted Down

AUSTIN, Jan. 23. (INS)—After a bitter fight on the floor of the senate committee on highways and motor traffic, a bill for the licensing of all automobile operators today had been passed out of the committee. Senator Edgar E. Witt of Waco, offered an amendment reducing the age limit of operators from 16 to 14, but it was defeated.

The committee united in its belief that the policy sought in the bill of safeguarding state public thoroughfares was sound but deemed the bill ambiguous and inadequate.

Give freely

When your Children Cry for It

Mothers, who take one simple precaution, are seldom worried. With a bottle of Fletcher's Castoria in the house they can do what their doctor would tell them to do, when baby is fretful, feverish, colicky, constipated or stuffed up with cold—give a few drops of this pure vegetable, pleasant-tasting preparation. It comforts Baby and soothes him to sleep in a jiffy. It's perfectly safe for the youngest infant. Use it freely—and as often as needed, specialists advise. A more liberal dose is all it takes to comfort and relieve older children, when feverishness, bad breath, no appetite, colds, etc., show they need a good purging. The mark of genuine Castoria is the Fletcher signature on the wrapper. Look for it to avoid imitations.

MAN'S VALUE

Character and Honor First, McKenney Tells Optimist Club

The higher and nobler qualities of a man which abide beyond his earthly existence were named as the only measure on which a man may be evaluated by Dr. S Stephen McKenney, pastor of the First Methodist church, in his address to the members of the Optimist club Wednesday noon.

Manhood, character, and the honor of a noble nature constitute the lasting greatness which a man may achieve, the speaker declared.

Entertainment features of the meeting consisted of a vocal number given by Mrs. W. W Harrell, accompanied by Mrs. R. E. Strange, satirical New Year resolutions read at the expense of the different members of the club, and a singsong lead by Joel H. MacGregor, with Miss Lorene Tucker at the piano.

Clifford Deaton was in charge of program arrangements.

LINDBERGH TO ADVISE SOLONS

Ace to Appear Before Postal Affairs Committee

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23. (US)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, who has been making a personal study of the extension of airplane service to Central and South America, will give congress his ideas next Monday. He will appear before the house postal affairs committee.

Shortly after his return from his epochal transatlantic flight, Colonel Lindbergh appeared before the house military affairs committee, considering aviation legislation.

As a record crowd is expected to be present Monday, the committee will use the largest room available in the house office building—the caucus room.

Colonel Lindbergh will testify on the bill of Representative Kelly, Republican, of Pennsylvania, which is designed to remedy defects in a law passed for transportation of air mail to foreign countries.

Comptroller General McCarl has ruled that under the present law it is not possible to make contracts for transportation from foreign countries to the United States.

Colonel Lindbergh plans to leave here immediately after testifying for Miami, Fla. He is scheduled to fly from Miami Feb. 4 to Cristobal, Canal Zone. This will mark entrance of the United States into Central and South American air mail activity.

Don't Neglect a Cold Now, Is Doctor's Advice

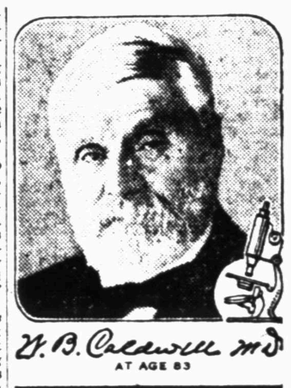

Don't neglect any cold nowadays. Colds are so weakening; and in a weakened condition, you are so susceptible to more serious troubles.

When you find you are catching cold, take care to keep the bowels open. That's the first precaution every doctor advises. That's the way to avoid the congestion which makes you feverish, achy, half-sick, miserable.

Millions know the quick way to open the bowels, keep them active, is with Dr. Caldwell's Syrup of Pepsin. Every second of the day someone, somewhere is going into a drugstore to get a bottle of this splendid medicine, made from simple laxative herbs and pepsin by the formula Doctor Caldwell found so effective during his 47 years' medical practice.

SUPREME COURT TAKES RECESS

But This 'Recess' Is No Real Vacation

Editor's Note: Following is the first of two dispatches on the work of the supreme court in its term just concluded.

By HERBERT LITTLE
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—The supreme court has begun a three-week "recess"—recesses being really its periods of greatest activity—to consider several cases of paramount economic importance and prepare for several others which will be argued before it in the final half of its current eight-month term.

In executive conferences the court will take up the O'Fallon case, the New York 7-cent subway fare case, and other cases which have just been argued. In the first half of the term the nine justices have worked hard clearing the docket of more than 300 cases, dismissing many appeals as fast as they came up for argument and rejecting many petitions for review of cases revolving about principles of law already settled.

Up With Docket

For the second year in succession the court is hearing arguments on appeals during the same term in which they were filed; six years ago the court was two or three years behind its docket. In addition, the court is advancing the more important civil cases and all criminal cases for almost summary hearings.

Under these policies pushed by Chief Justice Taft, the Harry F. Sinclair senate contempt case, the Lake Cargo coal rate case, and the California deciduous fruit rate case, will be heard in the week of Feb. 18, as soon as the court reconvenes.

Pocket Veto Case

Shortly thereafter the court will take up one of the most interesting constitutional questions for decision, the validity of pocket vetoes at the end of the first sessions of congress. This power, which has been exercised by presidents for more than a century and occasionally challenged but never so seriously as now, involves in this case the right of several Washington state Indian tribes to sue the government for $13,000,000 alleged due them for lands. Congress passed a law authorizing them to sue, but President Coolidge gave it a pocket veto in the summer of 1924.

The case also will decide the fate of the Norris government ownership Muscle Shoals resolution, killed in the same manner by Coolidge last spring. The court has announced its decision to review the court of claims decision in the Indian case.

Texas Gas Tax

The court has held unconstitutional the Texas gasoline tax as applied to gasoline sold to the government for army use. The state contended here it was an occupational tax on the oil company, not a tax on sales to a federal agency, but the court nevertheless reversed the state supreme court's decision in favor of the tax.

Lost Colony, Cut Off from World For 400 Years, Hunted in Siberia

MOSCOW, Jan. 23. (UP)—An expedition headed by Uri D. Chirikhin is being sent into the icy wilderness of Yakutia, northeastern Siberia, by the academy of science in Leningrad to search for a colony of Russians who are believed by scientists to have been cut off from the world for about 400 years.

If the Chirikhin expedition succeeds in finding the "lost colony," the academy leaders believe it will furnish valuable information about the customs and daily life of Russians of the 16th century.

There have been legends and rumors of this colony current in northeastern Siberia for more than 100 years but recently an apparently trustworthy report was received here of its existence.

A political exile of the pre-revolution era, M. Zinzioff, returned from the Yakutia district and claimed to have penetrated the ice-bound fastness of the vanished colony. He told of a people speaking old Russian, totally unaware of anything that has taken place in the world since the 16th century and scarcely aware of the existence of other humans.

The journey to Indigir is difficult and the rest of the 1,000-mile trip along the river will present great obstacles, scientists agree.

The fact that great numbers of Russians fled to the inaccessible portions of Siberia in the 16th century to escape political persecution has strengthened the theory of scientists supporting the expedition and they believe it is probable that the "lost colony" is one such group of refugees.

KING TO TAKE TRIP TO SEA

Physicians Plan Convalescence of Royal Patient

By ROBERT WELLES RITCHIE

LONDON, Jan. 23. (US)—King George, who has been making steady progress toward recovery for more than two weeks, will shortly be moved to the sea shore where it is hoped the sea air will stimulate him and help him gain the weight he has failed to take on in spite of his improvement.

It was officially announced today that as soon as some physical changes are completed in the beautiful estate of Sir Arthur Du Cros, Craigwell house, Aldwick, Sussex, near Bognor on the English channel, his majesty will go there for an extended period of convalescence. The king and queen will take up their residence there within a fortnight.

King Examined

The king had a thorough going over today by five doctors. Sir Stanley Hewett, Sir Hugh M. Rigby, Lord Dawson of Penn, Sir Humphrey Rolleston, and Sir E. Farquahar Buzzard all arrived at Buckingham palace before 10 o'clock this morning. At noon the five medical advisers joined in issuing the following bulletin:

"The king had a quiet night. His temperature has now remained normal for many days and the condition of his pulse is satisfactory. The empyema wound is small and is steadily healing. With a returning appetite the amount of nourishment taken is adequate and includes solid food.

"Although his general strength shows improvement, there is not as yet any appreciable increase in weight. We feel that the time is approaching when his majesty's removal to sea air will be advantageous."

So far as the British public is concerned, the bulletin is highly satisfactory, and in the note regarding failure to gain weight is seen the reason for the physicians' decision to take the king to the sea shore.

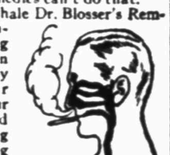

Craigwell House, where the king will spend the days of his convalescence is one of the most beautiful houses in the south of England. It was selected because it is possible there for his majesty to have strict privacy, and at the same time be close to London. There is a beautiful private beach a quarter of a mile long, with a southern exposure, the extensive grounds being spanned by a private promenade a few yards from the house.

There King George and Queen Mary will be able to sit in the front garden overlooking the channel in utmost privacy. The house has a beautiful ball room and a miniature theater. Workmen have been busy for several days, since the house was placed at the king's disposal by Sir Arthur, installing telephones in all rooms and otherwise preparing it for the royal reception.

TURKEY EDITOR DID IMPOSSIBLE

Walker Didn't Know 'Stick' From Proof Press

(By Staff Correspondent)

TURKEY, Texas, Jan. 23.—Whether Willis Walker, publisher of the Turkey Enterprise, ever heard of Napoleon's contention that "impossible is a word only to be found in the dictionary of fools" is a matter of conjecture.

Shortly after his arrival in Turkey three years ago Walker was confronted with the proposal to establish a newspaper. He didn't know the difference between a shooting stick and a makeup rule, according to his own admission, to say nothing of the manifold duties of editor and publisher. But he was willing to try and try he did.

Today Walker has a completely equipped country newspaper plant with a brand new linotype, cylinder news press, job presses, abundance of type and other necessary equipment.

The newspaper in the vernacular of the boys from the folks of the creek is a humdinger, never less than 10 pages, the contents of which is from 60 to 70 per cent advertising. From a start of 300 subscribers, the list has increased to 1200 and continues to grow.

Perquisities and emoluments Editor Walker has in great number. His office functions as a bureau of information, auxiliary to the chamber of commerce and headquarters in general for the promotion of the town.

The Enterprise, typographically, presents an appearance equal to the best publications in West Texas, the print is clear and the contents well written and cleverly presented.

Mr. Walker's success, both from a financial and professional standpoint, is just another evidence of the opportunities presented in the new towns of Northwest Texas and also that nothing is impossible to the man who has native ability and the will to try.

WHAT KISSES TELL MOTHER

Keeping children well is easy when mother can read the early symptoms of childhood's ills.

If little ones are fretful, pale, languid, won't eat and want to be mothered; when they often get colds and sore throat and seem feverish, depend upon it the bowels are sluggish. You notice unpleasant breath when you kiss them—sure sign of constipation and a sour stomach.

Give a little California Fig Syrup to purify the system and see how quickly it restores strength, appetite and joyous spirits. It acts without pain and gently cleanses the bowels of constipated waste which causes feverishness, sours the digestion and keeps the little one sickly and backward.

If you suspect measles or some other children's disease, give a dose of California Fig Syrup without delay. The doctor will praise your forethought. California Fig Syrup is the finest laxative in the world for children. It suits them perfectly and they love its delicious taste. For a child who is habitually constipated there is no other remedy to equal California Fig Syrup for coaxing the bowels back to healthy regularity. If you have a child who is troublesome in this way try California Fig Syrup. Get a bottle today. All drug stores have it.

California Fig Syrup has been trusted by the World's mothers for over 30 years. That is why the word "California" should be emphasized when buying.—Adv.

NEUTRAL GROUND

Daily Editorial

TEX RICKARD and the Grand Duke Nicholas died for the same edition. Comment on the grand duke averaged a half column, and editorial opinion of Rickard's news importance was registered with pages.

Many readers will be inclined to challenge the fairness of journalism's tapeline, and protest that the Russian pretender was scantily measured by the press.

Let's examine the facts of the case—of both cases.

Nicholas, grandson of one czar and cousin of another, was born with a dozen silver spoons in his mouth.

Tex started life without even a celluloid teething ring.

Nicholas' birthright was royal blood, boundless wealth, and incalculable opportunity. The resources of a vast empire and the latent possibilities in a hundred million subjects were largely his to mould for might or misery.

Rickard's folks hadn't a dollar, a prospect, an influence, or a servant, except their bare hands and unschooled minds.

Nicholas conformed to precedent and surroundings, chose bigotry, ruthlessness and reaction for counsellors, adopted "laissez-faire" for his creed, endorsed the stupid, reckless courses of tyranny, and helped furnish the strings on which a dynasty fiddled while an exploited populace burned with revolt, thwarted ambition and festering wrongs.

RICKARD, step-child of fortune and son of the off-trail, was cast for poverty and drudgery.

His capital was a saddle, a lasso—and determination.

He traded up from a roulette wheel in Alaska to a gambling house in Seattle, to a saloon in Nevada. He staked their gains on a single bout and won—stayed with the game and kept winning—bought a ranch in Paraguay, came back, leased Madison Square garden and established a monopoly in big matches.

He brought order and responsibility to an unsavory, crooked institution. He made promises and kept them—guarantees and fulfilled them—gave the public its money's worth—dragged pugilism from disrepute to community respect, earned millions and inspired national confidence.

A sport and gambler to the end—but a square-shooter from the start.

Nicholas welched on his debt to self and society. He permitted a nation to be cheated of its liberties, saw its pockets picked, its citizens massacred, imprisoned without trial, refused every God-given right from education to representation, and lifted neither protesting hand nor voice.

The one delivered to the utmost of his lights and abilities—the other never even tried.

That's why a half column, and a half dozen pages, are their respective and just obituary dues—the target rings of a failure and of a success.

It don't make no difference what it is, a woman'll buy anything she thinks a store is losin' money on. Do farmers have to go to the trouble o' fillin' out income tax blanks anyhow?

King Amanullah had to flee his throne in Afghanistan when natives rebelled at his reforms. But he scored a victory for "new fangled ideas" just the same—he escaped in an airplane.

Maybe Charley Curtis wanted the vice presidency because hereafter he will only have to vote in case of a tie.

Racing men will have to get an act of the legislature before they can operate in Texas. You can't very well bootleg a horse race.

New York's police commissioner has ordered the arrest of pedestrians. Picking on the minority that way seems rather mean.

Offering a prize for a plan to enforce prohibition strikes us like offering a plan for an airplane without requiring it to fly.

The Visions of Ford

IT IS always interesting to hear what Henry Ford has to say about modern American civilization. Few men have influenced it as profoundly as he has; consequently, his impressions of it and predictions about it are bound to be worth hearing.

In his newest book, "My Philosophy of Industry," Ford again proves himself one of the major optimists of the day.

It is odd, when you stop to think about it, that so few of our writers are optimists. We live in an age of unparalleled progress and wealth; yet most of the writing folk seem to feel that we are moving downhill. The prevailing tone of modern literature, indubitably, is one of pessimism.

But not for Ford. His book has a significance greater than we are apt to realize; for he, better than any other man alive, can see the tremendous possibilities of the age and can look forward with confidence.

Ford for instance, believes, more than any other man in centuries, that we can mold the world to fit our own desires.

"Our fathers thought that life was hard, but we are beginning to see how preventable some of its hardships are," he writes. "We have come to believe that there is no necessity for economic distress in a world so richly furnished with resources. . . . Economic stoppage is not natural. The defect is not in the created order of things; it is in the human order."

In other words—we can abolish poverty forever and make hunger and want unknown things! In what former age could a man say that without being laughed at as a visionary?

He continues:

"Our experiences are coming faster than ever before, both in our industrial world and in our domestic life. Many people see in these changes a world constantly growing worse. I do not believe this; I think we are headed in the right direction and that we should learn to interpret our new life rather than protest against it. We are entering a new era. Old landmarks have disappeared. Our new thinking and new doing are bringing us a new world, a new heaven and a new earth, for which prophets have been looking from time immemorial. Much of it is here already. But I wonder if we see it."

The age of power and machinery is upon us, whether we like it or not, and is going to stay with us. Because it has been here so short a time, it is easy to see only the ugly, depressing side of it and ignore its possibilities for the future. It is for that reason that Ford's book is important.

This man, who knows more about the age of power and machinery than any other, can look to the future with confidence. If we are wise we will listen to what he has to say, so that we can make sure that the new age will shape itself so as to bring us those great advances which it has made possible.

Unwieldy Cities

IT IS quite possible that in some not-distant day city boosters and chambers of commerce will be trying, not to exaggerate their city's population figures, but to underestimate them. It is slowly becoming evident that it is quite possible for mere size to progress to a point where it is a hindrance.

New York, choked nearly to death by traffic, is trying out a series of new and drastic regulations. If they reduce congestion, a new skyscraper will go up and make the situation as bad as before. The situation is desperate, and there doesn't seem to be any relief in sight.

Chicago, forced to provide an adequate sewage disposal system for its millions, faces the expenditure of frightful sums on vast engineering works. The city's great size, like New York's, is proving a drawback.

Sooner or later we probably will stop trying to make our cities bigger and content ourselves with making them better.

Dislike for Policemen

WHY is the policeman, whose main function is to protect our lives and property and make us safe, so often disliked?

Judge Henry J. Martin of Birmingham, Ala., fell to musing over this problem the other day, and decided that prohibition and automobiles are at fault.

Prohibition, because the man who wants a drink has to look on the police officer as an enemy; and automobiles, because many a man never makes contact with a policeman except when he gets a bawling out for speeding, passing a red light or something similar. The policeman, therefore, is to many people not a symbol of protection, but a symbol of restriction.

This is too bad, and it's rather tough on the police, whose jobs are hard enough anyhow. But we don't see just what can be done about it.

WEST TEXAS LAND TITLES

Citizens of West Texas, and particularly of the Panhandle, should present a united support to Senator Small of Wellington, whose bill recently introduced in the upper house of the Texas legislature would have the state validate all land titles granted the present holders by the state. The spectacle of the state of Texas selling land to its citizens, and now, when the land has become valuable through its old resources, suing in behalf of land grabbers to take the title away from those who have held it for forty or fifty years, is neither inspiring nor calculated to inspire confidence in those public officials under whose auspices the suits are being brought.

BATTLE OF EVOLUTION

The row over evolution goes on apace, but it is changing fronts almost constantly. Darwin never said men descended or ascended from the monkey, and a good many of Darwin's cherished opinions have long since been thrown into the discard. The subject is apt to be a lively one for a good many generations to come. It is one of those things that can neither be proved nor disproved.

The Day Book of a New Yorker

Broadway Chatter by Grant Dixon

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—A harassed shoe salesman of downtown New York has reported a new problem in an already full existence. He not only must fit the customer's foot in the particular style he selects, but he must guarantee mileage.

This sounds rather peculiar, the salesman admits, and then he offers a recent experience to prove it.

Life was droning on its usual footing when a briskly intent, middle-aged man hurried in. He selected a seat quickly, dropped his brief case on the adjoining one and put his best foot forward before the salesman could accord him the usual how-do-ye-do. This the salesman wished to do in his most polite manner, since he saw the customer already was wearing shoes of his store's own make.

The salesman bowed unctuously over the upturned foot.

"Yes, sir," he began, "what will it be this time? Something like the shoe you are wearing? A fine shoe; keeps its shape, comfortable, looks well, wear—"

But the customer held up a warning forefinger.

"Just a minute—just a minute," he said. "It may be all you say it is when it comes to looks and all. But it hasn't worn well. I've got practically no mileage at all out of these shoes."

"Mi—mileage!" gasped the astounded clerk.

"Yes, mileage is what I said," replied the customer. He smiled at the clerks confusion.

"But I don't understand," said the puzzled salesman, eyeing him doubtfully, thinking it was a new sort of joke. "How do you estimate mileage on shoes?"

The customer settled back in his seat, pleased to explain his latest hobby.

"Well, you see, it's like this," he began. "I used to go home evenings wondering why in the world I was so tired. All my work is carried on in the financial district, down in Wall street, a district anybody should be able to take in completely in half an hour.

"But I'm in and out of buildings all day long, half the time in elevators riding up to the 20th or 30th floors. I couldn't understand why this made me so tired, for I couldn't be walking very far in any given day. Finally my wife suggested that perhaps I was walking much further each day than I thought, and just for the fun of the thing I bought a pedometer.

"Would you believe it? I walked exactly 8½ miles the first day I clocked myself. And, mind you, I don't set it going until I'm actually in town and have started on my day's work."

Seeing the salesman was interested the customer drew from his trousers pocket a small metal case. It was about the same in size and appearance as a pocket compass. Then he went on to explain how it worked.

"Every person has a different length stride. Some step 25 or 26 inches, while others lope along with 30 or 32. The mechanism of the clock is adjusted to the length of your step, so that each time you put your foot down that many inches registers on your pedometer. You'd be surprised how the steps clock up into the miles.

"And," he suddenly remembered his mission, "it's no more than right that shoes should give you good mileage. If my automobile tires are guaranteed for 6,000 miles why shouldn't my shoes give a uniform performance?"

His question remained unanswered, for the clerk was dashing in and out of the shelves, seeking the thickest soled shoe in the house.

The VICARION

The Astounding Story of an Invention Greater Than the Movies

Copyright by Gardner Hunting

By Gardner Hunting

Serialized by Ledger Syndicate

In the year 1935 Radley Brainard has invented the Vicarion, a device with which it is possible to re-create scenes out of the past. The invention is a sensational success, with all the theaters installing it in place of motion pictures. Complete Illusions, Inc., which at that time controls all the improvements on the movie, faces ruin, but when Ferdinand Mortimer and Jerry Ballard, heads of the company, call on him, Brainard refuse to make terms.

Brainard's records of the past are contained in "bombs," which hold liquid air and while he is projecting one of the "bombs," which was unmarked, he sees a beautiful gossamar-clad girl, with whom he falls in love, although he is engaged to Phyllis Norman. During the first demonstration of the Vicarion, with Phyllis and her family looking on, a strange man staggers in the studio. He is unable to tell who he is and Brainard names him Van Winkle, and makes him his aide.

Brainard calls in the operator who made the unmarked record, but gains no information from him. He orders Van Winkle to investigate the making of the bomb. Brainard projects one of the three remaining bombs containing the woodland scene in which the girl with whom he is infatuated appears and decides the records were made by Jeffry Honer, a criminal whom he has employed. Honer dies of fright while listening to the voice of his dead brother which Brainard projects by means of the Vicarion and Honer's secret of the "bomb," which contains the "sunrise nympth" passes into the hands of Mortimer and Ballard.

Mortimer and Ballard

The body of Jeffry Honer still lay on the floor of the cabin as it had fallen. The kerosene lamp which the man had lighted on his table still burned there. But its blaze flickered in a current of air. Brainard looked instantly at the cabin door. It was open. Some one else had been there. Some one else had already come and gone! Some one else had come and looked at the man on the floor—and left him there! Why had the condenser not recorded that? It could only be because, in the rhythmic separation of events he had learned to reckon with, that episode was ended and another had already begun. The door was open; was some one about to return? Brainard's gaze fastened upon it and his ears strained for sounds. He heard a step scuff on the gravel outside—outside on that mountain path, 20 miles away, four hours ago. A man appeared, carrying in his hands a green automobile robe, which he was shaking out as if he had just taken it from a car. It concealed his face momentarily. Then he lowered it. He was Jerry Ballard, of the late Complete Illusions! Moving spirit of a defunct monopoly.

Behind him came his partner, in his creaseless clothes. These two—in an obscure, rough mountain cabin, at midnight according to his timing, in obvious relation to the affairs of the man who had tried to hold Radley Brainard in his power!

They bent over Honer together—Ballard on his knees, Mortimer leaning stiffly with one hand on the table. Ballard put fingers on the prostrate man's breast, and shook his head.

"He's through!" he said aloud.

Mortimer swore softly, smoothly, politely, in a voice which had probably never rasped in his life.

Ballard spread the robe. The two pushed and rolled the body upon it. Then they faced each other.

"Well," said Mortimer, "this fellow won't build a Brainard condenser for us now."

"Somebody else will," returned Ballard.

"You think he—just died, naturally? He's not marked?"

"Not so far as I saw in looking him over. We'll have him pretty well examined. But, looks to me like a case of heart collapse—if you call that natural death. He was probably all shot up with dissipation, strong as he looked. Natural enough with his sort."

Mortimer stood still, looking down at the body. After a moment he shook his head slightly. "Now we'll have to open that envelope he gave you," he suggested.

"I've been wondering," returned his partner, "You remember what elaborate precautions he took in writing his memorandum? In the dark—sealed in the dark. If he was so afraid that Brainard could read it the instant light fell upon it, how are we going to read it without Brainard seeing it?"

"Eh?" Mortimer frowned. "I'd never thought of that. But Brainard would have to find the exact time and place in which the thing was opened and read in order to make a record of it."

"He found the time and place in which we discussed buying him out."

"Yes, but he was forewarned, and we were not, then."

"Don't you think he is trying to watch Honer now?"

"Of course. But fancy the detail involved in watching us all the time! Why, you could go and get that envelope—"

But Ballard held up his hand. "Listen, Mortimer," he said, smiling his frosty smile. "It occurs to me that, if Brainard ever looks in upon this scene that is going on here now, everything that we say will be—used against us."

"Eh?" said Mortimer again. Then he laughed, mellowly. Turning half away from his partner he looked toward the open door as if thinking of an unseen auditor hiding there. Then he raised his voice in apostrophe: "All right, Mr. Brainard," he declaimed. "What's said is said. But we still hold your secret—Honer's secret. If you know that he hasn't got you by the throat any longer, you also know that we have!"

They cared as little for the accidental death of the mere tool who had served their purpose as Brainard did. And Brainard, in his studio, unseen auditor of this apostrophe, cared not at all—now! He watched out the remainder of the scene in the cabin. He saw Ballard, and Mortimer, who had probably never before used his muscles to such an extent, carry the inert figure wrapped in the automobile rug out of the door into the mountain midnight, and saw the little interior fade away into invisibility. Then he got up from his chair and stood for a long moment considering.

Then he laughed. He stretched his arms above his head and let out all the big muscles of his torso in a mighty relief. And laughed again. The secret was not lost. Somewhere it lay recorded, where Mortimer and Ballard could put their hands upon it. If they could, so could he!

Astonishing, ludicrous predicament! Would they be ingenious enough to find a method for looking at any memorandum written by human hand without exposing it to his gaze? And if so, what then? They had no condenser and no operator now. Brainard had only to send for the stolen machine; they could not stop him without incriminating themselves. And he would find means of warning operators of his machines against disloyalty.

Once again he laughed. Then he in turn burst into apostrophe to an invisible auditor. "All right, Mr. Mortimer!" he cried. "I won't try to put into your lives any ghost that you can see. I'll merely haunt you with one that continually sees you. An unseen ghost that sees!"

It was like respite from hand to hand fight. For the moment the advantage seemed to lie with him. Brainard turned from his long night's work, with every fiber in him calling for refreshment. His fingers shook as he disconnected the electric current from his condensing machine. His face felt stiff as if too long drawn in strained lines of emotion.

His mind was still racing, but now in speculation as to what Mortimer and Ballard might attempt in the way of making something visible to the eye without making it visible to the condenser. They would take elaborate precautions. It was quite possible that, though in possession of Honer's secret indexes, they still did not know just what they had that put Brainard in their power. Until they did know they would be working blindly. And how were they to learn?

Could an instrument be constructed in which Honer's memorandum might be placed at such a distance from a lens as to cause its record to be visible only at an exact point of focus through that lens, and concealed from any other point of view? And could Jerry Ballard, say, with his eye pre-empting that single point of view, illumine the interior of the instrument, by means of an inclosed light, long enough to memorize a few simple figures?

It was all possible enough. But what was to prevent the operator of a condenser from placing his viewpoint within the instrument itself, and there awaiting the light when they might choose to use it. And that memorandum, once lighted, was forever available to the condenser. It could be destroyed; the instrument with which it was examined might be destroyed; the men who examined it might die; years might come and go—fire, flood, earthquake pass; worm and decay might do their worst; it might pass from memory; yet there it would remain written, undimmed by time, untouched by all nature's destroying forces, forever open to the eye which merely retained the trick of looking back upon the past!

Whatever was or had been visible to the eye was visible to the condenser. It would be quite possible to place the condenser's own viewpoint within the eye itself—Ballard's eye, for instance! Just back of its lens. Where there was light, why should not one eye see through the lens of another?

This opened a whole unthought-of field of possibilities. One might look within the human body at will—with the x-ray to light the way. But Brainard did not care to pursue the course of thought.

avoid "dosing"

CHILDREN

for Colds and Flu

A peculiarity of influenza is that its toxins upset the digestive system and too much "dosing" still further disturbs the digestion just when the child needs all his reserve strength to fight off the flu.

Internal medication should be avoided, therefore, except on the advice of a physician. As Vicks VapoRub is applied externally, it can be used freely, even on the youngest child, with no fear of upsetting the most delicate stomach.

A Safe External Treatment

When flu is around, don't let children keep a cold overnight. At the very first sign, put the child to bed. Apply hot wet towels on the throat and chest until the skin is thoroughly reddened. Then rub vigorously with Vicks. Spread on thickly and cover with warm flannel.

Leave the bed-covering loose around the neck so that Vicks medicated vapors, released by the body warmth, can be freely inhaled. They are breathed in direct to the inflamed air-passages, loosening the phlegm and clearing the head.

At the same time, Vicks acts through the skin like a poultice, "drawing out" tightness and soreness.

After a Flu-Attack

Don't let the children get up too soon; rest in bed helps nature to build up the vitality. Don't let them work or play too hard, and be careful to avoid sudden chills.

Above all, stop every cold at the start. At this time, more than ever, colds attacking the weakened system may lead to bronchitis, abscess of the ear, sinus-trouble, or pneumonia.

Equally good for adults. Of course, Vicks 2-way action is just as effective for adults' cold-troubles as it is for children's

Getting Up Nights Is Nature's Danger Signal

Rev. W. H. Mitchell, 824 N. Park St., Columbus, Ohio, says, "I feel I am doing real missionary work when I tell or write how my wife was relieved of a serious case of bladder irritation with Lithiated Buchu (Keller Formula). She had to get up 6 to 8 times each night." It acts on bladder as epsom salts do on bowels. Drives out foreign deposits and lessens excessive acidity. This relieves the irritation that causes getting up nights. The tablets cost 2c each at all drug stores. Keller Laboratory, Mechanicsburg, Ohio, or locally at Allison's Drug store.—Adv.

Officers Seek Cause of Old Wound In Hand of Victim of Shooting

Man Released by District Attorney After Questioning; Services Held for Wood Wednesday

A man held Tuesday night for questioning in connection with the fatal shooting of Clifford E. Wood last Saturday night, was released after an interview with Mike Anglin, assistant district attorney, Wednesday afternoon. O. C. The man turned over to the district attorney's office by the city police Tuesday night was questioned about the origin of a two weeks old bullet wound in the hand of the dead man, it was learned. The district attorney's office is investigating a theory that business difficulties rather than a domestic triangle led to the shooting.

What a funny way to escape a COLD

Prevent a cold by rinsing the hands with Listerine before each meal? Sounds strange doesn't it? Not when you know the facts, however.

During the day your hands accumulate germs. Ordinary washing with soap and water doesn't destroy them. So, carried to the mouth on food, they develop, attacking the mucous membrane. A cold or sore throat or both frequently follows.

Full strength Listerine, is powerful against germs—kills most varieties in 15 seconds. Therefore its use on the hands before each meal is simply another wise precaution against colds and sore throat. Mothers handling children's food should particularly bear this in mind. Write for our great free book, "Personal Hygiene." Address Dept. S. 43. Lambert Pharmacal Co., St. Louis, Mo., U. S. A.

And for SORE THROAT

Listerine built its reputation on its ability to quickly check sore throat which is also caused by germs. At the first symptom of trouble, gargle with it full strength. Repeat the treatment frequently.

HUNG JURY IN GOSSETT CASE

Childress Trial Ends Without Verdict

Special to The Record News.

CHILDRESS, Texas, Jan. 23.—Unable to reach a verdict after nearly eight hours' deliberation, the district court jury trying H. G. Gosset on a murder charge growing out of the slaying of Hardy Brown, a neighbor, last Nov. 7, was dismissed early tonight.

The final vote taken by the jurors before they agreed that a decision could not be reached was nine to three in favor of conviction, it was reported.

The date for a second trial was not set. After Gossett's trial, his son, Howard, must also face a murder trial in connection with Brown's death.

Brown was slain in an altercation which began in a bedroom of the Gossett home. Brown's widow, an eye witness, said in her testimony during the trial that the argument began when Brown came into the house and accused Howard Gossett, son of the defendant, of "telling lies on him." The two grappled, she testified, and a shot was fired from a large gun, the charge, however, going wild. The boy then pulled a pistol and fired three shots, as Brown ran for the door. Gossett then entered the room, and together with his son followed Brown into the yard, where three more shots were fired, the woman testified.

Mrs. Brown said she had been called to the Gossett home by Mrs. Tate, Gossett's daughter, who had taken ill. Her husband, she said, was engaged in sowing wheat for Gossett on the day of the shooting.

The plan which calls for a supper and program to be given at the church on each Thursday night will extend over a period of eight weeks, it was announced. Programs will begin at 7 o'clock.

The day for these mid-week meetings was changed, Dr. Bash stated, in order that speakers from other churches might be available for the special programs. The general theme announced for the speakers is "Winning the World for Christ." Rev. His subject will be "Jesus' Motive and Method for Winning." The Highland Heights Christian Church orchestra will give a 20-minute popular program, and Miss Harriett Bradley, who has recently been doing special work in a school of music in San Antonio, will give musical numbers. Musicians from other churches will be asked to assist in later programs, it was said.

EIGHTH TEXAS OPEN GOLF TO START TODAY AT SAN ANTONIO

PRO-AMATEUR MEET LISTED

Mehlhorn Defends Crown Against Fast Field

SAN ANTONIO, Jan. 23. (AP)—The eighth Texas open golf tournament, carrying $6,500 prize money, gets under way tomorrow over the new muncipal course with the pro-amateur best ball event of 18 holes. Leading professionals and amateurs are entered.

More than 160 amateurs played 18 holes over the Willow Springs course Tuesday in a qualifying tournament, won by Jack Dold of Houston. Wednesday was devoted to practice rounds over the "muny" course. All leading pros and amateurs were out cracking the ball.

Wild Bill Mehlhorn, defending Texas open champion, was out today taking another round over the course, warming up the mashie niblick that chipped him to a low score record in El Paso last week-end when he went 17 strokes under par to lead a big field. Tommy Armour, former national open champion, who "blew up" in the Los Angeles open recently, also appeared for his first round.

The experts predicted today that Mehlhorn and Bobby Cruickshank, a former Texas open champ, will be hard to keep out of first money.

Al Espinosa, Chicago, Horton Smith, Joplin Mo., and Harry Cooper also were looked to as possible winners.

The fairways are expected to be hard during the three days of tournament play.

The play starts at 8 a. m., players leaving in foursomes of two pros and two amateurs.

CYCLONE HALL STOPS WALKER

Childress Middle Wins In First Round

Cyclone Hall of Childress scored a surprising one-round knockout over Jimmy Walker of El Paso last night in the main event of a scheduled 10-round bout in Alex Ross' boxing show. Hall rushed from his corner at the first bell, socked Walker several times in the face and then a few smashes to the body brought down Jimmy, and he was counted out writhing under the ropes. They are middleweights.

Windy Woody of Abilene and Battling Sturdivant of Scotland, a couple of bantams, boxed eight rounds in the semi-windup. They are clever boys and honors were about even.

Red Williams of Childress and Jimmy Wilson of Oklahoma City engaged in the best scrap of the card. Wilson was floored twice for counts of eight and nine, but fought gamely and stayed the limit. He was given a big ovation for his courageous stand. Williams looked something like a sharpshooter with both hands. They are middleweights.

Aubrey Langford of Quanah and Lefty Hemmi of Scotland, both 147 pounds, boxed four rounds. It was announced as Langford's first ring appearance. Benny Leonard fouled Jack Betts in the third round and Buck Betts and Ad Faubin slugged four rounds in other scraps.

Adolph Friedman challenged all southwestern boxers in behalf of Gene Cullen of Austin. Cyclone Hall accepted the challenge.

The Coyotes, making the trip overland, arrived late for the game, which was started after 8:30 o'clock. The hard trip seemed to have taken some of the pep from the Pack and they played somewhat listlessly, in contrast to their usual speedy game.

Hooper and Shiff were stars for Waurika. Anderson featured for the Coyotes.

HONORS PAID 'PERCY' MILLS

Star Athlete, Student and Popular Boy Graduates

By GORDON FULCHER

Kenneth Mills, one of the most brilliant athletes, most popular students and most versatile scholars ever produced by Wichita Falls High school, closed his career as a student here Friday night when he graduated at the high school commencement exercises.

Mills' athletic prowess has been equaled by few of Wichita Falls High school athletes and his popularity with the student body, both in the classroom and on the field, could hardly be surpassed. Activities have not occupied the entire time of the varsatile Mills for his scholastic record for his years in high school here has ranked with the highest in the school.

The reliability and character of Mills has been cited as an example to the student body many times during the last three years by teachers and by Coaches Bud McCallum and Bill Morris.

Principal S. M. Rider in expression of his feeling toward Mills declared, "Kenneth Mills is one of the most outstanding all-round, responsible, and honorable students from a standpoint of sportsmanship and his dealings with the teachers and the student body that I have known since I have been in Wichita Falls."

His Many Honors

Among the outstanding honors in athletics that have been Mills' during his high school days are the captaincy of the basket ball team in 1928, all-state basket ball guard in 1928, and unanimous choice as all-district fullback in 1927 and 1928.

He was president of the class which graduated Friday, most popular athlete in 1928, and has been elected the most popular boy in recent "favorite" elections at the school.

Mills was born in Olney, Ill., in 1910 and spent his grammar school days at Sumner, Ill. During his grammar school life he made two letters in basket ball and was a reserve cager in 1924 in his first year of high school at Sumner.

His introduction to Texas came in 1925, when his family moved to Vernon and after working all summer in the oil fields Kenneth came to Wichita Falls and began his school career at the opening of the fall term in 1925.

Self-Supporting

During his first three years of high school here Mills was self-supporting and paid his expenses by various occupations, which included "hopping tables" and washing dishes in a local boarding house and acting as service manager of the junior college cafeteria.

From the beginning of his school life here Mills' ability as a basket ball player was ascertained when he won his first letter in 1926.

Mills, then a shy youngster who turned out to be one of the best fullbacks ever developed in this section, made his debut as a football player in 1926. He failed to letter in his first year in football, though he won a letter in the 1927 basket ball and track seasons.

In 1927 Kenneth proved his football ability by rounding into an all-district fullback and the hardest line plunger in these parts. During the 1928 track and basket ball seasons Mills not only won letters but he captained the basket ball team and largely through his excellent play the team fought its way to the state tournament at Austin, where Kenneth placed as an all-state guard.

Ponies Get This Boy

Last year saw Mills reach the peak of his high school career as football player. The big fullback plunuged his way for the greatest amount of yardage gained on the offense and as a defensive player was the mainstay of the eleven. His unerring tackles, and his sureness as a ground gainer paved the way for much of what success was won by the Coyote team.

Besides the letters won in athletitcs Mills was treasurer of the Music club in 1927, program chairman of the Speakers' club in 1927, vice president of the Speakers' club in 1928, treasurer of the Latin club in 1925, and a member of the Hi-Y in 1926, 1927 and 1928.

Mills will leave for Dallas early in February, where he will enter Southern Methodist university. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. N. O. Mills, who reside at 1604 Kemp boulevard.

Success at Goldfield Caused Tex To Go After Jefferies-Johnson Go

Rickard Secured Contracts of Both Fighters Against Spirited Competition, Including Jim Coffroth

By JACK LAWRENCE

(Copyright, 1929, by the New York American, Inc., and Universal Service, Inc.)

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—Four years were to elapse before Tex Rickard was again to rock the sporting world with another gigantic boxing enterprise. He had learned many lessons from the promotion of the Gans-Nelson battle at Goldfield, Nev., in 1906. He had learned that the life of a fistic impresario is not all peaches and cream. There were many irritating incidents connected with the Gans-Nelson fight, but he had surmounted them all. And the profit to himself of $13,000 wasn't hard to take. It was a lot of money in those days. Also, he had learned the value of publicity and the art of ballyhoo.

During the four years that elapsed between the Gans-Nelson fight and the Jeffries-Johnson battle for the world heavyweight title, Rickard was engaged with his Nevada interests. He had his Northern saloon in Goldfield, with its gambling side show, and had also invested in mining properties.

During the latter part of 1909 when the proposed match between Jim Jeffries and Jack Johnson was the principal topic of conversation wherever sporting men gathered, several of Rickard's friends urged him to go after the fight. He was told that he was the only promoter big enough to stage it. In a San Francisco paper he saw a cartoon which bore the caption:

"Where is Tex Rickard?"

It is probable that a conference he had with Thomas F. Cole, a wealthy copper magnate and business man of high standing, finally decided Tex to go after the match Cole convinced him that he could stage the fight and make a handsome profit for himself.

Coffroth Big Rival

But even though Rickard's handling of the Goldfield fight had been crowned with success, he hesitated to tackle anything as big as the Jeffries-Johnson match was certain to be. "Sunny Jim" Coffroth of San Francisco was the big gun among fistic promoters at that time and Rickard doubted whether he could beat him out in a scramble for the bout.

"What do you think I ought to do first?" Rickard asked Cole.

"The first thing to do," replied the practical Mr. Cole, "is to go out and sign up your fighters. After that everything will be plain sailing."

The latter part of Mr. Cole's remark proved to be about as far from the truth as anything could be. Rickard's troubles didn't really begin until after he had both Jeffries and Johnson under contract. Instead of "plain sailing," Tex encountered one difficulty after another.

As a matter of fact, the troubles he had in getting Jeffries and Johnson into the ring soured him for all time on mixed bouts, particularly bouts in which an important title was to be at stake. It offers one explanation of why Tex Rickard was never so keen for staging a championship battle between Jack Dempsey and Harry Wills. He feared that such a match would revive all the race hatreds and reform elements that made life a nightmare to him during the weeks leading up to the Jeffries-Johnson fight.

Right now I can hear Tex saying in that slow southern drawl:

"Yes, suh, that fight gave me many a headache!"

Johnson Beat Burns

This country has been pretty well steamed up over a number of big fights since 1910, but never has the interest been as intense and feverish as it was over the prospect of seeing the great Jim Jeffries emerging from retirement to demonstrate the supremacy of the white man over the black.

When Jeffries resigned the title it came into possession of Tommy Burns, in somewhat synthetic form. Burns, a mediocre heavyweight was soft picking for Jack Johnson when the latter finally forced him into a ring in Australia.

But Johnson's claim to the crown that once adorned the classic dome of John L. Sullivan was as synthetic as Tommy Burns' had been. It was to settle this mooted question that the public implored Jim Jeffries to come back for one more fight. Against his wishes and his own better judgment, old Jim was literally dragged out of retirement. From the pastoral quietude of his California ranch he was hurled bodily into the maelstrom of boiling racial passions, controversy and turmoil. Little wonder that it made him so ugly that his handlers could hardly live with him.

Rickard heard the whole country talking about this proposed match and he knew that with public interest at such a pitch the fight could not fail to make money. The fight was what is known in the profession as a "natural," and contests of this type rarely fail to pay handsome dividends.

Tex Well Backed

When Tex Rickard started on the trail of the Jeffries-Johnson fight he had the financial backing of Thomas F. Cole and several other mining men of wealth. They were interested in the project purely from a sporting viewpoint and were not after any profits. He was starting on the trail that was eventually to lead to the million dollar gate.

Rickard faced plenty of competition when he stepped out to grab himself the Jeffries-Johnson bout. His most dangerous and powerful opponent was James W. Coffroth. But there were others who were hot on the trail of both Jeffries and Johnson. Tom McCarey of Los Angeles was one and Eddie Graney was another. All were said to have ample financial backing. Jack Gleason, an Australian promoter, was reported to have already secured Jack Johnson's signed contract.

Working quietly, Rickard went to Chicago in search of Johnson. There he learned that the negro was appearing in vaudeville in Pittsburgh.

That is where Rickard caught up with him, beating the other promoters to it by a couple of hours. And it was there that Rickard put over the coup that was to land him the fight.

Stribling Fights Tomorrow Night

Willie Says He'll Score K. O. Over Sharkey

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 23. (AP)—"I'd be champion now if Tunney hadn't ducked the issue when we were scheduled to fight in Miami in 1927," Young Stribling, the 24-year-old Georgia heavyweight contender, who arrived in New Orleans today for his fight Friday with Ralph Smith, western giant, said.

"The biggest men in Florida offered to guarantee his end of the purse, but he backed down on a claim that the promoter broke his contract. I was willing to get in the ring for nothing but a chance to flatten him."

The battle in New Orleans will be Stribling's last major fight before meeting Jack Sharkey in Miami Beach Feb. 27.

Sully Montgomery, knocked out in the second round by Stribling Tuesday night in Memphis, "was my 113th knockout victim," the Dixie fighter remarked further. "Smith will be my 114th and Sharkey is certain to be number 115. Don't make any mistake about it."

Stribling is an aviator and is going to fly his swallow airplane to Miami Beach "whether Jack Dempsey likes it or not," he said.

JACK SHARKEY DECENT CHAP

Save For Talking Out Of Turn He's Good Guy

By GEORGE KIRKSEY

NEW YORK, Jan. 23. (UP)—There is a different Jack Sharkey from the one widely disliked in the boxing world as "the loquacious Lithuanian," "the garrulous gob," and "the talkative tar."

Talking out of turn has ever been one of the shortcomings of the Boston heavyweight, but the world would have liked the good-natured fellow who sat in a big easy chair at a quiet family hotel on upper broadway today and told the United Press correspondent about himself.

"I'm not two-faced," Sharkey explained. "I only say what I think, and it gets me in trouble. I'm not going around passing remarks about fighters or anyone else, but it's not in me to register deceit. I hate that 'loquacious Lith' and 'garrulous gob' stuff. I don't say half the things they pin on me and play up in the newspapers."

Gene Tunney never had any more aversion to the riff-raff of the boxing world than Jack Sharkey does, but Sharkey, unlike Tunney, is proud of the fact that he is a fighter.

Proud of Profession

"I'm proud of the profession that gave me a chance to make big money," he said. "I quit school at 12 and was digging ditches at 16. When I came out of the navy I was broke. Fighting gave me a chance I wouldn't have had otherwise."

Sharkey is married and has three children, two girls, 3 and 4, and a boy, Jack, Jr., five months. He worships his wife and kids, and is never away from them for any length of time.

"I've just built an $80,000 home at Newton, Mass., just outside of Boston," he said, "and I've got to make good in my coming fights. I've got too much at stake, and I'm going to see that everything comes out as I've planned."

Sharkey is only 26, and has had only 39 fights since he began fighting in 1924.

"I'm not through," he said. "Why, I'm only beginning. Mentally and physically I'm perfect right now. My condition is better than it has been for two years. I was at top physical form the night I fought Jim Maloney in May, 1927. I weighed 192 that night. Yesterday I weighed 191, my best fighting weight."

Jack and K. O. Meet

Sharkey came face to face today with K. O. Christner, the Akron, Ohio, unknown, whom he meets in Madison Square garden Friday. They met in the office of Tom McCardle, garden matchmaker. Christner had come to see McCardle about the seat sale, worrying over whether he would draw.

"'I'm glad to meet you, Jack," Sharkey said Christner said to him.

"'Oh, that's all right, we'll meet two or three other times,' I said back to him, but he didn't catch it. Then he began looking me over. I was watching him out of the corner of my eye, but I couldn't tell whether he was admiring me or laughing up his sleeve at me."

Sharkey estimates Christner as a "rough, tough fellow," but doesn't think he'll have any trouble winning the decision.

As for Stribling, Sharkey calls him a "wrestling, mauling, bull-dozing fighter," and anticipates no more trouble with him than he had in any of his fights last year against Risko, Heeney or Delaney.

Health And Diet Advice

As the Twig Is Bent

While there is unquestionably a great deal to be said on the subject of hereditary influences affecting the young child, I am sure that environment and training are most to be considered in shaping both the child's mind and his body to the normal. The child's body can be grown to perfect proportions through scientific feeding, combined with efficient corrective exercise to shape the muscles. The mental forces can likewise be developed.

Although some children seem naturally to have more sensitive nervous systems than others, it seems to me that the irritable and highly nervous child is made so through very apparent false training by the parents. Children must be taught regular habits for health. This applies not only to eating and exercising habits but to what may be termed mental habits.

Parents who do not practice good habits themselves can hardly be considered fit teachers for their children. There is more need for model parents than for critical ones. Parents must first have constructive ideas to teach the child and then understand how to train him so as to reduce those ideas to good practice. Parents who are discourteous to each other will of course be the same way to their children and at least set them a very bad example. If the husband and wife were as discourteous to their personal friends as they are to each other and to their children, they would soon find no friends left.

Children as well as adults will respond more willingly to requests than to demands. The request should always be a reasonable one if the child is to gain confidence in his opinion of his parent's judgment. If children are kindly directed just what to do, they will have very little time or opportunity for making mistakes. One "do" is always worth a hundred "dont's."

Children do not like to be idle, and would just as soon play at healthful games and eat the right kind of foods as they would get into mischief. Parents soon lose control over their children when they show a lack of control of their own actions and emotions.

The child is in the very primary grade in the school of life and is really trying hard to learn how to live. There is no excuse for becoming angry with him because he makes mistakes.

Do you ever see an irritable child who did not have an irritable mother? She may make excuses for angry outbursts, but the harm is done and hard to correct when one of these emotional explosions occurs before the child. Mothers who complain of their children being cross and cranky are only exposing the fact to their friends that their own emotional conducts has been none too good.

It is true that children are often more cranky before company but the cranky tricks were probably learned from within the family circle from the nagging mother or discourteous father.

There is nothing inherently vicious in the young child. It's habits are all acquired. The child without nervousness must live in a family where there is no discord, and where all are kind and courteous to each other.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Cramp in Fingers

Question—E. E. writes: "Will you please explain the cause and cure of cramps in fingers in my left hand which frequently troubles me? This condition started after a severe attack of rheumatism in the left arm two years ago, which left a numbness from left elbow down. I am a middle-aged man."

Answer: Consult some physician who uses manipulative therapeutics. Your trouble is likely due to some pressure on the spinal nerves which go to your left arm.

Eating Whole Oranges

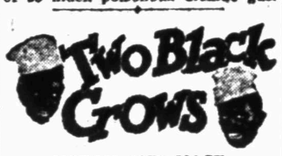

Question — Subscriber writes: "I have two boys, eight and 11. When I give them oranges they eat them through just like apples, peeling and all. We have tried to keep them from doing it, but they will sneak off by themselves and do it. They are both in the best of health and it doesn't seem to cause them any trouble. They have been doing this for years. They eat one or two oranges every day."

Answer: There is no harm in your boys using the entire orange if they use only one or two a day, but the oil in the peel is slightly irritating and might cause trouble if they used too many each day.

Dizzy From Breathing

Question—H. L. D. writes: "When I take a deep breath and hold it for a few moments in the diaphragm region I become groggy—in a daze. I feel as if I am about to fall and must grasp something whenever this happens."

Answer: You can overcome your trouble if you will take systematic breathing exercises and keep at it with regularity. Your trouble is a common one and due to your not being used to such a rapid intake of helpful oxygen and the exhaust of so much poisonous dioxide gas.

MORAN AND MACK

Moran: Say, Big Boy, I is th' chef aroun' here, ain't I?

Mack: Yo' sure is. What's th' matter now?

Moran: How is I goin' to chef when I doesn't know what yo' is sayin'?

Mack: What don't yo' understand?

Moran: I don't know what yo' means when yo' holler, "Sweep up th' kitchen."

Mack: When I hollers "Sweep up th' kitchen," that means some poor fool has ordered hash.

Moran: What's Adam an' Eve on a raft?

Mack: That's two poached eggs on toast. Get it?

Moran: I gets it now. But what does it mean when yo' yells, "Adam an' Eve on a raft. Slap in th' face?"

Mack: When I tells yo' to slap Adam an' Eve in th' face that means to break th' yolks.

Moran: What's six oysters in a kimona to take a walk?

Mack: That means a man has ordered six fried oysters an' he wants 'em in a paper bag because he is takin' 'em home to his wife.

Moran: What's a bowl of Java in th' dark?

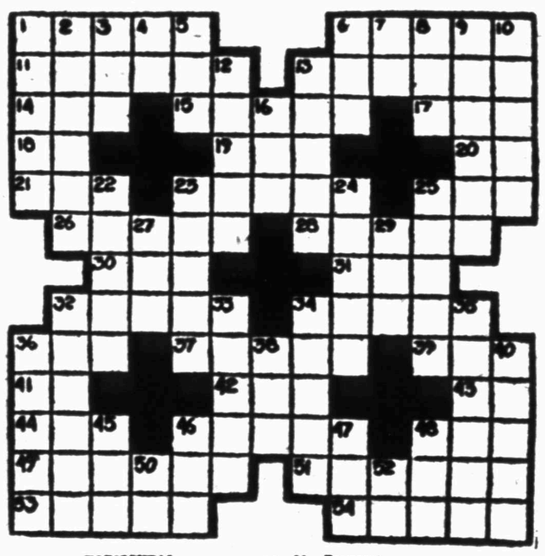

Mack: That's a cup of coffee without cream.

Egghead doesn't seem to understand the ins and out of the restaurant business. Big Boy speaks the Queen's English all right. But it must be the Queen of Afghanistan.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Jan. 23. (AP)—Larger ginning figures than expected were followed by considerable selling and liquidation of old long accounts in the cotton market today. The bulk of the declines were recovered in the late trading. March contracts, after selling at 19.89c, rallied to 21.10c and closed at 20.08c, compared with 20.15c at the close of yesterday. The general market closed firm, net 7 points lower to 2 points higher.

The market opened easy at a decline of 8 to 19 points under selling brought in by relatively easy Liverpool cables and the report of the census bureau showing 13,891,857 bales ginned prior to Jan. 16. These figures apparently were a disappointment to holders of contracts, running about 200,000 bales above recent private estimates. The selling movement became active and general as prices worked lower. Some stop orders were uncovered on the decline and, while trade buying was in evidence on a scale down from the 20-cent level, the decline extended to 19.90c for January and 19.53c for July. At these prices old crop positions showed net losses of about 25 to 27 points, while the new crop sold 22 to 23 points net lower. The volume of offerings tapered off at these figures, however, and the market was less active and the tone steadier during the afternoon.

The buying by trade interests on the early declines seemed to have improved its technical position and there was covering or rebuying by some of the early sellers on the rallies which followed.

January advanced to 20.13c and July to 19.76c in the late trading, or within 2 to 3 points of yesterday's closing quotations. The close was within a point or two of the best.

There appeared to be difference of opinion on interpretation of the ginning figures. Some traders said they were about in line with the government's estimate of the crop. Others thought they tended to eliminate all crop ideas of below the government's estimate and that if a thing they pointed to a slightly larger outrun. Still another view was that any difference between final ginning figures and the crop estimate was not likely to be sufficient to have much if any distant influence on values. Exports today, 12,760 bales, making 5,444,120 for this season. Port receipts, 22,642. United States port stocks, 2,261,425.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 23. (AP)—The cotton market eased off practically $1.50 a bale today, following issuance of the census bureau's ginning total, which was larger than expected, but a good trade and outside demand developed in afternoon trading and fully a dollar a bale of the loss was recovered. March contracts sold down to 19.25c, then rallied to 19.45c and closed one point under the latter figure for a net loss of 12 points. The general market closed steady at net declines of 7 to 14 points.

Liverpool cables were slightly lower than due at the start here, but as the census figures showing 13,891,857 running bales ginned prior to Jan. 16 were larger than expected, first trades here showed losses of 24 to 26 points. Prices continued downward after the start under rather aggressive selling, and although offerings were absorbed at one time on realizing by satisfied shorts and prices rallied 8 to 14 points, January eventually eased off to 19.19c, March 19.25c and May 19.26c, or 30 to 31 points net down.

Near noon the market turned quiet and ruled within the early range, but always near the lows until near the close there was considerable trade and outside buying as well as covering by shorts, and before the demand was supplied January recovered to 19.37c, March 19.45c and May 19.47c, or 18 to 21 points up from the lows of the morning. Final prices were one point under the top on active positions, with January showing the maximum loss of 14 points.

New Favorites Bob Up in Stock Trading Marked by Irregularity

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Jan. 23. (US)—Greater irregularity was apparent in the stock market today as profit-taking increased and bullish enthusiasm was subdued somewhat. Leadership was not so noticeable in stocks of the very best grade, although a few new favorites were advanced to record heights. Money remained fairly easy at six per cent, although there were indications of firmer rates over the month-end.

Union Carbide rose abruptly over 13 points as the same group which sponsors Johns-Manville switched its activities for the day. Manville was not totally neglected although it sold off after attaining a new peak. The floating supply of both these stocks has been materially reduced. International Combustion likewise reached a record price as Durant and his associates continued to absorb all offerings. U. S. Steel was in supply most of the day although it held fairly firm, closing less than two points lower.

National Cash Register was an outstanding feature of strength, soaring over 12 points net on concentrated buying based on expectation that this year will prove a record breaker for its business and profits. Another feature was Rio Grande Oil, recently listed and sponsored by a strong group of New York and Pacific Coast interests. Paper stocks were helped somewhat by official announcement of an increase in the price of newsprint.

Heavier trading was witnessed in Western Union, concerning which the most optimistic remarks were heard in usually reliable circles. There are special developments pending in Western Union's situation which has encouraged absorption of the stock by powerful interests. Radio shares enjoyed a revival of activity and higher prices, as did also Victor stock, inspired by the near-approach of actual consummation of their merger.

Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie preferred had a sharp rise on more general appreciation of its prospects for resumption of dividends, in view of the large earnings of the last two years.

Public Service of New Jersey and other utilities sold off after their recent sharp rise, but Electric Power & Light had a brisk advance to a new high on buying by the leading interests in the utility industry, whose buying of the stock was disclosed recently. Electric Power & Light, it is stated, has not been fully appreciated during the recent substantial advances in other utilities.

Paramount Famous-Lasky attained a new high price as confident buying continued in the knowledge that important developments are under way affecting this company. Leader in the motion picture field, Paramount, according to its sponsors has not been appreciated for its true value in relation to other amusement issues. Its executives have a broad expansion program in mind, the completion of which will undoubtedly improve Paramount's earning power.

Destpite the sharp advances in many individual stocks, however, the market presented a tired appearance. In speculative quarters it was realized that the long interest has built up again to record proportions. Tightening of margins is becoming more general in commission houses. This has been inspired principally by the steady increase in loans. From a survey of leading brokerage houses the opinion was gathered that loans have reached a new peak and that a substantial increase is indicated for this afternoon's report.

TEXAS LIVESTOCK

FORT WORTH, Jan. 23. (AP)—Buyers got the advance of the price revisions in the cattle yards here today, while sales men profited in the change on the hog sales. The cattle supply was under the number listed for the same day last week or for the corresponding day last year, but more calves were on hand.

Trade in steers slow, very few early sales, with buyers bids about a quarter lower on the better class of steers. The common steers about steady. Early sales included cars at $9.50, $9.65 and $11.50. About 10 or 12 loads on hand.

The supply of bulls light. One load of range bulls sold at $7.90, common kind sold around $6.50. Values steady.

The supply of cows light and consisted mostly of mixed lots. Packers of the better cows sold around $8.50, carloads up to $7.50 or about in line with yesterday's trading. Canners and cutters sold at $4.50 to $5.75 with a fair demand.

Stocker buyers fairly active and paid about steady values with heifer calves at $11 and steers at $12. Order buyers took a few calves at about steady prices but packer buyers were slow, with early business about half dollar lower. Very few sales to packers. The bulk of cull calves sold around $6.

In the sheep division, wooled fat lambs sold quarter higher, 2 decks selling at $15.75 and wooled feeder lambs at $14.

Hogs opened 20 to 30c higher, with closing sales 30 to 40c higher, best rail butchers at $9.70 and the truck top at $8.85. Bulk butchers, 170-250 pounds sold at $8.25@9.70; packing sows about a quarter higher and sold at $7.50 to $8.25.

MIDWESTERN REVIEW

These prices are the highest since the middle of October, total receipts were 96,000 against 113,064 a week ago and 129,997 a year ago.

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW

CHICAGO, Jan. 23. (AP)—In big trading, wheat soared today to new high prices for the season, but then heavy profit-taking sales brought about a setback. Reports of sub-zero temperatures and of numerous areas of winter wheat unprotected or under ice were largely responsible for the upward swing of the market.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled at the same as yesterday's finish to ⅜c lower, with corn ⅛@⅜c down, oats from ⅛c decline to ⅛c advance, and provisions showing 12c to 37c gain.

Wheat buying on a broad scale today with corresponding sharp upturns in price developed in the face of Liverpool wheat quotations very unresponsive to advances which had taken place yesterday on this side of the Atlantic. Official reports, though, that growing wheat in parts of Kansas was frozen in the ground and that throughout much of the main section of the western wheat belt the planted acreage is bare of snow led promptly to aggressive action among believers in higher prices, and as a result the market here jumped away from declines which had been registered at the opening.

A 14¾c-a-bushel rise in wheat values shown to have been attained since Jan. 5 led to considerable change in trade sentiment near the end of the day, and there was much talk that for at least the time being a reaction was in order.

Corn, oats and rye were swayed largely by the course of wheat. In the corn market, there was active spread trading against wheat at times, but also lively undoing of spreads.

Provisions showed increasing activity, and reflected hog market upturns to the highest point reached since October.

WEEKS TO OUTLINE PROGRAM OF INTENSIVE FARMING HERE

CROP FORCING PLANNED HERE

New Methods to Be Shown In Moving Pictures

The mass meeting to be held at the Memorial auditorium Thursday night at 7:30 o'clock in behalf of the Weeks colonization plan recently inaugurated on irrigated lands here will be featured by the showing of a moving picture film depicting the laying of mulch paper, the planting of seeds and the various crop stages observed under the mulch paper type of forced crop development, it was announced Wednesday by those in charge of preparations for the meeting.

Mulch paper is a heavy, durable grade of wood-pulp paper heavily treated with asphalt, black in color, and has been adopted generally by intensive farming advocates as an improvement over the blanket of waste crop matter with which a plantation owner in the Hawaiian islands was said to have first discovered the benefits of stifling weed growth and retarding moisture evaporation by the use of such a covering between rows.

Tells Advantages

"The main points to be obtained by this method of farming," said Mr. Weeks, in discussing the pictures to be shown," are these: First, it keeps down all the weeds, eliminating troublesome and laborious work of hoeing and pulling the different kinds of plant growth which rob the crop of its vitality. Secondly, it saves a tremendous amount of labor in the tilling of the soil. Tilling is not only to keep down weeds, but also to prepare a mulch of loose soil in order to retain the moisture. The mulch paper covering retains this moisture far better than actual mulch with scarcely any evaporation.

"This moist condition is retained very near the surface so that soil bacteria multiply very rapidly, thus increasing fertility of the soil. Soil backteria propagate more rapidly in moist, shady places. There is no quicker way to fertilize soil than by the growth of soil bacteria if the proper condition can be retained.

"Another important feature is that the paper absorbs the sun's rays, and warms up the moist soil beneath, which makes just the right condition for tremendous plant growth until crops raised under paper are at least two weeks earlier than those raised without covering. Not only are the crops earlier, but by means of the stimulation from the heat and moisture they are made to increase many fold in production. The increased yield varies with the crops. Some crops, like white potatoes, may be made to yield around 75 per cent more, while sweet corn has had an increase of 69 per cent. Beets, carrots, cucumbers, corn, beans, eggplant, in fact nearly all garden vegetables, are made to increase from 150 to 600 per cent." Many facts relating to this method of farming will be brought out in the talk Thursday night, Mr. Weeks said.

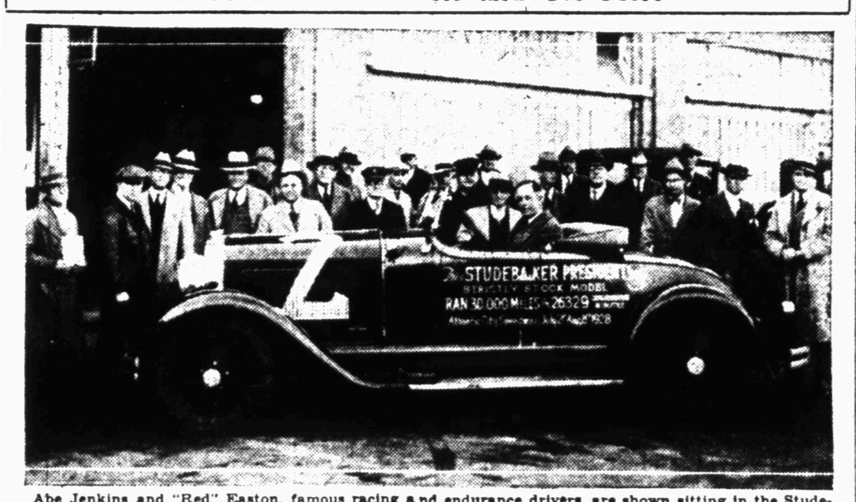

Valley Program

These pictures will give some idea of the work which is contemplated in the Wichita Valley, it was said. They are designed to unfold the story of Mr. Weeks' 26 years work in California, showing how the present system of intensive forming has been reached. Those not acquainted with the forming methods used on row farms may receive from this talk a suggestion for the greater development of this part of Texas.

The model farm, now being established in the Weeks community development at Westmoreland parK, will be ready for visitors on or beforer Feb. 2, it was announced. On Feb. 2 the formal opening will be held. An elaborate program is being prepared of the occasion, consisting of musical numbers and talks by leading citizens of this community.

The mass meeting Thursday night, which has been arranged by the local chamber of commerce, will be addressed by a number of speakers of this and other nearby cities, it was announced.

How to Darken Gray Hair

By BERYL WEST

I repeat what I have often said — there's no excuse today for a woman submitting to gray hair and looking older than she feels. Gray, faded or streaked hair may be so perfectly restored to color that it need be only your own boudoir secret. Nothing more or less than a mixture of sage tea and sulphur is the magic.

One may either prepare the mixture at home, or as most people prefer to do, buy it already prepared and ready to use. Wyeth's Sage & Sulphur is the name of the ready-to-use preparation and since all druggists sell it at 75c a bottle, there is really no need of going to the trouble of making it yourself.

You simply moisten a comb or soft brush with it, and draw it through the hair, one strand at the time. One application banishes the gray and one or two more completely restores your gray, faded or streaked hair to its original color. There is no artificial, dyed look. The whole effect is one of perfect naturalness. My readers would be surprised if they knew of the thousands of men and women who use this preparation.—Adv.

This Lady Says She Takes Dose of Black-Draught to Remove the Cause of Trouble and Prevent Sickness.

LEICESTER, N. C.—"We have used Black-Draught in our home over a period of 25 years or longer, and it is a tried and true friend," says Mrs. Catherine Mears, of this place.

"Every member of the family takes it.

"I have never found any other medicine which could take the place of Black-Draught. A dose of it, taken every so often, prevents constipation and dizziness.

"As I have gotten older, I have found that one of the quickest ways to get sick is to allow constipation to develop. At my age, it comes quickly, and I have to be careful.

"Black-Draught is my stand-by. If I get up feeling dull and shaky, I take a small dose to remove the cause. I cheerfully recommend it to others, for I have found it a great medicine for family use."

Constipation dams up poisons in the bowels, where they are absorbed into the general system, causing many serious symptoms.

Thousands of letters from users of Thedford's Black-Draught, on file at the laboratories where Black-Draught is made, testify to the high esteem in which it is held for the relief of constipation and attendant ills.

MANKINS OIL FIELD WORKER PRAISES ORGATONE

"I've Gained Ten Pounds and Feel Better Now Than Have in Long Time," Says Shugart

"I have taken two bottles of Orgatone and have actually gained 10 pounds," was the statement made by Mr. J. C. Shugart, living in Mankins, Texas, a local oil field worker there.

"I had lost a lot of weight and if you had seen me the day I started taking Orgatone, you wouldn't take me for the same man now. I began having trouble with my stomach several years ago," he continued, "and nothing I have ever taken did me any good. I was in a very weak and run-down condition and did not have any appetite at all, and what little I did eat, I just forced myself to do so, to keep me going. I didn't rest at all of a night and food would sour on my stomach, and wouldn't digest. I was constipated and was gradually losing what strength and energy I did have.

"Orgatone was advertised so highly and I knew several of the people who had taken it and thought that it wouldn't do me any harm, so I got a bottle. It was a very lucky day for me. I eat anything I can buy, and stomach trouble doesn't bother me at all. I'm not nervous any more, and sleep and rest fine. I'm glad I bought Orgatone for it has certainly been worth a lot more to me than it costs. I've taken a lot of medicine but Orgatone has done the work for me. I now feel like a different person and look it, too. I am glad to say what I can for this medicine and anyone would not be making a mistake to take it, if they suffer as I did."

Genuine Orgatone is not a so-called secret or patent remedy but a new scientific treatment containing no alcohol or other false stimulating drugs and is sold in Wichita Falls exclusively by the Allison's Drug store, under the personal direction of a special Orgatone representative who is meeting the public daily. Out-of-town customers are being supplied promptly by mail upon receipt of price, one bottle $1.25 or six bottles for $6.25. —Adv.
