Highs are forecast to reach the mid 90s today with southerly winds, 10 to 15 miles per hour. Less than a 20 percent chance of rain is in the forecast. Tonight look for lows in the upper 60s and easterly winds, 5 to 10 miles per hour.

Jobless rate edges upward

Food prices rise

WASHINGTON (AP) — Food prices rose at the fastest pace in five months in July and housing costs also surged upward, pushing overall consumer prices 0.3 percent higher despite declining gasoline and fuel oil costs, the government said today.

Still, the July increase in the Consumer Price Index was only slightly higher than the 0.2 percent gains of May and June, and it left inflation running at an annual rate of 4 percent for the first seven months of the year.

That compares with a rate of 3.8 percent for all of last year — the best performance since 1972. The annual rate so far is also lower than the 4.4 percent rate the Reagan administration has predicted for all of 1984.

So today's news was likely to be welcomed in Dallas, where the Republicans are meeting to renominate President Reagan to run for a second term amid continuing indications the economy is still growing briskly while inflation remains relatively low.

"This shows that the economy continues to grow with low inflation," said Peter Roussel, a White House spokesman. "The recovery remains steady and on course."

Meanwhile, the Commerce Department reported today that

Labor force down

Staff reports
The July jobless figures for Howard County and Big Spring released by the local Texas Employment Commission office revealed unemployment was up .3 percent from June levels.

The July unemployment figure was 5.4 percent, compared to 5.1 percent for June, said Big Spring TEC office employment supervisor John Eckley this morning. Howard County had 959 people unemployed in July, he said.

The county's total civilian labor force for July was 17,660, which was down from the June figure of 17,732, Eckley said. The number of people employed in the county was 16,701 for July. The state unemployment figure (seasonally adjusted figure) for July was 6.1 percent, up from the June figure of 4.8 percent, Eckley said.

Eckley said the July figure of 5.4 percent compared to the 1983 July figure of 9.3 percent. Jobs are being lost "a little bit all over," Eckley said. A drop in the labor force is expected in August when the school season begins, he said.

The July jobless rate for the county is still considerably lower than the May figure of 6.4 percent and 7.4 percent April figure.

Judge indicts dump

Borden's York targets nukes

Bureau and wire reports

AUSTIN — Borden County Judge Van York said he would tell lawmakers today that a state agency is moving too quickly in its search for a low-level nuclear waste dump.

York, whose county north of Big Spring has been under consideration as a dump site, was scheduled to testify this afternoon before a House County Affairs subcommittee.

York said before the meeting this morning he believes the Texas Low-Level Radioactive Waste Disposal Authority is in too much of a hurry to bury radioactive waste in a shallow land fill rather than seriously considering other ways to dispose of the waste.

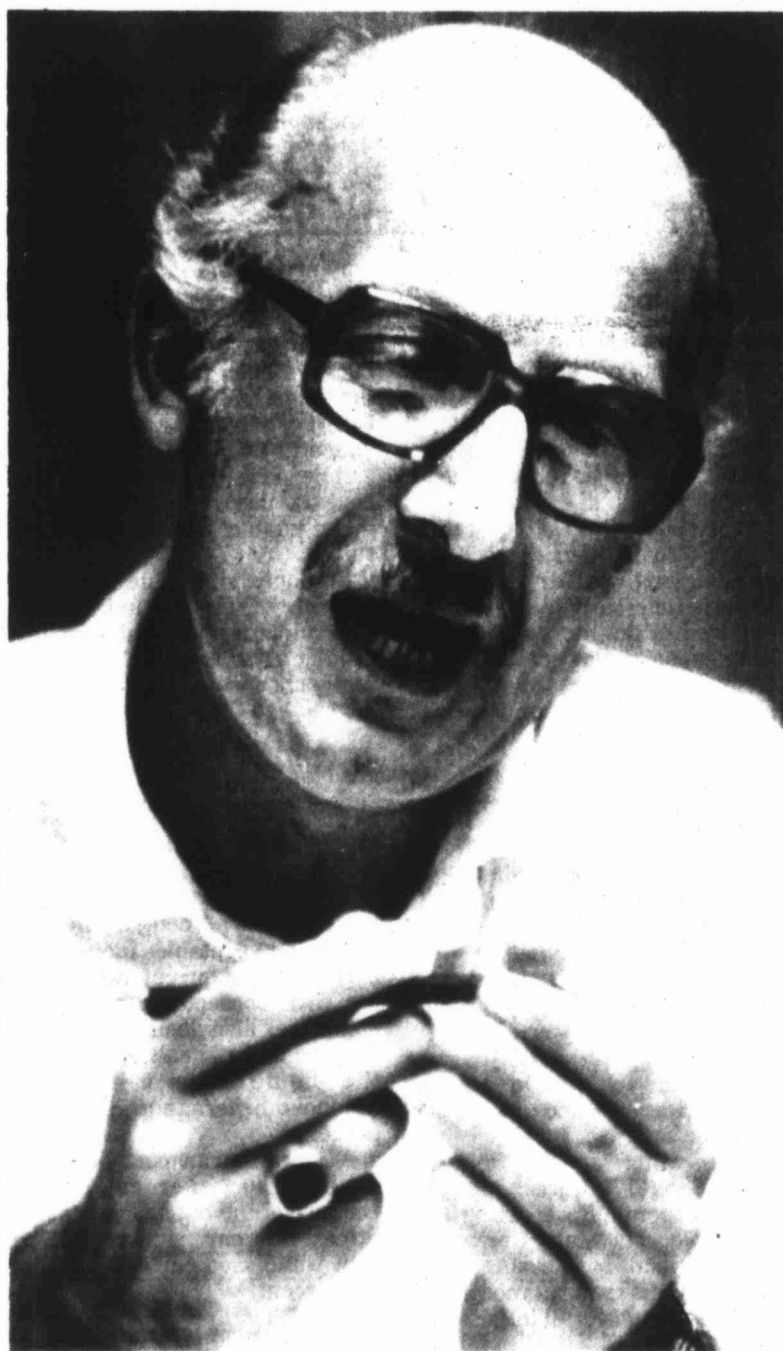

"Let's slow up," York said. "Let's look at an alternative. We're going into this too fast."

He said representatives of the agency told Borden County residents earlier this year the state could not guarantee such a waste land fill would not affect the environment.

"Landfills have a habit of leaking," York said.

Other witnesses scheduled to appear before the subcommittee today included Hugh Kaufman of the federal Environmental Protection Division and Bob King of the Texas Department of Agriculture.

SEEKING AID — John Holehouse, a deputy principal in a school in Africa, will travel the United States over the next 48 days seeking aid for a hunger relief fund for people in eastern Africa. Holehouse is beginning and concluding his tour of the states from Big Spring.

Maringa

Means big spring, and hope, in Africa

By CAROL BALDWIN
Staff Writer

John Holehouse was surprised to see a town called Big Spring on the Texas map. The London, England, native was about to launch a fund-raising project called "Maringa" in the United States and was wondering where to begin.

"Maringa" is an African word that means "big spring" or "big well." Because of the similarity in names, Holehouse chose Big Spring as the kick-off spot for a tour that will lead him around the nation in search of famine relief aid for the needy in eastern African countries.

"I was coming to Texas," Holehouse said, because his attorneys are based in Houston. He was headed to the states to talk to attorneys about establishing an educational trust fund, and decided to kick off a tour of the nation in Texas.

"I looked at a map and saw Big Spring. I had to start somewhere. I hadn't heard of Big Spring before, but that was the connection."

Holehouse said the idea behind both the famine relief project and the educational project is "to help people help themselves."

He is planning to visit 48 states in 48 days to share with Americans the poor conditions some Africans must cope with everyday. The 45-year-old widower hopes to first raise money for hunger relief. "Maringa," or the scholarship program, is a goal he sees in the future.

Holehouse said the idea of establishing a scholarship program for Africans would be to teach them skills which would enable them to help their countrymen.

Once the educational scholarship project gets under way, Holehouse said, "we will insist beneficiaries go back to their own countries to share their skills for a period of years."

But, "before you can educate people, you have to keep them alive," he said. Because of that, he will spend his 48-day tour discussing famine and the need for aid in Africa.

Holehouse is a teacher at the International School in Moshi, Tanzania. He has lived in Africa for more than 10 years and through travels within the country has seen suffering caused from famine. He decided to take a year's leave of absence from his position as deputy principal of the International School to travel in search of help.

A member of Rotary International in Africa told Holehouse about the Rotary program and wrote him an introductory letter. Holehouse has contacted several Rotary clubs in the U.S., including one here in Big Spring.

Judge orders halt on Fiberflex board

Fiberflex attorney dies

Staff reports

Big Spring attorney John Burgess, 51, who has represented Fiberflex Inc. in bitter stock battles, died at Malone-Hogan Hospital at 8:40 a.m. today following a heart attack Tuesday night.

Services are pending with the Nalley-Pickle and Welch Funeral Home.

Burgess, a longtime Big Spring attorney, was with the firm of Burgess and Moore at 708 Main Street. He was recently involved in the Fiberflex hearing in 118th District Court. He was one of the attorneys representing the Fiberflex corporation.

Burgess was a member of the First Christian Church. He had served that church as a deacon. He was also active in the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce and was serving as chairman of the Governmental Affairs Committee.

Burgess attended law school at the University of Texas in Austin, graduating in 1955. The family has lived in Big Spring since 1959.

Survivors include his wife, Shirley; two daughters, Cindy Flora of Midland and Amy of Big Spring.

118th District Judge Jim Gregg late Tuesday granted a temporary restraining order against action taken at the Aug. 18 meeting of Fiberflex shareholders that ousted embattled corporate president Tom Rutledge and four other Fiberflex board members.

Fiberflex shareholders at the Saturday meeting voted to replace Rutledge and the four directors with a group led by Charles "Chris" Christopher, who is battling for control of the fiberglass sucker rod manufacturing company.

Meanwhile, a hearing scheduled for 3 p.m. today on the Fiberflex case in 118th District Court was canceled late this morning, according to District Clerk Peggy Crittenden.

In addition, Gregg's order, signed after 5 p.m. yesterday, calls into question the legality of a meeting by new Fiberflex board members that is scheduled for 6 p.m. today.

According to Gregg's order, there is a "justiciable controversy" over the manner in which a quorum was reached at the Aug. 18 meeting; the legality by which Rutledge and the other directors were removed; and the legality of any further action taken by the new board at an Aug. 20 meeting and the meeting scheduled for today.

The district judge's order restrains the Christopher group from acting as Fiberflex board members while the suit remains in litigation.

Other provisions of the order include:

• That Christopher and others desist from forming a quorum of stockholders as they did in the Aug. 18 meeting.

• That they desist from holding

Storms rip Panhandle

By The Associated Press

A weak coldfront generated very heavy thunderstorms across the Texas Panhandle today, and forecasters predicted more scattered rainfall in northern sections later.

The front moved southeastward through the Panhandle into the northern South Plains, the National Weather Service said. Most storms were concentrated in the northern Panhandle and a small area of the South Plains.

Rainfall was also occurring in the Trans-Pecos region of West Texas and Southeast New Mexico, the weather service said.

Skies elsewhere in the Lone Star State were fair to partly cloudy. Winds were mostly southerly at 5 to 15 mph, and northerly over the Panhandle and the mountainous southwest.

Low temperatures ranged from the 70s and 80s to the 60s in the Panhandle and 50s in the Davis Mountains of West Texas. Extremes were 59 degrees at Marfa and 85 degrees at Fort Worth.

Scattered showers and thunderstorms were expected across northern sections and the Texas coast through Thursday. Elsewhere, it should be partly cloudy and warm through Thursday.

Highs were expected in the 80s over the Panhandle and along the upper Gulf coast to the 90s elsewhere, with temperatures above 100 degrees in parts of North Texas and the Big Bend valley.

Flood warnings remained in effect for parts of California today and Colorado braced for still more wet weather following flash floods and powerful hailstorms.

Rain raked the eastern foothills and plains of Colorado on Tuesday. The National Weather Service called prospects for the next week just as soggy as the past two.

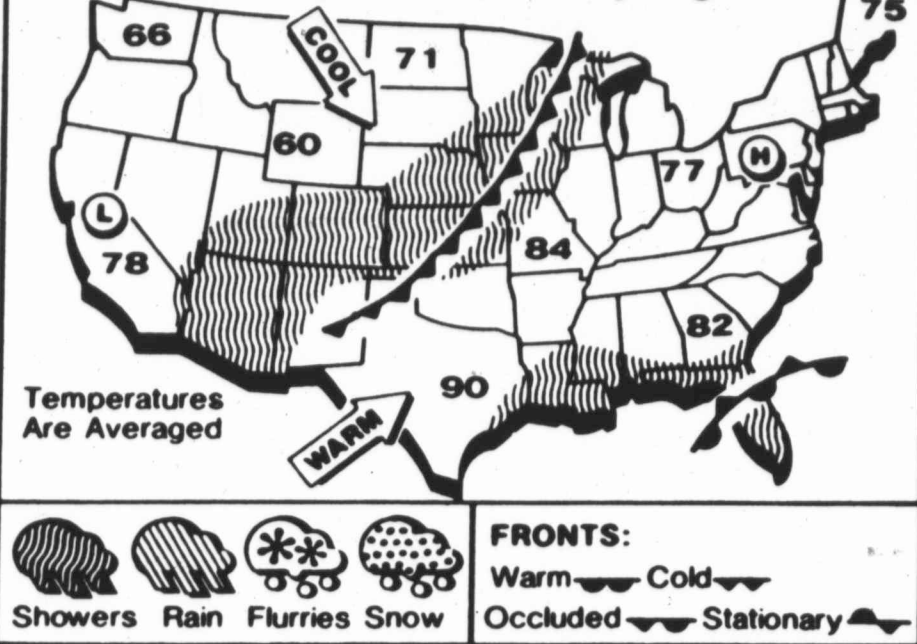

The downpour was especially furious in southern Colorado, where a brief but intense hailstorm filled Pueblo storm sewers, causing manhole covers to bob along flooded streets. In some areas, up to 4 inches of golfball-sized hail littered the ground.

Other thundershowers lingered over southeast Georgia and along the South Atlantic coast today. Fair skies dominated the remainder of the East, the northern Plains and most of the West.

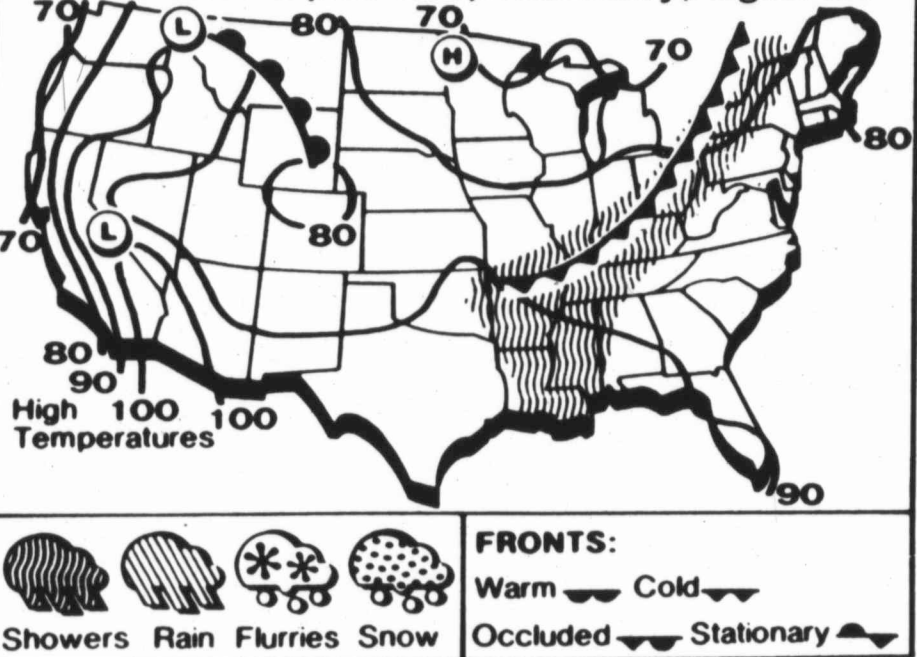

Today's forecast called for showers and thunderstorms scattered from the eastern Great Lakes and the western Appalachians through the Ohio and lower Mississippi valleys into northern portions of the southern Plains.

Afternoon and evening thundershowers were expected over Florida, the Gulf Coast region and central and southern portions of the Rockies and intermountain region. There also was a chance of thundershowers over portions of California.

Police Beat

3 injured in two-car collision

A Big Spring man was arrested on suspicion of driving while intoxicated last night after a two-car major accident sent him and two other persons to local hospitals with minor injuries, police reports said.

Timothy Abbott, 36, of 1321 Utah was arrested at Veterans Administration Medical Center at 8:35 p.m. Tuesday after the accident that happened at about 6:30 p.m. Tuesday near the intersection of Randolph and Simlar in Big Spring Airport.

Abbott and his son, Christopher, 10, were treated and released at the hospital after being taken there by Shaffer Ambulance, a hospital spokesman said.

A third injured person, Thomas Taylor, 20, of 1212 Lindbergh, was treated and released at Malone-Hogan Hospital after the accident, a hospital spokeswoman said.

Big Spring police also ticketed Abbott for speeding and having no insurance after the accident, reports said.

"I've paid for the whole thing myself," he said of costs triggered by his tour. "I am completing my doctor's thesis at the same time."

Holehouse bought a $600 Greyhound bus ticket in London which allows him unlimited travel within the United States within a 60-day period. Locally, he is staying with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Beil. He said the couple "offered to put me up to try to keep expenses down."

Holehouse hopes to stay in private homes as he makes his way around the United States.

He has a $150,000 goal for his hunger relief project. "That sounds that an impossible goal, but I've been taught that often the impossible is achievable. But if I only raise $1.50 at the end, still I've got something."

Holehouse said during the next 48 days, "my aim is to make contact with people," he said.

He hopes to be able to report back to groups and individuals who support the famine relief project. The reports "will virtually show how many lives you have saved," he said.

Prices

orders to factories for "big ticket" durable goods rose 2.2 percent in July, making up most of the previous month's decline.

Durable goods orders, a key indicator of future factory production, have been very erratic in recent months with a 6.5 percent April decline followed by a 4 percent May increase and then a 3 percent June setback.

Commenting on the inflation report, Donald Ratajczak, director of the Economic Forecasting Project at Georgia State University, said both food and housing prices could continue rising at their faster paces, pushing overall inflation upward, too.

"It looks like the low point of the inflation cycle has been reached," he said, with annual rates in the range of 5 percent to 6 percent likely for the next year or two.

Labor costs in particular are rising, he said, as employers hire back the last of the skilled workers laid off during the recession and begin bidding up wages in order to keep workers from leaving for other jobs.

In its new report, the Labor Department said higher prices for poultry, fish, fruits and vegetables helped boost food costs by 0.3 percent, the biggest increase since the 0.6 percent of February.

Food prices had inched upward 0.1 percent the previous month. Meanwhile, gasoline prices dropped 1.8 percent in July after declining 1.5 percent in June, and are now 14.7 percent below their peak level of March 1981.

Fuel oil costs dropped 1.2 percent after declining 0.9 percent in June and natural gas prices rose 1.2 percent after declining 0.1 percent.

Electricity costs jumped 1.8 percent.

Housing prices rose 0.5 percent, including a 0.7 percent increase for homeowners, a 0.6 percent rise for renters and lesser increases for maintenance and repair.

In today's report, the department provided these additional details on consumer price activity:

—Prices for poultry and fish both increased 0.8 percent in July, while fruits and vegetables increased 0.6 percent. Beef prices declined for the fifth consecutive month, and egg prices also declined sharply.

The cost for meals eaten outside the home rose 0.4 percent. Alcoholic beverage prices rose 0.3 percent.

—Overall transportation costs declined 0.3 percent, mostly because of the big drop in gasoline prices. New car prices rose 0.5 percent while used car costs declined 0.7 percent.

—The cost of telephone services, which rose substantially earlier this year, advanced 0.5 percent in July, as sharp increases in local and intrastate charges were partially offset by a further decrease in interstate toll calls.

—Medical care costs rose 0.6 percent.

—Clothing prices increased 0.5 percent.

—Entertainment costs rose 0.5 percent.

All the changes were adjusted to discount for normal seasonal variations.

If last month's 0.3 percent increase held steady for 12 straight months, the yearly advance would be 3.5 percent. That annual rate reported by the department is based on a more precise calculation of prices than the monthly figure made public.

In all, the Consumer Price Index stood at 311.7 in May, meaning that goods costing $10 in 1967 would have cost $31.17 last month.

A companion index, the Consumer Price Index for Urban Wage Earners and Clerical Workers, rose 0.4 percent. That index is widely used in calculating cost-of-living increases in collective bargaining contracts and government benefit programs.

TUEC sets new peak record

Customers of Texas Utilities Electric Company set a new record peak demand for electricity of 15,120 megawatts at 5 p.m. Monday, according to Hooper Sanders, division manager of Texas Electric Service Company.

The new peak is eight percent higher than the peak demand set in August of 1983.

"We were able to provide our customers with adequate electricity Monday, and we will be working hard to continue meeting their needs in coming days," Sanders said.

Sanders said the company is encouraging its customers to continue good conservation practices such as setting air conditioner thermostats higher and holding down use of non-essential appliances.

Montford speaks to Demos

State Sen. John Montford of Lubbock will be the featured speaker when the Howard County Democratic Club meets Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at the district courtroom.

Mack Underwood said the special meeting was called to organize club members, state delegates and alternates, and precinct chairmen for the November general election.

WTC plans seminar in Gail

SNYDER — Western Texas College has scheduled an agriculture seminar titled "Making Champions Out of Your Steers and Lambs" on Saturday at the Borden County Fair Grounds in Gail.

Consultants will be Tommy Stewman, Limousin breeder from Maryneal, Joe Ed Wise, formerly Dawson County extension agent, and Dr. Stephen P. Hammack, beef cattle specialist with the Texas A&M extension service.

Also assisting will be Kent Mills, sales representative from Ezell-

Key Feed Mill in Snyder.

The seminar will precede the Don Everett Club Lamb Sale and will begin at 9 a.m. Lunch will be served at noon, with the sale featuring 150 top club lambs to begin at 1:30 p.m.

Registration fee for the seminar will be $10 for adults and $5 for students. The fee does not include the noon meal. Additional information about the seminar can be obtained by calling Jerry Baird at WTC in Snyder at 915-573-8511.

Council raises police budget

COLORADO CITY — The City Council here Tuesday night voted to amend the police department budget and increase it by $25,000 for the remainder of the fiscal year.

The request to increase the budget came after Police Chief Kenneth Farrow said the department's budget was underbudgeted by $12,000 for the year.

Despite the amended budget, the council also approved a measure to hire an additional police officer to the department. City manager Brenda Tarter said an additional officer could be added and the city could actually save money now being paid out in overtime to the other officers.

The budget for the police department is now $274,138.40, Tarter said.

Mayor Elmer Martin also swore in new council member Tom Lovell, 28, who will replace Tarter. Ms. Tarter was hired as the new city manager earlier this year.

The council will meet at 1 p.m. Friday to award bids on a landfill compactor.

Phillip Morris' Fantasy Players will present "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" tonight at 7 p.m. at the Big Spring High School Auditorium.

The performance, which features elaborate costumes, is sponsored by the Big Spring Rotary Club.

Strikers return to jobs at Bell

FORT WORTH (AP) — Having missed three weeks after being suspended, about 3,200 members of the United Auto Workers Union will return to work at Bell Helicopter Textron.

Bell's order calling the workers back next week came Tuesday, an hour after the first face-to-face negotiations in 10 weeks between the company and the UAW.

The union represents about half of Bell's 6,500 Tarrant County employees.

Two union locals continued working during a contract dispute until they were suspended following incidents at Bell's eight Tarrant County plants on July 26. The company labeled the incidents a walkout, while union members say the company ordered them to leave the plants and would not allow them to return to their jobs.

Edmund Szol, vice president for employee relations at Bell Helicopter, said that during Tuesday's negotiations with the UAW, Bell presented a revised and improved proposal to the union that "addresses the central issue of the dispute — the method of payment of COLA (cost of living adjustments)."

He said the contract offer would remain valid and subject to consideration by Locals 218 and 317 only until midnight Sunday. The new contract will not be valid after that deadline, Szol said.

Szol also said that the company advised the UAW that all Bell Helicopter facilities will be open to all employees on Monday. Those employees currently on indefinite suspension should report to work at that time, he said.

Whether or not union members vote to accept the new contract proposal, union officials said the workers undoubtedly will return to work.

Bell's new proposal is the first change in the bargaining stance on either side of the previously stalemated labor dispute. On June 10 UAW Local 218, Bell's production workers, rejected what the company had called its "best and final offer" for a new contract. Two weeks later Local 317, Bell's clerical and office workers union, rejected a similar offer.

Perry Cheatham, president of Local 317 and a member of the union's bargaining team, said the union will prepare a counter proposal to present to the company at the next negotiating session. That session tentatively has been scheduled for Thursday morning.

"I think they'll be happy to return to work, but I think they'd really want a contract before they return to work," Cheatham said.

"We're ready to put the dispute behind us," said Jimmy Lewis, president of Local 218. "All it takes is an acceptable offer."

After Tuesday's negotiating session, UAW officials said the union plans to discuss with management the matter of back pay for the 3,200 workers suspended since July 26.

Parents refusing to testify

HOUSTON (AP) — The parents of a teen-ager charged with murder have been ordered for a second time to show why they should not be held in contempt for refusing to testify before a grand jury.

Bernard and Odette Port, jailed briefly June 27 for the same refusal, repeated their determination not to testify about the killing. They appeared before grand jurors twice Tuesday but gave essentially the same answer to all questions, court reporters Sheri Okladak and Michael Klepper testified.

Each contended answering the questions about the June 7 shooting death of Debra Sue Schatz, a 23-year-old mail carrier, might tend to incriminate them and was "beyond the scope of a legitimate grand jury investigation."

The Ports' 17-year-old son, David, is charged in the killing. He is free on $20,000 bond.

State District Judge I.D. McMaster answered that he found the questions "proper in every respect." Prosecutors have offered to grant "use immunity" to the Ports for their testimony, meaning it could not be used to bring criminal charges other than perjury against them.

Boycott called in S. Africa

CAPE TOWN — South Africa today held its first election for a non-white chamber of Parliament, but opponents appealed for a boycott to protest the white minority's continued political domination.

About 907,000 voters of mixed race were eligible to cast ballots today. Boycott organizers predicted a low turnout of about 15 percent that they said would discredit the new three-chamber Parliament, which will exclude blacks entirely and continue to be controlled by whites.

In Johannesburg, groups urging a boycott said six more of their members were detained by police, raising the two-day total of arrests to 41.

79 die in artillery duels

TRIPOLI — Artillery duels between rival Moslem militias rocked residential neighborhoods in this Syrian-controlled city today as a cease-fire collapsed and police raised the three-day casualty toll to at least 79 dead and 230 wounded.

The state radio said a 19-hour cease-fire between pro-Syrian and anti-Syrian militias broke down late in the morning, and "almost all residential neighborhoods in the city are under random bombardment."

Managua mothers march

LA PAZ CENTRO — Hundreds of women demonstrated in this provincial town against the forcible induction of their sons and brothers into the Nicaraguan army.

The women vowed Tuesday they would continue the protests until the leftist Sandinista government halts the conscription of the town's young men.

The government, fighting U.S.-backed guerrillas on its southern and northern borders, passed legislation last September under which Nicaraguans between 16 and 40 can be drafted for two years.

Italian ships sail for Suez

CAIRO — Four Italian navy ships left a port in northern Italy today to join the international effort to clear mines from the Red Sea and Gulf of Suez.

Three mine-hunting ships, one naval support ship and 290 navy personnel left the port city of La Spezia for a base near Hadabeya in the Gulf of Suez, a ministry statement said.

Defense officials say the ships are expected to take about a week to reach their destination and will make a refueling stop at a Sicilian navy base along the way.

Israel Labor gets support

TEL AVIV — Ezer Weizman, a former defense minister who emerged from last month's elections as a pivotal political figure, today signed a commitment to support the Labor Party as leader of the next government, a Labor spokesman said.

The agreement, reached during an all-night meeting between Weizman and Labor leader Shimon Peres, meant Peres almost certainly could build a governing coalition in Parliament even if talks with Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir's Likud bloc fail to produce a bipartisan government.

GERALDINE FERRARO...the cameramen applauded

Nothing to hide

Ferraro wins press, but loses secretary

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hours after her commanding, marathon performance fielding questions about family finances, Geraldine A. Ferraro returns to the campaign trail only to face a new headache — the surprise resignation of press secretary Patricia Bario.

Near the end of her nearly two-hour news conference on finances, Ms. Ferraro, the Democratic vice presidential nominee, looked out at the 38 television cameras and more than 150 reporters and expressed the hope Tuesday that "Gerry will be off the grill."

"We'll get this all out and then we'll move out" to talk about issues rather than finances in new campaign stops beginning with a speech to a teachers union here today, she said.

But Tuesday night, her spokeswoman, Ms. Bario, 52, told The Associated Press: "I quit this evening."

She said she quit in a dispute with campaign manager John Sasso over delays in hiring assistants to help her and because of the confusion that resulted from a lack of staff help.

At a Queens, N.Y., news conference, Ms. Ferraro had pointed to her release of "more financial disclosures than you received from any candidate in the history of the United States and from any other spouse" and argued they dispel any notion her family had "something to hide."

Indeed, Ms. Ferraro had some reason to hope that her calm and assured responses to pointed and sometimes hostile questions might have finally put to rest many of the financial questions that have shadowed her for two weeks.

She never flinched, and, having promised to take all questions, outlasted two television networks which decided they had seen enough and stopped broadcasting the event before she left.

Her performance provoked an unusual response from the reporters present: they booed or hooted down two of their colleagues who they felt were rudely interrupting Ms. Ferraro's answers. At the end, some television cameramen dropped their normal noncommittal posture to applaud her. And the early reviews from some political commentators were favorable.

But Democratic campaign sources, who would not allow use of their names, said Bario's departure reflected a wider problem in Ferraro's campaign staff.

These sources said the newly hired staff was plagued by more than one internal dispute and by considerable confusion, which one source attributed to Sasso's "overmanaging and failure to delegate duties."

Other sources, however, described Sasso, who could not be reached Tuesday night, as upset over what he called Ms. Bario's "lack of direction."

At her news conference, Ms. Ferraro refused to back off her five-year-old claim that she did not benefit from or know about her husband's real estate management firm, P. Zaccaro Co., and thus was entitled not to list his financial data on federal disclosure forms.

Reagan nomination on agenda

DALLAS (AP) — Ronald Reagan, dominating the opening scenes of the Republican National Convention from far offstage, moves into the spotlight today as the leading man of the conservative revolution he wrought in 1980 and is determined to preserve for four more years.

In a single uncontested call of the roll of the states tonight, Reagan and his vice president, George Bush, will be renominated for a second four-year term by delegates who heard him acclaimed Tuesday night as "a president who doesn't apologize for America."

A 10-story high American flag and thousands of red, white and blue balloons were in place for a rally to greet the president and Bush at their hotel.

Expert says Soviet units raiding Swedish coastline

LONDON (AP) — Soviet commando units operating from submarines or converted merchant ships are continuing to penetrate Sweden's territorial waters "in flagrant contravention of international law," says the editor of Jane's Fighting Ships.

The elite Soviet units are "trained in the techniques of raiding, sabotage, reconnaissance and political murder," and operate all along the Swedish coastline, Capt. John Moore writes in forward of the 1984-85 edition of the authoritative yearbook.

Moore also said the Soviet Union is the only country with an effective maritime policy. He said Western countries lack any policy for coordinating their use of the seas, and Western politicians sometimes interfere with a proper maritime plan.

Moore, a retired British naval officer, directs the compilation of reference material on navies around the world. The 1984-85 edition is scheduled for release Thursday.

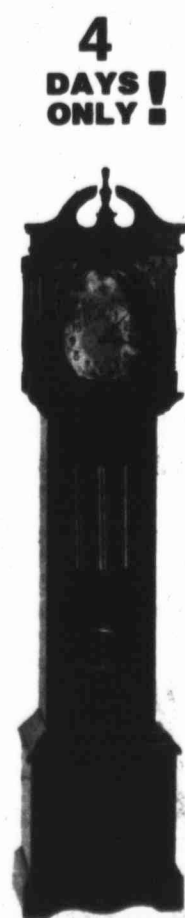

Operations along the Swedish coastline by mysterious foreign craft have been of major Swedish concern for several years. In October 1981, a Soviet Whisky class submarine went aground off Karlskrona. It was refloated and the Soviets apologized, claiming there had been a navigational error.

The last official Swedish report on activities of "unidentified alien" vessels concerned incidents last February and March.

Moore's account of what he said were the "unabated" Soviet incursions was among the most detailed and specific versions that have been published. Moore said in a telephone interview that his information came from "Swedish sources," whom he refused to identify, and from his own investigations.

He said there was a "fairly standard ambivalence" in the Soviet approach. The Soviets are attending the Stockholm Conference on Disarmament in Europe.

Afghans shell Pakistanis

ISLAMABAD — Afghanistan shelled the Pakistani village of Teri Mangal, killing two people, raising the reported death toll in a week of border incidents to 51, according to Afghan sources.

Teri Mangal is reportedly a haven for Afghan rebels who are battling the Marxist government and the Soviet troops supporting it.

Pakistan insists that there are no rebel groups in the area. Pakistan has sheltered an estimated 3 million Afghan refugees since war broke out in Afghanistan five years ago and the Soviet Union sent more than 100,000 troops to support the Afghan government.

Pilot averts jetliner crash

NORFOLK — The pilot of a twin-engine U.S. Air jetliner with 51 people aboard guided his craft to a safe landing after shutting down one engine when a warning light came on, officials said.

Flight 192, en route from Pittsburgh to Norfolk, was 10 minutes from Norfolk International Airport on Tuesday when instruments indicated the engine was overheating, said David Shipley, a U.S. Air spokesman in Washington.

Tower chief Billy Commander and airport Operations Manager Wayne Shank said there were no injuries and no damage to the plane.

Quake shakes Idaho

CHALLIS — An earthquake strong enough to wake sleeping residents struck central and southwestern Idaho today, but there were no reports of damage or injuries.

The quake struck at about 3:52 a.m., and registered 5.2 on the Richter scale of ground motion.

He said the quake was centered about 15 miles east of Challis and about 130 miles northeast of Boise.

Officers shot in chase

CAMBRIDGE — A man who wanted his gun back killed one Ohio police officer and seriously wounded another, then kept up a running gun battle with lawmen during a 60-mile, high-speed chase until he was wounded and captured, authorities said.

The man who was facing a weapons charge walked into the Cambridge police station Tuesday night to get back a gun that police had confiscated, Wheeling, W. Va., Police Chief Ed Weith said.

Police chased the man for 60 miles east on Interstate 70, where officers said his car was brought to a halt in West Virginia when the gunman was wounded in the shoulder.

Keep sanctions to curb abuses

The Reagan administration is about to lift all economic sanctions against Poland, even though Warsaw's communist rulers have failed to fulfill the conditions the U.S. government originally laid down for restoring commercial relations between the two countries.

The sanctions, ordered nearly three years ago, were to remain in effect until Gen. Jaruzelski's regime ended martial law, freed all political prisoners, and resumed a dialogue with the Catholic Church and the trade union movement Solidarity. Since then, however, Warsaw has harassed the church, outlawed Solidarity, and replaced martial law with a series of restrictive laws curbing "anti-state" activities.

Why, then, is Washington so eager to forsake its economic leverage against the communist government? The answer is due in part to July's extravaganza wherein Warsaw announced a general amnesty for 652 political prisoners, including celebrated Polish dissident Jacek Kuron. This grand gesture was supposedly meant to mark the 40th anniversary of communist rule in Poland. But it was clearly intended to persuade President Reagan to remove the remaining sanctions.

Thus far, Washington has reinstated some Polish fishing rights agreed to reopen negotiations of that country's debt together with other Western nations, resumed scientific and cultural exchanges, and allowed the Polish state airline LOT to resume scheduled flights to the United States.

These measured responses have encouraged what little liberalization has occurred in Poland during these last few months. If President Reagan removes the major U.S. sanctions — the withholding of most-favored-nation trading status, the freeze on new U.S. credit, and Washington's opposition to Poland's re-entry into the International Monetary Fund — Jaruzelski will have no reason to loosen the government's grip on domestic dissent.

Once these sanctions are lifted, Washington will be powerless to mitigate Warsaw's ham-fisted policies.

Playing for time

WASHINGTON — Conflicting signals from Tehran practically dictate the right policy for the U.S. in the Iran-Iraq war. The name of the game is playing for time.

Resistance to Iran should be sustained — but only through an eyedropper, and in diminishing doses. The American tilt toward those tilting toward Iran now needs to be adjusted to make an opening for peace.

The distinctive feature of the war is that both parties pose grave threats to stability in the Middle East. President Saddam Hussein of Iraq heads a revolutionary regime dominated by the radical nationalists of the Ba'ath Party. He has staked claims to leadership in the Arab world and to domination over the Persian Gulf. He has backed terrorist subversion in such moderate countries as Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, Jordan and Egypt.

His quest for primacy led him, in September 1980, to start the war with Iran. In the fighting, he has used poison gas and tried to drag in other Arab states by attacks on shipping in the Persian Gulf. Thus the right outcome for the U.S. would be an Iraq which survives as a country but under the leadership of more moderate forces — perhaps the Iraqi military.

The regime of the Ayatollah Khomeini presents an even graver threat. It holds sway in a strategically placed country of 40 million people. It has achieved a revolution at the expense of those privileged under the shah. It thus distills an ideological force with appeal to the downtrodden throughout the Islamic world.

Until recently Iran's revolutionary fanaticism ideology was projected externally without internal check. Tehran forged ties with radical regimes in Libya and Syria. It supported subversive movements that threatened all the moderate Arab regimes. It backed terrorist actions against the U.S., notably in Lebanon; and against most other Western countries. Against Iraq, it waged a war of attrition, designed to bleed that nation of 14 million people to death.

As the cost of the war has mounted, however, signals from Tehran have become mixed. A first sign of division occurred last spring.

Half a million Iranians were poised on the Iraqi border in April. But the blow never fell. A widespread theory is that while the ayatollah and the more militant clerics favored attack, they were restrained by the professional military and a peace party among the more politic mullahs.

Two subsequent developments have provided occasion for similar marks of division. An Air France jet was hijacked and brought to Tehran with the apparent complicity of the government. The passengers were threatened with death unless France released Iranians held for terrorist activities. Paris refused. The hostages were released in Tehran, with vengeance wreaked only on the plane. The tone taken by different Iranian leaders toward France, while generally hostile, varied distinctly.

Playing for a break that will change the Iranian leadership in a favorable way is clearly the right strategy for this country. That entails a close look at the help being given Iraq by countries friendly to the U.S.

Saudi Arabia and other Arab oil states have furnished billions in financial aid. Military assistance has been forthcoming from Egypt and Jordan. France has supplied sophisticated weapons.

So far Washington has backed the supporters of Iraq.

But the policy of tilting toward the tilters to Iraq is now approaching its limits. Iraq is beginning to gain the upper hand and is carrying the war to Iranian territory. There is talk of "victory" in Baghdad. A rough balance has been struck.

The immediate need is to maintain the balance with no new gains to either side. In that way the war will continue to be separated from other struggles in the Middle East, and from the larger Big Two conflict. But as the balance holds, an opportunity presents itself. With the ayatollah's reign on the wane, the season is coming round for a new move toward peace — perhaps at the upcoming session at the United Nations General Assembly.

GOP pushes for women's support

WASHINGTON — The Republicans' initial apprehension over Geraldine Ferraro's candidacy has abated. Their preliminary polls have convinced them that there may actually have been a movement of a few women voters to Ronald Reagan since Ms. Ferraro's nomination as the Democrats' vice presidential candidate.

The confidential GOP polls indicate that women are judging the Democratic ticket on the issues, not on the sex of Walter Mondale's running mate. This has brought a collective sigh of relief inside the White House.

But the Reagan-Bush campaign team is far from complacent. The Republicans have laid plans to reassure women that their interests won't be ignored in a second Reagan administration. With an estimated 6 million to 8 million more women than men expected to vote in November, it's obvious that neither party can afford to ignore women's issues.

How do the Republicans intend to win the hearts and minds of America's women? My associate Vicki Warren has obtained internal policy papers that lay out the GOP campaign strategy.

To counteract Democratic charges that Reagan has dumped women and children first out of the government's social safety net, a four-page memo provides answers that administration officials should give to such criticism. Here are the highlights:

- To explain the statistics showing that a growing number of women and children are falling below the poverty line, the memo suggests that "these figures are part of a continuous trend that began in 1973, and in the case of the category of 'persons in families with female householder, no husband present,' part of a continuous trend that began in 1966."

- When it comes to a solution to this problem, the memo writers threw up their hands — and even used the same buzzword that Republicans jumped on Jimmy Carter for introducing into the American political lexicon. The increasing poverty rate among female-headed households, the memo states, "is a problem which has defied both economic progress and social spending and is reflective of cultural and social malaise that has, so far, been beyond the ability of our political system to reverse."

- The GOP memo points out that the number of women and children benefiting from food stamps, welfare and school lunch programs has continued to increase under the Reagan administration. This is also true of the Women, Infants and Children supplemental food program that provides milk for low-income pregnant women and small children. The memo understandably fails to mention that Congress had to force the administration to spend the money it appropriated for the program.

- Recipients of Medicare, Medicaid and education funds have increased under Reagan, and they are getting more money, the GOP memo points out. It goes on to say that "because of Reagan administration reforms, hundreds of thousands of people have been cut from many of these programs, but they were people who were not entitled to benefits or did not need them." These underserving recipients have been replaced by those who are truly needy, the memo explains.

- "Reductions in the rate of spending growth for these programs is largely reflective of better management and elimination of a great proportion of fraud and abuse, not of any lessening of numbers of people served or in benefits," the memo states.

The GOP strategists have recruited 100 Republican women to go forth and spread the message to women voters: Reagan is proud of his record on women's issues, and if he has failed to lift all women out of poverty, it's because the problem has been — and still is — beyond the ability of any president to solve.

LATIN DEBIT BOMB: Here are the latest proposals being kicked around in administration circles for defusing the ticking bomb of Latin America's $400 billion in debts to U.S. and other Western banks:

- Create yet another international financial institution to guarantee repayment of foreign loans. This would supposedly encourage bankers to lower their high-risk interest rates, make repayment easier and thus reduce the chances of cataclysmic defaults.

- Convert all of Latin America's debt into long-term bonds, to be sold at discount as investments.

- Force banks to acknowledge on their balance sheets exactly what their Latin loans are really worth — maybe only 60 or 70 cents on the dollar. Though the banks' net worth would take a beating, the stockholders would at least know the true situation, and in the long run the bank would be less vulnerable to wild rumors of imminent collapse.

CLUMSY KLAN FORGERY: Somewhere in Siberia, a Soviet forger is on his way to the salt mines. He's the klutz who designed the letterhead for the spurious Ku Klux Klan letters sent to athletes of Third World countries in hopes of scaring them away from the Los Angeles Olympics.

When Attorney General William French Smith publicly exposed the letters as Soviet forgeries, he didn't give details. But intelligence sources say the clues were pretty obvious. One was the stationery letterhead, which had the words "Ku Klux Klan" under a Klan logo.

This was a fundamental error. Klan organizations have such formal titles as "Invisible Knights of the Ku Klux Klan," and use them to distinguish themselves from rival Klan groups.

Time has come to cut son loose

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Our son (now in his early 20s) has been in constant trouble with the law for several years. We have always intervened and paid for the best legal help we could get, but he shows no willingness to change. Do you think he will ever come to his senses and quit living this way? — Mrs. D.S.F.

DEAR MRS. D.S.F.: It is unlikely he will change as long as he does not have to pay the consequences of his actions. In his mind, there is no reason to change because he knows you will always come to his rescue.

From what you say, therefore, the time may well have come to tell your son that he will no longer have your assistance if he gets in trouble, and he must now face alone the problems his actions may cause. It is never easy to know when to intervene and help a son or daughter who is in trouble, and when to let them pay the price. Many factors need to be weighed. However, when it is clear one approach is not helping, it is time to consider another.

Pray that God will give you wisdom, because how you handle this situation may well determine whether or not your son really faces his need to change.

It was painful for the father of the Prodigal Son to let him leave home; he knew the son would only find hardship and misery in his rebellion (See Luke 15:11-32). But he knew the son would never learn his lesson any other way — and eventually the son repented and returned home. One reason he returned was because he knew his father loved him — just as you need to assure your son of your love.

But beyond that, your son needs to find the forgiveness and purpose in life which Christ alone can give. Commit your own lives to Christ, and then pray that your son will turn to Christ as well. This is the change he really needs, and it will make all the difference in his life and his future.

Billy Graham's religious column is distributed by Tribune Media Services.

Today

By The Associated Press
Today is Wednesday, Aug. 22, the 235th day of 1984. There are 131 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:
On Aug. 22, 1851, the schooner America outraced the Aurora off the English Coast to win a silver trophy that came to be known as the "America's Cup." The United States held onto the cup for 132 years until last year, when a team of Australians defeated the Americans.

On this date:
In 1485, England's King Richard III was killed in the Battle of Bosworth, ending the War of Roses.

In 1762, Ann Franklin became America's first woman newspaper editor for the Newport, R.I., Mercury.

In 1775, Britain's King George III proclaimed the American colonies to be in a state of open rebellion.

In 1846, the United States annexed New Mexico.

In 1911, it was announced in Paris that Leonardo da Vinci's masterpiece, the Mona Lisa, had been stolen from the Louvre Museum. (The painting would turn up two years later in Italy.)

In 1922, Irish revolutionary leader Michael Collins was assassinated by members of the Irish Republican Army who were opposed to the Anglo-Irish Treaty that Collins had signed the year before.

In 1968, Pope Paul VI arrived in Bogota, Colombia, for the start of the first papal visit to Latin America.

Five years ago: President Jimmy Carter told a town meeting in Iowa that his administration was proceeding "very cautiously" on the question of whether to grant federal loan guarantees to the troubled Chrysler Corp.

Thought for today: "Enough is enough, and too much spoils." — Italian proverb.

Retirement reception to honor Reva Adams

Reva Adams, who announced her retirement from Howard College in May, will be honored at a reception in the First Baptist Church Parlor from 3:30 to 5 p.m. Sunday.

Hostesses for the reception will be Mary Deats, Martha Lammers and Doris Huibregtse, members of the Business Division.

Mrs. Adams was chairman of the Business Division and instructor of accounting at Howard College. Her tenure at the college began in the fall of 1956.

She holds a bachelor of business administration degree from West Texas State University at Canyon and an masters of business education from North Texas State University in Denton. She also taught at Odell and North Side high schools in Wilbarger County and at Midland High School.

Mrs. Adams is a member of the Texas Junior College Teachers Association, Texas Business Education Association, the American Association of Accounttants, the Delta Kappa Gamma Society International and a charter member of the North Texas chapter of Delta Pi Epsilon.

Mrs. Adams is married to B. M. Adams. They will continue to reside in Big Spring.

Dear Abby Children need jukebox

DEAR ABBY: We have three adult crippled children (our own) all in wheelchairs due to a rare genetic form of cerebral palsy. However, that is not the problem; I'm coming to that.

Our children love music, so we bought them a used jukebox and stocked it with their favorite records — mostly polkas, Irish ballads, golden oldies, etc. Last December the jukebox broke down. The dealer who sold it to us tried to locate the transfer switch that was needed to repair it, but he told us that since it was a 20-year-old Wurlitzer, he doesn't expect to find one because the parts are not being made anymore.

Abby, the model is 2801 and it plays only 45s. It has a beautiful tone before the switch broke.

Can you help me, or is this a hopeless case?

GERTRUDE B. IN WILKES-BARRE, PA.

DEAR GERTRUDE: There must be someone out there who has an old Wurlitzer transfer switch. Readers? Write to Abby, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

addressed envelope. The organization's services are free.

It registers the adopted person, and if one of that person's birth parents also registers, a match is made with the assurance that the "match" is agreeable with all parties. Some aren't (also some adoptees) prefer not to be found, which I believe is their right and should be respected.

DEAR ABBY: I'm 16, unmarried and recently had a beautiful baby boy, which I decided to place for adoption. It was a very painful experience. I never want to go through anything like that again so I considered going on the pill. If I do, I might figure that as long as I'm on the pill I'm well protected, so I can sleep with just anybody, and I don't want to be that kind of girl. On the other hand, if I don't go on the pill, I may say, "Well, just this once won't hurt," and I'll end up where I was a year ago.

I want the next time I have sex to be special, but I have a hard time saying no.

I think the other kinds of birth control are gross. What do you think?

CONFUSED IN CONNECTICUT

DEAR CONFUSED: I think it's better to be protected and not need it, than not to be protected and regret it. And since you admittedly have a hard time saying no, avoid situations that put you to the test.

(Is your social life in a slump? Lonely? Get Abby's updated, revised and expanded booklet, "How to Be Popular" — for people of all ages. Send your name and address clearly printed with a check or money order for $2.50 (this includes postage) to: Abby, Popularity, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)

DEAR ABBY: How old do you have to be to find your real parents? I am adopted and do not get along with my mother. I would like to open the files and find my real parents, but I don't know how to go about it. Please help me. I am 14 years old.

A KID IN KANSAS

DEAR KID: There are many search organizations that will be happy to look for your birth parents — some charge a fee, others do not. The law states that a search cannot be started until the adoptee is 18, but he/she may register now.

My recommendation is: International Soundex Reunion Registry, P.O. Box 2312, Carson City, Nev. 89702. Write for Soundex forms, and enclose a long, stamped, self-

Barbecue cook-off slated

The Howard County Fair Association will sponsor a barbecue cook-off Sept. 21 and 22.

The activities will begin at 9 p.m. Friday with meat inspection. Judging will be at 3 p.m. Saturday.

Trophies will be awarded to the first, second and third place winners in showmanship (props, skits, costumes), contestants who came the farthest and most elaborate rig (cooking equipment).

Entry fees are $25 for briskets and $5 for beans. Entry forms are available at Baskin Robbins. Passes will be given to the contestants upon arrival.

Applications and fees must be in by Sept. 17. There is a limit of five persons per team.

A minimum of 10 pounds of brisket must be cooked and all meat must be inspected before cooking. Contestants must supply all needed equipment and supplies.

Ira homecoming activities planned for Sept. 28-29

Activities for the 10th Homecoming in Ira will kick-off Sept. 28, when the varsity football team takes on Paint Creek at 7:30 p.m.

Saturday's activities begin with registration from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the gym. The homecoming king and queen will be crowned during a business meeting from 2 to 2:30 p.m. The women and men's exes basketball games will be from 2:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. From 4:30 to 5:30 p.m. a classroom open house will be conducted.

The Ira Booster Club will serve a hamburger supper from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. Plates will be $3.50 each, for one hamburger and $5 each for two hamburgers. Anyone who plans to attend the homecoming needs to send their money for the number of plates needed as soon as possible to Ira Homecoming, Box 121, Ira, Texas, 79527.

The junior varsity team will take on Trinity Bible Institute beginning at 8 p.m.

There will be a registration fee of $1.50 per family. For more information, contact Ronda Calley at 573-7301 or Susie White at 573-3895.

Mrs. Stanley honored at baby shower

Vicky Stanley was honored at a baby shower July 21, in the home of Teri McIntosh.

Hostesses were Mrs. McIntosh, Gwen Nichols, Cindy Stanley and Roxann Rich. The hostesses presented the honoree with a diaper bag, teddy bear, swan, pillow, clothes, silver spoon, diapers, corsage with socks, rattle, carnations, diaper cake and a piggy bank.

Elizabeth Froman, mother of the honoree, and Patsy Stanley, mother-in-law of the honoree, were special guests.

A diaper ice cream cake, finger sandwiches and cookies shaped like hands and feet were served from a table covered by a white lace cloth and fresh flowers.

Baby Stanley is expected Sept. 28.

Dr. Donohue

Cholesterol deposits

Dear Dr. Donohue: My doctor told me if I watch my diet and take cholestyramine on a daily basis that this would clean all the cholesterol deposits from the walls of my blood vessels within a year. Is this possible?—Mrs. M.O.

I suspect that your doctor was overstating the case for cholesterol reduction to impress you of its importance. Anything is possible, but that prediction is a bit too sanguine for me. I don't think he meant that you would have the arteries of a newborn babe in one year.

The need for keeping cholesterol in check cannot be overstated, however. It's no guarantee that you won't have a heart attack, but the chances of that happening will be definitely less. With less artery sludge there is less blood blockage.

Diet and medicine, like your cholestyramine, both play their roles. Your doctor has decided that you need both approaches. Not everyone will need such a double-pronged attack. For most, a prudent watch of the diet will be sufficient. And in fact it is true that with dietary control, the deposit process will not merely be stopped, but the deposits themselves may even shrink. Some studies show that.

No one can give you a projection of how long it will take for improvement to be demonstrated. And it is difficult to measure such things. You'd have to take "before and after" x-ray pictures of heart arteries to prove results beyond a shadow of a doubt. But you have the fact there are less heart attacks in people who do lower their cholesterol. That's enough for me.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Can you decipher all this for me? My doctor says my heart skips every third beat. I guess I was on the third beat at the time, because I missed the explanation. I was given no restrictions. I am a bowler. Is there not hope of this being corrected? Any information you can give me will be greatly appreciated.—Mrs. R.H.

The diagnosis on the slip that accompanied your letter was "cardiac arrhythmia," and that is too vast a generalization to say much about. It sounds like you are having premature beats, like a metronome on 4/4 time slipping in an extra swing, throwing in an occasional fifth beat. Since you were given no restrictions by your doctor I suspect premature beat even more, because they are generally harmless.

Although cholesterol has been implicated in heart attacks and other circulatory troubles, it is at the same time vital to human life. For a copy of his booklet, "Control Your Cholesterol Sensibly," write to Dr. Donohue in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611, enclosing a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Mattox sues finance firm

AUSTIN (AP) — Attorney General Jim Mattox filed suit Tuesday against Beneficial Finance Co. of Texas, claiming the San Antonio branch had engaged in harassment and abuse in its debt collection practices.

The suit, filed in a Bexar County district court, claimed that Don Palmer, a collection agent for Beneficial, made repeated and continuous telephone calls on July 26 to the residence of an San Antonio man between 8:30 and 10:30 p.m.

"These calls continued even after Don Palmer was told by the man's 14-year-old son to cease making the calls because his parents were not home," the petition said. "In the course of the conversation, Don Palmer referred to the 14-year-old child as a 'dumb Mexican' and a 'punk,'" the suit said.

The suit also alleges Palmer harassed another San Antonio family throughout March and April, made rude and discourteous remarks to co-workers of the family and harassed their 12-year-old daughter over the telephone.

JIM MATTOX

Group wants jail quota

AUSTIN (AP) — The executive director of a prisoner lobbying group said today the state prison system should reinstate the quota system, by counties, to reduce overcrowding that he says leads to violence.

"I believe the quota system should be used now as a response to the security problems," Charles Sullivan said. "Overcrowding is a major factor in the violence that is going on in the Texas Department of Corrections." He made public at a news conference a letter he had written to TDC chairman Robert Gunn of Wichita Falls, in which Sullivan asked for the reinstatement of the quota system. Such a system was used in 1982 to hold down the prison population, which went as high as 38,000.

Some counties, he said, "are getting a free ride."

Amarillo judge gets probation in fund probe

AMARILLO (AP) — Potter County Judge Ben Bynum, convicted of misapplication of funds, was sentenced today to 10 years probation and fined $5,000.

Bynum was convicted Monday on a five-count indictment alleging misapplication of fiduciary funds. The convictions also mean automatic removal from office.

Bynum, 47, was grim and silent as the guilty verdict was read in the court of State District Judge Miron Love.

He faced up to 10 years in prison on each count.

Bynum was charged with misapplying contribution checks entrusted to him by the Citizens for Progress Committee, which was formed to promote passage of an $8.9 million bond issue for construction of a courts building and county parking.

He was accused of cashing checks amounting to $1,900, failing to keep a proper accounting of the money and failing to deposit proceeds from the checks in the bank.

Members of Bynum's family sat stunned on front-row seats in the courtroom after the verdict.

Bynum, who also faces an aggravated perjury indictment, had voluntarily stepped down as county judge until after the trial, continuing to draw his full salary.

The conviction of Bynum came after closing arguments by Randy Sherrod in which he reminded the jury that, "No one knows how many checks he cashed, except for the list that Pat Cunningham (Potter County Commissioner) furnished. Thanks to Pat Cunningham, the loss to the campaign was very minimal."

San Antonio firm to bid on San Diego railway

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A bid by a Texas company to take over operation of the San Diego & Arizona Eastern Railway has been accepted by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

In its ruling, the ICC also relieved San Antonio-based Rail Tex Inc. of any obligation to honor labor contracts negotiated by the current operator, Kyle Railways Inc.

Kyle Railways, based in San Diego, operated the line under a contract with the Metropolitan Transit Development Board, which owned the tracks. Kyle had petitioned the ICC for permission to abandon the railway, claiming it was unprofitable.

The line through the Imperial Valley has not operated since two bridges were damaged by fire in June 1983.

Resumption of service could begin within 60 days on parts of the line in the San Diego area, but no decision has been reached regarding desert operations, said Jack Limber, general counsel for the Metropolitan Transit Development Board.

Rail Tex has decided to rename the SD&AE the San Diego and Imperial Valley Railroad, Limber said.

"Rail Tex wanted to create a new image and a positive image," he said.

USSR reports Mrs. Khrushchev's death

Big Spring (Texas) Herald, Wed., August 22, 1984

7-A

NINA KHRUSHCHEV

MOSCOW (AP) — Nina Petrovna Khrushchev, widow of ousted Soviet leader Nikita Khrushchev, died earlier this month and was buried next to her husband, a Communist Party official said today.

An official at the Leninsky region branch of Moscow's Communist Party told The Associated Press that Mrs. Khrushchev, about 84, died the night of Aug. 8-9. She did not give the cause of death, but said Mrs. Khrushchev was buried three or four days later next to her husband in Moscow's Novodevichy Cemetery.

The cemetery is the most prestigious burial place in the capital after the Kremlin wall, where all former rulers of the Soviet Union except Khrushchev are buried.

A death notice in the August 11 edition of Vechnaya Moskva (Eternal Moscow) announced the death of Nina Petrovna Khrushchev, as Mrs. Khrushchev was known before she married the country's future ruler in 1924.

The death notice drew no attention until rumors spread around Moscow that Mrs. Khrushchev had died.

It said the party office of the Leninsky region in central Moscow "reports with deep grief the death of a member of the Communist Party from 1920, pensioner Nina Petrovna Khrushchev, and expresses profound condolences to friends and relatives of the deceased."

Her husband's death of a heart attack in September 1971 at age 77 was officially announced in similarly low key fashion, with a very brief obituary without headline or portrait in Pravda, the Communist Party daily newspaper.

Khrushchev, who became Communist Party secretary in 1953, was removed from power in 1964 and lived in obscurity until his death.

Little is known about Mrs. Khrushchev's early life. Born in 1900, she met her husband when he worked in the Donbas coal region in the Ukraine in the early 1920s. She became his second wife in 1924 and bore him three children, daughters Rada and Yelena, and a son, Sergei.

Like most wives of senior Soviet officials, Mrs. Khrushchev lived outside the glare of publicity. But the spotlight turned on her when she accompanied her husband to the United States in 1959.

Mrs. Khrushchev garnered almost as much news coverage as her husband, winning reporters over with smiles and evident devotion to her husband.

She repaid the friendliness shown her with words of praise for America.

Soviet press denounces GOP convention

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet newspapers today accused President Reagan and the Republican Party of turning their national convention into a forum for advancing U.S. aggression worldwide.

Sakharov relative asks U.N. inquiry

GENEVA (AP) — The son-in-law of Soviet dissident Andrei Sakharov asked a U.N. human rights panel Tuesday for a special inquiry into the case of the Nobel Peace Prize winning physicist.

Speaking for the New York-based International League for Human Rights, Efrem Yankelevich also said the panel should request permission to visit Sakharov's wife, Yelena Bonner, who reportedly has been charged with anti-Soviet slander.

The government newspaper Izvestia said the Republican platform "epitomizes the truly global appetites of American imperialism."

The Communist Party daily Pravda accused Reagan and his fellow Republicans of adopting "a platform of aggression and war" to gain re-election.

Izvestia said the Republicans have declared all of Latin America to be "Washington's private ranch."

Deregulation derails small Roscoe freight train firm

By the Associated Press

It's the end of the line for the Roscoe, Snyder & Pacific. Deregulation that derailed the shortline railroad, which for more than three-quarters of a century carried freight along its 31 miles of track between Roscoe and Snyder.

The RS&P never reached the Pacific, missing the west coast by 1,700 miles, despite the ambitious plans of the founders. Nevertheless, the railroad was known on both coasts and reserved itself a spot in West Texas history.

"God, I hate to close her down," said Roger Mize, chairman of the board of the railroad. "But you can't argue with economics — you can't sit there and lose $100,000 a month."

The RS&P made its last run in June. For all practical purposes, the railway is closed, Mize said, though there still are loose ends to tie up.

The coming of deregulation of the railroad industry signaled the downfall of the RS&P, Mize said. With deregulation came discounts offered by the major railroads and the RS&P could not compete.

Mize said the railway lost $850,000 in its last eight months of full operations. It cost the company $104 to deliver $100 worth of freight, he said.

"There comes a time when you've got to make a decision you don't want to make," he said.

That time came for the RS&P back in the spring of 1983. For years prior to that time, however, the RS&P earned its keep by hauling freight from the Texas & Pacific tracks in Roscoe to the Santa Fe tracks in Snyder and vice versa. A string of sales representatives across the nation drummed up business for the shortline railroad.

Agents would arrange to transport goods on either the Santa Fe or Missouri Pacific (MoPac) tracks and then transfer the goods to the other railroad via the RS&P. Agents were stationed in Atlanta, Birmingham, Ala., Chicago, Dallas, Houston, Los Angeles, Memphis, Tenn., Oakland, Pittsburgh, Washington, D.C., and other cities. Their efforts to attract business for the RS&P also benefited Santa Fe and MoPac since cars had to be routed on their tracks to get to Roscoe and Snyder.

"They were willing to give us freight because they were making money off of us," he said. Also, the RS&P's percentage of the revenues was "just peanuts" to Santa Fe and MoPac. The revenues, however, were good enough for Mize and the Murchisons of Dallas, who purchased the railway in 1967 from the Wooten family of Abilene.

Mize said the railway pulled in $1 million to $1.6 million a year before taxes in the years before deregulation.

The Roscoe, Snyder & Pacific died without ceremony. The last freight run was on June 13, said Jack Collins, company vice president. That last trip came exactly 76 years and one day after train service between Roscoe and Snyder began.

An orange-striped black engine occasionally will ramble on the tracks alongside U.S. Highway 84, but its only chore will be to pick up railroad cars to be returned to their owners, Collins said.

The yellow boxcars with the red RS&P logo will continue to sit idly on the tracks until the pre-paid leases run out and they are returned to their owners. Eventually the engines and finally the tracks will be sold. The railroad's right-of-way will be sold either to the highway department or adjacent landowners, Mize said.

Even though the RS&P is no longer operating, it and its effect on West Texas will be remembered. Amid rumors of expansion by Santa Fe, plans were laid for the RS&P, connecting the east-west Texas & Pacific with Snyder, and then proceeding westward. When Santa Fe delayed building its line from Lubbock to Coleman, the RS&P became a reality.

Still, as long as there is a Roscoe and a Snyder, there will be memories of the Roscoe, Snyder & Pacific.

Businesses

to participate in conference

Johnny Rutherford told members of the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce Tuesday that several businesses will participate in a national video conference Sept. 18.

The conference, called "The Back to Main Street Project," will offer tips on city revitalization. Rutherford said 100 communities throughout the U.S. will participate. A satellite hookup will be set up and more details will be announced as they are finalized.

Chamber officials voted to give the $200 needed to participate. The program will include lectures and question and answer periods through telephone breaks during the day.

Pat Hardy, the city's administrative assistant and one of the organizers of the "Heart of the City Project," told Chamber members that Big Spring has been chosen as a non-designated city for the Texas Main Street Project.

As a non-designated city, Big Spring will be allowed to consult with Main Street Project advisors, attorneys and architects free of charge for tips on downtown renovation.

Hardy said the "Heart of the City Project" is "in a lull stage right now" following the downtown festival in July. He said the project had received much cooperation and "we learned a lot."

Throughout August and September, downtown merchants will sponsor "Lunch on the Square" from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Hardy said a farmer's market is planned each Saturday through September.

Tom Watson of the Chemical People project told board members that the Parent's Support Group will meet next Tuesday for a program on new school regulations. Lynn Hise, Big Spring Independent School District superintendent, will outline education reforms.

One division of Chemical People is planning to print up 10,000 cards featuring members of the Big Spring Steers discussing their disdain for drug abuse. Watson said the cards will be distributed in the elementary and junior highs.

Watson said Linda Arsiaga had done "a good job" with teen dances each Wednesday this summer at Amigos Club. The program, which allowed teens only on Wednesdays and no alcohol, "filled a void" in the city, Watson said.

Rutherford gave a report on the C.L.E.A.N. project, which had a budget of $14,660 for the summer and had spent $14,655.

"I'd like to keep the thing afloat," Rutherford said. He said he hopes to work with the city to continue the city cleanup.

Chamber president Paul Shaffer thanked Rutherford for his leadership in the C.L.E.A.N. program.

Shaffer said, "This town is a whole lot cleaner. Kids were put to work. This group had the gumption to do something about (city litter)."

Clyde McMahon Sr. nominated J.D. Nelson, Joe Pickle, John Beddow, Johnny Rutherford and Myra Robinson to the Chamber board. Directors approved the nominations for the coming year.

Applications for the "Leadership Big Spring" program are being accepted through Sept. 6. Registration fee is $250, and between 18 and 20 applicants will be accepted. Johnny Rutherford was voted in as the new chairman of the program.

Fired up Lady Steers rip Loboette spikers in two

By STEVE BELVIN
Staff Writer

Tuesday was not a good day for the Levelland Loboettes volleyball squad.

First, the team got a late start and reached Big Spring an hour late. Then the squad faced a Lady Steers team fired up from a talk given by Rose Magers, Big Spring's contribution to the U.S. women's Olympic silver medal volleyball team. The result — the Lady Steers in a cakewalk, 15-1, 15-4.

"When we heard that Rose Magers was in town, we knew we would be in for a tough time because Big Spring would be fired up," said Levelland coach Karen Wilks.

Whatever Miss Magers told the Lady Steers must have stuck deep in their hearts because they came out and completely dominated Levelland, a team that lost just one player from the squad that defeated powerful Monahans and advanced to the 4A regional playoffs last season.

The contest was all Big Spring from the start however as the Steers front line led by Tanya Ferguson, Monique Jones and Trell Clemmons simply dominated the class 4A school.

The first game was close just once when the score was tied 3-3. Ferguson added two points and Clemmons one while Misty Williams scored the final point of the game for the Loboettes, making the score 7-4 at the time. That's when Ferguson went on a rampage as she contributed four kills and two blocks as Big Spring cruised to the win.

The second game was even more short and sweet as setter Debbie Holguin served the Lady Steers to a 4-0 lead and was followed by three points by Ferguson. Levelland scored its lone point of the game when Sandy Lewis nailed a spike with Missy Morris serving. That cut the lead to 7-1.

Jones put the game on ice with seven service points, thanks to mis-hits by the opponents and two kills by Clemmons. Tab Green ended the game with the final point after Clemmons nailed a spike by the Levelland front line.

A happy Lady Steers coach Susan Sharp was all smiles after the win. "We finally played like we are capable of playing. We played together. Once we got ahead we didn't let up. It was our best performance so far this year, it was a tremendous influence having Rose talk to the team. They really came out fired up. Now that we see we can beat people like this, I expect more."

Holguin led the Lady Steers, now 2-2 for the season, in sets with 13 sets. Ferguson and Clemmons contributed six and five kills respectively.

The Lady Steers next contest will be Thursday at 7:30 p.m. versus Snyder in Snyder. FRESHMEN, JUNIOR VARSITY WIN

PRE-GAME HUG — Rose Magers gives Lady Steer spiker Tammi Green (2) a hug during introduction ceremonies before the start of the Big Spring-Levelland volleyball match Thursday as senior setter Tanya Stevenson looks on. Magers' pre-game talk helped inspire the Lady Steers to a convincing win over Levelland.

The Freshmen Lady Steers pushed their record to 2-0 with convincing 15-4, 15-8 victories over Levelland. The junior varsity upped its record to 2-2 with 15-2, 15-3 wins over the Loboettes. Sonya Evans led the win with 14 service points while Taylissa Cork added five points. JV coach Elaine Stone praised the play of Terri Croyle and Pricilla Banks in the win.

The JV goes against Snyder Thursday in Snyder at 6:30 p.m.

Cougars, 'Dogs set for scrimmage tilts

By STEVE BELVIN
Staff Writer

Howard County Area football coaches will get an opportunity to see how their charges perform under game-type conditions when scrimmage action commences Thursday night with a pair of simulated clashes.

KLONDIKE is at SMYER where the Cougars will be in action for the first time under new coach Jimmy Thomas versus the Bobcats from Smyer.

The Cougars only have 18 players so Thomas is trying to keep his troops healthy. "The kids are staying pretty healthy," stated Thomas. "There haven't really been any serious injuries, just some slight muscle pulls since the kids are just getting their legs back into shape."

Scrimmage time for the contest is 6:30 p.m.

McAMEY is at COAHOMA as the Bulldogs show their stuff for first year Coahoma head coach Bruce Mitchell. Mitchell takes over the 'Dogs program this year after serving last season as an assistant. In the Badgers, Coahoma is going against a team that advanced to area 2A play last season.

The Bulldogs have one week of two-a-day workouts under their belts and Mitchell says his squad has escaped any serious injuries and has had a good work attitude.

Action gets underway at 6:30 p.m. with the junior varsities starting off the action.

ON STRIKE — Boston Red Sox rookie pitcher Roger Clemens pitches on his way to a 15 strike out 11-1 win over Kansas City at Fenway Park, in Boston, Tuesday night. Clemens' 15 strikeouts was the most since Bill Monbouquette's 17 in 1961 and the second highest in Sox history.

Red Sox rookie ace throws Royal strike

By The Associated Press

Every so often, a major-league pitcher who has just struck out a bunch of batters is asked whether he was trying to strike out people.

And most of the time, the pitcher says he wasn't worried about strikeouts and wasn't thinking about them.

Introducing Roger Clemens, formerly of the University of Texas and now a hard-throwing rookie for the Boston Red Sox.

"I like to strike people out. I like to do that. It's not going to happen all the time, but if I'm going good and there are real free swingers, I'll go after them," Clemens said after striking out 15 as Boston routed the Kansas City Royals 11-1 Tuesday night.

Clemens' strikeout total was the most for a Red Sox pitcher since Bill Monbouquette fanned a team-record 17 Washington batters in 1961.

"I probably had my best fastball since I've been here," said Clemens, 24 since being recalled from Class AAA Pawtucket on May 11. "I threw 85 percent fastballs. They hit a couple of curves that I hung in the first inning. But when I got behind on the count, I came with the fastball."

The 22-year-old right-hander allowed seven hits and did not walk a batter. And Kansas City Manager Dick Howser wasn't too thrilled with what the Royals hit.

"It was too quick," Howser said.

"Usually when a guy starts out tough, you really don't worry about it because you feel he's going to lose something. But he seemed to get stronger," said Kansas City's Darryl Motley after striking out three times and grounding into a double play.

Lewis considering other track events

ZURICH, Switzerland (AP) — Carl Lewis is putting his plans for branching out into new events on hold for the time being.

Lewis, who won Olympic gold medals at 100 and 200 meters, the sprint relay and the long jump earlier this month, planned to run only the 100 meters tonight in an international track and field meet at Zurich's Letzigrund Stadium. But Lewis said Tuesday after arriving from a meet in Budapest that the 110-meter hurdles and the 400 meters could be in his future.

"I ran over hurdles in college and my coach says I can easily find the pace for this race again," Lewis said. "I also plan to test the 400 meters to see if I can do this distance as well."

Lewis, who finished fourth in a rarely contested 300-meter race in London last Saturday, is the top attraction of the Zurich meet, which also included nine Los Angeles gold medal winners and 21 other athletes who captured Olympic silver or bronze.

Lewis, who won a 100-meter race in Budapest Monday in a time of 10.05 seconds, was slated to face teammates Calvin Smith, Mel Lat-tany and Sam Graddy, Canada's Ben Johnson, Cubans Osvaldo Lara and Leonardo Penalver and Poland's Marian Woronin.

"I know it is a fast track, but I am not thinking of a world record," Lewis said.

Smith, who missed the 100-meter Olympic race, won a gold in the 400-meter relay along with Lewis in Los Angeles. He is the world-record holder in 9.93 seconds.

Graddy and Johnson won silver and bronze, respectively, in the Olympic final.

Woronin is one of the entries here whose hopes for an Olympic medal were foiled by the Soviet-led boycott.

Other athletes from boycotting nations include East German sprinters Marlies Goehr and Marita Koch, shot put world-record holder Udo Beyer of East Germany, Czechoslovak 400-meter runners Jarmila Kratochvilova, Zuzana Moravickova and Tatiana Kocembova, East Germany's Sabine Paetz in the 100-meter hurdles and Cuban high jumper Silvia Costa.

Koch was expected to challenge Valerie Brisco-Hooks and Florence Griffith, the Americans who won gold and silver in the 200-meter race at Los Angeles, respectively.

Goehr faces Olympic champion Evelyn Ashford in the 100-meter dash, also entered by silver medalist Alice Brown.

In the men's 200 meters, silver medalist Kirk Baptiste, who defeated Lewis in the 300 meters at Crystal Palace last Saturday, faces Smith and veteran Jamaican Don Quarrie.

Olympic champion Sebastian Coe of Britain, who is considering the possibility of entering the U.S. Indoor circuit, is after the 1,500-meter record.

Other Olympic gold medalists included 400-meter champion Alonzo Babers, hurdlers Roger Kingdom and Benita Fitzgerald-Brown, high jumper Ulrike Meyfarth of West Germany and Joaquim Cruz of Brazil (800 meters)

Auburn braced for Miami Hurricanes

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Auburn University, smarting over last season's national championship snub, has been cast as the team with something to prove in Monday night's second annual Kickoff Classic. But Miami's Kevin Fagan actually thinks his team may have a little edge.

"It's a real advantage playing Auburn in the first game because Wishbone teams are known to get better as the year goes along," Fagan said by telephone Tuesday during a Kickoff Classic news conference. "If we can take advantage of that and make the quarterback pitch the ball early before they string it out..."

Fagan, a 260-pound tackle, will be one of the key people on Miami's defense as the Hurricanes try to stop a rushing attack led by Bo Jackson which averaged 293.7 yards a game in 1983. Jimmy Johnson, Miami's new head coach, called Fagan "as good a defensive tackle as I've ever been around, as relentless a player as I've ever been around and he runs as well as any tackle I've ever been around."

Auburn committed just 16 turnovers in 11 regular-season games last year — 12 fumbles, four interceptions — but quarterback Randy Campbell, who rarely made a mistake, is gone and Pat Washington, the heir-apparent, suffered an injury in practice that has doctors puzzled although he returned to practice Monday.

"It's a bruised back or shoulder or whatever," Coach Pat Dye said. "His status depends on how he feels the rest of the week. We can't exactly figure out what's wrong. Whatever it is, it hurts his breathing a little bit."

Washington, a junior, played sparingly in nine games the last two years. His challengers are senior Mike Mann, who has even less varsity experience, and redshirt freshman Jeff Burger, who doesn't have any.

"They've all looked good," Dye said. "In three full-scale game scrimmages they haven't turned the ball over but three times and they've thrown the ball quite well. I'm not sure who will start right now, but I'm excited regardless of who gets on the field."

"This fall, we've finally become a true Wishbone team. We haven't been since I've been at Auburn because I didn't think we had a dominant running game the way we should have even though Bo has done some great things. Randy wasn't a true Wishbone quarterback. These three can run much better."

Miami doesn't have problems at all under center. Sophomore ernie Kosar merely led the Hurricanes to the national championship as a redshirt freshman, setting school records for completions (201) and touchdown passes (15). Vinny Testaverde saw some action in 1982 — he redshirted last year — while Kyle Vanderwende started three games that season and was Kosar's No. 1 backup a year ago.

"We have good depth and talented players," Johnson said. "That's a luxury very few people in the country have."

The contest has been billed as Kosar vs. Jackson — a pro-style passing attack against a ball-control ground game. But it also pits the team that won the 1983 national championship against a team which thought it should have. Both clubs were 11-1 a year ago, but Miami defeated No. 1-ranked Nebraska 31-30 in a dramatic Orange Bowl while Auburn shaded Michigan 9-7 in a lethargic Sugar Bowl.

"We felt cheated at times," Auburn cornerback David King said of the Tigers' No. 3 finish in the Associated Press poll.

of Wilks' dismay were spikes by Big Spring's Debbie Holguin (6) as teammate Monique Jones readies for action. The Lady Steers demolished Levelland 15-4, 15-1, pushing their record to 2-2.

Coahoma season tickets being sold

COAHOMA — Reserved season football tickets for Coahoma High School home football games went on sale Monday, Aug. 20 through Sept. 14.

Tickets may be purchased in the school tax office located in the administration building from 8 a.m. through 4 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Ticket prices for the games will be $12.50. Adult tickets purchased at game time will be $3. Student tickets will be sold at ticket price only for $2.

Last year's season ticket holders will have first priority for this year's tickets.

Girl makes LL history

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (AP) — Two top pitching performances and a historic at-bat by a girl highlighted the first day of play at the Little League World Series.

Victoria Roche, 12, on Tuesday became the first girl to participate in the tournament's 37-year history when she pinch hit in the fifth inning. Roche, a reserve outfielder for the team from Brussels, Belgium, got a noisy ovation from a Lamade Stadium crowd of 8,000 when she stepped into the batter's box.

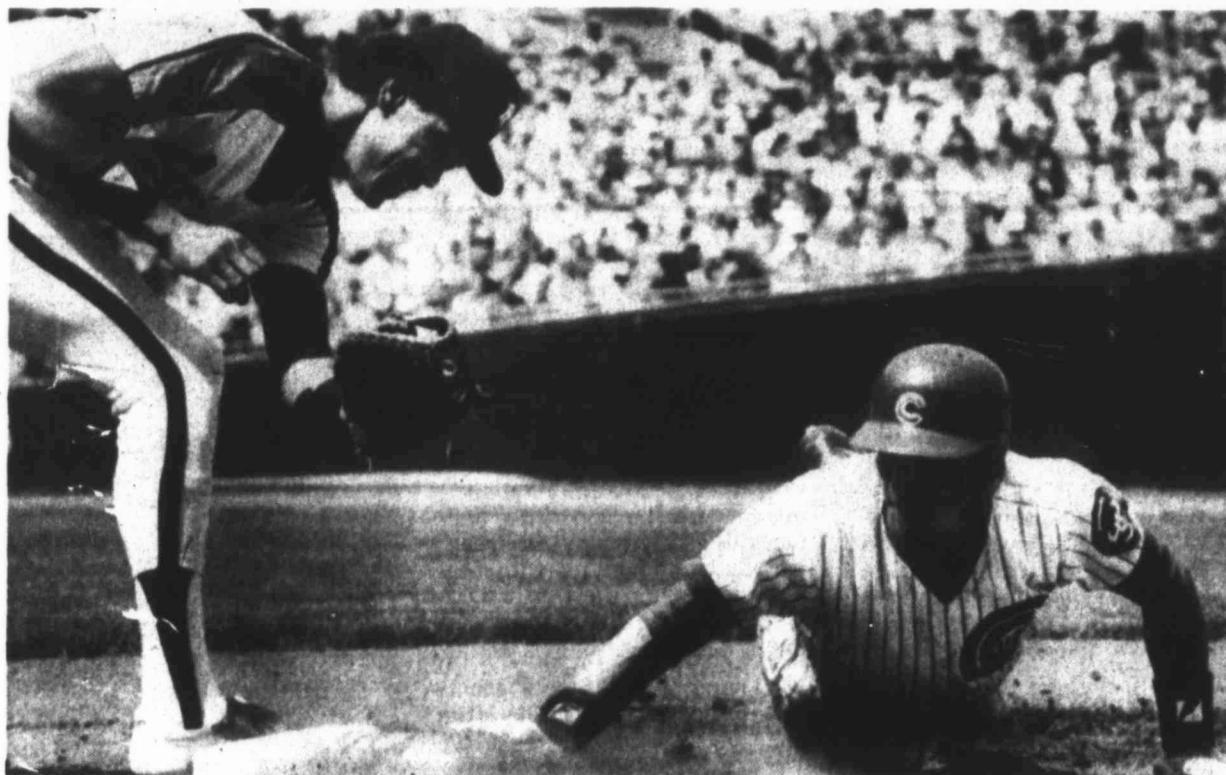

She walked on a 3-2 count, took third on a two-out double by Tsuneyasu Tamagawa, but was left stranded when Mike Appleton grounded out. After she batted, Roche, whose brother also is a reserve outfielder, stayed in the game to play center field but got no fielding chances.

Girls have played Little League baseball since 1974 but none had ever advanced into the single-elimination tournament, which features teams from around the world. The series began in 1947.

Belgium lost the game 3-0 to Coquitlam, British Columbia, which advances to meet the winner of today's game between Seoul, South Korea, and Panama City, Panama.

Also victorious on Tuesday was Altamonte Springs, Fla., which defeated Los Gatos, Calif., 2-1. Altamonte Springs will play the winner of today's other game between Southport, Ind., and Bristol, Conn.

The eight teams in the single-elimination tournament here represent Canada, Europe, the Far East, Latin America and four American regions — the South, West, East and Central. The championship game is Saturday.

DERNIER DOWN — Chicago Cubs Bob Dernier dives into first base in time to avoid Houston Astros Enos Cabell's tag on a first inning pickoff attempt Tuesday in Chicago. The NL East-leading Cubs won, 11-5.

Players not pleased with WSG

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Tom Watson says the World Series of Golf has grown too big.

"It's not as special as it used to be under the old four-man format. It was very special. I like it that way," this year's leading PGA Tour money-winner said Tuesday of the $700,000 NEC World Series which begins Thursday.

The Series began in 1962 with a four-man, 36-hole format matching the winners of the annual four majors. It was expanded in 1976.

This year's tournament had 43 invitees.

Watson takes exception to invitations going to 13 players who have won foreign tournaments in the last year.

"They should give exemptions to players over here," he said, "like the PGA and the Open does. All former champions should be in the field."

Meanwhile, newly anointed PGA champion Lee Trevino criticized the condition of Firestone after his pro-amateur prelude round.

"I've been coming here 17 years and it's worst I've seen these greens," Trevino said. "And the rough. The grass is big enough to stop a jet. They ought to put some of that grass on the greens."

Jim Cook, the tournament director, apologized for the condition of the greens, spotty and bumpy. Cook said layers of ice on the greens during the winter hurt their condition.

Despite hitting two shots into the lake in front of the 575-yard 16th hole, Watson still matched par of 70. "The greens aren't quite as fast as those in the PGA last week. There won't be as many putts made here," said the lone three-time winner on the 1984 tour.

Watson could all but wrap up the money-winning crown for the fifth time in eight years by collecting the first prize of $126,000 Sunday.

"The money title is important. It gives you the satisfaction of knowing you have won more than anyone else and that you've had a good year," he said. "I've had a streaky year, but better than last year."

McEnroe is upset in ATP tourney action

MASON, Ohio (AP) — Top-seeded John McEnroe, suffering only his second loss of the year, was upset and second-seeded Jimmy Connors won easily Tuesday in the first round of the $375,000 Association of Tennis Professionals Tournament.

McEnroe was upended 6-7, 6-2, 6-3 by veteran Vijay Amritraj while Connors breezed past Roscoe Tanner 6-1, 6-3, after waiting for over three hours for seventh-seeded Guillermo Vilas to down Tom Guzikson 7-6, 6-7, 7-6.

"You know you're going to play some bad matches," said McEnroe, 59-2 on the year. Mentally, I did not have the right attitude. The key thing here is to learn. You should learn by your mistakes," said McEnroe, who argued with officials in the first and last games. "It brought back memories of when I was 19 years old, playing Rod Laver at the U.S. Open in 1973," said the unseeded Amritraj, a native of India.

"After 11 years, there's still a little bit left. I thought I served tremendously. I also returned his serve well, which I rarely do. I think he was a little surprised. He played a tremendous tiebreaker in the first set. But after that, I just put the first set behind me."

McEnroe's only other loss this year was to Ivan Lendl in the French Open.

Elsewhere, Shahar Perkiss of Israel upset fourth-seeded Aaron Krickstein of Grosse Pointe, Mich., 7-6, 6-1; and third-seeded Mats Wilander of Sweden, the defending ATP champion, defeated Fritz Buehning of Short Hills, N.J., 6-1, 6-2.

Monday nights will be lacking Howard Cosell

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Howard Cosell says he got tired of the crowded arenas, the travel and the "jocks" that shared ABC's Monday Night Football booth with him for 14 years as he became a household name.

Cosell said Tuesday he will be watching Monday Night Football on television this fall with his wife and family by his side.

"When a man gets into his mid-60s, it's time to cut back," Cosell, 64, told the Los Angeles Times from his vacation home in Westhampton, N.Y.

Cosell's announcement climaxed speculation that he would step down from the booth this year.

Cosell said he will expound on the reasons for his departure in his forthcoming book, "I Never Played The Game."

"Monday night will do fine without me," he said. "It will go on and prosper."

"I got tired of the crowded arenas and the travel. Now I'll be able to stay home with my wife and family and watch Monday night football on television."

Asked if he will miss Monday Night Football, which started with him in the booth in 1970, he said: "No, not at all."

The veteran broadcaster had hinted earlier that he was unhappy with the broadcast structure of Monday Night Football, criticizing it as a "jockocracy" dominated by ex-athletes.

Cosell said he will cut his schedule down this fall to hosting ABC's "SportsBeat" and handling some baseball and horse racing while doing his national radio show.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, AUG. 23, 1983

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The early part of the day is good for whatever has to do with the social aspects of your life as well as charming business contacts, but there may be afternoon and evening upsets.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Morning is fine at home, but later you need to be cautious since an unhappy situation could arise.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Important affairs can be handled early, but after lunch others may be preoccupied with other matters.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Financial affairs can be handled to suit everyone concerned in the morning, but the afternoon is not good for such.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Look into the various ways by which you can gain whatever is vital to your welfare, but don't force any situation.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Get advice from an expert how best to get ahead in the morning, but after lunch make no radical changes, though you may want to.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Go after that personal desire in the morning and gain it, but later think out how best to handle a personal affair.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You are able to get a higher-up to understand your side of some situation, and handle it wisely since later some adversity could arise.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You are inspired to greater advancement early but later get back to routines and handle them well.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Get busy solving business problems in the morning, and then study ways to get ahead faster.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Do whatever will please a nervous associate in the morning, but later you can get bored. Enjoy a quiet evening at home.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Early get your surroundings more charming and then you can have guests in. Make a fine impression on them.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Early plan the amusements you want to enjoy later, then be cheerful despite any delays.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will bring much joy to kin early in life so give as much affection as you can. One who will have many fine ideas in the field of merchandising, so send to the right schools for such talent. Teach to be more objective so that the feelings will not get hurt as easily.

Two killed, one hurt in refinery blast

FREEDOM, Pa. (AP) — Three men moving an empty storage tank in an unused area of an Ashland Petroleum Co. refinery evidently triggered a powerful explosion that killed two of them and left the third critically burned today, a company spokesman said.

The exact cause of the blast at the 105-year-old plant will probably not be known for several days, said Jim Butler, a spokesman for the Ashland, Ky., based company. He said no damage estimate was available.

Welding equipment was found at the site, but Butler refused to speculate on whether sparks from a torch might have set off the explosion.

"We have to talk to witnesses, study the site. Until we do that, we won't be able to make any kind of statement," Butler said.

"Something they did evidently set off the explosion," Butler said. "... There's no reason to believe that what happened is a result of a breakdown in safety."

Butler identified the victims as William E. Roock, 60, of Freedom, a 35-year employee of the company, and Charles R. Hansen, 30, of Rochester, a five-year employee.

William Casbourne, 41, of Beaver, who had worked at the refinery for 17½ years, suffered second- and third-degree burns over 90 percent of his body. He was in critical condition today at West Penn Hospital in Pittsburgh, where he was rushed by helicopter, said hospital spokeswoman Lisa Radecki.

REFINERY FIRE — Firemen battle a fire in the wax section of the Ashland refinery in Freedom, Pa.

Tuesday. Two people were killed and another seriously burned in the blast.

"He's conscious, but it's a nightmare. Right now it's touch and go," Casbourne's wife, Sally, 37, said from a hospital waiting room Tuesday evening.

The refinery, 30 miles northwest of Pittsburgh on the Ohio River, employs about 150 people to refine crude oil and produce lubricants. About 75 people were working at the refinery when the explosion occurred, according to Butler. No one was trapped inside.

"All employees are accounted for," Butler told reporters at the gate of the smoldering plant. Refining operations were shut down temporarily for safety reasons, he said.

The blast which could be felt a mile away rocked the plant around 12:15 p.m. as the three men were moving the outdoor tank out of an area called the "wax plant," Butler said.

The wax plant was closed in January 1982, when Ashland discontinued refining motor oil there.

Second autopsy on black man sparks unrest

WAYNESBORO, Ga. (AP) — A second autopsy conducted Tuesday on the body of a black man, whose death in police custody sparked a weekend of racial unrest, supported an initial finding that a beating did not cause his death, a medical examiner said.

Town authorities and the parents of the dead man, Larry Gardner, had requested the second autopsy, said J.M. Shockley of the DeKalb County medical examiner's office.

Gardner, 32, died within an hour of his arrest Friday on charges of shoplifting and selling marijuana. An autopsy performed Saturday listed the cause of death as heat exhaustion, blamed on a long foot chase in hot weather before the arrest, and found no evidence of a beating.

Dr. Joseph Burton, medical examiner for Cobb and DeKalb counties in metropolitan Atlanta, said his autopsy Tuesday on Gardner "does not indicate a beating in any way caused his death."

But Burton said he will be unable to state the exact cause of death until further tests are conducted. He said heat stroke or heat exhaustion is something that "should be seriously considered as the cause of death."

A crowd of blacks and whites filled the 400-seat Burke County Office Park auditorium Tuesday night for a meeting in which local government officials discussed the weekend disturbance and answered citizens' questions.

"I'm not here to kid you," said District Attorney Sam Sibley of the Augusta Judicial Circuit. "A man is dead. You will not get answers tonight. My office, the (Georgia Bureau of Investigation) and agencies of the United States government are investigating."

If any criminal conduct was involved in Gardner's death, Sibley said, the case will be returned to a Burke County grand jury for a decision.

County Commissioner Herman Lodge said publicity about the weekend disturbance was "going to hurt us. The media has done us a tremendous injustice. They have painted us as a racially troubled Southern country town, and I don't like it."

Authorities blamed the weekend's unrest — which included at least six fires, rock throwing and minor looting — on rumors and news reports that Gardner had been beaten to death by police.

Burton said there were minor bruises and abrasions on Gardner's body, but none caused or contributed to his death. He said he also was able to rule out strangulation or choking as the cause of death.

The fact that Gardner was chased before being arrested "may have set the stage" for heat stroke or heat exhaustion, Burton said, but he added that it was "unusual that a healthy man given the circumstances down there would die from heat stroke."

At a news conference with Burton, Gardner's wife, Carrie, said she was "more relieved about the second one (autopsy) than the first one," but said she won't be satisfied until Burton completes his investigation.

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and the U.S. Department of Justice agreed to help the family defray the cost of the independent autopsy.

sy, Burton said.

Mayor George DeLoach said Burke County Sheriff Greg Coursey would offer at the town meeting a detailed explanation of the events surrounding Gardner's arrest and his death an hour later at the Burke County Hospital.

"We hope we can have a public forum established to meet periodically after this is over to bring us together," said DeLoach. "We want to resolve the unrest as soon as possible, because the longer it drags out, the more likely outsiders will come in, and we don't need that."

Town officials on Monday installed a "rumor hotline" staffed by volunteers to answer questions from residents. DeLoach said the hotline would be in operation from 4 p.m. to 11 p.m. each day.

A dusk-to-dawn curfew was imposed Saturday and Sunday on the town of about 6,000 residents. Police Chief H.L. Ivey said 35 people were arrested for violating the curfew, and four of those also were charged with weapons violations.

The dusk-to-dawn curfew was lifted Monday, but DeLoach said a previously imposed 11 p.m. curfew would be strictly enforced.

As many as 200 law enforcement officers patrolled the town Saturday night after three fires broke out within a 15-minute period. Coursey said arson was suspected in all three fires, and he said three other weekend fires definitely resulted from firebombs.

Hawaii celebrates statehood

HONOLULU (AP) — Letters still show up occasionally stamped "foreign mail" and some tourists are heard to talk about "going back to the states," but none of that dulled the glimmer of Hawaii's 25th anniversary of statehood.

Politicians and just plain people enjoyed a state holiday Tuesday to mark the signing on Aug. 21, 1959, by President Dwight D. Eisenhower of an executive order declaring Hawaii the nation's 50th state.

State officials gave away 30,000 Norfolk pine seedlings to residents throughout the state after Gov. George Ariyoshi, Honolulu Mayor Eileen Anderson and members of Hawaii's Congressional delegation planted palm trees on the grounds of the state capitol.

Sen. Daniel Inouye, who was present when Eisenhower signed the bill, recalled the ceremony as "a moment to remember, a moment you never forget."

Other activities during the day included music festivals in Honolulu and on the island of Hawaii and, of course, basking in the sunshine on the state's famous beaches.

The occasion did not go unnoticed on the mainland.

President Reagan and delegates to the Republican National Convention sent their congratulations.

Hawaii is blessed with clean water, pure air and extraordinary beauty, said Reagan as he proclaimed "Hawaii Statehood Silver Jubilee Day."

Hawaii's ethnically diverse people have shown a warm spirit of friendship toward all people of the world, the president said in a statement released by his office.

Delegates to the GOP convention in Dallas approved a statement celebrating the silver jubilee, after Patricia Saiki, the state GOP chairman and delegation chairman, addressed the convention.

A similar congratulatory resolution was approved by Democrats at their national convention in San Francisco last month.

Tuesday's activities capped a year-long celebration themed, "25 years of Statehood. A Lifetime of Aloha."

Hawaii has seen enormous change since becoming a state.
