State Tax Rate For 1927 Set At 25 Cents By Moody

LARGE SAVING EXPECTED FOR TAXPAYERS

$2,500,000 Reduction For Two Years' Total Estimated

$15 FOR SCHOOLS

Hatcher Loses Fight To Have Rate Set At 23 Cents

AUSTIN, July 21.(AP)—A reduced tax rate that Governor Dan Moody figures will save the people of Texas $2,500,000 during the next two years was computed and ordered into effect today by the state automatic tax board, which fixed the ad valorem rate for general purposes at 25 cents, schools 35 cents, and confederate pensions, seven cents, a total of 67 cents.

Governor Moody said he believed the 25 cent general rate can be continued and perhaps reduced the second year of the biennium. This would make the biennial total general rate 50 cents at the most or eight cents less than the combined rate for the past biennium. Although the rate is 23 cents now, it was 35 cents last year.

$15 for Schools

"The schools will be provided with $15 per capita appropriation for the first time in history," Governor Moody, chairman of the board, said. "All of the educational institutions will be adequately provided for and every department of the state government will be properly financed."

State Treasurer W. Gregory Hatcher lost his insistence for a 23 cent rate, but got his figures supporting this stand read into the minutes of the meeting.

The board, composed of the governor, treasurer and State Comptroller S. H. Terrell, figured that the exact rate should be 25.4 cents, but knocked off the fraction after making allowance for expected increases in occupation, inheritance and like taxes. The rate was computed mainly from the estimated net valuation of $2,546,705,869 property in the state. Total estimated valuation as reported by Comptroller Terrell is $3,818,409,939, but the $271,704,070 was subtracted to account for remissions allowed about 13 counties. Against the net valuation was figured $21,738,095.45 appropriations to be paid out of the general revenue fund, and thus the rate per $100 valuation necessary to take care of the appropriations was found.

Hatcher's Figures

In insisting on a 23 cent rate, Treasurer Hatcher first figured that the penitentiary system would yield $3,000,000 to the general revenue fund instead of $1,000,000 estimated by Comptroller Terrell. Hatcher conceded the latter figure, however, after the board found that a six-year average of penitentiary receipts is $1,200,000 and decided to play safe and call it $1,000,000.

Hatcher also referred to the fact that Comptroller Terrell has made moves to collect nearly $1,000,000 alleged delinuient sulphur taxes. Terrell said it might be next year before this could be collected and would not be safe to figure it into computation of this year's tax rate.

Declaring that "no tax board ever has followed strictly the provisions of the statute," Hatcher objected to close mathematical calculation of the rate.

"If you are going to do that," he said, "you would not need a tax board but could let a $15 a week girl figure out the rate."

25-Cent Rate

In a statement after the meeting Governor Moody said the "matter of fixing the tax rate is made by law purely a matter of mathematical calculation. Strictly following the statute, and estimating the penitentiary income at approximately $1,000,000 the figures show that the rate should be 25.4 cents. Making allowances for the fact that each year from the occupation tax and other like taxes there is generally an increase in the amount paid into the treasury, the board felt safe in fixing the rate at 25 cents. Next year the rate should be even a little less than this, and it is reasonably apparent that the ad valorem tax rate for the two years of this biennium should not exceed a total of 50 cents, and perhaps be a little less than that."

Farmer Disqualified In Race For Cotton Prize

LAGRANGE, July 21. (AP)—The LaGrange chamber of commerce today refused to award the customary of the bale premium to Frank Philip of Swiss Alps, Fayette county who brought a bale of cotton here yesterday. The chamber officials claimed that Philip lives in the Schulenburg trade territory and that he brought his cotton here solely for the premiums.

August Trelicik, who brought the second bale of cotton an hour after Philip received the premiums subscribed by business men ranging from face powder to automobile accessories.

UNWANTED BABIES

Children Abandoned By Parents Who Have No Hearts

CHICAGO, July 21. (AP)—"Now, we've seen the last of you," shouted a woman as she shoved two children, a girl, four years old and a boy three years old from an automobile early today. A man accompanied her and the car sped away before bystanders could get its number.

The children were neatly dressed and apparently of American parentage. Neither was able to give a name or address, although the girl called the little boy "Benny." They were taken to the juvenile detention home.

ORIENT FACES ROSY FUTURE

West Texas Railroad Taps Rich Territory

Special to The Record News.

SAN ANGELO, July 21.—Great agricultural development along the Orient railroad in southwest Texas is seen by B. H. Meyer, chairman of the interstate commerce commission, who was a San Angelo visitor this week while making an inspection tour of the Orient.

"I see a day when the land almost from Wichita, Kan., to San Angelo will be producing good crops," he said. "The ranchmen will utilize the valleys for growing feed and will not suffer as they have in the past during droughts, for cattle and sheep will go out of West Texas to market as they do from any agricultural section.

"This sort of a development will require the cutting up of the big land holdings, which will bring a more intensive and more profitable agricultural and livestock development. Your mild winters and your combination ranch and farming land is the best I have ever seen."

The Orient railroad, which Mr. Meyer was inspecting, is on the verge of becoming a great transcontenental line, he pointed out, showing that its operation should be a model for thrift and economy that should set the example for large and small railroads throughout the country.

The proposed line between San Angelo and Corpus Christi has many things to recommend it, he said. He added, however, that the cost of the line and the revenue necessary to insure operation must be evident before it can be built.

Services Today For Pioneer of Henrietta

Special to The Record News.

HENRIETTA, July 21.—Funeral services for Ben G. Wright, 78, pioneer resident of Henrietta, who died here this afternoon, will be held from the family residence Friday morning at 10 o'clock with the Rev. W. A. Stuckey, pastor of the First Methodist church, officiating.

Mr. Wright had been an invalid for the last five years. Burial will be in Hope cemetery.

He is survived by his widow, one daughter, Mrs. Wade Johnson, and three sons, James Wright, of Galveston, Benny Wright of Wichita Falls and Frank Wright of Wellington.

West Texas Pair Held On Bogus Check Charge

NEWTON, Kan., July 21.(AP)—Mrs. Esther Johnson, Lockney, Texas, cattle ranch owner, was arrested here today by a Wichita detective on a charge of giving a worthless check for $1300 in payment for an automobile. H. P. Johnson, her husband, was arrested at Wichita, but when his wife talked to him over long distance Johnson was released and came to Newton where he was rearrested.

The couple will be taken to Texas to answer the charge.

Farmers Offer $1 Per 100 For Cotton Picked

FORT WORTH, July 21. (AP)—Texas farmers are paying $1 per 100 pounds for cotton pickers having advanced the rate 25 cents in the last few days, according to information reaching the United States Labor bureau here. The raise in price particularly affects the district centering in and around Nueces county and Cass county.

Banquet of 200 Welcome Rotary Leader On Return Here

TRIBUTE TO WORK

Wichita Falls Man Tells Of Visit With European Royalty

Close to 200 Rotarians and Rotary Anns filled the banquet hall of the Country club to overflowing Thursday night in tribute to Walter D. Cline, newly elected first vice president of International Rotary, who just returned from the Ostend convention where his work as convention program chairman brought renown to his name and to Wichita Falls. Glowing tributes to the returned leader were paid by local and regional members of Rotary.

In turn, Mr. Cline lauded the spirit of the members and acknowledged the assistance given him not only in a personal way but in the execution of duties of office. An expansion of Rotary to a real international basis was seen by him as having been advanced by the success of the Ostend meeting.

Hoffman Presides

Luther Hoffman presided at the banquet which began at 8 o'clock. After the invocation by the Rev. N. F. Grafton, Rotary songs were sung under the leadership of R. E. Shepherd. Next were introduced distinguished guests, each of whom praised the work done by Mr. Cline for the organization.

Allan Street, Oklahoma City, who preceded Mr. Cline as vice president, declared Mr. Cline to be a big man and an outstanding figure in the international convention in Ostend. The Wichita Falls man, declared Mr. Street, became

Peanut Hull Taken From Lung of Youth

DALLAS, July 21. (AP)—A large sized peanut shell was removed from the left lung of L. C. Thompson, 10 years old son of D. J. Thompson of Winnsboro, today by the aid of a bronchscope at Baylor hospital without the aid of an anesthetic. Five weeks ago the hull became lodged in the boy's lung while he was eating peanuts and was near death when brought to Dallas. Physicians who operated said this was the first time a bronchscope has been used here without an anesthetic. The operation was performed to conserve the boy's strength.

FORT WORTH, July 21. (AP)—Miss Wilbur Foster, 20, and W. S. Gardin were injured Wednesday night when the automobile in which they were riding skidded and overturned as they were rounding a curve in the highway eight miles from here. Miss Foster sustained bruises about the body and a sprained back while Gardin escaped wit han injured leg.

Fist Fight After Car Crash Brings Charge

FORT WORTH, July 21. (AP)—Clyde Rochelle, was charged with aggravated assault following a street fight here in which Rochelle and two other men were injured enough to require medical attention. Rochelle and two other men were riding passed him, nearer than he thought they should have. A furious fist fight followed an argument.

Texas Deputies After Prisoner in California

FORT WORTH, July 21. (AP)—Deputy Sheriffs Levretts and Rayston were to leave here today for San Francisco to return Claude Floyd and H. D. Oakley to Fort Worth where they are charged with theft of an automobile which they rented from a company here.

JUST TOO LATE

Youth Inherits Fortune After Sentence For Car Theft

LOS ANGELES, July 21.(AP)—Earl Stanley Price, 20, whose desire for expensive things caused him to steal an automobile, now has a fortune in his own name, but must spend one to five years in San Quentin prison before he can enjoy it.

Several days ago, still an inmate in the county jail here, he was left a fortune by his mother. The value of the estate is unknown, but said to be large.

Claiming that Price now could buy anything he desired and would never have the urge to steal again, attorneys asked probation for him. This was denied by Judge Carlos Hardy.

TEXAS PORT TO GET RAILROAD IN ICC ORDER

Duff Given Permit For Extension to Go To Port Arthur

TO BUILD FACILITIES

Aid of Other Lines To Be Asked First, However

WASHINGTON, July 21.(AP)—The interstate commerce commission today gave conditional permission to the Waco, Beaumont, Trinity & Sabine railway in Texas to proceed with the construction of 200 miles of additional lines.

One of the extensions will be from Livingston to Port Arthur by way of Beaumont, a distance of 100 miles, while the other will run from Weldon to Waco.

The Sabine company was ordered, however, to try to arrange for trackage rights over other railroads now operating in the territory and to obtain use of existing rail and terminal facilities in Beaumont and Port Arthur. In case it is unable to effect the arrangement on satisfactory terms the Sabine company was authorized to proceed with its own construction, beginning it before December 31, 1927, and completing it by December, 1929.

In case the Sabine company is forced to undertake the building the commission has ruled that it might retain all of the earnings from the new construction without being subject to the recapture clause of the transportation act.

Texan Will Be Envoy To Irish Free State

DUBLIN, July 21.(AP) — When Frederick A. Sterling of Texas arrived in Dublin Monday to take up his duties as first United States minister to the Irish free state he will be saluted by a mounted guard of honor at the pier.

On Wednesday, accompanied by an escort of cavalry, the minister will drive through the city to the vice regal lodge where he will be received by the governor general and other officials. After presenting his credentials he will be escorted back to his residence.

Foul Play Feared In Absence of Witness

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., July 21.(AP) Relatives of Oliver Tidwell, one of the witnesses in the grand jury investigation of the flogging of Jeff Calloway, today reported he has been missing since he left for Oneonta Saturday and have requested police aid in locating him.

A brother of Tidwell said today he feared "foul play" had befallen his brother, who during the flogging hearing at Oneonta was kept under guard because of alleged threats against witnesses.

Senator Walsh Sees Coolidge as Retiring

NEW YORK, July 21.(AP)—New York newspapers today quote Senator Thomas J. Walsh, Democrat, Montana, as expressing the opinion that an anti-third term resolution will be adopted by the 70th congress and that President Coolidge will decline a renomination in deference to the third term tradition.

Even should Coolidge be renominated, which Senator Walsh believes improbable, the Montana senator believes he will be defeated.

Mrs. Jack Dempsey In Highly Nervous State

LOS ANGELES, July 21.(AP)—Estelle Taylor, motion picture actress wife of Jack Dempsey, today was under her physician's order to remain in her rooms and not answer telephone calls.

The physician said her nervous condition wrought by her husband's heavyweight battle Thursday night was not serious, but required rest and seclusion.

First Bale of Cotton Sold at New Orleans

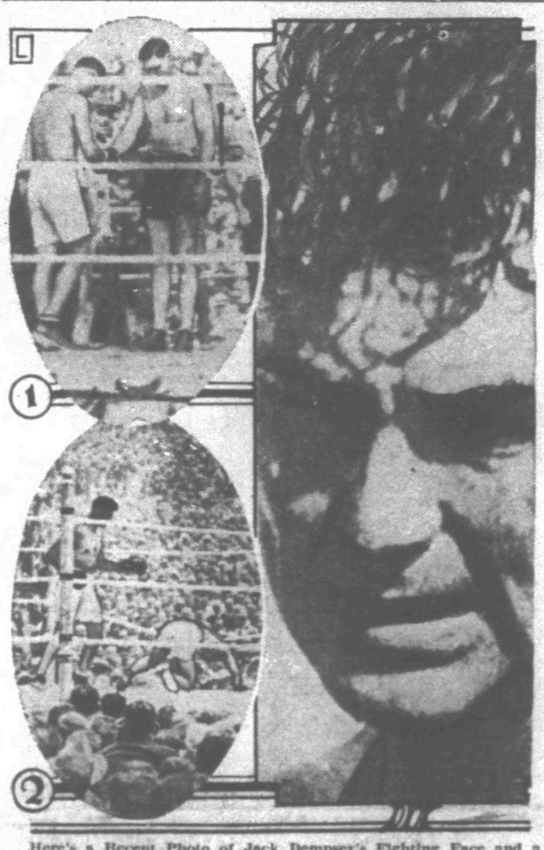
NEW ORLEANS, July 21. (AP)—The two first bales of cotton produced in Louisiana and Mississippi were auctioned today on the floor of the New Orleans cotton exchange. Each bale brought 27 cents a pound.

The Louisiana bale came from Lake Charles, La., and the other from Columbus, Miss.

ALIMONY PAYERS REBEL

CHICAGO, July 21.(AP)—A half hundred of Chicago's alimony rebels, professed victims of laws which they say prescribe that the man shall pay and pay and pay, have organized an alimony club for a fight on "gold digging" and "profiteering" in the divorce courts.

Lion of Ring Starts Comeback



Here's a Recent Photo of Jack Dempsey's Fighting Face and a Couple of Views Snapped At His Training Camp Preparing for His Victory Over Sharkey.

Jack Sharkey after his defeat:

"Dempsey won that fight by hitting me with a foul punch in the seventh, that's how he did it. It wasn't the first low punch he hit me during the fight. He hit me six or seven others. I didn't raise a yell about them, but when he nailed me in the seventh way below the waist, well I put in a kick to the referee.

"And while I was doing that Dempsey hit me on the chin—and dropped me. But it was the low punch that weakened me and really sent me down. I heard them counting me out all right. But when I got up I supposed they would disqualify Dempsey and give me the fight.

"But, well, I'll never live long enough to get over the surprise of finding they gave the fight to Dempsey."

Jack Dempsey after the fight:

"The right-hand punch I landed on Jack Sharkey's body at the start of the seventh round tonight was a fair one! As I recall it, it started fair and I thought it landed fair.

"Sharkey made a complaint to the referee. I could have hit him then, and not been unethical, but I didn't. I waited for a ruling to be made on the punch.

"The referee said, 'Go on, fight,' which meant that he was deciding against Sharkey. So I got busy, hooked a short left into the liver and then hooked it for Sharkey's chin. He went down, and out.

"I knew I'd win. Never was I so sure of anything in my life as that I could take Sharkey. He gave me a tough time of it in the first and he wasn't any too gentle in the second, but after that the young man wasn't so good.

"My plan was to sock him in the body round after round and when I had slowed him down and made him a bit wobbly to let fly with the old left hook the first chance I got.

"The plan worked.

"A game fellow, this Sharkey—a great fighter, too. And I take my hat off to him. He lost the fight, but he gathered in a lot of glory."

YANKEE STADIUM, New York, July 21.—Message to the folks: "They do come back."

Jack Dempsey, the old Manassa man mauler grabbed his fleeting pugilistic youth right by the tail up at the Yankee stadium tonight, and hauled himself back from Misbeenville hand-over-hand.

He knocked out Josef Paul Cukoschay, of Boston, who calls himself Jack Sharkey, in the seventh round of a right hot heavyweight battle, and then the crowd of 90,000 that saw the fight, almost knocked Dempsey out of the ring with a thundering volley of straw hats.

The finish came after 45 seconds of fighting in the seventh. Sharkey went down under a rat-a-tat of glove smacks to the middle, some of which I thought were dropping a little low. Dempsey was always a little careless when he lets his body punches fly.

Head In Sharkey's Chest.

Sharkey's face crinkled with pain, and he muttered something to Jack O'Sullivan, the referee, evidently complaining of the punches, but O'Sullivan seemed to think they were falling in fair territory. Dempsey had his head pushed into Sharkey's chest as his two gloves fists hammered at Sharkey's stomach, then suddenly Sharkey started to crumple up from the body punches. As he crumpled, Dempsey pulled back a trifle and let fly with his right hand.

He delivered it like he was throwing a baseball, and all his 194 1-2 pounds were behind it. Sharkey fell face forward, as men nearly always fall when they are solidly hit on the chin, and Kid McPartland, the old time lightweight, rose in his chair at the ringside and began counting, punctuating the seconds with swings of his left hand.

Dempsey's Face Bloody.

O'Sullivan stood over the bulky form of Sharkey, crumpled up on the canvas almost in the center of the ring, and swung his arm over the human heap as if performing some weird incantation as he yelled the count in Sharkey's ear.

Dempsey went to his own corner, and stood there glowering, his face was smeared with blood. He got a bad cut from a left jab under his right eye in the second round, and a cut under the other eye in a later round, and Sharkey had kept digging at those wounds with a whipping left hand. Dempsey was a strange looking figure of victory as he waited there.

Sharkey tried to lift himself up on his hands and knees but fell back again from his corner. Johnny Buckley, his manager, and his other seconds bawled at the referee claiming foul, but the ruthless count went on, and the cheers began rising like a great vocal tide over the great mob as O'Sullivan made a great swing with his arm, in unison with McPartland's voice at the "ten" that closed the exhibition of the manly art.

He Lifts Sharkey.

Dempsey immediately leaped forward and put his gloved hands under Sharkey's limp body, lifting him up, and carrying him toward the corner as Buckley and the other Sharkey seconds came tumbling in to the ring. It is an office Dempsey has performed for many another opponent. Buckley and the seconds relieved Dempsey of his burden and sat Sharkey on the stool in his corner and began pulling at the sailor's water soaked trunks to see if he had been fouled.

Their verdict was that he had, but Dr. Walkup, the boxing commission physician, who made an examination of Sharkey in the dressing room immediately after the fight, said there was no evidence of foul. There will probably be a long argument on this point. A lot of the spectators seemed to think that Dempsey was punching low, but as a rule a low punch that is really foul leaves some trace that is readily revealed by an examination.

Buckley Claims Foul.

Buckley stood in the corner by Sharkey wagging his head and calling to friends at the ringside that his man had been fouled, but in the meantime the crowd was rejoicing over Dempsey's victory. The air was filled with straw hats, the grizzled Leo P. Flynn who handled Dempsey for this fight hurriedly struggled into the ring and almost kissed Dempsey's

Eastland Man, 71, Leaps Into Lake Kemp to Save Life of Girl of 10

Grandfather of Wichita Falls Child Dives in Water To Rescue Girl; Others' Help Avert Tragedy

Rescue from drowning of a 10-year-old girl by the daring of a man 71 years of age was related in Wichita Falls Thursday by persons returning from Lake Kemp, where the near-tragedy occurred. Adrienne Flurry, daughter of Mrs. Claude Lewis, 1912 Sixth street, narrowly escaped death, and her grandfather, Judge R. B. Truly of Eastland, a pioneer West Texas attorney, averted the child's death, it was stated.

Dives in Lake

Judge Truly had accompanied D. J. Carithers with a party to the lake to launch a large motor boat belonging to Mr. Carithers. The Flurry child and several other children were playing in the water near the motor boat and it was while W. S. Ellis, Wichita Falls druggist, was teaching her to swim that she got out of his control in deep water.

In attempting to rescue the girl, Mr. Ellis also narrowly escaped drowning but succeeded in attracting the attention of Judge Truly, who was standing on the bank nearby. The aged man dived into the water fully clothed and brought the girl to the surface

Dempsey Victory Tickles Wichita Falls Fans at Record News Party

Whoopee!

'Twas in the seventh stanza of the Dempsey-Sharkey argument Thursday night when "whoopees" came forth from over 2,000 fight fans listening to the fight returns broadcast from The Record News office.

Was Dempsey the favorite in Wichita Falls? We'll say he was. The yells from the crowd attending The Record News fight party attested to this fact when Dempsey put Sharkey to sleep in the seventh.

Through the courtesy of Roy Coffee, manager of the Phonograph shop, and Captain J. H. Scott, of the police department traffic squad, the party was a howling success.

Mr. Coffee furnished the broadcasting equipment and Captain Scott regulated traffic so that it would not interfere with the party.

Blondy Cross, sports editor of The Record News, was scheduled to broadcast the returns, however Blondy got all mixed up with the extra inning Spudder-Beaumont baseball game and Steve Stevenson, of the Record News staff, was sent in as pinch hitter for Blondy as the fight return announcer.

Five minutes after the telegraph flash announcing Dempsey's knockout victory over Sharkey was received, the Record News extra carrying details of the fight were being sold on the street.

THREE HURT IN CRASH HERE

Auto And Motorcycle Collide

Three persons were injured, one seriously, in a collision of a motorcycle driven by Earnest Lilly of Throckmorton and a sedan driven by Jay Lickey, 1500 Monroe street, about 9:40 o'clock Thursday night four miles west of the city limits on the Seymour road.

Earnest Lilly was the most seriously injured of the three. He is in the Wichita General hospital where an X-ray examination showed that his left leg was fractured in two places. His face was badly lacerated and several teeth were jarred loose.

Neil Foster of Seymour, who was riding behind Lilly on the motorcycle, sustained bruises which were not serious, although painful.

Child Escapes

Jay Lickey, Jr., seven-year-old son of the driver of the sedan, received an abrasion on his face just below his eye. He was taken home after receiving emergency treatment at the general hospital.

The accident occurred while Mr Lickey was driving toward Wichita Falls accompanied by his small son, while Lilly and Foster were riding west, according to a report given police.

Mr. Lickey was going around another car and met the motorcycle while it was on the right hand side of the road. The motorcycle hit the left fender of the sedan and whirled into the ditch while the automobile went into the ditch at its driver's left about 20 yards from the motor.

No Charges Filed

A passing motorist picked up the four persons involved in the crash and carried them to the general hospital where Mr. Lickey was taken into custody by police officers. No charges were filed.

Lilly and Foster had been in Wichita Falls in search of employment, according to E. K. Logan, 1202 Travis street, an uncle of Lilly. Lilly is the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Lilly of Throckmorton.

from a depth of about 10 feet.

Many in Water

Mr. Carithers had jumped into the water from the boat, which had not then been launched, and aided Judge Truly in taking the girl from the water, but the few moments of exertion and the deep diving by Judge Truly had taxed his strength and it was only after Walter C. Rowlett, a boat carpenter of Wichita Falls, who is more than 50 years of age, had gone into the water that all hands were safe.

The Flurry child was revived by artificial respiration shortly after the accident and was completely recovered from the effects of partial strangling within a few hours.

Judge Truly spent his early youth on the lower Mississippi river and scoffed at words of praise given him by members of the party, declaring that every-day life on the "father of waters" was filled with incidents of far more danger than the one at Lake Kemp.

an international figure. Mr. Street also paid graceful tribute to Mrs. Cline, who accompanied her husband to Ostend.

161 Miles For Banquet

Ellis Boyd of Fort Worth, 41st district governor, was next called upon. He in turn lauded Mr. Cline, declaring that he drove 161 miles just to be present at the banquet. A pledge of support in his new office was given the international vice president.

W. C. Edwards of Denton, former district governor, next declared that the Rotary organizations would continue to advance as long as they selected leaders of the type of Mr. Cline.

Following a violin selection played by Mrs. T. B. Greenwood, the presentation of the compliments of the Rotary members was made by John Kilgore. Mr. Cline, declared Mr. Kilgore, had made a record as a district governor and as chairman of the arrangements committee had made the greatest convention International Rotary ever had successful. Mr. Cline, he told the members, was now known throughout the Rotary world. He had been decorated by King Albert of Belgium.

Tribute to Friends

In responding, Mr. Cline paid tribute to his Rotary friends, to Harry Rogers, of San Antonio, who had placed him in the position to serve the organization. The chairmanship of the arrangements committee for the convention he said, had been accepted without misgiving. He lauded those who had worked with him.

What success he had attained in Rotary work, declared Mr. Cline, had been largely due to the association with the people of Wichita Falls, both within and outside of the organization.

The speaker entertained banquet guests with experiences with the royal family of Belgium and of Great Britain. King Albert was portrayed as democratic and congenial, and proud of having been made an honorary member of San Francisco Rotary while on a visit to America. The oldest son was declared well adapted to his coming responsibilities. The second son would be at home in West Texas, he said. The princess was described as "nice and good looking."

The reception at Buckingham palace was likened to calling on the president at the White House. Those admitted are checked and rechecked, cataloged and then marched past King George and Queen Mary, said Mr. Cline. Harry Rogers, of San Antonio, the International president, was spokesman.

In conclusion Mr. Cline thanked the Rotarians for the manner in which he had been received. No one has a right to expect anything, he said, but "it's nice to receive such a reception."

BREAKFAST HONORS MR. AND MRS. CLINE

Complimenting Mr. and Mrs. Walter D. Cline, who returned from a tour of Europe where they also attended the Rotary International convention at Ostend, representatives of the local club, met the train Thursday morning and escorted the couple to the Wichita club where they were entertained at breakfast by Rotarians and Rotary Anns.

Luther Hoffman, president of the local club, made brief talk, presenting Mrs. Cline with a lovely bowl of roses and other cut flowers. Mrs. Cline expressed appreciation for the courtesies shown them by the club.

Covers were laid for the honorees and Messrs. and Mesdames Hoffman, Horrace Robbins, A. E. Myles, C. W. Beavers, Q. B. Lee, Tom Smock, S. S. McKenney, C. R. Hartsook, Leonard Grayson, B. D. NEW YORK, July 21.(AP)—The New York Daily News says that Mrs. Ruth Snyder, frightened by her approaching electrocution, has appealed to her one time paramour, to assume full responsibility for the murder of her husband.

"If you will take full responsibility for Albert's death and exonerate me, I will when set free, devote all my time and funds in saving you."

This, says the Daily News, is the message the former Queens Village housewife gave one of her keepers at Sing Sing prison to deliver to the former corset salesman. Whether the message was delivered, the keeper refused to say.

Warden Lewis E. Lawes said he knew nothing about the matter. Both Mrs. Snyder and Gray are occupants of the Sing Sing death house, but their executions are held up pending appeals.

Closing Exercises Held For Bible School

Closing exercises of the daily Vacation Bible school at the First Southern Presbyterian church were held at the meeting Thursday night. Class work of the two weeks session will be culminated with Friday morning's session after which Miss Elizabeth Harnsberger, who has been conducting the school, will go to Dallas.

The exercises Thursday night were attended by about 85, it was reported. Children of the primary, junior and intermediate grades appeared in the exercises and songs. Dramatization of several passages of scripture were presented.

Formation of Labor Auxiliary Postponed

Action on the proposed organization of a ladies auxiliary to the Wichita Falls labor unions scheduled for Thursday night at a meeting at the Labor Temple, was postponed until the next Thursday night, according to B. E. Allison, local labor leader.

Efforts will be made during the ensuing week to invite every wife and daughter of union men to attend the meeting next Thursday, Mr. Allison stated.

Wichita Falls police have been asked to watch for a 1926 model Chevrolet coach reported stolen from C. B. Haynes of Chillicothe, while the car was parked at the public square at Vernon.

Wichita Falls Woman In Train Crash, Believed Only Slightly Hurt

No word relative to the extent of injuries reported to have been received Thursday by Mrs. George Litteken, 1701 Trueheart, in the wreck of a Colorado and Southern passenger train, near Branson, Colo., has been received by Wichita Falls relatives and friends of Mrs. Littiken, according to information received Thursday night by The Record-News.

Mrs. Littiken, accompanied by her husband, left Wichita Falls Wednesday afternoon for Denver, Colo., for a vacation of a few weeks.

Railroad dispatches relative to the wreck carried the information that Mrs. Littiken's left leg and left side were injured, however, it was not thought that she is seriously injured, friends said.

The Fort Worth and Denver, upon which railroad Mr. and Mrs. Littiken left for Denver, uses the Colorado and Southern tracks to Denver from Texline.

None of the east bound Fort Worth and Denver trains from Colorado arriving in Wichita Falls Friday morning were delayed on account of the wreck.

BROKEN RAIL WRECKS TRAIN

TRINIDAD, Colo, July 21.(AP)—A broken rail was given by railroad officials as the cause of the wreck of a Colorado and Southern passenger train near Brannon, Colo., early today in which nineteen persons were injured.

Girl Kills Self In Jump From Window

NEW YORK, July 21.(AP)—Police today announced that Miss Lillian Jaeger, daughter of the late Otto J. Jaeger, millionaire plush manufacturer of Madison avenue and Monclaire, N. J., had committed suicide by jumping from the window of an Atlantic City hotel early today.

No reason for the act was known, although it was said at Atlantic City that Miss Jaeger plunged from the window a moment after responding to a telephone call from New York.

Sentence to Hang For Axe Killer of Bride

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., July 21.(AP) James Hayse, farm hand of Berlin, near here, who killed Mrs. Doris Flatt with an axe after she had denied him permission to see her daughter, was sentenced to hang October 21. A new trial was refused.

KIDNAP BANDITS FREE

SIDNEY, Ohio, July 21.(AP)—Two men who kidnapped County Treasurer Alfonso Berry and robbed him of nearly $40,000 in newly collected taxes were at liberty today,

ARCHER ROAD ROUTE MADE

Course to Wichita Falls Is Surveyed

Special to The Record News.

ARCHER CITY, July 21.—The route for the hard surface road connecting Archer City and Wichita Falls has practically been selected. Several surveys have been made and the course outlined will follow the present road north out of Archer City for about four miles then making a slight turn to cross the Wichita river some four hundred yards west of the present bridges; then north to the Three Way Filling station. From there it takes a straight turn to the spillway of Lake Wichita and connects with the concrete pavement.

This road will shorten the present highway about three and one-half miles, and will cost about $30,000 per mile. This road, along with the highway to Olney, has been granted both state and federal aid. The highway to Olney will follow closely the Wichita Falls and Southern railway course. This road will connect with the pavement which is to be constructed under Young county bond issue.

ELECTRA SOCIETY

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, July 21.—Miss Katherine Barr was honored on the occasion of her birthday with a bridge party, at the home of her brother, and wife, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Barr. A yellow and white color scheme was carried out in the decorations and refreshments. In the bridge games, Miss Harriett Barwise received high score and Miss Mable Alexander received low. Both were given prizes. Those attending were Misses Mary McGann, Juanita and Lorena Douglas, Virginia Douglas, Mabel Alexander of Canadian, and Harriet Barwise, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Gookin and Gordon Douglas and the honoree.

Alathean Sunday Picnic

A few members of the Althean Sunday school class enjoyed a picnic at the Lions club park recently. After the picnic lunch was served, Betty Vanhoose and Marjorie Tucker gave readings for awhile.

Those attending were Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Tucker and daughter, Marjorie, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Vanhoose and children, Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Keese and children, Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Mercer, Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Rouse, Mesdames J. R. Gonce, J. S. Clayton, J. L. Kinney, S. J. Goode and daughter, Lillie Mae.

Boy Scout Notes

The Boy Scouts of the Flaming Arrow troup were in Vernon last Thursday evening, where they gave an exhibition of their two Indian dances, the ghost dance and scalp dance. These were given at the Allingham park in the presence of a large group of citizens. These dances will again be presented Thursday, July 21, at the Country club of this city, when the Rotary club entertains the Rotary Anns. Much interest is being shown in the scout work of the city, for besides operating the municipal swimming pool, assisted by Scout Master J. T. Cash, they are operating a newly-opened filling station on West Cleveland avenue, which is giving them the net profits, above the expenses for a period of 15 days, through the courtesy of C. F. Koip. This was begun July 15, and will continue until August 1. Efforts are being made by the local scouts to erect a permanent quarters for their troops.

Birthday Party

Lewis Holley was honored on the occasion of his seventeenth birthday with a party at his home on East Harrison avenue, Monday night. The guests enjoyed games and contests until a late hour, when dainty refreshments of punch and cake were served to Misses Dorma Tennin, Mary Brown, Jessie Youngblood, Rena Belle Youngblood, Lewis Holley, Paul Rogers, Estel Carroll and Truman Eubanks.

Guests Honored

Miss Eleanor Campbell, of Norman, Okla., who is the guest of her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Campbell of West Roosevelt avenue, was honored with a picnic on the occasion of her twelfth birthday. The party motored to the Lions club park, where ice cream, cake and lemonade were served the children, and a most delightful time was had playing. Those composing the party were Lorene Crass, Clara Bell Parnell, Kenneth and Vondell Turner, Lloyd and Virginia Havens, Edward and Jean Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. E. Havens, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Campbell and the honoree.

Ten Cleared in Trial Of Race Riot Deaths

DETROIT, Mich., July 21.(AP)—All charges against Dr. Ossian H. Sweet, his wife and eight other negroes in connection with the slaying of Leon Breiner during a race riot staged in front of the Sweet home on Sept. 5, 1925, were nolle prossed today.

U. S. Naval Commander Arrives in Nicaragua

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, July 21.(AP) — Admiral David F Sellars, commander of the United States special service squadron in Central American waters, arrived here today. His arrival was marked by a parade of the United States marines.

Scouting planes which returned today reported all quiet in the Ocotal section where the fierce battle with General Candino, insurgent leader, was fought a few days ago.

Sheriff Payne of Paducah, Texas, is a visitor in Wichita Falls and Burkburnett. He called on Sheriff W. G. Bralley Thursday.

Labor Asks Withdrawal Marines From Nicaragua

WASHINGTON, July 21.(AP)—Immediate withdrawal of American forces in Nicaragua was recommended unanimously today by a rising vote of the fifth Pan-American labor congress upon joint motion of Matthew Woll, United States delegate, and chairman of the resolutions committee, and N. Flores Cabrera of Venezuela.

TO OPPOSE ALIEN BAR.

FORT WORTH, July 21. (AP)—The Fort Worth chamber of commerce probably will oppose any measures before the next congress which would seek to restrict Mexican immigration, A. B. Spencer, manager of the chamber said here today.

A meeting of the Wichita County Demonstration council will be held in the basement of the court house Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock, according to an announcement made Thursday. Members are requested to attend.

Optimist Members To "Adopt" 150 Youths

Approximately 150 boys of Wichita Falls are to be given the beneficial influence of the same number of men who are to take a personal interest in them according to plans of the Optimist club announced at the luncheon meeting Wednesday. Each of the members present was asked to sign a pledge card to devote an hour weekly to some boy they select. Sixty-one signed cards were left at the door as that many attending left the room.

After the boys have been taken under the wings of the members a banquet for both the Optimists and their proteges will be held.

FOLLY'S DAUGHTER

A Thrilling New Mystery of New York's Night Life

By ANN LISLE

Bonnie and Roy, Folly and Sam Motor to Atlantic City for Week End

By Ann Lisle.

FOLLY felt that her life had fallen in pleasant places. The trip to Atlantic City with Bonnie and Sam and Roy Scarlett was the most exciting and worth while adventure that had come her way for a long time. Leaving the Club Bon Bon before dawn, Sam's route was by ferry to Staten Island, a whirling rush down the parkway to another ferry and then down through Jersey.

ANN LISLE

They arrived at ten and Sam took them to the magnificient and elegant hotel to which he had wired for rooms. Roy stood by him while he registered: "Samuel Kerr, New York. Mr. and Mrs. Roy Rhodes and Mrs. Dana."

"I wish you hadn't done that," Roy quavered.

"Be your age," Sam admonished. "It's the only thing to do. You are chaperoning us."

Roy didn't like it. But then he didn't like things at home, either. Viv had come home from her trip preoccupied, distrait, jumpy. She had been enthusiastic about his securing the Shannon account, but had seemed to think that it was a foregone conclusion. She was thankful, but she didn't call Roy a giant among men or act as if securing a good advertising account made him a superman. She seemed to think that this was pleasant but not exciting. Just normal progress.

Roy had found himself missing Bonnie's adulation while he played the devoted husband to Viv all week. But he had less and less appetite for the trip he was booked to take. He didn't want to lie to Viv. He didn't see how he could do such a headline thing as take a girl to Atlantic City and get away with it. Telling Viv he had a business trip or a series of conferences and then perhaps finding himself in Juicy Jottings again wouldn't be so good.

Viv had settled it for him. She was obviously nervous all day Friday and on Saturday morning at breakfast she quavered:

"Darling, would you think me a beast if I went down to the country again?"

"I certainly think you treat me very badly," Roy said, swelling out his chest righteously.

"I don't mean to," Vivian wailed. "I'm dying to tell you the secret I've guarded for so many years. I'll tell you this: I've been standing by someone else. I've been trying to make my place in the world regardless of the wrong-doing of somebody else. I've been trying to—salvage a soul. I've almost succeeded, Roy. When the person most concerned is fit to stand it, I'll take you down to see her—let you learn the whole story. I think you'll like what I've done. But for the present, just trust me."

"I hope you aren't going to spring something that will harm me just as I'm getting up in the world," Roy said.

"Don't be a climber!" Vivian had flung at him scornfully.

He remembered it all now as he watched Sam Kerby signing the register. Viv had been the one to leave him. She didn't appreciate him. He had a right to something—hadn't he?

He enjoyed all he had a right to, and to the utmost. A good bath straightened him out for Sunday morning. A good walk fixed him for Sunday dinner. After that came a ride on the boardwalk, and when the drowsy warmth and the slow motion of the wheel-chair and the plodding "pusher's" rhythm had soothed him, there was a nap. It was wonderful how congenial the party was. Bonnie had no wish but to do what Roy wanted. Folly's one ambition seemed to be to please Sam and to have him proud of her.

After supper there was another walk in the bracing air of the sea that cooled the heated boardwalk and reminded the crowd of the tang of the ocean.

"And salt-water taffy!" Folly cried. "I want to take some to Jill."

"The fudge is better," Sam told her. "Haven't you been down here since that took the place of the taffy?"

"I haven't been here for years. I've been slaving for my little ward," Folly sighed.

Sam beamed. He liked this generous, maternal sweetness. His own wife lavished most of her sturdy affections on a tortoise-shell cat, two Pomeranians and a parrakeet. But Bonnie felt out of the picture, tired, sulky. Roy wasn't being much fun. He seemed to have something on his mind all the time. He didn't seem to play up. He didn't seem to consider Bonnie worth forgetting the world for. And to add to her annoyance Roy had the bad taste to say:

"Let's get some of the salt-water taffy, too. My wife and I were here on our honeymoon. She loves it."

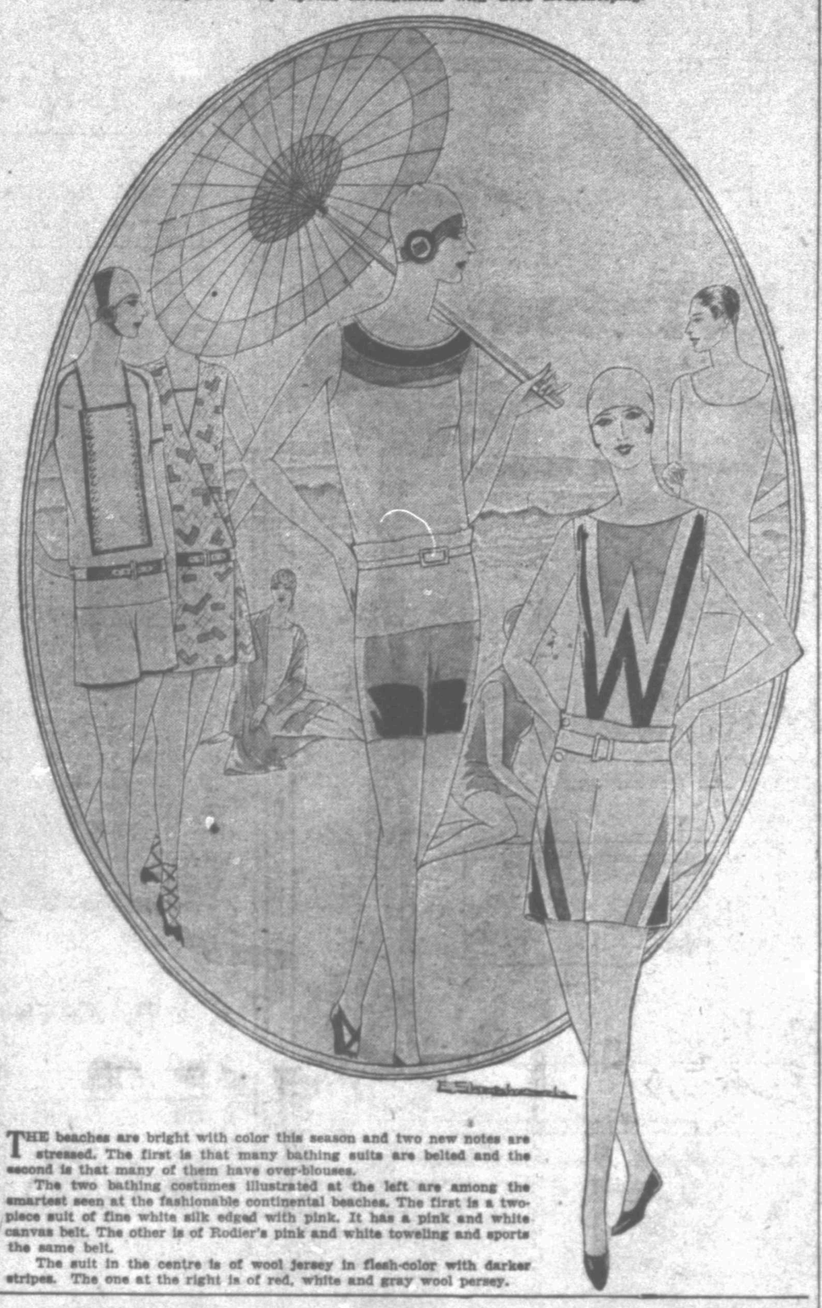
Sam scowled. Folly gasped. And Bonnie, goaded a bit too far, said suddenly:

"Folly, darling, now I know why the name Jill is so familiar. Your ward was the cigarette girl at Beppo's a month ago, wasn't she?"

To Be Continued.

Bright Notes in Bathing Costumes

Republished by Special Arrangement with Good Housekeeping.



THE beaches are bright with color this season and two new notes are stressed. The first is that many bathing suits are belted and the second is that many of them have over-blouses.

The two bathing costumes illustrated at the left are among the smartest seen at the fashionable continental beaches. The first is a two-piece suit of fine white silk edged with pink. It has a pink and white canvas belt. The other is of Rodier's pink and white toweling and sports the same belt.

The suit in the centre is of wool jersey in flesh-color with darker stripes. The one at the right is of red, white and gray wool persey.

Rivalry of Men and Women in Industry Racial Menace

By Chas. A. L. Reed, M. D., Former President of the American Medical Association.

WHAT is women's real work? The answer to this question must be found in the natural law that makes women women.

CHARLES A.L. REED, M.D.

I do not say that the conventions, customs, or even the statutes are just guides or expressions of the natural law in the case. But that the problem, in its last analysis, is one of natural law is beyond doubt.

In the meantime, however, we must consider the question as it comes up in every day life.

The competition of women with men in industry and the consequent reduction in men's earnings and standards of living, says Fenton, is one of the most serious drawbacks today to the welfare and happiness of the race. Husbands and fathers find their wages undercut and their wives have to give up their working-days at home. The houses are neglected, the children suffer, and the next generation is hampered still further than this one.

What is the remedy?

Many women are doing work for which they are not fitted, but to erect artificial legal barriers would create more trouble than it would cure. When, however, the health and well-being of future generations is in danger, it may be necessary to impose some kind of restriction on the work of child-bearing women.

The spirit of industrial rivalry between the sexes is a fatal obstacle to racial health, and if pushed to its extreme will lower the whole level of the national life far more surely than the immigration of any number of destitute aliens.

The ultimate object of sound reform must, of course, be to restore as many women as possible to their rightful position, in command of the home.

Suppose a committee of the most enlightened men and women in the land were entrusted with the absolute control of the national life. They would certainly begin by advising that as many men and women as possible should marry. Provided the partner is suitable, married life is the happiest state of existance for adult persons of both sexes. The young men of today recognize this well enough and most of those who are able to support a wife marry willingly.

What would be the result of a permanent strike of all women doing routine work in shops and offices and factories? Men's wages and opportunities would be so much improved that a great many more could afford to marry. This would remove an equal number of young women from the labor market, to the benefit of all concerned. Also, many young couples who today can only just manage to scrape along on the man's wages would find themselves so much better off that they could afford a servant. In this way many of the young women who went on strike would find occupation just as congenial, and generally more so than those they had been following.

If wives, daughters and sisters ceased in this way to compete with their men folk, the men would be able to follow their instinct to support them, and their improved wages would give them the means.

Now, it is obvious that no such strike as this, with the immediate readjustment of economic conditions and the absorption of the strikers, is possible. What is possible, however, is that it should happen gradually over a period of years; the result would be the same.

The first move toward bringing about a change of this kind would be to restrict the employment of women, just because their labor is cheap, in unskilled and routine work in factories, shops and offices. This work should be done by unskilled men, who would earn at it just enough to keep homes together. If they had the work they could marry the women they displaced.

The term "domestic help" has been much abused. Nevertheless, there is a dignity in the service of the home, and an outlet for a woman's individuality, that can never be found in the monotonous grind of the factory or store.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By Beatrice Fairfax

Wait Until He Proposes.

WHEN is it best to tell of one's love?

Shall a girl frankly confess her feeling as soon as, even before, the man who interests her assures her he loves her?

Is it wiser to wait? Shall she follow the example of the melancholy maiden of whom Shakespeare wrote, who

"Never told her love
But let concealment, like a worm i' the bud,
Feed on her damask cheek."

Dear Miss Fairfax, writes "Perplexed," regarding this subject.

I read your articles every evening and have benefited by them. You have helped so many people solve such trying and difficult problems that I, also, am writing you, hoping you will help me.

I am in love with a young man with whom I've been going for a long time. He has often confessed his love for me and is very wonderful to me. I have often longed to tell him how much I really care for him, but I have never dared.

I have had many friends, but I have never cared for any of them as I do for this young man. Do you think he would get tired of me if I told him I loved him?

I was afraid this would happen, so I never have told him. But I do want him to know that I love him as I never loved before.

Will you please tell me what I can do or say to show him this? I have often been tempted to tell him what I think most of the times I'm with him, but I thought I would write you and get your advice on this matter and then decide what to do.

What does a young man think of a girl who confesses her love for him?

I thank you for your kindness.

PERPLEXED

IT'S very easy to say the words, "I love you." Many men do repeat these words quite sincerely under the spell of softly-shaded lights following a romantic impulse.

But the proof that a man loves you, and you only, with all his heart, is his asking you to be his wife.

When a man asks you to marry him, you will be safe in telling him of your love for him. He will be entitled to know it then.

Until he does propose, dear, it is just as well to assume that his words of love are not to be taken too seriously. Think of him as a good friend, and assure him of your friendly affection, if you can do so sincerely. He will not lose interest because of this slight element of uncertainty.

Quite evidently things are going nicely between you and your friend. Why do you not leave well enough alone, then, and control your emotions to the extent of reserving your declaration of love for him until you are sure, beyond a doubt, that he is seriously in love with you and wishes to marry you?

Forget About Him.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young woman of twenty-four. For three years I have been in love with a man who does not love me. He goes about with another girl. I'll always love him. What is your advice, please, regarding this problem?

UNHAPPY FRANCES.

FILL your life with hard work and new, fresh interests, my dear. If you have the chance go away for awhile to stay with relatives or friends, where you will meet an entirely new circle of friends. In this way you should meet other men who are interesting and likeable, and the memory of the man who does not care for you will gradually fade from your mind. All success to you!

Frozen Salads for Hot Weather

By Hannah Wing

TIME was when frozen mixtures were served only as dessert. The increasing popularity of the salad has brought a demand for colder and crisper salad. Some ingenious hostess invented the frozen salads. Once started, the vogue has led to many new and appealing variations of frozen mixtures, which may be served as salad. However, it must be admitted that the simplest of these are the best.

Frozen Pears.

Pack a can of fine quality Bartlett pears in ice and salt for four hours. Remove lid from can, dip in hot water and slip out the pears. Slice, place on well chilled lettuce, and serve with a dressing made from a jar of marshmallows, a cup of mayonnaise dressing and half a cup of broken pecan meats.

Frozen Pineapple.

Prepare pineapple in the same way as pears. Serve with the same dressing in which a cake of cream cheese has been mashed and blended.

Frozen Fruit.

Use one-half cup each pears, peaches, pineapple, bananas and cherries. Mix with one-half cup mayonnaise and one-half cup whipped cream. Pack in mold and freeze in ice and salt, or freeze in ice-making pan of electric refrigerator. May be served without dressing, or mayonnaise and whipped cream mixed may be used.

A Child's Dignity of Character

By L. Lamar Matthews

BASCOMB was not overly strong; he was not handsome; he was not brilliant; his clothes was rather shabby. But with all of that his schoolmates treated him with consideration, his teachers did not bully him. I taught Bascomb, years ago, but I still remember the restraining influence of his personality.

L. LAMAR MATTHEWS

For Bascomb had a sort of dignity that commanded the respect of all who came in contact with him. Bascomb had a high sense of honor, a plain sense of duty and a quiet efficiency that had been drilled into him from his earliest childhood. In addition to that he was treated with respect and consideration at home and naturally he expected the same attitude from outsiders. And as sure as two and two make four, boys and girls, as well as men and women, get what they demand from the world.

"Dignity" is a term that seems appropriate to use in reference to judges and ministers rather than to boys and girls. But dignity is a most valuable asset for any child.

It comes only from a feeling of self-respect and a consciousness of approval from those in authority. The child who is continually criticised, condemned or nagged never acquires that dignity which sturdy, little fellows should have.

Arrogance, impertinence, disregard of authority are the exact opposites of dignity. Those traits belong to children of inferior natures; dignity belongs to the royalty of childhood.

It is quite true that only a few boys and girls possess sufficient "aristocracy of character" to give them this bearing of dignity, and the chosen few are those who come of parents who are true, loyal, trustworthy and hard-working.

But every normal child has more than one good quality; he has at least one outstanding virtue. And it is the child whose parents or teachers cherish and nourish and develop his God-given graces who rises above his companions.

Try to forget for a while that your child is surly, or careless, or untruthful, or greedy, or disrespectful or any of the other dozen things which he is liable to be; and think instead of the one or more good traits that he has. Maybe he is skillful in contriving little home conveniences; perhaps he is kind-hearted and ready to help anyone who is in trouble; it may be that he is particularly gifted in some line, and doesn't even know it himself; perhaps he has a splendid physique; maybe he looks quite attractive when he laughs; possibly he has a pleasant speaking voice. There is bound to be something about him that you can find to praise. The most blatant and ill-mannered of them have somewhere in their make-up the seeds that can be nurtured into dignity of character.

That little boy and girl need all of the self-esteem and commendation that their good qualities call forth.

Don't be stingy about encouraging them to make the best of their good points.

When Manners Are Correct

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

The Wedding Cake

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Kindly let me know how to serve the wedding cake at a breakfast, and also how to distribute it in small boxes. F.

THE large wedding cake usually occupies the centre of the bride's table at the wedding breakfast, and the bride always cuts the first slice, and usually the first few slices, and she may, if she wishes, cut all.

Besides this wedding cake, pieces of wedding cake (fruit cake) are packed by the caterer in small white boxes with the initials of the last names of the bride and groom entwined on the box. These boxes are tied with very narrow white ribbon. They are placed in a large container of some kind—either glass or silver bowl, or on a flat platter or silver tray—which is put in a convenient place near the entrance. Each guest, as he or she leaves, takes one of the boxes.

If your budget does not permit you to have this rather expensive luxury, you may buy very attractive and very inexpensive small wedding cake boxes at a stationer's or a caterer's and put the wedding cake in these boxes. These plain white boxes are tied with narrow white ribbon, and sometimes a small white artificial flower is tied in the knot.

Passing Food.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

When a girl is seated at the dining table with a gentleman on one side of her and a lady on the other, should she pass the food to the left or the right?

2. When someone is introduced to you in a friend's home and the person says, "I am very glad to meet you," do you say "Thank you," or what?

BETTY LOU.

THE girl would pass the dish to the lady first.

2. Do you mean if the person says this in acknowledgement of the introduction? "How do you do?" is the best phrase to use when acknowledging an introduction, and even if one of the people being introduced says "I am very glad to meet you," the other person would still best say "How do you do," for neither phrase, used as an introduction acknowledgement, requires an answer.

But if the phrase is said when the other person is leaving you, then you say "Thank you," adding, "I am very glad to have met you, too"; and even adding, if you wish to be especially enthusiastic about the meeting, "I hope that I am to have the pleasure of seeing you again," or "sometime" or "soon."

The Bridal Shower

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Should the groom-to-be attend the girl's shower? The shower will be given in his home. M.

AS I have often said in my column, there are no rules in etiquette for the giving of showers. And so for every one we have to use our sense of social form in lieu of rules. I should consider a shower given in the home of the groom-to-be in very doubtful taste, and I strongly urge you to change these plans if it is not too late.

Usually the groom-to-be does not attend a shower, but sometimes, when, for instance, the shower is a tea, the groom and some men friends of the couple are invited to come in "afterward."

(Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on etiquette submitted by readers.)

Fashion Fads and Fancies

By Mildred Ash

WEAVING an Interesting Yarn—The embroidery of many of the smartest new frocks of lightweight woolen is worked in brushed angora strands. Often a deep yoke and upper portion of the sleeves are worked in dull white yarn in a design perfectly simulating lace.

Seeming Specially Sporty, some of the newest kid oxford ties have their front section seamed on a curved line that tapers upward toward the arch of the foot. These stunning two-eyelet shoes have their upper edge cut low enough to gracefully curve below the ankle and have high, slender heels to impart additional daintiness and grace.

Panels Or Pantr—As an evidence of her feminine independence Dame Fashion has adopted the so-called "Culette" skirt for sports and travel wear. This skirt has pleats, or panels, that conceal the fact of its being cut in trouser style, thus according perfect freedom of movement without actually appearing as informal as knickers.

Giving Them the Air of being quite festive and gay, brightly colored Deauville kerchief-scarfs add dash and verve to white flannel or silk sports frocks or jacket costumes. Sometimes these jaunty silk squares are loosely knotted at one shoulder, and on other occasions they are worn like Ascot ties. Solid centres and deep checked, striped, plaided or figured borders are greatly favored.

Gazing Skyward need not be a sign of religious zeal or an interest in astronomy. In this case it merely signifies that Parisian stylists in seeking inspiration for a new shade for fashionable evening gowns adopted as the most distinctive color the sombre blue of a moonlit sky. This tone is quite the latest and smartest coloring for formal dinner and dance frocks.

Budding Fad for Rosebuds makes these exquisite little flowers the most sought after for boutonnieres. In their natural colorings, rosebuds are being worn upon coat lapel or frock shoulder by the French women who set the fashions that are so swiftly Americanized.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

To Cook Asparagus.

The stalks should be all cut the same length, and the white portion scraped downwards. Wash and tie the asparagus in bundles, with the heads all one way. Soak in cold water for half an hour, drain, wrap in muslin and steam for thirty minutes to one hour, or until the green part is tender. The time depends upon the size of the stalks. Care must be taken not to break the tips. This is a far better method than boiling, but if the latter is preferred, place the asparagus on a strainer or wrapped in muslin in a pan which will hold it lying flat. It should be just covered with salted water to which a few drops of lemon juice have been added. Boil gently until the green portion is tender.

Scratches on Glass.

Scratches on glass can be successfully rubbed off with a piece of very soft india-rubber dipped in jewellers' rouge. Draw the rubber lightly but firmly along, but not across the scratch, and persevere if the first application or two fails to remove it completely.

To Clean White Paint.

Have a piece of perfectly clean flannel and a pail of warm water and some whitening. Wring the flannel out of the water, dip it into the whitening, and rub the paint with it until the dirt disappears. Wash it again with clean water, rub it dry with a soft cloth, and give a final polish with a piece of clean chamois leather. This does not injure the paint as strong soap or cleaning powder does, but gives it a freshness and gloss.

Copper and Benares Ware.

Copper is cleaned in the same manner as brass, whitening being used instead of metal polish when a cooking utensil is being cleaned. It is sometimes necessary to clean Benares ware with spirits of salt when it has been either neglected or badly cleaned. These spirits should be very carefully applied, the hands being protected. If, however, this ware is cleaned with salt and lemon, and then washed in soda water, the surface will be kept free from the disfiguring caused by metal polish in the design.

Our Rhyming OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

FLURRY and stress of the day's demands, tasks to be finished and friends to see, wearisome toil of unresting hands, this is the pathway, for you, for me. Hurry and fret of a thousand things, gold to be gathered and work to do, moments that hasten on flying wings, this is the circle, for me, for you. Bustle and roar of the city's streets, masses that ring one around like bars; then—like a blessing the cool retreats, hush of the meadows and—ah, the stars! Calm that waits only beyond the earth, deeper and purer than man knows here, after the day with its lack and dearth, stars and their mystery, cool and clear! Hurry and fret of a thousand things lost in the dream of old avatars, something of paradise strangely clings ever for man with the dusk and stars!

DOROTHY DIX: Advice For Women

WOMEN MAY CHOOSE MATES

She Should Pick Man She Desires

"Women Will Never Be Entirely Emancipated Until They Are Free From the Shackling Old Convention That Denied Them the Right to Choose Their Own Mates," Says Dorothy Dix Emphatically.

Mrs. Borden Harriman advises girls who want to marry to go out and chase down the men they desire for husbands.

"In the old days," says Mrs. Harriman, "men did all of the courting, and many women wasted their lives waiting to be wooed. They lost the men they really wanted through the false shame which prevented an admission of their truest feeling, for love was something then to be ashamed of.

"Today girls not only feel free to confess their love for a man, but many have little hesitancy about pursuing him. I know of instances in which the upstanding moderns actually wooed and won the men they married, and not unhappily at that."

Good for Mrs. Harriman! For thirty years I have been preaching this same doctrine, for the real emancipation of women will never be realized until they are emancipated from the shackling old convention that denied them the freedom of choosing their mates. The right to vote is a poor thing compared to the right to pick out your husband. The opening up of all of the professions and the gainful occupations to women will not profit them a tithe as much as to be able to get in on the ground floor of matrimony.

There ever was any superstition that had as little to back it as the one that made it somehow indecorous for a woman to take any active part in the love making, or to have any real say so about the selection of the man with whom she was to spend the next thirty or forty years of her life, and in whose hands were to lie her whole happiness and well-being.

Getting married was not only the most important event of her whole existence, it determined the fate of generations that were to follow her, yet a woman's part in it was expected to be passive.

No matter how much she yearned to marry, all she could do was to sit on the anxious bench and twiddle her thumbs, and pray heaven to send a man along. And she had to take what luck dropped at her feet. She couldn't go out frankly and honestly and tag some man and tell him that he was "It" so far as she was concerned, and pop the question to him.

Why? Goodness only knows. For the same reason that it used to be held that it would unsex women to vote and that women would lose all of their charm if they earned an honest living by working for it instead of grafting it off some unfortunate relative.

Inasmuch as every wife is twice as much married as her husband is, and that it makes far more difference to her what sort of a husband she has than the kind of a wife he has makes to him, women should always have had the right of choice in the selection of mates.

And this would have redounded to the man's good as well as the woman's, for a contented wife is invariably a good wife, and the woman who has gotten just the man she wants for a husband spends her life in trying to please him. Most of the nagging, peevish, fretful, discontented wives are just women taking out on some poor unfortunate man their chagrin at having had to marry their opportunity instead of their preference.

Of course, there are those who contend that women always have snared men into matrimony, and that if you would ask any bridegroom at the altar how he happened to pick out the particular woman he was marrying, he couldn't tell you to save his life. Only the bride could answer that question.

This is partially true, but even so, it has always cramped women's style to have to work in the dark and to use underhand methods instead of being able to come out frankly and aboveboard and do their courting openly as men do.

For men are stupid so far as women are concerned, and many a girl wears herself to a frazzle trying to wigwag to a chap that she loves him and wants him and is the very wife for him, without his ever having the sense to get her signal. Many a man doesn't marry the woman he should marry just because she can't "sell" herself to him as he would "sell" himself to the woman he wanted.

Many a middle-aged woman would like to go to some widower she knows, who is struggling hopelessly with a household full of children, and say to him: "Marry me. I'm fond of you and I've got an unsatisfied mother heart that longs for children. I'm a good cook and manager, and I'll mother your children and make you happy and comfortable." Many a rich girl would like to say to some poor, struggling your fellow: "You are just the sort of a real, energetic, ambitious go-getter that I want for a husband. Marry me and I'll put my money into your business and we will make a prosperous and congenial couple."

But women have been held and bound by the idea that a woman must never show her feelings to a man, so the blundering widower goes along and marries a flapper who quarrels with his children, and the poor man is so afraid of being thought a fortune-hunter that he marries a girl who has no more than he has and they live scrappily ever after, and only too often end up in the divorce court.

The theory has always been that man was the pursuer and women the pursued, but not every man is by nature a lover of the chase or a seeker after adventure. There are thousands of men too timid ever to go a hunting. Thousands of others who could never screw their courage up to ever taking aim at a dear, and still thousands of others who are so myopic they would never see their quarry unless it flew up under their noses, or knocked them over. These men would take it as a perfect godsend if women would do the courting and some nice, suitable young females would come along and take them by the hands and lead them to the parson.

And there would be safety for the man who does not want to marry if women took the initiative in lovemaking for they would then, at least, have their enemy in the open and know the dangers to which they were exposed. They wouldn't wander, as they do now, amidst a thousand traps into which their unwary feet are likely to stumble at any moment. And it is much easier to decline a forthright proposition than it is one where everything is implied and insinuated and nothing definitely stated.

Anyway, woman's next step forward in securing equal rights with men is the right to pop the question, and she is putting it forh.

And she'll get you, Mr. Man, if you don't watch out.

MODISH MITZI — The Beginning Of The End — By JAY V. JAY

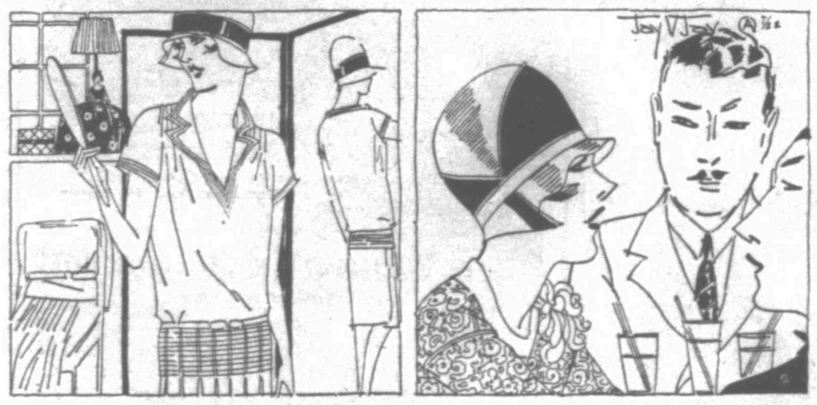
Mitzi and the Goofer got the boat first this morning. It was really necessary for Mitzi to go across the lake—where they have such cunning little shops—and buy herself some more outing dresses like this one of printed linen with short sleeves and contrasting piping.

Printed madras is a notable one of the cotton materials that are so smart this season and this special frock has a yoke, a bow and pointed pockets to recommend it. The tiny printed pattern is characteristic of this fabric. Mitzi admires it and herself in it, too, of course.



She simply must have at least one more wash silk frock and this will do superlatively well. The tucks around the hips give a tight girdle effect and tucks are the trimming of the short sleeves and revers collar, too. In green tub silk it would harmonize with the scenery.

Mitzi is so glad she wore this hat of two shades of green summer weight felt—because this is really a very interesting young man. It appears that the hotel here is a very attractive one and, after all, aren't the dresses she bought this morning a little too nice to waste on the wilderness?

Henry Ford and The Jews

HENRY FORD is about face and the American Jews are happy. Henry has recanted all along the line. Henry has settled the Aaron Sapiro million dollar libel suit out of court. Henry has apologized to Aaron. Henry has given a boost to the co-operative marketing plan of which Aaron is the Moses and chief apostle. Henry did not consult Senator James A. Reed in the settlement of the Sapiro suit out of court. Aaron is satisfied. He has been vindicated. This is all he asked. He did not want the million dollars. He did want a retraction of the charges and an apology. This makes it interesting all around.

A leading Jew of New York is of the opinion that it is a scheme of William Randolph Hearst to place Henry in the running as a candidate for president in 1928. Another eminent New York Jew is of the opinion that Henry found competition mighty strong and became convinced that he had to do something to hold his own in the sale of plebianic tin lizzies and aristocratic Lincolns. Another well known Jewish writer insists that Henry shall discharge William J. Cameron, his editor-in-chief, and the financial agent of the Dearborn Independent and this, too, without delay. He would have Henry make examples of the two men, place the branding iron on their quivering flesh and kick them out in the cold world.

Is it possible that the Dearborn Independent tail wagged the dog? Is it possible that the editor and the financial agent of the Dearborn Independent printed all the stuff the American Jews objected to, covering a period of six years, regardless of what their employer thought or the orders that he handed to the men on his payroll? If so, he is the only publisher in the wide wide world who is voiceless when it comes to making the policies of his publication and permits his writers and financial agents to go the limit regardless of consequences.

Henry has recanted. He has apologized. He is walking through the valley of atonement. It would be well for all concerned "to let sleeping dogs lie." The boycott is an ugly weapon. It should have no place in American civilization. The black list is an ugly weapon. It is out of place in American civilization. Forget it.

Highway Systems Of The Country

A BULLETIN issued by the federal bureau of public roads tells the story that state highway systems of the country, which comprise the net work of 287,928 miles, were two-thirds initially improved at the beginning of the year. Statistics just completed show 19,492 miles of surfaced roads were constructed last year, of which 13,664 miles were laid over former dirt roads and 5828 miles represented the rebuilding of old surfaces.

Ohio has the largest mileage of new surfacing placed during the year with 2411 miles. Minnesota came next. New York had the largest existing surface mileage at the first of the year with 9853 miles. Ohio ran second with 9591 miles, and Texas third with 9266 miles. Next in order came Pennsylvania, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Michigan and North Carolina.

All the other states had less than 5000 miles. Road building is in its infancy. This is the auto age. This is the rapid transit age. Revolutions never turn backwards.

A Warning To The Leaders

REPUBLICAN and Democratic leaders have been given a warning as to what will happen to the major political parties in 1928 unless they do what they are told to do by the dry leaders. Dr. Leigh Colvin is the national chairman of the prohibition party. He journeyed to Oakland, in the state of California, to let the world know that Senator William E. Borah and William Gibbs McAdoo stand as likely presidential candidates of the prohibition party in the 1928 campaign if the Democratic and Republican party leaders fail to adhere to bone-dry platform.

Chairman Colvin has issued his ultimatum. If the national leaders of the two old parties do not accept his message then the prohibition party will select either McAdoo or Borah to be its standard bearer. It will not be Borah. He will not be drafted. He never breaks away from the Republican party. He talks a lot. He votes the regular ticket on election day. He never trains with the progressive Republicans on election day. He is an independent 364 days in the year and a regular on the day that the balloting takes place.

This is his record. He has never bolted the nominees of the Republican party. He always bolts the platforms of the Republican party. Borah of Idaho knows the history of third parties and what has happened in the past to standard bearers of third parties. He has never been ambitious to be a martyr or to lead a forlorn hope. He is a reservation man and always sleeps under the roof of the wigwam.

Wisest Of Mankind

JAPAN had a very heavy financial crash not long since. It was a fearful plunge down the rocks of disaster and very costly to the government and the people. Professor Irving Fisher of Yale, after a careful survey, declared that the crash was wholly unnecessary and could have been easily avoided by the Japanese financiers and statesmen.

And yet the president of Columbia university has had the nerve to tell the American people that for the first time in 2000 years there is no great man in our midst.

It is only fair that the president of Columbia university should follow in the wake of Henry Ford and recant before he has done further damage to society and civilization.

Professor Irving Fisher isn't dead. He is very much alive. He is as wise as Solomon and as modest as the late Cyclone Jim Davis.

The Day Book of a New Yorker

By BURTON RASCOE.

NEW YORK, July 21. (EFS)—One of the queerest pastimes I know is possessed by a high school lad, living in New York, in an average family. Every Sunday afternoon, and on many a holiday, the boy goes downtown to the fire department's rescue squad on West Spring street. Having worked in the neighborhood at one time, he struck up an acquaintance with some members of the squad and became great friends with them.

And so he spends his holidays, riding furiously about on the red truck, giving the pulmotor to persons who have been poisoned by gas, extracting the pulpy remains of those who have leaped in front of a subway train or a street car, giving first aid to the injured and enjoying himself in other such macabre ministrations.

* * *

The other day I met a friend who covers Harlem court for a New York daily. He told me a funny story of a case that came up there. When they have nothing better to do, the local detectives raid one of the cheap burlesque shows on 125th street. The places are tawdry, the jokes are vulgar, and the casts are ugly; but there is never a salacious line in the dialogue. They are far cleaner morally than the Broadway revues. When they are hauled off to the magistrate, a conviction is almost never obtained. But still, the police have to make a noise like work, so they view the poor farces with alarm every so often.

The officer in this case swore that, in his opinion, the show was indecent and tending to subvert the morals of the community. When ordered to cite proof, he produced a notebook and started to read excerpts which he had taken from the play. The judge—a prim little man—objected, saying that it was not the officer's, but the court's duty to say what was and what was not indecent. And he gave it as his opinion that no group of scattered lines, however smutty, could be sufficient proof that the show was indecent. It was the main theme, the intent that counted. And he said that unless the police could produce the entire script of the play, he must dismiss the case for lack of evidence.

At this the manager of the show stepped up and said that as a favor to the court, he would be glad to have him come and view the afternoon showing and he could judge himself if it was indecent. The judge accepted the invitation.

That afternoon the entire court—judge, clerk, interpreters, bailiffs, court officers, reporters and all—went to the theater. The party was escorted to a box. My reporter friend seated himself in an opposite box to catch the expression on his honor's face. And he saw him laugh often, and clap his thighs, and enjoy himself a great deal. After the performance the judge posed with the rest of the party, in front of the house for a news photographer.

In court next morning, the principals again assembled.

"Are the people ready?" asked the judge.

"Ready, Your Honor."

"And are the defendants here?"

"Yes, Your Honor."

Then the dignitary read a lengthy decision, passing judgment to the effect that though the performance was tawdry and inane, and in substance a poor way to spend an afternoon, he could find nothing morally indecent in it.

"I find the defendant not guilty," said he. "Case dismissed. Next!"

Sally's Shoulders

READ THIS FIRST

SALLY JEROME, 20, and clever and pretty, is the prop and mainstay of her family in the absence of her father, who has been separated from her mother for nine years.

The family consists of MRS. JEROME, the twins, BEAU and MILLIE, a year older than Sally, and Sally herself. Mrs. Jerome is a semi-invalid, so Sally does the housework mornings and works for old MR. PEEVEY in the afternoons.

In the flat below the Jerome flat lives young TED SLOAN, who's in love with Sally. Sally, however, has small interest in him except as a dancing partner. She adores to dance.

One hot Monday in August Sally gets into an elevator on her way to Mr. Peevey's office. The best-looking young chap she has ever seen in her life is the only other passenger, and Sally never takes her eyes from him all the way to the top floor. Then, just as the elevator stops, she exclaims aloud that's she's "forgotten Mr. Peevey's milk"—the milk that she warms for his lunch every day. She and the unknown young man laugh at the silly words, and Sally goes to buy the milk with a strangely light heart. Later she sees the man in the office opposite Mr. Peevy's. On the door is painted his name and business: "JOHN NYE—REAL ESTATE." Sally wishes she knew him.

Millie drops into the office, in Mr. Peevey's absence, to tell Sally that she has just lost her job because she wouldn't let her employer get gay with her. Millie maintains that she just won't let any man in an office make love to her, although Beau's girl, MABEL WILMOT, says this is not the truth. Millie gets a glimpse of John Nye across the hall and makes up her mind to ask him if he needs a stenographer. Sally is dreadfully afraid that she will, and makes up her mind to stop her.

(Now go on with the story).

"Let me go and get it for you," he offered.

CHAPTER III.

To save her life, Sally Jerome could not have told, at that moment, why she was so afraid that Millie would cross the hall to John Nye's neat new offices and ask him for work.

But afraid she certainly was, beyond all doubt and argument. And along with her fear was a queer little pain that twisted like a knife in her heart. Surely, she told herself sharply, she couldn't be jealous of that man on the other side of the hall. Why, she never had so much as laid eyes on him until this day at noon! She didn't know him—didn't know anything about him. He was nothing to her, and she was less than nothing to him, probably.

She remembered, with a pang of shame, that he had barely glanced at her during that upward flight in the elevator when she had stared at him so openly and brazenly.

Then why on earth should it make any difference to her whether Millie asked him if he needed a stenographer or not? Whether she went to work for him as his stenographer? And yet, somehow, it did make a difference, and a big difference. It made all the difference in the world, it seemed to Sally just then.

"Maybe your slick-looking friend across the hall needs a good steno," Millie was saying now, in that slow, dreamy way of hers. Millie always spoke of herself as a "good" stenographer, but the hard, cold fact was that she was a very poor one.

"So long as I've got to work for some man or other, I may as well pick a looker," her soft little voice flowed on like peaceful water. "I'm sick and tired of these old papas that try to hold my hand and make dinner dates with me. Why, Bursall had two daughters older than I am, but he still thinks he's Ben Lyon or Rickard Dix. I used to want to yell at him: 'Be yourself, Daddy! Be your age!' when he got sentimental—"

"Well, why didn't you?" Sally interrupted with cold briskness.

"Why didn't I?" Millie repeated, and it was a minute more before she could think up an answer to that question.

"Why, because I was working for him, of course," she said then, her blue eyes wide between their blackened lashes.

"What difference did that make?" Sally went on, with a shrug of her expressive shoulders. "The fact that you were working for him was all the more reason why he should have treated you with respect and he knew it—and you knew it! You should have been ashamed of yourself, Millie Jerome. It was your own fault. No man is going to start anything with a girl who behaves herself—"

"Oh, you don't know what you're talking about," her sister broke in, with a faint show of spirit. "You work up here with Old Peevey, who's dying on the branch, and you think all men are like him. But they aren't! Not by a long day's journey. They're horrid, some of them. Most of them, in fact."

"Yes," asked Sally, as if she didn't believe it. "Well, I'll bet you anything you like that they wouldn't be horrid with me more than once! I'd tell 'em PLENTY." She gave a vigorous nod with her dark, glossy head and her blue eyes blazed.

Millie laughed. "Yes, but I'm not hard-boiled like you are," she said gently. She could say the most cutting things in the sweetest, softest little way.

And what she had just said to Sally was most unjust. Sally was not "hard-boiled." But she was hard. She had had to be hard to carry on for her family as she had for years.

She was hard and fine as a diamond is fine and hard, and crystal-clear. There was nothing musty about her. Nothing flabby. Nothing soft and silly. Her mind was as alert and quick and healthy as her firm young body.

As she faced Millie now there was something almost boyish in the blue directness of her eyes, the frankness of her sudden quick smile.

"Let's not row any more," she said pleadingly. "It never gets us anywhere." She held out one of her firm little hands in a friendly offer to "shake on it."

But Millie shook her blond head in its almond-green hat.

"No thanks," she answered stubbornly. "You can't stick pins into me one minute and soft-soap me the next!" She locked her hands behind her back, and swung around towards the door.

"Well, I think I'll drift across the hall and see if there happens to be an opening over there," she finished.

But before she had time to do it the door of John Nye's office was pushed wide open and he came out. Without so much as a glance at them he clapped his hat to his head and was off down the corridor in a hurry.

Millie made a rueful little face. "Well, I didn't have to walk past a bee-hive to get stung that time, did I?" she asked slangily. "Well, I'm off. I think I'll go home and have a cold bath and go to bed. I was up late last night, and I sure am dead. See you later." And she, too, was gone, leaving her gloves on Sally's desk and a fragrance of "Love Lyrics" perfume on the hot air of the little room.

But she was back almost before she was gone. "Did I leave my gloves here?" she asked.

She came over to the side of her sister's chair and put her arm around her shoulders.

"Sally, I'm sorry I said you were hard-boiled," she began. "You know I didn't mean it, don't you?"

"Of course I do," Sally answered, generously and promptly. "We shouldn't row—you and I. We say such rotten things to each other, and neither one of us means them."

Millie nodded her head slowly. "That's true," she said. "And say, Sally, will you do me a favor? Will you lend—"

She stopped short as Mr. Peevey popped into the room.

He flung his hat over a hook, scowled horribly, and sniffed the perfumed air like a hunting dog.

"What's that smell?" he asked bitterly. He was always in a terrible temper after he had been to the dentist.

"That's my perfume, Mr. Peevey," answered Millie impudently. There never had been any love lost between Millie and Mr. Peevey. "Don't you like it?"

Mr. Peevey paid not the least bit of attention to her.

"I'll have my lunch now, Miss Jerome," he barked at Sally, looking over Millie's head as if she were not in the room.

"Well, goodby," murmured Millie, to her sister, and then in an undertone: "You couldn't let me take two dollars, could you?"

Sally gave it to her, and she went.

"I hope she doesn't buy any more perfume with it," remarked Mr. Peevey when he and Sally were alone.

He began to walk up and down the little office with short jerky steps. "What happened to all the women, anyway?" he wanted to know. "They must ha' all gone crazy! Messing themselves up with powder and perfume and one thing and another until they ain't like anything human!"

He glared at Sally from under bristling eyebrows. "Some sense to you!" he snapped at her. "The only fool thing you've done so far is to cut your hair off!"

Sally looked back at him unhappily. "Mr. Peevey," she said, "I'm so sorry, but this milk has turned sour. It won't take me five minutes to get some more—I'll be right back."

Out in the street the crowds of people moved listlessly under the broiling sun. Men carried their coats under their arms, and mopped their faces with damp handkerchiefs. Women went on heavy feet from store to store, buying ice cream freezers and hammocks, thermos bottles and electric fans. The soda fountains were doing a record business.

But Sally Jerome, darting through the crowd on flying feet, had no thought of the terrific heat. Her one idea was to get another bottle of milk for Mr. Peevey as quickly as she could.

"It would be just like him to discharge me today," she remarked to herself on her way back to the Nye-Naylor building with the cold bottle under her arm, "just when Millie's out of a job, too."

Sally's constant fear was that she would lose her position with Mr. Peevey. She knew that part-time jobs that paid as well as hers paid were few and far between.

And she had to have a part-time job as long as her mother was too ill to do the housework by herself. For Millie knew nothing about the making of beds, the sweeping of floors, and the cooking of meals. She was worse than useless around the house.

"It's just up to me to keep this job, no matter what happens!" said Sally to herself as she stepped into the elevator in the lobby.

A man stepped in just ahead of her, but it was not until the car had started that she recognized him.

It was Mr. John Nye, himself!

This time Sally did not look at him. She kept her eyes demurely upon the paste-board lid of the bottle until they reached the top floor.

She started down the long marble corridor almost at a run.

Halfway between the elevators and Mr. Peevey's office the corridor made a sharp turn, and as Sally rounded it her elbow struck the shining wall beside her. The bottle of milk fell from her arms and broke upon the floor in a hundred pieces!

"Oh, my cow!" groaned Sally, and she groaned it aloud and with despair.

"I don't dare go back for it," she thought, "I just don't dare face Mr. Peevey without that milk."

She turned and spoke to the tall dark young man who was just coming around the treacherous corner.

"Would you lend me a quarter?" she said to him desparately. "I've broken this milk bottle, and I've got to get some more."

The man nodded. One of his tanned hands went into a trousers' pocket but instead of bringing out a quarter it held a square of clean white handkerchief.

"Let me go and get the milk for you," he offered, "while you clean up this mess. Or shall I send a cleaning woman?—I think there's one somewhere on this floor—"

"Oh, no!" Sally's voice was quick and strained. "I'll clean it up, myself. And DO hurry—please!"

When he was gone she looked at the handkerchief he had given her. It was fine white linen with a rolled edge. In one corner were the initials "J. N." embroidered with dark blue silk.

Sally held it for a full minute. And then she did a thing that wasn't at all the sort of thing anyone would expect of Sally—a sentimental and romantic thing. She slipped that square of linen handkerchief into her blouse and began to pick up the shattered glass with her little work-roughened fingers.

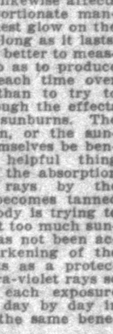
TAN AND SUNBURN

The ultra-violet rays from sunlight are chemical rays which have a distinctly beneficial effect upon the body through influencing the growth of the red blood-cells. When taking a sunbath, either in the nude or at the bathing beach, one should always keep in mind the fact that an overdose of these chemical rays is always injurious.



I find that some people suffer from the mistaken belief that if a little sunshine is good, a great deal more will be better. Extreme sunburn is, of course, understood to be very dangerous, as the pores of the skin become so swollen and injured by the burn that proper elimination of poisons from the body cannot take place. A small amount of sunburn likewise affects the body in a proportionate manner. Even the faintest glow on the skin is injurious as long as it lasts. It is therefore much better to measure your sunbath so as to produce an increasing tan each time over several exposures than to try to become tanned through the effects of only one or two sunburns. The tanning of the skin, or the sunburn, cannot in themselves be beneficial. The only helpful thing about a sunbath is the absorption of the ultra-violet rays by the blood. The skin becomes tanned only because the body is trying to protect itself against too much sunlight to which it has not been accustomed. The darkening of the skin, therefore, acts as a protection against the ultra-violet rays so that the time of each exposure must be increased day by day in order to daily get the same benefit.

One whose skin is well tanned shows he has been taking plenty of sunbaths and consequently has benefitted by the large amount of ultra-violet rays which were needed to produce such a dark color. However, as stated, the darkening of the skin itself is of no benefit, but must be considered a necessary change which takes place.

If you want to stay on the beach a long time, it is a wise thing for you to expose your body for only a short time, keeping it covered with a blanket or robe the rest of the time. Hours can thus be spent at the beach with benefit from the inhalation of the fresh, clean, moist air.

Try, this summer, to regulate your body's exposure to the sun so that you receive the maximum amount of benefit and the minimum amount of sunburn.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

QUESTION: Miss A. B. writes: "I am afraid I am getting an ingrown toenail. Will you kindly tell me how to prevent it from getting any worse?"

ANSWER: Any chiropodist can treat your toenail and show you how to make it grow into normal shape. One method of treatment is to shave the nail thin in the center so the edges will be encouraged to grow toward the center, making the nail more narrow. Ask your chiropodist to show you how to use this method of treatment.

QUESTION: Mrs. W. A. S. writes: "One of our boys (almost eleven) frequently has pimples on his ears. But the last few days he has a lot of small pimples on the inside of his mouth. I bathe them with boracic solution, but wondered if you could tell me the cause and cure. He is in excellent health, he is very fond of eggnogs and has had one every day for years."

ANSWER: Such unwholesome mixtures as eggnogs would be just the thing to cause pimples on your boy's skin or even inside his mouth. Raw eggs and milk should never be used together, but may be used cooked in the form of custard.

QUESTION: Chicken Raiser writes: "What are the best types of chickens for table use?"

ANSWER: The best types are the Brahma, Cochin, Langshan, Dorking, Orphington, Plymouth Rock, Wyandotte, Rhode Island Red and Houdan. Thick scales on the legs, thin necks, and dark colored thighs are signs of toughness in chickens. A good table bird should have a large full breast and, at other points also a large proportion of meat to the size of the bone. Chickens should be starved for at least 24 hours before killing. Those killed with partially full crops should be avoided, as the disintegration of the grain quickly discolors the flesh. They are more tender if held for two or three days before cooking."

The ONE-MINUTE PULPIT

How excellent is thy loving kindness, O God! therefore the children of men put their trust under the shadows of thy wings.

They shall be abundantly satisfied with the fatness of thy house; and thou shalt make them drink of the river of thy pleasures.

For with thee is the fountain of life: in thy light shall we see light.

O continue thy loving kindness unto them that know thee; and thy righteousness to the upright in hear. Psalm 36:7-11.

CORBETT SEES JACK AS BEST

Dempsey Great Battler, Says Ex-Champ

By JAMES J. CORBETT.

Former Heavyweight Champion of the World.

(Copyright, 1927 by Universal Service.)

YANKEE STADIUM, NEW YORK, July 21.—It was a great fight while it lasted, a thriller from start to finish and the better man won.

When Jack Dempsey ripped his world famous left hook to Jack Sharkey's chin in the seventh the first solid shot he really landed Sharkey went down and out.

And so the "old man" made a brilliant and spectacular comeback against a really great youngster and with this fight as a tuner up Dempsey must be regarded as the man who may defy precedent and climb once again to the pinnacle of pugilism where he dominated for so long.

Dempsey came back tonight in remarkable fashion. He hurdled not only the handicap of age and inactivity and the remembrance of the beating Gene Tunney gave him but he got away to a terrible first round start—and still battled on to victory.

When Dempsey took that first round whipping from Sharkey and practically staggered back to his corner it did not seem as if he had one chance in ten to emerge the eventful winner. But the great gameness of him, his lion-hearted courage, th will to win, and his really splendid condition enabled him to recuperate and go on to triumph.

Sharkey also won the second round, as I viewed it but from then on it looked like Dempsey. Certainly as the fight progressed Dempsey fought a cool and brainy fight. I can not say so much for Sharkey. He did what I figured he would do when I saw him in training, he cast caution and his natural science to the four winds and tried to beat Dempsey at his own game, slugging and in-fighting.

Dempsey punched Sharkey terribly in the clinches. Every time they were locked Dempsey hit Sharkey with a shower of blows. Sharkey always got the worst of clinching, and still he ran into them.

Either he isn't the smart fighter that he was supposed to be or his stubbornness or his cockiness made him do the things fatal to his chances. For as one round followed another, Sharkey was slowing perceptibly under the fusillade of body pounding and Dempsey was constantly crowding him and outstepping him.

They never made a fighter gamer or with a finer heart than Jack Dempsey showed tonight. And every cheer of the mighty volume that they gave him tonight was richly deserved. It was deserved tribute to a truly great fighter in a marvellous comeback.

Runyon Says Dempsey Best

bloody face while Bill Duffy, who worked in the corner with Flynn, worked Dempsey's gloved right fist up and down like a pump handle. The scowling face of the Manassa man mauler broke into a wide smile, and he permitted himself to be dragged to a microphone into which he spouted a few hurried words.

Police in Ring.

A squad of special policemen leaped into the ring and took charge of Dempsey, escorting him out, and down through a long aisle, with the people elbowing and crowding to just get a look at the man who had made this sensational return from the pugilistic elba. It was a bitter, guelling, grinding battle for big men right from the jump. With the prize of a fight for the million dollar heavyweight title before them, they both came out of their corners at the opening bell as if determined to end it in a few punches.

Sharkey, the rubbery ex-gob, a gabby fellow with an air of braggadocio that irritates some folks, has been accused of being none too courageous, but he waded into Dempsey horse, foot and guns. In fact, he obviously tried to take the play away from the man who was always his pugilistic idol, and from whom he took one of the names he uses in the ring. He out-fought Dempsey in the first round by a slight margin, as I saw it, and took the third, fourth and fifth, with the second even up. During the early part of the fight, Dempsey took so many of Sharkey's punches, and seemed to be tiring so much, that it looked as if he was in for a bad whipping, and probably a knockout. Sharkey fought him with zip and dash, firing right handers at Dempsey's chin as if the old man mauler was some preliminary unknown.

Dempsey Gets Busy.

Then in the sixth, Dempsey seemed to commence to find himself and to fight himself into his old fighting form.

Where his punches had appeared reluctant, weak, and slow they began to carry some snap and sting. He actually began out boxing the very good boxer Sharkey, getting away from Sharkey's swings as nimbly as a lightweight.

Up to that time, his foot work had been heavy. He had tried to bob and weave in his old style, but couldn't seem to get his body, or rather his legs, to respond. When the bell rang for the seventh he left his corner with a quick little spring, and there was spring beneath him as he bobbed toward Sharkey, executing a curious little half circle as he advanced that had evidently been mapped out beforehand as part of his plan to battle.

"It looks as if he has found it," some one behind me remarked the "it" being the form that used to be Dempsey's and that he couldn't find in any one of the other rounds he fought against Gene Tunney at Philadelphia last fall, when he lost his title.

The ring punch to the chin is really what knocked Sharkey senseless, of course. The body punches merely put him in position and condition for that final shot, and Dempsey stepped right into Sharkey with a bang and a swing born of long experience. He was the old killer on the hill when that punch cut loose, sensing instinctively the instant for the killing blow.

Dempsey of Old

He was the Dempsey of the hot afternoon at Toledo and the Dempsey of the hotter afternoon at Boyle's thirty acres, and the Dempsey of the very warm night at the polo grounds, at that instant, though perhaps not at any other instant before that. Older, and slower, but still a puncher, and a dead game fellow from soda to hock, that's Dempsey.

By his victory over Sharkey, the former heavyweight champion of the world undoubtedly gets the match with Gene Tunney in Chicago in September, which Rickard thinks will draw $2,000,000.

Sharkey Favorite

For weeks, Sharkey has been the favorite in the betting at 8 to 5, though at times he went to a 9 to 5 and even to 2 to 1 in spots. There was a last minute switch when it developed that Dempsey had weighed in at 194 1-2 pounds to Sharkey's 196, the gambling boys figuring that Dempsey's weight argued good condition. The question of Dempsey's condition for columns and columns by the experts who watched him training at Saratoga is probably all that kept Sharkey the favorite.

At ring time it was reported that there had been a switch in the betting, and that Dempsey was 11 to 10 favorite, a circumstance, which, if true, will cause some of the boys who thought Sharkey would win to look the bout askance. But the bulk of the money was already down on Sharkey at the prices mentioned, and the switch couldn't mean a great deal.

He Predicted Dempsey

Personally, I predicted that Dempsey would win by a knockout or by decision at the end of fifteen rounds, basing it entirely on his condition as it struck me. I thought he looked good enough to beat a man who had displayed no more punch in his previous bouts than Sharkey, who couldn't knock the venerable Wills or McTigue off their pins, though his record shows he beat them by technical knockout.

Six days before the fight, Dempsey knocked off boxing, a most unusual move, but it seems to have worked out all right. The rest probably brought him into the ring fresher than if he had kept on working, but it served to confuse the experts no little. They thought Leo P. Flynn had gone crazy.

Sharkey was the general pick of the experts on his youth, and the old law of the game that they don't come back.

Thought Him Done

Dempsey made such a miserable showing defending his title they thought he must be all through. He had gone through only about fifty rounds of actual fighting since he won the title eight years ago, and has been living the life of the millionaire when at Hollywood. Thus the experts argued that he must necessarily be all softened up.

But Dempsey, his pride hurt by his showing at Philadelphia, stood a long seige of manual labor out in California before he even started training, then he trained there for quite a spell before coming east to his Saratoga camp.

He got himself ready, apparently, by conquering himself, which would indicate that Mr. Dempsey is a man of some sternness of character.

Sharkey Younger

Sharkey is about eight years younger than Dempsey. He came on and up the past two years by beating a number of good men, Godfrey, Wills, McTigue, and finally Jimmy Maloney. Among them he knocked out Maloney in five rounds last May in the same ring and on the same field where 90,000 people saw him clipped last night.

As I say, some of the punches Dempsey let go at Sharkey in that final mix up seemed low. But as I understand it, even when a low punch is struck in the ring the referee frequently uses his judgment and discretion as to whether it damaged the recipient before awarding a decision on a foul. Also, I am told, the question of intent often enters into the matter.

It would have taken a bold man, indeed to stop the fight last night, on a foul, and deprive the noble 90,000 who had paid over $1,000,000 to Mr. Rickard, of their favorite spectacle.

In any event, what you might call the semi-windup of the battle of the lake front has now passed into history, and there is nothing left to do but prepare for Chicago and Dempsey's next step on his journey back from Hasbeenville.

By JACK O'SULLIVAN
(Who Refereed the Dempsey-Sharkey Fight in Statement Made to Universal Service.)

NEW YORK, July 21.—The punch that Sharkey claimed was a low blow in the seventh round was not low, as I viewed it. The punch was fair. And when Sharkey made the protest, I naturally over-ruled him. I ordered the men to go on with the fight. After I made the ruling Dempsey got into fighting action first, and hooked his left to Sharkey's chin, the blow that dropped Sharkey and ended the fight.

San Angelo Rancher Leases 15 Sections

Special to The Record News.

SAN ANGELO, July 21.—Paul Willoughby, San Angelo ranchman, has leased from C. E. Boyd of San Angelo his fifteen-section ranch in western Schleicker and northeastern Crockett county and has purchased the live stock on the place. Approximately 3500 sheep, 240 cattle and eight saddle horses brought $42,600, while the entire deal, including the lease for four and a half years, amounted to around $60,000. Possession of the ranch and live stock will be given this week.

THE HOME STAND SO FAR: SPUDDERS 12; OPPONENTS 2.

* * *

We stand nine up against two down with the Beaumonters on the season's play. Jeems' boys have helped us quite a distance toward that pennant.

* * *

That clout of Wally's in the thirteenth yesterday just about socked the bunting in the bag. Houston lost again, so Wichita Falls holds a 10 1-2 game lead over the second rungers.

* * *

The eminent Mr. Fussell arrived just in time to win his sixteenth of the season. Great twirling by the crooked arm has right along this year been one of the prime reasons Wichita Falls is roosting atop its little baseball world the Texas league.

* * *

SO TRUE.

The grandstand manager just about 11 times out of a dozen is wrong. Quite several of the bugs gurgled raspberry chirps full half a season for Swenson and Lamb. Why? Don't ask me. Wally and Lucy have proved two of the most valuable cogs in a pennant-winning machine.

* * *

YOU UNDERSTAND.

"Tell 'em please for me," yurbles the great Williams, "that I'm certainly one happy man over that fine automobile the fans gave me. Tell 'em I certainly do appreciate the gift and above all the spirit of the thing. Tell 'em something good to express just how I feel. You know what I mean, I'm not much of an orator or writer so I can't tell 'em as eloquently myself as I want to."

* * *

THAT'S WHY.

One J. Dempsey just naturally couldn't lose last night. He was riding with a winning combination. Practically the entire Spudder outfit was behind the Manassa Mauler, picking him to cop by a knock out.

* * *

Wichita Falls fight fans, the majority of them, called the turn, too. Most of them predicted a Dempsey victory. Your Panhandle friend, "Cabby" Cabiness, for one, prophesied a Dempsey triumph in seven rounds.

* * *

WITTY LITTLE DEVIL.

"C'mon, Joe, nobody up there," blurbed the mighty Lajan as he reached for a high one served to a Beaumont batter by Kiefer.

* * *

YUS.

Mike Reed writes as if he wishes another crack at Matsuda. In letter to this col, the Bulgarian welter declares he can beat the Jap "clean wrestling," that is, if the jiu jitsu is barred. Says Matchmaker Ross is trying to protect the Nipponese and won't give an outsider a square deal.

* * *

Dutch pens another epistle the kernel of which is, "Hassen, that terrible (?) Turk, has beat most of the clever welters but me. You watch, if he licks that Chink, they'll be wanting me to come and take him down."

* * *

Swenson Wrests Victory For Spuds in 13th Round

Clouts by Griffin, Lamb, LaFayette, Turgeon, Jenkins Including Four Homers, Beat Beaumont

BY BLONDY CROSS.

A slim, rusty-haired lad from the great state of Minnesota today stands out as one of Wichita Falls' most prominent citizens.

Because it was the Swedish Wally Swenson, the mauling Minnesotan, who practically sewed up the Texas league pennant for Wichita Falls Thursday afternoon at Spudder park by furnishing the second afternoon in succession the victory-punch that captured an extra-inning game for Carl Williams' Spudders. Coming up in the thirteenth stanza of a hectic melee with Beaumont's dungeon dwellers, Swenson found Pug Griffin on second base by virtue of a lead-off single to left, and with two out, blasted a drive to center field for two cushions and sent Pug scampering over the platter with the winning run. Wichita Falls took the game by a 9-8 score. Griffin had singled and Lamb had made it safe on fielder's choice when Phillips picked up his sacrifice bunt and threw late to the keystone after Griffin. The next two hitters hoisted out to left with no advance and then Swenson came to the rescue with the money poke.

Beaumont had amassed a three-run lead in the ninth when the Wichita Falls defense crumbled. LaFayette and Griffin hit home runs in the last half of the ninth which, paired with a single by Turgeon, tied the score. Lamb and Jenkins contributed homers earlier in the melee.

Beaumont Scores First

The Shippers drew first blood, nudging over for a run in the third stanza. Hansen opened with a blistering double to right. Dorman soared out to center with no advance and then Kiefer slipped a cog in the old control and walked Capes and Connolly. Galloway rolled out to LaFayette at first unassisted. Hansen tabulating. Watkins bobbled out to Turgeon.

The boys from the lower regions wubbed us for a couple more counters in the fourth on a trio of singles. Robertson bingled to center and Dunning bunted over Swenson's head as the latter charged in to snag the play. Robertson went to second and Dunning was safe at first. Jenkins enacted a sweet catch of Smith's short slap to left. There was no advance. Hansen grounded out, Turgeon to LaFayette, Robertson and Dunning both moving up a notch. Dorman pinked a one-baser between first and second, scoring Robertson and Dunning. Capes popped to Kiefer.

Pete Rides Bicycle

Kiefer blanked the enemy in the fifth and sixth while his mates worked over three runs, tying the score. Two tallies came in the fifth after there were two out. Turgeon hopped a single over short and Capes dropped Griffin's rocket to port, Turgeon legging it all the way to the plate. Griffin drew up at second and checked in a moment later when Lamb laced a bristling single to left. Jenkins grounded out. Benton doubled to left center in the sixth and Swenson followed with the pinch punch, slapping a hot bingle past third. Rabbit scored standing up. The next three hitters were retired.

Beaumont untied the knot in the seventh, scoring a run, but our side hustled right back in the same frame and took the lead by checking in two markers. A walk, a fielder's choice figured with singles by Galloway and Watkins for the Exporter score. It was a simple route we took to overcome that lead and the quickest. Lamb and Jenkins merely walked up to the medallion and slugged home runs almost over the same spot atop the left field fence. We like our home runs, we do. That made the score, 5-4 Wichita Falls.

Victorious Ninth Round

Everything was quiet along the Wichita river through the eighth, but purgatory popped in the ninth and the fistful of fans who attended the show were given a flossy display of pyrotechnics out of season. Our defense sprung a couple of leaks, Pug muffing a can of corn in center and Turge putting a knee into a hopper at second. These outre movements pieced in with a triple by Capes, singles by Connolly and Hansen, a sacrifice by Galloway and a walk to Robertson scored four Exporters. Lefty Fussell joined the argument midway, not so much because Joe was in trouble, but because there were three lefthanded hitters coming up in a row, Galloway promptly switched and ran in two starboard pinch swatsmen who would have failed dismally but for one of the boots coming at a very inconvenient moment. The four tallies put the cellar habitues out front by a margin of three.

You know what happened next. LaFayette, Turgeon and Griffin kind of salved the situation by knocking in three to tie her up again. LaFayette opened the inning with a mighty blast that cleared the right field wall with many large feet to spare. Turgeon slammed a single into left and Griffin followed with a home run shot over the port palisade, scoring Pete ahead of him and knotting her up. The explosion dismantled Elmer and Buzz Phillips relieved. He retired the next three batsmen.

PIRATES DROP LEAGUE LEAD

Braves Scuttle Buccaneers With Twin Victory

BOSTON, July 21. (AP)—The Pirates were scuttled today by the Braves, losing both games of a double-header and their precarious hold on first place in National league percentage. The scores were 2 to 1 and 5 to 2. The Boston club played heads up baseball, fielding spectacularly and completing six snappy double plays in the two games. The score:

BROWNS 5-2, SENS 4-2.

ST. LOUIS, July 21. (AP)—With the score tied, 2 to 2, the second game of a double-header between the Washington Senators and the St. Louis Browns was called after the seventh inning today because of wind and darkness. The Browns won the first game, 5 to 4, with a ninth inning rally which brought in three runs. The score:

Today's Game Starts at 3:30

The Beaumont-Spudder game Friday afternoon will be called a half hour earlier, said Secy. Guy Airey yesterday, in order for the Exporters to catch an early bus out of town after the battle.

So today being "Ladies' Day," the fem fans will have to get through with the noon dishes in a hurry and hustle out to the orchard by 3:30. The game's called for 3:30 sharp.

Either the Old Trojan himself or young Herb Cobb will do the flinging for the Spudders. The illustrious Fussell had been carded for the chunking chores this afternono, but bumped into some extra service in that 13-inning affair yesterday so Fred rests today.

Polo Teams In Action Sunday

Both detachments of Wichita Falls polo'sts, the Blue of the civilians and the Red of the National Guardsmen, don harness Sunday afternoon in practice play at Call field, it was announced Thursday. A practice game which is to be open to the public, will be played at 4:30 o'clock the Sabbath afternoon, said Horrace Robbins, captain of the civilians.

Saturday and Sunday a week hence, the guardsmen of Wichita Falls, Second battalion of the 131st field artillery, will play the First battalion team of the same division. The Abilene guardsmen plan to ship their ponies through here next week-end en route to the annual training session at Camp Palacios. They will stop off in Wichita Falls for two games both of which are to start at 4:30 o'clock.

BELLMONT PUT ON PROBATION

U. Athletic Head Must Bring Harmony

AUSTIN, July 21. (AP)—The reported "exoneration" of L. Theo Bellmont by Texas university regents investigating the controversy revolving about his policies as school athletic director, proved today to be only a conditional exoneration wit ha tang of reprimand in it.

A hitherto unrevealed resolution adopted by the regents Tuesday put Bellmont on probation for a year with notice that his retention after that will depend on his ability to allay criticism and keep up harmony. "If he (Bellmont) is unable to accomplish this, his usefulness will cease," the resolution said. It was prepared by Regent Sam Neathery and released only today by C. D. Simmons, secretary of the board which cloaked its meetings this week with secretary. A report secured by all newspaper men after the Tuesday meeting that Bellmont was exonerated by the regents went unchallenged by the board at the time.

Regent Neathery made the minority "favorable" report from the investigating committee which was adopted. R. L. Holliday of El Paso and Edward Crane of Dallas had a majority unfavorable report.

The statement from Simmons was secured by the Austin Statesman after inquiries to certain regents.

Controversy has centered about Bellmont's athletic administration intermittently for several months and has been investigated by both faculty and regents' committees.

Simmons' signed statement of the board's action dated July 19 said:

"Motion was adopted by the board of regents that Mr. Bellmont be retained and that he be called before the board of regents and advised that his further retention after this coming year depends on his ability to allay criticism and in securing harmonious co-operation with all of his subordinates, that he refrain from newspaper interviews reflecting upon his subordinates and that he be not guilty of any criticism of those who work under him except to them personally or to the faculty and the athletic council and then only in friendly, conciliatory manner; that if he can do this, he will prove a valuable man with his energy and ability. If he is unable to do this, then his usefulness will cease."

REGENT CONFIRMS PROBATION STORY.

SHERMAN, Texas, July 21. (AP)—Commenting upon the reported "probation" of L. Theo Bellmont by Texas university regents, Sam Neathery of McKinney, member of the board of regents, Thursday said that "anything given out to the press by C. D. Simmons, secretary of the board is correct."

Mr. Neathery was a visitor in Sherman today.

Round by Round With Jack Dempsey

The main bout between Dempsey and Sharkey opened at 9:35 p. m., after the usual preliminaries.

ROUND ONE: Dempsey came out in a crouch and fell into a clinch, hammering five short rights to the body as Sharkey missed a left hook. Dempsey bored in again, drilling hard smashes to the ribs. Jack hooked two lefts to Dempsey's head. They were close again, and Sharkey got in two more to the head. Sharkey stabbed Dempsey with a left to the head. Dempsey bored in again, took two lefts to the head and again drove short punches to Sharkey's body. Sharkey looked tired. A left hook shook Sharkey's head back. Sharkey licked Jack with two right uppercuts. Dempsey, reeling and groggy, moved about the ring under a fusillade. Sharkey smashed him again with rights. Dempsey was groggy as Sharkey missed a long right. The bell caught Sharkey half way through a right swing. Dempsey went to his corner very tired.

ROUND TWO: Dempsey's seconds worked on him while Sharkey lay back calm and confident. Jack came out slowly and Sharkey missed a left. Sharkey drove Dempsey to the ropes with a fiercely at Sharkey's body but laid on heavy in the clinch. Dempsey missed a wild left hook. In close, they swapped jolts to the ribs. Dempsey held as Sharkey clubbed to the body. Sharkey nailed Dempsey with a left to the head and drove Dempsey to the ropes with short rights to the jaw. The Boston boy was landing at will, solid smashes to the chin that rocked the former champion. They slugged fiercely in the center of the ring as Dempsey nailed Sharkey with two hooks to the chin. Dempsey was very tired after the flurry but managed to hook his left hand twice on Sharkey's chin. They were in a clinch at the bell.

ROUND THREE: A small cut appeared under Dempsey's left eye from Sharkey's jab. Dempsey drove a long left to the stomach and then took a left and right uppercut as he swayed to close quarters. Dempsey missed left to the head but landed two right folts on Sharkey's chin. Jack Dempsey shuffled in, apparently stronger, crowding Sharkey with a body attack. They were locked in a clinch. They stood for a moment and looked each other over, tired from the fierce pace. Dempsey whipped over a right uppercut as he wove in. Sharkey caught Dempsey with a wicked right smash to the chin as the former champion came in to whale at the Boston boy's body. Sharkey buried two lefts in Dempsey's body and Dempsey stepped back. Sharkey slipped and went down in his own corner but was up without a count. No blow was struck and the bell ended the session while Sharkey was on his knee.

ROUND FIVE: Dempsey appeared to be finding himself under the heat of the milling. He shuffled out and skimmed Sharkey's chin with a left. Sharkey stabbed Jack about the head but Dempsey caught a left hook on his nose. Sharkey spit blood as Dempsey swung in close for another short armed body attack. Sharkey met him with a right uppercut coming in but Dempsey got in two lefts to the ribs. Sharkey landed a straight right to the head and Dempsey clinched. A cut appeared on Dempsey's left cheek. Dempsey bored right back throwing rights to the body but taking Sharkey's left four times to the head. Dempsey hooked a solid left to Sharkey's head and the sailor wobbled. Another left drove Sharkey back but the Boston boy came out slugging as the round ended.

ROUND SIX: Sharkey apparently much fresher than Dempsey, was playing a waiting game. He let Dempsey rush him again and Jack missed a long left to Sharkey's head. Sharkey was short with a left to the chin but his right smacked solidly on Dempsey's jaw. Dempsey missed a long left. Dempsey came steadily on, however, ramming away to the body but Sharkey was all elbows on defense. Sharkey slapped a right to Dempsey's face. Dempsey followed him and they bobbed at each other until Sharkey shot Dempsey's head back with a terrific right uppercut to the jaw. It was the cleanest and hardest punch of the fight so far. Dempsey leaned in, however, pushing Sharkey to the ropes. Dempsey caught the sailor coming out with three smashes to the head and the crowd booed as Sharkey deliberately poked Dempsey in the face after the bell.

ROUND SEVEN: They were busy in Dempsey's corner fixing his right eye. When they came out Sharkey was first to lead, missing with a left. Then they went together. Dempsey gave Sharkey plenty of trouble. Finally Dempsey looking like the fighter of days gone by with a terrific left hook to the jaw and Sharkey went down for the count. Sharkey's handlers claimed the blow was foul but the referee disallowed it. Probably the greatest ovation given a fighter was accorded Dempsey as the referee raised his hand in victory. The stadium fairly rocked. The round had lasted only 45 seconds.

SPORTS 6, BEARS 3.

SHREVEPORT, July 21. (AP)—Heavy hitting and spectacular fielding by Spencer Harris featured a 6 to 3 victory of the Sports over the Bears here today. Harris hit a two-bagger and a homer and pulled off a sensational running one hand catch in the ninth to rob Najo of a base hit. The score:

Disch Dodges Issue On Bellmont's Case

AUSTIN, July 21. (AP)—A telegram to the Statesman today noon from William J. Disch, Texas university baseball coach, now at Sheboygan, Wis., neither confirmed or denied occasional rumors here that Disch will quit the university because of the retention of L. T. Bellmont, athletic director.

The paper's request for a definite answer evoked only a statement that "Wisconsin weather is delightful and invigorating."

READY FOR BIG ATHLETIC CARD

Matsuda Would Avenge His Defeat by Hassen

THE CARD

All Hassen, the Turk, versus Matty Matsuda, the Jap. Welterweights, two falls to a finish.

Jack Matlock, Dallas, versus Roy Edwards, Hollywood. Middleweights, eight rounds.

Dempsey Moore, Wichita Falls, versus Bobby Brown, Houston. Light heavyweights, six rounds.

Place—Ross stadium.
Time—8:15 Friday night.

All principals were on hand Thursday night, said Matchmaker Ross, and ready for this evening's program of wrestling and boxing festivities.

Matty Matsuda declared himself ready to avenge himself on Hassen, who may come in a bit over weight, for a roughhouse defeat given him in El Paso. Hassen threw the Jap out of the ring in the border city, forfeited a fall for the foul, and then came back to win two falls from Matty, anyhow.

Matlock has been ranked as the favorite over Edwards in the eight-round glove melee, but there are many fans who believe Edwards will outspeed the veteran Jack.

Dempsey Moore, the Wichita Falls amateur, is staking quite a bit on his match with Brown, the state amateur light heavy biff champ. If Moore can beat Brown he will be recognized as king of Texas' simonpures and will begin to point himself for an Olympic tryout.

DOLP LOSES TITLE

SEATTLE, July 21.(AP)—Frank Dolp, Portland, lost his Western amateur golf title at the 36th hole in a quarter final match today when Fay Coleman, Los Angeles, defeated him one up. Coleman yesterday eliminated Keefe Carter, Oklahoma City, 1925 champion.

Did You Know That—

By BLONDY CROSS

New Orleans fans and players are confident of copping the Southern association bunting and then taking the Spudders in Dixie series play. The Pels depend on the "strongest pitching staff in the league to pull them through," says Trites of the New Orleans States.

Iron Joe Martina still is flogging 'em in there and proving a consistant winner for New Orleans. Martina, Dave Danforth, Collard and Karr have been carrying the bulk of the Pel pitching with a youngster, "Big Boy" Brown and your old friend Hippo Hodges helping along now and then. Hippo got away with a two-hit game the other day. Miracles never cease to be.

The Pel outfield of Vick, Morgan and Blakesley pounds the pelota well over the .300 mark. New Orleans is buzzing along with a team batting average in the vicinity of .295.

Spudder home run hitters will have to plug 'em a "fur piece" if the series is played in New Orleans. Largest baseball orchard in the south. No ball ever has been batted over the center fence.

The customers caught an armful of palpitation during the very first couplet yesterday when Griffin chugged in and plucked from down around the knees with one hand while at a cow-pony lope Capes' Texas leaguer back of second. The play saved a run, because Connolly, next man up, beat a blow to center that bad-hopped for a triple.

LaFayette probably will wager you Dempsey's end of last night's purse that Watkins hasn't any idea until yet he was going to snag Froggy's drive to the center screen in the third. It was a well-larruped onion scheduled for the base of the green boards, but Watkins turned his back on the world and started galloping in a crazy zig-zag way for the fence. Just as the sphere looked like a safe landing was practically made. Watslung up both hands more out of self protection than anything else and, believe it or not, that guy wasn't even looking at the ball but it hit in his glove and stuck.

Capes had a lot of hard luck yesterday. Among other things, he tried to duck a bad ball in the fourth but got his bat in the way and popped out to the pitcher.

Hunter Hill needs reducing exercises, a recess from meats and starches or something. He's growing so fat he hardly can get a chest protector on.

Turgeon still emits grunts of disapproval anent error scored him the other day when the "little un" dropped Griffin's throw-in on a short hop and Pratt was safe at second. "These blanked scorers are blind just like the umpires!"

The rather unusual situation of a club owner and team manager in uniform and playing the game just like one of the "privates" was laid out for Spud fandom when Jim Galloway and his Beaumonters mixed it with the Spudders. Jeems, as you know, is president, part owner and manager of the Shipers, in partnership with the catcher, Claude Robertson.

Galloway, by the way, is a versatile gent. Used to be a telegraph operator. He isn't much of a "sender" these days but he still can "read" the Morse as it comes in, says Al Bedinghaus, local telegraph operator and baseball sharp.

Elmer Hansen, the pitcher, is one of the league's hardest hitters. He fared fairly well Thursday. Caught several on the nose. Plunked a double in the third round. Smacked a couple of stiff ones in the fourth and sixth, but was put out and then was robbed on a short liner in the eighth by Lamb. He singled in the ninth.

Watkins struck out in the fifth on three straight slow balls wafted up to the platter by Kiefer.

The famous Frank Tobin between coaching at third base and acting as cheer leader for the knothole gang was a pretty busy man yesterday.

Swenson's blow in the thirteenth ordinarily would have been a single, but the hit scored Griffin from second with the winning run. Swenson ran no further than first base, but the scoring rules say a batter who drives in a winning run that ends the game before the regulation three outs for the inning are registered is to be credited with as many bases as the player scoring had to travel in order to arrive at the plate.

Lee Street Spuds Win Game, 14-6

The Lee Street Spudders defeated the "Outside" team of the Producers Creamery Wednesday afternoon by the score of 14 to 6. The fast little Lee Street team are only junior players, none of which are over sixteen years of age, and have been piling up a great record in the city. Malcom Mauldin in left field and Ed Satterwhite were the stars of the game with several sensational bits of fielding and batting.

The young Spudders issue a challenge to any out of town junior team that wants a game. They will play the Inside team at the Producers Creamery this afternoon at 5 o'clock on the Jalonic street diamond and a fair sized crowd is expected to be on hand to see them play.

Gentlemen:
I am not in the habit of writing letters to motor car manufacturers, but this new Dodge Brothers Six is positively a wonder, and I want to congratulate you.
During the past fifteen years I have owned many high-priced automobiles, but no car within my experience has remotely approached this new Six of yours in sheer sporting vitality - both in the get-away and the all-day going.
It's an amazing performer - with a beautiful body - and I prophesy that it will instantly take rank with the proudest names on Motor Row.
Very sincerely yours,

COMEBACK STAGED BY OIL DISTRICT IN S. WICHITA COUNTY

SIX TESTS PUT PEP INTO PLAY

Three Wells Have Sand; Trio Wildcats

By TOM TRULY.
The Record News Oil Editor.

Everybody likes to see a champion come back and oil men are equally as pleased to see an oil area revive from a period of dormancy.

The territory in South Wichita county and only a few miles north of Holliday in Archer county is, like J. Dempsey, staging a valiant comeback. Three wells have the sand and look good for producers while an additional trio of promising wildcats are drilling away and within a few days may furnish live topics for conversation.

A. T. Wolf's No. 1-C Daume in abstract 266, S. P. R. R. survey, and not far north of Wolf's discovery well of the area, is bailing the pay at 1321 feet. The test is said to be showing plenty of oil.

Further examination of the district shows that both the Wilson Drilling company and the Empire Gas and Fuel company are about to bring in producers.

Big Well Promised.

Wilson Drilling company and Freeman - Hampton have promise of a really large producer in their test which has the pay at 1311 1-2 feet which is 10 feet higher than other wells have found it. Pipe has been set and cemented in this test.

One location to the west the Empire No. 2 Kemp and Kempner has 600 feet of oil in the hole from the pay at 1318-20 feet. Completion will be effected within a few days.

North of Holliday three and one half miles, Cook-Reeder and Comac Oil company are drilling at 1600 feet in their No. 1 Chilson, located on a good looking piece of land in block 2 of the M. Ramsey survey.

Moore's Wildcat.

Judge W. M. Moore is drilling at 1735 feet and feeling for the pay in his No. 1 Mrs. E. Crudup, located on the line of sections 10 and 19 and 150 feet from the west line of sections 9 and 20 of Denton county school land survey.

The Daume district was opened in the early winter by A. T. Wolf and for several weeks enjoyed a very active play. The activity faded out and until recently nothing was done, when the "come-back" was started.

Industry's Pain Is Eased Up Slightly

TULSA, July 21. — Seminole field's output decreased 3349 barrels in the 24 hours ended Wednesday morning, its total for that period having been 492,087 barrels. Its highest peak was reached the previous day when it made 495,067 barrels from 600 wells. There are today 606 producing wells.

The Bowlegs pool, including the well in 1-7-6, made 204,240 barrels, an increase of 3163 barrels; Earlsboro made 162,609 barrels, dropping off 5662 barrels; Seminole city made 91,588 barrels, as compared with 92,891 barrels the previous day, and Searight did 32,650 barrels, 47 barrels less than the previous day's output.

Empire to Develop Famous "6666" Ranch

AMARILLO, July 21. — What augers a continued big play for the Panhandle field is the Empire Gas and Feul company's leasing of all the unleased acreage of the 6666 ranch of the Burnett estate in Carson county as a gas reserve.

The area is expected to furnish the company's huge 20-inch gas pipe line from the Panhandle field to Wichita and Kansas City with a large portion of its gas supply.

Ten locations have been made, but only six will be drilled right away, the other four being tentatively held up.

EASTLAND COUNTY

Roots and associates No. 2 Watson, SW corner of section 37, block 4, Eastland county, on the H. and T. C. survey, flowed 40 barrels of oil per hour, and making 3,000,000 feet of gas, from sand topped at 3745 feet.

GAS BUBBLES

Water Pool at Hollis Gives Off Gas That Burns

Special to The Record News.

HOLLIS, Okla., July 21.—"There is no doubt but that oil and gas in large quantities underlie Harmon county," says S. M. Griggs, representing the Star Royalty company of Tulsa Okla. Last week bubbles were noticed coming up from a pool of water along Salt Fork. Some of it was caught in a jug and would burn.

Since then the news has spread rapidly, and oil scouts from several different companies are here. Seven thousand acres of leases have been signed up, and three test wells will be put down the last of this week. Oil men and scouts for the leading oil companies predict an oil boom.

NORTH ARCHER

C. B. Long and associates, drilling their No. 1 W. L. Andrews in block 126, Robert Carson survey, North Archer, reached a depth of 1550 feet without encountering either oil or gas in commercial quantities and abandoned the operation as a dry hole.

NORTHWEST YOUNG

The Texas Company is drilling at 1205 feet in No. 1 Castleman, a wildcat located in section 71, T. E. & L. survey of northwest Young county. The test has apparently missed the expected oil sand.

Less than a quarter of a mile northwest of the Texas test and in section 81, Bo Minnick is drilling below 1050 feet and feeling for the sand which is believed to exist at an approximate depth of 1100 feet.

SOUTH BEND GUSHER

Increasing from an initial flow of 120 barrels hourly to 147 barrels per hour, Panhandle Refining company's No. 7 McCluskey, Tobin survey, South Bend pool of Young county and south of Graham, gauged 3535 barrels of high crude in the past 24 hours. It is one of the largest producers completed in Texas outside of the Yates pool of Pecos county during the present year. The pay is the deep lime discovered in Panhandle's No. 20 McCluskey several weeks ago and was drilled from 4199 to 4201 feet. Besides flowing nearly 150 barrels of oil hourly, the well is also making 12,000,000 cubic feet of rich gas daily.

NORTHWEST OF ELECTRA

McLaughlin Brothers of Wichita Falls are drilling at an approximate depth of 1300 feet on the Guyer farm, 10 miles northwest of Electra and in Wilbarger county. The test is located in subdivision No. 121, Waggoner Colony lands, and is south of a large bend in Red river. First showing is looked for around 1400 feet.

OIL PREMIUM REPORTED

Advices received from Amarillo Thursday are to the effect that Toronto Pipeline company has offered a premium of 10 cents per barrel on all crude produced in Gray county offered it. Toronto Pipeline company is unknown in Wichita Falls and a premium on Gray county crude oil is "near about" unimaginable. However, it is said that premium is paid in Seminole where oil is more plentiful than dirt.

SOUTH OF WICHITA FALLS

Too much salt water occasioned the plugging of Duncan and White's No. 1 Nitschke, a shallow producer seven miles south of Wichita Falls and near the highway leading to Seymour. The well was good for 15 barrels of oil daily from a sand at 730 feet when salt water broke in and the production of oil and water became about 50-50. The rig is being skidded a few feet in an effort to give Wichita Falls a real "suburban" oil field.

A REAL OIL WELL IN FOARD COUNTY

Any doubt about the producing qualities of Foard county's first oil well undergoes a complete erasure when one glances at the official pumping gauge to date on the strike. Finally getting the test equipped to pump, Roxana Petroleum corporation and Fain-McGaha Oil company brought out 25 barrels in the first two hours when it was necessary to shut down to repair broken machinery. This well is one mile north of Thalia and in section 3, G. C. & S. F. survey. The sand is at 1470 feet.

It was unofficially reported that location for an offset had been made. Another report was that one of the large companies would immediately extend a pipeline to the new field. Both of these projects are expected to materialize within a few days.

COTTLE COUNTY

Sun Oil company is drilling at 2320 feet in its deep wildcat test located on the Burnett ranch in Cottle county. The hole will go to 3500 feet.

SOUTH ARCHER COUNTY

Panhandle Refining company is rigging up on the location for its No. 1-B Aber crombie, located in block 41, Harris subdivision, Archer county, and 200 feet east of Roxana's producer. The Texas Company has completed a 50-barrel producer in the same area.

In southeast Archer county, spudder territory, Panhandle and Shaw and Rathke are drilling at 450 feet in their No. C-2 H. O. Prideaux, located in the A. Rohus survey.

AMON G. CARTER ENTERS WICHITA FALLS DISTRICT

Amon G. Carter, noted newspaper publisher of Fort Worth and a successful oil operator in the West Texas fields, is to become active in the Wichita Falls district, it was learned Thursday. Consolidated Oil company and Mr. Carter have made location to drill their No. 1 Donia Wheeler in the northeast corner of the southwest quarter of the southwest quarter of section 56, block 4, H. & T. C. survey of Wilbarger county. The lease adjoins the Consolidated's famous Waggoner lease on the south.

NORTH OF ANCELL POOL

Consolidated Oil company and Martin and Hamilton are drilling at 1000 feet in No. 1 Waggoner, a wildcat located north of the Ancell pool in eastern Wilbarger county and in section 2, block 5, H. & T. C. survey.

Consolidated has spudded in its No 8 Waggoner, section 57, block 4, which is north of No. 6. A star machine is being used to complete No. 7 for a producer.

NORTH OF WICHITA FALLS

Ascot Oil company is drilling below 1400 feet in its test on the Dr. Tyson farm just north of Wichita Falls. The derrick is just west of the Charlie road and a mile east of the Continental refinery.

Cotton

NEW YORK COTTON.

NEW YORK, July 21. (AP)—Reactionary sentiment was largely in evidence in the cotton market today, it was said was due, evidently to the extent of recent advances and a rather more favorable view of prevailing weather conditions. Offerings were absorbed on comparatively moderate declines, however, and after selling off to 18.39 early, October rallied to 18.60, later easing off again to 18.40 and closing at 18.60. The general market closed steady at net declines of 1 to 5 points.

The opening was barely steady at a decline of 2 to 9 points under realizing or liquidation and some local selling promoted by easier Liverpool cables and more favorable weather reports. Offerings were rather active at the start, and active months soon showed net losses of 9 to 10 points. July selling off to 18.06 and December to 18.65. There was some trade buying on this setback and after initial offerings had been absorbed, contracts again seemed comparatively scarce.

Predictions for showers over a good part of the belt and reports of very high temperatures in the southwest, brought in some covering and a little more commission house buying during mid-day and there were rallies of 10 to 29 points from the lowest, October selling up to 18.60 and December to 18.85. The bulges, however, appeared to meet cotton from one source or another and selling became a little more active later in the afternoon on rumors of bearish private crop figures.

Profit Taking Develops On Wall Street But the Market Holds Steady Tone At Close Thursday

By BROADAN WALL

Universal Service Financial Expert

NEW YORK, July 21.—Profit-taking developed toward the close today, but the market still maintained the same confident undertone. Good stocks will go up and the poor ones will come down. Standard stocks are being purchased by rich investors because of the low yield on bonds and the money rate which today declined to 3 1-2 per cent, the lowest since last March.

Secretary Mellon appears to have gauged the money market correctly in connection with his government financing plan. The open market rate compares with a discount rate of 4 per cent and is an indication of an abundance of funds. Wheat was lower; cotton steady. Foreign currencies were down.

General Motors and Du Pont sold at high levels. Directors meet August 11 and it is believed that they will vote to split the stock two-for-one with a $5 rate on the new shares. There is the possibility of a cash distribution. Earnings are running at a rate to warrant a substantial return to stockholders. Earnings for the first three-quarters are estimated around $22 a share.

Specialties were strong. Mallinson Silk Preferred spurted ten points. Directors are likely to call in the stock at the redemption price of 115 and accrued dividends. The stock is also behind the list as a $7 dividend payer. The silk business is picking up. Women are buying more silk wearing apparel. uiet accumulation took place in Conde Nast.

American Steel Foundries pushed into new high ground on buying attributed to interests identified with the Timken people. Timken sold at the highest price on record. Union Carbide hit a new peak price. Buying is attributed to friends of the insiders. The latter are one of the richest but comparatively unknown groups in Wall Street, composed of C. K. J. Billings, Myron T. Herrick of Cleveland, Walton Ferguson and others. Earnings are running at the rate of $20 a share.

Hudson and Mack Trucks were higher on fresh buying. Lorillard went higher on rumors that its new cigarette would go over big. Radio turned strong following reports that the group which engineered a successful operation in Houston Oil had turned to Radio. A strong group has been buying the stock.

Texas Gulf Sulphur was strong. A large block of this stock was acquired recently at private sale and above current market prices because of the big demand for sulphuric acid. The Allied Chemical and the Du Ponts have been large buyers of the stock. Eastman Kodak and Gabriel Snubbers sold at new high prices and there was a demand for Fleischmann. The company, it is rumored, took some losses in the Bread stocks. The Morgans recently acquired a large block of Fleischmann.

Buying is again going on in Pittsburgh Coal and Pittsburgh Terminal. The companies supply the Koppers Coke and the Steel Corporation. The Koppers Company will require 12,000,000 tons of coal for 1928 requirements.

TEXAS LIVESTOCK.

Receipts were estimated at 2300 cattle, 900 calves, 1600 hogs and 700 sheep. A week ago receipts were 2757 cattle, 1249 calves, 1197 hogs and 2484 sheep.

Steers went to the scales early. A class of fed cattle of 1150 to 1300 pounds moved at $8.25 and another class of grass part fed steers cleared at $7.50 to $7.65. A few consignments of light and common steers were the only beef cattle left unsold at noon.

She stock were welcomed by buyers. Values ranged from $4.50 for butcher cows to $7.00 for choice beef cows. The mixed supply was generous in volume exceeding 25 cars and the tone of the trade promised to lag somewhat.

Few yearlings and heifers were here and the trade was unimportant, heifers in small lots selling up to $9.00.

Heavy calves moved at $8.00 to $8.50. Hogs cleared at about steady rates although the top was lowered to $10.55 on a sale to a shipper. Bulk moved at $10.40 to $10.50.

Sheep were steady. Wethers from the Schreiner range made $7.10 and $8.00. A few truck lambs moved at $12.00.

MRS. J. H. BANKS, 49

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, July 21.—Mrs. J. H. Banks, age 49, of Sunshine Hill, died at 2:45 Thursday morning in the Pafmley-Ogden hospital, after an operation following a severe illness.

Surviving relatives include her husband and seven children, six sons and one daughter, who are J. D. Banks of Holliday; Hardy, Glover, Eland and Leland, William Henry Banks, all of Electra, and Miss Ada Banks of Electra. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. I. Taylor, who own the Sunshine Hill Grocery company in that community, three brothers and three sisters, who are: Jim Taylor of K. M. A. community; H. F. Taylor of Holliday, and C. M. Taylor of the Lakeside grocery; Mrs. Sam Travis of Sunshine Hill; Mrs. S. W. Lawson of Electra, and Mrs. J. A. Solenbery of Iowa Park.

Funeral services are incomplete, but burial will be in Electra, probably with Rev. O. H. Garner, pastor of the Midway Baptist church of which she was a member in charge. Rev. Garner, who is conducting a revival in Burkburnett had not been reached at an early hour Thursday.

E. H. DINSMORE

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, July 21.—Word was received in Electra early Thursday morning that E. H. Dinsmore, age 70, of Greenville died at his home in that city early Thursday. Mrs. Dinsmore and children, Maurice, Helen and baby daughter, left on the 10:52 train for Greenville, to join B. M. Dinsmore, husband and father. B. M. Dinsmore, a son of the deceased is superintendent of public instructions in Electra, where he has been for the past 10 years. He is at present in Denton, teaching in the East Texas Normal college, and will return to Electra when school is dismissed.

W. A. YOUNG, 75

WALTERS, Okla., July 21.—Funeral services for W. A. Young, 75, pioneer Cotton county and Walters resident, who died at his home here at noon Monday, were held from the First Methodist church Wednesday afternoon. Mr. Young had resided in this county for a quarter of a century, having come here before the opening of statehood. He was one of the builders of Walters, and was well-known over southern Oklahoma. His death followed a severe illness which lasted over a period of several weeks. He is survived by three son and two daughters and a number of other relatives.

MAJOR A. HENRY, 70

WALTERS, Okla., July 21.—Funeral services for Major A. Henry, 70, who died at his home in Walters early Sunday morning, were held from the First Christian church here Tuesday, with the Rev. S. D. Perkinson, pastor, officiating. Mr. Henry was a pioneer resident of this county, having resided here for more than 20 years. His death followed a long period of illness.

W. D. WHORTON

HOLLIS, Okla., July 21.—W. D. Whorton, one of the first settlers of this part of the country, died here yesterday after an operation for appendicitis. He was also director of the school board at Dryden, Union graded No. 2. He is survived by his wife, six children, a sister and three brothers.

K. of P. Summer Activities to Close With Annual Texas-Okla. Picnic

Closing the summer activities which have been numerous in recent weeks, members of the Wichita Falls Knights of Pythias lodge will participate in the annual Texas-Oklahoma Pythian picnic at Lost Lake in the Wichita mountains government reserve, it was announced Thursday.

In holding a ceremonial at Burkburnett Wednesday night, the Dokeys put over the hot sands a large class in preparation for the trip to Fort Worth in August for the Imperial Palace meeting of the order.

The picnic at Lost Lake, which is to be held July 28, will be attended by members and their families from Oklahoma and Texas and dinner will be spread in a family group.

A feature of the entertainment program is carded for the afternoon when a team from the Clinton, Okla., lodge will present "The Friendship of Damon and Pythias." The morning will be taken up with acquaintanceship meeting and games.

The local group will include the Crescent Pythian band. Speeches by grand lodge officers are slated.

THEY WANT BABY

Many Want to Adopt Infant Found In Train Car

Special to The Record News.

SAN ANGELO, July 21.—Scores of San Angelo people are anxious to adopt the 5-day-old baby found here this week in an Orient railroad car. The baby was taken to the San Angelo hospital and scores have visited there, asking to adopt the baby. There has been no clues as to who left the baby on the train. It was badly blistered when found by trainmen and physicians at the hospital wish to rid it of the blisters before it is adopted.

$18,000 Permit Issued For Grocery Building

Building permit for the erection of a brick business building, involving an expenditure of $18,000, was issued Thursday by W. E. McBroom, city clerk, to Parker and Morgan. The building will be erected at 500 Indiana and will be used for grocery purposes.

The total of five permits issued Thursday by Mr. McBroom was $18,950.

Negro Held On $500 Bond in Liquor Case

M. L. Lindley, negro, was held in default of $500 bond on a charge of possession and sale of beer on a complaint filed before U. S. Commissioner J. A. Lantz Thursday. A preliminary hearing of the case has been set Friday by the commissioner. The alleged violator was arrested by Federal Agents Logdon and Jones.

Boxing Board Draws Blame

Ticket Speculation Probe Brings Charge

NEW YORK, July 21. (AP)—The state boxing commission Thursday was held wholly responsible by one of its own members for the reported rise of $27.50 tickets to the Dempsey-Sharkey fight Thursday night to a figure around $125. Five speculators are under arrest.

The acusing commissioner, Geo. E. Brower, blamed the board's action in placing a $27.50 limit on the price of tickets as the cause of an enormous harvest at the hands of speculators. The pasteboards had a much higher intrinsic value and the public, according to the law of supply and demand, was willing to pay big sums, Brower maintained. Speculation, he declared, was the inevitable result.

Brower said he had labored unsuccessfully to make his two associates on the commission, James A. Farley and William Muldoon, see his viewpoint.

"You can't keep fight tickets away from speculators any more than you can keep a duck away from water."

He was a witness before United States Attorney Tuttle's investigation.

Karow To Aid Varsity Coach

By Universal Service.

AUSTIN, Tex., July 21.—Marty Karow, Ohio State's all-American halfback, will assist Head Coach Clyde Littlefield in whipping the 1927 Texas Longhorn grid machine into shape for the Southwest conference season.

Karow wired his acceptance of a contract recently tendered him and informed L. Theo Belmont, athletic director, that he would arrive in Austin about September 1.

Wichita Golfer Wins Senior Flight Tilt

ARKANSAS CITY, Kan., July 21. (AP)—R. C. Starr of Wichita won the senior championship flight of the Arkansas Valley golf tourney here Thursday when Arthur Lazarge, Arkansas City, defaulted to him. Lazarge's father-in-law, Anthony Carlton, died Wednesday on the golf course and Lazarge did not play his final match Thursday.

In the finals of the junior championship flight Harold Lemmon, Arkansas City, had George Matson two up at the 18th hole. Starr will meet the winner of the junior flight to determine the tournament championship on a 36-hole match Friday.

ANGLER FILES COURT CHARGE

He Claims Loss of Tackle To Motor Boat

Loss of a fishing rod and line owned by Billie Gilbert when it is alleged to have become entangled in the propeller of a motor boat operated by Chester Beckwith on Lake Wichita led to the filing of a complaint of malicious mischief against the latter by the former in the court of Judge R. V. Gwinn, justice of the peace. The complaint was filed Thursday and is scheduled to be tried at 9 o'clock Friday morning.

It is alleged by Mr. Gilbert that he was fishing from the pier at Lake Wichita when the motor boat approached. The boat, he claims, circled around three times, coming nearer to the pier at each turn. On the third turn, he says, his guaranteed 40 pound line became entangled in the propeller and the rod and line, valued at $35, was jerked from his hands and lost.

Varicose Veins

Reduced Or Money Back

Simple Home Treatment That Is Giving Amazing Results

The world progresses. Today ailments that took weeks to cure can now be ended in a few days. If you have varicose veins or bunches you can start today to bring them back to normal size, and if you are wise you will do so.

Just get an original bottle of Moon's Emerald Oil at any dispensing pharmacist and apply it night and morning as directed to the enlarged veins. It is very powerful and penetrating, and only a little is required.

After a few day's treatment the veins will begin to grow smaller and by regular use will soon reduce to normal.

People who want to reduce varicose veins, or get rid of running sores and ulcers, should not hesitate to get a bottle at once. It is so powerful that a small bottle lasts a long time. Any pharmacy can supply you. All druggists sell lots of it.—Adv.

BAN ON ROOSTER

State Law To Impound Roosters Is Asked By Farmer

AUSTIN, July 21. (AP)—A law prohibiting roosters from running wild, in the interest of infertile eggs for the summer time, was requested today by a Mullin man in a letter to Gov. Moody.

The man said there is a big demand for infertile eggs this summer; that he used to keep them but that he can't do so now.

He declared that protests to his neighbors regarding the tendency of their cocks to run about his place brought only derisive comment that there's no law to prevent it and earnestly recommended early enactment of such a statute.

SECRET OF HORSESHOEING

NEW YORK, July 21. (AP)—The secret of a heatless method of shoeing horses seems to have died with William Bennett. He came from Ireland in youth and his services were much in demand by owners of thoroughbreds on Long Island.

THIS WOMAN FOUND RELIEF

After Long Suffering by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

In a little town of the Middle West, was a discouraged woman. For four months she had been in such poor health that she could not stoop to put on her own shoes. Unable to do her work, unable to go out of doors or enjoy a friendly chat with her neighbors, life seemed dark indeed to Mrs. Daugherty.

Then one day, a booklet was left at her front door. Idly she turned the pages. Soon she was reading with quickened interest. The little booklet was filled with letters from women in conditions similar to hers who had found better health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"I began taking the Vegetable Compound," Mrs. Daugherty writes, "and after I took the third bottle, I found relief. I am on my eleventh bottle and I don't have that trouble any more, and feel like a different woman. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to everyone I see who has trouble like mine. I am willing to answer any letters from women asking about the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. Ed. Daugherty, 1308 Orchard Ave., Muscatine, Iowa.

The Best That Money Can Buy

Remember "Way Back When"—

Them were the days—when hoop skirts, tandem bicycles and the horse and buggy were all institutions.

In those days the family circle was complete—and usually convened around the family hearthstone every evening for discussion of weighty problems and religious matters.

Those were the days when evening papers were at their best.

HOW DIFFERENT THE STORY IS TODAY—

Bridge parties, lodge meetings, automobile rides, motion pictures, dances, prize fights and fight returns, country clubs, swimming pools. These are just a few of the things that have broken up the evening "family circle."

And just as effectively do they seem to be working to the growth of morning newspapers. Statistics show that there are 32 less daily newspapers now than in 1923. Of this decrease of 32 newspapers—31 OF THOSE THAT HAVE GONE BY THE BOARDS WERE EVENING PAPERS!

A gain in circulation of 131 per cent within 4 years tells the story for Wichita Falls in the Wichita Falls territory.

Daytime is the woman's planning time and buying time. Advertising pays best that reaches them at this psychological time.

And The Record News is read by thousands of families that read no other Wichita Falls Newspaper!
