Mrs. Nhu Assails U. S. Diem Tactics

By BORIS BOSKOVIC

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) Mrs. Ngo Dinh Nhu, black eyes flashing, swore today President Ngo Dinh Diem's government in South Viet Nam would never yield to what she called "perfidious, blackmailing attacks."

Delegates to the Interparliamentary Union gave a thunderous ovation to the powerful, controversial first lady of South Viet Nam, who earlier had told newsmen of an alleged plot she said was directed not only against her family but also against President Kennedy.

Wednesday she called the U.S. President an appeaser for trying to find a compromise solution to the Vietnamese crisis.

Mrs. Nhu, pretty as a picture in pink was the last speaker at the union's opening meeting.

South Viet Nam, she said, has "become an aim of perfidious, blackmailing attacks. But we will never yield before this campaign.

"With the aid of friends we will keep our regime, in spite of the war (against the Communist Viet Cong guerrillas), with the war and against the war."

She told delegates a democratic revolution has taken place in South Viet Nam and charged: "The affair of the Buddhists has been exploited by reactionaries and counterrevolutionaries."

Yugoslav President Tito opened the conference of Parliament members from 61 countries.

Mrs. Nhu told newsmen the world press was unfair to her and her country.

"The plot to discredit us is not only against our government but also against President Kennedy," she said, but refused to elaborate.

Asked why she believes the press to be unfair to her, she answered furiously: "It's the result of a plot of only six men in Saigon." She refused to name the six.

Mrs. Nhu expressed satisfaction that the U.S. State Department has denied reports that the U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge had demanded that her husband leave the country.

Mrs. Nhu said that if she visits the United States, she does not intend to see President Kennedy, a man she dscribd as "misinformd about the situation in Viet Nam." The solution, she asserted, "should be to get better information."

"He is a politician and when he hears loud opposition he tries to appease it somehow," the petite, powerful first lady of South Viet Nam said on her arrival in Belgrade Wednesday.

That was her reaction when reporters asked her to comment on the concern voiced by Kennedy about the Buddhist situation in South Viet Nam.

Mrs. Nhu, 38, sister-in-law of President Ngo Dinh Diem also had a few words for Pope Paul VI. He also has expressed concern for the plight of the Buddhists. The South Vietnamese government has used strongarm methods in stamping out Buddhist demonstrations for more religious freedom.

She said the pontiff, although not misinformed, "gets easily worried."

Diem, Mrs. Nhu and her husband the president's younger brother and close adviser, are Catholics. Mrs. Nhu is the official hostess for the bachelor president.

In recent television interviews, Kennedy suggested that certain personnel changes in the Diem government may be advisable to help solve the Buddhist crisis.

Mrs. Nhu declined to comment immediately on Kennedy's suggestion for personnel changes.

"We will wait for more details of the statement," she said. "If we can satisfy him, we will do so."

Mrs. Nhu is head of South Viet Nam's delegation to the 52nd session of the Interparliamentary Union which opened an eight-day meeting today. She plans to address the conference on what she described as the true picture of the situation in South Viet Nam.

Fifty-nine countries, including the United States, are attending the conference, which will discuss issues relating to racial discrimination, space law, peace and international cooperation. The U. S. delegation, includes Democratic Senators Mike Mansfield of Montana and Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts, the President's brother.

Mrs. Nhu said she planned to visit Paris after the Belgrade meeting but had no plans to see French officials—not even President Charles de Gaulle who recently proposed a policy of reunification and neutralization of Viet Nam. North and South Viet Nam formerly were part of the French territory of Indochina.

Asked if she would visit the United States, she replied:

"If I ever go to the United States it will be in response to many invitations coming from very important groups."

Asked if she would be well received, she said: "Why not, if I go there it means I believe in American fair play."

As for the situation in South Viet Nam, she said, "The fact that we are winning (in the battle against Communist Viet Cong guerrillas) is the proof that we have the support of the people."

She repeated a previous denial that her husband is chief of the South Viet Nam's secret police, which have been blamed for taking part in massive raids on Buddhist pagodas Aug. 21.

She said such an organization does not exist and "we have never raided pagodas, just searched (them)."

Downpours Cool Many Texas Points

By The Associated Press

Heavy downpours struck Fort Worth Thursday morning with more than 3 inches in some nearby areas.

As much as 2.25 inches fell by midmorning in the East Side of Fort Worth and the rain continued.

The rain came while radar showed showers and thunderstorms striking over a wide area of North Texas, extending into Central West Texas and Southern Oklahoma.

Tops of the thunderheads reached 36,000 feet — a height promising heavy downpours. They were moving to the southeast at about 15 miles an hour.

High water blocked the south side underpass at Fort Worth for a time and numerous traffic accidents occurred. Moisture set off a civil defense siren.

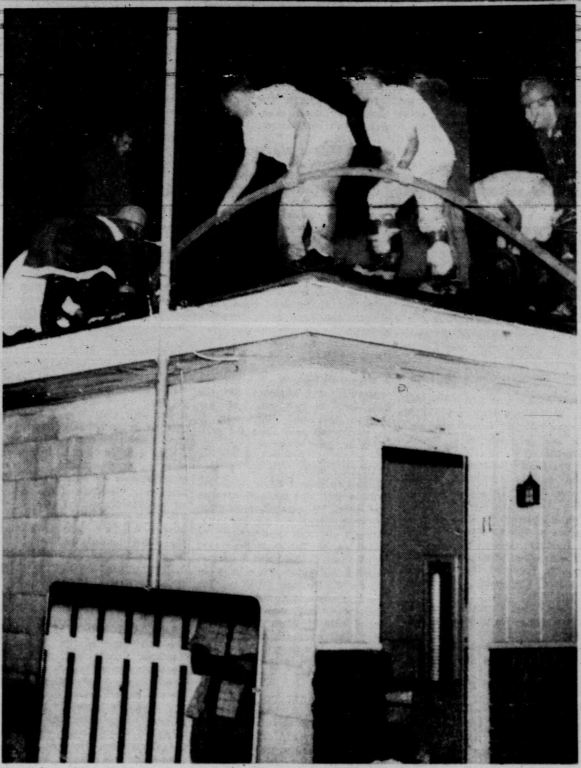
Temperatures dropped sharply where the rain fell.

Electra had a rain starting about midnight that amounted to 1.35 inches. Lightning interrupted power transmission for a time.

Except for a few showers on the coast, the rest of Texas stayed dry and just a little short of sizzling Wednesday.

Thundershowers were expected to increase across the northern part of the state and continue through Friday, holding temperatures several degrees cooler. Widely scattered showers were in prospect elsewhere along with a little cooling for parts of South Texas by Friday.

Wichita Falls' was the state's hottest spot with a high of 105 degrees Wednesday. Austin, Laredo, Mineral Wells, Presidio and San Angelo recorded 100. Top marks at other points ranged down to 87 at Dalhart.



SNYDER FIREMEN are shown fighting a stubborn blaze at the Purple Sage Motel on the East Highway. The fire, reported at 2 a.m. this morning, started just after a rain shower, up under the eaves near a neon light, and spread into the attic. Three units of the motel suffered heavy damage. Firemen fought the fire for about two hours.

40 Killed In Plane Crash In France

PY, France (AP) — A French airliner struck a mountain in southern France today and rescuers who reached the site later reported all 40 persons aboard had perished. There were 36 passengers, all British tourists, and four crew members.

A ground team which had set out from Py for the wreckage of the plane, on rugged 4,800-foot Roc de la Rouquette, advised Gendarmerie headquarters by radio that all aboard had been killed when the plane slammed into the mountain shortly after midnight.

The plane was bound from London to Perpignan. Py is 32 miles southwest of Perpignan.

The plane took off from London's Gatwick Airport Wednesday night. Llabanere Aiport near Perpignan said it lost contact with the plane during its approach to the airport.

Heavy storms swept the region as the plane headed into the Perpignan area.

The twin-engine plane was owned by Airnautic, a French air line.

In the past dozen years, the mountainous region of Perpignan near the Mediterranean has been the site of eight plane crashes that killed 97 persons.

Most recently, in October 1961, a French plane went down near Prades, killing 34 persons. Last January, a French military plane crashed, killed 12.

Nevada May Revoke Sinatra's License

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — Frank Sinatra, the gangling singer who branched out as an actor, businessman and gambling impressario, has been threatened with loss of his Nevada gaming license. He is accused of allegedly allowing "one of (America's) crime overlords" to stay on the premises of the Cal-Neva gambling lodge.

Sinatra, in New York Wednesday night, was not available for comment.

The Nevada Gaming Control Board said Sinatra's guest at the showman's Lake Tahoe casino on the California-Nevada state line was Sam Giancana.

A five-point complaint submitted to the State Gaming Commission in Carson City Wednesday described Giancana, 54, of Oak Park, Ill., as "one of the 12 overlords of American crime." On Aug. 6 the Justice Department said Giancana was one of the rulers of the "Casa Nostra" or "Our Thing" crime syndicate.

Nevada keeps a "Black Book" that currently lists 11 persons, one of them Giancana, as persons non grata. Those listed are banned from any Nevada gaming establishment. Knowingly permitting one of them on the premises is grounds for license revocation, though it is not a criminal offense.

The gaming board's complaint charges Sinatra knowingly played host to Giancana at Cal-Neva, located about 20 miles from Carson City, between last July 17 and July 28. Specifically he is charged with allowing Giancana to stay in one of the chalets adjoining the casino.

The complaint also charges a Sinatra representative, Paul d'Amato with attempting to bribe two state gaming agents who were "performing their official duties of verifying the gross win at the gaming tables at Cal-Neva lodge." The complaint did not elaborate.

Further, Edward Olsen, gaming board chairman, said "Sinatra used vile, obscene and indecent language, in a tone menacing in the extreme, (constituting) a threat" when Olsen talked with Sinatra by telephone about Giancana on Aug. 31.

Sinatra was in New York preparing for an appearance Friday at a United Nations staff party. Wednesday night Sinatra had been scheduled to appear at the Americana Hotel where his son Frank Jr. was singing but changed his plans without explanation.

The complaint said "although Chalet No. 50 at the time of the visit of Sam Giacana was registered to a female performer then appearing (at the Cal-Neva) said Sam Giancana is known to have been entertained, harbored, and permitted to remain there and to receive services and courtesies from the licensee." Olsen has refused to identify the female performer.

The board said Sinatra's partners at the Cal-Neva — Henry Sanicola and Sanford Waterman —were blameless in the housing of Giancana. However, all three would lose their licenses if the commission finds against Sinatra. A spokesman for the board said Sanicola and Waterman probably would get another license if they applied.

Sinatra owns 50 per cent of Cal-Neva stock and has held his state-line gaming license for three seasons. He got his first Nevada gaming license in 1953 when he bought into the Sands Hotel in Las Vegas. He now owns nine per cent of Sands stock.

Sinatra has 15 days to file a notice of defense before the commission will act. He is entitled to a hearing by the five-man commission before his license could be revoked. If it is revoked, he can appeal to the Nevada courts.

The Cal-Neva closed last Saturday in what a lodge spokesman described as a regular seasonal closing.

Church Calls For Halt Of Aid To Diem

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Frank Church introduces a resolution today calling for a halt of all U.S. aid to South Viet Nam unless the Diem government abandons its "policies of repression" and wins popular support.

"The persecution of Buddhists by the present government of South Viet Nam is an affront to the good conscience of the American people," the Idaho Democrat said in a speech prepared for Senate delivery.

"If these cruel repressions are not abandoned, further American aid to this government should be terminated, and American personnel withdrawn," Church said in introducing a resolution to that effect.

"The loss of South Viet Nam to communism would be deplorable, and particularly bitter after so long and agonizing an effort there" Church said.

"But, in the end, the country will fall victim to the relentless Communist penetration unless the Diem regime abandons its policies of repression, or another non-Communist regime emerges to rally the people.

"The recent mass protests in the cities of South Viet Nam demonstrate that there is a mighty reservoir of anti-Communist feeling which could yet give greater popular support to the war against the Viet Cong."

Kennedy To Dedicate Dam In Arkansas

He will dedicate Greers Ferry Dam at Heber Springs, on the Little Red River and also attend a livestock exhibition in Little Rock.

Pay Increases For Military In Doubt

WASHINGTON (AP)—Pay increases of more than $100 million for the nation's military forces during October appeared at stake today in an unusual Senate-House deadlock.

Sen. Howard Cannon, D-Nev., who steered a $1.2 billion annual military pay increase through the Senate more than a month ago, said he still hopes the House will decide to take the Senate version.

But Rep. Mendel Rivers D-S.C., who pushed a companion measure through the House last May, had formal House backing for a compromise to iron out numerous differences in the two bills.

Under the Senate bill military pay increases would begin Oct. 1, The House specified either Oct. 1 of the first month the measure becomes effective, if that is later.

Refusal of Senate leaders to agree to the House conference request for more than a month is unusual.

Both bills provide substantial increases in base pay for most officers and enlisted personnel and reservists on training duty. They also wound grant a 5 per cent cost-of-living boost for some 417,000 retired military personnel.

Demonstration Again Seen In Alabama

By DON McKEE
Associated Press Staff Writer

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — A major anti-integration demonstration erupted at Murphy High School in Mobile this morning, breaking the relative calm on the Alabama school front.

Residents in the area of the big Mobile high school said that pupils massed on the campus and began chanting, "Two, four six, eight, We don't want to integrate."

Police called for fire trucks. Newsmen were barred from the area.

It was the first major outbreak at Mobile since two Negroes started attending classes in Murphy Tuesday.

In Birmingham, there were no incidents when five Negroes resumed classes at three previously white schools. A caravan of cars carrying anti-integrationists drove back and forth in front of West End High School where a thousand white pupils have been staging a boycott. Persons in the cars waved Confederate banners, but the demonstration was peaceful.

A slim, gray-haired teacher broke up a potential demonstration at a Birmingham high school not affected by the desegregation. Approximately 60 pupils gathered on a street corner across from Phillips High School and started waving Confederate flags and placards. Suddenly the teacher appeared and snatched the banners, then marched the pupils into the school.

School officials in Birmingham were seeking to curb a wholesale boycott by white pupils. There was talk of a private school movement.

In the wake of a school board warning against truancy, several thousand white persons jammed an auto race track Wednesday night to protest integration and plan for private schools.

The school board earlier warned that parents could be prosecuted for keeping children out of school.

More than 1,000 white pupils boycotted West End High in Birmingham as two Negroes went to classes for the second day. Wednesday night's rally for private schools was organized by West End white parents.

In most other desegregated schools, attendance was nearly normal and there was little disorder.

A rock smashed into a car carrying the two Negro pupils home from West End, breaking a window. But no one was hurt. The

Area Gets Light Rain

Thick clouds produced rather timid showers over the Snyder area Wednesday night and early today.

Snyder's official gauge at the city water plant measured .81 of an inch of rainfall from a series of light showers, the first of which fell shortly after 10 p.m. The showers returned intermittently during the night and early morning hours.

Lesser rainfall reports came from some other areas of the county. A fall of .40 of an inch was logged at the Snyder pump station at Lake J. B. Thomas.

Ira and Hermleigh had about .30 of an inch, while Fluvanna reported .20 of an inch.

In every case the rains fell slowly, with little or no runoff reported.

The rainfall served to keep the temperature rather cool, compared to readings of the past few days. The mercury dropped to 65 degrees in Snyder overnight, and the reading had climbed only one degree, to 66, at 7 p.m.

JFK Picks Envoy To Switzerland

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy today nominated William True Davis Jr. of St. Joseph, Mo., a business executive, to be ambassador to Switzerland.

Davis, 43, will succeed Robert M. McKinney of Santa Fe, N.M., who resigned some time ago.

High Point Near-Riot Is Quelled With Tear Gas

HIGH POINT, N.C. (AP)—Nine Negroes and two white men were arrested late Wednesday night as police used tear gas bombs to quell a near-riot that developed when 2,000 white persons began throwing rocks, eggs, tomatoes and other missiles at Negroes conducting anti-segregation demonstrations.

Police reported a single shot was fired, but no one was injured.

Mayor Floyd Mehan criticized the city's Negro leadership for "dangerous, dictatorial and inconsistent statements." The mayor called for a meeting of the City Council to deal with the rapidly deteriorating racial situation.

The nine Negroes arrested were charged with trespassing and congregating on sidewalks.

The two white men were arrested on charges of carrying weapons.

Bonds for those arrested were set at $50 each.

High Point's Main Street was blocked off to traffic and pedestrians for more than an hour after police used tear-gas and fire trucks to disperse the crowd of angry white people.

The downtown area was cleared when whites began regrouping after reports that a second Negro march was planned. Negro leaders called off the march.

Most of High Point's 80-man police force and other officers remained on duty through the night. At mayor Floyd Mehan's request, 25 sheriff's deputies and 32 state troopers reinforced police for Wednesday night's demonstration.

In a statement, Mehan charged that Negroes "must bear the responsibility for the slowing up" of negotiations here.

"Within the past 10 days," Mehan said, "he (the Negro) has lost the active support of the majority of those who could and would help him. Their action and misunderstanding of how best to obtain their goal is causing those who supported their cause to take a second look at his ability and qualifications to step into a position of first-class leadership.

The Rev. B. Elton Cox, a field representative for the Congress of Racial Equality, has demanded total integration of this industrial city of 65,000 persons. He rejected a request from the mayor Tuesday to declare a moratorium on demonstrations.

Demonstrations were held nightly in High Point last spring, but declined to sporadic marches two months ago while Negro and city leaders attempted to negotiate.

Three weeks ago, small groups of demonstrators began picketing a drive-in cafe on the outskirts of High Point. The demonstrations gradually grew in size, with white spectators doubling in size during the early days.

Then, on Sunday, protest marches resumed downtown. They have continued, with up to three marches staged each night.

Kennedy's Assurance Adds Supporters To Test Ban Treaty

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate drive for ratification of the limited nuclear test ban treaty appeared today to have picked up more supporters.

Democratic and Republican leaders, working hand in hand to steer the agreement through the Senate, counted almost 80 votes in favor of the treaty to prohibit all tests except underground.

Only three days ago, an Associated Press survey found 73 senators were for it. A two-thirds majority is needed for ratification—67 if all 100 senators vote.

The drive got another big push Wednesday—from President Kennedy and Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois.

In a letter, Kennedy gave the Senate "unqualified and unequivocal assurances" that there will be no letup in the defense buildup if the treaty is put into effect.

But it was Dirksen who gave the so-called "great debate" its drama.

In a frequently impassioned speech, he threw his unqualified support behind ratification without reservations or any formal understandings.

"We are fully assured of a program that will keep us strong in the nuclear field and give us the requisite strength to meet any challenge to our security and our vital interest," Dirksen declared after reading Kennedy's statement to the Senate.

Whether the President's letter or Dirksen's speech changed any minds was not known for certain.

However, Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., who has indicated doubts about the treaty, said the President's letter "should leave no doubt about the determination of the President to carry out in good faith the assurances requested by the Senate."

Jackson helped spearhead the Senate Preparedness subcommittee's demand that the administration guarantee security safeguards asked by the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

"The letter nailed down the executive position on these points," Jackson added. "In addition to this the preparedness subcommittee will be monitoring the programs that will be carried out under the direction of the President."

Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel of California, the assistant Senate Republican leader, took his stand beside Dirksen in a speech prepared for this afternoon's debate.

The Soviet Union, Kuchel declared, "knows that if, God forbid, the United States were the victim of a surprise nuclear attack, our retaliatory nuclear blow would incinerate the land of the aggressor."

"As an American, whose prime concern is for his own country," the senator continued, "I shall support the treaty."

Kennedy, in his letter addressed to Dirksen and Sen. Mike Mansfield, the Senate Democratic leader, sought to allay every concern which has been raised about the treaty in Senate debate.

He gave "unqualified and unequivocal" assurances — which Dirksen had asked—that:

1. Underground testing will be pursued "vigorously and diligently" and strong laboratories maintained in a vigorous program of weapons development.

2. The United States remains ready to resume atmospheric testing immediately if the Soviets should break the treaty.

3. Facilities for the detection of violations will be expanded and improved.

4. The treaty in no way limits presidential authority to use nuclear weapons "for the defense of the United States and its allies, if a situation should develop requiring such a grave decision."

The latter assurance was obviously aimed at reducing votes for a reservation proposed by Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., to write these assurances into the resolution of ratification.

Dirksen told the Senate that the assurances given by Kennedy in this respect are satisfactory to former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, who made his endorsement of the treaty subject to such a guarantee.

Kennedy also made it clear that he feels a reservation proposed by Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., to postpone the effectiveness of the treaty until the Soviets remove their military bases from Cuba, cannot be dealt with in the treaty.

But he declared:

"I am able to assure the Senate that if that unhappy island should be used either directly or indirectly to circumvent or nullify this treaty, the United States will take all necessary action in response."

But neither Dirksen's speech nor the President's assurances made any dent in the opposition of Sens. Long, Strom Thurmond, D-S.C., or Carl T. Curtis, R-Neb.

Thurmond, speaking after Dirksen, said the Soviets would have the potential for further relative gains in nuclear technology from a surprise violation of the pact.

And Thurmond raised the possibility that the treaty debate may continue beyond next week. He blocked a unanimous consent request from Mansfield and Dirksen to advance its parliamentary journey to consideration of the resolution of ratification.

Thurmond said he did not want to preclude any senator from offering amendments to the treaty. But he refused to say whether he had in mind offering any himself.

Curtis said that the treaty may be a small step, as its proponents contend," but I'm concerned in which direction the journey is proceeding."

Long declared he was opposing the pact because "I am fully convinced it is a good deal for the Soviet Union and will very seriously prejudice the defense posture of the United States."

Cotton Allotment Apt To Stand

LUBBOCK (AP) — Undersecretary of Agriculture Charles Murphy said today the nation's 1964 cotton planting allotment probably will have to be held at the 16 million acre minimum set under this year's mandatory crop control program.

This year's allotment is down nearly 10 per cent from 1962.

The only things that would permit a larger allotment, Murphy said, would be enactment of a proposed new cotton bill before Oct. 15. Farm law requires that the succeeding year's allotment be set by that date.

The legislation—favored by some cotton groups but opposed by others—would seek to improve cotton's competitive position by offering a subsidy on domestic usage equal to that offered foreign buyers under an export subsidy program.

Foreign buyers get cotton about 25 per cent cheaper than U.S. mills.

In a talk to the Plains Cotton Growers Inc., Murphy urged various conflicting cotton groups to approach the legislation with a spirit of compromise.

"If we are to have legislation for cotton, all groups must be prepared to accept something less than would be ideal from their standpoint," he said.

The export subsidy is required because the government holds grower prices above world prices through a price support program.

Murphy said that with a "proper spirit of compromise on the art of all concerned, effective legislation can be enacted."

Soldier's Father Fights UN Duty

(FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP)—An American soldier's father who lost one appeal to the President to get his son removed from the United Nations command in Korea may try to take his case to the Supreme Court, his lawyer said today.

Walter Cupples of Concord, N.H., petitioned President Kennedy last month to either remove his son, Robert Cupples, 17, from the UN command or discharge him.

Lawyer Arthur Bohn said he will talk with the elder Cupples about getting Gov. James King of New Hampshire interested in the youth's military status. This, Bohn said, could move the issue directly before the Supreme Court.

"The governor of New Hampshire will have to make a decision whether to be a party to a lawsuit," the lawyer said. "One of New Hampshire's citizens has been impressed into an alien army."

The final decision on the boy's status would affect thousands of American military personnel, Bohn asserted.

Cupples contended he had given permission for his son to enlist in the U.S. Army and not that of the United Nations. He called the act of placing young Cupples under U.N. control a breach of contract.

"If the New Hampshire governor agrees to intercede, then the case can go directly to the Supreme Court," Bohn said.

"If not, then our next step will be to go to U.S. District Court, probably in New Hampshire. I am going to make one more effort to convince the Army that the boy should be either taken from UN control or discharged from the service."

An answer to Cupples' petition was received from the Army office of the judge advocate general rejecting the request.

It was signed by Col. Bland West, chief of the Military Affairs Division, who said the enlistment contract is a one-way agreement in which only the soldier is bound.

Bohn said this explanation was "obviously ridiculous."

Bland wrote, "The obligations under the enlistment contract are strictly enforceable against the soldier, but the state is not bound by the conditions imposed by itself. . ."

Bohn said the colonel "resorts to what I consider to be a nonsensical statement when he says that the President is the commander in chief of the individual soldier, but that when a group of such soldiers is placed under the command of some other commander in chief as a group, that it has nothing to do with the case.

"The President of the United States would not dare to say that he is the commander in chief of any United Nations armed force anywhere in the world."

Tyler Dam Breaks Today

TYLER (AP) — The dam of the 65-acre Tyler State Park lake broke with a roar today. Within an hour all the water in the lake had drained out.

No one was injured.

The cause of the collapse was not at once known.

Park Mgr. Pete Palmer said he thought seepage caused the break near a tunnel which leads from the lake and under the dam to a flood control tower.

At least 100 feet of the dam washed away. The water in the lake had measured up to 40 feet deep.

Repairs today were awaiting word from the State Park and Wildlife Department in Austin, which was notified at once of the break.

The lake is used only for recreation. The City of Tyler does not depend on it for its water supply.

Palmer said that there was some damage to a county road and undetermined damage to other land around there.

He said the water went over the county road.

No one was camping at the lake at the time.

In Austin, Parks and Wildlife Department Director Weldon Watson said the area below the dam has been alerted to any possible water damage.

"I heard about the dam breaking, but I haven't had any report of the damage," Watson said. "Nobody knows why it broke and we won't have a report until the damage is known."

The roaring flood waters poured into Saline Creek, a tributary of the Sabine River.

Virtually all the fish, and the lake was well stocked, survived and found a new home in the Sabine.

The Parks Department had a rough fish kill on the lake three years ago and restocked it.

Recent catches of channel cat and bass weighing 5 to 5.5 pounds have been numerous.

The dam broke where the water was deepest, about 40 feet.

The lake level started sinking swiftly and then with a roar, about 100 feet of the earthen dam went out. Most of the dam, however, remained standing.

The lake is fed by springs.

Some trees 36 inches in diameter were swept away.

A farmer named Cannon said he went to the lowlands to move cattle and was caught by the rising waters. He held to a tree until he was rescued.

Mrs. Elmer Sharp reported that she lost Hereford cattle she valued at $12,000 to $15,000.

Water reached the living rooms of farm houses below the dam.

Ordinance Is To Be Tested

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago City Council has adopted an ordinance forbidding racial or religious discrimination by real estate brokers in the sale of property despite a massive protest by white property owners.

The bill was passed by the City Council Wednesday, a few hours after 4,000 white property owners marched on City Hall in protest.

The vote was 30-16 as the usually solid Democratic majority in the council was split.

Some aldermen denounced the bill as "watered down;" others as a blow to property rights.

One of the chief opponents of the measure was the Chicago Real Estate Board. Its president, Percy E. Wagner, vowed the ordinance will be tested in the courts.

Indians Even Up Playoff In PCL

SPOKANE (AP)—Third baseman John Werhas lofted a pair of long fly balls to center field Wednesday night to give the Spokane Indians a 3-2 edge over the Oklahoma City 89ers.

The decision evened up the best-of-seven series for the Pacific Coast League baseball championship at one game each.

Werhas brought home the winning run in the bottom of the ninth with a blast that arched 370 feet and fell to the ground while the helpless 89ers looked on. They saved themselves the trouble of trying to catch it because with the bases loaded and only one out the run would have scored anyhow.

FAIR PARK COLISEUM

Dear Abby...

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I gave my fiancee a ring which I considered adequate for the time being. (I bought it at a loan shop.) I told her when I gave it to her that I knew it wasn't much, but I'd get her a better one when I could afford it. She accepted it, wore it for a week and then she returned it to me saying her mother had had it appraised and it was a fake diamond. She said I had cheapened her before her family and friends, and then she dropped me like a red hot poker. I am a commissioned officer in the state militia, and am supposed to be a leader of men, and this has made me look pretty foolish. My question is, was it proper etiquette for her mother to have the ring appraised?

TURNED DOWN

DEAR TURNED: NO! But don't waste any tears over this. The girl wasn't real, either.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: My daughter is being married. An aunt of mine belongs to the Moose. Neither my husband nor I belong, and we don't know anyone else who does. This aunt told my daughter that she is going to give her a wedding shower and invite all the ladies from the Moose. She says then she will find out who her friends are. I was furious when my daughter told me this, and said I wouldn't stand for it. We don't want these people who have never met my daughter to buy gifts for her. How can I tell my aunt NO without hard feelings?

BURBANK

DEAR BURBANK: Tell her you appreciate her kindness, but she will have to find out who her friends are some other way. It is considered poor taste for relatives to give showers.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: When I first started to date I never went out with a boy who smoked because the smell of cigarett smoke on someone's breath made me sick. When I married my husband he didn't smoke, but about two years ago he took up the habit. I haven't enjoyed his kisses since, and he knows it. He has tried all the mouth washes, etc., but his kisses still have that cigarette flavor and I hate it. When I was pregnant (last year) it made me so nauseated I was actually sick. I have even tried to learn to smoke but I can't. Am I nuts?

MARCIE

DEAR MARCIE: No. Your husband is.

racial scene was generally peaceful at eight other desegregated schools in Birmingham, Mobile, Tuskegee and Huntsville.

With local authorities keeping tight control, the Army announced in Washington that only 675 Alabama National Guardsmen would be held on duty after midnight tonight.

President Kennedy federalized the entire 16,000-man Alabama force early Tuesday to prevent Gov. George C. Wallace from using guardsmen to turn away Negroes at white schools.

Another state-supported school, Florence State College at Florence quietly accepted the first Negro student Wednesday. He is Wendell Wilkie Gunn.

Integration brought pupil boycotts only in Birmingham and Tuskegee.

About 20 white children showed up for classes at Tuskegee as 13 Negroes attended the formerly white Tuskegee Public School. Normal enrollment is about 550. In Birmingham, attendance was less than 300 at West End which registered 1,442, while about 149 white pupils attended Graymont Elementary where more than 300 were expected.

The Birmingham school board said state laws require children between 7 and 16 to attend some type of school "for the entire length of the school term and every scholastic year."

Unexcused absences could subject parents or guardians to penalties of state laws and "prosecution in the juvenile court," the board said.

Tension Growing For Viet Pupils

SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP)—Bayonet wielding troops arrested more than 100 teen-age students in a rock-throwing riot at a technical school today.

The riot followed midnight arrests of other students, and a morning of tension between troops and teen-agers at high schools and university faculty branches throughout Saigon.

Student unrest, temporarily squashed last week after more than 2,000 students were arrested, was rising again.

Truck loads of riot police and troops in full battle gear roared from one potential trouble spot to another.

At least three soldiers were reported seriously injured, several students were bruised and a deputy provincial chief suffered a bloody nose in an hour-long clash between students and troops at the Secondary School of Decorative Arts.

The first demonstration flared up at the government school of fine arts, where troops arrested seven students after more than 100 had gathered in a noisy demonstration denouncing the government of President Ngo Dinh Diem.

Most medical students at the University of Saigon boycotted term examinations.

More than 2,000 were to take exams and newsmen counted barely 400 who turned up. More than 1,000 students of the university are still believed in jail out of the 2,000 arrested Aug. 25.

Condition Of Blanchard Is Satisfactory

DALLAS (AP) — Condition of State Sen. H. J. Blanchard of Lubbock was described by Baylor Hospital officials Wednesday night as "satisfactory." He became ill while flying to Austin.

Blanchard is suffering from "an infection which we are studying," hospital officials reported, but they would not say what was wrong with him. They said there was no evidence of coronary or circulatory problems.

The senator suffered severe pain during the flight. He was given oxygen by Braniff Airways employes, who radioed Dallas for an ambulance.

A Love Field fire unit applied oxygen under pressure after Blanchard landed and until he could be assisted to a stretcher.

Top Netters Help Open New Center

SAN ANTONIO (AP)—Trinity University opened its $2,000,000 Memorial Center with a flourish Wednesday night as four of the world's top tennis players appeared in exhibitions.

A capacity crowd of 1,150 jammed the campus athletic plant to watch Rafael Osuna, the Mexican Davis Cup star who is U.S. champion, beat Chuck McKinley, the nation's No. 1 player, by default. Each had taken a set when McKinley's injured back forced him to retire.

High Man On The Totem Pole

A good way to be sure you have lots of pumpkins for a totem pole like the one Mark Jones had made is to grow them in your garden. They're much cheaper when grown from seeds than when bought in the market.

Mark says it took very sharp knives to carve the faces and that he outlined the features carefully with the tip of a paring knife before he made any cuts, so he could be certain that he had them in the right places. It also took time to make so many perfect faces.

The Alaskan Indians and several other tribes in the Northwestern states used to make totem poles of long logs, carving figures of animals and birds on them, as well as men. On top of each pole was the totem figure which showed any other Indian to which totem or group the family belonged which lived in the house next to the pole.

Mark says that all the pumpkin faces he carved represent members of his family or totem. Perhaps you'd like to guess which one is his mother, which his father and which are is two sisters and two brothers? Mark, himself, wants to be the totem figure and that's why he's put his own head at the very top of the pole.

Buxom Bouquets

The slender line arrangement of skimped plant material is the one to use in winter when flowers are scarce and expensive, or in early spring when the flower arranger relies on forced branches of forsythia or pussywillow. September, when the garden is bursting with annuals, is the month to make and use the buxom bouquet.

This depends on the beauty of the blooms, on color and on sheer mass for its eye appeal. It may be made of any type of flower and, because of differing flower forms, is easier to make of several different types of blossoms.

However, even a single kind of annual, if that's all you're growing, can be made into an extremely satisfactory buxom bouquet. Varying stem lengths and different colors will help achieve an interesting effect, even if flower form varies not at all.

A bouquet could be made entirely of huge Super Tetra snapdragons, spikes so handsome that each of them easily might be awarded a blue ribbon in a flower show.

These pyramidal spikes are arranged very simply in a sort of fan so that the size and beauty of each individual cluster is not lost, yet the mass of the arrangement dominates.

In a simple arrangement, asters are the only flowers used and flower sizes are almost identical. Here the arrangement depends not at all on the individual bloom, but on the massed and contrasting color, for each row of blossoms is different from the one next to it.

The deep rose of the outer row of asters contrasts with the pale lavender in the next ring and the purple of the center blooms harmonizes with the neighboring lavender.

Let your garden be your guide to a display of its bounty. September is the month to let yourself go and mass flowers for the delight of every member of your household.

New Beauty To Boot

AP Newsfeatures

Are you resisting the boot trend because your ankles are too pretty to hide?

Footwear designer Golo has the answer. Rising from a handsome pair of alligator pumps is a tall and transparent boot, which displays nicely a lady's ankle and gracefully curved calf.

For rainy weather he has also styled the spats boot, in calf and shin heights. The boot spat gives the illusion of being an ordinary, heeled shoe worn with old-fashioned white spats.

* * *

The highest boots yet are Yves St. Laurents' which reach to the thighs like fishing boots. But these are skinny and the leather so lightweight and supple that it bends at the knee joint without pinching.

* * *

Sneakers have taken such a foothold that everybody is busy trying to create a better one. When podiatrists complained that certain rubber shoes were not good for the feet, leather sneakers were made.

Now canvas has more competition from wool. The sheep's contribution to the sneaker business is made in a rich assortment of wool checks, plaids, and herringbones, coordinated to match wool skirts made by sportswear manufacturers.

Bob Hope Steals Show From JFK

By HARRY KELLY

WASHINGTON (AP) — The stage was the White House garden. The straight man was President Kennedy. And Bob Hope was, as usual, top banana.

Hope, who has played them all, from the palace to fox holes, did not appear overawed by the ceremony Wednesday where he received from Kennedy a medal for "outstanding service to the cause of democracy throughout the world."

For only a moment did the President get into the act, becoming Hope's best-known co-star since Bing Crosby.

Noting that the medal had been voted by Congress, Kennedy ad libbed: "This is the only bill we've gotten by lately."

From then on it was pretty much Hope's show.

Eyeing the medal, which was awarded mainly for his scores of trips overseas to entertain troops during hot and cold wars, Hope remarked:

"There is one sobering thought. I received this for going out of the country. I think they are trying to tell me something."

Hope recalled that he had entertained in the South Pacific when Kennedy served there as a skipper of PT109 in World War II.

"The President then was a very gay, carefree young man but "of course all he had to worry about then was the enemy," cracked Hope.

Then he added after a pause: "Twenty years later he's still on government rations."

The comedian thanked the President for inviting Mrs. Hope and their four children to the ceremony. He said, "It wouldn't explain why I wasn't in the service but at least it will point out which side I was on."

The President told Hope that the medal represents the great affection all Americans hold for the comedian.

Hope, 60, said his feelings at the moment were "Very humble. Although I feel I have the strength of character to fight it."

East Germans' Lot Grim, Scarcities Are Commonplace

By JOHN O. KOEHLER

BERLIN (AP) —Dissatisfaction of the East German people with the Communist regime continues to be widespread, but after a week behind the iron curtain this reporter found no evidence that a new revolt is brewing.

The morale of the people, despite tough political pressures and scarcity of certain essential food items, seemed higher than it was seven months ago when I last visited East Germany.

Because of the unusually severe winter and its resulting serious fuel and food shortages, the people's mood then was explosive.

But East Germany since has had a good harvest and there certainly are no shortages of such staples as bread and potatoes.

On the other hand, butter continues to be expensive and short in supply — one half pound being allotted per person every 10 days.

Fresh meat also is scarce but all kinds of sausage were abundantly available.

"No, we are not starving," said a housewife in Dresden. "But it irks you that you can't buy onions whenever you want them or that not a single store has any vinegar when I want to pickle cucumbers."

During a recent heat wave, housewives at Leipzig and Dresden began to queue up at 3 a.m. to get ice for their ice boxes.

While East German industry exhibited electric appliances such as refrigerators at the fall consumer goods fair in Lepizig, the ordinary East German must register and wait at least two years before he can purchase one.

While complaints about food and other consumer goods have decreased since last winter, there is increased bitterness over political pressures.

Factory workers, probably because of the forthcoming general election, are subjected to at least two political meetings a week.

In a conversation with two ranking government officials, this correspondent invited them tongue-in-cheek to a dinner in West Berlin.

Both avoided, saying that the red wall dividing the city would prevent them.

Instead, one answered this way: "I really have no desire to come to West Berlin. I get enough money and my wife gets enough money. We have a nice house near a lake and we have a sailboat."

The second official said something similar. Neither one said anything about being convinced Communists.

Even if the climate at this time was such that the people wanted to revolt, the presence of 20 Soviet divisions and thousands of East German police and army troops keeps everyone in line.

Instead of talk about any kind of uprising, one hears more people express the hope that the present East-West honeymoon arising from the limited nuclear test ban agreement eventually will result in liberalization of political and economic controls in East Germany.

Crime Rage Noted

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Noting there is a "current rage of crime to which this country is being subjected," the Georgia Court of Appeals has ruled that rape is an occupational hazard of women employes in banks, stores and similar businesses.

The decision Wednesday upheld a lower court's verdict of total disability payments of $30 a week for 16 weeks and all medical expenses for a De-Kalb County woman. She was manager of a laundry pickup station late in 1961 when a purported customer forced her into a secluded part of the building and raped her.

West Texans Killed In Rig Mishap

MONAHANS (AP)—A collapsing derrick killed two men helping drill an oil well Wednesday night. A third suffered serious injuries as he was hurled more than 100 feet to the ground.

Two other members of the drilling crew escaped injury as 200 tons of steel showered down all around them.

The accident happened shortly before midnight at a well being drilled 45 miles southwest of here in West Texas.

Workmen were pulling the drillstem from the hole, which is down to 18,504 feet in a test being sunk for Rhoden Oil Co. They had stacked about 17,500 feet of heavy pipe against what is known as the finger board, which supports the pipe high in the derrick.

Without warning the finger board gave way, pipe smashed against the derrick and it collapsed.

Robert J. Henderson, 24, of Odessa was killed as he fell from the rig floor, which stood 28 feet above ground.

A heavy piece of the rig from near the top struck Philip Crittendon, 18, of Monahans, likewise killing him.

J. B. Morris, 44, of Monahans tumbled from the top of the derrick, which reached 108 feet into the air. The heavy crownblock fell just ahead of him, hitting six feet to one side.

Other heavy pieces of metal followed and were held a few feet above Morris by the crownblock. Fellow workmen used a torch to cut him free of the debris. He was taken to an Odessa hospital with his hands mangled, both arms broken and head and internal injuries.

Ironically, Morris was working a second straight shift and lacked only 25 minutes of finishing it.

Members of the crew were working for Parker Drilling Co. of Odessa. The well, due to be sunk a total of 22,000 feet, is near an irrigated farming community called Cayanosa.

Tokyo Man Arrested

TOKYO (AP) — A rightist was arrested today on charges of threatening two former cabinet ministers who have been encouraging trade with Red China.

Suekichi Inoguchi, 32, was seized at the headquarters of the Greater Japan Patriotic party.

He was accused of mailing threatening notes wrapped around rifle bullets to Tatsunosuke Takasaki, ex-minister and a senior member of the ruling Libera, party, and Yutaro Takeyama, former minister of construction.

To help keep track of the diverse payments owed to the Crown, thte Queen of England retains an official Remembrancer.

Spuds In Carrot Field

TROMLO, Norway (AP) — A farmer is harvesting potatoes from a field he planted in carrots last spring.

Potatoes he planted a year ago came up so small in this Arctic Circle climate that he didn't bother to dig them up. This year he sowed carrots, but the year-old potatoes came up instead.

Even With Test Ban Treaty, Arms Race Apt To Endure

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — The dispute about the nuclear test ban treaty, even though the Senate seems certain to approve it, gives a priceless insight into how far off world disarmament is.

President Kennedy and his advisers — diplomatic, military and scientific—all think it is to this country's interest to agree to a limited test ban with Russia. But others, in and out of Congress, have doubts and forebodings.

The doubters persist in their misgivings about the treaty — which prohibits testing in the atmosphere, outer space and under water but permits it underground —despite assurances given the Senate by:

1. Secretary of State Dean Rusk —that the United States could detect at once any Russian try at cheating.

2. Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara—that the United States is, and will remain, superior to Russia in nuclear weapons, even under a test ban.

3. Dr. Glenn T. Seaborg, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission—that any risks to this country under the treaty would be "minor."

All this is not assurance enough for the troubled ones.

They express suspicions and fears that the Russians some how, some way, can use the ban to American disadvantage.

Not long ago in this country there was widespread contempt for Russian abilities. That attitude, never valid, has disintegrated in just 14 years under three great shocks:

1949—When the Russians exploded their first atomic bomb; 1953—When they exploded their first hydrogen bomb just one year after this country did; 1957—When they sent the first satellite, sputnik, around the earth.

Some of the misgivings about the test ban treaty now may be attributed to a reverse psychology. Not only fear of Russian ability but even an inferiority about it.

For instance fear that the Russians are so clever they can hoodwink this country and surge ahead in nuclear weapons even though under the same limitation the treaty would put on this country.

Carry this attitude one more step: While cheating under the treaty could be detected, as Rusk said, since devices could record an atmospheric blast, any cheating under a disarmament agreement would be far harder to spot.

It therefore follows from the misgivings about the test ban that if this country ever undertook a disarmament agreement with Russia shudders of doubt would shake the United States and perhaps make such an agreement impossible.

For this reason any hope of world disarmament in the foreseeable future looks like a pipedream. But the alternative to disarment is continuing armament.

In short this country and the world, despite the limited test ban treaty which has been called a first possible step toward better understandings, seem headed for an arms race for years to come.

But all the assurances about the treaty given the Senate by Kennedy and his administration were not enough to calm the doubters.

It is a tribute to the depths of their uncertainties that Wednesday Kennedy had to give the assurances all over again, this time in the form of a letter to the Democratic and Republican leaders of the Senate.

These two, Mike Mansfield of Montana and Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, asked for the letter as a final effort to calm the doubters even though the President had nothing basically new to tell them.

All he said, in short, was what any president confronted with a treaty like this one would have said he'd do, and would have had to do without saying it at all.

It was this:

He promised to keep this county 100 per cent vigilant against Russian tricks, to continue testing underground, as the treaty permits, and to do everything possible to develop even better nuclear weapons.

Austin Slayer Is Free Under Bond

AUSTIN (AP)—Howard Pierson faced trial under two murder indictments today, but he was legally permitted to mingle with society.

A jury of 11 men and one woman pronounced Pierson sane Wednesday, ending 28 years of confinement in mental institutions or dodging the law for him.

Pierson, 49, is under 1935 indictments in the fatal shootings of his parents, Texas Supreme Court Justice and Mrs. William Pierson, in April of that year.

Six months after the slayings Pierson was found insane and sent to the state mental hospital at Austin. He has never been tried on the murder charges.

Bond of $30,000 was posted, freeing Pierson until a murder trial.

Dist. Atty. Tom Blackwell said he hoped to get the cases set within a month.

Pierson smiled after hearing the verdict. It was the first smile to cross his poker face since the sanity hearing began Monday. He declined comment.

His brother expressed gratitude. A sister stepped into an outer room and wept briefly.

The small, mild mannered Pierson heard five psychiatrists and two psychologists testify that he is now sane.

His lawyer, Tom Reavley said that when Pierson is tried for murder, his defense will be that Pierson was insane at the time of the slayings.

His older brother, Dr. William Pierson of Gainesville, Fla., testified that an estate of $250,000 awaits Howard. He said Howard told him several days after the 1935 deaths that he killed their parents.

Most of the medical witnesses said Pierson does not remember the slayings because of his irrational thinking at the time, but occasionally breaks into tears when the subject is discussed.

Dr. David Wade, Austin psychiatrist, testified that Pierson in 1945 entertained delusions that God had told him to become the world's greatest scientist and "other telepathetic messages."

Reavley told the jury that failure to free Pierson would set modern psychiatry back and would be a "deed of medieval barbarism."

Blackwell countered that he was not sure Pierson's insanity will not return.

It took the jury one hour and 12 minutes to make the decision.

Pierson told officers in 1935 that he killed his parents. He first said the family was attacked by robbers. He had a bullet wound in the arm, which he later admitted was self-inflicted.

The parents were taken out a road north of Austin, which is now a housing development, on the pretense of seeing some Indian relics Pierson said he found.

Pierson escaped from the Austin hospital in 1938 and again in 1952. He spent a total of five years as a fugitive. Both times he returned after he found adjustment difficult.

The doctors testified that his mental illness "burned out" about one and one-half years ago. One described him as "puppy dog" in his reactions.

Yale has beaten Connecticut in all 14 football meetings.

Tigers Open 1963 Season Against Andrews Friday

The Snyder Tigers, ready and eager, will open their 1963 football season Friday night in Andrews against the highly-rated Mustangs. The 8 o'clock battle will be the seventh meeting between the two schools.

Andrews, chosen by District 2-AAA coaches to come in second in the 7-man race this year, will be seeking revenge against Snyder, having lost to the Tigers 7-0 last year after being picked to win by most prognosticators.

The Mustangs are expected to be greatly improved this year. They have 17 lettermen returning from last year, and could start a returnee at each position. They should field one of the biggest teams in terms of size for this area. Their starting lineup will probably outweigh the Tigers considerably.

Fullback Ralph Hummell, halfback Joe Lyles, and quarterback Floyd Lindsey lend power and class to the Andrews team. Lindsey, a junior letterman, takes care of the passing, while Lyles, a 175-pound 2-year letterman, and Hummell, 190, supply the power.

The rugged Mustang line will be led by end Bert Griffith, tackles Willie May and Buddy Malone, both in the 200 pound neighborhood, and guard James Crown. Griffith is listed at 175 pounds and Crown at 190. A host of other hefty lettermen are available for line duty.

Although the Tigers will be considered underdogs by some of the forecasters, it needn't worry them too much. Snyder should be used to upsetting Andrews by now. In 1958 the Mustangs were heavy favorites to take the Tigers, but Snyder lambasted them by a tune of 34-12. — What did Andrews do then? The Mustangs went on to win district and bi-district before falling in the quarterfinals to eventual state champion Breckenridge.

Then again in 1959 the Mustangs were heavy favorites, and were ranked fifth in the state then they met the Tigers. The final score was 37-8 in favor of Snyder. Again Andrews went on to win bi-district before falling to Breckenridge.

And again last year Andrews was favored to take Snyder, and once more the Tigers came through with a victory.

In the six meetings between the two teams Snyder has won four times, in the years of 1951, 1958, 1959, and 1962. Andrews won in 1960 and 1961.

In a look at the series between Snyder and Andrews, several items of interest can be noted. The largest number of points by one team was the 37 scored by Snyder in 1959. There has been only one shutout by Snyder last year. The highest point total by a losing team was scored by Snyder in 1960, losing 14-28. The longest winning streak in the series is held by Snyder with three straight victories.

This year's edition of the Tigers is an unknown quantity at this time. Pre-season forecasters have selected Snyder to finish in 4th place in District 3-AAA. However, the Tigers themselves intend to finish higher, and judging by their attitude, they will do just that.

Snyder has participated in two scrimmages, against Odessa Ector and Midland High. The result of each was encouraging. The Tigers showed they are willing to hit, and are not afraid of superior size. They have been working to overcome various weaknesses that were evident in those scrimmages.

Coach Horrace Bostick said that this year's team is a fighting group of boys. They have worked hard, and are in fairly good condition for this time of the year. He believes that they will give a top effort in every game.

Seniors Danny Aycock and Billy Stewart will be game captains for Friday night's encounter. They will lead some seven seniors and four juniors in the starting lineup.

Everything Is Big Worry To Broyles

By The Associated Press

Coach Frank Broyles of Arkansas said his big worry in the coming football season was whether he had an offense, since he had lost most of his ball carriers.

Wednesday he was appalled at his defense, since he was stressing defense in practice and you couldn't tell it from watching the workout. The offense, with quarterbacks Jim Brittenum and ordon Guest at the helm, was working as smoothly as a new washing machine.

The Razorback coach said: "I am too blue to talk." Defensive Coach Jim Mackenzie said there just wasn't any leadership.

Seven front line players were on the sidelines with injuries. That didn't help Broyles' feelings any either.

Coach Darrell Royal of Texas also has been down in the dumps, declaring his prospects just didn't meet everybody's expectations. Texas likewise has a flock of injuries.

Royal cut workouts to one a day and trimmed 30 minutes off the practice session Wednesday so he'd be sure to have enough men to open the season next week. The boys ran signals and polished their offense—no way to get hurt doing that. But sophomore fullback Fred Edwards turned up with a boil on his foot.

Rice suffered its first significant injury when R. J. Nitsche, sophomore fullback of promise, dislocated a shoulder. But there was something to cheer about in a controlled scrimmage as tailback Gene Fleming, fullback Paul Piper and fullback Russ Wayt made some good runs.

Coach John Bridgers at Baylor found cause to smile when some of his younger players showed up well. Soph guard Mike Bourland of Fort Worth appeared to be developing both offensively and defensively. Halfback Bob Christian and end Bob Wolf were others cited.

Texas Christian Coach Abe Martin made some changes. He sent Donny Smith to halfback and bumped Marvin Chipman down to the third unit. Soph Dan Jones replaced Jim Fauver at halfback when the latter had to quit work because of sinus trouble.

Fullback Tommy Crutcher had a black eye from the broken nose he got in practice Monday but he was on the field ready to play.

Southern Methodist held an hour's scrimmage for the benefit of the alumni. Texas Tech worked on punting and passing. Texas A&M held a rugged afternoon session to wind up two-a-day workouts.

Big Guns In Action Today At Colonial

FORT WORTH (AP)—Big guns of the Colonial National Invitation Tennis Tournament—Chuck McKinley and Rafael Osuna—move into action today against a couple of hopeful Texas collegians.

McKinley, the Wimbledon champion rated No. 1 nationally, meets Jack Jackson of Tuscalosa, Ala., who swept by young Kenny Wickett of the University of Texas 7-5, 6-0 in the opening round Wednesday.

McKinley is top seeded although he has an ailing back. He had to quit Wednesday night at San Antonio while playing Osuna, the Mexican star who is U.S. national champion and seeded No. 2 here, after each had taken a set.

McKinley and Osuna played one of the exhibitions opening an athletic center at Trinity University, San Antonio, where McKinley is a student. Osuna meets Don Kierbow of Los Angeles, a student at University of Corpus Christi, as the seeded entries in Colonial play their first round. All drew byes Wednesday.

The No. 3 seed, Ham Richardson of Dallas, has to wait until Fritz Schunk of Houston and Jack Turpin of Dallas play a match postponed from Wednesday to know his opponent in today's round.

The No. 4 seeded entry, Antonio Palafox, the Mexican Davis Cupper, meets Bill Wright of Cheyenne, Wyo., former Southern Methodist star. Wright beat Stanley Pasarell of Puerto Rico 6-4, 7-5.

Area Teams Seek First Victories

Two Scurry County gridiron aggregations will get their second opportunity of the season to break into the victory column Friday night.

The Hermleigh Cardinals, who dropped their opener last Friday to Class A Coahoma, 54-0, will appear before the home folks when they challenge the Aspermont Hornets.

Ira's six-man Bulldogs will hit the road again, this time traveling to Abilene where they will tangle with St. Joseph's.

The improved Bulldogs dropped their opener last week, 27-20, to the defending district champions, the Hobbs Panthers. Last Friday night's game was not a conference battle, however.

Gun Club Auxiliary To Have Sunday Shoot

The Canyon Gun Club Auxiliary has set a shoot for this Sunday afternoon at 1:30 at the gun club range southwest of Snyder.

Shooting will be limited to guns of .244 calibre and down. Three trophies will be awarded Sunday, and the group scores will count toward the yearly trophy.

Shooters will be scored on five shots at 100 yards.

Anyone interested in participating or observing is invited to attend.

Grid Giants Good, Sherman Declares

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Coach Allie Sherman stoutly maintains that his New York Giants are sound, in fact "we might have the best team in the last three years."

But the coach of the defending Eastern Division champions in the National Football League made a move that indicates he's far from overloaded in talent going into the weekend opener against Baltimore.

Sherman, whose Giants won just two of five exhibition games, dropped Jim Pace, a halfback, from the roster Wednesday. That put the Giants one man under the 37-player roster limit.

"It will give us a little room to pick up a player elsewhere if we desire," Sherman explained. And they desire. They're looking. But there's little to see.

His concern is a back-up man to his running backs, Alex Webster and Phil King, each of whom had injuries during the exhibition season.

Baltimore, which lost only once in five exhibitions—and that with Johnny Unitas out of action—is a slight favorite. Unitas sat out the final exhibition with a sore shoulder but is reported ready for full time action against the Giants.

The Green Bay Packers, defending league champions, are reported at full strength for their opener against the Chicago Bears. They bolstered their defensive secondary Wednesday with the acquisition of halfback Jerry Norton from Dallas. The Bears also are expected to be at full strength.

There is some doubt about San Francisco's troubled 49ers, however. John Brodie, their No. 1 quarterback, has an injured throwing arm and his status is undetermined for the opener against ambitious Minnesota.

The season opens with two Saturday night games, St. Louis at Dallas and Detroit at Los Angeles.

Sunday, New York is at Baltimore, Washington at Cleveland, Minnesota at San Francisco and Pittsburgh at Philadelphia.

The American Football League, in its second week of regular season play, has Boston at San Diego and Denver at Houston in Saturday night games and Buffalo at Oakland Sunday.

Junior High Grid Teams Play Tonight

Three Snyder Junior High football teams will break the barrier on the 1963 season tonight, with two local squads traveling to Big Spring while another wages war on the home sod.

The Travis 9th grade team will perform before the home folks, playing host to the Lamesa 9th grade team in a game beginning at 7:30 p.m.

Both the 9th and 8th grade teams from Lamar will make the trip to Big Spring where they will meet corresponding teams from Goliad Junior High School.

Lamar 7th and Travis 7th and 8th grade teams will delay their season openers for another week. There will be a full slate of junior high activity next week, with three teams playing in Snyder and three others on the road.

The first 300 game approved by the American Bowling Congress was rolled by A. C. Jellison of St. Louis on Dec. 15, 1908.

New Version Of Robin Hood Story Sounds Pretty Fishy

BY INEZ ROBB

The late Mayor James J. Walker of New York was assured of immortality the moment he said, "No girl was ever ruined by a book." In the long run, he may well be preserved for posterity in a single line in Bartlett's "Familiar Quotations."

Well, I don't want to debate that statement now; I have a feeling it is one of those yes-and-no propositions. What I am interested in at the moment is hoisting myself to my feet and saying a good word in behalf of a man who has just fallen from official favor, Robin Hood.

If I have strayed from the path of rectitude into primrose trails since I first heard of Robin Hood and his Merry Men, Robin is not to blame. And I feel it behooves those of us who cut our milk teeth on the Hood legend to rise, now that he is under attack, and present ourselves as character witnesses in behalf of a man who cannot defend himself.

The British, in the throes on an agonizing moral reappraisal, are letting Robin Hood have it with both barrels. He stands accused as thief, wife deserter, lecher, malfactor, general no-good and, most serious of all in the eyes of the modern criminologist, as antisocial.

The present attack is leveled against Robin, who seemed so dashing and romantic in the sweet long ago, by an article in the current issue of "Justice of the Peace and Local Government Review." Furthermore, the article is supported by the current sheriff of Nottingham, whose predecessor in Robin's time fared not too well at the hands of Hood and his men.

It seems obvious that the present sheriff is speaking from the vantage point of 20-20 hindsight and from an overzealous desire to clean up the old office records.

I don't know where this Review, a magazine of law enforcement and police interest, gets its facts. But it charges that the legendary Hood deserted a loving wife named Matilda to run off to Sherwood Forest with Maid Marian who, to hear the Review tell it, was the Mandy Rice-Davies of her day.

This whole rewrite of the Robin Hood story, after more than 500 years, is pretty fishy. This is the first time I've heard of any wife. In an innocent day before anyone had ever heard of the late Dr. Alfred Kinsey and the triple standard, it was naturally presumed by kids that Hood had made an honest woman of Marian before lighting out for Sherwood Forest; or would do so at any moment. Otherwise, Papa wouldn't have let the book come into our house, much less fall into the hands of his artless children.

And the raking up or intervention of scandals about Robin Hood and his band isn't going to make Profumo smell any sweeter.

We live in an age in which no one really reads history for the simple reason that everyone is too busy writing his own version of it, the better to fit his particular party line. It was once thought that this was a Russian disease, but now everybody's doing it.

If the British are in a puritanical mood at the moment and want to rewrite history, let them take the scouring powder to Henry VIII. But leave Robin Hood alone! The British will also find that it is far easier to rewrite history than to change by jot or tittle a loved legend that is pure hoax.

Americans, till the end of time, are going to go on believing Parson Weem's invention about young George Washington and the cherry tree.

And it seems highly unlikely Americans will give up the treasured legend that Betsy Ross designed the American flag instead of sewing it from a rough draft presented her in Philadelphia in 1776.

History is something in a big book, but legends are part of folklore. And folklore doesn't stand still for tampering. It is too late now to try to change Robin Hood and a good guy into a bad guy just to sweeten a moral crisis.

Junior Editors Quiz on MATCHES

QUESTION: What are matches made of?

• • •

ANSWER: The wooden kind of matches which will strike anywhere are made of sticks sliced from sheets of wood veneer which have been dipped into a fireproofing solution. This prevents afterglow and keeps them from turning into ashes after burning. The matches are also dipped in paraffin which brings the flame from the head to the wooden part so it will burn. The white part of the tip, or eye, is made with sesquisulfide of phosphorus. Although the other part of the head burns, it will not burn when first struck, and it prevents the eyes of the matches from rubbing against each other.

Although very useful, these wooden matches are also dangerous; rats and mice may light them by gnawing and many fires have been caused by children playing with them. The safety match, which has a head coated with chlorate of potash, can only be struck against another bit of material compounded of red phosphorous and sand. Book matches, made of paperboard, were dangerous at first because the striking surface was inside the book and striking a match might set off the whole book. When this striking part was placed outside, however, book matches became very popular.

• • •

FOR YOU TO DO: Before striking a book match, slip cover inside bottom part for safety. How about collecting match book covers? Most collectors like to specialize, like the boy in the picture, whose covers all deal with birds.

Preminger Won't Shun Controversy

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Producer Otto Preminger is a man of controversy who says he doesn't seek controversy at all.

"I'm a man of peace," he said. "But I select my stories and themes on the basis of my own interests. Since we live in a controversial time, why should I go out of my way to avoid controversy?

"That's why I like America — it's still the freest country in the world."

There were those in the motion picture industry who predicted Preminger would run into endless controversies in filming his latest production, "The Cardinal", the story of a young American priest's rise to the rank of prince of the church.

But Preminger himself expressed surprise at the cooperation he received.

"The Vatican made no attempt to control the script," he remarked. "There is much more freedom and autonomy in the church than I had thought."

Preminger, an ex-actor and lawyer who trained under the famed Max Reinhardt in Vienna, is a painstaking, all-around craftsman who likes to handle every aspect of his theatrical ventures. Everything has the Preminger personal touch.

He helps in the preparation of the script, picks the cast and costumes, directs the film, sells it, even goes into the major theaters to see that the lighting and sound effects are right.

"Many producers today like to do that," he said.

Otto credits television with improving the quality of modern motion pictures.

"It broke up the mass production of pictures. It got the industry away from the wholesale treatment and forced it to become more selective, to try harder.

"The trash is now being shown on television. But television, too, will emerge eventually when it gets out of the hands of the advertising agencies, and people start paying for seeing what they really want to see."

At 56, Otto, who is balding and blue-eyed, shrugs off with Austrian aplomb either praise or criticism of his efforts.

"Money doesn't overwhelm me," he observed. "I don't consider it a power, nor do I want to become a slave of it, as I have seen many men become.

"Talent and brains impress me more. So does honesty. So does charm.

"I like charming people, and I can forgive them almost anything. But I forgive charming women more easily than charming men."

JFK May Not Stay

JACKSON HOLE, Wyo. (AP)—Manager Ray Lillie says the White House advised him that President Kennedy, planning a tour of conservation areas, probably will stop at Jackson Lake Lodge for the night Sept. 25.

But, the lodge is scheduled to close for the season next Sunday.

If he doesn't hear again soon, Lillie says the President may not find a room.

Assorted Casualties In Truck Accident

RAWLINS, Wyo. (AP)—A truck and trailer skidded off a newly oiled stretch of U.S. 40 and overturned Wednesday.

Casualties included:

Three adults, 13 children, 160 chickens, 3 geese, 9 guinea hens, 2 dogs and a puppy and a hive of bees.

Only David Stephens, 52, required hospitalization. His condition was listed as good. He was taking his family from Oklahoma to Dexter, Ore.

Fort Louisburg, Capt. Breton Island, Nova Scotia, has been a National Historic Site since 1928. A current restoration project will take in about 20 square miles of historic landmarks and the present fishing town of Louisburg.

LIGHTEST MEXICO

BY JOHN ABNEY

MEXICO CITY — In case anybody out there has been wondering about the school system here in ancient times, it says in this history book that before the conquest poor children were generally educated at home by their parents.

No doubt families would set aside certain hours every day for educational purposes and a sign would be hung on the door saying, NO VISITORS PLEASE, SCHOOL IN SESSION.

Then you would have the Aztec warrior coming home in the evenings and after he would hang his spear and shield on the coat rack, he would glance at his eldest son curled up before the hearth working arithmetic on the back of a wooden shovel with a piece of charcoal.

The father would ask, "Well, how's it coming there lad?"

And the boy would smile brightly and say, "Great, Dad. I'm already on fifth grade problems."

So the father could say, "Good show. How much is two and two?"

The boy would work it out on the back of his shovel and say, "Two and two is twenty-two."

Of course the father would beam with pride and say, "Listen to that, mother. We're gonna have another Abe Lincoln here. Maybe he'll be president of the railroad one day."

Children of the nobility had day schools where they learned to sing and dance and it says the highest schools of learning were the Chalmecac, which means "Row of Houses." They were lined up next to the Great Temple and were boarding schools for boys who wished to train for the priesthood or high official posts.

And probably an Aztec Duke would take his boy around to the temple and tell the high priest, "Good morning your worship. Chauncy here wants to be a Senator when he grows up and since he already has a good start at the singing and dancing school I thought it might be a good idea to enroll him here."

The priest would say, "All right, we'll put him in the third house with the candidates for mayor."

And according to this history book, the discipline of the Chalmecac schools was exceptionally strict. The Aztec boys had to get up at dawn and sweep the houses, cut wood for sacred fires and cut cactus thorns to puncture themselves for penance.

Then they had to get up at midnight to take ritual baths in cold water and the older boys would walk for miles carrying shell horns to play in honor of some idol.

You would have a group of lads hitting the road after their midnight baths, tuning up the conch shell instruments, and one of them would say, "Well fellows, what'll we play as we march along?"

And another would answer, "'Blues In The Night', what else?"

Offenses such as not waking up to bathe and pray or not displaying good manners and elegant speech were punished publicly by thorn jabbings and a sound spanking with nettles.

Just let a schoolboy say something like, "This sunrise stuff is for the roosters. I should of stuck with dancing and boble things like fun:"

Along would come the high priest and say, "Roger, you know the punishment for ill manners and inelegant speech. Go get your bag of thorns and a nettle switch and report to the public square at once."

And Roger would whisper to one of his classmates, "You better loan me an extra switch. I think I'm gonna cuss when the Exalted One whales me across the hip pocket."

Like they say, higher education was the thing. Especially 7,400 feet up in the mountains.

'Whiz Kids', Military Minds Are Competing In Pentagon

EDITOR'S NOTE — They are called "whiz kids" by admirers and critics alike. They are the civilian analysts and theoreticians who have found the welcome mat out for them at the Pentagon. Their clash with the old school professionals in the shaping of defense policy is examined in the following article.

An AP News Analysis

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

AP Military Affairs Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Many military professionals smart under what they consider an excessive influence of civilian "whiz-kid" officials at the Pentagon. But these civilians, to, have met frustrations.

"The fact is, this is a one-man show," said one informed authority who rates himself neutral in the military-vs.-civilian feuding.

"It's run by Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara—he makes up his own mind and makes the decisions."

Like some military leaders, the civilian operations analysts, theoreticians and experts are known to have chafed because McNamara would not go along with certain of their ideas.

But while rebuffs suffered by the services often come into the open, the thwarting of some of the pet proposals of the "whiz kids" generally is known only to the inner circle of defense leaders.

It is reliably reported, for example, that some of the civilian thinkers some time ago against the idea of withdrawing all nuclear battlefield weapons from Western Europe to reduce the hazard of accidental atomic exchange.

According to knowledgeable sources, the Joint Chiefs of Staff warned that such a move could mean the end of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. The proposal got no further.

The long festering military resentments became a matter of public record last week.

Adm. George W. Anderson, retired chief of naval operations and new ambassador to Portugal, told a National Press Club audience he was alarmed at what he said is a trend to overcentralization of civilian authority at the Pentagon.

Anderson is believed to have been denied a second two-year term as CNO because he fought too hard against McNamara's decision to award a potential $8-billion TFX fighter plane contract to General Dynamics Corp. instead of the Boeing Co., whose proposed model Anderson favored.

While obliquely critical of McNamara, Anderson also made it plain he objects to the role played by civilian specialists brought into the Defense Department by Mc Namara from various research and analysis organizations.

Many of these men, mostly unknown to the general public, carry Ph.D. degrees and other academic laurels. A number of them are relatively young—hence the term "whiz kids" is applied to them by critics and admirers alike.

Speaking of this group, Anderson said:

"I am disturbed because now in the Department of Defense, the operations analysts, properly concerned with 'cost effectivenss,' seem to be working at the wrong echelon — above the professional military level rather than in an advisory capacity."

This goes to the heart of the objections of the uniformed officer corps.

Many officers feel strongly there is a place for the civilian "brain" who analyzes the defense problems scientifically and mathematically — but they believe such analysts should be servants, rather than masters, of the seasoned military professional.

Their gripe is that the analysts who have achieved stature under McNamara dabble in military strategy and weapons questions which, the military professionals contend, they lack the experience and conpetence to handle.

The pivotal issue in the TXF fighter plane contract dispute being investigated by a Senate committee is the overriding one of military judgment by civilians led by McNamara.

Military men give the civilian specialists credit for some needed improvements in management methods—such as adoption of a "program package" plan for projecting defense money, weapons, manpower and other needs over a five-year period rather than determining these needs on a somewhat dispointed year to year basis as in the past.

The services are not against the idea of analysis—the Air Force, Navy and Army all have such expert groups staffed largely with civilians within their structures.

There is no doubt that McNamara—a "facts and figures man" gave the analysis greater prominence than they ever had enjoyed before in the defense setup.

But associates of the secretary insist he does not buy what the analysts sell without weighing their arguments against those of the military, and that the military positions do not get short shrift.

The art of operations analysts has become more sophisticated with the advent of improved computers and other advanced tools.

One major criticism voiced by military men is that all problems cannot be reduced to mathematical equations and computer treatment.

These uniformed critics — and there are some key civilians who share their views — contend the operations analysts are so bemused by what they think is rational and logical that they do not give due consideration to the possibility of illogical action by the Soviets.

These critics point to the Soviet gambit last year aimed at placing missiles in Cuba right under the nose of the United States as an action that was militarily illogical but which was attempted nonetheless.

One member of the Joint Chiefs of Staff has told this reporter he is somewhat uneasy about the elaborately reasoned concepts of "controlled response" and "negotiated pauses" — designed to keep accidental clashes and small wars from ballooning into nuclear holocaust.

What bothers him, this high officer said, is that such thinking gives little allowance to the possibility that the Soviets might not play the game according to the way the analysts figure it.

Another criticism leveled at the civilian analysts is that they take slight account of human factors.

As one admiral put it: "These people don't quite understand that a problem faced by a skipper on the bridge of a warship at sea off an enemy coast is not susceptible to a solution by computer."

A recurrent theme in conversation with seasoned military professionals is that some of the civilians who get involved in strategy are too young to have seen any wartime service, and thus have no realistic conception of waging war.

The civilian specialists counter this by saying the military professionals are no more experienced than they in the nuclear war. They note there has not yet been a war in which atomic weapons were used in any scale beyond the dropping of two early model bombs on Hiroshima and Nagasaki toward the end of World War II.

Who are the "whiz kids"? Here are the thumbnail sketches of a few of the most influential;

Dr. Alain C. Enthoven, 33, a native of Seattle; Rhodes scholar; holder of Ph.D. in economics from MIT; slim, handsome product of Rand Corp., a "think factory" where he worked on strategic air warfare studies; prime mover in fostering "spare the cities" policy which envisions nuclear exchanges aimed at military complexes and bases rather than populations.

Henry S. Rowen, 37, a Bostonian, MIT graduate, did graduate work at Oxford and another product of Rand. Tall, sandy-haired, studious-looking has had great impact in formulating limited and conventional war policies.

Dr. Harold Brown, 36, a nuclear physicist and director of the famed Lawrence Radiation Laboratory before becoming powerful director of defense research and engineering. Views weigh heavily in approval or disapproval of weapons projects. Dark, casual-dressing native of New York City and Columbia graduate where he won Ph.D.

Churchills Are Wedded 55 Years

By JOHN GALE

WESTERHAM, England (AP)—The Winston Churchills celebrated 55 years of wedded life today in the secluded quiet of their manor house in Kent.

No special celebrations were planned and no visitors invited to mark this milestone in the marriage that critics once said would never last.

"All the children will probably send them congratulatory telegrams," said Randolph Churchill, the couple's only son. "When they celebrate their 60th anniversary there'll be a whopping big celebration."

The Churchills also have three daughters, Sarah, Diana and Mary.

A member of Churchill's staff hastened to make clear that the lack of festivities was no indication that the 88-year-old wartime prime minister was ailing.

"Sir Winston remains in good health," he said.

The Churchill marriage dates to a gray morning in London in 1908. Churchill, then 34, was a national hero, a flamboyant politician who had won cabinet rank. She was beautiful Clementine Hozier, 23, daughter of a Dragoon Guards colonel and granddaughter of the Earl of Airlie.

At fashionable St. Margaret's, Westminster—the parish church of the House of Commons—more than 25,000 people jammed Parliament Square. Six hundred guests—including the cream of society—filled the church.

Pessimists predicted the marriage would wind up on the rocks.

"Clemmy likes her way too much," said one. "And Winston will never give in."

Twenty-two years later in an autobiographical fragment "My Early Life," Churchill wrote:

"I married and lived happily ever afterwards."

Mustaches May Endure

By JACK RUTLEDGE

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mustaches are not as popular in Mexico as they used to be, but several Mexican policemen are going to court to protect their right to wear them if they want to.

Gen. Francisco Martinez Peralta, head of the capital's traffic police, issued a cleanup order this month.

All men in his department, including motorcycle cops, must shave off mustaches and or beards.

Not many policemen wear mustaches, but 10 indignant officers, claiming the order was absurd and against human rights, hired a lawyer to fight the case.

Their lawyer, Rafael Arenas Montero, filed for an injunction to hold up the general's order. Federal Judge Arturo Serrano Robles granted it.

In years past mustaches were common. They lasted longer than in the United States, for example. There was a saying that "a man without a mustache is like a meal without salt."

But times have changed and today there are made-in-Mexico safety razors and blades.

Pope's Physician Sued

ROME (AP) — Prof. Riccardo Galeazzi Lisi, a personal physician of the late Pope Pius XII, has been ordered by a Rome court to pay eight million lire, about $12,900, in a damage suit.

Attorneys for Prof. Carlo Basilici claimed he had for 20 years received insufficient pay in helping Galeazzi Lisi draft medical articles. The court Wednesday ordered the damages paid as back salary.

Galeazzi Lisi was widely criticized for selling deathbed photographs he took of Pope Pius in 1958. He was ostracized by Italian medical societies.

More than 130 species of flowering plants grow along the banks of the Buffalo River in Arkansas.
