Israeli Air Attacks Condemned By U.S.

State Department Urges End To Raids

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States strongly condemned on Monday Israeli air attacks on coastal villages in Lebanon and urged "in the strongest kind of terms" that they be stopped.

But above all, State Department spokesman Hodding Carter said, the government has emphasized the toll in civilian lives as central to U.S. concerns. He said the United States had registered its objections to Israel both here and in Tel Aviv but also had called on the Palestinians and the Lebanese Christian forces led by Saad Haddad to not contribute "to the cycle of violence."

Haddad's militia are considered Israel's allies in southern Lebanon and, with Israeli support, have tried to keep the area free of Palestinian terrorists.

Spokesman Carter noted Israel's claim that its targets were Palestinian terrorist outposts, but he offered no U.S. corroboration.

Press Accounts Cited

The official U.S. statement, meanwhile, said Israeli planes had struck as close as five miles from Beirut. It cited press accounts that 12 to 15 people were killed in the weekend attacks and as many as 70 injured, including women and children.

There was no mention in the U.S. statement of Syria, which sent MiG interceptors into the air to challenge the Israeli planes, according to Lebanese radio reports.

The attack was the first by Israel on targets in Lebanon in three weeks. Carter said, "We had hoped that these raids, which take such a toll in life, would not be repeated."

This spring, Israel changed its policy to strike at terrorist bases at random to keep the terrorists off guard.

In the past, the Israeli attacks were limited to retaliation for raids against Israel.

Meanwhile, the Carter administration urged Israel to accept a peace-keeping force for the Sinai worked out with the Soviet Union. The force would monitor the Egyptian-Israel peace treaty.

That job was to go to the U.N. Emergency Force, but the Soviets threatened a veto in the Security Council. Like most of the Arab countries, the Soviets object to the peace treaty.

As a substitute, the United States and the Soviet Union decided to enlarge the U.N. Truce Supervision Organization, which was formed in 1948 to supervise an Arab-Israeli ceasefire.

The observers are under the control of U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim, while the emergency force is run by the Security Council.

Israel's confidence in the observers was shaken in 1967 when U Thant, then secretary-general, complied with a demand by the late President Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt that they be withdrawn. The Six-Day war erupted soon afterward. Under the arrangement worked out with the Soviets, there would be no Americans or Russians in Sinai to monitor Israel's troop withdrawal, but Warsaw Bloc countries and others that do not have relations with Israel could be included.

Spokesman Carter said the United States failed to see the point of Israel's objections over the composition since the emergency force includes units from Poland, Indonesia and Ghana, all of whom have no relations with Israel.

He suggested Israel's opposition to the arrangement surfaced only over the weekend. Carter said the United States would keep trying to persuade Israeli officials to accept the substitute.

President Carter, in mediating peace terms between Egypt and Israel, committed the administration to arranging a multinational peace-keeping force if the United Nations failed to find an approach acceptable to the two sides.

Black Progress In City Lagging, Speaker Says

By LISA PAIKOWSKI
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A BLACK businessman Monday told participants in a consumer seminar that black progress is two years behind in Lubbock and urged an interdependence of races to work for opportunities for all people.

Dr. Calvin W. Rolark of Washington, D.C., founder of the United Black Fund, was the luncheon speaker at the Black Consumer and Business Seminar in the Memorial Civic Center. The program was sponsored by the Lubbock Digest newspaper.

Rolark initiated the United Black Fund so that United Way contributions could be designated for black programs.

He cited the lack of black elected officials and policemen in Lubbock and said, "There is no excuse for it. You have the opportunity to run for public office."

He likened the lack of black progress in Lubbock to the situation in the 1800s of Texas blacks who did not learn of their freedom from slavery until six months after abolition. "I don't find anything happening here in Lubbock, Texas," said Rolark. "You're two years behind."

He reminded the mostly black audience of about 125 people several times throughout his talk that "You are somebody," and added, "Our history is here and our contributions are here and we don't have to take a back seat to anybody."

Community Effort Urged

He said that blacks desire "equitable treatment" and suggested that blacks work with each other and with people of other races to achieve success and a stronger community.

Rolark said that the majority of the inmates in the country's prisons are black, and added that they "have suffered an economic death because they can never get a decent job as long as they live." He said that such people do not have the means for attaining better opportunities.

The businessman and publisher told blacks to "band together and use your political power" to elect more black officials in Lubbock and exhorted the Chamber of Commerce to help "teach blacks to be more proficient in business. The more money you bring into this community, the less blacks you'll have on welfare," he said.

Rolark also announced the establishment of a United Black Fund in Lubbock in association with the national organization.

Dallas Man Speaks

Earlier in the day, a Dallas businessman told a seminar audience of about 70 people that blacks should learn as much as they can in life to be able to work rather than be worked.

"We must stop depending on the niceness of white folks," said Dr. Anthony T. Davis.

Davis said blacks must learn to stand on their own two feet and that they must know more things to do more things.

The one thing that keeps most people poor, Davis said, is that any time they get extra money, either from a pay raise or other source, they spend it on personal luxuries.

"Stop spending your money on creature comforts," Davis, owner of three nightclubs, three shoe stores and several other businesses, told the group. "Learn to put aside your money so you can start saving it."

Davis outlined 20 steps to success and wealth, with the first being that people must learn to accept training as part of a step up the ladder. Davis said most people resist training to learn something new, but that education is necessary to get promoted in any aspect of life.

Davis said people must meet with each other within a business and then accomplish what they say they will do as individuals.

"Stop sending a committee to do what one man or one person can do," he said.

To go into business, Davis said, people must realize that they must accept taking a risk and must "stop thinking that you can cinch everything you want to do."

Davis told the gathering during a question-and-answer session after his speech that a person has to have "guts" to go into business on his own, no matter how much education he has.

Other steps on the way to success included by Davis are that nobody is really happy unless he is working and that people must want and know how to win.

"Don't believe it when you hear, 'I'll be so glad when I can retire' because nobody is happy unless they've really got something to do," Davis said.

Davis advised the group to coach their employees' work rather than criticize and to praise a person's work rather

Reservoirs Backed In Water Hunt

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

CONSTRUCTION of a pair of reservoirs southeast of Lubbock is the best way to meet the city's future water needs, the Water Resources Board agreed Monday.

Although some Lubbockites see Panhandle groundwater as the ultimate answer to the city's need for water, board members decided the cost of such a project would be prohibitive.

Board chairman Russell Bean said bringing groundwater from Roberts and Ochiltree Counties, as considered by the city in the past, would "require a very long pipeline and would be exceptionally expensive."

Sam Wahl, city water utilities director, said the city discarded the groundwater project because of the "considerable cost differential" between it and the reservoir project.

Groundwater Price Higher

A rough cost estimate on bringing Panhandle groundwater to Lubbock was $200 million, Wahl said, compared to the $109 million it is estimated the reservoirs will cost.

In addition, he said, the reservoirs will be a renewable source of water, while groundwater is a finite source.

Board member Duncan Ellison, executive director of Water Inc., urged the city staff to develop the cost estimate of the groundwater project to show the cost difference between the two projects when it comes time to sell the public on bonds for the reservoirs.

"There are those among us who look at Post-Justiceburg as a boondoggle or a

Storm Aims Punch At Texas Coast

LAKE CHARLES, La. (AP) — Tropical storm Claudette drew a bead on the Texas shoreline Monday night after lashing the Gulf coasts of Florida, Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana with high tides, gale force winds and heavy rain.

Late Monday the National Weather Service in Miami placed Claudette's broad, ill-defined center about 100 miles southeast of Galveston near latitude 2.82 north and longitude 93.8 west.

Although the storm budged very little for several hours, forecasters expected it to resume a slow northwest movement during the night toward Galveston Island.

"She's playing games," said a National Weather Service spokesman at Lake Charles. "Right now, we don't know what she's going to do."

Claudette was a tropical storm on the rebound after fading last week to a tropical depression and then to a tropical wave. Her highest sustained winds Monday night were 40 miles an hour.

Gale warnings were in effect from Freeport, Texas, to Biloxi, Miss.

Accreditation Check Faced By Hospital

By KIM COBB
Avalanche-Journal Staff

HEALTH Sciences Center Hospital, embroiled in financial troubles and seeking new management, faces another hurdle this week in the guise of an accreditation check.

A three-man team from the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals will survey the hospital Thursday and Friday at a cost of $3,300 to the Lubbock County Hospital District. But associate executive director George McGowan says the check — though admittedly costly — is necessary for the hospital's future credibility.

Voluntary Step

Accreditation by the Joint Commission is a voluntary step, McGowan said. Hospitals are required only to be licensed by the state, a commission spokesman said, but accreditation by the Joint Commission is an indication that the facility intends to provide services beyond the minimum standards.

"The hospital can't afford not to do it," McGowan stressed. Though money is tight within the LCHD, the long-term benefits of accreditation justify the initial cost, he said.

The money for the survey was budgeted, McGowan said, and will not create an additional drain on other budgeted funds. Each member of the three-man team will be paid $550 a day for the survey of the hospital's operation.

The team includes a nurse, hospital administrator and a physician. Originally LCHD officials had expected to pay the cost of a an additional team member — a medical technician — to survey the hospital's lab facilities. But the teaching hospital recently received certification for its clinical facilities by the College of American Pathologists, which eliminated the need for a further survey.

Interviews Scheduled

Hospital staff will have an initial meeting with the inspection team, McGowan said, primarily to explain what team members will do while at the hospital. As part of the survey, team members will interview department heads as well as look at records and inspect actual facilities.

There is always some anxiety among staff members at the onset of such an inspection, McGowan said. But he isn't worried about passing the accreditation.

Many hospitals worry about the state of their medical records, he said. But an in-house check of medical records indicates there should be no trouble at Health Sciences, he said.

Jan Schulman, public information assistant for the Joint Commission, said that of about 7,000 hospitals nationwide who are eligible for the accreditation check, about 5,000 actually participate in the survey.

"We shoot for the best," she said. Mrs. Schulman said the standards set by the government, which the hospital has met, are minimum standards while standards set by the Joint Commission are "optimal."

Because medical residency programs are approved by the American Medical Association, accreditation (or the lack of it) by the Joint Commission does not directly affect the operation of the Texas Tech School of Medicine. But the commission spokeman claimed that many health care professionals will not work in a hospital not accredited by the Joint Commission.

And McGowan agreed that the benefits of accreditation would be felt internally (staff morale) as well as externally.

The decision on accreditation will be announced between 60 and 90 days after the survey, Mrs. Schulman said. The onsite visit will include a summation meeting with staff members, she said, but it

New Fed Chief Top Priority For Carter

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter and his staff pressed a top-priority search Monday for a new Federal Reserve Board chief as the White House summoned top appointees and presidential aides to meetings with the president.

Carter also scheduled his first nationally televised news conference since May 29. It will be held Wednesday at 9 p.m. EDT in the White House East Room.

During last week's Cabinet upheaval, Carter tagged Federal Reserve chairman G. William Miller to be his new treasury secretary. White House press secretary Jody Powell told a group of broadcast reporters Monday:

"That (Miller's replacement) will have our top priority and will be the decision, the replacement, that is probably named first."

Powell reported that White House meetings on finding a new chief central banker were held Sunday and Monday.

Late Monday afternoon, according to sources, White House officials began inviting all sub-Cabinet level presidential appointees to a Tuesday afternoon meeting at the White House with President Carter. That would involve several hundred officials, including those from independent agencies and assistant secretaries within Cabinet departments.

Global uncertainty about the significance of Carter's dramatic moves to revive his presidency put new pressure on the dollar in world money markets Mon-

Khomeini Demands Music Ban

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Iran's tough spiritual and revolutionary leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini demanded Monday that all music — from Bach to rock — be banned from the airwaves because it is as "stupefying" as opium.

The ayatollah immediately ran into opposition from music-lovers and the shopowners who sell records and tapes of all kinds of music, Eastern and Western.

In other developments, four policemen were executed Monday after Islamic Revolutionary courts found them guilty of murdering anti-shah dissidents last year.

In oil-rich Khuzestan province, guards apprehended two Arabs after a bomb went off near pipelines leading to the world's largest oil refinery. One Arab was slightly hurt in the explosion, but no damage was done to the pipe, the guards said.

It was not known whether Khomeini's call for a ban on broadcast music became an official order. In religious matters, Iranians are expected to act according to his orders.

A music store owner said, "If people have guts they'll come out and oppose the ban ... If the ban goes into effect our already booming business will increase tenfold.

"The public is already complaining about how terrible the situation is with our national radio and television not having any good musicial programs ... It's impinging on our personal freedom. He can't stop me from listening to music, no matter what my tastes are," she said.

Khomeini called for the ban at an audience with employees of Radio Darya, which broadcasts in the summer to the tourist-packed Caspian coast.

At his residence in Qom, 100 miles south of Tehran, the 79-year-old Moslem clergyman told them, "Music should not be broadcast over the radio and television. Music is something that everybody is attracted to naturally, but it takes them out of reality to a futile and lowly livelihood. Like opium, music also stupefies persons listening to it and makes their brain inactive and frivolous," he added.

There was no indication when such a ban would go into effect. The national radio and television planned — in accordance with custom — to stop broadcasting all music beginning Thursday, the beginning of Ramadan, 30 days of Moslem fasting.

Khomeini accused the deposed shah's regime of "corrupting and degrading" the nation' youth though the broadcast of music and said radio and television must be transformed into tools of instruction.

Before Khomeini and his supporters ousted the monarchy last February radio and television used to broadcast Western rock and classical music daily. Many Iranians flocked to the capital's hotels to listen to their favorite male and female vocalists singing and playing Persian music. But the revolution put an end to all that.

Western-style discotheques in the capital and in major provincial cities closed down after the revolution. Several in Tehran reopened, serving soft drinks because alcoholic beverages are banned.

Business reportedly is slow because of harassment by zealous Islamic revolutionary committees.

The executions of three state police and a city policeman Monday brought to 358 the number of persons to die before revolutionary firing squads since the February revolution. All four men were found guilty of murdering political dissidents last year.

France Attempting To Absorb Refugees Into Everyday Life

ROMILLY-SUR-SEINE, France (AP) — An efficient system for integrating refugees into French society has eased about 60,000 persons into jobs and homes since 1975, but the Southeast Asians are uneasy about moving into the mainstream.

The 30 or so refugee families in Romilly-sur-Seine, Vietnamese, Cambodian and Laotian, have been accepted by this small community. They have been helped to find jobs, homes, schools for their children, and for the most part they are industrious, self-supporting families.

But they are not French. Most of them do not have a command of the language. They do not like French food. They are unfamiliar with French customs. And they are uneasy about moving out of refugee circles, or find it difficult to do so.

Five years ago, Van Heng was a happy fisherman using a small boat every day to ply the waters off the coast of his native Cambodia, leading the only kind of life he ever had known.

Then the government changed, the communist Khmer Rouge took power "and they started killing people ... even killing the children."

Heng gathered up his small family, put a few belongings in his boat and headed for Thailand and nearly two years in a refugee camp.

Today, Heng spends 40 hours a week operating a machine in a shoe factory far from the sea. He, his wife Eth Soya, and two children live in a modest, sparsely furnished but well-kept apartment in this town of 18,000. And they are happy — more or less.

The refugees have been accepted in the community, but barriers exist.

"We don't need money, we don't need clothes, what we need is people — people willing to take a family in hand and help them with their problems. People who will bring them into their homes and help them become members of our society," said Alain Laude, director of the region's three refugee centers, halfway houses that help the refugees find jobs and homes.

Because housing is in short supply in Romilly-Sur-Seine, most of the apartments found for the refugees are in the same quarter, a new subdivision of apartment blocks. Refugee officials would prefer to spread the families out more, and are worried that the Southeast Asians have begun to form a tightly knit community of their own that inhibits them from mixing with the local population.

Like most of the refugees here, Heng is reluctant to talk about his problems, preferring to express his gratitude for the new life he has been offered and the help he has received.

He's taking French lessons, but admits that his inability to speak the language had been a serious barrier to slipping into French life.

Huu Vien Vo, a 35-year old Vietnamese who had been living in Laos, said he paid $1,500 for someone to take him, his wife Phan Thi Moai, and month-old baby across the Mekong River into Thailand because Laotian life was not good for children.

"In the beginning I didn't speak much French, but now everything is fine," Vo said. "This is my country now."

Vo, who is a nurse by profession, works as a medical orderly in a local clinic where his wife also works as a cleaning woman.

For the young it is much easier. Children learn the language easily and become well-adapted in school. The biggest sign of acceptance is among adolescents and young adults who often date French people.

Some refugees dream of going back home, but realize it is probably only a dream. Others consider the new life a blessing.

"I have no desire to return to Laos," said Keo Noi Morada, a former Laotian soldier who earns 3,600 francs a month (about $860) in the shoe factory where Heng works. "It's no life. It's all over there."

"Problems? After what we left, life is beautiful."

Lubbock Mexican-American Chamber Honored

The Lubbock chapter of the Texas Association of Mexican-American Chambers of Commerce was honored as the outstanding chamber of the year this weekend during TAMACC's fourth annual convention, held in the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center.

Odessa oil businessman Mario Salinas was named outstanding businessman of the year.

Jaime Garcia, president of the Lubbock chapter, accepted the award on behalf of the chapter, which beat out 26 other local chapters across the state for the top honor.

Salinas, an Odessa resident since 1968, is the owner and operator of Ideal Derrick, which has grown from a small oilfield repair operation to a largemanufacturing and drilling operation.

Since 1976, when Salinas was able to put his business into high gear, he has operated in eight states and three Canadian provinces.

Salinas also is involved in several other ventures. He is a member of the board of directors of the Odessa Enterprises Inc., and owns large portions of the Salinas Bros. Partnership, which is involved in land grazing, cattle and service stations, and the Six-Pac Partnership, which is involved with real estate. He has established the the Salinas Mexican-American Scholarship Fund at Odessa's Ector High School for students pursuing business careers.

Airline Coupons Left To Dealers

DENVER (AP) — Lone-wolf speculators who gobbled up United Airlines and American Airlines half-fare coupons have eased out of the coupon market here, leaving the business to coin and stamp dealers.

"It was just one of those things that fell in our lap," said Chester West, manager of L&L Coins and Stamps Inc. in northwest Denver.

The coupons are retailing now for $55 to $65 and dealers forecast the price will rise as high as $80 before the market abruptly caves in Dec. 15, when the airlines' half-fare offer expires.

"The people who started this whole thing were kids smart enough to see they could turn $100 into $200 quickly," said West, who buys the coupons at between $30 and $36, "but mass distribution wasn't their bag."

Jack Willis, owner of the Denver Gold and Silver Exchange, said the coupons should hit the $75 to $80 range this fall. "It's a good scam and it's legal, too," he said.

Golf ball-sized hail also fell in the Friona area about 7:30 p.m.

A severe thunderstorm warning effective until 9:15 p.m. was issued by the National Weather Service for Cochran and Bailey counties and for Potter, Randall and Armstrong counties in the Panhandle.

The storms west of Lubbock were expected to bypass the Hub City, a weather service spokesman said Monday night.

AN EDITORIAL:

Conspiracy Theory Gets Push

ONE HUNDRED years from now, unless someone comes forward to "confess," we doubt that the controversy over the assassination of President John F. Kennedy will have been resolved.

Nor the shooting of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., for that matter.

While there always has been serious doubt in the minds of millions about what actually happened in both instances, little real knowledge has been added to either situation by all of the probes, exposes and added Congressional studies since.

IF ANYTHING, more fuel was poured on the smoldering flames of "what really happened" this past week with the report of the House Assassinations Committee.

The committee flatly stated that John F. Kennedy was the victim of a "probable" murder conspiracy that "possibly" can be traced to an individual organized crime figure or a small underworld group.

Note the words probably and possible...

The committee's final report, culminating more than two years of study and a host of hearings, also concluded that a conspiracy may have been behind the April 4, 1968 slaying of Dr. King.

THE REPORT raised the possibility of conspiracies in both the Kennedy and King cases, but gave no details of the conspirators nor why they might have been involved.

In the shooting of Kennedy, the committee earlier said that it felt that it was Lee Harvey Oswald who had fired the fatal shots that killed the President, but that it was probably the result of a conspiracy.

The committee said there is "a high probability" that a second gunman fired a shot that missed the President's motorcade in Dallas' Dealey Plaza.

Organized crime figures could have been involved in both the King and Kennedy assassinations, the group said, although no motives were established in either case.

THUS ANOTHER chapter has been added to one of the more bizarre incidents of American history.

The problem here is twofold: 1. It is obvious and has been almost from the day of Kennedy's death that the investigation could have been much more thorough and well-organized; 2. People are most likely to believe what they want to, much of it pure fiction or speculation.

The lesson is also obvious, whether in an incident of such proportions or a local crime: Those charged with such things should do as detailed a job as possible at the time, not later when it is too late.

AN EDITORIAL:

Right-To-Life Alive, Well

THE 1980 ELECTION has been made a key battleground in the right-to-life movement's war for political power. And Paul Brown, a former department-store salesman now director of the Life Amendment Political Action Committee, plans to emerge in November of next year as a winner.

Brown has set his sights on six senators and five House members who have led the fight in Congress for federal funding of abortion for welfare mothers covered by Medicaid.

Brown's group draws its strength from its single-mindedness—its determination to pass a constitutional amendment to ban abortions—a proposal that has been bottled up for years by the House and Senate judiciary committees.

But Brown hopes candidates backed successfully by his group in 1980 will force approval of his amendment by 1982.

IF OR WHEN that happens, Brown says, his committee will go out of business.

"We have a different twist than other political groups," he says, "Our concern is a moral issue and it involves God."

His supporters often work with church groups or distribute their political leaflets at church parking lots.

"This is a life or death issue with a certain urgency," he says. "Every day we don't have the amendment, more children are killed."

Brown bolsters that argument by pointing to a political advertisement showing a "16-week-old unborn child"—others would call it an aborted fetus—who Brown says needs the voters' help.

His committee picks its races carefully, looking for incumbents who favor abortion and are expected to have tough re-election challenges.

BY APPEALING TO the 5 to 10 percent of the electorate that strongly opposes abortion, Brown believes his side can provide the votes to swing the balance.

House targets are Democrats Robert Drinan of Massachusetts, Joseph Fisher of Virginia, Robert Edgar of Pennsylvania and Morris Udall of Arizona, plus GOP presidential aspirant John Anderson of Illinois.

Brown's committee and other right-to-life groups reflect the proliferation of single-issue lobbies, each battling to get the attention and support of the nation's politicians.

In the aggregate, however, they help unclog the shopworn coalition-building concept of political parties while forcing lawmakers to stand up and be counted on one side or the other of at least one issue.

HENRY J. TAYLOR:

Unreadiness Inspected By 'Marine's Marine'

WASHINGTON—Retired Four-Star Marine Corps Gen. Lewis W. Walt, former Marine commander in Vietnam, has written an important book: "The Eleventh Hour." I haven't the faintest idea whether it will go on the best-seller list but, certainly, it deserves to.

Gen. Walt—a "Marine's Marine"—very convincingly states that the U.S. has become so militarily weak that the American people's lives and destiny now rest largely with the Soviet Union. Unquestionably, the Senate will find "The Eleventh Hour" invaluable in the SALT-II Treaty debates.

General Walt—to the surprise of those who stereotype weapon-waving, tub-thumping generals—not only presents the military imbalance of raw materials between the U.S. and the Soviet, but an acute analysis explaining our country's decline in power.

IN NON-technical language, Gen. Walt points out that the U.S. now faces imminent peril from a surprise nuclear attack or nuclear blackmail. He details both the terrible gap in strategic-conventional forces and the "strategic-thinking gap."

U.S. strategy is based on the premise that nuclear war is both unthinkable and unwinnable.

But the Soviet does not change. The more it appears to change the more it remains the same. For at least 900 years Russia has had the constant goal of world domination.

President Carter obscures the change in Soviet temperature. The Kremlin blows hot or cold, talkative or surly, aggressive or placating, but always determined to dominate the world. And Soviet strategists are convinced that nuclear war is both feasible and winnable.

GEN. WALT, rounding out his inventory of U.S. strengths and weaknesses, looks at America's economic and spiritual characteristics. He concludes that we have become materialistic in spirit at the very time we have become economically vulnerable.

He states this is due to America's strategic imports, the decline in our industrial base, our inflation and President Carter's strangulation of free enterprise.

As opposed to rhetorical fluctuations between concepts like "Cold War," "Detente," "Massive Retaliation," etc., the policy has been to avoid direct Soviet confrontation and, eventually, to hope the Soviet may evolve into a nation with which we could live in peace.

WHILE THE Soviet has long-range strategic goals, we confine ourselves to reacting to Soviet initiatives and stall for time, stopping short of any offensive moves.

Gen. Walt points out that for the past several decades U.S. foreign policy was made by an elite academic group constructing a convincing case that America's chief decision-makers are motivated by fear.

He states: "They are frightened by the atomic bomb and by the cruelty and toughness of the Soviet leaders."

Gen. Walt describes a nation of unsurpassed strength in 1945 and perilious weakness in the 1970s. Instead of internal subversion, Gen. Walt sees successive groups of timid men failing to equip themselves to face the Soviet's savage, devious realities.

IT MAY well turn out that Gen. Walt's "The Eleventh Hour" is his most consequential hour in a long and distinguished career of national service and the cause of peace and freedom.

Every page rings with the optimism and faith that propelled a poor Kansas farm boy through the perils of combat in three wars to a national leadership position.

He tempers his criticism with reason and fair play, never impuning the loyalty of those criticized.

Surely Gen. Walt has earned the right to speak for the American people. He has had more combat experience than any other living Marine and his timely "The Eleventh Hour" is certain to create a sensation in the SALT-II debates.

Reader Says President Does Not Understand America

Editor, Avalanche-Journal:

Does Jimmy Carter expect the American people to perceive him as anything but a colossal hypocrite when he delivers a starry-eyed plea for them to say good things about America while the man he appointed ambassador the United Nations is making a career out of dumping on the American flag, both at home and abroad?

Indeed, elected and appointed officials from Carter's own party have taken the lead in a wave of self-criticism and politically expedient acts of national self-destruction that have stripped away our intelligence capabilities, weakened the American military, compromised American interests abroad and, in general, put America in a position of retreat everywhere. Carter apparently doesn't accept this promotion of national guilt hyped by the media and a certain breed of politician as the root cause of America's spiritual crisis.

As far as energy and economics are concerned, governmental spending and regulation are the causes of the problem; inflation and gas shortages are only symptoms. If the world's largest pool of crude were discovered under Muleshoe, Texas, the oil industry couldn't touch it if it disturbed the nesting habits of a dozen sandhill cranes. Yet Carter offers a solution of more regulation, more bureaucracy, and bonds that "little people" can buy.

Sooner or later someone will discover that bureaucrats and little people don't discover oil or develop new energy sources. Little people only vote for the Jimmy Carters of the world and wonder why their living costs are going through the roof.

In short, Carter missed the point entirely in his message to the people. A carefully packaged product of Rafshoon, Jordan, and Powell, he fails to recognize the true role of government in the energy crisis.

I'm feeling no guilt at having never worried about where my next meal was coming from...and if my kids have it better than someone else's, I feel no personal remorse.

As for saying something good about America, the most encouraging factor I can find is that we have the power in less than two years to throw Jimmy Carter out on the street. God help us if we don't.

He Praises Crime Film, Urges Citizens' Support

Editor, Avalanche-Journal:

I would like to compliment the Mayor and his staff in promoting the showing of "Scared Straight." Also Channel 28 in showing the film.

Showing this film probably made some young man or woman who might be thinking of committing a crime change their mind.

I hope our citizens take a more active part in reporting any crime or evidence which they may know about and let's back up our Police Dept. and make Lubbock a safer place to live.

Range Of Protection In Social Security Scored

Editor, Avalanche-Journal:

I would like to comment on Kenneth May's column of Thursday evening, June 28th, "Let the Man Work." In it, an objection was voiced over a Social Security Law which limits the amount of earned income a person can have and still draw his/her full social security benefits.

The law referred to is commonly known as the "retirement test." The legislators saw a need to hold down program costs while providing benefits to those who demonstrated a loss of income due to their retirement.

Mr. May's description of the retirement test was very accurate. In 1979, those age 65 or older may earn $375 per month ($4,500 annually) and draw all of their social security benefit. The beneficiary forfeits $1 in benefits for each $2 earned in excess of this amount. In the case cited, this figure combined with his monthly benefits equals a retirement income of $621.80 a month.

Congress significantly liberalized the retirement test with the 1977 amendments. The exempt amount for those 65 will increase to $5,000 in 1980, $5,500 in 1981 and $6,000 in 1982. Also, the age beyond which the retirement test does not apply was lowered from age 72 to 70, effective Jan. 1, 1982.

As Mr. May indicated, if enough voters want to liberalize the retirement test further, it is possible through additional legislation.

However, we should all remember that to do so would result in increased expenditures. Where will these additional benefits come from? Historically, these funds have been raised through increased taxes on the employes and employers.

I saw a television documentary several years ago which sums up this dilemma rather well. It asked, "How much protection do the American people want the Social Security system to provide? And, how much are they willing to pay for?"

Denver City Woman Sees Grave Danger In Politics

Editor, Avalanche-Journal:

How can the price of oil be responsible for our nation's bankruptcy when two of the most proserous nations in the world, West Germany and Japan, import all of their oil? Can it be because those two nations have no restrictions on selling their products to the Arab nations?

We not only produce at least one-third of the oil we use (and would produce more if government permitted it) but the industry is forced to sell a portion of what we produce (old oil) at about one-third of its market value. Now that the President has decided to let the price of "old oil" rise a few cents per barrel, we hear screams of "excess profits" or "windfall profits" and plans to not only tax away the small rise in price but vastly more.

As for the price of oil being the cause of the nation's financial chaos, our country was bankrupt 30 years ago when the price of oil was around $3 per barrel. The price of oil is also blamed for inflation, but what about the rise in the cost of postage and the sorry service we receive in return? What about the inflated cost of government and higher and higher income tax?

In my opinion, the President's energy plan is nothing more than a blueprint for the complete paralysis of our nation and an excuse for him to declare a national emergency, seize the oil industry and all other private property the "people-herders" might wish to destroy.

And don't overlook the possibility of war against the Arabs. Judging from his numerous criticisms of OPEC his speech might have been dictated from Tel Aviv.

Bloated welfare rolls of able-bodied men and women, food stamps to people able but unwilling to work, juicy grants for research on brainless subjects, environmentalists prohibiting construction of badly needed hydro-electric generating plants, pipelines and refineries are just a few of the causes of the nation's financial crisis and the citizens' loss of confidence in what was once "our" government but now our "fearful master." Yes, 1984 has arrived.

VIRGINIA PAYETTE:

Label It Eatable

WASHINGTON—As a hopeless Frito freak (and I have the bulges to prove it), I am keeping a close eye on Big Brother's plans to save me from my wicked ways.

He never gives up, that one. First, cigarettes...then saccharin...now food. Maybe he figures that if all labels must, by law, tell me exactly what it is I'm stuffing into my face, I will be jolted into munching what's good for me.

And it is a measure of our government-dominated existence, I suppose, that I do not rise up in outraged indignation when BB moves further into my gizzard.

He already regulates most everything else—from giving him all my money for taxes right down to how often I take the dog in for shots.

So it seems almost inevitable, now that he has me brainwashed into helpless docility with government regulations, that I'm about to be belly-washed into proper nutrition.

IT WOULD be ungracious of me to protest. After all, didn't he go to a lot of trouble a few years back to convince me that those rat hairs and toenails that keep showing up in canned goods are perfectly safe? Who else would tell us these things?

Now he's going to tell us even more. There's a new law coming up that would require food processors to spell out exactly what's in those shiny cans, boxes and packages that tempt us from supermarket shelves.

The food and drug folks want everything to have new labels that list each specific flavor, spice, artificial coloring and additive that goes into processed food.

And in language that even a diet dropout can understand. No longer will we have to puzzle over "thiamine mononitrate," "dicalcium phosphate," "propylene glycol monocesters," "diglycerides," "riboflavin," "BHA," "BHT," etc.

NOT ONLY that, the labels would tip us off to how "dangerous to our health" our favorite foods are.

If the law goes through, manufacturers will have to 'fess up to how many calories are lurking there in those goodies, how much sugar, salt, fat and cholesterol.

Big Brother, in fact, is out to accomplish what Mom, Weight Watchers and even our mirrors have been trying to get us to do for years: Eat a sensible diet and go easy on the junk food.

Actually, he's only giving us what we've been asking for.

The Food and Drug Administration took a survey last year and found out that Americans really want to know what they're eating. And they want it spelled out on the labels.

ONLY BY scanning an honest—and understandable—list of ingredients, they said, could they determine the quality and freshness of the food.

And listing the spices, flavors and coloring is a long-neglected "must" for hundreds of thousands of folks who are allergic to certain foods.

(There is, in case you're wondering, no provision to list the amount, calorie count or nutritional value of the various bits of cockroach, animal bone or insect excrement that sometimes wind up in your canned goods. But the FDA says that, while it may not be good for you, there's never enough to make you sick. Try not to think about it.)

There's also some talk about listing the percentage of the various ingredients, rather than the amount. Especially on items like presweetened cereals and soda pops, which are mostly sugar.

MOST MANUFACTURERS would rather list the amount. Most manufacturers, in fact, would rather the subject hadn't come up at all.

The FDA doesn't expect the food industry to take kindly to the new regulations and it's bracing itself for a flood of squawks that printing up all those detailed labels would be too costly or would give away too many trade secrets.

A government spokesman admits there might have to be a exemption or two and maybe a "few compromises." Which is probably a delicate way of saying there's no way anybody's ever going to force Coca-Cola to publish its legendary secret on any bottle.

Whether anybody will pay attention to the new labels is something else again. But don't underestimate Big Brother. He's trying to encourage grown-ups to eat right, but he's getting ready to force the younger generation into it.

IF THE Agriculture Department has its way, junk food will be banned from schools until after lunch. That means no soda pop, chewing gum or candy bars will be sold until the kids have had a chance to polish off their carrot sticks.

Brown-baggers can always smuggle a no-no or two in from home, but the millions of students who line up for their nutritionally balanced government lunches will be encouraged to eat their spinach before school officials unlock the vending machines.

Interested parties have until Sept. 6 to comment on this proposal. So get ready for a lot of loud hollering from the makers—and pushers—of soft drinks, candy and gum.

It might even trigger a few non-compulsory letters from kids who are spending the summer at camp, busily not eating their spinach and carrot sticks.

Q. DO JAGUARS run in prides like lions?

A. No, sir, Jaguars are loners. You don't even see the male and female together except for a few days a year. Jaguars kill differently, incidentally. Most cats go for the jugular. The jaguar might do that, but more probably it will bite through the skull.

Another candidate for the "My Name Is a Poem" Club is Danny Cranny of Sioux City, Iowa.

The world uses about as much salt each year—90 million tons—as is contained in a cubic mile of ocean water.

No, fat does not mean the same as slim. But fat chance and slim chance do indeed mean the same.

When lead pipe was first devised, it revolutionized the plumbing trade. It was so easy to work with, comparatively. And the plumbers themselves gave us a common expression. Anything that easy, they said was a "lead-pipe cinch."

Miller Airs Preference For Stepped-Up Decontrol Of Oil Prices

WASHINGTON (AP) — Treasury Secretary-designate G. William Miller said Monday that he would like to see federal controls on domestic oil prices removed quickly, but will work for gradual decontrol if that is what President Carter desires.

"When the president has made a decision on the policies that will follow ... I would hope to do my best to implement the decisions and to advocate that they be adopted," he told a news conference.

He added that Carter's decision to lift controls on domestic crude oil over the next several years could be changed.

"He has the option to speed that up," Miller said. "He has the option to slow that down."

Miller, currently chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, made the comments at his first news conference since being nominated by Carter for the Treasury post.

Carter last week fired Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal and four other Cabinet officials. A greater "degree of cohesion" is being sought from the new team, a chief Carter aide said this weekend.

Miller, in answer to a wide-ranging series of questions, assured both the public and the domestic and international monetary markets that he expected to make few changes in the economic policy set out in the 2½-year Blumenthal tenure.

"I do not see any change in substance," he said. "I do not see any change in what we are trying to accomplish."

He added that what he will bring to the Treasury Department is "newness, freshness" like an athlete "getting into the game not so winded."

The drubbing the dollar has taken in the markets in recent days reflects that "the markets are hesitant and waiting to evaluate the events of the past weeks," Miller said.

He said there was "no reason for alarm" and that "I am sure they will find this not to be a negative change."

He added, "I don't believe that there will be any reason to rush out and take imprudent action just to influence the market."

Miller, 54, a Seplupa, Okla., native and former chairman of Textron Inc., also gave these assessments:

•The tax-cut being advocated by Republicans for next year might not be needed. "It seems to me premature to judge that this economy is in immediate need of that stimulus," Miller said.

•Blumenthal was "an outstanding secretary of the Treasury" and, Miller said, "I am personally saddened to see him depart and remove the strength that he gave to the government."

•Miller's successor at the central bank "will be a better man than I am," Miller said.

•The government needs to continue its anti-inflation policies, which have included budget restraint, the wage and price standards, dollar support and a tight monetary policy.

Army Admits Leaks Of Delirium-Causing Agent

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army acknowledged Monday there have been five leaks since 1970 from its 100,000 stockpiled pounds of the psycho-chemical agent BZ.

An Army spokesman, Maj. Leon DeLorme, said none of the delirium-producing BZ escaped into the atmosphere. He said three workers were exposed, but there were no serious injuries. One worker was hospitalized overnight as a precaution and then returned to his job, DeLorme said.

The Army said the incidents occurred at the Pine Bluff, Ark., Arsenal, where most of the BZ is stored, and at the Aberdeen, Md., Proving Ground. Some stocks also are located at the Dugway Proving Ground, Utah.

DeLorme said the Army decided in 1976 to "demilitarize" or destroy the stockpiled BZ but has not yet been able to solve the problem of how to do this. He said the Army has asked the Battelle Research Institute in Columbus, Ohio, to develop a disposal plan.

BZ produces extensive hallucinations, but does not kill. It was produced in the early 1960s with the aim of disabling enemy armies in a war.

Since then, the United States has adopted a policy that it will not be the first to use lethal or incapacitating chemicals.

The Army said it has no intention to use BZ in any way, including control of civil disturbances.

Army acknowledgement of leaks at Pine Bluff and Aberdeen came as the result of a campaign conducted by a group called American Citizens for Honesty in Government, which is sponsored by the Church of Scientology.

Brian Anderson, the group's spokesman, told a news conference Monday the Army "has not conducted any medical or environmental studies to determine the long-term dangers of ... BZ, which the Army tested on hundreds of unwitting U.S. servicemen."

The Army has said it tested BZ on 362 persons from 1960 to 1969 but has not followed up to determine any after-effects. The 362 were volunteers, the Army said, but were not told they would be subjected to BZ.

YOUTH HANGED ACCIDENTALLY

BROWNSVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The hanging death of a 14-year-old youth was a "freak accident," Dr. Gerald White, Haywood County coroner, said Monday.Richie Butler of Mount Sterling, Ill., was killed Sunday when he fell off a second floor apartment balcony and accidentally hanged himself with a wet towel. "The best we could tell was that he had anchored the towel to the railing support and was leaning over the balcony when his feet slipped," White said.

Furr's Cafeterias Note Earnings Rise

Furr's Cafeterias has continued to show improvement in sales and earnings during the second quarter of 1979, despite gasoline shortages in some areas and other adverse conditions, according to Don G. Furr, chairman and chief executive officer.

Sales during the quarter ended June 30, 1979, were $25.1 million, an increase of 18.8 percent over sales of $21.2 million in the same quarter of 1978.

Earnings increased 8.9 percent to $1.2 million or 49 cents per share in the second quarter of 1979 over earnings of $1.1 million or 45 cents per share in the second quarter of 1978.

"These increases in earnings were achieved in spite of an unusual adjustment of $161,000, or 7 cents per share, made during the second quarter. The adjustment became necessary when it was announced that Furr's Inc., a regional grocery chain in which Furr's Cafeterias owns 12,130 shares, or approximately 7 percent of the outstanding stock, had entered into Chapter XI reorganization proceedings," Furr said.

"Without the special adjustment, earnings per share would have been 55 cents, a very good quarter," Furr said.

Earnings per share attributable to tax credits were 4 cents during the quarter compared to 5 cents in the second quarter of 1978.

Sales for the six months ended June 30, 1979, were $46.9 million as compared to $39.7 million in the same 1978 period, an increase of 18.2 percent. Earnings were $2 million or 83 cents per share, an increase of 25.7 percent over earnings of $1.6 million or 67 cents per share in the first six months of 1978. Earnings per share attributable to tax credits were 8 cents compared to 10 cents in the first six months of 1978.

Increases in sales during the second quarter were attributable to one new unit opening, the maturity of units opened in 1978, increased average customer traffic and a higher average sale per customer. Management is extremely pleased with the continued strength of sales in most areas, Furr said.

The new cafeteria opened during the second quarter of 1979 brings the total number of cafeterias in operation to 74. Plans have been made to open another four or five cafeterias by the end of 1979.

"We have been encouraged by the continued improvement in operating results, particularly in view of gasoline shortages, rumored recessions, and continued inflationary pressures," Furr said. "Barring extreme fuel shortages, management expects the improved results to continue," he added.

White House Would Suit Gov. Brown

NEW YORK (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr., who disdains to live in the California governor's mansion because he considers it too lavish, says he wouldn't mind moving into the White House, should he be elected president.

"It looks pretty convenient," he said in response to a reporter's question Monday. "I could walk to work."

In a taped interview broadcast on CBS' "Monday Morning" news show, Brown refused to say whether he would run for president in 1980, but he said an "exploratory" group probably would be formed to raise funds. He said he would make a definite announcement on his candidacy later this year.

Talk is cheaper than you think.

How to save up to 60% on Long Distance.

If you're one of those who thinks a Long Distance call is a luxury, read on.

The trick to saving money while keeping in touch with family or friends is knowing when to call, and calling One-Plus.

Call between 11pm and 8am.

Before you groan about how you can't stay up late or see straight in the morning, think about it.

You'll be saving up to 60%! If you're a night person, you probably don't start counting sheep until after 11 pm anyway. And if you've got friends and family to call out west, it'll be a perfectly civilized 9 or 10 pm when their phone rings. If you like to see the sun rise, and you know folks back east, it'll be an hour later on their end.

Call out of state anytime before 8 am and you can talk all day if you want and still save 60%. In-state calls are also greatly reduced. Just remember to dial One-Plus.

Even on weeknights, save up to 35%.

Sometimes you can't wait for the weekend. Or you don't want to. But you can still save plenty Sunday through Friday from 5 pm to 11 pm. Think about what a bargain it is to call someone 1900 miles away, talk it up for ten minutes, and only run a tab of about $2.00. There's just no other way to get close to a faraway friend or relative so quickly, so cheaply.

On weekdays it's still a bargain.

Here's a surprise. From 8 am to 5 pm, a Long Distance chat still doesn't cost very much. A five minute call out of state, to anywhere in the continental U.S. is only about $2.50 when you dial One-Plus. Think of how good the sound of your voice would be to a friend (not to mention your mother!) right in the middle of the day!

Reach out on the weekend and save up to 60%.

Now this is a stroke of good luck: a really cheap Long Distance phone call just when you may want it most. Call any time between 11 pm Friday and 5 pm Sunday and really save. For instance, dial One-Plus and you can make a ten-minute call to Atlanta for only $1.55. That's almost worth making a new friend in Atlanta for.

Even if you're not a regular do-it-yourselfer, do-it-yourself when you call Long Distance. The savings are significant when you dial "one" plus the area code plus the phone number, instead of having the Operator do it. It's also faster. If you don't know the area code you need, just look in the front of your Telephone Directory. (Also check your telephone directory for exact discounts and conditions on out-of-state and in-state calls.)

Along with the flag-waving, fetes and parades, pick up the phone and call Long Distance. Our regular evening discount rates apply all day on Christmas, New Year's Day, Labor Day, July 4th and Thanksgiving. If the holiday falls on a weekend, you get the lower rate. Isn't this the perfect time to ring up friends and family?

Reach out.
Reach out and touch someone.

Three Slain, One Wounded In Virginia Shooting

EVERGREEN, Va. (AP) — Three surveyors were shot to death and a fourth was seriously wounded on Monday in a small farmhouse where passers-by heard screams and the sheriff found "blood on every wall of the house."

"It all occurred between the four people at the house," Appomattox County Sheriff J.E. Richardson said of the incident involving the surveyors, who worked for the Colonial Pipeline Co. Their names were not immediately released.

"Bodies were scattered everywhere," Richardson said.

Police said several handguns and a rifle were found in the white-shingled dwelling, but only one .45-caliber handgun was thought to have been used.

Richardson said that at 7 a.m. two other employees of the company had gone to the house, about a mile off a road, to pick up a truck.

When they arrived they heard shooting and screaming, he said, and they abandoned their car and ran through a field to find a telephone to call authorities.

Richardson said authorities had not determined the motive for the shootings, adding: "I am satisfied the answer will come from the survivor."

No charges were filed against the survivor.

Deputy Richard H. Tanner identified two of the victims as Robert E. Dentsch, 30, of Atlanta and Stephen P. Philgreen of Georgia. Philgreen's hometown and age were not immediately known. Authorities withheld identification of the third man because they had not notified his relatives.

All three suffered multiple gunshot wounds, authorities said.

The wounded man, whose jaw was broken by a shot to the head, was in Lynchburg General Hospital in serious condition. A hospital spokesman said the man was listed as Jim Hardy of Stone Mountain, Ga.

Investigators talked briefly with Hardy and planned to talk to him again Tuesday, the hospital spokesman said.

The men had lived in the house about six months. They were employees of American Engineers of Atlanta, a firm doing surveying work for Colonial Pipeline Co. in Appomattox County.

One body was found in the basement, where the kitchen was located, and two more were found in rooms on the first floor, the sheriff said. The wounded man was lying on a couch in the basement.

The sheriff said two of the men were fully dressed and two were in their underwear.

Richardson said one of the dead men had a history of trouble at work, although he would not specify what type.

The man shot at some other people Saturday at the house, but the incident was not reported until Monday, he said.

A small vial of a white substance was found in the house, but state police investigator B.F. Chumney said it would not be known until it was analyzed whether it was a drug. Chumney said there was no evidence that the shootings involved drugs.

Walls of the dwelling, owned by Lawrence Stewart of Richmond, were riddled with bullet holes, and police said they found bloody footprints on the floors.

A blue car with blood smeared on the left rear fender and a yellow station wagon with blood on the left front door in what appeared to be a handprint were parked in the yard when police arrived.

Funeral home employees, wearing blue jeans and rubber gloves, hauled the bodies in plastic bags through the narrow entrance of the house and put them in a four-wheel-drive station wagon. Police had to remove the front door of the house to get the bodies out.

Police and a medical examiner worked about six hours in 90-degree heat in the house before the bodies were removed.

A family living about a mile from the house said they had no idea the four men were even living there.

County Commissioners Protest Clements' Cut In Road Funds

By BOB CAMPBELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Lubbock County commissioners Monday approved a resolution protesting a $54,632 budget cut in state road funds by Gov. Bill Clements.

"We, the undersigned, do hereby request the State of Texas return to Lubbock County its share of the Lateral Road Fund in the amount of $54,632," the resolution, passed this morning, says. "The funds will be used for improvement of Lubbock County lateral roads."

County Judge Rodrick Shaw said commissioners courts over the state were sent letters from Clements saying the monies would not be sent in 1980 because the state agency administering them, the Board of County and District Road Indebtedness, is being abolished next year.

"It bothers me because that $54,000 is more than a penny of our tax rate," Shaw said.

A statewide total of $7.4 million will not go to county governments next year as a result of the change under state "Sunset" legislation affecting some state agencies.

The commissioners Monday approved the hiring of a $21,000-per-year assistant for county computer department head Bill McCullough, who asked for the assistant several weeks ago in a presentation on the increasing workload in the new department.

McCullough said Monday that he particularly needs help in programming.

Shaw said after the meeting that he felt the county needed someone as capable as McCullough to run the department in his absence.

A $17,000-per-year assistant for McCullough was approved earlier this year, and he said a staff member with more training and capability still was needed.

The new staff member will be a "senior analyst-programming supervisor."

In other business Monday, the commissioners approved the hiring of Marty Davis, a Texas Tech University graduate in agriculture education this summer, as assistant Lubbock County Extension Service agent.

Food Stamps Authorized

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate authorized $620 million in emergency spending for food stamps Monday, hurrying to stave off stamp reductions for about 19 million of America's poor.

The House, in separate legislation, also has authorized $620 million for the Agriculture Department's food stamp program which is nearing its legal spending limit more than two months before the Sept. 30 end of the 1979 fiscal year.

However, the Senate bill has provisions not in the House version, including a controversial one to eliminate the program's statutory spending limit for the next two years. And Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., told colleagues that provision would stall negotiations with the House on a compromise measure and "put passage of this emergency measure in jeopardy."

The Senate defeated Helms' amendment that would have put the limit back in the bill, 57-37, then passed the bill, 75-20.

Agriculture Department officials have said they must cut food stamps for the estimated 6 million low-income families receiving them by one-half in August and September if Congress does not send more money almost immediately.

They say the program is about to exceed its $6.16 billion fiscal 1979 allocation because food prices rose much faster than predicted and because more poor people signed up for food stamps early this year than planners expected.

Most of those new participants had been eligible before but began signing up in January and February because of a new rule eliminating a requirement that food stamp purchasers pay at least a portion of the cost.

The program's expected shortage takes into account the use of $338 million left over from last year, a carryover technique that would be banned in future years under the Senate bill.

Lubbock Man Charged With Possession, Theft

A 32-year-old Lubbock man, who was indicted in June for participating in a federal cocaine trafficking conspiracy, has been charged by state authorities with possession of marijuana and theft of stolen property.

Scott Lamoreaux was arrested Saturday afternoon at 2808 Canton Ave., where, authorities said, he had been staying with a 24-year-old woman.

Five members of the Lubbock Task Force of the Drug Enforcement Administration Friday evening went to the Canton Avenue residence with a search warrant and found a large quantity of marijuana in the house, in a car parked outside the residence and growing in the back yard, according to reports.

The resident of the house, Karen Lisa Anthony and a visitor, Sandra Lee Cooper, 25, of 2554 N.E. Loop 289, No. 3706, were arrested and charged with possession of marijuana. Bonds of $5,000 were recommended for both women by the district attorney's office.

Lamoreaux was arrested Saturday afternoon at the residence and charged with possession of marijuana. Authorities also found three firearms at the residence which were reported stolen by a Cloudcroft, N.M., man.

Lamoreaux was charged with theft of stolen property in connection with the weapons — a .357 magnum revolver, 16-gauge pump shotgun and a high-powered rifle.

Lamoreaux was released from Lubbock County Jail after posting a $50,000 bond set by Blalack on the possession of marijuana charge and a $25,000 bond set on the theft charge.

He was one of 14 persons named in a federal grand jury indictment returned June 7 alleging a conspiracy to transport cocaine from Ruidoso, N.M., to Lubbock for distribution.

Lamoreaux's trial on the federal drug charge is set for Sept. 10. He was released on a personal recognizance bond pending the cocaine conspiracy trial.

Nearly 7,000 babies are born each year with Rh blood disease, a serious, sometimes fatal birth defect.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By BILL DOYLE

Q. I purchased a $10,000 par value municipal bond which pays 5.5 percent tax-free interest. So I'll get $550 a year — actually $275 every six months — and not have to pay income tax.

I bought the bond a month and some days after it was issued. I was billed the purchase price of $9,975, plus $67.22 "accrued interest" and am unable to figure out how the broker arrived at that figure. Do you have the answer?

A. That $67.22 represented the interest that had built up on the bond from the date it was issued until the date you bought it. Most "marketable" bonds — those traded in the securities markets — are traded on an "and interest" basis.

This means that when you buy a recently issued bond, you pay the going market price, plus the interest that has accrued since the latest interest payment date.

The accrued interest is calculated by 360-day years and 30-day months. By dividing the annual interest payment by 360, you'll figure the interest that accrues each day. Multiply that by the number of days between the bond's issue date or last interest payment date and the date on which you bought it and you have the accrued interest charge.

You are charged for the accrued interest when you buy a marketable bond. If you sell, you collect the accrued interest from the person who buys your bond.

Everything works out — assuming that the broker's computer hasn't blown a fuse. From some of the numbers in your letter, which we didn't have space for in this column, you seem to have been overcharged accrued interest by about $9. Ask your broker to double-check his firm's figuring.

• • •

Q. You wrote that changing ownership of a U.S. Savings Bond does not shift the federal income tax liability, that the gift of a savings bond is a "taxable event" and that a person who gives away savings bonds he has held for many years has to pay federal income tax on the interest that has accrued on those bonds up to the date of the gift.

I am involved in the savings bond program and feel you should have gone one step further in your answer. It is my understanding, confirmed by authorities, that a person in this situation could do as follows:

Exchange the E bonds for H bonds. Register the H bonds with the name of the person to whom he wishes to give the bonds as owner, with himself as co-owner. When the H bonds are finally redeemed, the new owner can do it and pay the income tax on the E bond interest. That tax, of course, was postponed by the exchange of the Es for Hs.

A. Not wanting to argue with your "authorities," I took your suggestion to the U.S. Treasury Department. The experts there say you're dead wrong. They point to "the concept of original principal ownership" and state that a person doing what you outline would remain liable for income tax on the E bond interest "as long as he is alive."

You seem to overlook the fact that the Treasury Department is a tax collection agency and that its major motive for halting interest payments on E bonds 40 years or older is to collect taxes.

• • •

Q. In May 1972, I invested in an "income" mutual fund, which is now paying only 7.7 percent. I am 70 and need more income. Would it be wise to sell at a loss and put the money in savings certificates? Would there be any commission on the sale?

A. Since you need more income, the natural thing to do is redeem your fund shares and buy higher-yielding savings certificates. There will be no commission. You redeem by turning your shares back to the mutual fund. You get the asset value per share — the actual dollars-and-cents value behind each share at the time you redeem.

Thousands Of Nicaraguans Return To Country

PENAS BLANCAS, Nicaragua (AP) — Tens of thousands of Nicaraguans who fled across to Costa Rica during fighting that drove President Anastasio Somoza into exile have begun returning, welcomed by a new government that asks their help in rebuilding the ravaged nation.

"Nicaraguan brothers, welcome to this free country," reads the sign that greeted long lines of Nicaraguans returning Monday on foot and in cars and buses at this post on the Costa Rican border 80 miles south of Managua.

The border was opened near here Sunday and more than 10,000 refugees came back home, according to a source in the Sandinista forces that overthrew the Somoza regime. Costa Rican authorities said more than 70,000 Nicaraguans took refuge there during the long civil war.

The left-wing Sandinistas, who forced Somoza to flee last week, man the immigration and customs posts in Penas Blancas, where they expect to handle an average of 4,000 returning Nicaraguans daily.

The ruling five-member junta moved into Managua shortly after Somoza fled to Miami early last Tuesday. The government announced Sunday it would request his extradition to stand trial for war crimes.

Unofficial estimates put the number of Nicaraguans who fled the country during the war at around 200,000, with some 50,000 crossing the frontier into Honduras and about 75,000 going to Panama, Guatemala, El Salvador, the United States and South America.

After they fill out immigration forms, the returning Nicaraguans are given a communique from the Sandinista Liberation Front and the junta that says the war against Somoza has ended and everyone must unite in aiding the revolution and reconstruction.

Some refugees cleared immigration, then fell to their knees weeping. Many were heard giving thanks to God that Somoza had been defeated and they were back in their homeland.

One North American reporter asked to be cleared immediately because he was in a hurry to catch a plane. A young Sandinista filling out immigration forms told him: "Everyone wants to travel urgently. But we are no longer in the Somoza epoch and now you will have to wait your turn." The reporter did.

A Sandinista said: "We would like to attend to everyone immediately because we want all our compatriots to return to Nicaragua, but we must fill out the forms because many mercenaries and Somoza agents have been trying to infiltrate into the country as refugees.

"Just this morning we caught two mercenaries and two Somoza security agents," he said. He did not give the nationalities of the mercenaries.

According to Sandinista sources, pro-Somoza gunmen in two trucks fired automatic weapons Saturday night at the Hotel Camino Real in Managua where junta members were staying. They said none of the junta members was injured but two Sandinista guards were wounded and the attackers ecaped.

Commercial airlines had not yet resumed regular flights to Nicaragua but representatives said they will as soon as conditions permit.

In Managua some city buses resumed regular routes and the city of half a million started on the road back to normal.

Radio Sandino, the official radio of the new government, broadcast calls for all public employees to return to their work.

Many of the government workers went back to their jobs but some did not, possibly for fear of reprisal because they had worked for the Somoza government.

A high Sandinista official, who did not wish to be identified, said public employees who committed no crimes during the Somoza era had nothing to fear.

On Sunday the country's new chief justice of the supreme court, Roberto Arguelo Hurtado, said there would be no wholesale executions of Somoza's supporters like those after the revolution in Iran. There will be "no death penalty in Nicaragua and no executions ordered by the supreme court," he said.

Participants In Media Merger Eyed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Communications Commission has told two firms involved in a major media consolidation it believes that Carl Lindner, key figure in a federal investigation, does not play a significant role in one of them, the Gannett Co. Inc.

The FCC said, however, that the law requires it to consider "civil and criminal violations of federal and state laws as they impinge the character and qualifications of licensees on a case-by-case basis."

It made public Monday a letter to Gannett and Combined Communications Corp., which were partners in the $370 million consolidation.

Reports published last week said the commission was taking a new look at its approval of the transaction, voted on June 7. The transaction gave Gannett, heretofore largely a publishing firm, control of 19 broadcast properties — AM and FM radio, and television.

Lindner and American Financial Corp., were targets of a Securities and Exchange Commission complaint. It alleged violations of the antifraud provisions of the securities act and of reporting proxy provisions.

A consent decree was issued early this month, enjoining the accused parties to abide by the law. Lindner was directed to pay $1.4 million to American Financial Corp.

The FCC noted that Lindner has resigned as a director of Combined Communications and controls only 5.01 percent of the Gannett stock. "Since Lindner occupies no official position and has no controlling interest in Gannett, no further action on the matter was warranted," the commission letter said.

"We are therefore confronted with a situation in which a minority, but nevertheless large, stockholder in Gannett has been involved in activities of concern to the SEC," it continued.

"Therefore, absent a management position or controlling stock interest, we do not believe that any further action is warranted.

"However, we do view with concern the past pattern of behavior of Mr. Lindner and AFC as manifested by the consent decree mentioned above. Therefore ... we direct that any further involvement by Mr. Lindner or AFC principals in any official capacity or management role in CCC or Gannett will require Gannett to report the extent of that involvement ..."

Gannett officials had no formal statement. But Gannett newspapers reported that:

"The FCC letter reaffirmed approval of the merger of Gannett Co. Inc. with Combined Communications Corp. The FCC reviewed its June 7 approval of transfer of broadcast licenses to Gannett following a complaint from the SEC against American Financial Corp. and its chairman, Carl Lindner.

American Financial owned CCC stock, and Lindner was the former publisher of the Cincinnati Enquirer, part of CCC.

In a letter sent to Gannett Monday, the FCC said that although Lindner's company is a large shareholder in Gannett, he had no management or official role, and "absent any management position or controlling stock interest, we do not believe any further action is warranted."

The value of the merger of Gannett and CCC was estimated at $370 million."

Natural Causes Ruled In Death Of Woman

Lubbock Justice of the Peace Wayne LeCroy ruled Monday that Gloria de la Santos, 26, of Plainview died of natural causes.

LeCroy said that preliminary autopsy results indicated the woman had myocarditis, an inflammation of the heart muscle.

Mrs. de la Santos died shortly after 8 a.m. Monday in Health Sciences Center Hospital. The woman was admitted to HSCH about 9:15 p.m. Saturday after being transferred from Central Plains Regional Hospital in Plainview.

YOUR PERSONAL BIORHYTHMS

By Bernard Gittelson, Author of "Biorhythm: A Personal Science"

The personal science of biorhythm can tell you how your day will go. Now you can judge the highs and lows of not only yourself, but loved ones and friends, and celebrities and stars. Biorhythm, our newest scientific discipline, is the study of the built-in natural cycles that powerfully influence our behavior.

BIORHYTHMS FOR JULY 24, 1979

PHYSICAL
Criticals: 12, 23, 35, 46, 58, 69 ..... Critical time physically
Highs: 13-22, 36-45, 59-68 ..... High powered day
Lows: 1-11, 24-34, 47-57, 70-75 ..... Dwindling powers

EMOTIONAL
Criticals: 10, 24, 38, 52, 66, 80 ..... Don't make quick decisions
Highs: 1-9, 25-37, 53-65, 81-85 ..... Good for meeting friends
Lows: 11-23, 39-51, 67-79 ..... Poor spirits

Lows: 1-15, 33-48, 66-81 ..... Difficult to reason

Enter your own permanent numbers in the chart in the bottom right-hand corner. To figure your own permanent numbers, follow these three steps:

Step 1: From the year chart, find the numbers corresponding to your year of birth. For instance, if you were born in 1947, your number for Physical would be 21, Emotional 17, Intellectual 19. Note whether your numbers are preceded by an A or B; this will be used for Step 2.

Step 2: Now find the corresponding number for the month you were born. If your month is February, and your year numbers were preceded by a B, your month numbers would be 8 for Physical, 3 for Emotional and 31 for Intellectual. Enter your own numbers in the figure chart for Step 2.

Step 3: In the figure chart, enter your day of birth three times, one each for Physical (P), Emotional (E) and Intellectual (I). (If you were born on April 3, for instance, place a 3 in each column.)

Add the three columns to derive your permanent biorhythm numbers for your Physical, Emotional and Intellectual cycles. Now you can refer to today's rhythms.

These numbers are yours permanently. Check them each day for your biorhythm reading.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: A while back I read an article in your column in regard to the phrase, "How are you?" You said the phrase has no real meaning, that it's just a "greeting." Several skeptics disagreed with you.

May I share a recent experience which proves you were right? I train doctors. One morning, with ten doctors in my office, I made the statement that I agreed with Ann Landers when she said, "How are you?" is the most misunderstood phrase in the English language. Very few people give a damn how you are. I then volunteered to prove my theory at lunch.

As we approached the restaurant, I asked the doctors to follow close behind me and listen carefully. I opened the door and walked in. The owner of the restaurant greeted me with, "Hello, doctor. How are you?" I replied, "I have cancer." He said, "Great! How is your dad?" I answered, "He died in August." He shouted, "Fantastic. When you see him give him my regards." I said, "I will."

I wonder what your critics would say to this? — M.D. In Seattle

Dear M.D.: I can't imagine! Shall we ask them?

• • •

Dear Ann: I am a 23-year-old female who, after four years of living on my own, has moved back in with the folks and three younger brothers and sister.

My parents were happy about my returning. We set down ground rules. I abide by them. A month later my mother began yelling at me constantly. Nothing I did was right. I tried reasoning with her, my father tried reasoning with her — to no avail. So now, no one talks to anyone and we are all miserable.

I pay rent at home which entitles me to sleep here. No meals, no using the family car, no friends over, only sleeping privileges. I have a good job and respectable friends.

If there was any way I could afford my own apartment I would have it, but inflation has done me in and I can't make it anymore. What should I do? — Daughter Or Not?

Dear Daughter: If you can't afford an apartment, rent a room with cooking privileges. It surely would be better than the situation you describe.

• • •

Dear Ann Landers: We work in the accounting offices of a large firm. The boss has started something new. He has been asking us to do all sorts of personal business for himself and his family.

The corker today was when one of our number was asked if she would mind going to his home next Monday at 8:00 a.m. to baby-sit with his two children because his wife has to be at a meeting and the sitter can't get there until noon.

Is this usual procedure? How does an employee gracefully get out of being errand-runner and "servant"? To refuse would be to put our jobs on the line. In other respects it is a great company, but we wonder if this practice, which seems to be growing, is fair. — Eight To Five Is Enough

Dear Eight to Five: If you were not hired to be a "personal assistant," and your boss continues to ask you to do domestic chores — sing out loud and clear.

If, however, he asks you to help out in an emergency, and you want to do it, that's another story.

Most bridge players would double six hearts with the West hand. A few would take the conservative action of passing and opening the jack of diamonds.

Against all these players South would make the contract with correct play, which is to lead the jack of hearts and let it ride after West ducks. This play wins 50 percent of the time. If you rose with the king, your chance is somewhat less than 50 percent.

When this hand was played in a match-point game, every declarer except one made six hearts, although only about half the North-South pairs got beyond game.

At one table, expert South was playing against an apparent lamb who really was a wolf in disguise.

The wolf in sheep's clothing led ace and three of trumps. Can you blame South for hopping up with dummy's king?

We can't! Even though West's play is far from unreasonable.

Sand Factor in Drownings

HONOLULU, Hawaii (AP) — Water in the lungs is not the only danger to near-drowning victims, say radiologists at Tripler Army Medical Center here.

They warn that if a victim is near a beach where waves break and mix with sand, it's possible that there is sand, as well as water, in the lungs and breathing passages.

The sand, easily seen on X-ray studies, must be quickly washed out to avoid complications, or even death, in those near-drowning victims, advise Dr. Jaime Bonilla-Santiago and Dr. William L. Fill.

They say they were alerted to such "sand drownings" when X-ray studies of a 23-year-old drowning victim showed pronounced definition ("marked opacity") of the windpipe and bronchus. The autopsy showed these were packed with sand.

In another case, a 20-year-old man was struck by a wave and pulled under but was rescued. His breathing had stopped for only a minute and mouth-to-mouth resuscitation revived him.

He was totally alert and breathed normally but a chest radiograph showed inflammation indicating sand in the bronchus. A bronchoscope was used to wash the area with a saline solution, small amounts of sand were removed, and the man recovered.

NEW HAIRDO

If you've had the same hair style for a long while and you feel it isn't doing anything for you, change it. Sometimes a new hairdo does wonders for morale. To keep the new do looking its best, don't neglect the daily setting. Don't try to set hair when it is too dry or too wet. A moistening with good quality witch hazel makes an ideal set. Dries quickly, neutralizes odor.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

DR. PAUL E. RUBLE

Dear Dr. Ruble: I am 57 and have an irritable bowel. Is there a diet for this? My doctor tells me to eat everything, and if something doesn't agree with me not to eat it any more. Would you question this advice? — P.S.

I won't question the advice, but I might add to it. In problem cases, some doctors routinely advise elimination of raw fruits and vegetables and spices. Bulk laxatives help, too, by giving the bowel a bit of work to do. For more on this general problem you can study the booklet, "Colitis and Kindred Complaints." To get a copy send 35 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Ruble, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

• • •

Dear Dr. Ruble: I do hope you get to my letter. I have watched your column for two years, hoping it would come up — my problem, that is. I am a schoolgirl, and have a sore on my butt (upper) and it stays there. It never really bothered me until now. It is in my tailbone, or spine, and it hurts. I am ashamed to go to the doctor's and have never even told my mom. Does this sound like ringworm? — H.M.

You're never going to know until it is looked at by a doctor. I would not suspect ringworm, but a cyst of some kind, perhaps a pilonidal cyst. That means "hair nest cyst," and it can occur at just about the area you describe in your letter. It may not be terribly serious, but it is the kind of problem that should be corrected surgically. It won't get any better by worrying about it, whatever it is. If such a cyst (pilonidal) becomes infected you could be in for a painful situation.

• • •

Dear Dr. Ruble: I think I know what your answer will be, but here goes. Do you know of any diet or food or substance that helps arthritis? — J.C.

If you guessed my answer would be "no" you guessed right. As a matter of fact, I am glad you did ask that broad question. It will answer all of the readers who wrote me this month (as they do every month) asking whether this or that food will cure arthritis. Good general nutrition is all one needs.

Dear Dr. Ruble: Discuss urticaria pigmentosa, please? — N.N.

Briefly, it is a form of hives. The itching is not as intense as with other hives, but afterward little brown spots remain. That's what the pigmentosa refers to. This creates an unfortunate unsightly condition for youngsters, especially boys, who are prone to getting it. It is essentially a harmless quirk in the development of certain (mast) cells of the skin. Parents should be assured that the spots eventually do disappear, although this may take years.

Do you have problem hair? Dr. Ruble's booklet, "Good Health for Your Hair," shows how proper treatment can result in healthier, more attractive hair. To get a copy, write Dr. Ruble, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents.

Dr. Ruble welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Five In Custody After Maxey Park Theft Attempt

Five persons, including two juveniles, found themselves in police custody early Monday morning after they allegedly tried to steal more than $200 in city property.

City policeman John E. Blythe said he was on routine foot patrol near Maxey Park Community Center at 30th Street and Oxford Avenue about 2:40 a.m. when he heard voices at the center.

Using binoculars, Blythe saw two of the suspects climb a fence and run to a car containing several other persons. One of the suspects reportedly was carrying something as he ran to the vehicle.

Blythe said he got into his patrol unit and was able to block the suspects' car before it left the scene. Inside the vehicle the officer found property, including garden tools and two 5-gallon cans of gasoline, which reportedly belongs to the city.

The two juveniles, a 16-year-old boy and a 15-year-old girl, were turned over to juvenile authorities. Two other male suspects, ages 17 and 19, and an 18-year-old woman were taken to the county jail.

In other activity, Juanita Richardson, 51, of 1913 E. Colgate St. reported that burglars took $1,340 in property and cash from her home, Monday morning.

Police said the burglars left most of the home fairly neat, and did not ransack any room. They said the burglars seemed to know the locations of the hidden valuables that were taken.

Among the missing property were pieces of jewelry in a leather shaving bag and a revolver. A piggy bank with $40 to $50 in change also was broken.

Police also investigated the apparent theft of about $1,000 worth of lumber from a construction site at 4415 89th St. The lumber, belonging to Jim Turner Enterprises, was taken sometime between 4 p.m. Sunday and 8:15 a.m. Monday.

Anne Temple Goodman had trouble driving to her job at Texas Tech Monday morning. Someone had stolen the swimming coach's car from her home at 3501 49th St.

Miss Goodman told police she lost a ring of keys July 18, and when she woke up Monday morning, she discovered that her car had been stolen. Police said the car was a two-door, light blue 1977 Chevrolet Camaro with Texas plates PWA-230.

Norman Watson, of 2006 32nd St., reported to police that someone had stolen a $300 Gibson guitar from his bedroom. Police said the theft occurred between noon and 1:15 p.m. Monday.

Sam L. Perry, 29, of 2209 B 15th St. also reported the theft of about $1,600 worth of property from his home. Police said the theft occurred between 10:30 p.m. and 5 a.m. Monday.

In other activity, a 20-year-old Lubbock man was arrested on suspicion of failing to stop and render aid after he allegedly left the scene of an accident in which he was involved.

The mishap occurred about 12:10 a.m. today at Sixth Street and Avenue Q. The motorist was taken into custody several minutes later at Third Street and Avenue P.

The collision did not result in serious injuries, according to police.

Ricky Lopez, 19, of 118 Ave. W told police a man shot at his car Sunday afternoon after he and the man got into a shouting match at Mackenzie State Park.

Lopez said he and a companion were traveling in the park when the suspect pulled his vehicle in front of them and started cursing him. Reports indicate the two men shouted at each other and then Lopez drove out of the park.

The complainant said that at U.S. Highway 87 and Erskine Street he noticed the suspect was shooting at his car, but the bullets missed their target. The motorist, however, stopped his pursuit of Lopez after he reportedly lost control of his car and struck a median.

HOLLYWOD (AP) — Corinne Griffith, the 1920s screen star who later achieved fame as an author, income tax abolitionist and real estate tycoon, has died at St. John's Hospital in Santa Monica.

Nicknamed "The Orchid of the Screen," Miss Griffith starred in such films as "The Garden of Eden" and "Lillies of the Field." She made her last film, "Paradise Alley," in 1958.

Miss Griffith reportedly suffered a stroke two years ago. Her age was apparently a sore point in her lifetime, and estimates of her age at her death July 13 ranged from 80 to 82.

But "The Filmgoer's Companion" states that she was born in 1898 and another movie star guide, "Star Stats" lists her birthdate as Nov. 24, 1896 in Texarkana, Texas.

Her first marriage. to actor Webster Campbell, ended in 1923; she divorced her second husband, producer Walter Morsco, in 1934. Her third and longest marriage, to Washington Redskins owner George Marshall, ended in divorce after 22 years in 1958. Her fourth marriage, to Danny Scholl in 1966, lasted only 35 days.

She wrote of her experiences as "Mrs. Redskin" in "My Life With the Redskins."

Subjects of her other books ranged from cooking, in "Eggs I Have Known," to her childhood in "Papa's Delicate Condition," which was later made into a movie starring Jackie Gleason.

Miss Griffith launched her campaign to abolish the income tax in 1953, giving more than 480 speeches across the country and writing a 1962 book called "Taxation With Representation or Your Tax Money Went That Away." She created a national organization called Abolish Individual Federal Income Taxes.

Farmer-Owned Grain Reserve Program's Features Explained

By RODERICK TURNBULL
Kansas City Board of Trade

KANSAS CITY — The government's farmer-owned grain reserve program has two essential features.

In one part of the program, farmers put grain under loan and it is kept in store for three years — unless, and this is the second part, prices rise to a certain level and then the grain is released from under ther loan and may be sold on the market.

The second part of the program obviously calls for some sort of a formula which, by design, may "trigger" the release of the grian tied up in the reserve.

The release of wheat in the reserve program for sale late in the day on May 16 caught some people by surpirse. That event has spurred interest in just how does the Department of Agriculture arrive at the conclusion to order the release.

While the reserve program includes both wheat and feed grains, this attempt at an explanation on the triggering price will apply to wheat only. Essentially, however, the same principles apply to the feed grains in store.

To begin with, farmers who put grain into the reserve, first in 1977, got a loan from the government of $2.25 a bushel. Later the loan was boosted to $2.35 a bushel, a rate that still prevails. In total, farmers put about 412 million bushels of wheat in the three-year reserve. The object of the program was to take grain off the markets while supplies were high, but also to have it available to help stabilize prices should demand become strong.

Provisions of the program stated that should the average farm price on wheat equal or exceed 140 percent of the loan value, then the farmer could pay off the loan and sell the wheat.

In other words, the reserve would be "released" to the market if farmers chose to sell. This was what was done May 16 when the trigger price of $3.29 a bushel was reached.

Provisions of the program also state that the government shall call the loans when and if the average farm price reaches 175 percent of the loan, or about $4.11 a bushel.

So how does the Department of Agriculture calculate the average farm price? A telephone call to the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Office in Kansas City and a later call to the ASCS in Washington both revealed a statement had been printed and was available to explain the situation.

This statement shows that the ASCS in Washington computes an "average" farm price every day. It does this by getting the daily prices in Kansas City on No. 1 ordinary hard red winter wheat, Minneapolis for No. 1 northern spring wheat, 14 percent protein; Portland for No. 1 soft western white wheat, and Chicago for No. 1 soft red winter.

The four prices are added together and then divided by four which gives an average price for the major markets. But the ASCS wants an average farm price.

To get this, it uses an "adjustment factor" or the average difference between the farm prices and the prices at the major markets. It gets its farm prices from data gathered from across the country by government's Economic Statistics and Cooperative Services.

This adjustment factor changes from month to month. It was 50 cents a bushel in February, 58 cents in April, 56 in May (when the reserve wheat was released) and was put at 66 cents for June.

The adjustment factor is substracted from the average price for the four major markets and the resulting figure is considered the average farm price.

Now if the average farm price is above 140 percent of the loan value of $2.35 a bushel or $3.29 a bushel, the point has been reached to trigger the release of the reserve. The grain is released only; the farmer doesn't have to sell.

When the average price is calculated at $3.29 a bushel, this doesn't mean that every farmer could get $3.29 at his local elevator. In fact, as Leslie Fredrickson in Washington explained, in theory at least, half of the country's wheat farmers would be able to get more than $3.29 a bushel, and half less. Fredrickson is chief of the loan operations branch of the price support division of the ASCS. But the $3.29 is as near as the ASCS can come on an average.

This average of $3.29 or 140 percent of the $2.35 a bushel loan value has to prevail for five days before the ASCS releases the reserve.

August's Futures Lead Drop In Cattle Prices

By Reuters

CHICAGO — Cattle futures closed 10 to 100 points lower — led by August — on 27,648 cars Monday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange.

The market tumbled to the lowest levels since January at a loss of 122 points before stiffening. Prices have lost almost six cents, or 600 points, in the last two weeks.

Back months continued to gain on nearbys, with June up 120 points before late profit taking clipped the advance. Nearby pressure reflected weakness in beef and cash cattle.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture expects August beef output to be 14 percent below 1976-78, but pork production is projected to be higher.

Wholesale beef was off 2 1/4 to 3 1/4 cents at 98 1/4, f.o.b. river. The six markets expect 12,200 head today.

Cash cattle were steady to off $1.50, with the best steer stop at $67.50 at Omaha. Slaughter totaled 101,000 head.

Feeder cattle futures closed 30 to 120 points lower, with October weakest at the day's low. Sales totaled 4,518 cars.

The market was up 75 points early, but demand faded as cattle futures slumped.

Some support followed mixed to higher cash feeders and reduced arrivals. However, beef was off sharply at noon. Selling came despite a USDA forecast for lighter beef output.

The six markets expect 1,500 head today. Cash feeders were off $2 to up $5, with the best top at $133 at Louisville.

Hog futures closed 95 points up to 40 points lower on 4,250 cars. Distant August was up the most at the day's high, with July the only loser.

Support was generated on the sharp discount of futures to cash and came despite weakness in cash hogs and 91 cars of July still open, minus Monday's six deliveries.

Some buying also followed a firmer tone to pork products. Traders ignored a USDA forecast for a 16 to 18 percent gain in pork output from a year ago.

Deliveries total 13 thus far. Wholesale hams were unchanged to up one cent at 62 to 63 cents a pound, f.o.b. river.

The six markets expect 30,500 head today. Cash hogs were steady to off $1.25, with the best top at $41.50 at Joliet. Slaughter totaled 322,000 head.

Pork belly (bacon) futures closed 17 to 100 points lower, led by July at the day's low. Sales totaled 7,298 cars. The market reacted after gaining 125 points to the highest level in a week. February fell to a new season's low.

Higher cash bellies along with increased bacon slicings and a heavy reduction in local stocks, Friday, fueled buying with later reaction traced to weakness in cash hogs and prospects of increased pork supplies in August.

Deliveries total 79 thus far. Wholesale bacon was unchanged to up one cent at 41 1/2 to 43 1/2 cents a pound, f.o.b. river.

PLAINS AGRICULTURE

By DUANE HOWELL

MOST COTTON FIELDS ARE SQUARING on the South Plains.

Dr. James Leser, area extension entomologist at Lubbock, says the variation is from just blooming to cotton that still is not fruiting. While most fields are in the second to fifth week of squaring, he says, reports indicate that as many as 43 percent of the fields are not setting a sufficient number of squares. Many of these fields, he says, have cotton fleahoppers in enough numbers to keep them from attaining an adequate fruit set.

Fleahoppers are being found in larger numbers, he says. Infested terminals range up to 70 percent in some fields, with square set as low as 35 percent after four weeks of squaring. Situations vary greatly from field to field, he says, with many showing lots of fleahoppers as they begin to square. Two weeks ago, he says, fleahopper populations consisted of mostly adults. Now, he adds, nymphs outnumber adults in most fields by as much as seven to one.

"FRUIT SET HAS BEEN POOR AND MUCH of our cotton is st ill vulnerable to fleahopper attack," Leser says. "Unfortunately, even though many fields are several weeks into their fruiting cycle, many have been delayed as much as two weeks by inadequate fruit set caused by heavy fleahopper numbers."

With the cotton crop already delayed two to three weeks by earlier weather, disease and thrips problems, he points out, "further delays could be disastrous. I would not plan on another growing season like 1977 or 1978. Therefore, many farmers are facing a break-even proposition at best."

Several factors will need to be considered before fleahopper treatments can be recommended, the entomologist says.

It is important to determine how many large and small squares a plant does have and should have, Leser says. Many fields, he says, have been squaring for three weeks and may have only one large square and two small squares. Others may have escaped fleahoppers earlier or may have been attacked early and no longer are infested.

MOST COTTON VARIETIES BEGIN SQUARING between the sixth and ninth nodes, Leser points out. So even though a plant might look small, he adds, it could hold several squares.

"Also," he observes, "there are about three days between squares initiated as you go up the stalk and five days between squares going out on fruiting branches."

Growth stage of cotton also should be considered. Older cotton may have several fruiting branches per plant, each capable of producing squares simultaneously. Laterals should be checked for fruit set and cotton reaching the fifth true leaf stage should be checked. Younger cotton is more vulnerable to fleahopper damage than older cotton with several fruiting branches.

When evaluating square set, Leser says, allowances should be made for plant stand densities. Squares per plant will be a lot less in heavy stands. And plant stands are "quite variable" this year, he notes, due to earlier plant losses caused by weather and diseases.

THE FIRST THREE WEEKS OF SQUARING is the critical period when the most cotton and the best fiber quality is made, Leser points out. Later set fruit often is exposed to cool temperatures which retard fiber development and lower fiber quality. "Generally, if fleahopper damage can be minimized with at least 65 percent of the fruit set, we are home free," Leser says. "Actually, the first week is the most critical, and I would like to hold as many as 85 percent of these squares."

The entomologist says a "sliding action level" is needed when assessing damage and fleahopper numbers for management decisions. During the first week, he says, treatment may be needed if 15 percent or more of the pinhead squares are blasted and at least 30 fleahopper adults or nymphs are present. During the next two weeks, he says, 10 percent should be added to each action level. After three weeks, if fruit set has been at least 65 percent, large numbers of fleahoppers can be tolerated before treatments could be justified.

"Just because cotton is in the third week of squaring doesn't mean one should use that threshold level," Leser says. "It all depends on adequate fruit set prior to that time. If after two weeks no fruit has been retained, for all practical purposes you are in the first week of squaring — with one big difference. A two-week-old plant will have fruiting branches and will have to fruit faster and stand higher levels of damage and fleahopper numbers."

DON'T OVERLOOK BENEFICIALS, Leser advises. Cotton fields with 15 percent or more of the plant terminals with key predators should be evaluated "very carefully" before deciding to spray, he says. "In some fields, 30 to 40 percent of the plant terminals examined have key predators," he says. "I would be hard-pressed to treat these fields with any kind or rate of insecticide at this time."

The entomologist recommends only low rates of insecticides at this time. While fleahoppers must be controlled where fruiting is being adversely affected, he says, farmers should be careful to use the lowest possible dosages of insecticides. It is better to leave some fleahoppers than to kill all the beneficials, he says. Low rates have given good suppression and good predator retention.

Bollworm risk should be considered in managing fleahoppers, he points out. In some areas, such as Scurry County, risk of bollworm damage may far outweigh the benefits derived from fleahopper control. But low rates on fi elds with none to light key predators probably will not encourage bollworm problems. On the other hand, an early fleahopper attack can set a crop up for later bollworm problems.

"Cotton that has lost most of its early fruit will take off and become tall, lush and vegetative — just the kind of field attractive to bollworms," Leser says. "Also, these fields will be squaring later and at a time when bollworm egg laying activity is greatest. These fields must be brought back under control by encouraging rapid fruit set and by stressing the plants by withholding water until the leaves look dull green and the plant wilts in the heat of mid-afternoon."

Grain Futures

CHICAGO (AP) — Corn and soybean futures plunged Monday on the Chicago Board of Trade on heavy speculative selling.

Reports of rains in corn-and soybean-growing areas that helped improve soil moisture conditions played a role in the selloff, which gained momentum throughout the session and finally carried wheat futures to a lower close as well.

Dry conditions were still reported in key growing areas, however. Traders accounted for the heavy selling by explaining that most local traders had bought contracts late last week on forecasts of several days' dry, hot weather, leaving an absence of buyers on the floor.

Heavy selling by brokerage houses hit sell stops, or predetermined points at which sell orders are entered automatically for outside customers, pushing prices lower.

Several analysts also mentioned market talk that the Soviet Union's future import needs have been exaggerated and that the Soviets have completed a large part of their U.S. grains-buying program, at least for several months.

At the close, soybeans were 28 to 30 cents lower, August $7.60; wheat was 1½ to 16½ cents lower, September $4.40½; corn was 8¼ to 10 cents lower, September $3.07; and oats were 5¾ to 6 cents lower, September $1.58½.

Mart Loses Ground

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market lost ground in nervous trading Monday amid worries about the dollar's slump on foreign exchange markets, a record gold price and the possibility of higher interest rates.

"The market is getting hit with everything but the kitchen sink these days," said Newton Zinder, an analyst at E.F. Hutton & Co.

Zinder added, however, that the market's decline had been fairly moderate, compared to the dollar's slide.

"It's been giving ground rather grudgingly," he said. "Considering the news background I would say it's holding very well."

The dollar was generally down against most foreign currencies Monday as a result of continuing concern over the the United States' energy woes and the Carter administration shakeup.

In addition, the price of an ounce of gold rocketed $7.25 an ounce in Zurich, Europe's biggest bullion center, to close at $305.625. The metal rose $6 an ounce in London to $304.25, a record for that market.

New York (AP) — Monday's national prices for New York Stock Exchange issues as of NYSE close. Prices and volume consolidated for securities also traded on other markets.

Bus Ridership Peaked During June

By NANCY ALLEN
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Citibus ridership during June was the highest of the fiscal year, with nearly 67,000 persons using the system, city transit coordinator John Wilson told Lubbock's Transit Advisory Board Monday.

The latest ridership total is the largest since August 1978, when more than 67,000 persons boarded Citibus, Wilson said.

However, his reaction to the increase, which represents a 6 percent jump over the same period a year ago, was mixed.

"Considering the increase in the price of gasoline," he told board members, "the increase in ridership isn't as much as we'd like it to be."

However, indicating that the increase should not be maligned, Wilson added "it's all a very positive sign."

July, he expects, "should be even better, according to what our figures indicate for the first two weeks." Looking to August, Wilson projected ridership will surpass the July total.

Citibus has the capacity to handle 1.6 percent of Lubbock's population, Wilson said. It now has a ridership of less than 1 percent of the city's 180,000 residents.

Wilson also told the board the Citibus budget is "right in line with what we'd projected." He has maintained over the past months the bus system will finish the fiscal year Sept. 30 "slightly over budget."

Hawks Challenge SALT II Treaty

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Harold Brown said Monday that important concessions made by the Soviet Union during SALT II negotiations would be imperiled if the Senate insists on changing the treaty.

Brown said Russia had conceded to the United States on issues such as missile launchers and warhead ceilings, exclusion of French and British nuclear forces from the pact and the range of airborne cruise missiles.

"In short, each of these Soviet concessions was important to us," Brown said. "Taken together they are far more important than the Backfire issue or the heavy missile issue."

The secretary testified at the opening round of hearings on the treaty by the Senate Armed Services Committee, whose members include some of the treaty's staunchest foes. The Senate Foreign Relations Committee already has held two weeks of hearings on the pact.

Missles, 'Backfire' Contested

Several senators objected that the treaty permits the Soviet Union to retain 308 giant SS-18 missiles with far greater explosive power than U.S. rockets. They also argued that the Soviet Backfire bomber should be included in the actual treaty instead of being covered by a separate understanding.

Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., said the Backfire "may be the No. 1 and first stumbling block of the SALT treaty" and urged Brown to reconsider the administration's position.

Goldwater said, however, that his earlier concerns about Soviet cheating on the treaty's terms have eased.

"I was concerned about verification," Goldwater said. "I have had that somewhat overcome" during closed-door hearings on the verification issue by the Senate Intelligence Committee.

Brown also defended the treaty against charges by Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., that it failed to meet standards set by the Senate in 1972 as it debated the first U.S.-Soviet arms limitation pact.

'Giants And...Dwarfs'

"I would not trade our current force for theirs," Brown said.

Jackson said "this treaty is unequal in a number of respects," such as by allowing the Soviets to have missiles far bigger than those of the United States. The treaty does place an equal ceiling on the number of weapons.

"It is meaningless to speak in terms of numbers alone," Jackson said. "A team of giants and a team of dwarfs might have equal numbers of players ... but they are hardly equal."

Brown replied that, "If the dwarfs are just as strong and able and agile as the giants, the teams are not unequal."

Jackson challenged Brown's assertion that without SALT, the Soviets would expand their nuclear arsenal to about 3,000 weapons. The treaty sets a cap of 2,250 strategic missiles and bombers through 1985.

Jackson said the 3,000 figure "goes beyond any requirement they would have to achieve their objectives." But Brown replied that "we feel that way about deployments they have already made and tell them so." He explained: "If you're asking me do I think the Soviets have enough, yes I do, but they are continuing to build."

The defense secretary said the Soviets will have some military advantages under the SALT II treaty but argued that the United States will have an edge in other areas.

The question of compliance with the 1972 provision emerged as Brown opened the administration's defense of the treaty before the Senate Armed Services Committee and some of the pact's toughest critics. The hearings are expected to run through the end of this month.

The argument centered on a 1972 Senate amendment to the resolution of ratification of the SALT I agreement requiring that the next arms pact give the United States equality with the Soviet Union in terms of intercontinental strategic forces.

Jackson, author of the amendment, said it failed to meet Senate's standard. For example, he said, it allows the Soviet Union to have missiles with a payload of 16,000 pounds, twice the level permitted for the United States. As a result, the largest Soviet missiles carry warheads much bigger and more powerful than any on U.S. rockets.

Jackson said that since 1975 the Soviet Union has moved ahead with new missile systems such as the SS-17, SS-18 and SS-19, while the United States has canceled the B-1 bomber, delayed production of the MX missile and fallen behind in production of Trident submarines.

Brown acknowledged that "the Soviets have moved ahead of where they were more rapidly than we have." He said that since 1975, the Soviets have doubled the number of missile warheads to about 5,000.

Progressive Steps By Blacks Urged

than the person himself to avoid an appearance of favoritism.

About 80 percent of the blacks in Lubbock probably don't know the basic facts and statistics about their city, Davis said, and pointed out that they must get this information and use it to their advantage.

"Know the facts behind about what you want to talk about," he said.

Davis said people must keep a positive mental attitude and start thinking about their futures now because "you have to plan and buy in advance."

Davis advised blacks to do the opposite of the majority — to take people by surprise for a change instead of just following along blindly.

"You must also stop trying to do it all by yourself," Davis said. He told husbands they should tell their wives and families what they are planning to do in business or otherwise, so the families can mentally follow them.

Work with others but do it smartly, Davis said, and make sure everything is working to your best interest.

Davis said people need to be informed by reading more than one newspaper.

"Anyore who thinks they're getting all the news from one paper or from TV or radio is a fool," he said, adding that people need to read at least one out-of-town newspaper and a good news magazine weekly.

Davis advised seminar participants to start listening to those around them now and to learn to use the system to work for them.

"You'd be surprised what you can accomplish if you plan your day," Davis said, adding that people must learn to finish whatever they set out to do.

Davis said those who want to get ahead should dress appropriately for the occasion, but said people should not try to sell themselves to everyone.

Workers should realize that the more time they have off, the more they must work at a later date, Davis said, and told the group not to be afraid of work.

He also said people should get the price they want for the work they do, though.

"There are those who tell you that money isn't everything, but don't be afraid to ask for it and use it," he said.

Tories Plan Aerospace Firm's Sale

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's Conservative government announced Monday it will put up half the nation's aerospace industry for sale by Christmas.

Amid shouts of protest from opposition Labor Party legislators, ministers also pledged continued — but reduced — state aid for two years to Britain's ailing ship building industry.

They made clear that from 1981 the future of the largely state-owned shipbuilding industry, currently accounting for about 3 percent of world capacity, would depend on how successful its 50,000 employees were in "helping themselves."

The planned sale of about half of British Aerospace, with assets of $740.6 million, is the third major move within a week by the 11-week-old government, which promised to rescue Britain from what it called the previous Labor administration's "drab, grey world of socialism."

Last week Industry Secretary Sir Keith Joseph disclosed plans to cut aid to industries in depressed areas by 38 percent in the next three years.

In what has been dubbed "the sale of the century," the government also set about disposing of chunks of nationalized industry by announcing it will offer private buyers a "substantial minority" holding in the state-owned British Airways.

The government postponed Monday for at least three months details of planned massive public spending cuts, now expected to total $9.2 billion.

The delay came amid fierce opposition to the planned tough economies from Laborites and union leaders, and reports that some of Mrs. Thatcher's ministers were trying to resist cuts in education services, higher rail fares and increased rents for state-subsidized homes.

"The treatment may seem intolerable," Howe said before a morning Cabinet meeting. "But without the treatment our condition could easily become incurable."

Union leaders accused the government Monday of planning to cut through the "basic fabric of the social services" in this welfare state.

"The result can only be horrendous social distress, mass unemployment and a disastrous undermining of the level of industrial activity," said David Basnett, general secretary of the General and Municipal Workers' Union.

Official sources said after the cabinet meeting that the cuts — billed by Conservatives as a trimming of Labor extravagance — would be detailed in a White Paper "later this year."

Industry Secretary Sir Keith Joseph said legislation providing for the partial sale would be designed to prevent any foreign takeover of British Aerospce, 80 pecent of whose sales are military aircraft.

British Aerospace's major civil venture'— into which millions of pounds in state funds were poured — was the development of the Anglo-French Concorde supersonic jetliner.

Observers see the government move as bringing British Aerospace more in line with its major U.S. competitors, such as Boeing and McDonnell Douglas, which have to borrow money privately to finance new civil programs.

F. Lee Bailey Libel Lawsuit Jurors Seated

NORRISTOWN, Pa. (UPI) — A $3 million libel lawsuit against celebrated Boston criminal lawyer F. Lee Bailey opened Monday with the selection of 12 jurors.

Retired Philadelphia lawyer Morris Passon told the Montgomery County court, "I am suing F. Lee Bailey because he accused me of commiting a murder — the murder of my brother-in-law."

Passon is representing himself in the suit and Bailey is being represented by Philadelphia lawyer Richard Sprague.

Realtor Murdered

Passon's brother-in-law, wealthy realtor Max Kravitz, was murdered July 4, 1958. Kravitz's wife, Ethel, was convicted of the murder and sentenced to 20 years in prison. Upon her parole after eight years, she appealed the conviction with Bailey as her attorney.

Passon charged that Bailey leaked information to the press in 1967 "to create a climate of suspicion as to the guilt of Morris Passon to make it appear that his client Ethel Kravitz was innocent."

Sprague said Bailey never called Passon a murderer and that the information printed in newspapers and magazines came from court documents and interviews.

Sprague said earlier that a loss for Bailey in court "would really chill the concept of lawyers representing clients."

When she was arrested, Mrs. Kravitz claimed she was innocent, but said she did not know who killed her husband.

Police found Kravitz' body, shot three times and bludgeoned 16 times, in the bedroom of the couple's home in Wynnewood.

Passon Accused Of Crime

During the appeal, Bailey contended the actual killer was Passon, charging he committed the murder after Mrs. Kravitz told her husband that Passon was blackmailing her into a sexual relationship.

Another libel suit filed by Passon was rejected by the Pennsylvania Superior Court, which upheld the "absolute privilege" of lawyers and defendants. However, Montgomery County Court ruled in January 1978 that Passon could sue Bailey.

Sprague will base his defense, as Bailey has done in the 11 years he has unsuccessfully tried to squash the libel suit, on the "absolute privilege" of an attorney to make comments, even defamatory ones, in a client's defense.

"If a lawyer cannot represent you and give you an opportunity to be heard without the lawyer being personally responsible," said Sprague, "what lawyer would represent you? It (a loss in court) would really chill the concept of lawyers representing clients."

President Seeking New Chief At Fed

Powell acknowledged that the changes ordained by Carter were bound to spark "some degree of disturbance" and said that is why the president acted swiftly to accept five Cabinet resignations, including that of Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal.

In announcing plans for a prime-time news conference, Powell said he had not yet decided whether to have reporters from outside Washington participate. Both he and the president have complained about the press corps here.

It will be Carter's first meeting with the press in the East Room, often used by former Presidents Gerald R. Ford, Richard M. Nixon and Lyndon B. Johnson.

Asked why Carter was holding a rare evening news conference, Powell said the president wanted to "provide an opportunity for people who do not live n the Eastern Seaboard to watch it."

The White House spokesman reported he and his associates were encouraged by results of a new Gallup poll that indicated 36 percent of 539 Americans who were questioned believe Carter's Cabinet and staff changes will help the country.

Of those surveyed, 12 percent thought the shakeup would make matters worse, 42 percent thought it would make no difference and 10 percent were not sure.

Citing the figures, Powell said: "There has been a great deal of semi-hysteria here in Washington, which I think, based on this most recent Gallup poll, has been confined to this side of the Potomac."

Powell, holding his first regular press briefing in about a month, referred to the Gallup figures as "a rather surprising positive reaction."

Asked about mail reaction received by the White House, he said: "I haven't checked it. I assume it would be negative, however."

The White House last week volunteered figures on a favorable response to Carter's July 15 energy address.

Powell also reported Carter will be giving fresh attention this week to the drive for congressional approval of the $142 billion energy program he outlined last week before the administration facelifting took center stage.

The press secretary echoed remarks he made Sunday that "there will be additional focusing of the president's attention on the Energy Mobilization Board and the Energy Security Corp." These are key elements in his policy blueprint.

Proposals to establish the board, intended to cut through red tape to speed up development of energy projects, and to create the energy corporation, which would finance energy development, were sent to Congress last week. The Senate Energy Committee tentatively agreed Saturday to support the mobilization board. In addition to seeking a replacement for Miller, the president is looking for a new secretary of Housing and Urban Development, a new transportation secretary, and a new secretary of the Navy.

Powell said some changes in the White House staff, although unlikely to add any new faces to the inner circle of Carter advisers, may be revealed this week.

To the broadcasters, he said Carter will encourage debate among members of his new team but, once policy is determined, will expect subordinates to fall in line or resign.

Hamilton Jordan, Carter's newly named chief of staff, said Monday the president intends to widen "the circle of persons inside and outside government that will give him advice."

Hospital Study Set By Team

will take time to compile the results of the survey.

If Health Sciences Center Hospital should fail to receive accreditation, staff members have two options:

—If hospital officials feel the Joint Commission's refusal of accreditation is unjustified, the hospital may appeal the decision.

—If staff members agree the denial is justified they have six months to "get their house in order" before the Joint Commission returns for another check — at an additional cost to the hospital.

"No facility is going to be 100 percent in compliance with our standards," Mrs. Schulman warned. Accreditation is granted for either a one-or two-year period, she said, depending on how many changes are needed to bring the institution into compliance with Joint Commission guidelines.

But the hospital's financial problems — which includes more than $7 million in unpaid patient bills — will probably not affect the results of the survey, unless cash shortfalls affect the quality of patient care. The hospital may have problems, however, if they cannot afford to institute the changes or suggestions submitted by the survey team.

The Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals is a private, non-profit corporation based in Chicago, Ill. Originally started in 1918 by the American College of Surgeons to provide minimum standards for hospitals, the organization was placed under the umbrella of the Joint Commission in 1951.

Reservoir Construction Backed By Water Group

mistake," he said, "and look at the Roberts-Ochiltree water as the only alternative."

Bean added some question the consulting engineers' study on the yield and water quality of the two reservoirs but Ellison praised Freese and Nichols Inc., the consulting firm, as "the best in the Southwest and possibly the nation" on water projects.

One of the first steps toward construction of the two reservoirs is the start of negotiations with the White River Municipal Water Authority for the joint development of the Post reservoir and the board instructed city officials to begin those talks.

Board members also set a limit of 4 million gallons a day, or 12 percent of the reservoir supply, on the water which neighboring cities can receive.

Financing Discussed

The board discussed ways of financing the reservoir project with city financial consultant Joe Smith of First Southwest Company in Abilene, but made no decisions on how to pay the $109 million project cost.

Since most water projects since the mid-1950s have been financed with tax-supported general obligation bonds, Smith said the water revenue fund is relatively debt free.

However, Smith said water rates will have to be two or three times higher to pay off bonds for the reservoirs, although the water revenue fund has a $2.3 million net profit now.

Of that amount, he said about $800,000 helps retire general obligation water bonds.

Smith said a special water district might have to be established if many cities besides Lubbock participate in the project. In that case, the district would issue its own bonds.

However, the board seemed wary of establishing such a district, leaning instead toward contractual arrangements with the other cities receiving water.

Because of the financing complexities, the board determined it, or a board subcommittee, would explore financing possibilities in the future.

In the interim, however, board members determined the city's existing water sources should be maximized at a cost of $16 million.

Freese and Nichols has recommended the construction of a 500 million gallon storage and treatment facility for water from the Canadian River Water Authority.

The water would be stored in the winter to meet peak demands in the summer, Wahl said. The treatment and storage facility would cost an estimated $3.5 million.

Continued expansion of the Bailey County sandhill wells and construction of pump stations and distribution lines from the wells is expected to cost $12.5 million.

Voters could be asked to approve general obligation bonds for such projects as early as next spring.

City officials hope the $3.5 million will be available early in 1981 so the treatment and storage facilities can be on line for the summer of 1983.

Lawyers Competency Assessed By Burger

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chief Justice Warren Burger said Monday the performance of "a substantial number of lawyers who come into our courts" is of poor quality.

The Supreme Court justice urged law schools, trial attorneys, judges and the American Bar Association to work together to improve the skills of trial lawyers.

Burger noted 1,400 state and federal judges surveyed by the American Bar Foundation thought 87 percent of trial performances by attorneys were "minimally competent." A survey of federal district judges last year showed 41 percent thought there "was a serious problem" with the performance quality of trial lawyers.

Twin Sisters Reunited By TV Program

LOWELL, Mass. (AP) — Ruth Johnson and Allison Mitchell Erb are twin sisters, and like many twins, they have taken parallel courses through life. Each is a hairdresser. Each has two children, and each has a daughter named Kristen.

But until a reunion last week, they were total strangers. They were separated at birth 26 years ago.

Miss Johnson of Lowell and Mrs. Erb of Waterville, Maine, each sought the other after watching the same segment of the same syndicated television talk show.

They were reunited — first by telephone last Wednesday night — and then in person in Lowell on Friday night. They've been in constant contact since the initial telephone call.

"I think our phone bills will be a thousand dollars," Miss Johnson said.

The identical twins were born prematurely on March 21, 1953, to a woman whose last name was Taylor at a Portsmouth, N.H., hospital. They were given up for adoption.

Each weighed less than 2 pounds at birth, and Mrs. Erb had been sickly. She was in braces from the waist down for the first five years of life.

Miss Johnson was adopted almost immediately, but Mrs. Erb lived for a time in an orphanage in New Hampshire.

Both knew they had been adopted as they grew up, and Miss Johnson knew she had a twin sister. She said her adoptive mother, now in Laconia, N.H., said she assumed the twin died as a baby because of its weight.

Mrs. Erb did not learn she had a twin sister until she was 19. Both said they are not interested in tracing their natural parents.

Last June, both watched the Phil Donahue Show on television and heard guest Lee Campbell, founder of Concerned United Birthparents, discuss the right of adopted persons to learn their heritages.

"I watched the program, and I decided right then and there that if I was ever going to find my twin sister, I must move on it now," Mrs. Erb said.

She called the television station immediately, and Miss Johnson wrote to Donahue and Campbell.

The Concerned United Birthparents chapter in Milford, Mass., checked hospital records in Portsmouth with information the women supplied. "It was apparent to all of us they were the Taylor twins," Gail Hanssen, national secretary of the group, said.

Mrs. Erb, her husband, Stephen, and her two children journeyed to Lowell to meet Miss Johnson, who is divorced.

"At first I couldn't say anything," Mrs. Erb said of Friday's reunion. "It was like looking in a mirror."

Mothers Claimed Worth $35,000 Per Year

NEW YORK (AP) — At current pay rates, the American mother is worth more than $35,000 a year, according to an article in Parents magazine.

In its August issue, the magazine calls for "adequate financial payment for full-time homemakers," and says that an average housewife does work that is worth about $700 a week.

The magazine estimates that house care fetches $3 an hour on the current market, day care costs $4 an hour, on-call care costs $3 an hour, driving costs $5 an hour, and managerial work costs $4.50 an hour.

According to the magazine, a mother with two preschool-age children spends 10 hours of her waking time on child care, and then must be available for on-call care two hours each day and 12 hours each night. Total child care: 70 hours a week, or $280. Add 98 hours of on-call time each week, or $294.

Then there are the other duties: four hours of clothes care, two hours on food shopping and 21 hours on food preparation, and five hours of house cleaning. Total housework: 32 hours, or $96.

Add two hours of budgeting and planning. Total salary: $699 a week, before taxes.

U.S. Said Pressing Israel To Accept Sinai Force Compromise

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The United States was reported pressing Israel, Monday, to drop its opposition to a U.S.-Soviet compromise plan for monitoring the Egyptian-Israeli peace in the Sinai Peninsula with up to 800 U.N. observers.

Sources at the Israeli U.N. mission said Israel, long distrustful of the United Nations, would prefer that President Carter organize a non-U.N. multi-national force to supervise the Sinai peace, as he has promised to do if necessary.

The Israelis say they will accept U.N. monitoring — but only by the armed U.N. Emergency Force in the Sinai, not by unarmed personnel of the U.N. Truce Supervisory Organization, as now proposed. The Soviet Union has ruled out a UNEF role, however.

There was some sense of urgency about the American diplomatic efforts. The mandate for the 4,000 UNEF truce troops in the Sinai expires at midnight, Tuesday, after which they will be pulled out.

In Jerusalem, Israeli Deputy Prime Minister Yigael Yadin said failure to resolve the dispute "might create serious problems about the implementation of the peace agreement in the future."

Israeli newspapers suggested that Israel might delay future stages of its withdrawal from the Sinai.

In other Mideast developments Monday:

—Lebanese Premier Salim el-Hoss denounced Israel's air attack, Sunday, south of Beirut as "an ugly crime against innocent civilians," and the Lebanese government said it would protest to the U.N. Security Council. More than 20 persons were reported killed in the raid, which Israel contended was made against Palestinian "terrorist concentrations."

—State Department spokesman Hodding Carter said in Washington that the Carter administration condemns the raid and has urged Israel "in the strongest kind of terms' to halt its air strikes into Lebanon.

The 4-month-old Egyptian-Israeli treaty calls for the stationing of U.N. "forces" in temporary buffer zones between Egyptian and Israeli territory with each phase of the Israeli withdrawal from the Sinai. Israel's objections center on the kind of U.N. force that would be used and on who would control it.

The Soviet Union, which is highly critical of the U.S.-sponsored Israeli-Egyptian treaty, has indicated it would veto any attempt to extend UNEF's mandate in the Security Council. Because of this, U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim is not even asking for the routine renewal vote, Tuesday.

Before a meeting Monday with Waldheim, Soviet U.N. Ambassador was asked about the future of UNEF.

"It's going to be disbanded," he replied.

Last week well-placed sources here said the Soviets and Americans reached an agreement whereby the 296 UNTSO military observers now in the Sinai would be used, and perhaps augmented, to monitor the staged Israeli troop withdrawals.

Egyptian Ambassador A. Esmat Abdel Meguid informed Waldheim that Egypt agrees to this idea, an Egyptian spokesman said. But the Israeli Cabinet on Sunday rejected the arrangement.

The Egyptian spokesman here, Mohamed Ayman el Amir, said he understood Israel's position was now the subject of consultations between the Israeli and American governments. He added, "I hope the Israelis will soften their position on this."

Israeli mission sources said one reason Israel did not want to depend on the unarmed U.N. observers for that purpose was that "we don't trust the secretary-general very much." In 1967, Secretary-General U Thant, at the demand of Egypt, pulled a U.N. observer force out of the Sinai. The Six-Day War soon followed.

Though the secretary-general has general oversight of the U.N. observers, the Security Council — where Israel's ally the United States has a veto — has more control over the U.N. Emergency Force.

The Israeli mission sources, who preferred not to be named, said that since the Soviets had threatened to veto extension of UNEF, Israel would prefer to end the U.N. role entirely and have the United States get together a non-U.N. international treaty-supervision force.

El Amir said he expected informal consultations among the 15 members of the Security Council, Tuesday morning, on the subject.

Manslaughter Charged In Traffic Death

Eustacio R. Hernandez, 45, of 2005 Ave. K was charged Monday with involuntary manslaughter in connection with the early Monday death of a 19-year-old Lubbock man.

Ricky Peppers of 2428 E. 30th St. died about 2:25 a.m. Monday at Methodist Hospital, where he was taken following a Sunday night car-motorcycle collision at East Auburn Street and North Quirt Avenue.

Witnesses told police Peppers was traveling north along Quirt Avenue on a motorcycle and the 1967 Oldsmobile allegedly driven by Hernandez was southbound on Quirt just seconds before the 10 p.m. Sunday accident.

The driver of the car was attempting to turn east onto East Auburn Street, witnesses said, when the two vehicles collided, throwing Peppers off his motorcycle.

Hernandez, who was not injured in the collision, was arrested at the scene on suspicion of driving while intoxicated. A $25,000 bond on the involuntary manslaughter charge, which states Hernandez "by reason of intoxication" collided with the motorcycle, was recommended by the district attorney's office.

Justice of the Peace Wayne LeCroy ruled Peppers' death a homicide. The youth's death marks the 15th this year on city streets.

Services for Peppers are pending with South Plains Funeral Home.

CAIN COLLAPSES — Paramedics work unsuccessfully to revive St. Louis Cardinals tight end J.V. Cain, who collapsed during a workout late Sunday night. Cain apparently suffered a cardiac arrest and was pronounced dead 90 minutes later at a St. Charles hospital. Team officials say Cain, who missed last season with a leg injury, was in excellent physical condition when he reported for camp. (AP Laserphoto)

Autopsy Fails To Reveal Cause Of Cain's Death

ST. CHARLES, Mo. (AP) — Further tests were ordered Monday after an autopsy failed to reveal the cause of death of J..V. Cain, ohe St. Louis Cardinals' starting tight end who collapsed on the training field during a workout Sunday night.

Dr. James Ruggles of Smith Cline Laboratories, who performed the autopsy Monday morning, said the results of the autopsy were not conclusive but they did show that Cain did not die of cardiac arrest as was earlier believed.

He said more tests were needed to find out what killed the 28-year-old veteran who was reportedly in excellent condition when he reported to camp.

St. Charles County Coroner Dr. Joseph Miller confirmed the finding, saying "...the heart was not involved."

Cain had just run a pass pattern in a no-contact drill when he turned, took one or two steps and collapsed to the turf.

Team trainer John Omohundro applied mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and team doctor Bernard Garfinkel used cardio-support equipment. He appeared to revive once or twice while he was lying on the field.

"J.V. had enough support medically," said head coach Bud Wilkinson. "The trainers were right there. But when I got to him, I knew there was trouble."

The rest of the team, some of them praying and some in tears, watched the efforts to revive the fallen Cain as the crowd of about 2,000 spectators sat in dazed silence.

Cain was taken to St. Joseph's hospital were he died about 90 minutes after he collapsed.

The Cardinals gathered at their training camp Monday morning. Practice was canceled but meetings were held.

Defensive tackle Charlie Davis, a close friend of Cain's returned to the camp after flying to Houston to escort Cain's widow, Jeanne, to St. Louis. The Cains had been married less than a year.

"I have eight brothers and he was closer to me than any of them," said Davis.

Joe Sullivan, the club's vice president said the rest of the team was taking the death hard.

"The players are in a state of shock," Sullivan said. "Talking to them they seem pretty far away and they have to come back. J.V. was one of the things we looked forward to. He was a leader from the first practice until he couldn't lead any more."

Running back Wayne Morris attempted to speak at the team's headquarters Monday morning, saying he would like to personally dedicate the rest of the season to Cain. Morris stuttered and was unable to finish his speech. He was led out of the room by Wilkinson.

Rookie tight end Jerry Holloway, who had received help from Cain when Holloway's mother had died, said no one knew what to think when Cain fell to the ground Sunday night.

"All of a sudden I heard a big thump," Holloway said. "Everybody thought he had just passed out. It was a dark situation. verybody anted to know why the ambulance took so long to come. Why this and why that. Nobody knew what to do, except pray."

The 6-foot-4, 225-pound Cain was St. Louis' top draft choice in 1974. The former all-Big Eight star at Colorado had 76 carreer pass receptions for 1,014 yards and nine touchdowns.

His best year was 1976, when he snared 26 for five touchdowns.

'Hey Coach,' It's Schooltime

By JIM FERGUSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

FORT WORTH — "Hey, coach."

With more than 8,000 coaches expected to attend the 47th annual Texas High School Coaches Assocation, take a bet that the above mentioned greeting might be used more than just once or twice.

Hailed as the largest gathering of coaches in the free world, registration for the five-day school begins today at the Tarrant County Convention Center. The school winds up Saturday night.

Highlighting the large getogether are the high school all-star basketball and football games, set for Friday and Saturday nights, respectively. The games pit the state's finest seniors.

The South Plains will be widely represented in both contests. Competing for the North in the football game, which is set for 8 p.m. at Amon Carter Stadium are Rick McIvor of Fort Stockton, Dennis Veals of Dimmitt, Royce Coleman of Plainview and Estacado's Dewey Turner.

Winston Gipson of Estacado, Lance McCain of Andrews and Vega's Ronnie Williams will carry the South Plains banner in the basketball game, set for 8 p.m. at Amon Carter Coliseum.

The All-Stars were due to report to camp Sunday night. However, basketball guard Robert Williams of Houston Milby, the brother of University of Houston standout Ken Williams, failed to show Monday when the South Stars met for a practice session.

Reportedly, Williams missed a plane to Fort Worth. He was, however, immediately replaced by 6-8 Robert Shaw of Deer Park.

Head coaches are the football game are Frank Bevers of Highland Park for the North and Bob McQueen of Temple for the South. Abilene's James Boynton will guide the North's cage stars, while Dave Middleton of Brazoswood heads the South unit.

"We're looking forward to a couple of the finest all-stars games ever," commented L.E. McConachie, executive Vice President of the THSCA. "We've gotten some fine athletes here."

Along with the all-star games, coaches will also hearing noted speakers discussing various aspects of football, basketball and track. Some of the top instructors include Hayden Fry of the University of Iowa, Leon Fuller of the University of Texas, Texas Tech's Gerald Myers and track aide James Blackwood of UT.

Perhaps the most pressing business at hand will be the election of a new vice president of the Association. From the South Plains, Don Barton of Dumas, O.W. Follis of Lamesa, Dennis Hays of Midland, Jerry Millsapps of Odessa, Tom Ritchey of Idalou, Jim Warren of Lockney and L.G. Wilson of Floydada have been nominated.

Weighty Matters

A MONTH FROM NOW, the mood will be quite different, but Monday afternoon, Rex Dockery was completely relaxed.

The golf clubs he had toted most of the afternoon were stashed away, memories of the bad shots obliterated by the good ones and the realization that — what the heck — it's only a game.

Even the rush and bustle of the this week's high school coaching school at Fort Worth was yet a few hours away.

It has been a long time since high school recruiting season — and several months until the seriousness of the next one. It's been a few months since Tech's spring training, too. What Dockery had been watching lately, from his office overlooking Jones Stadium, was a steady stream of Raiders and future-Raiders working out daily in preparation for the upcoming season.

The work and physical condition of some of these Raiders and future-Raiders helped bring on that feeling of relaxation Monday.

Only a year ago, Dockery made a round of the late-summer all-star games. At the coaching school, he saw a couple of his prospects, Plano's C.M. Pier and Monterey's Ron Reeves help the North nip the South 7-6 (Pier intercepting a key pass and being named the game's MVP and Reeves booting the winning extra point).

Then a couple of weeks later, Reeves ups and gets the Oil Bowl MVP trophy for a pair of running TDs, a pass for another, and a 40-yard punting average,as the Texans easily thrashed their neighbors across the Red River.

But, that past history didn't dim Dockery's look into the future; indeed, those memories and some of the newest recruits have him thinking positively.

• • •

"I THINK YOU could see something this week, too," the Raiders' head coach commented Monday. "I think Mark James (the all-stater and blue-chip quarterback from Gregory-Portland) will show you something. At least, I think he can.

"Mark spent some time up here this summer," Dockery commented, "and the other players said he really made a good impression on them. That's usually a good indication of a young man's character, the way he gets along with the older players.

"Mark has the tools, too, to be a good player."

• • •

HOW MUCH JAMES will play for the Raiders as a freshman this fall could be determined by other factors involving upperclassmen — there is no doubt that Reeves is No. 1 — but Dockery feels several of his freshmen could earn considerable playing time.

And the way Reeves, Pier, punter Maury Buford, cornerback Alan Swann and several others performed as freshmen a year could buoy Dockery's hopes for a repeat.

A couple of prospects Dockery had in mind for this fall, however, are a pair of linemen — huge linemen.

Like James, offensive lineman Matt Harlein (Corpus Christi King) will be playing in the all-star game this week. He and Gabriel Rivera of San Antonio have spent most of the summer here, "and they are two big football players," commented Dockery.

"Gab (expected to play in the defensive line) weighs 285 and Harlein is 280. And they're not fat. They're strong and mobile. I tell you: Harlein is the most mature person, physically, I have seen — for one his age.

"Needless to say, I'm excited about these young men."

• • •

BECAUSE OF THE loss of Jim Wosoba, killed in an industrial accident in Kentucky earlier this summer, Dockery and his staff have had to alter their depth chart in the offensive line. Thus, there is one more space available for a newcomer to try to wedge his way in among the veterans.

"James will contribute (at quarterback)," commented Dockery. "We could use some freshmen at wide receiver. And there may be a couple of openings (on the squad) at linebacker.

"Running back. . . somebody could have a chance there.

"People like Rivera, Harlein, and James — people who have been here and been working out this summer — I've seen them play and it's easier to judge them. But, I think we can be playing some freshmen this fall."

Having them available makes for a more relaxed summer.

Brett Breaks Texas Hearts 5-4

By the Associated Press

George Brett hammered a double and two RBI singles as the Kansas City Royals defeated the slumping Texas Rangers 5-4 Monday night.

It was the second straight hot night for Brett, who slammed three home runs against the Rangers Sunday night.

Kansas City starter Dennis Leonard, 6-7, was tagged for a first-inning homer by Buddy Bell and then held the Rangers scoreless until the ninth when Al Oliver and Richie Zisk singled and Pat Putnam hit his 12th home run of the season.

Meanwhile, the Royals chipped away at Ferguson Jenkins, 10-7. Singles by Brett and Pete LaCock gave Kansas City a 2-1 lead in the third inning, Brett singled another run home in the fifth and Frank White homered in the sixth.

ASTROS 3, CARDS 2

Jeff Leonard's sacrifice fly broke a 2-2 tie in the fifth inning and Joe Niekro became the major league's first 14-game winner as the Houston Astros edged the St. Louis Cardinals 3-2 Monday night.

Terry Puhl singled to start the Houston fifth, stole second and scored one out later on Leonard's fly ball for the deciding run. Niekro, 14-5, scattered six hits, walked one and recorded six strkeouts as the Astros won for only the third time in 15 games.

PIRATES, BRAVES SPLIT

Phil Niekro halted the Pittsburgh Pirates' nine-game winning streak with a two-hitter Monday night as the Atlanta Braves posted an 8-0 victory in the second game of a twi-night doubleheader.

The Pirates, also dealt their last loss by Niekro, took the opener 7-1 behind the four-hit pitching of Bert Blyleven.

Niekro notched six strikeouts in becoming the major league's second 14-game winner. Ironically, his brother, Joe, became the first in the Houston As-

Northwest Meets Dixie For LL Title

The Northwest All-Stars and the Dixie All-Stars will meet today at 7:30 p.m. in the finals of the District 2 Little League championship at the Buster Long Field, located a block north of the South Plains Mall.

Northwest advanced to today's finals with a 5-3 come-from-behind victory over Shallowater. Dixie advanced by defeating Cooper, 6-0.

Northwest was trailing 3-1 in the bottom of the fifth but scored four runs in that inning, thanks to two timely hits, good baserunning and three Shallowater errors.

With Shallowater leading 3-2, Northwest's Joe Aguyo hit a bases-loaded single and avanced to third on an error, thus clearing the bases for three more Northwest runs.

Pete Ramos, who came in on relief in the fourth inning, got the win. In three innings of relief, he allowed one hit, and struck out seven, including three in the final inning.

Wade Milsap was the losing pitcher, striking out eight. Greg Roberts was the leading hitter for Shallowater, going 2-for-3.

In Monday's nightcap, Dixie's five runs in the second inning was all winning pitcher Brent Rice needed. He struck out 10, and at one point of the game, retired nine striaght batters. He allowed just one hit.

David Coleman and Todd Hunt were the leading hitters for Dixie, going 2-for-2 and 2-for-3, respectively.

Americans Unhappy With Soviet Rules

MOSCOW (AP) — American sprinter Bart Williams pulled a leg muscle while leading the 400-meter hurdles race in the Spartacade Games Monday and limped away in pain. His coach criticized the Soviet organizers for making athletes wait 30 minutes between warm-ups and their events.

"It's not the proper procedure, even for the conduct of a meet this size," said Coach Jimmy Carnes of Florida State. "They feel they need to sit the people down in a particular area and have them ready on the dot so they can run on that minute."

Carnes said he intended to complain to Russian officials and to the International Amateur Athletic Federation. "We're going to try to get it changed for the Olympics next year," he said.

The Soviet Union's seventh Spartacade Games are being run exactly a year before the 1980 Moscow Summer Olympics. Some 2,500 foreign athletes, including about 100 Americans, were invited to participate as an Olympics warmup.

Williams had the lead when he pulled the hamstring muscle and still was neck and neck with Vasily Arkhipenko of the Soviet Union when he stopped suddenly as if he had been shot, bent over a hurdle and cried. He limped away, holding his right leg in pain as photographers swarmed around him.

"I felt it go at the sixth hurdle but I wanted to keep going," said the dejected Californian. "By the seventh hurdle the others were passing me, and by the eighth I knew I couldn't go on."

Arkhipenko coasted to an easy victory in 49.11 seconds.

Carnes said he figured Williams was three or four yards ahead when the muscle went. He attributed the accident to the 30-minute wait after the warmup. "The Penn Relays do fairly well with running 7,000 athletes and staying within a minute of their time schedule," he said. "They don't have to hold you 30 minutes."

Karen Hawkin of St. Louis, who was nipped at the wire in the women's 100 meters Monday by Ludmila Kondrateva of the Soviet Union, echoed Carnes' feeling about the wait.

"It's the same thing with me," she said, "sitting in there about 30 minutes getting cold, which shouldn't have been that way. I didn't like it, but that was something we had to do."

She experienced no trouble on the track and lowered her personal best performance to 11.32 seconds. Kondrateva had a winning time of 11.19, the fifth fastest in the world so far this year.

The Russians won all four gold medals in track and one in field Monday. Ekaterina Porkvina took the women's gold medal in the 800 meters in 1:57.13 seconds and Anatolj Reshetnjak won the men's 800 in 1:47.20.

Hawkin attributed her near miss in the 100 to her big weakness — a slow start. "I think I might have won if I had been faster out of the blocks. I have a bad start and I'm working on it."

Elena Goloborodko of the Soviet Union won the women's high jump in driving rain, clearing 6 feet 3¼ inches. AAU champion Louise Ritter dropped out at 5-11¼, making it an all-Soviet finale.

Canadian star Debbie Brill, who had a poor day in qualifications Sunday, won the consolation event at 6-2½, which would have been second place in the final.

The American basketball teams arrived Monday by jet, had lunch at a hotel near Red Square, then left on another plane for Lithuania, where the Spartacade cage tournament already is underway.

Teams from Yugoslavia and Czechoslovakia and the USSR are expected to provide the strongest opposition for the American men's team led by Joe Barry Carroll, the 7-foot-1 center from Purdue.

The men compete in Vilnius, the Lithuanian capital. The women play in nearby Kaunas.

Two American office workers from Philadelphia, Elizabeth Kent and Mary Welsh, compete in the semifinals of the coxless pairs rowing event Tuesday on the Moscow Olympic canal. They finished second in their heat Sunday.

Soviet competitors again swept most medals in their national competition Monday. Very few foreign entries got into the finals. Gary Cook of Britain was fifth in the men's 800 meters in 1:48.10.

Henry Marsh, another AAU champion, won his semifinal of the 3,000-meter steeplechase in 8:40.1 and made Wednesday's finals.

The Americans suffered a stunning setback when Duncan Atwood of Seattle, also an AAU champion, failed to qualify in the men's javelin. He did no better than 242 feet 5¾ inches, far under his season best of 277-0.

Japan's Greco-Roman wrestling champion Totio Asakuro lost on points to Kamil Fatkulin of the USSR in the finals of the 115-pound class, but became the first foreigner to win a medal in that competition.

World champion Arif Niftulayev of the USSR was beaten by Vitzslav Maha of Czechoslovakia in the 163-pound class.

The Spartacade Games, held every fourth year, before the Olympics, help the Soviets pick their increasingly dominant Olympic teams. They discovered a new women's javelin star in this Spartacade, 19-year-old Saida Gunba, a ballet dancer from the town of Pitsunda on the Black Sea coast. She won the javelin event on her first throw, 206-11½, a Spartacade women's record.

Gunba told Tass, the Soviet news agency, that dancing had given her "plasticity" she needed when she took up the javelin three years ago, and that she aims for a women's world record of 229-8.

"Saida is our Olympic hope," said her coach, Ilya Gigauri of Georgia. "Bemedalled opponents do not mesmerize her."

Ruth Fuchs of East Germany holds the javelin record at 228-1.

Another Soviet athlete on the road to the Olympics was Gennady Valyukevich, who won the Spartacade triple jump with a leap of 56-½. He set a world indoor record of 56-8¾ earlier this year and said he hopes to break the European record of 57-2¾ at the world University Games starting in Mexico City Sept. 2.

Torborg Axed; Garcia Takes Over

CLEVELAND (AP) — Third-base coach David Garcia has been named to replace Cleveland Indians Manager Jeff Torborg, who was told Monday that he would not finish out the season as originally planned.

In announcing the decision to remove Torborg from the team, Indians General Manager Phil Seghi said the club was "drifting" and that the situation "cried out for action."

Garcia was named to replace the 37-year-old lame duck manager shortly after the announcement came that Torborg's resignation would be effective immediately. Seghi said Torborg accepted the decision as "the best way to go."

Torborg survived a replacement move last month when Indians President Gabe Paul offered the manager's job to Bob Lemon of the New York Yankees. Lemon turned the job down.

At that time, Torborg said he would finish out the season before resigning from the team.

But Seghi said Monday, "I had the feeling we were drifting, and it was time we did something about it.

"We felt at first that the situation (of a lame duck manager) would work out," Seghi said, "But we felt a change had to be made."

At 35, Torborg had been the youngest manager in the major leagues when he took over the job from Frank Robinson on June 19, 1977.

He was the American League's bullpen coach for the 1977 and 1978 All-Star games.

In 10 years as a major league catcher — seven with the Los Angeles Dodgers and three with the California Angels — Torborg hit .214. He caught for the world champion Dodgers in 1965.

He saw the most action of his playing career in his last season, 1973, catching in 102 games for the Angels.

Garcia, 58, posted a 60-67 record when he served as manager of the California Angels from July 11, 1977 through May 31, 1978.

He re-joined the Indians on Nov. 6, 1978. Garcia had also coached for the Indians in the 1975-76 seasons.

Prior to the start of this season, Torborg had said he realized the insecurity in managing a major league team.

He said the day he was given the Indians job, he gathered his family together.

"I sat them down and told them someday sooner or later your father will be fired," Torborg said.

But the youthful manager said he never let the pressures of losing his job hamper him.

"I can't sit around worrying about being fired," he had said. "All I can do is try to do the job and get the most of the team."

Rickles Ribs Sox At Kangaroo Court

BOSTON (AP) — The short, chubby guy with the sharp tongue and machine gun style of delivery walked into the Boston Red Sox clubhouse before the game and let them have it.

"I got the word from (Manager) Don Zimmer and I'm here to tell you guys right now, he knows every one of you is against him.

"I watched you (pitcher Mike Torrez) in New York — and you stunk. You'd better take care of your legs because your arm's gone.

"The Angels miss you, Jerry (Remy, second baseman traded to Boston from California). I see you're having another good season — hurt again.

"You guys had better win. Think about it, Don (Zimmer). If you don't win, they'll be all going around town in Cadillacs, and you'll be driving a cab."

The mouth belonged to comedian Don Rickles, who was invited by team captain Carl Yastrzemski to be the judge at a "kangaroo court" session prior to Sunday's game at Fenway Park against the Angels.

It's rare that a judge delivers such a tongue-lashing, but that's the way it was when the ace needler presided at the court the Red Sox hold to gibe at each other's errant behavior on the field.

Rickles showed good insight into the American League club's roster. He was aware that Torrez, 9-6, has not been winning lately, and that Remy has been sidelined with a leg injury.

He also knew the team's general manager and part-owner, one-time catcher Haywood Sullivan.

"Hey, Sully, I remember you when you were a catcher," Rickles said. "You made (former catcher) Harry Danning look like an all-star. So you're an owner now. See what happens when you don't miss Mass."

"Hey Wolfe!" Rickles called to reserve infielder Harry Wolfe. "Get ready. (Second baseman Jack) Brohamer just got hit by a bus. No personality, huh? Just keep walking around the clubhouse and maybe somebody will recognize you."

Rickles fined Yastrzemski $10 for wearing the same outfit three days in a row, and added: "We'd better hose you down."

Outfielder Dwight Evans, sporting a deep tan, made the mistake of protesting a fine.

"The one thing I hate is a loud Mexican," Rickles said.

"But I'm not Mexican," Evans answered.

"Then you're Hawaiian," Rickles said. "What's the difference? Put on a skirt and start singing. Your career is over."

Rickles, who has been performing at a nightclub in nearby Framingham, also took a poke at the portly Zimmer.

"I've left three tickets for Don Zimmer for my show," he said. "Two are for Don and his lovely wife. The other is for his stomach."

Albeck Gets Cav Postion

RICHFIELD, Ohio (AP) — The Cleveland Cavaliers named Los Angeles Lakers assistant Stan Albeck on Monday as the second coach in the nine-year history of the expansion-born National Basketball Association franchise.

Nick J. Mileti, team president and principal owner, also named Ron Hrovat as executive vice president and general manager and former assistant coach Jimmy Rodgers as player personnel director.

Albeck, 48, was one of more than 80 applicants to succeed Bill Fitch, the only coach in the Cavaliers history and now coach of the Boston Celtics.

"I am from Illinois and my heart is in the Midwest, this is a very exciting day," Albeck said. "I was impressed with the way the interview went, with his (Mileti's) sincerity, and I know the personnel on the club are better than 30-52 (last season's record)."

Kennedy Has Own Energy Plan

CHICAGO (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, warning against playing "OPEC roulette," presented his own plan for energy independence Monday, calling for conservation and development of alternative energy sources.

"We must move as swiftly as possible to enhance the efficiency of our current energy use," the Massachuetts Democrat told 5,000 delegates to the Urban League's 69th annual conference.

The delegates also heard about inflation from outgoing Secretary of the Treasury W. Michael Blumenthal, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare-designate Patricia Roberts Harris, and Secretary of State Cyrus Vance.

Kennedy said his plan, which bore similarities to President Carter's proposals of a week ago, would help put "America squarely on the road to a more secure supply of energy in the future."

The plan, co-sponsored by Kennedy and Sen. John Durkin, D-N.H., will be presented to Congress next week, Kennedy said, adding that he supports Carter's program "in large measure."

However, he said, "we can do better than that."

Specifically, Kennedy said his program would expand national energy conservation efforts, provide incentives for increased oil exploration, mobilize the "free enterprise" system to develop alternative energy sources and provide protection for poor people and small businessmen who are hit hardest by skyrocketing energy costs.

Poor Americans, he said, have been hurt the most by the energy crisis. "They are the first to see their lights go dim, their table bare, their children sick, their homes grown cold because of the soaring costs of energy," Kennedy added.

Blumenthal, in perhaps his last address as a Cabinet member, agreed with Kennedy's view of the impact of the energy crisis including the oil policies of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries and said the United States must get inflation under control if it is going to deal effectively with social problems.

He said that "in this era, you need a lot more than slogans and righteousness to make social progress."

Blumenthal's resignation was requested and accepted last week as part of Carter's Cabinet shakeup. Blumenthal has said he will step aside when his designated successor, Federal Reserve Chairman G. William Miller, is confirmed by the Senate.

In a news conference after his speech, Blumenthal said Miller "will give the president, generally speaking, the same type of advice that I did."

Blumenthal described Miller as a close personal friend and added: "Our economic views are quite close.

"I think the president has chosen well," he added.

First Lady Rosalynn Carter defended her husband at the conference's opening luncheon Sunday, saying she was proud of the president's leadership and his contributions to black progress.

Two hours earlier, Urban League President Vernon Jordan had criticized Carter at a news conference. He gave the president passing marks on black issues, but said Carter's efforts were "not enough."

But later Monday, Mrs. Harris told the League that no president in U.S. history has a better record with blacks than Jimmy Carter. Mrs. Harris said, "We can be proud of the harvest of the Carter administration."

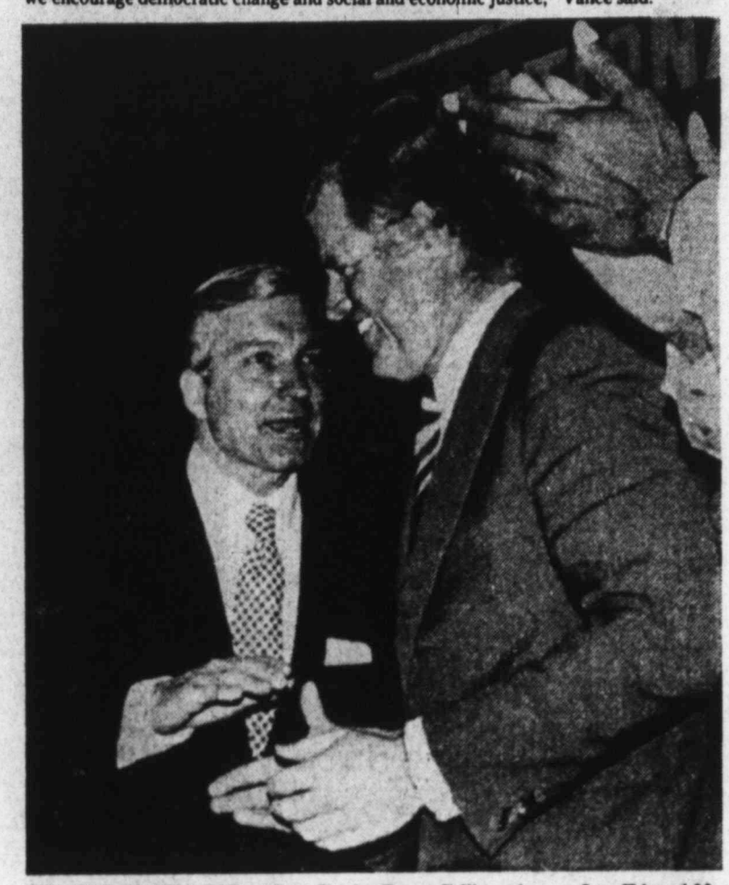
Mrs. Harris, who has aligned herself with the Urban League's goals, was warmly received by the largely black audience on the second day of the league's conference.

Mrs. Harris listed Carter's accomplishments toward achieving racial equality and boasted of some of her own. But, she said, much remains to be done, and she implored Urban League members to work with her to "stand as the voices of conscience to the American people."

She said Carter has a "solid record of affirmative action" in federal regulatory agencies, the military and the federal judiciary. Vance, also speaking to the League on Monday, defended the Carter administration's policies in the Third World, saying, "We can no more stop change than Canute could stop the waters."

In prepared remarks, Vance responded to critics who say that in countries like Iran, Rhodesia and Nicaragua, the United States has favored radicals, abandoned old allies and fomented revolutions by insisting on improvements in human rights practices.

"We promote our long-term interests — including our security interests — when we encourage democratic change and social and economic justice," Vance said.



SENATOR TO SENATOR — Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., welcomes Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., at the National Urban League's 69th annual convention, in Chicago, Monday. Kennedy said, "energy conservation is the most cost-effective method to reduce the nation's reliance on imported oil." (AP Laserphoto)

Firefighters Ready Assault Against Supertanker Blaze

PORT-OF-SPAIN, Trinidad (AP) — Oil-fed flames billowed from the midsection of one of two supertankers crippled in a collision, and firefighters flew in equipment, Monday, to attack the four-day-old blaze.

Experts said oil spills from the two Greek-operated vessels, Atlantic Empress and Aegean Captain, posed no threat to any of the Caribbean islands, although both vessels were still leaking oil from ruptured tanks.

No hope was held by search-and-rescue officials for 27 crewmen missing since the tankers collided during a rainstorm, Thursday night, north of Tobago.

Two salvage tugs were towing the burning Atlantic Empress farther out to sea and were about 45 miles northeast of Tobago. Chemicals to produce foam and special "light water" were being flown by helicopter to the tugboats, which have firefighting machinery aboard, officials here said.

Donald P. Heath, an oil pollution expert for Mobil Oil Corp., which owns the Empress' cargo, said the fire had not spread and was limited to the right side, fueled by oil leaking from at least four damaged tanks out of the vessel's total of 20 tanks.

He gave no forecast on when the fire might be extinguished. One oil-fire expert said the job would not be difficult, but he wanted "an over-kill supply" of material on hand when the effort was made.

Mobil officials estimated that less than 10 percent of the oil in the ship's damaged tanks had leaked out.

The Atlantic Empress and Aegean Captain were loaded with some 70 million gallons of fuel apiece when they collided. Fears that it would be the worst spill ever from a shipping accident subsided as damage assessments were made and both vessels remained afloat.

The cause of the collision has not been determined.

Plans are under way to unload the remaining cargo from both tankers into smaller vessels, but the fire aboard the Empress is receiving top priority. Heath said burning oil streamed about 1,000 feet behind the vessel.

Mobil officials said that after the fire was put out it probably would be two weeks before unloading operations begin, and they would take more than six weeks to complete.

The Aegean Captain is being towed stern-first toward northern Trinidad, and its location was given as about 17 miles from the coast. Officials of the twin-island nation of Trinidad and Tobago plan to examine it when it reaches a point 10 miles outside Chaguaramas port on the northwestern tip of Trinidad.

Although the tanker is too large to dock, the officials will determine if it can be brought closer to shore for unloading.

A skeleton crew has restarted the Aegean Captain's engines but only to provide internal power, the officials said. They said it was being towed backward to avoid pressure on the crumpled bow section. Jim Amana, a Mobil spokesman in Trinidad, said one of the Aegean Captain's 20 tanks broke open in the collision.

According to Michael J. Garnett, an adviser to a federation of tanker owners, a stain of oil stretched 30 miles behind the Empress. An irridescent gray sheen could be seen up to 50 miles from the ship and within five miles of Grenada.

Garnett said the sheen was formed by thin modules of oil and would cause no environmental damage even if it did wash ashore.

In Houston, the skipper of the Atlantic Empress was reported in serious condition at a hospital. He was one of the five seamen injured among the 48 survivors.

Capt. Pashalis Hadsapetrous was in an intensive-care unit for treatment of third-degree burns and lung burns, according to a spokesman at Hermann Hospital in the Texas Medical Center.

The skipper was one of the most severely injured in the accident that injured 51 others and is presumed to have killed 29.

Hadsapetrous, whose ship was en route to Beaumont, was flown to Houston on Saturday.

Sirhan Sirhan Set For Parole Effort

SOLEDAD, Calif. (AP) — Sirhan Sirhan, convicted assassin of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, has a date with the parole board Tuesday and is expected to ask that he be released from prison early.

Sirhan, who has been in prison since Kennedy's June 1968 shooting at Los Angeles' Ambassador Hotel, has a scheduled release date of May 1, 1985. Last month, an appeals court rejected his similar bid for early freedom, and a year ago the Community Release Board turned down his application for early parole.

Like other prisoners, Sirhan is entitled to a yearly hearing before the Community Release Board.

Attorney Godfrey Isaac, who has represented Sirhan previously, said he has not been summoned to appear with him Tuesday. Isaac said Sirhan is a model prisoner and would probably stand a good chance for early release were it not for his notoriety.

"He has a very good record in prison," Isaac said. "He's very well liked, and the people who know him say he is a very pleasant guy to talk to."

Isaac said Sirhan is kept in a high-security section of the prison.

"He's with a group of people separated for their own protection," Isaac said. "They put informers in there — people they're afraid might be attacked by other inmates."

At times since Sirhan's trial ended in 1969, conspiracy theorists have raised the possibility of a "second gun" in the Kennedy killing, but a lengthy investigation, which included the dismantling of the hotel pantry where Kennedy died, produced no definitive evidence.

Sirhan, a Palestinian refugee from Pasadena, has never denied that he killed Kennedy but says he cannot remember the actual shooting. Kennedy, a New York Democrat, was gunned down during his campaign for his party's presidential nomination.

Two years ago, two Los Angeles County supervisors visited the assassin in prison at his invitation.

Sirhan told them his memory of the murder was still "a blank" but suggested a return visit to the kitchen of the Ambassador Hotel might help him remember. The proposal was taken before a judge who refused, saying there was no evidence such a trip would jog Sirhan's memory.

Possibility Of Raising Monitor Studied

WASHINGTON (AP) — Researchers soon will begin a series of 50 dives to the water-entombed ironclad Monitor in an expedition that may determine if the famed Civil War vessel can be raised.

The mission — "the most important underwater archaeological expedition in this century in American waters" — will begin Aug. 1 off Cape Hatteras, N.C., the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration said Monday.

NOAA Administrator Richard Frank told a briefing that more than 30 scientists, divers and technicians will photograph the wreck, retrieve artifacts and test the ship's structural integrity.

"It is far too early for any decision to be made about what will eventually happen to the Monitor," Frank said.

"Even if it turns out that the ship can be raised, there still remain questions about whether there exists any sure method of preserving the wreck once it is exposed to the atmosphere," he continued, "or even if it should be raised at all."

The $265,000 mission is a joint undertaking by NOAA, the state of North Carolina and the Harbor Branch Foundation, a private, non-profit oceanographic research organization based in Fort Pierce, Fla.

Harbor Branch will contribute $200,000 to the expedition, with the remainder divided between NOAA and the North Carolina Department of Cultural Resources.

The U.S.S. Monitor is lying in 210 feet of water off Cape Hatteras, where she sank in a gale while under tow on Dec. 31, 1862. Her loss came only months after her classic battle with the Confederate ironclad, the C.S.S. Virginia, commonly called the Merrimack.

The seagoing tanks sailed into naval history on March 9, 1862, in the first battle between ironclads. Historians say this battle off Hampton Roads, Va., ended the era of wooden fighting ships.

Ironclads were armored ships that had most of their bulk underwater. These steam-driven vessels fought their wooden adversaries with cannon or by ramming them.

The Monitor and the Merrimack fought a four-hour running battle of cannon fire and ramming until both were heavily damaged. They then disengaged.

Since its discovery in 1973, the Monitor has been the object of scientific and public fascination. In 1975, the NOAA declared the site the nation's first national marine sanctuary.

Traffic Accident Frees Cloud Of Unhappy Bees

FLINTSTONE, Md. (AP) — Hundreds of thousands of bees were still swarming outside this Maryland panhandle town Monday following a weekend highway smashup that released a fuzzy yellow cloud on a stinging frenzy.

"We have the rest of them rounded up," said State Trooper Ronald Hare, who estimated 9 million bees escaped when a van slammed into a truck on western Maryland's U.S. 40 early Sunday.

"Figure five or six days, and we'll probably have 90 percent of the others in custody ... so to speak," Hare added.

Roy Able of Sydney, Fla., was hauling the bees in a tractor-trailer when an approaching van blew a tire and spun out of control, police said.

The crash occurred shortly before 7 a.m., but the bees swarmed above the highway the rest of the day, stinging motorists and police officers alike.

"They were stinging to beat the band," Hare said from the Cumberland barracks. "One of our troopers caught 10 stings and another caught eight. I swell up when I get stung. I stayed right behind this desk."

The roving swarms prompted startled motorists to frantically crank at their window knobs, usually after bees were already pelting their windshields.

"The worst thing was not knowing — for a few seconds — whether the car was full of bees. I really hate being around bees," said an unidentified motorist who came upon the scene more than six hours after the accident.

Troopers called on the services of John Lindner, a retired state apiary inspector, who with the help of volunteers tried to lure the bees into hives.

Extra hives were left alongside the highway and in nearby fields in hopes that more bees could be recovered over the next few days.

Able was taking the bees — valued at $30,000 — from Baltimore County to the Cumberland area, 30 miles west of the accident near the Allegany-Washington County Line.

Six people were injured in the crash, but only one was hospitalized.

State police said the accident occurred when an eastbound van driven by Timothy B. Geldmacher of Pasadena, Md., blew a tire, swerved off the right side of the highway, struck a guardrail, veered back onto the road and hit the tractor-trailer.

One of the passengers in the van, Harold McPherson, 29, of Pasadena, was hospitalized with cuts, bruises and multiple bee stings. He was reported in satisfactory condition.

Suspected Arson Cases Under Investigation Here

Police and fire department officials are investigating two suspected cases of arson which were reported earlier this month.

A fire which occurred July 3 gutted the home of Larry Adams of 118 Ave. V, causing an estimated $4,000 in damage. Police said Adams, a truck driver, was in Houston at the time of the blaze, and his wife was staying with a sister.

Reports indicate that no one was injured in the fire.

Authorities also are investigating a suspected arson case which hit Lubbock Community Hospital July 7.

The hospital manager reportedly told police that someone had called the hospital threatening to set fire to the building at 8:30 p.m. Police said the blaze occurred at 8:35 p.m.

Books valued at about $20 were damaged in the fire.
