COOLIDGE PUTS OKEH ON NAVY OIL RESERVES

President's Order Cancels Harding's Signature To Former Act

NAVY WILL CONTROL

Supervision Over Leases Is Taken From Interior Department

WASHINGTON, April 2. (AP)—President Coolidge has revoked the executive order issued by President Harding on May 31, 1921, under which Albert B. Fall as interior secretary negotiated the naval oil reserve leases with Edward L. Doheny and Harry F. Sinclair which led to both civil and criminal actions in federal courts.

The order of revocation was dated last March 17 and it was stated at the White House that it was issued in keeping with the decision of the United States supreme court revoking the contracts and leases made with Doheny covering the Elk Hills, Cal., reserve and oil tank storage at Pearl Harbor.

Navy Gets Control.

By this order jurisdiction over all of the reserves save that in Wyoming—the celebrated Teapot Dome—is left exclusively with the Navy department. The Wyoming reserve still is in dispute, with Sinclair appealing to the supreme court from a circuit court decision revoking the lease.

Both during the senate investigation and the hearings on the civil suits for the recovery of the reserves, President Harding's order was attacked as illegal because it in effect set aside an act of Congress placing jurisdiction in the Navy department.

In deciding the Doheny case, however, the supreme court did not pass judgment on that proposition. Justice Butler who read the decision declared the transaction evidenced by the contracts and leases with Doheny was not authorized by the act of June 4, 1920, under which Fall and Edwin Denby, as secretary of the navy, contended they had authority to revoke the time-honored policy of keeping a great naval petroleum supply in the ground.

Evidence before the senate oil committee was that the executive order which Harding signed was drawn in the Interior department and the charge was that the plan of leasing the reserves originated with Fall, who accepted $100,000 from Doheny during the negotiations covering the Elk Hills reserve.

The executive order was approved at the Navy department and it was taken to the White House for Harding's signature by Theodore Roosevelt, then assistant secretary of the navy.

History of Leases.

After the order was signed, negotiations for the leasing of the two principal naval reserves were entered into, first with Doheny's company and later with Harry F. Sinclair's Mammoth Oil company. They extended over a period of more than a year and in holding that the Doheny lease and contracts were tainted with fraud, the supreme court cited the secrecy which attended their negotiation.

Fall has faced one jury with Doheny on a charge of criminal conspiracy. Both were acquitted, but the former interior secretary is charged jointly with Sinclair with criminal conspiracy in connection with the Teapot Dome leases. That case is set for trial in the District of Columbia supreme court on April 25.

Tiny Tot Forced To Stand All Night In Schoolroom Corner As Penalty

PHILADELPHIA, April 2. (AP)—During the long hours of last night a little girl, Helen Wilkus, aged 7, stood in a corner in a schoolroom, her face turned obediently to the wall. Throughout the night, too, her parents searched for her, fearing for her safety when she did not return from school.

Neighbors and police joined in the search, playmates were questioned, but there was no trace of Helen.

Today a sister went to the sewing room in St. Casimir's parochial school. There were no classes today and Saturday's quiet prevailed. A stifled sob caught the sister's ear and she could scarcely believe her eyes when she rested on a weary little figure in a corner.

Helen sobbed out her story in the sister's arms.

"I was waiting for my sister Eva to take me home," Helen said. "Some boys came down the hall, pushed me into the room and told me I must stand in the corner for punishment. They told me not to dare leave the corner."

Frightened but obedient, Helen had remained in the corner all night. She was almost afraid to cry, she said.

"It was awfully dark and lonesome," the little girl said, "and I wanted mother. Then the light came and I heard the sparrows and I wasn't so scared. I sat down then, but I stood up again when I got rested."

Two charges of robbery with firearms growing out of the alleged holdup of the Gulf Refining company station at Eighth and Brook streets here on the night of March 9 when one filling station employe was injured in a gun battle between Charley Hinson and an alleged bandit.

The two indictments returned Saturday by the Fort Worth grand jury.

Carter is in a single cell in the Wichita county jail with bullet wounds in his right shoulder and side.

Carter's attorneys have stated that it depended on whether or not the local charges were pushed as to whether the Dallas verdict would be contested.

PROTEST NOTE SENT

Quick Punishment Of Men Who Killed Wilkins Is Demanded

By Universal Service.

MEXICO CITY, April 2.—The immediate punishment of the assassins who killed Edgar M. Wilkins of Savannah, Ga., was demanded today in a strong note sent by American Ambassador Sheffield to the foreign office.

Wilkins was kidnaped last Sunday. He was held for ransom and subsequently killed by his captors.

The American's body was found yesterday on El Colli Hill, near Guadelajara.

The Mexican authorities are doing all they can to run down the rebel band believed to be guilty of the murder. This band is reported to be in the neighborhood of Severiano Canales.

Private advices from Guadelajara assert that a ransom of 40,000 pesos was demanded. This is unconfirmed.

Wilkins, 55 years of age, was the chief of the electro-mechanical department of the Chapala Electric company.

MURDER OF AMERICAN COMPLICATES SITUATION.

WASHINGTON, April 2. (AP)—Murder of Edgar M. Wilkins, American mining engineer, by Mexican bandits, at a time when the killing last September of another American, Jacob Rosenthal, still is an unsettled diplomatic case, has given a new twist to the already disturbed relations between the United States and Mexico.

Official report to the State department today from Consul Dwyre at Guadalajara that Wilkins' body had been found was followed immediately by instructions to Ambassador Sheffield at Mexico City to make urgent representations concerning the murder to the foreign office. The note delivered by the ambassador supplemented previous representations made at the time of the kidnapping of the engineer on March 27.

Dwyre reported that Wilkins had been dead four days, having apparently been slain when the bandits, hard pressed by federal troops, became convinced they would not collect the 20,000 pesos ransom they demanded. At the time of his capture near Guadalajara, Wilkins, formerly a resident of Savannah, Ga., was with his ten-year-old son. The son was released by the bandits to obtain the ransom money.

Rosenthal was slain on Sept. 15 near Cuernavaca while his bandit captors were in flight before federal troops. Several bandits were killed and others captured. Rosenthal, a merchant, also had been held for 20,000 pesos ransom.

PLAN MILITARY ROAD ALONG TEXAS BORDER.

LAREDO, April 2. (AP)—A proposal to construct a military highway along the Mexican-Texas border from Del Rio to Brownsville is to be considered at a meeting of many important interests called here for April 16.

The movement has been started by the South Texas Chamber of Commerce which has enlisted the interest of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce and expects to solicit other organizations in New Mexico, Arizona and California.

The men back of the movement hope to see it grow into a great national highway along the entire border from Brownsville through El Paso to California, according to Ray Leeman, general manager of the South Texas chamber.

Army Men Participate

Representatives of the military establishment of the United States are to attend the meeting together with high officials of the internal revenue and customs department. Mr. Leeman said. Major General Ernest Hinds, commanding general of the eight corps area with headquarters at San Antonio will detail a number of officers to attend.

Chambers of commerce of Del Rio, Eagle Pass, Rio Grande City, Laredo and all the lower Rio Grande valley are to join in the meeting. County Judges of the border counties also are expected.

A survey of this proposed highway from Del Rio to Brownsville was made in 1915 at the time General Frederick Funston was in command on the border and there is in existence a military map of the route made by Funston's engineers. A preliminary log of the road from Laredo to Brownsville has been made by Charles Mumm, manager of the Laredo Chamber of Commerce.

West Texas to Aid

Mr. Leeman said that Homer D. Wade, manager of the West Texas chamber, had assured him of the co-operation of his organization when the time comes to extend the highway from Del Rio northwest through El Paso.

It is probable that plans will contemplate an attempt to secure federal financial aid.

Trans-Atlantic Plane At San Antonio

SAN ANTONIO, April 2. (AP)—Commander Francesco de Pinedo, Italian airman, who is touring four continents on a 20,000-mile aerial journey, waved good-bye to the Gulf of Mexico today and completed his first dry land hop in the United States when he flew from Galveston to San Antonio.

His gigantic twin-motored monoplane, which is equipped to land on nothing but water, made the 250-mile journey without mishap and is in shape to speed away at 4:30 o'clock tomorrow morning for Hot Springs, N. Mex., where it will land on the waters impounded by Elephant Butte dam.

Commander de Pinedo turned his plane to the west early this morning at New Orleans, his first stop in the United States, and flew approximately 300 miles along the Gulf, arriving at Galveston shortly before 11 o'clock. After three hours spent in dining and tuning his plane he took off for San Antonio at 1:41 p. m. and flew almost due west until he crossed the city and came to rest on the waters of Medina lake, 30 miles away.

A flight of five army planes met the flier near the outskirts of the city and formed an escort for him until he had located the lake, which is hidden among deep hills. After circling the lake once the

CANDIDATES IN COUNCIL RACE REVIEW ISSUES

Voters Told of Platforms On Eve of City Election Tuesday

SHEP READS CHARTER

Office Seekers Confident Of Victory in Balloting This Week

The political pot in Wichita Falls is starting to boil near the rim as Tuesday election day, draws near. Statements made by the candidates and their friends are being discussed by voters in street corner arguments and by wives and husbands across the supper table.

Selection of a chief of police is vested in the city council by the city charter, Mayor R. E. Shepherd said Saturday.

Numerous requests made of Mayor Shepherd for information led to the statement made Saturday by the mayor.

All Make Statements.

"The charter sets out," said the mayor, "that the fire and police chiefs shall be recommended to the council for appointment. Until the appointment is made by the council the office remains vacant."

In a symposium taken Saturday night by The Record-News, all of the candidates made statements.

John T. Young, candidate for police and fire commissioner, expressed confidence in his election, placing his vote at between 1,500 and 2,000, enough to insure victory.

"Economy is the great issue in this campaign," said Mr. Young. "If elected, I hope to eliminate many leaks in the police and fire department, and to place the boys in both departments on an eight-hour day. It is a shame that they must work 12 hours. I will recommend a police chief who will be elected only with the approval of the city council, and as usual, my preference in filling any city positions is to secure men who make their homes here, and are interested in the welfare and growth of Wichita Falls."

Queisser Cites Record.

Frank Queisser, incumbent, candidate for fire and police commissioner, said: "I am running on my record. During my tenure of office there has been a decrease of 30 per cent in Wichita Falls fire premiums. The Wichita Falls police department has been complimented by out of town commissioners and police chiefs on its efficiency and there has been co-operation between the police department and sheriff's office in the enforcement of the law. I am going to continue my campaign, as I started, in a clean, ethical manner."

Roy E. Carter, candidate for fire and police commissioner, said: "I am making my campaign on the issue that I am a young man and have the energy needed for a fire and police commissioner. I believe that material changes are necessary in the personnel of the police department."

Tom R. Wynn, candidate for fire and police commissioner, said: "If I am elected fire and police commissioner I will curtail the expenses of the two departments. I will make changes in the personnel of the departments which will be for the benefit of Wichita Falls. No man will be employed in the fire and police departments who are not citizens of Wichita Falls and have a poll tax receipt."

"Common Sense" Hi: Plank.

J. G. Cowart, candidate for fire and police commissioner, said: "I am running on a platform of economy and common sense. If I am elected every man, woman and

WICHITA FALLS WOMAN HURT

Mrs. Margaret Haynes In Auto Accident

MINERAL WELLS, April 2. (AP) Mrs. Margaret Noble Haynes, Wichita Falls, seriously injured in the automobile accident near here last night in which Mrs. Elizabeth Bradford May, Dallas, was killed, was resting well in a hospital here tonight. Tom Hogg, son of former Governor James Stephen Hogg and a third member of the party, returned to his home at San Antonio today. He was suffering from bruises and shock.

The three were returning to Mineral Wells after an automobile ride when blinding lights on another automobile caused their car to swerve from the road and strike the guard railing on a bridge over the Brazos river. They had attended the dance here at which Louis Lipsitz, Dallas merchant, dropped dead.

A part of the wooden railing on the bridge crashed through the windshield of the smashed automobile and struck Mrs. May in the head, Hogg said. She died here this morning. Mrs. May was the wife of D. J. May, Dallas construction engineer while Mrs. Haynes was the daughter of a prominent oil operator of Wichita Falls.

Hogg denied first reports of the accident which were to the effect that he was driving the automobile at the time of the crash. Mrs. Haynes was the driver, he said.

Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Noble Sr., parents of Mrs. Margaret Noble Haynes, and Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Noble Jr., brother and sister-in-law of Mrs. Haynes, went Saturday to Mineral Wells after word was received here of Mrs. Haynes' injury. Mrs. Haynes has been visiting friends in Mineral Wells.

Missing Outlaws Hidden On Canadian River Say Police Officers

RANGERS DUE TODAY

Wichita Falls Folk Told To Be On Guard For Floaters Here

BORGER, April 2. (AP)—Police here today shot several volleys into an empty shack which they believed sheltered Ray Terrell and Mathew Kimes sought for the killing yesterday of Deputy Sheriffs Pat Kenyon and Elmer Terry.

The officers rushed the shack and broke in the door, but found it empty. They had been told that the two Oklahoma bandits were there.

It is thought that the men are in hiding in the wild country near Borger and the police have orders to shoot to kill.

All available officers were combing the brakes around here and were searching the underworld section. The automobile used by the men who robbed the First National bank of Pampa Thursday was found tody near Electric City. Currency wrappers were in the bottom of the machine.

Hugh Walker, Ed Bailey and Whitey Walker, all under charges in connection with the shooting, were held in-communicado in the county jail.

TEN RANGERS ON WAY TO BORGER TERRITORY

BORGER, April 2. (AP)—Ten state rangers ordered to Borger by Governor Dan Moody to stay "until the lawless element unconditionally surrenders" were nearing this oil city tonight and with their approach city and county peace officers felt more secure.

The rangers were called after the killing of two deputy sheriffs on the highway near here Friday and the robbery of the First National bank at Pampa Thursday, both crimes believed to have been committed by the same men.

A crowd formed near the jail last night at Stinnett where three men are under arrest in connection with the killing of the deputy sheriffs, and Sheriff Owenby called all available officers to protect the jail. There was no trouble and the situation had quieted down today.

Seven of the rangers left Austin today it was reported. They are to be in command of Captain Tom Hickman and Captain Frank Hamer. Hickman several months ago with two other men shot and killed two bank robbers as they were dashing from a bank with loot.

Citizens of this county asked the governor to declare martial law, but Moody declined to call out the militia, believing the rangers can take care of the situation.

Captain Hamer and six other rangers left Austin today but since they have a journey of almost 600 miles and several train changes they were not expected until late tonight or tomorrow.

RESIDENTS WARNED TO GUARD HOMES.

A warning to Wichita Falls citizens to take precautions against the activity of a lawless element was issued Saturday by Sheriff W. G. Bralley who stated that it was likely that many of the criminals now in Borger, Pampa, Stinnett and other points of the Panhandle oil fields would come this way in the next few days.

Officers on Watch.

The ordering of rangers into the area adjacent to the great oil fields will result in at least a partial exodus of criminals there, the sheriff declared. It is only reasonable to expect that many of them will make their way to Wichita Falls, according to Sheriff Bralley.

It is a known fact that some of the nation's most notorious bad men are now in the oil region of the Panhandle and it has been demonstrated within the past few days that they stop at almost nothing to gain their ends, Sheriff Bralley continued.

Notorious Criminals

"It is only fair that I warn citizens in this vicinity to take extra means of precaution to protect their homes and property. Care should be taken that automobiles are well locked before being left for any length of time and necessary steps should be taken to prevent any possible burglaries and robberies," the sheriff declared.

"It is likely that there will be men in Wichita Falls within the next few days who would burglarize homes and stores, commit highway robberies and automobile thefts."

The sheriff's department has been given special instructions regarding a possible influx of outlaws and every means is to be exercised to curb their activities in Wichita county, the sheriff stated.

WIFE OF BANDIT SUSPECT TAKEN INTO CUSTODY.

AMARILLO, April 2. (AP)—Mrs. Hugh Walker, wife of one of the trio held in the jail at Stinnett in connection with the slaying of two Borger deputy sheriffs early Friday was taken into custody at her home in Borger today as the latest development in the crime wave terrorizing the oil field district. She is being held for questioning as to her knowledge of possible

City and County Trustees Named In Election; Vote Shows Heavy Increase

An increase of 600 per cent in the number of ballots cast for Wichita Falls school trustees in the election held Saturday over the number cast in the last election was disclosed when W. W. Brown, secretary of the board of education, announced Saturday night that the vote totaled 395. In 1925 the ballots numbered 67.

Four candidates for four places were balloted upon by Wichita Falls voters. Present members of the board of education, W. B. Chauncey, Mrs. L. R. Buchanan, Carter McGregor and C. H. Clark, were candidates, without opposition, for re-election.

Carter McGregor received the largest vote, ballots cast for him totaled 395. W. B. Chauncey received 389; Mrs. Buchanan, 389; C. H. Clark, 389. Twenty-three voters "wrote in" the name of Mrs. P. B. Roberts and two the name of P. B. Roberts.

CHINESE FIRE ON U. S. AGENTS

Crisis With Chinese Over Attacks On Americans

WASHINGTON, April 2. (AP)—An emphatic reiteration of the charge that nationalist soldiers deliberately and with intent to kill fired on British, Japanese and American consuls, "knowing them to be such," during the Nanking outrages, was received by the state department today from Consul John K. Davis, who is still at Nanking aboard a warship.

The statement was designed by Consul Davis as a reply to the publication in Nanking of one by Eugene Chen, Cantonese foreign minister, alleging that the attacks on foreigners at Nanking were the work of "reactionaries" or other than nationalist troops.

"All three consulates were deliberately looted and although this was known by nationalist officers, no effective measures were taken to afford protection up to the time of the naval barrage to rescue the party that had taken shelter in the Standard Oil company's houses," the Davis report said.

From all the evidence at hand, the consul concluded: ;

"It is proven that the outrages were planned and could not possibly have been an accidental getting out of hand of a few troops.

"Three civilian Chinese were killed by the barrage, according to information received from a wide range of disinterested sources," Davis reported. "If any military persons were killed at all they must have been connected with the force attacking the Standard Oil company's house.

"Seven people were killed in cold blood by soldiers in the uniform of the nationalist army and 13 American houses were burned."

DANGER OF CHINESE ATTACK MINIMIZED.

By Universal Service.

SHANGHAI, April 2.—General Duncan, commander of the British forces, and Admiral Bagre, commanding the 10th Squadron, French, tonight issued a joint statement denying reports that the safety of the French concession was doubted and that co-ordination measures were being taken.

The U. S. S., Marbelhead, Cincinnati and Richmond are reported to have arrived off Woosung.

From Hankow comes a report that the news of Chiang Kai Shek's dismissal is strengthened by unusual activity among Chiang Kai Shek's men, who are rounding up the radicals and Guerillas, disarming and detaining hundreds, and enforcing martial law strictly at Chapeai, Antao and Hangchow.

Political observers at Shanghai are confident that Chiang Kai Shek's status makes imminent a crisis and forecast possible serious outbreaks in the Chinese areas between Chiang Kai Shek's forces and other nationalist troops.

The Hangchow situation is indicated as being more serious. Closing of the Hangchow labor union, which resulted in a pitched battle in which eight laborites were killed, seventy wounded and hundreds arrested.

CLASH WITH CHINESE IMPENDS OVER RIOTS

WASHINGTON, April 2. (AP)—An impending clash with nationalist authorities in China over responsibility for the Nanking anti-foreign outrages was indicated tonight when the state department made public "conclusions" of Consul John K. Davis at Nanking, holding nationalist military commanders directly accountable for what happened.

Davis said all evidence showed the attackers of foreigners were nationalist troops and the attacks clearly had been planned and carried out under orders.

Chen Denies Blame

A statement by Eugene Chen, nationalist foreign minister, published in Nanking and which denied participation of nationalist troops in the attack prompted publication of the Davis report. Chen attributed the outrages to "reactionary" counter revolutionists and "remnants" of the defeated northern forces from which the city had been taken by the nationalists. He protested the bombardment by British and American warcraft and declared hundreds of Chinese had been killed by foreign naval guns.

Davis said seven persons were "killed in cold blood by soldiers in the uniform of the nationalist army." Information from a wide range of disinterested sources, he added, showed only three Chinese civilians had been killed in the naval bombardment and that Chinese military casualties could only have been among the forces attacking foreigners.

"The outrages were committed by the same troops which were engaged in disarming the remnants of the northern armies and they carried on their conversations in the dialects of Canton, Kiangsi and Honan provinces (all nationalist territory)," Consul Davis said. "These soldiers bore no resemblance whatever to northern soldiers and it is absolutely impossible for them to have been agents of the northerners."

"It is proven the outrages were planned and could not possibly have been the accidental getting out of hand of a few troops."

The complete secrecy with which Secretary Kellogg is surrounding his study of the Nanking outbreak and formulation of American policy in that regard is itself significant of the seriousness of the situation. The state department preserved silence even in the face of London disclosures that there had been official exchanges with Washington and that the London government was pressing for a vigorous and united stand by the powers involved.

One Killed, Two Injured When Auto Tumbles Into Ditch Near Hamlin

Special to The Record News.

HAMLIN, April 2.—A fatal car accident occurred about one mile south of Hamlin at about 7 o'clock tonight in which Hub Holden of Fride, Texas, was instantly killed and an unidentified woman seriously if not fatally injured, she being in an unconscious condition.

R. V. Colvert of Lamesa, it is said, was driving the car, a big Buick six touring which turned over into a ditch. Colvert is badly injured and is unable to give anything but an incoherent account of the accident.

From the appearance of the car and the locality of the wreck it seems to have been caused by a blowout on the left rear wheel.

A passing autoist saw the accident and brought injured into the city for medical attention. Later the dead man was taken to the Barrow undertaking parlors.

MINE EXPLOSION KILLS FOUR MEN

Gas Blast in Shaft, 400 In Narrow Escape

COKEBURG, Pa., April 2. (AP)—A coal dust explosion in Ellsworth colleries mine No. 93, claimed the lives of six miners, but 400 others at work in the underground tunnels, escaped uninjured to the surface by way of the main shaft. Five other workers were burned, but will recover. The mine, one of the largest shaft operations in Washington county, was known until recently as No. 53, of the Bethlehem Mines corporation, subsidiary of the Bethlehem Steel company.

The suspension of mining yesterday in the central competitive did not effect the Cokeburg mine, which is non-union. The regular force went to work this morning, 411 men.

In a room off the main heading, some miners tapped in a shot of dynamite to loosen the coal. Just as they had finished preparing the shot, a rock tumbled down from the roof, setting the explosives off. The miners were unprepared and the explosion shot out into the entry, setting off coal dust.

The entire mine had been insulated thoroughly with rock dust and the explosion did not spread beyond the entry. Eleven miners at work nearby, were knocked out by the blast. Six of these succumbed to the deadly after-damp before rescuers found them. Five others, burned slightly, were rescued.

FORD'S INJURY AN ACCIDENT

By Universal Service.

DETROIT, Mich., April 2.—The driver of the automobile which ran Henry Ford into the ditch and narrowly missed killing him last Sunday night is known, it was announced here this afternoon. The identity of the man is being kept secret by Harry M. Bennett, chief of the Ford investigators. There will be no prosecution, it was added.

Meanwhile, Henry Ford continued to improve at his Dearborn estate. Ford was moved thither secretly from the Henry Ford hospital Thursday night.

Prosecuting Attorney Robert M. Toms of Wayne county conferred today with Bennett. At the close of the parley, which dealt with the mishap to Ford, Mr. Toms said:

"Mr. Bennett reported to me that he now knows the affair was an accident. He gave me to understand that he knows who it was who struck Mr. Ford's coupe and that no action will be taken concerning the matter. Under these circumstances the prosecuting attorney regards the matter as officially closed."

Bennett or his aides would add nothing to the statement of the prosecutor.

The original theory of the Ford people had been that an attempt has been made to kill Mr. Ford. Now the same persons who subscribed to that theory are taking every opportunity to decry it.

Despite the official termination of the affair, said to have been ordered by Mr. Ford himself, the Dearborn estate is more heavily guarded than usual and it is said that Mrs. Ford has exacted a promise from her husband that he will submit to a guard in his future ventures to and from his estate.

Inferences drawn by certain persons that Mr. Ford's accident might have something to do with his scheduled appearance in the Aaron Sapiro libel suit for $1,000,000, now being tried here, have displeased the motor magnate.

It is insisted on Mr. Ford's behalf that he has no disposition whatever to evade testifying and will appear when called.

Smith Makes Bus Inquiry

Rail Commission Member Surveys Conditions

By Universal Service.

AUSTIN, April 2.—Completing a survey of motor bus transportation in Texas, Railroad Commissioner Lon A. Smith declared today that this means of transporting freight and passengers is rapidly expanding and within a short time it will be possible to reach every section of the state. Records disclose since advent of motor bus transportation there has been a steady decline in passenger earnings of the Texas railroads.

The new law, placing motor bus transporation under the jurisdiction of the railroad commission and declaring them to be common carriers, becomes effective June 14 which prompted the survey to be made.

"There are approximately 25 bus terminals in the state, from which 105 bus lines operate; and a thorough and complete check will no doubt increase the number of terminals to at least 50, and the number of lines to 150," Commissioner Smith said. "Among the cities maintaining the larger terminals are Austin, San Antonio, Waco, Houston, Amarillo, Lubbock, Wichita Falls, Sweetwater, San Angelo, Fort Worth, Dallas, Breckenridge, Greenville, Paris and Mission. There are approximately 2,000 intercity busses operating in Texas at this time."

"The number of miles traveled by the busses is readily surprising," he continued. "In West Texas there is an association of bus men, having a membership of 35, whose total daily bus mileage is 17,000 miles, with an equipment investment of over $400,000. There is a total of 5712 bus miles traveled each day between Austin and San Antonio, the Union Bus line covering 3024 miles and the Red Ball 2688 miles.

"The Union Bus lines company of San Antonio has apparently the largest bus mileage per day, 12,285 miles the Union lines run from San Antonio to San Angelo, Austin, Temple, west to Del Rio and Eagle Pass, south to Laredo and Mission, Laredo to Corpus Christi, and many shorter intermediate routes."

Texas Cheers Spanish Flier

Italian dropped to the surface while the other machines sought nearby landing fields.

A large delegation of high army officers, prominent Italians and chamber of commerce officials drew alongside the plane as it landed and accompanied it to the wharf where hundreds of spectators had gathered to see the arrival.

Commander de Pinedo leaped to the wharf clad in a natty golfing outfit. He refused to devote much of his attention to the spectators and welcoming committee until he had given his plane a thorough inspection and superintended refueling and servicing operations. It was more than an hour before he was satisfied with the condition of his ship and started for San Antonio where he attended a banquet in his honor given by the city, Italian societies and army officers.

GALVESTON, April 2.(AP)—Commander Francesco de Pinedo, Italian aviator, when he left Galveston this afternoon after a stay of three hours carried with him a diamond studded solid gold medal valued at $700, which was presented to him by the Italian colony of this city and was speeded westward on his way to San Antonio with the good wishes of hundreds of men and women of Italian descent who had given him tumultous greeting upon his arrival from New Orleans during the forenoon.

Elation over his arrival was mingled with regret that his engagement prevented participation in an elaborate banquet which had been arranged for tonight.

He was escorted from the revenue cutter Comanche, which brought him from his hydroplane to the wharf by a guard of United States soldiers.

Honors Texas Heroes

The high point in his brief stay was reached when he placed a wreath at the foot of a massive monument erected to Texas heroes by the late Henry Rosenberg at Broadway and 25th street. A great crowd had gathered at the shaft to greet him. Preceded by a guard of honor from the American Legion the cavalcade of automobiles bearing De Pinedo moved slowly through the streets to the point where the ceremony was to take place. Reaching the monument De Pinedo, John Darrouzet, Galveston attorney; Chevalier Nicolini, former Italian consul here, an American former soldier and an Italian in the garb of the Italian army, mounted the steps. Immediately De Pinedo was handed a large wreath which he reverently placed at the base of the monument. Mr. Darrouzet introduced the aviator "not only as an outstanding citizen of Italy, but of the world." Meanwhile the flags of the United States and Italy had been unfurled and the United States soldier stood at attention while Mr. Nicolini pinned on De Pinedo's breast the medal.

City and County Trustees Named

dicated that Lee Prescott had been elected county trustee from commissioners' precinct No. 2 by a heavy majority over J. D. Cooper, his only opponent. In the Cashion district Prescott received 89 votes and Cooper 5. Commissioners' precinct No. 2 is composed of the Bacon, Evert and Cashion schools districts, the latter's vote being more than double that of the other two districts together.

J. Tom Haynes, candidate for county trustee-at-large, and D. E. Hooks, candidate for county trustee from commissioner's precinct No. 3, were elected without opposition.

Unofficial returns in the district elections held in City View, Cashion, Valley View and Barwise were received by The Record-News by telephone Saturday night. Returns from other districts in the county were inaccessible due to lack of telephone communication.

In the City View district, R. T. Holman was elected with a vote of 51 over Connie E. Nolan, 28. Eleven candidates for seven places were balloted upon in the Cashion district; the first seven named were elected: W. A. Holly, 90 votes; D. E. Underwood, 89; E. W. Marrs, 86; G. W. Bailey, 86; S. P. Turner, 86; M. W. Wolfe, 54; J. H. Shaw, 53; A. L. Gentry, 52; C. H. Vines, 50; J. C. Randall, 17 and J. E. Holly, 16.

There were three candidates for two places in the Valley View district. W. L. Hodges, with a vote of 19 and P. C. Jones, who received 12 votes were elected. J. D. Childers received eight votes. Dan Payton, W. E. Palmer and C. E. Taylor were elected trustees in the Barwise district; other candidates were Cap Carter and D. G. Winkler.

Official returns of the county elections will be received during the early part of the week by Burl Bryant, county superintendent of schools.

Homes of Wichita Falls Asked To Care For 50,000 Convention Visitors

In preparation for the entertainment of the thousands expected here for the ninth annual convention of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, May 16 and 17, people of Wichita Falls will be asked to throw open the doors of their homes. This request will be issued at an early date by A. L. Huey, chairman of the housing committee of the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce. Indications are, from reports received from all sections, that the convention will be the largest attended in the history of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce. This would mean at least 50,000 visitors.

Sunday Program

Manager Homer D. Wade of the West Texas organization is expected in Wichita Falls Monday morning and will meet with the respective chairmen to consider further detailed plans for the convention. The committees are actively at work and it is expected all will be in readiness for the convention several days prior to May 16. Although the convention proper will be for only two days, a program in keeping with the day is being arranged for Sunday, May 15, "Business and Religion," will be the subject of addresses in the pulpits of the city Sunday morning, while in the afternoon a patriotic address by Morris Sheppard, senior United States senator from Texas, will be one of the outstanding features. Sunday evening will be the big choral contest in which college and high school glee clubs and church choirs will participate. Mayor R. E. Shepherd is chairman of the special committee having this feature in charge and indications are there will be at least 50 entrants.

Parade Monday

The convention proper will open Monday morning when it is expected three governors will be here to make 10-minute addresses. Governor Moody of Texas has already accepted an invitation to be present. Governor Johnston of Oklahoma has tentatively accepted while Governor Dillon has signified that it possible he will be here. Following this another feature will be an address by Robert Ellis, who will then be president of the United States Chamber of Commerce. Then will come the business session of the organization. In the afternoon the feature will be the annual convention parade, in which it is expected about 30 cities and towns will come to represent some foreign nation. This promises to be the greatest spectacle of the kind ever presented at a convention. It will be full of features. Many cities are coming prepared to put comedy into their work. Estelline, representing Ceylon, plans to dispense iced tea during the convention, while other cities representing some foreign power will put on features common or characteristic of the country represented. Following this will be the baseball game between Wichita Falls and Fort Worth of the Texas league. At night the big event of presenting the sponsors will take place. This will occur in front of the grand stand at Spudder park. Each sponsor is expected to wear a costume of some foreign country and this will in all likelihood make this feature one long to be remembered. Elaborate plans for this presentation program are being made, under direction of Mrs. Ben G. Oneal, chairman of the ladies committee. This presentation ceremony will be followed by the Queen's ball and other features. The program, therefore, will not be concluded until the early hours of the morning.

Tuesday's program will likewise be full of events. James J. Davis, secretary of labor in President Coolidge's cabinet, will be the principal speaker. On this day will also be one of the most important business sessions of the meeting. Various entertainment features will be provided for the afternoon and at night the final session with the selection of the next meeting place.

Manager Wade is now preparing the program in all its details and this will be announced at an early date. It promises to be one of the best programs ever arranged for this great event.

Candidates In Council Race

child will receive a "square deal."

J. H. Patton, incumbent, candidate for park and sanitary commissioner, said: "I am confident of being elected—I have received encouragement in all sections of the city. I am running on my past record which includes the obtaining of many parks for the city during my administration and the construction of many miles of sewer lines."

Economy Urged.

A. W. King, candidate for park and sanitary commissioner, said: "If I am elected I will be open-minded on all matters that come before the city council for action. I believe that the same courtesy and efficiency displayed by a man in private life should prevail in his relations with the public. I will operate the department on an economical basis and administer it to the best of my ability."

Ollie Reeves, candidate for sanitary and park commissioner, said: "I am an experienced man in sanitary work and by being able to examine the work of the men in the sanitary department I will be able to make suggestions which will cut down the cost of maintaining the department. Sanitary construction is more complicated than park maintenance and as I am a plumber I believe the best interests of the people of Wichita Falls would be served in electing me to the office."

Jones Expresses Appreciation.

Oral Jones, incumbent and candidate for re-election as finance commissioner without opposition, said:

"I thank the people of Wichita Falls for the co-operation they have given me in the past and I promise to continue to use my best efforts in the maintenance of the finance department."

More than 30 delegates are expected at the meeting here. Among the guests of honor will be District Governor Fred Newman of Greenville, and Mark McGee of Electra, deputy district governor. Delegates will be present from all clubs in this district. Directors of the club Saturday announced the banquet in honor of the convention visitors.

Efforts were being made today to obtain the release of Hugh Walker, "Whitey" Walker and Ed Bailey, on bond, but a demand for a preliminary hearing was denied by Borger authorities. Attorneys for the three men were said to be enroute to Amarillo to appear before the district court in an effort to obtain release of the men on a habeas corpus writ. Sheriff Joe Ownby of Hutchinson county averted possible violence at the Stinnett jail last night when he maintained a strong guard around the building until midnight.

TERRILL-KIMES GANG HAS SINISTER RECORD

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., April 2. (AP)—The Terrill-Kimes gang, which officials believe is responsible for the robbery of a bank at Pampa, Texas, and the slaying of two Hutchinson county Texas deputy sheriffs, although draped with a sinister record, is of recent origin. It has been so named for Matthew Kimes, escaped murderer and bank robber and Ray Terrill, known as "the most escaped convict in Oklahoma," against whom 19 warrants charging everything from train robbery and bank robbery to postoffice robbery are said to be pending. Terrill is said to have been a member of the Al Spencer outlaw band.

Terrill and Kimes, state authorities believe, united forces soon after Kimes' release last summer by confederates from the Sallisaw, Okla., jail where he was held pending commitment to the state penitentiary following conviction with his brother, George of the murder of Perry Chuculate, a depuuty sheriff near Beggs, Okla. Employes in a Sapulpa bank, robbed of $40,000 by four men last January 10, identified Terrill and Kimes from photographs. Kimes, they said, directed the robbery.

Terrill subsequently was arrested at Carterville, Mo., in connection with a safe robbery at Jasper, Mo. He escaped from an automobile in which he was being returned to Oklahoma to serve a 20-year sentence for a bank robbery at Pawnee, Okla. Terrill's wife was arrested several weeks ago in Oklahoma City. Jewelry in her possession was identified by a jeweler of Temple, Texas, as having been stolen from his store. She was returned there to face a charge of complicity in the robbery.

George Kimes recently was shot and wounded when he attempted to escape from the state prison at McAlester where he was sent to serve a 25-year sentence in connection with Chuculate's slaying. Officers expressed belief his brother had arranged to aid in the frustrated escape.

HILLSBORO, April 2. (AP)—Hillsboro was on guard tonight. A telegram which came Saturday to Sheriff Simmons from Oklahoma, warning him that an attempt would be made to free Mrs. Ray Terrill, wife of the much wanted Ray Terrill, Borger bandit, resulted in the swearing in of a force of extra deputies and the installation of a small arsenal in the Hill county jail.

"They have got me out of jail three times," Mrs. Terrill is quoted as saying, "and I am happy as I can be because I know they will do it again down here."

The telegram warning Sheriff Simmons came from Oklahoma officers, who were tipped off by prisoners in the Oklahoma City jail, who heard other prisoners connected with the Terrill-Kimes gang discussing the plot.

Mrs. Terrill was arrested in Oklahoma City several weeks ago and brought back to Texas, where jewelry found in her possession was identified as part of the loot taken in raids on Hillsboro and Temple jewelry stores. Her husband is known as one of the most desperate bandits who have operated in Oklahoma in recent years, he having transferred his field of activities to Texas when the Oklahoma officers made things too warm for him. He is believed to have been the leader of the gang which recently held up the Pampa bank and is sought in connection with the killing Friday of two deputy sheriffs at Borger. He is also suspected of implication in the killing of Policeman Coke Buchanan, which inaugurated the latest reign of lawlessness at Borger.

Sheriff Simmons tonight arrested six men who came in with a carnival company and is holding them as suspicious characters.

Insurance Expert Chief Speaker At Banquet of Underwriters' Association

Dr. Charles J. Rockwell of Pittsburgh, Pa., a leading authority on insurance in the United States was the principal speaker at a special meeting of the Northwest Texas Underwriters association at the Kemp hotel Saturday night.

The meeting, which was held in the form of a banquet, was attended by representatives of two local banks, Wiley Robertson and James Randel of the City National bank and Lester Jones and E. V. Fite of the Wichita State Bank and Trust company.

Dr. Rockwell spoke on "Trusteeship of Insurance Funds," prefacing his address by urging those present to become members of the Life Underwriters association. Dr. Rockwell explained that one of the things the association is doing at present is to certify life underwriters certificates much in the same way as certified public accountants are granted certificates, this being done through the American College of Insurance.

The expediency of leaving insurance funds to be administered for the beneficiary by reliable trust companies with discretionary powers, was shown by the speaker in discussing the relation of banking and insurance and trusteeship of insurance funds.

Wiley Robertson and Lester Jones made brief talks following Dr. Rockwell and each of them commended trusteeship of insurance funds.

Wichita Pays $1,360,000 In Taxes, Refused $30,000 For Court, Says Huff

Relative to the signing of a bill re-districting courts of civil appeals in Texas by Governor Moody and the automatic repealing of a law, by the enactment of the re-districting measure, creating the 13th court of civil appeals in Wichita Falls, R. E. Huff said Saturday:

"Every member of the Wichita County Bar association is of the opinion that the 11th court of civil appeals should have been put into operation and that the new re-districting bill will not relieve our litigants from the expense and our attorneys from the trouble of taking the bulk of our legal business to some other court; but we could not convince Governor Moody of these facts.

"In an interview with a committee from the bar association Governor Moody stated that his objection to allowing the Wichita Falls court to be established was that the Galveston, Texarkana and El Paso courts of civil appeals were on the border; that the establishment of a court at Wichita Falls would make another court on the border, and also that the court would entail an additional expense to the state.

"We endeavored to convince him that the expense to the state would not be more than $30,000 a year and gave him figures to show that Wichita county in 1926 paid into the state treasury approximately $1,360,000 and that the additional two cent gasoline tax would add approximately $260,000 more state revenue from our county. The governor said that the amount of taxes paid by Wichita county cut no figure in the matter, to which statement we dissented."

FARMERS GIN SHOWS PROFIT

Crowell Co-Operative Society Unusual Success

By MACK BOSWELL
(Staff Correspondent)

CROWELL, April 2.—Does co-operation among farmers pay? This is an old question that in many cases may be answered negatively and one that is receiving a great deal of discussion over the nation at the present time, but if any one of the 190 members of the Farmers' Co-operative society of Crowell is asked this question, an absolute "yes" will be the answer because the cotton gin of this organization made a clear profit of $36,000 during the past season which amount will go back into the pockets of the farmers who have stood together and worked for the success of their plant in spite of obstacles confronting them that from all angles apparently meant failure of the enterprise.

The success of the farmers' co-operative gin at Crowell in this case is especially interesting when it is considered that this plant is not run for profits but for the benefit of those who have built it, that is the members of the Farmers' Co-operative society, and after all expenses of operation have been met whatever profits there are in the treasury are prorated back to the members according to the amount of cotton they have had ginned. In this case the amount was $5 per bale or 1 cent per pound on all lint cotton ginned by each member. A total of 6789 bales were ginned for members and outsiders by this plant during the past season.

Big Dividends Paid

Probably the outstanding feature in this case is the large dividend paid on the very small investment which was $25 per member. Besides the profits prorated back to the members according to their ginnings, $7.50 was paid each member being interest at 10 per cent on the $25 membership for the three years of the gin's existence.

In the spring and summer of 1923, some 150 farmers organized the Farmers Co-operative society of Crowell, and built a gin equipped with all modern machinery at a cost of $56,000. This was done by issuing membership to the amount of $25 to each member and with the addition of loans made by members and business men of Crowell. Such confidence was placed in this enterprise by Crowell merchants that they loaned money to it without promise of interest or when their money would be paid back. However all loans made by members and business men of Crowell has been paid back with interest of 10 per cent.

In December, 1926, the gin burned and about $14,000 insurance was collected. After paying all outstanding debts, and with the deepest faith in the project by the directors who even personally assumed financial responsibility, another plant was built at a cost of $51,000 and was paid for. Modern machinery worth $3500 was added and later a cotton house at a cost of $3000 was built, bringing the total cost of the plant to $57,500, making it one of the finest and most modern in Texas. The policy of this group of farmers to use nothing but the best has been instrumental in the making of such a large profit.

On March 19 the directors met and appointed H. E. Davis and C. P. Sandifer as a committee to assist the bookkeeper to distribute back to the members the $26,000 in profits. The return of large sums of money to the members had the same effect as a gift for all of the members felt that the excellent service afforded by the gin had more than made up for their membership fee of $25 and then to receive an additional income from the profits was indeed a pleasant surplise and much more than the members had ever dreamed of.

Officers of Group

Officials of the Farmers' Co-operative society of Crowell are: S. Moore, president; H. E. Davis, secretary-treasurer; L. G. Andrews, manager of the gin, and the following directors: C. O. Nichols, J. M. Speck, C. D. Stephenson, J. T. Daniels, C. E. Gofford, S. W. Gentry, C. P. Sandifer and L. P. Morgan.

Why has co-operation among Crowell farmers paid so well in this case? Those in close touch with the situation will sum up reasons for such success as follows: Efficient management, unselfish individual interest of all members, and a hard working board of directors that had the interest of the organization at heart and who would not give up under the most trying conditions.

HATCHERY TO HIKE CAPACITY

Electra Gets 47,000-Egg Incubator Plant

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, April 2. — The Farmers Elevator company will install a giant incubator with a capacity of 47,000 eggs in the old brick ice house on their property on Front street. The hatchery will be put into operation in about a month and the building is said to be ideal for that purpose, it being a well insulated structure of brick and about the size for a large incubator.

W. R. Andrews said he had recently closed the contract with the Smith Incubator company of Cleveland, Ohio, for the installation.

Mr. Andrews, who is manager of the Farmers Elevator company, says that he will be able to accommodate all the territory around Electra and Southern Oklahoma, as statistics show that it is cheaper to buy baby chicks from a hatchery than to incubate them at home.

Vick Issues Statement Thanking Friends For Support

The following statement was issued this week by Dr. J. T. Vick, Wichita Falls physician:

"Words are inadequate to express my gratitude to my friends, who are standing so nobly by me in this trying hour. I cannot see you all personally, so I want to say to you through the press: 'I thank you all.' Truth will win in time to come. I am innocent of the charges and have nothing to fear. To my lawers, for their untiring efforts, I want to say, I can never compensate them, in friendship or finance; their work is above compensation. I shall ever be found in Wichita Falls, Texas, ready in the future, to do my best, as in times past. I hold enmity toward no man. Last, but by no means least, I want to render my heart-felt thanks to the praying people of our city and country for the prayers that ascended to Most High Mercy seat, and were heard and answered in my behalf. May God's richest blessings rest upon you and yours. I am innocent of the charges, I thank you.

START—STRIDE—FINISH

All Three Are Essential!

—TO THE WINNING SPRINTER
—TO THE WINNING GASOLINE

To the man who cracks ten second in the "century," start stride-finish is alpha and omega. Off the mark like a flash—yes! Strong, rythmic stride—imperative! Dashing, powerful leap at the tape! He knows he must have all three, and all in proper co-ordination.

And with gasoline? The same! Winning motor-fuel must combine in nicely balanced proportions (1) satisfactory quick starting under all conditons, (2) full stride of power, (3) economical mileage. That is why, to thousands of motorists, Motor Essence is the champion gasoline. It gives them "more miles to the gallon" There's a good reason, too,—the distinctive chain or series of boiling points possessed by Motor Essence.

RELICS FOUND AT FREDERICK

Prehistoric Camels' Bones Found in Excavation

By ROBERT CULL
Staff Correspondent.

FREDERICK, April 2—Enthusiastic over discoveries that have already been made that include artifacts, fossils and bones dating to what is believed to be a period of man's antiquity that antedates the age now attributed to existence of the human race, representatives of the Colorado Museum of Natural history, located in Denver, are continuing search in extensive pits a mile north of Frederick in search for missing parts of skeletons that have already been unearthed and now repose in the laboratories of the museum.

Carl Schwachheim, natural historian and curator, representing the museum has followed in the wake of an extensive probe here by J. D. Figgins, director of the institution and Harold J. Cook, paeolentologist, and Schwachheim plans at least three months more of observation and excavation here before returning to Denver where he will assist in work being done with specimens and artifacts already gathered here.

Pile of Bones

A pile of bones and rock formations that have meant nothing to but two Frederick citizens since their discovery in the gravel pits being excavated by A. H. Holloman, local merchant, more than a year ago, were fondled enthusiastically by Cook and Figgins on occation of their visit here a few days ago. With the coming of these two, wishes of Holloman and Dr. P. G. Priestly, Frederick physician, that at least some investigation be made as to the importance of the discoveries, are at last realized.

Following careful study of the specimens that have been assembled in Holloman's offices by Cook and Figgins, the two declared that a link that has long been sought to establish conclusively the antiquity of man to a darker age than is now recognized, has been found. At any rate, the two declare, the collection will give a working base for delving back to the age of which they refer.

Interest Aroused

Those who have only smiled upon the carefulness with which every specimen has been preserved are beginning to take interest—and now every development in the subsurfacial probe is anxiously watched both by pioneer residents and newcomers.

Cook and Figgins first came in response to a letter written to the Scientific American by Priestly, and later turned over to Figgins. Priestly's study of the collection had been extensive and the two men were impressed with apparent knowledge of the value of the discovery, shown by the local physician.

"And we found these to be of Figgins declared enthusiastically in his handling of the finds. "These form a conclusive link in our offhand investigation. We hope that these in our chain of proof will revolutionize the antiquity theory.

Discussing the situation from a scientific standpoint, Figgins went on to tell of recent finds in western Texas and New Mexico deposits, where Mr. Cook had last year unearthed bison of a prehistoric specie, in which were buried clearly defined artifacts. (Artifacts: An artifact is something that is the handiwork of man, and indicates the existence of man).

Now Extinct Species

These artifacts consisted of arrow heads, proving conclusively that man had killed the animals. The species, now extinct, carries scientists into the pleistocene age, not now recognized as having been inhabited by man. The pleiocene, in scientific terms, is the most ancient age to which occupation of earth by human beings is traced, Figgins said.

"And then our discoveries here," Figgins declared in our offhand investigation. We hove that these in our chain of proof will revolutionize the antiquity theory.

More than 100 pounds of specimens were taken to Denver by Figgins and Cook. It is estimated that 400 pounds of fossils and artifacts have been removed during course of the excavations.

Camel's Bones Found

Schwachheim is working daily on the assembly of a new lot, which he is to take to the museum to be used in the work of scientists. Several bones of camels have been found within the past few days, and the sifting sands continually give up something of interest. Hundreds of curios in the form of massive teeth and Indian relics have been found.

Figgins and Cook claim that proof gathered here of the prehistoric age is even more conclusive than that in the Mexico and Texas finds.

"There is probably as much taken from your pits already indicative of the pleiocene age as there is in the whole world put together, already discovered," Figgins said. "And there is much of it that will date back to our yet unproven pleistocene age," the director continued.

Included in the portion of the collection taken to Denver are five excellent, well-preserved specimens of artifacts and 13 species of prehistoric mammals and two of turtles.

Schwachheim in relating progress of the investigation delves into the geological formations that are to be found in the quarry, asserting that what is now a knoll on the countryside and is being used as a gravel and sand pit, formerly was the bed of a stream which served as a large part of the drainage of the Wichita mountain district, to the northeast.

The country surrounding the location, according to Schwachheim, has by erosion and subsurface movements, gradually been altered by drainage of the Deep Red and Red rivers into its present surfacial level.

Deposits of silt, sand, gravel, in zig-zag strata indicates a former swift stream—and imbedded in these are the bones, fossils and artifacts.

And so the interesting circumstance is enlarging into an ivestigation that may bring this section of Oklahoma into the scientific limelight. Already Figgins and Cook have prepared an article that is to appear shortly in a widely circulated scientific magazine, in which they will tell of the finds here.

In the meantime, only fantastic imagination can play on the minds of those watching progress of the probe—as they allow images of ancient mammoths and a prehistoric man to galavant on the fertile prairies.

CROWELL GETS POWER LINES

Town Becomes Focus For Net of Power Lines

Special to The Record News.

CROWELL, April 2.—Crowell is to be the switching center for 110 miles of new high lines now under construction by the West Texas Utilities company in this section of Texas including lines from Munday to Crowell by way of Truscott; from Crowell to Quanah, and a line from Crowell to Paducah, making connections with the high line of this company between Paducah, Matador and Roaring Springs. When completed this system of lines will be among the highest powered in the south and will be capable of carrying 30,000 horsepower. A $50,000 sub-station is now under construction at Crowell in order that the high voltage current off the high line may be reduced to a usable voltage of 110 volts.

This sub-station will be equipped with a switching house and switches for the connecting or disconnecting of all incoming and outgoing high lines, together with a high line telephone for the load dispatcher. Besides the present light plant standing always ready, Crowell will be assured of forever having service with this net work of high lines coming to this substation from three directions and making it possible for Crowell to get electric current from light plants at Abilene, San Angelo, Wichita Falls, Paducah and Lawton, Okla.

Construction of these new lines and the transmission net at Crowell is being done by the L. E. Myers Construction company, who have a contract from the West Texas Utilities company to build a new 66,000-volt H frame electric line from Munday by the way of Truscott to Crowell, and from Crowell to Quanah, and from Crowell to Paducah. This line is being built in order that the West Texas Utilities company may deliver and sell to the Central Light and Power company at Quanah, 2700 horsepower of electric current and to serve all towns on the high line.

Sixteen carloads of material for the construction has already been unloaded at Crowell and cars are arriving each day with material for the line. About 35 carloads of line material will be unloaded at Crowell and cars of line poles will be shipped to points nearest the place of construction. With 200 men and 25 trucks at work, including hole diggers working out of Crowell in three directions, the job will be fast pushed to completion which will probably last until early fall.

The rapid growth of this section and confidence of its future development is shown by the West Texas Utilities company in making this enormous investment for the extension of its facilities.

W. TEXAS FIELD TIGHTENS UP

Eleven New Locations Are Made in Proven Areas

Special to The Record News.

SAN ANGELO, April 2.—Upton county added three producers and Crane and Howard counties one each this week, but heavy producers in practically all areas were pinched in due to the low price of crude and there was a further tightening in operation generally, especially wildcatting and leasing. Despite this, eleven locations were made in proven areas, six in Howard, three in Crane and two in Upton, and major companies announced that tests now drilling and located will be put down, though their completion will depend upon developments in the crude market.

Production Gains.

Production in seven West Texas counties during the week ending March 26 totaled 51,617 barrels daily, a gain of 7,301 barrels over the preceding week. The Humble Oil and Refining company placed in operation its refinery at McCamey, which has a daily capacity of 10,000 barrels. Fuel oil will be delivered to the Southern Pacific railroad at Alpine and the light oils will be shipped to other Humble refineries.

Humble's No. 2 University in Crane county was the week's biggest completion, making an initial flow rating 250 barrels hourly with some gas from 2,894 feet. Simms-Atlantic's No. 3a University, which the week before set a new flush production record of 4,500 barrels in eleven hours from 2,924 feet, had been pinched in to around 300 barrels a day. Church-Fields' No. 1 University flowed 250 barrels in twenty-four hours after being shot with 110 quarts from 2,820 to 3,000 feet.

Dixie completed two producers in Upton county during the week. Its No. 21 Burleson topped the pay at 1,950 feet and began flowing a rated 50 barrels an hour. No. 22 Burleson on the John Nidever survey came in for fifty barrels an hour from 1,986 feet. Roxana's No. 13 Bowen flowed 615 barrels daily through a 2 1-2 inch line when drilled to 2,114 feet. Much interest attaches to Marland's No. 3 Burleson in Upton owing to its depth of 4,258 feet late in the week. It is seeking the pay in a black lime.

Winkler Well Pinched.

Gulf Production company's No. 1 Hendricks, which came in at 2,824-43 feet with a flow as high as 200 barrels hourly, stamping Winkler county as a new heavy producing area, had been pinched in to 2,540 barrels in twenty-four hours.

Howard county's new producer was by Marland, its No. 19 Chalk standing 140 feet in oil at 1,800 feet. Glasscock county's discovery producer, Texon-Marland's No. 1 Settles, by daylight pumping was making an average of 73 barrels.

Mid-Kansas' No. 3 Yates in Pecos county is making 1,050 barrels daily, other producers in the area being shut in. Mid-Kansas is spudding another test and rigging up for two more. The Illinois Pipe Line company has completed half of its 20-mile, 8-inch pipe line from the Yates field to McCamey and expects to have it in operation within thirty days. The company will open offices in San Angelo early in April.

Showing in Crockett.

Arkansas Fuel Oil company's No. 1 Hartgrove in Concho county struck a showing of oil and gas from 2,160 to 2,170 feet, but it had disappeared when the bit entered black lime at 2,181 feet.

The World Oil company set 8 1-4 inch casing in its No. 1 Schneeman in Crockett county to test an oil showing struck in brown sandy lime at 2,515 feet. The test is in section 57, block BB. The World is preparing to drill in Pecos county in section 10, block 130, Texas and St. Louis Railway company survey, about 35 miles southeast of Fort Stockton, and in Glasscock county in section 43 on the L. S. McDowell ranch.

George Henshaw of San Angelo and associates have made a location in Pecos county for No. 1 Sweatt and Hinyard in the center of the southwest quarter of section 29, block 144, Texas and St. Louis Railway company survey. Operators report that the slump in crude prices has slowed down lease and royalty buying in Pecos county but little. Acreage around the new Henshaw location was selling at $20 an acre before the block was closed.

Lockhart Brothers have made location for their No. 2-A Chalk in section 95, block 29, W. and N. W. Railway survey, Howard county. In the block and survey, the Magnolia Petroleum company will drill its No. 3 Kelly-Chalk in section 124. Merrick and Bristow have located their No. 3 Hooker in section 140, and the Marland Oil company is to drill its No. 5-A Clay in section 139. The Pure Oil company has made two locations, its No. 4 Chalk in section 125 and its No. 2 in the same section.

The Gulf Production company led in Crane county with two locations, its No. 4-A Crier-McElroy in section 188, block F of the C. C. S. D., R. G. and N. G. Railway survey, and the No. 8 State-Lassiter in section 35, block 30, University land. The Independent Oil and Gas company has made location for its No. 2-A University in section 46, block 30, University land.

The Roxana Petroleum corporation has made location for the No. 22 Bowen in section 6, G. C. and S. F. Railway survey, Upton county, and the Amerada Petroleum corporation will drill its No. 6 Hughes in section 4, William Teer survey of the same county.

BLOCKS ASSEMBLED

TULSA, April 2.—Due to various showings of oil and gas having been encountered in several wildcat tests of Logan county, many large blocks of acreage have been assembled in the past several months, throughout the Logan-Kingfisher area, and derricks are being erected for deep tests.

The first showing of any consequence in Logan was encountered a year ago by Texas and Pacific Coal and Oil company, and the Franklin Oil association, in their No. 1 Sy Moore, in the southwest corner of the northeast of the southeast of 28-18-4w, a few miles south of Lovell. This well had 5,000,000 feet of gas, from a sand topped at 3,873 feet on March 22, 1926, and when deepened to 3,884 feet, gas increased to 9,000,000 feet.

Refining Capacity of U. S. Climbs During 1926; Number Plants Drops

The aggregate refining capacity of the petroleum refineries of the United States continues to manifest an increase, although the number of refineries has decreased, the United States bureau of mines, department of commerce, finds as the result of a statistical survey conducted by G. R. Hopkins, associate petroleum economist, as of Jan. 1, 1927.

On that date, there were 466 completed petroleum refineries in the United States, with a total daily crude oil capacity of 5,061,097 barrels. In addition, seven refineries, with a potential capacity of 81,000 barrels, were in process of construction. Of the completed refineries, 327, with a capacity of 2,834, 252 barrels, or 93 per cent of the total capacity, were in operation and 139, with a capacity of 226,725 barrels, or 7 per cent of the total, were shut down.

Capacity Increases.

Comparison with the figures of a year ago reveals that during the year 1926 there was a net decrease of 45 in the total number of completed refineries, but an increase in total capacity of 208,940 barrels. This resulted from a steady growth on the part of many of the larger refineries, particularly those on tide water, which overbalanced the decrease in capacity due to the abandonment of a number of relatively small skimming plants.

The building program as of Jan. 1, 1927, was somewhat larger than that of Jan. 1, 1926. California maintained her rank as a leading state from the standpoint of refinery throughput, though Texas still leads in number of refineries. Practically all of the decrease in total number of completed refineries occurred in the Mid-Continent field; that is, the states of Kansas, Oklahoma and Arkansas, and including the northern parts of Louisiana and Texas. In Oklahoma, approximately 15 refineries were dismantled in 1926.

Panhandle Builds.

The only section of the Mid-Continent field where construction activity was in evidence was the Panhandle district, where the absence of trunk pipelines served as the inducement for the building of several skimming plants.

Of more than passing importance was the completion during the year, by the Gulf Refining company and the Mexican Petroleum company, of refineries at Bayonne, N. J., and Baltimore, Md., respectively, and the building of refineries by the former company and the Roxana Petroleum corporation at Philadelphia and East Chicago, respectively, both of which are nearing completion.

Washington entered the list of states with refineries, having on Jan. 1, two operating refineries with a total daily capacity of 5,000 barrels. This expansion of refinery capacity near large consuming centers and the wholesale dismantling of plants near inland producing areas has become a definite trend, the chief cause of which is that crude oil can be transported at lower cost than refined products.

Pennsylvania Holds.

Western Pennsylvania, the stronghold of the small refiner, held its own in 1926 in point of refining capacity. The Rocky Mountain area also showed little change in refining capacity, the chief event of the year in this district being the completion of a refinery at Craig, Colo., by the Texas company.

Of the total number of plants, completed or building, 271, of capacity 797,483 barrels, or 26 per cent of the total capacity, were skimming plants and 40, of capacity 1,490,000 barrels, or 48 per cent of the total, were complete plants. This compares with 29 per cent skimming and 44 per cent complete on Jan. 1, 1926.

The remainder were of various types, such as topping plants in California, or of combinations of types, such as the familiar skimming and lubricating oil plant of the Appalachian area. The rapid increase in consumption of gasoline, linked with keen competition, has stimulated the spread of cracking processes, and the year 1926 witnessed the installation of much cracking equipment both in the larger plants, which already had some equipment, and in the smaller skimming plants.

Fittest Survival.

The refinery industry in the United States during the past year has furnished a good example of the working of the law of the survival of the fittest, the Bureau of Mines points out. The greater portion of the refineries dismantled in 1926 were constructed during the boom times of 1920 apparently in the hope that the price of gasoline would hold its war-time increment. It is now history that gasoline, unlike most other commodities, declined sharply in price following 1920, one of the chief reasons being the over-supply.

Copies of the 1927 directory of petroleum refineries of the United States, containing data regarding location, type, and refining capacity of all refineries, may be obtained from the Bureau of Mines, Department of Commerce, Washington, D. C.

C. C. Owens Joins Production Staff Of Consolidated

C. C. Owens, for 11 years in the employ of The Texas company and for the past several years district production superintendent in the Olney district, is now at the helm of the Consolidated Oil company of Texas production department. Owens took active charge of the Consolidated's field operations on April 1.

Owens has become well known among the North Texas fraternity during his service with The Texas company. He is now assuming charge of one of the most aggressive producing departments in Texas and one which is among the leaders in successful petroleum exploitation.

The active heads of the Consolidated Oil company now comprise the following:: W. T. Knight, president; W. E. Allman, chairman of the board; H. F. Kelleher, land department; Reece L. Hayes, chief geologist and R. J. Matthews, office manager.

HOLLIDAY TEST HITS OIL SAND

Guy J. Brown and United Producers May Open Pool

What may result in an active town lot play in the city limits of Holliday is seen in the wildcat well of Guy J. Brown and United Producers company in lot 23, Holliday townsite, North Archer count.

This well, known as no. 1 Frank Kell, is setting pipe on a sand showing oil at 1625 feet and will be bailed Sunday. The well has been reported as showing up very favorably at various depths and has been closely watched since drilling was started. It is on land owned by the Gulf Production company, the mineral rights being owned by Frank Kell.

The test is located about one-half mile south of the Shappell-Jackson pool in block 23 of the Denton county school land. It is on the northern edge of the townsite although not in the town proper, the land on which the well is located not being subdivided into town lots. A producer here, however, would indicate a trend into the heart of the town and would lead to lease activity there.

2000 BARREL WELL

Mook-Texas Gives Eastland County New Oil Pool.

EASTLAND, April 2.(AP)—Of major importance in the Central West Texas oil belt during the past week was the bringing in of a 2000-barrel well by Mook-Texas Oil company and C. R. Starnes on the Minnie Sibley which has just entered the pay.

The well started off at 600 barrels at the top of the sand and Thursday when it had been deepened only six inches the flow started which oil men estimated at 2000 barrels. Further drilling has been suspended until storage is erected.

The gusher opens up a new pool near Staff, nine miles southeast of Eastland. The State Oil corporation, which holds offset acreage, is rushing the building of two rigs and other wells are expected to be started in the vicinity. Two big producers were added to the Carbon field during the week.

MAMMOTH GASSER

Estimated all the way from 100,000,000 to 200,000,000 feet daily, a gas well in eastern Stephens county is flowing wild. It is Skelly Oil company's No. 1 W. C. Krebs, in the southeast corner of the southeast of 13-1s-4w. The big gas was encountered at around 2,815 feet, and when it blew in, destroyed the derrick, scattering wire line over trees surrounding the well, and did much other damage. An effort will be made to shut the well in.

WILDCAT FINDS NEW HORIZON

Busy Bee Bobby Burns Turns Trick in "Little Seminole"

By TOM TRULY
The Record News Oil Editor

Consolidated Oil company and J. S. Cosden, having drilled one more foot of sand to a total depth of 1230 feet at their No. 1 W. T. Waggoner, section 57, block 4, H. & T. C. survey, Wilbarger county, estimates that the test will pump between 125 and 150 barrels when completed.

This well, being several miles north of the Phillips pool and nine miles southwest of Harrold, opens up a new pool. The discoveries hold 320 acres around the strike. Trading has picked up in the vicinity despite low crude prices.

Not only a new pool but a new pay horizon is uncovered in this sand. The Phillips pool, two miles to the south, has production from several levels, the highest of which is around 1300 feet.

The Consolidated-Cosden strike was about the only disturbance during the week.

Burns Does a Trick

In "Little Seminole," Archer county, Bobby Burns turned an unusual trick. Thirteen hundred and 46 barrels of semi-settled production was chalked up by the busy bee of the Turbeville ranch in seven wells, six of which are pumping, the other swabbing. The wells are Burns' Nos. D-9, D-10, D-11, E-2, E-3, E-4, E-5, the latter well swabbing 200 barrels initial and the other six pumping from 125 to 320 barrels. These two leases are attracting wide attention as among the most wonderful in North Texas.

While Bobby Burns had more oil than he knew what to do with, the American Refining company hit a sand in its No. 13 Turbeville in block 150, which tested out a sand and was plugged at 1525 feet.

Petroleum Producers company completed a dry hole in its No. 4-C, made a 214 barrel pumper of its No. B-1 in block 124, and is completed No. 5-C as a nice well.

Paul Trahan Hits

Paul Trahan and Barnsdall Oil company extended the Marland-Perkins area eastward with their No. 1 Perkins which is pumping 100 barrels right along from the 1700-foot horizon. This well is in section 26, league 3, Denton county school lands.

Down in the prolific Prideaux shallow field the Western Oil Sales corporation is completing its No. 1 H. O. Prideaux from sand at 651-57 feet. The test is showing up for a nice producer while being placed on the pump Saturday night. Drilling with spudder rigs and other light machines, wells in this pool are drilled and completed with such speed in the shallow sands that many of them are not brought to the attention of oil men not operating in the territory.

Throckmorton County

News from Throckmorton carried a cheerful note with Reiter-Foster Oil company completing its No. 4 M. K. Graham in the 1800-foot pay as a 150-barreler and the same company preparing to bring in another commercial proposition at its No. 5. The Texas company has set pipe on a sand below 2200 feet in its No. 3 M. K. Graham. Three new wells were started in the Graham area during the week.

Despite the market situation, which has been discussed from all possible angles, new activity moves along in all parts of the district. Wichita Falls operators evidently expect to see a more rosy picture in the price schedules before very long, judging by their optimistic and philosophic acceptance of price control by those in power.

Pipeline runs dropped in accordance with the general slowing down but at that they hang above 100,000 barrels daily which is more than can be said of some districts which garner a larger collection of headlines.

Major Concerns Control Lands

Nearly 2,000,000 Held by Majors in Panhandle

Special to The Record News.

AMARILLO, April 2.—Evidence of the great faith that the oil industry has in the future of the Panhandle field is noted in the acreage held by the larger concerns.

On Jan. 1, 1927, the 26 largest operators in the Panhandle held in their possession, as fee or leased lands, a total of more than 1,906,000 acres. This immense acreage was located in 23 counties.

Moore county, said to be the "small oil man's paradise," because of the vast area held in small tracts, led the counties. A total of 293,432 acres was held by the 26 operators there. Figuring other interests more than 350,000 acres is under lease in that potential county.

Potter was second, with Hartley third, Hutchinson fourth, Oldham fifth, Gray sixth, Wheeler seventh, Carson eighth and Sherman ninth. Their total acreage for the 26 firms follow:

County	Acreage
Moore	293,432
Potter	261,480
Hartley	222,265
Hutchinson	158,182
Oldham	153,673
Gray	148,453
Wheeler	111,959
Carson	82,320
Sherman	71,270

OFF WITH ITS HEAD

MUNICH.—Bavarians are rallying to arms. Not for another world war, but for defense against wicked tavern keepers, who pour beer with a four-inch collar on it. The "Association for Fighting Crooked Beer Pouring," recently brought a court action against one of the oldest tavern keepers in Munich, and won its case. "More Body and Less Head," is the association's slogan.

Third Consecutive Peak Set By Cooke County In Daily Oil Runs

Cooke, the youngest county in the North Texas group of oil producing counties, set another high water mark in daily pipeline runs the past week when its daily average was 1580 barrels as compared with 1415 barrels in the previous week. The Chapman-Lanier No. 1 Montgomery, having been placed on the pump at 200 barrels daily, is credited with boosting Cooke county's daily output. Incidentally, this is the third consecutive production record made by that county.

Smaller gains were reported from Archer, Jack, and Montague counties but decreases shown by the other fields more than offset all of the gains and the district average was 475 barrels less daily than in the previous week.

Daily runs by fields follow:

Field—	Past Week	Prev. Week	Difference
Electra	16,225	16,355	loss	130
Burkburnett	11,425	11,535	loss	110
Iowa Park	3,930	4,015	loss	85
Archer County	29,055	29,045	gain	10
Baylor County	100	100	....	....
Clay County	715	730	loss	15
Cooke County	1,580	1,415	gain	165
Jack County	595	585	gain	10
Montague County	13,505	13,470	gain	35
Throckmorton County	1,525	1,770	loss	145
Wilbarger County	13,925	13,960	loss	35
Young County	8,805	8,880	loss	75

Three Companies Seek Franchise To Pipe Panhandle Gas to K. C.

AMARILLO, April 2. — The muddle as to which interest will get the franchise for piping natural gas from the Amarillo-Panhandle field to the city gate at Kansas City continues.

When the smoke of submitting applications for franchises has cleared up it shows that these interests are seeking the exclusive franchise:

The Texas Company-Columbian Carbon company-Hope Engineering Supply.

The Southwestern Oil and Development company of Los Angeles.

The Southwestern company is the third and last concern to submit a franchise, but John L. Knorpp, head of the firm, confirmed the report that his concern was after the Kansas City gas franchise. It has a more pretentious program than either the first two.

They have made a proposition to H. F. McElroy, city manager of Kansas City, Mo., offering to lay two 24-inch gas pipe lines from the Amarillo-Panhandle field to Kansas City and offer gas at from 14 to 33 cents a thousand cubic feet for industrial purposes, and to furnish a supply to the H. L. Doherty distributing subsidiary, the Kansas City Gas company at 15 cents per 1,000 cubic feet, that can be used for domestic purposes.

The Doherty firm is now buying gas at the city gate for 40 cents a 1,000 cubic foot from its own transportation unit, and retails it there for 95 cents a 1,000 cubic feet.

The Texas and associated interests have made a proposal of submitting a schedule from 17 to 30 cents a 1,000 cubic feet.

According to Mr. Knorpp the two lines would be able to handle an unlimited supply of natural gas from the Amarillo field, and with two lines the danger of a tieup of one line would not mean a tieup in supply.

The Empire companies have announced that a gas line was to be built, but details are not known.

PLAINS-LYLES AREA.

Plains Production company has the sand at 1439-40 feet in its No. 1 Belle Z. Lyles, located in section 2, S. P. R. R. survey, abstract 1231, Archer county. The test will be completed within the next day or two.

BUT THE CHEETAH CHEATED

CHICAGO.—John Wentworth, animal facier, had a pair of cheetahs for pets. "Absolutely harmless," he told Detective Sergeant Wellington Britten, who visited the Wentworth home to find out just what a cheetah was, after neighbors had complained. "All right, if you say so," said Britten, and moved to pat one of the lovable creatures on the head. The cheetah sank two rows of sharp teenth i nthe detective's leg. Britten went to the hospital. The cheetah's went to the zoo.

MARLAND TEST IS DRILLING IN

No Let-Up in Interest in Ramsey Wildcat Well

Special to The Record News.

AMARILLO, April 2.—Most important wildcat in Panhandle, the Marland Oil company's No. 1 Carver, in William Heath survey, north of the Canadian river, and in southwest Hutchinson county, is drilling in. It had a show of oil from 3,250 to 3,255 feet and at 3,282 feet had 150 feet of fluid in the hole. Drilling is continuing.

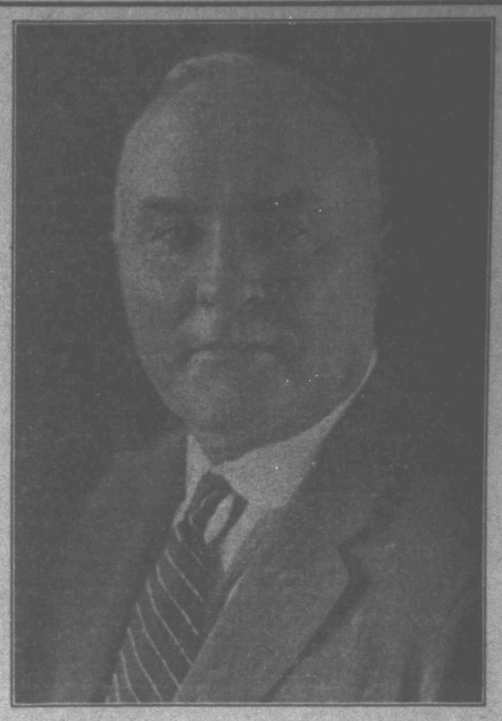

M. R. Travis No. 1 Block, in section 44, block 25, in southeastern Gray county, that may connect Gray and Wheeler counties, is making one barrel an hour after a second shot from 2,550 to 2,570 feet.

While the W. R. and W. E. Ramsey's No. 1 State, in the center of the northwest of the southeast of 27-5n-5e, CM in Cimarron county, of the Oklahoma Panhandle, is below 4,200 feet, and slowly going ahead, having cased off the oil found from 4,095 to 4,101 feet, the interest in that area does not let-up.

The Ramsey's have just assigned to Frank Buttram of Oklahoma City, and one of the Sooner state's best known wildcatters, five quarter sections of state leases, viz: The southwest and the northeast of 34-3n-5e, the northeast of 13-2n-6e; the northwest of 29-1u-4e, and the southwest of 13-1u-6e.

The Ramsey's, it is reported, plan two new tests thereabout soon, but details are lacking. Their No. 1-B State, in the southeast corner of 4-5n-6e, is drilling below 1,600 feet.

The Mercury Oil company of Los Angeles, has made location for No. 1 Guy W. Slack, in the center of the southwest of the northwest of 22-3n-3e, some 12 miles due west of Boise City. It is on the acreage recently taken through J. W. Alford. A block of 35,000 acres was assembled at $15 per acre.

DUGGAN ISSUES CALL FOR C-C MEETING

WADE PREDICTS RECORD CROWD

All Ready Now For Final Work For Gathering

Manager Homer D. Wade of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, after another week or ten days will make Wichita Falls his headquarters until after the West Texas convention to be held here May 16 and 17. Mr. Wade made this announcement Saturday. His headquarters will be on the ground floor of the Hamilton building and from that point the plans for the convention will be directed.

Record Attendance.

"It begins to appear that the convention will be even larger attended than we had expected," Mr. Wade said. "People in all parts of West Texas are looking to Wichita Falls and they are interested in your convention plans."

Mr. Wade announced he would likely bring two or more of his staaff members here to assist in the preliminary plans for the meeting.

"We are making plans to accommodate 10,000 people at Spudder Park May 16 and 17," President J. Alvin Gardner of the Wichita Falls base ball association said Saturday.

That Ball Game.

These are the dates for the West Texas Chamber of Commerce and on these days Fort Worth and Wichita Falls, of the Texas baseball league will play, Mr. Gardner asked that these clubs be permitted to play these days, following a request from the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce. This request was made, believing that games between these teams would be a big entertainment feature at the convention, since these teams are so well known in West Texas, being this section of the state's entry in the Texas league.

"There seems to be great interest throughout West Texas in these games," Mr. Gardner said, "for we are getting reports from many sections. If necessary we will erect extra bleachers and do every thing in our power to make these games a big attraction on these two days."

Formal Call Issued

"By authority vested in me, I, Arthur P. Duggan, president, hereby issue this call for the sixth annual convention of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce to be held in the city of Wichita Falls, May 15 and 17, 1927.

"This convention has been changed from a three days' to a two days' event; not because of any lack of interest or enthusiasm but because the executive board in regular session at Abilene on July 12, 1924, in its wisdom decided that a two days session would be conducive to more good than a three days session, and since this change in the length of the convention was agreeable to the host city, Wichita Falls, it was made.

"Information comes from Wichita Falls that a full complement of committees, headed by W. B. Hamilton, general chairman, is progressing most satisfactorily in arrangements for the convention. The positive statement is made that even in the two days period there will be many more opportunities for business, as well as pleasurable recreations than have ever been before and features that will eclipse previous efforts besides numerous additions that will give zest, environment, pleasure and profit.

"The program committee announces the acceptance of Governors Moody of Texas, Dillon of New Mexico and Johnston of Oklahoma to attend the opening session, also the acceptance of Hon. R. R. Ellis, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce for the chief speaker of the first day. It is with sincere pleasure that I am able to say that Hon. John J. Davis, secretary of labor, has accepted the invitation of the general arrangements committee to be chief speaker for the second day—thus having for the first time a member of the president's cabinet at one of these great meetings. There will be other features equally as strong and alluring.

Program Outlined

"The business sessions of the convention are to open at 9:30 each morning and to continue without interruption until 12:30 p. m. During this time it is the earnest desire of the executive officers of the organization that all pleasurable events, including marching, band concerts, etc., etc., be dispensed with and that the interest be centered on the business session at the convention hall. On the second day the 'Home Town Contest' will be held in the afternoon, but other than this there will be no formal sessions except these to which reference has been made above.

"It is with pleasure that I announce that the pastors of Wichita Falls have agreed to give over their pulpits for the Sunday morning services, to prominent laymen, members of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce and these laymen are being designated at this time.

"Among other features will be a mammoth chorus contest which will be held Sunday afternoon and evening in which all choruses including women's clubs, church choirs, high school and college glee clubs and others will be invited to participate. Full announcements are being sent out with the official sanction and through the proper committee.

"Following the business session of the first day an entirely new feature is to be presented. This is designed as the 'Congress of Nations' and will be the most spectacular and colorful parade that has ever been staged at these conventions. Such towns as participate will appear in regalia of the nation selected, carrying the flag of that nation and have their band to furnish music consistent with that nation. This will form the first division of the parade. The second part of the parade will be composed of towns, cities and communities who for their own reasons do not take part in the congress of nations. Suitable prizes will be awarded, full announcement of which will be made in the official bulletins to be issued later. The respective towns in the territory embraced by the organization will be invited and expected to select a young lady honoree. They will be designated as Miss ——— of the House of ——— and each town will be accorded the pleasure of having their sponsor appear with them in the parade. Selections of the honorees should begin without delay, and these sponsors will not only be entertained in the homes of Wichita Falls, but will have many social courtesies extended them. They will be formally presented to the great throng on Monday night in an imposing and dazzling pyrotechnic display, following an official ball will be given in their honor.

Home Town Contest

"The 'Home Town Contest' is scheduled for the afternoon of the second day and rules, regulations and entry blanks are now being distributed.

"An additional feature will be a state-wide band contest under the auspices of the West Texas Band Teachers association but this will in no wise interfere with the individuality of the West Texas contestants and bands generally.

"The local headquarters for the convention arrangement will be in the new Hamilton building and all inquiries for information of any kind should be addressed to H. J. Adair, publicity manager of the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce and convention secretary in care of this building. Through the efforts of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce in conjunction with the local arrangement committee every facility will be afforded for the prompt dispatch of any inquiries.

"The West Texas Chamber of Commerce has had a prosperous year and my opinion is that this will be the greatest convention of its kind ever held in the country. The co-operation of the friends and members of the organization is coveted to that end. I am pleading for an enlarged West Texas spirit for the constructive program that will compel the interest and respect of the southwest and for action that will challenge the admiration of the entire country.

Pledges Best Effort

"I, as president of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, pledge my best efforts, as well as that of the staff, and the executive board to the highest ambitions toward the great success of this convention, and the future efficiency of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce."

VERNON, April 2.—Vernon's new $150,000 First Baptist church building will be formally opened Sunday with the first services in the auditorium, Dr. E. F. Lyon, pastor, announces. Special sermons and programs will be given Sunday morning and evening.

DANCE SAVES HIS LIFE.

SYNDEY, Australia. — Palmer Kent, Australian composer, is also an expert dancer. Recently, on a walking tour, alone on Epi island in the New Hebrides group, he fell into the hands of an aboriginal tribe, which, remote from civilization, still practices cannibalism and head-hunting. Things looked black for the composer-explorer-terpsichorean, and to gain time he began an earnest and conscientious Charleston. The natives were delighted, many imitated him, their good humor was restored and they escorted their guest to safety, after loading him with gifts in return for instructions in the intricacies of the Black Bottom.

The Latin pupils were coached by their teacher, Mrs. Gaines B. Hall, and were accompanied to the tournament at Denton by T. B. Parnell. Following the tests, a ride over the city was given the representatives attending, also a banquet in the evening when the prizes were awarded.

SMALLEST CLASS

Fewer Seniors Graduate From Frederick School.

Special to The Record News.

FREDERICK, April 2.—One of the smallest graduating classes to leave Frederick high school in several years, the class of 1927 will end their four years of work in May.

Plans are being laid for the usual graduation activities.

Frederick's class last year was composed of 88 students. More students are enrolled in Frederick schools this year than last, City Superintendent J. O. Shaw siad, showing that the small list of seniors is not indicative of a lesser enrollment.

A great multitude of dresses of the sports type, and many of the more formal type, are graced by leather belts. These are usually quite narrow, but what they lack in size they make up for by their amusing and interesting fastenings and details. Gold, silver, gilt or nickel slave links, buckles and clasps adorn them, and often they are edged in the metal or show heavy studdings of it like nail points. A gold arrow (perhaps from cupid's quiver) appeared on one trim little belt or red kid.

Last year's two-piece sport dress may be modernized by the addition of one of these smart belts. They can be obtained in all the pastel shades, as well as tan, red, green and black. Many belts are of reptile leather, and these harmonize with practically any color.

VERNON ROAD NOT BLOCKED

Pease Bridge Collapse Not Serious Barrier

Special to The Record News.

VERNON, April 2.—Persistent reports from various parts of this section that, since the bridge across Pease river near Vernon collapsed recently, there is no way for tourists to cross here, are entirely without foundation, according to Wilbarger county officers.

Reports that travelers must make a 30-mile detour into Oklahoma because of the loss of the bridge are also wrong, for traffic has not been held up for a single day on account of the collapse of the bridge, officers say.

Mayor Shepherd of Wichita Falls recently wrote a letter to the Vernon Chamber of commerce, expressing the fear that the lack of a crossing on the river near Vernon would seriously interfere with tourist traffic over the Colorado-Gulf highway. There is no need for anxiety on this point because of the fact that there is another bridge over which traffic may cross and a passable ford has been provided where the bridge fell in. Traffic can cross at the ford at any time except when there is high water and the other bridge is in good condition, road officials declare.

TROOP TWELVE

Troop Twelve held its regular meeting Friday night at the Grace Methodist church. The scoutmaster presented advancement cards to six scouts who appeared before the Board of Review last Monday and Tuesday nights. Two merit badges, two first class and two second class scouts were added to the troop's membership. Kenton Wharton received the first merit badge in archery to be given a scout in this city. Many scouts of the city are working for this badge and this is considered another honor to Troop Twelve.

It is hoped that there will be other scouts in the troop with this badge.

The archery team of the troop is practicing for the highest record in the city. Sunday afternoon is set for the time to try out for the highest points. The regular four foot target is used at 20, 40, 50 and 60 yards. These records will be published in the Scout News columns next week.

Orbie Hodges has completed a new designed monoplane. A test flight proved it a success. With a light flat rubber motor the machine flew 50 feet after using up considerable power taking off of the ground. There are several models being built by scouts in Troop Twelve and an Aviation club is soon to be formed. Troop Twelve is planning an exhibit of all their handiwork. The model airplanes, ships, statues, war clubs and other articles will be shown.

TROOP EIGHT

Troop Eight, Gibson McLarry, scoutmaster, held their regular meeting Friday night at the Floral Heights Presbyterian church from 7:30 to 9:30 o'clock. The meeting opened with the pledge of allegiance and the scout law and oath.

Twelve scouts were present, two new members were taken in and seven visitors were present. Each boy present reported at least one good turn done during the past week.

Three boys completed tastes for second class and eight completed their tenderfoot tests.

The scoutmaster drilled the boys on the points of the compass and the games, Kelly Says and Swat 'Em, were played.

Announcements from the scoutmasters' bulletin were read.

Several boys planned a hike for Saturday, when they were to hike out to the river, spend Saturday night and all day Sunday.

After playing a few more games, the scout oath was led by Centrelle Mitchell and the meeting adjourned.

BOARD OF REVIEW

The Board of Review met Monday and Tuesday of the past week and a big crowd of boys attended. Twenty-two boys advanced to second class; five to first class, and 28 merit badges were awarded. Two boys completed requirements and made application for Eagle Scout badges.

The following boys passed second class: Billy Mowery, Troop Three; Edward Fry, Troop Sixteen; Ted Booker, Troop Three; Robert Dixon, Troop Three; Clinton Broady, Troop Eleven; Howell Adair, Troop Eleven; Moulton Harrison, Troop Eleven; Allen Clark, Troop Eleven; Harry Smith, Troop Eleven; William Welty, Troop Ten; Albert McClellan, Troop Nine; Clarence Darby, Troop Three; Miller McDaniel, Troop Two; Frank Tims, Troop Fifteen; James Walker, Troop Three; Howard Douglas, Troop Three; Travis Lee, Troop Three; Welvin Edmonds, Trpop Three; John James Jr., Troop Fifteen; Mack Taylor, Troop Three; Warren Griffin, Troop Twelve; Orbie Hodges, Troop Twelve.

The following passed first class: Bonner Barton, Troop Twelve; Charles Ware, Troop Twelve; Fred Barron Jr., Troop Sixteen; James Thornton, Troop Sixteen; Harold Gerock, Troop Sixteen.

Charles Aston of Troop Three passed the merit badge for first aid; Milton Cooke of Troop Three passed merit badges in athletics, first aid, machinery, public health; Maurice Patton of Troop Fifteen passed merit badges in chemistry, cycling, firemanship and first aid; Mike Donegan of Troop Fifteen passed merit badges in chemistry, cycling and first aid; Edward Mulligan of Troop Fifteen passed merit badges in carpentry and first aid; Willard and Otto Sublick, both of Troop Ten, passed merit badges in camping and pathfinding, thus completing all requirements for their Eagle Scout badges; Paul Scherrer of Troop Ten passed the merit badge for craftsmanship in leather; Eugene Cope passed merit badges in firemanship and first aid; Homer Lee of Troop Three, and Walter Cope of Troop Fifteen, passed merit badge for first aid, and L. D. Herbert, Troop Four, William Naylor, Troop Ten, Frank Thomas, Troop Ten, Rollin Dixon, Troop Three and Theo Swatzel, Troop Twelve, all passed the merit badge in firemanship.

Troop Twelve is righteously proud of one of its members, Kenton Wharton, who is the first scout in the entire district to pass merit badges in archery an dreptiles. Since Ken passed the merit badge in archery four other boys in the troop have announced their intentions of passing the badge at the next Board of Review.

TROOP TEN

Troop Ten, Will Ward, scoutmaster, held their regular meeting Friday night in the troop room at the First Presbyterian church. The meeting opened with the scout oath, which was followed by a short business meeting.

The troop was divided into two sides, the Reds and the Blacks, and contests were held in fire by friction, fire by flint and steel, tests on the compass, signalling and the following games: Relay races, tilting, coon car.

Deer horns from South America were loaned the troop by Mr. Welty, father of which one seven feet from tip to tip. The troop was also presented with a pair of Texas Longhorns.

Mr. Wade, troop committeeman, gave a short talk and presented cards for advancements to the boys who appeared before Board of Review Monday and one of the scouts for the troop museum, Tuesday.

The meeting closed with the scout oath.

SERVICE PINS

Chief Creighton has announced that service stars and pins will be given scouts who give a specified number of hours of service to the local council. Details will be given later. Already quite a few boys have started working for their pins.

TROOP ONE

Troop One met Friday night at the Floral Heights Methodist church. The meeting opened with roll call and collecting of dues. After a short period of business a game period was held.

The supreme court and grand jury of Troop One were in session during the latter part of the meeting.

W. J. Hawthorne, who was indicted at the last meeting of the troop for conduct unbecoming to a scout and gentleman, was tried before the court on a charge of feloniously, maliciously and brutally assaulting a fellow scout mate with a dangerous weapon. The weapon was found to be a stiletto commonly seen about schools and ordinarily known as a writing pen.

After much wrangling between the prosecuting attorney and the attorney for the defense, a jury was selected.

Billy Kemp put up a great fight for the defense but succumbed to the greater experience of his opponent.

The jury retired and, after due deliberation, returned a verdict of "guilty" and recommended that the defendant be required to rout a pencil along the floor with his nose for a distance of 15 feet, whistling at intervals.

The sentence was pronounced and carried out before the troop and visitors.

LOVING TRIP

Chief Creighton and 14 or 16 boys who are experts in some line of scouting will make a special trip to Loving, Texas, leaving next Friday night at about 4 o'clock, returning by way of Archer City Saturday and reaching home at about 10:30 or 11 o'clock Saturday night.

It is expected that a great time will be had by the boys making the trip. They will be entertained by the scouts at Loving and will spend the night in the scout hut at Loving. A demonstration of scouting will be given at the First Methodist church in Loving Friday night and a baseball game will be played between the boys of Loving and those of Wichita Falls on Saturday.

TROOP TWO

Troop Two, Bill McClure, scoutmaster, held their meeting Friday night at the First Methodist church. The meeting opened with the regular ceremony, consisting of the scout laws, oath and the pledge of allegiance to the flag.

An instruction period was held after which the troop was divided into five groups, as follows: Signalling group, second class, first class, tenderfoot and cubs. Each division passed several tests.

A talk by the scoutmaster was given on the coming Jamboree.

Three Troop Two boys are to make the Loving trip. Miller McDaniel will give the significance of the badge and the history of the flag, and Bill Morton and Ed Miller will demonstrate the several methods of signalling.

The meeting closed with the usual ceremony.

Troop Two's baseball team lost its first game by a score of 20-17 to the Longhorns. This is only the first game and the team did well to hold the veteran Longhorns to this low score. Much new material was located and, with the old ones from last year, Scoutmaster McClure expects to develop a real team before the season is over. Plans are under way to join the Junior City league this summer.

Troop Two's challenge of an archery contest with any troop in town at a convenient date for both is still open.

TROOP SIXTEEN

Troop Sixteen, Kenneth Erwin, scoutmaster, held their regular meeting Friday night at the First Baptist church, with 26 members and two visitors in attendance.

Mr. P. C. Barron, troop committeeman, presented second class badge to Edward Fry and first class badges to Fred Barron Jr., James Thornton and Harold Gerock.

The troop adopted a rule to only invite visitors on the first Friday of each month, on which occasion a demonstration of scouting activities will be given.

A round-table discussion of requirements for the personal health merit badge was held.

Contestants in a marshmallow-eating contest, in which both feeders and eaters were blindfolded, emerged with faces somewhat smeared with lampblack, but stated the marshmallows were fine.

TROOP THREE

Troop Three, Lee Loeffler, scoutmaster, held their regular meeting Friday night at the First Methodist church. The meeting opened with assembly and "To the Colors," by J. G. Dixon on the bugle. Patrol inspection followed, with the Black Bear patrol winning.

The bulletin from scout headquarters was read by Charles Aston and the scoutmaster made comments on the important announcements.

Homer Lee donated some boys' books to the troop library.

Rollin Dixon and Homer Lee will represent the troop on the demonstration team which will make trips to nearby cities to give scouting better publicity.

A contest on respect due the flag was held, with Milton Cooke of the Raven patrol winning.

A first aid contest was also held which Billy Mowery won.

All scouts in the troop were urged to bring books, magazines and the like to the troop library and Rollin Dixon volunteered to make a book case in his manual training class at school.

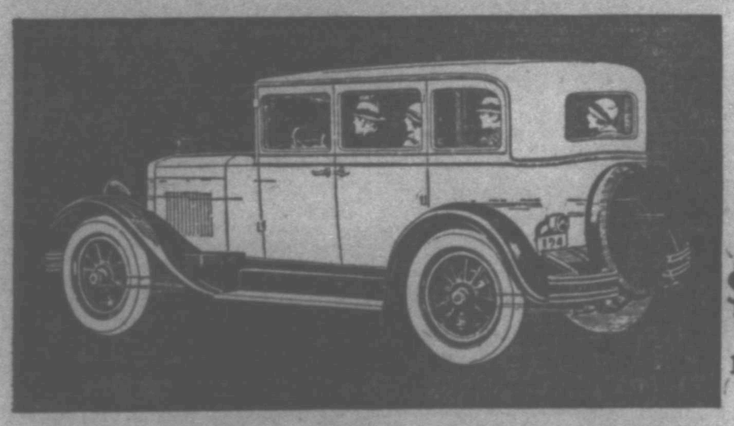

Two scouts were appointed to help Mr. Bohmfalk, religious education director, repair broken chairs for the church.

Once More—Stop! Look! Listen!

There's another solemn warning for careless autoists in this picture. Five people were hurled into eternity when a fast train crashed into a Ford coupe on a level crossing at Wellsville, Kan. The shattered wreck of the car was dragged along the right of way for 50 yards before it was hurled to the side of the track.

6 GOOD REASONS WHY YOU SHOULD BUY THE ERSKINE SIX CUSTOM FOUR-DOOR SEDAN

$995 F.O.B. FACTORY

1 All steel body, custom design, with deep drawn steel stampings forming beautiful curved lines at the back, and curved side members carried over the top, constituting the finest possible body construction. Body trimming of Bedford cord and broadcloth. Novel instrument board in duotone colors, with cigarette and glove boxes built in, gasoline gauge and customary instruments. Fine hardware and interior decoration. Entire body much superior to any competitive $1,000 job ever offered in America. Comparisons are urgently invited and will prove convincing.

2 Chassis of modern simplified design. Material and workmanship of Studebaker quality throughout, comparable to the finest obtainable. Self-energizing four-wheel brakes, nickel plated bumpers front and rear, motometer, beautiful crown fenders, and numerous other quality features never before furnished in a $1,000 car.

3 Beauty and smartness characterize the car. The body, fenders and general outlines were designed by R. H. Dietrich, one of the foremost custom body designers of the country. The car has irresistible style appeal. It created a sensation at all of the European automobile shows and the shows in this country, where it was viewed by over two million people.

4 The performance of the car is remarkably efficient and much superior to most, if not all, cars in the $1,000 field. It will accelerate from 5 to 25 miles in 8½ seconds; climb an 11% grade in high gear and develop 60 miles per hour. It is free from mechanical defects and will stay out of the repair shop.

5 The car is well balanced, with scientific spring suspension and seat cushioning. The result is the superior riding qualities of the big, high priced cars. In riding comfort, the car is equaled by few, if any, small cars on the market.

6 The price of $995 f. o. b. Detroit is low compared with half a dozen other Sixes selling for more money. Actual comparisons with such cars, ranged alongside an Erskine, will demonstrate the truth of this assertion.

Adventures In The Shops

AS TOLD BY Jacqueline

NOVELTY jewelry—the seal of 1927 upon Easter costumes—will be found in its latest, most attractive versions, in the Gift Department of the Cinderella Shop. Miss Cummins offers unusual party favors and prizes along with this newly arrived novelty jewelry, which includes tear-drop ear-rings.

RE-UPHOLSTERING, refinishing and repairing are the furniture exercises for "keeping fit." Don't let your home be shabby and faded at Easter time—the Furniture Hospital, 915 Bluff, can make it new.

A REDUCTION which would not be expected until after Easter and comes two full weeks before as a doubly pleasant surprise, is being made at the Orchid Shop on almost all dresses and coats, regardless of price. Some of the finest dresses bear tags marked off as much as one-half, while all spring suits, well-tailored twills and tweeds, are reduced one-third. Even the handsome dress coats—are included.

At this time of the year, women have decided upon colors and styles for their spring costumes, and many of them have seen the very things desired among the elegant creations at the Orchid Shop, often a little beyond the price planned, however—now this unusual reduction places the beautiful things of all prices for sports, formal and semi-formal wear within their reach, before Easter, too!

Several hundred new frocks—la dernier cri in gorgeous colors and chic designs for spring have arrived in the Sweet Sixteen Shop.

EASTER is the dividing line between spring and summer and as surely as the equator bands the region of torrid days, Easter marks off the days when ice is indispensible. Yet, new clothes, to set off face and figure to the best advantage, are occupying much more time than the thought of how to preserve the expensive food which goes to make that body healthy and happy. Indeed, with modern conveniences, all that is necessary is to secure the courteous service of a reliable ice factory. This, the Wichita Ice Company is—their prompt and dependable delivery will not fail on the very day an ice-box for sickness is imperative, neither will the ice man pass you by when plans have been made for that wonderful home made ice cream, nor arrive after the milk has soured.

It is the earnest wish of the Wichita Ice Company to offer friendly and economical service 365 days of the year, and their patrons find that they do so with a pure, clear ice and a courtesy, which together form one of the firmest foundations of la cuisine.

"A DIARY of a Young Lady of Fashion of 1927" would undoubtedly reveal the importance of negligee in her wardrobe. A wardrobe for the hour of relaxation deserves as much consideration as any other item, and those shown at McClurkan's were carefully selected with the fact in mind that smart women are as particular in the choice of robes as of tea gowns.

The imported ones shown here with their gorgeous oriental coloring, often Chinese motifs on a black ground, resemble nothing so much as some of the more decorative paintings in modern art collections. The color is so pure and bright, the cut so graceful and free, the wonderful quality of silk so pleasant to feel, that it is no wonder these stunning robes have attained the pinnacle of smartness. An imported Batik, with hand-knotted fringe, would make a Cleopatra out of any woman!

"THE Great Deception," with Aileen Pringle and Ben Lyon, at the Olympic theater, is a romance of the British Secret Service during the World war. Ben Lyon does some dangerous stunt flying and Miss Pringle wears stunning clothes as only she can wear them.

One of Teddy Roosevelt's Rough Riders, McGinty, with his famous Cowboy Band, gives a wonderfully successful vaudeville act.

"NEW YORK'S latest" is the close fitting small hat completely covered with flowers and leaves. Mr. Miller, of Miller-Ferguson's, has just returned from market in the metropolis with some of these extraordinarily spring-like and becoming chapeaux in the well-known "Miliam" Paris Hats, priced at $5.95 and $7.95.

THE Wichita Floral Company moved, April 1, to 911 Indiana, and those who have not yet visited this new home of flowers should stop for a few moments to enjoy the fragrant beauty. Romanesque arches and tiled floor combine to create a charming Spanish atmosphere, and the refrigerated display box contains three times the number of radiant Bobb Blossoms shown at the former location.

Beautiful flowers are in their proper setting at the Wichita Floral Company. One may expect much of the Easter offerings.

HAVE you planned a peacock costume for Easter? That is, one with thought devoted to a resplendent frock and hat, the shoes forgotten. If you have, you'll find that it is not half so easy for a human being to walk with head proudly erect when the feet are shabby as it is for a peacock!

Williams' is the place to buy your Easter shoes at the smallest cost and in the newest designs.

$5.95 values include a much-sought-for type—a really pretty shoe with a sensible heel in beige kid.

$4.85 marks well-cut plain, step-in patent pumps which need no recommendation, but hold their smart place season after season.

A FREE FACIAL with absolutely no obligation is the offer of the Haley Drug company. Call either Haley's No. 1 or No. 2, give your name and address and the skilled young woman, employed by them especially for this purpose, will come to your home and give a facial, free of charge, using Francis Derma Plasta, a facial rejuvenator, a French mud pack, which is a specific remedy for all cases of greasy skin, pimples and enlarged pores, and is an eradicator and preventative of lines, wrinkles and hollows. It is a complexion beautifier par excellent, draws the impurities out of the pores and absorbs all pigment discolorations by proper circulation of the blood in the face, leaving the skin clear and beautiful.

Haley's Drug Stores carry a full line of the famous Francis Willcox preparations, and will be glad to give you the opportunity of sampling them through the free facial, without obligation.

IT is not necessary to wear old clothes to the Easter service to stay within the allowance. The DeLuxe Dry Cleaners will successfully dye a last year's favorite frock in any of the new shades from the full range of smart blues, dark and bright, to spring greens, coral reds and yellows, fashionable and serviceable beiges—any tint desired. And in a new shade with its lustrous freshness returned, is not a dress new? Send one to the De Luxe and see—those who have done so once are doing so again. Even the light colored summer coat can be dyed a new pastel shade, if you wish. Perhaps these coats and dresses are in no way faded or spotted, and only need cleaning, then send them to the De Luxe as well, but if you are at all weary of them, it would be advisable to make it a dyeing order, for here it is done expertly.

After all, Easter can come within the budget.

THE largest sale of the year, Miller-Ferguson's great annual pre-Easter sale, will take place Monday and Tuesday. They let me take a preliminary peep at the from six to eight hundred dresses which will be hung on racks in the center of the main floor tomorrow, and the wide variety and wonderful values are simply amazing!

$19.75 is the price placed, for two days, on frocks of every type—sport, afternoon and street, the popular four-piece suits among them, which, at any other time, are sold for from $35 to $45.75. No matter what fabrics, what color, what type of what size the shopper is in search of, it is to be found at this almost unbelievable reduction at Miller-Ferguson's. The sizes range from 13 to 52, the styles include those suitable for every occasion, as already named, and are of the latest designs and colors (from pop-corn yellow and wild aster, to the smart navys and beiges). The fabrics skip from lace-trimmed georgette and chiffon to filmy evening frocks, to roshanaras and flat crepes. The dress you have planned must be among them.

Mr. Miller has just returned from late market in New York, where these frocks were purchased with the idea of selling 848 frocks for $19.75 in a wonderful pre-Easter sale. Don't forget to set the alarm!

JUST received—new shades in all-silk full-fashioned chiffon hose, $1.50, at the Rose Shoppe, located in Benson Shoe Store. Miss Hettye Garrison, proprietor.

"ANYTHING, anywhere, anytime"—how often one wishes all three could be obtained from one concern which could be trusted to measure up to expectations for general service, and now comes the Webb Electric Company with that very slogan. Call at 1108 Lamar street for any item in a complete electrical line, or for "Anything, Anywhere, Anytime!" Telephone 3301.

NOT just ordinary rabbits, but spotted ones, baby chicks that rival those of Bon Ami advertisements, lovely Easter lilies, and bricks, yellow and white or with egg centers, are the wonderfully decorative deserts for Eastertide in Colvert's delicious ice cream.

Those who have eaten Colvert's tinted molds on previous occasions know that, aside from being undoubtedly the most attractive dessert one can serve, this cream is a real, nourishing food.

The Easter molds seem especially pretty, and children or adults, at parties and celebrations before the seventeenth or at dinner that day, will enjoy an ice cream rabbit far more than "the cook book's price."

SPRING is just around the corner! In the midst of brightness and newness you simply can't walk around in old-looking and soiled clothes. If you haven't any new clothes for Easter, make them look new by sending your garments to Evans Dyer and Cleaner for expert cleaning.

PICTURE a fresh mountain lake with a gray haze hanging above—the misty gray that is "Haze" has been selected as the shade of the month for Arteraft Hosiery. These monthly shades are chosen from those confirmed by smart women abroad, and are always reasonable. Nothing so appropriate as this soft gray could be found for April wear and, as the spring days lengthen into summer, Arterafts shades will become correspondingly lighter.

This is one of the wonderfully helpful fashion services at F. B. M. Company. Aside from "Haze," twenty-one other new shades are carried in this $1.95 hose of sheerest chiffon.

SPORTING NEWS — THE RECORD NEWS — FIRST ACCURATE COMPLETE

RUNYON SAYS

D. Runyon a Champ—Is One Fast Hound—Holds a World's Record—A Famous Race Horse—Now in Retirement—

By DAMON RUNYON

NEW YORK, April 2.—That good hound, Damon Runyon, has established himself as one of the fastest canines in the land, a champion, no less. I quote you from the Greyhound Racing form of a couple of weeks back relating a remarkable event down Miami way:

"Another world's record went crashing at Hialeah park Saturday night, when Damon Runyon, as flashy a thoroughbred as ever came across from England, ran rampant and tore around the quarter-mile oval in the sensational time of 25 seconds flat, breaking the mark set by old Skookum in Tulsa, Okla., six years ago."

It shows you that there is something in a name, after all. I have always disregarded that crack about a rose by any other monicker smelling as sweet. It is inconceivable that as Hype Igoe, for instance, or as Grantland Rice the good hound, Damon Runyon, could have tore around that old oval in the manner depicted above. No, it took a Damon Runyon.

"The story is briefly told," says Racing Form, "for it was all Damon Runyon—one fawn streak from break to wire, with seven speedy greyhounds trying valiantly to match foot with him; but unable to get close. Royal Meadows, the nearest one at the end, did himself proud by running second in such fast time, and Professor, the Miles juvenile, which has been running so well, took no discredit on himself by finishing third."

I believe that this performance makes amends for the shortcomings of the famous race horse, Damon Runyon, and in part for the inglorlousness of the setter dog, Damon Runyon.

I have just received a letter from Mr. O'Neill Sevier, the turf expert, owner of the setter dog, Damon Runyon, and of 655 other setter dogs in various parts of Maryland, and he informs me that Damon Runyon is certainly a setter, that he sets all the time.

As to the famous race horse, Damon Runyon, I have no information at this time. He was named by Mr. John E. Madden, the noted breeder, who has recently announced his retirement. I do not know that Mr. Madden's retirement is due to mortification and chagrin over the fact that he bred the famous race horse, Damon Runyon, but the fact remains that Mr. Madden is retiring. You can draw your own conclusions.

I believe that the race horse, Damon Runyon, also has retired. The last I heard of him he was owned by Mr. McMillan, head of the Thistledown track in Cleveland and after viewing a few of Damon Runyon's performances on the turf, Mr. McMillan tossed a coin to see whether he would retire the horse or shoot him. Heads won. Damon Runyon is in dignified retirement.

The trouble with Damon Runyon was that he was bred for three furlong races, and it seems there are no races that short. He would win all his races for three furlongs, but thereafter would seem to meet with defeat. If ever they shorten up the r..ces I shall purchase Damon Runyon and bring him out of retirement.

The retirement of Damon Runyon was of economical value to me, at that. Before I learned that the standard race was too long for him, I used to have a small sentimental wager on him any time he would have been a pauper. You know you can finally two-dollar yourself into the poor house.

Only yesterday I came upon Mr. Billy McCarney, the well known ol 'leo' man of Pistiana standing on a Broadway corner, peering at a racing extra with deep interest.

"There's a horse called Billy McCarney running down south, he explained. "I've had a bet on him every time he started because I appreciate the compliment of him being named for me, but so far he's been a bust. You know I have to keep three good fighters working every week to provide me with dough to bet on Billy McCarney, the horse, and they're getting sick of it."

Still a man ought to be reasonably safe betting on a champion of the world like Damon Runyon, the hound. If he can run faster than any other dog in the world, there is practically no risk. I note that he paid $3.60 in the dog mutuels the day he broke the world's record.

My one regret in connection with Damon Runyon, the world's champ, is that he isn't a home bred. He was born in England in 1924, the son of Jerrom and Hilda XV, and came to this country in the steerage. He belongs to Mr. Cal Miller. I do not know Mr. Miller personally, but I realize that he must be a man of great discernment to give a dog a good name. The popular custom, I believe, is to give 'em bad names.

It seems that there are other world's records for racing greyhounds besides that established by Damon Runyon at Miami. These records may interest the reader as showing how fast the dogs can run the different distances as compared to race horses. I take the following from the Greyhound Racing Form.

Distance, dog, Time:

5-16—Kiowa (Tulsa) 18 1-5.

1-4—Damon Runyon (Miami) 25.

Futurity—Terrasfoot (Newark) 28 1-5.

5-16—Oh Boy (Miami) 31 2-5.

3-8—Mission Boy (Tulsa) 39 2-5.

7-16—Midnight Poe (Miami) 38 2-5.

1-2—Alma (New Orleans) 49 2-5.

9-16—Lady Like (Miami) 47.

DOOLAN SQUAD STOWS OPENER

Spring Wildness Leads To Spudder Tip-Over

By BLONDY CROSS.

Michael Doolan with a squadron of this, that and the other selected from the exceptionally large Chicago Cubs' brigade registered in Dallas at the moment, blew into Wichita Falls late Friday and early Saturday afternoon went on the warpath, assaulting our noble Spudders in their own territory for the first of a scheduled two-game affair.

Rouprich's wildness was no bar to victory, for the Cubs overcame an early lead when Big Jim Roberts got tired or something and misplaced his control apparatus in the seventh and they (the Cub yanigans or what would you) were awarded a 10-6 verdict.

Rouprich went the route and allowed six safeties. Our nine's bludgeons didn't do much talking. But inaccurancy of the Cub thrower walked sufficient of our athletes to make matters interesting. The orphaned Williams wall o p e r s squeezed across in the second, fourth and fifth enough runs to cause Spudder hopes to fume fierce and full. But Rouprich clamped down in the sixth and thereafter refused to budge a runner further than second and only one got that far.

Beck led the Chi advance, scoring Roberts for a couple of two-baggers and a single. He pulled a pass from Jim, also, and worked a walk out of John Buvid who essayed the rescue act in the seventh. Jim kind of ascended in this round. Took matters somewhat easily, was tagged for a brace of bingles and then walked a pair. John came along and couldn't refrain from walking several, too.

The Spudders looked pretty sweet afield but were running low on gun powder or whatever is the ingredient with which Williams and Lieut. Lamb prime the heavy artillery. The pitching wasn't so poor. Just the usual spring wildness.

Osborn to Pitch

Second game is carded for Sunday p. m. at 3. Bob Osborn, the former Spud, will endeavor to chunk nine innings against the Gardner interests, according to Harry Neily, veteran Chicago sports writer, who is serving as business manager of the club. Harry has nothing on us, however. We tell the world, we're managing the Spudders and intend to pitch S. Hodge and G. Payne.

The Dooian detachment clustered three bingles with a couple of sacrifices in the lead-off round for a matter of two runs. Beck, Freigau and Tolson bombed singles off the Robertian delivery. Scott and English were guilty of the sacrificial efforts. The Spuds might have done something in the same frame when LaFayette started off with a walk but for sudden eruption on the Cub infield, Rouprich, Beck and Tolson springing into double play action on Mann's bounder at the box.

Beck stuck in a dirty double to center behind an error by Jim himself during the second, scoring another and giving Chicago a three-run advantage, but Rouprich developed a sudden liberality even before the chukker was completed, walked five and donated tallies enough to tie the score. Turgeon figured with a single and sacrifice hotsts were raised by Roberts and Mann. Lamb came near whipping a single through short but English had glue in his glove.

Both clubs took a recess in the third and the Spudders came up for a marker in the fourth on a single by Lapan, who was forced at second by Roberts, Mann's double and a kick by Beck.

Jim Pokes Fence

Jenkins got on via the four-balls route as a fifth-round starter for the Spudders and Swenson dropped a single into left. Lapan punched out to the center fielder and Big Jim laced a liner against the port parapet for two bases and two runs. Figure that one out. The lead was frail, for while Rouprich tightened up in the sixth and seventh the enemy shoved over six scores. Two bases on balls, a fly to center by Welch and a one-baser by Rouprich sent a run into the slot as the sixth-inning apportionment. Doubles by Beck and Scott connived with free transportation to Tolson and English for the dismantling of large Jim in the seventh. With another run over the plate and three left on the runways, Roberts relinquished the knob to Buvid. John walked a couple, which with a single by Welch and Rouprich's sacrifice aviation chased four more into the counting col.

The Cubiets closed out in the ninth with a run on a walk, force, wild pitch and another bingle by Rouprich.

"A Great Fighter Is a Game Fighter," Says Tunney, Who Does Not Consider Carpentier Great

COYOTES GRAB TRACK HONORS

Vernon Cops Second Place In Invitation Meet

By taking eight first places and compiling a total of 67 points, Wichita Falls high school easily won the second invitational track and field meet held on the local field Saturday. Vernon, mainly through the work of Cleis Key came second with 26 points, while Bowie was a close third with a total of 25 points. Petrolia, throughs first in the mile run, and third places in the javelin and discus throws, collected seven points. Sadler, of Bowie, was the outstanding star of the meet and by showing the others how to hurdle the field events, annexed 12 points to be the high-point man of the meet.

There was really no outstanding man on the Coyote team, but their superiority is evidenced by the fact that they obtained eight firsts out of 14 events.

Swimming Team Flaps Expert Fins

AUSTIN, April 2. (AP)—The University of Texas swimming team with the return of six men from last year's squad, has already begun practice for the coming season. Captain Bernard Bernbaum, who manages the team, is enthusiastic over prospects as the same men are on deck who during the past season set a time in the relay only two seconds above that of Yale, whose team was national champion.

Among the men who are back this year are: Fred Nagle of Austin, crack back stroke man; Leslie Bowling of Austin, distance man; Houston Hendrix of Fort Worth, fancy diver; Irving Loeb of Austin, 50 and 100-yard man, and Lewis Hamby of Austin.

"I expect to fight Dempsey again this year."

That's what Gene Tunney told me as we stopped on the twelfth tee at Midwick Country club, near the Pasadena that is in California. Gene had just smacked a ripping drive from the hill down into the valley.

"Can Dempsey hit like that?" he asked turning around. "What kind of a game does Dempsey play?"

"Oh, he hits them far enough," I said. "I've seen him outdrive Von Elm. As for scoring, last time I had a game with Jack he scored 56 on the first nine and 45 on the second. His short game isn't so much. That's where he loses a lot of strokes. He doesn't play enough golf to be steady, but he's always much better on the second nine."

"Forty-five isn't bad," said Tunney, thoughtfully. "And that improvement on the second nine is a good quality."

"I'll call Jack up and get him out for a game if you'd like to play him," I said. "He's a good sport. I think he'd like to shoot around with you."

"No," said Tunney. "That wouldn't do at all. No fraternizing. I can't fraternize with Dempsey. It would look queer. It might cause some criticism. I expect to fight Dempsey again this year. When that's all over I might play a game of golf with him, but not before."

Tunney started down the hill. At the next hole Tunney, Billy Gibson, Walter Leimert and I were all in traps around the green. Tunney took a niblick and his explosion shot heaved up about a barrel of sand and dropped the ball beside the cup. He grinned.

At the next tee we all got off good drives. Billy Gibson's ball went out in a low arc, hooking slightly.

"Gibson's deadly on that drive," said Tunney, looking admiringly at his manager. "He has a loose swing and when he hits them they go. That lifting of the right elbow is an idiosyncrasy of his own, but it seems to put a whip in the shot. I think he has outdriven us."

He had, by 20 yards.

Gibson overshot into a deep trap. Tunney overshot into the trap. Gene tried to play out with a putter, twice. But he came out of the trap smiling. Gibson popped his out with a niblick, close to the pin, Gene grinned.

"You'll have to sink yours," he said to me, "or Gibson's going to collect your money. We need those two points."

I missed the putt. Tunney still grinned. That guy has no nerves.

Draws Line at Golf With Opponents

As we walked to the next tee I said to Tunney:

"Dempsey played a game of golf with Carpentier, and that was after they were matched and before they fought."

"I know," said Tunney. "I saw a photograph of them standing together. Carpentier looked so much smaller than Dempsey. It was foolish fo rthm to appear together before the fight, I think."

Gene looked as if he certainly wouldn't do anything foolish.

"Carpentier was a great fighter, though," said. "He was a hard hitter for a light heavyweight. He'd knocked out a lot of heavyweights in Europe and he had a chance to get that punch over. Don't you think so."

Gene looked at me reprovingly and said nothing. Probably he was thinking what an easy time he had when he held out his chin and took Carpentier's right hand wallops, and then hit the French champion so hard in the stomach that he didn't come up for the next round.

We played another hole. Gene was still thinking about something, for he sliced into the rough, played out short of a trap and pitched over past the pin.

"My idea of a great fighter," he said, as we walked on, "is a man who never quits—who would be killed before he'd quit. No great fighter ever lost a fight without being knocked out. Except by a decision, of course. Two well matched men may fight a limited number of rounds and neither be able to knock the other out. But no great fighter ever stopped because he was hurt, no matter how badly he was hurt. A real fighter will fight on while he's conscious. His spirit will struggle to make his body rise and go on fighting, even if he knows he'll be killed by the next blow. He must be completely knocked out, completely helpless, before he's beaten. I'll give Dempsey credit for being that kind of a fighter. Nothing but his courage carried him through that last round or two at Philadelphia. He was hopelessly beaten and I was trying my best to finish him, but he would not go down or back away or turn his face from punishment. And he didn't stop trying to get me, either.

"No, I don't consider Carpentier a great fighter, according to our standards. He may have been a courageous soldier—I don't know about that. But he has been stopped several times in the ring and not knocked out. He stopped when he was still able to stand up. They always claimed a foul when he was whipped. It takes more than cleverness and a winning punch to make a great fighter. I'd think more of Carpentier if he'd been knocked out. He finished too many fights sitting in his chair."

A Mental Picture

Tunney stood still and stared up the fairway toward the eighteenth green.

I could almost see what he was thinking, though he didn't put it into words. He was picturing Gene Tunney on the floor, battered, crawling up again and again to fight—knocked down, knocked senseless, perhaps, but never whipped.

He had a very grim look on his face.

Then Gene shook himself, and grinned.

"Come on," he said. "We've got to win this hole or Gibson and Leimert are going to trim us. We're dormie now."

Gene swung so hard that he must have flattened the ball out like a pancake. The ball started straight for the fairway, hooked violently, thudded against a bunker and bounced into a trap. Gibson's ball plunked in beside Gene's. Walter was up in the middle of the fairway. I was in the clover. Gibson tried to make distance from trap and lost a shot. He took two to get out, and then hooked into the tough. Bill was sunk. Gene heaved out a load of sand and the ball flew a hundred yards up the fairway. His third was on the corner of the green, 40 feet from the pin. I topped into another trap, took two to get out. I was sunk, like Bill. Leimert played softly and diplomatically up the long slope. His third left him a 10-foot putt.

"If I sink this and you miss it's a draw," said Gene.

He walked around his ball, backed up the hill, squinted at the sloping green, came back and putted deliberately and without hesitation. The ball rolled toward the cup. It kept on rolling. It rolled more slowly. Right for the middle of the cup! In all the way!

If this were fiction I'd stop right here. But accuracy, terseness, accuracy, the rule of the newspaper scribe, won't let me.

Leimert sank his putt.

"That knocks us out," said Tunney. "We'll have a return match at the Bellvue-Stratford in Westchester in May."

SPORT a la CARTE

BY ROY GROVE

What's your favorite grouch? They've all got 'em. Before Delaney met Maloney he would have easily won the world's heavyweight championship. Today he is a bum; the favorite flashes, that's all. This is the realm and period of the underdog in champions.

Jay Thomas was telling us so the other day and in just those words. Take it or leave it, he's always interesting in saying whatever he says, as:

How long will the folks who frolic to fisticuffs be lulled into the belief they are going to see men physically fit to put forth their best efforts and then, sir, through a lack luster event as thrilling as a thrice told tale, vexing the eye of a drowsy man?

Take the recent Maloney-Delaney bout. Up until the eve of battle both were, according to their own statements and the physicians who examined them, fit to fight the marines, bayonets and all. These sweethearts of super slugging were ready to break down in tears if any one suggested it would go the limit, the fatal fifth was the latest possible.

Now no one is going to prefer charges against them for being confident of presenting each other with a one way ticket to the Sandman, but now that it is over, why are they now able to do the Columbus and discover the many ailments preventing same?

Delaney, he of the lightning lookers, soul scaring sock, the (buttoned) rapier of the north, craft of McCoy, speed of Corbett, punch of Fitz, the acme of masculine perfection. The things he didn't have, he didn't need; upon examination proclaimed fit to braid the beard of a royal Bengal.

But after going through 10 rounds, making more threatening gestures than the Japs, and doing less damage than rain water, he blew the duke. It was then discovered he had tennis elbow and from the amount of reverse action he displayed he trained for a tennis match; surely those prices would have been more appropriate. He exhibited more holds than Paddock ever knew and they say he had a thousand. His ulna bone also slipped crosswise of his dorsal pectoralis, shutting off his breath and making it extremely difficult for Pete Riley to count the crate of cash."—That's that!

Well, I suppose I ought to have known this guy Lamb would disobey orders. But Carl Williams when he turned the Spudders over to me declared that Lucy very well could be trusted as a lieutenant but just naturally wouldn't do if allowed to be whole hog. And Lucy tried to be whole hog yesterday. Thereby hinges the explanation of how the Doolan dragoons dug out a win over yours and my team.

In the first place, if Lucy had made Fitz play back on Back in the second like I told him this bird never would have hit that fly ball over Hilarity Howard for a double and a run.

We told the nine not to swing at any unless they were over the plate and that is how come we pulled five bases on balls out of Rouprich or something similar, in the second inning and scored three runs. And this system worked pretty good in the fourth and fifth, but Lucy got to nosing around in the sixth and noticed Wichita Falls wasn't getting many base hits. He didn't stop to consider the money end of the deal, but got frothy and told the gang to go on out there and crack that guy Rouprich, or whatever he is, off of there. You see what happened. They never got another run.

Then if Lucy had of pulled Big Jim in the sixth like I semaphored him when Jim walked the first two men up, maybe the enemy would not have scored five runs in the seventh. Yes, maybe.

Kind of fooled the boys, at that. Had our batting order working backwards. Turgeon, Swenson, Lapan and Roberts, hitting 6, 7, 8 and 9, did all our walloping, what there was of it, that is, if you overlook the larrup by Laffy and the maul by Mann.

YUS.

Now that I have got off my chest all I have to say about Lamb is for taking the bit in his teeth and double-crossing me, as it were. I'm willing to confess that he's a pretty fine little fellow and that with my aid we will be out there this afternoon battling 'em for bear, or whatever it is, major league pilots are supposed to say they are going to battle for. And, of course, I don't necessarily mean to infer that the Spudders are a major league team but will confess that I and Lucy could be major league managers just any old afternoon only we don't relish the climate along the Atlantic seaboard.

THE BIG OUTLAY.

Mike Doolan, through his organ of proclamation, Harry Neily, cunning scrivener of the Chicago American sports staff, admitted last night that he has arranged a plot whereby our old friend Long Bob Osborn will endeavor to spank us again this afternoon from the Chi chunking eminence. I and Lamble counter with the sturdy Shovel Hodge and G. Wash. Payne. Both these last named hombres have been crying for an opportunity to travel the distance but the well-known managerial partnership has decided to be stern with the athletes and not give them all they want just whenever they want it. You go onto the wrong side of the ledger whenever you spoil a ball player. I and Lamble dare say Prez J. A. Gardner would write a testimonial to the tune of that. So Shovel is going to shove just so far this p. m. and G. Washington is going to shove the further.

You all want to be there and see our strategy. Which reminds I notice there is heavier attendance at the park since Lucy and I are doing the heavy thinking.

Have not guaranteed you a win yet this afternoon. Both of us always did kind of like Osborn. And that's one agreeable feature, if any, about managing a club in the spring; when you lose it doesn't matter. We shall be glad to return Mr. Williams' club to him, however, just any time so long as it is before April 13 when the season begins.

The managerial geniuses have decided to take Big Jim to task just as soon as we get today's bout off our hands. Jim was entirely too inaccurate with his heaves yesterday. We no doubt shall give him his choice of practicing diligently on control the next couple of weeks or going down to Mexia for more seasoning and let some youngster have his job here. All the hurlers on this club have got to be domesticated. If the veterans don't crack down and get to slinging 'em in there we're going to give 'm the air. They're too many ambitious kids on the club now pushing up for a shot at the large money. Take that as a tip straight from this manager.

With managing a baseball team and a wife and telling the big boss where to get off at these days this young man is busy indeed.

T. C. U. Will Erect $500,000 Stadium

FORT WORTH, April 2. (AP)—A $500,000 athletic stadium is a part of the plans of expansion at Texas Christian university which were announced yesterday following the purchase of 68 acres of land adjoining the campus. Construction of the stadium which will be of concrete, will not begin for two or three years however, D. E. M. Waits, president of the school, said today.

The increased demand for seats at football games has made enlarged seating facilities necessary.

She's All Over But the Celebration, Girls, and Champ Kilowatts are Ready for That WeHup, she's all over now, girls and boys, except the celebrating. Mister Charley Spragins' Texas Electric Service company quintet has copped the first women's basketball league championship there ever was in Wichita Falls. The league, organized and sponsored by The Record News sports department, proved a huge success due greatly, however, to the work of Leon Moore, league secretary, the team coaches, Frank Ramsey, Pug Day, Chubby Neal, John Clary, Charley Spragins and John Barnard, and the unstinted cooperation of the coy cagers themselves.

Not only was the league a success in the sport and athletic benefits realized but it went across wonderfully from a financial angle. The companies backing teams, Texas Electric Service company, Willys-Knight-Whippet company, P. B. M. company and the Continental Oil company, were refunded their entrance payments and were reimbursed to an extent on equipment expenses.

The Electrics won the first half of the split season drive and then came back in a tie for last half honors with P. B. M. A one-game play-off victory went to the Kilowatts, settling the championship.

Members of the champion team are to be feted at a dance and celebration April 9 at which time backers of the team will award individual players gold basketball tokens and The Record News will present the league's first championship loving cup.

Spudders Same Old Mystery Club, Avers Pop Boone

Wichita Falls Has Unique Baseball Experiences, Always Touted But Always Failed In the Past, and Now—?

After mulling over the dope he has at hand, the eminent Pop Boone, Texas' leading baseball critic and Fort Worth sports writer, tells his readers in his column of the Fort Worth Press that Carl Williams' Spudders menace again but still carry the inevitable question mark that has tagged Wichita Falls teams since league entrance. Writes Pop:

What of the Spudders? Well, they look to me to be the same mystery club they've been ever since the hustling young oil town took over a franchise in the Texas league. Nobody ever has been able to explain just exactly why they haven't made a better showing in the baseball world. Each year they've put out a good ball club, only to see it crumble.

I never get in a fanning bee with Paul La Grave that he doesn't bring up the ball club they had up there about four years ago, I think it was. Almost every man on that club has since gone to the big leagues and a lot of 'em stuck. They had a remarkable pitching staff, a canny catcher, a great infield and a big league outfield. Yet the Cats, with just a medium okra team, kicked the pants offen 'em in every clinch.

That Spud club had the most unique experience in the history of baseball, bar none. They were a game and a half behind the Cats about mid-season—so close they didn't split the season that year, if I remember aright. After winning 25 straight ball games they looked at the standings and found they were only a game and a half ahead of the Cats. We then kicked 'em loose in a series and went on to victory.

Next to the Steers, the Spudders have the nearest to a holdover combination. They've strengthened in their only weak spots, apparently. As usual, the Spuds have been making many runs. In 11 exhibition games they've made 90-odd tallies, an average of almost nine to the tilt. They've played three with the Sox, two with St. Paul, two or three with Oklahoma City. Still poundin' the pill.

Only a few new faces. The lineup seems fairly well set, with Pete Lapan and Tobin as catchers; LaFayette, first base; Pete Turgeon at second; Johnny Mann at short; Swede Swenson at third; Jenkins, Fitzgerald and Lamb in the outfield; Benton, as utility. You'll notice the new names in this outfit are Tobin, secured from Portland of the Coast league; Mann, who hails from the South Atlantic, and Swenson, from the Western.

My opinion, after watching the dope closely, is that Lapan and Tobin will split the work behind the plate. Tobin has hit the ball well and is touted by Coast players as a high class receiver. We all know Lapan can hit in any league and unless Tobin is an exceptional hitter he'll not catch more than half the ball games. But we'll say they're strengthened behind the bat.

* * *

I didn't see enough of this LaFayette at first base last year to form any large opinion of him. He has yet to prove himself any star in this league. He was hurt last year, which handicapped him, and all reports say he's as good as ever now and so far has satisfied all the customers with the way he holds down the initial corner and whales the patooto.

* * *

Everybody in Spudville is wild about Johnny Mann, at short. Never have the Spudders been extra well fortified for a shortstopper and they look for this young gentleman to lead them out of the wilderness. By the way, he comes from the South Atlantic league, where Redfern usta be—and Redfern outfielded and outhit him. This by way of comment, only.

Rabbit Benton seems destined for the utility job so far. Swenson is not noted as a whale of a hitter and has been only so-so in the exhibition games but he has looked like a great fielder—and all the clubs, remember, are looking to better defense than before. Everybody knows Pete Turgeon, who will need no comment. This also goes for the outfield, which appears a curly wolf, no foolin'.

Much depends on the condition Carl Williams can get his pitchers in. He is trying to make the grade himself this year, which may and may not be a good plan for the skipper of a club. In fact, few pitchers have ever set any managerial works afire, but there's exceptions to all rules.

Williams has some great potential strength on his staff of veterans. It is possible that Jim Roberts, Fred Fussell, Steengraaf and himself he has the nucleus for a winning staff. Any baseball man will tell you that four pitchers win every penant that's won—or swing it, at any rate.

However, Williams has a large flock of other beavers still hanging around. Himself a pitcher's he's a good judge of pitchers and should come up with one or two other lads who can help out. Maybe he'll get a phenom or two that will swing the deal.

However, I would say just now that the Spudders are the same old mystery team—great on paper, but nobody knows whether they'll breeze through the league like a stake hoss in a selling race or start switching their tail when asked to level down and run. We'll all admit they have possibilities and surely they bear out their end of Doak Roberts' statement that the league looks a lot faster this year than ever before.

Four Records Bettered In Longhorn Victory

AUSTIN, April 2.(AP)—Texas university's track and field squad today defeated Texas A. and M. college for the fifth time in five years, by a score of 63 to 54, closest of any margin set up in the rival schools' annual contests since 1922.

Four southwest conference records were bettered. They were:

100-yard dash won by Cockrell of Texas university, time 9.8; 220-yard dash, won by Buck, A. and M., time 21.4; two-tenths of a second under record held by Poth of A. and M.; 220 low hurdles, won by Kennedy of A. and M., time 24.3, supplanting record of Stuart Wright of Texas at 24.4; broad jump, won by C. B. Smith of Texas, distance 23 feet two inches, breaking record of 22 feet 10 3-4 inches, held by Jackson of Texas.

A. and M. was superior on the runs, while the dashes leaned to Texas' favor. The university also had a slight edge in the field events.

C. B. Smith bested Yeary of A. and M. in the javelin throw for an upset of dope while Sheppard of Texas was held to a tie on the high jump with Ashley of A. and M. at 5 feet 11 1-2 inches. Sheppard usually does better than six feet and was touted to win today by at least four inches.

The Aggie relay team ran true to form defeating the Texas sprinters by approximately 150 yards on the mile, time 3:28.8. Burgess, Blair, O'Neil and Captain Parker composed the winning quarter.

Cockrell's dash stunt was done with a slight wind at his back. His time equals that of Farley of Missouri set at the Texas relay games here last week. Stalliter of Texas, nursing a bad foot, fell down in his hurdling emerging second to Kennedy of A. and M. in both the 120 and 220 yard events, the winning times being 15:5 and 24:3 respectively. Stalliter was far below his usual form, due to a stone bruise. Stalliter and Stud Wright set the conference record last year.

Longhorns Smack Horned Frogs, 9-4

FORT WORTH, April 2.(AP)—Coming from behind to tie the score in the eighth and count five times in the tenth, the Texas university Longhorns defeated the T. C. U. Horned Frogs, 9 to 4, here today in the second game of the two-game series.

Four hurlers worked for the Longhorns while two were used by Coach Meyer of T. C. U., in an effort to stem the Texan hitting.

Errors played a big part in the outcome, six being charged against the Frogs.

Washmon of T. C. U. and Cy Williams and Hopkins of Texas got two-baggers. Score:

Texas	002	000	110	5	9	14	2
T. C. U.	000	020	200	0	4	9	6

WACO WINS SECOND

WACO, April 2. (AP)—Launching a bing-bang offense which swept away a five-run lead gained by the Detroit Tigers in the first inning, the Waco Cubs made it two in a run over the Bengals at Katy park this afternoon by a score of 10 to 8. Featuring the attack of the Cubs was the consistent hitting of Max West, and a smashing drive over the right-center wall by Manager Derrill Pratt.

Texas Electrics Put It On Iowa Park

The Texas Electrics drubbed O'Donohue's Iowa Park Independents at Iowa Park Saturday afternoon, 15 to 3.

Allen pecked a couple of singles in the Wichita Falls drive. Andree slammed a home run. Wolford got three safeties. Ballew poked a couple and the rest of the Electric's blows were scattered out.

Andree and Ballew hurled for the Electrics and held the Parkers to four hits, only one of which came from the delivery of Andree. The game was a seven-inning affair.

The Electrics play Humble Oilers at Burkburnett Sunday afternoon.

Burk Boys Cop Tennis Crown

The Burkburnett boys battled their way through to victory in both the singles and doubles Saturday morning in the Wichita county tennis tournament.

Victor Davis, the red topped champion of Burkburnett, defeated the Electra entry after a hard battle for the singles championship.

These two victories gave the Burkburnett high schools three first places and a second place in tennis out of a possible four. Addie East won the girls singles while Pauline Patterson and Mabel Duke finished second in the girls doubles.

He's Got Grip Beat On Looks, Anyway

GORILLA COSSU

The Detroit Wop, stacks up like a mighty little man who will dust off our kid mat favorite Charley Grip in rough and tumble order.

Grip's been roughing the boys right merrily in the North Texas and Panhandle section, but several students of the game aver Gorilla will clean Charles, not so elegantly, but rather rapidly.

Jack Gorman, the bitter little battler from San Angelo, tackles Cocheco Gonzales, who week before last dropped the welter championship of Mexico to Taqui Joe, on the same card Tuesday at the Palace. Gonzales wrestles Gorman with the understanding he is to be given a return shot at Joe if he beats Jack.

Yank Oarsman Almost Saves Day Single-Handed For Oxford Crew

PUTNEY, England, April 2. (AP) A long, lean Yankee oarsman almost pulled the Oxford crew to a victory over Cambridge university in their 79th annual boat race here this afternoon. But the supreme effort of H. T. (Ox) Kingsbury, captain of Yale's undefeated crew of last year, was not enough and Cambridge took the eight-oared classic for the fourth consecutive year.

Cambridge won by three lengths. The winning time, over the 4 1-4 mile course from Putney to Mortlake, was 20 minutes, 14 seconds.

Kingsbury was the hero of an exciting race, although he rowed in the losing boat and with a crew which was conceded little chance to win. The former Yale star steadied the dark blue entry, held their efforts together and by his own mighty muscles, carried them through to a creditable finish even though several of his companions were in a state of collapse.

For two miles it was a ding-dong race and then Oxford's four bow oars began to lose power. Their substitute stroke had been in the varsity boat for only a fortnight and, while he made a gallant effort in the crisis, he lacked technique and endurance.

It was then that Kingsbury gave an exhibition of oarsmanship which staggered spectators. With cries of encouragement, he spurred his colleagues to renewed efforts, and himself supplied the power which the weakening of his companions had removed from his side of the boat.

Through the third mile the race continued neck-and-neck. But even Kingsbury's rowing could not keep pace with the smoothly stroking Cantabs. The dark blues weakened rapidly at the last and the light blues slipped across the finish line three-lengths ahead and going away.

The Oxford crew were dropping exhausted over their oars as they crossed the finish line. The single exception was Kingsbury who sat bolt upright at the end of his last big race and the first one, it is said, in his eight years of scholastic rowing that he ever rowed with a loser.

Buffs Smear It On Buccaneers, 3-2

HOUSTON, April 2. (AP)—Tommy Taylor's double to left center scored Hock and Martin in the tenth inning of the second game with Pittsburgh Saturday afternoon and gave the Houston Buffaloes a 3 to 2 verdict.

Roy Mahaffey, who joined the Pirates the latter part of last season, opened the game and for five innings his fast jumpers kept the Buffaloes at bay and allowed but two hits and one of them was an infield scratch.

Roy Boyd, the change of pace artist of the Buff staff, pitched well the eight innings he worked, the ex-champions scoring but once.

Poloists Square Off Again Today

Wichita Falls poloists will convene Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock on the Call field course in a more or less impromptu set-to, it was announced Saturday night.

With Featherston and Robbins out of the city club's line-up the Blue has called in Fastnow and Cranfill to team with Whyte and Minnick. Minnick blew in from somewhere yesterday and will ride Featherston's string.

Doc Fletcher and his national guard four composed of himself, Goodman, Prenbergast and McKemie will furnish the opposition.

"HAIR-GROOM"

Keeps Hair Combed, Glossy Well-Groomed all Day

"Hair - groom is a dignified combing cream which costs only a few cents a jar at any drugstore. Millions use it because it gives that natural gloss and well-groomed effect to the hair—that final touch to good dress both in business and on social occasions. Even stubborn, unruly or shampooed hair stays combed all day in any style you like. "Hair-Groom" is greaseless; also helps grow thick, heavy, lustrous hair. —Adv.

FILLSER WEDDING RING RECOVERED

IRON MOUNTAIN, Mich.—Mrs. Otto Johnson went home to Sweden just after her marriage 28 years ago. While she was there she lost her wedding ring. The other day the ring arrived in Iron Mountain in a package mailed by Mrs. Johnson's brother in Sweden. He dug up the ring with a forkful of potatoes in the ancestral vegetable garden.

Ice Cream Causes Milk Lack.

So zealous did ice cream factories of Melbourne, Australia, become during a recent hot spell that they caused a shortage of milk in that city. The three factories used in one week 20,500 gallons of milk, as compared with 7000 gallons in a normal summer week. This did not leave a sufficient quantity of milk for housewives, who registered protests.

Cotton

NEW YORK COTTON.

NEW YORK, April 2.(AP)—The cotton market was quiet today with prices slightly lower under selling supposed to be encouraged by reports of better weather in the south. July sold off to 14.23 and closed at 14.24, the general market closing steady at net declines of two to five points.

The opening was steady at a decline of two to four points under southern and local selling. Liverpool made a fairly steady showing and there was some foreign trade buying here about absorbed offerings, but demand tapered off on slight bulges and the market eased slightly in the forenoon under comparatively small offerings.

May declined to 14.03, October to 14.47 and December to 14.46, net declines of three to six points, and the close was at about the lowest.

Clearing weather in the south was considered responsible for part of the selling, but the volume of business was too small to suggest the development of any fresh sentiment, or any material change in general conditions.

The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week wasestimated at 177,000 bales, against 73,000 last year, which was regarded as pointing to continued full exports but which appeared to have very little if any effect on the market.

Private cables said some continental liquidation had been absorbed by trade calling and covering in the Liverpool market and a limited demand for cotton cloths in Lancashire from the home trade and exporters.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, April 2.(AP)—Prices fluctuated narrowly today on the cotton market, the extreme range for the day not exceeding four points. The close was steady, unchanged to four points down.

In spite of better Liverpool cables, the market opened unchanged and in early trading sold off to 14.09 for May, 14.24 for July and 14.38 for October, three to four points under yesterday's close.

The first decline was due to favorable weather in the belt, but the disposition to edge downward was held in check by fears of what might be shown by the boll weevil emergence report due Monday.

The market remained dull for the remainder of the session, fluctuating narrowly within the limits already set. The close was near the low.

Exports totalled 9,915 bales.

Grain

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW.

CHICAGO, April 2.(AP)—Signs of broader export demand for United States wheat helped prices upward today. Crop damage news from western Kansas tended also to stimulate buying. Wheat closed firm at a shade to 2c advance, corn unchanged to ⅛c lower, oats ⅛c to ¼c off to a shade up, and provisions varying from 15c decline to a rise of 2c.

Corn and oats failed to reflect wheat strength, eastern shipping demand for corn remained inert.

Provisions trade was tight, and as a rule the market held steady in line with hog values.

NEW YORK, April 2.(AP)—The usual week-end readjustment of speculative accounts imparted an irregular price trend to the stock market today. As on most previous days this week many issues were being bid up to new high levels at the same time that others were being forced below their previous low records. Trading was largely professional in character with the day's sales running moderately above 900,000 shares.

United States Steel common touched another new high record at 179⅝, but heavy profit taking forced it back to 169 for a small fractional loss of the day.

Several of the oils, including Marland, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Sinclair and Mid-Continent sagged to new 1927 lows on reports of a further downward readjustment of crude oil and gasoline prices, particularly in the far west. Net declines, however, were limited to fractions in most cases.

General Electric responded to reports of large current earnings by crossing 90 to a new peak price for the year. Eastman Kodak, Allis Chalmers, Continental Insurance, Fidelity Phoenix Insurance, Central Leather preferred, Freeport Texas, Otis Elevator and Public Service of New Jersey also sold at the year's high prices.

Pennsylvania was the feature of the railroad group, touching 61⅞, the highest price in nearly 15 years. Erie common crossed 51 to the highest price in 29 years and Rock Island common and Norfolk and Western sold at the highest prices in their history. Chesapeake and Ohio was heavy, presumably in reflection of the interstate commerce commission's rejection of a demurrer by the road to dismiss a petition of minority stockholders in the lease case.

Weakness of Roumania leu, which dropped from 63⅝ of a cent yesterday to 63⅜ of a cent today in reflection of the apprehension over the illness of King Ferdinand, and the establishment of a new 1927 high by demand sterling around $4.85⅛ were the contrasting features of the generally fir mforeign exchange market. French francs ruled around 3.91 cents and Italian lira just below 4.10 cents.

VARSITY CLUB HEARS PRESSON

Junior College Registrar Tells Why Students Fail

A report on the statistics of the Junior college and high school by A. K. Presson, registrar of the local school, featured the program for the University club luncheon Saturday at the Kemp hotel.

In giving the statistics, Mr. Presson said that 16 per cent of failures in school were due to irregular attendance, and 16 per cent to poor foundation. In comparing the percentage of students who come from other schools that pass the courses to the old students, the speaker said that 71 per cent of the new ones and 81 per cent of the old ones pass.

Mr. Presson added that he had also found out that students who took a course over the second time did not do as well in the work as pupils who were taking it for the first time, and that 66 per cent of the students who graduated every years went to college.

A one-act play in which Misses Mary Bingham, Mary Williams, Jim Covey, Mabla Capps and Mrs. P. P. Pace took part was given under the direction of Mrs. J. S. Pitman.

AIRPORT POPULAR

Veteran Flyers Have Busy Time at New Station Here.

Residents of Wichita Falls have all symptoms of finding their thrills in the air, according to officials of the Browning airport, recently opened aviation field on the Burkburnett highway.

With around a dozen pupils already enrolled in flying classes and scores of passengers going up every week, this aviation field and fields in general, are proving the popularity of the feeling one gets up in the clouds.

Passenger trips, instruction work and cross-country flying comprise the work of the airport under the management of Roy A. French and R. M. Browning. Mr. French is official manager. He has had 13 years flying experience and served as a government test pilot and instructor and has served in the World war.

Sundays have marked the high spots in the passenger trips of the company, that day alone being confined to trips of this nature. Many tourists, pleasure drivers and flying students have crowded the field, which is located about 5 1-2 miles out. Week days have been given over to instruction work and classes are progressing rapidly, according to Mr. French.

Mr. French is bringing his five-year old son up to be his father's successor, Roy French Jr. has flown over 40,000 miles and holds the undisputed child's record for passenger air travel of his age. He was ten months old when he was taken up for his first trip.

The Browning airport is equipped with gasoline pumps for service to visiting planes making cross country trips.

"Free," remarked the judge and Harry hustled out to buy another turkey.

Black and Short Hits Paris.

The Black and Short Step, that is being danced in this country, is making a hit in Paris. Men and women there not only like the peculiar steps of the "Black and Short," but are especially interested in the story that the dance is based on the camp fire dances which were popular 50 years ago among the trappers of Minnesota.

MOCK MAJESTIC

Junior College and High School School Prepare Program.

An evening full of fun for students of the Junior college and high school and for visitors is promised in the second annual mock Majestic to be staged Monday, April 11, at the college auditorium by the students of the institution. A committee headed by Estal Parham and Imogene Roberts has been at work for several weeks planning and arranging acts and a week of earnest work has been mapped out ahead to put the program in shape.

Included in the bill are a variety of numbers that are designed to parallel the usual professional vaudeville program. Heading the list is a Crinoline chorus, featuring song acts and staging effects. A tramp act by two of the most popular boy entertainers of the school promises to be one of the best things on the bill. A series of other numbers, such as the Bowery chorus, the Little Rovers orchestra, a dance revue, a tapp dancing and jigging duet, and a group of farcical sketches from life, round out a well balanced evening.

KEWANEE, Ill.—Now that he has crossed a turkey with a Rhode Island Red hen, Paul Nesgin plans to cross a goose and a drake. Trophies of Last Great Buffalo Hunt On Display at Bank Here

Spoils of adventure in their most realistic form are to be found in the lobby of the City National bank where a display of huge buffalo heads and robes has been arranged, the last of any existing wild buffalo herd, it is believed.

These buffalo were killed by E. J. Netherton, L. C. Heydrick, W. L. Ruff and H. H. Meyrs, Nov. 5, 1926, on Antelope Island, which is in the center of Salt Lake. Mounted on papier-mache the heads are an imposing evidence of the hunting trip undertaken by these men. It is claimed that they would find a ready sale at $10,000 if the owners were willing to part with them. The ages of the animals range from ten to 25 years, all of them being males. Each head is placed on the hide of the same animal, which has been tanned and mounted on felt.

The hunting trip which resulted in this collection of spoils was given by A. H. Leonard of South Dakota, owner of Antelope Island. The party was composed of 125 big game hunters from all parts of the country and was divided into smaller groups of 12 for the actual hunting. Each group was led by a full-blooded Sioux Indian chief who acted as guide.

No. 4, the largest buffalo in the display, weighed 1800 pounds and was shot by Mr. Netherton five times before being killed. In the interim of the shots he killed another animal of the herd which is now mounted as No. 7, and seriously wounded another.

This display will remain in the bank during the week for the benefit of the school children who are invited to see them.

Spring, Of Course—
Then Summer Vacations—
Going Abroad—
On a Modern Ranch—
The New Club House—
Forum Program—

"One ship sails east and another sails west,
With the selfsame winds that blow,
'Tis the set of the sail and not the gale,
Which determines the way we go.
And the winds of the sea are the winds of fate,
As we voyage along through life,
'Tis the act of the soul that determines the goal
And not the calm or the strife."

And so, Kitty, I know you are wondering already what this forerunner of sentiment is leading up to, and I will be quick to satisfy your curiosity. Summer vacationists already making arrangements to go abroad, my dear. Yes, they have actually already begun to think in real earnest about these trips, and among those leaving during the month of May will be Judge and Mrs. R. E. Huff and their son, Dr. Robert E. Huff, who will sail on the Leviathan from New York City, May 21. It is their intention to take their car along so that they may tour all of Europe in a comfortable and most thorough manner. And then on May 27, Mr. and Mrs. J. V. C. T. Christensen and their granddaughter, Mary Elizabeth Donnell, will sail and after making an extended tour of the continent, will visit relatives in Denmark before returning home. But leading the way across the big pond will be Mrs. Harwood Stacy and her small son, Tom, who will sail from Montreal for England, May 14. Mrs. Stacy is an English girl and since coming here from the mother country, a bride, several years ago, has followed the custom of visiting her parents and relatives every two years. And this all brings to my mind how excited we all were when Harwood Stacy announced his engagement and approaching marriage to the charming English girl, Stella Frances Cobb, of Carlisle Place, Westminster, London, to take place Jan. 26, 1921, and how anxious we were to meet her when she arrived in Wichita Falls shortly after Feb. 1. And Kitty, we have never yet been sorry we met her or that England gave Wichita Falls one of her most accomplished daughters. For not only has Stella Cobb Stacy entered into the social life of the city but being a pianist of unusual ability she has given generously of her talent on all occasions, and is president of the local Musicians club.

BUT while these trips abroad are planned for May, summer trips nearer home have already begun. Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Golding and Tex Bowden have returned from one of these. It was on the 9R ranch, 20 miles from Snyder, when Mr. and Mrs. Nathan B. Reynolds entertained a house party of 25 at their palacious ranch home. Coming from Georgia, where farms are small, this was Mrs. Golding's first visit on a real Texas ranch and describing the 9R, she said, that one could ride miles and miles without once getting off of the Reynolds' land. This house party, Kitty, must have been just like the ones we read about in books, for do you know, Mrs. Golding said, that every luxury that heart could wish for was there. They played all kinds of games, rode horseback and heard radio programs. And I almost forgot, they even took moving pictures of the entire party. Probably you have forgotten and to refresh your memory I will remind you that Mrs. Nathan B. Reynolds is a Wichita Falls girl, who, before her marriage was Josephine Mayfield, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Mayfield of this city.

LAST week I told you something of the new woman's club house which is nearing completion out in the Country Club Estates, and this week my mind is still running in that same channel. For as the days pass by the time draws nearer and already a program for the laying of the corner stone ceremony has been announced for next Sunday. And while we are not doing so much socially, everybody is busy, and this week the committee on decorations for the club house conferred with scenic men who were here with an elegant stock of curtains, stage fittings and other things brought here to show the purchasing committee of Inferior decorations for the new city auditorium. General plans, color schemes and other details for the interior of the new club home was discussed Friday morning at a committee meeting held at the home of the chairman, Mrs. W. W. Silk. Besides this committee which includes Mesdames N. H. Martin, G. L. Shapard, Luther Hoffman, J. D. Bright, C. W. Snider, J. T. Montgomery and W. B. Hamilton, Mesdame Carrie Joline, chairman of finance; Mrs Ben G. Oneal, chairman of building committee; Mrs. P. P. Langford, club house chairman, and Mrs. G. D. Anderson, chairman of ways and means, were there.

AN event being looked forward to by members of the Woman's Forum and their friends as probably the only social affair of any consequence since the beginning of Lent, is the appearance here of Bertha Kunz Baker, one of the foremost dramatic readers on the American platform today. The artist is being brought here as the April attraction of the general

BY MRS. H. J. STRIEF
President of Crockett P.-T. A.

"Be sure you are right, then go ahead." This, the slogan of David Crockett of Alamo fame, is one, by which the Parent-Teachers association of our Crockett school are living and working.

On March 8, 1926, the doors of the Crockett school were first opened to teachers and pupils.

On March 16, 1926, the first meeting of our P.-T. A. was held and although we have functioned but a year, in that time our endeavor has been to follow the state and national congresses as closely as possible in all of our work, and also to co-operate in every way we can, with our local council of P.-T. A.

Since our first meeting, enthusiasm has seemed to radiate from both parents and teachers and with the wonderful new building which is ours, we have been able to carry out our plans in a most marvelous way.

We are striving to reach the standard of excellence, and with our interested and enthusiastic membership, we are very hopeful of attaining our goal.

Piano Secured

On April 3, 1926, the Crockett school was formally opened to the public, at which time a children's operetta "Will 'O The Wisp" was given and our treasury was benefited by a silver offering in the amount of $80.

The first real venture to procure equipment for the building, followed the announcement at the initial meeting, that the Wichita Music company of the city, was to give away, absolutely free, on May 17, 1926, a Brambach Baby Grand piano. This we decided to have for our auditorium, and after two months of concentrated effort and strenuous work, were awarded this piano, which we prize very highly.

In addition to this, we have purchased for our music department an upright Kimball piano and have received as a gift, a very fine Columbia Grafonola.

A rest room for our teachers and children has been very attractively furnished, with proceeds from a silver tea held in our school building, and has proven a real blessing at various times during the year. In connection with the furnishing of this room a very delightful party was given our teachers, at the home of one of our patrons, with officers and sponsors acting as hostesses.

Emergency Equipment

Through the generosity of two of our patrons, our medicine cabinet has been installed, and our school is prepared at all times to cope with emergency wounds. This special department has been turned over to our Camp Fire Girls, the Man-Kilo group, who have mastered the art of first aid dressings.

In addition to this wonderful work of the Camp Fire Girls, they also have charge of our nursery during club programs, and by this help many of our mothers are able to be with us, who otherwise, would feel obliged to stay at home.

Three beautiful sycamore trees have been planted on our campus by our Camp Fire Girls.

To the Pioneer Boys club of the school, we are indebted for the clean grounds and the improvement in the general activities during the recess periods.

As yet, we have not purchased play ground equipment, aside from balls and bats, but we are watching with interest, the organization play which is now being tried out by the various groups.

Art Exhibit Popular

To the principal, Miss Ida Moore, and her corps of fine teachers, we are indebted for the proceeds of a wonderful picture exhibit shown in our building on February 19 and 20. Aside from the benefit derived by our children in having the privilege to study these beautiful pictures, some good prints are being purchased for the corridors of the building, with the $83.40 which was realized by the exhibit. These are in addition to the prize pictures, which are purchased each month for the room having the largest attendance of parents at the P.-T. A. meetings.

We have just recently completed the furnishing of our auditorium stage, by the purchase of a beautiful velour curtain, royal purple in color, and made very plain, except for the large monogram of gold in center of valance.

The outstanding program for the year, was the dramatic entertainment given by Dr. Edward A. Thompson, head of the voice department of Boston School of Expression. Proceeds from this program were used for payment on our stage curtain.

With the help of our outside friends, and many of our patrons, we have the nucleous for a most wonderful library, and some of the book sets now at hand are:

Books of Knowledge.
World Book.
Children's Southern Literature.
Instructors' School Library for first, second, third and fourth grades.

Pre-School Circle

As an educational feature of our club year, the Crocket P. T. A. are agents for the best magazines now on the market; especially are we stressing the ones most suitable for our children to read.

Our welfare committee has accomplished much this year, and it is our aim at all times to carry out plans as suggested by the Red Cross of our city. On May 1 of last year, the various schools of the city were represented in a health parade, sponsored by the Red Cross—third prize was awarded the Crockett.

A pre-school circle is now being organized, hoping, through the summer months to properly prepare all children for entrance at our fall term; this we believe, will be of great service in overcoming epidemics which seem to be so prevalent in our schools at various times.

Two lovely American flags have been presented to our school, the one for our auditorium being given to us by the Boy Scouts, and the one to which each boy and girl are privileged to give a salute, as they approach their school, was a gift from the D. A. R. of our city. For our lovely flag pole, we are also indebted to two of our patrons.

On the evening of May 17 last year, our P.-T. A. sponsored a most successful carnival and spring festival, which was held on the spacious lawn at the N. B. Chenault home, Indian Heights; this entertainment proving so popular, as well as profitable, that we hope to make it an annual custom at the close of each school year.

Name New Officers Soon

The membership to date numbers 173; we are hoping to have 250 when we close our drive that is now on.

forum, following two disappointments. The first, the illness of Fannie Hurst, who was announced to speak at an earlier date, and the second that of William Allen White, who cancelled his for the same reason, both noted writers and well-known lecturers.

For the appearance of Miss Baker, matinee parties are already being formed, and among the hostesses for the affair already announced are Mesdames Orvills Bullington and P. P. Langford, who have already spoken for boxes and Mesdames W. B. Hamilton, J. T. Harrell and G. D. Anderson. AND Rebecca Smith, on the staff of teachers at T. C. U., will be an additional attraction and will feature the program of the annual breakfast at the Country club, May 4, when forum activities for the season close.

Of interest to club women, especially to members of the executive board of the first district, is an invitation received from Mrs. Roscoe Cox of Stephenville, president of the first district, inviting them to a luncheon given by the Altruistic club of Olney at 1:30 o'clock, Tuesday, April 26, at the Olney Country club. This is the opening day of the convention, which meets there April 26, 27 and 28. Among members of the executive board of the first district living here are Mesdames P. P. Langford, W. W. Silk, Fred Barron, C. N. Alexander, T. A. Hicks, Ben G. Oneal, A. B. Lipscomb and Miss Verna Sellers.

But when I begin talking about the convention and the new club house, it seems that there is no stopping place, and with only half of it told I am signing off as ever your friend—

Women's Smart Suits For Spring and Easter Time

While the keynote characterizes the fashionable Spring model may be well termed extreme simplicity, this refers to the lines of the garment rather than their carrying out, for the designers have worked into the chome of the costume decorative effects in trim and cut which give a more ornate effectiveness than the styles have shown in some years.

BORAH IN A NEW ROLE

BORAH of Idaho may not love publicity but he knows the value of it. He has been breaking in the head lines daily for years and years. He addressed a meeting of New York republicans at Utica.

He predicted Governor Alfred E. Smith, if nominated for president, will not only declare for the Eighteenth amendment and its enforcement but will make the people believe in it.

That declaration should entitle Borah to a place in the head lines. Borah would dearly love to be the standard bearer of the republican party. But the republication machine, national and local in the 48 states, is a business organization and Borah would not be an ideal candidate of a business organization.

He gangs alone. He is an understanding statesman without an organization behind him. He has no machine. Big business never trusts him. He is an eagle in the political heavens perched on a lonely Idaho crag and that's all.

Now if Borah were a democrat he would have a big faction behind him and the throat cutting would be beautiful.

IT HAPPENED IN TEXAS

STATE PRESS J. J. TAYLOR of the Dallas News is a cotton grower. This bit of information should be interesting to his fellow farmers. "The cotton crop of 1926 exceeded that of 1925 by only about 216,000 bales outside of Texas. Texas was responsible for increasing the grand total by more than 1,600,000 bales. Texas did it and no wonder the other good cotton states are mad at our dear old Lone Star state."

Yes, Texas did it. Now will Texas do it again in 1927? In 1926 the price slumped from 20c to 10c. Of course, there has been a gradual increase owing to foreign demands and the spindle activities of southern mills. Farm renters or croppers were hit between the eyes in 1926. Will they be given another knockout blow in 1927.

THE SPIRITUAL URGE

From the Waco Times-Herald

JUDGE JOHN C. KAY talks to a Bible class at the Strand theater in Wichita Falls every Sunday morning unless detained by sickness or called out of the city. To the 260 men sitting before him last Sunday, Judge Kay had this to say:

"Now, you can't find in all history, a man who was ever satisfied with the achievement of public office, or public honors. You can't find, in all history, one man whose heart was ever quieted by the achievement of wealth, or fame, or many of the things that men so often and so much strive for. What is it, then, that drives men forward, and says: 'There must be lilies painted with brighter gold than these lilies. There must be skies bluer than these skies. There must be songs grander than any that I have ever heard sung. There must be stars shining beyond these stars and a glory brighter than this glory.' It is the spiritual urge in man that drives him to these thoughts. It is this cry by which he is driven by his imagination and by his discontent to say that somewhere, beyond these voices, there is peace. Somewhere, somehow, I expect to come into a port where there are no storms or whirlwinds. Sometime, some time, somewhere, I shall find that heart's ease, and meet and greet my heart's deep desire. That's the thing that drives him on."

There's the secret of all progress. Religious leaders may fall down on their job, but the urge is never quiescent. Who are the really discontented men in the world today? Those who put worldly success ahead of spiritual possessions. In this connection, it is a matter of deep regret, remarked on by many observers, that many of those who profess to lead are themselves groping in the dark. Charles D. Cameron's tale of the church, the school and the stage, in the current issue of the Dearborn Independent, strikingly illustrates this truth. Says the introduction: "With the church teaching politics, and the school going on for drama, and the stage emphasizing religion—each institution trying to do the work of another—there ensues a condition which this article describes." And then the writer goes on to tell what the Reverend Mather Cotton said to him:

"Our youthful superintendent of the Bible school is concerned about some of the new lesson quarterlies. He complains that they are worldly, unspiritual. I shall have to try to take him aside and make it clear that we must train the mind first of all, that we must know the facts of the universe.

"He's a good man and a good superintendent. He seems to have some kind of psychic magnetism which draws the children to him. An adaptable temperament, you understand. He talks to them about the drawing power of love. You can see he has had no psychological training.

"I did not have time to tell him that the quarterlies of which he complained were my own choice. For I could see that the old quarterlies were of an antiquated type. They were merely religious.

"The Sunday school, or the Bible school, should be a school indeed. Indeed, what else should the church be? The mission of the church is to teach, like the Great Teacher. We cannot be surprised at sin when we see the ignorance of the world. I discovered a child of 13 in our Sunday school who knew nothing about the discovery of the tomb of King Tut-ankh-amen. Even her teacher did not seem to realize the importance to archeology of that excavation.

"Education is a long way from the complete accomplishment of its aims. But the church is eternally young, and can take up the labor of teaching and training with new vigor each year. I wish you would come to our little meeting-house and see what we are doing. We have an adult Bible class of 160 studying the History of American Diplomacy. Our evening worship consists partly of a question box on current events. The work of education is a heavy one, but you can see, everywhere, that the churches and the interdenominational church federations are really attacking public questions of every sort, and doing all they can for enlightenment. I wish our young superintendent did not emphasize mere religion."

And in that way what Judge Kay calls the spiritual urge is being bludgeoned and hence the vogue of any new cult that gives promise of additional light on the problem of existence. The utterance of the ancient Isaiah offers a way out: "And it shall be said in that day, Lo, this is our God; we have waited for him, and he will save us; this is the Lord; we have waited for him, we will be glad and rejoice in his salvation."

We live in deeds, not years; in thought, not breaths;
In feelings, not in figures on a dial.
We should count time by heart-throbs. He most lives,
Who thinks most, feels the noblest, acts the best.
And he whose heart beats quickest lives the longest.
Lives in one hour more than in years do some
Whose fat blood sleeps as it slips along their veins.
Life is but a means unto an end; that end,
Beginning, mean, and end to all things—God.
The dead have all the glory of the world.

DEAR LITTLE EDWIN — By Montague

There Was a White Streak in the Air and Edwin An Instant Later Was Struggling in the Mud Four Feet Below.

Little Edwin strolled leisurely through the dining car, en route to the observation car at the rear of the train. He paused at my table and inquired if I couldn't afford to have my meals served in my stateroom the way he and his mama did. "But maybe you haven't got a stateroom," he added, with a touch of sympathy. "My mother says some people don't, but I don't see how they can travel that way, out among everybody. We got two compartments and a stateroom, and for nobody but just us and the servants. What kind of a watch is that you're looking at. I bet it didn't cost $800, like mine did." He displayed his wrist, with a tiny monogram timepiece attached to it. Then he passed on.

The next morning I met him again on the hotel golf course. He was just selecting a private caddy-to be his during his stay. He wanted one who was smartly dressed he said, and finding none that answered that requirement he instructed the caddy master to procure one. "The expense doesn't make any difference," said Edwin. "My old man has got more money than anybody here. Get him fixed up by a tailor, and have him here tomorrow morning. Me and mother are going to play a round together."

Having arranged this preliminary Edwin sat down on the bench behind the first tee, and made critical comments on the players as they drove off. "Rotten" was his usual comment, but now and then when some par player would get a long shot he would say "Not so rotten." He got black looks but golfers are not persons who assault 5-year-old children, so he continued his observations till the starter came along and asked him to keep still.

"Keep still yourself," said Edwin. "You're only a servant around here. My father could buy this hotel and a half dozen like it, and if he did you would be the first one to get fired."

The starter was about to grasp Edwin by the collar when the young man's mother came up, swinging her driver and ready to start.

She was highly indignant when she was told that she would have to have starting time, and her language, though more carefully chosen than that of her little son was of much the same character. But the starter was unmoved, so taking her offspring by the hand she went to the golf house to complain.

We were playing a foursome the next day, and Edwin and his mother and their two private caddies, both now adorned as the lily, teed off directly behind us. Edwin had made depreciating observations about our drives as we started and his mother had nodded and smiled at him, as one who applauds good judgment. We fancied that we would keep ahead of them easily enough, supposing that their golf could be on a par with their manners, but there we were mistaken.

Looking back I saw Edwin get off a drive of better than a hundred yards and his mother's almost rolled under my heels, while I was still walking up to my second shot. Two of our four got into bunkers, and Bill was just getting his niblick ready when Edwin's second shot sailed past his ear.

He walked back to the youth and was about to grasp him by the ear when his mother hurried up.

"Were you going to strike that little child, you brute?" she demanded.

"I was going to tell him he would have to get off this golf course if he cannot abide by the rules," said Bill. "He nearly killed me with that ball."

"You ought to keep out of the way, you big stiff," said Edwin. "We got a right to go through."

Bill, who is a large ponderous and reserved man turned a little purple, but feeling it too great a risk to say anything he walked back to his ball and played it. Edwin's mama sent one of the extremely neat caddies back to the course policeman to complain. When he arrived, there was a long argument, which we did not hear, and the policeman waved us to keep on.

For the next three or four holes Edwin and his mama always sat on the bench as we were driving, and Edwin would always manage to say something disparaging just as one of us was on the back swing. It was disturbing at first, but by and by we got used to it. Now and then one of the child's shots would roll under our feet, but after Bill had picked up a few of them and handed them to his caddy, the boy was more careful. Evidently the appeal to the course policeman had not had the expected result.

On the sixth—a one-shot hole a hundred and 30 yards long, Bill got off a shot which appeared from the tee to be within a short putt of the hole. He was smiling happily as he walked up to it. He is one of the golfers who make a shot like that about twice in the summer. Edwin and his mother had fallen a little behind, and had to pass the green where Bill's ball lay, on their way to the next tee. Edwin noticed the ball, walked over to it, took out his mashie, and drove it a hundred yards into a ravine, taking a divot as big as a cabbage out of the green as he did so. Then he came up to the tee.

"I'll show you birds you can't block a golf course and get away with it," he said. Then scornfully: "but I suppose you can't afford to lose a golf ball, so here's one of mine." And he tossed a brand new ball still in the wrapper at Bill's feet.

I thought there was going to be a spanking then and there, but Bill just smiled, thanked the lad for his courtesy, and picked up the ball. He hurried us along after that, and finally a twosome played through the youngster and his mother, so they didn't bother us any more.

I noticed that Bill was in continual conversation with his caddy, who seemed first appalled, then somewhat reassured, and finally pleased. On the seventeenth, which is a short drive over a mud filled bog Bill said he was tired, and suggested that we let a few people play through. It was an unheard of suggestion, but he insisted, and we finally agreed. The caddies went out on the little bridge over the mud hole to wait for us and watch the shots of the people who passed along ahead of us.

Edwin came up presently, drove the green tidily, announced that he would bet us anything we had that none of us could do that, and then walked on. When he passed Bill's caddy, in the wake of his mother, that youth suddenly stooped down, and upreared again. There was a white streak in the air and Edwin an instant later was struggling in the mud four feet below.

Bill has always insisted to us, as he did to the coure policeman, the caddie master and the proprietor of the hotel that Edwin fell off the bridge accidentally, and of course we bore him out. But we noticed that the caddy he had wasn't seen around the place any more, but showed up with a recommendation at Bill's golf club a week or two later. And although Edwin's mother has started a $10,000 damage suit, it has been started in this county, where Edwin is widely known by now, and the general opinion is that she is going to lose it.

ALL AROUND THE TOWN
JULES WAS UPSIDE DOWN.

YOUNGSTOWN, O.—Jules Venable, a doughty lad, was standing on his head when Policeman Carney came along. To Jules the John Law said: "You're tight, ol' scout, you're stewed, you're soused, you're paralyzed, in fact; and to the judge the cop explained he'd caught Jules in the act of loafing on a corner, upside down, and in reverse. The judge looked stern. It seemed to Jules things could not be much worse. Then, "Hold!" the prisoner cried, alarmed, while tears stood in his eyes. "Judge, I'm an acrobat, and I was taking exercise. "Prove it." the judge said tensely, and Jules promptly took his cue. Upon his head he stood at once. One minute passed, then two, three, four, five minutes sped away; Jules held his balance right. "Discharged," the Cadi said, at last—"but I still think you were tight."

When An Apple Hits You

By BRUCE BARTON

Illustrated by RAEBURN VAN BUREN

ON the dining-car the other day I ordered preserved figs for dessert; and the waiter responded cheerfully: "I'm sorry, sah, but we aint got none."

A keen-looking young fellow sitting opposite me looked up and smiled.

"It might interest you to know how that same remark put several thousand dollars into my pocket," he said.

"I am in the business of making apple-sauce," he explained in answer to my look of surprise. "We put it up in sealed jars and sell it through the grocery stores. Everyone was kind enough to tell us when we started that it couldn't be done; but we do it just the same.

"Coming over from Philadelphia last year I ordered preserved figs; and received the same answer that the waiter has just given you. That set me thinking.

"I went back to our factory, got a jar that would hold an individual portion of apple-sauce, filled it, labeled it attractively, and set out for New York to interview the men who make the purchases for the dining-cars. It was difficult to interest them at first, but I succeeded finally.

"And now we sell scores of thousands of those individual jars every year—all because a waiter told me that he was sorry, but 'we aint got no preserved figs.'"

That man did not know it, but he had given in less than five minutes an epitome of human progress. By just such steps the race has climbed out of barbarism into civilization—by one mind after another meeting an obstacle and conquering it.

How many millions of men have watched their wives bending over a needle? Elias Howe watched his wife, and thought, and worked, and invented the sewing-machine.

How many have seen the steam in a kettle lift the lid? Watt saw it, and out of his thought there came the steam engine.

Most of us go lazily through life, using whatever the ingenuity of the past has bequeathed, and adding nothing on our own account.

A hundred clerks will work side by side in an office; and only one in a year will ever gladden the heart of the boss by saying: "Couldn't we save a little time or money by doing this thing in this better way?"

But that one clerk who, out of his dissatisfaction with things as they are, devises even a trifling improvement, is a brother of Edison and Watt and Fulton. Humanity becomes his debtor in a little measure; in him are the seeds of genius.

For what is genius but an insatiable appetite for something better, a settled habit of meeting every can't with a why?

There are great unused sections in all of our brains. How much would be added to human progress if, for one single week, each one of us were to make every obstacle the subject of a little real thought?

Sir Isaac Newton lying under an apple tree was hit on the head by an apple. And setting his mind to work, he developed at length the theory of gravitation.

Apples of obstacles and mischance continue to fall; we are hit by them every day. But the trouble is most of them merely raise a bump when they ought to stir up an idea.

Exciting Epic Of Adventures In Desert, Book Of The Week

By BURTON ROSCOE

The Book of the Week is "REVOLT IN THE DESERT," by "T. E. Lawrence," published by the George H. Doran Co.

This is an abridged edition of "The Seven Pillars of Wisdom," by the mysterious adventurer who signs himself "T. E. Lawrence," using quotation marks to indicate that even the name he is generally known by is also an assumed one like the many aliases he has used in his strange career.

Of the original "Seven Pillars of Wisdom" there exists only one copy and it is in manuscript. Lawrence does not know where it is. It was stolen from him in an English railway station in 1919. It was 250,000 words in length. Lawrence rewrote it from memory and had eight copies printed on cheap paper. Only three copies of this edition remain. Lawrence destroyed five of them. From one of these copies there has been printed an edition of 20 copies of which are for sale in the United States and 10 in England, at $20,000 a copy.

The essential narative of "The Seven Pillars of Wisdom" is preserved in "Revolt in the Desert." Some of the abridgement is in the interest of silence in regard to England's colonial and military policy, and some in the interest of moral censorship. Certain passages describing Arabian folk ways and certain expressions used by British soldiers, the author has deemed it expedient to expunge from the edition offered to the public.

Lawrence is a frail little man, something under five feet and a half in height and weighs about 98 pounds. At Oxford he studied Semitic languages and literatures and before his graduation went to Syria where he spent two years among the desert tribes, studying Arabic and its dialects and the habits and customes of the people. Because of his size and weight; he was rejected when he tried to enlist in the British army, but because of linguistic abilities, he was employed by the intelligence service in Carlo in gathering information about the Turks.

Plan Rejected by Army.

He drafted a plan to pacify the various Arab tribes then engaged in internecine warfare and to organize them into a unified nation which would revolt from the Turkish empire and drive the Turks from Asia. Such a plan, if effected, would have not only blocked German's hope of reaching India through Asiatic Turkey, but would have rendered the British operations in the Holy Land unnecessary. At army headquarters, the plan was considered and rejected.

About this time the Arab revolt had begun under Hussein, the grand sheriff of Mecca, and Meeca had been captured. Lawrence asked for a leave of absence, and since the intelligence office and the military authorities considered him a pest, his leave was readily granted. He made his way to Jidda, and thence to Hussein's son, Feisel, commander in the field of Hussein's revolutionary forces.

On his first meeting with Feisel, Lawrence knew he was in the presence of a man of intelligence and power. Feisel fingered his dagger menacingly when Lawrence first entered his tent, but with but few spoken words between them, they understood each other. Feisel was at once chosen by Lawrence as the principal agent in his plan. Feisel was to be the prophet and Lawrence the military genius.

When Lawrence first met Feisel, Feisel was unveiled. Lawrence persuaded him to put on the veil of a prophet in order "to give cogent form to the idea behind the Arab revolt." The army was organized and they set out on the march to Damascus: "First rode Feisel in white, then Sharraf at his right in red headcloth and henna-dyed tunic and cloak, myself on his left in white and scarlet, and behind us three banners of faded crimson silk with gilt spikes, behind them the drummers playing a march, and behind them again the wild mass of 1200 bouncing camels of the bodyguard, packed as closely as they could move, the men in every variety of colored clothes and the camels nearly as brilliant in their trappings."

Lawrence's principal contribution to the strategy of the campaign, it appears, was to blow up the Turkish railway and telegraph lines. Auda, a desert chief, had never seen dynamite before, and he took a childish pleasure in seeing the explosions tear up lines of track and blow bridges to bits.

The conversion of Ada to the cause of the Arab revolt was one of Lawrence's triumphs. Auda was at the head of a robber band and was a magnificient fighter. The fact that Lawrence, a Christian, was accepted by Auda, a Moslem, as a leader and a prophet, showed the almost superstitious awe Lawrence was able to inspire among the Arabs.

"Father" of Their Country.

When Auda and his band joined Feisel's army, other desert tribes also enlisted under the banner of the revolt. The army met and vanquished Turkish troops in the desert and marched triumphantly to Damascus. While they were yet same distance from the city a messenger came galloping toward them holding a bunch of grapes before him in token of friendship. He cried, "Good news: Damascus salutes you." The army entered the city to the accompaniment of shouts of "Feisel, Nasir, Shukri, Urens."

Urens was the name then used by Lawrence. His work was finished. The revolution against Turkish rule had been accomplished and warring Arab tribes had been solidified into a unified nation.

"Revolt in the Desert" gives details of the campaign outlined above. Much suffering was endured by Lawrence and the Arab army and Lawrence was put to desperate expedients to garner food supplies. When Lawrence discovered that the retreating Turkish troops had mutilated women and children he said to his men: "The best among you brings me the most Turkish dead."

Lawrence has a sense of humor. In the front of the book there is a list of questions asked him by the proof-reader, together with Lawrence's answers. One of them reads: "Elp 53, 'Meleager, the immortal poet.' I have put in 'immortal poet,' but the author may mean immoral after all." Lawrence's answer is: "Immorality I know. Immortality I cannot judge. As you please: Meleager will not sue us for libel."

It is likely that "Revolt in the Desert" will become one of the classics of adventure. But it is not as exciting as I thought it would be after all the fuss raised about it in advance.

Topic for the Week
"THE SPIRITUAL STRUGGLIGE"
Sunday
"High Attainment Involves Struggle"

SCRIPTURE: Read — Romans 7:14-25.

"I delight in the law of God after the inward man; but I see a different law in my members, warring against the law of my mind" (Rom. 7:22-23). "For they that are after the flesh mind the things of the flesh; but they that are after the Spirit the things of the Spirit" (Rom. 6:5). "But I buffet my body and bring it into bondage" (I. Cor. 9:27).

See—II. Corinthians 4:16; Ephesians 3:16; Galatins 5:19-21.

MEDITATION: All the rest of nature follows physical instincts unquestionably. In mankind alone is found innate struggle to subject lower impulses to higher. Because I am "born from above" I may expect conflicting energies. The greater the urge within for the spiritual fruits—love, joy, peace, etc., the greater the struggle until we come to fullness of life. In victory there is joy; in failure penitence leads to God.

"I am myself the miracle of the universe, the violation of the order of nature. I am the only thing in creation which strives with Thee, which needs to be reconciled to Thee."

HYMN:

Lord of all being, throned afar,
Thy glory flames from sun and star:
Center and soul of ev'ry sphere,
Yet to each loving heart how near!

Whose light is truth, whose warmth is love:
Before Thy ever-blazing throne

Grant us Thy truth to make us free,
And kindling hearts that burn for thee.
Till all Thy living altars claim

—Oliver Wendell Holmes, 1848.

PRAYER: Confession of sins; thanks for the Church.

Pray for—missionaries.

Correct—Almighty Father, whose power knows no limit, let us feel within us the movings of Thy might. We thank Thee for life, marvelous in its ways. We bless Thee for the world, rich in its wootings of life. We rejoice that Thou art a spirit with whom our spirits may commune, and that Thou hast shown forth Thy nature in the Christ, who lives with The and with us. We praise Thee for the high privilege of prayer in which spirit blends with spirit. Mercifully forgive us that we have so often chosen the satisfaction of our lower instincts to the impoverishment of the sout. Quicken, we pray Thee, our inner awareness of Thee; so shall temptation have no authority over us. Through Thy grace, we engage to walk in all Thy ways. Amen.

Music and Musicians

BY MME. COBINA WRIGHT
(Copyright 1927, By Universal Service)

NEW YORK, April 2.—While the centenary of the immortal Beethoven is being commemorated in our concert halls, a slim, grey-haired figure of 81 emerges from the past with 20 trunks full of the accumulations of a lifetime devoted to music. She is Rebekah Crawford whose musical scores, manuscripts, valuable autographs, letters and innumerable records of an active musical life are being collected by her from her archives for presentation to the library of congress.

So great is their value that after examination by Carl Engel, chief of the music department and J. C. Fitzpatrick, also a prominent figure in the manuscript department of the Library of Congress, they have been accepted by that institution to form a permanent part of their valuable reference records.

Miss Crawford and her sister, Mrs. Alethea Crawford Cox, both writers of distinction on musical subjects, have for some years been a part of the staff of the Beethoven house at Bonn and they possess no end of intimate and authentic lore not only of this great master, but of the many great musicians with whom they have been associated throughout their lifetime.

A few evenings ago I gave a small dinner party for Charles Spencer Chaplin that tragic-comic comedian who has made the whole world laugh. Despite the rather melancholy shadow which comes into his eyes, I find it as impossible to resist his humor off the screen as it is on. The face of a poet appears beneath a shock of almost white hair—a sad, dreamy poet, meditating perhaps upon the futility of things. But as suddenly as the melancholy expression covers his face, it is banished by his irrestible impulse to make people laugh, yet when he chooses to indulge in the general chatter of a dinner table, he is a well informed young man with a great knowledge of music and literature, and a genuine love of everything that is beautiful in art and literature.

It was only a small little dinner party including Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, Feodor Challapin, Prince Christopher of Greece, Miss K. Wright, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Barton, Paul and Mrs. Kochanski, Hoytie Wiborg, William Rhinelander Stewart Jr., George Gershwin, Pierre Ludoschutz and James Cromwell, but it was the greatest fun for after dinner our distinguished guests, content to find themselves in such a small gathering, proceeded to entertain us in hilarious fashion.

Gershwin played delightfully, and Chaplin set the stage for his inimitable trick with two rolls and a fork. His stage was a bench covered with red velvet. Then he gave an imitation of a blind man, and later gave an initimitable take off of Russian, Italian songs. In fact, songs in every language, much to the dplight of all of us.

Then Kochanski, whose sense of humor is always to the fore, gave an imitation of a man walking the tight rope which had everybody sitting on the edge of their seats fearing he would fall from his imaginary rope despite the carefully poised umbrella that he bandied about over his head.

Chaplin knows a series of sad Arabic and Turkish melodies which he loves. I asked where he learned them, and he said "from the phonograph."

Another eventful portion of the impromptu program was contributed by Challapin who sang bits of Boris and M. Luboschutz played magnificently. The success of their entertainment was apparent in the fact that the party didn't break up till after three in the morning, and even then we were loath to let our guests depart.

One of the few hostesses in New York who really knows how to inspire an artist is Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, 2nd., whom her friends know more familiarly as "Birdie," and whose own deep love and reverence for music communicates itself to those who come to hear an artist in her charming home. In the first place, her salon itself, is in the best of taste, hung with beautiful tapestries and decorated with large bowls of fresh flowers, it is never formal or austere, but preserves always the rich atmosphere of a luxurious drawing room.

Then again Mrs. Vanderbilt has herself the greatest respect for the artist and she has the most commanding "ssh!" with which to hush the idle chatterer at the beginning of an aria that it has been my good fortune to hear she says it with such an air of determination, that I have yet to meet the emboldened soul who dares defy it, with the result that the artist, unhampered by any sound whatsoever, throws himself an once into the spirit of the composer.

Some fifty or sixty guests were entertained by Mrs. Vanderbilt a few evenings ago and Kochansky was the soloist. After his first number she exclaimed, "Oh, it is too beautiful!" and in added bewilderment. "But I don't know what we are going to do about it!"

Just then Zimbalist arrived, and he told me that though he had known Kochanski for years he had never heard him play before, such are the exigencies of an artist's life.

Among the many guests at Mrs. Vanderbilt's were, Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Gray, the Dana Gibsons, Dr. and Mrs. Dan Draper, the Marquis and Marchioness of Queensbury, George Jean Nathann Neysa McMein, Alma Gluck, Leonard Liebling, Clarence Mackay, Polly Damrosch and Ethel Barrymore.

MEMPHIS, April 2.—Memphis Odd Fellows and Rebekahs entertained their friends at Odd Fellow hall Tuesday night with an interesting and instructive program. Judge S. A. Bryant presided and in a few well chosen remarks explained the purpose of the meeting, after which Rev. R. C. Baker led in prayer. The meeting was held for the purpose of bringing into a closer fellowship, Odd Fellows and Rebekahs of Memphis and their friends. Visitors were present from Clarendon, Lakeview, Paska., Ell and other places. Lee Guthrie gave an inspirational address on the principals of Odd Fellowship, after which a discussion on the higher branches of the order was given by W. A. McIntosh, who told of the four units of Odd Fellowship and explained the significance of each. Miss Edna Bryan made an excellent address on Rebekah Odd Fellowship, showing the co-operative work with that of the ladies with that of the men. She also spoke of the I. O. O. F. home and told of the excellent work being done. The Rebekahs are financing the Fine Arts department of the home.

Refreshments were served by the Rebekahs to all present. Many expressed themselves as feeling that this was one of the most enjoyable meetings of the season and hoped for other similar occasions during the year.

Hall county is considered the banner county of Odd Fellowship in the Panhandle of Texas. There are five subordinate lodges, five Rebekah lodges and one encampment, all active and doing excellent work. The Hall county I. O. O. F. association meets twice a year and is doing much effective work. Practically all the lodges in the county had representatives at the Grand Lodge at Waco last week. Memphis lodge was represented by W. A. McIntosh and Miss Edna Bryan represented th Rebekah lodge from Memphis.

Mr. W. E. Wilson and Mrs. Daisy Pierce Montgomery were married in Lawton, Okla., Thursday, March 24, Rev. Babcock, pastor of the First Methodist church of that city, officiating. They are now at home in Memphis, having an apartment in the J. W. Blanton home in Memphis Heights.

Mrs. Wilson is well and favorably known to Memphis people, having resided in the city for several years. Mr. Wilson has been employed by the Chevrolet Motor company for the past year, and is a progressive business man.

The 1227 Bridge club met with Mrs. Coy Harris on Thursday, March 24. After the game, Mrs. Robinson was found to have made high score, and Mrs. Franks low score. At the close of the afternoon Mrs. Harris, assisted by Mrs. Cooper, served a delicious salad course to the guests.

Mesdames Derwood McCool and Raymond Ballew entertained at Bridge Tuesday evening, March 22, honoring the husbands of the 1927 Bridge club members. After the game prizes were given Mrs. Ballew and Mr. Ballew for high score and Mr. Angus Huckaby for low score. Refreshments were served to club members and their husbands and Misses Bess Duke, Frances and Ruth Craver.

Mr. Raymond Brumley and Miss Florence Jones were united in marriage at the home of the brides mother, Sunday, March 27, at 4:45 p. m., the Rev. C. B. Jameson, officiating. Only relatives of the contracting parties were present at the wedding.

Both are seniors in Memphis high school and will graduate this year. Both have been raised in or near Memphis and well known in this community. They are fine young people and very popular among the young people of the community. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Brumley, of Memphis, and the bride is the daughter of Mrs. A. B. Jones of this city.

They are making their home at the present at the Jones home.

The Delphian club met March 23, at the home of Mrs. J. A. Brewer, with Mrs J. W. Stokes as hostess. Eighteen members answered to roll call, news of today. The establishment of "Moonlight Schools," Mrs. F. V. Clark; "What Picture Shows Mean to Our Education of Today," Mrs. John Lofland; "Better Homes From Leading Magazines," Mrs. Jim McMurry.

Charles Brandon Booth, noted lecturer, will lecture here, May 24, sponsored by the Delphian club. Lovely refreshments were served by the hostess. The club adjourned to meet April 6 with Mrs. Drusilla Williams.

CHILD'S REST HEALTH GUIDE

Too Much Exercise Quite Possible For Tots

"My child is always tired, and yet he just won't rest—what can I do about it?" This is a common question.

Here is what Miss Mary E. Sutherland, Red Cross nutrition worker, says about it.

"First, remember there are two kinds of tiredness. One is natural—we all get tired after working or playing. But if it is natural fatigue, we recover after a short rest, or a good night's sleep and feel as fit as ever.

"But there is another kind; it carries you further and further from real health. You all know the child who runs his legs off; as the common expression is. This child is always tired. He is tired when he wakes up in the morning and he has no chance to rest during the day for he is always 'on the go.'

"If you will keep an exact record of your child's activities for 48 hours, you will not be surprised that he gets over-tired. We grown-ups often expect too much of children. We crowd their lives full of activities, each desirable in itself, but the result is they have no time to rest. They have their school work, homework, music, various clubs and organizations to attend, they must practice for a play, then when night comes they went to "have a little fun"—and so delay their bedtime.

"They must have energy for all those activities, and in addition, some just for growing; it is often difficult for adults to appreciate how much strength is required for simply growing.

"The child's nervous system cannot help but suffer as the result of this continued high tension. Whatever harms the nervous system harms the whole body. Over-fatigue results in pallor, dark circles under eyes, round shoulders and poor posture generally, the child becomes underweight, and "takes" all common diseases readily. In other words, over-fatigue is one of the most common causes of malnutrition.

"The remedy?"

"It is simple, but it takes determination to carry it out. Here it is—have a regular program for the day's activities, and leave some time each day free just for resting. The underweight child should rest at least 15 minutes before each meal; half an hour is much better. It is easier to get him to do this, if when he comes in for dinner or supper, you tell him it is not quite ready, and there is time for him to rest a few minutes. It is too much to expect any child to lie down if he knows dinner is on the table or ready to go there. He does not need to sleep, when he lies down, but should relax completely.

"Then, have a regular bedtime, and have it early enough. If a child must occasionally stay up later than his usual bedtime, see that he makes up the time the next day. Use a flat pillow, or none at all; a thick pillow encourages round shoulders.

"Here are the hours sleep required by children of different ages. Does yours get as much as he should?

Age	Hours of Sleep
Five to 6	12
Six to 8	11½
Eight to 10	11
Ten to 12	11
Twelve to 14	10½
Fourteen to 16	10
Sixteen to 18	9½

Mrs. Alice J. Farthing, age 74 years, died at the home of her son, H. A. Fathering of this city Tuesday.

Mrs. Fathering was visiting here with her son at the time of her death, having been here six weeks.

She is survived by three children, H. A. Fathering of Grandfield, R. O. Fathering of Terre Haute, Ind., and Mrs. F. G. Garren of Indianapolis, Ind.

Funeral services were held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Fathering Tuesday afternoon by Rev. C. C. Childress of the First Methodist church.

Mr. and Mrs. Fathering left Wednesday morning to accompany the body to Farina, Ill., where interment will be made.

Thelma Tire, Frances Tant and Anna Mae Marshburn were initiated into the local Rainbow chapter Tuesday evening at a call meeting of the local members.

After initiation delicious refreshments of salad, cake and cocoa were served by the committee to about 35 guests.

Word was received here Tuesday of the death of Mrs. Mary Saliday of St. Petersburg, Fla. She was the mother of Mr. Saliday of this city. Mr. Saliday was unable to go as it was such a distance.

Another secret marriage was disclosed Tuesday when Mrs. Clarence Taylor, nee Miss Beulah Stines, announced her marriage on December 25, 1926.

The wedding took place at the home of Rev. and Mrs. C. A. Bickley of Vernon, Rev. Bickley being pastor of the South Methodist church.

The groom came to Grandfield two years ago from Rush Springs, when he accepted a position with the H. and T. Tailor shop where he has been employed since that time. He is well known in Grandfield and is popular among the younger set.

Mrs. Taylor is the accomplished daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Stines of Oklahoma City. She has been in Grandfield two years, employed as bookkeeper for the Blue Front grocery.

The couple will make their home in Grandfield for the present.

A sunrise breakfast was enjoyed by Camp Fire girls Monday morning. After hiking to Rasmussen park they cooked their breakfast and then all sat around the campfire and enjoyed the bountiful feed.

Those who went on the hike were: Elizabeth Dykes, Trual Athley, Cynthilia Price, Jessie D. Harvey, Mary Gillings, Mildred Handcock, Effie Wright, Doris Webb, Allie Pred, Clara Grant, Helen Maloney, Katherine Potts, Margret Fuqua, Flossie Crane, Maxine Solliday and Mrs. C. M. Crawford, guardian and chaperone.

QUEL HORREUR!

PARIS. — President Momergue gave a reception at the Elysee Palace recently. Talk was of politics, the weather, war debts, taxes, and such lively subjects. In due course, the guests departed. Except one, who was found asleep on a lounge by servants cleaning up the debris. He wasn't intoxicated; just bored into slumber.

SMALLEST HAT IS SMARTEST

Large Black Milan or Capeline Only Exception

Reacting toward the extreme height and manifold drapings of last year's hats, we find ourselves confronted this year with hats molding more closely to the head, lower in crown, almost or actually brimless. When one considers the few drastic changes made in the dress or coat silhouette, it is quite surprising to find this sudden face-about on the part of the milliners.

It is not to be regretted, however. Few, oh so few, are the women to whom the extremely high crown is becoming, and legion are those who find the hat following the lines of the head the most subtle flatterer of their charms. The small hat, with plain or slightly draped or tucked crown, and very narrow downward brim, is becoming alike to matron and maiden, and bids fair to be chosen most frequently.

Not so much can be said for the brimless hat, but for those who can actually wear it, it is oh, so smart! The helmet, with two little tabs covering the ears, is an original model which the great majority of these hats follow. Mephistopheles himself was the inspiration for one of these hats. Peaked at front, covering the ears, it is a veritable devil's cap. It adds to its originality by following the hair line to the back—that is, it is cut in a point at the center back, much as the pointed style of hair cutting.

Last year saw a wave of large black Milan hats sweeping the country at midsummer, but no amount of popularity can spoil the charm of their simplicity. With light summer clothes, they provide an interesting note of contrast, and it was gratifying to see the large number of them in evidence at the southern resorts. This seems to forecast their return in midsummer again. Simply trimmed, of course, with satin, grosgrain or velvet bands and bows.

The compose, or combination theme found in dresses, in coats, in shoes, naturally finds itself followed to a great extent in hats. Not so often does it appear in actual combinations of colors. It is more often apparent in the use of two fabrics. The possible combinations are almost endless, for practically every fabric is combined with every other. Crocheted straws, straw braid, belting ribbon, faille silk, felt, each finds itself mated with any other member of the coterie.

The simple ribbon and cocarde trims find equal favor with more elaborate embellishment. Appliqued motifs, insets of contrasting fabric, pins of all shapes and designs, embroidered ribbons—the ingenuity of designers has been taxed to the utmost.

With such variety of treatment, almost anything is smart this season. That is, anything becoming to an individual is actually smart on that individual. We make no more fetches of a single fashion and force it upon Everywoman. Instead, Everywoman works out her own salvation, through following the few simple rules dictated each season by Fashion's sponsors.

New Shoe For Each Costume

Footwear More Important In Ensemble

Formerly one's choice in shoes was rather circumscribed. Black patent leather, black kid, tan calf or kid shoes for day. White for summer and silver or gold brocade for evening completed the roster. As Rip Van Winkle said—how things have changed! Combinations of two leathers, trimmings of leather in harmonizing or contrasting shades, the introduction of the smart reptile leathers already known have given us an almost infinite variety of shoes.

Still, the leathers themselves are not the only contributing factors in the state of affairs. Each season has seen some new entry into the ranks of what is worn in shoes and each entry, instead of eliminating previous styles, merely swelled the list. The opera pump, the Colonial pump, the oxford, the centre strap, the gored pump, the sandal cut with one strap, each had its brief period of ascendancy and then subsided into equal popularity with its fellows. The present season has favored no particular cut or type of shoe, preferring rather to designate to each its proper place as an accessory to a particular type of costume.

The oxford finds itself accompanying the tailored suit. It is smartest, for spring, in a tan or brown leather used with a contrasting or harmonizing reptile leather, or entirely in a reptile leather. This type of oxford has a high spike or Cuban heel, and is good for all sorts of street wear.

With the return to the light colors of spring and summer, the rose or pastel parchment or pear grey kid pump finds itself in favor. Seldom is it developed in one leather, however. A darker shade of kid will form strap or trimming, or a reptile leather will combine with it . . . . lizard or alligator in a darker shade of tan or grey.

The matching shoe and pocketbook ensembles are still quite smart, utilizing reptile leathers for street wear, embroidered raffia or straw for summer and brocade for evening wear.

This season's most interesting novelty is "suede kid." This kid finished to resemble mother of pearl, and its delicate tints make it harmonize with practically any evening dress. An old favorite revived is brocade. Silver or gold and often one can have a brocade slipper dyed to match one's frock. The silver or gold strands of the fabric remain unchanged and the background alone is dyed.

OUT OF TUNE

LOUISVILLE.—Fred Caldwell, colored, was up in court charged with disorderly conduct. "Jedge," said Fred, "Ah didn' do nuffin.' Ah jes' sang a bit." Magistrate Daily considered the issue and asked: "What were yo singing?" "Why, Jedge," said Fred, "Ah wuz singin' 'Bye-bye Blackbird,' that's what Ah wuz singin'." The magistrate thought a fine of $1 would deorrect Fred's taste in funeral music.

Falling 30 feet from a tower at Linlithgow, Scotland, Marion Liddle plunged into a tank containing wood pulp and other paper-making material, and her clothing kept her afloat until she was rescued by means of a ladder.

Chicago Gets Rare Jades

Blacks And Natural Leading Shades Found In Spring Coats

A well dressed woman always considers the practical when she chooses a coat, since it is worn so much more frequently than any other part of the costume. The most practical coat uses a neutral shade—one which will harmonize with any frock with which it is worn. For that reason, black or navy blue is always a good choice. So many color combinations and ensembles may be formed with a coat of either of these two colors as basis. Grey gloves, grey hat, and behold! the black coat harmonizes beautifully with a light grey or blue dress. Tan accessories, and a green or tan dress is in order. Red hat, red flower or scarf, and the seemingly lifeless black is transformed, enlivened.

Natural, or light tan, is another neutral shade. Although less practical on account of its light hue, it will clean easily. In these days it costs so little to clean a frock or coat, and even though the garment may not actually show a spot, cleaning so freshens and restores it. Tan stands up well under any amount of cleaning—it does not fade. A coat of that shade can accompany a dress of any color, and the hat may match either coat or frock.

Grey, light blue or green are other colors notable in spring collections. Black satin, bengaline and other heavy silks, will develop well in the "feminine" type of coat, or the coat for the more mature woman. Kasha and the various woolen weaves are important. Names are misleading, because each manufacturer presents his product with a different nomenclature, but the rough light woolens are all good. Twills, of course, are always smart and trim. For later wear in summer, or at resorts, the flannel coat is quite au fait. It is usually of white, although occasionally of white, although occa- shades. Besides the white sports coat of flannel, there is the white knitted coat, the white coat of basket weave woolen; or the innumerable smart novelty woolens in white.

To fur or not to fur—that is the question. And the answer is . . . choose for yourself. If you do prefer to adorn your spring coat with fur, use it sparingly, of course. A narrow question mark collar of some light, summer fur, or a narrow, stand-up collar of fur. The cuffs are better left alone, sans fur. The sport or travel coats, which one uses for "in-between wear," when it is too warm for a heavy winter coat and change of weather may make a spring coat too light, can have wider collars, although many of them appear without any fur at all.

Without fur the collar is usually of the narrow, stand-up variety. Slashed to permit the emergence of a bow, or having long ends tying in a bow, somehow or other the collar must permit the use of a bow, too. There are a few coats seen with the collarless neck line, but that is a rather severe and trying style and has not been very well received.

Just AMONG US GIRLS

by Kathryn Kenney

TAKING THEM OFF THEIR FEET

A girl can't be popular unless she is nice to every man; and she can't stay popular if she keeps it up!

It's all right to treat each man as though the cake had just been frosted, but it's a different thing when you start dividing it up.

Putting all your kisses in one place is the only way to get interest. No man likes to see fresh footprints on his trail.

A woman may have two or three boy friends until one of them forgets his hat when he jumps out of the window. There is safety in numbers until someone starts putting two and two together. Two is a wedding march and three is a funeral march.

Men don't think about marriage until after it's over with, but a girl never goes to a dance without watching some man's step.

A girl would rather stick to a poor man than to a good job. She would rather give him a degree of temperature than take several at college.

It's quite a question as to who will make the best husbands; some girls would rather get indigestion on caviar than stick to a bread and milk diet.

After all, it isn't "the men who make the best husbands," it's the mothers who make 'em!

When a girl looks the boy friends over, there's one she does not overlook.

Every girl knows the faithful sort of man she doesn't have to buy a collar for, and the unfaithful sort who won't stand still long enough to have it put on. If you get anything on him there's nothing exclusive about it! The funny part is, take away his faults and there's nothing left but a raccoon coat!

When it comes right down to it, a woman likes a man for the amount of reforming he needs.

Money comes in handy in marriage, but that's nothing to the way it goes out!

Anybody can forge a check, but you can't copy a sense of humor. Both men and women like to be amused, which is why the animal act is such a flop.

Many a man thinks he's a devil with the women when they don't even know he's in the room until they smell the smoke. He may have a limousine, but he can't take 'em off their feet.

Mother always picks out a nice steady boy for daughter. He's so steady you can't rock him to sleep—he is asleep!

As a matter of fact what mother is thinking of is what kind of a son-in-law he will make. Just because she's had all the excitement that she wants out of life is no reason she should begrudge daughter a little fun!

The best husbands may stay Home every morning, but what girl wants to have all her fun over the radio?

Hill-Billy Music and Negro Spirituals Offered

Hill-billy music and negro spirituals—here is a program of real American music that will delight every lover of humorous, plaintive folk melodies. Like so many other novel and artistic concerts, it will be given in Maxwell House coffee hour, Wednesday, April 6, from 9 to 10 p. m., Eastern time, from WJZ New York; WBAL Baltimore; WBZ Springfield, Mass.; WZBA Boston; KDKA Pittsburgh; KYW Chicago; WHAS Louisville; WSM Nashville; WMC Memphis; WSB Atlanta.

Rex Schepp, world famous as a player of plucked instruments, will play the banjo just as it is played in the far corners of the Blue Ridge. Vernon Dalhart and Carson Robinson will sing the lilting spirituals which critics say are America's most truly representative music, including the beautiful "Golden Slippers." Robinson will give a new whistling specialty, "Whistle-itis."

The concert will also be notable for the first performance of David W. Guion's "Pickaninny Dance," played by the Maxwell House coffee concert orchestra, Nathaniel Shilkret, conductor. Request numbers will have a prominent place on the program.

SHEER LINGERIE

With warm days approaching, the tendency is to be as lightly clothed as possible. Georgette makes up many two-piece sets or chemises, and sheer French voile, hand tucked or edged with fine lace, is also used in profusion.

The "compose" theme of the dress is also amusingly carried out in undies. Insets of blue in a pink vest, lavender in a peach chemise, often take the place of lace insertions: and a sheer and heavy silk o fthe same color may be amalgamated into one piece of lingerie.

The desire to discard always one more piece of clothing led a clever designer to fashion a new combination—step-ins and short petticoat in one piece. Worn with a vest or brassiere, this leaves but two separate pieces to don beneath the dress. Some day, if this keeps up some one will design a one-piece garment to take the place of lingerie and dress. That will be the millennium!

NEW HOSIERY

Delicate tints of lavender, green, yellow and blue worn with white slippers are extremely interesting. They should be of the palest variety, however, just scarcely suggesting their hue. They are worn naturally with sport costumes of the appropriate shades.

New in semi-sports hose are inverted clocks, and shadow clocks. This latter type of clocking extends from ankle to knee, with an arrow head at both terminals.

HAT ORNAMENTS

Replacing to a large extent the crystal pins of last season, are those of tortoise shell and jade. These are quite large in size, and may consist of a double or interlocking pin, or a single pin. Shapes include square, round and various geometric figures.

SQUARE SCARF

Collarless necklines invite the use of a scarf, and many sport dresses are quite improved by the addition of a colorful printed or handblocked neckerchief. These scarfs are large squares, folded in half and tied with a knot at one shoulder.

Men Now Turning Attention To Harmony "Ensemble" In Apparel

A nationwide movement to increase the interest of men in their appearance, to impress upon them the importance of their appearance, in their business and social life, was reported by Edward Quicksilver of the Hub Clothiers of this city. Mr. Quicksilver, who is at the head of Eastern purchasing office of the Hub Clothiers has been in attendance at the fourteenth annual convention of the National Association of Retail Clothiers and Furnishers. Mr. Quicksilver said that the convention was one of the best the association has held with retail clothiers and furnishers from every state in the union with the exception of two in attendance.

Better service for the public, more efficient methods of business operation, and authoritative information on styles for the summer and next fall were the advantages gained by the Hub Clothiers through the attendance at the convention by Mr. Quicksilver. He participated in the discussions.

The effort to tell the men of America more about the clothes they wear was the biggest thought developed at the week's gathering. Already a good deal of work has been done along that line. For instance, practically every motion picture theater in the country is going to show a news reel of the correct styles. Men are showing a good deal of interest in their dress. Most of the newspapers of the country are beginning to devote in their news columns to mens' apparel, to the new ideas of dress and this is evidence of the fact that men are starting to show something of the same interest in their appearance that women show in theirs.

The great stores of the country are developing the ensemble or blend idea in displaying, and in selling mens' apparel, because men are showing that they want to wear the right things, that they want the shirt, the necktie the hose, the handkerchief and the hat to be in harmony with each other and with the suit.

GOD'S WILL IN HEALING TOLD

Christian Science Lecturer Speaks Here

The healing of the sick through God's will was explained Friday night by Frank Bell, C. C. B., of Philadelphia, in a lecture delivered in the Junior college auditorium.

Bell, who is a member of the board of lectureship of the Mother church of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, was introduced to those attending the lecture by Carl L. Karges, second reader of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, of Wichita Falls.

Board of Lectures

"In order that the general public might learn the truth concerning Christian Science, Mrs. Eddy in 1898 established the board of lectureship of the Mother church," Karges said in introducing the speaker. "Mr. Bell is a member of this board."

Mr. Bell said in part:

"The activity of Christian Science is not of the nature of mental suggestion or hypnotism. Jesus expounded the rule, 'Not my will, but thine, be done.' The effort of mental suggestion is to impose one human will upon another. Jesus denounced human will and proclaimed the will of God to be the only real will-power. That rule brought healing to the sick 1900 centuries ago, and it brings healing to the sick today.

Explains Faith

The rule, "Not my will, but thine," be done," is, of course, the rule of perfection. God's will is perfect. Thought that is open to the fundamental rightness of being catches something of the spiritual import of Jesus' teaching, and this improved state of mind manifests itself, after its kind, in outward conditions and affairs. Jesus must have meant this when he said regarding one of his healings, "Thy faith hath made thee whole." His affirmation of God's will that man is perfect had encountered a measure of acceptance, and that improved state of mind which he named faith expressed itself in a corresponding state of body, as states of mind never fail to do. The scientific relationship between state of mind and state of health is affirmed and reaffirmed in the Scriptures.

"You who are sick, weary, afraid, how much of willingness is there in your heart to listen to the "Be ye therefore perfect" of the Christ? You think thousands of thoughts every day. What proportion of these thoughts are of such a nature as to have any tendency in the direction of converting or transforming your sense of things into realization that both God and God's man are perfect? To what extent are you listening to the suggestion that the weight of evidence of imperfection is so overwhelming that there is no use trying to contradict it? I know how pride of intellect, fear of being thought ridiculous, self-sufficiency, doubt, indifference, every phase of human will, would shut the eyes and the ears of the heart against the Christly message of the essential perfection of God's creation, including man. But I know that there is no heart so gross, no intellectuality so hard, no selfishness so dense that diligent search will not reveal a spark of an impulse to repudiate the mental suggestions that constitute the sum total of human belief in evil.

Not Homeless

"The study and application of Christian Science will stimulate one's natural capacity to reject the mental suggestions of evil and so to counteract their effects. Christian healing will thus be been aware of this when he admonished those who were sick to seek healing through the prayer of the righteous.

"Now are we the sons of God," the offspring of Infinite Spirit as St. John has written, notwithstanding the so-called evidence to the contrary.

"What you or I may believe does not, of course, alter the essential realities. Facts are facts, however much we may misapprehend. The earth was just as round when every one believed it to be flat. The only effect of that mistaken belief was to hamper the mistaken believer. If God's man is truly His image and likeness, and therefore is spiritual and unfallen, then a belief that man is material and fallen will be hurtful only to the one who believes it.

"Would it not be a wonderful thing if you were to awaken to a realization that all the imperfection in so-called human experience—the evil, the sin, the sickness, the suffering, the sorrow, the lack, the pain—is the fruit merely of mistaken concepts as to the true nature of reality? Would you not welcome such a realization? You are confronted with the opportunity to approach such a realization. The Bible asserts it in its purity. The patriarchs and prophets discerned it. Jesus of Nazareth practiced it. His true followers have never wholly lost sight of it. The explicit rule and method of it are to be found in the textbook of Christian Science.

"All religions profess to be in some degree effective to the bringing to light of man's true identity and relation to his Maker, infinite Spirit. This is the preeminent quality of Christian Science."

STARS OF STAGE AND SCREEN BRING FUN TO WICHITA FALLS

TWO STARS IN STRAND FILM

Laura La Plante and Kirkwood Here Two Days

While the flapper age has gained strong foothold in the United States what is happening in England?

Certainly something, and if you want the legitimate "dope" told via the screen in a startling and dramatic way it is our advice to go to the Strand theater Sunday and Monday before "Butterflies in the Rain" departs for another city.

And besides, you will see the girl, considered without a doubt the most beautiful and sparkling on the screen in this modern age of stiff competition between the beauties of the world for screen prominence.

Laura La Plante—that's her name. She's blonde, petite and has two of the most entrancing dimples in her cheeks.

But here is a literal "knockout" of a story directed with consummate skill by Edward Sloman, the successful maker of "His People" and "The Old Soak." The story is well constructed, will directed and with flawless acting.

James Kirkwood, who shares the stellar honors, is very good in his role, playing the repressed but idealistic Englishman with true feeling. Kirkwood is one of the best actors on the screen and makes an attractive screen mate for Miss LaPlante.

Laura La Plante and James Kirkwood at the Strand in "Butterflies In the Rain."

Boy's Love For His Dog Theme of Film

The love of a little boy for his pet dog has long been the theme of song and story and it has never been more strikingly emphasized than in the photoplay "When a Dog Loves," which comes to the Mission theater for a two days' engagement, starting Sunday.

"Ranger," the FBO canine cinema wonder, and Mickey McBann, exceptionally clever juvenile star, play the stellar roles, and J. P. McGowan, veteran director, who specializes in thrill episodes, has made a mighty fine picture of the story by John Moroso.

A thumb nail sketch of the story reveals the dog having human longings to get away from the atmosphere of the rich home of his master and play with kids, his pals.

This he succeeds in doing and also succeeds in halting the work of some unscrupulous men who are after diamonds and a girl who has befriended "Ranger."

FBO has adhered to its usual rule in all Ranger pictures and supplied a cast to interpret the various roles that would suffice to support any male or female star of the screen. Harold Goodwin, who played the juvenile lead in "The Better 'Ole," Helen Foster, Frank McGlynn Jr., Irving Renard and Dorothy Dunbar are all seasoned and capable film players and the direction it faultless.

ELECTRA SOCIETY

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, April 2.—The members of the Friendship Sunday school class of the First Methodist entertained the Ladies' Bible classes of the Presbyterian churches at the Country club Thursday afternoon from 3 to 5 o'clock.

The club rooms were decorated with carnations, rose buds, apple blossoms, blue bonnets, ferns, potted plants and pussy willow, which was sent from Colorado, special for the occasion. The suggestions of Easter were carried out in the plate favors, with the colors of green, white and yellow, predominating in the refreshment plates.

The guests guests were met in the downstairs reception room by Mesdames J. W. Riggs, and H. C. Lindley, while Mesdames Jess Barnes and W. J. Sheldon gave appropriate flowers for guests from each Sunday school class represented by red carnations for the Alathean Sunday school class of the Baptist church; pink roses for the Worthwhile class of the Presbyterian church; white carnations for the Lampas society of the Christian church and Black-eyed Susans for the class which was hostess.

Mrs. J. Dave Brown presided at the register, after which they passed down the receiving line composed of Mesdames W. C. Martin, J. W. Russell, E. W. Hanks, H. E. King, Howard Price, Hetman Barnett and J. F. Ormand.

"BEAU GESTE" HERE TWO DAYS

Ticket Sale For Noted Story Opens April 9

Seats will be placed on sale at the box office of the Palace theater Saturday, April 9 for the coming two-day engagement of "Beau Geste," April 11 and 12, the Herbert Brenon Paramount film, the success of which, following its first showing many weeks ago at the Criterion theater in New York has become a matter of moment among film followers.

The film has duplicated the popularity of the novel by Maj. Percivial Christopher Wren, from which it was made, and Adolphe Zukor and Jesse L. Lasky, who present the production, have supplied Mr. Brenon with a film cast bristling with popular and capable names. Ronald Colman is intrusted with the title role, while surrounding characters are interpreted by such favorites as Alice Joyce, Mary Brian, Ralph Forbes, Noah Beery, William Powell, Norm Trevor, Victor McLaglan and others without number. As readers of Maj. Wren's novel will recall the environment of this fascinating story is a sweeping one and Mr. Brenon has indeed taken complete advantage of the wonderful scope offered him, and the picture abounds in scenes and sequences gripping and thrilling in the extreme.

COATS AND PANTS.

PARIS.—"I am the Vicomte de Callarisc," said a haughty client to the room clerk at a fashionable hotel here. "I have just returned from a long sojurn in the Sahara desert, and I feel the cold. That is why I am wearing this fur coat. I want the warmest room in the house." He got it. With his ankle-length coonskin, beneath which showed only spatted instep above patent leather shoes, he marched away. An hour later his bell rang furiously. "I've been robbed," the angry vicomte cried. "Some miscreant has stolen my trousers and all my money was in the pockets." The manager apologized, loaned his guest an extra pair of trousers and 2,000 francs. The vicomte walked out. Now the manager is in mourning for one pair of trousers, only slightly used, and 2,000 francs as good as new.

Students Show Keen Interest In Nash System of Auto Building

Inspection of the various operations entailed in the production of the Nash car was made last week by a delegation of 50 students of the aviation corps of the Great Lakes naval training station under the supervision of Lieut. Commander Weiss. Like many universities and other institutions of learning in the central west, the naval training station has made inspection of the Nash plant, and other industrial plants, a part of the school curriculum.

Among the other schools to send students to the Nash factory, under the guidance of professors and instructors, are the University of Illinois, school of engineering; Northwestern university, school of commerce; University of Wisconsin; Armour institute; Ohio Northern university; University of Kansas; University of Arkansas; Purdue university; Lake Forest college; University of Oklahoma, school of engineering; Greer College of Automotive engineering, and a number of high schools.

These students express keen interest in the various processes that go to make up the completed car and usually are outspoken in their amazement at the lengths to which Nash motors goes in the safeguarding of quality through a most complete system of inspections and tests. They never fail to comment, for instance, on the fact that tests are made of each shipment of steel, even before the material is unloaded from the cars. It is explained to them that under this severe laboratory test the steel must show that it has precisely the right percentage of carbon, nickel, chromium and other elements suited to the purpose for which it is to be used. Passing the laboratory test the steel is then sent to the various departments for fabrication. A Brinell test for hardness is made of each foundry mixture daily—an unusual practice—and Nash motors insists that the cylinder walls in each motor block must show 180 to 200 Brinell hardness.

And, as with the steel and other raw materials, each operation in the building of the car is checked by an inspector before a given part is permitted to pass on in the assembly line. Supplementing this, tests are made of finished parts wherever a test is advisable and practical. The seven-bearing crankshaft, for instance, is tested for perfect balance on a machine, so accurate that it will record the weight of a human hair or will show the pressure of the human breath blown upon it.

The completed motors, after being run-in for 11 hours in the motor test department, are completely disassembled, inspected, then rebuilt and sent out on to the company's track for an actual road test after bodies have been placed on the completed chassis. The final inspection is made just before shipment when the cars are run up on steel platforms and all body bolts are thoroughly scrutinized from underneath.

In addition to students, hundreds of others visit the Nash factories each year. Guides thoroughly familiar with the various production processes take visitors through the plant every day, one trip being made in the morning, and another in the afternoon.

NOW IT'S SKIRTLEGGER

CHICAGO.—Mrs. Mariana Bernardi sat in the rear of her automobile looking like a sweet old-fashioned lady. Her skirts were voluminous and reached to the tips of her shoes. She wore a coal scuttle bonnet of three generations back and a smile of sweet simplicity. So charming a picture did she make that Police Sergeant Gallagher, passing the car in which she sat with her husband, was impelled to look twice. As his eyes rested upon the old-time figure a vagrant gust of wind rushed down the street and lifted Mrs. Bernhardi's covered wagon skirts. Two 10-gallon cans of wine reposted at her feet. Arrested.

J. H. Patton
Candidate for Re-Election
To the Office of Park and Sanitary Commissioner.
Election April 5th

I KINDLY SOLICIT YOUR SUPPORT ON THE RECORD I HAVE MADE IN THE SERVICE OF THE CITY.

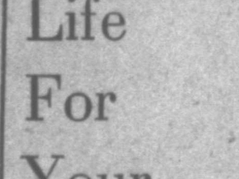

My four years' experience as sanitary and park commissioner may now be utilized by the tax payers, if they see fit, as an asset to the city, inasmuch as said experience would clothe me in the future with valuable knowledge in supervising the affairs of this department, which should prove beneficial from the standpoint of health and economy. I am thoroughly familiar with the requirements of the sanitary and park departments and unquestionably capable of carrying to a successful conclusion improvements and extensions, etc., necessary in safeguarding the health of the inhabitants of our fast growing city. There are many incompleted matters to which I should like to give my personal attention and can unhesitatingly say that I can attend to these matters with less cost to the city, and less friction than any other person who may not be familiar with the requirements in this department at this time.

Please give these matters your careful consideration before casting your vote.

Sincerely Yours to Serve,
J. H. PATTON

MANY MOVIE STARS ARE LIKE TWINS, FOLKS JUST GET 'EM MIXED

FUNNY TALES OF CONFUSION

Stars of Filmdom Mistaken For Each Other

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS.
Motion Picture Editor of Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, April 2.—A film writer of gracious personality whose pen never dips into vitriol for adequate expression addressed a whole conversation to Eugene O'Brien under the mistaken idea that she was talking to Jack Mulhall. Gene, not wishing to embarrass her, did not even enlighten her when, smiling sweetly, she casually remarked:

"You know, Mr. Mulhall, you bear an extraordinary resemblance to Eugene O'Brien."

The incident happened at Gloria Swanson's house and was so amusing I related it to Marion Davies, Seena Owen and Bebe Daniels, who were discussing resemblances in the movies.

"Why don't you write a story on stars who look alike?" asked Marion. "There are any number of really striking resemblances on the screen.

"Take Joan Crawford, for instance. There is something about her reminiscant of Pauline Frederick. Dolores Costello at times looks very much like Elsie Ferguson. There is the same stately beauty and contour of features. As for Pauline Starke, she is the image of Gloria Swanson."

"What about yourself, Marion and Dorothy Mackaill?" interrupted Seena Owen. "You two girls are very similar in appearance."

They Look Alike.

"We must look alike," agreed Marion, "for so many people speak of it, perhaps because we both have blonde bobbed hair."

Resemblances, in many cases, in spite of these concrete examples, are a matter of individual opinion. For instance, John Gilbert once told me with great pride that he and Ronald Colman were doubles. I couldn't see the likeness myself although Ronald Colman agreed with John Gilbert that they looked exactly alike and I suppose, since they are the two most concerned, they should know.

David Wark Griffith chose Bessie Love to play the bride of Canaan in "Intolerance" because he thought she was the counterpart of Mary Pickford. Mary herself, afterward, told me that she thought Bessie Love looked like her on the screen.

While David Griffith chose Bessie Love with the obvious purpose of discovering another Mary Pickford, most of these girls have not been selected by producers because of a real or fancied resemblance, in some few cases there has been resentment and bitterness over an implied imitation. A few, and fortunately only a very few of the stars refuse to admit that there could be two people made in the same mould. But most of the players, thank goodness, have a sense of humor and enjoy being told they look like someone else.

An apt illustration of this occurred one night when Blanche Sweet told me she had just had a marvelous compliment.

"I have been told," said Blanche, "that I am the blonde edition of Norma Talmadge."

Norma, not to be outdone by Blanche's gracious gesture, confided that she really thought she and Blanche looked alike.

"At least, I hope it is true," said Norma.

"Well, your features are alike," I agreed, "but neither one of you need ever worry about mistaken identity."

"That only happens in books, anyway," said Norma, "—or in the movies."

Rod Faces Cameras.

Rod La Rocque was called upon to exercise both a sense of humor and a temper at the newspaper ball when two different newspaper photographers spoke to him and said:

"Could we take a flashlight of you, Mr. Valentino."

"I must look like Monte Blue and Rudolph Valentino more than I look like myself," said Rod. "Tonight at least three dozen people have called me Mr. Blue and two dozen others have addressed me as Mr. Valentino. Can it be that I look like both of them?"

Stars who are sure of their positions can appreciate having a double, newcomers to the films find such a likeness a drawback. Unconsciously these strangers may adopt certain mannerisms of some famous star and be accused of copying another actress' style. Dorothy Sebastian for instance, was hooked as a second Gloria Swanson.

"I admire Miss Swanson tremendously," she said, "but I think it is unfair to say that I am trying to copy her manner of dress. It is unfair not only to me but to her as well."

Girls who are eager to break into the movies very often write and say:

"My family says I look exactly like Marion Davies, Bebe Daniels or Pola Negri or some other famous star."

An argument that might sound well in the family circle, but one that will not go far towards landing any of the eager aspirants a job. Producers are exceedingly cautious about trying a duplicate any of the box office favorites. They realize their money is not made in imitating the stars who have already established themselves but rather in creating a new and distinct type.

Her Charm Is Lazy.

No more effective illustration can be used than Greta Garbo, whose lazy charm and indifferent method of delineating character has been a sensation. Louis B. Mayer is responsible for introducing her to the picture world. Dolores Del Rio, small, Spanish and vivid, introduced to the film world by Edwin Carewe is also a success and one whose work is distinctive. Vilma Banky, Samuel Goldwyn's Hungarian rhapsody, is another newcomer who has achieved fame by merely being herself.

This story is, however, not concerned with players who are different. Marion Davies' original idea was to collect all the doubles in the movies. Two others who have been frequently mentioned as being alike are Carol Dempster and Marguerite De La Motte, and Zasu Pitts and Lillian Gish. If any of my readers think of any more stars who look alike send along your selections.

"Casey at Bat," Immortal Epic Of Diamond, Beery's New Comedy

"Take out the bum!" "Kill the umpire!" "Come on, kid, knock a homer!" "There goes the old ball game!"

These, and all the other expressons which make baseball the game it is, are included in Wallace Beery's current Paramount starring comedy, "Casey at the Bat," which arrived at the Majestic theater Saturday.

Beery, perhaps the actor to have made most progress during the past 12 months, due to inimitable performances in "Behind the Front," "We're in the Navy Now" and "Old Ironsides," enacts the small-town junk man who suddenly finds himself catapulted to fame and fortune when a big league baseball scout signs him to a Giant contra.t

Imagine if you will (it isn't difficult) Beery as the hero of America, the Babe Ruth of 1961. Picture the laughs as Wallace hits a home run with one hand while holding a stein of beer in the other. Think of the roars that are forthcoming as he climbs on the stage of the old Casino theater and makes a personal appearance with the "original" Floradora Sextette. Then comes a trip to Coney Island and you'll wonder what the wild waves are saying. A morning in bed, duped into believing he's very ill and finally—the big game!

Ford Sterling, who has been everything from a Keystone Kop to a drawing room farceur, is featured as Beery's guardian angel. Sterling's last two roles were played in Paramount's "Everybody's Acting" and "Stranded in Paris." Zasu Pitts, the "plain Jane" of the studios, who does either farce or drama as they should be done, gives Wallace a chance to demonstrate his—ahem—shall we say—love-making ability? Miss Pitts will always be remembered as von Stroheim's leading woman in "Greed." Sterling Holloway, new to the screen, but well known on Broadway, because of his comic tendencies, contributes some more mirth as Beery's rival. And then, Spec O'Donnell, the kid who acted so villainously in Mary Pickford's "Sparrows," shows his prowess as a comedian.

CAREY AT GARDEN

Popular Star Here Two Days In "Driftin' Thru."

"The most human actor on the screen!" Such is the tribute recently paid Harry Carey, interpreter of the eternal west, by Dell Henderson, one of Hollywood's best known directors. In so designating the popular cowboy star, the film craftsman declared that Carey is one of the few really natural actors before the camera, who feels every scene that he taks, and therefore, makes it appear real.

"Driftin' Thru" is Carey's latest picture, in which he interprets the role of a desert "lazybones," slow to anger and to fight, except where women, children and animals are concerned, and then a "wildcat" in action. It will be shown at the Garden theater Sunday and Monday.

ZANE GREY STORY

"Born to the West" Provides Plenty of Action

A motion picture that moves with the celerity of a machine gun. That—is Zane Grey's story of a great family feud—and how it affected a girl. John Waters has brought it to the screen as a Paramount production. "Born to the West" is the tale of two boys, who as school lads, fought over a girl. On reaching manhood, their paths cross again. Then—but you'd better see the film when it arrives at the Garden on Thursday.

It is a fact moving, colorful and full of action every moment. There are wild rides, stirring adventure, gun fights and an exciting rescue of Margaret Morris by Jack Holt. Through it all runs the mystery and romance always connected with Zane Grey. Jack Holt, with quick brain and iron nerve, escapes from many tight places, but never from the heart of the girl.

"Born to the West" includes in its cast, besides Miss Morris and Holt—Raymond Hatton, Arlette Marchal and George Siegman.

BANDITS? NO, CAT!

CLEVELAND, O. — "Burglars, thieves, safe crackers," shouted Samuel Miller into the telephone connected with police headquarters here the other night. A squad of patrolmen dashed to the premises occupied by the Sanitary Laundry company, 840 E. Ninety-third street. They found Miller, night watchman, pale and trembling. Sounds indicating a riot came from the office. The lock was broken and with revolvers drawn the police dashed in upon a large tom cat which had knocked over a couple of tin pails while pursuing a mouse.

"Great Deception" To Show Four Days

"The Great Deception," which is the attraction at the Olympic theater four days, has a broadly international flavor. The American touch it has been given is characteristic in an ultra-modern way.

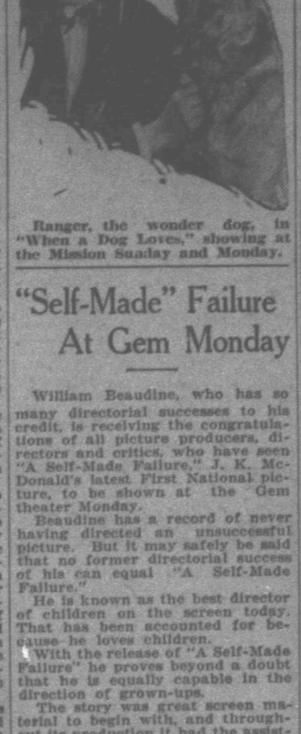

The heroine is an American girl—and no girl, unless American, would perform the heroics, this heroine does in the development of the story.

"The Great Deception" is a fiction record of a stirring incident of the World war. The principal character, as portrayed by Ben Lyon, is the English-bred son of English-German parentage, who chooses to serve Great Britain as a member of the British secret service—and is able to serve particularly well because of his German family connections, which gain him a commission in the secret service of the kaiser.

Other principal characters are English and German. The "girl" in the story is the American niece of a titled Englishwoman, who happens to be visiting in London when the story opens.

Despite the groundless gossip that the man she loves is a "slacker," the American girl is loyal to an amazing degree and not only believes in him, but helps him. The most exciting melodramatic sequence in the picture comes when the girl conceals herself in her sweetheart's automobile, determined to accompany him upon one of his perilous trips to Germany, and ultimately pilots his airplane on the return trip to England when he has been seriously injured in a battle with those who seek to restrain him.

"Self-Made" Failure At Gem Monday

William Beaudine, who has so many directorial successes to his credit, is receiving the congratulations of all picture producers, directors and critics, who have seen "A Self-Made Failure," J. K. McDonald's latest First National picture, to be shown at the Gem theater Monday.

Beaudine has a record of never having directed an unsuccessful picture. But it may safely be said that no former directorial success of his can equal "A Self-Made Failure."

He is known as the best director of children on the screen today. That has been accounted for because he loves children.

With the release of "A Self-Made Failure" he proves beyond a doubt that he is equally capable in the direction of grown-ups.

The story was great screen material to begin with, and throughout its production it had the assistance of a remarkable director, the best of scenarists, and one of the best all-star casts that has ever been assembled since pictures became a popular form of instruction and amusement.

The all-star cast of the seven-reel farce comedy includes Ben Alexander, Lloyd Hamilton, Matt Moore, Patsy Ruth Miller, Mary Carr, Sam DeGrasse, Chuck Reisner, Victor Potel, Dan Mason, Harry Todd, Alta Allen, Priscilla Moran, Joe McCray, "Cameo," the bull terrier of "Penrod and Sam" fame, a bevy of bathing beauties, who appear in but one sequence, but make that appearance one to be remembered for years to come.

Thirteen playgrounds are to be opened in the congested parts of Honolulu.

CARS FROZEN IN ICE BLOCKS

But Even This Fails To Crack Finish

By F. R. RIPLEY.

"What's the outlook for oil stocks?" is a question being asked frequently.

There is no apparent danger of a shortage in this country's supply of petroleum. In spite of the enormous increase in the use of this product, the growth in production has kept ahead of the demand.

Except for 1924, each year since the start of the oil industry in 1859, production has increased. But the greatest strides have been made in recent years. For example, the increase from 1920 to 1925 was 70.6 per cent, while for the same period consumption increased only 53.3 per cent.

At the end of 1925 there had been drilled in the United States, since the beginning of the industry in 1859, a total of 534,000 successful wells. At the end of this period there were producing 306,100 wells, or only 57 per cent.

The flow from the older wells is decreasing constantly, for a well's production is at its best in the beginning before there is a decrease in the pressure of the gas which expels the oil.

Experts show that at the present time more than half of the output of this country is coming from about 4 per cent of the producing wells. These wells have been discovered within the last two or three years.

Six Year's Supply Sure.

It is estimated by authorities that the reserve in existing wells and proven acreage is only about 4,500,000,000 barrels. At the present rate of consumption of 800,000,000 barrels a year, this is only a six years' supply. However, it would be impossible to take this entire amount from its source in such a short time.

These conditions have brought about exhaustive inquiries on the subject of the supply and more encouraging evidence has been produced. The greatest hope lies in the discovery of new fields. Along this line much has been done.

The present producing area of this country totals about 3,250,000 acres. But geological survey shows that there are in this country more than a billion acres of the same general character as those which are now producing oil. In this billion acres discovery of oil may be expected.

Changes in methods have done much to encourage the industry. The first well in this country was completed in Pennsylvania in 1859 at a depth of only 69 feet. The depth has been increased rapidly in the last few years with increasingly beneficial results. Ten years ago, 2,000 feet was deeper than the average well. Then, five years ago, a well was sunk 5,000 feet, breaking all records. But today a well in southern California has been 8,046 feet, or more than a mile and a half.

These improvements in oil production are being made constantly and with great benefit to the industry. Already methods have been devised which are making possible the reopening of wells that were once considered as non-producers. Some experts go so far as to show that the methods of extraction in vogue 10 years ago extracted only about half of the supply available in a well. If this is true it means that the United States has available a supply in already proven territory as great as that which has already been taken from the ground.

The application of air or gas pressure to some wells has resulted in the recovery of from 50 to 300 per cent of the total obtained by flowing and pumping.

Then, too, there is the still unproven theory of extracting oil from shale in profitable quantities. Work is being done along this line in a very satisfactory manner. While the results obtained thus far have not proven the theory practical, owing to a slightly larger cost, it is thought that the method will be improved to the extent which will make oil recovered in this manner competitive with that obtained from wells.

With these improvements aiding the industry and a great unproven acreage in reserve, it is small wonder that authorities see no cause for alarm in the nation's future oil supply.

BULL DOES IT

CONSTANTINOPLE. — Scientists may have their own explanation for earthquakes, but the desert dwellers of Kurdistan know better—or at least think they do. A Kurdistan sheik explained to an American traveler the other day that the world is carried on the shoulders of a monster bull, who, when he gets hungry, shakes his head, causing the earth to shudder. This is the reason the Kurdistan tribes believe there has been severe earthquakes in Armenia. Now that the bull has satisfied his appetite all is quiet again.

TOPPERS ARE BACK

LONDON.—Silk hats are coming back into style, British hatters declare, and the new fashions call for a "topper" exactly 5 3-4 inches high, with a brim exactly 1 7-8 inches wide, and slightly belled at the top. Unless your hat answers these specifications, you might as well stick to a fedora and give up any notion of becoming a fashion leader.

Chrysler Prosperity and Service Reflected in Annual Dividends

Chrysler corporation directors have declared the regular $5 annual dividend on the preferred stock of the company, payable $2 quarterly on March 31, June 30, Sept. 30, 1927 and Jan. 3, 1928 to stockholders of record on March 15, June 15, Sept. 15 and Dec. 15, 1927, respectively.

The regular quarterly dividend of 75 cents per share on the common stock of the corporation was declared for the first quarter of 1927 payable on March 31, to stockholders of record March 15.

Chrysler corporation 1926 annual report showed net earnings of $15,448,586.84 after provision for federal taxes. After providing for preferred stock dividend, this leaves net earnings available for the common stock for the year of $13,722,998.84.

Earnings for the fourth quarter of 1926, after provision for federal income taxes were $3,723,774.78 or $1.22 per share on the common stock, compared with 90 cents per share on the common stock during the fourth quarter of 1925. Car sales were 170,592 cars compared with 137,668 for the previous year. Fourth quarter, 1926 car sales were 50,964 compared with 30,376 for the correspondig quarter of 1925, reflecting the larger distribution of Chrysler products accomplished by the introduction during 1926, of the Chrysler "50," "60" and Imperial "80." With these three lines of cars and the established "70" line, Chrysler cars now practically cover the entire price range in passenger automobiles.

The Dec. 31, 1926 balance sheet shows $28,314,772.55 in net current assets with cash and marketable securities more than sufficient to pay all liabilities, an improvement in the net working capital position of the company, compared with last year of $293,641.28. During the year, the corporation declared $9,846,828 in dividends; expended $8,551,768.10 on plant facilities; retired $1,024,000 of funded debt, and met preferred stock sinking fund requirements of $812,124 and wrote off all expenses incidental to creating the three new lines of cars introduced.

Commenting further on the corporation's activities, Mr. Chrysler stated that he believed the company was in the strongest position of its history; the sale of its product at retail to the public was running 40 per cent ahead of last year and at the current rate of delivery stocks of cars in dealers' hands were only 75 per cent of last year. Forward orders for factory shipment promises operations at full capacity throughout the spring.

CARS FROZEN IN ICY COAT

Chrysler Finish Stands Up Under Harsh Test

What is believed to be a record for durability of finish on automobiles has been reported by an official of the Chrysler Motor company. Last December this company shipped via a large lake steamer from Detroit to Duluth, 260 cars all finished in duco. In transit, the boat encountered a severe storm and was driven ashore where she was battered by wave and weather. The cars were loaded on the deck and after their exposure to the weather were so completely covered by ice, sleet and show that they appeared like enormous blocks. After being in this condition three weeks, they were sawed out and removed by derricks just as if they were large cakes of ice. The frozen covering was then cut way with picks and handsaws and the cars driven to a garage twenty miles down the shore where they were completely thawed out. On examination the finish was found to be perfect in every way.

TRUCKS NEED STEERING EASE

Proper Control Element Of Safety

"An important point truck owners often overlook in making their purchases is the ease with which the truck can be handled," said Bob Cornelison of McFall Brothers, local Dodge Brothers dealer.

"It is important because it makes all the difference in the world in the prevention of accidents. A truck which responds to every touch of the wheel and braking is probably one of the largest factors in truck driving safety. While size and weight make a difference in the handling, still the truck having the ease of steering and braking will have fewer accidents.

"Graham Brothers trucks and commercial cars are designed for easy handling and are for that reason preferred by truck drivers who really know their advantages. Anyone can observe the ease with which one of these trucks or commercial cars travel through the heaviest traffic. It stops and starts and is handled with the ease of a passenger car."

WANT "TRENCH OF DEATH" SAVED

Efforts are being made to save the "Thench of Death," famous during the World war and familiar to later visitors to the battlefields. It is in the path of a proposed road from Caeskerke to Dixmude, and a campaign has been launched to have the road diverted and to preserve the tragic spot as a memorial of the war.

Studebaker Proves Hill Climbing Power When Challenge Is Accepted

Studebaker's claim that the Commander, the big six sedan for five, will out-climb any six or eight selling for less than $2,500, was dramatically proved in a recent hill-climbing test at Batavia, N. Y.

The Studebaker Commander competed against five makes of cars in three different hill-climbing tests and won every contest. Two additional weight-carrying hill-climbing tests, one of which included carrying 17 men weighing 2,794 pounds over the test hill, were so remarkably performed by the Commander that the other cars did not compete.

The tests, which proved so decisive, resulted from a series of advertisements John S. Brown & Sons, Studebaker dealers in Batavia, ran in local newspapers. The advertisements stated that the Commander would out-perform any competitive car and carried the challenge "Make Us Prove it." Competitive dealers accepted.

A course, three-tenths of a mile in length, was laid out on "Burleigh Hill," the hill that is considered Batavia's unofficial "testing ground." The first test was a "slow race" to establish which car could climb the hill in high gear at the slowest pace. The Commander won by a large margin, performing the stunt in 3 minutes 17 2-5 seconds, while the next slowest time was 3 minutes 12 3-5 seconds.

Event No. 2 was a speed climb from a standing start. The Commander flashed across the finish line in 22 4-5 seconds, the nearest competitor made the climb in 35 seconds.

The third test was a speed climb from a flying start and the Commander made the ascent in 20 3-5 seconds, exactly three-fifths of a second ahead of the next competitive car.

In two weight carrying tests the Commander first carried 10 men weighing 1,653 pounds over the hill land then carried 17 men or a total weight of 2,794 pounds, over the hill without changing from high gear or slipping the clutch. Other cars did not compete in these tests.

TOO HAPPY A MULE

PARMA, Mo.—This town has lost one of its most famous institutions, but at least it has gained peace and quietness in return. Jo-Jo, a mule attached to a local livery stable, was perhaps the best-known mule in Missouri, which has many mules. Unlike most mules, Jo-Jo had a happy disposition. A jovial soul, Jo-Jo was liked by one and all—until he got the habit of singing his head off from sheer joy of living. Morning, noon and night Jo-Jo would burst forth with loud notes of raucous song—especially at night. This was fine for Jo-Jo, but trying on the citizens who wished to sleep. A special town meeting banished Jo-Jo to a farm outside the town limits and now Parma is catching up on its sleep.

PACKARD CUT BOOMS SALES

Huge Increase Show On New Price List

Figures made public by the Packard Motor Car company show that a big increase in the actual delivery of cars to purchasers immediately followed the reduction of $335 in the price of the Packard six five-passenger sedan, Packard six phaeton and Packard six runabout.

The price reduction became effective March 1 and in the first 10 days of March there was an increase of 246.5 per cent in deliveries on many of which were pending at the time of their report, showed an even larger increase. Both sales and deliveries for the first 10 days of March showed a great increase over the first 10 days of March, 1926.

While there has been great activity at the Packard plant in Detroit in preparation for the big increase in demand for Packard cars which it was thought certain would follow the price reduction the results have been such, officers of the company say, that it will be impossible for the factory to keep pace with the demand and a shortage of cars will be inevitable.

As indicative of the increase in the sales and deliveries of the three types of cars affected by the price change, interesting figures from a number of cities were made public. The Bridgeport, Conn., distributor delivered 650 per cent more Packard six five-passenger sedans, six phaetons and six runabouts in the first 10 days of March than were delivered in the first 10 days of March last year.

Among other points where there were big increases in deliveries for the same period this year as compared with the first 10 days of March 1926 were the following with the percentage of increases: Chicago, 247 per cent; New York, 200 per cent; Pittsburgh, 216 per cent; Cincinnati, 500 per cent; Scranton, Pa., 275 per cent; Buffalo, 450 per cent; Baltimore, 216 per cent, and Seattle, 117 per cent.

NASH

Leads the World in Motor Car Value

How many main bearings in your motor car? Nash recommends 7

Because for the finest and smoothest performance results, you need 7, rather than 3 or 4.

Obviously, 3 or 4 supports for a crankshaft cannot give it the rigidity and smoothness of 7. That is why Nash—with customary engineering progressiveness—has developed the 7-bearing motor for all Nash models.

A crankshaft that "whips" because of inadequate bearing support must eventually loosen its bearings and require expensive shopwork. The 7 bearings of Nash prevent this.

The 7 bearings of Nash also achieve power-smoothness and quietness with no sacrifice of acceleration. In fact, the proper support of the crankshaft decidedly improves the energy and aggressiveness of the car.

Nash changed to 7 bearings even though large expenditures were required for new precision equipment, because 7 bearings give Nash owners a better, smoother, more powerful motor car. One that is keen on the throttle, with a fluid quickness of acceleration not found in older motor types.

Here is another fact to remember about the 7 bearings of Nash:

They have more bearing surface, by actual measurement, than any 6-cylinder engine of similar size and price, no matter how many bearings it has. (Actually 20 square inches more than cars with fewer bearings.)

More than 140,000 Nash owners are now driving the 7-bearing motor. Their experience has been so outspokenly satisfactory that it seems certain all 6-cylinder engines must eventually turn to 7 bearings to compete with Nash in performance—and in resale or trade-in value.

When you buy your 1927 motor car be sure to ask: "How many main bearings?" And for better results choose the car that has 7.

Nash offers you this performance-advantage in every single model, whether you pay $2090 for it or only $865.

CLOSED CARS GO INTO LEAD

By RAY PRIEST,
Universal Service Automobile Editor.

DETROIT, April 2.—Effort expended by motor car manufacturers to build closed cars at a minimum price in the line of models sold by each has resulted in many instances in making this type the most popular of any model of any make.

In the case of several manufacturers the coach has become its largest seller. These have either called their model of this type a coach or a two-door sedan.

One manufacturer found such great demand for this model in its line that today the largest production is coaches.

As it happens that this maker is Chevrolet, that means that a large proportion of all cars manufactured today are coaches. The reason for this is the fact that Chevrolet today is the largest volume producer in the business, having passed Ford some months ago.

Hudson First Coach

The first coach, to be called such, was built by Hudson. The demand was so great that on introduction of the Essex a coach was placed in that line and proved a big seller. For a period of time the Hudson factories were almost entirely devoted to the production of Hudson and Essex coaches.

Chevrolet built its first coach on the present chassis in January, 1925. There had been a Chevrolet produced during the previous September, but was a merchandising test, which later led to the next new models have a coach added to the line.

At the time of the introduction of the first Chevrolet coach it was listed at $785. Today the production of this model is now 28.5 per cent of the entire Chevrolet production and is by far the biggest seller. With the increase in volume Chevrolet has been able to make three price cuts until now the coach is being sold for less and has the added advantage of having had added three different sets of improvements.

When Hudson proved that it could make a coach more reasonably and thus provide a closed car at a less selling price many other manufacturers stepped into the picture with coaches.

Scan the price lists of all the makers today and with the exception of Hudson and Chevrolet it will be found that only Chrysler, Flint, Moon, Oldsmobile, Overland, Pierce-Arrow and Studebaker list coaches as among their products.

Two-Door Sedan

Many however, list "two-door sedans" which, they claim, is really the proper name for this type of car.

Hudson told the public that the coach was its idea of the way to more nearly furnish a price comparable with the touring car price. With the increase in quantity production this maker found that better materials and better workmanship could be put into this type of car.

Chevrolet found that as production increased it could do the same. Today it advertises the "most beautiful Chevrolet in Chevrolet history."

The touring car is still taken as the basic price of any maker's line of cars but the ever encroaching popularity of the sedan has made possible produced closed car prices until today some manufacturers minimum priced car is a closed car, generally a two-door sedan.

The first closed car was built in 1907 by Walter E. Flanders. He put the body on a Wayne chassis and aroused considerable adverse comment. It was said that Flanders was going directly against the one thing that sold motor cars, the opportunity of the "sport" to be seen driving his new horseless vehicle.

Today there are three closed cars being manufactured for every open car.

NEW RECORD

Studebaker Ships 940 Cars From Plant in Single Day

SOUTH BEND, Ind., April 2. A new high record for a single day's shipments was established yesterday by Studebaker plants when 940 Studebaker and Erskine cars were shipped from Detroit, South Bend and Walkerville factories. This figure exceeds the previous record of 752 cars in a single day, established on Feb. 28, this year.

The increase in Studebaker and Erskine shipments has been brought about by the widespread demand from dealers throughout the United States whose deliveries to consumers for the first fifteen days of March show an increase of 26 per cent over deliveries for the same period in 1926.

Farmers Guests At Fordson Plant

Plans for bringing one thousand farmers from Ohio, Kansas, Indiana and Michigan to Detroit to visit the Fordson plant matured March 1, when Ford dealers from certain sections of these states acted as sponsors for a special train on the D. T. & I. to bring the visitors to Detroit.

This is a continuance of the dealer activities of 1926 which resulted in more than five thousand business men, bankers, and farmers visiting the Fordson plant.

The plan which was put into effect this year provides that those who desire to make the trip purchase tickets from Ford dealers. The receipts for the prices of these tickets will be redeemed by the dealers in full for any of the guests who purchase Ford equipment such as tractors, trucks, or passenger cars.

First Tour of Year.

The first tour of this year arrived on a special sixteen-coach D. T. & I. train which left Napoleon, Ohio, at 6 a. m., reaching the Fordson plant at 9:30 a. m., March 1. Stopping at five stations between Napoleon and Fordson, the train took on passengers from the surrounding country. Some came from as far as La Grange, Indiana; Defiance, Ohio, and Topeka, Kansas.

Luncheon was served at the Fordson plant, with Ford dealers as hosts.

The day was spent in a detailed inspection tour of the entire plant including steel mills, glass house, cement plant, by-product plant, blast furnaces, foundry, motor assembly, tractor assembly departments, and the power house.

HUPP EXPECTS RECORD SPRING

Cole Sees Greatest Demand In Company History

A demand throughout America for Hupmobile eights and sixes during the next several months that will materially surpass all previous records is seen by R. S. Cole, general sales manager of the Hupp Motor Car corporation.

In its plans to meet it, that company announces the completion of rearrangements to its plant facilities permitting an increase of 50 per cent more cars than its previous capacity.

Business Grows.

Mr. Cole announces that indications show that sales of cars for March will be the largest of any single month in the company's entire history.

"Our recent delivery of 75 eight cylinder cars to our Chicago distributor in one driveaway constitutes what is believed to be the largest single shipment of eights ever delivered to one company," he said. "This is an indication of the increasing volume of eight-cylinder business.

"The automobile shows this year were by all odds the most successful for us that we have ever known, more than twice as many Hupmobiles were actually sold during these shows than during any previous show period in our history. Our distributors and dealers, reflecting the general public's state of mind, are at the highest pitch of enthusiasm over 1927 prospects. We are working on plans to add steadily to our dealer organization. Because of Hupmobile's reputation we are in the position of selecting from hundreds of able motor car merchandisers seeking our franchise.

"This increased dealer organization will enable us to offer greater sales and service facilities to every owner than ever before. We plan that by the end of 1927 we shall have a dealer in practically every town of more than 7,500 persons in the United States, with a continued representation in scores of towns under that size."

More Dealers.

Mr. Cole points to the sale of $2,695,570 worth of Hupmobile eights and sixes by the company's New York distributor organization in less than three minutes, and to the sale of another $3,278,680 by the Chicago distributor, during those automobile shows, as indicative of the enthusiasm for Hupmobile which, he adds, has swept the entire country.

"To these 14 body styles on our eight-cylinder chassis, including three custom built bodies by Dietrich, we also have a complete list of models for our six-cylinder car—the car we believe to be the closest priced six in the entire industry," he said.

"Hupmobile today is squarely in the center of that part of the market where the buying increase is largest—the field from $1,000 to $2,500. The country's tremendous general prosperity, coupled with the fact that both our cars are now thoroughly established, assures us of the greatest period this company has ever known through 1927."

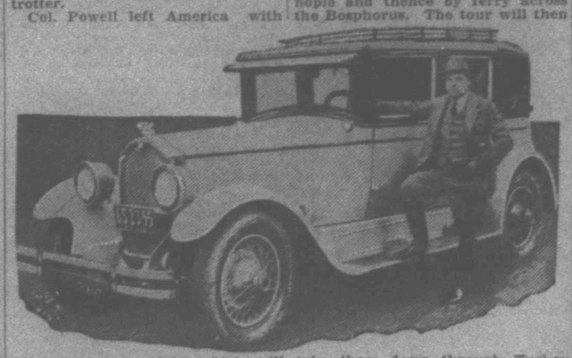

Hotel keepers of Switzerland are just getting over the effects of the world war.

An automobile club in France has this year the motto: "Good roads, not roads of gold."

Author Tours Strange Places Of World in Special Buick Car

Over ancient trails fraught with danger, through hub-deep sand under a sun which shows no pity for man or car, a man, his wife and daughter are blazing trails which never before showed the tracks of an automobile tire. This man is Lieut. Col. E. Alexander Powell, noted American war correspondent, author and globe-trotter.

Col. Powell left America with his family on a trip which will take them all over the world. It is probably the most pretentious automobile tour ever attempted. The Powells will avoid the well marked trails and beaten paths, for all three members of this family are innoculated with the spirit of the wanderlust and also with the desire for exploration.

They spent the winter visiting the islands in the eastern Mediterranean, including Crete, Cyprus, Rhodes, Malta and Corfu. What material Col. Powell gathers there will be included in a book entitled "Mediterranean Moorings." The trip and the writing of his book will take him through Finland, Poland, Czecho-Slovakia, Latvia, Lithuania, Esthonia and others of those newer countries. The book will grow as the party proceeds by motor from place to place. Col. Powell's car, a 1927 Buick brougham, is specially equipped with a typewriter and table, as well as many other conveniences so necessary on a long, arduous tour.

The itinerary also includes a trip by automobile to Constantinople and thence by ferry across the Bosphorus. The tour will then take them down through Turkey and Syria to Damascus or Jerusalem. From there they will drive across Arabia to Bagdad and then through Persia and on to India. They intend also to drive entirely across China and there sail for California, completing a trip entirely around the world, traveling by automobile while on land.

"Dangerous?" said Col. Powell just before leaving on the long trip, "not a bit of it. I've found that as one goes along his way if he is half way courteous he is not likely to be disturbed. As for our car, we know that no matter where we go we will be in reach of approved factory service and anticipate nothing but pleasure on the tour.

"Just because men have yellow, brown or black skins they are not different at heart from other men. I have met all kinds, and find that people are much alike. The people of all countries are kind and hospitable when treated courteously."

Col. Powell is one of the best equipped men in America to undertake this long automobile tour. Always an inveterate traveler, he has had his share of adventure and has acquired a thorough cosmopolitan training. Besides his work of writing travelogs, he was the only correspondent allowed with the German army during the World War. He has the record of being the only man to drive from Paris to India, crossing the Sahara Desert. He is also the first man to drive a car from Mexico to Alaska, accomplishing this feat in 1913. His European and Asiatic trips often inflict great hardships on his car.

MORE DODGES

More Dodge Brothers motor cars are registered in Johannesburg, South Africa, than any other make, according to the last report of the office of census and statistics of the union of South Africa. In the whole of South Africa 51,694 gear shift cars are registered. Of these 8,191 or nearly one-sixth are Dodge Brothers vehicles. Registrations of Dodge Brothers cars exceed by 22 per cent, those of the nearest competitor in the gear shift class.

Higher Quality at Lower Prices
because of increasing Volume Production!

January, 1925—There was introduced a new Chevrolet which scored a tremendous success. Among its many new features were: a new and rugged rear axle, an improved unit power plant, a new single-plate disc-clutch, a much stronger frame, semi-elliptic chrome vanadium steels springs, cowl and dash-lamps, and new Fisher bodies finished in Duco . . . and the price of the Coach was . . . $735 f.o.b. Flint, Mich.

August, 1925—Chevrolet announced a new measure of value based on many new quality features—such as motor-driven Klaxon horn, improved sheet metal construction in the bodies, corrugated steering wheel with walnut finish, new headlamp rim construction and a more convenient gear-shift lever. Yet, despite all the additions . . . the Coach was reduced to . . . $695 f.o.b. Flint, Mich.

January, 1926—Another spectacular increase in Chevrolet value—a model offering many mechanical improvements, such as a smoother, quieter motor with three-point suspension, a silent V-belt generator drive, new oil pump, more efficient cooling, an air cleaner, larger brakes, etc. Notwithstanding these improvements . . . the Coach was reduced to . . . $645 f.o.b. Flint, Mich.

and now—

The Most Beautiful Coach In Chevrolet History!

Climaxing all of Chevrolet's previous value triumphs, the Chevrolet Coach of today is acclaimed as the outstanding closed car value of all time. Frolics of Florabel

Verses By Berton Braley
Drawings By George J. Kerr

A MESSENGER brought to Miss Florrie a note
Which thrilled her exceedingly; herewith I quote,
"My Charming Miss Flutter, this isn't au fait,
But when you attended my last matinee,
I saw you and learned who you are, and I fell
Completely and totally under your spell.

"SO, though you may think it, perhaps, indiscreet,
I'd like it most awfully if we might meet
For dinner—the Blaza, six-thirty to-night.
You'll know me, I'll wear a chrysanthemum—white!"
The letter was signed with the magical name
Of Harold Hilary, an actor of fame.

'TWAS monogrammed, too, with his personal crest.
Now Florrie was human; she pondered, then dressed
And, feeling a bit of a gay little sinner,
She went to the Blaza, as bidden, to dinner.
And found in the lobby—not him she expected,

And Florabel knew she had been taken in.
Then suddenly light on her consciousness burst—
The date, she remembered, was April the first.
But still she was angry, her temper grew hot,
To think she'd been caught by so ancient a plot.

THEN Harold Hilary appeared and he spoke,
"I'm guilty of helping to fashion this joke.
But 'Charming Miss Flutter,' don't take it to heart,
You really can't blame these young men for their part
In making a fool of you ONE day, my dear,
Since YOU make young fools of them all of the year!"

How Mirror-Writing Is Used in Mental Tests

Demonstrating How Mirror-Writing Is Done. A Flat, Opaque Object Is Held Between the Hand and Paper as the Writer Follows the Movement of the Pencil by Watching the Reflection in a Mirror.

MIRROR-WRITING, which can be read normally only by holding it before a mirror, or through the paper by transmitted light, if regularly used, is generally associated with some form of disease or mental aberration. This form of writing, doubtless, has been practised variously by nearly every one as a pastime, so there is no occasion for undue alarm over the recent findings of medical scientists.

Recently a number of British physicians discussed mirror-writing, a review of which appears in the British Medical Journal. Dr. Macdonald Critchley, described a number of examples of mirror-writing by right hemiplegics (those paralyzed on the right side), but he added that the same phenomenon was found in some normal children just learning to write, as well as in more backward and feeble-minded children, in whom it was particularly associated with left-handedness. He recalled that mirror-writing was not uncommon among the insane also, and it was seen, again, in cases where there was partial switching off of consciousness or attention, as in certain states of hysteria, during the effect of depressive poisons, and in mediums at spiritualistic seances.

One classic instance of mirror-writing is found in the notebooks of Leonardo de Vinci, who was supposed deliberately to have adopted this style of script as a sort of code to protect his writings from censorship.

In certain of Leonardo's drawings also the obliquity of the shading, in the opinion of the investigators, suggests that the pencil was held in the left hand, and Cardinal Louis of Aragon, who visited him during the last two years of his life, stated that he was suffering from some form of paralysis which impaired his manual power. It seems possible, therefore, that his mirror-writing was a consequence of right hemiplegia (paralysis of one side of the body).

Mental abstraction might in some cases lead to mirror-writing, and telegraphers have been observed to jot down messages mirror-fashion with their left hand while their right hand was on the keys. Dr. Critchley expressed the view that an adequate explanation of this condition would include both physiological and psychological causes, in different cases. Most of the natural movements of one hand were the mirrored replica of those of the other. The right hand, for instance, would draw naturally from the left to right, and the left hand from right to left; the circle would be drawn clockwise with the right hand, anti-clockwise with the left. But the question was, why did not every one write mirror-fashion when using the left hand? The main reason, he suggested, was education. But in certain cases in which this was in abeyance mirror-writing was apt to appear, and severe damage to the left brain also favored it.

Even in the normal and educated child the habit of forming such letters as "S" and "N" the wrong way round might persist for some time. "Except in hemiplegia and congenital word-blindness, the mirror-writing patient usually realized that something was wrong with his script, and as a rule, he could not read it."

Dr. Critchley had also some interesting reflections to make on the influence of the ancient alphabets. The Phenician, from which the modern alphabet was derived, ran from right to left. In some ancient inscriptions the lines read alternately from right to left and from left to right. A change in direction probably corresponded to an alteration of the handedness of the race.

Dr. Critchley mentioned one patient who, although she spoke English, could write only Hebrew; and she had right hemiplegia, and thereupon wrote Hebrew mirrorwise—she still wrote the words as a whole from right to left (the proper direction), but she formed the letters the wrong way round.

Dr. Millais Culpin, in some interesting remarks on lefthandedness, expressed the view that at some period the Semitic peoples must have been lefthanded, and he quoted two passages in the Book of Judges in which emphasis was laid upon the skill of the lefthanded. In Dr. Culpin's view such persons may have been constrained originally to use the right hand as an expression of antagonism to environment or an unconscious protest against arbitrary conventions.

Stammering, too, which resulted when the lefthanded were constrained to use the right hand for the purpose for which they had hitherto used the left, was the nature of a protest. A left-handed father frequently had a stammering child, possibly because, being a person of gentle obstinacy, he had pushed the child firmly and steadily along a particular road, and the stammer was a symptom of rebellion.

Dr. Culpin mentioned the case of a girl who, when writing to her mother, always used her left hand and wrote mirror-fashion, but to her father and others wrote in the normal way.

When a CRAB Goes COURTING

DOWN at the base of the animal scale courtship does not exist, according to Professor Julian Huxley, who has made a study of love-making among animals. Perhaps its first symbolic representation is seen in the nuptial dances of certain marine bristle-worms, in which, at certain seasons of the year and phases of the moon, the creatures swim up out of their crannies in the rocks and gather in groups. But the first actions to which the name courtship must be given are those of a few crabs and most spiders.

When an Attractive Crab of the Opposite Sex Passes, the Male Adopts a Tiptoe Attitude and Holds Aloft Its Big Claw.

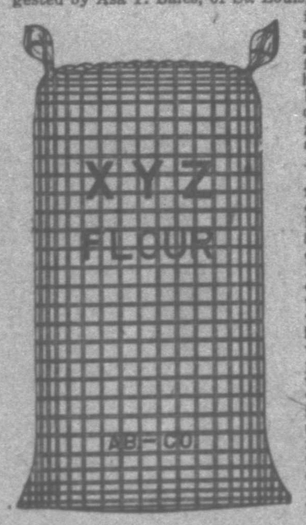

Among the crustaceans the fiddler-crab is characterized by the presence in the male of one huge claw which may weigh about as much as the rest of the body, and is often brightly colored. In the mating season, when a female passes, the males throw themselves into a tiptoe attitude with the big claw rigidly held aloft. If the female takes no notice the male runs again to where she can see him, and again strikes the statuesque pose.

In one type of hunting-spider the male offers the female a nice fly neatly wrapped in silk like a bouquet.

The family life of birds attains its highest development in those forms which have, as Professor Huxley characterizes it, "equal sex rights." Psychologically one of the most interesting things about bird courtship is the frequency with which the birds will carry in their beaks a piece of the material of which their nest is built. This holds good for the Adelie penguins, whose nest is nothing but a rim of stones presented by the male to his mate.

Flour Sacks Make Simple Frocks for Children

MANY millions of yards of cotton fabric, used for flour sacks, go to waste annually, the sacks being thrown away when emptied. A way to avoid such waste is suggested by Asa T. Bales, of St. Louis, his idea being that flour sacks shall be made of some fabric — perhaps preferably, striped or checked gingham, suitable for dresses.

A Flour Sack of Checked Gingham for Making a Child's Dress.

The miller must of course have his name and trademark on the sack. But it is an easy matter to print them with a delible ink, which will disappear when the fabric is washed, leaving the latter serviceable for the making of dresses, especially for children's wear.

That the idea is practicable may be inferred from the fact that the patent has already been purchased by a big milling company in St. Louis.

WHISTLING Whirligig Is Novel TOY

A WHIRLIGIG or pinwheel that whistles when driven by the breath has been newly patented by Irwin E. Cohn, of New York. The device is made wholly of celluloid, colored to render it more attractive. A tube has a mouthpiece at one end; and at the other end, close by which a whistle is set into the tube, there is a discharge nipple inclined upward to direct the current of air properly.

Fitting over the nipple is an arm which has a stud that supports a pin, the latter serving as the axis of the pinwheel.

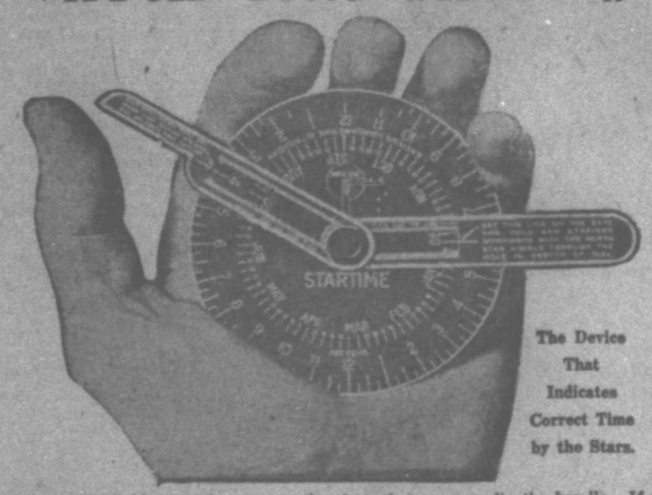

The Whirligig Is Mounted on a Tube to the End of Which Is Attached a Whistle, Which When Blown, Sets the Pinwheel in Motion.

The pinwheel is made of a single piece of sheet celluloid, cut in suitable shape and with its corners bent over and fastened by the pin, which passes through them.

The discharge nipple is inclined upward so that, when air is blown through the tube it is directed against the vanes of the pinwheel tangentially. Thus, when the breath is blown through the tube, the pinwheel rotates and the whistle sounds to the great delight of its small owner.

WATCH Tells TIME by STARS

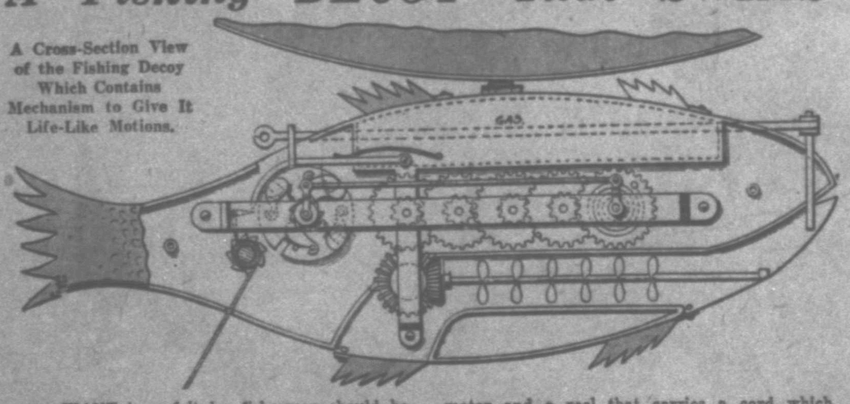

The Device That Indicates Correct Time by the Stars.

BASING his experiments on the fact that the stars apparently revolve about the North Star, Frederick C. Meacham, of Garden City, N. Y., has devised a simple way to link up this "motion" with the hours of the present method of measuring time.

This device consists of a thin disk in the center of which are pivoted two pointers. On the inner circle of the disk are printed the months and days and on the edge the hours of the clock.

To tell time by the stars, one of the levers is set to the day of the month. Then, with this lever pointing directly at the ground, the disk is held a few inches from the eye in such a way that the North Star can be seen through the center. Then the other pointer is moved around so that it apparently touches the two stars that form the side of the bowl of the dipper opposite the handle. If the observation is carefully made, the pointer will indicate the exact time, according to the inventor, who also says that with practice any one can learn to use this device.

A Fishing DECOY That SWIMS

A WANT long felt by fishermen should be met by a decoy fish that has been patented by Porus J. Young, of Clendenin, W. Va. It is an automobile fish, driven by a spring motor, and enables the angler to "troll" from the shore.

In the drawing, which reveals the mechanical inside works of the fish, a lid that covers the interior is shown only to the extent of a fragment. When the lid is closed, the fish presents a lifelike aspect. To make it complete, fins are screwed on.

In the top of the body is a gas tank, to give buoyancy. The spring motor operates, through an arrangement of gears, six little propellers mounted on one shaft inside the fish.

The lid has a circular door through which access may be had to the interior; also apertures for the insertion of a key to wind the spring motor and a reel that carries a cord which, emerging near the tail, terminates in a baited hook.

The finny game is supposed to be attracted by the lifelike movements of the swimming decoy, and, approaching it, to swallow the bait. Finding itself hooked, it tries to get away, and the cord runs off the reel in the way naturally desired.

Standing on shore, and holding an end of his fishing line, the other end of which is attached to the decoy, the angler has full control over the latter. If it catches nothing, he pulls it back, after it has traveled a suitable distance, and a jerk of his line disengages a "dog" from a toothed wheel that is mounted on the same shaft with the reel. The wheel thus released revolves rapidly causing the baited cord to rewind itself on the reel, and thus avoiding a tangle.

New Inventions

IT is becoming quite the fashion to adorn automobiles with striking figureheads. To adapt the idea to advertising purposes, John B. Irick, of Shawnee, Okla., has invented a mechanical figure, supported above the radiator, with a sign extending lengthwise over the engine hood, lettered on both sides.

A hydraulic timing device for racing cars utilizes a section of ordinary garden hose laid across the track. When the driver is qualifying on the track, the front wheels force the water into a receptacle which operates the lever. The lever, in turn, starts the stop-watch. After the lever or plunger is moved outward, the rear wheels have no effect on the hose, because after the car is on its qualifying lap, the plunger is pushed back to its normal position. As the driver crosses the hose again, it stops the watch.

Six-sided glass nursing bottles are now being made out of a fire-resisting glass. The purpose of this is to provide a bottle that will not crack when it is subjected to sudden changes of temperature. This bottle also has the advantage that it will not roll like a round bottle when laid on its side.

Individual electric lights, supplied with a small spring-driven generator, have been invented as a substitute for the usual dry-battery flashlamps. Ten seconds of cranking is said to produce a bright light for three minutes.

Glove Pockets for Carrying Coins

FOR convenience in carrying coins and carfare tokens, Leon P. Lewandowski, of Loup City, Neb., suggests the idea of a pocket on the back of the glove. One often sees a woman groping in her handbag for her purse, and then obliged to poke about in the latter to get change for carfare or to buy a newspaper. With a pocket on her glove the difficulty would be obviated and much annoyance avoided.

A Pocket Is Attached to the Back of Each Glove.

The suggested pocket is circular in shape, preferably with one straight edge, toward the wrist, as the drawing shows. It is formed by stitching a piece of kid or fabric to the back of the glove, and provided with an opening covered with a flap.

The opening is spaced from the top and bottom of the pocket, so that when the latter happens to be turned upside down the coins or car tokens will slide past the opening and not fall out. On the other hand, it is perfectly easy to insert a finger into the pocket and extract therefrom a car token or piece of money. The pocket, of course, may be made octagonal or of other shape to suit the wearer's fancy.

Sketching Made Easy With Portable Board

A DEVICE that enables a sketcher or painter to dispense with an easel, and yet leaves his hands free for work, is an invention recently made by Charles Flach, of Brigels, Switzerland. For a writer it affords a light and conveniently portable desk.

At the four corners of a rectangular board are knobs for the temporary attachment (while the contrivance is in use) of an endless cord which, passed over the shoulders of the user, takes the form of a figure 8. At the middle point of the 8, at the middle of the user's back, there is a double eye, one part of the cord being strung through one of the eyeholes and the other cord through the other eyehole.

This drawing board is a very simple arrangement. It is obvious that the slant of the board can be altered at will by sliding the double eye up and down. An adjustable loop enables the cord to be shortened or lengthened to suit the user's requirements.

If it be desired to give additional steadiness to the board, an extra loop of cord fastened to the knobs at the corners nearest the user and passed beneath his feet will accomplish that purpose. Thus held, the board cannot possibly slip on the user's lap when he is in seated posture.

But one advantage of the contrivance is that the sketcher or painter can make use of it while standing erect. If he happens to be sketching an animal in the open, he can follow it about without inconvenience such as would be experienced if he were encumbered with an easel.

SMARTEST piece of DETECTIVE WORK I ever saw"— Dorothy Dix

World's Most Famous Woman Reporter Begins an Absorbing Tale of Her Twenty-five Years' Work in the Police Courts of America With the Story of a Sherlock Holmes in Real Life and the Adroit Means by Which He Obtained the Confession of a Murderer of a Schoolgirl

Dorothy Dix, the most famous woman newspaper reporter of crime cases and murder trials, has been called "the world's first sob-sister." For more than a quarter century she has been "covering" every big murder case in America; her most recent "assignment" being the Hall-Mills case in New Jersey. Miss Dix, in a series of interviews granted Meigs O. Frost, herewith begins reminiscences of her twenty-five years in the police courts of America—the inside story of some of the biggest cases since 1900.

I

WHERE Prytania street in old New Orleans ends in a beautiful vista of trees and rolling lawns and shimmering lake of Audubon Park rises a great gray house of Latin architecture. That house is listed in the New Orleans directory simply as 6334 Prytania street, residence of Mrs. E. M. Gilmer. Nothing much to attract your attention about that. But about the pen name of that woman, known to her New Orleans friends as Mrs. Gilmer, there is a lot to attract attention. It is a name known wherever an American newspaper is read. It is a name that has been signed at the head of uncounted millions of words sent over the telegraph wires in America this last quarter of a century. A name chosen in New Orleans under the spur of a thirty-second necessity for a decision. Dorothy Dix.

No history of the American newspaper would be complete or accurate without a chapter on her. She is the world's first sob-sister. The name itself was first coined in New York to describe her. The first—and the greatest of them all.

SHE has covered more gruesome murder trials than any other one reporter in the world. Into the scores of millions runs the total of the words she has sent by telegraph and mail reporting those murder trials. For twenty-five years, since her start in 1901, Dorothy Dix, at the press table of great murder-trial courtroom scenes, has been as much a fixture as the Judge on the bench or the jury in the box.

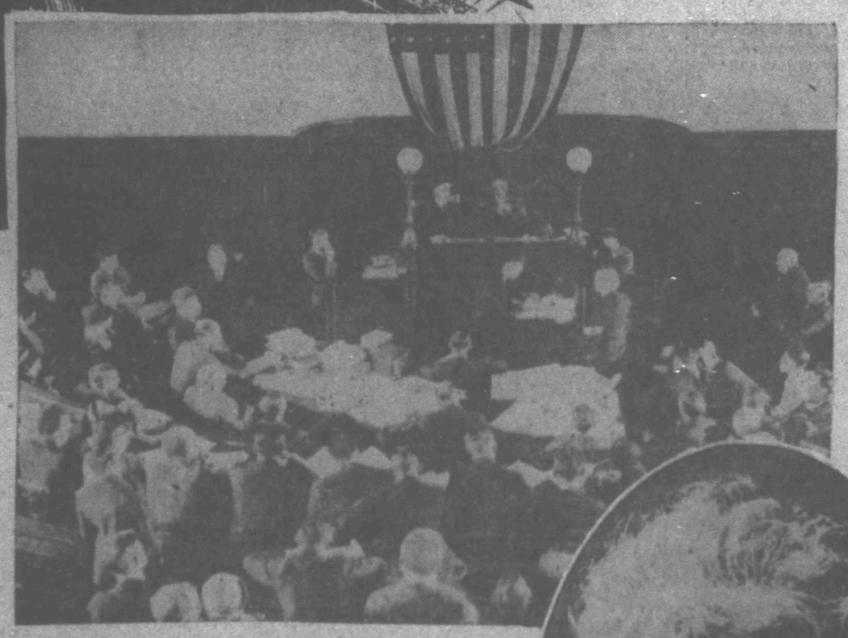

Murder trials? Dorothy Dix has reported so many that she has forgotten the names of most of them now. But out of that quarter of a century gleam memories that will last while her life lasts. Her career as a reporter of famous murder trials started in New Jersey with a case in which she cannot remember a single name. It ends in New Jersey with a case still fresh in public memory—the Hall-Mills trial.

And now, exclusively for this newspaper, Dorothy Dix reminisces on those strange scenes in which she probed to its ultimate depths the tragedy and the raw human drama that for a quarter of a century have blazed and flared from America's headlines.

SITTING there beside her crackling log fire, Dorothy Dix tells of the greatest piece of detective work she ever saw. She tells of the three great "clean beats" in which, she smiles, she "was lucky enough to scoop the world" on stories that made headlines wherever a newspaper was published. She tells of the philosophy that she has evolved through reporting these countless crimes. It is a sane philosophy.

Dorothy Dix believes that humanity's interest in great crimes and the trials that follow them is not morbid. It is no sign of a warped and inferior mentality, she holds. She sees it as the eternal human interest in the eternal human drama that so often becomes melodrama. In reading of great crimes and great murder trials, she says, the public is taking from real life the stuff of real life instead of taking fanciful tales from the imagination of the novelist.

No, you cannot get a polite assent out of Dorothy Dix when you deprecate as morbid the public interest in a great murder and the trial that follows. For she knows life—knows life so well that great District Attorneys have called on her as a reporter to draw out from the depths of the souls of tight-lipped prisoners their stories that the most skillful and hardest-boiled specialists of a District Attorney's staff or a police force have been unable to bring to light. And she has done it.

The detective hired an automobile and took the suspect out White Plains way. On a dark road they were ordered to stop. As the supposed hold-up gang advanced the detective fired point-blank at the heart of the nearest. With a scream he fell. But it was all a "plant," for the gun contained only blank cartridges!

The start? Really, it was in New Orleans that her real start came, with the adoption of the name "Dorothy Dix."

It was in the office of the old New Orleans Picayune on Camp street—then the Newspaper Row of the South's greatest city—that Elizabeth Gilmer was confronted suddenly with the problem of how she would sign her stories.

An editor asked brusquely: "Do you want to sign this with your own name?" She didn't. The tradition of a pen name was then strong in the South.

"Well, what do you want to sign it?" The editor was busy and impatient. Mrs. Gilmer's thoughts flashed. Always she had liked the name of "Dorothy."

"It was musical, but it had a sort of common-sense sound to it, too; and it wasn't too flowery," she smiles. "But—Dorothy what? My thoughts flashed back to the old plantation in Tennessee. We had a black mammy whose husband, equally black, was named Dick. But the mammy always called him Mister Dicks. That always amused me—the way she pronounced 'Dick' as 'Dix.' So I looked at the editor and said: 'Sign it "By Dorothy Dix," if you will.' And Dorothy Dix it has been ever since."

Up in New York editors had seen some of the writings signed "By Dorothy Dix" in the old Picayune, now merged with the old Times-Democrat into the New Orleans Times-Picayune. One of them sent for the New Orleans girl. She went to New York to be a reporter back in 1901.

It was routine work for months. For a while she was made secretary to one of the executives of the paper. And it was while serving as secretary that she got her first murder-trial assignment.

"The city editor telephoned up to me one morning," says Dorothy Dix. "He said to come right down to the city room and report to go out of town on a trip. When I got to his desk he handed me a clipping about three inches long. 'Here a stepmother has murdered her husband's 18-month-old baby over at Mount Holly, N. J.,' he said. 'She beat the baby to death. A lot of women are interested in that trial. I want you to go over and handle the story clear through the trial. Here's an order on the cashier.'

"Do you know, I was lost, though I wouldn't say a word to admit it. Take a trip for the paper, he had said. Taking a trip always meant to me that you packed your trunk. And I didn't even have a toothbrush on me. But I didn't ask any questions.

"I took the order down to the cashier and had a roll of money thrust at me. I was in a daze, but I kept telling myself: 'Don't ask fool questions around the office.' I stuffed the money in a pocket and walked out of the office into City Hall Park. There stood a policeman. I walked up to him.

"'How do you get to a place called Mount Holly in New Jersey?' I asked him. You can bet I didn't tell him I was a reporter sent out to cover a murder trial.

"Well, I reached Mount Holly at last. I talked with the murderers. I got my story. Then I searched around and found a telegraph office. I had never telegraphed a story in all my life before. I simply didn't know what to do. I sat there half an hour puzzling out whether I should leave out every 'and' and 'if' and 'but' and 'or.' Then I made up my mind. I'd telegraph that story in full and put in every word if the telegraph tolls busted my editor's bank roll flatter than a pancake. And I did it. I filed every bit of 1800 words with every 'the' and 'and' and 'if' and 'but' in there as large as life. And then the city editor telegraphed me it was a great story and to keep it up—after I had worried myself sick for twenty-four hours fearing I was going to get fired for costing them all that money.

"Oh, that was a thrilling assignment. I even had a proposal of marriage while I was out on it. I had had to hire a horse and buggy and a man to drive it to get around to different places I had to go on that story in that little Jersey town. And the man who drove the horse proposed to me. He told me he had fallen in love with me on sight. He insisted he would make a good husband and could take care of me. He owned that horse and carriage outright, he said. He was earning every bit of $100 a month. He got quite damp around the eyes while he was pleading with me to marry him. I was thrilled clear to my toes. But I pulled the oldest line in the world on him. I told him I was wedded to my art! And then I had to tell him I was heart-whole and fancy-free and wouldn't marry him because I didn't love him before he stopped pestering around me. That was my first murder trial.

The recent Hall-Mills murder case was the latest spectacular murder-trial assignment covered by Dorothy Dix, the "world's first sob-sister" (shown at right)

"THE greatest piece of detective work I ever saw?" Dorothy Dix didn't hesitate a moment. "I remember that detective job just as well as if it happened yesterday," she said, "but, for the life of me, I'm blessed if I can even remember the names of the murderer and the victim. Or the detective, even. But that piece of detective work always will stand out in my mind as the greatest I ever encountered anywhere.

"It was outside of New York—either in New Jersey or Pennsylvania, I think—that the murder was committed," she said with a reminiscent smile. "There was a girl of 10, who looked much younger, and a boy of 7 in that case. The two children started home from school. At a cross-road they separated and continued home by different routes. The boy got home safely. The girl didn't get home.

"After a while they started a search for her. At last they found her body, terribly misused, thrust under a pile of brush. There didn't seem to be a shred of evidence pointing to the identity of the murderer. It looked as though nobody would ever be brought to justice for that horrible crime. But a rich man became interested in the case and put up the funds and a detective was hired. I wish I could remember that man's name. He made the best feats of Sherlock Holmes look childish.

"That detective went to work very quietly and very efficiently. By a process of elimination covering every one who might have come in contact with the little girl, he finally narrowed his suspicions down to a gardener. He found that this gardener, a German, had talked with the little girl many times as she came home from school, and had given her flowers many times. And the gardener lived near the cross-roads where the little girl was last seen alive.

"The detective had managed to get that far without being seen, even by the gardener. He had even been able, unseen, to see the gardener, so he could identify him. He brought a dozen dogs. One by one he accumulated those dogs at his shack. Then one night, just at midnight, he tied those dogs out in front of the shack, and from a pile of stones he had gathered he stoned those dogs until they howled unmercifully. He kept it up for five minutes. Night after night, sharp at midnight, he repeated that performance. Right there, near where the little girl's body was found, night after night this unearthly howling of those dogs rose to reach the ear of that gardener.

"And as soon as he had ceased stoning the dogs the detective would put them inside the shack and slip over and shadow the gardener. It didn't take much of that eerie howling from near the spot where the girl's body was found to be too much for that gardener. He looked more worried every day. Then one night after the dogs had howled the detective slipped over and peeped through a corner of a window and saw him packing a few belongings. That day the gardener left for New York. The detective was on the same train with him, but merely kept him in sight and did not let the gardener see him.

"In New York the detective trailed him to the house where he hired a room, and hired a large room with two beds in a house nearby. Day by day he shadowed the man. He learned the name of the little German town from which the gardener came. He found the little restaurant where the gardener ate—a greasy little hole-in-the-wall sort of place. The detective sent and subscribed for the local paper published in the little German town that was the gardener's birthplace. He began to eat in the same restaurant with the German, who had got a job. He finally arranged it so they ate at the same table. And at the table he used to read openly this German newspaper from the man's home town.

"Presently the gardener noticed it. One day he spoke to the detective. 'You come from that town?' he asked, indicating the paper the detective was reading at their table. 'No,' the detective told him, 'but I was there two years ago visiting some distant relatives of mine, and I liked the place so much I've been reading this paper ever since.'

"He even told the name of his 'relatives' and the gardener said he knew of the family. In a week the two were inseparable friends. The detective told the gardener, then, a story of how he had a roommate who had gone away from New York to get another job, how he had a room with two beds all paid for, and invited the gardener to room with him. They became roommates.

"But still, though they were roommates, the detective couldn't get anything out of the man about the crime or why he had left the scene of it. And he didn't dare broach it openly. So he started a new and elaborate campaign. He showed a big roll of money. He let it be vaguely understood that the law might be interested in how he got that money. He began to talk about Alaska. He was going there soon.

"Then one night the detective took the gardener to a motion picture that he himself had seen before. There was a scene in that picture in which a child was murdered. Right in the middle of that scene the gardener said he felt sick, and got up and left the show. The detective knew then he was on the right track, if ever he had doubted before.

"For days and nights the gardener was moodier than ever. Still he didn't come through with any confidences. Then the detective staged a show that stays in my mind as a masterpiece.

"He hired an automobile and took the German for a long drive out White Plains way. They drank at roadhouses. He flashed his big roll of money repeatedly. Then, as they drove down a dark road, a group of men stepped out and ordered them to halt. The detective stopped the car. As the men advanced the detective pulled out a revolver and fired it at the heart of a man not five feet away. The man screamed and fell. The detective started the car at top speed and returned to New York, leaving the other members of the gang grouped around their fallen comrade. The detective and the gardener went straight to their room.

"'I've got to start for Alaska now,' the detective said, starting to pack hurriedly. 'That gang will get me for killing that man. And you bet I'm not going to call on the police. I'm going to beat it.'

"THE German looked at him. He seemed to be making up his mind. At last he spoke. 'Take me to Alaska with you,' he begged. 'You got the price.'

"'Not a chance,' said the detective. 'I put my life in your hands when I killed that man in front of you. I'm going to disappear and leave you behind where even you can't find me.'

"The gardener gulped and started to speak. 'If you'll take me with you, I'll put my life in your hands just as much as you put yours in mine,' he said.

"'You can't do that,' said the detective. 'But if you could, I'd take you.'

"'But I can,' protested the German. Then and there he blurted out the whole awful story of how he had misused and murdered that little girl by the cross-roads, telling horrible unprintable details, even.

"And in that room detectaphones had been placed for weeks waiting for that moment. In the next room, every minute the two of them were there, three men were waiting with headpieces on, ready to take notes in shorthand.

"You see, that automobile trip 'murder' was just a stall—a plant. The detective had fired a blank cartridge at one of a group of men paid liberally to stage exactly that sort of a scene at an appointed place at an appointed hour. The mystery of that murder was solved right then and there in that lodging-house bedroom. And though the names have gone from my memory, I'll always remember that as the greatest piece of detective work of which I ever heard."

(Next Sunday Dorothy Dix takes up "Newspaper 'Scoops' That Made Me Famous," in which she relates how she obtained exclusive stories in such notable cases as "The Prisoner of Love" by getting confessions from the suspected culprits—and just how she got those confessions.)

"Save Our Hottentot Girls from Brutal American Games!"

Irate Cry of African Chiefs, Who Deplore Dusky Flappers' Mania for Sports, as Reported by a Famous French Novelist.

ARE strenuous American games—excellent for that boyish figure, but regarded by less enlightened peoples as deleterious to motherhood—threatening the Hottentot flappers of darkest Africa and the Chinese charmers of mystic Asia with race suicide?

Are the age-old dignity of celestial belles and the sleek embonpoint of Africa's dusky beauties being sacrificed to a new-found desire to engage in sports long popular with the more emancipated misses?

Out of the black jungles of Africa comes Andre Gide, famous French essayist and novelist, with the wail of the black men against the introduction of these games into their social midst, while up from China rumbles a similar outburst, likewise from the men, who foresee disaster in this unshackling of conventions.

Lured to Africa by a desire to see this new phenomenon, M. Gide returns with a story of the emancipation of women there that reads like our own America. He also brought a photograph of Hottentot women playing push ball that is reproduced on this page and tells better than words can describe the new life of recreation that has gripped the once subdued females of the Hottentot tribes.

The African men, says Gide, declare that such interests distract the attention of their women from domestic duties, including motherhood, making them physically unfit for bearing children on the extensive scale peculiar to black women of the pre-sports era.

In China it's a different cry, but no less raucous. Almond-eyed mandarins point to the antics of Mrs. Sun Yat Sen and Miss Foo Foo-Wong in leading the Cantonese armies as examples of what the plague of modern American sportswomanship has done for their once demure wives, sweethearts and daughters.

The Hottentot chieftains' resentment of their wives and sweethearts' invasion of the field of sports can be better understood in the light of their religious customs dating back to earliest days in the western Cape Colony. This is based on ancestor worship, and in many of their ceremonials young children figure symbolically. This is especially true with reference to Tusib, the rain god, and tourists returning from that region tell an anecdote of a grizzled old warrior, who though not averse to cannibalistic practices, threw his wife out of doors because he found she was wearing knickerbockers, the gift of a passing American woman. He also hung up charms to ward off the "evil influence" over his wife of the "wicked foreign" contests of skill.

In Africa the condition is daily becoming pronounced. It has been the fashion in a great many of the African countries not wholly subjected to the yoke of civilization to devote the energies of a great many women to the comfort of one man. Such energies as were not applied to tilling the soil were reserved for the propagation of his kind; for the production of numerous dusky progeny, having for their principal mission in life the collection of more, and yet more, ease and comfort for the husband and father.

Women worked dutifully and assiduously under the old system. They dispatched the day's chores of tilling and sowing, of flaying such animals as their leisurely husbands shot or captured, of cooking and building additions to the family bailiwick and of bearing children. When these arduous duties were done, they retained little strength for asserting themselves as social factors and even less enthusiasm.

The result was that the African male, though he might be married to half a dozen women, found no difficulty in subduing them and keeping them bent to his will. He lorded it over his household in fierce majesty and his every whim was their duty.

Then came the advent of sports for women. At first the head of the household regarded the matter as a joke and permitted his women and their many daughters to take part. But when they became more and more proficient and began to develop a sturdy independence of thought and body, the sable-tinted husband took alarm and set himself to down the invasion of his inherited tyranny.

But he was too late. Having tasted the thrill of sport and known the sweetness of independence, most of the women refused to be reshackled. When outraged husbands attempted to enforce their will with violence, they found their wives equipped to resist them. One wife, or two or even three, might not have been able to subdue a husky husband, even in their new muscularity, but seven or eight presented a different front.

Worse still, this interest in sports afforded the native women a contact with white women of the nearby colonies that they had not been permitted before. As a result, their ideas about polygamy became somewhat warped, from the Hottentot standpoint, and shiftless males looking for additional wives to swell their coffers—the goods of each wife goes to her husband under Hottentot law—not only found them harder to court, but even discovered that in some instances, marriage was the last thing in their minds.

Hence the great wail of the distressed African husband and the war to the death against American and other Nordic sports for women. To attack their fatherly pride, or their pride in being fathers, was enough, but when the new order began to flatten their purses and curtail their luxury, the situation became unbearable.

Missionaries and industrialists who have introduced their sports into Africa find that the African women, like the younger men, take to all manner of athletics with great zest and aptitude. The women, being, as a rule, taller than their husbands, are particularly adept at a game known as push-ball, played with a huge inflated ball with two goal lines at given distances as the objectives. It has become a trick among the women—they insist upon having their own teams and competing with their shorter husbands—to lift the ball on the tips of their fingers and simply carry it over the heads of their shorter male opponents to the goal line. The result of this strategy has been to inflict some overwhelming defeats on the men, thus adding the discomfiture of defeat to their already grievous load of woe.

Some of the Africans are still faithful to their old witch doctor ideals. Two outraged Bushmen, husbands of very attractive dark maidens who had become push ball devotees, in despair of "curing" them of the fad, called in the local sorcerer to treat their wives, which was accomplished by pinching and beating them until the "black demons" which had taken possession of them were expelled, the women swearing never again to indulge in athletics.

Artists, observing the influence of sports on Chinese women, are unanimous in their approval of the results. They declare that some of the finest types of physical womanhood are to be found among these yellow maids, and that for beauty of figure they are almost the equal of their statuesque American sisters. Some artists have gone so far as to say that on the whole, Chinese girls have the most beautiful figures in the world and to predict that if the flair for the milder sports is not wholly obliterated by the new rage for more strenuous competition, they soon will occupy a position unrivaled in womanly beauty.

Regardless of the opinions of the artists, the Chinese men refuse to take kindly to the invasion of even such ladylike pastimes as golf, tennis and basketball, and their horror at the discovery that foot racing and boxing had appeared in the fore of feminine recreations knew no bounds.

Women's lot in China has been a queer one for thousands of years. Not only have they been suppressed by the theory that woman's place is obscure, but they likewise have faced the Chinese devotion to ancestor worship.

Many hundreds of years ago a woman bound her feet to make them small, like her mother's had been. Her children bound their feet that they might be small and other children's feet were bound. Ultimately the women of all China —or those women of the upper classes, had their feet bound. Girl babies had no opportunity to choose normal or bound feet. They were taken at birth and bandages bound closely about their feet from the ankles down, cramping the bones and leaving their calves thin and emaciated.

Modern Chinese men and women ceased to believe these deformities beautiful. They realized that the custom brought great pain, and that it limited the scope of woman's usefulness. But their mothers and their grandmothers had done it and it was a rite that should be done. It was only with the gravest of forebodings that the custom was abandoned for the sake of the national health. So it is with the question of sports. The mothers and grandmothers of the Chinese flapper of today did not play golf or tennis or run footraces and the modern Chinese is more appalled by these manifestations of unregeneracy than the threat of war and foreign invasion.

Whatever the end of this new controversy may be, it is safe to predict that the women will lose nothing. Having learned the lesson of freedom taught them by athletics, it is extremely doubtful that even the once-dutiful bride of Africa will return to her former serfdom, or that the Chinese women, having discovered the glories of unfettered bodies, again will take up the heavy kimono or cramping foot bandages.

This Remarkable Snapshot, Which the Women Depicted Were Unaware Was Being Taken, Was Brought to Paris by a Party of French Scientists and Writers from the Oubangui-Chari Colony, Near Lake Chad, Where the Expedition Studied the New Sports Craze Among African Girls. The Photo Shows a Tense Moment in a Push-Ball Contest.

Coincident with the Feminist Athletic Movement in Africa, Chinese Girls are Taking Up Sports with Great Vim. Foot Racing Is Popular, and These Young Chinese Beauties Keep in Trim with Daily Speed Tests

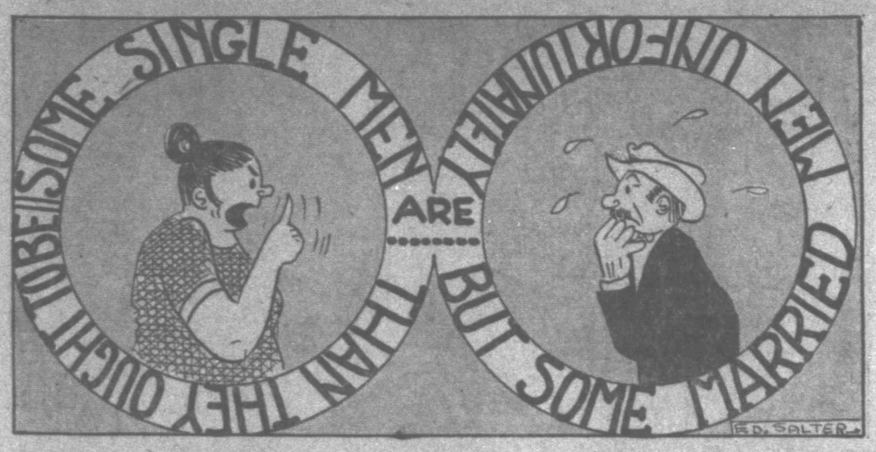

Even in Darkest Africa, Golf Is Popular. This Man and Woman of the Masai Tribe Have Copied Not Only the Technique of the Game as Americans Play It, but Have also Adopted Certain Phases of "Dress Reform."

Answer to Last Week's Cross-Word Puzzle

A Puzzle Problem

PAMELA and Penelope, who live in Podunk and Beanburg, two towns which are 300 miles apart, decide to visit each other. Each friend, unknown to the other, sets out in her motor car at exactly the same time.

If Penelope travels at the rate of ten miles the first hour, twenty the second and thirty the third, etc., and Famela proceeds at the rate of thirteen miles the first hour, twenty-three the second and thirty-three the third, etc., in how many hours after leaving their respective homes will these two girls meet on the road?

Jumbled Names

THESE queer looking words are jumbled names of girls and boys. Re-arrange the letters in their proper order and you will correctly spell each of the names.

Norcelef	Mardony
Dargel	Sejise
Herest	Razo
Dajer	Dornal
Viole	Soulai
Soma	Belterm
Lujai	Roboteda
Merle	Nemuro
Harekenit	Callie

How to Make a "Ghost"

MANY boys and girls get a big thrill out of telling ghost stories, but think how much more exciting it would be for the amateur magician to make a "ghost" that his audience can see. Here is the secret of ghost-making, which produces great mystification and much merriment by giving the weird effect of a shining face and hands floating through the air and finally fading away:

Procure a very large rag doll and cover its face and hands with luminous paint which you can get at a paint or art supply store. Be sure to outline clearly in black the eyes and the mouth as indicated in the drawing. Expose the painted doll in a strong light for five minutes and then cover it with a black cloth.

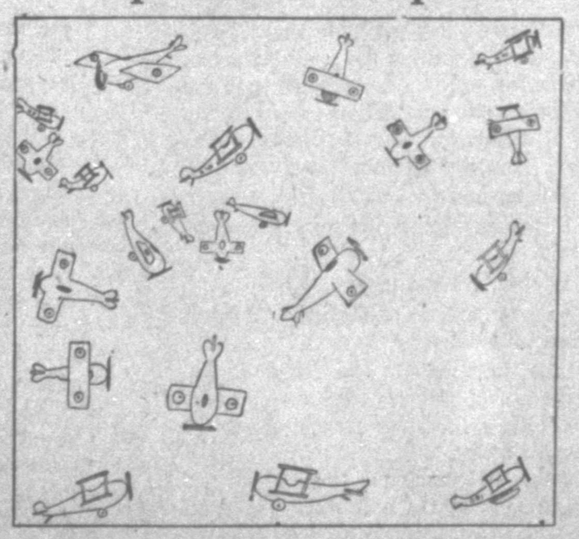

Darken the room in which your audience is seated. When you remove the black cloth from the doll it will appear as a head glowing vividly in the dark. You can make it disappear and reappear at will by covering it with the black cloth.

Stake Your Claim

THIS exciting game, called "Stake Your Claim," will give girls and boys some of the thrills of a real treasure hunt. It is a pastime in which any number of players can take part and may be played either in or out of doors. First one of the players produces a sheet, couch cover or similar object, which is spread out upon the floor or ground. A coin or some very small article is used as the "treasure trove," being carefully concealed beneath the cover. There must be a supply of cards sufficient to give one to each player and numbered form one upwards. A pin is stuck through the centre of each card.

Each player in turn is invited to "stake his claim," pinning his card on the particular spot on the cover beneath which he believes that the treasure lies. The player who pins his card over or nearest to the place where the treasure has been concealed obviously wins the game and takes the treasure as his prize.

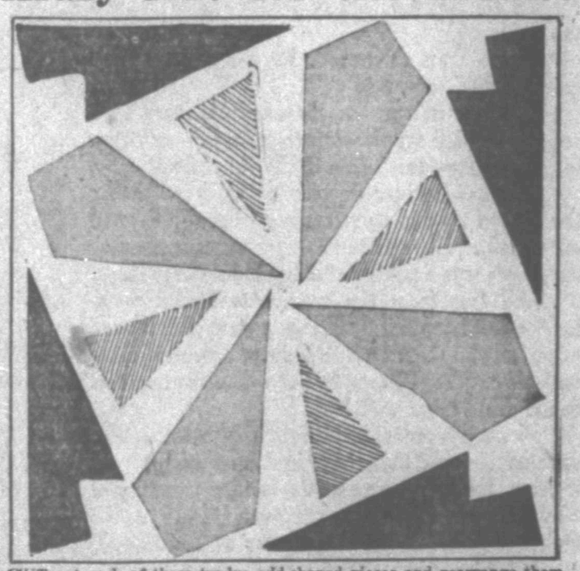

Group These Airplanes

HERE is a "flock" of twenty-one airplanes, which you are to separate into seven groups containing three planes each by drawing three straight lines.

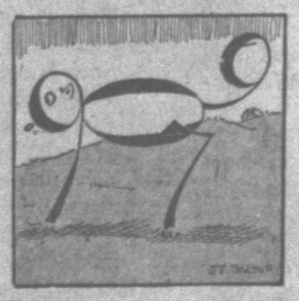

Study the drawing carefully and you should succeed with your first attempt.

Krazy Kut for the Kiddies

CUT out each of these twelve odd-shaped pieces and rearrange them in such a way that they will form a square with the four black pieces placed in the center to form a four-pointed design.

Can You Get This Beast's Number?

LOOK carefully at the drawing of this queer creature and you will see that it is composed of certain figures. Beginning at the head separate each of the figures, write them down in the order they appear and you will have the number of the beast.

What Country Is Named?

There Is No Going Back

Where can we find our lost youth?
Can we go back? Or must we go forward?

MAURICE SPELLMAN had reached the stage where everything he did was important.

International banking interests watched him.

A special body of town coupe became popular because he chose it originally for his own use.

When he decided to dispose of his thirty-eight-room Fifth Avenue house and build himself a thirty-room house in a section of New York hitherto undistinguished, it became quite the esoteric thing to live there. Many Fifth Avenue mansions were subsequently deserted for the East River district made suddenly important and desirable by the presence of W. Maurice Spellman.

What actually prompted Spellman to the move, however, was not a desire to create a new social colony. On the contrary, it was something diametrically opposed to that.

There had been growing within Spellman, as his success mounted and as at forty-six he found himself a power among men, a sense of a need of respite from the growing demands of his position.

Success had not come to Spellman without grim battle.

For thirty of his forty-six years he had fought for it rung by rung. From the lean days when he lived with his parents and seven brothers and sisters in an old water-front tenement, to his days of newspaper selling along lower Broadway, then on up to the still lean but eager days of his cub-reportership, when he shared a walk-up, four-room apartment in Greenwich Street with three other fellows, and so on and so on and so on. Through more years of struggle, deprivation, failure, struggle, then failure again and finally the first glimmerings of success. The foray into Wall Street on the slender savings out of two years of newspaper work.

Success. A plunge with the winnings. More success. A clever side-swipe into copper. Twenty thousand dollars profit over night. Then the deluge.

From then on, practically everything Spellman touched turned to gold.

Feature writers had blazoned his story over enough Sunday supplements to pave the way from his new thirty-room home to the tip of Seattle.

Slogans for success were invited from him by the bevy of waiting reporters every time he stepped off a train. His arrival or departure any time or anywhere was a matter of national importance.

All this from the man who fifteen years before had been Bill Spellman, a struggling young reporter who shared a rather dingy down-town flat with three other fellows, two of whom slept on cots in the same room with Bill.

Strangely enough, although in a much less spectacular way, these boys had gone on, too. As if contact with the success-destined personality of Spellman had cast its power over them. Spike Quigley, erstwhile police reporter on the Herald, while Bill had been re-write man, was now president of a large motor-car corporation. Red Dyke, also ex-re-write man, had recently presented his daughter with a check for fifty thousand dollars on her wedding day. Even Slow Thompson, special writer for the Town Review, had since come nicely into his own as real-estate promoter in the land parcel deals.

The old "Greenwich Guys", as they had been pleased to call themselves, had all come along in the world, so to speak.

Spellman valued those days. Looking back, they sometimes seemed to him to have been the happiest of his life.

They were the days when he had dreamed of writing. Before the moil and the toil had caught him in their clutches and flung him around on the great belt, as it were, of the gigantic wheel called struggle-for-existence.

Bill had been a dreamer back in those days. So had all that particular little nest of fellows. The long, talky evenings over pale red wine and greasy Italian table-d'hote dinners in subcellars, dreaming, talking, planning, hoping! And rebelling!

Spellman had been a rebel in those days.

Hating injustice. Crying out against monopolies and against man's inhumanity to man. Spellman had dreamed of writing the great American Comedie Humaine, only, as he outlined it to the Greenwich Guys, as they sat talking on and on into the dream-lit nights, his Comedie Humaine was going to show humanity the grim tragedy, as well.

Oh, Spellman had dreams, all right.

They were the dreams of idealism. Of youth with his head in the clouds.

And then the deluge. The deluge of the material success that made of life a cyclorama. A success so blinding, so amazing, that the world clamored for its recipe.

No wonder that under the stress of it, the strain of it, there came the time when Spellman, still in love with success, mind you, felt, however the need of a retreat from the maddening crowd.

At first his family rebelled. His wife, young, a product of the world he had grown into, held back from that move off the Avenue. His children, fiery, spoiled, intelligent, creatures of their kind of environment, shied at first and then capitulated to the novelty of the idea.

In the end, the move turned out to be one of the most brilliantly diplomatic things Spellman had ever done. It proved his position in the social world which his wife and children craved. Society came flocking over after Spellman to the hitherto obscure section along the East River. A new and old-world looking boulevard began to take shape over there.

Brilliantly successful as it was, in the eyes of his family, and the realty dealers who profited by the land boom, so far as Spellman was concerned, it was a failure.

He had defeated his own purpose. In seeking to escape the maddening crowd, he had only brought it tagging along with him.

Travel meant no respite to Spellman. There were the ship reporters, the glare of limelight even in obscure foreign parts, and once when he sought the desert, Associated Press reporters with cameras had found him out as he stalked across the waste place, camel-back.

Spellman wanted leisure now. But his Long Island home was a social rendezvous and his Adirondack camp that same kind of center all over again. New Mexico became the fad, no sooner he had built an adobe hut out there, and a private office in the forty-sixth story of the Woolworth Building remained private for about two weeks.

Spellman wanted leisure. Spellman wanted to write. The old urge was upon him. The old desire to put into printed, palpitating word the human panorama as it had marched so dramatically before his still young eyes. Spellman wanted mental peace. The quiet kind of hours that yield up dreams.

Within three hours, secret agents had been dispatched down to a rickety little old building in Greenwich Street.

Twelve hours later, the property had secretly passed into the hands of Spellman.

One week later, and with a degree of secrecy that only power and money could command, Spellman walked into almost an exact replica of the dingy little old flat of days gone by.

He had even managed to have reproduced the mangy old carpet-sofa upon which he had slept those eager nights, away back.

There was the ink spot on the wall left from Red Dyke having good naturedly hurled a bottle of the stuff at Bill one night after an altercation on the subject of Neitsche's philosophy.

The first night that Spellman spent in his new retreat promised to be one of the greatest peace he had known in years. A long quiet evening before the tunnel-shaped little old grate. Books. Memories. Dreams. Ideals.

But, of course, it was hard to concentrate. By eleven o'clock, a hundred details were crowding into Spellman's mind, making it difficult for him to use his well-earned leisure. There was no telephone. There had been none in the old days. One had to go to the corner drug store. That made it difficult. In the last year, Spellman had developed a slight heart leakage. Unimportant, but he required a certain amount of restraint to his activities. By eleven, Spellman, accustomed to chilled mineral water at his bed-side, was thirsty. There was only the hydrant. And no ice in the leaky refrigerator. There had never been any in the old days, unless one of the fellows ran over to Grody's saloon and brought back a nickel's worth. Of course there was no Grody's saloon any more.

When finally Spellman turned in, the magic to the old couch was all gone. The old couch hurt! It shot into his ribs with a cruelty that kept him wide awake and concentrating upon his discomfort rather than any of the old dreams he had used to enjoy, with his eyes staring wide open into the comfortable blackness.

The blackness annoyed him now. He had the sensation that vermin might be crawling around and about him. The stiff blanket irked. The air from the shaft was foul.

At eight o'clock the next morning, Spellman, who had fallen off into a brief hour's sleep, awoke stiff and unrefreshed. A blurred mirror gave back his lined and weary image.

The old Bill was gone. Spellman was in his place.

Emerging from the rickety little building that morning, eager for a taxi and a trip uptown to his warm and mellow bath, he found a battalion of reporters and photographers lying in wait for him who leaped into action at sight of him.

"Yes, fellows, I have," said Mr. Spellman smiling, as he hailed his taxi. "He who would seek for his lost youth, must find it in his heart. There is no going back."
