Rainfall loosens drought-like grip on area

From local, wire reports

A cycle of drought-like conditions seemed broken Thursday morning across West Texas and Scurry County as, for the past 24 hours, from 3 to 5 inches of rainfall fell here.

The light, steady rain began in earnest late Wednesday, continued throughout the night and as of Thursday morning was still falling.

Farmers and ranchers are likely welcoming the much-needed and long-awaited rain even though it will delay the cotton harvest now in progress.

According to area rain totals, Snyder occupied the lowest rung in the moisture ladder with 2.88 inches recorded as of early Thursday morning. The year's total now stands at 14.49 inches.

At the other end of the ladder was Lake Thomas, with more than five inches measured at the west end of the lake. In addition, Ira and surrounding areas measured from 3.5 to 5.5 inches.

Dermott and Hermleigh rain watchers reported 4 inches measured in each area.

Cities and counties outside the Scurry County area have also been receiving an ample supply of rain.

Sheets of rain inundated Lubbock for a second day, forcing the evacuation of a nursing home, closing streets and area roads, and stalling numerous cars.

Weather officials said the rains would continue Thursday, and portions of West Texas, South Texas and North Central Texas were under flash flood advisories.

The storm dumped 5.85 inches of rain on Lubbock for the 24 hours that ended at 7:17 p.m. Wednesday, the most precipitation the West Texas city has ever received in a 24-hour period. The previous record was 5.7 inches on June 7, 1967.

"I don't know if it means anything, but the animals are coming down in pairs," the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal quoted a city policeman.

Another Lubbock policeman reported seeing teenagers in a four-wheel-drive vehicle towing friends down usually busy Quaker Avenue on water skis.

"We are receiving reports of lakes overflowing their banks, of water in some residences, and of many stalled cars," a meteorologist at Lubbock's weather station said.

City officials ordered city buses and ambulances to Lakeside Nursing Home, at 24th Street and Quaker, to evacuate its 90 residents after the rains caused a lake in Maxey Park on Lubbock's west side to spill over its banks.

Bedfast patients were taken to a hospital; others were transferred for the time being to another nursing home.

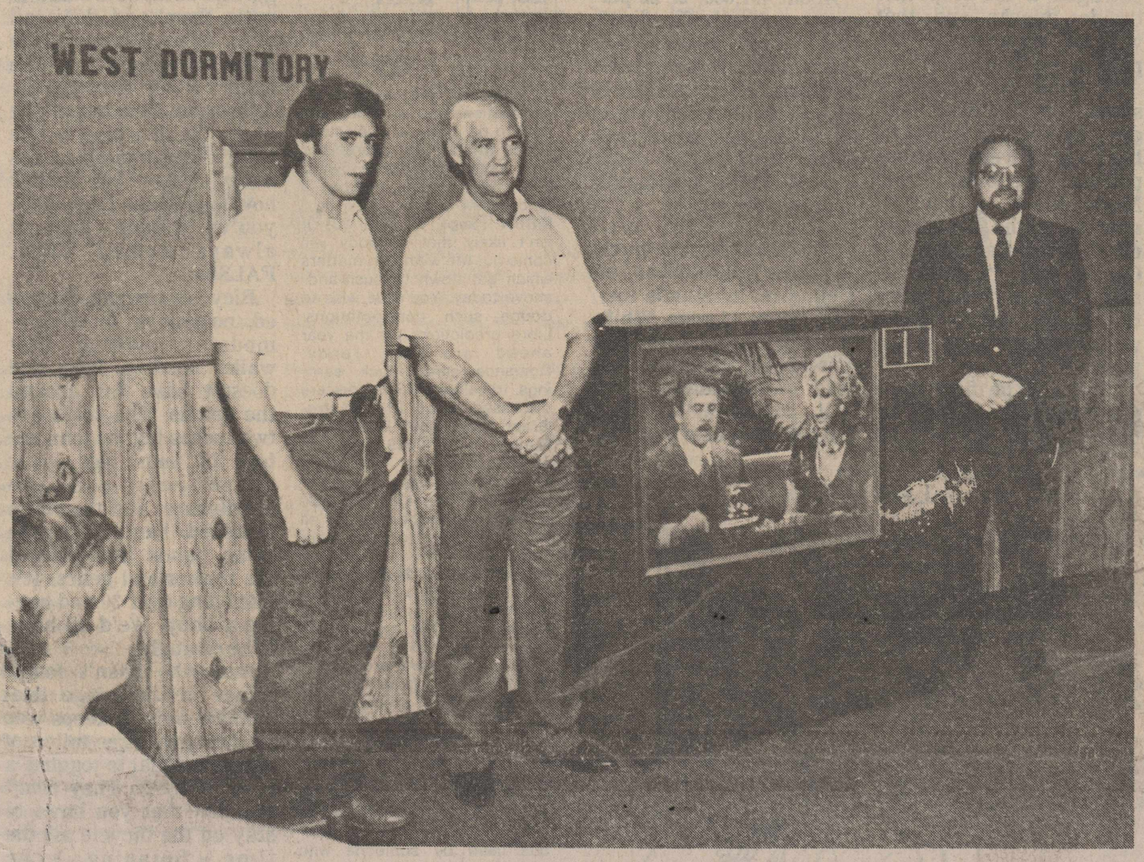

St. Mary's Hospital, just northwest of the flooded city park, was on higher ground, but still was hit by flooding in its basement.

A sewage pumping station nearby was severely taxed by flooding conditions, and it became necessary to pump raw sewage into the Maxey Park lake, city officials said.

Light rain was still falling early today in Lubbock. At midnight, the city had received 6.44 inches since the rains began, and the prospect of more rain today was 100 percent, the National Weather Service said.

TELEVISION PRESENTATION — Snyder Mayor Rod Waller (center) represented the city and several anonymous donors Wednesday afternoon as he presented the dormitory residents at Western Texas College with a new large screen television. According to Waller, several local citizens came up with the idea of purchasing the TV for the dorm lobby as a way of showing community support for the college and its students. Also on hand for the presentation were Danny Hunter (left), president of the WTC Student Government Association, and David Harr, residence hall director at WTC. (SDN Staff Photo)

Anonymous donors buy dorm TV

Some 200 WTC dormitory students — with approximately 100 hastily assembled for a called general meeting — received a surprise gift Wednesday courtesy of a host of anonymous county donors.

More than 100 students crowded into the lobby of the dorm for the unveiling of the gift, a giant screen television purchased entirely through voluntary donations.

Snyder Mayor Rod Waller, assisted by Chamber of Commerce manager Mort Ewing, officially made the presentation.

"This is a gift from several Snyder citizens who want to show their friendship and express appreciation to WTC students," Waller said.

He mentioned that with growing numbers of students remaining on campus during weekends — usually from 60 to 80 students — and with most college facilities closed during the weekend, the gift seemed "particularly appropriate.

"When local citizens learned of the project, they contributed money anonymously toward the cost," he said. "The some $2,300 needed for the purchase was raised in a matter of days."

Accepting the gift on behalf of the WTC dorm students was the president of the Student Government Association, Danny Hunter, a sophomore from Roscoe.

"This is a wonderful and unexpected gift," Hunter said. "And it is extremely appreciated. We can hardly wait to see a football game on a 40-inch screen."

The television was bid out earlier by college administrators with a low cost estimate awarded to Strickland TV of Snyder.

Senior Center advisory group chosen

New members of the Senior Citizens Center advisory council were welcomed and new officers elected at a noon meeting Wednesday at the center.

Re-elected president of the council was John Gayle. Bill Dryden was named vice president and Bonnie Schupp was elected secretary.

New council members are Kathye Gerity, Gerri Parker and the Rev. Ken Branam. Outgoing members who received plaques of appreciation from Gloria Shaw, senior center director, and Gayle were Verdi Kimbro, Frances Sizemore, Branam and Art Feinsod.

Gerity will be representing Snyder Nursing Center and Parker representing Northeast Elementary. Both are stations were senior citizens give volunteer time.

Branam will be representing the Rotary Club and formerly represented the First Baptist Church, another volunteer station.

The center's advisory council is made up of representatives from senior citizen organizations and community organizations who work with the center.

It has been a well-known fact that fishermen stretch the truth. A look at the list of some of Snyder's more avid fishermen will attest to that.

We read recently that prizes in some of the big bass tournaments have gotten so large that the cheating has become widespread.

Some tournaments now require the winners to take a polygraph test concerning their prize catch.

If they ever require a lie detector test before they enter, Earl Perser says he knows a few fellows who will have to retire their fishing poles.

They've done it to us again--big brother that is. Sen. William Proxmire gave his most recent "Golden Fleece Award" to a federal agency that has excelled in wasting taxpayers' money.

We don't know about stress, but Texas Tech fans have become conditioned to boredom watching the Red Raider offensive effort.

Here's another tidbit from the wire. A cancer researcher in Wisconsin has sued a laboratory there for selling her some impure mice which fouled up a research project she was doing.

Strict stand reaffirmed

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, standing firm in two key foreign policy areas, says the United States will "deploy on schedule" its modernized nuclear missiles in Europe, and that if Syria thinks it can wear him down by delaying peace talks in Lebanon, "they're going to be disappointed."

Reagan, calling Syria "a roadblock" to peace in Lebanon, said at a news conference Wednesday night the 1,600 Marines deployed in a multinational peacekeeping force will remain "as long as there's a possibility of making the overall peace plan work."

"We have made great progress there," he said.

The president said that the United States was trying to make the Marines' positions on low ground near the Beirut international airport safer. Seven have been killed, including two hit by sniper fire since Friday.

"I know the Syrians are dragging their feet" in Lebanon, Reagan said, adding that about 7,000 Soviet advisers and technicians in Syria "are contributing to the disorder and the trouble."

But, he said, "if they're doing it with the idea of wearing me down, they're going to be disappointed."

The president said the Soviets were conducting "a great propaganda effort" in Europe to "persuade our allies to turn back and not ask us for the deployment of intermediate-range weapons."

"Well, we're going to deploy, and deploy on schedule," Reagan declared. "And once they see we're going to do that" and not disarm, "I think they're going to see that the best thing for them is to negotiate with us and in good faith."

Under a 1979 NATO plan, the United States is scheduled to deploy the first of 572 Pershing 2 and land-based cruise missiles in Western Europe in December, unless U.S.-Soviet arms talks produce an agreement on controlling medium-range weapons.

Writing winners revealed

After sifting through some 400 entries, winners were announced Thursday morning for the writing contest sponsored in conjunction with the "Where the Buffalo Roamed" symposium conducted at the Scurry County Museum and Western Texas College.

The series of events was funded in part by the Texas Committee for the Humanities, a state affiliate of the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Writing entries at the elementary school level were received from all six Snyder elementary schools, in addition to Hermleigh, Ira and Midland. Junior high entries were from Snyder, Hermleigh and Midland.

At the high school level, Borden High School submitted the most entries with one each received from Snyder and Sweetwater.

Junior college-level writers were from WTC, Texas Tech University and Midland College while adult division entries came from Anson, Abilene, Fluvanna, Big Spring, Sweetwater, Dermott, Polar, Midland and Snyder.

The winning entries will be published in a special

Hepatitis case still unconfirmed

As of noon Wednesday, the possibility of a case of hepatitis linked to a Snyder restaurant was still unconfirmed by medical test results.

In addition, health officials say any danger, if it ever existed, is likely passed since only one restaurant staffer is suspected of having the disease.

If it is ultimately confirmed that infectious hepatitis was contracted, health unit officials say they will likely release a recommendation that persons eating at the restaurant within specified dates should receive an innoculating gamma globulin shot.

They remind that such shots should be effective within 15 to 50 days after an individual has made personal contact with a person already with the symptoms of hepatitis.

The hepatitis germ may be transmitted only through "hand to mouth" type contact and symptoms usually appear some two weeks after the initial contact. Depending upon an individual's resistance to the disease, these may not appear for up to 50 days later.

Drought aid bill okayed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Amid complaints the government is being chintzy on drought aid, the House Agriculture Committee has approved a bill requiring the Agriculture Department to provide up to $500 million in emergency feed grain assistance to drought-smitten ranchers and farmers.

"I for one am clearly convinced that not enough has been done, or is going to be done, unless Congress demands it," Rep. Ed Jones, D-Tenn., said Wednesday as the committee voted 24-10 to send the measure to the full House.

In addition to providing feed aid, the bill would require the department to make disaster loans available to farmers and ranchers whether or not they live in counties which have been declared disaster areas by Agriculture Secretary John Block.

The vote came after nearly four hours of wrangling over amendments and debate over costs.

Trial verdict 'not guilty'

A seven-woman, five-man jury in 132nd District Court deliberated just more than half an hour Wednesday afternoon before returning a verdict of not guilty in the felony theft trial of Travis W. Burleson of Hermleigh.

Burleson had been indicted here for the alleged theft of a horse owned by his former spouse. He was aquitted of the charge at 6 p.m. Wednesday following a day and a half of testimony. The trial began Tuesday shortly after noon.

Boat theft noted at lake

Scurry County Sheriff's officers are investigating the recent theft of a boat from a lake cabin on the Scurry County side of Lake Thomas.

Willard Jones of 303 36th St. called the sheriff's office Wednesday morning to report the theft, which is thought to have occurred sometime during the past two weeks.

According to reports, the 14-foot blue and white Starcraft boat and its 28 horsepower Evinrude motor were parked at the cabin on a breakover-type trailer.

Boat, motor and trailer, collectively valued at $700, were all missing when Jones returned to the cabin Wednesday.

Absentee vote underway

Absentee balloting began Wednesday related to 11 proposed amendments to the Texas Constitution. The balloting will continue through Nov. 4 in the county clerk's office in the Scurry County Courthouse.

Election day will be Tuesday, Nov. 8.

Brazil put under emergency powers

BRASILIA, Brazil (AP) — President Joao Figueiredo invoked emergency powers in the capital shortly before a defiant Congress rejected unpopular austerity legislation intended to help rescue Brazil from a $90 billion foreign debt.

The emergency measures, imposed Wednesday night and set to last for 60 days, allow for house searches and arrests without warrants, suspension of freedom of assembly, and control over state-run companies.

Police patrols were placed on alert and public gatherings were banned, but the streets of Brasilia, a modern inland city, were quiet early today.

A presidential decree said the emergency measures were adopted to prevent "outside agitators" from intimidating members of the House of Representatives during their deliberations. The military regime said the "agitators" had been recruited from all over Brazil but did not identify them.

The opposition and some defectors from the governing Social Democratic Party apparently were undaunted by the measures and voted down government-sponsored bills to cut wages and reduce public spending.

Both pieces of legislation were tied to the release of billions of dollars in much needed loans from the international banking community. Brazil has virtually no hard currency in its treasury and its foreign debt is the largest in the developing world.

The House veto coincided with Brazilian Central Bank President Affonso Pastore's trip to Europe where he is seeking more loans.

The first bill to be rejected would have cut salaries and benefits for employees working for the hundreds of state-run companies, whose responsibilities range from telephones to ports.

The second bill would have reduced salaries to 80 percent of the cost of living index, which runs more than 30 percentage points under the record high 175 percent annual inflation rate.

Two-thirds of the workers in this country of 131 million people earn less than $150 a month.

Scores of people protesting the salary cuts were staked out on the grassy lawns in front of the Congress. About 200 women from Sao Paulo made the 17-hour bus trip to the capital to sit in during the vote.

Presidential press spokesman Carlos Atila said the government was preparing new economic decrees that also would be subject to Congressional approval.

Cheers and applause accompanied the House decision, where the final vote was 260 against and 3 in favor. The military-backed government party walked out of the chamber before the vote because it was clear that the four-party opposition would defeat the measure.

The government party holds 235 seats in the 479-member House. The House vote means the bill will not go to the Senate, where the government party has a large majority.

The government appealed to the International Monetary Fund late last year for a $4.9 billion loan over three years. Brazil promised the fund it would reduce inflation and cut public spending.

Hundreds of private international bankers linked their loans to approval by the IMF that Brazil was following tight fiscal policies.

In September, U.S. Treasury Secretary Donald Regan called congressional approval of the wage bill essential, adding, "I fear for Brazil's future if it is rejected." He said a defeat would make it harder for Brazil to get overseas financial support.

Figueiredo, the fifth former army general to be installed as president since a 1964 military coup, has promised a return to civilian rule in Latin America's largest country. The move to restrict personal freedoms came as a surprise to many political analysts.

One, who asked not to be identified, laughed and said, "And they say we already have a democracy. Funny, isn't it?"

Blacks, Democrats say stand will hurt Helms

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Black leaders predict Sen. Jesse Helms' bid to block a national holiday honoring Martin Luther King Jr. will badly hurt his re-election effort, but Helms' strategists say the black vote has scant impact on Republicans in North Carolina.

Ignoring Helms' charge that King had ties to "far-left elements and elements of the Communist Party USA," the Senate voted 78-22 Wednesday to designate the third Monday in January a national observance of the slain civil rights leader's birth.

North Carolina's popular Democratic Gov. Jim Hunt, who is expected to run for Senate next year and leads Helms in several polls, had not commented on the controversy and does not plan to use it as a campaign issue, the Hunt Exploratory Committee said.

But state Democratic leaders expect "thousands of white voters" to align themselves with blacks against Helms in his race for a third term, said party spokeswoman June Milby.

"When an elected representative chooses to ignore an entire segment of the population, all the people are threatened," Ms. Milby said. "Sen. Helms' actions have outraged a lot of people besides blacks and that will be apparent at the polls on election day."

"I think his unpopular stand (on the King holiday) may indicate that he has very, very serious political troubles," said Merle Black, a political analyst at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. "I think he took the tack he did to try to rouse conservative whites and get them to join together.

"But what he did may be self-defeating. It may be that he just encouraged enough blacks to register to vote to vote him out of office," said Black, predicting Helms would need 60 percent of the white vote to win re-election.

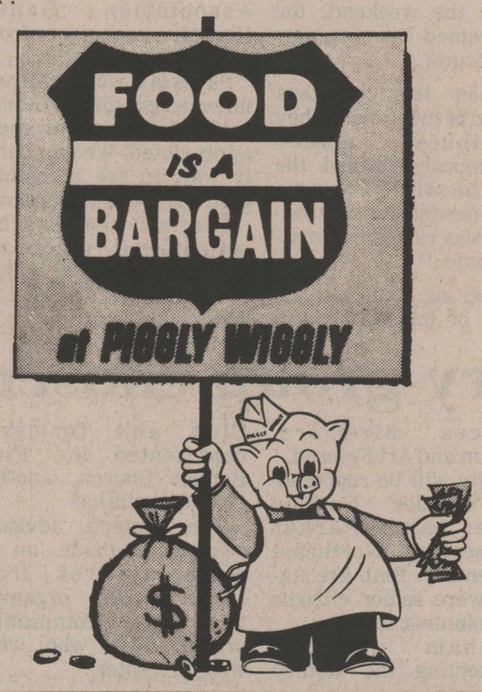

About 451,000, or 22 percent, of North Carolina's registered voters are black, and the Rev. Jesse Jackson visited the state in May to launch a drive aimed at signing up 200,000 more. About 505,000 of the state's eligible blacks are not registered.

"This has forced blacks to take a look at what Sen. Helms really stands for," the Rev. Leon White, director of the state Commission for Racial Justice, said Wednesday. "This will cost him at least 100,000 votes next year."

There are a couple of cliches about riding a bicycle that deserve to be challenged, especially if you've been suckered into buying a two-wheeler during your mid-life crisis by those ads showing a man and his wife pedalling along, waving to their neighbors and having their skin break out with excitement.

You never notice any traffic in those pictures, do you? There is no dog with his teeth firmly planted in your thigh. There are no chuckholes to fall into and disappear forever. They must take those pictures in a studio somewhere.

But I'm getting off the subject of cliches, the first being, "The couple that plays together stays together." FALSE.

My husband and I knew we needed some kind of recreation we could do together. When we played golf, he hooked and I sliced and we never saw one another until we got back to the car. In tennis, he is lefthanded and for 20 years I thought I was hitting to his backhand when it was his forehand, and it seemed too much trouble to figure it out, so bicycling seemed to be the answer. We decided to take the bikes where there wasn't so much traffic, so we loaded them on top of the car using 200 feet of pink plastic clothesline. It took two hours to tie them down, but they were secure.

We then discovered the bikes couldn't clear the garage door, so we had to untie them and do it all over again. It was the worst argument in the history of our marriage.

Everone has heard the cliche that learning to ride a bicycle is something you never forget. No matter how long it has been since you've ridden one, it always comes back. FALSE.

Bicycles are not designed nowadays to accommodate anything that walks on two legs and doesn't have fur around the ankles. The seats are two inches higher than the tops of your legs, your chest rests on the handlebars, and the white clenched hands are the same hands that control the brakes and gears. It's like being over 30 and having a baby. We'd all have to be retaught.

And who hasn't found solace in the adage that riding a bicycle keeps you healthy and three miles of riding is equal to jogging a mile. FALSE. They don't mention that you have to stay on the bicycle all the time. Spinning your wheels in a weird gear doesn't count. Neither does dragging your leg from under it, or resting every 35 yards.

I think there's one philosophical bonbon that even says if you fall off a bicycle, it's better if you get right back on again. Or is that a horse? Same thing. Both of them take away your desire to sit again ever!

Dupree at Southern Miss; may try to buck system

HATTIESBURG, Miss. (AP) - Running back Marcus Dupree, after enrolling at the University of Southern Mississippi, hinted that he may try to buck NCAA rules that would prohibit him from playing college football again until 1985.

"You never know what might happen here," the 19-year-old said, shortly after he enrolled Wednesday. "There's always the possibility of going to court."

NCAA rules require an athlete who transfers to sit out one calendar year before he can compete again.

Dupree, who abruptly left the Oklahoma Sooners last week because, he said, he wanted to be closer to his Philadelphia, Miss., home, appeared a little annoyed at the attention his registration at Southern Mississippi had caused.

With his mother, Cella Dupree Conners, at his side, Dupree said that although he had been contacted by Georgia in the past few days, his real choice was between USM and Mississippi State.

Asked if he thought he still could be a candidate for the Heisman Trophy, Dupree replied, "If you perform well on the field, it really doesn't matter what school you're at."

USM officials confirmed Wednesday that Dupree had been given a full athletic scholarship.

Dupree said he did not know the specific courses he would take at Southern, although he had signed up for so-called "QQ," or accelerated, courses, which run half a semester in length.

The college sophomore appeared genuinely pleased at knowing that his studies will be resumed. He spoke of maintaining close to a 3.0 average at Oklahoma.

Girls face key match against Eagles tonight

Snyder's varsity volleyball team is under the gun tonight as they host Pecos High School for a 7:30 match.

The junior varsity plays at 6:30.

The Tigers, 8-3 in District 2-1A play, are still a factor in the playoff race, but a loss tonight could take them out of it, depending on several other matches.

Pecos comes in at 9-1, tied with Monahans for the loop lead. Snyder still must play Monahans, and Monahans and Pecos have yet to square off for the second time.

"We're going to be a factor right down to the final game of the final match," said Coach Leslie O'Pry. "The question is, are we going to be determining who else goes (to the playoffs) or whether we go."

Victories over Pecos and Monahans would leave Snyder at least tied for second place in the district, and presumably in a position to fight for a playoff spot. A loss, however, would put the Tigers three games back in the standings with only two matches left to play.

Gamble added to list of baseball free agents

NEW YORK (AP) - Six more players, including veteran outfielder-designated hitter Oscar Gamble of the New York Yankees, have filed for baseball free agency, bringing to 27 the number of players who have have decided to become free agents.

In addition to Gamble, who had seven home runs in only 180 at-bats last season, those adding their names to the Nov. 7 reentry draft were utility man Derrel Thomas of the Los Angeles Dodgers, outfielder Gene Richards of the San Diego Padres, shortstop Mark Wagner of the Texas Rangers and pitchers Dale Murray of the Yankees and Jamie Easterly of the Cleveland Indians.

However, John Wathan of the Kansas City Royals, who had played out his option, signed a four-year contract with the Royals. And the Los Angeles Times reported that Doug DeCinces, another potential free agent, had reached agreement in principle with his present team, the California Angels.

Players eligible to declare free agency have until Nov. 1 to decide whether they want to be on the Nov. 7 list. They can sign with their current teams before then and withdraw from free agency.

Others who will enter the draft include catcher Ted Simmons; pitchers Doug Bair, Jim Bibby, Doug Bird, Rich Gossage, Don Hood, Frank Lacorte, Dennis Lamp, Jerry Reuss, Dan Schatzeder, Lary Sorensen, Kent Tekulve, Dave Tomlin, Tom Underwood and Milt Wilcox.

Also, infielders Rob Picciolo, Manny Trillo, Mark Wagner and outfielders Warren Cromartié, Ruppert Jones, Dave Parker and Dennis Walling.

Rice considering 16 as new coach

HOUSTON (AP) - A Rice University committee is considering 16 candidates for the head football coaching job, but none of those on the list has been contacted and no one has a clear advantage, the chairman says.

"No one has a head start over anybody else, unless you list them in alphabetical order," Ralph S. O'Connor said after the second meeting of the panel Tuesday. The search began when Ray Alborn resigned last week, effective at the end of the season.

O'Connor said none of the coaches have been contacted.

"We just have to see who might be available and go from there," he said. "There are certain guidelines about contacting the president or athletic director of another institution that we will follow. Everything will be done above-board."

Mississippi State Coach Emory Bellard is among those rumored under consideration, but O'Connor said Bellard had not been contacted and had not applied for the vacancy.

O'Connor added, "Emory Bellard is a class person and he's someone we would be proud to have here. I think the world of him and I've kept up my contacts with him but we have not contacted him about this position and he has not applied."

Bellard resigned as head coach at Texas A&M in 1978 and could have gone to work for O'Connor's firm.

Frosh host v-ball meet

Snyder freshman will host a volleyball tournament beginning at 9 a.m. Saturday in the high school gymnasium.

The Cats received a first round bye and will play at noon, taking on the winner of a Sweetwater vs Seminole match.

Other teams involved in the tournament are Big Spring, Lamesa, Pecos and Levelland.

Tigers ready for Pecos; weather won't hinder

Snyder's Tigers face Pecos this Friday, and after Wednesday's workouts, he may be hoping the rain doesn't let up.

"We had our best day passing yesterday. Usually we don't catch that many balls in practice, but we were catching that soggy ball all over the place. Heck, we might just keep a bucket of water behind the bench Friday and soak the balls down," joked Tiger coach George Byerly.

Byerly said Pecos has "been kind of inconsistant this year" but he's looking for the Eagles to come into Tiger stadium fired up because "they know they've got to win. They've just got one district loss so they're right in the middle of it."

Pecos is 3-3 for the season but 2-1 in District 2-4A competition.

Snyder, at 0-6, is out of the race. It's time to do some soul searching.

"I hope we will get after them. It's obvious we're out of the district race but it's time for each individual player to look inside himself and see how he wants to finish the season. I think each player has the pride in himself and wants to accomplish the goals we've set, No. 1 is winning the ballgame. It's a question that applies to more than just football: How are you going to handle things when things aren't going well for you."

Kickoff is slated for 8 p.m.

2-4A roundup

The focus of District 2-4A football is on the Mustangs - both of them - Friday, as unbeaten Sweetwater entertains a down-but-kicking Andrews bunch.

Andrews, 1-2 in district play, can go a long way in easing back into the playoff picture with a win over Sweetwater. Coach W.T. Stapler's boys would just as soon eliminate Andrews all together.

The situation is similar in San Angelo, where the 1-2 Chiefs hope struggling Fort Stockton doesn't return to form. Fort Stockton, at one time ranked No. 10 in the state, has lost its past three ballgames and is all but mathmatically out of the playoff race.

Lake View, 1-2, stumbled in its first two district outings but rebounded to whip the Pecos Eagles last week, 19-0. Pecos, still well in the picture at 2-1, will try to regroup against host Snyder, a team searching for its first victory of the season.

Monahans, which joins Sweetwater as the only 3-0 team in the loop, is at 1-2 Lamesa.

2-4A standings

Team	Dist		Season
Sweetwater	3	0	6	0
Monahans	3	0	4	2
Pecos	2	1	3	3
Lake View	1	2	4	2
Andrews	1	2	3	3
Lamesa	1	2	1	5

Snyder	0	3	0	6

Oct. 14 Games: Monahans 33, Snyder 6; Lake View 19, Pecos 0; Sweetwater 26, Lamesa 0; Andrews 17, Fort Stockton 0.

Oct. 21 Games: Pecos at Snyder, Fort Stockton at Lake View, Andrews at Sweetwater, Monahans at Lamesa.

2-1A roundup

It's a clash of two teams still looking for victory that poses as one of the better matchups in District 2-1A this Friday.

The action is in Hermleigh, where the Cardinals celebrate homecoming by welcoming Paint Creek. Both teams are 0-6 on the season.

Meanwhile, Highland and Trent both look to keep unbeaten seasons in step. Highland, idle last week, treks to Ira, while Trent takes on Leuders-Avoca in Avoca.

Trent currently leads the district with a 7-0 mark. Highland, the defending state and 2-1A champ, is 6-0.

In the only other game, Borden County, 3-2 and 3-4, hopes to hit .500 on the season when it buses to McCaulley.

All 2-3A games are slated for 7 p.m. starts.

2-1A standings

Team	Dist		Season
Trent	5	0	7	0

Sideline glances...

Good week for grid fans

By BILL McCLELLAN
SDN Sports Editor

Week number seven may not be a bright one for those picking outcomes, but it is sure to be enjoyable for fans. With matchups like Texas-SMU, Iowa-Michigan and the Cowboys-Raiders, it's a good time to sit back and enjoy.

I've slumped in recent weeks, but despite the tough games, this should kickoff a comeback. Here they are folks:

Pecos at Snyder: Incentive makes a big difference, and Pecos is still in the playoff picture...EAGLES 28, TIGERS 21.

Fort Stockton at Lake View: This one could come down to who wants it the most. Lake View is still in contention for a playoff berth. Fort Stockton isn't. That should give the home team an edge...CHIEFS 19, PANTHERS 14.

Andrews at Sweetwater: If it means anything, Sweetwater has been more consistant...HOME MUSTANGS 21, VISITING MUSTANGS 14.

Monahans at Lamesa: The Tornadoes aren't likely to win another district game this season...MONAHANS 31, LAMESA 7.

Highland at Ira: The Hornets are simply in another league with the rest of District 2-1A...HIGHLAND 54, IRA 14.

Paint Creek at Hermleigh: Two winless teams trying to salvage something. If I know Clarence Spieker, he'll pull this one out. Homecoming won't hurt, either...HERMLEIGH 41, PAINT CREEK 24.

Borden Co at Grady: The Coyotes should be able to tame the Wildcats...BORDEN 34, GRADY 14.

Texas at SMU: Texas may very well get upset this season, but it won't be by a team that beat them last year...LONGHORNS 27, SMU 14.

Tulsa at Texas Tech: Maybe the Red Raiders should drop everything but conference games. This isn't one, by the way...TULSA 17, TECH 14.

TCU at Baylor: If the Bears don't go into early hibernation, they'll get honey out of this one...BAYLOR 28, TCU 17.

Texas A&M at Rice: When I pick A&M, even Rice junior varsity could win. However...TEXAS A&M 34, RICE 31.

Houston at Arkansas: Arkansas is still in the picture. They'll stay that way unless the high-octane Houston offense can keep from sputtering...RAZORBACKS 31, COUGARS 24.

Kentucky at Georgia: Go with the Bulldogs at home...GEORGIA 34, KENTUCKY 14.

Iowa at Michigan: Ditto to Michigan on defense and home field advantage...MICHIGAN 23, IOWA 21.

USC at Notre Dame: Not as close as you might think...IRISH 24, TROJANS 7.

West Virginia at Penn St: Penn State's winning streak stops as they face one of the most balanced teams in the nation...WEST VIRGINIA 31, STATE 14.

LA Raiders at Dallas: Mathmatics (7 plus 0 equals victory) says don't pick against the Cowboys...DALLAS 27, RAIDERS 21.

Kansas City at Houston: I do believe Houston is looking worse every week...CHIEFS 21, OILERS 7.

Atlanta at NY Jets: The Jets are erratic but Atlanta seems to look for ways to lose...JETS 27, FALCONS 24.

SF 49ers at LA Rams: A tossup, but the Rams have been on a roll lately. My guess is...RAMS 28, 49ers 21.

Last week's results were another dismal 12-8 for .600. For the season, it's 89-51, .635.

Have a nice weekend.

McMurry center overcomes cancer

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — James Phelps has a big smile on his face these days and it's not entirely because his McMurry football teammates are having an excellent season in the Texas Intercollegiate Athletic Association.

James Phelps, a freshman from LaMarque who is the starting center for the Indians, is just happy being alive and seeing the sun shine.

In the spring of 1981, the doctors told him he had cancer of the lymph nodes and six months to live.

That was the last thing he had figured to hear because he "had never been sick a day in his life."

He only went to the doctor in the first place because he had been hit in the stomach with a soccer ball. When he doubled over, he felt a lump and didn't know what it was. Treatments followed and the 200-pounder lost 50 pounds and his hair. However, he didn't lose his competitive edge and that perhaps, more than anything, helped him win out.

"I was shocked when I first heard the news and there was a lump in my chest the size of a baked potato," he said. "The doctors removed the tumor and I was scared for a while. But a doctor at M.D. Anderson (Hospital in Houston) told me to stick to the treatments and have the pride to beat it."

Phelps had a lot of people in his corner. School officials told him he didn't have to come back to school for the final month because of his 87-average, so he didn't have to worry about his school work. His family, friends and high school coaches visited him regularly and tried to cheer him up.

"No one tried to bury me, they always encouraged me, so it was always in the back of my mind that I'd beat it," he said. "That summer, a guy gave me a job as life guard at the swimming pool and he told me if I didn't feel like working to not show up. That helped, too, because I didn't want to sit around the house and feel sorry for myself or just look at the four walls."

In November, a month after his "six-months-to-live period," he walked out of M.D. Anderson with a clean bill of health and with permission to play football.

"After the third or fourth treatment, the spot went away, the doctor couldn't explain it," Phelps said. "I've learned to live with it and I live everyday to the fullest, knowing I've beaten the odds...I made it."

McMurry Coach Rodney Murphy, who had tried to recruit Phelps when he was a senior in high school, was the only college coach to keep up with him after the malignancy was discovered. So, when he got his clean bill of health, Phelps called Murphy to tell him he was coming to school at mid-term.

"I didn't have my hair back, so I wore this Marine cap all the time on campus. I think most of the students thought I was an ex-marine, not a football player," he said. "I didn't tell very many what had happened to me."

He weighed 170 when he came to school, but he went on a weight-lifting program and now weighs over 200 pounds and has been starting at center. If overcoming cancer wasn't enough to cope with, Phelps had another scare this summer when Hurricane Alicia hit his hometown of LaMarque and his house was destroyed. He even had to carry his sisters to safety in waist-deep water.

"The storm totaled our house, but we rode it out," he said. "We went to the second story of our house, but when the storm took off the roof, we went downstairs. The water was waist deep, that's when we went across the street to some friend's house."

Phelps missed the first football workout this fall because he stayed at home to make sure everyone was all right after the storm.

Germany was admitted to the League of Nations in 1926.

Boyfriend Calls Time-Out When Woman Changes Rules

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1983 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I am 45 and have three children in college. My boyfriend is 50 and all his children are grown and married. We've been sleeping together for over a year, during which time we've spent more time in bed together than my ex-husband and I did in the 20 years we were married.

The other night, I told my boyfriend I was beginning to feel "immoral" and I refused to go to bed with him. He left in a huff and I later learned that he returned a diamond engagement ring to the jewelers.

My problem: He has asked me to go to Canada with him on his two-week vacation. Should I go? I hate to lose this wonderful guy.

LITTLE RED IN MIDDLETOWN, USA

DEAR LITTLE RED: I can't blame your boyfriend for leaving in a huff; after sleeping with him for over a year, you suddenly change the rules. Obviously he had marriage in mind, and still has if he's asked you to accompany him on his vacation.

A mature person takes responsibility for his/her actions, so don't ask permission from me or anyone else to go to bed or go to Canada. If you want to go to Canada, but not to bed until you're married to this wonderful guy, tell him so.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a 15-year-old boy, bigger than most grown men, who still sleeps with a security blanket? The boy happens to be my nephew. I've threatened to steal the darn thing and burn it. Except for this, he is a normal, well-adjusted kid.

My sister (the boy's mother) tells me it is nothing to worry about and it will pass in time. I say it should have passed years ago.

Does Dear Abby see a problem here or not?

UNCLE JACK

DEAR UNCLE: The only problem I see is the one you are making by calling attention to it. If he is a normal, well-adjusted 15-year-old boy, skip it.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Women who experience frequent bedtime "headaches" should know about this sure cure. My doctor-husband suggested it, and it works like a charm.

Relax and enjoy your husband's undivided attention. Lovemaking will make your headache go away. Of course, this applies only to women who really want to be cured.

NO MORE HEADACHES

DEAR NO MORE HEADACHES: That "cure" was discovered a long time ago. The theory (and it works) is that if you behave as though you are well, happy and OK, your attitude can change your physical condition, and you will be that way.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: In response to "Fat, Female and Feeling Fantastic," you wrote: "One of our most cherished rights is the right to be ourselves, so congratulations. There's nothing wrong with being heavy as long as you're healthy."

That must have been sweet music to a lot of fat people, Abby, but the fact of the matter is, the chances for an excessively overweight person's being healthy are slim.

Rape sentence is overturned

AUSTIN (AP) — A defense lawyer who argued that his client's rape conviction made it illegal for unmarried mentally retarded Texans to have sexual intercourse has won a reversal.

The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals on Wednesday ordered the acquittal of Anastacio Hernandez Garcia of El Paso, who had been sentenced to 18 years in prison for the 1979 rape of a woman whose IQ was 55.

Under state rape law, a man cannot legally have intercourse with a woman if "he knows" she has a "mental defect to such extent that she is incapable either of appraising the nature of the act of sexual intercourse, or of resisting it."

The appeals court said there was not sufficient proof that the woman was mentally retarded, and, if she was, that Garcia knew it.

Defense lawyer Robin Norris argued it's unfair to make it a crime, in all cases, to have intercourse with a retarded person.

"While such relations may, at first, seem shocking to many of us, they should not be," Norris wrote.

He said he is a friend and legal counsel for 50 to 60 mentally retarded adults.

"Many are sexually active, competent users of various birth control devices, and well-adjusted to their intimate personal relationships," he said in a brief.

Garcia was convicted of rape in an April 10, 1979, incident with a 26-year-old woman at his home. The woman testified that Garcia warned her not to tell her mother about the incident.

Court records showed she has an IQ of 55, placing her in the mentally retarded range.

Prosecutors argued that Garcia planned the assault and knew the woman was retarded. He "very quickly set the stage before (she) could fully comprehend the act and resist it," said a brief filed by District Attorney Steve Simmons of El Paso.

Garcia "knew he could take advantage of a retarded girl and the evidence indicates he never hesitated to do so," Simmons said.

Spur Art Show slated Oct. 28-29

SPUR—The Spur Art Guild will sponsor the Spur Art Guild Homecoming Show Oct. 28-29 with purchase prizes totaling $1,500.

Ribbons will be given for first, second, third and honorable mention in oil landscape, oil still life, watercolor landscape, watercolor still life, pastels, acrylics, pen and ink, other media, portraits, animal portraits, sculpture, youth division (18 years and under), and miniatures (not over 5" x 7"). Best of show will also be chosen by the judge.

Judging will be Friday morning by Paul Wylie of Lubbock. The show will open to the public at 1 p.m.

Each entry is $4 and miniatures are $1. They will be received at Spur Art Guild Thursday, Oct. 27, from 9 a.m.-5 p.m. only. The guild is not responsible for any loss or damage.

All paintings must be dry and wired for hanging. No item may be entered that has previously won an award at this show. Each entry must have a sheet on back with artist's name, address and sale price if for sale.

A 10 percent commission will be charged except for purchase awards.

Entries must be reclaimed following the show at 4:30 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 29. The guild will not be responsible for paintings not picked up.

Due to lack of space, no special exhibits will be displayed.

Society observes World Poetry Day

The Scurry County Poetry Society met Oct. 17 at Trinity United Methodist Church to observe World Poetry Day with a a salad supper and poetry workshop. President Garnet Quiett presided and Mayzell Fenton, chaplain, gave the invocation.

Various publications in which members poems were published, anthologies and books of verse, were displayed.

Some short verse forms were presented. Dorothy Cox told about the "weave," an unrhymed five-line poem and read a weave which she composed. Ms. Quiett told how to compose "Senyu," a three-line poem about people.

Copies of rules on "How to Submit Poetry" and some addresses of publishing houses and contests were given to members.

Poems by members were read and critiqued in readiness for typing.

The society will meet in member's homes until completion of the community room at West Texas State Bank. Members will be notified of the time and place of the next meeting.

Family night held at nursing center

Family night was held Oct. 14 at Snyder Nursing Center. Approximately 50 persons attended the buffet and dance. Music was provided by the "Colorado City Boys."

The next family night will be in January.

Jenny Lind, the Swedish Nightingale, gave her first concert in the United States in 1850 at Castle Garden in New York City.

South's four-spade call was an overbid, but he had 100 honors to compensate for the probable penalty and he felt sure that no one was going to double him.

West led the queen of hearts and continued with the ace. East played the five and then the six to show an odd number, so West shifted to the deuce of clubs.

At this stage of the proceedings South started to justify his overbid by excellent play. He played dummy's jack of clubs and let it hold by playing his 10. The eight of spades was led and finessed. The five came next and West showed out.

Now it looked as if there was a sure trump loser plus the ace of clubs, but there was a chance for a trump coup. It wasn't much of a chance, but as the song goes, "Any chance is better than no chance."

South led his queen of clubs. West took his ace and now the patron saint of overbidders came to help South.

West tried to cash his king of hearts. South ruffed to get rid of one of his extra trumps and led a diamond.

West could still break up the coup by playing his jack of diamonds, but that is the sort of play that only the greatest players make in their dreams.

The 10 of diamonds was finessed, a high club led and ruffed, a diamond to the king and the last high club. When East followed suit, South discarded his last diamond and led the last heart from dummy for his trump coup.

BOOK REVIEW

THE WORK OF HER HANDS. By Anne Knowles. St. Martin's. 222 Pages. $11.95.

Those who have read and enjoyed James Herriot's non-fiction books about the life of a veterinarian in rural England ought to enjoy this pleasant novel by Anne Knowles.

"The Work of Her Hands" is the story of a few years in the life of a young woman veterinarian. After completing her course of study, Rachel Bellamy manages to land a job working with established veterinarian Malcolm Halliday. Halliday's practice is situated in the farming town of Milchester, which is located in the Cotswolds section of Britain.

Being new to the business poses its problems, as does her being a woman. The people who own the animals she must treat are not overjoyed at the prospect of a woman vet. But Rachel sticks it out, and before not very long it is generally recognized that she knows what she is doing and does it very well.

The novel is largely a collection of little stories about the animals — and people — that Rachel meets on her rounds but all nicely held together by Rachel's character so that the book does not come off as a series of fragments.

Miss Knowles writes well and knows how to spin a yarn. So well does she do, it is to be hoped she will continue to follow Rachel's career in further books.

"Sew Smart" by Clotilde...

County EH clubs schedule seminar

Clotilde, well known author and lecturer, will teach the "Sew Smart" sewing seminar sponsored by Scurry County Extension Homemakers Club Saturday, Nov. 5, from 9 a.m.-4 p.m. in the Fine Arts Bldg. at Western Texas College.

This will be an opportunity to learn sewing techniques as well as view ways to use a variety of notions.

Pre-registration is required and the cost for the seminar is $10. Bring paper and pencil. The "Sew Smart" book may be purchased or used on loan during the class. A meal will be provided at the cafeteria for $3.25. Do not sent money for the meal. Deadline for reservations is Oct. 26.

For more information call the extension office at 573-5423 or Mrs. Fogle at 573-2823.

Make checks payable to Scurry County Extension Homemakers and mail with this form to Virginia Fogle, 2307 41st St., Snyder, TX 79549.

Although patients are spending less time per stay in hospitals now than they did 10 years ago, the average cost per stay to the hospital has nearly tripled, according to the Health Insurance Association of America. In 1971, a hospitalized patient stayed there an average of eight days at a cost to the hospital of about $738. By 1981, the average patient stay had dropped to 7.6 days, but the cost to the hospital had risen to $2,161.

Man studies mountain dialects

CONWAY, Ark. (AP) — Stacked in cardboard cartons in Roy E. "Ozarks Doc" Thomas' home are almost 1,200 taped interviews with elderly mountain people.

Many are dead now. Dying along with them, Thomas thinks, is a heritage whose preservation could restore to Arkansas something its natives too often do without: pride.

For 13 years, Thomas has traveled the Ozark, Ouachita and Appalachian mountains of the Southern states. He's scoured nursing homes, hospitals, country stores and county courthouses searching for elderly mountain people more than 80 years old with good memories and a willingness to talk — "wind-jammers," as Thomas' Ozark Dictionary defines them.

The dictionary, a paperback published in Little Rock in 1972, lists some of the words Thomas heard from the oldsters he interviewed. Many of those words, he says, are straight from Chaucer and Shakespeare. Thomas thinks they should be used as a matter of pride, not scorned as the mark of the ignorant and uneducated.

Thomas is an "Arkansawyer" himself, born and raised in a community called Greasy Valley — "greezy," as he pronounces it — about 30 miles north of this central Arkansas town. His ancestors arrived in Arkansas in the 1860s and began farming land now covered by Greers Ferry Lake.

When he started school, he said in an interview, teachers corrected him whenever he used a word foreign to their notion of educated English, but commonplace in the Ozarks. Words like clur: "Adv. Completely. 'Them dogs went clur around that mountain after that fox,'" his dictionary says.

Thomas is convinced that mountain dialect is worthy of serious linguistic study and that the elderly people who still speak it hold values which contributed to the country's strength. To him, it's all the same. The old people die, the dialect is scorned, and the country weakens.

Thomas views his work as a crusade. There's so little time left, he says, to talk to these old people, the ones who matured before radio reached them, who spent most of their lives traveling unpaved roads, who were old when television was born and almost dead when men walked on the moon. Ninety-three percent of the people he's interviewed were born before 1900.

As a lone crusader, Thomas is frustrated. He's spent $15,000 and 13 years collecting four boxes of 759 cassette tapes. The single-spaced transcription he typed of about 20 percent of these interviews runs 6,100 pages. Nobody is interested, he says.

Along with the words, Thomas has collected a treasure trove of mountain cultural history. Again, each subject is cross-indexed. He has 80 categories containing the tape recorded memories of old people on such subjects as buying pelts, food and folk medicine, hunting dogs, weddings and shivarees, work animals, molasses making and morals.

Reagan to sign bill making King holiday

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan says the country will "know in about 35 years" whether slain civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr. was a communist sympathizer, but, meanwhile, he will sign legislation creating a holiday honoring King.

Reagan, speaking at a televised news conference hours after the Senate passed the bill 78-22, made it clear he would have preferred something less than a formal national holiday. But he said he believes "the symbolism of the day is important enough that I will sign that legislation."

Reagan's comments touched on a debate in which conservative Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., had claimed King was a communist sympathizer and sought to delay action on the bill until secret FBI files were released.

Asked whether he he agreed with Helms about King's alleged communist links, Reagan said, "We'll know in about 35 years, won't we?"

Reagan added he doesn't fault Helms' "sincerity with regards to wanting the records opened up."

But at the same time, the president said there is "no way" the records can be unsealed because "an agreement was reached between the family and the government" to keep them secret another 35 years.

Reagan's commitment to sign the bill caps a 15-year struggle in Congress to honor King, who was assassinated on April 4, 1968. The final act was played out before a hushed gallery, with King's widow, Coretta Scott King, looking on.

Although King's birth date was Jan. 15, the holiday will be observed the third Monday in January beginning in 1986. Federal workers will have the day off, with many state and local governments and private employees to follow suit.

After the vote Mrs. King appeared at a news conference that resembled a locker room victory party, with dozens of cheering supporters and nearly as many television cameras crowded into a small room near the Senate chamber.

Surrounded by her son Martin III, King's sister Christine, singer Stevie Wonder, civil rights leaders and congressional backers, Mrs. King said: "We want his birthday to be more than a day of fun and games. It must be a time when all Americans and peace loving peoples all over the world reflect on the man and his principles, which ring as true today as ever."

Among those with Mrs. King as she spoke was Rep. John Conyers, D-Mich., who has sponsored a King holiday bill each year since King's death in 1968.

"Every year for 15 years there were those who thought he would fade away as a temporary hero," Conyers said of King. Instead, he said, "We have the most incredible symbol that knocks down the wall of segregation."

The boisterous crowd after the vote provided a sharp contrast to the solemnity of the Senate chamber when Vice President George Bush, who was presiding, announced passage of the bill. Before he gave out the tally, he reminded spectators of the Senate rule prohibiting any display of approval or disapproval.

The House passed the bill Aug. 2 by a whopping 338-90 margin.

Before Mrs. King arrived, Sen. Bill Bradley, D-N.J., bitterly attacked the two staunchest opponents of the bill — Helms and Sen. John East, also R-N.C. East had expressed anger with King's speeches against the Vietnam War.

Bradley, pointing to the corner gallery where he sat as a college student and watched the 1964 Civil Rights Act pass, said of Helms and East: "They are playing up to old Jim Crow and all of us know it. This holiday is their cutting issue.

"This is the one that gets the people aroused and to their feet cheering. But which people ... those who believe that America is one nation under God or those who believe that it should be two, separate and unequal. I sense it is the latter group that will rally to the call from the senators from North Carolina."

Neither Helms nor East spoke on the floor during the last hour of debate.

But Helms held a news conference and declared, "I'm not a racist. I'm not a bigot. Just ask any black who knows me whether I am."

Man turns hobby into thriving business deal

GAINESVILLE, Texas (AP) — Opulent cars that once turned heads and transported the wealthy usually end up as hunks of metal rusting beside their more humble cousins in junkyards. Or they are hidden in garages where they molder away, victims of neglect.

But some vintage vehicles are more fortunate. They are placed in Bob Smith's care and are restored to their former beauty, once again to turn heads.

Smith, who parlayed his love for automobiles into a thriving car restoration business in Gainesville, Bob Smith's Coachworks Inc., laughed as he recalled starting his business with only $50.

Fifty dollars of his own money, that is. His dad, granddad and a bank loaned him $4,650 in 1978 to help get his business going.

His first job was to restore a 1958 Edsel to its former, rather dubious beauty.

Since that time, he has restored Rolls and Bentleys, and earned a respectable reputation around the country for his talent and expertise in taking shells and pieces of once-glorious automobiles and returning them to their "original condition."

"I'm a working boss," Smith said. When any of his workers have questions, Smith is right there to answer.

When his employees run up against something they have not dealt with before, Smith is there to help them learn the tricks.

When one of his men "messes up or has a problem," Smith tells them, "Don't get mad. Fix it."

Smith emphasized that he was not just the owner of the shop and the boss. He was his employees' friend. "They can always come to me," he said.

Some of his men who now sand, buff and paint, or upholster or do metal work or any of the other jobs associated with restoring cars started out as high school students sweeping up the floors and doing other odd jobs. But Smith saw their potential and hired them.

There are three ways to do a job, Smith said. "You can do a good job, or a better job, or the best job possible."

Bringing a car to 100 percent show car restoration — which is what Smith's company mainly does — is not an easy task. Every inch and each detail of the car must be considrered. But it is a task Smith enjoys.

Smith views his work as an art. His latest masterpiece is a 1931 Marmon V-16. "Over 5,000 man-hours went into the job," Smith said. With the restoration complete, the car is now worth more than $200,000. Smith said it was the biggest challenge he has undertaken in his five years of business. The car was taken to Pebble Beach, Calif., to compete in a major show car competition.

Each restoration job is different, he said, because it depends on what the car owner wants done. Before Smith begins a job he has to get answers: Does the owner want the original color of paint? Is this going to be a "street car" or a "show car"? Are there any mising pieces that will have to be found? How much detail will go into the work? How long is the car owner willing to wait for the job to be complete?

Most cars that pass through Smith's shop have stories behind them. For instance, he is grooming a car once owned by the late actress Ingrid Bergman.

The car, a 1953 Ferrari 212, was given to the actress as a wedding gift by her husband, Roberto Rossellini.

The car now belongs to Smith and a friend. Smith got the car when he "heard it was available."

Smith draws his business mainly from the Dallas-Fort Worth area — about 60 percent. The rest comes from other parts of the state and the country.

Smith's shop is full for about the next four months. "I have a lead time of three to eight months," he said. "I don't have to wait for business. I just call the next person on the list. If they're not ready, I call the next one."

Philadelphia was the capital of the United States from 1790 to 1800. The city boasts many of the nation's firsts, including its first bank, hospital, and zoo.

Two face charges related to 'escape'

Snyder police arrested two suspects on misdemeanor escape charges at Cogdell Memorial Hospital Wednesday morning and began an investigation of a misdemeanor theft of a pistol from a west Snyder residence.

The escape arrests resulted when hospital employees called police at 7:17 a.m. and reported that a DWI suspect, arrested Tuesday night and then hospitalized after becoming ill while in police custody, was attempting to leave the hospital.

Both the male DWI suspect and a female subject were arrested at the hospital a short time later. The man now faces additional charges of escape while the woman was charged with one misdemeanor count of hindering the apprehension of a suspect.

Tony Fennell of 2604 ½ Ave. V called police at 4:03 p.m. to report the theft of a small .30 cal. Derringer from his residence. The gun, valued at $75, was thought taken sometime Tuesday night or during the day Wednesday.

In other action, city police are investigating a bicycle theft and a criminal mischief complaint filed Wednesday.

Betty Grisham called police at 9:52 a.m. to report the vandalism of her 1981 Buick. The damage to the car was thought to have been done while it was parked at the Allsup's Store on College Ave. sometime between 11 p.m. Saturday and 12:20 a.m. Sunday.

Damage to it was estimated at $200.

A Mrs. Chavez of the Cozy Court Apartments reported the theft of her son's bicycle at 6:18 p.m. The missing bike was thought to have disappeared from the residence sometime earlier in the day.

Two vehicles in collision

The 4400 Block of North Towle Park Road was the scene of a minor two vehicle mishap at 12:12 p.m. Wednesday.

Involved in the mishap were a 1976 Chevrolet driven by James Billy Melton of 611 30th St. and a 1977 Ford driven by Karl William Menges of 3001 Crockett Ave. Damage to both vehicles was classified as minor by police.

Arrests noted

Local officers arrested a 13-year-old juvenile suspect for shoplifting at the Skinny's Store on the East Highway at 8:02 a.m. Wednesday. The juvenile was later released to the custody of his mother.

In addition, DPS highway patrolmen arrested three suspects on public intoxication charges at the Oasis Trailer Park Wednesday night while city police jailed one suspect on DWI charges.

Obituaries

Buchanan

Services for James Carl (J. C.) Buchanan, 91, of 310 20th Street, are set for 2 p.m. Friday at Bell-Seale Chapel with the Rev. Bob Rhodes of North Side Baptist Church officiating, assisted by the Rev. Charles Casey of Calvary Baptist Church in Colorado City. Burial will be in Hillside Memorial Gardens under direction of Belle-Seale.

He died at 3:55 a.m. Thursday at Cogdell Memorial Hospital. He was born Feb. 23, 1892 in Collin County, Tex., and had lived in Snyder since 1939. He was a farmer and later worked in grocery stores.

He married Eula Mae Rogers Dec. 22, 1923 in Ladonia, Tex. She died May 11, 1983.

He is survived by five daughters, Evelyn Wiggins of Colorado City, Geneva Sheer of Cooper, Tex., Ruby Johnson of Ira, Joyce Pierce and Louise Tatom, both of Snyder; eight sons, J. C., Jr. of Cumby, Tex.; Cleatis (Buck), V. L., Weldon, Wayne, W. D. (Dub), Tommy, J. B. all of Snyder; 29 grandchildren; 28 great-grandchildren and nine great-great grandchildren; three sisters, Betha Hartness of Forney, Maggie Turner of McKinney and Abbie Jones of Stephenville; one brother, Glenn Buchanan of Menard.

Caffeine addiction

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I'm concerned that I've developed a dependence on caffeine. I'm a night bartender in a busy bar. It's important that I work hard and stay "up" like an entertainer in front of an audience. I find that in between coffee breaks I become grouchy, uncoordinated, easily bored and less able to joke and chat with customers. Sometimes I get very weak for short periods.

I never drink a lot of coffee at one time. I just keep a constant level of one or two cups in my system all the time.

I have trouble getting out of bed in the morning, sometimes sleeping nine and 10 hours. Even when I get six or seven hours of sleep I feel awful when I get up.

I've tried to stop drinking coffee but I get too weak. I've tried to mix decaffeinated coffee in with the regular coffee but I still notice the difference.

How can I ease myself off caffeine without affecting my job performance? Also how can I solve the problem of wanting to oversleep and feeling bad when I get up?

DEAR READER — Your description of your problem is a perfect example of the effects of caffeine. It is a drug habit and a person can develop a dependence on it. Caffeine is a brain stimulant and you are correct in describing the "up" feeling.

You would probably do better in withdrawing if you could take a two-week vacation. Taper off by using only a cup or two a day. Then one — and then none. This helps prevent withdrawal symptoms. Start exercising to stimulate yourself.

Set a limit on how long you will allow yourself to stay in bed and when you first get up force yourself to exercise. Exercise does wake up the system and energizes a person. That is why you need to avoid too much exercise immediately before bedtime.

I am sending you The Health Letter 14-4, Controversial Beverages: Coffee, Tea, Colas and Chocolate, so you can familiarize yourself with the effects of these. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a 14-year-old boy and am worried about some ugly freckles. I have them on my face, arms, shoulders and even some on my neck and chest. I'm sick of them. Is there any way that I can get rid of some of them? Is there a cream for skin that will fade them? How can I prevent myself from getting more? Is it true that these will blend together as I get older? If not, how should I deal with them?

DEAR READER — I was a freckle-faced boy, too, but didn't mind the fact that my nose looked like a turkey egg. As you have been told, as you grow up the freckles tend to disappear or be less noticeable. You would have to search hard to see freckles on my face today, but I do have them on the back of my arms. I can assure you they will never hurt you.

I don't advise trying anything to fade them, just let nature take its course. They are just localized increased pigment production. They may even make you look younger as you get older and want to look young.

Freckle-faced individuals are more susceptible to the damage from the sun so I would be particularly careful to avoid sunburns to avoid premature wrinkling of your skin in later life.

Cancer, dioxin link is challenged

NEW YORK (AP) — Research suggesting a link between the toxic chemical dioxin and a rare form of cancer in humans who worked with herbicides has been challenged by a federal agency in five of the seven suspected cases.

But Marilyn Fingerhut, the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health epidemiologist who released the findings Wednesday, cautioned the new analysis "doesn't eliminate the concern and it doesn't exacerbate it."

"The bottom line is we need larger studies to confirm or to refute these smaller ones," Ms. Fingerhut said.

NIOSH is studying 6,000 workers at 10 plants where herbicides were made during the last 35 years. The expanded worker study is expected to be completed by mid-1985, Ms. Fingerhut said in an interview after she addressed a Rockefeller University symposium attended by 200 dioxin experts.

Statistical data connected with some of the original cases — the only ones reported thus far in the United States — had suggested the rate of soft tissue sarcoma incidents was more than 40 times the expected rate.

Two of the deaths originally attributed to the rare soft tissue sarcoma are now being attributed to other forms of cancer, Ms. Ms. Fingerhut said. She said three other cases have been discounted because followup research failed to prove the workers were ever exposed to dioxin-contaminated materials or worked regularly in buildings where the herbicides were made or stored.

The seven workers were employed by Monsanto Co. and Dow Chemical Co.

The announcement, made during the opening session of a two-day gathering of about 200 dioxin experts from around the world, challenged medical data first reported in medical journals three years ago in four separate studies.

Those reports and an analysis of them earlier this year by NIOSH officials had been the basis for recent pronouncements by other health experts, such as CDC officials, that there appeared to be a link between occupational exposure to dioxin and soft tissue sarcoma.

NIOSH's followup research, which began following the initial publication of the individual studies, included the compilation of pathology reports, medical records, tissue specimens, death certificates and company records, Ms. Fingerhut said. Then, outside independent pathologists analyzed the data.

She sought to downplay the significance of her announcement, calling it a clarification of previous studies. "We want to point up the difficulties of studying this rare cancer."

Dioxins — most notably 2,3,7,8-TCDD, its most toxic form — are unwanted byproducts in the production of herbicides like 2,4,5-T, a component of the Vietnam War defoliant Agent Orange.

Within the last several years, 2,3,7,8-TCDD has been found at about 60 sites across the country in levels above the one part per billion deemed safe by the federal Centers for Disease Control.

Californians lay claim to world title for chili

DALLAS (AP) — A group of Californians, contending they hold the world championship rights to the fiery state dish of Texas, have filed a federal lawsuit against a founder and organizer of the annual Terlingua Chili Cookoff.

The California-based International Chili Cookoff Society contended in its suit filed Wednesday against Frank X. Tolbert that it owns service mark, or trademark, for the phrase "World's Championship Chili Cookoff."

The phrase is similar to the name of Tolbert's nonprofit Texas Corporation and, until this year, the name of the annual cookoff of "Texas Red" in Terlingua, a ghost town located near the Big Bend National Park in far Southwest Texas.

"I figured they'd do this," said Tolbert. "They are suing me for what I origninated. They steal your idea, then they sue you."

"We'd been using that name for years. We originated it and we've used it for years. They didn't say anything about it until this year. Immediately after we got the letter, we changed the stationary and everything," said Tolbert.

The Terlingua cookoff will be known this year as the 17th Annual Original Terlingua Chili Appreciation Society International Championship Chili Cookoff & Wick Fowler Memorial, said Tolbert.

He said he changed the name of the World Championship Chili Cookoff at Terlingua last Spring after receiving a letter from the California group, claiming rights to the trademark registered in 1978.

The lawsuit seeks a permanent injunction against the Texan's use of the phrase, an accounting of all profits gained from the use of the name and damages equal to three times the profit.

Dallas Attorney Jerry W. Mills, who represents the California chili society, said that he believes the group is "quite serious" about the claims in the suit.

Tolbert said he and public ralations counselor Tom Tierney initiated the Terlingua cookoff in 1967 as a "joking promotion" for Tolbert's book, "A Bowl of Red."

Some members of the original Texas promoters moved to California in 1975, said Tolbert, and attempted to take the chili cookoff with them.

"They're just copycats. We've called 'em that for years — The Copycat Cookoff," said Tolbert. "It (the suit) is just a vindictive thing. They're going to do anything to erase Terlingua."

The Terlingua cookoff is scheduled for Nov. 5. But Tolbert said it had to be moved to the foot of Sawmill Mountain, just north of Terlingua, because the usual site already has been leased by the California group.

Volunteer firemen set fires to put them out

HOUSTON (AP) — Fire department investigators who noticed similarities in a series of blazes have arrested three volunteer firemen who they say lighted buildings so they could put them out.

The three, all members of Houston-area volunteer fire departments, were charged Wednesday.

Martin J. Schelsteder, 19, was charged with three counts of arson. Bond was set at $15,000. William T. Tippett Jr., 20, was held on $50,000 bond on one count of arson. Charles Creel was charged with one count of arson and held on $5,000 bond.

No one was injured in the 18 fires, which were set in vacant or abandoned houses, authorities said.

"It was always the same M.O. (method of operation), an abandoned or vacant house ... and they occurred in the wee hours of the morning," said R.A. Birdwell of the Harris County Fire Marshal's Office. "They would then wait for the alarms to come in and then ride the fire trucks to the scene."

Creel and Schelsteder are members of the Westfield Volunteer Fire Department. Tippett belongs to the Mount Houston Volunteer Fire Department. Those areas are in north Harris Counties.

"There was no rhyme or reason to it," Birdwell said. "They would pick out a house and torch it."
