FIFTY CENTS IS A LOT, ANYWAY

CHICAGO, Sept. 24 (AP).—There may be others who, like Mrs. Frances Gonzales, become exasperated occasionally with the family budget system.

Mrs. Gonzales was unable to account to her husband, David, for 50 cents of the $7 he gave her a week ago. She added, subtracted, and let X equal this and Y equal that, but any way she computed she was four bits short.

Mr. Gonzales was indignant. He pointed out how at the end of 25 years a 50 cent a week shortage would amount to whatever it would amount to, a lot of dough, anyway. Mrs. Gonzales had him arrested.

Judge Joseph Burke spoke sharply to Gonzales yesterday.

"You mean that if I don't be good I'll go to jail?" Gonzales inquired.

"Right," said Judge Burke.

"I'll be good," said Gonzales.

The farmer said they visited several places where drinks were bought after which the salesman took him to a restaurant in the negro section and went inside, leaving Schlickelsen in the automobile.

"While I was seated there a negro came out and struck me over the head and took the $1400 from my vest pocket." Schlickelsen told police. "As I went down beneath the negro's blows, I saw the salesman watching."

HOOVER FAVORS MOVE AS RECOMMENDED FOR SESSION

BY CHARLES D. WATKINS
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24 (AP)—A substantial reduction in taxes, favored by President Hoover, will be recommended to the regular sessions of congress next December by the treasury to become effective next March 15, but just what form the reduction will take has not been determined.

It was learned today at the treasury that the government financial condition in prospect for the coming years is regarded as warranting a slash in taxes, and with this in view experts will start work within a week to determine how much of a cut can be made and how it will distributed.

Officals who have watched the government revenue this year, which at the close of business September 20 exceeded collections for the first two and a half months of the last fiscal year by $118,936,480, pointed to continued prosperity and large income tax collections as the base upon which the tax reduction would be made.

Since July 1, the total government income has amounted to $921,237,506, while the income tax collections for the calendar year 1928 have totaled, up to September 20, approximately $1,800,000,000; an increase over the same period of the previous year of approximately

MR. AND MRS. JOHN COOLIDGE SEEK OBSCURITY; WHEREABOUTS UNKNOWN

(By Associated Press)

PLAINVILLE, Conn., Sept. 24—Mr. and Mrs. John Coolidge were presumably somewhere in New England today, beginning a honeymoon which they hoped would bring them a fortnight of obscurity.

They were whisked away from the home of Governor and Mrs. John Trumbull, the bride's parents, at 7:30 last night in a Connecticut official car driven by a state police chauffeur, their destination unknown even to members of their own families.

Speeding away from Plainville at 50 miles an hour, ahead of showers of confetti thrown by guests at their wedding reception, they were soon lost to the view of the multitudes who converted their "simple and quiet wedding" yesterday into the most momentous event in the history of this 200-year-old community.

Rumor said they would spend their honeymoon touring the New England country where they were born, and would visit the Plymouth, Vermont, homestead of the Coolidges.

MAN AND BEAST IN ENDURANCE

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 24 (AP).—With the sixth day endurance contest between man and horse entering its seventh hour at the arena here today, man had piled up a lead of eight miles. However, it was evident the jockeys were holding the horses in reserve, apparently intending to let them out when the men show signs of weakening.

Ten long distance runners and the same number of horses began the grind here last night to determine which can cover the greatest mileage in a given number of hours. Both runners and horses were paired off in teams.

The team composed of Joe Ray and Johnny Salo, Passaic, N. J., policeman who won C. C. Pyle's cross-country derby, at the end of the sixth hour led with a score of 51 miles and three laps.

Timber Topper and Princess were the leading horses, having carried their jockeys 43 miles.

SHIPBUILDING HEAD SAYS HE CAUSED WORK

PALEN TESTIFIES HE CAUSED SHEARER TO OBSERVE PARLEY

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—Frederick P. Palen, vice president of the Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock corporation, testified today before a senate investigating committee he was "more responsible than any one else" for employment of William B. Shearer, as the $25,000 "observer and reporter" of American shipbuilders at the unsuccessful 1927 Geneva naval limitations parley.

He said Shearer, who has described himself as an advocate of a big navy, first had suggested he be sent to the naval parley by the shipbuilders.

Had Conducted Campaign

This, Palen explained, was after Shearer had conducted a merchant marine publicity campaign for shipbuilding companies in 1926 for a remuneration of $7,500.

"I am more responsible than any one else," the witness said, "for Shearer's employment, because I had the definite thought of keeping in mind the trend of the conference on account of our work on cruisers."

Palen took the witness chair after Homer L. Ferguson, president of the corporation, had told the committee Palen and hired Shearer and he believed he could give the details.

MOODY LIKELY TO RESORT TO STATE TROOPS

REPRESENTATIVE IS TO DECIDE ON STATUS OF TOWN TODAY

(By Associated Press)

AUSTIN, Sept. 24.—Martial law for Borger seemed near today. Governor Dan Moody said the advisability of sending troops to "clean up" the Hutchinson county oil town, scene of the assassination of District Attorney John A. Holmes, is being investigated.

He indicated he had a personal representative on the way to Borger and that his decision about martial law would rest directly on the representative's advice after he had viewed the situation.

Citizens Requesting

"I have received numbers requests from Borger citizens to establish martial law there," Governor Moody said. "Just today I was strongly urged to do so and was told this step would provide the only relief for the 'law-abiding element'."

He said he would receive information which would guide his decision within the next day or two.

COURTS MAY GET PROBLEM

LEGAL ACTION MAY BE TAKEN IN PINK BOLL WORM SITUATION

(By Associated Press)

ODESSA, Sept. 24.—Definite action by representatives of West Texas counties under pink boll worm quarantine regulation will be taken as a result of a conference held here Monday with state legislators and members of the state and federal agricultural departments.

The question before the conference was whether court relief would be sought for farmers who have sustained the cost of regulatory measures without compensation.

To Fight Move

Midland and Big Spring chamber of commerce officials entered the conference prepared to fight any move for an injunction restraining the state from enforcing regulatory measures in the nine counties in West Texas under the pink boll worm control.

The movement to enjoin the state was fostered by State Representative Carl Rountree of Lamesa and Henry E. Webb of Odessa. Webb is co-author of the remuneration bill passed by the legislature but vetoed by Governor Moody on grounds it was an ex post factor measure and therefore nuconstitutional. This bill intended to repay farmers for costs already met, acrried an appropriation. Subsequently the legislature passed a bill providing for remuneration of farmers for future costs of the pink boll worm regulation but without an appropriation.

GANGLAND'S NAPOLEON STUDIES HIS NAMESAKE'S BIOGRAPHY; BEHAVING

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 24 — A couple of warriors are getting together behind the gray walls of the Eastern Penitentiary here.

"Scarface" Al Capone, credited with being the directing genius of some of Chicago's bloodiest gang battles, and—believe it or not — Napoleon Bonaparte!

Yes, Al, in the solitude of prison life, has turned to reading and the study of biographies, just as the little Corporal at Elba found solace in introspection and in fantastic plots and dreams of the restoration of his vanished power.

In his American "St. Helena," where he was thrown for the trivial offense of toting a gun to a movie show, the "king of racketeers," never once defeated by the courts of Chicago, is meditating over Emil Ludwig's "Napoleon."

Al doesn't choose to discuss the book at any great length. Pressed for a comment, he admitted that "Pap' sure was a great little guy."

He Wants Peace.

Today, he sits in the scant comfort of his prison cell and asks only to be left alone to serve his "rap" in peace.

"Al," said Warden Herbert L. Smith, "it has been reported that you are being petted in this jailhouse. Now I want you to tell the world about how you are being treated here."

Capone, a bit abashed at being caught at his latest avocation of reading, laid aside the thick volume of Ludwig's biography and peered at his visitor through silver-rimmed, scholarly spectacles that bridged his thick nose. "Petted," he chuckled, "this is funny. I'm perfectly satisfied here, but if I'm getting away with anything, I want to know it."

Contradicting reports that his prison home was adorned with thick oriental rugs, paintings on the wall, radio and such comfortable equipment, he sat on the edge of a neatly-made bunk and waved to the ample furnishings of his jailroom. On the floor was a prison-made rag rug. Gladioli filled a plain vase on a small table. A phonograph and a wooden smoking stand, cut and painted in the form of a butler holding a tray, completed the picture.

An Ordinary Prisoner.

"Get this straight," he said, with a geniality that belied his reputation as a "bad man." "I'm taking this rap and I'm taking it just like anyone else would. That's the way I want it." He seemed more than anxious to refute reports that he was being made the object of special attention in his new home whence he was transferred from the County Prison at Holmesburg because of crowded conditions.

Prisoner No. 527, as Capone now is known, occupies a regulation cell with an embezzler who is now the prison statistician. Al, when not engaged in the study of the lives of great men, delves into the calculations of his cell-mate.

Figures, he admitted, always have interested him, even when they're not preceded by dollar signs.

"My ideas of penology," Warden Smith said in explaining his treatment of Capone since he was moved to his prison, "are based on common sense. This man, called a dangerous gangster, came here to me as just another prisoner. I am not interested in his past — I am more interested in his behavior here. Capone is not a pet. He is just a good prisoner. He has proven himself an ideal prisoner, and anyone who conducts himself within our regulations gets the breaks, if there are any."

RESPONSE GOOD FOR MILK PLANT

LAMESA, Sept. 24 (Special)—Less than two per cent of those who subscribed for milk plant stock here are failing to respond to the committee's call for the money, so states J. E. Barron, secretary-treasurer of the stockholders committee. The project calls for an out lay of $235,000 one half of which is to be paid by local capital and the remaining half by the F. H. Douthitt, Engineering Company, of Chicago, Ill. The plan calls for milk truck running out in every direction for 50 miles from Lamesa to bring in whole milk from the farmers of the area. The whole section is enthusiastic over the prospects of getting the increased price for milk that the plant will pay. Plans now call for the operation of the plant by early spring next year.

RAINS FLOOD NEW MEXICO

THREE ARE DEAD AS A RESULT OF WATER; BRIDGES GO OUT

(By Associated Press)

SANTA FE, N. M., Sept. 24—Three persons are dead in Santa Fe county, 25 or more dwellings are standing in water in the north end of Albuquerque and 30 buildings are flooded in Bernlillo, Sandoval county, in the wake of unprecendentedly heavy equinotial rains in New Mexico.

It is feared that San Marcial, N. M., which was recently destroyed by a flood, and is now being rebuilt, is in danger of a repitition of the disaster.

Bridges Washed Out

Bridges or approaches have been washed away on highways and railroads in the northern and western part of the state. Highways were badly damaged but except between here and Albuquerque and in San Juan county, traffic was reported to be getting through last night.

Mrs. Margarito Critz, 60, wife of an absent sheepherder, died in her sleep last night when the roof of her adobe house caved in on upper canyon road in Santa Fe.

The other casualties were Natividad Roybal, 12, and his brother, Gilberto, 7, who were discovered in the Pojoaque river, 20 miles north of here Sunday. This stream, ordinarily only a tricle, was running ten feet deep. Gilberto was plunged into the river when the bank gave way beneath him. His brother dived in trying to save him.

AGITATION IS ON FOR MANUFACTURE OF PRODUCTS BY TEXAS CONVICTS IN NEW PRISON SYSTEM PLAN IN STATE

By R. W. BARRY
Associated Press Staff Writer:

AUSTIN, Sept. 24 (AP)—If the inmates of the Texas penitentiary do nothing more than make the handles for axes, hammers and hoes, that the state uses, they will eliminate an item of approximately $5,000 from the state's annual budget.

The board of control has set aside $5,065.56 with which to buy axe handles, hammer handles and hoe handles for the current fiscal year.

Would Be Good Move

This is not a big item, but added to a few others somewhat more consequential and one can see that the agitation for a little industrial activity within the walls could be an economic move.

The commission of 19 men authorized to study the penitentiary problem and submit recommendations to the legislature is of one mind on the question of permitting the prisoners to do a little work besides farm. It is unanimously agreed that commodities used by the state at least should be made by the prisoners and they favor installation of such equipment as is necessary to do this.

Make License Plates

They found on their tour of inspection to many state prisons that in almost every one automobile license plates are made by the prisoners.

Texas will spend this year $113,600 for automobile license plates. Chauffeurs' badges will cost $9,000 and it is practicable to have these made by prisoners.

Taxpayers of Texas will expend this year $31,773.60 for shoes for inmates of the Eleemosynary institutions—some of these the prisoners themselves—according to the board of control budget. In many prisons shoes for the state's needs are made by the prisoners.

Budget Set Aside

There has been set aside for the purchase of printing the sum of $545,750.19. In many states the printing is done by the prisoners. There is strong sentiment within the legislature to install equipment for this purpose.

Groceries, including canned fruits, vegetables, lard compound, corn syrup, ribbon cane, sorghum, pork and rice will cost $129,457 for the six months ending February 29, 1930.

Dry goods and notions for the same period will cost $92,746. For fresh and cured meats and butterine for the first six month of this fiscal year there has been set tside $172,664. For kitchen utensils such as baskets, coffee boilers, bread boxes, milk buckets, and cans and tin cups an allotment of $3,450 had been made. There will be $9,809 spent for hardware, including galvanized iron buckets, dust pans and the handles of axes, hammers and hoes. Baskets for luandry use will cost $445.

The grand total for the items enumerated, "the groceies, dry goods, mats, etc, bring for a period of six months only is $1,155,151. Taking for granted the items estimated for the first six months will run the same for the second half of the year the total expenditures for these items, which many members of the prison commission contend could be provided by the prison system, reach $1,550,020.

Fertilizer Is Big Aid To Brady Crops

BRADY, Sept. 30 (AP)—Crop yields in some instances have been doubled by the use of fertilizer, experiments made in this section show.

J. S. Butler of the Voca community fertilized eight acres of his sandy land farm and raised 25 bushels of corn per acre. The unfertilized land adjoining yielded a scant five bushels.

Two Mason county club boys, living in the same section, tried fertilizer to raise a bigger crop of maize. Troy Sorrells got a yield of 1,728 pounds of headed maize per acre on his four-acre tract, while Frank Holcomb harvested 1,784 pounds. The unfertilized land on Holcomb's farm produced only 938 pounds per acre.

MAN RETURNS TO SEE HIS GRAVE

Man, Supposedly Buried For 19 Years, Is Shown His Grave; Tells Story Of Queer Doings In Family

(By Associated Press)

ALMA, Neb., Sept. 24—John F. Bartells, weary and footsore from his travels, has returned to this community to see the grave in which he was supposedly buried 19 years ago, and to gain admission to a Masonic home.

One of his "pall bearers," J. G. Thompson, went with him to the cemetery to inspect the graves and the headstone on which is this inscription: "John F. Bartells, 1856-1909."

Bartells, once a member of the Masonic lodge here, arrived Thursday and met Thompson. The latter said:

"What are you doing here? This must be resurrection morn, for I helped bury you twenty years ago."

"I came to see my grave and get a picture of the marker," the wanderer replied, solemnly. Then he told his story.

The family came here in 1877, later moving to Neosho, Mo. He left after a quarrel with his wife. In 1908 she had him declared legally dead, as he had not been heard from since his departure in 1901. His estate was probated. Then, in 1909, Mrs. Bartells identified as her husband, a man found dead in Illinois. The man was buried here. Bartells returned to Neosho in 1912 after living many years in Chicago and Baltimore. His astonished wife refused to take him back. She got a divorce, and kept the farm, for Bartells was still dead. They moved away, telling Bartells not to follow them.

TAHOKA BULLDOGS TO MEET WILSON

(Special to The Journal)

TAHOKA, Sept. 24—Tahoka High School Bulldogs play their third game of 1929 football here Wednesday of this week when they meet the Wilson High school team in a return game. The contest is the feature entertainment attraction of the first day of the Lynn County Fair.

Playing her first game of the season, Tahoka won over Wilson September 13 by a score of 18 to 0. Wilson proved to be much stronger than Coach W. W. Nicklaus' men expected, and the locals were lucky to emerge with the score as large as it was. Last Friday the Bulldogs had easier meat, defeating the O'Donnell team 39 to 0 at the first day of the O'Donnell Community Fair.

Both Wilson and Tahoka will be in better playing condition when they meet here Wednesday, and the game is expected to be one of the best of the season. Reports from Wilson are to the effect that Coach Nix's men are in excellent condition for the affray. Nicklaus' men are rounding into form rapidly but can not be said to be in tip-top condition due to minor injuries and due to the fact that three men have been ruled ineligible.

Living and Loving

BY MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

Isn't there one such person as this letter describes in every business office, club and neighborhood? They are always the fly in the otherwise perfectly good ointment, the rotten apple in the barrel that spoils the whole lot. What can we do about them?

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I read your good advice in the paper every evening and really that is the reason why I take the paper now. We have decided to put the question before you.

"We belong to a club simply for pastime, and not for gossip about our neighbors. But, Virginia, there is one old hen who belongs to this club, and every time we meet she has a string to tell on someone, and this makes the game so tiresome. This gossiping isn't just about people she doesn't like. It is about her best friends, always, of course, when they are not present.

"Of course we all know we get it when our backs are turned, but what can we do to stop her gossip? The most fun we have when she is late, but just as soon as she gets in, the old story begins.

"She has four boys ranging in age from six to 16, and they are always running over the neighbors' lawn destroying flowers, and it makes her so mad to tell her nicely to keep them off. Her own back yard is full of flowers, but she doesn't let them get in there. She never stays in the house. She is always in somebody's yard giving it to some of her neighbors.

"Now please tell us how we can dismiss that kind of a member without making her mad, for that would mean a lot more gossip?

"DISGUSTED"

There is always such a person in every neighborhood and club to take the joy out of life, Disgusted. Why we tolerate them is a mystery to me. They hurt everybody's feelings. They have no kindness in their hearts for anyone, but no one has the courage to tell them what despicable pests they are. Why is it? Why do we tolerate such folks? It is because we are afraid of them? I think that must be it, for such people have sharp tongues and can usually out talk an ordinary person.

You can't get rid of them without hurting their feelings and making them mad. The more hateful they are to others the more sensitive they are about their own feelings. I don't know why, but it is so.

The only way you can rid yourself of her is to tell her outright that you don't want her, and I'm afraid no one would have the courage to do that. If someone would tell her exactly what they thought of her and of how hateful and annoying her talk and actions were she would not believe them, and would be most heart broken person in the world to think that such things could even be thought of her, but it should be done.

The only other thing you can do is to out-talk her.

Every time she starts gossiping about someone, change the subject. Act as if you haven't heard what she says and begin talking about something else. It will seem rude, I know, but no ruder than she is. If all the club members agree to do this she will have to talk to herself or quit.

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: On reading a Widowed Wife's life story I feel sorry for her, for I have very nearly the same life, but I always say it can't last forever. There will be a change some day.

"I am married seventeen and a half years. Every time we go to a movie and I don't drive the car just right, my husband gets angry and will not talk for a week. He would come home, eat his meals and either sit in a corner or go out. That was the beginning. Now if I ask him to do little jobs for me gets angry.

"I cannot tell or show him how I would like to have it done. He says he will not let anyone boss him. When he is alone he is all right, and with other people, but when I am there he sulks, now for two weeks at a time. He is a good provider but no companion. I am thankful I have no children. I often think I can't stand it much longer. Sometimes I think I'll end it all.

"Maybe he will treat the next one right. I hope so. I don't see anything in life, always work, no pleasure. It's no pleasure to go along. People look so funny at you. I would rather live on bread and coffee and work hard and be happy than have a sulky husband.

"LENORA LOUISE."

Funny how hard men try to win women and then, when won, treat them as they would not think of treating a dog, isn't it? And it's funny how women stick to their husbands. Why, for instance do you stay with yours? Of course you might lose the result of all your years of work with him if you left.

You have not been receiving the money you have earned all these years keeping house for him, and I suppose if you left he would get everything unless you could come to a money settlement. Perhaps you may, even, love him in spite of his treatment. Women are like that. It seems to me a pity that you haven't children, because then you would have some one to keep you company.

Let us hope, as you say in the first letter, that it won't last forever; that something will wake him up and you will be happy after all.

UNDECIDED: It looks a bit as if the other girl had made the boy friend waver at least in his allegiance to you, doesn't? I'd give him another chance if he wants it and not insist that he give up corresponding with the other girl. If his love is cooling, much better know it now, even if it hurts like everything than to marry and then lose him.

O. L. M.: Your boy friend seems to be a sort of Don Juan type, bad but intriguing. I can't imagine him making any girls very happy, can you? Maybe if you let him come back and he again makes you mad, it will cure you of your infatuation. What do you think?

CROP MOVING SLOW IN LYNN

ABOUT SIXTY BALES OF COTTON HAVE BEEN GINNED TO DATE

(Special To The Journal)

TAHOKA, Sept. 24—Though the first bale of 1929 Lynn county cotton was received here nearly three weeks ago, the crop is yet moving slowly. However the first bale had not been received until three weeks later last year. To date about sixty bales have been ginned here.

Cotton is now beginning to pop open rapidly, and many farmers have started picking. Within a few days the crop will begin moving more rapidly. Since the three and one-fourth inches of rain which fell here recently and which covered the entire county, cotton ginnings will increase about fifteen per cent over the previous outlook, according to conservative estimators. It is thought that the crop in Lynn county will total from 25,000 to 30,000. The county's average production for the past five years has been near 42,000 bales. While the rains came too late to greatly increase the yield, it is the universal opinion that the bolls on much of the cotton will mature much better and thereby add to the yield.

Feed seems to have been helped greatly over most of the county and a larger crop will be harvested than was expected two weeks ago. Many farmers are planting wheat and barley for winter pasturage of their stock. Some more feed will be needed this year than several years ago due to the increased interest in the dairy cow, hog and chicken business, which practically every farmer in the county is now engaged in to some extent.

"Human Projectile" Dies Of Injuries

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. Sept. 24 (AP)—Harry Ackenhausen, 30, of Hanover, Germany, known to the circus world as "the human projectile," died at Springfield hospital Saturday of injuries received when he became wedged in the five ton cannon out of which he was being shot at the Eastern States Exposition Thursday. A coroner's inquest will be held to determine the cause of the accident.

England's summer this year was the sunniest in 18 years.

THE TINY MITES

BY HAL COCHRAN

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

The Tinies all agreed that they would stage a real good race today. They tried to line their ponies up, but found them rather wild. Then Clowny cried, "What can we do? Hey, carpenter, it's up to you. Unless my pony stops his hops I'll be a frightened child.

"Me, too," yelled Coppy. "I'm afraid that if another jump is made I'll slide right into open space. That wouldn't be much fun. Please try and make these fellows stop for everyone will take a flop. If we can line them up once, then we'll gladly let them run."

The carpenter then smiled a bit and said, "Oh, well, they're feeling fit. I'd rather they would run around than stand like they were dumb. Just all sit tight and you shall see how satisfied you'll shortly be. 'Tis best to make the best of things and take whate'er may come."

And then he shouted loudly, "Whoa! You poines do not seem to know that we are planning on a race. Now get in line real quick." The ponies eyed him for a spell. Once more he let out quite a yelf. "Come on, do as I say now, or I'll have to use a stick."

This time the ponies formed in line. At last they all were acting fine. "And now," exclaimed the carpenter, "each Tiny's in his place. We'll shortly have a lot of fun. The race starts when I fire my gun. I'll give a great big cookie to the one who wins the race."

Then, "Bang!" The gun report was loud. It startled all the Tiny crowd. Poor Clowny's pony whirled around and gave a sudden leap. It then 'rose on its two hind feet and Clowny quickly lost his seat. He sailed out through the air and shortly landed in a heap.

HALE CENTER IS GROWING

MUCH ACTIVITY IS SEEN IN HALE COUNTY TOWN NOW

By FRED E. WORTHAM
(Special Staff Correspondent)

HALE CENTER, Sept. 24—From the heart of the Plains of Texas the little city of Hale Center shines forth her beam of worldly splendor. This little city, although it has not experienced the active growing booms that has been characteristic of many of the other towns of the magic plateau of Texas, it has enjoyed a substantial growth during the twelve months elapsed. Growth has been along industrial, business and civic lines.

With the opening of the current school year, a new $50,000 high school building was opened to the largest enrollment ever experienced in Hale Center. This building, which is complete in every detail embodies the latest along educational lines. The school system of Hale Center now ranks high up the scale with cities in its class.

Hotel is Completed

The beginning of 1929 saw the completion and occupancy of one of the finest small hotel buildings in the west. This hotel, known as Hotel Center, because one corner of the building marks the geographical center of the county of Hale, represents an investment of more than $25,000.

Only recently two wholesale oil and gasoline stations were located in Hale Center, bringing the total of such stations to six. With the erection of these two stations it is estimated that they represent an investment of $5,000 each.

Elevator Enlarged

Work on enlarging the new additions to the local elevator of the Chapman Milling company is nearing completion with cost of such expansion reaching near $12,000.

Less than a year ago a theatre costing more than $15,000 was completed, giving to Hale Center one of the finest entertainment houses for a place its size, in the entire west.

Residences Built

More residences were constructed in the past twelve months in Hale Center than during any five year period in its history according to old time residents.

A number of new business firms have located in Hale Center within the past few months, including the opening of a new self-serving chain store. The first of the chain stores to be located in Hale Center.

Stores Modern

One of Hale Centers leading dry goods stores recently moved into their new home which embodies the very latest in store structures.

Hale Center is surrounded by a wonderful farming country equally adapted to the growing of wheat, cotton, and row feed crops. During the season just past Hale Center marketed more than 400 cars of wheat, making an all time record for wheat production.

The surrounding country does not depend solely upon farming, but attention has been turned to dairying and poultry raising in the past two years. This place bids fair to become the center of the dairy and poultry raising section of the Plains. A mammoth 52,000 egg capacity hatchery was installed in Hale Center this year as a result of the increased interest in poultry. This plant will need double capacity another season to care for the increase in poultry raising. The combination of dairying and poultry raising will bring and is already bringing a year round prosperity to this section.

HOWARD COUNTY LEADS SECTION

BIG SPRING, Sept. 24 (Special) Howard county led all others in West Texas territory extending from the north Panhandle to the Rio Grande in growth of scholastic population, according to department of education announcement.

The county's scholastic population grew 1,267 during the year ending with the 1929 census in April. Lubbock county was second in the number added. The more thickly populated counties, including Potter, Runnels, Taylor and Tom Green gained from 50 to 175 pupils.

Enrollment in Big Spring city schools passed a total of 2,150 this week.

Hotel Site Will Be Bands Mecca

EL PASO, Sept. 24—The Sheldon Hotel, one of El Paso's land marks, partially destroyed by fire several weeks ago, is being torn down. This building site will be clear of all debris when the West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention is held here in October, and in its place will be erected a huge band stand. Here the bands attending the convention will give their program. This program will be continuous. It is expected at least thirty West Texas bands will be here for the convention, and each will be alloted a certain time to give their programs or offer their publicity stunts. This spot is in the heart of the city and is an ideal location.

Two Oil Men Make Statements On Plea

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24 (AP)—Harry F. Sinclair and Henry Mason Day, oil associates in jail because of the shadowing of the Fall-Sinclair conspiracy jurors, contended in statements published today they should have their freedom because of the circumstances of their imprisonment.

The former, asserting his health was "as good as could be expected, under the circumstances," said his petition for clemency, denied by President Hoover, was based on the ground his septefice was imposed on him for activities which were neither illegal nor in violation of court rules.

Day said he had petitioned for clemency, also denied, because he felt his continued imprisonment was not necessary to make a new rue—first established in my case—more binding, and that my past life was proof that I was a decent and useful citizen who had, at every opportunity, served his country well."

Cisco To Have Big Party At El Paso

EL PASO, Sept. 24 (Special)—Cisco will bring its band and a large delegation to El Paso, October 24, 25 and 26, for the annual convention of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce. This was announced yesterday in a message from J. E. T. Peters, manager of the Cisco Chamber of Commerce, and received at convention headquarters in El Paso.

A special train from Cisco will b ein El Paso September 28, when the Cisco Loboes, famous football team, plays the El Paso Tigers at the High school Stadium. At that time Peters will make arrangements for the trip to the convention.

TWO CITIES ASK FOR CONVENTION

(Special To The Journal)

EL PASO, Sept. 24—Abilene will ask for the twelfth convention of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce when the eleventh annual meeting is held in El Paso, October 24, 25 and 26. This information was received this week. Abilene is at this time making ready for their annual fair. The West Texas Fair and Exposition, which is one of the biggest fairs in West Texas. As soon as this gala event is out of the way, convention plans will be made. Abilene is expected to have one of the largest delegations of any city in Texas attending the convention.

Another contender for the twelfth annual meeting is expected to be Waco.

Youths Worried In Night Club Raid

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 24 (AP)—More than 120 young men and women, caught by raidingprohibition agents with liquor at and under their tables in the Bungalow night club early Sunday morning, still were in suspense today as to whether the government would take action against them. Their names were recorded, but no guest was arrested.

The bungalow, exclusive night life resort, was crowded with about 300 patrons, including prominent persons when eight federal agents raided the place.

AN ANCIENT PREJUDICE HAS BEEN REMOVED

That ancient prejudice which hoarded gold with the fanatical zeal of the miser has vanished. Under the sheltering wing of AMERICAN INTELLIGENCE flourish thousands of banking institutions to which the individual safely entrusts his wealth.

"toasting did it"—

Gone is that ancient prejudice against cigarettes—Progress has been made. We removed the prejudice against cigarettes when we removed harmful corrosive ACRIDS (pungent irritants) from the tobaccos.

YEARS ago, when cigarettes were made without the aid of modern science, there originated that ancient prejudice against all cigarettes. That criticism is no longer justified. LUCKY STRIKE, the finest cigarette you ever smoked, made of the choicest tobacco, properly aged and skillfully blended—"It's Toasted."

"TOASTING," the most modern step in cigarette manufacture, removes from LUCKY STRIKE harmful irritants which are present in cigarettes manufactured in the old-fashioned way.

Everyone knows that heat purifies, and so "TOASTING"—LUCKY STRIKE'S extra secret process—removes harmful, corrosive ACRIDS (pungent irritants) from LUCKIES which in the old-fashioned manufacture of cigarettes cause throat irritation and coughing. Thus "TOASTING" has destroyed that ancient prejudice against cigarette smoking by men and by women.

"It's toasted"

No Throat Irritation—No Cough.

"It's Toasted"—the phrase that describes the extra "toasting" process applied in the manufacture of Lucky Strike Cigarettes. The finest tobaccos—the Cream of the Crop—are scientifically subjected to penetrating heat at minimum, 250°—maximum, 300°, Fahrenheit. The exact, expert regulation of such high temperatures removes impurities. More than a slogan, "It's Toasted" is recognized by millions as the most modern step in cigarette manufacture.

McCARTHY IS PRIMING PAT MALONE FOR WORLD SERIES STANDBY

BARONS MANAGER IS LOOKING FOR TEAM TO COME THROUGH

IRISHMAN IS EXPECTED AS BIG FEATURE

BRUIN MANAGER LOOKS FOR TWO WINS FROM MALONE IN PLAY

By PAUL R. MICKELSON
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

CHICAGO, Sept. 24 (AP)—A man who never loses his temper is endeavoring to teach that rare art of human conduct to one of the most temperamental pitching stars of baseball. If he succeeds, he believes his team will be the new world's champion.

No Secret About It.

There is no secret about McCarthy's world series plans for Malone. He wants him in the box for the first game and for another if he comes through. Seemingly it all depends on Pat.

Temperament has been Malone's almost destructive ailment since he came into baseball. Years ago, he failed in a try-out with the Giants, and then slumped badly to start off with the Cubs at the start of the 1928 season until he forgot about umpire's decisions and fans' razzing. This season he has been successful, winning 22 games and losing nine.

Has Fastest Ball

Malone, who is just 27, possesses probably the fastest ball in the major league hurling ranks, including Dazzy Vance of Brooklyn.

He mingles a good curve with his fast ball and has 154 strikeouts to his credit this year—36 more than the Dazzler. Malone is the one big ray of sunshine in the Cubs' pitching staff. Except for Charlie Root the others have been unsteady lately, and McCarthy is not a little apprehensive about their condition.

Guy Bush has been batted out of the box on six successive occasions; Sheriff Blake is still in the no-control slump he has experienced most of the season. Hal Carlson, a slow ball pitcher who may cause the Athletics trouble, has a lame arm, while Artie Nehf, an experienced world series performer, seems to have lost his former cunning.

KIPKE AND WILLAMAN "HOME GROWN" COACHES

STOCK IS TO HAVE TWO MEN ON SICK LIST

FRASIER AND MOORE TO BE AILING AS PLAY OPENS WEDNESDAY

(By Associated Press)

DALLAS, Sept. 24.—The Dallas Steers, champions of the Texas league, were speeding toward Birmingham today to battle that city's Barons for southern baseball supremacy. Milt Stock and his men will reach the scene of the first two battles at 11 o'clock tonight.

Despite the fact that only a handful of fans accompanied the team from here and that no attempt had been made to raise a championship fund for them, the Steers radiated confidence when the squad of 18 left last night. While Manager Stock refused to the last to make any predictions, his men were assuring each other and any bystanders they would close out the South association kings in four games—five at the outside.

Two Are Ailing

Two of the Steers' biggest guns, Jim Moore and Victor Frasier, were on the ailing list, and it is doubtful either will see service until the clubs return here Saturday for the second phase of the series.

Frasier's two victories over the Spudders in the playoff left his youthful right in a state of disrepair. The club physician advised him not to throw a ball for at least three days. The more skeptical were predicting the brilliant youngster would not get into the Dixie series. Such an eventuality, while not probable, might prove fatal to Dallas' hopes.

Big Jim Moore, who saw the last three games of the playoff from a grandstand seat, was hopeful of his injured knee would be in shape by Wednesday. It still was swollen and discolored last night. If it is not ready by Wednesday, Red Harvel will be certified in Moore's place.

Dallas players eligible for the seven-game series are catchers Bischoff and Mealey; Pitchers, Frasier, Glazner, Connally, Barnabe, Martina and Tauscher; infielders, Jeffries, Flaskamper, Stock, Morse, Davis and Ratcliffe; outfielders, R. Moore, Rosenthal, Johnson and J. Moore or Harvel.

The veteran Whitey Glazner was expected to take the rugger for Dallas in the opening game at Mirmingham. Ray Caldwell, another ex-big leaguer, was favored to hurl for the Barons.

Intimate Sketches of World Series Stars

JIMMY DYKES

Dykes

Jimmy Dykes, the jack of all trades of the Athletics, is a most important cog in Connie Macks machine, although you seldom see his name in the headlines. . . Dykes has played but little during the last two months of the season due to a strained tendon. . . . In baseball parlance he is known as "Charley-horse". . . Every effort is being made to get him in shape for the series. . . He is a far more valuable man at third than Sammy Hale. . . Dykes is the fighter, Hale is the pacifist. . . . With Dykes in the lineup, the Athletics are far peppier. . . . He has a voice that carries all over the field, keeps up a constant chatter and means everything he says. . . . The rest of the club invariably absorb his enthusiasm, making it a tougher team to beat. . . . Dykes has played every position on the Philadelphia club except pitch and catch. . . He hopes to do both before he passes out of the majors. . . . Likes to play third base best. . . . Will be at that position in the series if his leg has mended. . . . Is also a great golfer, usually shoots in the seventies.

NORMAN McMILLAN

McMillan

Norman McMillan, who is favored to play third for the Cubs, has had a unique career in baseball. . . . Just an ordinary player, he has been fortunate to get into two world series. . . . Broke in with the New York Yankees and shared in a series with that club. . . Got into one game for one inning as a substitute. . . Also played with Boston and St. Louis of the American League. . . . Like Hack Wilson, he took a trip to the minors and was lucky enough to come back to the big show as a Cub. . . Got the call over Beck at third, despite the known fielding ability of that player. . . . Has been below the .300 mark all season, but has been carried along by the rest of the power in the Cub lineup. . . Hits a long ball when he connects. . . Is of the nonchalant type, a la Bob Meusel of the Yankees. . . Bats right-handed and has a great arm, but is inclined to be erratic and may prove a weak spot in the Cub defense. . . . Has hit better in the National than American, despite the fact he is in a curve ball league, and curves are his admitted weakness.

STEERS FACE BIG TEST IN COMING PLAY

BATTERY OF PITCHERS NEEDED TO SUBDUE BARON HITTERS

(By Associated Press)

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Sept. 24.—The Dixie series, for the second year participated in by the Birmingham Barons, Southern League champions, which opens here tomorrow will present two teams strategically well fortified.

Johnny Dobbs, five times a winner in the Southern League, and Milton Stock, himself a former Southern Leaguer, will hook up in a battle of wits which fans here are looking to with more than passing interest.

Upon the shoulders of ancient Ray Caldwell, who has been pitching baseball more than 20 of his 42 years, probably will rest the burden of firing the initial gun in Birmingham's effort to do what Southern League champions have sought vainly to do since Mobile defeated Fort Worth to win the Dixie series in 1922.

It will take a battery of smart pitchers to subdue the Barons, Dobbs said in effect. This coupled with the fact that the Baron's pitching staff is no slough itself, leads the Baronial skipper to believe the champions are on the threshhold of the second Dixie series championship to be won within the confines of the Southern League.

TEXAS MAY PLAY HARVARD ELEVEN

AUSTIN, Sept. 24 (AP)—Unless plans go awry and arrangement for an exchange of games between the University of Texas and Harvard football teams beginning in 1930 will be completed sometime today, Dr. H. J. Ettlinger, athletic director of the university, has announced.

After a meeting of the athletic council last night Dr. Ettlinger said he would know something definite Tuesday.

"We are waiting to hear from the east," he said.

Dr. Ettlinger is a Harvard man and negotiations to engage the teams were based on his former connections there.

Huggins Reported Slightly Improved

NEW YORK, Sept. 24 (AP)—Miller Huggins, manager of the New York Yankees, who is critically ill at St. Vincent's hospital, passed a comfortable night, hospital attaches announced this morning.

His temperature was 104.2° compared with 105 degrees reported at 10:30 o'clock last night, some hours after he had undergone a blood transfusion operation.

WESTERNERS POINT GAME

WORK IS STARTED FOR CHIEFS WITH SANDY GAME IN MIND

Lubbock's High school gridders wasted no time Monday in starting actual training for their next football game of the season here Friday when Coach Finis Vaughn and his Crosbyton Chiefs invade the Westerner stronghold.

With news of upsets coming in from all sections, the high school mentors are taking no chances with their encounter with the strong Class B eleven from Crosby county. Reports from the camp of the Chiefs indicate Coach Finis Vaughn has one of the most aggressive football clubs in the history of Crosbyton high.

Watson Is Out

The Westerners were greeted Monday with the news that Will Ed Watson, star wingman, would be out of the lineup for several weeks with an injury received in a car wreck over the week-end and that "Colton" Welch would also be out for some time.

Yesterday's activities were centered around new plays that will be used against the Chiefs and the usual training grind. Additional time was spent by the Westerner mentors in pointing out the mistakes of the Ralls game.

Coaches Frnka and Morgan yesterday began pointing their efforts for their annual clash with the Amarillo Sandies on Nov. 2. Both coaches were present Saturday for the Amarillo-Norman contest and were strongly impressed with the showing of the 1929 Sandies. Several members of the Westerner eleven accompanied the Lubbock coaches.

CATS TO MEET TAHOKA TEAM

ALL-STAR AGGREGATION PLAYS LYNN COUNTY TEAM THURSDAY

(Special to The Journal)

TAHOKA, Sept. 24.—Though Ft. Worth boasts one of the best array of baseball players in the Southwest in their "Cats," Tahoka expects to give them a run for their money when they cross bats with the Tahoka "All Stars" as the feature attraction of Thursday, the second day of the Lynn County Free Fair.

Jimmie Walkup, who is managing the Felines on their barnstorming tour of West Texas, has with him such men as Joe Bonowitz, outfielder; Eddie Moore, outfielder; Lil Stoner, pitcher; Fay Pierce, shortstop; Larry Cox, outfielder; Handy Andy Harrington, second base; Cholly Sullivan, pitcher; Nick Urban, third base; Lefty Meadows, pitcher, and Del Baker, catcher.

Tahoka Gathers Team

Tahoka is gathering a team of fast ball players with which they expect to give the ticket-buyers a game worth their admission fees. "Wild Bill" Ellis, a Lynn county boy, and pitcher on the Oklahoma City team of the Western League will pitch. Carr Wells of Tahoka will catch. Bailey White, West Texas League player, will hold down first; Jack Wells of Tahoka, second; Gus White, Lamesa, shortstop; "Windy" Nicklaus, Tahoka high school coach, third; Lou White, 1925 best all-round athlete of the Denver Baseball tournament, right field; "Lefty" Squires, West Texas League, Texas League, and Western League player, center field; Frank Larkin, East Shore League, left field; Harley Wells, pitcher and utility man, and others.

The game is being sponsored by the Marion G. Bradley post of the American Legion.

SONS RETURN TO ALMA MATERS TO GUIDE GRID TEAMS

By JACK SORDS

With Big Ten football squads getting down to serious training for a hard campaign, two coaches are whipping their teams together for the first time. Harry Kipke is taking up where Tad Wieman left off at the University of Michigan, while Sam Willamans, for three years assistant coach at Ohio State, is filling the post made vacant when Dr. John W. Wilce retired at the Buckeye university.

Both of the new coaches are "home grown" boys. Willaman learned the game at Ohio State under the coaching of Wilce and then stepped right out into the coaching field. He was head coach at Iowa State college before returning to his alma mater as assistant to Wilce.

Kipke, noted for his ability to drop punts where ever he wanted them, was one of the greatest backfield men ever turned out at Michigan. He was chosen for the All-American team in 1922 and mentioned by many critics for a berth on the 1923 team. After his playing days he coached at several schools. Last year he directed the Michigan State eleven.

Both coaches know their football, and though each faces a hard schedule of five conference games, their teams can be factors in this fall's championship race.

Michigan faces Purdue, Ohio State, Illinois, Minnesota and Iowa. Ohio State meets Iowa, Michigan, Indiana, Northwestern and Illinois.

Odessa Plans New Nine-Hole Course

ODESSA, Sept. 24 (Special)—A new nine-hole golf course is to be built here this fall according to an announcement today. The course is to be built by C. L. Flack of this city and is to be supported by a club of local business men.

The course will have a total yardage of 3240, par 36, and is to be one of the sportiest in this section, according to the present plans. The work is starting immediately on the fairways and the oiled sand greens will be put in within the month.

SENS STAGING WANING FIGHT

TEAM OUT FROM REAR IN FINAL GAMES OF LEAGUE

BY HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

For a large part of the season Washington provided an enigma of the American League. Picked in the pre-season dope as a club to be feared, the Senators put their backers to shame by starting badly and getting little better as the season progressed.

At the traditional turning point of the season, July 4, the Senators had an average of .382. Ten days later, when they completed the first half of the season, they had won but 30 of the 77 games for a mark of .390.

Start Climb Too Late

Their upward climb did not start until the middle of August, too late to do much good, but since then they have been playing baseball of championship calibre. They still are below the .500 mark but have a firm hold on fifth place and some hope of climbing higher. Yesterday's victory over the Chicago White Sox by a score of 7 to 6 set their record at 69 victories and 77 defeats for an average of .473.

Only one other game was on yesterday's schedule. The St. Louis Cardinals opened a series against western opponents by batting out a 6 to 4 victory over Cincinnati. Chick Hafey, decided the game in the eighth inning by driving out his 26th home run of the year with Bottomley on base. On the mound, Fred Frankhouse was more effective than Cincinnati's recruit, Ben Frey. The victory brought the Cards back to their usual place in the standing with a .500 average.

SINCLAIR'S TRAINER DIES

NEW YORK, Sept. 24 (AP)—Sam Hildreth, trainer for Harry F. Sinclair's Rancocas stable, died today in Fifth Avenue hospital. He was 68 years old.

TECH PLAYERS BEARING DOWN

INTENSIVE TRAINING TO TAPER OFF FOR THE WAYLAND TILT

Following a varied workout Monday afternoon, the Tech grid candidates settled down to intensive training today, with only three days between them and the opening game of the season here Saturday with the Wayland College Jackrabbits.

Spurred by the unexpected strength shown by the Baptists last week, the Matadors resumed training Monday with their efforts trained on one objective—that of turning back the Rabbits, who last Friday battled the Canyon Buffs off their feet in a scoreless tie game.

New Plays Practiced

Practice was begun Monday on defensive tactics in addition to a pair of new plays that are likely to be used against the invaders. Indications are that the Matadors will open up the works Saturday when they line up opposite the Rabbits.

Extra time was used in Monday's practice in running down on punts and lining up for the kickoff. Buddy Brothers is likely to do the kicking for the locals in their opening game.

No captain has yet been named to take the place vacated by Vaughn Corley, who left the squad to take a coaching position at Las Cruces, N. M.

ROVING THE SPORTS WORLD

WITH ALLAN CARNEY
JOURNAL SPORTS EDITOR

A great week is in store for the sport customers. Beginning Wednesday, events will come off in all departments of sports, furnishing enough variety to please the most exacting.

Tomorrow in Birmingham, the Dallas Steers, Texas League champions, and the Birmingham Barons Barons begin the annual struggle for the Dixie Series title. After two games in the Alabama city, the teams will move to Dallas to resume hostilities.

Thursday night at the Yankee Stadium, New York City, Tommy Loughran, who recently abducted the throne of the light heavyweights, will enter the class of the top-notchers ir his bout with Jack Sharkey, the gob from Boston. The "wise money" appears to be backing the tsalkative sailor, but unless Jack comes out of his coma before the gong rings, Tommy is likely to give him a neat boxing lesson.

Sharkey has been given to lapsing into a stage of forgetfulness when his important fights come off. He forgets that he is supposed to fight when he steps into the ring and the result is a listless performance. With Sharkey at his best, Loughran is liable to be knocked goofy, but otherwise, Tommy can outpoint him and take the match.

When the Dixie Series opens Wednesday, the baseball fans of Lubbock will be given the game on the Avalanche-Journal's baseball playboard, play by play. The same service will be given on each succeeding day. World Series games will likewise be broadcast in front of this labor temple on Texas Avenue.

A pair of football games will climax the week of activities. On Friday afternoon at the Tech grid arena, Lubbock Westerners will play hosts to Coach Finis Vaughn and the Crosbyton Chiefs. And then on Saturday, Coaches Grady Higginbotham and Victor Payne will present the 1929 edition of the Texas Tech Matadors in an opening act entitled, "Jackrabbit Meat." Coach Frank Kimbrough and his Wayland College gridders will carry villian rolls.

Action a'plenty is promised fans in these games this week. Crosbyton is bringing one of the most aggressive Class B clubs on the Plains to battle the Westerners and at the same time Coach Henry Frnka has promised that the Lubbock gridmen will be sent into the fray with instructions to "open up." News from various sections of the many upsets that have occurred this season has caused the local mentors to take no chances in preparing for the invasion of the Chiefs.

While most of the baseball fans are speculating as to the outcome of the impending world series, Connie Mack and his merry men are scratching their respective heads over the question as to which of the club's two hurling aces to start against the slugging Cubs in the opener at Chicago on Oct. 8. The fact that Manager McCarthy presents an almost solid lineup of righthand batters naturally has made the grand old man hesitate about starting a southpaw. Most of the experts believe that Earnshaw with dazzling speed can stop the Bruins, yet Mack faces the obligation of giving his southpaw ace a chance to win two games in a world series. Despite the old Spanish custom of throwing righthanders at righthanded batters and vice versa, the Philadelphia pilot isn't convinced that Grove can't turn back the McCarthymen.

Baseball Disappointments of 1929

A Few Players Who in 1928 Showed Promise Of Doing Big Things in a Large Way Have Failed to Come Up to Expectations. Causing Much Grief to Fans and Managers

Giant Catcher Shanty Hogan . . . a find a few years ago . . . fine last year . . . fined for errors this year.

Brooklyn Shortstop Glenn Wright . . . His lame shoulder disappointed Manager Uncle Robby.

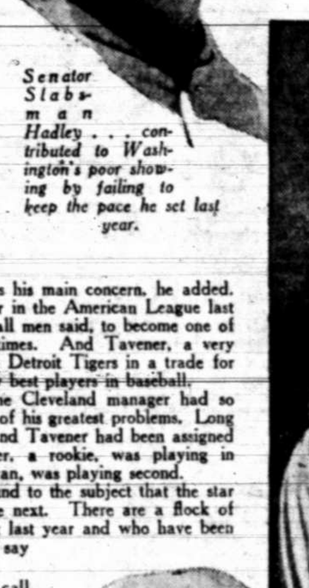

Rookie Outfielder Dick Porter . . . A great Oriole, he proved to be a poor Indian.

White Sox Hurler Thomas . . . His bosses thought he'd win plenty of ball games this year . . . but opposing batsmen found him for 166 hits in 25 games.

Promising Shortstop Tommy Thevenow . . . An auto smash in Florida robbed him of a big chance.

Senator Slabman Hadley . . . contributed to Washington's poor showing by failing to keep the pace he set last year.

Giant Pitcher Joe Genewich . . . McGraw expected big things of him this year, but Joe failed to come through. (U. & U. Photo)

Brown Hurler Crowder . . . Poor rotating of the pitching staff may have contributed to his disappointing showing in 1929.

Giant Moundsman Larry Benton . . . "He's a great pitcher," said McGraw in June . . . "But not this year," the records added.

By HENRY L. FARRELL

"THERE are two positions we shouldn't have to worry about this season," Roger Peckinpaugh, manager of the Cleveland Indians, said in the training camp at New Orleans last spring.

"We have Lind on second, Tavener for short and we can move Joe Sewell over to third base," he said, referring to the new outfielders the club had acquired. Pitching was his main concern, he added.

Carl Lind was the find of the year in the American League last year. He was destined, smart baseball men said, to become one of the greatest second basemen of all times. And Tavener, a very good shortstop, was secured from the Detroit Tigers in a trade for George Uhle, rated as one of the very best players in baseball.

But the two positions in which the Cleveland manager had so much confidence turned out to be two of his greatest problems. Long before mid-season had arrived Lind and Tavener had been assigned to positions on the bench. Gardner, a rookie, was playing in Tavener's place and Hodapp, a veteran, was playing second.

This is a long way of getting around to the subject that the star of one season may be the bust of the next. There are a flock of ball players who were in the spotlight last year and who have been placed on the spot this year, as they say in Chicago.

In the boxing racket you could call them the "busts of baseball," but in the more refined business of baseball it would be more delicate to refer to them as the big disappointments of 1929.

The failure of a number of players to follow their expected form cost the New York Giants any chance they had to win the National League pennant. In the spring it looked as if they had a very excellent chance to win the pennant. John McGraw, manager of the club, thought the same thing. He is not a man to boast but he said in San Antonio:

"I had a good ball club last year and it is improved this year. The infield — Lindstrom, Jackson, Reese, Cohen and Terry is set. The outfield will be improved by the addition of Tony Kaufmann. He can hit. And the pitching will be good. Larry Benton will have another good year."

"Isn't it true," we asked, "that pitchers seldom have two good seasons in succession?"

"It is true," he answered, "except in the case of great pitchers. Benton is a great pitcher."

But Benton wasn't a great pitcher this year. He fell down. So did Joe Genewich. And so did Freddy Lindstrom, who was one of the greatest third basemen in baseball last year.

SHANTY HOGAN, the big Giant catcher, also flopped this year. He was a power in the Giant attack last year and his aggressive spirit was one of the most stimulating influences on the club. This year his play fell off so much that the Giant manager fined him for errors on the field.

When the Giants decided, for a reason that never has been made perfectly clear, to remove Rogers Hornsby from their payroll, he was offered to the Cincinnati Reds.

Jack Hendricks, manager of the Reds, was sent to New York to talk to McGraw about a deal. McGraw wanted to know what the Reds would offer for Hornsby. Hendricks shocked him when he said he wouldn't give a dime for a player who is one of the greatest right-hand hitters in the history of the game.

"I've got a better second baseman than he ever was," Hendricks said. He was referring to Hugh Critz. And he added—"I wouldn't trade Critz for Hornsby even up."

In the spring training camp this year Hendricks spoke again of his great faith in Critz.

"There's one spot that I don't have to worry about," he said.

Commenting more upon the prospects of the Reds in the approaching pennant race, Hendricks said:

"We don't fear any club in the league. If Pete Donohue comes through and pitches as he should we'll have to be beaten for the pennant."

Donohue, for years, has been regarded as one of the best pitchers in the league and he looked good for a big season when he was working out in the training camp at Orlando, Fla.

"Pete is going great and so are the other fellows and I'm not crying like some of those other managers are," Hendricks said.

Donohue didn't come through, however, and Critz didn't play up to his last season's form. The Reds found themselves in a battle to keep out of last place and the Cincinnati customers started yelling for the scalp of the manager and the whole club.

GENIAL Uncle Wilbert Robinson was asked in his training camp about the prospects of his Brooklyn Robins.

"You came down here to laugh at my ball club, I suppose," Robby said to a party of visiting scribes. "Well, if you want to laugh, laugh now, because you won't be laughing at us in September."

Robby was asked why he had a ball club that wouldn't win a laugh.

"There's Dazzy Vance. He's enough," Robby answered. "And there's Glenn Wright we have for shortstop."

Vance has been one of baseball's greatest pitchers. He has been the mainstay of the Brooklyn club for years. He held out during the winter for a salary of $25,000 and he got it. Robby insisted that the club owners pay him what he demanded.

Glenn Wright had been a great shortstop for the Pittsburgh Pirates. One of the best in the game. But he incurred the bad will of the management and the owners and the Pirates sent him to Brooklyn for Jess Petty, a good southpaw pitcher.

It was only natural to assume that Vance and Wright would have a good season and that meant much. Vance was a proved performer and under the fatherly guidance of Uncle Robby it was thought certain that Wright would be the shortstop the club wanted and needed.

Wright, however, came up with a lame shoulder that has defied all medical treatment and he has become a total loss.

Vance also fell far away from his form. He won only seven out of his first 16 games and was knocked out of the box four times in the early season.

One of the most optimistic officials in the training sector last spring was Harry Grabiner, secretary and high mind of the Chicago White Sox.

"We're not going to win the pennant this year," he said. "But we're going some place. We have a young hustling ball club. And a fast one. We'll steal a lot of bases. And we have a lot of hustling spirit.

"We didn't have to bother a lot about getting pitchers. We had enough left over from last year. When a ball club has two pitchers like Thomas and Lyons it has a swell start."

Here were two more who went wrong.

Turning into the three-quarter stretch Lyons had won nine games and lost 13, and Thomas had won and lost the same number. Thomas had been found for 166 hits in 25 games and Lyons had been smacked 185 times in 24 games.

ONE of the best ball clubs in the American League in 1928 was the St. Louis Browns. Their success was due in no small part to the fine pitching of Gray and Crowder.

Gray won 20 games and lost 12. Crowder, doing much better, won 21 games and lost only five.

Dan Howley, the manager of the Browns, is not a celebrated optimist. He is known as "Howling Dan" because he is always anticipating trouble. But in the spring training camp of the Browns at West Palm Beach, Fla., Howley was not pessimistic when speaking of Gray and Crowder.

"Of course," he said, "you never can tell what will happen but I think we'll have the same good pitching this year. We've got a good infield and a good outfield and good catching. And Gray and Crowder will give us good pitching."

"What makes you so sure?" he was asked. "Maybe they'll have an off year."

"No," he replied, "they're great pitchers and they'll come through."

But they didn't pitch in their 1928 form. The team fell down in the race and Howley is to be succeeded as the manager next season, according to the reports.

Howley says that he will not manage the club another season and that he is going to resign before the owners get the chance to give him the gate.

His complaint is that the owners insisted upon interfering with him in the field management of the club. He says that his pitching would have been just as good this year as it was last year if he had been permitted to use his own judgment in the matter of rotating them.

But the records show that Gray and Crowder were disappointments of the season regardless of the cause.

Walter Johnson, taking over the management of the Washington Senators last spring, thought he would get a lot of winning games from Jones and Hadley. And he also had Ad Liska, touted as the greatest prospect from the minor leagues.

"Why are you so confident about Jones and Hadley?" he was asked. "Jones is a rather old fellow and Hadley may have been a flash last year."

"It is true that Jones is no youngster," he replied. "Neither was I for several years. Jones is one of those fellows who takes care of himself. He is always in shape and he can be counted on for the same number of games every year. Hadley is a young fellow with a lot of stuff and he's bound to be better with one more year's experience."

Jones didn't come through, however. Neither did Hadley. And that may be the reason for the disappointing showing made by Washington this year.

Liska didn't live up to advance notices, but that can be pardoned in a very young boy spending his first season in the major leagues.

Dick Porter, rookie outfielder for the Cleveland Indians, was one of the big disappointments of the season. The Cleveland owners bought him from Baltimore where he had starred for years. They paid something like $40,000 for him and he didn't make the varsity team.

He was used occasionally at second base and in the outfield but he was beaten out of a regular job by Eddie Morgan, a young college fellow, who was with the club last year, but it was thought at the start of the season that he would be released to some minor league club.

WHEN the poor Philadelphia Phillies secured Tommy Thevenow from the St. Louis Cardinals last winter they thought they had a great shortstop and they needed one. But Thevenow was a total loss for half the season. And it wasn't his fault. He was almost killed in an automobile smash in Florida. The doctors despaired of his life and said if he did survive he never would be able to play ball again.

But Thevenow came back and went about his job. But it wasn't the kind of a job that he did with the Cards when he was one of the best men at shortstop in the National League. Next season, of course, he may be his old self again.

One of the real disappointments of the season was Henry Johnson, the young New York Yankee pitcher. He was poison to the Philadelphia Athletics last year and beat them so many times he practically kept them from winning the pennant.

Johnson was expected to be one of the stars of the Yank pitching staff this year but he developed a lame back. He remembered that when he was in high school he had injured it playing basketball. Wanting to remain with the team he didn't report the injury at the time and played through with it.

In later years he felt no bad effects but he strained his back early this season and it became so serious the club had to retire him. He is expected to be in shape again by the time the 1930 season opens.

Thought For Today

Ye lust, and have not: ye kill, and desire to have, and cannot obtain; ye fight and war, yet ye have not, because ye ask not.—James 4:2.

Poor in abundance, famished at a feast, manly grief is but his gradeur in disguise, and discontent is immortality.—Young

The Brute

The kidnaping of the textile strike leaders in North Carolina makes dismal reading.

It isn't pleasant to think of that scene by the dark roadside, a man stripped and bound, flogged with sticks and straps by his angry captors, his two companions watching, the three menaced with hanging when they were sufficiently beaten.

The question of the textile strike itself does not enter into this episode. The kidnapping and flogging are things that can arouse only the disgust of decent people.

Yet it will not do to dismiss the affairwork of plug-uglies and back-alley toughs. There were such people in the mob, of course; there are in all mobs. The really discouraging thing about every outbreak of mob violence—the fact that it was, in the main, the work of men who are ordinarily law-abiding and kind-hearted; men who are, in other words, good, average citizens.

Every violent mob is nothing but a collection of such men who have temporarily, under the lash of fear or deep anger, given up all control of their passions and stopped using their reasoning powers.

That is what makes an affair of this kind so disheartening to read about and think about.

Not the display of brutality and senseless rage—but the fact that that brutality and that rage lie so close to the surface in all of us, and can be given free rein on such slight provocation.

You and I can sit back and wring our hands over the action of that North Carolina mob—but are we quite sure that we, ourselves, would not join in a similar mob if the circumstances were right?

Mob violence isn't peculiar to any one state or section. People are much alike everywhere. Every state and every town has its own sorry record. Rouse the fear, the anger, the suspicion or the hatred of men past a certain point, and they will become capable of almost any cruelty, any violence.

Each of us has a devil on the inside—a devil, a wild beast, a volcano—call it what you please. It lurks there along with the nobler elements in human nature. Side by side with the spirit that can create beauty, make sacrifices and toss life away for an intangible cause there exists the brute that can commit horrible excesses.

The barbaric caves of the race's infancy aren't so very far behind us, after all.

That's what every outbreak of mob violence proves. And that's why every outbreak is so profoundly depressing.

The Source

It is a little bit hard to subscribe to Professor Robert E. Rogers' theory that America is becoming an effeminate nation because it has women teaching school.

Most of the schoolmarms of our acquaintance are capable and intelligent young women, as well equipped to impart primary and secondary education to a group of youngsters as anybody you could find. It's hard to believe that their presence in our schoolroom is menacing our nation.

However, we must consider the source of the criticism. Professor Rogers, as you may recall, is the same gifted educator who urged college graduates last spring to pursue success by becoming snobs and seeking to marry the daughters of their respective bosses.

The Colorado banker who got $300,000 from New York banks for the sake of his depositors should be given some kind of rising vote by the newspaper reporters. He is the first one who didn't do it for the wife and kiddies.

THE PLAINSMAN Says

That Girl on Broadway says just because a fellow's a black sheep is no reason that he can pull the wool over other people's eyes.

The Borger Daily Herald, in a front page editorial, has demanded that Ranger Captain Frank Hamer prove his statement that he had found "the worst bit of organized crime in years" at Borger and The Plainsman, for one, is standing by The Herald. The highly heralded investigators endeavoring to shed some light on the identity of the slayer of John A. Holmes, late district attorney, may have found an organized crime trust in the oil boom but if so they haven't done anything about it yet.

For a couple of years after it came into being as a result of the Panhandle oil boom, Borger bore—and doubtlessly was guilty of the reputation—the name of being a "bad town." During the past two years, however, it has been apparent that Borger has cleaned up its back yard. A visit there indicates to the casual observer that the once wild and woolly camp town has settled down and has been making strides toward establishing itself as a decent, prosperous community. Good citizens in Borger—and, while it may surprise you, there are many there—have been working to remove the stain left upon its reputation and while the slaying of Prosecutor Holmes was a lamentable affair The Plainsman is loath to indict the entire community and its official circles with the crime.

If Captain Hamer's allegations are true they need to be followed by official action. If they're not the world and Borger are entitled to know the facts surrounding the case. A statement, no matter who makes it, is not enough unless supported by facts and as the spokesman for its community the Daily Herald is pursuing the right track in demanding concrete evidence of Hamer's remarks.

* * *

That Man on Avenue Q says a born leader is a fellow who can persuade others to do the work while he takes all the glory for himself.

* * *

Calvin and Mrs. Coolidge were a little late for the ceremony yesterday when their son, John, and Florence Trumbull became man and wife. They were later than the majority of the guests because, as the former President expressed it, "We didn't want to be too long around the ceremony."

* * *

Silent, dour and puritanical—as cold in appearance as the cod from his home state Massachusetts, Calvin Coolidge is intensely human. After almost two terms in the White House, after having been in high public office for almost a score of years, his statement indicates clearly that he is still very much like the man in every-day life when it comes to dodging the spotlight. You'd think after all his experiences that to be the center of all eyes would be a matter of "sixes and sevens" to Calvin Coolidge. But his statement tells the world that after all he's just like any other normal father at a wedding of one of his youngsters. "Of course I'll go, because I ought to and because public opinion demands it, but I'd just a little rather not be sticking around!" That's the way most fathers feel—even fathers whose fame has made them world figures and theoretical occupants of a glass house.

There is no hazing at Texas Tech—that is, officially. "Paddles are barred by a stern edict from the Administration building. These statements however won't convince many freshmen that their anatomies will be or are safe from onslaughts of the upper-classmen and The Plainsman is rather glad of it.

* * *

It hasn't been so many years ago that this writer went to college—about as cocky a freshman as ever wore a green cap. A young man who had always had his own way whose four years th high school had been liberally scattered with roses, he soon found himself on the business end of a board not once—but many times. If there ever was a freshman who needed to be whipped it was The Plainsman himself in person and he was whipped—and how! The experience at the time, wasn't so enjoyable to be sure, but it has bourne fruit since and we're here to say that no freshman is going to be seriously hurt by the application of a few raps upon his posterior extremity. Fact of the matter is, that's about the only way to put one in line and keep him there and those who have been subjected to the operations of upper-classmen will heartily agree.

The school of experience matriculates largely the blind, the deaf and the dumb.

* * *

You can tell a woman's character from her mouth—and also from her neighbor's mouths.

The Plainsman is glad Doctor Horn and his cohorts have ruled against hazing and paddling. The edict sounds good to the old folks at home who naturally cringe when they think Willie, their pride and joy, might be injured. But don't take it too seriously folks—don't take it too seriously. As long as there are able-bodied upper-classmen in our colleges the freshmen are going to be paddled—and it'll help make men out of them, too!

HEY! HEY!

"I suppose there is some precious relic in that locket you wear, Lucy."

"Yes, that is a lock of my husband's hair."

"But your husband isn't dead?"

"No, but his hair is long since gone."

The Case Of Mr. Shearer Shows Many Things About The Campaign To Halt Wars, Correspondent Dutcher Claims

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—President Hoover's vigorous attitude toward the naval scandal has demonstrated that he does not fear to speak boldly and forcefully against selfish special interests when popular opinion is unanimously behind him.

Just as importantly, it demonstrates what the taxpayers and the peace workers have been up against in their attempts to reduce both expenses and the danger of war expenses and the danger of war through limitation of armaments.

The man William B. Shearer has been operating these last few years ostensibly as a red-hot 100 per cent American patriot who would save us from destruction allegedly plotted by Great Britain, Japan and a couple of hundred other nations. Mr. Shearer's idea was that if we had the biggest, bestest navy afloat, we would be safe. A novel, pamphlets, newspaper and magazine articles, radio speeches and many personal button holings came from Mr. Shearer in his noble, self-sacrificing effort to put that idea across.

Not So Disinterested

Now it develops from Mr. Shearer's own admission that he was working for some shipbuilding companies which make boats for the navy and would like to make some more. But whereas Mr. Shearer considers his patriotic efforts worth more than $300,000 he has only been paid $51,000 for his big navy propagandizing and he has brought suit for the rest plus expenses. Hoover demanded an explanation from the companies under threat of federal prosecution.

Possibly Mr. Shearer is still on someone's payroll. Just the other day your correspondent received from him a lengthy big navy article from some bellicose retired admiral. The smouldering fires of the town dump have doubtless consumed it by now, but search of the files reveals a masterpiece by Shearer himself of which some description may now prove interesting as showing the frenzies into which the gentleman worked himself during the white heat of his patriotism. This is a 45-page pamphlet published in 1928 after the Geneva conference during the big cruiser fight in which the big navy propagandists and the pacifists met in mortal combat.

The period of patriotic effort for which Mr. Shearer claims $250,000 for services and $59,000 for expenses runs from December, 1927, to March 1929, so presumably part of the $59,000 went to roduce this remarkable booklet.

The title is "The Cloak of Benedict Arnold" and the cover, tastefully done in black and yellow, shows a hairy paw with five vicious talons about to clutch our own capitol dome. The name of the paw is Sedition and the talons are successively inscribel: League Court, Disarmament, Debt Cancellation, Inteornationalism and Pacifism.

Mr. Shearer proceeds to tell about the "Invisible Power" to whose dictates our welfare is being sacrificed.

"It was decided at that round table conference (in London) that the United States must come further under British influce and be destroyed as a sea power," he says. "Great Britain placed her agents in the key positions throughout the world. Every form of propaganda, every medium of education and influence is brought into effect.

"Today these agents are in our midst. The nation is honey-combed with sedirious influence operating to destroy our commercial greatness. Pro-British societities, bankers, lawyers, universities, schools, radio and the pulpit are the voice of England. Many of our leading dailies and magazines are edited by British subjects. Our foreign correspondents are in many cases British or pro-British.

The Invisible Power says: "Under the banner of pink, red and yellow you shall destroy Americanism—it is so written."

See Peril of Communism

After more of the same, Mr. Shearer undertakes to show that, thanks to the British, the Japanese, and the traitors and bolsheviki within our gates, our navy has fallen into a sad state and that unless something is done about it we may be faced with "world-wide communism." Mr. Shearer also gives his own startling version of the Geneva conference, which he attended himself.

The names of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation, the Newport News Shipbuilding and Drydock company or the American Brown Boveri Corporation, which are being sued by Mr. Shearer, did not appear anywhere in the pamphlet.

In 1926 Mr. Shearer wrote a propaganda novel called "Pacifico," dealing with the fictitious discovery by an American, naval officer of a Japanese plot to destroy the United States.

Whether or not Mr. Shearer earned $300,000 and expended $59,000, there is no question that he has worked actively and arduously.

New Air Mail Route Is Being Considered

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 24 (AP)—Postmaster General Walter F. Brown, here on a survey of new air-mail possibilities, announced today that the government is considering establishment of a new air mail line between Los Angeles and Atlanta, Ga. He indicated the service would be started as soon as beacon lights along the route had been erected.

The new route, Brown explained, would effect radical changes in air mail routing between New York and Los Angeles, coast to coast mail going from New York to Atlanta, thence on the new line to Birmingham, Ala., Dallas, Tex., Phoenix, Ariz., and Los Angeles, with a spur trip to San Diego.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—The wagon loads of flowers which are heaped upon the theater stages and in the dressing rooms on opening nights of important plays are almost invariably sent to the sick rooms of Manhattan hospitals.

The star performers, who receive these elaborate tributes, would need a fleet of taxicabs to carry the flowers to their apartments—even if they wanted them all. As a matter of fact the average stage star is grateful that friends sent the overflowing baskets, makes note of the donors and carries home one or two of the bouquets.

But they are aware that, scattered over the city are scores of actors and actresses out of jobs and ill—lonely folk lying in hospitals, to whom one of these casually-tossed gifts would seem fabulously generous.

The invalids seldom know where the flowers came from, since theater attaches dump them upon trucks and order them scattered about in a number of hospitals. At the most recent musical show opening 10 wagon loads of posies were waiting at the stage door at the close of the first act.

Of all the cafes dear to the hearts of Manhattan's latter-day rounders, It was a gathering place for the writers and Bohemians and troubadors of Broadway.

But one figure of this place, which passed with prohibition, about whom scores of legends are built, was George, the blind musician, who took up his stand at the doorway in the evening hours. When the bibulous gents would leave, the street musician would turn on his most sentimental tunes. The spenders, being in fine good humor, would invariably leave handsome rewards in his tin cup.

The point about this particular mendicant that made him different from all others and caused tales to be built about him in after years was that he would take the fat earnings of an evening and join the revelers in the later hours. His income from his stand at the doorway was probably greater than that of many of those sitting about the cafe. And when he entered, the blind man because one of the best spenders in the place. He would order champagne and "set 'em up" at the adjoijning tables.

The mystery plays have been taking such queer turns within the past two seasons that when a man fell dead in the balcony on the opening night of a murder drama the other evening, people seated near him expected this to become part of the scenario.

Some minutes passed before those sitting around him did anything about it. They waited patiently for one of the actors upon the stage to give a cue that would somehow connect this man with the story. When nothing happened, they summoned an usher. It developed that the intense heat had caused the theater-goer's death.

Chinese restaurants on Broadway—and there are more chop suey resorts along the White Way than in several Chinatown combined—are quick to pounce upon any entertainment vogue.

Discovering that certain groups were more than passingly interested in negro spirituals and folk songs, the Chinese have been the first to bring such singers to the Broadway cafes. Whereas, up in Harlem, where one might expect to find spiritual singers, they are hard, indeed, to locate.

Diet and Health

By Lulu Hunt Peters M.D.
Author of "Diet and Health" and "Diet for Children"

DREAMS SELDOM OF LONG DURATION

"Dear Doctor Peters: What causes a person to dream continually at night? As a rule I go to bed early and never eat before going to bed. Am healthy and have a good appetite. I sleep on my right side and have the window wide open. As soon as I fall asleep I start to dream, and in the morning am able to tell everything that occurred during the night. "DREAMER."

It is believed that dreams occur when the sleep is not very profound, and usually just before awakening. Dreams that seem to over hours may really extend over a few moments. The will being dormant, and the imagination vivid, dreams take on strange and grotesque characters.

Analyzing the dream is done by psychiatrists in certain cases to see what trend the mind takes when not under control, so as to get some inkling of the cause of suppressed mental disturbances. Some of the conclusions drawn by the Freudian school of psychiatry seem as absurd as those given old fashioned superstitious dream book—and are believed to be as absurd by other schools of psychiatry!

There is no doubt that we do dream about things that have been suggested some time, the day of the dream or perhaps years back. For instance, the other day I read that Will Rogers said he saw a picture of Helen Wills in her official costume for presentation at the English court, and that he didn't like it. She should get back into her tennis rompers as soon as possible, and tell the queen to call on her! That night I dreamed that the queen asked for an audience with me, and what she wanted was to find out the caloric value of minced clam baked on the shell! I love to dream. I think it's lots of fun to trace them.

I note that you can always relate your dreams. Don't do that, D., if you don't want to dream. Anyway, they are usually a bore to others, don't you know?

Uncomfortable dreams are usually due to discomfort from some cause. (Night terrors of children, and nightmares, are often caused by some physical disorder.) If you are cold, you will dream of freezing, probably, and find that the covers have slipped off. If you are over eating before going to bed, you'll have a nightmare; if you're hungry, you'll probably dream of food. How many banquets I've dreamed of! And often some particular food stands out as exceedingly desirable. The next day I have to have that food, if procurable, so great are the powers of suggestion. I remember once when I was dieting, great juicy slabs of roast beef featured very prominently. I analyzed my diet and found I had been getting insufficient protein over a period.

I don't imagine there is anything for you to worry about, D.

"I am bothered with what are called wild hairs on my eyelids. They look like eyelashes except that they have black roots and grow through my eyelid and scratch the eyeball, and they hurt. Can you give me a remedy that will destroy them or stop them from growing? "J."

If there are only a few of these wild hairs (technical name trichiasis), the only permanent method of destroying the roots is electrolysis. If there are a great number, an operation has to be performed to correct the faulty position of the lashes, for these wild hairs are caused by a little deformity in the eyelash pores which directs them in the wrong way. Until you can have them treated, you will have to pull them out yourself with tweezers, J.

Mrs. L.: The discharge you speak of is not normal, and you should see your physician. Our article on the Hygiene of Women gives the home treatment for this.

EQUAL RIGHTS FOR FOREIGN HUSBANDS URGED

BY SAMUEL DICKSTEIN, Congressman from New York

(Samuel Dickstein was born in Russia, Feb. 5, 1885. Brought to the United States at the age of three, he attended the College of the City of New York, and New York Law school. He was admitted to the bar in 1908. In 1917 he was a member of the board of aldermen of New York City. From 1919 to 1922 he was a member of the New York state house of representatives. He was elected to congress in 1923 from the twelfth New York district, and has been returned each term since. He is a Democrat.

There is no room for argument as to why an American girl who chooses to marry a citizen of another country should not have the right to have her husband in this country with her. We have been discriminating in our immigration laws in a very unsportsmanlike way against women who choose to marry the men of their choice who happen to be born abroad.

Samuel Dickstein

If the prospective husband happens to have been born in Great Britain, it might be possible for that husband to come into this country within a year under our present immigration quota law. But if the husband happens to have been born in Poland it might take from three to four years, and if born in Syria it might take 40 to 45 years.

If a child were born to such parents in Syria, it would take 40 years under the present quota system, for the father to be allowed to come into this country, and then he would have to be in the United States a period of years to become a citizen and the child would be 21 years of age before becoming eligible to admission.

I think that legislation to correct this situation will go through at the regular December session of congress and I hope the woman suffrage and women club organizations will get back of it to help get in onto the statute books. I have never advocated an open door, but I am against the present restriction which would destroy a family.

I am just taking up with the department of labor the case of an American girl who, while on a trip abroad, met and married a foreigner, a man of great culture. Now this American girl finds that if she can get permission to enable her husband to be admitted into this country within five years she will be fortunate.

We are discriminating in favor of one class of citizens, namely, those who happen to have been born in Great Britain, against all those classes who happen to have been born elsewhere in the world. It is a case of discrimination for Great Britain against the world.

President Hoover says the President should be allowed to hang two men every year without giving any reason or explanation. Come now, Mr. Hoover, you surely don't mean that you wouldn't give us some reason!

THE LIFE STORY OF DR. ECKENER

WRITTEN BY HUGH ALLEN FOR NEA SERVICE

Copyright 1929, By NEA Service, Inc.

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS

Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of Zeppelins, educated as a scientist and philosopher, established his home on Friedrischshafen, on Lake Constance, expecting to lead the life of a student and write a book on economics. County Ferdinand Zeppelin, German army officer, who as a volunteer had flown free and captive balloons with the Union Army during the American Civil War, also lived on Lake Constance. In spite of the general belief that his ideas were impracticable, Zeppelin was devoting his time, energy and money in an effort to perfect a rigid balloon, driven by motors. There was little in common between the student from the north and the army officer who was also a dreamer. But their meeting made history.

CHAPTER III

Two men meeting in a garden in quiet Friedrichshafen on a spring day in 1906. One a student and scholar, the other a retired army officer with a dream of conquering the air. One unknown beyond his local community or through occasional profound articles published in the Frankfurter Zeitung under the signature of "Dr. E." The other already known about the world as a man with a queer idea of sailing through the air in a rigid balloon, propelled by motors, but whose progress had been marked largely by wrecks. And the life of the unknown was completely changed by the meeting.

There are many legends about the conversion of Dr. Eckener, leading critic of the Zeppelin—the dramatic event which changed him over from a Saul, scourge of the Church, to a St. Paul, the great apostle.

When Hugo Eckner went to Friedrichshafen to live it was the last thing in his mind that he would ever become associated with Count Zeppelin in building what he himself had termed the "air castles of an air count."

Friedrichshafen was not yet famous as cradle of the Zeppelins. It was a quiet little village fronting on the lake with the Austrian and Swiss Alps opposite it.

Hugo Eckener, born as far north as he could be born on German soil, had, in selecting his home, gone as far south as one could go and still live in Germany.

The warm climate of South Germany was one reason for his decision. The lake itself was the other. Rich as it was in historic memories, scene of many wars running back to tribal days and down through Gustavas Adolphus, since the Rhine, stragetic river of Central Europe, ran entirely through the lake, the lake, the Bodensee, as it was locally called, would also permit the scholar to go sailing again.

The Eckeners made some little stir in Friedrichshafen when they arrived there, the man tall, blond, distinguished, intelligent, contrasting with the shorter, darker southerners. The curious northern clothes of the children seeming to the village folk strange in contrast to the gayer colors of Bavaria and Wurtemburg.

Of these things Hugo Eckener was largely unconscious. Travel, mountain climbing, the lake, his studies, his garden, his writing, these things filled a busy and colorful life. The second chapter of his book was about finished.

That there was under way, almost at his doorstep, the most daring concept in the entire field of engineering, a project requiring faith and fortitude beyond any in the world, largely escaped his notice.

For Count Zeppelin had been born nearby at the city of Constance, had selected Friedrichshafen as the scene of his experiments. It lay in a great dish-shaped basin surrounded by mountains.

And when the experiments of his neighbor were brought to Eckener's attention by one disaster and another disaster, he noticed it in his writing only to criticize it. The thing was impossible.

And yet Count Zeppelin, not knowing it, needed the special abilities which Hugo Eckener could bring to his project. Eckener was perhaps the one man in Europe who was best able to prove Count Zeppelin's conclusions to be sound.

For Eckener was a born navigator, a born seaman, extraordinarily weather wise.

And Zeppelin ships, once built, had to be flown in a new and uncharted medium.

Zeppelin's third ship was destroyed in January, 1906. Eckener wrote an article about the disaster in the Frankfurter Zeitung. His comments are significant.

"The landing," he wrote, "though difficult, was on the whole successful, except that the rear portion struck a tree and was damaged not inconsiderably. But during the night a wind came up and, lifting the ship from the ground a couple of times, dashed it down again so vigorously as to smash up the ribs and make it impossible to fly it back to the hangar. It was decided to dismantle it, and that was quickly done. Exactly 24 hours after this great 20-ton ship had risen and flown so proudly and majestically over the lake, it had become a scattered heap of aluminum and fabric.

"A sad sight for all who knew what hopes and labors had gone into its construction.

"And in the midst of it stood the old Count himself, calmly giving orders for its destruction. Who can conceive how hard it was on this sleepless night for him to witness that sight, when every hammer blow must have struck the innermost part of his being, and the sound of every rending saw have torn his heart? Who can conceive what went through his mind when he saw the dream of a lifetime and the arduous labors of seven long years going to pieces before him?

"But there he stood in full gaze of the silent observing crowd, courageous, unbroken, showing no sign of dismay.

"How great is the human heart daring to oppose all the forces of this world, and how weak in comparison is the work of the human hand which may be torn into pieces by a breath of air."

This comment by Eckener is much less severe than earlier ones. But though the faith and fortitude of Count Zeppelin had impressed him he could still see no practical use for so fragile a vehicle.

The real story of his conversion to lighter-than-air was related by Dr. Eckener himself for the first time in New York at the conclusion of his world flight.

(To Be Continued)

TOMORROW: Dr. Eckener's own description of his first meeting with Count Zeppelin.

Lady Remembered How Cardui Had Helped Once Before, So She Took It Again.

West Asheville, N. C.—"When I was about thirteen years old, I was weak and run-down," writes Mrs. T. J. Ballew, who lives on Oak Street, this city.

"I was pale and under-weight.

"I took a couple of bottles of Cardui at that time. It built me up, and I was much better.

"When I was nineteen years old (this was after my marriage), I again had a breakdown. I was in miserable health. I was very weak. The least thing tired me. I only weighed 105 pounds. My color was bad.

"I remembered what Cardui had done for me once before, so I started taking it again. I gained until I weighed 127 pounds.

"I have a good appetite and feel fine. I certainly praise Cardui."

Thought For Today

Ye lust, and have not: ye kill, and desire to have, and cannot obtain; ye fight and war, yet ye have not, because ye ask not.—James 4:2.

Poor in abundance, famished at a feast, man's grief is but his grudeur in disguise, and discontent is immortality.—Young

The Brute

The kidnaping of the textile strike leaders in North Carolina makes dismal reading.

It isn't pleasant to think of that scene by the dark roadside; a man, stripped and bound, flogged with sticks and straps by his angry captors, his two companions watching, the three menaced with hanging when they were sufficiently beaten.

The question of the textile strike itself does not enter into this episode. The kidnapping and flogging are things that can arouse only the disgust of decent people.

Yet it will not do to dismiss the affair work of plug-uglies and back-alley toughs. There were such people in the mob, of course; there are in all mobs. The really discouraging thing about every outbreak of mob violence—the fact that it was in the main, the work of men who are ordinarily law-abiding and kind-hearted; men who are, in other words, good, average citizens.

Every violent mob is nothing but a collection of such men who have temporarily, under the lash of fear or deep anger, given up all control of their passions and stopped using their reasoning powers.

That is what makes an affair of this kind so disheartening to read about and think about.

Not the display of brutality and senseless rage—but the fact that that brutality and that rage lie so close to the surface in all of us and can be given free rein on such slight provocation.

You and I can sit back and wring our hands over the action of that North Carolina mob—but are we quite sure that we, ourselves, would not join in a similar mob if the circumstances were right?

Mob violence isn't peculiar to any one state or section. People are much alike everywhere. Every state and every town has its own sorry record. Rouse the fear, the anger, the suspicion or the hatred of men past a certain point, and they will become capable of almost any cruelty, any violence.

Each of us has a devil on the inside—a devil, a wild beast, a volcano—call it what you please. It lurks there along with the nobler elements in human nature. Side by side with the spirit that can create beauty, make sacrifices and toss life away for an intangible cause there exists the brute that can commit horrible excesses.

The barbaric caves of the race's infancy aren't so very far behind us, after all.

That's what every outbreak of mob violence proves. And that's why every outbreak is so profoundly depressing.

The Source

It is a little bit hard to subscribe to Professor Robert E. Rogers' theory that America is becoming an effeminate nation because it has women teaching school.

Most of the schoolmarams of our acquaintance are capable and intelligent young women, as well equipped to impart primary and secondary education to a group of youngsters as anybody you could find. It's hard to believe that their presence in our schoolroom is menacing our nation.

However, we must consider the source of the criticism. Professor Rogers, as you may recall, is the same gifted educator who urged college graduates last spring to pursue success by becoming snobs and seeking to marry the daughters of their respective bosses.

The Colorado banker who got $500,000 from New York banks for the sake of his depositors should be given some kind of rising vote by the newspaper reporters. He is the first one who didn't do it for the wife and kiddies.

THE PLAINSMAN Says

That Girl on Broadway says just because a fellow's a black sheep is no reason that he can pull the wool over other people's eyes.

* * *

The Borger Daily Herald, in a front page editorial, has demanded that Ranger Captain Frank Hamer prove his statement that he had found "the worst bit of organized crime in years" at Borger and The Plainsman, for one, is standing by The Herald. The highly heralded investigators endeavoring to shed some light on the identity of the slayer of John A. Holmes, late district attorney, may have found an organized crime trust in the oil boom but if so they haven't done anything about it yet.

For a couple of years after it came into being as a result of the Panhandle oil boom, Borger bore—and doubtlessly was guilty of the reputation—the name of being a "bad town." During the past two years, however, it has been apparent that Borger has cleaned up its back yard. A visit there indicates to the casual observer that the once wild and woolly camp town has settled down and has been making strides toward establishing itself as a decent, prosperous community. Good citizens in Borger—and, while it may surprise you, there are many there—have been working to remove the stain left upon its reputation and while the slaying of Prosecutor Holmes was a lamentable affair The Plainsman is loath to indict the entire community and its official circles with the crime.

If Captain Hamer's allegations are true they need to be followed by official action. If they're not the world and Borger are entitled to know the facts surrounding the case. A statement, no matter who makes it, is not enough unless supported by facts and as the spokesman for its community the Daily Herald is pursuing the right track in demanding concrete evidence of Hamer's remarks.

* * *

That Man on Avenue Q says a born leader is a fellow who can persuade others to do the work while he takes all the glory for himself.

* * *

Calvin and Mrs. Coolidge were a little late for the ceremony yesterday when their son, John, and Florence Trumbull became man and wife. They were later than the majority of the guests because, as the former President expressed it, "We didn't want to be too long around the ceremony."

* * *

Silent, dour and puritanical—as cold in appearance as the cod from his home state Massachusetts, Calvin Coolidge is intensely human. After almost two terms in the White House, after having been in high public office for almost a score of years, his statement indicates clearly that he is still very much like the man in every-day life when it comes to dodging the spotlight. You'd think after all his experiences that to be the center of all eyes would be a matter of "sixes and sevens" to Calvin Coolidge. But his statement tells the world that after all he's just like any other normal father at a wedding of one of his youngsters. "Of course I'll go, because I ought to and because public opinion demands it, but I'd just a little rather not be sticking around." That's the way most fathers feel—even fathers whose fame has made them world figures and theoretical occupants of a glass house.

There is no hazing at Texas Tech—that is officially. Paddles are barred by a stern edict from the Administration building. These statements however won't convince many freshmen that their anatomies will be or are safe from onslaughts of the upper-classmen and The Plainsman is rather glad of it.

* * *

It hasn't been so many years ago that this writer went to college—about as cocky a freshman as ever wore a green cap. A young man who had always had his own way whose four years in high school had been liberally scattered with roses, he soon found himself on the business end of a board not once—but many times. If there ever was a freshman who needed to be whipped it was The Plainsman himself in person and he was whipped—and how! The experience at the time, wasn't so enjoyable to be sure, but it has bourne fruit since and we're here to say that no freshman is going to be seriously hurt by the application of a few raps upon his posterior extremity. Fact of the matter is, that's about the only way to put one in line and keep him there and those who have been subjected to the operations of upper-classmen will heartily agree.

The school of experience matriculates largely the blind, the deaf and the dumb.

* * *

You can tell a woman's character from her mouth—and also from her neighbor's mouths.

The Plainsman is glad Doctor Horn and his cohorts have ruled against hazing and paddling. The edict sounds good to the old folks at home who naturally cringe when they think Willie, their pride and joy, might be injured. But don't take it too seriously folks—don't take it too seriously. As long as there are able-bodied upper-classmen in our colleges the freshmen are going to be paddled—and it'll help make men out of them, too!

* * *

HEY! HEY!

"I suppose there is some precious relic in that locket you wear, Lucy."

"Yes, that is a lock of my husband's hair."

"But your husband isn't dead?"

"No, but his hair is long since gone."

The Case Of Mr. Shearer Shows Many Things About The Campaign To Halt Wars, Correspondent Dutcher Claims

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—President Hoover's vigorous attitude toward the naval scandal has demonstrated that he does not fear to speak boldly and forcefully against selfish special interests when popular opinion is unanimously behind him.

Just as importantly, it demonstrates what the taxpayers and the peace workers have been up against in their attempts to reduce both expenses and the danger of war expenses and the danger of war through limitation of armaments.

The man William B. Shearer has been operating these last few years ostensibly as a red-hot 100 per cent American patriot who would save us from destruction allegedly plotted by Great Britain, Japan and a couple of hundred other nations. Mr. Shearer's idea was that if we had the biggest, bestest navy afloat, we would be safe. A novel, pamphlets, newspaper and magazine articles, radio speeches and many personal button holings came from Mr. Shearer in his noble, self-sacrificing effort to put that idea across.

Not So Disinterested

Now it develops from Mr. Shearer's own admission that he was working for some shipbuilding companies which make boats for the navy and would like to make some more. But whereas Mr. Shearer considers his patriotic efforts worth more than $300,000 he has only been paid $51,000 for his big navy propagandizing and he has brought suit for the rest plus expenses. Hoover demanded an explanation from the companies under threat of federal prosecution.

Possibly Mr. Shearer is still on someone's payroll. Just the other day your correspondent received from him a lengthy big navy article from some bellicose retired admiral. The smouldering fires of the town dump have doubtless consumed it by now, but search of the files reveals a masterpiece by Shearer himself of which some description may now prove interesting as showing the frenzies into which the gentleman worked himself during the white heat of his patriotism. This is a 45-page pamphlet published in 1928 after the Geneva conference during the big cruiser fight in which the big navy propagandists and the pacifists met in mortal combat.

The period of patriotic effort for which Mr. Shearer claims $250,000 for services and $59,000 for expenses runs from December, 1927, to March 1929, so presumably part of the $59,000 went to roduce this remarkable booklet.

The title is "The Cloak of Benedict Arnold" and the cover, tastefully done in black and yellow, shows a hairy paw with five vicious talons about to clutch our own capitol dome. The name of the paw is Sedition and the talons are successively inscribel: League Court, Disarmament, Debt Cancellation, Intecrnationalism and Pacifism.

Mr. Shearer proceeds to tell about the "Invisible Power" to whose dictates our welfare is being sacrificed.

"It was decided at that round table conference (in London) that the United States must come further under British influce and be destroyed as a sea power," he says. "Great Britain placed her agents in the key positions throughout the world. Every form of propaganda, every medium of education and influence is brought into effect.

"Today these agents are in our midst. The nation is honey-combed with sedirious influence operating to destroy our commercial greatness. Pro-British societities, bankers, lawyers, universities, schools, radio and the pulpit are the voice of England. Many of our leading dailies and magazines are edited by British subjects. Our foreign correspondents are in many cases British or pro-British.

The Invisible Power says: "Under the banner of pink, red and yellow you shall destroy Americanism—it is so written'."

See Peril of Communism

After more of the same, Mr. Shearer undertakes to show that, thanks to the British, the Japanese, and the traitors and bolsheviki within our gates, our navy has fallen into a sad state and that unless something is done about it we may be faced with "world-wide communism." Mr. Shearer also gives his own startling version of the Geneva conference, which he attended himself.

The names of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation, the Newport News Shipbuilding and Drydock company or the American Brown Boveri Corporation, which are being sued by Mr. Shearer, did not appear anywhere in the pamphlet.

In 1926 Mr. Shearer wrote a propaganda novel called "Pacifico," dealing with the fictitious discovery by an American naval officer of a Japanese plot to destroy the United States.

Whether or not Mr. Shearer earned $300,000 and expended $59,000, there is no question that he has worked actively and arduously.

New Air Mail Route Is Being Considered

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 24 (AP)—Postmaster General Walter F. Brown, here on a survey of new air-mail possibilities, announced today that the government is considering establishment of a new air mail line between Los Angeles and Atlanta, Ga. He indicated the service would be started as soon as beacon lights alongf the route had been erected.

The new route, Brown explained, would effect radical changes in air mail routing between New York and Los Angeles, coast to coast mail going from New York to Atlanta, thence on the new line to Birmingham, Ala., Dallas, Tex., Phoenix, Ariz., and Los Angeles, with a spur trip to San Diego.

With Swan

NEW YORK, Sept. 24. — The wagon loads of flowers which are heaped upon the theater stages and in the dressing rooms on opening nights of important plays are almost invariably sent to the sick rooms of Manhattan hospitals.

The star performers, who receive these elaborate tributes, would need a fleet of taxicabs to carry the flowers to their apartments—even if they wanted them all. As a matter of fact the average stage star is grateful that friends sent the overflowing baskets, makes note of the donors and carries home one or two of the bouquets.

But they are aware that, scattered over the city are scores of actors and actresses out of jobs and ill—lonely folk lying in hospitals, to whom one of these casually-tossed gifts would seem fabulously generous.

The invalids seldom know where the flowers came from, since theater attaches dump them upon trucks and order them scattered about in a number of hospitals. At the most recent musical show opening 10 wagon loads of posies were waiting at the stage door at the close of the first act.

Of all the cafes dear to the hearts of Manhattan's latter-day rounders, It was a gathering place for the writers and Bohemians and troubadors of Broadway.

But one figure of this place, which passed with prohibition, about whom scores of legends are built, was George, the blind musician, who took up his stand at the doorway in the evening hours. When the bibulous gents would leave, the street musician would turn on his most sentimental tunes. The spenders, being in fine good humor, would invariably leave handsome rewards in his tin cup.

The point about this particular mendicant that made him different from all others and caused tales to be built about him in after years, was that he would take the fat earnings of an evening and join the revelers in the later hours. His income from his stand at the doorway was probably greater than that of many of those sitting about the cafe. And when he entered, the blind man because one of the best spenders in the place. He would order champagne and "set 'em up" at the adjoining tables.

The mystery plays have been taking such queer turns within the past two seasons that when a man fell dead in the balcony on the opening night of a murder drama the other evening, people seated near him expected this to become part of the scenario.

Some minutes passed before those sitting around him did anything about it. They waited patiently for one of the actors upon the stage to give a cue that would somehow connect this man with the story. When nothing happened, they summoned an usher. It developed that the intense heat had caused the theatergoer's death.

Chinese restaurants on Broadway—and there are more chop suey resorts along the White Way than in several Chinatown combined—are quick to pounce upon any entertainment vogue.

Discovering that certain groups were more than passingly interested in negro spirituals and folk songs, the Chinese have been the first to bring such singers to the Broadway cafes. Whereas, up in Harlem, where one might expect to find spiritual singers, they are hard, indeed, to locate.

Diet and Health

By Lulu Hunt Peters M.D.
Author of "Diet and Health" and "Diet for Children"

DREAMS SELDOM OF LONG DURATION

"Dear Doctor Peters: What causes a person to dream continually at night? As a rule I go to bed early and never eat before going to bed. Am healthy and have a good appetite. I sleep on my right side and have the window wide open. As soon as I fall asleep I start to dream, and in the morning am able to tell everything that occurred during the night. "DREAMER."

It is believed that dreams occur when the sleep is not very profound, and usually just before awakening. Dreams that seem to over hours may really extend over a few moments. The will being dormant, and the imagination vivid, dreams take on strange and grotesque characters.

Analyzing the dream is done by psychiatrists in certain cases to see what trend the mind takes when not under control, so as to get some inkling of the cause of suppressed mental disturbances. Some of the conclusions drawn by the Freudian school of psychiatry seem as absurd as those given old fashioned superstitious dream book—and are believed to be as absurd by other schools of psychiatry!

There is no doubt that we do dream about things that have been suggested some time, the day of the dream or perhaps years back. For instance, the other day I read that Will Rogers said he saw a picture of Helen Wills in her official costume for presentation at the English court, and that he didn't like it. She should get back into her tennis rompers as soon as possible, and tell the queen to call on her! That night I dreamed that the queen asked for an audience with me, and what she wanted was to find out the caloric value of minced clam baked on the shell! I love to dream. I think it's lots of fun to trace them.

I note that you can always relate your dreams. Don't do that, D., if you don't want to dream. Anyway, they are usually a bore to others, don't you know?

Uncomfortable dreams are usually due to discomfort from some cause. (Night terrors of children, and nightmares, are often caused by some physical disorder.) If you are cold, you will dream of freezing, probably, and find that the covers have slipped off. If you are over eating before going to bed, you'll have a nightmare; if you're hungry, you'll probably dream of food. How many banquets I've dreamed of! And often some particular food stands out as exceedingly desirable. The next day I have to have that food, if procurable, so great are the powers of suggestion. I remember once when I was dieting, great juicy slabs of roast beef featured very prominently. I analyzed my diet and found I had been getting insufficient protein over a period.

I don't imagine there is anything for you to worry about, D.

"I am bothered with what are called wild hairs on my eyelids. They look like eyelashes except that they have black roots and grow through my eyelid and scratch the eyeball, and they hurt. Can you give me a remedy that will destroy them or stop them from growing? "J."

If there are only a few of these wild hairs (technical name trichiasis), the only permanent method of destroying the roots is electrolysis. If there are a great number, an operation has to be performed to correct the faulty position of the lashes, for these wild hairs are caused by a little deformity in the eyelash pores which directs them in the wrong way. Until you can have them treated, you will have to pull them out yourself with tweezers, J.

Mrs. L.: The discharge you speak of is not normal, and you should see your physician. Our article on the Hygiene of Women gives the home treatment for this.

EQUAL RIGHTS FOR FOREIGN HUSBANDS URGED
BY SAMUEL DICKSTEIN, Congressman from New York

(Samuel Dickstein was born in Russia, Feb. 5, 1885. Brought to the United States at the age of three, he attended the College of the City of New York, and New York Law school. He was admitted to the bar in 1908. In 1917 he was a member of the board of aldermen of New York City. From 1919 to 1922 he was a member of the New York state house of representatives. He was elected to congress in 1923 from the twelfth New York district, and has been returned each term since. He is a Democrat.

There is no room for argument as to why an American girl who chooses to marry a citizen of another country should not have the right to have her husband in this country with her. We have been discriminating in our immigration laws in a very unsportsmanlike way against women who choose to marry the men of their choice who happen to be born abroad.

Samuel Dickstein

If the prospective husband happens to have been born in Great Britain, it might be possible for that husband to come into this country within a year under our present immigration quota law. But if the husband happens to have been born in Poland it might take from three to four years, and if born in Syria it might take 40 to 45 years.

If a child were born to such parents in Syria, it would take 40 years under the present quota system, for the father to be allowed to come into this country, and then he would have to be in the United States a period of years to become a citizen and the child would be 21 years of age before becoming eligible to admission.

I think that legislation to correct this situation will go through at the regular December session of congress and I hope the woman suffrage and women club organizations will get back of it to help get it on to the statute books. I have never advocated an open door, but I am against the present restriction which would destroy a family.

I am just taking up with the department of labor the case of an American girl who, while on a trip abroad, met and married a foreigner, a man of great culture. Now this American girl finds that if she can get permission to enable her husband to be admitted into this country within five years she will be fortunate.

We are discriminating in favor of one class of citizens, namely, those who happen to have been born in Great Britain, against all those classes who happen to have been born elsewhere in the world. It is a case of discrimination for Great Britain against the world.

President Hoover says the President should be allowed to hang two men every year without giving any reason or explanation. Come now, Mr. Hoover, you surely don't mean that you wouldn't give us some reason!

THE LIFE STORY OF DR. ECKENER

WRITTEN BY HUGH ALLEN FOR NEA SERVICE

Copyright 1929, By NEA Service, Inc.

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS

Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of Zeppelins, educated as a scientist and philosopher, established his home on Friedrichshafen, on Lake Constance, expecting to lead the life of a student and write a book on economics. County Ferdinand Zeppelin, German army officer, who as a volunteer had flown free and captive balloons with the Union Army during the American Civil War, also lived on Lake Constance. In spite of the general belief that his ideas were impracticable, Zeppelin was devoting his time, energy and money in an effort to perfect a rigid balloon, driven by motors. There was little in common between the student from the north and the army officer who was also a dreamer. But their meeting made history.

CHAPTER III

Two men meeting in a garden in quiet Friedrichshafen on a spring day in 1906. One a student and scholar, the other a retired army officer with a dream of conquering the air. One unknown beyond his local community or through occasional profound articles published in the Frankfurter Zeitung under the signature of "Dr. E." The other already known about the world as a man with a queer idea of sailing through the air in a rigid balloon, propelled by motors, but whose progress had been marked largely by wrecks. And the life of the unknown was completely changed by the meeting.

There are many legends about the conversion of Dr. Eckener, leading critic of the Zeppelin—the dramatic event which changed him over from a Saul, scourge of the Church, to a St. Paul, the great apostle.

When Hugo Eckner went to Friedrichshafen to live it was the last thing in his mind that he would ever become associated with Count Zeppelin in building what he himself had termed the "air castles of an air count."

Friedrichshafen was not yet famous as cradle of the Zeppelins. It was a quiet little village fronting on the lake with the Austrian and Swiss Alps opposite it.

Hugo Eckener, born as far north as he could be born on German soil, had, in selecting his home, gone as far southeast as one could go and still live in Germany.

The warm climate of South Germany was one reason for his decision. The lake itself was the other. Rich as it was in historic memories, scene of many wars running back to tribal days and down through Gustavas Adolphus, since the Rhine, stragetic river of Central Europe, ran entirely through the lake, the lake, the Bodensee, as it was locally called, would also permit the scholar to go sailing again.

The Eckeners made some little stir in Friedrichshafen when they arrived there, the man tall, blond, distinguished, intelligent, contrasting with the shorter, darker southerners. The curious northern clothes of the children seeming to the village folk strange in contrast to the gayer colors of Bavaria and Wurtemburg.

Of these things Hugo Eckener was largely unconscious. Travel, mountain climbing, the lake, his studies, his garden, his writing, these things filled a busy and colorful life. The second chapter of his book was about finished.

That there was under way, almost at his doorstep, the most daring concept in the entire field of engineering, a project requiring faith and fortitude beyond any in the world, largely escaped his notice.

For Count Zeppelin had been born nearby at the city of Constance, had selected Friedrichshafen as the scene of his experiments. It lay in a great dish-shaped basin surrounded by mountains.

And when the experiments of his neighbor were brought to Eckener's attention by one disaster and another disaster, he noticed it in his writing only to criticize it. The thing was impossible.

And yet Count Zeppelin, not knowing it, needed the special abilities which Hugo Eckener could bring to his project. Eckener was perhaps the one man in Europe who was best able to prove Count Zeppelin's conclusions to be sound.

For Eckener was a born navigator, a born seaman, extraordinarily weather wise.

And Zeppelin ships, once built, had to be flown in a new and uncharted medium.

Zeppelin's third ship was destroyed in January, 1906. Eckener wrote an article about the disaster in the Frankfurter Zeitung. His comments are significant.

"The landing," he wrote, "though difficult, was on the whole successful, except that the rear portion struck a tree and was damaged not inconsiderably. But during the night a wind came up and, lifting the ship from the ground a couple of times, dashed it down again so vigorously as to smash up the ribs and make it impossible to fly it back to the hangar. It was decided to dismantle it, and that was quickly done. Exactly 24 hours after this great 20-ton ship had risen and flown so proudly and majestically over the lake, it had become a scattered heap of aluminum and fabric.

"A sad sight for all who knew what hopes and labors had gone into its construction.

"And in the midst of it stood the old Count himself, calmly giving orders for its destruction. Who can conceive how hard it was on this sleepless night for him to witness that sight, when every hammer blow must have struck the innermost part of his being, and the sound of every rending saw have torn his heart? Who can conceive what went through his mind when he saw the dream of a lifetime and the arduous labors of seven long years going to pieces before him?

"But there he stood in full gaze of the silent observing crowd, courageous, unbroken, showing no sign of dismay.

"How great is the human heart

daring to oppose all the forces of this world, and how weak in comparison is the work of the human hand which may be torn into pieces by a breath of air.

This comment by Eckener is much less severe than earlier ones. But though the faith and fortitude of Count Zeppelin had impressed him he could still see no practical use for so fragile a vehicle.

The real story of his conversion to lighter-than-air was related by Dr. Eckener himself for the first time in New York at the conclusion of his world flight.

TOMORROW: Dr. Eckener's own description of his first meeting with Count Zeppelin.

idge occupant of the White House used to advantage the hand-shaking technique developed in his most recent official capacity in greeting the long line of guests at the wedding reception.

He also consented to pose for photographs, but when he detected a lump in the oriental rug on which he was standing, he suspected it was caused by a microphone belonging to one of the news reel men.

"What's that thing?" he said. "Take it away."

The microphone was removed, and the pictures were taken without sound.

BORGER TROUBLE

ant J. B. Wheatley, returned from a trip to Amarillo and Pampa last night. They said their questioning of persons they though might be able to shed light on the assassination had been fruitless.

The liquor cases in which the Rangers were to testify resulted from a series of raids last July, in which 12 men and two women were arrested. Data Holmes had obtained in the cases still was missing.

OWNBEY SAYS HE WAS MISQUOTED ON DENIAL

BORGER, Sept. 24 (AP)—Sheriff Joe Ownbey said today he had been misquoted last night in dispatches which said the sheriff characterized as a "lie" the report of Ranger Captain Hamer to Governor Moody that he had found "the worst bit of organized crime" in Borger he had seen in years.

Mr. Ownbey said today his assertion "its a lie" was in reference to a previous statement by Hamer that city and county officials were implicated in a conspiracy. He declared he had not commented on Hamer's report to the governor.

of several hundred citizens heard the Lubbock high school band's concert and the speech by Mayor Harley D. Woods.

Gould Welcomes Visitors

In welcoming the visitors W. J. Gould, president of the Plainview Chamber of Commerce, thanked Lubbock for cooperation during the recent dairy show in this city and assured the delegation that Plainview would be well represented at the Panhandle-South Plains Fair.

School children are greeting the caravan in every city.

J. P. Nystel, secretary of the Abernathy Chamber of Commerce, welcomed Lubbock into that city, and J. J. Clements responded. The Abernathy band was playing as the delegation arrived. Mr. Nystel explaining that Abernathy had planned to give the trippers a good start.

Hale Center Turns Out

Mayor Acheson and L. W. Sonaker, superintendent of schools, welcomed the emissaries into Hale Center. R. J. Murray and Tom White responded.

At Olton H. P. Webb, superintendent of schools, delivered the welcome address, to which H. W. Richardson responded.

Robert L. Ellison, of Hunt grocery store, and J. C. Jenkins, of the Ellwood Clinic, are evoking considerable laughter with their clowning antics in each city. They play and sing in humorous fashion.

The Lubbock high school band, under direction of H. A. Anderson, has added much interest to the trip.

Fair Season Tickets Are Placed On Sale

"A season ticket will buy more this year than ever before in the history of the Panhandle South Plains fair," says B. C. Dickinson, president of the fair association. "For only $2.50," he continued, "an adult is entitled to see all the attractions, including the football games, fireworks display, six comedy acts, etc., during the full six days. Season ticket for a child costs but $1. After passing the gate, all attractions are positively free, with exception of those presented by carnival concession stands."

Tickets are on sale at the fair association headquarters and at stores throughout the city.

CHINESE TROUBLE

cribed a serious conflict between Chinese police and Japanese railway guards of the South Manchurian railway 40 miles north of Mukden in which three Japanese guards were wounded. A battalion of Japanese rushed to the scene, disarmed all policemen and arrested those responsible for the incident.

Russia Threatens

Soviet Russia threatens to adopt a policy of forceful action to settle the three-month dispute over administration of the Chinese Eastern railway, according to a Japanese newspaper which stated L. M. Karakhan, Soviet vice-commissar, who has been handling the Manchurian quarrel, had declared that unless the present impasse was successfully negotiated within two months Russia would assume control of the strategic railway by force.

To the south in the heart of China, however, a more immediately serious situation may develop, although only yesterday Nanking authorities insistently denied reports of civil war, President Chiang Kai-Shek ordered a trusted division of troops into Nanking. While other troops, artillery and airplanes pressed on against the rebel General Chiang Fah Kwei, commander of the irredoubtable "Ironsides" of the Fourth Cantonese division.

STEAMER ARRIVES WITH BOMBARDMENT STORY

HANKOW, Sept. 24 (AP).—Badly battered, the steamer Kiangchiing arrived here today bringing news of a disastrous blow suffered by the nationalist government forces at the hands of General Chang Fah Kwei's revolting "Ironsides" 4th Cantonese division.

Three ships transporting nationalist troops from Hankow were nearing Ichang on September 19 when they were heavily shelled. More than 50 men were killed and hundreds wounded. Altogether 5,000 nationalist troops and considerable munitions were captured by the "Ironside" troops. Two ships were captured and the third permitted to return to Hankow.

TAX REDUCTION

$271,000,000. In addition, the treasury expects to collect approximately $500,000 income tax when the December payments are made.

Income Taxes Mount

With continued business prosperity experts feel income taxes will keep on mounting and equal if not pass those of the last year. It has been the experience of the government that each time taxes have been reduced, collections have been substantially increased through withdrawal of funds from tax-exempt securities and their investment in other lines.

While not predicting that the prospective tax cut to be proposed in December would be of the $300,000,000 variety, officials said it would be large, as present indications are the government will end the fiscal year June 30 with a surplus of more than $200,000,000 as compared with $184,000,000 last year.

Incomes Change Total

The income payments, which changed a predicted government deficit into a surplus last year, are counted on to continue high when returns for this calendar year are received next March. Last March, the income tax receipts amounted to $601,363,804. The June payments totaled $555,256,508 and the September payments up to September 20 have aggregated $491,628,627, with ten days yet to be reported.

NAVAL PROBE

was present and was permitted to participate in questioning the board members.

McNary Explains

In opening the hearing, Chairman McNary explained that it was customary to call appointees for important offices to examine their qualifications.

Chairman Legge then was called to testify. In response to questioning from McNary, he said he had served as head of the International Harvester company and that prior to his work with that concern he had long been connected with agricultural pursuits, principally livestock. He said he held a small fraction of one per cent of stock in the Harvester company, adding he had no connection whatever with any grain exchange but he had a few shares in railroad companies.

Outlines General Program

Under further questioning by Chairman McNary the witness outlined the general program of the board.

Asked if the board had been set up to take care of this year's crop, Legge replied:

"To some extent. We cannot do everything in sixty days. Some folks think we ought to build a lot of elevators and so on, but our time has not been long."

McNary inquired whether the board required co-operatives to exhaust their own sources of credit before $500,000,000 farm relief fund would be used.

Legge said no such rule had been definitely laid down, but at the present time all the board felt it could was to make supplemental loans except in a few cases.

WEEKLY CABLE REVIEW

By SAVINGTON CRAMPTON
Cable Editor Associated Press

The movement for disarmament is beginning in earnest, and Prime Minister MacDonald, sailing from England on September 28 to visit President Hoover, may find the road to international reduction of armaments is longer and rougher than the journey across the Atlantic.

With Great Britain and the United States separated by a small margin on agreement on their respective naval forces, France made plain last week the work of the five-power conference, at the back of the minds of the statesmen at Washington, will not be easy.

Franc Steps In

France placed the League of Nations squarely in the path of the American president and the British prime minister. Anything achieved at Washington, or at London later, if the five-power conference is held there next January, is for France but a step towards an interunder the auspices of the league. She would like this meeting to consider all armaments, air and military as well as naval.

Issues between the five important naval powers are many and complicated. On the subject of submarines, where England and America alone could swiftly reach an accord, France, Italy and, to a less extent, Japan stand opposed to the Anglo Saxon viewpoint. All three will fight to keep their submarines.

Topics Debated

In the capital of the League of Nations, three important topics were debated last week.

A committee of eleven was appointed to report to the 11th assembly on bringing the covenant of the League into harmony with the Kellogg-Briand pact outlawing war.

A program comprising five successive steps was arranged for the proposed world economic conference, designed to lower international tariff barriers.

Reserve Question Touchy

France and England clashed in the disarmament committee when Lord Cecil brought up the limitation of trained army reserves, on which France is very touchy. The dispute was buried in a "compromise resolution," which postponed a decision.

Great Britain, France, Czechoslovakia, Peru, India, South Africa, Canada and New Zealand signed the optional clause of the world court statute, accepting compulsory arbitration of the court.

British Troops Leave

Meanwhile, history was being made in the Rhineland where British troops began the evacuation which, by next June, will have removed every allied soldier from German soil. The departure was made without demonstration on either side.

FELT SO WEAK, EASILY TIRED

West Asheville, N. C.—"When I was about thirteen years old, I was weak and run-down," writes Mrs. T. J. Bailey, who lives on Oak Street, this city.

"I remembered what Cardui had done for me once before, so I started taking it again. I gained until I weighed 127 pounds.

"I have a good appetite and feel fine. I certainly praise Cardui."

LAW ENFORCEMENT CHARGES FLARE UP IN SENATE AT CAPITOL

MOVEMENT IS ON FOR STRINGENCY IN AREA'S LAWS

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—The latest flareup over law enforcement conditions in the national capital, ignited last week by Senator Howell, republican, Nebraska, who said the prohibition law could be enforced here if President Hoover insisted upon it, developed further today with two more senators and Prohibition Commissioner Doran participating.

Senator Blease, democrat, South Carolina, charged on the floor of the senate Monday that there were "four narcotic joints" operating within a few blocks of the capitol on Pennsylvania avenue with the knowledge of "people whose duty it is to stop it." He added there was reason to believe that "higher ups" were preventing the grand jury from acting on four narcotic cases presented to it several months ago.

Heflin Makes Charge

Reaching beyond the limits of Washington, Senator Heflin, democrat, Alabama, asserted that the traffic in narcotics was "running into hundreds of millions of dollars," and he charged the law was not enforced because "officers hold their hands behind them and accept fees from the smugglers."

Denial that Washington is one of the wet spots of the country because dry agents are lax in their activities was made by Commissioner Doran. He said the agents were doing as good work here as in any place in the country and that conditions in the capital were on a par with those in other parts of the nation.

Movement Renewed

A movement was renewed to obtain a prohibition law for the capital that would permit all policemen to make arrests for violation of the liquor law. City officials charged with enforcement refused to enter the controversy and would comment neither upon Senator Howell's attack nor upon the reply from the White House, made yesterday, asking for specific information of violations, and assuring the senafor that the president purported to make Washington a model for the country.

Commissioner Doran was among those advocating more stringent liquor laws comparable to those enacted in all but two of the states. Only specifically designated officers may make liquor arrests, and Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of police, while declining to comment on the Howell remarks, said there were 33 members of his department vested with authority as special prohibition agents.

INSANITY CLAIMS NARCOTIC ADDICT

Voice waned to a tone scarcely audible, his body shrunk and pallid, conceptions of right and wrong shattered, denying the existence of a God, cursing daylong, asserting that he has no relatives and no name—a victim in the hopeless stages of narcotic influence was removed today from the Lubbock county jail to the hospital for insane in Wichita Falls. He was adjudged insane by a jury in county court yesterday afternoon.

Taken from the clothing of the 40-year-old unfortunate were several boxes of dope on which was the name of Walter Nitchel, the only identification.

YOUNG BANK PLAN DOWNED

LEAGUE OF NATIONS IS OPPOSED TO UNION WITH PLAN

(By Associated Press)

GENEVA, Sept. 24—The League of Nations will not seek, for the present, to establish a close relationship between itself and the interbational reparations bank provided by the Young plan.

This became clear today when a resolution on an intimate connection between the two was withdrawn from consideration in the committee that deals with economic questions. Its authors, Norway and Denmark, in withdrawing were believed to have gained part of their purpose.

Signal of Countries

Their move was interpreted in some quarters as a signal by the countries not concerned directly with reparations payments that they will not be greatly pleased if the proposed bank seeks to assume too dominant a function in the economic life of Europe.

The solid opposition of the countries receiving reparations discouraged further agitation of the proposal.

Speaking for France, Great Britain, Gelgium, Italy and Japan, Louis Loucheur, French cabinet minister, declared adoption of the Norwegian idea would be dangerous to the chances for organizing the bank. It was suggested by some observers that M. Loucheur might also be representing influential sentiment in the United States.

The situation of the bank already was complicated, and the effort of the league to take a hand in the organization and operation might prove disastrous.

Police Commissioner Grover A. Whalen announced recovery of the securities when he arrived at police headquarters with them shortly before midnight.

A substitute carrier found the package, which resembled a waste paper package, in a mail box on the east side and first thought of throwing it away, but finally took it to the postoffice.

From The Mountains of Central America

Come Coffees Unlike Any Known Before!

Never "thin" or "flat"—

Experts agree that this rare flavor is not duplicated anywhere else in the world

EVERYWHERE women are talking of a rare, full-flavored coffee that is never "thin" or "flat." A coffee utterly unlike any they had known before.

It comes from the high volcanic mountains of Central America, a region that produces coffees with a rare tang and mellow, full-bodied flavor that, experts agree, is different from any other known.

Unlike All Others

Ordinarily when you change from one brand of coffee to another, you note little difference in taste. That is because 70% of all coffee sold in the United States today (regardless of brand name) is of one common flavor, grown in the same general region. So-called "blending" and special roasting processes (in spite of advertising talk) can not change it. For roasting coffee merely brings out whatever flavor Nature has already put in.

It is a different type of coffee that makes Folger flavor different—the rare mountain coffees of Central America. The instant you break the seal of the vacuum can, there is a rush of rich fragrance unlike any coffee you have ever tried before. And when you pour the clear amber coffee in the cup, you'll find it has a rare tang and mellow richness beyond compare.

Testing Coffee Flavor

Get a pound of Folger's Coffee from your grocer today. Drink it tomorrow morning. The next morning drink the coffee you have been using. The third morning drink Folger's again. Then decide which you like best. If, for any reason, you do not choose Folger's, your grocer will gladly refund the full purchase price. We will pay him. That's fair, isn't it? You risk nothing—so why not order Folger's now for the test?
