Surprising Rain Falls On County Tuesday Morning

A six weeks dry spell that settled down following the first week in May was broken early Tuesday morning when life-saving precipitation unexpectedly fell over most of the county.

The six weeks drouth had caused the ground to crack open and small grain to mature prematurely, yielding only a light crop.

Storms have chased each other over West Texas during the past week, but it was not until Tuesday morning of this week that clouds yielded enough moisture to provide a respite for moisture hungry farmers and ranchers here. It was not enough to satisfy everyone but will have to do until we get some more

Following are some of the figures collected Tuesday afternoon:

Jaycees Put Over Wrestling Match

A good crowd turned out Tuesday night at the football field for the Wrestling Match staged by Abilene wrestlers and sponsored by the Eldorado Jaycees, of which Rony Kerr is president.

The concession stand took in $268, and gate sales $65 according to preliminary figures Wednesday.

Following settlement of some expenses, it is expected that the Jaycees will have cleared between $225 and $250 to be used for their various civic projects.

ACCEPTS POSITION AT BURNET

Glynn Hill has accepted a position as Vocational Agriculture instructor in the Burnet school system.

He and his family will make their move to Burnet later in the summer as soon as he disposes of his house here and other arrangements are made.

Post Script

Why does it have to be that way?

Here we are praying for rain, and Friday night the black clouds looked ominous, thunder rumbled, lightening flashed! It looked like all hell was about to break loose.

What happened?

Nothing.

It reaffirmed the old adage that Texas has more clouds and less rain than any place in the universe!

What else doesn't it have?

It has more fishermen and less water . . .

More cows and less milk!

It's a wonder how we get along as well as we do.

A ten-year-old attractive little Spanish-American girl came into my office last Wednesday afternoon. She ran her fingers over the stack of new Success papers that were then on sale and then asked:

"Does it tell in here where the free swimming lessons are going to be?"

I had to tell her that no such arrangements had been made.

I drove out there just before 6:00 o'clock Friday evening to find that Lynn Griffin had just arrived and was preparing to start welding on the final joints for the stock pens. Three hours later I went back again to find him finishing the last two welds at that end of the field. It was just twilight when he got through.

Apparently there were no other visitors and he had worked steadily for three full hours without a break.

What would three hours come to at welder's wages?

James Wliliams called me out on his car lot this week to examine a 5-ft. tall "weed"—a volunteer thing that had sprung up next to his old peach tree.

Not knowing what it was, he explained that he had called in Bill Rountree to identify it, but Bill didn't know either. But Bill cut off a sample of it and mailed to one of his state authorities. They reported back that it was a "wild tobacco plant"!

ABOU BEN ADHEM

Abou Ben Adhem (may his tribe increase)
Awoke one night from a deep dream of peace,
And saw, within the moonlight of his room
An Angel writing in a book of gold:

Exceeding peace had made Ben Adhem bold
And to the presense in the room he said,
"What writest thou?" The vision raised its head,
And with a look made of all sweet accord
Answered, "The names of those who love the Lord."

And is mine one? said Abou. "Nay, not so"
Replied the Angel. Abou spoke more low,
But cheerily still; and said, ' pray thee, then,
Write me as one that loves his fellow men"

The Angel wrote, and vanished. The next night,
It came again with a great wakening light
And showed the names whom love of God had blessed,
And lo! Ben Adhem's name led all the rest

How To Achieve More Comfort In Summer

Summer officially arrives on June 21, and the intense hot weather ahead calls for a few simple health rules which can make it more bearable, says the Texas State Department of Health.

First of all, avoid heavy, fat-loaded meals. They are difficult to digest during hot weather. Emphasize fruit and vegetables on your summer menu rather than protein foods—eggs, fish and meat—which your body needs for fuel during winter months.

Perspiration helps cool the body, but at the same time it drains the body of vital fluids. To replace these fluids, drink plenty of water or other liquids. Fruit juices are a pleasant way to make up the loss. But don't gulp down large amounts of ice water when you are overheated.

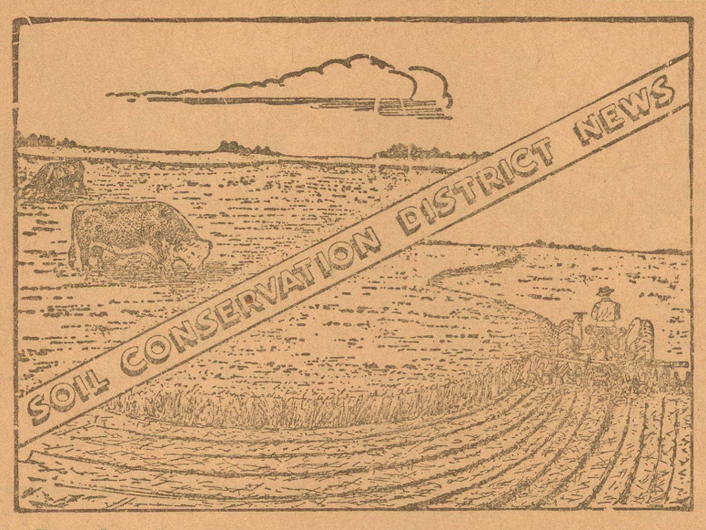

The body also loses salt through perspiration. Replace your salt loss at meals, or if your work or exercise causes you to sweat profusely, take salt tablets, about one every half hour with a glass of water.

Parents can place extra salt in children's diet with salted nuts or crackers plus a little added salt during meals.

Your clothing plays an important role in keeping cool. Loose, light clothing is highly recommended for summertime wear. Normal body temperatures are dependent on the evaporation of sweat.

Avoid wearing clothes that inhibit evaporation. Also, remember that white or light colors are cooler than dark ones, since they do not absorb hot sun rays so readily.

The firemen were called out last Friday morning to a grass fire at O'Harrow's.

The first part of applying and maintaining a conservation cropping system, on their cropland, has already been done by many farmers in the District. Farmers applying and maintaining a conservation cropping system must first plant the crops that are needed in the cropping system. Other factors that are necessary in a conservation cropping system include how crops and their residues are managed and the use of each crop in the system to meet maximum needs.

The rotation of crops has been a common practice of farmers from the time land was first put in cropland. One of the main reasons that crops were rotated was the weed problem. Clean tilled crops, such as cotton, was kept clean of weeds continuously through the year. Other crops, such as corn, was kept free of weeds up until mid-summer. However, corn fields would have a solid stand of weeds and grass by harvest time. To prevent the land from becoming too weedy and so hard to keep clean, crops were rotated. The rotation of crops idid not necessarily mean that a conservation cropping system was being carried out.

To carry out a conservation cropping system crops must be grown in combination with needed cultural and management measures. Cropping systems include the use of rotations that contain high residue and soil improving crops, as well as sequences in which the desired benefits are achieved with the use of such crops.

The purpose of a good conservation cropping system must be fourfold. (1) meet the needs of the soil for improvement or maintenance of good physical conditions; (2) protect the soil during critical periods when erosion usually occurs; (3) aid in the control of weeds, insects and diseases, and (4) fulfill the needs and desires of the farmer for economic return.

Farmers in the Eldorado-Divide Soil and Water Conservation District have the choice of maintaining or improving soil fertility and condition of their land. The choice made and carried out by each farmer does more than keep the soil in the right condition. Crop yields are increased when soil fertility is improved and soils are kept in a good physical condition. When farmers make this important choice, they are in a sense choosing between farming good land or poor land. Few, if any, farmers would choose to farm poor deteriorated soil rather than good soil high in fertility.

Water, one of the most important elements needed for plant growth, is held in the land and conserved for crop use by a good conservation cropping system. However, just as important if not more important, is the water that goes into the underground water supply as a result of being held on the land by conservation practices applied and maintained. This all important water storage can help govern the prosperity and existence of a community. The lack of an adequate supply of water for all uses, can cause a community to cease to exist.

Soil fertility and conditions either improve or becomes depleted as the land is used. Unfortunately, the latter is always the case if the needed management practices are not planned and applied. By applying and maintaining all the needed soil, water and plant conservation practices the land can be kept in its maximum potential and productive condition.

Farmers and ranchers can receive assistance from the Soil Conservation Service in planning and applying the needed conservation practices on their land. Cost-share in applying enduring type conservation practices is available in this District from the Great Plains Conservation Program, administered by the S. C. S. Also, cost-share assistance is available fro mthe Schleicher County A.S.C.S. office.

SIX FLAGS BEGINS SUMMER SCHEDULE

Six Flags Over Texas, the popular theme entertainment center between Dallas and Fort Worth, opened its newest attraction, a 180-foot long stainless steel slide which is attached to the 50-foot level of a 300-foot oil derrick, the tallest in the world. Commented Luann Harrell, left, and Linda Shafer after they completed the run in eight seconds flat, "Wow! It's like going off the top of a five-story building in a blanket."

Arlington, Texas: SIX FLAGS Over Texas commenced its Summer operating schedule and is now open seven days a week from 10:00 A.M. to 10:00 P.M. through Labor Day.

The popular theme entertainment park located between Dallas and Fort Worth just opened its newest attraction, a 300-foot oil derrick, the world's tallest land based oil rig.

Completed at a cost of $750,000 the towering attraction was originally scheduled to open at the beginning of SIX FLAGS 1969 season in mid April. However, a near four month dock strike at the Port of Houston delayed two vital pieces of equipment arriving via ship from Switzerland which was necessary to operate the attraction.

Two elevators capable of carrying 50 passengers each take visitors up to observation levels near the top of the oil rig for a panoramic view of the entire 145-acre Park stretched out below.

At the fifty-foot level of the rig, a 180-foot long 12 lane stainless steel slide is attached.

Visitors can race down the entire 180-foot length of the slide seated upon fiber glass blankets in 8 or 9 seconds flat. The slide is as tall as a five story building.

SIX FLAGS new wild west show entitled "The Cavalcade of the Horse" is now in full swing. Performances are scheduled three times each day with four shows on Saturday in a 1,500 seat arena located in the Texas section.

In mid July, a new ride called the Mini-Mine Train opens. This ride is a smaller version of the very popular Run-A-Way Mine Train and was especially designed for the younger set.

Attendance during the Spring was up 13% and SIX FLAGS anticipates hosting more than 2,000,000 visitors this season.

COUNTY AGENT'S COLUMN

by Tiny Godwin

Schleicher County Agricultural Agent

The most critical time for newly planted trees and shrubs is during the first summer. Because of the reduced root system, many plants have difficulty getting established. This is especially true in areas where rainfall has been abundant, then suddenly it turns hot and dry before the roots are well established. Rather than frequent light watering, give the plants a thorough soaking to a depth of 8-12 inches. Allow the soil to dry in the upper two inches before watering again. A mulch over the root area will aid in moisture conservation and keeping soil temperature down.

If foliage on garden plants is turning a mottled yellow and dropping, chances are good spider mites are at work. Close inspection of the underside of the leaves may reveal a tiny red or red spotted mite. They are common during periods of hot dry weather and can be very damaging to most garden plants.

There are insecticides that will control the spider mites. Malathion is one; use two tablespoons to the gallon of water. If you have a spray you attach to the garden hose these are calibrated to the use of 3 gallons of water if the container is full; therefore, fill only to the amount needed in container 1/3 or 2/3 and add water for the correct amount to spray. Bulletin L-199 Texas Guide For Controlling Ornamental Plants has all your insects and treatments and recommendations. Call the office 2610 and we will be glad to send you a copy.

There are controls for cattle grubs and they work. These livestock pests are the larval stages of the heel fly which annoy cattle during the late winter and early spring.

Losses from heel flies and cattle grubs are many. The instinctive reaction of cattle fleeing heel flies interferes with normal grazing and causes weight and energy losses. The grubs, as they migrate through the animal's body cause annoyance and irritation and compete with the animal for nutrients, resulting in reduced production of meat and milk. Grubby slaughter animals are frequently docked because the carcass-blemishing warbles must be trimmed resulting in meat waste and unattractive, less valuable carcasses. Holes downgrade the value of hides for leather use.

Effective grub control depends upon the proper use of systemic insecticides—chemicals fed or applied to the animal's body which are then distributed through the body tissues to control grubs inside the animal. Best results are obtained when animals are treated as soon as possible after the termination of the heel fly activity and when the grubs are small.

Several chemicals and methods of treatment are available, including dips, sprays or backline pourons. Others can be used as free choice block or granular mix for range animals or others are available which can be used in the animal rations. Certain of these materials also effectively control horn flies, lice and ticks when used in the recommended manner.

Because of the number of insecticides availabl, interested persons may come by my office for copies of MP-961, "Texas Guide for Controlling External Parasites of Livestock and Poultry" and Fact Sheet L-725, "Common Grubs of Cattle." These publications outline in detail recommended chemicals and their use.

Brush and weed control is necessary for greatest returns from forage production and for improving pastures and ranges in poor to fair condition.

Generally, weeds are a minor problem on ranges supporting a vigorous and dense stand of grass. The problem is to properly balance weeds and grass by using management, control and grazing management to maintain forage production and sustained range improvement.

While weedy plants furnish food and cover for wildlife and some young plants are utilized by livestock other weeds at different growth stages ar poisonous to livestock.

Brush and weed control programs should be planned to leave necessary food and cover for game animals and birds since wildlife is a valuable source of income. Thus, control, good grazing management and soil and water conservation should be worked into the overall plan for improving forage production and income from livestock and wildlife resources.

There are available from my office publications dealing with brush and weed control and many other subjects relating to range and pasture improvement practices.

Maybe the big bear hunt has been called off but I have not called off my own little bear hunt. Every morning and afternoon as I drive in and out of town I scan the pastures for the bear. The other morning I thought I saw it but what I actually saw turned out to be an old rusty car top in a clum of mesquite

This thought has occurred to me—maybe it isn't a bear at all. This strange thing could be a hippie who fell out of a Volkswagon going west.

Extension Consumer Marketing Specialist Gwendolyne Clyatt suggests a basic meal of fruit, cereal, milk, bread and spread which studies have shown to be nutritionally adequate.

Make the summer breakfast "cool" by adding fruit to cereal; top that with ice cream, she suggests. The ice cream replaces the breakfast milk.

Never place breakfast cereals on a shelf used for soap or other cleaning products, or with foods having a strong odor. The aroma will adversely affect the cereals' flavor, say the Extension consumer marketing specialists.

Can you pass the breakfast test? Many people 65 years old or more fail, according to Dorothy Taylor, Extension specialist for aging.

A three-point test of a good breakfast is:

1. It gives you protein, vitamins and minerals needed to build and repair the body and to keep you healthy.

2. It provides energy fuel for the body.

3. It tasts good.

A breakfast of coffee and a sweet roll fails the test on the first step. Such a breakfast leaves too many nutrients for other meals to pick up, says the Texas Agricultural Extension Service specialists at Texas A&M University.

Juice and coffee go part-way in step one but fail number two.

A fourth of the day's food value should be gained through a good breakfast. To get it, include a good source of protein (eggs, meat), a cereal product (enriched hot and cold cereals, breads), a fruit (juice, fresh, cooked) and milk. These foods contribute to the over-all good health of the older American, says Miss Taylor.

Lack of adequate supplies of calcium, found in milk products, causes the senior citizen's bones to become porous and, therefore, break more easily.

Vitamins A and C from fresh and cooked fruits and vegetables contribute to healthy gums and skin, reminds Miss Taylor. When oldsters fail to eat fruits and vegetables, the gums become red and inflamed and bleed easily, and dentures often become uncomfortable.

Lack of Vitamin C found in citrus fruits causes a weakening of the walls of the blood vessels. Thus, a person bruises more easily. In addition, Vitamin C builds resistance to infections such as colds and viruses, she adds.

A breakfast without protein causes slower healing after surgery, a cut or a flesh wound. With protein in the diet body sores will heal faster because body tissues are more rapidly replaced and repaired.

In older persons additional weight gain can be attributed to poor selection of foods, rather than overeating, adds the specialist.

Eggs a la King

One 4-ounce can mushrooms, drained.
1 tablespoon butter.
2 10½-oz. cans cream of chicken soup.
6 hard-cooked eggs.
¼ cup chopped pimiento.
2 tablespoons chopped parsley.
6 slices toast.

Cook mushrooms in fat until lightly browned. Stir in the soup. Cut eggs into eighths and add, along with pimiento and parsley. Stir gently to avoid breaking up eggs. Heat thoroughly. Serve over toast.

This recipe makes 4 ample servings and can take the place of meat in lunch and supper dishes. Eggs are a good source of protein, not quite the source that meat is but still ranking high. More egg dishes could be the answer to rising meat prices.

Toasted cornbread may be used instead of toast and is very good.

They remained for more than six weeks. It has been determined that the issuance of the permit by Udall resulted in damages to the park of $220,119, and that costs of side effects exceeded $1 million. None of this has been paid by the marchrs and their sponsors.

Paul Thompson, the columnist, blew his top and lost his cool when he read my recent newsletter in which I questioned the propriety of interracial marriages between blacks and whites. He labeled those who feel that way as "bigots" and as "anti-Negro."

Apparently what Thompson does not know is that many, many Negroes oppose inter-marriage with whites, just as many whites oppose intermarriage with Negroes. And Thompson lumps all of these together—black and white—and puts the "bigot" label on all who even question the propriety of interracial marriages. Shame on him!

As to Thompson's "anti-Negro" charge, as applied to me, it simply is not true. I am not and have never in my life been anti-Negro, any more than Mr. Thompson has, by favoring racial intermarriages, been anti-white. The same logic applies to both.

Unfortunately, there are those these days who will grab at straws in an effort to stir up a big racial issu out of anything. I would hope that Thompson, after he regains his composure, will recognize his error and in the future refrain from injecting racism into a subject which should be a matter of open, sensible discussion by both blacks and whites. You find a conflict of thinking on this subject among both races.

Serving In Iceland

Keflavik, Iceland—Staff Sergeant Ben W. Joiner, son of Mrs. Mary Joiner of Eldorado, Tex., is a member of the Aerospace Defense Command (ADC) unit at Keflavik Airport, Iceland, that has received national recognition for proficiency in identifying Soviet bombers operating over the North Atlantic.

Sergeant Joiner is a supply inventory supervisor with the 57th Fighter Interceptor Squadron. The unit has received the Air Force Association (AFA) Citation of Honor for outstanding contribution to the nation in maintaining round-the-clock surveillance of potentially hostile aircraft flying in the area. The AFA, a private organization of 100,000 civilian and military members, honored the squadron at its recent national convention in Houston.

Ground crews provide essential support for aircrews who fly F-102 Delta Daggers in some of the most adverse flying weather in the world while patrolling the northern approaches to North America.

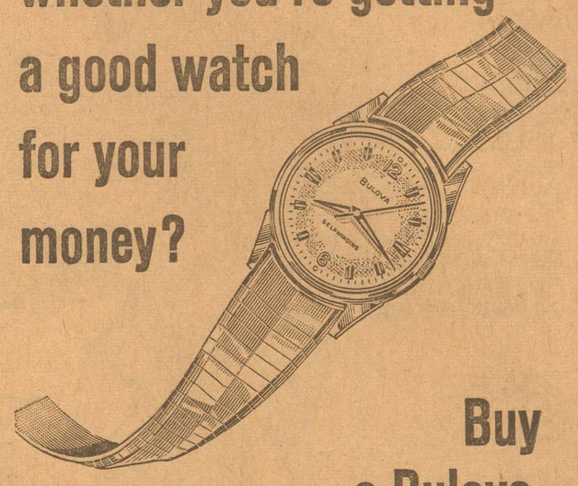

Last year, fighter-interceptor pilots in the 57th reported that Soviet flights in the area more than doubled those of 1967. Recently, the Soviets have conducted regular reconnaissance flights over NATO naval fleets in the vicinity.

Constantly testing our air defense responses over the North Atlantic, the flights of Soviet "Bear" bombers are intercepted at high altitudes. The Bear, capable of reaching any target in the United States without refueling, can carry air-to-surface missiles or a 25,000-pound bomb load.

The ADC squadron aircrews and support personnel, serving with the Icelantic Defense Forces, were cited for sustained supreior oprational efficiency in intercepting and identifying aircraft.

Sergeant Joiner, a graduate of San Angelo (Tex.) Senior High School, served in the European Theater of Operations during World War II. He attended North Texas State College.

He is expected to announce on a statewide television hookup whether he will veto the Legislature's one-year budget bill and if so, when the special session to mop-up the unfinished finance job will be scheduled.

At noon the following day, the Governor will present further views on the subject when he addresses the 90th Annual Summer Convention of the Texas Press Association at Saturday's luncheon at the Inn of Six Flags in Arlington

Fate of the $60.4 million teacher pay raise hangs delicately in the financial balance which Smith can tip in several directions with the flick of his veto pen.

State officials are having a hard time agreeing on just how much money is coming in during the next year—and whether there will be enough for both the salary hike and the $2.8 billion one-year budg'

As though the situation were not complicated enough already, Smith could throw it out of balance by vetoing any one—or more—of five revenue-raising bills before him. Or he could square it up again by line-item vetoing of spending proposals.

He can, of course, veto the entire one-year bill and call legislators back to work promptly on a two-year budget. Many expect him to do just that.

Bills Challenged

Governor Smith left up in the air the fate of 41 bills and 13 concurrent resolutions passed at the last minute by the recent Legislature. He challenged their validity on two counts.

Smith said the measures—one of which created 28 new district courts—were not signed in the presence of the House and the Senate by the lieutenant governor and the speaker as required by the constitution. He contended that they were signed after the Legislature already had gone home. In addition, they reached him seven days later than they should.

A thorough study will be made of their legal status before he acts, pledged Smith. Legislative leaders contend that a logjam of bills caused processing delays that are commonplace at the end of sessions. They say that other governors have not complained.

Education . . .

Twenty-three college and university educators from around the state have sent Governor Smith a letter asking that he not veto the bill that will increase the cost of education to students by $10 a semester. They are the presidents and chancellors of the various state supported schools. They point out that vetoing the bill would cost the state $4 million a year.

State Board of Education has appointed 15 representatives from the state's educational profession —including college administrators, classroom teachers, superintendents and principals—to a commission to study standards for the preparation of school administrators. Appointments are for two years and the group is charged with finding ways to train the people who will eventually run the school systems.

Governor Smith has announced the establishment of three continuous programs of meetings and conferences with high school, college and non-student young people in order to gain "positive understanding and solution to the main problems facing our state."

These three new organizations include: the Governor's Conference of College Leaders, to consist of college and university student body presidents and other campus leaders; the Governor's Hall of Honor of the Texas Youth Conference, made up of all presidents of major high school youth organizations in the state; and a Governor's Council on Young People, concentrating on out-of-school young people, emphasizing career problems and an understanding of the democratic system.

Boy's State, sponsored by the American Legion, and Girl's State, sponsored by the American Legion Auxiliary, both aimed at teaching top high school students the ways of Texas government on a "learn by doing" theory, held their annual meetings in Austin.

Bond Campaign Mapped

Committees to ramrod a campaign for a $3.5 billion water dvelopment bond issue have been forced under the direction of Governor Smith and former Governors Allan Shivers, Price Daniel and John Connally.

Smith called for a statewide education campaign, warning that the state "stands on brink of water deficiency" unless an imaginative, positive program is carried out.

Austin Attorney and former Ambassador to Australia, Ed Clark, heads the finance committee. Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes will be chairman of senate participation and House Speaker Gus Mutscher directing activities of state representatives. Membership in overall campaign committee includes all but nine Texas legislators. Legislative "holdouts" include two senators and 7 representatives.

Courts Speak

An Amarillo woman won a Supreme Court order of a new trial in her suit against a doctor for malpractice. Court said the doctor should have called in a specialist.

Supreme Court agreed that the city of Houston should get a new trial of its suit to force the Houston Independent School District to pay building inspection fees.

A Nueces County oilfield worker hurt in a well-testing accident got Supreme Court approval of a $74,598 judgment.

Former Richmond State School superintendent filed a $160,000 federal court lawsuit against state hospital-school system officials, claiming he was dismissed from the job for political reasons.

Dredge Price Proposed

Parks and Wildlife Department personnel suggest a price of 10 cents a cubic yard for fill material dredged from shallow coastal waters for shoreline buildup.

Not only the price, but the whole idea of dredging ran into criticism at public hearing.

Appointments, Honors

Governor Smith appointed C. B. Maynard of Bastrop, judge of the 21st judicial district, filling the unexpired term of the late Judge John S. Simang of Giddings.

Rep. Ray Lemmon of Houston was the special representative of House Speaker Gus Mutscher at the Marine Technical Society's convention of Oceanography held Monday at Miami Beach.

Mrs. Malcolm Milburn of Austin has announced as a candidate for vice chairman of the Republican Party of Texas.

State Education Commissioner Dr. James W. Edgar was presented the first Civil Air Patrol Aerospace Education Leadership Award.

LCB Rules Attacked

Suit was filed in district court here by two Dallas club operators. They protested in particular prohibitions on cash sales and strict limitations on guest card provisions. Rules, they argued, would close about 75% of clubs now operating.

Short Snorts . . .

In reply to a request by Comptroller Robert S. Calvert, Attorney General Crawford Martin ruled that a bill giving state financing to the program of student teaching is not effective until Sept. 1, 1970.

Texas Railroad Commission has reset for July 7 hearing on 26 applications for agricultural haulers' permits on a request by the applicants' attorney.

Governor Smith told a state Beautification Conference in Austin that the state spends $2 million a year in picking up trash on highways.

First Texas project under a new cooperative plan to increase capacity and safety of streets and highways in urban areas (installation of ramp metering equipment for a freeway control system on 10.2 miles of US 75 in Dallas) will be let to contract this month by the Texas Highway Department.

Users of water from public streams must record their claims with the Water Rights Commission by September 1 (Domestic and livestock users are exempt).

State Securities Board issued more permits in May for the sale of securities than in any previous month in history.

In Clinic-Hospital

Myrta Ann Topliffe has been a patient the past week in Clinic-Hospital in San Angelo. She may be released this week end.

Miss Topliffe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Topliffe of this place, is employed with Shell in Midland.

Mr. and Mrs. George Graf and family of Nashville, Illinois, left Monday to return to their home after visiting here a week with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Graf and other relatives and friends.
