The need for more housing in Loraine gets more acute each week. Hardly a week passes but what we have from one to four calls for a house or an apartment. All we can tell them is, "so far as we know there is not a vacant house or apartment in Loraine."

How long the demand will last is a question but right now oil field workers and other workers are hunting a place to live anywhere within driving distance of their work. Some one who has the money with faith in the future of Loraine should build several small apartments. No doubt he could demand good rent and get it for several months to come.

The new test well north of town is going to create still a greater demand for housing, and if oil should be brought in the demand would be still greater.

Loraine has grown the past few years, lots of new houses have been built and more are under construction now but the demand for housing here has not let up.

Water Shut Off In Ater Test Well

Prospects for a good producing oil well on the E. A. Ater farm nine miles southeast of Loraine and five miles southwest of Roscoe were much brighter the first of this week as Skelly Oil Company succeeded in shutting off water from the bottom of the hole.

On week end tests the well was perforated with 126 shots from 7,097-118 feet and treated with 500 gallons of acid. During the next 23 hours it swabbed 285 barrels of oil with no water through two inch tubing and the fluid level was not lowered below 3000 feet in the hole.

After the swabbing tests the well was shut in to build up pressure, rotary rig was being moved off and operators were preparing for further tests.

No estimates have been made on the possible production of the well, pending further tests. Skelly is also waiting on further tests before announcing definite plans for developement of the area, it is said.

Surviving her are her husband, one daughter, Mrs. H. B. Hillis of Rocose and 10 grandchildren.

IT CAN HAPPEN AGAIN

National Farm Safety Week is set for July 24-30.

During 1948, a resident of one out of every six farms was the victim of an accident ranging in severity from sudden death to sprained ankles. An average of 2400 accidents occurred to farm people every day of the year. The total 1948 cost of medical, dental and hospital care resulting from farm accidents was about $36,000,000 and the loss of 17,000,000 days of time.

Unless farm families are made conscious of accidents, the same story will be duplicated in 1949.

During 1948, falls were the leading type of accident on farms accounting for about a fourth of all farm accidents. Accidents involving livestock and machinery each accounted for an eighth of the farm accidents.

Over three times as many accidents happened to men and boys as to women and girls.

The Vocational class here in Loraine have been discussing farm accidents and have signs painted that are on display in their class rooms. Let's not only observe July 24-30 as Farm Safety Week, practice Farm Safety 52 weeks a year. Accidents are costly in hospital bills and loss of work days.

Streets To Be Marked Houses Numbered

Loraine is about to take on city ways, at least the Lions club hopes the people of the town will cooperate with them in the project for marking the streets and numbering the houses. The Lions club does not hesitate to tell you that it will make a profit on the house numbers they sell- a big profit. Each set of house numbers will sell for $2, but they will pay for the street markers also. In fact the $2 for the house numbers will pay for the markers, a post on which to put them and the installation of both the numbers and markers.

The Lions believe every resident will want to cooperate and buy a house number so that the streets may be marked properly. Below is the way the street markers will look.

The signs are made of aluminum with a black blackground and raised letters and may be read in either direction. They will be mounted on a steel post and set in concrete and will be permanent.

With the houses numbered and the streets marked it will be easy to direct anyone to any place in town and they can easily find it.

A committee composed of Percy Bond, G. W. Parish and Watt Hart has about completed the task of making a map of the town with the names of the streets and the numbers placed where they belong. When this committee has completed its job Lions will begin selling numbers and hope to have the job finished soon.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Atlantic Pact Called War-Breeder; Truman Decries Economic 'Gloom'; Committee Slashes Funds for ERP

(Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.) (EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of

PEACE PACT:

Avenue to War?

As he did in the Taft-Hartley repeal fight, Sen. Robert Taft (R., Ohio) would lead the opposition to senate ratification of the Atlantic pact. That is the treaty in which America joins its western allies in an agreement that an attack on any signatory is an attack upon all—and that a signatory nation may take any reprisal steps it deems fit.

IN HIS SPEECH to the senate, Taft declared the pact was "inextricably linked" to the rearming of Europe, insisted this would lead to an armament race and pointed out that "armament races lead to war."

Thus did a highly effective senator most coherently raise the question of whether the pact really means peace or war. Taft was not without support in his conception of the pact's potentialities. Five senators jumped to their feet to applaud his remarks, and some 12 or 15 senators were applauding at the end.

This was construed by some observers as indicating the extent of the opposition.

Taft was not wholly against the pact, despite his ringing denunciation. He asserted that, even now, he would be willing to change his mind if a reservation could be incorporated into ratification making plain that the treaty did not bind America to furnish arms.

Said Taft: "There is no question that the arms program and the treaty were negotiated together. There is no question in my mind that foreign nations which signed the treaty regarded the providing of arms as an essential part of it . . . if we ratify the pact and fail to furnish the military aid, I believe we will at once be accused of repudiation, and the pact will be completely discredited."

ERP FUNDS:

Slash Voted

There appeared to be a change of sentiment regarding aid to Marshall plan countries. The senate appropriations committee had voted to slash 10 per cent from second-year funds asked for the activity.

The committee also tied up 50 million dollars of what was left in order to cut Spain in on the European recovery program should the administration see fit. The program would get something more than 3.75 billions. President Truman had asked approximately 4.20 billions. A committee member disclosed that one group within the membership had attempted to chop 19 per cent off the requested appropriation.

Chairman McKellar (D., Tenn.) estimated that the committee cut approximately 749 million dollars from President Truman's budget estimates for actual appropriations in foreign spending, which includes other programs besides the Marshall plan.

The sum voted for the Marshall plan would be spread over the 12 months ending June 30, 1950. This was nearly 210 million more than the house had voted—but the house bill would have permitted expenditure of the fund in 10½ months if necessary.

A committee aide explained to Washington newsmen that unless the loan is made to Spain, the withheld 50 million dollars could not be used for any other purpose.

Wrong Job?

You may be happy in your work and pleased with your occupational niche, but the fellow at the desk or machine next to you may not be.

It is the opinion of Robert C. Woellner, Chicago university professor, that at least half of all adults definitely are misplaced, or could have been better placed if modern vocational methods had been available during their formative years.

Woellner attributes much of the present social unrest, high divorce rate, and high incidence of mental illness in the United States to the many unfortunate occupational choices of its workers.

U.S. ECONOMY:

Truman Concedes

While there was some measure of contradiction in concept, President Truman, in his message to congress on the economic state of the nation had conceded that recession forces were alive.

However, in a neat bit of linguistic maneuvering, he declared the current situation one in which the national economy was in orderly retreat from a serious inflation. At the same time, however paradoxical the warning might seem, he declared that there could be no "greater economic folly" than an attempt to balance the federal budget in a "declining national economy."

He highlighted the contradiction by adding that such a move would only aggravate the recession forces against which his new policy was directed.

OF CHIEF INTEREST in his report was his abandonment of an earlier plan to demand four billion dollars in additional taxes. He lightly dismissed this former policy with the statement: "No major increase in taxes should be undertaken at this time." Instead, he proposed liberalization of allowances for past losses in computing income taxes and increasing estate and gift taxes.

The President's obvious reversal of policy was held to be little less pronounced than the findings of his council of economic advisors on whose report the President's message was based. They found that since January the forces threatening stability had become predominantly deflationary and that the weakening of markets had become general.

KRUG:

A Denial

Drew Pearson was in hot water again. Generally accused of partial responsibility in the siucidal death of former defense secretary James Forrestal, the newspaper and radio columnist had reported the U. S. interior secretary Krug was very ill with "athlete's heart."

In a letter to Pearson, Krug's physician, Dr. R. Lyman Sexton, asserted Krug is completely well and able to do twice the work of the average person.

Wherever one stood on the propriety of Pearson's discussion of the health of top government officials, it would be remembered that several of his reports on the condition of Forrestal's health—originally denied by the navy—were later admitted.

REUTHER:

Still on Top

With red-thatched, fiery Walter Reuther still at the helm, the United Auto Workers union, numbering some million members, could be expected to hold firm in any demands made for wage increases or social benefits.

BRUSHING aside token opposition from UAW's left wing elements, Reuther was elected to a third term as UAW president by a top-heavy majority.

The voting which reelected Reuther was a new triumph for the right-wing forces in the union which catapulted him into office in 1946 and rewarded him with control of the other international offices and the board at the 1947 convention. His new term will expire in April, 1951.

UAW DELEGATES moved into the election of top officers after hearing Leon Keyserling, of President Truman's council of economic advisers, tell them that "as a general proposition the kind of wage policy which will help maintain full employment in this country, and which will maintain our economy on stable levels is one which adds to consumer purchasing power from year to year—because we have the capacity to produce more goods from year to year.

The auto workers union's big fight was with Ford motor company which, in opposing proposed wage rates, offered to peg wages at present levels for a given period, regardless of what cost-of-living developments brought about.

FORD contended the cost of living has gone down and there was no justification for pay raises, basing the argument on the UAW contract which called for pay hikes as the cost-of-living increased. Reuther opposed that line of reasoning, contending that the union's economists have proved, by a survey, that most industries can afford wage increases now.

MONOPOLY:

Clark Agitated

While President Truman was delighting business generally with his abandonment of any tax-increase proposals, U.S. Attorney General Tom Clark was agitated over the growth of "big" business and urging curbs on "concentration of economic power."

CLARK APPEARED very much disturbed by the situation and let go both barrels in his shots at big business as he testified in a congresional investigation into monopolistic practices.

He termed business monoply an "economic blackjack" and urged that the federal government get busy doing something about it. He told a house judiciary subcommittee that most people were victims of three erroneous assumptions. He listed them as:

1. Assumption that competition continues to thrive as long as there are at least two or three or four in the field.

2. Assumption that the bigger the producer the better the quality of the goods and the cheaper the price to the public.

3. Assumption that companies become big because they deserve to be big—in other words, that they outdistance their competitors because they do a better job, render a greater service, or furnish better goods.

CLARK DECLARED he did not share any of these assumptions.

Continuing his testimony before the committee, he said:

"The fundamental issue is whether the economy of this country is to remain free and competitive, or whether it is to be subjected to private regimentation through monopoly control."

Under Fire

As an aftermath of the involved legal proceedings in the trial of Alger Hiss on a perjury charge growing out of spy investigations, Presiding Judge Samuel H. Kaufman, shown here, is under congressional fire. The senator was reported considering a probe of the conduct of the trial.

BIG STEEL:

Strike Pledged

There was trouble looming in big steel. CIO President Philip Murray had declared after fruitless government-caused peace talks that a half-million steelworkers would be called out on strike at an early date.

After conferences with federal conciliation director Cyrus S. Ching, the CIO chieftian reported a "complete deadlock." The situation was critical.

RENT CONTROLS

Average 9,300 Units Being Freed Daily

According to recent dispatches out of Washington, rental dwellings have been coming off the control list at an average rate of 9,300 a day since the new rent law went into operation on April first.

Rent officials said, however, that few of the decontrol actions had affected any large metropolitan areas, and that some 14 million units still remained under the controls as amended by the new federal law.

As of June 30, these officials added, 551 defense rental areas, so designated in wartime, were completely or partly covered by controls in 1,047 counties with a population in excess of 95 million people. But if the current rate of decontrol continued during the year, it would delight critics.

LAWN MOWER WITH SELF-EJECTING . . .

Minneapolis Lady Asks About Waltzing Mouse

. . . BLADES PRESENTS NEW PROBLEMS

By H. I. PHILLIPS

'ANSWER MAN'

Q.—Miss Sapho Hosley, Cos Cob, Conn., writes in to find out if there is such a thing as a lawn mower with self-ejecting extra blades, and, if so, where she should throw the old ones.

A.—An engineer in Cleveland Ohio, is said to have invented a look-sharp-feel-sharp-be-sharp lawn mower with a pack of 10 blades. We forget his last name, but his first name is Esau. Old lawn mower blades should be thrown off a bridge, never put in a medicine cabinet.

Q.—Edgar Woofbaum of Delaware Water Gap asks, "How many hairs are there on the back of a bee, and is it true a bee likes them parted in the middle?"

A.—There are said to be 234,582 hairs on the back of an adult bee, provided it has never had dandruff. Drones part their hair in the middle. Busy bees have no time to bother about such things.

Q.—A lady in Minneapolis asks: "How many turns does a waltzing mouse make per minute, and is food a factor?"

A. — According to the last quarterly report of the Waltzing Mice Research Bureau, these creatures average three turns per second. This is sometimes slowed down by mice cutting in during the waltz. A pastry diet is bad, too.

Q.—A mother in Hoboken, N.J., asks: "Is it true that tattooed women are barred from Miss America contests?"

A.—No, but there seems to be no demand for them. The rules are, however, very broad. A woman in Derby, Conn., dyed her skin red, white and blue, and only lost the victory in a Miss Barber Pole of 1948 contest by three lengths.

Q.—A seamstress from Tallahassee, Fla., writes to ask: "Can cornsilk be used to stuff a sofa?"

A.—Yes, cornsilk can be used, and it is good fun, too. Short lengths of cornsilk make it more exciting. Golden Bantam corn is best. Some people have done wonders stuffing sofas with lint collected from black pants.

Q.—A man in Baltimore, Md., asks: "Will a halibut live in captivity, and where can halibut bowls be bought?"

A.—A man named Krossshliemoviteczosky in Butte, Mont., once kept a male halibut in the bathtub of his home for seven months under the impression it was a salmon. The barracuda is preferred as a house pet if what you want is adventure.

Q.—A young woman in Houston, Tex., wants to know who invented the clamrake?

A.—I'm glad she asked that question. The curator of the International Clamrake Museum and Oyster Fork Institute says it was designed by an Englishman named Zilch, patented by two Frenchmen and built by a Canadian clam trapper. This makes it a Russian invention.

UNREST ON CRUSOE'S ISLAND

("Unrest is reported sweeping Robinson Crusoe's island in the South Pacific."—News item.)

Crusoe—Friday, you don't seem co-operative today. What's wrong?

Friday—I've been Friday long enough. I wanna be Thursday.

Crusoe—Why?

Friday—It shortens the week.

Crusoe—Come, come, you must be joking.

Friday—Not at all. I may even want to make it seem shorter by having my name changed to Wednesday.

Crusoe—We're the only two men on this island. We've been getting along famously. You've been my right-hand man.

Friday—Yes, but I feel a pull to the left.

Crusoe — Not here, surely. We've been very happy together, have we not?

Friday—There must be a capitalistic plot behind it somehow. I'm so happy it must be wrong, one way or another.

Crusoe—Now run along and fetch me some coconuts.

Friday—There you go exploiting me!

Crusoe—Look, we are both in the same boat. How could one exploit the other?

Friday—If I had a copy of the Daily Worker I could tell you. This island is so remote I don't even get Pravda.

THE GLORY WAY

NOW that the Christ is risen,
Now with the darkness gone,
The road lies out before us,
Upward, and on and on.

There are His sandal footprints,
There is His form ahead,
Straight and strong and compelling,
The Christ that they left as dead.

Nothing can dim His glory,
Nothing can stay His feet,
And countless are they who follow
Him down each lane and street;

And I would be one among them,
Along the Glory Way;
I would arise and follow
The risen Christ today.

ALTHOUGH she now has three network programs on the air, ("Kate Smith Sings," "Kate Smith Speaks," both on Mutual, and her two-hour "Kate Smith's Music Room" on ABC,) Miss Smith can sit down and talk with you as if she were just a comfortable, homey woman who knew a lot about cooking and housekeeping.

KATE SMITH

Unlike many of radio's women stars, she is not so obsessed by her own career that an absent-minded look comes into her eyes whenever anything else is mentioned. Perhaps it is that warm, human quality that makes her the most listened-to woman on the air.

When selecting "The Ten Outstanding Voices in the World" the National Academy of Vocal Arts named Ben Grauer's as the "Most Authoritative" and Dan Seymour's as the "Friendliest," because of its warmth and complete naturalness."

Production halted momentarily when Jean Dean walked onto the "Angels in Disguise" set at Monogram for her featured role in this latest of the Bowery Boys series. Leo Gorcey, Huntz Hall and the crew could hardly take their eyes off the gorgeous red-head, who was the original Varga girl model. Formerly under contract at MGM, she plays the feminine lead in "Angels."

Realizing during their travels that the traffic situation is becoming worse everywhere, the March of Time editors decided to do something about it. They consulted experts, got solutions and recommendations and "Stop—Heavy Traffic" is the result. It shows how bad traffic can be, and the methods used by some towns to work out the problem.

★ ★ GREAT MAN ★ ★

By Richard H. Wilkinson

3-Minute Fiction

IF PROFESSOR AARON CHESwick was famous he was not aware of this fact. He was too busy with his experiments in the field of chemistry, with teaching the undergraduates of Mapleridge College the rudiments of elementary science, with writing papers and books in which he set forth (in an almost apologetic style) the results of his experiments, and with reading avidly the works of such great scientists as Mons. Oliver Davillier and Senor Alfredo Valle Indan, both of whom had long ago won his respect and admiration.

He was an unpretentious looking little man, this Professor Cheswick, with pale blue eyes and horn-rimmed glasses and a pasty complexion. He wasn't one to attract attention or to assert himself. He went about with a perpetual far-away look in his eyes.

There came a time when a problem presented itself that challenged his skill and knowledge. He labored over it for days. The days became weeks and the weeks months. At last, worn and haggard, the little man was ready to admit defeat.

Time after time he returned to it, only to find himself defeated. He visited every library within miles, read every book by Davillier and Indan, as well as other great scientists that was available, but without finding the answer.

In the end Profesor Cheswick had an idea. It was summer. He needed a vacation. Why not take a month off, visit Europe and perhaps call on Davillier and Indan and ask them personally to clear up the matter that so burdened his mind?

A week later Professor Cheswick sailed for France. The little school teacher was a lonely figure. He struck up a few acquaintances. He wasn't the type to attract people. But he enjoyed the trip. This was something he had never done before.

He was glad when the boat docked. Eagerly he looked ahead to his meeting with Mons. Davillier.

But alas! The next day Professor Cheswick learned that Mons. Davillier had gone to America for his summer holiday and was not expected to return for another month.

The little scientist was depressed and disappointed. His time was short. Madrid, where lived Senor Indan was a long way off. Yet it could be reached, he thought suddenly and excitedly, by plane in a very short while.

HE WAS DELIGHTED to learn that Senor Indan was in Madrid. Yes, it was difficult to obtain an interview with the great man. He was constantly being pressed for interviews. What was it the American wanted to see him about? A problem? Ah, yes, Senor Indan was requested to solve so many problems. It was very, very doubtful if he would grant an interview for such a slight matter. However, if the American would care to take his chances, Senor Indan was to appear at a reception on Tuesday night. Possibly there would be an opportunity to ask his question . . .

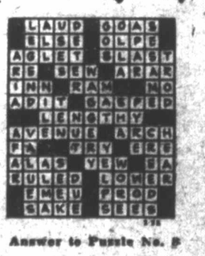

Professor Cheswick attended the reception. He stood in line for hours, a quiet, unassuming, unimportant looking little man, waiting for his chance to speak to the great Senor Indan. It came at last. At last the Mapleridge school teacher and scientist stood before the man he respected more than anyone else in the world.

He was so overcome by awe that for a moment he just stared. Senor Indan frowned impatiently and Professor Cheswick found his voice. He stated his question. The Senor's brows arched in surprise.

"An unusual question, Senor," he said. "Frankly, I cannot answer it. There is only one man in the world with enough knowledge and learning to find the answer. He is one of your own countrymen. My good friend Mons. Davillier is at this moment in America seeking an interview with this wizard whom the whole scientific world respects and admires, yet who is so absorbed in his work that it is difficult to persuade him to appear in public. I refer to Professor Aaron Cheswick of Mapleridge college."

PUZZLE NO. 9

MIRROR Of Your MIND — Bad Habit Of Evasion

By Lawrence Gould

Are there people who can't give you a straight answer?"

Answer: Yes. You will meet people who find it almost impossible to make a direct statement, even about the weather. It may be because as children they were criticized or punished so severely when they tried to do things on their own initiative that they dare not take a definite stand on anything whatever. Or they may be temperamentally "ambivalent" (facing both ways emotionally) and so obsessed by their inner contradictions that they cannot see one side of any question without being conscious that perhaps there is another.

Do deaf people feel more "isolated" than blind ones?

Answer: Yes, reports psychologist Helton McAndrew of Duke University in the Journal of Abnormal and Social Psychology. Tests showed that whereas blind children are aware of physical isolation, deaf ones feel mentally and socially isolated. In general, deaf children are less adaptable and less responsive, with a tendency to follow rigid patterns of behavior, presumably on the basis of the need a person who is unsure of himself has to "play safe." A comparison of deaf and blind adults might well show similar differences.

Is asthma primarily an "allergy"?

Answer: As a rule, No, write two members of the staff of New York Hospital in the Journal of Nervous and Mental Diseases. In but two of 51 cases of bronchial asthma was there any positive connection between the asthmatic symptoms and the patient's response to skin tests for allergic reactions, while in 32 cases the symptoms appeared after some sort of emotional disturbance, and in several others emotional factors were clearly involved. Even "pollen sensitive" patients could safely inhale large quantities of pollen if their minds were at rest.

LOOKING AT RELIGION

KEEPING HEALTHY

'Cancer' Causes Mental Agony

By Dr. James W. Barton

A FEW YEARS ago, if a physician told a patient that the symptoms of which he complained were caused by heart disease, the patient believed himself doomed. Today, most of us know that even if we have heart disease, we can live for years if we follow our doctor's advice and "take it easy."

Even in cases of high blood pressure and a vessel carrying blood to the heart muscle being clogged up or broken (coronary thrombosis), it is know that with care and rest, diet and exercise, further attacks may not occur and that if they do occur they may not cause death. While the words "heart disease" and "coronary thrombosis" still may strike fear in our hearts, it is the word "cancer" that causes great fear and continuous worry, which really is chronic fear.

In the "American Journal of Psychiatry," Dr. J. B. Ficarra states that the word "cancer" stirs a tempest of mental agony. Because so many cases of cancer are not discovered until too late to save life, the family and relatives are told of the cancer, but in most cases the patient is not told although he may suspect the cause of his symptoms.

Strange as it seems, it is known that the young patient withstands the knowledge that he has cancer better than his family and relatives; he appears to be able to face his fate better than older patients. In elderly patients the sense of impending death is ever present. Old people fear it and are more nervous about it than young adults.

While some ailments cause nervous symptoms and the patient believes he has heart, kidney or other disease, the majority of patients who really have cancer do not "imagine" they have cancer. It is often the non-cancerous patient who believes he has cancer.

One of the jobs of the liver is manufacturing bile which breaks up fats for digestion. It is an antiseptic, destroying harmful organisms and a natural purgative preventing constipation.

Physicians believe that lack of rest does more harm to the body and brain than does the prescription of a quieting drug.

When a middle-aged man or woman passes blood in the urine, the first thought is that it is cancer. This is as it should be, because early treatment saves lives.

WOMAN'S WORLD

Tired Wardrobes Can Be Revived Easily

By Ertta Haley

THOSE CLOTHES you started wearing a month or so ago don't look as fresh and crisp as they did when you first put them on, you say? Naturally you've laundered them or had them cleaned but just what has happened?

The same thing happens about the middle of every season, be it winter, summer, spring or fall. Most of us can't afford new clothes, and probably wouldn't buy them for the few remaining weeks of the summer, so what should be done?

Naturally this varies with each individual piece of clothing, but there are some definite tricks to revive or restore them to original freshness. No major remodeling is essential, usually, unless you've gained or lost weight, but some slight touch may make the difference between a piece of clothing you really want to wear and one you'd like to hide in a dark corner of the closet.

True Cleanliness Revives Dresses, Suits

You may have been fairly regular about having dresses and suits laundered or cleaned, but unless special care is taken, they may take on a sort of dusty hue which detracts from their beauty.

In many instances, a special laundering or cleaning treatment may solve the problem of making these items a pleasure to wear. Check over collar, cuffs, pockets and hemlines. If you find any dirt at all, concentrate on this special spot and make it immaculate.

Revive dresses with trimmings . . . .

If the suit or dress does not hang just right, you may have to do some minor adjusting for perfect fit. This involves practically no time at all and renders the garment wearable.

Sometimes a dress simply needs to have the hemline shifted or new shoulder pads, and it will pick up amazingly well.

Other points to check on garments include the belt and its buckle. These fray easily sometimes and detract from the dress, coat or suit. Mending may eliminate this problem; if not, revive the dress with a new belt or buckle.

Most women used to do a lot of changing with trimmings to refresh their clothing. This is an old fashioned habit which we would do well to revive because so often the fragile laces on blouses need changing, as do collars and cuffs. For basic dresses, you would do well to make or buy an alternate set if you really want to get the most wear out of the garment.

Clothes which have faded badly may simply need a bit of tinting to restore their good looks. Tinting does not mean dyeing. It can be done easily in the wash basin if need be, since warm water is used and only a small amount of color need be dissolved in the water to restore clothing.

Freshen hats with flowers.

Change Trimming On Your Hats

Most summer headgear needs a pick-up just about this time, and you don't have to be a professional to know how to handle the rejuvenation. If you feel all thumbs about hats, then the best thing to do is to see how the trimming on the hat is put on.

When you remove veiling or flowers, observe just where the stitches were to attach them. Mark them with chalk. Take off original veiling with care, so that if it's folded or draped in a particular style, you'll know how to adjust fresh veiling.

Flowers which have become grimy on hats should be replaced with new ones of similar size and type, if at all possible. They may sometimes be changed slightly, but if you're a novice and are afraid of drastic experimentation, safety lies in copying the original hat.

Ribbons can be changed in much the same manner as veiling and flowers, either with new ribbon or the old one refreshed. Ribbons, usually, are fairly durable and can be washed if handled with care. Use mild soapsuds and shake them in a jar. Rinse carefully and hang to dry. Most ribbons, if pressed while still rather damp, will be firm and starchy, and all ready to put on.

Tissue Gingham

This checked dress of tissue gingham is one of a group of ventilated cottons for warm weather wear designed by Terry Rogers. A wide collar, deep cuffs and extravagant flap pockets at the hipline lend subtle touches of flattery to the silhouette. The row of small buttons marching to the waistline helps to fit the bodice of the dress properly.

THE READER'S COURTROOM

Give and Take in Divorce

By Will Bernard, LL.B.

Is it too Late to Change Your Mind—After the Divorce?

A young wife divorced her husband, but both soon decided they had made a terrible mistake. Back they went to the same judge, and asked him to cancel the divorce decree. He did so. Then, about a year later, the husband again changed his mind and asked the court to cancel the cancellation! He insisted that, once a divorce is granted, it is permanent—unless the couple gets married all over again. However, the court ruled that the divorce was no longer in effect and the pair were indeed husband and wife. The judge said, if a court can give a divorce, it can take it back too!

A man moved into a bachelor apartment, taking a one-year lease. Two months later he moved out, complaining that he couldn't bear the foul language of the family in the adjoining apartment. When the landlord sued him for the balance of the year's rent, the man argued that the landlord himself was to blame for allowing such uncouth language in the building. But the court ruled in favor of the landlord, saying that he was not obliged to interfere in the situation—just so he didn't actually encourage it.

A drunken customer in a bar began to get boisterous, and the bartender decided to eject him. He threw the man out so vigorously that the drunk crashed into a girl walking past the front entrance. Injured by the collision, the girl sued the bartender for damages. He protested that he was just exercising his right to get rid of an obnoxious customer, but the court held him responsible anyhow. The judge said that, while the bouncing was all right, it should have been done with regard for the safety of passers-by.

May a Landlord "Smoke Out" A Tenant Who Won't Move?

A landlord served an eviction notice on an elderly widow and she agreed to get out by a certain date. But when the day arrived, the woman happened to be sick in bed—and so she didn't leave. In a fury, the landlord opened the wood stove, poured some water on the embers, and "let it smoke." The harassed woman finally got out—but later filed a suit against the landlord for assault. He protested that a tenant has no right to remain on the premises after the eviction date. However, the judge said that was no excuse for such malicious tactics by the landlord and ordered him to pay damages to the widow.

KATHLEEN NORRIS

Tragedy of an Afflicted Mother

IN A TRAGIC letter from a north-Iowa town, Estelle Owens asks me for advice that is painful to give. Everything about mental illness is excruciatingly painful for all concerned, and in Estelle's case the patient is her dearly loved mother.

"I am 36, married to a fine man and with three daughters aged 14, 12 and 6," writes Estelle. "My brother, happily married, has four very small sons. We two are the sole support of our mother, who for more than four years has been an inmate of a private asylum. The charges for her care are $300 monthly, exclusive of such extra expenses as X-rays, clothing, dental plates and other details outside the regular routine.

"She shares a room with two other cases; with another 3-bed ward they have their own bathroom. But naturally she is not permitted freedom to bathe, and all doors and windows are locked at all times.

"My husband and my brother's wife are understanding and generous in this situation, for we all love—or did love, my mother," the letter goes on. "But we are faced now by the impossibility of continuing this arrangement, and I write to ask you if you know of any less expensive, perhaps semi-private institution? We could pay a hundred a month. To whom should we apply for information on this point?

Disposed of Savings

"We have disposed of all our savings, cashed war bonds, and I am turning over every penny I make in boarding and attending small children, but it is not enough.

"We have determined among ourselves, and promised her, that we never will consider a public insane asylum for Mama, whose heart would break if we so much as hinted at it. We cannot have her in our home as she has irrational intervals when she is dangerous. But we are given hope of a cure in her case, as the injury to the brain may absorb. Often it causes delusions, but at times she is just Mama again. Please help us to solve this agonizing problem."

. . . food is poor in institutions . . .

Estelle, my answer is that you and your brother are risking your own marital happiness by this unrealistic attitude toward what is a terrible tragedy.

But the sensible course for you, the most hopeful and promising one, the least expensive and the most responsible, is to place your mother in the state institution, and begin to work for her comfort, your own, your husband's and your children's welfare, from there.

Dangerous Burden

You and your brother are putting a dangerous burden upon the generosity of your mates, and it is important to stop that at once. Worry about money, discussion of the waste of it, payment of outrageous charges and unexpected expenses creates a strain that no marriage can long endure.

For every reason your mother should be moved at once to the state asylum. Terrible words, aren't they? But so are the facts. In the public institution she will be much more intelligently handled, she will have access to modern and expensive methods and equipment not available in any private asylum, and — and note this carefully, — it will be to no one's financial interest to keep her there.

It has been my experience, in the last two years, to make many visits to one of California's largest insane asylums. There are some fearful cases there, shut away from human sight, of course. But there are also scores of borderline cases; not a week goes by but what some sobered, healthy, cured woman returns to her home. There are sun-flooded wards containing ten or a dozen smooth beds each—oh, I've gone in at all hours unexpectedly and always found them so. There are long dining tables covered with white cloths, set decently with glass and china.

(The food is poor in all institutions.) The food in the army, in boarding schools, in boarding houses, is notoriously uninteresting. In the asylum I know, my patient complains loudly of meat loaf and fish chowder, meat loaf and fish chowder endlessly. The bread—oh, that's good. Milk? Yes, she gets a quart a day. Jam? Oh, yes, they are putting up cherries and apricots now. Sometimes she has to wipe dishes, clear tables. Sometimes she shells peas, peels potatoes. Every bright day she is out in the open.

Synthesis Used For Vitamin-A

Can Now Be Made Up On Commercial Scale

NEW YORK.—The synthesis of vitamin A by a new process that makes possible its production on a commercial scale was announced here by Dr. H. M. Wuest, director of research at the Warner institute for therapeutic research of William R. Warner company.

Until now, vitamin A, necessary for the growth of children, the normal functioning of the eye, night vision, and other physiological needs of the body, including resistance to infection, could be obtained only from fish liver oils. One of the drawbacks of the natural product was that even the purest concentrates still had a fishy odor and taste, which made it unpalatable to a large number of users.

The synthetic vitamin is prepared from a starting material named beta ionone, obtained from lemon grass oil and also found in violets. It is this substance that gives violets their characteristic pleasant odor.

Although vitamin A was one of the first of the vitamins to become known, it was not until 1931 that its chemical structure was elucidated by Dr. Paul Karrer of Zurich, Nobel prize winner. However, all efforts to synthesize the complicated molecule of 20 carbon atoms arranged in six "rings," containing five conjugated double chemical bonds, and a hydroxyl group (OH) at the end of the "chain" hooked on to the ring-structure, failed for years.

A major reason for the failure was the instability of the molecule and its sensitivity to acids, light and the oxygen in the air.

In 1936, the prominent British chemist Sir Ian Heilbron made some headway toward synthesis by building up an intermediate substance with eighteen carbon atoms.

But even the pressure of the war, and the necessity for assuring large amounts of highly active vitamin A for the air forces (to increase or maintain their visual acuity for night flying) did not lead to a synthesis during the war years.

Be Smart!

Short on luggage space for the week-end invitation to which you've been looking forward? One good answer is one of the pretty ensembles that are designed for just such contingencies. Take the four-piece costume such as the one sketched. It includes a swim suit, a two-piece sun dress, and, with the addition of a glistening white T-shirt, a spectator sports dress. One of the most popular fabrics for these epsembles is cotton poplin, but you may also choose heavy broadcloth, indianhead, or spun rayon in a heavy linen-like weave. Choose from the many gay colors the one most becoming to you.

THE STATE OF TEXAS,
COUNTY OF MITCHELL
SHERIFF'S SALE

WHEREAS, on the 17th day of June, 1949, in Cause No. 6425, in the District Court of Mitchell County, Texas, wherein The City of Loraine, State of Texas, County of Mitchell, Loraine Ind. School District were Plaintiff, and Intervenors recovered judgment against Unknown Owners Defendants, for taxes, penalty, interest, and cost against the hereinafter described property;

WHEREAS, on the 8th day of July, 1949, by virtue of said judgment and the mandates thereof the Clerk of the above mentioned District Court of said county did cause to be issued an Order of Sale commanding me as Sheriff of said county to seize, levy upon, and sell in the manner and form as required by law the hereinafter described property;

WHEREAS, by virtue of said judgment and said Order of Sale and the mandates thereof I did on the 8th day of July, 1949, seize and levy upon as the property of the above defendant the following described property, situated in Mitchell County, Texas, to-wit:

(Said description showing the number of acres, original survey, locality in county, and name by which said property is most generally known.)

FIRST TRACT: Lots One and Three (1-3) in Block Thirteen (13) White Business Addition, City of Loraine, Mitchell County, Texas;

And I will on the first Tuesday in the month of August, 1949, the same being the 9th day of said month, proceed to sell all the right, title, and interest of the Defendant in and to said property at the Court House door of said county in the city or town of Colorado City, Texas, between the hours of 10:00 a.m. and 4:00 p.m. to the highest bidder for cash, provided, however, that none of said property shall be sold to the owner of said property directly or indirectly or to anyone having an interest therein or to any party other than a taxing unit which is a party to this suit for less than the amount of the adjudged value of said property or the aggregate amount of judgments against said property in said suit, whichever is lower, subject also to the right of the Defendant to redeem same in the time and manner provided by law and subject also to the right of the Defendant to have said property divided and sold in less divisions than the whole.

DATED at Colorado City, Texas, this the 8th day of July, 1949.

Ghosts of Yesterday

I WONDER IN what far off rings
Jim Corbett's spectre waits on view?
Where Jefferies books and old Fitz swings
Or Louis spins his follow through
Where is Jack Dempsey's crashing fist
As Tunney holds the foe at bay?
Still looking through the fogs and mists
Where are ghosts of yesterday?

The Ezzard Charles Rating

Since the melancholy spectacle in Chicago known as the N.B.A. heavyweight championship, various experts and noncombatants have been busy attempting to rate Ezzard Charles, the winner. The best rating would seem to place Charles somewhere between the post-Tunney and the pre-Louis period.

It is difficult to make any clear cut estimate since he was facing an opponent who refused to fight, the same being Jersey Joe Walcott.

Charles is a better boxer than Max Baer, Primo Carnera and Jim Braddock. He is no better a boxer than Jack Sharkey or Max Schmeling happened to be. He can't punch with Baer, Braddock or Schmeling. That post-Tunney, pre-Louis period was a sad one for the fight game — especially the heavyweight game. This new era, now rolling in, will be just as sad or possibly even sadder.

Grantland Rice

The winner of the Charles—Woodcock vs. Savold contest won't require much on either side. This is just as well since neither side has much to offer. At the very best, such a meeting should be worth perhaps a $10 top, if you happen to have $10 you don't need.

There is no complaint about the N.B.A. calling the Charles-Walcott fiasco a championship fight. It was a terrible fight to watch from start to finish. Jersey Joe Walcott started at a rather brisk pace but, after the second round, suddenly decided that he was through for the evening.

He had collected three pretty fair purses in a row and he had been around 19 years. He had squeezed about all he could out of mediocrity.

You can't keep on making lemonades out of one lemon.

Certainly the heavyweight situation doesn't want any more of Jersey Joe Walcott. This recent show was one place where the promoters had to work without any working material.

The fight mob for years had been accustomed to fellows like Dempsey, Tunney and Louis who could box and also punch. Tunney was no stick of dynamite but he could cut you up and hurt you. The fight mob had become too accustomed to Joe Louis to start cheering for an Ezzard Charles or a Joe Walcott, minus any part of personal appeal. Or even impersonal appeal.

Charles was at least willing to fight, while to Walcott the thought of hitting someone or being hit was decidedly abhorrent. Walcott would have been an ideal soldier in the War of the Roses.

More About Charles

Charles is a serious, earnest young fellow who is a good boxer and who is willing. But he is never overanxious. He is careful. He tried to make a fight of it but his punching was too feathery to make him dangerous.

Charles is not much of a puncher, even with a fair shot at some antagonist. Here was Walcott in front of him for 15 rounds and yet Walcott emerges without a knockdown or a scratch outside of a split upper lip.

This isn't the type of fighter who is going to revive the lagging fight game and start the multitude cheering loudly. For all of that Ezzard Charles is very likely the best heavyweight fighter left in the world today.

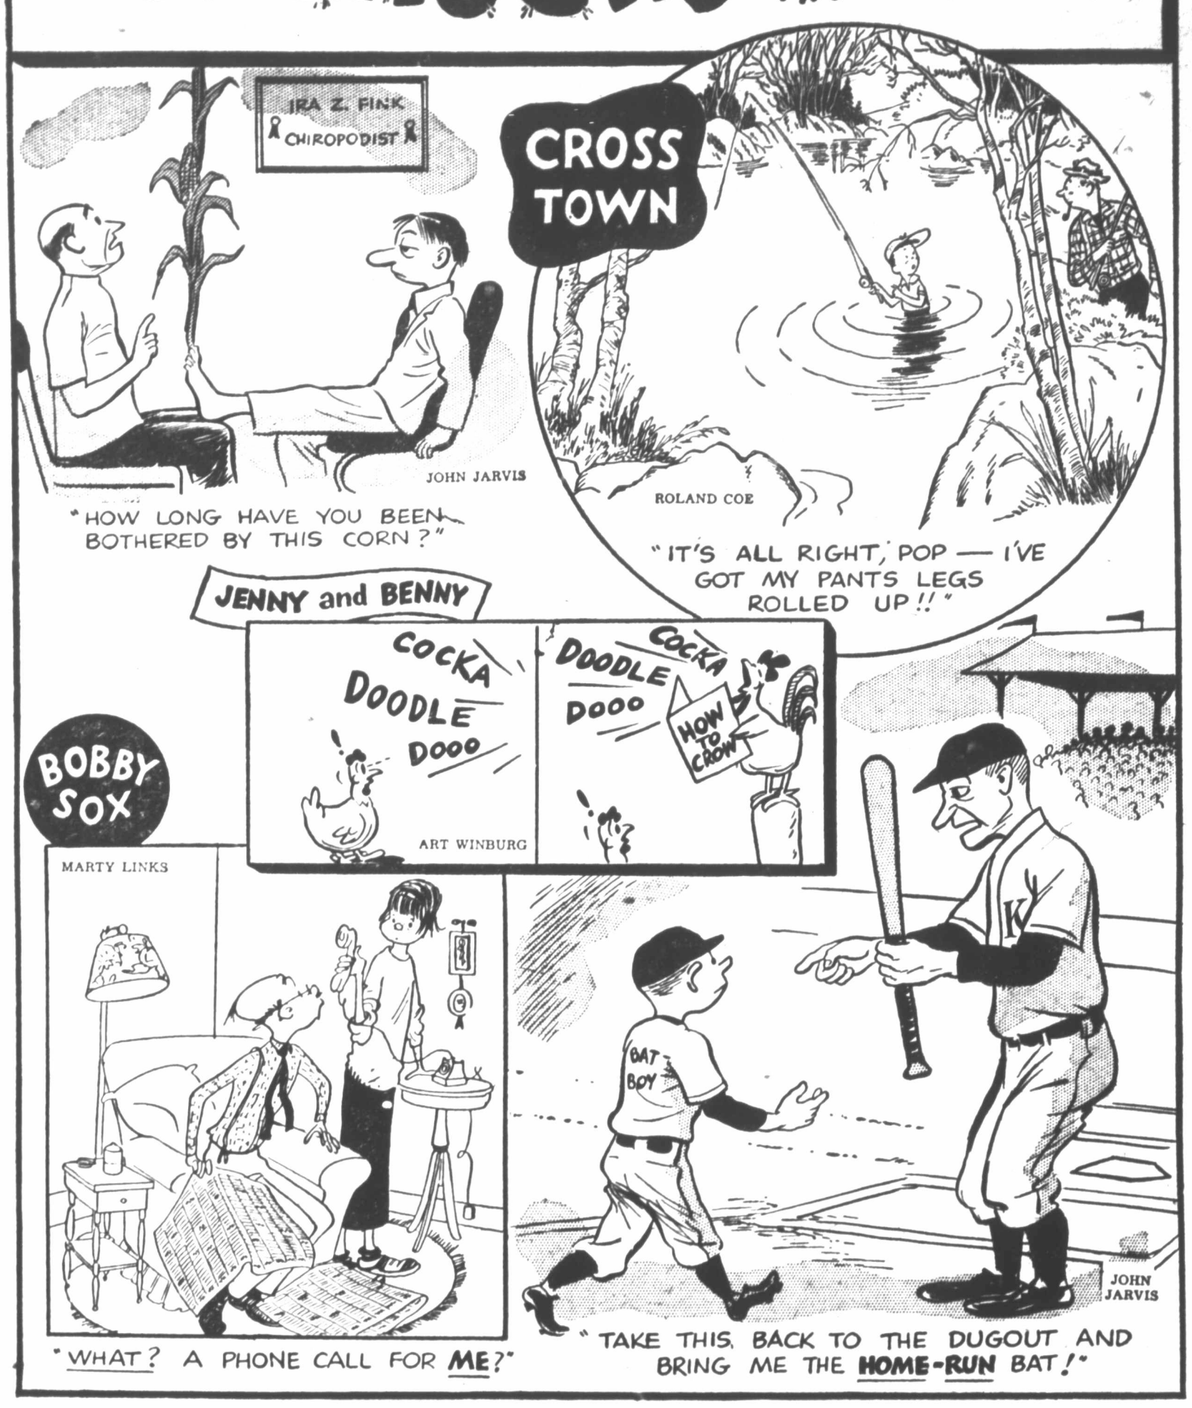

He should have no great trouble handling either Woodcock or Savold. Woodcock never was very much and Savold is well over the hill. Charles lacks any touch of fire or flame. He is merely a pretty good workman who is involved with inferior material.

Louis has been through for several years. His title was worth at least a million dollars to some ambitious fellow who could learn how to box and punch. The inducement has been the richest prize in sport.

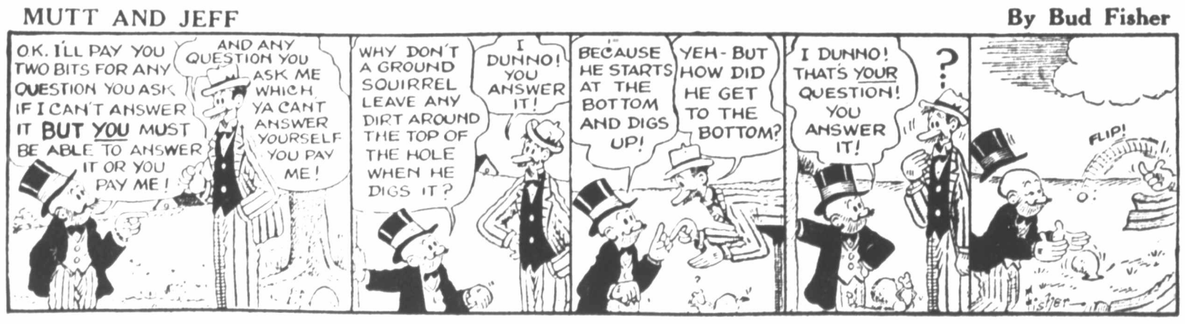

The ring game has had at least six years in which to develop just one fighter, one good fighter. The net result has been Ezzard Charles, who, in baseball parlance, would be rated a .270 hitter.

Gene Tunney stopped Tom Heeney and retired in July, 1928. Max Schmeling won from Jack Sharkey on a foul in July, 1930.

Boy Scouts Pick Historic Site For Jamboree

NEW YORK.—The Boy Scouts of America has selected Valley Forge, Pa., for its second national scout jamboree in 1950, Dr. Arthur Schuck, chief scout executive of the organization, announces.

Over 30,000 Boy Scouts from every state and all U. S. territories will camp together from June 30 to July 6, 1950 on the site notable as the winter encampment of George Washington and his continental army from Dec. 19, 1777 to June 19, 1778.

Valley Forge park is owned, maintained and preserved by the commonwealth of Pennsylvania. An invitation to hold the jamboree there was received from Governor James H. Duff by the Boy Scouts of America and accepted by its national executive board, Dr. Schuck announced.

Will Climax Crusade

The national jamboree will be the climax of the Boy Scouts' two-year crusade to "Strengthen the arm of liberty."

Gov. Duff's invitation to the Boy Scouts was accepted after a dozen sites in all sections of the United States were inspected by the engineering service of the Boy Scouts of America.

Gov. Duff's invitation addressed to Dr. Schuck follows:

"On behalf of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the Valley Forge park commission, I wish to extend to the Boy Scouts of America a cordial invitation to hold their jamboree at Valley Forge park during the summer of 1950 at such time as their executives may elect.

"I am fully acquainted with the Boy Scouts' program for the year 1950—to 'crusade to strengthen the arm of liberty'— and it was my privilege last February in an address at Gettsyburg to sponsor this crusade for the commonwealth of Pennsylvania. I can visualize no more appropriate location for its climax than Valley Forge where the sacrifice and training were undergone on the basis of which our heritage of liberty was won.

"You may be assured of the full cooperation of the commonwealth and its agencies. The Valley Forge park commission will make available the facilities it has at its disposal during the period of preparation. Should your national executive board accept this invitation, the Valley Forge park commission will be designated as the coordinating agency of the commonwealth with which you should develop your detailed plans insofar as they involve the commonwealth."

To Occupy 600 Acres

Boy Scout officials announced that the jamboree camp will probably occupy 600 of the 2,033 acres in Valley Forge park. This would provide 32 sectional camps for a maximum of 40,320 scouts and adult leaders and a headquarters camp for 460 leaders. Valley Forge park is 20 miles northwest of Philadelphia and seven miles west of Norristown.

The first national scout jamboree was held in a 480-acre tent city on both sides of the Potomac river at Washington, D.C., from June 30 to July 9, 1937 at the invitation of President Franklin D. Roosevelt. It brought together 27,232 scouts and leaders whose fees paid for the expenses of the entire jamboree. President Roosevelt not only visited the huge jamboree camp but took part in the "stand still parade" in his honor on Constitution avenue. The scout campers lined the entire length of the historic avenue and were reviewed by the President as he drove between their lines.

Boy Scouts of twenty-four other nations were guests at the encampment.

Communists Move to Quell Belief in Ploesti Images

BUCHAREST.—Hundreds of people in Ploesti reported seeing an image of the Virgin Mary and the Infant in a shop window on the main square.

Word of blessings bestowed by the vision spread over the Romanian oil city of 100,000 population and out into the country.

Then the Communists wheeled into action with a debunking mission. The militia moved in a week ago to break up crowds blocking traffic on a main international highway running past the shop.

The crowds moved off to other shops where some reported seeing other members of the holy family. The militia then whitewashed the shop windows and hundreds attracted from the countryside turned away disappointed.

The official Communist newspaper Scanteia gave this version of what happened: "Reactionary" elements at night washed the windows on the inside with kerosene. When sunbeams hit the oil spectrum in daylight all the colors of the rainbow were reflected and mass suggestion did the rest."

Device Aids Electric Organ to Make Use Of Its Own Echo

CHICAGO.—A device no larger than a golf bag, which makes it possible for the electric organ to create and utilize its own echo, provides a modern substitute for the reverberation provided by the stone walls and high vaulted ceilings of large cathedrals.

Official name of the unique device is the Hammond reverberation control. And its sole function, according to engineers, is production of the echoes which alone assure full organ performance.

Explaining the use of reverberation control, organ experts point out that echo is present in varying degree in all music and in most sound, being that part of sound which reaches the listener's ear by reflection from neighboring surfaces, rather than by straight air line. Because early churches mainly were large and solidly constructed, most people naturally learned to prefer organ music with considerable echo, they add.

Need of the echo-maker became acute when some churches built their acoustics especially for speech—a situation that is not the best for musical reception. It also provides the only way in which real organ music can be secured out-of-doors, since the absence of walls would otherwise mean the absence of reverberation and even the largest organ would sound thin and shrill.

The reverberation unit takes the place of nature's own echo by picking up a part of each tone signal from the organ console and carrying it through a mechanism that delays each sound. The delayed signals are amplified and sent on to join the original unaltered electrical impulses or signals.

What the ear then hears is the original music as played by the organist followed quickly by its echo or reverberation, just as in a building part of the music reaches the listener directly and part of it is reflected from walls and ceiling and reaches the ear later than the original music.

The length of the reverberation time is also controlled by the unit, this being an important factor in producing a natural-sounding echo. Some churches have a reverberatio as low as three seconds and other large churches run up to 11 seconds.

Book of Paper Matches Helps Identify Citizen

HAMILTON, OHIO.—A book of paper matches carrying the advertisement of a service station in Covington, Ky., provided the only clue for Hamilton police in solving the identity of an amnesia victim.

Chief John A. Bippus reported a man walked into police headquarters and asked assistance in learning his identity.

"Where am I? What's my name? I've lost my memory," the victim said.

The only clue police found in searching the man was the book of matches bearing the name of the Graham service station, Covington, Ky. Robert Welch, assistant chief, telephoned the station and after describing the victim learned he was John Graham Sr., 54, 1422 Madison ave., Covington, owner of the station.

John Graham Jr., who came to take his father home, told police that the elder Mr. Graham had been ill.

Auckland Hot Springs Prove Value in Actual Instance

AUCKLAND. — Maoris, who placed faith in the curative value of the Keteahi hot springs long before the white man came to New Zealand, recently demonstrated the powers of the waters on the flank of Mount Tongariro.

A party of natives, arriving by auto, carried a 250-pound invalid up to the springs on a stretcher—a rough four-mile trip uphill—and placed him in a bath made in the stream flowing from the hot springs.

Then he was housed in a tent they had erected. After a few days, they reported, the man, who had been crippled by rheumatism, was able to walk to the springs alone and shortly left almost completely cured.

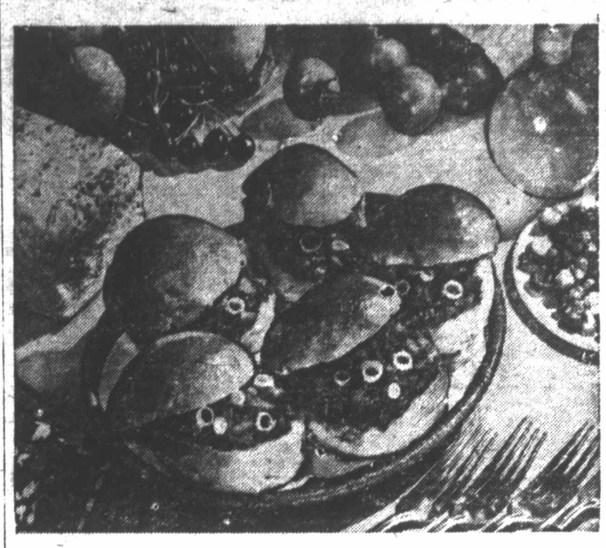

Soviet Humorist Would Make Penalty Fit Crime

MOSCOW.—A humorist in Izvestia, the Soviet government newspaper, suggested today that factory administrators producing poor quality goods be sentenced to wear or use personally their own products.

Author of the article is G. Ryklin. He said the heavy-set director of Riga garment factory should be forced to wear the suits, with narrow, short breeches and pants legs of uneven length sent to Moscow department stores.

He suggested the director of a factory at Sarapul turning out squeaky radio phonographs be condemned to listen to his own machines for six months.

Serve Juicy 'Burgers on your Picnic!
(See Recipes Below)

Picnic Plans

WHEN YOU PLAN an outing, good food that will please everyone has to be part of the picnic plan. In addition to this, have a "packable" lunch that you can carry in a shopping bag, string sack, bandana or hamper.

The less preparation you have at the picnic grounds where everyone will be famishing, the better will be the lunch. If you want to cook the hamburgers or ribs or frankfurters on an outdoor grill, that's all to the good, since this whets appetite to a tantalizing sharpness. However, if you have to wash fruits and vegetables, and pare or scrape them when you get there, this may seem like something of a chore. These are things that can be done much more easily at home.

A SAVORY, well-seasoned meat should be the main interest of the lunch, however. For some this may be old-fashioned picnic 'burgers, roasted frankfurters or barbecued ribs. These are easy to serve on buns which can be purchased ready made, and then simply split and buttered and even toasted while the meat cooks.

Picnic 'Burgers
(Makes 12 'Burgers)

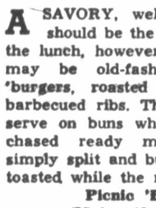

- ¼ cup chopped onion
- 2 tablespoons fat
- 1 pound ground beef
- ½ pound ground veal
- ½ pound ground pork
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- 2 tablespoons soy sauce
- ½ teaspoon dry mustard
- 1 dozen hamburger buns

Brown onion in fat in a large skillet. Add meats, salt, pepper, soy sauce and dry mustard. Cook over low heat for 45 minutes, stirring occasionally. Split hamburger buns and fill with meat mixture. Top with picnic sauce:

- 1 cup tomato sauce, catsup or chili sauce
- ½ cup cider vinegar
- 6 tablespoons sugar
- ½ cup chopped onion
- ⅛ teaspoon cayenne pepper
- ¼ cup chopped green olives
- 2 teaspoons worcestershire sauce

Mix all ingredients together in a saucepan and cook gently over low heat for one-half hour, stirring occasionally. This makes two cups of sauce.

Is it barbecued ribs that you like on your picnic? Here's a delicious and easy way to prepare them: cook the ribs in a pressure saucepan at home to speed the process and then finish in the oven or at the picnic grounds in a skillet, basting them with the sauce.

Barbecued Spareribs
(Serves 5 - 6)

- 2 pounds spareribs, cut in pieces
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- ¼ cup water

LYNN CHAMBERS' MENU

Boiled New Potatoes
Buttered Broccoli
*Summer Cabbage Slaw
Bread and Butter
Sliced Peaches with Cream
*Butterscotch Bars
Beverage
*Recipe Given

- ½ cup catsup
- ¼ cup light molasses
- 1 teaspoon worcestershire sauce
- 1 small onion, chopped

Arrange ribs in pressure saucepan; add salt and water. Cook at 10 pounds pressure for 25 minutes. Remove and place in a shallow roasting pan or skillet. Combine remaining ingredients and bring to a boil. Pour over the ribs and baste with sauce. If baking, cook for 30 minutes. If using the skillet, cook for 35 - 40 minutes.

Hashed Potatoes
(Serves 6)

- 8 potatoes, cooked in jackets
- 4 tablespoons butter
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- 1 cup light cream or top milk

Peel and dice potatoes and cook in butter until slightly browned. Add seasonings. About five minutes before serving, add the cream and heat thoroughly.

Summer Cabbage Slaw
(Serves 6)

- 3 ripe tomatoes, diced
- 1½ cups finely shredded cabbage
- 1 cup sliced green onions
- ¾ teaspoon salt
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- 5 tablespoons light cream
- 1½ tablespoons vinegar
- Lettuce

Combine all vegetables in salad bowl. Add seasonings. Blend together cream and vinegar and pour over salad. Toss lightly and serve on lettuce.

A THOROUGHLY CHILLED watermelon makes delicious picnic. However, any of these other fruits, washed and well chilled before being wrapped, are excellent for a eating at a dessert choice: peaches, pears, apricots, cherries or other berries, grapes or melons.

One or two kinds of cookies make an appetizing accompaniment for the fruit. You'll like either this.

Butterscotch Bars
(Makes 3 dozen)

- ¼ cup butter
- 2 cups brown sugar
- 2 eggs
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 1½ cups sifted flour
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- 1 cup chopped nuts

Melt butter in a heavy saucepan. Add sugar and bring to a boil over low heat, stirring constantly. Cool. Add eggs, one at a time, beating thoroughly. Stir in vanilla, then flour which has been sifted with baking powder. Fold in nuts. Pour into a greased and floured 7 x 9 inch pan and bake in a moderate (350°) oven for 30 - 35 minutes. Cool, then cut in bars.

LYNN SAYS:

Fresh Air Chefs Need Tips

If you are burning charcoal, start the fire an hour ahead of cooking time. For coal, allow one and one-half to two hours. Use enough fuel to build a thick bed of coals.

Getting fancy with the picnic table? Use windproof decorations such as a tray of the fruit for dessert, or low flower arrangements set under a glass or plastic cake cover.

When broiling meat on an outdoor grill, trim off excess fat and snip the edges so the pieces of meat won't curl. Let the fire burn down to red coals, then set a grill three to five inches above the coals and start broiling meat before flames die down.

When using a skillet on an outside grill, set it about 5 inches above the coals.

If you are using sauces for the meat, keep down the fat amount and use more catsup or chili sauce. The fat sputters!

God Can Be Trusted

Lesson for July 31, 1949

EVEN if you do nothing else with this lesson, it will be a good thing to learn by heart some of the Psalms of Trust which have been selected for your study this week. They are far too rich to be treated in one column.

Who Can Trust in God?

PSALM 34:16-22.) Not every one has a right to trust in God. Those who do not believe in him, do not love him, work against him, try to break down and corrupt those who do believe in him — these need expect nothing at his hand. But there are three classes of persons who are encouraged to put their trust in God. One is the "contrite," the repentant, those who sincerely wish to be cut free from their sins—these can surely trust in God for forgiveness. One who cannot trust God for forgiveness has no right to trust him for anything else. Then the "righteous," as the Psalmist calls them, have a right to trust in God.

Dr. Foreman

If that word means only the perfectly and altogether good people, it would leave all of us out. But in the light of the Bible as a whole, the righteous are those whose dominant desire is to love and serve God.

Their service is imperfect, their love is far from perfect, and no man is without sin. But if you can say with Peter, "Lord, thou knowest that I love thee," then you have a right to trust in God. Also the broken-hearted can safely trust in him. Whoever else may break your heart, God will not. He is the great Mender of hearts. For the little sorrows there may be lesser comforters; but the real heart-breaks only God can cure.

Why Trust God?

PSALM 37 gives one answer: The opposite of trust is worry, and worry never did any good at all. Worry eats into the mind, casts no light, gives no strength, solves no problems, worry makes any trouble worse. Then the writer of Psalm 34 gives another reason for trust: he had tried it. If trust in God were simply a doctrine of theology or a theory of preachers, not many people would take it seriously.

Trust is really passed on by a kind of contagion from heart to heart. If there are not more people who know what trust means, it is because those who have known have kept it too much to themselves.

It would be a wonderful stimulus to most churches to have a little "cell" of people who would really agree to trust God every day.

When to Trust in God

ONE of Dicken's famous characters used to make a great point of being cheerful under the most un-cheerful circumstances. Anybody can be jolly when everything is lovely, he said. There's no credit in not worrying when there's nothing to worry about. Although the writers of the Bible, one and all, trusted in God, not one had an easy life. Read Psalm 46, for example; it gives a picture of a world much like ours of today, shaken to its foundations, torn by wars, a desolate, discouraged world. If it made sense to trust only under bright skies, religion would have perished long ago.

For What Shall We Trust God?

NO ONE PSALM puts the whole truth in one nutshell. If you read Psalm 91, for example, by itself, it would seem to prove that if you trust in God you will never die a violent death, nor an early one; but too many saints (and indeed our Lord himself) had died early and violent deaths, for us to take Psalm 91 in that way. Trusting in God does not mean he will give us long life. It means he will give us strength to match our days.

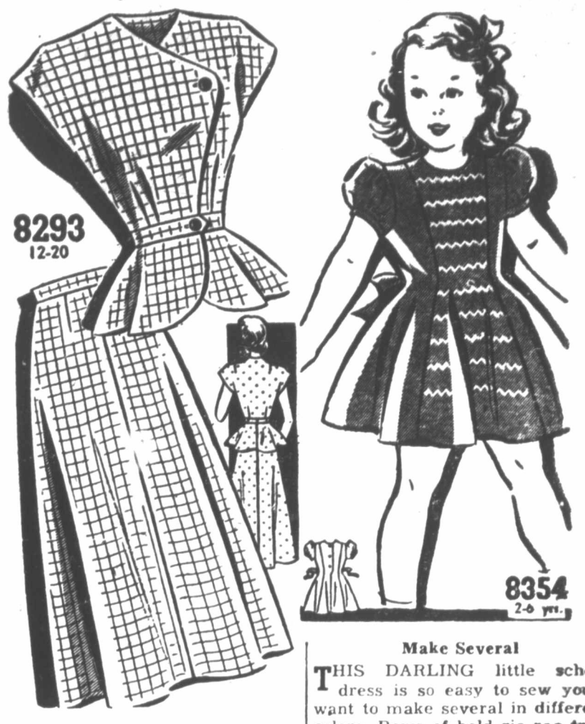

It does mean he will give us all we need. It does not mean we shall be shielded from troubles. It does mean he will save us from troubles greater than we can bear. It does not mean that in this life we shall be wholly free from burdens or from pain; It does mean we shall have strength in our souls (Ps. 138:3).

Which is the greater thing—to be a weakling wearied by a straw's weight, or to be one of God's athletes, able to bear the worst the world can pile on?

Stains from Screens

QUESTION: I had my large porch screened in with copper screening by a good carpenter, who did a fine job. But this copper oxidized and turned black, the stains continually running down on the sash and wood porch. Last summer I had my house painted and went down to a well known paint company for advice. I was told to clean the screening with trisodium and then apply varnish. I applied a good varnish. Well, after my paint job of last summer, the varnish is coming off and staining the porch with yellow varnish. Is there any way I can stop this staining from the varnish?

ANSWER: My guess is that when you used the trisodium, you did not wash it off well afterward, so that the chemical continued its action and softened or otherwise caused the varnish to deteriorate. The varnish that you used may have been good; but perhaps it was not spar varnish, which is meant to withstand the weather. I suggest that you clean off the defective varnish, using the trisodium again or else varnish remover. After giving time for the varnish to soften, clean it off with stiff brushes. Then, if you use the "triso," wash the screens very thoroughly with water.

AMERICA AT PLAY

VACATION! They've picked time and place, and they've planned and saved for months. Now they're off!

That's the American way—the way of free choice—so familiar we take it for granted. A man picks his job, leaves it freely for a better one. He chooses the town he'll work in, the house where he'll live. He saves or spends as he wishes, with only his income and his wife to dictate to him.

It's not that way everywhere. In some countries, the government puts a man in a city, a house, a job, with no choice in the matter. He can't quit, leave town or move around the corner without permission. If he gets a vacation, he is told where and when to go. The government runs everything, the people nothing.

That's what happens when a free people turn over their responsibilities to their government. They also turn over their freedom of choice. Socialism is the result. How does Socialism happen? Not overnight. It is woven slowly, a thread at a time, into the bonds of slavery. Little by little the government assumes powers other than governing—until it finally assumes all power.

In this country, the government has already entered the electric light and power business—and is aiming at medicine, steel, railroads, and other industries. That is how Socialism got its start in other countries. Talk to your friends and neighbors and see how they feel about this creeping Socialism that threatens your way of life.

FARM PROGRAM NEWS
from the County-Agricultural Conservation Committee

New Grower Wheat Allotments

Farmers who plan to seed wheat this fall on farms that did not grow wheat in 1947, 1948, or 1949 should make a written request to the AAA office for a New Grower allotment in the near future.

Allotments will be in effect on 1950 wheat. If the 1950 wheat allotment is over seeded the grower will not be eligible for price support wheat loans; however, money penalty will be charged to market the wheat since marketing quotas were not declared for the 1050 wheat crop.

The only penalty for over seeding the wheat allotmen will be the loss of price support benefits—not eligible to put the wheat in the loan.

Surplus Irish potatoes are now available for livestock feed. The price is 35 cents for hundred prepaid on car lots of 30000 pounds (300 bags). Several cars have been purchased. Corley Rogers, S. O. Latham, Wiley Walker, and August Hackfeld report satisfactory results in the use of potatoes for feed. The supply is limited. Interested farmers are urged to place their orders as soon as possible.

Funds for terracing are still available. The committee hopes to see over 1000 miles of new terraces built during 1949. A thousand miles of terraces will protect over 15,000 acres of top soil in Mitchell County.

Did you know the PMA (AAA) will run your lines free and pay $19.20 per mile to help build terraces. Written approval must be secured before the work begins. Need some terraces on your grain fields; some potatoes to feed your livestock; some information relative to other program activities? This proram is for all farmers. See your Committeeman or the local office for desired imformation and service.

Mr. and Mrs. Max Hallman moevd Thursday to Lovington, New Mexico.
