Nicaraguan Capital Under Heavy Fire

Rebels Push Near Somoza 'Bunker'

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Sandinista guerrillas launched attacks in the heart of Managua Saturday, battling government troops within blocks of President Anastasio Somoza's fortified compound.

A broadcast on the clandestine Sandino radio station claimed Somoza had fled Nicaragua, but a presidential aide said Somoza was meeting with cabinet members at his headquarters in the compound known as "the bunker."

Bomb blasts and gunfire rattled the capital and a national guard jet strafed the western sector of the city. Officials said Managua was braced for a major assault.

U.S. Studies Evacuation

In Washington, the State Department announced the United States is "actively considering" evacuating about 50 dependents of American diplomats, most of whom live in the Managua area.

Despite a night curfew and the government's declared state of siege, guerrillas launched hit-and-run attacks and ambushes of national guard patrols throughout Managua. There also was constant sniping. In a western zone of the capital, witnesses said local residents helped rebels erect street barricades that were strafed by a national guard T-33 jet.

A gunfight broke out after several food stands in the central market caught fire and at least two persons were killed, witnesses said.

Rebel Forces Estimated

There was no official estimate of the number of guerrillas in Managua, but political observers said they believed there were several hundred trained guerrillas in the capital, aided by hundreds of other rebels, mostly teenagers.

Fighting was reported in most other major cities and both the national guard and rebels claimed victory in a battle near the southern border with Costa Rica.

The national guard issued a statement saying a guerrilla offensive near the frontier had been crushed, with 48 "members of the international communist mercenary brigade" killed and the others fleeing into Costa Ria. It claimed troops had seized "large quantities of arms in the operation, including 50-caliber machine guns."

Casualties Claimed

In La Cruz, Costa Rica, a Sandinista platoon leader who identified himself as Manuel said guerrillas killed at least 50 guardsmen while suffering only five slain in the battle inside Nicaragua. He said about 500 guardsmen tried to storm guerrilla positions and were repulsed by "a furious barrage of mortar and heavy caliber machine-gun fire." La Cruz is about 12 miles from the frontier.

Some members of Somoza's Cabinet, including Foreign Minister Julio Quintana, moved into the Intercontinental Hotel next door to Somoza's headquarters, better known as "the bunker."

"The situation is very delicate. We're expecting a major attack in Managua," Qui (tana said.

In western Managua's poor neighborhood of Nicarao, where the jet went into action, guard sources said uniformed guerrillas with automatic weapons manned the barricades.

A resident said he saw half a dozen guerrillas, "kids 14 to 22 years old" run past his house in a southeastern neighborhood. The man, who asked not to be indentified, said national guard trucks arrived later apparently chasing the youths.

Ricocheting tracer bullets could be seen from the International Hotel early Saturday and residents who ventured out in the morning found some streets blocked by smoldering automobiles.

Mangua and the rest of the nation were in the sixth day of a general strike that has shut down most businesses and transport facilities.

Some residents scurried out in the early morning to stand in line at food stands and neighborhood stores, willing to pay exorbitant prices for basic commodities.

The clandestine Radio Sandino warned that a general insurrection was coming in Managua and urged residents to stock up on food and water.

National guard sources said the anti-

Warm Days In Forecast Needed For Drying Out

FAIR SKIES and dry, warmer days are forecast for Lubbock area residents through Monday, although the rain which poured 1.62 inches into the city in six hours Saturday will take some time to dry out.

Temperatures in the upper 70s are expected today, with Monday's mark reaching the middle 80s.

The slow-moving cold front that brought the wet and cloudy weather to the area is continuing eastward, leaving clear skies and warmer air for the South Plains area.

The relative humidity is expected to be 95 percent this morning, decreasing to 35 percent this afternoon. No rain is in the forecast through Monday.

Sunshine today and Monday is expected to evaporate some of the moisture in the wake of heavy, wind-driven rains that hit Abernathy, Brownfield, Crosbyton, Dimmitt, Hereford, Jayton, Lamesa, Levelland, Littlefield, Morton, Muleshoe, Paducah, Plains, Plainview, Snyder, Tahoka and Tulia early Saturday.

Lubbock, Crosby, Lynn, Dickens and Garza counties were under a flash flood watch Saturday morning and some streets in low-lying areas were blocked.

The 50th Street route to Buffalo Springs Lake, east of Lubbock, was reported barricaded for a few hours Saturday, although lake officials said the water didn't deter crowds. The campground road at the lake was closed to traffic because the lake was spilling over its banks, covering some piers. But a spokesman said people managed to reach the lake via other roads and arrived for "a lot of fishing."

Golfball-size hail was reported in Monahans at dawn Saturday and a tornado warning was in effect for about 30 minutes in Lubbock, but no funnel was sighted.

Residents of Coleman thought at first a tornado had struck their city of 5,600 near Spur. But police said it was a high straight wind which damaged a drive-in theatre, a motel, barns and trees. The town was without telephone service and electricity for awhile.

Gov. Bill Clements has designated today through Saturday as Hurricane Awareness Week and although South Plains residents won't be experiencing any hurricanes, Clements noted that hurricanes spawn tornadoes which do reach inland.

Texas was not the only state receiving heavy rains this weekend. Other water-logged areas included Colorado's southern mountains and San Luis Valley, west central Missouri, southern Indiana and Oklahoma, where nearly five inches of rain flooded Barnsdall during a 12-hour period.

Summer Job Seekers Outnumber Positions

By PAULA TILKER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

WITH THE SCHOOL term ended, between 4,000 and 5,000 students will be seeking summer employment — and there aren't enough jobs in Lubbock for them all, one job market analyist says.

Bert Darden, office manager of the Texas Employment Commission here, said the TEC conservatively estimates up to 5,000 Texas Tech and high school students want jobs.

But, he added, "There's just not enough jobs to go around."

To aid students, the TEC has a summer youth employment program that connects private sector jobs with jobseekers.

Also, the South Plains Association of Governments, working with federal CETA funds, guarantees public sector jobs to about 400 economically disadvantaged Lubbock youths.

Already, Darden said, 2,500 students have applied to the TEC program, which has been operating only a week.

"If we place one-third to one-half of the youths registered with us, we're doing pretty good," he added.

The TEC refers applicants to jobs in offices, food services and manual labor, among other things. "In a lot of cases, we have sent youths out to private residences to do things like wash windows, mow yards, etc.," Darden said.

"We're just interested in anything for the youths."

After an applicant is referred to a prospective employer, the TEC bows out of the picture, Darden said. It is up to the employer whether he wants to hire the student.

The TEC program, cosponsored by the Lubbock Board of Realtors, has an office at 1104 Ave. J. It is open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays, and still is taking applications.

The application cutoff for the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act program, which starts Monday, was May 25, said Juanita Forbes, CETA administrator. Not until those students are placed will additional applications be processed, she said.

The CETA program, budgeted for $575,000, guarantees public sector jobs to about 160 students aged 14 and 15, as well as to about 240 students aged 16 to 21, said Karen King, program organizer.

The younger group starts Monday, and the older group a week later.

Doctors Revising Old Standards On Expectant Mothers' Weight

By SUE MORRISON
Avalanche-Journal Staff

OBSTETRICIANS WHO USED TO CAUTION expectant mothers against gaining too much weight now advise their patients not to worry about gaining 20 to 25 pounds during pregnancy.

In fact, a recent medical journal article stresses that overweight women who are pregnant should not diet and that full-term babies born overweight will be healthier than full-term infants weighing less than 5 1/2 pounds.

Writing in the The Florida Medical Association Journal, Dr. Charles S. Mahan, a University of Florida obstetrician-gynecologist, says it is important for the health of the baby that a woman eat well during pregnancy. Dieting can wait until after the baby is born, Mahan said.

Dr. Preston DeShan, a Lubbock obstetrician-gynecologist, agrees that women should gain more weight during pregnancy than was encouraged 10 years ago.

"We used to tell women to gain about 15 to 17 pounds during pregnancy, but now we know there should be more weight gain," he said.

DeShan explained that the weight of the fetus and surrounding tissue generated by pregnancy alone weighs 18-19 pounds. Plus, he said, a woman will tend to gain more because of fluid retention and other factors during pregnancy.

Overweight women are not encouraged to lose weight during pregnancy, he said, because certain chemicals produced as a result of rapid weight loss can harm the fetus.

"This is harmful for the baby because the fetus becomes malnourished and the chance for miscarriage, a stillborn baby and death of the baby during delivery is increased," DeShan said.

Dr. Harlan Giles, an obstetrician-gynecologist at the Texas Tech University School of Medicine, said pregnant women should gain different amounts of weight depending on her size before pregnancy.

If a woman weighs what she should for her height and bone structure, she should gain from 20 to 25 pounds, he said. If she is underweight, she should gain about 30 pounds, and if she is overweight, about 15 pounds.

"Of course, the rate of gain is as important as the amount," Giles emphasized. "A woman should gain about 10 pounds by the 20th week, and the gain should always be on a gradual curve."

DeShan said many people still believe a healthy baby is one with "triple chins and rolls of fat that appear above the elbow even when the baby's arm is extended."

"That picture of a healthy baby is just not accurate. A baby that looks that way is overweight, and the problem needs to be taken care of."

Both doctors said an overweight woman won't necessarily deliver an overweight baby.

Giles explained there are certain factors that would cause a baby to be overweight, such as a diabetic mother, but these factors are beyond nutritional control.

If a baby is overweight, there is a greater chance of having to perform a Caesarian section and risking injury and birth trauma to the baby during delivery, both doctors said.

Giles noted that a healthy baby should weigh between 6

Three Names Cited In Quest For Tech Interim President

By RUTHANNE BROCKWAY
Avalanche-Journal Staff

WITH TEXAS TECH president Cecil Mackey leaving for Michigan State University within two months, Tech regents must appoint someone to take charge of the university until they choose a new president.

Regents will consider naming an acting president Friday when they meet in closed session. Sources say the top three contenders for the job are Dr. Glenn Barnett, vice president for planning; Dr. Charles Hardwick, vice president for academic affairs; and Dr. J. Knox Jones Jr., vice president for research and graduate studies.

The board, however, has the authority to appoint anyone and is not legally bound to choose a candidate from the administration. At some schools, deans have been appointed as acting presidents. And, in rare cases, regents have been appointed as interim presidents.

But Barnett is "the obvious choice," one Tech insider said, noting that Barnett was executive vice president of the university before Mackey arrived in 1976 and gave him his present title.

Barnett, who will be 63 next month, was considered for the president's post at Tech three years ago.

But, one source said, "He's not a candidate for the permanent post this time. He's about ready to retire."

That same observer, however, believes Barnett will be chosen acting president because, "He understands the operation of the university and he will do what the regents want."

By virtue of his title, 47-year-old Hardwick is a prospect. Hardwick was never a dean, but rose from chairman of the Tech philosophy department to the administrative level when appointed vice president for academic affairs in 1976.

Sources say Jones, 50, whose background is in zoology, museums and graduate research, will be considered by regents because he is personable and is familiar with the university's operation.

Jones also is on the faculty of the Tech medical school, which may be a strong point in his favor now that Dr. Richard Lockwood, vice president for Health Sciences Centers, has resigned.

Athough Lockwood agreed to stay until his replacement is found, if he does leave before then, an acting president with an interest in the medical school, such as Jones, would be an asset.

Jones joined the medical school in 1973 as an adjunct professor of veterinary and zoological medicine. He now is listed in the medical school directory as an adjunct professor of pathology.

Some regents reportedly were shocked when Mackey told them in closed session last month that Lockwood had submitted his resignation. There is a strong feeling on campus that regents may ask Lockwood to tear up his resignation letter and remain at the school now that Mackey is leaving.

A long-shot prospect for the job of

Gas Station Dispute Leads To Killing

NEW YORK (AP) — A 29-year-old Manhattan man was fatally stabbed Saturday after a dispute with another man in a line for gasoline at a Brooklyn service station, police said.

Police said Fritz Boutain had been arguing with an unidentified man whose car was behind Boutain's in a line at a Shell station in Flatbush. Boutain apparently felt the other man had come too close to his car. After a short discussion, the men went back to their cars, according to police.

Then, police said, the unidentified man pulled out a "sharp weapon" and stepped from his car to stab Boutain. The attacker then fled the scene in his car.

Boutain died at Kings County Hospital.

Floods Threaten Midwestern Areas

By The Associated Press

Rising flood waters surging through Midwestern rivers in the wake of heavy, late spring rains threatened lives and menaced property in Indiana, Kansas and Missouri Saturday.

And in Colorado, another storm system caused trouble for highway officials, homeowners and deer by dumping heavy rains and even some snow on the state.

Early Saturday, the National Weather Service issued flash flood warnings for parts of DuBois, Perry, Warrick and Crawford counties.

"We're surrounded by water," Crawford County Sheriff William Gilliland said, describing English. "The business district and some residences are full of water, between one and two feet."

Gilliland said some residents in low-lying areas began leaving their homes early Saturday. The evacuees were taken to homes on higher ground.

The Camp Fork River left its banks overnight and was lapping at the north edge of the bridge that leads into town, he said. "It's started to go down, but it could come back up again."

In Kansas, hundreds of persons chased from their homes by a record flood on the Walnut River in the south-central part of the state began going home Saturday, and two downstream communities braced for high water expected Sunday and Monday.

David Brandon, flood forecaster for the weather service in Topeka, said the water was receding in El Dorado and Augusta, but was expected to crest in Winfield Sunday and in Arkansas City on Monday.

The waters that poured into the streets of El Dorado andAugusta Friday blocked roads and downed power and telephone lines. In Augusta, the municipal electric plant was knocked out. No deaths or injuries were reported.

City officials in Winfield, where a levee handles water up to 10 feet over flood stage, made emergency preparations Saturday.

The National Weather Service said clearing was expected to begin in western sections of the state Saturday night. Partly cloudy skies were forecast for most of the state Sunday.

Residents were evacuated from an estimated 1,500 houses in low-lying areas of Augusta Friday. With the help of National Guard troops, they were being escorted home Friday night and Saturday.

In neighboring Missouri, a van carrying four persons ran off a bridge into a rain-swollen creek in western Missouri early Saturday. Authorities were searching for three other van occupants and for a man who apparently tried to rescue them.

The Missouri Highway Patrol said the van, which was pulling a camper-trailer, ran off a bridge over Dry Wood Creek about eight miles west of the town of Nevada near the Kansas-Missouri state line.

Colorado was cold as well as wet. Temperatures barely got above 50 in most of the state, and dipped below freezing in the mountains, where some points reported more than a foot of new snow since a storm began on Thursday.

Flash flood watches for southern Colorado lifted early Saturday morning. Most of the precipitation fell along the Front Range, with accumulations of 2 to 3 inches from Fort Collins to Pueblo.

Press Merger Probes Urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — Reporters should look into the effects of conglomerate mergers on American society, the chairman of the Federal Trade Commission said Saturday.

FTC head Michael Pertschuk told a group of investigative reporters in Boston that the implications on American institutions of the recent trend toward large mergers have gone largely unreported.

"The growth of the conglomerate presence and corporate militancy has, I believe, serious implications for our economic, political and social institutions," Pertschuk said.

"Yet the impact of these developments on local communities, national policy, and even the reshaping of Congress has gone largely unrecognized and unreported," he said.

Pertschuk is a consistent critic of conglomerate mergers, where one large company buys out another in an unrelated field. He has supported legislation to curb large corporate acquisitions, saying that the FTC and other agencies with antitrust jurisdiction can stop mergers of related companies but have a hard time preventing conglomerate mergers.

The antitrust laws are designed to maintain competition among American businesses and lower prices to consumers.

Pertschuk contends that conglomerate mergers also centralize economic and political power in too few hands.

"Last year the value of all publicly announced mergers exceeded $34 billion, the highest dollar volume in the past 10 years," Pertschuk said. He said the number of $100 million mergers has gone from four in the first quarter of 1977 to 13 during the same period last year, to 24 in the first three months of this year.

He said the merger craze has led to far more corporate involvement in politics. "Between 1974 and 1978, while labor's political action committees increased in number by about 35 percent, the number of corporate political action committees expanded more than seven fold," he said.

In his speech to Investigative Reporters and Editors Inc., Pertschuk said the conglomerate merger story should move from the "what's happening in commerce today" column of the business pages to page-one investigative reports.

He suggested these story angles to the reporters:

—Telling how a locally owned firm was merged into a larger company with distant corporate headquarters. "Has the quality of management involvement in the community changed? Was the merger followed by lay-offs or plant closings?" —Looking into whether contributions of corporate political action committees have preceded changes in the voting record of a member of congressman.

—How much companies have spent on political activities. "Published lobbying expenses, of course, rarely scratch the surface. The costs of the ubiquitous lawyers, public relations firms, public affars programs, etc., may be marked by artful accounting, but ferreting them out is essential to public understanding of the ways in which the debate is stacked in many areas of critical public policy," Pertschuk said.

Official Eyes Marijuana Law Revision

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Deputy Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti suggests it might be best to legalize mild forms of marijuna because so many Americans smoke it they are supporting an enormous "hoodlum drug society."

Civiletti, the leading candidate to replace Attorney General Griffin Bell when he leaves office, made clear in an interview he has no intention of advocating all forms of marijuana be legitimized, citing studies indicating frequent smoking can cause serious health hazards.

But Civiletti said he may recommend a "legal method of safe use" of mild marijuana — The first time the administration has indicated it is considering another overhaul of marijuana laws.

"It may be that we will find that some form of mild marijuana may be permissible — so long as there is strong deterrent effect on abuse in massive strong quantities," he said.

Civiletti revealed that in the last two months he has ordered a top-level assessment of the "marijuana problem — the fact of life that we have between 8 (million) and 10 million at least occasional users."

If the marijuana laws are changed, he said, it might be best to use updated medical research to determine how much and what kind could be used, and make "even more absolute" prohibitions against abuse of that law. Civiletti said he does not know what degree of strength might be safe.

He said if studies show that mild marijuana can be safely used, the United States might work to change international treaties to permit its sale.

"I'm speculating," he said, "but it might be an improvement over what is a very difficult situation now."

He said the apparent public acceptance of "occasional use of a small quantity of marijuana" has spawned such a demand for the weed that it is supporting "a hoodlum drug society of enormous proportions and vicious tendencies."

In addition, huge amounts of money are flowing out of the country to pay for the illegal herb, he said.

The latest government study, based on 1977 data, says at least 43 million Americans have tried marijuana. The numbers have risen sharply since criminal penalties for marijuana were reduced in recent years.

Civiletti's statement that he is considering easing the law was made in an interview shortly before HEW Secretary Joseph Califano announced publicly last week that marijuana would remain a tightly restricted controlled substanee even for medical use — at least for the time being.

But Civiletti said he has been working behind the scenes with Califano, Assistant Attorney General Philip Heymann, and Peter Bensinger, head of the Drug Enforcement Administration, on a policy review that includes a new medical analysis of pot's effects.

Officials say they hope to arrive at a policy decision in late summer or early fall.

Civiletti expressed particular concern over the current massive demand for strong marijuana. He said recent research indicates prolonged use of THC, marijuana's major active ingredient, "may have more debilitating effects on human health" than previously thought.

Bensinger, in a separate interviel this week, reacted cautiously to the suggestion of legalizing some forms of marijuana, saying research to date shows the worst health effects of marijuana smoking fall on teen-agers.

He said if marijuana were sold over the counter, it would be limited to adults, and that "would not cut back on black marketing" — the criminal element still would thrive on selling the drug to youths.

Bensinger stressed that the DEA is focusing solely on marijuana smuggling rings and not on catching marijuana smokers.

Larry Schott, executive director of the National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws, said Civiletti's statement "reflects, certainly, the beginnings of an attitude of recognizing reality."

Canal Pact Draws Heavy Opposition

WASHINGTON (AP) — With the House nearing a vote on legislation to implement the Panama Canal treaties, the leader of a conservative citizen's lobby is forecasting a setback for the Carter administration.

Howard Phillips, national director of the Conservative Caucus, said that President Carter "will suffer his first major legislative defeat on a foreign policy issue."

Meanwhile, an official of the U.S. Catholic Conference expressed concern over the possibility the House will refuse to implement the accords.

"This is a moment of great potential for the people of our hemisphere; it should not be squandered," said Archbishop John R. Quinn of San Francisco, the conference president.

300 Persons Die During Heat Wave

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — At least 300 persons have died during a six-week heat wave that has plagued farm areas and dried up water supplies in northern and eastern India, All-India Radio reported.

The hottest place in the country Friday was Narsingpur in Madhya Pradesh state, which registered 117 degrees for two consecutive days.

In West Bengal, a state leader reported that the equivalent of $280 million worth of crops have been damaged or destroyed by drought brought on by the heat wave, the United News of India said.

Fiery Explosion Kills Four In Missouri

POPLAR BLUFF, Mo. (AP) — A tractor-trailer truck and a pickup truck collided Saturday, crashed into a gasoline station and set off an explosion and fire that killed four persons, including a 3-year-old girl, authorities said.

Three other persons were injured in the fire, which threatened the service station's underground fuel tanks for three hours before firemen could bring it under control.

"Bodies were scattered all over the place," said Austin Jones, 27, who was working on a house near the combination service station and store, Thurman's One-Stop.

A Butler County deputy sheriff said the victims were the elderly driver of the pickup, his wife, a second woman riding in the pickup and her daughter. Two boys also in the pickup and the driver of the tractor-trailer were injured.

Sharon Gill, a county resident, said she had stopped across from the intersection of U.S. 67 and Missouri 160 when the collision occurred.

"The little truck just pulled onto the highway. The big truck never had a chance. I don't think he even ad time to hit his brakes," Mrs. Gill said.

She said the driver of the pickup, identified as William H. Meadors, 70, of Memphis, Tenn., "was thrown from the truck and was caught underneath and was dragged."

The injured were identified as cousins Kenneth Meadors, 15, of Hayti, Mo., and Richard Hoerst, 8, of Kaiser, W.Va., and the tractor-trailer driver Clyde Goad, 51, of Potosi, Mo.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day and evening when there are conflicting views. Make sure you accept them in a philosophical and intelligent fashion so that you will be able to handle them properly.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Look over your property and make plans for improvement. Show more devotion for your mate and express happiness together.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Concentrate on how to be more productive in the future. An intuitive prompting could be erroneous so don't follow it.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) If you get together with congenials today, you can talk leisurely and make fine plans for the days ahead.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Plan how to handle problematical affairs and then do something about them. Show more consideration for loved one.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Find the right outlet for your special talents. Plan how to stretch your finances so you will have more security in the future.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Try to please family members and come to a better understanding. Take no risks where your reputation is concerned.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Be sensible in handling matters of communications and get good results. Study new ideas that can be of help to you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Are you sure you are living according to your philosophical beliefs? Concentrate on it. Have the courage of your convictions.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Analyze how close you are to realizing your fondest goals and plan for greater abundance. Think constructively.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Concentrating on how to become a more powerful person is wise now. Discuss the future with family members.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Study your friends well and know where they fit into your plans for the future. Strive for the fuller, richer life.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Know your true position with the public, especially with those who have power over your affairs. Make this a worthwhile day.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY...he or she will be one who can comprehend the ideas and viewpoints of others, so give the best scholastic training you can afford. Good religious training is important here. One who will love sports and be good at them.

Point Of View Vital In Childrens' Photos

Cute pictures of children are always good entries for a snapshot contest, but they don't necessarily have to be full-faced views that concentrate on the expression. Those are great, but sometimes the judges' eyes are caught by the shot that doesn't even show the face, but tells a story simply by the position of the body or the action involved.

Keep this in mind when you are looking through the pictures you've taken since July 1, 1978 to see what you'd like to send to The Avalanche-Journal contest and have it win its way to the Kodak International Newspaper Snapshot Awards' final judging and a try for your share of $55,000 in cash-and-travel prizes.

The contest is open to any amateur photographer, but photos must have been shot after July 1, 1978. Contestants may enter as many photos in color or black-and-white categories. Contestant's name, address and phone number must be printed on revers side of photo. Weekly winners will receive parchment certificates from The A-J and Kodak. Finalists' also will receive handsome certificates, $50 in cash from The A-J and their entries will be forwarded to Kodak for the international competition, offering $55,000 in cash and trips.

The dealine for entering is midnight July 14.

Winner's of the first week's competition will be announced Sunday, June 17.

New Health Insurance Plan Proposed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Richard Schweiker, R-Pa., proposed a national health insurance plan Saturday that calls for big companies to offer employees at least three insurance policies and give rebates to those who choose less expensive ones.

Schweiker, ranking Republican on the Senate health subcommittee, said his proposal would generate greater competition in the health insurance market while holding down costs and providing catastrophic health coverage encentive.

He said it would cost $3.7 billion less than current spending on health care in the public and private sector. Aides to the senator said the bill would be scheduled for introduction later this summer.

Schweiker's plan will be ompeting with at least two others — one already proposed by Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., the health subcommittee chairman, and an administration proposal expected to be sent to Capitol Hill this week.

"Our health insurance system now resembles a free lunch arrangement for doctors and hospitals," Schweiker said. "They order the tests and provide the equipment. Then the insurance companies pay the bills and later pass the cost on to consumers in the form of higher insurance premiums."

He said the practice increases the odds that catastrophic illness "will lead to bankruptcy."

The key to cost containment in Schweiker's proposal is taxfree rebates.

Employers would spend an equal amount on health benefits for each employee, according to a rate set in negotiations with workers. But many workers would be given a choice of plans and if an individual selected a plan costing less than the employer's outlay, he would get the difference back in the form of a tax-free rebate.

Schweiker said consumers thus would be encouraged to shop around for less expensive plans, and insurance companies would be more likely to offer competitively priced, low-cost policies.

Employers of more than 200 workers would have to offer at least three plans and all employers, regardless of size, would have to offer at least one plan calling for employees to pay 25 percent of hospital costs until they exceed 20 percent of the family income.

Changes In Federal Unemployment Regulations Considered

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Labor Department said Saturday it is proposing regulations to delay the impending layoff of more than 200,000 people employed under the federal Comprehensive Employment and Training Act.

Last October, President Carter signed into law a bill that extended the controversial federal employment program for 550,000 workers four years.

But under the new law, CETA Jobs last only 18 months for each person, a provision designed to prevent cities from using the program to pay for their regular work force.

The law also requires cities to aim CETA jobs at the hardcore unemployed rather than skilled people who are temporarily out of jobs, and it says all workers hired before Oct. 1, 1978, are to be layed off this October.

Because that provision could affect 200,000 people, the Labor Department has come up with a plan that would waive the deadline for up to one-third of a city's CETA workers so they would not all be dumped at once.

Department spokesman Philip Mason said the new rule could affect up to 14,000 workers in New York City alone, which has one of the highest numbers of CETA Workers in the country.

But Mason said the Labor Department would consider each city's problems individually before waiving the layoff deadlines.

"The Labor Department is going to rule favorably where there is evidence of hardship or difficulty in transferring people into regular jobs," Mason said.

He said the department would consider a city's efforts to train people in CETA programs for movement into regular jobs in deciding where to grant the waiver.

"We are not going to grant automatic approval to just everybody." Mason said. "It's got to be cities which are making an effort to carry out the intent of the Public Service Employment Program. It was not intended as a lifetime cure."

Mason said the extension plan, which would go into effect after a 17-day comment period, would have a "tremendous impact" on cities across the country.

Fourth-Grader Wants Official Day for Children Instituted

So far, 20 states, including Washington, have declared June 10 as Children's Day, she says. A resolution before Congress would make Children's Day a permanent holiday the second Sunday of June.

"I think it should be recognized," she said in a telephone interview Thursday. "There's a Mother's Day and a Father's Day. Children should be recognized too.

"They make the future for people," she said. "They invent new things. They have new ideas."

She launched the Children's Day campaign in Washington state.

"She wrote the governor last year, saying she thought there should be a Children's Day. So the governor wrote her back and proclaimed it," Janet Smith, a spokeswoman for Gov. Dixy Lee Ray, said Thursday.

"She wrote again this year and we told her that it was the United Nations Year of the Child and that we were proclaiming a day in conjunction with that. That was all right with Michele," said Mrs. Smith.

With her mother, Pat, helping with the typing, Michele began her Children's Day campaign about three years ago by writing letters to Presidents Ford and Carter and several senators and representatives, requesting equal time for kids.

But it wasn't until 1977 that she made real progress. When Gov. Ray visited old Fort Casey near Michele's home on Whidbey Island, "Mom asked me if I wanted to ask her (Ray) any questions," Michele recalls. "So I asked her why there wasn't a Children's Day just like there are Mother's and Father's Days."

It was at Michele's suggestion that the governor proclaimed Children's Day in 1978 on October 29, said Mrs. Smith.

Michele says Idaho Gov. John Evans introduced her through letters to Daniel Bloom of Juneau, Alaska, director of the National Children's Day Committee and she agreed to the June 10 date.

She said she plans to meet Bloom this Children's Day at the International Peace Arch Celebration which falls on the same day. That's a celebration of U.S.-Canadian friendship held on the border at Blaine, Wash.

Michele's mother says she is proud of her daughter for sticking with a project she started three years ago.

"It wasn't something that popped into her mind and passed through. She acted on it," Mrs. McCutcheon said.

On Children's Day she said she plans to write letters to Michele and her son Danny 12 "telling them how special they are to us."

Lubbock Lionnesses Officers Installed

Officers were installed Saturday night at the charter banquet of the Century II Lionness Club, an auxiliary group sponsored by the Century II Lions Club.

District governor Howard Harrington and incoming district governor N.K. Snodgrass installed the officers, including Christine Cooks, president; Mae O. Jackson, first vice president; Alberta Hardeman, second vice president; Irma Rodriguez, third vice president; Ruby Thomas, secretary; Edna Pine, treasurer; and Juanita Anderson and Gwen Titus of the board of directors.

Twenty-two women became charter members of the club, according to Otis Cooks, second vice president of the Century II Lions Club and liason to the Lionness Club.

The parent club, Century II Lions, was organized three years ago by J.P. Martin and began with three charter members: Cooks, H.K. Thomas and Raymond McKever. Arlee Jackson was charter president of the group which now sponsors the Century Little League baseball team of the Eastern Little League Division.

Terrorists Ambush, Kill Legislator

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Terrorists ambushed and killed a newly elected Moslem legislator, his wife and their chauffeur, a government official said Saturday.

President Ferdinand E. Marcos, angered by the slayings, summoned a top military commander in what appeared to be a prelude to an offensive against stubborn Moslem secessionists.

Assemblyman Tomatic Aratuc, 42, killed outside Kabayuan village, 590 miles southeast of Manila, was elected last month to a local assembly that the government says will give Moslems autonomy in 10 southern provinces.

The Libyan-backed Moro National Liberation Front is opposed to the government plan, saying it violates a 1976 agreement calling for greater independence.

Louis XVIII Service To Remain In Britain

LONDON (AP) — A porcelain dessert service given by King Louis XVIII of France to the Duke of Wellington after the "Iron Duke" led the British to victory over Napoleon at Waterloo in 1815 will remain in Britain, officials said.

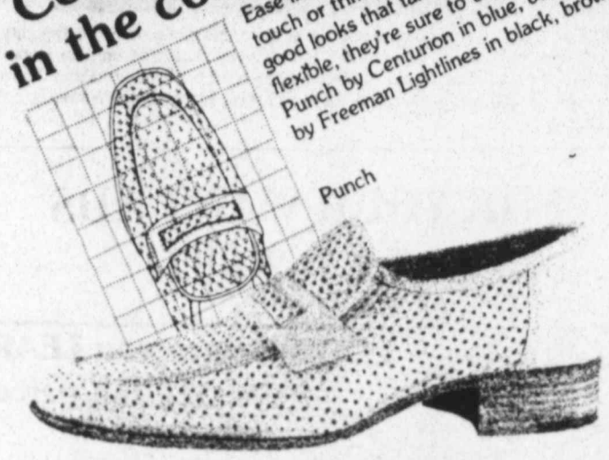

London's Victoria and Albert Museum said Friday it paid the current Duke of Wellington the equivalent of $900,000 for the 120-piece Sevres service, which once belonged to Napoleon.

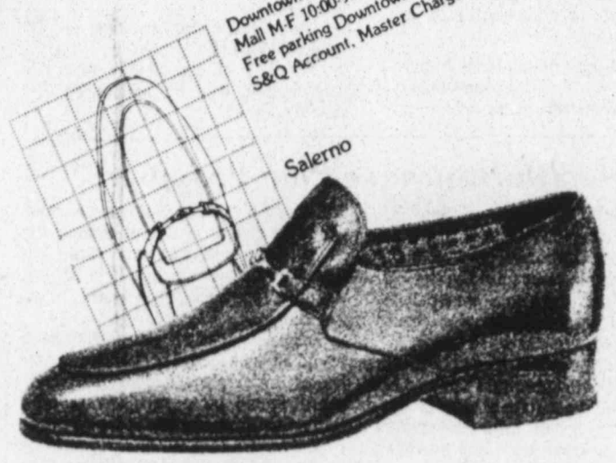

The 63-year-old duke sold the service to pay taxes and meet running costs on his large home. He offered it to the French on grounds of "its great historical importance to France." The British government delayed his export license so British museums could match the price.

Lubbock Police Raid Pornographic Theaters

The only two theaters in Lubbock showing hard-core sex films were raided late Friday night, police said. Three persons were arrested and several films and other sexual paraphernalia were confiscated.

Early Friday evening, a policeman entered each theater, bought a $5 ticket and watched the film. When the officer determined that the film included scenes considered "hard-core" (showing the actual sex act), which is against state laws), they left the theater and obtained warrants from Justice of the Peace Wayne LeCroy.

The Varsity Theater at 1805 Broadway St. was raided about 10:20 p.m. Friday by three police officers. They arrested a 22-year-old woman projectionist and the 32-year-old manager of the theater.

The Flick Theater at 2212-19th St. was raided at 10:05 p.m. Friday. The 24-year-old manager of that theater was arrested. All three persons were arrested for commerical obscenity, a Class B misdemeanor.

All persons in the audiences of both theaters were asked to give their names and addresses to police.

"We will continue to crack down on any hard-core films that come into Lubbock," said Det. Sgt. Joe Stone, head of the department's vice squad.

A 20-year-old Lubbock man was arrested for possession of marijuana and possession of controlled substances late Friday when he tried to board an airplane at Lubbock airport with the contraband.

A security guard was searching the man's carry-on luggage for weapons about 10:25 p.m. Friday when a nearby airport security officer saw what he thought was marijuana in the man's luggage.

The officer asked the man what the substance was, and the man admitted it was marijuana. Another small amount of a possible controlled substance was found in the man's luggage when he was arrested.

The officer went to the woman's residence about 7 p.m. Friday, where she offered to have sex with the man for $40. Then she was arrested for prostitution.

A 75-year-old Lubbock woman was in serious condition at West Texas Hospital Saturday after she was hit by a car in the 4600-block of Slide Road.

Police said Kathryn Linsey Middleton of 3303 24th St. was attempting to cross traffic at an intersection when the light changed from red to green and she was hit by a car.

The accident occurred at 5:04 p.m. Saturday.

A 53-year-old Lubbock man told police he was at a party Friday night when he was beaten and robbed of $670.

The man said he was too drunk to remember exactly where he was robbed, or by whom. The man told police that when he awoke outside a friend's apartment he discovered his clothes and money were missing, but not his billfold. He suffered a cut and bump over one eye and abrasions on both arms.

MACARTHUR STATUE UNVEILED

MILWAUKEE (AP) — A 9½-foot statue of Gen. Douglas MacArthur has been unveiled by his widow, Jean, in the city MacArthur often said he regarded as home. The ceremony Friday began the observance of MacArthur Memorial Week. MacArthur, who grew up here, was appointed to West Point in 1898 by the late U.S. Rep. Theobald Otjen of Milwaukee.

Policeman Croons For Eric Clapton

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Police officer Michael Price, a long-time fan of singer-guitarist Eric Clapton, found himself singing to the British rock star — all in the line of duty.

Clapton's limousine was involved in a minor two-vehicle accident Friday night about a half hour before his scheduled 8 p.m. concert. No one was hurt.

When Price, who had been called to investigate, found Clapton was en route to a performance, he loaded the entertainer and his entourage into his patrol car. Another officer investigated the mishap.

Price said that to put his "nervous passengers" at ease during the drive, he pointed out sights and offered to sing a few bars of "Lay Down Sally," a Clapton hit. "That really broke him up," Price said.

Apathy Highlights European Elections

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Voters of five Common Market nations cast their ballots Sunday in the windup of Western Europe's first direct election of a multinational parliament.

Governments of the nine European Economic Community member countries were watching the size of turnouts closely for signs of the voter apathy that marred the first-round of balloting in Britain, Denmark, Ireland and the Netherlands on Thursday.

First returns from the elections were expected late Sunday.

Belgium, France, West Germany, Italy and Luxembourg were voting Sunday for their representaives to the new 410-member European Parliament, a Common Market advisory body replacing a 198-member assembly to which representatives were appointed by the individual national parliaments.

Seats in the new body were allocated in proportion to population. More than 180 million in the nine countries were eligible to vote.

Greece, which was accepted last month as a 10th member of the Economic Community, did not vote since its membership does not take effect until Jan. 1.

In Belgium and Luxembourg, voting is obligatory and offenders are fined. It's obligatory in Italy, too, but there are no penalties.

French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing exhorted his countrymen on Saturday to vote in large numbers to show that France wants "to take part in the construction of Europe."

Italian Communist Party leader Enrico Berlinguer, who is one f the 3,000 Community-wide candidates, also appealed to his countrymen to turn out. "You can't change anything by abstaining," he said. But political observers in Rome reported widespread disinterest.

Believers in a united Europe were disheartened by Thursday's ballot, in which less than a third of the British electorate voted; in Denmark, less than 50 percent went to the polls.

In Holland and Ireland, the turnout was well below the ballot in their last national elections. European federalists were particularly disappointed by the low turnout in Holland, because that nation has pressed for greater European unity since the founding of the Common Market on Jan. 1, 1951.

European federalists see the voting as a step towards an eventual United States of Europe.

The new Parliament, however, will have limited power and the national governments, especially France, aim to keep it that way.

Its only real powers besides those of moral persuasion are the right to dismiss the Common Market's executive body, the European Commission, and the right to reject as a whole the annual spending budget, which this year amounts to $16 billion. Real power is in the hands of the Council of Ministers — the foreign ministers of the members.

The old assembly never dismissed the Commission — it has no right to fire any of the 13 commissioners individually — and it never rejected a proposed budget. There is nothing in the rules to stop the Council of Ministers from renaming the commissioners and renewing the original budget anyway.

The organization, meanwhile, faces an economic crisis which, if anything, strains the frail ties among the partners. Britain is approaching self-sufficiency from North Sea oil, and its eight partners' pleas for a share are met with London's retort that British oil belongs to Britain.

Britain's partners must fill their needs in the Amsterdam free market at up to $48 a barrel, more than double the price charged by the Organization of Petroluem Exporting Countries.

In the financial sector, the Common Market, except for Britain, launched another attempt to unite its currencies in a European Monetary System depite the disparity of the eight economies.

That system is in trouble, however. As in previous attempts, the powerful West German mark is outrunning the other curriencies. Belgium, Denmark and France must spend precious reserves of foreign currency to bolster their monies on world exchanges to attain a balance with West Germany within the monetary system.

Pravda Criticizes MX Missile Development

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Communist Party newspaper Pravda charged Saturday that President Carter's decision to go ahead with development of the MX mobile missile system violates the spirit of the upcoming strategic arms limitation agreement.

The charge came near the end of a lengthy commentary in which American supporters of the SALT-2 pact were praised and opponents were labeled war hawks. Pravda said most people in the United States support SALT.

The reference to the MX Missile seemed almost made in passing.

"Peace-minded people in the United States express serious concern over these plans which are at variance with the spirit of the SALT-2 treaty," Pravda said.

Under the new agreement, which will be signed by President Carter and Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev in Vienna in mid-June, each side will be allowed to develop one new missile system.

Carter announced Friday the United States would focus on the MX system. The Soviet Union has not disclosed the system it will work on.

Pravda said the lopsided debate in the United States is becoming more and more heated as the Vienna summit date approaches.

"Although it is not easy for the man in he street to see through the refined propaganda manuevers of representatives of arms manufacturers, there is a growing realization among Americans of the need to raise a barrier in the way of a costly and dangerous arms race and to reverse this race," Pravda said. "Broad public circles in the United States, including peace organizations, many big trade unions and religious organizations, received with satisfaction news about the forthcoming summit meeting and signing of the Soviet-American treaty."

However, the paper noted not everyone supported SALT.

"Although in number the opponents of the treaty and of detente are in absolute minority they are not only influential and not only have leverage for backstage and direct pressure on the administration and the Senate, but they also are well organized and have enormous financial funds to conduct a massive campaign of sabotage against the treaty," Pravda said.

It also repeated the Soviet claim that charges the U.S.S.R. will have an advantage under the new SALT agreement are groundless.

"The result of difficult talks over many years is a balanced and equal document which meets the interests of the United States no less than the interests of the Soviet Union," Pravda said.

Union Urges Solons To Pass Canal Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The AFL-CIO urged House members Saturday to pass legislation to implement the Panama Canal treaties, saying defeat would jeopardize the rights and income of canal zone workers.

Kenneth Young, chief lobbyist for the 13.6 million-member labor federation, said failure to pass the measure "would have the most serious consequences for the workers in the present canal zone."

House floor action on the Panama Canal issue begins Tuesday when it considers a bill to implement the treaties by providing for transfer of property to Panama and operation of the canal by a joint commission of the United States and Panama for the next 20 years.

Conservative House members, upset over Senate ratification of the treaties last year without House concurrence, are using the $800 million implementation legislation as a vehicle to express their opposition.

The treaties give Panamanians authority over the waterway by the year 2000.

"There is no way by which the House of Representatives can overturn the Senate's ratification of the treaties," Young said in letters to all House members.

Young said the bill contains labor provisions essential to maintaining efficient operation of the canal and the welfare of employees and families there.

"Failure to pass H.R. 111 (the bill) would leave the rights of these employees in limbo," he said.

YOUR PERSONAL BIORHYTHMS

By Bernard Gittelson, Author of "Biorhythm: A Personal Science"

The personal science of biorhythm can tell you how your day will go. Now you can judge the highs and lows of not only yourself, but loved ones and friends, and celebrities and stars. Biorhythm, our newest scientific discipline, is the study of the built-in natural cycles that powerfully influence our behavior.

BIORHYTHMS FOR JUNE 10, 1979

Enter your own permanent numbers in the chart in the bottom right-hand corner. To figure your own permanent numbers, follow these three steps:

Step 1: From the year chart, find the numbers corresponding to your year of birth. For instance, if you were born in 1947, your number for Physical would be 21, Emotional 17, Intellectual 19. Note whether your numbers are preceded by an A or B; this will be used for Step 2.

Step 3: In the figure chart, enter your day of birth three times, one each for Physical (P), Emotional (E) and Intellectual (I). (If you were born on April 3, for instance, place a 3 in each column.)

Add the three columns to derive your permanent biorhythm numbers for your Physical, Emotional and Intellectual cycles. Now you can refer to today's rhythms.

These numbers are yours permanently. Check them each day for your biorhythm reading.

Tension Between Iran, Iraq Increases

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — An Iraqi border patrol fired on Iranian guards and Iraqi airplanes flew over west Iran Friday, adding further tension to already strained relations between the two countries, the PARS news agency said Saturday.

Banks were closed Saturday, normally a working day in Iran, following the government's announcement they were being nationalized. Economic experts said there would be further nationalizations by the revolutionary government in an effort to rebuild the country's economy, with the insurance industry likely to be taken over next.

Tehran radio reported that the longest dock strike in Iran's recent history ended Saturday when dock workers of Iran Terminal company went back to work in Khorramshahr, Iran's largest port.

The strike lasted 34 days and caused heavy losses to Iranian shipping interests which have still not been estimated, business sources said.

Saturday's report of Iraqi shootings and air violations followed an Iraqi air attack six days ago on six west Iranian villages in which four air force planes bombed and strafed the area, killing six people.

The news agency, quoting local authorities, said two Iraqi aircraft flew over the town of Paveh, about 370 miles west of Tehran, Friday and "caused some anxiety among the inhabitants." Earlier Friday, a third Iraqi plane also crossed into the Iranian airspace, PARS Said, without pinpointing where the incident took place.

Further south along the Iran-Iraq border, Iraqi border patrols opened fire on Iranian guards at Shalamcheh Friday but caused no casualties. PARS Said the incident did not develop into a clash due to "the patience of the Iranian guards."

The governor of the southwestern city of Khorramshahr accused Iraqi authorities of disturbing the peace in the area, restored after last week's clashes between government forces and autonomy-seeking ethnic Arabs.

Provincial governor and Iranian navy commander Rear Adm. Ahmad Madani accused Iraq and Kuwait last week of causing trouble in the oil-rich area and cited an unnamed brother of Iraqi strongman Saddam Hossein in alleged smuggling of arms from Iraq to Iran.

Iran's ambassador to Moscow, Mohammad Mokri, flew back to Tehran after talks with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko and announced Soviet leaders had pledged "never to interfere in Iran's affairs." He described Iranian leftists as agents of the deposed shah's political police and of Israel.

Mokri said he was assured by Soviet leaders that Iranian leftist groups were not supported by Moscow, nor were "secessionist groups who appear to be leftist but are in fact Savakis (members of the shah's defunct secret police) and agents of Israel."

It was the first time, since the mid-February revolution which overthrew the shah, that the Soviet Union was reported have come out so openly against Iranian leftists and in support of Iran's Islamic regime.

Nuclear Crisis Reveals Flaws

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Federal officials learned from the Three Mile Island nuclear accident that they were unprepared to react either to the crisis itself or to the need to inform people of what was going on, said Harold R. Denton of the Office of Nuclear Reactor Regulation.

"I've come away from the whole thing with a feeling that you can't adequately manage from the site," Denton told Associated Press Broadcasters at Saturday's session of their ninth annual meeting. "We were overreacting in Washington."

Denton, director of the regulatory office, said that as federal officials study what went on, they have begun looking at two key remedies for use should another incident such as that at the Harrisburg, Pa., plant ever crop up.

"It would be a place where the utility people, the state, the NRC, and the press could gather to disseminate information.

Denton acknowledged that federal officials were at times unable to play a role in disseminating information to the public, noting that science writers asked for a briefing from his top staff members, but there was no one who could be released from their immedate role in dealing with the nuclear accident.

He also said that utilities that operate nuclear plants should consider regular release of information on plant operations.

"Whenever there is an incident there is a big need to get up on what the situation was the day before," he said.

He said that in the future there needs to be cooperation between federal, state, and utility officials to disseminate information to the public.

Bomb Destroys Postman's Bike

LONDON (AP) — A bomb exploded in the mailbag of an Oxfordshire mailman Saturday, but he escaped injury because he had left the bag on his bicycle and was delivering letters at a house, police said.

Postman Colin Bourne was standing at a doorway when he heard the explosion and turned to find his bicycle shattered and letters all over the road, a local policeman said.

Four letter bombs exploded Friday in post office departments in Birmingham, Britain's second-largest city, injuring six persons, postal officals said.

No group has claimed responsibility, but suspicion fell on the Irish Republican Army, the mostly Roman Catholic group that is fighting to force the British out of Northern Ireland and unite the province with the Republic of Ireland.

LEADERS FLEE

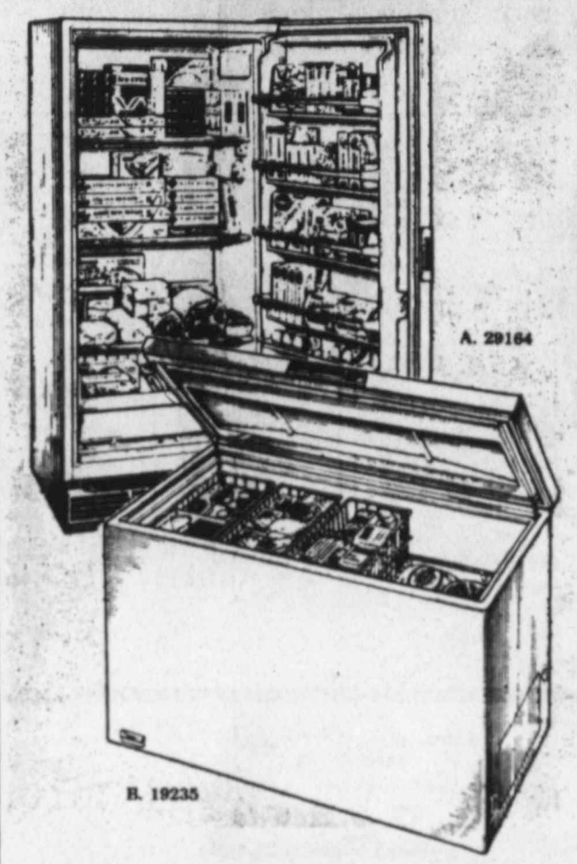

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — The families of the leftist Afghan regime's two top leaders, President Nur Mohammed Taraki and Premier Hafizullah Amin, have been flown to the Soviet Union, a U.S. Embassy source reported Saturday. There was speculation the families left Afghanistan out of fear that security in the nation may deteriorate further.

Writer Talks On Heritage

The basis for the individual freedoms, the political structure, the economic system and the need for respect for law in America stems from a Biblical heritage, syndicated columnist M. Stanton Evans, told teachers at Lubbock Christian College.

Speaking to secondary teachers at a workshop on the LCC campus, Evans shared his reasons why "Teaching Responsible Citizenship" is necessary if the U.S. is to remain a functional society and world leader.

The columnist said teaching good citizenship to students is difficult. They often are confused when they observe at times the rights of a group override the rights of the individual and ideas of personal liberty conflict with personal order.

"This is an area where emphasis on the content taught is needed rather than how it is transmitted," he said.

"Students more easily will learn good citizenship when they understand the origin of their society and government.

"I think it is necessary they know that with the arrival of Christianity and Judaism developed the basic concepts upon which America is built. These religions taught that man was created in the image of God, thus stressing moral values and rules to exercise one's own individuality. In our society we value our rights to be individuals," he said.

"In teaching why our forefathers wrote the Constitution, students more easily will understand why respect for law is necessary in our society. Constitutionalism is respect for law.

"Young people must learn that if they consider a law to be unjust, it only can be resisted through process. Picking and choosing laws at random by which we care to live creates anarchy, and anarchy puts people in war with each other," Evans said.

"A part of teaching good citizenship is teaching how our economic system works. It is based on free voluntary exchange and it depends on the rights of others. Its basic functions are consistent with personal freedoms.

"It is a large order to teach citizenship because it involves much effort," said Evans.

The United States imports some 9 million barrels of oil a day, at an annual cost of some $45 billion a year, according to National Geographic. The Department of Energy has predicted that oil imports may cost the nation $100 billion a year by 1985.

Probation Collections Delinquency Discovered

By JOHNNY HOLMES
Avalanche-Journal Staff

PLAINVIEW — A Hale County adult felony probation officer has fallen almost $32,000 behind in his collection of probation fees, county officials say.

"I guess I just wasn't checking it that close," Sammy Dunn said of his collection of fees from the 252 persons on probabtion from the Hale County courts. "I guess I need to get a little tougher with the probationers."

"The money is not missing," stressed 64th District Court judge John Thomas Boyd, who hired Dunn from the Plainview Police Department in June 1976. "It just hasn't been collected yet. On a case-by-case basis, it's not as bad as it seems."

The large delinquency came to light when the county reorganized its probation offices, combining the felony and misdemeanor sections and placing both under the direction of Jean Sterns, formerly a misdemeanor probation officer. As part of the combination procedures, Mrs. Sterns was checking the books when she found the delinquent accounts.

Her review of the felony collection records showed that 133 of the 252 cases on the books at the time were short anywhere from $15 to nearly $2,000 — an average debt of $240 per probationer. Most of the probationers owing money to the office made payments intermittently, she said.

Her search concluded that Dunn was about $22,000 behind in fees collected for Boyd's court and about $8,000 short in collections for the 242nd District Court, also located in Plainview.

Payment of probation fees by persons on probation is a mandatory part of the probation agreement. Failure to do so can result in the revokation of one's probation, Boyd said.

The fees generally run about $15 per month, though they can vary somewhat from case to case. They are used to pay court costs and fines, fees for court-appointed defense attorneys and to provide restitution to victims of crimes.

The Hale County record showed that 64 of the 133 delinquent cases now live outside Plainview, and six live out of state. All those persons now are supervised by probation offices near their new residences, but the fees still must be collected by the Hale County office.

Ninety-four of the 252 probation cases involve persons living in Plainview who are under direct supervision of the probation officer — that is, they must report to Dunn anywhere from twice a month to once every three months, depending on their individual status. Of those 94 cases, 65 are at least one payment behind.

Dunn and Boyd agree collecting the monthly fees from probationers isn't always an easy task. "It's hard for probationers to get jos, and most of them don't have jobs," Dunn said. "As long as they're reporting in and trying to do right, we try to go along."

"Revoking someone's probation is a tough decision to make," Boyd said. "If the probationer has a family, he's responsible for them. And if he's working, revoking his probation could deprive that family of the money it needs just to get by. We try to use some judgement."

Dunn said he had never filed to revoke a probation, although the threat of going back to jail is perhaps his strongest weapon in getting probationers to pay up.

Plane Crash Kills Four, Injures Two

LONG BEACH (AP) — A small plane crashed onto the San Diego Freeway moments after takeoff Saturday, struck a truck and burst into flames, police said. All four persons aboard the plane were killed and two men in the truck were injured.

"There was a crash west of the airport," said Pierre Collins, the airport's Federal Aviation Administration team supervisor. "It was a single-engine aircraft departure but we don't have much more information at this time."

Long Beach Police Department spokesman Dave Drake described the aircraft as a four-passenger Cessna. The accident occused in the northbound lanes of the Interstate 405 freeway about 30 yards south of the Walnut Avenue overpass.

According to an unidentified motorist who said he had to take evasive action to avoid being hit, the plane came over the freeway and made "a deep left bank." It came down in the outside lane, skidded about 10 feet and burst into flames. Police said the smoldering wreckage was partly on the shoulder of the highway.

The falling airplane struck a northbound construction truck loaded with wooden scaffolding, according to a California Highway Patrol spokesman. He said the truck driver and a passenger, who reportedly suffered serious burns, were taken to a local hospital.

The CHP, which was hampered Saturday by a statewide job action, was aided by local police in trying to keep cars moving but a two-mile traffic jam quickly developed.

A fireman said the unidentified occupants of the aircraft appeared to be two women and two men but they were "burned beyond recognition."

TV Family Hour Rule Gets Review

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The issue of a "family hour" for evening television programming is making a rerun appearance before a panel of federal judges.

Lawyers for the Federal Communications Commission introduced a suit Friday in federal appeals court, seeking to overturn a 1977 ruling against the FCC and the three major networks.

In that ruling, the U.S. District Court held that the commission had unconstitutionally forced the National Association of Broadcasters to adopt a "family viewing provision" — known as the "family hour" — as part of their code.

The provision was aimed at limiting scenes of sex and violence during prime evening viewing hours. The provision was adopted by the NAB after lobbying by former FCC Chairman Richard Wiley, who, in turn, was acting at the request of Congress.

Producer Norman Lear, creator of TV's "All in the Family" and several other shows, had joined the Writers Guild and other plaintiffs in an effort to overturn the family hour rule. They contended in the 1977 suit that the regulation was a violation of their right to free speech, and the court agreed. Defendants in that case were the three major networks — ABC, CBS and NBC.

BARBARA MANDRELL

STATLER BROTHERS

Statlers, Barbara Mandrell Billed

One of the top shows ever billed for the Panhandle South Plains Fair has been scheduled this fall, fair general manager Steve L. Lewis has announced.

Lewis said that The Statler Brothers Show, with special guest Barbara Mandrell, would appear together for 5 p.m. and 8 p.m. performances in Fair Park Coliseum on Sept. 24.

The 62nd annual exposition is set for Sept. 22-29.

The Statler Brothers, who held a firm grip on the best vocal country group award for almost a decade before losing the crown to the Oak Ridge Boys this year, were a real hit here last year.

Miss Mandrell, who plays four instruments and who copped the coveted female vocalist of the year at the 1979 Country Music Association awards bash, also has played the fair before.

She has had four consecutive "Top Five" singles and is one of the "hottest" acts in the country and western music industry today. Her album, "Moods," however, was more easy listening than country.

The Statlers — consisting of brothers Harold and Don Reid, along with Lew DeWitt and Phil Balsley — also are song-writers as well as singers. In one double album, 15 of the 22 tunes were written by them. They also have recorded two albums with a gospel theme.

"We feel very fortunate to get two top acts on the same bill," Lewis. "Both are very popular here as well as across the country."

Earlier, Lewis has announced other shows for the 1979 fair, including The Charley Pride Show at 5 p.m. and 8 p.m. on Sept. 23 and the Dave and Sugar Show, with John Conlee (newcomer of the year for 1979) at 8 p.m. only on Sept. 26.

All seats are reserved and ticket prices remain unchanged at $4, $5, and $6.

Tickets may be reserved now by writing the fair association at P.O. Box 208, Lubbock, Tex., 79408. However, tickets will not be mailed to purchasers until they become available in mid-August.

At that time, tickets also will go on sale at five other locations and the box office in Fair Park Coliseum.

Bush Shows Optimism In Texas Primary

AUSTIN (AP)— Presidential candidate George Bush said Saturday he has never lost a Republican primary election in Texas, and " I don't plan to start now" — even though the opposition next year should include former Texas Gov. John Connally, as well as others.

Connally, elected governor three times as a Democrat in the 1960s, switched to the Republican Party in 1973 and announced this year as a candidate for the GOP presidential nomination.

Bush lost U.S. Senate races in 1964 and 1970, after winning the Republican primary in Texas.

Bush said he thinks President Carter will be the Democratic nominee in 1980. He said he did not think Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., would contest Carter.

Asked if Kennedy could win the nomination, Bush replied, "No — No. 1, I don't think he'd beat President Carter."

Bush described Kennedy as a "myth who is looked at by different standards. ... Kennedy is not being examined under the presidential lens. I think he'd be vulnerable."

"I know pretty well who the (Republican) opposition is going to be, and I'm not over-awed by that either," Bush said.

He was interviewed on the weekly radio show, "State Capitol Dateline."

Bush, former congressmen, CIA director, ambassador to the United Nations and chairman of the Republican National Committee, said it was a "cruel blow to my ego" to learn he was not known by many Republican voters, but he added, "That will come later."

"I will win the nomination," Bush said, "because I will out-hustle and out-organize the others."

Klansmen, Blacks March

No Violence Reported In Protest Rallies

By The Associated Press

Robed Ku Klux Klansmen, some armed with clubs, marched peacefully in Decatur, Ala., on Saturday to assert white supremacy, while 10 times their number of blacks paraded afterwards to protest rape charges against a black.

Hours later, the head of the Ku Klux Klan in Arkansas, Randy Howard, was arrested Saturday night and taken away by police about two hours before he was to kick off an organizational meeting. Five others also were arrested, but police refused to identify them.

Howard and another man were handcuffed and led away by state police after a brief fight in which Howard's peaked hat was ripped off as the Klan demonstrated along a busy street near the Little Rock campus of the University of Arkansas. Howard was released in time to attend the rally.

A man wearing a suit was arrested about an hour before the rally was to begin when he entered the area where anti-Klan demonstrators were assembled. State police asked him to leave the area. When he did not, he was taken into custody. His name was not released.

The arrests occurred after about 30 Klansmen, clad in white robes and peaked hats and carrying signs, walked to University Avenue where they lined one side of the street. The Klansmen shouted "White Power" to passing motorists.

About 20 persons gathered to protest the Klan meeting in the auditorium. Some carried signs protesting the organization which said, "Death to the Klan," "Fight Racism," and "Ku Klux Klan, Scum of the Land."

Earlier in Mississippi, blacks marched in silence to protest the killing of a black jail inmate. In Decatur, there were no reports of violence as there had been two weeks earlier when a black-white confrontation erupted into a five-minute shootout that left two whites and two blacks wounded.

About 150 Klansmen, watched by more than 500 police, paraded three abreast Saturday under American and Confederate flags about a half mile to City Hall in Decatur.

A few Klan marchers were armed with clubs, but no firearms were visible

Bill Wilkinson of Denham Springs, La., imperial wizard of the Invisible Empire Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, attacked government programs for minorities. "I for one am sick of Negroes and other minorities being given jobs that I deserve," he said.

Klansmen were boxed in by riot-equipped state troopers and city police, while 40 National Guardsmen stood by in the area. Sheriff's deputies and city police reported to work early, loading shotguns in case the two groups again crossed paths violently.

Shortly after the Klan march, some 1,500 black demonstrators paraded peacefully along the same route through downtown Decatur.

That march, sponsored by the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, was billed as "a march against repression" by SCLC President Joseph Lowery of Atlanta, who headed the long line.

He was joined in the forefront by Reps. Walter Fauntroy, D-D.C., and Mickey Leland, D-Texas.

The black marchers, including union members from Atlanta and Memphis, carried signs reading "Ban the Klan," "Justice Now for Tommy Lee Hines" and "Decatur Justice Is Retarded." They sang freedom songs often used by civil rights demonstrators in the 1960s.

Some 500 law enforcement officers surrounded the marchers, as they did earlier when the Klan paraded.

The Klan and the SCLC are at odds over the case of Tommy Lee Hines, a 36-year-old mentally retarded black man who has been convicted of raping a white woman and is charged with raping two others and robbing one of them. Blacks contend Hines was incapable of commiting the crimes because of his mental condition, while Klansmen claim blacks are using the case to disrupt law and order.

Blacks in Okolona, Miss., braved hot sun and stares Saturday to demand the prosecution of a white deputy sheriff who shot and killed a young black jail inmate Tuesday.

About 400 blacks, many wearing straw hats or carrying umbrellas to protect themselves from the heat, marched silently from the one-room United League of Mississippi office to the public library.

At the library, black leaders said they would no longer stand by while whites killed blacks.

"We're fired up, we're fired up. We can't take it any more," the crowd echoed at the urging of Dr. Howard Gunn, a local United League official.

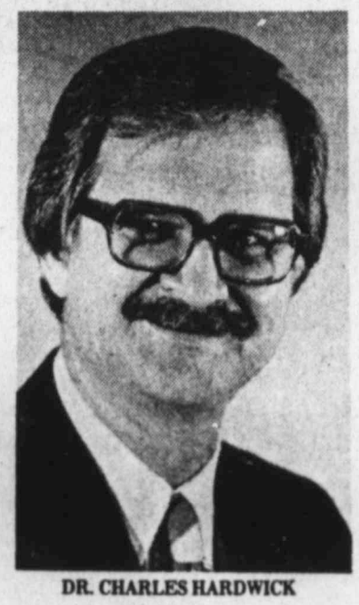

He and other speakers claimed the shooting death of 18-year-old Lee Andrew Carouthers, which is under investigation by federal and state authorities, was another example of mistreatment of blacks.

About 15 whites stood across the street and watched quietly as the rally proceeded. Law enforcement officers stood by.

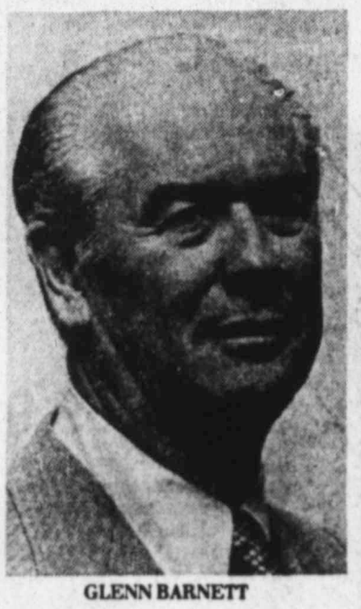

Carouthers, who was awaiting transfer to the state prison on a burglary conviction, was shot by Deputy Hansel Rogers after he allegedly threatened Rogers and a black city police officer with a knife.

Trio Eyed For Tech Interim President

acting president is Marilyn Phelan, who has the background for the job, sources say, but add that regents would never consider appointing a woman. Others say it is not her sex, but her knowledge mainly of only legal affairs that will prevent her from being a serious prospect.

Ken Thompson is vice president for finance and administration, and perhaps Mackey's closest associate. He has worked with Mackey for a decade at Florida State University, the University of South Florida and at Tech. But his background is in computers and finance, and some feel he does not have the academic background for the job of acting president.

Several vice presidential slots at MSU are expected to be open when Mackey arrives, and if Mackey takes anyone from Tech with him, it will be Thompson, observers say.

"I wouldn't speculate on that," Thompson said. "I thoroughly enjoy my work at Tech."

If Barnett is appointed acting president, he will go into the job with 11 years experience at Tech, where he has served as dean of the college of education, executive vice president of the university and vice president of planning.

He was vice president for student affairs and an education professor at the University of Colorado at Boulder, where he was responsible for all out-of-class programs, including admission, registrar and academic counseling.

At the University of Texas at Austin, Barnett served as dean of students, associate dean of the college of education and acting chairman of the department of curriculum and instruction.

Regents won't necessarily decide at Friday's meeting whom to appoint as acting president. One member said the board will spend "a great deal of discussion" on it.

Board chairman Robert Pfluger said that if the regents do not name an acting president Friday, another meeting will be called for that purpose within 30 days.

Byrd Claims Missile Decision Prevented Scrapping Of SALT

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's decision to build the MX missile has saved the proposed U.S.-Soviet strategic arms limitation treaty from certain defeat in the Senate, Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd said Saturday.

"If the MX had been scrapped, the treaty would have been scrapped," the West Virginia Democrat declared at a news conference.

Byrd added that he was one of a number of undecided senators who would have voted against SALT if Carter had rejected the MX, a mobile intercontinental ballistic missile that is expected to cost $30 billion.

"Rejection of MX would have killed SALT," Byrd said. "You're looking at one vote that would have been lost."

The White House announced Friday that the president had decided in favor of full-scale development of the MX to replace the aging Minuteman missile, which is increasingly vulnerable to new, more accurate Soviet missiles.

Administration officials said the MX, by being mobile, would enable the U.S. land-based nuclear force to survive a first strike by the Soviet Union and thus maintain the nation's so-called strategic "triad."

The "triad" is the three-pronged strategy of nuclear deterrence tat consists of land-based missiles, submarine-launched missiles and long-range bombers.

However, some critics have accused Carter of announcing his long-awaited decision on the MX at this time to boost prospects for SALT. Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, called the decision "transparent salesmanship" to buy votes for ratification.

Byrd, who remains officially uncommitted on the treaty, said development of the MX, while saving SALT from certain defeat, does not assure the two-thirds Senate approval needed for ratification.

The majority leader added that he called the president before the MX decision was made and advised him about the likely consequences if the new missile were rejected.

Byrd also said he would not attend the treaty signing in Vienna later this month, but was considering a trip to the Soviet Union in July to discuss SALT with Soviet officials.

The senator reaffirmed that the Senate should finish work on the treaty by the end of the year to prevent it from becoming a partisan election-year issue.

On another topic, Byrd said the administration "will have an opportunity to make its case" for its refusal to lift economic sanctions against the new biracial Zimbabwe-Rhodesia government before the Senate votes on the issue.

A military procurement bill containing a provision lifting the sanctions will be before the Senate Monday. However, Byrd said a vote will not come before the administration testifies at a Senate Foreign Relations Committee hearing Tuesday.

Carter announced Thursday that he opposes the removal of sanctions because the recent vote electing a black majority government was conducted under a constitution that gives the white minority a disproportionate share of power.

Last month, the Senate approved a non-binding resolution urging an end to the sanctions, 75-19. However, Byrd noted that many senators might vote differently on legislation that would actually lift the sanctions.

On another issue, Byrd said Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., will unveil an energy plan Monday that will show the American people that "the Senate is going to move to deal with the energy problem." However, Byrd refused to give any details about Jackson's proposal.

None Arrested In Wake Of Cocaine Probe

Three days after a federal grand jury completed its investigation of local cocaine trafficking, none of the persons named in the six sealed indictments returned by the jury have been arrested or formally charged.

U.S. Attorney Roger McRoberts said it would be "days" before all defendents named in the indictments are brought before U.S. Magistrate Bill Brister. Brister said late Saturday that no summonses or warrants had been issued yet for those named in the indictments.

McRoberts explained that warrants are issued when investigators think the suspects might flee. In cases where a suspect has no history of running from law enforcement agencies, summonses indicating a date and time for that person to appear before the magistrate are issued.

McRoberts said none of the names of the defendents — which reportedly include several prominent Lubbock residents — will be released until all persons charged are brought before Brister.

Also, no new persons indicted by a county grand jury were arrested Saturday.

Of the persons named in the 50 sealed indictments handed down by the grand jury Thursday, 27 had been arrested through Saturday.

Of those 27 persons, all but two had posted bonds and had been released from the county jail late Saturday.

Attacks Mount In Nicaragua

government guerrillas were active in the city during the night and that some wore uniforms and carried automatic weapons.

The Sandinistas, who take their name from 1930s revolutionary leader Augusto Cesar Sandino, say they are in the final stage of their battle to overthrow the president and end 42 years of Somoza-family domination of this Iowa-sized Central American nation.

Somoza contends the guerrillas are part of an international communist conspiracy to overthrow him and that his 13,000-man national guard will be able to retain control of the situation.

The rebels claimed to hold the cities of Masaya, Matagalpa and Leon, Nicaragua's second largest city, 54 miles northwest of Managua.

Residents reached by telephone in Masaya said the city was under heavy attack by the national guard and journalists who tried to enter the city 21 miles southeast of Managua were forced back by heavy-gunfire.

Leon residents said the city was calm and the streets were controlled by guerrillas.

Independent Truckers Block Fuel Pumps, Some Highways

By The Associated Press

Independent truckers blocked fuel pumps and some interstate highways Saturday in their protest over the high price and declining availability of diesel fuel — "go juice" in CB language.

In Los Angeles, Mike Parkhurst, president of the Independent Truckers Association and editor-publisher of Overdrive Magazine, said he would announce Monday in Washington "whatever actions are necessary" in the truckers' fight. He didn't specify.

Some local leaders of the 30,000-member ITA organization, including Leonard Barnwell of Nashville, Tenn., have said a nationwide truck shutdown would be announced Monday.

Parkhurst said his organization was assessing the impact of the statement by Republican National Committee Chairman Bill Brock, who Friday telegraphed President Carter and endorsed the truckers' demands. Basically, the demands are more fuel and less regulation. Some drivers also have suggested speed limits for truckers be raised to 65 mph instead of the current 55 mph.

Officials of the American Agriculture Movement have urged 2 million member farmers to withhold their products from markets to support the drivers, and Barnwell said trucker-farmer talks would be held in Washington.

The independent owner-operators have been tying up fuel pumps and slowing traffic since the middle of the week. The effects have shown up mostly in the South, Midwest and West.

In Fort Payne, Ala., two women were arrested Saturday for trying to block a non-striking truck driver as independent truckers shut down Interstate 59 across northeast Alabama from Fort Payne to Trenton, Ga. Authorities had ordered the strikers to allow the non-striker to pass.

Shirley James of Rossville, Ga., was charged with reckless driving in the incident in which police said she and another woman allegedly tried to block the truck with their pickup trucks.

The other woman, Evelyn Kittle of Henagar, was charged with speeding and driving with an invalid license.

Four Die, One Missing In Salt Mine Explosion

CALUMET, La. (AP) — An explosion sent shock waves ripping through vast corridors of a salt mine here Saturday, killing four miners and leaving another missing and possibly trapped 1,200 feet underground, officials said.

The blast occurred shortly after a charge of explosives had been set off by miners blowing loose another section of salt, said Achille Boutte, one of 17 men who made their way to safety through dark, debris-clogged tunnels. Four miners were hospitalized in fair condition, and the others were treated and released.

"We're still searching and hoping for the remaining man," said Greg Lauser of the main office of Cargill Salt Inc. at Minneapolis.

Lauser identified the dead as Richard Collins of Patterson, Donald Mayon of Baldwin, Herman Zimmerman of Franklin and Amedee Olivier of Jeanerette.

Boutte, a foreman, said he believed the miners hit a pocket of methane gas, a colorless, odorless, flammable gas formed by the decomposition of vegetable matter. It can be used as a fuel.

"You can't tell what happened until you go back and check," he said.

He said the 22 men working at the time of the explosion were holding a safety meeting in a corridor as wide a city street.

"It was five or 10 minutes after we blasted," he said. "I didn't hear any sound, all we had was the pressure.

"It blew everybody from where we were standing. It threw me out of my jeep. I couldn't see anything. Everything was black, and there was dust and smoke all over the place.

"I heard somebody say, 'What are we going to do? Where do we go?'

"I coudn't see him, but I kept telling him to try to get out. I kept talking as long as I could, but we were afraid of carbon monoxide, so we put our breathing masks on, and we couldn't talk any more.

"I got to the No. 2 shaft, and it was real hot, so I re-routed and came up a different way.

"When I got to the top, nobody was with me."

Boutte said he began working at the mine in 1968 shortly after fire suffocated 20 men underground. A second shaft has been opened since that time, however, and a number of other improvements have been made, he said.

The mine is 1,200 feet deep, located about 75 miles southwest of New Orleans in marshes that merge with the Gulf of Mexico. The mine punctures a salt dome which forms a bump of dry land on the flat, prairie-like marshes — the only high spot for 20 miles around.

Summer Jobs

Reese Air Force Base, the Red Cross and Texas Tech, last for 10 weeks. Students from economically disadvantaged families and who are potential school dropouts will earn the minimum wage, $2.90 an hour for 32 hours a week.

They also will attend counseling sessions six hours each week to discuss career opportunities and prospects, Mrs. Forbes said.

"The main thing we're concerned with in the youth program is that they learn to get along in the job and with other people," she added.

Those jobs include such positions as park and recreation aides, library aides, yard maintenance workers and receptionists.

Although CETA guarantees a job to accepted applicants, it is up to the student to secure a particular job, Mrs. Forbes said.

She explained CETA refers a student to a potential employer who after an interview decides whether to hire. If the employer rejects the applicant, he notes the reason on the interview slip, which is returned to CETA , Mrs. Forbes added.

"Then we send (the applicant) out again," after the problem is resolved, she said.

Mrs. King also noted the summer youth program staff will be developing jobs that graduating seniors can fill when the summer ends.

The jobs will not be subsidized by the government, she added.

and 8 1/2 pounds, and a fetus weighing more than 9 pounds faces the possibility of a difficult delivery.

Mahan's article also stresses that although underweight newborns have been considered "tough" and healthy, their growth often is stunted and they never catch up with normal babies.

They also have a much higher chance than the average-size baby of developing mental retardation and severe learning disabilities as they grow older, Mahan said.

But Giles said the underweight full-term baby can overcome its problems rapidly if growth retardation is not that extensive.

If the growth retardation is extensive, DeShan noted, the baby will have to cope with resulting problems the rest of its life.

He compared these babies to victims of prison camps during World War II who were almost starved to death.

"Those people had to cope with the problems resulting from malnourishment for as long as they lived, and it's no different for malnourished babies who have suffered extensively."

Sandy McLeroy, a nutritionist at the Tech medical school, said many pregnant women don't seek nutritional advice until after the 11th week, or first trimester, of pregnancy.

The first trimester is probably the most important nutritionally, Giles explained, because the fetus's organs are being formed during that time.

Giles said that doctors in general often have assumed a pregnant woman is eating correctly without nutritional counseling.

"Quite often, a patient has had to take the initiative to make sure she's receiving the correct amount of nutrients and calories," he said.

"For some reason, doctors have just assumed a woman will begin eating correctly and know how to eat correctly when she becomes pregnant."

Any woman who is considering pregnancy or is pregnant should consult a nutritionist and doctor to make sure her diet is correct, Miss McLeroy said.

Picture Of Christ Bleeds; Man Decides To Minister In Roswell

By SUE MORRISON
Avalanche-Journal Staff

ROSWELL, N.M. — As far as Zach Malott is concerned, there's no need to take a polygraph test.

And that's what it's going to take to determine what kind of blood flowed from a picture of Christ in his wife's grandmother's home.

Malott and his wife, Kathy, were visiting her grandmother, Willie Mae Seymore, while moving from Phoenix, Ariz., to Kansas City, Kansas.

Malott describes himself as a "run-of-the-mill guy" when he arrived in Roswell. He says he used to drink with his buddies a couple of times a week, and sitting in Roswell is costing him $100 a day, which is what he earns as a union electrician.

But Malott is staying in Roswell indefinitely; in fact he plans to make his home here and begin a ministry.

His decision is not because of the bleeding picture, but because of a dream he had two days after the May 25th incident.

Malott had agreed to a polygraph test before the dream, but afterwards he refused, saying the act would only bring more attention to the picture, not its message.

And the Roswell hospital authorities who tested the substance to prove it was blood say they will continue testing only if Malott takes the polygraph.

Malott's dream was more than just a dream, he says, because he was aware of "all five senses, — the colors were 10 times brighter and the dream followed a logical sequence; it was of unusual proportions."

"Christ appeared at the front door; I knew it was him because of recognition. He didn't have to identify himself," Malott said.

Describing Christ, Malott said the most striking feature was the "sad, compassionate" eyes.

Malott said Christ was about 6-foot-3, with shoulder-length brown hair highlighted with red. He was wearing a white robe.

"He (Christ) walked in and went to the picture, but glanced at it for only a moment," Malott said. "Then he walked to the middle of the room and said, 'There are those that will believe. There are those that will not believe. There are those that will deceive.

"Then he showed me his hands which had gashes here," Malott said, pointing to the inside of his wrists."He lifted my head, and I saw a tear coming from his eye, and he said, 'I know you are all tired. I love you all.'"

Christ then walked out the front door, into the yard, and ascended "into a bright light. I walked back into the house and glanced at the clock, which read 6:15(a.m.)," Malott said. "When I woke up from the dream, I ran into the living room and saw the clock read 6:16 (a.m.)."

The Malotts believe Zach's vision is an indication that Christ's second arrival on Earth will be soon, but they can't say when that will be.

"Who knows? In the Bible, it says God measures time to where our million years could be one second to him," Mrs. Malott said.

An interesting thing about the blood is that it took about 1 1/2 hours to coagulate, which Mrs. Malott, a registered nurse, says is unusual; blood usually coagulates in 15 to 20 minutes.

She keeps the hematest tablet on the table displaying the plastic-encased photo. The tablet was used by a Roswell medical technician to prove the substance was real blood.

The small, stereotyped picture of Christ was given to Mrs. Seymore by Mrs. Malott seven years ago and had been placed in the corner of a larger painting's frame about four months ago because "it kept being knocked off the T.V."

Malott first noticed the small drop of blood near the eye of the profile as he was looking at his car from the stucco house's living room window.

After the blood had been flowing for about 15 minutes, the Roswell Daily Record newspaper was notified. Reporter Al Gibes went to the house, took a picture and checked with Malott behind the smaller photo to see if there was any sign of what caused the flow.

Both say they saw nothing behind the small picture that would cause the blood to come from the eye.

The wire services printed the story, which appeared in newpapers throughout the country.

Since then, the Malotts said about 2,700 people have come to view the picture.

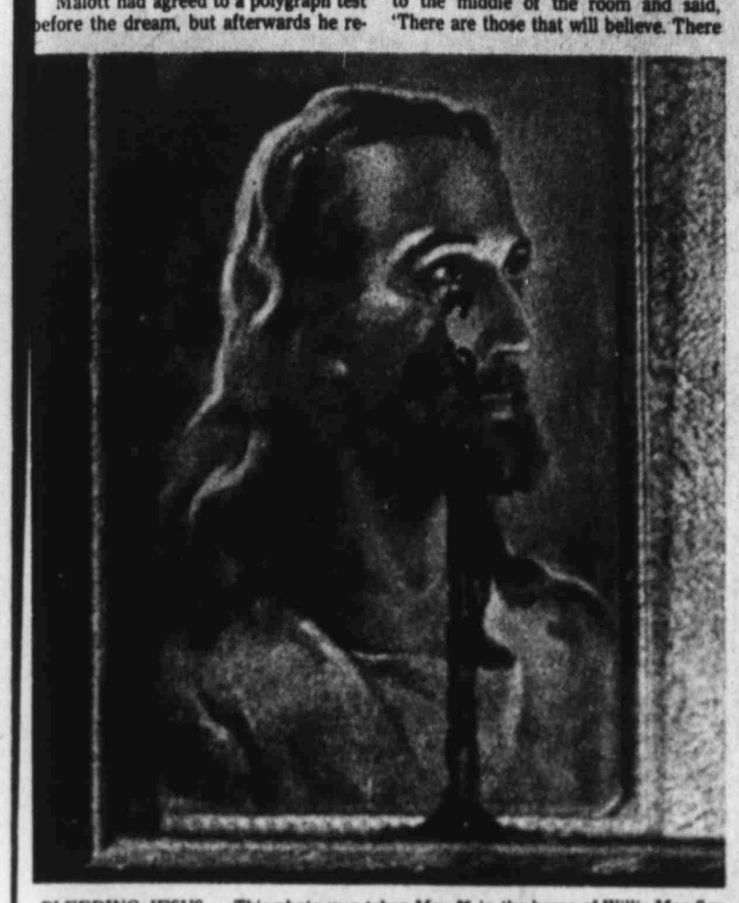

Because of Mrs. Seymore's age and ill health, today is the last time the picture will be displayed.

The Malotts said all their friends who have called them are very supportive. "They don't doubt us a bit when we tell them about it," the couple said.

Swickard said the fervor of the incident probably will die rapidly because Malott isn't taking the polygraph test, so no more tests of the blood will be performed.

BLEEDING JESUS — This photo was taken May 25 in the home of Willie Mae Seymore of Roswell, N.M., after blood flowed from the eye for about 15 minutes. Zach and Kathy Malott, Mrs. Seymore's grandaughter, say the fate of the picture is unknown, but it will not be displayed after today because they don't want people to worship it. FALL PROVES FATAL

GLENS FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — A Skidmore College biologist has died three days after a fall from a ledge on Tongue Mountain near Lake George during a research trip. Officials said Donald Pyle, 30, died Friday from injuries received in Tuesday's fall. A native of Oak Park, Ill., Pyle joined the Skidmore faculty in 1977. He held degrees from the University of Illinois and Arizona State, and also studied at Indiana University and North Carolina State University.

Dear Hemphills,

My Father just got a really terrific job where he gets to travel to a lot of faraway places. Like Dallas and Oklahoma City and Phoenix. Before, he did't need to wear a suit every day. Now he needs at least four more...and fast. My brother, sister and I are saving our money to buy Dad a suit for Father's Day...but, I don't think we will have enough by next Sunday. Could you suggest something else?

Signed,
Back to Plan A

Dear Back,

There's no need to change your plans. You can get Dad a wardrobe of looks for less than the price of one suit. We're talking about our LaMar polyester wardrober of versatile separates that mix and match to create a handsome variety of suit looks. And since summer is particularly hot in those cities, your Dad will really love how well the 100% polyester Cracked Ice weave travels and holds its shape. The 4-piece set includes a solid jacket, a matching pant, a contrasting pant and a reversible vest, 155.00. The 3-piece set includes a solid jacket, a solid pant and a check pant, 125.00. Both suits in blue or beige. How's that for a lot of fashion at a little price?

Bid Not Spectacular At Belmont Stakes

HEADING FOR THE FINISH — Ruben Hernandez is up in the saddle, center, as he brings Coastal to the finish line to win the Belmont Stakes Saturday in Elmont, N.Y. As left, is Golden Act, with Sandy Hawley in the salle, who finished second. Spectacular bid, ridden by Ronnie Franklin, which was going after the Triple Crown of racing, was a disappointed third. (AP Laserphoto)

NEW YORK (AP) — Coastal was "a dead horse" on the backstretch during the Belmont Stakes, in the eyes of trainer David Whiteley. But Whiteley's view of the drive to the wire was that of Coastal killing the king.

The lightly raced Coastal swept into the lead with a little more than an eighth of a mile to go and won the $269,000 Belmont Stakes in a shocking upset that ended odds-on favorite Spectacular Bid's try for the Triple Crown.

"We're all speechless," said Tom Meyerhoff, who owns Bid with his father Harry, and Harry's wife, Teresa. That comment said it all.

A crowd of 59,073 showed up at Belmont Park on this hazy, hot Saturday expecting to see Bid become racing's third stright Triple Crown winner. Instead they got a result that left 19-year-old Ronnie Franklin, Bid's jockey, saying "I feel like crying but I'm not going to."

"The best horse won the race," said Bid's trainer, Bud Delp. "We have no excuses."

Franklin thought Bid got something in his throat that caused him to choke with about a quarter of a mile to go. Bid was in the lead at that time.

But after checking over Bid at the barn, Delp left for the airport and a fliht back to Baltimore. Exercise rider R.A. Smith will remain behind, and he said he thought that Spectacular Bid was just tired and that nothing was wrong.

Coastal, unbeaten in three previous starts this year, charged from fourth place with a quarter of a mile left to win by 3¼ lengths under Ruben Hernandez. Golden Act, a veteran of Triple Crown competition, closed to be second, a neck ahead of Spectacular Bid.

Screen King was another 9½ lengths back, followed by King Celebrity, Gallant Best, General Assembly and Mystic Era.

"I thought he was dead at the five-eighths pole," said Whiteley. "But I was hoping he could make it up in the next three-eighths or one-half mile. I thought maybe he was waiting."

Hernandez said that he took Coastal back to fourth after the first eighth-mile. "After that, he was very nice and did what I wanted," the Panamanian jockey said.

When Hernandez asked for the winning drive, he got it and was surprised by how easily Coastal won.

"I wasn't expecting him to run by him (Spectacular Bid) the way he did. I was expecting him to fight back a little bit when we put a head in front, but he didn't."

Coastal, a chestnut son of Majestic Prince — who lost his Triple Crown bid in the Belmont 10 years ago, was not nominated for the Belmont, so owner William Haggin Perry had to pay supplemental fees of $20,000.

"It certainly paid off and we're certainly very happy with the results," said the owner after Coastal earned $61,400.

As for what's next for his giant killer, the happy Perry said, "Oatmeal."

He was referring to Coastal's victory dinner.

Coastal carried scale weight of 126 pounds over the mile and a half in 2:28⅗.

The winner, who earned $161,400, returned $10.80, $4.80 and $2.10. Golden Act paid $5.40 and $2.10. The millionaire Spectacular Bid, winner of 12 straight stakes going in, was $2.10 to show.

Before the race, Lucien Lauren, the trainer who saddled Secretariat to win the Triple Crown in 1973, said of Coastal, "He's a fresh hors with great ability, racing on his home track (Coastal has raced four times at Belmont, winning three, and trains there regularly), he's comfortable and confident here and I just think he's going to be awfully tough to beat."

He was impossible to beat — on this Saturday.

Ronnie Franklin broke Spectacular Bid third out of the gate and had him second into the clubhouse turn. Shortly after entering the backstretch, Spectacular Bid took the lead and the crowd roared.

The throng continued to cheer Bid on, but then just before the eighth pole, as Coastal flashed by on the rail, the cheers of an expected victory turned to a roar of disbelief. The king was dead.

Bid went into the race as the overwhelming favorite to join Secretariat, Seattle Slew in 1977 and Affirmed, 1978, as the fourth Triple Crown winner in this decade. Instead, he became the ninth 3-year-old to win the first two jewels of the Triple Crown, only to come up empty in the Belmont.

One of those was Coastal's sire, Majestic Prince, who failed in the Belmont one year after Stage Door Johnny came off a victory in the Peter Pan Stakes to win the Belmont and foil the Triple Crown bid of Forward Pass in 1968.

In Coastal's previous start, he won the Peter Pan at Belmont.

Hernandez had Coastal fourth through the first 1¼ mile. With a quarter-mile to go, he was a total of three lengths behind Spectacular Bid, then he went into his winning drive along the rail as Golden Act, ridden by Sandy Hawley, charged up from third to overcome the tiring favorite.

Screen King, the Derby sixth and Preakness third-place finisher, ridden by apprentice Cash Asmussen, was fifth with a quarter of a mile to go before closing for fourth. General Assembly, the Derby runnerup who was fifth in the Preakness, was second with a quarter of a mile left but faded to seventh under Angel Cordero Jr.

One of the attractions for this Belmont, besides Bid's bid for the Triple Crown, was the feud between Cordero and Franklin. The two had fought in the jockey's room after race last Wednesday and were made by the stewards to apologize to each other publicly.

Interest heightened when the two were placed together in the starting gate, an unforseen circumstance brought about by the scratches of Quiet Crossing and Picturesque, who would have separated General Assembly and Bid.

But the feud was quickly forgotten Saturday when Coastal delivered his knockout punch.

It had to be a bitter loss for Harry, Teresa and Tom Meyerhoff, Bid's owners, and his talkative trainer Bud Delp, who had begun predicting the Triple Crown for the dark gray colt last fall. Delp looked like a prophet until the last eighth-mile of the Belmont turned out to be an eighth-mile too much.

Spectacular Bid, insured for $15 million, had gone into the race with 14 wins in 16 starts and earnings of $1,123,587.

Wilson, Royals Race By Yanks

STEPPING HIGH — Kansas City Royal Willie Wilson leaps into the air in front of home plate umpire Ted Hendry after hitting an inside the park home run in the 13th inning to beat the New York Yankees 9-8 Saturday. (AP Laserphoto)

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Willie Wilson, possibly the swiftest man in big-league baseball, says he never ran faster in his life than when he saw his 13th-inning fly ball drop between Yankee outfielders Mickey Rivers and Roy White and roll toward the wall.

"I was running pretty hard toward first, but not as hard as I could," grinned the still-huffing Kansas City left fielder. "But when I saw the ball drop, I started running faster than I ever have."

The Yankees and Royals were locked in an 8-8 deadlock when Wilson tagged a fastball, the inning's first pitch from Ken Clay, 1-2. With Wilson turning on his afterburners while White's weak throw got past shortstop Fred Stanley, Wilson easily crossed the plate to give Kansas City a 9-8 victory.

For Baseball Roundup, See Page 3, Sec. B)

"Man, was I happy to see that ball drop," he said. "I was beginning to think this game would never end. We fought hard for two days for this," he said of Friday night's 11-10, 10-inning loss to New York.

"We kept coming back and kept coming back. This team never dies. It's nice to beat these guys."

"It was one of those wild ones but I didn't like the outcome," said Yankees Manager Bob Lemon. "I thought the ball was going to be caught. But Royals Manager Whitey Herzog said, " knew it was in there.I was hoping they (White and Rivers) would run together."

Marty Pattin, 3-0, got the victory. In all, the teams used nine pitchers and got 29 hits.

The Yankees went ahead 8-7 in the top of the ninth when Willie Randolph singled to left off Al Hrabosky and Graig Nettles ripped a two-out double off the wall in left-center field. Kansas City tied it in the bottom of the inning when Wilson singled, was bunted to second and scored on George Brett's two-out single up the middle off Ron Davis.

Lou Piniella's single in the seventh inning scored Rivers and Randolph and give the Yankees a 7-6 lead. But Brett's RBI double drove Wilson home in the bottom of the seventh to tie it 7-7.

Ray Burris replaced New York starter Tommy John with two on and one out in the sixth and John Wathan, snapping a 1-for-16 slump, tripled to put Kansas City on top 6-5.

Darryl Jones doubled in the Yankees' second ahead of Chambliss' homer that gave the Yankees a 2-0 lead. In the third, Rivers singled to start a three-run burst. He took third on a double by Randolph and after Thurman Munson walked to load the bases, Piniella hit the first of his three singles. All of the runners scored when center fielder Amos Otis threw to third base with nobody there.

Otis' one-out single ignited a three-run rally for the Royals in the fourth which Porter capped with a two-run homer over the right field wall.

Franklin Claims Bid 'Choked'

NEW YORK (AP) — "He choked — he couldn't get his breath at the quarter pole," 19-year-old Ron Franklin said in explaining favored Spectacular Bid's failure to complete horse racing's Triple Crown in Saturday's Belmont Stakes.

"I noticed it as we were coming into the stretch," the young jockey said in muffled, almost inaudible tones. "He wasn't right. I had a lot of horse at the beginning, but when I asked him to respond, he didn't.

"I just pulled him wide and tried to finish as best we could."

Spectacular Bid, winner of the Kentucky Derby and Preakness and a 1-5 choice to take the Belmont, led until the final turn but faded badly as Coastal scored a surprising victory with Golden Act second and the Bid third.

Franklin, riding for little more than a year and inundated recently with various controversies, was asked if this was the most disappointing experience of his brief career.

"No," he said, "I don't feel as bad as I did after the Florida Derby."

It was in that race on March 6 that Franklin permitted himself to be boxed in repeatedly by mounts ridden by veterans Angel Cordero and Jorge Velasquez. Nevertheless he won the race by 4½ lengths.

"I felt much worse then," he said. "I really got a chewing out from Buddy Delp."

Delp, trainer of Spectacular Bid, called Franklin "an idiot" after the Florida Derby and threatened to remove the youngster rom the horse in future races, a threat he did not follow through.

Franklin was asked if Delp had chastised him similarly after the Belmont.

"No, he didn't say a word to me," Franklin said. "If I had messed up the race, he would have been on my back. I figure I did a good job."

Franklin was crestfallen when he entered the jockeys' room and evaded reporters for several minutes, taking refuge in a dressing area. He finally emerged and said, "Let me look at a rerun of the race first and then I will talk."

The youngster was questioned about the depth of his despondency. "Do you feel numb?" someone asked.

"I feel like crying," he replied, his voice shaking, "but I am not going to."

Hub 'Overrun' By Soccer Fans

By JOHNNY HOLMES
Avalanche-Journal Staff

They came from nowhere. Five years later, they've completely overrun the city.

They were a novelty at first, popping up on rare occasions in parks or backyards. Now, you can't go anywhere without seeing them, running in packs, taking over schoolyards, playgrounds, even city streets.

And it's too late to stop them. They've captured the city, and this weekend may be their greatest moment.

No, they're not vampires, or even the Pod People from "Invasion of the Body Snatchers."

"They" are kids playing in the Lubbock Soccer Association, which reached its greatest height ever this weekend with the West Texas Invitational soccer tournament.

About 140 teams from all over the Southwest participated in the tourney.

"We hope this is just the beginning of our efforts to turn Lubbock into the hub of a big soccer wheel encompassing the entire Southwest," said Dr. Rolf Gordhamer, director of the Texas Tech Counseling Center and one of the men most responsible for the sport's remarkable growth in Lubbock.

"This tournament means a lot to us," he said. "It marks the true coming of age of soccer in West Texas and is our bid to be recognized as a legitimate soccer town, just like Dallas."

Soccer has exploded in popularity in Lubbock, as LSA figures bear out. When the association was formed five years ago, about 400 youngsters signed up; the league just completed its fifth season with nearly that many teams, and more than 5,000 participants, a growth rate of more than 200 percent every year.

Boys and girls, ages 4 through 19, have turned out in multitudes to get in on the sport once considered just another passing fancy. Now, the LSA plays spring and fall seasons each year, and in direct competition for players, outdraws both kid football and basketball. The association has a gentlemen's agreement with baseball, so their seasons don't overlap, but there are more youngsters in soccer than baseball.

The popularity boom was not completely unexpected, Gordhamer says, though he had no idea the sport would take off quite as it has. "Soccer is a simple, conceptual team sport," he said. "Everybody is important to the team, and that's important when you're dealing with young and impressionable children.

"In soccer, it's more important to set up the other player and assist him than to try to do it all yourself," he theorizes. "To get the ball back, you've got to give it up. Not many sports the kids play operates like that."

Not many sports promise each team member he will play at least half of every game, either, and that is one of its major drawing cards with the participants.

"Who wants to go out all summer and only play one inning a week, or a couple plays a game?" Gordhamer asks in explaining LSA playing policies. "Little league sports are supposed to allow everyone to play. We try to win, sure, but we're also trying to develop the talents of every kid, not just those who might be all-star material. We think having everyone play is what it's all about, and one of the reasons soccer is so popular here."

Soccer was unknown in Lubbock in 1973, when Texas Instruments moved families here. "When those 71 people moved here, they found there were no soccer clubs like in Dallas," Gordhamer said. "So they just formed their own. And that, in a nutshell, is how soccer in Lubbock got its start."

Gordhamer speaks of the game with a love that sounds as if he's played all his life. But, he was as foreign to the game as New York accents are to Lubbock when his son brought home a sign-

PLAYING ROUGH — As these two youngster show, soccer a game just for the big guys. And that is one of the reasons the sport has become so popular in Lubbock during the past few years. Watson Gears Up For National Open

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Tom Watson approaches the 79th U.S. Open Golf Championship with an eye on history.

"With one exception, Sam Snead, no one has been a great player without winning the Open. It's the national championship. You must win in the majors, and win consistently, and you must win the Open to be considered a truly great player," Watson said.

Watson, the best player in the game today, is interested in his place in history. To secure that place, to continue the dominance of the game he has shown over the past 2½ seasons, Watson needs to win the Open.

"It's the one I've been looking forward to," he said. "It's the one I want to win.

"No one can say he's going to win a specific tournament. All you can do is try to have your game at a peak, try to be playing well when the big one comes, then play your best. That won't insure that you win it, but you'llhave done all you can."

And Watson obviously has his considerable talent at a peak going into the national championship that begins a four-day, 72-hole run Thursday on the 6,982-yarde Inverness Club course. With four holes rebuilt since it last was the site of the Open in 1957, Inverness will play to a par 71.

Watson comes into it with the best credentials, the strongest record, the most outstanding game and the endorsement of Jack Nicklaus as golf's No.1 performer.

"It's obvious that Tom is playing the best of anyone in the game today," Nicklaus said after Watson scored his fourth victory of the season in Jack's Memorial tournament two weeks ago.

The record — which established Watson as a strong favorite — supports Nicklaus' appraisal of the man who has supplanted him as golf's leading light.

Since the start of the 1977 season, when Watson beat Nicklaus in dramatic confrontations in the Masters and British Opens, Watson has won more than $1 million, taken 14 titles, and is on his way to another money-winning record and a third consecutive sweep of the Player of the Year, Vardon Trophy and money-winning championships.

In the majors during that period, he won two of the four in 1977, was in contention in all four in 1978 and this spring lost a Masters playoff.

In addition to his four victories this year, Watson has been second in four others and hasn't finished worse than fourth since the middle of March. The 2½-year record is one of the finest in the post-World War II era.

It's even beginning to impress Watson.

"There are times," admitted Watson, "when I think, when I'm playing well, that I can beat anybody."

He's finished ninth or better in his last 5 U.S. Open starts and, as Tom pointed out, "I could have won twice. Maybe this is the year."

But it may not be. The records count for nothing when play starts on a typically tough Open course, high rough, extremely fast greens, narrow fairways. Of all the major championships, the Open has the greatest history of upset winners. Heightening the possibility of another one is the surprising number of upset winners on the PGA Tour aleady this year.

Although he is struggling through the worst season of his outstanding career, the Nicklaus still is vitally interested in the Big Four titles. And what Nicklaus is interested in, Jack often gets. His best showing of the season was in the Masters, in which he nearly made the playoff.

Holder of a record 15 major professional titles ncluding the current British Open championship, he is seeking a record-tying fourth U.S. Open crown. While Nicklaus' abilities may have dimenished in the public eye, his capabilities still impress Watson.

"The Nicklaus era is not over," Watson said. "He's too good not to win again."

Behind those two giants there is another level of player — all established, proven competitors of the first rank. Among them are Lee Trevino, Hale Irwin, Ray Floyd, Jerry Pate, Hubert Green, Tom Weiskopf and Lanny Wadkins.

Poor Conditions Fail To Slow Distance Runners

By TONY BATT
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Distance runners seem to have that kind of outlook on life. Generally, they are ascetic, complex, interesting. One-hundred and 23 of them, ranging in age from 12 to 50, gathered outside the Fuller Track Stadium at Texas Tech Saturday morning to compete in Lubbock's first Diet Pepsi 10,000 Meter Run.

The first to finish was 22-year old Bill Brasch of Marshall, a Tech senior majoring in accounting. His time was 33:59.3. Jan Taylor of Lubbock, a 22-year old clerk-typist at State Commodities, was the first woman to cross the finish line at 43:27.2. Both have different motives for running.

"Running gives me a euphoric feeling," Brasch said. "I don't like the training that goes along with it because that's lonely. It's hard to find someone to run with. But competitive running — you can't beat that with a stick."

Mrs. Taylor, who tried to avoid photographers in her grand moment of triumph because her hair was in curlers, began running for a more selfless reason.

"My husband wanted to lose weight, so I started running with him," she said. "We started running about 11 months ago; four miles every day except Saturday when we run six. He's lost 40 pounds. He ran today."

Brasch and Mrs. Taylor will receive an expense-paid trip to compete in the regional Diet Pepsi 10,000 Meter Run July 21 in Denver, Colo. The winners there will advance to the national race in September in Purchase, N.Y. Neither Brasch nor Mrs. Taylor expected to win Saturday.

"I knew I'd finish in the top ten," Brasch said. "But I didn't think there was any way I could win it. I'm looking forward to going to Denver. I've never been there. " Mrs. Taylor says she is also looking forward to competing in the regional race "if I can get off work."

As for the race's future in Lubbock, officials of the event are optimistic.

"It'll definitely become an annual event," said James Morris of the West Texas Running Club. "The reception we got from city authorities and the media was just great. We feel like the weather cost us about two-thirds of the runners we could have had. We had a lot of no-shows."

Friday's rain also forced the original route of the race to be changed. The first route, a loop including the streets of Quaker, Erskine and Indiana, was altered to an out-and-back run down 4th Street to just beyond Utica.

Chrissie Takes French Crown

PARIS (AP) — Chris Evert Lloyd patiently mowed down Australia's Wendy Turnbull 6-2, 6-0 Saturday in the most one-sided final seen in the French Open Tennis Championships since World War II.

In just over an hour in hot sunshine on the center court of the Roland Garros Stadium, Lloyd gave another lesson in playing on slow clay.

It brought her a first prize of $30,080 and bright prospects for Wimbledon later this month.

"When I first won the French title in 1974 I went on to win Wimbledon," Lloyd said. "We will have to see if it helps this time."

Wimbledon's faster grass courts need a different style of tennis and Lloyd will have to get past defending champion Martina Navratilova, the Czech-born serve-and-volley specialist, who defeated her there last year.

But on red clay against Turnbull, Lloyd was relentless. It took her four games to assert her authority. From 2-2 in the first set she sailed on unimpeded.

In the long baseline rallies on the slow surface, it was patience that won the points and over-eagerness that lost them.

In the second set, Lloyd made only one unforced error — a misjudged backhand in the fourth game — while Turnbull made 14.

"Wendy had been patient in her earlier matches in the tournament,' Lloyd said, "but tody she did not seem ready to stay out all afteroon to win the match. There's a right way to play on a clay court, and she just didn't do it."

Turnbull, 26, runner-up in the U.S. Open in 1977, left Paris with second prize of $15,000.

Tanner Falls At Tourney

BECKENHAM, England (AP) — Peter Fleming defeated fellow American Roscoe Tanner 3-6, 6-3, 7-5 Saturday to win the men's singles title in the Beckenham grass court tennis championship.

Tanner, who won here three years ago, started strongly but allowed his younger opponent to take control in the latter stages.

The men's final was a fierce battle between two hard-hitting serve-and-volley players.

It was Fleming's first win over the experencied Tanner.

"I can't recall ever playing so well on grass before," Fleming said.

Tanner, although not completely happy with his game, conceded Fleming was a worthy winner.

TAAF Net Tournament Winding Down

By SCOTT SUDDUTH
Avalanche Journal Sports Staff

Doug Davis has never played Mark Thompson or Wahed Maniya, but a clash between the future Texas Tech teammates is almost inevitable as the Texas Amateur Athletic Federation district tennis tournament enters the final round today.

Paired with Ralph Davis, Doug Davis has advanced to the semifinals of the Mens' A doubles division against Steve Thomas and Jerry Avery. Wahed and Maniya also advanced to the semifinals with a victory over the Dusty Earl-Mike Earl duo.

Wahed and Maniya are seeded No. 1 in the division while Davis and Davis are the No. 2 seeds, both duos are favored to duel in the finals today at 5 p.m.

A former standout netter at Coronado High School, Doug Davis is the top player on the Red Raider squad. Both Maniya and Thompson played tennis for Central Texas Junior College the past two seasons and recently signed with Tech.

"We've never played each other before but I'm looking forward to it," said Doug Davis. "Thompson has a good record and I don't think he has ever been pushed hard before. He'll be tough."

"But I'm confident that Ralph and I can win the doubles match," added Davis.

However, Maniya and Thompson, who are spending their first week in Lubbock, are just as confident that they will win if they advance to the finals.

"Davis will be tough but everything is OK with our game...it could be a tough match," said Thompson, a native of South Africa.

If the two teams advance to the finals in the doubles, it will be the second time in the day that Doug Davis and Thompson will have faced each other on the court. At 11:30 a.m., the two meet in the semifinals of the mens' A singles division. Davis, seeded No. 1 in the singles defeated Chuck Peek 6-1, 6-2 in Saturday's quarterfinals to advance to today's round. Thompson, the No. 4 seed, beat Steve Thomas 6-1, 7-6.

New York Blanks High-Riding Houston 4-0

By The Associated Press

Craig Swan pitched a seven-hitter Saturday for his second shutout of the season and Steve Henderson drove in two runs to lead the New York Mets past the Houston Astros 4-0.

Swan, 6-4, who pitched the Mets' only other shutout this year when he beat San Francisco 2-0 with a two-hitter on April 25, retired 13 Astros in a row from the second inning until Terry Puhl singled to lead off the sixth. He struck out three batters without issuing a walk.

The Mets jumped on Joaquin Andujar, 5-4, for two runs in the first inning when Joel Youngblood walked, Frank Taveras beat out a bunt and John Stearns walked to fill the bases before Henderson singled to center field.

In the sixth, Taveras doubled, Lee Mazzilli beat out a bunt and Willie Montanez scored Taveras with a single to center. Mazzilli then scored on Stearns' double play grounder.

BOSOX 12, TWINS 6

Carl Yastrezmski, Carlton Fisk, Jim Rice and Fred Lynn belted home runs in a 17-hit barrage as the Boston Red Sox trounced Minnesota 12-6 for their third straight victory.

Mike Torrez, 6-3, allowed only one hit for 72-3 innings before being chased when Minnesota erupted for five runs in the eighth.

The triumph was the Red Sox's sixth victory in their last seven games and raised their Fenway Park record for the season to 22-9.

ORIOLES 4, RANGERS 3

Steve Stone won his first game in nearly a month, limiting Texas to seven hits over eight innings while pitching the Baltimore Orioles to their fourth straight victory, a 4-3 decision over the Rangers.

Texas' Johnny Grubb extended his hitting streak to 21 games, longest in the major leagues this season, when he was credited with a single after his third-inning infield bouncer struck teammate Bump Wills, who was running the bases.

JAYS 5, A's 0

Home runs by Bob Davis, John Mayberry and Rico Carty gave the Toronto Blue Jays a 5-0 victory over Oakland and their first three-game winning streak since the opening week of the season.

PHILLIES 9, BRAVES 3

Garry Maddox had three hits and knocked in two runs as the Philadelphia Phillies broke ou of their hitting slump with 18 hits to beat the Atlanta Braves 9-3.

CUBS 5, DODGERS 3

Jerry Martin drove in three runs with a single and a double to lead the Chicago Cubs to a 5-3 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

REDS 7, EXPOS 1

Tom Seaver of the Cincinnati Reds tossed a three-hitter and retired the last 24 batters he faced to pick up his first victory since April 9, a 7-1 decision over the Montreal Expos.

WHITE SOX 6, BREWERS 2

Bill Nahorodny crashed a two-run pinch homer in the eighth inning to break a 1-1 tie and Chet Lemon added a two-run shot in the ninth, propelling the Chicago White Sox to a 6-2 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers.

CARDINALS 7, PADRES 4

Ken Reitz smacked a two-run single to spark a four-run first inning and Ted Simmons belted a two-run homer, leading the St. Louis Cardinals past the San Diego Padres 7-4.

GIANTS 6, PIRATES 2

Willie McCovey broke the record for career National League homers for a left-handed hitter when his three-run pinch homer in the eighth inning snapped a tie and powered the San Francisco Giants to a 6-2 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Coastal, 'Best Horse'

NEW YORK (AP) — Bud Delp, trainer of beaten TripleCrown aspirant Spectacular Bid, said simply: "The best horse won today. We have no excuses."

Delp was stretched to the limit of his self-control Saturday to retain his composure while answering questions after Spectacular Bid in the Belmont Stakes behind Coastal and Golden Act.

"He was running easy at the mile and after a mile and an eighth," Delp said as he accompanied his horse back to Barn 13 at Belmont Park. "I don't know what happened. The best horse won, that's all I can say."

Delp was unhappy with the performance of Bid, winner of the Kentucky Derby and Preakness, but he could find no fault in the ride of 19-year-old jockey Ron Franklin.

"Ron did a fine job," Delp said. "It just wasn't the Bid's best race. We've beaten Golden Act twice before (in the Derby and Preakness), so you know he didn't run his best race."

Delp, who planned to return to the Baltimore area with Franklin on Saturday, said Coastal had been the horse that worried him before the race.

"Coastal won three in a row on this track and he's partial to it," Delp said.

Coastal's last victory came at Belmont in the Peter Pan Stakes May 27, a race he won by 13 lengths.

"If he (Spectacular Bid) had won his best race, at least we would have beaten Golden Act," said Delp.

Britz Drops Into Tie At LPGA

MASON, Ohio (AP) — Co-leaders Donna Caponi Young and Jerilyn Britz agree on one thing. They will have to shoot a sub-par round today to win the 25th Ladies Professional Golfers Association Championship.

"That's what it will take," said Young, a 34-year-old veteran after shooting a 2-under-par 70 Saturday to pull even with Britz at 209, 7 under par on the 6,313-yard Nicklaus Golf Center layout just north of Cincinnati.

Britz, the leader the first two days, struggled to her first over-par round of 73 in the 72-hole event, but felt confident about the final round.

"I think I'll have to be under par for sure. But I feel very comfortable. I was not nervous today."

Young, the probable favorite against Britz because of her 13 tour victories, was not about to write off her 36-year-old co-leader who hasnot won in six tour years.

"I told you," Young told a news conference afterward. "Jerilyn's gonna be tough. She's gonna have to be caught."

Five players were within two shots of one another headed into the final round Sunday and the defending champion, Nancy Lopez, was a menacing 4 shots off the pace.

Britz, 36, who did not turn pro until she was 31, ran into three bogeys and carded two birdies for her only over-par round of this, the first of three major tournamnts for the women.

Amy Alcott, the runnerup here last year, was tied with Britz and Young until she missed a three-foot putt for par on the 15th hole. Alcott had 69 for 210, 6 under par and good for third place.

JoAnne Carner, still fighting an injured right hand from a month-old motorcycle accident, matched par of 72 and shared fourth place with Australian Penny Pulz, who had 69.

Lopex, chasing her fourth consecutive victory this year, also fashioned a 69 and predicted she would be in contention for the first prize of $22,500 in the $50,000 event.

"Tomorrow's the pressure day and I like a lot of pressure," said the 22-year-old sensation who has won five tournaments and more than $118,000 in 1979.

"I like a lot of pressure. I'm on my toes then," she said.

She was in a logjam for sixth place with four other players. They were left-handed Bonnie Bryant, Jan Stephenson, Judy Rankin and Jo Ann Prentice.

Stephenson fired a 68, the best performance among the top contenders in the third round. Prentice and Rankin had 70s while Bryant settled for par 72.

COACH NEEDED

KRESS (Special)—Kress High School needs a boys and girls head coach for varsity basketball. Interested persons must be qualified in the social studies and history teaching fields and can contact coach Al Mitts at 806-684-2332 or 684-2681.

Britons Lead Le Mans Endurance Race

LE MANS, France (AP) — An American-entered Mirage Ford, driven by Britons Derek Bell and David Hobbs, took the lead in the Le Mans 24-hour roadrace classic Saturday night as the favored Porsches hit trouble.

Behind the Mirage, entered by Harley Cluxton of Phoenix, Ariz., a fabulous battle developed among a pack of a dozen Porsche 935 coupes, carrying through predictions of the most open race in years.

The Porsche 936 speedsters controlled the opening hours of the race, quickly drawing away from the Mirages. But a tire burst on the second-placed Porsche and Brian Redman took 30 minutes to crawl round the 8.5-mile circuit back to the pits.

As Redman brought the car, its rear bodywork ripped open by the tire, round the 8.5 mile track to the pits, he passed the rival Mirage-Ford of Jean-Pierre Jaussaud of France and Australian Vern Schuppan, stopped with gearbox problems.

COMING TO TOWN — Bumper-to-bumper, four stunt drivers with the Chitwood Auto Thrill Show put their cars through their paces. The show, the top organization of its kind in the nation, will appear at Lubbock Speedway Monday, June 18. Featured in addition to crashes and other crowd pleasers will be two-wheel driving by Joie Chitwood Jr., who holds an international distance record established at Daytona International Speedway.

Soccer Boom Evident By Large Local Event

up card from school that first year.

"It sounded good to me, and he wanted to play, so he did," Gordhamer said of that initial season. "I went to some games and tried to figure out what was going on. The next year, his coach left, so I just did it. I read some about it and watched as much as I could on TV, and I've been getting in deeper ever since."

Since the LSA developed its program from scratch, the organizers were able to combine the best of the Dallas soccer clubs with ideas they thought would improve the fledgling Lubbock groups. For instance, young soccer players stay with the same team as long as they remain in the same age bracket.

Every two years, when a player goes to an older age bracket, he is filtered into a team that, ideally, is in his general neighborhood.

"We really like it if the kids can just walk to practice from home or school," he said. "The team and neighborhood concept grows strong, plus it saves parents from having to drive all over for practice."

The one stigma still attatched to soccer, especially in places where it is the national passion, is the very real threat of violence. Riots, massive crowd control problems and even deaths caused by overzealous crowds at soccer games have occurred in Europe, South America and even the United States.

"Soccer around the world has a potential for violence because there's nothing to break the tension," Gordhamer said.

"So we've stuck in some rules to cover that. We've removed some coaches and banned some parents for being too rowdy, and we've also placed the coaches in charge of their fans. A game can be forfeited if a coach's fans get out of hand. This hasbeen very successful in keeping the coaches under control, and in getting them to keep their supporters quiet, too.

"Also," he laughs, "not too many parents really know what's going on out there."

Like most soccer enthusiasts, Gordhamer believes tha game develops qualities that are useful in everyday life, especially since the sport is not dominated by the big men running so rampant through football and basketball.

"Soccer calls for motor skills, but also team play," he said. "The mental apsects can make up for a lack of physical talent. For the girls especially, soccer allows them to break out of their stereotypes and develop a better self-concept.

"They become more assertive, less dependent when they see what they can do. Soccer is a game of finesse and skill, not strength."

Gordhamer expects the soccer boom to continue in Lubbock and across the nation. The sport has become more visible, and more available, lately, especially in Texas with the emerging popularity of the Dallas Tornado and the Houston Hurricane of the North American Soccer League. And, as more American stars like Kyle Rote, Jr., are groomed, young participants will have more soccer heroes to look up to.

"Soccer is more humanistic than most sports," he philosophizes. "It's more a pure sport where you learn to endure, to work with others and not to damage other people. It's too bad life can't be more like that."

Weather Hampers Tourney Play

When referee Craig Ford stepped out of his car Saturday morning at the 35-field soccer complex north of Texas Instruments on University, he slipped in the mud and twisted his back.

The injury was only the first in a number of problems caused by the weather which handicapped the first round of the Pepsi Cola Invitational Soccer Tournament Saturday.

Heavy rains Friday delayed the start of the competition. Originally, the action was slated to start at 9 a.m. But because a number of fields were under water at that time, the start of the tournament had to be pushed back to 1:30 p.m.

"What happened to Craig is about how things have gone all day," said referee coordinator Rand McPherson. "The rain has really made it rough going for everybody."

In an attempt to complete Saturday's schedule, games were moved to high school and junior high fields throughout Lubbock, with all contests having a 20-minute per half time limit. The younger divisions were scheduled to play 25-minute halves with the older groups having a 40-minute per half time limit.

"Even with the changes, we stayed about an hour behind schedule the entire day," said McPherson.

According to Tournament Director Gary Hurt, Lubbock has 42 teams competing in the tournament. Hurt said the local entries are only faring so-so.

"The younger teams are holding their own," said Hurt. "But the older teams aren't doing so well."

Hurt indicated that the weather has not only thrown off the time schedule for the games, but also has had an affect on the style of play.

"The games have been low scoring," said Hurt. "But that should change today if the fields are allowed to dry out."

Today's concluding action will begin a 9 a.m., with championship games slated to start at 1 p.m.

Summerow Wins Fourth

RUIDOSO (Special)—Pious Mary, a 9-1 shot directed by hot riding Dan Summerow stormed to a 1¼ length win in Saturday's feature race at Ruidoso Downs.

The win was Summerow's fourth of the afternoon, and gave him 16 for the season. It also put him in a tie for first place in seasonal jockey standings with Gary Sumpter.

Sumpter was aboard Mr. Clyde, the even money favorite in Saturday's toper, but had to settle for third. Mr. Clyde came out of the pack to battle for the lead in the final drive of the seven furlong duel, then flatened out just as Summerow was getting Pious Mary through between horses.

Fans who backed Pious Mary got 20.00, 8.80 and 3.80. Royal Minds who gamely tried to steal the race with early speed, held off the Mr. Clyde by a nose to take second. Royal Minds paid 11.60 and 4.00 as a 13 outsider.

Wayland Inks Prep Standouts

PLAINVIEW (Special)—The Wayland Baptist Pioneers signed a basketball and a track recruit, it was announced Saturday.

Joining the Pioneers basketball program is Jeff McClure, a 6-3 forward from Kress. Joe Barrera, a regional qualifer in the track the last three years from Abernathy, has signed a track letter.

McClure is a three-year letterman and was named to All-Tournament teams during his junior and senior years.

Barrera holds an Abernathy High School record of two-minutes flat in the half mile. He has advanced to the Region I meet in the half mile the last three years, and in the 330 intermediate hurdles and long jump this year as well this season.

Wet Grounds Forces Dragway To Cancel

Races scheduled Saturday at Lubbock Dragway have been rescheduled for June 23 because of heavy rains.

A spokesman for the dragway said that the track, two miles south of Idalou on FM 400, had received in excess of four inches of rain late Friday and early Saturday, rendering the parking lots and pit area impassible.

Cosmo Ace Happy Only After Scoring Goals

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Giorgio Chinaglia just loves to score goals, admitting when the ball is not going in the net he is a disgruntled soccer player.

"When I don't score, I'm not happy," said the 32-year-old Cosmos striker. But thanks to a talented right foot which releases a bullet shot, Giorgio Chinaglia is basically a pretty happy guy.

He led the North American Soccer League last year with a record 34 goals and had 60 goals in all counting the Cosmos 30 exhibition and playoff games. He's picked up this year with 12 goals in the Cosmos first dozen game.

Scoring is nothing new to Giorgio. He mastered the art as a youngster, even though "when you're young you don't know why you do things."

As he got older, Chinaglia realized the reason. You get paid more money for scoring goals. Playmakers drive Volkswagens, goal scorers drive Mercedes.

Chinaglia came to the Cosmos in 1976 from Lazio of Italy, the only other professional soccer team he's ever played for. He scored 19 in 19 games in 1976 but slipped to 15 goals in 24 gaes his second year. When Giorgio doesn't score, he's not happy, so he ot Coach Gordon Bradley fired midway though the season.

Chinaglia laughs, however, at the suggestion that he is the only playing general manager in professional sports.

"I'm outspoken, if I have something on my mind, I'll say it. But this is not my team, I'm a player on it," Chinaglia says. "I'm honest, one of my assets is honesty. Sometimes people don't like to hear that. But what I say I say because I really love this club. It's a way of life for me."

Chinaglia has not been accused of getting Eddie Firmani fired, too, but it's known he didn't exactly stick up for him when the coach began to have his problems with management.

Giorgio is very close with Steve Ross, the head honcho at Warner Communications, the conglomerate the operates the Cosmos. It's believed if Chinaglia has spoken up for Firmani rather than being in Bermuda on business two days before the ax fell on his coach, Ross would have called off the dogs.

But Chinaglia is paid by the Cosmos to light up the scoreboard and there are very few players in the world who do it any better.

"As a goal scorer, you just can't ask for anything more," said Cosmos goalkeeper Jack Brand.

Giorgio has a goal scorers' ego. When he's not getting the ball or if he goes into a scoring draught, he gets down.

"Like any goal scorers when they don't score, George goes into a rage, starts biting his nails. If he doesn't score for two or three games, people think he's sick," Brand said.

"George has got the ability to put the ball in the corner all the time. He seems to have special vision. That's what makes a good goal getter," Brand added. "I think he gets depressed when he misses chances but I don't think he gets too unhappy if the team wins and he doesn't score. All of us should be team first — at least we should be."

Which is not always the case with the Cosmos. That's one of the many reasons why Firmani was booted out of a job last week.

Dennis Tueart plays to the right of Chinaglia on the Cosmos' forward line. He is no slouch himself when it comes to scoring, but has sacrificed his statistics to become a playmaker on the Cosmos. He and Chinaglia work very well together.

"He creates very good space for himself, which comes from his days in Italy when space was at a premium," said Tueart, the MVP in last year's Soccer Bowl. "George is not as happy as he would be after a game as if he scored. I'm a scorer but a playmaker, too. I Get just as much satisfaction if we win 3-0 and I get two assists than if I scored. But it could be a problem with George if he went too long without scoring."

The longest Chinaglia has gone without scoring during the last two seasons is one game, which makes it all the more amazing that he is roundly booed before each home game at Giants Stadium.

Schoolboy Baseball Champs Crowned

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The state schoolboy baseball tournament started with a 24-2 game that broke a scoring record and ended with a dramatic 1-0 contest in which a bunt in front of the plate spoiled a no-hitter.

For the first time since it began in 1949, five state champions were crowned as the two-day tournament was expanded to include Class B, A and 2A.

Spring, north of Houston, won the 4A title on a one-hitter by Kenny Crafton, a 5-foot-10 junior who hits .430 as an outfielder when he is not pitching.

Spring edged Baytown Sterling, 1-0, Friday night, with only two sings — both clean shots to the outfield — while Bill Beauchamp's bunt as the leadoff hitter in the seventh and final inning was Sterling's only hit.

In winning over Carrollton Turner, 2-0, and Sterling, the new 4A champions collected a total of only five hits.

DeSoto managed just seven safeties but edged South San Antonio-West, 3-2, and Cleburne, 2-1, for the 3A championship.

Kermit won 2A over East Chambers, 3-1; Riviera beat Ore City, 9-3, in A; and Palmer defeated Colmesneil, 6-3, or the Class B title.

Palmer set the scoring record against Windthorst, compiling 24 runs on 10 hits, 17 walks — including five to third baseman Jimmy Wilt — and six Windthorst errors in a game that was stopped after five innings because of the "10-run rule."

The previous record for most runs by a team was 17 by South San Antonio in 1964.

Shortstop Mario DeLaPaz of Riviera also had his troubles in the tournament, making four errors on four chances in 1-13 innings of the championship game before his coach sent him to left field. The exchange worked as leftfielder John Cordaway played errorless ball at short.

Two schoolboys — Lloyd Hollister of Sterling and Scotty Self of Cleburne — managed to pound balls over the fence at spacious Disch-Falk Field, the home of the Texas Longhorn baseball team.

Paul James of Palmer also tallied an inside-the-park home run when his line drive bounced high on the artificial turf and rolled to the right centerfield fence, nearly 400 feet away.

Recruiting Not Always Tough

DANVILLE, Va. (AP) — While the basketball coaches at Virginia, Virginia Tech, Kentucky and North Carolina sweated out the Ralph Sampson marathon, Coach Mike Sandifar at Averett could breath easy.

Yes, he too had started out the course to lure the 7-foot-3¾ wonder from Harrisonburg High School, but was politely told he didn't have a chance to finish.

"A lot of people have kidded me about not going after Sampson, but the fact is I did," Sandifar said.

"I sent him a letter of inquiry, and he wrote back thanking me for my interest, but he had to narrow his choices and Averett was not among his list of schools. I think if showed a lot of class on his part to respond."

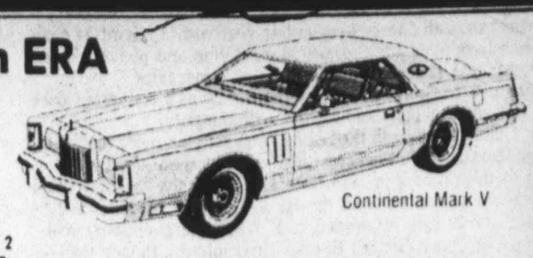

Sandifar may lost his No. 1 choice to Virginia, but he probably spent a much less agonizing recruiting season than did Terry Holland, Charlie Moir, Joe Hall or Dean Smith.

Newman Running In Fourth Place At Le Mans

LE MANS, France (AP) — Film star Paul Newman, in his first race at the classic Le Mans 24 Hours circuit, was running an unexpected fourth overall Saturday night.

Newman, intensely concentrating on the racing, was not talking to anyone outside his team in between his driving sessions of about 1½ hours each in a Porsche 935 twin turbo coupe. But Dick Barbour of San Diego, Calif., owner and co-driver of the car with Newman and German ace Rolf Stommelen, said Newman was "really getting dialed into the race."

Bean Bulls Into Atlanta Lead

ATLANTA (AP) — Andy Bean, exhibiting the power and finesse that has established him as one of pro golf's young stars, lashed his way to an 11-under-par 61 and a 5-stroke lead Saturday in the third round of the $300,000 Atlanta Classic.

Bean, who has a habit of playing his best at this stage of the season, holed a 3-foot birdie putt on the 18th hole to complete the back nine in 29. His 18-hole score was a record for the hilly, 7,019-yard Atlanta Country Club course and marked the second time in as many weeks, and the third time this year a 61 has been recorded on the PGA Tour.

Better scores have been posted only eight times in the history of the Tour.

Bean, packing enormous power in his 6-foot-4, 210-pound frame, finished 54 holes with a 198 total, a dizzying 18 shots below par, matching the best 3-round total of the Tou season.

Playing conditions were ideal. The weather was hot and humid, with just the breath of a breeze ruffling the pines and oaks that crown the red-clay hills along the Chattahoochee River. And Bean, who grew up on the islands off the south coast of Georgia, took full advantage of it.

He didn't make a bogey; didn't even come close. He reeled off 11 birdies, including 4 in a row opening the back 9 and finished with 3 more, then lifted both hands high above his head to the howling glee of the big crowd around the 18th.

"You didn't think I was gonna miss it," he said of the final birdie putt. "Those kids around the green would have killed me."

Bean, who won three tournaments in a five-week stretch at precisely this time of the season a year ago, said he's "never played like this before. Never."

His spectacular performance completely overshadowed a remarkable 64, 8 under par, that lifted Masters champion Fuzzy Zoeller into a tie for second at 203. But that is a distant 5 shots behind the big guy with the curly red hair.

Joe Inman, the second round leader, had a solid 68 and, incredibly, was beaten 7 shots by Bean. He shared second with Zoeller.

"I can't figure out how you can shoot 68 from the lead and be 5 shots back," the stunned Inman said. "It's like he's been caged up."

Grier Jones was next at 69-205. It was another 2 strokes back to Barry Jaeckel, Morris Hatalsky and Larry Nelson at 207. Nelson matched par 72, while Jaeckel and Hatalsky had 68s.

"I made a couple of putts early and that seemed to get me going. The golf course played pretty well, but when you're hitting it close to the hole and making the putts, I guess it seems pretty easy.

"I guess I gained a little bit of ground. I wanted to be closer to the lead. I guess I did that."

Inman agreed.

"I'm looking at the leader board as we're playing along and every time they put up another number he's another shot under par."

Bean did it all. He reached par-5s in 2. He holed long putts. He hit his irons close. And when the situation arose, as on the 18th, he had the deft, delicate touch to chip it close.

RECORD SETTER — Andy Bean reaches out with his putter as his putt on the 17th hole of the Atlanta Country Club course sinks for a birdie. Bean set a new course record with an 11-under-par 61 Saturday to take the lead at the tournament. (AP Laserphoto)

Foyt Grabs Pole Post At Rex Mays 150 Race

MILWAUKEE (AP) — As expected, four-time Indianapolis 500 champion A.J. Foyt Saturday won the pole position for today's Rex Mays 150 mile speedway car race at State Fair Park.

Driving a bright orange Parnelli-Cosworth, Foyt circled the mile oval in 28.312 seconds for a speed of 127.154 miles per hour.

And, had he not been a bit under the weather with a sore throat, Foyt said he might have done even better.

"I was real happy with the run, all things considered," Foyt said. "I think if I'd felt better I could have got another 10 or 20 hundredths easy."

Sheldon Kinser, the Bloomington, Ind., racer who drives for Ralph Wilke of Milwaukee, was the only one close to Foyt. Kinser qualified his Watson-Offenhauser at 28.457 for a speed of 126.546 to share the front row of the 18 car field — two cars fewer than the U.S. Auto Club had hoped for.

Most of racing's top names — Foyt excepted — are in Trenton, N.J., for a Championship Auto Racing Teams event. Nevertheless, the Mays is to be nationally televised starting at 3:30 p.m. CDT.

Preceding the Mays will be a 63 lap mini-Indy race at 2 .m., with a special 25 lap championship dirt car race to be run immediately after the Mays race.

Foyt said he wished the CART drivers were still in USAC and running here Sunday.

Fem Tourney Tops Golf Action

By CHUCK McDONALD
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

What's more popular than a June wedding?

Well, a quick glance at the Avalanche-Journal golf calendar will give you an answer. Golf. All kinds of golf action is on tap for Lubbock and the surrounding area this week as well as the upcoming weekend.

But golf tournaments, unlike most marriages, never last more than a few days. Usually these local tournies are limited to no more than 54 holes, but in a marriage— the pitfalls can be much more numerous.

And speaking of weddings and women, this week's headliner tournament is the Women's West Texas Golf Association Invitational.

Registration began Saturday morning after the official flag-raising ceremonies at the Hillcrest Country Club kicked off the tournament. Competiting women may register at Hillcrest, the site of this year's tourney, until 4 p.m. today.

The ladies begin action Monday morning when the qualifying round gets underway at 8 a.m. They will play in foursomes Monday and then begin match play on Tuesday.

After Monday's qualifying round the ladies will be flighted according to scores and handicaps. Tournament officials have indicated that the field of 144 will be divided into a championship flight and four others.

Once the match play begins, winners will be determined not by scores but by which member of the twosome wins the most holes of the 18 the women will play.

The Women's West Texas will culminate on Friday with a presentation party at 2 p.m. in the Hillcrest Ballroom.

But there is plenty of other golf action going on before the ladies pass out the awards.

Several tournaments began yesterday and will be deciding winners today. They are the Big Spring Partnership, the American Cancer Society Partnership in Brownfield and the Littlefield Country Club Partnership.

Slated today is the Pan American Golf Association Tune-up Tournament at the Meadowbrook Municipal Course.

A couple of pro am's are also slated this week. On Monday Lamesa Country Club will be the site of one and on Thursday Lubbock's own Pine Hill's course will also host a pro am.

And, if you can't quite handle your woods but sizzle the greens with the putter, you might want to visit Amarillo on Friday. The Amarillo Country Club will host the Muny Open Putting Tournament.

If you're having marital problems consider a trip to Lovington next weekend. The country club there is hosting it's annual Stoltz Memorial Partnership. The tourney is a 54-hole, three-day affair that should give you plenty of time to appreciate home-cooking. But if you're not already registered for the Stoltz tourney— forget it.

Lovington officials reported that the partnership had been full for nearly a year. Still 64 teams will tee off at 8:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. at the nine-hole course on Friday.

Robinson Posts Year's Top 800-Meter Time

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Former California star James Robinson passed a tiring Don Paige a few strides from the finish to win a stirring 800-meter run at the Meet of Champions Saturday in 1:45.52, the fastest time in the world this year.

The Robinson-Paige battle overshadowed Maryland hurdler Renaldo Nehemiah, who won the 110-meter hurdles in his slowest time of the year, 13:41, against a weakened field which did not include his arch rival Greg Foster of UCLA.

Robinson, who has not lost on the University of California track since he started at Cal in 1975, made his move coming off the final turn but was unable to get by Paige until just before the tape.

Paige, who was timed in 1:45.54, had won the 800 and the 1,500 last week at the NCAA championships.

"You give me an Excedrin headache," Robinson said to Paige after the race. "At the top of the turn I thought I would catch him, but then 40 yards up I knew I would get close to him but I didn't know I would go by him."

Paige, who took over the lead on the backstretch, said he tried to hold Robinson off but couldn't do it.

"I looked over my shoulder and he went by me," the Villanova junior said. "I just couldn't go any faster."

Robinson's time was just off his lifetime best of 1:45.5 and was .68 seconds faster than Paige's winning NCAA time last week which was the best in the world this year.

In the 110 hurdles Nehemiah, who set world records the previous two times he ran in California this year, had little trouble disposing of Dedy Cooper and four other rivals. UCLA's Foster did not run because of a sprained ankle while Cooper was bothered by a groin injury.

"I was disappointed," said Nehemiah, who ran wind-aided 12.9 at the NCAAs and holds an official mark of 13-flat. "You need world class runners in top shape to set a world record."

Weaver, Hall Lead At BSCC Tourney

BIG SPRING (Special)—Pat Weaver and Mike Hall fired a 65 to grab the first round lead in the scratch division of the 36-hole Big Spring partnership golf tournament.

Weaver and Hall lead by 1-stroke, with the the final round of the scratch division having a shotgun start today at 2 p.m. The handicap division will start at 9 a.m.

Scratch Division

Handicap Division

62—Joey Pate-Mick Scarborough, Frank Peters-Tom Pickering; 63—Rodney Newell-David Brock, 64-O.S. Womack-Alton Bostick.

Boat Fuel Supply Adequate

By J.D. PEER
I&E Field Officer

Texas boaters are not having much difficulty in buying gasoline according to reports from marine dealers, marina operators and the Boating Trades Association of Texas.

"We have checked virtually all areas of Texas, and found none to be experiencing a shortage of gas supplies," said Tom Nelms, president of the boating association.

"We've had some service stations close down on weekends, but we don't anticipate that we're going to have a gasoline shortage similar to the one that's occurring in other parts of the country," Nelms continued.

The predicted gasoline shortage seems to have little effect upon boat purchases as the normal increase of boat registrations continues with the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department. An increase of 9.5 percent is being tabulated by the registration division each year for the last ten years. As of March, 1979, there were 331,781 boats registered in Texas by the P&WD.

The closures of many service stations on weekends will require careful planning by boat owners so they can find gasoline. Nearly 75 percent of boating takes place on weekends and the P&WD suggests Texas boaters travel or cross the major highways where service stations are normally open seven days a week.

It is expected that more local boating trips to area lakes will be made this summer and fewer long hauls to far-away reservoirs will be planned.

Sheltered Camp Grounds Offer Travelers Comfort

BUFFALO GAP (Special) — The number of visitors to State parks continuesto increase at a predictable rate, but the parks with group shelters have shown the biggest jump.

"These group shelters are popular for family reunions, parties, or even company meetings and nearly all are bing reserved well into the summer," said Leonard Winstead, regional park director of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

"The only closed group shelter in northwest Texas is located at the Abilene recreational area, but open group shelters are located at Fort Griffin near Albany, Fort Richardson near Jacksboro and at Lake Arrowhead near Wichita Falls," Winstead continued.

The new state parks reservation system includes these shelters along with the normal campsite reservations. The popularity of these group shelters makes it necessary for groups wanting to reserve a shelter, to call well in advance.

Information about the facilities at various state parks can be obtained by calling either Winstead at 915/572-3505 or toll-free 800-252-9327.

QUAIL HUNTING

AUSTIN (Special)— Texas quail hunters may be able to take advantage on any increased quail production as a result of a decision by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission. The commission authorized the Parks and Wildlife Department to defer setting bag limits on quail in regulatory authority counties until after the quail nesting season is completed. The final decision on quail bag and possesion limits will be announced sometime in September.

Where They're Biting

Buffalo Springs Lake— "The walleye were stocked a little over a year ago," reports Barnie Greenfield at the concession-bait store, "and they're just getting big enough now to catch." The fish are definitely hungry, and there are indications that they are schooling. Some of the bigger walleye have been caught on white spinners, and white crappie jigs. Good results have been obtained by bank fishing in shallow water at opposite ends of the lake. Steve Grant, a lake resident, hauled in a walleye measuring 11 1/2 inches. Lake residents Richard Lee Boyd and his son Richie pulled in several good walleye. Bass fishing is also first rate, as is the crappie action. And the channel cats are starting up again. The lake is in good condition.

Lake Guerrero— Fishing guides report last week's largest bass was boated by Larry Crawford of Lubbock. The lunker weighed 6 1/2pounds and was attracted by a yellow spinner. Anglers are averaging 82 fish per day. The water temperature is 78 degrees and the lake is clear.

New Mexico— Fishing for crappie with live minnows is very good at Carlsbad Municipal Lake and Bataan. Trotlining on the Pecos River below Carlsbad is good to very good with minnows and cut bait.

Oak Creek Lake— Rod and reel fishing for channel cat has definitely improved in the past week. Trolling for white bass weighing about two pounds per fish has been very good. The lake gained three more inches of water; the lake level has now reached shore vegetation.

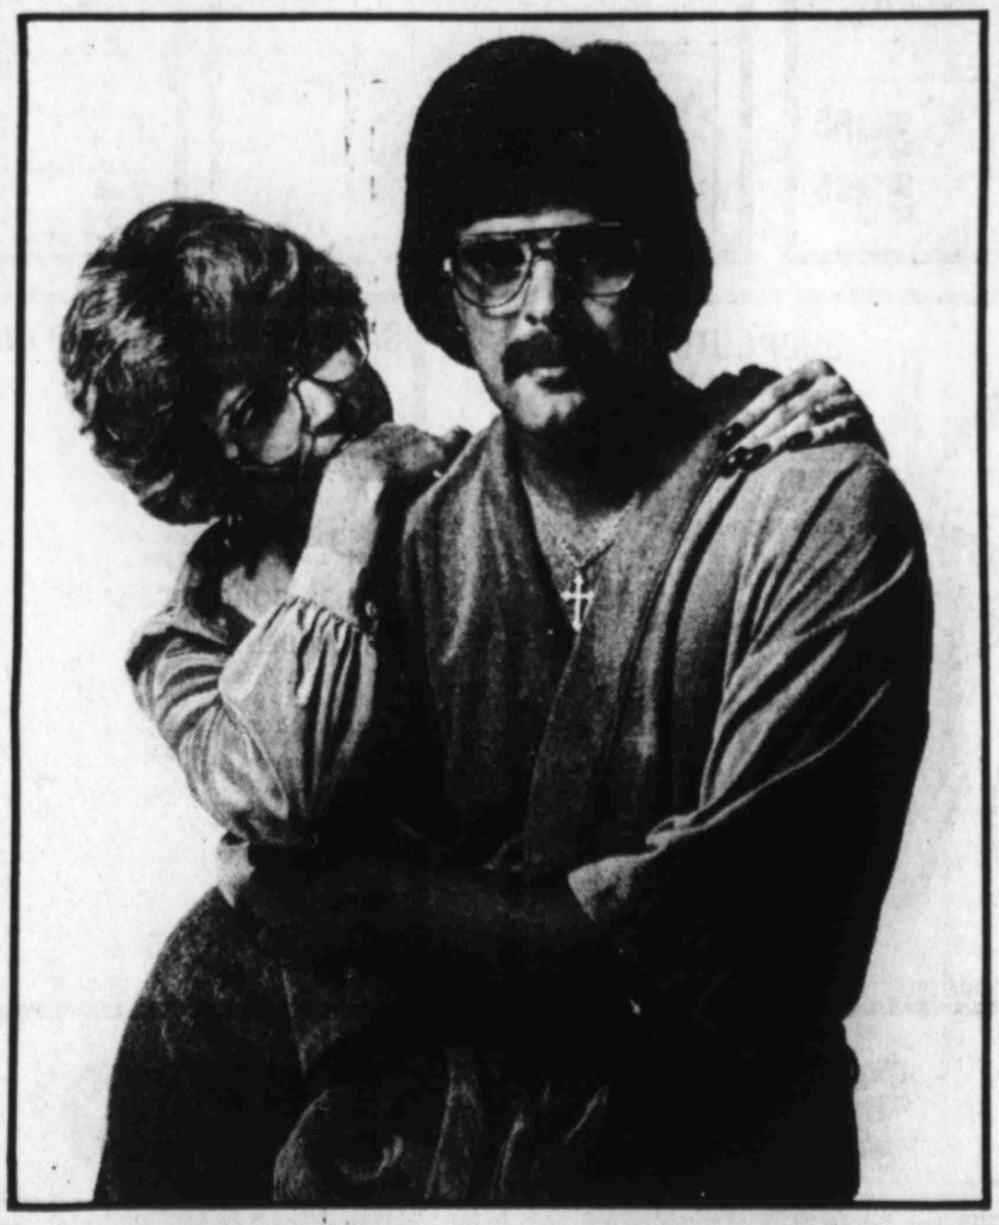

White River Lake— Allen Luedlke of Lubbock used a worm and crank bait to hook a lunker that weighed 4 pounds 10 ounces, and another at 4 3/4 pounds.The bass are being found off the rocky points and the mesquite up the river. The bass are showing some red fins as they're fanning the nests for spawning. Catfish and crappie are plentiful. The water is 69 degrees and the lake is clear with indications for good top water fishing very soon.

Amarillo Youngster Gets Big Surprise

TAD ELLIS

AMARILLO (Special) — Amarillo's Tad Ellis won't forget his ninth birthday. Last Monday, during his birthday, the honoree got a telegram and a phone call from a "cousin."

It's not unusual to hear from a relative on a special occasion but Tad and Texas Ranger pitcher Dock Ellis aren't related. They're just "cousins."

"He's been telling everybody that he and Dock Ellis are cousins for about two years now," says Tad's mother, Mrs. Jimmy Ellis.

"I sent Dock a letter the Tuesday before Tad's birthday, along with a picture and told him about the cousins thing. Then I told him about Tad's birthday and asked if he could send an autographed picture. We didn't get the picture, but after the telegram and the phone call, well, you know we don't even care."

"I try to answer all my Ellis mail (letters from people with the last name of Ellis)," says the Ranger righthander. "I generally try to send them what they ask for. Tad's the second kid I've called.

"But you know, stuff like this is going to kill my image because Dock Ellis is supposed to be a controversial figure. I tried to get Howard Cosell to wish Tad happy birthday (the Rangers played Boston on national TV Monday) but he was too busy trying to make me look like a troublemaker."

Tad received both a telegram and a phone call, which lasted about five minutes, from his favorite baseball player. Both were a complete surprise to the third grader who pitches and plays second base for his softball team. He didn't even know that his mother had sent the letter.

"My sister was a big Johnny Bench fan," explained Mrs. Ellis. "She had posters of him all over the wall. So one day I wrote him for her, but he never answered. She was pretty upset. I didn't want to tell Tad that I wrote Dock because I didn't want him to get hurt."

"Tad thought they tricked him when he got the telegram," said Dock. "He didn't believe I sent it until I called."

"I was surprised to hear from him," says Tad. "I still can't believe it."

"Most of my friends were there at the birthday part when the telegram came. And a few were still around when the phone call came. So they know that I know him. But they still don't believe that he's my cousin."

Both Tad and his father talked with the one-time member of the world champion Pittsburgh Pirates.

Besides wishing Tad "happy birthday," Dock also told his cousin he wanted to meet him and even invited him into the clubhouse wen the family goes to Arlington Saturday to watch the Rangers play the Yankees.

"He wants to meet me," an excited Tad told his mother after handing the phone over to his dad. "Boy, I can't believe that. I just want to meet him."

"He told me that he wouldn't have done anything to disappoint Tad," says the elder Ellis of his conversation with the winner of 135 major league games.

"Then when I told him we were coming down Saturday, he invited us into the clubhouse after the game so he could meet Tad. All of Tad's friends are saying that Dock must be quite a guy. I think he is too."

"I'll take him into the clubhouse with me," says Ellis. "He'll be with me and he'll just be one of the guys.

"He is my cousin, you know."

'Golden Jet' May Return To Chicago

MONTREAL (AP) — The Edmonton Oilers, the World Hockey Association regular season champion, and losing finalists in postseason play, were hardest hit when it came time Saturday for the National Hockey League to reclaim some of its own.

But the major news, although not unexpected, was that Bobby Hull likely will close out his illustrious career with the Chicago Blacks Hawks. Chicago was able to reclaim up the veteran left wing when the Winnipeg Jets left him unprotected.

It was Hull's decision to jump his contract with Chicago to join the Jets seven years ago that gave the fledgling league credibility.

Hull retired from the Jets after playing only four games in 1978-79 season. His return to Chicago as a player had been rumored for several months.

Under terms of expansion for the 1979-80 season approved by the NHL board of governors, the four incoming WHA teams were entitled to protect a maximum two skaters and two goaltenders whose rights might be claimed by NHL teams.

Student Defies Handicap

By PAULA TILKER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Gabe Bullock passionately loves sports.

He dreams of becoming a sports announcer on television. He actively participates in athletic events such as track, softball and basketball. And he wins.

He also is confined to a wheelchair.

Bullock's most recent athletic achievements literally sparkle. They are gold and bronze medals he won at the Special Olympics in Austin last week.

The gold award was for taking first place in the slalom. And the bronze was for the softball-throw event.

His face creases into a broad beam when he talks about the Olympics, and his eyes glint with pleasure.

"When I got this gold medal, you should have seen my face. I've never been so happy," he said.

Bullock has been competing in the Special Olympics, which are designed for the handicapped, for 11 years. "In my first year at the Olympics, I tried so hard to win a ribbon. I won second," he said.

"The next year I won five big blue ribbons for first place.

"It's a good achievement to be in the Special Olympic games," he continued. "We want people to come out and watch us. We are proud to be in these games. It just tickles you to death to see someone walk and run in the Olympics."

The special education major, who works at Southwest Lighthouse for the Blind, trains for the Olympics and for other state meets by wheeling himself rapidly up and down sidewalks.

"Track's my favorite sport," he explained.

He also keeps himself fit by playing basketball with others bound to wheelchairs. "When we get real good, we're going to play some teams," he said.

Bullock's life revolves around sports. He is proud of his thorough knowledge of past events and current situations in the sports world. He remembers with ease trivia such as who won the Cotton-bowl a decade ago.

"I love sports," he explained simply. "I grew up watching football and all, and I just fell in love with the whole shebang.

"If I had the courage, I would probably work for one of the TV stations as a sports announcer. It's my dream. It's always been my dream," he said.

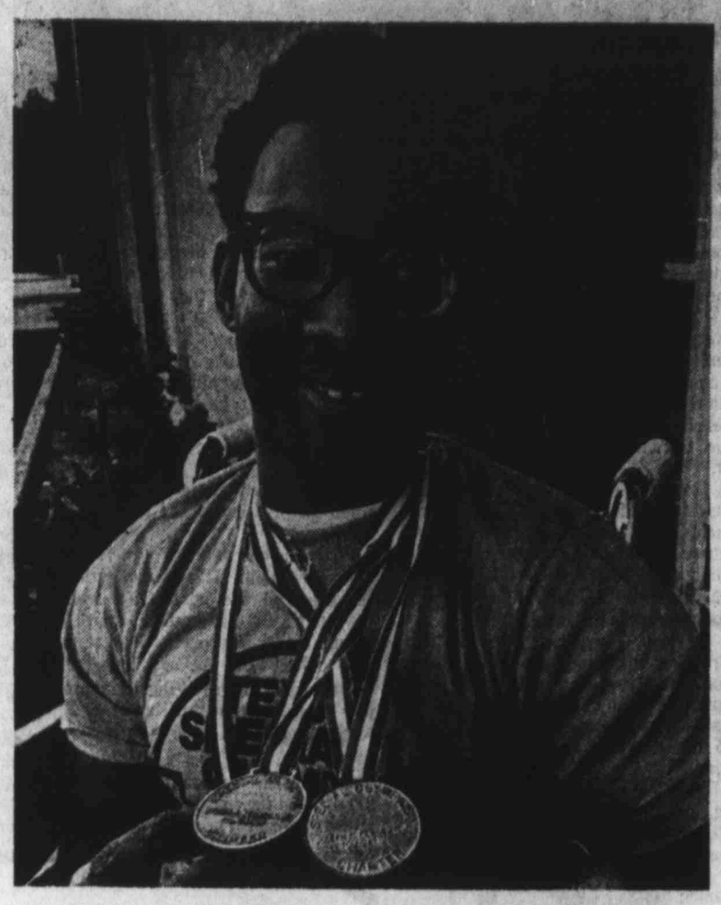

"I may be handicapped, but I want to tell other people what I know about sports," he added.

Bullock makes room in his sports and scholastic life for active participation in the Texas Tech Jaycees. He travels on Jaycees business and enjoys it immensely. "It's amazing," he said. "You'd be surprised where I go, how I go, what I do."

He has a deep confidence in his abilities and in attaining his goals, which are to "try hard, to maybe be a sports announcer and to just help other people."

He even plans to write about himself. "I'm trying real hard to get together a book about me," Bullock said. "It's going to be a good deal."

Bullock added he is "just a bright young man" who believes people should help those who need it.

California Police Strike

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Almost all California Highway Patrol traffic officers called in sick Saturday in a demand for higher pay, leaving sergeants, supervisors and local police to handle emergencies.

The weekend sickout, the first in the patrol's 57-year history, was called to bolster the patrolmen's demands for a 20.6 percent pay raise.

Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. has offered a 10.5 percent increase, with a threat of "no work, no pay." State workers received no pay raise last year because of the budget cuts brought on by the property tax-limiting Proposition 13.

Highway patrol information officer Kent Milton said 533of 564 traffic officers scheduled to work the 6 a.m. shift did not report.

He said, however, that there were 242 sergeants and supervisors who did report. Along with the 31 traffic officers who worked, the force was 49 percent of scheduled strength, Milton said.

Sergeants and supervisors would be working 12-hour shifts during the weekend, he said.

Ralph Tornatore, executive manager of the Association of Highway Patrolmen said the protest would continue each weekend until the pay raise is approved.

Tech Professor To Present Paper In Atlanta

T.R.M. Rao, M.D., M.S. will present a paper on "Volvulus of the Colon — A County Hospital Experience," at the 78th annual convention of the American Society of Colon and Rectal Surgeons in Atlanta Monday.

Dr. Rao's study of 31 such cases over a five-year period describes how the disease is recognized and treated.

Dr. Rao, formerly a fellow in colon and rectal surgery at Cook County Hospital in Chicago, is now clinical assistant professor of surgery at the Texas Tech University School of Medicine and is in private practice with the University Medical-Surgical Associates in Lubbock.

He has staff memberships at University Hospital and at Health Sciences Center Hospital and is a diplomat of the American Board of Surgeons.

Tornado Survivors Struggle In Disaster's Wake

WICHITA FALLS (AP) — A 5-year-old boy wishes he could die. Reported incidents of wife beating have gone up almost 500 percent. Welfare officials are predicting increases in child abuse.

These are the things the City of Wichita Falls now must learn to live with in the wake of a tornado that chewed up more than a quarter of the city two months ago today, killing 45.

The survivors, the 100,000-plus people left behind, are trying to cope. But flooding rains, endless paperwork and hassles with the federal government, insurance companies and contractors and the ever-present threat of another tornado aren't making it easy.

"Some of my children were badly affected," said Mrs. A.D. Hannah, director of the University Academy Day School and Kindergarten. One girl's father was discovered dead several days after the tornado. And one 5-year-old lay with his mother and brother outside while the monster screamed above them. His brother died.

"One morning about a month ago, he crawled up in my lap and said, 'Mrs. Hannah, I sure wish you and I could die.' I said, 'Why honey?' He said 'Because if we would go up to heaven, we could play with Chris.'

"We just let 'em talk and talk and talk. We talked tornado for over a month. We even played tornado. They would build their little town with houses and fences and a store or two, then yell 'Here comes that old tornado!'

It will be years before residents get over the killer twister. There is too much to remind them of April 10. Or rather there is too much missing.

Two months ago today, there was virtually nothing in Faith Village, a subdivision on the southwest side after a giant tornado flipped from the blackened skies and mowed a mile-wide path around one of the most populated areas in the city.

More than 7,000 homes were damaged or destroyed. Eight thousand cars were hit. Seventy-nine businesses were demolished.

Today, Wichita Falls is a city under construction. Literally thousands of building permits have been issued by the city, enough to fill a half-page in the local newspaper every day. The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers has spent $2 million dollars scraping away debris, and they say they've cleaned up about 85 percent of the rubble.

It looks like less.

The disaster area is thick with contractors and do-it-yourself homeowners. The residents figure they can reconstruct that part of their lives in a year or two.

Emotionally, they will never be the same.

Dr. Don Boulware of Wichita County Mental Health-Mental Retardation said talking is the best therapy and indeed, the subject creeps into every single conversation.

"I think talking about it is a way to try and comprehend it, to understand the incomprehensible.

"We are going to be more cautious of severe weather for the rest of our lives, but it will subside and become a little more realistic," he said. "The main things we are going to see are frustration for the people trying to rebuild. And some people are going to have trouble asking for help."

A team of psychologists who specialize in post-disaster depressions held several seminars telling employers, school administrators and city officials what to expect from tornado victims. People are reassured, Boulware said, when they know everyone else is feeling the same frustration, rage, depression and guilt.

"The psychologists told us what to look for, but we haven't found it to be true," said Johnnie Ozee, principal of McNiel Junior High School. The school was destroyed and students will be doubling up with Rider High School next year.

"(Adolescents) protect themselves really well," Ozee said. "The talking seemed to be a cleansing thing. We were looking for more emotional problems, for kids to use the tornado as an excuse for not passing, for not keeping up their grades.

"But we're just not seeing that."

But adults, for whom the losses have been much more real, are suffering. Jim Jones, supervisor of the Wichita County Child Welfare division, said he expects incidents of child abuse to go up as the strain of living in tiny trailers and with neighbors begins to take its toll on parents.

And First Step, a wife-abuse counseling and support agency, said the number of battered women seeking haven increased 400 percent to 500 percent in the first weeks after the tornado.

"Most think they can work it out as soon as things get back to 'normal,' whatever normal will be from now on," said Linda Weber of First Step. "A lot of these were first-time things ... they (the husbands) overreact and hit out at the closest possible person."

The destruction is inescapable, and sometimes overwhelming for even those who were not damaged by the monster tornado.

"I go home through it every day, and every day, I find myself preparing to go through the Twilight Zone," said one woman. "I Feel so guilty because I wasn't damaged. And here are these people who've lost everything and they just talk about it like it was the weather."

Boulware said people's expectations may only add to their emotional adjustments. Most of us are bred on television, where families are brought closer and marital problems miraculously solved in the wake of a crisis. And that just doesn't work in Real Life.

In Real Life, there are hundreds struggling with life in a cramped mobile home. In Real Life, apartment rents go up at the whim of a landlord and the inflation rate in the real estate market is 15 to 20 times higher than the rest of the country.

"It's just plain ugly," said one woman, driving through a park where 300 identical trailers are being moved in to stand not more than a few feet apart.

"How depressing," nodded her companion.

"It's an obvious problem," Bill McAda of the Federal Disaster Assistance Administration said of some residents' reluctance to live in a mobile home. "Ordinarily, we do not like to use mobile homes. But because of the magnitude of this thing, there is virtually nothing else to rent."

McAda said 637 of the 2,203 families eligible for housing assistance have been placed in apartments or homes, another 39 in government-assisted homes and the remainder will be housed in the trailers "hopefully by July 4."

The mobile homes rent for $190 per month for a two-bedroom and $210 for a three-bedroom. McAda said federal law requires half of the Emergency Living Expenses portion of a person' insurance claim for shelter expenses. When that money is exhausted, the trailer is rent-free for one year.

There is anger and confusion over red tape and wrong information handed out in the days immediately after the tornado.

"I don't think they would be as angry if they hadn't been promised things in the first place," said Dellwood Lee, president of the Independent Insurance Agents Association. "Some took their money and bought necessities, clothes, food, and didnt set aside anything for the trailers because they were told they would be rent-free."

"There was quite a bit of confusion at first," said Judy McConnell of the Small Business Administration. "I imagine there was a lot of misinformation, but now we're down to a one-on-one situation where people are talking to a loan officer."

It didn't help matters any last week when the SBA announced it was out of funds.

"It happens all the time," Mrs. McConnell said. "It's an appropriation that has to be renewed. But in view of ... the State of Texas coming apart this spring, they had no idea we were running so short."

She said Congress should approve new appropriations in another few weeks. Meanwhile, gun-shy tornado victims are leaving nothing to chance.

"Nearly everyone in Wichita Falls has doubled their insurance coverage, or at least brought it up to the maximum," Lee said. "And those that didn't have insurance bought it."

He said between $150 and $180 million of the projected $224 million in claims already have been paid.

But five inches of rain and heavy flooding in portions of Faith Village Tuesday night sent many residents back to the insurance offices for additional claims this week.

"We got a tornado. Why not a flood?" said Mrs. Jackie Luna, whose home was destroyed by the twister. "I guess I'll probably get pregnant next."

It's not that the citizens think they are jinxed. But as they kept an eye on the cloudy sky Wednesday evening, a brilliant clear rainbow formed a perfect arc over Faith Village.

It was a good sign.

DIVORCE SUIT FILED

HERNANDO, Miss. (AP) — The wife of entertainer Jerry Lee Lewis has filed for divorce, accusing her husband of adultery, habitual drunkenness and habitual use of drugs. Jeren Pate Lewis of Memphis asked for a special Chancery Court hearing to consider her petition for temporary child support.

AFTERMATH OF DISASTER — The slogans displayed on the back windshield of this Wichita Falls Auto exemplify the spirit of the survivors in the aftermath of the recent deadly tornado. Many people are shaken, some cannot readily come to terms with the new realities left by the disaster, but the city is rebuilding. (AP Laserphoto)

THERE'S A NEW STAR IN TEXAS

It's AMD Austin

Austin, Texas, is one of the most desirable areas in the country to live. It's got beautiful hills and lakes. Clean air. A year round temperate climate. Excellent educational and cultural resources. And a reasonable cost of living. So reasonable, in fact, that you don't have to be a millionaire to buy a house that looks like a million.

Best of all, Austin holds excellent opportunities for experienced people who want to work in the semiconductor industry. ADVANCED MICRO DEVICES, a national company which has grown to over $150 million in sales in only ten years, has embarked on a major expansion program in Austin: a 100,000 sq. ft. MOS/LSI wafer fab facility.

We want good people.

We want you.

PROCESS ENGINEERS

Films - your responsibility will be equipment and process set-up and sustaining for Nitride passivation, CVD glass, gold evap, and other related tasks. Requires 3-5 years experience with vacuum systems. Physics, Chemistry or related degree desirable.

Diffusion - You will establish diffusion systems, including gas panels, controllers, pullers and LPCVD systems; design and specify glassware requirements, and set up inspections and evaluation of equipment. Requires 3-5 years' experience in a diffusion area, manufacturing environment, and knowledge of gas systems, LPCVD and 4" wafers. Physics, chemistry , or related degree desirable.

Photoresist - You will be responsible for all coat, align, develop and etch operations, including the set up of all photoresist equipment: aligners, plasma etchers and spinners. Requires 3-5 years' experience in photoresist areas, manufacturing environment, with hands-on knowledge of projection aligners, plasma etchers and related equipment. Physics, chemistry, or related degree desirable.

FAB EQUIPMENT MAINTENANCE MANAGER

You will be responsible for the smooth running of state-of-the-art wafer fab equipment, including projection aligners, air trac spinners, ion implanters, microprocessor controlled diffusion furnaces, and plasma etchers. You must be an experienced troubleshooter in these areas, with the ability to provide motivation and direction in the repair and maintenance of equipment. Requires 3-5 years' related experience.

PROCESS TECHNICIANS

Films - You will assist our process engineering staff in the set-up and sustaining of nitride, CVD glass, gold evap and sandblast equipment, and in the maintenance and check-out of equipment as required. Requires experience with vacuum systems and associated equipment, with electromechanical background.

Diffusion - You will assist our process engineering staff in the set up and sustaining of diffusion furnaces, gas systems, controllers, evaluation of equipment and clean stations. Requires diffusion production background using 3" - 4" wafers.

Photoresist - You will assist our process engineering staff in the set up and sustaining of photoresist area and equipment. Requires experience with semiconductor processing in a photoresist area using 3" - 4" wafers, projection alignment, and plasma etch.

Ion Implant - You will assist our process engineering staff in the set up and sustaining of ion implanters, maintenance of equipment, and spec writing. You need to be able to troubleshoot equipment malfunctions, and should have prior experience with ion implanters, vacuum systems, or associated equipment. Requires ability to read schematics.

ADVANCED MICRO DEVICES is a people-oriented company offering tremendous growth opportunities. Our benefits package includes an excellent salary range, CASH PROFIT SHARING, educational reimbursements, and a comprehensive health plan.

Please send your resume in complete confidence to Phillip Waters, Advanced Micro Devices, 901 Thompson Place, Sunnyvale, CA 94086. Some ideas work and some won't! In 1978 over 2000 growers from California to Delaware and from Canada to Florida agreed that the Spray Sickle is one weed control idea that really works. The 1979 Spray Sickle is better than ever — (Over 35 New Improvements.) If you have Johnson Grass (or any other problem weed) the Spray Sickle is really the only sure way to eradicate it.

ANNOUNCING A DATSUN EXCLUSIVE.... ONLY SMALL PICKUP WITH ONE-TON PAYLOAD.

$5196 Does not include taxes, destination charges, license and title fees.

This is one tough, solid, little truck. It's got a heavy-duty, nearly 7 1/2 foot long-bed that's solid steel. Plus eight-ply white wall tires, a heftier gross axle weight rating and four-leaf rear spring suspension that'll take on just about anything.
Result: 43% more cargo and passenger capacity than ever before. Now that's a lot more payload than you'll find in even some bigger rigs. Plus you get some standard features not available on other small pickups.
What's more, this new Datsun truck runs on regular gas. So you get more out of it, without putting more into it.
Come in and put our tough little pickup to the test. Let us show you how they're built to last and last. Compare our prices. Then get set to deal. We are driven to give you the best heavy-duty small truck your money can buy.

Geyser Nears North Sea Polluting Mark

NEW YORK (UPI) — The oil geyser shooting 1.2 million gallons of petroleum a day into the Gulf of Mexico will have to spout 39 and a half more days at the same rate to equal the record spill of 54.6 million gallons unleashed by the wrecked tanker Amoco Cadiz off the French coast in March 1978.

But the 7.2 million gallons that has erupted into the environment from the depths of the Gulf of Mexico is close to eclipsing the 8.2 million gallons unleashed by a blowout in the Ekofisk oil field in the North Sea in April 1977.

The exploratory well that blew out off the Yucatan Peninsula last Sunday has gushed out 30,000 barrels a day for six days. Since each barrel contains about 42 gallons, 1.2 million gallons has shot out daily, or 7.2 million since the blowout.

But the granddaddy of oil spills of all types was the 54.6 million gallons that gushed out of the Amoco Cadiz, which broke in half last March off Brittany, killing birds by the score and threatening the area's tourist industry.

The Campeche blowout, with 7.2 million gallons already blown into the Gulf of Mexico, will have to go unchecked for 39.5 more days if it is to reach the 54.6 million level.

Despite the sprouting of offshore oil wells in the worldwide hunt for petroleum, tankers are still the most vulnerable to accidents causing massive oil spills.

An explosion on the tanker Hawaiian Patriot on Feb. 24, 1977, sent 30 million gallons into the Pacific west of Hawaii in history's second biggest spill.

Perhaps the most famed spill — but only the third largest — was the first on record, when the Tanker Torrey Canyon split off England on March 18, 1967, sending 29.4 million gallons into the ocean.

The tanker Urquiola grounded and exploded off LaCoruna Spain on June 23, 1976, with 21.9 millions of gooey liquid set free.

The hull of the tanker World Glory gave way off South Africa on June 10, 1968, add 13.5 million gallons escaped.

The Argo Merchant, which grounded off Nantucket 10 days before Christmas in 1976, was a baby spill by world standards, 7.7 million, but a matter of as much concern to the hotel owners and fishermen of Massachusets as the monster Brittany spill was to Bretons.

The lone pipe line spill, listed in record books, was in West Delta, La., where 6.72 million gallons released by a dragged anchor.

Barges, too, can release the inky oil but in smaller volume. The crash of a barge off Tampa Bay, Fla. on Jan. 9, 1977, unleashed 79,000 gallons, and a barge which hit a rock off Bear Mountain, New York, on Feb. 4, 1977, spilled 420,000 gallons into the Hudson River.

Pope Appears Haggard Near End Of Visit To Homeland

KRAKOW, Poland (UPI) — Pope John Paul II, looking haggard near the end of his nine-day tour of his homeland, took up a small papal flag Saturday and conducted the songs of hundreds of thousands of rapturous pilgrims at an ancient suburban shrine.

The 59-year-old pontiff shrugged off a nagging cough to maintain his grueling schedule on his next-to-last day in Poland and visited a 13th century Cistercian abbey in Mogila before making a private, tearful visit to his parents' grave in a Krakow cemetery.

Church bells pealed in the surrounding steel towns as the white Soviet-built papal helicopter touched down in Mogila.

The loudest bell was that in the soaring modern church in the new town of Nowa Huta, a church consecrated in 1977 by the then Cardinal Karol Wojtyla after a 20-year battle with the Communist regime to complete the building.

The Roman Catholic church charged the state intended Nowy Huta as a model "city without God," and John Paul considers its church the greatest victory of his reign in the Krakow diocese.

Still smarting from the defeat, the state insisted on the helicopter ride to prevent the pope from even driving past the Nowa Huta church. It overcame church arguments that no landing pad was available by chopping down an apple orchard to build one.

A priest from Nowa Huta said John Paul dropped a bouquet of flowers from the helicopter as it flew over the church on the brief four-mile hop from Krakow to Mogila.

Thousands of pilgrims, including many burly steelworkers from Nowa Huta, jammed the Cistercian abbey's tiny courtyard in Mogila for the pontifical mass.

Widow, Sons Glimpse Pope During Visit

KRAKOW, Poland (UPI) — "My life is hard," said Regina Danowska, a 34-year-old widow and mother of two young boys she was determined would get a look at the pope.

"I would like to find a good husband," said the tall and pretty postal clerk, whose husband died four years ago, as she combed 7-year-old Edward's blond hair. "Then our lives would be better."

Outside her small apartment in a high-rise complex, hordes of Poles swarmed through the Nowa Huta steelmaking area on their way to St. Bartholomew's church for Pope John Paul II's visit Saturday.

"Sit still," Mrs. Danowska told the wriggling youngster. "When this one was born he had no hair at all on his head so we thought he might become a priest. But he has turned out to be too mischievious."

Mrs. Danowska spoke of Zbigniew, her 12 year old.

"Ah, he is the quiet one," she said. "He could become a priest. I just dream of seeing them both well educated."

Outside the crowds were growing and their hymn singing was getting louder.

"Hurry up, Edward," Mrs. Danowska said, giving the apartment a last-minute straightening up. In the boy's room, where there were photographs of soccer stars on the wall, she picked up a single sock and gave Edward a stern look.

"Yes, I consider myself a religious person," she said.

But I have very little time to practice my religion. I have so little time for church."

Mrs. Danowska said she earns less than $100 per month at the post office but she gets a pension because her husband was a steelworker.

Because of the job he held, she is permitted by the Communist government to keei her flat, which is near a lush green park.

But Mrs. Danowska said she was not hopeful for her family's future.

Taking her boys in hand, she walked into the bright sunlight hoping to see and hear the pope. Since she had no tickets she was unable to get into the jammed church courtyard where the pope spoke.

But Mrs. Danowska got close enough to hear the holy father say over loudspeakers that "Christ will never approve that man be considered, or that man consider himself, merely a means of production."

Workers Quit Steel Works During Visit

NOWA HUTA, Poland (AP) — Production quotas at the vast Lenin steel works took a beating Saturday as thousands of workers took an unscheduled holiday to greet Pope John Paul II.

The Polish-born pontiff spoke in Krakow's industrial suburb of Nowa Huta, where he overcame the communist government's opposition 12 years ago and built the Mary, Queen of Poland church.

As archbishop in Krakow at the time, the pope campaigned for a church to be built in the Marxist-inspired workers' community, and it became a rallying point for anti-government sentiment.

In Vatican-Polish negotiations for the pope's nine-day tour of his homeland, it was agreed the pontiff would not visit the church, still a sensitive topic with the government.

He chose instead to say Mass at a nearby monastery, and the crowd turned out.

"My husband took a day's leave from the plant," proclaimed Zofia Gibeth, a volunteer who helped decorate the papal altar. "I sent a note to the teacher that Margaret would not be in school on such a day."

"The teachers are lenient, they close their eyes," said one woman standing nearby. "If not enough children show up for classes, they can come themselves."

A doctor who said he "stayed home sick" from his shift at a blast-furnace aid station estimated "one out of every three in our section decided to take the holiday today."

The physician pointed to smoke pouring from the tall stacks at the steel works, which employs 35,000 persons, and laughed: "Now the quotas are sick too, while we sing 'Stolat, Long Live the Pope!'"

Nowa Huta, built as a odel suburb clustered aound the ill, has become more famous throughout Poland for the two million pebbles in its church wall than its annual seven-million-ton steel output.

Tens of thousands of area residents gathered to welcome back and reminisce with the man who laid their church cornerstone in 1967 and preached at its dedication in 1977.

In 1960, Communist Party officials sent convict laborers to pull down a cross that had been erected on the site for the planned church and clear the area for a new statistical office.

New Orleans Brewery Fights For Survival

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Folks at the Dixie Brewing Co. remember the Fourth of July 1975 the way others around here recall Hurricane Camille six years earlier. It was a disaster.

It was then that a batch of premium beer took on a foul taste because a tank of beer water had absorbed phenol fumes from a newly laid cellar floor. A little bit of phenol goes a long way.

Dixie had been a No. 1 beer in New Orleans. Its yearly output plummeted from 200,000 barrels to around 60,000. And it is still fighting against going the way of hundreds of small breweries across the nation killed off by the competition of the beer giants.

"We hate to talk about that weekend but there is one interesting thing about it," recalls Robert Oertling, executive vice president and now the brewmaster.

"Dixie was so much a part of New Orleans, such a familiar part of the way of life here, people who bought a bottle or a six-pack of that batch remember where they were and what they were doing when they tasted it — the way you remember where you were and what you were doing on the day John Kennedy was shot."

Dixie is, indeed, a New Orleans institution. It survived the years of prohibition by switching to making ice cream, a grape drink, and a near-beer named Dixo that was limited to one half of one percent alcohol and never made much of a hit in these parts.

"There were 2,000 breweries before prohibition," said Oertling. "When beer came back in 1933, 750 of them opened up. Now there are 45. The big five control 71 percent of the market.

"It is said that in a few years those five will be the only ones left in the whole country. We do not subscribe to that view."

There used to be 13 breweries in New Orleans alone.

To help Dixie stand up to the giants, a bill in the State Legislature would chip in a special break on the state's $10-a-barrel excise tax. The first 50,000 barrels of beer from a Louisiana brewery would be tax-free. The tax on the second 50,000 would be $5.

It would amount to $750,000 a year.

Big beer companies, which do not have breweries in the state and would still have to pay the $10 a barrel, complained bitterly but could not overcome the argument that their only stake in Louisiana was a lot of thirsty customers, whereas Dixie provides jobs.

The nearest big beer brewery jobs are Budweiser's plants in Jacksonville, Fla., and Houston; Miller's in Fort Worth, Texas; Schlitz's in Memphis, Tenn., and Longview, Texas; and Pabst's near Macon, Ga.

Big beer breweries are huge, compared to Dixie's 300,000 barrel a year capacity. Anhauser-Busch, which makes Budweiser, sold over 41 million barrels in 1978. A brewery that Miller Brewing Co. will open in Albany, Ga., next year will produce 10 million barrels a year and employ 1,400 workers.

"Anhauser-Busch spent 116.6 million in 1978 — $60 million of that on TV," he said. "Miller pent $75 million on TV alone. Dixie spent a total of $250,000."

Dixie's $250,000 included 50,000 six-packs given away through newspaper coupons in an attempt to wash away all bad memories.

The company hopes the tax break, approved by the House and pending in the Senate, would boost it over the lingering aftermath of its disaster of July 4, 1975. Dixie suffered a net loss of $400,000 last year on sales of 128,000 barrels. It sells mainly in the New Orleans area, but turns up in Baton Rouge, as far west as Lafayette, La., and along the Gulf Coast as far as Mobile, Ala.

Dan B. Hooten, president of the company, said Dixie will regain its place as part of the city's homegrown ambience — the rain trees that bloom in autumn, streetcars, boiled crawfish, red beans and rice.

"That's how we're going to beat them," he said. "We're playing in our own back yard."

Ex-Shah Ends Bahamas Stay

NASSAU, Bahamas (UPI) — The exiled shah of Iran was expected to end his Bahamian "vacation" Saturday or Sunday and fly to Mexico, but official sources would not confirm his departure.

"We decided some days ago not to have any comment whatsoever," said Mark Morse, a spokesman for the shah. "He's either here, he's left already, or he's leaving today. I can't tell."

However, Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi was granted a tourist visa from the Mexican government last week.

Mexican Foreign Minister Jorge Castaneda said last week the shah would be coming to Mexico.

"He will be traveling here in the next few days," Castaneda said.

The shah, who left Tehran in early February, has been relaxing at the Ocean Club Resort on Paradise Island since his arrival from Marrakesh, Morocco, March 30.

But Bahamas Prime Minister Lynden Pindling announced May 30 that the Bahamas would not grant the shah political asylum, although he would not be forced to leave.

Bahamians have been protesting the shah's presence since an Iranian court issued a death sentence for the shah and his family earlier this month. But Bahamas Police Commissioner Salathiel Thompson termed the sentence "nonsense."

House Panel To Eye Cleveland Collapse

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House Banking subcommittee will open hearings June 21 into the role that commercial banks played in Cleveland's recent financial troubles, the panel's chairman has announced.

Rep. Fernand J. St. Germain, D-R.I., said the hearings will examine "the manner in which the Cleveland banks have responded to various financial and political issues in the municipality."

Earlier this year, Cleveland Mayor Dennis Kucinich charged that Cleveland Trust and other banks improperly handled requests for refinancing the city's debt. The mayor asked the House Banking subcommittee on banking regulation to look into the charges.

Organization Sets Academic Efforts

WASHINGTON (AP) — PUSH for Excellence, the self-help organization headed by the Rev. Jesse Jackson, has been awarded a $700,000 contract for support of projects to encourage the nation's urban students in improving their academic performance.

Under the contract awarded by the U.S. Office of Education here late last week, PUSH for Excellence will be able to strengthen its three current programs in Chicago, Los Angeles and Kansas City and initiate three additional projects in Denver and Chattanooga and Memphis, Tenn., the government said.

Jackson founded the organization.

Russian Roulette Attempt Fatal

MILWAUKEE (AP) — A former Marine was fatally wounded while demonstrating a Russian roulette scene from the movie "The Deer Hunter," Douglas Wilke, a companion, told police.

Authorities said they were told that Bruce K. Genke, 27, was discussing the film Friday night and pulled a pistol from under a car seat, aimed it at his head and pulled the trigger, evidently assuming there was no ammunition in the weapon. A Milwaukee County medical examiner's report said Genke saw the award-winning movie several times, "and empathized with the characters." It was not clear whether Genke served in Vietnam, officers said.

The last passenger pigeon died in 1914 in the Cincinnati Zoo.

Rural Bus Service Upgrading Urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — A member of the House Appropriations Committee is seeking government action that would upgrade the quality of intercity bus service to the nation's rural areas.

For too long, the cities have been over-emphasized at the expense of smaller communities in terms of mass transit planning and assistance, Rep. William Alexander, D-Ark., told the American Bus Association's board of directors here last week.

Sadat Party Dominates After Egyptian Voting

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) — Like its predecessor, Egypt's new parliament will be dominated by President Anwar Sadat's National Democratic Party which chalked up an unbeatable lead in Thursday's elections, according to mounting returns Saturday.

The results of about two thirds of 174 constituencies announced by midmorning Saturday showed the NDP won 134 seats, the left-of-center Socialist Labor Party 9, the right-wing Socialist Liberals 1 and independents 13.

The party's victory and the defeat of almost all candidates known to be strongly opposed to the Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty were seen by officials as reaffirmation of popular endorsement of the Sadat and the pact.

The treaty was ratified by the outgoing legislature and subsequently approved by a nearunanimous majority in a national referendum last April.

Following the referendum, Sadat disbanded parliament where his NDP, formed only last year, held about 300 out of 350 seats. The remainder was held by three small opposition parties and independents.

There were 376 seats at stake in Thursday's balloting, with about 1,600 candidates running, nearly 1,000 of them independents.

Runoff elections, scheduled for next Thursday, will be held in many constituencies because the proliferation of candidates split votes many ways and the tally was too close to be conclusive.

Winning candidates included 14 cabinet members, headed by Prime Minister Mustafa Khalil. All were elected by substantial majorities.

Khalil said he will tender his cabinet's resignation immediately after the results of the runoff elections are announced.

This will be a formality required by the constitution. Officials said Sadat is expected to ask Khalil to form a new administration but few changes are expected in the present line-up.

PUBLIC NOTICE
The Frenship Independent School District Tax Equalization Board will meet for hearings on Saturday, June 30, 1979, from 9:00 A.M. to 11:00 A.M. in the School Administration Building, 500 Main Street, Wolfforth, Texas. 6-9

TO: All Interested Parties
Subject: Public Hearing: Special Supplemental Food Program for Women, Infants, and Children — WIC
The Texas Department of Health is required by Federal statute to annually prepare a State Plan of Program Operation and Administration for the Special Supplemental Food Program for Women, Infants, and Children (WIC). Federal statute also requires that a public hearing be held to enable the general public to comment on the draft plan and participate in its completion.
The proposed State Plan will include such items as: names and addresses of local agencies and applicants, a map identifying areas being served, an Affirmative Action Plan which names all areas (counties) of the state according to need and a description of the method used to determine rankings of areas, a description of the financial management and food delivery systems, fair hearing procedures, monitoring and auditing procedures, specific eligibility criteria for determining nutritional risk, and other sections required by Federal regulation.
We are committed to solicit a broad range of public comment on the proposed plan and, therefore, your participation and/or attendance at any of these hearings is invited.
If you are interested in presenting your views and opinions as oral testimony, please contact the Texas Department of Health within 10 days of the scheduled public hearing. A copy of your testimony is requested in advance of the hearing and should be received at the Department at least 3 days in advance.
Written comments from individuals who do not wish to provide oral remarks are also welcomed. Please submit these comments no later than June 4, 1979.
The public is invited to contact the State WIC office before or after the hearings for clarification of agenda items or discussion, interviews or general information.

Consumers Get Mixed Signals On Food Prices

NEW YORK (AP) — America's grocery shoppers got mixed signals on food prices this past week.

On one hand they were told that food prices dropped in May and the price of pork and poultry are expected to lead a general decline in meat prices for the rest of this year.

But they also heard that beef prices, which dropped in May, probably won't go down much further. And the price of coffee is rising again.

The May report on food prices was part of a fairly good report from the government on the Producer Price Index. The May index of wholesale prices rose 0.4 percent in May, well below the the 0.9 percent increase of April and the gains of a percentage point apiece in February and March.

One of the biggest reasons for the moderation of the increase in May was a big decline in food prices. They dropped 1.3 percent in May, the biggest dip since February 1976. Among the biggest decliners were pork — off 10.1 percent — beef and veal — off 6.9 percent — and fresh fruits — off 4.5 percent.

It takes a little while for decreases in wholesale prices to make it to the consumer level, so grocery shoppers shouldn't expect to see big declines in prices at the shelf for a few weeks. But once the prices start falling, they'll probably continue to drop, analysts say.

According to the Department of Agriculture, sharp increases in the supply of pork and poultry are going to force prices down in the next few months, particularly as the slowing economy puts a damper on consumer demand.

Beef prices, however, will probably not continue to fall. "There's probably not much that can be done to thwart the beef price spiral," according to the Value Line investment survey.

Analysts say that beef prices are not destined to go down for a while because cattle are in short supply. In 1975, faced with a surplus of animals, ranchers began thinning out their herds. Now, however, they are rebuilding them, a process that could take another couple of years. In the meantime, beef prices aren't expected to fall significantly.

Major coffee roasters followed that with increases first of 15 cents a pound and then, this week, of another 25 cents.

That brought the price to $2.83 a pound, 16.5 percent higher than the price on May 1.

That will hit hard at the breakfast table after a two-year period when prices were dropping from record highs in 1977.

And coffee analysts say the price could go higher, because winter is just beginning in Brazil. "There may be a price increase above these levels because of the possibility of another frost," said Fred Carlson, who analyzes coffee for Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith Inc.

In other business-related devlopments this past week:

—The Federal Aviation Administration grounded the McDonnell Douglas DC-10 jumbo jet indefinitely, pending full investigation of the causes of the DC-10 crash in Chicago last month that killed 275. The grounding, which analysts said could last weeks or months, placed McDonnell Douglas' financial status in jeopardy and caused widespread problems in flight schedules of the airlines that fly the plane.

—The price of gold hit record levels, cracking the $280 an ounce barrier for the first time in markets in London, Zurich and New York. Analysts have attributed the metal's rise to world economic uncertainty centered around the specter of rising oil prices.

—The Carter administration relaxed clean-air standards for gasoline in an attempt to spur output of unleaded gas. Meanwhile, Energy Secretary James Schlesinger expressed optimism on the outlook for gasoline supply and the American Petroleum Institute said inventories of the fuel took an unexpected leap at the end of May, apparently due in part to a significant drop in consumption.

—The nation's automakers said new-car sales plunged 20.2 percent during the last 10 days of May, apparntly the result of fear about gas supply and he general state of the economy.

—F.W. Woolworth Co., fresh from its triumph over Brascan Ltd.'s takeover attempt, said that Loews Corp., which now owns about 2 percent of the giant retail store chain, had filed documents which would allow it to increase its Woolworth holding to 15 percent.

—The Council on Wage and Price Stability said United Airlines' agreements with its mechanics might violate wagedprice guidelines; so might price increases imposed by five oil companies and a labor agreement covering Portland, Ore., electrical workers. The actions were the first since a federal court said the Carter admnistration could not use government contracts as incentives for compliance with the guidelines.

—The Federal Reserve Board said it would allow banks to branch across state lines to conduct international business, but delayed a decision on what restraints would be placed on the operations of the branches.

Energy Stocks Set Pace In Mart Rally

By J.L. HUTCHESON
Schneider, Bernet & Hickman, Inc.

The energy stocks set the pace again this week as the stock market pulled further ahead on a broad front. Trading was the most active seen in more than five months.

Drug, movie, oil and casino issues scored gains along with some of the glamour issues. The airlines were particularly big losers in response to news that the FAA was grounding all domestic flights of the McDonald-Douglas DC-10.

J.L. HUTCHESON

Analysts attributed much of the strength this week to news that the producers price index for May was only up about 4 percent. This was about half of the increase which had been foreseen and was greeted favorable by Wall Street.

There has been considerable speculation of late that interest rates may be nearing a peak. This also helped to spur this week's rally. Analysts maintain that for the first time since early 1977 amny observers are looking for the Federal Reserve policy toward interest rates to ease rather than tighten further.

Institutional investors have become more optimistic lately as many have expressed the belief that more stocks are now buys now than sells. This is based on an even lower earnings figure for most stocks should the economy cool some over the next few moths.

Many analysts and economist believe that the much heralded recession is now at hand. There is mounting evidence to support this consensus. Softening in general retail and auto sales as consumer spending, inhibited by a high debt position and the impact of inflation on "real" inflation-adjusted income, begins slowing. There was a drop in the April durable goods orders of 8.7% which seems to support this theory.

Economists feel that the recession will be milder than the 1974-1975 experience, but may prove to be more protracted as the consumer will take more time to recover from the high burden of debt. This mild picture could be upset, however, by a renewed cutoff of Iranian oil that might not be readily offset by Saudi Arabia and a premature closedown of other international economies under the impact of heightened inflation.

Inflation History Recalled

Inflation does not move in one direction constantly, it speeds up or slows down. If the current double digit inflation is allowed to continue, history makes it evident that jobs and incomes will shrivel, social unrest will mount and individual freedoms will erode.

During the 1920's Germany experienced hyper-inflation which tore that country apart. It is doubtfull that the U.S. will ever achieve such explosive inlfation, but inflation rates far less than those seen in Germany could be equally damaging to the American way of life.

In that period of German inflation, the mark eventually became worthless. During the latter part of 1923, the jobless rate, which had been quite low, rose dramatically. In July, unemployment was 3.5%. By September, the rate was 9.9%, and by December it hit 28.2%. During the Great Depression in the U.S. in the 1930s, unemployment did not exceed 25%.

In this same period, social unrest increased sharply. Crime was up 170% from levels at the turn of the century. Crimes by young males increased 212%. Historians believe that Hitler's eventual rise to power was a result of the inflation in the early 20's. Napolenon's rise to power in France in 1799 can also be attributed to the inflation which followed the French Revolution.

With all the current inflation in the U.S., jobs remain relatively plentiful and incomes are quite high.

As inflation worsens, however, disturbing parallels are emerging. Money that onces spurred economic growth and productivity now goes into such unproductive items as gold coins and stamps. A large portion of the labor force works at non-productive paper-shuffling jobs aimed at coping with spiraling prices. The hourly output by the work force has begun to stagnate as per-unit labor costs have soared.

There is a point in the inflationary spiral when things begin to take a turn for the worst. The greatest lesson which may be learned from earlier nation's misfortunes is that the fight to control inflation must be stepped up in order to prevent the broad social unrest and economic chaos which will eventually result.

Strange Ideas Follow In Wake Of Air Crash

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The search to find the cause of the worst plane crash in U.S. History has produced a flurry of suggestions to the FAA, ranging from psychic solutions to off-beat uses of the DC-10.

A woman claiming to be a psychic told the Federal Aviation Administration she knew before the crash occurred what caused it. The FAA told her to call the National Transportation Safety Board.

Safety Board spokesman Bob Buckhorn said another woman told him she had a dream that a mechanic was inside the engine that fell off.

"All kinds of nuts call, it's par for the course," Buckhorn said.

A Fresno, Calif., man wrote the FAA that "planes should not be used to fly over our land and cities ... these big jets fly over, our weather conditions have changed and made it bad for agriculture. What comes first — our food or the planes?"

One FAA official said he has received numerous calls from people seeking reassurances it is safe to fly.

"There's no quesion it's undermined confidence in aviation as a whole," he said.

One woman called the office of FAA Administrator Langhorne Bond and said she was "the personification of a DC10," who could tell the FAA What was troubling it.

Another woman "called to tell us about her ex-husband — She didn't get along that well with him, but he was brilliant and could solve the problem," an FAA secretary said.

And finally, the FAA received a more practical solution about what to do with the DC-10s.

A caller suggested turning the grounded planes into Diners, or movie theaters, just as excess railroad dining cars were mounted on blocks and put into operation around the country.

Bus Crash Kills 11 In Canada

ST. LIBOIRE, Quebec (AP) — Eleven members of a senior citizens club were killed and 20 others were injured when a bus carrying them home from a night at the horse races slid off a rain-slick highway and crashed into a bridge abutment early Saturday, police said.

The bus driver was attempting to pass a car at a curve on the Trans-Canada Highway 34 miles east of Montreal when he lost conrol, police reported. It was raining heavily.

The bus skidded, smashed into three pylons supporting an overpass, and split in two. Police said they did not think the driver was exceeding the speed limit.

Four of the injured members of the Victoriaville Golden Age Club were in serious condition at a hospital in St. Hyacinthe. The driver, one of 39 survivors, was in shock.

PLAYWRIGHT ARRESTED

NEW YORK (AP) — Playwright Imamu Amiri Baraka, also known as LeRoi Jones, has been arrested on assault charges stemming from a fight with his wife on a Greenwich Village street.

Jet Castaways Stranded In 'Paradise'

PAPEEETE, Tahiti (AP) — About 800 jet-age castaways are enjoying an extended vacation on this South Seas island paradise, far from the confusion and controversy surrounding the grounding of the world's DC-10 fleet.

Most can't believe their good fortune.

"I never though I'd get someone to pay for my stay in paradise," said John Hart, a retired restaurateur from Woodland Hills, Calif. Hart, a freelance travel and boating writer, said he and his wife are ready to "stay forever, just as long as Air New Zealand keeps picking up the tab."

This tiny palm tree-lined island, 2,000 miles across the South Pacific from Los Angeles, has changed a lot since Paul Gauguin told the world of its charms through his paintings. Four airlines now serve it — Air New Zealand and UTA of France with DC-10s, Pan American with 747s and Air Chile via DC-8.

But now a bit of the old isolation has returned. There are still some flights out, but the problem is getting a seat on one.

Jan Ahders, a singer who will miss her performing debut in Las Vegas, said, "I had a real crying session when I heard the news on Friday.

"However," she added, "there are far worse places to be stranded."

The DC-10s were grounded after the U.S. Federal Aviation Adminstration suspended the design certificate of the wide-bodied jet on Wednesday, to allow tests of its safety in the wake of a Chicago crash which killed 275 persons. That DC-10 crashed on takeoff after one of its wing engines fell off.

The FAA action directly affected only U.S.-operated DC-10s, slightly less than half the world fleet, but foreign agencies and airlines followed its lead and now must solve the problems the decision created.

Japan Air Lines said Saturday it had been forced to cancel 115 domestic and 17 international flights for the week starting Saturday, affecting nearly 19,000 passengers. Spokesmen said the airline was scrambling to transfer passengers to other domestic airlines, but had little difficulty in accomodating internatonal travelers.

Garuda Indonesian Airways said it would transfer to foreign airlines those passengers scheduled to fly its four DC-10s to Europe and Australia, and would substitute DC-8 flights on the Hong Kong run.

On the island of Tahiti, meanwhile, Patrick and Linda Klein of Santa Rosa, Calif., had a little more time for their honeymoon.

"We spent two weeks on the islands of Bora Bora and Moorea, and we were supposed to leave Thursday morning," Klein said. "Now we have a few extra days to spend in Tahiti. There's no better place to be stranded."

But others were concerned, particularly airline employees who flew to the island on cut-rate excursion tickets.

Said one flight attendant who asked not to be identified: "My airline doesn't fly DC-10s so they're not too sympathetic about the problem. All they say is that I'm supposed to report for work Monday."

And then there were the 10 Southwest Airlines pilots from Dallas, who flew to Tahiti for a softball tournament.

The airline only has 75 pilots, one of them said, "and it presents problems. If we don't get home soon, our airline may have to cancel some flights because we're not there to fly the planes."

Chamber Executive Held In Drug Case

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Ramiro L Guerra, executive director of the Latin American Chamber of Commerce here, is among 17 people arrested on federal charges involving distribution of $4.2 million worth of cocaine, authorities said.

Bullish Stocks On American Exchange Reach Record Highs

NEW YORK (AP) — There is a bull market on Wall Street that has been running, almost without interruption, for 4½ years.

To the many investors who own shares of big-name blue chip stocks traded on the New York Stock Exchange, that statement may sound like an unfunny joke. Prices of most of those issues are depressed, showing only mixed results so far this year after declining in 1977 and 1978.

But the 1,100 or so smaller stocks traded at the American Stock Exchange, just a couple of blocks west of the Big Board in the financial district, are behaving in a much different fashion.

In the past week the Amex market value index jumped 6.28 to 194.28, hitting record highs daily before pulling back a bit on Friday.

The index has more than tripled since the end of 1974, when it stood at 60.32.

By contrast, the Dow Jones industrial average's weekly gain of 13.94 to 835.15 left it far below its 1973 peak of 1,051.70.

The upsurge at the Amex still has a way to go to match the buying spree that swept the junior exchange in the late 1960s, before the "go-go" market of that era collapsed.

Trading volume on the Amex for 1979, which passed 400 million shares in the past week, is running behind the pace of 1968, when the full year's total was a record 1.44 billion.

And the aggregate market value of Amex stocks — $45.7 billion as of the end of April — is still well short of th peak of $9.21 billion at the end of 1968, when there were fewer issues listed on the exchange.

Analysts also noted that the latest market-value figure for all Amex stocks is matched by a single NYSE issue — International Business Machines.

Nevertheless, some of the statistics the Amex has piled up in the last few years are impressive. The market value index scored gains of 38, 32, 16 and 18 percent in the years 1975-78, and in the first five months of this year climbed another 24 percent.

A recent tabulation of individual Amex issues turned up 36 that had doubled or more since the start of 1979, against only three that had fallen by a half or more.

Analysts have given much of the credit for the prolonged rise on the Amex to a revival of investor interest in smaller companies, which has also made its presence felt in gains in the over-the-counter market.

Recently, it has picked up new impetus from another direction — A wave of enthusiasm for independent energy companies such as domestic and Canadian oil and gas concerns that are heavily represented on the Amex.

"Lately all the action has been in the energy stocks," said Charles Jensen, an analyst at MKI Securities.

As of late last week Juniper Petroleum was trading at 9, up 6 1/2 For the year; Howell Corp. at 24 1/2, up 16 3/4; Crown Central Petroleum at 801/8, up 537/8; Great Basins Petroleum at 11 3/4, up 67/8, and Canadian Homestead Oils, up 8 1/2 at 16 1/4.

A big chunk of Great Basins rise — 1/4 points worth — came last Wednesday when the company said it would explore a possible merger or other disposition of many of its assets.

The most spectacular gainer among the Amex stocks until recently was Tubos de Acero de Mexico, a producer of pipe and steel tube that does most of its business with Pemex, the Mexican government petroleum agency.

The stock, which one analyst described as "the easiest way to play Mexican oil," soared earlier in the year from less than 10 to above 40 before falling back to the high 20s.

Will the "Amex bull market" continue? The question can't be answered absolutely, of course, but some analysts argue that at least a temporary pause is due.

Jensen noted that, except for the energy stocks that exert a large influence on the market value index, broad measures of issues advancing and declining on the Amex lately have showed signs of leveling off — a possible portent, he said, of a "cooling-off period."

Wiretap Plan Proves Controversial Idea

By BILL KIDD
A-J Austin Bureau

According to the governor's office, Clements' "thing" is a conviction that wiretapping (or "interception of oral communications" as the lawyers like to call it) is an effective tool needed to deal with criminal activity.

Clements argues Texas law enforcement agencies need wiretaps to help with the growing drug trafficking problem — and law enforcement agencies have been contending that for some time.

Wiretapping is one of those issues which raises the political hackles on many folks, with its various legal, philosophical and emotional overtones — and it doesn't necessarily divide neatly into any liberal-conservative category.

One cynical theory bandied about during the wiretapping discussion in the last session was that Clements, as a Nixon administration appointee, was simple suffering from some sort of nostalgia for "law and order" days.

Unfortunately, wiretapping is one of those issues which is fun for a debate team, providing lots of room for verbal maneuvering, but which isn't much fun for those who have to make decision about it.

Opponents can easily raise the spectre of "1984" and police-state tactics, with citizens being subjected randomly or at the whim of some official, to an invasion of privacy on the mere hope of finding some evidence of illegal activity.

Proponents can create grim pictures of Satan-esque dope dealers ordering vast quantities of illicit substances with a few spins of a daily or a few taps of a button.

The proposed wiretapping legislation which failed to complete its legislative journey in May was drawn rather tightly, with safeguards to prevent abuse.

Some senators felt the safeguards weren't sufficient — and some indicated they believed there's no way to institute sufficient safeguards.

That feeling is shared by some House members as well.

"It's repugnant to me," one member — a conservative — says. "I can't accept that kind of an invasion of privacy...I'll fight it all the way."

"People talk about invasion of privacy," one of the state's top law enforcement officials says "but, what they're afraid of is that the police will find out they're having an affair with their secretary and tell their wife.

"Everybody's got a skeleton to hide...The police don't care about that stuff. They're already too busy."

Another government official doesn't think the issue really matters one way or another.

"I don't think the public cares about it very much...and I don't think anyone picks up phone and says, 'Jose, send me three truckloads of heroin.'"

Wiretaps are allowed currently in Federal cases, but no comparable authority exists under Texas law.

"We can't get a tap unless we can show there's a Federal question," a Department of Public Safety officer explains, noting that while nearly all drugs involved in criminal activity are on both State and Federal "schedules," the manner and place of the activity generally determines jurisdiction.

Wiretapping is an issue where opposing but legitimate points of view converge, and may conflict.

Few would argue against the rights of individuals to be secure from governmental snooping.

Both the House and Senate, in the closing hours of the recent session, approved studies on how to go about the difficult question of balancing those considerations.

That question will remain difficult because it isn't so much a question of law enforcement as it is one of the continuing — and always unresolved — problem of the rights of the individual — and the rights of society.

BABY RESEARCH EYED

WASHINGTON (AP) — Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. said Saturday he wants more advice from the public before deciding whether to allow the government to resume funding of so-called test-tube baby research.

Report Says Capsule, Space Station Dock Without Hitch

MOSCOW (UPI) — An unmanned Soyuz capsule docked flawlessly with the orbiting Salyut 6 space station, Tass reported Saturday, easing Soviet fears that a faulty approach control engine would damper the manned space program.

Soyuz 34 docked with th orbiting Salyut 6 at 11:02 p.m. Friday but the Soviet news agency waited for 16 hours before announcing the docking.

It was an important test for the Soviets.

An approach control engine on a similar Soyuz capsule failed during a manned mission on April 10, jeopardizing the lives of a Russian and a Bulgarian spacemen.

Both cosmonauts were able to return to earth without injury, but the failure was the first serious blemish on the Soviet manned space program since a mission cancellation in fall of 1977.

Tass said the docking of the Soyuz 34 and the Salyut 6 was controlled by cosmonauts Vladimir Lyakhov and Valery Ryumin, who have been aboard the station for more than 100 days.

The unmanned Soyuz carried equipment and mail.

"During every stage of the manuevering, the approach correcting engine and the onboard systems of the Soyuz 34 spacecraft functioned normally," Tass said.

The Soyuz craft is the work horse of the Soviet space program. Virtually every manned Soviet mission depended on a Soyuz to carry it into space.

There were early problems with the Soyuz, including several tragic accidents that killed cosmonauts. But it had seemed the Soviets had perfected the capsule until the April incident.

Kissinger Diplomacy Draws Criticism

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio (AP) — Henry Kissinger failed to achieve permanent peace in the Middle East because he was caught in a web of lies and deception, James E. Akins, the former U.S. Ambassador to Saudi Arabia, said Saturday.

Akins, a member of the diplomatic team when Kissinger conducted shuttle diplomacy in the Middle East, addressed 540 graduating seniors at Wittenberg University's 134th commencement exercises.

He said Kissinger told different stories to President Anwar Sadat of Egypt, President Hafez Assad of Syria, the late King Faisal of Saudi Arabia, and the late Golda Meir, who at that time was prime minister of Israel.

Akins said Kissinger assumed the leaders would never compare notes and that if they did, they would believe him and not one another. But he said the alleged deception was exposed before the shuttling ended and the United States came away with a loss of prestige as a result.

Water Department Checks For Cause Of Broken Line

The City of Lubbock Water Department has not determined what caused a water line near 42nd Street and Indiana Avenue to break about 4 p.m. Saturday.

Two lines were shut off by 6:15 p.m., but no homes in the area were without water, according to a spokesman.

Lubbock Symphony Guild Plan Family Event For 'Summer Pops'

PLANNING POPS CONCERT — Cynthia Brooks, center, arrangements chairman for the Lubbock Symphony's "Summer Pops" Concert June 23, discusses plans for a "super evening" with Sue Clary, left, decorations chairman, and Bonnie Mather, right, coordinator for ushers. Tickets for the dinner-concert are now on sale on a first-come, first-served basis.

"SUPERMAN" — William Harrod, left, founding conductor of the Lubbock Symphony, discusses "Summer Pops" plans with Kay Woods, chairman, and Doug Sanford, chairman of Advisory Board, while Rion Sanford, son of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Sanford, gives them a "superman" briefing. An evening of family fun is planned for the annual event June 23.

The Third Annual Summer Pops Concert, scheduled for Saturday, June 23, at the Lubbock Civic Center Exhibit Hall, has been announced as the highlight of the summer social season in Lubbock.

Planners have announced that Danny Davis and the Nashville Brass will be guest artists for the evening. This group, a unique combination of brass with country sound, has a repertoire of such variety that all patrons are sure to be pleased with the evening's program.

On the theme of "Superman: Something for the Entire Family," summer pops planners have planned a buffet dinner from 7 to 8 p.m., followed by the concert at 8:30 p.m.

Tickets are available by writing Box 64132, Lubbock 79464, enclosing a check and a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Tickets will be allocated on a first-come, first-served basis. For more information about tickets, call 762-0339.

Prices for dinner seating are $12.50, while $7.50 and $4.00 will provide reserved or general admission seating in the balcony.

Other committee members include Cynthia Brooks, Ed Langston, Sue Clary, Judy Ribble, Eunice Word, Virginia Brackett, Kaye Greer, Stephani Windham, Molly Hall, Bonnie Mather, Mary Nell Strong, Callie Chalk and Virginia Wheat. Publicity and advertising are being provided by Phil Price Agency.

FINAL PLANS — Eunice Word, left, co-chairman for food arrangements for "Summer Pops," makes final plans with Virginia Brackett, right, program chairman. The evening will include a buffet dinner at 7 p.m. followed at 8:30 by the concert, which will feature guest artists Danny Davis and the Nashville Brass.

Financial Plan Involves Inventory Of Resources

(Editor's Note: This is the first of a three-part series on family financial planning.)

By CONNIE CHAPMAN
Family News Staff

As the rate of inflation continues to rise, the percentage of family income spent on the basics of living takes a greater and greater chunk out of take-home pay. This causes more families to take a hard look at their income and spending patterns.

Families will find help in taking this inventory from resources available locally or through the mail. Formats for booklets and worksheets on family finance are different, but all provide ways of recording income and expenditures in enough detail to give a family an accurate overview of its entire financial picture.

Forms, and accompanying instructions for using them, provide ways of listing income, fixed and flexible expenditures, and also, in the case of a double column format, projected and actual costs.

The Texas Agricultural Extension Service, which is a resource bank for this region on many subjects, provides a booklet called "Your Family Spending Plan."

The concept of a family financial plan is not a cure-all for money problems, the booklet warns. "A plan for spending and saving possesses no magic. It cannot change the amount of money you have to spend. It cannot make you save. Neither can it eliminate all financial crises. But a spending plan can increase your ability to have those things that are important to the family."

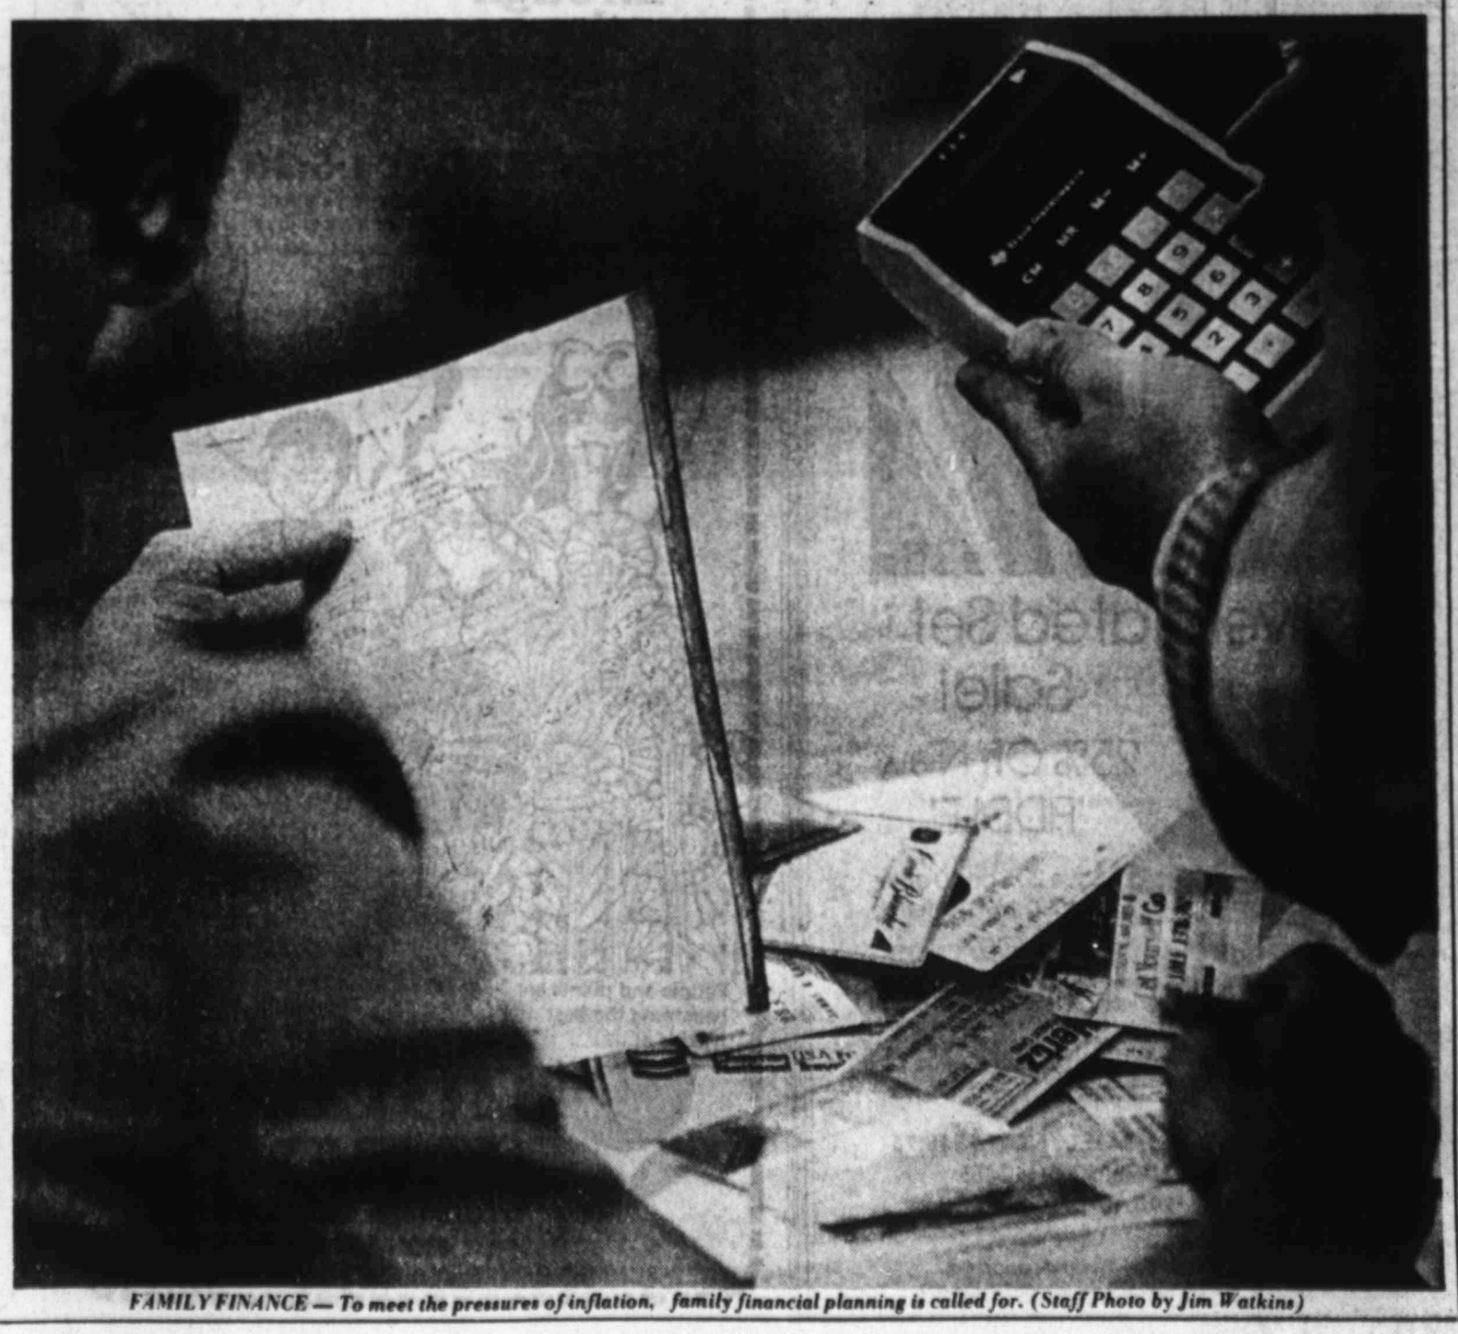

The Money Management Institute of Household Finance Corporation also has a booklet with the title, "You and Your Financial Plan." Like the Extension Service booklet, this also emphasizes the importance of setting family goals and advocates that children should participate in the process to the extent of which they are capable.

Making this part of planning a family activity has several advantages, the booklet states. Being a part of the process will help family members think and act in terms of priorities and goals. Each family member can become aware of the family's financial limitations and can see the family spending as a totality. Another advantage of including the children in the planning process is that it is a sound educational experience which may carry over into their own adult future financial activities.

After this first step of goal-setting, the next thing to do is list amounts of income. Be sure to list, in addition to all regular pay checks, interest, dividends, allowances, child support or alimony, social security income, pension plan or profit-sharing, fees or commissions, annuities, rent coming in, tax refunds, and any other sources. List all actual sources, but do not include (and therefore count on) possible raises.

While in this part of the process a family may want to go further and take a more far-reaching inventory by making out a statement of net worth. This would include cash in various checking and savings accounts, current value of government savings bonds, cash surrender value of insurance policies, equities in pension or profit-sharing plans, market value of stocks, mutual funds and investment trusts, cash value of personal property including real estate, cash ownership in a business, and all other assets.

In My Corner

By FRANCES LOWE

An incurable optimist (which I am not) could find several aspects of the fuel crisis which might, in the long run, prove beneficial.

Think, for instance, of the easy excuses it will offer for the things you don't want to do. Parents will have a good reason for not taking their kids where they want to go; husbands will have an excuse for not mowing the lawn and wives for not vacuuming the rug (or vice versa).

I have developed a list of suggestions for meeting the crisis, and have been waiting for the White House to call for them; in the meantime, I am willing to share:

The first thing I would do would be to make it illegal to schedule a meeting unless there is real business to be done. After a meeting, the secretary would have to file a report stating what occurred, and if no business took place, the club would be disbanded. An example of an unacceptable report would be: "Met at Ruthie's, drank coffee, discussed Ruthie's mother's operation, set next meeting date, adjourned."

I have long held the theory that most clubs could conduct their business more efficiently on the telephone. Elected officers could make the heavy decisions, like what color the yearbook will be and where the annual banquet will be held.

Another, more complicated solution would be to schedule all meetings on the same day in the same place. We could engage the Civic Center and designate the first Wednesday of the month City Meeting Day, and every organization in town would meet at once. Those who belong to several (you tend to meet the same people at meetings) could get it all over with in one day.End-of-year banquets would be scheduled the same way. The Save The Moose Foundation could be having its awards banquet in one corner while the Society to Prevent Nervousness met in another, and a person who belonged to both could have his creamed chicken with the first group and his fruit cup with the next.

Another example of wasted fuel in our society is the insistance by parents on taking their own children home with them. It came to me years ago, when I picked up a child at nursery school, that much time and energy would be saved if each car in line just took the next kid in line. At the end of the week they could be sorted out, so that each kid would spend the weekend with his own parents.

In fact, if we don't stop carrying our kids everywhere, the next generation will be born with pedals for feet and levers for hands. I defy anyone who thinks that school busing is a waste of fuel to visit a local school at 8 a.m. and find more than four kids who actually walk. We drive our kids everywhere and then enroll them in classes and programs to fill up their empty hours and give them some needed exercise.

Another solution: subsidize biking. The government assists other forms of transportation; why not provide a bike to every citizen? The savings in fuel would be added to the medical savings.

We could also make more use of our schools. If we are going to call them neighborhood schools, why don't we use them as meeting places for all the clubs, packs, troops, and teams? Instead of parents carrying children to ballet and gymnastics and music classes all over town, the teachers could come to the school, one day a week. Athletic events would take place on the school grounds or between neighborhood schools, within walking distance.

We should also improve our park system. Lubbock does have lovely parks, but they are already overused, as the folks around Tech Terrace know. I wish a certain portion of each new neighborhood had some land set aside for a park. I remember the delightful city parks in San Francisco, where older men, obviously retired, were paid to patrol the sand boxes, break up fights, deal with emergencies and yell at the kids.

I am a great believer also in public transportation. I find riding the bus a delightful experience; there is sheer bliss in getting off work, dog-tired, at 5 o'clock and letting someone else fight the rush hour traffic. Routes and schedules will have to be improved, and allowance made for the elderly and handicapped. And we will need some incentives to get people to ride the bus, for Lubbockites are addicted to their own cars (some sort of withdrawal program may be necessary for the worse cases). Maybe coffee and sweet rolls for the morning travelers and cocktails for the afternoon ones...

Another thing we should do, fuel crisis or no fuel crisis, is to make the world safe for pedestrians. Lubbock is a bad city for walkers. For some reason I cannot fathom, in my part of town sidewalks only run east and west, not north and south. I am incensed that there is no means of crossing the street at 50th and Indiana, where hundreds of Monterey students make a game of dodging traffic and endangering life and limb. Pedestrian crosswalks and lights are needed at this and other bad corners; as it is, crossing from one zone to another is as difficult as crossing the Berlin wall.

The outcome of the whole thing, in terms of the individual and the larger society, has got to be an improvement in health and character. Old-fashioned as I am, I can't help thinking there is something unhealthy about our dedication to waste and ease. A little self-denial would be good for mind and body, and might keep us from killing one another at the gas pumps...

Convention Activities Scheduled At Civic Center

More than 1200 women from throughout Texas will be in Lubbock next weekend to attend the state convention of the Texas Federation of Business & Professional Women's Clubs, Inc.

The convention, which will be held at the Lubbock Civic Center, will represent the first such meeting in Lubbock for the organization, which is devoted to encouraging and recognizing career women in many fields.

Special guests of the convention will include Judge Sarah T. Hughes, honorary president of the Texas Federation, who will speak briefly to the convention body at the opening session, and national president Gerry Eldson, who will deliver the keynote address.

Another highlight of the weekend convention will be the naming of the state Woman of the Year, a special program of B&PW chapters throughout the country. Among the judges for the state woman of the year was Frances Lowe, family news eidtor of the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal.

Pre-convention activities will include a leadership workshop for state officers and chairmen Thursday, coordinated by Lunelle Anderson and a state board meeting to be held at the Lubbock Club Friday. The Convention will be officially called to order at the opening session Friday evening by president Hazel Crawley of Amarillo. Mrs. Crawley is a longtime member of the Amarillo B&PW and served in many capacities at the local, district and state levels prior to being installed as president of the State Federation in June 1978.

After the welcome from local dignataries, various orders of business and introduction of candidates for office to the convention body, president Crawley will name the recipient of the "President's Award" to the most outstanding 1978-79 club president of the state. This honored woman will be seated at the head table for all functions of the convention.

Another highlight of the session will be the presentation of district young careerist winners, who will compete for the state title. Fourteen of the 15 districts will be represented. B&PW clubs across the state and nation have put special emphasis on their program to recruit young women under the age of 30 for membership and to honor them for outstanding accomplishments in their career fields.

Winners at the local club level compete for district honors, and these winners will be presented to the convention body after their personal interviews with the judges. State judges are Priscilla Sims of Lubbock, Vernon Clem of Plainview and Kay Tylor of Lubbock.

The young careerists of the fourteen districts to be introduced include Velyna Aaron of Lubbock, Cindy Barrett of San Antonio, Pamela Gardner of Bellaire, Mary Helen Bran of Center, Cindy Barber of Corsicana, Jane Hughson of San Marcos, Lauralee Backman of San Angelo, Tina Marie Yetter of El Paso, John Mason of Wichita Falls, Teresa Byrom of Fort Worth, Candace Camp of Paris, Kathleen Howden of Corpus Christi, Carolyn Williams of Dickinson, and Leza Mesiah of Dallas. The state winner will travel to Boston in July to represent the Texas Federation for the national title.

Booklets Help Family Budget

Turning to the other side of the picture, the next step is to list expenditures, both fixed and flexible. The forms provided in the booklets mentioned are very helpful in providing working space and a sample form for doing this detailed job.

Categories in fixed expenses include the following: housing, utilities and home services, taxes, installment payments, insurance, fixed costs related to transportation, education, personal allowances, personal improvement, contributions, membership dues, and savings and investments.

Items listed in flexible expenses include the following: food, clothing, home improvements and supplies, gifts, recreation, and health and personal care.

The information should be as accurate as possible. Make use of present records including receipts and checks or check stubs to verify amounts. If facts are not readily at hand, try to make an intelligent estimate of expenses, the booklet suggests.

Resources mentioned are available for family use. The materials from the Texas Agriculatural Extension Service can be had from its office in the County Building at Broadway and G. That material is free of charge. The address for the Money Management Institute is 2700 Sanders Road, Prospect Heights, Ill. 60670. The fee is 50 cents.

In addition to these sources, help with financial planning is available at local banks. Special Organizational Services at First National Bank has a booklet similar to the ones discussed. Financial counseling is also available through Family Services, Inc. which has offices in Metro Tower.

THOUGHTS ON WORK

these three things are needed:
They must be fit for it:
They must not do too much of it:
And they must have a sense of success in it.

Unwanted Calories Sneak Into Diet

COLLEGE STATION (Special) — Fight "sneaky" calories. Set a weight-control climate, says Frances Reasonover, foods and nutrition specialist.

Unwanted calories "sneak" into the diets of many overweight people who add them without even realizing they're doing so, she explains.

Overweight people are very sensitive to the sight, taste, smell and thought of food — especially when it's clearly in sight and readily available.

In addition, they eat almost as much food when they're thinking about something else as when they're thinking about food.

For example, they don't realize how much they are eating when their attention is on television or something they are reading.

Finally, some overweight people eat less when they have to prepare their own food — but others have a habit of tasting while preparing foods.

In order to set a climate for weight control, one battle plan is: know when we eat food without realizing it and then re-order eating habits to avoid "sneaky" calories.

Below are suggestions for changing eating habits.

1. Put snack foods (crackers, cookies, cakes, soft drinks, candy) on a high shelf or in a hard-to-reach place — or avoid buying them at all. Buy raw snacks and other low-calorie, high-nutrition items for snacks.

2. In eating snacks, take only one small serving from the package. Put the package back and repeat this each time you decide to snack. Have family members without weight problems keep their snack foods out of your sight.

3. During meals, don't leave serving dishes or pans on the table. Serve your plate and put all food away so you don't have to look at it.

4. Wait at least two minutes after eating before taking a second helping. To get a second helping, take your plate to where the food is kept, get a moderate-size serving and put the food away again before eating.

THICKER HAIR

If you want your hair to look thicker, try these tips: have it cut short, since hair looks thicker in shorter styles; shampoo daily — it won't hurt your hair and will give it added body; use a protein shampoo or conditioner, as it coats the hair shaft and gives the illusion of a thicker head of hair.

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: A repairman who was obviously crippled by multiple sclerosis or cerebral palsy came to my home today. My four-year-old daughter asked loudly, and in front of the man, "Mommie, why does that man walk so funny?"

I was terribly embarrassed and totally unprepared for her question, so I said, "The man wasn't as lucky as Mommie and you." I didn't mean to sound patronizing or condescending, but I didn't know what else to say.

Later I told my daughter that it wasn't nice to mention a person's handicap in front of him or her. My question is, what do you tell children when they ask what is wrong with a crippled or disfigured person in the person's presence?

At a Loss For Words

Dear At: You tell them the truth in language they can understand. ("The man has a sickness that made his leg crooked. It's a little harder for him to walk, but he can still do his job as well as anybody else.")

Very young children will not understand why it isn't "nice" to mention the obvious. They are naturally curious, eager to learn and shouldn't be discouraged from asking questions.

Bless those disabled who anticipate a child's curiosity and come right out with why they are in a wheelchair, wear a brace or have difficulty talking, seeing or hearing.

DEAR ABBY: I'm 22 and my husband is 25. We've been married for three years. When I was first married I weighed 130. Now I weigh 180.

My problem is my sex life. My husband refuses to touch me until I lose 40 pounds. I'm trying, but it's not easy. What should I do?

Hungry For Love

Dear Hungry: Keep trying. In the meantime, ask him if he'll kiss you if you lose 25.

• • •

DEAR ABBY: I had to make an emergency trip and couldn't get a confirmed reservation on a plane, so I went to the airport and took my chances on a standby. Fortunately, I got on a flight. Unfortunately, I was placed in the smoking section and I am allergic to smoke.

I was so grateful to have gotten a seat on that plane I wasn't about to make any waves.

Well, my seat partner was a chain smoker. After her third cigarette, I asked her politely if she could please cut down on her smoking. Her answer was "I wish I could honey, but I'm a nervous wreck when I fly and I have to smoke."

What would Dear Abby have done in my place?

Allergic

Dear Allergic: She would have sent up smoke signals to the flight attendant who said on take-off, "If there is anything I can do to make your flight more enjoyable, please let me know."

Baby Powder Beats Summer 'Stickies'

NEW YORK (Special) — To beat the summer stickies, make baby powder the first thing you put on every morning before you dress. It will help keep you dry and cool through the most torrid weather.

Baby powder will help eliminate clothing sticking and chafing, especially when you engage in active sports, such as tennis and jogging. And, don't forget to put some in your tennis shoes and sandels. The clean fresh smell of baby powder makes it an ideal "fragrance" for summer.

Baby powder also dislodges sand at the beach — just dust it on and brush off the powder and sand together.

COUPLE CELEBRATE ANNIVERSARY — Mr. and Mrs. Horace Roberson will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary from 2-5 p.m. today in their home. Roger Roberson of Gillefttte, Wyo., Mrs. Leta Sisler of Tuson, Ariz., Mr. and Mrs. Dale Ray Roberson of Ocean Side, Calif., and Mr. and Mrs. John Highley of Tuson, children of the couple, will host. The former Zora Seale and Roberson were married June 14 in Lubbock. They have 15 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

PEACH STRAWBERRY PINEAPPLE FREEZER JAM

2 lbs. fully ripe peaches
¾ pt. fully ripe strawberries
¼ cup drained canned crushed pineapple, finely chopped
2 tbsps. lemon juice
2 tbsps. water
1 pkg. powdered jam and jelly pectin
1 cup light corn syrup
4¼ cups sugar

Peel, pit and finely chop peaches in food chopper, blender or food processor. Measure two cups. Rinse and stem strawberries; fully crush, one layer at a time, to let juice flow freely. Measure ¾-cup. In large bowl or saucepan stir together peaches, strawberries, pineapple, lemon juice and water. Stirring vigorously, slowly sift in jam and jelly pectin. Set aside 30 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add corn syrup, stirring well. Gradually stir in sgar. To hasten sugar dissolving, jam mixture may be heated slightly, but do not heat to more than 100 degrees (lukewarm). Ladle into ½ or 1-pint freezer containers leaving ½-inch headspace. Cover with tight lids (no paraffin needed). Jam to be eaten within a week or two may be stored in refrigerator. Store remaining jam in freezer and transfer to refrigerator as needed. Makes 8 (½-pt.) containers.

Physician Explains Pros, Cons Of Commercial Pregnancy Kits

BY JEANNE LIVELY
Family News Staff

A teenager, suspecting an unwanted pregnancy and living in a small community where privacy is a problem, goes to a nearby town and purchases an early pregnancy test — one of several brands — from a drug store shelf.

Or, in another instance, a married woman selects and purchases a similar "kit" but with a different motive. She desires a pregnancy very much: however, since she has been disappointed so many times before, she wants to test herself on this occasion. Her rationalization is that should pregnancy still be denied, she'd prefer to have her usual emotional "storm," alone at home.

Still another married woman, new to Lubbock, does not know anything about community resources. Finances are at the breaking point with five children already in the family. The anxious woman is unaware that she can receive pregnancy testing without cost and also avoid the cost of a physician's visit, through local health facilities. She, too, decides to purchase one of the in-home, early pregnancy tests.

Dr. W. Wayne Heine, professor and chairman of the department of obstetrics and gynecology at the Texas Tech University School of Medicine, says that the commercial kits have a place as a screening procedure. "One of the advantages of the kits," he said, "is the fact that most people can follow the simple directions and with care get a successful reading. Even teenagers should be able to learn to test themselves.

"But one of the disadvantages is that if a person makes a mistake somewhere along in the step-by-step procedure, then the whole thing literally 'goes down the drain' and has to be thrown away. I should mention also that the kits can only be used one time. Local pharmacies are currently selling the kits at the regular price of $10.95, so the cost — among other reasons — will make most women read the directions carefully and try to follow them. I've noticed that sometimes the test kits are sold for less at discount stores at prices ranging from $9.32 to $9.97.

"I would suggest that the potential consumer compare the costs of the 'do-it-yourself' versions, with pregnancy test charges at several local agencies:

City-County Health Department — free Family Planning — free
Planned Family — $5
Planned Parenthood — $10
Student Health (Texas Tech) — $11

"Needless to say, confidentiality is assured at any of these organizations, as well as the city's professional laboratories."

Dr. Heine comments that the in-home pregnancy kits contain only a few items: a test tube containing two "globs" of material, a tube of a purified and specialized water and a small medicine dropper. "Being human," Dr. Heine admitted, "I sometimes compare the simplicity of the kits, with all of the changes that might occur in people's lives, as a result of the test results.

"In any case, test ingredients are virtually the same, both as used in the test tube in the kits and in your laboratories. Primary ones usually contain HCG on sheep red blood cells, HCG antiserum (rabbit) and water.

"Briefly, what happens in testing for pregnancy is that as soon as a woman becomes pregnant, her body begins producing human charionic gonadotropin (HCG) and diagnostic testing finds out whether there is or isn't HCG in the urine. I notice that the drug manufacturers' circulars instruct the user to wait nine days after her period before testing, because the strength of HCG will be stronger then.

"Many times in my practice, a woman will ask whether or not she can get an earlier reading; and while it is possible, we usually do not order such a test. A radioimmune assay is comparatively expensive, and a woman's period could come around before results would be received. If a physician has reason to suspect something unusual — one condition I can think of can only be spotted over a period of short duration — this special test would be ordered.

"As I've mentioned earlier, basically all pregnancy tests are similar in nature. Some are more sensitive than others; but that in itself can cause problems if they are too sensitive, since there are a certain number of hormones in the normal female cycle that react and could give a 'positive' pregnancy reading. The LH is the hormone that crossreacts with HCG. Physicians serving in the department of obstetrics and gynecology at Texas Tech routinely instruct the laboratory — there is a way of avoiding the undesirable possibility."

Dr. Heine doubts a positive reading will cause a woman to delay seeing her physician regarding prenatal care, since many women do not go immediately anyway. "What concerns me more," he emphasized, "is the woman who gets a 'negative' reading, feels secure, yet there is another reason why her menses have stopped.

The pregnancy kits are safe — nothing is ingested internally — but like the manufacturers, I unquestionably recommend that the pregnant woman avail herself oa physician's care in order to carry her infant 'to term' and be delivered of a healthy baby.

"The in-home pregnancy tests are good as a screening device, but if my own daughter had to make a decision to do something about a pregnancy (to marry or to have an abortion), I would not want her to rely completely on one such test. Most assuredly, I would suggest she be tested at a professional laboratory."

Lubbock Youth Selected As Park Volunteer

By CONNIE CHAPMAN
Family News Staff

When your family has spent many years on camping vacations in national parks, a very natural thing to do your first summer out of high school is to work as a Student Conservation Association volunteer in Glacier National Park in Montana.

That's the way 1979 Monterey High School valedictorian Ruth Nicholson, daughter of the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Robert D. Nicholson, explains her plans for this summer.

She will leave Lubbock Monday for a 12-week period of work with the National Park Service before entering the College of Forest Resources at the University of Washington in Seattle this fall.

"I first learned about the SCA two years ago when we visited Isle Royale on Lake Superior....It's not a program very well known here, but it is known in the East where the majority of applicants come from," she said.

Right now, she doesn't know much more than the usual booklets tell about Glacier, but she thinks the summer holds exciting possibilities. She has participated in high school field trips to three national parks and knows about the work in Carlsbad Caverns, Guadalupe and Big Bend, and in Davis Moutain State Park.

She has received a letter from the Glacier Chief Park Interpreter describing her responsibility.: "Your work will be primarily in public contact at St. Mary Visitor Center, Logan Pass Visitor Center, St. Mary Ranger Station and outdoors with the children's program....Be prepared for a variety of assignments."

The SCA is a privately funded organization. It accepts applications for park and forest assistants, reviews and approves them, and sends them on to one of the three places each applicant may list as choices. Miss Nicholson will be one of four SCA volunteers to work at St. Mary Ranger Station.

SCA provides round trip bus fare to the point of assignment, a uniform allowance and $30 for food and essentials per week.

Last year Miss Nicholson served through the SCA in a high school work group doing back country trailbuilding in Rocky Mountain National Park in Colorado.

"They forgot to put a space for height and weight on the application forms last year and so they all kidded me about my size and not being able to keep up with the heavy work, but only eight of the 12 of us who started finished the project," said the petite blonde.

The people making that jest didn't really know the versatility and tenacity of this young Lubbock lass. As a member and crew leader of Explorer Post 404, she had been named named Most Valuable Explorer Leader at Philmont Scout Ranch and Explorer Base in Cimmaron, N. M. Over the past six years she has participated in the Lubbock soccer program and is a player, coach and referee. She is an active member of First Presbyterian Church of which her father is pastor. She was a member of the National Honor Society and received the highest academic awards and grades throughout her years at Monterey, culminating in her being named valedictorian at graduation.

Glacier National Park is largely wilderness, she has learned. People camp in specified areas, but back country camping has to be limited to protect the wildlife and the terrain, she said.

"Animals don't want to mess with people," she said, but added that she has been instructed to carry bells on her equipment to alert bears to the approach of a human so they can get out of the way.

She said there is an ongoing controversy between people who want park land opened up for multi-purpose use and those who are strict conservationsists and want the lands preserved exactly as they are . Many national parks are sites for primary scientific research as well as providing recreational facilities. Often, she noted, national parks are surounded by national forests, thus both purposes are served.

When she was asked how she expected this year's volunteer work to be different from last year's Colorado experience she said with typical youthful good humor, "Well, I really hope a tree doesn't fall on my leg THIS year!."

Financial Checklist Prevents Arguments

COLLEGE STATION (Special) — Plan money and legal affairs before saying "I do," advises a family resource management specialist, Bonnie Piernot.

Also, make a spending plan — to learn how both partners feel about money and to avoid arguments about money problems later, she adds.

A spending plan can help couples determine the most effective way to spend their income — in a systematic way.

"Although it's not a plan to actually increase income and it does not have to be a rigid budget, it will help a couple relieve pressures and build a sense of sharing and togetherness.

"In addition, it will help keep fairness and equality in their relationship," Mrs. Piernot says.

Notify the credit union, bank or savings-and-loan association of any name and address changes.

Consider both joint and separate share-draft or checking accounts. A separate account is helpful in case of death , since it will allow the survivor to continue writing checks.

Joint accounts are often "frozen" immediately following a spouse's death. In any case, think of the money as "ours" — rather than "mine" or "yours."

In addition, notify all charge-card companies of address and name changes.

A husband and wife may have separate credit card accounts, in their own names, and that will establish credit for both of them.

Notify the Social Security Administration of your new name, address and marital status.

Inform the Department of Public Safety of any changes on driver's licenses or car titles.

Allow plenty of time for magazines and newspapers to make name and address changes.

One way to make all magazine changes at once is to send a single letter to Magazine Action Line, Publisher's Clearing House, 382 Channel Dr., Port Washington, N.Y. 11050. List all magazines you subscribe to and include the old and new addresses.

If you want to make a change in your withholding taxes, you may need to check your W-4 form.

Also, consider changing beneficiaries on employee or other life insurance policies.

In addition, sutdy the company health policy. Decide whether to keep single policies or change to family policies. Study them for the better buy and the best coverage.

Review auto insurance, too. Add your spouse to your policy, or if you have two cars, insure both on one policy.

For apartment renters, be sure you have some type of tenants insurance policy — to protect personal property.

This policy should cover both partners' possessions, including recrational equipment.

At the same time, make a list of personal property, including furniture, furnishings, jewelry, appliances, sporting and hobby equipment.

Contact a lawyer to have a will drawn up. This will assure both partners that property will be transferred according to each one's wishes, and it may cut down on death taxes.

Calling All Homemakers

By SYD MOORE, A.S.I.D

One of the main complaints that many women voice is that their bedroom dressers and chests are not adequate.

Actually, many dressers and chests are failures on two counts. They don't provide the best kind of storage and they're not as nice to look at as they might be.

But now it's more possible to get the right dressers and chests with your bed because there's more exciting variety. You can get ensembles with single to double to triple dressers with all different kinds of combinations of drawers and doors to fit your needs and you can go from bachelor chests to four-drawer chests, five-drawer chests, chests-on-chests, etc.

You can also consider either single mirrors or twin mirrors over your dressers.

And just as important as the basic functions of dressers, mirrors and chests, is the charm and style they bring to your bedroom.

There's a wonderful selection now not only to fit your budget but also your sense of good taste.

Clip 'n' Cook

CHILI MAC SOMBRERO PIE

½ lb. ground beef
½ cup chopped onions
¼ cup chopped green peppers
1 tbsp. butter or margarine
½ cup sliced pitted ripe olives
½ cup frozen kernel corn, cooked and drained
2 cans (15 oz.) macaroni and beef in chili gravy
1 pkg. (8½ oz.) corn muffin mix
½ cup milk

Preheat oven to 325 degrees. Saute ground beef, onions and green pepper in butter until meat is lightly browned. Mix in olives, corn kernels and macaroni and beef in chili gravy; heat thoroughly. Pour mixture into greased two-quart baking dish. Prepare corn muffin mix, using additional milk; spoon over top of casserole. Bake 30-35 minutes or until golden brown. Serves six to eight.

Marriage Roles May Damage Self-Concepts

COLLEGE STATION (Special) — Traditional marriage roles may damage some women's self-concepts, says Patricia Lamson, family life education specialist.

New research shows that traditional marriage roles may be chipping away at some women's feelings of competence. Although marriage can increase a woman's general happiness and its roles can give her identity, those same roles also may produce stress and eventually damage her image of herself, she notes.

In the past, women traditionally were limited to homemaking roles. Because of that, they did not have access to many of society's other rewards, so some remedied this deficiency by viewing their husband's successes as their own.

They gave their husbands support, interest and attention, so they felt part of their husbands' achievements.

Past research has shown that women who viewed their husbands as successful also felt that they had successful marriages.

However, new research reveals that the success of a husband may harm the self-concept of his wife, if the wife has little successes of her own.

Latest findings show that women may feel guilty and think less of themselves when they cannot contribute money to the family. They also may feel slighted when they cannot acquire social success.

They are Allen Mize and Eldred Mize of Crosbyton, Jesse Mize of Ralls, Fred Mize of Dallas, Lawrence Mize of Vista, Calif., and Raymond Mize, Lewis Mize and Gladys Noble of Lubbock. The former Mamie Pruitt and Mize were married June 8, 1909 in Gordon. They moved to Crosby County in 1928 and to Lubbock in 1975. The couple has 23 grandchildren and 21 great-grandchildren.

Handshaking Standards Change

By JEANNE LIVELY
Family News Staff

The exact origin of the custom of shaking hands is lost in history, but it may have originated in medieval times, when the showing of a hand without a weapon had great significance.

Or hand-shaking could have come from the days of Knightdom in England, a practice of adversaries grasping the weapon hand during a truce as a precaution against treachery.

Vogue's "Book of Etiquette" recalls the rules which governed the custom of shaking hands in the days when rules of behavior were still observed in "polite society," and men men didn't shake hands with women, men didn't shake hands with gloves on, and women didn't shake hands at all, with or without gloves.

If these rules seem strict by today's standards, Vogue has not relaxed its standards very much. It discusses at length when, how, and how often one should shake hands as a houseguest in a Continental European or South American home.

According to Vogue, guests should shake hands with host, hostess and fellow guests upon arrival and departure. In addition, Vogue said, "unless there is a special reason not to," guests should shake hands all around at least twice a day.

In 1922, Emily Post wrote: "...it is unforgivably rude to refuse a proferred hand, but it is rarely nice to offer your hand if you prefer not to....Men usually shake hands when they are introduced to each other, even if they have to cross a room to do so. Ladies may do as they wish."

Miss Post said, somewhat romantically, that a handshake can create a feeling of fiendliness or of irritation betwen two strangers. But she added: "No one likes a 'boneless' hand that feels like a jellyfish, and what woman does not wince at the vice-like grasp that cuts her rings into her flesh and temporarily paralyzes every finger?"

Miss Post stressed that the proper handshake is brief, strong, and reveals warmth of feeling. She advocated that one should look into the eyes of the person with whom one is shaking hands.

In the "New Emily Post's Book of Etiquette (1975)," the quality of a handshake is emphasized more than the rules governing hand-shaking. A woman is instructed to relax the arm and fingers, "for it is courtesy in many countries for a man to lift a woman's hand to his lips." According to Emily, a hand "should have life even though passive," and "having a relaxed hand does not mean a wet rag."

On the South Plains as in other parts of the country, shaking hands is still a common form of greeting, especially in the business world, and is usually adopted by women in business, whether or not they shake hands in the purely social realm.

James Sever, a vice-president of Texas Commerce Bank, exmphasized that he always shakes hands when he greets people, extending his hand to both men and women. As to whether he passes judgement on a person's personality by his handshake, he said, "I definitely try not to judge anyone by how they shake hands. I don't think I do."

Monte Hasie, a stock broker, said he usually shakes hands with both men and women. He says he sometimes waits to see if a woman offers her hand first, however. "But I don't think I judge a person by the kind of handshake she or he may have."

According to Larry Franklin, administrative manager of IBM in Lubbock, the firm has no formal policy regarding shaking hands nor training its employees to do so. "Certainly I would anticipate that all our people in sales, service and administration would greet everyone, both women and men, by shaking hands.

"Judge a person by his handshake? I think other factors are involved, and I would not use a handshake as a basis for judging a person's character or his abilities," he said.

Joy Lambert, a vice-president of Lubbock National Bank, says that "99.9 percent of the time" she extends her hand to everyone she is welcoming. "But when greeting a woman I sometimes wait and take a clue from her actions," she said. "The reason I do is that a woman might be carrying parcels in addition to her purse, and shaking hands would be difficult."

"Because of what we have always heard and read, we probably judge a person by the kind of handshake he has, at least a little bit," she said, "whether it is strong, weak or whatever. With more men shaking hands with women-men though, making a judgement on a handshake might not be valid, since I think men generally shake hands more gently with a woman."

BELGIAN WAFFLES

½ cup regular or buttermilk pancake and waffle mix
1 egg
½ cup milk
2 tbsps. melted or liquid shortening
1 pt. strawberries, hulled and halved
2 tbsps. confectioners or granulated sugar
2 tbsps. grated orange rind
1 cup thawed frozen whipped topping

Prepare pancake and waffle mix with egg, milk and shortening as directed on package for waffles and bake one 9-inch square waffle. Cool and cut into squares.

Combine strawberries, sugar, orange juice and rind; stir until sugar dissolves. Spoon on waffles and top with shipped topping. Makes four servings.

As long as I've had a salon and school in Lubbock, I'm always surprised to find people who don't know that we have a professional salon and a beauty school under one roof. So, you have a choice of professional services at professional prices, or you may choose to have student services at half price.

Another thing many people do not know is that we have available the most luxurious skin care treatments in this entire area. We use Christine Valmy products, the outstanding skin care treatments in the U.S. If you haven't had your face analyzed and treated for your type of skin, you have really missed a pleasurable experience.

Regardless of whether you have problem skin, the dehydrated skin common to most West Texans, or acne, your skin should be treated properly and regularly. This means you, too, boys and men! Many men have troubled skin and need the help we offer.

As with all our services, you may request either a student or a professional. Professional prices for skin care treatments are $15.00 each or a series of six for $60.00. Student prices for skin care are $7.50 each or a series of six for $30.00.

Then, ladies, when your skin is in good condition, you would definitely enjoy a make-up application. We will make up your face for you, showing you how to diminish your weak points and enhance your strong points. We want your make-up to call attention to your beautiful features and not to the make-up product itself. We will sketch a plan for you to follow, repeating the colors used on your face so that you can re-do the make-up yourself. Professional make-ups are $15.00, and students charge $7.50 for a make-up.

Pamper yourself with the most luxurious, relaxing service of all — skin care. Call 792-6311 today for an appointment.

Bicycles Require Tune-Up

CHICAGO — Once again summer is heralding renewed spirits and interest in outdoor activities.

And, with summer, come thoughts of the season's most popular pastimes, like swimming, sailing, hiking and cycling.

To make bike rides this season more enjoyable, follow these check-up tips:

•Make sure the wheels are in good working order. Turn the wheel to see that there are no bits of glass, wire, sharp stones or cinders sticking in the tires.

If your bike has been standing for a while, the tires will need air. It's best to use a foot pump and pressure gauge to avoid over-inflation.

•Pick up the front and then the back of the bike, and give the wheels another spin. If a wheel is wobbling from side to side, or if the spokes are loose, the wheel needs to be trued.

Truing wheels is something of an art that requires skill and patience, so take your bike to a reputable shop.

•Check the brakes. The secret of good brakes is more often in the rims than in the brakes, because wobbly, lumpy rims prevent the brakes from working properly.

If the rims are fine, check the brakes by squeezing the levers firmly and then releasing them. They should snap back with a good solid feel.

If the brakes are sluggish, a cable may be binding in the housing. Check to make sure there are no sharp kinks in the housing and if necessary, spray an aerosol lubricant into the housing and on brake pivot points.

•Check the chain. While slowly rotating the pedals backwards, check to be sure the chain is free of twists and that the links are not too tight.

•Check both the front and rear derailleurs by supporting the bike so the rear wheel can spin free, and make sure the chain will move smoothy from one chain sprocket to the other. A drop or two of oil on pivot points will usually free up a sluggish derailleur.

•Make sure the bolts are tightened securely in the stem and handlebars, seat clamp and seat post, and check accessory mounting screws.

If everything is in order, all you need to do is clean out the cobwebs and polish the frame for another season of fun-filled cycling!

CHICAGO (Special) — With more than 100,000 Americans pushing pedals, bicycles have become the nation's most hazardous consumer product.

Ranking ahead of stairways, footballs and baseball gear, playground equipment, skates, skateboards, scooters and swimming pools, bicycles are involved in traffic accidents that this year will kill at least 1,000 and injure more than 500,000 seriously enough for hospital treatment, according to the Consumer Product Safety Commission.

Most of the victims of bike accidents are children, despite the fact that the proportion of adult riders is increasing so rapidly that by 1980 there will be more two-wheelers than motorcars on the road for the first time since the original Model T chugged into action, reports the Department of Safety and Research of the Combined American Insurance Company.

Next to walking, bicycling is the most popular form of exercise, the researchers have found.

Failure on the part of cyclists to obey traffic laws and observe safety precautions is blamed for most of the bicycle mishaps in traffic, more than 70 percent of which occur in residential areas, mainly in daylight. And many of these happen at intersections where motorists are not able to see cyclists who stray into their paths, apparently without regard for the rules of the road.

The Institute for Highway Safety finds that too many bikers ignore laws that require riding on the right side of the street, stopping for signals and using hand signals when turning or stopping. Compounding the problem is the fact that the authorities appear to do little to penalize cyclists who break the rules.

According to the Institute most bicycle-auto encounters are the fault of cyclists, with a frequent cause being the sudden emergence of a bike from a driveway, alley or parking lot into a street and directly into the path of oncoming traffic.

The Consumer Product Safety Commission has issued stricter regulations governing the manufacture of bicycles in the hope that better equipment will help reduce accidents. But the principal responsibility remains with riders, the company says. The company's safety experts offered these recommendations for reducing the toll of bike riders:

•Obey traffic laws; ride with traffic, not against it, and use the same hand signals prescribed for operators of other vehicles.

•Pedal at moderate speeds, particularly when going downhill; keep a firm grip on the handlebars at all times, and be ever ready to step on the brake. Watch where you are going. Don't try any stunts.

•Install an effective rear-view mirror so you can see cars slipping up behind you and veer out of their way. A high-rise flag on your handlebar or behind your seat would make you more visible to motorists who are unaccustomed to looking downward for bicycles in their paths.

•Carry a bright light for night riding and install reflectors on the front and rear of yor bike and on the wheels and pedals. Add reflective strips to your clothing after dark.

•Maintain your bike in good condition, regularly cleaning and oiling the chain, checking the brakes and keeping the tires solidly inflated. If you hear rattles, get out your monkey wrench, pliers and screw driver and tighten all the nuts, bolts and screws.

•Don't carry passengers or large objects that could block your vision or throw your bike off blance; beware of shrubs and other greenery that many hamper your view.

•Be on the alert for ruts, bumps and potholes and beware of storm-drain grills, which can be deadly booby traps.

Although cyclists bear the brunt of the blame for the high accident rate, Combined Insurance Safetyk experts advise motorists to do their part by becoming better informed about the high rate of bicycle accidents and its causes. Drivers should also be more alert to the growing number of bikes they are encountering in traffic because a failure to see cyclists is an important factor in collisions on the road.

A number of communities have partly solved the problem by establishing bikeways where riders can pedal in relative safety away from motor traffic. But increasing numbers of people are using bicycles instead of gas guzzlers to get to work, school and the supermarket, which means that they must be allowed to share roadways with autos and trucks.

Education appears to be an important key to the problem of bike safety, according to cycling enthusiasts. Riders must be required to obety the rules of the road and learn to drive defensively while those behind the wheels of motor vehicles are asked to be on the lookout for bicycles, and to try to steer clear of them.

COBB SALAD

3 to 4 cups finely chopped iceberg and Romaine lettuce (about ½ lb.)
½ to ¾ cup finely chopped, skinned and boned cooked chicken breast
3 green onions, minced
1 hard-cooked egg, finely chopped
1 med. tomato, peeled, seeded and minced
4 slices bacon, fried crisp and crumbled
1 (1¾ oz.) pkg. blue cheese, crumbled
1 small soft avocado, peeled, seeded and minced
1 tsp. lemon juice, if necessary
1/3 cup bottled oil & vinegar dressing
Freshly ground black pepper to taste
Lettuce leaves

Spread chopped lettuce evenly over bottom of a shallow, medium-large bowl. Arrange ingredients in rows over lettuce with minced chicken in a narrow strip down center, tomato, blue cheese and avocado on one side, and green onion, hard-cooked egg and bacon on other side. To delay serving, toss minced avocado in lemon juice to prevent darkening. Cover salad with a damp paper towel and refrigerate. Before serving, add oil and vinegar dressing and pepper.

Tune In Tomorrow

By JON-MICHAEL REED

ALL MY CHILDREN: Betsy's roommate, Sybil Thorne, set her cap for Dr. Cliff Warner. Chuck learned that Donna's baby will be stillborn after she complained that it wasn't kicking. Erica and Tom reconciled after she promised to attend a marriage encounter group. But she traded with Tom to do the commercial she'd already set up behind his back. Wealthy Palmer Cortlandt and his daughter Mimi arrived. Langley gave Edna the cold shoulder and enticed Phoebe about checking into her genealogy. Russ catered to a recovering Nancy, who learned that Frank and Caroline have called it quits. Dan got juiced and tried to beat up Mark, who told Brooke to take a flying leap.

ANOTHER WORLD: Vince and Mimi made wedding plans. Angie spotted Paul kissing Rose. Janice persuaded Mac that he can legally abscond with Amanda if it is done in a public place. Ted pursued Karen after she returned Mike's engagment ring. Then he offered to pay Ben's gambling debts in return for dates. Susan and Dan returned to Boston. Vivien went disco-roller skating with Rudy, her doorman-boyfriend. Gwen warned Willis that if he pushes for a divorce, she'll take away the business she's brought to the company. Kirk moved across the hall from Iris who spotted Rachel meeting him. Iris also spotted Janice buying a crib. Alice became closer to Scott and gave Phil a contribution to his religious sect in return for his help with Sally.

AS THE WORLD TURNS: Joyce disappeared from the hospital and begged Bill Huntington for loot so she could leave town. Beau left to see his father in London when Jane let it slip that she isn't his natural mother, since Jane thought Melinda had let the cat out of the bag. Mrs. Pierce realized that Bennett hasn't mailed Lisa's letters and she told Lisa that Ruth had run off with Mrs. Pierce's brother. Annie suggested that Doug give Marcia another chance for his son Brian's sake, and Marcia wormed her way back into Doug's graces. Matt was upset after Jay fired Chip. Bennett called Nancy to say that Lisa was okay, but didn't reveal her whereabouts, which caused Grant to think she's been kidnapped.

DAYS OF OUR LIVES: The search was on for Julie, who slipped out of the hospital with drugs. Phyllis pretended to be taken in by Neil's appeals that they start all over again. Laura didn't tell anyone that Julie had called and Laura hadn't discouraged her from running away to think things through. Mickey fretted about Maggie's reaction that Linda was rehired at the law office. The Julie crisis broght Amanda and Chris together. An out-of-town doctor advised Julie to return to her husband and the hospital. Stephanie was intrigued by the news that whoever buys Phyllis' stock will have veto power but not controlling interest.

THE DOCTORS: Billy regained consciousness after an auto crash and Mike lectured him about pulling his life together. Nola neglected baby Jessica when Mona wasn't around and worked overtime so Mona won't learn the baby was a "premie." Missy was jealous when Kim tried to ingratiate herself as Luke's partner. Mona's detectives located Jason. Mike returned to work at the hospital.

EDGE OF NIGHT: Winter failed to knock off Nicole with sleeping pills so she began sending her posion pen letters. Margo introduced Owen Madison and his daughter Paige to Draper as potential clients. Deborah nixed Steve's marriage proposal because of her career. Deborah turned Joey over to Mickey after Joey was arrested for rowdy behavior. Calvin lamented that he can't get to first base with Starr.

GENERAL HOSPITAL: Rick successfully operated on Laura and the ordeal made him realize that he loves Lesley. Monica also reconciled with Alan after she and Rick agreed that their "hotel" night was only a dream. Neither Rick nor Monica told their mates about that night but Mitch reported to Tracy that he'd spotted Monica at the hotel. Scotty returned Laura's engagement ring after she regained consciousness. Bobbi had a case of the guilts for driving Laura crazy with suspicion. Alice realized that Heather's interested in adopting Jeremy for the inheritance that Heather can use to pay off Cal. Susan found Heather's ticket for the ring she pawned for Cal's first payment. Gina complained to Howard that Gary is only interested in his success, not her. Spence consoled Lesley during Laura's surgery.

GUIDING LIGHT: Ed confronted Roger after Rita spilled the beans about her rape. During Ed and Roger's scuffle, Holly shot Roger with the gun he had intended to use on Ed. Amanda and Ben were outraged to learn that Lucille snitched to Eve about his fling with Diane. Jackie insisted that Alan rescind Diane's vice presidency. He agreed after Jackie was bed-bound with pregnancy complications. Roger had terrorized Holly and threatened to take away Christina before Ed's arrival. Hillary confided in Floyd about her troubles with Roger. Ross was thrown when Mike asked the judge to re-open the Thorpe trial because of Rita's new evidence against Roger.

LOVE OF LIFE: Mia's brother Wesley arrived. Betsy, Mia and Ben reconciled, then Betsy raged at Ben for wanting to resume sexual activity on the sly until her divorce from Elliott is finalized. Bruce arranged for Steve's admission to law school. Van was wary that Bruce invited Steve to live and work for the Sterlings, because Steve's an ex-con. Ray and Arlene presented his folks with a trip to Italy.

ONE LIFE TO LIVE: Dick recaptured Pat after she made a futile escape. Ed, Vinnie and Paul tracked down the location of Dick's loft, then rescued Pat and Samantha after Dick was shot. Tina worried about Greg, who's turned to drugs now that his father's in jail and his mother ran off. Mario warned Greg that if he wants to self-destruct, Mario won't allow him to take Tina along with him. Brad was so preoccupied with Sam's predicament that Karen had to inform him that Jenny is having pregnancy complications. Carla lectured Jack when he refused to use a wheelchair. Ivan laid into Faith for meeting Larry and Danny. Ina encouraged Karen not to give up hope about finding a job.

RYAN'S HOPE: Frank agreed to transfer Nancy to New York so she can be near Pat. Jill fumed that Seneca took sexual liberties while she was drunk and thereby risked conceiving another child. Faith hoped she was making progress with Tom, but now he's obsessed with Poppy's resemblance to Theresa and is investigating her background. Poppy decided to take advantage of the situation to snare Tom for herself. Dee reminded Johnny that she owns the bar when he objected to her shamrock and leprechaun motiff redesign plans.

SEARCH FOR TOMORROW: Liza accepted Travis' mariage proposal. Ted changed his tune toward Janet with encouragement and admiration. Nick got chummy with Sunny so that she would arrange a documentary on Laine's job, during which he planted a bomb at the plant. Nick had overheard Carolyn make plans to meet Travis there. Stephanie decided to have reconstructive breast surgery, but fumed that Wendy was hired by Jo. Mignon swore that Liza would never become her daughter-in-law.

THE YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS: Nick failed to pick up a bargirl and accosted Nikki instead. She konked him over the head and Casey and Brock found her in a semi-catatonic state. Laurie and Lance moved into a new apartment, while Leslie disapproved of Lucas' company actions toward Lance. Before he died, Nick begged forgiveness for molesting Casey when she was a child. Liz and Stu shared memories, while Jill taunted Kay about being a fruitcake.

SKIRT LENGTH

It used to be that a woman knew exactly what length skirt to wear by following the latest trend. But now skirts come in a number of confusing lengths — and widths. The simplest way out of the dilemma is to follow this rule: the slimmer the outfit, the shorter the skirt should be. But don't wear anything above the knee. The mini has not come back — yet.

Participants Sought For Research Project

By FRANCES LOWE
Family News Editor

The Department of Food and Nutrition at Texas Tech University is looking for mature people to participate in a research project on the relation of zinc supplements to the health of the elderly.

Debra Buchanan and Jennifer King, graduate students in the department, are working under Dr. Jane M. Geders, senior faculty member, in a research project designed to determine whether the addition of zinc supplements to the diets of older people has a beneficial effect on their health.

For the purposes of the research, they are seeking females over the age of 45, without significant health problems and who are not taking significant medication. The approval of the person's physician would be a necessary requirement for participation.

There would be no dramatic effect on the lives of the participants, the researchers explained, beyond that they would need to report to the College of Home Economics at intervals for evaluation and simple testing (blood pressure, testing of blood and hair samples). Transportation to and from the College would be provided those who need it.

Participants would maintin their own eating patterns, but with the addition of a zinc tablet with the evening meal.

Persons interested in participating in the study should call Miss Buchanan or Miss King on 744-1208 or 747-9136.

The purpose of the study, according to the researchers, is to discover whether the zinc addition would significantly afect the health of the participants. Zinc, which occurs naturally in protein foods, is believed not to be included in sufficient amounts in the diets of many older people. Since this trace mineral affects the saliva and the taste buds, a lack of it may affect the ability of the elderly to taste and enjoy their food, and thus impair their diets further.

Miss King commented that "Hypogeusia, or an impaired sense of taste, has been related to a zinc deficiency resulting from a marginal or inadequate dietary intake of zinc, particularly characteristic of this age group."

The deficiency may come about because of the increased cost of protein foods, the difficulty of preparing such foods for a person living alone, or a lessened interest in eating generally, she said.

"A decreased sensitivity in taste may lead to an inadequate dietary intake, which has been alluded to as a potential predisposing factor to a loss of cellular function associated with aging."

"Several investigators have shown that many adults suffering from hypogeusia experienced improved abilities in taste when given oral zinc supplements," she said.

The research will cover a two-month period beginning in July. Participants will be free-living, with no notable restrictions in their lifestyles, beyond the supplement and regular visits to the college.

COOKING SUCCESS

When preparing several dishes in the same oven, arrange utensils in the oven so they do not touch each other or the oven walls, and so that no utensil is directly above another one. This allows for free circulation of heat for better cooking success.

LEG OF LAMB

3 oranges, cut in picot cups
2 tbsps. Dijon-style mustard
½ cup chopped parsley
¼ cup chopped scallions
2 cups plus 2 tbsps. orange juice (from orange cups) divided
1 tsp. salt
¼ tsp. pepper
½ tsp. dried leaf thyme
1 tsp. grated orange rind
1 7-lb. boned leg of lamb
Hot cooked rice and peas

Prepare orange cups. Reserve juice. Mix mustard, parsley, scallions, 2 tablespoons orange juice, salt, pepper, thyme and orange rind. Spread on the side of boned leg that has no fat. Roll up and secure with string.

Place in a deep bowl. Add 2 cups orange juice and let stand at least 2 hours, loosely covered.

Place lamb in a roasting pan. Reserve juice. Roast in a 350-degree oven until meat thermometer inserted into center reads 350-degrees for medium rare (about 1 hour, 40 minutes), or until lamb reaches desired doneness.

Remove roast to a serving platter. Spoon off all but 2 tablespoons drippings from roasting pan. Place pan over moderate heat. Blend in 2 tablespoons flour. Cook until browned. Gradually stir in reserved 2 cups orange juice and bring to a boil. Cook, stirring, until gravy is thickened.

To serve, surround lamb with 6 picot orange cups filled with cooked rice and peas. Serve gravy separately. Makes 6 servings.

ORANGE PICOT CUPS: Trace a line around the center of each orange. Insert a small pointed knife into the center of an orange at an angle to make one side of a point. Remove the knife. Insert again to make the opposite side of the point. Continue around the orange, following the line to keep the halves equal. Pull apart. Ream oranges for juice. Remove membrane.

Dad's Day Salad Bar Provides Tasty Treat

ENGLEWOOD CLIFFS, N.J. (Special) — On June 17, Father's Day will be 69 years old. The celebration began as the inspiraton of Mrs. Sonora Dodd when the idea came to her in church one Sunday in 1909. The sermon that morning was all about motherhood, and although it was inspiring and she agreed with everything the minister had to say, afterward she reproached him just a bit with, ... "Don't you think fathers deserve a place in the sun, too?" Mrs. Dodd, who lived in Spokane, Wash., developed her idea of a special day set aside to honor fathers. With her minister and the Spokane Ministerial Alliance, she drew up a petition suggesting that Father's Day be celebrated nationally on June 10, 1910. Locally, the YMCA endorsed the plan and enthusiastically set about getting signatures on Mrs. Dodd's petition. Only two people signed it!

But this didn't stop Mrs. Dodd or dull her enthusiasm. She and her supporters celebrated that first Spokane Father's Day, and continued to promote her idea for some six years. Finally, with the help of former United States Senator Clarence C. Dill of Washington, a more successful petition was presented to President Woodrow Wilson. It was 1916 and the president decreed that, thereafter, Father's Day would be celebrated across the United States on the third Sunday of every June.

Just as times have changed since that first 1910 Father's Day, so, too, have the celebrations families find appropriate for the day. Feeding father is, of course, a time-honored part of the party. But with the new awareness of keeping Dad healthy, those heavy-handed meals of the past have been replaced with something light, thoroughly nourishing, good for the favorite man of the house. In fact, a green salad, made with lettuce brought crisp from the garden or market supported with fresh raw vegetables, lean meats, poultry or fish has become just the meal to please many contemporary, aware fathers.

The choice of dressing is also important to complete a nutritious, healthful and tasty salad. A polyunsaturated corn oil dressing can be mixed with vinegar, lemon or lime juice and a variety of seasonings to create appetizing toppers for a Father's Day salad bar.

SUMMER SALAD DRESSING
1 cup corn oil
½ cup lime juice
2 tsps. dried dill weed or
1 tbsp. finely chopped fresh dill
1½ tsps. salt
1 tsp. sugar
1 tsp. minced onion
½ tsp. celery seed

In one-pint jar measure corn oil and lime juice. Add dill weed, salt, sugar, onion and celery seed. Cover tightly and shake well. Chill several hours. Shake well before serving. Makes 1⅓ cups.

Serve with any combination of: variety of greens, fish (tuna, white fish), peas, green or sliced onions, cold cooked chicken/turkey, fresh fruit, new potatoes or asparagas.

SOUTH OF THE BORDER DRESSING
1 cup corn oil
6 tbsps. distilled white vinegar
¼ cup orange juice
1 tbsp. minced onion
1 small clove garlic, crushed
2 tsps. sugar
1½ tsps. salt
1 tsp. ground cumin
1 tsp. crushed dried oregano
¼ tsp. crushed red pepper

In one-pint jar measure corn oil, vinegar and orange juice. Add onion, garlic, sugar, salt, cumin, oregano and red pepper. Cover tightly and shake well. Chill several hours. Remove garlic. Shake well before serving. Makes about 1½ cups.

Serve with any combination of: variety of greens, sliced onion, sliced oranges or other citrus, rice, cold cooked turkey/chicken, chick peas, corn, pimiento or green peppers.

FRENCH HERBED SALAD DRESSING
1 cup corn oil
1/3 cup lemon juice
1 tbsp. sugar
1 tsp. salt
1 tsp. fine herbs
½ tsp. paprika
¼ tsp. dry mustard
1 clove garlic, crushed

In one-pint jar measure corn oil, lemon juice, sugar and salt. Add fine herbs, paprika, mustard and garlic. Cover tightly and shake well. Chill several hours. Remove garlic. Shake well before serving. Makes about 1 1/3 cups. Note: Fine herbs is a mixture of chopped parsley, chives and tarragon.

Serve with any combination of: variety of greens, tomatoes, asparagas, artichokes, cold cooked chicken/turkey or fresh fruit.

Harsh Winter Affects Lawns

COLLEGE STATION (Special) — Most lawns are recovering slowly due to the unusually harsh winter, says Dr. Richard L. Duble, a turfgrass specialist.

"St. Augustine and bermudagrass lawns appear thin ad slow to recover all over the state," he points out. "Floratam St. Augustine, which is more sensitive to low temperature injury, was particularly hard hit.

Lawns that were in poor condition last fall were severely damaged by low temperatures, notes the specialist. "Lawns affected by brown patch, St. Augustine Decline, chinch bugs and white grubs last year were in a weakened condition before low temperatures produced further injury. Heavily thatched lawns also suffered extensive winter injury since the turf was more exposed to temperature extemes," explains Duble.

"In turn, lawns that were healthy going into the winter survived low temperatures with few problems."

What can homeowners do to promote lawn recovery and prevent similar problems next year?

Duble suggests "scalping" the lawn with a mower to remove debris, applying a complete fertilizer to promote recovery and controlling broadleaved weeds to reduce competition. "If these tasks are followed with regular maintenance, lawns should green-up rapidly," he says.

The specialist cautions against using preemergence herbicides for weed control on lawns that are slow to recover from winter.

Also, avoid excessive fertilization throughout the growing season because it increases the turf's susceptibility to environmental stresses such as drought and low temperature. Duble recommends five to seven pounds of nitrogen per 1,000 square feet per year as the masimum for St. Augustine lawns. Lawns deficient in iron should receive two or three supplemental iron applications.

Expert Offers Skin Care Tips

COLLEGE STATION (Special) — Exercise proper skin care during summer months when emphasis on outdoor sports and the beauty appeal of suntans encourages people to spend more time in the sun.

Exposure to the sun can not only produce sunburn, but it also causes skin to age faster and increases the chance of skin cancer, says Bevery Rhodes, a clothing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Damage caused by sun exposure is irreversible. Results may not occur immediately but will become apparent in later years.

Products are available on the market to screen or block harmful ultraviolet radiation which can cause sunburn.

For people who are sensitive to the sun, or who take certain drugs or hormones, or have a history of skin cancer in the family, sun screens and sun blocks are recommended.

Baby Soap Perfect For Sensitive Skin

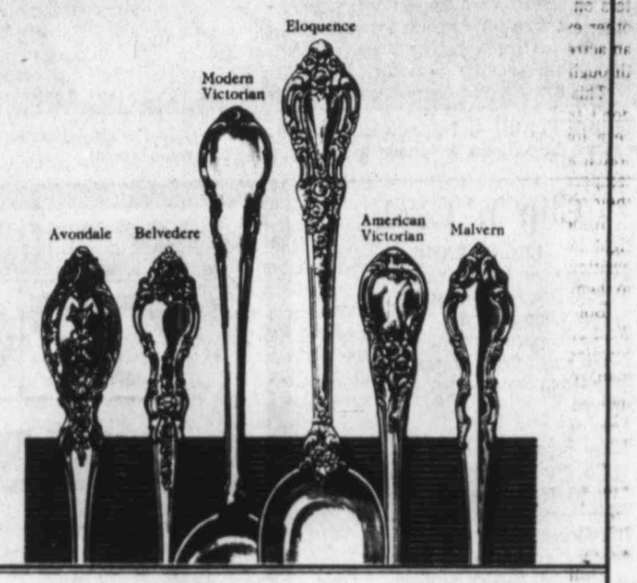

NEW YORK (Special) — Baby soap is gentle enough for summer-sensitive skin. Even sun dried skin won't get that taut dry feeling with gentle baby soap.

Hard-milled and long lasting, baby soap makes it possible to enjoy that fresh soap-and-water face washing that gives you a really clean feeling on hot summer days. It cleanses, rinses easily, and leaves your skin fresh and baby soft.

Real To Reel

By William D. Kerns

I happen to be one of those weirdos who frequents movie theaters with one intent: namely, to watch the movies. I have no desire to hold a conversation with friends while those magic images flicker on screen, and I don't want to be forced to listen to conversations of any sort from the people around me. I have been known to tell my wife and friends in no uncertain terms to pipe down. I have been known to tell strangers to pipe down. And it seems I have been placed in this bind with increasing frequency over the past couple years.

Perhaps it's the influence of television; it comes to mind anyway, with all those commercials shown on the movie screens before the film begins. Nevertheless, more and more moviegoers are treating a trip to the cinema like a trip from the kitchen into the living room. They bring their crying babies, they raise cain, they talk in all manners of tones and volumes — and they do so despite the fact they're disturbing other patrons.

With the rising press surrounding the cult midnight attraction "The Rocky Horror Picture Show" (especially in Lubbock, where the film sparked ugly confrontations and quite a bit of vandalism), we even have a new problem emerging in the form of participatory viewing. I am referring to the nuts who scream at the characters on screen. Most times this is limited to the midnight attractions, but a couple other examples which come to mind are the jerk raising hell at Showplace Six when an actress stripped in "The Silent Partner" and the goofballs yelling at the screen all through a screening of "The Wizard Of Oz" on the Texas Tech University campus.

This sort of thing happens all too frequently and, though local theater managers don't feel the problem merits calling out the National Guard, they do show a concern for the comfort and satisfaction of the patrons who shell out up to $3.50 to watch a movie. Several blame the situation on a declining level of courtesy in contemporary society, and maintain the only solution is for moviegoers to stick up for their rights and air their beefs to management.

Robert Hurley, manager of the South Plains Cinema fourplex, said, "It's not right for one customer to have to tell another to be quiet; it puts them in a bad position. It would be nice if everyone respected the rights of the people seated next to them — but they don't."

Bob Scott manages the Video Theater chain (including the Winchester, Cinema West and Village) and said, "There is definitely less respect for authority now, and rowdiness and vandalism has been on the increase for the past 10 years." Fox Four manager Harold Lieck put it a bit more forcefully with, "I think people's consideration for others is worse. People feel they can pay their money for a ticket and do whatever they damn well please. And the people who just want to enjoy a movie, well, sometimes they pay their money and take their chances."

But don't form the false impression that theater managers treat this situation with a callous disregard. They don't. Hurley stated, "I don't ever want a movie disrupted. I am on the side of the people who want to sit back and watch a motion picture. I sure wouldn't want to hear what someone else had to say while a movie was on. But on the other hand, not everyone is a villain here. It's a 50-50 situation.

"Half the time the people talking don't realize they're disturbing other folks and, when you tell them, they get embarrassed and quiet down. If someone obviously just doesn't care, I ask them to leave."

Steve Richerson, who oversees Showplace Six and the Backstage Twin, agrees. "Our general procedure is to police the auditoriums as much as possible," he said, "and respond to any infraction of general customer comfort. Everybody in there paid their money and is due the right to enjoy the movie. The ones that interfere should be removed, if they don't respond to requests to be quiet. Generally, the reaction to such requests are positive. But our policy is to send an usher down first to speak with them, the manager second and the police third."

And has it reached that third stage?

"A couple of times, yes," he answered.

Most agreed the patrons at midnight shows are the worst offenders, since many arrive inebriated or "stoned" from prior partying. Richerson even revealed that while screening the popular "Up In Smoke" as a midnight attraction, a great number of patrons were "already bombed out of their minds before they even bought tickets." Even then, however, policing procedures were stepped up and complaints were dealt with. And most agree that this is the key to the solution: the act of complaining.

If the guy on the next row gets angry or ignores you upon hearing your requests to be quiet, don't put up with it. Get out of your seat, find an usher and tell him to come down and enforce the rules. If the usher does not do the job to your satisfaction, demand to speak with the manager. That's one reason he's there. I've had to summon ushers numerous times, something I dread if only because I can't stand missing even 15 seconds of a film. But this rudeness in theater auditoriums has to stop.

According to Hurley, most people just grit their teeth and bear it. They don't air complaints because they fear reprisals from the loud talkers. This is why more than one theater uses a "delay" tactic. As Lieck explained it, "When someone comes out and complains about someone talking during the movie or acting up, we wait a few minutes before entering the auditorium and checking it out. It keeps the complainers from being hassled."

OK, you ask, why should we have to leave our seats and complain? Why can't the theaters station employees to guard against such disturbances? Why do we have to go back and tell a 16-year-old usher that there's a crying baby in the eleventh row on the left, or that a couplle rows further down some college guy is trying to impress his date by telling her what's going to happen on screen? I initially wondered the same thing. When I first ushered at a movie house at an early age, I was situated in the back of the theater, my flashlight a symbol of power. If someone was loud, he was told quickly to zip his lip. If a baby started crying, the parents were politely told to step into the lobby with the child.

But theaters today are faced with changing structures and higher expenses. Theaters may pay up to $100,000 in Lubbock for the rights to a movie,and the theater is going to have to save some bucks somewhere. Hurley, Richersen and Lieck all run multiplex operations, ranging from four to six screens, and Hurley revealed, "The problem of disturbances has increased somewhat because theaters have more screens. We can't keep an usher on each aisle, or even in each auditorium. To be able to do that, we'd have to charge $10 a ticket."

Richersen added, "People just have to voice their complaints. We need to be told the problems. In multiplex operations, the simple cost of having an employee in each theater is prohibitive, so we need the public's help. . .It's the theater's responsibility to control unruly patrons, but it's the patrons' responsibility to inform management about those unruly patrons."

So getting down to brass tacks, can the problem be solved? Can moviegoing again become an evening out, rather than an extension of some stranger's living room? Can the rowdiness at midnight shows be curtailed? ("Rocky Horror" is one thing, but the people who went to see "Psycho" at midnight should not have had to put up with the loudmouths.) Richersen thinks things can work out, saying, "The increase in unruly patrons. . .is nothing that can't be handled providing we get cooperation."

Hurley proudly stated, "I think this can be kept to a tolerable level. The day we (managers) don't feel this way is the day we ought to be replaced. Any manager in any business should be replaced if he can't take care of his problems."

But Lieck insisted on straddling the fence. "I really do believe," he said, "that it has to reach a point soon where patrons will start standing up for their rights. If enough people say, 'Please hold it down; I'm trying to listen to the movie," and then go on to point out the loud talkers and troublemakers to managers or ushers, then it would slack off. But the troublemakers and loud talkers aren't going to disappear. Because people as a rule just don't care about other people's feelings and rights.

"If someone hits your car in the parking lot, how many do you think will stop to leave a note? When you get shortchanged at the concession stand, you raise hell — but if you get too much change, you just keep the extra money. People all over, and I don't mean just the ones coming to the movies, are too concerned with themselves. And as long as attitudes stay this way, we as theater managers aren't going to be able to clean it all up."

Maybe not, but that's still no reason to stay seated while dialogue comes at you from both the screen and the row behind you. Keep that in mind. There is no reason movie lovers should have to put up with the loudmouths. Make your feelings known. Complain! And if all this doesn't work, lean back and pray for the return of good old fashioned Lemon Drops and Malted Milk Balls.

They always made the best projectiles...

Summer Repertory Slate Set

The Texas Tech University Theater and Tech Music Theater will join forces this year for the annual summer repertory season of plays, this time consisting of four plays presented at 8:15 p.m. on alternating nights June 28 through July 13.

Ticket information is available by calling the University Theater box office at 742-3601.

"Vanities," directed by Richard Weaver, will be staged June 28, July 2, 6 and 10. "You're A Good Man, Charlie Brown" will be directed by John Gillas and staged June 29, July 3, 7 and 11. Boasting direction by Ronald Schulz, "The Shadow Box" will be staged June 30, July 4, 8 and 12. And "Company," with direction by Nancy Vunovich of the University of Tulsa, will be staged at the University Theater July 1, 5, 9 and 13.

Cast in "Vanities" are Susan Fortenberry as Kathy, the planner; Susanne Barnard as Mary, the free spirit; and Jane Ann Cummings as Joanne, the girl who can't wait for a family of her own. The play tells the story of a decade in the life of three Texas girls, from a close high school friendship through college sorority days and on to widely divergent life styles.

"You're A Good Man, Charlie Brown" is a musical comedy based on the cartoon strip "Peanuts." It traces a day in the life of Charlie Brown and his friends, touching on Valentines and baseball and ranging from wild optimism to the depths of despair. It will star Tom Francis as Charlie Brown, Bruce Ford as Snoopy, T.H. Maynor as Schroder, John Hardwick as Linus, Sarah Watkins as Lucy and Terri Eoff as Patti.

Michael Christofer's "The Shadow Box," winner of both the Pulitzer Prize and the Tony Award as best play, is a celebration of life among people who come to grips with the realities of life and death. It tells the stories of three terminally ill patients living in cottages on the ground of a hospital, being visited and cared for by families and friends. The cast includes Vanessa Hill as the interviewer, Sam Thompson as Joe, Regan Kimmell as Brian, Ramona Peebles as Felicity, Deborah Bigness as Maggie, David Graham as Steve, Paul Prece as Mark, Jane Burgess as Beverly and Sandy Woolery as Agnes.

"Company" is a musical with music and lyrics by multiple Tony Award winner Stephen Sondheim. It tells the story of Robert, a bachelor trying to decide between single and married life while coping with the matchmaking of married friends. The cast includes Kent Kirkpatrick as Robert, Katherine Massello as Sarah, Pat Remmert as Harry, Cathy Watson as Susan, Tony Mitchell as Peter, Paula Parks as Jenny, Mark Walters as David, Heather Hollingsworth as Amy, John Carney as Paul, Julie McQuain as Joanne, David Morrow as Larry, Kim Murchison as Marta, Nancy Holt as Kathy and Mary Margaret Pyeat as April.

Circus Coming To Town In July!

The Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey Circus will perform at 8 p.m. July 13; 11 a.m., 3 and 8 p.m. on July 14; and 1:30 and 5:30 p.m. on July 15 at the Lubbock Coliseum. Tickets go on sale Monday at both the Coliseum box office and Furr's Family Center.

This 108th edition of the famed circus features dozens of electrifying acts from around the world, 16 new presentations and a star-studded roster of performers including acclaimed cat master Charly Baumann.

Baumann's act involves 15 Royal Bengal and Siberian tigers and, for the first time ever, a six tiger roll over.

Brazil's Urias Troup will make its American debut with a "Globe Of Death" performance involving unbelievable 360-degree loops as daring motorcycle madmen. The circus will also offer the Koudovi Troup, high wire artists from Bulgaria; The Flying Gaonas, winners of the Golden Crown award at the International Circus Festival in Monte Carlo; the King Charles Troup, a veteran basketball-unicycle hijinks show; and the world's largest Clown Corps.

Aerialist Tito Gaona will perform with CIRCUS at Coliseum

By DOUG PULLEN
A-J Rock Correspondent

David Bowie prides himself on being different. And why not? He's built an entire career in music around it. He has often been likened to a chameleon, changing musical styles as quickly, defensively and as often as the creature alters colors.

The description is a bit old, perhaps, but is fitting when applied to David Bowie. Fitting, that is, until the release of Bowie's newest album, "Lodger" (RCA). The album is the final installment of a trilogy of collaborations between Bowie, most noted for his singing and songwriting, and Brian Eno, famous for his keyboard texturalism and obscure, but practical, philosophies.

"Lodger" is, in many ways, the most esoteric of the three one-word titled albums the duo has released together under Bowie's auspices. "Low" was about the depression Bowie experienced when he finally disowned a musical career that depended largely on the characters Bowie created and assumed for his albums (i.e. Ziggy Stardust and the Thin White Duke). "Heroes" further elaborated upon this concept as Bowie melded remnants of his many characterizations into a new, more futuristic musical framework. That structure was advanced in large part by Bowie's willingness to experiment within new musical contexts, namely the electronic-progressive vein, and his enthusiastic acceptance of Eno's and guitarist Robert Fripp's not-so-commercial ideas.

"Lodger" brings Bowie's recent changes into focus. The 10 songs included on the album express an inherent paranoia in the singer, a paranoia which stems in part from the frequent traveling he does when he's not recording or touring. Several of the album's titles reflect this cross-continent motif, songs such as "African Night Flight," "Move On," "Red Sails" and "Look Back In Anger."

But don't take this inclusion to mean that Bowie is offering an international travelogue with his new album. Quite the contrary, Bowie is using his recent travels to Turkey, the Orient and Arabic countries as background for his ideas on life's fascination and relative insignificance. "Lodger" is an album about fear and pain, yet it is sung with warmth and passion, thus Bowie's extensive use of different voices and tones within the album's structure.

"African Night Flight" is perhaps the most esoteric of the new songs. Eno builds a synthetic wall of jungleland sounds and menaces as Bowie rapidly repeats his tense lyrics. The song is not only about Bowie's fear of flying, but about his fear of death as well. "Struggle with a child whose screaming dreaming, drowned by the props all steely sunshine," he sings of his aerodynamic fears.

"Yassassin" is another interesting cut which, like "Night Flight," displays features of the land about which the setting is based. "Yassassin" is a term of Turkish derivation which means "long live," according to Bowie's liner notes. Bowie humbles himself in this track, observing "Just a working man, no judge of men" as if his profession had no bearing upon man's literary interpretation of his world.

It is evident from that and other songs that Bowie is quite happy with underplaying his role in his music and in his world. He purposely depends on a great deal of musical talent from other people, not so much from his own reservoir, thus the dependence upon Eno for some of songwriting and hard-to-create ambient sounds. The supporting band is basically the same as that which backed him during his 1978 world tour. The only real difference between the band's sound on stage and on record is that the group is much rougher and more monotonal, due in large part to Bowie's and Tony Visconti's deliberate production.

Bowie has become infatuated with the wall-of-sound approach used successfully by some rock 'n' roll bands. The music is much harder to decipher and, if one is to appreciate it, necessitates an almost laborious listening experience for the buyer of Bowie's records. It's not easy to listen to a David Bowie record anymore. The album isn't as cut and dried as say "Ziggy Stardust" or "Aladdin Sane."

This is another technique Bowie has picked up from his oblique friends. And in many instances, it works. But there are times when it doesn't, particularly on "Boys Keep Swinging," the most commercial track on the album and an obvious update on Bowie's near adolescent son Zowie. Bowie applies a thick instrumental mesh (this time with the musicians playing instruments to which they are not accustomed) while he sings in rather syrupy terms about the pleasures of boyhood. Yes, Bowie is prone to nostalgia as much as he is to overdramaticism and sentimentality. It's one of his weaknesses.

Perhaps the strongest cut on "Lodger" is the powerful narrative "Look Back in Anger," which follows another strongly worded statement song, "D.J." "Look Back in Anger" features a simple but driving backbeat which sets the urgent tone for Bowie's inspiring lyrics. Bowie sings the narrative in desperate chunks while he and producer Visconti wail Beatle-like in the background in more anticipatory tones, "waiting so long, I've been waiting so long." The song is a mini-masterpiece for Bowie, the strongest and most swiftly pressing of any on the album.

What hampers "Lodger" is its inconsistency. Bowie has worn his new ideals a bit. The wall-of-sound approach can wear thin if not used effectively. Once the listener has penetrated that wall and can wrap himself in the music, then that music must be able to cover the listener well. Bowie manages this in many instances on "Lodger," but it's those instances where he doesn't, like on "Repitition," an indictment of life's daily improprieties, that make the album such a chore to listen to.

Despite the vagaries of "Lodger," one can't help but enjoy the fact that Bowie seems to be one of the few more popular artists today who is willing to constantly risk his music and his reputation in the name of advancement. Bowie has committed himself to an ethic that allows no laziness or dependence upon a previous formula. The sound is dependent in part upon past work, such is inevitable, but the tone of an album like such a deliberately confusing album as "Lodger" stems from a desire to keep the listener on his toes, rather than on his duff where he can sit back and turn off his thinking capabilities much in the same way a person stops thinking when he watches television.

Bowie does not want that sort of thing associated with his work, not when he puts so much time into properly expressing the thoughts that preoccupy him at any given time period.

"Lodger" is an album about fear, of cultural decay in one breath and physical destruction in another. It is an album about the temporary conditions of our relations, with ourselves and with other people. "Lodger" is a definite advancement for Bowie, one that signals the end of his collaboration with Eno and marks the beginning of a new, more daring David Bowie.

Or, as Bowie sings in "D.J.," his ominous self-criticism: "I am a D.J., I am what I play." It is a long shot from the days when he sang about his ch-ch-changes. But one can bet that Bowie will find a way to again express just how temporary life is.

Airline Film Fees Set

NEW YORK (Special) — Paramount Pictures has established a new feature film exhibition fee structure for airlines to be effective for all pictures available after June 1st, 1979. The announcement wamade by Martin Pollins, Vice President, Post-Theatrical Distribution.

"All Paramount features released after June 1st will be billed at $80 per plight, and dual language flights will be billed at $85," Pollins indicated.

"This modest 6.67% increase in exhibition fees is the first increase in five years," Pollins said. "During the past five years, production and release print costs have risen dramatically."

Paramount's policy, after June 1, will include assumption of all preparation and release print costs including tape duplication and mastering. According to Pollins, this added control by Paramount will insure better quality without regard to format (tape or film).

"Paramount has been a leader in editing films for airline availability and hopes to continue that practice with proper airline support," Pollins stated. He noted that further changes in airline availability and Paramount's fee and print cost policies are presently being studied in light of the industry move toward video projection flights.

Local Thespians Honored At Meet

Harlan Reddell was named best actor in a leading role for "Man Of La Mancha." Sarah Wadkins was named best actress in a leading role, also for "Man Of La Mancha." Supporting awards went to Wayne Jennings and Jane Ann Commings for performances in "Man Of La Mancha" and "The Odd Couple," respectively.

Certificates were awarded the following actors for performances in minor roles: Lillian Dreyer for "Night Must Fall," Terri Lynn Eoff for "Man Of La Mancha," William Nowell in "The Odd Couple" and Vickie Winner in "Never Too Late."

Writer Assigned To Frampton Film

NEW YORK (Special) — Bill Schwartz has been assigned by The Doe Anthony Organization to write an origial screenplay for the first of two films in which Peter Frampton will star for Orion Pictures release through Warner Bros.

The yet untitled comedy-drama concerns a rock star, and while it will include music, it will not be a musical. Production is scheduled for 1979.

Schwartz recently wrote the upcoming NBC-TV television movie, "Marilyn," based upon the life of Marilyn Monroe, and, prior to that, the television feature, "Zuma Beach."

Mankiewicz Inks Warner's Deal

NEW YORK (Special) — Tom Mankiewicz has entered into a non-exclusive pact with Warner Bros. to produce, write and direct two feature motion pictures.

Mankiewicz expects to put his first film, a contemporary love story, before the cameras later this year. He will soon make his headquarters at The Burbank Studios.

Mankiewicz, who most recently served as creative consultant on Warner Bros.' smash boxoffice hit "Superman," is currently finishing work on the remainder of the screenplay for "Superman II."

He recently made his directorial debut on "Hart to Hart," the two-hour ABC television pilot, produced by Spelling-Goldberg and starring Robert Wagner and Stephanie Powers. Mankiewicz also co-authored the "Hart to Hart" teleplay with Sidney Sheldon.

'Golden Years Of Country Music' To Be Staged Here On June 22

The South Plains College production "Golden Years Of Country Music" will be staged at 8:30 p.m. June 22 at Lowry Field, 66th and Avenue P. Tickets are currently on sale at Furr's Family Center, the Texas Tech University Center and Hemphill-Wells at South Plains Mall.

In the event of bad weather, the show will be moved indoors to the Monterey High School Auditorium.

"Golden Years Of Country Music" traces 50 years of country music history with classic hits of the country and bluegrass field. The show features performances by students and faculty with South Plains College's two-year program in country and bluegrass music.

The script was written by Helen Roberts, an SPC assistant professor of speech and drama.

Numbers will include a Carter family medley of "Wildwood Flower," "Keep On The Sunnyside" and "Will The Circle Be Unbroken;" a Bill Monroe medley of "Mule Skinner Blues" and "Orange Blossom Special;" "Tumblin' Tumbleweeds" by the Sons Of The Pioneers; Hank Williams' "Your Cheating Heart;" Elvis Presley's "Love Me Tender;" Johnny Cash's "I Walk The Line;" Merle Haggard's "Mama Tried;" and Waylon Jennings' "Good Hearted Woman."

The cast of "Golden Years" spent three weeks tracking down original recordings to reproduce as closely as possible the original sounds, both in arranging and performance, according to lead guitarist John Hartin.

He said, "We made tapes of the recordings for practice, and cast members spent a lot of time singing with the tape to get that particular feeling. Our research and development of the material was more extensive than it's ever been.

"Plus we have the input of Ed Marsh and Joe Alger, who are both so good on the violin. We now have the Bob Wills sound that was missing in previous shows. We simply didn't have the instrumentation at the time to do it (before). And Joe Alger also plays the auto harp for a Mother Maybelle Carter tune.

"Terry Priebe, a guitarist and singer from Illinois, has a striking physical resemblance to Hank Williams. And the sound is so close you might not be able to tell the difference on a recording. People who saw Hank Williams perform, and a lot of folks did, would really enjoy our recreation of his look and sound."

Cast members for "Golden Years Of Country Music" include Joe Howell, guitar and vocals; Alger on fiddle and auto harp; Leann Kuenstler, vocals and dancer; Dan Hanson, vocals and drums; Priebe, vocals and guitar; Marsh, fiddle, madolin and vocals; Barry Canter, piano and vocals; Tim McCasland, banjo, guitar, lap steel, pedal steel and vocals; Natalie Berryhill, vocals and dancer; Randy Ellis, guitars and vocals; Hartin, electric guitar and vocals; and Scott Yarbrough, dancer.

The concert is being sponsored by the Downtown Kiwanis Club, who have announced, "Proceeds will go to a charity of some kind."

COUNTRY MUSICIANS — Students and faculty members involved with the country music program at South Plains College will perform "Golden Years In Country Music" at 8:30 p.m. June 22 at Lowry Field. Tickets are now on sale at Furr's Family Center and Hemphill Wells at South Plains Mall. The concert is sponsored by the Downtown Kiwanis Club.

NEW COMEDY COMING

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Eileen Brennan, who recently starred in "13 Queens Blvd.," has been signed to a starring role in the new ABC comedy "A New Kind of Family." In the show, premiering in September, two women and their children are forced to share a home when it is accidentally rented to both of them.

Summer Ballet Workshop Set

DALLAS (Special) — The Dallas Ballet will hold its annual summer workshop July 16 through August 11 at its Academy at 3601 Rawlins in Dallas. Intermediate and advanced classes will be offered in ballet, pointe, variations, pas de deux, mime and character. Special master classes will be offered in jazz, modern dance, music and musical comedy.

A faculty of distinguished teachers will conduct the workshop, including George Skibine, Dallas Ballet artistic director; Marjorie Tallchief, assistant director; Elaine Comsudi; Ildiko erjessy; and Karen Travis. Special guest teacher will be Madame Nina Popova, presently on the faculty of the Eglevesky School of Ballet in New York City and formerly artistic director of the Houston Ballet. Prior to that, she was principal teacher at the New York High School of Performing Arts.

All classes will be held at the Dallas Ballet Academy. Room and board facilities will be available at SMU in Dallas for out-of-town students.

Students To Perform At Corpus Christi

Student affiliates of the Lubbock Music Teachers Association will perform Monday in Texas-American Composer and high school ensemble programs for the Texas Music Tecahers Association convention at the La Quinta Royale in Corpus Christi.

Lubbock will be represented by four piano ensemble groups, directed by Mrs. Gerald Harris. Third and fourth grade students will perform "Syncopated Snaps," by Mildred Klein. Fifth and sixth grade students will perform "Four Brazilian Songs," by Mary Verne. Seventh and eighth grade students will perform "Manhattan Rhumba" and "Running Brook," by Marvin Kahn. Students in grades nine through 12 will perform Beethoven's "Sonata In D Major."

Each group will wear costumes depicting the type of music to be performed.

Representation of a local association in the TMTA ensemble program is determined by the total number of students entered in the TMTA Student Affiliate program. With the enrollment of 581 student affiliates, four ensembles from Lubbock became eligible to perform at convention.

The Student Affiliate program was inaugurated in 1951 "to provide for the student a wider musical experience than is usually afforded in private music study."

LUBBOCK REPRESENTATIVES — Student affiliates of the Lubbock Music Teachers Association will perform Monday in Corpus Christi. Lubbock representatives include (clockwise from front) Stephanie Smith, 8, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Smith; Cindy Stephens, 13, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Stephens; Shannon Modawell, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Modawell; and Emily Wey, 11, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wey. Jennings Gets Role In 'Urban Cowboy'

NEW YORK (Special) — Country-western star Waylon Jennings has been signed to an acting and singing role in Paramount Pictures' "Urban Cowboy," starring John Travolta.

"Urban Cowboy" will be filmed as a Robert Evans-Irving Azoff Production with James Bridges directing from a screenplay by Aaron Latham and Bridges, based upon Latham's "Esquire" Magazine cover story, "The Ballad of the Urban Cowboy: America's Search for True Grit." Bob LeMond and Lois Zetter will serve as production consultants, and principal photography is scheduled to begin on June 4th in Houston.

"Urban Cowboy" will be distributed by Paramount Pictures Corporation.

Country Notes

By Bob Campbell

Singers and songwriters get most of the attention in country-western music, and this first in a series of six articles on who some of the best musicians are in Lubbock deals with them.

Bands generally are organized around a lead singer because his ability and taste dictate most of the music the band will play. At the level of nationally touring bands, the lead singer usually is also the chief songwriter and writes much of the original material that the group does.

The two best examples of that are Joe Ely, whose group does what might best be defined as country blues-rock, and Jay Boy Adams, a country rocker whose themes are nevertheless mostly country.

Aside from those two nationally known groups, the Lubbock band doing the most original songs, that I know of, is Free Whiskey, which consists of bassist Jack Tyson, guitarist Cary Banks, drummer Johnny James and steel player Steve Williams.

Judging from the songs I have heard, Banks is the best writer of the three. James and Tyson are both Nashville-quality singers.

Bobby Havens, a singer-guitarist with the Waterhole Number Seven band, is an excellent and prolific songwriter. His "Hey, You" on Cin-Kay Records out of Los Angeles was in the 90s on the Billboard chart early this year, and he has a number of songs stockpiled that are better, I think, than that one.

Banks and Havens are also both expert guitarists.

Another good writer is Waterhole bandleader Larry Kinnie. His group, Country Review, has been playing his "Whiskey Friend" at the 50th Street club for some time and plans to record it soon. He is a good lyricist who tends to work on one song for weeks, if necessary, until he has it perfected.

Kinnie, a 6-foot-2, 290-pound former Murray State College football player, is a distinctive stylist as a singer whose husky-voiced rendition of "Days of Sand and Shovels" is as good as anybody's.

A third member of the Waterhole band, bassist Alvin Trusty, is what is known in the music business as a "pure singer." He sings dead on key in a high, clear voice with a slow vibratto and is also quite distinctive.

Blond-haired Doyle Hoggard, who has been fronting the band at the Honky Tonk nightclub on Avenue H, is a good singer, a powerful, Jerry Reed-style guitar player and, most importantly, a clever and original songwriter.

Known as "The Albino Apache" among Lubbock musicians for his aggressive style, Hoggard wrote "New Mexico," a song that always went over well for Larry Trider when Trider was at the Red Raider Nightclub, and is always writing story songs characterized by sophisticated music because of his guitar expertise and the highly personal country boy outlook he developed while growing up at Smyer.

Red Raider bandleader Chuck Cusimano is a classy, Lefty Frizzell-Merle Haggard-Johnny Rodriguez-style singer who has written some good songs about life as a rodeo cowboy — probably because he used to be one.

One of the most likeable musicians in Lubbock is also one of the best: Kenny Maines of The Maines Brothers, who play every Sunday night at the Red Raider. Kenny wrote "Time For One More Song," the B side of "Gypsy Eyes," and has been working on a release of his own for national promotion by Don Caldwell and Larry Corbin of Texas Soul Records out of Lubbock.

David House is a good writer who has released two singles on Texas Soul but rarely performs in public.

Barbara Raines came here from Abilene to play bass and sing with Cusimano when Trider left the Red Raider a few months ago and club owner Bob Meyer called Cusimano in Nashville, where Cusimano had gone to pitch his songs after quitting at the Honky Tonk, and made him an offer he couldn't refuse.

Barbara is an accomplished bassist but is especially gifted as a singer. Like most commercially viable women singers, she is an alto, and she especially likes country blues.

Bobby Albright, bandleader at the Westwind club, is a good writer and an expert singer. Perhaps because of his background as a bass player, Albright sings with incredible timing. He is able to do any song, even "Cheatin' Heart," in his original style and make it sound right.

Arlie McCowan, better known as "Arlie Mac," is a writer-singer who worked most of the past year with Outlaw Express for drummer and bandleader Gerald Umstead and with the Applecreek Band with bandleader-guitarist Mel Way.

Arlie Mac is probably the best showman in town and a writer who has made his "Smoke and Haze" well known around Lubbock and the area. He is also a powerful singer who used to hold 1,000 and 1,500 persons still at Cold Water Country with "Wildfire" and other good "show" songs when he was with Outlaw Express.

I have to mention the two principals in the highest-charting song to come out of Lubbock in recent years: writer Eugene Smith and singer Terri Sue Newman, who collaborated on "Gypsy Eyes" for Caldwell and Corbin.

The song reached the 40s in Billboard with Terri Sue, perhaps the purest pure singer in town, and Smith, who used to be an Avalanche-Journal reporter.

There are other notable writers and singers here that I either forgot to mention or have not met, I'm sure. I purposely deleted several good ones about whom I have written recently — Nowlin Tubbs and Ron Riley, to mention two — to save space. I kept the discussion mostly to professional musicians because, in my mind, the ability to earn a living in music is the best gauge of the talent and courage required to be a good musician.

"Country Notes" next week will be about bass players and their importance in country music bands.

LEADER OF THE BAND — Danny Davis will bring his Nashville Brass to the Lubbock Civic Center June 23 as part of the Lubbock Symphony Orchestra's Summer Pops festivities. Davis, who last played in Lubbock at the South Plains Fair, has seen his group honored six years in a row as "best instrumental group" by the Country Music Association. A buffet dinner will be served from 7 to 8 p.m., with the concert slated to begin at 8:30 p.m. There will be a cash bar. For details concerning prices and reservations, call 762-0339. Hollywood Going Gas-Less For Premiere

BURBANK, Calif. (Special) — "The Main Event" will take a unique route to the center ring in Los Angeles June 20, via the first gas-less premiere in Hollywood history, with Barbra Streisand and Ryan O'Neal heading an intrepid host of 1,500 ingenuous entertainment industry celebrities attending the gala affair at Mann's Chinese Theatre in Hollywood for the benefit of Sugar Ray's Youth Foundation.

The premiere's celebrated guests will be asked to leave the relative security of their modest mansions in such outlying districts as Beverly Hills, Bel Air, Brentwood and Marina Del Rey and, in formal attire, venture forth by any gas-less means that come to their inventive minds — including roller skates, bicycles, golf carts, skateboards, horse-drawn surreys, electric cars, ponies and baby elephants — to be personally greeted upon arrival by a master of ceremonies in the center of a boxing ring strategically placed in the famed forecourt of the historic movie palace.

Appropriate prizes will be awarded for the most innovative means of gas-less travel used.

"In recognition of the severe strain placed upon our fellow Southern Californians by the continuing gasoline crunch, we felt it only right that we do what little we can to protect their precious lifestyle and the diminishing means available to give it drive on the weekend following the gala opening of our movie," producer Jon Peters declared.

If necessary, specially-chartered mass transportation facilities will be made available for those guests not sufficiently agile to use the less conventional means of travel we desire, Peters added, noting that this service was being provided in keeping with the spirit of the gas-saving event.

Joining Streisand, O'Neal and Peters at this unique send-off for their romantic comedy will be its director Howard Zieff and the composer of its music, Paul Jabara, stars from every phase of show business, including film, television, the recording industry, nightclubs and theatre, and the leading lights from the world of championship pugilism, including Sugar Ray Robinson, head of the foundation providing recreational facilities for disadvantaged children in the Southern California area.

"The Main Event" is the wacky tale of a successful lady perfume manufacturer who finds herself without any tangible assets, except for a retired prize-fighter, who she decides — against his never-ending objections — to manage back into championship contention.

Starring Barbra Streisand and Ryan O'Neal, the Jon Peters Production of a Barwood Film was produced by Peters and Streisand and directed by Howard Zieff from a screenplay by Gail Parent and Andrew Smith.

O'TOOLE, STRAUSS IN 'MASADA'

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Peter O'Toole and Peter Strauss will head an international cast in the miniseries "Masada," which will air on ABC next April. The $18 million production will be filmed on location in Israel, where 960 Judeans staged a three-year rebellion against an enslaving Roman army in the First Century at Masada. O'Toole will play Silva, the leader of the Roman army, and Strauss will play Eleazar, leader of the Judeans.

String Quartet Finale Set

The Summer String Quartet Program's final concert will take place at 7 p.m. Friday at the Texas Tech University Recital Hall. There is no admission charge.

The concert will consist of pieces by Mozart, Mendelssohn, Haydn and Tchaikovsky.

The Summer String Quartet Program is composed of 12 high school students chosen by audition, then separated into three quartets. Quartet I is Nancy Huenergardt, first violin; Tad Sinclair, second violin; Jamie Fashing, viola; and Henry Li, violoncello. Quartet II is Jan Marvin, first violin; Nirmal Jayaseelan, second violin; Pat Jordan, viola; and Julie Goldstein, violoncello. Quartet III is Graciela Perez, first violin; John Herzer, second violin; Mike Gelinas, viola; and Beth Myrick, violoncello.

PANOV BALLET

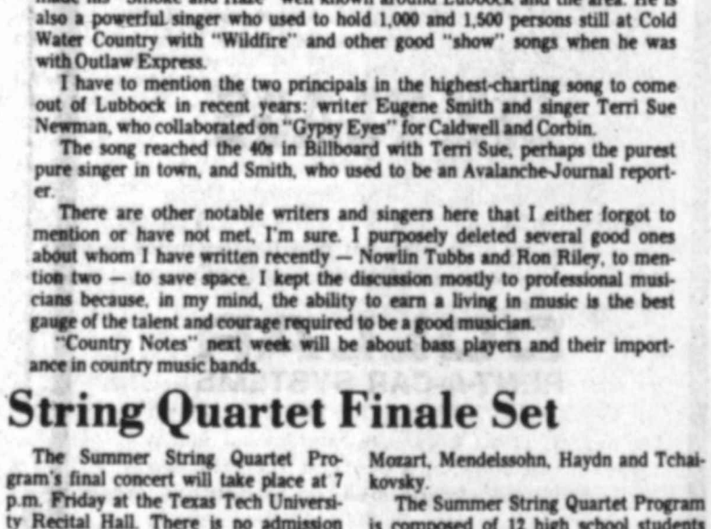

BERLIN (UPI) — The world premiere of a new full-length ballet by former Soviet star Valery Panov, based on Dostoyevsky's "The Idiot," will be staged by the Berlin Opera Ballet June 25. The music is an arrangement of various works by Dmitri Shostakovich. Panov will alternate in the roles of Prince Mishkin and Rogozhin, while his wife Galina Panova will alternate as Agleia with Dianne Bell.

MGM First With Captioned 'Voices'

LOVE IS DEAF? — Drew (Michael Ontkean), right, tries to communicate with a beautiful deaf girl played by Amy Irving in the MGM release called "Voices." The love story also stars Alex Rocco and is currently playing at Showplace Six in Lubbock.

CULVER CITY, Calif. (Special) — Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer became the first motion picture studio to present a captioned film for commercial showing to deaf and hearing-impaired moviegoers when its widely acclaimed film, "Voices," openedcitywide May 25 in the San Francisco-Oakland area.

The captioned print of "Voices," a romantic film about an aspiring young rock singer (Michael Ontkean) and a beautiful deaf teacher (Amy Irving), is being shown at the Serramonte 6 Theatre in Colma, a San Francisco suburb. Regular, non-captioned prints will be used at the other Bay Area theatres. Advertisements for the multiple engagement call attention to the showing of the special captioned print at the Serramonte.

For many years MGM and other film companies have provided motion picture entertainment for the deaf via participation in the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare's Captioned Print Program. Through normal procedure, captioned prints are turned over to HEW within 12 to 18 months after the commercial release of a motion picture for special non-theatrical showings.

Miss Irving, who has been singled out by numerous film reviewers and leaders within the deaf community for her sensitive and accurate portrayal of a deaf person, prepared for her role in "Voices" by studying with Prof. Martin Sternberg of New York University. Prof. Sternberg, who is deaf, also guided Anne Bancroft with her portrayal in "The Miracle Worker."

"Voices," which is now playing at Showplace Six in Lubbock, stars Michael Ontkean, Amy Irving and Alex Rocco. The film was produced by Joe Wizan and directed by Robert Markowitz from an original screenplay by John Herzfeld, with songs and score by Jimmy Webb.

New Dates Set For Competition

FORT WORTH (Special) — The Van Cliburn Foundation has announced revised dates for the Sixth Van Cliburn International Quadrennial Piano Competition. The competition will be held in Fort Worth May 17-31, 1981.

The date has been changed from September to May in order to accommodate major international competition schedules. The spring date offers many advantages to people involved in the competition at every level: contestants, distinguished jurors, the wide range of volunteer participants and the music-loving community of Fort Worth.

The foundation also announces the appointment of Lewis Kornfeld as vice-chairman. Mr. Kornfeld is president of Radio Shack and executive vice-president of the Tandy Corporation.

Entry Date For Exhibit Set

Region 20 Chapter of the Texas Fine Arts Association, in cooperation with the Lubbock Art Association, has set September 4 as the entry date for the 1977Fall Regional Citation Exhibit at the Garden & Arts Center.

Members of the association may enter three works of art in any media from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. that day. There is an entry fee. The work will be jurored September 5 by Gary Myers of Ruidosa, N.M.

Myers will select which winners receive citations and go on to Austin, and which will be designated for local and area circuits.

'Superman' Soars To New Heights

BURBANK, Calif. (Special) — "Superman" has soared so high that it is now the biggest grossing motion picture in Warner Bros.' history in terms of domestic film rentals posted on original release — with billings, as of April 21, of $68,102,354.

Clint Eastwood's "Every Which Way But Loose" has taken over third place in Warner's list of all-time money-makers, with domestic rentals, as of April 21, of $41,806,438.

The Man of Steel's muscle thus topples the previous Warner Bros. record holder, "The Exorcist," which amassed domestic film rentals of $66,715,122 on its initial release. As of now, in its third re-release, "The Exorcist" has total film rentals of $82,832,645.

WOULD YOU BELIEVE DOG FOOD COMMERCIALS? — Something on the television set has this group of canines enthralled, but they won't stay entertained for long. Villains are about to invade the household and kidnap (dognap?) the puppies. All of this is action from the Walt Disney animated feature length production of "101 Dalmations," a delightful family comedy now enjoying a national re-release and playing locally at the Cinema West. The picture is rated G. Call the theater box office for prices and show times.

Newcomers Hit Paydirt

By BRUCE MEYER
United Press International

The "overnight sensation" was once a rarity in rock 'n' roll.

Talented new bands and artists faced years of spirit-numbing work, in the recording studio and on the road, before they could hope to gain even a taste of the rewards enjoyed by the superstars.

But the system seems to be changing. Over the past couple of years, we have seen an increasing number of bands whose debut albums leap up the sales charts with amazing speed. Boston's first record sold five million copies. Foreigner's debut sold three million.

Now we have Toto, six young West Coast musicians whose first album, "Toto" (Columbia), has already achieved "platinum" status for sales of one million copies, largely because of a powerhouse hit single, "Hold the Line." A second single, "I'll Supply the Love," should spark even more album sales.

It all came so fast, even the band was surprised.

"Things have been happening really quick for us," says drummer Jeff Porcaro, who organized the band with keyboardsman-arranger David Paich. "We didn't expect to be doing so well this soon."

Toto's average age is about 22, but young as they are, these players are studio veterans. Individually they have worked for many top artists, from Boz Scaggs and Alice Cooper to Steely Dan and Barbra Streisand. So they knew what they were doing before the tape started rolling.

"We've all been on platinum albums before, for other people," says Paich. "But we've also been on albums we thought were going to go big and they just fell away. So making a record is a little like throwing dice. We thought we had something good, but we were still throwing the dice. Fortunately, the dice came up seven."

Ironically, the studio background and versatile musicianship that helped Toto become an instant recording success has hampered the band's development as a performing unit. In the hard-knocks school of the studio, they learned to play in a variety of styles, competently and dispassionately interpreting others' music.

But performing live is an entirely different thing. Toto is now faced with the need to create an honest musical rapport with an audience and to relate to one another not as an assemblage of independent musicians, but as a team. And so far, though the playing is flawless, Toto's onstage efforts leave a bit to be desired.

Altman To Direct 'Popeye'

NEW YORK (Special) — Robert Altman has been signed to direct "Popeye" for Paramount Pictures. Robin Williams stars in the title role in the Robert Evans Production.

The assignment marks Altman's first film for Paramount since 1975 when he directed "Nashville," a film which won best picture of the year honors from the New York Film Critics. Among Altman's other notable directorial achievements are "M*A*S*H," "McCabe & Mrs. Miller," "3 Women" and "A Wedding." He is currently represented by "A Perfect Couple" and "Quintet."

"Popeye," which will commence principal photography next January, has a screenplay by Jules Feiffer, based upon the well known comic stripcharacter.

"Popeye" will be distributed in the United States and Canada by Paramount Pictures Corporation.

CORALS ARE ANIMALS

Although they often resemble flowers, precious corals are scientifically classified as animals, says National Geographic. These polyps reproduce to form extensive colonies, building upward upon their own skeletons.

ART TALK: By La Wanda Murfee

In some galleries and larger art shows, artists who have achieved professional designations are recognized by letters following their signatures on works on works of art. It is sometimes confusing to the layman who finds the letters NA, ANA, AW or others.

The first group of letters signify membership in the National Academy in New York, the oldest association of artists in America. There are only 250 memberships which are granted for life. The artist is privileged to publish his name followed by 'NA,' meaning National Academecian. An unlimited number of associate memberships, 'ANA', are awarded annually, chosen by a panel from the original group. When death intervenes among the 'NA's,' an 'ANA' is voted into full membership. !

The designation 'ANA' is difficult to attain. After many years of accomplishment and awards in the annual national exhibit, a jury panel selects the recepients. The National Academy recognizes only the realist artists: painters in oil and watercolor, printmakers and sculptors.

The National Academy was established 150 years ago for the education of artists desiring a career in art. Acceptance into its educational program at the National Academy of Design has also been limited. The governing boards have been unswaveringly reluctant to recognize any form of contemporary interpretations. The group holds to the criteria of excellence in production of realist work.

From its inception the membership in the National Academy has read like a 'who's who' of American artists, such as S.F.B. Morse, the founder, as well as Sargeant, Audubon and Remington.

The letters, signify membership in American Watercolor Society. Each spring in New York, they conduct the most prestigious of watercolor shows. New artists are recognized every year, but only after many acceptances is the designation awarded. This group offers no educational program. The membership is made up of predominately professional artists and instructors. The juries accept water based two dimensional media in their shows.

Smaller groups are now granting designations such as 'TCA,' Texas Cowboy Artist; 'CAA,' Cowboy Artists of America. Membership is attained after exhibiting with the group several times. Most states also sponsor societies of watercolorists; however, seemingly few people use the designations awarded by them.

As in other fields the various designations are generally considered as marks of excellence providing the public as well as other professionals a quality recognition.

Yamaha Music Students Set For Recital

Almost 100 students of the Yamaha Music School will be presented in recital at 7 p.m. Saturday at the Garden & Arts Center, 4215 University.

Students between the ages of 4 and 8 will perform group keyboard selections and instrumental ensemble numbers.

Ten children will perform their own piano compositions. These children were selected as winners of the com-composition concert sponsored by the Yamaha Music School. They are Curt Christenson, Elisa Ewing, Robyn Scott, Tamera Bowen, Kimberly Murray, Geton Hathaway, Katie Word, Chris Carney, Marlan Thomas and Ryan Henry.

Forecasting With No Cost, Just Little Time

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following is the seventeenth article in the continuing series entitled "The Business Indicator," written by John T. Sennetti of the College of Business Administration at Texas Tech University. These articles discuss statistics used in business forecasting and will be published on the second Sunday of every month. Dr. Sennetti also is a columnist for Texas Business Magazine.)

By JOHN T. SENNETTI

That new hamburger franchise or bank building going up near your neighborhood was constructed because someone read charts similar to those kept by the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce.

Through a joint effort of the Lubbock Economics Council and the Chamber, a publication of Lubbock's financial, retailing, industrial, commercial and general economic charts for the periods 1968-1977 is now available. Additional updates to May 1979, can also be had.

These charts are the waves of present and future business activity swelling close to your front door. For example, a coincident measure of strong trade is the number of help wanted ads, which are usually high when business conditions are very good. Recent national and local peaks in help wanted ads have signaled an upcoming recession. Such want-ad peaks then, also serve as leading indicators to down turns.

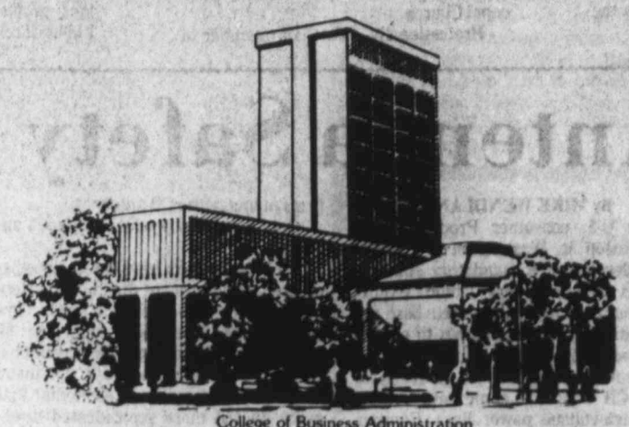

Next, the chart of retail sales (subject to tax) measures the coincident measure of consumer buying. Adjusted for inflation this chart gives some idea of business volume. Lubbock had a first ever decline in late 1978. The Spring reports in retailing will be completed very soon.

The non-residential construction charts reflect on going mortgage and interest rates, influence strongly employment activity, and serve as a basis for future business growth. In 1979 Lubbock's construction has declined over 12 percent to date.

One generally accepted leader of declines in business activity is the new residential building permits series. Because of interest rates and consumer buying patterns, these housing permits usually peak twelve to fifteen months before national U.S. recessions.

However, Lubbock's new housing starts, way down from 1977 or '78, reflect current mortgage funds and rates and show little about retailing, since Lubbock serves as a retail center in the South Plains.

Peaks in national retail sales (1972 dollars) have also lead national industrial declines since 1965. However, Lubbock's peaks are dependent more on regional farming business cycles, and downturns.

College of Business Administration
Texas Tech University

Periods following the end of such recessions are usually characterized by increasing unemployment rates. Lubbock is recording an increase in such rates and can expect more later this year. However, Lubbock's high unemployment rates are usually close to national lows, near six percent.

As the nation passes through financial and economic cycles so do most of transactions within Lubbock's community. The charts published by the Chamber help monitor its many economic pulses, but don't be swayed by one chart, or for that matter, one industry. Other cities serve as illustrations.

El Paso's income, for example, is steadily increasing from its manufacturing operations. After a slowdown in the textile works back in 1973, El Paso campaigned successfully for a return of small manufacturing industries. And the twin plant concept doesn't hurt either. With Chrysler and General Motors and 92 other companies building plants in Juarez, El Paso has gained from technological plants built on the American side. This is one reason for the rise in El Paso's commercial construction charts. Also, the new employees of Juarez shop in El Paso. So these new plants have some influence on El Paso's sales charts, in addition to its construction charts.

In a similar way, Lubbock's portfolio of income sources include state revenues from the new buildings of Texas Tech and its Medical School, not to mention steady staff and faculty salaries. This income and that provided by its manufacturing operations, such as the Texas Instrument's consumer products plants and others, provide for Lubbock's gain when national inflation moderates and the U.S. economy snaps back.

So it's not best to forecast Lubbock's community's future with only one chart or industry. Or for that matter, one rumor. Because its aggressive recruiting of outside firms, Lubbock's Chamber may abound with rumors of incoming industries that have future effects on local trade.

Although 1979 looks like a recession year, afterwards, in 1980, rumors that some new franchise or industry will soon open near your house will certainly reveal itself in rising price expectations in the value of your home (and its taxes).

However, you can only be sure of these events after they have been recorded as happened. And some reasons for them happening or not happening are in the numbers and charts of your local Chamber of Commerce. Perry Gott, Manager of Special Services, recommends that interested parties visit the Chamber at 14th and K.

Jo-Ann Fabrics Opens New City Store In Mall

Jo-Ann Fabrics, owned and operated by Cleveland-based FabriCenters of America Inc., has announced plans to open a new store at the South Plains Mall.

Jo-Ann Fabrics is one of the country's largest retail fabric chains, with over 450 locations in 26 states.

The new South Plains Mall store will be one of the most complete fabric stores in the city, carrying thousands of yards of the latest first-quality fabrics selected especially for today's fashion-conscious shopper, according to the firm.

The convenient, one-stop sewing center will stock the most up-to-date sewing accessories and notions, as well as a large selection of patterns from such leading pattern companies as Vogue, Simplicity, Butterick and McCalls. In addition, the new Jo-Ann Fabric Shop will feature special home decorating fabrics for the do-it-yourself home decorator.

"Mass buying power enables Jo-Ann Fabrics to serve the customer better, and the new South Plains Mall Jo-Ann Fabric Shop will stock only the latest fashion fabrics and notions at the lowest possible price, the company said.

"The entire staff of the new Jo-Ann Fabrics are skilled sewing professionals, capable of assisting the experienced sewer as well as the novice, with fashion and decorator projects," according to the company.

City Permit Totals Dip

The Lubbock Building Inspection Department has issued permits for $894,070 for future construction projects, with $874,470 of that amount scheduled to be spent by contractors on single-family home construction.

First Manufactured Homes will build four new units at costs estimated at $34,250 each. Locations are: 9408 Canton; 9407 Canton; 2807 94th St.; and 2805 94th St.

C. T. Walden plans new houses at 4808 and 4902 79th St. at costs of $65,000 each.

Other single-family homes, with estimated costs and contractors, include: 5707 71st St., $60,000, Burl Kizer Construction; 8418 Wayne Ave., $97,500, Webb Construction Co.; 5213 93rd St., $48,850, Ron Shuffield; 5914 14th St., $46,000, C. W. Turner; 3520 96th St., $80,000, Carl Ballard; 5211 91st St., $52,750, Stanley Angelley; 5405 83rd St., $75,000, Ronald Gamache; 4605 Harvard, $32,000, Al Williford.

FIRST POSTAGE STAMP

NEW YORK (UPI) — Great Britain's Sir Rowland Hill conceived and designed the first postage stamp, known as the "Penny Black," portraying an exquisite profile of then young Queen Victoria in 1840. Since then, according to Alain de Cadenet, here on a good will tour for the British Post Office, the portrait or profile of a monarch has served to identify the nation's stamps except in the case of special commemoratives.

Resthaven Operations Under One Ownership

Roy L. Ward, executive vice president of Resthaven of Lubbock Inc., has announced the recent purchase and addition of Resthaven Funeral Home to be a part of that company's operations.

Ward said, "For the first time in 10 years, both the cemetery and funeral home operations will be under one common ownership and management. It is our belief that we can now offer to all the people of Lubbock and West Texas the finest funeral and burial services available."

Resthaven was begun as a cemetery in 1948 and in 1965 the funeral home was added. Extensive plans for renovation are being worked on in order to continue the finest quality of service that has been a part of Resthaven's tradition since its establishment, according to the company.

Ward also announced that Sam Crow will be funeral director in charge of funeral home operations. "Mr. Crow is well known throughout Lubbock and West Texas for his excellent reputation as not only a funeral director, but as an involved citizen in Lubbock community affairs," Ward said.

Crow is a native of Lamesa, attended Texas Tech and Hardin Simmons Universities, graduated from Dallas School of Mortuary Science and has lived in Lubbock since 1960. He has been very involved in community affairs, having served as chairman of Miss Lubbock pageant for five years, member of the Chamber of Commerce, of the Navy League, the YMCA, West Texas Ranching Heritage Center and St. Paul's Episcopal Church.

Professionally, Crow is a member of the National Funeral Director's Association, Texas Funeral Director's Association and has served as an officer and member of the board of directors for the Panhandle Funeral Directors Association. He is married to Sara Victory Crow. They have two children and reside at 3317 23rd St.

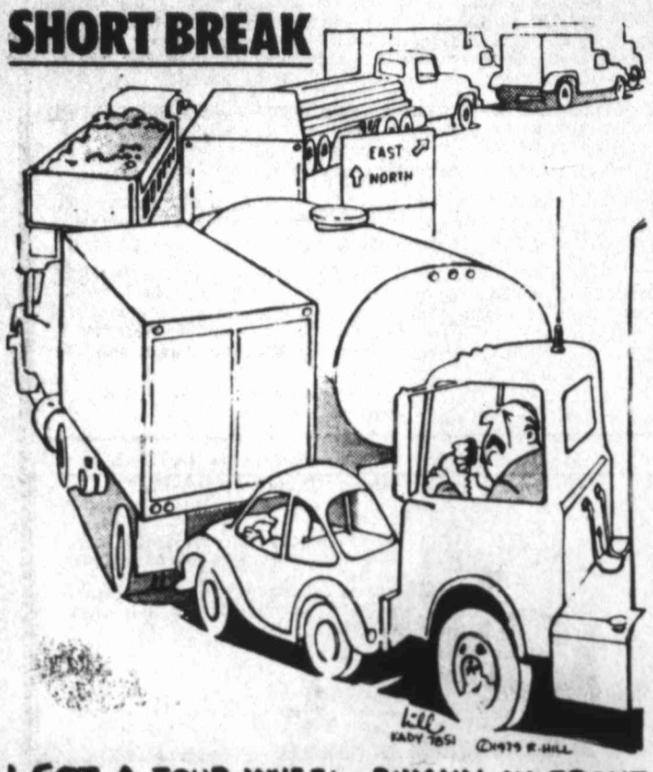

Ward said, "Our company is pleased to have the funeral home as a vital part of our operation and to have Sam Crow in charge of its service."

Resthaven of Lubbock Inc. is the parent corporation for the operation of three cemeteries and two funeral homes within the state of Texas. A separate division of the Lubbock company is Resthaven Lawn Care Service, which provides professional lawn care for many Lubbock residents.

Antenna Safety Rules Mapped

By MIKE WENDLAND

The U.S. consumer Product Safety Commission in Washington is hard at work developing a mandatory standard for CB antennas that would require manufacturers to insulate their base station omnidirectional antennas to protect consumers from electrocution.

About 200 people die every year when CB antennas come into contact with high-voltage power lines. Communication antennas are the No. 1 cause of electrocutions among all consumer products, notes the commission.

The commission, recently empowered by Congress to enact its own safety standards, decided to develop the guidelines after conducting 78 in-depth investigations of accidents involving communication antenna contact with outside power lines.

All of the accidents occurred while the antennas were being erected or taken down. In the 78 cases investigated, 86 people died and 61 were seriously injured.

The commission is unsure what standards to enact, though insiders say insulation will be a major part of any safety standards. At present, about 60 firms manufacture CB antennas.

Only a handful produce insulated antennas.

To be exempted from the soon-to-be-ordered guidelines are directional antennas such as beams or cubical quads. Omnidirectional antennas account for 85 percent of all CB antenna electrocutions. Besides, the commission says, the many horizontal and vertical elements that make up the more sophisticated directional antennas require additional technical analysis.

The planned mandatory safety standards will mark the second time the commission has issued regulations affecting CB antennas. Last September, the safety group ordered antenna manufacturers to attach warning labels to their CB antennas alerting consumers to potential electrocution hazards.

Antenna manufacturers are also required to provide written instructions on how to install antennas safely.

Those tips include advice about never attempting to install an antenna without adequate help and properly guying or providing adequate structural support for the antenna.

Q: I have no problems with ignition noise on receive. Instead, I'm told that I transmit popping and whirring noises when I key down my transceiver. What can I do to correct this? D.H., Roanoke, Va.

A: Try making your transceiver's power connection directly to the battery, instead of the fuse box underneath the dash. And use heavy wire, rated to handle at least 15 volts.

CB Static: Readers Air Gripes

Dear Mike: Tell your CB readers who might be curious about amateur radio that the weekend of June 23-24 is the time to satisfy that curiosity. That's the annual ham radio Field Day weekend, the 24-hour contest that sends thousands of hams to the countryside in a fun attempt at emergency-style communications. Using electric generators and batteries, hams will fill the airwaves with radio signals in an effort to ses who can set up the best outdoor system. CBers who want to observe should contact their local ham club or radio supply store for details on where and when—N.R., Denver, Col.

• • •

Dear CB Static: I wish people would stop bad-mouthing CB. It really is getting better. I think the novelty has worn off and people look at it as a driving aid now, instead of a toy—R.Y., Memphis, Tenn.

• • •

Dear Mr. Wendland: I'm a new ham operator and like many, many others, I got involved in ham radio because of CB. Yet all I hear are the old-time hams talking down about CBers. I bet if amateurs really knew how much CB helped ham radio, they'd sound a different tune. If it wasn't for CB, ham radio would be stagnant. Instead, it's alive and growing—N.S., Linwood, Mich.

The Voice of Business

By RICHARD L. LESHER
President, U.S. Chamber Of Commerce

WASHINGTON — While Alice, the lovely young heroine of "Alice's Adventures in Wonderland," and "Through the Looking Glass," was walking through a magical forest, she chanced upon a grumpy, egg-like character named Humpty Dumpty. The two immediately began discussing the meaning of words.

"When I use a word," Humpty Dumpty said, in rather a scornful tone, "it means just what I choose it to mean —neither more nor less."

"The question is," said Alice, "whether you can make words mean so many different things."

Alice, of course, quickly learned that you can, and this puzzled and unsettled her. During her seven short years she had come to believe a word has a strength and integrity of its own. She could rely on it. But now, Humpty Dumpty had jolted her into realizing that what often determines meaning is not the word itself, but the people using it, and their cleverness in manipulating it.

I cite Alice's experience because it applies to us. It helps explain the growing frustration so many Americans feel toward the federal government—a frustration leading to an erosion of credibility. Today, more and more, Americans distrust what they hear from Washington because they sense the words are being manipulated; they sense the truth is being manipulated and they know they are being manipulated. Consider a few examples.

The Davis-Bacon Act, which stipulates that the prevailing wage of a local area must be paid on all federally funded construction projects, has been roundly denounced for unrealistically and arbitrarily jacking up the costs of construction. The General Accounting Office (GAO), the independent and respected congressional oversight agency, conducted nine separate studies over 20 years which concluded: Davis-Bacon is poorly administered; it adds hundreds of millions of dollars to construction costs and it adds to the rate of inflation. GAO now recommends Davis-Bacon be repealed.

GAO released some truly shocking evidence. It found that wage data collected by the Department of Labor was not used or was "deleted, added and changed...without adequate reason or rationale." GAO found that Labor's comments on its study were mostly "misleading, inaccurate, taken out of context, unsupported, and often did not reflect the information in its files." In essence, it found manipulation of words, facts and people.

Happily, the Department of Labor has just released a study of its own which should make everyone feel a lot better. It seems that the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA), which has been widely criticized as one of the most demonstrably corrupt of all federal programs, has actually been the very model of efficiency all along. Surprise!

Silly me. Here I was, genuinely concerned to read CETA might be subsidizing four existing jobs for each new job it creates...frankly distrubed by a GAO study showing that the $755 million summer jobs program within CETA last year provided meaningful work training for less than a third of all youngsters who participated...and really alarmed to hear that millions of dollars are being administered by CETA in prisons to murderers, rapists, and armed robbers—prisoners ineligible for parole for many years. You can imagine my relief upon learning an exhaustive five-year Labor Department audit suggests less than one percent of CETA money has been "misspent."

The manipulation of words goes to the highest levels of government. Stung by its inability to control inflation, the Administration has taken to bragging it has slashed the deficit in half. We're supposed to believe that's due to an "austere" budget. Sorry, federal spending has ballooned by almost 25 percent in just the past two years. The decisive words are always left unsaid. The deficit went down last year because inflation pushed your taxes up-an average of $1,000 per household, and a record for any four-quarter period.

This is a dangerous game; we can no longer afford to abuse words. Should people conclude Washington is not serious, that the fight against inflation is empty rhetoric, they will understandably rush to protect themselves and buy now rather than later.

That will make inflation worse. It will feed upon itself and our nation will risk a terrible economic break-down. And if that ever happens, no amount of speeches, promises or men, will quickly succeed in putting our economy back on its feet again.

OPENING CLOSED DOORS

BARTLESVILLE, Okla. (UPI) — A major handicap in the search for oil and minerals has been the essential, massive equipment that is difficult to transport and use in inaccessible terrain. A new portable, battery-powered geophysical data collection system called Opseis 5500 has been developed by Applied Automation. Weighing less than 40 pounds, the units can be carried on a man's back to search unexplored regions to discover new oil, gas and mineral riches.

Don Crow Celebrating 50th Year Of Business

The dealership, which began in 1929 at Abernathy, moved to Slaton in 1937 and was there until 1968 when it moved to its present location at 5211 SW Loop 289.

Don Crow's building, which contains 60,000 square feet of floor space, is situated on a 10-acre tract. The company employs 85 persons and has an annual payroll of $650,000.

The dealership's founder retired in 1958 and currently is living at Junction.

Don Crow Sr., a 1950 graduate of Texas Tech, recalls that his first car sale was in 1949, when he sold a new Chevrolet for $1,287. A comparable model today sells for about $4,500.

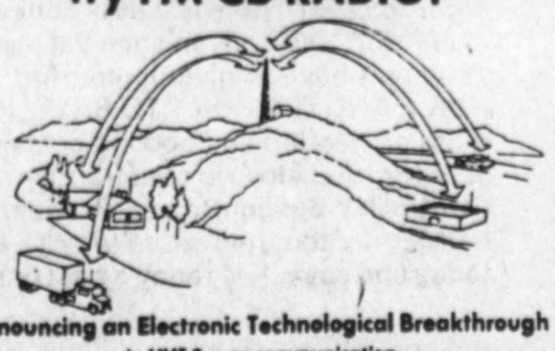

In those rowdy days the industry was involved in a big horsepower race, Crow said. "But at 30 cents per gallon, who cared?", he asked.

Don Crow Sr.'s family includes his son Don of Lubbock, Bob of Corpus Christi, Jim, a student at the University of Texas, and a daughter, Suzan, also of Lubbock.

Opheim Opens Ad Firm

Don Opheim, veteran of the Lubbock radio broadcasting industry, has established a new advertising business, called Don Opheim Advertising Agency.

Located at 5509 19th St., the agency can be reached by phone at 792-8854. The firm will primarily provide production work for radio and television clientele.

DON OPHEIM

Originally of Minnesota, the ad agency owner worked five years as KSEL program director, and then was associated with KFYO for approximately 20 years.

Opheim's wife, Jeannine, who also has worked in Lubbock radio, will also be involved in the agency work.

Opheim is broadcast manager and supervisor for the Mutual Network for Southwest Conference games. He is a graduate of Central Radio and Television School in Kansas City, Mo.

A son, Lanny Opheim, a senior at Texas Tech, is joining the Mutual Broadcast Network this fall as an engineer.

Mrs. Lewis has been in the real estate business for eight years.

Mrs. Knoohuizen, a professional speaker and a member of the P.E.O. Sisterhood, has been active in the real estate business for six years.

Membership in the National Million Dollar Club is based on personal production rather than educational or other requirements, and expresses the true skills and abilities of the individual member, the organization said.

Guidelines for production are set annually by a national advisory board of prominent realtors from across the United States.

BETTER LIVING THROUGH

Improved Housing

By MRS. ROXANNE PIKE
Consumer Research, Texas A & M University

The value of a house becomes far greater than its dollar cost when it is made into a "home" where human needs are satisfied. The house becomes personal and unique while fulfilling the adage, "making a house into a home," when thoughtful consideration is given to furnishings.

Since early days, people have tried to communicate thoughts and feelings through many forms of art such as sculpture, painting and textile design. Art refers not only to a product but also to the activity by which an item is produced. Art in the home can be exemplified by furniture and its arrangement, gardening and even table setting as well as traditional art forms.

The problem in choosing objects for the home is to furnish it, within monetary bounds, to the satisfaction of those living in it, not decorate a space for art's sake. It involves attitudes and emotions based on personal experiences and not on fads, trends or what others are doing. There are no trustworthy, ready-made rules in selection of art and furnishings for the home. Some helpful factors to consider include: consideration of human needs in terms of type of activity, available space, budget and personal preferences concerning colors, materials and texture.

WHEN SELECTING FURNISHINGS, usually one must take several factors into consideration at the same time. For example, if extra seating is needed in a small room used for television viewing and sleeping space for overnight guests, more than one factor should be taken into account. Because the room is small and used for dual purposes, seating space is not the only problem to contemplate. A solution to this type of problem might be to obtain a small scale loveseat or sofa that also makes a bed for a child or one adult and place a double bed in the child's bedroom which could accommodate two guests.

Choices of color in the home should not only satisfy personal preferences of those who live there but should also be chosen in regard to effects of color. For example, when light or pale color is used to advantage, it can give a feeling of more space and uplift of spirit. Strong and dark colors should be used judiciously in small rooms. They are more adaptable for accent emphasis or frequently used items for concealment of wear.

Choices of furnishings should provide for particular activities and interests and also, a place of retreat for the family. Art can help isolate noisy activities from quiet ones. For example, cloth and other textile products have long been known and used for their acoustic properties. Perhaps a wall between two areas could be covered with decorative fabric or art work to help contain the noise generated in the room.

Art and other furnishings gratify most when they express a unified composition. A collection of a lot of things should be arranged to emphasize the most unique or appealing and allow the others to support the main one. Chaos can be interesting when properly handled. Even the eclectic look so populalr in today's designs usually has a theme. The whole design of furnishings, room and house should allude to a feeling of continuity and some kind of organization.

When we furnish our dwellings with things we like, that gives us comfort and we find useful without regard to what others think or do, then we have discovered how art can make our house a home.

TODAY'S EDITORIAL:

Man And God And Freedom

DURING HIS NINE-DAY visit to his Polish homeland, Pope John Paul II may have stoked fires of religious and human freedom that will give the Kremlin troubles for years to come.

Christianity and Communism, he said, "are two concepts of the world which are diametrically opposed."

The Pope challenged the Polish Communist government to recognize religious rights and improve the conditions in which the church operates.

Then he brought into sharp focus what the conflict between the two ideologies really means to the average man on the street in his daily life.

CHRISTIANITY MUST ultimately win the conflict, the Pope said in effect, because —unlike Communism—it recognizes the needs of the human spirit.

"Do not let yourself be seduced by the temptation to think that man can fully find himself by denying God, erasing prayer from his life and remaining only a worker, deluding himself that what he produces can on its own fill the needs of the human heart," the Pope told one audience of workers.

Marxist-Leninist dogma holds, of course, that man himself through sharing the fruits of his labor can create a world order in which all people are fulfilled and at peace.

Pope John Paul II emphasizes the importance of work but says in essence that man also has a need and fundamental right to religious freedom and that the state is morally wrong in suppressing it.

He does so in a way that leaves the Communists bewildered and confused about how to respond or defuse the yearning for freedom that his words ignite in the hearts of subjects who never have willingly embraced Marxism.

ON AN EARLIER visit to Mexico, the Pope chagrined social activists in his own church by pronouncing, in effect, that the Catholic church should not be used as an instrument for achieving political goals.

This is in keeping with his personal record as a Polish Cardinal who took a long-range approach to church-state relationships.

As archbishop of Krakow, he battled for the rights of Polish Catholics but avoided the type of physical confrontations that attract public attention but which all too often make matters worse instead of better.

In following this same pattern as Pope, his methods are in sharp contrast with those of another religious leader, the Ayatollah Khomeini, who engineered the overthrow of the Shah of Iran only to impose his own brand of totalitarian terrorism in the name of religious morality.

DURING WORLD WAR II, Josef Stalin showed his disdain for the Vatican by asking "How many divisions does the Pope have?"

Pope John Paul II is showing today's Kremlin rulers, as the Wall Street Journal has pointed out, that "leaders who command no divisions but who can awaken the human spirit and stir genuine passions are always a threat to their regimes."

Unlike others who have harped on the theme of human rights, the Pope seems able to inspire hope within his listeners that greater freedom actually is attainable in peaceful fashion.

BEFORE HEADING back to Rome today, the Pope was scheduled to celebrate a pontifical mass in honor of St. Stanislaw, a Pole martyred 900 years ago in a dispute over whether the church or state should be supreme.

Perhaps that, more than anything else, expresses the long, historical view that man's struggle for religious, personal and economic freedom is a never-ending one.

That in itself exposes the weakness of the Communist dogma in exhorting man to rely on the state and his own labors for fulfilling his every need.

Deep inside his spirit, man knows that true freedom and sustenance springs from a higher source than he or any institution of man can provide—and that his yearnings can never be satisfied during one lifespan on earth.

It is not necessary to subscribe to Pope John Paul II's own brand of Christian belief to know that his approach is much more likely to bring peace and prosperity to all men than is that of the Communists because his faith is in God rather than in man.

ART BUCHWALD:

Economic Forecast Hangs On Slit Skirt Syndrome

THE BAD NEWS this week is that the slit skirt is rising at a rate twice as fast as that predicted by leading government economists.

I was sitting in Lafayette Park the other day with one of President Carter's economic advisors, watching women with slit skirts prance by, and he said:

"The dressmakers and skirt manufacturers are violating the President's guidelines. He asked them to keep their slits within seven percent of the knee, but as you can see most of the slits are hovering up to the thigh."

"It's sickening," I said. "How could you people be so wrong on where the slit skirt was going?"

"WE DIDN'T put the oil crisis into the computer," he said as he stared disconsolately at a very attractive lady who swished by.

"What has the oil crisis got to do with slit skirts?"

"When people are nervous about gasoline they react by catering to the prurient interests of the opposite sex.

"Women are sublimating their fears about not getting enough fuel by showing a lot more of their legs than they ever showed before. They have developed a 'let's live for today' mentality, which eventually could lead to an overheating of the entire economy."

"I'm not sure I understand."

HE STARED at another lady whose skirt was open from the navel to the knees. "If the trend continues we could see a serious downturn in productivity. Look at this park.

"If it wasn't for the split skirt, three-quarters of these men would be eating lunch back at their offices. The women would have no valid reason to brazenly stroll down these walks.

"What we're witnessing is the downfall of the American work ethic. Every inch that a skirt goes up means one million lost man-hours of work."

"I hadn't thought of it in those terms. Has the President given any consideration to jawboning?"

"THE JAWBONE has nothing to do with it."

"Well, what about legboning then?" I suggested.

"It may come to that, but our problem is that we have to have standby skirt controls to hold over their heads.

"It's doubtful that we could get Congress to give them to us, because so many senators and congressmen have a vested interest in the slit skirt."

"There has to be a solution," I cried. "We can't go on like this, ogling everything that walks by. Would a recession help?"

"I don't think so. High unemployment doesn't necessarily mean the lowering of slits in skirts. If we put the brakes on now the slits could even go higher."

"HOW MUCH higher can they go?" I said in disgust.

"I wish I had the answer to that. You talk to ten dirty old economists and they all have different answers.

"What we have to hope for is that the open skirt boom will peak by summer, and then the cold weather will give us a rate of slit we can live with."

"And if it doesn't?"

"Then we'll have double digit legs by the end of the year."

Lightly Speaking...

It's almost a certainty we'll get standby gasoline rationing. You'll have to standby a pump to see whether you're going to get any.

"Give me a sentence," said the teacher, "about a public servant."

"The fireman came down the ladder pregnant," wrote small Freddie.

Teacher took the lad aside to correct him. "Don't you know what pregnant means?" she asked. "Sure," said Freddie confidently. "Means carrying a child."

'New' Federal Study On Air Pollution Ripoff, He Says

Editor, Avalanche-Journal:

I received my morning edition of your paper on May 29, 1979 and was rather surprised to read on page A-5 that a "new" technique has been developed to detect air pollution and identify its source. I was equally surprised to read that a scientist employed by the Environmental Protection agency was quoted as saying the technique has "a lot of promise," but needs more study.

This basic approach to the study of air pollution has been in use for several decades, a fact that is well documented in the court records of cases involving smelters and cement plants sued for damages to nearby private properties.

Any chemist or geologist with elementary training in the use of a petrographic microscope and the use of very inexpensive air-sampling devices could make analyses which would compare favorably with those described in this report, but the latter were made through the use of millions of dollars in equipment and inflated salaries and are regarded as being no more than "promising." This is nothing more than the first step toward a request for additional funding from the federal government.

So, we have another example of the waste of tax dollars by a bureaucracy that is manned by incompetents. So-called "scientists" were quoted in this report, but one essential attribute of a true scientist is knowledge of what has been done in the past and not start each day like a goose, with no recollection of yesterday.

As a taxpayer, I resent this million dollar ripoff that is being conducted in the name of scientific research. This is nothing more than a blatant attempt to obtain additional funding and should be a prime candidate for the Wisconsin senator's "Golden Fleece" award.

Ace Yearns For Old Days When Men Wore The Pants

Editor, Avalanche-Journal:

In the olden days, and the time isn't all this ancient, men wore pants and women wore dresses and she took care of the house and raised the kids while he worked and supported them and if there were any questions about this arrangement he settled the argument then and there, usually by just pointing his finger!

The country was better off in those days, too, not because it was a young country but because a woman functioned as a woman and a man like a man. He even smelled like a man!

P.S.: In essence, hasn't "Crime Line" been working all along only now the program has emerged from underground?

She Says Hospital Funding Problem 'The Last Straw'

Editor, Avalanche-Journal:

I wish someone would explain to me how, for Heaven's sake, we got into this financial mess with the teaching hospital. Who had all the big ideas with assumptions and promises as a basis? Who gave these planners assurance that the Texas Legislature would furnish help? With umpteen empty beds, debts they say can't be collected, and the doctors not supporting admission of paying patients, doesn't that tell us something?

Yes, they are in financial difficulties, and who do they want to bail them out? Why, the little ole taxpayer, of course. Now we taxpayers have been pretty busy lately recouping losses for the Federal Government incurred by welfare fraud, rip-off by the General Services Administration, government loans—just a few billion dollars for a little mismanagement here and there—but that's okay. We are an accommodating and gullible lot. And should we raise our voices above a whisper in protest, just cram it down our throats. It's been done before and we got over it.

I am proud of Lubbock, I was born and raised here as were both my parents, and my grandfather was the first mayor Lubbock ever had. It has given me a personal sense of pride to see it develop into its present stature in my lifetime. The teaching hospital is indeed a wonderful and inspirational addition, but if the county must subsidize it to the tune of a couple of million or so every year, that does tend to detract from it somewhat. We have had some poor guidance along the way somewhere, and this most recent development just may be the proverbial "straw".

Mrs. C. W. Kirkpatrick, 3105 36th St.

Resident Would Keep Tech Terrace Park Area Safe

Editor, Avalanche-Journal:

I read the editorial pages when I travel and at home. I want to express appreciation for your constructive and educational page.

Also, a bouquet to the city of Lubbock for slowing week-end traffic around Tech Terrace Park.

A few years ago a little four-year-old girl was killed, by a teen-age driver, while crossing from the house I live in to the park. I cannot forget it.

I have no small children but next door there are two under four years of age and others across the park.

The street barriers between Flint and 23rd and Flint and 26th have caused me some inconvenience, but they are handling the traffic problem and the park is still accessible to the public through Gary, Hartford and Indiana.

I do not mind if cars turn in my driveway because Flint and 23rd are blocked. An out-of-town school bus turned there this week and many cars. This is a small price I can pay for the safety of children.

From a selfish standpoint, I can now take a nap or read on Saturday or Sunday afternoon without the constant roar of cars and loud music. The police try to keep traffic moving and at times help me out of my driveway. But it got so bad that on Sunday if I knew that I wanted to get out in the afternoon, I parked on 22nd St. and walked home after church. The residents around the park could not have guests on week-ends for there was no place to park.

The barriers are a nuisance when I want to get home in a hurry, but I can always get in and out by Indiana or one of the avenues. The park is still used for games, frisby, sunbathing and family outings.

I hope the unsightly barriers can be replaced by a pretty structural replacement or a cul-de-sac.

Mrs. J. H. Brock, Lubbock

A Unisex Anthem

BAD NEWS FOR male chauvinists: The ladies of 1979 seem to have caught a bad case of the friskies. And government may never be the same.

Remember those T-shirts a while back that read, "A woman's place is in the House...of Representatives"? Well, they're rewriting that to: "A woman's place is in the House, all right; the White House."

Not next year. Not even in 1984, maybe. But they're getting ready, and don't say they didn't warn you.

What's happening in Great Britain probably has a lot to do with it. Here's a country being ruled, for the first time in history, by two women; and the whole world is waiting to see how they get along.

Queen Elizabeth inherited her job, but Maggie Thatcher got to be prime minister the hard way —at the polls. And she's given women everywhere all kinds of uppity ideas.

JUST FOR OPENERS, there's Annmarie Renger, the beautiful blonde deputy speaker of the West German parliament. She's just gotten herself nominated for president on the Social Democratic ticket, it's a first in German history, and that funny noise you hear is the Kaiser turning over in his tomb.

The significant thing about Maggie and Annmarie is that they weren't put up as token candidates to appease the little woman voter.

They've been working politicians for years, as were Indira Ghandi and Golda Meir, both of whom changed the world a little in their times.

They all came up from what old pols call the "leadership pool." Which, in case the good ole boys have been too busy running us into bankruptcy to notice, is filling up pretty fast in our own country.

Not in Congress, of course, where female leadership has dwindled to a new low: 16 in the House and one (Nancy Landon Kassebaum) in the Senate.

Mayor Byrne made the biggest splash recently when she took on the machine, hammered away at her do-nothing opponent, and won big.

Five years ago, there wasn't one female lieutenant governor. Today there are six. There are two women in President Carter's cabinet (not counting Rosalynn, of course).

Carter has done his bit. So far, 21 percent of his 1979 political appointments have gone to women, including 21 federal judges, four U.S. attorneys and nine ambassadors.

For the first time in history, more than 10 percent of state legislative seats are filled by women. Ten are secretaries of state, and six are state treasurers. Many cities, large and small, have women holding down the mayor's job.

There's another black ex-Congresswoman whose name—Barbara Jordan—comes up in every discussion of possible female candidates for the White House. She says she's not interested, but so does Teddy Kennedy.

And, of course, there's always Bella Abzug.

There are, in fact, so many successful lady politicians around that the National Women's Political Caucus is beginning to purr; somewhere in the pack is a future president and vice-president.

Have a few scattered statistics:

— WOMEN ARE spending less time on housework; where they used to spend 26 hours a week, they now spend 21.

— Lady moonlighters have doubled in the past eight years; 1.3 million now hold more than one job.

— Women make up more than half the labor force.

— There are twice as many prostitutes as there used to be. The total is now up to 1.3 million, with increasing numbers of housewives and secretaries picking up extra cash in their spare time as call girls.

— The more prominent a woman gets, the longer she lives. Those listed in "Who's Who" average 29 percent fewer deaths than women of similar ages, with the exception of female performers, entertainers and (ulp) journalists.

— Women in politics live longest of all. Insurance studies show female government officials have 55 percent fewer deaths, and lady politicians, 48 percent fewer.

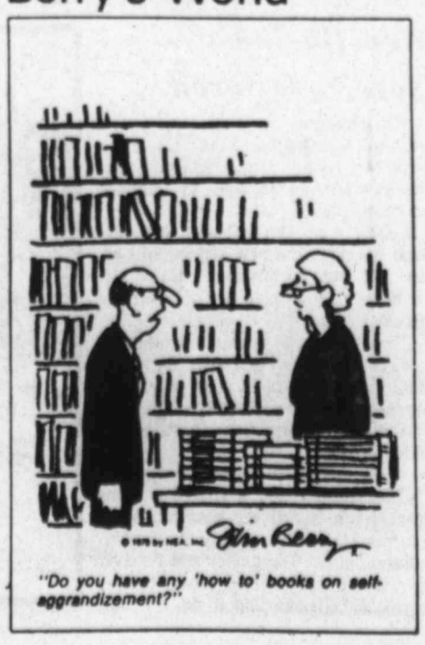

That may not be why there are so many of them these days, but it's something to think about in choosing a future President. And, no matter what Bella might tell you, "Hail to the Chief" is a unisex tune.

Dyslexic Students Find Hope At Scottish Rite Center

In contrast to the other rooms in the school, which are large, dark and silent from years of neglect, the tiny classrooms of the dyslexia program are alive with learning—

Those skills are elusive to dyslexic children. Though the children are of average or above intelligence, they simply cannot grasp the language skills by the methods commonly taught in public schools.

To these children's eyes, letters seem to invert or reverse themselves. A "p" could become a "q," a "d," or a "b," for example. The number "7" could become the letter "L." A word like "cat" could look like "act," "tac," or "tca." Longer words with mixed up letters look like no word at all.

TIME AND SPACE also cause problems for dyslexic children. They often have no sense of chronology, no comprehension of sequence or direction. "Dead center" is where they live.

That part of the brain, she explained, ordinarily is responsible for the language skills affected by dyslexia. Traumas such as premature birth or poor prenatal nutrition have been blamed for the syndrome, as have prolonged fever during infancy or a fall which causes brain damage.

In any case, the dyslexic child, through no fault of his own, lives in a world which rocks and weaves according to the whims of his capricious brain.

The problem usually doesn't show up until the child reaches school age, since before then he is not dependent on reading and writing. During early childhood, the dyslexic child "learns to handle his environment just like any other child," says Dr. Waters.

Once he starts school, however, the frustrations begin to set in.

THERE ARE DIFFERENT manifestations of dyslexia, according to Dr. Waters. Some children, depending on their nature, become hyperactive. Others might be very quiet and daydream rather than pay attention in class. Since they can't understand much of what their teacher is presenting to them, paying attention becomes nearly impossible.

It's not until a child is eight years old, though, that he can finally be diagnosed as dyslexic, even if he has been displaying symptoms of the problem all along.

By that age, says Dr. Waters, most normal children have outgrown the symptoms of dyslexia.

For example, she says, it's not unusual for a kindergartener to have a hard time learning his alphabet, but a child who hasn't learned it by the third grade is unusual.

Dr. Waters estimates somewhere between 10 and 15 percent of the population — four times as many boys as girls — are affected with dyslexia to some extent. Many are not affected so badly they require rehabilitation, however.

THROUGH DETERMINATION and hard work, famous dyslexics such as Nelson Rockefeller, Albert Einstein and George Patton were able to attain their goals.

By contrast, many dyslexic children never are able to overcome their disability, and do not become productive members of society.

There is even some evidence the problem causes frustrations which eventually are vented through crime. Handwriting samples of Lee Harvey Oswald and Sirhan Sirhan, for example, have shown them to have had dyslexic tendencies.

Giving West Texas' dyslexic children the chance to develop to their potentials, is the aim of the four-year-old Scottish Rite Program. "You can't function in society unless you're literate," says Dr. Waters. "These children will never be cured of dyslexia, but we can correct the problem so they won't drop out of the mainstream forever."

The Scottish Rite program accepts students who are at least two grade levels behind "normal" in language skills. Ideally we are able to return them to grade level and get them back into the mainstream of school by the time they finish," Dr. Waters says.

The program takes students away from their regular classes for one hour per day of what is called "released time." The student participates five days per week, 11 months per year, for a minimum of two years. "We make sure they know it's going to take at least that long," Dr. Waters commented.

Teaching methods are relaxed, in that the program's two language therapists take care not to make the students nervous or embarrassed — "we don't grade them or use red pencils" — Dr. Waters says. She explains that making the students nervous only destroys their fragile concentration.

"We have the luxury of time," Dr. Waters admits.

The atmosphere in the tiny classroom is informal, and the students — all three of them in one class — are calm and self-assured.

"DON'T FORGET THEY'VE been here since last fall," Dr. Waters commented. Students are likely to begin the program nervous and afraid, after years of being labeled stupid by their peers, sometimes teachers and even parents.

One dyslexic student, who for years was nicknamed "Retard," actually had an I.Q. of 138. "You can imagine how he felt," she said.

Foiling the dyslexic's short attention span is one of the therapists' primary goals in teaching him. The hour-long lessons at the Scottish Rite School are divided into ten drills, repeated daily. The trick is to "switch activities before we lose them," Dr. Waters says.

Even with going from workbook to blackboard to flash cards, it's often a losing proposition, according to Dr. Waters. The sound of a siren screaming down the street will destroy everything, "and between Thanksgiving and Christmas there's so much excitement going on, we just lose them completely," she commented.

Teaching methods utilize the students' sense of touch by requiring them to trace letters invisibly on carpet squares. A drill called "skywriting"— where the students trace letters in the air, with large motions of their whole writing arms — also is heavily relied upon.

WHOLE-ARM MOTION is more easily remembered by the brain, Dr. Waters explains, so many of the exercises are based on it. The students trace large letters on the blackboard and write at their desks with special pencil holders which force them to write from the shoulder. Often arrows pointing from left to right are drawn on the page or the blackboard, to remind the students which direction to read and write.

Dr. Waters stresses the Scottish Rite program is "supportive" of the public schools, and she empathizes with teachers who can have up to 35 in their classes.

"There is no way they can give a slow learner the special attention he needs, there just isn't time," she said. Many students in the dyslexic program receive individual instruction, and the maximum number in a class is six.

Generally the guidelines include accepting the child's limitations, and helping him to grow within them by giving him tasks and assignments he is able to complete.

Teachers are encouraged to seat the student at the front of the classroom, pairing him with an aide to help with reading and copying, things that are hard for him.

If it sounds like she advocates giving the dyslexic child all the crutches he can use, Dr. Waters readily admits she does. "If you give a child a crutch when he needs it, he'll use it," she has found. "But he'll throw it away when he doesn't need it anymore."

THE SCOTTISH RITE program has taught 31 students in all during its four years of operation. Though no cost per student has yet been determined, once a student is enrolled in the program, he has only to provide his own transportation to the school at Sixth Street and Avenue Q.

All other costs are absorbed by the Scottish Rite Bodies, which operate the school as their "childrens' charity."

The two language therapists, Dr. Waters, and Janie Jacob, are certified by The Scottish Rite Bodies, which require an intensive and closely supervised two-year training program for certification.

Students are tested by an independent "testing consultant once a year while enrolled in the program, and annually for as many years as Scottish Rite can stay in touch with them thereafter. So far, Dr. Waters says "we're delighted with their progress."

Dr. Fleming Named United Methodist District Superintendent

Dr. William R. Fleming was recently appointed district superintendent of the Lubbock District of the United Methodist Church by Bishop Alsie H. Carleton and his cabinet. A new district office also was opened at 1316 13th St.

DR. WILLIAM R. FLEMING

A graduate of Lubbock High School and Texas Tech University, Dr. Fleming did his religious studies at Austin Presbyterian Theological Seminary.

He has held pastorates in United Methodist Churches throughout Texas and most recently was the pastor of St. Luke's United Methodist Church in Lubbock.

He is a member of numerous boards and committees including the Texas Methodist Foundation, The Methodist Home in Waco, Sears Memorial Methodist Center in Abilene, and the Committee on Ministerial Qualifications of Corpus Christi, San Antonio and Amarillo.

A delegate to the World Methodist Conference in Dublin, Ireland, in August, 1976, Dr. Fleming holds an honorary doctor of divinity degree from McMurry College in Abilene.

Appointees beyond the local churches include Rev. Samuel P. Auslam, director of the Council of Professional Ministries; Rev. Marvin James, director of the Conference Council on Ministries; Rev. C.B. Melton, director of the Council on Finance and Administration and Area Treasurer; Rev. Tom Nagle, associate director of the Council on Ministries; Rev. Thomas W. Daugherty, director of Chaplain Service at Methodist Hospital in Lubbock; Rev. Marvin Roark and Rev. Raymond Wolf, chaplains at Methodist Hospital in Lubbock; Rev. J. Carl Hudson, YMCA; Rev. K. Pat Ginn and Rev. H. Eugene Sorley, family life counseling; and Rev. Rogert L. Loyd, director of the Wesley Foundation at Texas Tech University.

The annual picnic for the Lubbock District ministers and their wives will be held in Lubbock June 29.

'Fathering' Topic Of Seminar

"Fathering in Today's World" will be the topic of a seminar Friday through June 17 at the First Baptist Church of Lubbock.

Sponsored by the church's family ministry department, there will be special seminar conferences for fathers, grandfathers, single fathers, step fathers, fathers-to-be, empty nest fathers and for wives, helping your husband be a good father.

Sessions of the special conferences will include evaluation of such topics as the Christian father and how he copes with tension in today's unChristian world, practical considerations of being an effective father, fathering a rebellious child, the "empty nest" father, being a good grandparent, parttime fathers, the dynamics of stepfathering, helping the husband to become an effective father and the preparation needed to become a good father.

The seminar will feature local and out-of-town speakers and conference leaders.

A keynote address at 7 p.m. Friday at the church will be given by Dr. Bill Blackburn, associate director and family life consultant of the Texas Baptist Christian Life Commission. He will discuss "Fathering—Where Are We Now?" Friday night.

Dr. Blackburn also will lead conferences on "Person, Husband, Father: Living in the Tension" and "Being A Christian Father in an UnChristian World" during 8 p.m. and 9 p.m. sessions Friday and 9 a.m. and 10 a.m. sessions Saturday.

Dr. Preston Dyer, professor of sociology at Baylor University, will deliver a keynote address at 11 a.m. Saturday at the church. He will discuss "The Future of the Father" Saturday.

Dr. Dyer also will lead conferences on "The Father as Teacher of Values" and "The World We Are Preparing Our Children to Live In" during 8 p.m. and 9 p.m. sessions Friday and 9 a.m. and 10 a.m. sessions Saturday.

Dr. Jim Jenkins, a clinical psychologist in Lubbock, will discuss "Fathering the Rebellious Child" and "Practical Considerations on Being an Effective Father" during 8 p.m. and 9 p.m. sessions Friday and 9 a.m. and 10 a.m. sessions Saturday at the church.

Dr. Stan Fowler, a professor of family relations at Texas Tech University, will lead conferences on "Being Father When the Nest is Empty" and "Fathering Your Father" during 8 p.m. and 9 p.m. sessions Friday and 9 a.m. and 10 a.m. sessions Saturday at the church.

Hassler Strickland, who retired from Civil Service employment and is now working on a master's degree at Texas Tech University and serving as a counseling intern at the First Baptist Church, will discuss "Being a Fun Grandparent" at 8 p.m. Friday and 10 a.m. Saturday.

Ray Vickery, minister to single adults at the First Baptist Church in Richardson, will discuss "Parttime Fathers" at 8 p.m. Friday and 10 a.m. Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Max Lennon of Lubbock will lead the conference "For Wives: Helping Your Husband Be An Effective Father" at 8 p.m. Friday. Dr. Lennon is assistant dean of agriculture at Texas Tech University and Mrs. Lennon is a homemaker. This conference is just for wives, according to a seminar spokesman.

Rick Word, a coach at Mackenzie Junior High School, will lead the conference on "Dynamics of Stepfathering" at 8 p.m. Friday and 10 a.m. Saturday.

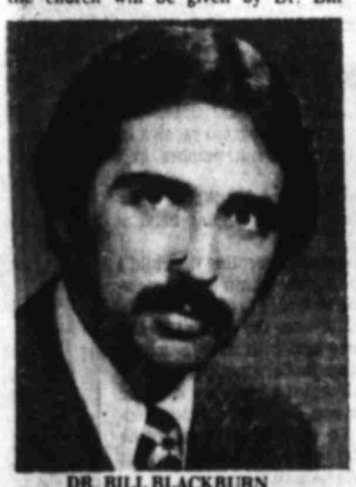

Tom Kennedy, minister to single adults and associate minister of family life at First Baptist Church, will lead the conference on "Preparing To Be A Father" at 8 p.m. Friday and 10 a.m. Saturday.

Dr. John MacGorman, professor of New Testament at Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary in Fort Worth, is the pulpit guest for the 8:15 a.m. and 10:45 a.m. worship services June 17 of the First Baptist Church. His sermon topic will focus on the Christian marriage and the unique role of the father in the relationship.

According to a seminar spokesman, the "Fathering In Today's World" event is one of the first, if not the first, such seminar in the United States.

Advanced registration may be made by calling the family ministry office of the First Baptist Church at 747-0281 or 747-0735.

Registration for the event will begin at the church at 6:30 p.m. Friday. The church is located at Broadway and Avenue V.

IMPACT BRASS AND SINGERS

Group To Present Concert

The Impact Brass and Singers from Ozark Bible College in Joplin, Mo., will present a concert at University Christian Church, 3601 82nd St., at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday.

In past years, the group has presented more than 1,500 concerts all across the United States and in Canada. The group, consisting of 27 members, features a brass group and singers, as well as a five-screen slide presentation. The slide presentation illustrates the special arrangements of contemporary Christian music. Also added in the group's program are funny, yet serious, skits.

The group has appeared in the past at Mount Rushmore National Monument, the U.S. Capitol Building, the Boston Commons, Walt Disney Land, Disneyland, National Explorers Olympics, Knott's Berry Farm and other places throughout the country. They will appear this summer with nationally known commentator Paul Harvey.

Acteen Mini-Camp Slated This Week

Lubbock Baptist Association Acteen Mini-Camp is being held Friday and Saturday at the Plains Baptist Assembly near Floydada.

This year's camp theme, "Born To Serve," will be carried out through Bible study, music and fellowship.

Special guests for the Acteen Camp this year will be Don Stephenson, pastor of University Baptist Church in Lubbock, and Mary L. Lewis, a student at Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary in Fort Worth from Harlem, New York. Miss Lewis also will be featured at the National Acteen Convention in Kansas City, Mo.

Stephenson has been pastor of University Baptist Church since October, 1978. Before coming to the Lubbock church he served as youth director at the First Baptist Church in Marlin and the First Baptist Church in Palestine and pastor of the First Baptist Church in Saint Jo. He is a graduate of Baylor University and received his master of divinity degree from Southwestern Seminary.

Miss Lewis, a native of Charleston, S.C., is a US-2 missionary of the Southern Baptist Home Mission Board's Christian Social Ministries Department serving in the Metropolitan New York Baptist Association, N.Y.

A former student summer missionary of the Home Mission Board from 1973 to 1975, Miss Lewis is a graduate of City College of New York and served as vice president of the Baptist Student Union of New York State.

Reservations for the Acteen Mini-Camp should be turned into the Lubbock Baptist Association office, 2601 Salem Ave., Lubbock, Texas, 79410, by Monday.

Religious Fanaticism Of Past Found In Peru

LIMA, Peru (UPI) — Lima's most grisly historical site is the Museum Of The Inquisition on Bolivar Square. Closed for centuries, the subterranean torture chambers of the 16th century Holy Office of the Inquisition were excavated 10 years ago and opened to the public by the Catholic Church.

According to church figures, approximately 1,500 suspected infidels and heretics died at the hands of the Inquisition, most of them brutally tortured with a variety of bizarre mechanical devices.

The torture racks and devices have been completely restored and the inclusion of lifelike wax dummies gives them a realistic touch.

Magazines Found Near Rare Books

BOULDER, Colo. (UPI) — The University of Colorado's Norlin Library maintains a Rare Books Room, where it keeps such literary treasures as a 1596 edition of Dante's "Divine Comedy" and a 1791 edition of Tom Paine's "Common Sense."

Kept nearby such collections are two unlikely interlopers, Playboy Magazine and Mother Earth News.

A library spokesman said Playboy and Mother Earth News are kept in the Rare Books Room because they need protection from students who tear out pages. Library staff members bring the items out of the Rare Books Room at request but they must be read at nearby tables.

New Process Opens Market For All-Cotton Knits

RALEIGH N.C. (Special) — A new wet processing treatment for knit fabric promoted by Cotton Inc. is opening up the mass market for high-quality all-cotton knitwear.

The process is piece mercerization, and its effect is to improve fabric luster and increase dyebility and strength of the fabric at a much lower cost than traditional mercerizing processes, says Wolfgang Strahl, director of textile product research for Cotton Inc.

Cotton Inc. is the fiber company of American cotton producers. Supported by producers' per bale assessments, it works on programs of research and marketing.

Already, five of the nation's largest knit-wear manufacturers are purchasing the equipment necessary for piece mercerization, according to Strahl. One mill will introduce piece-mercerized fabrics to its customers in 1979.

Strahl explains that piece mercerizing will mean a cost of about $14-15 for a high-quality, all-cotton knit shirt, as opposed to a current price of about $22 for a high-quality knit-shirt produced using traditional yarn mercerizing processes.

"That is a tremendous difference, and it will mean that high-quality, all-cotton knit shirts will become available at popular prices," says Strahl. "That will result in even more consumer purchases of cotton.

"Piece mercerized knit-wear will make cotton competitive in price with blended knit fabric while having the advantage of being more comfortable and not pilling," he adds.

As a result, the fabric has more luster, its burst strength is increased up to 25 percent, it dyes better with less dyestuff needed — all at an overall cost lower than that of mercerizing the yarn before knitting.

The interest in piece mercerization in the United States in the result of four years of work by Cotton textile engineers who surveyed the mercerizing technology world-wide to identify improvements in the system that would make it feasible for use on knitted fabric, explains Strahl.

"We were constantly evaluating mercerizing equipment and pointing out to American mills the benefits they could gain from trying piece mercerization on knit fabric," he says.

Piece mercerization has been commercial for many years with woven goods, but not with knitted goods because the knit fabric stretches considerably, explains Strahl.

However, equipment developed by several companies in the last four years has made it possible to control the knit fabric during processing to prevent excessive stretching, he adds.

The first domestic commercial piece-mercerized products will be introduced in 1979, but widespread use of the knit products will not occur until 1980, when four mill lines will be in operation, says Strahl.

NEW COTTON PROCESS — Suzanne Snipes of Greenville, Miss., the 1979 Maid of Cotton, examines some piece-mercerized all-cotton knit shirts during a recent tour of the Raleigh, N. C. research center of Cotton Inc. Showing her the shirts is Wolfgang Strahl, director of textile product research. Piece mercerization is being promoted by Cotton Inc. as a way to add luster to cotton knit goods, add strength to the fabric, and improve the dyeability of the garment.

American Agriculture Helps China Solve Food Problems

PEKING (UPI) — The United States has started a far reaching program to help China solve the age old problem of providing food for its millions.

To wring more food out of China's good earth, a dozen heads of American agriculture colleges will set up a training program here this summer.

One American expert recently on a tour of China, Edward Schuh, deputy undersecretary of the Department of Agriculture, said that since 1949 — the year of China's communist revolution — there has been only a small annual increase in per capita availability of food.

"In effect, they have done little more than stay ahead of the population increase," he said. "Agriculture is an enormous problem here."

China recently disclosed that the amount of arable land has decreased because of industrial expansion. Because of population growth, the area of food-producing land per person is only half what it was at the time of the revolution.

The American farm program for China also includes:

—sending U.S. experts to modernize bakeries so the Chinese will bake more bread and thus use more wheat. The Chinese now eat little bread, mainly in the form of rolls.

Schuh said the program also will benefit the United States because the Chinese are expected to then import more American wheat and soybeans. And American farmers may stand to learn something from Chinese techniques.

The United States also expects to sell large quantities of farm machnery to China. Mechanization of agriculture to improve production has been said by Chinese leaders to have top priority.

During the recent tour of China by U. S. Commerce Secretary Juanita Kreps, members of her delegation noted rows of American farm machines lined up along a road near Shanghai.

The new yellow machines will contrast strikingly with the usual Chinese farm scene — the bent back of the peasant in a wide straw hat, the water buffalo, and the simple plough — little changed in 2,000 years.

"There is so little mechanization on farms here that labor productivity is low," Schuh said. "They have concentrated instead on productivity of the land, depending largely on commercial fertilizer with some night soil. They need more fertilizer, too, and have contracted to build fertilizer plants.

"Their land does better on crop yields per acre than Brazil and most of Latin America and India. The United States did the opposite, raising labor productivity with farm mechaniztion. But our yields per acre were the lowest in the world. Now we are concerned about land productivity."

Schuh said China has invested heavily in irrigation and 40 percent of the land now is irrigated.

Schuh said that China will import 5 million to 6 million tons of grain from the United States this year and about the same amount in 1980.

China so far plans to pay for the food in cash although it is eligible for credits under the 1978 Farm Trade Act.

Electric power production is another area where the United States can help China, said another expert traveling with Mrs. Kreps.

Tom Hayes, chairman of International Engineering Corp. of San Francisco, which builds hydroelectric dams, said he gave the Chinese three proposals on power plants and transmission projects.

"They have an ambitious plan for power, including 20 hydroelectric plants to achieve 450 to 500 megawatts by the year 2000, ten times their present capacity," he said.

COMMON DISORDER

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Obesity is another word for affluent malnutrition, or poor nutrition among well-to-do persons. Mark Hegsted of the USDA's Human Nutrition Center says excess weight is the most common nutritional disorder in the United States. Hegsted says cutting calories doesn't help with weight problems unless the calories cut are those from fat, sugar and salt instead of fruits and vegetables.

Town Activities, Vitality Net State Honors For Quitaque

QUITAQUE (Special) — This Briscoe County community has been named runner-up in Region 1 judging in the Texas Community Improvement Programs.

First place in the 83-county region went to Follett in Lipscomb County. Other runners-up were Truscott in Knox County, and Imperial in Pecos County.

The community improvement program is sponsored by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service and several investor-owned utility companies of the state, including West Texas Utilities Co.

It measures the accomplishment made by communities of 1,000 or less population toward specific goals during the year, Earnest Kiker, Briscoe County extension agent, said.

Judges for the regional contest were Mrs. Tommy Joyce Cunningham of Denton, retired extension district agent for home economics; Mrs. Barbara Elliott of College Station, county extension agent-at-large; and Curly Hays of Abilene, with West Texas Utilities.

They toured each of the four district champion communities and rated them on eight categories. Those included community organization, community services and facilities, improving the community appearance and environment, and economic development and business management.

Other categories were improving family living, citizen involvement, assisting other communities in organizing for improvement, and long-range planning.

The judges were limited by contest rules to a two-hour visit in each community.

At Quitque, they began at the community center with an overview of the community, its goals and achievements. Making the presentation were members of the community improvement committee, led by David Brunson, and leaders of various improvement projects.

The presentation was followed by a guided tour which include visits to the new Caprock Canyons State Park under development north of the city; new apartment project; city tennis courts, parks and lighted baseball field; and remodeled stores along Main Street.

The judges noted the city's effective yard and home beautification project, community activities for all ages and ethnic groups, and the vitality of its economy.

"This is a beautiful place to live, you are a beautiful group of people, and you have a beautiful philosophy," Mrs. Cunningham told the citizens. "To enter a contest to improve your way of living and lives of your children is the real prize."

PLAINS AGRICULTURE

By DUANE HOWELL

STRONG OPPOSITION TO THE WEAVER BILL, which would establish a national grain board to control export marketing of U. S. grains, was registered last week by the Kansas City Board of Trade.

William Theis, KCBT legislative chairman, told a House subcommittee hearing that the bill "would create chaos in the grain industry, seriously damage our farm economy, impact disastrously on our balance of payments (necessary to pay for imported oil), aid our competitor-producers in other nations, and ultimately impact adversely on consumers and billions of poor and undernourished peoples all over the world."

Theis took exception to the idea that the federal government should be directly involved in "the business of price setting and buying and selling of grain in lieu of activities heretofore conducted by private business."

THE BREVITY OF THE BILL WOULD PROMPT lengthy regulations to implement its requirements, Theis said. He mentioned 22 questions as to operations of the proposed grain board.

The questions revolved around operating costs, payments to producers, production quotas, producer selling procedures, direct authority of the grain board, freight costs, future and forward sales without a futures market, and procedures for handling losses on mistates and demurrage.

Theis pointed to the soybean embargoes of 1973-74 and said a national grain board might give U. S. grain customers the idea "that perhaps the United States is not a long-range reliable and reasonable supplier, as we have promised many times since World War II.

He said the current U. S. free market system is superior to the Canadian export marketing system, which is similar to the plan proposed in the Weaver bill.

THEIS MENTIONED VARIOUS PROBLEMS, including shipping delays, that have halted export sales of Canadian wheat and barley. He said the Canadian wheat board system has decreased producer incentive.

"Another major negative result of the Canadian system has been a stifling of incentive to grow more and better wheat," he said. "The Canadian farmer must grow the varieties authorized by the Canadian wheat board, and there have been few incentives to develop additional strains to grow more wheat."

In addition, he said, the Canadian wheat board has lost millions of dollars in unhedged currency risks and demurrage payments. These losses, he said, ultimately came out of the pockets of Canadian producers.

Theis said the Canadians would like the United States to raise its price of wheat so they could undersell this country. And, he added, "we would reward their inefficiency."

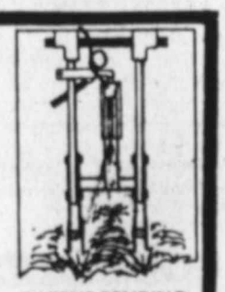

THE ABILITY TO PROTECT EXPORT SALES through commodity or futures markets is not provided in the Canadian system, Theis said. He said the Canadians at times have used U. S. futures markets to hedge sales.

Other foreign countries also use U. S. futures markets Theis said, adding that establishment of the Weaver bill would bypass the established market mechanism.

"Without the reference of current and futures prices, as posted every minute on the futures boards, no one would know the value of grain — neither buyer nor seller — and chaos would be the result," he said.

WANT TO CUT DOWN YOUR COST ON HOE HANDS THIS SUMMER?
EASY HOE IS YOUR ANSWER!

PATENT PENDING

- Easy Hoe mounts directly on your cultivator. Eliminate unnecessary expense (an extra tractor and people needed to operate hand sprayers) Available in 4, 6, 8, or 10 rows.
- It selectively sprays most weeds extending 3" or more above crops.
- Sprayer is activated by the weed itself. It automatically de-activates the spraying action when the sensor loses contact with the weed.
- A very accurate calibration for positive weed control the first trip across your field. (Some applicators require tiresome backtracking over the same rows)
- Utilize your present spray equipment such as pumps and tanks.
- 100 gallons of chemical mix easily covers 200 to 250 acres.
- Each INDIVIDUAL row can be activated from cab for spot spraying; for example Morning Glory, Devils Claw, Johnson Grass, etc.

SPECIAL COW SALE
LUBBOCK STOCK YARDS, LUBBOCK, TEXAS
FRIDAY, JUNE 15TH, 1979

Starting promptly at 1:00 P.M. CST, June 15th, Lubbock Stockyards will disperse 2 herds of cattle. Mr. Vernon Orrell, Sluvester, Texas will be selling 20 bred cows, 7 bulls and 65 cows with calves at side. All are registered purebred Charlois. The calves are from French Bulls. Vernon Orrell started this herd of hand picked cattle in 1966. He purchased his foundation cows and his herd sires from the best Charlois herds in America. This is a rare opportunity to buy top quality cows at today's prices.

We will disperse 600 cows for OBB Co. Coroporation. This is one of their operations that is located at Strawn, Texas. The cows are primarily Braford and Brangus. About 400 of which are 4 & 5 years old. They will be blood tested and toothed by the veternarian and we will sort them in groups of 5 to 20 head according to age, color, and size of calf. They have a ripping set of calves and the cows have been exposed to Charlois Bulls since January. We will sell 25 purebred Charlois Bulls 3 & 4 years old.

Other consignments of pairs, springers and bred heifers will sell after these 2 herds. Early consignments include:

14 coming 2 year old Brangus bulls.

60 calves hood vacinated Hereford hfrs. weighing 600 lbs, exposed to Longhorn bulls since Feb. 5. The Longhorn bulls are 3 years old, and will sell.

For more information or to consign cattle, call Wayne May at 806-745-3383, Lubbock, Texas

THE ROUSTABOUT

By RAY WESTBROOK

TEXAS RAILROAD COMMISSION Chairman John H. Poerner reports that the state's natural gas industry is currently in the "strongest condition" ever.

"Despite obstacles which were encountered early in the 70's in the form of frequent gas shortages, now the industry is in a good position to improve the quality of service to the consumer," Poerner told members of the Texas Gas Association at a recent meeting in Corpus Christi.

Poerner said, "The free market place we once enjoyed in our state quickly responded to the short supply and in five years, the number one enemy—not enough gas—was overcome."

The state's only gas curtailment during the past two years was logged in early 1979, when sub-freezing weather swept across Texas.

Poerner thinks the commission's decision in April to eliminate the state level restrictions on the volume of natural gas used as an industrial boiler fuel added to the improved supply picture for Texas.

COMMISSIONER MACK WALLACE believes domestic production could be enhanced by a resolution of energy-environmental conflicts.

Overzealous environmental concerns have become "infectious and debilitating," he said recently in a speech to the Palestine Rotary Club.

Wallace documented his tenet by relating an ecnounter between Chevron and government agencies:

"Chevron U.S.A. designed a drilling program for the winter of 1977-1978 that involved several sites in Redwash, Utah, which were covered with snow," Wallace said.

"Normally, Chevron would have simply cleared the snow and prepared the sites for drilling. However, the Bureau of Land Management of the U.S. Department of the Interior under the direction of Secretary Cecil Andrus required an archaeological inspection of each site to determine if any archaeological information was present.

"To prevent surface damage, Chevron proposed to use special snow melting procedures using hot water or flamethrowers. On some sites hot water caused erosion and was therefore prohibited by the Interior Department. The flamethrowers, too, were prohibited because the Interior Department was concerned with its effect on area locoweed which the Department suspected was on the endangered species list.

"As it turned out, no archaeological information was discovered and the locoweed specie was not endangered.

A SECOND EXAMPLE, Wallace said, was provided by a company operating in Wyoming.

"In early April, it came to my attention that the Davis Oil Co. was being prohibited, again by the Bureau of Land Management of the U.S. Department of the Interior, from drilling because 'available data suggest that the noise from around-the-clock drilling operations tend to suppress sage grouse strutting activities'."

Wallace said the department also told the company: "Since there is a lack of research data on this problem. . .the Bureau is proposing a research study to determine these effects. However, because of our planning system and budget requirements, we do not anticipate starting the field work for at least three years. . ."

Wallace said, "It is incomprehensible to me that situations like the ones just described could occur amidst rationing and panic in California, recent icy winters in the Northeast and Midwest, and a tenuous and vulnerable foreign energy supply line."

DAVE BLOYS of Horizon Vans recommends that motorists avoid panic buying of smaller cars because of rising fuel costs.

Quoting from the 1979 Gas Mileage Guide prepared by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency and published by the Department of Energy, Bloys says the family van is capable of equal or better fuel economy than 61 percent of all compact cars tested.

In comparing one imported minicompact "economy" car, Bloys noted that the difference in fuel costs amounts to only 25 cents per day more for a three-speed transmission, six-cylinder engine van. With automatic transmission and a V-8 engine, the additional cost is 48 cents per day.

The calculations are based on 15,000 miles of driving per year, and the recently outdated price of 70 cents per gallon of gasoline.

The minicompact was rated by EPA at 20 mpg, and the van at 17.

A maximum spread of $1.69 per day exists between the highest rated minicompact with five-speed manual transmission (35 mpg), and the lowest rated 8-cylinder, automatic van (12 mpg), according to EPA.

Engineers Hit By Inflation

DALLAS (Special) -Petroleum engineering, one of the highest paid professions in the U.S., has fallen victim to the old nemesis, inflation, according to an industry organization.

A survey compiled by the Society of Petroleum Engineers of AIME states the salary for the petroleum engineer has risen 29 percent, from $2,298 a month to $2,951 since the survey began in 1975. But this healthy increase evaporates when compared to the U.S. inflation rate, which has spiraled 28 percent over the past four years, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

The petroleum engineer is the person mainly involved in the drilling and producing of oil and gas. He works to achieve maximum recovery of oil and gas from a petroleum reservoir by determining and developing the best and most efficient drilling methods.

The employment of petroleum engineers is expected to grow faster than the average of all occupations during the 1980s, by reason of the nation's efforts to attain energy self-sufficiency.

The petroleum engineer in a management position recorded the most significant salary increase. This has been true since the survey began in 1975, with management salaries rising 34 percent. Positions in marketing matched the inflation rate of 28 percent, while engineering rose 26 percent, research and development 20 percent, and education only with a 14 percent salary increase.

About 4,000 of the more than 30,000 SPE members responded to the questionaire.

Dallas Exhibition Planned In August

DALLAS (Special) -Dallas International Oil Show Inc. has scheduled an oil exhibition Aug. 2-5 at the fairgrounds in Dallas.

Designed to appeal to the entire family, the show will feature such industry personalities as "Red" Adair in addition to extensive equipment displays.

A drilling school will be conducted Aug. 4 to acquaint the uninitiated with oil rigs and the basics of drilling a well.

P. F. "Pinky" Brownlee, show director, pointed out that family attractions in the Dallas area include the fair park midway, Six Flags over Texas, summer musicals, museums and shopping malls.

SOLAR GREENHOUSE

GREENWOOD, S.C. (UPI) — A mail order seed company expects to save about 4,200 gallons of oil a year with an experimental solar system installed recently to help heat two of its 11,000-square-foot greenhouses. Company president William J. Park says engineers who installed the system predict a 14 percent saving on fuel bills with the prototype units but recommend the firm closely monitor both the weather and fuel consumed this winter.

Gasoline Shortages Expected To Continue Through Summer

However, even if they get enough crude to run refineries at levels near the practical limits of capacity, spot gasoline shortages will continue through the summer unless demand is held in check, according to the Oil and Gas Journal.

And it is believed hard—maybe impossible—for refiners to meet Department of Energy distillate stock target volumes and deadlines.

DOE estimates supplies this summer will about equal 1978 summer demand. But it points out there are more motorists now than there were a year ago. And DOE's projection assumes increased crude imports.

Without more imports, gasoline stock drawdowns would buoy supplies to just 96-97 percent of 1978 levels, DOE says.

DOE and industry officials disagree on the extent to which refinery capacity limits are restricting gasoline supplies. However, they do agree that crude supplies are the bottom line. Those supplies are anything but robust, the Journal reports.

Iran still hasn't returned to prerevolution production and probably won't, at least during this summer.

Saudi Arabia seems determined to keep its production lid at 8.5 million barrels per day, after producing as much as two million barrels per day more than that during the Iranian shutdown.

On the outlook for crude supply, projections vary.

DOE is more optimistic than most oil companies, predicting as much as 200,000 barrels per day of additional crude could become available during the next 30 days and as much as 400,000 barrels per day later in the summer.

The government view is that this spring's crude squeeze, which forced refiners to allocate gasoline and other products to their customers, is the Iranian export interruption's main blow to the U.S. Having absorbed that punch, the nation can prepare to take its share of resumed Iranian exports.

Accordingly, DOE is encouraging U.S. refiners to join the bidding for spot market crude abroad, which is selling for as much as $12 per barrel more than contract prices. Earlier, DOE had urged U.S. firms to shun spot cargoes so as not to bid up prices.

Expecting increased crude supplies, DOE is urging refiners to produce increasing amounts of gasoline this summer. It earlier had stressed distillate production, encouraging refiners to rebuild alarmingly low stocks of that product at the expense of gasoline output.

Refiners are expected to be hard pressed to meet summer gasoline demand and still come close to government targets for distillate stocks.

Calculations indicate that gasoline production at 85 percent refinery utilization—about what it has been since the beginning of the year—would be 7.2 million barrels per day, at 90 percent utilization 7.8 million barrels per day. That assumes that refineries produce gasoline at about 50 percent of crude runs, the average during May-September last year.

Gasoline demand during that period of 1978 averaed 7.7 million barrels per day. Thus, it would seem that refiners could meet last year's demands if they had enough crude to boost utilization rates.

But gasoline yields probably won't be that high. One reason is the increase in demand for unleaded gasoline, which requires more crude per barrel of product.

And refiners will have to race to meet the government's distillate stock goal of 240 million barrels by Oct. 1. At normal yields and 90 percent refinery utilization, stocks would be only 194.6 million barrels by Oct. 1 if consumption remains close to last year's level.

A-J Oil News

Secondary Recovery Project Approved

AUSTIN (Special) -The Railroad Commission has approved the initiation of a pilot secondary recovery project in Crockett County that could lead to the production of an additional 2 million barrels of oil.

Chairman John H. Poerner and Commissioners Mack Wallace and James E. "Jim" Nugent recently authorized Suburban Propane Gas Corp. to initiate the project in the Refoil (3,200 sand) field. Also, they approved a unitization agreement covering 2,280 surface acres of the field.

Approval of the waterflood project and the unit pact was recommended by Senior Legal Examiner Roger Schultz and Senior Staff Engineer Willis C. Steed during a weekly conference on Oil and Gas Division matters.

Currently, there are two producing wells within the unit area which have yielded 39,000 barrels of oil since production began in 1957.

Suburban plans to initiate the pilot waterflood in the vicinity of the two wells and estimates that additional recovery of oil will amount to some 57,000 barrels as a direct result of the project.

The operator believes the pilot area had about 316,000 barrels of oil when production began more than two decades ago.

If the pilot project flood achieves expectations, Suburban plans to expand the project to cover the 510 productive acres of the unit. An engineering report submitted by Suburban indicates that expansion of the flood to the entire productive acreage will result in the recovery of an additional 2 million barrels of oil.

Injection water for the project will produce saltwater from the Canyon and Pennsylvanian formations.

The Oil and Gas Division also reports that production of Texas crude oil totaled 85,456,845 barrels in March, 1979.

The March allowable totaled 110,380,354 barrels for the month.

Fifty-seven refineries processed 146,153,038 barrels of crude oil and hydrocarbon blends during March, 1979, according to their reports to the commission.

This volume compares with 136,729,781 barrels in the previous March, according to the Administrative Services Division's monthly recapitulation of Texas refinery operations. Inputs of crude oil and blends totaled 133,305,443 barrels in February, 1979.

Texas refineries ran 122,510,712 barrels of crude oil in March, compared to 118,171,621 barrels in March, 1978, and 111,764,637 barrels in February, 1979.

Products manufactured in March, 1979, totaled 145,182,890 barrels, up from 136,778,834 barrels in the same month the previous year, and up from the 132,802,540 barrels in February, 1979.

The March, 1979, manufacture of motor gasoline totaled 59,290,437 barrels, compared to 54,933,524 barrels in the year-earlier month and 54,380,861 barrels in February, 1979.

the COIN Box

By NORMAN DAVIS

Dear Mr. Davis:
Please send address and procedure for ordering U.S. Mint Proof and Uncirculated coin sets. Thanks.-R.M.

All U.S. sets are handled through a single address. You can get on the mailing list, and receive order forms, by writing to: Bureau of the Mint, 55 Mint St., San Francisco, Calif. 94175.

• • •

Dear Mr. Davis:
I have a 1922 Liberty head silver dollar in excellent condition that has a misprint: in "In God We Trust" the Trust is printed TRVST. I wish to know the approximate value if any, and any other information you may have.-M.M.

Your coin is normal—use of V in the motto was intentional. This is a common date, and dealers pay an average of $4 to $5. The Roman letter V split into two letters, our modern U and V; the older form, V for U, often is used on buildings and sometimes on coins.

• • •

Dear Mr. Davis:
I would greatly appreciate some advice on the best means of selling off a small coin collection in order to not sell for less than it is worth. Most of my coins are silver coins of the 1940s & 1950s. I do have a large number of pennies, but all are of the 20th century.—Mrs. P.C.

There must be collectors who need your coins, but a small collection probably isn't worth the cost and work of advertising. The fastest way to sell your coins is to visit a coin dealer and take whatever he offers. It's better to visit several dealers, and accept the best offer. You can learn the average prices that dealers pay by consulting the "Handbook of United States Coins," "Buying & Selling United States Coins," "The Official Black Book of United States Coins."

• • •

Dear Mr. Davis:
Could you give me any information on a one cent piece, 1798? It is not in very good condition. It was found in a field. Thank you.—Mrs. P.V.

Common varieties of the 1798 cent retail for about $9 in About Good condition and for $19 or so in Good condition. Coin dealers will, naturally, pay less than this when buying coins. A specimen in AG is so worn that you can just tell what it is; one in Good also is badly worn, but the date and lettering are clearly readable.

Your questions are always welcome, but please enclose a self-addressed stamped envelope for a personal reply.

TODAY IN HISTORY

By The Associated Press

Today is Sunday, June 10, the 161st day of 1979. There are 204 days left in the year.

On this date in 1971, the United States lifted a 21-year-old embargo on trade with China, easing hostility between Washington and the Communist government in Peking.

On this date:

In 1776, the Continental Congress in Philadelphia named a committee to draft the Declaration of Independence.

In 1940, Italy declared war on France and Britain in World War II.

In 1967, the Middle East Six-Day War ended, with Israel holding conquered Arab territory four times its own size.

Ten years ago: The Pentagon called off a $3 billion Air Force project to put a manned laboratory in orbit, ending the first U.S. military man-in-space program.

Five years ago: President Richard Nixon arrived in Salzburg, Austria, on his way to the Middle East on what he called a mission of peace for the entire world.

Thought for today: I like a man who grins when he fights — Sir Winston Churchill, 1874-1965.

THE '79 CELEBRATION GENERATION

Concert Set At St. Luke's Church

"The '79 Celebration Generation," sponsored by Alamo Heights United Methodist Church in San Antonio, is presenting a variety concert at 7 p.m. Tuesday in St. Luke's United Methodist Church, 3717 44th St.

Approximately 33 youth comprise the touring music group from the San Antonio church and four of them are college-age youth. The group is directed by Rev. Jack C. Bush Sr., minister of music of the San Antonio congregation since 1975. He has previously served 20 years as a parish pastor and since 1977 he has served as fulltime Protestant chaplain of Santa Rosa Medical Center.

Billye Moore is tour coordinator and featured pianist with the group. Featured with the group is vocalist Debbie Dalton, a recent music degree graduate of Trinity University in San Antonio.

The singers present pop-style music, as well as contemporary and standard songs in their concerts.

"The '79 Celebration Generation" is on e 10-day tour of sharing their music with churches in Oklahoma, Kansas, Colorado and Texas. They departed from San Antonio Monday and will return Friday.

Stops on the tour for programs include Stillwater, Okla.; Jewell, Kan.; Johnstown, Palisade, Fort Carson at Colorado Springs, all in Colorado; Boise City, Okla.; Lubbock; Arlington; and Six Flags Over Texas.

Park Boasts Seven Volcanic Craters

BOGOTA, Colombia (UPI) — Purace National Park, near the historic town of Popayan, 300 miles southwest of Bogota, boasts seven volcanic craters, including Mount Purace, whose name in the Quecha Indian language means "Fire Mountain".

The park, which covers 336 square miles, has altitudes varying from 5,000 to 8,000 feet and is dotted by waterfalls and trout-filled lakes. Among 200 species of birds to be found there are the Andean condor, hawks and eagles.

Mountain Fortress Houses Unique Philippines Cave

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — A lesser-known attraction in the Philippines is the Callao cave atop a mountain fortress in the Cagayan Valley 221 miles north of Manila.

Revival To Feature Johnny Watson

WOODROW (Special)—Johnny Ray Watson, an evangelistic singer from Lorenzo, will be in revival services Wednesday, Thursday and Friday at the Cooper United Methodist Church in Woodrow.

Services will be held at 7:30 p.m. daily Wednesday through Friday.

On Friday evening the church will sponsor a spring buffet from 6 p.m. to 7 p.m. in the church fellowship hall, prior to the evening worship service.

The buffet menu includes ham, green beans, potato salad, tossed salad, rolls, pie and soft drinks.

Advance reservations for the buffet may be made by calling Mrs. Dick Cade at 828-3454, Mrs. Kelly Thomas at 863-22213 or the church office at 863-2254.

Two Named To John Knox Village Posts

John Knox Village, 1717 Norfolk, has appointed Art Carnahan executive director, and Ron Milliner assistant executive director of the Lubbock operation.

ART CARNAHAN

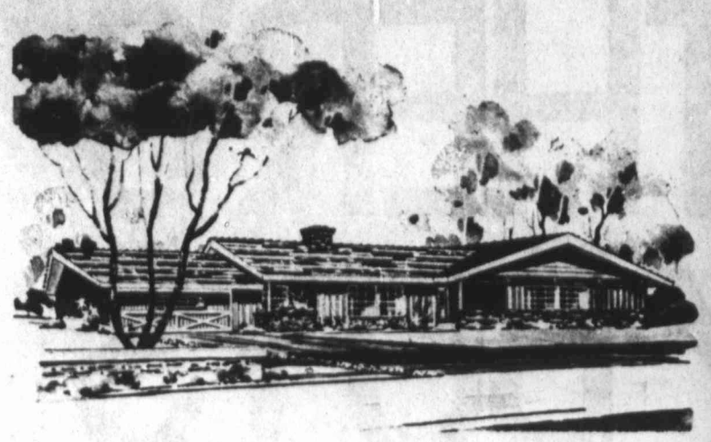

RON MILLINER

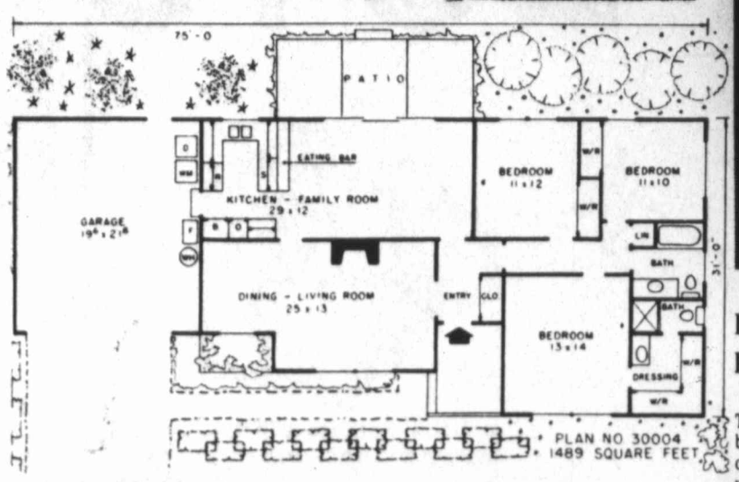

The firm, which has a $1.5 million construction project underway to add 60 units by Mid-September, currently provides retirement facilities for approximately 390 residents.

Carnahan came to Lubbock from John Knox Village at Lee's Summit, Mo., where he was assistant director. He has been in the business for approximately five years. Carnahan is a graduate of the University of Puget Sound with a degree in business.

Milliner previously was employed by the Hearthstone Nursing Home in Fort Worth for three years. He is a graduate of Southwestern Adventist College.

Carnahan said, "I enjoy being a part of the Village, and am very pleased to be a part of the Lubbock community."

Plan Designed So All Rooms Accessible From Center Hall

By HIAWATHA ESTES

Inside and out, this medium sized design has been planned to provide most of the features Americans want in a home today. The layout of the rooms has been arranged so that access to all of them is available from the center hall.

The dining-living room stretches for twenty-five feet across the front of the plan. The dining window looks out over a planter toward the street. A large wood burning fire-place in the living room has been located to facilitate furniture arrangement.

At the rear of the house is the huge kitchen-family room. Foot traffic is directed from the garage, through the kitchen in such a manner it will never interfere with the preparation of meals. Only cabinets, including an eating bar, separate the kitchen from the family room.

For a family which likes to entertain, a home with two living areas makes a good deal of sense. Youngsters have ample room to entertain in the family room-kitchen while parents and their friends utilize the living room. In fair weather, even the patio can be made a part of the family room by opening the large sliding glass doors which provide access to this area.

For construction economy, the family bath is next to the master bedroom's private bath. A dressing room is part of the master bedroom suite. For privacy none of the three bedrooms have a common wall.

The interesting roof lines of this charming ranch exterior have been achieved by breaking the roof line where the garage attaches to the house and by placing a gable roof over the front porch and master bedroom suite.

Complete working drawings for plan 30004 can be purchased for only $19.95 for the first set and $10 for each additional set ordered at the same time.This plan will be available at these special prices until October 10, 1979. Please allow at least three weeks for delivery. Also available are six home plan books illustrating nearly 1,000 plans—a $13.00 value—for only $9.95 plus $1 for postage and handling. Send all orders to: Hiawatha Estes, P.O. Box 404-J. Northridge, California 91328.

Landing Strip Planned For Southernmost City

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (UPI) — The government has announced plans to build a landing strip for commercial aircraft, including jumbo jets, in the world's most southerly city, Ushuaia.

The project, financed by the government and several private firms, should be let for bidding by the end of the year, with work beginning in the first half of 1979 and being completed within 36 months.

Ushuaia, 2,225 miles southwest of Buenos Aires at the tip of South America, currently has a landing strip which does not handle commercial airliners. Planes of a small airlines run by the air force fly tourists to Ushuaia but on a limited basis.

Mini-Vacation Provided By Australian Ferryboat

SYDNEY, Australia (UPI)—One day and a $5 ticket will give globetrotters with budgeted time a mini-vacation away from all those stopover cities.

It's aboard the Brooklyn ferry on the Hawkesburg river, island-hopping on a 25-mile circuit to deliver and pick up groceries, mail, general supplies and people at the riverside settlements.

Views of settlements fringed in by thick bush clinging to steep hillsides colored by splashes of weather-worn bare sandstone outcrops and overhangs make a free added attraction.

REFLECTIONS ON LONE PINE

(Although men have played chess on glaciers and deserts, still the town of Lone Pine in the Southern California Sierra seems a strange place for an annual gathering of cosmopolitan chess players from all over the world. Here one of the players reflects on the most recent Statham Tournament there).

By U.S. MASTER JOHN PETERS

When 73 high-rated players converge on this quiet town of 1800 people, everybody contracts chess fever. One can't walk down a street without seeing famous players talking excitedly in foreign languages. The only respite from chess is when they try to hustle each other at backgammon.

Naturally, this year, Soviet defector Viktor Korchnoi was the center of attention. The world's second-best player ("behind Fischer", he jokes) looked unhealthy and played below his usual high standard. That didn't keep the crowds from his table. Away from the board, he regaled the younger players with stories of his recent match with Karpov and of the Soviet boycott directed against him. He said that he wasn't allowed to play in the big tournaments in Bugojno and Montreal because the Soviets threatened to withdraw their players in protest.

One night, Korchnoi approached a group of players, searching for a fourth at bridge. Instead, he got Walter Browne's challenge to a blitz match at high noon in the town hall. The next day, the spectators were treated to a 3-hour speed chess shootout. Korchnoi won, 14-6.

Another favorite pastime between games was complaining about bad luck in the pairings. This year, the race for hardest schedule was between New York's Sammy Reshevsky, at 68 the oldest player, and Seattle's Yasser Seirawan, at 18 one of the youngest. Round after round, they faced top-notch Grandmasters. Appropriately, they played each other in the last round and drew. Seirawan's performance earned him the International Master title.

Homesickness can be a problem for a travelling chess pro. Dashing Argentine GM Miguel Quinteros solved it by bringing his whole family. When they learned that it was New Zealander Murray Chandler's 19th birthday, they invited him to dinner and surprised him with a homemade birthday cake.

Czech GM Vlastimil Hort, inspired by seeing the western landscape and a real Indian, compared the Lone Pine tournament to a movie. It wasn't too farfetched an idea. For two weeks, the chess actors played their roles. Then the cast departed until next year, when the director will have them do it all again. Though the actors change and new stars are born, the show goes on. This bit player hopes the Lone Pine show will continue for many years.

The solution to the problem above is: 1.B-N5, RxQch; 2.PxR-N mate; or 1.B-N5, NxB; 2.QxR mate; or 1.B-N5, RxB; 2.PxP mate, etc.

THE U.S. AND YOU

William Steif

YOU WANT TO borrow $100.

One lender tells you the interest rate is 7 percent—$7—plus a $1 service fee, and you have to pay back at the end of a year.

The second lender tells you the interest rate is 7 percent, the service fee $1, and you have to pay back $9 a month in 12 equal installments.

The finance charge is the same, but the annual percentage rate you'd pay the first lender is 8 percent, while the annual percentage rate you'd pay the second lender is 14.5 percent. Note that paying back $9 a month permits you to use less and less of your borrowed $100 over the year.

This little lesson comes from a new, 46-page booklet, Consumer Handbook to Credit Protection laws, which is available free by sending a postcard to the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 659G, Pueblo, Colo., 81009.

The handbook is the clearest explanation in print of consumer credit legislation enacted by Congress since 1968, when the first federal truth-in-lending act became law.

The handbook, compiled by the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System, tells you that you:

—Can no longer be refused a credit card just because you're a single woman.

—Can limit your risk if a credit card is lost or stolen.

—Can't have your credit shut off just because you reach the age of 65.

THE HANDBOOK'S FIRST section gives examples of finance charges and annual percentage rates, and tells you how to shop for what you need.

The handbook discusses the three methods of calculating payments on open-end credit. Some companies charge interest on your adjusted balance; they deduct the payments you've made from your previous balance and charge interest only on what you still owe at the end of a monthly billing period.

Other companies charge monthly interest on your previous balance, whether or not you've made any payments during the month. That's more costly to you.

Still other companies charge monthly interest on average daily balance, adding your balances for each day in the biling period and then dividing by the number of days in the billing period. That costs less than paying on the previous balance, more than on the adjusted balance.

The difference in one month's interest cost can be considerable. The point is that companies tell you when finance charges start on your credit account, so you know how much time you have to pay your bills before paying interest. Some firms will give you a 30-day "free ride."

The handbook describes leasing costs and terms, and gives you a rundown on "open-end leases" and "balloon payments," those hefty charges at the end of a lease.

HOME SETTLEMENT costs are covered under a separate disclosure law, administered by the Department of Housing and Urban Development. The handbook tells you where to go for information on this: Write to Assistant Secretary for Consumer Affairs and Regulatory Functions, Attention: RESPA Office, US-HUD, 451 Seventh St., SW, Room 4100, Washington, DC, 2;00410.

Then the handbook goes into the problem of applying for credit, noting that creditors normally look for "the three C's" — capacity, character and collateral.

But creditors are barred by law from discriminating the way they used to do. You still have to pass the test for credit, but the creditor must apply the tests fairly. That means no discrimination.

The booklet tells you what to do if you've been turned down, how to build your credit rating, what to do about mistakes and where to complain. Get it.
