Some unhappy with MISD's proposed boundary changes

By Ed Todd
Staff Writer

Some residents of the Midland Independent School District were not pleased with the Friday announcement of proposed boundary changes to end the cluster system and usher in neighborhood schools.

"The only children having neighborhood schools are Anglo children," argued Dr. Viola Coleman, one of the plaintiff-intervenors who helped bring about the agreed judgment under which MISD has operated its cluster system for 30 years.

Coleman's remarks came after MISD Superintendent Joseph Baressi Jr. on Friday listed 14 elementary schools that, by federal decree, must be "not racially identifiable" by the 2000-2001 school year.

"As far as our (black and Hispanic) children are concerned, they will be bused the whole 12 years of the public education," Dr. Coleman said.

"Did you see any kids being moved from Greathouse (on Midland's west side), from Santa Rita (in north Midland) or from Fannin (in north-central Midland)?" asked Alma Marshall, a retired MISD administrator and school teacher.

The proposed changes to achieve racial balance were outlined by Baressi for 14 of the district's 23 elementary schools. And those 14 schools, according to MISD spokesman Barney Welch, were recommended to the MISD trustees by Baressi's staff and influenced by the U.S. Department of Justice.

"My personal intent is provide a better school system than what we have — a school that does have continuity, grades K through six," Baressi said.

"To the extent possible, we have moved kids to elementary schools where they would be able to stay with their peers all the way through high school. That hasn't been universally possible. That's what we attempted to do."

Council to hold press conference to announce name of sports complex

By Ian Heald
Staff Writer

The City Council has scheduled a 10:45 a.m. press conference on Tuesday to announce the name of the upcoming sports complex.

Many in the community have said that it should be named after the Scharbauer family because of their generous donations to the city and their contribution of land that will be the site of the new facility.

The Scharbauers initially made it clear they didn't want that kind of attention, Councilman Lee Wood said.

But now, says Wood, "There has been some discussion about changing that."

When asked whether the complex would be named after the Scharbauer family, Mayor Bobby Burns said he could not comment. When asked if there were any other possible names for the stadium he said there were, but would not specify. The Scharbauers could not be reached for comment.

Following the Nov. 1 approval of a sales tax increase for the construction of the sports complex, Wood said the issue of naming the complex would not be dealt with until construction began in

Washburn says he will not seek re-election to City Council, plans to support Morgan

By Ian Heald
Staff Writer

Councilman Don Washburn says he will not seek re-election and instead will support LuAnn Morgan in her bid for his District 1 seat. Washburn says he'd like to spend less time worrying about city issues and more time focusing on family and work. Washburn had been on the council since June 1, 1998.

"Right now I'm probably going to support LuAnn Morgan in District 1," Washburn said. "But, I'm going to stop short of fully endorsing her until the filing deadline. I don't want me endorsing her to keep somebody else from running. The more people we have file the better chances we have of getting the best candidate. But, I'll support her over Robin Donnelly. I couldn't support Donnelly. He hasn't been exposed to a lot we do at the city. LuAnn has. She's been committed to economic development and the betterment of the city."

Washburn enjoyed his tenure on council but didn't enjoy the issues where the council was divided for personal political benefit.

"I enjoyed being a part of a council that sought to make Midland the best town it could be. I enjoyed it when personal agendas were set aside and council worked togeth-

E-mail about poisoned boy latest hoax to make rounds

By Rick McLaughlin
Staff Writer

Hoaxes and urban legends have been around for a long time, but the computer and the World Wide Web have brought these forms of misinformation to a new level.

Nowadays, the Internet is the hot spot for hoaxes — whether cruel, funny, harmless or vindictive. A recent twist is an e-mail circulating around the world that tells the story of Kevin Archer, 3, who supposedly died from a accidental injection of heroin received while playing in a McDonald's ball pit in Midland.

The e-mail says Kevin's death was reported in the Oct. 10 edition of a newspaper called "the Midland Chronicle."

Forwarded in the e-mail is an account written in the first person, purportedly by the boy's mother. After returning home from a McDonald's, where the boy played in the ball pit, the e-mail says, Lauren Archer found a welt on her son's backside, something like a splinter.

Ms. Archer made an appointment to have it removed, the account continues, but in the meantime, the boy became very sick, with shaking, "and then his eyes rolled back into his head."

Kevin dies, the account goes on, and an autopsy reveals the cause of death as a fatal dose of heroin.

The following week, according to the e-mail, police removed all the balls from the pit and there was rotten food, several hypodermic needles, knives, half-eaten candy, diapers and some human waste.

Now, other mothers have been relaying the story to the Midland Reporter-Telegram expressing great concern. "Before I forward it to others," wrote Tracey Dingus, "I wanted to check it out to see if it is actually true."

Sheila Shanks e-mailed similar concerns and questions."It scared me. I was worried about what if it happened to my two boys," Dawn Marquez told the Reporter-Telegram. "It would scare anybody."

Ms. Marquez, who has Internet access, said she comes to Midland from Odessa at least once a month and allows the boys to play in the playground and in the ball pit in particular. "Why would anyone do that? Are they trying to get at McDonald's?"

McDonald's doesn't know and refused to say much about the hoax. Chad Roberson of the Midland McDonald's on North Loop 250 laughed at first, and said they had heard the story, but that version was about a Kevin Archer and McDonald's in Houston. The newspaper in Houston is, of course — The Houston Chronicle.

Roberson denied there was any truth to the story at all and beyond that said the company has no comment.

A check of back issues of the Midland Reporter-Telegram revealed no such story printed in this newspaper, at least not in the period the e-mail alleges.

"I sent a copy of the story to my sister-in-law in Guam and my brother-in-law in Hobbs," said Ms. Marquez, "but I sent them a letter back

Cohen says North Korea ready to talk about U.S. war remains

MUNICH, Germany (AP) — North Korea has tentatively agreed to meetings with American officials to discuss its dispute to have unearthed remains of hundreds of Americans killed in the Korean War, Defense Secretary William Cohen said Friday.

"They apparently have agreed to discuss the number of remains and the conflict in the accounting, and we would assume there would be a full discussion of returning those remains," Cohen said in an interview. He was in Munich to attend a weekend conference on European security.

The Pentagon believes the North Koreans have only two sets of remains. North Korea insisted again Friday that the number is about 400. It challenged the Pentagon to send experts to confirm the claim.

Cohen said U.S. officials are "willing and eager" to discuss this with the North Koreans "at some appropriate place," as yet undecided. His spokesman, Kenneth Bacon, said North Korean officials admitted to the Pentagon this week that they have in their possession only two sets of remains.

The North Koreans' reference to 400 apparently reflects an earlier U.S. estimate of how many Americans were killed on the battlefields in the area of North Korea, near Unsan, where the two remains were found, Bacon said.

A North Korean official told The Associated Press, however, the actual number of war remains in the possession of the Korean People's Army is 405. Li Gun, a deputy representative at North Korea's mission to the United Nations, said in a telephone interview that the number was revised to 405 from an earlier estimate of 415 due to a "technical mistake" which he did not explain.

Li insisted the Pentagon was wrong in saying that North Korea admitted to having only two sets of remains. He said U.S. officials would be welcome in North Korea to view the remains.

Talks between the United States and North Korea on recovery of war remains broke off last December when the Clinton administration refused to discuss a North Korean condition that the Americans provide humanitarian aid in the form of clothing for all North Korean children. The Pentagon is willing to pay only the costs of recovery operations.

The Pentagon is now willing to send a small team of forensics experts to North Korea from the Army's Central Identification Laboratory in Hawaii to see the remains the North Koreans have recovered, a Pentagon official said. North Korea says it unearthed the remains during bulldozing at a land reclamation project.

Renewed talks would be meant to define what the U.S. forensics experts would do in examining the remains and other evidence the North Koreans claim to have.

Bacon said it was possible that the talks could go beyond the immediate problem of the disputed 400 sets of remains to encompass the broader subject of a 2000 agenda for new joint recovery operations.

North Korea last week asserted that it found the remains in an area where large-scale American losses were sustained in early November 1950 at the outset of China's entry into the war. The area is about 60 miles north of Pyongyang, the capital.

When it disclosed the finding last week, North Korea also said that among the identifying materials it unearthed was the U.S. military identification tag of Charles E. Sizemore, of Rushville, Ind. Pentagon records show Sizemore, a 20-year-old Army corporal, was declared missing Nov. 2, 1950.

Li said today that Sizemore's dog tag was found among four or five sets of remains, along with helmets and other indications that the remains found in this area are American.

About 8,200 American servicemen are listed as missing from the 1950-53 Korean War. Over the past three years the Pentagon has participated in joint recovery operations with North Korea and found 42 sets of remains.

Coup rumors denied as Indonesia's security chief refuses to quit

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — Indonesia's powerful security minister ignored for a third time the president's demand that he resign, while the army chief of staff denied Friday that soldiers would overthrow the democratically elected government.

However, army head Gen. Tyasno Sudarto warned that the situation was "now becoming dangerous."

President Abdurrahman Wahid is engaged in a bitter power struggle with Gen. Wiranto, a former military commander accused by government investigators of allowing pro-Indonesia militias to devastate East Timor after its August vote for independence.

Wiranto, who led the armed forces at the time, denies any responsibility for the violence. He has ignored repeated calls from Wahid to resign from the Cabinet.

Earlier this week, Wahid twice publicly threatened to fire Wiranto if he does not quit before the president returns from a two-week European and Asian tour on Feb. 13.

On Friday, Defense Minister Juwono Sudarsono said he had again conveyed the president's request to Wiranto. But he said Wiranto, who like many Indonesians uses only one name, did not react to the order.

"I guarantee as an institution the Indonesian army will not launch a coup."
— Tyasno Sudarto, army head general

"Let us be patient and wait until president (Wahid) returns on Feb. 13," Sudarsono said.

An Indonesian government report condemning Wiranto and five other senior generals echoes the findings of a U.N. inquiry. The attorney general will decide whether to prosecute within three months.

Attempting to dispel persistent rumors that commanders loyal to Wiranto might try to overthrow the president, Sudarto pledged support for Wahid on Friday.

"I guarantee as an institution the Indonesian army will not launch a coup," Sudarto said.

Later the official Antara news agency quoted him as saying: "In principle, the situation now is becoming dangerous, (it is) uncertain."

Wahid assumed office in October as the first freely elected head of state in 44 years. He has antagonized the military elite by whittling away at their position and power.

Many analysts say the military is too divided to stage a coup and that sections within it — particularly the air force and navy — strongly support Wahid's democratic reforms.

In Germany on Friday, Wahid strongly denied rumors that commanders loyal to Wiranto might try to overthrow the government. "No, no, no," he responded to a reporter's shouted question about the possibility of a coup as he rushed out of a meeting with German Chancellor Gerhard Schroeder.

Wahid had said Thursday that he ordered armed forces head Adm. Widodo Adisutjipto and national police chief Gen. Rusdihardjo to crack down on any attempt to disrupt order. Both men were appointed by Wahid and are believed loyal to the president.

The president had said a group of army generals had held a secret meeting in the Indonesian capital, not far from the presidential palace.

"We fully control the situation, so they have to be careful about what they are doing," Wahid said.

Refugees await new Austrian government with anxiety

TRAISKIRCHEN, Austria (AP) — His home is a refugee camp, his future unsettled. And suddenly, Ben Desmond Ibegbulem has an additional worry — Austria's new government.

"We heard the news," the Nigerian immigrant says, his voice calm but his eyes watchful, when asked about the coalition giving anti-foreigner rightists half the Cabinet posts. "We are afraid."

Ibegbulem's days at the sprawling Traiskirchen camp, home to about 600 refugees from all over the world, are divided between working in the kitchens and spending time with his wife and 1-year-old son in a cluttered room fragrant with the spicy scents of African food.

One thought has nagged him since arriving in Austria more than two years ago: Would they be able to stay?

The chances of being granted political asylum or immigrant status were dim even before an agreement signed this week gave Joerg Haider and his Freedom Party an equal say in government.

Now, the party's record of vehement opposition to immigration, leavened with the racist statements of some of its prominent members, has made Ibegbulem and others at the camp even more worried about their future.

Their worries are not without foundation.

Austrians fear foreigners to a degree at odds with their status as citizens of one of Europe's most prosperous and — until recently — most politically stable countries.

Close to 10 percent of Austria's 7.8 million people are foreigners, most from Yugoslavia or its former republics, Turkey and other East European or Balkan countries. Violence against them is rare — but that does not mean they are liked.

A government survey last year showed 77 percent of the 2,000 Austrians questioned believe foreigners should adopt a more "Austrian" lifestyle. Fifty-nine percent equated a growing number of foreign residents with higher crime. And more than 40 percent believed foreigners took jobs from Austrians, according to the survey, which gave no margin of error.

Even as part of the opposition, the Freedom Party was able to set policy on foreigners. Governments made up of other parties had little choice but to tighten immigration rules and quotas to keep their supporters from switching to the Freedom Party.

This year's immigration quota, drawn up by the outgoing coalition of Social Democrats and the conservative People's Party, was set at 8,000 people, down sharply from 15,000 five years ago.

"Since 1993, the government coalition has adopted without question the Freedom Party's demands on restrictive immigration," says Martin Schenk, a human rights expert with Diakonie Oesterreich, an Austrian Protestant Church organization that helps asylum seekers. "This led to Austria adopting one of the tightest permanent entry policies of any European countries."

Still, Schenk says that U.S. and European pressure on Haider and his party to respect democracy and human rights should prevent further anti-foreigner moves beyond fairly harmless Freedom Party proposals such as tests of German language and knowledge of Austria for those wanting citizenship.

The existing situation is bad enough, he says.

"A lot of my friends, particularly from A a, are often sworn at on the street, says Schenk. "A lot of them have packed up and left."

Ibegbulem, a 35-year-old camera salesman from Lagos who says tribal differences and his political affiliations prevent him from going home, says authorities are reviewing his appeal after rejecting the family's request for asylum. If that and a final appeal are turned down, they face deportation — something his wife, Franca, says is equal to a death sentence.

"If we go back, we are dead," she says. "It's better they kill us here."

The fate of a friend, Marcus Omofuma, adds to their anxieties.

Omofuma died in May while being forcibly deported from Austria, after police accompanying him on a flight to Nigeria taped his mouth shut. Witnesses said police increased the amount of tape every time he screamed, as well as tightening a leather belt around his chest.

Asylum seekers crowd the mess hall of the Traiskirchen refugee camp south of Vienna on Thursday.

Midlander gets 30-year sentence for assault

By Rick McLaughlin
Staff Writer

A 385th District Court jury gave a 37-year-old Midland man 30 years in prison Wednesday after he confessed to the jury that he was guilty of an aggravated sexual assault committed in April of 1998.

Malcom Wade Clark was accused of entering a woman's house in northwest Midland and waiting for her to return home, according to Assistant District Attorney Robin Malone Sams. "He had a knife and he threatened to cut her — he'd use it," Ms. Sams said.

Ms. Sams said Clark was not immediately apprehended, and instead actually returned to the scene of the original crime about six months later in the early hours of the morning. A neighbor saw a man later identified as the defendant, crawling over the victim's back fence, she noted.

"The neighbor called police and gave them a license plate number." she said. "After he was interviewed by police the first time, he denied any connection with the sexual assault in November of 1998.

Ms. Sams said Clark was told by investigators that he was a prime suspect. "He attempted to commit suicide the next day on November 1998," Ms. Sams said. "He said he confessed because he felt so guilty about it," she added.

Clark's trial before Judge Willy DuBose started Monday.

NAME: City could sell naming rights

(From 1A)

May. Wood says the city could sell naming rights for $2 million to $3 million over the course of a specified period of time. "I think we're just pushing ideas around," Wood said.

Another issue would be how long naming rights would last. There could be a variety of arrangements, Wood has said, such as a contract on the name of 10, 15 or 20 years.

Councilman Don Washburn said the city has seriously considered naming the complex, then selling the naming rights to the two individual fields.

"That's been talked about," Washburn said. "We've had a lot of interest. I'm not sure you can say they were offers. We haven't had a bona fide offer yet. We're still trying to determine what the value is."

Burns says things can change between now and Tuesday and that the naming of the complex and the press conference could be deferred until a later date.

CITY: Washburn says he has not enjoyed people 'putting personal political issues first'

(From 1A)

er. I haven't enjoyed people putting personal political issues first."

He cited the Fairgrounds Road renaming issue as an example of that. In August the City Council voted down the renaming of Fairgrounds Road to Martin Luther King Boulevard because many community members cited Fairgrounds Road as an historical landmark that should not be renamed.

"No one ever convinced me that the name change would do anything but split this town," Washburn said. "We offered other streets but weren't met with a spirit of cooperation. I got on City Council to make Midland a better place to live. That community center Jose and I worked on getting will do a lot more for this community (than naming a street Martin Luther King Blvd.)."

Councilman Juluis Brooks, who spearheaded the name-change proposal, adamantly denies ever doing it for personal political gain. "We didn't always see things eye-to-eye," said Brooks of he and Washburn. "We didn't always agree. I can appreciate that Don had sense enough not to seek re-election against a competitor like LuAnn Morgan."

Another issue to strike a chord throughout the city was the forced resignation of former City Manager Mike McGregor. "I still stand by my decision and feel we needed to go in a different direction than Mike," Washburn said. "We made the right call in heading in a new direction."

The leak of the McGregor situation to the media divided the council, he said. "It was unethical of Channel 2 and Mike Barker for them to say we had already picked a successor, but we never had. They never confirmed that story with anybody. They went to interview the mayor under the guise of another story — that was unethical."

Mike Barker took offense at that comment.

"I see nothing unethical about approaching the mayor about personnel matters in the city," Barker said. "I assume Washburn has sour grapes because the outcome didn't turn out the way he wanted. There is nothing unethical about us approaching any public official about actions they will take or might take. If he can't stand the heat he needs to get out of the kitchen. I stand by my story."

Washburn said choosing Rick Menchaca over Glen Hackler for the city manager position was not easy.

"What swayed me in the end was talking to various city employees and department heads in City Hall — 12 in all," Washburn said. "A good majority of those supported Rick."

Washburn will submit his resignation from the 4b Corporation on June 1, he said. Stepping down from the board that oversees the sports complex, Washburn said, is the appropriate thing to do in his situation.

Whether he remains on the board, however, is up to the council, he said. "I'd be honored and willing to serve if they choose me again," Washburn said.

Ex-officio terms last one year, but can be renewed by the City Council. Washburn's term would end in September.

"I'd be sorry to hear that if he does do that," said Lee Wood, of Washburn's possible 4b resignation. "He brings a tremendous amount of insight with him. Don's a great guy. I think the world of him. He'll be sorely missed. He brought a nice sense of humor about everything."

HOAX: There are many urban legends circulating on Web

saying its not true."

And there are many more fantastic stories out there that aren't true as well. They are listed in several anti-hoax Web sites on the very Internet that carries the hoaxes. One such site is hoaxkill.com and another is stiller.com, an anti-virus distributor that runs news of hoaxes as a public service.

Hoaxkill.com carries such classics as the "Racist Social Security Number" which alleges that the sixth number in one's Social Security number is code identifying the race of the bearer.

On the dark side, others claim there is a conspiracy to use the bodies of dead children to smuggle drugs or that poisonous snakes have been found in the ball pits of Burger King. An older hoax claims that certain temporary tattoo transfers are laced with LSD.

Others are not so dire, such as the funding petition for the Public Broadcasting System (PBS) or the petition calling for intervention for women in Pakistan.

Stiller.com carries a list of the current top five hoaxes on the Net, which now include "The Wobbler," a California Virus Hoax, the "Win a Free Holiday Trip" hoax, the ElfBowl and Frogpult Virus hoax, the "Guts to say Jesus" hoax and the Pass It On/one line virus hoaxes.

The site also has many hoaxes of recent years, including the Kevin Archer story, listed as the Ball Pit Hoax.

"We see stuff like that come across the Web just about every day," said Keith Yarbrough, UTPB vice president and director of information resources. "Some (hoaxes) are so prevalent they have become lore — urban legends. You can tell if someone is new to the Internet because they send one and ask it if is true," Yarbrough said.

Stiller.com suggests that many of the hoaxes are ment to instill distrust of government, business or people, especially strangers, such as in the numerous mall parking lot legends of exposers or rapists.

"It gets to be a question of can you believe anything out there?" Yarbrough said. "For absolutely no technical reason, we tend to believe e-mail that is sent to us. There is something about technology that makes dissemination of that type of material easier."

People tend to believe something that comes off the Internet," he noted. "What's ironic about it, hoaxes are a virus by itself."

Yarbrough is optimistic about the future of the Internet and the information on it. "I think as more of the population becomes more Internet savvy, the problem will probably get better. The Internet is just like a city — there are good parts and bad parts. The Internet is a reflection of our society. We don't take as fact everything we see on TV and we shouldn't take as gospel everything we get on the Internet."

MISD: Public meeting to be held Tuesday

(From 1A)

Judge Edward Prado of San Antonio, stipulated the MISD "shall redraw and implement attendance zone lines" so that by the 2000-2001 school year, at least 14 elementary schools "are not racially identifiable."

Six elementary schools are to have an Anglo enrollment within 10 percent of the district-wide Anglo enrollment of 45 percent. Eight schools are to be within 15 percent of the Anglo percentage. The resulting percentages would be 35 to 55 percent and 30 to 60 percent.

A public input meeting on the MISD proposals is to be held at 7:15 p.m. on Tuesday, Feb. 8, at Alamo Junior High School, and at 7:15 p.m. on Tuesday, Feb. 22, at Robert E. Lee Freshman High School.

In noting that Midland schools are not "totally integrated," Baressi said the proposed plan "calls for as much or more integration than we have. Essentially, it is a K-6 plan."

MISD school board President Rebecca Oekerman noted some Midland elementary schools are "almost 100 percent" Anglo, and some are almost entirely black and Hispanic.

"Our goal is to move the least amount students possible," she said. "We want everyone to be able to stay home that can possibly stay home."

"If neighborhood schools work and they are the plan of choice, why don't we do it all the way up?" Ms. Marshall asked. "If that is a valid educational concept that neighborhood schools work best, then they ought to work best in elementary schools. They ought to work best in junior high schools. They ought to work best in high school.

"Nobody has ever shown me a study or proven to me that when you get on the bus, it lowers your IQ," she said.

Ms. Marshall said that she and her allies are "determined that all of that movement and the burden of that movement is not going to be on children of color."

A statement released by the intervenors, including Dr. Coleman, in the lawsuit against MISD said that "It is important that the Midland community understand that the Plaintiff Intervenors ... will not support any plan that places the burden of bussing on children who live in south and east Midland. It has been our position that a bus that carries a child to west Midland should bring one to east Midland."

Listed as intervenors were the Permian Basin League of United Latin American Citizens, the Midland LULAC, and the Coleman intervenors.

The intervenors "continue to support the concept of an integrated society, one in which all children, regardless of race, ethnicity or socioeconomic status, are treated equally."

Ms. Marshall noted, for example, that there would be room for minority students at Greathouse "if you move some of the Greathouse (Anglo) kids out."

Robbyne Fuller, founding president of the Midland Black Chamber of Entrepreneurs and wife of MISD trustee James Fuller, lamented that "the rent just went up. You've got to live in west Midland in order to attend a school in west Midland."

Officers arrest four, seize 473 pounds of marijuana

From staff reports

ODESSA — State and federal law enforcement officers arrested four men and seized 473 pounds of marijuana and small quantities of heroin and cocaine late Friday night, according to Lt. Robert Ralls, of the Texas Department of Public Safety Narcotics division.

Agents of the Texas Department of Public Safety Narcotics Service out of Midland and Alpine, with FBI agents from Midland and officers of the West Texas Narcotics Task Force executed a search warrant on a residence in West Odessa about 10 p.m., Ralls said. Odessa Police Department assisted with a canine unit.

The joint investigation will result in federal prosecution for the suspects, Ralls said.

The street value of the marijuana was estimated at about $269,000.

I reside in Midland, but I Live at Midland Community Theatre.

My family became involved in MCT when my wife, Shauna, led tours of the theatre as a volunteer member of Act IX. Besides enjoying the wonderful musicals and shows at the theatre, my daughter, Meredith, enrolled in acting classes and subsequently performed in several shows, including The Wizard of Oz and A Christmas Carol. As a parent of a performer, I attended rehearsals, helped with "kid-wrangling" during performances, and broke down theatre sets.

Finally, Meredith and I decided to try out for The Music Man. Luckily, we were both cast. This show is a blast for every cast member, with lots of singing, dancing, and excuses not to do chores or homework. Living recently at MCT has been a dream come true.

U.S. troops on humanitarian mission 'invade' Haitian city

CAP-HAITIEN, Haiti (AP) — When they pulled in last month, the 120 U.S. Air Force engineers and National Guard medics were armed enough to spur a worried buzz that the Americans had invaded again. But these reservists have a different mission: to provide much needed medical and humanitarian services.

This week, dozens of bedraggled people gathered outside the Baptist Church of Christ, waiting to be treated by National Guard medics at a makeshift clinic.

Jeunisse Dorsin, 19, cuddled 4-month-old Isaac Evenson. Both suffered from a virulent skin irritation and the baby was too weak to even suckle. "There's nowhere else to go for care," the young mother said. "I don't have the money."

Next door, some 30 Air Force engineers were laying the foundations of a new four-room dormitory for an orphanage. U.S. troops will rewire the electrical system, extend the dining area and build a latrine.

The 10-week humanitarian mission is all that remains of a once-mighty U.S. presence that began five years ago, when 20,000 U.S. troops led an intervention to kick out military dictators and restore elected rulers to Haiti.

'When we got here, some people yelled unpleasant things. But now they're warming up to us. They understand that we're not an invasion force, that we're here to help.'

— Ronald Pierre, U.S. Air Force electrician

In 1996, the peacekeeping mission was converted into a humanitarian one in the capital, Port-au-Prince.

That mission — which wound down last month — provided 138,000 people with medical treatment, distributed more than 85 tons of donated goods and clothing, repaired and drilled scores of water wells, built or repaired 50 schools, and constructed or repaired roads, a bridge and a boat ramp.

The mission in Cap-Haitien, an impoverished town on the north coast, is part of a series of rotating, short-term humanitarian efforts staffed by a mix of reservists and active-duty soldiers.

"We're trying to incorporate Haiti in our New Horizons program, the same as elsewhere in Latin America," said the camp commander, Air Force Maj. Carl Jerrett, 36, of Havelock, N.C.

Those currently assigned to Cap-Haitien will leave by March. From May to October, other troops will repair and renovate Justinien Hospital in Cap-Haitien.

After that, "if things go well, the military will look to move on to Jacmel," on the south coast, said a spokeswoman, Lt. Col. Lisa Bogdansky, 41, of North Salt Lake, Utah.

"Life here opens your eyes. The people are so poor and yet so friendly," said Kevin Black, 36, of Colorado Springs, who took time off from nursing school to volunteer for duty in Haiti.

Although most local people seemed happy enough to host the Americans, some were concerned by the emphasis on security: 45 heavily armed army soldiers, there to protect their colleagues, account for more than a third of mission members.

"It's a virtual occupation!" exclaimed electrician Ronald Pierre, 40. "To do what they say they are going to do, they don't need weapons!"

But gradually the U.S. force has been accepted.

"When we got here, some people yelled unpleasant things," he said. "But now they're warming up to us. They understand we're not an invasion force, that we're here to help."

Seven days until Belfast Cabinet loses power, British minister warns

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Britain announced Friday that it will strip authority from Northern Ireland's power-sharing Cabinet in just seven days if the Irish Republican Army doesn't confirm it will disarm.

The timing, revealed for the first time by Northern Ireland Secretary Peter Mandelson, means the Cabinet would be rendered powerless the day before Northern Ireland's major Protestant party, the Ulster Unionists, plans to vote on whether to remain in the four-party administration.

The British government considers Ulster Unionist leader David Trimble's survival as party and Cabinet leader essential. He has previously faced down Protestant opposition at critical moments of compromise, but agreed to share power with the IRA-allied Sinn Fein party only on condition that IRA disarmament followed.

This week's long-awaited report by the province's independent disarmament commission said IRA representatives had offered no commitments.

In a detailed speech Friday justifying his high-risk strategy, Mandelson said 1998's Belfast peace accord had challenged every interest group in Northern Ireland to make painful breaks with its past.

That means the province's British Protestant majority had been required to accept both early paroles for IRA prisoners and Sinn Fein as Cabinet colleagues, Mandelson said.

It also means disarmament must "underwrite with actions the paramilitaries' stated commitment to peace," he said.

But Sinn Fein leader Gerry Adams angrily accused Mandelson of undermining his efforts to win a shift in the IRA's position.

"At the time when we were actually talking to the IRA, what does Peter Mandelson do? He accuses them of betraying the process," Adams said, referring to comments the British minister made Thursday in announcing a bill to suspend the Cabinet's powers.

Adams insisted the outlawed group was "an undefeated army" and as such shouldn't be obliged to scrap its network of hidden arms dumps, a process the peace accord envisaged should conclude by May.

The question of when, if ever, disarmament would commence has overshadowed peacemaking efforts here for several years. But the British and Irish governments appear united in forcing the IRA to make its position clear in the coming crucial days.

Irish Prime Minister Bertie Ahern, who held an emergency summit Thursday night with his British counterpart Tony Blair, defended the plan to suspend powers in Belfast in seven days.

"Decommissioning is an issue that will not go away. It is part of the agreement and has to apply," Ahern said. He added that he could not be confident that the IRA would offer "the clarity we all require."

In Washington, President Clinton said he and his National Security Council team were "working intensely" in consultation with the British and Irish governments and Sinn Fein to avert a Belfast breakdown.

In his address Friday to the Institute of Irish Studies at the University of Liverpool, Mandelson drew comparisons between the current crisis and failed efforts a generation ago to run a power-sharing Cabinet in Northern Ireland.

That Cabinet collapsed in 1974 after five months under the combined weight of a Protestant general strike and IRA attacks.

"Is history repeating itself? Are we about to squander yet another golden chance to end forever the conflict in Northern Ireland?" Mandelson asked.

He said the answer would depend on whether the IRA "at this late, late hour" could "demonstrate clearly that they are dedicated to this process, to prove to us that the bill to pause the institutions is not necessary."

Sinn Fein members and supporters protest outside the Ulster Unionist Party Headquarters in Belfast, Northern Ireland, Friday. They were protesting at the Ulster Unionist stance on decommissioning and the threat of them bringing the new coalition government down.

Police arrest hundreds in Bolivia

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP) — Police and soldiers used tear gas, clubs and whips Friday to scatter thousands of rock-throwing demonstrators protesting a 20 percent increase in water prices in Cochabamba, Bolivia's third largest city.

At least 200 protesters were arrested and dozens injured, including two who are in critical condition, the police reported.

The confrontations lasted all day in Cochabamba, 350 miles southeast of La Paz. Thousands of farmers threatened to surround the city and block all access routes. Soldiers and police were deployed throughout the city and surrounding areas.

The government said it will declare a state of siege in the city if order is not restored, but set no deadline.

Officials said at least 10,000 people joined the protests, bringing the city of 500,000 people to a virtual standstill. Hundreds of tear gas canisters were fired as protesters blocked city streets, set up roadblocks and threw rocks at police. Police also used dogs and whips in response to the protests.

Civic leaders said the protests would continue with thousands of farmers and city residents preparing to block roads leading to the city unless the government reverses its decision to increase water prices.

The government says the increase is necessary to fund the expansion of the city's water supply system, including the construction of a multimillion-dollar tunnel pipeline. Water shortages have been common.

Unemployment hits 30-year low of 4 percent

By Jeannine Aversa
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — America's historic economic expansion propelled the unemployment rate to a 30-year low of 4 percent in January, giving many workers the best labor market they have seen since taking their first job.

Trying to keep pace with the roaring economy, employers added a whopping 387,000 jobs to their payrolls last month, the largest leap since September 1997, the Labor Department reported Friday.

Usually January isn't a big month for hiring, but the better-than-normal weather early in the month gave a big boost to employment, particularly in construction and other fields that tend to flourish when the weather is good, economists said.

The dip in January's unemployment rate — down from December's 4.1 percent — was the lowest jobless rate since January 1970 when it stood at 3.9 percent.

"This is a very positive labor market for U.S. workers, particularly those left behind by previous expansions," said Jared Bernstein, an economist with the Economic Policy Institute, a group funded in part by labor. "It's delivering broad-based gains throughout the work force. ... It's lifting the rowboats, not just the yachts."

The unemployment rate for Hispanics fell to an all-time monthly low of 5.6 percent in January, while the rate for blacks rose to 8.2 percent, up from 7.9 percent the month before.

On Tuesday, the economy entered 107 months of uninterrupted economic growth, the longest expansion in U.S. history, beating the old mark of 106 months set during the 1960s.

"Today's strong employment numbers confirm once and for all that this is the longest economic expansion in our history," President Clinton told reporters at the White House. "The milestone is a credit to the American people, to their hard work."

The Federal Reserve boosted interest rates Wednesday by a quarter of a percentage point — the fourth increase since June — to help ensure the expansion stays on track. The Fed raised rates to slow the red-hot economy and keep inflation under control.

Many analysts, citing continuing strong economic growth, expect additional rate increases this year and said Friday's report justifies such a move at the Fed's next meeting in March.

"The economy still has plenty of momentum and more Fed tightening is coming down the pike," said Merrill Lynch's chief economist, Bruce Steinberg.

Wall Street, which has been volatile in recent sessions, offered a mixed reaction to the report. The Dow Jones closed down 49.64 points at 10,963.80 and bond prices slid as the yield on the bellwether 30-year Treasury rose to 6.27 percent from 6.13 percent late Thursday. But the Nasdaq blazed a new record, finishing up 33.16 points to 4,244.14, surpassing its previous high of 4,235.40, set Jan. 21.

January's big burst in hiring was helped by a huge and usual 116,000 new construction jobs — the biggest gain in nearly 16 years — aided by mild weather. Heavy construction, concrete, masonry and roofing trades posted the largest increases.

Given that, some economists didn't believe the bigger-than-expected 387,000 total new jobs created in January was a worrisome sign that the economy may be on the brink of overheating. They expect the next report to show jobs growth moderating.

Justice launches antitrust probe of eBay auction site

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department is investigating whether eBay Inc., the world's largest online auction site, violated federal antitrust laws in its actions toward smaller Internet rivals.

The probe, which has been underway since December but still is in its early stages, is focused on eBay's attempts — including a federal lawsuit against one competitor and threats to sue another — to prevent smaller Web companies from listing on their own sites items being auctioned by eBay's customers.

One of eBay's top lawyers, Jay Monahan, said in a statement Friday that company officials "have had some discussions with staff at the Justice Department regarding eBay and the online trading business generally.

"We welcomed that opportunity to talk about our business and to express our serious concerns regarding the practices of some of the aggregators," Monahan said.

These other companies don't auction items themselves, but they offer search tools that scan the inventories of eBay and other Internet sites. As they attract customers of their own, they can cut into eBay's own Web traffic and associated advertising revenues.

Monahan suggested that eBay's "contact with DOJ may have been prompted by" its competitors, although the rivals said Justice initiated the interviews.

The Justice Department declined to comment.

News of the investigation didn't appear to affect eBay's stock price, which opened Friday at $160. It increased more than $11 as high as $171.25 by midday in heavy trading before settling at $164.50 late in the afternoon.

During one meeting, lawyers from Justice's antitrust division wanted to know about "eBay and their business practices within the industry," said James Carney, chief executive officer of rival Bidder's Edge, which was sued by eBay in December in federal court in California.

Carney met for two hours in early January with antitrust lawyers in Washington, after Justice contacted his company in late December requesting an interview.

"They were asking us any number of questions ... about how the market works, about specific things in detail regarding practices by eBay toward Bidder's Edge," Carney said.

The Justice Department has not submitted to eBay or its rivals civil investigative demands, which are formal requests for documents that could be used as evidence to support an antitrust claim.

The department also interviewed the chief executive at AuctionWatch.Com, another Web site that searches Internet auction sites — including eBay's — and lists items available for bid.

AuctionWatch CEO Rodrigo Sales confirmed that his "conversation centered around the dispute with eBay," but declined to be more specific.

Alaska Airlines recorder reveals loud noises heard near end of flight

By Christine Hanley
Associated Press

PORT HUENEME, Calif. — One of the "black boxes" aboard Alaska Airlines Flight 261 recorded a loud noise in the minutes before the MD-83 went out of control and plunged into the ocean, a federal investigator said Friday.

The noise was one of two revealed by analysis of the cockpit voice recorder, said John Hammerschmidt, a member of the National Transportation Safety Board.

The tape revealed new details of what occurred on the flight in its last minutes as the pilots struggled to control a problem with the horizontal stabilizer — the wide part of the tail that keeps a plane flying level.

The plane nose-dived into the Pacific Ocean en route from Puerto Vallarta, Mexico, to San Francisco on Monday, killing all 88 aboard.

About 12 minutes before the end of the recording the plane apparently lost vertical control, Hammerschmidt said.

The crew recovered control in about 1 1/2 minutes. Some time later, a flight attendent is heard telling the pilots of a loud noise from the rear of the jet.

"The crew acknowledged that they had heard it too," Hammerschmidt said.

A second noise, which was actually recorded by the device, then sounded just near the end of the tape.

"Slightly more than one minute before the end of the recording, a loud noise can be heard on the recording and the airplane appears to go out of control," he said.

The plane has an audible alarm to indicate a stall, or dangerous loss of lift. No such warning is heard on the tape, Hammerschmidt said.

He said the investigation was progressing rapidly, including work by a Navy vessel using side-scan sonar to map debris in the Santa Barbara Channel about 10 miles from shore.

Sonar appeared to show the debris in a single concentration within an area the size of a football field, and the survey was continuing one mile out in each direction, he said.

Some of the debris has been videotaped by a remote-operated underwater vehicle. Most of the debris examined so far were pieces about 5 feet or 6 feet long, but there was a section of fuselage estimated to be 10 feet long.

The submersible has sent up video of the tail and a 5-foot section of the leading edge of the horizontal stablizer, Hammerschmidt said. The stabilizer is 40 feet long.

The process of getting sonar pictures of the ocean floor — sailors call it "mowing the lawn" — had been expected to take two to three days, but Hammerschmidt said it would likely be completed Friday.

After that, remote-operated vehicles like the one that salvaged the plane's "black box" flight recorders will be sent down to take video images and eventually help retrieve bodies and wreckage.

"You can't do it overnight," said Navy Capt. Terry Labrecque. "You have to be methodical."

The NTSB has previously said that radio transmissions and eyewitness reports from other commercial pilots in the area show the plane turned upside down or "corkscrewed" into the water following a series of increasingly desperate maneuvers that lasted at least half an hour.

Only four bodies have been recovered. Relatives waited for word on further efforts to bring back remains.

The wreckage lies in an underwater canyon beneath the Santa Barbara Channel, where depths range from 90 feet at the edges to 700 feet.

Alaska Air's fatal crash

An Alaska Airlines jet from Puerto Vallarta, Mexico, bound for San Francisco and Seattle, crashed off the California coast Monday after the pilot reported mechanical problems.

Panel recommends reparations for victims of 1921 Tulsa race riot

By Renee Ruble
Associated Press

TULSA, Okla. — A state commission recommended Friday that reparations be paid for one of the nation's deadliest racial clashes: a little-known, 1921 rampage by a white Tulsa mob that killed as many as 300 people, most of them black.

The 11-member panel called for direct payments to survivors and victims' descendants, scholarships and a tax checkoff program to fund economic development in Tulsa's mostly black Greenwood area and a memorial to the dead.

"I asked myself, 'What would I want if my life was basically destroyed,'" commission member Vivian Clark said in favor of payments to survivors. "The country has a problem as a whole in giving compensations to African Americans."

The commission recommended that the direct payments be a priority.

"This way we will be helping people first, which is what we are supposed to be doing," said commission member Jim Loyd.

The panel gave no specifics on how much the package would cost and offered no details on such things as who would get the scholarships. It also didn't say who should make the payments.

"We haven't pointed fingers at anyone, yet," commission Chairman Bob Blackburn said.

But the commission passed a resolution that said the racial hatred then was tolerated through laws of local, state and federal governments and said restitution would be good public policy and help repair the emotional and physical scars of the riot.

The commission's recommendation is subject to approval by the Legislature, which created the commission.

Genevieve Elizabeth Tillman Jackson, an 84-year-old black woman who survived the riot, said after the vote that she never thought she would see the day.

"It's great. I think the survivors should be helped, and the children of survivors," she said.

About a half-dozen of the 80 known riot survivors watched on Friday as the commission heard personal accounts, newspaper stories and a subcommittee recommendation before approving the payment of reparations.

Ten of the 11 members voted in favor of the memorial and the scholarship after one commissioner left the meeting early. The vote was 9-1 on the direct payments and the tax checkoff.

"I have a big problems with reparations. Will it solve what we're looking at?" said white commission member Sen. Robert Milacek. He cast votes in favor of scholarships and a memorial but went against direct payments.

No cheers of joy or even clapping met the vote. Most of the survivors there had a hard time hearing. Friends and family members whispered the results into their ears, the quiet words bringing looks of contentment to their faces. Their eyes were watering.

The survivors left quickly after the vote while the commission continued their meeting.

The riot broke out May 31, 1921, when a white lynch mob clashed with blacks who were protecting a black man accused of assaulting a white elevator operator.

Some experts want to take a little hot air out of the wind chill index

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The wind chill index, a term tossed about by TV weather forecasters so much that even schoolchildren know what it is, is a lot of hot air, some experts say.

They claim the index exaggerates how cold the air really feels to bare skin. And they say it's time for a new formula to predict the risk of frostbite and hypothermia.

Purdue University engineering professor Maurice Bluestein is at the forefront of the effort to get the National Weather Service to adopt a new measure. He says the index, which arose from Army research in the 1940s, is based on flawed science.

Depending on the air temperature and wind speed, the reported wind chill factor is actually 10 to 15 degrees colder than reality, he says.

"It's still pretty cold, but not as cold as the chart would have you believe," says Bluestein, an associate professor of mechanical engineering technology at Indiana University-Purdue University at Indianapolis.

He and others believe the wind chill index can do the public a disservice by convincing people they can safely endure extreme cold. More often, ts unnecessary school and business closings.

While numerous researchers have attacked the index over the years, Bluestein and a group of thermodynamics experts will discuss several alternative indexes they have devised during a meeting in May of the American Meteorological Society in Asheville, N.C. Their goal is to persuade the government to create a new index for both cold and heat.

"The men who originally created this were just using the best information they had at the time, but that was a long time ago," says Robert Quayle, chief of the climate data division at the National Climatic Data Center in Asheville, N.C.

The wind chill index combines air temperature and wind speed to come up with a reading of what it supposedly REALLY feels like outside.

Army researchers devised the basis for the current wind chill index in the 1940s to help the military develop warm clothing for soldiers.

Though supposedly measuring how fast human skin loses heat when exposed to wind, the index is based on tests done in Antarctica using water-filled plastic cylinders to measure the speed at which water freezes at different air temperatures and wind speeds.

But a cup of water is hardly a good representation of the heat-generating human body, Bluestein says. And there's another problem: While air temperature is measured at ground level, wind speed is measured about 30 feet above ground, where winds are faster.

The weather service, which adopted the wind chill index in 1973, is mindful that there are questions about its accuracy but has no plans to scrap it, says Mike Matthews, a spokesman for the agency's Office of Meteorology in Silver Spring, Md.

MIDLAND HIGH BASKETBALL

No Match for the Dogs

■ Johnston leads the Midland High boys, who got revenge over the team which handed them their only district loss. The Bulldogs also qualified for the playoffs.

By Terry Williamson
Sports Editor

Midland High's "Blake Johnston Show" vaulted the Bulldogs into the state basketball playoffs at Chaparral Center Friday night.

Midland High	66
San Angelo	49

Johnston scored 29 points, all in the first three quarters, to lead MHS to a huge 66-49 win over San Angelo Central. Midland High can finish no worse than in a tie for first place and needs only one win in its last two games to earn its fourth consecutive undisputed District 4-5A title.

MHS is now 9-1 in 4-5A play with only two games left to play. Both Cooper and Central, who owned the same 5-1 mark as MHS after the first half of the race, have both fallen off the torrid Bulldog pace, each with three losses.

The Bobcats will be forever known for halting MHS' 42-game district winning streak in the first half, but the payback was a solid statement from the Bulldogs.

"This clinches a tie for the district championship, our fourth in a row," said MHS coach Jack Stephenson. "We outscored them (Central) 32-15 in the second half. Our game just came to life. Blake is just Blake. This is the same guy that TCU said couldn't shoot the ball."

And even San Angelo coach Kevin Pope was amazed at the floor performance of Johnston.

"We just had no answer for Blake Johnston. He took the game over," Pope said. "We had five guys trying to stop him and we had no answer for him tonight. This solidifies the fact that he can play this game at a higher level than anyone else in this league."

Midland High's Ronnie Brewster (left) and Randy Gardner (right) put the full-court press on San Angelo Central's Donte Randle Friday night in District 4-5A action at the Chap.

Johnston hit 10 of 18 shots from the field, canning four of six 3-point shots.

"I felt this game was for the district championship," Johnston said. "I felt good coming in and knew I needed a big game. San Angelo is a very good team, but we felt we owed them one after they beat us down there."

The game started like it would be a war to the end with the teams knotted at 34 at the half. But MHS roared out of the third quarter gate for a 20-7 margin over Central as Johnston hit for 12 points in the period. It was over.

The Bulldogs were ready for the rematch with the Bobcats.

"Midland, Texas, is a lot different than playing in San Angelo," said MHS 6-foot-5 post Randy Gardner, who had 12 points and eight rebounds. "Our crowd is the biggest reason we play the way we do here. I felt like we really came through as a team."

Tyler Shumskie said that the team had a laid back approach to the game despite the fact that the Bobcats put a knot on the Bulldogs' head in the first half.

"We had good practices, but we were a relaxed team," Shumskie said. "It's just another game and

Oates goes into camp unsure of what he has got

By Stephen Hawkins

ARLINGTON — Like a little boy staring at wrapped Christmas presents, Texas manager Johnny Oates is anticipating something good.

Oates just isn't sure what he's getting after an offseason of moves that drastically changed the lineup for the Rangers, who won the last two AL West titles only to be swept twice by the New York Yankees in the opening round of the playoffs.

"At Christmastime, you walk out there and you look underneath the tree and all of the presents are wrapped," Oates said Friday. "You know that there is something good in there, but you just don't know how good or what it is. That's what I'm looking at with this ballclub."

Catcher Ivan Rodriguez, the AL MVP last season, returns along with three other key veterans — first baseman Rafael Palmeiro, shortstop Royce Clayton and outfielder Rusty Greer — but the rest of the everyday lineup has changed.

The November trade of two-time AL MVP Juan Gonzalez and the loss to free agency of third baseman Todd Zeile, second baseman Mark McLemore and outfielder Tom Good-

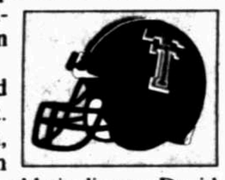
Tech switches Auburn opener with Utah State

Associated Press

AUBURN, Ala. — Auburn agreed Friday to let Texas Tech out of its season opening game against the Tigers, and replaced it with Wyoming.

Auburn will play Wyoming on Sept. 2 instead of the Red Raiders, who wanted out of the contest so they could schedule their own home opener against Utah State.



"Texas Tech contacted us and asked to be let out of the contract. Things like this are not uncommon, so we were willing to work with them to help solve their problem," Auburn athletic director David Housel said.

Last year Wyoming was 7-4, Auburn was 5-6.

Utah State went 4-7 last season. The Texas Tech game will mark the debut of coach Mick Dennehy, who left Division I-AA Montana in December to replace the fired Dave Arslanian.

Cowboys owner gets punishment

Associated Press

DALLAS — Dallas Cowboys owner Jerry Jones pleaded no contest Friday to interference with the public duties of a police officer in a 1999 traffic violation.

Jones was placed on deferred adjudication for six months, which means if his record remains clean for that time period, the charge is removed. He also was ordered to pay a $750 fine and perform 24 hours of community service.

The team owner must also pay more than $230 in court costs, said Kathy Kendrick, a clerk for Dallas County Criminal Court-at-Law Judge Ralph Taite.

The sentence stems from an Aug. 29 incident when Highland Park police stopped Jones and his family for alleged-

MHS girls experience big victory

Central's Mandy Guest (41) crashes up against Midland High's Tracie Jones during a District 4-5A game Friday night at the Chap. The Midland High girls won to help their position in the 4-5A playoff picture.

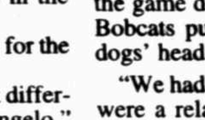
Experience hasn't been much of an issue for the Midland High girls basketball team this season, in part because the Lady Dawgs have so little of it.

With a playoff berth on the line and only one game left in the District 4-5A regular season, however, what little experience MHS has is precious, and what experience the Lady Dawgs didn't have is developing. So despite having no seniors on its threadbare roster of only eight players, Midland High's 59-44 win over San Angelo Central Friday night at Chaparral Center showed the benefits of that experience.



Koch had 25 points and 10 rebounds

The Lady Dawgs (19-9 overall) had three players, all juniors, combine for all but seven of their points in the victory which moved them to 7-4 in district and into a tie for third place with crosstown rival Midland Lee. MHS and Lee are a half game behind Odessa High, which finished its district schedule at 8-4 after beating Abilene High 64-55. Abilene Cooper clinched the district title by beating Odessa Permian 65-31.

For Midland High, which fell to Cooper by only two points three nights earlier, beating Central was a good bounce-back win.

"It was a must win game for us and I felt the kids came in with a businesslike attitude," said MHS coach Terry Gray of the victory. "We used a lot of energy in Abilene traveling on a school night, but the kids were ready mentally and physically tonight."

Not coincidentally, it was

Duval finishes in 1st round tie

By Doug Ferguson

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. — In the two hours that Tiger Woods spent on a soggy golf course, he knocked the head off his driver with a mammoth tee shot, made five birdies in eight holes and got into position for his sixth straight PGA Tour victory.

■ Pebble Beach

A first round that took two days in ever-changing weather for the Pebble Beach National Pro-Am finally ended Friday with David Duval, Vijay Singh and Notah Begay in the lead at 6-under 66 after taking advantage on soft, serene Poppy Hills.

Begay, who will spend a week in jail next month for aggravated drunken driving, had two eagles in his round, including a hole-in-one with a 6-iron from 168 yards on the sixth hole.

Woods finished with a 68 — eight birdies, six pars, four bogeys and only 13 clubs in his bag when his round was over. The head of his driver snapped off on the 16th hole, which may have cost him an easy birdie chance on the par-5 18th.

"That was shocking," Woods said. "You don't expect that to happen."

Davis Cup captain John McEnroe watches from the sideline during his team's first round match against Zimbabwe Friday. The U.S. is tied, 1-1.

McEnroe watches U.S. squad earn Day 1 split

By Andrew Selsky
Associated Press Writer

HARARE, Zimbabwe — The crowd rocked to the rhythm of tribal dancers. Spectators did the wave. The din was so loud the umpire could barely be heard.

And John McEnroe wanted nothing more than to pick up a racket.

But McEnroe, making his debut as Davis Cup captain, could only stalk the sideline Friday as the United States split its opening singles matches with Zimbabwe.

"I wasn't able to get up and play," McEnroe said.

Andre Agassi, helped by some questionable line calls, won the opener by overpowering Wayne Black 7-5, 6-3, 7-5. Then Black's brother, Byron Black, defeated Chris Woodruff 7-6 (2), 6-3, 6-2 to even the best-of-5, first-round series.

The doubles Saturday will be critical. The winner will have a 2-1 lead entering Sunday's reverse singles, which are expected to be split.

In doubles, the Americans will send Alex O'Brien and Rick Leach against Wayne Black and Kevin Ullyett.

"I've got to regroup not only myself but the team," McEnroe said.

For McEnroe, this was the first time he had to watch a match in which he had a big stake but was unable to go out and hit winners. Instead, he encouraged, cajoled and cheered from his seat near the end of the net.

He even headed to chair umpire Wayne McKewen to dispute a few calls. It was a throwback to the McEnroe of old, except his hair, once unruly and held with a headband, is now gray and short

The support for the Black brothers was earsplitting at the 4,000-seat City Sports Center outside the capital city. A half-dozen young women, dressed in yellow wraparound skirts and colorful headbands, got the crowd revved up with a tribal dance.

Rangerettes take 4-3A title

GREENWOOD — Friday night's games here and in Alpine wrapped up a District 4-3A championship for the Greenwood Rangerettes basketball team.

The Rangerettes did their part by defeating Monahans, 48-30, and they got a little help from Alpine, which beat Crane, 42-41. Crane had held a one-game advantage going into Tuesday's games, but two losses in a row — including the big one at Greenwood Tuesday — made that lead disappear.

Greenwood finishes up the regular season at 9-1, 18-7 overall, while Crane finishes 8-2 and 19-6. Monahans, Greenwood's opponent Friday, owns the 4-3A basement at 1-9 and 6-23.

The Rangerettes took control early, limiting Monahans to three points in the first quarter. Greenwood got 11 points from Megan Hatley and 10 from Shanna Zachry.

Greenwood gets a playoff bye and won't have to play again until Feb. 17.

Greenwood 48, Monahans 30

Monahans (1-9, 6-23): Romo 1 0-0 2, Fuente 1 3-4 5, Krone 4 1-5 11, Gray 1 0-0 2, C.Bates 0 1-6 1, Swan 1 1-1 3, Chavez 1 0-0 2, Melius 1 0-0 2, H.Bates 1 0-0 2. Totals 11 6-18 30.

Garden City gets revenge

GARDEN CITY — The Garden City girls' basketball team avenged its only district loss of the season by defeating Irion County 55-44 Friday night, and it may mean a district championship.

With one game left in the regular season, the Lady Kats improved to 6-1 in District 4-A and 22-3 overall, while Irion County finished at 6-2 and 23-6. Garden City only needs to win Tuesday at cellar-dweller Sterling City to claim the district title.

Kyndra Batla and M'Lynn Niehues each scored 14 points for the Lady Kats, and Summer Eoff added 13 points — 10 in the second half.

Garden City 55, Irion County 44

Irion County (6-2, 23-6): Holly Harper 1 0-0 2, Kristi Turner 2 0-0 4, Lindsey McCutchen 4 0-0 8, Celeste Davidson 2 0-0 4, Wendy Robertson 3 7-8 13, Sarah Dutchover 1 0-0 2, Kacie Daves 3 3-8 9, Kasi Whitlow 1 0-0 2. Totals 17 10-16 44.

Trinity slips by San Jacinto

The Trinity Chargers defeated Amarillo San Jacinto, 69-66, Friday night in a [illegible] Association of Private and [illegible]chial Schools boys' basketball game.

Trinity's Nick Whitley (27 points) and Taborick Ephriam (24) combined for 51 of Trinity's 61 points.

Trinity will host an important game at 7:30 p.m. Monday, as the Lydia Patterson school of El Paso makes a visit. Trinity, which is 6-3 in TAPPS District 1-3A, needs to beat Lydia Patterson, which is 7-2, to earn a tie and a district playoff for the district's last playoff spot.

Fort Stockton edges Andrews

ANDREWS — Fort Stockton earned a key victory in the District 5-4A boys' playoff race with a 60-54 win Friday over Andrews, which now needs to win its final three games to make the playoffs.

Both teams entered the game at 3-3, and Fort Stockton left with the advantage.

Fort Stockton's Luke Groth buried the Mustangs with 29 points, despite Andrews getting 22 points from Chris McCain and 17 from Drew Fields.

Fort Stockton 60, Andrews 54

Fort Stockton (4-3): Luke Groth 12 3-4 29, Nathan Sawyer 4 5-8 14, Andrew Alvarez 3 2-3 10, Doug Tipton 2 0-0 5, Orlando Yarvez 1 0-0 2. Totals 22 10-18 60.

Stanton beats Seagraves

STANTON — The Stanton boys basketball team used its press in the second half to set up several scoring chances and defeat Seagraves 57-42 in a key District 3-2A game Friday night.

The victory guarantees the Buffaloes (16-5 overall, 5-2 in district) at least a district playoff berth — although Stanton can do even better than that with a win in its last three games.

Brady Cook led the Buffs with 12 points while Jeremy Hull added 11. Stanton will clinch a playoff berth with a win at Plains Tuesday at 8 p.m.

Stanton 57, Seagraves 42

Seagraves (2-5): David 2 0-0 4, Foshee 0 0-0 0, Rodriguez 0 0-0 0, Esparza 1 0-0 2, Gallegos 4 1-1 9, Cavazos 1 0-0 2, Tidwell 3 1-2 7, Lacy 2 2-2 6, Webb 5 2-2 12, Martinez 0 0-0 0. Totals 17 6-7 42.

Lady Mustangs can't hold lead

GARLAND — The Midland Christian girls basketball team got off to a big start but couldn't hold on in a 52-46 loss to Garland Christian in a Texas Association of Parochial and Private Schools District 1-4A game Friday night.

The Lady Mustangs (14-15 overall, 5-6 in district) now must beat Garland today at noon to make the playoffs.

Midland Christian led by as many as 12 points in the second quarter, but had a hard time handling Garland's defensive pressure as the game wore on. The Lady Mustangs still led by two heading into the fourth quarter but hurt themselves by shooting 2-for-15 from the field in the final period.

Hayley Whiteside led the Lady Mustangs with 14 points while Sasha Hollar added 11.

Fort Stockton finalist list to include MHS assistant

Staff Report

FORT STOCKTON — Midland High assistant football coach Wes Cope is in the running for the head coaching vacancy at Fort Stockton High School.

Cope, who has been an offensive assistant during the David Browning era at MHS, is expected to be on the school's finalist list which should be released next week.

Fort Stockton was 2-8 in 1999 and 1-9 in 1998. In 1997, the Panthers were 7-3 and made the playoffs.

Former Fort Stockton coach Phil Lopez resigned Jan. 6. Since then, Lopez has become the head coach at McAllen Memorial.

The Fort Stockton vacancy has become an intriguing one since the school will compete in Class 3A the next two years. Fort Stockton is currently competing at the 4A level.

GIRLS: Koch scores 25

the only three players with any varsity experience prior to this season who carried the load against the Lady Bobcats (8-19, 1-10). Juniors Laura Koch, Edrea Rogers and Page Price combined for 52 points and 23 rebounds in the victory.

Of that trio, only Koch and Rogers played extended minutes as sophomores (Price saw some time in the playoffs, but spent most of her season on the junior varsity) and they have been up to the leadership task this season.

"Since we don't have any seniors, we've got to turn to the juniors," said Koch, who had a game high 25 points and 10 rebounds. "I'm an underclassman, really, like everybody else, but the rest of the underclassmen are still trying to get into the groove of things and they've done a really good job."

Koch was as good an example as anybody to follow against Central. She and Price combined for 15 points in the first quarter to give the Lady Dawgs an 18-11 lead. Before the quarter was over, Rogers, the team's leading scorer, had already drawn her second foul, and Gray reluctantly sat her for a stretch in the first half.

However, it's a tribute to Koch's offensive growth that the Lady Dawgs didn't miss Rogers all that much. Koch and Price combined for all but two of Midland High's points in the second quarter as the Lady Dawgs led 32-23 at halftime.

"(Koch) has scored more than 20 a couple of times in the past couple of weeks so I think she's arrived," said Gray. "I made up my mind if (Central) got back to within four I'd go back to Edrea. We had to turn to Page and Laura in that situation and they definitely delivered."

Early in the third quarter, though, Rogers did deliver, hitting back-to-back 3-pointers to boost the Midland High lead to 15. The Lady Bobcats never got closer than 10 after that.

Price scored 14 for the Lady Dawgs, including 12 in the first half, while Rogers finished with 13. Erin Brumm led Central with 13 while Lacey Hohmann added 10.

The win sets up a showdown with Abilene High Tuesday night at Chaparral Center, which, if the Lady Dawgs win, would put them at worse in a district playoff game.

"The best thing for our young team right now is to play in a playoff type situation and that's what we'll have here Tuesday night," said Gray.

BOYS: Johnston leads way to MHS win

we're playing a lot better now."

Ronnie Brewster had 10 points and six rebounds. And you could tell the Bulldogs were ready to roll in the first quarter when guard Chris Oldham buried back-to-back treys to give MHS an early 12-6 lead.

The Bobcats hung tough until the second half when MHS went on a 6-0 run to start the third period. San Angelo made its bid to stay in the game in the first half, opening the period with an 11-0 run. There were seven lead changes and five ties in the first half.

Even though the Bobcats have lost two games in a row, there was some good news for Central. Abilene Cooper (7-3) defeated Odessa Permian (5-4) Friday night. It looks as if Cooper and Central still have the inside track to the playoffs.

"It was just a couple of years ago when we came in here and just tried to keep Midland High from scoring a 100 points," Pope said. "We've won three of five (district) road games this year and if you had told me that at the beginning of the season, I would have leaped at it. Midland High doesn't lose many games in this place. We beat them at our place. Maybe we shouldn't have, but we did it somehow. That still could be a big win for us."

The Bulldogs can clinch their fourth consecutive outright district title Tuesday night when they host Abilene High at the Chap.

Midland Christian LB Usrey inks with SE Missouri State

Staff Report

Midland Christian's John Paul Usrey made school history, signing to play football at Division I-AA Southeast Missouri State University.

The all-state linebacker and offensive lineman becomes MC's first football player to sign with a Division I-AA school, giving the program another notch in its short time at the 11-man level.

It also is a deserving honor for a player who MC head football coach Greg McClendon says is truly remarkable.

"John Paul is just one of those kids," McClendon said. "He is in the weight room every day. We have to kick him out at night."

The weight room helped transform Usrey, who stands 6-foot and 210 pounds, into an all-state player at two positions — linebacker and offensive lineman. As a senior, Usrey was a first-team linebacker and second-team guard. As a junior, he was a second-team linebacker and first-team guard.

This past season, Usrey was also his district's Defensive MVP for the 7-4 Mustangs, who fell in the first round of the Texas Association of Private and Parochial Schools playoffs.

"He had his goals and dreams, and he accomplished the first step of the dream," McClendon said of Usrey's signing. "If anyone was deserving of it, it was him. He is the most intense and hardest working guy. He plays every play hard in practice and in the game. There is nothing different."

Now, Usrey, who will play linebacker in college, gets the chance to play football at another level, and it should be a pretty big step. Southeast Missouri State's first game is against Marshall.

McClendon said that Usrey's achievement means a great deal to the program and school.

"This is the first Division I-AA signee we have ever had that I know of," McClendon said. "It is the first, but I don't expect it to be the last.

"We had several guys from the seventh grade on up watching him. They realize it is an obtainable goal and want to follow in his footsteps. It gives the school a great deal of pride that our athletics program is reaching new heights."

GOLF: Woods trails leaders by two strokes

(From 1C)

goes according to plan.

The schedule is for the final three rounds to be played through Monday, but the tour wasn't holding its breath. A large storm system was expected by Friday night, with another due Sunday night.

Pebble has had only one 72-hole tournament since 1995.

"It's very frustrating knowing that chances of playing four rounds are not very good," Woods said.

Still, none of the leaders were in a sour mood after playing their first round at Poppy Hills, the easiest of the three courses because it has five par-5s and is the most sheltered from the seaside wind.

Lee Janzen had the best score at Pebble Beach Golf Links, a 4-under 68. Grant Waite had a 68 at Spyglass Hill. Steve Scott, whom Woods beat on the 38th hole for his third straight U.S. Amateur title in 1996, had a 68 at Poppy.

Duval, the No. 2 player in the world and the primary threat to Woods, missed a 4-foot birdie putt on the 18th at Poppy for his 66.

"It was trying conditions, as usual," he said of dividing the round over two days. "But that's what you come to expect, so I'm very pleased."

Woods also had few complaints, except for missing his driver on the last hole.

"I wanted to end up at 3- or 4-under, so this puts me right in the ball game," said Woods, trying to become the first player since Ben Hogan in 1948 to win six straight tour events.

No other event on the PGA Tour has this much luck involved. Pebble Beach and Spyglass Hill are the toughest courses, and scores can skyrocket if a player catches them in the wind. The leaderboard was littered with players who spent the past two days at Poppy Hills.

RANGERS: New team takes field

win took away half of the everyday players that a year ago helped the Rangers lead the majors with a .293 batting average.

Among those expected to break into the starting lineup are third baseman Mike Lamb and outfielders Gabe Kapler and Ruben Mateo. Lamb and Mateo are rookies while Kapler, who came from Detroit in the Gonzalez deal, has just a year in the majors.

The power-hitting Gonzalez was good for about 120 RBIs a year. Zeile, now a first baseman for the Mets, consistently hit about 20 home runs with 95 or more RBIs. Goodwin was a speedster, likely to score 100 runs and steal 40 bases.

"I really believe that you put Kapler's and Mateo's numbers together at the end of the year, they will be very similar to Goodwin and Juan added together," Oates said. "The question is at third base, can we get 95 runs from third base? I don't think we will need 95 runs from third base."

What the Rangers may lack in hitting, Oates believes they will make up in a revamped pitching staff.

Aaron Sele, the winningest pitcher last season, was lost to free agency, but left-handers Kenny Rogers and Darren Oliver both re-signed with the Rangers after stints with other teams. Justin Thompson, another lefty from the Gonzalez trade, also joined the team. Right-hander Rick Helling won 13 games a year ago for Texas.

The Rangers, who haven't had a left-handed starter since Oliver departed midway through the 1998 season, could have as many as three this year.

The bullpen is solid with John Wetteland (43 saves a year ago) and Francisco Cordero, another player who came from the Tigers.

"I'd rather have better pitching and less power," said Rodriguez, who hit .332 with 35 home runs and 113 RBIs. "It's different, but you have good pitching and a good bullpen, you can win by one run."

Green invited to spring training

ARLINGTON — Outfielder Scarborough Green, released by Texas last month to make room on the roster for pitcher Darren Oliver, agreed Friday to a minor league contract with the Rangers.

Green, 25, hit .308 in 18 games with the Rangers last season.

Cruz agrees to big deal

Associated Press

DETROIT — Avoiding a hearing next week, shortstop Deivi Cruz agreed Friday with the Detroit Tigers on a one-year contract worth $1,975,000 — more than four times his $430,000 salary last season.

Cruz, 24, is coming off his best season, hitting .284 with a career-high 13 homers and 58 RBIs. He also led the Tigers in doubles (35) and multihit games (41).

He had asked for $2.2 million and had been offered $1.75 million. The settlement was at the midpoint.

Braves sign Assenmacher to minor league contract

ATLANTA — Paul Assenmacher, who pitched for Atlanta from 1986-89, returned to the Braves on Friday when he agreed to a minor league contract.

The 39-year-old left-hander was 2-1 with an 8.18 ERA last year for the Cleveland Indians, then became a free agent.

Assenmacher, who has pitched for five major league teams, is third among career appearances by a left-hander with 884.

Midland High vs. Abilene Cooper

When: 2 p.m.
Where: New Midland High soccer field.
Records: Midland High is 0-2 in District 4-5A play and 6-5 overall; Cooper is 1-1 and 5-4.
4-5A Significance: Cooper got its first district win Thursday, while Midland High is still looking. The Lady Dawgs can't afford to start district 0-3... Cooper beat San Angelo Central, 1-0, on Thursday, as Jennifer Flores scored the game's only goal. The game was postponed from Tuesday because of fears of unsafe highway conditions around Abilene... MHS lost Tuesday by the smallest of margins. After 80 minutes was insufficient to decide a winner between MHS and Odessa High, even a regular shootout couldn't decide it. OHS won in the sixth round of the shootout.
Next: On Tuesday, the Lady Dawgs go to San Angelo to take on San Angelo Central at 6:30 p.m. at Old Bobcat Stadium.

Midland Lee vs. Abilene High

When: 2 p.m.
Where: Lee Soccer Complex in Abilene.
Records: Lee is 1-1 in District 4-5A and 7-2 overall; AHS is 1-0 and 8-1.
4-5A Significance: It will be interesting to see how the Lady Rebels, probably the district favorite, will respond to the loss they suffered at home at the hands of Odessa Permian. The Lady Rebels may still be stunned by Kelly Wilson's game-winning goal, which happened with only half a second left on the clock... Abilene High is perfect in 4-5A, even though the Lady Eagles have played only one game. They'd certainly like to push the defending district champion Lady Rebels a little further down the 4-5A standings. Lee's Linsey Johnson and Permian's Wilson are tied for the district lead with four goals each. No one else has more than one goal.
Next: The Lady Rebels are off Tuesday. They'll return to action on Feb. 12, when they'll host Abilene Cooper.

Boys

Midland Lee vs. Abilene High

When: 2 p.m.
Where: Lee Soccer Field, Midland.
Records: Lee is 1-1 in District 4-5A and 4-3-1 overall; AHS is 1-0 and 6-2.
4-5A Significance: Like their female counterparts, the Lee boys team has to bounce back from a disappointing loss: 1-0 Tuesday at Permian. Abilene High is one of three teams at which Lee is currently looking up at in the 4-5A standings, and the Eagles' 8-1 overall record is quite impressive... Permian won by getting a goal by Timmy Bowington early — in the 16th minute — then relying on the Panthers' defense and goal keeper Alan Roach to hold off the Rebels. Roach still hasn't allowed a goal in two games... AHS' Daniel Flores leads 4-5A scorers with three goals, plus an assist.
Next: The Rebels are off Tuesday. They'll return to play on Feb. 12 with a visit to Abilene Cooper.

Midland High vs. Abilene Cooper

When: 2 p.m.
Where: Lee Soccer Complex in Abilene
Records: MHS is 1-1 in District 4-5A, 7-2 overall; Cooper is 0-2 and 4-7.
4-5A Significance: The Midland High boys were the only one of Midland's four teams that won Tuesday, so at 1-1 they are right in the middle of the 4-5A pack. A win over 0-2 Cooper would put them in pretty good shape after three games... Cooper has lost both its 4-5A games by two goals, falling 4-2 to Abilene High and 2-0 to San Angelo Central... Cooper's Simon Nagel has scored two goals, putting him second behind AHS' Daniel Flores on the district scoring list. No one else has more than one goal.
Next: On Tuesday, the Bulldogs will host San Angelo Central at 4:30 p.m. at the new Midland High soccer field.

Tech baseball defeats NMSU

Associated Press

LUBBOCK — Texas Tech put up double-figures in runs and hits for the second straight game as they defeated New Mexico State 17-6 Friday.

The Red Raiders got on the board early with five runs in the first and four in the second inning.

Tech went on to score four in the fourth, one in the seventh and three in the eighth.

Right-hander Kevin Tracey (1-0) allowed four runs on four hits, a walk and four strikeouts over five innings. Steve Rowe, Dusty Buck, Clancy Fossum and Cory Metzler combined to hold the Aggies to just two runs on two hits in four innings of relief.

Todd Uzell (1-1) took the loss for the Aggies. He allowed nine runs, four of them earned, on five hits over three innings.

Houston 2, Texas 1

AUSTIN — Chris Houser hit an RBI single to left field in the bottom of the 11th inning to give No. 12 Texas a 2-1 victory over No. 6 Houston on Friday.

Jeff Ontiveros and Houser each had two hits for Texas.

Texas also relied on strong pitching from starter Beau Hale, who went six innings, allowing two hits and one unearned run while striking out four.

Jarrod Bitter doubled to left field in the fourth inning, giving the Cougars the early lead. Texas tied the score 1-1 when junior Sam Anderson singled and scored on Houser's RBI single in the bottom of the sixth.

Charlie Thames (1-0) got the win for Texas after pitching four innings.

Rockets fall to T-Wolves

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Kevin Garnett's 23 points and 18 rebounds and the absence of Houston's sensational rookie guard Steve Francis helped the Minnesota Timberwolves rout the Rockets 102-85 Friday night.

Garnett added nine assists, narrowly missing his third career triple double. He did, however, tie Christian Laettner's club record with 17 defensive rebounds.

Francis, who is averaging 18.3 points, 5.3 rebounds and 7.1 assists, missed the trip so he could get treatment for a minor hernia.

The Rockets also were missing their shooting touch, hitting just 38 percent from the floor.

TENNIS: Agassi wins his singles match

(From 1B)

Agassi's match with Wayne Black, marking America's first Davis Cup foray into Africa, was a battle of baseline punching.

Agassi said he was sometimes short of breath in the 5,000-foot altitude — the highest elevation in which has played. He arrived in Harare on Monday, a day after winning the Australian Open.

With the victory, Agassi tied Arthur Ashe for second in U.S. Davis Cup singles victories, with 37. McEnroe holds the record with 41.

Byron Black then took on Woodruff, who was making his Davis Cup debut. And when Black won the tiebreaker to take the first set, the crowd turned uproarious. These were not the genteel grounds of Wimbledon.

At 4-2 in the third set, Black rushed for a forehand and dropped the ball over the net. He sank to one knee and pumped his fist.

The spectators went into a frenzy. The noise was so loud that when the umpire called time after the break, he was barely audible. Some of the drummers took flags, aimed the staffs at the American side and pretended to open fire.

However, once a player began to serve, the crowd watched quietly.

OWNER: Jones pleads

ly speeding while en route to the baptism of his grandson.

Police said the officer was questioning the driver of one of the two cars in the family caravan when Jones approached. The officer said Jones asked whether he could drive on with the rest of his entourage because they were late.

The officer told Jones to wait. Jones drove away and was arrested near Highland Park United Methodist Church.

Jones has said he thought the officer had all the information he needed before he left the scene.

He missed the christening and was charged with interference with public duties, a Class B misdemeanor which carries a maximum penalty of a $2,000 fine and 180 days in jail.

Jones had faced a Feb. 14 trial.

Song of Solomon: Controversial Bible verses or celebration of love?

By Richard N. Ostling
AP Religion Writer

An analysis

"O that you would kiss me with the kisses of your mouth! For your love is better than wine. ..."

Those words come from the most controversial book in the Bible, by that we mean controversy over whether the book has any business being in the Bible in the first place.

The ancient sages who decided which books are authoritative Scripture had hot debates about the suitability of the Song of Songs (as Jews and Catholics call this book) or Song of Solomon (the Protestants' preferred title).

The Jewish and Christian authorities interpreted the Song as an allegory of the love between God and his people rather than a romantic love poem, and apparently that's the only reason the book slipped into the Scriptures and became one of Judaism's standard Passover readings.

It remains a head-scratcher to this day. One reference work says the Song could be interpreted as theatrical, typological, mythological, didactic, allegorical or literal.

Various symbolic readings prevailed throughout the centuries. Sample: The beloved's two breasts represent the Old and New Testaments. Really? Most modern interpreters opt for literalism and see the Song simply as a celebration of love.

The book shows that "the God who created us is concerned with our sexuality and romantic dimensions, that these are significant aspects of marriage, and that religious people can enjoy them without shame," says a commentary in "The Dead Sea Scrolls Bible," recently published by HarperSanFrancisco.

This short (117 verses) and most sensuous of Scriptures (look up the R-rated 7:6-9) makes an ideal biblical reading or gift book for Valentine's Day.

The Song clearly reflects the wedding songs of the Mideast, but admittedly, a few of the ancient love images strike us as strange or even unlovely ("your neck is like an ivory tower").

The book begins with this brief introduction: "The Song of Songs, which is Solomon's." The Hebrew could indicate the poem is by, of, to, for or about Solomon. And scholars disagree about the dating, placing it anywhere from 950 B.C. to 200 B.C.

Early dating means there's a direct tie with King Solomon, either that he wrote the Song or that someone else wrote it upon one of Solomon's many polygamous weddings. But many think the poet merely used Solomon as a symbol.

Another mystery: Is this a single poem, or a collection of love poems that were

Church bells have sounded daily since 1866

BROWNSVILLE — Each day, Charles Garcia makes his way up a narrow, winding, dimly lit brick staircase into a choir loft to tug on history.

Using all his weight, he pulls on the thick ropes that lead into the bell tower of Immaculate Conception Cathedral. The answer to his efforts comes pealing out in a full reverberation of finely tuned sound that almost drowns out the noise of downtown traffic.

The collective roar of car engines and the cacophonous array of car horns are regulated to the background as the bells ring out their invitation to Mass, much the way they did when Elizabeth Street was a dusty pathway filled with horse-drawn carriages.

The same sound from the same bells have graced the downtown area since 1866 when Father Parisot traveled to see Mifflin Kenedy. At the time, Parisot was putting together a concert to raise funds to purchase bells for the empty bell tower of the cathedral. He asked Kenedy for permission to put his young daughter in the concert.

Kenedy expressed his concern that his daughter was too young to sing in the concert. While Parisot made his case, Kenedy quietly wrote out a check for $2,000.

"I know you want bells. This will help you get them," Kenedy said.

In his excitement, Parisot left Kenedy's office running down the street with the check in hand saying he had to spread the good news to Brownsville. He left his hat and cane in Kenedy's office and when Kenedy called him back, Parisot thought that he had been the victim of a cruel joke and was being asked to return the check.

Kenedy handed Parisot his cane and hat and assured him the check was real.

With the money Parisot purchased three bells from MeNeelys West in Troy, N.Y. He then transferred the small bell that rang at Brownsville's first church, a small wooden structure built in 1848, to the cathedral.

Now as sacristan, Garcia, 27, takes care of the cathedral and makes sure the bells are rung for daily Mass, funerals and weddings.

As a child, Garcia learned the ropes from Regulo Rosales, who many parishioners claim rang the bells for nearly five decades. Garcia has now been in charge of the tower for the last four years.

"I would stay around all the time, just cleaning or whatever. Ringing the bell was just something that everybody wanted to do when they were little," Garcia said. "I guess it's just something I do for the love it."

Each bell in the tower is cast bronze and hangs from a large wooden wheel. The largest of the bells weighs about 2,700 pounds and is 44-inches in diameter. The other are a 1,100-pound, 33-inch bell, a 500-pound, 25-inch bell and an 18-inch, 450-pound bell.

Matt Johanneman, a product manager for the Verdin Co., a bell company in Cincinnati, said his company has consulted with the cathedral several times in the past when the bells needed minor repairs. Johanneman oversees the company's cast bronze bells.

Johanneman said the MeNeely Co. went through several changes and even closed down during the Civil War. The bells the company produced, however, are considered to be of good quality. Johanneman estimated that the bells are worth about $61,000.

"(The cathedral) has very good bells. They found that the metal that (the bells) are made of had the best sound. It was also easier to tune," Johanneman said.

On a vision quest

BELOW: Luis Tijerino, a member of the Lakota tribe, often speaks to Odessa junior high at-risk students about his life and how he turned it around.

LEFT: When Tijerino, also known as Watching Wolf, speaks to classes he brings items from his culture: a medicine box containing a woven woolen rug, feathers, wooden pegs and a small cloth sack about the size of an old-time tobacco pouch.

Member of Lakota tribe tells students about journey searching for Creator

ODESSA — The room is noisy, crowded with kids who don't want to be here. Some are veterans of in-school suspension (ISS) who know Watching Wolf by name and begin by asking if he's brought his feathers, his medicine bag, if he's going to show them his scars, if they can visit his sweat lodge.

There is one girl in the room.

At the corner, sitting at a desk with a computer and file cabinet, is a teacher who, from the look on his face, would rather spend his time doing almost anything than what he's doing, in this room, with these Ector Junior High School kids.

Watching Wolf — also known as Luis Tijerino — begins by taking a census.

"How many of you have been here just once before? How many have been here twice? More than twice? How many of you have not heard me speak in this class or in school? How many have never heard me talk before?"

At each question, hands are raised, to a chorus of shouted remarks. Tijerino stands calmly before them, opening his medicine box and extracting a woven woolen rug, feathers, wooden pegs — notched and tied with small ropes that dangle below the table — a small cloth sack about the size of an old-time tobacco pouch.

"All right, we're going to take a trip back in time a little bit, so you can understand what I'm saying," he begins.

"This is a journey back 11 or 12 years ago, when I was about 29 or 30. I was at that time hitting rock bottom. I was into alcohol and drugs.

"I used to be a musician. For 6 1/2 years I toured around Texas, Arizona and Kansas, playing in all the different places.

"So I know the life of a musician, OK? I played trombone and I sang background music, OK?

"But I let all those things take control of my life, and when I hit rock bottom, there was only one way to get out of that hole, and that was to look up and ask the Creator to help me out."

Tijerino's mother was Comanche, whose people come from New Mexico, Texas and Oklahoma. His father's people were the Tarajumara, of northern Mexico.

Tijerino, an artist and the owner of two local businesses, is here at the request of the Ector County Independent School District. He hopes his message will resonate with at-risk students who may hear in his story many elements of their own lives.

Tijerino, too, was once an at-risk Ector student who, he says, "was in dire straits." What turned his life around, he says, was a vision quest, a tradition followed by the Tarajumara upon reaching the age of 15.

"They would go out into the wilderness for four days without food and water, and at that time they would ask the Creator, 'What is it that my life is all about? What am I doing here? And what am I supposed to do?'"

Tijerino said he made his vision quest at 30.

"I was 15 years late. But better late than never," he said.

"My wife and kids took me out south of Marfa about halfway to Presidio, on a turnoff that goes to Casa Piedra, where the Alamito Creek runs, and that's where I chose to stay.

"When you go without food and water, the body begins to change, and the mind starts going places that don't exist.

"I said my prayers to the Creator, 'I have made such a mess of my life,' I said. 'Please help me to find out why.' And the response came, 'You have done all these things to yourself, and now it's time for us to work together to get you out of it.' He told me what my job was, to come back to the young people, to say, 'One day, you are going to be the elders of this world. You're going to be in charge.'

"That was the message the Creator gave me.

"The Native Americans try to live by four principles: First, take care of Mother Earth. She gives life to this world, to the plants and the animals. Respect her. Take care of her and give back to her.

"Second, take care of your brothers and sisters, not just those living at home with you, but at school, in Odessa, Texas, in the state, in the country, in the world.

"Third, take only what you need, so that others may have some. If someone brings a plate of food to the class and one person comes first and eats it all, there will be hungry people, and bad feelings and disagreements.

"But if everybody takes one mouthful and passes the plate around, then everybody will be taken care of.

"Fourth, take care of yourself, so that you can do all the other things.

"These are simple things I first learned during my vision quest, but they work."

It was during this vision quest that Tijerino received his Native American name, Watching Wolf, a name imbued with meaning for Tijerino.

Yet he says he didn't emerge from his vision quest immediately knowing his direction. That took years more of searching, and is in fact, still in progress. Instead of seeking meaning among the Comanche, who have few teachers available, or the Tarajumara, who live in the remote reaches of the Sonoran mountains and would necessitate extended trips into Mexico's interior, he went north, to South Dakota, where the Lakota still practice ancient

LESLIE WILLIAMS

Kids may be comforted knowing God in heaven will care for their pets

Williams

One summer afternoon, Whisker, our hamster, died of The Big Eye. Five years later, we still can't convince our daughter that this miniature Methuselah most likely died of old age and not cataracts.

At any rate, that afternoon, our son called out during rest time and I rushed into his room. There lay the tiny creature, motionless in the enormous gymnasium/health spa/country club we had rigged for his every comfort and exercise need. My son poked at him with a plastic mechanical hand, trying to rouse him.

No such luck.

I quickly called my husband, a minister, and told him we'd had a death in the family. Could he please hurry home to perform a funeral? Rising to the occasion, Stockton did a moving and meaningful spur-of-the-moment service in our back yard, patting the top of the garden grave with a shovel. "May he rest in peace." He then turned to the teary-eyed children and added, "Kids, that means don't dig him up."

We quickly acquired a cat, which the children named Tiger Zebra Woo. (Don't even ask — except for the stripes, the name isn't one of our family's more rational moments.)

This cat has used up about five of its lives already, and each time we find him in critical condition, say, hanging by the neck from the living room drapery cords, or mauled by a neighborhood dog, I pray for the safety of this precious member of our household. I don't want to face the children with their questions about Kitty Heaven and what happens to pets, long term.

In the meantime, I've been giving the issue some thought. The Bible is silent on the subject. In looking through early church teaching, I remembered Origen, the third century theologian who took literally the injunction to cut off any offending member of the body. (I won't go into details except to mention his voice changed dramatically.) In a highly simplified version I've culled from old seminary notes, here is Origen's pyramid of creation: the Trinity rests at the top, followed by the minds, then the souls, then the human bodies, the animals, and the rocks and other inanimate objects. At the bottom are the demons. Salvation is the process of moving upward through free will.

Origen was slightly unorthodox.

Yet his pyramid of creation is useful here. Combined with the knowledge that God did, after all, create pets as well as us — -and created it all good — then we creatures are lumped together in bodily life. But because cats, dogs, and parakeets have no consciousness as humans do, they cannot make a decision for or against Jesus Christ. They can only wag their doggy tails in response to love, or growl in response to evil. They are not the ones who ate the fruit.

Still, it's the same God. Since the Bible says that "All creation will be made new," it seems fair to comfort a grieving child with the understanding that God will somehow take care of these furry, frisky objects of our affection. We don't exactly know God's plan, but we know we can trust a God of love.

This October, Tiger Zebra Woo nearly died again. More quickly than I thought, the children were eager to get a new kitty. I was a little slower.

Maybe I'm the one, after all, who needs comforting.

rituals.

"I have been adopted by the Lakota," he says. "Every year, I go to South Dakota in August, during the Lakota new year, where we pray as a nation, and release those things that have happened throughout the old year, and start a new year, during a ceremony known as a Sundance."

He picks up the wooden pegs lying on the table and holds them aloft. He explains that during the Sundance, dancers are attached by 45-foot-long ropes to a tree in the middle of an arena; the other end of the ropes are attached to wooden pegs, which have been inserted into the skin of the dancers' chests. As the dancers proceed around the tree, the ropes tighten and eventually tear the skin away.

Tijerino, who bears the scars from six dances, says the sacrifice of the skin represents the seriousness of the dancers' prayers.

"It was three years after my vision quest before I danced, and one of my biggest prayers at that tree was to bring my family and me back together.

"I was raised a Catholic, and when I decided to leave the church, my family couldn't accept that. I didn't see them for a long time. But my prayers at the tree were answered, and now I'm in a good relationship with my family."

Yet, Tijerino said the estrangement was in progress long before his vision quest. He blames his own destructive lifestyle, begun as a teen-ager, when he got into drugs and alcohol.

"My mom and dad had told me to stay away from that stuff, that it was bad, and I knew it, but I did what my friends did. I wanted to be macho. Let me tell you about the day my father died.

"I was 19, and I'd been out late the night before, partying and drinking, and the next morning, I was really hung over.

"Then our neighbor came over and banged on the door and told us that my father was lying face down in the yard.

"I looked out my window, and he was the first thing I saw. I ran out and turned him over, and there was no life in his eyes. There was nothing there. He was gone.

"The bad thing is that I never had a relationship with my father. When I was growing up, he was in the bars drinking. Then when he decided he should quit, I was out in the bars, so we still didn't have a relationship.

"And when I looked into his eyes that morning, the first thing that came to my mind was that I never in my life told my father I loved him. Never."

He pauses, letting the effect sink in.

"That's a hard thing to carry. I'll never get another chance to do that.

"Today, I challenge you, when you go home, put your arms around your mom and your dad if you still have them, and tell them you love them.

"You don't have to explain. You don't have to justify what you're saying. Just like Nike says, 'just do it.'

"Blow their socks off, because I know it will. But it will show them a side of you that they may not have seen in a long time.

"Don't waste your time."

SOLOMON: How many meanings does this controversial book of the Bible have?

(From 1C)

stitched together? If it's a united work, some interpreters think Solomon was as much a knave as a hero in an elliptical plot line that runs as follows:

A shepherd maiden falls in love with a shepherd, but her brothers disapprove and make her work in a vineyard. There the king meets her, is smitten, and tempts her with the wealth she would have as his wife. Though courtiers mock her fidelity to the shepherd, the acquisitive king is impressed, relents and frees her to rejoin her beloved.

Some anti-Solomon interpreters say the Song was written after the king's reign as a satire on his acquisition and exploitation of women.

Taking another feminist approach, Sister M. Timothea Elliott notes that the men in the Song come and go while the woman is present throughout and her thoughts dominate. Commentator Marcia Falk finds a "nonsexist world" in the Song, with striking mutuality between the sexes. The man is as coy and vulnerable as the woman, and each praises the other's beauty.

"The Bible would be poorer if it lacked the Song of Solomon," contends novelist John Updike in an introduction to the latest paperback edition of the Song, from St. Martin's Press. "Its burst of sensual rapture and erotic passion helps ground biblical humanism."

To Updike, the Song expresses the Jewish celebration of the material world, which is extended by Christianity, with its teaching on the future resurrection of each person's body.

If the Song of Solomon had nothing to do with Solomon, it's still appropriate for Valentine's Day.

Church hopes to change the face of religion

By Johnnye Montgomery
Religion Writer

According to Donnie Brackens, pastor of Shekinah Glory Church, the last bastion of segregation all too often is in organized religion.

Brackens — who has in the past both led and participated in multicultural spiritual events such as concerts and prayer and praise celebrations — thinks the answers to the divisiveness lies in the failure to seek God's will courageously and resolutely, while shaking off the comfort of religion as it has always been.

"As the world around us changes, we must adapt to the changes," Brackens said. "The lack of this principle is seen more in the church than in any other organization in America.

"We see people caught in the entrapment of religion who will never know the calling or hope that Christ has in them."

In response to this dilemma, Shekinah Glory Church, 712 W. Scharbauer Drive, will be the site of "The Future of the Black Church," a five-day exploration of the role of the church in the 21st century. Preachers will include Brackens, Ken Redmon, pastor of Abundant Life Church, Jessie Morris of Shekinah Glory and Carolyn Gilbert of Greater St. Luke's African Methodist Episcopal Church.

The event is set for Wednesday through Feb. 13. It is scheduled for 7 p.m. Wednesday through Friday and 9 a.m.-noon Feb. 12-13. The event will culminate with a soul food dinner at 2 p.m. Feb. 13.

Brackens will lead off on Wednesday night by speaking on "Satan's Cycle of Defeat," a topic he said he developed after noticing a cycle of estrangement and loss of self-worth in the black community and beyond.

Ken Redmon will preach Thursday on "Inclusion and Unity" in the Body of Christ. Brackens will follow on Friday with "Reversing the Cycle." On the morning of Feb. 12, Carolyn Gilbert, of Greater St. Luke's AME will teach on "Breaking the Traditions of Religion," with an emphasis on relationships. Jessie Morris will address "The Future of Black Women in the Church."

Music throughout the five-day celebration will be provided by a multiracial, multi-ethnic Christian group known for their renditions of such praise songs as "Color Blind" and "We Will Stand."

The public is invited to attend.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Saturday, Feb. 5, 2000:

Make the most of events that occur this year. You could view the unexpected as either a friend or an enemy, depending upon your flexibility. Opportunities appear, though sometimes you'll need to close one door in order to open another. Learning to trust remains key to your success and well-being. If you are single, romance flourishes, but don't assume anything is carved in stone until there has been a substantial amount of time and history. Summer sizzles. If attached, keep the lines of communication open. You both may tend to go into a tizzy sometimes and take each other for granted. AQUARIUS can surprise you.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★★★ What you thought you wanted could radically change in the near future. A friend might be unusually quirky, but you could find this behavior interesting for now. Get together with others. The more people, the merrier.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★ An issue surrounds work and someone in charge. Though you believe you have resolved it, at least in your head, you will discover otherwise. Visit with a friend; get together with others; take responsibility. Greet the unexpected.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★★★ Reach out for others. Be willing to take a trip to connect with a special friend. Your efforts are appreciated. The unexpected marks plans. Take a deep breath and relax. You need a break. Gaining a new point of view helps. Tonight: Be open to something different.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★★ Togetherness marks many of your decisions. Being with others is paramount. Listen to a partner, as startling as his insight could be. Refuse to push as hard to have your way. If another isn't on the same track as you, so be it.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★★ Others have strong reactions, but your eyes are wide open. Though you have seen similar behavior manifest before, you could be surprised. Stay nice and even, whether others know how or not. Relationships will be undergoing adjustments in the near future.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★ Events of late have stretched your nerves and energy. Be willing to say "enough" and stop pushing. Letting go brings unusual events. If you don't relax, your health will suffer. Do what is good for you; recharge and relax.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★★ Allow more fun and liveliness into a key relationship. A partner or amour can be quite playful. Incorporate freedom into your friendships. Give up the need to control. Your imagination sometimes causes you a problem, exaggerating what you think others are up to.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★ Changes on the homefront are inevitable. You'll gain if you are less controlling. Let go, and don't fight trends. You build a better domestic environment as a result. Consider an investment most carefully. Revitalize your home life.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★★★ Let others come to you and share news. What you hear could easily have you shaking your head. Be aware that with some people, another communication style is necessary. Flirting with a new purchase is quite different from actually making it.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★★ Indulge yourself. Be clear about what you expect from business associates and trusted partners. Sometimes you give way too much when it comes to your finances. Be willing to put a halt to spending. You pull the financial wild card.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★★★ The spotlight shines on you. You easily assume the role of lead player. How you view your friends and interactions could be a lot different in the next few weeks. You might opt for something very different.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★ You could be out of sorts because of what you hear. Stay centered if possible. Check into different means of handling stress and problems. Take a walk or a break from your normal pace. Another finds you irresistible and will let you know it!

PEOPLE TODAY

Stars to relive favorite 'Late Show' moments

NEW YORK — Julia Roberts, Jerry Seinfeld, Bruce Willis, Bill Cosby and Steve Martin will relive their favorite "Late Show" moments next week as David Letterman continues recuperating from heart bypass surgery.

The celebrities will roll tapes and reminisce about their appearances with Letterman over the years. They will be interviewed by either Regis Philbin, Charles Grodin or Paul Shaffer.

Letterman could return as early as Feb. 14. Or maybe not.

"There certainly is not a schedule for Dave to come back on the 14th, but it's not out of the question," executive producer Rob Burnettt said Friday. "I just don't think we know at this time."

If Letterman's absence stretches beyond next week, the "Late Show" may try guest hosts for the first time, Burnett said. Letterman may also appear only once or twice a week when he first comes back.

MAYSVILLE, Ky. — Miss America plans to become a Mrs. this fall.

Heather French and Lt. Gov. Steve Henry are engaged and will marry in October, soon after her reign ends, the Miss America Pageant said Friday.

Henry is 46 and has never been married. French is 25.

The couple will be wed at a church in Louisville, said her father, Ron French said. He said the age difference doesn't matter to him.

"Actually, Heather is really mature," he said. "If she was marrying somebody her age, she would drive him crazy, because she's just so much more mature than an average 25-year-old lady."

Henry, an orthopedic surgeon, plans to run for governor in 2003.

LOS ANGELES — "Star Trek" actor James Doohan is getting ready to beam up a baby girl just weeks after his 80th birthday.

Doohan and his wife, Wende, are expecting their first daughter April 1, Doohan's agent Steven Stevens said Friday.

Doohan, who played Scotty the engineer on the original series, turns 80 on March 3.

Doohan and his 44-year-old wife have two sons, 21 and 23. The couple were not trying to get pregnant, Stevens said. They live near Seattle.

LOS ANGELES — Musician and former "Entertainment Tonight" host John Tesh has settled a lawsuit against an online business that registered the Internet domain name JohnTesh.com.

Tesh announced the settlement Thursday, two weeks after suing celebsites.com under a 1999 law that bars cybersquatting, or registering an Internet domain in the name of a famous person or company and then trying to sell it for a hefty price.

"There are no hard feeling here and we are not seeking damages," Tesh said in a statement. "We wanted the name back — that's all."

ATLANTA — A newly unattached Jane Fonda is returning to show business but not Hollywood.

Fonda, who recently separated from husband Ted Turner, made the announcement at a fund-raising dinner Tuesday. She was honored by the Atlanta Women's Foundation with a lifetime achievement award.

Fonda once said she was giving up acting to spend more time with Turner.

Fonda gave few details of her career plans but joked that she might start out by performing in Eve Ensler's play "The Vagina Monologues." Ensler also attended the fund-raiser.

Fonda is slated to appear as a presenter at the Academy Awards in Los Angeles on March 26 but said she has no plans to move back to California.

There "isn't enough money in the world to get me to leave" Atlanta, where her daughter and grandson live, she said.

LONDON — The writer of the "Harry Potter" children's books has been named author of the year at the British Book Awards.

J. K. Rowling, whose books about a child wizard enrolled in a witchcraft school have been the focus of controversy in the United States, beat five other contenders Thursday, including horror writer Stephen King.

"I'm so terrified," the writer said in her acceptance spech. "If you were all 9 years old, I'd feel so much more comfortable."

Father appeals son's punishment for refusing drug tests

By Pam Easton
Associated Press

LOCKNEY — A West Texas father launched an appeal Friday challenging the suspension of his 12-year-old son who refused to take a mandatory drug test the school district required of all students as part of a new policy.

AP

The school district has decided to punish Brady Tannahill, the only student to refuse the test, as if he had tested positive. He now faces a 21-day suspension from extracurricular activities, at least three days' in-school suspension and three sessions of substance abuse counseling.

The sixth-grader also could be require take a drug test every month for a year. E time he refuses, it will be considered a repeat offense, and the punishment escalates.

The mandatory testing of the district's teachers and 399 of its students in grades 6 through 12 was completed Thursday.

Larry Tannahill met with his son's junior high principal Friday and planned to talk later in the day with the district superintendent.

"That is basically the startup of the appeal," said Tannahill. " ... That will give Brady another 10 days in school just like nothing happened and then we'll go to the school board."

The school board approved the drug policy last year, which requires a signed parental consent form allowing the drug tests.

"Parental consent for a student to submit to biological testing is required as a condition ... to be in good standing as a student at Lockney ISD and to be able to participate in activities," the policy reads. "Any refusal by the student and/or parent, to sign the consent form will be treated as a positive test."

Pretty much every one in the town of 2,243 supports the policy, Superintendent Raymond Lusk said.

"You either have a drug policy or you don't," Lusk said. "Drugs are not just in the cities. They're in small town America. ... If the school determines this is what we think we need to do to provide an optimum education, then that is what we need to do."

The first discussions of a policy began in 1997 after 13 people in Lockney were indicted for distributing and using cocaine and marijuana. Residents indicated during a number of community meetings they supported drug testing of all students, not just those involved in extracurricular activities. Bobby Hall, a business professor at Wayland Baptist University who has a daughter in the Lockney district, said, "I, for one, would like to know if my children were involved in drugs because it gives you a chance for intervention."

"And if you do it across the board it's fair for everybody," added his wife, Laurie.

Tannahill said the policy squelches his parental rights and potentially could deny his son access to a public education. On a fourth offense, the policy calls for the suspension of a student from participation in all activities for the remainder of his junior high or high school career, removal to an Alternative Education Placement school for a minimum of 30 days, 12 sessions of substance abuse counseling and disqualification from all honors and offices.

"My son is an A and B student," Tannahill said, standing outside the rural Lutheran church he attends, amid miles of farm land. "He's never been in trouble and right now they are saying he's guilty.

"I know everybody is wanting the best for their children and I want the best for mine. But I also feel like we are being violated and dictated to. I've had a gut full of it and I'm going to make a stand."

Lockney, about an hour's drive northeast of Lubbock, is the second school in the area to implement mandatory testing.

Graham Boyd, an attorney with the American Civil Liberties Union's national drug policy project, said he is unaware of any other school district in the country that requires across-the-board testing.

Boyd said cases challenging school drug testing for students in extracurricular activities have been filed in Indiana, Oklahoma, Arkansas and in Texas, where state Education Agency spokeswoman DeEtta Culbertson said state officials have no jurisdiction over local drug testing policies.

Substitute teacher charged in shooting death of daughter

TOMBALL (AP) — Police charged a substitute teacher Friday with fatally shooting her teenage daughter and son with a gun investigators said she bought for the express purpose of killing her children and then herself.

But Linda McKenty Carr only partially succeeded Thursday afternoon, killing her 15-year-old daughter, Aubrey, and wounding her 13-year-old son, Eric, police said.

She called 911 and told police what she had done on an inexplicable impulse, investigators with the Harris County Sheriff's Department said. Carr, 41, now stands charged with murder and aggravated assault with a deadly weapon.

It remains a mystery why the substitute English and computer teacher, a single mother who taught occasionally at her daughter's high school, would carry out such an attack, police said.

"In cases like this, sometimes you really can't say why. People have their own reasons for doing what they do," said Sgt. Bob Black, a homicide investigator with the sheriff's department. "We just know that for whatever reason, she had got distraught, and thought she'd be better off dead and her children, too."

Detectives said Carr bought the gun, a 9mm semiautomatic, at a nearby sporting goods story during the day Thursday.

A portion of the 1993 Brady Bill which provided a mandatory five-day "cooling off" period on handgun purchases expired in November 1998, so Carr was able to pass an instant background check, and leave for her house with a brand-new gun.

Just before 5 p.m., police said, she walked into her daughter's bedroom and fired several times, fatally striking Aubrey in the torso.

Detectives found her dead on a daybed, Sgt. Bob Black said.

Her son was in her sights next, and she hit him with a single bullet to the abdomen, Black said. Justin was able to move himself from his bedroom to the living room, where paramedics found him.

Black said he expects to find out more about Carr's motivation once they speak with Justin, who was in fair condition Friday night at Ben Taub General Hospital. His father, John McKenty, was en route to Houston from Colorado on Friday to be with his son.

Neighbors of the Carrs said there was no ripple on the surface of their quiet suburban life indicating trouble ahead.

"She was a nice lady, just nice to everyone. She seemed to have no problems," said Chad Lemons, a neighbor who also attended Tomball High School with Aubrey.

State nursing home owners demand more money

AUSTIN (AP) — Bobby Dockal said money is so tight in the nursing home business that only those who couldn't get jobs flipping burgers will take his $8.25 an hour jobs as nursing aides.

"I am competing with McDonald's and fast food chains, and they are going up to $10," he said. "In order to attract people who are good, you have to pay a better wage. I can't do that."

Dockal nodded Friday as nursing home executives pleaded at a hearing with the Department of Human Services to raise Medicaid payments for nursing home patients.

"I have been in the nursing home business since 1970," said Dockal, who owns or operates eight homes in the Austin area. "This is the roughest time I have ever seen."

Peter Longo, chairman of Texas Health Care Association, a nursing home trade group, testified that companies are going broke due to chronically low reimbursement rates and the rising costs of liability insurance and labor.

While more than 200 executives, workers and patients applauded, Longo called for a larger spending increase than the 3.7 percent proposed by the human services department.

The industry lost $4 a day for every Medicaid patient in 1999, Longo said, and nursing home operators need at least a 6.2 percent increase this year just to keep up with expenses.

Those expenses include liability insurance, which has increased from about $650 per bed in 1998 to $1,811 in 1999 due to increased punitive damage awards against the industry, he said.

Longo said Texas nursing homes are fighting a losing battle with the fast food business for entry-level employees. "Whataburger can afford to pay health benefits, we can't," he said after the hearing.

The result, he said, is that more than 20 percent of Texas nursing homes are in bankruptcy, "with more looming on the horizon."

"The frail, indigent, elderly of this state deserve better than what is proposed," he said. "We urge you on their behalf to do the right thing."

Health and Human Services Commissioner Don Gilbert is expected to set the Medicaid reimbursement rate next week, said Charles Stuart, a spokesman for the commission.

The reimbursements are money paid to the homes for caring for Medicaid patients. The rate is related to the amount the state will pay for healthcare for the elderly, according to the Texas Health Care Association. In round figures, the federal Medicaid program pays about two dollars for each dollar the state pays.

Because the Legislature has authorized only enough money for a 3.7 percent increase, Gilbert's options are somewhat limited, he said.

"Obviously, we have to work with the money that has been appropriated," Stuart said.

The Legislature has set aside another $25 million for reimbursing new spending on patient care, although the state bureaucrats have not yet written the fine print on that policy, Stuart said.

"They want to have the rate tied to the quality of care," he said of lawmakers. The 3.7 increase is "designed to facilitate the transition to the new methodology."

Longo said the $25 million will pay for new spending, but do nothing for the existing deficits created by current Medicaid rates.

STATE IN BRIEF

■ Plane crashes into bridge

FRISCO — At least one person died Friday after a plane crashed into a railroad bridge.

Frisco Fire Capt. Lee Glover said the accident occurred about 5 p.m. on a track owned by Fort Worth-based Burlington Northern Santa Fe.

Glover said the railroad company had been notified and the crash site was roped off.

The identity of the victim was not immediately available, but officials with the Frisco Police Department had scheduled an evening news conference to discuss the accident.

The cause of the accident was under investigation, and it was unclear whether anyone else died or was injured.

Some power lines also were downed in the wreck, which occurred in an industrial area on the west side of the city, said Glover.

Frisco is about 25 miles north of Dallas.

■ Texas schools honored

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Education Agency on Friday honored 480 schools for doing well despite serving high percentages of low-income students.

Of the schools, 326 sustained high levels of performance over three years and were named distinguished schools, said Education Commissioner Jim Nelson.

Seventy were named honored schools and 84 were deemed commended schools.

TEA selected the schools based on their performance under the state's accountability system, which holds schools responsible if their students do not do well on the Texas Assessment of Academic Skills test. Dropout rates and attendance are also used in the formula.

Nelson said the designation shows that all Texas students can achieve.

"These schools demonstrate that when teachers, administrators, parents and communities work together to improve teaching and learning, our students can be winners in the classroom," Nelson said.

All of the schools honored are Title I schools, or schools that receive federal funds because of their high number of disadvantaged students.

■ Bombs damage high school

DENTON — Two bombs thrown into the office of a high school assistant principal exploded and started a fire early Friday morning, causing an estimated $12,000 damage.

The bombs at Ryan High School were described by firefighters as Molotov cocktails that activated the school's sprinkler system. Firefighters extinguished the blaze about 3:15 a.m.

"We have good leads on the physical evidence," said Fire Marshal Rick Jones, adding investigators will contact the U.S. Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms.

He estimated fire damage at $10,000 and water damage at $2,000.

Norm Sisk, the school's executive director of operations, said repairs to the suite outside the vice principal's office should be completed by Friday night. However, the office will need more repairs and should be ready for use Monday.

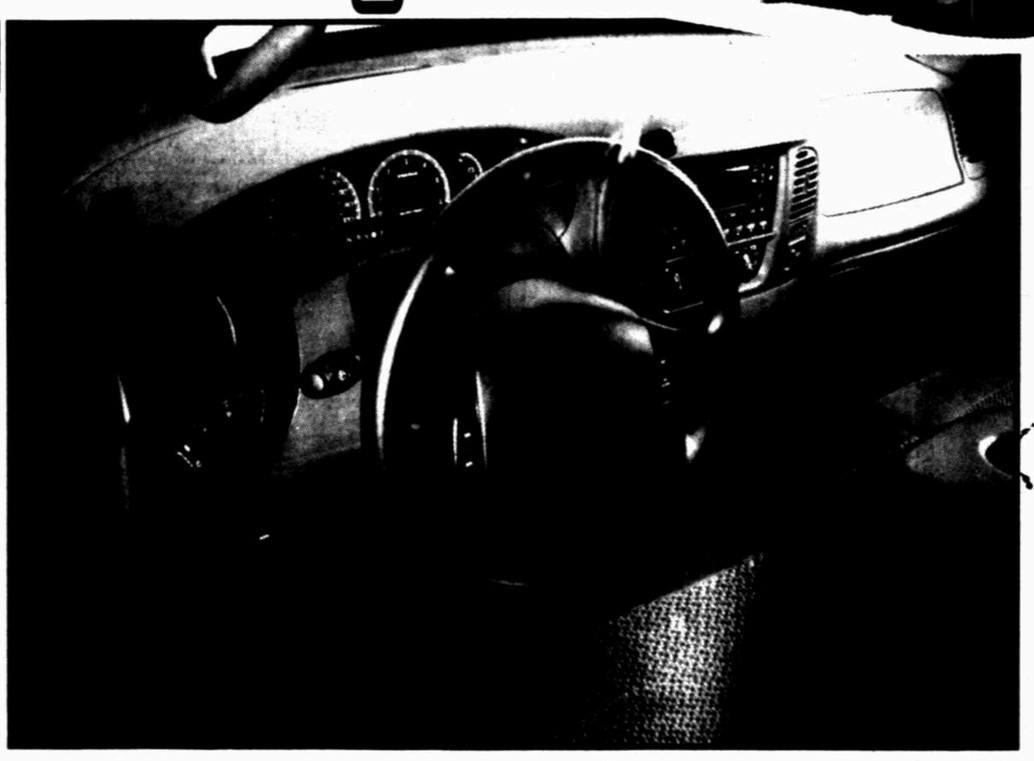
2000 Ford F-150 SuperCab 4x4 Lariat Pickup

RoadWorthy!

By Ken Chester, Jr.

As the No. 1 selling truck in the United States for 20 years, the Ford F-Series continues to develop a following in the hotly contested, highly profitable, full-size truck segment of the American automotive market. With the introduction of the all-new 1997 model F-150 in January of 1996, the folks at the blue oval moved the needle of expectation up a notch.

Built at the automaker's Kansas City, Mo.; Norfolk, Va., and Oakville, Ontario, Canada manufacturing plants, Ford sold 836,629 F-Series pickups during the 1998 calendar year. Available in regular and extended cab, two- or four-wheel-drive and short or long cargo beds, the F-150 is offered in Work Series, XL, XLT and Lariat trim levels. In addition to the volume models, a special, low volume SVT variation of the F-150 called The Lightning is also available.



Buyers looking at the F-150 should note the light-duty F-250 (under 8,500 GVW) models have been discontinued. The automaker is offering a F-150 model equipped with 7,700 Payload Group, available with the 5.4L V-8 motor which retains the light-duty F-250's capability in GVW, trailer towing and snow plowing.

This $1,295 option package includes the following equipment: 3.73 axle ratio, larger brakes, four-wheel anti-lock brakes, heavy duty frame, springs and shock absorbers, heavy duty electrical/cooling group and LT245/75R16D BSW tires.

Consumers can choose from three prime movers: the base 4.2L V-6, sophisticated 4.6L or brawny 5.4L V-8s. Supercharged, bi-fuel and natural gas versions of the 5.4L engine are also available. Torque is transmitted to the pavement via the standard five-speed manual gearbox. A four-speed automatic with overdrive is available for $1,095.

On the road, the Lariat SuperCab equipped with the optional 5.4L V-8 is willing and responsive throughout the power curve. From rest up to highway speeds, the F-150 is controlled and predictable – easy to handle. The beefy Goodyear Wrangler AT/S LT265/70R17 tires, standard on the top-of-the-line Lariat models, keep the truck firmly attached to the pavement.

Inside the cabin, straightforward displays and controls greet the driver. Outward visibility is very good. There is firm, comfortable seating throughout the cabin. A large center console yields a large storage bin where can hold the optional 6-disc CD-changer. Armrests for both driver and passenger increase the comfort level. Four cupholders and the standard power driver's seat in the Lariat models make the interior very hospitable for long distances.

Rear hinged access doors facilitate access to the rear seat. Seating is snug but accommodating in the rear with the 60/40 split seat bottom made to fold up to provide a place inside the cab to secure cargo.

By the numbers

Engine performance numbers are: 4.2L V-6 – 205 hp at 4,950 rpm and 255 lb/ft of torque at 3,700 rpm; 4.6L V-8 – 220 hp at 4,500 rpm and 290 lb/ft of torque at 3,250 rpm; 5.4L V-8 – 260 hp at 4,500 rpm and 350 lb/ft of torque at 2,500 rpm. EPA fuel economy ranges from 16 city/21 highway for the 4.2L V-6 to 14 city/18 highway for the gasoline version of the 5.4L V-8.

Underhood fluids are easily accessible but not consistently marked. Properly equipped, the Ford F-150 full-size pickup truck has a maximum payload of 2,385 pounds and can tow a trailer with a maximum weight of 8,800 pounds.

Standard safety equipment includes: dual front airbags and rear wheel anti-lock brakes. XLT four-wheel drive models add fog lamps and power door locks. Lariat models add remote keyless entry. The SVT Lightning adds limited slip rear axle and four-wheel anti-lock brakes. The optional safety equipment list includes: limited slip axle ($285) and four-wheel anti-lock brakes ($375).

The base Manufacturers Suggested Retail Price (MSRP) for the Ford F-150 pickup starts at $15,285 for a regular cab, two-wheel-drive Work Series to $29,995 for the SuperCab Lariat short wheelbase 4x4 model. The low volume SVT Lightning starts at $30,255. Destination charge adds $665. Although Ford continues to set production records building F-Series pickups, there should not be much of a problem choosing one. There are no rebates.

TEXAS DEPARTMENT OF TRANSPORTATION
NOTICE OF PUBLIC MEETING
Texas Trunk System Route Selection Criteria

On Tuesday, February 15, 2000, the Transportation Planning and Programming Division (TPP) of the Texas Department of Transportation will conduct a public meeting to discuss possible changes to the route election criteria of the Texas Highway Trunk System. The Texas Trunk System is a planned 4-lane divided highway system that includes and complements the interstate highway system. The system has not changed since its adoption by the Transportation Commission in 1990.

TPP is proposing to review the existing selection criteria codified in the Texas Administrative Code and receive comments on possible additions to the criteria at a series of public meetings held throughout the state. These changes, if adopted by the Texas Transportation Commission, could add highways to the existing system.

The meeting for this region will be held Tuesday, February 15, at 7 p.m. at:

Texas Department of Transportation
4502 Knickerbocker Road
San Angelo, Texas

Other meetings will be held at locations in Childress, February 14; Uvalde, February 16; Corsicana, February 22; and Huntsville, February 28.

From 6:00 to 7:00 p.m., displays showing the current Trunk System and selection criteria will be available for review. During this time, TPP staff will be available to answer questions. At 7:00 p.m. there will be a formal presentation followed by a public comment period.

At each location, the meeting will include (1) a discussion of the Trunk System development; (2) a presentation on existing selection criteria and (3) an overview of the impacts of changing the criteria and the steps involved.

All interested citizens are invited to attend the public meetings. Comments regarding proposed changes to the Trunk System selection criteria are requested. Verbal comments may be presented at the public meeting. Written comments may be presented at the public meeting or may be mailed or delivered to Mr. Alvin R. Luedecke, Jr., P.E., Transportation Planning and Programming Division, Texas Department of Transportation, P.O. Box 149217, Austin, Texas 78714-9217 or electronically mailed (e-mailed) to pthurin@dot.state.tx.us. To be included in the official public meeting record, written comments must be received or postmarked by March 8, 2000.

Persons who have special communication or accommodation needs and who plan to attend the public meeting may contact the TxDOT District office at (915) 947-9205.
