Major fire demolishes businesses

A raging inferno which sent flames licking around structures and black smoke spiraling skyward destroyed Skains Motor Co. here Saturday as well as a warehouse adjacent to it, and an $85,000 motor home parked between the two.

The alarm came in about 3:45 p.m. and by the time firemen arrived upon the scene, just within minutes, the building was engulfed in flames. Whipped by a strong west wind, flames soon consumed the motor home and the warehouse next to it. Winds, gusting to 60 miles an hour sent sheets of flame in a horizontal position to the southeast and nearby business and home-owners took up garden hoses and other means to keep the fire from spreading.

Jack Skains, owner of the garage, said he was not present when the fire started, but when he arrived several of his employees were trying to put a fire out on a van near the rear of the building. Fire Marshal Steve Kenley discovered Monday one of the employees was welding on the van when it exploded, creating a chain reaction and spreading to the other seven vehicles in the garage, which consisted of a wrecker, cars, pickups, a boat and one motorcycle.

As the fire spread, whipped by high winds, the motor home, belonging to Frank and Alma James was destroyed along with the warehouse. The complex of offices, in front of the warehouse, was saved.

Large cinders carried by the wind traveled several blocks and caused a grass fire in the back yard of Ruth Seahorn's home on 12th Street. Volunteers with garden hoses kept roofs wet and extinguished the burning cinders for blocks from the fire.

Firemen had the fire under control around 6:45, but remained on the scene until around 3 a.m. keeping watch over the smoldering remains. During the height of the fire, trucks from Sonora and Big Lake came in to assist. All Ozona units were on the scene. Sheriff Department personnel kept roads to the scene closed and Hwy 290 was closed to traffic for at least four hours. Firemen returned to the scene shortly after 5 a.m. Sunday when the blaze broke out again and again around noon. Smoke from the burned garage hung over the site all day Sunday.

Firemen kept surrounding structure wet, and managed to save the mobile home behind the garage where the Skains family lived and the adjacent office building. The burned out warehouse was used for storage by South Texas Lumber Co. and other individuals. All was lost in this blaze. Nothing was salvaged in the warehouse or the garage, and all contents of the motor home were lost.

The Skains family lost all their belongings in the fire. Although living in the trailer in back, all their household items were stored in the back of the garage, including Mrs. Skains' piano, linens, silver, family heirlooms and silver. Skains said he had over one hundred thousand dollars in parts and tools which were lost to the blaze, including his valuable gun collection. The family freezer along with children's toys and clothes were also lost.

None of the property was insured, and there has been no estimate of damage. The motor home was completely furnished, including television, microwave oven, clothes and personal effects of the owners.

Efficiency on the part of Ozona Volunteer Firemen kept the whole block from going up in flames, possibly part of the town. The volatile flames along with the gusting wind created a potentially dangerous situation and could easily have gotten out of hand without the proficiency of the firemen. Fire Chief Dorris Haire said over 35,000 gallons of water was used to contain the fire. Air packs, used by the firemen, were exhausted by the time the fire was controlled. The Big Lake crew took the packs to refill them at their facility. No one was injured in the fire, nor did anyone succumb to the heavy, black smoke.

The smoke could be seen for miles, and drew quite a large crowd, along with some volunteers. The Sheriff's department is credited with keeping the area safe and containing traffic.

Upon being notified of the fire, West Texas Utilities personnel took all precautions and cut power to the entire town. After isolating the problem area, and resetting some switches, the majority of the town was returned to normal power within 10 to 12 minutes. However, patrons living in the section where the fire was raging were out of power for the better part of two hours. Steve Williams, manager of the local WTU, said this action affected from 30 to 40 customers.

The mobile home behind the garage which is the Skains' living quarters was saved by the fire department, however, all they owned with the exception of the clothes on their backs, was lost in the fire. The Ozona Church of Christ and the First Baptist Church have not set up a specific fund for the family but are accepting donations and will see to it that the money is properly channeled.

at Skains Motor Co. Saturday afternoon shortly after firemen arrive on the scene. The major fire was whipped by 60 mph winds and sent smoke and live cinders all over the southeast end of town.

Two producers completed in county fields Two wrecks cause injuries

Two accidents were investigated by local DPS troopers over the past week. Injuries were sustained in both.

Friday at 3:30 p.m., 12.3 miles east on I-10, Helena K. Pitts of Lithonia, Ga., was injured when the 1978 Datsun she was driving west, was caught by cross winds, forcing the small car into the eastbound lane and off the south side of the road. She over-corrected, veered back across the highway and struck the north guard rail.

The Crockett County ambulance crew went to the scene and transferred Mrs. Pitts to the Crockett County Hospital where she was suffering from leg and chest injuries, requiring several stitches.

Saturday morning shortly after midnight 22 miles west on I-10, a 1962 Chevrolet, driven by Danny Rogers of Midland, with two unidentified passengers hit a cattle guard and overturned.

The vehicle was traveling west on Hwy. 290 and at the point where the highway ends, the driver failed to turn onto the interstate, going straight ahead instead. Around 8 a.m. Rogers managed to get to I-10 and hitch a ride to Sheffield where the Iraan ambulance was dispatched to scene. Rogers and the two passengers were transported to Crockett County Hospital where they were treated and sent on to Midland with undisclosed injuries.

Victims were not wearing seat belts in either accident. Trooper Cliff Babbitt, DPS, investigated the accidents.

Pipeline to miss Crockett County

A Bureau of Land Management report, received here this week, indicates the federal agency prefers an alternate route for the controversial crude oil pipeline which has been completed from the west coast to McCamey.

The original route would have come through Crockett and Sutton counties, threading its way through Kimble, Gillespie, Blanco and Hays counties before winding up at Webster and refineries on the Gulf Coast.

Right-of-ways had been purchased from Crockett county land-owners and the ditching crew was halfway through the county early last year, when all work was halted. Several lawsuits were filed by residents along the route, claiming pipeline spills could irrevocably damage groundwater in the Edwards Aquifer, a major source of drinking water in the region to the southeast.

However when Attorney General Jim Mattox filed suit, all work on the line ceased and the crew stationed in Ozona packed up and left overnight.

Public hearings were scheduled and held along the route. Few objections were raised during the Crockett County hearing which saw the district courtroom crowded with interested persons. Joe David Ross of Sonora raised objections as well as Dr. Peter Rose, a geologist from Kimble county. Pipeline sponsor Celeron Corp., a subsidiary of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. sent representatives who made an excellent presentation for the proposed route. At that time the subsidiary was operating under the All American Pipeline Co.

However, in hearings which followed in other counties along the route, residents raised a furor, claiming possible irrevocable damage to the groundwater. The suit filed by Mattox temporarily halted construction of the pipeline in Texas until an environmental impact study could be carried out, even though environmental studies in other states had approved the line.

Results of the study were received here Monday. In choosing the northern route as the preferred route, the bureau concluded that none of the three choices is significantly better than the others. The three routes considered were the proposed route Marathon Oil Co., Midland, completed two San Andres oil producers in the Farmer multipay field of Crockett County, are 33 miles northwest of Ozona. Both are located in S-50-ULS.

The No. 5 University "Z" was finished to pump 36 barrels of 30.4 gravity oil, plus two barrels of water, with gas-oil ratio of 3.333-1.

Production was through perforations at 2,312-75 feet, which had been acidized with 2,000 gallons and fractured with 26,000 gallons and 69,000 pounds of sand.

Drilled to 2,750 feet, with 5½-inch casing set at 2,739 feet, it is plugged back to 2,696 feet.

Location is 993 feet from the north and east lines.

The No. 5 University "K" was finished to pump 20 barrels of 30.4 gravity oil, plus two barrels of water, with gas-oil ratio of 2.850-1.

Production was through perforations at 2,313-57 feet, which had been acidized with 2,000 gallons and fractured with 21,000 gallons and 54,000 pounds of sand.

Drilled to 2,775 feet, with 5½-inch casing set at 2,760 feet, it is plugged back to 2,726 feet.

Location is 990 feet from the south and 1,650 feet from the west lines.

Indian Wells Oil Co., San Angelo, will drill the No. 2 Henderson "A" as a Canyon sand gas test in the Ozona multipay field of Crockett County, eight miles southwest of Ozona.

Location is 1,800 feet from the north and 1,980 feet from the east lines of 26-ST-TCRR Survey. Contract depth is 6,800 feet; ground elevation, 2,508 feet.

Keilers to address Lions

Dee Keilers, manager of the Crockett County Water Control, will address the Lions club at noon on January 29. Dee will discuss the importance of water conservation in Ozona. He will also give the Lions some insight into the local water system and how it operates.

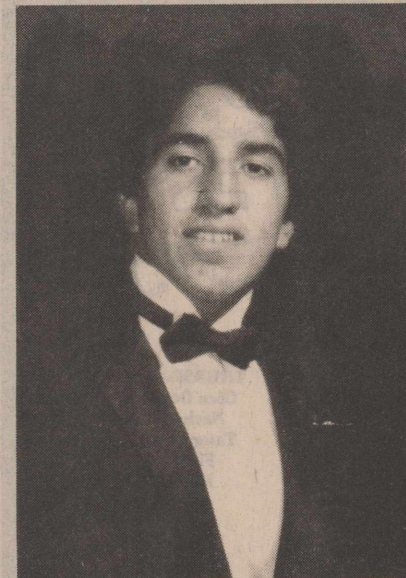

The club viewed a slide program by Stephen Williams, manager of WTU, at their meeting on January 22.

Steve's presentation covered the production, transportation, and delivery of electricity to west Texas and Ozona.

Jennifer Probst, the Lions Club sweetheart, brought as her special guests, Mike Glaze and Roger Flores. She introduced these outstanding young men to the club and told of some of their achievements.

Mike is an extraordinary band member and among other honors will be going to all-regional band.

Roger is an excellent athlete. He was named to the All-West Texas football team

MR. AND MISS OHS - as selected by the student body at Ozona High School last week, Abel Lara and Janet Diaz, both seniors. Abel, son of Rosendo Lara, is a 4-year letterman in football, captain this year. He also lettered four years in basketball, two on the varsity and two on junior varsity. He was Junior Class Favorite last year and is an honor student. Miss Diaz is the granddaughter of Mrs. Rosa Diaz. She has been flag captain for the past two years for the OHS band and was a homecoming duchess. She is secretary of the National Honor Society and was Junior Class Favorite last year. She has lettered four years in basketball and this is her second year on the Lady Lion Varsity.

Outdoors with Rod

By now, most hunters (with the exception of a few die-hard varminters) have hung up their deer rifles for the season. Too many of these rifles were shoved back into the closet or unceremoniously set back in their place in the gun cabinet without due care and maintenance measures to assure their future eye appeal and/or accuracy. Out of respect for our faithful firearms, I'm going to pass on a few helpful hints in an attempt to assure Ole' Betsy will be as good next season as she was in years past.

Gun cleaning is sorta like shoe polishing. Nobody enjoys doing it, but everybody likes the finished product after the job's done. So drag your rifle back out, ask the wife where she put your cleaning kit ("You know, dear, that long red metal box with the rubber band around it"), and let's spend a few minutes giving the old gun the T.L.C. it deserves.

Let's start with the bore. Most modern rifles shooting modern ammunition need surprisingly little attention here. Unless you burn several boxes in an afternoon over a prairie dog town, you can probably get away with one cleaning a year - at the end of the season. I recommend a bore-guide whenever running a cleaning rod through a bore of a rifle. This'll keep oil from dribbling down into the delicate trigger mechanism and keep the rod in proper alignment with the bore, preventing damage to the rifling. And, by the way, whenever possible, clean a rifle from the breech, not from the muzzle. A metal cleaning rod scraping against the rifling at the muzzle, or crown, can create accuracy problems quicker than you think. In some rifles, like lever actions and semi-autos, this can be next to impossible; but with bolt actions there's no excuse not to work through the breech. A patch soaked with one of the commercial solvents, like Hoppe's No. 9, can get things loosened up, then follow with a few swipes with a good brass-bristle brush to remove old powder of copper fouling accumulated in the rifling. Follow this with a clean, dry patch, and keep using dry patches till the last one comes out clean. The last step in bore care, and one of the most important, is to run through a tight-fitting patch that's been dipped in a light machine oil - a commercial gun oil or common household oil. This will coat the inside of the barrel and prevent rusting from now to next hunting season. Avoid using a solvent type oil, such as a WD-40, in this last step, as this type of oil was not meant to be left on metal indefinitely.

Turning our attention to the external metal surfaces, I recommend taking the rifle out of the stock and giving it a good wiping all over. Some don't like to do this, as it will invariably affect bullet point of impact when the stock screws are reset.

But that doesn't bother me 'cause I'm going to sight-in again before next season, anyway. Besides, that rain shower I hunted in before Christmas probably let a little moisture get in between the stock and action (or barrel), and there's nothing like rain water to rust a good gun. After we've wiped all metal surfaces with an oily rag and put everything back together, we're ready to wipe off the outside of the barrel, scope, bolt, trigger guard, floorplate, and anything else carrying dust, rust, and fingerprints.

There's something about body chemistry that makes some folks harder on gun metal than others. For instance, I can handle your gun and put it away, and a year from now pick it up and you'll find nothing but prints where I touched it...no rust. But I know a guy that can touch the same gun in the same place, and within a week there'll be rust where he touched it. But regardless of which category you fall into, it's a good idea to wipe that gun with an oily rag every time you handle it and put it away, just to be safe.

Try not to get oil on the wooden stock. Oil darkens the wood and makes it soft in saturated areas. If you want to shine up the stock, use lemon oil or furniture polish, and do that sparingly.

It's not a good practice to leave cartridges in the magazine for a prolonged period of time. Most magazines operate on a spring principle, and leaving that spring depressed for years on end can result in weakening, and might give you feeding problems later on down the road. Anyhow, adhering to principles of gun safety in the home, one shouldn't keep the ammo stored with the gun, unless this is the same one you use for home defense (and unless you live in a concrete house, I bet your neighbors would rather you'd use something besides a deer rifle for home defense).

In our area, rust is not a big problem. But if you have problems with rust in your storage area, there are a number of good products on the market today to minimize this threat. Heating elements, silica bags, and other products can keep the moisture away from firearms in storage, and the cost can be easily justified when you consider the value of good firearms at today's prices.

Gun cases, the fleece-lined type, are for carrying guns, not storing them. Moisture can condense in zipped-up cases and rust metal as fast as anything. If you must leave the gun in such a case, leave it open and in a cool, dry place.

A little preventative maintenance before storage will pay off, and your rifle will be ready to go next time the leaves start to fall.

STATE CAPITAL HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams

TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN—The day after Bill Clements was inaugurated he drew a line on no new taxes and threatened to keep the Legislature in special session indefinitely until a reduced budget was forged.

That very same day, Speaker Gib Lewis realigned the power-structure of the Texas House to increase the odds of an emerging tax bill.

The two-party Texas Legislature is on a collision course. Clements' first hardball pitch was a fastball screaming down the middle of the plate. He will not back off his campaign tax stance, even if the Comptroller has predicted a $1 billion deficit this fiscal year, and a $4.8 billion short fall during the 1988-89 biennium.

Other state officials are set on a tax hike, but the new governor liked what he saw when he reviewed his budget force's list of about $4 billion in possible cuts. That budget guess is made up of the new "in" Republicans.

Democratic Power House
Speaker Lewis' response was to alter his grip, shift his stance and wait for the next pitch. He realigned his committee.

Letter to the Editor

[Ed. note: The Stockman published an account of a hunting accident which took the life of former Ozonan Jerald Goss shortly after his death on Nov. 21. At that time there were no witnesses and the shooting was not solved. However, clippings sent by former Ozonans Jerry and Judy Goss Monday indicate the hunter who fired the fatal shot has been indicted for involuntary manslaughter in the case.]

Dear Kitty,
Judy and I have a lot of friends in Ozona who are interested in what's going on here. We thought you might want to do a short article on the story. I have enclosed a few newspaper clippings. The man was indicted last week. After shooting Jerald he went over and viewed the body and then ran. It was eight days later when the Wood Co. Sheriff's Dept. questioned him in Coppell, Texas that he admitted the shooting. Also he had no place to hunt in this area and was trespassing on railroad property.

Thank you,
Jerry Goss

tee strength by dethroning three GOP chairmen and reducing the Republicans on the tax-writing Ways and Means Committee from seven to three.

He has said a tax bill may be necessary, and now, if Lewis wants a tax bill from the House, he'll easily get it out of committee.

The three Republicans who lost chairmanships are Tom Craddick of Midland, Buzz Robnett of Lubbock and Fred Agnich of Dallas, all one-time Lewis team members.

No Partisanship

Lewis says partisanship played no role in his reassignments. In the past, Lewis has never engaged much in party politics. He appreciates team loyalty more.

But if Lewis has made the House a bit more partisan, can he really be blamed? After all, it was only last year that:

—The GOP lined up a well-financed opponent against him;

—Some GOP members were privately speculating that Craddick would make a fine Republican speaker;

—Many Republican members deserted his team on the tax hike vote in the bloody special sessions.

All New Look

The House has a whole new look, and Lewis put Republicans in control of the powerful calendars committees. Clements' budget man Toomey is off Appropriations, but chairs the Judiciary panel.

Some other winners of promotions include Dudley Harrison of Sanderson, chairman of Agriculture and Livestock; Mark Stiles of Beaumont, County Affairs; Terral Smith of Austin, Natural Resources; and Alan Hightower of Huntsville, Corrections.

Prison Bailout

At week's end, Clements predicted the Legislature will give him the authority to transfer some $82 million to the state prison system to avert daily fines by a federal judge.

The state has until April 1 to meet court-ordered reforms or it will suffer several million in daily contempt of court fines, but Clements said the Legislature may be able to address the matter within a ten day period.

Overdue Taxes

State Comptroller Bob Bullock said 3,100 Texans owe the state a total of $37 million and he will turn the list over to Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox for collection.

Most of the sum is from overdue sales tax accounts.

Other Highlights

• Testimony began in a courtroom showdown to overturn the state's system for funding school districts. Over 100 school districts have joined the lawsuit which pits poor areas against rich for a fair share of tax dollars.

• The overcrowded prison system released more than 250 inmates last week so new inmates could be legally incarcerated.

• On his last day, former Gov. Mark White urged lawmakers to cough up emergency funding to build new prisons.

• The feud between Clements and White will likely go on forever. White's camp complained the new governor snubbed their welcome, while Clements' staff groused the governor's office was stripped bare and the computers deprogrammed.

• White's higher education panel ended its study and said a radical shakeup is needed. House Appropriations chair Jim Rudd said "no." He'll work to defeat it.

• A Senate committee advanced the nomination of Houston businessman Jack Rains for Texas Secretary of State.

• The Texas Supreme Court is preparing to revise child support guidelines based on the absent parent's take-home pay, rather than gross income.

• Clements took the oath administered by Texas Supreme Court Chief Justice John Hill, his 1978 opponent. Their conversation was described as very pleasant.

Tips For Gardeners

From the Ozona Garden Club

by Mrs. Bailey Post

Beautiful rose bushes aren't the result of care that began when the first blooms appeared. Rather, they're the end product of consistent attention that began even before the plants were in the ground. By following these few simple steps, you can lay the foundation for healthy, vigorous shrubs.

The first step many gardeners take is purchasing dormant, bare-root roses from mail-order nurseries. A dormant plant offers several advantages, one of which is that the rose doesn't have to be planted right away. In fact, you can store it for a week or more until planting is convenient. But during storage, you must make sure that the roots stay cool and moist. A good way to do this is to wrap the roots with moist paper towels; then place the bag in a cool, dark place, such as an unheated basement or a refrigerator to keep the rose dormant.

When it's time to plant, remove the rose from the bag, and place the bush in a bucket half full of water. Soak the roots for about an hour to restore them to peak condition and protect them from the sun and air while you're digging the hole.

The spot you choose for the rose should receive at least six hours of sun per day and be away from competing roots of trees and shrubs. Don't skimp on the size of hole. The more room provided for the roots, the more lush and full the plant will be. Make the hole at least twice as wide as the spread of the roots, and 12 to 18 inches deep.

When you've finished digging, make a cone-shaped mound of soil in the center of the hole, using backfill composed of two parts original soil, one part sphagnum peat moss or compost, and a half cup of bonemeal or superphosphate. Spread the roots evenly over the mound. The plant should be sitting just high enough so that the graft union (the knob on the main stem indicating where the rootstock and shoots are joined) is slightly above ground level. Then fill in around the roots with more backfill, until the hole is about three-quarters full. Tamp the soil around the rose gently with your foot. Then carefully fill the hole with water, and allow the water to slowly seep in.

Next, fill the hole completely with the backfill, checking to see that the graft union is at the proper height. Tamp again, and then gently water once more. Do not apply fertilizer. New roses don't need fertilizer the first year, unless the soil is deficient in some essential nutrient. A soil test will indicate whether a deficiency exists.

A final, but most important step in planting a new rose is to mound up mulch around the young canes to protect them against the drying wind and sun. The mulch can be shredded bark, leaf mold or straw. Leave it in place after the rose begins to grow. The mulch will slowly decompose, adding valuable humus to the soil.

Sat. Program ideas solicited by Ozona Womans Forum

The Ozona Woman's Forum met January 20 at the home of Mrs. Bill Clegg with Mrs. Bob Wallace assisting as hostess.

Mrs. Taylor Jones, presiding, called the meeting to order. Mrs. Allie Lock began the meeting with a prayer followed by roll call.

Mrs. Wallace read notes from the Crockett County Museum and the Community Center thanking the Forum for donations.

Mrs. Roy Pearson spoke on behalf of the program committee saying they would like to have ideas for programs from club members.

Mrs. T.J. Bailey asked members to make suggestions on trips they would like the Forum to take next year. Mrs. W.H. Whitaker reported that two donations for Crime Stoppers had been received.

Mrs. Pleas Childress reported on the Indian Exhibit at the museum.

Mrs. Allie Lock asked the Forum to sponsor the musical concert March 1 at 2:30 p.m. at the high school auditorium. Mrs. Huey Ingram made a motion that the Forum donate $150.00 to this program. The motion carried and posters concerning the concert were passed around for club members to read.

The president announced that yearly reports are due Feb. 1 and she would like all departmental chairmen to meet in a group and write the reports.

Mrs. Larry Graves' part of the program was "Protecting Gods' Creatures" and Mrs. Charlie Black spoke on "Keeping an Ecological Balance" to finish the program.

The president then closed the meeting.

The following members were present: Louise Bunger, Norma Carson, Crystelle Childress, Geniece Childress, Rachel Childress, Arlene Clayton, Ella Clegg, Elizabeth Dudley, Glenda Henderson, Lu Ingram, Georgia Kirby, Lois Lock, Louisa Pearson, Bernice Phillips, Madeline Stokes, Bonnie Warth, Modene Whitaker, Totsy Hagelstein, Sophie Kyle, Ethel Miller, Pauline Montgomery.

Also present was: Jewel Bailey, Jane Black, Joycelyn Grave, Alleane Jones, Lois Lock, Louisa Pearson and Barbara Wallace.

Law enforcement wives hold meeting

The Crockett County Law Enforcement Wives Association held their second monthly meeting on January 20 in the home of Jacquie King.

Permanent officers were elected and are as follows: president - Cindy Simmons, vice-president - Sandra Gonzales, secretary/treasurer - Jill De La Garza and reporter - Linda De La Garza.

Members then formed by-laws for the organization and discussed upcoming activities.

Before adjourning the wives drew for secret sisters.

Refreshments were served. Those present were Jodie Barton, Cindy Simmons, Linda De La Garza, Sandra Gonzales, Jill De La Garza, Barbara Burger and Jacquie King.

The next meeting will be held in February at a date to be announced at a later time. All law enforcement wives are urged to attend.

Breast cancer unit due here

The mobile Breast Cancer Detection Unit will be in Ozona Monday, Feb. 2, at the Crockett County Hospital, as a service of the hospital.

A screening mammogram is an x-ray of the breast using extremely low dosages of radiation and is designed to find very early cancers.

A female technologist who is highly trained in mammography will perform the examination.

Charge for the screening mammogram is $50. A report will be sent to the woman's physician.

For more information or to make an appointment, call 392-2671.

FINISHED LOOK - Sandy Phillips Wednesday to work with the High School Cosmetology Department students. Mikeal Davis looks on. Davis was here

Professional cosmetologist gives class demonstrations

Mikeal Davis, a representative from Kendra Laboratories was a guest of Ozona's cosmetology class last week. He spent the day demonstrating various new techniques in perming, cuts and color highlighting. Davis, who is a stylist with the Carriage Boutique and Salon in San Angelo, has been in cosmetology for eight giving demonstrations for Kendra Laboratories for over a year.

"I really enjoyed visiting and sharing ideas with the students. They are the most receptive group I've come across in a long while," noted Davis. He has been active in competitions, including the National Beauty Show in New Orleans this past weekend where he taught color techniques. The cosmetology class was honored to have him share his prize winning concepts.

Although he has won honors at the State Beauty Convention for his Avant Garde hairstyle, there were no takers in that area of styling. Even so he had plenty of guinea pigs for his new concepts of color techniques and cuts to better enhance an individuals coloring and facial features.

Coach Rhonda Yarbrough is sporting a new cut and style enhanced with a new color technique combining two gold blondes. "She looks gorgeous," noted Davis with satisfaction as his exuberance spread throughout the room and infected the class.

Local dancers host half-way dance

Saturday night was a big event for area square dancers. Levis and Lace Square Dance Club of Ozona hosted the annual half-way dance for Joseph Miller's students. The half-way dance is in celebration of the students' having finished fifteen weeks of square dance instruction.

Students from San Angelo, Sonora and Ozona were entertained by callers Joseph Miller and Randy Hooker from San Angelo and Bob Bell and Janet Henry of Ozona. The Fellowship Hall of United Methodist Church was decorated with western flavor including cowboy clothes around the campfire.

Cowboy picnic food, punch and coffee were served to students and dancers from San Angelo, Eldorado, Sonora, Crane, Christoval, and Ozona.

Halls host Thursday 42 Club

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Hall hosted a 42 party January 22 at the Crockett County National Bank. Mr. and Mrs. Buster Miller were high players, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Harris were low, Mrs. and Mrs. Jerry Perry won the 84, and Mr. and Mrs. Perry Hubbard won the bingo.

Other players included: Mr. and Mrs. R.L. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Kost, Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Owens, and Mr. and Mrs. Bill Ivy.

A View of the World Through The Word

By Ralph O. Moore, Minister
Ozona Church of Christ

Just at the time the rhetoric concerning the Iran arms - contra funds scandal was getting somewhat stale, the mass media found some other fresh topics in the USG Acoustical Products' ban on employee smoking on the job or at home, the incessant taking of hostages, and the latest ploy of Oral Roberts. I don't know which one of these is the hottest topic now, but one can find ample opportunity to discuss either. As always, there are diverse opinions.

While its certainly not my job to judge the lives of any people concerning their eternal destination, it is my task as a gospel preacher to address issues, situations, or persons that blatantly attack the truth of God's Word.

I realize that you can tie any topic to a theological thread and sew some kind of fabric, but I'll pass on the political issues and the smoking controversy and direct some attention to the claims of Mr. Roberts.

God has always spoken out against religious charlatans. In both Testaments, false prophets received God's stern rebukes and warnings (cf. Deut. 18:20; 1 John 4:1ff). But, it's not only the false prophets who are condemned by the Lord - those who are led astray by these deceivers are also held accountable (Mt. 7:15-23).

Mr. Barnum, the great showman, is often quoted as saying, "There's a sucker born every minute." The world we live in proves the point. Deception reigns supreme in many realms, but it's especially true, and tragic, in the realm of religion. And many suckers too!

Paul's admonition to the Ephesians, "do not be foolish, but understand what the will of the Lord is" (Eph. 5:17), should be a constant reminder to us. Measure all claims and people by the Word of God. Don't be too quick to swallow every claim that is made in the name of religion. Paul once warned the leaders of the church at Ephesus, "from among your own selves man will arise speaking perverse things" (Acts 20:30). Some religious leaders do go astray and lead others into error with them. Check it out with the Word of God.

Now to Mr. Roberts and his recent claim that God told him to raise several million dollars or he would die and be called home. Even if one was aware of all the preposterous assertions that have come from this man, the authenticity of this claim would be hard to believe on the basis of common sense alone. Claims are substantiated or negated by evidence, and the Word of God proves that Mr. Roberts is misdirected in his statements.

Most of the media has been critical, even hostile, toward this fatuous claim - and rightly so! Many faith healers, gurus, and other sensation seekers dress in seemingly righteous robes, pray in velvety tones, and surround themselves with an air of pretentious meekness. Not too far behind is a collection plate. Always!

Look at those robes long enough and you'll see some threads of greed unravelling. Listen to those soft-spoken prayers long enough and you'll realize they are speaking to themselves - not to God. Breathe the air of that contrived meekness long enough and you will be nauseated. And, by the way, when the collection plate is passed time and time again - even the hardnoses give.

In the name of religion Jim Jones had his followers raise cups to their lips and die for his brand of salvation. Many of them were sincere, no doubt, but their bodies lying in a steamy South American jungle became a monument to religious perversion, and a cry for God's Truth to be heard over man's depravity.

Now, Oral Roberts leads many sincere souls down a path where their wallets are opened and raised to support a charade of devotion. The stench left by such hypocrisy makes one sick, but the need to preach Christ truthfully is realized once again.

Consider Mr. Roberts and his claims in the light of God's Truth. For one thing, the Scriptures teach that heaven is the goal of those serving God. It is not a penal institution where God punishes preachers who cannot raise funds. The Apostle Paul said, "to live is Christ and to die is gain" (Phil. 1:21). In that same context, the saintly Paul, while considering the importance of his work on the earth, admitted that he had the "desire to depart and be with Christ for that is very much better" (Phil. 1:23). The Christian's "citizenship is in heaven" (Phil. 3:20), and his greatest joy is to go to that prepared place. Heaven is desired. It is triumph, victory! Mr. Roberts has mocked a place God made holy.

Another fallacy evident in the claims of Mr. Roberts is his alleged conversations with God. Some time ago, Oral broadcast that he had seen a gigantic Jesus asking him to do some work that, of course, required a lot of money. Over the years Roberts' claims to have spoken with God approach thirty or more times. The Bible says that God is no respecter of persons (Rom. 2:11; Acts 10:34f), thus for Him to appear to Oral and not all others would make God a liar. God spoke to all men through inspired people in recording His Word, but once completed, supernatural revelation ceased (cf. 1 Cor. 13:10). God speaks to all only in the gospel. Jesus will appear again (Acts 1:11), but He will be viewed by all at the same time (1 Thess. 4:15-17; Rev. 1:7), not to a select few to raise funds.

Another variance with the Word of God that Mr. Roberts, and others like him, displays is in the manner of praying. Have you ever noticed that many of the flashy preachers today have to tell you how much they pray? Jesus said, "Shut your door and pray in secret" (Mt. 6:5-6). When Oral Roberts boasts about his many talks with God, he transgresses the very example left by Christ. Many of the high pressure preachers bend their knees in prayer, but they do it as television beams it into homes all over the country. I guess they have to - how else will people know how devout they are, or how much money to send? Amazingly, many people "buy" these acts and rush to send the money.

The Apostle John warned the Christian community early on that "many false prophets have gone out into the world," therefore they should "test" them to see if they were from God (1 John 4:1). The "test" is done as one examines claims in the light of Scripture. Jesus said you would know men by their fruit or actions (Mt. 7:15ff); since there are numerous wolves in sheep's clothing, its important to test them.

There are other things that should bother the sincere truth seeker about Mr. Roberts. Doesn't it seem a bit hypocritical for any faith healer to have hospitals or to send medical missionaries? If he can heal directly then heal! Again the antics of such claims are seen in their departure from Scripture. God does heal, but not through the miraculous touch of some vendor in a three piece suit. Notice, when they fail to produce, always, it is laid to the lack of faith in some poor soul. Jesus raised Lazarus from the dead, and Lazarus had no faith at all - he was dead!

This examination of religious promoters could go on and on. Please remember this, use the Word as the standard to measure all claims. Screen the message of all men with the Word of God, the worthless will not be able to go through. Just because the bait looks or sounds appealing don't swallow the hook, its barbed. Don't send money to support outlandish claims, their coffers are bottomless pits and, as they have asked before, they will ask again and again and again. The stories will become more glamorous as time goes by.

Deception has invaded the souls of many as Satan convinces them to kill, lie, or rob in God's name. Don't be taken in by the claims of men - test them by the Word, that way "your faith does not rest on the wisdom of men but on the power of God" (1 Cor. 2:5).

FUNERAL HOME CHANGES HANDS - Billy Wagoner and Charles Beckey shake hands after signing the papers for the sale of the funeral home to Billy and Lisa Wagoner. The Wagoners take over February 6.

Wagoners buy funeral home from the Sizemores

A deal which has been in the making for several weeks was culminated Monday when Charles and Beckey Sizemore signed the business over to Billy and Lisa Wagoner.

The Sizemores will operate the business until February 6. They plan to move to Midland, where they will open another mortuary after that date. They came to Ozona to operate the funeral home in 1977 upon the death of Lawrence Janes. They subsequently bought the business and made many improvements, giving Ozona a top notch facility and one of which they could be proud.

The Wagoners have hired Mike Preddy to manage the funeral home. Mike is a native Ozonan, as is his wife, Tracey. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Preddy and Mr. and Mrs. Jamie Knox. They have two children Chuck, 8, and Allison, 4. Both Mike and Tracey are Ozona High School graduates. They have been living in Kerrville for the past three years where Mike was a funeral director. He has been licensed as a director for the past six years and worked first for Hubbard-Kelly Funeral Home in Odessa. He has worked several funerals with Sizemore.

Billy and Lisa are also native Ozonans and presently own and operate Maxine's Flowers, where Billy operates a landscaping service. Lisa is the daughter of Tom Mitchell, and his parents are Mr. and Mrs. Bill Wagoner. Billy has operated a garage and was associated with Wagoner-Perry Motor Co. before going full time into the present business. They have two sons, Wiley, 2, and Austin, 6 mos.

The Wagoners will move into the home presently occupied by the Sizemores and will take over full management of the funeral home Feb. 7. Billy will leave for Dallas in March, where he is enrolled in the Dallas Institute of Mortuary Science. After graduation in twelve months, he will take his state and national mortuary boards before becoming a licensed mortician.

Lisa and the boys will remain in Ozona to oversee the flower shop and funeral home.

Baggett attends conference

Jack Baggett, Jr., owner of The Baggett Agency, has returned from the 1987 Producer/Company Council of the U.S. Insurance Group, a Crum and Forster organization. The meeting took place at the Lubbock Plaza Hotel and Conference Center.

The Council provides an annual opportunity for independent insurance agents, brokers, and company representatives from 27 midwestern and southern states to discuss industry concerns and exchange ideas on how to better serve the insuring public.

Baggett is a member of the Independent Insurance Agents of Texas, the Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association, the U.S. Polo Association, and the Ozona Chamber of Commerce. He also serves on the board of the United Methodist Church.

NEVER TOO LATE

How I used to hate to practice the piano when I was a child! Yet, today, how I wish I could play well — and that I had the time to practice!

So often, we turn our back on opportunity, only to find, when we want it, that it's too late.

Not so with the Church. The Church gives you no reason for regrets. If, long ago, you gave up going to church, there is no reason why you can't start again now. Even if you've never gone to church, you'll find a warm welcome awaiting you this and every Sunday. For God's love is constant and everlasting.

In the Church it is, literally, never too late.

Crockett County Care Center News

Residents wasted no time selecting their favorite color to paint on their pencil holders in Monday morning's craft class.

Monday afternoon, the Quarterly Hospital and Care Center Auxiliary meeting was held. Newly elected officers are Glenda Henderson - president, Jo Davidson - secretary, and Marie Pierson - treasurer. It was announced that a disc stereo system had been purchased for the Care Center. Volunteers to serve on various committees were asked for and future projects were discussed.

Francisco Lopez had beginner's luck Tuesday morning during bingo. It was the first time he joined us for bingo and he won two games. Other winners were Samuel Martinez, Juana Hernandez, Edna Wallace, Emma Taylor, Moriama Perez, and Rebekah West. We would like to say thank you to Dorothy Doll, Mattie Cooper, Sophie Kyle, and Georgia Kirby for their assistance.

Tuesday afternoon residents took turns experimenting with an electronic keyboard. They were amazed at the different sounds it produced by simply touching a button. Residents participating were; Lucia Rios, Virginia Hoover, Moriama Perez, Manuela Perez, Theo Burns, Hazel McDaniel, Juana Hernandez, Doris Robnett, Edna Wallace, and Bertha Miller. The volunteer for this activity was Kathy Bortz.

An Indian bust was the center of attention during Wednesday morning's ceramic workshop. Although residents were busy working on various pieces of their own, they kept an eye on Ruth Hester demonstrating how to apply stains to the Indian.

Residents participated in a short exercise routine and a game of ring toss Wednesday afternoon. Almost everyone made at least one ring. Residents trying their luck were Lucia Rios, Elzy Bishop, Doris Robnett, Samuel Martinez, Juana Hernandez, and Edna Wallace. Edna was the champion.

Residents listened to Clara Byrd's piano music after they had enjoyed a visit with volunteers Joann Williamson, Lola Rios, Melinda Hokit and Clara in the beauty shop, Thursday morning.

Mid-week Bible study was presented by Jim Gray of the First Baptist Church. Glenda Henderson played the piano.

The Spanish Hour of Praise was next with a large group of visitors. Herberto Guterrez played the guitar, and several hymns were sung in Spanish.

KERA to air TV special on teen problems tonight

KERA Channel 13 and 90.1 will air a trio of specials Wednesday, January 28, in an in-depth look at national and local efforts to combat the five most severe problems facing American youth in the 1980s. The two KERA productions, along with a Public Broadcasting Service (PBS) special hosted by actor Sam Waterston and First Lady Nancy Reagan, will examine the interrelated problems of teenage suicide, drug and alcohol abuse, high school dropouts and teen pregnancy.

"Generation at Risk," the one-hour PBS special airing at 7 p.m. on Channel 13, leads off the evening with a national overview of these problems as they occur around the country, and will assess some of the diverse ways that communities have chosen to deal with them.

Then at 8 p.m., the KERA produced "Generation at Risk Follow-up" focuses on local programs geared to helping North Texas youth cope with the pressures that lead to these problems, as well as helping to solve them once they occur. The half-hour Channel 13 follow-up, produced by Michael Regunberg and hosted by Bob Ray Sanders, will feature a panel discussion before a live studio audience, with both groups composed of area professionals and volunteers active in local youth programs.

At 8:30 p.m., immediately following Channel 13's "Generation at Risk Follow-up," KERA 90.1 will present a special edition of "The Evening Talk Show" hosted by Karen Dnard and devoted to the issues raised by the television specials. The North Texas public radio station will also air a series of related special reports Tuesday and Wednesday, January 27 and 28, during the 5-to-9 a.m. "Morning Edition."

The KERA/PBS "Generation at Risk" project is a sequel to "The Chemical People," the 1983 public broadcasting undertaking the combined a series of programs on teenage substance abuse with local outreach efforts that are still in effect today. KERA's community involvement for "Generation at Risk" includes a special task force made up of representatives from dozens of North Texas groups, including the Dallas County and Tarrant County Councils on Alcoholism and Drug Abuse, Dallas Challenge, the Fort Worth Adolescent Pregnancy Board, Parkland Hospital's Adolescent Drug Treatment Project and the Dallas Suicide and Crisis Center.

"Our investigations have shown us that more is at stake here than just one generation," said KERA president and general manager Dr. Richard J. Meyer. "Every aspect of life in the United States is being touched adversely by substance abuse, teenage suicide and pregnancy, and the huge numbers of dropouts. These are grave problems, but the common theme that runs through our 'Generation at Risk' programs is that all these problems are both preventable and treatable. That's the message we hope to get across: that there is hope if communities will pull together."

KERA's presentation of "Generation at Risk" and related programs is made possible, in part, by a grant from the Effie and Wofford Cain Foundation.

Happy Birthday wishes go to Daniel Vasquez who will be 15 years old on Friday, January 30.

Producers should conserve water

The water cycle is the never ending movement of water from clouds to soil, through plants, and to clouds again. The cycle begins when precipitation strikes the land and ends when the water leaves land either through runoff or evapotranspiration. During this time, livestock producers would store as much water as possible within the soil for use in forage production.

When falling raindrops strike bare soil, the impact causes both splash erosion and soil compaction. This results in faster runoff and increased erosion. A good plant cover breaks the force of the raindrops and allows the water to move into the soil. The soil affords a large reservoir for moisture storage, reducing flooding, enhancing water quality and promoting a greater and more consistent supply of forage.

A healthier, more productive water cycle is the result of proper grazing management that increases plant cover and vigor and reduces soil erosion. A vigorous plant cover is an important part of influencing the water cycle and making effective use of the precipitation falling on rangeland.

All range management practices will affect the water cycle to some degree. The local Soil Conservation Service office working through the Crockett Soil and Water Conservation District can help ranchers increase the benefits of a healthy water cycle on their ranch.

Extension Office News

by Rachel Hall

Americans are getting their kicks out of health these days and fat is a dirty word. Before you go around kicking the fat, however, it's wise to bone up on the fat facts.

Fat is necessary for a healthy diet, since it is needed for the absorption, transport, and storage of vitamins A, D, E and K - the fat soluble vitamins. These vitamins enhance vision, bone strength, fertility and blood coagulation. Diets severely limited in fat content can cause many problems. Fat is not all bad.

Excess fat, however, is bad and most Americans should worry about too much rather than too little. Today, 42 percent of the calories in an average American diet come from fats. The American Heart Association recommends that fats make up no more than 30 to 35 percent of daily calories. AHA also recommends a 1:1:1 ratio of polyunsaturated, monounsaturated and saturated fats.

Polyunsaturated and monounsaturated fats are liquids at room temperature while saturated fats are solids at room temperature. Saturated fats are believed to raise cholesterol levels in susceptible persons, while polyunsaturated fats are believed to lower cholesterol levels.

If you're cutting out the fat in your diet for health reasons, you've probably eliminated all kinds of goodies like butter, chocolate, salad dressing and red meat. But wait! Take a second look at that steak before you feed it to Fido.

Did you know that 3 ounces of cooked, trimmed top loin have a mere 8.7 grams of fat? Less than half of that is saturated. For persons on a 2,000 calorie diet that sirloin steak is providing only 13 percent of the American Heart Association's recommended 67 grams of fat per day.

Surprised? Don't feel alone. Many people are astonished to discover that beef is a low calorie, low fat, delicious component of a healthy diet. Beef's reputation for excess fat developed several decades ago when cattle were genetically designed and fed to produce lots of fat as well as muscle.

Today's beef animal is a dramatic departure from those butterballs of yesteryear. Modern beef animals are genetically designed and fed to produce lean carcasses with the barest of fat cover. It all adds up to less. Less fat, less calories and less worry about your health.

Sheriff's Report

The following is the activity report for the Crockett County Sheriff's office for the week ending January 7, 1987.

ARRESTS

January 20 - A 37-year-old Midland man was arrested by THP and Sheriff's Deputies for DWI. He was released after posting a $500 bond.

January 23 - A 49-year-old Ozona man was arrested for DWI by THP and Sheriff's Deputies. He was released the next day after posting a $500 bond.

January 24 - A 39-year-old Ozona man was arrested for DWI by THP. He posted a $500 bond and was released.

January 24 - A 24-year-old Ozona man was arrested for public intoxication by Sheriff's Deputies. He was released after posting a $50 fine.

January 26 - A 32-year-old Ozona man was arrested by Sheriff's Deputies for public intoxication. He was released, the next day, after posting a $400 bond.

January 26 - A 25-year-old Ozona man was arrested on charges of assaulting his wife. Bond was set at $2000 and he remains in jail.

INCIDENTS

January 24 - An Ozona woman reported that she was struck by a 24-year-old Ozona man. This occurred in a private club. The suspect was arrested and placed in jail.

January 24 - A resident of Walnut Street reported the windshield and headlight of his car broken. Sheriff's Deputies investigated and have developed a suspect, the investigation is continuing.

January 25 - An Ozona resident reported the theft of gasoline from a vehicle while it was parked near the high school cafeteria.

January 26 - An Ozona woman reported that she had been assaulted by her husband. Sheriff's Deputies investigated the case and a warrant obtained for the 25-year-old suspect. The husband was arrested and placed in jail under a $2000 bond.

through Crockett county, the northern route, running from McCamey to just south of San Angelo and Brownwood and east to McGregor before veering south to the Gulf Coast, and the southern route from McCamey through the western edge of Crockett County and to Del Rio before veering directly east and on to the Gulf Coast.

The report said all three routes cross a number of aquifers and all could affect the Texas-coast habitat of the endangered Atwater's greater prairie chicken.

Public hearings along the northern route will begin in 60 days. Following the hearings another study will determine the fate of the pipeline.

NEW BOOKS

CCPL has just acquired the "Encyclopedia of the American Constitution" in time for the Bicentennial Celebration 1787-1987. This Encyclopedia, in four volumes, gives the complete history of the men who met in convention and wrote the laws of our nation. The Encyclopedia goes through the Constitution and outlines and explains each Article and also each Amendment that has been added. It is a tribute to the wisdom and foresight of our Constitutional fathers that only 26 Amendments have been added to the Constitution in 200 years. The Encyclopedia contains a comprehensive time line of the Constitution from 1787 to 1985. All the justices of the Supreme Court and the landmark cases that have influenced our laws are in these four volumes. Everything anyone might need to know about the Constitution is all in the "Encyclopedia of the American Constitution." Come Check It Out!

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Pfaff and children, Andrew and Laura, of Hunt, spent the weekend here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Otis Holt. The children are spending the week here with their grandparents.

Forum to sponsor Dallas Brass concert

The Ozona Womans Forum will present in concert Sunday March 1, "The Dallas Brass." The concert will be held at 2:30 p.m. in the high school auditorium. Tickets are $2 each and may be purchased from any forum member.

Since their founding in 1982, the Dallas Brass has rapidly developed a national reputation for innovation, style and musical artistry. With the addition of percussion, the Dallas Brass brings a new dimension to the standard brass quintet. Their unique instrumentation, coupled with original arrangements, enables them to perform a multitude of musical styles from Mozart to Copland, from Benny Goodman to Lionel Richie.

The ensemble was chosen Ensemble-in-Residence at Southern Methodist University in 1985 and performs frequently for that institution. They are on their second national tour at present, with their Ozona concert in the schedule.

Forum members ask everyone in the community to mark their calendars and enjoy this unique concert on March 1.

Houseguests of Mrs. J.J. Marley last week were her sisters and a brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. O.G. Conn of Kansas City, Kan. and Mrs. James Barnes of Comanche, Okla.

New immigration law to affect both employees and employers

The Immigration Control and Legalization Amendments Act of 1986 was signed into law in December 1986 and is now in effect. The legislative swiftness has not been matched by the system as many specific regulations and government forms have not yet been issued.

Following is a list of the provisions which will affect agricultural employees.

*The law makes it illegal to knowingly hire, recruit, or refer for a fee, any person not authorized work in this country. It establishes stiff penalties for violators. It applies to all employers regardless of size or number of workers employed.

*The law requires employers to inspect documents and attest to the legal right to work of every person hired. It establishes penalties for employers who do not comply with this paperwork requirement even if no illegal aliens are employed. Again, no exceptions are granted.

The law provides a mechanism that will allow most agricultural workers to attain legal status. If the workers can show they have worked 90 or more man-days in the production and harvesting of perishable agricultural commodities during the year beginning May 1, 1985, they can obtain temporary resident status and, after two years, become permanent residents. For those workers who worked 90 man-days in the same capacity described above in each of the three years ending May 1, 1984, 1985, and 1986, they may become residents after one year. The number allowed permanent status under the three-year consecutive years of work provision is limited to 350,000. Once either group has obtained permanent status, however, they have no obligation to continue to work in agriculture.

*Anyone who can show continual residence since January 1, 1982, can be granted temporary status for 18 months and may be granted permanent status for 18 months and may be granted permanent status after that period.

*During a four-year period from 1989-1993, the law allows admission of a limited number of aliens to perform field work in fruits, vegetables and other perishable commodities if it is determined they are needed. Those admitted are obligated to do at least 90 man-days of such work for three consecutive years. They then can stay in the U.S. permanently but have no further obligation to work in agriculture.

Based on the law, it seems prudent for every employer to ask for documentation of legal status prior to employment. Any of the following listing of documents or combination of documents meets the criteria as proof of resident status as set forth in the law.

1. A U.S. passport.
2. Certificate of U.S. citizenship.
3. Certificate of naturalization.
4. Resident alien card or other alien registration card with photo and is evidence of authorization to work.
5. A current foreign passport with a current endorsement allowing the applicant to work in the U.S.
6. Social Security card and a driver's license or other identification card with photo, issued by the state.
7. U.S. birth certificate or birth certificate which establishes U.S. nationality at birth and a driver's license or other state issued identification card with photo.

If employers knowingly hire unauthorized aliens, they can be fined between $250 and $2,000 for each such employee for a first offense. The second violation carries a fine of $2,000 to $5,000 per employee found in violation. After more than two previous citations, the fines range from $3,000 to $10,000 per offense. If, in the opinion of the attorney general, an employer is engaging in a pattern or practice of violations, he may face criminal charges which carry fines and/or jail sentences.

There is a period through March 1987 during which no citations will be issued. During the subsequent year through March 1988, a first offender will be cited, but no penalty will be assessed. Second and subsequent violations found during this year, however, will be penalized as outlined in the bill. After March 1987, all violations are subject to the full measure of the bill.

For seasonal agricultural employees (90 man-days in production and harvesting of perishable commodities), no penalty will be imposed for violation until the application period for the seasonal agricultural worker program has ended in October 1988.

The law also addresses workers employed through a labor contractor. If the rancher knows the employees are not authorized to work in the U.S., the rancher is considered to be the one doing the hiring. Any sanctions imposed will be against the rancher.

Employers who do not adhere to the documentation requirements may also be fined. The law mandates employers maintain a record-keeping system that

Delinquent tax collection set

A joint effort by State Comptroller Bob Bullock and Attorney General Jim Mattox will target the collection of more than $37 million in delinquent taxes from some 3,100 taxpayers.

"We've got back taxes over the last year that will take the aggressive and dedicated efforts of someone like Jim Mattox to get settled," Bullock said.

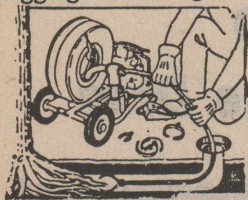

Bullock said that his office will hand over problem accounts to the Attorney General after normal collection at-

Ozonans invade Lajitas over the weekend

Twenty-nine Ozonans traveled to Lajitas last weekend to participate in the two-man partnership golf tournament.

Although only two teams placed, the group had a great time. While the men played golf, the wives went shopping and did some sight-seeing.

The team of Bob Threadgill and Glen Graham won first place in the first flight and the team of Bill Clegg and Larry Walker placed third in the second flight.

Couples making the three-day trip were: Mr. and Mrs. Bill Clegg, Mr. and Mrs. Mike Clayton, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Adams, Mr. and Mrs. Perry Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Gene Lilly, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Threadgill, Mr. and Mrs. Peanut Sanders and Mr. and Mrs. Larry Walker.

Others participating were: Tite Bishop, Otis Holt, Jack Baggett, Rick Webster, Randy Crawford, Jerry Hayes, Rip Sewell, Eddie Stewart, Glen Graham, Pancho McMullan, Jim Sanker, Mike Womack, and J.L. Alexander.

Willie V. Baggett Miller of Kerrville, spent the weekend in Ozona visiting relatives and friends.

Jamie Pagan is in St. Johns Hospital in San Angelo, where he is undergoing medical tests.

BASKET BALL

Lion varsity and JV take victories from Big Lake teams

By Lisa Collin

The Ozona varsity and JV Lions triumphed over both Big Lake's JV and varsity teams last week.

In the JV game, the boys won by a substantial score of 59-29. The Lions led throughout the entire game, but the majority of their points occurred in the fourth quarter when Ozona scored a total of 27 points. Leading the scoring drive for Ozona was Wolf Rutherford and Pete Ramirez each with thirteen points. Oscar Galindo contributed ten points followed by Chris Denman with nine. Others scoring for the Lions were Lalo Rodriguez with four, Robbie Tambunga with three, Tommy Tucker, Javier Martinez, Copie Davis each with two, and George Ybarra with one.

The varsity game was a closer competition, but the varsity Lions still outplayed and outscored the Owls 66-49. The score was very close throughout the first half, but in the second half, the endurance and skill of the Lions outlasted Big Lake. Roger Flores led in scoring with a total of sixteen points followed by Scott Denman with twelve, Mike Morrow contributed eleven points, and Sam Hightower scored ten. Also adding points to the scoreboard were Chi Flores with eight, Will Seahorn with six, and Abel Lara with three.

The varsity Lions also competed against Eldorado last week in a complete demolition with a score of 66-38. Ozona outscored and outplayed the Eagles throughout all four quarters in a decided victory. With this win, the Lions have won the first half of district play undefeated, and also have an assured spot in the playoffs. Scott Denman led in scoring with an astronomical 29 points, followed by Sam Hightower with ten.

Seventh and eighth grade girls take wins over week

By Lisa Collin

Both the Ozona seventh and eighth grade girls were victorious against Rankin in two very good performances last week. Also the seventh grade girls took third place at the McCamey tournament.

The seventh grade walked over Rankin with a 20-13 win. The girls established an early lead in the game and kept it through all four quarters. Leading in scoring were Patricia Hartnett with six, Kristi Porter with five, and Veronica Mendoza with four.

In the eighth grade game, Ozona stomped Rankin with a 34-18 win. The team's offense and defense was much improved and they dominated throughout the game. Ofie Rios led in scoring with twelve points followed by Kimberly Coy with six and Teena Tambunga with five.

The McCamey Tournament proved to be quite a successful experience for the seventh grade girls as they achieved a third place win.

The first game was a very close competition against Stanton. The score was 23-20 in a very good effort. Kristi Porter led in scoring with a total of fifteen points.

The second game was a 28-23 loss against Iraan who has the tournament winner. Ozona played a very good ball game but just could not achieve a lead. Leading in scoring was Kristi Porter with sixteen points.

The final game of the tournament was the demolition of Greenwood with a score of 38-11. Kristi Porter led in scoring with eighteen points. Coach Tucker said "All the girls played team ball and passed very well." He also was very happy to have received a third place win in a very good tournament.

Junior varsity gets only win out of three for Lady Lions

By Lisa Collin

Last week, the Ozona varsity, JV and freshman Lady Lions took on Big Lake in the second half of district play. Although all three girls teams competed, the JV brought forth the only victory.

The freshman game was the first game played and also the first defeat for the Lady Lions that day. The final score was 31-25 after Ozona attempted to make a comeback after the first half in which Big Lake led 17-9. Terel Seahorn scored the majority of the points with thirteen, followed by Sarah Pullen with four. Lanessa Porter, Tammy Arrott, and Stacy Berry each scored two.

The second game played was the JV game in which the Lady Lions were victorious 50-48. The score seesawed and was close throughout the game as both teams attempted a victory. Dottie Gonzales led in scoring with fifteen while Kriss Corley followed close behind with twelve. Griselda Hernandez contributed eleven points to the team and Polly Villarreal scored ten. Dee Frazier also contributed two.

In the varsity game, the Lady Lions suffered a major loss 74-49. The score was very close up until the start of the third quarter when Big Lake jumped ahead with the lead and went on to win the game.

Scoring for the Lady Lions were Kelly Williams with thirteen, Vickie Reagor with eleven, and Stacy Lay with nine. Others adding points to the scoreboard were Lydia Pena with seven, Vickie Flores with three, and Stacie Winkley with two.

Lady Lions and JV both downed by Eldorado

By Lisa Collin

Both the JV and varsity Lady Lions played against Eldorado last week. Neither team was victorious but the girls put forth much effort and hard work into the games.

In the JV game, Eldorado took an early lead and at the end of the first half were leading 15-6. Their lead continued to grow until the fourth quarter when Ozona attempted a comeback. Although the girls scored ten more points than Eldorado this was not enough and they went on to lose 33-29. Leading the scoring drive were Polly Villarreal with nine, and Kriss Corley with eight. Griselda Hernandez contributed five points followed by Dottie Gonzales with four. Shannon Curry added two points to the score and Kristina Martinez contributed one.

The varsity Lady Lions were defeated 65-47 after a good show of effort and team playing. At the end of the first half Eldorado was leading by a small 32-27 margin. Then in the third quarter, Eldorado took control of the game and established a bigger and bigger lead for the rest of the game. Vickie Reagor scored twelve points followed by Kelly Williams and Stacy Lay each with eleven. Lydia Pena contributed nine points and Vickie Flores added four to the score.
