HYLAN AND TAMMANY WIN; OVER 400,000 MAJORITY

MAINLY ABOUT PEOPLE

By H. N. F.

It is the sacred duty of a writer or maker of a newspaper to keep the record straight and it has ever been the contention as well as the practice of H. N. F. to endeavor to keep the record straight. Hon. David F. Houston was secretary of the treasury when the Federal Reserve board attempted to put in operation a policy of deflation in order to curb the insane speculative debauch of the American people, to call a halt of the wild extravagances of the hour and to usher in a period of liquidation which would make the American dollar worth a hundred cents, business stable, place commerce on a firm basis and restore credits to pre-war conditions. David F. Houston blocked the program for almost a year. He had never had fifteen minutes business experience in his life and yet he had been placed at the head of the treasury department and was in a sense dictator of government finance. He had been an educator beginning with the close of his college days; he had been at the head, educationally speaking, of the Texas University and the A. & M. College and was president of Washington University when President Woodrow Wilson made him secretary of agriculture. It is nothing short of criminal to place a square peg in a round hole. David H. Houston is an educator. He never was and never will be a financier. Now why should a shoemaker be placed in the pulpit as a Bible teacher and interpreter or a bricklayer given the job of handling the financial problems of a municipality or a commonwealth. Seventy-five per cent of the senators or congressmen are lawyers and this isn't a fault-finding criticism of the law or the men who pursue it. Now why shouldn't the business interests of a commonwealth send experienced business men, experienced financiers, experienced manufacturers, experienced and successful farmers or bread winners to the state or national capitals to make the laws of commonwealth or country? Why pick the inexperienced, the untried or the unfit to make the laws or conduct the affairs of the people of Texas or the American people?

Dr. Burris A. Jenkins has retired from the editorship of the Kansas City Daily Post, retired from active journalism, and will devote all his time and his great ability to his pulpit, his congregation and the spiritual life of Kansas City and his country. Dr. Jenkins was one of the eloquent pulpit orators of America when he became the editor of the Kansas City Post. He has hundreds of friends in Texas, friends who admire his extraordinary ability, his soulful ideals, his personal integrity and his splendid comradeship. He had been very successful as an editor of the Post, he had become known as one of the ablest editorial writers of America. His latest book had met with a wide sale and his influence in the political life of America was far reaching and commanding. William Gibbs McAdoo was his friend and admirer and the friends of McAdoo who attended the San Francisco convention last year selected this brilliant pulpit orator and distinguished newspaper writer to present the name of McAdoo to the convention as their choice for presidential standard bearer of the democratic party. He was the chief and the dominant figure in all the McAdoo caucuses and all the followers of McAdoo were captivated by the personal charm and sunshiney presence of this gifted Missourian who has placed the world behind him and returned to his first love and sacred duty—that of a pastor of the Christian church and the flock who look upon him as spiritual guide and teacher. C. F. Bonfils and Harry Tammen of the Denver Post are millionaires and also the owners of the Kansas City Post. Bonfils is a Catholic; Harry Tammen a man of the world, without church affiliation and these men placed Dr. Jenkins in charge of their Kansas City property and were ready at all times to back him with their millions. They never interfered with his editorial policy. He was unhandicapped and never gagged. His course was mapped out by himself and his pen and his voice uncontrolled. He is a man who is not of his denomination and who places the profession of journalism above all and beyond all the professions, congratulates Dr. Jenkins on his retirement from the Post for, deep down in his heart, he knows that the preacher-editor followed the dictates of an honest conscience when he deserted the tripod for the pulpit knowing that a man cannot serve two masters and that the teachings of the Nazarene and the temptations of Mammon cannot be harnessed together or made to work together in this vale of tears. Good luck, but not good bye.

There is a thin grey line that is fading away. Jot Woodall died at his home at Farmersville the other day. He was the father of Dr. O. W. Woodall of Goree. He was more than ninety years of age. He was

BUSINESS MEN TO CONSIDER FINANCE CORPORATION HERE

Wichita Falls business men will decide, in all probability, one day this week, as to whether this city will organize a livestock-agricultural finance corporation here to serve this section, it was learned from an authoritative source Tuesday afternoon.

Frank Kell, it is said, will take the lead in putting this proposal up to the business men of the community. Mr. Kell, who took part in the organization of the agency at Fort Worth, favored at first the organization of a number of corporations at various points rather than one at Fort Worth, as was decided at the place. He is also known not to have changed his mind about the organization of one here, but expressed himself as wishing to give the people at Fort Worth an opportunity of getting their organization perfected before making a move here. The organization of the agency at Fort Worth has finally been completed with a capital of $1,000,000 instead of $1,500,000 as planned. Of this, Fort Worth interests took $600,000 instead of the $750,000 pledged.

After the Fort Worth meeting, when the organization of the corporation at that place was under way, Mr. Kell expressed an intention of putting the matter, in the future, before local business men.

The attitude of local business men, while it can not be ascertained definitely, of course, until after the coming meeting, is apparently in favor of the proposal. A number have expressed themselves as feeling that Wichita Falls interests should provide the machinery for taking care of the needs of cattle men and farmers in this section, and not put them under the necessity of looking to some other community for the provision of an institution of this kind.

Mr. Kell is the first business man in the southwest who called public attention to the desperate straits into which the cattle industry had drifted, and the necessity for the taking of public action to prevent slaughter of cows and calves on the ranges from which the future meat supply of the country must come.

Shows Need of Aid

He expressed his views first in an interview in the Record News and in one Fort Worth paper, with subsequent interviews appearing some time later in the Record News and in both Fort Worth and Dallas papers. Correspondence between he and W. F. Ramsey, federal reserve agent, with Governor Harding of the federal reserve board, and finally with Secretary of the Treasury Mellon served to draw the matter to public attention.

It was then taken up by the cattle association and a committee, of which he was a member, sent to Washington, succeeding in securing such changes in the Kellogg bill as to extend the benefits of the pending legislation to cattlemen.

Can Expect Repayment

Mr. Kell has repeatedly expressed himself as feeling that those business men who take stock in such institutions will not only be doing a public service, but a service to themselves as well, in aiding the agricultural and live stock interests on which the prospertiy of this section is largely dependant, and in addition may expect to be richly repaid in dividends on their stock—25 per cent

Waurika Project May Take Definite Shape At Conferences Today

Definite developments in connection with the projected railroad line from Byers to Waurika, which will give Wichita Falls a through rail outlet to Oklahoma on the northeast, is expected here today, following the obtaining of information that a group of leading Waurika business men will be here to confer with Frank Kell.

At the same time Mr. Kell will be in conference with a group of officials of the Rock Island lines, headed by A. B. Warner, of El Reno, general manager of the Southwestern lines. Whether this is only a coincidence or not could not be learned, Mr. Kell when seen Tuesday afternoon declining to comment on either report, save to say that he expected to confer with the Rock Island party on a joint passenger station by the Wichita Falls and Southern and by the Rock Island at Graham.

It is known, however, that Capt. McFarland, chief engineer of the party which has been making a survey for the projected Waurika line, has just finished a resurvey of the route and has prepared construction estimates which puts the project on a concrete basis.

JAPAN READY TO CURTAIL NAVAL PROGRAM-KATO

Says Eight-Eight-Eight Program One for Defense Alone; Will Meet Other Nations Half Way.

Declares Country Has Never Hoped to Equal, Much Less Exceed, Navies of U. S. and Britain.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—After reiterating that Japan is ready to cut down her naval program in agreement with the powers provided the safety of Japan is assured, Admiral Baron Tomaburo Kato, minister of marine and ranking head of the Japanese delegation to the armament conference here, proceeded today to answer the specific question:

"What is Japan's justification for a big navy?"

"Every nation," he declared during a conference with newspaper correspondents, "feels the necessity of self-defense and knows that forces sufficient for self-defense must be provided. The degree depends on many factors and conditions, internal and otherwise, and the relations of the country with other powers."

"For instance," the admiral continued, "in the far east, Japan occupies an insular position. Should there exist a nation that intends to make an attack upon Japan, it is the naval force alone that can defend our empire. Japan is not self-sufficient. The question of the smallness or greatness of a navy depends upon the point of view of each nation concerned. I do not consider the navy of Japan a great one. The plans already adopted are much inferior to those adopted by Great Britain and the United States."

Baron Kato said, he wanted to bring out clearly that Japan's position on naval reductions had been precise and unvaried since he first announced it in Tokio over a year ago, and he wanted the American people to understand that Japan goes into the approaching conference with the willingness to cut down the so-called "eight-eight" program provided agreement with other powers can be obtained.

"The limitation of armaments cannot be effected by Japan alone," he added. "At the approaching conference doubtless many propositions may be made. If they demand the cutting down of our program, we are ready to do so. I want to make it perfectly clear that it is Japan's attitude."

The admiral explained that the eight-eight program will be completed in 1928. It was, of course, a continuing program, he added. It begun many years ago and from year to year appropriations had been made in the Japanese diet to carry the work forward.

Somebody asked:

"What is the proper basis of armament limitations?"

The admiral answered: "I have no

KEMP RETURNS TODAY; HEALTH MUCH IMPROVED

J. A. Kemp who has been in Galveston for the past several weeks on account of his health, will arrive here today, according to a message received Tuesday by Frank Kell.

Mr. Kemp is reported very much improved in his health. He was away during most of the summer months in Colorado, and returning in very much better health. On his return, however, a spell of intensely hot weather compelled him to leave again.

Mrs. Kemp, who has been in Galveston except for a short interval during Mr. Kemp's stay, accompanies him home.

Noted Speaker Arrives at Noon Today for Strenuous Engagement; Talks Are Non-Political.

The first of the addresses will be before the Wichita club at their noon luncheon, this organization having invited him here.

In the afternoon at 3 o'clock he will speak to a mass meeting of the women of the city at the First Baptist church, the meeting having been arranged through co-operation of various women's organizations of the city.

The evening address will be under the sponsorship of the Pat Carrigan Post, American Legion, and will be held at the First Christian church at 7:30—the meeting being held here in order that the public and all former soldiers, whether legionnaires or not, could be invited to hear the address at this meeting. A cordial invitation has been issued by the post to both former service men and the public to attend.

Col. Owsley is recognized as one of the ablest speakers of Texas. In the course of this work with the American Legion he has recently been all over the United States, and it is expected that he will give an interesting account of actions and reactions taking place over the country today.

DEVIL DOGS TO STOP ROBBERY OF U. S. MAIL

Armed With Pistols and Sawed Off Shotguns and Ordered Shoot to Kill Marines Will Guard Trains.

Three High Officials Suspended as Result of New York Robbery; Some Robberies Declared "Preventable."

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—With orders to shoot to kill if necessary to prevent mail robberies, 1,000 marines were ordered to duty today as guards of mail trains and trucks and at postoffices in fifteen cities. The men will be armed with pistols and sawed off shot guns, Postmaster General Hays announced after a conference with Major General LeJeune, commandant of the marine corps. The marines are to be replaced eventually, he said, by special forces recruited from the postal service.

Arrangements for the services of marines, the postmaster general said, were made with the secretary of the navy. The matter was discussed at today's cabinet meeting, and President Harding is said to have expressed approval of Mr. Hays' plan to check looting of the mails.

The postmaster general also announced that as a result of the recent New York robbery, orders had been issued suspending from the service three New York postoffice officials, Elijah M. Norris, superintendent of mails; Henry Lippman, superintendent of registry and Walter S. Mayer, superintendent of general orders.

Investigation of the New York robbery, Mr. Hays declared, in a formal statement, will be continued "as the matter has not yet been sufficiently developed to enable us to know definitely whether or not there are others guilty of dereliction of duty." "The robbery," he added, "should have been and could have been prevented."

Some of the marines, General LeJeune said, would board trains tonight and within 24 hours would be on guard on practically all trains in the country carrying valuable mail. Men for duty in the east, south and central west, he said, would come from the marine corps post at Quantico, Virginia, while those for service in the west would report from San Diego and Mare Island, California. Among the cities to which they will be sent for duty are Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Cleveland, Richmond, Atlanta, Chicago, St. Louis, Minneapolis, Kansas City, Dallas, San Francisco and Los Angeles.

Telegrams were dispatched tonight by the postoffice department instructing postmasters and postal inspectors at these points to co-operate with the guards.

Declaring that it was proposed to protect the United States mails "to the last postal card, regardless of cost and sacrifice," Mr. Hays said he wanted it known that the post-

TEN KILLED, SEVEN HURT OVER ELECTION IN KENTUCKY HILLS

Re-election of Mayor John F. Hylan of New York City with the largest plurality ever given a mayorality candidate—estimated at over 400,000—and bloody disorders in Kentucky which resulted in the death of 10 men and the wounding of seven others, including an aged woman, proved the highlights of the bye elections throughout the country yesterday.

Hylan's victory was also a victory for Tammany Hall, whose candidate he was, all other members of the ticket, including Charles L. Craig, a former Texan, comptroller of New York, being swept into office. The victory was all the more remarkable in that practically every important newspaper in New York, save one, opposed the mayor for re-election, and charged gross inefficiency and graft during his past administration. The newspapers leading the fight against him conceded his election with the earliest returns.

The bloodiest of the Kentucky disorders were in Breathitt county, a mountain district, the Clayhole box on Troublesome Creek being the location.

New York also had its claim to distinction in this connection, a running pistol fight resulting in casualties which included one wounded seriously and two captured —the latter by the police. Argument over the relative merits of two candidates for alderman was the underlying feature of this vigorous method of discussion.

Virginia, which was the only state to vote on a governor, elected E. Lee Trinkle, democrat, with his running mates, over their republican opponents by a considerable margin.

Early returns indicated that Louisville, Ky., which gave the republicans a majority in the last presidential election, had repeated.

Other highlights included the adoption of the city manager plan by the city of Cleveland, Ohio, the largest city yet to take up that form of government, and the election of Fred Kohler, famous "Golden Rule" chief of police, running on an independent ticket, as mayor of Cleveland.

CARRIES EVERY BOROUGH

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—Mayor John F. Hylan, democrat, was re-elected today by the largest plurality ever given a majorality candidate in this city.

The vote, with 339 districts out of 2,709 in the city missing, was:

Hylan 665,770; Henry H. Curran, republican, running on a coalition ticket, 256,082, and Jacob Panken, socialist 75,733. If Hylan's ratio of gain is maintained in the missing districts, his plurality will be about 413,000.

Mayor Haylan swept into office with him the democratic candidates for city comptroller, president of the board ofaldermen and the five borough presidencies.

Mayor : John F. Hylan.
Comptroller: Charles L. Craig.
President of Borough of Manhattan: Julius Miller.
President of Borough of Brooklyn: Edward F. Riegelmann.
President of Borough of Bronx: Henry Bruckner.
President of Borough of ueQens: Maurice E. Connolly.
President of Borough of Richmond: Matthew J. Cahill.

Mayor Hyland's plurality over John Purroy Mitchell, fusion candidate in 1917 was 158,466. President Harding carried New York City by a plurality of 438,471 over James M. Cox, democrat in the presidential election of 1920.

Women voted in a municipal election here for the first time this year. Of the total of 1,263,940 voters, 447,015 were women.

The socialist vote for mayor was lighter than that of 1917 when Morris Hillquit polled 144,973 votes.

In the state-wide contest for associate judge of the court of appeals the vote with 339 districts missing, was: William S. Andres, republican incumbent, 323,548; Townsend Scudder, democrat 556,952; and Hezekiah D. Wilcox, socialist 90,523.

Mayor Hyland carried all five boroughs, leading the ticket throughout the city.

BALFOUR SEES AID TO WORLD IN ARMS MEET

By Associated Press.

QUEBEC, Nov. 8.—Belief that the Washington arms conference could do much to produce a better world was expressed by Arthur J. Balfour, former British prime minister, when he arrived here today as acting head of the British delegation.

"I don't believe this disarmament conference at Washington can do everything," Mr. Balfour said.

"I am personally confident it can do much. I am confident of the steps that are being gradually made to produce a better and improved world, an international world, this step will be of all history the greatest. In that hope I go to Washington."

Mr. Balfour led the British delegation across the Atlantic in the absence of Premier Lloyd George, who was detained in England, but who hopes later to attend the conference. The delegates were given a harty welcome when they landed today from the Empress of France which had brought them from Liverpool.

Germany Preparing for Next War, French Come Prepared to Bring Out

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—M. Briand's desire in connection with the armament conference is that nothing should be withheld from the American public as to the military, the economic or the political situation of France or the reasons why that government is or might be impelled to one course or another.

The military position and requirements of France are matters of anxious concern and General Buat, the chief of the French general staff, has brought with him to the conference a chest of documents respecting the present military strength of Germany and her potential power. These, it is said, include copies of secret instructions of the German ministry of war, concerning the grouping of former officers, of which there are 250,000 into skeleton regimental formations, so that without delay military units could be created by summoning to the colors former service men of which there are four or five million. General Buat has with him a copy of the latest issue of the German army regulations published September 3, that does not deal, he points out, with an army of 100,000 as provided under the treaty of Versailles, but with forces on a vast scale, including corps, armies and groups of armies.

The army section of the French delegation also has brought reports respecting the small arms said to be concealed in Germany. Arms and artillery factories owned by Germans, according to these reports, have been acquired, or are being constructed in countries around Germany beyond the supervision of the allied commission of control. Such establishments are indicated in Holland, in Switzerland and especially in Sweden. A large airplane factory is said to be in operation by Germans in Switzerland.

From a considerable documentation the conclusion is reached by the French general staff that the German government and German organizations are determined upon a methodical and long-sighted preparedness for war.

That preparedness in the French military view, will consist largely in the permanent and increasing industrial powers of sixty million people as compared with France's forty million, modern war being that of the organized nation. Among the papers brought by the mission are studies in the chemical producing capacities of Germany and their convertibility into munition supply factories.

CONTINUANCE IS GRANTED IN BURCH TRIAL

Motion to Dismiss Case Against Mrs. Obenchain, Jointly Indicted With Burch, Are Denied.

By Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 8.—Judge Sydney N. Reeve today granted the motion of the defense for a continuance in the trial of Arthur C. Burch charged with the murder of J. Belton Kennedy. This ruling followed a finding that Burch should not be given a preliminary trial to determine his sanity.

The judge asked the attorneys for the state and the defense to agree on a date for trial. Disposition of the case of Mrs. Madalynne Obenchain, indicted for the same charge, was to follow immediately.

Following a conference of attorneys the case was re-set for November 22. It was announced that one attorney for each side would leave for Chicago to take depositions of defense witnesses, including Bishop Matthew Quayle.

Charles Erbstein, attorney for Mrs. Obenchain, then said he wished to press a motion for dismissal of her case and arguments started at once.

After a brief argument the court denied the motion for a dismissal of the indictment against Mrs. Obenchain, and her attorneys asked for an immediate trial. Court recessed until 4 o'clock to give the district attorney time to prepare affidavits showing why this was impracticable.

By Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 8.—The trial of Mrs. Madalynne Obenchain, indicted jointly with Arthur C. Burch, for the alleged murder of J. Belton Kennedy, was continued late today until November 22 with the understanding that it would follow the trial of Burch, set earlier in the day for the same date. Judge Sidney N. Reeve denied a motion asking for an immediate trial for Mrs. Obenchain.

office department had declared "open war fare on the crooks and bandits of the country."

During the twelve months ended last April 9, according to Mr. Hays, a total of $1,300,000 was stolen from the mails, but in the six months following the announcement that postal employes would be armed the total stolen fell to $318,869.

The advisability of enacting legislation authorizing the government to pay death benefits to the families of postal employes slain by bandits, is understood to have been discussed today by the cabinet.

As a further deterrent to mail robberies, Attorney General Daugherty has suggested to the district attorneys in the various states, that the courts be urged to impose heavier sentence where convictions are obtained for mail robberies. Mr. Daugherty expressed the opinion that the widespread unemployment was responsible for much of the crime in the country.

The "gratitude of the postoffice department" was extended by Postmaster General Hays today to Walter Ambrose, of Lake Charles, La., who foiled an attempted robbery of the mails in that city after he had been wounded.

"I have heard of your magnificent conduct in protecting the mails," Mr. Hays wrote. "You are a man's man. It was a splendid service and the gratitude of the department is most sincerely extended. The postmaster advises that you are recovering, for which we are very grateful."

UNCLE SAM'S IRRIGATED LANDS YIELD $316,000,000 IN CROPS, SUPPORT HALF MILLION PERSONS, 879 SCHOOLS, 649 CHURCHES

What irrigation has done for two American communities: Above, Okanogan, Wash., business center of Okanogan project; below, an irrigated crop in Mesilla Valley, New Mexico.

During the past twenty years the U. S. government has spent $125,000,000 in reclaiming desert lands in fifteen western states. In that time these lands yielded $316,000,000 worth of crops. They support a population of nearly 500,000, and boast 879 schoolhouses and 649 churches. The thrift and prosperity of the people on Uncle Sam's irrigated lands are shown by 247 banks, and total deposits of $143,638,856. Money advanced for reclamation work is repaid by settlers.

one of the early pioneers of Texas. In the days of long ago he followed the flag of the great hearted Lee and battled for the supremacy of the stars and bars and the planters republic. He risked all and lost all but honor. He became a builder when the lost cause flag was furled and the planters republic had faded away forever. Speaking of this gallant veteran of the cause that perished and rugged pioneer builder of an empire state that shall last while the union endures, the Goree Advocate says: "One more who, in the dark days of the sixties, faced shell and shot in defense of time-honored convictions of a liberty-loving people, has gone. But few of those noble souls are left to mourn the passing of a comrade of a former age but posterity will not soon forget those brave men of the southland who followed the immortal Stonewall Jackson and the chivalous Robert E. Lee." Another break in the thin grey line happened in Dallas county this week when John K. Van Arsdale died at his home at Garland. He was eighty-four. He crossed Panama on horseback in 1858. He was one of the Argonauts or seekers of the golden fleece. When the rumblings came of approaching war between the states, he returned to Texas and enlisted as a soldier in the Confederate army under General Tom Green. He was in the battle at Galveston when the Harriett Lane was captured and in many other battles of the Civil war. He had lived in Dallas county for fifty-one years and was a fine type of the men who bared their breast to the bullets in the long ago, who fought for a white man's government in the early seventies and who lived to see a reunited people and America the greatest nation under the shining sun. "Men were men in those days."

Well, the country hasn't gone to Hades. Well, the government isn't on the toboggan slide. Cotton has sold for 20 cents. Oil has gone to $2.25 per barrel. Irrigation bonds have been sold. Liberty bonds are nearing par. Frozen assets are being constantly liquidated. Tillers of the soil are geting ready for the year of 1922. Bankers are smiling again. Merchants are busy again. People are buying again. All the machinery of industrial life is moving again. A sales tax was defeated, but the proposition will become bobbing up again. Law makers who are slower than the wrath of God have repealed the excess profits tax and they have placed a tax upon the people that will work a greater injustice in a year than the sales tax would have worked in a life time. Regardless of this, cheer up and cheer up the law makers. They are doing something and to do something is better than to do nothing. The Kellogg law has paved the way for the doing something substantial for the farming and livestock interests of America. Dark spots are disappearing from the sun. Optimism is shedding and spreading its beneficent and life sustaining rays. Pessimism is hiding itself in dark corners or crevices. On the firing line, ye men of Texas, who believes in constant marching, continuous building and eternal development of the latent resources of this land of ours.

PUBLIC BUILDINGS PROGRAM ESSENTIAL, IS THE OPINION OF CONGRESSIONAL LEADERS

Special to the Record News.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 8.—That the country has re-acted favorably to the movement started by Congressman Walter W. Magee of New York, for a public buildings program by the government is indicated by press comment and by letters received by members of congress.

According to figures compiled by Mr. Magee if the government would spend as much for needed public buildings next year as it spends for one dreadnaught, it would go a long way toward relieving unemployment, and at the same time would build up the badly-quartered postal service.

The bill recently offered in the House by Congressman John W. Langley of Kentucky, chairman of the House committee on public buildings and grounds authorizing the appropriation of sixteen million dollars for additional hospitalization for disabled world war soldiers combines an urgent practice duty to these veterans and more relief for the unemployment situation. Congressman Langley has stated that he is a strong advocate of theidea that these new hospitals should be located in different sections of the country rather than centralizing them in the National Capital although he believes that one of teh new hospitals should be located in the District of Columbia—probably in the additions to the Mount Alto Hospital, here.

Millions Lie Idle

Congressman Langley has made a carfeul study of the hospital situation and has obtained from the secretary of treasury a report which indicates that approximately thirteen millions of dollars have been lying idle in the treasury for many years which was appropriated for public building purposes but could not be used for the reason that the price of labor and building materials had increased to such an extent that the amounts appropriated by congress were insufficient for the purpose.

The sixteen million dollars asked for by Congressman Langley in his new bill is in addition to the eighteen million six hundred thousand dollars carried by the Langley bill of the last congress.

Touching upon the question of the erection of public buildings other than hospitals, Mr. Langley said yesterday:

"It has been nearly nine years now since we had an omnibus public buildings bill and in one hundred and sixteen of the cases provided for in the other bill, nothing has been done because of the rise in the prices of labor and materials. The situation throughout the country with regard to the necessity of constructing suitable buildings for the transaction of the public business is becoming more and more discreditable to this great government. Scores of instances have come to my personal knowledge where suitable buildings cannot be rented and where the government has not constructed any buildings for the purpose. In one or two instances federal courts have held their sessions because they have no buildings in which to hold them, and in many instances the work of the postal service has been transacted temporarily under tents in the streets and in various sections of the country where public buildings have been erected, the room is still inadequate for the purpose and the work is not only congested and, in consequence greatly delayed, but the sanitary conditions are very bad."

Congressman Langley stated that he was not in favor of taking up what were called "Emergency cases" and leaving the balance of the country without relief. He declared that he felt that such a course would arouse all sorts of opposition in congress.

Unjust Criticism

Mr. Langley referred in passing to what he termed an "amusing thing" he had observed in the great centers of population where several millions of dollars for public buildings are wanted, that they look on rural congressmen as unpatriotic if they do not promptly accede to these requests. "Yet," exclaimed Mr. Langley, "when we propose a few thousand for the erection of a modest building for the accommodation of business in the less populated sections, we are called 'looters of the treasury' and the bill is called a 'Pork Barrel Bill'."

Congressman Langley gave his opinion that the House buildings and grounds committee was in favor of the early enactment of a general omnibus public building bill, taking care of every meritorious propostion in all sections of the country.

Dwelling still further on the unemployment situation Mr. Langley said: "There is much talk about the unemployment situation, with the thirteen millions idle in the United States treasury, the sixteen millions in my hospital bill; the unexpected balance under the latest bill and adding about eighty or eighty-five millions for general public buildings purposes, we would have a sum exceeding one hundred millions. According to experts ninety-two per cent of building construction is translatable into labor in one form or another so the enactment of the legislation I propose would furnish money for the employment of idle labor to the extent of nearly one hundred millions which would not only relieve the unemployed but bring other manifold benefits."

In addition Congressman Langley suggested that a position of director of public works should be created and put under some department—perhaps the proposed new department of public welfare and that the salary should be large enough to justify a man big enough for the undertaking it. He also advocated the cutting of red tape and avoid years of delay in getting plans and specifications and get the work started at once.

MINERS TO PREPARE FOR PROPOSED CUT

DENVER, Colo., Nov. 8.—John P. McLennan, president of district 15, United Mine Workers of America, announced here today that a meeting of all district officials had been called for tomorrow night at Trinidad Colorado, to draft a plan of action in event the Colorado Fuel and Iron company puts into effect a wage reduction probably would be inaugurated by the company in its southern Colorado mines late this week.

On November 5, the state industrial commission terminated jurisdiction in the controversy which it assumed on September 3 and held the company had a right to cut wages in eleven mines in Huerfano and Las Animas counties.

UNKNOWN DEAD TO RECEIVE HIGHEST HONOR

Big Guns Will Thunder Forth Salute as Olympia Steams by Barracks and Batteries.

Last Lap of Long Journey Will Be in Custody of Doughboys When Gobs Surrender Body at Navy Yards.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—America's unkown dead from France was in home waters tonight, riding in highest state aboard the old cruiser Olympia over the waters of Chesapeake bay. Tomorrow to the crash of guns from saluting forts and naval posts, the treasured caskets, in tribute to which the nation centers its sorrowful pride in those other sons sleeping in France, will move in honored progress up to the historic potomac. And in preparation for its arrival in the nation's capital late tomorrow, events were shipping themselves toward a climax of honors on armistice ray.

As the Olympia steams at measured speed up the river, the guns of Fort Washington will roar the national salute of 21 guns to helf masted flag.

Off Mount Vernon, the ship of the unknown soldiers will pay its homage to the tomb of the greatest American, Washington.

Again at Washington barracks a battery will hammer out its 21 gun message of highest honor to be repeated again at Washington navy yard as the old ship pulls into dock at the end of her journey.

Even as she turns into the potomac early tomorrow, the Olmpia will receive the first highest naval honors for the unknown soldier she carries to his last rest. The battleship North Dakota lies a distance up the river with guns and flags waiting to pay tribute. And ahead of the cruiser will steam the destroyer Burnadu as escort of honor to the dead.

At the navy yard, the navy will surrender custody of this casket that marks perhaps no other in the nation's history, the glory of hom, who died for the flag, to the army comrades of the dead man. He will be given back to the keeping of the khaki-clad men with whom he stood shoulder to shoulder in France. His hero guard of honor alone will lay hand upon his coffin thereafter.

Whether Its Champagne or Ginger Ale New Yorkers Must Celebrate Elections

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—Prohibition or no prohibition, Champagne or ginger ale, New York demonstrated that it could not get away from the habit of celebrating election night.

It has been one of the traditions of the city that those who could afford a table—as well as those who could not—should pour into cafes for lobster or ham an' according to their means. And tonight palaces of the great white way reported all chairs filled.

And as usual one had to pause on the way to the palace of one's choice to poke his neighbor playfully in the face with a tickler, or rattle his eardrums with some mechanical racket producer. Traditions called also for red fire and bonfires and these illimined the city. Seventy fire alarms were sounded within seven hours.

JAPAN READY TO CURTAIL NAVAL PROGRAM—KATO

doubt a proposition will be made by the American delegates to the conference. Therefore, I think it is not my place to state at this time our ideas on that subject. I prefer to wait for the American proposition."

"Does Japan think that she requires as strong a navy as Great Britain and the United States?" he was asked.

'Japan has never expected," he replied, "nor has she ever entertained the idea that she should possess a navy equal to that of Great Britain or the United States; she has never thought even of equalling the navies of those countries let alone exceeding them."

The eight-eight Japanese naval program referred to really means an eight-eight-eight program, because it signifies that each one of the eight dreadnaughts and eight modern battle cruisers making up the program is to be replaced at the end of eight years service. This means that Japan must build two super-warships every year, each at a cost of about $30,000,000 and that simultaneously she must make further tremendous outlays in replacing the auxiliary ships and aircraft necessary to round out her main fleet.

It is the stupendous outlay which, in the opinion of responsible Japanese Japan is in no position to stand.

JAP BUSINESS MEN ARRIVE FOR CONFERENCE

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—Viscount Ei-Ichi Shibusawa, Japan's Octogenarian banker and leading business man who has come to the United States to supplement the work of the official delegation to the armament conference by helping to promote a good undertaking between Japan and the United States, was received at the White House today by President Harding. He was accompanied by Dr. Juighai Soyeda, former president of the Imperial Japanese railway. M. Zumoto, editor of the Herald of Asia and a former representative and by Z. Horikoshi, prominent Japanese business man. The Viscount was presented by Baron Shidehara, the Japanese ambassador.

All three of the visitors are members of the Japan-American relations committee, an unofficial organization for the promotion of good feeling between the two countries. They were greeted cordially by President Harding. The president particularly complimented Viscount Shibusawa, who is 81 years of age for coming so far on his mission and the latter said that he intended to devote the rest of his life to promoting good feelings between the two countries.

URGES KOREA'S INDEPENDENCE.

By Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 8.—Korea should be restored to its former status of complete independence from Japan to prevent its being used as the bridge for Japanese expansion into Asia, declared Dr. Henry Chung, secretary of the Korean mission seeking recognition at the Washington armament conference, on his arrival here today from Honolulu.

Dr Chung, who said he formerly published a newspaper in Korea, the Independent News, until its suppression by the Japanese, was elected a vice president of the world's press congress at Honolulu.

"The pretexts that Japan needs Korea for self-defense or colonization, are equally flimsy," he said.

"The only nation that has a direct interest in that part of the Far East is the United States and the question whether the United States would seize Korea answers itself in the negative."

YOU CAN'T TRUST CALOMEL AT ALL

It's Quicksilver, Salivates, Causes Rheumatism and Bone Decay.

The next dose of calomel you take may salivate you. It may shock your liver or start bone necrosis. Calomel is dangerous. It is mercury, quicksilver. It crashes into sour bile like dynamite, cramping and sickening you. Calomel attacks the bones and should never be put into your system.

If you feel bilious, headachy, constipated and all knocked out, just go to your druggist and get a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone for a few cents, which is a harmless vegetable substitute for dangerous calomel. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better and quicker than nasty calomel and without making you sick, you just go back and get your money.

Don't take calomel! It can not be trusted any more than a leopard or a wild-cat. Take Dodson's Liver Tone which straightens you right up and makes you feel fine. No salts necessary. Give it to the children because it is perfectly harmless and can not salivate. (Adv.)

SECOND MAN DEAD RESULT OF EXPLOSION

Brakeman Dies of Injuries Incurred When T. & P. Locomotive Explodes East of Abilene.

ABILENE, Texas, Nov. 8.—With the death here late today of E. D. Atwell, brakeman, two fatalities had resulted from the explosion of a Texas and Pacific railway locomotive early this morning about ten miles east of here. R. D. Edwards, the engineer died soon after the accident, being badly scalded and burned, and his skull crushed.

J. V. Jennings, fireman, was also scalded by the suddenly released boiling water, and is in a local hospital where his condition is said to be extremely critical. All three men lived at Big Springs.

Officials of the road tonight expressed belief that an insufficient amount of water in the boiler caused the explosion, and that a defective water guage probably prevented the engine crew from noticing that the water had fallen below the danger mark.

The engine, pulling a freight train, was running at full speed and was torn asunder by the explosion, the cab and boiler being blown high into the air and only its ten massive drive wheels remaining on the tracks.

The train was due at Fort Worth tonight. Passenger service was delayed about two hours while the wreckage was being cleared away.

ACQUITTED THOUGH GUILTY, BASIS OF LEWIS-WORTH PLAY

How a clever newspaper man got all the facts concerning a mysterious murder after a jury had brought in a verdict of "Not Guilty" forms the basis of 'The Acquittal' the tense drama being presented this week by the Gene Lewis-Olga Worth company at the Wichita theater.

It is their first essentially dramatic production of the season and it is by far the best they have done yet.

As the wife of the man acquitted in the murder trial, Miss Worth is superb. She plays the part of a wife loyal to her husband despite untold provocations to tell what she knows and despite the fact that she knows that her husband is unworthy of her love and respect. In the second act, where he informs him that she knows him as he really is, Miss Worth rises to great dramatic heights.

Jack Doty, is the reporter determined to get at the bottom of things, who does not stop when the defendant is freed. His part is one which wins the full sympathy of the audience. He makes such a reporter that any city editor would give his right hand for. The difficult part of the man acquitted, though guilty, is taken by Mr. Ted Brackett and he makes the most of it. The other members of the company play their parts in a way that stamps the actors and actresses of much ability.

"The Acquittal" will continue for the balance of the week with a special matinee today, also another matinees on Saturday.

Next Week, "Scandal."

Any number of morals are pointed out in "Scandal," the big Cosmo Hamilton comedy success that is to be the special offering of the Lewis-Worth players.

Through one of the slips which often come between the typewriter and the printed page, mention of Miss Irene Daniel, member of the Lewis-Worth Stock company, who played the part of Edith Crair, the female heavy of the cast, was omitted in the review of the opening performance of "The Acquittal," a reporter cheerfully takes all of the blame for the glaring omission, magnified by the great work Miss Daniel showed in this character. Her work is really one of the big parts of the play and due mention should be made of it.

"The Acquittal", which was received so well on Monday night, will be presented throughout the week at the Wichita theater.

Return of Three Dollar Shoe Is Latest Forecast

By Associated Press.

BOSTON, Nov. 8.—The era of high shoe prices is practically ended and in the near future, it will be possible to purchase good shoes for $3.50 and $4.00, I. Q. White, president of the I. Q. White shoe company of Bridgewater, told the state board of conciliation and arbitration today.

Speaking at a hearing on a proposed wage cut of 25 percent in factories in the Brockton district, Mr. White asserted that the cheaper shoes would be made in St. Louis, and that unless Massachusetts manufacturers were enabled to reduce their wage scales, they would be unable to meet western competition. He added that the preposed reduction was necessary if his plant were to continue in operation.

CONTINUANCE IS GRANTED IN BURCH TRIAL

Motion to Dismiss Case Against Mrs. Obenchain, Jointly Indicted With Burch, Are Denied.

By Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 8.—Judge Sydney N. Reeve today granted the motion of the defense for a continuance in the trial of Arthur C. Burch charged with the murder of J. Belton Kennedy. This ruling followed a finding that Burch should not be given a preliminary trial to determine his sanity.

The judge asked the attorneys for the state and the defense to agree on a date for trial. Disposition of the case of Mrs. Madalynne Obenchain, indicted for the same charge, was to follow immediately.

Following a conference of attorneys the case was re-set for November 22. It was announced that one attorney for each side would leave for Chicago to take depositions of defense witnesses, including Bishop Matthew Quayle.

Charles Erbstein, attorney for Mrs. Obenchain, then said he wished to press a motion for dismissal of her case and arguments started at once.

After a brief argument the court denied the motion for a dismissal of the indictment against Mrs. Obenchain, and her attorneys asked for an immediate trial. Court recessed until 4 o'clock to give the district attorney time to prepare affidavits showing why this was impracticable.

By Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 8.—The trial of Mrs. Madalynne Obenchain, indicted jointly with Arthur C. Burch, for the alleged murder of J. Belton Kennedy, was continued late today until November 22 with the understanding that it would follow the trial of Burch, set earlier in the day for the same date. Judge Sidney N. Reeve denied a motion asking for an immediate trial for Mrs. Obenchain.

office department had declared "open war fare on the crooks and bandits of the country."

During the twelve months ended last April 9, according to Mr. Hays, a total of $1,300,000 was stolen from the mails, but in the six months following the announcement that postal employes would be armed the total stolen fell to $318,869.

The advisability of enacting legislation authorizing the government to pay death benefits to the families of postal employes slain by bandits, is understood to have been discussed today by the cabinet.

As a further deterrent to mail robberies, Attorney General Daugherty has suggested to the district attorneys in the various states, that the courts be urged to impose heavier sentence where convictions are obtained for mail robberies. Mr. Daugherty expressed the opinion that the widespread unemployment was responsible for much of the crime in the country.

The "gratitude of the postoffice department" was extended by Postmaster General Hays today to Walter Ambrose, of Lake Charles, La., who foiled an attempted robbery of the mails in that city after he had been wounded.

"I have heard of your magnificent conduct in protecting the mails," Mr. Hays wrote. "You are a man's man. It was a splendid service and the gratitude of the department is most sincerely extended. The postmaster advises that you are recovering, for which we are very grateful."

UNCLE SAM'S IRRIGATED LANDS YIELD $316,000,000 IN CROPS, SUPPORT HALF MILLION PERSONS, 879 SCHOOLS, 649 CHURCHES

What irrigation has done for two American communities: Above, Okanogan, Wash., business center of Okanogan project; below, an irrigated crop in Mesilla Valley, New Mexico.

During the past twenty years the U. S. government has spent $125,000,000 in reclaiming desert lands in fifteen western states. In that time these lands yielded $316,000,000 worth of crops. They support a population of nearly 500,000, and boast 879 schoolhouses and 649 churches. The thrift and prosperity of the people on Uncle Sam's irrigated lands are shown by 247 banks, and total deposits of $143,538,856. Money advanced for reclamation work is repaid by settlers.

MAINLY ABOUT PEOPLE

one of the early pioneers of Texas. In the days of long ago he followed the flag of the great hearted Lee and battled for the supremacy of the stars and bars and the planters republic. He risked all and lost all but honor. He became a builder when the lost cause flag was furled and the planters republic had faded away forever. Speaking of this gallant veteran of the cause that perished and rugged pioneer builder of an empire state that shall last while the union endures, the Goree Advocate says: "One more who, in the dark days of the sixties, faced shell and shot in defense of time-honored convictions of a liberty-loving people, has gone. But few of those noble souls are left to mourn the passing of a comrade of a former age but posterity will not soon forget those brave men of the southland who followed the immortal Stonewall Jackson and the chivalous Robert E. Lee." Another break in the thin grey line happened in Dallas county this week when John K. Van Arsdale died at his home at Garland. He was eighty-four. He crossed Panama on horseback in 1858. He was one of the Argonauts or seekers of the golden fleece. When the rumblings came of approaching war between the states, he returned to Texas and enlisted as a soldier in the Confederate army under General Tom Green. He was in the battle at Galveston when the Harriett Lane was captured and in many other battles of the Civil war. He had lived in Dallas county for fifty-one years and was a fine type of the men who bared their breast to the bullets in the long ago, who fought for a white man's government in the early seventies and who lived to see a re-united people and America the greatest nation under the shining sun. "Men were men in those days."

Well, the country hasn't gone to Hades. Well, the government isn't on the toboggan slide. Cotton has sold for 20 cents. Oil has gone to $2.25 per barrel. Irrigation bonds have been sold. Liberty bonds are nearing par. Frozen assets are being constantly liquidated. Tillers of the soil are getting ready for the season of 1922. Bankers are smiling again. Merchants are busy again. People are buying again. All the machinery of industrial life is moving again. A sales tax was defeated but the proposition will become bobbing up again. Law makers who are slower than the wrath of God have repealed the excess profits tax and they have placed a tax upon the people that will work a greater injustice in a year than the sales tax would have worked in a life time. Regardless of this, cheer up and cheer up the law makers. They are doing something and to do something is better than to do nothing. The Kellogg law has saved the way for the doing something substantial for the farming and livestock interests of America. Dark spots are disappearing from the map. Optimism is shedding and spreading its beneficent influence. Pessimism is hiding itself in dark corners or crevices. On the firing line, ye men of Texas, and where the government has not constructed any buildings for the purpose. In one or two instances federal courts have held their sessions because they have no buildings in which to hold them, and in many instances the work of the postal service has been transacted temporarily under tents in the streets and in various sections of the country where public buildings have been erected, the room is still inadequate for the purpose and the work is not only congested and, in consequence greatly delayed, but the sanitary conditions are very bad."

Congressman Langley stated that he was not in favor of taking up what were called "Emergency cases" and leaving the balance of the country without relief. He declared that he felt that such a course would arouse all sorts of opposition in congress.

Unjust Criticism

Mr. Langley referred in passing to what he termed an "amusing thing" he had observed in the great centers of population where several millions of dollars for public buildings are wanted, that they look on rural congressmen as unpatriotic if they do not promptly accede to these requests. "Yet," exclaimed Mr. Langley, "when we propose a few thousand for the erection of a modest building for the accommodation of business in the less populated sections, we are called 'looters of the treasury' and the bill is called a 'Pork Barrel Bill'."

Congressman Langley gave his opinion that the House buildings and grounds committee was in favor of the early enactment of a general omnibus public building bill, taking care of every meritorious propostion in all sections of the country.

Dwelling still further on the unemployment situation Mr. Langley said: "There is much talk about the unemployment situation, with the thirteen millions idle in the United States treasury, the sixteen millions in my hospital bill; the unexpected balance under the latest bill and adding about eighty or eighty-five millions for general public buildings purposes, we would have a sum exceeding one hundred millions. According to experts ninety-two per cent of building construction is translatable into labor in one form or another so the enactment of the legislation I propose would furnish money for the employment of idle labor to the extent of nearly one hundred millions which would not only relieve the unemployed but bring other manifold benefits."

In addition Congressman Langley suggested that a position of director of public works should be created and put under some department—perhaps the proposed new department of public welfare and that the salary should be large enough to justify a man big enough for the undertaking it. He also advocated the cutting of red tape and avoid years of delay in getting plans and specifications and get the work started at once.

PUBLIC BUILDINGS PROGRAM ESSENTIAL, IS THE OPINION OF CONGRESSIONAL LEADERS

Special to the Record News.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 8.—That the country has re-acted favorably to the movement started by Congressman Walter W. Magee of New York, for a public buildings program by the government is indicated by press comment and by letters received by members of congress.

According to figures compiled by Mr. Magee if the government would spend as much for needed public buildings next year as it spends for one dreadnaught, it would go a long way toward relieving unemployment, and at the same time would build up the badly-quartered postal service.

The bid recently offered in the House by Congressman John W Langley of Kentucky, chairman of the House committee on public buildings and grounds authorizing the appropriation of sixteen million dollars for additional hospitalization for disabled world war soldiers combines an urgent practice duty to these veterans and more relief for the unemployment situation. Congressman Langley has stated that he is a strong advocate of theidea that these new hospitals should be located in different sections of the country rather than centralibing them in the National Capital although he believes that one of teh new hospitals should be located in the District of Columbia—probably in the additions to the Mount Alto Hospital, here.

Millions Lie Idle

Congressman Langley has made a carfeul study of the hospital situation and has obtained from the secretary of treasury a report which indicates that approximately thirteen millions of dollars have been lying idle in the treasury for many years which was appropriated for public building purposes but could not be used for the reason that the price of labor and building materials had increased to such an extent that the amounts appropriated by congress were insufficient for the purpose.

The sixteen million dollars asked for by Congressman Langley in his new bill is in addition to the eighteen million six hundred thousand dollars carried by the Langley bill of the last congress.

Touching upon the question of the erection of public buildings other than hospitals, Mr. Langley said yesterday:

"It has been nearly nine years now since we had an omnibus public buildings bill and in one hundred and sixteen of the cases provided for in the other bill, nothing has been done because of the rise in the prices of labor and materials. The situation throughout the country with regard to the necessity of constructing suitable buildings for the transaction of the public business is becoming more and more discreditable to this great government. Scores of instances have come to my personal knowledge where suitable buildings cannot be rented

UNKNOWN DEAD TO RECEIVE HIGHEST HONOR

Big Guns Will Thunder Forth Salute as Olympia Steams by Barracks and Batteries.

Last Lap of Long Journey Will Be in Custody of Doughboys When Gobs Surrender Body at Navy Yards.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—America's unkown dead from France was in home waters tonight, riding in highest state aboard the old cruiser Olympia over the waters of Chesapeake bay. Tomorrow to the crash of guns from saluting forts and naval posts, the treasured caskets, in tribute to which the nation centers its sorrowful pride in those other sons sleeping in France, will move in honored progress up to the historic potomac. And in preparation for its arrival in the nation's capital late tomorrow, events were shipping themselves toward a climax of honors on armistice ray.

As the Olympia steams at measured speed up the river, the guns of Fort Washington will roar the national salute of 21 guns to half masted flag.

Off Mount Vernon, the ship of the unknown soldiers will pay its homage to the tomb of the greatest American, Washington.

Again at Washington barracks a battery will hammer out its 21 gun message of highest honor to be repeated again at Washington navy yard as the old ship pulls into dock at the end of her journey.

Even as she turns into the potomac early tomorrow, the Olmpia will receive the first highest naval honors for the unknown soldier she carries to his last rest. The battleship North Dakota lies a distance up the river with guns and flags waiting to pay tribute. And ahead of the cruiser will steam the destroyer Burnadu as escort of honor to the dead.

At the navy yard, the navy will surrender custody of this casket that marks perhaps no other in the nation's history the glory of hom, who died for the flag, to the army comrades of the dead man. He will be given back to the keeping of the khaki-clad men with whom he stood shoulder to shoulder in France. His hero guard of honor alone will lay hand upon his coffin thereafter.

Whether Its Champagne or Ginger Ale New Yorkers Must Celebrate Elections

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—Prohibition or no prohibition, Champagne or ginger ale, New York demonstrated that it could not get away from the habit of celebrating election night.

It has been one of the traditions of the city that those who could afford a table—as well as those who could not—should pour into cafes for lobster or ham an' according to their means. And tonight palaces of the great white way reported all chairs filled.

And as usual one had to pause on the way to the palace of one's choice to poke his neighbor playfully in the face with a tickler, or rattle his eardrums with some mechanical racket producer. Traditions called also for red fire and bonfires and these illimined the city. Seventy fire alarms were sounded within seven hours.

JAPAN READY TO CURTAIL NAVAL PROGRAM---KATO

doubt a proposition will be made by the American delegates to the conference. Therefore, I think it is not my place to state at this time our ideas on that subject. I prefer to wait for the American proposition."

"Does Japan think that she requires as strong a navy as Great Britain and the United States?" he was asked.

'Japan has never expected," he replied, "nor has she ever entertained the idea that she should possess a navy equal to that of Great Britain or the United States; she has never thought even of equalling the navies of those countries let alone excedeing them."

The eight-eight Japanese naval program referred to really means an eight-eight-eight program, because it signifies that each one of the eight dreadnaughts and eight modern battle cruisers making up the program is to be replaced at the end of eight years service. This means that Japan must build two super-warships every year, each at a cost of about $30,000,000 and that simultaneously she must make further tremendous outlays in replacing the auxiliary ships and aircraft necessary to round out her main fleet.

It is the stupendous outlay which, in the opinion of responsible Japanese Japan is in no position to stand.

By Associated Press.

He was accompanied by Dr. Julghai Soyeda, former president of the Imperial Japanese railway, M. Zumoto, editor of the Herald of Asia and a former representative and by Z. Horikoshi, prominent Japanese business man. The Viscount was presented by Baron Shidehara, the Japanese ambassador.

All three of the visitors are members of the Japan-American relations committee, an unofficial organization for the promotion of good feeling between the two countries. They were greeted cordially by President Harding. The president particularly complimented Viscount Shibusawa, who is 81 years of age for coming so far on his mission and the latter said that he intended to devote the rest of his life to promoting good feelings between the two countries.

URGES KOREA'S INDEPENDENCE.

By Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 8.—Korea should be restored to its former status of complete independence from Japan to prevent its being used as the bridge for Japanese expansion into Asia, declared Dr. Henry Chung, secretary of the Korean mission seeking recognition at the Washington armament conference, on his arrival here today from Honolulu.

Dr Chung, who said he formerly published a newspaper in Korea, the Independent News, until its suppression by the Japanese, was elected a vice president of the world's press congress at Honolulu.

"The pretexts that Japan needs Korea for self-defense or colonization, are equally flimsy," he said.

"The only nation that has a direct interest in that part of the Far East is the United States and the question whether the United States would seize Korea answers itself in the negative."

YOU CAN'T TRUST CALOMEL AT ALL

It's Quicksilver, Salivates, Causes Rheumatism and Bone Decay.

The next dose of calomel you take may salivate you. It may shock your liver or start bone necrosis. Calomel is dangerous. It is mercury, quicksilver. It crashes into sour bile like dynamite, cramping and sickening you. Calomel attacks the bones and should never be put into your system.

If you feel bilious, headachy, constipated and all knocked out, just go to your druggist and get a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone for a few cents, which is a harmless vegetable substitute for dangerous calomel. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better and quicker than nasty calomel and without making you sick, you just go back and get your money.

Don't take calomel! It can not be trusted any more than a leopard or a wild-cat. Take Dodson's Liver Tone which straightens you right up and makes you feel fine. No salts necessary. Give it to the children because it is perfectly harmless and can not salivate. (Adv.)

SECOND MAN DEAD RESULT OF EXPLOSION

Brakeman Dies of Injuries Incurred When T. & P. Locomotive Explodes East of Abilene.

ABILENE, Texas, Nov. 8.—With the death here late today of E. D. Atwell, brakeman, two fatalities had resulted from the explosion of a Texas and Pacific railway locomotive early this morning about ten miles east of here. R. D. Edwards, the engineer died soon after the accident, being badly scalded and burned, and his skull crushed.

J. V. Jennings, fireman, was also scalded by the suddenly released boiling water, and is in a local hospital where his condition is said to be extremely critical. All three men lived at Big Springs.

Officials of the road tonight expressed belief that an insufficient amount of water in the boiler caused the explosion, and that a defective water guage probably prevented the engine crew from noticing that the water had fallen below the danger mark.

The engine, pulling a freight train, was running at full speed and was torn asunder by the explosion, the cab and boiler being blown high into the air and only its ten massive drive wheels remaining on the tracks.

The train was due at Fort Worth tonight. Passenger service was delayed about two hours while the wreckage was being cleared away.

ACQUITTED THOUGH GUILTY, BASIS OF LEWIS-WORTH PLAY

How a clever newspaper man got all the facts concerning a mysterious murder after a jury had brought in a verdict of "Not Guilty" forms the basis of 'The Acquittal' the tense drama being presented this week by the Gene Lewis-Olga Worth company at the Wichita theater.

It is their first essentially dramatic production of the season and it is by far the best they have done yet.

As the wife of the man acquitted in the murder trial, Miss Worth is superb. She plays the part of a wife loyal to her husband despite untold provocations to tell what she knows and despite the fact that she knows that her husband is unworthy of her love and respect. In the second act, where he informs him that she knows him as he really is, Miss Worth rises to great dramatic heights.

Jack Doty, is the reporter determined to get at the bottom of things, and does not stop when the defendant is freed. His part is one which wins the full sympathy of the audience. He makes such a reporter that any city editor would give his right hand for. The difficult part of the man acquitted, though guilty, is taken by Mr. Ted Brackett and he makes the most of it. The other members of the company play their parts in a way that stamps the actors and actresses of much ability.

"The Acquittal" will continue for the balance of the week with a special matinee today, also another matinees on Saturday.

Next Week. "Scandal."

Any number of morals are pointed out in "Scandal," the big Cosmo Hamilton comedy success that is to be the special offering of the Lewis-Worth players.

Through one of the slips which often come between the typewriter and the printed page, mention of Miss Irene Daniel, member of the Lewis-Worth Stock company, who played the part of Edith Crair, the female heavy of the cast, was omitted in the review of the opening performance of "The Acquittal." A reporter cheerfully takes all of the blame for the glaring omission, magnified by the great work Miss Daniel showed in this character. Her work is really one of the big parts of the play and due mention should be made of it.

"The Acquittal", which was received so well on Monday night, will be presented throughout the week at the Wichita theater.

Return of Three Dollar Shoe Is Latest Forecast

By Associated Press.

BOSTON, Nov. 8.—The era of high shoe prices is practically ended and in the near future, it will be possible to purchase good shoes for $3.50 and $4.00, I. Q. White, president of the I. Q. White shoe company of Bridgewater, told the state board of conciliation and arbitration today.

Speaking at a hearing on a proposed wage cut of 25 percent in factories in the Brockton district, Mr. White asserted that the cheaper shoes would be made in St. Louis, and that unless Massachusetts manufacturers were enabled to reduce their wage scales, they would be unable to meet western competition. He added that the preposed reduction was necessary if his plant were to continue in operation.

HUSBAND OF PEGGY HOPKINS JOYCE TO SOON GET DIVORCE

CHICAGO, Nov. 8.—Judge Joseph Sabath tonight indicated that he would grant a divorce to James Stanley Joyce, millionaire Chicago lumberman, from Peggy Hopkins Joyce, former New York chorus girl.

The hearing of Joyce's petition was concluded today after it had been announced that a settlement between him and Mrs. Joyce had been reached whereby she would receive cash and jewelry totalling $800,000 but would return to Joyce property valued at more than half a million dollars.

Judge Sabath said he probably would formally grant the decree tomorrow or next day.

Saftey First.

"We pedestrians should stand up for our righs," said the choleric old gentlman.

"I quite agree with you," said a meek little man, "but if we are going to do anything of that sort I suggest that we make our demonstration from the sidegalk."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

JUDGE MARTIN ASSAILS KLAN AND PLEADS FOR WRITTEN LAW BEFORE UNIVERSITY CLUBMEN

"However weak the enforcement of written law is it is a thousand times better than the rule of any secret clan or society," declared Judge P. A. Martin in a talk on "The Supremacy of Written Law" before members of the University club and visitors Tuesday noon at the Kemp Hotel.

Judge Martin's talk was unsparing in his attack on the Ku Klux Klan as it is believed to be from newspaper accounts of its alleged activities. His talk was a plea for support from all citizens of written law as set down in the first article of the constitution of the State of Texas known as the "Bill of Rights."

This bill of rights, he said, among others, guarantees the following inalienable rights to every one, regardless of race, color or previous condition of servitude:

The right of political equality.

The right of religious freedom, or the right to worship God according to the dictates of our own consciences.

The right of free speech.

The right of security of person and property against unreasonable seizures and searches.

The right of a speedy and public trial for any offense against society. The right to be served with a copy of the charges preferred, and the right to be confronted by the witnesses against us and to confront them and the great right of a trial by jury.

"These and other important safeguards are not only in the written law of our state, but are at the foundation, the bed-rock, if you please, of our civilization," he declared.

Continuing he said in part:

"At Fatal Variance" Says

"Now, after all these years, we find ourselves confronted in Texas and not only in Texas but in all parts of the Union with an organization which I do not hesitate to say is at fatal variance with nearly every one of the Sections of the Texas Bill of Rights. If newspaper accounts be true this so-called Knights of the Invisible Empire has for its primary purpose and excuse for existence the substitution of an unwritten for the written law. It would abolish the right of security of person from unreasonable seizures and searches; it sieges its victims in the dead hours of the night and administers such punishment as may be decided in its secret courts. It denies the right of a public trial. It denies the right of confrontation of witnesses; it denies a copy of the charges to the accused; its indictments are drawn in secret, heard in secret and it even makes its own statutes. It usurps the powers and prerogatives of the three great branches of the government of the republic and at once becomes legislator judge and executioner. It is digging and blasting at the very foundations of the liberties we enjoy, and, in my opinion it is an element of danger to our state and to the peace and good order of society that calls for the condemnation of every law-abiding citizen.

"I know that its leaders SAY that it is the friend of law and order and that it teaches true Americanism. I know that many good men have been misled into becoming members of it through the sentiment and the high-sounding professions of its friends and organizers and they really think that they are the friends of the law and that they are really and truly the highest type of Americanism. But permit me to say that I do not believe the time has ever been or ever will be that it will be necessary for any friend of the law to disguise himself and meet other friends in secret nor do I believe that the threatening anonymous letter, the skull and the cross-bones, the hideous disguise, the midnight call, the application of the tar and the feathers to the victims of the clan are the expressions of any sort of Americanism. These are the expression rather of the Italian black hand or the deadly Vendetta, rather than that of true Americanism.

Opposes Organization Here

"I do not know whether they have organized here or not; I may in fact, be speaking to members of the Invisible Klan right here today; if I am, well and good. I want to emphasize the fact that however weak the enforcement of written law may be, it is a thousand times better than the rule of any secret Klan or Society. Although, so far as I know or believe the efforts to organize here have so far proven abortive, yet the very threat of it and the fact that it is organized in other parts of the state has borne fruit in this county. Citizens have already received threatening letters and warnings to leave the county. Somebody has taken avantage of the Klan and has violated the written law in its name for a threatening letter is a violation of the law within itself. And this will be the experience of the Klan wherever it is organized. The criminal elements of the country, like the poor, are with us always and they will welcome the opportunity to do their will in the name of the Klan; for this reason, if for no other, there should be no such organization here or anywhere else where there are such things as courts and juries and written laws for the government of mankind.

"The true American spirit is a law-abiding spirit; it honors the constitution of the state and the nation; it would not deprive the humblest citizen of the full protection of the writen law; it would say to the midnight marauder, the white capper and the lyncher "inasmuch as ye have done it unto the least of these ye have done it unto me. It would point all men to the court house for an adjustment of their grievances; it would go to the offending citizen in broad, open daylight, with its face undisguised and administer its warnings; it would proudly say to the world that we are capable of self-government through the constituted channels of government and if its officers failed to do their duty, it would go to the polls and elect better men in their places. Americanism in a disguise; God save us from such a thought! Americanism masquerading in fantastic costume in the dead hours of night? Americanism sending threatening letters through the mails or surreptitiously leaving them under the doors ashamed or afraid to sign its name. No, no, a thousand times no!

"There may have been some excuses for the existence of such an organization at the close of the war between the states when a helpless intelligence was disfranchised and subjected to the will of enthroned ignorance through the fortunes of war, but now all men have equal rights in the selection of their legislative, executive and judicial officers and what cannot be remedied at the court house can be remedied at the polls. It was not so then and I would cast no aspersion upon the fair fame of the men of the south who, in that dread time, went outside the written law and secured the safety and security denied them at both the court house and the polls.

Plea for Support

"In the administration of the law the courts and the executive officers all need your active and sympathetic support; much of our failure to administer justice in all cases arises from the fact that a busy citizenship shirks jury duty and it often happens that the idle and the dissolute are chosen to try cases simply because the busiest and best men disqualify or beg off from jury duty. I am happy to say that this disposition is being rapidly overcome locally, under our jury wheel system and this excuse for mob law is being less and less tangible and true as the weeks go by.

"Not being an exact science, the administration of the written law will never be perfect; perfection can never be expected of mortal men, but it is the best system we will ever have and it is the only safeguard of the rights and liberties of the people. Without it no man is secure in his life, his liberty or his property. This truth should be taught to the rising generation of men that they may be able to "carry on" in the future under the spotless banner of right and justice.

"I see before me several members of the bar; men who love the law as I do; men who have made it the lodge-star of their lives and I would say to them especially that we have a tremendous responsibility in this age of new ideas and new isms. It is my deliberate judgment that upon supremacy of the written law of our country depends the peace and welfare of this and the coming generations of mankind. So let us call to our assistance the law-loving and law-abiding citizenship of the country and plant ourselves firmly upon the guarantees of our constitution and defend it against all comers, visible or invisible, open or secret. Go tell the restless and dissatisfied elements of manqind that when the law is trodden down there will be there no balm in Gilead and no physician there; tell them that it is the only bulwark between civil government and anarchy and that it is the only defense of the helpless the only refuge of the oppressed; say to those who would trample the individual rights of the citizen under foot and take away from the humblest citizen any of the rights guaranteed him under the written law that the French said when they made their final stand at the Marne.

"They Shall Not Pass!"

Entertainment for the day was a reading given by Klock Ryder, member of Lewis-Worth players appearing at the Wichita theater. Miss Stella Holt and Prof. Loew gave piano solos.

President Ewing, announced next week's program would be in charge of a committee composed of Albert Ellis, Paul Von Allman and Joe Mears, Jr.

The majority of the Lewis-Worth Stock company, were guests of the club at the luncheon.

Business Girls Have Good Meet Tuesday Night

"The spirit of co-operation, helpfulness and words of good cheer are more important than the gift of money," said "Ma" Burdick in an interesting and instructive talk on social service work, given at the weekly meeting of the Business Woman's club, Tuesday evening.

Another feature of the meeting was the discussion of plans for the Business Woman's supper to be given next Tuesday evening, when local business men will be guests.

Following the business session, contests for the prizes given this week by Kruger's Jewelry store and the White House Market, were held. The Kruger prize, a beautiful string of beads was won by Miss Muriel Seofield in a paper race contest in which no one weighing over 125 pounds was eligible.

The White House Market prize, an order for $20 worth of groceries was won by Miss Bonnie Marie Morse for writing the best menu for a dinner, the only girls eligible in this contest, being girls who did their own cooking.

Miss Irma Dunal, was announced as hostess for the month of November with Mrs. Ramey Mathis, assistant.

The committee on decorations received a vote of thanks and the largest number of new members this season were introduced.

Tipton's will be the gift giver for the coming week.

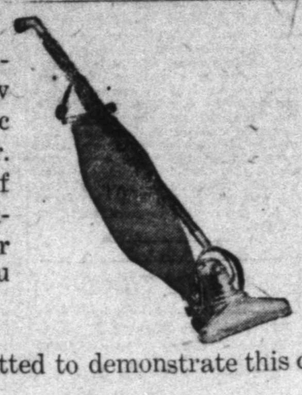

Approximately $27,000,000,000 represents the savings of the small investors in the United States.

SOCIETY

CYPHER CLUB OPENS SOCIAL PROGRAM.

Celebrating the first anniversary of the organization of the club, and opening the social program for the fall and winter, the Cypher club gave a formal ball at the Kemp hotel Tuesday evening, that eclipsed in brilliancy all past affairs given by the organization.

Purple and gold, the club colors, were used in telling effect in the attractive decorations. The word "Cypher" made of purple and gold ribbon and forming a streamer across the ball room was also an attractive feature.

The programs, daintily decorated in the club colors were distributed by the president, R. J. Marian and secretary, Miss Willie Mae Solomon, who had charge of all the arrangements.

A feature of the affair was the honoring of the local brides of the past year, in which favors of handsome silver sandwich trays were given as favors, and the orchestra presented with a silver loving cup.

The gifts were made at the close of the grand march.

Music was furnished by the Doc Ross Jazz Bandits, and punch was served throughout the evening.

Patrons and patronesses for the affair included: Mr. and Mrs. Landon, M. Cullum, who led the grand march, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Rubsam, Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Keenan, Mr. and Mrs. C. L. STANDARD CLUB MEETS AT LIBRARY TUESDAY.

Clyde Fitch and Social Satire" was the subject of an interesting study program of the Standard club which met at the library Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. Charles Staley was leader of the lesson, and papers were given as follows: Mrs. O. P. Maricle read one on the "Social Practices Satirized in the Climbers"; Mrs. J. M. Isbell's subject was a comparison of "The Climbers as a Social Satire With 'Saratoga'," and the "New York Idea"; Mrs. J. E. Shipley discussed some of Clyde Fitch's plays; Mrs. Lewis discussed the moral point involved in the attempt to shield Sterling for the sake of his wife and son, and Mrs. A. C. Price discussed the use of the conventional devices in "The Climbers."

Mrs. Ralph Hines, an associate member of the club was present and others included: Mesdames C. E. Bailey, E. E. Fisher, O. P. Maricle, J. M. Isbell, R. D. Lincoln, J. E. Shipley, R. D. Ford, A. D. Patillo, Downing, A. C. Price, T. M. Conley, T. C. Kelm, Witherspoon, Lewis Charles Staley and Misses Dicks and Hendricks.

Fashions for Americans

Dress accessories have certainly been given a leading role this season with dresses and suits, as a whole, fashioned on such simple lines. The sketch offers two suggestions to the woman who is interested in making things for herself.

The sports scarf and tam shown in the upper sketch are made of tan-colored duvetyn appliqued with dark brown self fabric. Naturally the color scheme may be decided to suit the individual, but brown and tan combinations are popular and effective. The cap is merely a conventional tam of generous size, and the manner of placing such a chapeau on the head determines whether or not it is to be smart and becoming. The scarf is double, that is, faced with self fabric, and a slit in one end permits it to be drawn snugly about the throat.

The lower sketch illustrates sleevelets and matching collar. These sleevelets are finished at the upper edge with elastic, so they stay in place, and they may be used to bring to full length a close-fitting elbow sleeve, or they may be worn with a suit, frock or coat, having the flaring loose bell sleeves that are so popular this season. The collar is curved to fit the neck, and extends across the back only. The set may be made of net, with insertions and edging of lace, or it may be made of a sheer cotton fabric or of crepe de chine.

Rather tailored effects are generally preferred in neckwear, and over-elaboration in trimming is not featured by firms making the best merchandise. Practical materials, such as kid, duvetyn, satin and pique are popular. Entire vests made of kid, chamois, or patent leather are shown, and some smart little collar and cuff sets are made of fur or imitation fur for wear with tailored street suits and frocks.

THANKSGIVING GRID GAME TO BE CERTAINTY

Some high school football eleven is going to play Wichita Falls high in this city on Thanksgiving day if local football enthusiasts have to kidnap 'em and drag 'em here. Practically every high school eleven in Fort Worth and Dallas will receive a challenge in the next few days. Coach Harry Viner stuck the letters in the postoffice slot yesterday morning, and is preparing another batch if the Dallas and Fort Worth warriors decline to play.

Principal Danheim of the local high school already has received letters from the Waurika, Okla., high school management and from the undergraduate manager of the Stamford Texas, high school eleven asking for the chance to play the red and black team here on Turkey day. But the local boys are seeking bigger game, and are trying to land a battle that will furnish fireworks from start to finish. Principal Danheim stated yesterday that he would be mightily pleased if arrangements could be made whereby the North Side high school eleven of Fort Worth, the team that lost the district championship to Electra last week by a 14-13 score, could be brought here—and unquestionably such a game would be the biggest possible drawing card.

Meantime, Coach Viner is putting his charges through stiff workout every evening in preparation for the game Armistice Day with the Devol, Okla., eleven. Tickets are now on sale at the Palace and Central drug stores at 50 cents per, and it is expected a big crowd will turn out for the game. A downtown parade, headed by the Boy Scout band, will probably be staged by the high school students Friday afternoon before the game.

RUTGERS JOLLY WELL SMEARED BY NOTRE DAME

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—Notre Dame today converted its football game with Rutgers into a track meet, ran circles around the Eastern team and chained a 48 to 0 victory.

Rutgers had only one chance to score and muffled that. It was in the second period. A long forward pass had brought the ball to Notre Dame's 25-yard line when another pass was batted into the arms of a Rutgers player on the two-yard line. Then the Scarlet's quarter elected to essay another forward pass, with the result that Notre Dame, soon took up the offense again. The game was marked by frequent fumbles and penalties and a display of hale and hearty tackling that sent a number of players to the side lines.

The Indiana eleven, which last Saturday trounced the army, played an even faster game on its second Eastern appearance this season. When Foster Sanford's pupils tried to match their forward pass against Knute Rockne's tribe, they looked like a primary class in arithmetic matching wits against a college class in mathematics.

Starting in the first minute of play, Notre Dame began piling up points on Rutgers until at the end of the first period the tally stood 17 to 0.

Kastner and Wynne made touchdowns after fifty-yard runs and Shaw kicked the two goals. Then Wynne kicked a field goal. Both teams used the forward pass frequently.

Aerial football prevailed in the second period. Kastner kicked a field goal from mid-field, making it twenty to nothing for the Westerners. A few minutes later Mohardt got off one of his famous passes to Kiley, who scored another touchdown for Notre Dame. Shaw kicked goal. Sensational forward passes by Rutgers, which however, failed to score, closed the period.

The third period started with some good line plunging by Mohardt and Wynne, followed by a series of forward passes, one of which, from Mohardt to Captain Anderson, brought another touchdown for Notre Dame. Shaw kicked goal. A series of long runs put the ball on Rutgers five-yard line when the period ended.

Notre Dame started the fourth period by scoring another touchdown by Kastner from the five-yard line. Shaw kicked goal. A spectacular forty-yard run by Desch, substituting at right half, paved the way a few minutes later for a touchdown by the same player.

THE HOT STORE LEAGUE

(A Tragedy in Nine Acts)

BY "NICK" CARTER

"I'm tired of waiting for spring to come,"
The Old Fan grouchily said;
"Let's gather around the stove in the store
And talk 'till our lungs are dead."

And the Young Fan felt very much the same,
So they each took a chew, and sat
In easy chairs by the old hot stove,
And talked and chewed and spat.

"So 'Bad News' Galloway's coming to us,"
The Old Fan said with a smile;
"The Spuds can use him, I like the way
He soaks that apple a mile."

The Young Fan sorrowf'ly shook his head:
"Old man, you're wild as sin;
Where, Oh where, did you get that dope?
What league were you ever in?

"But I am delighted to hear at last
That Tooper Rigney's free,
And that Salm has signed him to play at short
For the fans like you and me."

Then the Old Fan heaved a snort of disgust;
"Why, Rigney's gone to the Coast;
Say, you know as much about baseball
As my old lady—almost."

A few remarks passed back and forth,
And "you're a liar!" said one;
While the Old Fan called the younger man
"A no-good sonuvagun."

The Young Fan picked up a paper weight,
And the Old Fan grabbed a rock,
And each put the power behind his arm
And "beaned" his friend in the block.

Lifeless they fell, and the Old Fan's form
Sent the hot stove tumbling o'er,
And the fiery flames licked all around—
And burned up the gosh-blamed store!

KY. RACE MEET UNCOVERS FAST FILLY, MISS JOY

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 8.—The Kentucky season has come to a close. The meetings at Louisville and Lexington were far beyond the Kentucky Jockey Club management's expectations. Neither Louisville or Lexington laid up anything, but the deficit was so slight as to be almost negligible. It was far better than could have been anticipated. There was nothing outstanding in the Kentucky meetings. The racing was just on the average and the horsemanship displayed by the riders was below the average.

No great horses came along. Kentucky did not produce a Man o' War, but it did produce a fleety little filly in Miss Joy, who was beaten three times. On two occasions she was "pulled" to permit her stable companion to win, which was legitimate, but on the third time she met with accidents during the running of the race that caused her to lose. However, she might have been defeated anyway, for to close observers it appeared as though she had become slightly stale from her long hard campaign. Miss Joy is a real speed marvel and will win many races next year, providing she trains on. However, it is not believed that even her stable connections hold out any hope of her being a Derby mare on the order of Regret. She is by Peter Quince and that stallion, a producer of great speed, has never sired any distance runners.

At six furlongs and possibly a mile Miss Joy, after a winter's rest, should make Morvich or any other fast horse extend himself to win. She will travel six furlongs as fast as any of them and may extend her speed to the mile distance. Solly, by the same sire, was a magnificent sprinter and Peter Quince has produced some others who has shown exceptional speed.

Something Else.

"Your daughter, sir, has referred me to you."

"I have nothing to do with her love affairs."

DRY GOODS MEN LEAD FIGHT ON NEW TAX BILL

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—A new effort to upset the American valuation basis of assessing duties laid in the permanent tariff bill will be made, it was learned today by several large trade associations which have written to chairman Penrose of the senate finance committee, requesting that the committee's decision to include the plan in the bill be set aside pending further hearings. The movement is headed by the national retail dry goods association which, its officers said, had enlisted the support of the National Retail Clothiers association and the National Garment Retailers association.

The attack of the Dry Goods association upon the valuation plan, according to its letter to Mr. Penrose, is promised "upon our convictions that its effect must be to increase prices.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—The breach in the ranks of house republicans over the acceptance of the senate maximum income surtax rate of fifty per cent. continued today to widen.

House leaders sought to defer the fight at least until after the re-writing of the bill by the conference gets under way, but whether negotiations to that end which were opened with the "insurgents" would be successful remained to be decided.

If negotiations started today terminate without an agreement, the majority leaders plan to bring in a rule to force the bill to conference without instructions to the managers. In that event the republican "insurgents" and the democrats are prepared to make a fight on the rule. Losing in that, they say they still will be in a position to renew the fight when the house managers ask for instructions.

House leaders are understood to be ready to accept a compromise on the surtax rate at an increase of approximately eight per cent. over the 32 per cent. maximum fixed in the bill as it passed the house. Majority leaders in the senate also look forward to a compromise at around 40 per cent.

Chairman Penrose of the senate finance committee, said today he expected the bill to be ready for the president next week.

WISDOM and WORSE

By C. F. C.

Harry Viner took his trusty typewriter in hand yesterday morning and indited six epistles to the managers of high school football teams in Dallas and Fort Worth, challenging 'em to battle the local warriors here on Thanksgiving day for money, marbles or chalk. As a football coach, Harry is a most industrious young man; he not only labors with tremendous energy to weld together a powerful football machine, but he believes in further personal labor to the end that games shall be played, by gum!

Although the general plans appears to be centering around an attempt to get one of the Dallas elevens here for the Turkey Day tussle, why not devote a little concentrated attention on the North Side of Fort Worth? In view of the fact that the local lads will probably not receive a return shot at Electra, despite their earnest yearnings along that line, why not book a game with the North Side crew and thereby promote one of the niftiest little football gambles of the local season—if the red and black eleven fails to show as welt against Fort Worth as Electra showed, then let's admit Electra's unquestioned superiority over Coach Viner's team. The Fort Worth eleven is out of the championship running now, and might welcome the chance to play here—while it's a cinch they would be a wonderful drawing card in view of the great game they put up last Saturday against Electra.

Realizing that every football fan in Electra would be waiting to hand them the loud raspberry if they received a licking from Fort Worth, you could bet your bottom dollar that the Wichita Falls youngsters would turn loose a brand of speed, fight and football aggressiveness that would be well worth viewing. The season is about over; I can't think of two high school teams, champions or near champions, that would draw a bigger gate right now than Wichita Falls and the North Side high of Fort Worth.

I don't wish to offend any graduate of T. C. U., but honest, brothers, this is not the year for T. C. U. to be playing Centre College. There's a T. C. U. man right in this office, and when the fearful news came over the wire last night that Bo McMillin's Kentuckians might stop off in Fort Worth, en route to the coast, long enough to play T. C. U., he remarked sadly:

"I fear greatly that somebody's quarterback is going to step on my fullback's face!"

It was just a little story, inconspicious and tucked away down at the bottom of the page because it drifted in over the wire late at night—but it marked the passing of a great golf player. I refer to the story of the suicide of Louis Tellier, Massachusetts open golf champion, and professional to the Brae Burn Country club.

Louis Tellier, native of France, was professional at the Laboulie Golf club near Paris in 1912 and his game attracted such attention that the following year he came to this country to enter the national open golf championships staged in Massachusetts over the links of the Brookline Country club. He failed to win the title, but the beautiful brand of golf he displayed landed him the job as pro at Brookline. Three years ago he went to the Brae Burn club. Tellier was one of the best known professional golfers in the country, and one of the high ranking players nationally. He had won no title in this country, however, until he captured the Massachusetts open championship last fall against a big field of Eastern stars.

According to Bill Bocap, sports editor of the Philadelphia Public Ledger, Jess Willard lost his desire to meet Dempsey shortly after it was reported that Jess had made another big oil strike—if true, it merely proves Willard is no more sincere than other come-back pugs who camouflage their desire for the public's money under a piteous plea for "one more chance at the title."

Another Eastern sport writer is already spilling heroics over the Centre-Harvard game of 1922, claiming that "the rubber game ought to be a hummer, drawing more attention than any other grid event of the season." Perhaps so, but it looks to me like Harvard will do the humming in 1922. With Bo McMillin, Roberts and a few others missing, Centre's 1922 eleven will probably return to the w. k. condition of "innocuous desuetude." It requires great players to make a great football machine; you can't do it with great coaching alone. Charley Moran may be a wonderful coach, but Charley Moran cannot give Centre college a wonderful football team without having some wonderful football players with which to work. If coaching could do it alone, Harvard would NEVER be beaten, as the Crimson's coaching system is supposed to be the greatest in the history of the game. Practically every varsity player at Harvard has an individual coach to perfect him in the fundamentals of his position. But a year came when Harvard could boast no players of unusual brilliancy, and what happened? A team from a little college, a team coached by one man but a team boasting SEVERAL WONDERFUL PLAYERS, drifted into Cambridge one fall afternoon and decisively defeated Harvard's eleven very-much-cauded but merely average university gridiron representatives. The answer seems clear enough—it isn't hard to perfect a great football team when you can build it around a McMillin, an Oliphant, a Harley, an Eckersall, a Dalton, a Kellenger, a Brickley, a Poe, etc., etc.

MEXICAN OIL EXPORTS SHOW SLIGHT LOSS

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—Exports of crude oil from Mexican ports during the month of October approximated 14,000,000 barrels, as compared with about 16,000,000 barrels in the previous month. Shipments during both September and October exceeded production, the difference being taken from storage. It is the opinion in local oil-producing circles that exports of oil from Mexico for the months of November and December will probably establish new high records, as it is understood that the companies will endeavor to ship as much oil as possible before the end of the year, in view of the belief that the export tax may be raised in 1922. The adjustment of the export tax, which was agreed upon last September as a result of the conference between local oil men and officials of the Mexican government was only for a period covering the balance of this year.

The Standard Oil company of California has entered the Wyoming oil fields by acquiring acreage in the Cat Creek fields. It is understood that the company will begin drilling on the property immediately. For a considerable period the California company had been reaching out for production regardless of where the oil fields may be. Only recently it sent an expedition into Alaska to develop property, and others to carry on development work in South America and the Philippines.

The Standard Oil company of New York has been receiving bids for the transportation of approximately 1,000,000 cases of oil to Mediterranean, Adriatic, Black Sea, Levant and North African ports, it was learned yesterday. Bids have been received from the Cunard Steamship company, Furness, Withy & Co., the Oriental Navigation Company and the United States Shipping Board. The lowest bid is understood to have been submitted by the Cunard company, which is expected to get the contract. The next lowest bid was from the Oriental Navigation company, which is American owned. The report that the contract was to go to a British company caused considerable discussion in local shipping circles in view of the competition for ocean traffic.

The Wichita Falls refinery of the Associated Producing and Refining Corporation of St. Louis has been opened with a capacity of 1,200 barrels of crude oil per day. The output of the refinery will be exported chiefly to Great Britain and France, according to Howard Walker, president of the corporation.

STAMFORD, Nov. 8.—Mayor Davenport of Stamford this afternoon issued a proclamation designing November 11, as a public holiday.

The local post of the American Legion have prepared fitting remonies for the day, and a very interesting program has been arranged. It is expected that the city will observe the day in keeping with the proclamation of the mayor.

Warren G. numbers among his accomplishments the ability to smoke a cigarette.

RAPID INCREASE IN INTEREST SHOWN IN CLASS ORGANIZED TO GIVE VOCATIONAL TRAINING

A rapidly increasing interest is being shown in the night vocational classes being formed in this city, according to the report Tuesday of School Superintendent Lee Clark, over a hundred being already enrolled. Twenty-eight are reported enrolled in the class in auto mechanics being conducted at the Motor Supply Company, and 20 more in a similar class at the high school building.

A class in special training for janitors, said to be the first in Texas, was organized Monday night at the Senior high school.

Some 35 men and women from local refineries were reported asking for a class in chemistry. A teacher from the science department of the Senior high school is expected to be put in charge of this instruction.

A number of painters were also reported asking for a special instruction course, which will be placed under the supervision of one of the Clark asserted, and members of the local art teachers.

The move is barely under way, Mr. school board are very anxious for enrollments to be made rapidly so arrangements can be completed and classes put under way. Instruction in any subjects for which teachers can be obtained is guaranteed all applicants.

The organization is under the supervision of Charles Martin of the extension department of the Texas Agricultural and Mechanical college and was started last year. The money for the instruction, half by the federal government, one-fourth by the state and one-fourth by the city. Books and writing material are the only expense for students.

ANOTHER REASON

EDITOR CARLOS MARTIN'S REQUEST

(Fronm the Archer County News.)

Fearing that an effort would be made to tap the city sewer system should the announcement be made before, Sheriff Smith did not announce until Thursday morning that over 1500 gallons of corn whiskey and choctaw beer was poured into the sewer lines late Wednesday afternoon.

It was expected that by Thursday morning the confiscated "hootch" would have reached the river where the large area would make it impossible to harm anyone but the fish.

The hootch that was destroyed has been collected by the sheriff's office and the ranger force during the last few months.—Wichita Falls Record-News.

The above appeared in today's Wichita Falls Record News in its joke column, and we wish to compliment that joke-smith on his output. It's the dryest joke we ever read. The reading of such a joke, together with just an ordinary amount of reasoning, should draw a smile from—well, from even the most devoted disciple of Atticus Webbicus. The idea of consigning fish that are not dry 1500 gallons of something they don't want, instead of consigning it to fish that are dry and somethings they do want—and not a mourner present to witness this wholesale massacre of spirits—well it's sure some fish story, isn't it?

STAMFORD CITY WATER SUPPLY IS PLENTIFUL

Special to the Record News.

STAMFORD, Nov. 8.—Hon B. P. Davenport, city manager and Homer D. Wade, and City Engineer H. J. Bradshaw made a careful survey of the present water supply of the city this morning. Upon the return of these officials from the inspection trip, they issued a statement to the public to the effect that there would be no restriction upon the use of the water, and that even without more rain, Stamford has enough water to last until late spring of next year.

The new water works project cannot be made available until the distributing system is acquired or built, and the officials are very gratified over the fact that the city has a supply at this time that is ample for all purposes.

The hearing is now set for November 16. The postponement was made so that it will be possible for District Attorney H. R. Wilson to appear for the state at the hearing.

DEFENSE OPENS TESTIMONY ON FATAL CRASH

Witness Testifies in Favor of Driver of Car Which Struck Hallowe'en Party of School Students.

Speed of Death Car and Position of Hay Ride Truck Figure in Evidence Presented in Case.

The truck which carried the party of young people on the night of October 31 when Miss Oneta White, local high school girl, a member of the party, sustained injuries from which she later died, was parked at such an angle on the concrete road between this city and Iowa Park a few minutes after the accident that he was compelled to drive off the pavement on the left side in passing the truck according to Roy Barbee, 1202 Fourth street, Scotland addition.

Barbee was the first witness for the defense Tuesday afternoon in the case of J. C. Hampton, local laundry employe, who is on trial in the county court charged with negligent homicide as the driver of the car which on the night named crashed into the Hallowe'en party resulting in fatal injuries to Miss White with minor injuries to several other members.

The testimony of Barbee was the defense's first reply to the state's contention that the truck was parked parellel to the right edge of concrete road facing toward this city while a tire was being repaired and on the right side of the road so that there was no reason for Hampton driving his car to the right of the truck resulting in the fatal accident.

His testimony that the car stopped half a length past the front end of the truck was also contrary to testimony of state witnesses.

Says Saw No Light.

In addition to testifying as to the position of the truck which compelled him to drive off the pavement on the left side to pass Barbee said he saw no light on the rear of the truck. He said that he heard a commotion around the truck when he approached it and that was what caused him to stop before reaching it. He had said just before reaching the truck he was met by boys who told him that an automobile had struck several of their party with numerous injuries resulting. He said that he drove one of the boy members of the party back to a refinery where a call was made for an ambulance.

Defense attorneys brought out the fact that Barbee had been supoened as a state witness but was not placed on the witness stand in direct testimony by state attorneys.

County Attorney Fulton scored for the state in the cross examination of the witness. By questioning he brought out that between 300 and 400 yards before he reached the truck that Hampton had passed him going at a rate of speed which he estimated was 30 miles an hour. The state attorney in further examination as to the speed of the car brought out that while Barbee himself was driving at the rate of 18 to 20 miles an hour, the Hampton automobile had struck the party at the truck, had stopped and the victims removed from under it before he arrived on the scene.

The witness' testimony concluded the taking of evidence for the day. What additional testimony will be presented this morning by the defense is not known but it is not expected that the case will go to the judy before afternoon.

Opening with Melvin Hobbs, son of Henry Hobbs, local oil operator, state attorneys Tuesday offered the testimony of several members of the party to substitute the testimony of Monday afternoon as to the state's contention of the manner in which the fatal accident occurred.

Defense attorneys as on Monday, objected to the introduction of a large amount of the testimony on the grounds that it was immaterial and prejudicial to the rights of the plaintiffs. Some heat was shown by both state and defense attorneys in voicing their objections to the court as to the character of the testimony being introduced.

Vary In Estimates

Defense attorneys succeeded in their cross examination in showing that state witnesses did not agree as to several details in connection with the accident.

They varied in their estimates as to the distance the car passed the truck after the accident before coming to a stop, an important feature of the state's contention as to the probably rate of speed of the car when it smashed into the party to the right of the rear end of the truck. There was some disagreement as to other details including the lights on the front of the car.

State witnesses however did not vary in their statements that the automobile passed to the right of the truck, that there was several feet more space to pass on the left than on the right of the truck and that at the time of the accident there was a red lantern sitting to the right rear of the truck.

They also all contended that they heard no alarm previous to being struck by the car.

Two state witnesses who claimed they saw the car approach, testified that the car was traveling at a high rate of speed, one estimating the rate at 30 to 35 miles an hour. Although they varied as to the distance the car drove after the accident, none estimated the dis less than the car's length beond the front of the truck.

Among the state witnesses Tuesday were Miss Juanita Prince, Melvin Hobbs and Will Pardo, who with the deceased were the two couples together on the night of the accident.

All according to their testimony were struck by the ca Miss Prince limped as she took the stand and was unable to raise her right hand due to her injuries in taking the oath. According to her testimony, she was standing with her arms around Miss White near the right edge of the c nerete along side the truck when they were struck.

She said that she never saw what struck them and did not regain consciousness until she arrived at the hospital here.

The testimony of Hobbs, Pardo and Miss Mayme Vincent, all youthful members of the party was substantially the same as to the manner in which the accident occured. In addition, Hobbs expressed the opinion that previous to the accidents, other cars had approached them from the rear and passed them on the left as they repaired the im of the truck.

Chaperone Testifies.

Mrs. W. S. Cowling, 1315 Eighteenth street, one of the two cha, ones of the party, said that she was standing to the rear of the truck and saw the automobile approach. She did not estimate the speed of the car. She testified as to the presence of the red lantern to the rear of the truck. She also refused in cross-examination to verify several other contentions of the state stating that she did not know. She said that her daughter was a member of the party and that when she saw the c r approaching, she only looked out for her.

Mrs. H. W. White, mother of the deceased, who, with her husband, has been in constant attendance at the trial, testified that she nor any members of their family were acquainted with Hampton, the defendant. The purpose of this testimony was not apparent Tuesday. The relatives of several other members of the party are in attendance at the trial.

Dr. Joe E. Daniel testified as to the death of Miss White at a local hospital a short time after she was brought from the scene of the accident.

CHICAGO MAYOR TAKEN TO TASK BY MR. HOOVER

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—Mayor Thompson of Chicago was taken to task today by Secretary Hoover for refusing to initiate measure adopted by the national conference on unemployment for relieving the nemployment situation in the Illinois metropolis.

"I note" Mr. Hoover said in a letter to the Chicago mayor, "your eply to the recommendations of the president's unemployment conference and the quotations from you in some of the Chicago press

"It appears to me that in view of your warning that 'this is a capitalistic move with the following objects: A black list, a refusal of charity to American union laboring men, a drive against union labor and a conspiracy to lower wages,' you have overlooked the fact that the recommendations of the conference were the unanimous view of representatives of the American Federation of Labor, the railway brotherhoods, United Mine Workers and other labor organizations, United States chamber of commerce, the National Manufacturers' Association, etc.

"It is the confident belief of the conference that suffering among the unemployed during the coming winter can only be prevented by adequate organization of the community and that such organization should be initiated in each locality by the mayors. The mayors of every city of importance except yourself have co-operated fully with the conference by creating and assisting such organization.

"Your refusal to initiate these measures does not relieve you from the responsibility to those who will in consequence suffer unnecessarily during the coming winter and I trust that you, therefore, are making adequate provision for them in some other manner."

BRIAND, FIRST FRENCH PREMIER TO VISIT U. S., RECEIVED BY HARDING

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—Premier Briand of France and members of the delegation he heads to the armament conference today made calls of ceremony on American officials and drove about Washington.

The premier was received by President Harding, Vice President Coolidge, officials of the state department in the absence of Secretary Hughes, who had gone to New York to vote, and by Secretary Weeks and others.

Discussing his reception by President Harding, M. Briand said:

"The president was most kind and cordial and mentioned the circumstance that I am the first French prime minister to have visited Washington."

The premier was presented at the White House by Ambassador Jusserand of France and was accompanied also by M. Viviani, M. Sarraut, Admiral DeBon and General Buat. The president chattered for some time with his visitors, but it was said, did not touch upon subjects to come before the conference.

At the senate, M. Briand and his party were received by Vice President Coolidge with Senator Lodge, who participated in the conversation, acting as interpreter. They then went to the state department where they were received by Under-Secretary Henry P. Fletcher, and then were received by Secretary Weeks in his office at the war department. General Pershing as chief of staff, and Major General Harbord, deputy chief of staff, received the visitors in line with Secretary Weeks.

"I find your capital wonderfully beautiful," M. Briand said later, "and full of monumental buildings. I take pleasure in thinking it was laid out by a French engineer more than a centruy ago."

The French prime minister and other members of the French delegation have not yet had any serious talks either with American officials or members of other delegations upon the purpose of the conference, nor do they expect to do much in this direction until after the meetings have begun. The delegates, it is understood, wish to meet as many Americans as possible in the interval and form an impression of the American point of view.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—The final interim of stage-dressing for the armament conferences was ushered in today by developments which for the first time concentrated on the great diplomatic drama, the alecrt attention of practically every element of Washington and its distinguisher guests.

Even the senate took a hand in the last minute preparations by adopting with the tactic acquiesence of Republican leaders, a resolution presented from the Democratic side of the chamber requesting that the doors of the conference room be opened whenever the full body of delegates were in session and that a record be kept of everything that transpired during the negotiations.

Among those who will actually sit at the conference table admiral Baron Kato, head of the Japanese delegation and naval minister of the Japanese government, made himself the center of attention by a public statement asserting that his nation was willing, in the interest of a successful conference to go the length of reducing her "eight-eight" naval building program if a satisfactory proportion agreement could be reached.

Meantime Premier Briand of France, confining his public expression to a general renewal of his nation's willingness to meet everybody else half way to reduce armaments, paid a round of official calls and familiarized himself with the situation in conference with his colleagues and officials of the French embassy. During the day, he was received formally by President Harding.

Members of the newly arrived Netherlands delegation also were given a formal audience in the afternoon by the president who had spent much of the day at work on the address with which he will open the conference on Saturday. Tonight the manuscript was virtually completed and Mr. Harding let it be known that it reflected his proposed course of conduct throughout the negotiations by dealing only in a broad way with problems of the conference and leaving the specific presentation of American proposals to the American delegates themselves.

That these proposals have been completed so far as possible, for the present was indicated by the waiting attitude of the delegation which held no meeting today but marked time pending the assembling here tomorrow of the advisory committee of twenty one selected by President Harding. It is expected that at this meeting, members of the American big four will impart to the advisory body the program prepared for the opening days of the conference and ask for a final review of the subject matter involved. During the day, the committee probably will also call on President Harding.

$225,000,000 WORTH OF UNITED STATES WARSHIPS IN ONE HARBOR PLEA FOR CURTAILING NATIONS' ARMAMENTS

The new U. S. S. California in the foreground and several other warships in the $225,000,000 fleet, at the right of the California in the background.

Residents of San Diego, Cal., have a fair understanding of what it costs the U. S. or any other nation to maintain a powerful navy. One hundred and fifteen warships and tenders were anchored in the harbor at one time recently. They represented an expenditure of $225,000,000. In this fleet was the U. S. S. California, the latest word in superdreadnoughts. It cost $40,000,000. The naval shore establishments at the port brought the total investment represented to $250,000,000.

two others seriously wounded in Estill county.

The first of the killings happened last night in Breathitt county when Sylvester Howard Jr., was killed by Marl Pitts.

NEW YORK FIGHT

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—A running gunfight in which one man was seriously injured and nearly a score of shots were fired, enlievened election day at a voting booth in the 18th aldermanic district late today.

Angelo Marseno, who is said by police to have begun the fight, was shot through the hip by one of two men who gave the names of Samuel Kuperfman and John Ryan. A dispute over the merits of rival candidates for alderman preceded the fight. All three participants were charged with felonious assault.

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 8.—The republican majority in the New York Assembly will be continued in 1922 as the result of today's voting.

With only one district out of the sixty-two assembly districts in the city of New York unreported and with five districts in other parts of the state missing the figures showed that seventy-nine republicans, or three more than the constitutional majority of the lower house, have been elected. The missing up-state districts, three in Albany and two in Suffolk county are normally republican.

DEMOCRAT CARRIES VIRGINIA

By Associated Press.

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 8.—State Senator E. Lee Trinkle, democrat, was elected governor of Virginia today over Henry W. Anderson, republican, by a majority of at least fifty thousand ,according to returns from various sections of the state compiled by the Times Dispatch.

John Mitchell, negro, running on a "Lily Black" republican ticket, polled about 20,000 votes, according to the Times Dipatch's estimates.

The rest of the democratic state ticket, early returns indicated, was swept into office along with Trinkle.

J. Murray Hooker, of Patrick county, democratic nominee, was elected to congress from the fifth district, to succeed Robert A. James, deceased, by an estimated majority of 4,000 over Thomas L. Felts, republican.

INDIANAPOLIS REPUBLICAN

By Associated Press.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 8.—Samuel Lewis Shank, republican, was leading Body M. Ralston, democrat, his opponent in today's municipal election by 19,899 when returns from 133 of the city's 166 precincts had been tabulated tonight.

DEMOCRAT MAYOR REELECTED

By Associated Press.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Nov. 8.—George R. Lunn, democrat, was re-elected Mayor of Schenectady today for a fourth term. His victory was notable by the fact that it was the first time in 28 years that a mayoralty candidate has been chosen for two consecutive terms. Mayor Lunn had previously served two single terms.

BALTIMORE DEMOCRATIC.

By Associated Press.

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 8.—One hundred precincts out of 590 in Baltimore gave Gordy, democrat, for comptroller 8,807; Metzerott, 7,437. When returns from 100 of the 590 precincts in Baltimore gave Gordy a lead of 1,370 votes over Metzerott in the city, the democrats claimed his election and also control of the legislature. These claims however, were not conceded by the republicans.

Soldier Bonus Wins In Ohio

By Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 8.—Available returns from today's election early tonight showed the proposed soldiers' bonus amendment to the state constitution leading by more than three to one.

The same returns showed a vote of more than two to one against a proposed amendment providing for a senatorial redistricting of the state.

The Soldiers' bonus amendment provides for a state bond issue of up to $25,000,000 out of which Ohio veterans of the world war are to be paid ten dollars for every month in the service, the total not to exceed $250.

State officials announced tonight they expect to begin marketing the bonds at once.

KOHLER WINS AT CLEVELAND

CLEVELAND, Nov. 8.—Election of Fred Kohler, former chief of police and present county commissioner, running as an independent republican candidate today, as mayor of Cleveland over Mayor William S. Fitzgerald, republican, was conceded by both republican and democratic leaders on unofficial returns from 520 of the 747 precincts of the city.

Kohler's final majority on all choice votes is estimated at 10,000 by the two party leaders. His election followed a house to house campaign without the backing of an organization and without him having made a single speech during the campaign.

Kohler's term as mayor will be limited to two years, as the city manager plan charter amendment is said to have gone over by a vote of 2 to 1. This means that on January 1, 1924, a city council of 25 selected from four districts by proportional representation will choose a city manager to handle the city's administrative business. It is said Cleveland is the largest city in the country to adopt the city manager plan.

Mayor Louis E. Hill, republican, was re-elected in Lakewood, defeating Mrs. B. S. Pyke, member of the democratic national committee.

BRITISH AND IRISH MEET MARK'S TIME

By Associated Press.

LONDON, Nov. 8.—Belief was expressed in high quarters here tonight that it might be Monday before any important developments take place in the Irish situation. All parties to the negotiations were busy today in informal discussions, but there will be no specific move before Thursday's meeting here between the premier and members of the Ulster cabinet. There is a hope that parliament may be prolonged Thursday and as Friday is armistice day, further official conversations concerning Ireland are likely to be adjourned until Monday.

In addition to having informal talks today Premier Lloyd George and foreign Secretary Curzoon, Sir James Craig, the Ulster premier was busy consulting with influential parliamentary leaders, seeking their support for the Ulster viewpoint in the Irish controversy.

FOREST FIRES THREATEN IN MISSOURI

CORNING, Ark., Nov. 8.—Overhanging clouds of smoke tonight warned residents of the forest fires which have traveled from Butler county, Missouri, well into Clay county, Arkansas, since they were reported last Friday. While the fires are not considered dangerous, unless a strong wind should develop, they were tonight only four miles southeast of here. Dry leaves and shrubbery have fed the flames to forty square miles of territory in the last 48 hours. A reflection of the blaze is visible for miles.

BELIEVE THEFT RING BROKEN; FIVE CHARGED

Belief that a solution to a series of robberies by auto strippers, which has been going on in this city for some months, has been reached was expressed by police following the arrest Tuesday of five men for alleged implication. The arrests were made by Motorcycle Officers Johnson and Eyerly and City Detective Bob Hembree and were the result of a two weeks investigation, with one of the three on duty at all hours of the day and night.

Approximately $600 worth of tires and other accessories were recovered Tuesday. Officers declared that if citizens, who have in the past lost stuff which they did not report to police, will now make reports it is believed other goods can be recovered. Officer Eyerly declared that one of the men had told him that stuff had been taken in the past, the details of which he could readily give, should the particular incident be brought to his mind.

Following an all-day investigation charges of burglary were filed late Tuesday against C. S. Taylor, J. H. Barry and Elmer Hammock.

Charges of receiving and concealing stolen property were filed against C. S. Taylor. Police asserted that other arrests were expected to follow in short order.

Nineteen casings, sixteen inner tubes, one spot light and a motor meter were included among the articles enumerated by the police which have been recovered.

Thursday has been designated annual dress up day at Senior High school and many are wondering just what task the general activties of the day are destined to take, aside from the eccentric costuming.

A special program is to be rendered at the chapel and something novel in the line of haberdashery and gown designing, as in keeping with other years is anticipated. The nature of the program to be staged has not been given out.

COLD WAVE STRIKES ALL NORTH TEXAS

With the local temperature dropping 26 degrees from the noon reading of 8 degrees to the 52 mark late last night and with indications reported and by railroad dispatchers here favoring a further drop, the muchly expected cold wave can be safely said to be upon the inhabitants of Wichita Falls and Northwestern Texas.

Cloudy weather condtiions, with lowering temperature in the Texas Panhandle and in Northwest Oklahoma, does not make the possibility of snow remote, according to dispatchers reports late last night.

Texline reported a low mark of 40 degrees at 10:30 p. m. Tuesday, Childress showing a reading of 43 and intermediate points on the Denver registered similar falling temperatures.

On the Wichita Valley, cloudy skies and falling temperatures indicate a cold wave. Stamford showing 56 and Abilene 57 degrees late last night. Woodward, Okla., reported a temperature of 48 degrees at 10:30 last night, with cloudy weather prevailing and promise of freezing weather before morning.

FITTS WARNS VIOLATORS OF TRAFFIC LAW

Declaring that automobile drivers are beginning to show an unnecessary laxness in the observation of traffic regulations Police Commissioner Fitts asserted Tuesday that unless a better spirit of co-operation is shown on the part of a number of local people arrests will follow in wholesale order.

Failure to observe regulations concerning lights was named by the commissioner as the chief violation, which he has noted. Numbers of cars he said have been seen without tail lights and some with either only one head light or glaring lights.

Documents recording the verdict in the case of Henry Hudson's mutinous crew were lost.

BROTHER OF MEXICO'S FAMOUS RETIRED REBEL CHIEFTAN BEING SOUGHT BY EL PASO OFFICERS ON CHARGE OF KIDNAPPING CHILDREN OF WIFE

By Associated Press.

EL PASO, Texas, Nov. 8.—A warrant for the arrest of Hipolito Villa, brother of Francisco Villa, on a charge of kidnaping, is in the hands of El Paso officers, following a complaint filed by Miss Mabel Silva, of El Paso, who says she and Villa were married in 1914. She declares she is a citizen of the United States. Villa is now in Juarez buying horses for his brother's ranch at Cantillo, Durango, Mexico.

Villa is the father of her children and they were kidnaped by him, she alleges, after he had left her and the children in San Antonio, Texas, three years ago.

The children are Maria Louisa, six and Alton four. They are on Villa's ranch in Torreon, the mother said.

Miss Silva said she met Villa in Juarez in 1914 and they were married by a priest there. Her allegations are that Mexico does not recognize a church ceremony as legal and that according to Mexico does not recognize a church ceremony as legal and that according to Mexican law, she and Villa never were legally married.

Miss Silva brought the children here, found employment and supported them herself. The children were taken from her here when she allowed Villa to see them, she alleged.

ILLINOIS AND IOWA SCORE CATTLE RATES

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—Holding that the reduction in livestock rates recently ordered by the interstate commerce commission left the heart of the livestock producing industry almost wholly unaffected, the American Farm Bureau Federation, through its counsel, Clifford Thorne, of Chicago today asked the commission to extend the reduction to short hauls. The reduction recently ordered amounted to 20 per cent on hauls where the rates exceed fifty cents.

"That reduction has no significance to the state of Illinois or Iowa," Mr. Thorne argued. "It has very little significance to the entire states of Kansas and Nebraska. Here you have the great heart of the livestock industry almost wholly unaffected by the reduction."

You'll Want to Be

WHERE MEN ARE MEN?

The Efficient Woman

We hear a great deal nowadays about the efficiency of women. In the novels of fifty years ago, who ever heard a woman praised for her executive ability, force, and energy, in the sense that it is used today? The frail, delicate, helpless ideal of womanhood has passed away. How is it possible to measure up to the ideals of modern womanhood? In the first place, we must keep our bodies in the best possible condition.

Thousands of women have succeeded through daily baths, exercise in the fresh air, and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at the first sign of female weakness. (Adv.)

PLAINVIEW, Texas, Nov. 8.—Four hundred and sixteen delegates are here for the first annual Sunday school and B. Y. P. U. convention of Panhandle Baptists. Sunday school and B. Y. P. U. leaders of the state are here to address the delegates. The convention lasts two days.

MOTHER!

Open Child's Bowels with "California Fig Syrup"

Even a sick child loves the "fruity" taste of "California Fig Syrup." If the little tongue is coated, or if your child is listless, cross, feverish, full of cold, or has colic, give a teaspoonful to cleanse the liver and bowels. In a few hours you can see for yourself how thoroughly it works all the constipation poison, sour bile and waste out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again.

Million of mothers keep "California Fig Syrup" handy. They know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup. (Adv.)

LOUISIANA'S PREXY WINS LIBEL SUIT

By Associated Press.

BATON ROUGE, La., Nov. 8.—Huey P. Long, charged with criminal libel in a suit by Governor John M. Parker, late today was given a sentence of 30 days in prison, suspended "during good behavior" and fined $1 with a sentence of an hour's imprisonment in default of payment.

Mr. Long, one of the state public service commissioners, was found guilty this afternoon by Judge H. F. Brunot before whom the case was tried.

The first sentence was imposed for Commissioner Long's charge that the governor's appointment of a superintendent for the charity hospital at New Orleans "illustrated that the Standard Oil Company dominates the state administration."

The fine was imposed for Mr. Long's public assertions that Governor Parker dispensed public jobs to bolster up the Standard Oil Company in Louisiana.

Motion for a new trial was submitted with argument.

Governor Parker was absent, being in Washington, where he is to sit as a member of the advisory board at the disarmament conference.

Wealthy Farmer Killed by Fall

By Associated Press.

FLOYDADA, Texas, Nov. 8.—M. P. Swain, prominent farmer of this section died Tuesday morning from injuries received when he fell off a windmill he was oiling Monday. He leaves his widow and nineteen children.

PEOPLE, PEOPLE, PEOPLE

I want to talk to you.

I want to tell you something.

And you are gonna lissen to me.

What, you ain't? Oh, yes, you are!

Sit down and be quiet; I can't talk to a man moving around all the time.

When Jack Culbertson came in to see me, I was busy, but I had time to talk to him. Jack is president of the Wichita Motors Co. He has built one of the best trucks on the American market and has placed them in every country on this ball of dirt. This ain't no truck ad—sit down.

He is one of the big ones and probably the livest old big natured boy I ever met.

He reached for his hip pocket and my mouth watered, and pulled out a handkerchief and I nearly fainted, and he said: "Billie, Theodore H. Price, of New York, told me to tell you you had to write some advertising for him," and he looked at me.

I said, "Man, I haven't time to write ads, I am the busiest man in America."

"I don't care," he said, "you are going to write ads for the Price-Campbell Cotton-Picking Machine."

I couldn't turn down Theodore H. Price. I was with him a long while, I was with him in New York when he started his great paper. He is one of the big men of this world. He is a friend of mine.

I know his cotton-picking machine. I have seen it in action. I have seen that educated automaton move up and down a cotton row and pick it clean as any cornfield darkey could pick it.

I know that he has solved the greatest problem that ever confronted the industrial South.

I know that in every line of human endeavor vast progress has been made in all lines save, the greatest of them all, the cotton industry.

I know that a successful cotton-picking machine will bring to its owners more wealth than Rockfeller says grace over.

I was glad to know that he is going to produce them commercially.

I was glad to know that he had interested a man like Jack Culbertson to make and market them, for that assures us that the machines will be seen in every field in the South within the next few years. Next to the machine itself, Jack Culbertson is the most valuable asset in the new concern.

He told me that the company wanted to place the stock on the market in order to launch the enterprise in keeping with its importance.

He told me that for the immediate present the company would sell preferred stock at $10 per share and throw in one share of common at the same par value.

He told me that the Wichita Motors Co. and the Price-Campbell Cotton-Picker Corporation would be merged into The Mechanico Agricultural Company, and that the business of the truck company, assured the stockholders an 8 per cent dividend on the preferred stock, and the Price-Campbell end of it assured enormous earnings on the common stock.

He did not know how to tell that story. Jack is a good fellow but he is too darned conservative. He acts like a bank director.

I want to tell you that I believe a hundred dollars invested in the cotton-picking machine will net more money than any investment now open to the American public.

It is the greatest discovery of the age. It means that the cotton industry of the South will be revolutionized.

It means a new era for the South as certain as the golden dipper is pictured by the stars at night's high noon.

I want to tell you that I believe you are lucky to have the opportunity to get in on that deal. I really do. I believe the country is going to assimilate that stock faster than any industrial offering ever placed before the public.

So I say to you, if you have some spare money—

But I am not going to let you buy a thing today.

I want to get it fixed in your mind that the South has at last got a cotton-picking machine, that soon you will see these little things crawling over the fields of the South like gigantic ants. I want to get it fixed in your mind that you have an opportunity to be a part of that concern, and I am going to let you think it over, all night.

Read my ad in tomorrow's paper.

Publicity Man for the Cotton Picker.

TEXAS COTTON PALACE.

President W. V. Crawford of the Texas Cotton Palace at Waco reports a total attendance this year of 473,585, approximately 1,000 more than the total attendance in 1920. President Crawford says that the exposition was satisfactory in every respect and that plans for the 1922 Cotton Palace will be discussed at the annual meeting of the stockholders to be held on the night of December 5. The Record News extends hearty congratulations to Editor George Robinson of the Times-Herald, to President W. V. Crawford of the Cotton Palace and the hundreds of live wires who are behind them in their undertakings.

West Virginia juries are not in love with John Barleycorn. A young man in Fairmount, that state, was arrested for having two bottles of whiskey on his hip. A jury gave him five years in the penitentiary and the supreme court of the state sustained the constitutionality of the law. There is a long dry spell ahead of that chap.

Mayor Hylan of New York is for municipal control of milk plants. But the plants are all in the country. It must be a campaign to dodge on the part of the mayor.

Quanah ginned 1,500 bales of cotton this year. There is money in the old sock in Hardaman county. Cotton placed it there.

"ALL MEN ARE LIARS."

Now the statisticians at Washington say that the taxpayers of America will dig up nine to ten billions next year. They figure that duties on imports take from the final taxpayers about five times as much as the government receives. With $600,000,000 from the tariff that would amount to $3,000,000,000. It is estimated that the total burden will be nine billion dollars, of which the treasury will get about $3,600,000,000. Isn't war hell? Every ninety cents of a dollar paid by the taxpayer represents the cost of wars in years gone by or the maintenance cost of an army and a navy and yet the rulers of the civilized nations and the people of the civilized nations say that they are followers of the Prince of Peace and humbly walk in his footsteps.

SHIFTING TAX BURDENS.

Lest we forget the new revenue bill now reaching final enactment benefits the small tax payer through the fact that the exemption for a married man is increased from $2,000 to $2,500 when his income is under $5,000 and the exemption for a dependent child is increased from $200 to $400. Surtax rates under $10,000 likewise are decreased so that the surtax between $8,000 and $10,000 will be one per cent. Large incomes are benefited by the reduction in the surtax rates. In place of the excess profits tax the senate has provided for a flat tax of 15 per cent on corporation incomes which cent on corporation incomes which compares with 10 per cent under existing law and 12 1-2 per cent in the house bill. There will be a compromise when the conferees get together.

According to a Childress editor the owner of two large cotton oil mills situated in Central Texas has decided to move his plants to West Texas for the reason that the cotton of the state is now being raised mostly in Northwest Texas and the outlook for the cotton oil business is better "there than elsewhere in the state." Come west, young man.

Editor Harry Koch of the Quanah Tribune-Chief reports that the price of Hardaman county chickens has advanced four cents. Now what does an editor know relative to the value of a modern chicken?

Senator Smoot of Utah is pushing his sales tax proposal. If this is a government of all the people then all the people should be willing to be taxed. Coming, in a modified form, is the sales tax.

There is an opening for the landless in Eastland county, where a large number of farms have been lying idle since the oil boom. The chambers of commerce at Ranger, Cisco and Eastland have promised to use every effort to put tenants on the farms. According to County Agent R. H. Bush, a great part of the cultivatable land in Eastland county is now lying idle, houses are in bad condition, improvements run down and fences demolished or in bad repair. Many of the owners cultivating land in Eastland county prior to the oil boom have moved elsewhere and left no address. How shiftless.

Germany, the new Germany, has a population of 60,000,000 or about four millions less than in 1910. There is a large excess of females over males, an excess which now amounts to nearly three millions. Now what is Germany going to do with this excess?

LACEMAKING

By DR. FRANK CRANE

(Copyright, 1921, by Frank Crane.)

Every one who has spent a vacation in Switzerland has noticed the demure little girls who sit outside the shops on the Lucerne quays everlastingly embroidering at a frame.

They are making lace.

Most of them come from the villages around Saint-Gall.

They represent one of those peculiar industries that pertain to a particular town or province, just as one place will be noted for its wood-carving, another for pipe-making and the like.

Their system of lacemaking is called "Kloeppel," the best specimens of which bear very favorable comparison with the Irish, Valenciennes and Brussels products.

The most popular is the Brussels lace of Appenzell. It is exported on a large scale and almost every woman who fancies nice things enriches her wardrobe while in Switzerland with an Appenzell flounce, scarf or collar.

The industry, according to the London Daily Mail, was introduced into Switzerland by a Huguenot refugee from France, who settled in the neighborhood of Saint-Gall about 200 years ago. This is a quaint cathedral city near the lake of Constance.

At first it was a home industry. In the eighteenth century it became very important and presently its reputation spread beyond Switzerland.

Like Brussels lace, it is always embroidered on fine gauze and the Brussels designs were imported into Switzerland. There is little to distinguish the real Brussels from that of Appenzell for the designs and forms are the same.

The industry has always been confined to this canton.

Swiss Kloeppel lace is made in French Switzerland and in the Lauterbrunnen valley. Elaborate measures for the encouragement of the industry have been taken and special committees have been formed to supervise the production.

Kloeppel lace is such that a traveller can obtain any special design he fancies. These women and girls are always ready to work from a rough sketch and the results so achieved are as remarkable for their truth and accuracy as are the efforts of the Swiss carvers in executing wooden models of sporting dogs sent to them by the Britishers back in the nineties.

Even in these times of financial upset, with money exchange out of joint, it is possible to buy specimens of this magnificent lace at a very reasonable price in the little shops and towns of Switzerland.

The women workers come from their home towns in the summer to Lucerne and other resort places, do a good stroke of advertising by their quaint appearance, execute special commissions and make not a little money.

The Swiss are a very industrious and thrifty people and lacemaking ranks with wood-carving as one of the oldest of the fine arts there practised commercially.

Little Stories for Bedtime

CHATTERER HAS A FRIGHT

Chatterer, the Red Squirrel, curled up in the darkest corner of Farmer Brown's cornerib, was having such a beautiful dream. He was king of the Green forest and the Green Meadows and all the other little people who live there brought him presents of beautiful yellow corn. He had great storehouses all filled with corn, and he would never again have to hunt for anything to eat. Even Shadow the Weasel brought him presents of corn, and everybody was very polite and bowed before him because he was king. Yes, indeed, it was a beautiful dream.

Presently he dreamed that he heard a whistle, a merry whistle. It was the whistle of Farmer Brown's Boy, and he could see him coming down the Lone Little Path through the Green Forest with a great bag of corn on his shoulder as a present for the king. The whistle sounded nearer and nearer. Suddenly Chatterer's eyes flew open. At first he thought he was still dreaming, for he had forgotten where he was. All around him was the beautiful yellow corn, and he still heard the whistle, only now it sounded very loud indeed. He shut his eyes and then opened them again to see if the corn would disappear. It didn't. It was real. It was all about him. In fact, he was lying on some. And the whistle was real too. In a flash Chatterer remembered where he was, and he knew that Farmer Brown's Boy must be just outside.

He started to scramble to his feet to peek out, but just then the door of the cornerib was thrown open with a bang that made Chatterer jump inside so that it seemed as if his heart came right up into his mouth. A flood of sunshine poured in and made the corn seem more yellow than ever. Then in stepped Farmer Brown's Boy still whistling. Chatterer thought that, of course, he had come for him. He was sure of it, and he was just going to make a rush for that knothole through which he had crept in when something inside had warned him to keep perfectly still.

So Chatterer kept perfectly still, though it seemed to him that it was one of the hardest things he had ever done in all his life. He felt as if he simply must run. Then he remembered how Uncle Billy Possum had fooled Farmer Brown's Boy by keeping perfectly still even after he had been found, so still that Farmer Brown's Boy had thought him dead. "I couldn't keep still like that," thought Chatterer, "but perhaps Farmer Brown's Boy doesn't know I am here after all. I'll keep still until he does find me." So he tried to hold his breath, and all the time his heart went thump, thump, thump with fright, and it seemed to him that Farmer Brown's Boy certainly must hear it.

But he didn't. Of course not. He kept right on whistling, and as he whistled he filled a basket with ears of corn. When the basket was full he stepped outside and shut the door with another bang that made poor Chatterer jump again.

"Pretty fine corn. Yes, sir, it certainly is pretty fine corn, said Farmer Brown's Boy to Farmer Brown, who came along just then. "And the rats and mice can't get at it. It's perfectly safe here," he added. "I've seen that thieving Jay stealing a few grains through the crack, but I guess he is welcome to all he can get that way. No one can get any, that's sure!"

Chatterer grinned. Then he remembered a little verse his mother had taught him when he was a very little fellow and had been boasting what he knew:

Don't be too sure of anything.
For, smart though you may be,
You're sure to find somebody else
Can beat you up the tree.

Which means, of course, that no matter how smart you may think yourself, some one else is just as smart or a little bit smarter. Here was Farmer Brown's Boy boasting that no one could steal that corn, and here was chatterer helping himself to all he wanted. Was it any wonder that Chatterer grinned?

Rippling Rhymes

By WALT MASON

SHOWING OFF

My new green car was slick as grease, and yester'en I took my niece and neighbors three or five; and as we scorched along the ways I pulled off sundry fancy plays, to show how I could drive. I drove so close to other cars that divers fenders bore the scars of this unseemly strife; I swung 'round corners on two wheels, and laughed to scorn the tragic spiels of jays who dodged for life. But when a man acts like a boob there always is some other rube who'll beat him at his game; a reckless skate ran into me, and now my person you may see all busted up and lame. My niece is nursing many wounds, and saying words like "Chee!" and "Zounds!" She even mutters "Pshaw!" The passengers who were my guests are planning for some drastic tests in the abode of law. I sit here in a plaster cast, and now I know full well, at last, that "Safety First" is wise; there is no sense in fancy tricks, endangering the lives of hicks and skates and jake and guys. There is no sense in running cars so they resemble shooting stars in their erratic course; there is no sense in pulling stunts, while traffic cops, with martial fronts, denounce you till they're hoarse. And when I leave my couch of pain and once again propel my wain among the surging crowds, I'll be so cautious men will say, "If everyone would drive that way, there'd be a slump in shrouds!"

HOME NURSING and HEALTH HINTS

By M. JESSIE LEITCH

A CONVALESCENT'S READING TABLE

Violet Heath was recovering very satisfactorily from a long illness. For weeks, it seemed, she had opend her mouth and closed it, said "ninety-nine" and "one, two, three" over and over again, while her poor chest was thumped and examined—and now, at last, her chest symptoms had disappeared.

She was declared, in the language of the doctors, to be "out of the woods."

And in her big, airy pink bedroom she was doing her best to convalesce in the most approved fashion, with due regard to calories, vitamines, and hours of relaxtion.

But Violet Heath, for all her fifteen years of happy days, was weary and time dragged maddeningly. The hours that her mother was out of the room she listened to the clock ticking until, almost mechanically, she found her thin hand moving weakly, keeping time with the tick-tock of the little china clock.

Tired of Familiar Things

"Idiotic," she would murmur, and turn her attention to the walls. The pictures that were so familiar, the pattern of the wallpaper, the crack in the windowglass where Johnnie had thrown a stone at the balcony and missed it—the very patch that had been applied with dainty care to her filmy lace curtains—bored her. Every little silly detail hammered itself into her brain. And she was tired of herself—of her thoughts, of the silly little ideas that trailed aimlessly across her mind.

"I want to read," she announced one morning.

But the book she desired was a dead weight in her blue-veined hands, and in ten minutes it fell to the floor.

There was a pain in the back of her neck from the effort of attempting to hold the book. She was disappointed. She struggled with tears that were very near.

Father Brings a New Book

Then came her father, stamping cheerily up the stairs, with snowflakes shining in his hair and a new book tucked under his arm.

"Mother said you felt like reading," he began. Then saw the book that had fallen to the floor, sensed the bitterness of his little daughter's disappointment over this evidence of her weakness.

"Hands a bit weak?" he said. "I know a trick to help that.

And he stamped down the stairs again and out to the garage.

He brought a wooden box back to the bedside, a box just large enough to cover the girl's knees.

She stared in amazement.

But when father began to carve the edges from the box with fine disregard for the polished floor, she began to understand.

Improvised Table Fills Bill

From each side of the box he cut away pieces of wood until the box rested on the bed and across the girl's knees without touching her. Nails were driven into the box at each end, a free end of the nail being left to hold the pages of the book which this kindly father placed on the improvised reading table. The nails helped to hold the book firmly, without any effort from the girl.

Eagerly she tried it out and found that she could sit up and read most comfortably. The only thing she had to do was to turn the pages.

"Looks a bit rough. We can paint it, or cover it with chintz," said her father. "Meantime it fills the bill and takes the strain off your hands, does it not?" And Violet agreed, happily that it did.

Watching the Parade

By JOHN PILGRIM

If I were Doris McGraw's husband—well I never did believe in wife-beating. But there is one wife I'd certainly beat a little.

"Doris is so positive," her mother used to say.

I'll say she's positive. She knows it all. There isn't a subject in heaven or earth that she hasn't an opinion on. She likes to run things, too. She tells that poor Bill McGraw where to hang his hat. She insists on being boss in every least detail, and puts him through a cross-examination at night as to what he has done and who he has seen and what they said and why that the Angel Gabriel couldn't pass. Now and then Bill rebels.

"Very well, then," she says.

And she clamps her mouth tight shut like the jaws of a wolf trap. Poor Bill is a good-natured, easygoing sort of a fellow, who tries to do the best he can by every one. Doris goes about the house on her own concerns, paying him no more attention than if he were the centre table in the little red brick house on the other side of the street. In the end, Bill has always weakened. He gets his arm around Doris—

And after Doris has made him lie down, and roll over, and beg for a biscuit, she'll forgive him. It isn't real bad temper on Doris' part, though it may look it. She just has an idea that if she fails to clout Bill over the head, so to speak, she has in some way lost his respect for her. Her idea of being a good wife is to be a tyrant.

Bill knows that, in a sort of a way. He thinks she is a little fool, but he is very much in love with her, and, outside of her temper and her mean disposition, she is one of the best wives in the world. But one of these days Bill won't get his arm around her and call her honey. Then she'll hurry home to mother and after a while she'll come back again and try to make up.

I know Bill. He's the quiet, easygoing kind who hankers for peace. But when that sort start in they make war look like an Epworth League picnic. Doris may be able to square things, but if she does it will be on Bill's terms.

CAN'T FOOL HIM.

"Hey there, don't you dare park that car of yours near my horse."

"Don't worry, I know the city rules are not to park near a plug."

A CLUB SANDWICH

Copyright, 1921, by W. Werner

Seven men of varying ages and habits of life, with trains to catch or work to do on the tick of the clock, were bunched over the counter which hung over the coffee boiler. At one of the tables sat two women travelling for pleasure. At another table sat two other women, shoppers, who had to have sustenance before climbing aboard their train. And Sarah had to attend to all of them.

Sarah was a rather small person with a round, firm, sweetly colored face; gray, somewhat penetrating eyes and some of the loveliest brown hair ever seen. She wore a blue chambray dress that gave her plenty of freedom of movement. But whatever she did she continued to look neat, efficient, and unflurried.

Outside the small depot restaurant hammered an incessant flight of trains, but Sarah never failed to hear an order. She dispensed sandwiches, doughnuts and coffee with deft precision and an air that precluded imposition. Even the oldest male smirker was daunted by Sarah's chin and eyes.

She had learned early to take care of herself, and persisted in doing it. That was about all of her history, save that she was doing her best to house, clothe, feed and send to school a very small sister left solely to her care. Somewhere out behind the tracks, in one of the quiet places, Sarah had a home—two rooms, clean and sweet, where she recuperated from her shift at the restaurant. If her father hadn't been a "poor stick" and her mother had lived, she might have had the education she was fighting to get for Mary. As it was she had to grab the first job that offered which paid enough to live on. That the job happened to be menial made no difference. Sarah glorified it by her personality and carried off triumphantly $18 a week.

"Coffee and a club sandwich, please."

An eighth man had been added to the seven, one quite different from all the rest. He was young, almost as Sarah herself, shabby, but neat, with a brown face, out of which flashed very white teeth and very dark eyes. The voice, the southern drawl, had struck Sarah before she saw the man's face, and that did the same. Yet she answered readily enough. "Take ten minutes to make a club sandwich."

"All right, I'll wait."

Sarah passed her order to the cook and went on about her business of pouring coffee, ladling soup, slicing ripe tomatoes, and gathering cash into the drawer, never forgetting between times to whisk her white duster. Once she glanced at the clock. It was near time for the boss and his wife to come in for the night shift, and then she would be free. It took two of them to handle it, while she was expected to get along alone with twice as many customers to wait upon.

The man with the tanned face watched Sarah at first curiously, attracted by the symphonic regularity of her movements, perhaps, then with an increasing interest. It was evident that by the time the cook handed out the club sandwich he would know Sarah from the top of her brown head to the toes of her stubby brown shoes, and like what he knew.

But though his eyes followed Sarah, he kept his hand on an old brown bag which rested on the empty stool beside him. The bag looked as if it might contain nothing more valuable that the left-overs of a very indifferent wardrobe. Still it claimed a glance or two from a sinister-eyed man who came in demanding a package of cigarettes. Sarah spun the package toward him across the counter, accepted the bill he gave and quickly counted him out the change. He snatched the money up and bolted.

"Look here." It was the drawl of the brown-faced man. He reached forth a muscular hand a shade darker than his face. "Give me a look at that bill, will you, kid?"

Sarah, thus addressed, paused on her way to the till. She gave the questioner one swift glance and surrendered the money.

"A fake twenty," he said.

"Fake!" Sarah gasped. She turned pale. She knew what that meant. The boss would compel her to make up the loss, and there went her whole week's pay and more. For a moment her pulse failed her and she clasped her hands hard.

"Take care of this a minute, will you?" The brown faced man had thrust the old bag toward her.

Sarah accepted it dumbly. She saw him shoot out of the door with the $20 bill waving from his hand. Then she became aware that the row of men before her were regarding her excitedly.

"That feller's the slickets crook I ever ran across," said the little man with eyeglasses.

"Crook?" cheeped Sarah.

"I've seen 'em work all kinds of games," but for real downright cuteness that takes the trick. Your twenty's a goner, all right. You'll never see it or him again, my girl."

"But the bag?" Sarah protested.

The little man with glasses looked at the rest knowingly and laughed. "Stuffed with old papers likely. That's the way they do it. Well, it's too bad." He reached for a toothpick and strolled out while Sarah gazed after him in dismay.

But she still clung closely to the old brown bag.

"Why don't you open it and see if that fellow was right about the old newspapers?" queried the youngest who was crunching doughnuts.

"I'll bust the lock for you," said another.

"Hand it to me and we'll prove 'em all up," said a third eagerly.

Sarah drew back. Her natural air of dignity and reserve had returned to her. Lifting her chin resolutely she carried the bag over to the refrigerator and locked it in. Then she went on with her work. Somehow she, who trusted no man, had trusted the man who put the bag in her keeping. And she was not sorry yet in spite of all she had heard said.

Yet as the moments passed and he did not return she began to feel agonizingly uneasy. The boss and his wife would have to know very well what would happen. The boss was a high-tempered man and his wife abetted him. They would make her replace the money. They might even go farther and throw her out of her job.

More than this, the instant their eyes fell on the brown bag, they would demand to know the secret of it. She could not prevent their opening it and finding out for themselves. She wished she had some good place in which to hide it, but she could think of none that was absolutely safe.

Six o'clock came with an extra rush. Sarah looked out and saw the boss and his wife coming down the street on the opposite side. Her lips shut tight.

Then the screen door flapped with a new sound, and across the restaurant, scattering people right and left, came her man straight toward her, his brown face flushed with heat and hurry.

"Here you are," he panted. From his fist he poured a stream of bills and coins upon the counter. "Count it for yourself," he demanded, as Sarah stared frozen with emotion. "I had quite a job getting it. He'd smoked most of the cigarettes so I'll pay for them myself." He added a coin to the collection.

Tears came to Sarah's eyes. Her chin trembled violently, yet she managed to gulp out, "I knew you were honest."

"Sure." His dark eyes twinkled appreciatively. "And so are you. Give me my bag, please. I've lost my train, so I'll have to hang up in this burg for another twenty-four hours."

Sarah produced the bag from the refrigerator.

"You're sure some wise kid." His frank smile flashed. "Don't you want to see what you've had there in cold storage?"

Quickly he wrenched open the bag and showed her the contents; paper in very truth, but paper in the form of bonds and greenbacks. "All bona fide," he remarked carelessly. "I sold my ranch last week for $20,000 cash." He swept the place with his dark eyes. "Off duty kid? I see the boss has arrived."

"Yes," Sarah replied, simply.

"I'll wait outside for you," he said. "You're the first friend I've found up north, and we're sure bound to get acquainted."

Sarah pinned on her hat with trembling fingers, but her eyes were joyous. As she stepped through the doorway she saw him standing there, the old brown bag in his hand. He did not know his name or where he had come nor why, but she did know that he was a man to be trusted, and for Sarah that was enough.

St. Vitus's Dance

By H. ADDINGTON BRUCE

Author of "The Riddle of Personality," "Self-Development," Etc.

(Copyright, 1921, by The Associated Newspapers.)

Asked to summarize the principal measures to be taken to prevent the development of chorea, or St. Vitus's dance, in young children, I would respond as follows:

Guard children, so far as possible, from contracting infectious diseases, more particularly measles, scarlet fever, and whooping cough.

St. Vitus's dance has not infequently been known to develop as a sequel to such diseases. Also it sometimes appears following an attack of typhoid fever.

More frequently it may be associated with rheumatic fever or with heart disorders of the type caused by streptococcus infections. Such heart disorders, as well as rheumatic fever, are now known to originate mostly from so-called "focal infection" in the teeth and tonsils.

Consequently, to prevent these, as also to prevent the St. Vitus's dance that may accompany, follow, or precede them, it is important to take good care of children's teeth, and to seek good medical advice if throat troubles of any sort develop.

St. Vitus's dance, again, may be present as a consequence of intestinal irritation, especially the irritation due to the toxic absorption of undigested food.

Therefore the matter of diet has an important place in its prevention. Parents who are careless in regard to their children's eating habits, who permit them to eat unsuitable foods or more food than they really require, need not be surprised if the children fall victims of St. Vitus's dance.

Nor need parents who feed their children so inadequately that the latter become anaemic. Anaemia from any cause predisposes to St. Vitus's dance. And, because of the untoward effects of fatigue on digestion and nutrition, parents need to see to it that their children obtain sufficient rest.

Especially is this necessary if their children are naturally inclined to be nervous. It is the nervous child who, more than any other, is liable to suffer from St. Vitus's dance.

So true is this that the malady may develop in nervous children in the entire absence of any physical predisposing cause. Thus, some children acquire it merely by imitation of the twitchings and other involuntary movements of children already afflicted with it.

Here the mechanism responsible for its development is similar to that whereby imitation of stammering causes the development of a chronic and perhaps severe stammer. Any tendency of children to imitate unfortunates of any type should be promptly checked, if only for the sake of the imitator's own health.

And, finally, as a preventive of St. Vitus's dance, it is of the utmost importance to safeguard children from needless emotional shock. All authorities are agreed that fright, worry, and grief play a leading part in making children choreic.

Cotton

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

By Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 8.—Nearness of the fourth ginning report of the season made for restricted trading in the cotton market today and for narrow price changes. On the close shorts were inclined to cover and the last few minutes of the session brought the highest levels as the result of this demand. Here, trading months stood four to seven points over the final prices of yesterday, with December at 17.93.

During the opening call prices were one to three points up but scattered selling ensued and it carried prices even to ten joints under the finals of yesterday. This selling was almost altogether due to a statement by a private crop reporting bureau in which it offered the opinion that the census bureau report tomorrow night be as high as 6,650,000 bales and even possibly 6,700,000 as the total ginned to the first of November. A little later shorts commenced to cover in a moderate way, and during the remainder of the session the demand was sufficient to hold the market steady. Covering by shorts seemed to be due to the rather general opinion that the total ginning to the first of November would not be in excess of 6,500,000 bales.

LIVERPOOL SPOT COTTON

LIVERPOOL, Nov. 8.—Cotton spot quiet; prices easy. Good middling 12.47; fully middling 12.07; middling 11.67; low middling 10.37; good ordinary 8.07; ordinary 7.92. Sales 6,000 bales, including 3500 American.

Grain

CHICAGO, Nov. 8.—Bullish sentiment became more apparent in the wheat market today than for a considerable time past. Some renewal of trans-atlantic buying of United States breadstuffs together with the falling off in receipts helped as a timulus toward confidence. The finish was 1⅞ to 1⅞c net higher, with December at 1.04½ to 1.04⅝ and May 1.09½ to 1.09¾. Corn gained ⅞ to ¾@¼c and oats ⅜ to ½c. In provisions the outcome varied from 17 cents decline to 5 cents advance.

With Holland reported as having hard winter wheat at the Gulf of Mexico and with Sweden said to have taken a liberal amount of rye, the wheat market here moved upward in a ready manner subject to only moderate occasional setback. Offerings from the country proved small and this circumstance when taken in connection with the smaller receipts at all points was deemed of special significance in some quarters. A good deal of attention was also given complaints from the southwest that prolonged dry weather was injuring the outlook for the winter crop.

Corn and oats were firmer with wheat.

Acute weakness in the hog market carried lard and ribs down to the lowest quotations this season. The market showed something of a rally later owing to the strength of grain.

FORT WORTH, Nov. 8.—Indifference on the part of buyers was in evidence in the cattle market today. The demand was so weak that practically no trading developed until after the yards had been cleared. TOKIO BANKER WOULD REMEDY JAP ECONOMICS

Removal of Rapidly Increasing Population to Other Countries Declared Impractical.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—The Japanese are really unfit for emigrating, declared Governor J. Inouye, of the Bank of Japan in discussing the question "what does Japan want economically?" as related to the Washington armament conference.

Governor Inouye's views, given to the Associated Press correspondent in Tokio before departure on the Japanese arament delegation to the United States is considered important, as it is said his voice will be heard in Tokio, as the wise men of Nippon cable from time to time instructions to their plenipotentiaries on matters financial and economic.

"As historically proved," said Governor Inouye, "it is almost hopeless to think of removing our increasing population to other countries.

"Our population is increasing by over 600,000 yearly but foodstuffs cannot be increased in sufficient quantity to meet such a rapidly augmenting population. We have at present about 4,000,000 spindles in cotton mills, but no raw cotton can be obtained in this country. Steel is consumed in Japan to the amount of about 1,500,000 tons a year and the home production of iron ore aggregates no more than 130,000 tons.

"Such being the case, there is no way for Japan to solve such a vital problem concerning the economic existence of the nation except to find resources in economic activity abroad, and this very activity of Japanese toward settlement of the question of her economic existence will naturally be admitted by all other nations.

"It will be quite natural that Japan choose Manchuria, Magnolia and China with which she has the most intimate relations historically and also geographically. From this economic activity, however, Japan should not be misunderstood as insisting on territorial exclusion; indeed, there is not the faintest shadow of doubt that Japan has no intention to exclude the trade enterprises of other nations.

"Japan has sometimes been described as cherishing territorial ambition. In connection with the cases of such misunderstandings we only admit that Japan has often fallen into error in the past; that is, Japan has made not a little mistake in her policy in Manchuria and Mongolia, and also in China, but now, as the people have already awakened to the situation, I don't think that Japan will repeat the same mistake in the future."

RED RIVER OIL RECEIPTS OVER EIGHT MILLION

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—Receipts from oil wells in the Texas Red River district, which have been impounded by the supreme court, pending decision of the boundary suit between Oklahoma and Texas now amount to $8,045,292, Federal Receiver Frederick A. DeLano reported today. The report covers the period from April 1, 1920, to September 30, 1921. Eleven wells have been drilled in that period, the report said, bringing the total to 31, while of the 19 wells begun by other parties, all but three have proven successful producers.

Record News Readers: Laugh With Us

Some Chest-Nuts

As every golfer is aware, it is against the rules to remove anything growing on the course.

The other day a player asked: "What should I do on the putting green if a worm lay between my ball and the hole? Am I entitled to lift it or brush it aside?"

"Well," replied his companion, "I think you should brush it aside."

"Yes," he replied, "you may be right, but this was a young and growing worm, you know."

They are telling in Greenwich Village a story about Mrs. Henry Payne Whitney, whose exhibition of sculpture has had a wonderful success in Paris and London. Mrs. Whitney was sketching one day in the country when a young farmer came and stood staring over her shoulder while she worked. Though this sort of thing always annoys her, she worked on in patient silence while the farmer breached heavily in her ear. Finally though, the man began to criticize. "It ain't bad," he said, and then he screwed up his eyes and added: "It seems to look better further off." Mrs. Whitney laughed. "Well," she said, "so would you."

The famous ventriloquist was in despair. Part of his entertainment consisted in "producing" an echo in the gallery and the trusted assistant who always aided him in this little affair had been taken ill.

It was then that one of the stage hands, a raw youth from Aberdeen, who had witnessed the performance nightly, volunteered to fill the gap. His offer was accepted and he was despatched to the back of the "gods" for action.

In due course came his cue. The ventriloquist raised his eyes to the gallery and called out the words which were always "echoed." "Fly away—away!"

And as the house waited breathlessly there came the echo: "Flee awa'—awa'!"

The story is told by a certain philanthropist in the west, who is a man of big business as well, and who is noted for his sympathy for the "down-and-outers." If possible he will give any deserving applicant for work a chance to "make good." On more than one ocasion it is stated this gentleman was approached by an individual so utterly disreputable in appearance that any but the philanthropist himself would have had him ejected from the office.

"Can't you find any work at all?" asksd the philanthropist when he heard the man's recital of his woes.

"I can find work all right," said the man; "plenty of it, but everybody wants references from my last employer."

"And can not you get these references from him?"

"No, sir. He's been dead for 25 years."

"Six years ago," said Faulkner, "I made up my mind that I was smoking too much. It didn't seem to effect my health in the least, but I thought it was a waste of money and so decided to give it up."

"A very sensible idea," remarked Maxwell.

"So I thought at the time. I reckoned up as closely as I could how much I had been spending each day on cigars and tobacco. That sum I set aside each morning and started a bank account with it. I wanted to be able to show exactly how much I had saved by not smoking."

"And how did it work?"

"At the end of six cigars I had $1,000 in the bank."

"Good! Could you let me——"

"And a few days ago," interrupted Faulkner, "last Tuesday, in fact, the bank failed. You haven't a cigar about you, have you?"

A PROFESSIONAL PREROGATIVE.

Mr. Thurston—"You're up on chemistry, doc, do you brew your own?"
Dr. Wetmore—"Don't have to. I write my own."

Patience and Insect Powder Is Needed By Traveler in Russia

PETROGRAD, Nov. 7.—Americans who contemplate a trip to Soviet Russia would do well to equip themselves with an abundance of insect powder, patience, optimism, warm clothing, money and canned heat.

They will need the insect powder long before they get to Russia. Bedbugs and cooties have taken a great liking to the railway cars and hotels in Poland, Lithuania, Latvia and Esthonia. They also enjoy life on the Baltic ships.

Consequently it is difficult to reach either Riga or Reval, the two gateways to Soviet Russia, without encountering the crawling cordon.

Filtering into Russia is a slow process. It is no job for nervous and impatient folks. Those who go to Reval to get permission from the Bolshevist authorities usually wish they had gone to Riga. Accommodating Danes have established an airplane between the two ports for uneasy folk who desire to ease down their nerves by flying back and forth and rapping at both entries. It takes two hours to make the flight, while the railway trip consumes 24 hours. And so far vermin have not shown any liking for this air route.

The Bolshevist legations at Reval and Riga present prospective visitors to Moscow with a formidable questionaire in Russian including such queries as:

Who, What and Why

"What kind of immovable property do you own, if any? Describe it?

"What are your political views? Are you a member of a party in any country? Did you participate in the great war? What is your religion?"

These questions are all pretty difficult for the ordinary bourgeois American who is a good bit of a political mugwump and hasn't much religion, but is anxious to say the thing which will facilitate his entry and not stretch the truth too violently.

One hears on all sides that the Bolshevists have been deceived so often by pretended liberals that even a Socialist of the parlor variety is apt to be scrutinized more carefully than an applicant who doesn't assume to be sympathetic with Bolshevist ideals. In shear desperation "Republican" is written down in the hope that Moscow will offset Mr. Harding's position on Russian recognition by the fact that Senator Brance is enrolled with Karl Marx among the immortals and Secretary of Commerce Hoover is feeding a million Russian children.

Then one hastily inscribes himself as a Methodist or a Presbyterian or an Episcopalian. It is difficult to fib about one's church affiliations, even to facilitate entry into a land controlled by a government which scoffs at religion.

There is a great temptation to enroll as a draft evader. That ought to be a guarantee of speedy entry into a land which, doesn't believe in any wars except those it makes itself. But the new Russian secret service is more omniscient than that of the late Czar, so one admits the truth and prayerfully hands in his paper with the hope that the Moscow examining commitee wont flunk him.

Endurance Test

Here the endurance test begins. It may last six days. It may last six weeks, or even six months. There are not many places on the Moscow train. There are few rooms for strangers in Moscow and Petrograd. Consequently the Soviet government weighs applications carefully and acts slowly. If you are able to offer millions to develop Russia, you may get quick action.

If you are patient enough the reply from Moscow may arrive before you leave Berlin or London in desperation. If it is affirmative, peace must be made with the American consul by turning over to him your cherished passport and getting a paper in exchange which induces the Latvian government to permit you to leave Latvia and return.

The visa of the Bolshevist legation comes next and a railway ticket is provided by the Bolshevist officials who must be paid in English pounds or American dollars. There is no longer any scoffing at the engravings of George Washington, Ulysses S. Grant, Abraham Lincoln or George V.

If you happen to strike a lucky night you will be given a berth in a French international sleeping car. If it is an off night you will probably get a couchette in a Russian car. But it really doesn't make much difference. They both require the same amount of insect powder.

Your English-speaking companions on the train will probably be an English Quakeress, at least one Labor member of the English parliament who cannot talk without cursing Lloyd George; a Greenwich village uplifter who is sure the United States will never amount to anything until Jane Addams is elected president and several purposeful looking young Americans, well-fed and happy, headed for the Volga famine area in the hope of making life easier for cold and hungry children.

There will also probably be several vague Americans and Englishmen, possibly some Germans and Swedes, who let it be known discreetly that they represent the largest combinations of capital the world has ever known and are in their way to offer assistance to the Soviet government.

Eating stations are few and of uncertain character. Consequently all travelers carry tea kettles which they fill at the hotwater tanks afforded by all larger Latvian and Russian stations. Hard alcohol is produced to heat tinned soup and bully beef, and travelers have a taste of the cooking and dishwashing which is the lot of all foreigners and Russians alike in hotel-less and cafe-less Moscow and Petrograd.

Clothes Line Burglars Again Active in City

Wichita Falls has a new brand of burglar. This time it is a clothes line robber two reports of his activities during Monday night being received Tuesday at police headquarters. A similar report was received several days ago.

On Monday night he appeared at the home of L. M. Baggett, 1620 Collins and of J. T. Carter, 2014 Ninth street.

A counterpane, towels and several other articles were stolen from the Carter home. A dress and other clothes belonging to a negro servant were stolen from the premises of Mr. Carter.

Five dollars in cash and a similar amount in stamps was realized by burglars who Monday night robbed the local branch house of the Swift Packing Co., according to the report Tuesday to police. Seven hams, 9 sides of bacon and a quantity of cheese, evidently abandoned because of fright was found in a depression of the ground at the rear of the building.

According to City Detective Jack Miller, who was assigned to the case, the meat and cheese had evidently been trown from a window of the building while the robbers were yet inside the building.
