Bull run

PAMPLONA, Spain — A dozen people were treated for minor injuries Saturday after racing through the streets ahead of fighting bulls on the fourth day of the annual San Fermin Festival. About 30 people have been hurt in this year's festival, made famous in Ernest Hemingway's 1926 novel "The Sun Also Rises." Each July, tens of thousands of tourists test their courage by running the 825 yards along the city's narrow streets while being chased by six fighting bulls and several steers. The bulls are fought and killed later in the day by professional matadors. The nine-day festival features eight bull runs. There have been 12 fatal gorings since 1924 but none since 1980.

Ex-inmate dies; LULAC plans meeting

By Tonie Miller-Uzzel
Staff writer

An inmate who collapsed in the Midland County Detention Center Monday died Friday at Memorial Hospital and Medical Center, but details surrounding the cause of his death were not available.

Tomas Gonzales, of Stanton, died at 6:45 p.m. Friday, according to a hospital nursing supervisor. She declined to release any other information.

Felipa Lara, president of the Permian Basin League of Latin American Citizens, indicated that a number of citizens in the area have contacted LULAC with concerns about the "things going on in the detention center."

She declined to elaborate on the reports, but said Gonzales' family had not contacted her at this point.

However, Ms. Lara said she had heard different stories about what happened to Gonzales in the jail, but she had no evidence to indicate wrongdoing.

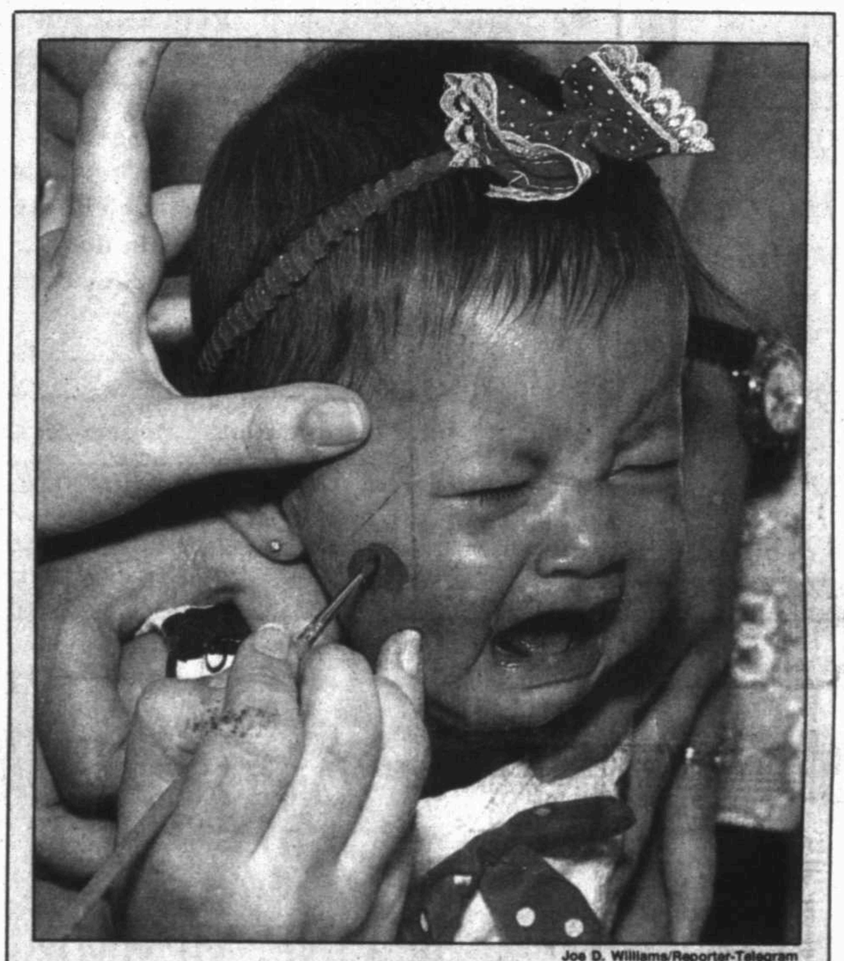

Gonzales' family had declined to speak with reporters earlier in the week about his collapse.

But Ms. Lara said because of the reports of questionable incidents occurring in the jail she has contacted the LULAC district 5 director, who in turn has spoken with legal counsel. Representatives of both will meet Tuesday with the local LULAC council to discuss a plan of action.

"Some questions need to be answered" about the jail operations, Ms. Lara said.

Ms. Lara said people who have made reports will be

Clinton has warning for North Korea

■ President admonishes communist regime against persuing nuclear weapons program.

Associated Press

SEOUL, South Korea — President Clinton today issued a fresh warning to North Korea to stay out of the nuclear weapons business as he embarked on a journey into the tense demilitarized zone to visit front-line American troops.

Clinton arrived in a driving rain at the heavily fortified zone that divides the two Koreas. North Korean soldiers peering through binoculars stood guard across from the bridge in "no man's land" where Clinton was to stand.

Before leaving Seoul, Clinton held a farewell meeting with South Korean President Kim Young-sam.

As he left, Clinton told Kim: "I was honored to meet you. I wish you well."

He praised "the vibrancy of democracy" in South Korea, saying "it's a real tribute to the people."

Asked what message he hoped to send by going to the demilitarized zone, Clinton replied, "since I'm in the country I want to go up there and see our forces and tell them how much I appreciate what they are doing. Secondly, I want to reinforce the message I issued yesterday in talks with Kim and in an address to the National Assembly."

On both those occasions Clinton warned North Korea that it faces a confrontation with the West if it persists in its nuclear program.

"They're not fully in compliance with the NPT (nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty)," Clinton said. "They need to move in that direction."

In his Saturday speech to the National Assembly, or legislature, Clinton said the expanding threat of nuclear weapons cannot be allowed to "replace the Cold War nightmare of nuclear annihilation,"

If North Korea persists, Clinton said,

MPD seeks more neighborhoods for watch program

By Katherine Poteet
Staff writer

Although Midland's National Night Out is still months away, the Midland Police Department is working at recruiting more neighborhoods to be involved in the neighborhood watch program, particularly on the east and south sides of the city.

"We are really trying to get east and southside in watches," said Sgt. David Garcia. "They are the ones hardest hit by crime. I don't understand why they don't participate in it."

Garcia said the current 45 homes involved in watches are mainly on the west and northwest sides of Midland.

The department hopes to increase that number before Oct. 5, which is the scheduled date for National Night Out, during which neighborhood watch groups hold block parties.

"We moved it from August to October to coincide with National Crime Pre-

Chamber officials hope to attract more California companies

By Darren J. Waggoner
Staff writer

A Pacific coast search by local chamber officials for companies on the move has already lured one California business to Midland, with two more expected to visit the area soon, said Midland Chamber of Commerce President Janna King.

Cities across the country have targeted California because of the belief that companies there are ready to leave the crime, soaring real estate prices and environmental regulations behind.

Chamber officials declined to reveal the name of the company that has committed to moving to Midland.

The chamber's pitch — while statistically convincing — has not been an easy catch.

Toward the end of 1992, chamber officials sent mailers touting Midland to 1,137 companies in Los Angeles, San Francisco and San Diego.

"From that effort we initially identified 59 prospects and 27 turned into firm visits that we made," said Tom Stinson, economic development manager. "We then developed 11 solid

MISD teachers learn different writing process

By Myra Lee Salcedo
Staff writer

"How did you feel about another teacher describing your writing piece metaphorically?" Jill Arthur asked a roomful of teachers.

"It gave me something to hold onto," replied one teacher as others nodded in agreement.

"This is a grouping activity you can use with children," said Ms. Arthur, a Jones Elementary School teacher and New Jersey Writing Project trainer.

Ms. Arthur, along with NJWP trainer Naida Brueland of San Antonio, are conducting a three-week NJWP Institute for local teachers.

The premise of the institute is that the writing process can be used to teach mathematic concepts and higher thinking skills.

"We are trying to encourage writing across the curriculum," said MISD language arts coordinator Lucinda Windsor. "We have a full house with this institute. It's healthy and going well."

"When you can express what happened and what took place in math, you are using the writing process and creating a depth of understanding. And your math ability can increase," said Ms. Brueland, an eighth-grade math teacher from San Antonio Independent School District.

MISD: Teachers learn to extend writing to rest of curriculum

(From 1A)

How can math skills be learned along with the writing process?

"Children's literature can be used," Ms. Brueland said. As an example, she said, "one story involves children trying to raise enough money to see the Statue of Liberty. Along with the plot, and story, to really understand it, logical reasoning and math skills are needed."

Students reading the story will be asked to diagram sentences, look for secondary meanings and draw conclusions or inferences.

"Problem- solving strategies need to be developed from kindergarten," Ms. Brueland said. "The changing needs of students have come out of the job market. At one time, only the higher echelon needed these skills, now every member of a (business) team needs to be able to process information, create ideas, explain them and train others in the skills."

San Antonio ISD is pioneering the project in Texas.

"Midland (ISD) is the first school district in the state of Texas, outside of San Antonio, to receive this training," Ms. Brueland said.

In the Bowie Elementary School library, 33 MISD teachers just completed their first week of the writing institute. They are meeting to learn how to expand NJWP methods to use the writing process to teach math, social studies and science.

Teachers participating in the institute can earn three hours of graduate credits from the University of Texas of the Permian Basin for the course.

MISD will offer a workshop on the writing process free of charge to interested parents 8:30 a.m.-3:30 p.m. July 20 and 21. Three NJWP trainers will teach the workshop. Interested persons may call Nancy Young at 689-1000 for reservations.

invited to speak with the LULAC district representatives. She said an invitation will also be extended to Gonzales' survivors to speak.

She indicated the Gonzales incident is the "fourth incident" involving city, county or jail officials.

A jail supervisor declined to respond to allegations, stating that Gonzales wasn't in the county's custody at the time of his death. All calls were referred to Midland County Sheriff Gary Painter, who was unavailable for comment Saturday night.

Jail officials said Gonzales was serving a sentence for a driving while intoxicated offense when he collapsed in his cell about 11 a.m. Monday. He was given cardiopulmonary resuscitation by jail personnel and transported to the hospital, jail officials said.

Gonzales was officially released from jail custody Tuesday after his sentence was served.

A spokeswoman for the Texas Rangers, which has been investigating the original case, said an autopsy was performed on Gonzales Saturday by the Odessa County Medical Examiner's Office, but no results were available. She said she did not know when the findings would be announced.

The Rangers will continue their investigation of the incident.

PROGRAM: MPS can check locks, other devices

vention Month," Garcia said.

In addition to neighborhoods hosting parties, this year's event will include a kick-off rally on Oct. 2, which will be conducted for the entire community.

The effort, Garcia explained, is part of the department's efforts to become more involved with the community.

"It goes back to the proactive vs. reactive attitude," he said. "We are trying to get into the community and find out what needs to be done. And, these neighborhood watches to get people to band together and work with us. We can't put an officer on every street. People need to realize that they can help cut down on crime."

One step in reducing the number of residential burglaries is having the police survey homes to see if the locks and other burglar-prevention devices are adequate.

Garcia said residents can call the Midland Police Department's crime prevention unit to request the free home survey.

After the survey is complete, the department will give the residents a sufficient amount of time to make any recommended changes. Then, Crime Prevention Unit Officer Ron Sartor will re-examine the house and certify it if it passes his inspection. Such a certification can result in reduced insurance premiums, Garcia said.

However, making sure your home is burglar-proof is only the first step in preventing someone from entering your home.

"Your house can be as burglar-proof as possible, but if someone wants in bad enought, they will get in," Garcia said. "That's where having a neighborhood watch comes in. Preventing a burglary won't work unless you have the help of your neighbors."

"I have talked to people who have been in the same house for more than 10 years and they don't know their neighbors," he said. "You need to know who lives beside you and who doesn't belong there."

Anyone who is interested in a neighborhood watch can call the department for a packet.

Garcia said the department has biligual officers to help those who do not speak English.

"We are here to supply the information and give residents anything they need," he said.

CHAMBER: California company plans visit

prospects and 27 turned into firm visits that we made," said Tom Stinson, economic development manager. "We then developed 11 solid prospects from the three trips we made."

Chamber officials are planning trips to San Francisco and Los Angeles at the end of this month and at the end of August, respectively.

Since the initial mailing, the chamber has sent an additional 1,700 packets to companies in San Francisco.

"We're now getting a 7 to 8 percent response rate in L.A. and a 4½ to 5 percent response rate in San Francisco and San Diego," Ms. King said. "We had been getting a quarter of a percent response rate, but we made significant revisions to our mailers."

The mailers include statistics comparing Midland's crime rate — including homicides, rapes, robberies, aggravated assaults, burglaries, larcenies and auto thefts — to the crime rate in the California cities.

The local rate for all seven aforementioned categories is lower than the rate in Los Angeles and San Diego.

"We're trying to strike on this while the iron is hot and we plan to keep it up after this year," Ms. King said. "We always look for a good fit."

Three California companies have relocated to Midland in the last three years — including Fuel Harvesters Equipment Inc., Jacobs Electronics and Schwab Inc.

"I think we have an advantage over a lot of other towns because our climate is very similar to California and there are enough amenities to attract them," Ms. King said. "I don't think they would consider a town of 20,000."

NATION

Temperatures fell to record lows Saturday in the Northwest, as the heat wave in the East boosted readings to record highs. In between, strong thunderstorms developed over the Plains and Midwest.

Strong to severe thunderstorms developed Saturday along a frontal boundary extending across the middle Mississippi Valley, through sections of the Ohio Valley, and into the middle Atlantic states and New England.

Severe thunderstorm watches were posted for parts of Iowa, Ohio, New York state, New Jersey, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut, the National Weather Service reported.

Late Friday and early Saturday, severe thunderstorms erupted across parts of northeastern Kansas, accompanied by tornadoes, large hail and damaging wind.

Hail as big as softballs fell at Lawrence, with hail as big as baseballs striking Topeka. Wind gusts to 70 mph were reported in Topeka.

Up to 8 inches of rain fell at Kansas City, Mo., flooding several streets.

Rainfall totals recorded Friday night and Saturday morning in Kansas included 5.6 inches at Lake Quivera, 5.4 inches at Shawnee, 4.3 inches at Leawood, and 4.06 inches at Westwood.

Heavy rain also fell across parts of Iowa Saturday, with 3 inches at Spirit Lake, 2.9 inches at Fostoria, and 2.4 inches at Dolliver, Ocheydan and Lake Park.

Hail as big as baseballs fell at New Palestine, Ohio, and hail the size of golf balls fell at Southgate, Ky., and in West Hartford, Conn. Hail also fell in parts of North Carolina, Pennsylvania, South Dakota, Georgia and Virginia.

Hot, humid weather persisted over much of the East, where temperatures ranged from the 90s to around 100.

The heat index, a factor based on a combination of heat and humidity, was as high as 115 in some areas, and heat advisories were issued for much of the Carolinas, Virginia, Maryland, and Delaware.

The heat was expected to continue through Sunday in many areas, and heat advisories for that day were issued for all of New Jersey, much of eastern Pennsylvania, and southeastern New York state.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

Fight for the truth

Wife of convicted rapist insists husband is innocent

"I'm fighting for the truth, and I knew from the beginning it was going to be a tough fight."
— Jacquelyn Mitchell, wife of a convicted rapist

By Mike Cochran
Associated Press writer

ABILENE — Despite compelling and incriminating physical and scientific evidence, the family of a convicted rapist is taking extraordinary steps to prove him innocent.

"PLEASE HELP!!!!" said Jacquelyn Johnson Mitchell in a recent letter to The Associated Press and others.

"We know for a fact he did not commit this crime."

She insists her husband, Johnny Mitchell, 27, was "railroaded" by a zealous Abilene police force under mounting pressure to catch a vicious sex offender known as the "Southside Rapist."

"We realize there are those who simply can't accept the fact that their loved ones have committed such a hideous crime. ... This isn't the case here," Mrs. Mitchell said.

Night and day the family pores over trial transcripts, investigative reports and major and minor evidence, looking for flaws in the state's case.

"For him, it's like dying a different death every day," Mrs. Mitchell said. "For his family, it's like witnessing a loved one being slowly tortured before your very eyes. ...

"There is such an overwhelming feeling of helplessness and anger."

But Abilene police Det. Jay Hatcher told the AP Mitchell is a "dangerous individual" who grew "worse and worse and worse" as the sexual attacks escalated.

"The evidence is overwhelming," he said. "It is really amazing that the family is fighting this battle with such force."

A jury convicted John Henry Mitchell last fall of raping a 21-year-old Abilene woman and assessed a 99-year prison sentence. He is in jail awaiting trial on another sexual assault.

With her letter to the AP, Mrs. Mitchell sent volumes of news stories, trial transcripts, investigative records, crime lab reports, letters to and from lawyers and a provocative list labeled "Disturbing Factors."

Also included was a list of "testimonial inconsistencies" and questionable investigative procedures prepared by a lawyer friend of the family, John Young.

"Evidence which could have exonerated Mitchell if properly processed was destroyed, botched or not tested at all," Young concluded.

" ... Particularly, I believe there is a serious question regarding the thoroughness and, perhaps integrity of the investigation."

Hatcher, the lead investigator in the Mitchell case, acknowledged that police made mistakes — none critical — but said that is not uncommon in a long, intensive case involving multiple offenses.

"It is a common defense ploy to look at a grueling investigation and focus on three or four mistakes," he said.

Mrs. Mitchell and her mother, Lucy Johnson, both of nearby Sweetwater, have taken their appeal to everyone from the NAACP to Donahue and Geraldo and to news shows such as "20/20", "Prime Time Live" and "48 Hours."

Just last week, they were in Austin seeking political support from the New Alliance Party.

"I would not be able to sleep at night knowing Johnny was gone for the rest of his life," Mrs. Johnson told a reporter during an interview with her and her daughter in their stylish Sweetwater home.

"We could cope with it better if he was guilty. We could go on with our lives," she said.

"It's enough to make you lose your sanity," her daughter sighed as she attempted to corral her young son, whom she calls Little Johnny.

Mrs. Mitchell and her mother testified that Mitchell was with them in Sweetwater the evening of the assault. And two of Mrs. Mitchell's co-workers at a day-care center swore they saw Mitchell there between 5 p.m. and 5:30 p.m. the Friday in question.

The attack occurred in Abilene, 40 miles east of Sweetwater, between 6:30 p.m. and 7 p.m. on Nov. 15, 1991.

The victim said she was bathing her 3-year-old son at her southside home when a gunman wearing a white hockey mask entered the bathroom and declared: "If you scream, I'll kill you."

The assailant, she said, was wearing a burnt orange satin stadium jacket, a gold earring, dark jeans, a blue Bugle Boy shirt and a distinctive gold ring.

He also wore gloves, one of which he left behind.

She said he dragged her into the bedroom, put a pillow over her head, ripped off her clothes and, when she resisted, threatened to kill her son.

"He got very angry and hit me across the face and kept hitting me," she said.

He sexually abused her with his pistol before raping her, she reported.

After the assault, the victim telephoned her boyfriend, who took her to a hospital. Several vaginal swabs were taken and a nurse said a stain on the victim's underwear tested positive for sperm.

In light of later events, this would be pivotal to the state's case.

On Dec. 3, 1991, after a series of sex crimes, Abilene police sent evidence from six assaults to Fort Worth for DNA testing by the Tarrant County Medical Examiner's office.

At the time, there were no arrests and no suspects.

Two days later, a gunman in a burnt orange jacket and wearing a white hockey mask raped an 11-year-old school girl in her home. Within hours, police arrested an Abilene teen-ager.

At least two people identified him as the assailant and police said it was partial license plate numbers that led to his arrest.

Investigators said he also was a suspect in the earlier southside rapes.

However, on Dec. 9, an Abilene resident telephoned police to report what appeared to be a residential burglary attempt. The caller said a man was acting suspiciously at a nearby duplex.

When police arrived, the man climbed a fence and fled.

"He tried to hide but an officer found him," Melvin Martin, the assistant police chief, told a news conference.

The man was Johnny Mitchell, who was wearing an orange University of Texas jacket and a gold earring when arrested. Investigators soon learned he was on parole for an aggravated robbery conviction nearly a decade earlier.

"We feel this made him the perfect candidate for a major railroad job," Mrs. Mitchell said.

Police also reported finding a pistol and a white hockey mask in bushes outside a motel along Mitchell's purported "path of flight" from the duplex.

Police apparently took no photographs. Nor did they later test the mask for fingerprints, which Hatcher concedes was a mistake.

But investigators soon theorized they were dealing not with a burglar but a rapist, and that the intruder was trying to get at a 17-year-old woman in the other side of the duplex.

"He was caught in the act," Martin, the assistant police chief, told the AP. "But at the time, the officer in pursuit did not realize he was chasing the Southside Rapist."

Under those circumstances, Martin said, he was surprised the family would "go to this extreme" in defending Mitchell.

In a recent jail interview, Mitchell told the AP his lawyer ordered him not to discuss the case, but said: "I wasn't there to bust through the wall to get to her, like the DA wants everybody to believe."

The earlier suspect, meanwhile, was freed on bond, and four months later the charges against him were dropped.

Shortly after Mitchell's arrest, police scoured his Abilene residence with a search warrant. Mitchell and Jacquelyn were not married at the time and he lived with his mother.

The search party reportedly recovered a yellow-gold ring and a single glove, which, though fingerless, appeared to match the glove found in the home of the 21-year-old rape victim.

They also recovered items reportedly stolen in a string of burglaries.

Hatcher says police took photographs of the evidence in place but inexplicably lost the film. And Mitchell now says neither the ring nor glove were his.

Investigators and a doctor also took blood and saliva samples and head and pubic hairs from Mitchell and these, too, were sent to Fort Worth.

The evidence against Mitchell was presented first at a bond revocation hearing in March 1992. And even though the rape victim testified, the parole board refused to revoke bond, citing insufficient evidence.

However, when the case came to trial last November, the victim recalled more vividly many details of the episode that tended to incriminate Mitchell, including identification of the ring.

Even more compelling was the DNA evidence.

Dr. Meghan Clement of Fort Worth, a forensic biologist in the medical examiner's office, testified that Mitchell's blood matched sperm from the rape analysis on five of five "probes" of DNA material.

The National Research Council, in a 1992 report on DNA technology in forensic science, noted that "even in today's technology, which uses three to five loci (probes), a match between two DNA patterns can be considered strong evidence that the two samples came from the same source."

"My personal feeling in this case, with a five-for-five probe match, the chances of this DNA originating from someone else are infinitesimally small," Ms. Clement said.

Chief criminalist Ron Singer, who approved the results of Ms. Clements' analyses, noted that DNA profiling is but one tool in solving crime, but "it's a very powerful tool."

Fort Worth lawyer Bill Lane, who tried the first case in Texas to incorporate DNA testing, is a strong advocate of using DNA evidence in criminal cases.

But he told the AP such evidence is easy to fabricate and "is no better than the integrity of the police department that collects it."

Mitchell, in the jail interview, offered no explanation for the DNA results but said: "Something isn't right about this. There shouldn't have been a match. I was in another city at the time."

His wife is more adamant.

"We know beyond a shadow of a doubt that the DNA had to be tampered with," Mrs. Mitchell said. "The evidence is in there somewhere and I'll dig until I find it.

"I don't care how long it takes."

WARN: North poses threat, Clinton says

(From 1A)

"We are resolute to take additional steps." Administration officials said he was talking about seeking U.N. economic sanctions.

The trip to the DMZ was taking him closer than any American president has come to the doorstep of rigidly communist North Korea. The symbolic journey underscored the United States' commitment to maintaining peace on the troubled Korean peninsula 40 years after the war between North and South.

American intelligence estimates say the North has produced enough plutonium to build one or two bombs but hasn't assembled them yet.

Fears were heightened by the North's testing of a missile with a range of 600 miles or more, a potential threat to Japan.

The North has refused international inspectors access to two nuclear waste sites, contending they were not nuclear related.

North Korea also said in March that it planned to withdraw from the nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty. However, the North announced June 11 that it would suspend its withdrawal for the time being.

"No specter hangs over this peninsula or this region more darkly than the danger of nuclear proliferation," the president said.

Clinton, arriving here from the Tokyo economic summit, sought to bolster the security confidence of South Korea. The United States has stationed 36,000 forces in the South, and Clinton said he had frozen troop withdrawals.

He focused on North Korea's nuclear program during talks at the presidential Blue House with President Kim and again in his address to the assembly.

About 45,000 police in Seoul and nearby areas were put on higher alert amid protests by radical students and farmers unhappy about U.S. pressure on Seoul to open its rice markets to imports.

At a news conference with Kim, Clinton said that China could play a constructive role to discourage North Korea from withdrawing from the non-proliferation treaty. China is the North's chief supplier of oil, giving it potential leverage.

"Let me say clearly," Clinton told the National Assembly, "our commitment to Korea's security remains undiminished. The Korean peninsula remains a vital American interest. Our troops will stay here as long as the Korean people want and need us here."

He said North Korea poses a threat with a million-man army stationed within 30 miles of the DMZ.

"Its troubling nuclear program raises questions about its intentions," he said. "Its internal repression and irresponsible weapons sales show North Korea is not yet willing to be a responsible member of the community of nations."

Clinton said the United States will not wait indefinitely for North Korea to open its nuclear waste sites to international inspection.

"Our goal is not endless discussions but certifiable compliance," he said. "North Korea must understand our intentions. We are seeking to prevent aggression, not to initiate it."

Clinton also accused the communist government of "indiscriminate sales of Scud missiles" like those used by Iraq in the Persian Gulf War.

Speaking broadly of security interests throughout Asia, Clinton suggested that nations explore development of new alliances to deal with peacekeeping responsibilities, economic issues and security matters.

"These dialogues can ensure that the end of the Cold War does not provide an opening for regional rivalries, chaos and arms races," the president said. "They can build a foundation for our shared security well into the 21st century."

Police charge woman in boy's death

BROWNSVILLE (AP) — An 18-year-old woman was charged Saturday with murder in the death of a 3-year-old boy whose nude body was found in a city park pond earlier in the day.

Luis Daniel Blanco, who had been missing since late Friday morning, was found floating face down with a pair of underwear wrapped around his neck, Police Chief Victor Rodriguez said.

"He was strangled with apparently what was his underwear and was thrown in ... and left there," Rodriguez said. A preliminary autopsy indicated "there was some evidence of molestation," he said.

Veronica Zavala, who lives in an apartment adjacent to that of the victim, has been arrested and jailed pending arraignment this morning, the police chief said.

A second person is expected to be charged in the child's death, Rodriguez said.

Two boys found the body Saturday morning in Lincoln Park. It was floating near a bridge that connects the island-park to a leveee that slopes up to the street, police said.

New Miss Texas is crowned

FORT WORTH (AP) — BaShara "Bo" Chandler, 21, of Garland, Miss Northeast Texas, was crowned Miss Texas and awarded a $10,000 scholarship Saturday night.

She will represent Texas at the Miss America Pageant in September in Atlantic City, N.J.

Ms. Chandler, an AIDS activist who said she plans to finish law school to become an environmental lawyer, won the preliminary talent competition earlier in the week. She is a graduate of Lakeview Centennial High School and the University of Texas.

Third runnerup was Anna Villalobos, 21, of New Waverly, Miss Lufkin.

And fourth runnerup was Darcey Rushing, 21, of Odessa, Miss Dallas.

Bosnian leaders refuse to negotiate division plan

ZAGREB, Croatia (AP) — Mediators failed Saturday to persuade Bosnia's leaders to negotiate on a plan calling for ethnic division of their war-torn homeland.

Both European Community negotiator Lord David Owen and U.N. envoy Thorvald Stoltenberg made only non-committal remarks as they emerged from 2½ hours of talks with members of Bosnia-Herzegovina's collective presidency.

"I think there will be negotiations, . . . but when is a more difficult question," Owen said, making clear the Bosnians were unwilling to return to peace talks like those held in Geneva last motnh.

The meeting came a day after the 10-member presidency rejected the proposal, which is backed by the leaders of Serbia and Croatia.

That decision sank hopes for an end in the near future to the war between ethnic Serbs and Croats and the Muslim-led Bosnian government. About 138,000 people are dead or missing in the 16 months of fighting that broke out after Bosnia declared independence from Serbia-dominated Yugoslavia.

The mediators earlier met with Croatian President Franjo Tudjman, but no details of their talks were available.

Owen and Cyrus Vance, who preceded Stoltenberg as U.N. envoy, had pushed a plan under which Bosnia would be partitioned into 10 semi-autonomous provinces — three for each ethnic group and one for the capital, Sarajevo. But Bosnian Serbs rejected that plan.

The Bosnian leadership is resisting the new plan because it is concerned that Serbs and Croats would take large sections of the country, leaving the Muslims only small, isolated pockets. They also fear that the Serb and Croat regions would join with Serbia and Croatia.

But the leadership appears to have little choice except to agree to the plan or face annihilation.

The government forces are clearly outgunned by Bosnian Serb fighters. The Bosnians' onetime loose alliance with Bosnian Croats against the Serbs has collapsed.

But Bosnian Muslim Vice President Ejup Ganic told The Associated Press: "There is no way the presidency changes its decision."

In Sarajevo, Bosnian President Alija Izetbegovic, who was not among the leaders in Zagreb, said Friday that seven members of the presidency had endorsed a proposal for Bosnia-Herzegovina to become a federation.

"We are for a federation, but not of only three units and not on ethnic principles," he said. "Therefore the ethnic division of Bosnia-Herzegovina is rejected."

Ganic said Saturday that he and his colleagues came to Zagreb "to show they do not obstruct the peace process . . . and to officially inform mediators about their decision," referring to their plan announced Friday.

"We are also trying to convey the desperate humanitarian situation to Mr. Stoltenberg," said Foreign Minister Haris Silajdzic.

Some scattered Croat-Muslim fighting was reported from central Bosnia on Saturday, and in the embattled southwestern city of Mostar, Croat forces were shelling the left bank of the Neretva river and Bosnian army positions, U.N. spokesman Cmdr. Barry Frewer said in Sarajevo.

Peter Kessler, spokesman for the U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees in the Bosnian capital, said people spend 10 to 12 hours daily looking for water. "They are suffering from dysentery and everyone is disgusted," he said.

He added that the Serb tactic of refusing to restore the water supply was designed to "force the city to its knees."

In Belgrade, UNHCR spokeswoman Lyndall Sachs said that a relief convoy, obstructed by Serb forces for six days, finally reached the embattled eastern Muslim enclave of Gorazde on Saturday.

It was the first convoy to enter Gorazde since June 22.

In Makarska, Croatia, Bosnian Croats and Muslims agreed on Saturday to stop blocking relief convoys in Bosnia in the areas they control — about 30 percent of Bosnia.

However, the U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees temporarily halted all aid convoys from Metkovic, Croatia, because of increasingly fierce fighting between Bosnian Croats and Muslims around Gornji Vakuf in central Bosnia and near Kiseljak west of Sarajevo.

British court orders Noriega to repay stolen funds

LONDON (AP) — A British court has ordered former Panamanian leader Gen. Manuel Noriega to repay millions of dollars allegedly stolen by his regime.

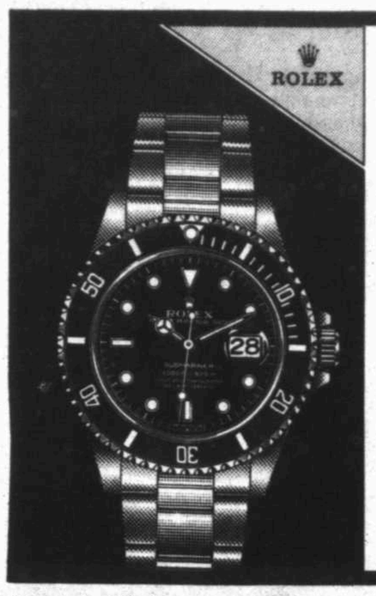

The High Court issued the uncontested judgment on Friday. Thomas Equels, an attorney representing the Panamanian government, told the Miami Herald the amount was $44 million.

The Panamanian government argued Noriega and his wife took the money from the national treasury and military between 1984 and 1988 and funneled it into the Bank of Credit and Commerce International. The money then went to Capcom International, a now-defunct London brokerage.

Government and private investigators say Capcom laundered millions in illict cash from BCCI. BCCI collapsed on July 5, 1991, amid charges of widespread fraud.

Equels said Panama will never regain the full $44 million, despite the judgment. But it can claim between $15 million and $20 mililon in Capcom holdings frozen by the British government, he said.

Noriega surrendered to U.S. troops following their invasion of Panama in December 1989. He is serving a 40-year sentence for racketeering, drug smuggling and money laundering.

Standoff continues between U.N. inspectors, Iraqi officials

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — U.N. weapons inspectors met Saturday with Iraqi officials to try to end an increasingly tense standoff over monitoring two missile testing sites.

The U.N. team leader had said he expected Baghdad would agree to a compromise involving sealing some missile testing equipment. But after a 90-minute meeting with Iraqi officials, Mark Silver appeared glum and refused to speak to reporters.

Later, Jaakko Ylitalo of Finland, the spokesman for the U.N. special commission overseeing the destruction of Iraq's weapons of mass destruction, refused to comment on the operation.

An Iraqi close to the talks said "the ball is back in the U.N. court," but refused to give details. He spoke on condition of anonymity.

Iraq has refused a U.N. request to put surveillance cameras at the Yawm al-Azim and Al-Rafah testing grounds south of Baghdad. The U.N. wants the cameras to ensure that Iraq is complying with the terms of the 1991 Persian Gulf War cease-fire.

Those terms include eliminating Iraq's weapons of mass destruction and preventing it from developing new ones.

The United Nations has proposed that critical testing equipment be sealed, so that no tests could be conducted while the camera issue is negotiated.

Meanwhile, Iraqi Information Minister Hamed Yousef Hammadi reiterated that Iraq does not object to the camera installation, but wants it done under different terms.

Speaking to reporters in the Jordanian capital of Amman, he said Iraq first wants the U.N. to review Iraq's compliance with the cease-fire agreement and possibly lift the sanctions that have blocked Iraq from selling oil or buying needed imports.

Hammadi accused Rolf Ekeus, head of the U.N. Special Commission, of "illegal pressure."

He also said that President Clinton and Secretary of State Warren Christopher had not been given accurate information and "the true position of Iraq was misinterpreted."

Team would aim for "the equipment that is used to analyze a test. If they can't analyze, there is no sense in doing the tests.'

— Mark Silver, U.N. team leader

Christopher warned Friday that if Iraq did not yield, the next step would be for the United Nations to demand that Baghdad destroy the facilities.

"If that's not done, then the United Nations will have to react," Christopher told Cable News Network.

"The use of force is entirely possible," he said.

The United States fired a barrage of missiles at Iraqi intelligence headquarters in Baghdad on June 27, saying it was in retaliation for an alleged Iraqi plot to kill former President Bush during his visit to Kuwait in April. Iraq has denied any role in an assassination conspiracy.

The sealing at the missile sites could be done in a variety of ways, according to U.N. officials. Tape and U.N. seals could be placed over switches, or locks installed.

Silver, of Biloxi, Miss., said they would aim for "the equipment that is used to analyze a test." He added: "If they can't analyze, there is no sense in doing the tests."

Iraq used the sites to test the Scud missiles it fired at Israel and Saudi Arabia during the Gulf War. In recent months, it has been testing short-range missiles which are allowed under the U.N. agreement.

On Friday, U.N. officials reported that Iraq had dismantled some equipment at the test sites after notifying the United Nations in advance.

Bridge of No Return

By Kelly Smith Tunney
Associated Press writer

BRIDGE OF NO RETURN, Korea — An old, nondescript wooden bridge that no one has crossed since 1968 stands at the desolate doorstep of the Cold War's last frontier.

Here, among the weeds and wildlife — in the mined no-man's-land of the Demilitarized Zone — President Clinton on today was to become the first U.S. leader to gaze across upon longtime enemy North Korea.

From the Bridge of No Return, visitors can see northern troops with the naked eye. And they, presumably, return the stares.

Five million Americans fought on the side of pro-West South Korea against Communist North Korean troops in the 1950-'53 Korean War. More than 8,000 U.S. soldiers remain missing and unaccounted for.

No American president has traveled so close to the enemy whose aggression in a long and terrible war left at least four million military and civilian casualties, 54,000 of them Americans.

The bridge, the crossing point for prisoners of war returning home in 1953, spans a brook in the DMZ's Joint Security Area that includes the truce village of Panmunjom.

The route to the site takes travelers through the most heavily fortified frontline in the world, where more than 1.5 million troops stand guard on either side behind concrete bunkers, tank traps and artillery.

At Guardpost Oulette, another Clinton stop, U.S. soldiers in full combat gear crouch behind olive drab sandbags and scan the rolling hills and mountain ridges on the northern horizon.

Barbed and concertina wire lace the granite mountainsides. Camouflage nets hide armored tanks, jeeps and anti-aircraft weapons. When it rains, the mud is deep and water flows like rivers into the foxholes.

At night, it is clear enough to see the stars. Soldiers in flak vests and helmets move out on patrol along the barbed wire barriers with M-16 automatic rifles at the ready.

New recruits call it spooky. Sounds jar the silence: the explosion of a mine, perhaps tripped by a rabbit, a round of fire, perhaps a weapon dropped. Blasts of propaganda from loudspeakers on the northern side echo in the distance.

Panmunjom, intended as North-South meeting site, is usually a strangely quiet enclave where men in uniform stare at each other through binoculars.

A rusty, yellowed metal sign near the bridge reads: Military Demarcation Line. Four blue posts block passage. The last to cross the bridge were 82 crewmen of the USS Pueblo, captured and released by North Korea in 1968.

Clinton also is to visit Camp Bonifas, the closest camp to Panmunjom. He is to fly by helicopter to Camp Casey, headquarters of the 2nd Infantry Division, the only army division in the Pacific, to address some of the 36,000 U.S. troops stationed in Korea.

Clinton violates protocol during Seoul dinner

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — In a series of protocol missteps, President Clinton embarrassed Korean officials, confused his translator, baffled some dinner guests and delayed dinner briefly.

As if that wasn't enough, he repeatedly referred incorrectly to the wife of President Kim Young-sam as Mrs. Kim. In Korea, a woman keeps her maiden name and the president's wife is Mrs. Sohn Myong-suk, or Mrs. Sohn.

The problems may have started at a news conference with Kim earlier in the day, when Secretary of State Warren Christopher edged forward to remind Clinton to allow time for translation.

Perhaps remembering the incident, when Clinton stepped to the microphone to deliver his dinner speech, he unexpectedly invited a translator to stand between himself and Kim, who was seated.

In Korea, it is an insult for anyone to stand between two heads of state. In addition, both sides had earlier agreed there would be no translation and that each president would speak in his native tongue, as Kim did.

Korean officials were stunned by Clinton's move and further embarrassed when the translator's wording did not perfectly match the printed speeches distributed to dinner guests.

Meanwhile, Clinton apparently realized that the translation was delaying dinner so he skipped some of his remarks, further confounding those trying to follow along.

Protocol is taken seriously in Korea, where there are strict rules of behavior even among family members. A slight, however unintentional, can mar a friendship and ruin a business relationship.

Aside from the protocol blunders, which seemed more evident to the Koreans than the Americans, the dinner for 90 people appeared otherwise successful.

"All of you would agree that this room is full of warmth and friendship," Kim told his guests.

The two presidents spoke together before Clinton stepped into his limousine and bade farewell to Kim's wife, Mrs. Sohn.

"Good night, Mrs. Kim," he said.

Palestinian rebels fire five rockets at Israeli positions

TYRE, Lebanon (AP) — Palestinian guerrillas fired five Katyusha rockets at Israeli positions in south Lebanon Saturday, but no casualties were reported. Israel warned that it would retaliate if the violence continued.

Three Israeli soldiers were killed and eight wounded in shelling Friday claimed by the Muslim fundamentalist Hezbollah, or Party of God.

A day earlier, two Israeli troops died and three were wounded in an ambush claimed by the Syrian-backed Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine-General Command headed by Ahmed Jibril.

On Saturday, Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin blamed Syria for the attacks. Rabin said the two guerrilla groups were working together and had received Iranian weapons by way of Damascus.

"Israel will do everything required to preserve the security of Israel without any connection to the political negotiations," Rabin said in a statement issued in Jerusalem.

Israel sent helicopter gunships Friday to bomb a Popular Front base in Lebanon. Ori Orr, head of Parliament's defense and foreign affairs committee, told Israeli television on Saturday that he did not "rule out the possibility of extensive action."

The warnings coincided with a trip by Dennis Ross, the U.S. coordinator on Israeli-Arab peace talks, who is trying to get the stalled negotiations back on track. He met with Rabin Saturday and was to visit Syria today.

Both Hezbollah and the Popular Front are opposed to the peace talks, which began 20 months ago in Madrid, Spain.

They also have pledged to continue hitting Israeli troops until they withdraw from the self-styled "security zone" the Jewish state set up in southern Lebanon in 1985.

Saturday's Katyusha attack was claimed in a communique issued in Beirut by a Jordan-based Palestinian fundamentalist group that calls itself Islamic Jihad-Beit al-Maqdis.

U.N. sets up checkpoints in Mogadishu

MOGADISHU, Somalia (NYT) — After weeks of rarely venturing outside their compounds, U.N. troops have begun setting up checkpoints in the streets of Mogadishu as part of an effort to wrest control of the city from Somali militiamen.

The move to re-establish a visible military presence in the capital was the first since June 17, when U.N. troops mounted a ground attack against the headquarters of Gen. Mohammed Farah Aidid, a clan leader whose fighters were held responsible for an ambush on June 4 in which 24 Pakistani peacekeepers were killed.

The American-led retaliatory raid forced Aidid into hiding and destroyed some of his weapons, but his fighters have become increasingly bold recently.

Three Italian peacekeepers and six Somali employees of the United Nations have been killed in separate incidents in the last 10 days. An Italian soldier and four Norwegians were wounded on Friday, Reuters reported, and Saturday, three French soldiers were wounded by sniper fire while unloading relief supplies at this city's port.

"It's vicious out there, and it's going to get worse," a senior U.N. military official said. "The war is not over. Once you decide to go to war, you have to finish it."

'It's vicious out there, and it's going to get worse. The war is not over.'

—U.N. military official

U.N. officials have become virtual prisoners in their compound, the huge, fortified building that was once the U.S. Embassy. The streets are considered so dangerous that civilian employees living near the airport are now ferried in every day to the compound by helicopter, and many employees have not left the grounds for a month.

"We're being held hostage here," one official said. "As it stands this week, Aidid is winning. He has intimidated the United Nations with straight gangster tactics."

The military is not the only group worried about the ebbing of security in the capital.

"We've never felt so much at risk," said Michael McDonaugh, the director in Mogadishu for Irish Concern, a relief agency. "In all our time here, the streets have never been so unsafe as when the troops are not on them. The United Nations is not facilitating us. They're obstructing us at this point."

Pakistani troops set up checkpoints on main roads on Friday, and in the largest show of U.N. force, several hundred heavily armed Italian troops in tanks and jeeps returned to the checkpoint they had abandoned during an ambush on July 2.

For more than a mile, the Italian armored column maneuvered through a gantlet of several thousand Somalis yelling pro-Aidid slogans and occasionally lobbing stones. Then, as hundreds of youths encircled his vehicle, the Italian commander, Brig. Gen. Bruno Loi, addressed the crowd.

"Attention Somalis!" he said through a loudspeaker in Italian, a language understood by many in this former Italian colonial capital. "I thank you. Today we have established the principle that we can negotiate. It is necessary now for both sides to stop shooting."

"In health care, as in a fast-moving soccer game, you've got to run to where the ball is going to be."

In coaching we tell kids they've got to run to where the ball's going to be in order to score. The same principal applies in health care delivery – our field is changing rapidly.

"At Physicians and Surgeons, our goal is to understand where those changes are occurring and be ready with the services and facilities to meet the needs, both today and tomorrow. With current medical capabilities you can often have surgery in the morning, go home in the afternoon, and heal completely in a few days.

"As we develop a new medical center, these changes are pointing us more in the direction of outpatient care.

"We have an excellent group of employees and physicians, and look forward to continuing our quality service at a reasonable cost."

Congress faces heavy workload

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress' agenda in the four weeks before its summer recess is President Clinton's — his economic program, his Supreme Court nomination, and his yet-unformed plan for lifting the ban on gays in the military.

House and Senate negotiators will begin looking for a compromise this week on the tax increases and entitlement cuts needed to meet Clinton's goal of reducing the federal deficit by $500 billion over the next five years.

While both the House and Senate versions of the bill increase taxes on the wealthy, the Senate rejected Clinton's broad-based energy tax in favor of a simple increase on motor fuels.

To make up the reduced revenue, the Senate also voted to cut Medicare spending to a level unacceptable to the House, and reduced a plan to give tax credits to the working poor. Restoring some of that money, as the House will insist, already has lawmakers looking at where additional taxes can be found that are acceptable to both chambers.

Among the options: pushing the Senate's 4.3 cent-per-gallon gas tax a little higher, or raising top income tax rates higher than already proposed.

While none of the options are popular, White House and congressional Democratic leaders said doing nothing would be worse, and would drive up interest rates and the federal deficit.

The overall deficit program incorporates the tax and entitlement changes plus restraints placed on spending by government agencies, included in separate spending bills before the Congress.

The legislation is being worked out almost exclusively by Democrats. Republicans made clear again last week that their goal is to make Clinton fail.

At a national GOP meeting in Chicago, Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole of Kansas said he was optimistic the deficit-reduction bill could be beaten. The next step, he said, was for Republicans to take over the Senate in the 1994 elections.

11 more die as heat wave continues

Associated Press

Eleven people died of heat-related causes in Philadelphia on Saturday, as a record-setting heat wave continued to assault the East Coast.

The weather was blamed for nine deaths along the Eastern seaboard earlier in the week, and that figure jumped to 20 Saturday with reports of 11 more fatalities in Philadelphia.

Meanwhile, triple-digit heat fried New york City for a third straight day Saturday, tying a record dating to 1948. No relief was expected until Tuesday, when a frontal system from the West was forecast to arrive.

Philadelphia also tied its record for consecutive days of above 100-degree temperatures. The last time its temperatures reached triple digits for three days in a row was in 1966.

In Massachusetts, 20,000 chickens died in the heat after lighting struck a henhouse ventilation system.

By noon Saturday, temperatures in Atlantic City had reached 97, breaking the old record for the date set in 1880. And those teeming to the New Jersey shore had to cross a scorching strip of sand before reaching the cool Atlantic.

"The sand is dangerous," said Lt. Jack Schellenger of the Cape May Beach Patrol. "It'll take the skin right off your feet. We see a lot of people jumping around."

Miami's temperature of 91 degrees at 1 p.m. compared with a 102-degree mark in New York and 100 degrees in Philadelphia.

It was the seventh straight day temperatures in Pennsylvania reached at least 95 degrees.

Sixteen of the 20 heat-related deaths reported this week have been in Philadelphia, with one each in New York City; Allentown, Pa.; Brooklawn, N.J.; and Keene, N.H.

Unlike the five deaths earlier this week in Philadelphia, at least four of Saturday's victims had been drinking alcohol, said Jeff Moran, a spokesman for the city Health Department.

As the heat wave continued, many sought relief at beaches.

The shore was packed by thousands along the beach in normally moderate Maine, where the mercury surpassed 90 in many areas by noon. It was the same story in Massachusetts, where crowds packed the shoreline on Nantucket Island.

"Hallelujah! We're here at the beach. You can't be in town today," said Krystn Kuckelman. "Nobody has air conditioning on this island."

In Columbia, S.C., Saturday was the 16th day in a row with a high topping 90 degrees and a new record was set in Greenville-Spartanburg when a reading of 99 surpassed a high of 98 set last year.

The traditional Southern way to cool off is to sit on the veranda with a glass of iced tea. A lot of folks are doing just that, which has meant a business boom for the Charleston Tea Plantation.

Co-owner Mack Fleming said shipments increased fivefold in June.

"I'd have to say the heat played a role in it," Fleming said.

Also in the Charleston, S.C., area, social service agencies handed out hundreds of electric fans to the poor.

"I thank God for it. It's a blessing," said Margaret Scott, 64. "Without this it would be miserable."

In Westminster, Mass., chicken farmer William T. Mason had no idea how to dispose of the 20,000 birds that died in high heat and humidity. Then a state official had a brainstorm.

The dead birds were hauled to a waste-to-energy incinerator, where they will be turned into electricity.

Livestock also suffered in North Carolina, which also was plagued by at least two dozen lightning-sparked forest fires last week.

Dairy farmer George McAuley said it was so hot that his cows lost all interest in making milk — or baby cows.

"They just stand around in the shade," McAuley said. "They're not eating much, which cuts milk production. And their reproductive cycle is off. They've just shut down and quit."

The heat meant a downturn in business for some outdoor tourist attractions, while others thrived.

Murl Clark, general manager at Dutch Wonderland Family Fun Park in Lancaster County, Pa., said receipts were down 25 percent to 30 percent.

"Families don't want to commit themselves to four or five hours in the heat and humidity," Clark said.

Down the road at the Eagle Falls Adventure Park, people flocked to its three water slides, employee Courtney Weaver said.

"(Business) has doubled since the heat wave," she said. "People are staying all day."

By Roger Petterson
Associated Press Writer

The bloated Mississippi River surged inland Saturday, unhindered by failed levees along much of its Missouri side, and President Clinton declared flood-ravaged sections of Illinois, Iowa and Missouri major disaster areas.

Still more heavy rain fell across parts of the upper Mississippi Valley, with 8 inches recorded Friday night and Saturday morning in Kansas City, Mo.

Flooding along the Mississippi and its tributaries had forced more than 20,000 people from their homes by Saturday, and had caused 16 deaths since late last month. Officials estimate crop and property damage at more than $1 billion in South Dakota, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Nebraska, Iowa, Illinois and Missouri.

The river had flooded 276,000 acres along a 200-mile stretch of Missouri from Hannibal south to Cape Girardeau, or 431 square miles, said Gary Dyhouse, a spokesman for the Army Corps of Engineers in St. Louis.

From Hannibal south to St. Louis, most of the levees along the Missouri side of the river had been breached or overtopped, he said Saturday.

"Everything north of us is pretty well gone," said Dyhouse.

Levees in other states also collapsed, including one Friday in Meyer, Ill., across the river from Canton, Mo. The break sent the Mississippi cascading over as much as 30,000 acres of prime west-central Illinois farmland.

Twenty miles from Meyer, in Quincy, Ill., much of the fertile, river-bottom farmland had also been inundated. From the air, farmers could be seen tearing up their corn crops to build dikes around their homes and farm buildings.

At hard-hit Davenport, Iowa, one of the few river cities with no levees or flood walls, the Mississippi was at 22.4 feet, Saturday, down 0.2 of a foot from its record crest Thursday and Friday but still 7.4 feet above flood stage.

The Mississippi and Missouri rivers created a double threat for St. Charles County, Mo., just north of St. Louis. Part of the county forms a peninsula separating the two rivers as they approach their confluence.

The Mississippi already was flooding lowlands at Portages Des Sioux, on the peninsula's northern side, and threatened to take a short cut to the Missouri and turn the peninsula into an island, said Missouri Water Patrol Capt. Charles Scrogin.

Missouri's state Emergency Management Agency said 10,000 to 12,000 people in 22 counties and St. Louis had been evacuated because of flooding on the Mississippi and Missouri.

At least 6,000 people have been forced from their homes along the Mississippi and other streams in Illinois, and 2,700 National Guardsmen have been mobilized, state officials said. Iowa had at least 4,000 families out of their homes.

Clinton's declaration for flooded counties of Iowa, Illinois and Missouri makes federal assistance available in the form of rent for temporary housing, grants for minimal repairs to primary residences, unemployment payments for workers who have temporarily lost their jobs because of the flooding, and low interest loans for business, farm and other property losses.

Meanwhile, the heavy rain overnight in the Kansas City area flooded streams and streets, stranded motorists and threatened businesses and homes. Most of the water, reported 7 feet deep on some downtown streets, began to recede by morning and no extensive property damage was reported. But more thunderstorms were forecast.

Lawyer: 'Home alone' couple gives up daughters

CHICAGO (AP) — The couple who left their young daughters at home unsupervised while they vacationed in Mexico have given the girls up for adoption, an attorney confirmed Saturday.

Carole J. Grahn-Hayes, the lawyer for Nicole, who was 9, and Diana, who was 4 when their parents, David and Sharon Schoo, left them alone for nine days last year, confirmed the adoption release.

"Yes, that did happen. It's out now," she said.

The Schoos, who moved from St. Charles to nearby Geneva this year, have an unlisted phone number and could not be reached for comment. Their attorney, Gerard Kepple, did not return a call to his answering service.

The Kane County Chronicle on Saturday quoted unidentified court sources as saying the children were voluntarily given up at a hearing Tuesday. The sources said Judge Richard D. Larson, who presided over the hearing in Kane County Circuit Court, had issued a gag order forbidding the involved parties to discuss what happened.

The newspaper also quoted Ed McManus, a spokesman for the state Department of Children and Family Services, as saying the newspaper would not be embarrassed if it reported that the children were given up for adoption.

McManus, reached at home Saturday, denied confirming details of the hearing, saying he was either misunderstood or misquoted.

Grahn-Hayes said she couldn't discuss the case in detail because of the gag order. But she said because McManus had indicated the the adoption report was correct, she would confirm it.

Abortion protest

DALLAS — The Texas portion of Operation Rescue's 10-day campaign to halt abortions in seven states was highlighted Saturday by marching, singing and sign waving, but no arrests. About 150 anti-abortion protesters demonstrated outside the Fairmount Center Clinic near downtown. The protesters moved to Southwestern Women's Clinic by mid-morning, then to another facility on Mockingbird Lane before scheduled afternoon protests. "We're not trying to force our religion on anyone," said Flip Benham, leader of Operation Rescue's local chapter. "We're here to say that you should make an informed choice. And we would simply say that choice is life, not death." Police set up barricades to keep the protesters from blocking the Fairmount clinic's entrance. A spokeswoman said abortions were scheduled for Saturday./2B

Martin County event elicits fond memories

STANTON — Martin County's 60th Annual Old Settlers' Reunion attracted folks of all ages who have lived, or still live, in the historic community that once housed a convent and Catholic boarding school.

The reunion, which started early Saturday morning with a parade, ended late that evening after a day filled with activities ranging from the cow chip throw to the reunion of the former students of the Our Lady of Mercy Academy and Convent.

Folks of all ages enjoyed participating in the egg toss and dancing to the tunes of the Old Sorehead Band. Vendors set up on the square selling wares varying from snow cones to discounted merchandise from the pharmacy.

Dorothy Davenport, a museum volunteer who led visitors on a tour of the county's old jail facility Saturday, said the reunion is designed to reunite folks who had lived here and then relocated.

"We have a lot of class reunions and that gives people a chance to come back to renew old acquaintances and see old friends," Ms. Davenport said.

While some folks may resent the reference to "old," most of them were indeed reuniting with former classmates and neighbors.

The men and women who were once students of the nuns in the convent reminiscensed during a luncheon in the courthouse then returned to their alma mater for a tour down memory lane.

The academy, which was a boarding school, opened in 1894 and operated continuously for 44 years until a tornado destroyed most of the Children live in fantasy world. . . then reality sets in

Ott

Somehow, when you are little everything seems so much bigger . . . and better.

Indeed, through the eyes of a child the world is a huge and wonderful place, full of glitzy magic and never-ending celebrations. Nothing is routine and boring. People and their actions take on a new and special meaning. There is great significance to even the most mundane of events.

It is as though reality doesn't exist for children. Fairy tales do.

Then something terrible happens.

The children grow up. Suddenly, all of those large and exciting places don't seem so monumental any longer. They diminish in importance. One day the world is exploding in wild colors, not unlike a giant Fourth of July fireworks extravaganza, and the next day it is a boring black-and-white documentary, fit to be shown on PBS.

And, no where is this inevitable scaling-down process more obvious than in our childhood memories. As we reflect on the past, we recall things being large and grand. But when we return to them years later, disappointment invariably settles in. Things aren't as we remembered them.

Somehow, they got smaller. Much smaller.

Here's an example.

Two weeks ago, while visiting family, I attended a Little League baseball game. Believe me when I say this was not by choice, but sometimes a man does what a man has to do. (NOTE: Notice the word "family" in the preceding sentence and I think you will get my drift).

Anyway, there I was, seated on a hard bench behind the third base foul line sipping a Coca-Cola, nibbling at some peanuts and shielding the glare of the sun from my eyes.

It was Small Town, U.S.A. at its best. Norman Rockwell would have been pleased. Mark Twain, too.

But as I glanced around the ballpark something seemed terribly different, almost unfulfilling. It's true that the key elements — the players, the parents, the noise, the sweltering heat — were all present, but somehow it wasn't quite as I remembered it from my youth.

What was missing? At first, I couldn't put my finger on it. The sound of the baseball pounding the mitt certainly rang a bell, and so did the crack of the bat. Small children wrestling with one another over foul balls brought back fond memories. And, I couldn't help but smile when I would hear a father shout words of encouragement to his not-so-coordinated son, who happened to be stuck in right field, which is where all not-so-coordinated sons seem to get stuck.

Still, something was amiss. I examined my surroundings again, soaking in the sights and sounds. It was all so familiar, yet so different.

Then it dawned on me.

Everything was a miniature version of what I remembered. No longer was this the big time. As a child, I was certain our quality of play was far superior to anything another team, or league, could produce. We threw the ball harder, hit it further and caught it easier than all those other pretenders put together.

We were the best.

Likewise, our atmosphere was more professional. Our lights were brighter, our field better conditioned, our crowds larger. In other words, we were among the "big boys" when it came to Little League baseball. Nobody had anything on us.

Now, as I looked about the playing field I could only shake my head in disappointment. The play was ragged, the field bumpy, the crowd small.

It was, well, for lack of a better phrase, rinky-dink.

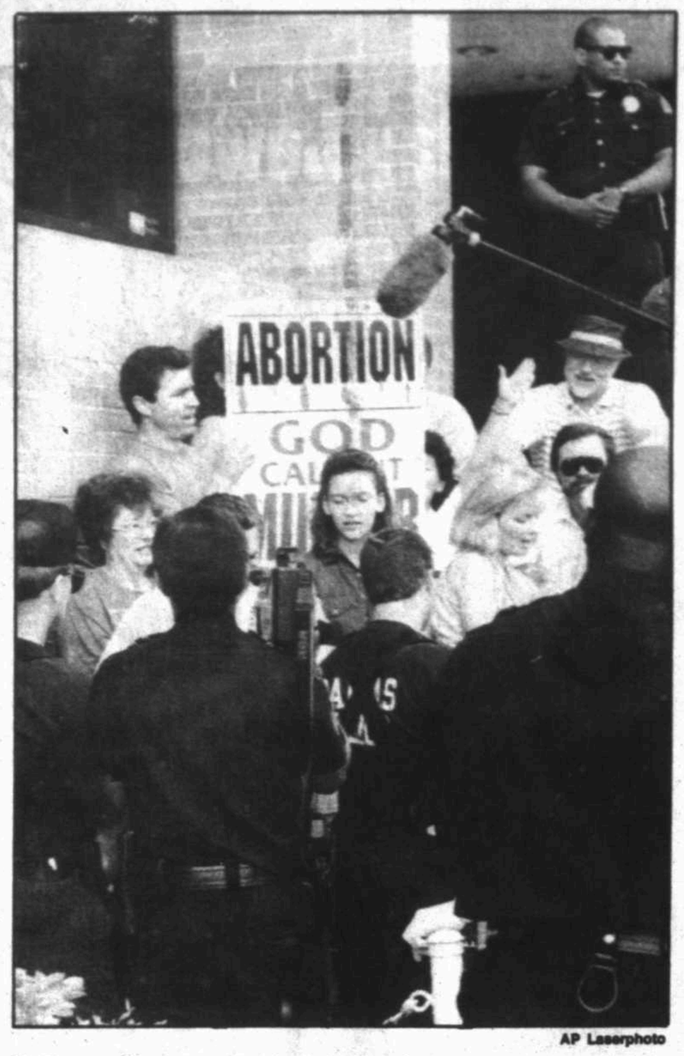

I nudged my dad, who was seated to my left, and said, "Gee, this has really gone downhill, hasn't it?"

He smiled and said, "No, Gary, it's just like when you played. Nothing's changed."

He was wrong. My world had changed. It had become much smaller.

Pro-life demonstrators stage peaceful protest

DALLAS (AP) — The Texas portion of Operation Rescue's 10-day campaign to halt abortions in seven states was highlighted Saturday by marching, singing and sign waving, but no arrests.

About 150 anti-abortion protesters demonstrated outside the Fairmount Center Clinic near downtown. The protesters moved to Southwestern Women's Clinic by mid-morning, then to another facility on Mockingbird Lane before scheduled afternoon protests.

Police set up barricades to keep the protesters from blocking the Fairmount clinic's entrance. A spokeswoman said abortions were scheduled for Saturday.

"There are some people here now, but more are expected later," a woman who would only identify herself as Beverly said by telephone from the clinic, which sits away from the street and looks much the stylish homes that typify the Oaklawn area.

About 15 police officers, including some on horseback, patrolled outside the clinic but made no arrests.

"There were no citations and no incidents," said police Sgt. M.E. Jassman as protests got under way at additional clinics Saturday afternoon. "The Dallas Police Department does not intend to let any of this get out of hand."

Deputies search for assault suspect

BIG SPRING — Sheriff's deputies here are searching for a suspect in the reported aggravated sexual assault of a Howard County woman, Deputy Tony Chavez said.

Chavez said the victim, described only as a middle-aged woman, told officers she was sexually assaulted between 9-10 a.m. Saturday morning at a residence about six to eight miles north of Big Spring on the Gail Highway.

The woman was treated and released at a local hospital.

She was able to give a description of the alleged assailant. He is described as a Hispanic male about 20-to-30-years-old with brown hair and wearing dark summer clothes. The woman did not know her attacker.

Officers did not know if the suspect fled on foot or if he was in a vehicle. However, an older model brown vehicle was seen in the area.

No details surrounding the incident were released. Although no arrests have been made, deputies do have some suspects in the case.

Howard County Sheriff's deputies are still seeking information about the incident.

REUNITE: Many share memories at reunion buildings on June 11, 1938.

(From 1B)

Recollections of school days, by the former students, were light-hearted during the luncheon, with only the fond memories called to mind.

The only remnants of the academy is a dormitory and ruins of the other buildings and the cemetery. A foreboding wrought-iron fence surrounds the entrance of the lone building.

The Martin County Historical Museum has a display dedicated to the history of the convent. A sign pays homage to the school stating:

"The closing of the school and the removal of the nuns to other schools was the end of an era of great service and love by the Angels of Mercy in Martin County. The property was sold and the old convent stands as a silent reminder overlooking Stanton."

Recollections of school days, by the former students, were light-hearted during the luncheon, with only the fond memories called to mind.

Many of the dates were jumbled and some names weren't recalled quickly, but the group of about 20 former students never forgot the nuns who kept them in line during their youth.

Bobbie Peters Simmons attended school with both her sister, Erline Peters McKinney, and a cousin, who was just a child at the time and didn't remember too much. Mrs. Simmons was not too sure of the exact dates she attended, but knew it was somewhere in the early 1930s.

Just as each child remembers different items, each of the former students had a variety of memories.

Mrs. Simmons recalled, with a chuckle, recess periods where the boys and girls were segregated, "so we didn't have much fun."

Sophie White, who attended her junior and senior years at the school in 1937 and 1938, remembered only nine "big" girls in the dormitory those years.

Ms. White said no one particular memory was called to mind, instead she remembers "all the meanness I got into those years."

She fondly recalled bringing a pot of chili back to school from home one night and "we were supposed to be in bed while the nuns ate dinner. One of my girlfriends sneaked into the kitchen and took some bread and we had a snack while we were supposed to be sleeping."

"We ate dinner at 5 p.m., so by late in the evening we were hungry again," she said, with a devilish grin, about her delinquent behavior.

She also made a confession, although no priest was present.

"Sister Allowicious always told me I was boy crazy. You know what? I was, too," she added.

Mrs. McKinney's biggest memory was of classes when the teacher would walk up and down the aisles and assist students with questions. Just like sisters, she and Mrs. Simmons both recalled the importance of penmanship in those days.

"We did exercises of loops and push-and-pull . . . penmanship was stressed," Mrs. Simmons said.

But two things all three of these women will never forget is the religious training they received and the strict way of life in the convent.

Mrs. Simmons said the students studied the catechism and received their "Catholic training" in the school. Mrs. McKinney added that we "prayed all the time. We prayed before and after recess."

Ms. White finished her sentence adding they "prayed when it rained. We prayed constantly."

While the reunion brought back fond memories of their school days, a tour of the deteriorating convent did just the oppositive for some.

"It is sad to see it in such disrepair," one former student said shaking her head.

Funds raised from the Old Sorehead Trade Days, set for July 17 and 18 in Stanton, will go to the the Martin Convent, Inc., an organization working toward renovating the remains. The estimated cost of the restoration is $500,000.

Engineer group to have meeting

This month's meeting of the Permian Basin Chapter of the American Society of Safety Engineers will feature John Haagensen, permit engineer with the Texas Air Control Board.

He will be speaking on the Clean Air Act of 1990 and permitting.

The meeting is set for 7 p.m. Thursday in the Community Room of the Student Union Building at Odessa College. An optional meal will be served at 6:30 p.m.

Plant Society to present talk

Staff report

The Midland Chapter of the Native Plant Society will present a talk on Wetland Plants and Wetland Ecology in West Texas. Guest speaker will be Burr Williams, education director of the Sibley Nature Center, 1307 E. Wadley.

The talk will be at the center at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Visitors also will be invited to participate in a field trip to a wetland in Midland County. The field trip will begin at 8 a.m. Saturday at the northeast corner of Interstate 20 and Midkiff Road.

Most wetlands in West Texas are found in playa depressions, only filling after heavy rains. Plants have to survive long droughts, then flooding, heavy organic soils and considerable wildlife use.

Playa ecosystems are often the most diverse of local habitats, because of the tremendous variance in conditions. Birds, insects and mammals vary their use and population density as the playas fill and dry, over and over.

Murder mystery museum intrigues amateur sleuths

By Mike Cochran
Associated Press Writer

FORT WORTH — Okay, for years you've matched wits with Columbo and Jessica Fletcher and even Sherlock Holmes. You've solved your share of TV and movie mysteries.

As a young reader, you probably helped the Hardy Boys and Nancy Drew and Perry Mason.

Now you can join thousands of amateur detectives using their own powers of observation and skills of deduction to solve a simulated robbery-murder at a phantom diner.

"Whodunit? The Science of Solving Crime," is a new exhibit developed by the Fort Worth Museum of Science and History that permits viewers a classic hands-on approach to crime detection.

It introduces participants to the scientific principles, methods and technologies used by criminal investigators, including a filmed autopsy.

To solve the mystery, sleuths must employ such sophisticated disciplines as DNA profiling, fingerprinting and firearm identification and cope with the vagaries of witness testimony.

There are three very real suspects, one very dead victim, one witness and a marvelous set of clues and evidence, some of it diabolically misleading.

"Whodunit" is educational and fun and may soon be headed your way.

It is the Fort Worth museum's contribution to a consortium of eight of the nation's leading science and technology institutions scattered from coast to coast.

After a four-month opening venue here, "Whodunit" will travel to seven major cities for viewing by an estimated 2.5 million museum visitors.

They are the Museum of Science, Boston; Science Museum of Charlotte, N.C.; Museum of Science and Industry, Chicago; Ohio's Center of Science and Industry, Columbus; California Museum of Science and Industry, Los Angeles; The Franklin Institute Science Museum, Philadelphia; and the Science Museum of Minnesota, Saint Paul.

"Most of us are intrigued by the thought of solving a mystery," says Donald Otto, executive director of the Fort Worth museum.

"With 'Whodunit,' we give visitors a behind-the-scenes look at the work of forensic science professionals. This exhibit will provide a better understanding of the specialized skills and technologies employed in solving crimes."

Horse thief rides away into wrong jail cell

GALVESTON (AP) — When a 36-year-old woman commandeered a police officer's horse, she thought the theft would land her next to a friend serving time in the Galveston City Jail.

She got more than she bargained for.

After Roslyn Jean Gillcrese was denied a visit to her incarcerated friend Wednesday she figured that getting arrested would be the best way to see the prisoner.

So she hopped on a police officer's horse outside the jail and rode off.

A few minutes later, mounted patrol officer Carmen Parker walked out from the jail and realized her horse was missing. At first, she thought other officers were kidding around.

But Ms. Parker heard a passerby yell that a woman had trotted off.

Moments later, just a few blocks from the City Jail, police rounded up the rustler and Ms. Parker ran to the scene to help rescue her steed.

"She wanted to get arrested," acting patrol commander Kim Onove told the Galveston Daily News.

Ms. Gillcrese told police she stole the horse so she would be sent to the City Jail. She said she wanted to be with her friend, who was being held on a misdemeanor charge.

But that's where the alleged horse thief's plan went astray.

So the alleged horse thief was sent to the Galveston County Jail.

"Maybe she has some friends at the County Jail," Ms. Onove said.

LEVELLAND — New student orientation sessions, which include pre-registration for the fall semester, begin July 27 at South Plains College.

Orientation sessions are scheduled by major from 8:15 a.m.-4 p.m. ending Aug. 19 in the Student Assistance Center on the third floor of the Library Building. A total of 1,549 students have been scheduled for the orientation process thus far.

Prospective students who have not received a date for their orientation session should contact the SPC guidance and counseling office as soon as possible, said Claudine Oliver, director of guidance and counseling.

"Orientation is required of all entering full-time students, transfer students who have fewer than 30 semester hours or who have been admitted on a probationary basis," she explained.

The orientation sessions will include an introduction of SPC student support staff and a description of functions and services provided, an interest assessment which will help to determine career choices, a discussion of the general catalog, how to schedule classes, general information on how to be successful in college and specific strategies for becoming a successful student.

Prospective students will also meet with individual advisors who will provide them with personal assistance in developing a schedule of classes for the fall. Students may then pre-register and pay their tuition and fees at that time. Pre-registration pay day, for those students who do not pay on the day they pre-register is set 8:30 a.m.-6:30 p.m. Aug. 18 in the Student Center.

Students who have taken the TASP (Texas Academic Skills Program) exam should bring their test scores with them to orientation, said Oliver. If they have not yet taken TASP, they need to contact SPC guidance and counseling personnel about taking SPC's PTT (pre-TASP test), an in-house test with a format similar to TASP.

TASP is an assessment of college-level skills in reading, writing and math. Test results are used in advisement and placement of students in appropriate course work and are not used for admission purposes. Students entering college for the first time are required to take the TASP test before they can accumulate nine semester hours of college-level credit. Students who have not taken the TASP test before registration should plan to take the PTT before completing registration, said Oliver. The PTT is given prior to each week of orientation.

The schedule for orientation by majors is as follows: July 27, agriculture, agribusiness, architecture, pre-veterinary, drafting and petroleum technology; July 28, undecided majors, automotive/diesel service technology, auto collision repair, refrigeration air conditioning, electronics service technology and welding; July 29, math, engineering, computer science, pre-physical therapy, occupational therapy and medical technician; July 30, nursing, chemistry, pre-medical, pre-dental and optometry; Aug. 3, undecided, art, mass communications, telecommunications, journalism, religion, economics, hotel and restaurant management, child development; Aug. 4, radiology, respiratory therapy, human services, sociology, psychology, speech/drama, foreign language: Aug. 5, pre-law, history, government, English, education and physical education; Aug. 6, biology, geology, physics, forestry and nursing; Aug. 10, undecided majors; Aug. 11, pharmacy, secretarial, business, computer information systems, accounting, microcomputing, fashion merchandising, marketing, and real estate.

August 19 is scheduled for students who live more than 200 miles from the campus and students majoring in SPC's music programs, performing arts production technology, sound technology, physical education and music education.

For more information, phone SPC's guidance and counseling office at 806-894-9611, ext. 366.

Horrifying future awaits in Bosnia

Solving the internal conflict in Bosnia is, as the leaders of the Group of Seven world economic powers wisely decided last week, a problem. So is the matter of deciding to whom the former Yugoslavian state belongs. The only "easy solution" appears to be the one the Group of Seven was able to settle on — agreeing to not accept any territorial solution unless it has the agreement of the three parties, the Serbs, the Croats and the Bosnian Muslims.

In the end, the Group of Seven warned against "dismembering" Bosnia but stopped short of the threat of force to protect the besieged Muslims. That was an even-handed, if difficult, choice. It will permit the three groups to resolve their own problem.

Of course, the Group of Seven's decision promises more of what the West has provided plenty of in the past year and a half: nothing.

Sadly, that may be all any outside nation can give in hopes of a Balkan solution. The history of the peninsula is one of conflict and long-simmering ethnic tensions that cannot be resolved with the wave of a diplomatic wand.

The Group of Seven could have embraced the "unholy alliance" of the Serbs and Croats against the Bosnian Muslims, but to do so would have meant bowing to the basest of instincts — the desire to find any solution regardless how inhumane.

In the end, the solution chosen was the correct one — agreeing that a solution dictated by the Serbs and Croats was unacceptable and that any territorial solution must have agreement of the three parties.

What that decision likely will ensure is more of the horrifying television images of the war, and of news accounts of the struggle involving the Serbs, Croats and Bosnian Muslims.

In 1992, CNN's Pulitzer Prize-winning reporter Peter Arnett observed, "What we see happening in Yugoslavia is going to be the war of the future."

It is a sad, horrifying future.

Court's Carolina ruling promotes equality for all

If an imperial wizard of the Ku Klux Klan argued that all blacks think alike, he would be rightly criticized for engaging in racial stereotyping. Yet the civil rights establishment in this country insists on defending an electoral system that treats minorities as though they think alike.

The U.S. Supreme Court has struck a blow against such destructive racial stereotyping, ruling last week that a North Carolina congressional district designed to virtually guarantee the election of a black is not constitutionally protected . . .

The kind of gerrymandering seen in North Carolina reinforces the stereotype that all black voters think alike. It implies that they are properly represented in Congress only so long as the person representing them is also black. This ignores the reality that diverse political and cultural views exist among blacks, just it does among whites and any other racial or ethnic group. . . .

By rolling back a form of political apartheid, the Supreme Court has moved us closer to a society where a person's skin color matters less and less.

Prosecution will help deter future 'tampering' hoaxes

The great Pepsi scare has fizzled about as quickly as an open can of soda left sitting in the refrigerator.

In the process, it has provided a valuable case study in the growing annals of product tampering.

For consumers, the main lesson to be learned is not to panic at the first news reports of alleged sabotage involving a household product.

No one can say with absolute certainty that every one of the 20 million cans of Pepsi Cola produced daily is free of contamination. But the widespread reports of syringes found in Pepsi cans have all the characteristics of a nationwide hoax, not nationwide tampering.

By tracking down and aggressively prosecuting every individual who participated in the great Pepsi hoax, the Justice Department can help deter future outbreaks of this bizarre copycat syndrome.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Sunday, July 11, the 192nd day of 1993. There are 173 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On July 11, 1804, Vice President Aaron Burr mortally wounded former Treasury Secretary Alexander Hamilton in a pistol duel near Weehawken, N.J.

On this date:

In 1767, John Quincy Adams, the sixth president of the United States, was born in Braintree, Mass.

GEORGE WILL

House gives your money to rich firms

WASHINGTON — These are salad days for those conservatives whose philosophy is confirmed by, and whose agenda is advanced by, bad behavior of government.

Will

Recently, for example, the House of Representatives, home of the most entrenched portion of the political class, voted to continue spending taxpayers' dollars to subsidize, for large corporations and wealthy trade associations, the overseas marketing of fruit juice and candy bars, whisky and prunes, and many other profitable commodities. And the House did this after voting to terminate a less expensive program that helps export democracy.

But the political class is currently insisting that the budget "crisis" requires the taxpayers to turn over more money to the political class. So that class is grudgingly making cosmetic cuts in some particularly egregious programs.

So the House did trim the MPP from $147 million to $127 million. That is government "austerity": a 13.6 percent cut in a program that is 100 percent indefensible.

The MPP funds both generic and brand name advertising abroad for American agricultural products. This is yet another example of the government's solicitiousness on behalf of the strong. Of the 200 U.S. corporations with the largest advertising budgets, 13 last year got a total of $9 million from the MPP, an average of $700,000 each. But the advertising budgets of those corporations range from $45 million to $538 million, so the taxpayers' contributions can hardly be said to represent the difference between competitive success and failure.

Defenders of these welfare payments to corporations say: Other nations do it for their companies. That is, defenders argue — actually, they just assert that any increase in the exports of any commodity that is the subject of subsidized advertising must be caused by that advertising. Never mind the effects of many other variables, such as the export-assisting fall in the value of the dollar since 1985.

Defenders of the MPP also declare that it "creates" 38,000 American jobs.

But let us assume that the $450,000 given to the Campbell Soup Co. to entice Japanese, Koreans, Argentineans and Taiwanese to drink V-8 juice "worked." And that the $6.2 million given to the Blue Diamond company stimulated foreign desires for American almonds. When making such assumptions, defenders argue that the subsidy dollars are profitably invested, they must also argue that for some reason private investors would not make these remunerative investments. So, government is wiser than the private market? Please.

On June 29 the House voted to pour this $127 million into the private coffers of people who, thus subsidized, will have more resources freed up to use as campaign contributions. But seven days earlier, the House had a moment of parsimony. It did not just make a 13.6 percent nick in the National Endowment for Democracy, it voted to kill it. If the NED helped the export of prunes instead of democracy, it, too, could be immortal.

The NED helps democracy by means of small but life-giving grants for trade unions, student groups, publications, legal assistance for the persecuted, and other measures. It has a record of success in helping democracy put down roots in stony social soil. By voting to stop this cost-effective work, the House voted to save $50 million, less than half what it is eager to spend on handouts to corporations through the MPP.

JACK ANDERSON

Hutchison win creates panic in Dem camp

WASHINGTON — The official postscript for the Democrats' lopsided loss in the Texas special election took place at a June 15 "training session," where Senate Democrats gathered to lick their wounds and focus on the future.

Anderson

If this meeting is a primer for next year's midterm elections, 1994 will be a long year for the Democratic Party.

"There is a sort of spreading panic among the folks up for '94, and even '96," said one Democratic strategist familiar with the meeting. The final product, a memo drafted by the Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee summarizing the "lessons learned," constitutes one of the most bizarre takes on the Texas rout, or any other recent election.

Senators gearing up for re-election are warned in the memo about the public's growing intolerance to "contextual bastardization" (fudging); they are warned that they are "being watched" by Republicans; and they are warned that "reporters would love to get your phone records."

Sen. Bob Krueger, who lost the seat, and Bill Clinton hardly figured in the Democrat's latest Texas review — almost as if they played cameo roles in the June 5 runoff campaign in which Republican Kay Bailey Hutchison trounced Krueger by a 2-1 margin. Taxes, spending cuts and Krueger's loss of dignity — he donned a "Terminator" costume for TV ads — are absent from the critique.

While the Democrats microanalyze their defeat, Republicans view the race in simpler terms. "Kay Bailey Hutchison won because she was a vastly superior candidate to Bob Krueger," a Hutchison campaign official told us. Hutchison's win, this official said, merely reflected the "total disenchantment of Texans with the Clinton economic plan," as well Clinton's loss of personal credibility with voters.

Democrats don't see it that way. Gail Stoltz, author of the memo, talks about the "technical lessons" of Texas, not the "grand strategy." Some Senate Democrats wonder about that line in an age when technique triumphs over theme, and mechanics over message.

The Democrats were responding to the whipping dealt to Krueger by the Texas media after Krueger aired misleading ads about what various newspapers had written about Hutchison. The DSCC drew two lessons from the episode: "Control your consultants" and "deviation from the trust carries a price."

The "siege" mentality of Democratic strategists preparing for 1994 reveals itself several times in the DSCC memo. Here is a list of some of the other "lessons" Democrats have taken from Krueger's landslide defeat:

— "You are being watched." The National Republican Senatorial Committee is targeting the 1994 races and Democratic senators. "Assume that your activities are monitored. They are. Your floor remarks. Your travel. Your votes or lack of votes."

— Federal Election Commission reports. The DSCC recalls that both Krueger and Hutchison failed to identify large numbers of their campaign contributors. It argues that there's "no good way to explain why you don't know your donors," and that it "sounds anti-populist" to note that "we take so many $1,000 checks from so many people that we can't possibly know them all. The average guy can't buy this."

— "It's tough for pro-choice male candidates to out-choice women candidates. . . . If you are a male candidate running against a moderate woman in 1994, you will have a very difficult time convincing women voters that you are better on choice." The DSCC believes Krueger lost this issue.

— Presidential travel. "This is something new for us," the memo reads. It urges candidates to weigh the pros and cons of inviting President Clinton to fund-raising events. "Think about it. Do cost-analysis. Expect it to be expensive. . . . If your plan is to dominate the media for 2-3 days from such a visit, plan something other than a fund raiser."

"The Democrats have everything now," one Senate Democratic strategist told us. "They have the presidency and the Congress. The question is, what are we going to lose in 1994? If this is the caliber of thinking and strategy, a lot of Republicans are going to be packing their bags and moving to Washington in 1994.

How many of us have roads to remember?

They opened a new stretch of Georgia 316, a four-lane highway that runs between Lawrenceville and Athens this week.

What that means is, you can drive on a four-lane highway all the way between Athens and Atlanta now. From Atlanta take I-85 to the Lawrenceville exit and then 316 the rest of the way.

Grizzard

"Athens-Atlanta motorists can make the commute in under an hour," a report said.

Twenty-seven blankety-blank years too late, I said.

I was 19 and a sophomore at the University of Georgia in Athens in 1966. I was also in love. but she lived in Atlanta. We were apart for the first time since the 6th grade.

I had a job in Athens. I worked for The Daily News, a fledgling newspaper we struggled to deliver six mornings a week in competition with the afternoon paper that had been in town since movable type was invented.

I worked full time. I went to class and then I actually worked more than full time. That's because they couldn't run me out of The Daily News newsroom, a converted automobile dealership. It remains the best part of my journalism career.

On Saturdays I would go to the newspaper at 2 p.m., and I would still be there at 1 the next morning when the Sunday edition was finished.

Then, I would get into my blue VW bug and head for Atlanta and my girl. Each week we had from about 4 a.m. Sunday until 10 Sunday night together. I hated that drive. It was all two-lane from Athens until outside Lawrenceville, where I could pick up I-85.

It was 45 miles of small towns and bends and curves.

Out Highway 29 through Bogart and Statham. And then into Auburn, Winder and the infamous speed trap, Dacula.

They never got me in Dacula, but about 2 one Sunday morning the night cop got me in little Auburn, he was wearing his pajama top.

But he didn't give me a speeding ticket. The reason he didn't was I gave him the two Georgia-Auburn football tickets in my glove box.

I would fight sleep all the way. A week of classes, studying and work can even exhaust a 19-year-old.

Every Saturday night for months I made that drive. The TLC at the end was worth it, but I still wonder why I didn't doze off one night and run into a tree and kill myself.

We decided to get married the summer of '66. It made a lot of sense. We knew we would marry one day anyway, and I didn't know how many more times I could survive that drive.

So we up and did it. Mama said, "Just make sure you finish school, young man."

My pretty blonde bride got a job at the paper too, and they gave me a raise after we married — from the minimum $1.25 cents an hour to $1.30. I would have paid them.

When I read about the four-lane being open all the way between Athens and Atlanta, I wondered what if it had been that way back in '66? The drive would have been a lot easier and quicker. Maybe we would have waited to get married. And if we had waited, maybe it would have lasted.

Nineteen is to young to get married. Especially if you're a blindly ambitious, selfish fool. My wife wasn't the one who was the blindly ambitious, selfish fool.

There is a move afoot to give the new highway 316 connection a name. "University Parkway" has been suggested.

Somebody else will offer "Bulldog Boulevard," of course, and "Dawg Alley" must be considered, too.

Whatever they name it when I drive it — and I will drive it often — I will think of her and how I blew it, and how perhaps a little extra concrete 27 years ago might have kept something that was very good intact. You tend to think that way as you get older.

All that's left to say, I suppose, is drive carefully on Nancy's and Lewis's Road.

35 mph speed limits should be observed

Attention all Midlanders who drive on Bluebird Lane, the speed limit is NOT 60, NOT 50, not even 40! The speed limit is 35 mph. Even when you're in a hurry. Even when no one else is on the road. Even at 7 a.m. Even you, young driver. Even me.

I know that Bluebird Lane has nice, wide lanes, and is great for zipping along without thinking. It seems easy to cruise at 45 to 50 mph. But this is a subdivision street, and the kids play, the joggers jog, the bikers ride, and those on horseback trot. Please, please, PLEASE observe the speed limit and watch out for children.

Mature women have better qualifications

I cannot understand why it is so hard for a woman who is in her early 40s or 50s to get a job in this town.

Why would an employer rather hire a young woman with small children who has to take off of work when the children are sick rather than hire a mature woman whose children are all grown up?

I was a young woman once with small children and I worked so don't think I don't feel for a young mother who has to work, it's just that we mature women have financial needs also.

We all get old, that's just something we cannot help. So all of these young beautiful girls who get jobs on their looks will have this same problem someday.

Another question I have is why do these employment agencies have ads in the newspapers and when you call them they say the reason ads are there is because they have to have a way of getting people in their employment agencies.

Maybe some of the employers will read this letter and realize how we mature, qualified people feel.

I'm sure it will not change these peoples' minds, but at least they know how we feel.

Franklin's 'secrets' make life meaningful

In this day of violence, crime, discrimination, jealousy, hate and what have you, I thought the readers of our local newspaper would like to read some meaningful information for a change.

The enclosed "Ben Franklin's Secrets of Success," was included in the July 1993, issue of "Metes & Bounds," a publication of the Texas Society of Professional Surveyors. It follows:

"1) Temperance - Eat not to dullness; drink not to elevation.

2) Silence - Speak not but what may benefit others or yourself; avoid trifling conversation.

3) Order - Let all your things have their places; let each part of your business have its time.

4) Resolution - Resolve to perform what you ought; perform without fail what you resolve.

5) Frugality - Make no expense but to do good to others or yourself, i.e., waste nothing.

6) Industry - Lose no time; be always employ'd in something useful; cut off all unnecessary actions.

7) Sincerity - Use no hurtful deceit; think innocently and justly, and, if you speak, speak accordingly.

8) Justice - Wrong none by doing injuries or omitting the benefits that are your duty.

9) Moderation - Avoid extremes; forbear resenting injuries so much as you think they deserve.

10) Cleanliness - Tolerate no uncleanliness in body, cloaths or habitation.

11) Tranquility - Be not disturbed at trifles, or at accidents common or unavoidable.

12) Chasity - Rarely use venery but for health or offspring, never to dullness, weakness, or the injury of your own or another's peace or reputation.

13) Humility - Imitate Jesus and Socrates."

Schools should not tolerate any offense

One of the most distressing problems that parents, school administrators, and school children are facing today in our school systems across the U.S. is that posed by the alcohol, drugs and guns. It is a problem that continues to grow and unless strict measures are taken, the problem will not abate.

The problem exists not only in the upper grade levels in Midland, but the lower grades as well. USA Today stated that in 1990, over 4,800 kids between the ages 5-19 were shot on school campuses. This past year not a week went by without a loaded gun being found on some campuses. The Midland school system needs to adopt a strict policy and make it clear to all students what the consequences will be for bringing alcohol, drugs or guns onto a campus. It should be posted in all the schools so that no one can say that they did not know. Parents should also be made aware of the policy so they can encourage their children not to expose themselves to the consequences. Not only should there be strict rules against these offenses, but the severity of the offenses demand a "zero" tolerance for implementation.

I would recommend the following: (1) any student on campus that is high or intoxicated should have their parents or guardians pick them up and be suspended for the next school day; (2) any student on campus in possession of drugs or alcohol should be suspended for one full semester or the balance of the existing semester with no credits being earned for that semester; (3) any student selling drugs or alcohol or who is in possession of any weapon on campus should be suspended for the equivalent of one school year, including the forfeiture of credits for the present semester.

I encourage the Midland school district to act boldly and make our schools a safe haven for learning and put a stop to the ever increasing problems that are so prevalent on our school campuses today.

Cowboy poet official thanks rodeo group

This is to publicly thank the Midland Ranch Rodeo Association and the citizens of Midland for the reminder that before oil, West Texas was known for ranch life, for cattle, for agriculture, and the fine folk that live the life.

Wholesome entertainment and participation such as exhibited in Midland June 19-20 confirms that even in these tough times, we'll continue to hold it together.

Midland and all who worked to make it work are to be commended for constantly improving the program, and for the addition of the Poetry and Entertainment segment. With good, solid citizens such as Wayne Cornett and Billy Roush who gave of their time and talents to put that together we — America — will rise above all adversity.

As the newly elected vice president of the Texas Cowboy Poets Association (TCPA) I would like to pass along our stated purpose: "...to preserve, rekindle, and promote the 'spirit of the American Cowboy' in all walks of life through presentation of poetry, story, and song."

Thanks, Midland, for a job well done!

Readers' views on: City development

Director opposes city's development

Why are we having such a "tug-of-war" in the city? On the one side the mayor and some members of the city council, the chamber of commerce and others trying to improve the local economy, and other legitimate business interests. Opposing their efforts is City of Midland Planning and Development Director, Richard A. Hennessey. Agreeably, we do not want to "allow" adult book stores, gaudy girlie joints, wrecking yards and such on Loop 250. But to deny an organization such as Wolfe Nurseries that wanted to build an aesthetically beautiful and costly building and outdoor sales area in a location that is overrun with weeds and trash is ridiculous. We preach and advertise "Buy the Basin" and hired a high paid economic development officer, then reject a business that would enhance the city and benefit us all.

Some competitors said it would hurt their business. This spring I have shopped at the four or five major nurseries and two or three discount stores in Midland and all of them were crowded and cash registers buzzing.

In another case R.A.H. speaks against allowing an electronics store development on the south side of Loop 250. What does he want to save the land for? Would another cozy little arts and crafts store or another restaurant be more to his liking? What would he allow on that property? Now, it is full of weeds and trash, and goodness knows what else.

Then he forecasts a "fourfold" increase in traffic if Best Buys puts a store in. Take a look at Sam's Club for a moment. The huge volume of traffic attracted by this store, adds only a trickle when spread over the 10-hour period the business is open. Come on R.A.H., get serious. A "fourfold" increase would back up to Lamesa and Stanton.

First we turned a banking venture away and now continuous controversies and rejections around the loop. Soon Midland will develop a reputation as being against everything developmental. Then what? Maybe it is time R.A.H. departed for Marathon or Van Horn so he could keep things nice and quiet and staid.

Basin includes local service companies

I just want to compliment the Midland Chamber of Commerce and several local businesses for the hard work and dedication they have shown towards "Buy the Basin." It seems to have opened many people's eyes on how important it is to shop locally and continue to circulate local money which is vital for the area economy.

Now that we have steered our community to Permian Basin retailers, we should inform them about local service companies who buy supplies locally, who are insured locally and whose transportation is provided locally. I think the consumer would find pricing very competitive with larger national companies who sift monies from our community.

Tax should be used to promote tourism

Due to the surplus amount of money that the City of Midland hotel/motel tax has generated, the mayor and city council are faced with the problem of how to distribute this surplus money with the restrictions that are in place for its distribution. I think it is time the city reduce the 13 percent tax that is placed upon the users of the hotels and motels. This 13 percent levy is one of the highest, not only within the area but also in cities of comparable size to Midland.

When convention and tournament personnel are looking for a place to meet, the hotel/motel tax, even though it may appear to be insignificant, is taken into consideration for site selection. Experience has shown that, with continued increases in the hotel/motel tax, cities suffer a marked drop in attracting tourism and conventions to that city. The tax money generated should only be used to promote tourism and conventions to the City of Midland.

Incoming dollars from these sources would benefit businesses such as hotels, motels, restaurants and service companies within our city. The restrictive use of the hotel/motel money generated should be funneled through the Midland Chamber of Commerce to properly use this money to promote tourism and conventions. This would allow the Midland Chamber of Commerce to make recommendations to the city council regarding the use of the hotel/motel tax revenue in the manner for which the tax was originally levied. This procedure, as suggested, should result in a reduction in the total amount of tax dollars that the city must contribute to the Midland Chamber of Commerce. In turn, this should benefit all taxpayers of Midland.

Baker

People who believe in UFOs demonstrated at the White House the other day demanding that the government come clean. Their placards said the government knew UFOs "are real," and they want it to quit pretending they're not and tell what it knows about these visitors from out yonder.

I tend to believe almost anybody who says the government is suppressing the facts. That's what comes of living through the Vietnam War, Watergate and the CIA's reporting on the robust health of the Soviet Union.

Well do I recall stories of Ernest Hemingway telling friends the FBI was watching him. Everybody said it was sad evidence that Papa had gone round the bend into raving paranoia. Later Herbert Mitgang of The New York Times won access to the files and — how about this, paranoia fans! — the FBI had been watching Hemingway all along.

So I am in no hurry to ridicule people who say the government is engaged in a UFO cover-up. Truth to tell, being a romantic as well as a skeptic, I'd like there to be extraterrestrial things fooling around with Earth.

The same romantic streak makes me want Elvis to be still alive somewhere making music privately, or maybe with Nat "King" Cole.

Still, the skeptical part of me resists the UFO people. The question I have never been able to answer satisfactorily is, Why Earth? Let's try a little role reversal and imagine that we, you and I, live somewhere far out in the cosmos where the intellectual brilliance is so dazzling that traveling faster than light is no problem.

Having cracked the light barrier, we have the whole gigantic universe at our disposal, so I can imagine us one night tooling around faster than light, maybe just taking the old FO out for a spin.

We might do the same thing if we had a machine that could leave light in the dust: just pile in, going for a drive as it were, and nipping off to some lively corner of the universe. Off the beaten track maybe we spot this funny little place full of funny little things called people.

Davidian attorneys cheer acquittal of 2 in similar cult case

FORT WORTH (AP) — Attorneys representing jailed followers of cult leader David Koresh are celebrating the acquittals of two Idaho White separatists in a case that bears parallels to the Branch Davidian siege.

"They were not guilty, simple as that, and I think it has a lot to say about what might happen here," Waco defense attorney Gary Coker told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

Randy Weaver and Kevin Harris were cleared of charges that they killed a federal marshal at the beginning of an 11-day siege in a remote mountaintop cabin.

Nine of Koresh's followers are jailed in Waco, awaiting trial on federal charges that grew out of the 51-day standoff outside the Branch Davidian compound about 10 miles east of Waco.

Four ATF agents and an unknown number of cult members were killed in the Feb. 28 raid that started the Texas siege. The standoff ended April 19 when fire engulfed the compound, killing Koresh and most of his followers inside.

Lawyers for the jailed cultists say Thursday's verdict by the jury in Boise, Idaho, constitutes a rebuff of excessive federal force. They said it strengthens their efforts to prove that the cultists acted in self-defense when federal agents raided the Branch Davidian compound.

"They were justified in killing those agents," Koresh attorney Dick DeGuerin asserted, "because the agents were trying to kill them."

Jack Killorin, spokesman for the federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, reaffirmed the agency's stance that ATF agents acted properly. The purpose of the raid was to seize what was believed to be a cache of weapons inside the compound.

But Killorin acknowledged that the Idaho verdicts could give agency critics a powerful public relations weapon.

"I think in terms of making press conferences, it's likely to be seized upon," Killorin said of the Idaho case. "It's fair to say we have a vocal and active population that is clearly anti-government."

The Justice and Treasury departments are in the midst of a joint investigation to review the agents' handling of the case.

Among other things coming under scrutiny was authorities' pumping of tear gas inside the compound in an attempt to break the deadlock. The fire broke out during that attempt.

DeGuerin said the cult leader and his followers had closely watched the government's case in Idaho as the standoff developed.

Agency: Rangers didn't do checks on backgrounds

DALLAS (AP) — The Texas Rangers failed to conduct background checks on 15 companies that the club categorized as disadvantaged minority- and women-owned businesses, a newspaper reported Saturday.

At least three companies that have been awarded contracts to work on the team's new $175 million stadium were not considered minority- or women-owned by an area agency that certifies such claims, according to The Dallas Morning News' Saturday editions.

The North Central Texas Regional Certification Agency also said in a report given to Dallas city officials that the three companies' contracts are worth a combined $1.8 million.

Rangers executives confirmed that they did not make the background checks, but said they are not required to.

Rangers president Tom Schieffer said the ballpark, scheduled to be completed by the spring, is not part of any federal, state or local programs that require minority contracts.

The stadium is partially financed by a half-cent sales-tax increase in Arlington, but neither the Rangers nor Arlington officials established minority-contract goals, Schieffer said.

Despite those conditions, some minority and women's groups called the Rangers' failure to do the checks unethical.

The Rangers said in a report to the city that minority- and women-owned businesses have bid on $16.5 million of the $92 million of available contracts. Of that, $4.8 million worth has been awarded to them, the team said.

Group gets rare chance to study birds along Laguna Madre

By Dave Harmon
Associated Press writer

MEZQUITAL, Mexico (AP) — As the fiberglass boat skims through Mexico's Laguna Madre, Mike Farmer scans an island with his binoculars, stopping at a cluster of white forms at the edge of the water.

"White pelicans," he said. "It's real strange. Almost all of them nest in Nevada and out west."

If a nest is found, it would be only the second colony of the species documented on the Gulf Coast.

For Farmer, an Audubon Society warden who usually monitors the islands along Texas' stretch of the Laguna Madre, this is a chance to be the first to document white pelican nests on the Mexican side.

With two other Audubon workers — including his wife, Rose, director of Sabal Palm Grove Sanctuary near Brownsville — and two researchers from the University of Tamaulipas, Farmer has been counting shore birds for a report to the U.S.-Mexico Joint Committee on Conservation of Wildlife.

The study of bird colonies also represents a study of cooperation across the border. It is funded by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and the Audubon Society, with help from the University of Tamaulipas and the blessing of SEDESOL, the Mexican environmental agency.

From Mezquital, a small fishing village about 50 miles south of Matamoros, the team hired two boats in a nearby fishing camp and set out to write the first ecological history of one of Northern Mexico's natural treasures.

Julian Trevino, one of the Mexican researchers, said the research will be particularly important as Mexican officials consider digging an intercoastal waterway through the Laguna.

The waterway would stretch from Tampico to Matamoros, linking Mexican ports to the U.S. intercoastal waterway — and to a vast water-borne network of American markets.

Mexico wants to dredge the Laguna without an ecological assessment, Trevino said, so the study may be the only opportunity to make a case for the unique ecosystem along the vast, shallow lagoon.

"I'm not against the intercoastal channel," he said. "I'm against the way they want to do it."

Trevino was hopeful that the powers pushing for the waterway would take note when the team completes its report.

The report "should be used as a tool," he said, "but I don't know if they are going to use it."

Already, the group has found large colonies of waterbirds, including the reddish egret, which the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service is considering for the endangered species list.

More than 100 pelican nestlings, not yet big enough to fend for themselves, snapped defensively at him.

As the boats skimmed over the choppy waters, Farmer pointed to his first destination — an island he had scouted from the road.

Covered with yucca and prickly pear, the island — called "Los Nopales" by the local fishermen — teemed with squawking birds. Farmer quickly counted 38 fledgling reddish egrets.

"That's the most we've had," he said, scribbling the figure in a notepad.

Farmer said most of the 96 islands in the Mexican Laguna have cabins or livestock, and many have been cleared for grazing, pushing the birds away.

Of the 10 untouched islands, six have become sanctuaries for the shore birds, which feed off small fish in the hypersaline water.

Within minutes, they counted eight species of shorebirds, including snowy egrets, bright pink roseate spoonbills, great blue herons, and endangered brown pelicans.

"We hit the jackpot," Farmer said. "It's a big island, and it's covered with birds."

With the 600 to 700 pairs they found on this island, Farmer estimated they had counted about 7,500 nesting pairs throughout the Laguna — with a couple of islands left to visit.

As he traced the shoreline, two dozen white pelicans hovered above a bluff. The birds were probably watching over their nests, Farmer said.

From the top of the bluff, Trevino peered into the brush and motioned to the others.

"They're here — small ones," he called.

Farmer scrambled after him, threading his way through cactus. More than 100 pelican nestlings, not yet big enough to fend for themselves, snapped defensively at him.

"Fantastic," Farmer said as he snapped photos of the pelicans.

"We were right," Trevino said. "They are nesting here."

Farmer took little comfort in the discovery. As a sudden rain spattered the group, he looked around, noting the island's position in the middle of the Laguna.

"This one," he said, "is smack dab in the middle of where the intercoastal might go."

Hutchison sticks to campaign message

She (Hutchison) has cast herself as the defender of the taxpayer's money in her first floor speech, amendment, bill co-sponsorship and votes.

WASHINGTON (AP) — In her first month as the nation's newest senator, Republican Kay Bailey Hutchison hasn't strayed far from her campaign message: "It's the spending, stupid!"

She has cast herself as the defender of the taxpayer's money in her first floor speech, amendment, bill co-sponsorship and votes. Even a swap of furniture with a senator in a neighboring office is billed as a sign of her fiscal responsibility.

Matters of urgent concern to Texas also consumed much of the new senator's time. Within days of being elected, Mrs. Hutchison was pressed into service to defend Texas military bases, the super collider and Space Station Freedom.

"That didn't leave a lot of room for eating bonbons," she said in a recent sit-down session with Texas reporters.

Mrs. Hutchison's status as a star of the Republican Party — engendered by her drubbing of Democrat Bob Krueger — shows little sign of waning.

Of the Senate's six GOP freshmen, she is the only one addressing Friday's Republican National Committee meeting in Chicago. Party leaders, who suggest her victory is a bellwether the GOP will recapture the Senate next year, also are asking her to help recruit female candidates.

"We're very proud of the fact she won that seat and has been very vocal about her message, which is 'Cut spending first,'" said RNC spokeswoman Anne Gavin.

Others are less enthused.

President Clinton took a jab at Mrs. Hutchison last month, telling a Dallas radio station that her campaign rhetoric could jeopardize the future of the super collider and space station. Those comments didn't deter Mrs. Hutchison from appearing with Ross Perot at the foot of the Capitol when he urged Congress to adopt spending cuts before tax hikes. The Perot news conference came just hours before the House debated the future of the super collider — and voted to kill the $10 billion project.

Mrs. Hutchison stresses that her emphasis on spending cuts should not endanger the super collider and space station, which she says should prevail "on the merits."

A legislative snapshot of the new senator's first month includes:

—Introduction of her first amendment: Designed to reduce federal overhead spending by 5 percent in each of the next two fiscal years, the measure failed by two votes. Introduced as an amendment to the deficit-reduction package being considered by the Senate, Mrs. Hutchison plans to reintroduce the measure as a freestanding bill.

—Co-sponsorship of her first bill: She attached her name to legislation that would establish an independent commission, similar to the base-closing commission, that would identify the spending cuts necessary to balance the budget by 2000.

—Her first floor speech: Delivered June 23 during debate of the Democratic deficit-reduction package, it focused on her opposition to new taxes included in the measure. "Let's don't talk about tax increases at all. Instead, let's talk about spending cuts that are fair," she said.

—Her first big votes: She voted against the deficit-reduction package narrowly passed by the Senate, favoring instead a GOP alternative with greater emphasis on spending cuts. She also voted against a Democratic campaign finance reform package, which passed the Senate. And, she favored unsuccessful measures to strip hikes in the gasoline tax and Social Security from the budget package.

The Travis County grand jury investigation of possible official misconduct at the state treasury, which Mrs. Hutchison headed until her Senate election, hasn't clouded her first weeks, she maintains. "I'm really not involved in it," she told reporters last week, adding that she had not had any communications with prosecutors.

"I'd much rather talk about the grand jury," she joked, when a reporter mentioned her impending 50th birthday on July 22. "I have no plans except for draping the office in black net."

Aside from her busy schedule, Mrs. Hutchison found time to buy a house a block from the Capitol despite being cautioned that the area has a high crime rate. In fact, Texas' senior senator tried to warn her away from Capitol Hill. "Phil Gramm delicately said that he hoped he didn't find my brains on the sidewalk," she said.

Mrs. Hutchison had a scant nine days between her special election victory and her June 14th swearing-in as the nation's 1,815th senator to transition out of the state treasurer's position and into her new job.

"I tell you what, there is a reason that people are elected in November and go in in January," she said. "And I am finding out why."

Weeks into her tenure, staff and equipment remain scarce and the kinks are being ironed out.

Aides vying for use of the office's lone fax machine sometimes send out faxes from Sen. Lauch Faircloth's office, which is next door. Faircloth, R-N.C., received Mrs. Hutchison's leather office furniture in exchange for his cloth floral print couch and chairs. "Sen. Hutchison embarked on a mission to find the furniture she wanted without spending a dime of taxpayers money," trumpeted a press release on the swap.

Mrs. Hutchison also has borrowed staffers from other Republican congressional offices to man her reception area and telephones.

Aides grumble that the transition wasn't helped by the way in which Krueger's staff left the Washington offices and the offices in Austin, Dallas and Houston. In Washington, the television sets, copiers and office supplies were gone, the computers were blank and printers were disconnected. A desk in the Austin office had a skull-and-crossbones figure drawn on it.

Officials with the Secretary of the Senate and the Senate Rules and Administration Committee, two of the bodies that regulate the chamber's internal affairs, said there is no set procedure regulating the transfer from one senator to the next. But they point out it's typical for the office equipment and supplies to be returned for inventory.

Grand jury continues state treasury probe

AUSTIN (AP) — While U.S. Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison accepts committee assignments, casts votes and gets adjusted to life in Washington, grand jurors continue digging into allegations of wrongdoing at the state Treasury under her leadership.

The investigation reached a month Saturday and as subpoenaed Treasury employees go before the grand jury at a snail's pace, the probe has produced more questions than answers.

Mrs. Hutchison, a Republican who resigned as head of the Treasury after her election to the U.S. Senate last month, has denied any wrongdoing. She and her advisers contend that the investigation by Travis County District Attorney Ronnie Earle, a Democrat who considered a Senate bid, is politically motivated.

Leaked by a mysterious caller to reporters on June 10, the grand jury probe began with subpoenas for 14 Treasury employees and the spokesman for Mrs. Hutchison's Senate race, a landslide victory June 5 over Democrat Bob Krueger.

The subpoenas demanded computer records, letters, lists, charts, memos and checks delving into allegations of tampering with government records, physical evidence, official misconduct, obstruction of justice and violations of the state Open Records Act.

Earle said at the time that Mrs. Hutchison was not the target of the investigation.

But the most recent focus of the grand jury's efforts would seem to indicate the spotlight is at least getting closer to Mrs. Hutchison.

The latest person to be subpoenaed is David Criss, a former top aide to Mrs. Hutchison at the Treasury.

Criss resigned from the agency last year after acknowledging that he used state computers to raise funds and write thank-yous for Mrs. Hutchison's campaign efforts.

State law forbids public servants from using state equipment and time for non-state activities.

Criss reimbursed the state, left the agency and apologized to Mrs. Hutchison.

Earle's office investigated the allegations last year, which surfaced in reports by The Houston Post, and found insufficient evidence to pursue criminal prosecution. In a press release, Earle's office said it was satisfied that the Criss incident was isolated and that Mrs. Hutchison knew nothing about it.

But the Post reported last week that memos from Criss to Mrs. Hutchison obtained by the newspaper may show political fund raising on state time was going on for as long as six months.

Adams sits one shot off the pace at Busch Classic

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. — In a span of 24 hours, Dillard Pruitt went from worrying about the cut in the Anheuser-Busch Golf Classic to leading the event.

Twelve birdies in 17 holes over two days can do that for you.

■ PGA Busch

"I just felt like I could just take it back and hit it, and something good would happen," said Pruitt, who birdied nine of his first 13 holes on the Kingsmill Golf Club course and vaulted to a one-shot lead over John Adams.

Pruitt, who closed with three birdies in four holes Friday, matched the course record of 9-under-par 62 held by five others on his thrid trip over the 6,797-yard layout, making up all of a five-shot deficit.

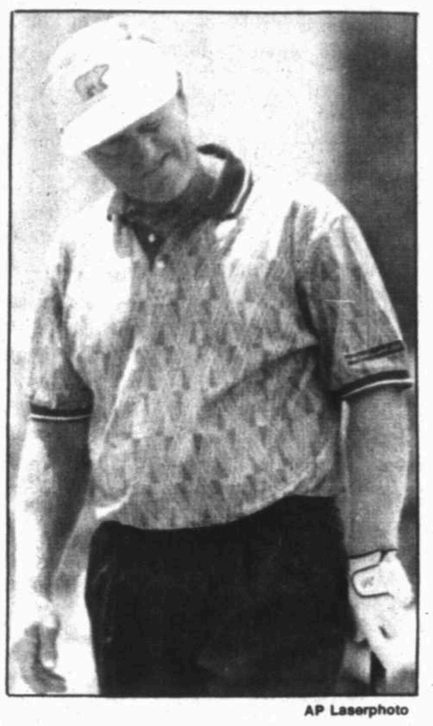

"I just felt like I couldn't hardly do anything wrong," said Pruitt, a native of Greenville, S.C., who still lives there.

Before Pruitt began his run Friday, he was concerned about making the 36-hole cut. The strong finish enabled him to erase those doubts from his mind.

"At that point, I was four under for the tournament, five shots off the Nicklaus missed a birdie putt on the ninth hole, but leads the U.S. Seniors Open.

DENVER — Not wishing to lose his most dedicated fan, Jack Nicklaus summoned up a rare Saturday surge and charged into the lead of the U.S. Senior Open.

■ U.S. Seniors

Nicklaus birdied the last three holes to climb past a faltering Dale Douglass and post a 4-under-par 67 for a three-round total of 5-under 208 and a one-stroke lead.

Nicklaus, who hasn't won since the Senior Open two years ago, capped his round with a birdie on the 450-yard, par-4 18th hole, which has played the toughest on the course all week.

"I had a couple of bobbles today," Nicklaus said. "But it was one of the best rounds I've had this year."

Alluding to his consistently poor play on recent Saturdays, Nicklaus said, "This was for mom. You know how mothers are. I shot bad third rounds at the Memorial Tournament, at the U.S. Open, at the TPC.

"My mom (Helen) told me, 'I just hate watching you play on television on Saturdays. You never play well on Sa-

Oiler negotiations

HOUSTON — Houston Oilers owner Bud Adams and defensive tackle Ray Childress continue to huddle in an attempt to find common ground on a renegotiated contract but seem only to be butting heads.

The two met Friday for two hours, after which Childress left without comment and a new contract.

Childress' hasty exit has increased speculation that he may hold out of training camp, scheduled to begin in two weeks, until the Oilers agree to his renegotiation demands.

Childress warned earlier this year that he won't play for the Oilers until the club reworks his contract. The former Texas A&M star is in the final year of a deal set to pay him $975,000 this season.

Owls on TV

HOUSTON — The Rice Owls' season-opener at Ohio State on Sept. 4 will be televised by ESPN.

The 11:30 a.m. CDT telecast will launch the network's Big Ten football package, according to The Houston Post's Saturday editions.

Rice and ESPN officials were not immediately available for comment.

The Owls last appeared on a major network telecast when they defeated Houston in 1980 on ABC.

The Rice-Ohio State matchup will be one of two games involving a Southwest Conference team on ESPN that day. At 6:30 p.m., Colorado-Texas kicks off the network's Saturday College Football Association schedule.

The Sept. 4 LSU-Texas A&M game reportedly has been picked up by ABC.

HOUSTON — Anita Martini, who broke the gender barrier in 1974 to become the first female sportscaster to enter a major league locker room, died Saturday after a lengthy illness. She was 54.

Ms. Martini, who retired earlier this year from worked radio station KPRC, had also worked as a sportscaster for Houston television stations KTRK and KPRC. She died at home at 2 a.m. Saturday.

Survivors include her mother, Catherine Martini, of Las Vegas, Nev.; two brothers, Sonny Martini, Galveston, and Michael Martini of Houston; and a sister, Cathy Arellano, of Houston.

Cuban vanishes from world games

By Barry Wilner
AP Sports Writer

BUFFALO, N.Y. — Political intrigue infiltrated the World University Games on Saturday.

Two years to the day that one of his baseball-playing countrymen defected, a Cuban pitcher disappeared minutes before his team was scheduled to play Taiwan at Sal Maglie Stadium in nearby Niagara Falls. Edilberto Oropesa, 23, left the team before the game, according to Cuban assistant coach Dimnas Rene Bello.

But neither Bello nor the Immigration and Naturalization Service could confirm that Oropesa was attempting to defect.

"What can we do about it? We'll still win the gold, anyway," Bello said. "These are things that happen."

Bello confirmed that Oropesa climbed a 10-foot fence, got into a blue car and the car sped off. Cuban officials at first said they expected the player to rejoin them at the athletes' village. But Bello said Oropesa did not return to the village.

The INS was aware of Oropesa's dis-

Patterson

It always amazes me the amount of athletic talent that has passed through Midland.

For a town the size of 100,000 give or take a few, this place hasn't done too bad for itself.

Two Midland High graduates, Mike Timlin and Mike Stanton pitched in the World Series last year. A third, Randy Velarde, has made a place for himself on the New York Yankees. Three others — Kevin Rychel, Jason Baker and Jamie Surratt — are members of major league farm systems. Add to this the almost countless number of minor leaguers that have toiled at Angels Stadium at one time or another.

Then there's Midland Lee graduate John Adams, who has a very real chance of winning the first PGA event of his career. Adams went into Saturday's round as the co-leader of the Anheuser-Busch Classic. If he doesn't do it this weekend, he'll probably win his first event when it is being covered by ABC, where Judy Rankin, another Midlander, could be making the call at 18.

Bobby Hillin, Jr., gives Midland a presence on the NASCAR circuit, while Franz Weis and Jim Hall build engines for Teo Fabi's car on the open wheel ovals.

Wahoo McDaniel gives West Texas a voice when the professional rasslers take a vote, although I can't think of when those guys would ever have occasion to be in agreement on something.

Spud Webb went to Midland College, as did Mookie Blaylock, a couple of examples of the tradition that that program has. The city can almost claim 1991-92 NBA Rookie of the Year Larry Johnson. After all, Johnson, the former Odessa College product, owned Midland College everytime he played against the Chaps for two years.

And there's Alysheba, a former Kentucky Derby winner who's owner still calls Midland home, and Tom Bruhaney, Aubrey Lynn and Wally Kleine, pro footballers from the bygone days.

I've no doubt left some out. Apologies if that be the case. But all in all, this little burg is overflowing with athletic talent and the professional athletes per capita would stand up with any city this size.

People keep asking me, 'What will you miss most when you leave the sports department?'

What will be missed are items too numerous to mention, but being baseball season, it's the sport that comes first to mind, so I'll miss the utmost professionalism and courtesy of Angel manager Don Long. No one is more congenial or accessible during post-game interviews. Major league beat writers may not be as cynical a group if they had more like him after games.

I'll also miss the courtesies of Tim Whalen, who would make a fine athletic director, Elise Kail, Jon House, Sonja Pittman, Anita Korder and Rick Wood, and the humor and unending optimism of Jim Raughton. (Note to Raughton: Next person who covers your games, talk a little slower so the writer won't have to guess so much about what his or her notes say upon returning to the office).

And I'll miss Steve Green's moaning following Chaparral basketball games. Steve will make a great Division I basketball coach because not only does he clad himself like one, but he also sounds like one after games.

Just kidding, Steve. Can't make Coach Green mad, or who else would I get my free tickets from this season?

Oh, Mike? Delnor? Tuck? Is anyone there? Hello?

Goodbye.

warming up in the bullpen) and that helped."

Mark Grace got Chicago's only hit, lining a single to center with two outs in the seventh.

"It was 2-0 and I didn't want to throw a fastball," Harnisch said. "I threw a changeup and he got enough of the bat on it. When he got to first, I looked over and he kind of shrugged. But, that's part of the game."

Harnsich (8-6) struck out 10, matching his season high, and walked three in his second complete game in 19 starts and first shutout this year. His previous best was a two-hitter against Pittsburgh on May 3, 1991.

Mike Harkey (6-3) allowed all four runs and six hits in six innings.

Gonzalez doubled, tripled and homered for the Astros, and Craig Biggio had three hits. Biggio opened the game by beating out a grounder to third for a hit, then scored when Gonzalez doubled into the right-field corner. Gonzalez was out trying to stretch the hit into a triple.

Biggio doubled in the third and scored when Gonzalez's fly fell for a triple behind a diving Derrick May at the foul line in left. Biggio singled in the sixth and Gonzalez followed with his 10th home run.

Astros 5, Cubs 2, 2nd game

In the second game, with two outs and the score 2-all in the seventh inning, Biggio doubled and scored on Kevin Bass' double. Bass' hit chased starter Jose Guzman (7-7) and brought in Bob Scanlan. Jeff Bagwell followed with a double scoring Bass, who added an RBI single in the ninth.

Winner Brian Williams (2-2) pitched six innings, allowing four hits. Xavier Hernandez, the fourth Astros pitcher, got the final three outs for his fourth save.

The Astros took a 2-0 lead in the first when Bass doubled and scored on Gonzalez's 11th homer.

Mets 7, Dodgers 6

NEW YORK — Bret Saberhagen earned his first victory over a non-expansion team this season, but not before New York survived shaky relief pitching to defeat the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Anthony Young, who holds the major league record for consecutive losses with 26, gave up four hits to as many batters and allowed three runs in the Dodgers' five-run eighth inning.

John Franco earned his fourth save by getting the last five outs, though he allowed Tim Wallach's 10th homer in the ninth.

Saberhagen (5-7) gave up two runs on five hits in 7 1-3 innings.

Jeromy Burnitz and Todd Hundley each hit two-run homers for the Mets in a five-run first inning.

Hundley finished with four RBIs, tying a career high. He had a two-out RBI double in the eighth to score Jeff Kent, who hit his third single.

Phillies 8, Giants 3

PHILADELPHIA — Mickey Morandini drove in a career-high five runs with a go-ahead single and a grand slam as the Philadelphia Phillies beat the San Francisco Giants.

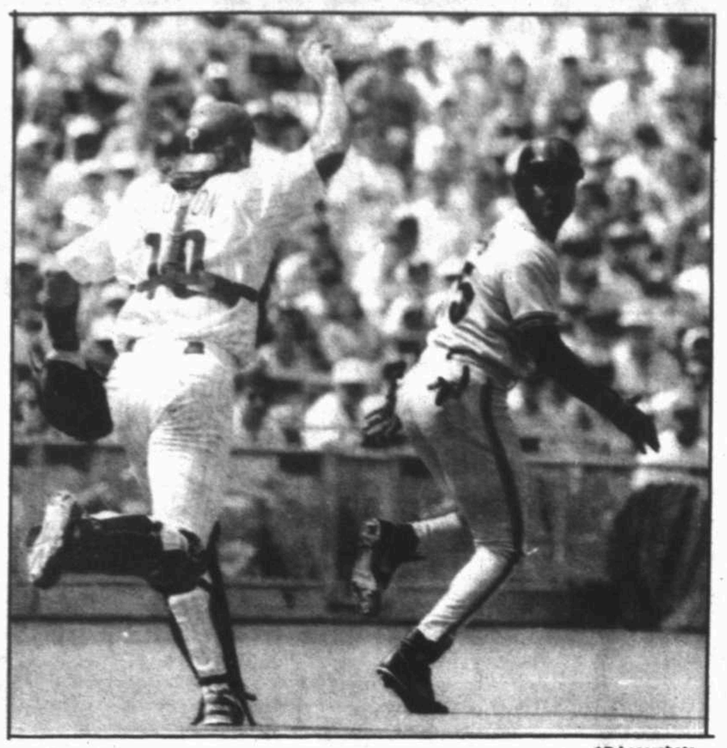

Morandini put the Phillies ahead 4-3 in the sixth with an RBI single that knocked out John Burkett (13-3), the NL leader in victories. Philadelphia loaded the bases in the eighth on a pair of singles and a walk and Morandini hit his first grand slam, a drive off Dave Righetti.

While the the U.S. Weather Bureau reported the game-time temperature was 100, it was much hotter on the aritical turf of Veterans Stadium. A thermometer on the mound registered 166 and one in the third-base dugout was at 140.

Tommy Greene (11-2) allowed three runs and six hits in 6 2-3 innings as the Phillies rebounded after losing 13-2 and 15-8 in the first two games of the four-game series between the division leaders.

Burkett allowed four runs and eight hits in 5 2-3 innings. He had won his five previous starts and six of seven.

Royce Clayton's RBI single put San Francisco ahead in the first after Greene walked the bases loaded. Barry Bonds was the final out of the inning in a six player rundown.

Marlins 5, Braves 2

MIAMI — Alex Arias drove in three runs and the Florida Marlins snapped a seven-game losing streak by beating the Atlanta Braves and All-Star Tom Glavine.

Arias had an RBI single in the fourth, when Florida scored twice to take a 3-2 lead. He added a two-out, two-run single in the eighth against Greg McMichael.

All-Star closer Bryan Harvey earned his 25th save, stranding runners at second and third with a one-run lead in the eighth when pinch hitter Francisco Cabrera grounded out.

The Braves left seven runners in scoring position. Ron Gant made the final out in the first, third and fifth, leaving a runner in scoring position each time.

Florida, which improved to 10-20 in one-run games, bunched three consecutive two-out hits to take a 3-2 lead in the fourth against Glavine (10-4). Henry Cotto doubled and scored on a single by Arias, who then scored on Rich Renteria's double.

Renteria improved his average with runners in scoring position to .436.

Florida's Walt Weiss ended a 3-for-37 slump in the second inning when he doubled home Benito Santiago, who had singled.

Jack Armstrong (6-9) gave up eight hits and two walks, threw a wild pitch and committed a balk, but he allowed just two runs in 6 2-3 innings.

Armstrong improved to 6-3 lifetime against Atlanta. He's 31-54 against the rest of the major leagues.

Harvey pitched two innings and gave up a single and two walks. Glavine gave up eight hits, two walks and three runs in seven innings.

Jeff Blauser produced Atlanta's only runs when he singled and scored on each of his first two trips to the plate, coming on doubles by Terry Pendleton and David Justice.

Reds 10, Pirates 7

PITTSBURGH — Joe Oliver and Gary Varsho each hit two-run homers as Cincinnati spotted Pittsburgh a five-run lead in the second inning, then rallied gainst Randy Tomlin.

Chris Sabo, who went 3-for-4 to extend his hitting streak to 11 games, doubled in the tying run in the seventh against Paul Wagner (4-6) ahead of Oliver's eighth homer. Oliver was 3-for-4 with an RBI single in the ninth and is hitting .459 with three homers and 10 RBIs against Pittsburgh this season.

Scott Service (1-0) pitched three hitless innings for his first major-league victory.

Cardinals 9, Rockies 3

ST. LOUIS — Brian Jordan went 4-for-4 with a two-run home run and Mark Whiten added a three-run homer as the St. Louis Cardinals beat the Colorado Rockies.

Donovan Osborne (8-3) allowed four hits in seven innings in winning his fifth straight decision. He struck out a season-high eight and walked two. Omar Olivares

Expos 3, Padres 2

MONTREAL — Moises Alou walked with the bases loaded and one out in the ninth inning to cap a two-run rally and give the Montreal Expos a victory over the San Diego Padres.

Palmer's 5 RBIs move Texas closer to first

Associated Press

TORONTO — Dean Palmer drove in a career-high five runs to guarantee Texas its most successful road trip in 14 years as the Rangers beat the Toronto Blue Jays 10-7 Saturday.

■ AL Roundup

Texas, 8-2 with one game remaining on the trip, hadn't won eight games on a single trip since September 1979. The Rangers move to within one game of first place in the West Division with Chicago's 6-0 loss to Baltimore.

The Blue Jays, who have led the AL East since June 26, have lost four in a row and nine of 10.

Craig Lefferts (2-7) allowed two hits and two runs in 2 1-3 innings, and Tom Henke pitched the ninth for his 17th save.

Pat Hentgen (11-4) gave up six runs on five hits in 1 2-3 innings with four walks.

Texas took a 4-0 lead in the first on three consecutive walks, a fielder's choice grounder by Geno Petralli and Palmer's three-run homer, his 20th.

John Olerud hit a two-run homer in the bottom half, his 15th, but run-scoring singles by Julio Franco and Petralli in the second put Texas ahead 6-2.

Ed Sprague hit an RBI double in the sixth and Devon White's 11th home run the seventh cut the deficit to 9-6.

Juan Gonzalez hit his 23rd homer in the eighth, and Sprague hit his 10th home run in the bottom half.

Orioles 6, White Sox 0

BALTIMORE — Fernando Valenzuela allowed two hits in eight innings, and Chris Hoiles homered again as Baltimore beat Chicago.

Valenzuela (4-7) struck out three, walked four and extended his string of shutout innings to 23. He gave up a solid first-inning single to Joey Cora, then held the White Sox hitless until Craig Grebek singled with two outs in the eighth.

Valenzuela didn't allow a batter past first base in becoming the first Oriole since Jim Palmer in 1978 to pitch three starts without allowing a run. Valenzuela left after 126 pitches, and Mark Williamson allowed one hit in the ninth.

Cal Ripken of the Orioles got his 2,000th career hit, a single up the middle in the second inning. He is the 14th active player and 191st major-leaguer to reach the plateau.

Alvarez went 7 2-3 innings, losing to the Orioles for the first time in three seasons. He had been 3-0 with a 0.56 ERA.

Tigers 9, Royals 8

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Dan Gladden hit a grand slam and Tony Phillips had a two-run single, offsetting four Kansas City homers and powering Detroit to a victory.

Phillips' single off Bill Sampen (2-2) capped a three-run seventh inning and put the Tigers back on top 9-7 after Kansas City had scored five in the sixth to take a 7-6 lead.

Kurt Knudsen (1-1) allowed two runs in 2 2-3 innings in relief of David Wells. Mike Henneman pitched the ninth for his 14th save.

Rasmussen, making his first start since being called up from Class AAA Omaha for the second time this season, gave up five runs on six hits, five walks and a hit batter in 4 2-3 innings.

Gladden scored Detroit's first run in the first on Cecil Fielder's RBI double.

McReynolds' solo homer in the first made it 1-1 and the Royals took a one-run lead in the third on Joyner's RBI grounder.

Red Sox 5, Athletics 0

OAKLAND, Calif. — Rookie Aaron Sele pitched four-hit ball over five innings and reliever Greg Harris escaped a no-out, bases-loaded jam by striking out the side as Boston beat Oakland.

Sele is 2-0 with a 1.05 ERA and has yet to give up more than one earned run in any of his four major-league starts since being called to take the injured Roger Clemens' spot in the rotation. Sele left with a 3-0 lead in the sixth after giving up a leadoff single to Brent Gates and a walk to Ruben Sierra.

The Red Sox have won 14 of 18 games, while the A's lost for only the fourth time in 14 games.

Bob Zupcic singled to start the fourth off loser Kelly Downs (2-3), stole second, and scored on Ivan Calderon's two-out RBI single to give Boston a 1-0 lead.

Aided by two infield errors, the Red Sox scored two runs in the sixth to go ahead 3-0. Scott Fletcher, who reached on a leadoff single, went to third when Brent Gates, coevring first on Zupcic's sacrifice, fumbled away the throw from Downs for an error.

Mike Greenwell's single scored Fletcher and sent Zupcic to third. When Greenwell stole second, he kicked the ball out of Gates' glove — catcher Steinbach was charged with an error for one-hopping the throw — and Zupcic scored to give Boston a 3-0 lead.

Angels 4, Yankees 2

ANAHEIM, Calif. — Russ Springer got his first major-league victory by holding his former team in check for 5 1-3 innings as California downed New York.

Springer (1-3), making his fifth start and 24th appearance, allowed two runs on six hits, walked one and struck out five. He also ended a penchant for early-game troubles — he had allowed 20 earned runs in the opening three innings of his first four starts.

Tim Salmon gave the Angels a 1-0 lead with a first-inning homer, his 17th, off Scott Kamieniecki (3-3), and Rene Gonzales' RBI single in the second made it 2-0.

Managers differ from fans in All-Star picks

By Ronald Blum
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK — If managers did the picking, Ryne Sandberg, David Justice, Andy Van Slyke and John Kruk wouldn't get a vote to start in Tuesday's All-Star game.

■ All-Star preview 6/7C

Cal Ripken, Kirby Puckett, Wade Boggs, Gary Sheffield and Ivan Rodriguez also would be on the bench instead of in the starting lineup, according to a survey of major league managers conducted by The Associated Press. In all, managers agreed on only seven of the 16 starters voted for by the fans.

Three players were unanimous picks by the managers: San Francisco outfielder Barry Bonds, Toronto first baseman John Olerud and Giants second baseman Robby Thompson, who finished ninth in the fan voting with 331,818, a fifth of Sandberg's 1,770,559 total.

Andres Galarraga of Colorado would replace Kruk at first in the National League's starting lineup and Matt Williams of the Giants would replace Sheffield at third. In the outfield, Marquis Grissom of Montreal and Bobby Bonilla of the New York Mets would start ahead of Justice and the injured Van Slyke.

In the American League, Detroit's Mickey Tettleton would replace Rodriguez at catcher, and Dean Palmer of Texas would replace Boggs at third base. Omar Vizquel of Seattle and Travis Fryman of Detroit tied at shortstop, where Ripken got only one vote. Albert Belle of Cleveland would replace Puckett as the third AL outfielder.

John Burkett of the Giants was picked as the starting pitcher in the NL, while Randy Johnson of the Seattle Mariners was selected to start in the AL..

Managers weren't allowed to vote for their own players. Ten NL managers and eight in the AL responded to the survey.

The biggest disparity was at second base in the NL, where Sandberg failed to get even one vote from the managers. Thompson was hitting .325 with nine homers and 40 RBIs after Friday's games, while Sandberg was hitting .303 with five homers and 28 RBIs.

Williams, who will miss the All-Star game because of a strained lower abdominal muscle, got eight votes at third to two for Florida's Sheffield, the first player elected to start from an expansion team.

Dodgers' Lasorda pulls Butler from game

NEW YORK (NYT) — Brett Butler had the unfamiliar experience of being pulled from a game Saturday, when Dodgers manager Tom Lasorda decided after four innings that his 36-year-old center fielder looked tired.

The Dodgers were trailing the New York Mets, 6-0, at the time (they wound up losing, 7-6) and were playing in 101-degree heat, a sweltering condition in which they've played their past seven games. Butler was hitless in two at-bats and is batting .182 (8 for 44) on this road trip, a slide that has dropped his average from .316 to .299.

Butler dressed quickly and left the Dodgers' clubhouse before reporters were admitted. In a Shea Stadium hallway he was asked by a reporter if he was all right. He said only, "Yeah," and kept walking.

Trainer Bill Buhler said Butler is not being treated for any specific injury but is suffering from "general tiredness."

Lasorda said, "I just wanted to give him a rest. I think the guy's tired. He just looks tired to me, I don't know how to explain it. He's no different than last year, he just has to have a little time off now and then."

Butler has started 83 of the Dodgers' 86 games, but Lasorda would not commit to starting him in tonight's road-trip finale.

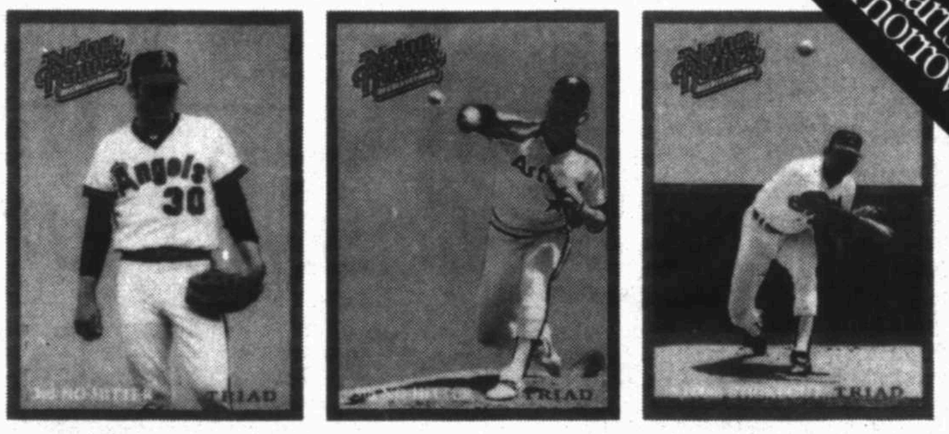

"We'll see how he feels when he comes in," Lasorda said.

Big drive: Third baseman Tim Wallach's 10th homer of the season was a standout. He slammed a 1-2 pitch from Mets closer John Franco with one out in the ninth into the top (fourth) deck of Shea Stadium's left-field corner seats.

Wallach quickly answered the affirmative when asked if he had ever reached Shea's upper deck before.

"Once," he said. "My rookie year, (off pitcher) Pat Zachry, my second big-league home run."

Generals sweep two from Angels

Staff report

JACKSON, Miss. — The Jackson Generals hit four home runs over the course of two games to secure a sweep over the Midland Angels in a Texas League double header here Saturday.

Jackson took a 4-0 lead in the first inning of the first game and went on to a 8-3 win. The Angels saved a shutout by scoring three runs in the seventh and final inning.

In Game 2, Midland took a 1-0 lead in the fifth, but the Jackson bats came alive in the sixth and answered with six runs to seal a 6-2 win.

The wins upped Jackson's total to four over the Angels in the five game series with the final game starting today at 2:30 p.m. Colin Charland (3-2) for the season with an earned-run-average of 5.68, will start for the Angels, Terry Mathews (6-5, 3.67) will start for Jackson.

Midland is now tied with the Wichita Wranglers for second in the Texas League West.

The Generals have hit homeruns in each of their last four wins including two in each of Saturday's double header by four different batters. The Generals have homered 19 times in the last 14 games.

With one third of the season left to play, Jackson has already scored more homeruns than it did all of last season (77).

New Ranger ballpark provides 'Texas' feel

By Arnie Stapleton
AP Sports Writer

ARLINGTON — The Texas Rangers still lack a solid shortstop, center fielder and pitching staff as they stumble through yet another summer. Seats that should have been filled for Nolan Ryan's farewell season mostly have gathered dust as he languished on the disabled list.

But help is on the horizon — in the form of dark green steel and red brick.

The Rangers' new $173.5 million ballpark is about 70 percent complete and already inspiring awe.

"I can't wait to pitch there," said pitcher Kevin Brown. "All the players, everybody notices it. You can't help but look over there and watch it going up and think about how much fun it's going to be to play there."

Ground was broken 14 months ago. The park, set to open in 1994 and serve as host to the 1995 All-Star Game, is beginning to get a decidedly Texan feel.

Last month, the first of 35 steers and 21 stars was hoisted above the arches at the new park. The one-ton cast-stone icon longhorns measure seven feet high with the horns measuring 20 feet from tip to tip.

Architect David Schwarz calls his masterpiece "Texana neo-Romanesque."

"We're building a monument to baseball," said Texas managing general partner George W. Bush. "Our fans are going to have more than a great place to watch baseball; they're going to get artistic architecture, 100 percent Texan."

Construction will begin later this summer on two lakes north of the ballpark, a youth ballpark replica of the new stadium and an amphitheater.

The team organized a "peek at the park" tour for fans this month, a three-day affair that drew 35,000 people.

In addition, a computer simulator has been set up at Arlington Stadium and is drawing long lines, enabling fans to punch in any seating location and see what the view will be like.

The contraption has pushed 1994 season tickets sales past 10,000, said Rangers president Tom Schieffer. This year, the team sold 9,200 season tickets for its last season at Arlington Stadium, which will get the wrecking ball this fall.

The team has sold about 50 of 122 luxury boxes, which Schieffer describes as "no doubt the finest in professional sports. There's no place you can be this low and this close to the action."

The stadium doesn't have a name yet, although one cynic recently suggested it be named "Taxpayer's Park" because Arlington residents are financing $135 million of the cost through a sales tax.

Schieffer said it will be well worth it.

Texan tied for LPGA Youngstown lead

HOWLAND, Ohio (AP) — Karen Lunn settled down to avoid being punched by her caddie and rolled in a 10-foot putt for eagle on the closing hole Saturday to pull even with Missie McGeorge entering the final round of the Youngstown-Warren LPGA Classic.

Lunn, a native of Australia in her first full year on tour, lived to laugh about a wild round that included six birdies and an eagle, but also four bogeys. Her 4-under-par 68 left her at 10-under 134 and matched McGeorge, who followed a career-low 65 in the opening round with a 69 at Avalon Lakes Golf Course.

Lunn, 27, has six victories on the European Tour, but is playing in only her sixth LPGA event.

She made the turn in 4-under 32, but almost lost control after bogeying three of the first four holes on the back nine.

"I was struggling a little bit, to be honest," she said. "I think my caddie wanted to punch me on 13.

"I was saying to myself, 'What a choke! You're pathetic!' But he told me to calm down. I really do think he wanted to punch me."

Caddie Jason Hamilton's threats apparently did the trick. Lunn hit a wedge to 6 feet at 14 and made a birdie. After three-putting the 16th for another bogey, she chipped in for a birdie at 17 and then hit a 175-yard 5-iron close enough for the eagle putt on the final hole.

"I'll still be nervous tomorrow," she said. "Winning out here would be a huge thing in anybody's career. I'm sure I'll still be tense."

Coming to the rescue has become commonplace for Hamilton. During the opening round of last week's Jamie Farr Toledo Classic, he and third-year pro Tara Fleming were among the first to rush to the aid of a 63-year-old man who collapsed with an apparent heart attack.

Meanwhile, McGeorge was following her plan.

"I was a little inconsistent yesterday," McGeorge said of her first-round 65, which included nine birdies, four bogeys and an eagle. "I was trying to be more consistent: hit it in the fairway, hit it on the green and then make the birdie. And if I didn't, I'd settle for par."

She, like Lunn, had four birdies on the front side, but had bogeys at 10 and 16. But she chipped to 4 feet on the final hole and rolled in the birdie putt to retain a share of the lead.

"With everybody bunched, you figure somebody's going to get hot," McGeorge said of the final round. "I'm going to have to go out and shoot 3- or 4-under to have a shot the way the scoring has been the last two days."

McGeorge, who will turn 34 later this month, is winless in a decade as a pro.

Two shots behind the co-leaders were Hall of Famer Nancy Lopez, seeking her first victory of the year, along with 1991 Warren-Youngstown winner Deb Richard, Kathy Guadagnino.

Patty Sheehan shot the day's low round, a 65, to move to 139 and into a tie with fellow Hall of Famer Pat Bradley.

Seventy-nine players made the cut at 144, the second-lowest of the year on the tour.

Schrader has inside track to win Slick 300

LOUDON, N.H. (AP) — If life was like a movie script, Ken Schrader would win today's Slick 50 300.

Schrader might win anyway, considering the way he has been running recently, with five top-five finishes in his last six starts.

This week, a hearing panel lifted a four-race suspension against Schrader and car owner Joe Hendrick for using an illegal carburetor in qualifying for last Sunday's Pepsi 400 at Daytona.

His strong performances of late have moved Schrader from 13th to fifth in the Winston Cup standings, trailing leader Dale Earnhardt by a still formidable 365 points. But missing four races would have ended any hopes Schrader had for his first series championship.

"I've been getting ribbed a lot by everybody in the garage this week," Schrader said. "The fine was $10,000 and all the abuse you can take from your friends. Neither one bothered me. I'm here starting on the second row, and that's what matters."

Schrader will start fourth, behind pole-winner Mark Martin, Sterling Marlin and rookie teammate Jeff Gordon in the 300-lap event, the first-ever Winston Cup race on the 1.058-mile New Hampshire International Speedway.

A crowd of more than 60,000 is assured by advance ticket sales, despite the continuing heat wave that is expected to send the temperature soaring into the mid-90s during the race.

"The temperature gets up maybe to 125, 130 degrees in the car," Rusty Wallace, the 1989 Winston Cup champion, said. "You try to get as much air on you as you can with vents and stuff like that, but what you really do is just live with it and sweat.

"You just get used to being hot in the race car. That's just part of what we do for a living. You don't think about it that much."

Besides the top four starters, other strong contenders Sunday are expected to include Ricky Rudd, the third Hendrick driver, Ernie Irvan, Dale Jarrett and Earnhardt.

■ Slick 50 300

Gordon has three top-five finishes in his last five starts, including a pair of seconds, while Rudd, who will start 10th, has three straight top-10 finishes, including a win at Michigan.

"We've been doing better as a team," Schrader said. "We're working hard together and it's paying off. But it's so competitive, we could win the race or finish 25th.

"It's the same way in the points. We can catch Earnhardt in the points, but he's got to have problems. We could win the championship, but we could also finish out of the top 10."

Irvan, who is starting eighth, is enjoying the first Winston Cup weekend at the new venue. But he said he expects the race to be difficult.

"This track is wide enough, but the (racing) groove is narrow," he said. "Somebody said we could go three-wide here, but I don't think they knew what they were talking about. We might go three-wide on the parade lap, but it'll be hard to race two-side for very long.

"There's going to be a lot of bumping. It's going to be a lot like Martinsville. You're just going to have to get up under somebody and move 'em out of the way and go on."

Earnhardt, starting 24th in the 40-car lineup, is coming off a victory at Daytona and remains a top contender.

"We didn't qualify the way we wanted because the driver overdrove the car," Earnhardt said. "But it's a good car and we're ready to race. I feel like we can be strong. We just have to stay out of trouble early and we'll probably be all right."

In second-round qualifying Saturday, only four drivers made qualifying attempts, with the rest standing on their first-day laps.

Rusty Wallace slipped from 123.755 to 123.618, but remained 33rd, while Derrick Cope fell from 123.354 to 122.269 and dropped from 34th to 38th. Phil Parsons improved from 120.239 to 122.159 to earn the 39th starting position, and Clay Young improved from 119.178 to 120.471 but failed to make the lineup.

SENIORS: Nicklaus takes lead in Open

turdays.' I figured I'd better not play another bad round on Saturday or she'll never watch again. After today's round, I told her, 'Don't worry about Saturdays anymore.'"

Nicklaus called Saturday "the day you generally get yourself either in the tournament or out of the tournament. This is the first time I've gotten myself in the tournament all year."

After hanging around the lead all day, Nicklaus made his move at No. 16, hitting a 9-iron 12 feet from the hole and making birdie.

At the par-5 17th hole, which features an island green, Nicklaus boomed a drive — "it put me in a position where I was forced to go for the green," he said — and then lashed a 2-iron 230 yards to the back edge of the green. He nearly made the putt, getting another birdie.

At 18, Nicklaus hit a four-iron just three feet from the cup for his third consecutive birdie.

One stroke behind was Douglass, who had steadily built a three-stroke lead with some precision iron play before bogeying the final two holes. Douglass drove behind a tree on the 17th hole and missed the green on the 18th.

The Colorado native, who finished with a 68, had appeared headed for sole possession of the third-round lead after getting birdies at Nos. 15 and 16 to go 6-under.

"Rats," Douglass said succinctly in describing his finish. "This is the best round I've played in several weeks.

"I've not been hitting my irons well, but today I hit a lot of great iron shots. I'm sorry I bogeyed those last two holes, but that's no big deal. I'm in good shape for tomorrow."

Nicklaus said he thought any player at 1-over-par or better was still in contention.

"It depends on what Dale and I are going to shoot," Nicklaus said. "If we shoot good rounds, obviously that eliminates a lot of guys behind us. If we don't play well, a lot of guys have a chance to get back in."

The clear winner on Saturday was venerable Cherry Hills Country Club, which proved nearly impervious to sub-par rounds.

Chi Chi Rodriguez, the first- and second-round leader, began the day with a bogey. But three straight bogeys on the back nine dropped him from the lead.

His playing partner, Isao Aoki, fared even worse. Aoki, who began the day a shot behind Rodriguez, lost four strokes to par on the front nine and never recovered.

Two shots off the lead was Kermit Zarley, whose carded a 69. Rodriguez, who limped home with a 75, was at 212, along with Tom Weiskopf and Larry Ziegler. Ray Floyd and Miller Barber finished at 213. Aoki, who had a 76, was at 214.

Lee Trevino, Jim Colbert, Dave Stockton and Simon Hobday stood at 215.

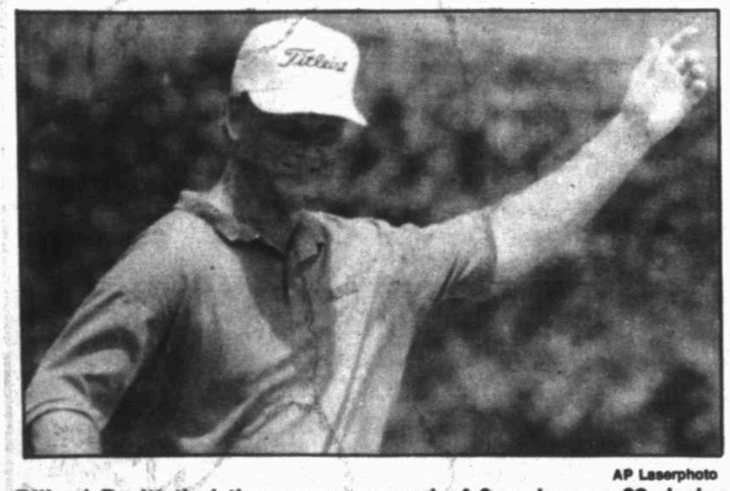

"I had a couple of bobbles today," Nicklaus said. "But it was one of the best rounds I've had this year.

"Saturday is the day you usually get yourself in or out of the tournament. It's the first Saturday I've gotten myself in the tournament in quite a while."

Rodriguez said he "played lousy" and his "short game was terrible."

"I hit the wrong club three times, and each time I made a bogey," he said.

ADAMS: Former Midlander trails by one stroke lead," he said. "And five shots is not all that much."

Pruitt's 62 gave him a 13-under 200 total.

Adams, the second-round co-leader, shot a 3-under 68 in temperatures that again hovered near 100 degrees and combined with high humidity levels to create uncomfortable conditions. The only relief came in the form of slight, shifting breezes that were absent in the first two rounds.

"When the wind's blowing, it's OK. It's bearable," Pruitt said. "But when it's not blowing, man, it just starts seeping out of your skin. The water just leaks right out."

Lanny Wadkins, who like Pruitt birdied the first four holes and made the turn in 30, had just one birdie on the back nine. He settled for a 7-under 64 that left him with an 11-under 202 total.

Wadkins said when he made the turn, he was thinking he "might get it lower than 64. But I just never got it real close to the hole on the back nine."

Most of the other contenders struggled.

Ted Tryba, who began the round tied with Adams for the lead, took a double bogey on the 204-yard second hole and couldn't recover. He wound up with a 1-over 72 that left him five shots off the lead.

Starting the day one shot off the lead were Tom Byrum, Mark McCumber, Jim Gallagher Jr. and Blaine McCallister.

Tracy has pole spot, Fabi in top 10 for Grand Prix

CLEVELAND (AP) — A bumpy afternoon of qualifying turned scary for Nigel Mansell on Saturday when he fell and sprained his right wrist as he entered a media trailer for interviews.

Mansell, who qualified second behind Paul Tracy's record speed of 144.139 mph, was still expected to drive in today's Cleveland Grand Prix, the eighth race on the Indy-car schedule. Mansell, the leader in the point standings, has won four poles and two races this year.

"It's the first time I've headbutted a press room," Mansell said, his right hand encased in ice and a towel.

Mansell fell as he reached the top step of portable stairs leading to the interview trailer. He fell forward into the trailer and lay there momentarily, moaning, "Oh, my God." The portable stairs weren't aligned properly with the trailer door, leaving a gap where Mansell stepped.

X-rays revealed no broken bones, and Mansell was to be examined again this morning before racing.

The pole is the first for Tracy this year and second of his career. Mansell had won the pole for the four previous road-course races this season.

"A lot of cars were putting one or two wheels off the track, and that put dirt on the track," Mansell said. "So you have to be very careful."

The top three qualifiers — Tracy, Mansell and defending race champion Emerson Fittipaldi — all beat the track record of 142.778 mph set by Fittipaldi last year in qualifying over the temporary road course at Burke Lakefront Airport.

Rounding out the top 10 were Stefan Johansson, Scott Goodyear, Danny Sullivan, Al Unser Jr., Mark Smith, Teo Fabi and Bobby Rahal.

Starting from the pole has been no guarantee of victory this season. Mansell won the opening event in Australia from the pole in March, but no one has done it since.

Tracy won at Long Beach in April after Mansell had won the pole there.

"At this track, it's so wide going into the first turn, you have guys trying to dive down inside in front of you," Tracy said. "It's going to be a tough start."

Cleveland is the fastest road course on the Indy-car circuit, but the bumps and temperatures in the 90s also make it one of the most tiring for the drivers.

Tennis world inducts Hunt into Hall

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Texas businessman Lamar Hunt has always been a sports fan, and he's the first to admit his skills on the playing field would hardly get him into a Hall of Fame.

He knew how to draw a crowd, though, and for that has earned a place among sports legends in pro football, soccer, and on Saturday, tennis.

Hunt, co-founder of World Championship Tennis, was inducted into the International Tennis Hall of Fame, along with 1961 women's Wimbledon champion, Angela Mortimer Barrett.

The two took their places among the likes of Tracy Austin, Bjorn Borg and the late Arthur Ashe during a center court ceremony prior to the semifinals of the Miller Lite Hall of Fame Tennis Championships at the Newport Casino.

Hunt, 60, who also founded the American Football League, Kansas City Chiefs and was a principal investor in the North American Soccer League, already is in both those sports' Halls of Fame.

But the tennis induction was the most unexpected, the oil scion said.

"This is probably the biggest surprise because in the end, WCT was not a successful venture," Hunt said. "I'm flattered just to be considered, much less chosen."

WCT, the world's first professional tournament organization, founded in 1967, launched a full circuit with 32 contract players participating in 20 tournaments. The top eight players competed in the WCT finals at year's end.

Although WCT ceased to exist in 1989, vestiges, such as big prize money and corporate sponsors, remain.

"I enjoyed participating in sports so my first involvement has been as a participant, although not a very good one," Hunt, who never played professionally, said.

"I was always interest in the entertainment, the showbiz aspect. One of the first things I'd read was the attendance. I knew that was important," he said.

Mortimer Barett, 61, has not played tennis in more than 30 years, since her retirement from the singles tour in 1962 after amassing 40 singles and doubles titles.

She helped Great Britain's Wightman Cup team to victories in 1960 and 1968 and captained her country's Federation Cup team from 1967-1970.

Being tapped for the Hall of Fame decades after leaving the game was "terrifying," she said.

"Once you're out of the limelight — it's easy when you're in it every day, but once you come back, it's terrifying," she said.

Personalities, egos make All-Star games colorful

By Tim Brown
N.Y. Times News Service

They've played 63 others, baseball has. Sixty-three previous All-Star games, none that counted.

Somehow, the romance sticks to it, a game less meaningful than March's first exhibition exercises.

Perhaps it is not the game as much as a gathering of talent, of personalities, of egos that makes it so enduring.

Then, maybe it's the only thing on television Tuesday night.

Cecil Fielder will be asked 356 times if he is bitter over being left off last year's AL squad. Fielder will smile and be courteous exactly 356 times.

John Kruk will shed his jersey in the clubhouse and every baseball writer in America will look down at his own girth and wonder what makes Kruk so special.

Tom Glavine's final out will be someone other than Kevin Brown.

Everyone will want to touch Mike Piazza's forearms. He'll comply.

Piazza will win the home-run-hitting contest and afterward claim he's not a home-run hitter.

At least one person will notice the irony of Scott Cooper and Wade Boggs making the AL team.

An argument will break out over whether Roberto Alomar or Carlos Baerga is the better player. The guy arguing Baerga will be right.

Poor Tony Gwynn will have to answer for the idiocy of Tom Werner.

Somebody from the Indians will begin a sentenceBobby Kelly.

Kruk will stumble onto Burkett's shirt and think it's his.

Kirby Puckett and Joe Carter will have more fun than anybody.

Someone will giggle at a Montgomery-Ward pun, should Jeff and Duane pitch back-to-back.

The American League will win and it will still trail in the series by 11 games.

The commissioner's box will be empty, figuratively speaking. Literally speaking, 28 owners will be circling the box waiting for the music to stop.

It will become obvious that 28-man All-Star rosters aren't big enough.

Not one uninvited player will watch the game on television.

CBS analyst Tim McCarver will make at least one Deion Sanders joke, proving that his career is getting more mileage out of that than anything else.

Boog Powell will get more business than he will know what to do with.

The missing: There are guys with a beef, the players who absolutely, positively have a right to crab cakes and a warm spot on the bench at Camden Yards.

Detroit's Mickey Tettleton has 69 RBI. He'll have three days to admire them without distraction.

Chris Hoiles will be asked to stay away from his own ballpark. The Orioles catcher hit .290 with 16 homers and 40 RBI. He'll be hanging with Mick.

Orlando Merced hit .359, Gregg Jefferies hit .344. Three names: Galarraga, Olerud, Kruk — the only major leaguers with higher batting averages.

Really now, where's Matt Williams?

The fortunate: Or, the fans didn't want you, the writers didn't want you, but you'll be there anyway.

John Smoltz. Bobby Cox has a lot of nerve. A lot of nerve.

Dave Hollins. Play a few games.

The brothers: Fifty-two years ago Thursday, Joe and Dom DiMaggio became the first brothers to play in the same All-Star game.

In 1941, the DiMaggios' American Leaguers beat the Nationals, 7-5, at Briggs Stadium in Detroit on Ted Williams' three-run homer with two outs in the ninth inning.

The quiz: Alfredo Griffin, Tony Fernandez, Luis Sojo, Cliff Johnson, Jim Acker, Rico Carty and Tony Castillo have what in common?

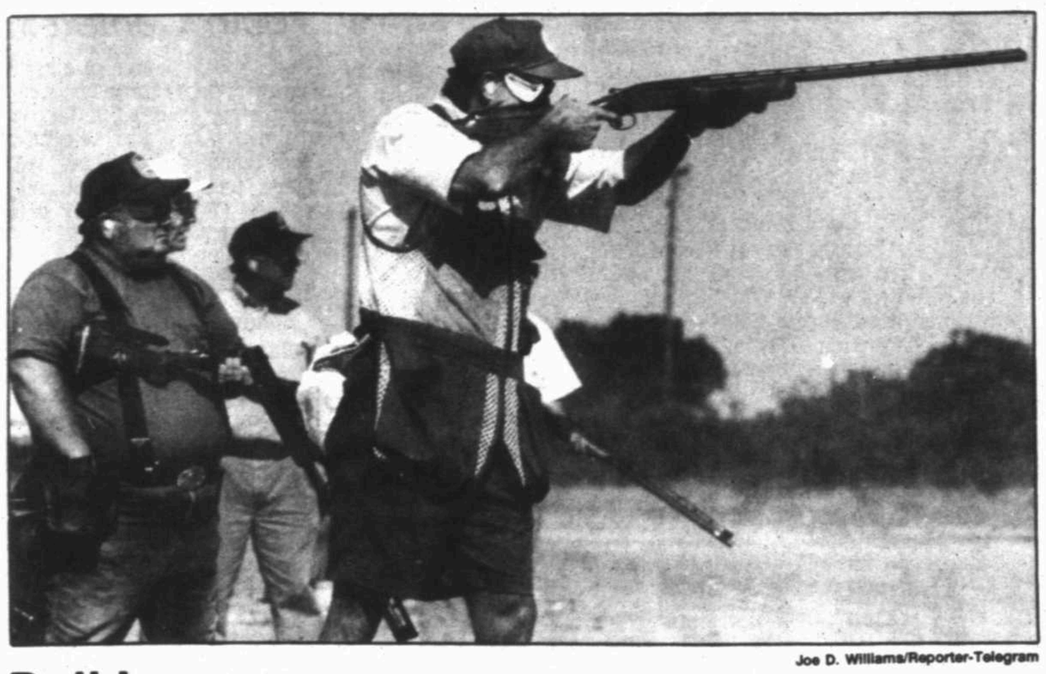

The quote: From Twins rookie George Tsamis on arriving in the big leagues: "To think, last year I was sitting in the dugout at Portland and now I'm in Yankee Stadium. I was walking out of the dugout yesterday and I stood there and looked at (fellow rookie) Pat Meares and he looked at me and we just laughed. We didn't have to say anything. We knew what each other was thinking."

The answer: Each has played for the Blue Jays two different times in his career.

The notes: With strike-zone hounds Bob Tewksbury, Rheal Cormier and Rene Arocha, the Cardinals lead the NL in fewest walks allowed. Therefore the club leads baseball in shortest average time of games — 2:34. ... No matter what this baseball season brings, we'll still remember it as the summer we lost Roy Campanella and Don Drysdale. ...

Although teammates attempt to persuade him otherwise, Indians pitcher Bob Ojeda refuses to be in public without a cap that hides his scars. ... USA Today, the same bunch that decided a few years ago that Angels MVP Lance Parrish was the game's most overpaid catcher, has chosen Seattle's Rich Amaral as the AL's first-half Rookie of the Year. Pull it together, fellas. ...

Three of the seven longest home runs of the year have been hit at Mile High Stadium, by Archi Cianfrocco (470 feet), David Justice (467) and Derek Bell (466). The longest of the season belongs to Dean Palmer, a 477-footer in Detroit.

appearance, but had not heard from him or anyone else claiming to be involved with the incident.

These are the first World University Games staged in the United States. Cuban teams often play in this country, however, and only one baseball player, pitcher Rene Arocha of the St. Louis Cardinals, has defected during an American visit. Arocha did so in Miami on July 10, 1991.

On the playing field, Cuba won the game 8-4.

The U.S. baseball team won a somewhat-nasty game with South Korea 8-3, thanks to a six-run fifth inning.

Koreans assistant coach Jo-Sung Rho was ejected in the first inning when he questioned balls and strikes calls.

Also in the first inning, Todd Helton slid in hard on a force play at second base and shortstop Ji Hyun Ryu took exception. He and Helton exchanged words.

Belgian captures lead at Tour de France

CHALONS SUR MARNE, France (AP) — Johan Museeuw of Belgium replaced teammate Mario Cipollini of Italy as the overall leader in the Tour de France Saturday with a third-place finish in the seventh stage.

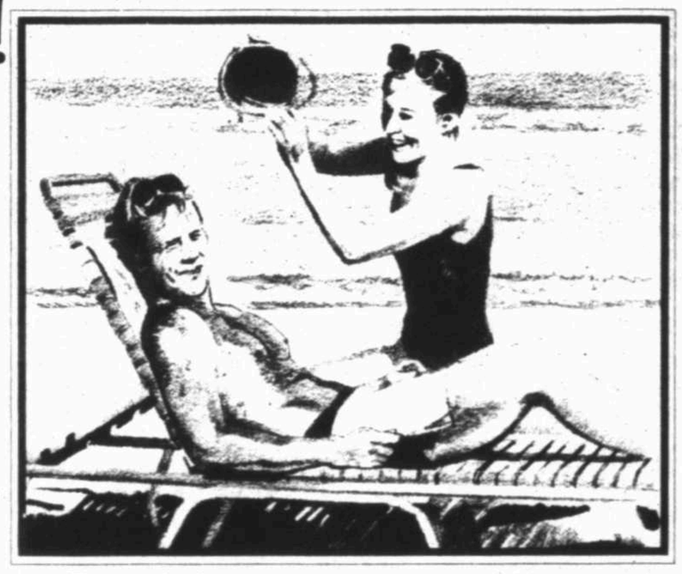

Bjarne Riis of Denmark won the stage with a final sprint among a group of seven that had broken away early in the 124-mile section from Peronne to Chalons Sur Marnes in northeast France. He was timed in 4 hours, 28 minutes, 11 seconds. Maximilian Sciandri of Italy finished second followed by Museeuw, both in the same time as the winner.

Cipollini, who rides for GB-MG as does Museeuw, finished 10th, 2:29 back.

In the overall standings, Museeuw had a 39-second lead over Alvaro Mejia of Colombia, who finished fourth Saturday.

"It's the most emotional event in my career," Museeuw said.

Associated Press

The first half of the baseball season provided a little bit of everything for everyone except Anthony Young. He ended up with nothing.

There were Cecil Fielder's 480-feet plus rooftop home runs, .400 hitters, huge crowds and even some good races. In the American League, it seems nearly every team still has a chance to be in the playoffs.

The New York Mets and Young have come to symbolize just how unforgiving the game of baseball can be. New York couldn't even stay with expansion Florida and Colorado.

Young has lost 26 straight decisions, 12 this season. At times, the last-place Mets have resembled the expansion team of 1962, going 64 games without winning two games in a row.

"Am I that bad?" Young said.

If the right-hander, 4-31 lifetime, makes about 15 more starts he has a real shot of going at least 0-25. But most losses in a season is one record Young won't set. That mark is by John Coleman, who went 11-48 in 1883 for Philadelphia of the National League.

Young's next chance at making NL history is to go 0-13 at the start of a season.

Others have been faring better.

If Andres Galarraga or John Olerud go on to hit .400 this season, they figure to be MVP winners. Don't count on it, though.

Barry Bonds hit home runs in his first two games with San Francisco and has been virtually unstoppable since as the Giants have built a comfortable lead over struggling Atlanta in the NL West.

The Braves were picked by almost everyone to win their third straight NL West title after assembling a pitching staff of Tom Glavine, Greg Maddux, Steve Avery, John Smoltz and Pete Smith. The biggest question was, which Brave would win the Cy Young Award?

Glavine is still in the running, but the other pitchers have often been victims of no run support. Meanwhile, John Burkett is a 13-game winner for the Giants with Bill Swift and Bud Black also winning.

The Philadelphia Phillies, led by Lenny Dykstra, Darren Daulton and John Kruk, got off to one of the best starts in team history and held an 11½-game lead on June 14.

But pitchers Tommy Greene, Curt Schilling and Terry Mulholland have slumped as the Phillies' lead over the St. Louis Cardinals has been getting smaller and smaller.

Perhaps the Phillies haven't been getting enough sleep lately.

The umpires for the Padres-Phillies doubleheader on July 2 let the second game start at 1:28 a.m. on July 3 after nearly six hours of rain delays in the opener. The second game ended at 4:40 a.m.

On Wednesday, the Dodgers and Phillies played 20 innings at Veterans Stadium with the game ending about 2 a.m.

In the AL East, it's getting to the point where no one can grab the division by the throat and get a lead.

The Detroit Tigers hit home runs all over the place at the start of the season, winning 20-4 against Oakland and 20-3 over Seattle in the second week. But, with the exception of Fielder, the hitting went into a little slump in June and the pitching didn't hold.

The defending champion Toronto Blue Jays had a chance to get a comfortable lead. So did the New York Yankees. But both teams are struggling with pitching now and it looks like this race is heading to the last couple of weeks.

The AL West is a seven-team race heading into the All-Star break. The Chicago White Sox have the best overall talent but just haven't been able to put a long winning streak together.

Since manager Hal McRae ripped up his office, the Kansas City Royals have been fighting for first place with California, Texas and injury-plagued Seattle.

Chris Bosio pitched the season's only no-hitter for the Mariners against Boston on April 22. In his next start, he broke his collar bone in a collision at first base and missed another 3½ weeks when he reinjured his shoulder in an brawl at Baltimore on June 6.

Speaking of injuries, the Rangers' chances of winning in the West were severely damaged when Jose Canseco decided hitting long home runs wasn't enough.

Canseco, making his first appearance as a major league pitcher, gave up three runs on two hits and three walks in Texas' 15-1 loss at Boston on May 29. "I left all my good stuff in the bullpen," Canseco said.

Earlier in the season in Cleveland, a ball hit Canseco on the head and bounced over the right-field wall for a home run. X-rays showed nothing.

AL hopes to extend All-Star win streak

BALTIMORE (AP) — The American League already has its longest winning streak in the All-Star game, and will try to make it six in a row Tuesday night.

Does it mean anything?

"I don't think the talent in this league is any better," AL manager Cito Gaston of Toronto said. "When you've got the best players in the game, any number of guys are capable of coming through, whether it's a pitcher or a hitter.

"I just think over the last few years, our league has performed in the All-Star game and they haven't. But things could turn around and they could win five in a row. They've done it before."

The National League has done even better than that. Led by Pete Rose, Hank Aaron, Roberto Clemente, Willie Mays, Johnny Bench and Mike Schmidt, the NL won 11 in a row and 19 of 20 from 1963-1982.

Back then, the NL players believed they were better. They thought they had more speed, partly because they had more players who excelled on artificial turf, and were convinced they had more of a will to win. Remember Rose running over Ray Fosse?

The AL, meanwhile, was perceived as having a bunch of slow, plodding power hitters, like Harmon Killebrew, Boog Powell, Frank Howard and Bill Freehan.

Those days, though, are long gone.

Last year, the junior circuit won its fifth straight All-Star game 13-6, helped by consecutive hits in the first inning by Cal Ripken Jr., Ken Griffey Jr. and Sandy Alomar Jr.

Not since the start of the series in 1933, when the AL had Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig, and into the 1940s, when it had Ted Williams and Joe DiMaggio, has the league enjoyed so much success.

The AL's latest surge began in 1988 with a 2-1 victory at Cincinnati and continued the next year behind Bo Jackson at Anaheim. Wins at Wrigley Field and the SkyDome followed, although the NL still leads overall 37-25-1.

Sure, the All-Star game is an exhibition, and those involved always claim the result does not indicate much.

But look beyond which team has been winning the game recently, and see who's been winning them, and some strengths show up.

Griffey, 23, went 3-for-3 last July at San Diego and was the game's MVP. He is 5-for-8 in All-Star play and, more importantly, 3-for-3 in wins.

Roberto Alomar, 25, who will start his second straight game at second base Tuesday night, got a hit and stole two bases last year. His backup, Carlos Baerga, 24, had an RBI double.

Texas catcher Ivan Rodriguez, 21, will make his second appearance this year, and Rangers outfielder Juan Gonzalez, 23, will make his first. They will be joined on the All-Star team by Toronto first baseman John Olerud, Baltimore pitcher Mike Mussina and Detroit shortstop Travis Fryman, each 24.

The NL has some young stars, too, such as Gary Sheffield and Mike Piazza, each 24, and Steve Avery, 23. The NL's young talent, however, has not been as strong in recent years and has not shown up so brightly in the All-Star game.

Even so, many involved in baseball do not think the All-Star game is a good barometer of which team has the best talent.

"There isn't anything to it," Baltimore manager Johnny Oates said. "Why did the AL win the first 50, then the NL win the next 50? Who knows? It's useless to talk about it."

Jefferies named to NL roster

ST LOUIS (AP) — Cardinals first baseman Gregg Jefferies was added to the National League All-Star team on Saturday.

Jefferies started Saturday night's game with the fourth-best batting average in the NL, .347, and was the league-leader in hits with 111.

He also ranks among the NL top 10 in runs scored (54), total bases (166), slugging percentage (.519), on-base percentage (.394) and stolen bases (27).

Jefferies takes the spot of injured San Francisco second baseman Robby Thompson.

Astro receives praise for first half success

By Jim Donaghy
AP Baseball Writer

Some moments and players to think about from the first half of the season:

MID-SEASON AWARDS:

NL MVP: Can there be any doubt? Barry Bonds is among the league leaders in 11 major offensive categories. Most importantly, he has the San Francisco Giants in first place in the NL West with a comfortable lead over Atlanta.

NL ROOKIE OF THE YEAR: Mike Piazza of the Dodgers might be the best catcher to come along since Johnny Bench, and perhaps the best for the Dodgers since Roy Campanella. Piazza hits for power, average and drives in runs. He's also improving defensively.

NL CY YOUNG AWARD WINNER: It's still too close to call with John Burkett of the Giants, Tom Glavineof the Braves and Lee Smith of the Cardinals among the leaders right now.

NL MANAGER: San Francisco rookie manager Dusty Baker has kept the Giants in first place since the start of the season, handling the pitching staff just right.

BIGGEST SURPRISE: Houston's Darryl Kile entered the weekend with a 10 -1 record.

BIGGEST FLOP: Who else but Anthony Young? He's 0-12 and has lost a major-league record 26 straight decisions. His teammates on the Mets haven't provided much help, scoring 25 runs in Young's 14 games as a starter during the streak.

AL MVP: It's hard to deny this honor again to Cecil Fielder, but right now John Olerud of the Blue Jays has a slight lead after hitting .400 much of the first half. Olerud is among the offensive leaders in 12 major offensive categories. ... Ken Griffey Jr. is still in running, too.

AL ROOKIE OF THE YEAR: Not considered a stong field. A favorite among the writers might turn out to be 31-year-old second baseman Rich Amaral of the Seattle Mariners.

New TV deal highlights actions during first half

By Jim Donagy
AP Baseball Writer

A lot of the big news made during the first half of the baseball season occurred off the field. Some was controversial, and some was sad.

Fans are turning out in record numbers at the ballpark, but the continued decline in the ratings has caused the owners to take some drastic measures.

Owners have decided that, starting next season, there will be eight teams in the playoffs, with regional TV coverage. The network package will be shared by ABC and NBC, with each broadcasting six games after the All-Star break.

Under the new deal, baseball is paid nothing up front and annual revenue from the networks figures to be only half of this season's $250 million-plus from CBS, meaning $7 million per team instead of more than $15 million.

As a result of the loss of revenues from network and cable TV, the owners will try to make major changes in the economic structure of the game. Baseball's negotiators want to eliminate the costly arbitration system and introduce a salary cap system similar to the one used by the NBA. There might also be revenue sharing among the owners.

There's even a possibilty the owners will make all players free agents after every season instead of going with risky long-term contracts. Just ask Milwaukee owner Bud Selig about Teddy Higuera or Kansas City about Mark Davis.

The players' association has been successful the last two decades at getting what it wants and keeping it.

Many baseball people are pessimistic about next season, expecting some sort of interruption either in spring training or next August. The owners have no strike insurance this time, either.

Already, San Diego and Pittsburgh have implemented a major cost-cutting strategy. The Pirates fired two executives and the Padres offered their fans rebates after trading NL batting champion Gary Sheffield.

For all the problems that baseball faces today, the deaths this month of former Dodgers Roy Campanella and Don Drysdale were reminders that their era was not quite so golden.

Campanella was the second black to play in the National League, following in the difficult footsteps of Jackie Robinson. Black players had to sleep in different hotels and eat in different restaurants than their white teammates.

Drysdale and Sandy Koufax, both destined for the Hall of Fame, had to hold out to get more than $100,000 each. It was a time when the owners had total control and took advantage of the players' weak financial position.

NFL teams begin training camps this week

Timothy W. Smith
N.Y. Times News Service

In the new era of National Football League free agency, bringing hope for rebirth and resurgence, perhaps there is no more appropriate team than the Los Angeles Raiders to be first to open their training camp.

The Raiders report to camp at Oxnard, Calif., Sunday afternoon. They will play Green Bay in the Hall of Fame game at Canton, Ohio on July 31.

The Raiders' owner, Al Davis, has a history of taking the rebels, free spirits and outcasts from other teams and trying to meld them into champions. The formula hasn't worked since 1980, the last year that the Raiders won a Super Bowl. But with the advent of free agency, Davis, and the rest of the NFL owners, have a different route to take to reach the Super Bowl.

As the other 27 training camps open during the next two weeks, familiar faces will inhabit different uniforms — all in search of a Super Bowl championship.

Several established starting quarterbacks changed teams. Jeff Hostetler left the Giants for the Raiders. Boomer Esiason was traded from Cincinnati to the Jets.

Jim McMahon, drifting between languishing and flourishing since leaving Chicago, is getting a fresh chance in Minnesota. Bobby Hebert, a starter in New Orleans, will be in a dogfight in Atlanta with starter Chris Miller.

And everyone wants to know if Joe Montana can work the same magic in Kansas City that he did in San Francisco where he helped guide the 49ers to four Super Bowl championships.

After criss-crossing the country in search of a new team, Eagles defensive end Reggie White landed in Green Bay where he joins a team that he compares to the young 49ers of the 1980s. Packers Coach Mike Holmgren, a former 49ers offensive coordinator, hopes White is on the mark with his assessment.

And there are five new coaches trying to do what their predecessors didn't do. The Bears' Dave Wannstedt, the former defensive coordinator for Dallas, hopes he has brought some of the winning formula the Cowboys had in Super Bowl XXVII to Chicago.

Richie Petibon was promoted from defensive coordinator to head coach in Washington after Joe Gibbs resigned. Broncos defensive coordinator Wade Phillips was promoted when Dan Reeves was squeezed out in Denver. Reeves is now in New York trying to restore the luster that the Giants had under Bill Parcells.

NATIONAL CONFERENCE

Atlanta (8-10, missed playoffs)
KEY CHANGES — The departure of free-agent offensive linemen Houston Hoover (Browns) and Bill Fralic (Lions) left some holes to fill. But they picked up valuable offensive help with quarterback Bobby Hebert (Saints) and running back Eric Dickerson (Raiders). The defensive line got help with the acquisition of Pierce Holt (49ers) and Jumpy Geathers (Redskins).
MAJOR CHALLENGE — Hebert and Chris Miller, returning from a knee injury, will fight it out for the starting quarterback job. Both players are established starters.

Chicago (9-7, missed playoffs)
KEY CHANGES — Fullbacks Brad Muster and Craig (Ironhead) Heyward did a free agency flip-flop, with Muster going to New Orleans and Heyward landing in Chicago. By drafting Curtis Conway of Southern Cal in the first round the Bears upgraded their speed at wide receiver.
MAJOR CHALLENGE— New coach Dave Wannstedt will be taking basically the same tired team as last year and trying to infuse them with some vitality and life.

Dallas — (13-3, beat Buffalo in Super Bowl)
KEY CHANGES — Quarterback Steve Beuerlein went to Phoenix as a free agent and the Cowboys lost a valuable backup. They signed Hugh Millen, a starter with the Patriots last year, to replace Beuerlein.
MAJOR CHALLENGE — With quarterback Troy Aikman coming off back surgery, he won't get a lot of work in camp and may not be ready for the start of the season. So, Millen will have to be groomed to take over if Aikman can't answer the bell.

Detroit — (5-11, missed playoffs)
KEY CHANGES — Jerry Ball, a three-time Pro Bowl nosetackle, was traded to Cleveland, cornerbacks Mel Jenkins and Sheldon White left via free agency. The Lions beefed up their offensive line by getting free agents David Richards (Chargers), Bill Fralic (Falcons) and Dave Lutz (Chiefs) and landed Pat Swilling, a four-time Pro Bowl linebacker, from the Saints in a draft-day trade.
MAJOR CHALLENGES — Is this the camp that quarterback Andre Ware, a Heisman Trophy winner in 1989 and the Lions first-round pick in 1990, steps up to grap the starting job from Rodney Peete and Erik Kramer?

Green Bay — (9-7, missed playoffs)
KEY CHANGES — Free safety Chuck Cecil signed with Phoenix as a free agent, but was replaced by Mike Prior from Indianapolis and running back Vince Workman went to Tampa Bay as a free agent. Running back John Stephens was picked up in a trade with New England. Free agents Reggie White (Eagles) at defensive end, guard Harry Galbreath (Miami), nosetackle Bill Maas (Chiefs) will fill some big needs. Ken O'Brien picked up in a trade with the Jets will back up Brett Favre.
MAJOR CHALLENGE — With Favre coming off a brilliant first season, Coach Mike Holmgren has to refine, polish and hone the offense. White, working wherever he wants, will have to get comfortable with a new cast.

L.A. Rams — (6-10, missed playoffs)
KEY CHANGES — Lost a valuable pass rusher in linebacker Kevin Green, who went to Buffalo, but picked up Bills linebacker Shane Conlan as a free agent. And they lost a good pass protector in tackle Gerald Perry, but picked up Irv Eatman, the Jets free agent tackle. Signed defensive end Fred Stokes from Washington to help with their pass rush.
MAJOR CHALLENGE — Coach Chuck Knox wants to know if Jerome Bettis, the 243-pound monster fullback and the Rams first-round pick out of Notre Dame, is the type of beef he needs for his Ground Chuck offense.

Minnesota — (11-5, lost to Washington in playoffs)
KEY CHANGES — Lost two starters off the offensive line to free agency — center Kirk Loudermilk and guard Brian Habib — and free-agent defensive end Al Noga signed with Washington. An intriguing signing was that of Eagles quarterback Jim McMahon. By signing free-agent linebacker Fred Strickland and cornerback Izel Jenkins the Vikings have strengthened their defense.
MAJOR CHALLENGE — McMahon is the man in the eyes of Coach Dennis Green. McMahon will have to spend some time convincing his teammates that he deserves that distinction.

New Orleans — (11-5, lost to Philadelphia in the N.F.C. playoffs)
KEY CHANGES — Some big losses in All-Pro linebacker Pat Swilling, who was traded to Detroit, fullback Craig (Ironhead) Heyward, who signed with Chicago as a free agent, and quarterback Bobby Hebert, who went to Atlanta as a free agent. Saints added free-agent quarterback Wade Wilson (Atlanta) and fullback Brad Muster (Chicago) to help the offense.
MAJOR CHALLENGE — They need to find a starting quarterback among three unlikely candidates — Wilson, Steve Walsh, who hasn't played since 1991, and Mike Buck, who threw four passes last year.

New York Giants — (6-10, missed playoffs)
KEY CHANGES — Quarterback Jeff Hostetler went west (Raiders), receiver Mark Ingram went south (Miami) and linebacker Carl Banks went to an old rival (Washington). Two top-flight receivers in Mark Jackson (Denver) and Mike Sherrard (49ers) join some solid free-agent defensive players in linebacker Michael Brooks (Denver) and linebacker Carlton Bailey (Bills).
MAJOR CHALLENGE — Finding out whether linebacker Lawrence Taylor, coming off surgery on a torn Achilles tendon, still has it and finding someone to replace Banks at outside linebacker.

Philadelphia — (11-5, lost to Dallas in N.F.C. playoffs)
KEY CHANGES — Defensive end Reggie White's departure as a free agent to Green Bay leaves a cavernous hole on the defensive line. They also lost a knowledgeable backup in quarterback Jim McMahon (Vikings) and a solid tackle in Ron Heller (Miami). Tim Harris, a 49ers free agent, could offset the loss of White. Free agent tight end Mark Bavaro was a key acquisition.
MAJOR CHALLENGE — Developing some depth at quarterback for starter Randall Cunningham and trying to find a way to compensate for the departure of White on the defensive line.

Phoenix — (4-12, missed playoffs)
KEY CHANGES — Pro Bowl safety Tim McDonald went to San Francisco as a free agent and running back Johnny Johnson was traded to the Jets on draft day. By signing free-agent quarterback Steve Beuerlein (Dallas), receiver Gary Clark (Washington) and drafting running back Garrison Hearst in the first round, the Cardinals instantly gave their offense a jolt.
MAJOR CHALLENGE — Trying to meld all the new offensive talent that they've signed into a cohesive unit and filling the hole left by McDonald.

San Francisco — (14-2, lost to Dallas in NFC championship game)
KEY CHANGES — Quarterback Joe Montana was traded to the Chiefs. The defensive line took a big hit when Pierce Holt (Atlanta) and Tim Harris (Eagles) left via free agency, but receiver Mike Sherrard's departure to the Giants shouldn't hurt that much. Safety Tim McDonald, a free agent from Phoenix, should give the secondary some juice.
MAJOR CHALLENGE — Getting some of the younger defensive linemen to step up and fill the void left by Holt and Harris and finding out whether Steve Young can run the offense without Montana looking over his shoulder.

Tampa Bay — (5-11, missed playoffs)
KEY CHANGES — Receiver Mark Carrier and quarterback Vinny Testaverde were the only big losses. The Bucs added experience with tackle Anthony Munoz (Bengals), beefed up their secondary by signing cornerback Martin Mayhew (Redskins) and safety Barney Bussey (Bengals) and added linebacker Hardy Nickerson (Steelers).
MAJOR CHALLENGE — Since Testaverde left, the Bucs have been trying to find a starting quarterback. It will be decided in camp between Steve DeBerg, Mark Vlasic and Craig Erickson.

Washington — (9-7, lost to 49ers in the NFC playoffs)
KEY CHANGES — Linebacker Wilber Marshall was traded to Houston and receiver Gary Clark went to Phoenix as a free agent. Tim McGee, a free agent from Cincinnati, was signed to offset the departure of Clark.
MAJOR CHALLENGE — Quarterback Mark Rypien is coming off shoulder surgery and will be pushed by Cary Conklin in camp. Receiver Desmond Howard, last year's first-round pick, will try to move into a starting role.

AMERICAN CONFERENCE

Buffalo — (11-5, lost to Dallas in Super Bowl)
KEY CHANGES — Two big losses on defense with the departure of free-agent linebackers Carlton Bailey (Giants) and Shane Conlan (L.A. Rams) and on offense with tackle Will Wolford going to Indianapolis. Acquired defensive end Oliver Barnett from the Falcons.
MAJOR CHALLENGE — Finding an adequate replacement for Wolford, one of the premier left tackles in the league, and trying to restore depth in the linebacker corps.

Cincinnati — (5-11, missed playoffs)
KEY CHANGES — Receiver Tim McGee signed with the Redskins and cornerback Eric Thomas signed with the Jets, but the Bengals picked up cornerback Mike Brim from the Jets. John Copeland, the first-round pick in the 1993 draft, could be a valuable asset to the defensive line.
MAJOR CHALLENGE — As a rookie last year, quarterback David Klingler took over for veteran Boomer Esiason after 11 games, but he was still a raw talent. He'll need more seasoning before the start of this season.

Cleveland — (7-9, missed playoffs)
KEY CHANGES — Tight end Mark Bavaro signed as a free agent with the Eagles, but the Browns picked up some valuable free agents in guard Houston Hoover (Atlanta), receiver Mark Carrier (Bucs) and quarterback Vinny Testaverde (Bucs).
MAJOR CHALLENGE — Quarterback Bernie Kosar fractured his ankle in the season finale and had surgery to repair it. Can he carry the load or will Testaverde be the man?

Denver — (8-8, missed playoffs)
KEY CHANGES — Running back Gaston Green was traded to the Raiders, receiver Mark Jackson and linebacker Michael Brooks signed as free agents with the Giants. Running back Rod Bernstine, a free agent from San Diego, and tackle Don Maggs, a free agent from Houston, should help the Broncos offense.
MAJOR CHALLENGE — Wade Phillips, the Broncos former defensive coordinator, was promoted after Dan Reeves left. Phillips wants to put his stamp on the team, emphasizing timing-route passes on offense.

Houston — (11-5, lost to Buffalo in playoffs)
KEY CHANGES — Tackle Don Maggs, a free agent, signed with Denver. The two big pluses might be the addition of Buddy Ryan as defensive coordinator and linebacker Wilber Marshall, who came in a trade with Washington.
MAJOR CHALLENGE — The onus will be on the defense to learn Ryan's complicated attacking style of defense, which was his signature in Chicago and Philadelphia.

Indianapolis — (9-7, missed playoffs)
KEY CHANGES — Receiver Billy Brooks left for Buffalo and safety Mike Prior went to Green Bay as free agents, but the Colts made some big gains by getting tackle Will Wolford (Bills), center Kirk Loudermilk (Vikings) and speedy receiver Aaron Cox (Rams).
MAJOR CHALLENGE — Defensive tackle Steve Emtman, the No. 1 pick over all in last year's draft, tore the anterior cruciate ligament in his knee and missed the last seven games. He will be trying work his way back from the injury.

Kansas City — (10-7, lost to San Diego in playoffs)
KEY CHANGES — Joe Montana's arrival, via trade with the 49ers in April, has overshadowed everything else here. Running back Marcus Allen joined the Chiefs as a free agent.
MAJOR CHALLENGE — The Chiefs will try to work the bugs out of their offensive system installed by new offensive coordinator Paul Hackett. Montana should make the training camp transition much easier for the others.

L.A. Raiders — (7-9, missed playoffs)
KEY CHANGES — Losing Ronnie Lott to the Jets could hurt. Quarterback Jay Schroeder went to Cincinnati as a free agent and running backs Marcus Allen and Eric Dickerson left for the Chiefs and Falcons, respectively. The Raiders added quarterback Jeff Hostetler (Giants), tackle Gerald Perry (Rams) and running back Gaston Green (Denver).
MAJOR CHALLENGE — Hostetler has to hit the ground running in a style of offense that is much different from the one he was involved in for eight years with the Giants.

Miami — (11-5, lost to Buffalo in the AFC championship game)
KEY CHANGES — Fullback Tony Paige, a receiving threat out of the backfield, retired. The Dolphins beefed up their receiving corps getting Irving Fryar (Patriots) and Mark Ingram (Giants) as free agents, and drafting O. J. McDuffie in the first round.
MAJOR CHALLENGE — Quarterback Dan Marino will be trying to find the same groove with his new set of receivers that he had with Mark Clayton and Mark Duper.

New England — (2-14, missed playoffs)
KEY CHANGES — Receiver Irving Fryar just couldn't take it anymore and went south to Miami and quarterback Hugh Millen wasn't in the plans and went to Dallas. Quarterback Drew Bledsoe, the No. 1 pick, is the most exciting of the new crop of Patriots.
MAJOR CHALLENGE — Coach Bill Parcells will be looking for a few good men, some hard hitters, and a solid quarterback to emerge before the season starts.

New York Jets — (4-12, missed playoffs)
KEY CHANGES — Free-agent tackle Irv Eatman wasted no time signing with the Rams and his loss was not offset. The Jets filled some big holes by trading for quarterback Boomer Esiason and picking up free agents Leonard Marshall (Giants), Ronnie Lott (Raiders) and Eric Thomas (Bengals).
MAJOR CHALLENGE — Trying to fit all the new pieces, including rookie linebacker Marvin Jones, into the right places on defense could be tough. Esiason will have to prove beyond a shadow of a doubt that he's the best man for the quarterback job.

Pittsburgh — (11-5, lost to Buffalo in AFC playoffs)
KEY CHANGES — The Steelers lost two solid linebackers, Hardy Nickerson and Jerrol Williams, and a veteran guard, Tunch Ilkin, via free agency. But they added a pass rusher in Kevin Greene (Rams) and picked up quarterback Mike Tomczak (Green Bay) to provide valuable backup to Neil O'Donnell.
MAJOR CHALLENGE — Trying to maintain everything they gained last season, without losing a step, is going to be the trick for training camp.

San Diego — (11-5, lost to Miami in AFC playoffs)
KEY CHANGES — Two big losses were running back Rod Bernstein (Denver) and guard Dave Richards (Detroit) who left as free agents. The offensive line was beefed up with the addition of Stan Brock from New Orleans and Joe Milinichik from the Rams.
MAJOR CHALLENGE — Quarterback Stan Humphries, who took over after John Friesz was sidelined for the season with a knee injury, has been given the starting job. But Friesz isn't going away quietly.

Seattle — (2-14, missed playoffs)
KEY CHANGES — They matched an offer from the Jets to keep running back Chris Warren, who rushed for more than 1,000 yards last season, which might have been their best move. The addition of offensive linemen Ray Donaldson (Oilers) and Mitch Ferrote (Bills) may or may not solve their problems with this unit.
MAJOR CHALLENGE — The hope is that the competition between Dan McGwire and first-round pick Rick Mirer will produce a bonafide NFL quarterback.

COWBOYS: Dallas opens training camp on Friday

(From 1C)

"I guess it's a lot like protecting rock stars from fans," said John Lucas, vice president of student services at St. Edward's and one of the camp's chief organizers.

"With the number of people expected this year, we became concerned and changed the fencing system to control the crowds. People were always trying to get closer and closer to the players."

It seems like a century since the Cowboys trudged to Austin four years ago for training camp after a 1-15 season.

If the Cowboys weren't worth sweating for in the city's jalapeno-like heat back then, they certainly are now.

These days, America's Team means something again. And true fans, borderline fans and even people who couldn't care less but want to be trendy and spy on the Super Bowl champs are lining up to melt with the players through drill after drill at the monthlong camp.

Many of the changes have been designed with the fans' best interests at heart, such as added security, more parking and plenty of extra vendors selling food and Cowboys' memorabilia.

"We are anticipating the crowds will be significantly larger," Lucas said.

Houstonian vows start of league

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — Jim Chambers insists the Continental Football League of America, with teams in Mobile and Birmingham, will take the field next month.

But questions have been raised about the Houston tax accountant's background, including a previous league he was involved with, and whether this semipro circuit will ever snap the ball.

"Considering they do not have an owner here or a place to play and they plan to start playing Aug. 7, they should have an exciting month," said Bob Kirby, president of the South Alabama Better Business Bureau.

Chambers, who identifies himself as president of the CFLA, has planned an organizational meeting in Mobile on Sunday. He said the league will have teams in 20 Southern and Midwest cities.

In addition to Mobile and Birmingham, other cities supposedly lined up for the CFLA's inaugural season include Houston, Beaumont-Lamar, Fort Worth, Dallas, San Antonio and Austin.

Neighborhood youngsters race across the Olympic symbols Saturday as the groundbreaking ceremony for the 1996 Olympic Stadium in Atlanta was held.

Organizers break ground for new Olympic stadium

ATLANTA (AP) — Without a shovel in sight and despite about 50 demonstrators who don't want the structure in their neighborhood, Olympic organizers broke ground Saturday for the $207 million stadium that will be the centerpiece of the 1996 Games.

The stadium will be built in a parking lot across the street from Atlanta-Fulton County Stadium. After the Olympics, it will be converted into a baseball stadium for the Atlanta Braves.

The stadium, which will be the site of the opening and closing ceremonies and track and field events, is scheduled to be completed in the summer of 1995.

Some 1,000 people showed up in 90-degree heat for the one-hour ceremony, including the demonstrators, who held up signs declaring opposition of the stadium in their neighborhood.

The protestors jeered and chanted "sold out," "sold out" during speeches by city and state leaders. The list of dignitaries included Gov. Zell Miller, Mayor Maynard Jackson, former Olympic gold medalist Wilma Rudolph, Atlanta Committee for the Olympic Games chief Billy Payne and ACOG co-chairman Andrew Young, the city's former mayor.

"This is a great day," Young told the crowd. "We're on time, on schedule and within budget."

Young was mayor of Atlanta in September 1990 when the city won the right to host the Games.

"Today is a day of celebration," Jackson said. "Tomorrow we take our place on the world stage for peace through sport."

Eight officials then got into earth-movers — no shovels — and picked up dirt from a 20-foot by 40-foot mound in the middle of the parking lot, symbolizing the start of construction.

The Rev. Joseph Boone, retired pastor of Rush Memorial Congregational Church in Atlanta and an opponent of the stadium, tried to speak after the last dignitary left the stage. But the microphone was turned off and he was drowned out by the engines from the earth movers and the band playing.

Boone criticized city leaders for being insensitive to the communities surrounding the stadium.

ACOG had hoped to begin site preparation for the 85,000-seat stadium in May. But the project was delayed when city and county officials refused to go along with the original 25-year lease negotiated with the Braves.

The team and city officials eventually reached a compromise, reducing the number of parking spaces for the stadium and increasing the team's rent.

Witherspoon continues climb back to Olympics

HOUSTON (AP) — Nearly a year later, Mark Witherspoon still sees himself crumpled on the Olympic Stadium track in Barcelona.

It's that picture of pain he's trying to beat as he recovers from the ruptured right Achilles' tendon and sets his sights on the 1996 Olympic Games in Atlanta.

Several months sooner than predicted, he has returned from an injury that threatened the career of one of the world's best sprinters. "I'm going to be at Atlanta in '96, competing in the Olympics," says Witherspoon, "and run one year after that.

"I made the Olympics and that is everyone's goal, but the injury took a lot of the good feeling away," he said. "God is testing my patience."

Progress is slow at times. Witherspoon finds he can't push too hard, too fast.

The latest setback, a cramped left hamstring, forced him to pull up in the first round of the 100 meters last month in the U.S. national championships in Eugene, Ore.

It was only his third race since his injury at the 1992 Olympic Games, and the incident cost him a chance to qualify for the 1993 World Championships.

"If I had stayed healthy, this would be my last season," says Witherspoon. "It's all about goals. God put me here for goals. They are imbedded in my brain."

Witherspoon's wife Rhonda is now training as a triple jumper with the University of Houston's Tom Tellez, who also coaches Witherspoon. Rhonda and their 2-year-old daughter, Marie, keep his mind off the track.

At the U.S. Olympic Trials last summer in New Orleans, Witherspoon appeared at his peak. He was faster than Carl Lewis and Leroy Burrell, his more publicized Santa Monica Track Club teammates.

Cruising through the rounds of the 100 meters, Witherspoon clocked 10.09 in the final, second by inches to Dennis Mitchell, who had the same time.

At Barcelona, Witherspoon placed second in his opening heat in 10.27, then led his second-round race in 10.19.

Witherspoon's injured tendon, which was torn in two, was repaired by Houston surgeon Don Baxter. About nine months later, in late May, Witherspoon returned to the track for the first time.

Witherspoon intends to compete in the second stage of the European season later this month. "I don't want to go to Europe and have to hold back," he says. "I want to be able to run all out."

Kenyan sets world record, Yanks 1-2 at Bislett Games

OSLO, Norway (AP) — Yobes Ondieki of Kenya became the first man to run the 10,000 meters under 27 minutes, clocking 26:58.38 at the Mobil Bislett Games Grand Prix track and field meet Saturday.

Ondieki slashed more than nine seconds off the previous mark of 27:07.91, set by countryman Richard Chelimo at Stockholm, Sweden, on Monday.

It was the 50th world record since 1924 at Bislett Stadium, billed as the "world record track."

Ondieki posted split times well below those Chelimo had at Stockholm throughout Saturday's race as he and fellow Kenyan William Sigei set the pace. Ondieki then took the lead for good with eight laps left after clocking 13:28 at 5,000 meters.

"I know I was capable of breaking the world record tonight," said Ondieki, competing in his first 10,000 of the year. "I'm in such good shape and I had prepared well.

Michael Johnson and Butch Reynolds gave the United States a 1-2 finish in the 400 meters. Johnson's winning time was 44.89, with Reynolds .13 seconds behind.

Merlene Ottey of Jamaica won the women's 100 in 10.94, the second-fastest time of the year behind American Gail Devers' 10.82.

"I'm pleased with the time," she said. "It's a step in the right direction."

Gwen Torrence of the United States finished second in 10.98 and Irina Privalova of Russia third in 11.15.

Perfect Peace

Text by Kes Gilhome

There are very few houses which can be called "one of a kind", but this delightful home tucked away in Trinity Estates is truly unique. This four bedroom house is built around a lovely heated swimming pool on a half acre lot, providing light, space and a lot of privacy. The patio and pool are visible from virtually every room in the house, giving the property a feeling of peace and tranquility that is rare to find in a town house. Very good insulation and thick walls not only conspire to keep any traffic noise out, but utilities are much lower than one would expect from a house of this size. Providing a haven from the stresses of life was the obvious intention of the builder - and he succeeded.

The formal living room contains many of the features that make this house a truly wonderful place to live. A wall of plantation shutters which are controllable as well as supremely elegant varies the light and view which floods in from the pool area. A wall of adjustable built-in shelves provide plenty of display and storage for all of ones treasures, and room is finished with a marble fireplace as well as a charming oriental screen.

The flow of the house continues from the formal living area through the brick floored entry into the formal dining room which is conveniently located next to the kitchen. Large enough for a dining suite as well as display cabinets, this room also has a wonderful view of the pool and patio and is very light and airy.

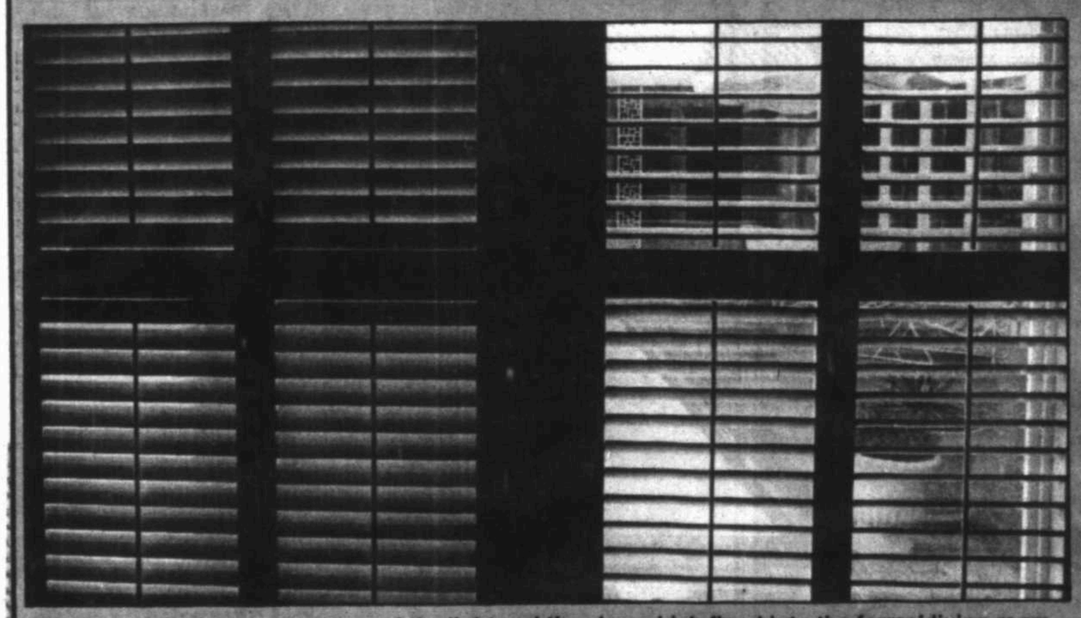

Gourmet cooks will enjoy the very large and well equipped kitchen, the enormous butcher block breakfast bar has a microwave and stove top built-in and gives the cook an extremely large work surface as well as plenty of space for informal meals. The windows along the whole length of the building are screened by curtains giving a very open plan feel to this home which conjures up images of ancient Rome, with it's cool veranda and shaded patio.

The house has a myriad of other features, the master bedroom has two bathrooms, one a functional but elegant room with a shower and plenty of storage space, the other appointed with a luxurious jacuzzi bath with an enormous walk-in closet. This standard of living is continued throughout the home with a comfortable den with built-in bar, and black slate fireplace. Paneled in a warm cherry with masses of built-in book cases, this is a cozy retreat second to none.

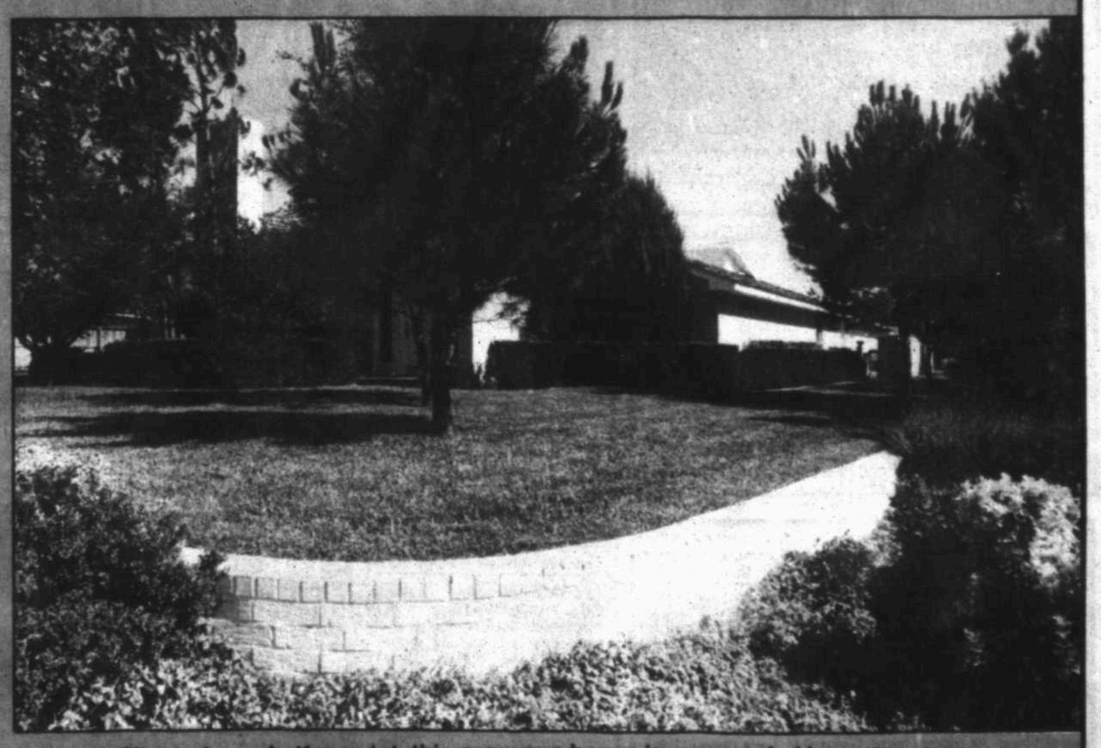

For more information about this wonderful and original family home, call LaVada Fowler at the Prudential Adobe Realtors, (694-9548).

The pool and patio are visible from virtually every room in the house.

Elegant plantation shutters control the light and the view which flood into the formal living room.

Kay Sutton
President/Midland Board of REALTORS

When the time comes to sell your home, you must decide whether to seek assistance from a real estate professional or attempt to sell it yourself. Take a tip from the Midland Association of Realtors: You can save yourself a lot of time and trouble by listing your home with a broker.

People who try to sell their own homes are denying themselves the benefit of a real estate professional who is trained to sell real estate on the terms most advantageous to the party he or she represents. "An efficient real estate broker keeps the clients' interest in mind at all times, provides frequent status reports and has a clear understanding of the housing market and financing terms," says Kay Sutton, president of the Midland Association of Realtors.

According to a 1991 survey from the National Association of realtors, nearly 80 percent of the respondents sold their homes through a real estate professional. The majority of those who decided to "go it alone" had misgivings about doing it again. Among the major problems cited were the inability to sell in the length of time desired, the inability to sell for the price sought and difficulty understanding and processing paperwork.

"To maximize exposure and minimize problems, enlist the services of a broker. Your peace of mind and a great deal of money are at stake. With professional assistance, the home selling process can be made much easier," Sutton says.

The following guidelines, suggested by the Midland Association of Realtors, can help you find a broker to meet your home selling needs.

- Choose your agent with care, as you would a lawyer or doctor. Talk with friends, neighbors and co-workers who have recently bought or sold a home in the area. What kind of service did they receive? Would they select the same broker or company again?
- Attend an open house to observe sales associates in action and judge their expertise. Were you shown the home in a professional manner? How familiar were the sales associates with the property?
- Focus on real estate companies that specialize in residential sales. Look for posted "sold" signs. A company with a successful track record warrants consideration.
- Read the real estate section of your newspaper for listings of homes in the same price as yours. This will allow you to identify companies that market homes similar to yours, and see how your home stacks up against the competition.
- Target companies located in your area of the community. They are more likely to be familiar with the area schools, businesses and places of worship--precisely the type of information that will be sought by prospective buyers.

Once you have narrowed your selection of potential listing companies to five or less, contact each for an interview. Look for the sales professional who takes copious notes on decorating, construction, landscaping and any personal property to convey with your home.

The following questions may be helpful in selecting a broker:

- How long have you been licensed?
- How long have you actively worked in the area?
- How many home sales have you closed in the last three months?
- Do you work full-time as a real estate professional?
- Can you give me names of three references whose homes you've sold lately?
- How will you work to actively seek buyers for my home?
- Will you participate in a cooperative listing service?
- Are you a member of the National Association of Realtors?
- Have you earned any specialty professional real estate designations?
- What professional courses or training sessions have you recently attended?

Additionally, be sure to ask whether the company is active in the relocation business. Transferees and others moving into your area from out of town often have little information about the new community and little time in which to find a home, so they typically work with real estate brokers. As a result, if the company you select has a relocation division, the number of prospective buyers for your home could be substantially increased.

"The size of a company, as well as its status as a franchise, independent firm or conglomerate, are all variables you should consider. However, your choice generally will be a matter of professional preference. Each variable has certain advantages to offer, but the reputation of a particular company is based on the knowledge, competence and professionalism of the individuals who work there," Sutton says.

The Midland Association of Realtors is one of more than 1,800 local boards and associations of Realtors that comprise the National Association of Realtors. As the nation's largest trade association, NAR is ":The Voice for Real Estate," representing nearly 750,000 members involved in all aspects of the real estate industry.

Langston Realtors talk about . . .

Joanne Langston

Over the past several weeks we have been talking about the many differences in buying and selling real estate in Great Britain and in the U.S. This week we will tell you a little about the background of estate agencies (real estate firms) and the significant trends that have emerged and then reversed within just the past few years.

Estate agencies in the U.K. were historically a family owned business, passed down from generation to generation over a period of a hundred or more years. A father would have established the firm, many as early as the mid 1800's, then later would have taken his adult sons into the business. This would have been repeated through the years until there were maybe 12 or more brothers, cousins, etc., each with a diluted portion of ownership. The apprenticeships and ownerships always passed to the male heirs because daughters were expected to marry and be supported by their husbands. If there were no male heirs, ownership often passed to the son-in-law. That is the reason why estate agency has almost exclusively been a male dominated field in the U.K.

This, then, was the nature of the business in 1984 when, as president elect of a national referral and relocation organization, I first became involved in negotiations for affiliation with counterpart groups in England, and the other English speaking countries. However, several events had already begun to set the state for drastic change in estate agency in the U.K.:

First extension of ownership from the one founder to many heirs, often without accompanying growth of the firm, created a situation whereby earnings were so diluted that all principals could not make a living from the business. Many partners left to pursue other occupations, either negotiating a sale of their portion of the ownership with the remaining partners, or forcing a sale of the entire firm.

Second, building and loan societies (the equivalent of our mortgage companies) began to realize that the source of their business begins with the sale; ie, if they owned the estate agency they could control where the mortgage was placed. (U.S. rules prohibit this).

I'm sure you can anticipate what happened throughout 1985 to 1990 - the big giants like Bristol and West and Black Horse went on a veritable buying spree for estate agencies. In 1985, the U.K. referral network I was working with for affiliation with our own U.S. organization had 400 to 450 member, all independently owned firms. By 1988, this figure had dropped to 200 or less; the others had sold to one of the several mega building and loan societies.

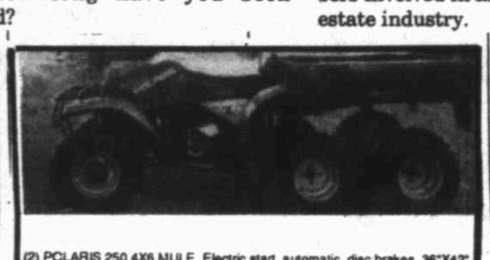

By 1990, England was experiencing a falling economy and a resultant depression in real estate. The impersonal giant firms were also realizing (1) how difficult it was to gain business in a society that reveres tradition, heritage, family, neighborhood, etc. and (2) that employee managers often did not display the same commitment and leadership in a firm as that of the previous many-generation family-member owners.

Bigger was not necessarily better! Therefore over the past 2 years, these mega agencies have done a complete about face, attempting to sell many of their offices, closing others. So you see, in less than a decade, estate agency in England has gone from smaller, long-time-family owned firms to mega corporations back to the family group!

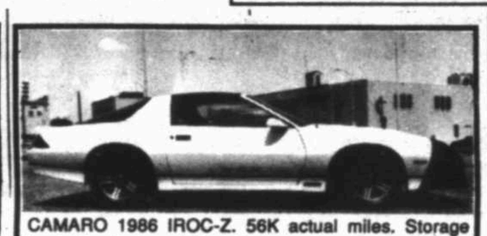

Joanne Langston is owner-broker of Langston Realtors. As president in 1985 of a national relocation referral network, she worked to finalize an association of the network with similar organizations in England, Scotland, Ireland, Australia, New Zealand and Canada and served as the first chairman of that affiliation.

PERMIAN BASIN OIL REPORT

Oil & Gas Activity/4-6E
Activity Indicators/7E
Briefs/10E

Serving 54 counties in West Texas and New Mexico

BRIEFING

Pipe racked and ready to run in a new hole.

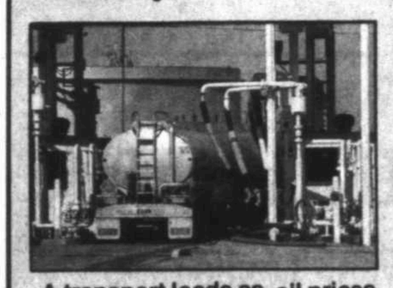

Working rigs

The rig count for the week ended July 2 remained mixed, according to Baker Hughes Inc.

The national rig count, however, continued to rally, climbing 30 during the week to 732, above last year's tally of 648.

Among the major oil producing states, Texas saw the largest increase, 12 rigs,

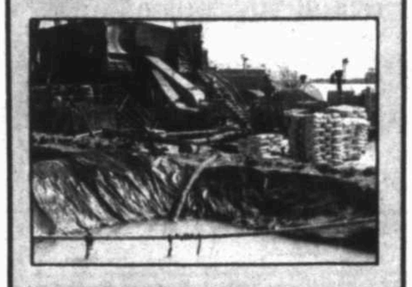

A transport loads as oil prices tumble.

Prices fall

Oil prices this week fell as the United Nations and Iraq opened talks on allowing Iraq a one-time sale of $1.6 billion in oil, to be used for humanitarian aid. While these talks have been pending since the end of the Gulf War, traders fear it could lead to additional sales, flooding an already saturated market.

On the New York Mercantile Exchange, crude futures slumped to $17.75 late in the week, while the posted price fell to $16.25 per barrel.

Natural gas prices remained steady, with the spot price at $1.79 per thousand cubic feet and the futures price on the Merc at $2.12 per Mcf.

IADC Awards

Several Permian Basin contractors fared well as the The International Association of Drilling Contractors issued safey awards this week.

Shell venture

HOUSTON (AP) — Shell Oil Co. and Pemex, Mexico's national oil company, broke ground Thursday on a $1 billion joint construction project to upgrade Shell's refinery on the Houston Ship Channel.

The conversion will allow Shell to process heavy crude received from Pemex while also meeting requirements of the U.S. Clean Air Act, Shell officials said.

Construction is expected to be completed in 1995.

Shell and Pemex are equal partners in the venture, but Shell will continue to manage the refinery, which processes 225,000 barrels of oil per day.

Texas Gov. Ann Richards, who took part in the groundbreaking ceremonies, praised the project.

"The economy will be helped by the creation of new jobs for Texas and by the significant new capital investments," she said. "This partnership symbolizes the kind of economic initiative that the North American Free Trade Agreement could encourage, which Shell and Pemex management join me in supporting."

Second half spending looks better

■ Two surveys are upbeat about activity potential for the second half of 1993.

By John Paul Pitts
Business/Oil editor

Will second-half spending pick up in the oilpatch? Two surveys released this week conclude that there is a trend in that direction if certain conditions prevail.

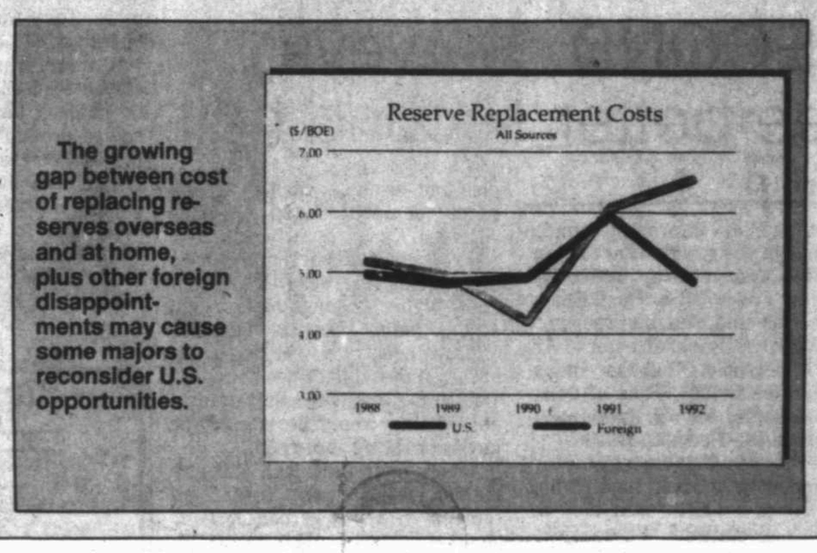

A report released this week by Solomon Brothers, a financial company, notes that some oil companies are now taking a second look at U.S. possibilities and are revising their domestic spending projections upward for the last half of 1993.

Those that will spend more this year, the report says, are Amerada Hess, BP, Conoco, Texaco and Total Minatome. Companies continuing to reflect a shift toward overseas spending are Chevron, Exxon and Mobil.

The Arthur Andersen survey of 234 U.S. companies and nine foreign oil companies says that despite downward trend lines in spending and reserve replacement, improved natural gas possibilities could prompt more spending in the second half.

The growing gap between cost of replacing reserves overseas and at home, plus other foreign disappointments may cause some majors to reconsider U.S. opportunities.

Jet pump recovers tank vapors

■ A simple device is being used by Conoco as a low-cost means of recovering tank vapors.

By John Paul Pitts
Business/Oil editor

A simple device that has been used for years in the oil patch and other industries has found a new application that is expected to help oil operators meet environmental requirements while saving money.

The device is a jet pump that utilizes produced water to suction tank vapors, that might be vented into the air from production facilities, and put them into a sales line. While the principle of the jet pump is old, the application is brand new, say Conoco officials, whose company holds the patent on the device.

First tested in 1990 in the Permian Basin, Conoco applied for the patent in 1992 and was granted an applications patent this March, said Bill Webb, Conoco area production manager and inventor of the application.

Webb said the seeds of invention for the process were planted several years ago when he was reviewing production operations at Big Lake. "We had a field that was making 300 barrels of oil and 45,000 barrels of water daily," Webb said.

"Our vapor recovery unit was down and I commented to the production foreman that it would sure be nice if we could find a way to use that water to suction the low volumes of gas from the tanks. That was the beginning."

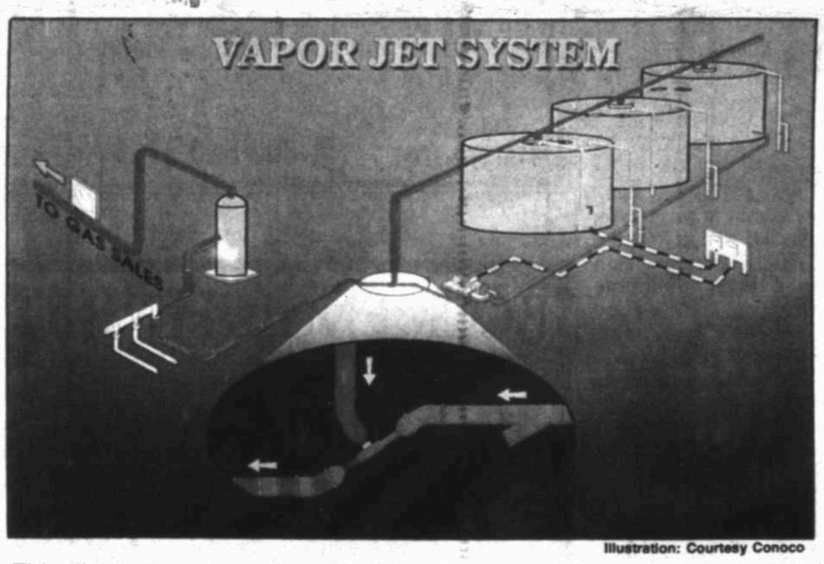

Illustration: Courtesy Conoco

This illustration shows how the jet pump uses water to recover tank vapors for sales and to meet environmental standards.

After toying with the idea in his mind, Webb came up with the idea of pumping the produced water that was being reinjected through a jet pump to pull the vapors off the tank.

"We tested the idea and found it worked better than our wildest imagination," said Webb, who then turned the idea over to Conoco Specialty Products Division in Houston to see if it was patentable. "We were surprised to learn that while the technology had been around for years and had been used in many applications, it had never been used in this application."

Now, Conoco is ready to market the application it calls the Vapor Jet Hydrocarbon Vapor Recovery System. "Interest in the Vapor Jet system has been tremendous," Webb said. "I understand Conoco Specialty Products has been deluged with calls from interested operators."

The company has recently begun to advertise in industry publications, but before that had already broken ground with advance publicity from SPE (Society of Petroleum Engineers) papers and speeches.

AAPL names PBLA top association

By Mella McEwen
Staff writer

The Permian Basin Landmen's Association has captured a number of awards, including the most prestigious honor, at the recent convention of the American Association of Professional Landmen.

The 800-member association was named Association of the Year by the AAPL, the first time the local association has won the award in its 44-year history.

C. Mark Wheeler, president of the basin association, attributed the honor to the association's work with both its members and the community in general.

"We've done a lot of upgrading in our work with our members and with the community," he said.

"All our officers and directors have done a good a job — this is voluntary, and they do a good job of representing our members. And the members themselves put out a lot of effort by attending and supporting our meetings, seminars and tournaments. And we have a lot of corporate sponsors that help with our sporting events and educational seminars," he added.

Accurately reflecting on name change

Pitts

Nobody knows how or why word switches are made; they just happen. One day the world is using a perfectly good word and the next day somebody has changed it.

One thing that is known, however, is that these switches are seldom if ever grass roots movements. That's because those at the grass roots level always seem to be wandering around, bewildered — perplexed at what to call themselves and the horse they rode in on.

Remember how, overnight, all blacks became African-Americans and how all Mexican-Americans became Hispanic; all Indians became Native-American, and all the pumpers in the oil patch became lease operators.

That's right "lease operators." Supposedly it is a more accurate, sensitive and dignified term that "more accurately reflects the duties of a pumper." Baloney!

Remember pumpjacks, pulling units, roustabouts and WTI? Over time, all have become offensive or incorrect according to certain parties who want to call them something else.

Case in point. I received a good natured letter this week from the division manager of a large pump manufacturing firm, who took exception to the fact that I had used the term "pumpjack" to describe a pumpjack in a photograph.

He informed me: "The term most commonly used term in the oilfield these days to describe a modern and complete oil well pumping package — some of which are 100,000 pounds and forty feet high — is 'pumping unit.'"

I disagree, while pumping unit is a frequently used word, and some would like all of us to say pumping unit all the time. I doubt it is the most commonly used term. There is still an army of oil patch people out there that call a pumpjack a pumpjack, whether it is four feet high or 40 feet high.

Say "pumpjack" and it brings an immediate and definite image to the oil patch brain. But, say "pumping unit" and the brain hesitates for just a split second longer as it makes sure it has the right image. There is little question that pumpjack is the most accurate and colorful of the two words.

Then there was the flap over "pulling units." Some still call them that, but oilwell service contractors would prefer that we call them well service units. They were pulling units for 30 years, but now they are well service units, even though their basic function is still to "pull" rods, tubing and pumps from a well.

I never understood the logic, but I must concede that if there was ever a controversy here, the contractors won it long ago. The word "pulling unit" is seldom used anymore.

The word switch that upset me most was when they decided to change the name of crude oil. I have already made public my go-around with the New York Mercantile Exchange on this matter and how they duped the Associated Press into switching the name of U.S. benchmark crude from West Texas Intermediate (WTI) crude to Light Sweet crude.

For decades WTI has been the standard oil industry designation for crude oil traders and those reporting crude

PUMP: New system designed by Conoco

(From 1E)

Webb says the system does not answer all vapor recovery problems, but is more or less suitable for a definite niche — those facilities which produce less than 30 mcfd of vapor.

"It is a low-volume system. You could put units in tandem to recover more volume, but at that point it ceases to become competitive with traditional vapor recovery systems."

Conoco has signed a license agreement with Sepco, a large national pump company, to market the technology, which can be installed for $10,000 to $13,000 with all plumbing. Neither Conoco or Sepco will sell hardware for the system, but will rely on off-the-shelf jet pumps. Sepco will install the systems on a turnkey basis.

The market could be large. Conoco has estimated that there are 25,000 production facilities in the Permian Basin alone and that as many as 50 percent could require vapor recovery systems under standards of the Clean Air Act. Depending on composition of the gas, Webb said many production facilities with 3-5 mcfd could fall under the discharge restrictions.

The Vapor Jet system, which was one of Conoco's five finalist for the President's Environmental Award and was automatically nominated for the DuPont Environmental Excellence Award has only one flaw, according to Webb. It's too simple.

"It's so simple, that people in this age of high-technology are reluctant to look at it. And, those who do look, wonder why someone didn't think of it long ago."

Basically, here is how the system works: A common oilfield centrifugal pump driven by electrical motor pumps water through the venturi pump, creating suction on a line collecting atmospheric vapors from the tank. The water and gas are mixed in the pump, and the gas is then removed though a low volume separator and put into a pressurized sales line.

Conoco claims the patented Vapor Jet system is simple, cost-efficient, virtually maintenance-free and can be installed for hlaf the price of a traditional vapor recovery unit, while performing at 25-50 percent of a VRU. With savings costs and gas sales, Conoco says the system can pay for itself.

The primary operating expense for a Vapor Jet system is the cost of electrical power and maintenance expenses are minimal. In a field test of 20 of the Vapor Jet systems Conoco found the maintenance costs to be about $250 per year, with a maintenance allowance of $500 scheduled for every five years.

advantage of improving fundamentals in the gas market are Anadarko, Apache, Burlington Resources, Cabot Oil & Gas, Enron Oil & Gas and Seagull Energy," said Victor A. Burk, director of Arthur Andersen's Oil & Gas Industry Service Group. Four of these six companies have significant interests in the Permian Basin.

There is a feeling among some in the industry that oil companies who looked overseas may now be taking a second look at the U.S. in light of treachery and disappointments suffered overseas.

Two American oil company employees were recently kidnapped in Yemen and two more in Colombia. At the same time the Republic of Azerbaijan has cancelled its contracts with seven U.S. oil companies including BP, Amoco, Pennzoil and Unocal, and the boe (barrel of oil equivalent) cost replacing reserves has increased dramatically.

"A lot of times companies think the grass is greener on the other side, but find it is not so green when they get there," says Ron Wise, president of PLS, a Midland firm that specializes in oil and gas acquisitions, who noted there is a strong disparity between domestic and foreign replacement costs.

While replacement costs have gone down significantly in the U.S., from $6 per barrel oil equivalent in 1991 to under $5 in 1992 they have gone the other way for foreign replacement costs, jumping from $6 boe in 1991 to just under $7 in 1992. This after foreign reserve replacement costs tracked domestic costs from 1988 through 1989 before being reduced to just above $4 in 1990.

But in 1990 foreign reserve replacement costs shot upward and have increased ever year since.

Wise cautions, however, against reading too much into boe prices. "It's often difficult to draw a conclusion from boe prices, because you don't have enough information to make an accurate conclusion. It is often a matter of comparing apples and oranges when you compare domestic and foreign reserves."

He also pointed out that the price of replacing reserves will be inherently higher because of the high cost of finding reserves overseas.

"The industry is poised for recovery if the right things happen," said Burk, who noted that natural gas pricing would be one of the keys to making it happen.

According to Burk, U.S. gas production replacement from "all sources" slid to 60 percent in 1992, down slightly from 64 percent in 1991. Majors reported replacing just 35 percent of their U.S. gas production from "all sources," their lowest level in five years, although that figure is significantly affected by net sales of proved reserves by the majors.

With increasing demand for natural gas, the lack of reserve replacement could be a clear signal for the industry to start drilling for natural gas again. Perhaps, in the second half of this year.

Technology could also play a role in kicking off activity in the second half. Many operators both in the Permian Basin and on the Eastern Shelf report that they are now in the process of evaluating large seismic shoots, that could lead to more permits and spending in the last half of 1993.

Nuevo adds wells

HOUSTON — Nuevo Energy Co. has announced the successful completion of the seventh and eight wells, the Paramount-Wilson "31-3" and the Paramount-Boone "30-15," in the North Frisco City field, Monroe County, Ala.

The Paramount-Wilson "31-3" tested at a rate of 2,100 barrels of oil per day and 2.9 million cubic feet of gas per day through a 30/64 inch choke with flowing tubing pressure of 1,244 psi.

The Paramount-Boone "30-15" tested at a rate of approximately 1,400 bopd and 1.6 Mmcfd through a 24/64 inch choke with flowing tubing pressure of 1,333 psi.

PITTS: New terms

prices, until NYMEX on a whim decided to change the name.

They changed the name on the basis that through some obscure pipeline connects from the Gulf Coast to Wichita Falls to Cushing, Okla., some Saudi or Brent Light might be blended with WTI, and therefore "light sweet" might "more accurately reflect the blend." So on that flimsy logic and without consulting anyone else, NYMEX informed the Associated Press that they were changing the WTI designation to light sweet and 50 years of history and tradition in which WTI was the official benchmark for U.S. crude trading was wiped out.

Thank goodness, not many bought into the scheme. About the only ones in the oil business that use NYMEX's light sweet term are NYMEX and the Associated Press. We at the Reporter-Telegram, as do several other newspapers around the state, go through each AP oil story and carefully change every reference to light sweet crude to WTI.

And when I get a chance I call editors of other newspapers and urge them to do the same. Hopefully, by our continued and increasing resistence WTI will prevail.

A friend of mine was preparing a brochure not long ago and kept using the word "lease operator" in it. "Don't you mean pumper?" I asked. "Oh no," he said, "some of the majors get very offended when you use the word pumper any more. They want you to say lease operator."

If there was ever a word designed to create confusion in the oil patch it has to be that ill-conceived creation. As we all know, there are lease operators, as in people who own and operate oil leases. But now major oil companies want to call those contract employees and wage earners who tend a lease — a lease operator. Two jobs at opposite ends of the spectrum with the same name. How ridiculous!

A major oil company employee gave me his card recently, and I saw that he was a production supervisor. "Don't be fooled by the title," he said, "that just means that I am a pumper." Most independents still hire pumpers. Pumpers know who they are and what they do. Everybody in the oil patch knows what a pumper is. So why the big hoop-de-do about lease operators? What's the point? Who is being fooled? The most accurate word for a pumper is "pumper."

There are other confusing words for roustabouts, but they are so proper that out of respect for roustabouts I will not mention them here.

What titles will be next to go? Roughnecks, tool pushers, mud men? The oil patch has always had its own colorful language, but now there seems to be an unwelcome and unneeded move to "dress it up."

Finally, it all comes down to this: You don't mess with language unless there is a very good reason — and there seldom is. Sure things evolve; the automobile is not longer called the horseless carriage, and somewhere on the way to satellite communications the word "wireless" got lost. But to periodically and capriciously change the names of traditional jobs, tools and commodities without much thought, purpose or consultation serves little purpose, and can be downright offensive.

Suppose you woke up tomorrow morning and found out that oil was out — that you were no longer in the oil busines, but the hydrocarbon business, because some "proper speak" committee somewhere had decided that hydrocarbon "more accurately reflected the nature of the business."

PBLA: Top association

(From 1E)

Wheeler said that the association's primary function is business-social, letting members network and allowing for exchanges between various companies. Every other year, the association puts together a membership directory consisting of members' pictures, phone numbers and addresses, which Wheeler said is a valuable project. There is also a newsletter put out each September through May.

Not only does the association provide networking opportunities, Wheeler pointed out that it offers educational opportunities, holding two or three seminars each year that help members get recertification credits for their Certified Professional Landman designation.

There are also several sporting events put on by the association, annual golf and tennis tournaments and a skeet shoot.

A priority for the association, Wheeler said, will be more community involvement. He noted that members raised money for the "Dress A Live Doll" program last Christmas and will do so again. And, he said, plans are to raise money during the sports tournaments to be donated to community charities.

"We're a sustaining member of the Petroleum Museum, and we've helped support the Confederate Air Force," he said.

Even though the Permian Basin group has 800 members, it is still the AAPL's third-largest group, behind only Houston and Denver associations. Wheeler noted that the PBLA's membership is comprised not only of Midland-Odessa landmen but out-of-town members who do a lot of work in the Permian Basin. He estimates that 80 percent of the membership lives in the Midland-Odessa area.

The PBLA won awards in five of eight categories the AAPL looks at in selecting its Association of the Year.

The awards included Local Association Management Awards of Excellence in Membership Retention, Special Member Services and Financial Management, and Awards of Merit in Professional Development and Communications.

Wheeler promised that the group would try harder in the categories it didn't win — Education, Community Relations and Leadership Development.

DOE official seeks input from industry

TULSA — The number two official of the Department of Energy (DOE) called upon the energy industry and state regulators for input in a Domestic Energy Initiative that emphasizes creating jobs and increasing domestic production.

William H. White, recently confirmed DOE Deputy Secretary, addressed the Midyear Meeting of the Interstate Oil and Gas Compact Commission (the Compact). The Compact represents the governors of the nation's 29 oil-and-gas-producing states.

White said the agency is in the process of laying the analytical and substantive groundwork about "where we want to go" with domestic energy.

While the DOE is in the process of gathering input from government, industry, and special interest groups, White said four areas have been identified that will receive federal attention.

The department will be analyzing and documenting the importance of the energy industry in providing high-tech, high-paying jobs. White said some of the country's best analytical skills are at work in the energy industry, but not enough has been done to portray the industry as high tech. Until the country recognizes the importance of the energy industry, it would be difficult to obtain the support necessary for changing policies and programs, he said.

The DOE will also be looking at natural gas as an incremental replacement for crude oil in the nation's energy mix. A key factor in increasing the use of natural gas is ensuring supply. The agency is projecting the development of "state-of-the-art, real time deliverability" information on natural gas supply and demand, White said. He added that although such as system would require a long-term effort, the industry is already moving toward this end.

White said President Clinton is "unwavering" in his support for natural gas as an available and environmentally preferred energy source.

The Compact was challenged to help lead the effort in developing a dialogue between energy and environmental interests. White said the "big sell is on the environmental side," and that the legal system was not a preferred method of resolving disputes between the two groups.

The Compact has emerged as a leading forum for addressing environmental concerns about wastes associated with oil and gas exploration and production.

The Compact serves as a forum for state energy officials, with a primary mission of conserving the nation's supplies of oil and natural gas.

Through a number of programs, the Compact has encouraged the development of conservation practices that have allowed the recovery of 85 billion barrels of oil from domestic sources.

Wall Street likes Mitchell Energy moves

■ Mitchell Energy strategies have been warmly received by Wall Street, company president reports

Staff report

THE WOODLANDS — Strategic initiatives undertaken by Mitchell Energy & Development Corp. over the past 14 months have been favorably received on Wall Street, Chairman and President George P. Mitchell told stockholders.

Speaking at the annual meeting here, Mitchell said the success of his company's recent Class B stock offering and subsequent market strength of both classes of common stock show that investors are reacting positively to the strategic moves, which include:

■ An interest rate swap on $250 million in senior notes, bringing the rate down two points and saving approximately $5 million annually;

■ Restructuring the company's Exploration and Production Division, including regional office consolidations, staff reductions and the sale of non-strategic assets;

■ Moving to the New York Stock Exchange from the American exchange;

■ Implementation of a dual-class stock plan to increase financial flexibility for acquisitions, restructurings or other corporate purposes;

■ Acquisition of Oryx Energy gas processing plant interests in Oklahoma and Texas, boosting the company's natural gas liquids production by some 8,700 barrels per day.

■ Start-up of the company's first major oil salt dome natural gas storage facility;

■ Beginning construction of Mitchell Energy's first large "downstream" venture, a 12,500-barrel-per-day MTBE plant at Mont Belvieu, Texas, along with partners Sun Company, Inc., and Enterprise Products Company;

■ Start of construction on a million-square-foot regional mall in The Woodlands, providing a catalyst for enhanced land values in the company's largest real estate project; and

■ The successful public offering of 5.9 million shares of Class B common stock, which improved liquidity, and the subsequent acquisition of the company's development drilling partnership.

George Mitchell also said that the company received $19.5 million in cash from a series of transactions involving Mont Belvieu, Texas, natural gas liquids fractionator in which Mitchell Energy is a partner.

George P. Mitchell

The transactions included refinancing the facility, financing a 40,000-barrel-per-day expansion of the plant, and the sale of a part interest in the partnership.

"As a result of these initiatives, we're a much stronger company than we were a year and a half ago," Mitchell said. "We took one-time charges to implement some of the charges, but the financial impact on the company has been very positive, and investors recognize this."

He said the company's performance has improved as a result of the initiatives and rising natural gas prices.

During the annual meeting, shareholders approved the nomination of George Mitchell's son J. Todd Mitchell to the company's board of directors.

The new director is a geologist and is president of The Discovery Bay Company, a petroleum industry software developer. His election increases the number of board members to 13, nine of whom are neither company employees nor members of the Mitchell family.

Business Review

An Oil Report Special Feature

WSI provides equipment to meet any safety requirement

The issue of safety in the work place has never been more important than in the petrochemical business and other related fields, such as mining. There is a constant threat to employees and equipment from a wide variety of sources such as toxic and/or explosive gasses, machinery breakdown or fire. These diverse threats need to be constantly monitored and contingency plans laid.

Worldwide Safety Inc. (WSI) was founded in order to provide a wide range of safety equipment and related services tot he refinery, petrochemical and oil/gas industries in order to counter these threats.

Providing equipment around the world, in as far flung places as Dubai and Canada, WSI provides four basic services. Which are: Safety Equipment Sales and Rentals: WSI sells and leases virtually all types of safety equipment currently available. All equipment installed by WSI is regularly inspected and maintained in accordance with OSHA, NIOSH and manufacturers guidelines. The most common types of equipment leased from WSI are self contained breathing apparatus and gas monitoring/detection equipment.

Randy Williams, the president of WSI, said that, "Dependability is the main thing. Our customers depend on us and pay us to be there when they need us." Following through with this philosophy, WSI can provide a company with any equipment that it needs in order to satisfy any safety requirement.

The second aspect to WSI's operation is Safety Training. Most types of safety equipment are virtually useless unless there are competent, trained personnel to use them. WSI instructors can provide seminars, lectures as well as hands-on training and experience with the equipment that they will be using.

There are a number of training levels, and programs can be tailored to meet individual company needs. Safety training includes; Hydrogen Sulphide/Carbon Dioxide safety equipment certification, CPR/First Aid, hazardous material training and Haz-Com training among others.

A large part of WSI's work is in the field of Safety Consulting and Contingency Planning. They provide a wide range of consulting services, and can establish new programs as well as modify existing systems and programs. Their services are flexible enough to be used by small localized firms or larger regionalized organizations. All aspects of the safety system is considered, and all equipment and personnel comply with local, state and federal regulations and guidelines. In the case of Hydrogen Sulphide blowouts or toxic chemical releases, WSI provides experienced trained personnel who can minimize the dangers and who are on a 24 hour, 365 day call out.

The fourth area of WSI's expertise lies in the field of On-Site Safety Personnel. Always on call they provide an immediate response to an emergency situation. They can help to keep plants on line and can ensure that operations can continue in highly toxic environments. Saving time, money and valuable equipment.

Worldwide Safety Inc.'s aims are to provide safe working environments for companies in the petrochemical business. There can be no substitute for proper planning and training, and WSI does not accept anything except for the highest standards of professionalism.

Case History 1 '93

Ector County, Texas: San Andres Formation
Operator called to run the PerfClean tool on a well in a waterflood that had lost production due to iron sulfide scale. The well was pumping at 3 bbls of oil, 6 bbls of water/day. A conventional acid job was performed prior to the PerfClean treatment with no marked improvement. The PerfClean treatment was performed by first cleaning the perforations with 2% KCl, then treating each foot of perforations at 2 bbls/min. with 40 gallons of 15% NEFE acid.
Following the treatment the hole was circulated out to recover scale fines. The operator then performed swab runs to ensure that all fines were recovered. During the swabbing the well began flowing. Thirty days after receiving the PerfClean treatment, the well's production stabilized at 40 bbls of oil, 15 bbls of water/day.

Transco Energy sells subsidiary

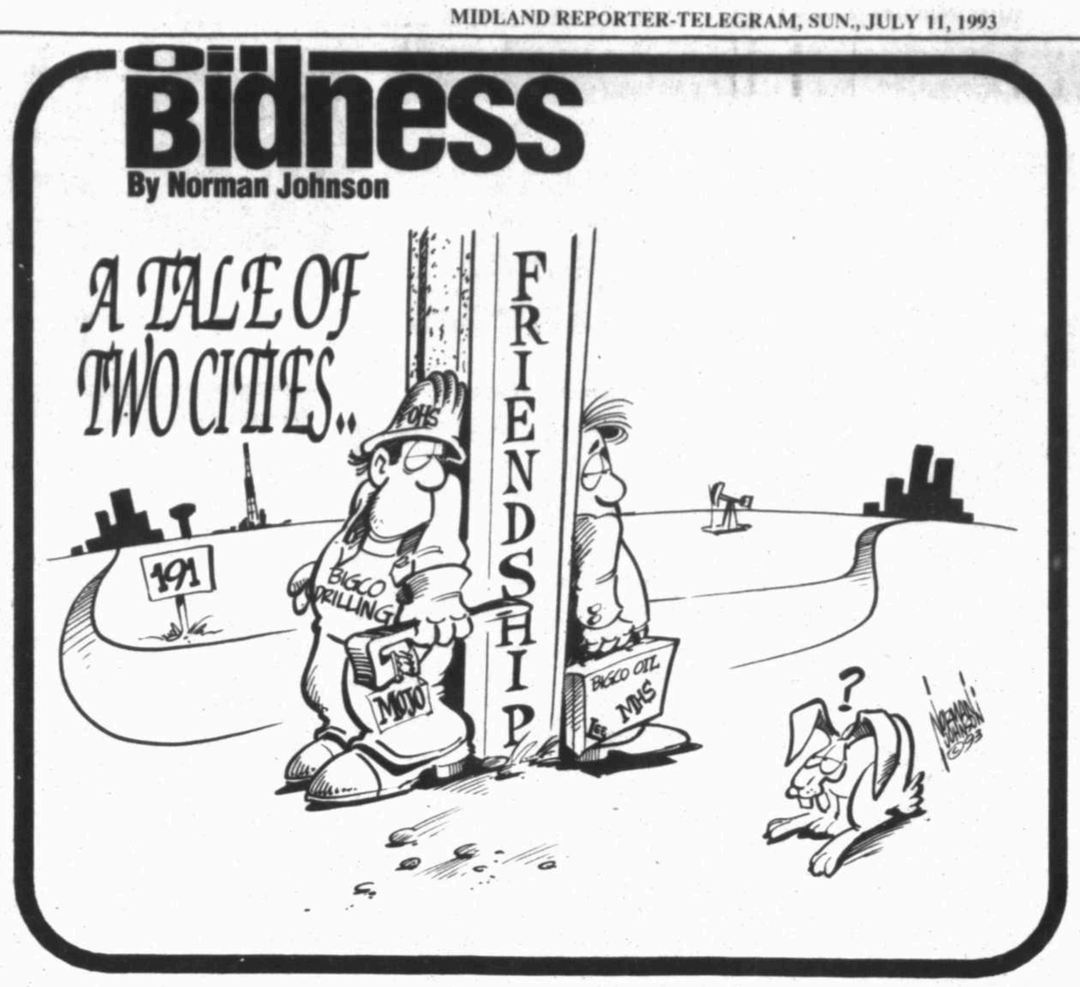

HOUSTON (AP) — Transco Energy Company has announced it has agreed to sell its Transco Energy Ventures Company subsidiary to National Power America Inc. for $160 million.

The Houston-based energy company said it expects to make about $32 million, or 81 cents per share, after taxes on the sale after it is closed later this year. The sale price is subject to certain adjustments, Transco said.

Transco operates an interstate gas pipeline system that delivers and sells natural gas predominantly to the eastern and midwestern sections of the country.

It is emerging from a restructuring started in late 1991 with goals that included debt reduction, financial improvement and sale of its coal and exploration and production divisions. The shedding of TEVCO, which is active in independent power generation, is part of that process.

"We remain committed to deleveraging our balance sheet, and the sale of TEVCO is an important step in achieving this objective," said Transco president and chief executive officer John P. DesBarres.

Fuel for thought.

Dairy farmers and oilmen both work hard to bring you a gallon of quality goods. At a fair price.

But it may surprise you to learn that the average price of gasoline is still much less per gallon than most other products. Like milk ($2.75), orange juice ($4.50), or cola ($2.75). And gasoline prices have increased less in the past 10 years than any of these.

Americans still pay the lowest price-per-gallon of 17 leading nations, while our oil companies still have one of the lowest retail profit margins-only 2 cents a gallon.

When pump prices do rise, it's often due to factors beyond the oil companies' control. Like Saddam Hussein. Or the fact that the U.S. imports 50% of its crude oil. And, unfortunately, it may be that way until the cows come home. Or Congress formulates a rational energy policy.

Recover very low vapor volumes at a profit

STORAGE TANK EMISSIONS → VAPOR JET™ VAPOR RECOVERY SYSTEM → GAS SALES

Strict government air quality standards now regulate hydrocarbon vapor emissions from oil production storage facilities. For many low volume vapor producers, compliance has become a significant factor in their profitability—or even survival.

To meet air standards, the vapors must be recovered. But the low volumes captured for gas sales often do not justify the cost of a conventional compressor-based vapor recovery unit (VRU).

The patented Vapor Jet system is a simple, cost-efficient and virtually maintenance-free alternative to conventional VRUs. Its ability to handle very low vapor volumes at a very low cost makes it ideally suited for marginal production facilities. In many cases, the system will allow the continued operation of sites where the cost of compliance with air quality standards might otherwise have been prohibitive.

Compliance doesn't have to be an expense. At an operating cost of just dollars a day, the Vapor Jet system can pay for itself with recovered gas sales.

It is easily installed at about 50 percent of a VRU's cost. And with its trouble-free design and minimal maintenance cost, the Vapor Jet system performs at 25- to 50-percent of a VRU's operating expense. For more information call Conoco Specialty Products, 1-800-962-5882.

ENVIRONMENTAL CONCERNS?

Let The Backwash Valve and Safety Check Valve ease your mind.

For the first time an operator can mechanically open the traveling and standing valves in a sucker rod pump without the need for a workover rig. Increase profits by lowering the cost of pulling jobs and protect the environment by avoiding pulling a wet string. If the rods part during operation, the weight of the sucker rods sit down on the Backwash Valve assembly and open the pump. You pull a dry string. The valve can also be used to hot oil and chemically treat down the tubing.

The Safety Check Valve is located between the Pumping Tee and the Sutffing Box. In the event the Polish Rod breaks, the Safety Check Valve will automatically close off, eliminating the possibilities of oil and salt water spillage and CO_2 or H_2S gas escaping through the Stuffing Box.

Survey says gas prices to rise

By David Ivanovich
Hearst News Service

HOUSTON — Energy prognosticators are optimistic about the kinds of prices natural gas will fetch for the rest of the year, but they're more circumspect when it comes to oil.

A survey of 12 oil companies, energy income funds and banks conducted by Houston's Randall & Dewey found that energy forecasters expect natural gas prices to average $2.04 per thousand cubic feet for the rest of the year.

That's up 29 cents, or 17 percent, from their estimates just three months ago, according to the firm's quarterly Petroleum Pricing Review. Randall & Dewey specializes in helping companies buy and sell oil and gas properties.

All 12 companies surveyed raised their expectations for gas prices, reflecting an enthusiasm seen throughout the gas industry. Gas spot prices hit $2.60 per thousand cubic feet in May, before dropping back to $1.96 last month.

The oil companies surveyed were the most bullish, anticipating average gas prices of $2.17 per thousand cubic feet, up 19 percent from their earlier forecasts.

Banks had the most conservative estimates, predicting prices around $1.88. That's still, however, 24 cents or 15 percent higher than their estimates last quarter.

But eight of the 12 groups surveyed are anticipating lower oil prices. The institutional investors had the rosiest outlook, expecting prices averaging $19.19 a barrel, down 2.5 percent from their previous estimates.

Again, lenders were most conservative. They are looking for prices of about $18.53 per barrel, down 80 cents or 4.1 percent per barrel from their previous estimates.

Last week, oil prices slid $1.06 in three days, capping off a $2 drop in a month's time. Prices for Light sweet crude oil for delivery in August rebounded by 34 cents Tuesday, settling at $18.29 per barrel, up 34 cents, at the New York Mercantile Exchange.

Some posted prices for West Texas Intermediate, the best known variety of light sweet crude, had fallen to $16.25 per barrel. "This represents the lowest postings witnessed since July 1990, in the period prior to Iraq's invasion of Kuwait," the report noted.

McCormick Energy to develop coalbed methane gas in Poland

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — McCormick Poland, a wholly owned subsidiary of Houston-based McCormick Energy Inc., signed an agreement with the Environment Ministry to develop coalbed methane production in the southern Poland.

The concession includes about 60,000 acres of land adjacent to coal mines near the city of Katowice, in the mining region of Upper Silesia, which contains a high concentration of coalbed methane.

"We have strong evidence that this area could become a vital new source of energy, and thus help create jobs and economic development for the people of Poland," said Sanford McCormick, president of McCormick Energy.

The company plans to drill nine wells to evaluate the methane reserves. Full development of the project will require drilling of about 160 additional wells.

McCormick estimates that the concession could produce more than 400 billion cubic feet of methane during the next 20 years.

Poland has moved to develop its coalbed methane deposits to expand the usage of natural gas as a source of energy and reduce its dependence on imports. Currently, natural gas, most of which comes from the former Soviet Union, supplies only 8 percent of the nation's total energy needs.

IADC cites local drillers

Staff report

The International Association of Drilling Contractors (IADC) has announced its Accident Prevention Awards for 1992 and several Permian Basin contractors have fared well in the Class C Land Category.

The Class C Land category is for contractors who have worked from 125,000 to 199,000 manhours during the year. In that category Sitton Drilling Co. of Lubbock won the silver award, while Gene Sledge of Midland and Wes-Tex Drilling Co. of Abilene were mentioned for the President's Award.

Overall, participating drilling contractors set a new record low for accident incidence - 2.06 lost-time accidents per 200,000 manhours.

Awards are divided into four categories based on operating locale - U.S. Land, International Land, U.S. Water and International Water. Companies were then grouped by the number of manhours worked on their rigs during 1992.

To decide the awards, IADC evaluated the incidents of lost-time accidents of drilling units worldwide in its Accident Statistics Program (ASP). 1992 marks the 30th anniversary of the ASP, which has become an international benchmark for gauging the safety performance of the global drilling industry.

IADC industry-wide accident-frequency rates have steadily declined over the years, tumbling from 5.19 lost-time accidents per 200,000 manhours in 1982 to 3.95 in 1986, 3.91 in 1987, 3.65 in 1988, 3.57 in 1989, 3.43 in 1990 and 2.49 in 1991.

P&P finishes partnership unit offers

Staff report

Parker & Parsley Petroleum Co. said Tuesday that it accepted for payment all but two of the Prudential-Bache Energy Income Partnerships.

Officials for Parker and Parsley said the accepted partnerships constitute a majority of the outstanding units in each of the partnerships and represent a price of more than $293 million, which will be paid immediately.

Parker & Parsley also announced that the expiration date of the tender for units in the two remaining Prudential-Bache Energy Income Partnerships has been extended to 12:00 noon, in New York City, on Friday, July 2, 1993.

Scott D. Sheffield, Chairman, stated that, "we are extremely pleased to have successfully completed our tender offer for all but 2 of the 35 partnerships in a relatively short period. We are continuing our tender offer for the remaining two partnerships and expect to quickly have on deposit the few remaining units needed to achieve a majority.

We can now move forward to complete the merger which is expected to be completed within approximately 45 days. This merger will increase the Company's proved oil and gas reserves by approximately 60% to 202 million barrel oil equivalents. Parker & Parsley reserve mix will then be 46% natural gas and 54% oil.

Further, as a result of the merger, our gas production will more than double and the oil production will climb by 50% within the next 12 months. This transaction is a most important accomplishment in a continuing program of increasing shareholder value through both acquisitions and an ever expanding level of development activities."

ANALYSIS

Battle not over on Btu tax

■ Texas Railroad Commissioner Jim Nugent warns that victory on Btu tax is not final.

If the BTU tax were a movie, it would already be on the shelves of your local video store. The reviews came in quickly and so overwhelmingly "Thumbs Down," that the senate pulled it from public screen. That is an encouraging sign.

Yet, in politics, as in the movies and sports, "It isn't over, until it is over."

Now is the time to pay close attention to what happens with the Clinton administration's $500 billion budget deficit reduction package. It is time to make certain that the "BTU Tax: The Sequel" does not make it to a wallet near you. The sequel could be more frightening than the original.

Texans were hit hard by the recent recession, but we are steadily climbing our way out of the economic ditch. For example, the 139 new factories built in Texas last year led the nation according to Site Selection Magazine. In addition, the 405 new or expanded corporate facilities built in Texas last year tied us for first in the nation.

The Department of Commerce announced earlier this year that between 1991 and 1992 Texas added 95,700 new non-farm related jobs. This was 75.4 percent of all the new jobs created in the United States during this time frame. Furthermore, San Antonio, Dallas-Fort Worth, and Austin were in the top 10 job growth markets in 1992.

A BTU tax would wipe out more than half of the recent job gains. The State Comptroller's office estimates almost 49,000 Texans would loose their job if the BTU tax was adopted. Other studies have shown an estimated 400,000 to 600,000 jobs would be lost nationwide.

Consumers would be hit where it hurts the most - their pocketbooks. A typical family of four would spend $475 more per year on higher energy costs. In addition, the poorest among us, who already spend roughly 22 percent of their income on energy costs, would end up paying the most.

Whatever emerges from the House-Senate conference must not be just another version of the BTU tax - the old movie with a few scene changes and new title. Whatever you call it, this type of tax destroys jobs, slows economic growth, singles out the lower- and middle-income families, falls unfairly on certain regions of the country and make American products less competitive in the trading world.

The conference committee will iron out the differences between the two versions of the deficit reduction package. Several powerful house leaders went out on a limb to support the BTU tax, and they have indicated they are not going to hand the senate a chainsaw to cut the limb out from under them. They will fight to preserve the BTU tax in the conference committee.

Everyone agrees that reducing the federal deficit is vital to the nation's economic well being. All of us will be required to share in the sacrifice to achieve this goal. Moreover, president Clinton would be commended for forcing this national debate.

However, the best way to cut the deficit is not through an unfairly and unequally applied BTU tax. Responsible spending cuts that fall evenly and fairly are better.

3-D seismic course set

Staff report

A course on 3-D Seismic Applications has been set for Wednesday and Thursday (July 14-15) at the Permian Basin Graduate Center.

The two sessions will be taught by Joe Ellis of Landmark Graphics in Houston and Peter Morton of Halliburton Energy Services in Midland and will offer an introduction and overview to the use of 3-D seismic, by using data samples from Permian Basin projects.

Topics to be covered include: basic theory, 2-D and 3-D, data acquisition methods, data processing, interpretation techniques and case histories. Portions of this course were presented to the SW AAPG Convention in February.

One of the case histories to be presented includes a 3-D section across the Dollarhide Field in Andrews County, which offers an excellent case of how data is collected and used across a mature field.

Joe Ellis is a graduate of Rensselar Polytechnic Institute and former geophysicist for Shell. He joined Landmark Graphics in 1991. Peter Morton joined Geophysical Service Inc. in England in 1973 and has worked in data processing and acquisition in England, Egypt and Saudia Arabia. He currently supervises workstation services in Midland for Halliburton Energy Services.

SPE, DOE to sponsor symposium on improved oil recovery

Staff report

The Ninth SPE/DOE Symposium on Improved Oil Recovery will be held April 17-20, 1994, in Tulsa, Oklahoma.

The Tulsa meeting was formerly known as the Enhanced Oil Recovery Symposium; the name change, reflects a wider scope of oil recovery technology.

The theme of the 1994 symposium will be "IOR: Near-Term Action and Long-Term Strategy."

A variety of factors are shifting industry resources from domestic to international ventures.

On the one hand, new global opportunities for IOR are surfacing, bringing new technological and political challenges.

On the other hand, abandonment of U.S. fields has never been more probable. In the symposium's opening plenary session, distinguished speakers from government and industry will consider the viability of domestic IOR projects under today's regulatory, environmental, and financial demands.

The technological hurdles that remain to be overcome will be addressed, especially for offshore environments. The barriers to technology transfer between integrated companies and independent producers, and from one government to another will also be examined.

The scope of the Tulsa meeting was expanded to meet the needs of a broader base of attendees. The program committee is soliciting technical papers on all aspects of improved reservoir management, spanning the spectrum from waterflooding to emerging technology, including miscible/immiscible gas, thermal, and chemical processes.

Special sessions are planned on reservoir characterization and basic research as in the last two symposia, one session will be tailored to independent producers.

Personal solicitation of papers from authors of known reputation will be conducted to ensure that the program includes areas of high interest such as application of horizontal wells and international ventures in improved oil recovery.

BRIEFS

Independents suggest tanker fee

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A group of Texas independent oil producers has suggested a tax on imported oil as an alternative to President Clinton's proposed Btu tax.

The Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owners Association said it has sent a letter touting a tanker fee to House Majority Leader Richard Gephardt and the Texas delegation.

The group says such a tax could help the House and Senate find a compromise on their energy bills.

A House-approved measure includes Clinton's so-called Btu tax, but the Senate version has scaled it back to a 4.3 cent transportation tax. A House-Senate conference committee now must decide what approach to take.

The group said industry executives would prefer the Senate version, but a tax on imported oil would suit them even better.

"A new transportation tax on crude and oil products tankered into the coastal waters of the U.S. is an idea whose time may have come to help encourage domestic energy development over foreign sources," group president Thomas Coffman said.

The Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owners Association has some 3,000 members statewide.

Enron Oil Trading changes name

Enron Oil Trading & Transportation Company has changed its name to EOTT Energy Corp. ("EOTT") to better reflect the broad range of company activities. EOTT remains a subsidiary of Enron Corp.

The name change is part of Enron Corp's plan to spin-off EOTT to Enron Corp stockholders later in 1993. Effective April 5, 1993, EOTT's Houston headquarters opened its new office in the Houston Galleria area. Enron Corp. and EOTT management believes that as a stand alone company EOTT will be able to respond more efficiently and quickly to the competitive needs of its customers and its markets.

Union Texas declares dividend

Union Texas Petroleum Holdings, Inc. has announced that a regular quarterly dividend of five cents per share has been declared on the company's outstanding common stock. The dividend is payable on August 16, 1993, to stockholders of record at the close of business on July 30, 1993.

Santa Fe details 3-D seismic plans

Santa Fe Energy Resources has announced details of a joint venture that is currently conducting one of the nation's largest ever onshore 3-D seismic surveys.

Located in the Permian Basin's Spraberry oil field northeast of Midland, Texas, the seismic study encompasses approximately 250 square miles and is designed to identify potential oil bearing reservoirs at depths of 11,000-13,000 feet. Typical Spraberry production is from depths of 7,000 to 9,500 feet.

The data collection phase of the $4.25 million program should be completed in July with the processing and evaluation phase expected to yield the first drillable prospect by December.

The 3-D seismic method being used is state-of-the-art technology which allows a more accurate evaluation of the subsurface than was possible using older, conventional seismic technology.

While 3-D technology has been commonly used in primary exploration projects for only about three years. Proper application of this technology should lead to improved success rates in exploratory drilling.

Devonian and Fusselman reservoirs, which are the primary targets of the current exploratory venture, are each productive in fields within five miles of the study area. Several of those fields have estimated reserves in the five to thirty million barrel range. These target reservoirs are thought to be particularly suitable for application of the 3-D seismic technology.

Santa Fe Energy Resources and Collins & Ware, Inc., of Midland, each hold a 25 percent working interest in this project and together have contributed more than 100 thousand acres to the venture. Other working interest owners were not identified.

Santa Fe Energy Resources is an independent oil and gas exploration and production company with headquarters in Houston, Texas.

Finalists set for Texaco contract

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Avondale Industries Inc. has been chosen by Texaco Inc. as one of two finalists to build up to four tankers for about $300 million.

The contract is expected to be awarded this fall. About 2,000 jobs are at stake. The other finalist is Alabama Shipyard Inc. of Mobile, Ala. Seven other shipbuilders were eliminated in a series of negotiations.

Avondale officials have said the contract is vital to the company's efforts to survive and retain a large portion of its 6,200 employees by landing big Navy and commercial contracts this year.

The tankers will have double hulls to guard against oil spills. Under federal law, they must be built in a U.S. shipyard. Tankers with single hulls must be replaced by 1995.

"The first order that gets placed in going to be very significant," said Ron J. McAlear, Avondale's vice president for marketing.

After reporting losses of $140 million in 1991, Avondale has barely squeaked out a profit for the past five quarters. Avondale workers recently voted to be represented by the Metal Trades Council of the AFL-CIO, though some of the ballots are under dispute.

Freeport-McMoRan cuts jobs

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Freeport-McMoRan Inc. is eliminating 235 jobs, including 172 in New Orleans, as a result of a joint venture with Northbrook, Ill.-based IMC Fertilizer Inc., the company says.

This was the second round of layoffs announced by Freeport this year.

The venture, known as IMC-Agrico Co., will operate the phosphate fertilizer business of both companies. An affiliate of IMC will manage it.

The bulk of the job cuts will come from the agricultural minerals divisions of Agrico Chemical Co., Freeport's fertilizer subsidiary which has operations in Louisiana and Florida.

About 135 employees in New Orleans will be released. Many of the jobs are support positions in accounting, personnel and administration. The staff reduction includes about 100 people who left the company earlier this year.

Those laid off will receive 1½ weeks of pay for each year of service and company-paid health benefits for eight months. Some of the employees will be entitled to early retirement benefits.

In February, Freeport-McMoRan cut its staff by 184, including 120 in New Orleans. The company let go support personnel and closed offices of the research, engineering, environmental and safety departments.

Freeport-McMoRan Resource Partners, Agrico's parent company, said it would form the joint venture after fertilizer and sulphur prices fell to 20-year lows. The company said there was little prospect for near-term recovery in these commodities.

The two companies said they could save a total of $95 million annually by combining operations and eliminating unnecessary jobs.

Freeport will take $50 million in writeoffs at its fertilizer subsidiary for restructuring in the second quarter. In the first quarter, the company lost $58.6 million or 57 cents per share.

Brown & Root cleared of bribery

HOUSTON (AP) — Brown & Root International has been cleared of bribery accusations in connection with a scandal rocking Taiwan's state-run oil company.

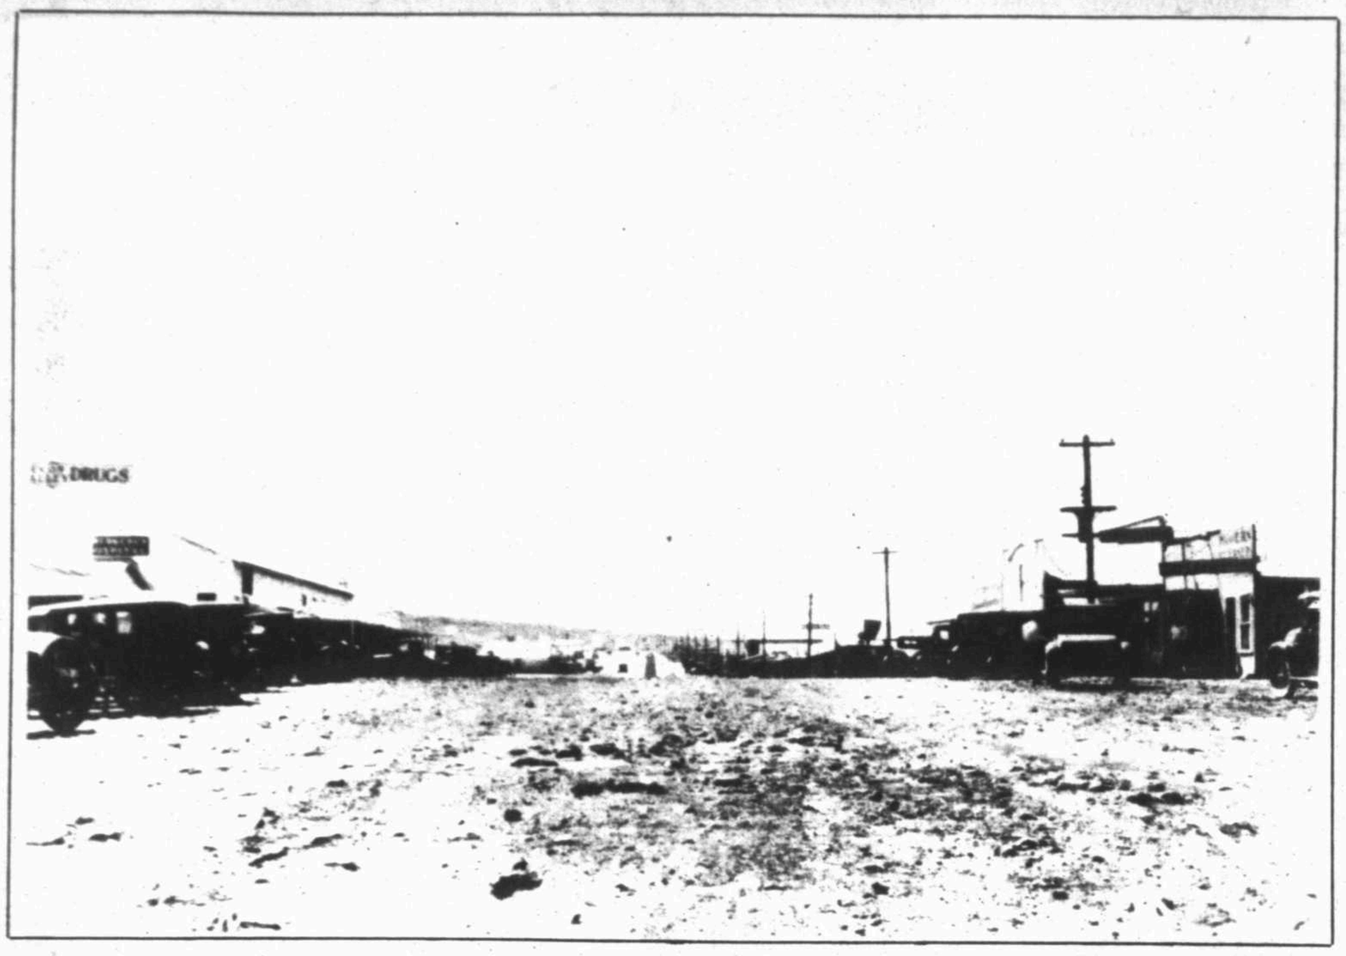

Taiwanese authorities have indicted seven business executives on bribery charges in connection with construction of a wastewater treatment plant. Those charged included Andrew Yen, son of former Taiwanese President Yen Chia-kan.

Two years ago, Brown & Root was hired by Taiwan's Chinese Petroleum Corp. to act as general contractor on a $174 million project to build the treatment plant in the southern city of Kaohsiung. The project was part of Taiwan's six-year, $303 billion modernization program.

Authorities claimed that Yen, president of Tang Eng Iron Works, conspired with Brown & Root's Taiwanese agent, Lin Ping-kun, to get Brown & Root to subcontract out $138 million worth of construction work to Tang Eng.

"This is our third year to be a part of the 'Don't Bag It' program. It has worked really well for us."

DON'T LET THE GRASS GROW UNDER YOUR FEET... AND DON'T BAG IT

Don't Bag It!

That is the message the Texas Agricultural Extension Service is trying to remind people of throughout the summer: Don't bag grass clippings when mowing the lawn.

In fact, there will even be a green flyer enclosed in your water bill this month explaining how the "Don't Bag It" program works. The program is sponsored by a task force compiled of people from the City of Midland, Midland College, Keep Midland Beautiful and the Texas Agricultural Extension Service (TAES).

The main focus of the "Don't Bag It" program is to keep grass clippings out of the landfills. Each year between March and September, the volume of residential solid waste increases 20 percent to 50 percent because of grass clippings, according to information from the TAES.

"Eventually it will be mandated that we can't put grass clippings in our dumpsters," said Deborah Benge, county extension agent in horticulture for Ector and Midland counties. "If we can get a handle on this on our own, we as tax payers can save money and avoid having the city have to take care of this.

"We need to look at all the options for handling yard waste. We (the task force) are looking at the possibility of a municipal composting program," among other options, Ms. Benge said. "Jack Burns (with City of Midland) is very far-sighted. He believes in letting the people take care of this problem before the government has to."

While having a mulching mower makes the "Don't Bag It" program easier, it isn't necessary in order to participate.

"A mulching mower is great, but not necessary," Ms. Benge said. "With 'Don't Bag It,' you do have to mow more often, about every five to six days instead of every seven days or more. You never want to remove more than one-third of the blade at one time. These small clippings work their way down into the grass and help hold down weed growth, hold in moisture and provide an insulation for the soil from the high temperatures. Grass clippings are mostly water and protein, so it is healthy for the lawn and they break down quickly."

While those who use the "Don't Bag It" program are helping ease the strain on the landfills, they also are reaping other benefits from the plan.

"It increases the water capacity of your lawn and the nutrition of the soil," Ms. Benge said. "You have to learn to change your watering habits. You water about every five to six days with deep water instead of frequent shallow waterings."

The time it takes to mow the lawn is another benefit of the program.

"When you don't bag your clippings, you can mow the lawn a lot faster. You don't have to keep stopping and starting in order to take the bag to the dumpster. You just keep mowing."

"This is our third year to be a part of the 'Don't Bag It" program," said Sharon Bidwell, a master gardener. "It's worked well for us."

Mrs. Bidwell said when she and her husband, Marvin, bagged their grass clippings, it took both of them three hours to mow just the front lawn of their northwest Midland home. They have since landscaped the back yard as well, and Mrs. Bidwell said her husband can mow the front and back yards in about an hour.

"You do have to mow more often, but the time factor being so much shorter is definitely a plus. You usually have an hour or so after work, where if we bagged our grass, we couldn't do it. It would take almost a full day every week to mow if we bagged,"

Residents host annual block party

By Marilyn McKnight Harrison

McKnight-Harrison

And how was your Fourth? Midlanders celebrated the midsummer holiday in a variety of ways, including gatherings with families and friends, air shows, a baseball game, swimming and culminating with what for some is the highlight of the day — fireworks, whether viewing the spectacular display at Angels Stadium or enjoying private pyrotechnics.

One neighborhood got into the patriotic spirit a few days prior to July 4 when a Block Party was held for residents of the 800 to 1000 blocks of Stanolind Avenue. The event was hosted by Gayle and Doc Dodson and daughter, Jamie, in the cul-de-sac of the 100 block.

Decorations included a large cutout of "Uncle Sam," highlighted with red, white and blue star lights, in the Dodsons' yard, which was outlined in American flags. The patriotic table decor featured an unfurled flag as the centerpiece.

Invitations were delivered to 30 homes. Families attending were the Torivio Durans, the Tom Laymans, the Lloyd Hicks, the Don Furgesons, the Ray Harrisons, the Tom Jonas's, the Guy Halls, Teresa and Karen Parker, George Goebel, Danie Lebow, Jo Kirksey and the Dodsons.

Special guests were Kelly and Todd Hullender, Mignon Pearson and Pete McMullan.

The "Stanolind Street Gang," as residents refer to themselves, gather biannually for potluck suppers, the one in July and then again in August for "National Night Out," sponsored by Neighborhood Watch.

THE AFTER-CHRISTMAS ski trip that Paula and Jim Henry and family take each year had an interesting outcome in 1990. The Snowbird Ski Resort in Salt Lake City, Utah, turned out to be the place where their daughter, Jamie Henry, then a teacher in San Antonio, would meet her future husband, Doug Askelson.

They met at a New Year's Eve party at the Snowbird Ski Lodge, and it was in the same location two New Year's Eves later that Doug proposed to Jamie. He had invited friends and family to the party and arranged for the band to play a special song when he presented Jamie with an engagement ring at the stroke of midnight.

Their betrothal culminated in marriage Saturday evening in First United Methodist Church, with a reception following at Midland Country Club. They will live in Salt Lake City after a wedding trip to Cancun, Mexico.

To begin the pre-nuptial festivities, the bride's parents hosted an engagement announcement party at their home in January.

The groom's mother, Mrs. Patricia Swanstrom, and his brother, Steven Askelson, hosted a party for the couple in Doug's hometown of Fort Collins, Colo., in April.

Other parties included a surprise lingerie shower and bachelorette party given in Salt Lake City by Pam (Mrs. David) Gary and Cathy (Mrs. Joshua) Curci.

A display shower was given in Midland at the home of Laquita (Mrs. Dennis) Johnson in July. Other hostesses were Nell (Mrs. Don) Furgeson, Marvel (Mrs. Jack) Goodwin, Kay (Mrs. Bill) Hendon, Anne (Mrs. Jack) Herbig, Joy (Mrs. Ed) Stark, Marsha (Mrs. Jimmy) White, Jennie (Mrs. Tom) McIlvain, Marilee (Mrs. Ed) Runyan and Louan (Mrs. Glenn) Rogers.

The rehearsal dinner was hosted by the groom's father, Dennis Askelson of Oakland, Calif., at the Petroleum Club of Midland.

The Petroleum Club also was the setting for a bridesmaids' luncheon hosted by Betty (Mrs. Greg) Richardson and Chris (Mrs. Chuck) Thomas. The luncheon was followed by a manicure party at Backstage.

On his wedding day, Doug and the groomsmen enjoyed a relaxing day of golf at Midland Country Club hosted by the bride's brother, David Henry, and Michael Wood of Dallas.

A brunch is being given today at the Henry home for out-of-town guests by Mrs. Muriel Henry of Norman, Okla., grandmother of the bride, and Cynthia (Mrs. Ed) Gay of Huntsville and Natalie Gay of Norman, aunt and cousin of the bride.

Among the guests here for the weekend are the bridesmatron and all the bridesmaids, who were in Paula and Jim's wedding 29 years ago.

BAG: Clippings decompose quickly

(From 1F)

Mrs. Bidwell said. "And I really don't notice any difference between our yard the neighbors. Our's looks just as good."

Fertilizing your lawn properly also is important. Ms. Benge said the slow-release fertilizers generally work best for a more even growth, and recommends a fertilizer high in nitrogen because that is what promotes growth.

The "Don't Bag It" planning guide also offers timetables for fertilizing. Fertilizer application dates depend on the type of grass. For common Bermuda, the TAES recommends fertilizing April 15, June 1, July 15 and Sept. 1, while "Tif" Bermuda should be fertilized April 1, May 1, June 1, Aug. 1 and Sept. 1. Buffalo grass should be fertilized May 1 and Sept. 1, while St. Augustine needs an application April 15, June 1 and Sept. 1, and Tall Fescue should be treated March 1, Sept. 15 and Nov. 15.

"'Don't Bag It' offers guidelines. It's really your personal choice. You can take the guidelines and adjust them to your needs," Ms. Benge said. "It really depends on what your standards for your grass are. ... You need to take it and make it fit your schedule."

A Landscape Management Seminar and Demonstration was sponsored in April which introduced the "Don't Bag It" program for this year, "but we want to have an ongoing program so people won't forget the importance of it," Ms. Benge said.

SHE BELIEVES that understanding the program and adapting it to what works the best for each individual and their lawn are the keys to the success of the "Don't Bag It" program.

Key concerns of those considering using the program are the mess they envision in their yards from the clipping and the possibility of thatch forming in the yard.

"If the program is followed, there is very little mess. You only cut a third of the blade off at a time and the clippings fall down into the grass and break down real fast," Ms. Benge said.

As for thatch, "thatch is caused by grass crowns, the area of the grass blade between the leaf blade and the root; the stolons, which are above ground runners, and the rhizome, which are below ground runners," Ms. Benge said. "The clippings have nothing to do with thatch. Grass clippings are water and protein, so they really help to fertilize the yard and hold in moisture."

For those who just can't bear to leave clippings in the yard, there is still a way to avoid sending them to the landfill.

"Leaves and clippings can be used for mulch in flower beds," Ms. Benge said. "You can take your lawn mower and run it over the leaves and clippings several times to make them smaller pieces and use the mulch in flower beds. Use your yard wastes to make compost for later use. This will help save you money too, because you won't need to buy peat moss.

"Compost is raw organic matter decomposed to humus," Ms. Benge said. "It is good for the soil, and our goal is to improve the soil.

"We are trying to let the public know that this is a viable way to manage lawns. We can make a tremendous difference in our yards by improving the soil quality and this is a way to do it organically," she said. "The clippings are easily handled by decomposing. In this way, we can address the problem (of overflowing landfills) right now and the benefits of the program can be seen this summer in our yards. It makes what was yard waste 100 percent recyclable."

Soil sterilants are mostly bad news

Read label carefully before applying 'weed killers' that also kill soil

By James E. Walters

PHOENIX (AP) — Soil sterilants are mostly bad news for home landscapes. So be sure to read the label carefully before applying any "weed killer."

If you don't, you may duplicate the experience of my friend who lost four maturing shade trees that kept his home's air-conditioning costs within reason and provided a gorgeous setting for his desert home.

Soil sterilants do just what they promise — sterilize the soil and make it unfit for plant growth, whether it's desirable or undesirable. Most will last for at least one season. A few have been known to persist 10 years.

Some years ago the University of Arizona, quoting research of James R. Feucht, reported that seven commonly used herbicides had caused confirmed damage to trees. Most involved applications made over the root zones or situations in which tree roots grew into treated areas. In only a handful of cases could damage be attributed to lateral movement.

Sometimes the cause is obvious from the pattern of damage. Trees along fences and driveways show symptoms while those farther away do not.

The U of A said tree roots seldom are killed initially and it is more common to at first find interference with or inhibition of the photosynthetic process, resulting in yellowing (chlorosis) of leaves and finally death of tissues. It is not uncommon to find residue amounts higher in foliage than in soil.

THIS WAS MY friend's experience. It took about a year to complete the process. Experts cautioned against trying to flood the chemical beyond the root zones, saying this was only likely to spread it and that the best hope was to keep it above most of the roots until it dissipated in the ground. Heavy spring rains refused to cooperate with that process.

Activated charcoal also was suggested, but it would not work on the type of herbicide used. However, the idea did result in a good suggestion for anyone with such a major problem — contact the company that made the product to find out whether it can help.

My friend had just wanted to erase some weeds that could have been hand-pulled or sprayed with a formulation with no long-lasting effects.

The product he bought — enough for 20,000 square feet — did say in large print on the label that it eliminated the weeds he was targeting. But it also said, in equally large print, to read the entire label and use strictly in accordance with precautionary statements and directions.

And under "IMPORTANT," the label warned not to use the product for controlling weeds around shrubs or trees or in flower or vegetable beds.

My friend said he had never noticed the precautionary statements.

SUCH REPORTS recently led DowElanco, which didn't make the herbicide he used, to announce efforts to improve readability of pesticide labels.

"You can tell consumers why they need to understand the information on a pesticide label, but you can't make them read it," said David Byron, product development manager for DowElanco of Indianapolis. "Why? One reason is obvious — few pesticide labels are user-friendly."

Byron said DowElanco hopes to enlist the entire industry in the effort. Product development experts and copywriters experienced in writing product labels for the retail market are reworking labels.

"All wording will be made as simple as possible," he added. "Sentences will be scrutinized for clarity and changed so the message is presented in the fewest words possible."

Label designs also are to focus on logical and orderly sequence of information; as an example, application directions will be placed close to the top of every label.

DowElanco plans to present the revised labels to the Environmental Protection Agency, retailers, consumer groups and horticultural extension agents for further suggestions and have them on store products sometime in 1994, Byron said.

Parents fight back with their own music

By Erma Bombeck

Bombeck

When it comes to inflicting pain, nothing is more inhumane than listening to music you hate. In the past, youth has built an arsenal of their current music, and used adults as their targets. How many mothers have fallen apart under the assault of Billy Ray Cyrus' "Achy Breaky Heart" and screamed, "I can't stand it anymore; the house is yours"?

How many fathers are doomed to a lifetime of ringing-of-the-ears because the car radio was set so that Whitney Houston could be heard within a 30-mile radius the moment the ignition turned over?

Well, adults are finally fighting back with their own weapon: classical music. The idea was hatched by the manager of a Canadian 7-Eleven store near Vancouver, British Columbia. He discovered he could get rid of teens who loitered in front of his store and intimidated other customers by playing "Born Free" and "The Way We Were."

The idea spread to the states, only merchants fired volleys of the big guns: Bach, Mozart and Tchaikovsky. The kids can't disperse fast enough. It's the next best thing to a flea collar.

This is not the first time music has been used to bring about human capitulation. In 1982, the Red Brigade terrorists held U.S. Brig. Gen. James L. Dozier captive for 42 days. "They put earphones on me and played hard rock music all day long," he said. "Do you have any idea what hard rock music can do to a person?"

In 1990, in an attempt to flush Manuel Noriega out of hiding, the U.S. staged a rock music assault on the Vatican Embassy. It worked.

Now that adults know where their strength lies, I can predict vacations where we will no longer have to listen to Michael or Madonna cranked up to 96 decibels. I'll just hold up my cassettes of Barry Manilow at the Copacabana and the Harmonicats.

We will no longer have to call out the services of the National Guard in case of riots. We can just pipe in Doris Day and Lawrence Welk's 16 polka hits.

I wouldn't be surprised if concealed cassettes become so illegal you'll have to have a permit to carry one.

Policeman: "What are you doing with 'Jim Nabors Sings' in your glove compartment?"

"I have to protect myself."

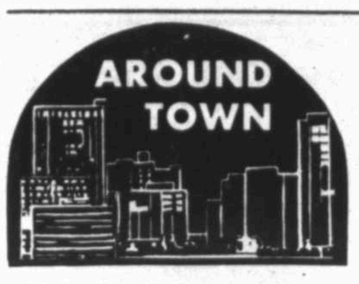

Policeman: "Against what? That's enough ammunition to break up a Guns-N-Roses concert."

"Is that what you think I have it for? It's purely social."

Policeman: "Hey, even we don't have weapons of this magnitude. The strongest we are issued is a Strauss waltz."

They don't understand. It's a war, and war isn't pretty.

'Old bags' support each other

By Louis J. Salome
N.Y. Times News Service

LONDON — When Lady Sarah Graham-Moon publishes her anthology of 100 ways women can get even with their unfaithful spouses, adulterous husbands everywhere had better hit the road and take their valuables with them.

Lady Graham-Moon, 55, dumped by her husband a year ago, has turned the practice of marital revenge into an art form.

In the process, she has won the hearts of scorned wives throughout Britain and has become a minor celebrity through press coverage of her attempt to find life after infidelity.

As Lady Graham-Moon tells the story, her troubled marriage exploded a year ago when her husband, Sir Peter Graham-Moon, a low-ranking aristocrat — but a monied aristocrat nonetheless — flaunted his infidelity under her nose.

Fueled by years of pent-up fury, Lady Graham-Moon plotted her counterattack carefully. She wanted to anger her husband as he did her. And she wanted to cause him as much agony and embarrassment as possible without harming him physically.

First, she poured gallons of paint on his cherished BMW auto in the middle of the night when it was parked in his girlfriend's driveway. That, she said, was "wonderfully easy."

Everyone in the town knew who did it, and so did her husband. And they all knew why. But she denied it and refused to pay the repainting bill when her husband instructed the body shop to send it to her.

A week later, she cut four inches off the left sleeves of 32 of her husband's custom-tailored Savile Row suits, which cost about $1,600 each. In case he missed the alterations, she cut several of his cashmere overcoats.

She now describes those acts as "awful." But, she admits, "I knew what I was doing."

That's a good starter sampling of revenge tactics for Lady Graham-Moon's planned book on the subject. Press accounts of her exploits have prompted letters from women eager to tell their stories of infidelity and revenge. Some of the retaliatory acts performed by others make Lady Graham-Moon shriek in dread, although she does admire the creativity.

One woman wrote to say she served her husband's pet rabbit for dinner. "He smacked his lips and said 'jolly good,' " said Lady Graham-Moon, and then the man's angry wife broke the news. There is no report of what happened next.

Another woman said she cleaned the toilet bowl with her husband's toothbrush. Then she watched in quiet delight as he brushed his teeth.

Earlier this summer, Lady Graham-Moon formed the Old Bags Club to rejuvenate middle-aged women dumped in a sniffling heap by their husbands, who typically run off with younger women.

Lady Graham-Moon, now divorced, revels in the irony of the Old Bags Club's name because she believes humor is essential to healing. Her message is that abandoned middle-aged women have a lot to contribute even if society shuns them as unproductive and uncoupled.

With a handful of kindred suffering souls, Lady Graham-Moon and the club have been meeting in her rented farmhouse in the county of Berkshire west of London. They open letters sent by women who tell their own stories of marital betrayal and revenge.

Lady Graham-Moon and her friends plan to put women in touch with each other so they can form small support groups. The goal is to help them regain self-esteem and self-reliance.

She insists the point of the club is not to counsel revenge, although she believes revenge can be therapeutic if it doesn't go too far.

"Some letters are bright and optimistic and the women want to join," she said. "There is little, if any, mention of their husbands.

"But others tell you in minute detail the horror of it all. They need the most help. They keep on hating the guy and it does them more harm than him."

Different locations start bridal registries

By Barbara Mayer
Associated Press

There's good news for practical couples who would prefer gifts of home furnishings and home entertainment products.

Some home decorating stores and retailers of building supplies and recorded music are getting into the wedding registry business. A few even have 800 numbers, so gift-givers can do their shopping on the telephone. A tip: A favorite store may be willing to add the service if it's requested.

Home Depot, the home improvement retail chain headquartered in Atlanta, has been offering a registry for about a year in a small number of stores. Currently, about 20 of its 203 outlets make the service available. They are located primarily in south Florida, where the idea began, and in a few locations in California and the northeast. About 40 couples have registered in south Florida, says Sunny Allen, administrator of the service.

A couple can come in and walk the store with a service representative, picking out anything from stock — from a garbage disposal to a new front door or tools. The representative enters the stock numbers and prices on a form which is sent out to various stores in the same district. As items are purchased, they are crossed off the list. Donors can place their orders by telephone or in person.

"There is no charge for the service, and we have free delivery and gift cards," Allen says.

Check with a local Home Depot branch to see if they provide this service, she suggests.

Tower Records began offering a wedding registry in 1991 when a customer requested the service, says Mark Svensson, head supervisor of the mail order division.

"When they asked, we said, 'no problem.' We tell couples to fax us a list with name of the artist, title, label and Schwann catalog number," Svensson says. "The service is available strictly through the mail order department."

If someone calls and asks for the bridal registry, the order taker pulls up the list from the computer and reads it over the phone. As items are sold, they are crossed off. Tower sends the merchandise out via United Parcel Service with a card.

Earth General, an environmentally-oriented home furnishings shop in Brooklyn, N.Y., started a wedding registry last summer.

Typical selections include candlesticks and glasses made of recycled glass, beeswax candles, unbleached cotton sheets and other household items, gardening tools and supplies. Prices can range widely — from $8 for a wine goblet or $50 for a compost bin to several hundred dollars for a king-size bed ensemble.

SEEDS FOR THOUGHT

Zinnias provide colorful palette

By Deborah A. Benge

If you like bright splashes of color in your gardens, then bouquet zinnias may be for you. Or maybe you favor pastels or rich shades in between. Whatever colors, shades and tints you like, there's probably a zinnia for you.

Benge

Red, purple, orange, pink, rose, salmon, yellow and white — that's the palette of zinnias you can grow and enjoy. They're not only beautiful, they're easy to grow too. They bloom fast from direct-sown or transplants, and they keep right on flowering until fall frost.

Zinnias can be directly seeded in mid-summer and will produce an abundance of color until late fall. Hot weather doesn't seem to bother them as long as they get a good soaking every five to seven days.

Zinnias are easy to grow, even for beginners. They need sun — at least five to six hours daily — for satisfactory bloom; warmth, and well-drained soil which doesn't hold puddles after a heavy rain. Choose an area free from competing tree and shrub roots.

Work up the soil by spading to a depth of six to eight inches and incorporate organic matter and a slow-release fertilizer. A soil test will give you the best indication of any fertilizer needed, but in the absence of a test, use a complete slow-release fertilizer with an approximate ration of 3-1-2.

To plant zinnias, follow these instructions:

- Level and pulverize the top few inches of soil.
- Sow zinnia seeds evenly and thinly, and cover with ¼-inch of fine soil.
- Keep the soil slightly moist all the time until the seedlings are up and growing well.

Seedlings usually emerge about seven to 10 days after planting. When they have one or two pairs of true leaves (not counting the pair that unfolded at emergence), thin or transplant to the distance recommended on the seed packet. As a general rule, large flowering zinnias need at least 18 to 24 inches of growing space in all directions, and small-flowering zinnias need at least 12 to 15 inches.

Thinning is very important because it gives the remaining plants the room they need to thrive. Crowded plants often grow spindly, excessively tall and are more prone to disease, including powdery mildew.

Powdery mildew is the common problem affecting these relatively carefree plants. This is a fungus that appears as whitish talcum powder on the leaves. The disease is most apt to strike during damp, cool weather, especially late in the season. You can reduce the risk of mildew by spacing your plants as recommended on seed packets to avoid crowding and allow good air circulation. Water zinnias at ground level so leaves don't get too wet.

If mildew becomes a problem, excellent control can be obtained with recommended fungicides.

Cultivate the soil occasionally to keep the zinnias weed free. Water deeply about once a week during dry, hot weather; water at ground level to keep foliage dry. To reduce the need for weeding and watering, mulch the ground around the plant with wood chips, grass clippings, pine needles, compost or similar materials.

Pick lots of zinnias to enjoy in bouquets. Remove faded flowers and seed heads to encourage more bloom and to keep your garden looking tidy.

Check your favorite nursery or garden supply store for seeds in the color and plant size you need in zinnias. There is usually a wide assortment in the seed packet rack.

Tall or short plants, large or small flowers, solid colors or bi-colors — take your pick. There are zinnias for just about every garden purpose. It's no wonder zinnias are one of the most popular flowers with gardeners.

Just a few more flowers that can be planted now for late summer and fall flowering: marigold, periwinkle, petunia, cosmos, portulaca and ageratum.

Or you may be able to find transplants of these that will give you faster color. Periwinkle, ageratum, marigold and petunias are commonly found as transplants.

One other heat-tolerant, color-generous plant that can be planted at this time of the year is firebush. This one needs to be planted as a transplant. It will do well in a sunny, well drained bed or in a container. If you grow it in a container, bring it indoors when freezing temperatures threaten and it will be ready to go back outdoors next spring.

So don't go through the summer and fall without color. Sow seed or put out transplants for late summer and fall color.

Japan's key wetlands threatened

TOKYO (AP) — Many key wetlands in Japan, particularly in one habitat critical for birds migrating between many Asian and Pacific countries, are threatened, according to one expert.

David Walls, chairman of the Asian Wetland Bureau, made his report at a recent international conference on wetlands conservation in Kushiro in northern Japan.

The bureau, Walls said, reviewed a plan by the Fukuoka city government to build an artificial island near Hakata Bay and concluded that the project will destroy one of the best habitats for migrating birds.

Japanese delegates had no immediate reactions.

About 1,400 delegates from 107 nations attended the conference. They included 77 nations that have signed the Ramsar Convention on wetlands of international importance as waterfowl habitat. The Ramsar list includes more than 600 sites.

DEAR ABBY

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: When I married my husband, I was not a virgin. He knew this, but he married me anyway. (He wasn't a virgin either.)

Van Buren

We have been married for nearly 12 years, and he's still nagging me to tell him who, when, where, and how good (or bad) they were in bed. He also wants to know how he rates compared to the others.

I have not told him the truth, and I don't intend to. Am I wrong to keep this from him? I'm afraid if I tell him anything, I will never hear the end of it. I have never been unfaithful to him. — NO NAME OR TOWN

DEAR NO NAME: Your past is none of his business, but since he seems preoccupied with how he "rates" compared to the others, cross your fingers and tell him he's the greatest! (He will believe you, and God will forgive you.)

DEAR ABBY: Your response to "Colorado Mother" was correct — but inadequate. She is correct in stating that all it takes is a whisper and suspicion for the child welfare people to come knocking on your door. They not only knock, they also have the authority to remove your child from your home based on nothing more than suspicion.

The following situation actually happened recently: A father took his toddler to their regular day-care center one morning, explaining that the family had been camping the previous weekend and the kid had some chigger bites on his legs. Someone at day care decided that the chigger bites looked like cigarette burns and notified the child welfare office. Someone from the child welfare office came to the day-care center and removed the child to their custody.

When the mother stopped after work to pick up her child, she was advised that her child had been placed in "protective custody" — pending an investigation. She was not allowed to talk to her child, or even know where the child was!

Fortunately, the child's pediatrician called the parents that evening and advised them that by some fluke the child had been taken to his office for evaluation. He advised the parents that he had reported to the welfare office that the marks on the child's legs were indeed chigger bites and the child should be returned to the parents. The child was not returned until the following evening!

I do not blame "Colorado Mother" for keeping her child home from day care because she had fallen and had some nasty-looking bruises on her face. I would have done the same in a heartbeat. — INDIANA MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: I am amazed at the number of letters I received from readers whose experiences with child welfare agencies were almost identical to the one you described.

DEAR ABBY: You had a poem in your column that I thought was one of the most beautiful poems I had ever read. I don't remember the title but it had the line, "Please do not stand at my grave and weep ... I am not there ..."

It was a beautiful, comforting poem. I believe you said the author was unknown. Thank you. — TOMMY B., MARSHALL, TEXAS

DEAR TOMMY B: Here it is:

"Do not stand at my grave and weep,
"I am not there, I do not sleep.
"I am a thousand winds that blow;
"I am the diamond glints on snow.
"I am the sunlight on ripened grain;
"I am the gentle autumn's rain.
"When you awaken in the morning's hush,
"I am the swift uplifting rush
"Of quiet birds in circled flight.
"I am the soft star that shines at night.
"Do not stand at my grave and cry.
"I am not there; I did not die."

Abigail Van Buren's column is distributed by Universal Press Syndicate.

Passion for history

Former Midlander writes historical romance novels

After being rejected by every publishing house in New York City, former Midlander Elaine Coffman sold all four of the books she had written to a major publishing house, which had turned down her work months before.

"Right after we had submitted my manuscript to Dell-Delacorte, the first time, the publishing house was bought by a German corporation, which also bought the publishing house of Bantam-Doubleday," Ms. Coffman said during a recent interview.

"And they merged the companies together — Bantam Doubleday Dell. The editor who had rejected my manuscript the first time was fired during the merger. And they say there's no justice in this world."

Ms. Coffman credits Cindy Kaye, a reader at the company, with bringing her manuscript for "My Enemy, My Love," to the attention of Maggie Lichota, the new editor at Dell.

"This woman had read my manuscript originally about six or eight months before and had recommended it to the editor, who read it and rejected it," said Ms. Coffman, the daughter of Midlander William S. Gunter and Odessan Edde Baucum, formerly of Colorado City.

"She was talking to the new editor and commented, 'Several months ago I read a manuscript by a lady from Texas. It was one of these rare books that you read and you can't quit thinking about.' "

"MY ENEMY, My Love" was published in 1988. She sold it for a $2,500 advance and royalties. For her seventh novel, "So This is Love," being released by Fawcett Books this month, Ms. Coffman received a much higher figure.

"I've gone way beyond that now," Ms. Coffman said, referring to the $2,500 advance. "It's well into six figures."

When Ms. Coffman was growing up in Midland, she had no idea that one day she would write a novel. In fact, she had entirely different plans for her future.

"Actually, up until my freshman year in college, I wanted to be a surgical nurse," said Ms. Coffman, who graduated from Midland High School in 1960 and received two scholarships to Texas Women's University in Denton, where she spent her freshman year.

"I did one year of nursing there, and at the end of that year I decided that I wanted to be an elementary school teacher," said Ms. Coffman.

"I can remember vividly the day I changed my mind. Our nursing director at TWU was a retired Army nurse and once a week we would go over to Parkland Hospital to do what we called our clinical practice.

"I had on my little striped uniform and my hat, and we had gone over to Parkland and we were given our charts and told what to do. Miss Franke came along and handed me six charts — a ward. I went down to the door and I looked down at the charts, and I realized they were all men.

"IT SCARED me to death and I kind of pushed the door open a little crack, and I thought, ' Oh, I don't know if I can do this.'

"And about that time Miss Franke came down the hall behind me, and with her left hand she opened the door, and with her right hand she shoved me into the room. Everybody was looking at me, and I was looking back at them. Something just snapped, and I said, 'What am I doing here? This is not what I want to do.'

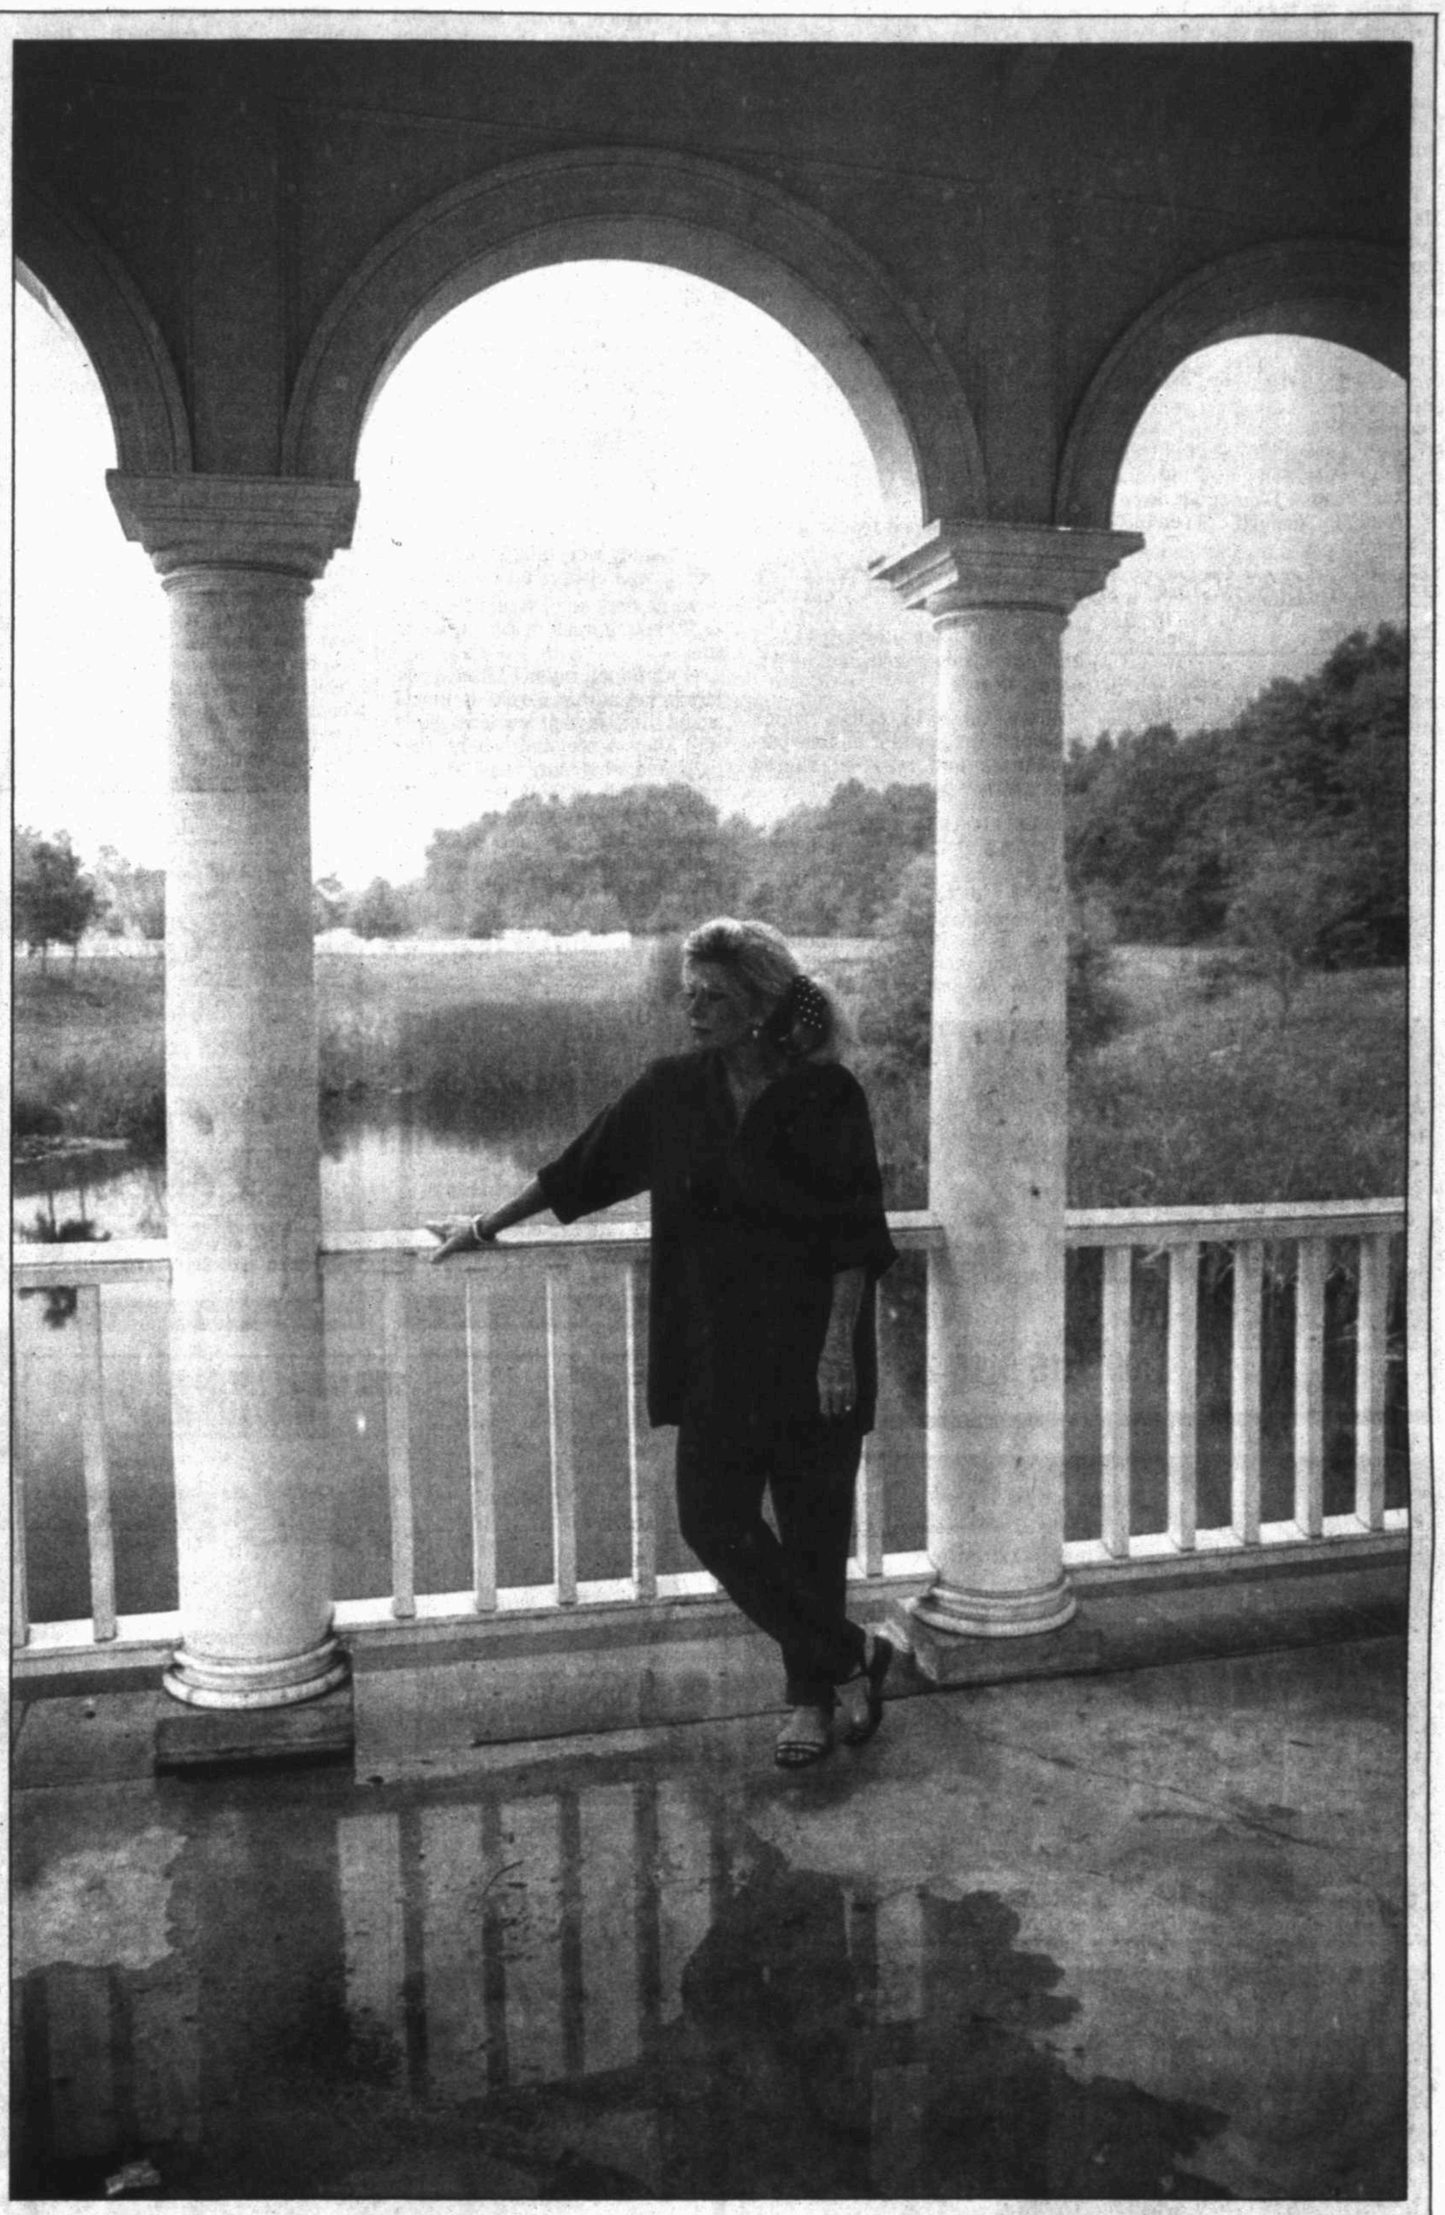

"It was not as glamorous as it was in the books I had read," said Ms. Coffman, who was a voracious reader when she was growing up.

"I probably read every kid book in the library," said Ms. Coffman, who attended North, West and Sam Houston elementaries and San Jacinto Junior High. "I was always an avid, avid reader. We have a set of encyclopedias, and I used to read the encyclopedias — pick a letter and read from cover to cover. Books always held a special fascination for me."

Ms. Coffman finished her year at TWU, then changed her major to elementary education and transferred to Hardin Simmons University in Abilene.

"I had never really thought about teaching school. I had worked with the children at First Baptist Church and I had life-guarded. And back then I don't think there were as many options open to women as there are now, so teaching school seemed like a logical option to me. And I wanted to teach elementary, especially first grade."

Please see ELAINE/2G

Former Midlander Elaine Coffman, above, talks about her life and career as a writer of historical romance novels. She is the author of "My Enemy, My Love," nominated for Best Historical Romance of 1988, "If My Love Could Hold You," "Escape Not My Love," "Angel in Marble," "For All The Right Reasons" and "Somewhere Along the Way," all published by Dell. Below is the cover of "Angel in Marble," Ms. Coffman's fourth book.

'You don't know that you have a book inside of you until you do finish it, and you can't sell a book until it is finished. I also told him I couldn't believe how many times I had given other people that same advice.'

During her junior year in college she married Thomas D. Coffman and her goals had not changed. She and her husband moved to Lubbock, where he graduated from Texas Tech about the time their first child, Chuck, was due.

They then moved to Dallas and Ms. Coffman began commuting to North Texas State University. The couple had their second child, Lesley, that August before she began student teaching in September.

"When I graduated from North Texas with my degree in elementary education, I had two children and Lesley was almost a year old when we moved to Midland," said Ms. Coffman, whose first full-time teaching position was second grade at Fannin Elementary here.

"Ironically enough, the principal at Fannin turned out to be my high school history teacher, Mr. Buttery," said Ms. Coffman, recalling how he would introduce her at PTA meetings as one of his former students.

Ms. Coffman also taught first grade and then language and learning disabilities at Crockett Elementary before she had her third child, Ashley.

She went back for a sememster at Ben Milam Elementary before taking a hiatus from the teaching profession.

"It was just too much with three children, and I decided it was time to quit and take care of my own kids.

"It was one of the most difficult things I have ever done because I really loved teaching. When I first started teaching, I used to come home and tell my husband that I couldn't believe they paid me for doing that because I enjoyed doing it so much."

When she stopped teaching, she became more active in civic and social affairs. She was a member of the Midland Symphony Guild, served on the board of Midland Community Theatre's ACT IX and was president of the local ballet guild. In addition, she was active at First Presbyterian Church, where she served as president of the Women of the Church, taught Sunday School and taught Bible study.

Also she was an active Cub Scout and Brownie leader and room mother.

Then, in 1978, the family moved to Austin, where Coffman was drilling in the Austin Chalk area. They also became actively involved in ranching, raising quarter horses and Brahman cattle on their three ranches.

At this time, Ms. Coffman began to research her ancestry, an interest she had for much of her life.

"I always loved history all through school," Ms. Coffman said. "And a lot of times when we would study a certain period in history, I was always a little bit of a daydreamer, and I would find myself thinking back to this period in time.

"I would tell myself I had ancestors living at that period in time. I would find myself curious about who they were and where they lived and what they were doing. I used to tell myself that one of these days I was going to find out, and so I did."

Ms. Coffman was able, she said, "To take one of my family lines all the way back to Charlemagne. And then I had some that I couldn't get out of Tennessee in the 1800s. It was a lot of fun and real interesting."

She joined a number of historical organizations so all of the material she gathered would be on file if anyone in future generations wanted to research their genealogy.

Around the time Ms. Coffman finished her research she was exposed to the historical romance novel.

"When my oldest daughter returned from Camp Longhorn, she brought four or five little romance books home with her. The first couple of days I tried to talk with her and find out how camp was, and her face was always buried in one of these books. It was almost like she had gone into a coma."

Finally, Ms. Coffman scanned the the books that Lesley was reading.

"I tossed the last one back on the bed and I said, 'I could write a better book than that.' And she laid the book down on her chest and looked over at me and said, "Well, why don't you?' "

The comment played through Ms. Coffman's mind during the next few months. That fall, she was in a bookstore visiting with a clerk who advised her to write about something with which she was familiar. Although she wasn't familiar with the historical romance novel, she had a passion for history and the market was not as difficult to break into as was others.

"Up until this point, I had never read a romance book," Ms. Coffman said. "I bought a sack full of them. Took them home and read them over the next couple three months."

On Thanksgiving Day 1985, she began writing. She planned to keep the book a secret, but was unsuccessful in doing so because writing began to cut into her social life.

One of the first people she talked with about writing a book was a friend of hers, Austin writer Bill Whittliff, who produced several movies including "The Black Stallion" and wrote and produced the screenplay for "Lonesome Dove."

"I called Bill and said I've been thinking about writing a book. What advice can you give me?

"He said, 'Write it.' "

"At the time I thought that was sort of a brief answer and didn't give me a whole lot of information, but I took his advice and I went ahead and wrote my book.

"About three years ago I was back in Austin for a debutante party and I ran into Bill and his wife, Sally. They were telling me how proud they were of me and how they had been following my career and how well I was doing.

"I told Bill 'I will never forget that advice you gave me.' At the time, I was almost a little miffed that it was so brief. But I've come to realize that was probably the best advice anyone could have ever given me.

"You don't know that you have a book inside of you until you do finish it, and you can't sell a book until it is finished. I also told him I couldn't believe how many times I had given other people that same advice."

The first book took Ms. Coffman around 18 months to write. Today, Ms. Coffman, who in 1988 divorced her husband of 26 years, lives in Great Falls, Va. She writes a novel in about four months by working eight to 12 hours a day.

"I don't do social things as far as organizations or clubs anymore like I used to. No doubt that it cuts severely into your social life, but it's not a sacrifice because I enjoy what I am doing so much."

HOROSCOPE

SUNDAY, JULY 11, 1993

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Your work brings a greater sense of accomplishment. Although overtime may be necessary, the financial results will more than compensate. Your social life accelerates in 1994, thanks to an exciting new relationship. Research pays off when you have finds to invest. Music and art are a source of lasting pleasure. Plan a vacation with them in mind. Good luck accompanies you on your travels.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: actress Sela Ward, sixth president John Quincy Adams, boxer Leon Spinks, soap star Susan Seaforth Hayes.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Procrastination could be your undoing. You will pay the penalty if you keep postponing things until "tomorrow." Romantic partner may be playing games. Insist upon an honest relationship.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Getting together with a diverse group of friends proves exciting. Romance continues on a smooth course. Sharing new activities will help perk up a flagging relationship.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Altering your eating habits could change your life for the better. Do it today! Although family bickering has you on edge, the friction is only temporary. Take a long walk by yourself.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Your high spirits are contagious now. Others are cheered by your presence. Time spent with a child will prove especially rewarding. Hang on to your cash.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Travel and romance go hand-in-hand. Stand up for yourself. Do not let a "friend" put you down. Being independent does not mean being rude. Respect other people's wishes.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): A favorable day for alliances, especially the romantic kind. Weigh the costs thoroughly before splurging on a special treat. Day trips are terrific for the whole family.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You are only a short trip or conversation away from a lucrative opportunity or prized possession. Take the first step — and the rest will be easy. New friends will brighten your evening.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Useful information comes from a reliable informant. This is a perfect day to relax with that special person. Speak from the heart if ready for a deeper commitment. Offer reassurance.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Step into the spotlight; you look good and prosperity is in sight. Pay close attention to the money scene. A brief encounter could lead to romance. Avoid going overboard when shopping.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Important decisions, possibly urgent, need careful thought. Everything may not be what it seems. Finish pending projects. When spending time with offspring, do more listening than talking.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Thoughts of romance could have you walking on air. Be sure to consult loved one before planning a recreational outing. A telephone call sends your spirits soaring.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Family needs could interfere with your social plans. Take on extra work if you feel sure you can handle it. Give young people a chance to make more decisions for themselves.

Opening lead: Queen of ◇ Don't be lulled into a false sense of security by a seemingly impregnable holding. Remember Murphy's Law: If something can go wrong, it will.

With a five-loser hand, South was close to a jump to game, but chose the more conservative invitational jump to three hearts. With two aces, including the ace of trumps, North had no qualms about accepting.

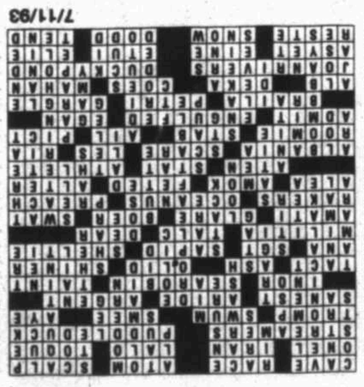

West led the queen of diamonds and declarer, counting six trump tricks, two spades and two minor-suit aces, gave the hand no thought. After winning the ace of diamonds, South cashed the ace of trumps. When West discarded a diamond, declarer found that 10 tricks had shrunk to nine.

The 5-0 break was most unlucky. More unfortunate was the fact that, with a little care, the contract could have been made.

Suppose that, after winning the ace of diamonds, declarer were to ruff a diamond before touching trumps. Now declarer leads a heart to the ace and, if both defenders follow, it is a simple matter to draw trumps and claim 10 tricks.

When West shows out, declarer continues by ruffing another diamond. Having scored both low trumps via ruffs, the contract is secure as long as East has at least two spades and one club. Declarer cashes the winners in those suits and when East does not ruff, the trick total is back to 10—four high trumps, two ruffs, two spades and the minor-suit aces.
