David and Treasa Jo Owens in May, 1980

Pampa court will hear testimony on mysterious death of man

By LORI-ANN D'ANTONIO
Staff Writer

A court in Pampa will hear the suit filed by a Carnegie, Okla. woman asking $500,000 from a major corporation and two Pampa residents stemming from an incident in which her husband died in Pampa on June 28, 1980.

Treasa Jo Owens, formerly of Lefors, had originally filed the suit in Harris County Court, in order to reach the major corporation, Big Three Industries, Inc., but the case was transferred to Gray County Court on January 3, 1983 at the request of Roy Parsons, a Pampa resident named in the suit.

Parsons and Oscar Augustus Waters, who also lived in Pampa at the time of the incident, are named as defendants in the suit, along with Big Three Industries, Inc., the parent company of NOWSCO Services located in Pampa.

Frank David Owens, Jr., 29, of Lefors, was found slumped in the passenger seat of his car on the night of June 28, 1980 by Metropolitan Ambulance employees and transported to Highland General Hospital. He was dead on arrival at the hospital, a spokesman said at the time. Justice of the Peace Margie Prestidge pronounced Owens dead at the hospital later that night and ordered an autopsy.

Treasa Owens brought the suit because she says NOWSCO, Parsons and Waters are responsible for the death of her husband. The suit alleges that Waters killed her husband, that Parsons, as supervisor, allowed it to happen, and that NOWSCO was negligent in the death because alcohol was permitted on company property against company rules at a barbecue held at NOWSCO in Pampa on June 28, 1980. Her husband was allegedly involved in an altercation with Waters and subsequently died. The suit alleges Waters kicked her husband's spleen in during the fight, killing him.

According to Treasa Owens, her husband called her at work in Pampa about 5:30 p.m. on June 28 and told her he had been invited to a barbecue at the NOWSCO lot on Tyng Street. She said she was concerned because her husband had not worked for NOWSCO for three months, and was then employed by Schlumberger Well Services of Pampa.

She said she asked him why he wanted to go to the barbecue when none of his friends who had worked at NOWSCO with him were there any more.

"There are still a couple of guys that still work there, and I'd like to see them," he told her. He said he would pick her up from work later.

He never did.

Owens said her first indication that something was wrong came after he didn't pick her up at work and she went to a friend's house to wait for him.

"He was late sometimes, but he knew I'd be at this girl's house if I was waiting for him," she said.

After waiting for her husband for a couple of hours, she and her friend began to drive around Pampa, partly to find David and partly to keep from worrying, she said.

She saw her car by the police station on a wrecker, and police officers were dusting it for fingerprints. Her first thought was that they might have arrested her husband for stealing the car, since it was still registered in her maiden name.

She said she went up to one of the officers and asked him, "Can you tell me where the driver of this car is?" thinking he'd been arrested.

"Lady, the man driving this car's dead," he told her.

Owens said she went into the police station and was questioned by police. Because police weren't sure that the body at Highland General was her husband, her friend went to identify the body at the hospital. While waiting for her friend, she remembers sitting alone in a room at the police station, where the feeling that her husband was dead "hit her."

"It hit me when I raised up and looked and saw two guys from NOWSCO walk by. I recognized one of them, the other one I didn't recognize, but they later told me that man was Oscar Waters. They would not look at me.

"I remember one young guy that walked by because I remember him working with David. He's the one I recognized. Then it hit me. I knew something bad had happened."

Waters was arrested and charged with murder on the afternoon of June 30, 1980. He was arraigned before County Judge Carl Kennedy and bond was set at $15,000. He was arrested after a Pampa Police Department investigation of the case.

After the investigation, police said they discovered that David Owens had allegedly been involved in an altercation and placed in his vehicle afterward.

"We feel the death was a result of the altercation," Pampa Chief of Police J.J. Ryzman said at the time.

Waters was free on the $15,000 bond until July 15, 1980 when a 31st District Grand Jury refused to indict him for the murder of Frank David Owens, Jr. He was released after being "no billed" by the grand jury, and has since left Pampa.

She said her recollection of the time following the incident are sketchy, because she was sedated by a physician soon after it happened.

"I remember a policeman or detective saying 'There was some type of altercation, there was some kind of fight. That's all I can say now, because we don't know the details.'"

Prestidge ordered an autopsy, which was performed by Amarillo pathologist Jose Diaz-Esquivel, but the report was not available from District Attorney Guy Hardin's office by press time.

According to court records, the only defendant who has been served with citations is Parsons. His attorney, Charles A. Waters, Jr. of Houston, declined to comment on the case because it is still in litigation.

Owens says she does not know why her lawyer, Hal Monk of Irving, has not served anyone connected with Big Three Industries yet, or found Oscar Waters. She said she doesn't have the money to hire a private detective to find Waters.

Cargo ship sinks in Atlantic Ocean blizzard

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (AP) — A 605-foot American coal freighter capsized and sank in the frigid Atlantic Ocean as a blizzard swept offshore Saturday, killing 24 crewmen who had abandoned ship.

Nine others were missing and chances of finding them alive were "very, very remote," said Coast Guard Capt. Joseph Blackett. Three men who were rescued by helicopter were hospitalized in serious to fair condition.

Shortly after 3 a.m., the Marine Electric radioed the Coast Guard "that she was having some difficulty with the weather and was taking some water over the bow," Blackett said at a news conference.

The ship was about 30 miles east of Chincoteague, Va., in seas running 15 to 18 feet and winds of about 40 mph. A gale warning was in effect along the Virginia coast.

At 4:13 a.m., the crew reported it was abandoning ship.

A Coast Guard helicopter arrived shortly after 5 a.m. and found that two life boats and three rafts had been launched, but "only a couple of people" were able to climb aboard, said Blackett, operations officer for the 5th District Coast Guard in Portsmouth.

Two men were rescued from the vessels and one was pulled from the water, he said.

Most of the 24 bodies recovered were found close together, Blackett said. Most probably died of hypothermia in the water.

One of the three said 28 people went into the water, but he wasn't sure if engine-room workers escaped, Blackett said.

Before it had headed to sea, the Marine Electric had escorted a trawler that was taking on water to Chincoteague, Blackett said.

Ice cream drive

While most of Pampa's streets were clear after the heavy snowstorm began to melt, others were still locked in slush. This is how the 2700 block of Cherokee Drive looked to harried motorists as late as Thursday afternoon. (Staff photo by Jean Tierney)

GTE asks $85.5 million raise

AUSTIN (AP) — The president of General Telephone Co. says it's "distasteful" to ask for rate hikes, but he had no choice but to come to the Public Utility Commission to seek an $85.5 million rate hike for his company.

The increase, if approved by the commission, would add as much as $4 to GTE monthly bills for residential service. Business bills would go up by $10.55 a month for some customers.

GTE, the state's second largest telephone company, serves 800,000 Texans in 289 exchanges. The San Angelo-based company serves several Houston and Dallas-Fort Worth suburbs.

The rate-hike package, filed Friday, does not ask for increases in long distance rates. GTE did ask for a limit of five free directory assistance calls per month, down from the current 10. Additional information calls cost 25 cents.

Commissioners set a Feb. 25 prehearing on GTE's request.

GTE asked for a $110.6 million increase last year, and went to court after the PUC approved only $46.8 million. The case is pending in court.

The 1982 rate hike increased some residential bills by 50 percent.

E.L. Langley, GTE president, said the company has been unable to earn the 12.5 percent profit authorized last year. Earnings have fallen to 9.5 percent, according to Langley.

"As distasteful as raising rates is, we prefer this rather than reducing these programs which our customers have told us they expect," said Langley.

He said GTE cut 700 employees in an effort to reduce costs during the past year.

"We realize our customers expect quality service and it is our objective to provide it. It is unfortunate that this costs money," he said.

GTE serves 289 Texas exchanges, including some Dallas and Houston suburbs.

Here are several examples of what the requested rate increase would mean for GTE customers:

In Baytown and similar size cities, the price of basic residential service would go up to $20.65 a month, compared to the current $16.65.

In Brownwood and similar size cities, monthly basic residential service would cost $12.80, up from $8.90.

In Daingerfield and similar size cities, the monthly bill for home service would go up to $12.40 from $8.65.

GTE is seeking large increases in monthly business phone bills. Business customers in some areas would face a $10.55 jump in monthly bills.

The rate-hike package includes a request for "optional measured service" to be offered to customers in Houston and Dallas-Fort Worth who would pay a reduced monthly fee, plus per-call charges.

Residential customers who choose the measured service would pay $10.15 per month plus a per-call charge based on time of day, distance and duration.

"This service will allow customers to better control the amount of their monthly telephone bill because their total bill each month would be based on how much they use the service," said Langley.

Langley said about half the $85.5 million needed is a result of changes forced by governmental action. The changes "move toward ending the subsidization of local rates by other services which have been deregulated and must become more competitively priced," he said.

Utility commissioners have penalized GTE in the past for poor service.

The Texas Municipal League has challenged GTE's rate hike requests in recent years. Don Butler, TML lawyer, said he has heard there have been some improvements in GTE service, "but in a majority of places it remains the same."

Langley said improvements have been made.

"We are meeting all of the commission service standards in Texas. This is not to say we do not still have several areas that give us concern, but we have identified our problem areas and have corrective programs in action," he said.

Dolores Del Rio hospitalized

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The National Actors Association has denied local press reports that actress Dolores del Rio is seriously ill in a California hospital.

David Reynoso, the association's president, said he paid a courtesy visit to the famous actress Thursday while in Los Angeles for a meeting. The newspaper Excelsior quoted him Saturday as saying that her health is delicate but she is in no way seriously ill.

She reportedly is in a hospital in La Jolla, California recovering from a fall.

Miss del Rio was born in 1905 in the northern state of Durango. She is best known here for the movie "Maria Candelaria" but also appeared in many Hollywood productions.

Weather

Fair and warmer temperatures are expected for Sunday and Monday. The high today should be in the mid 50s with a low in the upper 20s tonight. Winds will be from the Southwest at 10 - 15 mph. The high Monday will reach the upper 50s.

Fighting back

George Brown of Pete's Lounge on Tyng Street in Pampa is not one to take offense lying down, so he put up this sign on the bar's door to welcome the people Pampa News reporter Jeff Langley wrote about who reportedly frequent such nightspots. The only thing now worrying George is that newsmen might be drawn to his club. "We used to have a class clientele here," he said, "but most of the bikers moved out of Pampa." India's bandit queen surrenders after three-year reign of terror

BY GENE KRAMER

BHIND, India (AP) — Phoolan Devi, the notorious young bandit queen of central India, laid down her rifle at a formal surrender ceremony Saturday, kissed the feet of her captor, and went to jail with 24 of her cohorts.

Thousands of villagers traveled on foot and by cart for a rare look at the woman who had terrorized the Chambal Valley people during a three-year crime career that made her the best-known and most wanted outlaw in India.

The 26-year-old bandit, seen by few people but glamorized to the point of legend, emerged in public as a short, slender woman with shoulder-length black hair and flashing black eyes.

She gave herself up to police Thursday night, an official said, but did not formally surrender to Madhya Pradesh Chief Minister Arjun Singh until the elaborately staged public ceremony on Saturday.

Phoolan Devi — accused of more than 60 cold-blooded slayings, armed robberies and kidnappings — appeared on a specially built outdoor platform. She symbolically handed her Mauser 315mm rifle to Singh, then knelt before him and kissed his feet in a gesture of feudal obeisance.

She wore a bright red shawl against the morning chill and a red silken band encircled her head. Like the rest of the bandits, she wore a police uniform, apparently borrowed for the occasion.

The surrendering bandits, or "dacoits," as they are called, included Phoolan Devi's lover, Man Singh, 28; six other male members of her gang and a rival 16-member gang headed by bandit king Ghanshyam Singh, 33. Among them was another woman, 30-year-old Munni Bai, who wore her hair in a pigtail.

An unruly crowd of 5,000 watched the ceremony in this frontier town, 180 miles southeast of New Delhi. Some onlookers shouted sarcastic comments about the staged event.

Eight hundred police maintained security for the ceremony, held on a specially built platform at the local college campus. Nevertheless, an outsider managed to grab the microphone to criticize the government's handling of the affair and accuse police of paying the bandits a $100,000 bribe to surrender there instead of in nearby Uttar Pradesh state.

All those who surrendered were taken in a guarded police bus to face the press briefly and finally were lodged at the Gwalior Central jail, 40 miles southwest of Bhind to await trial.

Phoolan Devi told reporters she expected the authorities to grant 27 demands in exchange for the surrender, starting with a commitment that they not issue a death sentence, and including various conditions for a safe and reasonably comfortable life in captivity.

Deputy police inspector General M.D. Sharma told The Associated Press that no promises were made except that "she will get humane treatment, the legal process will be followed and anything due her under it will be given her."

Texas skipper has unusual plans for his Galveston-based boat

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — An Arizona man whose plans to launch a floating brothel and casino in the Gulf of Mexico May 15 have been delayed by a legal battle says he will operate his ship in some fashion even if he loses in court.

Walter Plankington, co-owner of the Panama-based Fantasy Cruises Co., faces civil racketeering charges in Phoenix. And the Americopa County district attorney impounded $1 million of Plankington's Arizona assets after he was charged Jan. 25 with conspiring to receive the earnings of prostitutes.

"I'm a very wealthy man and I don't by any stretch of the imagination consider myself to be immoral," Plankington told the Galveston Daily News in a story that appeared in Saturday's editions. "I don't need to break any laws in order to live well for the rest of my life. If they say it's illegal, I'll simply operate a cruise line that caters to moms and the kiddies as well."

He said a decision in the court cases is expected Wednesday.

Plankington bought the British vessel, Schacelton, last year and now is having the ship outfitted in dry dock as a pleasure boat, the News reported.

The refurbished Fantasy liner, which once belonged to the Natural Environment Research Council in England, will "cater to a gentleman population," offering health spas, saunas, gourmet cuisine and casino gaming equipment, Plankington said.

He accused the prosecutor trying the case against him of "trying to impose Arizona morals on the rest of the world."

Plankington said his proposed cruises are legal because Panama supports legalized prostitution.

"I spent over $40,000 to have the best legal minds assure me I would be breaking no law with this operation," the former Las Vegas brothel owner told the News.

"Besides, you won't find anything on our cruises that you couldn't find on any other line," he said.

This is not the first court battle for Plankington, who owns the Chicken Ranch in Nye County, Nev., and once ran for governor of Colorado on a judicial reform platform.

One case was responsible for a change in the Nevada law requiring counties with less than 200,000 population to legitimize, license and control prostitution or abolish it within their county limits.

Nye County's five legitimate brothels annually generate $100,000 in tax revenue, which is designated by brothel operators to be used only for ambulances and firefighting equipment, Plankington said.

Predicting the Arizona courts will exonerate him on all the charges, Plankington said, "I would never contemplate breaking any laws and if the court in its judicial wisdom determines this to be illegal, I will certainly abide by it. But I think they'll find the same thing my lawyers did, that there simply is nothing illegal about it."

Plankington, a father of three, acknowledged that he would not want his daughters to be prostitutes.

"But if they did, I would much rather see them in a regulated situation like that in Nevada than simply walking the streets of Galveston," he said.

Two men file for mayor in McLean city race

McLEAN — The race for the mayor's job here is heating up, as two men have announced they want to be elected.

Wayne Bybee joins F. Jake Hess as the two candidates who have filed for the mayor's election April 2.

Incumbent McLean Mayor Sam Haynes previously announced he will not seek re - election.

Two McLean City Councilmen also announced they will not run for office again, but so far, no one has filed for election to the soon - to - be - vacated seats.

The deadline for filing for an elected local position is March 2.

Also up for grabs in the April election are three places on the McLean school board. The terms of Jim Allison, J.C. McAnear and Lloyd Hunt are set to expire.

Absentee balloting in the election begins March 14 and ends March 29.

Death...

According to court records, Owens and her lawyer submitted a list of 33 questions for Parsons about the incident. Parsons, through his lawyer, declined to answer most of the questions because he said several words and phrases were unclear.

For example, Parsons's answers claim the word "deceased" (describing David Owens) is inflammatory and prejudicial; and that the phrase "social function" (describing the barbecue) is unclear.

Parsons answered six of the 33 questions, most of them dealing with the names of people employed by NOWSCO at the time of the incident, and with his own position at NOWSCO at the time. He admits to being "in a supervisory position," but not a "management level position."

Parsons also denied that he had spoken to Waters about the incident after Sept. 1, 1980. Parsons is no longer employed by NOWSCO.

Parsons has submitted one set of 159 questions for Owens and her lawyer to answer, but she has not received them from her lawyer yet, she said. Court records indicate that another set is forthcoming, but Charles Waters declined to comment on that part of the case.

Owens said she had a strange feeling at the time of the incident about the reports by NOWSCO employees about the altercation.

"I might be totally wrong, but I feel with all my heart and all my soul, and I am, I think, a pretty strong Christian person, and I don't believe in judging people; but I have this strange feeling that all the guys' stories matched too perfectly. 'Way too perfectly."

She said a friend and his wife saw David at NOWSCO during the barbecue, and his car was inside the fence. But he was found in the passenger side of his car "a little ways down from NOWSCO (on Tyng St.), and the gates were locked," she said.

"I don't know exactly what happened. I can't say exactly what happened. The only people that know exactly what happened were the people that were there, that witnessed it, and David."

Murder rate grows faster than Texas

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — One of every 5,906 Texans was murdered in 1981, an increase of nearly 70 percent over the murder rate a decade earlier, statistics show.

A study by the Texas Department of Public Safety and the Criminal Justice Center of Sam Houston State University found that from 1972 to 1981, the murder rate in Texas grew three times as fast as the state's population.

"Murder is the ultimate crime," said Col. Jim Adams, DPS director. "It is a crime that touches every citizen of Texas. Many of us know or are related to victims and the rest of us are surely conscious of its threat."

Heart disease was the No. 1 killer, followed by cancer, stroke, motor vehicle accidents, all other accidents, and influenza and pneumonia. Murder has climbed to seventh on the list.

Texas' murder rate jumped 69.9 percent in the 10 years, compared with a 26.7 percent increase in the state's population, said the study. Over the same period, the U.S. population grew 8.8 percent and the national murder rate 21.6 percent.

Eighty percent of Texans live in areas of 50,000 population or larger and 87.7 percent of the murders occur in such cities, the report said.

Handguns were decreasing in frequency of use, but still accounted for 50.1 percent of all murders. Other firearms accounted for 19.9 percent of the weapons used, a 17.9 percent increase, and knives or other sharp objects were used 18.6 percent of the time, a 22.9 percent increase.

In murders per 100,000 residents, Houston was third in 1976 and first in 1981. Dallas dropped from first to second and Fort Worth moved from fifth to third.

Galveston moved up from 10th to fourth; Corpus Christi from 13th to fifth; San Antonio from ninth to sixth; Port Arthur from eighth to seventh; Lubbock from 11th to ninth, and Odessa from 18th to 10th.

Tyler was the only city of 50,000 or more besides Dallas to improve its top 10 ranking in murders per 100,000 residents, moving from seventh to eighth.

If characteristics of the Texas population remain consistent and changes are not made in laws and society, the murder rate will continue to rise faster than the population rate, said Dr. Raymond H.C. Teske Jr., director of the center's survey research program.

Teske estimated that the rate per 100,000 residents would increase from 16.5 in 1981 to 23.3 in 1991.

In 1981, 18.2 of every 100,000 people living in such urban areas were victims of murder, compared with 11.3 victims in rural areas and 8.9 victims in small cities, the report said.

One of every 8,118 Texans was murdered in 1972; 10 years later, one of every 5,906 was murdered.

During 1981, the study said, one in every 3,545 men was a murder victim, almost five times the rate for women, of whom one in every 17,465 was murdered.

A black male was eight times more likely to be murdered than a white male — one in every 1,241 black males to one in every 6,259 white males.

For black males aged 30-39, one of every 573 was murdered in 1981.

"The data suggest that during the 25-year span from age 20 to age 54 a black male is running an exceedingly high risk of being murdered," said Teske.

For the population as a whole, people aged 20-29 were most likely to be murdered, with one murder per 3,018. One in 3,733 was murdered among people aged 30-39, and one in 5,109 among people aged 40-54.

The statistics were taken from FBI and DPS reports and were compared with data from other agencies, such as the Texas Department of Health.

That comparison showed that by 1981, murder had climbed from 10th place in 1972 to to seventh place in 1981 among the leading causes of death in Texas, overtaking early infant death, diabetes and arteriosclerosis.

Homicides during arguments accounted for 39.9 percent of murders in 1976 and 34.7 percent in 1981, and was the greatest single factor both years, the report said.

By 1981, justifiable homicide had increased 420 percent to 3.8 percent of the total, and homicides during commission of other crimes rose 10.8 percent to 13.2 percent of the murders.

The "lover's triangle" category of murder, however, decreased from 16.8 percent to 2.5 percent of the total, while "brawl influenced by alcohol or drugs" remained stable at 10 percent both years.

By 1981, 65.5 percent of convicted murderers were sent to the Texas Department of Corrections, compared with 61.1 percent in 1976. The average sentence declined, however, from 22 to 21.6 years.

Life sentences declined almost 5 percent and death sentences remained the same at 2 percent.

Poisonous folk remedy taken off store shelves in south Texas

By CAM ROSSIE

HARLINGEN, Texas (AP) — A popular folk remedy is being taken off store shelves in the Lower Rio Grande Valley because the substance contains poisonous levels of lead, says a Food and Drug Administration official.

John Parker, FDA supervisor in Houston, said Friday that the state Health Department ordered a recall of the remedy, known as greta, after tests determined the light yellow powder contained 90 percent elemental lead.

Parker said authorities have located only one distributor of greta in the Valley. The distributor, which Parker would not identify, has stopped selling the bulk product and has recalled that already on herb shop shelves, he said.

The Mexican-American community that uses folk remedies believes greta and its alternate form "azarcon" cure a stomach ailment known as empacho — a ball of undigested food stuck to the intestines, according to Dr. Robert Trotter, a Pan American University professor who issued a warning against the product this week.

The ailment is most often associated with children, according to Trotter.

Tests on greta by the FDA and the Texas Tech Pesticide Laboratory in San Benito determined the substance contains "extremely dangerous" levels of lead, Trotter said.

Authorities are attempting to locate all stores in Texas that may be selling greta, but so far have located it only in Lower Rio Grande Valley herb shops, Parker said.

He said the health department ordered the ban on greta sales because the FDA does not have the authority to do so without seeking court injunctions.

There have been no reports of deaths or injuries attributed to lead poisioning from greta in the Valley, Parker said.

But Trotter said his studies indictate "it's being sold in quantities that would cause lead poisoning."

Lead poisoning in sufficient quantities can lead to mental retardation or death, according to Trotter.

Lead poisoning is difficult to diagnose because it often has no symptoms and because the symptons which do surface — nausea, vomiting, diarrhea, lethary or hyper-activity, "are not specific enough to make a doctor or clinic suspect what's going on," Trotter said.

Additionally, he said, greta is used to clean out the system, so those people who use it often believe the remedy is working, if they begin vomitng or have diarrhea.

Trotter, considered a leading authority in the study of folk illnesses and remedies, said he began to study greta after he was contacted about azarcon, a bright orange powder containing lead tetroxide.

Trotter said he found no azarcon in the Valley, but discovered the alternative form, greta.

"We discovered more than one name for the stuff used to treat empacho," he said.

Trotter said he went to Valley herb shops and asked for a remedy for empacho and was sold greta.

Azarcon, said Trotter, has been found in use in California, Colorado, New Mexico and in Reynosa, Mexico, but not on the Texas side of the U.S.-Mexico border.

Meanwhile, Trotter recommends that parents who have given a child either greta or azarcon have the child tested for lead poisoning.

Man sentenced for spanking wife's lover

HOUSTON (AP) — A judge says he considered freeing a man convicted of spanking his wife's lover with a wooden paddle, but put him on probation because he didn't want to encourage others to follow his example.

Michael Ware, 26, was sentenced to one year probation and fined $200 on each of two charges for using a 24-inch paddle on the buttocks of his wife's 24-year-old lover. Ware, according to testimony, then left the man standing naked outside his home.

"He was wrong for being judge, jury and executioner," said County Court-at-Law Judge Billy Ragan, who sentenced Ware Friday. "I can't just slap him on the wrist and turn all the wayward folks in Houston loose to spank their wives' lovers."

Ragan admitted public sympathy was "greatly in favor of giving the man a medal and putting the wife in jail."

But he said he also believed Ware erred by failing to apply "equal justice."

"He should have spanked the wife equally as hard as the lover," Ragan said.

Ware, who was convicted Monday on two charges of misdemeanor assault and trespassing, said he got "the raw end of the deal."

"It's hard for me to believe that I broke the law. The judge said the community thought I should get a medal," Ware said.

"If I didn't believe in God I would have walked over there and killed him," Ware said. "But it was worth it, the court case, everything. I can't even pay my fine."

Ragan said several people called to urge him to be lenient in sentencing Ware.

"I weighed these expressions," the judge said.

Testimony showed Ware took a 24-inch long, 4-inch wide paddle to the home of the telephone company employee who had dated his wife earlier that month and forced his way into the dwelling.

The victim testified during the trial that he was repeatedly struck with the paddle, causing bleeding and bruises. Some of the bruises remain after four months, he said.

A COMMON STANDARD OF AUTHORITY

"He that rejecteth me, and receiveth not my savings, hath one that judgeth him: the word that I spake, the same shall judge him in the last day." (John 12:48).

It is not uncommon nowadays to hear people affirm that it makes no difference what one believes in religion and that one religion is just as good as another. But if this is true, then by whose religion will we be judged in the last day? It is true that religion differ widely in their doctrine. We have to conclude that either the words of Jesus are true and we shall all be judged by the same standard or the words of men are true and it really doesn't make any difference after all.

The word of God teaches that there is but one church and that that church is the one purchased by the blood of Jesus Christ (Ephesians 4:4; Colossians 1:18; Acts 20:28). Jesus promised to build only one (Matthew 16:18) and, by reading the book of Acts, we can see that only one existed in the beginning.

This church was founded upon, and was governed by, the doctrine of Jesus Christ. Those composing it had become members by simply obeying the word which was preached by inspired men. They recognized the absolute authority of Jesus Christ (Acts 4:12; Matthew 28:18), and warned people then about going beyond His word or preaching anything other than the pure gospel of Christ (Galatians 1:6-10; 2 John 9, 10). This is what we urge people to do today, that is, follow the New Testament and be regulated always by God's standard of authority.

All-savers' accounts

People with savings accounts will get another little reminder of Sen. Robert Dole's compassion this July unless Congress takes corrective action. That's when the IRS will start withholding 10 percent of the interest from savings accounts. The issue is an instructive reminder that when government does something to help itself, it usually ends up hurting the rest of society.

The provision permitting the revenooers to withhold money from interest earnings (rather than counting on cross - checking Form 1099s) was a lesser - noticed part of the massive tax increase Dole, the Republican chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, pushed through Congress (with President Reagan's support) last summer. The idea has been around for years, but each time previous it was subjected to a full-fledged debate in Congress and defeated, in large part because of cards and letters from savers. The way it was slipped into Dole's package, however, caught savers off guard.

Here's the kicker that few have considered. When the IRS takes its 10 percent, that will leave 10 percent less in the account for compounding interest. For most people that will amount to a loss of a few pennies or dollars, but for some (especially retired people living on interest from savings built up over the years) the difference could be significant, even devastating. Savings industry experts have estimated that the total loss to savers will be around $1.5 billion per year.

That's not only $1.5 billion stolen from people who are trying to take responsibility for their own lives, but $1.5 billion less available to back up loans for mortgages, new business, personal loans and all the other enterprises that might be able to contribute to economic recovery. Thus the recession is likely to last a little longer.

In addition, of course, it will mean more expensive paperwork for financial institutions, and these extra costs will be passed on to customers in the form of fewer services or less attractive interest rates.

Maybe a belated wave of opposition will cause Congress to get us off this Dole.

Berry's World

Sacrifice from all

By Robert Walters

WASHINGTON (NEA) — President Reagan again is calling upon low and middle-income citizens to bear the burden of an austerity budget while allowing wealthy individuals and corporations to continue collecting "welfare for the rich."

Much of the debate over the president's proposed federal budget for the 1984 fiscal year has focused on his proposed spending freeze for veterans' disability and retirement payments, Social Security cost-of-living adjustments, payments to both active and retired government employees and a broad range of domestic social programs.

Although funding for many of those programs already has been drastically slashed during Reagan's first two years in office, the beneficiaries might be more amenable to making further sacrifices if they thought that similar restrictions were being equitably applied to forms of federal aid collected almost exclusively by high-income citizens.

That is not occurring, however, because the president remains oblivious to the fundamental inequities of an economic policy under which the rich get richer while the poor (and the middle class) get poorer.

That perspective is shared not only by liberals and Democrats but also by conservatives and Republicans. One of the most cogent critiques of Reagan's policies was recently published by the Heritage Foundation, a staunchly conservative "think tank" with especially close ties to the White House.

"Middle-income Americans do not see the rationale for cuts in popular programs and conclude that Reagan is either insensitive to their needs or perhaps mean," says Heritage Foundation Vice President Richard N. Holwill.

"The poor, believing that the president has been unwilling to cut subsidies to middle and upper-income Americans, conclude that Reagan is out to get them," adds Howill in the introduction to a new 362-page book entitled "Agenda '83."

In what the foundation describes as "a major assault on taxpayer-financed business subsidies," the book describes this insidious process, underway long before Reagan was elected but zealously promoted throughout his presidency:

"In a system of subsidies, rewards accrue to those who are best at political pull, grantsmanship, campaign contributions and other activities... In particular, subsidies tend to flow to politically favored businesses or industries rather than consumer-oriented companies."

Examples of those government subsidies for the wealthy are buried in an obscure "special analysis" of the budget detailing what the federal government euphemistically calls "tax expenditures" and "tax subsidies."

From 1982 through 1984, for example, the oil and gas industry will be able to shield more than $6.8 billion worth of income from federal taxation through a technique known as "immediate expensing" and an additional $7.9 billion through a device know as the "depletion allowance."

During the same three-year period, multinational corporations will be able to avoid taxation on $7.4 billion worth of foreign sales by channeling those transactions through domestic international sales corporations.

An estimated $72.9 billion worth of capital gains for the wealthy will be taxed at a preferential low rate in 1982-84, while wealthy investors will be able to avoid federal taxes on $9.4 billion worth of interest and dividend receipts on common and preferred stocks, industrial development bonds and various other securities.

Large corporations, principally pharmaceutical firms, will receive special tax breaks on more than $6.3 billion worth of profits earned in Puerto Rico, while other firms will be able to use a gimmick called "safe harbor leasing" to avoid payment of more than $9.1 billion in federal taxes.

In contrast to its continuing crackdown on federal benefits received by middle-income families, destitute individuals and the working poor, the Reagan administration has displayed little interest in reducing or freezing indirect government subsidies enjoyed by the wealthy.

Drastic White House action might make a difference, suggests the Heritage Foundation's Holwill: "As average Americans see that subsidies to the wealthy and to businesses are either being eliminated or put on a pay-as-you-go basis, they will be more willlng to give up their programs."

Government control

First of all, I would like to direct your readers to the address coupons which appeared in your paper a few days ago. These coupons list the addresses of our so-called "representatives" in government.

I would like to appeal to each and every one of your readers to use this opportunity to write and express their complete dissatisfaction with the new withholding law that deals with interest on savings accounts. This law is just one more example of the endless effort of government to control every aspect of our lives.

I find it hard to believe that the government can be so obsessed with squeezing out every last cent from the private population, whose only crime seems to be in attempting to save a few bucks. It is also rather hard to understand how corporations and wealthy individuals are allowed to profit gsreatly, yet pay very little or no tax. This is one more issue which should be addressed by each person who has, or hopes to have, any sort of savings account.

However, I fear this issue will go the way of many such issues before it. Through public apathy and a downright fear of participation, the ever-tightening yoke of government control will become even more and more deadly to our freedom.

I hope I am wrong.

Heroes

Pampa has had a whole new set of heroes this week. Some, like the heroes of the 1800s, rode "broncos". Others rode jeeps, pickups and four - wheel - drive vehicles. Then, there were those that had boots, shovels and muscles.

The spirit of helping one another has been a joy to behold. A few instances that I have observed were: Bill Fuller, head of engineering at Coronado Community Hospital, who was on constant call and his vehicle to take personnel to and from work; Chuck Tanner, head of radiology, who seemed to be "Head Chauffeur" for his whole department; and the whole police department who serves us faithfully all year long; Jeanette Gikvs R.W. who not only provided many safe rides but who also saw to it personally that several driveways were cleared in her neighborhood. Cheryl Lilly, of Tech. who not only broke out several miles of deep, country roads but saw to it that several of us were able to get to where we needed to be; the mailman who battles heavy loads, barking dogs, snowdrifts, and summer heat to get those darned bills to us; and the telephone linemen who are out all hours and who I am sure will have my phone back in service soon.

My list of a "few" includes: Martin Stubbe, one of the Panhandle's fantastic Senior Citizens who always has his drive shoveled before anyone else on our block and Elizabeth "Howdy" Houdashell, R.N., who was on duty for at least 24 hours in one strecth and helped to deliver this bunch of blizzard babies. (14 inches in 24 hours?)

Before my list of "A Few" runs out, let me name the one who really inspired this letter: Our paper person and company. He arrived with what appeared to be a mother and a sister and got out of the vehicle to deliver each carefully wrapped paper into our hands or right in front of the door. Editor, please print his (their) names because the determination and training of this young person destines him to be a very important person in our future.

Since this letter has begun to sound like an audition for Peeking at Pampa, please sign me only as "Norma."

Thanks Panhandlers!

Manslaughter?

I objected to your front page headline of Tuesday, February 8th, in which you proclaimed Cathy Darlene Smith to be a "Murderess." She is not a "Murderess."

A homicide, when not excusable or justifiable, becomes either murder - or manslaughter - but not both.

There may be degrees of murder, characterized by deliberation, premeditation, and the miracle involved. It is a wilful act.

Manslaughter is a distinct offense. It is not a degree of murder. It is a homicide lacking either express or implied malice. Voluntary manslaughter, generally speaking, is committed under the influence of passn, proved by reasonable provocation, and before time has elapsed to resume control.

Murder necessitates malice. Manslaughter demands passion. Malice and heat of passion cannot co - exist.

A jury found Cathy Smith guilty of voluntary manslaughter - not murder.

I enjoy your paper. Keep on your toes!!

RON GAST

(Ed. note - I'm sure you are correct under the legal terminology defining the various degrees of murder, but this is a newspaper not a court of law.

The dictionary defines murderer as someone who takes the life of another living thing. Besides, "Manslaughteress" didn't fit in the headline.)

Profesionals

We in Pampa are fortunate, indeed privileged, to have a group of very special people in our city who came at a time of need. I am referring to the medical professionals from foreign lands.

Among these are little known, very professional nurses. They symbolize the true meaning of 'the Florence Nightingales' as they go about in their modest, unassuming way caring for the sick. Their gentle touch and soft spoken words of kindness and Christian concern are an inspiration. Truly, they are Angels of Mercy.

Up Close

By DEE DEE LARAMORE
Lifestyles Editor

I see Evelyn Nace bustling through the door of the news office, rhinestone jewelry flashing and coattails flying, delivering her weekly column to the desk of the Lifestyles editor with a big smile and a cheery greeting.

She never stayed long, but while she was there she always had a moment to say a kind word to someone along the way.

Evelyn died two weeks ago of lung cancer, an illness not even her husband knew she had, and with her passing she left a legacy of love, spiced with laughter and fun, to all who knew her.

She was a prolific writer for 40 years or more, having sold at least 42 paperback books and 350 short stories and articles to national magazines. She was a teacher, a violinist, counselor, lecturer, civic and church leader and a businesswoman.

Her friends and family remember her as energetic, dedicated, outgoing, friendly and fun. No one who knew her could speak of her without mentioning her unique relationship with her husband, Otis.

She sounded too good to be true. I knew I held a tremendous admiration for her and that I had never seen her when she wasn't joyously going 90 miles an hour. But was this the real Evelyn Nace?

Her "Mending Mature Marriage" column, a favorite in the area for about five years, always counseled couples to share, be helpful and happy with what they had. At times, while typing her column into the computer here, I would question her advice.

"Why tell people to keep on doing for others instead of sticking up for their own rights?" I'd think. "I wouldn't be that way. I'd stand up for myself, no matter what the consequences."

To Evelyn, though, the marriage itself was far more important than piddling things like who should pick up the living room or wash the dishes.

Anyone who read the column knew about her husband, Otis, for she mentioned him often and always with respect and affection.

Well, I said to Otis, "Did you really have such a wonderful marriage as Evelyn always said you had?"

"We had a marvelous marriage," he replied, his eyes shining. "I don't know if she changed a lot during our marriage, but she grew. Oh yes, we had spats, but we never had an argument and we never went to bed with things not right between us."

The discipline of the Depression is one of the reasons for their remarkable marriage, Otis said. "People who went through the Depression came out of it very close and very disciplined," he explained.

Surprisingly, Evelyn was five years older than Otis. She had taught him his junior and senior years at Towanda, Kan. High School, he said. They never dated during that time, though, he said.

Otis graduated and went away to college. When he returned he found "the flower was still there." They married May 23, 1937. No one ever said anything about the difference in their ages, he said, probably because he was gone for so long before returning to marry her.

Their marriage was one of give and take, her strong points offsetting his weak points, and his balancing hers. She hated math, Otis said, and "was the worst bookkeeper!" She also had a tendency to write checks and then forget that she had written them, so Otis knowingly left extra in the account to cover what she might have forgotten.

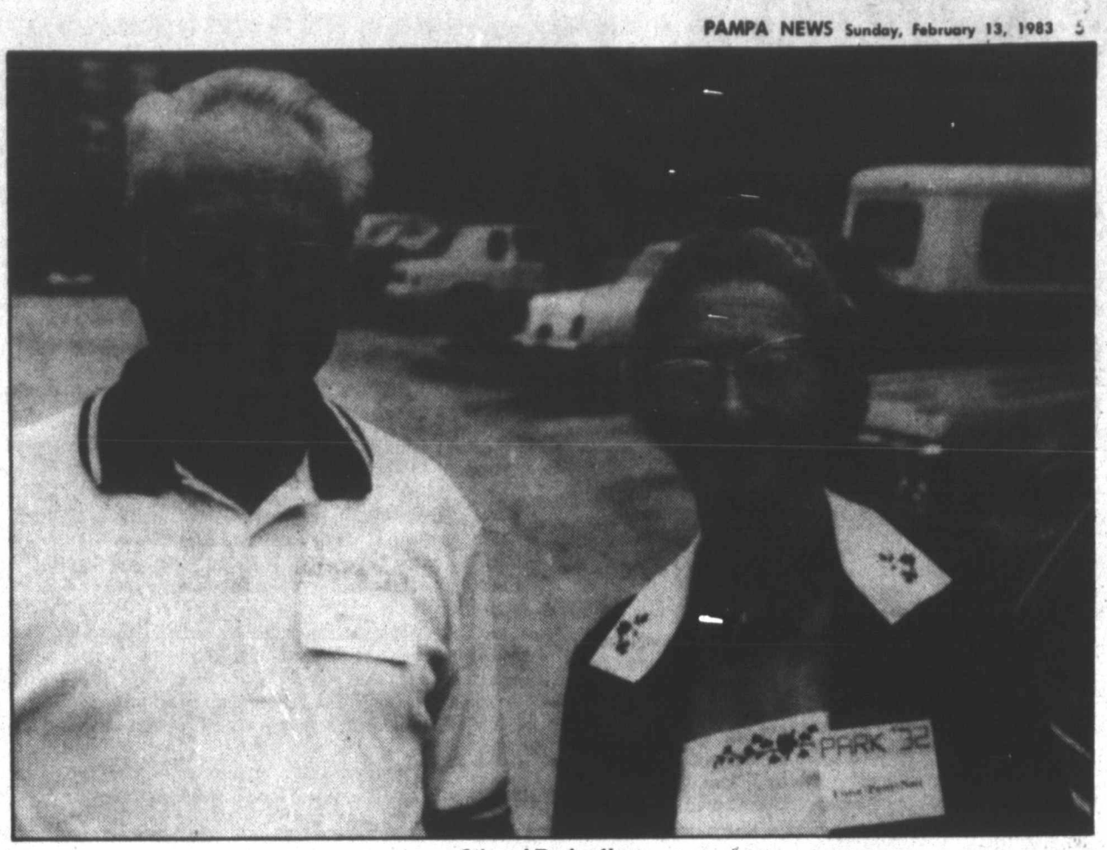

In turn, Evelyn would write Otis' speeches for him when he had to appear before a group of people, keep the house and help him with his office work. She tried to always travel with him, he said, taking notes constantly.

"It was a big help to stop sometimes and discuss what all was going on with someone," he said. She would sit quietly, but her quick mind was going all the time, he said. "And she always had an opinion," he added, laughing.

"I guess there was not a jealous bone in her body," Otis said. "I think that is because she felt life is so short that you ought to value every minute of it. I believe she did that too."

At night, she'd watch television while ironing, or sit in the big chair with a scratch pad and pencils, scribbling notes all evening long, Otis said. She read newspapers voraciously, averaging about seven a day. Her favorite was The Wall Street Journal.

"That's how she'd get ideas for her murders (mystery novels) — from the papers," Otis said.

Otis and Evelyn Nace

Evelyn would speak to any club that asked her if she had the time, Otis said. "I took her to the meetings whenever I could and I heard some good speeches. She thought on her feet, never writing her own speeches. She just knew instinctively what to say."

As the number of books, stories and articles Evelyn wrote reflects, she had a tremendous amount of energy.

"I think she got her energy from being interested — vitally interested — in everything," Otis said. "Sometimes I'd get exhausted trying to keep up with her."

Despite the energy, though, "when the sun goes down, Evelyn goes to sleep," he said, but she'd be up early the next day, hardly able to wait to get going again.

"There was one thing, though," Otis confided. "She could not sew. I'd just take my mending to the laundry. Her sister, Anna, was a fantastic seamstress. Anna left her sewing machine with Evelyn when she had to go to the nursing home and it took Evelyn two weeks just to get the thing off zig-zag!"

Although Otis and Evelyn's relationship was extremely close, it was not smothering. Each were always able to stand up on his own. During World War II, Otis joined the U.S. Navy and served as Chief on a submarine in Australia. This left Evelyn at home, running the family's lumber company in Kansas for four years until he returned. "And she did a good job, too!" Otis said.

The two moved to Pampa in 1951 and became co-owners of Highland Lumber Company. Later, Otis became a Chartered Life Underwriter for New York Life Insurance Company and Evelyn put even more time into her writing career.

An active member of the Panhandle Pen Women Club in Amarillo and sponsor of numerous writing workshops at West Texas State University in Canyon, Evelyn made a lasting impression on a countless number of aspiring writers.

Pauline Robertson, owner of a small publishing house in Amarillo remembered one thing Evelyn always told other writers, "Remember, if you won't submit it, it's not going to be bought and published." Evelyn knew how to be successful with what she wrote, Robertson said. She was an inspiration because of her ability to get things published.

"Evelyn was an outstanding speaker on the subjects she knew about," Robertson said. "She was confident and humorous and would let the audience participate. Her workshops always had a good attendance."

Delores Spencer, a free - lance writer from Amarillo, worked with Evelyn on the annual "Writers Roundup" at West Texas.

"I remember when I first met Evelyn I thought she was a lady on a pedestal — a true professional, unreachable. I still don't see how she could be as common as the lady next door and be as accomplished as anyone in her field," Spencer said.

At her first workshop, Spencer finally drummed up enough nerve to ask Evelyn to read something she had written and critique it.

"She was bouncing around, as busy as always, but she said, 'Yes, bring it to my dorm room this evening.'" Spencer recalled. So, that evening the novice writer, knocked at the door, and Evelyn said, 'Come back in 10 minutes." Exactly 10 minutes later, Spencer knocked again.

"And there she stood in her cotton pajamas, her hair wound up in curlers, common as can be, and she sat down on the bed and read my story. Finally she leaned back and said, "Well, Delores, this story starts on page 5."

Spencer revised the story as Evelyn suggested, began it on Page 5 where Evelyn said it started and sold the article first thing!

"She was absolutely the most influential person in my life as far as writing goes and in other things too," Spencer said. "She would give me advice on my writing and on my family, too, and it was always good. While all the rest of us were griping about our husbands and all, Evelyn would just say, 'Well, I sure am lucky.' I never heard her say a bad word about Otis."

Evelyn was "approachable," the most dynamic leader in the Pen Women club, Spencer said. "She wanted everyone to be in a win - win combination. There was no competition, there was an abundance for everyone. If she heard of a new market or a good agent, she told us. She didn't keep secrets."

The column, Mending Mature Marriage, was especially important to Evelyn, Spencer said. "She knew she and Otis had a special marriage and she wanted to share as much as she could about what she felt she had learned," her friend said.

One small thing always puzzled — and tickled — Spencer about Evelyn, however — "How could such a sweet little old lady be writing so many mobster books?"

A special dream of Evelyn's has yet to be realized — she always wanted to write a successful hardback novel. A novel about her experiences as a lumber yard manager during the war didn't quite live up to her expectations.

Recently, she had written a book about her personal and family experiences with a brain degenerating disease that had afflicted her sister, Anna. "This is going to be my hardback," she told a friend. Perhaps, in time it will.

The Naces befriended local dance instructor Jeanne Willingham in 1967 when she moved to an apartment near their home.

"She was such a loyal friend," Willingham said. "We were like a family — they would always take me along with them and make me feel so welcome."

Willingham said Evelyn had the "essence of good manners.

"She always made other persons feel comfortable," Willingham said. "The principles she talked about, she didn't just put them in her column, she lived them. They may have seemed like 'old world' ideas, but she believed in them and lived them.

"She always thought of herself as secondary, projecting the other person. If she and someone else both had the same dress on, she'd have said, "Oh, isn't her dress pretty!" Willingham explained. "She was not just another person, she was somebody!"

One thing that struck me while researching this story was how no one was sad when they talked about Evelyn, a bit regretful, but not sad.

I asked Otis how he could be so cheerful after losing his wife of 46 years when so many others are devastated after such a loss.

"I have so many beautiful memories of Evelyn and so many friends and so much to live for," he answered.

"Besides, if I wasn't, she'd come down and hit me with a stick.

While attending Park College of Parkville, Mo., during the Depression, Evelyn lost the money she had borrowed to attend school because of a bank's failure. Her sister, Anna, a kindergarten teacher, took her in when all seemed lost and helped Evelyn finish her college education. Otis said Evelyn has never forgotten her sister's sacrifice and what it meant to Evelyn.

At her death, Otis asked that memorials be made to the Opportunity Plan, Inc. of Canyon. More than 70 contributions have been made at this time, he said.

As giving in death as in life, Evelyn bequeathed her eyes to the Lions Club Eye Donor program. Within hours after she died, a woman in Fort Worth received the corneas from Evelyn's eyes.

Let's hope she will see life with the joy, love and enthusiasm that Evelyn did.

State votes to open book hearings

AUSTIN (AP) — The State Board of Education voted unanimously Saturday to open Texas' controversial textbook selection process to both proponents and opponents of books being considered for the state's public schools.

The board tentatively approved the change Friday. It will allow debates between opposing sides and dramatically change the way textbooks are chosen in Texas, where it is a $60 million industry.

"I think it's wonderful," board member Mary Ann Leveridge of East Bernard said after the vote. "I have to believe a couple of people have had a monopoly much too long."

Testimony at textbook hearings often has been dominated by Mel and Norma Gabler of Longview, who have appearing at the textbook hearings for 21 years to complain about books that do not agree with the Gablers say are traditional values.

Currently, only opponents of books can testify. Publishers are allowed to respond, but only to each specific complaint — they cannot initiate testimony.

A feud between two groups caused the change. Present at the Friday session were the two factions' leaders — Norma Gabler and Michael Hudson, Texas coordinator for People for the American Way, a national anti-censorship group founded by "All in the Family" television producer Norman Lear.

Mrs. Gabler said she feared the change may turn hearings into personality conflicts.

"I have a lot of questions, because I've been part of the process," said Mrs. Gabler, but she added that she "never had any problem" with relaxing the rules on testimony.

"We are surprised and pleased that the board acted so quickly and so extensively," Hudson said after the meeting.

Publishers, whose business depends on winning approval of the state textbook committee, have refused to comment on the controversy.

American Way protested the selection process when the group's representatives were not allowed to rebut the Gablers and other conservative protesters at the 1982 hearings. The group was, however, allowed to submit written comments for the hearing record.

Greyhound cancels in 58 Texas communities

AUSTIN (AP) — Greyhound Lines, Inc., has told the Railroad Commission it plans to cancel bus service to 58 Texas towns, and apparently there is not much the commission can do about it.

The commission's Transportation Division heard Greyhound's application Thursday and recessed the hearing. A spokesman indicated additional hearings would be held in several towns affected by the application.

Cities which would lose service under the proposal are Melissa, Anna, Van Alstyne, Howe, Glen Rio, Anthony, Canutillo, Kingsbury, Harwood, Belmont, Gonzales, Waelder, Flatonia, Engle, Weimar, Glidden, Alleyton, Eagle Lake and East Bernard.

Also Karnes City, Sheldon, Crosby, Vidor, Junction, Lancaster, Sterrett, Forreston, Italy, Milford, Abbott, Elm Mott, Lorena, Bruceville-Eddy, Troy, Salado, Jarrell, Buda, Kyle, Bremond, Wylie, Copeville, Farmersville, Campbell, Cumby, Cumby Junction, Brashear, Saltillo, Gordon Junction, Putnam, Clyde, Merkel, Trent, Roscoe, Loraine, Westbrook, Coahoma, Pyote and Toyah.

Hired farm workers not poor migrants

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new report by the Agriculture Department says that it is not accurate to stereotype hired farm workers as made up of poor, minority group migrants.

"Although some certainly fit this image, the typical farm worker is more likely to be white, a non-migrant, and part of a family with an annual income of $10,000 or more," the report said.

Based on 1979 census information, only 8 percent of the hired farm work force consisted of migrants — and family incomes of migrant workers actually were higher than those of non-migrant workers.

The report, written by Susan Pollack of USDA's Economic Research Service, was included Wednesday in the latest issue of Farmline, which is published by the agency.

"As for ethnic and racial characteristics, only 25 percent of all farm workers were black or Hispanic," the report said.

But some parts of the stereotype "are close to the truth" in other respects, it said.

"In 1979, average annual earnings for a farm worker were $4,185, compared with $11,435 for all U.S. private sector production workers."

The report said that some of the difference may be explained by "the relatively large proportion of students, housewives and other part-time wage earners" in the farm work force. However, family incomes — the combined incomes of all family members — also reflect a lower-income status.

In 1979, it said, the median family income of farm workers was $13,384 per year, which was only 68 percent of the U.S. median for all families of $19,587.

Median income means that half of the income were more than those amounts and half less.

ESTATE PLANNING SEMINAR

An in - depth Estate Tax Seminar for farmers and ranchers will be Monday and Tuesday. If you haven't already pre - registered, come on out to the Cornado Inn at 8:30 tomorrow morning.

This is an excellent program where lots of ideas and methods on how to save estate taxes will be discussed. Dr. Wayne Hayenga, project group supervisor in farm management and an attorney, will lead the seminar discussions. The program starts at 9 a.m. and concludes around 4:30 p.m. each day. A $10 registration fee includes both noon meals, refreshments and materials.

AG CENSUS

The 1982 Census of Agriculture forms were mailed to farmers and ranchers in late December 1982. This is the 22nd nationwide census of agriculture conducted by the Bureau of the Census, U.S. Department of Commerce. The report forms are to be completed for the 1982 agricultural operations of farmers and ranchers and returned to the Census Bureau by Feb. 15, 1983.

IRS INFORMATION RETURNS

Last week I mentioned the 1099 series of information forms. It seems that most local CPA's have taken the law to read that these forms will be due next year on expenses incurred this year that total $600 or more for most services. It is going to be a real bookkeeping chore, and I suggest you visit with your accountant on this matter.

CATTLEMEN REMEMBER SEASONAL PRICE PATTERNS

Anyone who's been in the cattle business for more than a few years knows there are certain seasonal price patterns. These are variations in prices that follow a more or less uniform pattern tied to certain periods or seasons of the year.

Price patterns are quite similar for most classes of cattle. Slaughter steers prices, for example, usually move higher in the spring and summer months from lows in the previous fall and winter. Feeder steers and calves as well as salvage cows have a seasonal price much the same. The degree of rise and price drop, however, is some more drastic for cows.

Cattlemen can take advantage of this seasonal price change by adjusting their marketing decisions. Selling cows or calves in the spring months usually will yield a far greater return than those sold in the fall. Of course, maintenance costs will also be different, so producers have to do a good job of keeping records and spend some time with a pencil and paper before a final economic decision can be made.

But remember, you are the manager. Your good or bad marketing decisions affect your pocketbook. Take time to study the alternatives — it will pay off.

RABIES STILL RUN RAMPANT IN TEXAS

Rabies cases continued at a high level in 1982 in Texas.

The 796 confirmed cases of rabies were slightly higher than in 1981 but below the record number of cases confirmed in 1979.

Confirmed cases of domestic animal rabies were up significantly in 1982, particulary in cats — 42 cases. Cases of skunk rabies again led all others, at 536. There were 123 cases of rabies confirmed in bats last year along with 26 in horses, 24 in cattle, 21 in dogs, and 13 in foxes, four in raccoons and seven in a variety of other animals.

Cat rabies continue to pose the greatest potential danger of rabies exposures to humans. Cats, like dogs, may expose up to 20 or more people, a much higher number than wild animals.

Even though state law requires annual rabies vaccination of dogs and cats, a much lower percentage of cats are actually vaccinated than dogs.

TOP O' TEXAS JUNIOR LIVESTOCK SHOW

We now have entry blanks available for the Top O' Texas Junior Livestock Show. Rather than mailing these entry blanks out to the 4 - H members, we feel that completion of them could be done more efficiently at the Extension office.

4 - H'ers who plan to enter need to come by the Extension office, 8:30 a.m. to noon and from 1 to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday, to fill out their entry blanks. Each exhibitor must be present to sign his or her own entry blank. Also, each exhibitor must be accompanied by a parent or guardian because the entry blank must be notarized. Entry fees must be paid at time of registration, preferably by check. Entry fees are: $10 steers, $7 barrows and $7 lambs. Entry deadline is Feb. 18. Show date is March 13 - 16.

If these arrangements are an inconvenience to you, please contact us at 669 - 7429 and we will work with you.

Also, all 4 - H members planning to exhibit animals at the county show on Saturday, March 12, need to complete a 4 - H Project Record Form for Animal Projects and return it to the Extension office prior to the show. This is form number 4 - H 8.030. If you need one of these forms, contact the Extension office.

4 - H LEADERS 'KNOW AMERICA' PROGRAM

"Know America" is a new program for adults similar to the Ciotizenship Short Course and Heritage Tour to Washington D.C. It is designed to give 4 - H leaders and parents an opportunity to come together and share ideas and experiences; to develop a greater understanding and appreciation of American history and heritage; to gain inspiration to fulfill their community; and to gain a greater awareness of their nation's capitol, branches of government, and places of historical inporatance.

The date of the trip will be May 4 - 17, departing from the Holiday Inn in Garland. Total cost will be approximately $925. Applications are available at the county Extension office and are due in the state office by March 1, along with a $100 deposit. Contact the Extension office for more information.

INTERNATIONAL 4 - H YOUTH EXHANGE AMBASSADOR PROGRAM

Are you looking for something different to do with your 4 - H clothing project this year? Why not consider the International 4 - H Youth Exchange (IFYE) Ambassador program. You will have the chance to learn about the clothing industry in Italy. Your group and group leader will also live with the host families, and share information about 4 - H, your family, and the United States.

This program will last approximately six weeks, leaving this year in mid - June. For more information, contact the Extension office at 669 - 7429.

EXPLORING THE 4 - H CLOTHING PROGRAM

Whether clothing is home sewn or ready - made, quality and style are primary concerns of any consumer.

Boys and girls in the national 4 - H clothing and fashion revue programs, conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, not only develop life - long skills, but also learn the value of quality in terms of time, money and effort spent on a garment. Pride in their own creations often leads home sewers to a dedication to quality that other people come to much later.

4 - H'ers in the clothing program learn that good workmanship is in the hands of the creator of the garments. The choice of pattern, fabric and notions are taken into consideration because the person constructing the garment has more control in achieving a quality look.

The program is sponsored by Coats & Clark Inc., with supplemental support from E.I. duPont de Nemours & Co., Inc.

In the fashion revue program, supported by Simplicity Pattern Co. Inc., 4 - H'ers learn that quality means choosing what is right for you — what you enjoy and what you are proud of. They plan additions to their wardrobe in terms of fashions which span seasons and years. By adding a few items each year, they can update a look, provide versatility to their existing wardrobe and adapt the wardrobe to new life styles.

4 - H members who excel in the clothing and fashion revue programs earn awards and incentives proviced by the corporate supporters and arranged by National 4 - H Council.

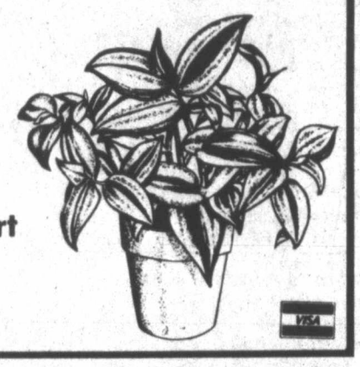

Coats and Clark and duPont provide four medals of honor on the county level and trips to National 4 - H Congress in Chicago each fall. During Congress, six national winners receive $1,000 scholarships.

Simplicty provides top fashion revue participants in each county with medals and one 4 - H'er in each state earns a trip to National 4 - H Congress to model his or her ensemble in a gala fashion revue. Also, six outstanding 4 - H'ers receive $1,000 educational scholarships during Congress.

Clothing project groups will soon be forming. If you are interested in being a leader or helping with the clothing project or fashion revue, contact the Extension office. The Extension office also has more information on clothing and other 4 - H programs.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio - economic level, race, color, sex, religion, handicap or national origin.

The Banvel® herbicide advantage: Gets tansy mustard in wheat.

Control more broadleaf weeds with Banvel herbicide.
Small weeds can mean big problems in wheat. They quickly rob moisture and nutrients from a growing crop—cut bushels off a final yield.
An early application of Banvel herbicide tackles tough tansy mustard and many other problem broadleaf weeds. Penetrates weed leaves. Is absorbed by the roots. Moves throughout the weed for complete control. All without carryover.
Ask your ag chem dealer about Banvel herbicide. You'll get effective weed control and bigger wheat yields.

Dealer runs mail-order car business

FOREST CITY, N.C. (AP) — This little town known as "Little Detroit" has become the home of a unique spinoff — a mail-order car business.

The building and lot of R&H Motors is typical of Main Street in Forest City. The owners are lifelong residents and the business is family - operated.

Bob and Kay Harris specialize in special-interest automobiles. The majority of customers are out-of-towners who can't drive by frequently to look at the current selections.

Some never do drop by. Instead, they read their mail to find out what's avaiable — in body styles, colors and prices. If they find a listing they think matches the car they want, they either make a special trip to check it out or have it delivered sight unseen.

Some customers fly down to look at a car, and, if they don't like it, they fly back, returning again when they think they've found the car they want.

The couple has sold Mercedes to individuals as far away as Texas and Colorado, and even sold one car to a man in Germany.

Radio Shack®
NOT JUST ANOTHER PHONE COMPANY™
NOW YOU HAVE A CHOICE!

It Pays to Buy Your Phones and Accessories From Radio Shack!
WE SAVE YOU MONEY! Your phone can pay for itself in as little as a year with the money saved off your monthly phone bill for equipment rental. For example, in Bellevue, Washington, you'd pay the phone company $4/month* for rental of a Trimline® Touch-Tone®, $4.10/month* in Virginia Beach, Virginia and $3.30/month* in Brockton, Massachusetts. Buy from us and rental fees are a thing of the past!
WE SAVE YOU TIME AND WORK! You'll appreciate the convenience of our auto-dialers, answering systems and amplifiers, plus cordless phones that go where you go. Talk to our knowledgeable salespeople—they can recommend the right equipment to meet your telephone needs. Most you can easily install yourself. You'll be surprised by the low prices. And we service what we sell. Check your phone book for the Radio Shack store or participating dealer nearest you.

NY Times earnings fall

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Times Co. said Thursday that profit fell 29 percent to $9.5 million in the final quarter of 1982, reflecting the costs of staff reductions.

But the company reported record earnings for all of last year.

The New York Times Co. publishes newspapers, books and magazines, and has interests in broadcasting, information services and forest products.

Earnings were 75 cents a share in the final three months of 1982 compared with $1.08 a share in the same period a year earlier, when profit was $13.4 million.

The company said fourth-quarter profit was reduced by a pretax charge of $14.1 million, or 56 cents a share, for benefits paid to 147 composing room employees affected by a staff cutback at the New York Times newspaper.

Profit for 1982 was $54.3 million, or $4.31 a [illegible] compared with $50 mill[illegible] or $4.03 a share, in 1981.

JUNIOR CENTER Marty Cross came off the bench to score seven points in Pampa's 52-28 win over Brownfield Friday night. Cross has scored 50 points for the season with a high of 10 coming in Pampa's 79-62 win over Lubbock Estacado Monday night. Pampa hosts Dumas at 7:45 p.m. Tuesday night in the next to last game of the season.

Pampa routs Cubs, return home for final two games

BROWNFIELD—Pampa moved two steps closer to qualifying for a post-season playoff spot with a 52-28 rout of Brownfield in a District 1-4A game Friday night.

"We played a pretty good game. How far we go now is just strictly up to us," Pampa High coach Garland Nichols said.

Pampa bounded off to a 12-0 lead and upped that margin to 30 points in the second half. Brownfield coach Willie Hill two-platooned the entire game. It didn't help.

Pampa shot only 40 percent from the floor and 46 percent from the foul line, but it was much worse for the Cubs, who hit only 34 percent from the floor and 25 percent from the line.

Mike Nelson led Pampa in scoring with 16 points while Coyle Winborn chipped in 12. Nelson and Winborn each had 10 rebounds. Phil Jeffrey and Marty Cross had eight and seven points respectively while Craig Chapin and Randy Harris had four points each. Joel Ross led Brownfield with six points.

Pampa lifted its season record to 20-6 while making it 9-3 in loop play. The Harvesters must win their final two games—both at home against Dumas Tuesday night and Lubbock Dunbar Friday night—to advance to the playoffs.

Levelland surprised league-leading Borger, 47-46, Friday night while Canyon almost sneaked past Dunbar, but lost by one point.

"There are about five teams in this district that are on a level with each other," Nichols said. "On a given night they could beat just about anybody."

The Pampa-Dumas game tips off at 7:45 p.m. Tuesday night in Harvester Fieldhouse.

"Like I said, it's strictly up to us now," Nichols said.

Brownfield gained revenge in the girls' game with a 51-38 win over Pampa. The Lady Harvesters downed Brownfield, 45-28, in their first meeting.

The Lady Harvesters finished the season with 4-19 and 3-11 marks.

"It was a close game the first half, but we made quite a few turnovers the second half that hurt us," Pampa coach Jerry Johnson said.

Tracy Holiday had 20 points to lead Brownfield's scoring attack.

Debi Young had 12 points and 10 rebounds for Pampa. Keva Richards added eight points and five rebounds while Leslie Cash had five points. Gaye Hendricks and Kerri Richardson four points apiece, and Stephanie Smith three.

Brownfield led by five, 21-16, at halftime, but extended that lead to 37-24 going into the fourth quarter.

The Lady Harvesters lost twice late in the season to teams they had beaten during the first half of district play. The other loss was to Lubbock Dunbar, a team they had defeated, 60-55, Dec. 20.

Pampa did avenge an earlier overtime loss by edging Lubbock Estacado, 40-37, Monday night. Young's 16 points led the Lady Harvesters.

Pampa downed Brownfield, 70-52, in the boys' junior varsity game with David McQueen leading the way with 18 points apiece. Jeff Gaines and Gaylon Faggins added 14 points each.

The Shockers, 14-7 overall, are tied with Borger for first place in the mythical district race. Both teams have three losses each in loop play.

"We don't really play for a district title, but we like to keep up with it so we'll know which team has the best record," Pampa JV coach Frank McCullough said.

Area roundup

Canadian girls win district championship

RIVER ROAD—Canadian girls' basketball coach Steve Zurline can take a deep sigh of relief. His Lady Wildcats made it through a tough schedule to win the District 3A-1 title Friday night with a 55-44 win over River Road.

"It was very balanced district with one exception," Zurline said. "We didn't a win game by more than six points and we didn't lose one by more than four."

Canadian, 19-3 in all games and 6-1 in loop play, will meet the Abernathy-Littlefield winner for the bi-district title at a site yet to be determined. The Lady Wildcats only league loss was to Perryton.

Canadian got 22 points and six rebounds from two-time all-district guard Stephanie Mitchell in Friday night's title-clinching win over River Road.

Canadian jumped out to a 14-8 first-quarter lead and held off second-half rallies by River Road for the win.

Mary Alice Parnell, who is Canadian's leading scorer at 11 points per game, hit her average and collected seven rebounds. Nita Barber added 10 points and nine rebounds.

Cathy Newman led the losers with 11 points.

Canadian used quickness, speed and bench power to offset a lack of height to make it through the highly-competitive schedule.

"I was also fortunate to have a group of kids with a good attitude," Zurline added. "They wanted to go out and get after people."

Canadian will play Phillips in a practice game Monday.

"Phillips beat us by four points earlier in the season, so it will be a good game for us," Zurline said.

This is Zurline's first year at Canadian.

"I thought at the first of year we could get this far, but I guess every coach feels that way when you have a team like this one," Zurline added.

River Road turned the tables in the boys' game with an 83-58 win over Canadian.

Donald Gaines led River Road with 18 points.

Mark Bessire led Canadian with 17 points. Ed Hedgecoke and Harper Johnson added 11 and 10 points respectively.

Canadian closed out with a 10-12 overall record and 1-9 in district play.

LEFORS—Phillips defeated Lefors, 58-54, in District A-1 action Friday night.

Kyle Lynch, a 6-2 pivot, led Phillips with 21 points. Monte Basket had 16 points for Lefors while Cody Allison had 11 markers.

Phillips led by three, 25-22, at halftime.

Mike Newcomb added 14 points for Phillips.

Phillips posted a 100-19 victory in the girls' game.

Danna Payne tossed in 19 points for the winners.

Phillips had built up a 23-0 lead when the first quarter ended. Cindy Stubbs netted 10 points for Lefors while Michella Gee and Crystal Roberts had four points each.

WHEELER—Wheeler overpowered Samnorwood, 83-44, Friday night in a District 1-A contest.

Paul Hartman led Wheeler with 16 points while Scott Wright had 13.

Wheeler led at halftime, 40-21.

Scott Martindale had 13 points for the losers.

Wheeler also won the girls' game, 73-42, as Mona Jennings drilled in 23 points for the winners.

Stephanie Brandvik had 16 points for Samnorwood.

MIAMI—Miami fell to Booker, 57-30, Friday night while the Miami girls lost a 64-31 decision.

In the boys' game, John Hilbig's 22 points led the winners. Kirk Gray had 15 to lead Miami.

Dione Miller had 23 points for the Booker girls.

Angie Trimble topped Miami with 10 points.

NBA all-star basketball game tips off today

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Earvin "Magic" Johnson said Friday the home crowd at the Forum in Inglewood should help the West end a three-game losing streak against the East in the 33rd National Basketball Association All-Star game Sunday.

"Right now, I'm not excited about the crowd, but I'm sure it will mean more to me Sunday when the crowd starts reacting," said Johnson, the Los Angeles Lakers' guard who will start for the West in the 12:30 p.m. PST game.

"I love the crowd and the smell of popcorn. It really gets me going."

Johnson joked at a news conference about entertaining the fans by allowing East forward Julius Erving of Philadelphia to score on uncontested dunks. But when asked about the losing streak, Johnson became serious.

"Losing is a foreign language to me," Johnson said. "I expect to win and to try hard to win, but I'll also try to have fun."

Despite the three straight losses and the East's 21-11 series edge against the West, Coach Pat Riley of the Lakers said he didn't feel the East had established itself as the dominant conference.

"The games always have been close, especially last year when it went down to the wire," Riley said. "The East has just been making big plays at the end."

The three West defeats have been by two points last year, three points in 1981 and by eight in an overtime contest in 1980.

"It always seems to be a pattern of one team ahead by 16 or 17 points, the other team coming back, and then someone making a big basket at the end," East Coach Billy Cunningham of the 76ers said.

Cunningham said he wasn't worried about having two point guards, 6-foot-1 Maurice Cheeks of Philadelphia and 6-1 Isiah Thomas of Detroit, in the starting lineup.

"These guys were voted into the game and I don't worry about them playing together," Cunningham said.

The other East starters are Moses Malone and Erving of the 76ers, and Larry Bird of Boston, which Cunningham called "one of the best front lines ever put together."

The West starters are Johnson and David Thompson of Seattle at guards, forwards Maurice Lucas of Phoenix and Alex English of Denver, and center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar of the Lakers.

Frosh cagers in playoff

Pampa freshmen will meet Borger at 7 p.m. Monday night at the White Deer gym to decide the district champion.

Pampa Blue won the round-round tournament, but Borger captured the league title to force a playoff.

Pampa is coached by Sparky Roberts.

Telling a Child About Death

AGE 5-6...
A child of five or six has a feeling for loss, but it is not easy to grasp. It must be explained to him. Answer his questions in simple terms. Let him know a death has taken place by being present at the funeral home and the funeral service. Clinical studies show that denying a child the experience of sharing his loss through emotions may result in adjustment problems later.

On the Chin

Middleweight champion Marvin Hagler, right, lands a right to the chin of Tony Sibson of England during fifth-round action Friday night. Hagler retained his middleweight title with a technical knockout in the sixth round. (AP Laserphoto)

Hagler KOs Sibson to retain crown

WORCESTER, Mass. (AP) — Marvin Hagler's punches were so sharp, so swift, so damaging, that Tony Sibson didn't see them coming. He only saw their results.

After Hagler successfully defended his undisputed world middleweight boxing title for the sixth time Friday night by stopping Sibson at 2:40 of the sixth round, the challenger retreated to his locker room for a peek at the damage.

"I didn't believe anyone could ever do what happened to me tonight," said the Briton, who had won 14 consecutive fights since losing Nov. 6, 1979. "I looked in the mirror and saw what I've never seen in my life."

He gazed at a gash beside his left eye that required three stitches and led to the end of the crowd-pleasing, slugging match. He wasn't sure he saw the blows that opened it.

"I couldn't see the punches to stop them, so he was knocking me all over the place," said Sibson. "His punching was so accurate, I couldn't find an answer to it."

Hagler had hoped Sibson's eyesight would play tricks on him.

"I wanted to confuse him," said the 30-year-old belter from Brockton, Mass. "I wanted to give him a mirage. He'd look for something and it wouldn't be there."

Sibson, 24, looked for the skills that had carried him to a 47-3-1 record and the No. 1 World Boxing Council ranking but never really found them.

Hagler scored with combinations early in the first round and was the aggressor. In the second round Sibson stuck by his charging style of close-in fighting and landed several good lefts to the head.

"He shook me up with a good left hook that caught me on the side of the eye in the second round," Hagler said. "That got me a little nervous."

The challenger continued to score in the third round, hitting Hagler with three consecutive blows 2:15 into the round. But in the fourth round, the bout shifted decidedly to Hagler as he bloodied Sibson's nose early. In the fifth, he opened the eye cut that unleashed a stream of blood down Sibson's left cheek.

Sibson's handlers stopped the cut, but Hagler got it going again early in the sixth round. Then, after a furious exchange of punches, a right-left-right combination floored Sibson at 1:47 of the round. He got up and fought back gamely, only to be put down by two rights to the head. Blood covering his face, Sibson tried to right his mouthpiece.

NEA award

Dan Fouts is NFL player of the year

SAN DIEGO (NEA) — The winner of the Jim Thorpe Memorial Trophy for the 1982 NFL season, symbolic of the highest achievement in professional football, is Dan Fouts, the spirited quarterback of the San Diego Chargers.

The award, presented by Newspaper Enterprise Association, goes to the player of the year in the National Football League.

And Dan's credentials are impressive.

Disregarding the debacle of the playoff game against the Miami Dolphins, which aborted the San Diego season, and the seven games lost to the strike during the regular schedule, Fouts still had one of the most productive campaigns of his 10-year career.

He tied for the NFL lead in touchdown passes (17). He threw for more yards (2,899) than any quarterback in the league. And his official rating of 93.6 in the complicated mathematical formula devised by the NFL to gauge passers was the highest ever for Dan.

More than the figures, though, he emerged as one of the dynamic leaders in the game. Named to play in the Pro Bowl for the fourth straight year, Dan has merited the admiration of opponents as well as his teammates on the Chargers.

Charlie Winner, a former head coach in the NFL who now directs personnel for the Dolphins, was exposed to him first hand at the Pro Bowl last year and raved about Fouts' acuity as a quarterback.

"He picks up quickly on everything," says Charlie. "He's a real leader and he works hard. He's my idea of a quarterback."

When he came out of Oregon in 1973, the rap on Fouts was that he wouldn't stand up to the pounding you take in pro ball, that the strength of his passing arm was suspect, that he couldn't run and wasn't a particularly good athlete. All these doubts have been disproven.

It's true he has spindly legs and can't outrun anybody on the team, but there never has been a more gutsy performer who risks his body to stay in the pocket and deliver the ball to a receiver. He's mentally as well as physically tough, he has learned to set up super fast and get rid of the ball within the prescribed three seconds for a quarterback. Above all, he's smart, with a total concept of the game that coaches seek in their field leaders.

It stems from a background in which his father, Bob — who was and still is a sportscaster in San Francisco, where Dan grew up — and young Fouts worked in the locker rooms of the 49ers. It was particularly emotional for Fouts this year when he went back to San Francisco to face the 49ers. He led the Chargers to a 41-37 victory in one of the great shootouts of the 1982 season.

Winners of the Thorpe Trophy for NFL player of the year, dating back to its inauguration by Newspaper Enterprise Association in 1955, are:

Red Raiders down Longhorns

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas Tech's Bubba Jennings scored 23 points, most of them on long shots, to lead the resurgent Red Raiders to a 78-66 Southwest Conference victory over Texas in a regionally televised basketball game Saturday.

Jennings got 17 of his points in the second half and teammate David Reynolds scored 17 in the first half. Reynolds finished with 21 points.

Tech, down to eight players after a flurry of dismissals and defections, recorded its fourth victory in its last five conference games and raised its record to 6-5 in the SWC and 9-15 overall.

Texas, also suffering from injuries and walkouts, dropped to 1-9 in the conference and 6-15 for the season.

Longhorn forward Bill Wendlandt led all scorers with 25 points.

The Raiders led by as many as 16 points midway through the second half, but the Longhorns rallied to pull within eight points on Doug Moe's short jumper with 1:37 left.

However, Tech stayed safely ahead on free throws and a last-second layup by Tobin Doda.

Panhandle girls win

PANHANDLE—Panhandle outscored Wellington, 32-13, in the fourth quarter on the way to a 50-29 girls' basketball win Thursday night.

Karen Strawn and Monica Reining led Panhandle with 12 points each.

Belinda Crelia led the losers with 10 points.

Panhandle lost a double overtime game to Wellington, 79-77, in the boys' game, despite a 25-point effort by the Panthers' Wes Wood.

Panhandle led by eight points after three quarters, but Wellington caught up to tie the score at 67-all at the end of the regulation period.

Dwayne Culpepper and Munn led Wellington with 18 points.

Danny Detten added 14 points for the Panthers.

Ryan to speak

Three-time Olympic runner Jim Ryan will speak at a noon luncheon March 3 at the YWCO building, 1006 S. Jackson, in Amarillo.

Ryan is currently active in the Fellowship of Christian Athletes, and has held the American and World records at distances of 880 yards, 1500 meters and the one-mile run.

Tickets are available at the downtown YWCA, 816 S. Buren, and must be purchased by Feb. 24 at a cost of $9.50 each.

Call Bill Wagner at the YMCA, 374-4651, for more information.

Ryan's visit is co-sponsored by NIKE, WTSU, First National Bank and The Hilton Inn.

DECA is the student organization which is an important part of the total M&DE program. Placing emphasis on participation and "hands on" experience, students go beyond the classroom to projects and activities throughout the community. Leadership is developed through opportunities students have to speak to civic groups, conducting marketing surveys, organizing community projects as well as other club activities.

Beta Sigma Phi Sweethearts for 1983

Eight Beta Sigma Phi sorority sisters chosen as chapter "sweethearts" were honored last night at the annual Beta Sigma Phi Sweetheart dance at M. K. Brown Auditorium.

Each sorority sweethearts and their escorts were presented through a giant valentine card suggesting the evening's theme "Love Letters of Beta Sigma Phi." Sweethearts were also feted at individual parties before the dance.

As a chapter sweetheart, the women are now nominees for the International Beta Sigma Phi Queen and her court.

Joyce Clifton is Preceptor Chi's choice as sweetheart for this year. She has been a member for two years and was honored with "Best Pledge" when she joined. She is now serving as Ways and Means chairman and assisted with the New Year's sorority dance. She is married to L. G. Clifton, and they have one son, Shawn. Her hobbies include oil painting, decorating, reading and traveling.

Xi Phi Alpha sweetheart this year is Faye Butler. She has been a sorority member for three years and has served as City Council representative and social chairman. Currently she is recording secretary and service chairman. She and her husband, Harold, have two children, Lisa and Billy. She enjoys reading and needlework.

Shauna Allen, Upsilon's sweetheart, joined in December 1981. During the past year she has worked on the social and telephone committees, served as parliamentarian and is currently recording secretary. She is married to Kenneth R. Allen. Their son is named Blake. She is employed as a secretary at Celanese and is a member of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints where she occasionally fills in as a Sunday school teacher. She enjoys needlework and yard work and likes to snow and water ski, bowl and be at home with her family.

Xi Beta Chi chapter sweetheart for 1983 is Veronica Jean Carroll. She and her husband, Jay, have three children, Trey, 10; Jennifer, 7 and Brent, 22 months. In addition to being a busy mother and homemaker, she also loves gardening and reading and works on her family's genealogy. Family activities include boating and fishing in the summer. She has been a Beta Sigma Phi member for two years.

Donna Sexton is the sweetheart of Rho Eta chapter. She has been a sorority member for 10 years and has a nine year perfect attendance record. She is corresponding secretary, social chairman, courtesy and serves on the ways and means committee this year. Donna and her husband, Chuck, work together at Sexton's Grocery. They have two children, Tammy, 11, and Philip, 8. She enjoys reading and needlepoint.

Alpha Mu Xi chapter's sweetheart, Linda Babcock, has been a sorority member for four years. She has held the treasurer's office and served on several committees during this time. She is the wife of Kenneth Babcock and the couple farm in the Grandview area. They have three children, Susan, 10, Karen, 7 and Clint, 4. She loves to read, do needlework, play the piano and shoot trap. She teaches piano and plays piano and organ for her church.

Melody Baker is the Alpha Upsilon Mu's selection for sweetheart this year. She and her husband, Kelley, have two children, Jami Lo Ryn, 4; and Shanna Lea, two months. She has been chairman and co - chairman of the scrapbook committee for two years and has served as publicity chairman, also. She is a member of the First Christian Church and enjoys reading, cooking and all types of arts and crafts.

Leanne McPherson was chosen as sweetheart by the Phi Epsilon Beta chapter. She and her husband, Garland, have a 5½ - month - old son, Cameron Ryan. Leanne has been a sorority member for two years. She has been parliamentarian and City Council alternate, was voted "Best Pledge" and currently serves as corresponding secretary. She is a member of the First Baptist Church and enjoys camping, hiking and water skiing.

Dear Abby

Woman's thank -you gets chilly welcome

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1983 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Should we ask relatives what they need or want for Christmas? Or should we send whatever we think is appropriate at a price we can afford?

I am enclosing a letter we received from my husband's cousin, who sends us a Christmas card every year:

"Thanks for the purse. It's attractive, but I only use those with compartments for wallet, change purse, glasses (reading and sun), shopping bags (folded), plus other junk I carry, too numerous to mention.

"Sorry to say, the dress you sent me is not usable. The size is for a gal at least 6 feet tall. Besides, the jacket has no buttons and the material is too dressy for work. Also the color is not suitable, as I wear very plain, conservative clothes in black, brown and navy blue.

"Sorry I don't have the postage to return these things to you. And since I'm on welfare, I sure could have used the money instead. I hope you won't get mad at me, but why couldn't you have asked what I could use?"

Abby, I come from German immigrant parents who taught me to make the best of everything, and I would never look a gift horse in the mouth! My husband says to forget it, but I think differently. What do you think? I wonder what reaction your readers would have.

ALBANY, N.Y.

DEAR ALBANY: Your cousin is letting you know exactly how she feels about your Christmas gifts. I'd give her an "A" in communicating, a "B" in candor and a "D" in diplomacy.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: My wife of many years died recently. She made a peculiar request before she passed on. She asked me to have her cremated, then mix her ashes in a can of white paint and paint the bedroom ceiling with this mixture.

This understandably creates a difficult dilemma for me. I certainly want her near me, but not necessarily when I'm entertaining in the bedroom.

PEELING PAINT IN DAYTON

DEAR PEELING: I don't foresee much datin' in Dayton with the ashes of your dear departed mate on the bedroom ceiling. Honor her request, but entertain elsewhere.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I was shocked to receive this in the mail:

"This invitation sent especially to you,
"To mark the end of this bizarre year of '82.
"Please come to my home and mix and mingle
"To celebrate with this newest single.
"A cheerful time we'll all have, of course,
"I'm celebrating my divorce!"

I think this invitation is in very poor taste. Some of my friends thought it was a good idea.

The divorce was one of those messy ones involving several children. With divorce on the increase, it would be interesting to have your comments and the comments of your readers.

WONDERING IN NEW HARTFORD

DEAR WONDERING: It's one way of putting out the word officially that a marriage is over and the sender is available for dating, mating or whatever. However, I've seen worse. Example:

"Jim and I have finally split
"C'mon to my house and let's get lit!"

A wealth of no-cost tax information is available

EDITOR'S NOTE — This is the final article in a series of five written to help taxpayers prepare their 1982 income tax returns. This article tells of the information and instructions available from the IRS.

By JIM LUTHER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service offers a wealth of no-cost printed information that should answer most taxpayers' questions about filing their 1982 tax returns.

The instructions that accompany Forms 1040, 1040A and 1040EZ are designed to cover most situations for most people. But even families with modest incomes sometimes are faced with questions that are not answered in the basic documents.

To meet those needs, IRS has enclosed in the back of the instructions a list of publications and an order form that will get them to you free and postpaid within about 10 days. In many cases, you may find the booklets available for study or photocopying in your public libraries.

If, for example, you sold your home in 1982 and are not sure of the tax implications, Publication 523 provides the answers. Specifics on just which disability payments are taxable are in No. 522. Tax treatment of older Americans is handled in No. 554. Treatment of education expenses is detailed in No. 508; No. 531 is all about tip income.

Publication 17, "Your Federal Income Tax," is a booklet of more than 150 pages that will lead you line by line through your tax return. It includes numerous examples and sample filled-in forms.

You may use the order blank to request special forms that are not included in the instructions package.

Some other tips on filing your return:

—If your taxable income (after exemptions and deductions) is less than $50,000, determine your tax by using the "1982 Tax Table" in the back of the instructions.

Anyone with taxable income of $50,000 or more must file Form 1040 and use the "Tax-Rate Schedules."

—If your income increased substantially in 1982, you may pay less tax by averaging it with your income in the four previous years. More than 5.7 million couples and individuals cut their taxes this way in 1980. See Publication 506.

—Many people 65 or older qualify for a special credit for the elderly. You're not eligible if your non-taxable pensions were $3,750 or your adjusted gross income was $17,500 or more. You must file Schedule R or RP.

—Working families with children and incomes under $10,000 may be eligible for a special earned-income credit of $3 to $500, depending on income, even if they pay no taxes. If you expect to qualify for this credit on your 1983 earnings, your employer can give it to you in advance as part of your paychecks if you file with him a Form W-5.

—In many cases, IRS will figure your taxes for you if your income is $50,000 or less and entirely from wages, tips, interest, dividends or pensions and you don't itemize. Forms 1040 and 1040A tell you what lines to complete before IRS takes over.

If you wish, IRS also will calculate your credit for the elderly or the earned-income credit.

—There's a credit of up to $50 for half of political contributions (up to $100 credit for a joint return). You also may earmark $1 ($2 for a joint return) of your tax for the presidential campaign fund, which won't change your tax liability.

—You may take a $1,000 personal exemption for your dependent child, even if he or she files a return and also claims the exemption.

—The filing deadline is April 15. If you can't make it, you can get an automatic four-month extension by filing a Form 4868 by April 15 and including a check for the estimated tax owed.

—Use the peel-off label on the back of your instructions and correct any error on it.

—Don't throw away your records just because you complete your return or even if you receive a refund. Keep them for at least three years, longer when property is involved.

Finally, if you want to go the extra mile and do more than your share to help reduce the federal debt, you may include with your tax return a separate check made out to "Bureau of the Public Debt."

That will give you a charitable contribution to deduct on next year's return.

THE WORLDS BEST LOVED CHILDREN

One of six children, Berta Hummel grew up in a home where music, art and religion were a matter of course. Even as a child her talent as a painter showed in the cards she created featuring the things dear to her world - the flowers, birds, animals and playmates. The friendship of two Franciscan nuns she met while studying art crystallized her desire to serve humanity and in 1934 she took her final vows and became Sister Maria Innocentia Hummel. Within the wall of a convent near Saulgau, Germany, she continued to paint and sketch the rich memories that made her childhood "Heaven on Earth".

Her work became so popular that the W. Goebel China Company obtained exclusive rights to transpose her creations into three dimensional works of art. Under the loving and strict supervision of the artist-nun the first M.I. Hummel figurines were made.

Today, collectors world-wide are charmed by the life-like expression of a child's world and the soft, delicate colors of the work of M.I. Hummel.

WE ARE PLEASED TO PRESENT TO AREA COLLECTORS A SELECTION OF THESE FINELY CRAFTED M.I. HUMMEL FIGURINES.
Also available - Candles featuring M.I. Hummel prints.

PHI EPSILON BETA

Donna Maul presided over the Feb. 8 meeting of Phi Epsilon Beta at the home of Roxanne Jennings.

Thank you's were given by Francie Moen, Kathy Topper, Jana Whaley, Roxanne Jennings and Charisa Wiseman for Valentine gifts from their secret sisters. Jennings also thanked her secret sister for her birthday present. Shonda Meadows thanked everyone for the baby shower for Cassie. Leanne McPherson read the calendar.

Next City Council meeting was to be Feb. 10. Charisa Wiseman read "Words of Wisdom." Ways and Means reported judges for the Easter pageant are to come from Dumas. Service reported they will help the Salvation Army in March with the "Golden Ager's" dinner. Scrapbook committee was to meet Feb. 9 at Kathy Toppers. A program on jewelry was presented by Charisa Wiseman and Karen Long.

Next meeting is scheduled Feb. 15 and is to include a ritual for Tammy Shimon with the membership committee members as hostesses. The program will be a guest speaker.

STEPSAVERS HOMEMAKERS CLUB

County extension agent Joanna Warminski spoke on time management for the Feb. 9 meeting of the Stepsavers Homemakers Club.

Next meeting is scheduled Feb. 16 at 9:30 a.m. at the home of Linda Gauger.

UPSILON

Upsilon chapter of Beta Sigma Phi met Feb. 7, in the home of Shauna Allen with Rebecca Lewis assisting.

Social chairman, Kathy Davic, announced plans for the Valentine pre - party honoring chapter sweetheart Shauna Allen. She also reported on the family skating party held at the Pampa Roller Rink and commented that the club had 31 skaters not counting all mothers - to - be holding down the benches.

Chapter members decided to take a meal to Sharon Carter who has been ill. Paulette Edgar presented a program on art and Teresa Edmison demonstrated the newly revived art of quilting. Meeting ended with Loretta Alaway announcing her pregnancy.

TWENTIETH CENTURY

Members of the Twentieth Century club met Feb. 8 in the home of Mrs. R. W. Stowers. Mrs. Jerry Gardner called the meeting to order and the collect was given.

Mrs. Jim Olson read the treasurer's report in the absence of Mrs. Francis Kludt. Secretary Mrs. V. J. Mohan read a letter from Genesis House thanking club members for a check donation. Members were reminded of the Rotary Travelogue on Africa. Mildren Harbaugh brought her daughter, Janis Pappas of Tulsa, Okla., as her guest.

Mrs. Don Shepherd and Mrs. Raymond Laycock presented a program on numerous facets of money matters. A yearbook program was titled "A method of worrying before you spend as well as after."

Mrs. M. Q. Wilson is to host the Feb. 22 meeting at 1:30 p.m. in her home.

RHO ETA

Rho Eta chapter of Beta Sigma Phi met twice during January at the homes of Jamilou Garren and Kathy Orcutt.

Kathy Orcutt is to take over Marti Houseman's duties on committees. Programs on "Teaching Others" and "Love" were presented at the respective meetings.

Donna Sexton, Rho Eta Sweetheart, received a Sweetheart pin from President Zindi Richardson.

Next meeting is scheduled Feb. 14 at Jamilou Garren's home.

CIVIC CULTURE CLUB

Mrs. G. B. Hogan was hostess to the Civic Culture Club in her home Jan. 25.

Mrs. D. A. Rife opened the short business meeting with pledges to the United States and Texas flags. The business meeting closed with the club collect.

Mrs. C. B. Hawkins presented a delightful program on "Wild Flowers."

Next meeting will be Feb. 15 with Mrs. Paul W. Dalton in her home.

Dr. Lamb

Cure for foot odor

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I can't believe your recommendations to wash your feet during the day to help control foot odors. A working person can't take time out in the middle of the day to wash his feet. I can just see myself taking off my panty hose at work and lifting my leg up to get my foot in the sink to wash it. I always change shoes daily, but I still had foot odor until I sprayed the insides of my shoes and my feet with my usual underarm dry deodorant spray. I haven't had foot odor since, and how simple. You might want to pass it on.

DEAR READER — Undoubtedly my answer was in response to a male, which usually eliminates the panty hose problem. But you do have a point. Of course, not wearing panty hose would also make things easier.

Your treatment, like many others, helps because it helps eliminate perspiration of the feet. Many people have written suggesting ways to eliminate foot odors. These suggestions have included borax in the shoes, alum in the socks and shoes and other agents. Often the treatment recommended has the effect of producing dry feet. Moist warm feet are ideal places to produce fungi and bacteria that cause odors.

Obviously, keeping the feet dry is an important part of controlling foot odors. In some cases, though, the bacteria that live underneath the surface of the skin and cause odors are able to live even if the feet remain fairly dry. In those cases pHisoHex or soaps that penetrate and kill bacteria may be necessary.

Changing socks twice a day (or even panty hose) and changing shoes every day also help. Incidentally, synthetics, such as those in panty hose can make odors worse because they often don't breathe and so trap moisture. But wool and cotton socks and garments absorb moisture and help to eliminate odors.

For more information on foot care I am sending you The Health Letter 11-8, Your Feet and How to Care for Them. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 22 years old and I have finally found a miracle pill that helps me get through my monthly period. I used to be confined to my bed three days, vomiting and doubled over with pain.

The pill is called Motrin and I have found it to be the only effective way to get relief each month. The strange thing about it, however, is I have to take Motrin around the clock, every five hours, for the first three days to get relief.

DEAR READER — Motrin is one of several medicines that inhibit the uterus' production of prostaglandins. These are hormones in the lining of the uterus that stimulate the strong uterine contractions. These contractions cause the painful cramps.

Other medicines that have been found to have a similar action are Indocin, Ponstel and Naprosyn. You may recognize all of these medicines, including Motrin, as medicines often prescribed for arthritis.

When used for menstrual cramps, they should NOT be used until the cramps or menstruation begins. Why? Because we don't know what effects they may have on a pregnancy but once menstruation begins or the cramps of menstruation you can, of course, be certain they will not interfere with a pregnancy.

DEAR POLLY — To prevent windows from steaming up, wipe with a little liquid dishwashing detergent squirted on a dry towel. — CONNIE

DEAR POLLY — When making a cake from scratch when you don't have cake flour, use all-purpose flour, but decrease each cup by two tablespoons. Add two tablespoons cornstarch for each cup of flour called for in the recipe.

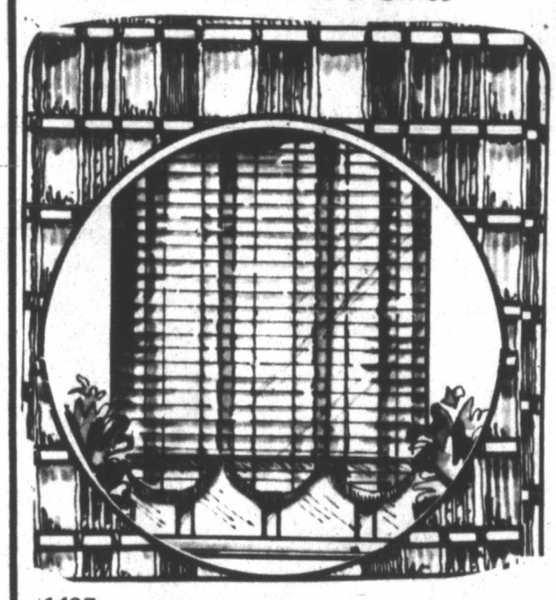

You can substitute add as much as four tablespoons flour for to each box of powdered sugar called for in cake icing recipes. This gives a thicker icing which I prefer, and stretches the sugar. It's especially helpful if you've used all your sugar and still need to add some to get a thick consistency. — FLORENCE

Hair flair

Sometimes when a woman gets a new haircut, she isn't sure how to tell if the cut is good or not. Here are some guidelines: A haircut may be judged by how manageable it is over a four to six week period — a good cut keeps its shape as it grows out. Versatility is another good point. Can you wear your hair in two or three different styles and have it look good? Experiment; wear it up, slick it back, let it dry naturally.

Nail it down

Outdoor winter sports, like skiing, ice skating and sledding, can wreak havoc on nails, so follow these tips to protect them. Counter brittleness by rubbing wheat germ oil or vitamin E oil into the cuticles before venturing outside. Avoid snapping ski boots closed or lacing skates with your nails — use the pads of your fingers instead. Smooth on a layer of hand cream before donning your gloves.

ROB PATTERSON & JONI COVALT

Covalt-Patterson

The parents of Joni Vaughn Covalt are happy to announce their daughter's engagement and approaching marriage to Robroy Carl Patterson of Kim, Colo.

The couple plan to marry this spring in Pampa.

Miss Covalt is the daughter of Larry V. Covalt of Pampa and Una Covalt of Fargo, Okla. She is a 1981 graduate of Pampa High School and has attended Panhandle State University in Goodwell, Okla. She is now employed at Western State Hospital in Fort Supply, Okla. as a recreational therapist.

Patterson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert N. Patterson of Kim, Colo. He is a 1982 graduate of Panhandle State University with a degree in agricultural business. He is a member of the university rodeo team and Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association. He is currently working on the family ranch in Kim.

Redwood yard furniture

FAMILY CRAFTS

by Chris and Janet Beckett

Janet and I decided to spruce up our patio this year and thought some redwood furniture would look great. We live in a portion of the sun belt and it gets warm in March.

Since we build a lot of things, we really wanted a weekend off and decided to go shopping. However, the price of ready - made furniture similar to that pictured here ranged from $300 to $500. After three hours of looking around, and since we didn't want to take out a second mortgage on our home, Janet went to a local discount house and bought the necessary cushions and seats, and I got the redwood. The whole project cost a little more than $100, so we saved a bunch of money.

We kept these designs simple, using 2-by-4's and 2-by-6's to cut down on the amount of sawing we had to do.

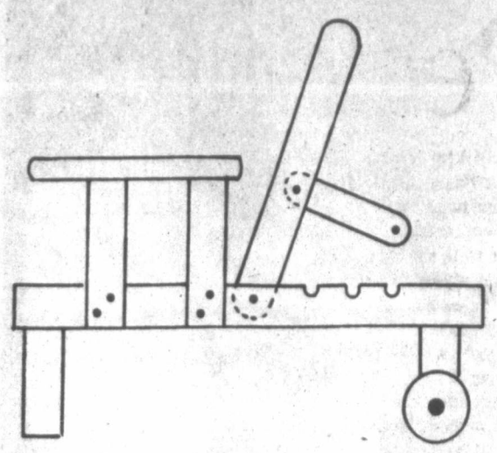

You can copy these designs or order plans to make them from the address below.

Redwood isn't really necessary. You can substitute smooth western cedar or pine if you double up on the stain. Dimensions for the chair and chaise lounge were dictated by the size of the cushions Janet found. The average size of the cushion for the chaise lounge is 19 to 22 inches by 68 to 72 inches long. The chair was 18 to 22 inches by 41 to 48 inches long. The amount of money you want to spend on the cushions will be the final factor in determining the size of the furniture, and we found it better to buy the best because the wood cost wasn't really affected by the cusion cost and the best added a lot to the furniture appearance.

The table is 17 inches high and 30 inches round; the footstool is 17 inches high, and the cart is 27 inches high. One - inch wood dowels are used for axles and the wheels are cut from 2-by-8's.

The lattice for the bench hides storage room for charcoal and other barbeque stuff plus doubles as something to sit on. The lid is plywood which lifts off for easy access but is covered by the cushion when used as a bench.

To order plans to make all of these pieces send $3.95 and specify project No. 2006-4. For a catalog of other projects, send $1.50. Mail to: Family Crafts, Dept. 79065, Box 52189, Tulsa, Okla. 74152.

Homemaker's News

By DONNA BRAUCHI
County Extension Agent

Food Safety and Nutrition are the focus of this week's "Homemaker's News." Several items of importance have come to my attention and I would like to share them with you.

Several popular cookbooks published by clubs and organizations in Texas contain recipes that recommend heating condensed milk in the carn. This risky cooking method may cause the can to overheat and explode!

To avoid burns as well as spattered stoves and sticky clothes, prepare caramel custard from condensed milk as follows.

Preheat oven to 425 degrees F. and pour one can of sweetened condensed milk into an 8 - inch glass pie plate. Cover with aluminum foil, place in a shallow pan of hot water and bake for one hour until the milk becomes thick and lightly caramel colored. Remove the foil, cool and use as recipe recommends.

One of the main promotional drives of the vitamin and mineral industry and of health food faddists is the nutritional insurance idea that everyone should take vitamins and minerals — just to be sure. But the average healthy person who eats a well - balanced diet daily, based on the basic food groups, does NOT need vitamins or other dietary supplements. Eating a variety of foods usually supplies all nutrients necessary for good health.

For some people, however, nutritional supplements are desirable. If a physician prescribes a special or restricted diet, he probably will also prescribe nutritional supplements. In addition, supplemental vitamins may be prescribed for a particular health problem. But nutritional supplements used unnecessarily are an economic waste. Also, research has shown that large doses of vitamins A, D, and C can have a taxic effect. Thus, large doses of vitamin and mineral supplements are not recommended.

Consumers are becoming increasingly interested in nutrition. Most Americans want to buy the most healthful food they can for the money they spend. However, most Americans show a lack of sound information about nutrition. Many people are also being misguided by advertising claims for various "health foods" and weight control programs.

The Gray County Extension Service and Family Living Committee is offering a new letter series "Nutrition Update." The series will consist of eight letters mailed one per week beginning Feb. 21. Topics of the letters will include: recommended dietary allowances, food groups, vitamins, minerals, fats, organic - natural foods, caffeine and fad diets.

The letter series is free of charge. To enroll, call or write the Gray County Extension Office — 669 - 7429; Star Route 2, Box 33, Pampa.

Birth of the blues

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — At the time of the American gold rush, Levi Strauss, a young immigrant from Bavaria, was selling clothes and household goods in New York City.

In 1853, Strauss booked passage on a clipper ship bound for San Francisco, taking rolls of canvas to sell to gold miners to make tents and wagon covers. The canvas didn't sell — at least not for those purposes.

Instead, the miners wanted pants rugged enough to stand up to the rigors of digging for gold. What they soon came to refer to as "those pants of Levi's," did the job.

Strauss soon shifted from canvas to denim — blue denim — and for nearly 100 years "Levi's" meant mostly work clothes for miners, cowboys and lumberjacks out West.

But, according to Levi Strauss & Co., in the 1930's the pants became popular in the East as well, and by 1983, 130 years after Strauss went to California, more than 1 billion pairs of the jeans had been produced.

Peeking at Pampa

Should it be "Boo Hoo!" or "Ah-hah!"? No one — absolutely not a single person — has named the writer of this column.

No one needs an imagination to think of Mary (Mrs. Lloyd) Summers' many attributes. Not only does she wear her own clothes well, she's an always helpful salesperson — so good at adapting styles and colors to her customers and always willing to go the extra mile to help others in the community, often through Ma Bell's Pioneers and the Kidney Foundation.

Our best wishes to Diane and Norman Goad (who's a fine musician, by the way). The couple began missionary work in Brazil this week.

Best wishes also to Jeanette (dancing black eyes and peachy - fair skin) and John Pahlow, Robin and Johnny. They're moving to Houston where John will be returning to Cabot Corporation.

During last week's storms while most of us were toasting our tootsies and enjoying all the comforts of home, members of car pools and the maintenance crew joined to push, pull, shovel and drive to get staff members on the job at Coronado Community Hospital which was filled to capacity with patients.

Special recognition goes to crew chief Bill Fuller, Jim White, Sam Jackson, Carl Hagemann, Jim O'Neal and Betty Many with Laurraine Seitz at the radio, directing operations. Some of the hospital auxiliary members who also made it were Ann Burnham, Rosalie patchin, Peggy Soukup, Virgie and Bill Tuke, and Virgie Wesner. Eleanor Gill even drove in from Miami. All are examples of that "extra mile."

Winter may have had its share of weather surprises, but it didn't catch George Scott off guard. His handsome tan, all - weather coat and sporty hat, worn while a storm was brewing, said that George believes in fashion. George, Anne and Rex McAnelly are an oft - seen trio.

There's been a new kind of party given recently — a "view the grandbaby" party. Ann (Mrs. Hoby) Fatheree hosted, with help from Donna (Mrs. E. R.) Sidwell who unfortunately couldn't attend. Proud grandmother was Janice (Dr. Earl) Hoffer. Mother of the precious baby girl is daughter, Carol.

Among the guests was Lyda Gilchriest, a woman who could easily fill every minute of a 30 - hour day. She had just finished delivering for Meals on Wheel before the party, and managed still to arrive home before the first snowflake fell.

Pampa Senior Center has been a busy place since the snow began melting. Seniors don't stay cooped up at home for too long. We're told a number of seniors attended the February Golden Agers luncheon at the Salvation Army despite the weather and stayed for an afternoon of bingo.

If you want to see Susie's (Mrs. D. D.) Spoonemore's eyes shine, ask her what she does on Wednesday afternoon. Answer: She drives a van for the First United Methodist Church picking up children's choir members. She'll tell you how cute they are, too.

Hape you heard lovely Joan and Brian Vining's blue grass group play with heart, soul and personality? Joan slaps a bass twice her size while Brian plays a guitar. During the day both work as vice - presidents.

Donna Brauchi (Mrs. Ron) incorporates the right touch from start to finish no matter what the task. It's part of her personality to be organized.

Marie (Mrs. Don) Edgerton's motto seems to be "kindness." She's always immaculately dressed, often in her own creations.

Betty Jane (Mrs. Frank) Frandsen, an accomplished and artistic vocalist now of Wisconsin, and her mother, Lois (Mrs. H. H.) Boynton are doing three weeks of high - powered visiting. Betty Jane has her mother's ability for intense and varied interests, although maybe not in the same areas, plus racehorse energy.

Smiles of those who braved the elements last weekend said to all, "We're GLAD to be out." To name a few — Aileen and Russell McConnell, Laura and L. B. Penick, Sharon and David Martindale, Gertrude and Harry Burden, Bill Frye, Esther (Mrs. Frank) Culberson, Dot and Dick Stowers and Pat and Paul Boswell.

Margaret Mumma came up from Houston recently to enjoy her grandchildren while daughter, Judy, and John Warner vacationed in Hawaii.

Three young men appeared to be having a lot of fun with an old fashioned, friendly snowball fight at 900 Christine. All - American fun at its best.

Nancy and Ed Paronto vacationed in Houston not too long ago, stopping in Dallas to visit newlyweds, Kem and Steve Kotara. And Evelyn Lewis Epps, Beadie and James Baird, and all the grandkids flew up from Dallas to surprise Grandmother Jewel Judkins. About 25 to 30 celebrated.

Jim Eakin has been a great neighbor during this snowy week, using his trusty little tractor to clean neighbors' driveways.

Want to add a note of appreciation to the Boys Scouts and Volunteer Firemen of White Deer who spent several hours last Saturday delivering food to shut - ins and the elderly. Volunteerism is a powerful force in the universe today.

See you next week. KATIE.

Taiwan operator tunes out U.S.S.R.

By TINA CHOU
Associated Press Writer

TAIPEI, Taiwan (AP) — In Taiwan, where talks of direct links with China and the Soviet Union are a taboo, Tim Chen has easy chances to communicate directly with some people in Peking and Moscow without being penalized.

But 68-year-old Chen, Taiwan's only amateur radio operator, is taking no chances. He often receives calls from one of Russia's 20,000 amateur radio stations requesting conversations, and each time the answer is the same: no qsl — meaning no communication.

Chen, who has been operating Taiwan's amateur radio station solely by himself for the past 23 years, told The Associated Press he has so far not received any call from Peking, where a station was established earlier this year.

It would be easy for him to talk directly with his counterpart in Peking because all he has to do is to tune in the right frequency. But Chen said, "No, I won't do that. At least now I won't."

Taiwan has rejected Peking's offer for direct links in telecommunications, mail, travel, air and shipping, dismissing the overture as a plot to communize Taiwan.

Although indirect links in trade and mail through a third country exist, the nationalist government has repeatedly said no direct links with the mainland are permitted and violaters could face penalties ranging up to a term in prison.

The Soviet Union, which Taiwan regards as an archrival in the same category as Communist China, broke diplomatic ties with Taiwan in 1949 when the Chinese communists gained control of China after defeating the Nationalists in a civil war. Taiwan and the Soviet Union reportedly also have relationship in indirect trade, but direct links are clearly forbidden by the Nationalist government.

Tim Chen, who was a radio operator for an aviation company before 1949 and now is assistant manager of the private Columbia Films of China in Taipei, received government permission in 1959 to operate station bv2a using Morse code for communications with more than 1 million amateur radio stations in 393 countries.

Chicken recipes wanted for contest entries

You like to experiment in the kitchen, to create interesting new dishes. You often begin with chicken because it can be cooked with so many different foods and seasonings. You hit on a combinationation that's absolutely sensational.

Why not enter it in the 1983 National Cooking Contest? Your culinary masterpiece could make you the year's champion chicken cook and $10,000 richer.

That's the top prize awaiting the winner of the giant Cook - Off Aug. 3 in Birmingham, Ala. But if you want to be among 51 finalists cooking then for a total of $20,000 in prizes, you have to act now.

The National Broiler Council, contest sponsor, notes that April 1 is the deadline for entries. You don't have to have an original chicken recipe. A family favorite, a recipe given you by a friend or one you've had so long you can't remember where you got it can be entered. The only required ingredient is chicken — whole or any part or parts.

You don't even need an entry blank. Just write the recipe on a single sheet of paper with your name, address and telephone number and mail it before April 1 to:

Chicken Contest
Box 28158 Central Station
Washington, D.C. 20005

One finalist from each state and the District of Columbia will each receive an expense - paid trip to Birmingham for the Cook-Off. A panel of national food experts will select the five best recipes there, based on taste, appearance, simplicity and appeal. Recipes should be for 4 to 8 servings.

Last year's big winner was Marcia Adams of Indiana, who combined chicken breasts, sauerkraut, Swiss cheese and Thousand Island dressing for a $10,000 recipe called "Baked Chicken Rueben."

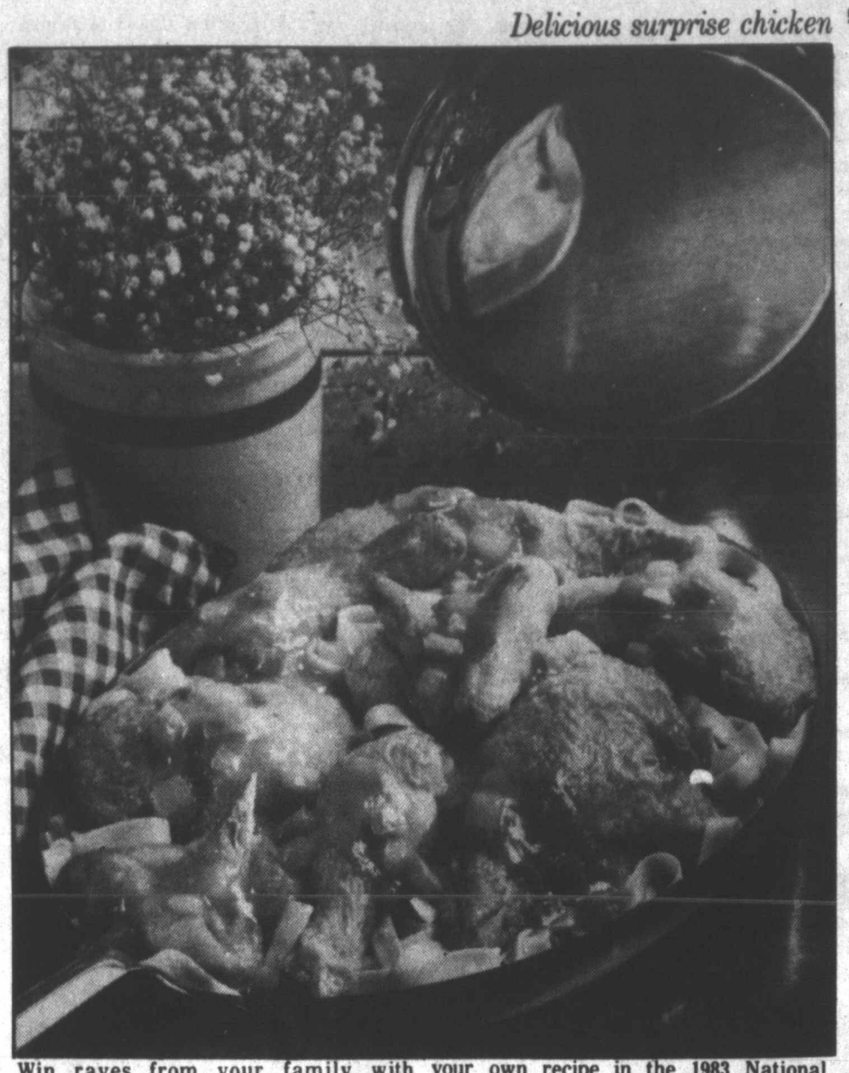

To get you "thinking chicken" and to give your family a winning dinner any day, try "Delicious Surprise Chicken." Developed by the National Broiler Council, it is a tasty combination of chicken parts with chopped vegetables in a dark brown pineapple sauce that isn't at all sweet.

DELICIOUS SURPRISE CHICKEN

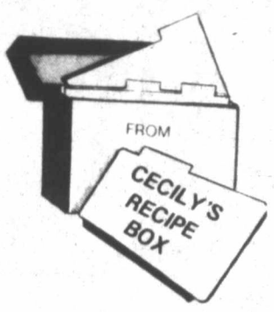

1 broiler - fryer chicken, cut in parts
1 T. cooking oil
½ c. chopped onion
½ c. chopped green pepper
1 clove garlic, sliced
1 t. salt, divided
¼ t. pepper, divided
½ c. unsweetened pineapple juice
2 T. lemon juice
½ t. Worcestershire sauce
½ t. dry mustard
¼ t. oregano

In large frypan, heat oil over high heat. Add chicken parts and cook about 10 minutes, turning until brown on all sides. Reduce heat to medium, push chicken to side of frypan and add onion, green pepper and garlic. Saute about 5 minutes, stirring often. Place chicken on top of vegetables and sprinkle with ½ teaspoon of the salt and ⅛ teaspoon of the pepper. Pour sauce over chicken, cover and simmer over low heat for 30 minutes. Remove cover and cook 10 minutes more or until sauce is thickened and fork can be inserted in chicken with ease. Serve over hot noodles. Makes 4 servings.

Delicious surprise chicken

Win raves from your family with your own recipe in the 1983 National "Delicious Surprise Chicken." Then enter Chicken Cooking contest.

HAM PASTA SPECIAL

Adapted from a recipe for Chicken Tetrazzini.

½ of a ¼-pound stick (¼ cup) butter
12 ounces mushrooms, sliced
4 tablespoons flour
4 cups half-and-half
¼ cup medium sherry
¾ cup grated Parmesan
2 cups strips (1 by ½ by ½ inch) cooked ham
Salt and pepper to taste
8-ounce package thin spaghetti

In a medium saucepan in the hot butter briskly cook mushrooms until wilted — about 5 minutes. Stir in flour. Off heat, gradually stir in half-and-half, keeping smooth. Cook over moderate heat, stirring constantly, until thickened and bubbling — sauce will be on the thin side. Off heat, stir in sherry, ¼ cup of the Parmesan, ham and salt and pepper. Cook spaghetti according to package directions; drain and spread in a shallow 3-quart broiler-proof baking dish. Pour hot sauce over spaghetti and mix; sprinkle with remaining Parmesan. Broil 6 to 8 inches from high heat until browned — several minutes. Makes 6 seryings.

TV woman's image is changing

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Beautiful and self-assured Jennifer Hart of "Hart to Hart." Groping and insecure Gloria Bunker Stivic in "Gloria." Gullible and troubled Sue Ellen Ewing on "Dallas." Tough-minded and ambitious Chris Cagney of "Cagney and Lacey."

Women on television have come a long way since they took their cues from "Hi, Mom. I'm home! What's for dinner?" But the image of today's prime-time female still seems, at times, to be a reflection in a fun house mirror. Many industry observers feel the picture needs further tuning toward reality.

Series like "The Mary Tyler Moore Show," "Hill Street Blues" and "Cagney and Lacey" have done much to adjust the image, as have movies like "Eleanor, First Lady of the World," "Games Mother Never Taught You" and "The Autobiography of Miss Jane Pittman."

But a recent study by the National Commission on Working Women found that women on television are more likely to be younger than in real life, white, a professional, and either upper middle class or wealthy.

How do women actually working in the television industry view the issue?

"The image on 'Hart to Hart' is one people want to see," said Susan Baerwald, NBC's vice president for miniseries and novels for television. "Is it real? I don't know. I'm not sure that people want reality."

Ann Beatts, creator and producer of the CBS comedy "Square Pegs," said, "'Gloria' is about a woman finding herself. I'd like to see a show about a woman who's already found herself."

Others were not so optimistic.

"We have done some good things in television, but the majority of women on television are victims and harlots," said Virginia Carter, senior vice president for creative affairs at Embassy Television. "I think it's outrageous."

Deanne Barkley, producer of the NBC series "The Family Tree," worries that the image of women projected by television makes them vulnerable to violence.

"Who gets beat up on television?" she asks. "It's usually women. I know when I'm on the street I worry that I may be seen as a victim. It unnerves me."

A 1978 University of Pennsylvania study concluded that women were outnumbered 3-1 by men in prime-time television, more likely to be a victim of violence and were usually shown in roles subordinate to men.

Lillian Gallo, a producer and former network executive, feels that the influx of women into decision-making roles within the industry is improving the situation.

"It's getting stronger. Women have more roles," she said. "More women are becoming network executives and they tend to do more stories with women."

NBC's Susan Baerwald said, "I think we get a little bit of everything. For instance, a realistic image such as Joyce Davenport on 'Hill Street Blues' is still idolized. I think she's somewhat of a man's view of the perfect woman. The hookers on 'Hill Street Blues' are gorgeous. They're a man's fantasy."

She said, however, she liked the image portrayed by Jaclyn Smith in the upcoming miniseries "Rage of Angels."

"I think she combines a vulnerability with a sense of strength," Ms. Baerwald said. "It is idolized, but I think it's an accurate picture of the modern woman."

Sidney Sheldon, who wrote the novel on which "Rage of Angels" is based, said, "What's needed is a series with a woman in control and who is good at what she does. I didn't realize until about 15 years ago how chauvinistic we are. Society is slanted against women fulfilling themselves.

"I like to write about women who are talented and capable, but most important, retain their femininity," Sheldon said.

Women on television have come a long way over the years in terms of their image, but many industry observers feel their image is still distorted. Some current prime time females are: Sally Struthers, upper left, of "Gloria," Veronica Hamel, upper right, of "Hill Street Blues," Sharon Glass, lower left, of "Cagney and Lacey," and Linda Gray of "Dallas." WINDS OF WAR

Ralph Bellamy playing President Franklin D. Roosevelt delivers his famous "day of infamy" speech following the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor. The drama takes place in the concluding episode of ABC's presentation of Herman Wouk's "The Winds of War," airing SUNDAY, FEB. 13.

ANN'S DEBUT

Ann-Margret makes her dramatic TV debut as an Iowa woman, stricken with a terminal illness, who searches for foster homes for each of her 10 children in "Who Will Love My Children?" The "ABC Theater" presentation airs MONDAY, FEB. 14.

BARE ESSENCE

Tyger Hayes (Genie Francis) marries playboy Chase Marshall (Al Corley) — but the couple's future is in question on the premiere episode of "Bare Essence," airing TUESDAY, FEB. 15 on NBC.

THE FIGHTER

Gregory Harrison stars in the title role of "The Fighter," a TV-movie about an unemployed mill worker who enters amateur boxing against his wife's wishes. The drama airs SATURDAY, FEB. 19 on "The CBS Saturday Night Movies."

Vicki Lawrence on her own - more or less

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Vicki Lawrence is on her own for the first time in her career. More or less.

She went straight from her high school graduation in 1967 to "The Carol Burnett Show." She was a Burnett look-a-like and started as the star's kid sister, Chrissy.

Later, with the aid of a white wig and lots of padding, she became Mama in the "Family" sketches. She spent 11 years on the Burnett show, virtually her entire career.

Now, in her first starring role, she's in the new NBC comedy series "Mama's Family." It's a spinoff from the Burnett show sketches. So, she's on her own, but still hasn't completely cut the umbilical cord.

"I don't think I could have done it until a year and a half ago," she says. "It's a big responsibility.

"I don't know if I could just go to being an actress. The people on 'Dynasty' and 'Hill Street Blues' probably have little to say about the scripts. I get in there and fight for script quality. There was a time when I couldn't handle that. Now I love it. I came from a tough school. I look at my years on the Burnett show as Harvard and I graduated with honors."

Miss Lawrence says she had other offers for shows but turned them down. "They were depressing," she says. "I felt offended when somebody sent over a pilot script that was awful and said I was perfect for it."

Miss Lawrence has a tough road ahead. NBC yanked "Mama's Family" from the fall schedule and replaced it with "Taxi." The show was sent back for retooling.

In addition, the graduates of the Burnett show have not found stardom in other series. Harvey Korman and Tim Conway didn't make it in their own shows. Conway is coming back again in a CBS spring tryout series, "Ace Crawford, Privat Eye." Korman is co-director of "Mama's Family," plays the host, Alistair Quince, and makes guest appearances, as Ed. Miss Burnett also makes three guest appearances as his wife, Eunice.

"I think there's an art to heading up a show," says Miss Lawrence. "I also think there's some sort of intangible something you have to have to head a show. I don't know what it is. Carol has it. We'll find out whether I have it."

"Mama's Family" has undergone changes from the Burnett show and from the "Eunice" special on CBS last year. Ken Berry, who was Mama's successful author son Philip in the special, is now the ne'er-do-well son Vint. Rue McClanahan is Mama's unmarried sister, Fran, and Dorothy Lyman plays a busybody neighbor.

Miss Lawrence says she doesn't mind Mama's unglamorous appearance.

Arthur Miller feels its time to open a play

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Drama Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Arthur Miller sympathizes with a visitor's grumbles about freezing weather. Got a recession to worry about, too, he adds. He chuckles. "Great time to open a play," he says.

Be that as it may, a revival of his "A View From the Bridge" has opened on Broadway. It stars Tony Lo Bianco as Eddie Carbone, the tough Italian-American longshoreman doomed by his passion, rage and his violation of the unspoken code of his community.

It first played Broadway in 1955 as a one-act piece. It wasn't well-received. Expanded later, it had a long London run. It's back now, the author says, mainly because it's a play Lo Bianco always wanted to do.

It's powerful, tragic drama, as are his other well-known works — "All My Sons;" "Death of a Salesman," a Pulitzer Prize-winner; "The Crucible," a Tony-winner; "After the Fall," and "Incident at Vichy."

Yet Miller, a tall, broad-shouldered, craggy-faced man of 67, isn't the dour kind of dramatist, at least not in the flesh. He has a hearty laugh, is fast with a quip and has a fondness for the comedy of people like the late Fred Allen.

He grew up in New York during the Depression. So did another equally well-known, if not as honored playwright, Neil Simon, 55. Two similar backgrounds. How is it that Simon finds humor in pain while Miller, considered in the pantheon of great American dramatists, has the serious concession?

"It's purely, I think, a temperamental difference," Miller says. "I never put down comedy. I love comedy. But the cast of my mind is such that I end up writing tragic plays.

"It's like, 'Why ...e man's personality cheerful and the other tragic?' I don't know any other explanation for it. We both passed through a similar experience and have come up with totally different consequences for it.

"But that's what makes the theater, or any of the arts, so interesting. There is no one writer and no one mode that can deliver up the truth. You need all of us."

Miller, whose public life includes a turbulent, tragic marriage to the late Marilyn Monroe and his refusal in the 1950s to name Communist Party members to the House Un-American Activties Committee, isn't much in the public eye of late, save interviews about "Bridge," which opened Feb. 3.

He divides his time between his sparsely furnished apartment in New York and his farmhouse in Roxbury, Conn., where he lives with his third wife, photographer Inge Morath, whom he married in 1962.

'It Takes Two' is well-acted and funny

By David Handler

Sam is a surgeon. Molly just became an assistant district attorney. They live in a Chicago high-rise apartment with their two teen-age kids and her dotty mother.

"It Takes Two" doesn't sound like a whole lot on paper, but the good shows usually don't. No gimmicks in this ABC sitcom, the creation of Susan "Soap" Harris. Just the everyday crises of Sam and Molly Quinn (Richard Crenna and Patty Duke Astin), an affectionate, smart, interesting, middle-aged couple, both of whom now work.

You like the Quinns. You root for their 20-year marriage to continue to succeed. It's not easy for them these days. The strains are constant. But how they learn, adjust and ultimately survive is the meat of "It Takes Two."

Take Mama (Billie Bird), who is by no means ready to put herself out to pasture. "You still get urges, Mama?" inquires Molly. "Of course," she replies. "Where would they go?"

Trouble is, Mama's latest beau, Raymond, is a fanatical health nut who's always around the house. He wants to marry Mama. Sam hates him. "He's like Jack La Lanne gone bad," Sam fumes.

What to do?

Then there's Molly's zealous prosecution of a local mobster. She starts getting death threats over the phone. Frightened, she wants to keep a loaded gun by the bed. Sam is flatly opposed to the idea. "All day long I repair holes put in people by guns like that," he says.

What to do?

One week, Molly is on her way to New York for her very first convention. Sam schedules a fishing trip, then cancels it to go with her when she begs him to. She needs him.

Trouble is, when they arrive in New York it turns out she doesn't need him at all. Does not, in fact, even have time for him. He's livid.

What to do?

Another week, it's their 20th wedding anniversary. For fun, they decide to recreate in detail the day he proposed to her. He: "Why don't we recreate our wedding night, too?" She: "You mean you want to trip over the luggage and sprain your ankle again?" He: "I didn't trip. I was pushed." She: "I was in a hurry."

Trouble is, each is too busy at work to make their lunch date. His patient needs a kidney transplant and the fellow's brother won't give him one. Her star witness against a fake maharishi has cold feet.

Meanwhile, their 18-year-old son, Tony (Anthony Edwards), has just dropped into Sam's office to say he thinks he has VD.

What to do?

Sam and Molly do have their quarrels, but they succeed as a couple because they genuinely like each other. The whole family does. It's nice to see a show with three generations living comfortably under the same roof. This is not "The Waltons." This is 1983.

I particularly like the relationship between Mama and Lisa (Helen Hunt), the Quinns' 16-year-old daughter. A big blizzard hits Chicago when Sam and Molly are off in New York, causing a blackout. Helen panics without a TV or radio to occupy her.

To keep her amused, Mama first hurls snowballs at her from the balcony ("Snowgram for Lisa Quinn," she calls out gaily) then fascinates her with the colorful exploits of her forefathers — none of which turns out to be true. "Bunch of bums," Mama finally admits. "Couldn't get jobs as peasants."

Actress hits with series

By Dick Kleiner

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — Nobody really likes "Gloria" — except the millions of people all around the country who tune in each week. The critics generally panned it, but it is by far the highest-rated of this season's new shows and in the top 10 every week.

One big reason for that, of course, is that the public likes Gloria Bunker Stivic. Which means, basically, that they like the little, blond actress, Sally Struthers, who is, and always has been, Gloria Bunker Stivic.

There is a lot to like. Sally Struthers is very attractive, in a cuddlesome way, like some blond and female equivalent of a teddy bear. She is also a fine actress, as witness some of the roles she did — "Five Easy Pieces," for one — before she became Gloria on "All in the Family." And she is a nice, wholesome American woman whose heart and soul are both in the right place.

Sally Struthers is back playing Gloria after a 3 1/2 year absence, which was not altogether pleasant.

"To set the record straight," Sally says, "I did not leave 'All in the Family,' as a lot of people have written. I stayed with it for the duration of my contract with the show — eight years. At that time, Rob (Reiner) wanted to leave, and I knew that Jean (Stapleton) was going to leave, so I left, too."

And so she was on her own, out of the comfy, secure rut that had been her home for eight years.

"The next 3 1/2 years," she says, "were harrowing and disappointing."

Not all harrowing and disappointing, though, because she had her daughter — Samantha — during that period. And that was "wonderful, absolutely wonderful," but the harrowing and the disappointments stemmed from professional causes.

"I didn't work as much as I thought I would, or as much as I would have liked," she says. "I did a few TV movies, I did a play on Broadway, I had my work with the International Christian Children's Fund — but that was it."

Which meant that she became more and more receptive to the continuing temptations CBS held out to her, for another series.

She says that even before her "All in the Family" relationship ended, CBS had been talking to her about a new series of glorious Gloria adventures.

"They had been talking to both Rob Reiner and me," she says, "about spinning Mike and Gloria off. They wanted a show they might call 'Mike and Gloria' or 'The Stivics' or something. Rob was hot and cold about it, and so was I.

"Then Rob finally and definitely decided not to do it. So, finally, they came to me about doing 'Gloria' by myself, a show about a single parent, living her own life. By that time, it began to sound better and better, so I finally agreed to do it."

Now that she's doing "Gloria," she is happy with it and hopes it lasts 10 years.

"I will never be one of those people who are always itchy," she says, "and always restless and wanting to move on to other things. As long as the show is successful, I'll stick with it as long as I can."

She says she has grown closer to Gloria, as a person, over the years. Originally, she says, she and Gloria had very little in common.

"Gloria had parents who took care of her," she says. "She had a husband, she lived with bigotry. And, when she finally moved out, she moved next door.

"I had pretty much been on my own since I was 18, no husband, I moved far from home, and I had never heard a word of bigotry spoken in my house.

"But now, Gloria and I are both single parents, both on our own, both trying to make it. So we have more in common now."

As for Gloria's — and Sally's — future, she isn't sure. She is fairly confident of at least one more season with the show and says that Rob Reiner has agreed to come back next season for a two-parter. What that will mean she doesn't know yet.

Ex-bobbie arraigned in London mutilation murders

LONDON (AP) — Ex-army cook Dennis Andrew Nilsen was arraigned today on charges of murdering an unemployed drifter, the only victim so far identified in a series of gruesome slayings. Police have found hacked-up parts of three bodies and expect to find as many as 17.

Nilsen, 37, was arraigned before magistrates at a court in north London's Highgate district and charged with murdering 20-year-old Stephen Neil Sinclair "on or about Feb. 1."

The tall, bespectacled Nilsen, wearing a loose-fitting blue shirt, stood handcuffed to a detective during the one-minute hearing. He was asked if he understood the charge against him.

"Yes," he replied — the only comment he made before he was taken away by police, who hid his head with a blanket. He was not asked to enter a plea and no request for bail was made.

Nilsen was an army cook for 12 years and served briefly as a probationary London police officer.

Police said parts of three bodies were found in Nilsen's north London apartment, and Scotland Yard said officers expected to find "13 or 14" more bodies when a former residence of Nilsen's is searched thoroughly.

The police said parts of three bodies were found in his apartment and in the sewer of the house in which it was located. After questioning him, officers began searching another house where he used to live, and a Scotland Yard spokesman said they expected to find "13 or 14" more bodies.

Press Association, Britain's domestic news agency, quoted detectives as saying the victims had been strangled and cut up and the pieces apparently boiled.

The police spokesman refused to say whether Nilsen had confessed.

It was Britain's most horrifying string of crimes since Yorkshire Ripper Peter Sutcliffe's 13 slayings in 1976-80.

The first evidence of the murders was discovered Wednesday when a plumber, called to investigate noxious-smelling plumbing, found two decomposed heads and other parts of bodies in the sewer of the three-story, six-apartment house in which Nilsen lived in north London's Musell Hill district.

Police arrested Nilsen on Thursday and on Friday reported finding more body parts in his apartment, some in a tea chest. A spokesman said in all, pieces of three bodies were found, one of them Sinclair's.

After questioning Nilsen, police extended their search to a house where he formerly lived, three miles away in the Cricklewood district.

Nilsen's mother, Elizabeth Scott, 63, told reporters her son had spent 12 years in the army, serving in West Germany, in Aden and Oman, and for a time as a cook with the royal guard at Ballater, near Queen Elizabeth II's Balmoral estate in Scotland.

After leaving the army in the late 1970s, he spent a year as a London policeman and a brief stint as a security guard before joining the government's Manpower Services Commission. Six months ago, he was assigned to the commission's office in Kentish Town, another north London district, where he arranged aid for people moving to find new jobs.

"He was never any trouble at school or at home," said his mother, who lives in the village of Strechen, in Scotland, with her second husband. "He wasn't a sporting boy. He liked opera, classical music and was a good painter and drawer. He also was a very good cook."

Parents of missing kids calls flood in LONDON (AP) — Parents of missing youngsters are flooding Scotland Yard with calls, after police said they expect to find hacked-up parts of as many as 17 bodies at the current and former residence of an ex-army cook.

Dennis Andrew Nilsen, 37, has been charged with the murder of the only victim yet identified. He was to be arraigned today before magistrates at a court in London.

Nilsen was an army cook for 12 years and served briefly as a probationary London police officer.

Police said parts of three bodies were found in Nilsen's north London apartment, and Scotland Yard said officers expected to find "13 or 14" more bodies when a former residence of Nilsen's is searched thoroughly.

The British domestic news agency Press Association quoted detectives as saying the three victims found at the apartment had been strangled and chopped up, and the pieces apparently boiled.

Police headquarters at Scotland Yard said its switchboard has been swamped with calls from worried parents asking if their missing children could be among the victims.

Wanted for Panhandle Restaurant
DAIRY QUEEN MANAGER TRAINEE
BY 30-UNIT TEXAS ORGANIZATION

Must be mature, willing to work and ready to relocate in the Panhandle area after brief training period. This job will pay from $1,500 to $2,500 per month, including salary and bonuses, for a good working manager—plus you are provided hospitalization, insurance and vacation.

While in training period of 90 days or less, your salary will be $1,000 per month.

You may be qualified and not know it unless you investigate. Most important are your own desire and need for success.

Common sense, the ability to do about 20 minutes of book work per day plus doing a good job of cooking and waiting on customers are the only basics to success in this job.

And to encourage you, after we know we have a mutual interest, we will provide you the names of some of our managers to call so they can tell you how any mature, determined person can succeed with our company.

Advancement is also possible to position as district manager.

Can You Afford To Send 10% of Your Interest And Dividend Income to Washington?

With Your Cooperation, We Can Keep Your Hard Earned Savings Growing at Home for Your Benefit!

You need to act NOW to protect earnings on your savings from the Automatic 10% Withholding Tax Congress passed last summer on interest and dividends.

Congress has passed a bad law. Legislators used an elephant gun to kill a mouse. This Witholding Tax will apply to stocks, bonds, retirement accounts, savings, certificates of deposit, government bonds, credit union shares—All types of personal savings.

It Is In Your Best Interest To Get Congress To Repeal This Unnecessary Law For The Following Reasons:

The Withholding Tax will discourage savings, and will hurt small savers and retired persons, the very persons who cannot afford it.

The Withholding Tax will not generate a large amount of money for the government. It will speed up the collection of your money for taxes.

The Withholding Tax will generate a blizzard of unproductive paper work for all financial institutions, businesses and for YOU.

Our customers pay their taxes due on interest and dividend income. The government implies there is a great amount of tax avoidance. Over 95% of all taxes due on this savings income is paid.

All financial institutions and payors of dividends have been required for years to report to the government, by Social Security number, all interest and dividends over $10 paid to YOU.

Please Join Us In Writing Your Elected Representatives, Urging Them To Repeal a Law That Should Never Have Been Passed. If We Work Together, We Can Get Their Action.

Address Your Letters To:
