Baby Girl Snatched From Crib Finally Returned To Hospital

ATLANTA (AP) — A baby girl snatched from her hospital crib six weeks ago when she was less than 12 hours old has been reunited with her mother, police say, and the mother vows never to "let her out of my sight."

The child, identified by Atlanta police as 6-week-old Shanta Yvette Alexander, was surrendered to police Friday. A suburban DeKalb County woman was charged with kidnapping and forgery in the disappearance of the child, detective Lt. B.L. Neikirk said.

But the woman charged in the case, 26-year-old Louise Lett of Decatur, maintains the baby is hers, Neikirk said.

The infant was rushed from police headquarters to Grady Memorial Hospital, where a pediatrician examined her and found her in "excellent" condition, hospital spokesman Mike Yelton said.

"I was always hoping I would see her again," Sandra Alexander told reporters minutes before she and her husband peered at the baby through the window of the hospital's maternity ward.

"I am not going to let her out of my sight," the 28-year-old woman, surrounded by jubilant friends and relatives, said after seeing the tiny baby.

Shanta Yvette was tentatively identified from footprints taken at her birth, but Superior Court Judge Isaac Jenrette ordered that she remain in the hospital's custody for a week pending positive identification through blood tests.

In the meantime, neither the Alexanders nor the Letts will be allowed to touch the child, Neikirk said.

Police said Mrs. Alexander's child was taken from her room at Grady on Aug. 4 after the mother had gone to a bathroom. Moments earlier, a young woman in a polka-dot dress had entered Mrs. Alexander's room and complimented her on the child.

Hospital authorities announced shortly after the abduction that the infant required crucial tests and pleaded through the news media for her return. But Yelton said following an examination that the baby girl "is in excellent health. She was very well taken care of."

Neikirk said police got a tip on the child's location last week but could not act since Mrs. Lett was out of town.

Detectives contacted the Decatur woman Thursday and Friday, however, and "it was prearranged that she, her husband and the child would report to police headquarters," Neikirk said.

Weekend update

Governor Cited

DALLAS (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements vowed to strengthen his recently-passed anti-crime package by monitoring the progress of the new laws and submitting new measures and amendments to the next session of the Legislature.

In his hometown Friday to accept the Greater Dallas Crime Commission's "Law Enforcement Man of the Year Award," Clements hailed the new laws as "the most comprehensive crime prevention package ... since World War II."

He said he would try again in two years to push through measures that would instruct juries about parole laws and strengthen laws against pornography sales and distribution to minors.

Company Pleads No Contest

WACO, Texas (AP) — A Texas bus company has been fined the maximum $1,000 in connection with an accident last year that Arkansas authorities called the worst in their state's history.

Attorneys for Central Texas Bus Lines, Inc., entered a plea of no contest Friday to charges the company's negligence led to the crash, which killed 20 and left 13 injured.

Federal Magistrate Roy Rutland fined the company the maximum $500 on each of two charges in connection with the Aug. 5, 1980 accident near Jasper.

The bus was filled with 33 Dallas-area residents — most in their 60s and 70s — on a four-day tour of the Ozark Mountains.

Driver James J. Thigpen of Lancaster, Texas, was among those killed when the bus plunged off winding Arkansas Highway 7.

The bus company was accused of violating federal regulations by requiring Thigpen to work almost 80 hours over the eight days preceding the crash.

Parlor Managers Indicted

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — A Lubbock County grand jury Friday indicted six massage parlor managers on charges of aggravated promotion of prostitution.

The indictments followed a four-month undercover investigation by city police detectives, district attorney John T. Montford said. Montford presented the investigative findings to the panel during its Friday session.

3 Firefighters Hurt

DALLAS (AP) — A spectacular five-alarm fire left one firefighter in serious condition at a Dallas hospital and caused an estimated $850,000 in damage to a downtown leather goods manufacturing plant, police said.

Two other firefighters were treated for minor burns after a plaster roof collapsed Friday at Altman of Dallas, Inc., showering the trio with red-hot debris.

A spokesman at Parkland Memorial Hospital said firefighters Gary Castro and John Cortez were treated for first- and second-degree burns and released. A third firefighter, Lt. Jerry Kitchens, was admitted for treatment of second- and third-degree burns he received when the roof collapsed, burying him beneath shards of flaming rubble.

Mize Heads State Board

Roger B. Mize, president of Snyder National Bank, has been elected chairman of the Texas Teacher Retirement System Board of Directors.

Mize was elected to head the board at a meeting held Friday in Austin. He has been serving on the board for the past six years, having been appointed originally by Gov. Dolph Briscoe.

Ask Us

A.—Usually the first "killing" frost here occurs around Nov. 5 to Nov. 8, but don't count on it waiting that long. There having been hard freezes in October and as recently as 1979 there was a freeze on the night of Nov. 1.

Sponsors Sought For Buffalo Days

The women's divison of the Snyder Chamber of Commerce is still seeking sponsors for various booths and events at its White Buffalo Days celebration.

The White Buffalo Days will be observed on Oct. 7 and Oct. 10. It was on Oct. 7 that J. Wright Mooar killed the white buffalo northwest of town, and on that date, which falls on Wednesday this year, there will be a dedication ceremony on the square where the white buffalo statue is located.

On Saturday, Oct. 10, events will be staged at the Scurry County Coliseum.

The committee is seeking sponsors for food booths, marathon races, athletic events, bicycle races, horned toad races, a pie-throwing contest, watermelon-eating contest, a buffalo chip-throwing contest, and more.

Civic and service organizations are being invited to participate as sponsors, and several already have responded.

BOOTH PREPARATION--Lupe Lopez, left, and Art Casias are shown putting the finishing touches on the cakewalk booth for the Our Lady of Guadalupe Catholic Church's annual observance of Mexican Independence Day. Activities kicked off Friday night and will conclude Sunday. Besides games and food booths, the festivities were also to include a coronation of a queen Saturday night. (SDN Staff Photo)

O'Connor Is Doing Well In Spite Of Opposition

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supreme Court nominee Sandra Day O'Connor is emerging from three days of Senate confirmation hearings the apparent victor in a showdown with anti-abortionists opposed to her.

On the final day of the hearings before the Senate Judiciary Committee, Mrs. O'Connor received bipartisan pledges to resist anti-abortion pressures in confirmation votes expected next week.

"I find something un-American about saying anyone could be judged on one issue alone," Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, said Friday.

"It (abortion) will not be determinative for the Senate," Metzenbaum told two prominent anti-abortion witnesses who claim that in the past Mrs. O'Connor has favored abortion. Mrs. O'Connor says she abhors abortion but that her personal views would not affect her court decisions.

Sen. Robert Dole told the same two anti-abortion witnesses he did not think a nominee should have to "repudiate" the Supreme Court's 1973 decision, which legalized abortion, to gain confirmation.

"I can't subscribe to that," the Kansas Republican told Dr. Carolyn F. Gerster and Dr. John C. Willke of the National Right to Life Committee. Dole has said he will vote for Mrs. O'Connor.

The committee's chairman, Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., also cautioned at one point Friday, "We're not having a hearing on abortion. We're having a hearing on the fitness of this lady."

Sampler Of Fandangle Booked For Fair Here

The nationally-renowned Fort Griffin Fandangle of Albany will bring the "sampler" of its stirring musical drama to the Scurry County Fair on Sept. 26.

Sponsored by the Scurry County Fair Association and the Historical Reunion, the Fandangle presentation will be a fitting finale for the three-day fair and reunion activities, officials of the organization said.

The Fandangle performance will begin at 8 p. m. on the closing night of the fair and reunion.

The historical re-enactment of the life and times around Albany and nearby Fort Griffin has been presented in Shackelford County since 1938. Beginning as a senior class play, the unique panorama of song, dance, drama---both factual and fictional---has been a favorite summer-time "must" for hundreds of thousands of people.

The story told by the group of local Albany singers and dancers is one of those which comes from the heads of oldtimers as well as the pages of history books. As the narrators spin tales of the settling of this country, the performers relate in songs written by local people just how life was in this vast area in the 1800s.

Of course the "sampler" will not be able to show the longhorn steers, stagecoach, horses and wagons as they are presented in the full show, which is presented outdoors on an acre-sized stage. However, the songs are the same, the dancers are the same and the young and old of Albany manage to bring out a sense of times long since past with a lively script, colorful costumes and professional-quality presentation.

All of the characters presented in the show actually are amateurs who receive no pay for their efforts. The love of the country and its heritage is the primary interest spurring the performers.

The SDN Column

Back before the days of air conditioning, one of the coolest places you could find on a summer day down there in East Texas was "the cellar."

Now, the cellar was not a basement. It was an underground facility that served more than one purpose. Usually it was located southwest of the farm house and consisted simply of an excavation covered with timbers and a liberal thickness of earth. For some reason it always seemed to be cool in the cellar, even on the hottest of days.

The cellar was the store house for home canned foods and also served as a refuge when spring thunderstorms struck. It also was a dwelling place for various varmints, such as lizards and scorpions.

Although it was noticed, nobody thought much about the reason for the cellar being a cool place. But in recent years, people have become more curious and the word has spread that underground housing quite likely is one of the best methods of conserving fuel. Not only are underground houses cool in the summer time, they require less fuel to heat them in the winter than above-ground houses.

The interest in this subject has reached the point where Texas Tech University is preparing a guide covering construction, financial and legal aspects of earth sheltering. The fact that earth shelters maintain a temperature reading of around 57 degrees in summer time is of special importance in West Texas because this area has more of a cooling problem than a heating problem.

Even heating is said to be much more economical. Such limited systems as fireplaces, kitchen ranges or portable heaters usually are enough during the winter, they say.

Old timers may say that it just goes to show you that some of the old ways still are the best. Many of the early settlers in West Texas had underground housing. They called them dugouts.

Miller Robinson says his telephone rang the other night and when he answered, the calling party began placing an order for booze.

Recognizing the voice as that of one of his church members, he said, "You must have the wrong number. This is your pastor."

The caller replied, "Pastor, what are you doing in a liquor store?"

Ford Reaches Agreement

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Ford Motor Co. has reached a $400,000 out-of-court settlement in a suit filed by the families of three youths killed when a 1965 Mustang burst into flames when struck from the rear.

Families of the victims and a survivor of the 1978 wreck had sought $113 million.

Visiting U.S. District Judge Carl Bue of Houston had heard two days of testimony in the trial when attorneys reached an agreement. Bue accepted the settlement and dismissed the jury.

Hector Daniel Arizmendi and Carlos Luis Garcia, both 16, died when the 1965 Ford Mustang they were in burst into flames after being hit from behind by a Ford LTD. David Lyssey, 20, the driver of the LTD, later died of burns.

The accident occurred on a rural highway in Hidalgo County after the Mustang's driver had stopped the car to investigate an earlier accident. After he left the car, it was struck by the LTD, trapping the two passengers.

Families of the victims sued Ford, alleging the auto giant designed the Mustang with severe defects, including lack of a fire wall barrier between the gas tank and passenger section.

Sloppy Dressers Sullying Image

SCARSDALE, N.Y. (AP) — Sloppy dressers are sullying the image of this posh New York City suburb, according to a strict coat-and-tie man who wants a dress code adopted for all public places.

"I'm a square, and I've always been one. I wear a coat and tie all the time — except in the shower," said Charles Harwood Jr.

Harwood, who has lived in this wealthy village of 19,000 for five years, made his proposal after a recent visit to Village Court, where he saw people in "short shorts" and cutoff blue jeans.

"It dims the image of our town to have nakedness walking around on our streets," he said in a letter to the village board.

Financial & tax planning

$2,000 Non-Taxable Interest
(Who Should Bother?)

The new law states, "an individual is eligible for a once in-in-lifetime exclusion of up to $1,000 ($2,000 on a joint return even if only one spouse owns the certificate) of interest earned on a special qualified tax exempt savings certificate purchased after September 30, 1981."

If your income tax bracket is 30 percent or greater, you may benefit by purchasing this type of certificate; if your tax bracket is less than 30 percent, you may lose. If the C.D. is issued by the bank to yield 12 percent, it would take an investment of $16,667 to utilize the full $2,000 exemption. Since this is tax-free, your net cash earned would be the full $2,000. (Since interest earned beyond the excludable amount will be taxable, it's wise to invest only as much as you have to in order to get the full tax break. To determine that amount, simply divide $1,000, $2,000 for joint returns, by the decimal equivalent of the certificate yield.)

If the $16,667 were invested elsewhere at a 17 percent yield, and your tax bracket is 25 percent, your after tax earnings would be $2,125, and a 40 percent bracket taxpayer would yield $1,700. Therefore, the 40 percent bracket would gain $300 by acquiring the new C.D. and the 25 percent bracket would lose $125.

There will be penalties both by the banks and by the IRS for redeeming your certificate in less than one year or for using it as collateral or security for a loan. Individuals who anticipate a need for some or all of this money, or the use of it as collateral in less than one year will probably want to avoid this certificate. Putting money in several small certificates will ease the problem if you end up withdrawing only a part of the total invested.

Several hundred dollars could be yours for the asking; and you must ask. Your bank will not "automatically renew" or replace your old C.D.s with the tax exempt type unless you ask them.

Small grains grown in Texas are generally used for both grain production and forage production. Small grain forages occupy a very significant position in forage production in the state. It is very important that maximum economic production be realized from these crops.

Fertilizers are an important factor in production and, with increased prices, must be used efficiently.

The major nutrients generally required are nitrogen and phosphorous. Micronutrient problems are rare but there are occasional deficiences. These are most often diagnosed and treated on a case-by-case basis.

Phosphorous is very important in the development of the seedling plant. The number of tillers produced by the plant relates directly to the number of adventitious roots produced. Without adequate phosphorous, fewer of these roots are produced. Increased grain yields and greater winter pasture production are produced by the greater tillering rate.

Nitrogen is also very important in the fertilizer program. Small grains need nitrogen at planting or shortly after emergence to gain early grazing and for top grain production. Enough top growth for early grazing shouldn't be expected without adequate nitrogen at planting. Most soils are deficient in nitrogen and application of at least part of the nitrogen at planting is necessary.

The amount of straw remaining from the previous crop will affect the amount of nitrogen fertilizer required. About 20 pounds of N should be added for each ton of straw remaining. About half of this will be recoverable so about half of the extra N applied can be deducted from the amount applied in later top dressings.

A general guide is two pounds of N and one pound of phosphorous per bushel of wheat expected. If the small grain is grazed, the amount of N should be doubled. The removal of forage by grazing animals reduces the amount of N available for grain production.

With the price of fertilizer increasing relative to grain prices, fertilization must be done efficiently. A soil test is the best guide available at this time for fertilization. Growers should only use those nutrients needed as efficiently as possible to assure the best chance for a profitable crop.

Woman Gets 10 Years

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — A Fabens woman convicted of trying to kill her husband by slipping small doses of cyanide-laden rat poison into his food and coffee has been sentenced to 10 years in prison.

Natividad Campos showed no emotion when a court interpreter explained the sentence in Spanish.

But she and four of her five children sobbed hysterically when defense attorney Ruben Valdes explained she had to be booked into jail before she could be released on bond pending her appeal.

Her husband, Enrique Campos Marquez, slipped out as soon as District Judge Brunson Moore read the sentence.

Persons sentenced to less than 15 years in prison are allowed to be released on bond during an appeal. Mrs. Campos has been free on bond since about two weeks after her Sept. 2, 1980, arrest.

The same jury had found her guilty of attempted murder Sept. 5 after a three-day trial.

Assistant District Attorney Brad Stiles described the poisoning — which testimony indicated took place during 1979 and 1980 before Campos' weight dropped to 81 pounds in July 1980 — as "a cold, calculated, premeditated act that required careful planning."

Mayor Defends Tax Operation

HOUSTON (AP) — Mayor Jim McConn, defending the city's tax-collecting operation against charges of favoritism, testified Wednesday it was not reasonable to expect the city to levy taxes on every piece of property.

McConn was called to testify in a lawsuit filed by a candidate for mayor challenging the way Houston levies property taxes. The candidate, Noble Ginther Jr., says tax collectors overlook equipment such as oil rigs and ships owned by "influential taxpayers" in exchange for favors such as hunting trips.

Asked about allegations that 63 ships owned by Brown & Root Inc. were left off the city's tax roles, McConn said he is still waiting for a decision by the legal department on whether the vessels are taxable.

Many Move To Maine County

His neighbors, authors Helen and Jose Yglesias, are relative newcomers, living in a 200-year-old Cape Cod cottage they bought in 1969.

Hancock County, once regarded as a coastal summer enclave for America's super-rich, is becoming the year-round home for a surprising number of well known writers, musicians, artists and scientists, a haven for intellectuals.

Full-time residents include a 1980 Nobel Prize winner and the only woman ever elected to the prestigious French Academy. In the county seat of Ellsworth, the weekly newspaper and radio station are owned and run by transplants from Washington, D.C., who were among the pillars of that city's journalism establishment.

Like others who fled New York, Boston or Washington for the slower pace of Castine, Brooklin or Mount Desert, the intellectuals who settled in Hancock County were lured by small-town tranquility in a place where the biggest distraction is the scenery.

"Visually, it is one of the most beautiful places in the world," said Helen Yglesias, who does her writing in her house instead of in her waterfront studio to avoid being distracted by the view.

"It's so beautiful," her husband, Jose, agreed. "I tend to think it's the beauty that brought the intellectuals."

Helen and Jose Yglesias first came to Brooklin 12 years ago, to look at a house which had been donated to the Authors Guild.

"We just fell in love with it," Mrs. Yglesias recalled. The family, which had been living on Manhattan's Upper West Side, bought the house and moved there permanently the next year.

White, who spent summers in Maine as a child, bought his farm overlooking Blue Hill Bay in 1931. He liked sailing; his wife, Katharine, loved gardening. They became year-round residents in 1938.

The local news media in Ellsworth are heavily influenced by former Washington journalists who summered in Hancock County before migrating there to begin second careers.

J. Russell Wiggins, a former editor of The Washington Post, bought the weekly Ellsworth American in 1966 and became its editor-publisher three years later.

Mount Desert Island, once famous as a summer haven for Rockefellers, Fords and Vanderbilts, is the home of Marguerite Yourcenar, the French poet and novelist who last year became the first woman elected to the French Academy.

Miss Yourcenar, who left France before World War II and became a naturalized U.S. citizen, has lived for more than three decades in a small white cottage in the town of Northeast Harbor.

"I detest the literary circles and chitchat of Paris and New York. I like the village rhythm and friendly people here, and it is extremely beautiful," she told an interviewer in 1979.

Another full-time resident of the island is George Snell, who shared the 1980 Nobel Prize for medicine for his work in genetics. He carried out his research at the Jackson Laboratory in Bar Harbor, a world-renowned center for the study of mammalian genetics and one of the county's biggest employers.

Some well-known writers have maintained summer homes in the area but never became permanent residents. Political columnist Walter Lippmann, who died in 1974, had a home in Seal Harbor for 30 years. Robert Lowell, the late poet, spent part of the year in Castine.

Some of the writers who settled in Maine have a reputation for being reclusive. Wiggins, whose newspaper refrains from badgering local celebrities, agreed that "people up here respect their privacy."

Jose Yglesias agreed. "You notice that nobody here has an unlisted phone number," he said.

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Change in bowel habit

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — A few months ago I started having a lot of gas. My bowel movements were very, very small, about the size of a pencil. Sometimes I feel like I am having diarrhea, but when I go to the bathroom it is just gas. I had a problem with constipation but I do not anymore.

My doctor put me in the hospital for tests and they examined my colon and did and did X-rays. They said they did not see anything, but my bowel movements are still small. I told my doctor about it and he said there was nothing to worry about, but I do because I have read that a change in bowel habit sometimes means cancer. Sometimes I see mucus in my stool. I hope you can help me.

DEAR READER — What your doctor meant is that he didn't find any evidence of cancer and you can stop worrying about that. However, you are correct that anyone who develops an unexplained change in bowel habit should have an examination. Cancer of the bowel is the second most common cause of cancer deaths in both men and women, and many could be cured if found early enough.

Your story is typical of a spastic colon. The gas accumulates because it cannot pass beyond the area in the colon that is in spasm. Your bowel movements are as you describe them because of the small passageway in your colon because of spasm.

You probably should have more bulk in your diet. Bran is a good source but don't forget to increase your intake of raw fruits, such as a good raw apple a day, and include leafy salads and vegetables. Bulk is discussed in The Health Letter number 16-4, Spastic Colon, Irregularity and Constipation, which I am sending you.

Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 1-019.

Sometimes milk intolerance is a factor causing the spastic colon reaction. Avoiding milk products may help in those instances. If you don't have enough bulk, your colon simply over-contracts or goes into spasm causing many of these symptoms. Nervous tension is also a factor. And if you use coffee, tea or colas I would suggest discontinuing them.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I would like any information you can give on venereal diseases — causes, effects and treatment. Someone dear to me is infected but doesn't think it serious enough to seek medical help — perhaps ashamed to. Please answer quickly as every moment may count.

DEAR READER — Venereal disease covers a lot of territory these days, from some forms of hepatitis to herpes. It also includes trichomonas that causes vaginal discharge plus the old standards, gonorrhea and syphilis. The effects of all are different and so is the treatment. Today we call these sexually transmitted diseases.

Your friend should see a doctor without delay. Some of these infections, particularly gonorrhea, can cause sterility by inflammation and then scarring and blockage of the tubes in a woman and the vas deferens in the male. Women are more often rendered sterile.

Then there is the problem of transmission of any of these diseases to one or more other parties. Remind your friend that it is the norm for people to have sexual relations, not to be so embarrassed and see a doctor.

Agape Presents Living Sound

Living Sound International is an aggressive music missionary organization that uses contemporary Christian music as a tool to reach people for Christ. They will be performing Sunday at 7 p.m. at the Agape Christian Fellowship, according to Jay Newsom, pastor.

Terry Law, president and founder of the organization, formed the Living Sound Team I in 1969. Today there are four teams ministering in 40 countries across the world in concerts, crusades, rallies and church services.

Through unusual circumstances Living sound has had two major doors of ministry flung wide open to it. In August of 1980, Living Sound received international recognition when they performed in St. Peter's Square at the invitation of Pope John Paul II. Their relationship with the leader of 700 million Catholics worldwide has given them an open door into many countries.

The group's other ministry door began opening in 1972 when they accepted an invitation to perform a concert at a "youth gathering" in Poland. They were surprised to find the event was a fund raising benefit for the Youth Communist Party.

Since then, Living Sound teams have ministered in eight evengelistic tours in Poland and four in the Soviet Union. Their ministry also includes several other eastern European Communist countries.

Future plans for Living Sound include city-wide open-air meetings throughout the country of Poland, and large crusades in Mexico sponsored by the Roman Catholic Church.

Snyder Physician Hurt In Hunting Accident

Dr. Paul A. Thompson, Snyder physician, was slightly injured in a hunting accident Friday but was doing fine Saturday and was in Corpus Christi at a medical meeting.

Dr. Thompson was dove hunting with his 14 year-old son when he was splattered in the face by shotgun pellets, said Mrs. Thompson. She said he had pieces between his eyes, his neck and lip. "It could have been bad if it had hit any glands or major arteries," she said.

He was treated by Dr. David Wiman who referred him to a Lubbock doctor to make sure the pellet in his neck wasn't in a dangerous spot. Mrs. Thompson said the Lubbock doctor advised not to try removing the pellets as that might cause further scarring.

Law Enforcement Agencies Recover Stolen Equipment

Snyder police, working in conjunction with the Sweetwater and Snyder sheriff's office and Texas Ranger Dee Vickers, served a search warrant on a home in the southwest part of Roscoe Friday night and recovered some stereo equipment which had allegedly been stolen from Sound Concepts in Snyder July 9.

Sgt. Ed Neeley, Criminal Investigations Division with the Snyder Police Department, said Sweetwater deputy Mike Arnold received information about the stolen property from a confidential source and they were able to obtain the search warrant.

The suspect, 23 years-old, was taken into custody and led officers to more of the items located in several different vehicles. Formal charges are expected to be filed in District Court here Monday.

In other police activity Friday, a theft was reported at Stanfield Elementary by Brenda Smith. She told officers two bicycles belonging to her sons were taken sometime between 8 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. The bikes are valued at $110 each.

Kay Halbert reported a theft of $40 and a tape box containing more than 20 tapes. Value of the tapes and box was set at $260.

Cotton Meet Set Thursday

Cotton producers of Scurry County can receive the best available information concerning fertility, cotton defoliation and desiccation and cotton marketing at a meeting scheduled Thursday morning in Room A of the Scurry County Coliseum.

The program will be presented from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m.

"Cotton Marketing," the "biggy" right now, will be discussed by Dr. Carl Anderson, Texas Agriculture Extension Service, recognized as one of the best cotton marketing specialists in the country. Included in his talk will be marketing strategies, supply and outlook information.

Dr. Willis Gass, agronomist with the Texas Agriculture Extension Service, will review and discuss all aspects such as application rates, materials and timing in applying defoliants and desiccants.

Dr. Dale Pennington, soil chemist of Lubbock, will discuss plant nutrients, testing and application. Information on fertilizing small grains also will be discussed.

With the increased cost of cotton production, producers need to maximize efficiency to offset some of these costs and the speakers scheduled here will give some good information to help, said Billy Roach, Scurry County Extension Agent.

VISIT US ON Grandparents' Day

SUNDAY SEPTEMBER 13th 2:00 — 4:00 P.M.

Grandparents' Day is a very special day for our nursing home residents. It's a special day for kids too. Because something wonderful happens when young people and old people get together. They talk. They laugh. They swap stories. And it's just as if they've been friends for years. Maybe nobody can explain what makes them so happy together. But whatever it is, it's beautiful. Bring your kids for a visit to our nursing home. You're going to find an old friend.

Dear Abby

Husband Has No Interest In Wife's Desired 'Bond'

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I am a 28-year-old professional woman who recently married a 39-year-old professional man with four children from a previous marriage. Although Rob claims not to care for his ex-wife, they still have frequent contact, allegedly over the children. When she asks him for money "for the children," he gives it to her. When I ask for something, he'll "think about it."

I've worked hard for four years and want to stay home and raise a family. Rob says no to both. He says he has enough children, but I believe that if he really loved me, he would want us to have a child.

My question: Is there a way to convince Rob that since he loves his four children so much, he would also love and enjoy any children we might have together? I also believe that a child would "bond" us and bring us closer together.

HATES WORK

DEAR HATES WORK: If I knew of a way to "convince" Rob to let you quit work and have a child, I wouldn't recommend it, because Rob has already said he has enough children. Furthermore, if you were able to convince him to have a child in an effort to "bond" you together, it would be a mistake.

Be honest. You are hoping to compete with Rob's ex-wife by giving him a second family, which he doesn't really want. You can't win. The "ex" is holding four aces.

DEAR ABBY: Please, please put something in your column about the futility of sneaking around to date married men! My beautiful 24 year-old daughter is having an affair with a married man, and nothing I say can stop her. He's twice her age and gives no hope of leaving his wife. He works in our small town and goes home to his wife on his days off, but my daughter sees him when she can.

I am afraid the whole town (including his wife) will find out about it, and I don't want to see my daughter dragged through a divorce court, but she won't listen to me. Maybe she will listen to you.

NO TOWN, PLEASE

DEAR NO TOWN: Love is not only blind, it's deaf as well. The best case against going with a married man is not the futility of it — it's finally getting him. Then what do you have? A husband who cheats on his wife. Some bargain!

Shoot Is Scheduled

A paper target big bore rifle shoot is being held Sunday by the Canyon Gun Club at their range northeast of Snyder from 1-7 p.m. The public is invited to attend and participate, said Calvin Goebel, club vice-president.

It will be a bench rest target shoot with the best five out of 10 shots taken as score. Participants are welcome to bring their own sandbag and any rifle they want from a .22 to a .458 elephant gun, Goebel said. Trophies will be awarded.

Anyone wishing directions or further information may call Ted Floyd at 573-6622 or Ricky McCarty at 573-8886.

Albuquerque Bank Has Special Needs Program

EDITOR'S NOTE — When the Bank of Albuquerque talks about "full service" banking, it's meant for everyone, including those who may not be able to see or hear. With the introduction of a Special Needs Program, the bank is taking the chore out of checking for the handicapped.

By JIM McELROY
Associated Press Writer

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Writing checks and making deposits are routine parts of the daily lives of most people. For the handicapped, however, these and other dealings with banks can be frustrating, difficult or, sometimes, impossible.

But officials at one small Albuquerque bank don't believe it has to be that way. And they're out to prove it.

"Basically, it comes down to putting your money where your mouth is," says Kathy O'Callaghan, who heads the Bank of Albuquerque's Special Needs Program.

She says the program, which began June 2, is designed to help the deaf and hearing impaired, physically impaired, mentally retarded, and the blind and visually impaired.

"The bottom line is responsibility to our community," Ms. O'Callaghan says.

"I found a lot of businesses have committed themselves to programs for hype. They think, 'It's a good thing if it makes us look good.' I think this is good for us and will make us look good. But neither is the primary factor."

She says the idea is to provide the handicapped with the opportunity to make use of banking services, not to do it for them.

"The goal of our program is for these people to be responsible for their money," she says. "We are not privy to their accounts. We don't keep a running tally on them.

"The idea isn't to treat them differently. If you do that you're not incorporating them in the mainstream. You're not teaching them to be independent.

"We're incorporating the program into our definition of full service banking."

The program varies depending on the needs of the different groups.

For the visually impaired — described by Ms. O'Callaghan as people who aren't totally blind but who have problems such as glaucoma and cataracts — there are special checks.

Ms. O'Callaghan says the checks are 8¼ inches long by 3½ inches wide as compared with normal checks of 6 inches by 2¾ inches. "People who can't see very well usually write bigger so they can see what they write."

She says the lines on the checks are embossed so they stand out, enabling the person to feel where to write.

And the checks are in black and white.

"There's no pictures of birds, dogs, boats ... Those are beautiful checks to you and me. But to someone who is visually impaired all those colors become a bigger blur."

Bank statements for these people are printed in type about twice as large as on the usual statement.

For the blind, there are Braille statements and a slate to record in Braille the amounts of checks on checkbook stubs.

Ms. O'Callaghan says many blind and visually impaired have never learned how to balance their checkbooks "so we sit down and teach them how to do it."

For those with hearing problems the bank has a machine, the Telecommunications Device for Deaf, which has an electronic display or printout.

"It provides access for deaf customers," she says. "Anything any other customer could get using the telephone, any deaf customer could get."

She says employees also take classes in sign language so they can communicate with deaf customers.

"It's not that anyone here will be ready to pass the national boards in interpreting," Ms. O'Callaghan says. "But there will be someone besides me who can communicate in a basic fashion. They will be able to say 'Hi,' 'Welcome,' 'How are you?', and 'Can I help you?'"

Test Of Backs As Chargers And Lions Clash

by The Associated Press

Don Coryell and his assistant coaches on the San Diego Chargers just can't get over Detroit's Billy Sims.

"He could be one of the all-time greats," Coryell said of the Lions' second-year running back. "He's like Walter Payton," said assistant head coach Jack Pardee, coordinator of the Chargers' defense. "He has that ability to make something out of nothing."

They apparently haven't been looking in their own backfield recently - at Chuck Muncie.

While Coryell and Pardee were waxing eloquent about Sims, who coupled 59 yards rushing with 66 yards receiving and a touchdown each way in the Lions' 24-17 victory over San Francisco last Sunday, they weren't saying all that much about Muncie, who rushed for 161 yards, equalling his career high, and a touchdown in the Chargers' 44-14 rout over the Cleveland Browns Monday night.

But that is the style of most coaches. Don't ruffle the feathers of your next opponent - which is what the Lions are to the Chargers. They visit San Diego Sunday for the Chargers' home opener.

Green Bay has won its first two games in a season only once in the past 11 years - 1978, when the Packers finished 8-7-1 for their only winning season since 1969. But Green Bay has beaten the Falcons in each of their three previous visits. If Atlanta wins, it will be Coach Leeman Bennett's 36th victory with the Falcons, tying Norm Van Brocklin's club record.

The Browns, reeling from San Diego's air-and-ground assault, will be trying to regroup in time to handle Houston's 1-2 punch of Ken Stabler quarterback, who completed 13 of 20 passes for 192 yards in a 27-20 triumph over Los Angeles, and Earl Campbell, the NFL's three-time rushing champion who started his fourth season with 122 yards against the Rams.

The Rams, having faced one "franchise" player in Campbell, face another - or so New Orleans hopes - in George Rogers. The Saints' -, and the NFL's No.1 draft pick - began his pro career with exactly half of Campbell's yardage - 61, against the Falcons.

Buffalo, which had the No.1 defense in the league last year and played that way in its opener by blanking the Jets 31-0 and limiting rookie running back Freeman McNeil of New York to 12 yards, now must contend with Randy McMillan, the Baltimore rookie runner who rolled up 146 yards in the Colts' 29-28 upset of New England.

Hart, Gray Will Not Play

IRVING, Texas (AP) - When the Dallas Cowboys and St. Louis Cardinals tangle Sunday in Texas Stadium, fear won't be in the hearts of the Dallas Doomsday Defense like it usually is with Jim Hart and Mel Gray around.

Gray, who has caught 14 career touchdown passes against the Cowboys, will be on the sidelines with a shoulder injury.

Hart, who has had some of his biggest days in the National Football League against Dallas, also won't play because of a knee injury.

"Gray always made the day more exciting," said Dallas Coach Tom Landry who became frustrated more than once at his team's inability to corral the Cardinal speedster.

Hart will be replaced by rookie Neil Lomax as Coach Jim Hanifan goes with seven new starters against the 10-point favorite Cowboys.

John Floyd has been installed as the starting wide receiver in place of Mark Bell who had replaced Gray.

Also, veteran cornerback Roger Wehrli has been replaced by Tim Collier in another of Hanifan's changes.

While Gray and Hart won't be around for the 3 p.m. kickoff to bedevil the Cowboys, running back Ottis Anderson will.

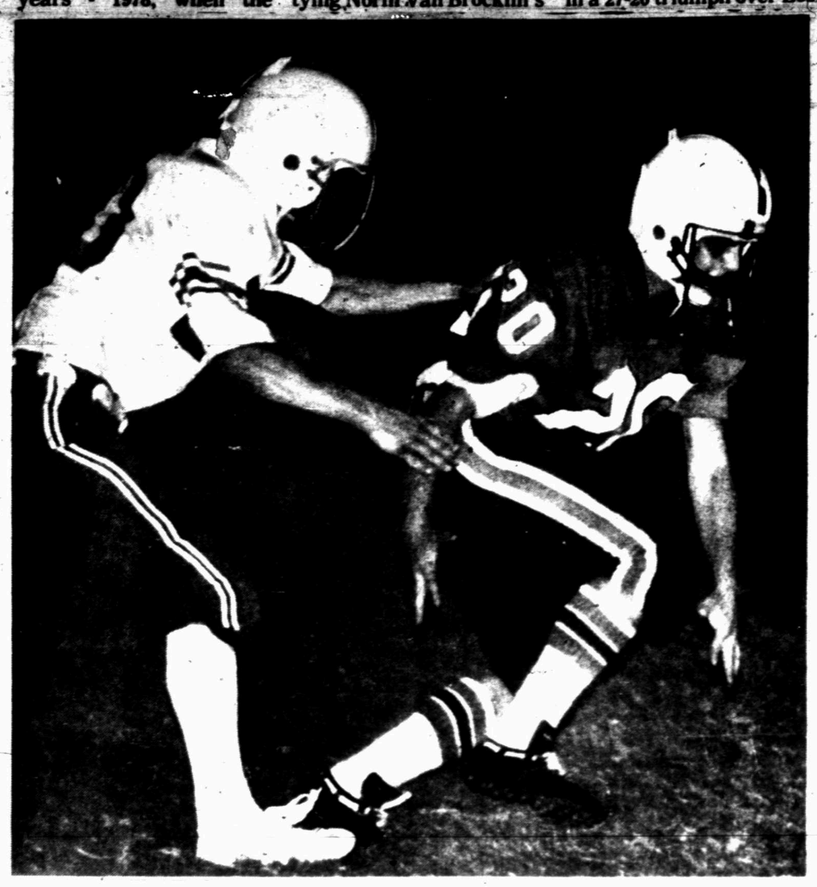

Anderson's best single game performance came against Dallas on Sept. 2, 1979 when he rushed for 193 yards in his pro debut.

He enters the game with 490 yards rushing against Dallas in four games, an average of 122 yards per outing. His average per carry is 6.1 yards and is the only running back to ever gain 100 yards on the ground against Dallas three times in a career.

The Cardinals fell 20-6 to Miami last week and the Cowboys drilled Washington 26-10.

Cedeno Fined

HOUSTON (AP) - Houston first baseman Cesar Cedeno, who charged into the stands at Atlanta Tuesday when a fan called him "killer," was fined $5,000 by National League President Chub Feeney Friday but the league stopped short of suspending the Astros star.

Feeny said that a letter of apology from Cedeno and the mitigating circumstances surrounding his actions had lessened the severity of the NL action.

Coyotes Fall Short To Dawson Dragons

GAIL -- Dawson's Dragons got off to a good start here Friday night and held on to hand Borden County its second defeat of the season, 20-16.

The Coyotes are slated at Wellman next Friday, taking an 8 p.m. kickoff.

Dawson scored the first three touchdowns in the contest, opening the tally in the first quarter as Joel Bennett hit Monte Moore on a 10-yard pass play.

Roy Rivas scored the Dragons' next two TD's on runs of 17 and 60 yards. None of the three PAT tries were successful.

Borden County got on the board late in the second period as Jym Rinehart went over from two yards out. Jr. Benavidez kicked the two-point conversion to give the halftime an 18-8 look.

The Coyotes trimmed the margin to 18-16 in the third stanza when Rinehart broke free on a 30-yard scamper. Again Benavidez put it through the uprights; 18-16.

But the Dawson defense tightened for the remainder of the game, and accounted for a safety when Moore tackled a Coyote player in the end zone.

"We played ball in the second half, but we didn't show up in the first half," said Coach Randy Roemisch, who had little praise for his team's effort.

Dawson, a victor over Hermleigh last week, is 2-0 for the season.

Cats Clout Cardinals

HERMLEIGH -- Kenny Riley led the Hermleigh Cardinals to three touchdowns here Friday night but its was far too short as Wellman's Wildcats rambled to a 63-18 victory.

In other 2-A six-man games held Friday, Borden County fell to Dawson 20-16, Trent ripped Paint Creek 46-0 and Highland drubbed Blackwell 64-16. Scores involving McCaulley and Grady were unavailable. Ira was to play Lueders-Avoca on Saturday.

Wellman got three touchdowns each by Kregg Wellman and Tony Serbantez, two from Casey Bullock and one from Cary Cabe.

Hermleigh, 0-2 on the season, travels to Blackwell (1-1) next Friday at 8 p.m.

Punts That Weren't Are Key To Lee 13-0 Win Over Tigers

MIDLAND -- A couple of would-be punts that never happened turned out to be a winning combination here Friday night as Midland Lee's Rebels sloshed past Snyder High School, 13-0.

Heavy rains -- which began more than two hours before the scheduled 8 o'clock kickoff and scarcely let up throughout the game - made an almost ideal climate for the bigger, more physical Rebels. But though the going was slow and slippery out on the field, the few huddled spectators witnessed an exciting battle.

Midland, favored by as many as 28 points, was unable to exhale a sigh of confidence until midway through the fourth quarter, when heralded running back Calvin Riggs took the snap on an apparent punt and broke for 84 yards and a touchdown. The dash, which accounted for over one-half of Lee's total yardage in the game, gave the hosts a 13-0 advantage - and eventually, the victory.

Snyder fell behind early in the contest. After stopping Midland's opening series near midfield, the Tigers found themselves backed against their own goalline following a Rebel punt.

Coach George Byerly's Cats were unable to advance the possession and also elected to kick, but with less than successful results. Brent Beck's punt attempt was blocked and recovered on the 7-yard line, setting up Midland's first score of the night.

Quarterback Bart Ryan did the honors for the Rebels, crossing over moments later from the 3-yard line with about four minutes gone in the game. Van Gravitt's extra-point kick was good, and the hosts led 7-0.

Though neither team was able to mount much offensively during the game, Lee held the edge with field position throughout the first half. The punting game eventually gave Midland the ball on Snyder's 38 midway through the second quarter, where the longest march of the game began.

With the aid of a 15-yard facemask penalty, the Rebels advanced to the Tiger 22. Two plays later Riggs broke open for seven yards to the Snyder 10 and a first down. The 6-1, 210 athlete netted only one yard on his next carry, and Troy Barber was stopped at the 7-yard line on second down.

Snyder received one of several breaks in the game on the next play. Ryan attempted a pass into the end zone and it was picked off by David Miller, who splashed his way for 64 yards to the Midland 37-yard line. Officials tacked on a facemask penalty to the 23, and suddenly it appeared the visitors had their chance.

But slippery footing and some Rebel stunting combined to stop the Tigers cold. Halfback Mark Shaw gained three yards on first down, but was stopped for a yard loss on second. Quarterback David Nicholson was dropped for a two-yard loss on third, and Snyder elected to try a 39-yard field goal. Those plans went awry however, when the ball slipped out of holder Nicholson's hands. The junior then attempted to pass to Shaw for the yardage, but the ball fell incomplete.

Midland began another drive from its 21, highlighted by a 12-yard carry from Ryan and some short runs by Riggs. The Rebels were caught short however, when time expired in the half.

The heavy rains, estimated at over four inches, caused flooding in throughout the city, though streets to the stadium were generally passable. Only a few well-prepared spectators sat through the deluge, while most remained in their vehicles outside the field or under the stands. The rains also took in another victim. As officials switched on the stadium lights the scoreboard flickered out and the game was played without benefit of a clock.

Midland enjoyed good field position in the third quarter as well. Run-back of a Snyder punt early in the period gave the Rebels a start at the Tiger 29, and Riggs dashed 12 yards on first-and-10 to the 17. Terry Thompson picked up seven yards in two plays on second and third downs, but Lee's fourth-down effort was stopped short at the Snyder 11 and the visitors took over.

The theme continued with Lee enjoying good field position but unable to take advantage of it until Raymond Jeffery broke Snyder out of the hole with an 11-yard carry to the 35 late in the quarter. An 11-yard pass from Beck to Glen Parham gave Snyder its second first-down of the night on the next play, before Lee shut down the Tiger march at the Midland 49.

The Tigers received back-to-back fortunes on the next two plays. A Snyder punt would have driven Midland back to its 20-yard line, but return-man Luther Johnson broke two tackles and turned it up the outside corner where he found only ankle-deep water to slow him down. The speedster actually fumbled the ball near the Snyder 10, but picked it up again and ran over the goal. A clipping penalty wiped out the 80-yard jaunt, however, and set Midland in action on its own 14.

One play later Snyder got its biggest break of the game. A Ryan-to-Riggs handoff missed connections for just a second and the Tigers' Steve Gressett was there break up the play and fall on the football at the 13-yard line.

What appeared to be Snyder's best chance also fell through, though. Jeffery gained two yards on first down, but Beck slipped while making a cut on the next play. A pass from Beck to Parham didn't connect, and on fourth down, Jeffery was stopped two yards short at the Midland 5.

Snyder was able to enjoy better field position through most of the fourth, though it indirectly led to Midland's final touchdown. Both teams had been punting on third down deep in their own territory, and the Rebels used the practice to lull Snyder defenders to sleep.

With about five minutes to go in the game Snyder had Midland backed up to its 16-yard line. Ryan lost a yard on first down and gained it back on second, leading the Rebels to their customary punt on third down.

But this time the snap was to the short man, Riggs, who broke through the line and was into the secondary before Snyder defenders had a chance to recover. The big back, who has been clocked at 4.7 in the 40, quickly pulled away from any would-be tacklers, picking his way past standing pools of water 84 yards for the score. Gravitt's extra-point try was no good, but considering the conditions and the time remaining, Midland's lead was solid at 13-0.

Snyder was able to make a comeback attempt, however. David Delce got the Tigers in motion later as he picked off a Chris Parker pass at the visitor's 29.

From there, Beck hit Miller on a 23-yard toss to the Midland 48 and Parham on an 8-yard pass to the 40. Two more plays brought in three yards before Beck found Miller again, this time for a nine-yard gain.

But time ran out on the Tigers. Beck's final toss fell incomplete just as officials whistled the end of the contest.

Statistically, Midland held only a slight edge in the game. The Rebels had five first downs to Snyder's 4, and 161 yards offense to 104. Snyder had 57 on the ground - 47 by Jeffrey - and 52 through the sky. Midland garnered all of its 161 on the turf. Riggs was the leading ball carrier with 118 yards; 84 on one play.

Says Coach Byerly...

Tigers Fail To Execute

Snyder Coach George Byerly was understandably disappointed after Friday night's 13-0 loss to Midland Lee, but he wasn't making any excuses for the weather.

The constant downpour should have benefitted the bigger running backs of Midland Lee. As it happened however, a blocked punt and a fake punt were what the Rebels used to top the Tigers.

"I don't think it (the weather conditions) really made any difference," said Byerly Saturday morning. "I don't think it would be a very good excuse to say that it did. We don't want to make excuses. We just didn't execute very well."

Midland scored early after blocking a punt at the Snyder 7-yard line, and again in the fourth period on an 84-yard run off of a fake punt.

"That's the second week in a row we've given them (the opponent) a touchdown with our punting game," said the coach. "We just can't afford to do that. We can't afford to get down early in a game like that," he said of the blocked punt.

The faked punt was a combination of inexperience and total surprised.

"We just weren't ready at all," said the coach. "They caught us by complete surprise. They pulled a good one on us. We were asleep."

Next up for Snyder is the District 2-AAAA season, and Friday will find the Tigers against one of the toughest of the lot - Andrews.

"We've played some good teams, but our district will be no let down," said Byerly. "I said before and I do believe we're capable of having a good ballclub, but we're going to have to improve a lot in a very short time. I thought we had some good individual performances last night (Friday), but our team effort was not even up to par. It's certainly not what we have to have to be considered a good football team."

Byerly added that it appeared Snyder had suffered no injuries from the contest. Ross Bawcum went down in the contest, but it was felt Saturday morning he had aggrevated an old ankle injury and would able to resume normal workouts shortly.

Navratilova Upsets Loyd At Open

NEW YORK (AP) - Martina Navratilova broke Chris Evert Lloyd in the eighth and 10th games of the third set to upset the tournament's No.1 seed 7-5, 4-6, 6-4 and advance to the women's final of the U.S. Open tennis championship.

Navratilova, who has never won the Open, will meet Tracy Austin in Saturday's final. Austin advanced with a 6-1, 6-3 victory over Barbara Potter.

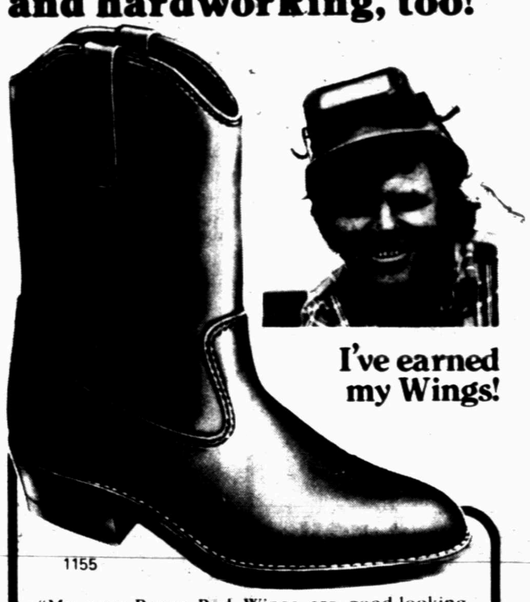

John McEnroe and Peter Fleming captured the men's doubles title when Heinz Gunthardt of Switzerland and Peter McNamara of Australia defaulted.

Three Lead At Classic

SUTTON, Mass. (AP) - Touring pros Curtis Strange, Jack Renner and Denis Watson charged into a tie for the 36-hole lead despite a dramatic bid by an amateur in the $300,000 Pleasant Valley Jimmy Fund Classic.

Young Brad Faxon, a 21-year-old Furman junior, shot a sizzling 66 to move within one stroke of the lead aong with Scott Simpson, Jeff Mitchell, Gavin Levenson and Tommy Valentine at 137.

Lomax completed 14 of 30 passes for 151 yards after Hart was hurt last week.

"Neil did an admirable job," said Hanifan. "He was a little jittery at first, as anyone would be, but he settled down and responded very well."

The Cowboys passed and ran effectively against the Redskins with Tony Dorsett gouging out 132 yards overland and quarterback Danny White throwing two touchdown passes.

Indefinite Halt Called

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — An indefinite halt has been ordered against using small explosions to look for oil in the Beaufort Sea because the activity might threaten the fall migration of the bowhead whale.

The order will affect only exploration allowed under state permit, and will not affect federal permits issued for exploration farther offshore in the same area, near a whaling village about 75 miles from the Canadian border on Alaska's northern coast.

North Slope borough officials threatened to go to court if the state did not halt the exploration, in which sound waves from small explosions are used to form a picture of underground rock formations.

Spawns New Wave Of Consumerism...

Usury Law Changes Prompt High Interest Rates

By The Associated Press

Interest rates being charged Texas consumers for automobile, personal and home improvement loans have soared by more than 10 points — to as much as 24 percent — in the four months since the Legislature approved amendments to the state usury law, an informal survey by The Associated Press shows.

Although the higher rates have made more money available, fewer people are applying for major loans, according to banking officials, who say the rates have spawned a new wave of consumerism.

"People are shopping for loans more than ever before," said Jim Greenwood, a vice president at City National Bank of Austin.

The Associated Press survey of banking institutions in 14 Texas cities disclosed a steep dropoff in the number of home improvement loans being issued by banks and savings and loans and a more modest decline in auto loans.

Maximum rates quoted for a 48-month new car loan ranged from 17.91 percent to 24 percent at major Texas banks. Dealer-financed loans, excluding the current rebate and loan subsidy offers by the nation's Big Three automakers, began at 18 percent.

The least expensive automobile loan was a 14 percent, 48-month loan offered by a Corpus Christi credit union. That's only one-half of one percent more than the 13.5 percent ceiling that was in effect before the usury law was amended.

Personal and home improvement loan rates were even higher, with most banks and savings and loans charging at least 19.5 percent. The highest home improvement interest rate was 24 percent quoted by a bank in Corpus Christi.

The usury law changes have made borrowers "very rate-conscious," said David Richardson, vice president of San Angelo National Bank. He said most loans being issued by San Angelo National are "necessity loans" taken out as a last resort "when a girl's car blows up or somebody's old car is about to lay down."

"The public is quite a bit smarter than the politicians give them credit for," he said. "People don't care where they get a loan but they are very rate-conscious."

Richardson said the new 24 percent usury ceiling "definately has not" increased the bank's loan volume.

Harlingen National Bank executive Vice President David O'Brien agreed.

"The high interest rates aren't helping a little, small-town bank like us," he said. "We'd like to see a little more activity."

Harlingen National charges 18 percent for new car loans and 18 percent for home improvement loans financed for five or more years.

The higher rates have done away with traditional loyalties between depositors and their banks, Richardson said. Several banks said they lend money to longtime customers at the same rate given to a "walk-in" — a borrower who has no funds on deposit with the institution.

"If it's a real good customer and he has real good balances with us, he might get down close to 16 percent (on a car loan)," said Margaret Good, vice president of First National Bank of Mesquite. "But 20 percent is our base, our average."

First National's loan volumes are down across the board, she said.

"We're seeing more people buying only when they need it. You don't see a lot of trade-ins anymore."

The best deals on loans are still at credit unions, the survey showed.

Dick Williamson, vice president of the Texas Credit Union League, said the league's 28 federally chartered and 28 state-chartered credit union members charged an average 15.02 percent on 36- or 48-month automobile loans last month. The average interest rate on unsecured credit union loans was 18 percent, he said.

Rates generally are lower among federally chartered credit unions than among state-chartered unions, he said. Under federal law, a federally chartered credit union can charge no more than 21 percent interest on a consumer loan. A state-chartered union can charge up to 24 percent.

Interest rates also tend to be higher in large urban areas of the state. The Dallas and Fort Worth school system credit unions both charged more than the statewide average of 15.02 percent on auto loans. The Dallas Independent School District credit union quoted a 16 percent rate on new car loans. The Fort Worth Independent School District credit union quoted 17 percent.

"I don't know how long we'll be able to hold this rate," said DISD credit union president Ed Hale. "We may very well have to increase it within a week or two."

At the same time, the survey disclosed few bright spots for credit account customers at major national retail stores in Texas.

The J.C. Penney Co. will raise its credit account interest rate from 18 percent to 21 percent in Texas effective Nov. 1. A spokesman in the company's corporate offices in New York cited "escalating costs and the prime rate," as the reasons for the move.

Montgomery Ward has already increased its finance charge to more than 21 percent and a spokesman for Sears, Roebuck and Co. said its finance charge will be increased to 21 percent next month.

Most Texas-based retail stores charge an 18 percent finance charge on unpaid balances. One, Jones and Jones department store in McAllen, recently increased its charge from 14.75 percent to 21.6 percent.

Dallas-based Neiman-Marcus Co. charges 18 percent interest on accounts of up to $500 and 12 percent above that amount. But company Vice President Bernie Feiwus said those rates may not remain in effect much longer.

"Our rates are an anachronism in Texas," he said. "Sears is going up, Penney's is going up, Montgomery Wards is already up there. An increase is currently being evaluated. We really don't have any choice."

Although most banks contacted said the higher interest rates have cut into their loan volumes, financial institutions in Midland said the town's oil boom economy has fueled an increase in borrowing despite the rate hikes.

William Parker, a spokesman for First National Bank of Midland, said the bank charges 18 percent for new car and home improvement loans.

Midland has the state's highest per capita income, as well as Texas' only authorized Rolls Royce dealership.

"The people here have the money to pay their bills," Parker observed.

Customers at the Midland Teachers Credit Union "didn't bat an eye" when the union increased its new car loan rate to 18 percent, one of the highest credit union rates in the state, said manager Sue Komar. The credit union charges 15 percent interest on loans that are fully secured by savings, a full three points above the statewide average among credit unions.

Even at Midland's Citizens Savings and Loan Co., which charges 20 percent interest on a 48-month new car loan, business has been brisk, a spokesman said.

Village Saves TinyNewspaper

EDON, Ohio (AP) — The little village of Edon isn't Washington, D.C., and its weekly newspaper wasn't as mighty as the Star. But residents considered the Edon Commercial, circulation 750, too important to die.

"It's a mirror of our community. People want to know what other people are doing. They want to read it in the paper instead of hearing rumors and such," said John Toner, president of the Edon State Bank.

A week after Time Inc. announced it would fold the Washington Star, Robert Swope said he had to close the century-old Commercial.

Their situations were similar: Advertisers weren't buying enough space. Production costs were soaring.

Both publishers kept the papers running briefly in case a buyer surfaced. None did in Washington, and the Star ceased publication Aug. 7. One did in Edon, population 950.

"It looked like maybe it was just going to go down, so we decided to take a big gamble," said Lyn Peugeot, who with husband Darrell purchased the paper.

The Chamber of Commerce had organized a town meeting in the village along the Ohio-Indiana line west of Toledo, and at least 30 people voiced support for saving the newspaper.

The Peugeots heard. Both are graduates of Bowling Green State University. Peugeot teaches school and his wife, a former English teacher, figured running a newspaper "would give me a chance to write again."

Besides, if the Commercial folded the town would be left only with a nearby daily newspaper, Mrs. Peugeot said.

The couple bought the paper Aug. 13 and went to work — day and night — to publish their first edition Aug. 19. The purchase price was not available.

They changed the paper from full size to tabloid, recruited volunteer writers and sold ads. Joe Shelton, veteran publisher of the Butler (Ind.) Bulletin, provided the necessary equipment for setting type and some much-needed advice.

"The first thing we learned is you don't have time to sleep and you don't eat," Mrs. Peugeot said, laughing.

"But we're really having fun. We've got five volunteers writing for us and they're just killing themselves to get the news and feature stories. One of our writers, Brian Hinders, could probably write for any paper in the country. He has a real flair."

Shelton agrees, giving the Peugeots and their staff high marks.

"In journalism, there's a right way and a wrong way to do things. They want to do it right and they're working hard at it."

Scurry County Lifestyles

By LINDA HAYGOOD
County Extension Agent
Home Economics

Hello to all Scurry County citizens. This is a small section of your newspaper that is intended to give you up-to-date information on all areas of home economics. These news articles will include topics on health, clothing, nutrition, food preservation, resource management, home furnishings, family life, and others from which your family can benefit. If you ever need more information or have comments on any of the topics, please call the Scurry County Extension Office, 573-5423, and ask for Linda Haygood.

Let's take a look at all those several million brown bags that are going to school this month. What's in them? ----- That lunch that was carefully packed for each child. Lurking in some of those bags, however, may be the "food spoilers" ----- those unseen and unwanted bacteria that can turn a good lunch into a nightmare.

Just a few simple precautions will help you avoid the grief of food borne illness.

The "flu" and food borne illness are often mistaken for each other because the symptoms are similar. If your child comes home with severe headache, diarrhea, vomiting, abdominal cramps and fever after eating, ask your doctor about the possibility of food poisoning.

What can you do to prevent food poisoning? First, cook food thoroughly. If it's meant to be kept hot, keep it hot. If it's meant to be cold, keep it cold.

Use vacuum bottles to keep food hot or cold. Or, put a cold device into the lunch bag. Buy a commercial gel, freeze a small plastic tub of water, or fill plastic bags with ice cubes.

You can freeze certain types of sandwiches, though you may experience some loss in quality. Frozen sandwiches serve double duty: They thaw in time for lunch and help keep the rest of the lunch cool until then. Keep utensils and countertops used to prepare lunches clean, and wash your hands thoroughly before preparing the meal.

Sliced or ground meat or poultry, luncheon meats, sliced roast, cheddar or creamed cheese, pimiento cheese, cooked egg yolks and peanut butter are good items to freeze. Avoid the use of raw vegetables, the white of hard cooked eggs, jellies and mayonnaise or other spreads that would soak into the bread and make it soggy.

Spread the inside of bread with soft butter or margarine. This helps to keep frozen bread from absorbing moisture from the warm air around it. Wrap sandwiches in moisture-vapor proof material.

Using a lunchbox instead of a paper bag may guard against the physical abuse an active child generates. Lunchboxes, especially insulated ones, hold the cold much better than paper bags. Plus, a box is easy to keep clean and sanitary.

Tell your children to keep their lunch in a cool, shady place. Explain the simple steps to food safety: Keep it hot, keep it cold, keep it clean.

Dining On A Flatbed Truck

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Tailgating parties will be springing up in football stadium parking lots again this fall.

The pre-game and post-game tradition of staging picnics in or around an automobile or other vehicle can include exotic, multi-course gourmet meals, complete with silver candelabras, says St. Regis Paper Consumer Products, which makes paper plates and cups.

While most tailgate parties are not much more than simple picnics, some tailgaters have been known to provide entertainment with a baby grand piano on a flatbed truck, the company says.

Couple Wed In Candlelight Ceremony

Janna Kaye Shelton became the bride of David Wayne Burnett on August 7 at eight in the evening at Southside Baptist Church. Reverend M. E. Stevens officiated the double ring candlelight ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Shelton of Monahans and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald W. Burnett of Wink.

As the bride entered the sanctuary, escorted by her father, she presented a single stem burgandy rose and kiss to her mother and after the ceremony, presented a rose and kiss to her new mother-in-law. The couple's mothers lighted the unity candle which was set on a brass candle holder with candles on each side.

The altar was decorated with a fifteen-branch brass arch candelabrum flanked by two matching seven-branch candelabra with fern, greenery, baby's breath and satin bows and two spiral candelabra. Pews were marked with candles, bows and greenery.

Mrs. Nancy McAnally of Midland, organist, and Miss Angie Gibbs, pianist, played traditional wedding selections. Mr. Bill Moss sang "Evergreen" and "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride's father and mother gave her in marriage. She wore a gown of white silk organza with fitted bodice overlaid with Alencon lace and pearls. A high wedding ring neckline featured a sheer net yoke edged with lace. The sheer full bishop sleeves were embraided with Alencon lace and the wide lace cuffs were sprinkled with seed pearls. Tiny covered buttons closed the back of the dress and crystal pleats flowed down the back to form a chapel length train. A two-tiered Juliet cap of scalloped Alencon lace with seed pearls fell into a fingertip veil.

MRS. DAVID BURNETT

She carried a cascade of white silk roses accented with burgundy rosebuds and satin baby's breath entwined with pearls, lace and streamers.

In keeping with tradition, the bride wore a gold watch, a gift from the groom, for something new. For something old, she wore a gold engraved bracelet that belonged to her great-grandmother, Mrs. W. G. Shelton. Something borrowed was a diamond necklace belonging to the groom's mother and something blue was her garter. Her father placed a penny in her shoe.

Mrs. Debbie Enman of Monahans served as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Ms. Sue Zweiger, Ms. Lisa Burnett and Ms. Valarie Ware, all of Monahans. They each wore a formal length gown of deep rose silk organza over taffeta with fitted bodice, scooped neckline and sleeves with slit openings. There was a soft ruffle at the waist. They carried miniature cascades of silk burgundy roses and baby's breath enhanced with matching ribbon. Attendants wore hairpieces of burgundy silk roses.

Emily Perry of Monahans, in a dress identical to those of the bride's attendants, dropped rose petals from a white wicker flower basket with burgundy and white streamers.

The groom's brother, Johnny Burnett, of Monahans, served as best man. Groomsmen were Craig Shelton of Monahans, brother of the bride, Gary Medley of Fort Worth, and Micah Gaza of Odessa. They wore dark burgundy tuxedos with light pink ruffled shirts, wing collars, white bow ties, and burgundy rosebud boutonnieres.

Eric Haynes of Odessa was ring bearer and Darren Shelton, cousin of the bride, of Pecos was rice bagger. Their attire was identical to that of the groomsmen.

The groom wore a white tuxedo with tailed coat complimented by a white ruffled shirt, wing collar, white bow tie, and a burgundy rosebud boutonniere.

The bride's mother wore a floor length gown of rose pink glow knit featuring spaghetti straps, a bodice covered with an embossed design of the same color, and crystal pleated skirt.

The mother of the groom was attired in a floor length gown of cranberry chiffon. It featured a high neckline, full flare sleeves and a soft skirt.

Both mothers wore cymbidium orchid corsages.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the fellowship hall of the church.

Two 15-branch candelabra stood behind the bride's table. It was covered with a burgundy floor length cloth and overlaid with white lace. The table held a silver candelbrum adorned with pink and burgundy silk flowers. Appointments were in silver. The all white three-tiered cake held a fountain of burgandy water surrounded by greenery. It was draped with roses, bows and crystal beads and was separated by white columns, nosegays of deep burgandy silk flowers and greenery on each layer and topped with miniature satin doves and bride and groom. Mrs. Dannie Shelton, aunt of the bride, of Pecos served the cake and Ms. Lou Zweiger poured the punch.

The groom's table was draped with ecru lace over a brown linen cloth which held two silver candelabra surrounded by arrangements of pink baby carnations and baby's breath entwined with English ivy and lemon leaves. The table featured a silver coffee service and chocolate cake decorated with an old car, complete with tin cans with "Just Married," a gift from Mrs. Daisy Smith of McCamey. Mrs. Johnny Burnett, sister-in-law of the groom, served cake and Mrs. Xan Turner, cousin of the bride, served coffee.

For going away, the bride chose a two piece burgundy eyelet sundress with jacket and cymbidium orchid corsage.

After a wedding trip to El Paso the couple will make their home in Wink.

The bride is a 1976 graduate of Monahans High School and holds a degree in X-ray technology from Odessa College.

The groom graduated from Monahans High School and holds a B.S. degree in physical education from Texas Tech University.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Burnett hosted the rehearsal dinner at the Monahans Country Club on August 6. The head table was centered with an arrangement of pink and burgundy carnations done in a topiary design. Candles surrounded with leatherleaf fern were placed on the U shaped table setting. The bride and groom exchanged wedding gifts of gold watches and afterwards were honored with a dance.

Out of town guests at the wedding were from Snyder, San Angelo, Pecos, Best, Kermit, Odessa, Midland, McCamey, Wink, Hobbs, New Mexico, Tishomingo, Mississippi, and Pyote.

time to curb deficit

Budget deficits are getting a lot of attention in Washington, D. C., these days, but we have not heard much about a new law that says Congress must balance the federal budget this year.

Back in 1978, Congress enacted a law requiring that total budget outlays "shall not" exceed total government receipts, beginning with the 1981 fiscal year. A year later, both houses approved another law stating that "Congress shall balance the federal budget" in 1981 and all subsequent years.

The catch is that Congress has the power to violate its own laws with impunity. And that is why some people are working for an amendment to the Constitution requiring a balanced federal budget.

In a little-noticed action last spring, the Senate Judiciary Committee took the first step toward enactment of such an amendment, voting 11-5 to recommend that the full Senate approve the proposal.

The pending legislation still has not been called up for a vote on the Senate floor and a hostile House Judiciary Committee seems determined to thwart any action in that chamber.

To become effective, the measure must be approved by a two-thirds majority in each house of Congress, then ratified by legislatures in three-fourths of the states.

Despite these odds, there are those who believe this proposal's time has come.

Here's how it would work: The amendment would firmly establish a balanced budget as a standard practice by Congress. To provide flexibility in the event of extraordinary circumtances, that provision could be overridden, but only by a three-fifths vote in each house of Congress.

To insure that Congress does not purposely overestimate expected receipts, projected federal income would be allowed to increase at a rate no faster than the growth of the national economy---unless the legislators approve a tax increase.

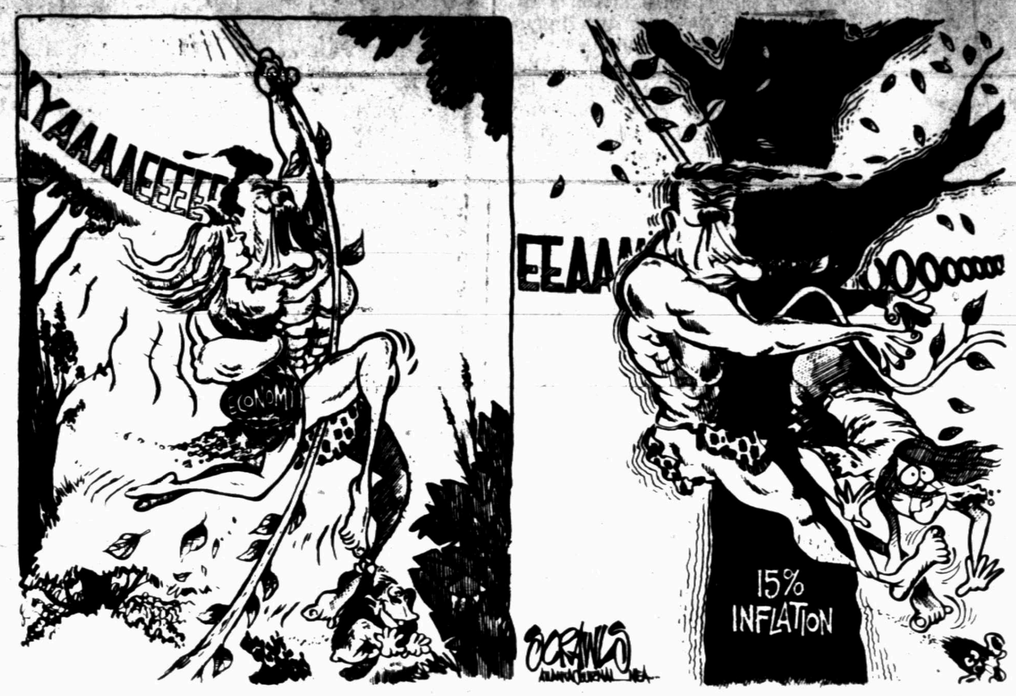

Congress would waive the entire procedure during any fiscal year in which a declaration of war was in effect, but that provision would not apply to undeclared wars such as those fought in Korea and Vietnam.

For 143 years, from, 1789 to 1932, balanced budgets--or end-of-year surpluses---were standard procedure. But the federal government has failed to avoid a deficit in 42 of the past 50 years, and with the exception of 1969, there has been no balanced budget in the last 20 years.

The national debt is due to reach $1 trillion for the first time in history within the next few months.

Critics of the proposed amendment argue that it fails to provide the flexibility that may be needed to deal with unexpected economic crises and that enforcement would pose serious problems. Others fear that congressional ingenuity would lead to unprecedented growth in off-budget expenditures, loan-guarantee programs and other devices specifically designed to evade the constitutional restrictions.

But the unconscionable pattern of deficit spending in recent decades requires drastic action, and a constitutional amendment could provide the solution to a problem that already has become unmanageable.

The teller on Deep Creek says, "The only way to read news out of Washington is while wearing skepticals."

Ronald Reagan surely has his share of critics. But so far we have found little to fault the President or his administration.

We've stated several times that Reagan has the leadership ability and the backbone necessary to bring economic stability back to this country.

Recently we commented how pleased we were that Reagan has stood firm with regard to the illegal strike by air traffic controllers.

We received an unsigned barb this week from some local reader. In a purported campaign letter to Robert Poli, president of the air traffic controllers, Reagan called the state of the air traffic controllers deplorable and he made a pledge to work with the controllers to update equipment and adjust staff levels.

Handwritten on the letter was "Typical Republican Vote Getting Tactic."

No doubt that Reagan will fail to keep all campaign promises, if he indeed made this one. But we already see one loophole in the argument that he broke a promise:

The letter said he pledged to cooperate and work with air traffic controllers. When they walked off the job, they were no longer employees and he didn't agree to cooperate with lawbreakers.

We have often contended that presidents, both Republicans and Democrats, sometimes get poor advice on which to base decisions.

One of Reagan's economic advisers just this week suggested that restrictions be placed on income tax interest deductions.

With interest rates staying above the 20 percent level, allowed interest deductions should be increased, not decreased. The present $10,000 per year simply isn't in tune with the times.

Also, another way to stimulate the economy and to help balance the budget with increased productivity would be to make dividends deductible to the paying corporation.

This would help make more capital dollars available and possibly decrease the heavy demand for credit which currently is keeping the interest rates high.

Employees In Pakistan Fired

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — The government says it is firing 802 employees of its population planning department in a bid to end a staff explosion in the national birth control program.

The announcement Thursday said those being fired were found unsuitable by a civil service commission or had refused to take examinations required for temporary employment. It did not say how many people remained in the department.

BALTIMORE (NEA)—The Reagan administration's "new federalism" requires states and cities to start helping themselves and to stop relying on the federal government.

This idea has met with no small measure of sketpicism-especially among big-city mayors, who doubt that their communities can survive without the continued substantial involvement of the federal government.

On their next trip to Washington, the doubting mayors might detour 40 miles to the north to visit Baltimore's National Aquarium, a spectacular new attraction built without a cent from the U.S. treasury.

The aquarium is the capstone to Baltimore's Inner Harbor project, which over the past 10 years has transformed an area of rundown warehouses into one of this country's more glorious examples of urban renewal.

The ultra-modern aquarium soars 200 feet above the old Pier 3. Eventually it will house more than 5,000 fish, birds and mammals. Visitors travel through its exhibits on escalators that rise from the dolphin pool on the main level to the glass-roofed Amazon rain forest at the top of the structure.

"We looked at every major aquarium in the world while we were designing this one," says Kathy Cloyd, a National Aquarium official, "and we feel we have taken the best of what we have seen and combined it here. This is absolutely the state of the art."

The financing of the aquarium is as interesting as its architecture and exhibits, for it provides a textbook example of cooperation between a city's public and private sectors.

The city fathers saw the need for a major tourist attraction to be the centerpiece of their new Harborplace. Mayor William Schaefer and others hit upon the idea of an aquarium and set out to build what they called "the best that has ever been built."

The cost of the structure was first estimated at $16 million. The city had $8 million in the bank from the sale of a large parcel of land; a bond issue provided another $8 million. But as plans for the aquarium were upgraded, the construction cost rose to $22 million.

So, the city set out to persuade the Baltimore business community of the value of the project. The balance of the construction funds was obtained from businesses and private foundations.

For years the Smithsonian had been lobbying Congress for money to build a new aquarium in Washington as part of the National Zoo. But Maryland congressmen instead got their colleagues to designate the Baltimore attraction "The National Aquarium in Baltimore" although no federal money had been used in its construction.

"We are much more than simply an exhibit," says Ms. Cloyd. "We are a major educational and research facility. As we become better established financially, we will begin to stress these functions more."

Once the structure was built, the city turned day-to-day operations over to the Baltimore Aquarium Inc., a not-for-profit corporation. Operating costs-about $2.5 million for the first year-will be met through admission fees ($4.50 for adults and $2.50 for children) and through foundation and corporate grants.

Part of the fund-raising effort is the "Aquadopt" program, which enables a corporation or an individual to "adopt" a marine creature. Prices range from $3,000 for a shark down to $15 for an angelfish, a rock crab, a purple sea urchin or one of 100 other specimens.

The National Aquarium is a sight not to miss if you visit the Washington-Baltimore area. It is not only a fascinating attraction but a monument to what a community can achieve without help from Washington.

Today is Grandparents' Day.

It's one of life's rewards for surviving your own children.

Grandparenthood rarely comes at a perfect time of your life. Either you're too young for it or too old.

Some grandparents see grandchildren as a chance to correct the mistakes they made the first time around. Others view it as a twilight zone where you can love them when they're dry and fed...send them back when they're wet and hungry. Others relish being a spectator as they watch their prophecy materialize, "Just wait till you have children of your own!"

Perhaps the saddest words in all the world are, "I never knew my grandparents." It's good to remember that in a time when marriages dissolve and the grandparents are dismissed without notice or feeling. Grandparents contribute a special relationship to a child that no one else can give them.

At least ten years ago I wrote a job description for grandparents that bears repeating.

What is a grandparent?

They can always be counted upon to buy anything you're selling...from all-purpose greeting cards to peanut brittle...from flower seeds to cookies...from transparent tape to ten chances on a pony.

A grandparent buys you gifts your mother says you don't need.

A grandparent pretends he doesn't know who you are on Halloween.

A grandparent will put a sweater on you when she is cold, feed you when she is hungry and put you to bed when she is tired.

A grandparent will frame a picture of your hand that you traced over the brocade sofa in the Mediterranean living room.

A grandparent will check to see if you are crying when you are sound asleep.

A grandparent is the only babysitter who doesn't charge money to keep you.

A grandparent will believe you can read when you have the book upside down.

When a grandchild says, "Grandma, how come you didn't have any children?" a grandparent will fight back the tears.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If things don't go as smoothly as you'd hoped they would today, owing to the interference of another, don't take your wrath out on innocent bystanders.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Today, instead of doing what you feel serves your best interest, you may buckle under in order to appease a domineering associate. Be your own person.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Sometimes you're quite good at rooting out bargains, but today there's a chance you could pay far more for things than they are truly worth.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Be flexible today rather than take rigid positions. You might find yourself in a spot where your pride won't let you back off, even if you're wrong.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your actions will be closely scrutinized by your peers today. Don't do anything to tarnish your image, or give one who isn't too fond of you fodder for gossip.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) There's a possibility you could cross swords with someone today who holds strong views diametrically opposed to yours. Don't let the debate get too heated.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Be extra-careful in business or investment situations today. This is not a time to impulsively jump in without first probing for more facts.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You might have to be extra careful today, or get caught up in another's complicated money problems. This person would just love to unload them on someone else.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Select companions wisely today. There are those who would think nothing of leaving you holding the bag if they get into a jam.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) It won't do any good to get angry at someone who promised to do a favor for you, but forgot. By remaining calm you'll think of ways to readjust the situation.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Because you don't think twice about assisting others you feel everyone is like you. They're not, so be on guard today for a manipulator who might try to take advantage of you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) A member of your household has some selfish motive for his or her actions today. Don't let this person do anything at the expense of another family member.

Add Zest With Peachy Relish

One of the easiest ways to add surprise and interest to a menu for company is to serve a delicious and appropriate relish as one of the accompaniments to the main course.

However, high-quality embellishments of this sort cost so much these days they sometimes seem beyond reach. Fortunately it is easy to concoct your own fine relishes at reasonable cost.

Here, for example, is a recipe for a fresh peach chutney that is delectable served with any sort of curry; with fried, broiled, roasted or steamed chicken; with roast duck or turkey or turkey parts; with panfried, or roasted Rock Cornish game hens; with roast lamb or veal; with steamed, broiled, baked or pan-fried fish.

You don't have to bother processing this chutney because the recipe is a small-batch one. You can store it in the refrigerator.

Although this chutney is an attractive color that is on the light side, appropriate for its fresh peach base, it does call for a dark ingredient — Worcestershire sauce. We've been putting that condiment into chutney for some years because tamarind is one of the ingredients of the original Worcestershire sauce. Tamarind is the fruit of the tamarind tree and it helps give the chutneys from East India their great flavor. But fresh tamarinds, for many of us, are hard to obtain. So we hit on adding the Worcestershire to help take their place.

PEACH CHUTNEY

4 pounds ripe peaches
1 cup chopped (medium-fine) onion
1 cup golden raisins
1½ cups sugar
1 cup distilled white vinegar
2 tablespoons chopped preserved ginger
1½ teaspoons salt
¼ cup Worcestershire sauce

Peel peaches; remove pits and cut into 1-inch cubes (makes 2 quarts). In a 4- to 6-quart saucepot stir together the peaches, onion, raisins, sugar, vinegar, ginger, salt and Worcestershire sauce. Bring to a boil; simmer, uncovered, stirring often (especially toward end of cooking period) until thick — 1 to 1¼ hours. Cool. Store in a covered container in the refrigerator. Let flavors blend and mellow for several days before serving. Makes about 5 cups.

Wash a dog's paws with warm water and baking soda to neutralize salt or other chemicals that have been spread on the street.

APPROACHING NUPTIALS—Mr. and Mrs. Louis Beuerlien of Snyder announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Anne Elizabeth, to Monte Carl Clanton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Royce Clanton of Fairbanks, Alaska. The couple will exchange vows on Saturday, October 10 at four in the afternoon at Saint Elizabeth's Catholic Church.

Fred Karpin of Washington, D.C., has been a prolific bridge writer for a long time. In addition, he has been compiling hands from tournament and rubber play for 50 years. Back in 1972, he wrote a book called "The Drawing of Trumps and its Postponement" that has just been published.

We consider this to be an outstanding book for everyone from beginner to expert. Karpin starts by listing the five cases where declarer should postpone the drawing of trumps. They are:

1. Where it is imperative to use his or dummy's trumps to ruff out losers.
2. Where it is imperative for declarer to establish a winner or winners for the discard of one or more losers.
3. Where a trump entry is required in dummy in order to cash some of dummy's high cards.
4. Where it is vital that dummy's and declarer's trumps be used as lines of communication in order to assure the cashing of cards in one of dummy's suits that must be established first.
5. Where "more pressing business" necessitates that the drawing of trumps be deferred.

Today's hand illustrates No. 1. A trump lead would beat the slam but a club is opened. South must ruff, play ace and another heart, ruff a second club and his last heart and then lead trumps.

Succession Plan Essential

NEW YORK (AP) — The major stockholder or chief executive officer in many small businesses often doesn't know when to let go of the reins.

"A succession plan is essential," said Donald Ambuhl, vice president, American Association of Advertising Agencies.

"In the advertising business, people are the stock-in-trade. People able to succeed present management are essential. Immortality has not yet been achieved by any agency people I know," Ambuhl said.

Do not attempt to light with match. Simply turn key on wall by the door.
The use of Electricity for lighting is in no way harmful to health, nor does it affect the soundness of sleep.

We Americans have always been determined and resourceful people — determined to build a better life for ourselves, and resourceful in controlling the hazards involved. From the Mayflower to the Columbia space shuttle, that's the way we've been — cautious, but not easily scared.

Every new technology we've developed has been frightening to some: steamships, automobiles, even the cotton gin, and electricity itself.

Some people still think of nuclear power that way. They're afraid that using one of our most plentiful and inexpensive energy resources involves uncontrollable hazards and unacceptable risks. In fact, it does not.

We're already using nuclear fuel equivalent to about 1.2 million barrels of imported oil daily to generate electricity. In 24 years of commercial nuclear operation, there has never been a nuclear-related injury to any member of the public. That's a record few if any industries have ever matched. It demonstrates clearly that generating electricity with nuclear fuel is at least as safe as doing it any other way.

We routinely accept other risks that are many times more dangerous, because we have become accustomed to them. Just being 30 pounds overweight is at least a 450-times-bigger risk than generating all our electricity with nuclear fuel.

At your electric company, we need to use nuclear fuel to help generate the electricity you use. We're convinced the risk is acceptable. Nuclear energy is essential, if future generations are to enjoy as good a life as we do now.

Life Expectancy Reductions

| Activity or Risk | Days Off Your Life |
|---|---|
| Cigarette smoking (1 pack a day) | 1,600 |
| Being 30 pounds overweight | 900 |
| One diet drink per day (saccharin) | 2 |
| All-nuclear electricity | 0.04-2* |

*Government scientists estimate 0.04, nuclear critics estimate 2.

Teamster Leader To Stand Trial

CHICAGO (AP) — Teamsters Union President Roy Lee Williams and four other men will stand trial March 15 on charges of conspiring to bribe a U.S. senator.

Defense attorneys had asked for a year-long delay to give them time to listen to 2,097 reels of tape gathered by the government in a 15-month investigation, but U.S. District Judge Prentice H. Marshall denied the request Wednesday.

The defendants were indicted by a federal grand jury last May. They were accused of promising Sen. Howard W. Cannon, D-Nev., exclusive rights to buy a tract of land near Cannon's home and the Las Vegas Country Club. Cannon was not charged, and Williams called the charges a "lie."

Manure Corsages Marketable Item

CONTOOCOOK, N.H. (AP) — A rose by any other name would smell as sweet, but how about a manure corsage?

Carol Breault is selling them, and if business at the Hopkinton Fair last week was any indication, she has a money-maker.

About 150 people at the fair paid $4.50 for the manure corsages, which came with a simulated pearl corsage pin and a 12-page booklet titled "The Gross National Product."

"That's what I call creative waste management," said Harold Dow, a farmer from Pittsfield. "Take something you have to throw out anyhow, put a steep price on it and stand back and let the people buy it. Why didn't I think of it?"

Ms. Breault, a 38-year-old Phi Betta Kappa graduate of the University of New Hampshire, said her favorite part of the business is watching customers' reactions.

"I may never get rich selling this, but it is a lot of fun," she said.

She said her neighbors in Concord just shook their heads as she and her partner, Nancy Jarvis, manufactured the corsages last summer.

"I felt like a witch, mixing manure and wood fibers in a big cooking pot," said Ms. Breault, a former elementary school teacher. "Then we'd make patties, squish out the water and have a thousand little piles drying in the driveway."

Sonny Hays Gets Stay Of Execution

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — A one-month stay of execution has been granted to Thomas Lee "Sonny" Hays after his mother pleaded before a federal judge that Hays is mentally incompetent.

Hays, who has said he does not want to appeal his death sentence, was scheduled to be executed next Monday and become the first person in the United States to die by legal drug injection. He was convicted of murdering a Muskogee cobbler in March 1977.

Iola Hays told U.S. District Judge Luther Bohanon her 49-year-old son had been committed to state mental institutions "three or four times" in the late 1960s and early 1970s. Bohanon issued the stay after the hearing on Tuesday.

In 1942, the French fleet was scuttled at Toulon during World War II to avoid German capture.

SHS Actor In UT Workshop

Jack O'Banion, son of Dr. and Mrs. J. W. O'Banion Jr., 2712 32nd St., has returned from summer studies at the 19th annual University of Texas Theatre Workshop.

One of the largest and most respected workshops in the country, the session lasts five weeks and is made up of top ranking junior and senior students from across the state.

While in Austin, young O'Banion was under the direction of Lynn Murray, state drama director for the University Interscholastic League. Robert Singleton, drama director at the High School for Performing Arts in Houston, and Kim Wheetley, drama consultant from the Texas Education Agency in Austin, were also among faculty members under whom he studied.

He played the role of Patrick in a production of "Auntie Mame," under direction of Prof. Ruth Denny of the University of Texas faculty. Mrs. Denny is well known across the United States for her ability to challenge young actors and for the number of students under her direction who have gone on to outstanding professional careers in the performing arts.

At Snyder High School, O'Banion has played feature roles in "Macbeth," "Finian's Rainbow," "Midsummer Night's Dream," "Our Town," "Royal Hunt of the Sun," and "Yuletide Follies." In last season's one-act play competition, he was selected as Best Actor by judges at every level of competition from zone to the state contest.

He is currently enrolled in his senior year at Snyder High School and has recently been cast in the drama department's upcoming fall production of "Dracula." He is also enrolled in a solid academic curriculum at SHS and is a member of the Honor Roll and the National Honor Society. His hobby is flying and he recently passed all the necessary qualifications and has received his pilot's license.

Husband, Wife Serve In City Manager Jobs

EDINBURG, Texas (AP) — When City Manager Aaron Lam comes home after a day of headaches over street drainage, city commission meetings and tax rates, his wife easily can sympathize.

She likely has handled the same frustrations 10 miles away in her office as city manager of the small town of San Juan.

Aaron and Wai-Lin Lam could be the only pair of city managers in the country who also are husband and wife.

They were born and grew up in Hong Kong but met as graduate students in Stillwater, Okla., while planning a party for the Foreign Students Association at Oklahoma State University.

They have been at their respective positions less than a year. They talked about their careers and lifestyles during separate interviews because hectic schedules prevented a joint session.

"When my wife was named city manager in San Juan recently, everyone called me to congratulate us," said Lam, 34. "I told them, 'I wish one of us had a stable job.'"

City managers serve at the pleasure of elected officials but neither of the Lams say they're too concerned about job security.

They have other things to worry about, like finding a babysitter and spending time with each other and their 3-year-old son, Ranger.

"This job is really a minus as far as a family life," Lam said. "I normally have two to three night meetings."

His wife agrees.

"I work at least 10 to 12 hours a day, not counting if I take things home to read," she said. "One year we took separate vacations back to Hong Kong because we couldn't coordinate it."

Despite their similar duties, the Lams said they do not trade municipal secrets at home.

"Every so often, we talk philosophically about how to approach a problem but because of ethics, we don't say, 'I'm having this specific problem,'" he said. "I feel like I work as hard as anybody else and I turn it off when I come home."

Lam likes to read at home and his wife enjoys piano playing.

The switch from the crowded metropolis of Hong Kong to the slow pace of South Texas has been a relief, they said.

When his parents visited from the British colony two years ago, they were amazed at the low population density, he said.

"Downtown Edinburg is like a rural area outside Hong Kong," he said. "The tallest building here is two or three stories high."

Both moved from Hong Kong to get an education.

"I came from a family of seven brothers and sisters. My parents always emphasized education," said Mrs. Lam, who has a doctorate in environmental design from Texas A&M University. Her speciality is urban planning.

Her father and eldest brother run an import-export business in Hong Kong. The rest of the family lives in the United States, Canada or England.

She studied sociology at the University of Tulsa and planned to get a masters in the subject at Oklahoma State. A classmate suggested she investigate urban planning. She switched majors and proposed the same field to her husband-to-be.

"The sociology background is good for me," said Mrs. Lam, 35. "Without that I don't know if planners look into human behavior enough."

Her husband received an undergraduate degree in biochemistry and mathematics from the University of Alberta in Edmonton, Canada.

"My wife opened my eyes to it (urban planning.) I decided I knew a lot about some things but I didn't know a single thing about getting along with people," he said.

As graduate students at A&M, both served internships in city planning departments in the Rio Grande Valley.

They married in Houston nine years ago and soon returned to the Valley, a three-county region with many small towns.

"That's why we ended up staying here as long as we have. If we go to another big city, we're not going to get two jobs of the same type as easily," she said.

The Lams discussed potential career conflicts before they married.

"We talked about it," he said. "We'll just deal with each decision by itself and we know there are going to be many compromises."

Mrs. Lam said eventually she would like to teach college. She has given seminars at Pan American University, a four-year state college here.

"I told myself I would work 10 years before I taught," she said. "The professional ought to have working experience to see how theory works in the real world."

She worked for the Lower Rio Grande Valley Development Council for four years and the nearby city of Weslaco four years before starting as San Juan city manager in August.

San Juan counts 7,800 residents, including many migrant farmworkers. The United Farmworkers, AFL-CIO, has state headquarters here. The city has a low tax base and an annual budget of approximately $1,345,000.

"The biggest problem is improvements to the water system and drainage," she said. "Only a few streets are unpaved but the city only started putting in curbs and gutters in 1976."

The town's biggest attraction is the Roman Catholic shrine of The Virgin of San Juan, a modern structure built mostly with small donations from migrant farmworkers.

Edinburg is the Hidalgo County seat.

Lam said the city has unique problems, in addition to the low income population and drainage problems common to most Valley towns.

"We have a night time population of 24,000 but there are 42,000 who work here. You're producing services for 42,000 based on a tax base of 24,000. It's very challenging," he said.

The Lams applied for official immigrant status after finishing college. They are not United States citizens but that will come eventually, they say.

Ranch Day Slated At Ranching Heritage Center

LUBBOCK—Ranch Day 1981 at the Ranching Heritage Center here on Sept. 19 is expected to draw a record crowd, and when Snyder area residents arrive, they may well stand in awe of what their community and county helped accomplish.

Alton G. Davis, executive vice president and general manager of the Ranching Heritage Association, which supports the center, has pointed out that some of the center's most popular attractions were gifts from Scurry County residents.

"The Harrell House, given by Myrtle and Faye Harrell, is so much like home that most visitors call it a favorite," Davis said. "Everybody is fascinated by the Edith Whatley McKanna Parlor in the orientation center, and Cogdell's General Store is a place almost all visitors browse before they leave. The store, made possible by gifts from Jonisue Cogdell Stiff, offers books and arts and crafts of Western America and is operated by the association with proceeds going to support the work of the RHA."

The C. T. McLaughlin Endowment Fund, established by Jean McLaughlin Kahle and the Diamond M Foundation, honors Mrs. Kahle's late father who was once a member of the Texas Tech University Board of Directors. The fund helps provide cultural and educational programs.

The Ranching Heritage Center of the Museum of Texas Tech University is an outdoor exhibit of more than a score of authentically restored ranch structures that depict the history of ranching in the American West. It draws tens of thousands of visitors annually and they come from throughout the world.

Harold P. "Bo" Brown Jr., president of the Ranching Heritage Association and a former Scurry County resident, said the RHA is appreciative of every large gift to the center, but the Snyder residents have given much more—"they have given of themselves."

"The first area unit of the Ranching Heritage Association was formed in Snyder in 1969," he pointed out. "The enthusiasm, the know-how and the support the association has had from that area has made a world of difference in the success of the museum.

"Scurry County people helped us get started. They helped make a success of the Bicentennial celebration in 1976. They have worked to make every Ranch Day an event to remember. They took a major part in the first National Golden Spur Award and Prairie Party which is our biggest annual event now.

"It's a fair statement that if it hadn't been for the Scurry County residents, the Ranching Heritage Center would not exist as it does today," Brown said. "There is just no way to estimte the value of what the Scurry County group has contributed."

The annual Ranch Day centers upon the annual meeting of the Ranching Heritage Association, which had its kickoff on Sept. 20, 1969 in Snyder. Elizabeth Connell, member of the association's Board of Overseers and a member also of the first Ranch Headquarters Committee, coordinated the affair, but insists that "everyone in Snyder helped and I wish there was some way we could thank each person who volunteered their help and always responded so generously when called on."

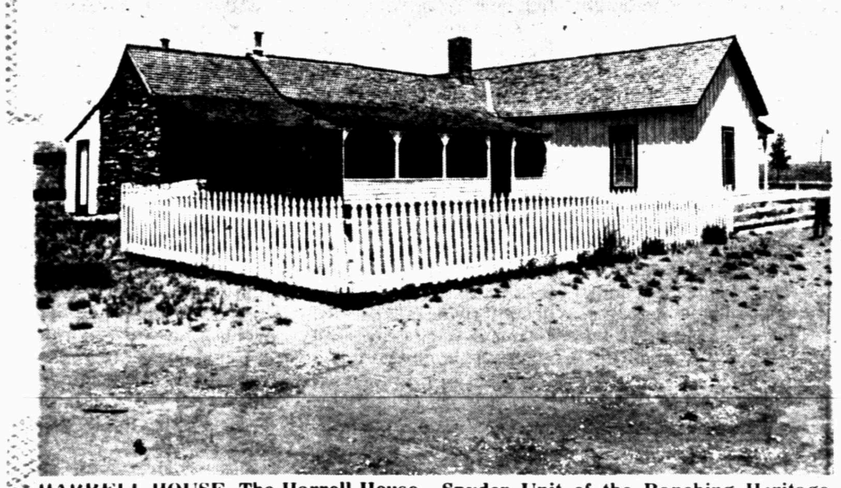

On hand that first day were ranching families, the Ranch Headquarters committee, Texas Tech's president, Dr. Grover Murray, representatives of civic and social oganizations and the Chamber of Commerce. Co-hostesses for the luncheon for out-of-town guests were Faye and Myrtle Harrell, Ophelia Blackard, Mrs. Connell and Mrs. McKanna.

As the ranching museum began to take shape, the Snyder unit of the Ranching Heritage Association set about helping furnish the first buildings moved to the site and the community responded with many gifts. Since the Harrell House had been given fully furnished, the Snyder group took as a special project the box-and-strip house. Mrs. W. D. Sims' garage was a collection point, and she donated a two-eyed woodburning stove from the Sims Turkey Track Ranch. Other items donated include an iron bedstead from Mrs. Josephine Randals, a white crock pitcher from Mrs. Whit Thompson, a wagon stay chain from Buddy Burmet of Fisher County, patent medicine bottles from G. A. Parks Jr., a Ray-O Lamp from Mrs. Billy Huddleston, a wash stand from Mrs. McKanna, a wash bowl and pitcher from Mrs. Blackard and a cedar water bucket, chaps and other items from Myrtle and Faye Harrell.

Mrs. Sims kept scrapbooks which now provide valuable background information on those early-day activities. The Snyder unit also worked to preserve local ranching history through the publication of two booklets, "First Cattlemen on th Lower Plains of West Texas" and "Early Ranching and Water Sources in West Texas," edited by T. D. Cramer and Aline Parks.

The list of those who aided goes on and on and prompted Dr. James Goss, interim director of the Tech Museum, to say, "In the short time I have been at the museum, I have seen that Scurry County and the area has in the past and still is adding that touch of historic reality throughout the Ranching Heritage Center."

A chuckwagon breakfast at 10:30 a. m. will be a feature of the Ranch Day scheduled Sept. 19. Tickets are $6 each and may be ordered by writing the Ranching Heritage Association at Box 4499, Lubbock 79409. Activities will continue until 4:30 p.m.

HARRELL HOUSE--The Harrell House, which began about 1881 as a rock room in Scurry County, was one of the first buildings moved to the site of the Ranching Heritage Center in Lubbock. The Snyder Unit of the Ranching Heritage Association provided funds for moving it to its new location after it was donated by Mrytle and Faye Harrell.

BOX AND STRIP--Another early arrival at the outdoor ranching museum was a three-room box and strip house from C. C. Slaughter's Long S Ranch. The Snyder Unit of the Ranching Heritage Association helped provide furnishings for the house, including the bedroom pictured here.

Last season's programs included two performances by the WTC drama department, the Texas Little Symphony from Fort Worth, pianist William Westney from Texas Texas University, and 'SMUsic, a music group from Southern Methodist University.

Two productions by the WTC drama department are also on the new schedule, with two additional programs to be announced at a later date.

The limited budget of the Fine Arts Association does not permit famous artists to be booked, but there are many fine artists available through colleges and universities throughout the Southwest, Association spokesmen point out.

Since seating in the Fine Arts Theatre is limited to 165 persons, persons interested in association memberships are encouraged to act promptly.

Why gas is plentiful:

Two New Sources

There's enough natural gas in proven and existing reserves to heat America's homes and run its factories for many years. And now gas is flowing in enormous volumes from two new sources: the tight basins and the deep basins right here in Texas and Oklahoma. Experts believe each of these sources could double the nation's proven supply. And our pipeline system will let us deliver your share of this gas efficiently and economically. It's another reason to be glad you're served by the Lone Star system.

Gas. It's plentiful, efficient and right for the times.

Scrabble Inventor Knew He Had Winning Game

STANFORDVILLE, N.Y. (AP) — Fifty years ago, 32-year-old Alfred M. Butts invented a game that has made minding one's p's and q's an international rage.

Butts was never to create another game. Looking back, he says, "I had Scrabble, and I knew I couldn't do anything better. So why bother?" Scrabble is an eight-letter word for an adult board game that requires a good vocabulary, some tactical skill, and a fair amount of luck.

To millions who play in the English, German, Italian, Spanish, French, Russian, Hebrew and even Braille editions, Scrabble eclipses the crossword puzzle, dims the anagram and excels the cryptogram. Butts put it all together from lumberyard molding, blueprints and some Yankee inventiveness.

"I was an architect in New York City when the Depression hit," says this dapper, 82-year old native of Poughkeepsie, N.Y. "I had been doing country houses for rich people, but suddenly no one had any money and I had no work. So I thought I would make a game to make money."

With architectural precision, Butts began to analyze three basic types of games: board games, number games and word games.

"I didn't think I could make any improvements on chess, and there were already enough number games like dice, cards and bridge. But in word games, anagrams was about it."

After settling on a word game, Butts painstakingly undertook to determine how frequently letters recurred in words. From counting letters in articles in The New York Times, he determined which letters should appear most frequently in his game.

"Lexico" appeared in 1931. The 100-tile game sold for $1.50 and was played by discarding and picking up, as in cards, until a word was formed. Tiles were worth one point and there was no board.

Anyone who wanted to own a set of Lexico called Butts. He built the sets from tiny blocks of wood, blueprints (for the blue numbers printed on the tiles) and wood moldings. Butts says he took the idea of small tiles held by "racks" from the Chinese game of mah-jongg.

Business was minimal at first — mostly among relatives, friends and neighbors.

In the next two years Scrabble continued to evolve under the name of Lexico, but the game was rejected by a succession of toy companies.

"They weren't interested at all," he says. "I suspect they were only interested in games for the kids at Christmas. Make them and forget them."

"I knew the important games were for adults. But they weren't interested," he recalls.

He changed the game again, added the board and tried to sell it as "Criss Cross Words" in 1936, but the toy industry said, in Butt's words, "nothing doing."

While Criss Cross Words languished, the building business began to boom. Butts abandoned games to return to architecture, designing housing developments in New York City.

After making the rounds of Butts' family and acquaintances, the game eventually came to the attention of a Danbury, Conn., bookseller. Butts says he was so disenchanted by this time that he agreed to have the game marketed in the bookstore on condition that the owner would produce the sets himself, with a small royalty to Butts.

It was in that bookstore that James Brunot, a New York City businessman, saw the game and decided he wanted it for what Butts called "his little business in the country."

Brunot tossed around a number of names for the game but the evolution of the word "Scrabble" is a mystery to Butts.

"At the time, it seemed strange. But now when we say Scrabble, we think of, well, Scrabble," Butts says.

Brunot built Scrabble sets from his home at the rate of about 200 a week for two years.

Butts says "word of mouth" led to a Scrabble boom, and Brunot opened a small plant. He also spruced up the looks of the game, switching from the block-style tiles to the smooth German-produced tiles that are used today.

In 1949, Brunot and Butts sold the game, for an undisclosed sum, to the Selchow & Righter Co.

Broadcasts May Surprise Foreign Sailors

HONOLULU (AP) — If they were monitoring local radio broadcasts, Russian sailors aboard four Soviet ships near Hawaii may have been surprised to hear some messages in their native language.

With a Chet Atkins recording of "The Red, White and Blue Medley" twanging in the background, a local radio station on Thursday broadcast such messages in Russian as "Mamas, don't let your babies grow up to be comrades," and "Congratulations, you've just placed last in the 1981 Transpac yacht race."

The announcements were the idea of KDEO Station Manager Ron Jacobs, who said many listeners had called to suggest patriotic songs the station could play while the Soviet ships were within broadcast range. The radio station bills itself as "the westernmost country station in the United States of America."
