Government to buy more market crude

By J.P. SMITH
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The United States government will soon start buying large amounts of crude oil on the world market for the first time and is considering buying it directly from other governments — including Saudi Arabia's — rather than the major oil companies.

The oil companies are suspicious of direct government-to-government oil deals. For one thing, they would stand to lose some profits if shut out of the transactions. They also dislike anything suggesting even remotely that the government might somehow get into the oil business.

The government is preparing to buy crude for a proposed 1-billion-barrel strategic petroleum reserve as protection in the case of any future oil embargo.

President Carter currently has authority to buy 500 million barrels of oil for the reserve by 1980, and has proposed doubling this. Under Federal Energy Administration plans the government will start buying oil later this month, and will be buying up to 1 million barrels of crude a day for the reserve by next year.

The government buys large amounts of refined petroleum products from the oil companies — gasoline, for example — but has never bought crude on this scale.

The idea of buying oil directly from other governments has not been discussed in detail with any producing country, U.S. officials say. But Tom Noel, head of FEA's reserve program, says, "We will explore any possibility for a bilateral (government-to-government) agreement with any government which would result in lower acquisition costs."

Moreover, President Carter's principal energy adviser, James R. Schlesinger Jr., is known to have raised the question of a possible direct oil buy with Saudi Crown Prince Fahd in sensitive private talks during Fahd's recent state visit here.

Saudi Oil Minister Sheikh Zaki Yamani indicated through a variety of channels before Fahd's visit that the Saudis wanted to discuss a supply arrangement for the strategic reserve, according to one official.

Fahd himself said in an interview before his U.S. visit, "We are prepared to participate in building up the U.S. strategic oil reserve in order to safeguard the future of industry and civilization the U.S."

Schlesinger briefed Fahd and Saudi Foreign Minister Saud al-Faisal and other Saudi officials on the reserve program. The Saudis, according to one official did not respond directly, but have invited Schlesinger to hold talks on energy questions, including the oil stockpile, later this year in Saudi Arabia.

The Saudis have the world's largest oil reserves, and now produce 10 million barrels of oil a day. They can increase production to 13 million barrels a day by 1978, and 16 million barrels a day by the 1980's.

One oil-company executive with long experience in the Middle East said if the Saudis eventually agree to participate in the strategic reserve program, "they wouldn't undersell Aramco (The Arabian-American Oil., a consortium that includes Texaco, Exxon, Mobil and Standard Oil of Calif.)."

Dialogue's failure will most likely hike oil prices

By JOSEPH FITCHETT
Special to The Washington Post

NICOSIA, Cyprus — The failure of the North-South dialogue will probably prompt Saudi Arabia to raise oil prices by 5 per cent, ending the two-tier split in the Organization of Petroleum Exporting countries and adding $3 million a day to the industrial world's energy bill, a well-informed oil journal predicted Monday.

The Middle East Economic Survey (Mees), which has been reliable about Saudi Arabian oil policy in the past, forecast the price hike in July as a direct result of the collapse of the Paris talks between rich and poor nations — and despite the success of Saudi Crown Prince Fahd's recent Washington meeting with President Carter.

Officials had publicly linked Saudi policy on holding the line on oil prices to progress on world economic reforms and on the Arab-Isareli problem, notably American policy in the Middle East.

Mees said the oil price issue was not broached in Washington by Carter and Fahd, but that Saudi Arabian leadership was satisfied with Carter's apparently significant steps in subscribing to the principles of a Palestinian homeland and Israeli withdrawal from all Arab territories occupied a decade ago.

Asked to raise oil-production ceilings to provide the planned American strategic reserve, the Saudis agreed to consider it, Mees said.

However, the demise of the two-year discussions between industrialized and developing nations in the North-South forum reportedly has convinced Saudi leaders they should no longer delay reunifying the OPEC oil price structure rapidly, at a slightly lower level than OPEC hawks had sought.

Pipeline recoated to diminish corrosion; concern still exists

By LARRY PRYOR
The Los Angeles Times

The 800-mile Trans Alaska Pipeline had to be recoated in an effort to lessen damaging corrosion after the company that is building the line decided the initial coating was inadequate, The Los Angeles Times has learned.

Numerous experts contacted by The Times voiced concern over whether the second coating would prove sufficient to protect the line from leaks caused by corrosion. No independent tests were conducted to determine if the coatings would peel off, sources said.

The initial coating, Scotchkote 202, has proved unsatisfactory on other large-diameter pipelines, resulting in leakage and difficult maintenance problems.

Alyeska Pipeline Service Co., the consortium of eight oil companies building the $7.7-billion pipeline, was told of the record of Scotchkote 202 on other pipelines and tried to compensate by giving the pipe a second wrapping of tape.

Alyeska also sued Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing Co. (3M), makers of Scotchkote 202, and a Texas company, Surfcote, Inc., that was responsible for the initial coating of the pipeline. Since then a complicated pattern of claims and counterclaims has developed in Superior Court in Anchorage and damage at $20 million.

The litigation has progressed with little notice. 3M has made no reference to it in the company's annual report or other filings. "We do not consider it to be material litigation," said a 3M attorney.

Voluminous documents subpoenaed by Alyeska during the discovery phase of the trial have remained locked in Anchorage law offices and were not made part of the vourt record.

Corrosion engineers contacted by The Times said the ability of Scotchkote to withstand peeling, or cathodic disbonding, is important to the integrity of underground sections of the Alaska pipeline.

"If the 202 comes off, you don't have a well-adhered tape to the steel," said a Tuscon corrosion specialist, who, like almost all industry sources contacted by The Times, asked that he not be quoted by name. The main concern, he said, is that moisture can get under the wrapping and "start eating a pinhole right through."

Pipelines are coated externally to isolate the steel from surrounding moisture and minimize the corrosion process. If steel contacts moist soil, it sets up an electrical flow that eats into the pipe, eventually resulting in oil leaks.

A study by the federal office of Pipeline Safety showed corrosion to be the third largest cause of pipeline failures last year, exceeded only by damage by outside forces and construction or material defects.

Pipelines have been coated for many years by tar and asphalt. Recently, a highly competitive coating industry has developed, offering coatings of concrete, fiberglass, tape, plastics and twin epoxy coatings, such as Scotchkote.

A second line of protection is corrosion control utilizing either a sacrifical metal, which takes the current and gets eaten up instead of the steel, or an impressed current system, where electricity is put into the pipe, setting up a countercurrent to prevent any from escaping.

Selection of the proper coating and electrical system for the Trans Alaska pipeline was particularly important because it would be a hot-oil line (up to 140 degrees) running through frozen ground.

Hot oil increases the corrosion process and promotes peeling or disbonding of the pipe coating.

Young tempers 'racist' remarks

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young said today his criticism of former Presidents Gerald Ford and Richard Nixon as "racists" also applied to Presidents John Kennedy and Lyndon Johnson but were not intended as attacks on the individual character of the chief executives.

Testifying before the House International Affairs Committee, Young said the issue of racism was actually "in the context of why we might have neglected Africa" in the formulation of U.S. foreign policy.

The ambassador, who was formerly a black civil rights activist and member of the House, said racism "is a kind of insensitivity to the problems of race and culture, but it is an unfortunate term." Young's remarks concerning Nixon and Ford were published in a Playboy magazine interview.

As Republican criticism of Young expanded, Rep. William S. Broomfield, R-Mich., told the ambassador in today's hearing he considered the reference to Ford "an insult to a very great man" which was deserving of an apology.

Broomfield said he was happy that President Carter had disavowed the remarks. "It isn't healthy for bipartisan foreign policy," Broomfield said.

Committee chairman Clement Zablocki, D-Wis., joined Broomfield in expressing "concern" about the reference to President Ford who also served in the House.

Young replied, "it was in no way limited to Ford. In fact I have maintained contact with him since he left office." Broomfield then asked whether the remark was also true of Presidents Kennedy and Johnson. Young replied, "Yeah, it is, I think I said that somewhere in the article."

The Playboy article, however, did not contain that reference to Kennedy and Johnson.

Talking with reporters this morning after a White House meeting with President Carter about the B1 bomber, Sen. Barry M. Goldwater joined in the Republican attacks on Young. The Arizona senator said Young is putting "both feet, both hands and his hat" in his mouth and should never have been appointed ambassador to the United Nations.

Young meets later today with President Carter to tell him that if the President differs with his statements he should treat Young like an ambassador, not a friend.

Consumer agency bill lagging; lobbyists score in the House

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill that would establish a federal agency to look out for the rights of consumers is in trouble. One of its House sponsors says it would be defeated if voted on today.

When introduced early in the session, the bill appeared to be headed for easy passage, partly because it was being supported for the first time by the White House.

But heavy lobbying by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce and other business organizations has swayed congressmen away from the consumer legislation, which would create a new agency that would represent the public in hearings before other federal agencies.

Rep. Benjamin Rosenthal, D-N.Y., sponsor of the bill, said in an interview Monday: "As of this moment, we are probably 20 to 25 votes down in the House."

Rosenthal estimated that the opponents of the new consumer agency have spent around a half-million dollars in their lobbying campaign.

"I think we underestimated the power of the opposition. I must say that they have done a very good job," he said.

Rosenthal, chairman of a consumer subcommittee and a longtime supporter of the plan to create an agency dedicated to representing the public, said "I'm still optimistic. I think passage is likely, but it is not going to be easy. We have to do some missionary work in the House."

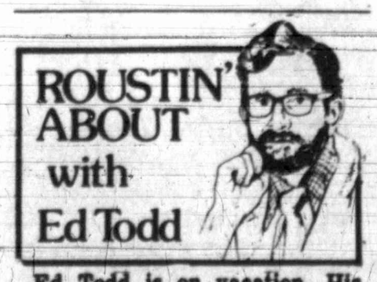
Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., also a key supporter of the consumer agency, said the bill could pass by a comfortable margin in the Senate. "It looks like the (lobbying) pressure is concentrated in the House," he said.

Sponsors of the bill argue that consumers need to be represented before federal agencies and that business representatives dominate such proceedings with their lawyers and lobbyists. Consumer opinions do not get through to the agencies, sponsors say.

Opponents say the agency would only add another layer of bureaucracy that would increase the cost of doing business.

The House has passed bills three times to set up a consumer agency and the Senate has done so twice. But the bills never became law, primarily due to opposition from the administrations of Richard Nixon and Gerald Ford.

Other opponents of the bill include the National Association of Manufacturers, Grocery Manufacturers of America and the Business Roundtable.



Ed Todd is on vacation. His column will resume upon his return.

Gay rights issue goes to polls today

MIAMI (AP) — With a bitter and increasingly bizarre campaign over, both sides predicted narrow victory in today's referendum on whether to keep the Dade County law that forbids discrimination against homosexuals in housing and jobs.

Both sides added that they would appeal an adverse decision to the U.S. Supreme Court and would continue to wage their partisan battles on a national front.

Gay rights supporters planned to celebrate tonight at the posh Dupont Plaza Hotel. The Save Our Children group, which opposes the law, will gather at the Miami Beach Holiday Inn — which overlooks a popular gay beach.

Britain's Queen Elizabeth II leaves Buckingham Palace in London this morning in her ornate golden coach enroute to St. Paul's Cathedral to attend a service of thanksgiving in honor of her Silver Jubilee, the 25th anniversary of her reign. (AP Laserphoto)

Millions cheer Queen Elizabeth

By MICHAEL WEST

LONDON (AP) — Throngs of jubilant Britons marked the Silver Jubilee of Queen Elizabeth II's reign today with the greatest outpouring of patriotic fervor in a quarter century, and she in turn thanked her subjects for 25 years of "loyalty and friendship."

Halfway through the long-awaited day of pomp, ceremony, parades, trumpet fanfares, prayers and gun salutes, the queen addressed her subjects and the world at a jubilee luncheon in the historic Guildhall:

"At this moment of my Silver Jubilee I want to thank all those in Britain and the Commonwealth who through their loyalty and friendship have given me strength and encouragement during these last 25 years," she said.

Appearing relaxed and happy, the monarch recalled that in her "salad days" as a 21-year-old heir to the British throne she pledged her life to the service of the British people.

"I do not regret nor retract one word of it," she said.

Millions of Britons and foreign visitors, withstanding intermittent showers and much waiting since Monday night, lined the streets of London as the queen and her husband, Prince Philip, embarked on their day of joyous celebration.

Millions more participated in celebrations in every village and hamlet across England. Hundreds of millions around the world watched on television.

For the royal couple the festive day opened with a ride in the golden state coach from Buckingham Palace to a thanksgiving service in St. Paul's Cathedral.

Prince Charles, the popular heir to the throne, rode behind on horseback. A procession of open carriages followed, carrying the queen mother, the queen's children and her sister, Princess Margaret. They were accompanied by more than 3,000 troops and 10 bands.

Rain alternated with bright sunshine during the morning, but the rain stopped before Princess Anne, the queen's daughter, and her husband, Capt. Mark Phillips, left the palace in the first open carriage.

The queen paused along the way at Temple Bar, gateway to the old City of London, the heart of the capital, to receive the Pearl Sword from the lord mayor of London, a ceremony of loyalty dating back six centuries.

A royal gun salute from the Tower of London and a fanfare of trumpets greeted the queen as she approached St. Paul's, the cathedral whose survival in the fire bombings of London made it a symbol of British resolve in World War II.

"O Lord and Heavenly Father, the exalter of the humble, the strength of thy chosen, bless, we beseech Thee, thy servant Elizabeth, our anointed and consecrated queen," intoned the bishop of London, the Rt. Rev. Gerald Ellison, inside the 267-year-old, Christopher Wren-designed church.

Transportation survey planned by task force

In an effort to determine if a public transportation system is needed in Midland, a special task force directed by the Midland Chamber of Commerce has planned a survey to appear in the Sunday edition of The Midland Reporter-Telegram.

The task force will also try to determine the cost and destinations of such a system.

Several city groups and organizations have taken steps to provide transportation on both a public and private basis.

One example is the Midland Senior Services organizations, in conjunction with Midland College, which operates a 12-passenger van that runs along a suggested schedule five days a week.

The Senior Services-Midland College service can be obtained on a "dial-a-bus" basis if the Senior Services office is called in advance. During 1977, the van carried 124 different persons in 782 trips. The service is free.

Midland Senior Citizens, Inc. also uses a 12-passenger van to transport senior citizens to and from the city-sponsored Senior Center. The van is operated five days a week from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The service is available only to persons with no other means of transportation. Riders must call the Senior Center office by 3:30 p.m. on the day prior to the day of the trip to get the service.

During April, the Senior Center reported serving about 200 senior citizens. The service is also free.

The Midland Community Action Agency provides a similar service to elderly and handicapped within the community. The MCAA vans are available to transport eligible citizens to such places as the grocery store and other necessary trips, but the MCAA maintains a policy of allowing visits to medical facilities as priority over other trips.

Casa de Amigos also operates a 12-passenger van between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. five days a week for "essential" trips such as medical treatment, vocational rehabilitation, social security pick-ups, bill-paying, and grocery shopping.

Other Midland agencies offer transportation services on a strictly volunteer basis. Action Line FISH uses volunteer drivers who are not reimbursed for mileage or time.

Other transportation services are limited only to clients as with the Mental Health-Mental Rehabilitation program.

There is an increasing trend among businesses to encourage carpooling. One downtown business offers daily van transportation from the worker's home to the office for a monthly fee. Also, some companies make preferred parking areas available to groups that carpool regularly.

Murder trial continues

The trial of Dwight G. Blaylock on a charge of murder continued in state district court today.

Blaylock is charged in the shooting death of Radell Johnson Oct. 26, 1975.

Marilyn Johnson, the victim's ex-wife, testified she had been with Blaylock and two other persons outside R. J.'s before the shooting. Mrs. Johnson said Johnson had come up to the car and had struck her. Police were called and they talked to Blaylock and Johnson, she said.

She testified she had not seen Johnson strike Blaylock, but she would have been able to see a fight if one had taken place.

After the incident at R. J.'s Real Pit Bar-B-Q, 2301 E. Kentucky, the group she was with took Blaylock to his father's house on South Carver Street. Johnson approached the car where she was sitting and talked to her. While they were talking, she said, Blaylock ordered Johnson to leave. While he was running toward the street, Blaylock shot him, Mrs. Johnson testified.

Defense witness Robert Montgomery, who also was with Blaylock at R. J.'s contradicted several points in Mrs. Johnson's testimony.

He said Johnson had struck Blaylock at R. J.'s and threatened him for being with Mrs. Johnson. At Blaylock's father's house, Johnson approached the car in which he and Mrs. Johnson were sitting, he said. When Blaylock ordered Johnson to leave, Montgomery testified, Johnson had started to "charge" Blaylock and turned only when he saw Johnson had a gun.

Montgomery said he and Blaylock ran over to Johnson when he fell in the street. At that time, he said, Johnson, who was still alive, said to Blaylock, "I'm going to kill you."

Earlier today, a firearms expert testified that the bullet which killed Johnson was from the same .38 calibre pistol which had been taken from Blaylock at the time of the shooting.

Testimony in the trial began Monday, with testimony from police about the incident at R. J.'s and what was found later at the scene of the shooting.

Attorneys expected testimony in the case to end today.

Commission votes against kennel

In a 5 to 3 decision, the Midland Planning and Zoning Commission voted to recommend disapproval of a request by the SPCA for a dog kennel on a 1.33 acre tract of land on the Andrews Highway near Idlewilde Drive.

The vote followed an hour-long public hearing on the request which was dominated by protests from persons living near the site of the proposed kennel.

Most of those persons objecting to the kennel cited noise factors as the main reason for their opposition.

Dalton Byerly, director of the Midland SPCA said that between $4,000 and $5,000 had already been invested to improve existing structures on the site.

"I was shocked," Byerly said of the decision. "For a while I really thought things were going our way."

Byerly said it has not been decided by the board of directors whether or not the SPCA will take their specific use proposal to the city council following the negative recommendation from the planning and zoning commission.

Presently the SPCA operates a shelter for cats and puppies and an animal rescue van from its facilities at 5101 Andrews Highway.

The specific use permit would have enabled the SPCA to operate a kennel for large dogs. Without the permit, Byerly said today that the SPCA is in effect out of business at that location.

The public hearing followed a slide show of the proposed site location and ground adjacent to the dog shelter. Several people who gathered for the public hearing commented that their residences had not been included in the presentation.

Byerly countered charges that the proposed animal shelter would be a health hazard by telling the commission that all waste materials would be disposed of in a closed septic tank. He said someone would live on the premises of the shelter and that this would minimize any barking that the dogs might do.

Commissioner Walt Temple made the motion for disapproval while commissioners Robert Cochrane, John Phipps and E. F. "Gene" Motter, voted against that motion.

In other action, the planning and zoning commission:

— Approved a request by Bill Busby for a specific use permit that would allow on-premises consumption of alcoholic beverages at a proposed "oyster bar" on the northwest corner of Baird and Wall Streets.

— Approved a request by Larry Burns for a zone change from IF-3, single family district, to C3, commercial district, on the 900 block of Cater and Collins avenues, and Camp and Connell streets.

Some cooling forecast

A break in the heat will provide some relief for at least today. The National Weather Service at Midland Air Terminal predicts a high for today in the upper 80s with the low tonight in the mid-60s.

A slight chance of thunderstorms exists for today and tonight. Probability of precipitation is 20 per cent today and 30 per cent tonight. Partly cloudy skies should continue through Wednesday.

Temperatures Wednesday should be back in the mid-90s.

Easterly winds from 10 to 20 miles per hour are expected today, becoming southeasterly from five to 10 miles per hour tonight.

Andrews reported temperatures of 68 degrees this morning with partly cloudy skies.

Clear skies and hot weather was reported by Big Spring, Crane, Rankin, Lamesa and Odessa.

Stanton reported cooler temperatures and clear skies.

Big Lake reported clear and warm this morning with no breeze and a dew.

Some cooling was expected in Texas today after several days of scorching temperatures in the state.

Many stations in northern sections of the state recorded readings above 100 Monday, including 102 in Dallas and Tyler, 101 in Fort Worth and 100 in Wichita Falls.

But a weak cold front that passed through the Panhandle and South Plains during the night was expected to have enough effect to at least keep the thermometer in double figures.

At dawn, the cold front was located along a Sherman, Tex., to Roswell, N.M., line.

Partly cloudy skies were reported in the Panhandle and fair skies over the remainder of the state, except for at McAllen in the lower Rio Grande Valley.

Predawn temperatures over Texas before dawn ranged from the 57 at Dalhart and 63 at El Paso to 74 at Austin and 75 at Victoria and Palacios.

Showers and thunderstorms developed over central and southeastern portions of Texas and also along the Rio Grande from El Paso to near Presidio and from Eagle Pass to the Lower Valley late Monday afternoon and evening.

PBRPC board meeting slated

The Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission (PBRPC) Board of Directors will meet at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday in the PBRPC conference room at the Midland Regional Air Terminal.

The board of directors will consider accepting review and comments of the Regional Development Review Committee on the community development grants for the cities of Midland and Goldsmith, and Midland County.

They will consider accepting the review and comment of the Human Resources Advisory on the 1978 Head Start program for the Big Spring Independent School District, and a project placement for Big Spring State Hospital.

In other action the board of directors will:

— Consider approval of by-laws of the Regional Alcoholism and Drug Abuse Advisory Council.

Contract bridge game of mistakes

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Contract bridge is a game of mistakes. You try to make as few as possible of your own and to capitalize on the mistakes made by the opponents.

When today's hand was played in the recent North American Championships, South got to a reasonable slam in diamonds. But perhaps it is a mistake to get to a slam that does down when either six hearts or six notrump would be unbeatable.

In the average bridge game nobody would notice South's mistake. West would lead the jack of spades, and South would wein in his own hand to lead a trump. West would duck, and dummy would win.

South would get to his hand to lead a second trump, and in a second or two would score his slam.

READS BIDDING

It didn't go quite that way. Anthony Crocker, a San Marino actuarial consultant when he isn't playing bridge, could tell from the bidding that the opponents had eight hearts between them. This meant the East, Los Angeles expert Steve Smolen, could hold only one heart.

Croker opened a heart and stepped up with the ace of diamonds at the next trick to lead another heart. Smolen ruffed, and South was punished for his mistake. Poetic justice had prevailed.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one heart, and the next player bids one spade. You hold: S-J102; H-J732; D-A4; C-9753. What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two hearts. This may be your only cheap chance to show your heart support and slight values. Get into the auction while the getting is good.

L. W. "Bud" Taylor

Today's young folk 'different,' says retiring Midland teacher

High school students today voice their opinions more openly, have more freedom, and grow up faster than they did 40 years ago, says L.W. "Bud" Taylor, distributive education instructor at Lee High School.

Taylor taught his first class in the Midland school system more than 40 years ago, in 1936. He is retiring this year to—well, he hasn't decided yet just exactly what he plans to do.

Concerning today's young people, Taylor said, "They are a lot different. They speak their own minds more. An old fellow like me has to watch his step with them."

Taylor attributes these differences to the greater freedom young people have today, and to television. He said kids today learn more than ever before, and they learn it earlier in life. For example, Taylor said some of the courses taught in high schools today are more advanced than some of the courses he had in college.

He said he dosn't know whether the freedom young people enjoy today is good or bad. He does say, however, that a teenagers today are much better prepared to cope with the "real world" after they finish school.

Taylor came to Midland High School in 1936 as an assistant football coach. The next year, he took over as head coach and held that position until 1940. He then served in the Navy as an aerial navigator during World War II.

After leaving the Navy, Taylor went into the field of business. Nine years ago, he sold his sporting good business here and assumed his current position at Lee.

Taylor was born near McGregor in central Texas. He went to high school in Burkburnett. He received his bachelor's degree, as well as his master's, from North Texas State University in Denton.

Though Taylor has not coached since 1940, he is often called "Coach" by close friends and people who knew him during his coaching days.

He plans to stay in Midland after his retirement.

"I married a Midland gal, and she doesn't think there is anything else," Taylor said with a smile.

Mineola, home economics education, and Paula Kay Gobin Pai, 2405 Emerson Court, nursing.

Midlander gains honors at Selwyn

Katy Caraway, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Caraway of 2000 Princeton Ave., graduated valedictorian of the Selwyn School at Denton May 28.

Miss Caraway, who maintained an A average, plans to attend Newcomb College in New Orleans.

In February 1977, Miss Caraway spent a month in Europe performing in 'Soundbox" as part of Selwyn's Perspectives program. She will also receive an award for distinction in French.

Clock works

BASSETERRE, St. Kitts (AP) — After a lengthy slowdown, the "Circus Clock" atop the Berkeley Memorial Monument in Basseterre is working again. The monument, standing in the middle of a circular open space called The Circus, was built to honor the former president of the island's general legislative council.

IRS uncovers existence of corporate slush funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service says a tax probe of U.S. corporations shows the existence of 481 possibly illegal corporate slush funds, of which 71 may represent criminal fraud.

The IRS reported it uncovered the slush funds in a special questionnaire audit of the nation's 1,200 major corporations, starting in April 1975.

A spokesman said 896 corporations returned the questionnaire by the end of March, and that 481 responses produced "potential slush fund-type issues."

Seventy-one cases were turned over to the IRS Intelligence Division for investigation of possible criminal fraud, he said, adding that more may follow.

If criminal fraud is eventually proved, those responsible face a prison sentence and heavy fine for back taxes.

The IRS launched its special probe following disclosures that some large corporations made bribes, illegal political donations and other questionable payments in the United States and overseas.

While it is illegal for IRS to identify corporations under investigation, the spokesman indicated that most have gross assets in excess of $250 million.

IRS commissioner Jerome Kurtz termed the year-long probe "very productive."

The IRS wants to find out if the corporations under investigation owed taxes on the money used for questionable payments and whether the funds have been fraudulently concealed from tax collectors.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Lunchtime is problem

Dear Dr. Solomon: I am about 15 pounds overweight, and I am on a diet—or at least trying to be on one. Everything is fine when I'm home. But lunchtime is another story. I have to eat out a lot because of my job, and the huge portions they serve in restaurants are such a temptation. Have you or any of your patients figured out how to get around this? I even think the portions are often more than a person not on a diet should be tempted with!—Nacy G.

Dear Nancy: You are absolutely right—servings in public places are frequently much too large. But something is at last being done about it. The Sheraton Hotels in Washington are trying out a new system that allows customers to order meat entrees by the ounce. It not only makes things easier for dieters but saves money for people who are not too hungry—and, of course, it avoids waste. Let's hope the project works out well and that other hotels and restaurants will adopt the system.

In the meantime, pack your own lunch as much as possible. For those unavoidable restaurant lunches, if it's a sandwich, have it with only lettuce, tomato and one slice of bread—open-face—and skip the mayonnaise. Have your hamburger lean, and broiled, if possible. Instead of a sandwich, substitute a large salad with fruit and cottage cheese, or have a chef's salad with a lemon wedge instead of the thick, gooey dressing, which is loaded with calories. Fresh fruit would be a good dessert choice.

To H. N., Hutchinson, Kan.: I'm sorry the bran and increased fiber didn't help your constipation. I suggest you try eating a large breakfast consisting of fruit, cereal, toast or rolls, preserves and coffee, tea or milk. Then you should sit on the toilet daily from 15 to 30 minutes after you've eaten the breakfast, unless the urge occurs sooner. You should remain on the toilet for at least 10 minutes, if no relief occurs sooner, and try to distract your attention by reading a newspaper, magazine or using some other device. If this doesn't help your constipation, you should go back to your doctor.

His appointment became effective May 21 and his duties will include "supervising all aspects of running the club," a country club spokesman said.

Burkhart was formerly the clubhouse manager of the Abilene Country Club. Prior to his job with the Abilene Country Club, he served as manager of Mack Eplens Restaurants Inc. in Abilene for four years.

He also worked for five years as executive chef at the Bancroft Hotel in Worchester, Mass.

National Health Clinic is now in MIDLAND/ODESSA
GUARANTEE "You will quit smoking in 5 days or your money back!"

Sworn statement of Patricia Turner
Being a registered nurse I knew the dangers of cigarette smoking but I couldn't stop on my own. A friend told me about National's program and I stopped in 2 days. It's been over six months and I haven't even had the desire for a cigarette.

Sworn statement of Owen E. Wood
The only thing you need with this program is the earnest desire to quit smoking. I smoked for 27 years. I tried a number of different times to stop using every method and device possible and nothing worked until now. I have withdrawn from cigarettes with virtually no side effects. I'm not nervous, I'm not grumpy and I don't have the desire for cigarettes any longer.

NATIONAL HEALTH CLINICS will be in the Odessa/Midland area with our GUARANTEED 5 day stop smoking program. This program, administered by our mobile unit, is available for a LIMITED TIME ONLY.

Even though our program is available in major cities, National's planning staff feels that residents of areas out of commuting distance of our permanent locations will also benefit from our 5 day program. Local residents who act promptly can enter the program and stop smoking within five days without the usual withdrawal symptoms and without any appreciable weight gain. Only a LIMITED number can be accommodated.

National's stop smoking clinics utilize the same method as the Schick centers that you may be familiar with. In addition, our program will stop you from smoking in 5 days or your money back. However there is one major difference between National's Program and Schick's . . . . the price . . . . you will be pleased to find that the cost of National's program is substantially less.

MASTERCHARGE AND BANKAMERICARD ACCEPTED

IF YOU HAVE A FRIEND OR LOVED ONE WHO NEEDS HELP TO STOP SMOKING PLEASE TELL THEM ABOUT THIS AD.

Threat to children

Twenty million American children under the age of 15 years have not been given the kind of medical protection they need to be safe from crippling disease.

This is a startling bit of news, pointing up the fact that somewhere along the way we have failed to fulfill our responsibilities in this regard.

Many children in certain areas, for instance, were barred from school this spring because they were not properly immunized against measles. Los Angeles County, Calif., was an excellent example of this condition.

The threat to children spreads across the nation, involving polio, German measles, diptheria, whooping cough and tetanus as well as measles.

These diseases certainly can be killers. They can leave children paralyzed, blind, mentally retarded, or with weak hearts or kidneys.

And the tragedy when one of them cripples a child is made more heartrending by the fact that it is entirely unnecessary. Vaccination can give complete protection against all of these diseases.

But parents and providers of health care have become complacent. Almost 40 per cent of the children are not fully immunized. Yes, this is what we are told — almost 40 per cent are not fully immunized. It is reported that the rate is especially high among the children of the nation's poor, who need protection against health hazards perhaps more than any other children, because they are more exposed to infection and to dangerous complications of disease.

It is hoped that the rate of immunization is much higher here than the national average, and it is felt that it is. But this should serve as a reminder that we cannot and must not become complacent in this regard.

The low rate of child immunization nationwide must be regarded as a national shame. Society as a whole must become more aware of it and must rectify it.

Moscow maneuvering

The abrupt removal of Nikolai V. Podgorny from the Soviet Union's Politburo probably means that he will be replaced as president of the Supreme Soviet when the "parliament" meets June 16.

This sign of an impending shuffle in the Soviet hierarchy took the Moscow press corps by surprise, but a look at the vital statistics of Soviet leaders may offer a clue to what's going on.

Mr. Podgorny, for instance, is 74. The Soviet Union's prime minister, Alexi Kosygin, is 75. Mikhail Suslov, the Soviet Communist Party's idological mentor, will be 78 in November. And Leonid Brezhnev, the party's general secretary and the real boss, is 70. The ruling clique in Moscow is growing old.

It is possible that we may be seeing the first step — no doubt engineered by Brezhnev — to manage the most difficult of maneuvers in a Communist government, the transfer of power. The health of Brezhnev has been a subject of repeated speculation, although he seems to have bounced back from an illness which was creating doubts about his future a year or so ago.

Communist China was wracked by intrigue and power struggle before and after the death of Mao Tse-tung. The Russian leaders, Mr. Brezhnev in particular, are well aware of the danger of giving rein to rivalries within the party when it becomes evident that new leadership must emerge.

Those who came out on top in the Kremlin after the forced retirement of Nikita Khruschev 13 years ago are being reminded by their own birthdays of the inevitability of bids for power in their midst. Mr. Podgorny is one piece now removed fron the chessboard.

Mr. Brezhnev's strategy, and what it means for the future, may become more evident when the Supreme Soviet meets next week.

ART BUCHWALD

New books for the fall season listed

Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON — I went out to San Francisco last week to the American Bookseller's Convention to flog a new book I have coming out in the fall. (Modesty prevents me from telling the title.) At least 15,000 book buyers, bookstore owners, publishers, editors and promotion people were there, and I would estimate at least 10,000 new titles were being pushed.

I can't remember all of the titles, but as I went from booth to booth I got some idea of what awaits the book reader this fall.

The first booth I stopped at, the salesman said:

"Here is a free copy of the book of the year, 'How to Perform Your Own Heart Transplant Operation.' You save $3,000 by cutting out the middleman."

"You mean the doctor?"

"Doctor, heart surgeon — whatever you call him. The book tells you everything from where to find a donor to how to deal with vascular rejection."

I went to the next booth and was handed a book entitled, "How to Make a Million Dollars in Real Estate and Have Sex at the Same Time."

"This is a racy title," I said.

"It's a self-help book. Many real estate agents make a lot of money, but they're very shy about sex.

"This book helps them overcome their inhibitions, particularly when they're showing an unfurnished house. As you notice it's chock-full of illustrations. The author feels real estate people have to come out of the closet."

A few booths down a man was autographing books. He was apparently a psychologist because the title of his work was "Releasing Inner Energy by Biting Your Fingernails." When he saw I was a reporter he explained his theory. "All life-giving energy starts in the fingernails. Most people have pent-up energy, really electric charges, that has to be released before they explode. By biting your fingernails you make it possible for the energy to escape out through your hands, which relaxes the joints in your knuckles and gets you through the day." He gave me an autographed copy, which I read on the plane — and much to my amazement it worked.

Two aisles down I found a publisher's rep pushing a book entitled "The Joy of Oil Spills," which tells people how to have fun when a tanker goes aground off their beach. It shows you how to build tar castles out of oil and sand, how to swim through an oil spill and still breathe and how to organize a fish fry from all the fish that have rolled up on the beach.

A few booths down I found "The Idi Amin Book of Etiquette," "Confessions of an Oral Surgeon," "The Last Chance Food Stamp Diet Book," "Dating Jackie Onassis on $5 a Day" and "Is There an IRS After Death?"

Christmas shoppers can expect many supernatural books this fall. One that caught my eye was entitled "Anita's Baby." The plot concerned a child who drank nothing but Florida orange juice and found himself wanting to be a woman. He has a transsexual operation and winds up winning the women's tennis singles at Wimbledon.

The success of "Roots" has forced many publishers to come out with their own versions. One was entitled "Leaves" and told of a WASP's search for his roots over a period of 12 years. He remembered his grandmother sitting on the porch in Southhampton repeating a story about her great-grandfather who founded the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey. Taking a $50,000 advance from his publisher, he went to New Jersey, and there in a small village called South Orange he found the very place his great-great-great-grandfather had come from. The people of South Orange were so happy to meet one of their own that they made him a member of their country club for life.

The author is now suing his publisher for $5 million because he couldn't find "Leaves" in any New Jersey bookstore.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Nixon: His account of 'pardon'

By JACK ANDERSON and LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON — The controversial pardoning of Richard Nixon aborted the trial of the century. Had it not been for the pardon, according to inside sources, the Special Prosecutor definitely would have indicted the former president for obstruction of justice.

Instead of the epic court drama, Nixon has now presented his case to the nation via television. He told interviewer David Frost that he considered himself under oath. If Nixon had really sworn to tell the truth, he could be indicted for perjury. We counted at least a dozen misstatements.

Perhaps the most dramatic was Nixon's account of the pardon itself. From the private notes and recollections of the man who negotiated the pardon on President Ford's behalf, we can now cite the discrepancies.

Ford's personal lawyer, Benton Becker, kept a careful record of his visit to San Clemente in September, 1974, to discuss the pardon and the disposition of the Nixon tapes. Becker flew to California with the ex-president's attorney Herbert J. Miller. Although they arrived shortly before midnight, they immediately went into a three-hour huddle with Nixon aide Ronald Ziegler.

The talks resumed the following morning in Ziegler's office. Frequently, Ziegler and Miller slipped out of the room for whispered consultations.

Nixon later told David Frost that a pardon "isn't, of course, ...necessarily an admission of guilt." This idea, he said, was "legalistic pettifogging."

On the contrary, Becker made plain to Nixon's negotiators before the pardon was granted that it would constitute an admission of guilt. He even provided Miller with the leading Supreme Court decision on the question — a 1915 case involving a newsman who refused to testify.

To guarantee him immunity, the prosecutor got President Woodrow Wilson to sign a pardon for the reporter. But the newsman rejected it as an admission of guilt. The Supreme Court, agreeing with the newsman, declared that a presidential pardon "carries with it an imputation of guilt" and acceptance of a pardon amounts to a confession of (guilt)."

Nixon told David Frost of his agony as he debated whether to sign the pardon. "When you receive a pardon," explained the former president, "you have to sign a piece of paper that says, 'I accept the pardon.'"

He related, with pain in his voice, that he almost turned down the pardon and to stand trial on criminal charges. "It was a terribly difficult decision for me," he said. "I sat for an hour in the chair by myself. I asked Miller to leave the room." After this hour of agonizing, said Nixon, he told Miller: "Well, okay. I'll do it." And so I signed it."

In fact, Nixon never signed a pardon at all. The only paper he signed at San Clemente was an agreement with the government, establishing dual ownership of his papers and tapes.

Becker's notes also dispute Nixon's dramatic account of his last-minute soul searching. Before Becker and Miller ever arrived at San Clemente, Nixon had already indicated through his counsel that he wanted a pardon. It was Nixon's interest in getting pardoned that prompted President Ford to send Becker to San Clemente.

Not until the negotiations were completed did Nixon, looking fatigued and forlorn, make a personal appearance. He was despondent and disoriented. "Thank you for being fair," he murmured to Becker. "You are a fine young man." Then in the middle of the conversation, he grabbed Becker's arm. "You are a big boy," blurted the recluse of San Clemente, completely out of context. "Did you ever play football?"

Later the deposed president asked again to see Becker, who was ushered into a sparse office. Nixon greeted him solemnly.

"Mr. Becker," he said, "you have been a gentleman. You haven't been a bully. I have had my share of bullies. I want to give you something." Then he extended both arms toward the sparse office walls. "But I don't have anything," he said, his voice almost breaking. "They took it all away."

Swallowing hard, Nixon pulled open a desk drawer and produced a pair of cheap, presidential cuff links and a tiepin. He handed these dramatically to Becker. "Pat took these from my jewelry box," said Nixon sadly. "Hang on to them. They are the last ones in the world."

Back in Washington, Becker reported to President Ford on his San Clemente experience. Ford had already decided to grant the pardon. But he added to his statement, as another reason for the pardon, "the threat to (Nixon's) health."

Footnote: Miller refused comment on his dealings with his famous client. Friends of Nixon recall that he had severe qualms at the moment of accepting the pardon. One friend told us that Nixon had considered fighting for his freedom in the courts.

NICK THIMMESCH

Destructive urge all too common in New York City

Nick Thimmesch

NEW YORK CITY — So now Bella Abzug runs for mayor, crying that this city needs help from Washington. Her boisterous whimper satisfies a claque of elitists, some of whom don't have the stuff, say, to even make a go of a mom-and-pop store. They are bereft of a sense of community and enjoy the fashion of destructiveness.

New York City has a bushel full of authentic woes, but it is a rush to destroy which inflicts the worst wounds. This great city was always exciting, and beneath the toughness there was a humanistic spirit — one making blocks and neighborhoods proud. To stop here now, even for a short time, is to sense the nihilism and decline of community heartbeat.

Last week, a newspaper ran a photo of a white-haired old man holding the wreckage of what was a supple young tree. The old man, Lawrence Freed, had paid $200 for 10 of these trees to be planted along the curbstone where his factory is located in Queens.

Young trees, even struggling from concrete, provide a sense of regeneration, and Freed was so proud when they were planted only one month ago. But vandals got to the saplings, broke them off, tore them apart, limb from limb, leaving the hope for new green life strewn over the sidewalk and street.

Freed stood there, holding a killed tree and looking a little like a sad Charlie Chaplin. "They were coming along beautifully," he said. "We watered them twice a day. Who'd want to do such a thing?" Would he replant the trees, start again in this city which sorely needs a new start? "I don't know," he said. "What's the use? You try to make the neighborhood a little better looking, and this is what happens."

Bad citizenship has always existed in New York City, just as it has in any large city. But New York City, often the leader in uny national trend, suffers an enormous excess of vandalism. Smashed park benches, wrecked pay phones, an endless wash of graffiti, overturned trash and garbage cans and broken windows — these proclaim a sick attitude. Unrelenting hostility, not poverty, causes the indelible defacement of New York.

These are only exterior signs. There is also a broad-based expression of diminished spirit — too many abortions, too many demands for return of the death penalty. The problems of disillusionment darken bright, sunny days.

The hangouts for creative people — writers, actors, artists — were places where drink made the talk all the louder, more robust than degrading. New York was never without cynicism, but wit usually won over meanness or gloom.

The other night in an eatery patronized by the literati and hangers-on, there was no talk of vandalizing trees or park benches or phone booths. But the urge to destroy was there.

One man, of national reputation, talked bitterly about his mistress' sister, and how she must be a suicidal type, and how he wouldn't care if she ever gave way to such an impulse. He drenched this woman with black language. A second man, a bachelor about 50 years old, told how he was losing interest in his old girlfried. She was beginning to show her years, he explained, in a half-mouth and had developed a small varicose vein. He did not speak of her mind, her moods, her good qualities. But that varicose vein stuck out like an indelible, damning mark. This man's head was bald at the crown. His stomach protruded and looked soft. He offered no comedy about his own appearance.

These two souls and thousands of like bent live and complain in all the other cities, but one seems to run into more unhappy folk in New York City.

The violence of the Sixties, the burning cities, the assassinations, the Vietnam tragedy, and the vagaries of the economy—can be counted as factors. And in New York City, I suppose you could add in the fiscal troubles, the overwhelming burden of welfare and social costs.

Some here argue that there is no real hope in politics. The last time there was a surge of hope was when John V. Lindsay, in strident voice, promised to make New york City great again, as he put it. But the well-intended Lindsay promise came in ashes.

Nowadays, nobody here looks for a new savior.

Administration aids Concorde with lawsuits

The Los Angeles Times

NEW YORK -- In a definitive legal statement, the Carter administration said Monday the Concorde supersonic transport should be allowed to land in New York and accused the Port Authority of "unfair, dilatory, arbitrary and unreasonable actions" in seeking to stop the plane.

The Administration filed a friend of the court brief in an appeal over whether the SST can conduct test flights at John F. Kennedy International Airport, principal eastern pathway to the lucrative European Trans-Atlantic air corridor.

The joint briefs by the Departments of State and Transportation said the Port of New York Authority had deprived the United States "of the goodwill of our allies which would flow from a fair test of the Concorde." "The United States believes that the Port Authority's ban on Concorde test flights at Kennedy Airport is unfortunate and ill-advised," the Administration said.

A three-judge federal Court of Appeals had asked the government for its opinion as it prepares to rule on a Port Authority appeal of a lower federal court's finding that the bistate New York-New Jersey agency could not block tests at the airport.

Former Transportation Secretary William Coleman ordered tests of the SST at Kennedy and Dulles International Airport outside of Washington last year. And the needle-nosed plane has been conducting takeoffs and landings at Dulles since May 24, 1976.

The Port Authority rejected Coleman's order until it had a chance to make its own studies.

In a 32-page brief, the Administration drew an important legal distinction. Federal lawyers said the Department of Transportation did not preempt the right of local airport operators to impose their own noise restrictions. But it accused the Port Authority of acting in a "discriminatory, dilatory, arbitrary and unreasonable" fashion.

The Administration said the Port Authority may have abused its proprietary power "to the detriment of British Airways and Air France," the plane's operators.

"We believe that if a case of unreasonable or arbitrary action against them (the air lines) by the Port Authority can be sustained, the Port's action in banning the Concorde should not be judicially sanctioned," the government's lawyers said.

Turkish elect new leadership

The Los Angeles Times

ANKARA — Turkey's opposition Republican People's Party Monday celebrated its victory in Sunday's national elections, while leaders of the current conservative government, conceding defeat, warned of a new period of political instability.

Nearly complete results Monday indicated that the Republican People's Party of Bulent Ecevit would be short of a parliamentary majority. He had hoped for a clear mandate.

"Turkish problems with stability have not been solved," Premier Suleyman Demirel said in his first comment on the elections, indirectly conceding that his coalition government had lost.

"It will be a weak government," predicted Sen. Kamuran Inan, a leading member of Demirel's Justice Party. "It will be subject to pressure just as we were."

The latest tallies from the election appeared to confirm these predictions. Projections from the official Turkish radio gave Ecevit's party a total of 213 seats — short of the 226 it needs for a majority in the 450-member lower house of parliament. Demirel's Justice Party won 188 seats in the balloting.

If this projection holds up, it appeared that Ecevit could form a government only by joining in a coalition with the fanatical Islamic followers of the National Salvation Party, who won about 20 seats. It was Ecevit's inability to get along with the Salvation Party that forced the dissolution of his coalition government late in 1974.

Such a coalition would mean a weak government, as Demirel predicted, and one that would be poorly equipped to face Turkey's mounting problems, particularly its economic crisis. And such a government would also be unable to show the necessary flexibility to get any movement going on the Cyprus issue, the Aegean dispute with Greece, or ultimately in improving its relations with the United States, which are tied to the Cyprus dispute.

Ecevit, in his first press conference since the election, admitted there might be "certain problems" if his Republican People's Party did not gain an absolute majority.

Ecevit claimed, however, that his count of deputies was 220, perhaps 222, and that it could be more.

If so, this would give him a clear road to an absolute majority, as independent deputies elected in Turkey usually end up by joining the most powerful party and this election should produce four or five independent winners.

Bullock certifies state funds OK

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Comptroller Bob Bullock announced Monday he has certified to Gov. Dolph Briscoe that there are sufficient funds available for the legislature's general appropriations bill and all other bills that make direct appropriations.

By law, the comptroller must make this certification before the governor may sign appropriations bills.

This year, there never was a question that the certification would be forthcoming because the legislature failed to pass a public school finance bill.

Briscoe has said he will call a special session to pass a school bill, for which an estimated $900,000 is available.

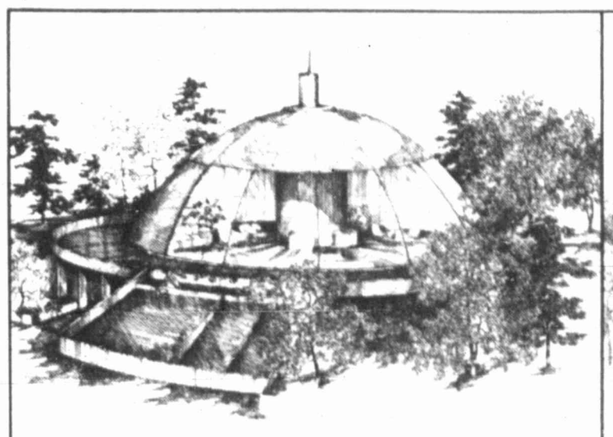
After Briscoe exercises his power of veto, if he chooses to use it on some of the appropriations measures, Bullock will make an estimate on money available for the special session.

Four die in boating accident

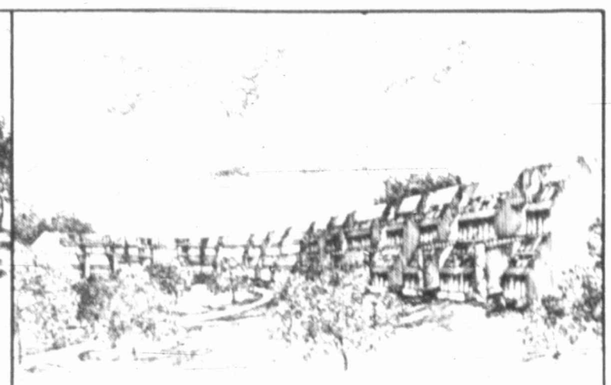
NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — A charter fishing boat carrying 27 persons overturned on the Chesapeake Bay in a violent thunderstorm Monday. At least four persons were killed and nine others were missing, the Coast Guard said.

Police Detective J.L. Peacock said a 10-to-15-foot-high wave hit the 42-foot Dixie Lee II broadside and knocked it over about five miles north of Norfolk and three miles east of the Hampton-Roads Bridge Tunnel which connects Hampton and Norfolk.

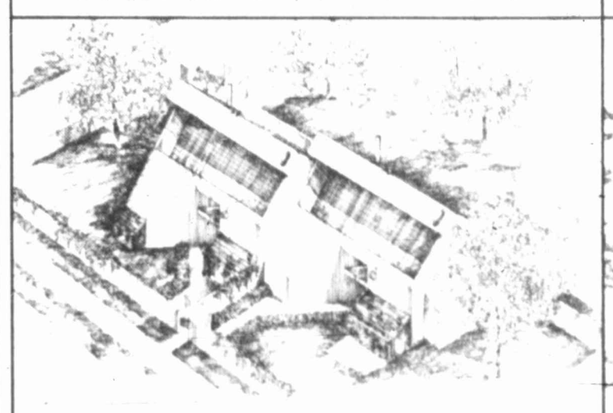
Exxon presents 10 bright ideas for solar-powered homes.



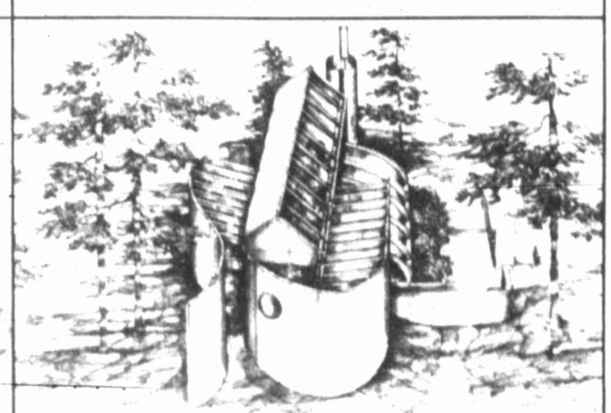
1. Designer: Richard A. Standard. Georgia Institute of Technology. Dome-shaped housing for low-income families in Atlanta, Georgia, utilizing both greenhouse and stack-effect cooling.



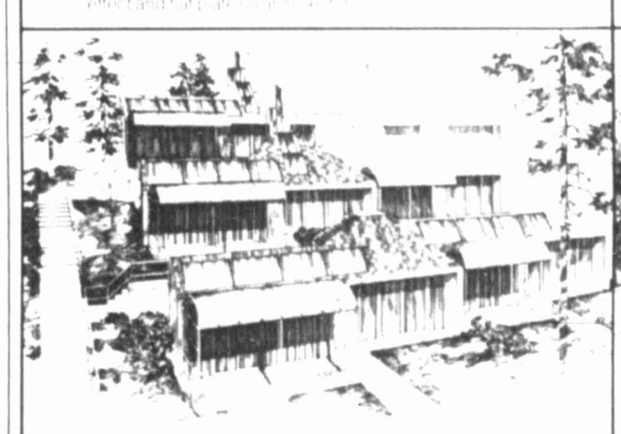
6. Co-designers: Don E. Kraft, Bill Drewek. University of Wisconsin, Milwaukee. A study of solar-heated housing for a moderate-income family living in Milwaukee, Wisconsin. Shown above is a series of attached townhouses.



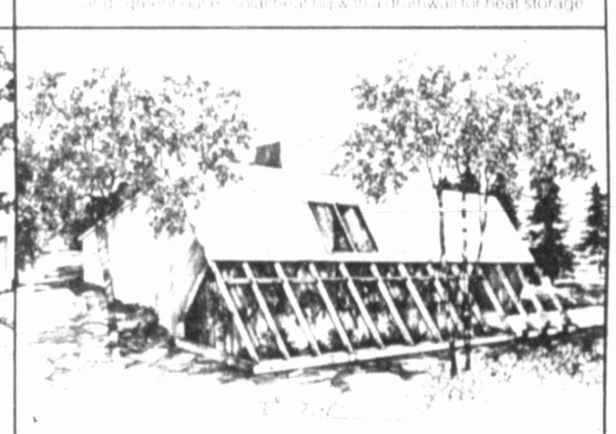
2. Co-designers: Susan Kerr, Joyce Lichtendahl Poppendorf, Deirdre McCrystal. University of Colorado, Boulder. Design for low-middle-income families in Denver, Colorado, utilizing both direct solar heating (the "sun-space" effect) and flat-plate solar collectors.



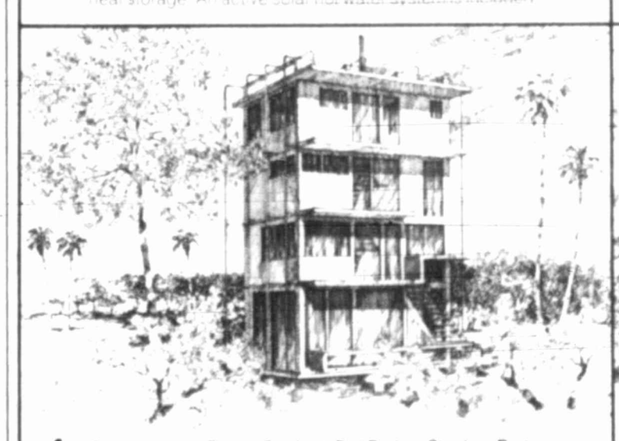
7. Designer: Jeffrey L. Sheppard. Georgia Institute of Technology. A one-to-two-story family with four children, designed for Atlanta, Georgia. It will have flat-plate active solar collectors and "sun-space" solar heating with a drum wall for heat storage.



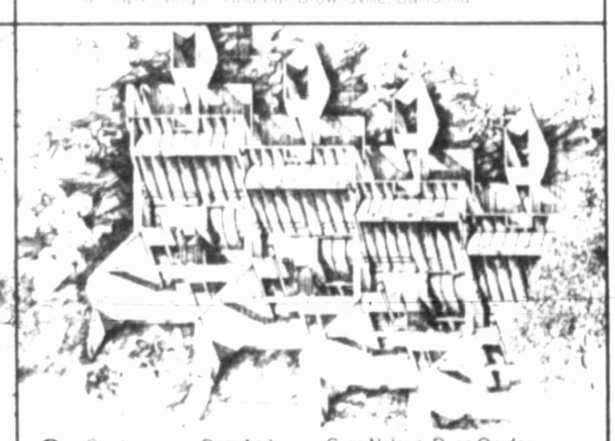
3. Designer: Vincent James. University of Wisconsin, Milwaukee. A three-bedroom house designed for Bayside, Wisconsin. The atrium acts as a solar heat collector for "sun-space" heat storage. An active solar hot water system is included.



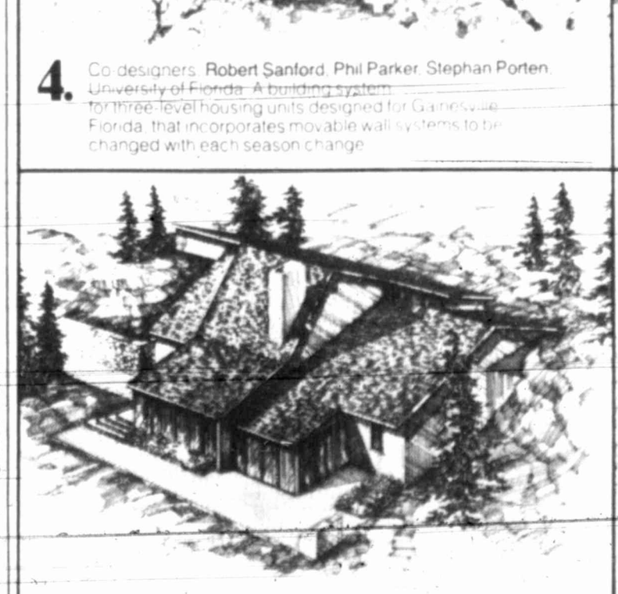
8. Co-designers: Jon Massaro, Terry Rainey, Bob Ginsberg, Debi Strozier. Southern California Institute of Architecture. A detached single-family, "autonomous house" designed for a couple living in suburban Brownsville, California.



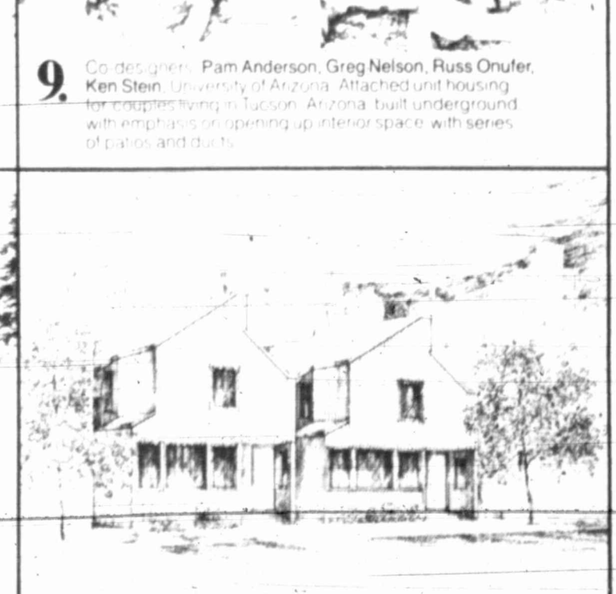
4. Co-designers: Robert Sanford, Phil Parker, Stephan Porten. University of Florida. A building system for three-level housing units designed for Gainesville, Florida, that incorporates movable wall systems to be changed with each season change.



9. Co-designers: Pam Anderson, Greg Nelson, Russ Onufer, Ken Stein. University of Arizona. Attached unit housing for couples living in Tucson, Arizona, built underground with emphasis on opening up interior space with series of patios and ducts.



5. Designer: Mark Marsh, Nova Scotia Technical College. A house for single adults living in Nova Scotia that is built into a hillside to reduce heat loss and incorporates a completely passive solar heating system.



10. Designer: William Styczynski, University of Illinois. Wood frame houses designed for a conventional building site in Chicago and high-density developments incorporating solar heating and hot water systems.

These designs are being exhibited at the American Institute of Architects' Annual Convention in San Diego, California, June 5-8.

They're the winning designs in a student competition on solar housing supported by Exxon... one of the things we're doing now to help make solar energy practical for you.

Exxon believes making solar energy practical and developing other energy resources are among America's most important tasks. Even with widespread conservation efforts and full development of our remaining oil and gas resources, new energy sources will be required to meet our future needs and to help ease our growing dependence on imported oil.

We're helping to involve people in solar energy.

These 10 home designs reflect Exxon's interest in making people in the housing industry aware of solar energy's potential. They were judged best of the entries from more than 1700 architecture students in a solar dwelling design competition sponsored by the American Institute of Architects Research Corporation, the contest was supported by a grant from Exxon. The purpose of the contest was to inspire ideas for solar-heated housing that could be built for today's market, and to get hundreds of today's students involved in solar energy's future.

Another grant from Exxon is helping the New England Fuel Institute develop a training course for solar system mechanics. When the course is completed, it will be made available to community colleges, trade schools, and vocational training organizations to help fill the need for qualified people to install and service solar heating and hot water systems.

Some other Exxon efforts:

Exxon has commercial ventures in two kinds of solar energy. Daystar Corporation, an Exxon subsidiary, manufactures solar collector panels for space heating and hot water systems and markets them through dealers in the eastern U.S.

Our Solar Power Corporation subsidiary manufactures and markets photovoltaic devices which convert sunlight directly into electricity for earthbound applications. Our solar cell panels are now providing electricity in special applications which are remote from utility power: navigational aids on offshore drilling platforms, educational TV receivers in isolated African villages, a microwave repeater station in New Guinea, and airport navigation lights in New Zealand. We are continuing research in photovoltaics, and we are striving to meet the goal set by the Energy Research and Development Administration to lower the cost of photovoltaic devices for generating electricity from today's cost of $15 per peak watt to less than 50¢ per watt so that wider spread use can be economically justified.

We're helping solar energy grow through competition.

The student designs for solar homes illustrate what Exxon believes is the best way for solar energy to provide more of America's needs. They resulted from competition. And Exxon is working to make solar products that are competitive.

Exxon believes solar energy's future is bright. It will grow into an important energy source for America because of the contributions of the many people and the many companies that will be competing for your business.

THIS GARGANTUAN 347-ton steel cylinder is en route from Houston to Glen Rose. It will become the core of Texas' first nuclear power plant. The carbon steel cylinder measures 44 feet long by 22 feet in diameter, with a 14-foot hollow core. The reactor vessel will heat water for steam when loaded with nuclear fuel. (AP Laserphoto)

Huge core rumbles toward Texas' first nuclear power operation

DALLAS (AP) — The site of Texas' first nuclear power plant in Somervell County doesn't look much different from other construction sites — dug-up earth, steel rods and the makings of concrete — but things will be different next week.

A gargantuan 347-ton steel cylinder, 44 feet long and 22 feet in diameter, was rumbling down the railroad tracks Monday on its own special car, destined to become the core of the nuclear plant.

The power plant will be steam operated, just like gas or coal fired generating stations, but water will be heated by nuclear fuel within the cylinder's 14½-foot core.

Manufactured in Chattanooga, Tenn., the huge cylinder drifted by barge 1,600 miles down the Tennessee, Ohio and Mississippi Rivers before traveling along the Intracoastal Waterway to Houston.

The cylinder was then loaded on a specially designed rail car for the 325-mile trip north. It is scheduled to arrive June 14.

After several months of construction, the cylinder will be lowered into a concrete bed.

Dallas Power and Light (DP&L), Texas Electric Service Company and Texas Power and Light Company are jointly building two nuclear power plants at Glen Rose, about 75 miles southwest of Dallas.

When completed, the nuclear reactors will be embedded in 17,000 cubic yards of concrete per reactor, roughly the same amount of concrete at Dallas-Fort worth airport.

According to DP&L, uranium fuel will not be loaded into the reactor vessel until the plant is ready to operate in the 1980s.

Operator sets casing

Traverse Corp., Wichita Falls, No. 1 First National Bank of Fort Worth, Trustee, et al, Garza County wildcat, was bottomed at 7,994 feet, and operator was running casing for completion attempt.

A final drillstem test in the Ellenburger from 7,958-7,966 feet, on which the tool was open 2½ hours, recovered 919 feet of gas and 10 feet of heavily oil- and gas-cut mud.

An earlier test from 7,575-7,593 feet, recovered 6.6 cubic feet of gas and 1,300 cubic centimeters of 38-gravity oil from the sample chamber, plus a full string of oil and gas, no water, from the test tool.

A test in the Strawn lime from 7,413-7,418 feet, recovered 3,760 feet of gas and 108 feet of oil.

It is 825 feet from south and 2,172 feet from east lines of section 934, block 97, H&TC survey, 13 miles southeast of Post and 2½ miles northeast of an undesignated Ellenburger gas strike.

Strike finaled, wildcat planned

A Strawn discovery has been completed in Scurry County and Lamb drew a wildcat site.

Tejas Operating Co. has taken over the former Hanover Petroleum Corp. No. 1 W. H. Jones, et al, Scurry County Strawn oil strike, two miles southeast of Fluvanna.

It had a 24-hour pumping potential of 90 barrels of oil, gravity 41.5 degrees, plus 87 barrels of water, with gas-oil ratio measuring 1,833-1. Completion was through perforations at 7,798-7,809 feet, following 500 gallons of acid.

Drilled 8,320 feet, it has 4½-inch casing set at 8,261 feet. Top of the Strawn was picked at 7,690 feet; Mississippian at 8,081 and Ellenburger at 8,261 feet, under kelly bushing elevation of 2,666 feet. The well is plugged back to 8,099 feet.

Operator has suggested field designation of Fluvanna, Southeast (Strawn).

Location is 660 feet from south and 1,833 feet from west lines of section 485, block 97, H&TC survey.

Delta-Gulf, Inc., San Antonio, will drill No. 1 Bill Sims, a 4,200-foot venture in Lamb, eight miles northeast of Littlefield.

Location is 1,980 feet from north and 660 feet from east lines of section 3S, block T, T. A. Thomson survey. There is no nearby production.

Wells extend pools in three WT sectors

Pool extensions have been completed in Runnels, Coke and Upton sectors.

The Winters, Southwest field of Runnels gained a fourth Gardner lime oiler and ⅜-mile southeast extension to that pay with completion of Tex-Am Drilling, Inc., Abilene, No. 4 Rufus Allen.

It had a 24-hour flowing potential of 68 barrels of 47-gravity oil and 56 barrels of water, producing through a 24-64-inch choke and perforations at 4,350-4,357 feet. The pay had been acidized with 500 gallons.

Drilled to 4,494 feet, 4½-inch casing is set at 4,412 feet.

Wellsite is 3,000 feet from middle south line and 880 feet from middle east lines of section 44, block 63, HT&B survey.

Walsh & Watts, Inc., Wichita Falls, completed No. 1-B Durham as a current fifth well and ½-mile south extension in the Leppart (Palo Pinto) field of Coke.

It finaled on the pump for 10 barrels of 45-gravity oil and 140 barrels of water daily, producing natural through perforations at 4,378-4,384 feet.

Drilled to 5,426 feet, it had 4½-inch casing set on bottom.

Wellsite is 660 feet from northeast and 1,667 feet from southeast lines of section 1, C&MRR survey 2, abstract 1639, ½ mile east of Bronte.

UPTON WELL

The Upton County part of the Calvin (Dean) field gained a second well and eight-mile north extension with recompletion of Cass & Stephens, Dallas, No. 2-20 Braden, former Spraberry oiler, two miles east of Midkiff.

The 24-hour potential was for 110 barrels of oil, no water, and gas-oil ratio measuring 1,236-1. Completion was effected through perforations at 8,426-8,572 feet, following treatment with 250 gallons of acid and 40,000 gallons and 80,000 pounds of sand fracture.

It is 660 feet from north and west lines of section 20, block 37, T-5-S, T&P survey, 2⅞ miles west and slightly south of the Reagan County part of the Calvin (Dean) field.

Wildcat tests slated in Culberson, Ward

Wildcats have been scheduled in Culberson and Ward counties. Ward also drew site for an undesignated Pennsylvanian test and an extender finaled in a Pecos field.

Backers still debate superport price tag

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON (AP) — Planning is continuing for proposed crude oil supertanker terminals off the Texas and Louisiana coasts even though backers still are debating whether to pledge nearly $2 billion for the projects.

The deadline for accepting federal licenses finalized in the closing weeks of the Ford administration is Aug. 1.

LOOP would be a $910 million terminal 19 miles off the Louisiana coast, and Seadock, a $900 million project 25 miles offshore from Freeport, Tex.

Top officials of the projects said Monday final decisions could go right down to the deadline because of the toughness of some late regulations included in the regular licenses at the request of the Justice Department and the Federal Trade Commission.

"I do not know at this time what the decision will be but we will be calling for construction bids within one week if the license is accepted," said Hugh L. Scott, president of the Seadock consortium of seven oil companies and one petrochemical company.

"But I must say that is a big 'if'," he added.

W. B. Reed, president of the LOOP consortium of six oil companies, agreed.

"But we are moving in a drilling rig this week for some testing of a salt dome that will be used for onshore storage of the crude oil," Reed said.

Scott and Reed gave status reports on the projects at the American Petroleum Institute's annual tanker conference.

"After 4½ years of planning that cost $9 million, the ball is in our own park now and our shareholders are having to decide whether they are ready to spend up to $1 billion," Reed said.

Reed said one of the "competitive rules" added by the Justice Department and the FTC tacked on a six-month delay to permit other companies to join the consortium.

"We're down to six shareholders now after having had as many as 16 companies but the Justice Department and the FTC are worrying about our trying to freeze someone out," he said.

Scott said Seadock already has spent $19 million.

"We must have imported oil to meet our future energy needs and this facility offers the best means economically and environmentally to bring it here," Scott said.

"The one big question, though, is can we afford it — not just in dollars and cents but in the much higher cost of yielding a little bit more of our freedom to the government."

Scott said the Department of Transportation has responded to some objections by making a few changes in the license wording.

"But even with the modifications and clarifications, the license as issued promises a heavy helping of government involvement in our business, a factor that will have to weigh heavily in whatever decisions are finally made," he said.

Explorers scheduled

Reagan and Irion counties drew exploratory test sites, while Irion, Crockett and Schleicher field stepouts are planned. Also, extenders finaled in Upton, Runnels and Coke sectors.

Cities Service Oil Co. has staked site for No. 1-BU University, a 10,850-foot wildcat in Southwest Reagan, seven miles southwest of Texon.

It spots 1,980 feet from south and east lines of section 5, block 1, ULS, two miles south of the firm's No. 1-BR University, a Strawn reef oil discovery.

IRION TESTS

Texas American Oil Corp. of Midland has announced intention to drill a 2,200-foot wildcat, No. 2 Mayer, in Irion, ⅜ mile northeast of its No. 1 Mayer, an undesignated Grayburg oil strike. Location is 1,980 feet from south and 660 feet from west lines of J. P. Pittman and E. J. Vaughn survey 2, four miles northwest of Barnhart.

The discovery finaled May 6, for 1.4 barrels of oil and 1.4 barrels of water per day, through perforations at 1,591-1,756 feet.

John L. Cox of Midland has scheduled two outposts in an east extension area of the Ela Sugg (Wolfcamp) gas field of Irion.

Both are projected to 8,100 feet, and are about 18 miles northeast of Barnhart.

No. 1-K Miss Ela spots 1,650 feet from south and 1,320 feet from west lines of section 15, block 14, H&TC survey, 1¼ mile northeast of production.

No. 1-J Miss Ela, 1,320 feet from south and 1,650 feet from east lines of section 23, block 14, H&TC survey, is a 1¼-mile southwest outpost to production.

SCHLEICHER OUTPOST

Mitchell Energy Corp., Houston, has scheduled a one-mile north outpost to the Kama (Canyon sand) gas field of Southwest Schleicher. It is No. 1-8 Powell.

It spots 1,195 feet from north and 1,170 feet from east lines of section 8, block 2, GC&SF survey, 17 miles west and slightly south of Eldorado and ⅝ mile northwest of Mitchell No. 1-7 Powell, a scheduled wildcat.

The Kama field has two wells.

CROCKETT PROJECT

Dan J. Harrison Jr., Houston, intends to drill No. 7 Joe Tom Davison Jr., a ⅞-mile south outpost on the east side of the Live Oak Draw (Strawn) gas field of Crockett.

It is 1,500 feet from south and 660 feet from east lines of section 14, block F, GC&SF survey, nine miles south of Ozona. Planned depth is 9,800 feet.

Lea gas well potentials

Gulf Oil Corp. No. 1 Gulf-McKay-Federal, ½ mile south of Morrow gas production in the Lusk, North field of Lea County and ¾ mile north and slightly east of a dual Morrow gas and Bone Springs oil discovery, has been completed from the Morrow.

The calculated, absolute open flow was for 11,437 million cubic feet of gas per day, producing through perforations at 12,634-12,644 feet. No condensate was reported, however, it flowed gas and condensate on four-point tests.

Wellsite is 660 feet from south and 1,980 feet from west lines of section 34-18s-32e, 16 miles southwest of Buckeye.

Completion test slated

ATAPCO No. 1 Ellwood, Mitchell County exploratory test, 18 miles south of Colorado City, was bottomed at 7,560 feet, awaiting a completion unit, after operator set 4½-inch casing at total depth.

A drillstem test from 7,380-7,440 feet, tool open one hour and 45 minutes, recovered 30 feet of free oil, 270 feet of heavily oil- and gas-cut mud and 180 feet of heavily gas-cut mud. The sample chamber recovery was 1.8 cubic feet of gas and 800 cubic centimeters of free oil, no water. Flowing pressure was 93-248 pounds; 80-minute initial and three-hour final shut-in pressures were 3,134 and 2,879 pounds, respectively.

The project is 1,650 feet from northeast and 660 feet from northwest lines of section 27, block 16, SPRR survey, six miles east of the Ellwood, North (Yates) gas field.

DEAR ABBY

Husband gives up his affair

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: After 16 years of marriage, I discovered that my husband was having an affair with a young woman he works with. I carried on like a mad woman, told him I wouldn't put up with it and gave him a choice—her or me!

He chose me, but our relationship has been miserable ever since.

Meanwhile the tension within me is building. Should I tell him to go ahead and continue the affair in order to improve the atmosphere at home? (I'm sure that's what he's trying to accomplish.) We have three children to raise.

Perhaps if you print this it will initiate some dialogue between us. I feel as though I'm . . . LIVING WITH A ROBOT

DEAR LIVING: Don't let your husband blackmail you. He is saying, "Either you let me come and go as I please with no questions asked, or I'll sit around like a zombie and sulk in my matyrdom."

There is a third choice. Get some counseling—both of you, and try to put your marriage back on the track. If he refuses, you'd be ahead to sweep up the debris while you're still young enough and make a life without him.

DEAR ABBY: I see so many letters in your column from people complaining because some of their friends or relatives don't have good table manners. I once read that when Albert Einstein wanted a good laugh, he'd curl up with an etiquette book and go into hysterics. He thought the "rules of etiquette" were the funniest things ever written. So do I.

Why should there be only one "proper" way to eat a spear of asparagus? How ridiculous to judge a person by his table manners. My husband is the kindest, most gentle man in all this world, and if he wants to butter a dinner roll without breaking it into three pieces first, or eat peas with a spoon instead of a fork, I say, who cares? He paid for it himself, which is more than you can say for a lot of society moochers.—JOHANNA

DEAR JOHANNA: Some rules of etiquette are indeed ridiculous. If we would concern ourselves more with how we treat our fellow human beings and less with which fork to use, society would be better served.

DEAR ABBY: I foolishly married for a second time, thinking I would have companionship for the rest of my life, but I was wrong. All Abe wanted was a cook and housekeeper.

He only wants to go to visit HIS children and grandchildren. Never mine. Not only that, he is very close with a dollar. He has a lot more than I have, but he doesn't spend any of his. Only mine. We live in MY house, and I pay the taxes and upkeep.

At age 64 would you advise a separation?—SARAH

DEAR SARAH: I would advise a separation—of money, first. If Abe has money, let him spend it. Talk in money syllables. If he isn't any happier with this arrangement than you are, separate everything else.

AT WIT'S END

Wives' group pressuring networks to release husbands

By ERMA BOMBECK

"Where have you been?" asked my husband as I locked the front door.

"To my parent-without-partners meeting."

"Since when are you a single parent?"

"Since Howard Cosell found his voice. Parents-without-partners is a group of 200 women who discuss how we can compete with televised sports. Tonight was an important meeting. We are pressuring the heads of networks to either release our husbands from their grip or list them as legally dead so all of us will be free to probate the estates and remarry."

"You talk ridiculous."

"Believe me, we are not talking ridiculous. I read a story where next January, the Super Bowl is going to telecast the game during the dinner hour."

"Of course they are," said my husband. "Why, that game is expected to draw the highest ratings since 'Roots.'"

"I don't care if Kunta Kinte is playing quarterback, that game is not going to interfere with our dinner again."

"Answer me one question," he said. "Why is it women get so uptight when men watch a football game?"

"We read a poem tonight at the meeting from Melanie Ladner in Nederland, Texas, that says it all. Pay attention."

"When we stood at the altar and said, 'I do's,'

I don't recall a football being there too.

When you needed some help to get your degree,

Did football pitch in? No, friend, it was me.

When you sprained your ankle or got the flu,

Was football around to wait on you?

And what did football have to do,

With the kids who live here and look like you?

Football cares not if you live or you die,

Yet I rate so low and it rates so high,

When I took your name if I recall,

I changed it to Ladner, not Mrs. Football."

"You know what you sound like? A jealous shrew. You cannot believe there is something else on this earth that would bring pleasure to a husband, other than yourself. You resent the fact that something so basic and formless as a football can replace your standing ribs, turn a man on without so much as a fumble, keep him in a chair for five hours with simply the promise of coming back after the commercial. You're jealous!"

I tossed him a football. "Okay, Bionic Kidneys, you win. Here's your new roommate. You got four trys to make a first down. Incompleted passes, fumbles, and out of bounds all count."

That was six weeks ago. He still hasn't realized I'm gone.

Buying, care plan increases wardrobe's life

COLLEGE STATION—Ten short ideas can let each family member have a wardrobe "long" on looks and wearlife—yet within the family budget, says Beverly Rhoades, a clothing specialist, who compiled the guidelines.

Miss Rhoades is within the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

She recommends a buying, use and care plan for clothing as follows:

—Plan your family's wardrobe needs and develop a spending plan to coordinate new purchases with items you already have.

—Avoid impulse buying and fashion "fads". Don't overbuy, especially items that will be outgrown quickly, even when you find a "bargain".

—Match quality with use and expected wearlife. Select better quality for items that get the most wear for the longest time. Better fabric and workmanship (such as reinforced pockets and secure seams) increase durability and wearlife.

Lower quality is suitable for items outgrown quickly (unless they can be "handed down")—and seldom-worn items.

—Sew your own clothes for a significant savings. Use sewing skills to reinforce and repair clothing item for more wearability.

—Extend wear life with wise care practices. Repair rips and tears before laundering, follow proper laundry procedures and wash soon after wearing to avoid staining and fiber breakdown due to prolonged contact with harmful stains, bacteria and oils on the fabric.

Organist, soloist named

The organist and soloist in the wedding story of Mary Ann Miller and James Hilton Yarnell Jr. were omitted. Otis Hitchcock was organist and Rhonda Lacy was soloist.

Miss Miller and Yarnell were married in St. Luke's United Methodist Church, and the reception was held in the church Fellowship Lounge.

HOROSCOPE

By CARROLL RIGHTER

(Wed., June 8)

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Attend to those duties ahead of you without delay and don't ask others for help. Not a good day to ask for advice.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Be sure not to tread on the right of others today or you could meet with stiff opposition. You can now gain a long-cherished desire.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Anything of a civic nature needs to be handled carefully at this time. Be certain you handle credit affaires wisely.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You feel you want to delve into new projects that are interesting, but it is better to await a better day.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Don't neglect obligations you must meet today. Your mate may be moody, but don't antagonize. Think clearly and speak concisely.

VIRGO (Aug. to Sept 22) Take extra time to delve in and handle important tasks. Fellow workers are not very cooperative now, so carry on by yourself.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Take extra time to delve in and handle important tasks. Fellow workers are not very cooperative now, so carry on by yourself.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Be cheerful, even though those around you may be morose for some reason. Don't spend too lavishly on amusements that appeal to you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) An outside venture should await a better time before going ahead with it. Establish more harmony with kin.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Recheck a routine matter today and avoid a costly mistake. Being critical of an associate could bring unpleasant results now.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Not a good day for delving into financial matters since your judgment now is not up to par. Try to be helpful to others.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Be positive in any business dealings you may have today. Not a good day for group affairs. Avoid one who is your nemesis.

Amin sets flight plan

The Los Angeles Times

NAIROBI, Kenya — President Idi Amin of Uganda will fly to an undisclosed location in Europe Tuesday and cross into England by boat to attend the Commonwealth conference, Radio Uganda said Monday night.

The radio broadcast monitored in Nairobi provided no other details except to say that Amin would travel in a "special plane." The broadcast attributed the news to "a reliable source" which usually means Amin himself.

For the past few days, the unpredictable Ugandan president had been enjoying one of his favorite pastimes — baiting Britain. Almost daily he has announced that he would attend the conference or that he was reconsidering the merits or attending or that he was too busy with domestic affairs to attend.

Much to Amin's delight, Britain has reacted to each pronouncement. Conservative opposition leader Margaret Thatcher said that his presence at the conference would be "repugnant" to the British people and the chorus of protests to keep Amin out has grown steadily louder.

None of which seems to phase Amin, who had originally planned to attend the conference with an entourage of 250, including a singing and dancing group known as "The African Heartbeats."

Amin has missed the last two Commonwealth conferences, presumably because he feared being overthrown if he traveled outside Uganda. If he does attend this time, it undoubtedly will be on his mind that he himself grabbed power in a lightning coup just six years ago when his predecessor, Milton Obote, was at a similar meeting at Singapore.

Amin, however, apparently feels secure enough to leave Uganda these days despite the worldwide protests over the massacres he has engineered and the growing verbal opposition from Ugandan exiles. In recent months he has traveled to Cairo for the Afro-Arab summit and to Zaire to offer his help when Shaba Province was invaded.

Observers note that Amin's pronouncements always must be treated with a grain of salt.

Puerto Ricans not convinced mayor can make 'Chicago work'

The Los Angeles Times

CHICAGO — Acting Mayor Michael A. Bilandic, who goes to voters in Tuesday's mayoral election on the slogan that he makes "Chicago work," failed to convince Puerto Rican leaders at a meeting Monday that he will provide the assistance to make their riot-smoldering area "work" again.

"It was a waste of time," said Frank Diaz, director of the Spanish Action Committee after meeting with Bilandic, "most of us are angry at the mayor; he hasn't dealt with our situation."

"We don't have nothing," said Lydia Carrasquillo after the meeting. About 50 Puerto Ricans had requested the meeting with Bilandic in an attempt to cool things down in the Humboldt Park neighborhood of Northwest Chicago where rioting broke out Saturday night after the city's annual Puerto Rican Independence Day parade.

In the Humboldt Park area, things had returned fairly much to normal late Monday with city sanitation workers sweeping up some of the mounds of debris left in the park. The size of Chicago police contingents in the area was decreased Monday.

Bilandic had apparently not agreed to meet with the Puerto Ricans and kept them waiting for more than three hours while he gave a political speech elsewhere in the city. The Puerto Ricans were angry that he met with them only 20 minutes after keeping them waiting all morning.

It was a very long wait to get a very short meeting. People are very frustrated, said Ary Figueroa, one of the few Puerto Rican school administrators in Chicago.

Bilandic did not comment at length on the meeting but termed it "a nice cooperative meeting and they all agreed to work together with agencies of the city government to maintain calm in the community."

Whatever doubts Latino leaders have about Bilandic's leadership in recent days, the weekend riot is not expected to have any significant affect on Tuesday's election in which Bilandic faces Dennis Block, 29, the city's only Republican alderman.

Block, regarded as something of a political nonentity, has run an ill-financed and little-noticed campaign in a city that seems to have fewer Republicans in every election. Observers here say that Block will be very fortunate to receive 30 per cent of the vote.

A major complaint of Puerto Rican leaders Monday was that they had no political representation of consequence in this city.

"Pension plans can be a big headache for a small businessman. A specialist can relieve the pain.

Let's talk relief. Professionally."

Government to buy more market crude

By J.P. SMITH
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The United States government will soon start buying large amounts of crude oil on the world market for the first time and is considering buying it directly from other governments — including Saudi Arabia's — rather than the major oil companies.

The oil companies are suspicious of direct government-to-government oil deals. For one thing, they would stand to lose some profits if shut out of the transactions. They also dislike anything suggesting even remotely that the government might somehow get into the oil business.

The government is preparing to buy crude for a proposed 1-billion-barrel strategic petroleum reserve as protection in the case of any future oil embargo.

President Carter currently has authority to buy 500 million barrels of oil for the reserve by 1980, and has proposed doubling this. Under Federal Energy Administration plans the government will start buying oil later this month, and will be buying up to 1 million barrels of crude a day for the reserve by next year.

The government buys large amounts of refined petroleum products from the oil companies — gasoline, for example — but has never bought crude on this scale.

The idea of buying oil directly from other governments has not been discussed in detail with any producing country, U.S. officials say. But Tom Noel, head of FEA's reserve program, says, "We will explore any possibility for a bilateral (government-to-government) agreement with any government which would result in lower acquisition costs."

Moreover, President Carter's principal energy adviser, James R. Schlesinger Jr., is known to have raised the question of a possible direct oil buy with Saudi Crown Prince Fahd in sensitive private talks during Fahd's recent state visit here.

Saudi Oil Minister Sheikh Zaki Yamani indicated through a variety of channels before Fahd's visit that the Saudis wanted to discuss a supply arrangement for the strategic reserve, according to one official.

Fahd himself said in an interview before his U.S. visit, "We are prepared to participate in building up the U.S. strategic oil reserve in order to safeguard the future of industry and civilizationin the U.S."

Schlesinger briefed Fahd and Saudi Foreign Minister Saud al-Faisal and other Sudi officials on the reserve program. The Saudis, according to one official did not respond directly, but have invited Schlesinger to hold talks on energy questions, including the oil stockpile, later this year in Saudi Arabia.

The Saudis have the world's largest oil reserves, and now produce 10 million barrels of oil a day. They can increase production to 13 million barrels a day by 1978, and 16 million barrels a day by the 1980's.

One oil-company executive with long experience in the Middle East said if the Saudis eventually agree to participate in the strategic reserve program, "they wouldn't undersell Aramco (The Arabian-American Oil., a consortium that includes Texaco, Exxon, Mobil and Standard Oil of Calif.)."

According to U.S. officials a number of exporting countries have given some indication in the past of a willingess to discuss a bilateral sale including: Iran, Abu Dhabi and, to a lesser degree, Mexico and Venezuela.

One year before the Arab oil embargo Yamani proposed that the U.S. negotiate a supply agreement with Saudi Arabia to allow a guaranteed share of Saudi oil enter U.S. markets.

The French and the Japanese governments have been pursuing bilateral oil arrangements with the oil-rich Persian Gulf countries. France has limited crude oil supply arrangements with Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, Abu Dhabi, and Lybia and, according to one French official, has been trying to expand or renew expiring agreements with the Saudis.

The Defense Department's Defense Fuel Supply Center, which is handling the reserve purchases, will buy the first shipment — 2 million barrels — in the next weeks on the spot market. On June 14 the Defense Department will open bids for 16 million barrels. FEA expects to have 250 million barrles in storage in salt domes by the end of 1978.

FEA Administrator John F. O'Leary recently estimated that the 500 million barrel reserve will cost between $7.6 and $8.8 billion.

Although oil on the world market sells for about $14.50 a barrel, the U.S. will only pay the average acquisition cost of domestic oil — now about $11.50 per barrel due to price controls — and pass the rest of the cost on to the consumer through FEA's regulatory program.

Passing the added cost on to the consumer will save the federal government about $500 million, FEA officials say, and increase the cost of petroleum products by about one-tenth of a cent a gallon.

Pipeline recoated to diminish corrosion; concern still exists

By LARRY PRYOR
The Los Angeles Times

The 800-mile Trans Alaska Pipeline had to be recoated in an effort to lessen damaging corrosion after the company that is building the line decided the initial coating was inadequate, The Los Angeles Times has learned.

Numerous experts contacted by The Times voiced concern over whether the second coating would prove sufficient to protect the line from leaks caused by corrosion. No independent tests were conducted to determine if the coatings would peel off, sources said.

The initial coating, Scotchkote 202, has proved unsatisfactory on other large-diameter pipelines, resulting in leakage and difficult maintenance problems.

Alyeska Pipeline Service Co., the consortium of eight oil companies building the $7.7-billion pipeline, was told of the record of Scotchkote 202 on other pipelines and tried to compensate by giving the pipe a second wrapping of tape.

Alyeska also sued Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing co. (3M), makers of Scotchkote 202, and a Texas company, Surfcote, Inc., that was responsible for the initial coating of the pipeline. Since then a complicated pattern of claims and counterclaims has developed in Superior Court in Anchorage and damage at $20 million.

The litigation has progressed with little notice. 3M has made no reference to it in the company's annual report or other filings. "We do not consider it to be material litigation," said a 3M attorney.

Voluminous documents subpoenaed by Alyeska during the discovery phase of the trial have remained locked in Anchorage law offices and were not made part of the vourt record.

Corrosion engineers contacted by The Times said the ability of Scotchkote to withstand peeling, or cathodic disbonding, is important to the integrity of underground sections of the Alaska pipeline.

"If the 202 comes off, you don't have a well-adhered tape to the steel," said a Tuscon corrosion specialist, who, like almost all industry sources contacted by The Times, asked that he not be quoted by name. The main concern, he said, is that moisture can get under the wrapping and "start eating a pinhole right through."

Pipelines are coated externally to isolate the steel from surrounding moisture and minimize the corrosion process. If steel contacts moist soil, it sets up an electrical flow that eats into the pipe, eventually resulting in oil leaks.

A study by the federal office of Pipeline Safety showed corrosion to be the third largest cause of pipeline failures last year, exceeded only by damage by outside forces and construction or material defects.

Pipelines have been coated for many years by tar and asphalt. Recently, a highly competitive coating industry has developed, offering coatings of concretd, fiberglass, tape, plastics and tvin epoxy coatings, such as Scotchkote.

A second line of protection is corrosion control utilizing either a sacrifical metal, which takes the current and gets eaten up instead of the steel, or an impressed current system, where electricity is put into the pipe, setting up a countercurrent to prevent any from escaping.

Selection of the proper coating and electrical system for the Trans Alaska pipeline was particularly important because it would be a hot-oil line (up to 140 degrees) running through frozen ground.

Hot oil increases the corrosion process and promotes peeling or disbonding of the pipe coating.

Saudi price hike foreseen by journal

By JOSEPH FITCHETT
Special to The Washington Post

NICOSIA, Cyprus — The failure of the North-South dialogue will probably prompt Saudi Arabia to raise oil prices by 5 per cent, ending the two-tier split in the Organization of Petroleum Exporting countries and adding $3 million a day to the industrial world's energy bill, a well-informed oil journal predicted Monday.

The Middle East Economic Survey (Mees), which has been reliable about Saudi Arabian oil policy in the past, forecast the price hike in July as a direct result of the collapse of the Paris talks between rich and poor nations — and despite the success of Saudi Crown Prince Fahd's recent Washington meeting with President Carter.

Officials had publicly linked Saudi policy on holding the line on oil prices to progress on world economic reforms and on the Arab-Isareli problem, notably American policy in the Middle East.

Mees said the oil price issue was not broached in Washington by Carter and Fahd, but that Saudi Arabian leadership was satisfied with Carter's apparently significant steps in subscribing to the principles of a Palestinian homeland and Israeli withdrawal from all Arab territories occupied a decade ago.

Asked to raise oil-production ceilings to provide the planned American strategic reserve, the Saudis agreed to consider it, Mees said.

However, the demise of the two-year discussions between industrialized and developing nations in the North-South forum reportedly has convinced Saudi leaders they should no longer delay reunifying the OPEC oil price structure rapidly, at a slightly lower level than OPEC hawks had sought.

Mees said Saudi Arabia already had planned to raise prices by 3 per cent at the OPEC's Stockholm meeting next month, narrowing the price split that has existed for six months.

This step apparently was envisaged in response to the OPEC majority's reported decision last month to abandon a planned further 5 per cent boost — a cancellation that Mees said Monday will be announced in the coming week.

While there has been no official comment in Saudi Arabia, newspapers in Jiddha said that only a 3 per cent rise was acceptable because of Saudi Arabia's wish to woo the United States.

However, other oil sources have reported that Saudi Arabia has intended eventually to close the price gap, and the North-South failure gives Riyadh an opportunity to do it sooner rather than later.

If the Meesreport is true, Saudi Arabia (and Abu Dhabi, the only other holdout for lower prices) will add, instead of 3, the full 5 per cent to close the price gap. The extra 2 per cent rise in the Saudi price at mid-year, which Mees said could be attributed "directly to the fallout from the dialogue breakdown," will be levied on the exports of Saudi Arabia and Abu Dhabi — roughly one-third of OPEC's total production of 30 million barrels a day.

As part of the OPEC reconcilation, Saudi Arabia will stop attempting to raise its output of crude and revert to its former ceiling of 8.5 million barrels a day — plus any extras required in service contracts already signed.

Consumer agency bill lagging; lobbyists score in the House

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill that would establish a federal agency to look out for the rights of consumers is in trouble. One of its House sponsors says it would be defeated if voted on today.

When introduced early in the session, the bill appeared to be headed for easy passage, partly because it was being supported for the first time by the White House.

But heavy lobbying by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce and other business organizations has swayed congressmen away from the consumer legislation, which would create a new agency that would represent the public in hearings before other federal agencies.

Rep. Benjamin Rosenthal, D-N.Y., a sponsor of the bill, said in an interview Monday: "As of this moment, we are probably 20 to 25 votes down in the House."

Rosenthal estimated that the opponents of the new consumer agency have spent around a half-million dollars in the lobbying campaign.

"I think we underestimated the power of the opposition. I must say that they have done a very good job," he said.

Rosenthal, chairman of a consumer subcommittee and a longtime supporter of the plan to create an agency dedicated to representing the public, said "I'm still optimistic. I think passage is likely, but it is not going to be easy. We have to do some missionary work in the House."

Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., also a key supporter of the consumer agency, said the bill could pass by a comfortable margin in the Senate. "It looks like the (lobbying) pressure is concentrated in the House," he said.

Sponsors of the bill argue that consumers need to be represented before federal agencies and that business representatives dominate such proceedings with their lawyers and lobbyists. Consumer opinions do not get through to the agencies, sponsors say.

Opponents say the agency would only add another layer of bureaucracy that would increase the cost of doing business.

The House has passed bills three times to set up a consumer agency and the Senate has done so twice. But the bills never became law, primarily due to opposition from the administrations of Richard Nixon and Gerald Ford.

Other opponents of the bill include the National Association of Manufacturers, Grocery Manufacturers of America and the Business Roundtable.

Britain's Queen Elizabeth II leaves Buckingham Palace in London this morning in her ornate golden coach enroute to St. Paul's Cathedral to attend a service of thanksgiving in honor of her Silver Jubilee, the 25th anniversary of her reign. (AP Laserphoto)

Millions cheer Queen Elizabeth

By MICHAEL WEST

LONDON (AP) — Millions of cheering Britons and foreign visitors jammed London today as Queen Elizabeth II and her husband Prince Philip rode in the golden state coach to celebrate her Silver Jubilee at a thanksgiving service in St. Paul's Cathedral.

The queen wore pink. Her husband was in the uniform of an Admiral of the Fleet.

Riding horseback behind them was Prince Charles, the heir to the throne, in the uniform of the Welsh Guards.

The queen's 2½-mile route from Buckingham Palace to Sir Christopher Wren's 267-year-old cathedral in the heart of London was lined six-deep by dawn. Hundreds spent a wet, chilly night on the sidewalks to get the best places.

Rain alternated with bright sunshine during the morning, but the rain stopped before Princess Anne, the queen's daughter, and her husband, Capt. Mark Phillips, left the palace in the first open carriage.

Others members of the royal family followed in carriages and coaches. More than 3,000 troops and 10 bands escorted the royal processions.

The state coach stopped briefly once during the procession, at Temple Bar, the entrance to the City, as the financial square mile in the heart of Greater London is called.

There, in an ancient ritual, the Lord Mayor of London extended the Pearl Sword given to the City by Queen Elizabeth I, and Queen Elizabeth II leaned through the opened door of the coach to touch the sword in proof of her sovereignty over the City.

As the state coach left the Temple Bar, a 62-gun salute began from the Tower of London.

The crowds shrugged off the rain, calling it "Queen's weather." It also rained in 1953 during her coronation, they recalled.

The jubilee celebration commemorates Elizabeth's accession to the throne on Feb. 6, 1952, following the death of her father, King George VI. The celebration, like that of the queen's birthday each year, was delayed until June in the hope of good weather.

President Carter's son Chip and his wife arrived Monday night to represent the President at the jubilee events.

Also on hand were representatives of Commonwealth countries in London for an eight-day summit meeting starting Wednesday. But President Idi Amin, whose presence was not wanted by the British government, did not leave Uganda until today, and the broadcast announcement of his departure indicated he could not arrive before Wednesday.

The queen opened the jubilee celebration Monday night by putting a torch to a 30-foot bonfire in Windsor Great Park. Within 15 minutes a network of 102 other hilltop fires across Britain were blazing, and satellite television showed a fire being lit in New Zealand, a British Commonwealth country on the other side of the world.

Police estimated more than 300,000 persons were in the park below Windsor Castle for the bonfire and the fireworks and ox-roasting that followed.

The jubilee celebration was protested as a throwback to the days of Empire by the tiny British Communist Party, young radicals to the left of the Communists and a handful of disgruntled intellectuals.

"It's all for the tourists," said the left-wing New Statesman magazine.

Transportation survey planned by task force

In an effort to determine if a public transportation system is needed in Midland, a special task force directed by the Midland Chamber of Commerce has planned a survey to appear in the Sunday edition of The Midland Reporter-Telegram.

The task force will also try to determine the cost and destinations of such a system.

Several city groups and organizations have taken steps to provide transportation on both a public and private basis.

One example is the Midland Senior Services organizations, in conjunction with Midland College, which operates a 12-passenger van that runs along a suggested schedule five days a week.

The Senior Services-Midland College service can be obtained on a "dial-a-bus" basis if the Senior Services office is called in advance. During 1977, the van carried 124 different persons in 782 trips. The service is free.

Midland Senior Citizens, Inc. also uses a 12-passenger van to transport senior citizens to and from the city-sponsored Senior Center. The van is operated five days a week from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The service is available only to persons with no other means of transportation. Riders must call the Senior Center office by 3:30 p.m. on the day prior to the day of the trip to get the service.

During April, the Senior Center reported serving about 200 senior citizens. The service is also free.

The Midland Community Action Agency provides a similar service to elderly and handicapped within the community. The MCAA vans are available to transport eligible citizens to such places as the grocery store and other necessary trips, but the MCAA maintains a policy of allowing visits to medical facilities as priority over other trips.

Casa de Amigos also operates a 12-passenger van between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. five days a week for "essential" trips such as medical treatment, vocational rehabilitation, social security pick-ups, bill-paying, and grocery shopping.

Other Midland agencies offer transportation services on a strictly volunteer basis. Action Line FISH uses volunteer drivers who are not reimbursed for mileage or time.

Other transportation services are limited only to clients as with the Mental Health-Mental Rehabilitation program.

There is an increasing trend among businesses to encourage carpooling. One downtown business offers daily van transportation from the worker's home to the office for a monthly fee. Also, some companies make preferred parking areas available to groups that carpool regularly.

Homosexual rights law vote today

MIAMI (AP) — With a bitter and increasingly bizarre campaign over, both sides predicted narrow victory in today's referendum on whether to keep the Dade County law that forbids discrimination against homosexuals in housing and jobs.

Both sides added that they would appeal an adverse decision to the U.S. Supreme Court and would continue to wage their partisan battles on a national front.

Gay rights supporters planned to celebrate tonight at the posh Dupont Plaza Hotel. The Save Our Children group, which opposes the law, will gather at the Miami Beach Holiday Inn — which overlooks a popular gay beach.

Election officials predicted that 30 to 35 per cent of the county's 700,000 voters would turn out.

The ordinance was passed four months ago by the county commission.

But the commission was forced to call the referendum after singer Anita Bryant, who promotes citrus products for the state's growers, helped form and lead Save Our Children Inc. in a petition drive to repeal the law.

Save Our Children claims that homosexuals try to recruit children to their lifestyle. Miss Bryant said she opposes the law because private and religious schools would be forced to hire homosexuals.

Miss Bryant's pronouncements against the ordinance helped publicize the referendum and stimulated fund-raising efforts by gay groups.

Bob Daley, a spokesman for Save Our Children, said Monday, "The best prediction I have is that we will win 55 to 45 per cent."

Commission votes against kennel

In a 5 to 3 decision, the Midland Planning and Zoning Commission voted to recommend disapproval of a request by the SPCA for a dog kennel on a 1.33 acre tract of land on the Andrews Highway near Idlewilde Drive.

The vote followed an hour-long public hearing on the request which was dominated by protests from persons living near the site of the proposed kennel.

Most of those persons objecting to the kennel cited noise factors as the main reason for their opposition.

Dalton Byerly, director of the Midland SPCA said that between $4,000 and $5,000 had already been invested to improve existing structures on the site.

"I was shocked," Byerly said of the decision. "For a while I really thought things were going our way."

Byerly said it has not been decided by the board of directors whether or not the SPCA will take their specific use proposal to the city council following the negative recommendation from the planning and zoning commission.

Presently the SPCA operates a shelter for cats and puppies and an animal rescue van from its facilities at 5101 Andrews Highway.

The specific use permit would have enabled the SPCA to operate a kennel for large dogs. Without the permit, Byerly said today that the SPCA is in effect out of business at that location.

The public hearing followed a slide show of the proposed site location and ground adjacent to the dog shelter. Several people who gathered for the public hearing commented that their residences had not been included in the presentation.

Byerly countered charges that the proposed animal shelter would be a health hazard by telling the commission that all waste materials would be disposed of in a closed septic tank. He said someone would live on the premises of the shelter and that this would minimize any barking that the dogs might do.

Commissioner Walt Temple made the motion for disapproval while commissioners Robert Cochrane, John Phipps and E. F. "Gene" Motter, voted against that motion.

In other action, the planning and zoning commission:

— Approved a request by Bill Busby for a specific use permit that would allow on-premises consumption of alcoholic beverages at a proposed "oyster bar" on the northwest corner of Baird and Wall Streets.

— Approved a request by Larry Burns for a zone change from IF-3, single family district, to C3, commercial district, on the 900 block of Cater and Collins avenues, and Camp and Connell streets.

Some cooling forecast

A break in the heat will provide some relief for at least today. The National Weather Service at Midland Air Terminal predicts a high for today in the upper 80s with the low tonight in the mid-60s.

A slight chance of thunderstorms exists for today and tonight. Probability of precipitation is 20 per cent today and 30 per cent tonight. Partly cloudy skies should continue through Wednesday.

Temperatures Wednesday should be back in the mid-90s.

Easterly winds from 10 to 20 miles per hour are expected today, becoming southeasterly from five to 10 miles per hour tonight.

Andrews reported temperatures of 68 degrees this morning with partly cloudy skies.

Clear skies and hot weather was reported by Big Spring, Crane, Rankin, Lamesa and Odessa.

Stanton reported cooler temperatures and clear skies.

Big Lake reported clear and warm this morning with no breeze and a dew.

Some cooling was expected in Texas today after several days of scorching temperatures in the state.

Many stations in northern sections of the state recorded readings above 100 Monday, including 102 in Dallas and Tyler, 101 in Fort Worth and 100 in Wichita Falls.

But a weak cold front that passed through the Panhandle and South Plains during the night was expected to have enough effect to at least keep the thermometer in double figures.

At dawn, the cold front was located along a Sherman, Tex., to Roswell, N.M., line.

Partly cloudy skies were reported in the Panhandle and fair skies over the remainder of the state, except for at McAllen in the lower Rio Grande Valley.

Predawn temperatures over Texas before dawn ranged from the 57 at Dalhart and 63 at El Paso to 74 at Austin and 75 at Victoria and Palacios.

Showers and thunderstorms developed over central and southeastern portions of Texas and also along the Rio Grande from El Paso to near Presidio and from Eagle Pass to the Lower Valley late Monday afternoon and evening.

PBRPC board meeting slated

The Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission (PBRPC) Board of Directors will meet at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday in the PBRPC conference room at the Midland Regional Air Terminal.

The board of directors will consider accepting review and comments of the Regional Development Review Committee on the community development grants for the cities of Midland and Goldsmith, and Midland County.

They will consider accepting the review and comment of the Human Resources Advisory on the 1978 Head Start program for the Big Spring Independent School District, and a project placement for Big Spring State Hospital.

In other action the board of directors will:

— Consider approval of by-laws of the Regional Alcoholism and Drug Abuse Advisory Council.

— Consider approval of the Regional Drug Abuse Prevention Plan.

HAVING A RUN at an obstacle course is Nathan Clemow, 8, a member of Pack 6. Nathan and about 50 other Cub Scouts are attending the Chaparral District, Boy Scouts of America, Day Camp at Hogan Park. The camp continues through Friday.

Backers still debate superport price tag

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON (AP) — Planning is continuing for proposed crude oil supertanker terminals off the Texas and Louisiana coasts even though backers still are debating whether to pledge nearly $2 billion for the projects.

The deadline for accepting federal licenses finalized in the closing weeks of the Ford administration is Aug. 1.

LOOP would be a $910 million terminal 19 miles off the Louisiana coast, and Seadock, a $900 million project 25 miles offshore from Freeport, Tex.

ENERGY
OIL & GAS

Top officials of the projects said Monday final decisions could go right down to the deadline because of the toughness of some late regulations included in the regular licenses at the request of the Justice Department and the Federal Trade Commission.

"I do not know at this time what the decision will be but we will be calling for construction bids within one week if the license is accepted," said Hugh L. Scott, president of the Seadock consortium of seven oil companies and one petrochemical company.

"But I must say that is a big 'if'," he added.

W. B. Reed, president of the LOOP consortium of six oil companies, agreed.

"But we are moving in a drilling rig this week for some testing of a salt dome that will be used for onshore storage of the crude oil," Reed said.

Scott and Reed gave status reports on the projects at the American Petroleum Institute's annual tanker conference.

"After 4½ years of planning that cost $9 million, the ball is in our own park now and our shareholders are having to decide whether they are ready to spend up to $1 billion," Reed said.

Reed said one of the "competitive rules" added by the Justice Department and the FTC tacked on a six-month delay to permit other companies to join the consortium.

"We're down to six shareholders now after having had as many as 16 companies but the Justice Department and the FTC are worrying about our trying to freeze someone out," he said.

Scott said Seadock already has spent $19 million.

"We must have imported oil to meet our future energy needs and this facility offers the best means economically and environmentally to bring it here," Scott said.

"The one big question, though, is can we afford it — not just in dollars and cents but in the much higher cost of yielding a little bit more of our freedom to the government."

Scott said the Department of Transportation has responded to some objections by making a few changes in the license wording.

"But even with the modifications and clarifications, the license as issued promises a heavy helping of government involvement in our business, a factor that will have to weigh heavily in whatever decisions are finally made," he said.

Champlin announces operations changes

FORT WORTH — Champlin Petroleum Co. has combined its entire refining, petrochemical and marketing operations into one department to be headed by Frederick M. Otto as vice president-Manufacturing and Marketing, reports William T. Smith, Champlin president.

Formerly vice president-Refining, Otto will be responsible for the management and growth of Champlin's total downstream operations, including all manufacturing, marketing, engineering, supply and distribution, transportation and petrochemical activities.

"This consolidation will aid Champlin's growth, improve operating efficiency and increase profitability as we expand our petroleum refining and petrochemical manufacturing capability," Smith said.

Otto is president and director of the subsidiary, Champlin Petrochemicals, Inc., and serves as a director of Champlin Petroleum, Co. and as a director of Calnev Pipe Line Co.

Under the new organization, Champlin now has a Mid-Continent Area office at Tulsa, headed by William E. Biggerstaff, with four divisions at Houston — Manufacturing and Transportation, Supply and Distribution, Petrochemicals, and Gulf Coast Area Marketing.

Robert M. Ponder will manage the Analysis and Operations Division at Fort Worth.

Huge core rumbles toward Texas' first nuclear power operation

DALLAS (AP) — The site of Texas' first nuclear power plant in Somervell County doesn't look much different from other construction sites — dug-up earth, steel rods and the makings of concrete — but things will be different next week.

A gargantuan 347-ton steel cylinder, 44 feet long and 22 feet in diameter, was rumbling down the railroad tracks Monday on its own special car, destined to become the core of the nuclear plant.

The power plant will be steam operated, just like gas or coal fired generating stations, but water will be heated by nuclear fuel within the cylinder's 14½-foot core.

Manufactured in Chattanooga, Tenn., the huge cylinder drifted by barge 1,600 miles down the Tennessee, Ohio and Mississippi Rivers before traveling along the Intracoastal Waterway to Houston.

The cylinder was then loaded on a specially designed rail car for the 325-mile trip north. It is scheduled to arrive June 14.

After several months of construction, the cylinder will be lowered into a concrete bed.

Dallas Power and Light (DP&L), Texas Electric Service Company and Texas Power and Light Company are jointly building two nuclear power plants at Glen Rose, about 75 miles southwest of Dallas.

When completed, the nuclear reactors will be embedded in 17,000 cubic yards of concrete per reactor, roughly the same amount of concrete at Dallas-Fort worth airport.

According to DP&L, uranium fuel will not be loaded into the reactor vessel until the plant is ready to operate in the 1980s.

By 1983, nuclear-generated power is expected to account for 20 per cent of DP&L's electricity.

There are 65 nuclear power generating plants operating in the United States currently.

Panel approves plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — An energy plan approved by a congressional panel would require homeowners to install insulation and meet federal guidelines for energy efficiency before they could sell their homes.

Despite Republican objections that the plan would constitute government intrusion on the privacy of homeowners, the House energy and power subcommittee gave its approval to the mandatory energy proposal Monday.

A spokesman for President Carter told the energy subcommittee the administration would not oppose such mandatory legislation.

Under the bill approved by the panel and sent to the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee, a set of federal home heating and insulation standards would be drafted by 1980. The standards could be put into effect as early as 1982, but the government would have the discretion to delay making them mandatory as a condition of the sale of a home until 1985.

A key provision of the legislation says no home that fails to meet federal energy-saving standards could be sold if the sale involved loans or loan guarantees backed by the government or loans from any bank or savings and loan that receives federal financial assistance.

The provision would not apply to homes of people considered too poor to finance insulation, to homes to be sold for business purposes and homes that have little remaining useful value. Another standard would exclude houses where home insulation could not be justified economically.

It was estimated that as many as 10 million of some 74 million homes are sold each year.

As part of his energy proposal, President Carter asked for a voluntary approach to making American homes more energy efficient.

The President urged Congress to give homeowners incentive to voluntarily insulate their homes. Carter wants legislation that would allow a homeowner to deduct part of the costs of such improvements from his taxes. That proposal is before the Ways and Means Committee.

DEAR ABBY

Husband gives up his affair

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: After 16 years of marriage, I discovered that my husband was having an affair with a young woman he works with. I carried on like a mad woman, told him I wouldn't put up with it and gave him a choice—her or me!

He chose me, but our relationship has been miserable ever since.

Meanwhile the tension within me is building. Should I tell him to go ahead and continue the affair in order to improve the atmosphere at home? (I'm sure that's what he's trying to accomplish.) We have three children to raise.

Perhaps if you print this it will initiate some dialogue between us. I feel as though I'm . . . LIVING WITH A ROBOT

DEAR LIVING: Don't let your husband blackmail you. He is saying, "Either you let me come and go as I please with no questions asked, or I'll sit around like a zombie and sulk in my matyrdom."

There is a third choice. Get some counseling—both of you, and try to put your marriage back on the track. If he refuses, you'd be ahead to sweep up the debris while you're still young enough and make a life without him.

DEAR ABBY: I see so many letters in your column from people complaining because some of their friends or relatives don't have good table manners. I once read that when Albert Einstein wanted a good laugh, he'd curl up with an etiquette book and go into hysterics. He thought the "rules of etiquette" were the funniest things ever written. So do I.

Why should there be only one "proper" way to eat a spear of asparagus? How ridiculous to judge a person by his table manners. My husband is the kindest, most gentle man in all this world, and if he wants to butter a dinner roll without breaking it into three pieces first, or eat peas with a spoon instead of a fork, I say, who cares? He paid for it himself, which is more than you can say for a lot of society moochers.—JOHANNA

DEAR JOHANNA: Some rules of etiquette are indeed ridiculous. If we would concern ourselves more with how we treat our fellow human beings and less with which fork to use, society would be better served.

DEAR ABBY: I foolishly married for a second time, thinking I would have companionship for the rest of my life, but I was wrong. All Abe wanted was a cook and housekeeper.

He only wants to go to visit HIS children and grandchildren. Never mine. Not only that, he is very close with a dollar. He has a lot more than I have, but he doesn't spend any of his. Only mine. We live in MY house, and I pay the taxes and upkeep.

At age 64 would you advise a separation?—SARAH

DEAR SARAH: I would advise a separation—of money, first. If Abe has money, let him spend it. Talk in money syllables. If he isn't any happier with this arrangement than you are, separate everything else.

AT WIT'S END

Wives' group pressuring networks to release husbands

By ERMA BOMBECK

"Where have you been?" asked my husband as I locked the front door.

"To my parent-without-partners meeting."

"Since when are you a single parent?"

"Since Howard Cosell found his voice. Parents-without-partners is a group of 200 women who discuss how we can compete with televised sports. Tonight was an important meeting. We are pressuring the heads of networks to either release our husbands from their grip or list them as legally dead so all of us will be free to probate the estates and remarry."

"You talk ridiculous."

"Believe me, we are not talking ridiculous. I read a story where next ~~January, the Super~~ Bowl is going to telecast the game during the dinner hour."

"Of course they are," said my husband. "Why, that game is expected to draw the highest ratings since 'Roots.'"

"I don't care if Kunta Kinte is playing quarterback, that game is not going to interfere with our dinner again."

"Answer me one question," he said. "Why is it women get so uptight when ~~men watch a~~ football game?"

"We read a poem tonight at the meeting from Melanie Ladner in Nederland, Texas, that says it all. Pay attention."

"When we stood at the altar and said, 'I do's,'

I don't recall a football being there too.

When you needed some help to get your degree,

Did football pitch in? No, friend, it was me.

When you sprained your ankle or got the flu,

Was football around to wait on you?

And what did football have to do,

With the kids who live here and look like you?

Football cares not if you live or you die,

Yet I rate so low and it rates so high,

When I took your name if I recall,

I changed it to Ladner, not Mrs. Football."

"You know what you sound like? A jealous shrew. You cannot believe there is something else on this earth that would bring pleasure to a husband, other than yourself. You resent the fact that something so basic and formless as a football can replace your standing ribs, turn a man on without so much as a fumble, keep him in a chair for five hours with simply the promise of coming back after the commercial. You're jealous!"

I tossed him a football. "Okay, Bionic Kidneys, you win. Here's your new roommate. You got four trys to make a first down. Incompleted passes, fumbles, and out of bounds all count."

That was six weeks ago. He still hasn't realized I'm gone.

Buying, care plan increases wardrobe's life

COLLEGE STATION—Ten short ideas can let each family member have a wardrobe "long" on looks and wearlife—yet within the family budget, says Beverly Rhoades, a clothing specialist, who compiled the guidelines.

Miss Rhoades is within the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

She recommends a buying, use and care plan for clothing as follows:

—Plan your family's wardrobe needs and develop a spending plan to coordinate new purchases with items you already have.

—Avoid impulse buying and fashion "fads". Don't overbuy, especially items that will be outgrown quickly, even when you find a "bargain".

—Match quality with use and expected wearlife. Select better quality for items that get the most wear for the longest time. Better fabric and workmanship (such as reinforced pockets and secure seams) increase durability and wearlife.

Lower quality is suitable for items outgrown quickly (unless they can be "handed down")—and seldom-worn items.

—Sew your own clothes for a significant savings. Use sewing skills to reinforce and repair clothing item for more wearability.

—Extend wear life with wise care practices. Repair rips and tears before laundering, follow proper laundry procedures and wash soon after wearing to avoid staining and fiber breakdown due to prolonged contact with harmful stains, bacteria and oils on the fabric.

Organist, soloist named

The organist and soloist in the wedding story of Mary Ann Miller and James Hilton Yarnell Jr. were omitted. Otis Hitchcock was organist and Rhonda Lacy was soloist.

Miss Miller and Yarnell were married in St. Luke's United Methodist Church, and the reception was held in the church Fellowship Lounge.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You feel you want to delve into new projects that are interesting, but it is better to await a better day.

Amin sets flight plan

The Los Angeles Times

NAIROBI, Kenya — President Idi Amin of Uganda will fly to an undisclosed location in Europe Tuesday and cross into England by boat to attend the Commonwealth conference, Radio Uganda said Monday night.

The radio broadcast monitored in Nairobi provided no other details except to say that Amin would travel in a "special plane." The broadcast attributed the news to "a reliable source" which usually means Amin himself.

For the past few days, the unpredictable Ugandan president had been enjoying one of his favorite pastimes — baiting Britain. Almost daily he has announced that he would attend the conference or that he was reconsidering the merits or attending or that he was too busy with domestic affairs to attend.

Much to Amin's delight, Britain has reacted to each pronouncement. Conservative opposition leader Margaret Thatcher said that his presence at the conference would be "repugnant" to the British people and the chorus of protests to keep Amin out has grown steadily louder.

None of which seems to phase Amin, who had originally planned to attend the conference with an entourage of 250, including a singing and dancing group known as "The African Heartbeats."

Amin has missed the last two Commonwealth conferences, presumably because he feared being overthrown if he traveled outside Uganda. If he does attend this time, it undoubtedly will be on his mind that he himself grabbed power in a lightning coup just six years ago when his predecessor, Milton Obote, was at a similar meeting at Singapore.

Amin, however, apparently feels secure enough to leave Uganda these days despite the worldwide protests over the massacres he has engineered and the growing verbal opposition from Ugandan exiles. In recent months he has traveled to Cairo for the Afro-Arab summit and to Zaire to offer his help when Shaba Province was invaded.

Observers note that Amin's pronouncements always must be treated with a grain of salt.

Puerto Ricans not convinced mayor can make 'Chicago work'

The Los Angeles Times

CHICAGO — Acting Mayor Michael A. Bilandic, who goes to voters in Tuesday's mayoral election on the slogan that he makes "Chicago work," failed to convince Puerto Rican leaders at a meeting Monday that he will provide the assistance to make their riot-smoldering area "work" again.

"It was a waste of time," said Frank Diaz, director of the Spanish Action Committee after meeting with Bilandic, "most of us are angry at the mayor; he hasn't dealt with our situation."

"We don't have nothing," said Lydia Carrasquillo after the meeting. About 50 Puerto Ricans had requested the meeting with Bilandic in an attempt to cool things down in the Humboldt Park neighborhood of Northwest Chicago where rioting broke out Saturday night after the city's annual Puerto Rican Independence Day parade.

In the Humboldt Park area, things had returned fairly much to normal late Monday with city sanitation workers sweeping up some of the mounds of debris left in the park. The size of Chicago police contingents in the area was decreased Monday.

Bilandic had apparently not agreed to meet with the Puerto Ricans and kept them waiting for more than three hours while he gave a political speech elsewhere in the city. The Puerto Ricans were angry that he met with them only 20 minutes after keeping them waiting all morning.

It was a very long wait to get a very short meeting. People are very frustrated, said Ary Figueroa, one of the few Puerto Rican school administrators in Chicago.

Bilandic did not comment at length on the meeting but termed it "a nice cooperative meeting and they all agreed to work together with agencies of the city government to maintain calm in the community."

Whatever doubts Latino leaders have about Bilandic's leadership in recent days, the weekend riot is not expected to have any significant affect on Tuesday's election in which Bilandic faces Dennis Block, 29, the city's only Republican alderman.

Block, regarded as something of a political nonentity, has run an ill-financed and little-noticed campaign in a city that seems to have fewer Republicans in every election. Observers here say that Block will be very fortunate to receive 30 per cent of the vote.

A major complaint of Puerto Rican leaders Monday was that they had no political representation of consequence in this city.

"Pension plans can be a big headache for a small businessman. A specialist can relieve the pain.

Let's talk relief. Professionally."

Dr. Finley prescribes for baseball's aches, pains

By WILL GRIMSLEY

CHICAGO (AP) — There are three things that Charles O. Finley particularly dislikes— white baseballs, baseball commissioners and red ink.

To his mind, they are all related, contributing to the demise of the great national passtime.

"What baseball needs is leadership," the maverick owner of the Oakland A's told 160 sports editors, taking another pot shot at Commissioner Bowie Kuhn. "The stupidity of most of the club owners is unbelievable."

ANALYSIS

TO ILLUSTRATE his point, Charlie O. brought along three plastic baseballs of garrish orange and tossed them among the luncheon guests at The Associated Press Sports Editors convention. The balls were fielded nicely.

"See," he said, "if they had been white, you would have dropped all three."

The controversial Oakland boss then proceeded to present his own private prescription for the rescue the game, to wit: (1),-orange baseballs for better visibiltiy; (2), a walk on three balls instead of four; (3), pinch hitters; (4), interleague play.

"In football, it's 11 men against 11," he said, "In basketball, five against five; in hockey six against six. In baseball, it's one against nine—one man out there with a bat.

"The catcher and pitcher go into cahoots on how to stop the batter. Then they send the signals out to the guys in the field. The trouble with baseball is it is out of balance. The offense ought to be balanced with the defense."

FINLEY INSISTED that baseball must break the strangle hold of tradition and "get a shot in the arm—it ought to be where the action is."

"We can't have a notary running baseball," he added, refering to Kuhn, a lawyer. "We've got to have someone who understands the game." He said he had a half dozen in mind but wouldn't name them.

Finley is a long time adversary of the baseball establishment, a paid-up tennant in the commissioner's dog house. He has just appealed a $3.5 million suit which went against him on the voiding by Kuhn of a sale of three 1976 players. He says he is preparing another suit but refuses to give details.

"Let him wiggle out of this one," Finley said, leaving Kuhn to wait for the other shoe to drop.

Charlie O. was dapper in a light summer suit and in fine vocal fettle for his hour's address, delivered largely off the cuff.

HE ACKNOWLEDGED he made a mistake in moving his franchise to Oakland from Kansas City and was convinced that the Bay Area could not support the A's as well as the San Francisco Giants.

The team never drew well, he said, even when it was winning five division titles and three straight World Series in the early 1970s.

Those were the years that Finley had players such as Reggie Jackson, Joe Rudi, Gene Tenace, Rollie Fingers, Sal Bando and Bert Campaneris, who all have gone to other clubs in the mammoth free agent turnover.

"We had no superstars on that team," Finley said. "What we had was a player above average at every position. Now these guys have scattered and look what happens when they don't have all of that help.

"Take Rudi, that cowboy (Gene Autrey, California Angels) told Rudi 'I'll give a you $1 million bonus and $1 million for the next five years' and Milwaukee paid $1.7 million for Bando. He was the worst fielding third baseman I ever saw.

"I replaced Rudi with this kid, Mitchell Page. He has more home runs and a better batting average than Rudi. Wayne Gross is hitting more than Bando and is twice a better fielder. I was paying each of them $19,000. Now I've raised it to $30,000.

"I earned my money by the sweat of my brow. No way I'm going to go bankrupt throwing money away on an athlete. When that cowboy and all the other suckers realize how little what they got has helped them, they'll wake up. Me? I'm going to just sit and wait."

Rain cuts short Palmer's charge

By The Associated Press

Arnold Palmer and 128 other golfers saw rain cut short their charge for 40 berths in the prestigious U.S. Open tournament later this month. The massive field at Charlotte, N.C. was to have played 36 holes Monday to fill the spots allotted top finishers in the regional competition, but thundershowers kept all but a few from completing play.

Bob E. Smith of Hawaii was the top early finisher, totalling 139 for a two-stroke lead over George Archer and John Lister of New Zealand. Palmer was another stroke back. Forrest Fezler, Vic Regalado, Barry Jaeckel and John Schlee were four strokes behind the leader.

Play was to resume Tuesday, as was competition at Los Angeles, Washington, Atlanta, Ann Arbor, Mich., New York and Memphis for the 260 golfers contesting 42 places in the prestigious Open, which will be played June 16-19 at the Southern Hills Country Club in Tulsa, Okla.

A total of 41 players are exempt from qualifying for the Open. Among them are the last five Open and PGA champions, the 25 top money winners on the 1976 tour, and this year's top 10 money winners through the closing of entries April 27.

Play concluded Monday at the six other sites where 322 non-exempt players raced for 67 places at Denver, Chicago, Kansas City, Cincinnati, Johnstown, Pa., and Fort Worth, Tex.

Among the others who completed their rounds at Charlotte were Randy Glover of Johnsonville, S.C., Raymond Thompson of Villanova, Pa., and Gary Koch of Lakeland, Fla., all of whom totaled 143. Larry Ziegler and Ed Sneed shot 146 with Bob Galloway of Rock Hill, S.C. at 147 and Steve Forrest of Mount Airy, S.C. another stroke back.

Bob Murphy and Billy Sullivan of Jacksonville, Fla. were at 149 and Dave Eichelberger at 152.

The next-largest field Monday was at Chicago, where there were 40 players for six spots in the Open. Gary Jacobson of Minnetonka, Minn., shot a 136 to lead sectional qualifiers. Four strokes behind was Bob Brue of Mequon, Wis. while Garry Hopkins of Highland Park, Ill., was at 142. Other qualifiers were Chris Marszalek of Arlington Heights, Ill., Dennis Tiziani of Madison, Wis., and Mike Harrigan of Medinah, Ill.

At Fort Worth, Scott Stegner of Dallas and Guy Cullins of Denton, Tex., tied for the top spot with 141. The other qualifiers were Chuck Coatney of Ponca City, Okla., amateur Randy Sonnier of Lafayette, La., and Danny Passon of Fort Worth.

The four berths at Kansas City were filled by Ron Streck of Tulsa, Okla., Steve Spray of St. Louis, Vince Bizik of Overland Park, Kan., and Bill Hall of St. Louis.

There were five spots available at Johnstown and three at Denver. The Pennsylvania qualifiers were John Calabria of Hamberg, N.Y., who led with 142, one stroke better than John Fought of Portland, Ore.

Mets cool off Midland Cubs

JACKSON—Jackson's George Milke temporarily stopped Midland's drive for the Texas League West Division lead here Monday night as the Mets' hurler tossed a five-hit shutout at the Cubs for a booming 9-0 victory.

The loss left Midland a game and one-half behind El Paso in the chase for the first half championship. Midland, however, comes home Wednesday to face San Antonio in Cubs Stadium after completing a 6-4 road trip. Midland ended the Jackson series for the year with a 6-4 record against the Mets.

The victory was the first win for Milke as a starter and his first victory since April 27 when he defeated Arkansas in relief. It was the Mets' fourth shutout of the year and two of them came against Midland. The Cubs were no-hit against Jackson earlier in the series.

Milke got all the help he needed in the first inning when Marshall Brant cleared the bases with a three-run double. Jackson later chased loser Mark Covert (4-3) in the fifth inning with a four-run barrage. A single by Bill Gifford was the big blow and scored two runs. Jackson added two more runs in the seventh for the easy win.

Milke was in very little trouble during the night as he struck out five Midland batters while walking four. He spaced five singles to go the distance

Catfish refinds it, Tiant claims he never lost it

By The Associated Press

Catfish Hunter says he was glad to find it again. Luis Tiant insists he never lost it.

Hunter's expression of relief and Tiant's vote of self-confidence were voiced after the frustrated veteran pitchers claimed long sought victories Monday night.

"Everything was working well. I kept feeling good, so they left me in there," said Hunter, who pitched a six-hitter, leading the New York Yankees to a 9-2 victory over the Texas Rangers for his first triumph since opening day.

Before his strong performance against the Rangers, Hunter had voiced fears about his future as a pitcher. "It's the most concerned I've ever been about my arm," said the former Cy Young Award winner who has been troubled by arm miseries all season.

Tiant, meanwhile, was exuding confidence after combining with Bill Campbell on a five-hit, 1-0 victory over the Kansas City Royals. It was Tiant's third victory of the season but only his first since April 30.

Tiant noted: "You have to feel pressure in your head. But I've been doing that to myself. Tonight, I tried to get away from that."

Reggie Jackson hit two home runs and knocked in four runs in support of Hunter's sharp pitching. Jackson was greeted with a round of boos when he stepped to the plate in the second inning of the game at Arlington, Tex.

El Paso edges Tulsa

By The Associated Press

John Roslund struck out Tulsa slugger Dan Duran in relief to save a 12-9 victory for El Paso Monday night as Tulsa came within shouting distance of tying the game in the ninth inning.

El Paso had taken an early 8-1 lead in the game, but Tulsa rallied in later innings. When Duran came up t bat, two runners were already on base and he represented the tying run.

In other Texas League action, San Antonio downed Shreveport 3-1, Jackson shut out Midland 9-0, and Arkansas whipped Amarillo 12-2.

Jackson pitcher George Milke went all the way and evened his record at 2-2, giving up only five hits and three walks to Midland. Losing pitcher Mark Covert fell to 4-3.

Designated hitter Dave Bialas hit a first inning grand slam home run to lead Arkansas to an easy victory over Amarillo.

Marv Webb slugged a tworun homer in the tenth inning to break a 1-1 tie and put San Antonio in the winner's circle.

4 Canadiens picked

MONTREAL (AP) — During the 47 seasons in which the National Hockey League has named all-star teams, the Montreal Canadiens have had 26 players selected to the first team and 59 to the second, a total of 129 players of a possible 367.

The Canadiens added five to their total Monday night, placing four on this the 1976-77 first team and one on the second in the voting conducted by the Professional Hockey Writers' Association.

The four Canadiens on the first team were the first time that had happened to Montreal since 1958 when goaltender Jacques Plante, defenseman Doug Harvey, center Henri Richard and right wing Bernie Geoffrion were named.

Dionne's selection was the first by a Kings' player to the first team while Salming was the first Toronto player to be named to the team since the late Tim Horton.

Bannister has advice for No. 1 draft pick

NEW YORK (AP) — If Floyd Bannister could sit down today and talk with the No. 1 choice in baseball's amateur freeagent draft, he'd have plenty to say.

"The first thing I'd tell him would be 'congratulations,' because it's quite an honor," said Bannister, who was the No. 1 choice in the draft a year ago. "Then I'd tell him to work hard and do the best you can. Don't worry about what people say. Hold your head up high and don't worry about the pressure."

Bannister, however, won't be available for that little talk. He is otherwise occupied as the Houston Astros' probable pitcher tonight in Philadelphia.

A left-hander out of Arizona State, Bannister is one of a half dozen former No. 1 selections currently playing in the major leagues. The others are Rick Monday, Tim Foli, Jeff Burroughs, Mike Ivie and Bill Almon. Another, Ron Blomberg, is on the disabled list.

"I WAS drafted right before the College World Series," said Bannister. "It really was a thrill. I knew I would go high but you can't really expect to be No. 1."

Pitching with the added burden of being the top amateur selection in the nation, Bannister beat Arizona in the first round of the College Series but then lost to Eastern Michigan. Arizona State finished third in the tournament.

"After it was over, I was tired, mentally and physically," said Bannister. "I took about a month off before I signed."

His early experiences as a professional were a melange of towns and teams in baseball's minor-league network. Today's No. 1 choice might be interested in the play-by-play.

"I started in Covington, Va., in the Appalachian League," he said. "I pitched 13 innings there with 27 strikeouts and no runs."

THE NEXT stop was Double-A at Columbus, Ga., where he was 1-0 with a 1.50 earned run average. Then came Memphis of the International League, where the numbers were similiar. That made three towns and three leagues. "And all in one month," said Bannister.

It wasn't exactly glamorous, but it was pretty typical. Bannister wasn't totally prepared for the conditions.

"I was baseball-oriented but it was significantly different," he said. "Mostly, it's the living conditions and the time. You spend a lot of time waiting around to pitch. Your time is always taken care of in college."

Dutch youth resume classes

BOVENSMILDE, The Netherlands (AP) — Dutch children held hostage for four days by South Moluccan terrorists went back to class today, but not to their own school, 11 days after they were freed.

With terrorists still holding four techers hostage in the Bovensmilde elementary school, the parents of the children held a meeting and decided to send them to the little town's other school, which is operated by the Dutch Reformed Church.

They will attend half-day sessions until June 25, when the summer holiday begins.

The classes today included none of the 15 South Moluccan students who attended the Bovensmilde elementary school and were allowed to leave when the terrorists took control.

"The parents say that for the special program, they don't want the South Moluccan children put in because they fear their children might become disturbed and it would cause unrest," a spokesman for the Justice Ministry said.

Four South Moluccans took 105 children hostage May 23 when they seized the elementary school while 7 to 10 other terrorists took over a commuter train and 55 hostages near Assen, north of Bovensmilde.

The children and one teacher were freed after half of the children were stricken with a stomach ailment. The terrorists aboard the train released two pregnant women Sunday.

Three of the Moluccans holding the train ventured out in pouring rain at midnight Monday.

Man charged with assault

Clifton Joe Brown, 28, of 201 Jefferson was charged Monday with aggravated assault in connection with a shooting incident Sunday afternoon.

Brown was arrested after police were called to a disturbance at a business in the 1800 block of East Front Street Sunday afternoon.

Upon arriving at the business, police said, they saw a man running west. Police apprehended the man and he was later identified by Thomas Pinhard, 49, of 1811 E. Front, rear apartment, as the man who fired shots at Pinhard, police said.

An employe of the business also said he saw a man running west after he heard shots fired.

Bond for Brown was set at $10,000 by Justice of the Peace Robert Pine.

Man charged with burglary

Richard S. Williams, 17, of 1603 Midkiff Road, Apt. 19, was charged Monday with two counts of burglary of a habitation in connection with the burglary of two Midland residences early Thursday.

Police said a wallet, money, credit cards and a car were taken by two men from the first house. At the second house, a man and his mother were awakened by two men as they entered the house, police said. The two men held the family at gunpoint for a short time, police said.

Williams was arrested at Midland Memorial Hospital about 6:40 p.m. Thursday after he was treated for an accidental gunshot wound police said.

Bond for Williams was set at $7,500 on each charge.

UTPB plans more courses

University of Texas of the Permian Basin plans an addition of four courses in the College of Science and Engineering to serve as an introduction to petroleum engineering, according to Dr. Charles W. McLarnan, dean of science and engineering.

McLarnan spoke to the Downtown Midland Chapter of Kiwanis International at a noon meeting Monday.

The series will deal with reservoir energy, Permian Basin geology, petroleum geology and oil and gas production, some of which will be offered off campus in Midland.

The primary purpose of the series of classes will be as an introduction for employes of oil companies. Students will be able to enroll for electives.

"Petroleum companies are hiring mechanical and civil engineers who need to understand the basics of petroleum engineering, and particularly in this area there is a definite need for this type of course," McLarnan said.

Mets cool off Midland Cubs

JACKSON—Jackson's George Milke temporarily stopped Midland's drive for the Texas League West Division lead here Monday night as the Mets' hurler tossed a five-hit shutout at the Cubs for a booming 9-0 victory.

The loss left Midland a game and one-half behind El Paso in the chase for the first half championship. Midland, however, comes home Wednesday to face San Antonio in Cubs Stadium after completing a 6-4 road trip. Midland ended the Jackson series for the year with a 6-4 record against the Mets.

The victory was the first win for Milke as a starter and his first victory since April 27 when he defeated Arkansas in relief. It was the Mets' fourth shutout of the year and two of them came against Midland. The Cubs were no-hit against Jackson earlier in the series.

Milke got all the help he needed in the first inning when Marshall Brant cleared the bases with a three-run double. Jackson later chased loser Mark Covert (4-3) in the fifth inning with a four-run barrage. A single by Bill Gifford was the big blow and scored two runs. Jackson added two more runs in the seventh for the easy win.

Milke was in very little trouble during the night as he struck out five Midland batters while walking four. He spaced five singles to go the distance.

Catfish refinds it, Tiant claims he never lost it

By The Associated Press

Catfish Hunter says he was glad to find it again. Boston's Luis Tiant insists he never lost it.

Hunter's expression of relief and Tiant's vote of self-confidence were voiced after the frustrated veteran pitchers claimed long sought victories Monday night.

"Everything was working well. I kept feeling good, so they left me in there," said Hunter, who pitched a six-hitter, leading the New York Yankees to a 9-2 victory over the Texas Rangers for his first triumph since opening day.

Before his strong performance against the Rangers, Hunter had voiced fears about his future as a pitcher. "It's the most concerned I've ever been about my arm," said the former Cy Young Award winner who has been troubled by arm miseries all season.

Tiant, meanwhile, was exuding confidence after combining with Bill Campbell on a five-hit, 1-0 victory over the Kansas City Royals. It was Tiant's third victory of the season, but only his first since April 30.

Tiant noted: "You have to feel pressure in your head. But I've been doing that to myself. Tonight, I tried to get away from that."

Reggie Jackson hit two home runs and knocked in four runs in support of Hunter's sharp pitching. Jackson, greeted with a round of boos when he stepped to the plate in the second inning of the game at Arlington, Tex., hit a Doyle Alexander fast ball into the left-field stands near the 370-foot mark.

He followed that solo shot with a sixth-inning clout over the right field wall with Chris Chambliss aboard. The 10th and 11th homers for Jackson gave Hunter, 2-3, a 3-0 lead and the eventual winning run.

The Yankees chased Alexander, 6-3, during a five-hit, four-run uprising in the seventh inning that included doubles by Carlos May, Mickey Rivers and Willie Randolph. The Yankees scored their final two runs in the ninth on Randolph's homer and Jackson's RBI grounder.

Red Sox 1, Royals 0

Carl Yastrzemski belted a home run in the seventh inning, providing the winning run for Tiant, who gave up just four hits before Campbell took over in the eighth.

White Sox 9, Twins 5

Richie Zisk's fourth single drove across the deciding run and Oscar Gamble followed with a three-run homer in the 12th inning, giving

El Paso edges Tulsa

By The Associated Press

John Roslund struck out Tulsa slugger Dan Duran in relief to save a 12-9 victory for El Paso Monday night as Tulsa came within shouting distance of tying the game in the ninth inning.

El Paso had taken an early 8-1 lead in the game, but Tulsa rallied in later innings. When Duran came up t bat, two runners were already on base and he represented the tying run.

In other Texas League action, San Antonio downed Shreveport 3-1, Jackson shut out Midland 9-0, and Arkansas whipped Amarillo 12-2.

Jackson pitcher George Milke went all the way and evened his record at 2-2, giving up only five hits and three walks to Midland. Losing pitcher Mark Covert fell to 4-3.

Designated hitter Dave Bialas hit a first inning grand slam home run to lead Arkansas to an easy victory over Amarillo.

Marv Webb slugged a tworun homer in the tenth inning to break a 1-1 tie and put San Antonio in the winner's circle.

Sox pick prepster

NEW YORK (AP) — The Chicago White Sox picked outfielder-first baseman Harold Baines, an 18-year-old from St. Michael, Md., High School, as the first selection today in baseball's annual amateur freeagent draft.

The Montreal Expos selected right-handed pitcher William Gullickson, a high school student from Joliet, Ill., and Milwaukee chose shortstop Paul Molitor of the University of Minnesota.

The fourth choice belonged to the Atlanta Braves, who picked left-handed pitcher Tim Cole of Saugerties, N.Y., High School.

Detroit, No. 5, picked righthanded pitcher Kevin Richards of Wyandotte, Mich.

St. Louis, choosing sixth, selected catcher Terry Kennedy of Florida State University. Kennedy is the son of Bob Kennedy, a former major leaguer and now Chicago Cubs executive.

California chose right-handed pitcher Richard Dotson, a Cincinnati high schooler. San Diego, picking eighth, took outfielder Brian Greer of La Jolla, Calif.

Texas selected shortstop David Hibner of Howell, Miss., and San Francisco followed with another shortstop, Craig Landis of Vintage High School in Napa, Calif.

Cleveland, choosing No. 11, selected outfielder Bruce Compton of Norman, Okla., then the Chicago Cubs chose right-handed pitcher Randy Martz of the University of South Carolina.

Bannister has advice for No. 1 draft pick

NEW YORK (AP) — If Floyd Bannister could sit down today and talk with the No. 1 choice in baseball's amateur freeagent draft, he'd have plenty to say.

"The first thing I'd tell him would be 'congratulations,' because it's quite an honor," said Bannister, who was the No. 1 choice in the draft a year ago. "Then I'd tell him to work hard and do the best you can. Don't worry about what people say. Hold your head up high and don't worry about the pressure."

Bannister, however, won't be available for that little talk. He is otherwise occupied as the Houston Astros' probable pitcher tonight in Philadelphia.

A left-hander out of Arizona State, Bannister is one of a half dozen former No. 1 selections currently playing in the major leagues. The others are Rick Monday, Tim Foli, Jeff Burroughs, Mike Ivie and Bill Almon. Another, Ron Blomberg, is on the disabled list.

"I WAS drafted right before the College World Series," said Bannister. "It really was a thrill. I knew I would go high but you can't really expect to be No. 1."

Pitching with the added burden of being the top amateur selection in the nation, Bannister beat Arizona in the first round of the College Series but then lost to Eastern Michigan. Arizona State finished third in the tournament.

"After it was over, I was tired, mentally and physically," said Bannister. "I took about a month off before I signed."

His early experiences as a professional were a melange of towns and teams in baseball's minor-league network. Today's No. 1 choice might be interested in the play-by-play.

"I started in Covington, Va., in the Appalachian League," he said. "I pitched 13 innings there with 27 strikeouts and no runs."

THE NEXT stop was Double A at Columbus, Ga., where he was 1-0 with a 1.50 earned run average. Then came Memphis of the International League, where the numbers were similiar. That made three towns and three leagues. "And all in one month," said Bannister.

It wasn't exactly glamorous, but it was pretty typical. Bannister wasn't totally prepared for the conditions.

"I was baseball-oriented but it was significantly different," he said. "Mostly, it's the living conditions and the time. You spend a lot of time waiting around to pitch. Your time is always taken care of in college."

Dr. Finley prescribes for baseball's aches, pains

By WILL GRIMSLEY

CHICAGO (AP) — There are three things that Charles O. Finley particularly dislikes— white baseballs, baseball commissioners and red ink.

To his mind, they are all related, contributing to the demise of the great national passtime.

"What baseball needs is leadership," the maverick owner of the Oakland A's told 160 sports editors, taking another pot shot at Commissioner Bowie Kuhn. "The stupidity of most of the club owners is unbelievable."

ANALYSIS

TO ILLUSTRATE his point, Charlie O. brought along three plastic baseballs of garrish orange and tossed them among the luncheon guests at The Associated Press Sports Editors convention. The balls were fielded nicely.

"See," he said, "if they had been white, you would have dropped all three."

The controversial Oakland boss then proceeded to present his own private prescription for the rescue the game, to wit: (1), orange baseballs for better visibiltiy; (2), a walk on three balls instead of four; (3), pinch hitters; (4), interleague play.

"In football, it's 11 men against 11," he said, "In basketball, five against five; in hockey six against six. In baseball, it's one against nine—one man out there with a bat.

"The catcher and pitcher go into cahoots on how to stop the batter. Then they send the signals out to the guys in the field. The trouble with baseball is it is out of balance. The offense ought to be balanced with the defense."

FINLEY INSISTED that baseball must break the strangle hold of tradition and "get a shot in the arm—it ought to be where the action is."

"We can't have a notary running baseball," he added, refering to Kuhn, a lawyer. "We've got to have someone who understands the game." He said he had a half dozen in mind but wouldn't name them.

Finley is a long time adversary of the baseball establishment, a paid-up tennant in the commissioner's dog house. He has just appealed a $3.5 million suit which went against him on the voiding by Kuhn of a sale of three 1976 players. He says he is preparing another suit but refuses to give details.

"Let him wiggle out of this one," Finley said, leaving Kuhn to wait for the other shoe to drop.

Charlie O. was dapper in a light summer suit and in fine vocal fettle for his hour's address, delivered largely off the cuff.

HE ACKNOWLEDGED he made a mistake in moving his franchise to Oakland from Kansas City and was convinced that the Bay Area could not support the A's as well as the San Francisco Giants.

The team never drew well, he said, even when it was winning five division titles and three straight World Series in the early 1970s.

Those were the years that Finley had players such as Reggie Jackson, Joe Rudi, Gene Tenace, Rollie Fingers, Sal Bando and Bert Campaneris, who all have gone to other clubs in the mammoth free agent turnover.

"We had no superstars on that team," Finley said. "What we had was a player above average at every position. Now these guys have scattered and look what happens when they don't have all of that help.

"Take Rudi, that cowboy (Gene Autrey, California Angels) told Rudi 'I'll give a you $1 million bonus and $1 million for the next five years' and Milwaukee paid $1.7 million for Bando. He was the worst fielding third baseman I ever saw.

"I replaced Rudi with this kid, Mitchell Page. He has more home runs and a better batting average than Rudi. Wayne Gross is hitting more than Bando and is twice a better fielder. I was paying each of them $19,000. Now I've raised it to $30,000.

"I earned my money by the sweat of my brow. No way I'm going to go bankrupt throwing money away on an athlete. When that cowboy and all the other suckers realize how little what they got has helped them, they'll wake up. Me? I'm going to just sit and wait."

Rain cuts short Palmer's charge

By The Associated Press

Arnold Palmer and 128 other golfers saw rain cut short their charge for 40 berths in the prestigious U.S. Open tournament later this month. The massive field at Charlotte, N.C. was to have played 36 holes Monday to fill the spots allotted top finishers in the regional competition, but thundershowers kept all but a few from completing play.

Bob E. Smith of Hawaii was the top early finisher, totalling 139 for a two-stroke lead over George Archer and John Lister of New Zealand. Palmer was another stroke back.. Forrest Fezler, Vic Regalado, Barry Jaeckel and John Schlee were four strokes behind the leader.

Play was to resume Tuesday, as was competition at Los Angeles, Washington, Atlanta, Ann Arbor, Mich., New York and Memphis for the 260 golfers contesting 42 places in the prestigious Open, which will be played June 16-19 at the Southern Hills Country Club in Tulsa, Okla.

A total of 41 players are exempt from qualifying for the Open. Among them are the last five Open and PGA champions, the 25 top money winners on the 1976 tour, and this year's top 10 money winners through the closing of entries April 27.

Play concluded Monday at the six other sites where 322 non-exempt players raced for 67 places at Denver, Chicago, Kansas City, Cincinnati, Johnstown, Pa., and Fort Worth, Tex.

Among the others who completed their rounds at Charlotte were Randy Glover of Johnsonville, S.C., Raymond Thompson of Villanova, Pa., and Gary Koch of Lakeland, Fla., all of whom totaled 143. Larry Ziegler and Ed Sneed shot 146 with Bob Galloway of Rock Hill, S.C. at 147 and Steve Forrest of Mount Airy, S.C. another stroke back.

Bob Murphy and Billy Sullivan of Jacksonville, Fla. were at 149 and Dave Eichelberger at 152.

The next-largest field Monday was at Chicago, where there were 40 players for six spots in the Open. Gary Jacobson of Minnetonka, Minn., shot a 136 to lead sectional qualifiers. Four strokes behind was Bob Brue of Mequon, Wis. while Garry Hopkins of Highland Park, Ill., was at 142. Other qualifiers were Chris Marszalek of Arlington Heights, Ill., Dennis Tiziani of Madison, Wis., and Mike Harrigan of Medinah, Ill.

At Fort Worth, Scott Stegner of Dallas and Guy Cullins of Denton, Tex., tied for the top spot with 141. The other qualifiers were Chuck Coatney of Ponca City, Okla., amateur Randy Sonnier of Lafayette, La., and Danny Passon of Fort Worth.

The four berths at Kansas City were filled by Ron Streck of Tulsa, Okla., Steve Spray of St. Louis, Vince Bizik of Overland Park, Kan., and Bill Hall of St. Louis.

There were five spots available at Johnstown and three at Denver. The Pennsylvania qualifiers were John Calabria of Hamberg, N.Y., who led with 142, one stroke better than John Fought of Portland, Ore.

Lakers trade Lucius Allen

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Lucius Allen comes home and Ollie Johnson moves west in a trade that gives the Los Angeles Lakers an embarrassment of first-round draft riches.

The Lakers, beaten by Portland in four straight games in the National Basketball Association playoffs, sent Allen, a guard, to the Kansas City Kings Monday in return for Johnson, a forward, and the Kings' first and second-round draft picks in 1978.

Allen, who was playing out his option with Los Angeles, would have become a free agent Monday. He signed a four-year contract with the Kings. The terms were not disclosed.

The Lakers, who have three first-round picks in Friday's NBA draft, also will have three first-round selections in next year's selection of college players.

Allen, a playmaker, first gained fame when he starred at Wyandotte High School in Kansas City, Kan., a decade ago.

He went on to UCLA and teamed with Lew Alcindor, now Kareem Abdul-Jabbar. He and Abdul-Jabbar later played together in the NBA at Milwaukee and Los Angeles.

After 6 years, Brown regains bat groove

By The Associated Press

Pitchers may be notoriously bad hitters, but Jackie Brown carries that to extremes.

As a matter of fact, the last time Brown got a hit, he was playing for a team which no longer counts itself among the major league's active members—the Washington Senators.

"I guess the last hit I got was with the Senators' in 1971 against the White Sox ...I even think I was two-for-three." Brown boasted.

His first hit since 1971 drove home the Expos' second run and helped Montreal defeat the Atlanta Braves 4-2 Monday night.

"It shocked me as much as it did him," Brown said, referring to his run-scoring hit off Atlanta starter Frank LaCorte that gave the Expos a 2-0 lead.

However, Brown is not being paid to hit and he was in the groove in more ways than one.

In fact, he even had time to work on another hitless streak, the kind that brings pitchers to places like the baseball Hall of Fame at Cooperstown, N.Y.— the no-hit variety.

"I knew I had the no-hitter—I knew I had it in the first inning," said Brown, who was obtained from the Cleveland Indians last December.

Cubs 3, Dodgers 1

Rick Reuschel pitched 6 1-3 strong innings and relief ace Bruce Sutter gained his 16th save as Chicago defeated Los Angeles, moving 1½ games ahead of Pittsburgh in the National League East.

Reuschel, 7-2, yielded only three hits, struck out seven and walked one, but had to give way to Sutter when he ran into trouble with one out in the seventh when the Dodgers scored their run.

The Cubs got two runs off Burt Hooton, 4-3, in the third inning on Bill Buckner's single and Jerry Morales' sacrifice fly. They added a run in the seventh off reliever Stan Wall on a walk, an error and a single by Bobby Murcer. Giants 3, Pirates 1, 12 innings

Darrell Evans and Mike Sadek doubled home 12th-inning runs off Pittsburgh relief ace Rich Gossage, giving San Francisco the victory.

Phillies 9, Astros 5, 6 innings

Richie Hebner socked two home runs and drove in four runs and Mike Schmidt added his eighth homer of the season as Philadelphia took a rainshortened victory over Houston.

Bob Watson led the Astros, driving in three runs with his seventh home run of the season, delivered run-scoring hits in the bottom of the 10th, as St. Louis snapped a Cardinals 4, Padres 3 Garry Templeton and Keith Hernandez four-game losing streak.

Yankees rip Rangers

Chicago its victory over Minnesota.

Orioles 5, Brewers 2

Homers by Billy Smith and Lee May, coupled with the five-hit pitching of Rudy May, paced Baltimore over Milwaukee. Smith hit a solo home run to highlight a two-run shot in the fourth for his ninth home run of the year and his seventh in eight games.

Tigers 8, Angels 0

Mark Fidrych won his first game of the season with a seven-hitter and Jason Thompson and Ben Oglivie belted home runs as Detroit routed California. Fidrych's first-ever start at Anaheim Stadium drew a crowd of 38,551.

Indians 3, A's 1

Pinch hitter Larvell Blanks broke a tie with a two-run single in the eighth inning, leading Cleveland over Oakland. Right-hander Pat Dobson, who went into the game with an 0-5 record and a 7.24 earned run average, struck out seven and walked one in 71-3 innings in earning the victory.

Robinson sends Rico back home

OAKLAND (AP) — Cleveland Manager Frank Robinson and designated hitter exchanged words Rico Carty after the Indians' 3-1 victory over the Oakland A's Monday night, and Robinson announced he was fining the player and sending him back to Cleveland.

"Tonight was just it, I can't take any more," said Robinson.

The manager said Carty, who has a pulled hamstring which caused him to go on the disabled list last week, was "telling everyone how to manage during the game and saying how silly certain moves I made were."

Dr. J still unconvinced

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — "I still think we have a championship team," said Philadelphia superstar Julius Erving, the consummate court artisan. "We have a better team than Portland. We have more talent and more depth."

But the Portland Trail Blazers—not the Philadelphia 76ers—are the National Basketball Association champions, and Erving knows why.

"They are cohesive," he said. "They help each other out better than we do. Their consistency enabled them to win.

"They have mental conditioning that they've developed in practices all year. They stuck with their basic game plan, the one they had been successful with all year.

"We attack defenses and try to create things. It was a matchup of opposing styles, and theirs won out."

The Blazers won because, for all his individual brilliance, Erving could not offset the spotty play of his teammates.

George McGinnis was in a woeful slump which did not end until Sunday's final game of the best-of-seven series, won by Portland 109-107 to give the Blazers the title four games to two.

Doug Collins played well until the last two games, when he tailed off badly. Centers Caldwell Jones and Darryl Dawkins were inconsistent, key reserves Lloyd Free and Steve Mix were hampered by injuries and playmaker Henry Bibby had trouble keeping pace with Portland's speedier guards.

So, the team which had been conceded the championship by some people back in October, when Erving was purchased from the New York Nets, came up two victories short.

And the man who will take most of the heat for that shortcoming is Coach Gene Shue, who all along warned against expecting too much too soon.

"It takes time and hard work to mold a winning team," said Shue over and over. "The players have to know each others' moves and styles. It doesn't happen overnight."

And at least partly because of the undisciplined, free-spirited nature of the players Shue had to work with, the 76ers never did develop the cohesiveness that was so much a part of the Blazers' victory plan.

Dutch youths back in school

BOVENSMILDE, The Netherlands (AP) — Dutch children held hostage for four days by South Moluccan terrorists went back to class today, but not to their own school, 11 days after they were freed.

With terrorists still holding four techers hostage in the Bovensmilde elementary school, the parents of the children held a meeting and decided to send them to the little town's other school, which is operated by the Dutch Reformed Church.

They will attend half-day sessions until June 25, when the summer holiday begins.

The classes today included none of the 15 South Moluccan students who attended the Bovensmilde elementary school and were allowed to leave when the terrorists took control.

"The parents say that for the special program, they don't want the South Moluccan children put in because they fear their children might become disturbed and it would cause unrest," a spokesman for the Justice Ministry said.

Four South Moluccans took 105 children hostage May 23 when they seized the elementary school while 7 to 10 other terrorists took over a commuter train and 55 hostages near Assen, north of Bovensmilde.

The children and one teacher were freed after half of the children were stricken with a stomach ailment. The terrorists aboard the train released two pregnant women Sunday.

Three of the Moluccans holding the train ventured out in pouring rain at midnight Monday.

Man charged with assault

Clifton Joe Brown, 28, of 201 Jefferson was charged Monday with aggravated assault in connection with a shooting incident Sunday afternoon.

Brown was arrested after police were called to a disturbance at a business in the 1800 block of East Front Street Sunday afternoon.

Upon arriving at the business, police said, they saw a man running west. Police apprehended the man and he was later identified by Thomas Pinhard, 49, of 1811 E. Front, rear apartment, as the man who fired shots at Pinhard, police said.

An employe of the business also said he saw a man running west after he heard shots fired.

Bond for Brown was set at $10,000 by Justice of the Peace Robert Pine.

Man charged with burglary

Richard S. Williams, 17, of 1603 Midkiff Road, Apt. 19, was charged Monday with two counts of burglary of a habitation in connection with the burglary of two Midland residences early Thursday.

Police said a wallet, money, credit cards and a car were taken by two men from the first house. At the second house, a man and his mother were awakened by two men as they entered the house, police said. The two men held the family at gunpoint for a short time, police said.

Williams was arrested at Midland Memorial Hospital about 6:40 p.m. Thursday after he was treated for an accidental gunshot wound police said.

Bond for Williams was set at $7,500 on each charge.

'Y' program set to begin

Alamo YMCA will begin its summer recreation program Wednesday. The program will continue through July 29.

The program is for persons from elementary age to adult. The elementary age program will begin at 8 a.m. and continue until 12 noon each day, Monday through Friday. A wide variety of activities have been planned.

Junior high and high school age boys and girls may participate in the afternoon drop-in program. Those participating need not register with the YMCA.

The Alamo YMCA will also have a special program which will give students an opportunity to participate in leadership training and provide service to the community. This program is limited to 7th or 8th grade YMCA members.

Registration and information may be obtained from the Alamo YMCA at 3910 Cedar Spring, 694-9571.

UTPB plans more courses

University of Texas of the Permian Basin plans an addition of four courses in the College of Science and Engineering to serve as an introduction to petroleum engineering, according to Dr. Charles W. McLarnan, dean of science and engineering.

McLarnan spoke to the Downtown Midland Chapter of Kiwanis International at a noon meeting Monday.

The series will deal with reservoir energy, Permian Basin geology, petroleum geology and oil and gas production, some of which will be offered off campus in Midland.

The primary purpose of the series of classes will be as an introduction for employes of oil companies. Students will be able to enroll for electives.

"Petroleum companies are hiring mechanical and civil engineers who need to understand the basics of petroleum engineering, and particularly in this area there is a definite need for this type of course," McLarnan said.

Service award given Vaughn

STEPHENVILLE — Jan Vaughn, daughter of Mrs. Grace J. Graham of 1701 Western St. in Midland, has been awarded a "T" service award at Tarleton State University. Miss Vaughn is a senior business education major.

Under Carter Energy Proposals

Motorhomes Escape Gas Guzzler Tax

STANDARD NEWS SERVICE

Motorhomes, which get only six to ten miles per gallon, are excluded from President Carter's proposed "gas guzzler" tax program.

The Federal Energy Administration cites three reasons why motorhomes are excluded.

1. Motorhomes, of which there are less than one million in the U.S., use less than one per cent of the country's total gasoline consumption. This is an insignificant portion of the 2.5 billion barrels of gasoline used last year in the United States by all motor vehicles. A barrel equals 42 gallons.

2. The proposed "gas guzzler" tax, if passed by Congress, would be based on mileage rating certificates issued by the Enviromental Protection Agency. Motorhomes, because they are built on a heavy truck chasis, are not subject to EPA ratings. Only cars and light trucks are rated for mileage by the EPA.

3. Recreational vehicles with a gross vehicle weight of 10,000 pounds—a category which includes most motorhomes-are specifically listed as exempt from the gas guzzler tax in Carter proposals.

Under the proposed Carter formula, automobiles which get fewer than 18 miles per gallon would be taxed on a sliding scale, beginning with 1978 models. A tax of $180 would be levied on a car getting 15 mpg, $449 on a car getting 11 mpg. But a motorhome getting 8 mpg would not be subject to gas guzzler taxes.
