Estonia cuts Soviet insignia

■ In a show of solidarity with Latvia and Lithuania, Estonia has altered its name and flag, and reinstated a portion of its constitution.

Associated Press

TALLINN, U.S.S.R. — Estonia dropped the trappings of Soviet power on Tuesday, changing its name and its flag, and proclaimed solidarity with Latvia and Lithuania in the three Baltic republics' drive toward independence.

Without formally declaring independence, Estonia's Parliament reinstituted some paragraphs from its 1938 constitution, including one proclaiming Estonia "an independent republic, with the supreme state power vested in the people."

It dropped "Soviet Socialist" to become simply "The Republic of Estonia." And it adopted its old tricolor national flag in place of the hammer-and-sickle banner of socialism.

Parliament said the steps were meant to show solidarity with sister republics Lithuania and Latvia, which have issued declarations of independence. All three states were independent until forcibly annexed by the Soviet Union in 1940.

The deputies also adopted a resolution proclaiming Baltic solidarity and congratulating Latvia on declaring independence.

"The path to our own statehood is not easy, but we are convinced that here in the Baltics, we three — acting together — will arrive at a restoration of our independent states more fruitfully than if each were to struggle on its own," said the statement, broadcast on Radio Estonia and monitored in Britain.

Lithuania's 3.8 million people are under an economic blockade imposed by Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev in an attempt to force Lithuania to rescind several laws passed since it declared immediate independence March 11. Estonia and Latvia set unspecified transition periods for secession from the Soviet Union.

On Monday, Lithuania's Council of Ministers decided to cut meat shipments to Soviet ministries by 10 percent in hopes of bartering scarce meat directly with Soviet factories for oil and other supplies, said Aidas Palubinskas, of the Supreme Council legislature's information bueau.

The Soviet government newspaper Izvestia accused Lithuania Tuesday of reducing meat and milk shipments to the Soviet Union in retaliation for Moscow's economic sanctions.

In Latvia, legislators who oppose independence asked Gorbachev not to impose sanctions on Latvia, saying that would hurt many citizens loyal to the Soviet Union.

Well fire

DILLEY, Texas (AP) — Fire broke out early Tuesday at an oil well drilling site, shooting flames into the sky and seriously injuring three people, authorities said.

Authorities evacuated a quarter-mile area around the well in a remote part of Frio County. The blaze began shortly after 4 a.m.

Three men, ages 38, 46 and 60, were burned in the fire. They were taken to Frio General Hospital in Pearsall and later transported by medical helicopter to Brooke Army Medical Center in San Antonio. All were in critical condition, authorities said. Their names were not released.

The well is a horizontal well located in the Pearsall Field of the Austin Chalk, where horizontal drilling technology is prevalent.

Manhole mania

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — A manhole by any other name could be a "person entry," "exit port" or "personhole," contestants say in a tongue-in-cheek, city-sponsored bid to find the neuter form for the scruffy iron fixture.

Prompted by the sensitivity of the city council's female majority to feminist issues, the Public Works Department called for suggestions to replace the familiar appellation. Responses — much to the astonishment of city officials — have come in from all over the world.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actress Victoria Principal filed suit against CBS, claiming the network breached a contract concerning a made-for-television movie in which she starred.

She alleges CBS failed to honor a promise to pay her production company $300,000 if the network decided not to make a weekly series out of the movie "Sparks."

Man assessed 20 years in prison for attempted murder

■ Gary Fay Allison is sentenced to the maximum allowable prison term in the 1988 shooting of his former girlfriend.

By David Morris
Staff Writer

A 142nd District Court jury Tuesday sentenced Gary Fay Allison to 20 years in prison for the 1988 shooting of his ex-girlfriend — the maximum punishment allowable for attempted murder in Texas.

Allison is expected to appeal the conviction, defense attorney Paul Williams said after the trial.

Allison pleaded guilty Monday to attempted murder in the shooting of 42-year-old Lola Jones of Midland.

Allison, 50, testified Tuesday that he shot Ms. Jones once in the head on the morning of Dec. 9, 1988, as she sat in her pickup on a deserted stretch of County Road 1140.

After blocking her way with his vehicle, he said he approached her truck on foot to talk to her about renewing their broken relationship. He shot her only because he thought she was reaching for a weapon, he said.

"She put her truck in reverse and turned to the right ... I thought she was going for a gun that I thought she might have had in her purse," Allison said. "I guess I must have fired a shot in her direction."

Allison said he was carrying a .25 caliber handgun in his coat pocket the morning of the shooting because Ms. Jones had once warned him that she carried a gun and would use it against him if he tried to harm her.

Ms. Jones testified earlier that she once lied to Allison that she carried a gun for protection. She said Allison threatened her numerous times in the months after their breakup.

Allison's attorneys argued that Ms. Jones victimized Allison after ending their relationship by refusing to return tools and equipment which Allison needed in his job as a car mechanic.

District Attorney Al Schorre told jurors in closing arguments that Allison had planned his crime in advance.

"He has never fully explained why he had to arm himself to go talk to her," Schorre said. "It was a cold, calculated case of attempted murder. I think we're just very lucky it's not a murder case."

Co-defense counsel Carol Kirk argued the shooting was a crime of passion.

"We have a man who went out in the heat of rejection ... and a gun went off," she said. "That's not the kind of premeditation that deserves all you've got to give him in terms of punishment."

In spite of Ms. Kirk's argument, jurors handed down the 20-year sentence after about an hour of deliberation.

Ms. Jones was escorted from the courtroom in tears after Judge Pat Baskin announced the jury' decision.

Williams, who had argued that Allison was a good candidate for probation, said he was surprised by the jury's sentence. The minimum allowable sentence in the case was two years' probation.

70 businesses joining in Expo '90 activities

By Mella McEwen
Staff Writer

More than 70 Midland businesses will put their goods and services on display Thursday at Expo '90, to be at the Midland Center from 10 a.m. to 9:30 p.m.

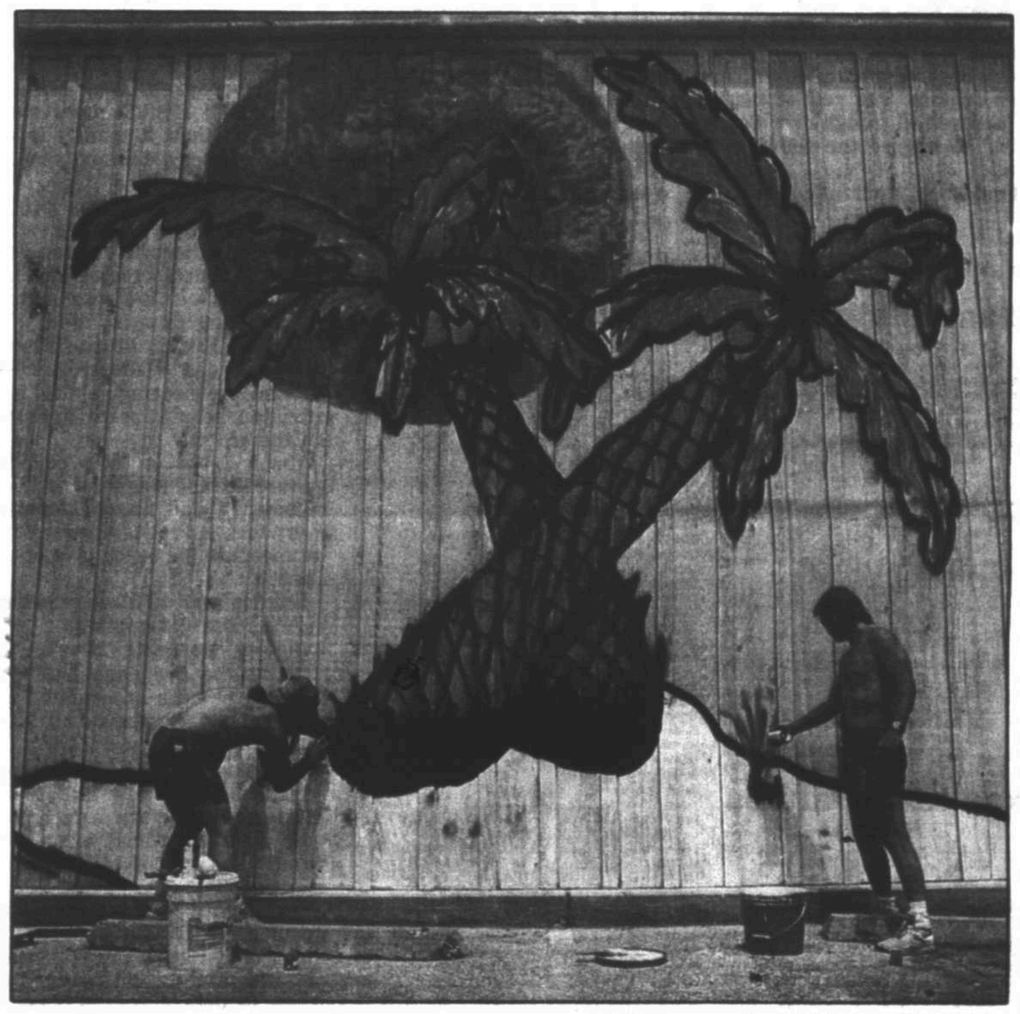

The Expo, part of national Small Business Week, is designed to allow Permian Basin businesses to display their goods and services and highlight business opportunities for the 1990s.

Included in the festivities are lunch, served by the Permian Basin Cookoff team, and a Chamber mixer from 4 to 7 p.m.

In conjunction with the Expo, Midland College is presenting a seminar on "International Trade Opportunities for the Permian Basin." Registration begins at 8:30 a.m., with a welcome and conference overview presented at 9 a.m.

The first speaker, from 9:15 to 9:40 is John Adams, managing director of InfoNational Inc. of Dallas and College Station. His topic will be "Why Should I Want to Export?"

Bush, GOP discuss tax hike, hear sour report of economy

■ With revenues of as much as $100 million needed this year, Budget Director Richard Darman shares a "mix" of suggestions for securing the needed funds with Republican leaders.

By Tom Raum
Associated Press Writer

President Bush discussed potential tax increases with Republican lawmakers Tuesday as Budget Director Richard Darman suggested deficit-fighting actions totaling as much as $100 billion may be needed this year.

A range of suggestions for raising revenues — including a national lottery, a one-cent federal sales tax and higher taxes on alcohol and tobacco — are "part of the mix," said Assistant Senate Republican Leader Alan K. Simpson, R-Wyo.

Darman's figures — he gave a range of $60 billion to $100 billion — were two to three times the size of the savings that Bush said would be needed when he proposed his fiscal 1991 budget in January.

The $100 billion figure is an outside possibility but "I was citing an extreme case," Darman said later in an interview.

House Speaker Thomas S. Foley said he and other Democratic leaders would meet Wednesday morning with Bush on the budget.

He commented after a meeting in which many House Democrats insisted that Bush be forced to specify the economic conditions that make major budget cuts necessary.

"If this summit is going to come up with very strong proposals on deficit reduction, we're going to have to lay some groundwork with the country why it's necessary," said House Budget Committee Chairman Leon Panetta, D-Calif. He suggested major deficit-cutting action would "face a very tough time in the House and Senate on both sides of the aisle" in this election year.

Darman said the scope of the action required depends on the eventual cost of the saving and loan bailout "and that's impossible to estimate reliably at this point."

In any event, he said automatic spending cuts of over 20 percent throughout government loom this fall if Congress and the White House are unable to agree on a series of major deficit-cutting steps.

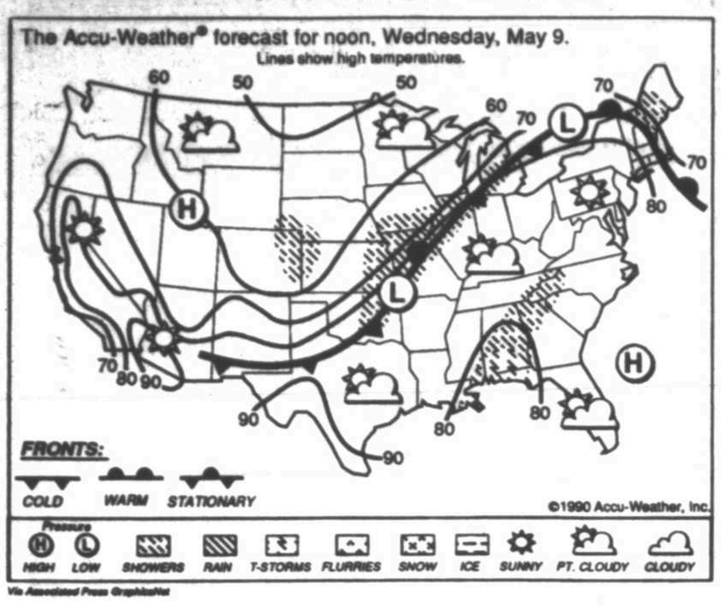

On whether Bush will support higher taxes as part of a budget compromise, Darman said: "He's prepared to talk without any preconditions."

"There are some ideas we're not prepared to put on the table," he added without elaboration.

Although he won office on a "no new taxes" pledge, Bush made it clear Tuesday he was willing to discuss some form of tax increase as part of an overall budget compromise, GOP lawmakers said.

Simpson, speaking to reporters outside the White House, suggested Bush had ruled out higher income taxes as part of any budget compromise.

Cloudy skies forecast

Staff Report

Another typical West Texas day of brisk winds and no rain is in the offing today.

Forecasters at the National Weather Service at Midland International Airport call for partly cloudy skies today with a high in the upper 80s.

Winds, southwesterly to westerly at 10 to 20 mph and gusty, are expected to shift to the north at 15 to 25 mph and gusty by early afternoon.

The low temperature tonight is forecast in the low 50s. The high on Thursday should be cooler, with the mercury reaching only the upper 70s.

Tuesday's high temperature was 94 degrees, and the overnight low was 57 degrees. The record high temperature for May 8 is 106 degrees set last year, and the record low for May 9 is 42 in degrees in 1969.

STATE

As river authorities predicted record flooding along the Trinity River and other waterways along the Texas Gulf coast, more thunderstorms moved across the Coastal Plains Tuesday.

The heaviest rain fell near Corpus Christi and Houston. Alice reported 2.59 inches with 2.33 falling in Bishop, the National Weather Service said, while Galveston received 1.81 inches and 1.36 inches fell in Beaumont.

Clouds covered most of South Texas, spreading into north central and eastern regions. The rest of the state was mostly sunny.

An upper-level trough over Central Texas collided with warm, moist Gulf air to trigger the showers and thunderstorms in southeastern regions.

Behind a cold front in the Panhandle, winds were northerly at 15 to 25 mph.

The Associated Press also contributed to this report.

Charles, Di lead trendy rush East

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP) — Charles and Di wow Budapest. Rock singer Lou Reed gives a private Prague concert for President Vaclav Havel and friends. Harvard economist Jeffrey Sachs fixes the Polish economy.

For jet-setters, royalty, business people and tourists, the rush is on to Eastern Europe. Revolution has made a region that was firmly out of fashion during decades of Stalinist drabness the new hot ticket in travel.

Travel magazines feature Eastern European locales on their covers, and Western tourists cram the streets of Prague and Budapest.

For some visitors, the attraction is the money that might be made in markets untapped for more than 40 years.

Mark Palmer, the former U.S. envoy to Hungary who resigned to join Estee Lauder heir Ronald S. Lauder in a new development bank for Central Europe, has likened the business people flocking to Budapest's Forum Hotel to the gold miners who rushed to the West a century ago.

Others making the foray to the East seem to be searching for something more: the brave, creative spirit that powered eastern Europe's democratic revolutions and propelled philosophical intellectuals into positions of political power.

As Prince Charles told a Budapest university audience Tuesday, many in the West "have no conception of what it means to suffer invasion, persecution and loss of freedom."

The prince, known for his diatribes against the trappings of modernity, congratulated Hungarians and all East Europeans for preserving their humanity in adversity and begged them to keep it intact.

"You can give us again a heightened sense of the classical values of the western spirit ... a new realization that democracy is not just a ballot box — it is a wise, mature and exacting state of mind," the heir to the British throne stressed.

From leader to laborer, East Europeans are basking in this new attention, heaping praise in return on the visitors.

Frank Zappa, a 1960s counterculture hero no longer all the rage at home, found himself feted at every turn in Prague. His zany lyrics appeal to the Czech love of the absurd.

Charles and Di drew rave reviews from Hungarians accustomed to less regal visitors.

"It's quite a change from the faces we've been accustomed to," said Budapest homemaker Juliana Szarka.

At the other end of the social scale, the East's new leaders are making good use of Western good will and the revived interest of royalty and nobility in their former domains.

Prince Karl Schwarzenberg, scion of a family that once owned much of Bohemia, heads a board of foreign advisers appointed by Havel to help drum up Western investment and interest.

Meanwhile, in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, left, a laborer secures scaffolding to begin restoration work on the landmark statue of Christ which tops Corcovado Mountain. The 58-year-old work has been battered by the region's tropical climate.

ESTONIA: Historic flag flies again

(From 1A)

The group called for a referendum on independence.

Activists say the recent parliamentary elections constituted a referendum on independence. Advocates of separation won more than two-thirds of the seats in the parliaments of all three Baltic republics.

Latvia issued a declaration of independence on May 4 but did not ask for an immediate break with Moscow or suspend the Soviet constitution. It is waiting to hear if Gorbachev will impose sanctions similar to those on Lithuania.

Latvians make up 53 percent of the 2.6 million people in their native land, and many Russian and other non-Latvian residents oppose independence.

In Estonia, Parliament approved the constitutional changes and the traditional symbols of state by a vote of 73-14. Eighteen deputies did not vote or did not attend the session.

Minutes later, a small crowd gathered on the cobblestone square outside the ancient parliament building and watched as the red flag was lowered. It was replaced by the blue-black-and-white striped flag used by Estonia when it was independent between the two world wars.

Matt Laar, a deputy from Tallinn, the Estonian capital, said the republic already is feeling the effects of the Soviet oil and natural gas embargo against Lithuania because a Lithuanian refinery processes half of Estonia's gasoline.

Estonians have tried to start talks with the Kremlin about eventual independence.

The Estonian Independent, an English-language weekly in Tallinn, reported that Gorbachev adviser Alexander Yakovlev told Estonian Supreme Soviet chairman Arnold Ruutel negotiations could not start until Parliament suspended its March 30 decision to cancel the Soviet constitution on Estonian territory.

Laar said Tuesday's action followed two days of negotiations among groups in the legislature, including the Popular Front, the Communist Party and representatives of the ethnic Russian minority that makes up 30 percent of the 1.5 million population.

EXPO: Speakers to cover many topics

(From 1A)

"How I can Succeed in a Globally Competitive Environment" will be presented by Lee Gordon, professor at Coastline Community College in California, from 9:40 to 10 a.m.

Lawrence Johnson, partner with Baker & McKenzie in Dallas will then speak on "When and Why do I Need Legal Advice to Export," from 10:15 to 10:45 a.m.

He will be followed by Eduardo G. Sosa with the Texas Department of Commerce in Austin, who will talk about "How Can the State Help Pay For My Exports." He will speak from 10:45 to 11:30 a.m.

After a lunch break, the seminar will resume with topics such as "What Do I Need to Export?" David L. Dillar, president of InfoNational will speak on "Who Has The Answers I Need to Export" from 1:30 to 2:15. The final topic of the seminar will be "What Can an International Freight Forwarder do to Make Me Successful in Exporting?" presented by Delbert R. Henry of the ICE Co. Inc. in Dallas. His speech will be from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m.

The event is sponsored by the Midland Chamber of Commerce, Midland Black Chamber of Entrepreneurs, Midland Hispanic Chamber of Commerce, Permian Basin Private Industry Council, Midland College Business and Economic Development Center, Service Corps of Retired Executives/Active Corps of Executives, Students in Free Enterprise, Black Chamber of Commerce of the Permian Basin, and the Midland Reporter-Telegram.

Cost of the export seminar is $10, and further information is available from Dr. Jerry Jones at 685-4657. Further information on the Expo 90 exhibition is available by calling the Midland Chamber of Commerce at 683-3381.

Frito must pay Waits

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Frito-Lay Inc. must pay singer Tom Waits almost $2.5 million for imitating his gravelly style in a radio commercial hawking corn chips, a federal court jury decided Tuesday.

"Now I have a fence and a gate around my voice," Waits said following the verdict.

The jury deliberated about eight hours over two days before deciding that Waits should receive $2,475,000. The entertainer's lawyer had asked for $1.5 million.

SENTENCE: Attorney surprised jury chose maximum punishment

(From 1A)

He said he didn't think 20 years in prison was an appropriate punishment for Allison.

"This man is 50 years old and there is no history of violence with this one exception, and it's a big exception, I'll grant you," Williams told jurors in closing arguments.

FBI agents arrested Allison in southern California on Dec. 5, 1989 — nearly a year after the shooting.

Allison testified he did not turn himself in to authorities because he thought police had orders to shoot him on sight.

He added that he didn't realize that Ms. Jones was injured in the shooting.

"I just asked her if she was hurt or if she needed any help," he said. "I assumed she was just scared. She was ... walking around in the road when I looked in the rear view mirror" as he drove away.

He said he didn't notice any blood on Ms. Jones before he returned to his vehicle because it was still not fully light.

He said he left on the day of the shooting for California because he had relatives in Sacramento and thought work opportunities might be better there.

Ms. Jones testified that she walked a half mile back to her mobile home after the shooting and asked a neighbor to call an ambulance.

Investigators said Ms. Jones was shot in the left temple and the bullet exited through her right temple.

She said the shooting caused her to lose some vision in her left eye. She said she has undergone numerous operations to treat the pain and swelling in her face caused by the shooting.

Five states conduct primaries on Tuesday

Associated Press

Republican Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina and Democratic Sen. Jay Rockefeller of West Virginia easily captured nominations for new terms Tuesday, and Rep. Donald "Buz" Lukens trailed in his struggle to survive a sex scandal in Ohio.

In North Carolina's Democratic primary, Harvey Gantt, the black former mayor of Charlotte, led a crowded field competing to oppose the arch-conservative Helms in November.

West Virginia's former first lady Dee Caperton lagged in early returns in her bid to rejoin her ex-husband Gov. Gaston Caperton — as state treasurer.

As expected, Ohio Attorney General Anthony J. Celebrezze Jr. claimed that state's Democratic nomination for governor, piling up 88 percent of the vote in early returns. That sets up a November race against the Republican nominee, former Cleveland Mayor George Voinovich.

In other highlights on the busiest day of primary voting so far this year, former Democratic Reps. Katie Hall of Indiana and Ken Hechler of West Virginia sought comebacks in their old districts. Ms. Hall challenged Rep. Pete Visclosky and Hechler went up against Rep. Nick Joe Rahall Jr.

Lukens, who refused Republican Party advice to retire, was running third in a four-way primary with 4 percent of precincts counted in western Ohio's 8th District. State Rep. John Boehner led with 1,058 votes or 62 percent, followed by former Rep. Thomas Kindness with 463 votes or 27 percent, and Lukens with 156 votes or 9 percent. Mort Meier had 33 votes or 2 percent.

In North Carolina, with 23 percent of precincts counted, Helms had 36,560 votes or 82 percent, and businessmn George Wimbish and retired salvage dealer L.C. Nixon divided the rest.

Among Democrats, Gantt led with 73,943 votes or 47 percent, followed by Michael Easley, the Brunswick County district attorney, with 44,016 votes or 28 percent; John Ingram, a former state insurance commissioner, with 21,899 votes or 14 percent, and R.P. "Bo" Thomas, a former state senator, with 14,849 votes or 9 percent.

New EPA rules anger protectionists

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency issued long-awaited controls Tuesday on the land disposal of industrial toxic wastes, but environmentalists called the restrictions inadequate.

"This action ... gives the green light to continue dumping billions of gallons of untreated hazardous wastes down deep wells," said Jane Bloom, a lawyer for the Natural Resources Defense Concil.

The regulations, the result of a six-year effort aimed at heading off creation of future toxic waste dumps, will "reduce the toxicity of hazardous wastes and protect the nation's groundwater supplies," the EPA said.

The new rules will require additional treatment by 1992 of more than 40 million tons of toxic waste dumped by industry onto the ground surface or injected into deep wells, the agency said.

"These rules will keep significant quantities of hazardous waste off the land, preventing the future groundwater contamination and assuring safe management of these wastes," said Donald Clay, the agency's assistant adminstrator in charge of hazardous waste regulation and the Superfund cleanup program.

Richard C. Fortuna, executive director of the Hazardous Waste Treatment Council, joined the Natural Resources Defense Council in criticizing the EPA.

The action, designed to curb the land disposal of untreated toxic chemicals, instead "ensures that the waste management practices of today will become the Superfund sites of tomorrow," Fortuna said.

Critics of the EPA program said that while new regulations impose new treatment requirements on some toxic wastes, they also will allow industry to dispose of acidic and solvent wastes through dilution rather than special treatment to reduce the toxicity.

Researchers find new birth control pills, UIDs safer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — New birth control pills, containing one-fifth as much estrogen as the original pills, are safe for non-smoking women in their 40s and do not raise the risk for clots or cancer, researchers report.

Dr. Daniel R. Mishell, chairman of the Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology at the University of Southern California School of Medicine, and other doctors gave the update Monday on the latest safety studies of the pill and IUDs at the annual meeting of the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists.

It also was reported that the Food and Drug Administration is expected to approve, perhaps this year, surgically implanted hormone capsules that provide birth control hormones for five years. This birth control method, with the contraceptives usually placed under the skin on one arm, already is used in more than 40 countries.

The implants are as effective as daily birth control pills, said Dr. Francine Sinofsky of the University of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey.

Mishell noted that women remain potentially fertile until nearly age 50, and said, "It is often a real problem deciding what to do.

"It's really up to the woman, but there are many highly reliable, and generally safe, methods of contraception available."

Not a 'manhole', then what is it?

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — A manhole by any other name could be a "person entry," "exit port" or "personhole," contestants say in a tongue-in-cheek, city-sponsored bid to find the neuter form for the scruffy iron fixture.

Prompted by the sensitivity of the city council's female majority to feminist issues, the Public Works Department called for suggestions to replace the familiar appellation. Responses — much to the astonishment of city officials — have come in from all over the world.

The winning synonym for Sacramento's 26,379 circular lids is expected to be announced Wednesday night at a council meeting.

"The calls came in from everywhere," said Christine Olsen, a city spokeswoman. "But it's not really a formal contest. It's just that some of our Public Works people had ideas for a change and it got blown out of proportion." She said she had no estimate of the number of entries.

Many people are calling with "lewd and offensive suggestions," and others angrily want to know about "the women who are taking over the city council," said a city receptionist. An employee at the city sewer department, listed in the telephone directory under "manhole covers," said the controversy "has really had no effect here. It's all over at the council."

Interest in the issue rose after city civil engineer Randy Witt suggested at a council meeting last month that the city hold a for-fun Manhole Terminology Change Contest to spur interest on the engineering staff.

One newspaper headline said the city was "Blowing the lid off sexist 'manholes,'" while another proclaimed that a "'Tempest in a Manhole' sweeps city."

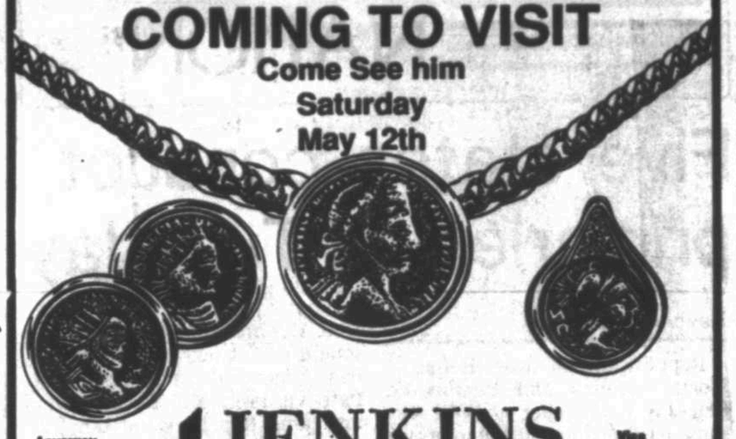

A radio station in Hamilton, New Zealand — Sacramento's sister city — held a renaming contest in which "sewer viewer" captured the top prize. Other New Zealand nomenclature included "peoplehole," "peephole" and "underground service access (USA) hole."

The nine-member city council has had a five-member female majority since last fall's elections, including Mayor Anne Rudin, who lauded the Public Works Department for "keeping up with contemporary standards."

But Olsen said the panel did not order any changes in the terminology used by the department.

"We're all just kind of amazed," Olsen said.

One dead, 12 hurt in fire on destroyer

AP Laserphoto

The crew of the guided missile destroyer, Conyngham, assembles on the rear deck of the ship after a fire in the engine room killed one sailor and injured 12 Tuesday morning off the coat of North Carolina. The ship is being towed to Norfolk.

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — The guided-missile destroyer USS Conyngham limped back to port under tow Tuesday after a fire spread from a boiler to the ship's nerve center, killing one sailor and injuring 12 others, the Navy said.

The fire on the 27-year-old Conyngham started around 5:30 a.m. about 80 miles off North Carolina, said Lt. Cmdr. Carrie Hartshorne, a spokeswoman for the U.S. Atlantic Fleet.

The fire broke out in the No. 1 boiler room when the boiler was fired up, said White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater.

"The fire spread to the combat information center spaces, which caused the captain to evacuate the combat information center and the bridge, temporarily leaving the ship without communications and dead in the water," Fitzwater said.

The Combat Information Center contains all of the ship's communications equipment plus sonar and radar and is considered the ship's nerve center.

The Norfolk-based ship, whose skipper is Cmdr. W.R. Williams, has a crew of 383.

The main fire was put out after about 2½ hours and the crew battled smaller secondary fires through the morning.

Atlantic fleet officials said the Conyngham was able to move under its own power en route to Norfolk at about 3 mph until midday, when it lost power about 60 miles east of Norfolk. It was then taken under tow by the salvage ship USS Opportune.

Navy officials were unable to say when the Conyngham would reach its homeport.

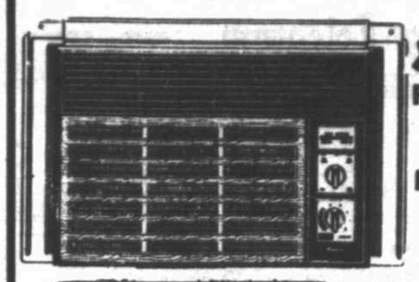

The guided-missile cruiser USS Normandy, the Briscoe and Coast Guard cutters Point Arena, Gentian and Forward also assisted the Conyngham, said Capt. Paul Hanley, a spokesman for the fleet.

Billions at stake in census battle

WASHINGTON (AP) — Political power and billions of dollars are at stake in a battle over which final census numbers will be better, the raw or the cooked, the actual count or one adjusted for people who were probably missed.

But a year from now, the question of "adjusting" the results of the census could be the center of a crucial and bitter debate among the states and cities, in Congress and in the courts.

Private banks can help Mexico

In 1982, as the value of the Mexican peso plummeted and panicked citizens formed long lines at financial institutions, the Mexican government took drastic measures to prevent the economy from collapsing.

Mexico's private banks were closed; when they reopened, they belonged to the government.

Eight years later, Mexico is still struggling to recuperate from the ravages of inflation and devaluation of the 1980s, the hemorrhaging of its hard currency into the safe haven of other countries and a $100 billion foreign debt. President Carlos Salinas de Gortari deserves credit for trying to remedy the country's economic ills with free-market solutions.

Instead of former President Jose Lopez Portillo's approach of nationalizing banks and tightening currency exchange controls — a policy that worked poorly, if at all — Salinas wants to return the banking system to the private sector. He is proposing a constitutional amendment that would make the move possible.

It's a good idea. The government has been inching toward that goal for some time. Private investors now can hold up to a one-third interest in a Mexican bank; Salinas would allow total private ownership except for a few specialized federally owned banks.

Some Mexicans fear that banks, once returned to private hands, would shun development projects that would benefit the poor. But as Salinas noted, the government could take the $3 billion raised by selling off its banking interests and use them for those purposes.

The problem for Salinas is as much political as economic. His opponents claim that privatizing Mexico's financial institutions is designed primarily to please U.S. and European bankers. Perhaps. The point is that the Mexican economy itself should benefit by letting business run businesses.

Restructuring the Mexican economy is a painful process. It's all too easy for demagogues to capitalize on the insecurities of Mexicans and the still vulnerable condition of the economy.

But Salinas is unwilling to feed his countrymen populist pablum. Rather, he is attempting to guide a dazed economy along the path to rebirth.

There are no financial panaceas, but the private bank concept is sound and worthy of the support of Mexicans.

Rebel Band needs better planning

As a parent of a member of the Lee High School Band and Orchestra, I would like to express my disapproval of the handling of a recent band function.

A little more advanced planning and notification by the band organization would have saved much disappointment and probably set a better example for the students in the band.

With less than 48 hours notice, band parents were told that band members who had not paid their full assessment for the year would not be allowed to participate in the spring trip to Port Aransas. This, by example, meant that no matter how loyal a band member had been about attending extra practice and classes all season long, no matter how proficiently they played their particular instrument, no matter how hard they had worked all season, it came down to money to be able to participate.

Not all parents are able to reward their children with all the things they would like to. This is one of those cases. Not all parents are able to pay out $100 or more on short notice, as this was.

With a little more notice, I believe fellow band members and parents would have helped their fellow musicians who were having financial problems. But no notice was given. The students in band are loyal to one another which is more than can be said for the loyalty of the band heirarchy to the students.

This was a sad example to set for these young people. Is it any wonder young people believe money is all that matters — not work ethic, not diligence, not practice to attain some kind of ability to play a musical instrument? Just money.

I personally am very disappointed in what I thought was a first-class organization. I feel sorry for those seniors in the Lee Band who missed their final spring contest trip after all that hard work. I say to the Lee Rebel Band, "You deserve better than what you got. Thank you for your hard work all season and your fine musical performances. You did well and we are proud of you."

Homeownership plan already finding success

The Homeownership Incentive Program (H.I.P.) is off to a great start thanks to the support and cooperation of interested parties, exemplifying the "Spirit of Midland."

H.I.P. was implemented in March of this year and already 11 families have been assisted in acquiring homeownership. Initial funding is provided by Midland Housing Finance Corporation.

During the development phase of H.I.P., experts in the area of lending and real estate assisted the formation of guidelines. Those parties included Midland Economic Board of Directors, Dollie Calhoun with AmWest Savings, Reginald Provenghi with Lone Star Abstract, Roy Proctor and the Midland Real Estate Board, Freida Bashman with ABC Mortgage, and the City of Midland staff.

The many parties working together for a common cause have made life for some Midlanders more enjoyable. Once again, Midlanders have joined forces to make Midland "the most livable city."

TV Marti to Cuba $7 million bust

WASHINGTON — Just as the detractors predicted, TV Marti, America's latest effort to needle Fidel Castro, is a disaster. The Cuban leader has successfully blocked TV transmission of U.S. propaganda into Cuba.

Anderson

Not only has TV Marti been a $7 million bust, but Castro has used it as an excuse to turn giant transmitters toward the United States and block commercial radio broadcasts.

Critics, even some within the State Department, predicted that TV Marti was doomed. Several members of Congress said the project, by Voice of America, would unnecessarily aggravate the relations between the United States and Cuba. Some even argued that beaming TV Marti across international boundaries to an unwilling Cuba violated international broadcasting laws.

So why did the federal government do it anyway?

The answer lies in the enormous political clout of Cuban-Americans and the leading group of exiles, the Cuban American National Foundation.

Based in Miami, the CANF is a powerful lobby with plenty of money to spread around to members of Congress in the form of campaign contributions. CANF's flamboyant leader, Jorge Mas Canosa, personally hands out the campaign donations like candy through CAMF's political action committees.

It was Mas who successfully lobbied for the creation of Radio Marti broadcasts to Cuba in 1982, despite the objections of then-Secretary of State George Shultz. Supporters of Radio Marti talked it up as a great success, but congressional critics said Cubans paid the price. Castro retaliated at home by cracking down on political dissidents.

CANF's tightest grip is on the House Foreign Affairs Committee chaired by Rep. Dante Fascell, D-Fla. Fascell's district in Miami is the stronghold of Cuban exiles, and he has steadfastly backed their cause. He told us he has always been solidly anti-Castro, even before CANF became a force.

Through Fascell, CANF has even been able to cow one of its traditional enemies, Rep. Mervyn Dymally, D-Calif. He thinks the United States ought to mind its own business and leave Castro alone. Dymally vehemently opposed Radio Marti eight years ago, calling it "an outrage, a total scandal." He argued that "the American public ought to know that we are wasting money disrupting other people's lives. Cuba is a sovereign nation."

But that was then and this is now. Dymally chairs the Foreign Affairs subcommittee that authorized TV Marti, and when it came up for a vote, he didn't oppose it.

As a subcommittee chairman, Dymally would be unwise to irritate his committee chairman, Fascell. A spokesman in Dymally's office told our associate Scott Sleek that it wouldn't have been diplomatic for Dymally to oppose TV Marti when Fascell was so supportive of it. Dymally is also starting to receive campaign contributions from the Cuban-American community.

The influence of Cuban exiles extends all the way to the White House. Mas is a major fund-raiser for the Republicans, and sources say he boasts about his friendship with "George and Barbara."

Mas wants to be the first president of a democratic Cuba after the overthrow of Castro. To protect his high profile from his enemies, the wealthy Mas rides around in an armored car once owned by the late Nicaraguan despot, Anastasio Somoza.

Cuban-American sources told us that Mas has a tendency to strong-arm the exiles who aren't as fervent as himself. Former Radio Marti director Ernesto Bentacourt, who criticized the TV Marti plan, has accused Mas of having a hand in Bentacourt's ouster.

CANF blindly insists that TV Marti is a success, in spite of the reports that Castro has successfully blocked most Cubans from getting the signal.

PARTS IS PARTS — The Defense Department continues to be one of the most mismanaged bureaucracies in the world. All branches of the armed forces are awash in flawed procurement procedures. The military has bought up materials that are rapidly becoming outdated by changing technology. One of the most prevalent practices is to stockpile huge inventories far in advance of when they would be needed. Thus the taxpayers' money is used to create museums of antiquated equipment.

MINI-EDITORIAL — As the summer travel season approaches, Americans have cause to fear for the safety of the U.S. aviation system. America's aging airliners need more maintenance. Some airlines are pushing the planes to their limits. It usually takes an accident or a close call before an airline is shamed into taking action. But by then it is too late. The Federal Aviation Administration should open up the files it keeps on airline safety and let consumers have all the facts so they can make more informed travel decisions.

'Forceable,' not the same as 'forcible'

Jimmy Carter, stung by criticism of his human-rights silence while a visitor to Syria, fired off a letter of complaint to The New York Times: "What would your columnists' policy be if an Arab leader was taking Jewish mothers and children away from their homes and husbands, and forceably deporting them to a foreign country?"

Safire

Louis Jay Herman of New York cites another story in the newspaper about "the forceable seizure of territory" and writes, "What gives here? Are these people Greshamizing the correct spelling, namely forcible/y?"

He notes that the word forceable exists, meaning "capable of being forced," as in "This door is forceable" (not to be confused with "This door is alarmed"), but its meaning is not the same as forcible. He adds, "The super-permissive Webster III did accept forceable as a variant of forcible, but I'm glad to see that it's been dropped from Webster's Collegiate."

Forcible is worth preserving just the way it is. As noted, forceable is useful in describing what can be forced; forceful means "strong, powerful, potent, puissant," which is far more general than forcible, which means "using physical force."

A forceful entrance, like that made by politicians bent on comeback, is not a forcible entry undertaken by burglars.

The television reporter Robert MacNeil asked Vernon A. Walters, ambassador to West Germany, about a diplomatic anomaly, concluding with "Don't you feel conflicted about that?" The ambassador — an accomplished linguist — replied promptly, "Yes, of course I do."

"One can be afflicted," writes Phil Chimento of Durham, N.C., "but one cannot be conflicted because conflict is intransitive. ... Kindly scold Mr. MacNeil for his solecism."

Because it follows a linking verb ("feel"), conflicted in this case is a predicate adjective — a past participle used as an adjective after a linking verb — and is not a verb. For that reason alone, MacNeil is not in error; however, conflicted is an interesting bit of psychojargon.

"Conflicted as a verb is fairly recent," notes Dr. Ellen McGrath, a New York City psychotherapist. "It's an active verb to describe an ongoing emotional experience. Therapists have to work on resolving what conflicts the patient."

To be conflicted, then, is to be under the stress of influences that tug in opposite directions. The term is too much in vogue; a better old word is troubled, with its synonyms "worried, upset, concerned."

If you prefer to wow your friends with high-falutin language, try "Doesn't that give you cognitive dissonance?"

William Safire's column is distributed by New York Times News Service.

Real estate not as fun as it used to be

Real estate is not the fun game it used to be. In the '80s everyone talked about making a killing with their houses, and there was hardly a man or woman alive who didn't own a house that had sextupled in value. In addition, all the great homes that were built with borrowed money are now going begging in a market that most S&Ls believed would last forever.

Buchwald

Everyone has a real estate story. My cousin Flo's tale more or less sums up what people are experiencing now that the boom times are over. She called me a few months ago to tell me she was about to sell her house and move to a leisure garden apartment in New Jersey.

"How much are you asking?" I wanted to know.

"Well, I paid $45,000 for it, so I've priced it at $210,000."

"Could you tell me how you arrived at that figure?"

"The real estate person said that I should be able to get $150,000. My son thought that $200,000 was about right, and I added an extra $10,000 as icing on the cake."

"It sounds good to me. I wish you luck."

Flo telephoned a month later and told me, "Nobody wants to buy my house. The market is dead. What shall I do?"

"How about lowering the price?"

"If I do that I'll lose money on it. I am not going to let some bargain chiseler steal it from me."

"I agree. If you lower the price it will only be a sign of weakness."

The following month she was on the phone again.

"I've decided to advertise it for $200,000. I'll eat the $10,000 loss because sometimes in business you have to take it on the chin to survive."

"I believe that you have done a very wise thing. You are now competitive with all the other $45,000 houses in the neighborhood. Let me know if you sell it. I'll have an announcement placed in the Wall Street Journal."

Flo called again in three weeks. "It isn't moving. Bloomfield, N.J., is in a real estate wasteland — it's worse than Chernobyl."

"There's only one course of action, Flo, and that is to lower the asking price even further."

"Are you suggesting that I sell my $45,000 house for $160,000?"

"I'm just advising you to do what the big guys on Wall Street would do in your place. They would take their losses and get out of Bloomfield as fast as they could."

"If I follow your advice I'll lose $50,000. Life can't be that unfair."

"Then keep the house and hope that the price will rise."

"No. I'll sell it for $160,000, which means I'm going to be the laughingstock of the Garden State Parkway."

"If you don't sell it, you could always give it back to the savings and loan people and let them deal with it. How big a mortgage did you get on it?"

"One hundred forty thousand dollars two years ago."

"Well, call them up and inform them that you would like to refinance the house."

"I can't. They are no longer in business. It seems that they kept making million-dollar loans to people who were buying $45,000 houses."

NATION IN BRIEF

Firm will recall diet fiber cookie

WASHINGTON (AP) — The maker of a popular diet cookie agreed Tuesday to recall it after the Food and Drug Administration said the company's nutrition claims were false and misleading.

The Phoenix International Marketing Corp. of Sparks, Nev., is halting distribution of its Phoenix Fiber Cookie and telling its customers to remove it from store shelves, company lawyers said after meeting with FDA officials.

Phoenix also was discontinuing temporarily other products in its diet plan: Phoenix Fizzie, which dissolves in water to make a lemon-flavored drink; Phoenix Nutritious Beverage and Phoenix Vitamins and Minerals Capsules.

Tax talk unpopular

WASHINGTON (AP) — Election year discomfort among Republicans was obvious Tuesday after President Bush's lips moved and taxes suddenly appeared on the budget negotiating table.

"I'm opposed to having taxes be on the table, period," said Rep. Bill Schuette of Michigan, one of the Republican congressmen challenging a Democratic senator.

Schuette's comment was typical of GOP candidates who have made opposition to tax increases a centerpiece of their campaigns.

As one Republican operative put it, "There is a clear anxiety among Republican candidates." Speaking on the condition he not be named, the source said that candidates and activists "feel there has been a clear distinction between the parties on the tax issue. They feel the negotiation would be used by the Democrats to muddle the distinction."

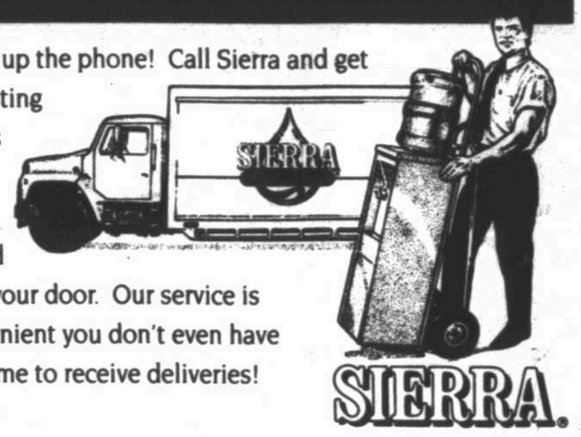

Property cutting OK'd

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal regulators agreed Tuesday to cut prices on hard-to-sell real estate the government is inheriting from bankrupt savings and loans.

The Resolution Trust Corp. voted unamiously to permit regulators to cut a property's price by 15 percent if it had not sold in six months — four months for a single-family home. A further reduction of 5 percent is allowed after an additional three months.

The RTC adopted a second policy authorizing auction sales.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING ON ADOPTION OF IMPACT FEES FOR WATER AND WASTEWATER FACILITIES

A public hearing has been called by the Mayor and City Council of Midland, Texas, for:

2:00 p.m.
(Tuesday) May 29, 1990 at City Hall
Council Chambers
300 North Loraine Street
Midland, Texas

The purpose of this hearing is to consider the possible adoption of a water capital improvements plan and associated impact fees for water improvements and to further consider the possible adoption of a wastewater capital improvements plan and associated impact fees for wastewater facilities. Impact fees for each category of facilities may be used to generate revenue for funding or recouping the costs of water facilities and wastewater facilities, respectively, or the expansion of such facilities which are necessitated by and which are attributable to new development. The map of the service area for each of these fees and the fee schedule for each proposed impact fee are presented below:

PROPOSED WATER & SEWER SERVICE AREA
City of Midland, Texas

Any member of the public has the right to appear at the public hearing and present evidence for or against the approval of the capital improvements plans and associated impact fees. The allowable proposed impact fee for water facilities is $1,191.00 per service unit. The allowable proposed impact fee for wastewater facilities is $775.00 per service unit. Copies of the proposed impact fee capital improvements plans and fee schedules, and the proposed ordinance enacting impact fees for such facilities are available to the public at:

Former HUD official points finger at Sunbelt GOP

N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON — On the second day of DuBois Gilliam's testimony on the scandals in the Department of Housing and Urban Development, Rep. Tom Lantos asked him what he thought was the real tragedy at HUD.

First, said the former HUD aide, there were too many people chasing too little money. "At some point in time, you're going to have a collapse of the system. It occurred at HUD."

Second, former Housing Secretary Samuel R. Pierce Jr. "had very little input" in picking his own staff. Key aides, all of them political appointees, were simply installed by the White House personnel office.

"This bred disloyalty and poor management of the agency," Gilliam said.

Gilliam may have been looking for excuses. His own three and a half years at HUD led to bribery charges and a federal prison term. In testimony before Lantos's House Government Operations subcommittee last week, he admitted to taking $100,000 in trips, clothes and cash.

But the political patronage system that has been a feature of Washington since the days of Andrew Jackson doubtless played a major role in the debacle at HUD during the Reagan years.

Gilliam himself had been on the "must hire" list at that White House, a former Republican campaign worker from Iowa and Midwest chairman of "Blacks for Reagan" in 1980. When his small oil company in Omaha ran into hard times in 1984, he applied for work in Washington.

As HUD's deputy assistant secretary for program policy development and evaluation, Gilliam was in the middle levels of the agency's bureaucracy. But as the Reagan administration entered its second term, the lines of authority at HUD had become blurred, with power residing in a relative handful of young political appointees known as the "brat pack."

Gilliam summed up the atmosphere in two words: "Power. Greed."

He agreed with Rep. Christopher Shays, R-Conn., that he was a "fixer," working out deals his bosses ordered, handling requests from influential Republicans, looking out for political trouble. His records were kept in his head, never on paper. His desk was always clean.

When a city official balked at hiring a former HUD official as a developer, Gilliam threatened to cut off the town's housing funds. The bluff worked.

When it looked like a career HUD employee might "blow the whistle" on political favoritism in housing grants, Gilliam recommended his transfer. Pierce, he testified, went along.

The Urban Development Action Grant program, designed for Rust Belt cities of the North, was turned on its head to benefit Republican districts of the Sunbelt, Gilliam testified. Discretionary funds were shifted to help Republican officeholders. One Republican challenger was even allowed to announce grants to the district of a House Democratic incumbent.

Nearing the end of the week's testimony, Rep. Charles E. Schumer, D-N.Y., said, "This is one of the most sordid pictures I have ever seen."

City to oppose TU Electric rate hike proposal

■ Midland joined on Tuesday with 69 other cities and advised TU to cut its rate request by nearly $338 million.

By Brian Pearson
Staff Writer

Midland city councilmen gave tentative thumbs-up Tuesday to joining other Texas cities trying to thwart TU Electric's proposed 10.2 percent rate hike.

City Attorney David Reagan said he recommended that council oppose the hike because studies have shown that the company did not prudently construct its Comanche Peak nuclear plant.

However, a TU Electric representative who addressed the council said consultants hired by a committee of representatives from 69 cities, including Midland, do not have the expertise to analyze facility construction.

The committee, after reviewing studies of the construction as well as the complicated rate hike request, concluded that TU Electric should cut its $442.4 million rate hike proposal by $337.8 million.

Reagan said Technical Analysis Corp. of California identified engineering and construction mismanagement. The company's consultants said a disallowance for the level of mismanagement would offset any rate increase, he said.

Meanwhile, consultants from Diversified Utilities Consultant Inc. of Austin found $319.6 million in cost reductions and savings not passed on to consumers in the rate proposal, Reagan said.

Diversified Utilities' recommended cutting $201.4 million for tax savings and $54 million for a lower percentage equity among other suggested reductions for TU Electric's proposal, he said.

State law requires cities to either accept or deny the rate hike proposal by May 21. Midland's resolution to deny the proposal will go before councilmen for final review next Tuesday.

Bill Griffin, regional manager of TU Electric's Midland offices, said the company will appeal Midland's and other opposing cities' rate hike denials to the Texas Public Utility Commission. The PUC has the final say on whether a rate hike is implemented.

Griffin said the PUC has more expertise to evaluating Comanche Peak construction and the rate hike proposal than the two consultants hired by the 69 cities.

"There have been many figures thrown out by all parties involved," Griffin said. "If their numbers were correct, we'd have no way to raise financing.

"We believe our case will justify the 10.2 percent we have requested. When you look at the business as a whole, all of the parts of the puzzle fit together."

TU Electric needs the full 10.2 percent to ensure the company's financial stability, he said. The company's bond rating has gradually dropped from AAA to BBB since 1984, leaving it in danger of having to pay higher interest for borrowed money, he said.

"That's what drives the price of electricity up," Griffin said. "If we're doing such a terrible job, why are our rates some of the lowest in the United States?"

Midland was part of another intervention with other cities in 1984, when TU Electric sought an 8 percent rate increase. Instead, the company got a 0.3 percent rate decrease.

TU Electric officials have said the $442 million in revenues from the 10.2 percent rate hike would recover construction costs for Unit 1 of Comanche Peak.

Another 10 percent rate hike may be needed when Unit 2 goes on-line sometime within the next two years, company officials have said.

Lawmakers to consider reform plans

■ Failing an executive-legislative compromise on school reform, a former Ector County school official might then step into the picture with a plan of his own.

By Rick Brown
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Debate in the Texas House today may show whether the third special session on school finance will end in a rerun gubernatorial veto or whether the Legislature's script has a new wrinkle in it.

Up for consideration is a House Public Education Committee-endorsed measure which reads almost exactly the same as legislation both chambers endorsed last session. Gov. Bill Clements effectively vetoed that measure for its reliance on a half-cent sales tax hike.

• Meanwhile, several key members were predicting a tight vote on a maverick proposal that would divert millions of dollars from larger urban districts to smaller, poorer ones.

• Clements and lawmakers are under the gun to find a school finance compromise by June 1 or face the prospect of a court-designed system that likely will mean higher property taxes in wealthier districts.

MISD board to decide on projects

By David Morris
Staff Writer

Midland Indpendent School District trustees will take another step today toward determining what projects will be included in a proposed fall bond issue, MISD officials said Tuesday.

Trustees are scheduled to select the projects which will be bidded out for planning by architectural firms.

MISD administrators are recommending between $15 million and $20 million in construction projects for inclusion in the bond issue, district officials said.

Those projects which don't make the cut today aren't likely to appear on the bond election ballot, said Joe Cummins, MISD long-range planning director.

"It's a very important step in that if these projects did not receive architectural services, it would be very difficult to include that item in a bond issue," Cummins said.

Administrators are recommending construction of:

■ A new elementary school.
■ An alternative school.
■ Multipurpose rooms (mini-gymnasiums), libraries and classrooms at Sam Houston and Washington elementary schools;
■ A multipurpose room and classroom wing at Bush Elementary School;
■ Multipurpose rooms and office "pods" at the remaining elementaries which do not have them.

Taxes, cutbacks may be agency's way out of red

■ The Texas Department of Human Services is scrambling to find ways to cover a possible $211 million deficit.

By James Cullen
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Senate leaders Tuesday faced the choice of cutting health care for the young and old or raising taxes to cover possible budget deficits in the millions of dollars due to unexpected demand for services.

Texas Department of Health officials, in a report to a joint meeting of the Finance and Health and Human Services committees, estimated that 4,000 seriously-ill children will lose benefits in June if money is not appropriated to cover a $13 million deficit in the Chronically Ill and Disabled Children's Program.

The program is a last resort for 16,000 children who are not covered by Medicaid or private health insurance and who suffer from illnesses such as spina bifida, AIDS and cystic fibrosis, said Health Commissioner Robert Bernstein.

The deficit could hit $40.7 million in the second year of the biennium, he said.

Texas Department of Human Services officials outlined budget transfers that would reduce a projected $211 million deficit during the next year and a half.

Rob Mosbacher Jr., chairman of the state agency that handles Medicaid and welfare payments, in a news release said five options could bring $515 million in federal funds to the state, although Democratic lawmakers replied that the plans would shift the burden onto local taxpayers and health providers.

Mosbacher, who also is Republican candidate for lieutenant governor, was not invited to the joint committee hearing Tuesday, but DHS Commissioner Ron Lindsey outlined the proposals, which included:

■ A new statewide indigent health care program that would take a portion of county and hospital district tax revenues to provide services for the poor who do not qualify for federal Medicaid. The $72.6 million program would entitle Texas to an estimated $8 million in additional federal money.

■ An increase the amount of money urban hospital districts and teaching hospitals must forward to the state, from the 1 percent ordered in the first special session in 1989 to 30 percent. The estimated $401.9 million in additional revenue would entitle the state to more matching funds, and the hospitals would get the money back in reimbursement for their disproportionate indigent health care.

■ Voluntary contributions from nursing homes and pharmacies that could be used to draw $7.6 million in matching federal money.

A spokesman for Texas nursing homes, who are suing the state for a greater Medicaid reimbursement, said the health care providers are in no financial shape to be lending the state money.

Other options included interagency transfers and a joint program with the Texas Education Agency.

Lindsey said approximately $8.5 million is needed to finish the six months left in fiscal 1990, but $178 million is needed in 1991 to avoid cuts in service.

With budget transfers and a delay in the planned Medicaid expansion for children under 6 years, Lindsey said, he believes the agency can finish the current year without cuts in service, but the second year of the biennium will require new revenue.

"The alternative is cuts," he said.

Sen. Kent Caperton, D-Bryan, Senate Finance Committee chairman, said he would advise against trying to solve the deficits without increasing revneues.

"I think the governor needs to open the call to these issues and we need to find some more money," he said.

Caperton listed a half-cent sales tax increase, which would generate $600 million, and a cigarette tax increase of 14 cents a pack, which would generate $400 million, and other fee increases as likely revenue sources.

"I commend Ron (Lindsey) for being inventive and imaginative, but at some point realism has to set in," Caperton said. "If we continue to have self-denial in the governor's office about whether there is a problem, the problem will merely be compounded. There is a problem and we need to act."

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, a Democrat who is not seeking re-election, said the effort to find more federal money is "commendable," but the state is limited to spending the

Optimist Club names outstanding officers

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff Writer

Two Midland law enforcement officers were honored Tuesday for their "distinguished and dedicated service" in the last year.

The Optimist Club of Midland named Elias Hernandez Jr., 30, Outstanding Officer of the Year for the city of Midland, and bestowed the same honor to Gary McLaughlin, 28, for his work with the Midland County Sheriff's Department.

The officers received award plaques at a luncheon held at the Midland Hilton in their honor.

Hernandez, a patrol officer, has been with the Midland Police Department for six years and is currently assigned to the evening watch. He also is a crime scene photographer and on the police explorer post advisory committee.

"I think it (the award) is a high point of my career," Hernandez said, adding that the award is motivation for his work as a police officer. Hernandez was named Officer of the Month by his department in October-November 1989.

Hernandez and his wife, Maribel, are the parents of a 2-year-old son.

McLaughlin, also a patrol officer, has been with the Midland County Sheriff's Department for seven years. He has worked in the communications, jail and criminal investigation divisions of the sheriff's department.

"I don't think of myself as anything spectacular, I just believe in working hard," McLaughlin said in response to the honor. "Everybody (in the department) works hard to do the job and I like to think of it as a team effort," he said.

McLaughin and his wife, Kim, are the parents of a 2-year-old daughter.

VOLUNTEERING

Volunteering is the chance to get involved, doing what you can, when you can. Here are some of the volunteer opportunities currently available at the Volunteer Center of Midland.

■ Looking for an excuse to get out of the house or office for some fresh air? A nonprofit center needs your help in preparing for its sexual assault awareness week. Help by placing flyers on cars May 17 at 6 p.m. and on May 19 at noon. Volunteers are also needed to help blow up balloons on May 20.

■ Brontosaurus, Stegosaurus, Tyrannosaurus Rex, oh my! A local museum needs volunteers to help with its DinoSafari exhibition. Opportunities are available to sell tickets, act as a gallery attendant, and to assist visitors in the education area. Training will be provided by the agency. The exhibit will run June 29 - November 25.

■ Do you love horses and children? Here is a wonderful opportunity for you to work with the Therapeutic Horseback Riding Program. Volunteers with strong riding skills are needed to train and groom horses and to expose the horses to new equipment. Volunteers are also needed to work with the children and horses in the riding program on Wednesdays and Fridays from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

■ If you would enjoy working with hearing impaired children, here is your opportunity to volunteer. Help supervise the care and safety of two to five hearing impaired toddlers while their mothers attend a parent support group at the same location. The one hour per week you spend playing and interacting with these children can make a difference in their life and yours.

■ 697-HELP — the only number you need to remember when you have a question or problem and do not know where to find the answer. Call INFORMATION AND REFERRAL MIDLAND 697-HELP.

BOND: Board will discuss expansion of LHS library

(From 1B)

Administrators also are recommending the expansion of the Lee High School library and the remodeling of science classrooms at Lee, Midland High School and Lee Freshman High School.

Cummins said the estimated cost of the projects, including a new junior high school for which an architect has already been selected, is between $15 million and $20 million.

He said Rauscher Pierce Refsnes Inc., MISD's financial advisor, estimates that a 2-cent or 3-cent tax increase per $100 valuation could pay for the bond issue.

Wilson Heidelberg, MISD executive director of auxiliary services, said architects should be able to provide accurate cost estimates on proposed construction as early as August.

Meanwhile, he said, trustees will begin interviewing architects on May 12 for the projects selected Wednesday.

Whether the projects will be bid out as a group or individually has not been determined, Heidelberg said.

He said that a series of community meetings which concluded last week showed districtwide support for the recommended construction.

Trustees will consider the projects at a 4 p.m. meeting today at the MISD administration building, 702 N. N St.

The board also will consider approval of a summer school program for at-risk third-graders and approval of a revision of district grading policies.

Texas may get disaster relief

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas congressmen urged a House-Senate conference committee to consider the state's flood damage as it creates a compromise supplemental appropriations bill.

Members of the House and Senate Appropriations Conference committee met Tuesday to negotiate the Dire Emergency Supplemental Appropriations Act, which will provide more money to the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA).

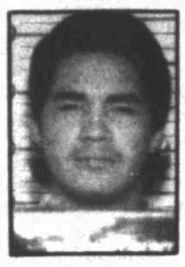

Rep. Pete Geren, D-Fort Worth, wrote a letter to the committee asking that $50 million now earmarked for FEMA make it into the final version of the bill.

Twelve people have been killed in flooding since a series of heavy rains began April 14.

REFORM: New 'maverick' plan creates stir

(From 1B)

Edgewood v. Kirby lawsuit announced nominations for a court-appointed officer who would draw the plan should Clements and the Legislature fail.

Nominated by the state was Billy Walker, director of the Texas Center for Educational Research in Austin and author of several books and articles on the subject of school finance.

Walker until this past year was a deputy superintendent for business affairs at the Ector County Independent School District.

Plaintiffs in the case offered McCown two choices: former Texas Supreme Court Justice William Kilgarlin and Jose Cardenas, director of the Intercultural Development Research Association in San Antonio and former Edgewood school superintendent.

The attorney who argued the plaintiff's case, Al Kauffman of the Mexican-American Legal Defense and Education Fund, said he expects a decision from Travis County District Judge Scott McCown on who will draw the plan in the next day or two.

Meanwhile, supporters of the maverick proposal say some large districts — such as those in Houston, Dallas and Fort Worth — are receiving a disproportionate share of state aid solely because of their size, yet they maintain tax rates below the state average.

Gov. Bill Clements on Tuesday pronounced the idea of taking some of the money away "interesting" after he again promised to veto the House committee's school reform legislation. The Senate already has approved a reform bill similar to the committee's.

Other lawmakers, however, were against the 'take-away' idea.

Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur and chairman of the Senate Education Committee, said the plan is "junk," and Rep. Paul Colbert, D-Houston and House Public Education Committee member, said it contains "a fatal flaw."

While acknowledging the proposal would promote greater equality among tax rates across the state, Colbert said it would not equalize the access districts have to revenue, a key test in a Texas Supreme Court decision that brought lawmakers into session.

Nonetheless, the proposal enjoys support across party lines, mainly among lawmakers from rural and suburban districts, including Rep. Jim Rudd, D-Brownfield and chairman of the powerful House Appropriations Committee.

Both Rudd and Public Education Committee Chairman Ernestine Glossbrenner, D-Alice, predicted today's vote will be close.

Also Tuesday, the Senate on quick voice votes endorsed a package of budgetary diversions that would provide an estimated $140 million for school finance reform.

The diversions, which also were endorsed by the House Appropriations Committee, include $42.4 million from the state's "rainy day" fund, and $57 million from the Capitol restoration and expansion project.

Also included were $7 million in delayed debt service payments on the Superconducting Super Collider and $12 million in savings from the state's contribution to state employee insurance premiums.

One new wrinkle in the school finance debate emerged Tuesday when the Senate Finance Committee for the first time heard testimony on wholesale fee increases as a source of almost $120 million in new education aid.

The proposals include a $110 across-the-board fee on such professionals as attorneys, psychologists and doctors. Also included in the package was a fee hike from $3 to $9 for insurance companies requesting driving record searches.

Presenting the idea was Sen. John Leedom, R-Dallas, who said he was only testing the legislative waters with and received a hard time from Democratic committee members.

"So some of us are called tax-and-spend Democrats, and you can be called fee-and-spend Republicans," said Sen. Gonzalo Barrientos, D-Austin.

Asked Sen. Carlos Truan, D-Corpus Christi, after Leedom attempted to explain the difference between a fee and a tax, "Have you done some research on how much a fee on corporate profits would raise?"

Leedom quickly pointed out such a fee would amount to an income tax. "A cow is a cow and a duck is a duck," he said.

Later, Gov. Bill Clements seemed to disavow the fee idea, saying that such increases were necessary because of inflation, but the charges are supposed to pay for agency costs, not school finance reform, he said.

Big Spring offers reward

Staff Report

BIG SPRING — A $5,000 reward is being offered for information leading to the arrest and indictment of anyone involved in a April 19 double homicide here, sheriff's officials said.

Law enforcement officials are investigating the stabbing deaths of Lloyd Davidson, 79, and his 59-year-old wife Jean who were killed at their home just outside of Big Spring at the Interstate 20 Mobile Home Park.

Investigator said they are still talking to suspects in the case.

The reward is made up of $2,500 from a Big Spring car dealer, $1,500 from private citzens and $1,000 from Crime Stoppers.

AWARD: Honoree credits teamwork money on the programs for which the money was.

"All these are ingenious ideas and I hope very much that they work, but until we see that money, it's a hope," said Hobby, who also has called for a tax increase.

Hobby said he has suggested that Clements put the health care budget issues on the legislative agenda.

Clements on Tuesday said he will not add any more items to the agenda until progress is made on the public school finance reform bill.

"I think that will take care of itself in the natural course of events," Clements said. "We're right now concerned with public school education. One step at a time."

Jury rejects antitrust lawsuit filed by Dallas Times Herald

HOUSTON (AP) — A jury on Tuesday said the Dallas Times Herald was not harmed unfairly by the loss of 26 comics and features last fall to its larger rival, The Dallas Morning News.

The jury voted 10-2 in declining to award damages to the Times Herald, which contended that the Morning News and its parent, A.H. Belo Corp., violated antitrust laws by taking over the features in a move to drive the Times Herald out of business.

The Times Herald had asked for $33 million in actual damages and what its attorneys termed significant punitive damages. The $33 million, under Texas antitrust and conspiracy laws, would have been tripled if the Times Herald lawsuit had been successful.

"We feel strongly we have been vindicated," said Robert Decherd, Belo chairman. "The law and the facts of this case have been with us all along. We never doubted the outcome. If you apply the law to this case, there was no case."

Times Herald Publisher John Buzzetta said, "I'm disappointed," then hurriedly left the courtoom with his attorneys.

"We'll keep on fighting," said Times Herald attorney Wayne Fisher.

The Times Herald later issued a statement saying, "We disagree that the conduct of our competitor was legal or proper in any way. In fact, it was wrong in many ways — wrong morally, wrong ethically, wrong for the profession of journalism and wrong for Dallas and its people."

The lawsuit challenged a Belo joint venture with Universal Press Syndicate that stripped the Times Herald of features including Doonesbury, Dear Abby, The Far Side and Erma Bombeck.

The Harris County jury deliberated five days before reaching the verdict Tuesday afternoon. The jurors were asked: "Did A.H. Belo Corp. or The Dallas Morning News Co. willfully attempt to achieve monopoly power in a relevant market or markets?"

Jurors earlier asked about the definition of "willfully" and whether the relevant market in the case was the newspapers or the features.

State District Judge David West accepted a response proposed by Belo and Morning News attorneys and over the objections of Times Herald lawyers, who contended the judge waited too long to give the explanation.

Jury foreman Karen Adamson said the judge's explanation broke a logjam and made the verdict easy.

"The main problem was the definition," she said. "We were pretty much split. That's all we needed and everything changed. I'm so amazed it happened so quickly."

The Times Herald had contended the features transfer violated antitrust laws, and was intended to strengthen Belo and Morning News market dominance in Dallas and drive the Times Herald out of business.

The suit also alleged that Morning News and Belo officials conspired to get the features and interfered in the Times Herald's contract with Kansas City-based Universal Press Syndicate.

Belo and The Morning News defended the deal as a good business decision. It will use syndicate comics characters in television programs and commercials to encourage newspaper readership.

El Paso school district earns dubious distinction

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — The El Paso Independent School District spent $2 million preparing its staff and teachers for a Texas Education Agency inspection in November, but the district's accreditation was lowered anyway.

A team of more than 100 investigators from the Texas Education Agency, which oversees all public schools, conducted the inspection Nov. 13-17, 1989.

Before the team arrived, the district published guides for employees, held training sessions for some staff members and even conducted a "dress rehearsal," in which more than 60 people pretending to be inspectors visited schools and conducted mock interviews.

The TEA report cited 38 deficiencies in the district's programs, staff and facilities as it dropped the rating to "accredited-advised." It is the only the second time in the state's history a major urban school district's rating has been lowered.

STATE in brief

National Guard called to help

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements on Tuesday called out the National Guard to assist in shoring up a levee that has been threatened by rising flood waters in the Red River in Bowie County.

Clements' order activated 50 members of the 372nd Support Battalion Mechanized Infantry Company.

About 100 homes in an unincorporated area north of Texarkana were endangered by the weakened levee, officials said.

Kenyon to consult

AUSTIN (AP) — Republican gubernatorial candidate Clayton Williams has appointed a new press secretary, Gordon Hensley.

Bill Kenyon, Williams' spokesman during the primary campaign, will be a consultant for the candidate, Hensley said.

Hensley, of Washington, D.C., said he has worked in five political campaigns in the past five years, including stints with Jim Courter, who ran unsuccessfully for governor of New Jersey, and with Pete DuPont during the 1988 presidential primary in New Hampshire.

Kids are TV-free

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Halfway through six weeks during which they promised abstain from weekday television-watching, 104 fifth- and sixth-graders here got a pep talk and a fast-food incentive.

"The preliminary results are very promising and encouraging," said Tony Bonilla, president of the Corpus Christi Chamber of Commerce. "It looks like we still have over 90 percent of the kids who signed the contract complying."

To join the program, a student, a parent and a teacher signed a contract not to watch television Monday through Thursday nights. Students may watch programs assigned by teachers, and can tape weekday shows for viewing during the weekend.

At the end of six weeks, students who have complied with the contract will receive a special identification card and vouchers from several local businesses for treats.

Principal Ola Underhill said attendance has gone up slightly since the program began, with the fifth- and sixth-graders averaging 98 percent attendance. Normally, she said, average attendance is 96.75 percent for fifth-graders and 96.73 percent for sixth-graders.

Nudists seek relief

DALLAS (AP) — North Texas nudists are trying to attract bug-eating birds to their camps after learning that recent record flooding is likely to produce a bumper crop of mosquitoes.

"We're putting up some martin (bird) houses," said Claudia Adcock, manager of the Ponderosa Ranch nudist camp near Wills Point, Texas. Ms. Adcock said she and others at the camp want purple martins around "because they eat the mosquitoes like nobody's business."

Area health officials say pesky insects such as mosquitoes, fleas and fire ants will be plentiful because of the moisture brought this spring by the worst flooding since 1908.

However, a spokesman for the Bluebonnet Nudist Park Resort near Decatur, Texas, said his clients probably won't suffer more than anyone else.

"Let me ask you, do you prefer them biting you with your pants on or your pants off? We have the same concerns about fire ants as you have. We have the same concerns about gnats. I don't know anyone who particularly cares to get stung by a wasp — nude or not," said the Bluebonnet park official, who wouldn't give his name.

Treaty Oak trial continues with woman's testimony

AUSTIN (AP) — A defense witness testified Tuesday that she saw two men pour something at the base of the Treaty Oak early last year, adding that neither was the man who is charged with trying to poison the historic tree.

Wanda Garcia testified in the trial of Paul Stedman Cullen, 46, who is accused of trying to kill the 500-year-old tree with the herbicide Velpar. Because of a previous conviction, he faces a possible life prison sentence if found guilty.

Ms. Garcia, 43, said she was shopping at a store near the Treaty Oak on a Sunday in February or March of 1989. She said she saw two men with buckets about 6 feet to 10 feet from the tree.

"I didn't think too much of it," she testified. "But they were carrying pails from this car. I saw the men pouring something around Treaty Oak. I was surprised — my first impression or thought was that they may have been fertilizing because I couldn't imagine anyone pouring anything around the tree."

Although the men were about 15 feet away from her, Ms. Garcia said she could only describe them as average-looking and said they were wearing blue jeans and plaid shirts. She also said she saw at least five more buckets under the tree.

She said she didn't come forward immediately because she hadn't been following news accounts of the tree poisoning very closely.

However, Ms. Garcia said, "My conscience bothered me back in August and that's when I came forward." Cullen was arrested in June and has remained in jail since.

Prosecutors contend that Cullen poisoned the landmark tree in a ritual designed to rid himself of his love for a woman who was his drug counselor.

Tribute held at villa where Nazis plotted Holocaust

WEST BERLIN (AP) — Leaders of the World Jewish Congress stood outside the villa Tuesday where Nazi leaders plotted the Holocaust and recalled the 6 million dead, including brides and grooms, rabbis and students and "dreamers of Zion."

"I will not pray here, because I personally believe that God turned his face away from this place, as he did from Auschwitz," said Edgar M. Bronfman, president of the World Jewish Congress.

The solemn ceremony in front of the Wannsee Villa, where Nazi leaders in 1942 mapped out the "Final Solution," was the most emotional part of the three-day World Jewish Congress in Berlin, which ended Tuesday.

It was the first time the Congress had met on German soil, and some delegates refused to attend, saying their grief was still too great.

Wannsee Villa is now in disrepair, with many of the inside walls ripped out and dusty scaffolding covering one part of the facade. West Berlin officials have promised to refurbish the villa and turn it into a Holocaust memorial.

A tribute composed by Nobel Peace Prize winner Elie Wiesel, a concentration camp survivor, called to mind the Holocaust victims.

It spoke of "teachers and their pupils — brides and grooms, intellectuals and workers, rabbis and their disciples, young revolutionaries and old dreamers of Zion."

"All were doomed. Simply, solely as Jews," said the declaration, read on the 45th anniversary of the collapse of Nazi Germany in World War II.

The declaration recalled how the Nazis "in the name of their criminal leadership on behalf of their nation, condemned the entire Jewish people to death and oblivion."

> "I will not pray here, because I personally believe that God turned his face away from this place...'
> — Edgar M. Bronfman

"What does a Jew today feel in this place, marked by evil and malediction?" said Wiesel's tribute. "Fear and trembling, anger —incommensurate anger, helplessness and grief — infinite grief."

"If only the walls could speak. If only the trees and clouds could testify," it said. "We need to hear them, for most German men and women, in the past refused to speak, refuse to remember."

Jewish leaders for years have said that older Germans especially have refused to face their past. West German President Richard von Weizsaecker has drawn acclaim at home and abroad for urging fellow citizens to frankly deal with the horrors of the Nazi legacy.

As the two Germanys rush toward reunification, there have been fears of a growth of anti-Semitism.

A top-ranking official from West Germany tried to allay these fears during a speech to the final session of the Congress.

"We will continue with all force the fight against right-wing extremism and anti-Semitism," Interior Minister Wolgang Schaeuble said.

Before the ceremony, Bronfman and other leaders of the organization toured the inside of the villa.

They stood in what is known as the "Fireplace Room," the room that historians say is most likely the one used for the conference.

There, Nazi SS boss Reinhard Heydrich and his co-conspirators planned the "Final Solution," the extermination of European Jews.

"It's just absolutely mind-boggling, when you hear that Heydrich wanted to come here to a secluded spot because he wasn't sure his colleagues would go along with him," said Bronfman. "He was so happy they did, he took a glass of brandy and had a cigar. What kind of people were these?"

Later, Congress leaders traveled to East Berlin for a meeting with Prime Minister Lothar de Maiziere.

"There has never been a Germany without Jews," de Maiziere told the Jewish delegation. "There can only be a Germany with Jews, or there won't be any Germany."

The democratically elected East German government, in a dramatic gesture, last month accepted joint responsibility for the Holocaust. For more than four decades, the now-ousted Communist authorities had denied any responsibility.

Bronfman, during the East Berlin visit, called for a memorial to be built at the site of the now crumbling Berlin Wall to recall the significance of Nov. 9, 1938, and Nov. 9, 1989.

On the date last year, the Berlin Wall was opened. On Nov. 9, 1938, Nazi thugs throughout Germany started ransacking Jewish stores and homes and killing dozens of Jews in what has been called Kristallnacht, because of the masses of broken glass that littered the streets afterward.

Are you seeing the most out of life?

Diabetes can cause severe eye complications, including diabetic retinopathy which renders over 5,000 diabetics blind each year.

Diabetic retinopathy does not just afflict people who have had diabetes for many years. It can appear within the first year or two after the onset of diabetes, or it can even be one of the first signs of the disease.

THE GOOD NEWS IS that early treatment of retinopathy often improves the potential for preserving sight. If you have diabetes or are at risk of developing this disease, your regular eye care should include a thorough, accurate evaluation by an ophthalmologist -- a process Southwest Retina Eye Center is offering FREE in recognition of National Sight Saving Month.

Cheney says he wants to retain first-strike policy

CALGARY, Alberta (AP) — Defense Secretary Dick Cheney said Tuesday he wants NATO to maintain the policy that allows for a first-strike use of nuclear weapons in the event of a Warsaw Pact invasion of Europe.

Cheney, en route to a NATO session reviewing nuclear strategy, told reporters that the alliance's defense ministers will lay the groundwork for a lengthy review of NATO strategy involving the use of conventional and nuclear systems.

President Bush called for the review last Thursday in light of the political and military changes that have swept Europe the past year.

The president's request came as he announced he had scrapped plans to replace short-range nuclear missiles in Europe and put aside plans upgrade the nuclear artillery shells.

Cheney was to be joined by the defense ministers of 14 other NATO nations for the first of four sessions leading up to a NATO summit London in July.

Cheney said he intended to brief the allies on Bush's initiative, which comes as the member nations reassess NATO's political and military significance amid the crumbling of its long-time foe, the Warsaw Pact.

Bush's decision on short-range weapons does not signal the beginning of the removal of U.S. nuclear weapons from Europe, Cheney stressed.

"That does not mean that you want to walk away from the role of nuclear weapons in the overall defense of Europe," Cheney said. "We think U.S. nuclear capability, both theater and strategic, will continue to be an important part of our overall alliance strategy."

Cheney said the "flexible response" doctrine, allowing for the first use of nuclear weapons, has provided security for the alliance for decades "and I'm not eager to remove one part of it."

Cheney said there is no reason for the NATO ministers to discuss alliance plans to modernize air-launched nuclear missiles known as TASMs (Tactical Air to Surface Missile).

"There's nothing that's happened within the last few weeks that ... in any way changes our approach to TASM," Cheney said.

Pope urges increased church-state relations

AGUASCALIENTES, Mexico (AP) — Pope John Paul II said Tuesday the church and state in Mexico are reaching a better understanding and issued a veiled appeal for a repeal of the decades-old constitutional ban on Catholic schools.

"Open the world of teaching to Christ!" the pope cried.

Later, before the biggest throng of the trip, John Paul called on young Mexicans not to lose hope in the face of injustice and poverty and to seize faith in Christ as a weapon against despair.

Many of today's young are "wounded by despair," the pope said, citing "evasion, abandon, hedonism, discotheques, drugs, indifference, pessimism, the artificial paradises in which so many find refuge."

Thousands of youths waved white, yellow and green handkerchiefs, pennants and caps as the pope spoke to more than 200,000 people gathered on the slopes of a bowl in the hills at San Juan de Los Lagos, about 50 miles south of Aguascalientes.

The pope's talks to the youth of Mexico and their teachers came on the third day of his second trip to Mexico. His schedule Tuesday also included a talk to diplomats in Mexico City.

In Aguascalientes, 275 miles northwest of Mexico City, the pope stopped off at the airport before flying on to San Juan. Because the pope did not enter the city, replicas of downtown colonial buildings were installed as a backdrop to his speech.

John Paul, speaking under a white parasol to ward off the blazing sun, noted recent increased contacts between the Vatican and Mexico, whose constitution has harsh restrictions on religious activity.

"A new perspective of contacts between the church and the political community of this country is occurring in this day," the pope said. "And in this phase of better understanding and dialogue, the church wants to offer its own support, without straying from its specific goals and abilities."

It was the pope's most direct public comment on the gradual relaxation of the church-state relationship in Mexico that was symbolized when President Carlos Salinas de Gortari met John Paul at the Mexico City airport on Sunday.

The 1917 constitution says all schools must be government-run.

In practice, however, Catholic schools and universities have long existed and are growing in number. In one of the paradoxes that characterizes church-state relations, many government leaders send their children to Catholic schools, which are generally considered of higher quality.

The pontiff said he hoped that Mexicans would overcome the idea raised by critics that the church had obstructed cultural and scientific progress.

"It is enough to remember the secular educative efforts of the religious and ecclesiastical institutions, from the first evangelization until the present day," he said.

The church lost the right to religious schools because its liberal opponents during the late 19th and early 20th centuries believed it was a regressive force in Mexico that retarded social progress.

Oil prices higher

NEW YORK (AP) — Oil prices rose Tuesday, strengthened by European demand and fears of supply disruptions from a Gulf of Mexico pipeline shutdown, but traders said a late bout of selling left the market only slightly higher.

"We basically finished not far from where we started," said James R. Fiedler, an energy futures broker at E.D.&F. Man International Futures Inc. in New York.

On the New York Mercantile Exchange, the June-delivery price of WTI rose 1 cent per barrel to $18.28, after trading as high as $18.58 earlier in the day. Later-month contracts, however, were mostly lower.

Natural gas for June delivery strengthened to $1.583 per 1,000 cubic feet.

Dollar down

NEW YORK (AP) — The dollar closed mixed in U.S. foreign exchange trading Tuesday after strengthening slightly in Europe, but money brokers said the underlying direction of the American currency remained unclear.

Gold prices fell. Republic National Bank in New York quoted bullion at $369.90 a troy ounce.

Dollar rates in New York: 1.6575 West German marks; 1.4310 Swiss francs; 1.1639 Canadian dollars; 5.5685 French francs; 1,216.00 Italian lire.

In gold trading, bullion for immediate delivery on the New York Commodity Exchange fell $1.90 a troy ounce to $370.00. Silver for immediate delivery fell 2.7 cents an ounce to $4.989 on the New York Commodity Exchange.

Card terminated

An antitrust suit by 14 states claimed that because Visa and Mastercard members include virtually every major U.S. bank, their joint development of the so-called Entree debit card network constituted an attempt to create a monopoly in the emerging "point-of-sale" debit card industry.

Business facts

Home sales sink in first quarter

■ High mortgage rates and high prices have caused home sales to sink in the first three months of this year.

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Double-digit mortgage rates and rising prices dampened existing home sales in many areas during the first three months of 1990, while boosting them in others, a real estate trade group reported Tuesday.

Overall, the National Association of Realtors said sales slipped 1.6 percent to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 3.81 million units during the January-March period, down from 3.87 million units during the fourth quarter. Sales totaled 3.90 million during the first quarter of 1989.

Association president Norman D. Flynn said rising mortgage rates had the dual effect of spurring sales in moderately-priced areas while curbing them in higher-end markets.

"Buyers in affordable markets decided to buy before rates rose further, while those in high-cost areas held back," Flynn explained.

The trade group's survey showed the median price of existing homes rose 5.2 percent to $95,900, up from $91,200 during the same period of 1989. The median price means half of the homes cost more, half less.

Mortgage rates also rose, starting the quarter at 9.83 percent and ending it at 10.22 percent, according to the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Association. Rates have continued to rise, and hit 10.67 percent at the end of last week.

Nevertheless, the Realtors said resales are expected to remain stable during the year as economic conditions improve.

The Realtors survey covered sales of existing single-family detached homes, town houses, apartment condominiums and cooperatives.

Sales were up in 29 states, ranging from a 49.1 percent jump in South Dakota to a 0.9 percent increase in Nevada. At the same time, Vermont posted a 24.8 percent decrease, the largest decline in the nation.

By region, the West saw sales rise 3 percent to an annual rate of 680,000 units, dominated by activity in California. Flynn reported some softening in high-cost coastal areas while sales in some lower-priced interior areas increased.

The South had across-the-board increases, up 0.7 percent to 1.46 million units, as many oil-patch areas continued to regain strength.

More funds approved for Europe

WASHINGTON (AP) — A 50 percent increase in money available for loans to Eastern Europe and developing countries was approved today by the International Monetary Fund's policy-making committee.

At the insistence of the United States, the IMF's Interim Committee linked the $60 billion increase to a plan to force substantial economic reforms from 11 poor countries, which are $4 billion behind on their loan payments.

U.S. officials said Congress had demanded the link before approving the increase in the U.S. contribution, or quota.

In exchange for the link, which many debtor countries opposed, the United States agreed to begin consideration of an additional increase in its contribution in 1993, two years earlier than originally planned.

"Despite reservations that a number of members had on certain individual elements of the package, we recognize this was a consensus. ... Everybody had to give in order to achieve a compromise," said Canadian Finance Minister Michael H. Wilson, chairman of the 22-member Interim Committee.

The quota change, which must be approved before the end of 1991 by nations representing 85 percent of the fund's voting power, will raise the fund's resources to $180 billion from $120 billion.

"What you see ... is a package with features that are designed to strengthen the role of the International Monetary Fund as the central pillar of the international financial system," Wilson said.

Delinquent countries that agree to adopt economic reforms would be eligible for money from a special IMF fund. However, nations in arrears could lose their voting rights. Also, the agency could sell 3 million ounces of gold, roughly equivalent to the members' original contributions, to meet the obligations of defaulting debtors.

The 11 nations in arrears are the Sudan, Zambia, Peru, Costa Rica, Honduras, Guyana, Somalia, Sierra Leone, Cambodia, Vietnam and Panama.

The Interim Committee also agreed to reorder the voting power within the fund, allowing Japan to vault from fifth place to second, behind the United States, in recognition of its growing financial power. West Germany will share the second position.

Offiials said Great Britain, which had been No. 2, and France were close to an agreement to share the fourth spot, although that was not addressed in the Interim Committee's statement.

The panel reached agreement on the package Monday night after debating it most of the day in private sessions. It announced the pact in a communique released this morning.

The plan had received an important boost Sunday with the endorsement by the Group of Seven major industrial nations: the United States, Japan, West Germany, Great Britain, France, Canada and Italy.

Albert Skibell, who runs the Skibell company with his son Charles, joins in the grand celebration of the new Midland location.

Skibell's settles in new home

■ Albert Skibell, whose brother founded the Skibell's chain, was in town to celebrate the store's new Midland location and recalled how the two brothers built the company.

By Melia McEwen
Staff Writer

Although it's been open in its new location since March 31, Skibell's held a grand opening celebration Tuesday, complete with a ribbon-cutting ceremony.

The ladies' fashion store, a presence in Midland for 28 years, moved to Courtyard at Midland Park from Dellwood Mall because, as Albert Skibell explained, "we felt the focus of the town had shifted, and we wanted to be close to the mall."

Skibell, in town from Lubbock for the grand opening, credits the company's success to its commitment to service, and the quality of merchandise the stores sell. Currently there are six Skibell's stores: Two in Lubbock, and one each in Midland, Odessa, Texarkana and the original store in Greenville, Texas.

At its peak, the company operated nine stores, eventually closing three located in Amarillo and Plainview.

Skibell's late brother Archie founded the company in 1928 in Greenville under the name "Lamode." He had entered the retail profession in 1924, opening a discount store four years after coming to the U.S. from Poland at the age of 16.

Albert, who now helps his son Charles run the company, joined Archie after immigrating in 1938. He opened and managed a Lamode store in Sulphur Springs — which was later sold — until 1941, when he was inducted into the army. The youngest of 10, Albert says he, Archie and three other

Lorenzo has plans for Eastern

Hearst News Service

HOUSTON – He has lost control of the company, but Frank Lorenzo hasn't ruled out the possibility that someday he may once again play a role at Eastern Airlines.

And he has not abandoned the idea that troubled Eastern and its sister carrier, Continental Airlines, could become one air carrier.

"We'll have to see," Lorenzo, chairman of Texas Air, said Monday.

Nearly three weeks ago, U.S. Bankruptcy Judge Burton Lifland, on the request of Eastern's creditors, yanked control of the airline out of Lorenzo's hands and turned it over to Martin Shugrue, a former Continental boss and Lorenzo associate.

"Right now, we're rooting Marty on and with all our strength focusing on Continental," Lorenzo said.

In a meeting Monday with the Chronicle's editorial board, Lorenzo said that despite Shugrue's appointment, Texas Air officials haven't lost touch with Eastern or given up attempts to help the subsidiary.

"We're going to be as helpful as we can to see that the operations improve," Lorenzo said. "At some point, there will have be a (bankruptcy) reorganization plan. What role, if any, we play in it, we'll have to see."

Part of Texas Air's role could involve the payment of $280 million to compensate Eastern for transactions conducted between Texas Air and Eastern before the carrier filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection more than a year ago.

Court-appointed examiner David I. Shapiro, after spending months investigating transactions between the parent and subsidiary, concluded that Texas Air had shortchanged Eastern by anywhere from $285 million to $403 million.

Originally, Texas Air had agreed to a settlement in which it would pay Eastern $280 million. But when Texas Air lost control of Eastern, the deal was thrown into limbo.

"We're still anxious to see some kind of settlement," Lorenzo said, but he did not reveal whether the company would still agree to pay such a sum.

Chinese Kitchen celebrates 15 years

By Melia McEwen

McEwen

CHINESE KITCHEN, located at 4316 W. Illinois, is celebrating its 15th anniversary this month.

Owners James and Kailee Young have seen their business grow from one restaurant in Lubbock to 11 locations in nine Texas towns. There are now three locations in Lubbock, where the Youngs are based, and restaurants in Odessa, Amarillo, Abilene, San Angelo, Austin, Waco and Carrollton as well as in Midland. Chinese Kitchen has also grown from two employees to over 200.

Young, a native of Taiwan, became interested in food service while attending Texas Tech University. He says "We're very happy to be situated within the state of Texas and feel the opportunity for continued growth is phenomenal."

The Texas Restaurant Association reports that the Chinese food market in Texas accounts for 2 percent of all restaurant sales.

Analysis

By BART ZIEGLER
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices jumped Tuesday in the final minutes of trading as the market cheered the outcome of the first phase of a record-sized auction of government debt securities.

The gain extended the market's winning streak to seven trading days in a row, its longest unbroken rally since last July.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks rose 11.94 to 2,733.56.

Advancing issues outnumbered declining ones by about 5 to 4 in nationwide trading of New York Stock Exchange-listed stocks, with 813 up, 650 down and 518 unchanged.

The Treasury's quarterly refunding auction consists of $30.5 billion in notes and bonds sold over three days. At the first part of the auction Tuesday, the government sold $10.5 billion worth of three-year notes at an average yield of 8.74 percent.

Some market watchers had feared the interest rate on the notes would go even higher to attract buyers; higher interest rates tend to depress stock prices.

But results of the auction weren't released until a few minutes before the market closed, keeping stock prices in a narrow range most of the day.

The Dow average was up 1.13 points on the day as of 3:45 p.m. EDT. But minutes later the auction results were released, sending prices climbing. By the closing bell at 4 p.m., the Dow had shot up more than 10 points, ending 11.94 higher for the day.

Among most-active blue-chip stocks, IBM rose ¼ to 110¾ and Philip Morris rose ¼ to 43⅝. Among other blue chips, American Telephone & Telegraph was up ¼ to 40⅝, General Motors rose ½ to 46¾ and Union Carbide gained ⅜ to 19⅞.

CalFed led the list of most-active NYSE stocks, rising ⅛ to 17⅝ as 2.5 million shares changed hands. The thrift's shares go ex-dividend Wednesday, and the trades Tuesday were designed to capture the payout.

American General, the second-most-active NYSE issue, rose 1⅛ to 50⅛. The Dow Jones Professional Investor Report said Nippon Life Insurance and Chubb might bid for the insurance company, which has put itself up for sale. American General said it has had no talks with either company but otherwise declined comment.

Volume on the floor of the Big Board came to 144.23 million shares, up from 132.76 million Monday.

Nationwide, consolidated volume in NYSE-listed issues, including trades in those stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 172.95 million shares.

As measured by Wilshire Associates' index of more than 5,000 actively traded stocks, the market grew $11.197 billion, or 0.34 percent, in value.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks rose .66 to 187.11.

SKIBELL'S: Loyalty 'satisfying' brothers came to the U.S., but couldn't persuade the rest of the family to leave Poland.

(From 1C)

After being discharged from the army in 1945, Skibell settled in Lubbock, where his wife Norma had come to be with her parents. He purchased Grollman's in 1949, renaming it Albert's House of Fashion. At the same time, Archie had come to Lubbock and with partners Sam Balk, Al Glassman and Albert, opened The Economy Store that catered to low and middle-income families.

In 1953, Archie renamed his stores Skibell's; he and Albert merged operations in 1958.

Albert says that while he's seen ups and downs in his 50 years in the ready-to-wear business, he's enjoyed them. The company is determined to remain independent "to keep control of our merchandising."

As for any future expansion, he says that depends on the area economy. In the meantime he works at his real estate business in Lubbock and helps his son Charles, whom he calls a retailing genius, with the stores.

"If it weren't for Charles," he says, "I don't believe we'd be in business today."

The company has seen its earnings and customer base steadily grow — there are 10,000 West Texans with Skibell's credit cards — as competion has increased. But what pleases Skibell the most is the loyalty of the customers.

"We're seeing second and third-generation customers in here now," he says, smiling broadly. "That really gives a sense of satisfaction."

PLANS: Lorenzo still dreams

(From 1C)

Lorenzo noted that the $280 million settlement included only $107 million in cash. The remaining $173 million involved transactions such as aircraft purchases to which Texas Air had previously agreed.

Texas Air also may be forced to pay hundreds of millions of dollars for Eastern's pension plan. Texas Air officials estimate the company owes Eastern's pension fund about $475 million, while Eastern's creditors have set that figure closer to $980 million.

Lorenzo said the company is trying to negotiate a settlement on that issue.

Without troubled Eastern — which has lost more than $1 billion in the last year – Lorenzo and other Texas Air officials have been able to turn their attention to Continental, a company whose annual revenues could approach $5.5 billion this year.

Continental, for example, is negotiating to obtain the right to fly non-stop from Houston to Tokyo.

The company originally intended to request to begin service to Tokyo in 1993, when Continental is scheduled to receive an order of Airbus jetliners.

But at the urging of city and economic development officials – who feared Houston would miss its chance to gain entry to Tokyo – Continental agreed to apply for the service early.

Texaco unveils plan

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Texaco officials unveiled a six-point company development plan at the annual stockholders meeting Tuesday, making only passing reference to a 37,000-gallon oil spill in the Gulf of Mexico.

"We've got the energy, and plan to use this energy to drive this company to new levels of excellence," James Kinnear, president and chief executive officer, said in an upbeat presentation.

He did not mention the spreading oil that leaked from a Texaco-operated pipeline about 100 miles off the Louisiana coast.

However, Max Hebert, a company spokesman, responded to reporters' questions by saying the leak has apparently stopped and the oil is breaking up in rough seas.

'Dogs blow it in seventh

■ Termed one of MHS's toughest losses ever, Lubbock Monterey scores four times in the final inning as the Plainsmen take a 7-5 bi-district baseball playoff victrory over the Bulldogs.

By Bill Price
Staff Writer

Just when it looked like Midland High would take a 1-0 lead in its bi-district baseball playoff against Lubbock Monterey, the roof caved in.

Holding a 5-3 lead going into the seventh inning Tuesday at Zachery Field, the Bulldogs were witnesses to a four-run Monterey seventh that gave the Plainsmen a 7-5 win to take the lead in the best-of-three series.

"I think this one of the toughest losses we've ever had," said MHS coach Tim Whalen. "We just lost some concentration and didn't do what we had to do to win the game."

What the 'Dogs needed to do was get one more out to win the game.

After taking a 1-0 lead with two innings completed and a 5-1 edge after four, MHS appeared to be cruising to Saturday's completion of the series at Lowrey Field in Lubbock. But the Plainsmen, now 24-3, had plenty to say about the outcome.

Monterey began mounting its comeback in the fifth when it scored a pair of runs to to cut the lead to 5-3. According to Plainsman coach Bobby Moegle, that was when he decided to let left-handed pitcher Junior Garza go the distance after Garza gave up four runs in the fourth.

"I considered taking him out after that fourth inning, but when we got those two runs back I figured he ought to have the chance to win the game," he said.

Luckily for Monterey, Moegle's decision was the right one. After giving up the four runs with no outs, Garza proceeded to retire 12 Bulldog batters in a row to close the game with 10 strikeouts and only one walk.

MHS hurler Gabriel Salazar also kept up his end the pitching duel, by striking out 11 Plainsmen and going the distance. However, three hit batsmen by Salazar with two outs in the seventh spelled doom for MHS.

Monterey's John DeLeon, who had tripled twice off Salazar, started the inning with a 5-3 groundout. After pinch hitter

The Midland High Bulldogs saw their seventh-inning lead over Lubbock Monterey slip away like egg whites on an ice tray, but chances are the Plainsmen also feel the sting of Midland's 7-5 loss in round one of the bi-district playoff.

Midland High's Gabriel Salazar, who fanned 11 would-be hitters before the game-winning rally, hit three Plainsmen batters with two out in the top of the seventh.

The first one eventually scored the tying run. The next one brought the go-ahead run across.

All three of them were nursing sore spots as they headed for their bus back to Lubbock where game No. 2 will be staged Saturday.

"I didn't really think about taking him out," Midland skipper Tim Whalen referred to his pitching ace. "Everyone of those guys he hit, he hit hard.

"You've got to go with the guy that got you there, and I felt that Gabriel was still throwing hard there at the end. If anything, he may have been throwing too hard."

Salazar was certainly throwing hard when he smoked a third strike past Monterey's No. 3 hitter Brent Houtchens for the second out of the seventh. But Clint Bryant had singled moments before that, and with cleanup hitter Greg Cushman

Pistons throttle New York

AP Laserphoto

Detroit's Dennis Rodman (10), named the NBA's Defensive Player of the Year on Monday, locks arms with New York center Patrick Ewing.

Associated Press

AUBURN HILLS, Mich. — The Detroit Pistons had no trouble going from layoff to playoff against the emotionally drained New York Knicks.

The Pistons, showing no ill effects from a week-long layoff, got 10 points from James Edwards to open the runaway third quarter, and the defending NBA champions rolled to a 112-77 victory over the Knicks in the opener of their Eastern Conference series Tuesday night.

The Pistons, idle after sweeping Indiana in the first round, lost two of the first three games in the conference finals against Chicago last year following a similar layoff. Detroit went on to defeat the Bulls 4-2 and have won 11 consecutive playoff games, two short of the Los Angeles Lakers' record.

"The only difference between last year and this is that the club's maturity is a factor," Detroit coach Chuck Daly said. "Except for a couple of days, we had good practices."

Knicks coach Stu Jackson said his team simply couldn't regain the drive they displayed in winning their final three first-round games to eliminate the Boston Celtics.

"It was very obvious that we were blown out on the basketball floor and blown out emotionally," Jackson said. "We didn't have the same energy as we have had in other games.

"It's going to take a great effort to win one game."

The 77 points matched the Pistons' best playoff defensive effort and also

Celtics uproot Rodgers

N.Y. Times News Service

Jimmy Rodgers, who coached the once-mighty Boston Celtics through two lackluster seasons and two first-round eliminations in post-season play, including Sunday's upset victory by the New York Knicks in Boston Garden, was dismissed as the team's head coach on Tuesday.

The action by the team's four-man executive committee came just two years after Rodgers's predecessor, K.C. Jones, had stepped aside so his acclaimed long-time assistant could move up to the head coaching position.

It also came just two days after the Knicks, refusing to roll over and play dead after trailing the Celtics by two games in the playoffs, completed a rare three-game streak by closing out the Celtics on their home court, the first time in 27 games the Knicks had beaten the Celtics in Boston.

Despite the timing of the move, Red Auerbach, the former Celtic coach who serves as team president and a member of the executive committee, insisted Tuesday night that the dismissal was not based on the loss to the Knicks.

"Absolutely not," he said. "I don't blame that game on Rodgers."

Auerbach, who attributed Sun-

Missions halt Angel streak

■ San Antonio pitcher Zak Shinall is Missions' tonic to end eight-game Texas League slide.

By Bill Grimes
Staff Writer

San Antonio Missions' pitcher Zak Shinall watched the Midland Angels batter his fellow Mission hurlers for 17, 18 and 19 hits, respectively, in the first three games of the current five-game series.

But the fourth-year pro apparently didn't take good notes. The sinker-balling Shinall shut down the Angels for 6⅔ innings Tuesday en route to a 9-3 Mission win that snapped a five-game win streak for the hosts and a eight-game slide for the guests.

Of course, "shut down" is a relative term at Angels Stadium, where Texas League pitchers often suffer from dry, windy conditions. The M-Angels rapped eight of their nine hits off Shinall, but the Mission infield turned three double plays in the first five innings to help out their 21-year-old starter.

Though nine hits is generally nothing to sneeze at, Midland manager Eddie Rodriguez said he's been spoiled by his Haloes' startling success that has enabled Midland to go from last to first in TL team batting average over the course of a week.

"These guys want double figures (in hits) every night," the Midland skipper said.

While Shinall was frustrating Midland batters, San Antonio batters were aiming for — and nearly reaching — Loop 250 off first Kyle Abbott and then Kevin Trudeau. Lorenzo "Henry" Rodriguez bashed a four-bagger off Abbott, 0-3, in the first inning, while Steve Finken and Braulio Castillo touched them all off Trudeau in the seventh and ninth innings, respectively. The round-trippers accounted for five of the Missions' nine runs.

Shinall avoided falling into the same trap as his fellow Mission pitchers, and he said his sinker was the primary reason.

"I was able to put the ball in spots and get my ground balls."

While the 6-foot-4, 220-pound Shinall may look like a fastball pitcher, he relies so heavily on grounders that he has struck out only 16 batters in 36⅔ innings this season, including three Tuesday.

"Velocity doesn't mean anything," Shinall said. "You have major league pitchers getting hitters out with nothing faster than 83 or 84 (miles per hour).

"It's more important to move the hitters in and out and force them to hit," he concluded."

Midland leadoff man Mark Davis said Shinall was dominant in his own way.

"Shinall was on," Davis said. "He didn't make many mistakes, if any."

The Angels touched Shinall for a run in the fifth, and got to him in the seventh on a single by Jim Aylward, a dou-

Dawson's blasts lead Chicago by Atlanta, 10-8

Associated Press

Andre Dawson, whose solo homer in the ninth tied the game, hit a two-run shot in the 11th inning to win it as the Chicago Cubs outslugged the Atlanta Braves, 10-8.

Mark Grace singled with one out in the 11th off Dwayne Henry (0-1) and Dawson followed with a drive over the centerfield fence as the Cubs overcame a blown 5-0 lead to snap a four-game losing streak.

Dawson led off the bottom of the ninth with a shot over the center-field fence off Joe Boever to tie the game after Atlanta's Jeff Treadway had scored the go-ahead run in the top of the inning on Bill Long's wild pitch.

Long (1-0) pitched 2 1-3 scoreless innings for the victory.

The Cubs tied the score at 7-7 in the eighth when Jerome Walton doubled and Ryne Sandberg was credited with an RBI single when his pop fly to short right was lost in the sun by second baseman Treadway and fell safely.

Ron Gant's first home run of the season, a two-run shot in the top of the eighth, had given Atlanta a 7-6 lead. Pinch-hitter Andre Thomas led off with a single and Gant followed a drive over the fence in left-center off Paul Assenmacher.

Pirates 10, Padres 2

Mike LaValliere and Andy Van Slyke homered and Walt Terrell earned his first victory for Pittsburgh as the surging Pirates beat San Diego for their 10th victory in 12 games.

The Pirates, who lost nine of 12 to San Diego last season, are 5-0 against the Padres this year.

Terrell (1-1) allowed two runs in the first, then benefited from four double plays over the next five innings in improving to 3-0 lifetime against San Diego. The Padres traded him to the New York Yankees last July and he later signed with Pittsburgh as a free agent.

Terrell, who is 3-0 with a 1.15 earned-run average in four career starts at Three Rivers Stadium, allowed eight hits, struck out two and walked two over seven innings. Bob Patterson finished up with two scoreless innings.

Astros 3, Phillies 2

Rafael Ramirez doubled home the winning run in the 10th inning.

Eric Yelding singled to right, stole second and scored when Ramirez hit a ball over the head of left fielder Randy Ready. The hit came off Dickie Noles (0-1), who was making his first appearance of the year.

Dave Smith (1-2) pitched the 10th inning for the victory.

The Phillies had plenty of chances to take the lead in the late innings, but always came up short.

Expos 9, Dodgers 1

Tim Wallach hit two homers and Bill Sampen earned a victory in his first major-league start as the Montreal Expos beat the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Sampen (1-0), a last-minute replacement for Oil Can Boyd, allowed only one unearned run in five innings as the Expos won for the fourth time in five games. He gave up four hits, struck out three and didn't walk a batter.

Mets 4, Giants 1

Kevin McReynolds drew a bases-loaded walk from Rick Reuschel with two outs in the seventh inning to snap a tie as the New York Mets beat the San Francisco Giants.

Reuschel (2-3) started on three days' rest as scheduled starter Mike LaCoss was scratched with a recurring knee injury.

ble by Wiley Lee, and an RBI single by Mike Knapp that scored Aylward.

Lee scored when San Antonio center fielder Braulio Castillo bobbled Knapp's hit.

Shinall bore down to get two outs, but San Antonio skipper John Shoemaker lifted his young righthander after Davis drew a walk.

It looked promising for the hosts when TL batting leader Ruben Amaro stepped to the plate off reliever James Wray with runners on first and second, but Wray got Amaro to fly out, and the Mission lefthander went on to record his third save of the season.

The teams wrap up the series at 7 p.m. tonight, with Midland's Carl Hamilton starting on the mound for Midland against San Antonio's Dennis Springer. The Angels take their first whack at the Eastern Division beginning Friday with a 10-game road trip to Tulsa and Arkansas, not returning home until May 22.

HALO HOOPS: Amaro retained his TL batting lead over teammate Steve DeAngelis with two hits in four trips to the plate, raising his mark to .393. DeAngelis was 1-for-3 to drop a point to .387.

Tulsa's Kevin Belcher was a relatively distant third going into Tuesday's action with .384.

Amaro also sparkled in the field, throwing out a pair of runners at second base. The son of former big leaguer shortstop Ruben Amaro, Sr. showed some of Dad's old skill with the mitt when he barehanded a carom off the left-field wall by Jerry Brooks and threw a strike to second baseman Scott Cerny, depriving Brooks of a second straight double. Amaro later nailed Castillo trying to go for two bases in the seventh.

Abbott remains the only Midland starting pitcher to be winless, despite several strong outings on the road. It's painfully aware that Angels Stadium isn't his kind of place.

The former first-round pick was the losing pitcher in that record-nearing 33-17 loss to Wichita almost two weeks ago. After six strong innings in El Paso, of all places, Abbott was racked up again tonight.

Cooper hurlers throw no-hitter

Staff Report

LUBBOCK — Scott Jenkins and Kelly Connally threw a combined no-hitter Tuesday, as District 4-5A baseball champion Abilene Cooper downed District 3-5A runner-up Lubbock Coronado 4-0 here at Ohanion Field.

Cooper now leads the best-of-three series 1-0 and is set to host Coronado noon Saturday at the Cooper field to decide the bi-district champion.

Ryan exits early after being hit hard

Associated Press

Gerald Perry's first career grand slam hastened Nolan Ryan's earliest exit in five years and the Kansas City Royals beat the Texas Rangers 10-5 for their third consecutive victory.

Ryan (4-2), pitching with six days' rest, got just two outs and gave up six runs. He lasted less than one inning for the ninth time in his career, and made his shortest start since September 1985 while with Houston against Chicago.

Ryan, who had matched the fastest start of his career with four straight victories, lost his second consecutive decision. In his last outing, he gave up five runs in the first inning against the Chicago White Sox.

Mark Gubicza (2-4) stopped his four-game losing streak. He entered the game with an 8.18 earned run average, but allowed only two hits through six innings before pinch hitter Thad Bosley's three-run homer in the seventh.

Ryan, seeking his 294th career victory, could not get his curveball over the plate and ran into immediate trouble. He walked leadoff batter Kevin Seitzer, Kurt Stillwell singled and walks to George Brett and Bo Jackson forced home a run.

Athletics 5, Yankees 0

Scott Sanderson and Gene Nelson combined on a six-hitter and Mark McGwire drove in two runs as the Oakland Athletics beat the New York Yankees, their eighth win in nine games.

Sanderson (4-1) has won both his starts against New York this season and has not allowed a run in 13 1-3 innings. Nelson was perfect over the final 2 2-3 innings for his second save.

AL Roundup

White Sox 4, Blue Jays 1

Ron Kittle hit two home runs and reliever Bobby Thigpen escaped a bases-loaded, no-out jam in the seventh inning as the Chicago White Sox beat Toronto and stopped the Blue Jays' three-game winning streak.

John Cerutti retired the first two Chicago batters on two pitches before Ivan Calderon walked and Kittle homered. The White Sox have outscored opponents 25-2 in the first inning of their 23 games.

Twins 6, Indians 5

Gary Gaetti singled home the tiebreaking run in the seventh inning as the Minnesota Twins overcame an early five-run deficit and beat the Cleveland Indians for their sixth straight victory.

Chris James' three-run homer capped Cleveland's five-run first inning. The Twins made it 5-5 in the fourth on Dan Gladden's two-run homer and went ahead in the seventh on Gaetti's third hit of the game.

Brewers 7, Tigers 5

Rob Deer and Paul Molitor homered and the Milwaukee Brewers beat the Detroit Tigers, offsetting Cecil Fielder's fifth home run in three days.

Edmonton ties series with Chicago

Associated Press

CHICAGO — Mark Messier showed why he's a finalist for the NHL's Most Valuable Player award, scoring twice and adding two assists Tuesday night to lead the Edmonton Oilers to a series-tying 4-2 victory over the Chicago Blackhawks in Game 4 of the Campbell Conference finals.

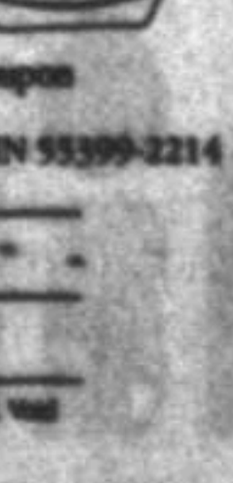

NHL

The victory enabled the Oilers to regain the home-ice advantage they lost when the Blackhawks won the second game in Edmonton.

'DOGS: Brutal seventh does in MHS

From 1D

Danny Rodriguez blooped a single just out of reach of MHS second baseman Scott Melzer, Brent Houtchens went down swinging.

Then Salazar (10-5) faced Monterey's slugging third baseman Greg Cushman, who has 10 home runs on the year. In three previous at-bats, Salazar pitched around Cushman to walk him twice, then gave up a harmless single. Without even blinking, Salazar hit Cushman with the first pitch.

After Bryce Cunningham felt the sting of an errant Salazar pitch, Garza smacked a single that drove in Cushman and Cunningham to tie the game at 5-5. Rene Esquibel was hit by the second Salazar throw he saw, then Monterey catcher Drew Webb took a 2-2 pitch down the third base line to drive in the final two runs.

MHS still was alive with one more turn at the plate, but Garza shut down the Bulldog offense by forcing a groundout, a strikeout and a flyout.

The loss offset a glimmering offensive performance by the bottom of the MHS order. The four runs the 'Dogs scored in the fourth came off the bats of the No. 5, 6, 7, and 8 hitters.

Centerfielder Will Sowders, who saved a run when he made a rocket throw to third to force Cushman out in the top of the fourth, started the bottom of the inning with a rope to left-center. Jason Stone followed with a single and James Madrid drove a double down into far right field that scored the two runners.

Brian Conaway then came up and responded with an RBI-single that got away from rightfielder Monty House, allowing Conaway to advance to third. He eventually scored on a mishandled grounder by Houtchens at first.

In order to win the series, MHS (18-9) must now win two games in Lubbock Saturday, beginning at 2 p.m.

"It will be tough. But we have gone up there before and beat them twice. Our kids know it can be done, and even if we don't it won't be for a lack of effort," Whalen said.

stepping to the plate and the lead hovering at 5-3, Salazar got cautious.

Curiously cautious for a guy that tossed a three-hitter in a previous win over the Plainsmen. But this was the muscular third baseman that Salazar had pitched around from the start who was stepping up to hit. The guy that gives off the look of a man among boys. The owner of 10 home runs this season.

Salazar had walked him twice in the game, and when he did give Cushman a ball to hit in the fifth, the big guy smashed a single past third baseman James Madrid.

"We were careful with Cushman all day. Maybe too careful," said Whalen. "We just didn't want to give him anything to hit because believe me, he can hit it out of the park in a hurry."

He got no such chance in the seventh. Salazar's first pitch pegged Cushman on the upper arm.

His next pitch nailed Bryce Cunningham on the forearm and loaded the bases for Junior Garza, the junior southpaw who helped his own cause with a two-run single that knotted the game.

"I'm not a very good hitter," said Garza, suddenly 13-1 for the 24-3 Plainsmen. "I haven't been in that kind of situation very much, and I was just looking to make contact."

That contact came in the form of a little looper to shallow left field. The runners were going with two outs.

"That thing's going to look like a line drive in the box score," Whalen shook his head. "But give them credit. They did what they had to do, and we didn't. You can't lose your concentration against a team as good as Monterey."

With any thoughts of holding the lead dashed, Salazar looked in at Rene Esquibel — and promptly hit him to reloaded the bases.

The table was set, and Drew Webb was famished. The Monterey catcher had gone 0-3 with a strikeout against Salazar. This time he rifled one down the third-base line to push a pair across and give his battery mate the win.

The Bulldogs, their spark gone, went quietly and in order in the bottom half of the seventh.

"I think this is probably one of the tougher ones we've ever lost," Whalen said. "Our wheels seem to have come off. But we'll see if we can get them back on and win a couple of games at their place."

Game two in the best-of-three set is at 2 p.m. Saturday at Lubbock's Lowrey Field. If necessary, a second game will follow the first.

RODGERS: No decision if he'll stay in another capacity day's loss largely to injuries suffered by the Celtics forward Kevin McHale, would not elaborate on the reasons for the dismissal.

From 1D

"It was just the consensus of the committee that a change would be in order," he said. Without a change, he added, "we felt the future would just be a repeat of what happened this year."

Rodgers' assistant, Lanny Van Eman, was also dismissed, but another assistant, Chris Ford, kept his job and was immediately seen as a likely sucessor to Rodgers.

"Chris Ford will be a very serious candidate," said Jan Volk, the general manager, who said there was no deadline for naming a new coach.

Auerbach said no decision had been made on whether Rodgers, who has three years remaining on his contract, would remain with the Celtic organization. Jones, who stepped aside in 1988 to make room for Rodgers, remained with the Celtics until this season, when he became an assistant with the Seattle SuperSonics.

When he took over as head coach two years ago after five years as an assistant to Jones, Rodgers, who had also served as the team's director of player personnel, was one of the most heralded assistant coaches in the National Basketball Association.

PISTONS: Champions put game in high gear was the lowest total ever for the Knicks in the postseason.

From 1D

"We need to get our emotional level back to where it was against Boston," said Patrick Ewing who led New York with 19 points but held to just four rebounds. "We can't make any excuses. Detroit played an outstanding game."

Detroit held the Chicago Bulls to 77 points on May 15, 1989. New York, which scored 70 and 71 points in the second halves of its last two games against Boston in the first round, had a previous playoff low of 79 against the Capital Bullets in 1974.

"We had an emotional letdown," the New York coach said.

The Pistons, bidding to become only the third franchise in history to repeat as NBA champion, outscored the Knicks 35-15 in the third quarter for an 84-53 lead.

Isiah Thomas led Detroit with 21 points and Edwards finished with 18.

Suns 104, Lakers 102

The Phoenix Suns ended a 21-game losing streak at the Forum in timely fashion, holding the Los Angeles Lakers without a field goal in the final 3½ minutes for a victory in the opening game of their NBA playoff series.

The Suns had not won on the Lakers' court since 1984, and Phoenix coach Cotton Fitzsimmons had never won at the Forum during his NBA career, a span of 37 games going back 16 years.

Last year, the Lakers swept Phoenix 4-0 en route to the NBA Finals, where they lost in four games to Detroit.

The Suns, who trailed 84-78 at the start of the fourth quarter, caught the Lakers at 96 on Eddie Johnson's 3-point basket with 4:25 left.

Mark West, who had 24 points, 16 rebounds and seven blocked shots, made a free throw for a 104-101 lead with 24 seconds left.

Blazers 122, Spurs 112

Terry Porter and Clyde Drexler keyed a 24-8 third-quarter outburst as Portland beat San Antonio to take a 2-0 lead in their Western Conference semifinal series.

Porter finished with 27 points and 7 assists, while Drexler had 22 points as the Blazers won their fifth playoff game in as many tries.

Terry Cummings scored 33 for San Antonio, and David Robinson added 31. But 17 of Robinson's points came after Portland built a 20-point lead with 1:41 left in the third period.

The best-of-7 series shifts to San Antonio for Game 3 Thursday night.

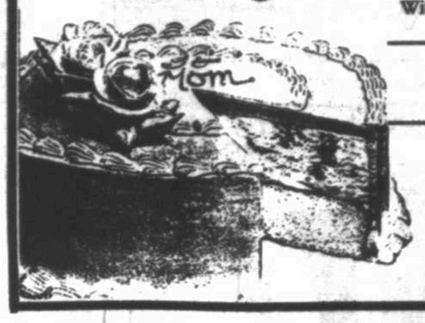

An 11-4 run to end the second quarter gave Portland a 63-55 halftime lead, then the Blazers took control of the game with a devastating third quarter.

Led by the tenacious defense of Porter and Drexler and the shot blocking of Wayne Cooper, Portland outscored the Spurs 24-8 to start the quarter, opening an 87-63 lead with 4:25 left in the period.

Cooper had four blocked shots in the period, including a memorable one against a stuff attempt by Robinson.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By Jeane Dixon

WEDNESDAY, MAY 9, 1990

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Rewards and public recognition will come your way. Take care of any health problems before they become serious. Important career and business decisions will have to be made in September. Your personal life could reach a turning point in November. Select a new partner carefully in December. Social events that take place in January will solidify a promising relationship. Something you see in a distant place gives you a brilliant business idea.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: actress Candice Bergen, country singer Hank Snow, singer Billy Joel, journalist Mike Wallace.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Unexpected news arrives. Take your time reacting to it. A loan will help you protect your credit rating. Do some entertaining at home. Include friends you have not seen for a while.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Do not be discouraged by a recent career or business disappointment. An old friend offers to help; realize that there could be strings attached. Dieting and exercising will bring the desired results.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): A short business trip is surprisingly eventful. A friendship should be cultivated. Bounce your ideas off each other. Joining new social groups gives you valuable insights.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Business trips and talks can set you on the path to higher profits. Be alert for shopping bargains. A dressed-up you will dazzle whoever you are with this afternoon or evening.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Curb a tendency to be too frank. Your words could wound others. Heed a hunch or inside tip about money. A quiet setting will boost your productivity at work. Romance needs more nurturing.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Get ready for big changes. Be prepared to explore new places and relationships. Developments at a distance could create good luck. Sharing will strengthen an alliance. Avoid moving too quickly.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Brainstorming with your associates could lead to a wiser financial strategy. Other people will trust you and deliver what you want. Enjoy a quiet evening with mate.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Verbal or written offers spawn other proposals, paving the way to a profitable new relationship. Share information with people who can help you. Carry out the wishes of your group.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Show more spirit and you will win a competition. Face your restlessness head-on. Romantic vibrations are so strong you could almost cut them with a knife. Your affection knows no bounds!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): If you have unfulfilled ambitions, go for it! Seek the advice of experts or return to school. Domestic restrictions can be overcome with improved communication. Some couples set the date.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Certain friends have become your extended family; treat them with respect. Business prospects look better. Find new ways to work off those unwanted pounds. Consult your doctor about dieting.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): A career that involves service to others can be fulfilling. Seniors enjoy renewed community involvement. Car pooling can be the answer to a temporary transportation problem. A voice from the past is heard.

TODAY'S CHILDREN show remarkable loyalty to those they love. Wise parents will not try to interfere with their child's friendships. A beloved teddy bear becomes real to these youngsters. No matter how tough things get, these Taureans keep on trying, burning the midnight oil to achieve their goals. Help them learn to budget their time. Teachers and employers alike will frown on overdue assignments.

The regular members of the bridge club knew better than to double Trump Coup Tommy when they held a trump stack—Tommy had a way of making seemingly sure trump tricks vanish. But on hands where everything lay well, Tommy could be relied on to drop a trick a two, so that speculative doubles on high cards when Tommy was at the helm invariably yielded goo results.

Once in a while, though, one of Tommy's cronies could not resist testing to see if Tommy's peculiar talent was still in force. That was the case here, where West's double was, by any standards, speculative.

East won the first trick with the ace of clubs, and a trump shift would have left the defenders with the upper hand. But East decided to continue with a club and Tommy was in control. Declarer ruffed, cashed the ace and king of hearts and ruffed a heart. After crossing to dummy with a high diamond, declarer discarded a diamond on the king of clubs and guessed correctly by electing to ruff the remaining heart in hand.

Declarer, who had lost only one trick so far, was left with A Q 8 7 of trumps and the queen of diamonds, while West still held all four trumps and a club. When Tommy led the queen of diamonds West could do no better than ruff and return a club. Declarer ruffed and exited with the eight of trumps. That forced West to win with the ten of trumps, completing the defensive book. But then West had to lead away from his king of trumps into Tommy's ace-queen tenace, and the contract rolled home.

Pfeiffer faces fine

WILSON, N.C. (AP) — Wilson County may not seem like the fast lane but police say it did to actress Michelle Pfeiffer.

Pfeiffer

She was clocked at 90 mph Sunday afternoon on U.S. 264 — which has a speed limit of 55 mph, said Sgt. W.M. Gay of the state Highway Patrol.

The Oscar nominee, who played a sultry chanteuse in "The Fabulous Baker Boys" and a French temptress in "Dangerous Liaisons," had to appear before a magistrate Sunday and post bail of $100.

She was in Wilson for the filming of "Love Field," the story of a woman's bus trip from Dallas to Washington to attend President Kennedy's funeral. It takes it name from the Dallas airport where the president landed on the morning of the assassination.

Gay said Ms. Pfeiffer was driving a rented red Mitsubishi when trooper R.C. Smith turned on his blue lights. Wilson is in central North Carolina, east of Raleigh.

Benson

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Actor and filmmaker Robby Benson says he'll give up his teaching job at the University of South Carolina if the community doesn't appreciate his efforts.

Criticism of Benson's $63,630 annual salary and his use of USC students to film a movie surfaced about the time of reports on school President James B. Holderman's lavish spending habits during the last 1½ years at the school.

"If people think that I'm doing a disservice rather than a service here, then definitely I want to take the effort — because it's a sincere effort — elsewhere," said Benson, who has been artist-in-residence at the school's College of Humanities and Social Sciences since 1988.

Benson said Monday he felt compelled to speak out since questions were raised about his filming here of the newly released movie, "Modern Love," with the use of some of his students. He said he was particularly disturbed by a recent letter to a newspaper criticizing him.

Eighty-nine South Carolinians were hired to work on the movie, or four of five of all those hired, Benson said. Of those jobs, 39 were given to USC students and employees, he said.

Benson lives here with his wife, singer Karla DeVito, and their daughter, Lyric.

MILAN, Italy (AP) — Sylvester Stallone says the characters Rocky and Rambo he has made famous are very different from his own nature.

"I am afraid of being identified with Rambo or Rocky," Stallone said Monday.

But that's not slowing sequel production. A new installment of Rocky, the fifth, is in the works and a fourth Rambo film is planned, Stallone said.

Stallone unveiled his plans while attending a television awards ceremony. Stallone said the next installment of Rambo will deal with ecology "which is the most important problem at the moment."

BURBANK, Calif. (AP) — Actor Billy Barty was ordered to pay $428 to a television show writer who claimed he wasn't paid for creating several comedy sketches.

Burbank Municipal Court Commissioner Dennis H. Shanklin on Monday granted the award to Warren Taylor for sketches he wrote for "Short Ribbs," which aired last year on KDOC-TV in Anaheim and is no longer in production.

Taylor already was paid $800 for his work on the show, including a satirical skit that featured Barty as a crooked judge.

In a similar small claims dispute two months ago, Barty was ordered to pay $1,300 to William Winckler, another writer on the show that featured midgits and dwarfs.

Taylor, Winckler and a third writer, Len Udes, told Shanklin they were guaranteed $100 for every script they wrote, even if they collaborated on sketches for the show.

Barty, who has starred in such films as "Rumpelstiltskin" and "Willow" argued the writers didn't identify which scripts they authored and said it was impossible to determine who should be paid.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Prosecutors have refused to charge Todd Bridges with possession of drugs and decided instead to file felony drug charges against a friend who was arrested with the star of "Diff'rent Strokes."

Bridges, 24, who has had numerous runins with the law, and Steve Mallen, 36, were arrested early Saturday after police allegedly found 2 ounces of cocaine in their car.

"We are rejecting the case against (Bridges) because, after evaluation, it's rather clear there is insufficient evidence to show he had any control of the substance," Deputy District Attorney Norm Shapiro said Tuesday.

Mallen was charged with possession of cocaine for sale.

Bridges was jailed until Tuesday in lieu of $25,000 bail.

Bridges faces retrial July 30 on a charge stemming from the February 1989 wounding of Kenneth "Tex" Clay, who was shot eight times at a crack house.

A jury last year acquitted Bridges of attempted murder and attempted involuntary manslaughter in the case.

A conviction could bring six years in prison.

Sabatini regains championship form

Navratilova, Capriati team up for doubles victory in first round

Associated Press

ROME — Gabriela Sabatini, who slipped a bit in rankings this year, displayed her championship form at the Italian Open and is confident of winning the title for the third straight year.

Sabatini, down 5-6 in the opening set, rebounded for a 7-6, 6-0 second-round victory over Ann Grossman on Tuesday and proclaimed herself back in top form.

Second-seeded Monica Seles joined Sabatini in the third round by defeating Radka Zrubakova of Czechoslovakia 6-4, 6-1, in a night match.

"I'm playing very good tennis and I think I can win the tournament again," Sabatini said. "It's just a matter of getting my confidence back."

Sabatini, from Argentina, appeared full of confidence as she moved to a 5-1 lead in the first set. But she then dropped five straight games as Grossman, a 20-year-old from Grove City, Ohio, ranked No. 72 in the world, frustrated her with moon balls.

Down 5-6, Sabatini decided to attack. And it paid off as she held serve at love with four straight winners and then swept the tiebreaker 7-3. She closed out the set by running down a drop shot and flicking a cross-court backhand winner.

Sabatini, flashing her heavy topspin groundstrokes with renewed confidence, cruised through the second set in 20 minutes.

"I got off to a very good start but then I played too fast and lost patience," Sabatini, the fourth seed, said. "She didn't do anything special. I just started making too many mistakes. I felt much calmer and more confident in the second set."

Monica Seles, the No. 2 seed, was scheduled to play a second-round night match against Radka Zrubakova.

In other matches at the Foro Italico, sixth-seeded Conchita Martinez of Spain advanced to the third round with a 6- 0, 6-2 victory over Donna Faber; No. 10 Raffaella Reggi of Italy beat Natalia Medvedeva of the Soviet Union 6-0, 6-3; No. 13 Catarina Lindqvist of Sweden beat Nicole Jagerman of the Netherlands 7-5, 6-7, 6-2; and No. 11 Helen Kelesi of Canada crushed Laura Lapi of Italy 6-2, 6-0.

Two seeds were ousted. No. 7 Nathalie Tauziat of France was eliminated by Italy's Laura Golarsa, 6-3, 7-6, and No. 9 Laura Gildemeister of Peru lost 6-4, 7-6 to Regina Rajchrtova of Czechoslovakia.

Top-seeded Martina Navratilova, who plays her first singles match Wednesday, teamed up with 14-year-old sensation Jennifer Capriati in doubles. They beat Tracy Morton and Kate McDonald of Australia 6-2, 5-7, 6-4.

Sabatini, the perennial darling of the Italian Open, said she's happy to let Capriati grab all the attention this year.

"For me, it's much better," Sabatini said. "It puts all the pressure on her."

Sabatini, who has slipped to No. 5 in the world rankings after a disappointing start this year, said she's hoping to turn her career around.

"I have not been going through a very good period," Sabatini said. "But I'm getting my confidence back now. I feel in very good shape and I'm trying to move back up."

Three area drivers in TIDA hunt

Staff Report

The Texas International Drivers Association Late Model Series moves to Corpus Christi Saturday with John Kelly of LaVernia leading in points and three Petro-Plex racers in the hunt.

Odessa's Stacy Bradly is in second place after two races while Odessa's Bobby Blake stands in fourth and Midland Jay Watson in fifth. Corpus Christi's Mike Denman, who is in third place, will have his home track to his advantage Saturday.

Other top 10 drivers include Greg Spreen, Alamo; Tommy Grothues, Helotes; David Umsheid, Austin; Ervin Brieten Jr, San Antonio; and Steve Smith, San Antonio.

Kelly won the last race at the Longhorn Speedway in Austin on April 28 while Midland's Watson was second and Denman third.

Some other locals making a good showing in the second TIDA series in Austin were Odessa's John Foster, eighth; and Midland's Junior Robertson, 14th.

Midland's Dean Anthony won the "B" main event for non-qualifiers in Austin.

Lupardus fires ace

Staff Report

James Lupardus produced a hole-in-one at Hogan Park Tuesday with a six-iron shot that covered the 165 yards on hole No. 10.

Lupardus was playing with his father, Bill Lupardus.

Mother's Day feast easy

By Melanie Barnard and Brooke Dojny
Copley News Service

Being mothers ourselves, we know about this day. We know that it can be a very special occasion, one on which you are made to feel like a veritable queen for a day, or it can be fraught with pitfalls if expectations exceed reality.

Over the years, we have developed some strategies. Young children really don't know quite what to do, nor do (sometimes) their fathers, so we try to help them out by offering not-too-subtle suggestions.

For example, if we truly have a yen to go out to eat, we say so! And it never hurts to offer some restaurant options if your preference is for something a little swankier than the diner.

On the other hand, if the kids are in the mood to cook and feel like making us dinner on Mother's Day, we might steer them (or their fathers) in the direction of some appropriately easy yet "fancy" recipes.

One choice might be this menu, featuring Herbed and Spiced Veal Patties. Ground veal is a nice alternative to ground beef.

And for dessert, try Chocolate Pudding Parfaits. This is a simply wonderful "from scratch" chocolate pudding.

CNB Graphic

HERBED AND SPICED VEAL PATTIES

1 pound ground veal
¾ cup fresh white bread crumbs
1 egg, lightly beaten
3 tablespoons minced shallots
4 tablespoons chopped parsley, divided
¾ teaspoon dried thyme
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
⅛ teaspoon nutmeg
1½ tablespoons butter
½ cup white wine
½ cup chicken stock
4 slices toasted white bread, buttered and cut in half diagonally

Place veal, bread crumbs, egg, shallots, 3 tablespoons parsley, thyme, salt, pepper and nutmeg in large mixing bowl. Use your hands to combine ingredients lightly, but thoroughly. Form mixture into 8 patties, each about 2½ to 3 inches in diameter and about ½ inch thick.

Heat butter in large skillet. Saute patties over medium heat for about 4 minutes per side until golden brown and just cooked through. Remove meat to platter or serving plates.

Pour off all but about 1 tablespoon drippings from skillet and add wine. Cook over medium-low heat, stirring up browned bits clinging to bottom of skillet, for about 2 minutes. Add chicken stock and simmer over medium heat 1 to 2 minutes until lightly thickened. Stir in remaining 1 tablespoon parsley and taste for salt and pepper. Arrange patties on toast.

Serve sauce spooned over meat patties.

CHOCOLATE PUDDING PARFAITS

⅔ cup sugar
¼ cup unsweetened cocoa powder
2 tablespoons cornstarch
⅛ teaspoon salt
2 cups milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 tablespoon butter
¾ cup heavy or whipping cream
For garnish: Whole strawberries, maraschino cherries or shaved semisweet chocolate

In heavy saucepan, combine sugar, cocoa, cornstarch and salt. Gradually stir in about half the milk, whisking until smooth, then stir in remaining milk.

Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until mixture is thickened and comes to boil, about 5 to 8 minutes. Continue to cook for 1 minute after it has reached boil.

Remove from heat and stir in vanilla and butter. Pour into bowl, place sheet of plastic wrap directly on surface of pudding, and refrigerate for about 45 minutes until cool and set.

Whip cream to stiff peaks. Using 4 stemmed goblets, layer pudding and cream, making about 3 layers of each, and ending with pretty dollop of whipped cream on top. Decorate tops of parfaits with a strawberry, cherry or shaved chocolate.

Refrigerate until serving time or for up to 8 hours.

'From scratch' meals best

Working mother still prefers do-it-yourself foods for family

By Jean Thwaite
N.Y. Times News Service

ATLANTA — Jane Robertson is a working mother who still finds time to cook up culinary classics made from scratch.

If you're invited to the Robertsons' home for a meal, expect anything from Sally Lunn to floating island — perhaps to go with a Cajun/Creole specialty of her husband, John.

Mrs. Robertson, the principal of an elementary school, grew up in Decatur, Ga., in an atmosphere that was both traditionally Southern and suburban. To this day, she can recall what her family had for dinner and on what day — spaghetti, fried chicken, roast, pot pies and salmon croquettes with grits.

But food was something she took for granted until she was attending the University of Georgia. That's when she met her future husband, who was a student at Georgia Tech.

She became interested in cooking, she said, because he was from New Orleans, and "anyone from New Orleans is a good cook."

He introduced her to Brunswick stew, shrimp etouffee and red beans and rice.

Several years later in Boston, where he was attending Harvard Business School following his active duty in the Navy, she began acquiring some of her own specialties.

"It was in the early '70s when Julia Child hit the scene," she said, "We (Navy wives) used to watch her program and write her letters all the time. I remember making her pie crust."

The mother of two children, 20-year-old Katherine and 11-year-old Andrew, Mrs. Robertson has less time to cook these days than she did then.

She still makes her own pie crusts according to Mrs. Child's directions — only now she lets her food processor do the mixing.

When guests are coming over for a meal — often Sunday brunch after church — one of Mrs. Robertson's favorite menu items is quiche.

The recipe that follows has been adapted from "The Way to Cook" (Alfred Knopf, $50), Julia Child's latest book. In place of shrimp, Mrs. Robertson substituted 2 cups of freshly picked lump crabmeat.

SHRIMP QUICHE

1 cup cooked shelled shrimp
2 tablespoons butter
Seasonings: salt, freshly ground pepper and pinch of tarragon
¼ cup dry white French vermouth
1 9-inch prebaked shell (see recipe)
CUSTARD:
3 large eggs blended with enough milk to make 1½ cups
3 tablespoons grated Swiss cheese

Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Saute the shrimp with the butter and seasonings for 1 minute. Add the vermouth and boil rapidly for 30 seconds. Strew the shrimp in the pastry shell. Pour in custard to within ⅛ inch of the rim and sprinkle on the cheese.

Bake 30 to 35 minutes in the preheated oven, until puffed and browned.

FOOD PROCESSOR PASTRY

1⅓ cups all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon salt (less if usin g salted butter)
1 tablespoon sugar, optional
¼ cup ice water

Use steel knife. In work bowl, put all ingredients except ice water, first cutting the butter into 7 or 8 pieces. Process until mixture has the consistency of coarse meal — 5 to 10 seconds.

With the machine running, pour ice water through the feed tube in a steady stream. To ensure a tender, flaky crust, stop processing as soon as the dough forms a ball. This dough may be used immediately or wrapped in plastic and chilled, if desired.

When ready to use, roll out dough to about an ⅛-inch thickness, fit into pie plate and trim.

Cover dough with aluminum foil and weigh down with beans. Place on center rack of a preheated 400-degree oven. Bake for 8 to 9 minutes or until set. Remove foil and beans, prick bottom with a fork to keep pastry from rising. Bake another 7 to 10 minutes or until shell is lightly browned.

Surprise mom with strawberries on Mother's Day

NEW YORK (AP) — Surprise Mom with this "berry" special bacon and garlic pita on Mother's Day.

CREAMY GARLIC AND BACON PITAS

6 slices bacon, halved
2 cloves garlic
1 tablespoon slivered almonds, toasted
2 ounces light cream cheese
2 tablespoons plain yogurt
¼ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 pita bread, split
6 large strawberries, sliced
Boston or leaf lettuce

Place bacon on microwave-safe rack; cover with paper towel and cook on high (100 percent power) 5 to 6 minutes. Roll up half of slices to make 6 bacon curls. Crumble remaining bacon; reserve.

Meanwhile, place garlic and almonds in blender container or processor; cover and blend until finely chopped. Add cheese, yogurt and Worcestershire sauce; cover and blend until fairly smooth. Stir in reserved bacon. Spread each pita circle with bacon mixture. Place strawberries around outer edge; arrange lettuce in center and top with bacon curls. Cut into quarters to serve. Sandwich filling baked into picnic bread

By Nancy Byal
Associated Press

Bake up a super idea: a supersize sandwich that's bread and filling in one. It makes enough for a picnic or supper for the whole gang. The yeast bread dough requires no kneading, no rising.

If you're eating close to home, serve the bread still warm. For longer jaunts, cool and chill it after baking. Then cut into 1-inch slices to serve.

PICNIC BASKET BREAD

1 package active dry yeast
1 cup warm water (105 to 115 degrees F)
2½ to 3 cups all-purpose flour
1 tablespoon sugar
1 teaspoon salt
2 cups finely chopped cooked chicken
1½ cups shredded cheddar, Swiss or provolone cheese (6 ounces)
1 10-ounce package frozen chopped spinach, thawed and well-drained
¼ cup grated Parmesan cheese
¼ cup finely chopped onion
¼ teaspoon salt
1 beaten egg white
1 tablespoon water
2 teaspoons sesame seed

In a mixer bowl dissolve yeast in 1 cup warm water. Add 1 cup of the flour, the sugar, and 1 teaspoon salt. Beat on low speed for 30 seconds, scraping bowl constantly. Beat on high 3 minutes. Stir in as much remaining flour as you can. Turn out onto lightly floured surface. Knead in enough remaining flour to make a moderately soft dough that is smooth and elastic (3 to 5 minutes). Cover and set aside.

For filling, combine chicken; cheddar, Swiss or provolone cheese; spinach; Parmesan cheese; onion; and ¼ teaspoon salt. On lightly floured surface, roll dough into a 16x10-inch rectangle. Spread filling lengthwise down center third of dough. Bring long edges together over filling; seal. Seal ends. Place, seam side down, on lightly greased baking sheet. Brush with mixture of egg white and 1 tablespoon water. Sprinkle with sesame seed. Bake in 375-degree F oven for 40 minutes or until loaf sounds hollow when tapped. If necessary, cover with foil last 10 minutes to prevent overbrowning. Serve warm or chilled.

Quick stir-together salad is portable

By Nancy Byal
Associated Press

This stir-together salad tastes especially good with grilled meat or poultry. To tote the salad to a neighborhood cookout, pack the lettuce and chopped tomato in separate plastic bags, the bean mixture in a covered plastic container. At the last minute, stir the tomato into the bean mixture and spoon on top of the lettuce on a platter or in a shallow bowl.

EASY BEAN SALAD

1 15-ounce can three-bean salad, drained
1 small cucumber, chopped (1 cup)
1 tomato, chopped (½ cup)
½ cup creamy avocado-flavored dip
Several dashes bottled hot pepper sauce
Shredded lettuce

In mixing bowl combine drained three-bean salad, chopped cucumber and chopped tomato. Add avocado dip and hot pepper sauce. Toss until bean mixture is coated. Place shredded lettuce on platter or 8 salad plates. Spoon bean mixture on top lettuce.

Tips extend freshness of cheese

NEW YORK (AP) — The Mozzarella Co. in Dallas has the following tips for storing and serving cheese:

- Cheese is most flavorful when served at room temperature.
- All cheeses should be tightly rewrapped in fresh, clean plastic wrap each time they are used.
- Mold is a natural occurrence with cheese. Just trim it off with a clean knife and the cheese will be delicious.
- Some cheeses may be frozen to keep them fresh for longer periods, including fresh mozzarella, goat cheese, mascarpone and fresh cream cheese. Other cheeses will contine aging in the refrigerator and become more and more flavorful, including scamorza, caciotta and montasio.

"MY HI-PROTEIN LOWFAT MILK KEEPS PEOPLE ON THE GO, GOING."

"More of what's good for you."
The dairymen at Borden have reduced the fat and calories in Hi-Protein Lowfat milk and at the same time have increased the amount of some important nutrients. Why? Because these nutrients are all key to your good health.

"Be smart and B12."
A cold, delicious glass of my Hi-Protein has 15% of the U.S. RDA of vitamin B12, which is essential to keep your nervous system working properly. And there's 30% of the U.S. RDA of riboflavin, which helps release energy from food. And 10% of the U.S. RDA of vitamin A for good vision.

B12

"Protein — it's you."
Much of your body is protein. And you need protein every day. That's why Borden Hi-Protein Milk has 25% more protein than regular milk — a full 25% of the U.S. Recommended Daily Allowance (U.S. RDA). Your body needs protein to form new tissues. Muscles, skin, blood and bones all stay healthy when you get plenty of protein.

"More calcium means more beautiful smiles."
My Hi-Protein milk is fortified with 16% more calcium, which is needed for the proper development of teeth. And nothing makes for a beautiful smile like beautiful teeth. But there's more. Calcium is also responsible for strong bones and helps your muscles flex properly. Now, isn't that worth smiling about?

"My Hi-Protein is the lowfat milk with the whole milk taste."
Drinking my Hi-Protein milk is a delicious way to get the nutrients you need. That's because Borden has discovered a way to make this lowfat milk thick, rich and delicious. As a result, Hi-Protein milk is not only good for you, it's just plain good!

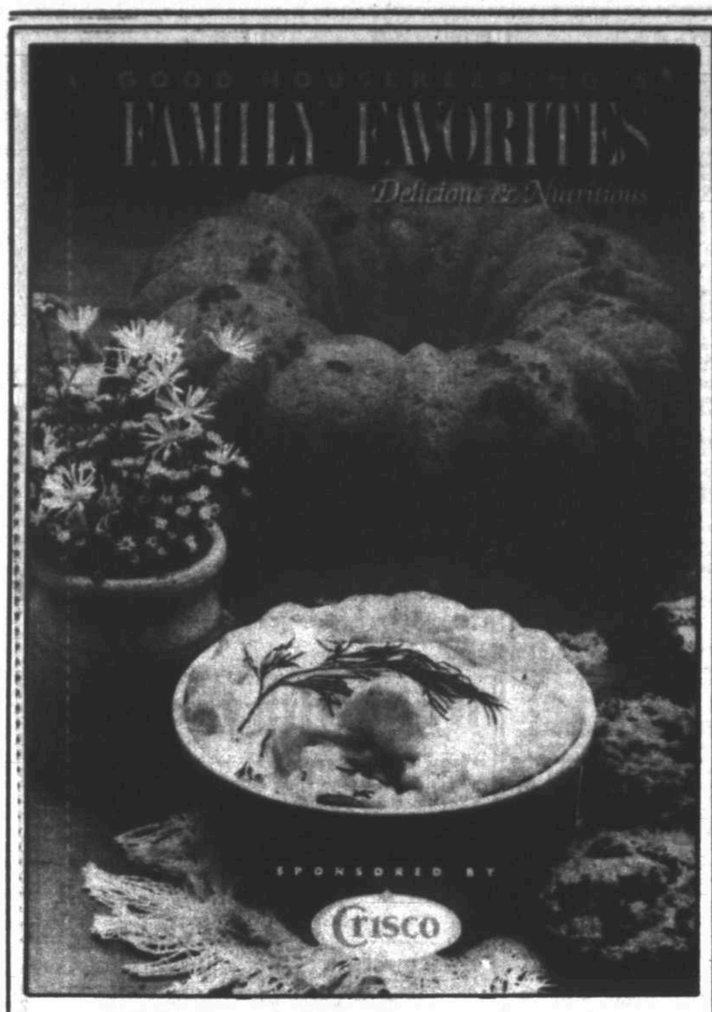

"I'm your guarantee of quality."
Since the 1930s, I've been Borden's symbol of premium quality dairy products. I'm Elsie. And you can only be sure you're getting the best if you see my picture on the carton. So pick up some Borden Milk and I'll see you at breakfast.

Magazine offers new booklet of 'family-pleasing' recipes

Staff Report

The editors of Good Housekeeping magazine are helping solve the dilemma of how to provide good nutrition for families and yet serve the tried-and-true foods they love. The May issue of Good Housekeeping contains a 16-page "Family Favorites" tear-out recipe booklet sponsored by Crisco Shortening. All recipes in the booklet meet current expert guidelines regarding fat and saturated fat, to prove that one does not have to sacrifice good taste to get good nutrition.

The recipes — ranging from cinnamon-flavored Oatmeal-Raisin Muffins to luscious Tuna Potpies dotted with vegetables and topped with a flaky pie crust — derive no more than 30 percent of their calories from fat, and no more that 10 percent from saturated fat. Moderate cholesterol and sodium levels also were considered as the editors combed their files for family-pleasing recipes including main dishes and desserts that were modified to meet dietary guidelines.

All recipes conform to the guidelines for the total diet advocated by leading nutritional experts. These recommend that even healthy Americans consume foods that contain lower amounts of fat, saturated fat and cholesterol.

On the back page of the current version of "Family Favorites" are the rules for the Good Housekeeping Holiday Dessert Contest, entries for which must be postmarked by June 1. The winner will receive an all-expense paid trip to New York to meet the editors, a tour of the Good Housekeeping kitchens and $500 cash.

Additional copies of this recipe collection can be obtained at no charge by writing to "Family Favorites," P.O. Box 86, Cincinnati, Ohio, 45201-0086. Requests received by May 15 will receive the version containing the contest rules. Requests received after May 15 will not have contest rules. Individuals may request up to five copies of the booklet; teachers or health professionals writing requests on their letterhead may obtain quantities for classroom instruction.

Sweet Vidalia onions may be be available throughout this year

By Jean Thwaite
N.Y. Times News Service

ATLANTA — Georgians have long maintained that the world's best onions may be the sweet, juicy, mild Vidalias appearing at produce counters right now.

The name is reserved by law for crisp, round Georgia onions from a 20-county area around Vidalia.

Robin Raiford, manager of the Vidalia Onion Committee, said this year's crop, planted over 5,000 acres, is rated good to excellent, and availability is expected to be much better this year.

Thanks to the successful attempt by W. Junior Grimes to store onions in a controlled atmosphere (CA), some will be on the market from now until almost Christmas. Though Grimes was the only grower using CA storage in 1989, other growers have joined him this year, increasing the storage capacity to more than 11 million pounds. The tried-but- not-always-true method of hanging them up in knotted nylon pantyhose in a cool, dry place will no longer be necessary.

Once an onion is in your possession, what should you do with it? There are some who love a big slice sandwiched between two pieces of bread with just a little bit of mayonnaise. Of course, it is good with hamburgers on a bun, although it lacks the burny bite of other onions. Try alternating slices of home-grown tomatoes and onions in a bowl and drizzling them with a little vinegar, water, sugar, salt and pepper.

The following recipe is in "The Original Vidalia Onion Cookbook" (Vidalia Chamber of Commerce, $8.95):

BAKED ONIONS

4 medium onions
4 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
4 tablespoons butter
1 teaspoon salt
Pepper
Garlic salt if desired
4 teaspoons cream cheese

Wash and clean onions. Slit 4 times in top ⅛ to ¼ inch deep. Place ¼ of each of the remaining ingredients in each onion. Bake in a 350-degree oven for 20 to 30 minutes or until heated through and butter is melted.

DEAR ABBY

Woman wants to know if clothes make the man

By Abigail Van Buren

Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My problem is one I cannot discuss with anyone else because it's very personal and somewhat embarrassing.

I am a divorced, 45-year-old woman. I recently met a very charming, handsome, 48-year-old gentleman. I was attracted to him immediately. He is divorced, intelligent, masculine and well-educated.

On our first date, he told me that he was very much attracted to me, but he had something to tell me if we were to have a second date. Then he told me that he enjoys dressing in women's clothing occasionally! He insisted he is not gay or bisexual, but he has a "need" to cross-dress occasionally. (This includes makeup, high heels, a wig and women's clothing — which I assume includes women's underwear.)

He told me that his first marriage broke up because his wife couldn't deal with his need to cross-dress occasionally.

Abby, this man is totally masculine and I am very much turned on by him, but I don't want to become involved in a situation I can't handle.

What can you tell me about men who cross-dress? I can't believe they are 100 percent male. Are there any women who have dated (or married) such men who can give me some advice? — PEG IN SACRAMENTO

DEAR PEG: Your charming, intelligent, masculine friend is a transvestite. Contrary to popular belief, not all transvestites are gay or bisexual; they are biological males who have an emotional need to dress as women occasionally. Many transvestites marry and have children. In some instances, their wives are aware of their need to cross-dress and are very supportive.

However, some wives find this kind of behavior bizarre and disgusting and are unable (or unwilling) to accept it.

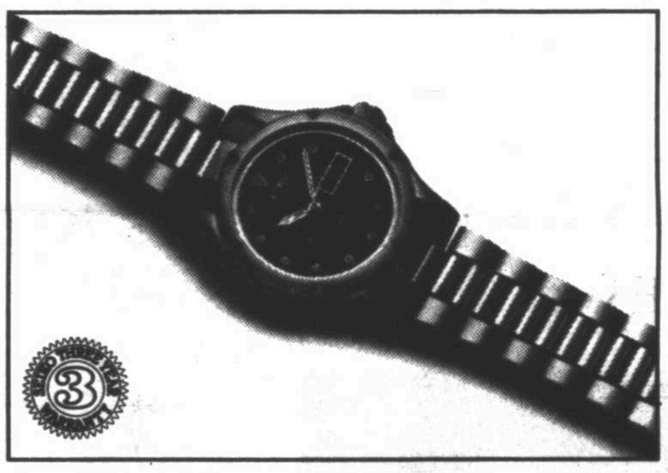

Your friend rates high marks for being honest with you on the first date. Whether you choose to become seriously involved with him will depend on your ability to be non-judgmental about his sexual needs.

If you cannot accept this kind of behavior, say goodbye and forget him. But if you choose to have a relationship with this man, I suggest that you contact women who are happily married to transvestites. There are groups of transvestites who get together with their families to socialize and exchange experiences. If you are interested in contacting such a group, write to: Sacramento Gender Association, P.O. Box 417701, Sacramento, Calif. 95841.

Please send a long, business-size, self-addressed, stamped envelope for a reply, as it is a non-profit organization.

Abigail Van Buren's column is distributed by Universal Press Syndicate.
