MUNICIPAL GOLF LINKS ASSURED FOR WICHITANS

Kiwanis Back Move With Indorsement Of the Mayor

Steps are being taken here that will probably lead to the construction of a municipal 18-hole golf links, it was learned Wednesday, and while the work is at yet in a formative stage, it is regarded as certain that Wichita Falls will, in the near future, boast a public golf course.

Mayor Indorses Project

The movement is being fostered by the local Kiwanis club, with the indorsement of Mayor Collier.

Under present plans, a 9-hole golf course is to be laid out on a 60-acre tract at the southern end of Brook street. This location, known as Huff's pasture, was formerly the old golf club grounds, but now used for no purpose. A 9-hole course could be laid out at this place with a minimum expense, it is said, and the additional holes added at a later date.

Kiwanis Bear Expense

It is understood that the Kiwanis club is to bear the initial expense of the project and that upon its completion, the city will operate and maintain the grounds at its own expense. Mayor Collier has given his hearty indorsement to the proposition.

Such an undertaking has been contemplated for some time by the Kiwanis club. Originally, a tourist park was considered, but this has been given up and when it was learned the city might favorably consider maintaining a public golf course, the Kiwanis directors determined on such action.

Overseer Voliva Is Guilty of Libel For Calling Independent Zion Pastor "Old Billy Goat," "Tom Cat," Etc.

CHICAGO Feb. 21.—Wilbur Glenn Voliva, overseer of Zion City, today faced the possibility of a term in jail. He was found guilty of criminal libel by a jury. Counsel for Voliva announced he would demand a new trial.

Six months imprisonment or a fine of $1,000 or both, is the maximum penalty that may be meted out to Voliva.

The criminal libel charge against Voliva was preferred by the Rev. Thomas Nelson, pastor of an independent church in Zion City. He accused Voliva of calling him a "Billy goat," a "Tom cat," and a "blatherskite," among other things, in a pamphlet which Voliva distributed.

Voliva and Nelson have had a number of controversies. At one time Voliva contended that Nelson was attempting to displace him as overseer.

Hearing on a motion for a new trial has been set for March 10.

Another Birthday For Country's Daddy Has Come Around

First in War, First in Peace, etc. That's what the pupils in Wichita Falls schools will be reciting today.

This is the birthday of George Washington, the man who played a daddy to this country before it got out of short pants.

Outside of a more prominent display of "the old man's" picture in school rooms and newspapers, and closing of the banks for one of the several times during this month for legal holidays, and closing of Uncle Sam's post office except for one hour, Wichita Falls will not publicly observe the anniversary of its forebear.

However, in a social way, cherry trees and hatchets are expected to be quite popular.

OIL MEN JOIN CARBON FIGHT

Declare Hassell Plan Not Feasible

DALLAS, Feb. 21.—A state wide fight by oil and gas interests is developing against the carbon black bills No. 173, in the senate and 161 in the house, with prospects that the measure proposed by J. W. Hassell, former head of the oil and gas division of the state railroad commission, will be fought to a finish before it is allowed to become a law.

Oil Men In Fight

The measure, if passed by the legislature, would permit the establishment of carbon black plants in Texas, something that would draw heavily on the gas resources of the state, according to the bill's opponents.

Oil men at Wichita Falls, Ranger, Eastland, Mexia, Houston and other petroleum centers are understood to be fighting the bill to the limit. The attack is being led by the Lone Star Gas company.

Seven States Have Ban

It has been pointed out that at least Seven oil and gas producing states, namely Oklahoma, Kansas, Arkansas, Wyoming, Ohio, Indiana and Pennsylvania, have joined Texas in prohibiting the establishment of carbon black plants. It is also pointed out that in the manufacture of carbon black, immense quantities of natural gas are consumed and that the economic waste to the state caused by such manufacture, would constitute an irreparable loss.

The condition set forth in the above dispatch was reflected locally Wednesday when several oil men wired Mr. Hassel that they flatly opposed his measure. Decided opposition has been found to the work here.

The courts would supplement work of existing courts and have concurrent jurisdiction with them. Their terms would expire Nov. 1, 1024.

SCHWAB SAYS U. S. OPPOSED TO INTERVENING

Magnate Says People Would Let Europe Settle Affairs

LONDON, Feb. 21.—Popular sentiment in the United States is opposed to mingling in European political affairs, it was declared here today by Charles M. Schwab, one of America's greatest manufacturing magnates and a close student of American opinion. Schwab said that while Americans were willing to contribute money to relieve suffering abroad, they were disposed to let European nations work out their own problems.

His Personal Views

"I believe personally that the interests of the world would be promoted by the United States taking an active interest in the solution of Europe's difficulties," said Schwab. "But popular sentiment, especially in the middle West, is not in favor of participating in European politics.

If our money can help, then our people are willing to do what they can but they are innately opposed to allying themselves in any political way with Europe. They are more disposed to let Europe work out her own salvation.

Silent on Ruhr

"Of course I have views regarding the Ruhr, but I am not a politician. I am not going to express them.

"We hope that the Ruhr problem will be speedily adjusted but it is a great mistake to believe that American industries are profiting from the Ruhr situation. "In fact, they are suffering more than they are profiting by the general upheaval."

Schwab has been ill, but is improving. He was able to receive visitors today for the first time since last week.

Standard Oil Purchase Of Humble Brings Suit

Anti-Trust Act Is Brought Into Play Against Purchasers Of Texas Plant

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—Because of their acquisition of the Humble Oil and Refining company of Texas, the Standard Oil company of New Jersey and its subsidiary, the Standard Oil company of Louisiana, were cited today by the federal trade commission for alleged violation of the Clayton anti-trust act.

The complaint alleges that the Standard Oil company of New Jersey owns and controls one-half or more of the stock of the Humble company.

The commission further charged that the acquisition by the Standard company of the Humble company had the effect of substantially lessening competition between the Humble company and of the Standard of New Jersey, and of the Standard of Louisiana, and tended to create in the Standard of New Jersey a monopoly in the petroleum industry.

Richards Jr., with conspiracy to hinder competition in the production, distribution, and exhibition of motion picture films, and to create a monopoly in the motion picture industry.

"Jazz" Blamed For Death of Remington

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 21.—Good fellowship, the fascinating folly of dancing down the primrose path with fair weather friends, stood indicted today by Mrs. Virginia Remington for the murder of her husband, Earle Remington, popular club man and prominent business man, whose body was found Friday morning on the driveway of his Wilshire district home.

Victim of Jazzland

"My boy was just the victim of the jungle call of jazzland," Mrs. Remington said, tears brimming over the tired lids and wetting the death-like whiteness of her cheeks. "The first four years we were married we were happy with a happiness that was almost ideal," she said. "Then the jungle call of jazz sounded through the quietness of our lives. There followed times when my boy came to me, ashamed and penitent, and told me things that hurt my heart and stung my pride. But I was patient, because I loved him. It is not hard to forgive those we love.

"But at length there came a day, three years ago, when we first discussed divorce.

"Then suddenly we decided to close our city home and go to our estate near Chino. Divorce proceedings, which were under way, were stopped. He wanted to give me my freedom.

"From daybreak until night we worked, planting and digging potatoes, which we gave to the Salvation army and other charitable institutions. There was a certain serenity that came with the long hours of toil, and night found us both too weary of body to keep vigil with the horrible ghosts that had haunted us in the city.

"But once more came the jungle call from Los Angeles' gay night life. The fiddler was still playing, and my boy answered the call."

King Tut's Father Wed Commoner and Shocked Traditions of Ancient Egypt

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 21.—It is only a little bit of limestone—less than two and one-half inches long—bearing some queer marks. Yet it reveals one of the most appealing love stories of all history, and provides the background for the reign of King Tut-Ankh-Amen, Egyptian Pharoah, whose tomb just now is giving up priceless historical treasures.

Sister-Marriage Custom.

It is the marriage scarab of King Amen-Hotep III, father of Tut-Ankh-Amen, the only one in the United States, and rests on a shelf at the museum of anthropology of the University of California here.

Sister-marriage was the unviolated practice of the Egyptian royal family until King Amen-Hotep III married Tii—Bedja woman and Syrian, a commoner. She was the beautiful daughter of a captain of his father's guard. He fell madly in love with her, such a great love it could only be satisfied with making her queen, his first wife. In denying the age-old tradition, he almost brought his kingdom down on his ears, but he braved it all.

Tut-Ankh-Amen was not the son of Tii, acording to Prof. H. F. Lutz, Egyptologist of the University of California, who deciphered the heiroglyphic on the tiny scarab and traced the love tale through the mazes of ancient Egyptian history. Amen-Hotep III had a large harem, and Tut-Ankh-Amen was the son of one of these commoner wives.

Tut-Ankh-Amen rose to the kingship, not by virtue of his father, but by marriage. He married the third daughter of Amen-Hotep IV, his half-brother, thereby making the half-brother his brother-in-law.

Amen-Hotep IV had married his sister at the age of 13. He was better known as Akhenaton, the heretic king.

There are two of the marriage scarabs in the collection. The larger and most perfect one bears, in addition to the name of Queen Tii, those of her parents. King Amen-Hotep III, known as the magnificent, did not try to hide his great love—the very magnificence of the scarab shows that, according to Prof. Lutz.

May Close Tomb From Public View

LUXOR, Feb. 21.—The mummy of King Tut-Ankh-Amen may remain in its 3,000-year-old tomb in the valley of the kings, and not be placed in a museum to satisfy the eyes of a curious world, it was learned today.

Lord Carnarvon, head of the Egyptologist explorers who uncovered the tomb, has been deeply moved by the protests from many parts of the world against disturbing the body of the ancient Pharoah, and especially against putting it upon public view.

It is understood Lord Carnarvon is considering the advisability of reproducing the sarcophagus and its inner shrine in wax, allowing the mummy to remain where it was placed by the Egyptian priests more than 1,000 years before the coming of Christ.

The inner chamber of the tomb was still open today.

State Aid Bill To Lengthen Terms Of Wichita Schools

Special appropriation of $3,000,000, made by the legislature early this week for benefit of rural schools in Texas, may serve to prevent early closing of one or two schools in the Wichita Falls district, according to County Superintendent Burl Bryant.

The situation here has not been acute, it is said, and with the exception of one or two small districts, sufficient funds are on hand to assure the operation of the rural schools for the balance of the scholastic year.

The special appropriation, however, makes it certain that every rural school district in Wichita county will have a full scholastic term, Mr. Bryant stated.

Removes "Lump" From Stomach
Ever feel as if you had a lump in the pit of your stomach, causing a burning sensation, sour taste, heart palpitation, shortness of breath, bloating or other disagreeable effects? These are some of the most common symptons of excessive gas resulting from a nervous stomach.
Many people say this "lump" feels like a ball of molten iron, while others claim that it is more like a rock. Of course, it isn't a lump at all, but merely an accumulation of gas in the stomach pressing against the heart or other organs.
By taking Baalmann's Gas Tablets before and after meals, you can prevent distress from gas and aid in correcting the nervous condition responsible for the trouble.
You'll find Baalmann's Gas Tablets on sale at the Palace and Central Drug Co. Price, $1. Look for the yellow package. J. Baalmann, Chemist, San Francisco.—Adv.

Community Players Enjoy Luncheon and Business Meeting

At a weekly meeting of the Community Players held at the Kemp hotel Wednesday when the weekly luncheon was also enjoyed, Miss Murline Turenr was named chairman of the rehearsals, and called a meeting of the tentative cast for the club's play "Nothing But the Truth," to be presented in March, this evening at the library.

Paul Barnett, newly elected vice president, was in the chair, and he made an interesting talk on loyalty of the club. Mrs. E. L. Fulton made a statement that the club being a civic organization, its influence is far reaching and she suggested the organization of circles to the Wichita Falls center, in Iowa Park and Vernon.

Miss Turner talked on the "Invasion of the Moscow Art Theatre." Miss Turner's talk was illustrated by Thomas J. McMahan, who read a poem entitled "100 per cent American," giving a clever interpretation of the illiterate man who visited the theatre feeling as all do about the bolsheviki, and coming away with tears in his eyes, which was in itself a tribute to the performance.

Newly appointed officers of the club chosen at the annual meeting and election of officers, held at the William-Mary, are as follows: Mrs. Claude Huffner, re-elected president; Paul Barnett, vice president; Mrs. Mabel Kavanaugh, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. E. L. Fulton, consulting director; George Hodgins, stage manager; Miss Lurline Turner' librarian; Miss Julia Ross, chairman of orchestra and Miss Annette Walsh, chairman of music.

Advisory board included: W. D. Cline, civics; Emil Hermann, art; Ernest Ktaz, music; H. S. Ford, business; Mrs. Luther Hoffman, costumes, and Mrs. C. W. Wallace, plays.

The president has appointed the following members of her cabinet as chairmen of standing committees: W. H. Bonneau, arrangements; T. A. Bradley, publicity; Mrs. J. W. King, ticket; Mrs. Nat L. Inge, properties; Mrs. Jouette Bonner, costumes; Miss Josephine Mayfield, associate membership and Miss Adele Marcus, play reading.

Here Are New Blouses for Spring

By ELOISE

Shops are now holding spring openings in blouse departments and nothing brings the warm days so close as the bright colored or crisp white blouses of a new season. The over-blouse divides honors with the tuck-in style. Bright colored printed crepes and novelty silk blouses in high colors are usually made in slip-on styles. Dimities, linens, voiles and wash waists are made on trim tailored lines to tuck into the tailored skirt. Here are three attractive blouses for spring and summer wear. All three are overblouses.

The white crepe de chine printed in a cross stitch pattern of black, red and yellow makes a pretty suit blouse. A wide band of pin tucked white crepe forms the cuffs, square collar and tight band at the hips. Note the V-neck which is returning to favor this season.

The smock, which is suitable for house and garden wear, is made of heavy white crepe de chine in a sleeveless mode which should be most comfortable on a hot summer day. Wide tucks finish the edges of the smock and pockets and narrow tucks trim the front and back panels.

The sports blouse shown may be worn with suit, plaid cloth skirt or silk skirt. It is fashioned of tan silk eponge with collar and cuffs set off by a touch of Indian colored braid. The blouse is made with the side closing on the jacket style and when worn with a sports skirt gives the effect of a suit. The wide sleeves shown here are just as smart as the modified peasant sleeve featured on the white blouse. Summer always demands blouses, for with one skirt and various types of blouses one may have several smart costumes. With a novelty silk skirt in a neutral shade these three blouses make a house frock, an afternoon costume and a street suit.

HOW DOCTORS TREAT COLDS AND THE FLU

First Step in Treatment Is a Brisk Purgative With Calotabs, the Purified and Refined Calomel Tablets That Are Nausealess, Safe and Sure.

Doctors have found by experience that no medicine for colds, coughs, sore throat, and influenza can be depended upon for full effectiveness until the liver is made thoroughly active. That is why the first step in the treatment is the new, nauseouseless calomel tablets called Calotabs, which are free from the sickening and weakening effects of the old style calomel. Doctors also point out the fact that an active liver may go a long way towards preventing influenza and colds and is one of the most important factors in enabling the patient to successfully withstand an attack and ward off pneumonia.

One or two Calotabs on the tongue at bed time, with a swallow of water—that's all. No salts, no nausea nor the slightest interference with your eating, pleasure or work. Next morning your cold has vanished, your liver is active, your system is purified, and you are feeling fine, with a hearty appetite for breakfast. Genuine Calotabs are sold only in original sealed packages, price thirty-five cents for the large, family-package; ten cents for the small, vest-pocket size.—Adv.

TODAY'S RECIPES

Spinach—Cook the spinach in a very little water, using a low fire. It needs to be cooked only a very short time, until it is all soft. A small amount takes fifteen minutes. Cooking in too much water wastes the important constituents and cooking it too long gives it a dark, unappetizing color.

Round Steak—Cut one pound of round steak (about one-half inch thick) in portions suitable for serving. Pound flour into the meat. Fry until a rich brown, using plenty of lard and a hot fire. Remove onions and season. Have ready a can from fire and add two or three whole of stewed tomatoes, heated and to which has been added sugar and salt. Add tomatoes to just come to the top of the meat, but do not cover. Bake in the oven one hour. Keep adding stewed tomatoes as the tomatoes on the meat cook done This gives the tomato sauce a delicious fried and meaty flavor.

Ice Box Pudding (serves six)—One-quarter cup sugar, one-quarter cup milk, yolks of three eggs, one tablespoon cornstarch. Beat altogether and cook in double boiler until thick. When cool add the juice of one lemon and the rind of one-half lemon. Cream one-quarter pound seet butter (wash ordinary butter) and one cup confectioners' sugar. Add beaten whites of three eggs. Then add this to the above custard. In a loaf pan place a layer of lady fingers and a layer of the above miture, a layer of ladyx fingers, a layer of mixture and on top lady fingers, using one and one-half dozen lady fingers altogether. Put on ice or in outside window box for twenty-four hours. Serve with whipped cream.

THINGS HELPFUL AND INTERESTING

Use Wire Egg Whip—You will find a ten-cent wire egg whip a great help in making mashed potatoes, it keeps them nice and light. It is also fine for pancake batter, or sponge cake batter. It beats up the lumps more quickly than mixing spoon.

Health Directory Issued—The United States department of labor has just issued, through the children's bureau a directory of the 861 local child health agencies in the United States. These agencies are first listed alphabetically according to state and city; then, in alphabetical order by states, come the agencies serving state-wide county and urban areas, with a further classification showing which agencies provide maternity care, which infant care and which take care of children of pre-school age.

Waste Made Into Fuel—Experiments carried out in Seattle have developed a wood briquette that equals anthracite coal in heating value, according to reports. The new fuel is made of sawdust, bark and mill refuse now considered a total waste.

Skin Ablaze with Eczema

Constant Itching Almost Unbearable!

We know there is one thing that stops eczema, and that is more red blood-cells! S. S. S. builds them by the million! You can increase your red-blood cells to the point where it is practically impossible for eczema to exist. We know that as blood-cells increase in number, blood impurities vanish! We also know that night follows day. Both are facts! But have you, eczema sufferers, ever actually taken advantage of this wonderful fact? Thousands just like you have never thought about it! Skin eruptions, eczema with all its fiery, skin-digging torture and its soul-tearing, unreachable itching, pimples, blackheads and boils, they all pack up and go, when the tide of blood-cells begins to roll in! Blood-cells are the fighting-giants of nature! S. S. S. builds them by the million! It has been doing it since 1826! S. S. S. is one of the greatest blood-cell builders, blood-cleansers and body-builders known to us mortals! When you put these facts together,—then to continue to have eczema and skin eruptions looks more like a sin than a disease. Mrs. Arthur N. Smith, Pearl St., Newark, Ohio, writes:

"My little girl had a very bad case of eczema. She began taking S. S. S. and is well now. I thank you very much. I tell my friends what a good medicine it is. I cannot talk too much about it, for I know it is O. K."

Here is your opportunity. S. S. S. contains only vegetable medicinal ingredients. Because S. S. S. does build red-blood-cells, it routs rheumatism, builds firm flesh, fills out hollow cheeks, beautifies the complexion, builds you up when you are run-down. S. S. S. is sold at all drug stores, in two sizes. The larger size bottle is the more economical.

What Today Means To You

By MARY BLAKE.

Today, if your nativity was under the influence of Pisces, is a day especially suitable for the commencement of any new business enterprise, or for the development of progressive measures.

This does not mean to imply that speculation will prove remunerative, but it does signify that any sound financial project, if launched today, will meet with all the success is deserves.

Any steps taken today having in view the betterment of mankind, or a better understanding between capital and labor, will bring about the deserved result.

Do not be afraid today; do not look with too critical an eye on the weaknesses of others; be tolerant, always remembering that everything, including a big drum, has two sides to it.

Do not be looking for the mote in your neighbor's eye, whilst overlooking the beam in your own.

Be big and generous, resisting at all times the desire you will have for a riotous living.

The signs indicate that today would be an auspicious one to ask the girl of your choice to be your wife, and that girl would make no mistake in uttering the word "Yes."

It is also a favorable day on which to marry, as the signs indicate that a marriage celebrated today will only bring happiness and contentment in its train.

Famous Americans Born Today.

In 1732—George Washington, the Father of our Country, of whom an English writer said: "No man, except George Washington has done such great things as he did without the soil of selfishness or the strain of grovelling ambition."

Your Heart and Home Problems Solved By Elizabeth Thompsun

Dear Mrs. Thompsun: I am a girl of age. I am engaged to two boys. One lives here and the other lives in Arkansas. I love the boy that lives here best. But the one in Arkansas keeps writing me that he is coming after me. I have been engaged to him a year but he hasn't come after me yet. The other one is very jealous and wants me to quit writing to him. I love the boy that lives here best and I know that he loves me. Should I let the boy in Arkansas alone and quit writing him? Or should I go with the boy here?

BLUE EYES.

I think if you love this boy here and wish to hold him, it would be well for you to quit writing to the boy in Arkansas.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a woman 23 years of age and have been married eight years. Have had three children, have one dead and two living. Both are girls, one three and the other five years of age. I married when I was 14 years old, my husband is 47. He became jealous of me. I would want to go some and be with other young people and he thought I should stay at home and patch and darn just like his mother did, and if I spoke to a man while out, he would fuss at me when he got home. He was jealous of me talking to my sister, he was jealous of women same as of men. The first six years we were married I tried to please him, was always glad to greet him when he came in from work, but he got so when he came home, nothing I did suited him and he would say that I didn't try to keep house and I couldn't dress the children like he wanted them dressed. He wanted them to wear clothes like they did 40 and 50 years ago and I dressed them like other children. I would want them to play and be like other children and he thought that they were better than other children. After so long I became dissatisfied and saw what a great mistake I had made in marrying a man so much older than I was. I had no pleasures of girlhood and after I was married, soon became a mother and thought that I would have to get along, but the more I studied about it, the worse dissatisfied I became. My husband was good to me at times and some times he wasn't. I am a woman that you can do more with me by kind treatment but I cannot be driven. Now we have been separated since June 1922. My husband has seen his mistake and begs me to go back and try him again for the sake of the children. I have thought the matter over, but can't make up my mind what to do. I lived with him until I became afraid to live with him any longer. I told him before if he ever threatened my life again I would leave him, but he didn't think I would. Do you think we could ever get along and be happy again? Please advise me what you think best. ETHEL.

I am sorry to have to advise you that I am afraid you and your husband can never get along happily together. In the first place there is entirely too much difference in your ages and your dispositions seem entirely different also. If he is of a jealous disposition, he will probably remain so, and be hard to get along with. Then another thing, where there is no love the influence of the home probably would not be good for the children any way.

SENATORS ARE WARNED

There is going to be a battle royal in the senate over the medical practice act. Senator John Davis has his amendment exempting Christian Scientists from operations of the act should it become a law. It is the gossip of the corridors that there are senators who are determined to defeat the Davis amendment if possible.

There are senators, and Davis is one, who say that they have been threatened with defeat two years hence if they dare to vote against the medical practice act as it was written.

This is not hearsay. The writer has it straight from one of the senators who is to be placed under the ban unless he changes his tactics or course on senatorial procedure. This should make it interesting all around if the medical practice act is to be made a paramount issue in 1924, no doubt the tariff, the league of nations, the federal reserve act, the ship subsidy, the Harding foreign affair policy, and the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act will be relegated and made minor issues.

It appears to be the mission of a lawmaker to contribute to the gaiety of his fellows as well as to the gaiety of nations. Regardless of all this, and joking aside, there should be an interesting session of the senate during the consideration of the medical act and the amendments which are offered. Senator Davis says he has received hundreds of telegrams endorsing his course. Some of his critics including a well known physician of Dallas and a well known physician of Fort Worth say he has been showered with letters and telegrams condemning his course. All this shows that there is a merry war on.

PARR MAN OF PEACE.

Senator Archie Parr is a man of action. Arising to the question of personal privilege, he declared that the part he played in the Ferguson resolution episode did not carry with it any intention on his part of ruffling the feathers of any senatorial brother, and also that Lieutenant Governor T. W. Davidson had not been forewarned of the nature of the resolution or even the existence of a resolution. Parr having made the amendo honorable and this not in the nature of an apology. Senator John H. Bailey, who led the other side, on the memorable day, declared that he never did believe that Ferguson should have been disfranchised and voted against it when the impeachment trial was on. "Is this a foreword or a hint of what may be done in the future?" asked a senator of a brother senator. Now the doves of peace are snuggling together.

POTASH

Enough potash to supply the needs of the United States for nearly a thousand years is contained in the green sands of New Jersey. Geologist estimates place the quantity of potash in that belt at 256,935,000 short tons that could be minded from open pits.

Germany, before the coming of the world war, furnished the world with potash.

Now, why shouldn't potash for fertilizers be taken out of the pits or sands in this country? Why shouldn't American manufacturers supply American farmers with the fertilizers they need?

And lastly, why keep Henry Ford out of the Muscle Shoals plant and property?

UNCOMMON SENSE

BY JOHN BLAKE

TOO MANY WINDOWS

A novelist of our acquaintance wrote a best seller, and decided he was going to follow an easier road to fame.

His book brought him a sum that for him, was a fortune.

It had been written in a little flat, with no windows to look out of, and no beautiful things to look at on its ugly walls or in its uglier furnishings.

"I had to write my book out of my memory," he said. "The next one I write will be better, for I will surround myself with the raw material for it."

So he rented a pretty house on the sea shore, commanding on one side a view of a lovely bay, and looking out on the other, over the big foamy rollers that swept in from the open ocean.

There were little boats on the bay and great ships on the sea.

A golf links came down to the bay in a long sweep, flanked on either side by green groves.

Across the golf links was a peach orchard, full of bloom, for it was spring.

And close beside the house ran a broad highway, full of automobiles and motor cars, with now and then a farmer's wagon to carry the beholder back from the modern time to the time of long ago.

Six windows were there in the room where our friend pitched his typewriter to work upon his new novel.

Who could not write a novel in such surroundings?

Well he, who had already written a very good and a very successful one could not.

For he had too many raw materials, and too many windows through which they flowed into his eyes and brain.

Pell mell there piled in on him seas and ships and bays and golf links and trees and blossoms and automobiles and horses and carts.

Always he was leaping from his work to run to the window at some new sound, and kept there to admire some bit of liveliness that had escaped him.

In the course of a summer he did, it is true, turn out a book. But it was a dull book, written with half his mind, while the othe, half was enjoying itself by looking out of the window.

Today he is working in a garret of a farm house, where the windows are too high to look out of.

And much of the beauty that he say last spring will find its way to his pages, mellowed, and to use an ugly expression, "digested" by memory, which softens beauty as distance softens sound.

When you read his new book, and we are sure it will be successful, we hope you will remember what we told you about him. And we hope too, that if you have important work — and all work is important—you will not have too many windows in your house or your office or wherever it is that you earn your living.

WHO'S WHO

JEAN JULES JUSSERAND

JULES JUSSERAND

One of the most highly esteemed men in the national capital is Jean Jules Jusserand, ambassador from France to the United States, who has just completed his twentieth year at that post. The twentieth anniversary of his appointment, Feb. 7, 1903, was fittingly observed.

Ambassador Jusserand is a scholar as well as a diplomatist, and has made a deep study of English literature, having written several volumes on the subject. His wife is an American woman. The ambassador was a very close friend of former President Roosevelt, and made frequent visits to the white house, either to discuss literature or to play tennis with the former president.

Ambassador Jusserand, who presented his credentials as his country's ambassador extraordinary and plenipotentiary here Feb. 7, 1903, has been in the diplomatic service of France since attaining his majority. This was the first post he held as ambassador, he having been minister to Denmark at the time of his transfer to this capital. On account of his scholarly ability, degrees have been conferred on him by Harvard, Chicago and Columbia universities, and by the University of Pennsylvania. He is a grand officer of the Legion of Honor and a member of several British and American philosophical, historical and literary bodies.

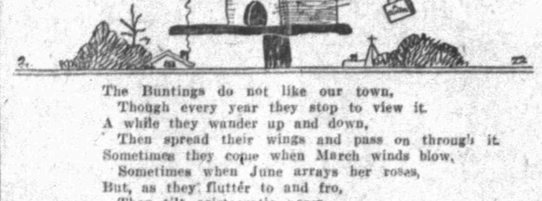

Among his literary works are a history of English literature and a history of the English novel in the time of Shakespeare. He has shown great interest in American history, and has written a number of articles dealing with the important part played by the French officers who came to this country and fought during the Revolutionary war.

The ambassador's wife was Miss Elsie Richards. During their stay in Washington the Jusserands have entertained extensively and have proved themselves exceedingly popular in the diplomatic set.

More Truth Than Poetry

—By James J. Montague—

The Buntings do not like our town,
Though every year they stop to view it.
A while they wander up and down,
Then spread their wings and pass on through it.
Sometimes they come when March winds blow,
Sometimes when June arrays her roses,
But, as they flutter to and fro,
They tilt aristocratic noses.

They nip the bread crumbs we throw out;
They use our pines and firs to meet in,
The while they chirp: "Beyond a doubt,
This town's an awful place to eat in!
This scraggly tree, of course, will do
To rest or talk in for a minute,
Or chatter for an hour or two,
But could one think of living in it?"

And so they soon are on their way
To northern woods, forever vernal,
Or southward, for a winter stay
Where summer sunshine is eternal.
Our hospitality is vain—
They cast on us suspicious glances
And answer with a cold disdain
The friendliest of our advances.

But we have Wrens and Orioles,
And, now and then, a stately Pheasant;
And Robins—jolly, homely souls,
Who think our neighborhood is pleasant.
Their morning voices make it glad,
Their bright and vivid hues adorn it,
And so we do not find it bad,
Although the haughty Buntings scorn it.

IRRIGATION ? ? ? ? ?

Asked —Answered

Through arrangements with A. M. McPherson, a well-known engineer of this city and a well-known authority on irrigation questions, The Record News is prepared to answer any questions pertaining to irrigation in general, and the Wichita project in particular.

Any point not clear on some phase of the irrigation question will be answered by Mr. McPherson through The Record News.

Will dairying be a profitable business for the farmer when the irrigation project is completed?

Dairying is a profitable industry in most all parts of the country, but on account of the eternal attention to business required, with no let up for Sundays or holidays, few native born Americans care to follow it. In fertile sections, dairying is largely in the hands of foreign born farmers. In other sections where climatic or soil conditions are poor, native born American will be found conducting dairies and owning large herds of fine dairy cows.

Dairying, when conducted with any degree of intelligence and attention to business, is almost invariably a profitable enterprise.

Dairying is such an important industry in any farming community, that we have asked Guy R. Jones, county agent, to tell us what he thinks about dairying here when irrigation is under way. He says:

"The dairy industry in this section has not as yet scratched the surface of its possibilities. Few lines of endeavor offer the chances of success to the farmer that dairying does. With the coming of irrigation, dairying should take its place as one of the principal and sure sources of income for the irrigation farmer.

"Here we have a mild climate for the greater portion of the year, and cows can graze on green fields most of the time. In the fall, sown grain offers green feed for the dairy cow. Under irrigation there will be many other crops that will offer green feed during the spring, summer and fall. At present, under dry farming methods, there comes a time in the late summer when there is but little green grazing, but with water at hand, this will be changed to a grazing season also. With irrigation there will be green feed the year around."

(In tomorrow's issue, dairying will be further discussed.)

"Moonshine" Coming To Wichita Theatre Monday

Billy King's "Moonshine" which comes to the Wichita theatre, Monday, February 26, is called the "somewhat different" show. It is true that King, who heads the company of 40 in this stage combination of music and fun, is known from one coast to the other as a black face comedian of rare merit. It is particularly interesting to note that he is a negro who has attained to fame in his chosen calling.

Pep is the middle name of "Moonshine" and for a fast moving, laugh-all-the-time attraction, it is generally conceded by critics that this 1923 concoction is superior to anything which King has yet offered.

The plot is sufficiently strong to make the entertainment coherent but the keynote of the whole show is music and fun.

The Blue Devil orchestra, said to be one of the "jazziest" organizations of its kind on tour, is a feature.

'The Secret Toll'

By PAUL and MABEL THORNE
Authors of
"The Sheridan Road Mystery"

Forrester persuades Green to agree to put up at his country place, though Green is badly frightened by the apparition. Forrester, again examining the tree, meets

Mary Sturtevant, the attractive young woman living at the Bradbury place where Joshua is gardener. She gives him a letter of introduction addressed to his mother, who soon is to move to the Forrester country place, Woodmere, not far away. Forrester next goes to visit.

Lucy, the 'bad West Indian Nigah." Within her cottage he sees a dry aquarium on the gravel bottom of which a group of snakes are coiling and uncoiling. He remembers that serpents are said to be used in Voodoo worship.

Voodoo worshipers had been known to demand human sacrifices!

Was he actually discovering clues which the detectives had overlooked?

Forrester questioned the woman about her husband whom Joshua said she had murdered. She declared he had run away.

"Have you ever seen any of the men who make use of that tree?" he asked.

"No men ever come near that tree—just ghosts. It's haunted."

Forrester stared for a moment. It was curious how all these people agreed in that one point.

The woman said her name was simply Lucy. She spoke excellent English.

"What do you keep those snakes for?" Forrester asked suddenly.

"Guess you have found out all I can tell you!"

"They're part of my religion," she returned.

"Don't you go to church?" inquired Forrester.

"Not the church these niggers around here go to," she sneered. "I worship in my own way."

"Well," he went on, "perhaps you can tell me something about what the ghosts do."

"I have never seen anything," explained Lucy, "but sometimes when I come home late at night I hear things."

"Such as?" suggested Forrester.

"Oh, groans and sighs—rattling chains—and sometimes the sound of a bell."

This was positive confirmation of Green's story, and Forrester pondered before asking his next question. He remembered Joshua's assertion that he had plainly heard words, so he asked:

"Do you ever hear voices saying anything?"

"Nothing distinctly. Just sighs and groans and sounds like that, as if somebody were in trouble."

"You think, then," said Forrester, "that it is just some uneasy soul that haunts that tree?"

"Yes," she replied.

"But," protested Forester, "what could a ghost want with good United States money?"

"I don't know," replied Lucy. "In my worship I sometimes commune with the spirits, but they have never told me how they could use money."

"Have you ever tried to commune with this ghost?" asked Forrester.

"No," replied Lucy. 'I don't think it belongs to my people."

Suppose I were to offer you a good sum of money to try to communicate with it?" suggested Forrester.

'I don't need money," she replied.

"Don't you have to work for a living?"

"No."

'How do you manage to live then?"

"I don't need money to live. I can get on."

Forrester glanced around the rom once more. The cookstove appeared to be without a fire and there were no signs of food. He wondered.

Turning again to Lucy, Forrester said, "Strange about the ghost that haunts that tree, Lucy. Did you ever hear of anyone being murdered around here?"

"No," she replied. Then added, after a slight pause, as she rose and walked toward the door, "Guess you have found out all I can tell you, Mister. You'd better go now— before my dog comes back."

At dinner that night, Forrester gave his mother the note Mary Sturtevant had handed him.

Mrs. Forrester glanced through the note. "It is a letter of introduction," she explained. "How odd! Helen Lewis of New York asks me to do what I can 'to make Miss Mary Sturtevant's stay in Chicago a pleasant one.' Strange that she did not write me directly.

"Does she say who Miss Sturtevant is?" queried Forrester.

"The daughter of some very dear friends of Helen's. The Sturtevants are an old New York family, she says. I'm quite sure that I have heard of them."

"May I be permitted to inquire, said Josephine roguishly, "how Mr. Robert Forrester came to be the bearer of this note, and wherefrom springs his intense interest?"

Forrester colored, then frowned severely upon his sister.

"I met the young lady through an accident this morning. When she learned who I was she asked me to bring this letter to you."

After dinner two callers were ushered into the room.

"Howdy," said one of the men, "my name's Cahill, and this is my partner, Detective Sergeant O'Connor. We came from the detective bureau to see you about this 'Friends of the Poor' matter."

'Making any progress?" inquired Forrester, fully convinced in his own mind, however, that they were not.

"Well, we are, and we aren't," answered Cahill. 'You see, O'Connor and me were in the police auto the other night—the night you tipped us off. We're both some shots, and we felt pretty sure we had hit that car we were chasing. So we've been scouting around the West Side garages looking for a car with bullet holes.

"Today we located just such a car with half a dozen bullet holes in the back in a garage out on Grand avenue. Grand avenue, you know, is full of dagoes all the way from the river. The garage man said it was left there late Tuesday night by three young Italians. Now, do you get the idea?"

Forrester did, and he was astounded at the news.

"You mean," he queried, "that you ascribe this whole affair to some West Side black hand band, and that this car proves your theory?"

'Sure thing!" assented Cahill. "O'Connor and me have been working on this case for months. Sometimes we thought we had a clue, and then again we didn't. We have suspected black handers from the first, but we couldn't exactly get a line on them. That tip you gave us Tuesday night started things right. Now we know where we're at. There's three detectives in overalls in that garage right now, and if those guys come back for their car the whole thing'll be cleared up in a jiffy."

Forrester was overwhelmed. The suspicions he had entertained regarding the weird negress, the girl on the horse and her colored servant were knocked flat.

The half-formed theories he had been been building up around them were completely shattered. The growing pride he had felt in his own detective talents was crushed, and the discoveries in which he had exulted were rendered valueless.

After all, the hard-hearted, plodding, unimaginative city detectives knew their business best.

There was really no mystery or romance to crime; no clever men pitting their brains against those of astute detectives.

The criminal class was nothing more than the police claimed it to be—just a stunted, unnatural, evil-smelling plant, with its roots buried deep in the sordid, filthy dives and foreign settlements of the West Side.

Forrester was disappointed; deeply disappointed. He heaved a sigh.

"Relieved, eh?" chuckled Cahill. "Thought the police were no good, and that you had to kiss 10,000 bucks goodby?"

"No," explained Forrester, "I hadn't exactly lost faith in the police. But I will say this: I have recently made some peculiar and interesting discoveries on my own account, and now you have practically knocked the foundation from under them with your very matter of fact solution of the mystery."

'We ain't solved it yet, remember," objected Cahill. "We may still have to ask you to help us. That's what we dropped in for this evening."

"What do you want me to do?" asked Forrester.

"Well, you see it's this way," explained Cahill. "If those dagoes come back to the garage between now and Saturday, we'll have them. But if they get wise that we found the car they may chuck it and steal another one. In that case well sure get them at the oak tree up there on the North Shore Saturday night. What we want you to do is to put that money in the tree at the time we tell you to, so that we will be ready."

"But nobody has ever succeeded in locating these people at the trees," protested Forrester.

"I know," admitted Cahill, grinning, "but O'Connor and me have worked out a plan. We figure that in the past these guys have been able to slip in between the detectives on watch. You see, it's pretty dark in those woods at night. Our plan is going to put a stop to that. It's like this:

"We're going to put a peg in the ground on each side of the tree, back and front. O'Connor will be on one side and me on the other. There's to be a string from each peg running to O'Connor, and the same thing on the other side to me. We'll hold these strings, one in each hand. Now, that completely surrounds the tree, so that any one approaching will kick into a string. We'll know from the hand the string's in just what direction to look for them in the dark. O'Connor's strings will be A and B, and mine will be C and D. Get the idea?

"If O'Connor feels a tug, he'll yell A or B at me. If I get a feel on one of my strings I'll holler C or D. Get me? Then we'll both make a rush at just the right spot. Believe me, Mr. Forrester, we got them this time. No sneaking up between detectives next Saturday night."

"The idea sounds very good, Cahill," agreed Forrester. "Perhaps it will work. If I don't hear from you in the meantime, what hour do you wish me to approach the tree on Saturday night?"

"We'v fixed on 10:30, if that is convenient for you, Mr. Forrester," answered Cahill.

"That suits me," declared Forrester. "And now, we'll be going," announced Cahill, rising. "Thanks for the cigar. As fine a smoke as I've had in a long time."

"Bang up," murmured O'Connor.

"Take another along," suggested Forrester, accepting the hint.

The two detectives each carefully selected another cigar, and then Forrester went with them to the door.

"What will you do if the ghosts supposed to haunt that tree should appear?" inquired Forrester.

'You don't believe that stuff, do you, Mr. Forrester?" asked Cahill, scornfully.

"Well, several people, unknown to one another, have agreed on the details."

Cahill smiled. "Maybe so," he said, "but don't forget that O'Connor and me can shoot, Mr. Forrester. We can lay out any ghost that ever ghosted."

"You certainly have my best wishes for your success," said Forrester.

"Don't worry any more," assured Cahill, as he passed out. "The police have got this gang dead to rights this time. Saturday night will end it!"

Nation Observes Birthday Of Father Of Country

Above, Washington's home at Mt. Vernon and striking portrait of him. Center row, Martha Washington; house at Georgetown, D. C., used as headquarters by Washington when he was a surveyor, and the entrance to his tomb at Mt. Vernon. Below, his birthplace in Westmoreland county, Virginia.

School children, societies, civic and fraternal organizations throughout the nation are honoring the memory today of George Washington on the anniversary of his birth, Feb. 22, 1732. Historical spots preserved to commemorate his greatness will be the scene of proper ceremonies.

Washington's birthday takes on more significance these days, in view of his emphatic opposition to entangling alliances with foreign nations.

POEMS THAT LIVE

TO HIS FORSAKEN MISTRESS

I do confess thou'rt smooth and fair,
And I might have gone near to love thee,
Had I not found the slightest prayer
That lips could speak, had power to move thee:
But I can let thee now alone,
As worthy to be loved by none.

I do confess thou'rt sweet; yet find
Thee such an unthrift of thy sweets,
Thy favors are but like the wind
That kisses everything it meets:
And since thou can'st with more than one,
Thou'rt worthy to be kissed by none.

The morning rose that untouched stands,
Armed with her briers, how sweetly smells!
But plucked and strained through ruder hands,
No more her sweetness with her dwells,
But scent and beauty both are gone,
And leaves fall from her, one by one.

Such fate, ere long, will thee betide,
When thou hast handled been a while,—
Like sere flowers to be thrown aside:
And I will sigh, while some will smile,
To see thy love for more than one
Hath brought thee to be loved by none.

FAST QUINTET TO INVADE WICHITA FALLS' BAILWICK; CAPACITY CROWD EXPECTED

Deems On Sick List As Local Five Faces Crucial Test of Season; Second Game to Be At Harrold.

What promises to be one of the basketball classics of the year is scheduled for the Legion hall tonight when Wichita Falls and Harrold high schools, title winners in their respective interscholastic districts, meet in the first of a series of battles to determine the bi-district champion. A second game will be played at Harrold Friday afternoon and in case an even break is obtained in the two combats, the deciding scrap will be held at Electra Saturday night.

The winner of the best two out of three games in entitled to compete in the state basketball finals in Austin early this spring.

Herrold is bringing a fast, aggressive and thoroughly formidable basketball machine to face Coach Jones' red and black Coyotes. The Wilberger quintet sailed through its own district in impressive fashion, and had no great difficulty in annexing the district title. The team has met practically all the stronger high school fives in its own territory and is well prepared to give the local outfit a battle royal from start to finish.

Deems on Sick List

But on the other hand, Coach Jones has drilled his team consistently for the past ten days and with the single exception of Dummy Deems, who is on the sick list, is ready to send his best against the invaders. Perk Ray and Cliff Machenkney will start at forward for Wichita, with Baldwin at center and Coffey and Tyson at guard. The combination thus formed presents a speedy offensive duo, with an equally powerful defensive pair. Baldwin, rangy Coyote center, is fast, a floor man of ability and has the happy faculty of adapting himself easily to either an offensive or defensive unit as the case may require.

Despite the fact that high school tickets will not be accepted at the gate, a capacity crowd is expected for the battle tonight.

The game starts at 8 o'clock and McClain, city league referee, will handle the whistle.

Introducing Joe Berger, SS.

Good morning, fans.

Permit us to introduce for your approval Mr. Joe Berger, late of Wichita, Kan., and heir apparent to the shoes of Shorty Adams.

Berger is one of the proven aspirants for a place on the Spudder infield during the 1923 season, and his 1922 record is submitted herewith.

Berger was actual leader of all Western league short station men last year, turning in a fielding average of 936 in 159 games. In the official averages he is topped by three other Western league shortstops, but none of these participated in more than 93 games. He had 309 putouts to his credit, 526 assists, and committed 57 errors during the year.

In 634 times at bat he cracked out 229 hits for an average of .361—quite a respectable figure in any man's league. These hits went for a total of 318 bases and were divided as follows: Two-baggers, 55; triples, 8; and home runs, 6.

TOMORROW WE WILL INTRODUCE TEX WESTERZELL.

Dangerous Age Excels In Drama

Dramatic revelation of unsuspected possibilities in married life forms the basis of "The Dangerous Age," a John M. Stahl production for First National that appears as the feature attraction of the Empress the balance of the week. An all star cast, headed by Lewis Stone and including Cleo Madison, Edith Roberts, Ruth Clifford, Myrtle Stedman, Lincoln Stedman and Edward Burns, give a touch of artistry to the picture seldom attained in the average film.

The story is one of domestic difficulty and intrigue that finally winds up satisfactorily, but only after some sensational and daring escapades by all the principals. An absorbing plot has been made the paramount consideration, but drama, action and, in fact, all the ingredients necessary for a class A production are included.

A bonfire is planned on Mr. Starbeck's vacant lots and a public weinie roast will be given. There will be public speaking and a general good time. All in the school district are invited, it is announced.

Tour For Noted Educator Being Planned in Texas

An extensive tour of North Texas is being planned for Henry Lee Smith, president of Washington-Lee university, when the educator visits this section in May. He is to deliver the commencement address of the Wichita Falls high school graduating class on May 18 and, if present plans work out, will make addresses in Burkburnett, Electra, Vernon and possibly other nearby points.

Efforts are now being made by Superintendent Lee Clark of the local school system, to provide a week's schedule in Texas for Mr. Smith. Southern Methodist university at Dallas and the Fort Worth public school system, it has been indicated, may entertain the educator for a short period, with the rest of his time spent in Wichita Falls and vicinity. Vernon has already virtually agreed to invite Mr. Smith there for a day.

School officials here are looking forward to Mr. Smith's visit as he is recognized as one of the outstanding figures in the educational world.

HOW HE CURED HIS RUPTURE

Old Sea Captain Cured His Own Rupture After Doctors Said "Operation or Death."

His Remedy and Book Sent Free

Captain Collings sailed the seas for many years; then he sustained a bad double rupture that soon forced him to not only remain ashore, but kept him bedridden for years. He tried doctor after doctor and truss after truss. No results! Finally, he was assured that he must either submit to a dangerous and abhorrent operation or die. He did neither! He cured himself instead.

Captain Collings made a study of himself, of his condition—and at last he was rewarded by the finding of the method that so quickly made him a well strong, vigorous and happy man.

Anyone can use the same method; it's simple, easy, safe and inexpensive. Every ruptured person in the world should have the Captain Collings book, telling all about how he cured himself, and how anyone may follow the same treatment in their own home without any trouble. The book and medicine are FREE. They will be sent prepaid to any rupture sufferer who will fill out the below coupon. But send it right away—now—before you put down this paper.

Three Young Hurlers May Hold Fate Of Sox In Their Hands

By NORMAN E. BROWN.

Three young, optimistic pitchers who will hie south with the Chicago White Sox a few days hence may unknowingly hold the American league championship in the hollows of their respective pitching hands.

These three snappy dressers are Charley Robertson, Ted and Homer Blankenship.

Why leave Gorham Leveterte out, someone shouts. Wait a minute.

Last year Urban Faber carried the burden. This veteran led the league in holding the opposition down and hung up 21 victories. Next on the team came Gorham Leverette. This youngster virtually stepped out of the rookie class by the dependable way he handled himself. Under various and assorted trying conditions, he turned in 13 victories for Gleason, while losing but 10 games. He must be counted a sure bet.

The three men first mentioned formed the rest of Gleason's staff last year. Charley Robertson started out his career like a house afire, and early in the year pitched a no-hit game. He failed, however, to drop into a steady stride after that, and as a result did not prove a consistent winner. He copped 14 games, however, while he lost 15.

Ted Blankenship was an added starter. He won eight games after joining the team and lost 10. Lack of dependable mates at that time, however, forced Gleason to overwork him. Little brother Homer joined the team near the close of the season, and so did not have full opportunity to show his wares. He did indicate, however, that he is a comer.

Gleason knows what to expect from Faber and Leverette. But the status of the other three, Robertson and the Blankenship boys, is still in doubt. If they deliver as they indicated at times last season, they will be sitting mighty pretty. It will be hard to turn the White Sox back with stellar pitching from such a quintet.

So a weighty responsibility rests on the pitching shoulders of this trio of kids, the Blankenships and Mr. Robertson.

Cochran Ties Rotan for Lead

HOUSTON, Feb. 21.—George V. Rotan of Houston, and Tom Cochran of Wichita Falls were tied for low medal scoring in the amateur qualifying first flight today for the invitation golf tournament at the Houston country club, with a score of 74.

More than 200 golfers faced the starter in the first, second and third flights. First flight scores as a rule were higher than qualifying scores of last year, golfers experiencing much trouble on the putting greens.

Three golfers turned in scores of 77, Dudley Golding of Wichita Falls, E. M. Wile of Short Hills, N. J., and Bob Kempman of San Antonio, all went around in 77.

In the second flight, 81 turned out to be the best score. T. M. Taylor of Houston was the medalist in this flight. C. W. Henry of San Antonio with 82, was second.

In the third flight, Fred Austin, of Houston, with an 87, was medalist.

It is probable that Rotan and Cochran will play a special match later in the week for the medal which is offered low medalist.

Heydler to Honolulu?

President John Heydler of the National league after the Febuary meeting of his league will hit the Santa Fe trail for California. He never has been that far from home, but thinks he can find his way back by the openening of the pennant season. He will stop off in Arizona to see whether the Grand Canyon is all that it's cracked up to be, and expects to find a good deal of a crack. His benign presence may serve to make the belligerent Coast leaguers willing to linger awhile longer in organized company, though Mr. Heydler isn't going on any reform mission or to tell anybody where he gets off. A flyer to Honolulu from the Golden Gates is not beyond the bounds of possibility.

Pep Young Released

The Philadelphia Americans gave Ralph (Pep) Young his unconditional release. The Athletics took Young on from Detroit last year when Ty Cobb wearied of ever correcting his wild throwing. He went well for Connie Mack for awhile, but the old arm trouble soon returned. Young is in the automobile tire business in Philadelphia, but may go out with some minor club this season. One report is that New Haven has made him an offer.

Derby Opens Oil Belt Trials This Morning

Gamblers Anxious to Know Who Will Referee Greb-Tunney Battle Friday

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—The gamblers, those speculative jackals who yowl around the outer edges of all local fights of importance, have been attempting to tell the nationality of the man who will referee the Tunney-Greb championship bout on Friday, that they may lay their bets accordingly. Not that they expect to be in cahoots with any of them. There will be no "understanding" although that would simplify matters immensely.

No Telling Where He'll Hit

It is merely that they would be like to be assured in advance that Greb would be allowed to fight according to his individual taste, of which gentleness has no part. Harry is not essentially a foul-fighter but his peculiar style operates against clean hitting. Any man who constantly shoots punches from any and all angles has only a vague idea of just where they may land. It is surprising, in fact, that Greb has not poked some one's eye out with his elbow before this.

The appointment of an official inclined to tolerance in handling bouts would be an undeniable aid to the Greb cause, just as a ring martinet would cramp Harry's style. That is why the identity of the referee is deemed of so much importance to the gamblers who still infest Madison Square Garden in spite of the commissioner's displeasure.

Keeps Identity Secret

It is hoped by the professional gentlement that live and let live will be the motto on Friday. They believe they can forecast the trend of official action if they are topped off in advance on the selection of the referee. But William, the duke of Muldoon, who has sworn undying vendetta against gamblers, has resisted all importunities. He will not divulge the identity of the referee until his appearance in the ring proclaims it automatically.

BOWIE, Texas, Feb. 21.—With over 80 entries listed and the dogs on the ground, the Oil Belt Field Trial open derby will get under way this morning, officially opening the North Texas field trial classic.

Veteran sportsmen on the ground tonight freely predicted that this would be the biggest single event of the trials and that it would go down as one of the premier sporting events of the year.

This city was crowded tonight with dog owners and handlers from all sections of the country. A large string from California came in during the day, while others from all parts of Texas and nearby states arrived on every train.

SPORT SNAP SHOTS
By JACK KEENE.

Young Floyd Johnson has been rescued from his ill advised match with Tom Gibbons, but another promising youngster is to be sacrifived in his place. Now that Johnson has been matched to battle Willard next spring Jack McAuliffe of Detroit, has been thrown as a sop for Gibbons.

Gibbons, of, course, is not a murderer. He never has knocked out a first class fighter and it may be that he never will. But the man from St. Paul knows three times as much boxing as any other heavyweight of today. He hits hard enough to ruin a younster. Against a raw hand, Gibbons is a demon, and it seems a shame to send either Johnson or McAuliffe against him at the present time.

The fact that McAuliffe has a victory over Flord Johnson to his credit is something. It was a six-rounder out on the coast. McAuliff finished in front by a wide margin. Recently he knocked out the tough Hughie Walker, who had met all sorts of opponents without kissing the canvass.

It was this last victory that caused Mark Shaughnessy, who manages McAuliffe, to head with his protege for New York. Shaughnessy has kept McAuliffe under cover for three years, and now thinks the youngster is ready for fast company.

McAuliffe is big enough to fight any one. He stands six feet, three inches, has a reach of 83 inches and weighs an even 200 pounds. The youngster probably would have been heard from before this but for the fact that twice he contracted influenza and was on the shelf for long periods. He has a record of 17 long fights and 15 knockouts.

Australia is prepared to make another bid for the Davis cup next season, but the probabilities are that the makeup of the 1923 tennis team will be changed, Norman Brookes, who played in more Davis cup contests than any other man, is already at work organizing his team, especially with regard to two "discoveries" of his, D. McInnis, 22 years old, and J. Cleminger, 22, both of whom are expected to accomplish much for future Davis cup teams if not, indeed, for the one of the current year. McInnis is declared to be the most promising young Australian player since the day when Anthony Wilding was defeated in the final of the Victorian championship by Gerald Patterson. In addition, Brooks is coaching Norman Peach, who distinguished himself not long ago by beating Patterson in the Australian inter-state tournament by two sets to one.

In the personnel of the two big circuits last season, there was one club whose playing roster showed but two players who were obtained by inter-club deals. The club in question was Detroit, which, outside of George Cutshaw, purchased from Pittsburgh, and Roy Moore, got from the Athletics late in the campaign, didn't have a man but what came direct from the minors. Look over the list: Bassler, Woodall and Mansion, catchers; Oldham, Dauss, Ehmke, Pillette, Johnson, Cole, Stoner, Stewart, and Olsen, pitchers; Blue, first base; Clark, second base; Rigney, short stop; Jones and Haney, third base; Cobb, Heilmann, Veach, Flagstead and Fothergill, outfielders.

WILLARD AND JOHNSON

From reams of copy and volumes of press agent reports, one concrete fact in the Dempsey-Willard-Wills Johnson-Gibbons et al heavyweight scramble for the big money this summer. Jess Willard, the veteran of the lot and ex-champion, is matched to meet Floyd Johnson, the youngster of the lot in New York soon. The battle will be for the benifit of the milk fund. Johnson has been "smoked up" as a youth with championship potentialities. If Johnson can trim burly Jess, the former titleholder will fade out of the championship picture. If Jess wins, the victory will probably mean for him another crack at the title.

The fact that Willard has agreed to meet Johnson puts an entirely different phase on the matter. It tends to make the average fan believe that Willard is really honest in his convictions that he can stage a comeback. The bout between the ex-champion and the youngest aspirant to the crown will be awaited with much interest by pugilistic followers throughout the nation.

The injuries to Robertson and Settegast, University of Texas basketball stars, are more serious than at first thought. Robertson, who was badly bruised, will not be able to get back into the game before March, while Settegast is still in a stupor. The loss of the pair has just about wrecked Romney's quint.

DEMAND STRONG FOR ALL STOCKS

Gains Recorded By Many Offerings

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—Continuation of profit taking sales in some quarters, coincident with fresh buying operations in the coppers, steels and low-priced oils, resulted in marked irregularity at the opening of today's stock markets. Louisville & Nasville was pushed up 1¼ points, and American Woolen 1⅞, while gains of a point each were scored by United Retail Stores and Houston Oil. Studebaker was reactionary at the start.

The later demand embraced the motor accessory, tire, chemical and merchandising shares, gains of 1 to 2 points being recorded by Stromberg Carburetor, Bosch Magneto, Kelly-Springfield and Davison and Allied Chemicals, American Agricultural, Chemical common and preferred, while Associated Dry Goods, Cluett, Peabody and Electric Storage Battery improved fractionally. United States Realty and North American each climbed a point, and DuPont 1¾. Louisville & Nashville extended its gain to 2¾ points, and was followed into higher ground by Baltimore & Ohio, Illinois Central and Atlantic Coast Line. Foreign exchanges opened strong.

Professionals who experimented on the short side of the market, finding that they were making little headway, reversed their attitude in the early afternoon when buying of stocks was resumed vigorously in many new directions. American Can crossed 100 again, and some of the rubber, oil and public utility shares rose briskly.

The closing was firm; sales approximately 1,600,000 shares.

Wheat Moves In Wide Range On Conflicting Factors

CHICAGO, Feb. 21.—Wheat went downward in price today during the early dealings, a material factor being renewal of the selling which for several days past has been led by a house with Eastern connections. As the case has usually been of late, however, purchasing broadened and a rally ensued when the market fell to $1.19 for May. The opening, which varied from unchanged to ¾c lower, May $1.19½ to $1.19⅞, and July $1.15⅛ to $1.15½, was followed by declines all around and then a slight reaction.

Bullish crop advices regarding western Nebraska and western Kansas, together with reports of larger flour business in some quarters, led to rallies later. An offset, however, was announcement that for the first time since the world war there was a total lack of clearances of domestic wheat yesterday from Atlantic and Gulf ports. The market closed unsettled at the same as yesterday's finish to ⅝c lower, May $1.19⅝ to $1.19¾, and July $1.15⅜ to $1.15½.

Corn and oats receded with wheat. After opening ⅛@¼c up, May 46c to 46⅛c, and later showed a setback for all deliveries.

Higher quotations on hogs gave firmness to provisions.

New Orleans Cotton.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 21.—Claims for a substantial rise in spot prices in the interior put the cotton market to new high levels for the season on the old crop positions today. March rose to 29.02, and in the first half-hour brought gains of 10 to 25 points to the list. Points in the western belt wired in that limits on all offerings of cotton had been raised 30 points overnight.

Realizing by longs over the holiday tomorrow caused recessions of about 15 points on the most active months. The tone remained steady on many messages from the interior to local brokers, stating that spot shorts were having difficulty in getting the cotton they needed, and at 12 o'clock March was back to 29.00. New crop months were held down by a private estimate of 15 per cent as the prospective increase in the acreage of cotto this spring. At 12 o'clock October stood at 25.68, or 4 points over yesterday's close.

In the afternoon there was a special demand for May, which rose to the new high level of 29.06 in the trading up to 1:30 o'clock. At this stage the old crops were 26 to 29 points up. October did not share in the advance and at 1:30 o'clock stood at 25.74, or a net advance of only 2 points.

GRISWOLD WELL GOOD FOR 150

South Electra Hole May Be Deepened

Showing up for a nice 150 barrel producer, No. 11 on lease E, Waggoner tract, South Electra field, has been brought in by the Griswold Oil corporation. A star machine is being placed on the well and it will be cleaned out and probably drilled deeper before being put on the pump. The well is now drilled about 7 feet in the 1,500 foot sand.

No. 8 Well Junked

After shooting the 1,800 foot lime in No. 8, lease E, Waggoner tract, South Electra field, Wednesday, the Griswold Oil corporation found the hole junked, owing to a joint of pipe having been left in the hole when the casing was reset several days ago. The shot shattered the pipe and it will be impossible to clean out the hole and make a well, causing the well to be abandoned.

The casing was standing full of oil Tuesday and from indication would have made a good well, but for the unfortunate circumstances of having a joint of pipe in the hole which they were unable to pull.

Make Shallow Tests

The Griswold Oil corporation plan to drill wells in the shallow sands on lease E, Waggoner tract, South Electra field. Several feet of rich sands have been passed up at a depth of 670 feet and another at 880 feet. It is now proposed to drill and finish a well in each of these sands.

20 Per Cent Gain In Production Of Gasoline In 1922

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—Gasoline production in the United States during 1922 totaled 6,202,234,613 gallons, an increase of 20 per cent over the 1921 output, according to figures compiled by the geological survey. The production in December, 585,049,877 gallons, was the heaviest for any month on record.

Present stocks of gasoline were p' ced today by the survey at 883,792,861 gallons or about 9,000,000 gallons less than the peak stocks of last May. These stocks based on the present rate of consumption, represent 64 days supply, the survey estimated, adding that it was probable 1,200,000,000 gallons would be on hand by May 1.

While the production of gasoline increased more than 1,000,000,000 gallons, domestic consumption last year was only about 200,000,000 gallons greater than the 1921 figure. Domestic consumption last year totaled 5,366,423,822 gallons.

Panhandle Co. To Deepen Fox Test

The Panhandle Oil and Refining company announces the Fox test in Eastland county is being drilled deeper in the Black lime at 3,470 feet. This well has a nice showing of oil and indications point to a good producer, but circulated reports that a 1,000-barrel well had been brought in, was unconfirmed from the Dallas office, it is announced.

Burns Test Abandoned

The test of the Burns Oil company on the McGregor tract about two miles east of Huff station has been abandoned as dry at a total depth of 1,876 feet.

SCHOOL HEADS TO CONVENTION

Six Leave Today On Trip to Cleveland

Six city and county school officials are to leave this city Thursday for Cleveland, Ohio, to attend a convention of the department of superintendents of the National Educational association, one of the largest and most active educational organizations in the country. The party, which includes Superintendent Lee Clark, County Superintendent Burl Bryant, H. A. Glass, principal of the junior high school, J. E. Park, principal of Alamo school, W. T. White, principal of the Fairview district rural school, and Paul Morgan, principal of Barwise school, will be gone something over a week.

Is Important Meet

The Cleveland convention attrhcts educators of note from every section of the United States, according to Mr. Clark, and is regarded as one of the most important meetings of its kind held annually.

Addresses, discussions, and exhibits dealing with scholastic work in general, will make a busy four-day period, starting Monday, Feb. 24, and continuing through Thursday.

Special Cars Chartered

Special cars have been chartered from Fort Worth to carry the large Texas delegation that is to attend the convention and the local men will join the Cleveland bound party in the Tarrant county city. On the return trip the local men are planning to spend a short time in St. Louis, inspecting the public school system in that city.

During the absence of the school principals here, their work will be attended to by assistants in the various schools. Miss Georgia Holmes will supervise the Alamo school, O. J. Didrun, thepunior high and Miss Fanie Vaughn the Barwise.

Grand Jury's Bills Include Indictment Of H. J. Toussaint

Sixteen true bills of indictment, including a re-indictment of Henry J. Toussaint, once convicted slayer of his father, were returned Wednesday in a partial report by the grand jury of the Thirtieth district court. It was reported by District Attorney Schenck late Wednesday afternoon, that the grand jury would probably be in session the balance of this week.

No public information has been given out as to the nature of any of the other indictments thus far returned and it is not known whether any or all of those billed are under arrest.

The Toussaint indictment was asked by the district attoney's office because a few minor errors were found in the original bill.

Belief was expressed when the grand jury reconvened Tuesday after a month's recess that the body would complete its work within two or three days' time. It is now considered certain, however, that the work will require the balance of the week.

Fire Destroys Waco Street Home

Firemen summoned to the scene found little more than the shell of the four room frame house standing.

HEALTH OFFICE TO BE MOVED

Will Provide Space For Women's Cells

Removal of the city health department offices from the city hall to the court house will probably be started some time next week, it was learned Wednesday. The change has been contemplated for three weeks or more and for the last 10 days workmen have been busy in the court house basement, erecting new partitions and constructing additional rooms.

When finished, larger quarters for Justice of the Peace O. L. Gibbs will be available and the Red Cross headquarters will also have more space. The office of Constable Frank Morgan will probably be changed to a more commodius room.

The change is designed to give more space on the second floor of the city hall so that additional cells may be constructed. Such an improvement has been agitated by local welfare organizations for some time and recently a delegation of women from the federated missionary societies called on the city council with a request that better facilities for the detention of women and girls be provided.

Details Up Monday

With the health department rooms vacated it will be possible to construct some new cells on the second floor.

Final details of the removal will bee settled Monday by the county commissioners court, it was stated yesterday.

Public Records

Cases filed with the district clerk Wednesday were as follows:

Annie Orr vs. Arthur Orr, divorce.

C. D. Shamburger vs. S. H. Smith, suit on note.

M. A. Yarbrough vs. City National Bank of Commerce et al., garnishment after judgment.

E. E. Pryor vs. L. E. Cowling, suit for title.

J. A. Bell vs. W. P. Lincoln, debt.

August Petrie vs. Linn A. Boyd, debt.

E. L. Miller vs. Kansas and Gulf company, damages.

A Boy, a Wheel, and A Donkey, Cause Youngster's Arrest

Two boys, a stolen bicycle, a donkey and $5 in cash combined Wednesday to form a muddle that required the attention of Juvenile Officer Bralley before it could be straightened out.

One of the youngsters, it seems, was the proud possessor of a donkey of doubtful vintage. The other, unable to endure his friend's affluance, hit on the idea of stealing a bicycle, selling it and with the money derived buy a donkey of his own.

The wheel was found and disposed of for $5, but berore a $5 donkey could be found the juvenile officer interferred.

As a result, the boys were returned to their parents, the $5 re-collected, and the wheel recovered and returned to its owner.

Council Hears Plan For New Park

Site on Burk Road May Be Beautified By City—Action Is Postponed.

Another, step was taken Wednesday in the long-standing plan to establish a park in north Wichita, when N. H. Martin and Mrs. T. B. Smock appeared before the city council with a request that immediate action be taken toward improving a small tract of land on the Burkburnett road that has been a potential recreational center for over two years.

Site Is Offered.

A demand for a park in north Wichita has long been felt, and about two years ago the Texhoma Oil and Refining company offered to present the city a park site in the north Wichita district, if the city would agree to improve and maintain it as a park. The site in question is a triangular piece of ground, less than half an acre in extent, located near the Texhoma refinery, on the Burkburnett road.

The city council agreed to the proposition and last year water mains were laid to the ground and a few trees set out. The work stopped here, however, and nothing more has ever been done. Deed to the property has been misplaced in the meantime, and the city council has been wary of going too far until a clear title is obtained. This angle of the case can easily be cleared away, however, it was intimated Wednesday by Mr. Martin, who represented the Texhoma company.

Mrs. Smock Backs Move.

Mrs. Smock has sponsored the park movement from the first on behalf of the North Side Civic league, and Wednesday she vigorously urged immediate action. A park or recreational center of some kind is a necessity in that section, she told the council, and joined with Mr. Martin in advocating the setting out of some trees and the starting of other improvement work.

It was voted to refer the matter to Park and Health Commissioner Reed, with instructions that he compile data showing the approximate expense to the city of making the suggested improvements.

These figures will be submitted at the next council meeting and final action taken then.

Another Park Is Lost.

The possibility of another park being established in the city came up Wednesday night at the city council meeting when Commissioner Stayton revealed that a park was being sought at Burnett and Eleventh streets, the present site of the old city standpipe. This tank is to be removed to the golf club grounds in a short time, some storage sheds cleared away and the grounds vacated.

Several residents in the neighborhood are seeking to have a park laid out at the corner.

Although nothing was taken in the way of definite action, it developed that the grounds would probably be laid out as building sites and sold.

The Core--No More

The suit of I. E. Harwell vs. F. A. Reinhardt, on trial before Judge Guy Rogers of the county court at law, was taken under advisement Wednesday by the judge and a decision will be rendered in a few days. The case arose out of a note held by the plaintiff and that was given in connection with the purchase of some land from the defendant. Judgment is expected within a short time.

Judgment in the case of E. Frenemore, vs. Roy Calvert, tried Wednesday before Judge Napier of the 89th district court, is expected to be rendered today. The suit was one involving the sale of some oil properties in the Red river bed.

A man was held in the city jail Wednesday afternoon on charges of having deserted from the United States army. He was picked up here by officers at the local recruiting station and is being held pending decision as to his disposition.

Police arrested a man Wednesday afternoon for investigation in connection with the finding of a quantity of meat in his possession. The meat had been lost from the automobile of a local farmer and was found by the pedestrian. No charges were filed at a late hour Wednesday and it was indicated that he would be released.

Juvenile Officer W. G. Bralley was back at work Wednesday after being laid up with the flu for several days.

Lee Huff, former chief of police and now a state ranger, left Wednesday night for Waco, after spending several days in the city.

Sheriff Pat Murphy left Wednesday night for Parsons, Kans., on a short official trip.

Three men were arrested in a house party near the river Wednesday afternoon and held on charges of possession of whiskey. The arrests were made by City Officers Shook and Davis.

Miss Faye Ware of Altus, Okla., is visiting Miss Ruby Lumpkin, 2015 Kemp boulevard.

H. N. Roberts, traffic manager of the Wichita Falls & Southern railroad, is in Graham superintending opening of the joint station recently erected by the Southern and the Rock Island line.

J. I. Staley is on a business trip to New Mexico, looking after his ranching interests in that state.

C. R. Taylor, general agent of the Orient line, with headquarters in Fort Worth, is a business visitor.

E. H. Wiggand, traveling freight agent of the L. & N. railroad, with headquarters in Dallas, is in town on business for his line.

News was received here Wednesday of the death of Dr. R. S. Wilson of Gainesville, Texas. Dr. Wilson was the father of Perry Wilson of the Goodner wholesale grocery company here. The funeral will be held in Gainesville today.

Two Escape Bad Injury When Cars Collide on Lamar

J. A. Stanford and his son, Ennis, both of Liberal, Kan., had a miraculous escape from serious injury or death at 3:30 Wednesday afternoon, when a Ford touring car they were driving turned over at Eighth and Lamar after collision with a coupe driven by Mrs. Mahoney of the city.

Neither man was thrown from the car, but Ennis Stanford received a painful gash on the forehead and other scratches and bruises. The younger man was uninjured.

The Mahoney machine was driving west on Eighth, and the Stanford car was coming north on Lamar, according to eye-witnesses, when the crash took place. Neither driver apparently saw the other. The Ford was struck squarely in the middle and rolled over on its side.

Mrs. Mahoney's automobile was uninjured, save for a bent bumper, but the Stanford machine received a badly shattered running board and damage to the wheels.

Mr. Stanford had just arrived in the city, he said, and was passing through on his way to southern points.

Curd Tells Lions Of Organization's History in Past

An address on "Lionism" by P. B. Curd, "extinguished member of the organization," as he was formally introduced, featured the Wednesday Lions' club meeting in the Y.W.C.A. cafeteria.

The talk dealt with the principles and precepts of the organization and traced its growth from the inception of the movement up until the present time. Over 600 clubs are now scattered over the United States, Mr. Curd said, each with a definite purpose and program of civic and personal betterment in view.

Nine Campfire girls, under the direction of Miss Glenore Fisk, furnished the entertainment features of the day with a number of appropriate songs. It was announced by Miss Fisk at the conclusion of the meeting that the Southern Methodist University choral club was to appear at the Palace theatre Saturday of this week and that the Campfire girls were endeavoring to raise funds to promote this event through the sale of tickets for the concert.

ROTARY CLUB IN CELEBRATION

Observe Anniversary At Today's Lunch

The eighteenth anniversary of the starting of the Rotary club movement is being observed this week by Rotary clubs everywhere, and will be celebrated today at the weekly luncheon of the Wichita Falls club at the Kemp.

Former members of the club, who have dropped out for one reason or another, will be guests for the day.

"The invitation applies to all former Rotarians in Wichita Falls," P. A. Rogers, president of the club, said Wednesday night, "and we hope that all will consider the newspaper announcement sufficient invitation."

Judge P. A. Martin, who had to give up his Rotary membership under the rule which forbids elective officers being Rotarians, will discuss Rotary's anniversary from the standpoint of the "exes." Tom B. Smock, president of the club during its early days in Wichita Falls, will tell some of the experiences of the club of that day.

City School Board Reported Divided On Selecting Clark

Opposition has developed in the ranks of the school board to the reappointment of Lee Clark, for eight years superintendent of city schools, as head of the school system, for the next scholastic term. It was learned Wednesday that some informal discussion had been held among board members as to whether a change in the school superintendent's office migh tnot be advisable, but that no open stand on the matter had been taken, or would be taken, until the date for the appointment of next year's superintendent. This comes in April.

Superintendent Clark intimated Wednesday that he would follow his usual procedure in not applying formally for the position again, but that he would be glad to remain with the Wichita Falls schools as long as his services were dsired. Since becoming head of the school system here, Mr. Clark has never applied for reappointment, but has always been named without hesitation.

Not all of us can be George Washingtons—but it is possible for each of us to "get somewhere" and "be somebody" in our own community.

We grow, accomplish and succeed by attention to thought, work and conduct—the impression people have of us is formed only by what we do.

A young man may have many wonderful qualities, but if he be reckless with his time and money, the foundation of confidence he needs, will crumble.
